VI. A Letter from Mr. Ralph Thoresby, F. R. S. to Dr. Hans Sloane, R. S. Secr. concerning some Roman Antiquities observed in Yorkshire.

Leeds, April 23, 1709.

Honoured SIR, HERE have some Roman Monuments been lately found amongst the Ruins upon Adel or Echop-Moor, but having no legible Inscriptions, they are not worth troubling you with the Draughts of them, only their Size feem'd strange to me at first; that there should be Altars fo small, was indeed no surprize, I having one (inserted in the New Britannia, p. 782.) little different: but that any other fort of Commemorative Monuments should be so little as eighteen Inches high, and only six broad, was new to me, till I found others as small, tho of richer Materials, being Marble, in the Noble Colle-Ctions of Christopher Wren Esq; and Mr. Kempe; whereas these are of a very course Stone, as Dr. Lister has truly observed, most of those found in the North are. of these, as appears by the Discus, has been evidently one of their portable Altars; but another instead of the Hearth, having three intire Rolls or Wreaths, 'tis certain was never design'd for that purpose.

When the Vestigia of this Roman Station were first discovered, (of which see Numb. 282 of the Philosoph. Transactions) I was ready to sancy it to have been the Adellocum of the Ancients, from some remains of the Name in the present Adle or Adel, as it is writ both in the Monastic. Anglic. and some ancient Charts in my possessin; but when I was last at London, having by the sa-your of Peter Le Neve Esq; Norroy King at Arms, an opportunity of perusing that Venerable Record Domesday-Book in the Exchequer, I found besides Adele and Echope beforementioned, another Place in the Neighbourhood, call'd Burghedurum or Burgdunum, which I am now ready to conclude, was the Ancient Roman Name of this Station: That the Itinerary is filent herein, is no Argument against it; for none, I presume, do imagine that the Names of all the Towns in the Province are there recited, but only fuch as lie upon those Roads that are particularly mention'd; but that it has, at least, the Appearance of a Roman Name may be argued, because Burgi was the common Name whereby they called fuch Castles or Forts as were convenient for War, and well stored with Provisions of Corn, as appears by the Authorities quoted by Camden and Burton in their Notes upon the Roman Vertera, or Burgh under Stanemoor; and the Burgundians rec'd their Name from their inhabiting fuch Castles: and to me it seems probable, that the small fquared Stones, wherewith the very Antique Church at Adel is built, were brought from the Ruins of fuch a Caftle, and gave rife thereby to an old Tradition, which continues to this day, that Adel-Church once stood upon Black-hill, the place where these Roman Monuments were found; the elevated fituation of which place fufficiently accounts for the termination of the Name, the Gaulish or British Dunum, which signifies a Hilly or Mountainous Place, being naturalized in the Roman Provincial Language. I shall only add, that within a Mile of it, there are two scattering Houses, that do to this Day retain the Name of Burden- (for Burgdun-) Head.
