CONGRESSMAN LINEBERGER GIVES ACCOUNTING OF ACTS IN CONGRESS, IS ENDORSED

Big Gathering of Republicans at Broadway Inn Hear Representative Renew Pledge of Continuance for Principles He Deems Right

"I SHALL NEVER HIDE BEHIND EXPEDIENT"

Pledges Support to President Harding and Declares He Favors Four Power Pact as One of Great Achievements of the United States

Congressman Walter F. Lineberger was the guest last night of his many friends and admirers in Glendale at a dinner given in his honor. He gave an accounting to his constituency of his stewardship of their business at Washington during his year and a half as representative from the Ninth congressional district.

He gave the accounting in an honest, straightforward way that settled any doubts that might have been in the minds of a few as to whether he should be sent back to congress to represent this district for another term or not.

He renewed his pledge to the people of the district that he would be on the square with his constituency and would always fight for the principles that he deemed right. He intimated that rather than abandon the principles for which he stands he would lose the race for re-election.

In making this intimation he said, "While I naturally want to win I feel that I would lose if I won and by winning abandon any of the principles for which I stand."

He also said, "I shall never attempt to deceive my colleagues or my constituents. I shall play the game of politics, while I play, on the square and shall never hide behind any political subterfuge or expedient. I do not desire to return to congress unless I can return with my principles intact."

In beginning his address, Congressman Lineberger said that often his mind traces back to the night a year and a half ago when he sat in the same room in which the banquet was held last night when plans were formulated for sending him to congress to fill the term of Congressman-elect Charles F. Van de Water, after that politician's death. He said at such times he thinks of what Glendale means to him. He has always kept in touch with the city and its needs.

"I have been away for a year and a half," said the congressman, "but I have not been removed from your interests. I have always kept abreast of the growth of the city and of the sentiments of the people. A representative in congress, to be a real representative, must know the thoughts, and feel and express the sentiments of his constituency."

He said that his success in Washington was due in a large part to the fact that he went there with a large majority of voters backing him and with certain well defined principles.

To achieve in congress one must first convince his colleagues of his sincerity of purpose and his ability to co-operate and co-ordinate along party lines.

"I have come to the conclusion," he said, "that what we need is not so much a radical departure from old principles and standards, but a re-adaptation of them. I have many things to learn if I am returned to congress and I shall ever have in mind that you would have me progress."

"If one must succeed in Washington one must be sincere and I have tried to be that. Oratory, while it is a great gift, is not what gets things across in congress."

In summing up the duties of a congressman, Mr. Lineberger likened the congress to a business organization and the senators and representatives as the board of directors.

He told of the work that is being done in present and that out of the eleven representatives from this state there are 10 of them sitting

Henry James Culls Fragmentary News From Daily Papers

On the editorial page this evening Henry James culls a few fragments of news from a daily paper. It is astounding to find how much crime there is contained in one single publication, and it prompts him to make his usual interesting comment. There is equally interesting comment on other subjects of the day's news.

In James W. Foley's "Listening Post" this evening you will lose yourself after reading the introductory sentence. It is an article which has a deep philosophy and a lesson for everyone.

There are three pebbles which serve an illustration, one representing health, the second industry, and the third honor, all of which were squandered by the youth into whose care they were placed. Then when he finally reached his destination he failed to gain admittance because without them the gates would not open for him.

Able editorials, articles by Dr. Frank Crane and John Pilgrim, scientific articles, correct English, eastern point of view and an article entitled "Evolution Working Backward," complete the splendid editorial page of this paper.

FLYING SQUADRON FIRES SECOND SHOT HERE

J. H. Wortendyke of Kansas, Speaks at Rally in C. of C. Auditorium

James H. Wortendyke was the speaker at the "flying squadron" rally in the Citizens' building auditorium last evening.

Mr. Wortendyke is from Kansas and is a constitutional lawyer. His topic was "The Prohibition Amendment, Is It Permanent?"

Said he, "This is the general belief because it is in the constitution. He then showed by historical facts that without enforcing laws it would be a dead letter, asserting it largely depends upon the attitude of congress as to whether any amendment becomes effective or not.

He charged that the liquor interests were being more effectively organized and financed than at the present time.

There are 33 organizations, he said, fully equipped and working to use the light wine and beer amendment as a wedge to split open the constitution and eventually bring back the liquor traffic. It is in the hands of congress to amend, modify, change, or repeal the Volstead law and thereby break down the eighteenth amendment.

The flying squadron is in the field, he said, to assist in electing not only dry men, but the ablest and most efficient.

It will help, he said, to return Volstead in Minnesota, to defeat Governor Edwards, the wet candidate for U. S. senator.

Because of his wellknown ability, the squadron is urging Randall's return to congress.

Olivier W. Stewart, who was elected to the Illinois legislature from Chicago on the prohibition issue, will be the principal speaker this evening. He is considered one of the greatest authorities on this subject today. Miss Norma C. Brown, an ordained minister of the Christian church, is the other speaker.

MONTROSE C. OF C. IS BOOMING THINGS

Movement Hits Popular Note in the Canyon; to Have Own Building

James L. Brown, president of the Montrose chamber of commerce, says that the people of Montrose are certainly lending their full support to make this newly organized body a success. There was a fine representation present at their last meeting and some of the merchants even offered their supplies and material as well as their men to help in constructing a new chamber of commerce building, one of the first necessities. At present the meetings are being held in Young's hardware store, but this is not a permanent location.

Mr. Brown especially thanked the Glendale Daily Press for courtesies extended the chamber.

nationalist and believes in "America for Americans."

Mrs. J. C. Braley also endorsed the candidacy of Mr. Lineberger. J. C. Sherer said that he felt gratified to be represented in congress by so able a man as Congressman Lineberger.

Mrs. Lineberger told the women present of the social life in Washington. Her friendly manner and pleasing personality won many friends from among the women.

SENIORITY MATTISON DEMANDED JONES IS FOR PEACE WELCOMED

Shop Workers Stand by Officers in Stand for Restoration

RESULT IN DOUBT TYPICAL MEETING

Meeting Tonight Likely to End in Failure of Issue

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Railroad executives must accept defeat on the seniority issue if the walk-out of shop workers is to be settled, one of the leading labor figures in the strike told the United Press today.

Unless the managements are prepared to concede the shopmen's demands for restoration of seniority rights, the peace conference of brotherhood leaders and railroad executives in New York tomorrow will be futile, he said.

This determined stand on the part of the strikers, demand on the eastern railway executives for a fight to the finish, and the call issued by the American Federation of Labor for financial and moral support of the shopmen by all organized labor, have caused administration leaders to lose the hope they had for an early settlement of the dispute.

All plans for settlement of the strike at the New York conference between the executives and chiefs of the big four brotherhoods were advanced by the former, the strike leader declared. The leaders of the shopmen and brotherhood chiefs remained steadfast on the demand for unimpaird seniority rights throughout all the secret sessions and are prepared to fight it out along that line indefinitely.

"One thing is certain," this leader stated. "We are through making proposals. Our final word was said in the reply to President Harding's last proposal—that we cannot return unless we are given unimpaird seniority rights."

The strikers, backed by other labor unions, have ample funds; they decided more than a year ago that the fight was coming, and prepared themselves accordingly, the strike leader declared. Thousands of the 400,000 strikers have gone into factories temporarily to relieve the strain on the treasury of the shopmen's union.

Labor leaders make no secret of their reliance on deterioration of equipment to help them win the strike. They believe that it is only a matter of time before the railroads will be reduced to a desperate state.

WEEKLY FORUM IS PLANNED FOR C. OF C.

First Gathering Slated for Tuesday Noon With Civic Unit Delegates

A change is to be made in the program of the chamber of commerce in that members of the board of directors will meet Tuesday evenings at 7:30 instead of at noon. In place of the noon directors' meeting a weekly luncheon forum will be held open, of course, to members only and guests specially invited.

The first of these forums is to be held Tuesday, September 5, at 12 o'clock noon.

Every civic and improvement association in the city will be asked to send a delegation of five. Including rotarians, kiwanians and others, there are twelve of these groups to be represented.

Secretary Rhoades has not definitely outlined the program for this first session, but says matters of great importance to Glendale are to come up and it should be a meeting of exceptional interest.

Directors of the chamber are to meet tonight. The names of a good many applicants for membership will be presented, and reports will be received from the civic committees of which Dr. Jessie Russell is chairman. Representatives of the advertising committee will also be present.

MINERS WORKING

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 22.—Four hundred union miners marched into the pits of the Campbell creek coal company near here at daybreak today, resuming operations which had been suspended since the strike began April 1.

The spectre of famine which for months has haunted the shanties of the district, faded as the working-mites of which the civic committees commenced feverish efforts to help replenish the nation's coal supply.

Boy Gives Up Life in Effort to Save Dog

HOOD RIVER, Ore., Aug. 22.—John Young, 18-year-old son of Owen D. Young, former president of the General Electric company, New York, was dead here today—having given his life to save a dog.

Young was employed as material checker in a construction camp of the Pacific Power and Light company here.

The camp dog, which had been Young's companion, ran in front of a moving locomotive on the front of which Young was riding, late yesterday.

The boy leaped from the engine, snatched at the dog in an effort to throw it so safely, but slipped and fell directly beneath the wheels of the moving train.

He died before help could reach him.

HUNDREDS ATTEND "RESCUE LESSON" AT POOL

Fred Killick Shows How to Save Life of the Drowning

Approximately 700 people witnessed the aquatic demonstration last night at the municipal swimming pool by Fred H. Killick, swimmer, traveler, and lecturer, under the auspices of the Verdugo Hills district council, boy scouts of America.

Every seat at the plunge was taken, standing room was crowded, and many of the boys climbed on the roof of the bath house to witness the demonstration. The parking space around the pool was crowded with automobiles.

Ray L. Kent, secretary of the Verdugo Hills district council, gave an address of welcome to the visitors. He introduced L. R. James, manager of the plunge, who told of the benefits of the pool and urged the people of Glendale to use it freely.

He said that the water in the pool is changed three times a week and that the bottom and sides of the plunge are thoroughly scrubbed each time the water is changed. There are no chemicals in the water that might be injurious to the eyes.

Mr. Killick was assisted in his demonstration by five scouts from troop No. 2, Glendale. The boys assisting him were: Floyd Craft, Robert Hauth, Elvin Richards, Charles Klausen and Clifford Walcott.

The first demonstration was the manufacture of a suspension bridge of rope and blankets. He then demonstrated how to bring in the entire crew of a capsize boat and the boat with the aid of a life-line.

The third demonstration was the proper method of swimming under water and the methods used in securing a corpse from the bottom of a pool.

Mr. Killick demonstrated the various swimming strokes and methods of breaking the clutch of a drowning man.

A 5-year-old girl demonstrated how to save the life of an adult that had become exhausted while in the water.

The last demonstration was the bringing of an exhausted swimmer through breakers and undertow with the aid of a life line.

Harold F. Benner, scout executive for this district, said this morning: "The demonstration last night was one of the best that I have ever seen. The things demonstrated by Mr. Killick are things that everyone should know as they increase his efficiency and add to his own safety and the safety of others."

GODFISH THIEF RAIDS POOL ON ARDEN AVE.

Sixty-three Stolen While Family of Peter Hansen Is Absent

On Saturday afternoon the gold fish pond belonging to Peter Hansen, 221 Arden avenue, was raided by unknown persons during the owner's absence, and 63 fish were stolen.

The entire Hansen family were away on Saturday and when they returned they found that the rocks lining the pond were torn loose, the water lilies broken, and nearly all of the fish gone. Only 12 remained.

The police have been notified of the theft and Leo Stein has been assigned to the task of trawling the lost fish. However, no clue has been found to the thief.

ARMY OF BABES GROWING RAPIDLY IN GREAT CONTEST FOR SUPREMACY AND CASH

Photographers Prepare to Take Faithful Likenesses of All the Little Ones Whose Parents Have Entered Them in the Race

LOTS OF AMUSEMENT FOR THE EDITOR

Thirty Coupons Are Filed Yesterday Alone; Parents Eager for Orders on Photographers to Show the Pride of Many Households

And still the babies come to the front with coupons for enlistment in the "Best Baby" contest—babies with eyes of blue, caught from heaven as they came through; babies with liquid brown eyes that have come down to them from some pretty senora who knew California when it was a wilderness and when home was a hacienda with pasture lands on which sheep and cattle grazed; babies with thick hair and babies with not enough hair to bob. But all are well babies, and therefore, good babies.

Close to thirty coupons were delivered by the stork postman to the baby editor yesterday and today's grist promises to be as large.

Fortunately it is summer and there is natural light for photographing for many hours. Even if there were not, Glendale studios are equipped with apparatus which makes them practically independent of daylight, so no child need go without a photograph. If the registration keeps up as it has begun they will have to hire assistants to keep cameras and developing apparatus busy in order to cover their big contracts. Of course first-comers will have first chance, so babies should take notice and see that mother, or granddad, or auntie fills out the slip that will give a chance in the $100 cash prize, the $100 merchandise prize, and all the other most desirable prizes, including the baby's diamond ring which Arthur Diberni is having made especially for some local baby whose parents take the Press.

The editor is having lots of fun playing godmother to all the kiddies in town and incidentally is getting some pleasant glimpses of general good nature on the part of the men and women who are patronizing the contest. There are Mr. and Mrs. Vincent C. Reed, for example, who came to Glendale four and a half months ago from Quincy, Ill., and who have adopted our city wholeheartedly. Mr. Reed is an employee of the Los Angeles postoffice, but so thoroughly Glendale that he is ready to participate in any local enterprise that needs pushing along. He and Mrs. Reed not only entered their own little fair-haired son nine months old, but their handsome little adopted daughter, two years old, who was born near Vandalia, Mo. They wanted a little girl and so opened their home and hearts to the child, who will compete against their baby Robert Vincent Reed, for the grand prize.

Helen Elizabeth Gellas, daughter of Mrs. George Gellas, 344 West Wilson, this city, though but 22 months old, already shows independence and initiative. She has her own language, which the family have learned to understand, and she can get her bird "sweet, sweet," that being probably her interpretation of its song.

Eugene Leonard Hague, blue-eyed, golden-haired son of Letter-carrier J. Milton Hague, is a big boy one year old, who has 24 pounds to his credit now and weighed nine and one-quarter pounds when he first saw the light. Having been so fortunate as to be born in Glendale, he is thoroughly contented and happy and has never caused anybody a particle of trouble. His father, who has been a resident of Glendale for four years, is hoping his son will make as good a record as has his cousin, Wesley McLaren Hague, who won highest honors at Annapolis naval academy in 1920.

Another big boy is William Bernard Jensen, son of R. Jensen, of 556 West Elk, who will celebrate his third birthday October 28. At this time he is three feet tall and weighs 50 pounds, and according to his father, is considered the finest baby of his years in the locality. He comes naturally by his big frame, as both his father and his mother are tall, and his grandfather on the paternal side stood six feet two in his stocking feet.

Maxine Helen Burson is a darling brown-eyed maid about 21 months old, 25 light and quick on her feet that mother has to tether her with a rope when she is very busy. Nothing can faze her good nature, however, and she is happy as the day is long. She talks a lot. Some of it is baby lingo, but more is real United States and is plainer than most babies are equal to.

HARDING LEAGUE CLUBS ENDORSE GLENDALIANS

Majority of 61st District Central Committee Candidates Approved

Singular honor is paid to the Glendale candidates for county central committee, in the selection and endorsement made during the week by the League of Harding Clubs of the state, organized in Los Angeles.

Out of fifteen selections, possible, ten were confined to Glendale men, although only thirteen Glendale men had entered the race.

The selection has been generally acclaimed as representative of the leading republicans of the 61st district.

It is expected that the endorsement will carry considerable weight with the republican organization men.

The official ballot, as it has been checked by the League of Harding Clubs, is printed elsewhere in the paper and should be studied with care by the voters on and before August 29.

On that date, voters will have an opportunity to name a majority of the board of the county committee from the 61st district and place Glendale in practical control of affairs for this district.

The remainder of the endorsements of the League of Harding Clubs, is on a par with the selection of the men for the district committee. The full endorsements will be found elsewhere.

FREE THEATER TICKETS

The Glendale Daily Press is giving away theater tickets to its readers this week. There are two ways to get tickets free, namely, insert a classified advertisement for three times in the Glendale Daily Press or find your name in the classified columns and present to the Press the paper containing same, and the tickets are yours.

In today's issue there are several names of subscribers in the classified columns who are entitled to free tickets. Find your name and be our guest at the theater.

DENVER, Aug. 22.—Hundreds of tourists, camped in Overland park here, appealed to Red Cross officials for blankets and bedding following a heavy hail and rainstorm which swept the camping grounds at the park late Monday. Dry blankets were provided.

GILHULY SUBMITS RECORD FOR HIS CANDIDACY

Glendale Real Estate Man Seeks Nomination on Equalization Board

As a candidate for election to a seat on the board of equalization for the Fourth district, Sidney S. Gilhuly, real estate and insurance man of Glendale, offers his past record for the consideration of the voters in this district. As there is no candidate for this post on the Democratic ticket, the office will be filled at the primary election, on August 29. H. G. Cattell, who is now holding the office under an appointment from Governor William D. Stephens, is also a candidate to succeed himself. He is also running on the republican ticket. The Fourth district comprises the 24 counties south from San Francisco to the border.

Mr. Gilhuly has lived in Los Angeles for the past ten years. Five of these years he has lived in Glendale where he is well known as a business man and one who has taken an active interest in the civic life of the community. His home is at 342 El Bonito avenue.

He was connected with the Santa Fe railroad for many years. Last fall he resigned from an executive position with that road to enter the real estate and insurance business in Glendale. He has offices at present at 1257 South Central avenue.

He has always been identified with the fraternal and civic life of Glendale. He is an active member of the Masonic order in Glendale. He is a member of the Glendale lodge No. 1289 B. P. O. Elks, the chamber of commerce and the young men's republican league of Los Angeles.

The support of many of the leading business men of the city and Los Angeles has already been pledged to Mr. Gilhuly in his race for the office he desires.

Outdoor Theater Has Spectacle Calculated to Conserve Big Woods

BIG BASIN, Aug. 22—Joseph D. Grant, chairman of the Save the Redwoods league, was a guest at the opening production of "Ersa of the Red Trees" in the Outdoor Theater in the California State Redwood park tonight and expressed his appreciation of the good that this production would do for the cause of saving the redwoods. He declared that through such spectacles Californians must be awakened to the unique beauty of the Redwoods and to the importance of preserving them for posterity before it is too late.

"Nature has been so prodigal with California that we do not fully appreciate the wonders which surround us," said Mr. Grant. "These redwood trees are among the marvels of the earth. They are not only beautiful. They are not only gigantic. They are unique—found nowhere else in all the world.

"The trees under which we gather here tonight have been saved by a far-sighted state, at the instance of your Semperverens club and your many citizens, whose spirit combines patriotism with energy and expresses itself in voluntary effort to preserve the wonders with which nature has endowed us.

"Our Save the Redwoods league is formed to save other groves like this throughout the length of the redwood belt, and in this work the play tonight is of inestimable value. For it carries our message dramatically and eloquently to all who attend, and aids our efforts by making manifest the uses, the grandeur, and the significance of these ancient redwoods."

Mr. Grant said that since the formation of the Save the Redwoods league over 2000 acres of the finest trees along the California state highway had been preserved and dedicated as a state park at an expenditure of half a million dollars. This he declared was the beginning of a more extensive program to save representative areas throughout the Redwood belt.

Purely Personal

Mr. and Mrs. John Fox from Buffalo, N. Y., who have been the house guests of Mrs. Annie Eckert, 211 West Garfield avenue, have now purchased a home and are living at 433 West Garfield avenue.

J. C. Bardsley and J. Cooper of Lindsay came to Glendale to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rockhold of 330 Burchett street. Mr. Bardsley is Mrs. Rockhold's father.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Roberts of 129 North Everett street are the proud parents of a boy, born this morning at the Glendale Research hospital.

Joseph Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Clark, 818 East Acacia avenue, underwent an operation this morning at the Glendale Research hospital and is getting along nicely.

Mrs. C. W. Pyle and two children, Myron and Katherine, of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Ethel Ricks and daughter, Ejan, and niece, Miss Eunice McClure, all of whom have been the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Snow of 609 North Maryland avenue, will return to their homes the last of the week. They will stop at Yosemite and the Grand Canyon en route. During their stay here they have visited all the points of interest, such as Catalina and various beaches.

Frank Cosgrove of Minneapolis, Minn., who has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. A. Fleming of 1137 East Elk avenue, will return home the last of the week. However, he plans to come back to Glendale to make his permanent home here. He had no such intention when he came out to California, but after being here a while, decided that it was the only place in which to live.

ACTRESS BECOMES FARMER
 "From Footlights to Farm" would be the title of the transition of Mrs. Thelma De Verne Van, proprietor of Big Noise Ranch at Newnan, Cal., if Horatio Alger were writing the story. Mrs. Van is a real farmer today, with a 20-acre producing ranch under her direct supervision. Of course she has the advice and assistance of "Long John" Louallen, who manages a number of other farms in the vicinity, but to Mrs. Van belongs the credit of purchasing and paying for and now successfully operating "Big Noise" ranch, under somewhat adverse circumstances. Some day I want to write a real story of Mrs. Van—this is merely to introduce her.

It was right after the San Francisco fire that the yearning to get back to the soil took possession of her. She was walking down from Fillmore street where she and her partner had been doing a vaudeville turn, and chanced to pass a real estate office which offered 5-acre farms at $1 an acre and down $1 a month. Mrs. Van walked in and with $20 from her purse to start with, said: "Gimme five acres." She got the contract and talked and read "farm" in every city of the United States for three years after that. She induced a number of show people to buy and, finally, having acquired a great deal of "book learning," actually commenced operations.

Cold Storage

Cold storage can be used as an aid in the marketing of California plums is the finding of Professor E. L. Overholser of the pomology division, University of California, as a result of investigations in this problem. The plum has not been regarded heretofore as a cold storage fruit, being stored at most only a few days; to avoid a temporary glut of the market.

The investigations reported in Bulletin No. 344, indicate that certain varieties of California plums can be held in storage for optimum periods of about six to twelve weeks. After removal from storage these plums will hold up in good dessert condition for an ample period to admit of handling on the market.

A copy of Bulletin No. 344 may be secured by addressing the director of agriculture experiment station, Berkeley.

The first night after a fairly safe ride all day, he put up at a country hotel, putting his motorbike in the stable.

Next morning before leaving, when paying his bill, he inquired the charge for the garaging.

"Well," said the landlord, "it's rather difficult to say, as I usually charge $1 for a horse per night."

"That's all right," said the simple one. "My bike's two and one-half horse power. Here's $2.50"

 "From Footlights to Farm" would be the title of the transition of Mrs. Thelma De Verne Van, proprietor of Big Noise Ranch at Newnan, Cal., if Horatio Alger were writing the story. Mrs. Van is a real farmer today, with a 20-acre producing ranch under her direct supervision. Of course she has the advice and assistance of "Long John" Louallen, who manages a number of other farms in the vicinity, but to Mrs. Van belongs the credit of purchasing and paying for and now successfully operating "Big Noise" ranch, under somewhat adverse circumstances. Some day I want to write a real story of Mrs. Van—this is merely to introduce her.

It was right after the San Francisco fire that the yearning to get back to the soil took possession of her. She was walking down from Fillmore street where she and her partner had been doing a vaudeville turn, and chanced to pass a real estate office which offered 5-acre farms at $1 an acre and down $1 a month. Mrs. Van walked in and with $20 from her purse to start with, said: "Gimme five acres." She got the contract and talked and read "farm" in every city of the United States for three years after that. She induced a number of show people to buy and, finally, having acquired a great deal of "book learning," actually commenced operations.

No more living in Pullmans and hotels for me—I'll take my three squares right out in the open where I can hear the bees making honey for me." But Mrs. Van does entertain for her friends—and a royal entertainer she is.

Truths in Epigram

A little in one's pocket is better than much in another man's purse. — Cervantes (1547-1616).

It takes a wise man to discover a wise man. — Laertius (200 A. D.).

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always he that has done something. — Aurelius (121-180 A. D.).

THE RULE OF HATRED

German papers are said openly to express their joy at the death of Lord Northcliffe. They ascribe to him the defeat of Germany. This is, indeed, taking the view that the pen is mightier than the sword. Such an exhibition of rancor at this time is to be deplored. The war being over, the hatred that engendered it should be allowed to die out. In no other fashion is the world to know permanent peace. Human intelligence grasps this fact so readily that the theory has no need of support. The unadorned facts uphold it, and no other arguments are required. But human conduct is not always guided into the course that it knows to be best. It is swayed by selfishness and passion and the sting of memory. Wisdom sees a truth, formulates a theory resting on this truth, and in practice, individuals and nations toss the theory aside, aware all the time that they err.

Doubtless, Northcliffe did strive mightily for the success of the allies. He was no more devoted than thousands of others, but his position made his influence a definite power. No former enemy has any right to reproach his record in this respect. If Germany could but abandon the policy of hate, it would have to admit the mistake of the present tactics, calculated as they are to keep alive old animosities. Germany, of course, is being severely tried. It is unable to meet the demands of the allies, and in France this failure is deemed not only calamitous but deliberate. Thus through the years the bitterness of war time is being perpetuated.

Looked at in a large way, this condition must be deemed hurtful by the whole world. Until peoples have learned to follow their better instincts, not to nurture wrath; not to hate, but to be humane, tolerant and forgiving, the threat of conflict will continue to oppress.

Inability to pay a just debt, even a pretended inability, is not legitimate casus belli. Yet a debtor who sneers at the dead is not by such act, making an effective bid for consideration, but keeping active the spirit of hatred that is the great obstacle to peace and renewal of prosperity.

WHEN TO RETIRE

At the age of fifty a successful business man announces that he has retired. This means that he has turned over to others the management of his interests. Occasionally the individual still in the prime of life finds that he has accumulated enough to take care of him in comfort for as long as he may live. The inclination to elect such a course is far more rare than the number of persons who might do so if they chose. Some have a natural desire to enter commerce, to find profit in the particular phase of its activities that appeals to their tastes or befits their capacities. Others, entering under pressure of necessity, acquire the habit, and while strength lasts, never swerve from it. The mere pursuit of business provides all the satisfaction they want. It is the hunt for gain, rather than the gain itself, that lures them, after they have acquired a sufficiency. They strive none the less hard because there remains not the slightest reason, apart from sentiment, why they should strive at all. When an individual breaks from the course he has followed long, he is an exceptional person.

The present age is devoted to business in a manner that has characterized no preceding era. The fates of nations depend upon adjustment of business relations. It is the belief that business is the one essential thing that keeps Europe at this moment in a state of perturbation, poised at the edge of catastrophe. A nation is not unlike the individual. It permits itself to be moved by selfish motives. It wishes to have prosperity, and it cares little, far too little, as to the welfare of its neighbor nation. It yields, unless under compulsion, no moiety of its advantage. The man who thrives by oppressing his fellow is not adding to the total of prosperity, but is grasping more than his share. Yet the benefit he conceives himself to be receiving, adding more to his possessions than it is possible for him to use, is not a benefit. It accomplishes no good for him. There is something admirable in the business man who perceives this truth. Such perception, enlarged so as to color the conduct of nations, would change the whole world for the better.

FORGIVENESS OF DEBT

It would be easy to imagine circumstances under which debts between nations could be effaced by adjustment and understanding. Europe owes the United States vast sums. The thought has been formulated that it would be proper to cancel the obligation. This has not been announced as a political belief, but as a mere suggestion. An effort has been made to cause Americans to think that a veritable campaign, with such end in view, was being waged in Europe. This effort was due to a desire to find some point at which to attack the good faith of the allies. It was not sincere.

There is nothing to be cited to show that the debt should be wiped from the books until settled in due form. There is no reason that appeals strongly to Americans why, just as they are cutting their own army and navy expenses to a minimum, they ought to contribute eleven billions to countries that persist in maintaining their governments on a military basis. Certainly before Europe could fairly request so great a favor, it would have to undertake constructive policies, and cease to linger at the edge of war.

If Europeans were to quit squabbling and go to work, they could pay their debts. If they were to apply to extinguishment of these debts the sums they devote to keeping their several domains bristling with bayonets, the debts would melt away. As it is, the indications are that the billions due the United States, if forgiven, would mean just so many more billions to apply to endangering the peace of the continent, and thus the peace of the world.

SAVING A REPUTATION

When Williamson county, Illinois, was the scene of wholesale slaughter, the whole country felt a thrill of horror. This was followed by a sense of shame and disgust as the fact transpired that local authorities were in sympathy with the murderers, and intended to take no action. There appears to have been no secrecy as to the slaughter. It was done openly, sanctioned by the citizenry, and the assassins, remaining free, are said still to be boasting of their achievement and immunity. It did not seem possible that so gross and repellent a crime would be regarded as a mere incident, and forgotten.

Now the people of Illinois propose to wipe out the disgrace, so far as this may be done, by hunting down the perpetrators and bringing them to trial. Although the crime is ascribed to striking coal miners, the apprehension of the criminals has no possible bearing on the merits of any labor dispute. A miner may have a serious grievance, but this in no sense bestows upon him the privilege of killing at will.

The sovereign state of Illinois recently witnessed the trial of its chief executive, who had been charged with illegal conduct in relation to public funds. The trial demonstrated the innocence of the defendant, but regardless of his own belief that such would be the outcome, public sentiment forced the trial. If the governor could not escape arraignment at the bar on accusation of a sordid offense, surely no private citizen, believed to have committed murder, is in a position to ask any favors of the law.

The reputation of Illinois is at stake. That of Williamson county is not. The moral status of that community has been settled.

Merchants of Hope

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of Napoleon's sayings was "On ne conduit le peuple qu'en lui montrant un avenir: un chef est un marchand d'esperance—No man can lead the people except by showing to them a future. A chief is a Merchant of Hope."

It is a happy phrase and one worth thinking over. Merchants of Hope! Goodness knows there are plenty of Merchants of Despair. The cheapest and easiest thing in the world is to prove that the world is on the toboggan slide to destruction, that men are cruel, that women are bad, that life is not worth living, and, as the Cockney expressed it: "Wat's the use of anything? Nothink!"

Every young and unappreciated poet tells us what a dreadful world it is. Every little two by four essayist and critic; every preacher bidding for quick popularity; every novelist that wants to make a thumping sensation, plays us the same tune as he draws his melancholy horsehair across the lugubrious catgut. But pessimism is merely childishness. It is amateurishness in philosophy. It is crudity in religion. The Merchant of Despair is as the banana peddler or the push cart hawkster. The optimist is the big business man in thought.

For pessimism is simply a habit of magnifying single instances and an inability to grasp general laws. Optimism is always to believe generalization as against the particular. Pessimism is sterile and impotent. Optimism is creative. Pessimism is a force of death. Optimism is the force of life.

Said Vaurenargues: "Pour exccuter de grandes choses, il faut vivre comme si l'on ne devait jamais mourir.—To execute great things, one must live as if he were never going to die."

And all our convictions of immortality is simply the overflow of life. It comes from an abundance of vitality. It is only where life is feeble, sterile and bitter that it refuses to believe in the life beyond.

In the great marts of the world, it is the Merchants of Hope who are successful. Nobody wants to buy gloom. (Copyrighted by Dr. Frank Crane)

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers) Mr. J. M. Mackay Writes: "My dear Nicholson: The following comments are made not in a spirit of captiousness, nor of flippancy, but merely to help furnish material for discussion and explanation. Very truly yours, J. M. Mackay."

"Sir Walter Scott was occasionally reproved by his son-in-law for his misuse of 'whose' when referring to an inanimate object. In Sir Walter Scott's diary, under the date of April 22, 1826, there appears the following: 'J. G. L. points out some solecisms in my style, as amid for amidst, scarce for scarcely. Whose, he says, is the proper genitive of which only such times as which retains its quality of impersonification. Well! I will (possibly he should have said I shall) try to remember all this, but after all I write grammar as I speak, to make my meaning known, and a solecism in point of composition, like a Scotch word in speaking, is indifferent to me.'"

Mr. Nicholson Writes: "The foregoing comment from Mr. Mackay was inspired by the following which appeared recently in 'The Right Word': Whose is the possessive case of the relative pronoun who and which. It may also function as the possessive case of the interrogative pronoun who. Some grammarians claim whose is the possessive case of who only, and that which is not declined; but these same grammarians acknowledge that whose is used as the possessive case of which by some of the best authorities; as, 'Spines whose silent finger points to heaven.'" (Wordsworth.)

Mr. Mackay's comments will be continued tomorrow. Readers are invited to join The Right Word Discussion club.

"Will you kindly discuss at some time when, if ever, it is correct. 'Some time' is now written as one word, sometimes. At is unnecessary, and the excerpt would be better if rearranged; as, sometime will you kindly discuss when."

THE LISTENING POST

A man started on a journey. Into a far country. To him it was a new country and untried. Except he had heard there was a place of fertile valleys and mild and pleasant days and fair content.

That was an alluring prospect. Fertile valleys, pleasant days and fair content. And he thought to reach there before the evening of the long day. And learn happiness.

And when he set out from his native village his friends bade him farewell. And good cheer and good luck. And one of his friends was a very old man. Who put into the hands of the traveler three pebbles.

Rough looking stones. Of no apparent worth. But the old man was earnest. And he charged the youth to keep them and to guard them well.

And to let no person tempt him to yield them up. So the young man accepted them. And put them in his purse. And he observed that one of them had a sturdy oak tree carved upon it. And one of them a bee. And one of them a flaming sword.

Queer enough, to be sure. As the young man thought when he set out. And ere he had gone far on his journey he met a youth jeweled and gowned in silk and with alluring graces.

And he bade the traveler stop at his house which was a place of gardens and fountains and music and laughter. "But I have no means by which to repay you," said the traveler. "You may give me the pebble marked with the oak tree," said the youth. "For that you may stay as long as you like." And the traveler laughed.

"So trifling a gift," he said. And he gave away the pebble. And after a time he set out again. And found himself growing weary. And another wayfarer met him. And bade him rest at another house. Where there were rare rugs and downy beds and draughts of spiced wine and lulling melodies.

"But I have no return to make," said the Traveler. "I will take the pebble marked with the bee," said the wayfarer.

So the traveler gave him the second pebble. And stopped a while. And passed on. To be accosted by a third man. Who offered him a place in a golden chariot.

"But I have not wherewithal to pay," said the traveler. "I will take the remaining pebble," said the driver.

So eventually the traveler reached the place of the pleasant valleys and mild days and fair content. But a great wall shut him out. And he knocked at a barred gate. To be answered by a fair youth with clear eyes and good countenance.

"Where are the pebbles?" asked the youth. "I gave them away," said the traveler. "What were they?" "The oak-tree pebble was health," said the youth. "The bee pebble was industry. The pebble with the flaming sword was honor. You gave Health up to Pleasure, Industry to Ease and Honor to Gain."

"Will you not let me in?" said the traveler. "I have come far." "You have given away the three precious jewels you were intrusted with," said the youth. "They were not pebbles. They were rare stones needing only polishing on the wheel of experience."

And he shut the gate. JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Spring Song of the Birds—By King James I (1394-1437)

EVOLUTION WORKING BACKWARD

By DR. EDWIN E. SLOSSON

Once farmers planted the tubbins of their corn and the potatoes that were too small to sell. Now they know better. They cut up their finest potatoes to plant, and every grain of their seed corn is pedigreed as carefully as a Colonial Dame. The result is seen in the doubled yield in potatoes richer in starch and corn richer in protein. Modern agriculture is fertilized by science.

The most backward branch of biology is the infant science of sociology. It is only just beginning to get its eyes open, to see things; in time, perhaps it will be able to do things, like the older sciences. But there is need of haste. The age of instinct is passing, the reign of reason has not come. Man has been pushed up to his present position. He has succeeded in slacking the pressure. Will he go forward rationally, of his own free will, or sink back until again he falls under the sway of the blind and merciless forces of the struggle for existence?

A decrease in the birthrate is not necessarily a misfortune to a country. Very likely, for instance, the British Isles have now all the population they can support in comfort under present economic conditions. The alarming thing about it is that the breeding is from the poorest stock instead of the best. Whatever objective standard one may take this is true. A statistical study of the population of Great Britain showed that in the districts where there was the most overcrowding, the cheapest type of labor, the lowest degree of culture and education, the highest percentage of pauperism and lunacy, the greatest criminality and the highest death rate from tuberculosis and infantile diseases, there the number of children were greatest in proportion to the possibly productive wives. It is a clear case of the survival of the unfittest, the reversal of evolution. No race can maintain its efficiency and virility against such reactive forces.

This is what is going to determine whether civilization shall advance or retrograde. Galton's ideal of eugenics may be too much in advance of the age to be practical, but at least something could be done to awaken the people to the imminent dangers of dysgenics.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SCANDAL EITHER WAY

[Lowell Courier-Citizen] The government of the United States will no doubt go on educating at the public expense a multitude of young men who are to be the future officers of the army and navy—the while it industriously decapitates those educated in previous years, as a means of curtailing the expense of the military and naval establishment. Time was when the number of West Pointers who promptly resigned and entered civil life after being educated by the federal government was held up as a scandal. Now the scandal works the other way about. Those who had educated themselves for a military career may be informed that their resignations are accepted and that they'd better try to find jobs in some other line of work.

WHAT IS DETROIT'S SECRET?

[Kansas City Star]

Detroit reports that it is making money on its municipally owned street car lines on which the fare is 5 cents. That will surprise some public utility boards which have been getting their information about the street car business from other sources.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

By HENRY JAMES

Williamson county, Illinois, seems to be piqued at the insolence of the effort to make laws against murder operative there.

Considerable growling has been caused by efforts of the mayor of Evanston to kick the hot dog traffic.

William Z. Foster threatens to re-enter Colorado, probably to ascertain if the authorities were in earnest when they kicked him out the first time!

Memoirs of the ex-kaiser won't add much to history, but will make a useful exhibit to the class in psychology.

Every time a municipal body makes a contract there is likely to be talk of a "slush" fund. Happily the talk often is the real slush. Dancing in restaurants is objectionable when it is done at the point of pistols, as occurred in Los Angeles recently. And nobody took a shot at the merry idiots!

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Here are a few fragments of news culled from the columns of a single issue of a daily paper:

Four men under sentence for the murder of two Los Angeles policemen have appealed for new trials. This means that two, who should have been hanged before now, get indefinite delay. Two others, under sentence to the penitentiary for life, linger in the county jail.

A maid confesses that she entered into the plot with a man whereby the pair stole $8000 worth of jewels from her mistress. She confessed only after her pal had pleaded guilty. Both of them ask the court for probation, which means the privilege of escaping penalty.

One Sterner, three times a convict, just out of the Arizona state prison, was caught in the act of burglary. He smilingly admitted that he had committed several other burglaries in Hollywood.

A prisoner named Gilkye has just been held to court under a $10,000 bond. He was one of four men who undertook a big robbery, and was the only one of the lot to escape being killed by officers of the peace. At the time of the attempted robbery, the man had been out on $10,000 bond for another crime. His plans included one for jumping the original bail.

But after all, there seems to be little to be learned from these incidents. Of course they show that the law's delays are easily invoked, that people ask probation when in no manner deserving of it, that punishment fails, sometimes, to be reformatory. But then everybody knew this before.

The husband of a woman now in jail because she is believed to have beaten out the brains of another woman with a hammer, has vanished from this locality. For his absence two reasons are given. It is said that he is away gathering funds for the defense of the hammer person. It is also said, that he will not be back, because of his fear of the prisoner.

Whichever story is true, the husband is not equally to be blamed. To save even an unpleasant wife from the consequences of crime, perhaps would be a natural impulse. To preserve his own skin intact also would be a response to a normal instinct.

In condoling with people who live through the summer heat, withers, and sometimes kills them, is a delusion on the part of a resident of southern California. Invariably they are charged with trying to lure the sizzling citizen to a region of cooler weather. The fact is that this section knows nothing of the deadly heat so familiar elsewhere, save as memory has stored up painful recollections. Last week when Chicago and New York were suffering intensely, scorching by day and night, the temperature here was cool, and the nights touched with distinct chill.

There will be no wave of excitement over the refusal of the senate to sanction a duty on oil. If there is anywhere a set of men who are competent to protect themselves without artificial aid, it is made up of the serious individuals who raise the price of gasoline at such intervals as the mood happens to strike them.

It is to be hoped that the current attacks on the local oil industry have not had the effect of injuring worthy enterprises in this field, of which there are many. Some of the stock offered for sale was so obviously worthless that no public exposure was necessary for the safety of the intelligent. Far better to buy bogus gold bricks than to buy such stock; for a brick might be useful to throw at the midnight cat.

Being in a hurry to get to the railway station, with his wife, a man told the cab driver to go fast. The orders were obeyed. Another driver also was hurrying at the time. Two rushing vehicles crashed together.

Out of the wreck was lifted the man who had urged the driver to go fast. He was dead in a few minutes. His wife at this writing hovers near death. All of this showing that the effort to make haste may make tragedy.

The question of coal profiteering, it is said, is to be left to the several states except as to inter-state traffic. This leaves the public to face the probability that the several states will neglect an important duty. The subject is likely to remain to the jurisdiction of the profiteers.

No sooner had Los Angeles proposed to make one of its highways to the sea a wide and beautiful boulevard, than opposition was apparent. The spirit of commerce objected, making known a desire that the highway be kept at the present width, so that it might be lined by butcher-shops, places for pressing clothes, peanut stands, and occasional drug stores and garages. Most of these structures, following precedent, would be of one flimsy story.

Sometimes the impulse to choke the spirit of commerce becomes strong.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Once more, then. What is the difference between true generosity and a willingness to spend money?

Answer: A Dickens of a lot. This is a favorite topic of mine, and I hope it bores no one, but the fact is that I am being peeved almost out of endurance by a generous friend. He has a large blue car with nickel trimmings and a pocketful of money and a case of hopeless and gangrened love. Every time the girl goes out with some other fellow or the mother gives him a lecture or the maiden aunt confesses that if she had her way she'd start an abattoir with him—

"Come," he says. "You and Mrs. Pilgrim pack up and come with me. We will visit the hill and coast resorts for miles around and I will spend all the money."

"Nix, John," I say to him. "A pair of red nixes. I have my work to do, old dear. I cannot go scallwhooting around the world just because the firmament has suddenly turned green to you."

Then he says that if I were a true friend I'd do what he wants me to do. And Mrs. Pilgrim—who has the truly feminine eye for having an outing at some one else's expense—tells me I must not be selfish. And in the end I weakly yield, and am carted off over the green footstool and fed a lot of canned, wilted, and over-ripe stuff that knocks my digestion endwise and works nights for a week in order to catch up.

"Isn't John the most generous boy?" Mrs. Pilgrim gushes. At first I said yes, just because I wished to avoid domestic noises. But now I am saying no, in deep bass. I think John is as selfish as a starving Chinaman. He knows perfectly well that he is deranging my affairs by dragging me around this way. Further, he is a bum sport, or he would keep his mouth shut about his love affairs. I do not want to hear what he said or she said after the first two hours. Enough is a measure pressed down, and running over. Further again, if he showed the girl and her mother and her maiden aunt a little consideration he would not have these troubles.

"You give me a pain," says Mrs. Pilgrim. "I do not know what you mean. I think he is wonderfully generous. Just look at the money he spends."

Darn! Darn! Darn!

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

WHY CONGRESS PROTECTS WAR GRAFTERS

An Open Letter from MR. RANDALL to MR. LINEBERGER

Dear Mr. Lineberger: On the 14th day of May of this year, a vote was taken in the House of Representatives on the Woodruff-Johnson resolution proposing an investigation of the gigantic stealings of war grafters who had contracts with the government during the world war. The resolution was put to sleep by the close vote of 149 to 114, although it had been recommended for adoption by the republican members of the Committee on Rules. Your vote was cast with the 149 to chloroform the investigation.

Here is the issue which you must meet in the ninth district Congressional race, and I propose you shall meet it, if not before the primary, then before election day in November. Every voter will know the truth.

I do not charge you with friendship toward war grafters nor do I think you would give a direct vote to protect them in holding their ill-gotten gains.

What I do charge is that you are so closely allied with the "Old Guard" of your party in Congress that when it cracked the whip and demanded defeat of the Woodruff-Johnson resolution, you took orders and voted that way.

Woodruff and Johnson are both republicans, and both were your comrades in the great war. They writhed under the failure and refusal of the Attorney General of the United States to prosecute these cases, when evidence was in hand and the United States district attorneys in at least two cases announced they were ready to proceed. These cases were in Michigan and Massachusetts. In the former case Senator Newberry was incensed at the very prospect of having his war grafter friends tried in court. In the Massachusetts case, Secretary of War Weeks was closely involved as a member of a law firm which had profited in the graft of millions. These men protested to Attorney General Daugherty against proceeding in these cases, although close to a billion of dollars' loss to the government was involved.

And the Attorney General of these United States actually sent a telegram to the U. S. Attorneys in the cases not to act!

This was the basis of the efforts of Woodruff and Johnson, republican members of Congress and veterans of the world war, to force action by their own administration to do its duty.

Their resolution was introduced on April 11th. It proposed that Congress "Fully investigate all contracts and expenditures made by the War Department and the Alien Property Custodian during and since the late war with Germany, and the settlement of any such contracts by any officer or agent or department of the Government arising out of such contracts, or the settlement thereof, and to investigate the civil and criminal prosecution or lack of prosecution, of any or all of the claims of the government arising out of such contracts or the settlement thereof, by the Attorney General, the Alien Property Custodian, the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy," and the resolution gave Congress full power to act by summoning all witnesses, secure all papers and contracts and to administer oaths and take full testimony.

This resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules, of which Congressman Phil Campbell of Kansas is chairman. The committee on May 3 gave approval to the resolution and ordered that it be reported to the House for passage.

Then the "Old Guard" got busy, and the grafters' lobby became active.

Campbell put the resolution in his pocket and kept it there. He refused to present it to the House.

Every day Johnson and Woodruff demanded action on the resolution. Every parliamentary trick known to Congress was employed by the reactionary leaders to prevent a vote. The House even went to the extreme lengths of adjournment to escape going on record. The young giants, Woodruff and Johnson, heroes of some of the fiercest battles of the great war, would not give up. The country was aroused. Finally the "Old Guard" in desperation appealed to the hard-boiled, frozen-faced reactionary, stand-pat speaker for help. He promised it. The fateful day came. Johnson and Woodruff made the daily demand for action, and the speaker recognized them. He allowed them to present their case in the open House. And then—he ruled—yes, he ruled—that Campbell could keep the resolution in his pocket.

Shades of departed Kings, Kaisers and Monarchies! Can you beat it? Then Johnson and Woodruff, inured to poison gas and shell shock, appealed from the chair. They did. And the vote was on sustaining the ruling of the millionaire moss-back who is the speaker. The chair was sustained by the close squeak of 149 to 114, although the republicans have more than 150 majority in the House.

Your vote, Mr. Lineberger, was among the 149.

Phil Campbell has already received his just reward at the hands of his Kansas constituents. They have retired him to private life.

You, Mr. Lineberger, make the excuse that you did not want to criticize Attorney General Daugherty by voting for the resolution, and you palliate your action by voting for another resolution giving him $500,000 out of the Treasury to prosecute war grafters in the hope that will cause him to proceed.

Well, let's see about Attorney General Daugherty. Almost under the shadow of your palatial home in Long Beach, Mr. Lineberger, there lives in a modest home, a lonely woman. Her face is seamed with lines of sorrow and her hair is turning white. Her only companion is a sturdy son who has steady employment and keeps his mother in what comfort is possible. A sweet young woman, the only daughter of this lonely woman, was killed in a terrible automobile accident a year ago, while on an eastern visit. The husband and father was sent to the Leavenworth penitentiary to serve a long term, some years ago. I knew these people long ago in a central western state. My father was the pastor of the parents of this man and woman. Their families were honored, respected and loved by everybody in the community. The young man who went to the penitentiary in later years secured a position in the real bank. He rose rapidly until he became cashier. Then along came a lawyer and financier by the name of Thos. H. Matters. He bought the controlling interest in the bank and became its president. This man was a plunger and gambler in stocks. He loaned the funds of the bank to his own enterprises. Under his orders his cashier became a party to the crime against the banking laws. Both were tried and convicted. The young cashier, having no friends of influence, went to the penitentiary to serve his term. Not so with Matters. He had powerful connections financially and politically. He allowed his cashier to go to the pen, but he went to the higher courts. His guilt was confirmed by all the courts, but still he was a free man. No jail opened for him. He appealed finally to President Woodruff Wilson for a pardon and it was denied. Then the new administration came with Attorney General Daugherty at the helm. Again Matters went to Washington and appealed to Daugherty for clemency, not for his cashier but for himself. Daugherty told him he could not recommend a pardon until he had served at least a portion of his sentence. It wouldn't look well! So Matters rushed back to his home town and announced in the newspapers he would serve his sentence. He boarded a train for Leavenworth, not permitting a bailiff or court officer to accompany him to the penitentiary. At Leavenworth he began his long sentence. It lasted exactly 44 days when a full pardon came from Daugherty.

The poor young bank clerk went on with his punishment, the lonely woman in the shadow of your mansion, Mr. Lineberger, cries herself to sleep, and the world of politics continues to grind out injustice.

This is not all of Daugherty. A decade ago, Charles W. Morse wrecked a bank in New York City. It carried the deposits and life savings of thousands of poor people. When the bank failed—hundreds lost all—it has been said that one hundred and fifteen suicides and deaths by shock and illness of aged people was a direct result of the wrecking of this bank by Morse. He was sentenced to a long term in the Atlanta penitentiary. Soon the papers began to carry stories of Morse's serious illness in the penitentiary. A blackleg lawyer in Georgia by the name of Thomas B. Felder was secretly engaged by Morse to secure his release. This was a particularly fine line of business. He was adept at it. In the Morse case he exercised his usual discretion and adroitness. He looked up Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, and contracted with him for a fee of $25,000 to secure Morse's release. Morse became rapidly worse. The papers said he could live only a few days. President Taft, who hailed also from Ohio, believed the stories, and pardoned him. The next day Morse sailed for Europe, returned in three months and began life over again as well as ever. He was one of the war's numerous grafters and is now under indictment by the grand jury in New York. Whether the same Harry M. Daugherty of Ohio, who secured Morse's release from Atlanta penitentiary, and who is now Attorney General of the United States, will ever find time to prosecute him is problematical.

These facts are here known to you, Mr. Lineberger, when you cast your tender-hearted vote to protect the feelings of Attorney General Daugherty. I submit, however, the suggestion that the voters of the Ninth Congressional District are more interested in seeing absolute justice done than they are in the feelings of a man like Attorney General Daugherty.

Very truly yours, CHARLES H. RANDALL.

GLENDALE CREDIT MEN CONSIDER STORE CLOSING

Committee Appointed to Secure Co-operation in Holiday Making

A committee consisting of Robert C. Plume, Seymour Smith, A. T. Cowan, Thomas L. Tolman and William C. Winkler was appointed at the meeting of the Credit Association to investigate the matter of uniform closing on Glendale. The committee declared holidays and report back to the association at the earliest time possible. It was suggested that this committee communicate with the management of the chain stores, and to make a determined effort to secure their cooperation by having them also close their stores on such days.

Votes of thanks were given Secretary C. H. Pilling for his untiring efforts in making a success of the picnic; Don Webb, chairman of the finance committee, and C. J. Hatz, chairman of the committee who judged the contests.

The executive committee, after investigating, recommended that the special advertising proposition which was presented at last week's meeting relative to "What did you buy in Glendale today," be not adopted at this time. This recommendation was endorsed by the vote of the organization.

Secretary Rhoades of the chamber of commerce asked that a committee of five from the Credit Association be selected to be present at the forthcoming meeting of the chamber of commerce forum. This committee will soon be appointed by President Rhoades.

The 55 members present at yesterday's meeting would indicate that the members are taking more than a passing interest in this organization which means so much to the financial life of Glendale.

WEANING RABBITS YOUNG IS ADVICE OF EXPERT

Should Be Given Solid Food at 6 Weeks, Says College Man

"Young rabbits should be weaned at six weeks of age," says W. D. Buchanan of the State college extension service, in response to a query from a Washington farmer who wishes to go into rabbit raising for the market.

"The age at which rabbits are marketed varies from two to four months of age," he continues. "The sexes should be separated when three months old."

Farmers' Bulletin 1090 of the U. S. department of agriculture gives nearly all the information one needs in the business. It is sent free by the State college of Washington Agricultural Extension division.

E. W. Nelson, chief of the bureau of biological survey at Washington, D. C., believes in the saving and earning possibilities of rabbit raising. He tells a story of a Kansas who has raised 300 to 400 pounds of rabbit meat a year for his own table at a cost of only 5 to 10 cents a pound.

A large religious institution in Washington substituted rabbits for chickens, and found the meat more satisfactory and the enterprise more profitable.

A former county commissioner in Washington tells of the growing of rabbits on the county farm instead of chickens, to provide the chicken substitute in the county hospitals. In 10 months the initial stock of 119 rabbits increased to 1,200, not counting those used by the hospitals.

An Iowa boy during his high school course raised rabbits in a 23-foot square in his back yard. He kept registered stock, and keeping and sold enough to clear more than $1,200 in a single year. An Ohio farmer sends 400 pounds of rabbit meat a week to city restaurants, yet is unable to meet the demand.

All these instances of profit in rabbit raising are vouched for by Mr. Nelson.

"They are not isolated cases," he says. "They are simply examples of what has been done in rabbit raising, and are an indication of what this industry is likely to be, come when it is generally understood."

FARM CEMENT MIXERS

With the increasing use of cement on farms for all kinds of construction, hundreds of ranchers are installing portable cement mixers either for their own use or for contract work. Manufacturers, recognizing this special need, have developed efficient, low-priced power mixers which may be purchased with or without engine. One type of mixer has a large capacity and may be operated with the tractor. Another style has a capacity of only one wheelbarrow load and is operated with a small gas engine. For the farmer who is doing considerable construction work, laying foundations and cement floors, or constructing water troughs, fence posts and similar equipment, a mixer is a profitable investment. Not only does it save labor but it also insures a more uniform grade of concrete.

NOT SUBSTANTIAL

"The situation in Russia," shouted the long-haired and long-winged lecturer, "is food for thought—food for thought."

"Maybe 'tis. Maybe 'tis," testily muttered Uncle Wisecrack, glancing at his watch and starting for the door, "but it won't feed the hogs and chickens."

RALLY FOR JONES IS BIG SUCCESS

Friends Hear of Trip North; Candidate Discusses Plans

At the rally for Mattison B. Jones, candidate for the democratic nomination for the governorship of the state, held at the high school Monday evening, Will Hays, chairman of the Southern California democratic committee, introduced by Chairman Ray Morrow, told of his long campaign to overcome Mr. Jones' reluctance to be a candidate, dwelling on the impression he made on members of the state bar association in convention, and of the friends he made on the way. He said because the Glendale people best know the candidate and his merits, the burden of the campaign is being put upon Glendale people.

He referred to Mr. Jones' integrity and conscientious adherence to what he believed to be right, and said: "A man with a reputation of that sort is a mighty good man to send to Sacramento as governor," a sentiment which drew applause. Continuing, he said:

"It isn't a light thing, but something real and earnest. The only thing you have in this life is the reputation you make while you are living here. Money will not buy it. When the candidate says that Mr. Jones has a straight door for those reasons, the people of Glendale have a right to be proud of the man who is asking to be governor of this great state." He ended by urging every friend of the candidate to boost for him.

Mayor Spencer Robinson, and his campaign ally, Ed Albright, then stepped upon the stage and gave an imitation of the campaign meetings they had been giving, to the great entertainment of the audience.

One of the other of them playing the accompaniment on a little portable organ that was once the property of Evangelist Bill Hogue. When the candidate was finally introduced by Mayor Robinson, he insisted on presenting to the audience in a group, the men who had accompanied him.

Though hoarse from the strain he has been compelled to put upon his voice, he was nevertheless able to make himself heard, and briefly told the platform on which he is seeking votes in the primary election after he had said how deeply touched he was by this manifestation of the regard of neighbors and friends in his home town.

He spoke of the advertising Glendale had received wherever the party had gone, of the debt he owed the city council for relinquishing the mayor to make the trip with him. He said he had felt it to be his duty not to confine himself to the issues of the primary, but to let people know something of the program for which he would stand should he be nominated and make the race for the governorship.

Among pledges which he made were to stand by the constitution and the enforcement of all laws on the statute books.

The child labor law, which has been declared unconstitutional, was touched upon with the declaration of his intention to work for a constitutional amendment which would forbid employment of child labor.

His interest in the ex-service man since the days of the war, while he served on the exemption board, was referred to and his desire to promote the welfare of those men.

His sentiment relative to the alien land law was expressed when he said: "If elected I will do everything I can as the exponent of this great people of California shall forever belong to the people of California, and those who can assimilate with us and uphold our constitution, laws, institutions and customs, who are willing to respect day by day, the Stars and Stripes of America." This also evoked applause.

The differences between labor and capital he indicated, should be settled by a friendly getting-together.

STANFORD'S TEAM GROWING STRONG

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 22.—For the first time in several years, a close contest, expected in the big game between Stanford and the University of California on the gridiron.

Stanford's elevens have gone down to defeat each year since Rugby was dropped as the winter sport. In 1919, Stanford surprised the football-loving public by giving California a very close call for its money, California winning 13 to 10 with Stanford on California's 10-yard line at the end of the last quarter after having run the ball down from the Stanford 30-yard line in the last 10 minutes of play. But outside of that year, the contests have been very one-sided.

Stanford's football machine has been strengthened greatly, and with "Pop" Warner introducing his system through the medium of his assistants, Thornhill and Kerr, much is expected of the Cardinal team during the coming year.

California is losing a veteran line, from tackle to tackle, Brick Muller and Berkey will be back, however, as will the Bruin backfield.

Twelve veterans of Stanford's 1921 team will return this year, but they will all have a fight for their positions, and a number of them will probably be playing on the sidelines, as there are a number of last year's freshmen who are available who are extremely high class material.

Dud De Groot, center, will captain the team. De Groot is regarded as one of the most brilliant players on the coast. Other veterans returning are Art Wilcox, Doughty, Campbell, Paville, Pershing, Mertz, Woodward, Sprinkle, Hartranft, Stice and Larson.

FOREST WORKERS DO WORK OF WORLD

Guard the Homes in the Rough of Many People

By CHARLES SHINN Forest Examiner

Before us, as we write this, are whole shelves full of books, reports, letters and all sorts of questions from ambitious young people seeking their best lines of life-work. It is natural to think of the great mountain areas and the workers, not only in national forests, but also in private lumbering. It is just as natural to include all the stockmen and whoever goes to the forests for any purposes whatsoever.

Now, the first thing to emphasize is that every sort of forest care study, much knowledge, much practice. Ambitious young men who want to become rangers would be amazingly helped by such courses in forestry as the State university offers—courses in lumbering, logging, engineering, forest products, forest management and silviculture. So would every person who is fitting himself for the successful handling of any private enterprise in these or allied fields of work. There is also a course in grazing at the Forest school which the sons of stockmen will find exactly what they need.

But, the reader may ask, "How does the closer unity, wider education of all these forest workers reach 'world-importance?'" Just this way: California's 23,000,000 acres of forest-area carries over three hundred billion board feet of timber. Our wood-using industries are constantly increasing. Here, more than anywhere else in the world, there will be for many years the chance to practice intelligent conservation and try out improved methods. The young lumberman, no less than the young forester, can have, if he chooses, all the knowledge there is on his subject—and perhaps may carry forward the standard of progress.

Prof. Durant Drake, in his new book, "America Faces the Future," tells his readers that when the white man came to this country possessed 800,000,000 acres of forest; that this area is now reduced to 133,000,000 acres; our saw-timber is being cut five and a half times as fast as it is being produced. We should be replanting right now in America something like 80,000,000 acres of unproductive waste. This is the result of reckless, uneducated individualism.

If all Californians "pull together" for more efficient use and care of our forest resources, the world will come to study our methods.

CHARLES H. SHINN, Forest Examiner.

Interesting figures on the cost of harvesting alfalfa have been compiled by the State college of Washington. The regular method used by most Washington farmers includes mowing, raking with dump rake, cocking by hand, hauling to the stack with sleds and slings and stacking with a common derrick. This method, it was determined, costs about $1.95 per ton. Comparative figures were based upon the use of side delivery rakes instead of dump rakes, bunching rakes to replace hand cocking, "bull" rakes for hauling to the stack, and an overhead stacker instead of the derrick. This process cost 67 cents per ton, representing a saving of $1.29. It was estimated that were all the farmers of the Yakima valley to adopt improved methods, there would result a saving of $400,000 a year.

last year's freshmen team, will fill Jack Patrick's shoes at fullback.

Tiny Hartranft, Stanford's champion discus, shot and dash man in track, will probably play this year, where his weight and swift, neat foot should greatly strengthen the team. Last year Hartranft worked for a time at guard. Hartranft is going to work at tossing passes, and if he can perfect a throw of the pigskin with the same ease that he heaves the little iron 16-pound pellet, he should come close to being a second Brick Muller.

The game this year will be played in the stadium on November 25. It is expected that the big bowl will be filled to its capacity, which is 65,000.

KNIGHTS PREPARE FOR EVENING OF DELIGHT

To Give Dance and Card Party at Hall Thursday Night

Designated as an "evening of pleasure," the Glendale lodge, No. 331, Knights of Pythias, will entertain at a dancing and card party on Thursday evening, August 24, at their hall, corner Brand and Park. Japanese lanterns and green boughs, fresh from the woods, will transform the ballroom into a veritable fairyland, and Kelly's Shrine orchestra will furnish the syncopation which will add the last note to complete the scene. For those who prefer to exert their heads rather than their feet, there will be card tables, in secluded corners, where the games may progress unhindered. Just the kind of refreshments which would most suit such an affair will be served. Come and sample them for yourselves.

COOPERS HOSTS OF PARTY TO MRS. LAWSON

Young Bride Will Leave Soon for Chicago to Join Husband

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooper, of La Canada, were the hosts on Saturday evening at an enjoyable dancing party given in honor of Mrs. Cooper's sister, Mrs. Omar Lawson. Mrs. Lawson was Miss Katherine Greig before her marriage in July. She will leave for Chicago, where she will join her husband, and they plan to make their home in that city.

Five hundred was played early in the evening, and Mrs. Robert Cooper was the prize-winner among the ladies, while Mr. Marion Lee was the fortunate gentleman. Refreshments of ice cream and wedding cake, in honor of the recent bride, were served. After they were enjoyed, dancing was the order of the evening. Pink and white, with the greenery of the foliage, was the color scheme followed, and the motif was carried out with asters and carnations.

Guests from La Canada included the honoree, Mrs. Omar Lawson, and Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Cooper, Marion Lee, Albert Lester Beach, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooper. Those from Glendale who enjoyed the affair were Miss Ida Siple and Messrs. and Mesdames Max L. Green, Clark Miltenberger, and Everett Hopkins.

MULE'S KICK DOES DAMAGE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—Unless the city council votes to pay a bill of $7.1, the board of public works has threatened to expose one of the city's mules who has hitherto enjoyed unimpeachable respect.

In the meantime the mule, which is the sole means of locomotion of city garbage wagon No. 58, will remain inobedient, and his name will not be published, it was said.

Appended to the bill were charges that the city's mule, willfully and with malice aforethought had inflicted damages on the motorcycle of one Charles Marks.

According to Marks' complaint, of assorted potato hides and watermelon covers was passing as he started his motorcycle which was parked by the curb.

The incognito mule evidently took exception to the sounds of the motorcycle, it was said, and pausing in his progress, inflicted by means of what was described as a "sidewise" serious injuries to the mechanism of the motorcycle to such extent that it was necessary to remove it to a repair shop.

"If the jolt had been head-on," Marks alleged, "it probably would have been necessary to remove the motorcycle in garbage wagon No. 58."

BENNINGTON CAMP NO. 20 SPANISH WAR VETERANS STAND BY JACK T. MILLAN

Commander Nielson of San Diego Post Replies to War Veterans' League Advisory Committee Reflecting on Buddie's Record

San Diego, Calif., Aug. 14, 1922. Copy of statement issued by executive committee of Bennington Spanish War Veterans. Meet first and third Wednesdays, Knights of Pythias hall.

In direct contradiction to certain statements that have recently been given circulation by the War Veterans' league advisory committee, regarding the service record of Jack T. Millan, candidate for state treasurer—on August 14, 1922, at San Diego, the executive committee of Bennington camp, No. 20, composed of Adolph R. Nielson, Adjutant; George W. Moulton, and Quartermaster James A. Holden issued the following official statement:

"J. T. Millan is a member in good standing of Bennington camp, No. 20, United Spanish War Veterans. He served during the Philippine insurrection. He was honorably discharged for disability, incurred in the line of duty. His age at the time of enlistment was 16 years, 6 months, 6 days."

Captain J. O. Ross, one of the most prominent Spanish war veterans in the state and chairman of the ex-service men's committee which is vigorously advancing Millan's campaign for state treasurer, issued this statement today:

"This eleventh hour attack upon Comrade Millan is one of the most cowardly and dastardly in the annals of state politics. Jack T. Millan is and has been for years a member in good standing of the United Spanish War Veterans. He has never posed as hero and he

Eleven Carloads of Genial Realtor's Folks Enjoy New City Park

The family of H. L. Miller, of the H. L. Miller company, real estate, held a genuine family reunion on Sunday in the form of a picnic. The affair was to be held in Griffith park, and when the crowd met at Vermont avenue and Hollywood boulevard, H. L. was chosen to take the lead and pick out the place for the picnic. He drove to Griffith park, went the full length of the road and back to Los Feliz road, then turned towards Glendale and never stopped until the eleven carloads of Millers reached a much better park, now known as Glendale-Verdugo park.

They were all pleased with the surroundings, and parked their cars around two long tables under the live oak trees, and immediately got busy spreading out baked, stewed and fried chicken, hot rolls, sandwiches of all makes, seventeen different kinds of home-made cake and cookies, lemon cream, pumpkin, peach and apple pies, and all the finishing touches that go with the above, including powder puffs for the ladies and cigars for the men.

Cameras were used profusely. Not a thing was lacking. All went home with pleasant memory of Glendale-Verdugo park.

Those in the party included Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Miller and Mrs. Cora Rennie, of Alhambra; Mr. and Mrs. John R. Miller and Mrs. Edna Miller, of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Miller of Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Green of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Miller, of Hollywood; Mr. and Mrs. Wm Rennie and daughters, Margaret and Muriel, of Owensmouth; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Miller, and the following daughters, sons-in-law and grandchildren of H. L. Miller: Mr. and Mrs. H. E. MADAM SLYFOOT HAS TO USE HER WITS

By JOHN BARTON

"She's here and she's a-digging! Uncle Tad! Uncle Tad!" shrieked little Frisk Squirrel. You know where he was—perched on the stone over Nibble Rabbit's old hole.

"She's here and she's a-digging! Uncle Tad! Uncle Tad!" shrieked little Frisk Squirrel. And the stone was rocking under him. And you know who he meant—Slyfoot's wicked wife, who was doing her best to get out and throttle him. No wonder he was scared most out of his fur. His little paws trembled so hard that he couldn't even jump.

The rocking stopped when Tad Coon galloped up the bank of Dr. Muskrat's Pond. He yowled, "I'm here, Flufftail! I'm here!" Before Tad ever reached the squirrel, Stripes Skunk was shrieking, too, from Malty Kitten's hole over the edge of the bank. "Tad! Come back here quick! She's a-coming!"

But Madam Slyfoot didn't come. She could see Stripes Skunk's piky mustache a-wiggle over his words, and she dodged back to the very middle of her tunnel. Nibble Rabbit had dug it the year before to be safe from her. Now it kept her safe from the Woodsfolk was safe for their enemies, as Dr. Muskrat had said about his Pond.

But safe for how long? For in that instant before Stripes Skunk began to shout she had heard something else that set every hair to bristling. She had heard a shrill bird voice shrieking overhead, "Tad Coon! Tad Coon! What do you want the dogs for?"

Dogs! That was a pretty note!

This was a new way of hunting. She did not mind having Tad hunt her all alone, but to call in all the Woodsfolk to help him—and the barn folks, too—that was new to her. That was not fair. Ss-s-h! What a pickle she was in!

"What'll they do next?" she asked herself. "It was high time to set her sharp-mink wits to working. 'I s'pose they'll try to claw me out. But this ground's almighty tough; and these thorn roots are bone-hard biting. Oh, I'm safe enough. I'll take a lot of digging to get me out.'"

Next Story—TAD COON GOES A HUNTING.

GIANT ENGINES REACH S. P. HERE

Moving in two special trains, twelve new "2-10-2" type locomotives, valued at nearly a million dollars and consigned to the Southern Pacific company for use on its Pacific system lines, have just reached the Pacific coast via El Paso, Texas.

These huge engines, the second consignment of an order of 50 placed by the Southern Pacific company with the Baldwin locomotive works, are to be put into service on the Southern Pacific lines across the Tehachapi and Sierran mountains. They are equipped with the latest fuel conservation and auxiliary power devices.

Everything may be terribly old and dried certainly with a married woman, except this: She never knows what her husband will get mad at next.

CHARLES C. MOORE AS A MINING ENGINEER

Built Cyanide, Stamp and Crusher Plant at Tonopah

Charles C. Moore, candidate for Republican nomination for United States senator, and one of the leading engineers and business men of the west, has been prominently identified with the mining industry, not only of California, but other western states for years. His has been a prominent part in the development of the mineral wealth of this territory. Men whose interests run along this line are actively advocating his election as a man amply fitted to cope with any questions which might come up in Washington bearing on the future of the mining industry.

As head of Charles C. Moore company, engineers, of San Francisco, one of Moore's undertakings was the building of the power plant and 100-stamp mill crusher and cyanide plant of the Tonopah Mining company at Miller, Nev., while several smaller plants of similar nature have also been erected for California mining concerns.

The coal mines at British Columbia also know the skill of Charles C. Moore, the engineer, for there are many power plants and hoisting systems in that field which his company has installed.

Speaking of the achievements of the Charles C. Moore company, Ralph Arnold, petroleum engineer and geologist of national repute, says:

"In general the Charles C. Moore company has specialized on steam-electric power plant construction for the Pacific coast and intermediate states. Since the organization of this company, in 1895, it has designed and constructed many of the more important power stations in this territory, and there are few stations which do not include some of this company's equipment. A few of the more prominent installations follow:

"The Spreckles Sugar Refinery, installed at Salinas several years ago. "The initial design and construction of the steam-electric power plant in San Francisco which is now the largest steam-electric power plant in the west.

"Work in Southern California includes: Plants of the old Edison Electric Light company, Los Angeles Railway company, Pacific Electric Railway company, Pacific Light and Power company, Southern California Edison company, Southern Sierras Power company.

"In 1908 the Charles C. Moore company built a large plant for the Pacific Light and Power corporation at Redondo Beach, which was then considered one of the most modern steam power plants in the world, establishing new records for fuel economy. It later furnished the majority of equipment, and did a large amount of the installation work, in connection with the Lums Beach power plant of the Southern California Edison company.

"In Arizona this company recently designed and installed modern power plants for the Inspiration Consolidated Copper company and Arizona Copper company, these plants successfully establishing fuel economy records for plants of equal capacity.

"The production of Portland cement in California, from the hills of Riverside and San Bernardino counties, has also had the attention of Charles C. Moore, and the extensive plant of the California Portland Cement company at Colton for the manufacture of cement, lime, marble dust and crushed rock, employing about 100 men constantly, is one of the engineering feats of Moore's company.

"The California Cotton Mills, located in East Oakland, which have been in operation 25 years, and which today is one of California's leading industrial projects, was built by the Charles C. Moore company.

"Other construction work of this company includes several large ice manufacturing and cold storage plants in various California cities, notably in San Francisco and Los Angeles; the branch of the United States mint in San Francisco; the great drydocks of the San Francisco Drydocks company at Hunter's Point.

Not only has Mr. Moore's activities brought him into close contact with mining, power development, cement production, the ice and cold storage and cotton manufacturing, but his unusual abilities have also been directed towards reclamation work, in which line of endeavor he has acquired information which will be of rare value, not only to the state of California, but also to the people of the United States, when he is chosen United States senator.

"In the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys Mr. Moore has been engaged in the reclaiming of swamp lands, and the care of re-

BIG FOKKER IN GLENDALE FOR NEW BODY

Glendale Autobody and Fender Co. Working On Veteran of War

A Big Fokker, type D-7 aeroplane, has been pulled into the plant of the Glendale Auto Body and Fender Works, 137 1/2 South Brand, rear, for a new covering and body. The machine is a single-passenger carrier and will be remodeled to accommodate two. The new covering and body will be made of aluminum. The work will be done by R. W. Herzal and A. W. Gregg, proprietors of the auto body works.

The plane is a German machine and when purchased had three machine guns mounted on its frame, and is the same type used throughout the war by the German forces as a combat plane. The German motor has been replaced by a Hall-Scott Liberty motor of six cylinders, 220 horsepower, and will develop 150 miles per hour. While flying at its highest speed the motor will consume about ten gallons of gasoline an hour. Its gas-carrying capacity is 62 gallons.

A mate to this plane is owned by L. C. Brand and recently flew from Merino Field in San Francisco to Glendale in three hours and ten minutes.

J. H. Hester of Venice is the engineer in charge of the remodeling and plans on making a test flight claimed lands where seepage through the levees must be held and pumped back after the winter's rainfall is over. Several huge power plants to serve this purpose have been designed and installed by the Charles C. Moore company during recent years. The big pumping plant at Grimes, in Colusa county, the floating pumping plant of the Rindge Navigation and Canal company, near Stockton, and the Mill River Navigation and Canals floating pumping plants were all three designed and installed by the Charles C. Moore company.

"Mr. Moore is also familiar with the intricacies of the sugar production of the west, and further nearly all the refineries of the Hawaiian all the refineries of the Hawaiian islands are equipped with dryer and evaporating plants installed by his company."

of the new plane in about two weeks.

L. D. Sale, president of the Los Angeles Wholesale Drug company, owns the Fokker and has purchased it for his own use and will fly the plane from L. C. Brand's airfield.

'TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE,' SAYS W. A. JONES

Lifters and Leanners, Declares Director of Azusa Irrigation Company

"There are, and always have been, two kinds of people in this world," said Director W. A. Jones in addressing the directors' meeting of the Azusa Irrigation company. "One kind has self-confidence, courage, thrift and initiative and like to do things themselves and rejoice to co-operate with other people who are doing things. The other kind of people are inherently timid and usually lack confidence and thrift. Such people are always looking for some form of government that promises to take the responsibilities of life from their shoulders and enable them to share in the productions of the kind of people who undertake and accomplish. Ella Wheeler Wilcox has classified these people as "Lifters" and "Leanners," and describes them in this clever couplet:

"The two kinds of people on earth that I mean,
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.
And oddly enough, you will find, too, I ween,
There is only one lifter for twenty who lean."

"North Dakota has just had an experience with 'Leanners.' They were the people comprising the Non-Partisan league, which saddled the burden on the 'Lifters' while the 'Leanners' ran the state on the rocks. The $500,000,000 water and power constitutional amendment is another attempt of the 'Leanners' to put it over on the 'Lifters.' California has prospered since the days of '49 because of the breed of pioneer 'Lifters' who blazed the way and were followed by the builders of our ever-worthy edifice. Shall we turn California over to the 'Leanners' on Nov. 7, 1922?"

Long Beach rates third in the country, West Orange, N. J., having the second lowest rate for any city of its size.

BIG POWER for BIG TRUCKS

If you want to keep your truck trouble-proof, feed it "Red Crown" and nothing else.

The quality of "Red Crown" is always the same, whenever and wherever you buy it. It vaporizes rapidly and uniformly in the carburetor. And it is consumed completely in the combustion chambers, converting all its heat units into power at the driving wheels. That means a better average mileage, and a sweeter-running engine.

Fill at the Red Crown sign — at Service Stations, garages, and other dealers.

UNITED CHURCH BROTHERHOOD IS FOR MOORE

Advisory Board in Special Session Endorses Candidacy

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—The United Church Brotherhood of Los Angeles county, following a special meeting of its advisory board, has unanimously and without qualification endorsed the candidacy of Charles C. Moore for the Republican nomination for United States senator. The reasons that impelled the action have been communicated to the members of the 98 churches comprising the brotherhood.

Enthusiastically was this voluntary effort to place Mr. Moore in the United States senate regarded by the heads of the brotherhood and in furtherance of the movement it was decided to send reports of the proceedings and a copy of the reasons for it to the heads of every church in California.

LIVERMORE RODEO SHOWS BIG PROFIT

LIVERMORE, Cal., Aug. 22.—The recent rodeo at Livermore, an annual affair, took in a total of $19,000 receipts, of which $5,000 was net profit, according to reports of the directors.

The rodeo cost $14,000 to stage. Although the directors had hoped to make even a greater financial affair of the rodeo, the fact that a large number of similar events were held in the state during the preceding six months is declared to have detracted from the glamor of the affair here, which is one of the oldest and best established institutions in the state. The Salinas and Livermore rodeos have been attracting attention for years.

Plans are now under way to give continued advertisement to the rodeo, which is staged in the heart of the big ranch country, yet within fairly easy reach of the cities, and to see that it is kept before the public throughout the year in order that the 1925 affair may be even a greater success.

The officers of the United Church Brotherhood are C. F. Nelson, M. D., president; D. H. Jones, A. F. Varian, E. J. Lickley, E. N. Hackett, vice-presidents; J. P. Robertson, secretary; George E. Reed, treasurer; Louis C. Dodelan, executive secretary. The advisory board is composed of William H. Reynolds, C. E. Spencer, S. M. Haskell, H. G. Lyman, W. L. Cleveland, B. E. Bassford, H. G. Chapman, F. A. Powell, George M. Wiley, E. B. Moore, A. Larson, A. E. Beal, E. A. Loughridge and A. T. Shaw.

TUJUNGA ARTISTS TO EXHIBIT AT FESTIVAL

Percy McNeely, in Charge of Big Exhibit, Requests Pictures

TUJUNGA, Aug. 22.—Percy McNeely, in charge of the art exhibit to be held in Legion hall during the Moon festival, announces that local artists who wish to submit pictures for the exhibit should have them at the hall on Thursday evening, August 30, and assist in their proper hanging.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the exhibit by artists and art lovers, not only in Tujunga, but all over Southern California. Requests for entries have been made by many outside painters, but as it is desired to keep the exhibit as purely local as possible, these requests are being put aside until it is seen how many Tujunga artists desire to contribute.

Those in charge of the exhibit also desire entry of pictures by well-known artists which may belong to local people. Paintings, etchings, wood cuts or colored photographs will be acceptable.

DR. SMITH MAKES CLUTCHLESS RUN HOMEWARD

Returning From Big Bear Lake, Collar Broke; Drives Without It

Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith, who left here two weeks ago for their cabin on Big Bear lake, expecting to be away but one week, did not get home until late Sunday night. It seems that on their way to camp the collar of the clutch on their machine broke and they were obliged to run for 25 miles without the use of the clutch. Dr. Smith is a skillful driver or he could never have negotiated it. The machine was put in the hands of the local garage and they were not able to get the necessary parts and make the repairs under the two weeks.

However, the extra week of rest was very beneficial to Dr. Smith. His assistant, Dr. Remmen, was able to take care of all his appointments. With them the first week they were there Dr. and Mrs. John Barbrick, of Los Angeles, Attorney and Mrs. James McBryde, and Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Scovern.

They were so delighted with the canyon in which the Smith cabin is located, that they filed application for lots with the ranger. It is all government reserve and most of the lots have been taken. The allotments are 100 feet square and the canyon is four miles east of Fawnskin. It is a very beautiful canyon, in which are many tall pine trees and spruces, one of the largest bordering the Smith's holding. It had never been named and when the ranger who is preparing maps asked the party to help him name it, Mrs. Smith suggested "Minnelusa canyon," "Minnelusa" in the Sioux tongue meaning "clear water." He was delighted to adopt the name and so it will appear on the government records. Mrs. Smith used to teach near a Sioux reservation and so knows a good many Sioux words. It will be remembered that "Minnelaha" means "laughing water," also taken from the Sioux.

There are saw mills in the neighborhood from which lumber is being built.

They had the pleasure of seeing seven trucks come in with supplies for the new road which the government is to build that will shorten the distance between San Bernardino and Big Bear to 27 miles against 48 miles in the present route. It will enter Big Bear valley at the dam and will circle the lake. It will take a year to build it.

The Smith came home by way of Little Bear and the Rim route, which has been wonderfully improved so that autos can pass almost anywhere.

Don't do it! If somebody comes in with a scheme to get wealth Look through it. A plan to get money with speed and by stealth. Look through it. It may sound right pleasing and tempt you a lot. You may think to add to the savings you've got. And you're tempted to write your check right on the spot. But— Don't do it!

You're mad as a hatter, you're ready to fight. Don't do it. You're ready to scrap with the first man in sight. Don't do it. You're hot in the collar, and angry all through. If you spoke as you thought all the air would be blue. There's many a fool thing you're tempted to do. But— Don't do it.

That harsh, bitter word you were going to say— Don't do it. The chance that quick temper was throwing away— Don't do it. It's easy to jump but be sure where you light. A wrong judgment's more quickly made than a right. And the day's angry deed makes the long sleepless night. So— Don't do it!

INDUSTRIAL SHOW 91ST DIVISION TO OPEN AUG. 29 IN L. A. FIGHTS WITH ITS BUDDIE

Greatest Exposition the West Has Ever Known Is Indicated

The claim that the California Pageant of Progress and Industrial exhibition, to be held in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, August 26 to September 9, will be the greatest display and entertainment of its kind the west has ever known, seems to be borne out by the facts in a nutshell, just compiled by the Los Angeles chamber of commerce, under the auspices of which the exposition will be held:

The grounds cover 35 acres. There are 691 exhibition booths, 10 by 20 feet.

More than 100 men worked for two months completing the temporary buildings and preparing the grounds.

The articles on exhibit will be insured for more than $2,000,000. More than 1000 kinds of articles will be on display.

The amusement program is a reproduction of the New York Hippodrome shows—the first time they have been brought to the coast.

More than 2000 people will participate in the entertainment features. Six hundred voices will be heard in one chorus. Two hundred of New York's most beautiful show girls will appear in the water carnival.

The Chateau Thierry spectacle will require 400 soldiers to stage, in addition to 20,000 pounds of powder daily, for the fireworks and cannonading.

Championship auto polo matches between the Pacific coast and British champions will be played daily. A huge restaurant, hospital, fire department and every convenience for the public, have been placed on the grounds.

To view every exhibit and attraction, the visitor will have to walk seven miles—or the distance from the Los Angeles courthouse to Highland park.

STEREOPTICON TALK AT FIRST METHODIST

Showing how events of the Old Testament foretold those of the New, a stereopticon illustrated lecture was given at the First Methodist church on Sunday evening, at 6:30, with A. F. Futterer the lecturer.

The lecture took the place of the regular evening service, and a fair sized crowd attended. Music for the evening was under the direction of C. K. Aston, who led the Sunday school orchestra. The slides were colored true to life and were dissolving views.

LOUIS LEWIS' TO GO TO NORTHWARD

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lewis and baby, who have been the guests of Mrs. Lewis' mother, Mrs. Wilson, at 118 North Louise, are to go north to San Francisco the first of September. Mr. Lewis publishes a trade book for printers and has offices in New York and Chicago. He has just established the office in San Francisco and expects to stay with it for the coming nine months. They expect to live in Larkspur, across the bay near the Muir woods, where the climate is much milder than in San Francisco, and where they have relatives.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—Four years ago next month several thousand Southern California lads were storming Eclisfontaine, in the Argentine. The exact date is September 27. The soldiers were members of the 91st Infantry of the Fighting 91st Division. In command of the 2nd battalion sector was Major Walter H. Gregory, infantry, U. S. A.

The major and his heroic battalion had struggled through the hectic day, advancing inch by inch on the open plateau between Very and Eclisfontaine. The day was waning when the companies and platoons had jockeyed into position for a final smash of the village, a veritable strong point. The enemy's resistance was terrific.

Machine guns were needed; Major Gregory dispatched a runner to the regimental P. C. The commander here was Col. John J. Mudgett, now of Los Angeles. He ordered the commander of his machine gun company to the assistance of the second battalion. Captain Walter Brinkop commanded the machine guns.

Even of his guns were in other sectors. Captain Brinkop had one Maxim in reserve. A German Maxim, picked up that morning, might help. With these and two squads he joined Gregory. He helped take Eclisfontaine, an episode in which hundreds of Californians covered themselves with glory.

Today, Walter H. Gregory, lawyer of Los Angeles, is fighting again. So is Walter Brinkop, bond and mortgage man of Los Angeles. The storm center is Sacramento. Brinkop wants to be state treasurer. His buddies of the Ninety-first are fighting too, under the leadership of Major Gregory, who is in charge of assembly district and precinct organizations. His P. C. is in Brinkop's headquarters, Loew's State building in Los Angeles. He declares he and his workers will fight for Brinkop to the last trench.

ROBINSONS HAVE DELIGHTFUL PICNIC

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Robinson, of 511 North Central avenue, entertained with a delightful picnic Saturday evening at Echo park in honor of Miss Ida Townsend, who leaves soon to make her home at Pasadena, where she has accepted a position.

A picnic supper was served and much fun was had in cooking it. Following this, Miss Della Echols, one of the guests, invited all to her home where informal dancing was enjoyed and ice cream and cake served at a late hour.

Guests included Miss Ida Townsend, Miss Minnie Townsend, Mrs. Louise Niles and daughter, Miss Catherine Niles, Miss Virginia Worth, Mrs. Morrison, Prof. and Mrs. Head of Venice, Mrs. A. J. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Echols and daughter Della, J. A. Gager, Billy and Kenneth Campbell of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Robinson.

This serves effectively to hold the shifting top soil and to prevent both wind and sand damage to the little trees. The grain, when plowed under, also serves to increase the humus content of the soil and to hasten the improvement in texture which prevents further "blowing." Yucca protectors are quite generally employed for the young trees.

True, the grain gambler deals in "future," but so does the preacher.

JOHNSON CANNOT MAKE GOOD ON SOLDIER VOTE

Boast It Is Solid for Him Is Resented by Leaders of Ex-service Men

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 22.—"Hiram Johnson, the soldier's friend," the slogan that Johnson adherents are feverishly attempting to make popular, has become the standing joke among ex-service men throughout the state.

Johnson's boast that the veterans will be solid for him and their votes delivered to him in a lump has been repudiated by ex-service leaders in almost every city in California. They are able to think for themselves, they assert, and the majority of them don't feel that Hiram is entitled to their support in view of his indifference to individual appeals for aid. They were amazed and incensed at the statement of a recent circular letter that Johnson has aided in settling thousands of veterans' claims. They assert he almost totally ignored such claims and was of little assistance to the service men while in Washington.

Harry S. Anderson, who describes himself as "just a 'buck private' with the 319th engineers" has received one of the Johnson circulars and replied thereto. In a letter to a friend he says:

"Dear Buddy:—Knowing that you are somewhat interested in politics and therefore interested in the good government of our nation, I feel certain you will be vitally concerned with the candidacy of Mr. Hiram Johnson for re-election to the United States senate.

"Here is a man so entirely without fear that even the wishes of his own constituents mean nothing, compared to the dictates of his own William Hearst conscience.

"A man so fearless that he went alone (politically) into the depths of Siberia and rescued the chilled American expeditionary force from the horrors of vodka.

"This is the type of man needed to represent our great commonwealth—a senator who can at once be a friend of the syndicalists, a supporter of the privileged interests, a democrat, a progressive and a republican—a veritable chameleon with a hide so thick and a soul so dull that the opinions of those he professes to represent will be as ineffectual as water on a duck's back.

"Hiram Johnson knows no authority save that of William Randolph Hearst.

"Let me impress you, therefore, with the urgent necessity of securing for this great American the republican nomination that we may be certain the great commonwealth of California may not shine too brightly and overshadow the other states represented in the United States senate.

"Sincerely yours,
"ME AND HIRUM CLUB,
"Harry S. Anderson."

A Bona Fide Oil Investment At Santa Fe Springs

There is open to you now an opportunity to invest in the Hamilton Oil Syndicate which is now completing two wells, one at Santa Fe Springs and one at Huntington Beach. Participating interests in this Syndicate share in 50% of the net oil produced.

The Hamilton Oil Syndicate is primarily interested in the production and sale of oil. Both of its wells are nearly completed. The well at Huntington Beach is standing cemented off. The well at Santa Fe Springs is now drilling below the 3900-foot mark, with a strong gas pressure and heavy oil indications.

Participating Interests $100 Each

This is an investment opportunity which, figuring upon the average production at the two fields, at the current price of oil, will pay an unusually handsome return on the money invested. It is perhaps not too much to say that purchasers may reasonably expect the return of their entire investment within a few months of the wells coming on production. If even average field production is obtained, note today's quotations in the market columns for crude oil, then using the figures of known average production for the two fields, which may be very conservatively placed at 2000 barrels per well per day at Santa Fe Springs and even 200 barrels per well per day at Huntington Beach, you can speedily see how great the returns will be.

The Opportunity Is Yours Now

We urged you to act without delay. Investigate this proposition most thoroughly—it is well worth your closest scrutiny. It will stand every investigation you care to give it. But do this today. There are only a limited number of participating interests to be sold, and of these a great many have already been taken. The wells are almost on production and the wise investor will be the one who gets in now.

Write us for descriptive folder giving further information about this unusual oil investment. See our salesmen or phone our offices. We shall be glad of the opportunity to explain the Hamilton Oil Syndicate in full detail to you, take you to see the properties and let you form your own opinion.
