When the board of trustees deems it advisable for the best interests of the district and the convenience of the electors thereof, it may at any time, but not less than sixty days before an election is to be held in the district, divide the district into divisions or precincts for election purposes, but such divisions shall be made as nearly equal in area or population as may be practicable. The boundaries of the divisions and precincts or any subsequent changes therein must be shown on the minutes of the board. Should the district be divided into divisions or precincts by the board of trustees for the purpose of holding elections thereafter, any property-owner owning property in one or more precincts or divisions, must cast the ballots represented by his respective parcels in each precinct where such parcels are situate respectively, and if any such parcel lies partly in one precinct and partly in another, he may cast the ballots represented thereby in either, but before doing so he must notify the election board in the other precinct of his intention to do so, in order that the election board may note the ballots represented by said land as having been voted. Wasteful use of water.

Sec. 10a. The board of trustees shall have the right to establish penalties and restrictions upon the excessive and wasteful use of water, for the purpose of conserving the water of said district and for the purpose of preventing injury to the lands of said district. For said purposes and/or likewise for the purpose of defraying any or all of the expenses or obligations of said district or for which said district may be liable, the board of trustees may in lieu (either in part or in whole) of levying the taxes as in this act provided for, fix rates of toll and charges for irrigation and other public uses declared by this act, and collect the same from all persons using water for irrigation and domestic use and/or from all persons owning or possessing land within said district which may be entitled to water for irrigation or entitled to such other public uses, and, upon order of said board, may be made payable only in case of delivery of water in excess of a specified quantity of water per unit of land. Such tolls or charges may be levied and fixed (either in part or in whole) on the basis of the assessed value of land within the district (exclusive of improvements) as shown on the last preceding equalized assessment roll of the district, or otherwise as the board shall provide. If such tolls and charges are fixed and levied upon any other basis than in accordance with the use of water, the board of trustees shall provide for a hearing upon the manner, rate and amount of such tolls and charges and shall give notice thereof and of the time and place of said hearing by publication, once a week for two weeks in a newspaper published in said district, or if there be none, in the county of Riverside. The said hearing may be held on or after ten days from the first publication. Such tolls or charges shall be payable in cash and may by the board of trustees be made payable either at one time or in installments to the district tax collector separately from taxes and in such manner as the board of trustees may provide, or said board of trustees may make the same payable with either or both of the installments of annual taxes levied by the district. Whenever any tolls or charges have been established by the board of trustees, said board may make the same payable in advance, either at one time or in installments, and may refuse to furnish water unless such tolls or charges are paid in advance. Any such tolls or charges not by order or resolution of said board made payable with district taxes, remaining unpaid at the time specified for the delivery of the next ensuing assessment roll to the collector of the district may, by order of said board, be added to and become a part of the annual assessment upon the land upon which such tolls or charges are unpaid. Such unpaid tolls and charges shall be payable with and as a part of the first installment of said assessment, or equally with both installments as the board may order, but no allowance or deduction shall be made on account of such unpaid tolls or charges in levying the tax provided for in section 28 hereof.

New section

Sec. 28½o. In all cases where a lot, piece or parcel of land contained in any assessment has been sold or may hereafter be sold to the district for delinquent assessments and the time for redemption has not expired, a partial redemption may be made by the owner or any person in interest separately from the whole assessment of any such lot, piece or parcel of land as follows:

Partial redemption

If such lot, piece or parcel of land has a separate valuation shown on the assessment roll, the collector shall estimate the amount due according to the valuation shown on the assessment roll, and the redemption shall be made in the manner provided for in sections 28n and 28o, as amended, of this act. If such lot, piece or parcel of land or such fractional part of such lot, piece or parcel of land does not have a separate valuation shown on the assessment roll, the collector shall submit the description of the lot, piece or parcel of land, or the fractional part thereof, upon which redemption is requested, to the assessor, who must place a valuation thereon. The collector shall then send a notice by registered mail to the person to whom the land was assessed, to his last known address, giving him notice of the proposed division, and if no protest against said division be filed with the collector within ten days from the date of the mailing of such notice, the collector shall then estimate the amount of such assessments, penalties, costs and interest due on such lot, piece or parcel of land according to such relative or proportionate value, and such redemption shall be made in the manner provided for in sections 28n and 28o, as amended, of this act; provided, that where written protest to said division is filed by any assessment payer within said ten days, the collector shall withhold such redemption and refer the matter to the board of trustees of the district for decision. The board of trustees shall set a time for hearing said protest, and cause a notice of the date of said hearing to be mailed by the secretary to the person or persons who have filed written protest, and to the person desiring to make such redemption, at least ten days prior to the date of such hearing, and at the termination of said hearing may confirm the act of the assessor or modify or set aside the same, and its decision in the premises shall be final. In the event of such reference to the board of trustees and of their dividing the assessment, the collector shall conform to the action of the board.

Such partial redemption must be made in gold and silver coin or in whole or in part, in warrants of the district, drawn by the auditor of said county of Riverside prior to the first day of July, 1931, as to taxes levied prior to the year 1930.

Warrants so received shall be canceled, and wherever necessary partial payment thereon shall be endorsed thereon.

Sec 29. The collector shall deposit in the name of the district at least weekly in a reputable bank or banks in Riverside county all moneys for tolls or charges collected by him and originally made payable separately from taxes. Any portion of said tolls or charges originally made payable separately from taxes and collected for the purpose of paying principal or interest on bonds of the Palo Verde irrigation district, Palo Verde joint levee district or Palo Verde drainage district shall be forwarded by him to the county treasurer of Riverside county, as required in connection with tax moneys. All other portions of said tolls or charges originally made payable separately from taxes and collected shall be retained in said bank accounts and be used for the purposes for which they were collected upon order of the board of trustees and on checks in the name of the district signed by the president, vice president, secretary, assistant secretary, superintendent and general manager or any two of said officers thereunto duly authorized by the board of trustees. The collector shall deposit daily in a reputable bank in Riverside county all moneys received by him for taxes and from tolls or charges which were originally made payable together with taxes to be placed in an account which shall only be drawn on by his checks payable to the county treasurer of Riverside county. All moneys collected from the district, from taxes and from tolls or charges originally made payable together with taxes, shall be paid by the collector to the county treasurer of the county of Riverside and placed in the appropriate fund or funds in the name of the Palo Verde irrigation district. The county treasurer of Imperial county shall not be required to transmit said funds as they accumulate oftener than every thirty days. All payments required to be made by the district in pursuance of this act, except as herein otherwise provided, shall be made upon warrants drawn by the county auditor upon the appropriate fund and based upon itemized requisitions signed by the president and secretary or assistant secretary and one member of the board of trustees other than the president and secretary, and paid by the treasurer, but accurate account shall be kept by the board of trustees of the amount of funds on hand applicable to the particular purpose for which taxes have been levied, or bonds sold, and each requisition shall show on its face the account to which the same is chargeable. The said auditor shall not become personally liable for the drawing of any warrant by reason of the fact that funds may not have been provided to pay the same.

Upon the requisition of the board of trustees, the auditor is authorized to draw a warrant from time to time, in favor of the district, for the purpose of providing an emergency fund for the payment of emergency expenses, including pay rolls and current petty expenses, and the treasurer is authorized to pay such warrant, but the trustees shall cause the same to be deposited in a reputable bank to the credit of the district, and such fund may be disbursed on checks in the name of the district, signed by the president, vice president, secretary, assistant secretary, superintendent and general manager, or any two of said officers as may be authorized by resolution of the board of trustees; but, provided, however, that the amount on deposit in said emergency fund shall never exceed five thousand dollars, and an itemized statement of the disposition of same shall be made at least every thirty days, verified by the oaths of the president and secretary, and filed with the county auditor of Riverside county; and provided, further, that the board of trustees shall at all times keep in force a good and sufficient indemnity bond, executed by a reputable corporation authorized to engage in the business of executing fidelity bonds in the State of California, in an amount fixed by the board of trustees.

measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately.

The facts constituting such urgency are as follows: The Palo Verde irrigation district is in dire distress financially.
The lands therein have become greatly in arrears in the payment of taxes, and consequently the bonds of the Palo Verde irrigation district, of the Palo Verde drainage district and of the Palo Verde levee district of Riverside and Imperial counties, California, are delinquent and the operation and maintenance funds are exhausted. If the delinquent property in said district is not promptly returned to farming, and if the taxes, tolls and charges are not promptly paid, the payment of outstanding bond obligations can not be made, the operation and maintenance of the levees, drains and irrigation system can not be kept up, and a great menace and danger to life, health and property will shortly exist. The amendments to said act herein contained are necessary to accomplish the return to farming of said delinquent properties and to secure the payment of taxes, tolls and charges, and thereby to prevent the destruction of life, health and property.

This act shall not operate to legalize any bonds which have been sold for less than par, nor legalize any bonds the issuance of which has not received the assent of two-thirds of the qualified electors of such district voting at an election held for the purpose of determining whether such indebtedness should be incurred, nor to legalize any bonds which mature more than forty years from the time of their issuance, nor to legalize any bonds issued in excess of the limits prescribed by law.

SEC. 4. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency: Many school districts within the State of California are without sufficient money with which to purchase school lots, for building or purchasing one or more school buildings or making alterations or additions to same or restoring or rebuilding school buildings damaged, injured or destroyed by fire or other public calamity, for insuring school building, for supplying school buildings with furniture or necessary apparatus, for improving school grounds, for liquidating any indebtedness already incurred for said purposes or refunding any valid outstanding indebtedness of such district evidenced by bonds or warrants thereof. Many school districts have within the last two years voted bonds for raising money for such purposes and the proceedings in many of such bond elections were irregular but complying with all the provisions of this act, and by reason of such minor irregularities and defects in such proceedings, not jurisdictional, such bonds can not now be sold. The population of many of these districts has increased so rapidly that the present school facilities of such districts are unable to meet the needs of the great increase of pupils in such districts and it is necessary and urgent that such bonds and the proceedings thereunder be validated at an early date in order that said school buildings, lots, equipment and facilities may be purchased or built before the opening of the next school year which in many instances would be impossible if this act did not go into effect immediately but was required to await until ninety days after adjournment of this Legislature.

[Approved by the Governor January 29, 1931. In effect immediately]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. When in any irrigation district organized and existing under the laws of the State of California proceedings have been taken for the purpose of organizing any improvement district under the provisions of an act entitled: "An act to provide for the organization and creation of improvement districts within irrigation districts organized under the California irrigation district act; to provide for the acquisition, construction, operation, maintenance and repair of improvements therein, and for the levy of assessments on the lands of such improvement districts," approved May 25, 1927, as amended, all acts and proceedings of the board of directors of such irrigation district conducting the proceedings for the formation of such district and all other acts and proceedings leading up to and including the formation of such district, including the petition for such formation in the form and manner in which such petition was heretofore approved by such board of directors, and all other acts and proceedings relative to the levy of any assessment in such district and all warrants heretofore issued, or to be issued pursuant to such acts and proceedings in any such district heretofore organized are hereby legalized, confirmed and validated, and the power of the board of directors of such irrigation district conducting such proceedings in any such improvement district to make and levy and collect said assessment, and to issue warrants payable therefrom, is hereby ratified, confirmed and approved; and said warrants are hereby declared to be and shall be in the form and manner in which the same have heretofore been issued, or are to be issued, if not now outstanding, the legal and valid obligations of and against such improvement district, payable from the proceeds of the assessment levied or to be levied therein; and all other acts and proceedings heretofore taken under the provisions of said irrigation district improvement act, or purporting to be taken under said act, are hereby legalized, confirmed and validated. No error or informality in any such proceedings heretofore taken under said irrigation district improvement act shall in anywise invalidate the formation of any such improvement district, the levy of any assessment therein or the issuance of any warrants payable from such assessment or any other act or proceeding relative thereto, from and after the effective date of this act, all such proceedings and acts being hereby ratified, confirmed, approved and validated.

SEC. 2. For the purpose of paying the interest on any warrants issued by any irrigation district under the provisions of said irrigation district improvement act as the same becomes due, and the principal thereof, the assessors, treasurers, collectors, boards of directors and other officers of the respective irrigation districts organized under the laws of this state in which such improvement district shall have been organized or attempted to have been organized under said irrigation district improvement act, shall have the same powers and perform the same duties as are provided by said act for the assessment, levy and collection of the special assessments and the payment of the principal and interest of the warrants provided to be made and issued under the provisions of said act, and it shall be and hereby is made the duty of the board of directors of any irrigation district in which such improvement district shall have heretofore been organized or attempted to have been organized to levy and collect the special assessment heretofore made or to be made in such improvement district clearly sufficient to pay the principal and interest of the warrants issued or to be issued on account of such proceedings, and said boards of directors are hereby vested with power and jurisdiction to do all and singular the things herein and in said irrigation district improvement act required to be done for the purpose of providing funds sufficient to pay the principal and interest of said warrants.

Urgency.

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall become effective immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency:

Many improvement districts within irrigation districts in the State of California are without funds with which to provide for the acquisition, construction, operation, maintenance and repair of improvements therein for the irrigation and drainage of lands therein. In many such improvement districts there are large acreages of land upon which many people make their homes and which with irrigation will provide large quantities of agricultural products but without irrigation are arid and unproductive. The acquisition, construction, operation, maintenance and repair of improvements provided for in said irrigation district improvement act are needed immediately for the irrigation season of 1931 and, unless the same are provided for immediately, water for irrigation purposes can not be furnished to said lands during the irrigation season of 1931 and such lands will be without water and therefore be rendered unproductive and valueless, necessitating the abandonment of homes. In many such districts, unless the contemplated improvements for the drainage of lands therein are consummated before the irrigation season of 1931, many thousands of acres of land will become alkali- ed, water-logged and swamped and rendered permanently unfit for agricultural purposes because of the rising and high under- ground water table therein, as well as rendered dangerous to the public health by reason of the marshy and swamped lands created, which will be a breeding place for mosquitoes and malarious insects. Many such improvement districts have been created within irrigation districts for the purpose of rectifying the above conditions which now exist, but, by reason of minor defects in the proceedings for the formation of such districts and other minor irregularities not substantially affecting the rights of property owners within such districts, such districts are unable to proceed with the improvements and are unable to issue or negotiate warrants for the payment thereof, and it is essential that such improvements be made immediately without awaiting the delay of ninety days after the adjournment of this Legislature.

It is immediately necessary in view of the present business depression and unemployment situation that appropriate steps be taken in some manner to alleviate the situation which has arisen—a situation which has thrown very large numbers of the citizens of this state out of employment, which unemployment is threatening the peace and well-being of the people of the state generally. The problems presented by such depression and unemployment and the remedies therefor should be immediately considered as provided in this act, to the end that the state may enact proper legislation by way of relief.

CHAPTER 62.

An act to amend section 751 of chapter 49, statutes of 1883, entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation and government of municipal corporations," approved March 13, 1883, as amended, relating to cities of the fifth class, to take effect immediately. Stats 1883, p 93, amended.

[Approved by the Governor February 26, 1931 In effect immediately.]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 751 of chapter 49, statutes of 1883, entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation and government of municipal corporations," as amended by chapter 645, statutes of 1927, is hereby amended to read as follows: Stats 1927, p 1093.

Sec. 751 The government of said city shall be vested in: Officers - 5th class cities.

A board of five trustees to be known as the city council;

A board of education, to consist of five members; and whenever a free library and reading room is established therein, five trustees thereof;

A recorder who shall be known as the city judge;

A treasurer;

A clerk;

An attorney;

A marshal, who shall be known as the chief of police;

An assessor, and such subordinate or other officers as are hereinafter provided for.

The city council may, in its discretion, by an ordinance adopted, published and recorded, as required for general ordinances, at least thirty days before a general city election at which city officers are to be elected, unite and consolidate Consolidations.

1. The city marshal elected shall be ex officio superintendent of streets, and health officer;

2. The city clerk elected shall be ex officio recorder and assessor;

3. The city treasurer elected shall be ex officio tax collector and license collector and assessor;

4. The city attorney elected shall be ex officio city clerk.

The president of the city council shall be known as the mayor.

The court conducted by the city judge shall be known as the city court.

Urgency.

SEC. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure, deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and as such it shall take effect immediately.

The following is a statement of the fact constituting such necessity.

Various cities of the class affected by this amendment, will hold elections to which such amendment applies in April of this year. Inasmuch as the amendment would not take effect in the ordinary course of procedure until after such elections, the act as it existed prior to the adoption of the amendment would apply.

As a consequence cities of the fifth class in which elections would be held this year would be governed for two years at least, by officers elected under a law which did not longer exist in the same form. Other cities of the same class holding elections at a later date would come under the provisions of the act as amended. There would thus be a situation in which cities of the same class would be governed under different laws.

In order to prevent the resulting confusion throughout the state, and the injustice which would require certain cities of the class affected to be governed by officers whose election was no longer provided for by the laws of this state, it is necessary that this amendment be passed by this Legislature to take effect immediately.

An act to carry into effect the provisions of section 18 of article thirteen of the constitution, and adding sections 3664b-1, 3664b-2, 3664b-3, and 3664b-4, to the Political Code, relating to taxation of ocean marine insurers.

Provided, however, that in arriving at the aforesaid "underwriting profit," there shall not be deducted in respect to expenses incurred, as hereinbefore defined and specified in paragraphs (a) and (b), amounts which, in the aggregate, exceed forty per centum of the aforesaid gross premiums on such marine insurance contracts.

New section

SEC. 4. A new section is hereby added to the Political Code to be known as section 3664b-4 and to read as follows:

Annual report

3664b-4. Every insurer transacting ocean marine insurance in this state as defined in section 3664b-2 of the Political Code, shall file on or before the first Monday in March in each year with the insurance commissioner, and in the form prescribed by him, a report of all the items pertaining to its insurance business as enumerated and prescribed in the preceding section 3664b-3. To determine the basis of the tax on underwriting profit, every insurer which has been writing such marine insurance in this state for three years shall furnish the insurance commissioner a statement of all of the aforementioned items, in the form prescribed by him for each of the preceding three calendar years. An insurer which has not been writing such marine insurance for three years shall furnish to the insurance commissioner a statement of all the aforementioned items for each of the calendar years during which it has written such marine insurance

Computation of tax

If the insurance commissioner finds the report of the insurer reporting correct, he shall, if the insurer has transacted such marine insurance for three years (1) ascertain the average annual underwriting profit, as defined in section 3664b-3, derived by the insurer from such marine insurance business written within the United States during the last preceding three calendar years, (2) ascertain the proportion which the average annual premiums of the insurer from such marine insurance written by it in this state during the last preceding three calendar years bears to the average total of such marine premiums of the insurer during the same three years, (3) compute an amount of five per centum on this proportion of the aforementioned average annual underwriting profit of the insurer from such marine insurance, and (4) report the amount of tax thus computed to the state board of equalization as hereinafter provided. The insurance commissioner shall each year compute the tax, according to the method described in this section, upon the average annual underwriting profit of such insurer from such marine insurance during the preceding three years, so that the computation of underwriting profit for purposes of taxation under this section will be on a three-year average, provided, however, that an insurer which has not been writing such marine insurance in this state for three years shall, until it has transacted such business in this state for that number of years, be taxed on the basis of its annual underwriting profit on such marine insurance written within the United States for the calendar year, subject, however, to an adjustment in the tax as soon as the insurance commissioner, in accordance with the provisions of this section, is enabled to compute the tax on the aforementioned three-year basis; and provided, further, that in the case of mutual companies, the insurance commissioner shall not include in underwriting profit, when computing the tax prescribed by this section, the amounts refunded by such companies on account of premiums previously paid by their policyholders.

The insurance commissioner must on or before the last day of April in each year, make and file with the state board of equalization, a report showing the amount of tax computed by him as payable by each insurer transacting the business of ocean marine insurance in this state, and the state board of equalization shall thereupon assess and levy said tax, so computed by the insurance commissioner, against said respective insurers within the time provided in section 3668 of the Political Code, and record the same as provided in section 3668a of said code, and said taxes shall be payable at the time and in the manner provided in section 3668b of said code, and said insurers shall be subject to, governed by, and entitled to the benefits provided under, the provisions of sections 3668 to and including section 3669e of the Political Code relative to the enforcement, collection and adjustment of state corporation taxes and all other matters in said sections contained in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of section 18 of article thirteen of the constitution, and sections 3664b-1 to and including section 3664b-4 of this code.

SEC. 5. This act, inasmuch as it provides for a tax levy, shall, under provisions of section 1 of article four of the constitution, take effect immediately.

SEC. 6. Interest. (b) All interest paid or accrued during the taxable year on indebtedness.

Taxes. (c) Taxes or licenses paid or accrued during the taxable year, other than taxes paid to the state under this act or under subdivision (d) of section 14 of article thirteen of the constitution of this state, and other than taxes on income or profits paid or accrued within the taxable year imposed by the authority of (1) any foreign country, (2) any state, territory, county, city and county, school district, municipality, or other taxing subdivision of any state or territory, and other than taxes assessed against local benefits of a kind tending to increase the value of the property assessed, but this shall not exclude the allowance as a deduction of so much of said taxes assessed against local benefits as is properly allocable to maintenance or interest charges; provided, however, that the deduction of real and personal property taxes shall be subject to the provisions of section 26 hereof; and provided, further, that the deduction allowed for federal income taxes shall be the amount of such taxes accrued during the taxable year but shall not exceed the amount which would constitute the federal income tax liability of the taxpayer if its net income subject to federal tax were reduced by the additional allowances permitted under the provisions of subsections (f) and (g) of this section and sections 19 and 20 hereof.

(d) Losses sustained during the taxable year and not compensated for by insurance or otherwise, except that such losses may, with the consent of the franchise tax commissioner, hereinafter designated "commissioner," be accounted for as of a different period. In the case of any loss claimed to have been sustained in any sale or other disposition of shares of stock or securities where it appears that within thirty days before or after the date of such sale or other disposition, the taxpayer has acquired (otherwise than by bequest or inheritance) or has entered into a contract or option to acquire substantially identical property and the property so acquired is held by the taxpayer for any period after such sale or other disposition, no deduction for the loss shall be allowed unless the claim is made by a taxpayer, a dealer in stocks or securities, and with respect to a transaction made in the ordinary course of its business. If such acquisition or the contract or option to acquire is to the extent of part only of substantially identical property, then only a proportionate part of the loss shall be disallowed. Upon the subsequent sale or disposition of shares of stock or securities, in respect of which a loss has been disallowed, the basis for measuring gain or loss in the case of the property so acquired shall be the basis in the case of the stock or securities so sold or disposed of, except that if the repurchase price was in excess of the sale price such basis shall be increased in the amount of the difference, or if the repurchase price was less than the sale price such basis be decreased in the amount of the difference.

Uncompensated losses.

(e) Debts ascertained to be worthless and charged off within the taxable year, or, in the discretion of the commissioner, a reasonable addition to a reserve for bad debts. When satisfied that a debt is recoverable in part only, the commissioner may allow such debt to be charged off in part. In the case of a debt existing on the date fixed by section 19 hereof for the ascertainment of a gain or loss on the part of the taxpayer, no more than its fair market value on that date shall be deducted.

Bad debts.

(f) Exhaustion, wear and tear and obsolescence of property to be allowed upon the basis provided in sections 113 and 114 of that certain act of the congress of the United States known as the "Revenue act of 1928," which is hereby referred to and incorporated with the same force and effect as though fully set forth herein, or upon the basis provided in section 19 hereof.

Depreciation

(g) In the case of mines, oil and gas wells, other natural deposits and timber, a reasonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation of improvements according to the peculiar conditions in each instance, such reasonable allowance in all cases to be made under the rules and regulations to be prescribed by the commissioner.

Depletion.

In the case of leases the deduction shall be equitably apportioned between the lessor and lessee.

The basis upon which depletion is to be allowed in respect of any property, except as hereinafter provided for oil and gas wells, shall be as provided in sections 113 and 114 of the said revenue act of 1928, or upon the basis provided in section 19 hereof.

In the case of mines discovered by the taxpayer after February 28, 1913, the basis for depletion shall be the fair market value of the property at the date of discovery or within thirty days thereafter, if such mines were not acquired as the result of purchase of a proven tract or lease, and if the fair market value of the property is materially disproportionate to the cost. The depletion allowance based on discovery value provided in this paragraph shall not exceed fifty per centum of the net income of the taxpayer (computed without allowance for depletion) from the property upon which the discovery was made except that in no case shall the depletion allowance be less than it would be if computed without reference to discovery value. Discoveries shall include minerals in commercial quantities contained within a vein or deposit discovered in an existing mine or mining tract by the taxpayer after February 28, 1913, if the vein or deposit thus discovered was not merely the uninterrupted extension of a continuing commercial vein or deposit already known to exist, and if the discovered minerals are of sufficient value and quantity that they could be separately mined and marketed at a profit.

In the case of oil and gas wells the allowance for depletion shall be twenty-seven and one-half per centum of the gross income from the property during the taxable year. Such allowance shall not exceed fifty per centum of the net income of the taxpayer (computed without allowance for depletion) from the property, except that in no case shall the depletion allowance be less than it would be if computed in the manner provided in sections 113 and 114 of said revenue act of 1928.

Dividends from income of intrastate business

(h) Dividends received during the taxable year from income arising out of business done in this state; but if the income out of which the dividends are declared is derived from business done within and without this state, then so much of the dividends shall be allowed as a deduction as the amount of the income from business done within this state bears to the total business done.

The burden shall be on the taxpayer to show that the amount of dividends claimed as a deduction has been received from income arising out of business done in this state.

Return paid by mutual building and loan associations

(i) In the case of a building and loan association, organized and operating wholly or partly on a mutual plan, the return paid or credited on or apportioned to the withdrawable shares of such association, but not exceeding the return such shares would receive computed at the average rate paid by all such associations in this state, or by such associations in a particular locality, as the building and loan commissioner of this state may determine, on money borrowed or obtained through the issue during the taxable year of the association of all classes of notes and investment certificates not evidencing any proprietary interest in the association, such rate to be determined by the building and loan commissioner and certified by him to the franchise tax commissioner on or before the first day of March of each year.

(j) In the case of a mutual savings bank, the entire amount of interest paid to depositors possessing no proprietary interest in the institution or in its surplus, and interest on their deposits to members possessing a proprietary interest in the institution or in its surplus at a rate determined by the state superintendent of banks to be the going rate of interest upon savings deposits in the state during the preceding calendar year, such rate to be certified by him to the commissioner on or before the first day of March of each year.

Interest paid by mutual savings banks

(k) In the case of farmers, fruit growers, or like associations organized and operated in whole or in part on a cooperative or a mutual basis, (a) for the purpose of marketing the products of members or other producers, and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary marketing expenses, which may include reasonable reserves, on the basis of either the quantity or the value of the products furnished by them, or (b) for the purpose of purchasing, or producing, supplies and equipment for the use of members or other persons, and turning over such supplies and equipment to them at actual cost, plus necessary expenses, all income resulting from or arising out of such business activities for or with their members carried on by them or by their agents; or when done on a non-profit basis for or with nonmembers.

Income of farmers' cooperatives

(l) In the case of other associations organized and operated in whole or in part on a cooperative or a mutual basis, all income resulting from or arising out of business activities for or with their members, or with nonmembers, done on a non-profit basis.

Income of other cooperatives

If any deduction provided for in this section is finally adjudged discriminatory against a national banking association contrary to section 5219 of the revised statutes of the United States, or is for any reason finally adjudged invalid, in that event the tax of the favored taxpayer shall be recomputed by the tax commissioner for the taxable year in question, as of the time of the allowance of the deduction, by disallowing the deduction, and any difference between the amount of the tax as recomputed and the amount of the tax as originally computed shall be subject to the provisions hereof relating to original computations.

Effect if deduction adjudged discriminatory.

Stats 1929. p 26

Sec. 14. In the case of two or more corporations or banks or of one or more banks and one or more corporations owned or controlled directly or indirectly by the same interests, the commissioner is authorized to distribute, apportion, or allocate gross income or deductions between or among such corporations.

Allocation of income or deductions among affiliated banks and corporations.

or banks, if he determines that such distribution, apportionment, or allocation is necessary in order to prevent evasion of taxes or clearly to reflect the income of any of such corporations or banks.

An affiliated group of banks or an affiliated group of corporations shall, subject to the provisions of this section, have the privilege of making a consolidated return for any taxable year in lieu of separate returns. In the case of a bank or corporation which is a member of the affiliated group for a fractional part of the year the consolidated return shall include the income of such bank or corporation for such part of the year as it is a member of the affiliated group. As used in this section an affiliated group means two or more banks or two or more corporations connected through stock ownership, in the case of a bank, with a common parent bank or in the case of a corporation with a common parent corporation, if at least ninety-five per centum of the stock of each of the banks or corporations, except the common parent bank or corporation, is owned directly by one or more of the other banks or corporations, as the case may be, and the common parent bank or corporation owns directly at least ninety-five per centum of the stock of at least one of the other banks or corporations, as the case may be; or if at least ninety-five per centum of the stock of each of the banks in the banking group, or of each of the corporations in the corporate group is owned by the same interests or by the same stockholders. As used in this section the term "stock" does not include nonvoting stock which is limited and preferred as to dividends.

SEC. 3. Section 13 of said act is hereby amended to read as follows:

Stats 1929, p 1555

Sec. 13. Every bank and corporation shall, within two months and fifteen days after the close of its taxable year, transmit to the commissioner a return in a form prescribed by him, specifying, for the taxable year, all such facts as he may by rule, or otherwise, require in order to carry out the provisions of this act.

Annual return

A bank which locates or commences to do business within the limits of this state, and a corporation which commences to do business in this state, after the effective date of this act, shall thereupon prepay the minimum tax hereunder, and upon the filing of its return within two months and fifteen days after the close of its taxable year its tax for that year shall be adjusted upon the basis of the net income received during that taxable year. Said return shall also, in accordance with sections 23 to 26 inclusive, be the basis for the tax of said bank or corporation for its second taxable year, except that in every case in which the first taxable year of a bank or corporation

Tax when commencing business constitutes a period of less than twelve months, the net income to be used as the measure of the tax for the second taxable year shall be in the same proportion to the net income for the first taxable year as the number of months in the second taxable year bears to the number of months covered by the return for the first taxable year, and in no case may the term "doing business" as defined in section 5 hereof be so construed as to enable a bank or corporation to pay a less amount of tax than it would be required to pay were the last clause of section 5 omitted therefrom.

Tax when dissolving or withdrawing from business

Any bank or corporation which is dissolved and any foreign corporation which withdraws from the state during any year shall pay a tax hereunder only for the months of its fiscal year which precede such dissolution or withdrawal, according to or measured by such proportionate part of the net income of the preceding taxable year as the number of months of the year prior to such dissolution or withdrawal bears to the entire preceding taxable year. In any event, each such corporation shall pay a minimum tax of twenty-five dollars for such period.

Tax when discontinuing business

If any bank or corporation discontinues actual operations within the state in any year and thereafter has no net income but does not dissolve or withdraw from the state, it shall in the succeeding year and thereafter until dissolution, withdrawal or resumption of operations, pay an annual tax to the state of twenty-five dollars.

(b) If the time for the payment of the tax or any installment thereof has been extended, under the provisions of section 23 of this act, there shall be collected as part of such tax, interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date upon which such payment should have been made if no extension had been granted, until the date the tax is paid.

(e) Where a deficiency, or any interest or penalties assessed under this act have not been paid in full within ten days from the date of notice and demand from the commissioner, there shall be collected as part of the tax, interest upon the unpaid amount at the rate of one per centum a month from the date of such notice and demand until such assessment is paid.

Such notice shall set forth the details of the proposed additional assessment and of computing said tax.

Determination of amount of tax.

If no such protest is so filed the amount of the tax shall be final upon the expiration of said sixty-day period. If a protest is so filed it shall be the duty of the commissioner to reconsider the computation and levy of the tax complained of, and if the taxpayer has so requested in its protest, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to grant said taxpayer, or its authorized representatives, an oral hearing. After consideration of the protest and the evidence adduced in the event of such oral hearing, the commissioner's action upon the protest shall be final upon the expiration of thirty days from the date when he mails to the taxpayer notice of his action, unless within that thirty-day period the taxpayer appeals in writing from the action of the commissioner to the state board of equalization. The appeal must be addressed and mailed to the state board of equalization at Sacramento, and a copy of the appeal addressed and mailed at the same time to the commissioner at Sacramento. The determination by said board upon said appeal of the amount of the tax shall be final, and said board shall forthwith notify the taxpayer and the commissioner of its determination.

Deficiency

When a deficiency has been determined and the tax has become final under the provisions of this section, the commissioner shall mail notice and demand to the taxpayer for the payment thereof, and such tax shall be due and payable at the expiration of ten days from the date of such notice and demand.

Certificate of mailing notices

A certificate by the commissioner or of said board as the case may be, of the mailing of the notices specified in this section shall be prima facie evidence of the computation and levy of the deficiency in tax and of the giving of said notices.

Time of mailing

Except in the case of a fraudulent return, every notice of additional tax proposed to be assessed hereunder shall be mailed to the taxpayer within one year after the return was filed and no deficiency shall be assessed or collected with respect to the year for which such return was filed unless such notice is mailed within such period, provided however that in the case of returns filed on or before June 1, 1930, notice of additional tax proposed to be assessed may be mailed at any time on or before June 1, 1931.

Refunds

If any tax or penalty has been paid more than once, or has been erroneously or illegally collected, or has been erroneously or illegally computed, the commissioner shall certify to the state board of control the amount collected in excess of what was legally due, from whom it was collected, or by whom paid, and if approved by that board, the same shall be refunded to the taxpayer, but no such refund shall be made in the case of overpayments made on or before June 1, 1930, unless a claim therefor is filed by the taxpayer with the commissioner on or before June 1, 1931, and in the case of overpayments made after June 1, 1930, unless such claim is filed within one year from the date of overpayment. The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 6a of chapter 218, statutes of 1921, entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation, and government of municipal utility districts, authorizing such districts to incur bonded indebtedness for the acquisition and construction of works and property, and to levy and collect taxes to pay the principal and interest thereon." as added by chapter 35, statutes of 1927, is hereby amended to read as follows. Stats 1927, p 47

Sec. 6a. Any municipality or county water district not included within the boundaries of said utility district at the time of its creation may be subsequently annexed thereto in the manner following: Annexation of municipality or county water district

The legislative bodies of such municipality or county water district shall agree in writing with the board of directors of Terms said utility district upon the terms and conditions of such annexation, which agreement (among other things) may provide for payment of special taxes within the municipality or county water district to be annexed, in addition to the taxes elsewhere in this act provided for, the fixing of rates, rentals and charges differing from those fixed or existing elsewhere within the utility district, the incurring or assumption of indebtedness or the making of a payment or payments, or the transfer of property, real and personal, and other assets to said utility district by the municipality or county water district proposed to be annexed. The corporate boundaries of the municipality or county water district to be annexed need not be coterminous with any election precincts. Such agreement shall become effective and be binding upon the utility district and the municipality or county water district to be annexed when approved in the manner hereinafter set forth.

Approval by utility district

(a) Approval by municipal utility district: The board of directors of said utility district shall by ordinance setting forth such agreement at length declare its intention of causing the same to be executed by said utility district. Said ordinance, together with a notice fixing the time and place for hearing thereon, shall be published once in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said utility district. The time fixed for such hearing shall be not less than thirty (30) nor more than sixty (60) days from the date of the first publication of said ordinance. At such hearing any person interested may file written objections to the execution of said agreement with the board of directors of the utility district. Upon such hearing the board of directors of the utility district shall determine whether or not said agreement shall be carried into execution and shall hear and determine all objections thereto. Failure of any person interested in said utility district or in the matter of the proposed execution of said agreement to show cause in writing as aforesaid, shall be deemed and taken as an assent on his part to a change in the boundaries of the utility district and to the execution of such agreement. Any such hearing may be adjourned from time to time by the board of directors without further notice other than an order to be entered upon the minutes of the meeting fixing the time and place of such adjournment. In the event no protests are filed or the protests filed are overruled and denied by the board of directors such board shall thereupon, by resolution, finally approve said agreement and authorize its execution, which shall become effective when executed by the other party thereto, duly authorized in the manner hereinafter provided. When so executed by the utility district the same shall be dated and an executed copy thereof filed with the secretary of said utility district, and an executed copy shall also be filed with the secretary or clerk of the municipality or county water district to be annexed.

(b) Approval by municipality or county water district to be annexed: At any time after the board of directors of the utility district has finally approved the agreement of annexation in the manner hereinabove set forth the legislative body of the municipality or county water district to be annexed shall cause an election to be held in said municipality or county water district to determine whether such municipality or county water district shall be annexed to said utility district upon the terms and conditions stated in said agreement. Notice of such election shall be published once a week for two weeks prior to the date fixed for said election, or posted at least two weeks in three public places in said municipality or county water district in the event no newspaper of general circulation is published therein. It shall not be necessary to set forth the terms and conditions of said agreement of annexation at length but the notice of said election shall state that a copy thereof is on file in the office of the secretary or clerk of the municipality or county water district proposed to be annexed, open to the inspection of all persons interested; provided, however, the legislative body of the municipality or county water district to be annexed may in its discretion set forth the terms and conditions of said agreement of annexation at length in said notice of election, but this requirement is not mandatory.

Approval by municipality or water district

Notice

The ballots for said election shall contain substantially the instructions required to be printed on ballots for use at general state and county elections and in addition thereto shall set forth the proposition of annexation substantially as follows:

Ballots

Shall the city of ----- (or the town of ----- or the ----- county water district) be annexed to ----- municipal utility district in accordance with and subject to all of the terms and conditions of an agreement of annexation dated ----- now on file in the office of the clerk (or secretary) of ----- (city, town or county water district)?	Yes
	No

Said election, in all matters pertaining thereto not otherwise provided for herein, shall be held and conducted and the result thereof ascertained, determined and declared in accordance with the general election laws of the state so far as the same may be applicable.

Conduct of election

If upon a canvass of such election it shall be found that a majority of all votes cast at said election were cast in favor of the annexation said proposition and all of the terms and conditions of said agreement of annexation shall be deemed to have been carried and approved by the electors; provided, however, that if the terms and conditions of said agreement of annexation provide for the assumption of any indebtedness

of said utility district by any municipality proposed to be annexed, said proposition of annexation shall not be deemed carried unless approved by the vote of two-thirds of all the voters voting at such election. If such proposition fails to carry the result thereof shall be entered upon the minutes of the governing body of such municipality or county water district. In the event said proposition receives the vote of the requisite majority of electors hereinabove set forth the governing body of said municipality or county water district shall enter in its minutes an order declaring the result of such election and shall thereupon cause the agreement of annexation to be executed by its duly authorized officers. Upon receipt by said utility district of a certified copy of said agreement of annexation properly executed by the municipal utility district and the municipality or county water district proposed to be annexed thereto the board of directors of said utility district shall pass a resolution declaring said municipality or county water district annexed to said utility district, and shall cause a certified copy of said resolution to be filed with the secretary of state of the State of California. From and after the date of filing of said resolution with the secretary of state the annexation of said municipality or county water district to said municipal utility district shall be complete.

Legal
continued

No such annexation or inclusion of any municipality or county water district to such utility district shall operate to dissolve or terminate the legal existence of the municipality or county water district so annexed, and such municipality or county water district shall, nevertheless, retain its corporate existence until otherwise dissolved pursuant to provisions of law now or hereafter enacted for that purpose.

Levy power of utility
board.

From and after the date of such annexation the board of directors of the municipal utility district shall be authorized and directed to levy upon all of the property in such municipality or county water district so annexed such taxes, tolls or charges as may be necessary in order to provide funds for the payment of the indebtedness assumed by such municipality or county water district or otherwise necessary to comply with the terms and conditions of said annexation agreement, all in addition to the general district taxes authorized elsewhere in this act to be levied and collected.

Urgency.

SEC. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall go into immediate effect. The following is a statement of facts constituting such urgency and necessity: Various county water districts and their inhabitants are now faced with impending water shortages, and the peace, health, safety and welfare of the citizens of this state residing therein are dependent upon the immediate acquisition of an adequate and pure water supply for their public and domestic requirements, which can only be secured from certain existing municipal utility districts. Said municipal utility districts are at present without authority to enter into appropriate arrangements for supplying said citizens and districts with water, but said amendment will enable municipal utility districts to provide for their public and domestic requirements and avert impending water shortages.

CHAPTER 70.

An act relating to the formation, organization and proceedings of bridge and highway districts; confirming the formation, organization and existence of such districts; establishing and validating the boundaries thereof; confirming the appointment of the members of the boards of directors of such districts and all acts and proceedings of such members heretofore had or taken; confirming and validating any and all acts and proceedings heretofore had or taken by such districts in connection with the issuance of bonds thereof and all bonds heretofore authorized or issued by such districts and authorizing such bonds to be sold and delivered; providing for the levy and collection of a tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest of any such bonds; and declaring this act to be an urgency measure.

[Approved by the Governor March 12, 1931 In effect immediately]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. All districts heretofore organized or attempted to be organized under the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of California entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and organization and management of bridge and highway districts and to provide for the acquisition and construction by said districts of highways, bridges and approaches thereto, and for the acquisition of all property necessary therefor, and also to provide for the issuance and payment of bonds by said districts, for the levying of taxes and the collection of tolls by said districts and for the annexation of additional territory thereto," approved May 25, 1923, as amended, and which have been declared to be duly incorporated, formed and organized by any certificate or purported certificate of incorporation issued by the secretary of state at any time prior to the adoption of this act, which have acted as such bridge and highway districts are hereby declared to have been legally and duly incorporated, formed and organized as of the respective dates the secretary of state issued such certificates of incorporation, and the incorporation of such bridge and highway district is hereby validated and confirmed. and such bridge and highway districts shall have all the rights and privileges and be subject to all of the duties and obligations of duly and regularly formed, established or incorporated bridge and highway districts.

Bonded.

SEC. 2. The boundaries of every such bridge and highway district, as the same were established or defined in the certificate of incorporation of such district now on file in the office of the secretary of state of the State of California, are hereby confirmed, validated and declared to be legally established, and every such bridge and highway district shall include and comprise all of the territory (whether contiguous or not contiguous) situated within the boundaries so designated and described in the certificate of incorporation of such district now on file in the office of the secretary of state of the State of California.

Boards of directors.

SEC. 3. The members of the respective boards of directors of every such bridge and highway district heretofore appointed by the respective boards of supervisors of each county or city and county situate in whole or in part within the boundaries of such districts, and now acting as such, are hereby declared to be the duly and legally appointed members of such boards of directors, and all such appointments are hereby confirmed, ratified and approved. All acts and proceedings of such boards of directors as now or heretofore constituted (and irrespective of the time, manner or method of appointment of the members of said boards or of the number of members so appointed) are hereby ratified, confirmed and approved with like force and effect as though each and every such director had been or was a duly and regularly appointed, qualified and acting member of the board of directors of such district at the time of any such action or proceeding by said board of directors or the adoption or passage of any resolution, order or ordinance thereof.

Bonds.

SEC. 4. In all cases where any such bridge and highway district has heretofore taken any proceedings for the purpose of authorizing, issuing or selling bonds of such district for any purpose or purposes for which bonds are authorized to be issued or sold and where an election has been called and held to vote upon a proposition of incurring such bonded indebtedness of such district and more than two-thirds of the votes cast at such election upon such proposition were favorable to the incurring of such indebtedness, all of the acts and proceedings of the board of directors and officers of such district, and all of the acts and proceedings of the boards of supervisors of the respective counties or cities and counties in which such district is situated, either in whole or in part, and all of the acts and proceedings of the county clerks and registrars of voters and other officers of such counties or cities and counties relating to the such election or issuance of such bonds, are hereby legalized, ratified, confirmed and validated to all intents and purposes; and all such acts and proceedings heretofore had, although the bonds authorized to be issued thereby are not now sold or delivered, are hereby legalized, ratified, confirmed and validated to all intents and purposes, and the power of such district and of the board of directors thereof to issue and sell said bonds is hereby ratified, confirmed and declared and said bonds, the proceedings for the issuance of which are hereby ratified, whenever hereafter sold in accordance with the provisions of said act, shall be the valid and legally binding obligations of and against said district.

SEC. 5. Both the principal and interest of said bonds shall be paid from an annual tax levied upon all the taxable property within such district in the manner and under the procedure prescribed in said act, and all of the taxable property within such district shall be and remain liable to taxation for the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds as herein and in said act provided; and for the purpose of paying the principal and interest of such bonds issued or to be issued, as it becomes due, the officers of such district and the boards of supervisors, clerks, assessors, treasurers, tax collectors and other officers of the respective counties or cities and counties within which said bridge and highway district is situated in whole or in part, shall have the powers and perform the duties provided by law relative to the assessment, levy and collection of taxes and custody of funds for the payment of the principal and interest of bonds of bridge and highway districts; provided, always, however, that the proceeds of sale of said bonds may be used for the payment of interest on said bonds to the extent authorized or permitted by said act, and any revenues of such bridge and highway districts may be applied to the extent to which the same are available to the payment of principal and/or interest of the bonded indebtedness of any such districts.

SEC. 6. This act shall not operate to legalize any bonds which mature more than forty (40) years from their date or dates or which will exceed the limitation of indebtedness prescribed by said act.

SEC. 7. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and it is deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety that this law shall go into immediate effect. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency: The population of this state and the traffic on the highways thereof are very rapidly increasing and in all probability will in the future continue to so increase. The facilities for transportation in this state are inadequate for the needs of the population thereof and such increased traffic, and it is essential that such facilities be immediately increased and improved by the construction of bridges and other works by bridge and highway districts; and unless such bridges are constructed in the near future the public health and safety will be endangered due to congestion of traffic on existing roads and highways in said state. Moreover, there are at the present time a large number of persons in the State of California who are unemployed and who are without means of livelihood. The construction of bridges and other works by bridge and highway districts of this state will furnish work for a large number of such persons and prevent them from becoming public charges. If the provisions of this act become a law immediately, the sale by such bridge and highway districts of their securities will be furthered, and they will thereby be enabled to obtain without delay the necessary funds for the construction of such bridges and works, and for the employment of a large number of persons hereinabove mentioned who are now without employment, and said districts will also be materially aided in securing bids from contractors and others for the construction of such bridges and works and for the supplying of materials therefor.

CHAPTER 71.

An act to provide for bridges across navigable streams, and across estuaries, ponds, swamps, or arms of bay that may be outside of the line of navigable waters.

[Approved by the Governor March 25, 1931 In effect immediately.]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

Power of county supervisors to erect bridges

SECTION 1. The power to erect free public bridges on public county highways across navigable streams in this state, is hereby granted to the board of supervisors of the several counties of the state under the restrictions of this act. Where a navigable stream is the boundary line between the counties, the board of supervisors of such counties may join in the construction of a free public bridge upon such terms as may be agreed upon; provided, however, that in case of failure to agree, either county may build a bridge and maintain control thereof.

Declaration of necessity

SEC. 2. The board of supervisors, or other governing body of any city and county, or county in this state shall be empowered to declare that it is necessary for the public convenience to have a bridge or bridges built across any swamp, navigable estuary, pond, or arm of bay, that may lie or extend

Location

into the county, or city and county, and prescribe the point between which said bridge or bridges shall be built, and when they shall have specified the point between which it is in their judgment necessary to build the said bridge or bridges, they may let contracts to build the bridges as aforesaid, and pay for the same out of the general fund of the city and county, or county. All bridges constructed under the provisions of

Contracts

Tolls prohibited

this act, shall be free public bridges, and no tolls shall ever be charged for crossing the same

With relation to each other the provisions of this act and of the act approved June 10, 1929, chapter 763, statutes of 1929, creating the California toll bridge authority shall be construed together, and if the provisions hereof conflict with or contravene the provisions of said act of 1929, the provisions of the act of 1929 must prevail, and any and all things done under the provisions of this act shall be done not only in conformity to and in compliance with the requirements hereof but also in conformity to and in compliance with applicable requirements of said act of 1929. Nothing in this act shall be construed as limiting or affecting the acquisition or construction of bridges upon state highways and over navigable streams, swamps, navigable estuaries, ponds, or arms of bay by the department of public works of the State of California.

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of facts constituting such urgency: The boards of supervisors of the respective counties have no authority to erect the bridges herein referred to, and it is necessary for the public peace, health and safety that such bridges be constructed immediately.

Urgency

Under the present provisions of the law there exists in several parts of the state wholly inadequate bridge facilities—their condition is needful of immediate remedy and requires action on behalf of the county boards of supervisors to take such steps as provided in this act as will immediately correct that condition.

CHAPTER 72.

An act to amend chapter 592, statutes of 1913, entitled "An act to provide for the incorporation and organization and management of county water districts, and to provide for the acquisition of water rights or construction thereby of water works and for the acquisition of all property necessary therefor, and also to provide for the distribution and sale of water by said districts," approved June 10, 1913, by amending section 2 of said act relative to the formation of districts organized thereunder and by amending sections 20 and 21 of said act relative to the levy and collection of taxes in such districts.

Sec. 2. The people of any county, or city and county, or portion of a county, or city and county, whether such portion includes unincorporated territory or not, in the State of California, having a population of not less than three hundred inhabitants, may organize a county water district under the provisions of this act by proceeding as herein provided.

Stats 1913,

SEC. 2. Section 20 of said act is hereby amended to read as follows:

Rates

Sec. 20. The board of directors in the furnishing of water shall fix such rate as will pay the operating expenses of the district, provide for repairs and depreciation of works owned or operated by it, pay the interest on any bonded debt, and, so far as possible, provide a sinking or other fund for the payment of the principal of such debt as it may become due; it being the intention of this section to require the district to pay the interest and principal of its bonded debt from the revenues of the district. Provided, however, that if any district shall have heretofore or hereafter issued any bonds for the purpose of storing water for the benefit of the district or conserving water for future use or appropriating, acquiring or conserving water and water rights for any useful purpose, or to prevent interference with or diminution of the natural flow of any stream or natural subterranean supply of water used or useful for any purposes of the district or for a common benefit to the lands within the district or its inhabitants, then such district shall, so long as bonds remain outstanding and prior to the time that the district shall receive any operating revenues from the sale of such water, levy and cause to be levied in the manner hereinafter provided a tax each year until said bonds are paid, or until there shall be a sum in the treasury of said district set apart for that purpose to meet all sums coming due for principal and interest on such bonds, a tax sufficient to pay the annual interest on such bonds and also such part of the principal thereof as shall become due before the time for fixing the next general county tax levy; provided, further, that if the maturity of the indebtedness created by such issue of bonds be made to begin more than one year after the date of issuance of such bonds, such tax shall be levied and collected at the time and in the manner hereinafter provided, annually each year sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due and also to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof on or before maturity.

SEC 3 Section 21 of said act is hereby amended to read as follows:

Taxes when

Sec. 21. If, from any cause, the revenues of the water district shall be, or in the judgment of the board of directors are likely to be, inadequate to pay the interest on or principal of any bonded debt as it becomes due, or any other expenses or claims against the district, then the board of directors must, at least fifteen (15) days before the first day of the month in which the board of supervisors of the county or city and county in which such district is located is required by law to levy the amount of taxes required for county or city and county purposes, furnish to the board of supervisors and to the auditor, respectively, an estimate in writing of the minimum amount of money required by the district for the payment of the principal of or interest on any bonded debt as it becomes due, or which, in the judgment of the board of directors, will be required by such district for the payment of such principal or interest as aforesaid, together with a description of the portion of the district benefited thereby, as stated by the board of directors in the resolution declaring the necessity to incur such bonded indebtedness, and also of the minimum amount of money required by the district for any other purpose in this section set forth, and the board of supervisors of such county or city and county must annually, at the time and in the manner of levying other county or city and county taxes and until any such bonded debt is fully paid, levy upon the property within the portion of the district so benefited and cause to be collected, a tax sufficient for the payment of the principal of and interest on such bonded indebtedness to be known as the "----- county water district bond tax"; and until all other expenses or claims are fully paid, levy upon all of the property within the district and cause to be collected a tax sufficient for the payment thereof to be known as the "----- county water district water tax." Where with relation to any such bonded indebtedness, the determination of the board of directors as expressed in its resolution shall have been to the effect that the whole of the said district was benefited by the purpose thereof, it will be sufficient for the purpose of this section to simply state that the whole of the district was so benefited.

CHAPTER 73.

An act to validate all proceedings for the issuance of bonds and all bonds heretofore issued or sold or to be issued or sold by any county water district, providing for the application of the proceeds of sale of such bonds and authorizing and directing the levy and collection of a tax sufficient to pay the principal and interest thereof.

[Approved by the Governor March 25, 1931. In effect August 14, 1931.]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

proceeds

SEC. 2 The proceeds of the sale of any such bonds, whether heretofore sold or hereafter sold and delivered, may be applied by the board of directors of any such district in the manner now or hereafter provided by law for the purpose of carrying out in any manner the general purposes for which such district was organized, and notwithstanding that the method of application of such proceeds was not expressly authorized by law at the time of the calling or holding of the election at which such bonds were authorized to be issued.

Taxes

[Approved by the Governor March 25, 1931 In effect August 14, 1931]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

Stats 1927,
p 49

SECTION 1. Section 6b of chapter 218, statutes of 1921, entitled "An act to provide for the organization, incorporation, and government of municipal utility districts, authorizing such districts to incur bonded indebtedness for the acquisition and construction of works and property, and to levy and collect taxes to pay the principal and interest thereon," as added by chapter 35, statutes of 1927, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Annexation of unincorporated territory

Sec. 6b. Unincorporated territory may be annexed to said district in the manner following:

Petition

A petition, signed by not less than fifteen per cent of the qualified electors residing in the territory proposed to be annexed; provided, however, that not more than one hundred signatures shall be required, describing said territory and asking that proceedings be taken for its annexation, shall be addressed to the board of directors and filed with the secretary of the district. Thereupon the secretary shall compare the signatures on said petition with the affidavits of registration on file with the county clerk and if he finds that said petition has been signed by the required number of electors, he shall attach his signature thereto and present said petition to the board of directors.

Terms

If the board of directors shall determine that the annexation of said territory would facilitate the acquisition or operation of any public utility for the district, or be of advantage to the said district, then said board shall also determine the terms and conditions upon which said annexation should be made. Provision may be made (among other things) for payment of special taxes within the territory to be annexed, in addition to the taxes elsewhere in this act provided for, the fixing of rates, rentals and charges differing from those fixed or existing elsewhere within the utility district, the incurring or assumption of indebtedness or the making of a payment or payments, or the transfer of property, real and personal, and other assets to said utility district by the territory proposed to be annexed. The boundaries of the territory proposed to be annexed need not be coterminous with any election precincts. Such terms and conditions shall become effective and be binding upon the utility district and the territory to be annexed when approved in the manner hereinafter set forth.

(a) Approval by municipal utility district: The board of directors of said utility district shall by ordinance setting forth such terms and conditions at length declare its intention of causing the same to be approved by said utility district. Said ordinance, together with a notice fixing the time and place for hearing thereon, shall be published once in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in said utility district. A copy of said ordinance shall be filed with the secretary of said utility district. The time fixed for such hearing shall not be less than thirty (30) nor more than sixty (60) days from the date of the first publication of said ordinance. At such hearing any person interested may file written objections to the approval of such terms and conditions with the board of directors of the utility district. Upon such hearing the board of directors of the utility district shall determine whether or not said terms and conditions shall be approved and shall hear and determine all objections thereto. Failure of any person interested in said utility district or in the matter of the proposed annexation on the terms and conditions set forth in said ordinance to show cause in writing as aforesaid shall be deemed and taken as an assent on his part to a change in the boundaries of the utility district upon the terms and conditions set forth. Any such hearing may be adjourned from time to time by the board of directors without further notice other than an order to be entered upon the minutes of the meeting fixing the time and place of such adjournment. In the event no protests are filed or the protests filed are overruled and denied by the board of directors such board shall thereupon, by resolution, finally approve said terms and conditions and proceed with the annexation of said territory in the manner hereinafter provided.

(b) Approval by territory to be annexed: At any time after the board of directors of the utility district has finally approved the terms and conditions of annexation in the manner hereinabove set forth the said board of directors shall cause an election to be held in said territory to determine whether such territory shall be annexed to said utility district upon the terms and conditions stated in said ordinance. Notice of such election shall be published once a week for two weeks prior to the date fixed for said election, or posted at least two weeks in three public places in said territory in the event no newspaper of general circulation is published therein. It shall not be necessary to set forth the terms and conditions of said annexation at length but the notice of said election shall state that a copy of said ordinance containing such terms and conditions is on file in the office of the secretary of the municipal utility district, open to the inspection of all persons interested; provided, however, the board of directors of the utility district may in its discretion set forth the terms and conditions of annexation at length in said notice of election, but this requirement is not mandatory.

Ballots

The ballots for said election shall contain substantially the instructions required to be printed on ballots for use at general state and county elections and in addition thereto shall set forth the proposition of annexation substantially as follows:

Shall the territory described in the petition filed with the secretary of the ----- municipal utility district on the ----- day of ----- be annexed to said utility district in accordance with and subject to all of the terms and conditions set forth in that certain ordinance passed by the board of directors of said municipal utility district on the ----- day of -----, a copy of which is now on file in the office of the secretary of said municipal utility district?	Yes

Conduct of election

Said election, in all matters pertaining thereto not otherwise provided for herein, shall be held and conducted and the result thereof ascertained, determined and declared in accordance with the general election laws of the state so far as the same may be applicable.

Result

If upon a canvass of such election it shall be found that a majority of all votes cast at said election were cast in favor of the annexation, said proposition and all of the terms and conditions set forth in said ordinance shall be deemed to have been carried and approved by the electors. If such proposition fails to carry, the result thereof shall be entered upon the minutes of the directors of said municipal utility district. In the event said proposition receives the vote of the requisite majority of electors hereinabove set forth the board of directors of said municipal utility district shall pass a resolution declaring said territory annexed to said district, and shall cause a certified copy of said resolution to be filed with the secretary of state of the State of California, from and after the date of which filing with the secretary of state the annexation of said territory to said district shall be complete.

From and after the date of such annexation the board of directors of the municipal utility district shall be authorized and directed to levy upon all of the property in the territory so annexed such taxes, tolls or charges as may be necessary in order to provide funds for the payment of the indebtedness assumed by such territory or otherwise necessary to comply with the terms and conditions of said annexation, all in addition to the general district taxes authorized elsewhere in this act to be levied and collected.

trucks, wagons, boats, barges, or other facilities operated by such distributor in this state shall for the purposes of this act be considered in the same manner and the same license tax shall be paid upon such motor vehicle fuel as though the same had been sold and delivered by such distributor; provided, that the amount of motor vehicle fuel distributed during any calendar month to any such agency, tank truck, wagon, boat, barge, or other facility operated by the distributor is hereby defined to mean the amount thereof thereafter found to have been sold and delivered therefrom during such month plus one-ninety-ninth thereof but excluding therefrom deliveries to service stations operated by such distributor.

All export certificates must be completed and on file in the principal office of the distributor in this state within forty-five days after the close of the calendar month in which the shipments to which they relate are made, and no certificate not completed and filed within such period shall be recognized for any purpose by the State of California or any agency thereof. Out of the gross amount deposited in said "Motor vehicle fuel fund" the state treasurer shall transfer, upon order of the controller, the amounts heretofore or hereafter appropriated by the Legislature for the support of the fuel tax division of the state board of equalization into the "Fuel tax enforcement fund," which fund is hereby created; provided, however, that before ordering the transfer of the amounts so appropriated the controller shall offset against said amount the amount of the registration fees credited to said "Fuel tax enforcement fund" under section 2 of this act during the biennial period next preceding the period for which said appropriations are made. The amounts so transferred by the controller into said "Fuel tax enforcement fund," together with the amount of the registration fees credited to said fund under section 2 of this act, shall be used by the state board of equalization to pay the expenses of the enforcement of the duties of said board under this act, such moneys to be available to the state board of equalization on warrants drawn by the controller upon demands made by said board and allowed and audited as provided by the rules of the state board of control. The payments to the counties shall be based upon the number of vehicles registered in each of the counties as determined by the places of residence of the owners to whom the registration certificates for such vehicles have been issued by the state during the current year, and it is hereby made the duty of the motor vehicle department to furnish to the state controller a record of the number of such registrations by counties.

Appropriation to counties

Basis of appropriation

Out of said appropriation each county shall first be paid five thousand dollars for each quarter of a year for the first three thousand five hundred registrations or fraction of three thousand five hundred if the county has less than three thousand five hundred registrations. The balance remaining in said appropriation, after making such apportionment of five thousand dollars quarterly for the first three thousand five hundred registrations or fraction thereof, shall be apportioned to those counties having a registration greater than three thousand five hundred, in the proportion that the registration greater than three thousand five hundred registrations in each of such counties bears to the total number of registrations above three thousand five hundred in all such counties. All such amounts so paid to the several counties shall be paid into a special road improvement fund. Such fund shall be expended by the county receiving it exclusively in the construction and maintenance of roads, bridges and culverts in each such county. In the event that any such county has not established such a road fund, its proportion of such fund

In the months of January, April, July and October of each year, the controller shall ascertain the gross amounts received and the net receipts remaining after the payment of the refunds for which provision is made in section 11 of this act during the preceding three months, and thereupon the controller shall draw his warrant upon the "Motor vehicle fuel fund" in favor of each county in the state for the amount to which each such county is entitled. The controller shall not draw such warrant in favor of any county which shall not have established such a road fund as is herein required or which shall be delinquent in its annual report to the state department of public works as hereinafter required.

The board of supervisors of each county shall make an annual report to the state department of public works not later than three months after the close of the county's fiscal year upon forms to be provided by such department, showing the amount of moneys received from the "Motor vehicle fuel fund" during the preceding fiscal year and the disposition of said moneys, giving such details as to the disposition of said moneys as may be required by said department. Whenever such report shall not have been duly filed in the manner and form herein provided for at or before the time herein specified, the state controller shall not draw his warrant in favor of the treasurer of such county until said report has been filed.

The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

On February fourteenth of this year, the state supreme court handed down a decision in the case of Swenson et al. vs Engelke et al., the effect of which is to nullify that portion of section 634 of the Penal Code which is designed to give protection to salmon in the ocean fish and game districts on the coast of California during certain closed seasons. The present law intended to provide a closed season of eight and one-half months during which time it would be unlawful to take or possess salmon in the ocean districts of the state. The greatest destruction to small and immature salmon is caused by fishing during this closed time and it was for the purpose of preventing this great destruction that the closed seasons were imposed.

The decision was made strictly on an interpretation of the statute, it being the judgment of the court that the present statute does not prohibit the possession of salmon in these closed districts which have been caught on the high seas beyond the jurisdiction of the state. It is impossible to enforce the closed term in these districts unless the possession of salmon is at the same time prohibited. Therefore, as a result of this decision, there is no closed season in these districts and great destruction to salmon, which are desperately in need of this protection, will result.

There is one exception to this statement, however, in the case of Monterey bay, which is one of the most important salmon trolling regions. The bay of Monterey and three miles beyond are within the jurisdiction of the state and as practically all the commercial salmon trolling is here carried on within this area, the present closed seasons can be fairly well enforced, a condition which does not exist in the other trolling areas of the state, where much of the trolling is carried on on the high seas outside the three mile limit and where the laws can not be enforced to any great extent within the three mile limit, thus bringing about a condition which discriminates against the Monterey and Santa Cruz fishermen and places them at a great disadvantage.

It so happens that the present open season of three and one-half months for the Monterey bay area is not the right season in that it opens too late to enable the fishermen to catch the fish which are mature, and for that reason their fishing is in a large part unprofitable and covers a time during which the destruction to small salmon is excessive.

The Monterey fishermen have just passed through a disastrous sardine season and many of them are so greatly in need of profitable employment that a serious emergency exists. The present urgency measure is designed to fix the open season for the Monterey bay region at the proper time and for this present year to open it on March fifteenth to relieve the distress now existing among these fishermen.

The bill, if passed as an emergency measure, also will prevent the excessive destruction of immature salmon both at Monterey and in the districts to the north and will enable the officers of the state to enforce the laws without the dissatisfaction and probable resistance on the part of the fishermen. There are over one thousand commercial fishermen affected.

An act concerning the completion of unfinished public buildings now in process of construction by this state, permitting alterations of and additions to the original plans for the construction thereof, and permitting the execution of contracts for the construction thereof and for the purchase of materials for use therein without publishing notice of such work and without calling for or receiving bids therefor, declaring the urgency thereof and providing that this act shall take effect immediately.

[Approved by the Governor April 9, 1931. In effect immediately]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. If, in the case of a public building of the State of California which is unfinished and in process of construction at the time this act takes effect, and in respect to which, after the adoption of plans therefor, the plans were modified by omitting a portion of the building and a contract, or contracts were let for the construction of only a portion of the building as contemplated in the original plans, and subsequently and heretofore additional moneys have been appropriated by the state for the completion, construction, furnishing or equipping thereof, the state director of public works with the approval of the director of finance shall, if in his judgment the public good require, proceed with the completion of the construction of the building in accordance with the plans as originally adopted, including the construction of such omitted portion or such part of said portion as shall be designated by him. And in furtherance thereof he shall have power to let and to enter into contracts for the construction and completion in whole or in part of said portion or portions, or for the purchase of materials for use in said building in accordance with such original plans, or as they may be altered or modified by him, without publishing notice of such work or calling for or receiving bids therefor. When any such public building or buildings shall have been completed in accordance with such plans as so altered, modified or restored, such building or buildings shall be deemed to have been completed.

Urgency

Sec. 2. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety within the meaning of section 10, article four of the constitution of California and shall take effect immediately.

The facts constituting such necessity are as follows:

The state originally drew plans for the construction of a state building at Los Angeles. However, owing to a lack of sufficient funds, a portion of the building, known as wings, was temporarily omitted from the original plans and contracts were let for the construction of the main portion of the building, with the intention that subsequently and as soon as funds should become available therefor said wings would be added to the building. Subsequently, and heretofore, a sum in excess of six hundred thousand dollars has been appropriated for the construction and completion of the building, including said wings, in accordance with the original plans.

Inasmuch as the building is in course of construction, a saving of approximately two hundred thousand dollars to the state can be effected if the state can at once proceed with the completion of the entire building in accordance with the original plans, as is authorized by this act, a saving which can not be effected if such work of completion is delayed by following the procedure prescribed therefor by existing provisions of law or if this act does not take effect immediately.

An act to amend sections 52 and 67 of the California irrigation district act, relating to the redemption or purchase of bonds and payment of interest, and to the creation of funds, and declaring the urgency thereof.

[Approved by the Governor April 10, 1931. In effect immediately]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

Stats 1919,
p 667

SECTION 1. Section 52 of the California irrigation district act is hereby amended to read as follows:

Redemption of bonds

Sec. 52. Upon presentation of any matured bond of the district, the treasurer shall pay the same from the bond principal fund, and upon presentation of any matured interest coupon of any bond of the district, the treasurer shall pay the same from the bond interest fund. If money is not available in the fund designated for the payment of any such matured bond or interest coupon, it shall draw interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum from the date of its presentation for payment until notice is given that funds are available for its payment, and it shall be stamped and provision made for its payment as in the case of a warrant for the payment of which funds are not available on its presentation.

Whenever there is in any fund of the district money in excess of that required for the purposes of such fund up to the time when any part of the next annual assessment levied in the district will become delinquent, the board of directors of the district may purchase with such surplus money, or any part thereof, any of its bonds not then due, and may cancel the bonds so purchased or hold the same as a part of its assets until such time as the board may determine that it is for the best interests of the district that such bonds or any of them be sold, or shall cancel the same at their date of maturity.

Investment
of surplus

SEC. 2. Section 67 of said act is hereby amended to read as follows: Stats 1897,
p 276

Sec. 67. The following funds are hereby created and established, to which the moneys properly belonging shall be apportioned, to wit: bond principal fund, bond interest fund, construction fund, general fund. Funds created

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure, deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and as such it shall take effect immediately. Urgency

The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency:

Under the continuance of the conditions brought on by the agricultural depression many irrigation districts in this state have experienced an increased delinquency in the payment of assessments, which has brought about the necessity for an eventual refunding of their bonded obligations. Under the law as it at present exists a bond fund of an irrigation district may be exhausted by the presentation of maturing bonds, whereas the fund was created by the assessment for paying both principal and interest. This situation has brought about a condition in some of these districts where the land owner, unable to meet the full obligation of principal and interest and seeing himself in a complete default with danger of losing his home and lands, refuses to pay any of the assessment levied upon his land. This brings about a condition of breakdown in the functioning of the district, with the failure to supply water for domestic, irrigation and other purposes, detrimental in the extreme to the peace, health and safety of the communities involved. It is believed that through the passage of this bill before the semiannual period for payment of interest, on July 1st, districts will be enabled to continue their efforts toward refinancing without a breakdown of their functions as irrigation districts.

p 191

SECTION 1. Section 2640 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

Opening or improving road

2640. Whenever it is determined by a four-fifths vote of the board of supervisors of any county that the public convenience and necessity demand the acquisition or construction of a new road or the grading, regrading, paving, macadamizing, surfacing, repairing or maintaining of any existing road, and that the cost of such new road when acquired and constructed, or the cost of grading, regrading, paving, macadamizing, surfacing, repairing or maintaining such existing road, is too great to pay out of the road fund of the district, the board of supervisors may, by resolution passed by a four-fifths vote of said board determine to acquire or construct such new road, or grade, or regrade, pave, macadamize, surface, repair or maintain such existing road, and charge the cost thereof to the general county fund, the general road fund or the district fund of the district or districts benefited.

Whenever it shall be determined that any grading, gravel-^{Plans.} ing, macadamizing, ditching, sprinkling or other work upon any highway is necessary, the estimated cost of which exceeds the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000), the board of supervisors must order definite surveys of the proposed work made and direct the preparation of profiles, cross-sections, plans and specifications.

At the time specified in said notice, the board of supervisors shall publicly open the bids received and shall award the contract for the work to the lowest responsible bidder; unless it shall appear to the board that the bids are too high, and the work can be done more cheaply by day labor, in which case the bids must be rejected and the work ordered done by the road commissioner or commissioners in whose district or districts the work may be situated; provided, however, that said board may reject all bids and readvertise; provided, further, that if the estimated cost of the work to be done is less than two thousand dollars, the board of supervisors may let a contract for the said work without calling for bids as hereinbefore provided, or may purchase the materials and do the work by day labor.

Provided, however, that in those counties employing a com-<sup>Road commissioner</sup> petent engineer as road commissioner, the board of supervisors may have any work to be done upon highways of the county done under the supervision and direction of said engineer, either

1. By letting a contract, in which event it must be let to the lowest responsible bidder as hereinbefore provided;

2. By purchasing the material and letting a contract for the doing of the work; or

3. By purchasing the material and having the work done by day labor.

SECTION 1. Section 1 of chapter 426, statutes of 1915, entitled "An act to insure the better education of dental sur-

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to engage ^{Dentist's license} in the practice of dentistry in the State of California unless such person shall have obtained a license from the board of dental examiners of the State of California, as hereinafter provided, except that the license of any dentist, existing at the time of the passage of this act shall continue in force until forfeited in the manner hereinafter provided and the annual fee paid by any such dentist under the terms of the laws of the State of California existing at the time of the passage of this act shall keep such license in force until the expiration of the time for which the same was paid, and thereafter the holder of such license shall be subject to the annual fee in this act provided. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to exempt from the payment of the annual fee any person authorized to practice dentistry in the State of California, and every person practicing dentistry in this state shall, irrespective of the time when he was licensed or first had the right to lawfully practise dentistry in this state or elsewhere, pay an annual fee of five dollars as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. Section 9 of chapter 426, statutes of 1915, as ^{Stats 1929, p 1944} amended by chapter 878, statutes of 1929, is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 9. Before any person can practice dentistry in this ^{Application fee} state, he shall obtain a license to do so from the board of dental examiners. Each application for license shall be accompanied by a fee of twenty-five dollars; provided, that the fee shall be fifty dollars for applicants presenting credentials of graduation from dental schools other than in California, which shall in no case be refunded, except that in the case of applicants requiring examination the said fee shall be refunded if the applicant shall be found ineligible to take such examination. Such license shall remain in force until the following first day of May and thereafter so long as the holder thereof shall comply with the provisions of this section relating to an annual fee but not otherwise, and notwithstanding the payment of such fee such license may at any time be forfeited or revoked for a violation of the further requirements of this act. To provide a fund for the enforcement of ^{Annual license fee.} the provisions of this act every person holding a license to practice dentistry in this state without exception shall pay an annual license fee for the year commencing with the first day of May next following the issuance of such license and annually thereafter. Such payment to be effective shall be made prior to the commencement of the year for which the same accrues and the receipt of the secretary of the board shall be indispensable evidence that the same has been made. The annual license fee shall be five dollars but the board may reduce said fee to not less than three dollars. The failure, neglect or refusal of any person who was a regularly licensed dentist to pay in advance said annual fee during the time his or her license remained in force shall ipso facto work a forfeiture of his or her license, and it shall not be restored except upon a written application therefor and the payment to said board of ten dollars, except that such person shall not be required to submit to any examination.

Urgency.

SEC. 3. Inasmuch as this act concerns and is necessary to the immediate preservation of the public health and safety, for the reason that it is imperative, at the earliest possible date, to provide adequate funds for the functioning of the board of dental examiners of California, the present funds being nearly depleted, and the existing rate of annual fee for that purpose being inadequate, the rate in this act fixed, if made effective prior to May 1, 1931, will make possible the accomplishment of the intended object, this act shall take effect immediately.

[Approved by the Governor April 16, 1931. In effect August 14, 1931]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 35 of the California irrigation district act is hereby amended to read as follows: Stats 1917. p 764

Sec. 35. The assessor must, between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in June, in each year, assess all land in the district, which shall include city and town lots, to the persons who own, claim or have possession or control thereof, at its full cash value, as follows: He must prepare an assessment book with appropriate headings, in which must be listed all such property within the district, giving: (1) the name of the person to whom the property is assessed, and if the name is not known to the assessor, the property shall be assessed to "unknown owners"; (2) a description of the land sufficient to identify it, with an estimate of the number of acres, except in the case of city or town lots; (3) the cash value of the land. A column or columns with the headings "Lot" and "Block" or either of them may be provided for the designation of the lots and blocks, or either of them, in any city or town or recorded subdivision. If any land in the district is subject to a different rate of assessment from the other lands in the district it shall be separately designated and described. Said book shall also contain a column for showing the valuations after equalization by the board of directors, and shall be arranged to show such other facts as the board of directors may require. Improvements on any land within the districts shall be exempt from assessment for any of the purposes mentioned in this act. The term improvements as used in this section includes trees, vines, alfalfa and all growing crops and all buildings and structures of whatever class or description. Duty of assessor Assessment book.

SEC 2 A new section is hereby added to said act, to be numbered 35b to read as follows: New section

Sec. 35b. Any land which may have escaped the payment of any assessment, whether because of the omission of the land from the assessment book or because of illegality in the levying thereof or any proceedings relating thereto, shall, in addition to its assessment for the then current year, be entered in the assessment book by the assessor at the valuation which he may deem proper for the year of the escaped assessment. Such additional assessment shall be subject to equalization as is provided in this act for the current assessment, and at the Omitted assessments time of levying the assessment for the current year the board of directors of the district shall levy on said land an assessment at the rate fixed in the year of the escaped assessment, or, if no rate was legally fixed in that year, the board shall levy an assessment on said land at the rate which should have been computed in that year to raise the amount of money then required by the district. Any such additional assessment shall be payable at the same time or times as the current assessment, and if not paid, shall be subject to like penalties and proceedings to enforce its collection.

New section

SEC. 3. A new section is hereby added to said act, to be numbered 35c and to read as follows:

Assessments.
special rate

Sec. 35c. Anyone having an interest in any land within the district may file with the secretary of the board of directors a verified petition, alleging that said land, or some described portion thereof, was, when it became a part of the district, irrigated from another system of works than the works of or proposed for the district and has continued ever since to be exclusively so irrigated and is entitled to a special rate of assessment, and praying the board to determine what proportion or part of the regular rates of assessment in the district should be used in levying assessments on the land described in the petition. The board shall set a time and place for the hearing of said petition, or of all of the petitions so filed if more than one has been filed, and shall cause notice thereof to be given in a newspaper published in the county wherein the office of the district is located. The notice shall state that a petition has been, or petitions have been presented to the board praying for a determination that certain lands described therein, but which need not be described in the notice, are entitled to a special rate or rates of assessment and giving the names of the petitioner, or petitioners, and the time and place set for the hearing. The board shall meet at the time and place so set and proceed in such order as it may deem proper, to hear the petition or petitions and shall hear all competent and relevant evidence offered in support of any petition or in opposition thereto, and may adjourn the hearing from time to time. A fee of ten dollars must be paid to the secretary before the filing of any such petition, and the money shall be applied to the cost of the publication of the notice and other expenses of the hearing. If there shall be any balance after the conclusion of the hearing, it shall be returned to the petitioner or divided among the petitioners contributing thereto in proportion to the respective areas described in their petitions. After the conclusion of the hearing, if the board shall find that any of the land described in any petition or petitions has been irrigated as alleged and is not and will not be so benefited by the operations of the district as to justify its assessment at the same rate as other lands in the district not so irrigated, which rate may be referred to as the regular rate of assessment, the board shall, in an order or resolution which shall be entered in full upon its minutes, describe the land entitled to a special rate of assessment, or the respective parcels thereof if separate parcels are to be assessed, and shall determine and fix the proportion or part of the regular rate of assessment which shall be applied in levying assessments on said land, or on each parcel thereof if various parcels are found to be entitled to different special rates, in order that the assessments to be levied on said land may be in accordance with the benefits which it receives or will receive from the operations of the district. If the board shall determine that any land is entitled to a special rate of assessment, a certified copy of the order or resolution so determining shall be delivered to the assessor, and thereafter, until notified of a change in such determination, he shall enter the land described therein separately in the assessment book and so designate it that it may readily be distinguished from other land not entitled to a special rate. If such a determination is made in any year too late for the land to be separately described in the assessment book, but before the annual assessment has been levied, the board shall direct the secretary to make such entries in the assessment book as will enable him to compute the assessments at the special rate or rates determined by the board. If the board shall have determined that any land is entitled to a special rate of assessment, the rates of assessment in the district shall be so computed as to be sufficient to produce the sum to be raised after deducting fifteen per cent from the assessed valuation as provided in section 60 of this act. The determination of the board with respect to any land after a hearing as aforesaid shall not be changed unless the board, on petition of a party affected, shall consent to another hearing, or on its own motion shall cause notice to be served on the owner of the land to show cause why the determination should not be changed, in either of which cases another hearing shall be advertised and held as hereinabove provided.

Hearing

SEC 4. Section 37 of said act is hereby amended to read Stats 1897.
p. 254. as follows:

Sec. 37 On or before the first Monday in August in each year, the assessor must complete his assessment book, and deliver it to the secretary of the board, who must immediately give notice thereof, and of the time when the board of directors, acting as a board of equalization, will meet to equalize assessments, by publication at least two times in a newspaper published in the county in which the office of the district is located, and if the district includes land in more than one county, then said notice shall be published at least two times in a newspaper in each county in which any portion of the district is situated. Said notice shall also state the time and place at which payment of assessments may be made. Said notice shall be published at least two times; to wit, once a week for two successive weeks, in a newspaper published in the county in which the office of the district is located, and if the district includes land in more than one county, then said notice shall be published as aforesaid in a newspaper in each county in which any portion of the district is situated. Failure to publish notice as aforesaid in any county other than that in which the office of the district is located shall not affect any assessment on land in a county in which notice was published as herein required. The collector must attend at the time and place specified in the notice to receive assessments, which must be paid in gold and silver coin; he must mark the date of payment of any assessment in the assessment book, opposite the name of the person paying and give a receipt to such person, specifying the amount of the assessment and the amount paid, with the description of the property assessed. On the last Monday in December at six o'clock p.m. of each year, except as provided in section 41c hereof, all unpaid assessments are delinquent and thereafter the collector must collect thereon, for the use of the district, an addition of ten per cent of the amount thereof as a penalty for delinquency.

p. 836.

Sec. 78. If, upon the hearing of any such petition, no evidence or proofs in support thereof be introduced, or if the evidence fail to sustain said petition, or if the board deem it not for the best interest of the district that the lands, or some portion thereof, mentioned in the petition, should be excluded from the district, the board shall order that said petition be denied as to such lands; but if the said board deem it for the best interest of the district that the lands mentioned in the petition, or some portion thereof, be excluded from the district, and if no person interested in the district show cause in writing why the said lands or some portion thereof, should not be excluded from the district, or if, having shown cause, withdraws the same, or upon the hearing fails to establish such objections as he may have made, then it shall be the duty of the board to, and it shall forthwith, make an order that the lands mentioned and described in the petition, or some defined portion thereof, be excluded from said district; provided, that it shall be the duty of said board to order, upon petition therefor as aforesaid, that all lands so petitioned to be excluded from said district shall be excluded therefrom which in the judgment of the board will not be benefited by the operations of the district. Exclusion of lands.

Taxes.

Sec. 14. The board of directors shall in the month of July of each year determine the amount necessary to be raised by taxation, and shall fix a rate of taxes to be levied which will raise the amount of money required by the district, not exceeding, however, the rate of ten cents on each one hundred dollars of assessed valuation when the purpose of such taxes is to supply funds for investigating the project prior to the issuance of bonds and the payment of the officers and employees of the district prior to the time when the works of the district are earning revenue: provided, however, that all running expenses of the district prior to the time the works of the district are earning revenue, being a part of the cost of constructing and/or acquiring the works, may be paid from the proceeds of the bonds, and within a reasonable time previous to the time when the boards of supervisors are required by law to fix their tax rates, to certify to the boards of supervisors of each county within the district, or having a portion of its territory within the district, the rates so fixed with a direction that at the time and in the manner required by law for the levying of taxes for county purposes such board of supervisors shall levy and collect a tax in addition to such other tax as may be levied by such board of supervisors at the rate so fixed and determined, and it is made the duty of the officer or body having authority to levy taxes within each county or city and county to levy the tax so required, and it shall be the duty of all county or city and county officials charged with the duty of collecting taxes to collect such taxes in the time, form and manner as county or city and county taxes are collected, and when collected to pay the same to the district ordering its levy and collection, and such payments shall be made through the secretary of the district, and paid into the depository thereof, or into the state treasury to the credit of the district. Such taxes shall be a lien upon ^{Lien.} all property within the territory comprising the district, and of the same force and effect as other liens for taxes, and their collection may be enforced by the same means as provided for the enforcement of liens for county taxes; provided, that no taxes shall be levied by the board under the provisions of this section for the purpose of carrying out new projects after the original project for which the district was formed has been completed.

SEC. 2. Section 21 of said act is hereby amended to read ^{Stats. 1925,} as follows: _{p. 720.}

Sec. 21. (a) Interest during construction. At or before ^{Interest during construction.} the time of issuing any bonds the board of directors shall estimate (1) the total cost of constructing and/or acquiring the works for which such bonds are to be issued, (2) the period of construction of such work and (3) the amount of bonds which will be required to pay such total estimated cost and to pay interest on the bonds during such estimated period of construction and six months thereafter. No bonds shall be issued if such estimated amount of bonds required to pay such estimated cost and interest shall exceed the total amount of bonds authorized to be issued as provided in this act; provided, however, that no error or informality in such estimate shall invalidate any bonds of the districts; and provided further that if such estimated amount of bonds required to pay such estimated cost and interest shall exceed the total amount of bonds theretofore authorized, the board of directors may in their discretion submit to the electors of the district as provided in this act the proposition of authorizing additional bonds for the purpose aforesaid. Bonds may be issued at any time or from time to time and shall be issued in such amount or amounts not exceeding the total amount of bonds authorized as will produce a sum sufficient to pay the cost of constructing and/or acquiring such works and interest on the bonds so issued during the period of construction and six months thereafter; provided, however, that failure to issue the full amount of bonds herein specified shall not invalidate any bonds of the district. If during the month of July next preceding the ^{Tax.} expiration of the period so estimated for the construction of the works it shall appear to the board of directors that the construction of the works is likely to be delayed beyond the period so estimated the board shall estimate the period of such delay and cause a tax to be levied and collected in the manner provided in section 14 hereof sufficient to produce the amount required to pay one year's interest on the bonds or, if such estimated period of delay shall be less than one year, the amount required to pay the interest which will accrue on the bonds during such estimated period of delay, and provided, further, that the amount of such tax shall be reduced to the extent that the district has funds on hand and available for the purpose of paying such interest.

Surplus
proceeds

(b) Surplus of bond proceeds. If there shall remain a surplus of the proceeds of bonds issued by the district, including premium, if any, after paying the cost of constructing and/or acquiring such works and interest on the bonds during the actual period of construction and for a period of six months thereafter, there shall be set aside out of such surplus in a reserve interest fund an amount equal to one year's interest on the bonds, or, if such surplus shall be less than one year's interest on the bonds, all of such surplus shall be so set aside. Such fund shall be deposited as other funds of the district or invested in securities which are or may hereafter be made legal for the security of public funds when deposited in banks, and shall be used solely for the payment of interest on such bonds whenever there shall be a deficit in the revenues of the works and only to the extent of such deficit. If such surplus shall exceed one year's interest on the bonds, the balance shall be placed in the fund for the payment of such bonds.

Pledge of revenues

(c) Pledge of revenues. The board of directors shall in each fiscal year set aside in separate funds out of the revenues of the works sufficient sums

- (1) To pay the operating expenses of the district,
- (2) To provide for repairs and depreciation of the works,
- (3) To pay the interest of such bonds as it becomes due, and
- (4) To provide a sinking or other fund for the payment of such bonds as they become due, and the revenues of the works are hereby pledged to such purposes.

Revenues.
deficit.

(d) Provisions for deficit of revenues. For the purpose of paying the principal or interest of bonds due or to become due within four months, and not otherwise adequately provided for, the district may borrow money in anticipation of the receipt of either the revenues and taxes of the fiscal year in which the loan is made or the revenues and taxes of the next succeeding fiscal year, and such loan shall be payable not later than the end of such next succeeding fiscal year. Negotiable notes shall be issued for all money so borrowed, which notes may be renewed from time to time, and money may be borrowed upon new notes from time to time after the payment of any indebtedness evidenced thereby; but all such notes and loans shall mature within the time limited for the payment of the original loan. No money shall be so borrowed at a rate of interest exceeding the maximum rate permitted by law. Such notes may be disposed of in such manner as the board of directors may determine. All such notes shall be authorized by a resolution of the board of directors, which shall fix the actual or maximum face amount of the notes, the actual or maximum rate of interest to be paid upon the amount borrowed and the actual or approximate maturity of the notes. The form and manner of execution of such notes shall be determined by the board of directors.

Notes.

After the expiration of the period which was estimated, as above provided, before the issuance of any bonds as the period for the construction of the works, the board of directors shall, in the month of July in each year, cause a tax to be levied and collected in the manner provided in section 14 in an amount, after deducting any available and applicable moneys on hand (but in no event moneys in the reserve interest fund) and the estimated amount of revenues of the works for the ensuing twelve months, such estimated amount not to exceed the actual revenues for the preceding twelve months (or, if the works shall not have been in operation for as long as twelve months, not to exceed an amount computed on the basis of the average daily revenues for such lesser period), sufficient to produce the sums required by paragraph (c) of this section to be set aside into separate funds, as well as any deficit in such funds and the principal and interest of any outstanding revenue and tax anticipation notes; provided, however, that until the construction of the works is completed it shall not be necessary to levy a tax to provide for repairs and depreciation of the works.

The taxes herein required to be levied and collected shall be ^{Taxes.} in addition to all other taxes levied for county or city and county purposes, and all taxable property of the district shall be and remain liable to be taxed as herein provided until the entire principal and interest of the bonded indebtedness of the district has been paid in full.

(e) Surplus of revenues. To the extent, if any, that the revenues of the works for any fiscal year shall contain a surplus over and above an amount sufficient to provide the sums required to be set aside out of such revenues as hereinabove provided and the amount of any deficit of revenues for any preceding fiscal year and a sum equal to the estimated operating expenses of the district and repairs of the works for the ensuing six months, there shall be set aside out of such surplus and deposited in the reserve interest fund a sum equal to one year's interest on the bonds then outstanding less the amount already contained in such reserve interest fund. Any remainder of such surplus shall be divided by the board of directors and apportioned to each county or city and county within the district in the proportion which the assessed value of property within such county, city and county, or part of a county within the district bears to the total assessed value of property within the district; in case a part only of a county is located within the district, the amount so apportioned to such county shall be deemed a partial payment of county taxes for the current or next succeeding year upon property situate within that portion of the district which lies within such county, and be credited pro rata against such taxes. ^{Surplus of revenues.}

(f) Miscellaneous. Prior to the preparation of definitive ^{Temporary bonds.} bonds the board may issue temporary bonds under the same restrictions imposed as to definitive bonds, with or without coupons and in any denomination or denominations, which temporary bonds shall be exchangeable for definitive bonds upon the issuance of the latter. If, after any bond has been duly signed by any officer or officers thereunto authorized, such officer or officers shall cease to hold such office, such bond may nevertheless be delivered with like effect as if the same had been signed by the one or more holding such office or offices at the time of delivery. The bonds may be made registerable as to principal alone or as to both principal and interest under such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the board prior to the issuance thereof. The board is authorized to purchase any bonds from moneys in the sinking or other fund for the payment of bonds, at not more than the par value thereof. All bonds so purchased shall be canceled and shall not again be issued.

Urgency.

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and it is deemed necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety that this law shall go into immediate effect. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency: The population of this state and the traffic on the highways thereof are very rapidly increasing and in all probability will in the future continue to so increase. The facilities for transportation in this state are inadequate for the needs of the population thereof and such increased traffic, and it is essential that such facilities be immediately increased and improved by the construction of bridges and other works by bridge and highway districts; and unless such bridges and other works are constructed in the near future the public health and safety will be endangered due to congestion of traffic on existing roads and highways in said state. Moreover, there are at the present time a large number of persons in the State of California who are unemployed and who are without means of livelihood. The construction of bridges and other works by bridge and highway districts of this state will furnish work for a large number of such persons and prevent them from becoming public charges. If the provisions of this act become a law immediately, the sale by such bridge and highway districts of their securities will be furthered and they will thereby be enabled to obtain without delay the necessary funds for the construction of such bridges and works and for the employment of a large number of persons hereinabove mentioned who are now without employment, and said districts will also be materially aided in securing bids from contractors and others for the construction of such bridges and works and for the supplying of materials therefor.

An act to define the liability of stockholders in California state banks and to provide for the enforcement and collection of that liability by the superintendent of banks of the State of California.

[Approved by the Governor April 24, 1931 In effect August 14, 1931]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

Banking corporations liability of stockholders

SECTION 1. The stockholders of every banking corporation organized under the laws of the State of California shall be held individually liable, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such corporation, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares.

Transferred stock

The stockholders in any banking corporation organized under the laws of the State of California who shall have transferred their shares or registered the transfer thereof within sixty days next preceding the date upon which the superintendent of banks shall have taken possession of the property, business and assets, of such banking corporation, or who shall have so transferred or registered their shares with knowledge of impending failure, shall be liable to the same extent as if they had made no such transfer, to the extent that the subsequent transferee fails to meet such liability; but this provision shall not be construed to effect in any way any recourse which such stockholders might otherwise have against those in whose names such shares are registered at the time of the closing or failure of said banking corporation.

Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees, shall not be personally subject to any liabilities as stockholders; but the estates and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such trust funds would be if living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name.

Executors,
etc

SEC. 2. Whenever the superintendent of banks shall hereafter take possession of the business and property of any bank doing business in this state, for the purpose of liquidating its affairs, as provided by law, he may at any time during the process of such liquidation, if necessary to pay the debts of such corporation, enforce the individual liability of the stockholders set forth in section 1. For the purpose of enforcing such liability, the superintendent of banks may call for a ratable assessment upon the stockholders of such bank without previous judicial ascertainment of the necessity for such action, and the action of the superintendent of banks in calling for such assessment shall be conclusive on the stockholders of the necessity for such assessment.

Liquidation
of banks

Assessments
concerning

Any such assessment shall be levied by order of the superintendent of banks under his official seal, which order shall be executed in duplicate, one to be filed in the office of the superintendent of banks and one with the papers in the liquidation proceedings in the county in which said bank shall have been located.

Said order of the superintendent of banks levying the assessment shall specify the amount of the assessment and shall fix a date on which the said assessment shall be due and payable, which said date shall not be less than thirty, nor more than sixty days from the time of making the order levying the assessment. The said assessment shall be payable to the superintendent of banks at his office or at such other places as may be specified in the order levying the assessment.

Notice of such assessment shall be given by causing a copy of said order to be personally served on each stockholder, or in lieu of personal service, sent through the mail, postage prepaid, addressed to such stockholder at his place of residence or business, as shown upon the books of said bank, and if not shown, where the principal office of the bank was situated. Said copies of said order shall be personally served or placed in the mail within fifteen days after the making of the order levying the assessment.

Assessment-failure to pay

If any stockholder of said bank shall fail to pay said assessment in full upon the date specified in said order as the date upon which said assessment shall be due and payable, a right of action shall immediately accrue to the superintendent of banks to recover the amount of said assessment or the amount remaining unpaid thereon from the stockholder or stockholders failing to pay the assessment in full.

Collection of amount due

The superintendent of banks shall have power to maintain an action or actions in this state, or in any other state or country to enforce and collect any sums or amounts due and payable and remaining unpaid upon any such assessments from any stockholder or stockholders failing to pay the same in full; and in any such action the superintendent of banks may join as defendants one or more stockholders; and in any such action the superintendent of banks shall have the right of attachment as in other actions upon unsecured debts; provided, however, that the superintendent of banks shall not be required to give bond on attachment or pay filing fees or other court costs.

Disposition
of funds

All sums collected from any such assessment, less the expenses of collection, shall be used by the superintendent of banks against the liquidation of claims in the same manner as the assets of the bank are so used. If such ratable assessment, first made, shall prove inadequate to pay all of the creditors of the bank in full, the superintendent of banks may levy further assessment or assessments, and proceed to collect the same in like manner so long as the total of such assessments does not exceed the liability set forth in section 1 above.

Surplus
funds

If, after the payment of all liabilities against such bank, and the costs and expenses of liquidation, any surplus shall remain, the court in the liquidation proceedings shall determine and provide for any equities as between the respective stockholders, including proportions belonging to each stockholder and of any surplus of any of the assets remaining after payment of all liabilities and the costs and expenses of liquidation by reason of full or partial payment of any such assessment or assessments, and shall direct the payment thereof by the superintendent of banks accordingly.

Constitutionality

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portion of this act. The Legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase, irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional or its operation or application is or may be limited or controlled by any constitutional provision.

security

All bonds issued by a railroad or other public utility corporation must be secured by a mortgage or deed of trust which at the time of said certification is: either

I. A closed first mortgage or deed of trust; or,

II. A first mortgage or deed of trust containing provisions restricting the issuance of further bonds until such time as the income of said corporation shall have been at least sufficient, during the twelve months next preceding the issuance of any additional bonds, to meet the earning requirements heretofore specified in either paragraph (d) or (e) of subdivision 6 of this section applicable to such corporation after including the additional bonds then proposed to be issued; or,

III. A refunding mortgage or deed of trust providing for the retirement of all prior lien mortgage debts of said corporation and restricting the issuance of further bonds until such time as the income of said corporation shall have been at least sufficient, during the twelve months next preceding the issuance of any additional bonds, to meet the earning requirements of such corporation after including the additional bonds then proposed to be issued; or,

IV. An underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust of property which forms a part of the operating system of the corporation then owning said property. In the case of bonds secured by an underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust, the net income required by this section shall be based exclusively upon the income, maintenance charges, operating expenses, taxes and mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust or, if such income, maintenance charges or operating expenses can not be definitely ascertained on the proper proportionate share of such property in the general income, maintenance charges, operating expenses and taxes of the corporation then owning such property and on the mortgage indebtedness of or against the property covered by such underlying or divisional closed mortgage or deed of trust.

(f) Notes or bonds secured by first mortgage or deed of trust or other first lien upon real estate, improved or unimproved; provided, that the entire note or bond issue shall not exceed sixty per centum of the market value of such real estate, or such real estate with improvements, taken as security; and provided, further, in case the said note or bond issue is created for a building loan on real estate, that at no time shall the entire outstanding note or bond issue exceed sixty per centum of the market value of the real estate and the actual cost of the improvements thereon taken as security; and provided, also, in case said real estate is located outside of this state, that the provisions of this paragraph shall be subject to the limitations and modifications contained in section 57a of this act; and provided, also, that no such notes or bonds shall be disqualified as investments for savings banks for the reason that the payment thereof is guaranteed by a policy of mortgage insurance.

First mortgage, etc.,
bonds

In determining the market value of any real estate under the provisions of the preceding paragraph where such real estate, improved or unimproved, consists of oil or other mineral or timber land, the value represented by such oil or other mineral or timber shall not be included in fixing such market value. Nothing herein contained shall prevent savings banks from making loans secured by mortgage or deed of trust upon lands wherein redwood timber is included in fixing the market value thereof.

Any bank, however, may, without such certification by the superintendent of banks, purchase any note or bond or issue of notes or bonds provided for in said paragraph (f) of subdivision six of this section, whenever such purchase constitutes the entire amount of notes or bonds executed by the makers thereof and secured by the same real estate; provided, that no savings bank shall hold any such notes or bonds unless such holding constitutes the entire issue thereof at any time outstanding; and provided, also, that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to permit savings banks to invest in notes or certificates evidencing participation in any mortgage on real estate unless by law specifically authorized, or in or on any form of obligation secured by any undivided interest in real estate designed to distribute the obligation so secured.

(g) Collateral trust bonds or notes:

Collateral

the par value of the collateral trust bonds or notes issued; provided, that the par value of said collateral trust bonds or notes shall in no case exceed the market value of that portion of the security represented by notes or bonds authorized for investment by this section;

(3) When issued by a corporation organized and doing business under the laws of the State of California and having a paid-up and unimpaired capital of not less than one million dollars, and when secured by deposit, as hereinafter provided, of money, or of notes accompanied by mortgage or deed of trust constituting a first lien on real estate, improved or unimproved, in the State of California having a market value of not less than one and two-third times the amount of each note deposited, and when such security so deposited shall have an aggregate market value of not less than par value of the collateral trust bonds or notes issued and outstanding, and when such collateral trust bonds or notes have a maturity of not more than twenty (20) years from their date of issue; provided, that such security shall be deposited as a court trust with a trust company, authorized to transact business in this state, and under such conditions and regulations as may, from time to time, be prescribed by the superintendent of banks; provided, however, that in prescribing such conditions and regulations the superintendent of banks shall permit the exchange, withdrawal and redeposit of any security in this paragraph authorized, so long as the aggregate market value of the security remaining on deposit shall be not less than the par value of the collateral trust bonds or notes issued and outstanding, all securities deposited as herein provided being subject to approval by the superintendent of banks. No such bonds or notes shall be eligible for investment by savings banks, if issued by a corporation having outstanding bonds or notes in an amount greater than fifteen times its paid-up capital and surplus.

character and capacity, organized under the laws of any state of the United States.

The legality of investments heretofore lawfully made pursuant to the provisions of this section, or of any law of this state as it existed on and subsequent to July 1, 1909, shall not be affected by any amendments to this section or this act; nor shall any such amendments require the changing of investments once lawfully made under this act.

Investments heretofore made

Any bonds authorized by this section as a legal investment for savings banks may be carried on the books of said bank at their investment value, based on their market value at the time they were originally bought, unless the superintendent of banks shall require any or all of the bonds which may thereafter have a market value less than the original investment value to be written down to such new market value which shall be done gradually if practicable and in such manner as he may determine or he may, by a plan of amortization to be determined by him, require such gradual extinction of premium as will bring such bonds to par at maturity.

Accounting

When it shall be necessary to prevent loss to any savings bank on an obligation owned or on a debt previously contracted in good faith, it may, with the previous written consent of the superintendent of banks, purchase or acquire bonds of any railroad corporation incorporated under the laws of the State of California and operated exclusively therein notwithstanding such bonds do not conform to the requirements in this section contained; provided, any bonds so purchased or acquired must be sold for the best price obtainable by any bank within five years after such purchase or acquisition.

The superintendent of banks, the chief deputy, or some competent person or persons to be appointed by the superintendent of banks, to be known as examiners, shall visit and examine every bank at least once each fiscal year. On every such examination inquiries shall be made by him as to the condition and resources of the bank, the mode of conducting and managing its affairs, the action of its directors, the investment and disposition of its funds, the safety and prudence of its management, the security afforded to those by whom its engagements are held and whether the requirements of its articles of incorporation and the law have been complied with in the administration of its affairs, and as to such other matters as the superintendent may prescribe. Whenever, in the judgment of the superintendent of banks, the condition of any bank renders it necessary or expedient to make an extra examination or to devote any extraordinary attention to its affairs, the superintendent of banks shall have authority to make any and all necessary extra examinations and to devote any necessary extra attention to the conduct of its affairs; and the superintendent of banks shall have authority to charge and collect for all such extra services rendered an amount not to exceed twenty dollars per day for each examiner necessarily engaged in the examination of the principal office of such bank and twenty dollars a day for each examiner engaged in the examination of each branch office of each bank. The superintendent of banks shall, whenever required to do so by any bank, provide an auditor to make an audit of the affairs of such bank. The compensation of board of trustees, board of education, or other governing body of such district, and all acts and proceedings of the board of supervisors of the county within which such district is situated, leading up to and including the issuance of such bonds if they have been heretofore sold, and all such acts and proceedings heretofore had, although the bonds are not sold, are hereby legalized, ratified, confirmed and validated to all intents and purposes, and the power of such district and of the board of supervisors of the county in which such district is situated to issue such bonds is hereby ratified, confirmed and declared, and bonds heretofore sold are declared to be and shall be, in the form and manner in which such bonds have been actually issued and delivered, the legal and binding obligations of and against such district and bonds hereafter sold are declared to be and shall be legal and binding obligations of such district, and the full faith and credit of such district is hereby declared to be pledged for the prompt payment and redemption of the principal and interest of said bonds.

SEC. 2. For the purpose of paying interest on such bonds as it becomes due and the principal thereof at maturity, the assessors, treasurers, boards of supervisors and other officers of the respective counties shall have the same powers and shall perform the same duties as are provided by law relative to the assessment, levy and collection of taxes and custody of funds for the payment of the principal and interest of bonds of school districts, high school districts and junior college districts of every kind and class, respectively.

Urgency.

SEC. 4. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California, and shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency; many school districts within the State of California are without sufficient money with which to purchase school lots, for building or purchasing one or more school buildings or making alterations or additions to same or repairing, restoring or rebuilding school buildings damaged, injured or destroyed by fire or other public calamity, for insuring school buildings for supplying school buildings with furniture or necessary apparatus, for improving school grounds, for liquidating any indebtedness already incurred for said purposes or refunding any valid outstanding indebtedness of such district evidenced by bonds or warrants thereof. Many school districts have voted bonds for raising money for such purposes and the proceedings in many of such bond elections were irregular but complying with all the provisions of this act, and by reason of such irregularities and defects in such proceedings such bonds can not now be sold. The population of many of these districts has increased so rapidly that the present school facilities of such districts are unable to meet the needs of the great increase of pupils in such districts and it is necessary and urgent that such bonds and the proceedings thereunder be validated at an early date in order that said school buildings, lots, equipment and facilities may be purchased or built before the opening of the next school year which in many instances would be impossible if this act did not go into effect immediately but was required to await until ninety days after adjournment of this Legislature.

The commissioner, however, shall not execute such certificate until he has given written notice by mail to each association then existing in this state having a name raising the presumption hereinafter mentioned, directed to it with postage thereon prepaid at its principal office in this state, that an application for the issuance by him of such certificate has been made, together with the name of the association in respect of which such application shall have been made, and that a hearing will be held by him at his office at a time to be therein specified, which shall not be less than ten days after the mailing thereof; and the commissioner shall give such notices, and at the time and place specified in such notices shall hold a hearing at which any person, firm or corporation may appear in person or by agent or attorney, and orally or in writing show cause why such certificate should not be issued upon the ground that the name of such association is the same as one already adopted or appropriated by any association then existing in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public; and if, upon such hearing or his examination or investigation, the commissioner shall have reason to believe that the name of the association is the same as one already adopted or appropriated by any association then existing in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public, he shall refuse to issue such certificate; and the commissioner shall conclusively presume that the use of any word or words in the name of the association the same as or similar in spelling or sound to any word or words already adopted, appropriated, or used in its corporate name by any association then existing in this state, except the words: "the," "and," "mutual," "guaranty," "guarantee," "building," "loan," or "association," constitutes such similarity of names as to be likely to mislead the public; provided, further, that if any and all associations then existing in this state causing such presumption file consent in writing thereto with the commissioner, the commissioner may nevertheless issue such certificate. No domestic association hereafter incorporated, and no foreign association hereafter qualifying to do business in this state, which shall include the word "mutual" in its name, shall be permitted to issue stock without first eliminating from its name the word "mutual." SEC. 2.09. Amendment of articles and by-laws. Before any certificate or other document effecting or setting forth any amendment to the articles of incorporation of any domestic association, or to the articles of incorporation, certificate of incorporation, charter, or any similar document relating to any foreign association, shall hereafter be filed in the office of the secretary of state of the State of California, there must be attached thereto a certificate of the commissioner approving the same. Upon the adoption of any amendment to the by-laws of any association, a copy of such amendment, certified by the secretary or assistant secretary of such association, shall be delivered or mailed forthwith to the commissioner. No amendment to the articles of incorporation or by-laws of any association which shall make any change in the rights, preferences or privileges of any outstanding stock or shares of such association which shall be adverse to the holders of such stock or shares shall be valid, unless such amendment is approved by the vote or written assent of the holders of two-thirds in par value of such outstanding stock or two-thirds in value of such outstanding shares, or of the class or classes of such outstanding shares adversely affected as aforesaid.

SEC. 3.01. Associations may issue shares and/or stock. An association pursuant to its articles of incorporation or by-laws and this act, may issue (1) shares (which shall constitute the holders thereof members of such association), or (2) stock, or (3) both shares (which shall constitute the holders thereof members of such association) and stock. In the case of each domestic association hereafter incorporated, and in the case of each foreign association hereafter qualifying to do business in this state, the stock and shares thereof, if it be an association issuing both stock and shares, shall be of the same par value.

or shareholders as provided in the by-laws. Such payments may be, and are hereafter sometimes in this act, called dues. Certificates evidencing shares, with or without passbooks, shall be issued to each shareholder on the first payment of dues by him. When the dues paid on any share, together with the dividends or profits apportioned thereto, shall equal the par value thereof, such share shall have reached its matured value.

For cash only Except in connection with mergers, consolidations or transfers pursuant to section 2.06 of this act, no shares shall be issued for any consideration other than cash. All shares matured in respect of which payment shall have been made by the association to the shareholder, and all shares surrendered or canceled, may be reissued. Shares of all classes except full paid shares may be issued with the provision that at all times the holder or holders thereof shall be the owners of as many shares and fractions thereof of such association as there are units of the value of such shares invested with the association by such holders. In the case of all shares hereafter issued by associations issuing both shares and stock, and notwithstanding anything to the contrary hereafter contained in this section, the rate or rates of dividends upon the shares, unless agreed and unless specified in the certificates evidencing such shares, shall be prescribed by the by-laws. Shares may be issued as full paid shares, installment shares, accumulative shares or prepaid shares.

Reissue. (a) Full paid shares. Full paid shares shall be shares upon which a single payment of dues amounting to the par value of said shares shall be paid at the time of subscription and upon which the holder shall be entitled either (a) to dividends at such agreed rate, not exceeding six per cent per annum, as shall be specified in the body of the certificate issued; or (b) to such participation in the net profits, not exceeding the rate apportioned to installment shares, as the board of directors shall determine or, in the case of an association issuing both shares and stock, as the by-laws shall prescribe. All such shares may be issued in one or more classes as to participation, under regulations prescribed in the by-laws and which must be fully set forth in or upon each certificate issued.

Dividends. (b) Installment shares. Installment shares shall be either "serial" or "nonserial" in form. When issued in "serial" form the periodical dues on shares in each series shall commence with the date of the issue of such series and the holder must pay such dues per share and at such times as the by-laws provide, and such payments shall continue on each share until, with the dividends or profits apportioned thereto, it reaches its matured value or is withdrawn or canceled. On all serial issues the dividends or profits shall be apportioned and credited equally to each share in the same series. No share of a prior series shall be issued after the issue of shares in a new series, except by way of transfer. Installment shares issued in "nonserial" form may be issued at any time and the dividends thereon shall be credited to such shares. Shares of either form may be issued in "classes" with a different periodical payment for each class, to be specified in the by-laws, and shall be issued with full participation in the profits subject to apportionment as dividends; provided, however, that associations issuing stock may, if their by-laws so provide, issue installment shares limited to a maximum rate of dividend.

(c) Accumulative shares. Accumulative shares are shares which shall participate in the apportionment of net profits and be credited therewith at a rate not exceeding the rate apportioned to installment shares, as the board of directors shall determine or, in the case of an association issuing both shares and stock, as the by-laws shall prescribe, and upon which the dues may be paid in at such times and in such amounts as the holder thereof may elect and as the association may permit until said shares reach their matured value or are canceled or withdrawn.

Accumulative shares participation in profits.

(d) Prepaid shares. Prepaid shares shall be shares not full paid, upon which a single payment shall have been made, and which are to reach their matured value through crediting on such shares, dividends or earnings thereon. The holders of prepaid shares shall be entitled either (a) to dividends at such agreed rate, not exceeding six per cent per annum, as shall be specified in the body of the certificate issued; or (b) to such participation in the net profits, not exceeding the rate apportioned to installment shares, as the board of directors shall determine or, in the case of an association issuing both shares and stock, as the by-laws shall prescribe.

SEC. 3.03. Maturity of shares. When any share shall have reached its matured value, payment of dues thereon shall cease. Borrowing shareholders whose loans are fully paid shall have their securities released and returned to them. Holders of free shares shall be paid the matured value thereof with interest or earnings at such rate as the by-laws shall provide, from the time the board of directors shall declare such shares to have been matured, until paid; but such payment shall be subject to section 6.02 of this act.

SEC. 3.04. Retirement of free shares. The directors may in their discretion, under the regulations prescribed by the by-laws, retire any free shares by enforcing the withdrawal thereof, but whenever the withdrawal of any shares is to be enforced, the holders thereof must be given thirty days' notice thereof and be paid the amount actually paid in, and the full amount of profits or dividends applicable thereto to the date of retirement; provided, that the withdrawal of installment shares, unless otherwise provided in the by-laws at the time of the issuance thereof, shall not be enforced until four years after the issuance thereof.

installment of his dues upon free shares, the secretary may give him notice thereof in writing and a statement of his arrearages; and if he shall not pay all arrearages within two months thereafter, the association may, at its option, declare his shares forfeited, and at the time of such forfeiture, the withdrawal value thereof shall be determined and stated, and the defaulting shareholder shall be entitled to withdraw the same without interest, upon the same notice and subject to the same conditions as a withdrawing shareholder.

Article IV—Guarantee Stock.

SEC. 4.01. Description of guarantee stock. Guarantee stock shall be of one class, shall have a par value, and the proceeds thereof to the extent of such par value shall be set apart and maintained as a fixed and permanent capital of the association. No stock shall be issued for a consideration other than cash or for a price less than the par value thereof, and when fully paid shall be kept unimpaired to the extent of its par value; provided, however, that an association with the consent of the commissioner may declare and distribute a stock dividend, and may issue stock for a consideration other than cash in connection with mergers, consolidations or transfers pursuant to section 2.06 of this act. The commissioner may require that the consideration for the issuance of stock be sufficient to create a paid in surplus in an amount satisfactory to the commissioner. No association shall pay any commission or other compensation for or on account of any subscription to or sale of its stock.

SEC. 4.02. Permit required for sale of guarantee stock. No association shall sell, except upon a sale for a delinquent assessment made in accordance with the provisions of section 7.06 of this act or title one of part four of division one of the Civil Code, or offer for sale, negotiate for the sale of, or take subscriptions for, or issue any of its stock, until it shall have first applied for and secured from the commissioner a permit authorizing it so to do. Such application shall be in writing, shall be verified as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure for the verification of pleadings, and shall be filed in the office of the commissioner. In such application the association shall set forth the names and addresses of its officers, the location of its office, an itemized account of its financial condition, the amount and character of its assets and liabilities, a copy of any contract it proposes to make concerning the sale of its stock, a copy of any prospectus or advertisement or other description of its stock then prepared by or for it for distribution or publication, a copy of all minutes of any proceedings of its directors, shareholders or stockholders relating to or affecting the issue of such stock, and such additional information concerning the association, its condition and affairs as the commissioner may require. Upon the filing of such application, it shall be the duty of the commissioner to examine it and the other papers and documents filed therewith, and he may, if he deems it advisable, make or have made a detailed examination, audit, and investigation of the association and its affairs. If he finds that the proposed plan for the issue and sale of such stock is not such as, in his opinion, will work a fraud upon the purchaser thereof, the commissioner shall issue to the association a permit authorizing it to issue and dispose of its stock in such amounts and for such considerations and upon such terms and conditions as the commissioner may in such permit provide. Otherwise, he shall deny the application and notify the association in writing of his decision. Every permit shall recite in bold type that the issuance thereof is permissive only and does not constitute a recommendation or endorsement of the stock permitted to be issued. The commissioner may impose conditions requiring the impoundment of the proceeds from the sale of such stock, limiting the expense in connection with the sale thereof, and such other conditions as he may deem reasonable and necessary or advisable to insure the disposition of the proceeds from the sale of such stock in the manner and for the purposes provided in such permit. The commissioner may from time to time amend, alter, or revoke any permit issued by him, or temporarily suspend the rights of the association under such permit. The commissioner shall have the power to establish such rules and regulations as may be reasonable and necessary to carry out the purposes and provisions of this section.

This section shall be limited to stock and shall not apply to shares or investment certificates.

Article V—Investment Certificates.

SEC. 5.01. Description of investment certificates. An association may issue investment certificates, with or without pass books. The holders of investment certificates shall have no liability for debts or assessments, and shall be entitled upon liquidation of an association to receive payment in full before any payment or distribution shall be made to shareholders or stockholders. The holders of investment certificates shall have no right to participate in the profits or dividends. Except in connection with mergers, consolidations or transfers pursuant to section 2.06 of this act, no investment certificate shall hereafter be issued for a consideration other than cash. Subject to the provisions of this act and of the respective investment certificates, certificate holders shall be entitled to have interest paid or credited at the rate specified in their respective certificates and to the return of their principal with accrued interest upon withdrawal, redemption or maturity. Investment certificates may be issued as full paid investment certificates, installment investment certificates, accumulative investment certificates, definite term investment certificates, or prepaid investment certificates. Subject to the provisions of sections 5.06 and 5.07 of this act, interest on installment investment certificates hereafter issued and on prepaid investment certificates hereafter issued shall continue to accrue after the maturity thereof at the same rate as before such maturity, until such certificates shall be withdrawn.

Full paid.

(a) Full paid certificates. A full paid investment certificate shall be an investment certificate, without an expressed date of maturity, for which the association shall have received the principal amount thereof at or prior to the time of the issuance thereof.

Installment.

(b) Installment certificates. An installment investment certificate shall be an investment certificate not full paid, upon which the holder shall be obligated to make payments at the times and in the amounts specified therein.

Accumulative.

(c) Accumulative certificates. An accumulative investment certificate shall be an investment certificate, not full paid and without an expressed date of maturity, upon which the holder shall have the option of making payments at such times and in such amounts as such holder may elect and as the association may permit.

Definite term.

(d) Definite term certificates. A definite term investment certificate shall be an investment certificate, for which the association shall have received a single payment equal to the principal amount thereof, and which shall have a date of maturity expressed therein, which date shall be at least one year from the issuance of such certificate. On or after such maturity date, without any prior notice of intention to withdraw, the holder of a definite term investment certificate shall be entitled, subject to section 6.02 of this act, to receive the full principal amount thereof together with accrued interest thereon, if any such interest be unpaid on such date. Unless otherwise specified in a definite term investment certificate, no interest shall accrue thereon after the date of its maturity except that if the association on or after the maturity date of any such certificate shall fail to make payment thereon upon such certificate being tendered for surrender, then interest shall continue to accrue on such certificate at the rate specified therein from such maturity date until such certificate is paid, or until such association shall have funds available for the payment thereof and shall have notified the holder of such certificate that such funds are so available.

Prepaid.

(e) Prepaid certificates. A prepaid investment certificate shall be an investment certificate not full paid, upon which the holder shall have made a single payment and which is to reach its principal amount through crediting on such certificate interest thereon not withdrawn.

Legal investments.

SEC. 5.02. Investment certificates to be legal investments. All investment certificates issued by any association licensed by and under the direct supervision of the commissioner in accordance with the provisions of this act, shall be legal investments for the funds of executors, administrators, guardians, receivers, and trustees of every kind and nature, and for the funds of all insurance companies. This section is intended to be, and shall be considered, the latest enactment upon the matters herein contained, and is supplemental to any and all other acts regulating, relating to and declaring what shall be, legal investments for the funds of executors, administrators, guardians, receivers or trustees or for the funds of insurance companies.

SEC. 5.03. Investment certificate reserve. Each association issuing investment certificates shall at all times maintain an investment certificate reserve which shall be not less than the following percentages of its total investment certificate liability:

(1) Ten per cent of any amount up to and including one million dollars;

(2) Seven and one-half per cent of any amount in excess of one million dollars up to and including two million dollars;

(3) Five per cent of any amount in excess of two million dollars up to and including five million dollars;

(4) Three per cent of any amount in excess of five million dollars.

Such investment certificate reserve may consist of either of the following:

(1) If there be nonwithdrawable capital, the aggregate paid-up nonwithdrawable capital, together with any surplus, undivided profits and the loan reserve created pursuant to section 10.03 of this act;

(2) If there be no nonwithdrawable capital, the loan reserve created pursuant to section 10.03 of this act and such part of the undivided profits not apportioned to shareholders as the association shall have set apart for such investment certificate reserve.

No dividends shall be paid or profits be distributed to stockholders of any association issuing investment certificates if such payment or distribution would deplete its investment certificate reserve below the proportions provided in this section. No dividends shall be paid or profits be distributed to shareholders from that part of the undivided profits which the association shall have set apart for such investment certificate reserve if such payment or distribution would deplete such investment certificate reserve below the proportions provided in this section, or if such investment certificate reserve is at the time below the proportions provided in this section. If the investment certificate reserve of any association issuing investment certificates is not maintained in the proportions provided in this section, no additional investment certificates of such association shall be issued except in exchange for installment certificates when fully paid, nor shall any dividends be paid to or profits be distributed to stockholders of such association until such proportions shall have been restored.

SEC. 5.04. Cash fund for investment certificates. If, in the case of any association issuing investment certificates, other than definite term investment certificates, the cash fund thereof, as defined in this section, shall be less than four per cent of the sum of the investment certificate liabilities thereof, excluding liabilities on its definite term investment certificates, then such association shall not make or purchase any loans or investments until such percentage shall have been restored, excepting (a) pursuant to its obligations to do so theretofore incurred; (b) loans on investment certificates; and (c) investments in readily marketable bonds or other securities referred to in subdivisions (3), (4), (5) and (6) of section 9.02 of this act. The cash fund provided in this section shall consist of cash on hand and in banks and, to the extent of not more than seventy-five per cent of such fund, in readily marketable bonds or other securities referred to in subdivisions (3), (4), (5) and (6) of section 9.02 of this act taken at the unpaid principal amount or market value thereof, whichever is less, and shall be computed after deducting from the aggregate of such cash, bonds and securities all borrowings of such association except through the issuance of investment certificates. Whenever any association's cash fund, as defined in this section, shall become less than the percentage prescribed by this section, such association shall, within twenty-four hours thereafter, mail to the commissioner a statement of such fact; and if the commissioner shall so require, such association shall thereafter, until such percentage shall have been restored, mail to the commissioner daily or otherwise as the commissioner may direct a statement of the matters prescribed in section 6.04 of this act. This section shall take effect January 1, 1932.

SEC. 5.05. Less than six months' interest not to be paid. Upon the withdrawal of any sum evidenced by any investment certificate hereafter issued, other than an investment certificate issued to a bank, no interest shall be paid upon any sum which shall have been received by the association on account of such certificate within six months prior to such withdrawal, except that interest may be paid in respect of sums received on installment investment certificates within six months prior to the date of the final payment which the holder shall be obligated to make thereon. All investment certificates hereafter issued shall expressly state the limitation upon the holder's right to interest, as provided by this section in respect of such certificates. If a part only of the sum evidenced by an investment certificate is withdrawn, the sum withdrawn shall be deemed to be that first received by the association unless otherwise agreed. In the case of each association, sums received within the first ten days of any calendar month may, at the option of such association, be deemed for the purpose of this section to have been received by such association on the first day of such month. No association shall make any contract with any of its certificate holders waiving in any manner the provisions of this section, and if any such contract shall be so made, such contract shall be void.

SEC. 5.06. Redemption of certificates. All investment certificates hereafter issued shall be subject to redemption, either in whole or in part, at the option of the association at any time after the issuance thereof, by giving the holder at least thirty days' notice of such intended redemption; provided, however, that an association may provide that such certificates shall not be subject to redemption for an initial period after the issuance thereof, which initial period in the case of definite term investment certificates shall not exceed three years and in the case of all other investment certificates shall not exceed one year. All investment certificates hereafter issued shall expressly state that such certificates are subject to redemption, and the period of notice which shall be required for redemption, and if there be an initial period in which the certificate may not be redeemed, shall also state such fact and the length of such initial period. The redemption price of all investment certificates shall be the value thereof at the date fixed for redemption; provided, however, that in the case of definite term investment certificates, such redemption price, if so provided in such certificates, shall include a premium of not to exceed one per cent of the principal amount thereof. On or after the date fixed for redemption as stated in the notice of redemption, each holder of an investment certificate called for redemption shall surrender his certificate properly endorsed to the association and shall thereupon be entitled to receive payment of the redemption price of such certificate, or of the portion thereof to be redeemed; and in case a certificate shall be redeemed in part, to receive a new certificate representing the unredeemed part thereof. If such notice of intended redemption shall have been duly given and if on or before the date fixed for such redemption funds necessary for such redemption shall be and continue available therefor, then, notwithstanding that any certificate called for redemption in whole or in part shall not have been surrendered, the interest thereon with respect to the amount called for redemption shall cease to accrue after the date fixed for such redemption, and all rights of the holder in respect of the amount so called for redemption shall forthwith after such redemption date cease and determine, except only the right of the holder to receive the redemption price without interest after the date fixed for redemption. In all cases the notice of redemption shall expressly state that interest will cease on the date fixed for redemption.

SEC. 5.07. Modification of certificates. If so stated in any investment certificate hereafter issued and subject to the conditions stated in this section and such additional conditions, if any, as may be stated in such certificate, any such certificate shall be subject to modification at the option of the association as to the rate of interest payable thereon, but not otherwise, at any time after such initial period as may be provided in such certificate (which initial period in the case of definite

If such demand and tender shall be made and such payment shall not be made or made available, then such certificate holder shall be entitled, subject to section 6.02 of this act, upon tendering his certificate properly endorsed for surrender within fifteen days after said ninety-day period, to receive the redemption price of the certificate surrendered. For the purpose of this section, the redemption price of a certificate shall include accrued interest to the date of the payment thereof.

Article VI—Withdrawals.

Withdrawals. SEC. 6.01. Notice of intention to withdraw. Each association must prescribe by its by-laws, or by contract with its shareholders or certificate holders, or by both, the period of notice of intention to withdraw which such association at its option may require, which period shall not be less than thirty days nor more than six months. All certificates hereafter issued evidencing shares or investment certificates shall state the period of such notice and shall also state that the right of the holder thereof to withdraw funds evidenced thereby is subject to the provisions of article VI of this act. Each association may prescribe by its by-laws, or by contract with its shareholders or certificate holders, or both, the terms and conditions of withdrawal, provided such terms and conditions shall not be contrary to the provisions of this act.

Requisites
of notice.

Any notice of intention to withdraw shall be invalid unless it is given in writing to the office of the association at which the shares or investment certificates in question were issued, or at which the account of such association as to such shares or investment certificates is kept, or to the principal office of such association, signed by a holder entitled to make a withdrawal, or by his attorney or agent. A shareholder or certificate holder may at any time revoke or waive, either in whole or in part, a notice of intention to withdraw and thereupon such notice shall become invalid either in whole or as to such part, as the case may be.

Filing of
notice.

All notices of intention to withdraw shall be filed when and as received by each association or by the several offices thereof in the order in which they are received, and each shall be kept on file with the exact time of the receipt thereof noted thereon or recorded, until it is paid or becomes invalid.

When any notice shall have been on file for the period prescribed therefor, or for the period stated in such notice as the period to elapse previous to making the withdrawal (whichever shall be longer) such notice shall be a "matured notice" for all the purposes of this act.

No shareholder or certificate holder whose shares or investment certificates are pledged as security for a loan from the association issuing such shares or investment certificates shall be permitted to make a withdrawal or be entitled to give any valid notice of intention to withdraw in respect of such shares or investment certificates until the indebtedness for which such shares or investment certificates are security has been fully paid, except that withdrawals therefrom may be made without notice provided the full amount of such withdrawals shall be used to pay such indebtedness or any part thereof; provided that in the case of loans upon the mutual plan, such withdrawals without notice shall be permitted only at the option of the association unless the entire indebtedness shall be simultaneously paid.

No valid notice of intention to withdraw may be given in respect of definite term investment certificates, nor shall the holders thereof be entitled to withdraw prior to the maturity thereof except at the option of the association issuing such certificates; provided, however, that if an association is on a pro rata basis, as hereinafter defined, the holder of any definite term investment certificate which has not reached the date of its maturity may, notwithstanding the expressed date of maturity thereof, give thirty days' notice of intention to withdraw, and at the expiration of such period such notice shall be a "matured notice" and such holder shall be entitled to withdraw, subject to section 6.02 of this act. Every definite term investment certificate shall expressly state that such notice for said period of thirty days may be given at any time prior to the date of the maturity thereof in the event that such association shall thereafter be on a pro rata basis.

If the shareholder or certificate holder shall tender his certificate for surrender, duly endorsed, within ten days after any valid notice of intention to withdraw shall have matured, he shall be entitled, subject to section 6.02 of this act, to receive the withdrawal value of his shares or investment certificates or of that part thereof referred to in such notice, which withdrawal value is hereby defined as the full amount paid in upon the shares or investment certificates surrendered exclusive of the entrance fee, if any, together with dividends, profits or interest, if any, applicable thereto, subject to such adjustment of earnings or interest as may be provided by by-law or contract. Shareholders or certificate holders who shall have given notice of intention to withdraw and who shall fail to tender their certificates for surrender within ten days after notice from the association that funds are available for the payment thereof shall have no right to withdraw except after giving new notice of intention to do so and such prior notice of intention to withdraw shall become invalid for all of the purposes of this act; provided such notice from the association shall have stated that unless such certificates shall be tendered for surrender within such ten-day period the holder shall have no right to withdraw except after giving new notice of intention to do so.

Putting association on notice or pro rata basis

If in the case of any association the sum of the following, to wit, (1) the value of all shares or investment certificates or parts thereof in respect of which valid notices of intention to withdraw (whether or not the same shall be matured) shall be on file and unpaid, including notices of intention to withdraw by defaulting shareholders pursuant to section 3.05 of this act as well as notices of withdrawal generally pursuant to section 6.01 of this act; (2) the value of all shares which shall have matured pursuant to section 3.03 of this act and which shall be unpaid; (3) the value of all investment certificates in respect of which the holders, pursuant to section 5.07 of this act but subject to section 6.02 of this act, shall be entitled to receive the redemption price but which shall be unpaid, and (4) the value of all definite term investment certificates which shall have reached the expressed date of their maturity but which shall be unpaid, shall exceed three per cent of the value of all outstanding shares and investment certificates of such association, then such association, unless it is on a pro rata basis, shall be an "association on notice" for all the purposes of this act. If in the case of any association said sum shall exceed fifteen per cent of the value of all outstanding shares and investment certificates of such association, then such association shall be an "association on a pro rata basis" for all the purposes of this act: provided, however, that if said sum shall exceed ten per cent of the value of all outstanding shares and investment certificates of such association, then its board of directors may at their option by resolution declare such association to be on a pro rata basis, and thereupon such association shall be an "association on a pro rata basis" for all the purposes of this act. An association which is on notice or on a pro rata basis shall continue to be on notice or on a pro rata basis, as the case may be, notwithstanding the fact that the sum of the foregoing items may become less than the respective percentages aforesaid, unless and until all of the foregoing items shall be paid or funds shall be available for the payment thereof; provided, however, that if, in the case of any association which is on a pro rata basis, the sum of the foregoing items shall become less than ten per cent of the value of all outstanding shares and investment certificates of such association, then, with the prior approval of the commissioner, its board of directors may at their option, by resolution, declare such association to be on notice rather than on a pro rata basis, and thereupon such association shall be an association on notice rather than on a pro rata basis for all the purposes of this act, subject to becoming again an association on a pro rata basis as before. In making computations for the purpose of this paragraph, shares and investment certificates shall not be deemed to be unpaid if the association has funds available for the payment thereof and has given notice of that fact to the respective holders thereof.

SEC. 6.02. Limitation on withdrawals. The term "matured withdrawal claims," as used in this article, shall include each and all of the following, to wit, (1) the value of all shares or investment certificates or parts thereof, in respect of which valid notices of intention to withdraw shall be on file, matured and unpaid, including notices of intention to withdraw by defaulting shareholders pursuant to section 3.05 of this act, as well as notices of withdrawal generally pursuant to section 6.01 of this act; (2) the value of all shares which shall have matured pursuant to section 3.03 of this act and which shall be unpaid; (3) the value of all investment certificates in respect of which the holders, pursuant to section 5.07 of this act but subject to section 6.02 of this act, shall be entitled to receive the redemption price, but which shall be unpaid; and (4) the value of all definite term investment certificates which shall have reached the expressed date of their maturity but which shall be unpaid.

Regardless of whether or not an association is on notice or on a pro rata basis, its obligation to pay matured withdrawal claims, and the right of shareholders and certificate holders to receive payment of matured withdrawal claims, shall be secondary and subsequent to the right of such association to pay, and to provide reasonable reserves for the payment of, the following: taxes, assessments, insurance and other sums necessary to protect and preserve its properties and its interest in properties (including those on the security of which it holds loans); principal and interest on borrowings by such association, otherwise than through the issuance of investment certificates; interest on investment certificates and dividends on shares; rent, compensation of officers, agents, salesmen and other employees, and other usual and ordinary operating expenses of such association; and commitments on its incomplete loans or investments; provided, however, that an association on notice or on a pro rata basis shall not pay any dividends on its stock or distribute any profits to its stockholders or make any loans or investments, except loans or investments pursuant to its obligations incurred before it became an association on notice. Moreover, regardless of whether or not an association is on notice or on a pro rata basis, its obligation to pay matured withdrawal claims, and the right of shareholders and certificate holders to receive payment of matured withdrawal claims, shall be limited to payments from its cash on hand or in bank, proceeds from sale of investments and loans and other cash receipts of such association; and if the association is on notice or on a pro rata basis, shall be further limited to payments pursuant to the subsequent provisions of this section.

Payment of withdrawal claims when association on notice.

If the sum of all matured withdrawal claims exceeds the amount available for that purpose, then, if the association is on notice but is not on a pro rata basis, payment of such matured withdrawal claims shall be made, to the extent of the funds from time to time available for that purpose, as follows:

First: To the payment of withdrawals in respect of investment certificates pursuant to section 6.01 of this act, to the payment of definite term investment certificates which have reached the date of their maturity and to withdrawals through payments following notice of modifications pursuant to section 5.07 of this act, without preference of one type of such withdrawal over the other, according to the priority in time of the maturity of the claims for such withdrawals, which in the case of withdrawals pursuant to said section 6.01 shall be deemed to be the time notice of intention of such withdrawal shall have matured, in the case of withdrawals through payment of definite term investment certificates shall be deemed to be the date of maturity of such certificates, and in the case of withdrawals through payments following notice of modifications pursuant to section 5.07 of this act shall be deemed to be the date of the expiration of the period of such notice of modifications; provided that as between the holders of certificates upon which the claim for withdrawal shall have matured at the same time, payment shall be made in the order of demand for or notice of such withdrawal, which in the case of definite term investment certificates shall be deemed to be the date of issuance thereof.

Second: To the payment of withdrawals in respect of shares pursuant to sections 3.05 and 6.01 of this act and withdrawals through payment of matured shares pursuant to section 3.03 of this act, without preference of one type of such withdrawal over the other, according to the priority in time of the maturity of the claims for such withdrawals, which in the case of withdrawals pursuant to said sections 3.05 and 6.01 shall be deemed to be the time notice of intention of such withdrawal shall have matured and in the case of withdrawals through payment of matured shares pursuant to said section 3.03 shall be deemed to be the time such shares shall be declared by the board to be matured. In respect of shares so declared to be matured at the same time, then such payment shall be made in the order provided in the by-laws, or in the absence of such provision in the numerical order of issuance.

Exceptions

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this act, however, any association which is on notice but not on a pro rata basis may at its option pay in each month, with or without requiring notice of intention to withdraw, and regardless of the nonpayment of any or all matured withdrawal claims, not to exceed fifty dollars per person to any one or more of its shareholders or certificate holders; and withdrawals may be made at any time from pledged shares and investment certificates, whether or not the association is on notice or on a pro rata basis, and without notice, provided the full amounts of such withdrawals shall be used to pay the indebtedness for which such shares or investment certificates are pledged, or any part thereof; and provided further that in the case of loans upon the mutual plan, such withdrawals without notice shall be permitted only at the option of the association unless the entire indebtedness shall be simultaneously paid.

If the sum of all matured withdrawal claims exceeds the amount available for that purpose, then, if the association is on a pro rata basis, payment of such matured withdrawal claims shall be made once in each period of three months, to the extent of the funds available for that purpose, as follows:

Payment of withdrawal claims when association on pro rata basis.

First: To all matured withdrawal claims in respect of investment certificates until all sums payable thereon are paid and, as between several holders thereof, pro rata according to the unpaid principal thereof at the time of each such payment

Second: To all matured withdrawal claims in respect of shares until all sums payable thereon are paid and, as between the several holders thereof, pro rata according to the unpaid value thereof at the time of each such payment.

No association shall make any contract waiving in any manner any of the provisions of this section and, if any such contract shall be so made, such contract shall be void.

Nothing contained in this act is intended or shall be construed to impair the obligations of any contract existing at the effective date of this act in respect of the withdrawal or other rights of the holders of shares or investment certificates then outstanding, and the withdrawal and other rights of such holders shall continue to be governed by the obligations of their respective contracts, regardless of the provisions of this act. The provisions of this act, however, shall govern the withdrawal and other rights of the holders of all shares and investment certificates hereafter issued and shall also govern, to the extent that the same do not impair the obligations of contracts existing at the effective date of this act, the withdrawal and other rights of holders of shares and investment certificates then outstanding.

Except as otherwise provided in this act in respect of shares and investment certificates pledged to the association issuing the same and except as otherwise so provided in respect of payments in each month not to exceed fifty dollars per person to any one or more shareholders or certificate holders, no association on notice or on a pro rata basis shall pay any withdrawals except upon matured notice of intention to withdraw, nor allow the withdrawal of any definite term investment certificate before the expressed date of its maturity; provided, however, that an association on notice but not on a pro rata basis may pay withdrawals before the maturity of such notices if such withdrawals are paid in the order provided in section 6.02 of this act in respect of associations on notice and not on a pro rata basis; and provided further that an association on a pro rata basis shall pay withdrawals of definite term investment certificates after the maturity of notices of intention to withdraw subject to the same conditions as investment certificates of other classes. Any agreement contrary to the provisions of this section shall be void.

SEC. 6.05. Delay in paying after one year. Whenever an association shall have been on a pro rata basis for a period of one year, the commissioner may in his discretion forthwith or at any time thereafter take possession of the property, business and assets of such association and retain such possession until its affairs be finally liquidated in the manner provided by law for the liquidation of associations by him, or until such association may be allowed to resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by the commissioner. The right of the commissioner to take possession under this section is not exclusive, but is additional to his right to take possession under each and every other provision of this act.

SEC. 6.06. Payments received while on pro rata basis. In the event of the liquidation or dissolution of any association which shall have been on a pro rata basis, then notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 13.16 of this act or elsewhere in this act, all sums paid in to such association on investment certificates or shares after such association shall have been on a pro rata basis shall be repaid in full before any payments shall be made to other certificate holders or other creditors or other shareholders, or to stockholders. An association which has issued and outstanding both shares and investment certificates shall not, while on a pro rata basis, accept any money on account of free shares. No association while it is on a pro rata basis shall accept any money on account of investment certificates or shares if the commissioner in writing shall have directed the association not to accept such money.

SEC. 6.07. Minimum amount of withdrawals. At least eighty per cent of the aggregate value of all shares and investment certificates hereafter issued by each association shall be evidenced by certificates which shall expressly provide that the holder thereof shall have no right to withdraw less than the entire amount evidenced thereby, except that at the option of each association such certificates or any thereof may provide that such holder shall have the right to withdraw the sum of one hundred dollars or multiples thereof. On certificates hereafter issued containing such provision, no withdrawals shall be permitted of amounts less than those prescribed in such respective certificates. The provisions of this section, however, shall not be applicable to associations issuing neither stock nor investment certificates.

Mutual associations.

SEC. 6.08. Withdrawals from associations not issuing stock or investment certificates. The provisions of this section shall not be applicable to any association issuing stock or investment certificates, but shall be applicable to any association not issuing either stock or investment certificates in the event, but only in the event, its by-laws expressly provide that this section shall be applicable to such association. In such case, the provisions of the preceding sections of this article shall also be applicable to such associations, but only if and to the extent that they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this section. In all such associations, holders of free shares therein desiring to withdraw in whole or in part may do so by giving notice thereof in writing of the amount desired to be withdrawn. At all times the right of shareholders to receive payment of withdrawals shall be secondary and subsequent to the right of such association to pay and to provide reasonable reserves for the payment of the following: dividends on shares, taxes, assessments, insurance, amounts necessary to fulfill previous loan commitments, and other sums necessary to protect and preserve its properties and its interests in properties (including those on the security of which it holds loans);

principal and interest on borrowings by such association; rent, compensation of officers, agents, salesmen and other employees, and other usual and ordinary operating expenses of such association.

When

on notice

While such association is on notice and subject to the foregoing provisions, not more than one-half of the net monthly receipts from assets then owned, in any one month, shall be applied to withdrawals for that month without the consent of the board of directors, and such payment shall continue until the value of all shares with respect to which notices of withdrawal are on file has been reduced to an amount less than three per cent of the value of all outstanding shares. No shareholders shall be permitted to withdraw whose shares are pledged to the association as security for a loan until such loan is fully paid. Whenever the demands of withdrawing shareholders exceed the money applicable to their payment, the notices of intention to withdraw must be registered in the order of filing and while such association is on notice payments thereon must be made in succession in the order that such notices were filed and registered. The remaining one-half of net receipts of such association may be used, in the discretion of the board of directors, for payment of withdrawals not noticed, subject to such limitations as the board of directors may fix, and for the operating expenses of the business and for making loans to members, or applied, in the discretion of the board of directors, to payment of withdrawals on notice. Such association shall at no time be on a pro rata basis, except as hereinafter provided.

New
investments.

All new investments by shareholders after such association is on notice, whether made upon shares already issued or upon new shares issued, shall have priority and shall have a prior right of withdrawal as against all other shareholders.

Withdrawal

Whenever an application for withdrawal of free shares shall have been on file, or the payment of matured shares demanded, and either shall have remained unpaid for a period of one year, all the receipts of such association from dues, interest, premium, loans repaid, and the proceeds of all other investments, shall, after the payment of expenses and general indebtedness, be applied toward the payment of withdrawals and maturities; and the board of directors or the commissioner may direct that such payments shall be made upon a ratable and proportionate basis. Whenever such application or demands, whether heretofore or hereafter made, have been on file and remain unpaid in whole or in part for more than two years the commissioner may in his discretion forthwith take possession of the property and business of such association, and retain such possession until its affairs be finally liquidated in the manner provided by law for the liquidation of associations by him, or until such association may be allowed to resume business upon such conditions as may be approved by the commissioner.

Article VII—Assessments.

SEC. 7.01. Stockholders' liability to creditors. The stockholders of each association issuing stock shall be held individually liable, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such association, including investment certificates and shares, to the extent of the amount of their stock therein, at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such stock. The stockholders in any association who shall have transferred their stock or registered the transfer thereof within sixty days next preceding the date upon which the commissioner, or a receiver or trustee of any association appointed by any court, shall have taken possession of the property, business and assets of such association, or who shall have so transferred their stock or registered the transfer thereof with knowledge of impending failure, shall be liable as if they had made no such transfer, to the extent that the subsequent transferee fails to meet such liability; but this provision shall not be construed to affect in any way any recourse which such stockholders might otherwise have against those in whose names such stock is registered at the time of such failure or taking possession. Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians or trustees shall not be personally subject to any liabilities as stockholders; but the estates and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward or person interested in such trust funds would be if living and competent to act and hold such stock in his own name.

Stockholders' liability:

SEC. 7.02. Assessments to enforce stockholders' liability. The liability of stockholders pursuant to section 7.01 of this act shall be enforced exclusively pursuant to this section and the next succeeding three sections of this act. Whenever the commissioner, or a receiver or trustee of any association appointed by any court, being in lawful possession of the property, business and assets of such association, shall determine that it is necessary to do so for the purpose of paying the contracts, debts and engagements of such association, such officer may enforce the said individual liability of the stockholders, and for such purpose may levy a ratable assessment upon the stockholders of such association without previous judicial ascertainment of the necessity for such action and the action of such officer in levying such assessment shall be conclusive on the stockholders as to the necessity for such assessment. Said order levying said assessment shall specify the amount thereof and shall fix a date on which said assessment shall be due and payable which date shall not be less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the time of making the order levying the assessment; and shall fix a place or places for the payment of said assessment. Notice of said assessment shall be given by causing a copy of said order to be personally served on each stockholder, or in lieu of personal service shall be mailed to each stockholder at his place of residence or business, as shown on the books of such association, and if such books show no such address then at the city or town where the principal office in this state of such association is situated. Said copies of said order shall be personally served or placed in the mail within fifteen days after the making of the order levying the assessment.

Actions to enforce liability.

SEC. 7.03. Actions to enforce stockholders' liability. If any stockholder of such association shall fail to pay said assessment in full upon the date specified in said order as the date on which said assessment shall be due and payable, a right of action shall immediately accrue to the commissioner or receiver or trustee in possession of the property, business and assets of such association to recover the amount of said assessment or the amount remaining unpaid thereon from the stockholder or stockholders failing to pay said assessment in full. Such officer shall have full power to maintain an action or actions in this state, or in any other state or country, to enforce and collect any sum or amounts due and payable and remaining unpaid upon any such assessment from any stockholder or stockholders failing to pay the same in full; and in any such action such officer may join as defendants one or more stockholders; and in any such action such officer shall have the right of attachment as in other actions upon unsecured debts; provided, however, that such officer maintaining such actions in the courts of this state shall not be required to give bond on attachment or pay filing fees or other court costs.

Use in liquidation

SEC. 7.04. Disposition of assessment collections. All sums collected from any such assessment, less the expenses of collection, shall be used in the liquidation of claims in the same manner as the assets of the association are so used. If any such assessment shall prove inadequate to pay all of the claims in full, such officer may levy further assessment or assessments and proceed to collect the same in like manner so long as the total of such assessments does not exceed the liability set forth in section 7.01 of this act. If, after the payment of all claims against such association and the costs and expenses of liquidation, any surplus shall remain, the court having jurisdiction shall determine and provide for any equities as between the respective stockholders, including the proportions belonging to each stockholder and of any surplus of any of the assets remaining after payment of all liabilities and the costs and expenses of liquidation by reason of full or partial payment of any such assessment or assessments, and shall direct the payment thereof by the commissioner, receiver or trustee accordingly.

Payment to stockholders

Successor-ship of receivers.

SEC. 7.05. One officer deemed successor of another. In the event the commissioner, or a receiver or trustee of any association appointed by any court, after having been in possession of the property, business and assets of such association, and after having instituted or taken any steps in relation to any assessment or assessments or the collection thereof, shall be succeeded in such possession by another of such officers, or in the event of two or more such successions, then such officer at the time in possession of the property, business and assets of such association shall have authority to carry forward and complete such assessment or assessments and all actions and proceedings in relation thereto, as fully as if such officer had instituted the same and had previously taken all steps theretofore taken by such predecessor officer or officers in respect of the same; it being the purpose and intent of this section that each of such officers, upon succeeding to such possession previously held by any other or others of such officers, shall have the benefit of, and shall be bound by, all assessments, and all actions, proceedings and transactions in relation thereto, theretofore instituted, taken or conducted by such predecessor officer or officers in respect of such assessments and the enforcement thereof, including all collections and recoveries by such predecessor officer or officers.

SEC. 7.06. Assessments to restore impaired capital. Whenever it shall appear from the report of any association, or the commissioner shall have reason to believe, that the value of the assets of any association after first deducting therefrom the amount of liabilities of such association, including its outstanding investment certificates and shares at the value thereof, is less than the aggregate par value of its outstanding stock, or, in the case of an association issuing both stock and investment certificates, is less than the investment certificate reserve required for such association pursuant to section 5.03 of this act, it shall be the duty of the commissioner and he shall have the power to examine such association and ascertain the facts, and in case he finds that such deficiency exists he shall require such association to make good such deficiency within sixty days after the date of such requisition. The directors of every such association upon which such request shall have been made, shall levy an assessment upon the stock thereof to repair such deficiency, and shall cause notice of such request to be given to each stockholder of such association and of the amount of the assessment which he must pay for the purpose of making good such deficiency. If any stockholder shall refuse or neglect to pay the assessment specified in such notice within thirty days from the date of mailing or serving such notice, the directors of such association shall have the right to sell to the highest bidder at public auction the stock of such stockholder, after giving a previous notice of such sale for ten days in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the principal office in this state of such association is located, and a copy of such notice of sale shall also be served on such stockholder by being served personally on him or by mailing to his last known address ten days before the day fixed for such sale, or such stock may be sold at a private sale and without such public notice; provided, however, that before making such private sale thereof an offer in writing shall first be obtained and a copy thereof served upon the owner of record of the stock to be sold, either personally or by mailing a copy of such offer to his last known address, and if, after service of such offer, such owner shall still refuse or neglect to pay such assessment within two weeks from the time of the service of such offer, the said directors may accept such offer and sell such stock to the person making such offer, or to any other person or persons making a larger offer than the amount named in the offer submitted to the stockholders; but such stock shall in no event be sold for a smaller sum than the valuation put on it by the commissioner in his determination and requisition as to such assessment, nor for less than the amount of such assessment so called for and the expense of sale. Out of the avails of the stock so sold, the directors shall pay the amount of assessment levied thereon, and the necessary cost of sale, and the balance, if any, shall be paid to the person or persons whose stock has thus been sold. A sale of stock as herein provided shall effect an absolute cancellation of the outstanding certificate or certificates evidencing the stock so sold, and shall make the same null and void and a new certificate shall be issued by the association to the purchaser thereof.

Stockholders' liability limitation

SEC. 7.07. Limitation of liability. Except as provided in the six preceding sections of this act stockholders, after their stock has been fully paid, shall have no liability whatever to creditors nor for assessments upon their stock; provided, however, that if the articles of incorporation expressly confer such authority, and subject to any limitations therein contained, the directors of any association may in their discretion levy and collect assessments upon stock, which assessments shall be levied, collected and enforced in the manner and subject to the provisions set forth in title one of part four of division one of the Civil Code of this state in respect of assessments upon stockholders of corporations generally. Shareholders and certificate holders shall have no liability whatever to creditors nor for assessments.

Article VIII—Miscellaneous Provisions Affecting Investors.

Voting rights.

SEC. 8.01. Voting rights. Except as otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or by-laws pursuant to this section, the shareholders and stockholders of domestic associations shall each have one vote for each one hundred dollars par value of shares or stock held by them; provided, however, that associations authorized by their articles of incorporation or by-laws to issue both shares and stock may provide in their articles of incorporation or by-laws that a majority of the board of directors shall be elected by the stockholders; and provided further that associations authorized to issue shares may provide in their articles of incorporation or by-laws that the holders of installment, accumulative or prepaid shares shall have lesser voting rights than holders of full paid shares and may provide the extent thereof which may vary according to the value of such installment, accumulative or prepaid shares. Certificate holders shall have no voting rights, except such voting rights, if any, as shall be expressly provided in the by-laws.

SEC. 8.02 Entrance and transfer fees. Every association shall have power pursuant to its by-laws to charge and collect a transfer fee not exceeding ten cents on each share or investment certificate, all of which fees shall be accounted for by the association like other funds of the association. No other fee, charge or deduction of principal shall ever be made or permitted to be made against any shareholder or certificate holder or against any of his shares or certificates hereafter issued, or the dues paid in thereon, for the purpose of creating a fund to be used in the payment of current or running expenses; provided that any domestic association hereafter incorporated which does not propose to issue either stock or investment certificates may charge an entrance fee for each share for the purpose of accumulating an organization fund, which entrance fees as to amount, period and other conditions shall be first approved by the commissioner and shall not exceed one dollar on each one hundred dollars of the par value of such shares. No part of the sums paid for such entrance fees shall be used directly or indirectly to pay commission or compensation on account of the subscription to or sale of such shares, or for the collection of such entrance fees.

SEC. 8.03. Minors and married women. Every association, in addition to being entitled to issue investment certificates to adults, firms or corporations, shall also have power to issue one or more investment certificates to a minor of any age and receive payments thereon by or for such minor. If such minor be fourteen years of age or over, he shall be entitled to withdraw, transfer or pledge any such certificate owned by him and to receive from such association any and all interest or other moneys at any time becoming due thereon in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as an adult, and his receipt or acquittance therefor shall constitute a valid release and discharge to the association for the payment of such money. Every association shall have power to issue shares and investment certificates to or in the name of a married woman and to receive payments thereon by or for such person. Such shares or certificates shall be held by such married woman for the exclusive right and benefit of such person free from the control or lien of all other persons except creditors. Such shares or certificates may, subject to the provisions of this act in respect of withdrawals generally, be withdrawn by and the dividends or interest accruing thereon may be paid to the person in whose name such shares or certificates are issued, notwithstanding coverture, and the receipt or acquittance of such person shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge to the association for such withdrawals or payments, or any part thereof.

tenants

SEC. 8.04. Joint tenants. When shares or investment certificates are issued in the name of two or more persons as joint tenants or in form to be paid to any of them or the survivor or survivors of them, such shares or certificates and all dues paid on account thereof by either or any of such persons shall become the property of such persons as joint tenants and the same, together with all dividends and interest thereon, shall be held for the exclusive use of such persons and may be paid to either or any of them during their lifetime or to the survivor or survivors of them after the death of one or more of them, and such payment and the receipt or acquittance of the person or persons to whom such payment is made as aforesaid shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge to such association for all payments made on account of such shares or certificates prior to the receipt by such association of notice in writing not to make payments in accordance with the terms of such shares or certificates. The purchase or acceptance of shares or investment certificates in such form shall, in the absence of fraud or undue influence, be conclusive evidence, in any action or proceeding to which either the association or the surviving share or certificate holder or holders may be a party, of the intention of such share or certificate holders to vest title to such shares or certificates and dues paid on account thereof and dividends and interest thereon in such survivor or survivors.

Trustees, guardians

SEC. 8.05. Trustees and guardians. Every association shall have power to issue shares and investment certificates to one or more persons or corporations as trustee or guardian for another or for others. The association shall not be liable to beneficiaries or wards for moneys paid to their trustees or guardians on account of such shares or certificates. Whenever a person holding shares or investment certificates in either such capacity dies and no notice of the terms, revocation or termination of the trust or guardianship shall have been given in writing to the association, the withdrawal or other value of the shares or investment certificates or any part thereof may be paid to the beneficiary or ward; and if no beneficiary or ward has been designated in writing to the association, the withdrawal or other value or any part thereof may be paid to the trustee's or guardian's executor or administrator. Payment as aforesaid by any association shall be a valid and sufficient release and discharge to such association for such payment.

Any association may sell, convey, lease, exchange, improve, repair, mortgage, convey in trust, pledge or encumber any real or personal property purchased or acquired by it pursuant to this section; and loans made by an association for the purpose of facilitating the sale of property owned by such association shall not be subject to the restrictions hereinafter imposed by this act in respect of loans.

SEC. 9.04. Types of loans. Loans may be made upon the "mutual plan" or upon the "definite contract plan." Loans made upon the mutual plan shall be accompanied by a pledge of shares having a matured or par value equal to the face of the loan. Subject to the provisions of this act loans upon the definite contract plan shall be repayable at a designated time or in installments to be specified in the notes or other obligations evidencing such loans.

For the purposes of this act an "amortized loan" shall be one evidenced by a note or other obligation providing for reduction of principal by installments to be paid at least semiannually commencing not later than one year after the date of such loan, which installments may include interest and, either as to principal alone or as to combined principal and interest, shall be prorated equally over a term of months or years, to be stipulated in such note or other obligation, until the principal amount of such loan has been reduced at least fifty per cent of its original amount; provided that if such note or other obligation calls for such installments retiring the full principal amount of such loan, such term of months or years shall not be longer than fifteen years and that if such note or other obligation does not call for such installments retiring the full principal amount of such loan, such term of months or years shall not be longer than nine years, except that in either case the commissioner may by rules permit and prescribe a longer maximum term in the case of amortized loans upon particular classes of security, which classes he shall have power to prescribe and define; and provided further that in the case of loans evidenced by notes or obligations which do not call for such installments reducing the full principal amount of such loans, the loans evidenced thereby shall cease to be amortized loans after the date of the last obligatory installment payment. In the case of each association at least ninety per cent in unpaid principal of its loans in force at any one time shall be amortized loans; and at least eighty per cent in unpaid principal amount of its loans in force at any one time shall be amortized loans calling for equal monthly installments, either of principal alone or of combined principal and interest.

No association at any one time shall have invested an amount in excess of ten per cent of the aggregate unpaid principal amount of all its loans then in force in (a) loans which do not provide for reduction of principal at least semi-annually by installments commencing not later than one year after the date of such loans; (b) loans which provide for reduction of principal at least semiannually but upon which payments of principal shall have been waived or deferred by the association for a period of more than six consecutive months, and (c) loans which originally provided for reduction of principal at least semiannually by installments, on which loans all such principal installments have been paid except the final payment not to become due within six months; provided, however, that any loans included in (a) and (b) above on which principal installment payments have been commenced or resumed shall not be included for the purpose of the foregoing provision.

ments on loans.

Subject to the foregoing limitations loans may be made by an association for a period of not to exceed three years without provision for reduction of principal, but on such loans the note or other obligation must provide either for payment of the entire principal within not to exceed three years or for reduction of principal at least semiannually by installments commencing not later than three years after the date of such loan, which installments may include interest and, either as to principal alone or as to combined principal and interest, shall be prorated equally over a term of months or years to be stipulated in such note or obligation until the principal amount of such loan has been reduced at least fifty per cent of its original amount; provided that if such note or other obligation calls for such installments retiring the full principal amount of such loan, such term of months or years shall not be longer than fifteen years, and that if such note or other obligation does not call for such installments retiring the full principal amount of such loan, such term of months or years shall not be longer than nine years, except that in either case the commissioner may by rules permit and prescribe a longer maximum term in the case of loans upon particular classes of security, which classes he shall have power to prescribe and define.

Solely for the purposes of this section and section 9.05 of this act but not for any other purpose, on loans made on the mutual plan where the installments are applied in payment of its own membership shares pledged therewith, such installments together with the accumulated earnings thereon shall be construed as having been applied to the principal of such loans. In the case of all loans hereafter made on the mutual plan, the note or other obligation shall expressly provide that in the event such association shall thereafter sell, exchange, transfer, pledge, hypothecate or otherwise dispose of or encumber such note, or in the event such association shall thereafter be liquidated, either voluntarily or involuntarily, then the value of the shares pledged therewith plus the accrued earnings thereon to the date of such sale, disposition or encumbrance or to the date of the commencement of such liquidation, shall be applied first to advances on account of such loans, second to the interest due thereon, and third to the principal thereof; and said shares from that time shall be deemed surrendered to the association and canceled. In computing accrued earnings for the foregoing purpose, the rate used in the last apportionment shall be applied. The rights and obligations of the person executing such note or other obligation, subsequent to such sale, exchange, transfer, pledge, hypothecation or other disposal shall be set forth in such note or other obligation.

For each loan made a note or other obligation expressing the rate of interest must be executed by the borrower and must be secured either (a) by a first mortgage or first trust deed upon fee title to real property pursuant to section 9.05 of this act, or (b) by the pledge of free shares or investment certificates of such association pursuant to section 9.06 of this act, or (c) by the pledge of bonds or other collateral pursuant to section 9.07 of this act.

SEC. 9.05. Loans upon real property. Loans may be made upon the security of improved real property in an amount not in excess of sixty per cent of the appraised value or market value, whichever is less, of such real property; provided, however, that amortized loans may be made in an amount not in excess of seventy per cent of the appraised value or market value, whichever is less, of such real property; provided further that amortized loans upon the security of improved real property may be made in an amount not in excess of eighty per cent of the appraised value or market value, whichever is less, of such real property, subject to each and all of the following conditions in the case of each such loan exceeding seventy per cent: (1) the principal improvement on such real property shall consist of a single family dwelling; (2) such loan shall not exceed six thousand dollars in principal amount; and (3) the note or other obligation evidencing such loan shall provide for reduction of principal by monthly installments commencing in the case of a construction loan not later than six months after the date of such loan, and in case of any other loan not later than one month after the date of such loan.

No association at any one time shall have invested in loans upon the security of unimproved real property an amount in excess of three per cent of the aggregate principal amount of all its loans then in force, but subject to such limitation loans may be made upon the security of unimproved real property in an amount not in excess of thirty-three and one-third per cent of the appraised value or market value, whichever is less, of such real property.

Additional
security.

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this act, a mortgage, trust deed or pledge, whether or not the same be a first encumbrance or charge, on property, either improved or unimproved and either real or personal, may be taken at any time and without limit as additional security for loans otherwise permitted by this act.

Construction
loans

In respect of any loan made upon the security of real property for the purpose of erecting, with the proceeds of such loan, a building or buildings upon such real property, such real property shall be deemed to be "improved real property" rather than "unimproved real property" within the meaning of this section, and the building or buildings to be erected shall be deemed to be improvements on such real property within the meaning of this section, and the value of such proposed building or buildings shall be included in the appraised value and market value of such real property; provided, however, that at no time shall the amount advanced by the association on such loan exceed the ratio of loan to value authorized by this section in respect to such loan, excluding from such value the value of such proposed building or buildings but including in such value the actual cost of such building or buildings to such time.

Approved
appraisers

No loan shall be made upon the appraisalment of, nor shall compensation for any appraisalment be paid to, any appraiser, officer or member of any committee who shall not have been first approved in writing by the commissioner for such association. Such approval may be subject to such limitations as may be provided by the commissioner, and may be revoked, for cause, after a hearing and due notice thereof first given to the appraiser and the association.

Loans on shares and
certificates

SEC. 9.06. Loans upon shares and investment certificates. Loans secured by the pledge of free shares or investment certificates may be made to the extent of not more than ninety per cent of the then value of such shares or investment certificates. Such loans, together with interest and arrearages due or accrued thereon, may be repaid at any time without the payment of any premium or bonus interest, and upon such payment being made the security pledged therefor shall be surrendered.

Collateral
security

SEC. 9.07. Loans upon collateral security. Loans secured by the pledge of notes or other obligations may be made by any association to the extent of not more than ninety per cent of the unpaid principal of such notes or other obligations, if such notes or other obligations evidence loans which at the time of such collateral loans thereon, such association would be authorized to make pursuant to this act in an amount at least equal to the unpaid principal of such notes or other obligations. Loans secured by the pledge of bonds, treasury certificates, notes, mortgage participation certificates or other securities referred to in subdivisions (3), (4), (5), (6), (7) and (8) of section 9.02 may be made by any association to the extent of not more than ninety per cent of the unpaid principal amount or market value thereof, whichever is less, if at the time of such collateral loans thereon such association would be authorized pursuant to this act to invest in such bonds, treasury certificates, notes, mortgage participation certificates or other securities in an amount at least equal to such unpaid principal amount or market value, whichever is less.

SEC. 9.08. Limitation on single loans. Except with the consent of the commissioner no association issuing investment certificates shall hereafter make any one loan in an amount exceeding twenty-five per cent of the sum of its aggregate paid up nonwithdrawable capital and any surplus or reserve which is not subject to distribution to the shareholders or stockholders except upon dissolution or liquidation; but the provisions of this section shall not apply to any loans which do not exceed ten thousand dollars principal each.

SEC. 9.09. Loans specifically forbidden and penalties. No loans shall be made, for himself or as agent or as partner of another, directly or indirectly, to any director or officer of any association by such association, except that loans may be made to any corporation in which any director or officer of such association may be a minority stockholder, on authorization of or confirmation within thirty days after making such loan by a majority of all the directors of such association and the affirmative vote of all the disinterested directors of such association present at the meeting authorizing or confirming such loan: provided, however, that such loan shall in all other respects conform to and comply with the other provisions of this act. Such interested director or officer shall not vote or participate in any manner in the action of the board upon such loan. Such authorization or confirmation shall be entered upon the records or minutes of such association. The fact of making such loan, the names of the directors authorizing or confirming such loan, the corporate name of the borrower, the name of each director or officer of such association who is a stockholder, officer or director of the corporation to which such loan is made, the amount of stock held by him in such borrowing corporation, the amount of such loan, the rate of interest thereon, the time when such loan will become due, the amount, character and value of the security given therefor and the fact of final payment, when made, shall be forthwith reported in writing by the association to the commissioner, provided that any loan made to any corporation of which any director, officer, agent or employee of such association owns not more than five per cent of the paid-in capital of such borrowing corporation and any loan made to any corporation of which any two or more directors, officers, agents or employees of such association own not more than twenty per cent of the paid-in capital of such borrowing corporation, need not be reported to the commissioner. No loan may be made to any corporation a majority of the stock of which is owned or controlled by any one or more of the directors or officers, or officers and directors, of such association collectively, except with the previous consent of the commissioner. Any officer or director of any association who knowingly violates any of the previous provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony. Any officer, director or employee of any association who asks or receives or consents or agrees to receive any commission, emolument, gratuity or reward or any money, property or any thing of value for his own personal benefit or of personal advantage for procuring or endeavoring to procure for any person, firm or corporation any loan from such association shall be guilty of a felony. It shall be unlawful for an association to loan any of its funds upon any of its stock as security. It shall be unlawful for any association to make any loan to, or purchase any loan or investment from, the commissioner or any deputy, attorney, examiner, accountant or appraiser appointed or employed by him. Any officer or director of an association who shall make any such loan for and on behalf of any association shall be personally liable to such association for the full amount thereof and shall also be guilty of a felony. It shall be unlawful for any association to make or purchase any loan or investment not authorized by this act; and any officer or director who on behalf of any such association shall knowingly make or purchase any loan or investment not authorized by this act or who shall knowingly consent thereto shall be personally liable to such association for the full amount of any such loan or investment and he shall also be guilty of a public offense and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not exceeding five years, or in a county jail not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Dealing in loans

SEC. 9.10. Purchases, sales and pledges of loans. An association may purchase any notes or other obligations, together with the mortgages, trust deeds or other security therefor, if such notes or obligations evidence loans which, at the time of such purchase, such association would be authorized to make pursuant to this act in an amount at least equal to the amount so purchased. No association shall sell, exchange, transfer, pledge, hypothecate or otherwise dispose of or encumber any notes or other obligations held by it, evidencing any loan made or purchased by it, or the mortgages, trust deeds or other security therefor, except with the approval of the commissioner; provided that any association may, without the necessity of obtaining such approval, sell and transfer without recourse any of the notes or other obligations held by it, together with the mortgages, trust deeds and other security therefor, to any bank, trust company or insurance company, or to any other association which is in nowise affiliated with such association, or to the holder of a junior encumbrance upon the same property; and provided that any association may, without the necessity of obtaining such approval, pledge or otherwise hypothecate any of the notes or other obligations held by it, together with the mortgages, trust deeds and other security therefor, to the extent permitted by section 9.11 of this act.

SEC. 9.11. Borrowings. No association shall borrow money except through the issuance of investment certificates or otherwise as authorized by this section. An association may borrow money, otherwise than through the issuance of investment certificates, for a period of not more than one year provided that the aggregate amount of all such borrowings in force at any one time shall not exceed five per cent of the then total assets of such association, except with the approval of the commissioner. No excess loan made to any association, however, shall be invalid or illegal as to the lender. An association, as security for such borrowings, may pledge, hypothecate or otherwise encumber any of the notes, bonds or other securities held by such association, together with the mortgages, trust deeds and other security therefor, provided the unpaid principal amount of such notes, bonds or other securities so pledged, hypothecated or otherwise encumbered shall not exceed one hundred fifty per cent of the amount borrowed by such association, except with the approval of the commissioner.

Apportionment of profits dividend on shares

Sec. 10.03. Apportionment of profits. Profits and losses shall be apportioned at least annually. In computing earnings or dividends on shares, the rate shall be applied to the value thereof, subject to regulations prescribed by the by-laws or directors in respect of payments on such shares since the last prior apportionment. If the loan reserve mentioned in this section shall not equal five per cent of the aggregate unpaid principal amount of the outstanding loans at the time of each apportionment of profits, the directors, before declaring any dividends, shall set aside as a loan reserve not less than five per cent of the net profits accruing since the last prior apportionment and shall continue so to do until said loan reserve shall amount to at least five per cent of the aggregate unpaid principal amount of the loans in force. If at any time thereafter said loan reserve shall be in anywise impaired, it shall thereafter be restored in like manner. In the case of each association said loan reserve shall include such sum as may, at the effective date of this act, be in such association's reserve fund mentioned in section 641 of the Civil Code of this state; and also such other sum, if any, as the directors of such association may transfer from its surplus or undivided profits to said loan reserve. Every association issuing stock may, in addition to a dividend on such stock at a rate equal to that declared and paid or credited on installment shares, if any, set aside from and out of the net profits, if any, at each annual distribution thereof an amount not exceeding one per cent per annum on the average loans in force during such period, or a proportionate amount at each semiannual, quarterly or other distribution, from which to declare additional dividends on its stock; provided, however, that at least one-tenth of the amount so set aside shall be carried to stock surplus until such surplus shall amount to at least twenty-five per cent of the par value of the outstanding stock, and if at any time thereafter such stock surplus shall be in anywise impaired, it shall thereafter be restored in like manner. Subject to the requirements of this section as to the loan reserve and stock surplus, and subject to the provisions of other sections of this act expressly restricting the declaration or payment of dividends, the directors of any association issuing stock and not issuing shares may make, declare and pay dividends on the stock of so much of the surplus profits arising from the business thereof as to them appears advisable.

In the discretion of the commissioner such reports may be required in the case of any or all associations quarterly or semiannually, in lieu of annually. Such writing shall, if it is definitely stated therein that the same is a power of attorney, be considered as a power of attorney and the person, copartnership or corporation therein appointed and his or its directors, officers, employees, and agents shall have no greater authority, ostensible, actual or otherwise, to bind the association than is therein set forth or otherwise conferred in writing subscribed by such association. Any such appointment in writing may from time to time be amended or superseded by a written instrument and copies or duplicates thereof similarly executed, filed and retained. Any such appointment or amendment or superseding instrument may at any time be revoked by written revocation filed with the commissioner by the association which executed the same.

SEC. 11.03. Bonds. Each applicant for a license as agent or salesman shall file with the commissioner a bond in the amount of one thousand dollars, or more in the discretion of the commissioner, in favor of the commissioner for the benefit of any person, firm or corporation sustaining injury, duly executed by such applicant as principal and by a sufficient surety or sureties to be approved by the commissioner. Said bond shall be conditioned upon the payment of all loss or damages suffered by any person, firm or corporation incurring loss or damaged or defrauded by reason of the violation by such principal of any of the provisions of this act or by reason of any fraud of such principal connected with or growing out of any transaction in which such principal shall have acted as agent or salesman (as the case may be) and shall also be conditioned upon the payment to the association of any loss of moneys or property or either of them by reason of any dishonesty on the part of such principal and his or its employees and if such principal be a corporation, its officers, directors and employees, while licensed under this act. Any person, firm or corporation, including the association, who sustains an injury covered by such bond or by the failure of such principal, and his or its employees, or if it be a corporation, its officers, directors or employees, to perform their duties or to comply with the provisions of this act, shall have the right in his or its own name to commence an action against such principal and the surety or sureties on such bond for the recovery of damages resulting from such injuries or any of them. SEC. 11.04. Issuance of licenses. Application for the issuance of an agent's license or a salesman's license shall be made by paying the commissioner the fee for such license and by filing with the commissioner: (a) a verified application in such form as the commissioner shall from time to time require, giving references at least five in number and information as to the honesty, integrity, experience and ability of the applicant if a natural person, or of the copartners if a copartnership, or of the officers and directors and employees to be directly in charge of the business involved if a corporation; (b) a request from an association licensed by the commissioner for the issuance of such agent's license or salesman's license, as the case may be; (c) a copy or duplicate of a written appointment by such association of the applicant as the agent or salesman of such association; and (d) the bond in section 11.03 of this act mentioned. Upon receipt of the foregoing, the commissioner, if satisfied as to the honesty, integrity and qualifications of the applicant, shall issue such license. Otherwise he shall refuse to issue such license; provided, however, that no such license shall be refused until the applicant and the association involved have each been given an opportunity on at least ten days' written notice to be heard and produce evidence in support of the application. Licenses shall be in such form as the commissioner shall prescribe and each license may be limited to such territory as the association may request and each license shall state that the authority of the licensee is derived from and limited by this act and documents on file in the commissioner's office and that it is not a license for a branch of an association; and shall state the full and correct corporate name and principal office of the association involved. An agent's license shall be obtained for each agency and may be issued on request of an association for which the agent holds another agent's license and payment of the regular fee, unless the commissioner shall require an additional application or an additional bond or both. Upon this act going into effect the commissioner shall without charge and upon surrender of any license then in effect, issue in lieu thereof a license complying with this act, provided this act, either before or after its going into effect, has been complied with in all respects except as to the form of application. Upon determining to liquidate an association, the commissioner shall cause an inventory of all the assets of such association to be made in duplicate, the original to be filed with the court and the duplicate in the office of the commissioner. He shall cause notice to be given by publication once a week for four successive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published at or near the principal place of business in this state of such association, to all persons having claims against it as creditors or investors or otherwise, to present and file same and make legal proof thereof at a place and within a time to be designated in such publication, which time shall be not less than two months after such first publication; and within ten days after such first publication he shall cause a copy of such notice to be mailed to all persons whose names appear of record upon its books as creditors or investors; and

Not later than five days after the time of filing such schedule with the court, written notice shall be mailed to all claimants whose claims have been rejected. Action to enforce the payment of or to establish any rejected claim must be brought and service had within four months from and after the date of filing of the schedule of claims with the proper court; otherwise all such actions shall be forever barred. All claims of creditors, investors or other persons against the association or against any property owned or held by it must be presented to the commissioner in writing verified by the claimant or some one in his behalf within the period limited in the above mentioned notice for the presentation of claims; and any claim not so presented shall be forever barred; provided, however, that the claim of any investor, appearing upon the books of the association to be a valid claim, presented after the expiration of the time fixed in said notice, shall be entitled to share in any dividends declared subsequent to the presentation of such claim.

The commissioner may under his hand and official seal appoint one or more special deputies to assist in the duties of liquidation and distribution under his direction and may also employ such special legal counsel, accountants and assistants as may be needful and requisite and fix the salaries and compensation to be allowed and paid to each. From the net realization of assets in excess of such salaries, compensation and expenses, the commissioner shall first pay all approved claims other than to shareholders and stockholders, without distinction or preference as between the claims of certificate holders and other creditors; and thereafter he shall distribute and pay dividends in liquidation first to the shareholders until their claims are fully paid or such assets or funds are exhausted, and second, if any such assets or funds remain, to the stockholders until such assets or funds are exhausted. Such distributions shall be made as funds are available therefor to the extent of ten per cent or more of the approved claims of the class of claimants then entitled to distribution, and shall continue until all the assets have been realized upon and a final dividend in liquidation shall be declared and paid. Upon the payment of a final dividend in liquidation, the commissioner shall prepare and file with the court a full and final statement of the liquidation, including a summary of the receipts and disbursements, and a duplicate thereof shall be filed in the office of the commissioner and after due hearing and approval by the court, the liquidation shall be deemed to be closed.

Disposition
of balance

Whenever in the case of any association which shall have issued stock, the commissioner shall have fully liquidated all claims other than claims of stockholders, and shall have made due provision for any and all known but unclaimed liabilities, excepting claims of stockholders, and shall have paid all expenses of liquidation, then upon the written request of the holders of a majority of the stock of such association any surplus that may then remain in his hands, together with all the records and effects, shall be delivered to the association or its trustees, and thereafter such association or its trustees shall have title thereto free from any claim of the commissioner.

SEC. 3. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, within the meaning of section 1 of article four of the constitution of the State of California and shall take effect immediately. The following is the statement of facts constituting such urgency.

Urgency.

The present economic conditions and conditions of drought do not assure the direct sale of bags to consumers, and the state has been, now is, and, until the taking effect of this act, will be unable to sell or dispose of a supply of jute goods now on hand. The state now has in stock over two hundred fifty thousand dollars worth of such jute goods, which it is the purpose and effect of this act to enable the state, acting through its board of prison directors, to sell, in order that the moneys now invested in said goods may be rendered available to continue the operation of the state prison jute mill, thereby avoiding unemployment of a portion of the prison population.

For the purposes hereof, each seat on the legislative body shall be deemed a separate office. One petition and one election shall be sufficient for the recall of one or more officials. In case a clerk is the officer sought to be recalled, he shall immediately notify the legislative body, and the duties herein provided to be performed by him shall be performed by some other person designated by said legislative body for that purpose, but the time for the performance of such duties shall not begin to run until after such designation. SEC. 4. Within fourteen days after the publication or posting of said notice and statement the officer sought to be recalled or anyone upon his behalf may publish in the same newspaper or post in the same places, as the notice of intention and the accompanying statement, an answer to said statement, but such answer shall not exceed five hundred words in length. Said statement and answer are intended solely for the information of the electors and no insufficiency in the form or substance thereof shall affect in any manner the validity of the proceedings taken hereunder.

circulation

SEC. 5. After the expiration of twenty-one days after the publication or posting of the notice and statement provided for in section 3 hereof, the petition demanding the recall of the officer may be circulated among the qualified electors of said city or town for the submission of signatures. Said petition must bear a copy of the printed or posted notice of intention and accompanying statement and the answer if any made by the officer to said statement. If the officer has not answered them the petition must so state. ports to be thereunto subscribed, and of a qualified elector of the city or town (or particular subdivision thereof.) The term "each separate paper" may include a number of sheets attached together, provided the affiant saw written all the signatures appearing on each of said sheets.

SEC. 8. Within fifteen days from the date of filing such petition, the clerk shall examine and from records of registration ascertain whether or not said petition is signed by the requisite number of qualified electors, and he shall attach to said petition his certificate showing the result of said examination. If by the clerk's certificate the petition is shown to be insufficient, it may be supplemented within fifteen days from the date of such certificate, by the filing of additional papers, duplicates of the original petition except as to the names signed.

SEC. 9. The clerk shall, within fifteen days after such supplementing papers are filed, make like examination of the supplementing petition, and if his certificate shall show that all the names of such petition, including the supplemental papers, are still insufficient, no action shall be taken thereon; but the petition shall remain on file as a public record; and the failure to secure sufficient names shall be without prejudice to the filing later of an entirely new petition to the same effect.

SEC. 10. At any such regular election where the question of the recall of an officer is submitted the ballots for the recording of the vote on a question of such recall must be separate from any other ballots used in such election.

SEC. 12. The clerk shall cause to be printed and mailed to each elector at least ten days prior to the election, sample ballots upon which shall be printed the statement of the proponents which was published with the notice of intention heretofore mentioned, followed by the answer, if any, of the officer sought to be recalled.

There shall also be printed thereon the following question: "Shall (name of person against whom the recall petition is filed) be recalled from the office of (title of the office)?" Following which question shall be the words "Yes" and "No" on separate lines, with a blank space at the right of each, in which the elector shall indicate by stamping a cross (X) his vote for or against such recall. In case more than one person is sought to be recalled at the same election, the statements and answers for each person shall be printed in a separate column, and the question of recall shall be reprinted for each person separately.

SEC. 13. There shall also be printed on the ballot the following question:

"If the recall prevails shall the council fill the vacancy or vacancies by appointment or call a special election for that purpose?" Following the question shall be the words "By appointment" and "By special election" on separate lines, with a blank space at the right of each in which the elector shall indicate by stamping a cross (X) his vote for appointment or election.

Canvass of votes

SEC. 14. The vote shall be canvassed on Monday next succeeding the day of said election, and if it appears that a majority of those voting at said election voted "yes" and in favor of the recall of any incumbent from office, such incumbent or incumbents shall be deemed removed from office and a vacancy or vacancies, as the case may be, shall be deemed to exist therein.

Election to fill vacancy

SEC. 15. If the recall should prevail in any case, and a majority of those voting on the question of filling the vacancy or vacancies, as the case may be, favor a special election for that purpose, the same shall be called forthwith, and held not less than thirty-five nor more than forty days after the date of the order calling such election; provided if a regular municipal election is to occur not more than sixty days nor less than thirty-five days from the date of canvassing the vote aforesaid, the legislative body may at its discretion provide for filling the vacancy at such regular municipal election instead of a special election. Otherwise the council shall forthwith fill the vacancy or vacancies by appointment. In either case the person or persons elected or appointed shall hold office for the unexpired term of the former incumbent or incumbents, as the case may be.

* A cross-reference table showing the origin of each section appears in the appendix to this volume.

Saving clause

3. No action or proceeding commenced before this code takes effect, and no right accrued, is affected by its provisions, but the proceedings therein must conform to the requirements of this code as far as applicable.

DIVISION I—WILLS.

CHAPTER I—WHO MAY MAKE AND TAKE BY A WILL.

Article I—General Provisions.

Who may make will

20. Every person of sound mind, over the age of eighteen years, may dispose of his or her separate property, real and personal, by will.

Community
property

21. The extent to which community property may be disposed of by will is provided in chapter I of division II of this code.

Duress, etc

22. A will or part of a will procured to be made by duress, menace, fraud or undue influence, may be denied probate; and a revocation procured by the same means may be declared void.

Mutual will

23. A conjoint or mutual will is valid, but it may be revoked by any of the testators in like manner as any other will.

Conditional will

24. A will, the validity of which is made conditional by its own terms shall be granted or denied probate, or denied effect after probate, in conformity with the condition.

codicil

25. The execution of a codicil referring to a previous will has the effect to republish the will as modified by the codicil.

Validity of foreign wills

26. No will made out of this state is valid as a will in this state unless executed according to the provisions of this act, except that a will valid under the laws of a state or country in which the testator is domiciled at the time of his death is valid in this state so far as the same relates to personal property.

Who may take by will

27. A testamentary disposition may be made to the state, to counties, to municipal corporations, to natural persons capable by law of taking the property, to unincorporated religious, benevolent or fraternal societies or associations or lodges or branches thereof, and to corporations formed for religious, scientific, literary, or solely educational or hospital or sanatorium purposes, or primarily for the public preservation of forests and natural scenery, or to maintain public libraries, museums or art galleries, or for similar public purposes. No other corporation can take under a will, unless expressly authorized by statute.

Vesting of testamentary dispositions

28. Testamentary dispositions, including devises and bequests to a person on attaining majority, are presumed to vest at the testator's death.

Plural
devisee

29. A devise or legacy given to more than one person vests in them as owners in common, unless the will otherwise provides.

Article II—Gifts to Charity.

40. All dispositions by will, whether made in or out of this state, are subject to the provisions of this act limiting charitable bequests and devises. Charitable dispositions subject to code.

41. No estate, real or personal, may be bequeathed or devised to any charitable or benevolent society or corporation, or to any person or persons in trust for charitable uses, unless done by will duly executed at least thirty days before the death of the testator. If so made at least thirty days before death, such devises and legacies shall be valid, but they may not collectively exceed one-third of the estate of a testator who leaves legal heirs, and if they do, a pro rata deduction from such devises and legacies shall be made so as to reduce the aggregate thereof to one-third of the estate. All dispositions of property made contrary hereto shall be void, and go to the residuary legatees or devisees or heirs, according to law. Restrictions.

42. Bequests and devises to or for the use or benefit of the state, or any municipality, county or political subdivision within the state, or any institution belonging to the state, or belonging to any municipality, county or political subdivision within the state, or to any educational institution which is exempt from taxation under section 1a of article XIII or section 10 of article IX of the constitution of this state and statutes enacted thereunder, or for the use or benefit of any such educational institution, are excepted from the restrictions of this article. Exemption of certain donees from restrictions.

43. Nothing in this article contained shall apply to bequests or devises made by will executed at least six months prior to the death of a testator who leaves no spouse, child, grandchild or parent, or when all of such heirs, by a writing executed at least six months prior to his death, shall have waived the restriction. Exemption of certain donors from restrictions.

CHAPTER II—EXECUTION OF WILLS.

50. Every will, other than a nuncupative will, must be in writing and every will, other than a holographic will and a nuncupative will, must be executed and attested as follows: Witnessed wills.

(1) It must be subscribed at the end thereof by the testator himself, or some person in his presence and by his direction must subscribe his name thereto. A person who subscribes the testator's name, by his direction, should write his own name as a witness to the will, but a failure to do so will not affect the validity of the will. Subscription

(2) The subscription must be made, or the testator must acknowledge it to have been made by him or by his authority, in the presence of both of the attesting witnesses, present at the same time. Presence of witnesses

(3) The testator, at the time of subscribing or acknowledging the instrument, must declare to the attesting witnesses that it is his will. Testator's declaration

Number of witnesses, attestation.

(4) There must be at least two attesting witnesses, each of whom must sign the instrument as a witness, at the end of the will, at the testator's request and in his presence. The witnesses should give their places of residence, but a failure to do so will not affect the validity of the will.

Devise to subscribing witness.

51. All beneficial devises, bequests and legacies to a subscribing witness are void unless there are two other and disinterested subscribing witnesses to the will, except that if such interested witness would be entitled to any share of the estate of the testator in case the will were not established, he shall take such proportion of the devise or bequest made to him in the will as does not exceed the share of the estate which would be distributed to him if the will were not established.

Creditors as witnesses

52. A mere charge on the estate of the testator for the payment of debts does not prevent his creditors from being competent witnesses to his will.

Holographic will

53. A holographic will is one that is entirely written, dated and signed by the hand of the testator himself. It is subject to no other form, and need not be witnessed. No address, date or other matter written, printed or stamped upon the document, which is not incorporated in the provisions which are in the handwriting of the decedent, shall be considered as any part of the will.

Nuncupative will

54. A nuncupative will is not required to be in writing. It may be made by one who, at the time, is in actual military service in the field, or doing duty on shipboard at sea, and in either case in actual contemplation, fear, or peril of death. or by one who, at the time, is in expectation of immediate death from an injury received the same day. It must be proved by two witnesses who were present at the making thereof, one of whom was asked by the testator, at the time, to bear witness that such was his will, or to that effect.

Property disposable by nuncupative will

55. A nuncupative will may dispose of personal property only, and the estate bequeathed must not exceed one thousand dollars in value.

CHAPTER III—REVOCATION OF WILLS.

By marriage as to the spouse

70 If a person marries after making a will, and the spouse survives the maker, the will is revoked as to the spouse, unless provision has been made for the spouse by marriage contract, or unless the spouse is provided for in the will, or in such way mentioned therein as to show an intention not to make such provision; and no other evidence to rebut the presumption of revocation can be received.

By marriage as to the issue.

71. If a person marries after making a will and has issue of such marriage, and any of the issue survives the maker, or is born after its father's death, the will is revoked as to such issue, unless provision has been made for such issue by some settlement, or unless such issue are provided for in the will, or in such way mentioned therein as to show an intention not to make such provision; and no other evidence to rebut the presumption of such revocation can be received.

72. A prior will is not revoked by a subsequent will, unless the latter contains an express revocation, or provisions wholly inconsistent with the terms of the prior will. In other cases the prior will remains effectual so far as consistent with the provisions of the subsequent will; but the mere naming of an executor in the prior will need not be given effect by the court when the subsequent will is otherwise wholly inconsistent with the terms of the prior will, the intention of the testator in this respect being left to the determination of the court.

Subsequent will

73. If the instrument by which an alteration is made in the testator's interest in any property previously disposed of by his will expresses his intent that it shall be a revocation, or if it contains provisions wholly inconsistent with the terms and nature of the testamentary disposition, it operates as a revocation thereof, unless such inconsistent provisions depend on a condition or contingency by reason of which they do not take effect.

Instrument altering property interest

74. Except as hereinabove provided, no written will, nor any part thereof, can be revoked or altered otherwise than:

Other means

(1) By a written will, or other writing of the testator, declaring such revocation or alteration, and executed with the same formalities required for the execution of a will; or,

Instrument executed with same formalities.

(2) By being burnt, torn, canceled, defaced, obliterated or destroyed, with the intent and for the purpose of revoking the same, by the testator himself, or by some person in his presence and by his direction. If such act is done by any person other than the testator, the direction of the testator, and the fact of such injury or destruction, must be proved by two witnesses.

Destruction, proof of.

75. If, after making a will, the testator makes a second will, the destruction or other revocation of the second will does not revive the first will, unless it appears by the terms of such revocation that it was the intention to revive and give effect to the first will, or unless, after such destruction or other revocation, the first will is duly republished.

Effect of revocation of subsequent will

76. A will executed in duplicate is revoked if one of the duplicates is burnt, torn, canceled, defaced, obliterated or destroyed under the circumstances mentioned in subdivision 2 of section 74 of this code.

Revocation of duplicate will

77. An agreement made by a testator for the sale or transfer of property disposed of by a will previously made, does not revoke such disposal; but the property passes by the will, subject to the same remedies on the testator's agreement, for a specific performance or otherwise, against the devisees or legatees, as might be had against the testator's successors, if the same had passed by succession.

Property passing by will contracts of testator

78. Neither a charge or encumbrance placed by a testator upon property previously disposed of by his will, for the purpose of securing the payment of money or the performance of any covenant or agreement, nor a conveyance, settlement, or other act of a testator, by which his interest in any such property is altered, but not wholly divested, is a revocation of the disposal; but the property, subject to such charge or encumbrance, or the remaining interest therein, passes by the will.

Same encumbrances, etc., by testator

Revocation of codicils

79. The revocation of a will revokes all its codicils.

CHAPTER IV—KINDRED NOT MENTIONED IN WILL, WHO SHARE IN ESTATE.

children and grandchildren.

90. When a testator omits to provide in his will for any of his children, or for the issue of any deceased child, whether born before or after the making of the will or before or after the death of the testator, and such child or issue are unprovided for by any settlement, and have not had an equal proportion of the testator's property bestowed on them by way of advancement, unless it appears from the will that such omission was intentional, such child or such issue succeeds to the same share in the estate of the testator as if he had died intestate.

Sources of unmentioned child's share

91. The share of the estate which is assigned to a child or issue omitted in a will, as hereinbefore mentioned, must first be taken from the estate not disposed of by the will, if any; if that is not sufficient, so much as may be necessary must be taken from all the devisees or legatees, in proportion to the value they may respectively receive under the will, unless the obvious intention of the testator in relation to some specific devise or bequest, or other provision in the will, would thereby be defeated; in such case, such specific devise, legacy or provision may be exempted from such apportionment, and a different apportionment, consistent with the intention of the testator, may be adopted.

devisee

92. If a devisee or legatee dies during the lifetime of the testator, the testamentary disposition to him fails, unless an intention appears to substitute another in his place; except that when any estate is devised or bequeathed to any kindred of the testator, and the devisee or legatee dies before the testator, leaving lineal descendants, or is dead at the time the will is executed, but leaves lineal descendants surviving the testator, such descendants take the estate so given by the will in the same manner as the devisee or legatee would have done had he survived the testator.

CHAPTER V—INTERPRETATION OF WILLS.

Law governing.

100. The interpretation of wills, wherever made, is governed, when relating to property within this state, by the law of this state, and the rules prescribed by this code are to be observed, unless an intention to the contrary clearly appears.

Construction of several testamentary instruments.
Intention of testator.

101. Several testamentary instruments executed by the same testator are to be taken and construed together as one instrument. A will is to be construed according to the intention of the testator. Where his intention can not have effect to its full extent, it must have effect as far as possible.

102. The words of a will are to receive an interpretation which will give to every expression some effect, rather than one which will render any of the expressions inoperative; and of two modes of interpreting a will, that is to be preferred which will prevent a total intestacy.

Effect given to every expression
Avoidance of intestacy.

103. Where the meaning of any part of a will is ambiguous or doubtful, it may be explained by any reference thereto, or recital thereof, in another part of the will. All the parts of a will are to be construed in relation to each other, and so as, if possible, to form one consistent whole; but where several parts are absolutely irreconcilable, the latter must prevail.

Construction as whole.
Irreconcilable parts.

104. A clear and distinct devise or bequest can not be affected by any reasons assigned therefor, or by any other words not equally clear and distinct, or by inference or argument from other parts of the will, or by an inaccurate recital of or reference to its contents in another part of the will.

Reasons for devise Inaccurate reference

105. When there is an imperfect description, or no person or property exactly answers the description, mistakes and omissions must be corrected, if the error appears from the context of the will or from extrinsic evidence, excluding the oral declarations of the testator as to his intentions; and when an uncertainty arises upon the face of a will, as to the application of any of its provisions, the testator's intention is to be ascertained from the words of the will, taking into view the circumstances under which it was made, excluding such oral declarations.

Correcting mistakes, etc.

Oral declarations of testator

106. The words of a will are to be taken in their ordinary and grammatical sense, unless a clear intention to use them in another sense can be collected, and that other can be ascertained. Technical words are not necessary to give effect to any species of disposition by a will; but technical words in a will are to be taken in their technical sense, unless the context clearly indicates a contrary intention, or unless it satisfactorily appears that the will was drawn solely by the testator, and that he was unacquainted with such technical sense.

Sense of words

Technical words

107. The term "heirs," or other words of inheritance, are not requisite to devise a fee, and a devise of real property passes all the estate of the testator, unless otherwise limited.

Words of inheritance

108. A testamentary disposition to "heirs," "relations," "nearest relations," "representatives," "legal representatives," "personal representatives," "family," "nearest (or next) of kin" of any person, without other words of qualification, and when the terms are used as words of donation, and not of limitation, vests the property in those who would be entitled to succeed to the property of such person, according to the provisions of division II of this code. Such terms are used as words of donation, and not of limitation, when the property is given to the person so designated, directly, and not as a qualification of an estate given to the ancestor of such person.

Disposition to heirs, etc

Words of donation

CHAPTER VI—EFFECT OF CERTAIN PROVISIONS.

Devise of land 120. A devise of land conveys all the estate of the testator therein which he could lawfully devise, unless it clearly appears by the will that he intended to convey a less estate.

Interests acquired after execution of will 121. Any estate, right, or interest in lands acquired by the testator after the making of his will, passes thereby and in like manner as if title thereto was vested in him at the time of making the will, unless the contrary manifestly appears by the will to have been the intention of the testator.

References to death or survivorship 122 Words in a will referring to death or survivorship, simply, relate to the time of the testator's death, unless possession is actually postponed, when they must be referred to the time of possession.

Disposition to a class. 123. A testamentary disposition to a class includes every person answering the description at the testator's death; but when the possession is postponed to a future period, it includes also all persons coming within the description before the time to which possession is postponed. A child conceived before but born after a testator's death, or any other period when a disposition to a class vests in right or in possession, takes, if answering to the description of the class.

Afterborn child

Conversion of real property. 124. When a will directs the conversion of real property into money, such property and all its proceeds must be deemed personal property from the time of the testator's death.

Disposition of all real or personal property. 125 A devise or bequest of all the testator's real or personal property, in express terms, or in any other terms denoting his intent to dispose of all his real or personal property, passes all the real or personal property which he was entitled to dispose of by will at the time of his death, including property embraced in a power to devise.

Disposition of residue 126. A devise of the residue of the testator's real property, or a bequest of the residue of the testator's personal property, passes all the real or personal property, as the case may be, which he was entitled to devise or bequeath at the time of his death, not otherwise effectually devised or bequeathed by his will.

CHAPTER VII—CONDITIONS AND REMAINDERS.

Death of devisee of limited interest 140. The death of a devisee or legatee of a limited interest before the testator's death does not defeat the interest of persons in remainder who survive the testator.

Conditional disposition 141 A conditional disposition is one which depends upon the occurrence of some uncertain event, by which it is either to take effect or be defeated.

Condition precedent 142 A condition precedent in a will is one which is required to be fulfilled before a particular disposition takes effect. It is to be deemed performed when the testator's intention has been substantially, though not literally, complied with. Nothing vests until such condition is fulfilled, except where fulfillment is impossible, in which case the disposition vests, unless the condition was the sole motive thereof and the impossibility was unknown to the testator or arose from an unavoidable event subsequent to the execution of the will.

143. A condition subsequent is where an estate or interest is so given as to vest immediately, subject only to be divested by some subsequent act or event. A testamentary disposition, when vested, can not be divested unless upon the occurrence of the precise contingency prescribed by the testator for that purpose.

CHAPTER VIII—LEGACIES AND INTEREST.

160. In case of a bequest of the interest or income of a certain sum or fund, the income accrues from the testator's death.

161. Legacies are distinguished and designated, according to their nature, as follows:

Legacies
distinctions

(1) A legacy of a particular thing, specified and distinguished from all others of the same kind belonging to the testator, is specific; if such legacy fails, resort can not be had to the other property of the testator;

Specific

(2) A legacy is demonstrative when the particular fund or personal property is pointed out from which it is to be taken or paid;

Demonstrative

(3) An annuity is a bequest of certain specified sums periodically; if the fund or property out of which a demonstrative legacy or an annuity is payable fails, in whole or in part, resort may be had to the general assets, as in case of a general legacy;

Annuity

(4) A residuary legacy embraces only that which remains after all the bequests of the will are discharged;

Residuary

(5) All other legacies are general legacies.

General.

162. Legacies are due and deliverable one year after the testator's death, and bear interest from that time, except that legacies for maintenance, or to the testator's widow, bear interest from the testator's death. Annuities commence at the testator's death.

DIVISION II—SUCCESSION.

200. Succession is the acquisition of title to the property of one who dies without disposing of it by will.

Definition

CHAPTER I—COMMUNITY PROPERTY.

201. Upon the death of either husband or wife, one-half of the community property belongs to the surviving spouse; the other half is subject to the testamentary disposition of the decedent, and in the absence thereof goes to the surviving spouse, subject to the following provisions.

Succession.

Subject to debts, etc
wife.

202. Community property passing from the control of the husband, either by reason of his death or by virtue of testamentary disposition by the wife, is subject to his debts and to administration and disposal under the provisions of division III of this code; but in the event of such testamentary disposition by the wife, the husband, pending administration, shall retain the same power to sell, manage and deal with the community personal property as he had in her lifetime; and his possession and control of the community property shall not be transferred to the personal representative of the wife except to the extent necessary to carry her will into effect.

Community
real property

203. After forty days from the death of the wife, the surviving husband shall have full power to sell, lease, mortgage or otherwise deal with and dispose of the community real property, unless a notice is recorded in the county in which the property is situated to the effect that an interest in the property, specifying it, is claimed by another under the wife's will.

CHAPTER II—SEPARATE PROPERTY.

Article I—Particular Provisions.

Succession:
contract and code

220. The separate property of a person who dies without disposing of it by will is succeeded to and must be distributed as hereinafter provided, subject to the limitation of any marriage or other contract, and to the provisions of division III of this code.

Surviving spouse, issue

221. If the decedent leaves a surviving spouse, and only one child or the lawful issue of a deceased child, the estate goes one-half to the surviving spouse and one-half to the child or issue. If the decedent leaves a surviving spouse, and more than one child living or one child living and the lawful issue of one or more deceased children, the estate goes one-third to the surviving spouse and the remainder in equal shares to his children and to the lawful issue of any deceased child, by right of representation; but if there is no child of decedent living at his death, the remainder goes to all of his lineal descendants; and if all of the descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the decedent they share equally, otherwise they take by right of representation.

No surviving spouse,
issue

222. If the decedent leaves no surviving spouse, but leaves issue, the whole estate goes to such issue; and if all of the descendants are in the same degree of kindred to the decedent they share equally, otherwise they take by right of representation.

Surviving spouse, no issue

223. If the decedent leaves a surviving spouse and no issue, the estate goes one-half to the surviving spouse and one-half to the decedent's parents in equal shares, or if either is dead to the survivor, or if both are dead to their issue and the issue of either of them, by right of representation.

Surviving
spouse, but neither issue nor immediate family

224. If the decedent leaves a surviving spouse and neither issue, parent, brother, sister, nor descendant of a deceased brother or sister, the whole estate goes to the surviving spouse.

225. If the decedent leaves neither issue nor spouse, the estate goes to his parents in equal shares, or if either is dead to the survivor, or if both are dead in equal shares to his brothers and sisters and to the descendants of deceased brothers and sisters by right of representation.

No surviving spouse nor issue

226. If the decedent leaves neither issue, spouse, parent, brother, sister, nor descendant of a deceased brother or sister, the estate goes to the next of kin in equal degree, excepting that, when there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree, but claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestor must be preferred to those claiming through an ancestor more remote.

No surviving spouse nor issue nor immediate family

227. If the decedent dies under age without having been married, all the estate that came to the decedent by succession from a parent goes in equal shares to the other children of the same parent and to the issue of any other of such children who are dead, by right of representation; or if all the children of such parent are dead, and any of them has left issue, to such issue; and if all the issue are in the same degree of kindred to the decedent, they share equally, otherwise they take by right of representation.

Minor unmarried decedent.

228. If the decedent leaves no issue, and the estate or any portion thereof was community property of the decedent and a previously deceased spouse, such property goes in equal shares to the children of the deceased spouse and to their descendants by right of representation, and if none, then one-half of such community property goes to the parents of the decedent in equal shares or if either is dead to the survivor, or if both are dead in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the decedent and to their descendants by right of representation, and the other half goes to the parents of the deceased spouse in equal shares, or if either is dead to the survivor, or if both are dead in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of such deceased spouse and to their descendants by right of representation.

No issue Community property.

229. If the decedent leaves no issue, and the estate or any portion thereof was separate property of a previously deceased spouse, and came to the decedent from such spouse by gift, descent, devise or bequest, such property goes in equal shares to the children of the deceased spouse and to their descendants by right of representation, and if none then to the parents of the deceased spouse in equal shares, or if either is dead to the survivor, or if both are dead in equal shares to the brothers and sisters of the deceased spouse and to their descendants by right of representation.

No issue Separate property of deceased spouse

230. If there is no one to succeed to any portion of the property in any of the contingencies provided for in the last two sections, according to the provisions of those sections, such portion goes to the next of kin of the decedent in the manner hereinabove provided for succession by next of kin.

When next of kin take

Escheat,
procedure

231. If the decedent leaves no one to take his estate or any portion thereof, under the laws of this state, the same escheats to the state as of the date of the death of the decedent. The property or proceeds of any estate deposited in the state treasury after final decree of distribution or judgment of the superior court by reason of the failure of heirs to make claim thereto may be recovered upon judgment of the superior court or order of the state board of control as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure. When such judgment or order is obtained, a certified copy thereof must be filed with the state treasurer as his voucher. Thereupon the property must be delivered, or the proceeds paid, to the claimant, upon filing his receipt therefor. If no one succeeds to the estate or the proceeds, as herein provided, the property of the decedent devolves and escheats to the people of the state, and must be placed by the state treasurer to the credit of the school fund. Property passing to the state under this section, whether held by the state or its officers, is subject to the same charges and trusts to which it would have been subject if it had passed by succession, and is also subject to all the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to escheated estates.

Article II—General Provisions.

“Right of representation”

250. Inheritance or succession “by right of representation” takes place when the descendants of a deceased person take the same share or right in the estate of another that such deceased person would have taken as an heir if living. A posthumous child is considered as living at the death of the parent.

Degree of kindred

251. The degree of kindred is established by the number of generations, and each generation is called a degree.

Lineal consanguinity

252. Lineal consanguinity, or the direct line of consanguinity, is the relationship between persons one of whom is a descendant of the other. The direct line is divided into a direct line descending, which connects a person with those who descend from him, and a direct line ascending, which connects a person with those from whom he descends. In the direct line there are as many degrees as there are generations. Thus, the child is, with regard to the parent, in the first degree; the grandchild, with regard to the grandparent, in the second; and vice versa as to the parent and grandparent with regard to their respective children and grandchildren.

Collateral
consanguinity

253. Collateral consanguinity is the relationship between people who spring from a common ancestor, but are not in a direct line. The degree is established by counting the generation from one relative up to the common ancestor and from the common ancestor to the other relative. In such computation the first relative is excluded, the other included, and the ancestor counted but once. Thus, brothers are related in the second degree, uncle and nephew in the third degree, cousins german in the fourth, and so on.

254. Kindred of the half blood inherit equally with those of the whole blood in the same degree, unless the inheritance came to the intestate by descent, devise, or gift of some one of his ancestors, in which case all those who are not of the blood of such ancestor must be excluded from such inheritance in favor of those who are.

255. Every illegitimate child is an heir of his mother, and also of the person who, in writing, signed in the presence of a competent witness, acknowledges himself to be the father; and inherits his or her estate, in whole or in part, as the case may be, in the same manner as if he had been born in lawful wedlock; but he does not represent his father or mother by inheriting any part of the estate of the parent's kindred, either lineal or collateral, unless, before his death, his parents shall have intermarried, and his father, after such marriage, acknowledges him as his child, or adopts him into his family; in which case such child is deemed legitimate for all purposes of succession.

mate child.

256. The estate of an illegitimate child, who, having title to any estate not otherwise limited by marriage contract, dies without disposing thereof by will, is succeeded to as if he had been born in lawful wedlock, if he has been legitimated by a subsequent marriage of his parents or adopted by his father as provided by the Civil Code; otherwise, it is succeeded to as if he had been born in lawful wedlock and had survived his father and all persons related to him only through his father.

Estate of illegitimate child.

257. An adopted child succeeds to the estate of one who has adopted him, the same as a natural child; and the person adopting succeeds to the estate of an adopted child, the same as a natural parent. An adopted child does not succeed to the estate of a natural parent when the relationship between them has been severed by the adoption, nor does such natural parent succeed to the estate of such adopted child.

Adopted child

258. No person convicted of the murder of the decedent shall be entitled to succeed to any portion of the estate; but the portion thereof to which he would otherwise be entitled to succeed goes to the other persons entitled thereto under the provisions of this chapter.

victed of

DIVISION III—ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATES OF DECEDENTS.

CHAPTER I—PROBATE OF WILLS AND APPLICATION FOR LETTERS.

Article I—Jurisdiction.

300. When a person dies, the title to his property, real and personal, passes to the person to whom it is devised or bequeathed by his last will, or, in the absence of such disposition, to the persons who succeed to his estate as provided in division II of this code; but all of his property shall be subject to the possession of the executor or administrator and to the control of the superior court for the purposes of administration, sale or other disposition under the provisions of division III of this code, and shall be chargeable with the expenses of administering his estate, and the payment of his debts and the allowance to the family, except as otherwise provided in this code.

Jurisdiction of proceedings

301. Wills must be proved, and letters testamentary or of administration granted and administration of estates of decedents had, in the superior court:

(1) Of the county of which the decedent was a resident at the time of his death, wherever he may have died;

(2) Of the county in which the decedent died, leaving estate therein, he not being a resident of the state;

(3) Of any county in which he leaves estate, the decedent not being a resident of the state at the time of his death, and having died out of the state or without leaving estate in the county in which he died; in either of which cases, when the estate is in more than one county, the superior court of the county in which a petition for letters testamentary or of administration is first filed has exclusive jurisdiction of the administration of the estate.

Conclusive-
ness of order granting letters.
Exception

302. In the absence of fraud in its procurement, an order of the superior court granting letters, when it becomes final, is a conclusive determination of the jurisdiction of the court (except when based upon the erroneous assumption of death), and can not be collaterally attacked.

Disqualified
judge

303. No will shall be admitted to probate or letters of administration granted or other proceeding had (except the ordering of a transfer as hereinafter provided), before any judge who is interested as an heir of the decedent, or as a legatee or devisee under a will, or when he is named as executor or trustee in the will, or is a witness thereto, or is in any other manner interested or disqualified from acting. When a petition is filed praying for the admission of a will to probate or for the granting of letters of administration, or when proceedings are pending for the settlement of an estate, and there is no judge of the superior court in that county qualified to act, the court or judge must make an order transferring the proceedings to the superior court of an adjoining county, and the clerk must transmit to the clerk of the court to which the proceedings are transferred a certified copy of the order together with all papers in the proceedings on file in his office; and thereafter the court to which the proceedings are transferred shall exercise the same jurisdiction over the estate and all matters relating to the administration thereof as if it had original jurisdiction. But such transfer shall not be ordered when some other judge qualified to act is assigned by the chairman of the judicial council to sit in the county where such proceedings are pending, to hear such proceedings.

transfer

Right to letters not affected by transfer

304. The transfer of a proceeding from one court to another, as provided for in the preceding section, shall not affect the right of any person to letters testamentary or of administration, but the same persons are entitled to letters in the order hereinafter provided.

305. If, before the administration of any estate so transferred is closed, another person becomes judge of the court wherein such proceeding was originally commenced, who is not disqualified to act in the settlement of the estate, and the causes for which the proceeding was transferred no longer exist, any person interested in the estate may have the proceeding returned to the court from which it was originally transferred, by filing a petition setting forth these facts, and moving the court therefor. If these facts are satisfactorily shown, and it further appears to the court that the convenience of the parties interested would be promoted by such change, the court must make an order transferring the proceeding back to the court where it was originally commenced; and the clerk must transmit to the clerk of the court in which the proceeding was originally commenced, a certified copy of the order together with all papers in the proceedings on file in his office.

Article II—Probate of Wills.

320. The custodian of a will, within thirty days after being informed that the maker thereof is dead, must deliver the same to the clerk of the superior court having jurisdiction of the estate, or to the executor named therein. Failure to do so makes such person responsible for all damages sustained by any one injured thereby.

Delivery of will after death

321. If it is alleged in a petition that some one has possession of a will, and the court having jurisdiction of the estate, or a judge thereof, is satisfied that the allegation is true, an order must be made and served upon such person, requiring him to produce it at a time named in the order. If he has possession of the will and neglects or refuses to produce it as required, he may by warrant from the court be committed to the jail of the county and confined therein until he produces it. The judge of the court may at any time make and issue all necessary orders and writs to enforce the production of wills and the attendance of witnesses.

322. The rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer of real property, in good faith and for value, derived from any person claiming the same by succession, are not impaired by any devise made by the decedent from whom succession is claimed, unless within four years after the deviser's death the instrument containing such devise is duly proved as a will, or written notice of such devise is recorded with the recorder of the county where the land lies.

purchaser from heir,
etc.

323. Any executor, devisee or legatee named in a will, or any other person interested in the estate, may, at any time after the death of the testator, petition the court having jurisdiction to have the will proved, whether the same be in writing or nuncupative, in his possession or not, lost or destroyed, or beyond the jurisdiction of the state.

Who may petition for probate

Executor's
petition

324. If the person named in a will as executor, for thirty days after he has knowledge of the death of the testator and that he is named as executor, fails to petition the proper court for the probate of the will and that letters testamentary be issued to him, he may be held to have renounced his right to letters, and the court may appoint any other competent person administrator, unless good cause for delay is shown.

Nuncupative will' limitations period

325. No proof shall be received of a nuncupative will unless it is offered within six months after the testamentary words were spoken, nor unless the words, or the substance thereof, were reduced to writing within thirty days after they were spoken, and such writing is filed with the petition for the probate thereof. Notice of such petition shall be given, and subsequent proceedings in administration had, as in the case of a written will.

Allegations
in petition

326. A petition for the probate of a will must state :

- (1) The jurisdictional facts;
- (2) Whether the person named as executor consents to act or renounces his right to letters testamentary ;
- (3) The names, ages and residences of the heirs, devisees and legatees of the decedent, so far as known to the petitioner ;
- (4) The character and estimated value of the property of the estate ;
- (5) The name of the person for whom letters testamentary are prayed.

Defects

No defect of form or in the statement of jurisdictional facts actually existing shall make void the probate of a will.

Notice of
petition

327. When the petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall set the same for hearing by the court upon some day not less than ten nor more than thirty days thereafter, and shall give notice of the time and place of hearing by publishing the same in a newspaper published in the county; if there is none, then by three written or printed notices, posted at three of the most public places in the county. If the notice is published in a weekly newspaper, it must appear therein on at least three different days of publication; and if in a newspaper published oftener than once a week, it shall be so published that there shall be at least ten days from the first to the last day of publication, both first and last day being included. If the notice is by posting, it must be given at least ten days before the hearing.

notice on heirs, etc

328. At least ten days before the hearing, copies of the notice must be personally served upon the heirs of the testator and the devisees and legatees named in the will and all persons named as executors who are not petitioning, or mailed, postage prepaid, from a post office within this state, addressed to them at their respective places of residence, if known to the petitioner, if not, at the county seat of the county where the proceedings are pending.

Evidence of subscribing witnesses

329. If no one appears to contest the probate, the court may admit the will to probate on the evidence of one of the subscribing witnesses only, if the evidence shows that the will was executed in all particulars as required by law. If none of the subscribing witnesses resides in the county, but the deposition of one of them can be taken elsewhere, the court may direct it to be taken, and may authorize a photographic copy of the will to be made and to be presented to such witness on his examination, who may be asked the same questions with respect to it and the handwriting of himself, the testator and the other witness, as would be pertinent and competent if the original will were present. If the subscribing witnesses are competent at the time of attesting the execution, their subsequent incompetency, from whatever cause, will not prevent the probate of the will, if it is otherwise satisfactorily proved. If the evidence of no subscribing witness can be procured, the court may admit the will to probate upon proof of the handwriting of the testator and of any one of the subscribing witnesses.

handwriting

330. If the will of a person who at the time of his death was a resident of this state is detained beyond the jurisdiction of the state, in a court of any other state or country, and can not be produced for probate in this state, a copy of the will duly authenticated may be admitted to probate in this state in lieu of, and have the same force and effect as, the original will. The same proof shall be required as would be required if the original will were produced. The court may authorize a photographic copy of the will to be presented to the subscribing witness upon his examination in court, or by deposition as provided in the previous section, and he may be asked the same questions with respect to it and the handwriting of himself, the testator and the other witness, as would be pertinent and competent if the original will were present.

will by copy.

331. A holographic will may be proved in the same manner as other private writings

Proof of holographic
will

332. When the court admits a will to probate it must be recorded in the minutes by the clerk, with the notation: "Admitted to probate (giving date)." If the will is in a foreign language, the court shall certify to a correct translation thereof into English, and such certified translation shall be recorded in lieu of the original.

Article III—Lost or Destroyed Wills

350. No will shall be proven as a lost or destroyed will unless proved to have been in existence at the time of the death of the testator, or shown to have been destroyed fraudulently or by public calamity in the lifetime of the testator, without his knowledge; nor unless its provisions are clearly and distinctly proved by at least two credible witnesses. Knowledge of the destruction of his will by public calamity shall not be imputed to an insane person who has been committed to a state hospital for the insane in this state and never restored to competency.

Requisites
of proof

Requisite statements in petition
for probate

351. The petition for the probate of a lost or destroyed will must state, or be accompanied by a written statement of, the testamentary words, or the substance thereof. If the will is established, the provisions thereof must be set forth in the order admitting the will to probate, and the order must be entered at length in the minutes. The testimony of each witness must be reduced to writing, signed by him and filed, and shall be admissible in evidence in any contest of the will if the witness has died or has permanently removed from the state.

Restraining administrator pending
petition

352. If, before or pending an application to prove a lost or destroyed will, letters of administration are granted on the estate of the testator, or letters testamentary of any previous will of the testator are granted, the court may restrain the administrators or executors, so appointed, from any acts or proceedings which would be injurious to the devisees or legatees claiming under the lost or destroyed will.

Article IV—Foreign Wills.

Local
probate

360. A will admitted to probate in any other state or country may be offered for probate in the superior court having jurisdiction as determined by section 301 of this code.

How probated

361. The executor or any person interested in the will may file a copy of the will and of the order or decree admitting it to probate, duly authenticated, together with his petition for letters. Notice shall be given and the same proceedings had as in the case of an original petition for the probate of a will.

Effect of probate
elsewhere

362. If it appears from such authenticated order or decree or otherwise that the will has been admitted to probate in another state or country, and that it was valid according to the law of the place in which the testator was domiciled at the time of his death, or according to the law of this state, it shall be admitted to probate and have the same force and effect as a will first admitted to probate in this state, except as limited by section 26 of this code, and letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed shall issue thereon to the petitioner.

CHAPTER II—CONTESTS OF WILLS.

Article I—Contests Before Probate.

Proceedings preliminary to trial

370. Any person interested may contest the will by filing written grounds of opposition to the probate thereof at any time before the hearing of the petition for probate, and thereupon a citation shall be issued directed to the heirs of the decedent and to all persons interested in the will, including minors and incompetents, wherever residing, directing them to plead to the contest within thirty days after service of the citation, which shall be made personally or by publication in the manner provided by law for the service of summons in civil actions. Any person so served may demur to the contest upon any of the grounds of demurrer available in civil actions. If the demurrer is sustained, the court may allow the contestant a reasonable time, not exceeding ten days, within which to amend his contest. If the demurrer is overruled, the petitioner and others interested, within ten days after the receipt of written notice thereof, may jointly or separately answer the contest.

371. On the trial, the contestant is plaintiff and the petitioner is defendant. Any issue of fact involving the competency of the decedent to make a last will and testament, the freedom of the decedent at the time of the execution of the will from duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence, the due execution and attestation of the will, or any other question substantially affecting the validity of the will, must be tried by a jury, unless a jury is waived as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure. If no jury is demanded, the court must try and determine the issues joined.

Trial of contest

372. If the will is contested, all the subscribing witnesses who are present in the county, and who are of sound mind, must be produced and examined; and the death, absence, or insanity of any of them must be satisfactorily shown to the court. If none of the subscribing witnesses resides in the county, and the evidence of none of them can be produced, the court may admit the evidence of other witnesses to prove the due execution of the will; and, as evidence of the execution, it may admit proof of the handwriting of the testator and of any of the subscribing witnesses.

execution

373. The jury must return a special verdict upon the issues submitted to them by the court; and upon the verdict, or upon the proof taken if a jury is waived, the court must render judgment, either admitting the will to probate or rejecting it.

Verdict
Judgment.

374. The testimony of each subscribing witness who has testified must be reduced to writing, signed by him and filed, and shall be admissible in evidence in any subsequent contest of the will if the witness has died or has permanently removed from the state.

Perpetuation of testimony

Article II—Contests After Probate.

380. When a will has been admitted to probate, any interested person, other than a party to a contest before probate and other than a person who had actual notice of such previous contest in time to have joined therein, may, at any time within six months after such probate, contest the same or the validity of the will. For that purpose he must file in the court in which the will was proved a petition in writing, containing his allegations against the validity of the will or against the sufficiency of the proof, and praying that the probate be revoked.

contest after probate.

petition

381. Upon filing the petition, and within the time allowed for filing the petition, a citation must be issued directed to the executor of the will, or the administrator with the will annexed, and all the devisees and legatees mentioned

citation.

in the will, and the heirs, so far as known to the petitioner, including minors and incompetents, or the personal representative of any such person who is dead, directing them to plead to the contest within thirty days after service of the citation.

citation.

Trial

382. The citation shall be served and proceedings had thereunder as in the case of a contest before probate. If the original probate was granted without a contest, a trial by jury must be had, as in the case of a contest before probate, unless a jury is waived as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure. If the jury shall find or the court shall decide that the will is invalid or is not the last will of the testator, the probate must be revoked. Thereupon the powers of the executor or administrator with the will annexed cease; but he shall not be liable for any act done in good faith previous to the revocation.

Effect

Costs

383. If the probate is not revoked, the costs of trial must be paid by the contestant. If the probate is revoked, the costs must be paid by the party who resisted the revocation or out of the property of the decedent, as the court directs.

Limitations
period

384. If no person contests the validity of a will or of the probate thereof within the time specified in this article, the probate of the will is conclusive; saving to infants and persons of unsound mind who were not made parties to the proceeding a like period of six months after their respective disabilities are removed.

Probate of other will

385 Failure to contest a will does not preclude the subsequent probate of another will of the decedent.

CHAPTER III—APPOINTMENT OF EXECUTORS AND OF ADMINISTRATORS WITH THE WILL ANNEXED.

Powers of executor before grant of letters

400 No person has any power as an executor until he qualifies, except that, before letters are issued, he may pay the funeral charges and take necessary measures for the preservation of the estate.

Who may be executor

401. No person is competent to serve as an executor or executrix who is under the age of majority, convicted of an infamous crime, or adjudged by the court incompetent to execute the duties of the trust by reason of drunkenness, improvidence, or want of understanding or integrity. Marriage does not disqualify a woman from serving as executrix.

Executor
not specifically named

402 When it appears, by the terms of a will, that it was the intention of the testator to commit the execution thereof and the administration of his estate to any person as executor, such person, although not named executor, is entitled to letters testamentary in like manner as if he had been named executor.

Executor's
authority
to appoint.
Successor to corporate executor.

403. An authority to an executor to appoint an executor is void.

404. When the executor named in the will is a corporation or national banking association that has sold its business and assets to, or has consolidated or merged with, or is in any manner provided by law succeeded by, another corporation or national banking association authorized and qualified to act as executor, the court may, and to the extent required by the Bank Act shall, issue letters thereon to the successor corporation or association.

405. When a person absent from the state, or a minor, is named as an executor, and there is another executor who accepts the trust and qualifies, the latter may have letters testamentary and administer the estate until the return of the absentee or the majority of the minor, who may then be admitted as joint executor. If there is no other executor, letters of administration with the will annexed must be granted; but the court may, in its discretion, revoke them on the return of the absent executor or the majority of the minor.

Absentee or minor
executor

406. No executor of an executor shall, as such, be authorized to administer the estate of the first testator. If no executor is named in the will, or if the sole executor or all the executors therein named are dead, or incompetent, or renounce or fail to apply for letters, or to appear and qualify, or die after the issuance of letters and before the completion of the administration, letters of administration with the will annexed shall be issued.

Executor of an executor

407. Any person interested in the estate or will may file objections in writing to granting letters testamentary to the persons named as executors, or any of them, and the objections must be heard and determined by the court; a petition may, at the same time, be filed for letters of administration with the will annexed. If no objection is made, the court when admitting a will to probate must direct the issuance of letters thereon to the persons named therein as executors who are competent to discharge the trust, unless they or either of them have renounced their right.

Objections
ment

408. When all the executors named are not appointed by the court, those appointed have the same authority to act in every respect as effectually as all would have if appointed.

Failure to appoint all named executors

409. Administrators with the will annexed have the same authority over estates which executors named in the will would have, and their acts are as effectual for all purposes; but if a power or authority conferred upon an executor is discretionary, and is not conferred by law, it shall not be deemed to be conferred upon an administrator with the will annexed. Persons are entitled to appointment as administrators with the will annexed in the same order of priority as in the appointment of administrators, except that, as to foreign wills, a person who is interested in the will has priority over one who is not.

CHAPTER IV—APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATORS.

Article I—Competency and Priority.

420. No person is competent to serve as an administrator or administratrix who is not a bona fide resident of this state,

Qualifications.

or who has not the qualifications required of an executor or executrix. Marriage does not disqualify a woman from serving as administratrix.

Surviving partner.

421. The surviving partner of a decedent must not be appointed administrator of the estate if any person interested in the estate objects to his appointment.

Order of priority of right to letters

422. Administration of the estate of a person dying intestate must be granted to one or more of the following persons, who are entitled to letters in the following order, the relatives of the decedent being entitled to priority only when they are entitled to succeed to the estate or some portion thereof:

(1) The surviving spouse, or some competent person whom he or she may request to have appointed.

(2) The children.

(3) The grandchildren.

(4) The parents.

(5) The brothers and sisters.

(6) The next of kin entitled to share in the estate.

(7) The relatives of a previously deceased spouse, when entitled to succeed to some portion of the estate.

(8) The public administrator.

(9) The creditors.

(10) Any person legally competent.

Nomination

423. Administration may be granted to one or more competent persons, although not otherwise entitled to the same, at the written request of the person entitled, filed in court. If the person making the request is a child, parent, brother or sister of the decedent, the nominee shall have priority next after those in the class of the person making the request; otherwise the court, in its discretion, may appoint either such nominee or a person of a class subsequent in rank to that of the person making the request; but other persons of the class of the person making the request shall have priority over such nominee.

Whole blood and half blood

424. Of several persons claiming and equally entitled to administer, relatives of the whole blood are preferred to those of the half blood.

Discretion of court creditors

425. When there are several persons equally entitled to administer, the court may grant letters to one or more of them; and when a creditor is claiming letters the court, in its discretion, at the request of another creditor, may grant letters to any other person legally competent.

Minors

426. If a person otherwise entitled to administer is a minor or an incompetent person, letters may be granted to his or her guardian, or any other person entitled to letters, in the discretion of the court.

Failure to claim letters

427. Administration must be granted to any competent applicant, when persons having priority fail to claim letters for themselves.

Article II—Application for Letters.

440. A petition for letters of administration must be in writing, signed by the applicant or his counsel, and filed with the clerk of the court, and must state: Contents of
petition

- (1) The jurisdictional facts;
- (2) The names, ages and residences of the heirs of the decedent, so far as known to the applicant;
- (3) The character and estimated value of the property of the estate.

No defect of form or in the statement of jurisdictional facts actually existing shall make void an order appointing an administrator or any of the subsequent proceedings.

441. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof by causing a notice to be posted at the courthouse of the county where the petition is filed, giving the name of the decedent, the name of the applicant, and the time at which the application will be heard. Such notice must be given at least ten days before the hearing. The clerk shall cause similar notice to be mailed, postage prepaid, to the heirs of the decedent named in the petition, at least ten days before the hearing, addressed to them at their respective post-office addresses, as set forth in the petition, otherwise at the county seat of the county where the proceedings are pending. Procedure before
hearing

442. Any person interested may contest the petition by filing written grounds of opposition thereto, based on the incompetency of the applicant or for other cause, or may assert his own right to letters. In the latter case he must file a petition and give the notice required for an original petition, and the court must hear the two petitions together. Contest.

443. Before letters are granted, the fact of death and that the decedent died intestate, and that notice has been given as above required, must be proved by the evidence of the applicant or others; and the court may also examine any other person concerning the time, place and manner of death, the place of the decedent's residence at the time, the character and value of his property, and whether or not the decedent left any will, and may compel any person to attend as a witness for that purpose. Facts to be proved.

Article III—Revocation of Letters.

450. When letters of administration have been granted to any person other than the surviving spouse, child, parent, brother or sister of the intestate or the public administrator, any one of them who is competent and had a prior right to letters, or any competent person at the written request of any one of them who is competent and had such prior right, may obtain the revocation of the letters, and be entitled to the administration, by filing a petition praying the revocation, and that letters of administration issue to him. Prior claimants for letters

- Procedure 451. When such petition is filed, the clerk shall give notice as in the case of an original application, and shall issue a citation to the administrator to appear and answer the petition at the time appointed for the hearing. At the time appointed, upon proof that the citation has been duly served and notice given as above required, the court shall take evidence upon the petition, and if the right of the applicant is established, and he is competent, letters of administration shall be granted to him and the letters of the former administrator revoked.
- Surviving spouse, etc 452. The surviving spouse, when letters of administration have been granted to a child, parent, brother or sister of the intestate; or any of such relatives, when letters have been granted to any other of them, may assert his prior right, and obtain letters of administration, and have the letters before granted revoked, in the manner prescribed in the preceding section.
- Discretion of court 453. The court, in its discretion, may refuse to grant letters of administration as provided in this article to any person or to the nominee of any person who had actual notice of the first application and an opportunity to contest the same.

CHAPTER V---SPECIAL ADMINISTRATORS.

- Causes for appointment 460. When there is delay in granting letters testamentary or of administration, or when letters are granted irregularly, or no sufficient bond is filed as required, or when no application is made for letters, or when an executor or administrator dies or is suspended or removed, and the circumstances of the estate require the immediate appointment of a personal representative, the superior court, or a judge thereof, shall appoint a special administrator to take possession of the estate of the decedent and to exercise such other powers as may be necessary for the preservation of the estate; or he may direct the public administrator to take charge of the estate.
- Notice and order of appointment
Order not appealable 461. The appointment may be made at any time without notice or upon such notice to such of the persons interested in the estate as the court or judge may deem reasonable. In making the appointment, preference must ordinarily be given to the person entitled to letters testamentary or of administration, but such order is not appealable.
- Bond oath, issue of letters 462. Before letters issue to a special administrator, except to a public administrator, he must give bond in such sum as the court or judge may direct, with sureties to the satisfaction of the court or judge, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties; and he must take the usual oath, and have the same indorsed on his letters. Thereupon the clerk shall issue special letters of administration to him.
- Powers and duties 463. The special administrator must take possession of all of the real and personal property of the decedent, and preserve it from damage, waste and injury, and must collect all claims, rents and other income belonging to the estate; and for any such purposes may commence and maintain or defend suits and other legal proceedings as such administrator. He may sell perishable property and exercise such other powers as are conferred upon him by his appointment, but, except when the powers, duties and obligations of a general administrator are conferred upon him as hereinafter provided, he is not liable to an action by any creditor on a claim against the decedent. He may obtain leave to borrow money, or to lease or mortgage real property, in the same manner as a general administrator.

464. If any property in charge of a special administrator is subject to a mortgage, lien, or deed of trust, to secure the payment of money, and there is danger that the holder of the security may enforce or foreclose the same, and the property exceeds in value the amount of the obligation thereon, then, upon petition of the special administrator, or of anyone interested in the estate, and upon such notice as the court or judge shall deem proper, the court or judge may authorize or direct the special administrator to pay the interest due or all or any part of the amount so secured. The order may also direct that interest not yet accrued be paid as it becomes due, and such order shall remain in effect and cover such future interest unless and until for good cause set aside or modified by the court upon petition and notice similar to that hereinabove provided.

Payment of lien charges on property.

465. When a special administrator is appointed pending determination of a contest of a will instituted prior to the probate thereof, or pending an appeal from an order appointing, suspending or removing an executor or administrator, the special administrator shall have the same powers, duties and obligations as a general administrator, and the letters of administration issued to him shall recite that such special administrator is appointed with the powers of a general administrator. If a special administrator has been appointed, and thereafter a proceeding to contest a will prior to the probate thereof has been instituted, the court shall make an order providing that such special administrator shall thereafter have the additional powers, duties and obligations of a general administrator, and requiring that he give such additional bond as the court deems proper. Such order is not appealable, and from the time of the approving and filing of any such additional bond as may be required, such special administrator shall have the powers, duties and obligations of a general administrator.

general

466. When letters testamentary or of administration on the estate of the decedent are granted, the powers of the special administrator cease, and he must forthwith deliver all the property of the decedent in his hands to the executor or administrator, who may prosecute to final judgment any suit commenced by the special administrator.

tamentary,

467. The special administrator must render a verified account of his proceedings in like manner as other administrators are required to do. His commissions and the fees of his attorney shall be fixed by the court; but the total commissions paid and extra allowances made to the special administrator and executor, or to the special administrator and general administrator of an estate, must not, together, exceed the sums provided for in this code as commissions and extra allowances for the services of executors or administrators; and the total fees paid to the attorneys both of the special administrator and executor, or of the special administrator and general administrator, must not, together, exceed the sums provided in this code as compensation for the ordinary and extraordinary services of attorneys for executors or administrators.

Division of commissions,
etc

468. When the same person does not act as both special administrator and executor, or as special administrator and general administrator, such commissions and allowances shall be divided between the special administrator and executor, or between the special administrator and general administrator, in such proportion as the court shall deem just; and when the same attorney does not act for both the special administrator and executor, or for the special administrator and general administrator, such fees shall be divided between the attorneys in such proportion as the court shall deem just.

CHAPTER VI—LETTERS, GENERALLY, AND CHANGES IN ADMINISTRATION.

Article I—Trust Companies.

Capacity to act as guardian, executor,
etc

480. A corporation or association authorized to conduct the business of a trust company in this state may be appointed to act as an executor, administrator, guardian of an estate, or trustee, in like manner as an individual; but it shall not be appointed guardian of the person of a ward.

No bond requirement Oaths and affidavits

481. A corporation or association receiving an appointment under the previous section shall not be required to give any bond or security, but the provisions of section 1044 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall govern with respect to its liability and the making of oaths and affidavits.

Article II—Form of Letters.

Signing

500. Letters testamentary, or of administration, or of administration with the will annexed, or of special administration, shall be signed by the clerk, under the seal of the court.

tary of administration

501. Letters testamentary, or of administration with the will annexed, shall be substantially in the following form: State of California, county (or city and county) of ----- The last will of A. B., deceased, having been proved in the superior court of the county (or city and county) of -----, C. Of administration, general and special.

Article III—Disability and Substitution.

510. Upon the admission to probate of a will after a grant of letters of administration on the ground of intestacy, or upon the admission to probate of a later will than the one before admitted to probate, the preexisting grant of letters testamentary or of administration must be revoked, and the administrator or executor whose grant of authority is thus terminated must render an account of his administration within such time as the court may direct. The newly appointed executor or administrator with the will annexed is entitled to demand, sue for, recover and collect all the property of the decedent remaining unadministered, and may prosecute to final judgment any suit commenced by the previous administrator or executor before the revocation of his letters.

Effect of subsequent probate

New executor, etc.

511. In case any one of several executors or administrators to whom letters are granted dies, becomes insane, is convicted of an infamous crime, or otherwise becomes incapable of executing the trust, or in case the letters testamentary or of administration are revoked or annulled with respect to any one executor or administrator, the remaining executor or administrator must proceed to complete the execution of the will or administration. The fact of such death or disqualification shall be established by a decree of the court, upon such notice as the court deems reasonable.

Incapacity of joint executor, etc.

512. If all the executors or administrators die or become disqualified or incapable, or the power and authority of all of them is revoked, the court shall issue letters of administration, with the will annexed or otherwise, to the person or persons next entitled thereto, in the same order and manner as is directed in relation to original letters of administration. The administrators so appointed must give bond in the like penalty, with like sureties and conditions, as hereinafter required of administrators, and shall have the like power and authority.

Incapacity of all executors, etc

Article IV—Resignation, Suspension and Removal.

520. An executor or administrator may resign his appointment at any time, by a writing filed in the superior court, to take effect upon the settlement of his accounts. If,

signing

however, by reason of any delay in such settlement, or for any other cause, the circumstances of the estate or the rights of those interested therein require it, the court, at any time after the tendering of the resignation, may revoke the letters of such executor or administrator and appoint in his stead an administrator, either special or general, or with the will annexed, in the same manner as is directed in relation to original letters of administration. The liability of the outgoing executor or administrator, or of the sureties on his bond, shall not in any manner be discharged, released, or affected by such resignation or appointment, but shall continue until the executor or administrator has delivered up all the estate to the person whom the court shall appoint to receive the same.

Suspension and removal:
causes and procedure

521. Whenever a judge of the court has reason to believe from his own knowledge, or from credible information, that any executor or administrator has wasted, embezzled or mismanaged, or is about to waste or embezzle the property of the estate committed to his charge, or has committed or is about to commit a fraud upon the estate, or is incompetent to act, or has permanently removed from the state, or has wrongfully neglected the estate, or has long neglected to perform any act as such executor or administrator, he must cite such executor or administrator to appear and show cause why his letters should not be revoked, and may suspend his powers until the matter is investigated. If the executor or administrator has absconded or conceals himself or has removed or absented himself from the state, notice of the pendency of the proceedings may be given to him by publication, in such manner as the court may direct, and the court may proceed upon such notice as if the citation had been personally served.

Filing
charges

522. Any person interested in the estate may appear at the hearing and file allegations in writing, showing that the executor or administrator should be removed; to which the executor or administrator may demur or answer, and the issues shall be heard and determined by the court.

Proceedings
at hearing

523. If the executor or administrator fails to appear in obedience to the citation, or, if he appears and the court is satisfied from the evidence that there exists cause for his removal, his letters must be revoked. The court may compel his attendance by attachment, and may compel him to answer questions, on oath, touching his administration, and, upon his refusal so to do, may commit him until he obeys, or may revoke his letters, or both.

Embezzlement, etc., by executor or administrator

524. If, upon the settlement of an account of the executor or administrator, it appears that he has embezzled, wasted or mismanaged the estate, his letters must be revoked.

Acts prior to revocation

525. All acts of an executor or administrator, as such, before the revocation of his letters testamentary or of administration, are as valid, to all intents and purposes, as if he continued lawfully to execute the duties of his trust.

526. Whenever an executor or administrator is committed for contempt in disobeying an order of the court or judge, and has remained in custody for thirty days without obeying such order or otherwise purging himself of the contempt, the court may, by order reciting the facts, and without further showing or notice, revoke his letters and appoint some other person entitled thereto executor or administrator in his stead.

Commitment for contempt

CHAPTER VII—OATHS AND BONDS.

540 Before letters testamentary or of administration are issued, the executor or administrator must take and subscribe an oath that he will perform, according to law, the duties of his office, which oath must be attached to or endorsed upon the letters.

Taking of oath

541. Every person to whom letters testamentary or of administration are directed to issue (unless the testator has waived such requirement), must, before receiving them, execute a bond to the State of California, with two or more persons or an authorized surety company as surety, to be approved by a judge of the superior court, conditioned that the executor or administrator shall faithfully execute the duties of the trust according to law. In form the bond must be joint and several. If the bond is to be given by individual persons, the penalty must be not less than twice the value of the personal property and twice the value of the probable annual income from the real property belonging to the estate, which values must be ascertained by the court or judge by examining on oath the party applying, and any other persons. If the bond is to be given by an authorized surety company, the court in its discretion may fix the amount of the bond at not less than the value of the personal property and the probable value of the annual rents, issues and profits of all of the property belonging to the estate.

Bond

542. Before a sale of any real property of an estate is confirmed, the court, or a judge thereof, shall require such additional bond as may be necessary to make the total penalty the amount provided by the previous section, treating the expected proceeds of the sale as personal property.

Additional bond on sale of real property

543. When it is provided in the will that no bond shall be required of the executor, the court, nevertheless, for good cause, may require one to be given as in other cases, either before or at any time after the issuance of letters.

When required despite will

544. When two or more persons are appointed executors or administrators, the court or judge must require and take a separate bond from each of them.

Separate bonds by
executors

545. In all cases in which bonds are required to be given under the provisions of this code, the sureties must justify thereon in the same manner and in like amounts as required by the Code of Civil Procedure, and the certificate thereof must be attached to and filed with the bond. All such bonds must be approved by a judge of the superior court before being

Sureties,

register

filed. Upon filing, the clerk shall enter in the register of actions the date and amount of such bond and the name or names of the surety or sureties thereon. In the event of the loss of such bond, such entries so made shall be prima facie evidence of the due execution of such bond as required by law.

Justification of sureties.

546. Before the judge approves any bond, or after its approval, he may, of his own motion, or upon the motion of any person interested in the estate, supported by affidavit that the sureties, or some one or more of them, are not worth as much as they have justified to, order a citation to issue requiring such sureties to appear before him at a designated time and place, to be examined touching their property and its value, and a citation to issue to the executor or administrator requiring his appearance at the same time and place. On the return of the citations, he may examine the sureties and such witnesses as may be produced, touching the property of the sureties and its value; and if, upon such examination, he is satisfied that the bond is insufficient, he must require sufficient additional security.

ties become insufficient.

547. Any person interested in an estate may represent to the court or a judge thereof, by verified petition, that the sureties of the executor or administrator thereof have become, or are becoming, insolvent, or that they have removed or are about to remove from the state, or that from any other cause the bond is insufficient, and ask that further security be required. Or if it comes to the knowledge of the judge that the bond is from any cause insufficient, he may, of his own motion, without any application, require further security.

sufficiency

548. If the court or judge is satisfied from the petition or from the judge's own information that the matter requires investigation, a citation must be issued to the executor or administrator requiring him to appear before the judge at a designated time and place, to show cause why he should not give further security. The citation must be served on the executor or administrator personally, at least five days before the return day. If he has absconded, or can not be found, it may be served by leaving a copy of it at his residence, or by such publication as the court or judge may order. On the return of the citation, or at such other time as the judge may appoint, he shall proceed to hear the matter, and if it satisfactorily appears that the security, from any cause, is insufficient, he shall make an order requiring the executor or administrator to give further security, or to file a new bond in the usual form, within a reasonable time, not less than five days.

Appointment of person next in order

549. If sufficient security or additional security is not given within the time fixed by the judge's order, the right of the executor or administrator to the administration shall cease, and the person next entitled to administer the estate, who will execute a sufficient bond, must be appointed. If letters have already been issued to the executor or administrator, the same shall be revoked, and his authority shall thereupon cease.

550. When a petition is presented praying that an executor or administrator be required to give further security, or to give bond, where, by the terms of the will, no bond was originally required, and it is alleged, on oath, that the executor or administrator is wasting the property of the estate, the judge, by order, may suspend his powers until the matter can be heard and determined.

of powers pending
hearing

551. When a surety of an executor or administrator desires to be released from responsibility on account of future acts, he may make application to the court, or a judge thereof, for relief. The court or judge shall cite the executor or administrator to appear at a designated time and place and give other security. If he has absconded, left, or removed from the state, or if he can not be found after due diligence and inquiry, the citation may be served by leaving a copy of it at his residence, or by such publication as the court or judge may order.

Application for discharge of surety

552. If the executor or administrator neglects or refuses to give new sureties, to the satisfaction of the judge, on the return of the citation or within such reasonable time as the judge shall allow, unless the surety making the application shall consent to a longer extension of time, the court or judge must revoke his letters.

Revocation
for failure to give new sureties

553. If new sureties be given to the satisfaction of the judge, he shall thereupon make an order that the sureties who applied for relief shall not be liable on their bond for any subsequent act, default or misconduct of the executor or administrator.

Discharge
of sureties

554. The liability of principal and sureties upon the bond of an executor, administrator, or guardian, is in all cases to pay in the kind of money or currency in which the principal is legally liable. The bond shall not be void upon the first recovery, but may be sued and recovered upon from time to time, by any person aggrieved, in his own name, until the whole penalty is exhausted.

liability.

CHAPTER VIII—POWERS AND DUTIES OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

570. When two or more executors or administrators have been appointed and one or more are absent from the state, or legally disqualified from serving, the act of the other or others shall be effectual for all purposes; if upon any hearing it shall appear that one or more of the executors or administrators were absent from the state or legally disqualified from serving, the court may so find in its order or judgment and such finding shall be conclusive of the authority of those acting. When there are more than two executors or administrators, the act of a majority is valid.

Absent
executors

Authority of those remaining

571. The executor or administrator must take into his possession all the estate of the decedent, real and personal, and collect all debts due to the decedent or to the estate.

Duties of executor,
etc : surviving partner

When, at the time of his death, a partnership existed between the decedent and any other person, the surviving partner has the right to continue in possession of the partnership, and to settle its business, but the interest of the decedent in the partnership must be included in the inventory, and be appraised as other property. The surviving partner must settle the affairs of the partnership without delay, and account to the executor or administrator, and pay over such balances as may from time to time be payable to him, in right of the decedent. Upon application of the executor or administrator, the court or a judge thereof, whenever it appears necessary, may order the surviving partner to render an account, and in case of neglect or refusal may, after notice, compel it by attachment; and the executor or administrator may maintain against him any action which the decedent could have maintained.

Continuing business of decedent.

572. After notice to all persons interested in an estate, given in such manner as may be directed by the court or a judge thereof, the court may authorize the executor or administrator to continue the operation of the decedent's business to such an extent and subject to such restrictions as may seem to the court to be for the best interest of the estate and those interested therein.

Extent of power to sue and be sued

573. Actions for the recovery of any property, real or personal, or for the possession thereof, or to quiet title thereto, or to determine any adverse claim thereon, and all actions founded upon contracts, may be maintained by and against executors and administrators in all cases in which the same might have been maintained by or against their respective testators or intestates.

Actions
for trespass

574. Executors and administrators may maintain an action against any person who has wasted, destroyed, taken, or carried away, or converted to his own use, the property of their testator or intestate, in his lifetime, or committed any trespass on the real property of the decedent in his lifetime; and any person, or the personal representative of any person, may maintain an action against the executor or administrator of any testator or intestate who in his lifetime has wasted, destroyed, taken, or carried away, or converted to his own use, the property of any such person or committed any trespass on the real property of such person.

Actions for partition

575. When the decedent leaves an undivided interest in any property, the executor or administrator may be authorized or directed to institute an action against the other cotenants for the partition thereof, upon petition for such order, and a hearing had upon notice given for the period and in the manner prescribed by section 1200 of this code.

Actions on bond of former executor, etc

576. An executor or administrator, as such, may maintain actions on the bond of any former executor or administrator of the same estate, for the use and benefit of all parties interested in the estate.

577. In actions by or against executors, it is not necessary to join those as parties to whom letters were ordered issued but who have not qualified.

Necessary parties to actions

578. If a debtor of the decedent is unable to pay all his debts, the executor or administrator, with the approval of the court or a judge thereof, may compound with him and give him a discharge, upon receiving a fair and just dividend of his effects. A compromise may also be authorized by the court or judge when it appears to be just and for the best interest of the estate. Reasonable notice of the application for such approval or authorization must be given by the executor or administrator to all persons who have filed appearances as heirs, devisees, legatees, creditors, or as otherwise interested.

Compounding debts

Compromises

579. If the decedent, in his lifetime, conveyed any real or personal property, or any right or interest therein, with intent to defraud his creditors, or to avoid any obligation due another, or made a conveyance that by law is void as against creditors, or made a gift of property in view of death, and there is a deficiency of assets in the hands of the executor or administrator, the latter, on application of any creditor, must commence and prosecute to final judgment an action for the recovery of the same for the benefit of the creditors.

Actions to recover fraudulently conveyed property

580. A creditor making such application must pay such part of the cost and expenses of the suit, or give such security to the executor or administrator therefor, as the court or a judge thereof shall direct. All property so recovered must be sold for the payment of debts, in the same manner as if the decedent had died seised or possessed thereof, and the proceeds must be appropriated in payment of the debts of the decedent in the same manner as other property in the hands of the executor or administrator. The remainder of the proceeds, after all the debts of the decedent have been paid, must be paid to the person from whom such property was recovered.

Costs

Disposal of property recovered

Proceeds

581. The executor or administrator is entitled to the possession of all the real and personal property of the decedent, and to receive the rents, issues and profits thereof until the estate is settled or until delivered over by order of the court to the heirs, devisees or legatees. He must keep in good tenantable repair all houses, buildings and fixtures thereon which are under his control. After the time to file or present claims has expired he is not entitled to recover the possession of any property of the estate from any heir who has succeeded to the property in his possession, or from any devisee or legatee to whom the property has been devised or bequeathed, or from the assignee of any such heir, devisee or legatee, unless he proves that the same is necessary for the payment of debts or legacies, or of expenses of administration already accrued, or for distribution to some other heir, devisee or legatee entitled thereto. The heirs or devisees may themselves, or jointly with the executor or administrator, maintain an action for the possession of the real property, or for the purpose of quieting title to the same, against any one except the executor or administrator; but they are not required so to do.

Custody of decedent's property.

Interests of actions by and against heirs and devisees

Delivery of real property to heirs, etc

582. When the time to file or present claims has expired, the executor or administrator must deliver possession of the real property to the heirs or devisees, unless the income therefrom for a longer period or a sale thereof is required for the payment of the debts of the decedent.

Purchase by executor of property of estate prohibited

583. No executor or administrator may purchase any property of the estate, or any claim against the estate, directly or indirectly, nor be interested in any such purchase; and if he pays any claim for less than its full amount he may have credit in his accounts only for the amount actually paid

Investment
of estate
funds

584. Pending the settlement of an estate, on the petition of the executor or administrator, or of any person interested in the estate, and upon good cause shown therefor, the court may order any money in the hands of the executor or administrator to be invested for the benefit of the estate in securities of the United States or of this state. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

Deposit of estate funds in banks.

585. An executor or administrator may deposit any money belonging to the estate with one or more banks within this state, whereupon he shall be discharged from further care or responsibility therefor until the money is withdrawn by him. Unless the money is deposited pursuant to an order, under the provisions of the Bank Act, it may be withdrawn without order of court.

Deposit of estate assets with trust company.

586. Personal assets of an estate may be deposited with a trust company, and the bond of the executor or administrator reduced, as provided by the Bank Act.

600. Within three months after his appointment, or within such further time as the court or judge for reasonable cause may allow, the executor or administrator must file with the clerk of the court an inventory and appraisement of the estate of the decedent which has come to his possession or knowledge. The inventory must include the homestead, if any, and all the estate of the decedent, real and personal, particularly specifying all debts, bonds, mortgages, notes and other securities for the payment of money belonging to the decedent, with the name of each debtor, the date, the sum originally payable, the indorsements thereon, if any, with their dates, and a statement of the interest of the decedent in any partnership of which he was a member, to be appraised as a single item. It must include an account of all moneys belonging to the decedent. If the whole estate consists of money in the hands of the executor or administrator, there need not be an appraisement, but an inventory must be made and returned as in other cases.

601. The inventory must show, so far as the same can be ascertained by the executor or administrator, what portion of the property is community property, and what portion is separate property of the decedent.

Community and separate property.

602. The naming of a person as executor does not thereby discharge him from any just claim which the testator has against him, but the claim must be included in the inventory, and the executor is liable for the same as for so much money in his hands, when the debt or demand becomes due.

Claims against executor.

603. The discharge or bequest in a will of any debt or demand of the testator against the executor or any other person is not valid against the creditors of the decedent, but is a specific bequest of the debt or demand. It must be included in the inventory, and, if necessary, applied in the payment of the debts. If not necessary for that purpose, it must be paid in the same manner and proportion as other specific legacies.

Status of bequest of claim against executor.

604. The executor or administrator must take and subscribe an oath that the inventory contains a true statement of all the estate of the decedent which has come to his possession or knowledge, and particularly of all money belonging to the decedent, and of all just claims of the decedent against the affiant. The oath must be endorsed upon or annexed to the inventory.

Oath.

605. To make the appraisement, the court or judge must appoint three disinterested persons, one of whom must be one of the inheritance tax appraisers provided for by law. Any two of them may act, provided one of them be the inheritance tax appraiser. But the court may, in its discretion, appoint such inheritance tax appraiser as sole appraiser of the estate.

Appointment of appraisers

606. No clerk of the court or deputy clerk, or partner or employee of the judge, or person related to the judge or to his wife within the third degree, or who is married to a relative of the judge within the third degree, shall be competent to act as appraiser.

Competency to act as appraiser

607. If any part of the estate is in a county other than that in which letters issued, an appraiser or appraisers thereof may in the same manner as above provided be appointed, either by the court or judge having jurisdiction of the estate or by the court or judge of such other county, on request of the court or judge having jurisdiction

Appraisement of property in another county

608. Before proceeding to the execution of their duty, the appraisers must take and subscribe an oath, to be attached to the inventory, that they will truly, honestly and impartially appraise the property exhibited to them, according to the best of their knowledge and ability. They must appraise the property by setting down each item separately, with the value thereof in dollars and cents in figures opposite the respective items, specifying the sum which they believe may be collected on each debt or security.

Oath of appraisers See also Ch 722, Stats 1931

Itemized appraisement

Compensation of appraisers

609. Each appraiser is entitled to receive, from each estate he appraises, his actual and necessary expenses and compensation for his services not to exceed five dollars per day, to be allowed by the court; and he must file, with the inventory, a verified account of his services and disbursements.

Failure to file inventory

610. If the executor or administrator neglects or refuses to file the inventory within the time prescribed, the court, upon notice, may revoke his letters, and he shall be liable on his bond for any injury to the estate or any person interested therein, arising from such failure.

Inventory and appraisal of newly discovered property

611. Whenever property not included in the inventory comes to the possession or knowledge of the executor or administrator, he must cause the same to be appraised in the manner hereinbefore prescribed, and an inventory thereof to be filed within two months after the discovery; and the making of such inventory may be enforced, after notice, by attachment or removal from office.

Penalty for embezzlement, etc., of decedent's property

612. If any person embezzles, conceals, smuggles or fraudulently disposes of any property of a decedent, he is chargeable therewith, and liable to an action by the executor or administrator of the estate for double the value of the property, to be recovered for the benefit of the estate.

Procedure against embezzler etc

613. Upon complaint made under oath by an executor, administrator, or other person interested in the estate of a decedent, that any person is suspected of having embezzled, concealed, smuggled or fraudulently disposed of any property of the decedent, or has in his possession or has knowledge of any deed, conveyance, bond, contract or other writing, which contains evidence of or tends to disclose the right, title, interest or claim of the decedent to any real or personal property, or any claim or demand, or any lost will, the court or judge may cite the suspected person to appear before the court, and may examine him on oath upon the matter of such complaint. If such person is not in the county where letters issued, he may be cited and examined before the superior court either of the county where he is found, or of the county where letters issued. But if he appears and is found innocent, his necessary expenses must be allowed him out of the estate.

Enforcement of examination interrogatories

614. If the person so cited refuses to appear and submit to an examination, or to answer such interrogatories as may be put to him, touching the matters of the complaint, the court, by warrant for that purpose, may commit him to the county jail, there to remain until he submits to the order of the court or is discharged according to law. If, upon such examination, it appears that he has embezzled, concealed, smuggled or fraudulently disposed of any property of the decedent, or that he has in his possession or knowledge any of the papers or documents mentioned in the preceding section, the court or judge may make an order requiring him to disclose his knowledge thereof to the executor or administrator, and may commit him to the county jail, there to remain until the order is complied with or he is discharged according to law.

All such interrogatories and answers must be in writing, signed by the party examined, and filed in the court. In addition to the examination of the party, witnesses may be produced and examined on either side.

615 The court or judge, upon the complaint, on oath, of any executor or administrator, may cite any person who has been intrusted with any part of the estate of the decedent to appear before the court or judge and require him to render a full account, on oath, of any moneys, accounts, or other property or papers belonging to the estate, which have come to his possession, and of his proceedings thereon; and if the person so cited refuses to appear and render such account, the court may proceed against him as provided in the preceding section.

CHAPTER X—DISPOSITION OF ESTATES WITHOUT ADMINISTRATION.

Article I—Transfer of Personal Property Not Exceeding One Thousand Dollars in Value.

630 When a person dies intestate, leaving no real property in this state, and no personal property in this state other than money in bank, property in boxes and vaults of banks and safe deposit companies, shares of the capital stock of corporations, money due from building and loan associations in this state, including money invested in or represented by shares of stock, membership shares, investment certificates, promissory notes and other evidences of indebtedness standing in his name on the books and records of such associations at the time of his death, and money due the decedent as an heir or legatee of a person whose estate is in probate, and the total value of the decedent's property in this state does not exceed one thousand dollars, the surviving spouse, the children, the parent, the brother or sister of the decedent, or the guardian of the estate of any minor or insane or incompetent person bearing such relationship to the decedent, if such person has a right to succeed to the property of the decedent, may, without procuring letters of administration, collect such money and receive such property from such bank, company, corporation, association, or the executor or administrator of the estate in probate, and have such capital stock transferred to him by such corporation, upon furnishing such bank, company, corporation, association, or executor or administrator, with an affidavit showing the right of the affiant or affiants to receive such money or property or to have such capital stock transferred.

Whether a person dies testate or intestate, and irrespective of the character of his or her property, if the value of the estate does not exceed five thousand dollars, the spouse of the decedent, if entitled by succession or by the last will and testament of the decedent to any money of the decedent on deposit in bank, may collect such money, not to

See also Ch. 1089, Stats 1831.

631. The receipt of such affiant or affiants shall constitute sufficient acquittance therefor and shall fully discharge such bank, company, corporation, association or personal representative from any further liability with reference thereto, without the necessity of inquiring into the truth of any of the facts stated in the affidavit except that such personal representative of an estate in probate shall first present said affidavit to the judge of the superior court in which the estate is being probated and the judge shall direct him to pay to said affiant or affiants, upon distribution, the sum to which such deceased heir or legatee is entitled under the will or the laws of succession. But such payment or transfer shall not preclude administration when necessary to enforce payment of the decedent's debts.

Administration where necessary

Article II—Setting Aside Estates Not Exceeding Two Thousand Five Hundred Dollars in Value.

Petition to set aside without administration

640. If the decedent leaves a widow or minor child or minor children, and the net value of his whole estate over and above all liens or encumbrances of record at the date of his death does not exceed the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, the person petitioning for the probate of his will or for letters of administration may add an allegation to that effect to the other allegations of the petition, with a specific description of all of the decedent's property, a list of all of the liens and encumbrances of record at the date of his death, and an estimate of the value of the property, and may include, in his prayer, an alternative prayer that if the court finds that the total value of the estate, over and above all liens and encumbrances of record at the date of the death of the decedent does not exceed two thousand five hundred dollars, the same be set aside to the widow, if there be one, and if there be none, then to the minor child or minor children of the decedent. When such allegation is included in the petition, the petition shall be verified, and the notice of hearing shall include a statement that a prayer for setting aside the estate to the widow or minor child or minor children, as the case may be, is included in the petition.

Petition by widow, etc

641. If the person petitioning for probate of the will or for letters of administration does not include such an allegation as is provided for by the previous section, the widow, if there be one, and if there be none, the guardian of the minor child or minor children, may, at any time prior to the hearing of such petition, file a verified petition setting forth the matters mentioned in the previous section, and pray that the estate be set aside for the use of the widow or minor child or minor children. If the hearing of the original petition is set for a day more than ten days after the filing of the petition herein provided for, the latter shall be set for hearing at the same time as the former; if not, it shall be set for hearing at least ten days after the date on which it is filed, and the former petition shall be continued until such date.

642. If the decedent leaves a widow or minor child or minor children, and upon the filing of the inventory of the estate it appears that the net value of the whole estate over and above all liens and encumbrances of record at the date of death does not exceed the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, the personal representative of the decedent or the widow or guardian of the minor child or children may file a verified petition showing the value of the estate to be no greater than as aforesaid, and the clerk shall fix a day for the hearing thereof.

Petition on behalf of minor children.

643. When a petition is filed under section 641 or section 642, the clerk shall give notice of the hearing for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

Notice of hearing.

644. When a petition is filed which includes the allegations provided for by section 640 or section 641, unless the whole estate consists of money, the court shall forthwith appoint one inheritance tax appraiser, who shall appraise the property described in the petition, and file his report with the clerk of the court.

Appointment of appraiser.

645. If, upon the hearing of any petition provided for by this article, the court finds that the net value of the estate over and above all liens and encumbrances of record at the date of the death of the decedent does not exceed the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, and that the expenses of the last illness, funeral charges and expenses of administration have been paid, it shall, by decree for that purpose, assign to the widow of the decedent, if there be a widow, or, if there be no widow, then to the minor child or children of the decedent, if any, the whole of the estate, subject to whatever mortgages, liens, or encumbrances there may be upon said estate at the time of the death of the decedent. The title thereto shall vest absolutely in the widow, if there be a widow, or if there be no widow, in the minor child or children subject to whatever mortgages, liens or encumbrances there may be upon said estate at the time of the death of the decedent, and there must be no further proceedings in the administration, unless further estate be discovered. But no widow or minor child having other estate of five thousand dollars in value shall be entitled to such an assignment.

Assignment to widow, etc.

Title after assignment

Restriction

646. If the court finds that the net value of the estate exceeds two thousand five hundred dollars, or that the widow or minor child has other estate of five thousand dollars in value, or that there is neither a widow nor minor child, it shall act upon the petition for probate or for letters of administration in the same manner as though no petition to set aside the estate had been included, and the estate shall then be administered in the usual manner.

When no assignment to be made.

Vesting of

Debts of spouse

660. The decedent's surviving spouse and minor children are entitled to remain in possession of the homestead, the wearing apparel of the family, the household furniture and other property of the decedent exempt from execution, until the inventory is filed. Thereupon, or at any subsequent time during the administration, the court, on petition therefor, may in its discretion set apart to the surviving spouse, or, in case of his or her death, to the minor child or children of the decedent, all or any part of the property of the decedent exempt from execution, and must set apart to such spouse or to such minor child or children the homestead selected, designated and recorded, if such homestead was selected from the community property, or from the separate property of the person selecting or joining in the selection of the same.

661. If none has been selected, designated and recorded, or in case the homestead was selected by the survivor out of the separate property of the decedent, the decedent not having joined therein, the court, in the manner hereinafter provided, must select, designate and set apart and cause to be recorded a homestead for the use of the surviving spouse and the minor children, or, if there be no surviving spouse, then for the use of the minor child or children, out of the community property or out of real property owned in common by the decedent and the person or persons entitled to have the homestead set apart, or if there be no community property and no such property owned in common, then out of the separate property of the decedent. If the property set apart is the separate property of the decedent, the court can set it apart only for a limited period, to be designated in the order, and in no case beyond the lifetime of the surviving spouse, or, as to a child, beyond its minority; and, subject to such homestead right, the property remains subject to administration.

662. When such petition is filed, the clerk must set it for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

663. If the homestead selected by the husband and wife, or either of them, during their coverture, and recorded while both were living, was selected from the community property, or from the separate property of the person selecting or joining in the selection of the same, it vests, on the death of either spouse, absolutely in the survivor. If the homestead was selected from the separate property of the decedent without his or her consent, it vests, on death, in his or her heirs or devisees, subject to the power of the court to set it apart for a limited period to the family of the decedent, as hereinabove provided. In either case it is not subject to the payment of any debt or liability existing against the spouses or either of them, at the time of the death of either, except as provided in the Civil Code.

664. If the homestead selected and recorded prior to the death of the decedent is returned in the inventory appraised at not over five thousand dollars, or was previously appraised as provided in the Civil Code and such appraised value did not exceed that sum, the court shall order it set apart to the persons in whom title is vested by the preceding section. If it is returned in the inventory appraised at more than five thousand dollars, the appraisers must, before they make their return, ascertain and appraise the value of the homestead at the time the same was selected, and if such value exceeded five thousand dollars, or if the homestead was appraised as provided in the Civil Code and such appraised value exceeded that sum, the appraisers must determine whether the premises can be divided without material injury, and if they find that they can be thus divided, they must admeasure and set apart to the parties entitled thereto such portion of the premises, including the dwelling house, as will amount in value to the sum of five thousand dollars, and make report thereof, giving an exact description of the portion set apart as a homestead.

665. If the appraisers find that the value of the premises, at the time of their selection, exceeded five thousand dollars, and that they can not be divided without material injury, they must report such finding, and thereafter the court may make an order for the sale of the premises and the distribution of the proceeds to the parties entitled thereto.

Report of

666. Any two of the appraisers concurring may discharge the duties imposed upon the three, and make the report. A dissenting report may be made by the third appraiser. The report must state fully the acts of the appraisers. Both reports may be heard and considered by the court in determining upon a confirmation or rejection of the majority report, but the minority report shall in no case be confirmed. When the report of the appraisers is filed, the clerk shall set the same for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. If the court is satisfied that the report is correct, it must be confirmed, otherwise rejected. In case the report is rejected, the court may appoint new appraisers to examine and report upon the homestead, and similar proceedings may be had for the confirmation or rejection of their report, as upon the first report.

667. When property, other than a homestead selected and recorded during the lifetime of the decedent, is set apart to the use of the family, in accordance with the provisions of this article, such property, if the decedent left a surviving spouse and no minor child, is the property of such spouse; if the decedent left also a minor child or children, one-half of such property belongs to the surviving spouse and the remainder to the child or in equal shares to the children; if there is no surviving spouse, the whole belongs to the minor child or children.

668. A person succeeding by purchase or otherwise to the interest of a surviving spouse in a homestead which has been declared in the lifetime of the decedent, shall have the same right to apply for an order setting aside the homestead to him as is conferred by law on the person whose interest he has acquired.

Article II—Family Allowance.

allowance

680. The widow and minor children are entitled to such reasonable allowance out of the estate as shall be necessary for their maintenance according to their circumstances, during the progress of the settlement of the estate, which, in case of an insolvent estate, must not continue longer than one year after granting letters. Such allowance must be paid in preference to all other charges, except funeral charges, expenses of the last illness and expenses of administration, and may, in the discretion of the court or judge granting it, take effect from the death of the decedent.

Preference.

When may be granted

Notice of.

681. Such allowance may be granted before the inventory is filed, either by the court or a judge thereof; in which case it shall continue until modified by the court. After the inventory is filed the court may grant such allowance, or may modify any allowance made before the filing of the inventory, upon the petition of any person interested and a hearing after notice given for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

Where parties have port

682. If the widow or any minor child has a reasonable maintenance derived from other property, and there are other persons entitled to a family allowance, the allowance shall be granted only to those who have not such maintenance.

Costs of proceedings to set aside

683. The costs of all proceedings provided for in this chapter must be paid by the estate as expenses of administration.

CHAPTER XII—PRESENTATION AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS.

Article I—Presentation.

Publication
of notice to creditors

700. The executor or administrator, promptly after letters are issued, must cause to be published in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one, if not, then in such newspaper as may be designated by the court or judge, a notice to the creditors of the decedent, requiring all persons having claims against the decedent to file them, with the necessary vouchers, in the office of the clerk of the court from which letters issued, or to present them, with the necessary vouchers, to the executor or administrator, at his residence or place of business, to be specified in the notice, within six months after the first publication of the notice.

publication

Filing
claims.

701. Such notice must be published not less than once a week for four weeks. If the executor or administrator neglects to give notice promptly, the court must revoke his letters and appoint some other person in his stead. If the executor or administrator dies, resigns or is removed after the publication has been completed but before the time to file or present claims has expired, the time to file or present claims is not extended. In such case the claimant may file his claim with the clerk or present it to the new executor or administrator, at the latter's residence or place of business, within the time limited in the notice published by the former executor or administrator.

702. A copy of the notice and an affidavit showing its due publication must be filed with the clerk; and final distribution shall not be decreed unless it be shown that notice to creditors has been duly given. Within thirty days after the first publication of the notice, the executor or administrator shall file with the clerk of the court a printed copy of the notice, accompanied by a statement setting forth the date of the first publication thereof and the name of the newspaper in which it was published. If he files such notice and statement after such thirty-day period, the time to file or present claims shall be extended for a period equal to the period of default in the filing of such notice.

Affidavit of publication.

Statement after publication.

703. If the executor or administrator is a creditor of the decedent, he shall file his claim with the clerk, who must present it for allowance or rejection to the judge. Its allowance by the judge is sufficient evidence of its correctness, and it must be paid as other claims in due course of administration. If the judge rejects the claim, action thereon may be had against the estate by the claimant, and summons must be served upon the judge, who shall appoint an attorney, at the expense of the estate, to defend the action. If the claimant fails to recover, he must pay all costs, including defendant's reasonable attorney's fees, to be fixed by the court.

Claims of executor, etc

704. If a judge of the superior court files or presents a claim against the estate of a decedent, the administration of which is pending before him, and the executor or administrator allows the claim, the judge must designate, in writing, some other judge of the superior court of the same or an adjoining county, who, upon the presentation of such claim to him, is vested with power to approve or reject it. In case of its rejection by the executor or administrator, or by such designated judge, the claimant has the same right to sue for its recovery as other persons whose claims are rejected.

Claims of judge, etc

705. Every claim which is due, when filed or presented, must be supported by the affidavit of the claimant or some one in his behalf, that the amount is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon which are not credited, and that there are no offsets to the same, to the knowledge of the affiant. If the claim is not due when filed or presented, or is contingent, the particulars of the claim must be stated. When the affidavit is made by a person other than the claimant, he must set forth in the affidavit the reason therefor. The executor or administrator may also require satisfactory vouchers or proof to be produced in support of the claim. If

Affidavit and proof on claim the claimant leaves any original voucher in the hands of the executor or administrator, or suffers the same to be filed with the clerk, he may withdraw the same, when a copy thereof has been already, or is then, attached to his claim.

Claim founded on written instrument

706. If the claim is founded on a written instrument, the original need not be filed or presented, but a copy thereof with all indorsements must be attached to the claim. The original instrument must be exhibited to the executor or administrator or judge, upon demand, unless it is lost or destroyed, in which case its loss or destruction must be stated in the claim. If the claim or any part thereof is secured by a mortgage or other lien which has been recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the land affected by it lies, it shall be sufficient to describe the mortgage or lien, and refer to the date or volume and page of its record.

Secured by lien

Claims on contract
Funeral expenses.

707. All claims arising upon contract, whether they are due, not due, or contingent, and all claims for funeral expenses, must be filed or presented within the time limited in the notice or as extended by the provisions of section 702 of this code; and any claim not so filed or presented is barred forever, unless it is made to appear by the affidavit of the claimant to the satisfaction of the court or a judge thereof that the claimant had not received notice, by reason of being out of the state, in which event it may be filed or presented at any time before a decree of distribution is rendered. The clerk must enter in the register every claim filed, giving the name of the claimant, the amount and character of the claim, the rate of interest, if any, and the date of filing.

statute of limitations

708. No claim which is barred by the statute of limitations shall be allowed or approved by the executor or administrator, or by the judge. When a claim is presented to a judge for his allowance or approval, he may, in his discretion, examine the claimant and others on oath, and hear any legal evidence touching the validity of the claim. No claim which has been allowed is affected by the statute of limitations, pending the administration of the estate.

Pending
actions.

709. If an action is pending against the decedent at the time of his death, the plaintiff must in like manner file his claim with the clerk or present it to the executor or administrator for allowance or rejection, authenticated as required in other cases; and no recovery shall be had in the action unless proof is made of such filing or presentation.

Procedure-claims filed with clerk

710. When a claim has been filed with the clerk before being presented to the executor or administrator, the clerk shall immediately notify the executor or administrator, or his attorney, personally or by mail, giving the name of the claimant and the amount of the claim. The executor or administrator must allow or reject it, and his allowance or rejection must be in writing and filed with the clerk. If he allows the claim, the clerk, immediately after the filing of the allowance, must present the claim and the allowance to the judge, and at the same time must indorse on the claim the date of such presentation. The judge must indorse upon the claim his approval or rejection, with the date thereof.

711. When a claim is presented to the executor or administrator before filing, he must indorse thereon his allowance or rejection, with the date thereof. If he allows the claim, it must be presented to the judge for approval, who must in the same manner indorse upon it his approval or rejection, and, if approved, it must be filed with the clerk within thirty days thereafter.

Claims presented to executor or administrator

712. If, when a claim has been filed without presentation, the executor or administrator refuses or neglects to file his allowance or rejection for ten days after the claim has been filed, or if, where a claim has been presented before filing, the executor or administrator refuses or neglects to indorse such allowance or rejection for ten days after the claim has been presented to him, or if the judge refuses or neglects to indorse such approval or rejection for ten days after the claim has been presented to him, such refusal or neglect may, at the option of the claimant, be deemed equivalent to a rejection on the tenth day. If the claim is presented by a notary, the certificate of the notary, under seal, shall be prima facie evidence of such presentation and the date thereof. If the claim is filed with the clerk or presented to the executor or administrator before the expiration of the time limited for the filing or presentation of claims, the same is filed or presented in time, though acted upon by the executor or administrator, and by the judge, after the expiration of such time.

Failure to act on claims.

Time of filing, etc.

713. Every claim allowed by the executor or administrator and approved by the judge shall be ranked among the acknowledged debts of the estate, to be paid in due course of administration; but the validity thereof may be contested by any person in interest, at any time prior to the settlement of the account of the executor or administrator in which it is first reported as an allowed and approved claim, unless established by a judgment against the executor or administrator. The date of allowance of each claim, together with the amount allowed, must be entered in the register by the clerk after the allowance or approval thereof by the judge.

Status of allowed claim

714. When a claim is rejected either by the executor or administrator or by the judge, written notice of such rejection shall be given by the executor or administrator to the holder of the claim or to the person filing or presenting it, and the holder must bring suit in the proper court against the executor or administrator, within three months after the date of service of such notice if the claim is then due, or, if not, within two months after it becomes due; otherwise the claim shall be forever barred. If it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the residence of the claimant is not known, and that he can not be found, the court shall order the notice to be served on the claimant by filing it with the clerk.

Rejection of claims Suit

Vacancy in the administration.

715. The time during which there is a vacancy in the administration is not included in any limitation herein prescribed.

Claims must be filed or presented.

716. No holder of a claim against an estate shall maintain an action thereon, unless the claim is first filed with the clerk or presented to the executor or administrator, except in the following case: An action may be brought by the holder of a mortgage or lien to enforce the same against the property of the estate subject thereto, where all recourse against any other property of the estate is expressly waived in the complaint; but no counsel fees shall be recovered in such action unless the claim was filed or presented as aforesaid.

Mortgage or lien.

Partial allowance
of claim.

717. The executor or administrator or the judge may allow or approve a claim in part, in which case he must state in his allowance or approval the amount for which it is allowed or approved. If the creditor refuses to accept the amount allowed in satisfaction of his claim, he shall recover no costs in any action therefor brought against the executor or administrator, unless he recovers a greater amount than that allowed.

Reference of controversy

718. If the executor or administrator doubts the correctness of any claim filed or presented, he may enter into an agreement in writing with the claimant to refer the matter in controversy to some disinterested person, to be approved by the court or a judge thereof, which agreement and approval shall be filed with the clerk, who shall thereupon enter an order referring the matter in controversy to the person so selected; or, if the parties consent, a reference may be had in the court. The referee must hear and determine the matter, and make his report thereon to the court. The same proceedings shall be had in all respects, and the referee shall have the same powers, be entitled to the same compensation and subject to the same control, as in other cases of reference. The court may remove the referee, appoint another in his place, set aside or confirm his report, and adjudge costs, as in actions against executors or administrators, and the judgment of the court thereon shall be as valid and effectual, in all respects, as if the same had been rendered in a suit commenced by ordinary process; but the report of the referee, if confirmed, merely establishes or rejects the claim, the same as if it had been allowed or rejected by the executor or administrator and judge.

Reimbursement for costs.

719. When a judgment is recovered, with costs, against any executor or administrator, he shall be individually liable for such costs, but they must be allowed him in his administration accounts, unless it appears that the suit or proceeding in which the costs were taxed was prosecuted or defended without just cause.

Article II—Rules as to Payment of Claims.

Status of judgment against estate

730. A judgment rendered against an executor or administrator, upon any claim for money, against the estate of his testator or intestate, when it becomes final, conclusively establishes the validity of the claim for the amount of the judgment; and the judgment must be that the executor or administrator pay, in due course of administration, the amount ascertained to be due. A certified transcript of the original docket of the judgment must be filed in the administration proceedings. No execution shall issue upon the judgment, nor shall it create any lien upon the property of the estate, or give the judgment creditor any priority of payment.

731. A judgment against a person who dies between the rendering of a verdict or decision and the entering of judgment thereon is not a lien on the real property of the decedent, but is payable in due course of administration.

When death occurs before entry of judgment.

732. When a judgment has been rendered against the testator or intestate, no execution shall issue thereon after his death, except as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure. A judgment against the decedent for the recovery of money must be filed or presented in the same manner as other claims. If execution is actually levied upon any property of the decedent before his death, the same may be sold for the satisfaction thereof; and the officer making the sale must account to the executor or administrator for any surplus in his hands. A judgment creditor having a judgment which was rendered against the testator or intestate in his lifetime, may redeem any real property of the decedent from any sale under foreclosure or execution, in like manner and with like effect as if the judgment debtor were still living.

Death after entry of judgment. Execution.

733. No greater rate of interest shall be paid upon any claim after its allowance by the administrator or executor and its approval by the judge than is allowed upon judgments; and if the estate is insolvent, no greater rate of interest shall be paid upon any debt, from the time of the first publication of notice to creditors, than is allowed upon judgments. If any debt of the decedent bears interest, whether filed or presented or not, the executor or administrator, by order of the court, may pay the amount then accumulated and unpaid, or any part thereof, at any time when there are sufficient funds properly applicable thereto, whether the claim be then due or not; and interest shall thereupon cease to accrue upon the amount so paid.

Interest on claims and debts, etc.

734. If a claim is payable in a particular kind of money or currency, it shall, if allowed, be payable only in such money or currency.

Payment in specie.

735. If there are subsisting liens or encumbrances on the homestead, and the funds of the estate are adequate to pay all claims against the estate, the claims secured by such liens and encumbrances, whether filed or presented or not, if known or made known to the executor or administrator, must be paid out of such funds. If the funds of the estate are not sufficient for that purpose, the claims so secured shall be paid proportionately with other claims allowed, and the liens or encum-

Liens, etc., on homestead.

brances on the homestead shall only be enforced against the homestead for any deficiency remaining after such payment.

Deviser of land subject to lien.

736. When a testator devises land subject to a mortgage or other lien, other property specifically devised or bequeathed shall not be sold for the purpose of exonerating the encumbered property, unless a contrary intention can be gathered from the terms of the will, read in the light of the circumstances surrounding its execution. A mere direction that all the testator's debts be paid is not sufficient evidence of such contrary intention.

Executor
not chargeable with estate debts except on a writing

737. No executor or administrator is chargeable upon any special promise to answer in damages or to pay the debts of the decedent out of his own estate, unless the agreement for that purpose, or some memorandum or note thereof, is in writing signed by such executor or administrator, or by some other person by him thereunto specifically authorized in writing.

Where claimant can not be found

738. Whenever an estate is in all other respects ready to be closed, and it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court or judge, by affidavit or by evidence taken in open court, that an allowed and approved claim has not been and can not be paid because the claimant can not be found, the court or judge shall make an order fixing the amount of the claim, with interest, if any, and directing the executor or administrator to deposit that amount with the county treasurer of the county in which the proceedings are pending, who shall give a receipt for the same, and who shall be liable upon his official bond therefor. Thereupon the executor or administrator shall make the deposit and shall forthwith proceed to settle and close the estate. The receipt of the treasurer shall be received as a proper voucher for the payment of the claim.

Payment
to state treasury

739. When the money so deposited is not claimed within five years, the court or judge, upon such showing by the affidavit of the county treasurer, must direct the same to be deposited in the state treasury for the benefit of such claimant or his legal representative, to be paid to him whenever, within five years after such deposit, proof to the satisfaction of the state controller and state treasurer is produced that he is entitled thereto. When so claimed, a transcript of the evidence and the joint order of the controller and treasurer must be filed by the treasurer as his voucher, and the amount of the claim paid to the claimant or his legal representative, on filing the proper receipt. If no one claims the deposit as herein provided, the same devolves and escheats to the people of the state and shall be placed by the state treasurer to the credit of the school fund.

Escheat.

CHAPTER XIII—SALES.

Article I—Sales in General.

resort to estate assets for payment of debts, expenses,
etc

750. If the testator makes provision by his will, or designates the estate to be appropriated, for the payment of his debts, the expenses of administration, or family allowance, they must be paid according to such provision or out of the estate thus appropriated, so far as the same is sufficient. If insufficient, that portion of the estate not disposed of by the will, if any, must be appropriated for that purpose; and if that is not sufficient, the property given to residuary legatees and devisees, and thereafter all other property devised and bequeathed is liable for the same, in proportion to the value or amount of the several devises and legacies, but specific devises and legacies are exempt from such liability if it appears to the court necessary to carry into effect the intention of the testator, and there is other sufficient estate.

751. The property of a testator, except as otherwise provided in this code, must be resorted to for the payment of legacies in the following order:

Order of resort for payment of legacies.

(1) The property which is expressly appropriated by the will therefor.

(2) Property not disposed of by the will.

(3) Property which is devised or bequeathed to a residuary legatee.

752. Unless a different intention is expressed in the will, abatement takes place in any class only as between legacies of that class, and legacies to a spouse or to kindred are chargeable only after legacies to persons not related to the testator.

Order of abatement of legacies

753. When property given by will to persons other than the residuary devisees and legatees is sold for the payment of debts or expenses or family allowance, all the devisees and legatees must contribute according to their respective interests to the devisee or legatee whose devise or legacy has been sold, and the court, when distribution is made, must settle the amount of the several liabilities and decree the amount each person shall contribute, and reserve the same from his distributive share for the purpose of such contribution.

Contribution between devisees and legatees

754. In selling property to pay debts, legacies, family allowance or expenses, there shall be no priority as between personal and real property. When a sale of property of the estate is necessary for any such purpose, or when it is for the advantage, benefit, and best interests of the estate and those interested therein that any property of the estate be sold, the executor or administrator may sell the same, either at public auction or private sale, using his discretion as to which property to sell first, except as provided by sections 750 and 751 of this code.

Sale of estate property

755. Except as provided by sections 770 and 771 of this code, all sales of property must be reported to the court and confirmed by the court before the title to the property passes. The report must be verified. Such report and a petition for confirmation of the sale must be made within thirty days after each sale. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

Order of confirmation of sale

Notice

Written objection
Hearing.

756. Any person interested in the estate may file written objections to the confirmation of the sale and may be heard thereon, and may produce witnesses in support of his objections. Before an order is made confirming a sale, it must be proved to the satisfaction of the court that notice of the sale was given as prescribed by this code, and the order of confirmation must show that such proof was made.

Proof of notice

Sales under direction of will.

757. When property is directed by the will to be sold, or authority is given in the will to sell property, the executor may sell the same either at public auction or private sale, and with or without notice, as he may determine; but he must make a return of sales and obtain confirmation thereof as in other cases. In either case no title passes unless the sale is confirmed by the court; but the necessity of the sale, or its advantage or benefit to the estate or to those interested therein, need not be shown. If directions are given in the will as to the mode of selling, or the particular property to be sold, such directions must be observed.

Petition for order requiring sale.

758. If the executor or administrator neglects or refuses to sell any property of the estate when it is necessary or when it is for the advantage, benefit and best interests of the estate and those interested therein, or when the executor is directed by the will to sell the same, any person interested may petition the court for an order requiring the executor or administrator to sell. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court, and notice thereof must be given to the executor or administrator by citation served at least five days before the hearing.

Neglect, etc. of executor or administrator.

759. If there is any neglect or misconduct in the proceedings of the executor or administrator in relation to any sale, by which any person interested in the estate suffers damage, the party aggrieved may recover the same in an action upon the bond of the executor or administrator, or otherwise.

Contracts
to find purchaser,
etc.

760. The executor or administrator may enter into a written contract with any bona fide agent to secure a purchaser for any real or personal property of the estate, which contract shall provide for the payment to such agent out of the proceeds of a sale to any purchaser secured by him of a commission, the amount of which must be fixed and allowed by the court upon confirmation of the sale; and when said sale is confirmed to such purchaser, such contract shall be binding and valid as against the estate for the amount so allowed by the court. By the execution of any such contract no personal liability shall attach to the executor or administrator, and no liability of any kind shall be incurred by the estate unless an actual sale is made and confirmed by the court.

Where
higher price secured.
division of commissions

761. In case of sale on an increased bid made at the time of confirmation to a purchaser not procured by the agent holding the contract, the court shall allow a commission on the full amount for which the sale is confirmed, one-half of said commission on the original bid to be paid to the agent whose bid was returned to the court for confirmation and the balance of the commission on the purchase price to the agent, if any, who procured the purchaser to whom the sale is confirmed.

Article II—Sale of Personal Property.

770. Perishable property and other personal property which will depreciate in value if not disposed of promptly, or which will incur loss or expense by being kept, and so much other personal property as may be necessary to provide the family allowance pending the receipt of other sufficient funds, may be sold without notice, and title shall pass without confirmation; but the executor, administrator or special administrator is responsible for the actual value of the property unless, after making a sworn return, and on a proper showing, the court shall approve the sale.

Perishable and depreciating
property.

771. Stocks or bonds may be sold and title thereto passed without the necessity for confirmation, upon obtaining an order of the court. A petition for such an order shall be filed with the clerk, who shall set the same for hearing by the court and shall give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code, but the court or judge may order the notice to be given for a shorter period or dispensed with. The order shall fix the terms and conditions of sale, and may dispense with notice of sale when the minimum selling price is fixed or when the securities are to be sold upon an established stock or bond exchange.

Stocks or bonds

772. Except as provided by sections 770 and 771 of this code, personal property may be sold only after public notice given for at least ten days by notices posted in three public places in the county in which the proceedings are pending, or by publication in a newspaper in such county, or both, as the executor or administrator may determine, containing the time and place of sale, and a brief description of the property to be sold. Public sales must be made at the courthouse door, or at some other public place, or at the residence of the decedent; but no sale shall be made of any personal property which is not present at the time of sale, unless the court shall otherwise order.

Other personal property

773. Personal property may be sold for cash, or upon a credit. If a sale is made upon a credit, not less than twenty-five per cent of the purchase price shall be paid in cash at the time of sale. The executor or administrator shall take the note of the purchaser for the balance of the purchase money, with a pledge or chattel mortgage of the personal property sold, to secure the payment of said balance, or shall enter into a conditional sale contract under which title is retained until such balance is paid, the terms of said note and pledge or chattel mortgage or contract to be approved by the court at the time of confirmation of sale.

Terms of sale, etc

774. Partnership interests or interests belonging to an estate by virtue of any partnership formerly existing, an interest in personal property pledged, and choses in action,

Partnership interests.

may be sold in the same manner as other personal property. Before confirming the sale of a partnership interest, whether made to the surviving partner or to any other person, the court must carefully inquire into the condition of the partnership affairs, and must examine the surviving partner, if in the county and able to be present in court.

Article III—Sale of Real Property.

Notice and publication
of sale

780. Notice of the time and place of sale of real property must be published in a newspaper published in the county in which the land or some portion thereof lies, if there is one so published; if none, then in such paper as the court or judge may direct, for two weeks before the day of sale, or, in the case of a private sale, before the day on or after which the sale is to be made. When, however, it appears from the inventory and appraisalment that the value of the property to be sold does not exceed five hundred dollars, the executor or administrator may in his discretion dispense with the publication, and in lieu thereof post a notice of the time and place of sale in three of the most public places in the county in which the land is to be sold for two weeks before the day of the sale, or in the case of a private sale, before the day on or after which the sale is to be made. The property proposed to be sold must be described with common certainty in the notice.

Public auction.

781. Sales at public auction must be made in the county in which the land lies, and if it lies in two or more counties, it may be sold in either. The sale must be made between the hours of nine o'clock in the morning and the setting of the sun on the same day, and must be made on the day named in the notice of sale, unless the same is postponed.

Private
sale.

782. In the case of a private sale, the notice must state a place where bids or offers will be received, and a day on or after which the sale will be made, which day must be at least fifteen days from the first publication of notice, and the sale must not be made before that day, but must be made within one year thereafter; but if it be shown that it will be for the best interests of the estate, the court or judge may, by an order, shorten the time of notice, which shall not, however, be less than one week, and may provide that the sale may be made on or after a day less than fifteen but not less than eight days from the first publication of the notice, in which case the notice of sale and the sale may be made to correspond with such order. The bids or offers must be in writing, and may be left at the place designated in the notice or delivered to the executor or administrator personally, or may be filed in the office of the clerk of the court where the proceedings are pending, at any time after the first publication of the notice and before the making of the sale.

Postponement of sale

783. If, at the time appointed for the sale, the executor or administrator deems it for the interest of all persons concerned therein that the same be postponed, he may postpone it from time to time, not exceeding in all three months. In case of a postponement, notice thereof must be given by a public declaration at the time and place first appointed for the sale.

784. When the executor or administrator makes a return of his proceedings, the notice of hearing hereinbefore provided for must briefly indicate the land sold, and must refer to the return for further particulars. No sale of real property at private sale shall be confirmed by the court unless the sum offered is at least ninety per cent of the appraised value thereof, nor unless such real property has been appraised within one year of the time of such sale. If it has not been so appraised, or if the court is satisfied that the appraisement is too high or too low, a new appraisement must be had, as in the case of an original appraisement of an estate. This may be done at any time before the sale or confirmation thereof.

Return of sale, appraisement,
etc.

785. Upon the hearing the court must examine into the necessity for the sale, or the advantage, benefit and interest of the estate in having the sale made, and must examine the return and witnesses in relation to the sale; and if it appears to the court that good reason existed for the sale, that the sale was legally made and fairly conducted, and complied with the requirements of the previous section, that the sum bid is not disproportionate to the value, and it does not appear that a sum exceeding such bid at least ten per cent exclusive of the expenses of a new sale may be obtained, the court shall make an order confirming the sale and directing conveyances to be executed: otherwise it shall vacate the sale and direct another to be had, of which notice must be given and the sale in all respects conducted as if no previous sale had taken place. But if a written offer of ten per cent more in amount than that named in the return is made to the court by a responsible person, and the bid complies with all provisions of the law, it is in the discretion of the court to accept such offer and confirm the sale to such person or to order a new sale.

Showing on hearing, etc

Higher offer.

786. Conveyances must thereupon be executed to the purchaser by the executor or administrator, and they must refer to the order confirming sale and directing conveyances to be executed, a certified copy of which order must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the land or any portion thereof lies. Conveyances so made convey all the right, title, interest and estate of the decedent in the premises at the time of his death; and if prior to the sale, by operation of law or otherwise, the estate has acquired any right, title, or interest in the premises, other than or in addition to that of the decedent at the time of his death, such right, title, or interest also passes by such conveyances.

Conveyances after confirmation
of sale

787. If a sale is made upon a credit, the executor or administrator must take the note or notes of the purchaser for the unpaid portion of the purchase money, with a mortgage or deed of trust on the property to secure their payment.

Sales on

788. If, after the confirmation, the purchaser neglects or refuses to comply with the terms of the sale, the court, on motion of the executor or administrator, and after notice to the purchaser, may vacate the order of confirmation and order a resale of the property. If the amount realized on such resale does not cover the bid and the expenses of the previous sale, such purchaser is liable to the estate for the deficiency.

Real property subject to lien

789. When real property is sold which is subject to a mortgage or other lien which is a valid claim against the estate of the decedent, and has been filed and allowed, or presented and allowed, the purchase money must be applied, after paying the necessary expenses of the sale, first, to the payment and satisfaction of the mortgage or lien, and the residue, if any, in due course of administration. The application of the purchase money to the satisfaction of the mortgage or lien must be made without delay: and the land is subject to such mortgage or lien until the purchase money has been actually so applied.

Method of discharging
lien.

790. The purchase money, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to pay such mortgage or lien, with interest, and any lawful costs and charges thereon, may be paid to the clerk of the court, whereupon the mortgage or lien upon the land shall cease, and the purchase money must be paid over by the clerk of the court without delay, in payment of the expenses of sale, and in satisfaction of the debt to secure which the mortgage or other lien was taken, and the surplus, if any, at once returned to the executor or administrator, unless for good cause shown, after notice to the executor or administrator, the court otherwise directs.

Lienholder as purchaser.

791. At any sale of real property upon which there is a mortgage or lien, the holder thereof may become the purchaser, and his receipt for the amount due him from the proceeds of the sale is a payment pro tanto. If the amount for which he purchased the property is insufficient to defray the expenses and discharge his mortgage or lien, he must pay the clerk of the court an amount sufficient to pay such expenses.

Fraudulent
sale.
Penalty.

792. An executor or administrator who fraudulently sells any real property of a decedent contrary to or otherwise than under the provisions of this chapter, is liable in double the value of the land sold, as liquidated damages, to be recovered in an action by the person having an estate of inheritance therein.

period

793. No action for the recovery of any property sold by an executor or administrator, on the claim that the sale is void, can be maintained by any heir or other person claiming under the decedent, unless it is commenced within three years after the settlement of the final account of the executor or administrator, or within three years after the discovery of any fraud upon which the action is based. This limitation shall not apply to minors or others under any legal disability to sue at the time the right of action accrues; but any such person may commence an action at any time within three years after the removal of the disability.

Article IV—Sale of Contract to Purchase.

800. If a decedent, at the time of his death, was possessed of a contract for the purchase of real property, his interest in such property and under such contract may be sold by his executor or administrator, in the same manner as if he had died seised of such property, and the same proceedings may be had for that purpose as are prescribed in this chapter for the sale of property of which he died seised, except as herein-after provided.

Method
of sale

801. The sale must be made subject to all payments which are due at the time of sale or which may thereafter become due on such contract, and if there are any such, the sale must not be confirmed by the court until the purchaser executes a bond to the executor or administrator for the benefit and indemnity of himself and of the persons entitled to the interest of the decedent in the lands so contracted for, in double the whole amount of payments then due and thereafter to become due on such contract, with such sureties as the court or judge shall approve. The bond must be conditioned that the purchaser will make all payments for such property which are then due or which become due after the date of the sale, and will fully indemnify the executor or administrator and the persons so entitled against all demands, costs, charges and expenses, by reason of any covenant or agreement contained in such contract. Such bond need not be given when no claim has been made against the estate upon the contract and the time for filing or presenting claims has expired.

Sale subject to claims,
etc.
Bond

802. Upon the confirmation of the sale, the executor or administrator must execute to the purchaser an assignment of the contract, which vests in the purchaser, his heirs and assigns, all the right, title and interest of the estate, or of the persons entitled to the interest of the decedent, in the property sold at the time of the sale, and the purchaser has the same rights and remedies against the vendor of such land as the decedent would have had if he were living.

Article V—Sale of Mining Property.

810. To enter into an agreement to sell, or to give an option to purchase, a mining claim or claims, or real property worked as a mine, belonging to the estate of a decedent, the executor or administrator or any person interested in the estate shall file a verified petition describing the property in question, stating the terms and general conditions of the proposed agreement or option, showing the advantage or advantages that may accrue to the estate from entering into it, and praying for an order authorizing or directing its execution. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by sections 1200 and 1201 of this code.

filed or presented; and if, after a full hearing, the court is satisfied that it will be to the advantage of the estate to enter into the proposed agreement, it shall make an order authorizing and directing the executor or administrator to enter into such agreement of sale or to give such option to purchase. The order may prescribe the terms and conditions of the agreement or option. A certified copy of the order shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which the land affected by the agreement or option, or any portion thereof, lies.

Additional bond of executor,
etc.

812. At the time of making the order, the court shall fix the amount of such additional bond as it determines should be given by the executor or administrator, who shall not be entitled to receive any of the proceeds from said agreement or option until such bond is given and approved. When the order is made, the executor or administrator shall execute, acknowledge and deliver an agreement or option to purchase containing the conditions specified in the order and setting forth therein that it is made by authority of the order, and giving the date of the order.

Option
to purchase.

Failure to comply with option.

813. If the purchaser or option holder neglects or refuses to comply with the terms of the agreement or option, the court, on motion of the executor or administrator and after notice to the purchaser or option holder, shall make an order canceling the agreement or option; but such cancellation shall not affect any liability theretofore created.

Procedure
after compliance with option.

814. When the terms of such agreement to sell or option to purchase have been complied with by the purchaser or option holder and all payments have been made according to the terms thereof, the executor or administrator must make a return of his proceedings to the court and petition for a confirmation thereof, and thereupon notice shall be given, a hearing had, an order made by the court confirming or refusing to confirm the proceedings, and conveyances executed, in the same manner and with like effect as in the case of the sale of any real property.

CHAPTER XIV—NOTES, MORTGAGES, LEASES, CONVEYANCES AND EXCHANGES.

Article I—Borrowing Money and Mortgaging Property.

Authorization to borrow money,
etc.

830. Whenever it shall appear to be to the advantage of the estate to borrow money upon a note or notes, either unsecured, or to be secured by a chattel mortgage or other lien upon the personal property of the decedent, or any part thereof, or to be secured by a mortgage or deed of trust upon the real property of the decedent, or any part thereof, or to mortgage or give a deed of trust upon, or to pledge or give other lien upon, such property or any part thereof, in order to pay the debts of the decedent, or legacies, or expenses or charges of administration, or to pay, reduce, extend or renew some lien or mortgage or deed of trust already subsisting upon property of the estate, and as often as occasion therefor shall arise in the administration of the estate, the court may authorize, empower and direct the executor or administrator to borrow the money and to execute such note or notes, and, in a proper case, to execute such mortgage or deed of trust, or to give other security by way of pledge or other lien. To obtain such an order, the proceedings to be taken and the effect thereof shall be as provided in the following sections of this article.

831. The executor or administrator, or any person interested in the estate, shall file a verified petition showing the particular purpose or purposes for which the order is sought, the necessity for or advantage to accrue from the order, the amount of money proposed to be raised, if any, the rate of interest to be paid, the length of time the note or notes are to run, and a general description of the property proposed to be mortgaged or subjected to such deed of trust or other lien. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by sections 1200 and 1201 of this code. Petition.

832. At the time appointed, the court, upon proof that due notice of the hearing has been given, shall proceed to hear the petition and any objection thereto that may have been filed or presented; and if, after a full hearing, the court is satisfied that it will be to the advantage of the estate, it shall make an order authorizing and directing the executor or administrator to borrow the money and to execute such note or notes, and, in a proper case, to execute such mortgage or deed of trust, or to give other security by way of pledge or other lien. The court may direct that a lesser amount than that named in the petition be borrowed, and may prescribe the maximum rate of interest and the period of the loan, and may direct in what coin or currency it shall be paid, and require that the interest and the whole or any part of the principal be paid, from time to time, out of the whole estate or any part thereof, and that the personal property to be mortgaged or subjected to the lien, or any buildings on the premises to be mortgaged or subjected to the deed of trust, shall be insured for the further security of the lender, and the premiums paid from such income. A certified copy of the order shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which land affected by the order, or any portion thereof, lies. Hearing and order.

833. The executor or administrator shall execute, acknowledge and deliver the mortgage or deed of trust as directed, setting forth therein that it is made by authority of the order, giving the date of the order. The note or notes and mortgage or deed of trust shall be signed by the executor or administrator as such, and shall create no personal liability against the person so signing. Execution ments.

title, interest and estate which the decedent had in the premises described therein at the time of his death or prior thereto, and any right, title or interest in said premises acquired by the estate of such decedent by operation of law or otherwise, since the time of his death. Jurisdiction of the court to administer the estate of such decedent shall be effectual to vest the court with jurisdiction to make the order for the note or notes, and mortgage or deed of trust, and such jurisdiction shall conclusively inure to the benefit of the mortgagee named in the mortgage, or the trustee and beneficiary in the deed of trust, his or their heirs and assigns. No omission, error or irregularity in the proceedings shall impair or invalidate the same or the note or notes, mortgage or deed of trust given in pursuance thereof, and the mortgagee or the trustee and beneficiary, their heirs and assigns, shall have and possess the same rights and remedies on the note or notes and mortgage or deed of trust as if it had been made by the decedent prior to his death, except that upon any foreclosure, or sale under the deed of trust, if the proceeds of the sale of the encumbered property are insufficient to pay the note or notes, the mortgage or deed of trust, and the costs or expenses of sale, no judgment or claim for any deficiency shall be had or allowed, except in cases where the note or notes, mortgage or deed of trust were given to pay, reduce, extend or renew a lien or mortgage or deed of trust subsisting at the time of the death of the decedent and the indebtedness secured thereby was an allowed and approved claim against the estate; in which case the part of the indebtedness remaining unsatisfied must be classed and paid with other allowed claims against the estate.

Article II—Leasing.

Authorization to lease.

840. Whenever it shall appear to be to the advantage of the estate to lease any real property of the decedent, and as often as occasion therefor shall arise in the administration of the estate, the court may authorize and direct the executor or administrator to execute such lease.

Petition.

841. To obtain such an order, the executor or administrator, or any person interested in the estate, shall file a verified petition showing the advantage to accrue from giving the lease, a general description of the property proposed to be leased, and the term, rental and general conditions of the proposed lease. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by sections 1200 and 1201 of this code.

Hearing
and order

842. At the time appointed, the court shall hear the petition and any objection thereto that may have been presented; and if the court is satisfied that it will be to the advantage of the estate, it shall make an order authorizing and directing the executor or administrator to make such lease. The order may prescribe the minimum rental or royalty to be received for the premises, and the period of the lease, which must not be longer than ten years, and may prescribe other terms and conditions of the lease; except that for the purpose of exploiting for minerals, or mineral oils or petroleum, and extracting minerals therefrom, the lease may be for a period not to exceed twenty years. A certified copy of the order shall be recorded in the office of the county recorder of every county in which the leased land or any portion thereof lies.

843. The executor or administrator shall execute, acknowledge and deliver the lease as directed, setting forth therein that it is made by authority of the order, giving the date of the order. Every lease so made shall be effectual to demise and let the premises described, at the rent, for the term and upon the conditions therein prescribed. Jurisdiction of the court to administer the estate of the decedent shall be effectual to vest the court with jurisdiction to make the order for the lease, and such jurisdiction shall conclusively inure to the benefit of the lessee, his heirs and assigns. No omission, error or irregularity in the proceedings shall impair or invalidate the same or the lease made in pursuance thereof.

of lease.

Effect of proceedings

844. The executor or administrator may lease real property without an order of court when the tenancy is from month to month, or for a term not extending beyond the time for filing or presenting claims, and the rental does not exceed one hundred dollars a month.

When proceedings not necessary

Article III—Conveyance to Complete Contract.

850. If a person who is bound by contract in writing to convey any real property or to transfer any personal property dies before making conveyance or transfer, and the decedent, if living, might have been compelled to make such conveyance or transfer, the court in which proceedings are pending for the administration of the estate of the decedent may make a decree authorizing and directing the executor or administrator to convey or transfer the property to the person entitled thereto.

Authoriza-
conveyance

851. The executor or administrator or any person claiming to be entitled to such conveyance or transfer may file with the clerk of the court a verified petition, setting forth the facts upon which the claim is predicated. Thereupon the clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court, and notice thereof shall be served on the executor or administrator personally when he is not the petitioner, and shall be published for at least ten days before the hearing, in a newspaper published in the county where the proceedings are pending, or, if there is no such newspaper, then, in lieu of publication, three written or printed notices of the hearing shall be posted at three of the most public places in the county at least ten days before the hearing; but if such contract was recorded before the death of the person executing it, notice of the hearing may be given by serving such notice on the executor or administrator personally, when he is not the petitioner, and posting a copy of the notice at the courthouse of the county and notice

Petition

in which the proceedings are pending, for at least ten days prior to the hearing.

Hearing
and order

852. At the time appointed, the court, upon proof that due notice of the hearing has been given, shall proceed to hear the petition and any objection thereto that may have been filed or presented; and if the court is satisfied that the conveyance or transfer should be made, it shall make an order authorizing and directing the executor or administrator to execute the same to the party entitled thereto. If the transaction relates to real property, a certified copy of the decree must be recorded with the deed in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the land or any portion thereof lies.

decree

853. The decree shall be prima facie evidence of the correctness of the proceedings and of the authority of the executor or administrator to make the conveyance or transfer; and after its entry the person entitled to the conveyance or transfer has a right to the possession of the property contracted for, and to hold the same according to the terms of the intended conveyance or transfer, in like manner as if the same had been conveyed or transferred in pursuance of the decree. Nevertheless, the executor or administrator must execute the conveyance or transfer according to the directions of the decree, and the court may enforce its execution by process. The conveyance or transfer shall pass title to the property contracted for, as fully as if the contracting party had executed it while living.

Execution of conveyance.

Article IV—Exchange of Real Property.

Mode of authorizing.

860. Whenever it shall appear to be to the advantage of the estate to exchange any real property of the decedent for other property, the court may authorize such exchange, upon the petition of the executor or administrator or of any person interested in the estate, and after notice of the hearing given for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

CHAPTER XV—COMPENSATION AND ACCOUNTING.

Article I—Commissions.

Expenses and compensation of executor,
etc.

900. The executor or administrator shall be allowed all necessary expenses in the care, management and settlement of the estate, and, for his services, the compensation herein-after provided; but when the decedent, by his will, makes other provision for the compensation of the executor, that shall be a full compensation for his services, unless by a written instrument, filed in the court, he renounces all claim for compensation provided for in the will.

Commissions.

901. The executor, when no compensation is provided by the will or he renounces all claim thereto, or the administrator, shall receive commissions upon the amount of estate accounted for by him, as follows: For the first thousand dollars, at the rate of seven per cent; for the next nine thousand dollars, at the rate of four per cent; for the next ten thousand dollars, at the rate of three per cent; for the next thirty thousand dollars, at the rate of two per cent; and for all above fifty thousand dollars, at the rate of one per cent. If there are two or more executors or administrators, the compensation shall be apportioned among them by the court according to the services actually rendered by each.

902. Such further allowances may be made as the court may deem just and reasonable for any extraordinary services, such as sales or mortgages of real or personal property, contested or litigated claims against the estate, the adjustment and payment of extensive or complicated estate or inheritance taxes, litigation in regard to the property of the estate, the carrying on of the decedent's business pursuant to an order of the court, and such other litigation or special services as may be necessary for the executor or administrator to prosecute, defend, or perform.

Commissions
for extraordinary services,
etc

903. All contracts between an executor or administrator and an heir, devisee or legatee, for a higher compensation than that allowed by the foregoing sections, shall be void.

Contracts for higher compensation void.

904. Any executor or administrator, at any time after six months from the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration, and upon such notice to the persons interested in the estate as the court or a judge thereof shall require, may apply to the court for an allowance upon his commissions; and on the hearing the court shall make an order allowing him such portion of his commissions, for services rendered up to that time, as the court shall deem proper, and the portion so allowed may be thereupon charged against the estate.

Allowance
on commissions

Article II—Attorneys' Fees.

910. Attorneys for executors and administrators shall be allowed out of the estate, as fees for conducting the ordinary probate proceedings, the same amounts as are allowed by the previous article as commissions to executors and administrators; and such further amount as the court may deem just and reasonable for extraordinary services.

Fees for ordinary proceedings

Extraordinary services

911. Any attorney who has rendered services to an executor or administrator, at any time after six months from the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration, and upon such notice to the executor or administrator and to the persons interested in the estate as the court or a judge thereof shall require, may apply to the court for an allowance upon his fees; and on the hearing the court shall make an order requiring the executor or administrator to pay such attorney out of the estate such compensation, on account of services rendered up to that time, as the court shall deem proper, and such payment shall be made forthwith.

Allowance
on fees

Article III—Rendering of Exhibits and Accounts.

920. Every executor and administrator is chargeable in his accounts with all of the estate of the decedent which comes into his possession, and with all the income, issues and profits tor.

of the estate; but he is not accountable for any debts due to the decedent which remain uncollected without his fault, nor is he liable for the act or negligence of a coexecutor or coadministrator, except for collusion or gross negligence. He shall not make profit by the increase, nor suffer loss by the decrease or destruction without his fault, of any part of the estate. He must account for the excess when he sells any part of the estate for more than the appraisement, but is not responsible for the loss if any is sold for less than the appraisement, if the sale has been justly made.

Trust
executor

920.5. When a trust company is an executor, special administrator, or administrator with the will annexed, and in the exercise of reasonable judgment deposits money of the estate in any department of the corporation of which it is a part, it shall be chargeable with interest thereon at the rate of interest prevailing among banks of the locality upon such deposits.

Interest on deposits of estate.

Accounting
when required by court

921. Whenever required by the court or a judge thereof, either upon its or his own motion or upon the application of any person interested in the estate, the executor or administrator must render and file with the clerk a verified account showing the amount of money received and expended by him, the claims filed or presented against the estate, giving the name of each claimant, the nature of the claim, when it became due or will become due, whether it was allowed or rejected by him, or not yet acted upon, and all other matters necessary to show the condition of the estate. If he neglects or refuses to appear and render such account, after having been duly cited, an attachment may be issued against him and such accounting compelled, or his letters may be revoked, or both, in the discretion of the court or judge.

After close of period for presenting claims.

922. Within thirty days after the time to file or present claims against the estate has expired, the executor or administrator must render a full and verified account and report of his administration, which shall include all of the matters mentioned in the previous section. He must render a final account, and pray a settlement of his administration, whenever there are sufficient funds in his hands for the payment of all debts and the estate is in a proper condition to be closed. If he fails to present his account the court or judge must compel the accounting by attachment. Any person interested in the estate may apply for and obtain an attachment, but no attachment shall issue unless a citation has first been issued, served and returned, requiring the executor or administrator to appear and show cause why an attachment should not issue.

Final account

After authority
ceases

923. When the authority of an executor or administrator is revoked or ceases for any reason, he may be cited to account before the court, at the instance of the person succeeding to the administration of the estate, in like manner as he might have been cited by any person interested in the estate while he was executor or administrator.

924. If the executor or administrator absconds, or conceals himself so that a citation can not be personally served, and he neglects to render an account as prescribed in this article, or if an attachment has been executed, and he neglects to render an account within thirty days after being committed, his letters must be revoked.

When executor absconds, etc

925. Except as hereinafter provided, the executor or administrator, in rendering his account, must produce and file vouchers for all payments which he has made. The vouchers must remain on file until returned or destroyed as hereinafter provided. Any voucher may be withdrawn on leaving a certified copy on file, but must be produced on demand, unless permanently withdrawn with the permission of the court. Five years from the time the decree of final distribution has become final, the clerk of the court may destroy the vouchers or deliver them to the executor or administrator or to his attorney.

Vouchers for payments.

926. When an account is rendered for settlement, the clerk shall set the same for settlement by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. If the account is for a final settlement, and a petition for the final distribution of the estate is filed with the account, the notice of settlement must so state, and on the settlement of the account, distribution of the estate to those entitled thereto may be had immediately, without further notice or proceedings.

Notice of rendering account.

927. Any person interested in the estate may appear and file written exceptions to the account, and contest the same. Upon the hearing, the executor or administrator may be examined on oath touching the account and the property and effects of the decedent, and the disposition thereof. All matters, including allowed claims not passed upon on the settlement of any former account and not reduced to judgment, may be contested for cause shown. The court may appoint one or more referees to examine the accounts, and make report thereon, subject to confirmation; and may allow a reasonable compensation to them to be paid out of the estate.

Hearing

Referees

928. Whenever an allowed claim is contested by any person entitled to contest it, either the contestant or the claimant is entitled to a trial by jury of the issues of fact presented by the contest, unless a jury is waived as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure with regard to civil actions; and the court shall call the jury and submit such issues to them, and after receiving their verdict, enter an order disposing of the contest in accordance therewith.

Jury trial.

929. If it appears that debts of the decedent have been paid without verified claims having been filed or presented and allowed and approved, and it shall be proven that such debts were justly due, were paid in good faith, that the amount paid was the true amount of such indebtedness over and above all payments or set-offs, and that the estate is

Debts paid without filing claim solvent, the court, in settling the account, shall allow the sums so paid.

Lost
vouchers

930. If it is proven that vouchers for any disbursements have been lost or destroyed, that it is impossible to obtain duplicates, and that the items were paid in good faith and were legal charges against the estate, the executor or administrator shall be allowed such items. He may be allowed any item of expenditure not exceeding twenty dollars, for which no voucher is produced, if it is supported by his uncontradicted oath positive to the fact of payment, specifying when, where, and to whom it was made; but the total amount of such allowances in all his accounts must not exceed five hundred dollars.

When
vouchers unnecessary

Effect of order settling account

931. The order settling and allowing the account, when it becomes final, is conclusive against all persons interested in the estate, saving, however, to persons under legal disability, the right to move for cause to reopen and examine the account, or to proceed by action against the executor or administrator or his sureties, at any time before final distribution; and in any such action such order is prima facie evidence of the correctness of the account.

Accounts of deceased
executor.

932. If the executor or administrator dies, his accounts may be presented by his personal representative to, and settled by, the court in which the estate of which he was executor or administrator is being administered, and, upon petition of the successor of such deceased executor or administrator, such court shall compel the personal representative of the deceased executor or administrator to render an account of the administration of his testator or intestate, and must settle such account as in other cases.

Article IV—Payment of Debts, Expenses and Charges.

Order in which paid.

Ch 821,
Stats 1931.

950. The debts of the decedent, the expenses of administration and the charges against the estate must be paid in the following order:

- (1) Expenses of administration;
- (2) Funeral expenses;
- (3) Expenses of last illness;
- (4) Family allowance;
- (5) Debts having preference by the laws of the United States;
- (6) Wages, to the extent of one hundred dollars, of each employee of the decedent, for work done or services rendered within sixty days prior to the death of the employer;
- (7) Mortgages and other liens, in the order of their priority, so far as they may be paid out of the proceeds of the encumbered property. If such proceeds are insufficient for that purpose, the part of the debt remaining unsatisfied must be classed with general demands against the estate;
- (8) Judgments rendered against the decedent in his lifetime, in the order of their date;
- (9) All other demands against the estate.

951. As soon as he has sufficient funds in his hands, after retaining sufficient to pay the expenses of administration, the executor or administrator must pay the funeral expenses, the expenses of the last illness, and the family allowance; but he is not obliged to pay any other debt or any legacy until, as prescribed in this article, the payment has been ordered by the court.

Ch 821,
Stats 1931.

952. Upon the settlement of any account of the executor or administrator after the time to file or present claims has expired, the court shall order the payment of the debts, as the circumstances of the estate permit. If there are not sufficient funds to pay all of the debts, the decree shall specify the sum to be paid to each creditor. No creditor of any one class shall receive any payment until all those of a preferred class are fully paid; and if the estate is insufficient to pay all the debts of any one class, each creditor of that class must be paid a dividend in proportion to his claim. If the property of the estate is exhausted by the payment ordered, such account shall constitute a final account, and the executor or administrator shall be entitled to his discharge on producing and filing the necessary vouchers and proof showing that he has complied with the decree.

payment

953. If there is any claim not due, or any contingent or disputed claim against the estate, the amount thereof, or such part of the same as the holder would be entitled to if the claim were due, established, or absolute, must be paid into court, and there remain, to be paid over to the party when he becomes entitled thereto; or, if he fails to establish his claim, to be paid over or distributed as the circumstances of the estate require. If a creditor whose claim has been allowed, but is not yet due, appears and assents to a deduction therefrom of the legal interest for the time the claim has yet to run, he is entitled to be paid accordingly. The payments provided for in this section are not to be made when the estate is insolvent, unless a pro rata distribution is ordered.

Contingent, etc., claims

954. When an order is made for the payment of creditors, the executor or administrator is personally liable to each creditor for his allowed claim, or the dividend thereon, and execution may be issued on such order, as upon a judgment, in favor of each creditor, and the same proceeding may be had under such execution as under execution in civil actions. The executor or administrator is liable therefor on his bond to each creditor.

Liabilities of executor,
etc

955. When the accounts of the executor or administrator have been settled, and an order made for the payment of debts and distribution of the estate, no creditor whose claim was not included in the order for payment has any right to call upon the creditors who have been paid, or upon the heirs, devisees or legatees, to contribute to the payment of his claim; but if the executor or administrator has failed to give the notice to creditors, as prescribed by law, such creditor may

When claim

payment

recover on the bond of the executor or administrator the amount for which his claim would properly have been allowed.

Closing administration

956. If all of the debts have been paid by the first order for payment, the court must direct the payment of legacies and the distribution of the estate among the persons entitled, as provided in the next chapter; but if there are debts remaining unpaid, or if, for other reasons, the estate is not in a condition to be closed, the administration may continue for such time as may be reasonable.

CHAPTER XVI—DISTRIBUTION AND DISCHARGE.

Article I—Partial Distribution.

Petition and notice
of hearing

1000. At any time after the lapse of four months from the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration, any heir, devisee or legatee, or his assignee, grantee or successor in interest, may petition the court for the legacy or share of the estate to which he is entitled, or any portion thereof, to be given to him upon his giving a bond as hereinafter provided. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code, and to the executor or administrator by citation. The executor or administrator or any person interested in the estate may resist the application.

Allowance of distribu-tee's share
Bond

1001. If, at the hearing, it appears that the estate is but little indebted, and that the share of the applicant may be allowed to him without loss to the creditors or injury to the estate or any person interested therein, the court shall make an order requiring the executor or administrator to deliver to the applicant the share of the estate to which he is entitled, or such part thereof as the court may designate, upon receiving a bond executed by the applicant and payable to the executor or administrator, in such sum as the court may designate, with sureties to be approved by the judge, and conditioned for the payment, whenever required, of the applicant's proportion of the debts due from the estate, not exceeding the value or amount of the legacy or portion of the estate to which he is entitled. When the time for filing or presenting claims has expired, and all valid claims have been paid or are sufficiently secured by mortgage, and the court is satisfied that no injury can result to the estate, the court may dispense with the bond.

repayment

1002. When a bond has been executed and delivered under the provisions of the preceding section, and it is necessary for the settlement of the estate to require the payment of any part of the money thereby secured, the executor or administrator must petition the court for an order requiring the payment, and have a citation issued and served on the party bound, requiring him to appear and show cause why the order should not be made. If satisfied, upon the hearing, of the necessity of such payment, the court shall make an order accordingly, designating the amount and giving a time within which it must be paid. If the money is not paid within the time allowed, an action on the bond may be maintained by the executor or administrator.

Action on bond

1003. The cost of proceedings for a partial distribution must be paid by the applicant, or if there are more than one must be apportioned equally among them. Costs.

Article II—Ratable Distribution.

1010. When the time for filing or presenting claims has expired, and all valid claims have been paid, or are sufficiently secured by mortgage, but the estate is not in a condition to be finally closed and distributed, the executor or administrator may petition the court for a ratable payment of the legacies, or ratable distribution of the estate, to the heirs, devisees or legatees, or their assignees, grantees or successors in interest, or, where there are priorities, to those of the class or classes having priority; or, if the decedent was a nonresident and left a will which has been duly proved or allowed in the state of his residence, and an authenticated copy thereof has been admitted to probate in this state, or if he died intestate and an administrator has been duly appointed and qualified in the state of his residence, and it is necessary, in order that the estate or any part thereof may be distributed according to the will, or it is for the best interests of the estate, that any part of the estate in this state should be delivered to the executor or administrator in the state of the decedent's residence, the executor or administrator may petition the court for an order authorizing the delivery of such portion of the estate as the court shall deem safe and proper and for the best interests of the estate, to the executor or administrator in the state of the decedent's residence. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. Any person interested in the estate or any coexecutor or coadministrator may resist the application. Petition and notice of hearing

1011. If, at the hearing, it appears that the allegations of the petition are true, and that no injury will result to the estate or any person interested therein, the court shall make an order requiring the executor or administrator to deliver to the heirs, devisees or legatees, or to their assignees, grantees or successors in interest, or to the executor or administrator in the state of decedent's residence, such portion of the estate as the court may designate. Hearing and order for delivery of property

1012. The delivery, in accordance with the order of the court, is a full discharge of the executor or administrator in this state, in relation to all property embraced in the order, and when the order becomes final it binds and concludes all parties in interest. Effect of delivery and of order

1013. The cost of proceedings for a ratable distribution must be paid by the estate, excepting that when a partition Costs is necessary the cost of the partition must be apportioned amongst the parties interested in the partition.

Article III—Final Distribution.

Procedure.

1020. Immediately upon the final settlement of the accounts of the executor or administrator, or at any subsequent time, upon the application of the executor or administrator, or of any heir, devisee or legatee, or his assignee, grantee or successor in interest, and after notice given for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code, the court must proceed to distribute the residue of the estate among the persons entitled thereto. A statement of any receipts and disbursements of the executor or administrator since the rendition of his final account must be reported and filed at the time of making such distribution; and a settlement thereof, together with an estimate of the expenses of closing the estate, must be made by the court and included in the order or decree, or the court or judge may order notice to be given of the settlement of such supplementary account as in other cases of the settlement of accounts.

Decree of distribution.

1021. In its decree, the court must name the persons and the proportions or parts to which each is entitled, and such persons may demand, sue for, and recover their respective shares from the executor or administrator, or any person having the same in possession. Such order or decree, when it becomes final, is conclusive as to the rights of heirs, devisees and legatees.

Intestate legatee: unmarried minor.

1022. If any heir, devisee or legatee who is issue of the decedent dies intestate while under age and not having been married, before the close of the administration, no administration on the estate of such deceased heir, devisee or legatee is necessary, but his share of his ancestor's estate must be distributed directly to his heirs at law.

Distribution to estate.

1023. If an heir, devisee or legatee dies before the distribution to him of his share of the estate, such share may be distributed to the representative of his estate for the purpose of administration therein, with the same effect as if it had been distributed to him while living.

Payment of taxes

1024. Before any decree of distribution is made, all inheritance taxes due from the distributee and all personal property taxes due and payable by the estate must be paid.

Testamentary limitation of time of administration

1025. When a testator, by his will, has limited the time for administration upon his estate, such limitation is directory, only, and shall not limit the power of the executor or of the court to continue the administration beyond the time limited where the same is necessary or convenient.

Article IV—Estates of Nonresidents.

Delivery of property or its proceeds to foreign representative

1040. Upon application for distribution after final settlement of the accounts of the executor or administrator, if the decedent was a nonresident and left a will which has been duly proved or allowed in the state of his residence, and an authenticated copy thereof has been admitted to probate in this state, or if he died intestate, and an administrator has been duly appointed and qualified in the state of his residence, and it is necessary in order that the estate, or any part thereof, may be distributed according to the will, or it is for the best interests of the estate, that the estate in this state or any part thereof should be delivered to the executor or administrator in the state of the decedent's residence, the court may order such delivery to be made, and, if necessary, direct a sale of the real property and a like delivery of the proceeds. Such sale must be made in the same manner as other sales of real property of decedents.

1041. The order may be made on the petition of the executor or administrator or of any person interested in the estate. When such petition is filed, the clerk shall set the same for hearing by the court, and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. Any person interested in the estate may appear and contest the petition by filing written objections thereto.

Petition for such delivery. Hearing and notice.

1042. The delivery, in accordance with the order of the court, is a full discharge of the executor or administrator in this state, in relation to all property embraced in the order, and when the order becomes final it binds and concludes all parties in interest.

Effect of delivery.

Article V—Advancements and Ademptions.

1050. A gift before death shall be considered as an ademption of a bequest or devise of the property given; but such gift shall not be taken as an advancement to an heir or as an ademption of a general legacy unless such intention is expressed by the testator in the grant or otherwise in writing, or unless the donee acknowledges it in writing to be such.

Gifts before death

1051. Any property, real or personal, given by the decedent in his lifetime as an advancement to an heir, is a part of the estate of the decedent for the purposes of division and distribution thereof among his heirs, and must be taken by such heir toward his share of the estate of the decedent. If the amount of such advancement exceeds the share of the heir receiving the same, he must be excluded from any further portion in the division and distribution of the estate, but he shall not be required to refund any part of such advancement. If the amount so received is less than his share, he is entitled to so much more as will give him his full share of the estate of the decedent.

Where advancements made, computation of share of heir

1052. If the value of the property so advanced is expressed in the conveyance, or in the charge thereof made by the decedent, or in the acknowledgment of the party receiving it, it must be held as of that value in the division and distribution of the estate; otherwise, it must be estimated according to its value when given, as nearly as the same can be ascertained.

Value of property advanced 1053. If an heir receiving an advancement dies before the decedent, leaving heirs, the advancement must be taken into consideration in the division and distribution of the estate, and the amount thereof must be allowed accordingly by the representatives or successors in interest of the heir receiving the advancement, in like manner as if the advancement had been made directly to them.

Predeceased heir

Determination of questions as to advancement

1054. All questions as to advancements made, or alleged to have been made, by the decedent to his heirs, may be heard and determined by the court, and must be specified in the decree assigning and distributing the estate; and the decree of the court, when it becomes final, is conclusive on all parties interested in the estate.

Article VI—Discharge.

Payments to county treasurer for nonresi-dent, etc.

1060. When property is assigned or distributed to a person residing out of, and having no agent in, this state, or to a distributee who can not be found or who refuses to accept the same or to give a proper voucher therefor, or to a minor or incompetent person who has no legal guardian to receive the same or person authorized to receipt therefor, and the same or any part thereof consists of money, the executor or administrator may deposit the money, in the name of the assignee or distributee, with the county treasurer of the county in which the proceedings are pending, who shall give a receipt for the same, and be liable upon his official bond therefor; and said receipt shall be deemed and received by the court, or judge thereof, as a voucher in favor of the executor or administrator, with the same force and effect as if executed by such assignee or distributee.

Distribution to guardians,
etc.

1061. If the assignee or distributee is a nonresident minor or insane or incompetent person, who has a guardian of his estate legally appointed under the laws of any foreign jurisdiction, the distribution of such assignee's or distributee's share may be made to such legally appointed guardian, whose receipt therefor, together with a certificate of his appointment issued, under seal of the court, by the clerk of the court appointing him, when filed with the clerk of the court in which such assignment or distribution was ordered, shall be deemed and received by the court, or a judge thereof, as a voucher in favor of said executor or administrator.

Sale of unclaimed, etc., personal property

1062. When personal property remains in the hands of the executor or administrator unclaimed for a year, or when the distributee refuses to accept or to give a proper receipt for the property, or is a minor or incompetent person and has no legally qualified guardian of his estate, and it appears to the court that it is for the benefit of those interested, or if the executor or administrator desires his discharge and it appears to the court that no injury will result to those interested, the court shall order the property to be sold. The proceeds, after deducting such expenses of sale as may be allowed by the court, must be paid into the county treasury. The depositor must take from the treasurer duplicate receipts, one of which he must file in the office of the auditor, and the other with the court.

1063. Until the property is delivered or thus disposed of, the executor or administrator must render to the court, annually, an account showing what income he has received, what property he has sold and at what price, and the character and value of the property remaining in his hands.

Annual
account

1064. When any person appears and claims the money paid into the treasury, the court making the distribution must inquire into such claim, and if satisfied of his right thereto must grant him a certificate to that effect, under its seal; and upon presentation of the certificate the auditor must draw his warrant on the treasurer for the amount.

into treasury, etc.

1065. Where a specific legacy is for life only, the life tenant must sign and deliver to the remainderman, or, if there is none, to the personal representative, an inventory of the property, expressing that the same is in his custody for life only, and that, on his decease, it is to be delivered to the remainderman.

Specific legacy for life only.

1066. When the estate has been fully administered, and it is shown by the executor or administrator, by the production of satisfactory vouchers, that he has paid all sums of money due from him, and delivered up, under the order of the court, all the property of the estate to the parties entitled, and performed all the acts lawfully required of him, the court must make a decree discharging him from all liability to be incurred thereafter.

Decree of discharge.

1067. The final settlement of an estate, as in this chapter provided, shall not prevent a subsequent issue of letters testamentary or of administration, or of administration with the will annexed, if other property of the estate is discovered, or if it becomes necessary or proper for any cause that letters should be again issued.

Subsequent administration

CHAPTER XVII—DETERMINATION OF HEIRSHIP.

1080. When the time to file or present claims against the estate has expired, but the estate is not in a condition to be closed, any person claiming to be an heir of the decedent or entitled to distribution of the estate or any part thereof may file a petition setting forth his claim and praying that the court determine who are entitled to distribution of the estate. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. Any person may appear and file a written statement setting forth his interest in the estate. No other pleadings are necessary and the allegations of each claimant shall be deemed to be denied by each of the other claimants to the extent that they conflict with any claim of the latter.

Procedure.
petition,
etc

1081. At the time appointed, the court shall hear the petition and any objection thereto that may have been presented, and shall determine who are the heirs of the decedent or entitled to distribution of the estate and shall specify their interests.

tion

discharge.

1082. When such decree becomes final it shall be conclusive upon the matters determined during the remainder of the administration of the estate and upon any subsequent proceeding for distribution.

CHAPTER XVIII—PARTITION BEFORE DISTRIBUTION.

Petition

1100. When two or more heirs, devisees or legatees are entitled to the distribution of undivided interests in any real or personal property of the decedent and they have not agreed among themselves, before distribution, to a partition, allotment or other division thereof, any one or more of them, or the executor or administrator, at the request of any one or more of them, may petition the court to make such partition, allotment or division of the property as will be equitable and will avoid the distribution of undivided interests.

Content of petition,
citation.

1101. Such petition may be filed with the clerk at any time after the time to file or present claims has expired, and before the distribution of the property to be affected has been ordered. It shall describe the property and give the names of the persons having or claiming the undivided interests and shall state what those interests are, so far as known to the petitioner. Thereupon a citation shall be issued by the clerk directed to the persons, other than the petitioner, who are entitled to distribution of the undivided interests, and to the executor or administrator, directing them to answer the petition within thirty days after service of the citation. The citation shall be served personally or by publication in the same manner as a summons in a civil action. If there is unreasonable delay in serving the citation, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

hearing

1102. When all the persons in interest have appeared or are in default, the clerk shall set the matter for hearing by the court. The persons in interest who have filed written appearances shall be considered the parties to the proceeding, and each shall be entitled to five days' notice of the hearing. No one shall be considered as a plaintiff or as a defendant.

No plaintiff or defendant.
Partition,
sale, undivided interests

1103. The court shall proceed to take evidence and to partition, allot and divide the property so that each party shall receive property of a value proportionate to his interest in the whole, and for that purpose it may direct the executor or administrator to sell any property which can not be partitioned without great prejudice to the owners and which can not conveniently be allotted to any one party. The sale shall be conducted and confirmed in the same manner as other probate sales. Any two or more parties may agree to accept undivided interests.

Appointment
of referees

1104. The court, in its discretion, may appoint one or three referees to partition property capable of being partitioned, if requested to do so by any party in interest. The number of referees appointed must conform to the request of at least one of the parties. The referees shall have the powers and perform the duties of referees in civil actions for partition, and the court shall have the same powers with respect to their report as in such actions.

1105. The expenses of such partition shall be equitably apportioned by the court among the parties, but each party must pay his own attorney's fees. The amount charged to each party shall constitute a lien on the property allotted to him.

Costs a lien on property. Attorney's fees

1106. The allotment made by the court shall control upon proceedings for distribution, unless modified for good cause upon reasonable notice, and the proceedings leading to such allotment may be reviewed upon appeal from the decree of distribution.

Effect of allotment by court. When appealable.

CHAPTER XIX—ADMINISTRATION OF TRUSTS.

1120. When a trust created by a will continues after distribution, the superior court shall not lose jurisdiction of the estate by final distribution, but shall retain jurisdiction for the purpose of determining to whom the property shall pass and be delivered upon final or partial termination of the trust, to the extent that such determination is not concluded by the decree of distribution, of settling the accounts and passing upon the acts of the trustee and for the other purposes hereinafter set forth. Any trustee appointed by will, or appointed to execute a trust created by will, may, from time to time pending the execution of his trust, or at the termination thereof, render for settlement his accounts and report his acts as such trustee, before the superior court in which the will was probated. For that purpose, the trustee, or, in case of his death, his legal representatives, shall present to the court his verified account and report, setting forth his accounts in detail reporting his acts as trustee, and showing the condition of the trust estate, and giving the names and post-office addresses, if known, of the beneficiaries. The trustee may also petition such court, from time to time, for instructions as to the administration of the trust. The clerk shall set the account and report or petition for settlement or hearing by the court and give notice thereof for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code. The notice of the hearing shall be mailed to the beneficiaries whose addresses are known, as provided in section 1200, whether they have requested special notice or given notice of appearance or not.

Jurisdiction of court after final distribution.

Accounting by trustee.

Notice of rendering account.

1121. Upon application of any beneficiary of the trust, or the guardian of a beneficiary, the court, in its discretion, or a judge thereof, may order the trustee, after citation, to render his account; and such application shall not be denied where no account has been rendered to the court within six months.

Application for accounting.

1122. On the settlement of each such account the court shall allow the trustee his proper expenses and such compensation for services as the court may deem just and reasonable. Where there are several trustees it shall apportion the compensation among them according to the respective services rendered. It may, in its discretion, fix a yearly compensation for the trustee or trustees, to continue as long as the court may deem proper.

Expenses, etc., of trustee.

Conclusive-
ness of decree.

1123. A decree rendered under the provisions of this chapter, when it becomes final, shall be conclusive upon all persons in interest, whether or not they are in being.

Declination of trustee.

1124. Any person named or designated as a trustee in a will may, at any time before distribution of any of the estate to him, decline to act as such trustee, and an order of court shall thereupon be made accepting such resignation; but the declination of any such person who has qualified as trustee shall not be accepted by the court unless the same shall be in writing and filed in the matter of the estate in the court in which the administration is pending, and such notice shall be given thereof as is required upon a petition for letters of administration. In accepting a declination, the court may make and enforce any order which may be necessary for the preservation of the estate.

Appointment
to fill vacancy

1125. The court in which the administration is pending shall have power, at any time before final distribution, to appoint some fit and proper person to fill any vacancy in the office of trustee under the will, whether resulting from such declination, removal, or otherwise, if such appointment is necessary to carry out the trust. The person appointed, before acting as trustee, shall give a bond such as is required of a person appointed administrator. Such appointment may be made by the court upon the written application of any person interested in the trust, filed in the probate proceedings, and shall be made only after notice to all parties interested in the trust, given as required upon a petition for the probate of a will.

Vacancy
after distribution

1126. If a trustee of a testamentary trust dies, resigns or is removed after distribution, and a vacancy in the trusteeship is created thereby, the court which had jurisdiction over the settlement of his accounts shall have the power to appoint a new trustee to fill the vacancy, upon the petition of anyone interested in the trust estate and notice given for the period and in the manner required by section 1200 of this code.

CHAPTER XX—PUBLIC ADMINISTRATORS.

Duties of public administrator

1140. The public administrator of each county must take immediate charge of the property within his county of persons who have died, when no executor or administrator has been appointed, and in consequence thereof the property, or any part thereof, is being wasted, uncared for, or lost; and of all estates ordered into his hands by the court. He shall apply for letters of administration upon the estates of decedents who have no known heirs, when the superior court of his county has jurisdiction thereof, and may apply for such letters upon any other estate which he is entitled to administer.

1141. When a public administrator takes charge of an estate which he is entitled to administer, without letters of administration being issued, or under order of the court, he must, with all convenient dispatch, procure letters of administration thereon, in like manner and on like proceedings as letters of administration are issued to other persons. His official bond and oath are in lieu of the administrator's bond and oath on the grant of special letters of administration, or general letters of administration, or letters of administration with the will annexed; but when real property is sold, another bond may be required by the court, as in the case of other administrators.

Duty to procure letters

Bonds.

1142. The public administrator shall receive the same compensation and allowances as are granted by this code to other administrators. He shall file an inventory, institute suits for the recovery or protection of property, render accounts and deliver up the property of the estate, in the same manner as administrators generally; and the provisions of this code shall govern the administration of estates in his hands, except as otherwise provided in this chapter.

Compensation and allowances.

Other duties.

1143. When a public administrator takes possession of the estate of a decedent as hereinbefore provided, and the defrayal of the expense of the burial of the decedent is not otherwise provided for by law, or by the rules, agreement or death benefits of any order or lodge to which the decedent belonged or with which he was affiliated, the public administrator, in order to defray the expense of burial and the expenses of the last illness, may apply to the superior court of his county or a judge thereof for an order permitting him summarily to sell any personal property belonging to the decedent, and to withdraw any money of the decedent on deposit with any bank, and to collect any indebtedness or claim that may be owing to the decedent. No notice of the application need be given.

Summary sale of decedent's effects to defray burial expense.

1144. If it appears that the total value of the estate of the decedent does not exceed one hundred dollars, the court or judge shall make an order granting the application and there shall be no administration upon the estate unless additional property is found or discovered. No fee shall be charged by the clerk of the court or the public administrator or his attorney for filing the application, or for any duty or service connected therewith. Such sales may be made with or without notice, as the public administrator may elect, and title to the property sold shall pass without the need of confirmation by the court. The money received from such sales and collections shall be used to defray the expenses of the burial of the decedent and the expenses of his last illness. The public administrator shall file with the clerk of the court a statement showing the property of the decedent that came into his hands and the disposition that he made thereof, together with vouchers for all expenditures.

Estates of $100 or under

Notice of death of stranger,
etc

1145. Whenever a stranger, or person without known heirs, dies intestate in the house or premises of another, the possessor of such premises, or any one knowing the facts, must give immediate notice thereof to the public administrator of the county; and in default of so doing, he is liable for any damage that may be sustained thereby, to be recovered by the public administrator or any party interested.

Information furnished by civil officers.

1146. All civil officers must inform the public administrator of all property known to them, belonging to a decedent, which is liable to loss, injury or waste, and which, by reason thereof, ought to be in the possession of the public administrator.

Deposit of
money.

1147. The public administrator, as soon as he receives the same, must deposit all moneys of the estate with the county treasurer of the county in which the proceedings are pending; or, if not required for current expenses, he may deposit any amount thereof with one or more banks authorized to do business in his county, and if there is none then with any bank in the state. The court may direct the deposit of any such money with a bank. Money deposited with the county treasurer or with a bank may be withdrawn upon the order of the public administrator, countersigned by the judge, when required for the purposes of administration. The moneys thus deposited may be invested, pending the administration of the estate, in securities of the United States or of this state, upon the same proceedings had as in other cases of administration.

Decedent's money in custody of county
treasurer

1148. The county treasurer shall receive and safely keep all such moneys deposited with him and pay them out upon the order of the public administrator, when countersigned by the judge, and not otherwise, and shall keep an account with each estate of all moneys received and paid. He shall be allowed one per cent upon all moneys received and kept by him, and no greater fees, for any services herein provided; and for the safekeeping and payment of all such moneys, as herein provided, he and his sureties are responsible upon his official bond. After a final settlement of the estate, if there are no heirs or other claimants thereof, the county treasurer must pay into the state treasury all moneys and effects in his hands belonging to the estate, upon order of the court; and if any such moneys and effects escheat to the state, they must be disposed of as other escheated estates.

Escheat

Fees

1149. All fees of officers chargeable to estates in the hands of a public administrator must be paid out of the assets thereof as soon as sufficient money comes into his hands.

No interest in expenditures of estate.

1150. The public administrator must not be interested in any expenditure made on account of any estate he administers, nor must he be associated, in business or otherwise, with any one who is so interested; and he must attach his affidavit to each of his published reports, showing that he is not so interested or associated.

Affidavit

1151. The public administrator shall keep a book, to be labeled "Register of Public Administrator," in which he shall enter the name of every decedent whose estate he administers, the date of granting letters, the money received, the property appraised and its value, the proceeds of all sales of property, the amount of his fees, the expenses of administration, the amount of the estate after all charges and expenses have been paid, the disposition of property on distribution, the date of his discharge, and such other matters as may be necessary to give a full and complete history of each estate administered by him.

"Register of public administrator." Content

1152. The authority of a public administrator to administer an estate upon which letters have been issued to him does not cease by virtue of the termination of his office as public administrator, but his authority and duties as administrator of such estate continue until he is discharged, as in the case of other administrators.

Continuation of authority after term expires Discharge.

1153. The public administrator, or any person who received letters of administration while acting as public administrator, must return to the superior court, once in every six months, a report, under oath, of all estates of decedents which have come into his hands, giving the value of each estate, the amount of money which he has received from each estate, a statement of what he has done with it, and the amount of his fees and expenses incurred in each estate, and the balance, if any, in each estate remaining in his hands. He must publish such report six times in some newspaper published in the county, or if there is none, then post the same, legibly written or printed, in the office of the county clerk of the county. One copy of the report must be filed with the papers in each estate so reported, on the first Monday in January and July of each year.

Reports, publication thereof.

1154. When it appears from any such report, or otherwise, that after the final settlement of an estate any money remains in the hands of the public administrator unclaimed, which should be paid over to the county treasurer, the superior court, or a judge thereof, must order such payment to be made; and on failure of the public administrator to comply with the order within ten days after the date thereof the district attorney of the county must immediately institute the requisite legal proceedings against the public administrator for a judgment against him and the sureties on his official bond, in the amount of money so withheld, and costs.

Unclaimed money after final settlement: payment to county treasurer.

1155. Every public administrator, or person who holds letters of administration who was appointed while acting as public administrator, who fails to return accounts as provided in section 1153 of this code, or who fails to deliver any money or property as ordered by the court, is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred dollars for each offense; and it shall be the duty of the district attorney of the county to see that the provisions of this chapter are fully complied with.

Penalty for failure to account, etc.

CHAPTER XXI—ESTABLISHING FACT OF DEATH OR HEIRSHIP.

Article I—To Determine Right to Aid.

Petition to determine right to aid.

1180. When the right of any child to receive state aid, county aid, or state and county aid, depends upon the presumptive death of the father of the child, any person interested in the welfare of the child may file in the superior court of the county in which the child resides a petition setting forth the facts giving rise to the presumption that the father is dead and praying that such presumption of death be judicially ascertained and established by the court.

Service on district
attorney

1181. The clerk must set the petition for hearing by the court not less than ten days subsequent to its filing, and, unless the petition is filed by the district attorney shall deliver forthwith a copy of the petition, to be furnished by the petitioner, to the district attorney of the county, to which there shall be appended, or endorsed thereon, a statement of the time and place fixed for the hearing.

Hearing
and order

1182. The court shall hear the petition and all objections that may be interposed thereto. If, as a result of the hearing, the court is satisfied that the evidence adduced in support of the petition is sufficient to establish the presumption that the father of the child is dead, it shall make an order adjudging such father to be presumptively dead. Upon the filing of the order the clerk shall send a certified copy thereof to the state department of social welfare at Sacramento. The clerk shall not charge or collect any fee for filing the petition or for any other service rendered by him under the provisions of this article.

No fees

Newly discovered evidence

1183. A petition under this article once heard and denied shall not be renewed in the same or any other court except upon the ground of newly discovered evidence. Any subsequent petition shall contain a recital of the former presentation and denial of a similar petition, and shall distinctly set forth a statement of the newly discovered evidence.

Article II—Identity of Heirs.

Petition to
heirship

1190. When title to real or personal property, or any interest therein, vests, other than by the laws of succession, in the heirs, heirs of the body, issue, or children of any person, without other description or means of identification of the persons embraced in such description, any person interested in such property as such heir, heir of the body, issue or child, or his successor in interest, or the personal representative of any such interested person or of his successor in interest, may file a verified petition in the superior court of the county in which the property or any part thereof is situated, setting forth briefly the deraignment of title of petitioner, a description of the property affected, and, so far as known to the petitioner, the names, ages and residences of the heirs, heirs of the body, issue or children whose identity is sought to be determined, and if any is dead or if the residence of any is unknown, stating such facts, and requesting that a decree be entered determining and establishing the identity of the persons embraced in such general description.

1191. The clerk must set the petition for hearing by the court and give notice thereof by causing notice of the time and place of hearing to be posted at the courthouse of the county where the proceeding is pending, at least ten days before the hearing. Posting of notice

1192. At any time before the hearing any person interested in the property may answer the petition and deny any of the matters contained therein. The court shall hear the proofs offered by the petitioner and by any person contesting and must make a decree conformable to the proofs. Such decree shall be prima facie evidence of the facts determined thereby, and shall be conclusive in favor of anyone acting thereon in good faith without notice of any conflicting interest. Answer, hearing, and decree.

CHAPTER XXII—NOTICES, ORDERS AND PROCEDURE.

Article I—Notices.

1200. Upon the filing of a petition for the setting aside of an estate not exceeding two thousand five hundred dollars in value, or of a petition to set apart a homestead or exempt property, or of a petition relating to the family allowance filed after the return of the inventory, or of a petition for the sale of stocks or bonds, or of a petition for confirmation of a sale, or of a petition for leave to sell or give an option to purchase a mining claim or real property worked as a mine, or of a petition for leave to execute a promissory note or mortgage or deed of trust or give other security, or of a petition for leave to lease, or to exchange, or to institute an action for the partition of property, or of a petition for an order authorizing or directing the investment of money, or of a report of appraisers concerning a homestead, or of an account of an executor or administrator or trustee, or of a petition for partial or ratable or final distribution, or of a petition for the delivery of the estate of a nonresident, or of a petition for determination of heirship or interests in an estate, or of a petition of a trustee for instructions, or of a petition for the appointment of a trustee after distribution, and in all cases in which notice is required and no other time or method is prescribed by law or by the court or judge, the clerk shall give notice of the petition or application or report or account by causing a notice to be posted at the courthouse of the county where the proceedings are pending, at least ten days before the day of hearing, giving the name of the estate, the name of the petitioner and the nature of the application, briefly indicating the particular property to which the application applies when it applies to particular property only, referring to the petition for further particulars, and notifying all persons interested to appear at the time and place mentioned in the notice and show cause, if any they have, why the order Mode of giving notice in certain instances and where not otherwise prescribed.

should not be made. Within two days after the filing of such petition, account or report, the petitioner or person filing the account or desiring the confirmation of a report of appraisers must cause a copy of the notice to be mailed to the executor or administrator, when he is not the petitioner, to any coexecutor or coadministrator not petitioning, and to all persons (or to their attorneys, if they have appeared by attorney), who have requested notice or who have given notice of appearance in the estate in person or by attorney, as heir, devisee, legatee or creditor, or as otherwise interested, addressed to them at their respective post-office addresses given in their requests for special notice, if any, otherwise at their respective offices or places of residence, if known, and if not, at the county seat of the county where the proceedings are pending, or to be personally served upon such person. Proof of the giving of notice must be made at the hearing; and if it appears to the satisfaction of the court that said notice has been regularly given, the court shall so find in its order, and such order, when it becomes final, shall be conclusive upon all persons.

in case of sales of mines, etc

1201. In the case of a petition for leave to sell, or to give an option to purchase, a mining claim or real property worked as a mine, or for leave to borrow money or execute a mortgage or deed of trust or give other security, or for leave to execute a lease, the clerk shall also cause such notice of the application to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county. If the notice is published in a weekly newspaper, it must appear therein on at least two different days of publication; if in a newspaper published oftener, there must be at least ten days from the first to the last day of publication, both days included.

ested, state controller

1202. At any time after the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration, any person interested in the estate, whether as heir, devisee, legatee, creditor, beneficiary under a trust, or as otherwise interested, or the state controller, may, in person or by attorney, serve upon the executor or administrator or trustee, or upon the latter's attorney, and file with the clerk of the court where the proceedings are pending, with a written admission or proof of such service, a written request, stating that he desires special notice of the filing of any or all of the petitions, accounts or reports mentioned in section 1200 of this code, and giving the post-office address of the person making the same, or his attorney. Thereafter such person shall be entitled to notice as provided in said section 1200.

United States
agencies

1203. When compensation, pension, insurance or other allowance is made or awarded by the United States government, or a department or bureau thereof, to estates of decedents, the department or bureau making or awarding such compensation, pension, insurance or allowance, shall have the same right as any person interested in the estate to request notice of proceedings, to commence and prosecute actions on the bonds of executors or administrators, and to file exceptions in writing to accounts of executors or administrators and to contest the same.

1204. Whenever the court deems that the notice which has been given of any proceeding or hearing is insufficient, it may require such further and additional notice to be given as it deems proper. Additional notice.

1205. The court may continue or postpone any hearing, from time to time, in the interest of justice, and no further notice of the continued or postponed hearing is required unless ordered by the court. Postponement

1206. When personal notice is required, and no mode of giving it is prescribed by this code, it must be given by citation. The citation must be directed to the person to be cited, signed by the clerk, issued under the seal of the court, and must contain the title of the proceeding, a brief statement of the nature of the proceeding, and a direction that the person cited appear at a time and place specified. Personal notice by citation

1207. The citation may be issued by the clerk upon the application of any party, without an order of the court or judge, except in cases in which such order is expressly required by law. The citation must be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action, and when no other time is specially prescribed by law, it must be served at least five days before the return day thereof. Issue and service of citation.

1208. Whenever a minor or an insane or incompetent person has a guardian of his estate residing in this state, personal service upon the guardian of any process, notice, or order of the court, concerning the estate of a deceased person in which the ward is interested, is equivalent to service upon the ward, and it is the duty of the guardian to attend to the interests of the ward in the matter. Such guardian may also appear for his ward and waive any process, notice, or order to show cause which an adult person of sound mind might waive. Powers of resident guardians

1209. When any publication is ordered, such publication must be made daily, or otherwise as often during the prescribed period as the paper is regularly issued, unless otherwise provided by this code. The court, or a judge thereof, may, however, order a less number of publications during the period. Number of publications

1210. When court is held at a place other than the county seat, the posting of a notice at the building where the court is held shall be the equivalent of posting at the courthouse of the county. Court held away from county seat

Article II—Orders.

1220. Orders and decrees made by the court or a judge thereof, in probate proceedings, need not recite the existence of facts, or the performance of acts, upon which the jurisdiction of the court or judge may depend, but it is only necessary that they contain the matters ordered or adjudged, except as otherwise provided by this code. Jurisdictional facts not needed

Entry and filing 1221. All orders and decrees of the court or judge must be entered at length in the minute book of the court, or else signed by the judge and filed: but decrees of distribution must always be so entered at length.

Recordation of orders relating to real property 1222. When an order is made setting apart a homestead, confirming a sale or making distribution of real property, or determining any other matter affecting the title to real property, a certified copy thereof must be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which the land, or any part thereof, lies; and from the time of filing the same for record, notice is imparted to all persons of the contents thereof.

Constructive notice
Orders affecting property registered under land title act 1223. When an order or decree authorizing a lease, mortgage or transfer of property, or distributing property, or making any change in the status of the title to property, deals with land registered under the provisions of the land title law which took effect December 19, 1914, the court, in its order or decree, shall direct the registrar of titles to issue a certificate of title, or to note a memorial of the transaction, as the case may require, in accordance with such order or decree.

Article III—Rules of Procedure.

Trial rules 1230. All issues of fact joined in probate proceedings must be tried in conformity with the requirements of the rules of practice in civil actions. The party affirming is plaintiff, and the one denying or avoiding is defendant. When a party is entitled to a trial by jury and a jury is demanded, and the issues are not sufficiently made up by the written pleadings on file, the court, on due notice, must settle and frame the issues to be tried. If no jury is demanded, the court must try the issues joined, and sign and file its decision in writing, as provided in civil actions. Judgment on the issue joined, as well as for costs, may be entered and enforced by execution or otherwise by the court as in civil actions.

Motion for new trial. 1231. A motion for a new trial in probate proceedings can be made only in cases of contests of wills, either before or after probate, in proceedings to determine heirship and interests in estates, and in those cases where the issues of fact, of which a new trial is sought, were of such character as to entitle the parties to have them tried by a jury, whether or not they were so tried.

Costs 1232. When not otherwise prescribed by this code, either the superior court or the court on appeal, may, in its discretion, order costs to be paid by any party to the proceedings, or out of the assets of the estate, as justice may require.

Part II of C. C. P. applicable 1233. Except as otherwise provided by this code, the provisions of part II of the Code of Civil Procedure are applicable to and constitute the rules of practice in the proceedings mentioned in this code with regard to trials, new trials, appeals, records on appeal, and all other matters of procedure.

Article IV—Appeals.

1240. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from an order granting or revoking letters testamentary or of administration; admitting a will to probate or revoking the probate thereof; setting aside an estate claimed not to exceed two thousand five hundred dollars in value; setting apart property as a homestead or claimed to be exempt from execution; confirming a report of an appraiser or appraisers in setting apart a homestead; granting or modifying a family allowance; directing or authorizing the sale or conveyance or confirming the sale of property; settling an account of an executor or administrator or trustee, or instructing or appointing a trustee; directing or allowing the payment of a debt, claim, legacy or attorney's fee; determining heirship or the persons to whom distribution should be made or trust property should pass; distributing property; refusing to make any order heretofore mentioned in this section; or fixing an inheritance tax or determining that none is due.

DIVISION IV—GUARDIAN AND WARD.

CHAPTER I—THE RELATIONSHIP, AND RULES GOVERNING ITS CREATION.

1400. A guardian is a person appointed to take care of the person or property of another. The latter is called the ward of the guardian. The relation of guardian and ward is confidential, and is subject to the provisions of law relating to trusts. In the management and disposition of the person or property committed to him, a guardian may be regulated and controlled by the court.

Definition of relationship.

1401. Guardians are either general or special. A general guardian is a guardian of the person or of the general estate of the ward within this state, or of both. Every other is a special guardian.

General and special guardians

1402. A parent may appoint a guardian by will or by deed for the property of any child of such parent, living or likely to be born, which such child may take from such parent by will or succession.

Guardian of property appointment by will or deed

1403. Either parent of a legitimate child living or likely to be born, may appoint a guardian of the person and estate, or person or estate of such child, by will or by deed, to take effect upon the death of the parent appointing, with the written consent of the other parent, or if the other parent is dead or incapable of consent. If the child is illegitimate, such appointment may be made by the mother.

Guardian of person and estate appointment to take effect at death.

1404. Either parent of an unmarried insane or incompetent person may appoint a guardian of the person and estate, or person or estate, of such person, by will or by deed, to take effect upon the death of the parent appointing, with the written consent of the other parent, or if the other parent is dead or incapable of consent. If the insane or incompetent person is married, such appointment may be made by the spouse.

General
guardian court appointment

1405. The superior court shall appoint a general guardian of the person and estate, or person or estate, of minors and insane or incompetent persons, whenever necessary or convenient, and when no guardian has been appointed for the purpose by will or by deed. The court, in its discretion, may appoint more than one guardian, each of whom must give a separate bond, and be governed and liable in all respects as a sole guardian. The court shall also confirm an appointment made by will or by deed, whenever requested, upon the same procedure and notice as in the case of appointment by the court.

Rules for appointment

1406. In appointing a general guardian of a minor, the court is to be guided by what appears to be for the best interest of the child in respect to its temporal and mental and moral welfare; and if the child is of sufficient age to form an intelligent preference, the court may consider that preference in determining the question. If the child resides in this state and is over fourteen years of age, he may nominate his own guardian, either of his own accord or within ten days after being duly cited by the court; and such nominee must be appointed if approved by the court. When a guardian has been appointed for a minor under fourteen years of age, the minor, at any time after he attains that age, may nominate his own guardian, subject to the approval of the court.

guardianship

1407. Of persons equally entitled in other respects to the guardianship of a minor, preference is to be given as follows:

- (1) To a parent;
- (2) To one who was indicated by the wishes of a deceased parent;
- (3) To one who already stands in the position of a trustee of a fund to be applied to the child's support;
- (4) To a relative.

Rights as between parents

1408. As between parents claiming the guardianship adversely to each other, neither is entitled to priority; but other things being equal, if the child is of tender years, it should be given to the mother; if it is of an age to require education and preparation for labor and business, then to the father.

Effect of abandoning child

1409. A parent who knowingly or wilfully abandons or, having the ability so to do, fails to maintain his minor child under fourteen years of age, forfeits all right to the guardianship of such child; and a parent or guardian who knowingly permits his child or ward to remain for one year in an orphan asylum where the child is supported by charity, without notifying the managers or officers of the asylum that he is such parent or guardian, abandons and forever forfeits all right to the guardianship of the child. The officers and managers of any orphan asylum having such abandoned child in its care have the preferred right to the guardianship of the child.

1410. The authority of a guardian is not extinguished or affected by the marriage of the guardian. Effect of marriage of guardian

1411. No person ineligible to citizenship in the United States and no company, association or corporation of which a majority of the members are aliens ineligible to citizenship in the United States, or in which a majority of the issued capital stock is owned by such aliens, may be appointed guardian of any estate which consists in whole or in part of real property. Aliens and corporations controlled by aliens.

CHAPTER II—WHEN GUARDIANSHIP NOT NECESSARY.

1430. If a minor has no guardian of his estate, money belonging to the minor not exceeding the sum of two hundred fifty dollars may be paid to a parent of the minor entitled to the custody of the minor to hold for the minor, upon written assurance of such parent that the total estate of the minor does not exceed one thousand dollars in value; and the written receipt of such parent shall be an acquittance of the person making such payment. Payments not exceeding $250 when entire estate under $1,000.

1431. When a minor has a disputed claim for money against a third person, his father, or if his father is dead or has deserted or abandoned him then his mother, shall have the right to compromise such claim, but before the compromise is valid it must be approved by the superior court of the county where the minor resides, upon the filing of a verified petition in writing. If the court approves the compromise, it may direct that the money be paid to the father or mother of the minor, with or without the filing of a bond, or it may require a general guardian or guardian ad litem to be appointed and the money to be paid to such guardian or guardian ad litem with or without a bond as in the discretion of the court seems to the best interests of the minor. The clerk of the court shall not charge any fee for filing the petition. Compromise of disputed claim held by minor.

1432. The parent receiving any money under the provisions of this chapter shall account to the minor for the money when the minor reaches the age of majority. Parent must account.

1433. No guardian shall be appointed of the person of a married minor. Married minor

CHAPTER III—APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIANS FOR MINORS.

1440. When it appears necessary or convenient, the superior court of the county in which a minor resides or is temporarily domiciled, or in which a nonresident minor has estate, may appoint a guardian for his person and estate, or person or estate. The appointment may be made upon the petition of a relative or other person on behalf of the minor, or on the petition of the minor, if fourteen years of age. Power of court to appoint.

1441. Before making the appointment, such notice as the court or a judge thereof deems reasonable must be given to the person having the care of the minor and to such relatives of the minor residing in the state as the court or judge deems proper. In all cases notice must be given to the parents of the minor or proof made to the court that their addresses Notice to persons having custody.

are unknown, or that, for other reason, such notice can not be given.

Order for temporary custody.

Warrant.

1442. In such proceeding, when it appears to the court or judge either from a verified petition or from affidavits, that the welfare of the minor will be imperiled if he is allowed to remain in the custody of the person then having his care, an order may be made providing for his temporary custody until a hearing can be had on the petition. And when it appears that there is reason to believe that the minor will be carried out of the jurisdiction of the court, or will suffer some irreparable injury before compliance with such order providing for the temporary custody of the minor can be enforced, the court or judge, at the time of making the order for temporary custody, may cause a warrant to be issued, reciting the facts, and directed to the sheriff, coroner, or a constable of the county, commanding such officer to take the minor from the custody of the person in whose care he then is and place him in custody in accordance with such order.

CHAPTER IV—APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIANS FOR INSANE OR INCOMPETENT PERSONS.

Power of court to appoint.

Definitions

Petition for appointment

Appointment

Preferences

1460. Any superior court to which application is made as hereinafter provided may appoint a guardian for the person and estate or person or estate of an insane or an incompetent person. As used in this division of this code, the phrase "incompetent person," "incompetent," or "mentally incompetent," shall be construed to mean or refer to any person, whether insane or not, who by reason of old age, disease, weakness of mind, or other cause, is unable, unassisted, properly to manage and take care of himself or his property, and by reason thereof is likely to be deceived or imposed upon by artful or designing persons.

1461. Any relative or friend may file a verified petition alleging that a person is insane or incompetent. Thereupon the clerk shall set the same for hearing by the court and shall cause notice to be given to the alleged insane or incompetent person of the time and place of hearing, not less than five days before the time so appointed; and such person, if able to attend, must be produced at the hearing, unless he is a patient at a state hospital in this state and the certificate of the medical superintendent or acting medical superintendent thereof is produced, to the effect that such patient is unable to attend the hearing, which certificate shall be prima facie evidence of that fact.

1462. If, upon the hearing, it appears to the court that the person in question is insane or incompetent, the court must appoint a guardian of his person and estate, or person or estate. In awarding letters of guardianship, the court shall give preference to such person as may have been designated by will or deed, unless good cause to the contrary is shown.

CHAPTER V—RESTORATION TO CAPACITY.

1470. Any person who has been declared insane, or for whom a guardian has been appointed as an insane or incompetent person, or the guardian, or any relative or friend, may apply, by petition, to the superior court of the county in which such person was declared insane, or from which letters of guardianship were issued, to have the fact of his restoration to capacity judicially determined. The petition must be verified, and must state that such person is then sane or competent.

Petition for determination

1471. The clerk shall set the petition for hearing by the court. At the request of the person so declared insane or for whom a guardian has been appointed, the question of his restoration to capacity must be tried by a jury, which must be summoned and impaneled in the same manner as juries in civil actions. At least five days' notice of the trial must be given to the guardian of the person so declared insane or for whom a guardian has been appointed, if there is a guardian, and to the person's spouse, if any, and to his or her father and mother, if in the state.

1472. On the trial, the guardian or relative of the person so declared insane or for whom a guardian has been appointed, and, in the discretion of the court, any other person, may contest the right to the relief demanded. Witnesses may be required to appear and testify, as in civil cases, and may be called and examined by the court on its own motion. If it is found that the person in question is sane and capable of managing and taking care of himself and his property, his restoration to capacity must be adjudged and the guardianship of such person, if not a minor, must cease.

Trial and

CHAPTER VI—OATHS, BONDS AND LETTERS.

1480. Before the order appointing a guardian takes effect, and before letters issue, the person appointed must take an oath, which must be attached to or endorsed upon his letters, that he will perform the duties of his office as such guardian according to law, and, except as otherwise provided in this division, must furnish a bond to the ward, with two or more persons or an authorized surety company as surety, to be approved by the judge, and in such sum as required by the order, which sum shall be not less than twice the value of the personal property and twice the value of the probable annual rents, issues and profits of all property belonging to the ward, or, when the bond is given by an authorized surety company, not less than the value of the personal property and the probable annual rents, issues and profits of all property belonging to the ward, and conditioned that the guardian will faithfully execute the duties of his trust according to law.

Oath and
bond

1481. Upon filing the bond, duly approved, letters of guardianship shall issue to the person appointed, substantially in the same form as letters of administration.

letters

Additional bond on real property
transactions

1482. Before any sale of real property is confirmed, or any mortgage or deed of trust is authorized by which money is to be raised, the guardian must furnish such additional bond to the ward as shall be required by the court, with two or more persons or an authorized surety company as surety, to be approved by the judge, in order to make the total penalty of the guardian's bonds to his ward equal to that required by section 1480 of this code, taking into account the proceeds of the sale or mortgage or deed of trust.

New bond and discharge of sureties

1483. The court may require a new bond to be given by a guardian whenever it deems it necessary; and when it appears that no injury can result therefrom to those interested in the estate, it may discharge the existing sureties from further liability, after such notice given as the court may direct.

Powers and
testamentary
guardian

1484. Every testamentary guardian must qualify and has the same powers and must perform the same duties with regard to the person and estate of his ward as guardians appointed by the court, except so far as his powers and duties are legally modified, enlarged or changed by the will by which he was appointed.

Bond

1485. A testamentary guardian need not give bond unless required by the court from which the letters issue.

Filing and remedy on bond

1486. Every bond given by a guardian must be filed and preserved in the office of the clerk of the court, and in case of a breach of a condition thereof, may be sued upon for the use and benefit of the ward, or of any person interested in the estate.

Limitations on action
on bond

1487. No action may be maintained against the sureties on a bond given by a guardian unless commenced within three years from the discharge or removal of the guardian; but if at the time of such discharge the person entitled to bring the action is under any legal disability to sue, the action may be commenced at any time within three years after the disability is removed.

CHAPTER VII—POWERS AND DUTIES.

Period of guardianship, etc

1500. Every guardian has the care and custody of the person of his ward and the management of his estate, or the care and custody of the person of his ward or the management of his estate, according to the order of appointment, until legally discharged, or, in case of the guardianship of a minor, until the minor reaches the age of majority or, as to the guardianship of the person, until the ward marries. The guardian of a minor also has charge of the education of the minor. The guardian of the person of a ward may fix the residence of the ward at any place in the state, but not elsewhere without the permission of the court.

Ward's debts and claims, etc

1501. Every guardian must pay the ward's just debts out of the ward's personal estate and the income of his real estate, if sufficient; if not, then out of his real estate upon selling or mortgaging or giving a deed of trust upon any of his real property as hereinafter provided. He must demand, sue for, and collect all debts due to the ward, or, with the approval of the court, he may compromise the same and give discharges to the debtor, on receiving a fair and just settlement; and he must appear for and represent his ward in all actions and proceedings, unless another person is appointed for that purpose.

1502. Every guardian of an estate must manage it frugally and without waste, and apply the income, as far as may be necessary, to the comfortable and suitable support, maintenance and education of the ward and his family, if any; and if the income is insufficient for that purpose, he may sell or mortgage or give a deed of trust upon any of the property, as hereinafter provided. When a guardian has advanced, for the suitable support, maintenance or education of his ward, an amount not disproportionate to the value of the ward's estate or his condition of life, and the same is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court, by proper vouchers and proofs, the guardian must be allowed credit therefor in his settlements.

Management of ward's estate

Reimbursement of
guardian

1503. Whenever a guardian fails, neglects or refuses to furnish suitable support, maintenance or education for his ward, the court may order him to do so, and enforce such order by proper process, and whenever a third person, at the request of a ward, supplies him with such suitable support, maintenance or education, and it is shown to have been done after the refusal or neglect of the guardian to supply the same, the court may direct the guardian to pay therefor out of the estate, and enforce such payment by proper process.

Failure to support ward, etc.

Reimbursement of third party

1504. If a minor having a father living has property, the income of which is sufficient for his support, maintenance and education in a manner more expensive than his father can reasonably afford, regard being had to the situation of the father's family and to all the circumstances of the case, the expenses of the support, maintenance and education of such minor may be defrayed out of the income of his own property, in whole or in part, as judged reasonable, and as directed by the court; and the charges therefor may be allowed accordingly in the settlement of the accounts of his guardian.

Support of ward having father living

1505. If a husband is unable to provide suitably for the support and maintenance of a wife over whose estate a guardian has been appointed by reason of her incompetency, the expense of providing such support or maintenance may, to the extent necessary, be charged against and defrayed out of such estate, as directed by the court or as approved by the court in settling the accounts of the guardian; for this purpose the guardian may sell or mortgage or give a deed of trust upon any of her property as hereinafter provided.

Support of
husband living

1506. When a ward owns an undivided interest in real or personal property, the guardian of his estate may commence and prosecute an action for the partition thereof or may consent and agree to a partition thereof without action and to the part to be set off to his ward, and may execute deeds or

Partition
of property

conveyances to the owners of the remaining shares of the parts to which they may be respectively entitled, but in either case he must first obtain authority from the court having jurisdiction of the estate.

Order granting authority to partition

1507. The order granting such authority shall be made only after a hearing in open court upon the petition of the guardian. Upon filing the petition, the clerk of the court shall set the same for hearing by the court and cause notice thereof to be mailed, at least ten days before the hearing, to such relatives of the ward residing in the state as the court or judge deems proper.

Defense of partition suit

1508. When a ward, or his guardian, as such, is made a defendant in a partition suit, the guardian may defend the same without leave of court.

Fees of attorney for minor

1509. A contract for attorney's fees for services in litigation, made by or on behalf of a minor, is void unless the contract is approved by the court in which the litigation is pending or the court having jurisdiction of the estate of the minor, upon petition of any person in interest. When no such contract is approved, and a judgment is recovered by or on behalf of a minor, the attorney's fees chargeable against the minor shall be fixed by the court rendering the judgment.

Money judgments in favor of minor

1510. If the judgment is for the recovery of money or other property, and there is no general guardian of the minor, one shall be appointed by the court to receive and care for the money or property recovered, upon notice and a hearing as in other cases of appointment. But if a minor has brought an action by a guardian ad litem and has recovered a money judgment not in excess of five hundred dollars, exclusive of costs, and the guardian ad litem is a blood relative of the minor, then upon the approval of the court which rendered the judgment the amount thereof may be paid directly to such guardian ad litem without any bond being required therefor.

Payment of fees of attorney for minor.

1511. Whenever the court fixes or approves an attorney's fee for services rendered to or for the benefit of a minor in litigation pending before it, it may direct the judgment debtor to pay such fee to the attorney and the balance of the judgment to the guardian ad litem or general guardian.

Court may impose additional conditions of guardianship

1512. When a person is appointed guardian of a minor, the court, with the consent of such person, may insert in the order of appointment conditions not otherwise obligatory, providing for the care, treatment, education and welfare of the minor and for the care and custody of his property. The performance of such conditions shall be a part of the duties of the guardian, for the faithful performance of which he and the sureties on his bond shall be responsible.

Deposit
money
in bank

1513. A guardian may deposit any money belonging to the ward with one or more banks within this state, whereupon he shall be discharged from further care or responsibility therefor until the money is withdrawn by him. Unless the money is deposited pursuant to an order, under the provisions of the Bank Act, it may be withdrawn without order of court.

1514. Personal assets of the ward may be deposited with a trust company, and the bond of the guardian reduced, as provided by the Bank Act.

Deposit of assets with

CHAPTER VIII—SALES, MORTGAGES, LEASES AND CONVEYANCES.

1530. If the income of an estate under guardianship is insufficient for the support, maintenance and education of the ward and of such members of his family as he is legally obligated to support and maintain, including his care, treatment and support, if confined in a state hospital for the insane, or if the personal estate and the income from the real estate is insufficient to pay his debts, his guardian may sell any of his real or personal property, or mortgage or give a deed of trust upon any of his real property for that purpose, subject to confirmation or direction by the court as hereinafter provided.

Purposes of sale, etc.

1531. When it will benefit a ward to sell any of his real or personal property and to put out the proceeds at interest or invest the same in some productive stock or bonds, or in the improvement or security of any other real property of the ward, his guardian may sell the same for that purpose, subject to confirmation by the court as hereinafter provided. The particular investment or investments to be made must be specified in the order confirming the sale, or authorizing the sale of stocks or bonds.

Conversion of property for purpose of investment

1532. All sales must be for cash or for part cash and part deferred payments, the credit in no case to exceed three years from the date of sale, and the terms being subject to the approval of the court. When real property is sold upon deferred payments, the guardian must demand and receive from the purchasers, notes, and a mortgage or deed of trust on the property sold, with such additional security as the court deems necessary and sufficient to secure the prompt payment of the amounts so deferred, and the interest thereon.

Terms
of sale

1533. A guardian may borrow money, with or without giving security, when it will benefit his ward, and, in addition to the contingencies mentioned in section 1530 of this code, may mortgage real or personal property, or give a deed of trust upon real property, of the ward, in order to pay, reduce, extend or renew some lien or mortgage or deed of trust already subsisting on property of the ward, or to erect, alter or repair buildings or other structures upon, or otherwise to improve, the property proposed to be mortgaged, or some part thereof.

Borrowing money, refinancing, and repairing property

1534. Sales by guardians may be at public auction or private sale, as the guardian deems best. All proceedings concerning sales by guardians, giving notice of sale, reselling the same property, return of sale and application for confirmation thereof, notice and hearing of such application, making orders rejecting or confirming sales and reports of sales, ordering and making conveyances of property sold, and allowance of commissions, must conform, as nearly as may be, to the provisions

Sales governed by provisions concerning administrators

of this code concerning sales by administrators, unless otherwise specially provided in this chapter.

Ward in state hospital for insane

1535. When the ward is or has been, during the guardianship, confined in a state hospital for the insane in this state, notice of the hearing of the return must be given to the director of institutions or to the attorney general at least five days before the hearing.

Application of proceeds of sale

1536. The guardian must apply the proceeds of the sale to the purposes for which it was made, as far as necessary, and put out the residue, if any, at interest, or invest it in the best manner in his power, until needed for the support, maintenance or education of the ward or his family, or the payment of debts, at which time the capital may be used for that purpose, as far as necessary, in like manner as if it had been personal estate of the ward.

Conveyance to comply with contract

1537. When an incompetent ward is bound by a contract in writing to convey any real property, executed by him while competent, or executed by his predecessor in interest, the court may authorize and direct his guardian to convey the property to the person entitled thereto. The proceedings to obtain such a decree and the proceedings thereunder must conform, as nearly as may be, to the provisions of this code concerning conveyances by administrators of property contracted to be sold by their decedents.

Promissory notes, etc order of court required

1538. Promissory notes for money borrowed, mortgages, deeds of trust, leases, and agreements for the sale of, or for options to purchase, mining claims or real property worked as mines, may be executed by guardians, with respect to the property of their wards, only upon obtaining an order of court authorizing the same. The proceedings to obtain any such order and the proceedings thereunder must conform, as nearly as may be, to the provisions of this code concerning similar proceedings by administrators.

Limitations
period on sales by guardian

1539. No action for the recovery of any property sold by a guardian can be maintained by the ward or any person claiming under him, unless commenced within three years after the termination of the guardianship, or, when a legal disability to sue exists by reason of minority or otherwise at the time the cause of action accrues, within three years after the removal thereof.

CHAPTER IX—INVENTORY AND ACCOUNTING.

Original inventory and appraisement

1550. Within three months after his appointment, or within such further time as the court or judge for reasonable cause may allow, the guardian must file with the clerk of the court an inventory and appraisement of the estate of his ward. The guardian must make oath to the inventory, and the property therein described must be appraised, by an appraiser or appraisers appointed by the court or judge, in the manner provided for the inventory and appraisement of estates of decedents. The inventory and appraisement must be recorded by the clerk in a book kept for that purpose, and

whenever any ward is or has been during the guardianship confined in a state hospital in this state the guardian must deliver or mail a copy of the inventory to the director of institutions or the attorney general. Whenever any property of the ward is discovered which was not included in the inventory, and whenever any other property has been inherited or acquired by the ward, other than by purchase by the guardian, like proceedings must be had for the inventory and appraisal thereof and the delivery or mailing of a copy thereof as are herein provided in relation to the first inventory.

1551. If the guardian neglects or refuses to file the inventory within the time prescribed, the court, upon notice, may revoke his letters, and he shall be liable on his bond for any injury to the estate or any person interested therein, arising from such failure.

Failure to file inventory

1552. Upon complaint under oath made by a guardian, ward, creditor or other person interested in the ward's estate, or having a prospective interest therein as heir or otherwise, that any person is suspected of having embezzled, concealed, smuggled or fraudulently disposed of any property of the ward, or has in his possession or has knowledge of any instrument in writing belonging to the ward, the court or judge may cite the suspected person to appear before the court, and may examine and proceed against him on such charge in the manner provided in this code with respect to persons suspected of having embezzled, concealed, smuggled, or fraudulently disposed of property of a decedent.

Citation of persons embezzling property of ward, etc

1553. At the expiration of a year from the time of his appointment, and as often thereafter as he may be required by the court, the guardian must present his account to the court for settlement and allowance. When an account is rendered by two or more joint guardians, the court, in its discretion, may allow the same upon the oath of any of them.

Annual account

1554. No account of the guardian of an insane person who is or has been during the guardianship confined in a state hospital in this state shall be settled or allowed unless notice of the settlement of the account has been given to the director of institutions or the attorney general at least five days before the hearing.

Notice to attorney general, etc

1555. The termination of the relation of guardian and ward by the death of either guardian or ward or by the ward attaining his majority or being restored to capacity shall not cause the court to lose jurisdiction of the proceeding for the purpose of settling the accounts of the guardian. The account of a deceased guardian shall be presented by his executor or administrator.

Jurisdiction of court after termination of relation

1556. Every guardian shall be allowed the amount of his reasonable expenses incurred in the execution of his trust, and shall have such compensation for his services as the court in which his accounts are settled deems just and reasonable. He shall also be allowed all reasonable disbursements made after the legal termination of the guardianship, but while that relation, by consent or acquiescence of the parties, still subsists in fact, and before the discharge of the guardian by the court, and which were made by the consent, express or implied, of the ward, and for his benefit or the benefit of his estate.

Expenses and compensation of guardian

Order
investment

1557. On the application of the guardian or of any person interested in the estate of the ward, and after such notice to persons interested therein as the court or judge shall direct, the court may authorize and require the guardian to invest the proceeds of sales, and any other of his ward's money in his hands, in real property, or in any other manner most to the interest of the ward; and the court may make such orders and give such directions as are needful for the management, investment and disposition of the estate as circumstances require.

CHAPTER X—NONRESIDENT WARDS.

Jurisdiction
to appoint guardian of nonresident ward

1570. The superior court may appoint a guardian of the person and estate, or person or estate, of a minor or insane or incompetent person who resides out of the state and who is within the county, or who has estate within the county, and who has no guardian within the state, upon petition of any friend of such person or of any one interested in his estate, in expectancy or otherwise. Before making such appointment, the court or judge must cause notice to be given to all persons interested, in such manner as deemed reasonable. The guardianship which is first granted of a nonresident ward extends to all the estate of the ward within this state, and the court of no other county has jurisdiction.

guardianship

Powers and duties

1571. Every guardian of a nonresident ward has the same powers and duties, with respect to the estate of the ward within this state, and with respect to the person of the ward while living therein, as are prescribed by this code with respect to any other guardian. Such guardian must give bond to the ward as hereinbefore provided for other guardians, but his responsibility with regard to inventory, accounting and disposal of the estate is confined to such estate as comes into his hands in this state.

Bond

Removal of property
from state

1572. When the guardian and ward are both nonresidents, and the ward owns property in this state which may be removed to another state without conflict with any restriction or limitation thereupon, or impairing the right of the ward thereto, such property may be removed to the state of the ward's residence upon the application of the guardian to the superior court of the county in which the estate of the ward, or the principal part thereof, is situated.

Notice of application for removal Certificate
required

1573. Such application must be made upon ten days' notice to the resident guardian or executor or administrator, if there be such. The nonresident guardian must produce and file a certificate, under the hand of the clerk and seal of the court from which his appointment was derived, showing: (1) a transcript of the record of his appointment; (2) that he has entered upon the discharge of his duties; and (3) that he is entitled, by the laws of the state of his appointment, to the possession of the estate of the ward; or must produce and file a certificate, under the hand of the clerk and seal of the court having jurisdiction, in the state of his residence, of the estates of persons under guardianship, or of the highest court of such state, attested, in the case of a foreign country, by a minister, consul or vice consul of the United States, resident in such state, that, by the laws of such state, the applicant is entitled to the custody of the estate of his ward, without the appointment of any court.

1574. Upon such application, unless good cause to the contrary is shown, the court must make an order granting to such guardian leave to remove the property of his ward to the state of his residence, which is authority to him to sue for and receive the same in his own name, for the use and benefit of his ward. Such order is a discharge of the local guardian or executor, administrator or other person in whose possession the property may be at the time the order is made, on filing with the clerk of the court the nonresident guardian's receipt therefor and transmitting a duplicate receipt, or a certified copy of such receipt, to the court from which such nonresident guardian received his appointment.

Order granting removal.

Effect thereof

CHAPTER XI—SUSPENSION, REMOVAL AND RESIGNATION.

1580. A guardian appointed by will or deed or by the court may be removed by the court for any of the following causes:

Causes for removal of guardian

(1) For waste or mismanagement of the estate, or abuse of his trust;

(2) For failure to file an inventory or to render an account within the time allowed by law, or for continued failure to perform his duties;

(3) For incapacity to perform his duties suitably;

(4) For gross immorality;

(5) For having an interest adverse to the faithful performance of his duties;

(6) For removal from the state;

(7) In the case of a guardian of the property, for insolvency; or,

(8) When it is no longer necessary that the ward should be under guardianship.

1581. The removal may be ordered after such notice to the guardian as the court or a judge thereof may require; and the court may compel him to surrender the estate of the ward to the person found to be lawfully entitled thereto. Pending the hearing, the court or the judge thereof may suspend the powers of the guardian to such extent as deemed necessary.

Notice and suspension of powers

1582. Any guardian may resign when it appears proper to allow it; and upon the resignation or removal of a guardian, the court may appoint another in his place, after notice and a hearing as in the case of an original appointment.

Resignation of guardian

CHAPTER XII—TERMINATION OF GUARDIANSHIP.

Events which terminate guardianship

1590. (1) The marriage of a minor ward terminates the guardianship of the person, but not of his estate.

(2) If the appointment of a guardian is made solely because of the ward's minority, the guardianship is terminated by his attaining majority.

(3) In all other cases the guardianship is terminated only by order of the court upon application of the guardian or the ward, after such notice to the other as the court or judge may require.

Survivorship of joint guardians

1591. On the death of one of two or more joint guardians, the powers continue in the survivor until a further appointment is made by the court.

Release by ward

1592. After a ward has reached his majority, he may settle accounts with his guardian and give him a release, which is valid if obtained fairly and without undue influence.

When guardian entitled to discharge

1593. A guardian appointed by a court is not entitled to his discharge until one year after the ward's majority.

CHAPTER XIII—NOTICES AND PROCEDURE.

Request for special notice

1600 At any time after the issuance of letters of guardianship, any relative of the ward, in person or by attorney, or the attorney for any department or bureau of the United States government which makes or awards compensation, pension, insurance or other allowance for the benefit of the ward's estate, may serve upon the guardian or upon the latter's attorney, and file with the clerk of the court where the proceedings are pending, with a written admission or proof of such service, a written request, stating that he desires special notice of the filing or commencing of any or all of the following:

(1) Petitions for the sale, lease or mortgage or confirmation of sale of any property of the ward;

(2) Accounts;

(3) Application for removal of the ward's property to a foreign jurisdiction;

(4) Petitions for partition of any property of the ward;

(5) Petitions for allowances of any nature payable from the ward's estate;

(6) Petitions for the investment of funds of the estate;

(7) Proceedings for the removal, suspension, or discharge of the guardian or final termination of the guardianship.

Compliance with request

1601. Such request shall give the post-office address of the person making the same, or of the attorney, and thereafter a brief notice of the filing or any such petition or account, or of the commencement of any such proceeding, except petitions for the sale of perishable property or other personal property which will depreciate in value if not disposed of promptly, or which will incur loss or expense by being kept, together with a copy of such petition, application, account or proceeding, shall be mailed to such relative or attorney, at his stated post-office address, or personally served upon him, within two days after the filing of such petition, account or application, or the commencement of such proceeding.

1602. Proof of mailing or of personal service of the notice must be made at the hearing; and if it appears to the satisfaction of the court that said notice has been regularly given, the court shall so find in its order, and such order, when it becomes final, shall be conclusive upon all persons.

Proof of compliance with request

1603. The court in which a guardianship proceeding is pending may transfer the proceeding to the superior court of any other county which at the time of such transfer would have jurisdiction to issue original letters in such proceeding. To obtain such transfer, the guardian shall file in the court in which the proceeding is pending a verified petition setting forth:

Transfer of guardianship proceeding to another court

Petition

(1) The name of the county to which it is sought to transfer the proceedings;

(2) The name of the county in which the ward resides and that in which the guardian resides;

(3) The name of the county or counties in which the property of the ward is situated, and a brief description of the character and condition of the property;

(4) The reasons for such transfer;

(5) The names and residences, so far as they are known to the guardian, of the relatives of the ward within the third degree residing in the county in which the proceedings are pending.

1604. Upon the filing of the petition, the court or judge shall make an order fixing a time for the hearing thereof, which shall be not less than five days thereafter, and directing that notice thereof be mailed to each of the relatives of the ward named in the petition as resident in the county; and may require such other or further notice of the hearing as may be deemed proper. Any relative of the ward, or any person interested in the estate of the ward, may appear and file written grounds of opposition to the petition. If, after a hearing, it appears to the court that the transfer of the proceeding to the court designated in the petition, or to the superior court of any other county, will be for the best interest of the ward, it shall make an order transferring the proceeding to said court. Thereupon the clerk must transmit to the clerk of the court to which the proceeding is transferred a certified copy of the order together with all papers in the proceeding on file in his office; and thereafter the court to which the proceeding is transferred shall exercise the same jurisdiction over the ward or his estate as if it had original jurisdiction.

Hearing, transmission of papers

1605. The clerk of the court to which the proceeding is removed shall be entitled to receive a fee of six dollars on filing the papers transmitted to him, in addition to the expense of such transmission, payable on receipt of the papers by him.

Fee for transmission

1606. When not otherwise specially prescribed in this division, practice and procedure and the making and entry of

Division III of code governs practice, etc

orders under this division shall be governed by the provisions of division III of this code, so far as they are applicable.

Guardian
ad litem

1607. The provisions of this division do not limit the power of any court to appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interests of any minor or insane or incompetent person in an action or proceeding pending therein.

CHAPTER XIV—APPEALS.

Appealable orders.

1630. An appeal may be taken to the supreme court from an order granting or revoking letters of guardianship; settling an account of a guardian; or refusing to make any order heretofore mentioned in this section.

Effect of appeal

1631. An appeal from an order appointing a guardian for an insane or incompetent person shall stay the power of the guardian, except that, for the purpose of preventing injury or loss to person or property, the court making the appointment may direct the exercise of the powers of the guardian, from time to time, as though no appeal were pending, and all acts of the guardian pursuant to such directions shall be valid, irrespective of the result of the appeal.

Real property actions

Where the real property is situated partly within and partly without a city in which there is established a municipal court, the plaintiff may elect whether to sue in the municipal court or the appropriate justice's court, or in the superior court, and the court so selected is the proper court for the trial of such action; provided, that all such action must be tried in a court in which such action is cognizable, established in the county in which such real property or some part thereof is situated.

Actions for recovery of a penalty for forfeiture

2. For the recovery of the penalty or forfeiture imposed by the statute; to the municipal court or justice's court, if the action be cognizable therein, established in the city or township, respectively, where the cause of action, or some part thereof, arose; provided, said cause, or some part thereof, arose within the county in which the municipal court, in which such action is commenced, is situated; otherwise, to the court in which said action is cognizable, situated in the county where said cause of action arose; and provided, that when such penalty or forfeiture is imposed for an offense, committed on a lake, river or other stream of water, situated partly within and partly without the city in which there is established a municipal court, the plaintiff may elect whether to sue in the municipal court of such city, or in the appropriate justice's or superior court, and the court so selected is the proper court for the trial of such action.

lic officer

3. Against a public officer, or person especially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue of his office; or against a person who, by his command or in his aid, does anything touching the duties of such officer; to the municipal or justice's court, if the action be cognizable therein, established in the city or township, respectively, where the cause, or some part thereof, arose; provided, said cause, or some part thereof, arose within the county in which the municipal court, in which such action is commenced, is situated; otherwise, to the court in which such action is cognizable, situated in the county where the cause of action arose.

If any person is improperly joined as a defendant, or has been made a defendant solely for the purpose of having the action tried in the municipal court established in the city where he resides, his residence must not be considered in determining the demand for change of place of trial of the action.

Improper defendant

If none of the defendants reside in the state, or, if residing in the state and the place in which they reside is unknown to the plaintiff, the plaintiff may elect to sue in any municipal court, and the court so selected is the proper court for the trial thereof.

The said board shall have the right to require such bonds as it may deem best from the successful bidder, to insure the faithful performance of the contract, and shall also have the right to reject any and all bids not suitable to the best interest of the district. Contract
actions

SECTION 1. Section 585 of the Code of Civil Procedure is hereby amended to read as follows:

585. Judgment may be had, if the defendant fails to answer the complaint, as follows:

1. In an action arising upon contract for the recovery of money or damages only, if the defendant has or if more than one defendant if any of said defendants have been personally served and no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons, or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk, upon application of the plaintiff, must enter the default of the defendant or defendants, so served and immediately thereafter enter judgment for the amount demanded in the complaint, including the costs, against said defendant, or defendants, or against one or more of said defendants, in the cases provided for in section 414.

Other
actions.

2. In other actions, if the defendant has been personally served and no answer has been filed with the clerk of the court within the time specified in the summons, or such further time as may have been granted, the clerk must enter the default of the defendant; and thereafter the plaintiff may apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint. If the taking of an account, or the proof of any fact, is necessary to enable the court to give judgment, or to carry the judgment into effect, the court may take the account or hear the proof, or may, in its discretion, order a reference for that purpose. And where the action is for the recovery of damages, in whole or in part, the court may order the damages to be assessed by a jury; or if, to determine the amount of damages, the examination of a long account is involved, by a reference as above provided.

3. In all actions where the service of the summons was by publication, the plaintiff, upon the expiration of the time for answering, may, upon proof of the publication, and that no answer has been filed, apply for judgment; and the court must thereupon require proof to be made of the allegations of the complaint; and if the defendant is not a resident of the state, must require the plaintiff, or his agent, to be examined, on oath, respecting any payments that have been made to the plaintiff, or to anyone for his use, on account of any demand mentioned in the complaint, and may render judgment for the amount which he is entitled to recover; provided, that, in all cases affecting the title to or possession of real property, where the service of the summons was by publication and the defendant has failed to answer, no judgment shall be rendered upon proof of mere occupancy, unless such occupancy shall have continued for the time and shall have been of the character necessary to confer title by prescription, and in all cases where the plaintiff bases his claim upon a paper title, the court shall require evidence establishing plaintiff's equitable right to judgment before rendering such judgment; provided, further, however, that in actions involving merely the possession of real property where the complaint is verified and shows by proper allegations that no party to the action claims title to the real property involved, either by prescription, accession, transfer, will or succession but only the possession thereof, the court may render judgment upon proof of occupancy by plaintiff and ouster by defendant.

Said improvement district assessment, and each installment thereof, shall be and remain a lien on said lands in the same manner as and be a part of the annual assessment of said irrigation district. At any time before the warrants provided for in section 7 of this act have been issued, the amount of any such assessment, exclusive of interest and the ten per cent added for anticipated delinquencies, may be paid in cash and such land thereafter not be subject to the annual assessments levied thereon for the purposes of the said improvement or acquisition; provided, however, that such lands shall be and remain liable for any assessments levied thereon for maintenance and operation and for any supplementary or additional assessments levied thereon under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 7. Said irrigation district shall have power to issue warrants signed by the president and secretary of the board of directors of said irrigation district, in face amount not exceeding in the aggregate the cost of said improvement and/or acquisition, exclusive of interest and the ten per cent added for anticipated delinquencies, which warrants shall be made payable in amounts and at the times corresponding substantially to the amounts and times of payments of the installments of said improvement district assessment, and shall bear interest at such rate of interest as may have been fixed on the

If the proceeds from said assessment so levied shall exceed the final amount necessary for such purposes, said lands so paying said assessment shall be entitled to a credit in said excess amount upon the succeeding district annual assessment or assessments levied upon such land.

At any time prior to the incurring of any indebtedness or upon the full payment of all indebtedness of such improvement district, a petition signed and acknowledged by not less than the number of the holders of title, or evidence of title to the tracts of land constituting such improvement district required to organize such improvement district, may be filed with the board of directors of such irrigation district requesting that such improvement district be dissolved.
