FINAL TRIBUTES FOR MRS. TOWER

Friends From Every Section Of City's Life Will Attend Funeral

One of the most impressive tributes ever paid to a Glendale citizen will be the funeral at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning of Mrs. A. W. Tower. The services are to be held in the auditorium of the First Methodist church and the interment will take place in Forest Lawn Memorial park. Mrs. Tower during her residence in Glendale had been a prominent and active member of the First Methodist church, and it is most fitting that the final tribute be paid to her there, and that Dr. B. D. Snudden of Pasadena, former pastor of the Glendale church, officiate, assisted by Dr. H. I. Rasmus, Sr., the present pastor.

Organizations Attend In attendance at the service will be representatives of all organizations to which the deceased belonged. Special sections are to be reserved for members of the Tuesday Afternoon club, the College Women's club, the P. E. O., Eastern Star, First Methodist church and members of the Alpha Phi sorority. This large company will be augmented by hosts of other friends. In Forest Lawn Memorial park the services will be in charge of the Glen Elysie chapter, Eastern Star. Mrs. Tower was a past matron, and the staff of lodge members officiating at her funeral will be past matrons of the lodge. The Jewel City Undertaking company is in charge of arrangements for the services at the church and at Forest Lawn.

Plans Drive Against Delinquent Taxpayers

An intensive drive, which will extend through June, and which is directed at delinquent special taxpayers, was inaugurated yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Rex Goodcell. The entire field force is being used in the campaign. With the opening of the summer season, many operators of beach concessions, summer resorts, public exhibitions and automobiles for hire have failed to register and pay the special tax to which they are liable. Collector Goodcell declares that his policy is to round up all these delinquents before July 1, which is the beginning of the new fiscal year, in order that the short time penalty only will be imposed and the special taxpayer enabled to begin the new fiscal year by paying his current taxes. Delinquents who fail to secure their special tax stamps before August 1 will be subject to both short time and long time penalties. Collector Goodcell urges special taxpayers who are in doubt as to their liability to special taxes to consult the Revenue Bureau.

Two thousand distraint warrants for the collection of delinquent taxes of all classes have also been placed in the hands of field deputies and are being served.

TICKET CONTAINER Pressing a knob on one side ejects a street car ticket from a pocket receptacle holding a number of them.

Buggy Riding Lost Art In Glendale; No Chance Now To Trade Kingdom For Horse

By GIL A. COWAN

WHAT if you wanted to hire a horse and buggy in Glendale nowadays? You might be able to borrow one, folks, but you would have to go a long way to find the livery stable with its assortment of hacks, surreys and an occasional hearse. Ten years ago Glendale boasted two stables where you could get anything from a riding horse to a dashing team of dapple grays. Even some of the proprietors of the liveries live on, yet their institutions have passed into history since Henry has been making history in selling flivvers.

As recent as 1915 you could hire quite a respectable-looking carriage to carry you around the city on an afternoon. The horse was guaranteed not to run away, and you could say "gid-dap" and "whoa" to your heart's content. The writer well remembers the dignity with which J. C. Sherer used to drive around town. Why it was nothing at all to see our best citizens enjoying the luxury of a carriage.

Before Taxi Came And in those dark days before a taxi service was established, the publisher of The Glendale Evening News used to summon the Showalter barn, then located at Maryland and Broadway, for a horse and buggy to call for him on a rainy morning.

For the last seven years the site of the Maryland stables, as it was known, has been used for a gas-line filling station, and today a three-story building is being erected on the site. The Glendale stables still remain, a home of horses used in motion pictures. And that is about all they can be "hired out" for.

With the passing of the horse from commercial life, the blacksmith trade is changing. There are only two places in this community of 40,000 people where a smithy may be found, and these individuals advertise welding as their principal trade.

Burbank Horse Traders The same is true in other communities. Burbank used to be a big center for the "horse trader," boasting of the best livery barns in the Southland. And J. L. Smith amassed a comfortable fortune from shoeing horses. He had to change his occupation to dealing in merchandise.

Perhaps at the riding academy, near Griffith park, on Los Feliz road, you could hire a saddle horse, certainly no carriage. In Tjunga it is possible to get a pony, and if you went to San Fernando you might still find a fully-equipped stable, but we doubt it. From Kansas City comes the complaint that farmers no longer can drive to "town," having to hitch their nags outside the city's streets. In Illinois and Iowa the farm communities find the livery stables making a last stand as garages, with a few horses to hire.

New Parking Stations Feed sheds are fast being turned into parking stations. Tractors are doing the plowing and the "horse traders" are as scarce nowadays as hens' teeth ever were. It is the horseless age, although horses are equally as numerous as they ever were.

Peter L. Ferry, Glendale contractor, is making good money out of his many spans of mules, so necessary in new subdivision projects for grading and hauling. Yet he and others must hire their own blacksmiths to accompany the stock. They also have to equip their outfit with tank wagons, for the crossroads watering troughs have long since dried up.

Wonderful Advantage The motor age has given Glendale and all other cities and their surrounding countryside wonderful advantage, however. You can do in an hour what it used to take a day. Twenty-five miles of driving behind a horse was a good day's journey. A motor car will first recorded cricket match between public schools was in 1754, when Eton played Westminster.

HEARING ON BUS RATES SATURDAY

Pasadena-Ocean Park Line to Ask Permission to Change Schedules

A hearing at which the proprietors of the Ocean Park to Pasadena bus line will ask permission to change their time schedules and rates is to be held Saturday morning before the state railroad commission in Los Angeles, according to a letter read before the directors of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce at their weekly meeting in the Citizens' building yesterday, and it was urged on the board that some members of the organization attend the hearing and look after whatever interests Glendale may have in any proposed change in fares. The matter was referred to the transportation committee.

The president of the Associated Chamber of Commerce of the San Fernando Valley asked that a representative be appointed on the committee that has already been formed, and which consists of the presidents of the various chambers of commerce and realty boards throughout the valley whose mission it is to keep posted on the planning of roads and boulevards in this region. A meeting is shortly to be held at the Hollywood Country Club at which subjects of interest to this committee will be taken up and it is desired that Glendale have a thorough representation at that time. Harry E. White, Brand Boulevard and San Fernando was appointed as the extra member of the committee from Glendale.

The enlargement of Monte Vista park at Sunland was the subject of a resolution that was submitted to the board with the request that the Chamber of Commerce pass a similar resolution for the submission of the board of supervisors of Los Angeles county, which was done.

Ask For New Bridge Another resolution that was adopted asked Governor Richardson to sign the bill, passed by the recent legislature for the construction of a bridge over the Klamath river, where a ferry is the only present means of getting across the river.

The Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando Valley notified the local organization of a plan to raise the membership fee from $10 to $25 a year and asked that the Glendale Chamber of Commerce approve of the proposed change.

George B. Karr, chairman of the civics committee, reported on the progress that has been made in securing the cooperation of the city officials in the plans to keep the city cleaned up, and he submitted the new schedule that has been drawn up to govern the collection of garbage and tin cans in the various districts of the city. The progress of the construction of the new Southern Pacific depot was told by George H. Bentley, who stated that the City Council had decided to form an assessment district to include the territory affected by the proposed condemnation proceedings and to pass the necessary ordinance at the meeting Thursday of this week.

The progress that is being made on the Chamber of Commerce booklet was told by P. J. Hayselden, who has been working with the advertising committee during the past week.

Postal Conference Plans are being considered for the exhibition of the J. T. Edwards map of Glendale at the state fair that is to be held in Sacramento. The map, which is now in storage, will be transported to and from the exposition and shown free of charge.

The report of the postoffice committee, made by Roy L. Kent, showed that progress on the new and enlarged postoffice quarters for Glendale is rapid and that the new establishment will be ready within a comparatively short time. Mr. Kent also brought up the matter of sending Secretary E. F. Sanders to the postal conference that is to be held at San Francisco on June 27, and it was decided that the latter should attend. Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson will also attend the conference, and it is probable that arrangements will be made to insure the presence of Assistant Postmaster George Hallett at San Francisco also, as the latter has been devoting practically all of his time recently to the compilation of figures dealing with local postal conditions, which are to be submitted to the federal officials who will be present at the conference.

Players Mix Dates To Picture Preview

Mrs. Dorothy Davenport Reid, wife of the late Wallace Reid, and party of 40 motion picture players, who will see the preview of her great anti-narcotic film, "Human Wreckage," dedicated to the fight made by her husband against the dope habit, were misinformed yesterday by the studio, as to its showing and arrived at the Glendale Theatre last night only to learn the showing will be held this evening.

Manager William A. Howe expects a record attendance and asks that the public remember there is only one show, starting at 7:30 p. m.

Little Phil's Hearing Is Set for June 15

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—The finale of the career of "Little Phil" Alguin, alleged confessed slayer of Detective Sergeant J. J. Fitzgerald in December, 1921, was delayed again when Superior Judge Arthur Keith waived responsibility in hearing his change in plea and continued Alguin's final appearance in court until June 15.

Alguin, through arrangements made by his attorneys with the district attorney's office, was to appear in court and plead guilty to the murder charge and accept a sentence of life imprisonment rather than hazard a jury trial which might mean the death sentence were he convicted.

Mrs. Croker Denies Previous Wedding

DUBLIN, June 6.—Mrs. Beulah Edmondson Croker, widow of the late Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany hall in New York City, testifying again in the will contest action brought by Croker's children by a previous marriage, denied she ever had been married before she met her late husband.

It had been alleged by Mrs. Ethel Croker White, Croker's daughter, that Mrs. Croker had a legal husband when she married Richard Croker in November, 1914.

Irrigation Bills Are Signed by Governor

SACRAMENTO, June 6.—Seven bills intended to improve the state irrigation act, broaden its scope and make its bonds more salable were signed by Governor Richardson. The irrigation measures, all of which were introduced by Assemblyman Williams of Merced, follow: A. B. 569, permitting the distribution of electric energy outside the district; A. B. 568, authorizing the issuance of bonds for refunding; A. B. 564, providing for a sinking fund for retiring bonds.

Guard Unwary From Fake Stocks Is Plea Mann Act Figures In Dentist's Arrest

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 6.—Protection of the public against fraudulent investment schemes is of fundamental importance to the legitimate business, Lou E. Holland of Kansas City, president of the Associated Advertising clubs of the World, declared last Monday in his address before the annual convention. "We have done effective work towards the protection of investors against fake stock promoters," he said. "Our efforts in this work have reached far beyond the interests of investment bankers. Recently an automobile distributor in Pennsylvania complained that several hundred thousand of dollars of fake stock has been sold in his section and that many people who might have bought automobiles had lost their money."

CHICAGO, June 6.—Three automobile bandits held up two employees of a grocery here late yesterday, obtained $2,000 and fled.

Jean Acker Reported Engaged to Marquis

LOS ANGELES, June 6.—Jean Acker, former wife of Rodolph Valentino, was reported in film circles today as being engaged to the Marquis Luis De Bazany, a Spanish grandee following her arrival here yesterday from the east. Miss Acker is now on a vaudeville tour and after a short rest here will resume her touring.

Prevent Printing of K. K. K. Member Lists

CHICAGO, June 6.—Under orders from the United States court, deputy marshals seized the G. B. William Printing company plant to prevent the printing of names of alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan, forbidden in a recent injunction, but said to have been planned by the Tolerance Publishing company. The publishers were cited to appear to explain why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court.

TODAY—New Ententes in Making? New British Friendships. The Royal Ambassadors.

By DAVID M. CHURCH For International News Service

LONDON, June 5.—Are there new European ententes behind the recent movements of British royalty? This question is being seriously asked in Europe.

The friendships which are being cemented between the royalty of Great Britain, Italy and Belgium may prove a basis for future work of statesmen and politicians.

England has a first-class radio war on its hands. The radio craze has swept the little island like wildfire. The British Broadcasting Company was formed to control all radio concerts, and license fees were collected by the company from all listeners-in. The concert were proceeding nicely until suddenly the theatrical managers stepped in and insisted that no theatrical performers should be heard on the radio programs. It hurt the theatrical business, they said. The upshot has been that a fast and furious war has raged between the broadcasting company and the theatrical managers. The listeners-in are standing by—the innocent bystanders—while the war runs merrily on.

Charles B. Cochran has brought another American success to the English stage. This time it is "The Music Box Revue," produced by Irving Berlin, with a mixed English and American cast. Gradually it seems that the English stage is being Americanized. Nora Hayes is the latest addition to the ranks of the American stars who are sweeping all before them in England.

Belgium has been standing fast by the side of France, but there have been many indications that she would be glad to break away from her rather aggressive ally if a fitting opportunity came. Certainly Britain would be glad to have Belgium on her side if there ever came a sharp difference of opinion between the Allies. The Prince of Wales is known as "Great Britain's most successful ambassador." Mayhap his recent visit to Belgium was more than a courtesy call.

The powers of British royalty are few, but the influence of the royal family is always used for the good of the empire. It may be

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

THE JACK

LIKELY ENOUGH you have not used your jack or even thought about it for months. It—and its handle—in the car or in the garage, since your last repair job? You'd better look it up and see that it is working right, as no one knows how soon you will want it to use your jack a first-rate one?

JACKS and get an up-to-date one. For the benefit of inexperienced motorists it may be said that if it on the road, as level a spot as available should be chosen, as a car that is on a grade is likely to run off the jack. The ground under the car should be solid as otherwise the base of the jack will sink into the soft earth without lifting the car. By using a fitted, one-piece, under-car jack, the judgment of the car as usually he stopped on a spot where the jacking conditions are favorable enough, so that neither blocking of the wheels with stones nor the use of boards under the jack-base will be necessary.

STRENGTHENING THE MAGNETO

Answer: We doubt if the transmission has anything to do with it, or you would have noticed it before you had the new pistons fitted. Our impression is that the old pistons and connecting rods were a failure as far as smooth engine operation is concerned.

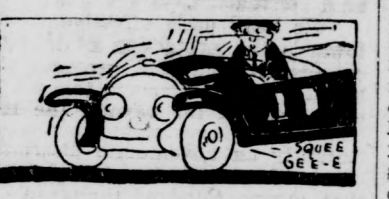

SUPPLYING FRESH GREASE

A. L. S. writes: My new car has been run about 3700 miles and the grease in the transmission, universal-joint and differential-housing has not been changed. Should not this be done soon? Is it advisable to clean out all the old grease before putting in new?

CAR VIBRATES BADLY

J. C. T. writes: My engine pumped oil so badly that the manufacturers fitted new pistons and connecting rods, curing the oil trouble, but since then it has vibrated so badly that they had to fit special braces with rubber buffers, and even now at times it shakes the whole car. Sometimes I think this vibration comes from the transmission, as the sound which accompanies it is like gears too tightly meshed, and ceases when the clutch is disengaged. What do you think about this vibration?

Skull of Sabre-Toothed Tiger

A complete skeleton of a sabre-toothed tiger was dug up the other day from a pool of natural asphalt six miles east of Los Angeles, probably half a million years have elapsed since the animal was alive.

The sabre-toothed tiger (of which bones have been found in both the Old and New Worlds) was the most remarkable cat that ever existed. It is larger and more powerful than any modern tiger, and in its upper jaw were two huge knife-

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories BY HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RUBBER PLANT

"Cheer up! Cheer up! Cheer up!" whistled Mr. Robin Red Breast outside the hollow stump bungalow of Uncle Wiggily one day.

"Oh, there's the post dog's whistle!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. "I hope he has some letters for me."

"Oh, gurgie, urgie, wurgie!" howled the Bear.

Uncle Wiggily, and the bungalow so still and quiet with him alone in it that, with the soothing murmur of the running water, he almost fell asleep.

like tusks four times longer than the distance a mouth could open. Hence it could not bite with them; but they were used for striking the animal's prey tearing long gashes.

The camel bones are particularly interesting. We are accustomed to associate camels with the Old World, but in all likelihood they originated in America.

DINNER STORIES

A landlord in a certain town found it no easy matter to collect his rent with unfailing regularity.

One woman was particularly trying in this respect, and he thought himself lucky if he only received from her part of the rent due.

One morning when he called at her house she offered him a half dollar.

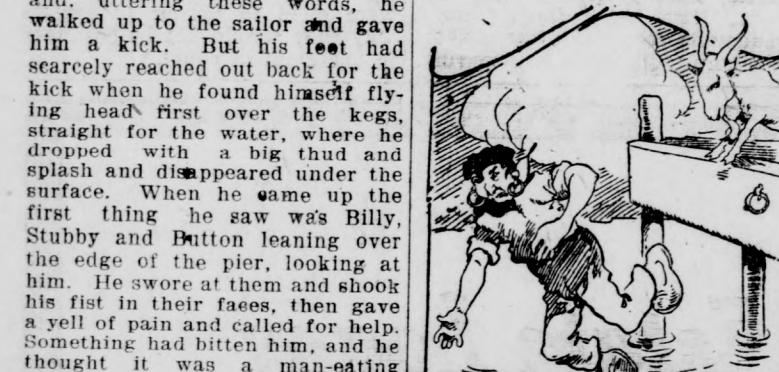

"Is that all you've got for me?" he inquired with a scowl.

"Go on, now, and he satisfied," was the reply.

King's bath tubs in ancient Egypt weighed at least ten tons each.

BILLY WHISKERS

After Stubby and Button had dared Billy to butt the captain into the water Billy walked quietly out on the pier, never even looking at the man. The captain saw him, however, and picked up a barrel stave and threw it at him.

"Then it is the Sea Gull for me," announced Billy. "Let's see where she anchors and if she sails to and from Panama."

"I too!" agreed Button. "And as it fell out, the three chums managed to get aboard the Sea Gull and sail out of the beautiful Golden Gate harbor of San Francisco just as the rays of the rising sun touched the outspread wings of the sea gull on the top of the pilot house."

"Tomorrow you'll hear of their first adventures on shipboard."

In the Service of a Lady

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

The dark-eyed woman who sat in her window seemed to look through Ed Wylie as he passed. The pale face and the large eyes made a strange impression on the susceptible youth and one he could not shake off.

"She sits there like the heroine of a tragic story," he told himself. "I don't believe she sees a thing that is going on. There is a story behind all this and I wish I could find it." Seeing no chance to make the discovery he bided a new one in his mind each day, yet somehow none would fit. Once when he passed the house a little earlier than usual she was gone. In time he discovered that it was only at this late afternoon hour that she watched and waited.

"I don't know whether she is sad or just thinking. Maybe she is waiting for someone, someone who is coming home for dinner. Very likely there is no mystery here at all."

The window behind which the woman sat was close to the sidewalk. One evening as Ed passed she raised it and beckoned. The lad looked around to see if it were not at someone else she was motioning, turned back to catch an insistent gesture, and advanced.

"I am wondering, the woman said in a rich and throaty voice, "I am wondering if you will not do me a great favor." The eyes were turned full-power upon the wondering Ed.

"Anything," he said, and was rewarded with a smile which made him catch his breath. The woman was beautiful.

"It is not far. You will take this box to 1432 Barnum Place and deliver it to Mr. George Plymede." The box was almost as large as a hatbox and not heavy. "Of course I will pay you." Once across the smile.

"Oh, no. It is almost on my way. You will please let me do this as a favor," Ed Wylie, holding the box by the string, went into the service of the beautiful woman.

"I must see Mr. Plymede himself," Ed told a maid who answered the bell, and into the hands of a wiry and peppery old man he placed the box.

"A lady," said Ed, "asked me to place this in your hands. The man shook the box, put his car to its cover, then dropped it on the floor. As the lad turned to leave the old man darted past him, whirled around and blocked the way.

"No, you don't. Not so easy!"

Ed threw up his arm to receive a stinging blow from a cane. Then he pushed the angry old man aside and ran to the street. The door slammed with a violent noise.

With a welt on his arm as pay for his knightly service, Ed Wylie felt aggrieved. All he had was a mystery, a new puzzle to add to the old. What was in the box and why should the woman have chosen him as the messenger? A part of the answer came from the door of the house he had quitted but a moment before, for it opened long enough for someone to hurl the box outside. Ed picked it up, tore off the lid, and discovered a cat.

"This settles it. No woman can send me around delivering cats to people who do not wish them. Maybe she is afraid of driving it. I'm going to find out." Nursing his anger to strengthen his courage, he called at the apartment of the woman.

"Madame, I received a beating for doing your errand and I bring back the cat." Ed felt this was quite dramatic. "Won't you explain why you picked on me to rile the old party?"

"It's his cat, anyway. You see my husband and we quarreled about the cat. When I left him I refused to take it. We divided everything we had, furniture and all, and it came down to Sambo as the only thing upon which we couldn't agree. I went without it and he sent it back to me. I sent it back and he returned it. It sounds silly, but Sambo has made the trip back and forth, by express, messenger and what not, just eleven times. Then I had to give up because he refused to accept it."

A tall youth in the next room rose and looked in the doorway. The woman smiled. "This is my son, Freddie."

"Why," there was anger in Ed's voice, "couldn't Freddie have taken that cat to the old man?"

The beautiful woman crossed the room and stood beside her son. She was magnificent in the maternal and protective pose.

"You do not think," she asked, "I would let Freddie run the risk of being injured?"

When Ed Wylie passes the house now he never looks at the window in which, sometimes, is sitting the beautiful woman.

INTERPRETS A NEW SIMPLICITY
This is just the model that one would like for a cool gingham or linen, and is typical of the newest idea of simplicity sponsored by Paris. Fronts and backs are slashed in front from the underarm seams and gathered to a band, to which the ends of the sash are attached. Round neck and short kimono sleeves are edged with bias folds of self-material. Another development of this model is possible. It features a skirt scalloped at the bottom and the addition of a sectional collar to the round neck. Medium size requires four and one-quarter yards; thirty-six inch and one-half yards; forty-four inch size requires thirty-six inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

THE HIGHWAYWOMAN

Highway robbery is not a profession which appeals, as a rule, to women. Even in fiction you seldom meet the highwaywoman. And yet in their homes a great many women, especially the newly wed ones, practice a form of highway robbery. No, I do not refer to attacks on pockets. That isn't highway robbery at all. Maybe it's petty thievery and maybe it's justifiable burglary. But that's another story altogether. The women I refer to hold up their husbands, not for money, but for love. This is the sort of thing I mean.

Sally and Bob have been married about a year and a half. Sally is a cute little thing, and Bob loves her funny little ways. Whenever he is particularly delighted he has a habit of catching her in his arms and hugging her.

Sally and Her Song
Sally loves the spontaneity of this demonstration, and yet she is blind enough (alas, love is blind not only to faults, but often blind to the ways of wisdom) to risk killing the very quality that she loves so much.

For instance, Sally about her work used to sing a funny little song that she learned in kindergarten, which she declared that "every little way had its white cap on, white cap, night cap, white cap on."

The first time Bob heard her chanting it in her childlike, tuneless way he pulled her, kitchen apron and all, into his arms and gave her a hug.

Sally was delighted, and set that down in her mind as one of the tricks that could be depended upon to please. And the next time the same thing happened.

But the third time Sally sang it, Bob was deep in an important article about baseball in his evening paper and did not notice.

Sally Demands Her Hug
Business of perching on arm of chair and putting paper aside by Sally. Further business of pouts. Expected inquiry as to why these pouts. Sally explained that he didn't like her song any more.

Bob laughed and gave her the expected hug, but more as one who yields to a spoiled child than as one who yields to a spontaneous impulse to express affection.

Naturally, the next time he heard that song sung he did what was expected of him. And the next and the next. But Bob is a business man, and not an actor, and he can't make convincing a caress that isn't spontaneous.

And Sally, though she isn't clever enough to know better than to try to force affection, is clever enough to sense the lack of spontaneity. So she stopped singing her little song, but felt a bit aggrieved and injured.

In Everywoman's Eden
And the serpent-thought, "He doesn't love me as much as he used to," crept into her garden of Eden.

"So each man kills the thing he loves," she thought. "And the 'man' in that doesn't mean Bob, it means Sally. You can't force affection. And if you could you wouldn't care for the forced variety."

You can't demand love at the pistol point of a pout or a sulky and get the real article. If you call attention to an omitted caress you may get it the next time, but it will probably be given without feeling, or even resentment. Nobody likes to be held up. Even for love. Perhaps I should say especially for love.

SWEEPING A BEAUTY EXERCISE
Sweeping is a beauty exercise, and so is bed-making, though I much doubt that housewives believe this. Perhaps I should say that sweeping—properly done—is a beauty exercise, for it isn't over the broom and shoves away with flying dust to breathe in and to cover her hair with her shoulders rounded and her chest flat.

If you are your own cook and housemaid you have at least one great advantage. Your time is your own, you may hurry along to give yourself extra time to rest, you may stop a bit after a lot of bending over the shoulder and arm exercises and breathing exercises to take the crick out of your back. And there's no one about to criticize if you choose to smear your hands and nails full of oil or cream, after a siege of very dirty work, and go on with your tasks wearing rubber gloves.

But about sweeping. Your broom should have a sufficiently long handle so you need not stoop to hold it. Then you should sweep so you stand always upright, chest and shoulders back. At first you'll find it awkward, it will seem hard to put any force into the strokes. But, like everything else, it will come easy after practice.

As for bedmaking—which I called a beauty exercise because it is good for the arms, waist and abdomen—there is no right and wrong way to do this—except as applied to the bed! The constant stooping and straightening makes your waistline slender, the pulling about of covers strengthens and rounds the arms.

Housework generally takes away from one's beauty, but these two tasks are improving. For the rest, protect yourself as much as possible, keep your hair covered when cooking or cleaning, and wear gloves over your hands for washing and scrubbing.

Twenty, Olive, B. A. E.—Unless you can have the superfluous hair removed through electrolysis, extract the coarse hairs by using a blunt end tweezers and bleach the rest with peroxide. Of course this will have to be done whenever the hair appears above the skin. A cream made from sweet almond oils will not cause this hair to grow.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns from time to time. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.
Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

Vitamins—No. VI
The Anti-Ophthalmic or Fat Soluble A Vitamin

The dietary value of different fats is worked out by feeding animals on correct diets, except for the lack of fats. Then different fats are added and their effects noted. (It was from the same sort of biological experimentation that proteins differ so markedly in their dietary properties.)

It has been found that the vegetable fats and lard are very deficient except in energy or caloric value, and that not only does the eye disease, xerophthalmia, develop, but growth and production are markedly affected when they are the sole fats used in the diet. The growth and reproduction proceeds normally in these experimental animals (and the eye disease disappears) when butterfat, cod liver oil or egg yolks are added to their diets—thus proving that there is some food element in these last fats very necessary for these functions. Research workers have called this element the anti-ophthalmic vitamin, or fat soluble A.

A striking practical application of this knowledge was made in Roumania during the war. The children there, as in other war-torn countries, were living on a very limited diet containing practically no milk or butter or green vegetables. Very many of the children were suffering from the severe eye infection, xerophthalmia (inflammation of the eyelids and eyeballs, sometimes going to complete blindness and death).

The American Red Cross secured for these children a cargo of cod liver oil, a food exceedingly rich in fat soluble A, and the disease was checked and many lives saved.

Experiments have shown that this fat soluble A is also present in other foods, notably the green leafy plants, spinach and alfalfa. (I'll give you a longer list later.)

The chief source of this vitamin in butter and milk is primarily from the green vegetation, for less of it is found in winter milk and butter than in summer milk and butter.

Anti-Neuritic or Water Soluble B
In the experiments to find out which would prevent beri-beri, the nerve inflammatory disease, it was found that the anti-neritic foods not only prevent beri-beri but also have to do with normal reproduction and lactation and growth, the same as the anti-ophthalmic vitamin.

McCarison emphasizes that animals fed upon diets lacking in this vitamin, water soluble B, become sterile. It is well known that sterility is common in those who suffer from beri-beri; the disease brought about the lack of this vitamin. Of course the diet which brings this on is deficient in the anti-ophthalmic or fat soluble A, the vitamin which is also an important factor in reproduction and lactation. It is quite possible that many cases of abortions and sterility of unknown cause in the human family may be due to diets lacking in the vitamins.

A deficiency of vitamin B also causes a lack of appetite and a disorder of the organs of the digestive and assimilation, so it is essential to normal nutrition at all ages.

The foods that are highest in the anti-neritic vitamin, or water soluble B, are tomatoes, raw canned or dried; spinach, cabbage, beans, yeast and yeast extracts. Anti-Scorbutic or Water Soluble C
It was discovered that the anti-scorbutic or water soluble C vitamin also had profound effects on reproduction and lactation. When pregnant animals were fed on diets

Date Muffins (excellent for children)—Cream together one-fourth cup each of granulated sugar and butter. Beat one egg and add to it three-fourths of a cup of sweet milk. Add the egg-milk mixture alternately to the first mixture with two cups of bread flour which you have sifted with four teaspoons of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Stir well together and bake in gem pans in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes.

Baked Bean Soup (good way to use left-over baked beans)—Measure cold baked beans and add to them twice their quantity of cold water; bring to a boil and let simmer for one-half hour, then add the juice from one can of tomatoes; let cook a few minutes longer, rub through a strainer, season to taste and serve. (If necessary, thicken with one tablespoon of flour and bring to a boil again before serving.)

Codfish Chowder—Flake one cup of codfish and soak in cold water for one hour. Pare and slice three good-sized potatoes and put them on to boil for ten minutes; drain off the water and add one pint of fresh water to the potatoes, also add the soaked codfish and cook for ten minutes more. In the meantime fry one-fourth pound of salt pork (cut in cubes) in your frying pan, and put in one or two small, chopped onions; add this onion-seasoned fat (strained) to the chowder, and also add one pint of milk thickened with one tablespoon of flour. Season with salt and pepper to suit individual taste, let stand five minutes and serve with toasted crackers.

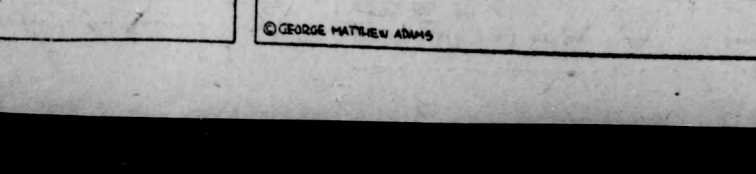

Cheese Baking Powder Biscuits
—Sift two cups of flour with four teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of salt. Work in this dry mixture, with the finger tips, three tablespoons of butter. Mix into it three-fourths of a cup of sweet milk. Turn out onto a floured board, roll to one-half inch in thickness, and cut with a biscuit cutter. Spread each biscuit with a little melted butter and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake twenty minutes in a very hot oven.

WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY
BY ELIZABETH MORIARTY

OUR WOMEN LAWMAKERS
Miss Elizabeth Green of Toland, Conn., is the only Democrat among the seven women elected to the Connecticut state legislature. She does not feel lonely, however, because all the women are united on questions concerning laws affecting women and children. "I believe that women legislators should be equally interested in all laws," says Miss Green, "but I think that the first interest of the pioneer women lawmakers must necessarily be in the laws affecting their own sex and children, for these things have been neglected too long by the men. After we give their support to all good measures whether they affect women and children, taxes, farmers, trade, roads, sanitation, producing surry, the young were born prematurely and died at birth." The anti-scorbutic vitamin also has to do with growth and development, for animals and babies fed on diets lacking them will have their growth and development arrested, as well as develop surry.

The foods that are highest in the anti-scorbutic vitamins are lemon juice, fresh or dried, orange juice; raspberries, fresh or dried; tomato, raw or canned; raw cabbage and lettuce.

Now you can see from what I have said that vitamins are not only necessary to prevent disease but all of them are necessary to promote growth and to carry on the normal functions of life, including reproduction and lactation. Are the vitamins important? Again we'll say they are!

WOMEN TAXI DRIVERS FOR WOMEN
Women are now driving taxis in New York City and are seeking the patronage of women. Many women, it is believed, do not use cabs because they fear strange male chauffeurs, after reading all that is printed of their activities. This situation is expected to be relieved by the women drivers.

MEN ARE THE BEAUTES ABROAD
With the exception of a few women who are in moderately vain the beauty parlors abroad are frequented by men, according to an eastern society woman who has traveled through many countries in Europe.

"It was such a surprise to me to find that the beauty parlors in the countries I visited are mostly frequented by men," said this tourist. "And how they started at me when I went into them. It is the men over there who are careful of their hair and complexions. They have their hair Marcelled religiously—many of them. And the women are not expected to fuss with beauty parlors."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl past eighteen. My mother died four years ago and I have kept house since. When I go out I try to act just as nice and lady-like as I can. But somehow or other I never get the fellow I would care for. I am considered fair-looking.

About two years ago I saw a fellow that I fell in love with just by seeing him, but being so young I tried to get him out of my mind. Later on I became better acquainted, and the better I knew him the more I liked him. I really love him now and I can't get him out of my mind. It is getting so that I can't eat or sleep.

He has been going with another girl for about three years. They don't seem to get along somehow. His family don't want him to marry her. They always part, but they friends, but being so young I thought you say to her so that she will not be able to stretch the truth and cause trouble.

BROKEN-HEARTED.
Yours is a very natural case for a girl of eighteen. So often a girl of that age loves deeply but her love is unrequited. Perhaps it is better that she is not loved in return because the time is not right for her to have her love dream answered.

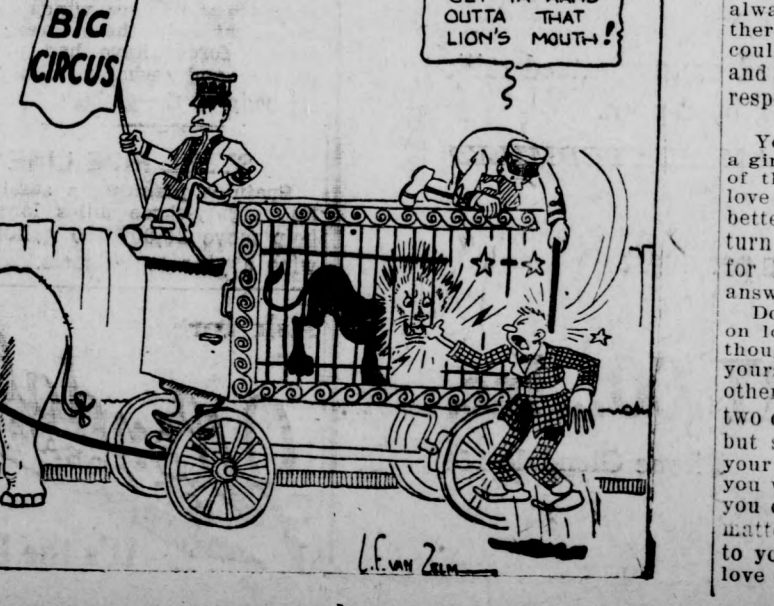

Don't become discouraged; keep on loving, but try not to let your thoughts control you. Also force yourself to take an interest in other young people. It may be two or three years, or even longer, but some time you will love and your love will be returned. Then you will be only too thankful that you did not have your way in this matter. The right man will come to you, whether it is the one you love or some one else. Only have faith that matters will work out naturally and for the best.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two good friends and there is another girl who tries hard to break up our friendship. At times she talks real nice to us and then she doesn't look at us or speak to us. She has often told my friend that I talked about her and I never have. We are in doubt about what to do. Kindly advise us.

JUST GOOD FRIENDS.
Probably the most satisfactory thing to do would be to try to overlook the "catty" things that are said. If, however, the sting remains and ill-feeling creeps in, the matter should be talked over, so that the accused party will have an opportunity to square herself. Speak to the girl who has such an unfortunate disposition and be friendly, but be guarded in what you say to her so that she will not be able to stretch the truth and cause trouble.

SOULESS: You are defeating your own end by trying to prevent the man you love from seeing the other girl. No wonder you are torn with jealousy, under the circumstances. But my advice is to stop worrying about her. In fact, when she comes to town, tell him that you have thought the matter over and you want him to see her if he cares to. Say that you do not want to stand in the way. Force a belief in his love and do not let him see that you doubt his loyalty to you. You cannot make the man faithful by force; but if he has freedom to do as he pleases there is far more chance that he will please to love you more than any one else. No matter what you do, do not let him see that you are afraid of losing him.

Suit Over Fairbanks Estate Compromised

INDIANAPOLIS, June 6.—Litigation between Adelaide Fairbanks, daughter of the late vice president, Charles Warren Fairbanks, and the law firm of Hanna & Dally, begun in federal court late Tuesday, has been settled out of court. By the settlement the attorneys agreed to accept $90,000 and drop claims aggregating $250,000 alleged to have been due them by the terms of a contract for obtaining a full share of the Fairbanks estate.

Hold Three In Probe of Soldier's Murder

MARFA, Texas, June 6.—Three arrests were made in connection with the hammer murder Monday night of Private Robert L. Smith of the First Infantry, at Camp Marfa. Robbery is believed to have been the motive as $250 which Smith had in his possession could not be found. He was found beaten to a pulp, lying in his bunk beside his "buddy," and a blood-soaked hammer on the floor nearby.

GIRL CONFESSES THEFT TO POLICE

Admits Stealing Fur Coats And Other Things From Sunland Lodge

Believing a pretty girl she saw on the street in Los Angeles to be a maid who worked for her in San Francisco last December and who disappeared with two valuable fur coats and other articles, Miss Gertrude Robinson of Sunland Lodge, Sunland, called a traffic officer last Tuesday and had the girl arrested. The girl's name is Grace Jackson, 24, and she stoutly denied that she ever took anything or that she ever was in the employ of Miss Robinson.

Under pressure, however, she broke down and confessed that she had taken the articles named and that she had hoped to brazen it out with the officers, according to Miss Robinson, who later relented and upon the girl disclosing where the articles could be located, she withdrew the charge and the girl was allowed to go free.

Twin Pines, Sunland's popular dance pavilion, has been sold by Charles Kimpel to Louis Waite of Los Angeles, who has taken possession.

Beginning June 5 the dance nights will be Tuesday and Saturday instead of Wednesday and Saturday. He states that he intends to put in a battery service station on the corner of the property facing the state highway and will also add a gasoline pump and oil supplies to the place, making a complete service station.

Boxing Date Changed
The boxing shows will be continued as before, except that the date for the next one has been changed from June 19 to Wednesday, June 20, so as not to conflict with the dance night. Five high class bouts are booked for this night.

Mrs. Adams, operating in the Olive Grove tract for the California Home Extension Company, reports the sale of several more lots and considerable building activity. Mr. Bruant, who has a ranch in Big Tujunga canyon, has taken two lots in the tract, and intends to build.

Mr. Waddell, son-in-law to Mr. Perner, who lives near the tract on the highway, has also taken two lots, and will build a home.

Mr. Bisbee of Alhambra, one lot; Norma Hill and friend of Los Angeles, two lots on the boulevard; Mr. Crag, proprietor of the Cafeteria Shoe Store, at Ontario, one lot; J. E. Gray, proprietor of Gray & Gray's grocery, one lot; Mr. Smith, of the Edison Company, one lot; Mrs. Brown of Glendale, one lot, a gift to her small son; Mr. Jenkins of Los Angeles has bought three lots in the Lanaster Oaks tract and has built a home on them on Sherman avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Murray of the Olive Grove tract, motored to Hollywood last week to visit Mrs. Murray's sister, of Sunset boulevard. The Murrys are recent arrivals in Sunland and Mr. Murray's health has greatly improved since he came here a month ago.

Warrants Needed In Dry Raids, Is Ruling

MADISON, Wis., June 6.—Annoting he did so with the knowledge that dry law enforcement in Wisconsin, Chief Justice Vinje of the Wisconsin supreme court has ruled unlawful the practice of search without warrants. Shippers had appealed to the courts for relief from search conducted without warrants by zealous enforcement agents.

California Keeps Cool Fraternity Vs. Conspiracy Glendale's Depot Needs What's The Trouble, Boys?

By Gil A. Cowan

HEAT prostration in Washington, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York has been reported during the last few days. Three hundred and fifty were dropped by the sun's rays in the Shriner's parade at the capital city yesterday. We can testify it does get devilish hot down along the Potomac.

And here in Southern California an overcast feels good these summer evenings. Delightful weather in the vicinity of Los Angeles will bring thousands of tourists, for everyone here is writing their friends how perfectly lovely it is. They might advise conventions to come to California, where the climate is ideal all year 'round.

"Secret fraternity is one thing," says President Harding, in a speech welcoming to the Shriners at Washington. "Secret conspiracy is another. I will have said enough if I suggest that men lose their right of fraternal hearing when they transgress the law of the land."

That statement is clear enough and just enough and sufficiently pointed to give some mighty good men a true idea of the purposes of real fraternal orders. No organization should be used for the purpose of conspiracy or violation of the fundamental principles of the law of the land.

And it is the earnest hope of the writer that the latter shall not come to pass. Any group may purge themselves of stigma by present performance, for the old saying may well be remembered:

"Anyone may make a mistake once, but only a fool will make the same mistake a second time."

If secret orders do not desire to look foolish in the eyes of thinking citizens, let them not presume to stand higher than the law.

In the discussion of a new depot for the Southern Pacific in Glendale, let it not be forgotten by the officials of the railroad the wonderful section which this station ultimately will serve.

It cannot be made too clear that Hollywood, Pasadena, Eagle Rock and a great portion of Los Angeles county will look to Glendale's Southern Pacific depot for transportation north. The territory served will have a population of not less than a quarter million people by 1930.

Ninety pupils of Glendale Union High school are entitled to scholarship pins, according to the news columns.

Considering the enrollment, this is not a record number, yet those who won the distinction are to be complimented.

Scholastic achievement is something to be sought by every boy and girl attending school. Among those who won gold pins for four years of honor work, only two are of male persuasion, while the ten others are studious young women.

It is very apparent that too much activity for boys, other than study, has become the rule, with a result that education is becoming an almost exclusive attribute of those who are to mother the future race.

But we fear that commercial life will seek women, rather than men, if boys do not pay more attention to their studies, and then they will be found at home doing the washing, while their wives are downtown earning the daily bread.

On the other hand, we fear that the large number of women teachers in our schools are giving the advantage to girls, while the latter vamp the male professors for good marks in their studies.

When the boys win a fifty-fifty break in scholastic awards, we will concede there is little or nothing wrong in our educational system. Until that time the writer will have to hold the honest suspicion that something is wrong some place along the line.

Speaking of America and Asia being joined once upon a time, the Pasadena Star-News says editorially:

"A notable scientific expedition into the desert of Gobi, in northern Asia, has found conclusive proofs that North America and Asia once were joined in one vast stretch of land. What gigantic upheavals separated the two, can be conjectured only, although the geologist and paleontologist in time may be able to rewrite the whole geographical history of the globe."

"Central Asia seems to have been the center for dispersion of huge mammalian animals. Fossil remains of some of these have been found in the Rocky Mountain states.

"The physical world has had a wonderful history. Its development has been marvelous. Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, action of floods and waves, winds and ice and heat—all these great elemental forces have had part in shaping and reshaping the physical body of the globe."

- Women's Club Luncheon
- Ellis Rhodes, well known locally, will sing a group of songs at the next luncheon of the Women's Twentieth Century Club, which comes June 14.

Mr. Rhodes was for a number of years on the concert stage and is a former resident of Eagle Rock. He is at present directing a community musical organization in Santa Ana.

There will be two or more speakers on the Women's Club program June 14, to be announced later.

Mrs. Alice Winters is chairman of the day.

The last meeting of the Central school Parent-Teacher Association was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the school auditorium.

Dr. Haisch gave a short talk on "The Care of Children's Teeth," and Richard Arbogast gave a reading.

Society and Personal
Professor and Mrs. G. A. Thompson, former residents of this section and later of Whittier, are now living at Hermosa Beach, where they have built an attractive summer cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland of North Sumner avenue have sold their home and will move to Alhambra. Mrs. Sutherland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gates of Roland avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Murphy, from Buffalo, N. Y., have bought the house at 413 Glen Eyrle avenue, formerly the property of Mrs. J. V. Quimby. The Murphys and their three children will occupy the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Wittise of Los Angeles have purchased the house at 239 North Delaware avenue. They are friends of Mr. and Mrs. E. Osman, who live next door.

M. L. Marshall of 135 Eddy avenue sustained a recent operation for appendicitis, at a Glendale hospital.

Professor J. C. Shedd, who has for some time been laid up with a broken leg, the result of being struck by an automobile on the streets of Los Angeles, is now able to get around a little, on crutches.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland of 212 North College View avenue are leaving this week for their new home in Granada, Park.

BURBANK

BAR CEMETERIES OUT OF BURBANK

Interment Within Corporate Limits Forbidden by New Ordinance

Burbank will have no cemeteries within its corporate territory, is the verdict handed down by the board of trustees, in the passage Tuesday night of a resolution "prohibiting the burial of any dead body within the city limits."

The ordinance was passed on petition signed by Mrs. Florence L. Gower and forty-five other property owners living in the northwest part of the city, said ordinance protesting against the proposal to open a cemetery in their locality.

It was brought out at the meeting of the board of trustees that the legislative act recently signed by Governor Richardson, regarding the period, after which it becomes legal and the option held by Blyth, Witter & Company, Los Angeles, can be taken up and funds provided the city by the sale of bonds, hereafter improvement of the sewer farm will commence.

Grades B-3 and B-5 Win
Children of Miss Flynn's and Mrs. Dunn's rooms won the silk flags offered by the school board for the best marching in the Memorial Day parade, and the kindergarten kiddies and Girl Scouts received honorable mention.

The judges were Dr. Zeiss, Dr. Butterfield and Dale Eichler.

Rotarians Go A-Courtin'
The Burbank Rotary club's "Affinity" party, held last Thursday night, at the Sunset Canyon country club, has set the tongues wagging—for, it appears, the Rotary Annus numbered a list of names not very familiar in this city.

It was a real courting affair, but strange as it may seem, the wives of the Rotarians were aware of the goings-on from the start, list of unfamiliar names being no more than the maiden names of the members' "better halves."

This novel idea produced no end of merriment, and a party so unique and so enjoyable that it will be remembered for a long time.

The party was in the nature of a farewell reception for A. F. Bach and Ray Sene, who left Sunday for St. Louis, to attend the International Rotary convention, to be held there the middle of this month.

A big banquet started off the festivities, at which a novel Pullman dining car tableau was staged, Albert Gross acting as brakeman, Edward Butterfield as conductor, Sidney King as new-boy, and Curtis Miller as whistle.

The train was supposed to be en route to the big Rotarian convention, with not only the two delegates as passengers, but the entire Burbank delegation, and their wives.

Place cards were pullman tickets, the taking up of which occasioned much fun, it being discovered that Philip Zeiss' wife was trying to take Phil through on half fare. Measurement of his waistline by the conductor exposed this subterfuge.

Prize stunts were "pulled" at this unique affair, which wound up with car dancing.

Children in Tableau
Children's Day exercises were held at the Methodist church, Sunday night, in a novel entertainment, including all grades of the Sunday school. The title of the performance was "Whispering the Children's Secrets," the little folks representing the different seasons of the year.

The program was greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Marc E. C. Groshong, of Olive avenue, has left with her daughters, Miss Marjorie Chapman and little Miss Geraldine Groshong, for an extended eastern trip that will include visits to Appleton, Wis., where at Lawrence Cook Mrs. Chapman will attend a convention of her sorority; to Whitewater, Wis., where Mrs. Groshong was for some time a teacher; and to Clintonville, Wis., and Milwaukee, at which latter point they will visit Mrs. Groshong's mother and brother.

Detour Around Detour
The rebuilding of San Fernando road from Turkey Crossing to the city limits is occasioning "wheels within wheels," according to impartial observers and innocent bystanders.

First it was a detour. Now it is a matter of detouring around a detour, detour No. 1 having become impassable, owing to hard usage at the hands of impatient and excessive motorists.

Now motorists are advised to take the Magnolia avenue road to Lankershim boulevard and thence to San Fernando road, as other possible routes are in a bad state of repair.

Spanish Troops Slain In Fight With Moors

MADRID, June 6.—Four hundred Spanish soldiers were killed in battle with 7000 rebellious Moors, who attacked a Spanish column near Tizassa, in Morocco, said an official dispatch from Melilla today.

The Spaniards were supported with airplanes and artillery and were escorting convoys when the Moors attacked. The battle lasted several hours. Moorish losses were particularly heavy from artillery fire.

Set Aside $50,000 for College Greenhouses

SACRAMENTO, June 6.—Governor Richardson has signed senate bill No. 533, appropriating $50,000 for building greenhouses at Berkeley for the College of Agriculture. The governor also approved A. B. 1361, which directs that the remains in certain old cemeteries in San Francisco be removed to places outside the limits of the city.
