Truths in Epigram

As the Italians say, Good company in a journey makes the way to seem shorter. — Izaak Walton (1593-1683).

I do not know what I may appear to the world; but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the sea-shore, and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me. — Isaac Newton (1642-1727).

RUSSIA WANTS A VOICE

M. Kamenoff, soviet director of famine relief, say that a great war is coming soon unless Russia and Germany be called into conference with other nations. He seems not to have learned the lesson that his present duties should have impressed upon him.

APPARENTLY SETTLED

When Secretary Hughes suggested amiably that the three leading naval powers inaugurate a ten-year holiday in construction, undoubtedly he was sincere.

MONUMENTS OF PEACE

William Jennings Bryan calls attention to Argentina and Chile as pioneers in the erection of a monument of peace. This will give most readers a new idea concerning those nations.

CAPITALIZING UNREST

The governor of Idaho suggests that unrest should be capitalized by pushing reclamation plans, thus giving employment to many now idle.

starved and he cannot be frozen. He may grumble, perhaps with excellent reason, at the prices he receives, and at the cost of finished materials he must purchase, but he can "get by" on a small monetary income if necessary.

IN THE ORIENT

Japan has a ready explanation for its occupancy of Chinese territory. It went into Shantung in pursuance of its duty of ousting the Germans. It has remained there ever since.

CONGRESSMEN IN CANADA

The courtesy of Canadians is being strained, but is enduring the test. The congressional crowd now visiting Canada are the guests of a man who to most Canadians is persona non grata.

Police in this community seem to be making the fur thieves fly.

MILAWAN AND LACKSANA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The King of Siam is going to marry Lacksana or may have married her by the time this is published.

The king was previously engaged to his cousin, half-sister of Lacksana, but the engagement was broken off because the state of his fiancée's health was unsatisfactory.

Speaking in behalf of occidental civilization, more or less devoted to monogamy, we welcome the king to our midst.

He is forty years old, and ought to know what he is about.

The difference between having 8000 wives and one is not a matter of mere quantity. It is a matter of quality.

That is to say monogamy differs from polygamy and promiscuity because it is farther along in the process of evolution.

It attracts to itself the poetry, the beauty and the religion of the world.

THE LISTENING POST

A man built him a house. Went into the woods for timbers and hewed them and shaped them for the building.

And then there fell evil times. Drought and storm and low prices and poor crops.

And he stood at the evening or the sunset or the dawn, whenever it was, and looked out over the acres of the farm.

And he was perhaps stronger than before. And he had perhaps broadened and strengthened his spirit.

And when the loss came he looked out upon the world and smiled. And he said: "What I have done I can do again and better than before."

And a man set himself a high ideal. And achieved it. And when someone saw the work he had done, someone said: "That will be the pinnacle of your activities."

Comment on the News

Some girl has sued Congressman Herrick of Oklahoma for $50,000, alleging breach of promise.

From what the country has been permitted to gather concerning this peculiar statesman, there is no possibility of figuring that his declination to marry could be construed as the infliction of injury.

Ordinarily there is little sympathy with an action of this sort. The public would be glad to see the girl win the whole sum and her costs.

Four army aviators fell 2000 feet recently. Their charred bodies were recovered from the wreckage of their machines.

Necessity for maintenance of an air service is recognized, but there is a high price to pay.

College girls have been telling, in answer to impertinent and futile inquiries, the sum of money that the man they consent to marry must be earning.

Since Marshal Foch was made an LL.D. by one university, every university that could induce him to stand still long enough to listen added: "Here, too."

Seldom has a tragedy of the grade crossing reached the proportions of the one near Red Bluff recently. In this fourteen were killed, all but the driver of the auto that carried them, being school children.

LOLITA MITCHELL'S FIGHT FOR MAN WHO SAVED HER

Daughter of Packer Grateful for What Lorenz Did for Her

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Lolita Armour Mitchell, daughter of the millionaire packer and Chicago's wealthiest woman, today led the fight against doctors who have closed doors of Chicago hospitals to Dr. Adolf Lorenz, world-famous orthopedic surgeon.

Mrs. Mitchell, who was cured of hip trouble while a child by Dr. Lorenz, said in an interview with the United Press she would do whatever she could to repay the "debt I owe Dr. Lorenz for my health and happiness."

Mrs. Mitchell was busy arranging her new home on the "Gold Coast." She had just returned from her honeymoon, having recently married J. J. Mitchell, banker's son, uniting the two largest fortunes in Chicago.

"If Dr. Lorenz's visit here would result in a cure for one child now facing life as a cripple, it would be worth while," Mrs. Mitchell declared. "One cure would not only give happiness to one poor child but would give encouragement to hundreds of others." "Dr. Lorenz is undoubtedly a much better orthopedic surgeon than any we have in this country. He proved that when he cured me when all the leaders here failed."

Mrs. Mitchell answered the claim of Chicago surgeons that "they looked with disfavor upon the notoriety" which Dr. Lorenz has received since coming to this country.

"Although Dr. Lorenz has received a great deal of attention and publicity, I am sure it was not because he desired it. He always opposed publicity, but newspapers made much of him because he was a 'good story.' He wanted to be agreeable and help the newspapermen."

Mrs. Mitchell, whose hip trouble had been pronounced incurable by many surgeons in this country, as a result of Dr. Lorenz' treatment is now healthy and happy. She is noted among the Chicago social set for her athletic abilities.

"Dr. Lorenz saved me from the life of an invalid," she said. "I am going to do whatever I can to defend him from this attack."

BARON VON THERMANN WHO HAS COME FROM GERMANY AS ACTING AMBASSADOR

This photograph of Baron Edmund von Thermann was made when he arrived to take up his duties as German Charge d'Affaires at Washington. He is the first German diplomat to arrive here since Count von Bernstorff sailed away at request. He explained that he came only to prepare the way for the German Ambassador, who will soon be appointed and to whom he will become counselor. The Baron is in striking contrast to the German ambassadors of pre-war days, for he arrived clad in a worn suit of clothes.

MODERN WOMEN WILL HAVE SMOKE SHOP IN NEW YORK

Tired Woman Shopper Will Find Place to Roll Her Own Off 5th Avenue

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The modern woman has at last come into her smoking rights.

"The Lady Nic. Inn," New York's first smoke shop for women, has just been opened in Fifty-fourth Street, east of Fifth Avenue, to lure the shopper and flapper and women who have reached ages "points beyond."

Here, milady may put her feet on the furniture, flick ashes on the floor, or indulge in any of the other countless smoking habits that long have been looked upon as inalienable privileges of the so-called sterner sex.

In the low-ceilinged shop, tastefully decorated with Oriental friezes, jardinières and statuettes, the dear girls "roll their own" with a dexterity that would make William S. Hart and the Mexican vaqueros of the movies turn green with envy. They even started "mooching"—the habit of borrowing a cigarette—a sure sign that cigarette smoking by women has passed the fad stage.

They Show Experience

Through the blue-gray haze of burning tobacco—Turkish, Virginia and Egyptian, the latter predominating—the reported had to strain his ears to catch the explanation made by Miss Harriet Douglass, proprietor of this exclusive smoke shop for women, above the din of feminine chatter. There wasn't a man in the place, and indignant glances were cast at the reporter who dared invade these sacred precincts. Women puffed away at their "ags" with that air of experience that comes only with using.

The conversation was mostly of gowns and teas and bridge. No politics, market talk or risqué stories here. Omyno!

"Smoking among women is no longer a fad," explained Miss Douglass. "There has been no place that women could smoke and talk and rest, as men do. It is only fair that they should have one. Women have their political clubs—why not their smoking rooms? So we started this shop. But we expect to have a chain of smoke shops to extend across the country before long. There are just as many women in other cities who smoke, but they haven't even the opportunity the New York woman has. Women can't smoke on the street, or at least they don't. They're going to smoke—so why should they have to travel clear home for a puff?

Don't Like Cigar Stores

"Then, too, there's no place where a woman can buy cigarettes without getting cynical looks from the men. The cigar store crowds always laugh when a woman buys cigarettes. We carry all brands, and they can pick the kind they like best."

In the shop some women were taking their cigarettes raw, others had cigarette holders ranging in styles from ivory, with emerald tips, to the collapsible sort that fold up, and fit into a little pendant case hanging on a chain about the neck. Cigarettes were produced from cases of gold, silk and whalebone, and there were even some of the less fastidious who carried them in the packages in which they came.

"It isn't really a new idea," Miss Douglass went on, between puffs. "Paris and all the gay cities of France have had them for years, and London has its smoke shops for women, too. But American women are just coming into their smoking rights."

Right here a slightly gray lady, with jade earrings, leaned across the nearby table toward her very dignified companion. "May I borrow a cigarette?" she asked nonchalantly.

And so the ladies are now taking their revenge on Kipling, revising his famous line to read:

"A man is only a man, but a good cigarette is a smoke."

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from back-ache, sick headache, lizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

YALE BRIDEGROOM AND BABY SHOWN AS HIS SON TO PREVENT SOCIETY WEDDING

Two thousand persons attended the wedding at Waterbury, Conn., of Edward J. Harrington, Yale man and son of the wealthiest man in Connecticut, and Miss Margaret Hodson. When father Fitz Simons was about to pronounce them man and wife, an elderly woman arose and screamed a demand that the ceremony halt. Beside her was her daughter, Miss Loretta Rodden, of New Haven, holding in her arms a boy of two years. "This man," said Mrs. Rodden, pointing to Harrington, "is the father of that child," again pointing dramatically to the boy. Detectives escorted the girl and her mother from the church and the ceremony proceeded. The girl, now 19, claims she was Harrington's sweetheart while he was at Yale.

PIONEERS REGRET CHANGING NAME

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 5.—Old-timers in the Canadian West regret the recent change of the name of a small town in Alberta from Crowfoot Crossing to Gleichen. The original name was tribute to one of the great Indian leaders of the west, Crowfoot, chief of the Blackfeet and head of the powerful confederacy of Blackfeet, Bloods, Piegans, Sarcees and other allied tribes. His jurisdiction extended over 10,000 warriors. He was the white man's steadfast friend in critical years.

He held at one time the fate of the west in his hands. That was in 1885, Louis Riel, leader of the half-breeds and Indians in the Riel rebellion, had sent his runners through the Indian villages to stir up war against the whites. Many of the tribes were ready to strike. It remained for Crowfoot to say the word and the west would have been deluged with blood and the scattered settlements wiped off the map.

The United States was a great nation in 1885, but Western Canada was little better than a wilderness. The Hudson's Bay Company had surrendered to Canada its old empire. The Canadian Pacific railway had not yet reached the Pacific coast, but settlers were beginning to swarm in along its unfinished line. The marvelous transformation of the prairies into one of the greatest farming regions in the world has taken place within the last forty years.

The time was psychologically ripe for an Indian uprising. If the red man had torn up the new railway and made a determined stand, the development of the west would have been held back a half century. Crowfoot gave Riel's emissaries a respectful audience, but refused to join the rebellion. His decision saved the west a long and bloody war.

COURT'S FAILURE TO JAIL REBELS JARS ALL GERMANY

Confidence in Courts Seems to Be Slumping With the Mark

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—Germany's confidence in her courts and their judges is slumping with the German mark. The average German has become convinced that the court system is bad. The cause is the failure of the high court at Leipzig—the same that tried the "war criminals" for the Allies—to have brought before it the perpetrators of the Kapp revolt of twenty months ago.

There are two sides to the question. While the Democrats term the failure to try the monarchist conspirators "outrageous," the monarchist element, still a powerful factor, contentedly if cynically comments, "Our friends, cause is in good hands."

The Kapp revolt cost hundreds of lives and billions of marks, and the ordinary German has not forgiven the people responsible for it. It was demanded that the conspirators be prosecuted, and their arrest and trial was ordered. So far none of them have been tried.

Until last spring the prosecutor alluded by saying he could not find any of the conspirators. Then a Reichstag interpellation revealed that von Jagow, one of the leading representatives of the old regime, had always been within reach in Berlin. The Minister of Justice told the Reichstag that Von Jagow had not been arrested because of illness, which he had provided by a doctor's certificate. Von Jagow promptly issued a statement denying that he had been ill at all.

The result of the interpellation was that the court was ordered to begin the trials as soon as possible. October 27 was fixed as the date. A week before the trials were to begin, the court postponed them, declaring that four of the rebels—Captain Eberhardt, Colonel Bauer, Major Pabst and the poet Schnitzler, had demanded and had been given provisional liberty. This caused the postponement, it was said, as the court wanted to try all the conspirators together.

Meanwhile another rebel, Doctor Schiele, who had been in hiding since the revolt, had been arrested and released on 100,000 marks bail. The day after the postponement Captain Eberhardt issued a statement saying he had no intention of appearing at Leipzig, because he had not sufficient guarantee that the court would not arrest him after the Kapp trial for the Erzberger murder, which some of his men were accused of committing.

There has been nothing since. The Kapp conspirators are at liberty and happy, hoping and perhaps preparing for another revolt.

Valve stem guides are best removed by driving them out from the stop, using a hardwood block or a piece of soft metal, avoiding possible injury.

DO IT NOW!

Build that house now; construct that highway at once; build that school, that church, repair that broken pavement; build that garage, and even that chicken coop, now—not tomorrow.

Go ahead with your plans; speed the nation on the road to full employment and thus hasten the day of individual and national prosperity and safety.

Preach this everywhere; put it into effect, and remember, business men of Glendale, men of "big business" and men of "little business," that there is something in this infinitely higher and more important than the small amount of money involved which you think you could save by waiting.

Some men put off the day of salvation, expecting to attend to it on their death bed, but not many ever succeed in doing it at that hour. "Do it now, and do it with all your might," should be the motto of every man in Glendale who expects to do any construction work in the near future. "Do it now," and thus do your part toward individual and national business salvation—and even more.

Procrastination is more than the thief of time; it is the murderer of opportunity.

Glendale Real Estate

is coming into its own. It's up to you to co-operate in carrying out the above wise and timely admonition by ACTING NOW.

Improve your vacant lots and boost everything to make Glendale a Bigger and Better place in which to live.

A Thor for Christmas

Here is a real Christmas idea. No home washer ever made could be quite so much appreciated as the wonderful new Thor-32. It is the simplest, handsomest, most perfect washing machine ever made. All metal body—all metal swinging wringer. Look at the shapely lines of the illustration. But remember, the beauty is incidental to the practical value. For the construction is such that this model does your washing in half the time required by other machines.

$10 Down Brings It

You can have a Thor for your next washday by paying only $10 down—the balance in small monthly payments. In this way a Thor will actually pay for itself by the saving in laundry hire, and the saving in clothes now worn out by washboard rubbing. Thor washes everything from heavy blankets to lace curtains, dainty lingerie or grimy work clothes. It washes them clean without rubbing or wear. After using, the tub cleans itself without removing the cylinder. The average washing takes only one hour and costs only 3c for electricity. Come in today—or tomorrow—see the demonstration.

GOVERNOR SMALL IS FACING TRIAL ON SEVEN CHARGES

Illinois Chief Executive Charged With Using State's Funds

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 5.—Len Small, Illinois governor, began his court fight today to prove his innocence of charges of having juggled millions of dollars of public money for his own personal advantage.

Along with Vernon Curtis, a small town banker, the state's chief executive went on trial before Judge Claire Edwards in Lake county circuit court.

For the first time in the history of the state her chief executive was before the bar on a criminal charge.

The specific charge which Small and his alleged banker accomplice will stand trial, is that they embezzled certain sums of the state's money, amounting to approximately $500,000.

Small's home is in Kankakee, Ill. The Curtis Bros., successful small town bankers, made their headquarters in Grant Park, a few miles from Kankakee.

Small's defense is determined to show the bank was a regular, legitimate banking institution.

On receiving the state's money, for which the only security given was a certificate of deposit, the Grant Park bank is alleged to have negotiated the state's money.

When Miller made his protest to Gov. Small, the governor made a hurried trip to Grant Park, obtained the Swift & Armour notes and deposited them in the state treasury.

Evidence was presented to the grand jury under the direction of Fred Mortimer, state's attorney of Sangamon county.

Great English Detective Got Worst of a Very Raw Deal

Sir Basil Thompson, Super-Spy Catcher During World War Fired as Result of Pressure by Trade Unionists Ran Down Strike Agitators and Spies

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Britain's super-detective, Sir Basil Thompson, has been fired as a result of the pressure brought upon the Government by the extremists in the Labor group of the members of the House of Commons.

Never a lover of the trades unionist or strike agitator, Sir Basil subjected them to a merciless vigilance during the war. Now that war is over, Sir Basil has the mortification of seeing many of his former enemies in positions of influence with the Government.

Great Britain, in those sad days, was suffering a good deal from decreased output of shells and other war materials, and all over the country there were ominous threats of strikes and stoppages.

Undoubtedly diabolic influences were at work, so diabolic means had to be administered to frustrate them. Conducting work of such delicacy Sir Basil naturally fell foul of the genuine and loyal trades union official.

When Miller made his protest to Gov. Small, the governor made a hurried trip to Grant Park, obtained the Swift & Armour notes and deposited them in the state treasury.
