

CLIMATE FOR VOICE

CALIFORNIA SPECIALLY FAVORS VOCAL DEVELOPMENT, MRS. WHITING'S OPINION

That the favored dwellers in the State of California have advantages as great as those that made Athens of the ancient world the center of culture and the home of vocal music, is the opinion of Mrs. Calvin Whiting, 329 N. Maryland, herself an expert in voice culture. "There is a balminess in the air of California, neither too moist nor too dry," said Mrs. Whiting to a representative of The Daily News, "that is specially favorable to the culture of the human voice."

"In this charming region round Glendale and Los Angeles this modern world of ours enjoys conditions that are very similar to those that prevailed in the golden days of Athens, the Eye of Greece. It will be remembered that the whole civilized world of the time of the Caesars looked to Athens as the home of voice culture and to be approved by that center of intelligence and special knowledge in the arts of oratory and singing, was to receive the imprimatur of the only school worth considering."

"In similar manner the American world of music is beginning to look on California as the coming musical center of the United States. Artists of the world-wide standing of Schumann-Heink in vocal music and Brahm Van Den Berg in instrumental music and composition, whom I mention simply because they are of the handful of first-rank geniuses in the musical world, have made their home in Southern California, recognizing its advantages. There are also hundreds of others, of American reputation."

"When I was in Chicago I could see how rapidly this fact was becoming recognized and I determined that I would make my home in this land of sunshine and song the moment I could accomplish it. I have now been two years in Southern California and about six months in Glendale. I have found my anticipations of this climate more than justified. Around me I find many excellent vocal teachers and teachers of music. These are people of a very high rank, which shows that California is attracting the best of the musical talent of the country to its cities."

"This is very gratifying, to one who like myself has lived always in touch with the world of musical art. I am about to open a studio of vocal music in Glendale and feel certain that in such an artistic center as this I will soon have a large clientele. I studied in the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago and hold my diploma from that well-known institution. I also studied under Prof. Torrens at Steinway Hall. He was the great voice culturist in Chicago and was famous for his technique."

"Afterward I had charge of the music department in various of the leading schools in Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana. In Milwaukee I went in a great deal for concert work. In Denver, Colorado, I had charge of the Episcopal cathedral choir and was pleased to be able to bring it to a point of considerable merit before I left that center. During the time I was there I sang in the famous Denver choir, under Prof. Houseley. That choir won the $1000 prize offered by the Welsh organization, the Elsteddfod, in competition with the nationally known Salt Lake Tabernacle choir, and the Ogden and Provoit choirs."

"I believe I have an excellent method as I have always been able to get results. From all that I have known of Glendale I also feel that I am going to have great success in this charming spot."

TWO YEARS OLD

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY AND CLOSE OF CONTEST WITH BAND CONCERT

The Glendale Evening News is two years old this week, and the thought has come to the mind of the management that it is appropriate to couple the closing of the subscription contest with the second anniversary of the existence of Glendale's daily paper, and invite the citizens of the Glendale community to be present at a band concert at the Evening News building at the corner of Broadway and Louise streets at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The two years of successful career of the Evening News is due to the loyal support given to it by the citizens of this community. The mission of the Evening News is due to the community news—give local news that is not published in the city papers. In addition to publishing the community news it has recently been thought expedient to publish each day two columns or more of the latest telegraphic news as furnished to us by the United Press. This service, which is published in a condensed but comprehensive form, is being well received by the readers of the paper.

It is the desire of the publisher of the Evening News to give Glendale the very best daily paper possible, and the liberal response of the people has spoken in plain words that the publisher's efforts are being appreciated. The Evening News is not a partisan paper. It has no axe to grind for any clique or set of men. Its purpose is to represent all citizens and organizations of the Glendale community in a fair and just manner, and such will be the policy of the paper so long as it remains under the present management.

WILD ALASKA TRACKS

MRS. M. O. RYAN, PRINCIPAL OF BROADWAY SCHOOL, TELLS OF WONDERS OF THE INSIDE PASSAGE

To those who have never been in Alaska that land of magnificent distances is a region of wonders and marvels. It is so in reality though not often in the way the outsider imagines. Alaska is a territory that comprises 590,000 square miles. It could easily contain both Texas and California, and a few other States and yet leave a handsome margin. Its climate varies from the mild and rainy region around Metlakatla to the frozen north in the neighborhood of the Mackenzie river, where that magnificent stream empties out into the Arctic ocean.

Between these two points there is a vast variety of climate and scenery. Valdez is the most northerly port that is open throughout the winter. When one reaches the Bering sea one finds a vast stretch of ocean narrowing to a distance of about 32 miles between America and north-eastern Siberia and opening out again into that enormous and unexplored expanse where the explorer Stefansson is at present, probably making a strenuous fight for life if he has not already succumbed to the sinister conditions of the Arctic.

This wonderful country is a land of marvelous charm. Its mountains, including Mt. McKinley, the highest mountain in the United States, are of vast extent and great height. They include innumerable active volcanoes. On the voyage up to Nome by sea it is possible to see smoking volcanoes, including the famous Mt. Shishaldin, threatening as Vesuvius.

When it comes to a question of seeing America tourists are now beginning to understand that Alaska presents to them perhaps the most attractive route of all. Every season the steamer that conveys tourists to the north are crowded to their capacity and few come back without longing to see more of that land of original charm. The tourist voyage is not made in the winter, for then even the southeastern section is difficult of approach and the waters north of Valdez are frozen for seven months.

Mrs. M. O. Ryan, principal of the Broadway school, made this wonderful trip this summer and is back again full of the marvel and mystery of the north. Leaving Seattle on the Jefferson, July 3, for a fourteen-day trip, by the inside passage, which avoids the open ocean and winds in and out through the protected channels of the Alexander archipelago. "There are only three stormy places on the voyage, where the open sea is encountered, and the passage through them lasts only a few hours. All along the country presents the most beautiful scenic features. The hills are crowned and covered with a dense growth of timber; little waterfalls come pouring down on all sides. Everywhere is the eerie feeling of the new unexplored land."

"Through this enchanted succession of beautiful vistas we ran till we reached the first city in Alaska, Ketchikan, in the center of a copper district with mining camps all round and a vast fishing industry. Here we saw the first totem pole, standing in the midst of its original environment. Thence, steaming along the glass-like inland waters, we came to Metlakatla, where Father Duncan, a devoted independent missionary, has fathered and educated a community of 800 Christian Indians of the Tsimpean tribe, who abandoned their village in British Columbia in order to have greater freedom. Congress set apart this reservation, known as the Annette lands, for their use. These Indians have an excellent municipal government, a school, a church, cathedral, postoffice, etc."

"Stopping at Wrangell, the next port, we found the old town, which was established by the United States, at first as a fort, after the Alaska purchase. This city became of some importance as an outfitting station for the Cassiar goldfields. Juneau, the next stop, is a most interesting city, nestling at the foot of an immense cliff, over which the winds sometimes sweep with enormous force."

"From Juneau to Haines and Skagway at the head of the Lynn canal, as it is called, is a most attractive stretch. Thence we took the railway to Lake Bennett and saw some more of this wonderful land, looking up to the old trail over the White Pass. At Haines we saw splendid, large strawberries, grown in the neighborhood, and sold for 40 cents a basket. At Douglas we visited the famous Treadwell mines, the property of the Alaska Mining company, one of the largest stamp mills

CONTEST ENDS TONIGHT

FINAL WIND UP OF BIG SUBSCRIPTION BUILDING CAMPAIGN

What has proven to be a very successful subscription getting contest conducted under the auspices of The Glendale Evening News and the Tri-City Progress will close at 9 o'clock this evening. Each contestant is working hard to keep himself in the lead when it comes to the time the judges count the ballots. Each contestant realizes the importance of having every closing hour represent a large number of votes. Lack of energy now might make a loser out of one who had worked diligently for many weeks.

At 9 o'clock sharp the ballot box will be placed in the hands of the judges. The ballots will be segregated,—those of each candidate will be placed in a separate pile, and then the adding machines will be put in operation, and once more will it be proven that figures do not lie. The contestants and their friends will anxiously await the judges' announcement. After the ballot box is closed it is too late to change results—all of that must be done before 9 o'clock. Maybe an additional year's subscription will place a contestant one place higher and win for him the automobile instead of the piano. The winner will be the contestant who works hard until the closing hour, and who is backed by friends who love to support a winner. The contestant who estimates that he needs an additional million votes to gain first place should play safe by casting 2,000,000 additional votes. To gain a Maxwell touring car is worth a few hours' hard work before the close of the contest. Do not give up until the closing hour,—remain in a position that your friends may easily have an opportunity to come to your assistance. Contestants should not be backward in telling their friends that assistance is needed. True friends will appreciate the fact that you rely upon them for assistance. Tell your friends that you are counting on them to help you win the battle, and if they are genuine friends they will aid you in every way possible.

Bear in mind the names of the contestants. They are citizens of the Glendale community. The contestants are:

- Mrs. J. C. May.
- Miss Cora Hickman.
- Morse Preeman.
- Newton McGillis.
- Miss Virginia Graham.
- Miss Ruth Wright.
- Mrs. A. D. Pearce.

The gentlemen who have consented to serve as judges are:

- J. Herbert Smith of the Tropic Mercantile Co.
- B. F. Andrae, bookkeeper in the Logan store, Casa Verdugo.
- Geo. U. Moyses, superintendent Glendale Union High School.
- Herman Nelson, cashier of the Bank of Glendale.
- G. H. Bentley of the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber Co., Glendale.

The prizes are:

- Five-passenger Maxwell touring car.
- Schiller piano.
- Trip to San Francisco or $75 in cash.

Fifty-dollar certificate of deposit in the First National Bank of Glendale.

- (a) $75 Scholarship in the Isaac-Woodbury Business College, Los Angeles.
- (b) $75 Scholarship, etc.
- (c) $75 Scholarship, etc.

in the world, if not the largest. The company has all the latest methods of handling ore and makes a large profit. The ore is low grade, running from $1.75 to $2 a ton. The company generates its own electric power and in its new mining property at Thane, close to the old property, has introduced the latest forms of crushers, in which there is no loss of power, but every movement counts. There is no waste here and the cost of mining has been cut one-third. Everything in these mines is handled by gravity. With the exception of in one spot where an elevator is used there is no uphaul.

"Time would fail me to tell of all the wonders of this marvelous land—its glaciers, its hot springs, its coal fields, its oil wells, its abundant and varying wealth, its agricultural possibilities, its luxuriant timber growth and a thousand other features. I only regret that I did not have more time to spend there. As it is I have acquired a wider view of the semi-continent in the north, which is one of the most interesting sections of the United States."

WHAT MAKES AMERICA "DIFFERENT."

It has always been a puzzle to Europeans to account for the vast difference between Americans and the people of other nations.

Americans have rid themselves of all that deference to the past which hampers Europeans of every country.

In spite of all that may be said about corruption in politics the American nation loves a real man, and specially a man who is not afraid to stand out in support of what he believes to be right.

It has been well said that one of the great differences between the American president and the rulers of Europe is that those rulers are always asking themselves and their ministers, "What shall we order the people to do?"

In this way it is not likely that the President will go wrong in gauging the sentiment of the nation.

Daily the newspapers of the country are in touch with the President. They know exactly what he is doing and what he is thinking and what his policy is.

Nothing is more marked than the change in the status of British women since the war broke out.

It was well for Britain that her women were of such quality. The very women who were at one moment burning houses and churches and breaking windows as a protest against their franchise disabilities, at the next were volunteering for service in the Red Cross; offering to act as munitions makers and showing their willingness and ability in many departments of the public service in connection with the war.

He would be a bold individual who, in the face of the loyalty and good service of the women of England, would dare to say that the franchise should be denied them.

British newspapers are beginning to acknowledge the truth of such sentiment and are stating the willingness of the country to recognize the immense services the women have rendered to the State.

It is now acknowledged that the women are doing marvelously effective service in every department in connection with the war, and that many of them are facing the hardships and vicissitudes of the field in common with the men.

That the women of Britain have proved their case in every particular is undeniable, and they would be strengthened and encouraged to greater service by the recognition of their worth and valor.

Beauty is more than skin-deep. It is disposition-deep. Buying of the home merchant is doubly beneficial to the buyer.
