

NAVSTA graduates 23 ASF students

By MC1 Igo Wordu, Public Affairs Office

After three weeks of intensive training, 23 new members of the Naval Station Guantanamo Bay Auxiliary Security Force (ASF) were presented with graduation certificates in a ceremony held in the Bulkeley Hall auditorium, Nov. 3.

CAPT Mark Leary, NAVSTA Commanding Officer; CDR Sylvester Moore, NAVSTA Executive Officer; and LT Richard Thompson, NAVSTA Security Officer, were among senior leadership present at the graduation.

According to Thompson, the newly graduated ASF personnel will augment the current Naval Security Force (NSF) during increased force protection conditions (FPCON), or when directed by NAVSTA Commanding Officer as reasonably necessary and lawful to maintain peace, order, and protect installation personnel and property.

"It was extremely important to get a trained and capable ASF in place now," said Thompson. "NAVSTA has to have qualified Sailors at the ready, who can instantly be recalled and integrated into the Security Department."

Instructed by personnel from Homeland Security Solutions Inc., the ASF students completed 9mm pistol and M16 rifle qualifications, and received extensive training in firearms handling, accountability and safety. The students also learned hand-to-hand combat, prisoner control methods, and various security sweep techniques.

"The importance and benefit of this training will serve Naval Station Guantanamo Bay, Cuba well because as the ASF members continue to serve in their primary duties," said Thompson. "Be it in Port Services, Base Operations, or even the Public Affairs, they can apply their training in areas like antiterrorism awareness, building and physical security procedures, disaster and emergency plans, and basic first aid, to enhance the installation's and its residents' safety and secu-

Thompson said that the ASF graduates will be assigned to NSF sections where they will be assigned monthly security duties, including at least one shift that will enhance their continued training and proficiency.

They will also attend all phased and sustainment training, and will complete periodic

Commandant's 231st birthday message to Marines worldwide

On November 10th, 1775, our Corps was born as the Continental Congress raised the "first and second battalions of American Marines." Each Year as we celebrate our birthday, we pause to reflect on the Marines of yesteryear who fought in our touchstone battles and forged the modern Marine Corps with their courage, integrity, and undying commitment to their fellow Marines.

Each of our storied battles is a link in the long chain that binds all Marines together—from the Continental Marines at Bunker Hill to the Teufelhunden crossing the wheat fields of Belleau Wood. This chain binds us to the Marines on the crest of Mount Suribachi. It passes through the ice and snow of Chosin Reservoir and the steaming jungles of Vietnam, and it anchors firmly today in the sands of Iraq.

This year's celebration again finds many from our ranks, serving with distinction in harm's way. As we have for the past 231 years, our Corps is answering the Nation's call. I can report first hand that our Marines fighting on the front lines of the Long War on Terror are performing brilliantly, acquitting themselves with honor, dedication, and dignity in difficult and dangerous environments.

All Marines are making a difference. Regardless of where you are serving, you are adding new chapters to the legacy that was earned with sweat and blood on old battlefields. Just as previous generations of Marines shaped today's Marine Corps, your deeds are molding the Corps of tomorrow.

Our Corps has never been stronger, and all Americans are extremely proud of your magnificent performance and unwavering commitment to serve our Corps and country. With high caliber Marines like you, our future has never been brighter.

Another irreplaceable element of our success as Marines is the terrific support we receive from our families. Through the long hours, the exercises, and the combat deployments, their support is unconditional and firm. They give us love and devotion, providing us with the strength to drive on when duty calls. Today we should all acknowledge our loved ones for their patient, steadfast service.

To all who have earned the title Marine, to the superb Sailors who serve with us in every clime and place, and to our precious families— I wish each one of you a heartfelt Happy 231st Birthday. Semper Fidelis and Keep Attacking!

Nesting can happen any time of year

Story by MC1 Robert Lamb, Public Affairs Office

People aren't the only ones who make use of Guantanamo Bay beaches. Other creatures make the beaches part of their ritual habitats, including sea turtles. According to Fred Burns NAVSTA Environmental Director, sea turtles can nest almost any time of the year and anywhere along the beach.

Just recently a large turtle was spotted at Windmill Beach, late in the evening of Oct. 28, and was later identified by local environmental experts as a Green Turtle.

Green turtles can reach 3.5 - 4 ft. in length and weigh between 300 - 400 pounds. They mainly stay near the coastline and around islands and live in bays and protected shores, especially in areas with seagrass beds. They nest at intervals of two, three, or more years, with wide year-to-year fluctuations in numbers of nesting females. They nest between three to five times per season. They lay an average of 115 eggs in each nest, with the eggs incubating for about 60 days.

Only female turtles nest, and that occurs most often at night. The female crawls out of the ocean, pausing frequently as it carefully scopes out her spot.

Sometimes she will crawl out of the ocean, but for unknown reasons decides not to nest. This is a "false crawl," and it can happen naturally or be caused by artificial lighting or the presence of people on the beach.

The Green Turtle that came ashore on Windmill beach last week laid her eggs near the concession cabana.

"Whenever a turtle is laying her eggs, residents are reminded to remain at a distance," said Burns. "Coming too close may spook her and she will not lay her eggs, or may leave the nest before laying all her eggs. When spooked, she will return to the water and deposit her eggs in the sea because the urge to lay the eggs is too great."

Green Turtles are listed as endangered (in danger of extinction within the foreseeable future) under the U.S. Federal Endangered Species Act. Internationally, these turtles are also listed as endangered (facing a very high risk of extinction in the wild in the near future) by the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources. The current population estimate is 88,520 nesting females.

"If these turtles are scared off of the beach they might not have enough time to find another secluded beach and all eggs will be lost," Burns concluded. If anyone sees a nesting sea turtle on any of GTMO's beaches, they are urged to stay well away from the area, and contact Fred Burns or Christopher Creighton at the NAVSTA Environmental Department, ext. 4662 or 4380, as soon as possible after the sighting. Volunteers under the guidance of Environmental Department personnel will monitor the nest until after the eggs have hatched.

weapons training and qualifications with their respective NSF section.

Additionally, the entire ASF will be employed during all exercises involving increased FPCONs.

"If and when the full ASF is activated, they will serve in critical duties such as entry control point sentries, mobile and fixed post security sentries, and traffic and crowd control duties," said Thompson.

The instructors expresses their delight for being a part of this mission, especially in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba where they believe plays a critical role in the overall mission of the Navy.

"I think I speak for myself and my colleagues, said Tony Frank, one of the instructors.

"It was certainly an honor for us to pass on these knowledge to these group of Sailors. They were willing to learn and they all worked together throughout the training, that was the most impressive part of the whole thing."

"They realized that teamwork helps, and it did. We wish them well in their careers and we are hoping to hear good things from them," he added.
