

ENTERTAIN ELDERS

MR. AND MRS. M. P. HARRISON
HOST AND HOSTESS AT DE-LIGHTFUL AFFAIR

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Harrison were the hosts at a very delightful affair at their home, 245 South Kenwood street, on Friday evening, when they entertained the elders of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Harrison is an elder, and their wives.

Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, the pastor and wife, were also honored guests. The evening was spent most pleasantly by the guests who have been so closely associated in the affairs of the First Presbyterian church.

A delightful musical program was given during the evening. Mrs. Sam Neighbors accompanied by Miss Mary Wilkins, sang Scotch ballads in a very pleasing manner and Miss Mildred McKee, who interprets Riley most beautifully, read several selections.

Miss Inez Harrison, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Howard Lennox at Van Nuys, arrived most opportunely during the evening with Mr. and Mrs. James A. Newton.

At the close of the program Rev. W. E. Edmonds spoke a few words appropriate to the occasion emphasizing the good that will come to all through the great Sunday campaign. The grand old hymn "How Firm a Foundation" was sung by all.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

The guests invited to enjoy the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison were, Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Edmonds, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. John Camphouse, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Clendenin, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hennon, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. G. Lemon, Mr. and Mrs. John Horsch, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Isitt, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Widney, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Newton, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Schumaker, Mr. and Mrs. David Black, Mrs. Allen, who is the house guest of Mrs. A. E. Hennon.

MARSHALLTOWN GUESTS

J. P. Dotson, with his wife and two sons, late of Fargo, N. Dakota, made a flying visit yesterday afternoon at the home of his old friend, R. A. Salisbury, the well-known real estate man, at 1106 N. Central avenue. Dr. Dotson was formerly manager of the "Daily Times-Republican," Marshalltown, Iowa, and was one of the most enterprising newspaper men in that part of the country.

Mr. Dotson, with his family, left Iowa in his Twin-six Packard, intending to make the entire journey by auto. But the roads between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles were so bad, he abandoned this idea, shipped his Packard, and came on by rail. The Dotsons intend to make Southern California their future home, and at present they are staying at Pasadena.

WANTS TO SHOOT KAISER

Walter B. Hawkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hawkins, until recently of Glendale, writes from San Antonio, Texas, that he is stationed at Kelly Aviation Field near San Antonio. He is detailed with the Engineering and Reconstruction department and is doing actual work on a number of different makes of planes. The department in which he is working completely rebuilds and overhauls all wrecked or condemned planes. Walter says he is certain his squadron will be in France before winter and adds, "We can't go too soon to suit me and I hope we shoot the Kaiser." He states that the officers' reserve is open at present to all who can pass the examinations and he is sure he can qualify.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS GOOD

Bank deposits in Glendale are reported to be excellent, while desirable real estate loans are a little quiet. This is accounted for largely from the fact that this is the quiet time of the year, and when the vacationists have returned from the beaches and the mountains, a marked change for the better is confidently looked for. The demand in real estate, either for speculation or for income, follows the usual August course, and this too will take on new life with the advent of the Fall. The business situation generally in Glendale is reported to be splendid, and to give ample warrant for its enterprise, to say nothing of the projects of the future that for the time being only are held in abeyance.

Life is what we make it—a garden or a desert.

EXEMPTION BOARD

FIFTEEN OF THE EIGHTY MEN EXAMINED FRIDAY DO NOT ASK FOR EXEMPTION

The exemption board of the 7th exemption district had a busy day of it yesterday, in the Chamber of Commerce building, passing on the eighty young men who came before it for exemption for the draft. More than that number had been called, but it was believed that their failure to appear was due chiefly to causes which can be easily explained. Fifteen of the eighty passed with flying colors and were accepted; only 19 were rejected, but 40 claimed exemption or discharge from the selective draft; 3 had their cases deferred, and 3 were aliens, who cannot be drafted.

Some who at first claimed exemption, were disposed to give the matter further consideration, in the hope of yet being able to see their way, and these, be it said, without exception, splendid examples of physical manhood. The young men, generally, were a fine lot of fellows, who are taking the draft seriously, from a patriotic standpoint, and most of them who claimed exemption, did so because of numerous obligations laid upon them at home.

While the examination did not result as favorably as the board had expected, it was believed to average well with results in many other places, and to show an improvement over those of many others.

Another 90 have been called up for today, and the board will complete its labors for the present this afternoon.

At this morning's session of the exemption board of District No. 7, in the Chamber of Commerce building, thirty-six of the 90 called appeared for examination up until 12 M. Of that number seven were accepted. Seventeen were passed as fit but filed claims, and 12 were rejected.

This was not considered a very favorable showing, but among those who filed claims were several Canadians who said they did not wish to evade service, but that they preferred to join the Canadian contingent.

Following is the list of those who were passed this morning, and a star appears opposite the name of each of those who did not file a claim:

SUFFRAGETTES SENT TO JAIL

SIX WOMEN ARRESTED YESTERDAY FOR DISREGARDING ORDERS OF POLICE REFUSE TO PAY FINES

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, August 18.—Six suffrage pickets arrested in front of the white house yesterday on a charge of obstructing traffic refused to pay their fines of $10 each this morning and were sentenced to 30 days in jail. The suffrage demonstrations in Washington the past three days have aroused such storms of protests that the police notified the women that no further picketing would be tolerated. Disregarding the warning which was given in person by Chief of Police Pullman, the suffragists took up their positions in front of the white house with banners variously inscribed, yesterday afternoon.

INSURANCE FOR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

ADMINISTRATION'S SYSTEM OF COMPENSATION AND RE-LIEF OF SOLDIERS AND SAILORS READY FOR CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, August 18.—Uncle Sam's compensation, relief and insurance system for soldiers and sailors in the war against Germany was practically ready for submission to congress today. This legislation will be passed by the present session of congress. It does away with the old Civil War pension system altogether. It will be administered by the United States Treasury Department. It provides:

For the support of dependents of soldiers and sailors by an allotment from the men's pay and an allowance from the government. That officers and men be indemnified against death, total or partial disability. That a government system of rehabilitation and re-education of disabled men be inaugurated, and:

That the government issue insurance up to $10,000 on the life of every soldier or sailor applying for it and paying the peace time premium thereon. This is the first time in history the United States has employed any forehanded method of caring for its fighting men about to go to war. The government feels its duty to provide ample protection for enlisted men and their dependents, it was pointed out today, because the men are taken by draft. Payment on account of soldiers or sailors killed in action will be based on the number of dependents he leaves.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS

BUT THE CHARMINGEST IS THE UKULELE BANJO AND THE COLUMBIA GRAFONOLA

The ukulele is a newcomer in the American field and bids fair to hold the place it is rapidly acquiring among the more popular musical instruments. It is simple, tuneful and easily learned, and has the punch for an evening's enjoyment.

But better still than the ukulele, is the ukulele banjo, practically two instruments in one. It combines the banjo tone with the simplicity of the ukulele; it is also easy to master, and is the solo instrument for parties and picnics.

All music is more or less a thing of the feelings, but some music gets there quicker and with greater emotional effect. Battles have been fought and won by means of music—and so have sweethearts. It is all a matter of how you play on the heart-strings. Even sinners have been made saints by music—at least for the time being; and old folks are young again if they listen to the right kind of musical appeal. Music can make a hero for a minute; but better be that than never a hero at all, and who can tell what may not be accomplished in a minute—when you get terribly busy and don't care whether it kills you or not?

If you want to raise an army—give 'em music; if you want to see the slacker go marching on, just start the musical thing a-go-in—that is, begin the ukulele banjo, and give him a few. Nothing like it for getting things done, and if you've any ear for music at all, you'll call every time for the ukulele banjo—or you'll get one yourself.

Where do they sell 'em? Right in town, at the Glendale Music Company's store. But that isn't news is it? The new instrument is getting to be the craze, and will be soon, and it shouldn't be news in Glendale where you can buy a ukulele banjo. They've been selling a lot of them, but they have secured a large shipment, and maybe they'll be able to meet the demand. But don't get it into your head that they are going to last. They are not. They also are marching on, and if you're a slacker in making up your mind, you might be sorry; you might lose the best girl you ever knew, and all because she couldn't see her would-be hero in the proper light. Things like that have happened—and it may be your turn next, who knows—if you're lazy, and don't know how to seize the secret of conquest and happiness ever after?

They used to say that a stitch in time saves nine, but why they made it only nine was because there were (Continued on Page 4)

STATE NEWS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 18.—State senators and assemblymen will serve the major part of their terms of office before they go to the legislature if an amendment to the constitution being framed by Assemblyman Hugh J. Baldwin of San Diego for submission to the next legislature, is adopted. As it now is, senators and assemblymen are elected in November for a two year or four year term and take their seats in the legislature in January of the ensuing year. "This gives a member of the legislature, following his election only two months in which to prepare himself for such an important service to the people," says Baldwin. "After two months or so in the legislature, he is through his work with the major part of his term still ahead of him, or going to waste. He can only look back and regret the mistakes he may have made in not being ready for service. "If the senators and assemblymen were elected a year before the legislature convened they would have the major part of their term to use in properly preparing themselves to make the laws of the state.

Fifteen thousand cases of measles have been reported in California already this year, according to Guy P. Jones, morbidity statistician of the state board of health, making 1917 a banner year for this disease. Although the year is only a little more than half gone, Jones says that this year's measles crop is a bumper one. No reason can be given for the immense measles yield, excepting that the disease has been prevalent throughout the United States this year. During the week ending August 11 the number of cases of measles reported to the state board increased from 48 to 100. Typhoid is being reported at the rate of 125 cases a month.

Managers of the Agnews state hospital have requested the state board of control to make a survey of the property lines of the hospital (Continued on Page 3)

BEVERAGES MANUFACTURED IN GLENDALE ARE ABSO-LUTELY PURE

When it was written that cleanliness is next to godliness, it was with a long look ahead to the time when the Sierra Club Beverages would be manufactured. It may not be that they are godly but after you have taken a pull at one of them you are about ready to take your affidavit that it is. Even the very air they use is given a bath until you would not know it as air at all—if you could see it.

They make only four beverages. Lemon Sour, Sarsaparilla, Root Beer and Ginger Ale. They are the Big Four in the beverage line and you could give any of them to the baby. There have been all kinds of beverages on the market and most of them have been something else, but the Sierra Club Beverages are beverages pure and simple. They are sweetened by what is known as confectioner's sugar, a sugar which is the best cane sugar. The extracts used are the true fruits of fruit.

Polar Distilled Water is the basis of their manufacture. It is the purest there is or 100 per cent pure. The process is simple enough. The water is turned into steam and then returned to water, which has the effect of destroying all mineral and vegetable matter, germs, etc.

It is in the distillation that the air is washed and cleaned and then put back into the water making an aerated water, tasting sweet and pure as any spring water, plus absolute purity. The water is pumped into a carborator where pure carbonic acid gas is equalized with water and the resultant is a sparkling beverage. The water goes from the carborator to an automatic bottling machine, where the true fruit flavors and water are automatically filled and crowned and the flavors themselves are never once handled by the operator. This is the finished product, and it may be mentioned that the automatic crowner fills a case of twenty-four bottles in one minute. Labelling is done at the rate of a case of twenty-four bottles in 36 seconds. The proprietors are Francis J. W. Henry and Sidney W. Browne.

MACKENZIE RETURNS

John Mackenzie, the well-known camera man, who lived for years in Glendale and left for Great Britain on June 16 last year to introduce the movie business in England and Scotland, on American lines, has sailed to return to Glendale. When Mr. Mackenzie started for Europe, it was not his intention to remain there permanently, and his family has continued to reside in Glendale. It was his purpose, however, to make quite a stay, and the success he met with across the pond as manager and promoter of the movies, would have justified his remaining there indefinitely, so far as business interests were concerned; but the call of Southern California, and especially of Glendale was too strong, and he has succumbed to the inevitable. Mrs. Mackenzie yesterday received a cable from her husband stating that he was sailing at once from Liverpool, and in three weeks he is expected to arrive in Glendale.

Mr. Mackenzie was among the first in the movie enterprise in England, and upon his return to Glendale, he will embark upon the same business, and it is said that he will go into it somewhat extensively.

To the many friends he has here, Mr. Mackenzie's return will be a welcome surprise, and the one or two who happen to be in the know, are already planning something of a reception.

THE MAN BEHIND THE GUN

Frank R. Liddell, Jr., 234 North Kenwood street, has enlisted in Battery F, and left Saturday for Arcadia. Mr. Liddell is the composer of the popular song "The Man Behind the Gun," which has been sung several times recently at Palace Grand and is evidently putting into practice the sentiments expressed in his song.

CHARITY

The world as a whole does not like the I. W. W. The world as a whole has little consideration for him.

The world as a whole offers him no sympathy.

People who condemn the I. W. W. because he does not believe in law and order clap their hands in joy when they see others who do not believe in law and order murder an I. W. W.

And sometimes the writer wonders if after all we as well as the I. W. W. are not entitled to criticism.

Why is an I. W. W.?

Did you ever ask yourself that question?

Did you ever ask yourself why one man goes up in the world and the other goes down?

Did you ever ask yourself why you succeed and others fail?

Did it ever bring a thought to your mind that whatever you turn your hand to brings forth profit while that to which others turn their hand brings forth failure?

Perhaps some of you have pondered over these things.

But some more of you have not.

Some of you hold the idea that all could be in your position if they would just do as you do, but you never stop to question why all do not do as you do.

Some of you forget that for much of the success you have attained you are indebted to the parents who gave you birth and who in giving you birth gave you character and mental ability with which others have not been blessed.

Some of you forget that the surroundings in which you have been placed by your considerate parents have contributed in no small measure to your development of mind and character.

Some of you forget that the opportunities that have been yours have been made possible for you by parents, relatives or friends.

As you think of your own success some of you swell up with pride and declare that you are "self-made."

You ignore your own mother and the wonderful part she has played in your life, molding character, building health and cultivating the mind.

You ignore your own father and the importance of his life to yours, the examples he has set, the long hours he has toiled that you might have those things necessary for your development, and the care he has exercised in making certain that opportunities were yours.

And because you do these things you forget that there are others who have not had such a father and a mother, others who have not had such surroundings, others who have not had such opportunities.

Stop for a moment and honestly question yourself.

Do you believe that there is an I. W. W. who was brought into this world by parents such as you have, by parents who have imparted strength of character and mind and body?

Do you believe that there is an I. W. W. who was surrounded as you were surrounded by the things with which a loving, sacrificing mother would surround her dear one?

Do you believe that there is an I. W. W. who had a father such as you had, a father of good judgment, of great love and of earnest solicitude for your future?

If you do not believe these things then possibly you are one of those who entertain a little consideration and a little sympathy for the I. W. W.

Did you ever look into the life of an I. W. W.?

Did you ever consider his parentage, the circumstances under which he was brought into the world and the surroundings in which he was placed during the period of his life when character is formed, when mind and ambition are developed, when purpose in life is established?

You know, of course, that no man or woman can choose his parentage.

You know that none of us are consulted about the circumstances of our entrance upon this life.

Do you believe, then, that you should condemn the man or sympathize with the man who is the product of drunken parents, or the product of parents from whose life has been ground every spark of beauty and worthy thought?

Do you think you should condemn the man or sympathize with the man whose home life has been such that he has been deprived of the earnest, loving, constant attention of parents of good judgment, of good thoughts and of noble ambitions?

Do you think you should condemn the man or sympathize with the man whose surroundings and early teachings have been such as could only pull him down and never lift him up?

Do you think you should condemn the man or sympathize with the man whose boyhood life has known only toil and drudgery, without sunshine and without love?

The I. W. W. believes that he has been dealt with harshly by society.

Do you think if your parents had been drunkards or unhealthy or ground in the dust of drudgery that you would look very kindly upon the society which permitted you to be brought into the world under such conditions?

Do you think if you had been forced into the factory when you were first able to toddle, if you had known no school, if your ambition were crushed and your mind dwarfed by conditions which society has permitted, that you would feel very kindly toward that society?

The I. W. W. believes that he is living in a life in which there is a constant struggle between the capitalistic class and the class to which he belongs with the great middle class looking on apparently unconcerned.

Do you think if your mind were dwarfed, your conception narrowed, your life robbed of its beauty and its hope, your labors devoted toward the making of rich men richer, your efforts to reach better conditions battered down by the capitalistic class, that your belief would be any different than the I. W. W.'s?

The I. W. W. believes that here is no justice in our courts, no mercy in our law?

If you had seen, as the writer has seen, in this day a hundred violators of our laws go free because they had political pull while ten violators in the I. W. W. class pay the penalty because they have no pull, would you or would you not believe there is mercy in our law and justice in our courts?

The I. W. W. believes that the only method in which he will ever obtain justice for himself is through the strength of his own people.

If you had seen one of your own people murdered by those who insist that you shall recognize the law, and the murderers unpunished, would you or would you not believe that you would ever obtain justice until the force of your own numbers and your own kind had brought it to you?

These thoughts are respectfully put up to you who just recently applauded the murderers who took the life of the I. W. W. Little, to those of you who approved with joy the "law and order" officials who, without recognition of law or of courts, drove the I. W. W.'s from Bisbee, drove them from their homes, their wives and their children.

Do you think by such approval you are making the I. W. W. less bitter toward society?

Do you think that by persecution you are broadening his mind? Do you think by violating the law you are convincing him that he should not violate it?

Do you think that a little larger measure of charity should be forthcoming from you than from the I. W. W.?

Let's be honest with ourselves.—Hollywood Citizen.

A STRANGE BELIEF ABOUT FOREST FIRES

There is an odd belief widespread through the mountainous regions of California in the benefit and value of forest fires, according to the Forest Service. The essence of this belief, known as "light burning," is that a fire spreading along the ground in the forest does no damage to the timber, but removes the litter and underbrush which, if allowed to accumulate, becomes fuel for a fire that in time will consume the mature timber. Therefore, in the opinions of those holding this theory, occasional fires in a forest are beneficial and necessary. The Indians and early settlers, it is said, always "light burned" the forests in order to make feed for the deer and the cattle and to clear the brush out of the way, and these fires did the forest no harm, but, on the other hand, did a great deal of good.

This theory, declare the experts of the Forest Service, although a somewhat plausible one on its face, is entirely fallacious, and light burning, if practiced, would do an immense harm to the forests of California and affect adversely the welfare of the entire State. The damage done to the young growth by a "light fire" is severe. Fifty per cent. of the trees between ten and fifteen feet high are usually killed by a fire running through the forest. Nor is any permanent protection given the forests by the removal of the litter on the ground by fire, for within a few months it accumulates thicker than ever from the immense amount of foliage and young stuff killed but not consumed by the light fire. This material begins to fall soon after the light fire, and in a year or two is often more plentiful than ever before.

A few years ago the Forest Service experimented with "light burning" on an eighty-acre tract in Shasta County near Castle Rock. The tract, which had not been touched by fire for fourteen years, consisted of dense thickets of young trees, mature timber, patches of brush and grass. Fire was allowed to run uncontrolled over it. Part of the litter was consumed and much brush was killed but not burned. Sixty per cent. of the young trees between ten and fifteen feet high were killed. Six months later the litter on the ground was just as plentiful as it had been at the time of the fire. Two and a half years after the experiment, the needles and leaves on the ground were fifty per cent. more than at the time of the burn. It was estimated that the risk of fire in this tract had been increased at least fifty per cent. in less than three years.

This erroneous "light burning" theory has not been entirely confined to mountaineers. A year or two ago, the officials of a Sierra power company, it is said, thinking to decrease the fire hazard along the right of way of a large lumber flume, caused to be set controlled fires. A year or two later an accidental fire spread to this right of way, and so great was the accumulation of needles and debris, the fruit of the light burn, that this accidental fire could not be controlled. It wiped out several hundred feet of flume, causing a great loss to the company.

It would have been much better for the forests of California, declare the forest experts, if the Indians and early settlers had not set the fires they are credited with setting. As a result of fire, there is not a forest in California that contains as many mature trees as the ground is capable of supporting. Of the 1,300,000 acres of lands covered with brush in the National Forests of California, a million acres at one time supported dense stands of mature timber. There is evidence at hand that 25 billion feet of mature timber have been destroyed by fire in California, enough to run all the mills of the State for 25 years. There is one region in the Squaw Creek country in Shasta County of 150,000 acres that in the sixties was heavily forested. To-day it is chiefly a chaparral desert, due to a fire in the seventies. Another fire in this same region on the southeast slope of Mt. Shasta near McCloud destroyed 10,000 acres of yellow pine and sugar pine in the seventies. The timber has never returned. Chaparral has taken its place. Undoubtedly, declare the Forest officers, this belief in the value of light burning has been responsible for a loss of millions of dollars to California.

Shakespeare says: "Be just and fear not; let all the ends thou aimest at be the country's thy God's and truth's."

THE PROFESSOR WORRIED

The absent minded professor from the university town was in Indianapolis attending a convention. While in the city he took a tour of the larger department stores. In one of them he was much perplexed.

He read the sign over the door of the elevator:

"This car express to fifth and sixth floors. Up only."

Absently he read the sign again. Then the car door opened.

"I would like to know," he asked the elevator boy, "if this elevator goes only up, how on earth did you get down here?"

The elevator boy grinned, frowned, scrutinized the man closely and then said in a dignified voice, "Oh, I just came down."—Indianapolis News.

TRUE ECONOMY

There are great joys in practicing true economy in the right spirit. True economy, you see, is not abstinence from necessary things—not at all. The joys of true economy are for those who make the most of what they have; who, finding what may be theirs, proceed to the extraction of the greatest benefit from what is within reach.—Exchange.

FACING THE CAMERA

Don't Dress Up and Don't Pose When Having a Picture Taken

"There are many things I would like to say to the woman who intends having her picture taken," said a famous photographer the other day.

"Many women come to me and say 'Of course you prefer taking actresses. They must have many advantages over those women who never have time but to give an occasional glance in their mirrors.' This is entirely a mistake. The conscious pose never makes a satisfactory portrait. I would say emphatically to the woman who goes to have her photograph made not to rehearse her pose and facial expression beforehand.

"I always find it difficult to impress on the woman coming to my studio that clothes and jewels are of absolutely no account in a photograph. If a woman comes to be photographed in the clothes she is used to wearing she will feel at ease and therefore look her best.

"One of the curses of our present day civilization is the ever changing question of fashion. How much more civilized were the Japanese, who realized that the kimono was perhaps the most perfect dress for women at all times—who only varied it with different brocades and girdles. The photograph that concerns itself with clothes is soon out of fashion, and no matter how good a likeness of the face has been obtained, the picture is grotesque in a few years because the clothes are passe."—Exchange.

AS HE HEARD IT

Little Raymond returned home from Sunday School in a very joyous mood.

"Oh, mother," he exclaimed, as he entered the house, "the superintendent said something in his prayer this morning!"

"Isn't that lovely? What did he say, pet?" questioned his mother.

"He said, 'Oh, Lord, we thank thee for food and Raymond.'"—Harper's Magazine.

The survey is asked to determine whether the Western Grain and Sugar Products Company's buildings project onto the state property. The survey will be authorized.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—"He's a spy." That's the latest in verbal "spite fences" according to Judge T. F. Graham, chairman of the county defense council. Letters to Judge Graham and other officials containing charges that somebody else is in the Kaiser's pay, are in almost every mail and are causing no end of trouble to the officials. In most cases the letters are unsigned, but always find ink and paper enough handy to give the full history of the person on whom they wish to inform. Some 300 such letters have been turned over to the Department of Justice officials for investigation. "In almost every case," declared Judge Graham, "the letters have been found to be the work of either a crank or to have been inspired by spite. Evidently the writers are attempting to 'get back' at the persons mentioned for some fancied wrongs." While deploring such letters when written for "cussedness," officials reiterate that they welcome information given in a sincere spirit.

A convention to which the delegates all are Chinese and yet English comes the nearest to being the language which all can understand, is in session this week at Berkeley. It is the annual meeting of the Western Section of the Chinese Students Alliance of America and includes Chinese from all parts of the west. But when it comes to a common tongue—there is the sticker. Some speak Mandarin; others Cantonese; and there are other dialects of the Orient represented. Many speak fluent English and they are fortunate, for English is the nearest to a common tongue of all the languages represented.

"—And he said he owed his Elks dues." The words dropped from the lips of a witness in Judge Fitzpatrick's court today. Right there proceedings stopped. Judge Fitzpatrick jumped from his seat and hurriedly fumbled through his pockets. At last he produced a crumpled envelope. "Joe, will you please take that down and mail it right away," he whispered to his clerk, Joe McCarty. "It's my Elks club dues and they should have been mailed two weeks ago." The judge resumed the bench and the trial proceeded.

BERKELEY, Aug. 18.—William H. Joyce, former secretary of the federal farm loan bank here today became president of the institution. He succeeded Burrell G. White, whose resignation was accepted the first of the week by the farm loan bureau at Washington. At the same time A. C. Kuhn of San Jose became vice president; A. W. Hendrick of Nevada, secretary; William Ellis of Ogden, treasurer; and John Guill, Jr., of Chico, took a seat on the board of directors.

SANTA ROSA, Aug. 18.—A quantity of 1916 hops was sold to Walter M. Richardson by E. Pitzen this week for 20 cents a pound, the record price so far for last season's crop. Some are holding for an even better figure.

EUREKA, Aug. 18.—Approximately 50 forest fires have been set in eastern and northern Humboldt county during the last three weeks by lightning in the high mountains. The result is that the government forest rangers are working almost continuously fighting fire, some 50 extra fire fighters are at work and there is room for more, while forest clerks have been brought from San Francisco to help in organizing the campaign against the flames. The damage is heavy.

CONSERVE IN TRAVEL

Americans are the greatest "gadgers" in the world. They think less of hopping on a train for a 1000-mile trip than the average European thinks of going twenty.

Some of our railroads have announced that they are cutting down the number of passenger trains, reducing the number of chair cars, dining cars and the various other special comforts to which the public has been accustomed. This is done not as a matter of economy so much as to save motive power and fuel for the big work of hauling freight and the war waging departments of the government need.

Now there are a lot of tourists who can't leave home without packing along with them countless trunks, hat boxes, golf bags and other bits of "impediments." And furthermore, there are many of us who don't know where we are going when we start. We think we will go one place, when just the kind of society, or bathing, or golf, or tennis we are looking for appears in an entirely different direction. And we are drawn here and there before we finally settle down for a brief few weeks.

If we determine where we are going before we start, and if we reduce to the minimum the pieces of luggage we burden the railroads with, we would help the railroads materially. This doesn't seem much to do, and it isn't much. But the accumulations of thousands of such cases will help the carriers tremendously in their task of transporting a nation and a nation's supplies.—Fresno Herald.

MARVELOUS!

The results of policies in our company are so fine that it is frequently hard for me to get people to believe them.

In most cases we try to sell long Endowments, but even ordinary life policies in "the Provident" have wonderful histories. Here is a sample:—

Policy No. 95—Amount $5,000. Issued 1866 at age 28, now 79

52 Premiums $107.50—$5,590.00
 50 Dividends —$2,712.78
 Net Cost . . . $2877.22

In 1917, the dividend is $104.10, making the net cost $3.40, or 68 cents a thousand. If the insured lives a year or two longer the dividend will exceed the premium.

Wouldn't you like to insure in such a company as this? Better talk to me about it.

MUSIC HATH CHARMS

no ukulele banjos to soothe the savage breast. We have 'em now, though, and now's the time to make the stitch. You know where the store is, don't you—at 1112 Broadway? Call and see 'em. Just wander in, accidental-like, and look around—and if you're wise, and regard your future—and your present—you'll wander out, the richer by a ukulele banjo. And, say—you can buy it cheaper than in Los Angeles!

Its worth while taking a look at the place anyway, at their window display, for example, with the orange colored leas garlanded about the instruments, as though to suggest the perfect harmony where music dwells. It might interest you to take a look at their talking machines. Funny things these talking machines—funnier'n a box o' monkeys. Ever hear a machine talk? One o' these days, we'll have machines to put us to bed, and machines to do our housework, an' machines to pay our bills—some of us have wheels in our head now, and little good they do us—and all we'll have to do will be to sit and play a ukulele banjo. You can see the talking machine in the window, in its fine empty-ump cabinet; but imagine the enjoyment for yourself and your friends, if you had one at home.

And the beauty about a talking machine is—you can close it up any time you want to, and that's more than you can do with some folk—meaning nothing personal, of course.

Ever hear a Grafonola—a Columbia Grafonola? No? How you have been denied the pleasures of this world. You want to hear the Columbia. Somebody has said, see Paris and die. But better than that—hear the Columbia Grafonola and live! You know Jewel Carmen, the famous movie actress? Well, you've heard of her, and seen her on the screen? She is the happy possessor of a Columbia Grafonola, selected at 1112 W. Broadway, and you must have noticed the difference it has made in her acting. Gives you inspiration? Well, rather. Makes all the difference between mediocrity and genius. But it's music again. If you were to look into the matter, you would probably find that the movie stars are stars because they each possess a Columbia Grafonola; in some instances at least, it would be difficult to account for them otherwise.

ENGLAND'S FIRST SEA LORD

By Lowell Mellett

They used to say that the fastest thing on the B. & O. was the Royal Blue Limited. They were wrong. The fastest thing on the B. & O. was a young hired hand named Eric Geddes. Naturally it wasn't known then but the appointment of Vice-Admiral Sir Eric Geddes—the same young hired hand and not a whole lot older—to be ruler of the Navy that rules the Wave ought to prove it.

If the new First Lord of the British Admiralty had a middle name it would be Speed. If he accomplishes the same results in the Admiralty that he has accomplished in other branches of the government this much is certain: British naval officers will cease to marvel at the hustle of the American navy; they'll be too busy speeding up their own.

Sir Eric was born in India forty-one years ago. He was educated at Edinburgh Academy and Oxford Military College. When 17 years old he went to America. He worked in southern lumber camps a bit, then for the Carnegie Steel company in Pittsburgh and became a switchman and afterwards a station agent on the B. & O. in West Virginia. Four years

In India he entered the service of the Rohilkund & Kumaon Railway, building of a railroad through the jungle, a job that made him something of a reputation. Thirteen years ago Sir George Gibbs, general manager of the Northwestern Railway cabled him asking if he was prepared to accept a place on the Northwestern staff.

"Starting Monday," Geddes replied.

In a short time he was appointed general manager. Lord Kitchener saw him in 1915 and enlisted his aid in speeding up munitions. When the Ministry of Munitions was created with Lloyd George in charge he made Geddes Deputy General Director. Early in 1916 he was transferred to the War Office as Director of Military Railways.

Called on to assist in the preparations for the Somme campaign he was transferred, at Sir Douglas Haig's request, to France as a member of the Commander-in-Chief's staff, with the title of Director General of Transportation and the rank of Major-General.

Lord Peel raised the question of the propriety of replacing a military officer with a civilian.

"But," said Lord Derby, "the civilian in this case is Sir Eric Geddes." That settled it.

In May of this year it was decided his energy was needed in the Admiralty. The post of Controller was created, a little job that called for meeting the combined requirements of the Admiralty, the War Office, the Ministry of Shipping and other government departments with respect to design, construction, alterations and repairs of warships and other vessels of all classes and the requirements of the Admiralty with respect to armaments and munitions. So he ceased to be a Major-General and became a Vice-Admiral.

But Lloyd George came to the conclusion that Sir Eric didn't have enough to do and now has made him First Lord and the real ruler of the Queen's navy.

Sunday is called the Lord's Day, but a "look-in" of about twenty minutes is all that He gets from a great many.

A LOT TO KNOW

When Disraeli was prime minister of England a good looking young man applied to him for a government position. "I know, sir," said the applicant wistfully, "how little I know." "Dear me," said Disraeli, "as much as that? I haven't got half that distance yet."

In spring even an old man's fancy sometimes lightly turns to poetry (is it?)

I miss her smile.
The morning dawns, and still it is not day,
The golden sun doth lack its vital ray.
I miss her smile.

The first of April (All Fools' Day) is the most popular name-day in all the calendar.
