NOTE.

The publication of this little book, suggested by many of the friends who so kindly patronized me for years and who now wish to have the Receipts, gives me great pleasure. That they, too, may take pleasure in the book, and in the printed Receipts feel a suggestion of my grateful appreciation of their kindness, is the earnest wish of

CAKE RECEIPTS.

SPONGE CAKE.

1 pound sugar. 9 eggs.
½ " flour. 1 lemon, the juice and rind of.

Grate the rind of lemon into sugar; separate the eggs, put the yolks into the sugar. While one is thoroughly beating that, let another be beating the whites to a stiff froth. Add that to the sugar and yolks when well beaten; then the flour; last, the juice of the lemon. This will make two good-sized deep loaves. Bake in a good oven, not too hot, forty or forty-five minutes.

This will also make four dozen lady fingers, that require a very hot fire to bake them; or four dozen round cakes, frosted, some with white, some with chocolate.

CHIPS.

¾ pound butter. ½ even teaspoonful mace.
1 ½ pounds sugar. 1 ounce ginger.
½ pint boiling water. ½ cup wine.
2 even teaspoonfuls soda.

Roll very thin, and bake on tin sheets.

ENGLISH WALNUT CAKE.

1 cup butter, heaping.	6 eggs, yolks of.
2 $\frac{7}{8}$ cups sugar.	4 " whites "
1 $\frac{1}{3}$ " sweet milk.	1 teaspoonful cream tartar.
5 " sifted flour.	$\frac{1}{2}$ " soda.
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ " English walnuts broken up fine.

Rub the butter and sugar to a cream. Separate the eggs; put the yolks in, one at a time; when well beaten, add the whites, having been beaten to a stiff froth. Next the milk with the soda dissolved in it; then, gradually, the flour, in which the cream tartar should be put. When all is thoroughly beaten, add the nuts, and put into four shallow pans, square, as quickly as possible. Never let cake stand longer than necessary. Bake in a good oven, thirty-five minutes.

FROSTING.

6 eggs, whites of. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups powdered sugar.

Beat the whites a little, then add the sugar and beat till quite stiff. In warm weather more sugar may be needed; be careful not to use too much or it will be too hard. Sugar thickens the frosting, while beating stiffens it. Put it on when the cake is just a little warm, if possible, to give the frosting a glossy look. When ready, turn the cake over, put the frosting on with a spoon, spreading it very smoothly; when a little stiff crease into sixteen squares, drawing a thread wet with water through the frosting, three times down, three times across. Beat a little frosting stiffer, and frost with that some half English walnuts, putting one on each square.

WALNUT CAKE.

1 cup butter.	4 eggs.
2 cups sugar.	2 teaspoonfuls cream tartar.
3 " flour.	1 " soda.
1 cup milk.	1 pound walnuts.

Rub the butter and sugar to a cream. Separate the eggs; add the yolks, one at a time, when well beaten, add the whites, having been beaten to a stiff froth. Next the milk, in which the soda is dissolved, then the flour with cream tartar. Break the nuts up very fine, reserve three fourths of a cup for the frosting, and add the rest to the cake. This should be baked in two deep pans, and creased in slices for the table.

FROSTING.

3 eggs, whites of.	$\frac{3}{4}$ cup nuts.
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ cups powdered sugar.

Beat the whites a little, then add the sugar and beat till quite stiff. Add the nuts, very finely cut up, and put on cake when a little warm. Crease with the thread across the loaf in slices.

CURRANT CAKE.

1 cup butter.	4 eggs.
2 cups sugar.	1 teaspoonful cream tartar.
4 " flour.	$\frac{1}{2}$ " soda.
1 cup milk.	2 cups currants.

Rub the butter and sugar to a cream. Add the yolks singly; then the whites, beaten to a froth; then the milk and soda; next the flour and cream tartar; lastly the currants, rubbed in a little flour.

Bake thirty-five minutes in two large or four small loaves. Sprinkle a little powdered sugar over the cake before cutting.

Raisins in the place of currants will make the Raisin Cake. Stone and cut the raisins, two cups full.

ALMOND CAKE.

ALMOND HEARTS.

5 eggs.	Half the weight of almonds.
Same weight sugar.	Half " " " flour.

Stir the sugar and yolks of eggs together; pound the almonds, add them; then the flour; then the whites of eggs. Butter little tins, rounds or hearts; sprinkle flour on the butter; fill them, and sprinkle a little sugar on top. Bake slowly in a cool oven.

CHOCOLATE CAKE WITH FILLING.

1 cup sugar.	2 eggs.
$\frac{1}{2}$ " butter.	1 teaspoonful cream tartar.
$\frac{1}{2}$ " milk.	$\frac{1}{2}$ " soda.
2 cups flour.	Salt and nutmeg.

Rub butter and sugar together; add salt. Separate the eggs; add yolks; then whites, beaten to a froth; next milk with soda dissolved in it; then nutmeg; lastly the flour with cream tartar. Frost like any chocolate cake; bake in two shallow pans, or one deep pan, and cut in half for filling.
