Naval Parade

Accompanying Governor Hughes and wife were Gen. Leonard Wood, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, Adjutant-General Henry, Col. George C. Treadwell, Major R. L. Foster, Capt. R. F. Walton, Capt. W. R. Fearn, Capt. Alonzo Simmons, Capt. D. J. Hogan, Capt. A. M. Reagen, Capt. George M. Alden, Lieut. F. M. Crossett and Lieut. Barry Rich and Mrs. Nelson Henry.

As the flotilla majestically sailed up the river amid an unusual demonstration, the Governor appeared to be deeply fascinated. Standing at the extreme northern end of the upper deck he commanded an unobstructed view of the scene, and rising from his seat he uncovered and waved his hat again and again to the sightseers on the shore in token of his regard for their efforts. The demonstration was carried to a magnificent climax by the liberal use of aerial fireworks and bombs, the noise of which, accompanied by the greetings on shore and in the smaller boats, made an ovation never to be forgotten by those who were present. The Congress street bridge and docks, the roofs of buildings, and every other view point were occupied by enthusiastic spectators. Doring's full band, the Troy Vocal Society, and the Troy Maennerchor rendered instrumental and vocal music during the voyage.

At 12.30 o'clock occurred the review of motor boats and yachts.

At 1 o'clock luncheon was served on board the Trojan to the distinguished guests and the party accompanying them.

At 1.45 p. m. Governor Hughes, the commanding officers of the Half Moon and Clermont, and the officers of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission were taken ashore in the Admiral's barge manned by Troy Veterans of the United States Navy and escorted by Indians in canoes. The distinguished guests, Mayor Mann and the local naval committees on the Trojan were ferried by the steamboat Carr to the Broadway landing.

Escort
of Children

At 2 p. m. Governor Hughes and the distinguished guests, the Mayor and the local committees were escorted by 1,000 school children with Mr. C. F. Burns as Grand Marshal to the reviewing stand at the City Hall. This was one of the most pleasing features of the Celebration, and the children made fully as good an impression as they did during Troy Week Celebration in 1908. The Grand Marshal's staff was composed of Mr. Howard D. Bonesteel, Chief of Staff, and Messrs. C. B. Alexander, A. De Pierpont, Henry O'Brien, William B. Frear and Earl C. Tower. The parade formed at 1 o'clock on State street. The first division was headed by the students of the Troy High School, the Lansingburgh High School, and the Troy Academy wearing academic costumes. They were followed by the pupils of schools 2, 9 and 10, and the Comstock and Whipple schools who paraded as Indians. Then came the pupils of schools 1, 7, 12, 13 and 17 representing pioneers and dressed in characteristic costumes. The Dutch company following the band in the second division were the girls of St. Peter's and St. Mary's schools depicting Dutch girls, and the Vanderheyden Cadets following were composed of the boys of schools 3 and 5. Holland colors were represented by the children of St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, and the left of the division was brought up by a squadron of Dutch sailors from St. Joseph's and St. Augustine's schools. The Continental soldiers were at the head of the third division, represented by the children of the Troy Orphan Asylum, and following them came soldiers of St. Lawrence's school and St. Jean Baptiste's school. The pupils of St. Michael's school came next, representing sailors, and then there was another detachment of soldiers, pupils of schools 1 and 14. More sailors were represented by the boys of the Troy Catholic Male Orphan Asylum, and the final company was composed of Rough Riders, made up of pupils from schools 15 and 16 and the Leonard and Powers schools.

After the Governor and guests were seated on the stand, the children passed by them in review and after countermarching were also seated on the reviewing stand. The stand was 40 feet high and seated 1,200 persons. The sight when the costumed children were seated was novel and effective. Under the direction of Prof. M. T. Moran, Director of Music of the Public Schools, assisted by an orchestra of 50 pieces, patriotic songs were rendered until the arrival of the afternoon parade.

While the parade was forming and in progress, a banquet was rendered Mrs. Hughes at the Rensselaer Hotel, with thirty-five in attendance and at which Mrs. S. A. Silliman, the General Chairman, presided. Besides Mrs. Hughes the guests included Mrs. Elias P. Mann, Mrs. Charles S. Francis, Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Mrs. Nelson H. Henry, Mrs. R. S. Livingstone, Mrs. Blight, Mrs. McFarland, the Misses Adams and Miss Bullock. The affair was held in the banquet room of the Rensselaer, which was decorated with American flags. The table was in the form of a "T" for Troy, and was handsomely decked with baskets of yellow chrysanthemums placed at intervals and connected with bands of satin ribbon in the three shades, orange, blue and white. The place cards were hand-painted in the Hudson-Fulton colors, and marking the place of Mrs. Hughes, the guest of honor, was a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Banquet

At 2.45 p. m. occurred the Military and Firemen's Parade, the largest ever held in Troy, with Brig.-Gen. James H.

While the afternoon parade was in progress, Mrs. Hughes and party arrived. They were escorted to seats on the Ladies' Reviewing Stand where a magnificent basket of flowers was presented to Mrs. Hughes by the school children who acted as escort to the Governor.

Reception

At 4.30 P. M. a reception was given in the Mayor's office to the Governor and distinguished guests. This was attended by many prominent citizens.

At 5 P. M. the Governor and distinguished guests were taken in automobiles to view the street decorations.

At 6 p. m. the Hudson-Fulton Celebration banquet was given on board the steamer Trojan, anchored in the Hudson River in front of Troy. The speaking occurred in the following order: Banquet on the Trojan

COL. ARTHUR MACARTHUR: "Governor Hughes, Invited Guests, Gentlemen: I say to you that there can be no labor without rest — no week without its Sunday, no acknowledgment of great events without the serene satisfaction of victory at the completion of a happy idea. We are at the head of navigation of the Hudson River, beginning at it does in the metropolis of the world, in the City of New York, where the great Henry Hudson, three hundred years ago, entered an unknown water, and where, at the end of an eventful voyage, he rested his Half Moon, a symbol of progress, and an event in the history of the world. At the City of Troy he sent his canoes further north, as the citizens of Troy to-day send out their feeders of commerce and trade to all the surrounding country. Col. Mac-
Arthur

"We have come up the Hudson River, where brilliantly the events of the communities and municipalities have done all within the scope of their possibilities to make this week memorable in the history of the world. It is said of man that he knows his own greatness and he wonders why his neighbors do not know it also.

"In this event the people of the United States, symbolized in the toast, who have had its Celebration in charge, have told the world of the greatness of the Empire State. But on the 9th day of October in the year 1909, we have arrived at the acme of perfection by entering Troy, not by a wooden horse but by a wooden vessel that memorializes the name of one of the greatest navigators that the world ever knew.

"As Chairman of the Upper Hudson Committee, it has been my pleasure to accompany the events of these memorable two weeks, and I have listened with eager ears and wondering mind to the speeches that have been made, all commemorative of the one great historical event. And here in Troy, on the water, the great place where an event of this kind can be celebrated, I have the utmost pleasure in presenting to you the Hon. Elias P. Mann, Mayor of Troy, who will now act as Toastmaster."

HON. ELIAS P. MANN: "Governor Hughes, our Guests and Gentlemen of the Committee: The Hudson-Fulton Celebration will always be remembered as one of the most important events ever held Hon.

in this State, rivaled only by pageants sometimes seen in foreign cities. It should be effective in stimulating us in studying more closely the history of our country, its achievements, its inventions and its resources. The presence of so many distinguished guests will make a famous day in the history of Troy. We have been looking forward to this Celebration, and are glad to see the fruition of all our plans. Troy does well whatever it tries to do, and our guests will be able to say whether we have carried out fully all our plans.

"It is not my purpose to speak to you about our citizens and about their enterprise and about our advantage as an educational center, but simply to say we welcome you most sincerely. We feel honored by your presence, and can only feebly express the pleasure we feel.

"About one year ago the City of Troy commenced organizing for this Celebration. A committee of fifteen was appointed which afterwards developed into a committee of 150; and they have all been very active, busy men. But it must be remembered that the original Commission which had in charge all the preliminary arrangements for this great Celebration was started about five years ago; and there is a gentleman here to-night who was a member of the Commission at that time. He is President of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission and I will now call upon him to speak to you — Gen. Stewart L. Woodford."

General
Wood-
ford

GEN. STEWART L. WOODFORD: "Mr. Mayor, Citizens of Troy and Friends: About two weeks ago to-day we began this Celebration by a review of the great warships that had come to us from all the nations of the world. Day by day the Celebration has progressed, and to-night it fitly closes on the bosom of the river that Henry Hudson explored. It is an honor which an old man deeply appreciates that I have been permitted to be the President of this Commission. If in any place or degree we have failed, it has been by an error of judgment and not an error of heart. If in any small or large degree we have succeeded, it has been because the President of your Commission has had the assistance all the way through of a body of staff officers each of whom was better fitted to be President than the President himself. I thank you for all the services that each and all have rendered. Thanks for the pleasant memories that will live with us all. And here is to the hope that when our grandchildren, one hundred years from now, shall celebrate the fourth centenary of the exploration of the river, the Troy of one hundred years from now may have a real 'man' for its Mayor, as you have now. Here is to the hope that when the children of the then New Netherlands shall come bearing greeting, their Half Moon may be a Full Moon of perfect memory and perfect friendship. Here is to the hope that the Governor of New York then may somewhat size up to the large manhood of the Governor of the State of New York to-day. And, Mr. Governor, chief among the pleasant memories of a long and a happy life, will be the memory that you were once my student. Now, I sit at your feet. You have rivaled, and in some respects have equaled, and in some have eclipsed the long line of Governors which has preceded you. It will be a hard task, but here is to the hope that the Governor, one hundred years from now, will be one who heus to the line as faithfully and as devotedly and as loyally as you have hewed.

"Pardon one word of personal recollection. They say it is permitted to age to be reminiscent. My first attempt at a speech in Troy was when your citizens honored me, when George H. Thomas was borne to his final resting place, to pronounce in halting phrase but with a heart of the loyal soldier, the words of tribute and good-bye with which we laid him to rest. I was next permitted to dedicate that beautiful Soldiers' Monument that stands in your public square; and now with a loving heart, knowing that I cannot come many times again, I thank you for this privilege of pronouncing the benediction of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration in your presence, and on the waters of the Hudson. Good-night."

COL. ARTHUR MACARTHUR: "I propose a toast to General Woodford, the man whose interest in the City of Troy and whose acts in its behalf in the days gone by have endeared him to the hearts of all of our loyal citizens. I call upon all loyal Trojans to drink his health."

The toast was heartily responded to.

THE TOASTMASTER: "The next speaker is an eminent lawyer of this city, who has always lived in Troy, and is capable of speaking of the Troy of the future. He can also speak appropriately of the Troy of the present, because he is the Corporation Counsel. I call upon George B. Wellington to respond to the toast of 'The City of Troy.'"

HON. GEORGE B. WELLINGTON: "Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: I am proud to respond to the toast 'The City of Troy' for I am a Trojan. Linked with this pride because of what our city has become is an undying affection for it; for all the lines in the sentimental perspective of the past meet for me in this dwelling place of my fate.

"Our city joins with her sister cities on the Hudson to commemorate the achievements of early times which made our beautiful river known to the world and serviceable to mankind. The discovery of the Hudson three centuries ago meant more than the gratification of the curiosity of enterprising Hollanders who sought business profit in a northeast passage to the Pacific; for without the spirit of adventure rising to true heroism, the great Henry Hudson would never have undertaken his perilous voyage. It was this spirit of restless and resistless destiny, ever pointing toward the West, that drove early mariners out upon and across the unfamiliar sea to inhospitable shores.

"But bolder they who first off-cast
Their moorings from the habitable past,
And ventured chartless on the sea
Of storm-engendering liberty."

"To find a navigable stream, however, upon whose placid surface slow-moving craft might carry the burdens of a sluggish commerce would not fulfill the demands of the genius of the future; there must be added thereto the inventive skill of which America was able to furnish more than her share. The practical application to navigation by Fulton of the then almost untried force of steam stands for more than the beginning of profitable traffic. It was an expression of that idea of progress which ever since the dawn of civilization has, with measured tread, been overcoming the obstacles to advancement which great distances offered to the nations of antiquity.

"We turn then in our thought to-night to the past, not because it was a golden age from which we have in sorrow parted, but rather because we see in it sure indications of an eternal purpose that humanity shall reach a goal hidden to our forefathers by the mists of ignorance and superstition. It was the spirit of Truth that inspired Henry Hudson and Robert Fulton — the Spirit that shall make men free.

"Toward the establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth the nations of the world in this country are committed. All changes in commercial development, in political science, in education and practical beneficences must in these days bear the stamp of genuineness and must be seen to be for the common good to be of permanent duration.

Hon.
Geo. B.
Wellington

"Standing at the head of navigation, this city — three centuries ago a Dutch settlement devoted to primitive agriculture — has grown to be a cosmopolitan center in which are seen every day all the phases of the intellectual life, as well as the industrial struggles, of a growing world. We have learned some lessons from experience and take courage in the accomplishment of many things that demonstrate our fitness to survive. We have produced patriots, scientists, inventors, educators, statesmen, merchants and manufacturers of renown. No less than seven of our manufacturing industries, the largest of their kind in this country, have made our city famous; but no less distinguished is she because of two schools, the one the greatest of engineering schools, the other the first seminary founded for the higher education of women.

"Within our body politic is the soul of progress. Our backward glance is not of regret but rather one of reverence. From it we take new inspiration for the future. While unselfish devotion to the interests of this community shall dominate us in all our acts, so long may we with pride exclaim that we have kept the faith and have been loyal to the high calling to which we were summoned by the heroes of the past."

THE TOASTMASTER: "I have now the pleasure of introducing to you one whose charm and dignity have added so much to the pleasure of the day, one whom we love and respect, his Excellency, Charles E. Hughes, Governor of the State of New York."

Hon.
E. P.
Mann

GOVERNOR HUGHES: "Mr. Mayor, Fellow Citizens: This splendid demonstration in the prosperous City of Troy crowns worthily the entire Celebration. I have had many escorts but never an escort of greater beauty and significance than that which led me through the streets of your beautiful city. It has been my pleasure to follow the mounted police force of New York, that excellent squad representing the highest degree of police efficiency, whose work during the Celebration in the metropolis has been the pride of the entire State. I have followed the National Guard, whose discipline and

Governor
Hughes

Governor Hughes fine appearance rivals that of the regular soldiery. But I love to follow the children. To-day, it seemed to me that they were leading us to the future, and in the midst of the Celebration of the past, were pointing out the path of promise.

"You, in Troy, who have devoted anxious hours to the preparation for this event have just reason for gratification to-night. It is not simply that you had a fine parade; it is not alone that you had tasteful decorations; it is not merely that you have so happily chosen this splendid specimen of marine architecture in which to commemorate the invention of Fulton, but it is the fact that your people have displayed such enthusiasm and genuine interest in this Celebration.

"Your city is famed for industry, and you in a peculiar way represent to us the advantages of the Hudson as a source of power.

"In the words of Washington Irving, I thank God that I was born on the banks of the Hudson. This Celebration has been of the river and of the exploration of the river, which to me is the most familiar of all scenes of beauty and interest. Again, in the words of the same writer, Irving, who himself has made this valley ever memorable to the lovers of literature, I may say, 'that in a manner, the Hudson is my first and last love, and after all my wanderings and seeming infidelities, I return here with a heartfelt preference for this river over all the rivers of the world.'

"We shall remember in the future, by reason of the emphasis of this Celebration, that we must safeguard the beauty of this noble stream. The Celebration was fitly inaugurated by the dedication of the Palisades Interstate Park. That work which was begun so auspiciously and continued with a fine illustration of public spirit, has recently been followed by provision for State acquisition of the highlands of the Hudson. We must remember that the beauty of this stream is one of the most priceless treasures of the State of New York. I hope to see the river fronts of our cities improved. I hope to see them adorned with suitable commemorative monuments. I hope there will be esplanades, and places of ready access, where the people will enjoy the great resources of Nature. I hope that the more prosperous a community is, the more it will strive to keep the Hudson pure and beautiful.

"As a result of this Celebration we shall also give more thought to the possibilities of increasing the prosperity of the communities along this river by providing against the diminution of its flow and seeking to increase the power which it can easily render, by proper treatment of its headwaters. I hope that here, in Troy, by virtue of the just cooperation of nation, State and city, you may have, as you deserve, a largely increased industrial development. You have only begun in Troy to realize the advantages of your situation. We have come from the beauties of the southern part of the river. We have had a striking celebration at its mouth, in that most favored of harbors. But here we come to the true river, escaping the sea, and we look to the sources of power in the north, and have our attention directed to those means of which advantage may easily be taken, to increase the industrial prosperity of the State.

Governor
Hughes

"I want to see the headwaters of the Hudson and its tributaries so treated under State control, and with due regard for forest preservation, that we may have an important increase of power distributed under proper conditions securing the public right, so that the industrial opportunities of the Hudson Valley will be far greater in the next one hundred years than even the present generation has supposed to be possible. We think of the Hudson as a majestic stream with rare beauty. But we also think of it as a wonderful source of industrial energy; all the more important in these days, when energy is so easily transmitted. We of course can never forget the Hudson as a great commercial highway. The State is spending a vast sum in order that this highway may still more fully realize the benefits it was intended to secure. You of Troy are at a strategic point. You are here where you get the advantages of rail and canal and river. You have industry and commerce. What is better, you have the civic disposition to make the best of all, and that cooperation which is the finest illustration of civic pride. And so I hail the Troy of the future.

"But this Celebration is not bringing to our attention simply the material advantages that we may enjoy, or even the scenes of beauty and charm by which we have been blessed by Nature. We in this valley are at the very place where the nation in the awful struggle for liberty was born. Only a short distance from this spot, near the banks of the river the fateful battle of Saratoga was fought.

Governor Hughes It was because the proposed communication along this stream failed those who were antagonizing the sons of liberty that we have a nation to-day, and we along the Hudson are baptized with a spirit of independence and realize that we, of all, should show the most intense loyalty to the institutions which were made possible upon the battlefield of Saratoga.

"We have had a new influx of patriotic feeling, but we can never properly stimulate ourselves for the future simply by paying tribute to the past. We must catch the spirit of the men we revere. We must take to ourselves the lesson taught by the enterprise of Hudson and by the patient research and experimentation of Fulton. But the best of lessons that are taught in school and life are not taught explicitly — in fact, they are implicit. To-day all New York, and particularly the communities along the Hudson, are inspired because they have been working unitedly in a common effort to give honor where honor is due. The Commission, chartered by the State of New York, has done its work in a way to command the admiration of all the people of the State. The local committees in the different communities along the Hudson have labored unselfishly and have overcome a thousand obstacles in order that this Celebration might be an accomplished fact. Certainly not in my experience have so many people of the State forgotten their controversies and united together in glad demonstration.

"I thank Captain Foley of the Seminole for his cordial words and for offering the toast a few minutes ago, and in turn I want to express my appreciation of the work that has been done by the Revenue Cutter Service in taking care of the traffic on this stream, and in avoiding accident and making possible the splendid demonstration of all the fleets of the world without annoyance.

"I desire also to express — for we must not forget our own in what we say of others — I desire to express my heartfelt appreciation of the appearance of the men of our own fleet in these waters. They have performed what I hope will be the only function of the American Navy — important as it is for work of offense or defense, should there be any occasion therefor. They have stimulated our pride as citizens of the United States and made us feel that we are represented by men who, should the summons come, will unflinchingly do their duty.

"So we have had a rare exhibition of patriotism and a rare stimulus to our own loyalty, while at the same time we have been receiving and have been speaking messages of peace. We have welcomed here the representatives of the great powers to join in our Celebration. And our progress, as I have frequently said, means, we trust, a benediction to humanity.

"And last, and by no means least — but indeed first — we recognize the happy augury of this second visit of the Half Moon from the people of that little country who, long before we engaged in the struggle of freedom, buried their land, sank their estates, counted life for naught, that they might shake off the chains of tyranny. It is a beautiful thing that we can celebrate this 300th birthday of this valley by welcoming the representatives of a race that will be forever distinguished in the annals of history by William the Silent. It is a significant thing that the impulse to this exploration was the impulse of trade felt by a free people who had established the rights of manhood and who were seeking peaceful conquest by sending their ships into all the world. It is to the credit of the Netherlands that they sought out Henry Hudson, an Englishman, and sent so skilled a voyager to find a new route of trade. And, while he did not find the route he sought, he found a route which has been unparalleled for its commerce in all the history of exchanges.

"And to-night we pray to Almighty God that the spirit of this Celebration, which is the spirit of true Americanism, of invincible democracy, shall abide with us forever, and bless this valley and,
 with it, the entire land of a united people."

THE TOASTMASTER: "Gentlemen, I would like to have you keep your seats and listen to a few words from Lieutenant Lam of the Half Moon."
 Hen. E. P. Mann

LIEUTENANT LAM: "Gentlemen, I am no speaker. I will try to say in a few words the feelings that we have here, in view of the Celebration. Nearly every toast and every speech has spoken of Holland and of our fair Queen who governs us, and who is very popular in our country. Every toast to the Queen in this Celebration is answered here by you. I have the honor to be the guest of the State of New York for a few weeks. I would like to thank the Governor for the cordial welcome he gave me yesterday in Albany, as the guest of the State."
 Lieut. Wm. Lam

"We of the Half Moon have tried to sail up the river, but we have most always been in tow, and always have had to have assistance to come up. The Naval Committee has assisted us in every way possible, and at all times they were asking us 'Do you want anything?' 'Can we help you with anything?' And yet every moment we were of the impression that we were quite safe and secure on the Hudson River.

"I want, in a few words, to thank the Chairman of the Naval Committee for the reception he has given us."

Night
Parade

At 8.15 P. M. the Governor and distinguished guests were escorted to the reviewing stand at the City Hall, where they reviewed the grand historic civic and float parade, which was the largest ever seen in Troy. This parade was composed of about six thousand men, eleven bands, and five drum corps, with Grand Marshal Col. Merrill Dunsbaugh and staff, Major Thomas W. Hislop, Adjutant; Troy Chamber of Commerce and float; Letter Carriers of Troy; Oriental Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine; Arab Patrol and float; Troy Lodge B. P. O. Elks and floats; Collar and Shirt Factory Employees; German Societies; French Societies; Italian Societies; Knights of the Maccabees, Uniform Rank; Improved Order of Red Men; Uniform Rank, I. O. O. F.; Knights of Columbus; Troy Commercial Travelers Association; Firemen's Division; Students Association, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute; Troy Federation of Labor; Union Labor Organizations, and Historical Floats.

Fire
Works

At 9.45 P. M. the Governor and distinguished guests boarded the steamer Trojan and at 10 o'clock the party sailed down the river homeward bound, passing through a grand display of pyrotechnics at the Arsenal dock and on both sides of the river. This spectacular demonstration brought to an end a most dignified and magnificent celebration, which, from its inception, reflected credit upon the members of the different committees and the citizens of Troy.

A few days after the Celebration, Mr. Burns, Chairman of the Executive Committee, received the following letters, which are self-explanatory:

" FLAG-SHIP TARO.

" NEWBURGH, N. Y., Oct. 13, 1909.

" Mr. CORNELIUS F. BURNS, Troy, N. Y.:

" MY DEAR MR. BURNS.— On my return home I was presented with the Up-River Naval Parade flag by our committee. I have concluded with their consent to present the flag to the City of Troy, through you, for the reason that the Celebration at your city was such as to entitle you to the flag. It is my pleasure to testify in this way to the intelligent work that you have performed at the Commission meetings during the three years that our work has been under way, and what we were able to do for Troy is to a large extent due to the work that you have performed.

" The flag has been mailed to you under separate cover, and I will consider it a favor if you will kindly acknowledge receipt of same.

" Some day in the near future I hope to visit Troy and will then be pleased to see what disposition you have made of the flag.

" Very truly yours,

" W. J. MCKAY,

" Chairman of Up-River Naval Parade Committee.

" FLAG-SHIP TARO

" Upper Hudson Naval Parade Committee,

" December 10, 1909.

" Mr. CORNELIUS F. BURNS, Troy, N. Y.:

" DEAR SIR.— I am sending you under separate cover one of the three final shells of 21 guns fired aboard the flagship Taro which marked the closing event of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration at your city on October 9, 1909.

" I am doing this because I feel that you ought to have it in connection with the flag which was awarded to you for the best Celebration along the Hudson River.

" The Committee recognized the active interest you took in this matter and the full credit has been given to you by our Committee.

" With best wishes and kind regards and hoping to see you soon, I remain,

" Very truly yours,

" BEN. F. HAMILTON,

" Secretary."

CHAPTER LIX

COHOES CEREMONIES

THE situation of the City of Cohoes at the confluence of the Mohawk River and the Erie Canal with the river which Hudson explored naturally aroused great local interest in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration and made it appropriate that the calendar of events should be extended so as to permit the holding of ceremonies at this point. Sunday and Monday, October 10 and 11, were therefore set apart for observance at Cohoes, and here the entire 16-day Celebration came to an end.

Local Organization

The members of the Commission residing in Cohoes are the Hon. Merritt D. Hanson, Mayor, Mr. William P. Adams, Mr. Charles R. Ford, Hon. William J. Grattan, and Mr. John Scanlon. The local committee in charge of the Celebration consisted of these Commissioners, and Messrs. P. H. Andrae, D. J. Cosgro, James S. Clute, H. C. Fruchting, Frank A. Gallup, George A. Harper, Egbert P. Lansing, James H. Mitchell, D. C. McElwain, Q. S. McNeil, Wilfred Palin, Gilbert Roberts, John Spence, H. M. Sweet, James B. Wallace and James H. Wilson. They organized with Mayor Hanson as Chairman, Mr. Adams as Vice-Chairman and Mr. Ford as Secretary-Treasurer.

The same festive spirit manifested in the ceremonies in other places during the preceding fortnight was shown in Cohoes in the public and private decorations and illuminations, the inpouring of throngs of people from the surrounding country, and the great indoor and outdoor demonstrations.

Praise
Service

The Celebration opened with a Union Sabbath and Day School Praise Service at the Railroad Station Park on Sunday, October 10, beginning at 12.30 P. M. The service began with an invocation by the Rev. Thomas S. Keveny, after which

Mayor Hanson introduced Governor Hughes in the following words:

MAYOR HANSON: "On several occasions I have had the honor ^{Mayor Hanson} of being able to introduce our distinguished Governor to the citizens of Cohoes, but I feel that this opportunity is the greatest honor of all, being introduced to the youth of our City — our school and Sunday school scholars — to speak to you on this historical occasion. And I have great pleasure in introducing to you the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, Governor of the State of New York."

GOVERNOR HUGHES: "Mr. Mayor, Boys and Girls, Young ^{Governor Hughes} Men and Young Women, Fellow Citizens: I come to you with the greetings of the People of the State of New York on this beautiful and happy day. I have addressed in the last two weeks many audiences, but I would rather talk to the children than to any audience that could possibly be gathered. Here is the promise of America. The patriotism of our men and women assures us the present; the love of the flag on the part of the boys and girls secures to us the future. And so, I congratulate the people of Cohoes that it has remained for them to gather together in most beautiful unity all the children of all the schools of this industrious community, that we might close the Celebration with a pledge of our youth that they will preserve the treasures that the fathers have handed down to them. My best wishes, boys and girls. I hope you will be happy, prosperous and useful.

"I trust you are all studying history in these days, and learning a little more definitely of the events which have taken place in the valley of the Hudson and along the Mohawk. We have been carried back to the time when this was the old Indian trail before the white man settled here, at the time when the first explorer of the Hudson found his way to the north in the little Half Moon. How I wish that every boy and girl here could see that little Half Moon that our good friends of Holland have presented to us. It is a perfect copy of the ship in which Henry Hudson sailed. It seems so small that you could hardly believe that the Atlantic could be crossed in it. You find it difficult to understand how anyone could have undertaken such a voyage in the seas of the north in the endeavor to find a new way over to Asia. You know at that time they had no idea what a big country this is. There are some of us

Hughes now who do not half realize what a big country this is. You have to travel days and nights with our most improved methods of transportation across this great continent and even then you may not really appreciate the size of our wonderful country.

"You have to visit community after community, filled with patriotic, honest, law-abiding people from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Maine to the Gulf of Mexico, and then it is almost impossible to realize what this country means. But in that early day they had little idea of the geography of this country, and they thought they might find a way to the East and discover new opportunities of trade. Henry Hudson came here and sailed up this river, thinking he was going straight through to the western ocean. He did not know any more about it than that, although it is probable that he knew as much as any man of his day with regard to the New World. For Captain John Smith — you know all about Captain John Smith of Virginia — had told of his voyages and explorations and a memorandum had been made of what he had accomplished, and Henry Hudson came to this river thinking possibly that by following it he might go straight across and find a way to the Old World. Well, he found something a great deal better than what he looked for; he found it despite the greatest disadvantages. He had a little crew in a little ship, and they did not agree. They gave him constant trouble; they were guilty of mutiny. They did not agree with him on his plans of discovery and adventure. But he was a hardy man. You could not discourage him; you could not dishearten him. No perils could terrify him. He was a man whom we honor to-day not simply because his name is linked with our river, but because he was one of those great men who make every boy realize what it is to be a man, and to be afraid of nothing but wrong; to be terrified by no danger, but to do his best that humanity may profit by his life. We have of the life of Hudson but few records. He appeared on the scene for the first time when he was in middle life. We do not know his early history; but that does not make any difference. We know this, that he did not become a great discoverer and a courageous man in a moment. Great men are not made in a moment. Great men are great and courageous because they were great boys.

"Boys, do not believe that you can go along and pay no attention to your studies, that you need take no advantage of the opportunities offered to you, and that some fine day honors and prosperity will be showered upon you, and that suddenly you will appear gifted and prepared for the emergencies of life. If you want to do a man's work, you must be an honorable, straightforward, industrious boy and grow up with your manhood conserved and all your powers, physical and mental, intact, so that when you become a man and reach middle life, and the difficulties and ordeals of life are upon you, you will have the capital of your happy and healthy boyhood. If we are to have great men to administer the country, we must have wholesome, manly, honest boys. And it is because I believe I am looking into the faces of troops of such boys, as you find them in every city in our State and Nation, that I am sure of the future.

"You know what an awful fate Henry Hudson had after he had discovered this river — after he had found the opportunities for settlement along the Hudson, and had gone back and told about it. He set out in the next year and discovered the great Hudson's Bay, the sea in the North that bears his name, and there he had trouble with his sailors, and they left him alone to die; they put him off in a small boat with his son and some of his crew, and there all alone in the North, in the icy sea of that unknown North country, Henry Hudson laid down his life. But he had voyaged along our coast; he had explored our Hudson; he had explored the northern portion of the Continent; and as long as America endures, Henry Hudson will be one of our great heroes. But it took a great deal more than a discovery to make America. People had to come here. They had to settle here, where there were savages on every side. They had to trade with the Indians, to cultivate the land, to build up communities, and if the heroism of Hudson had not been followed by the heroism of the early settlers, we would have no country, and we would not be celebrating to-day the events associated with Hudson's name. But it took more than the heroism of pioneers to make our country. For this is a free country, where men stand with equal rights, with civil and religious liberty.

"Now, that was not accomplished without a great struggle, and all along the Hudson Valley we find the interesting spots that are identified with the War of Independence. It is not far from this place where the battle of Saratoga was fought. You boys and girls know all about the battle of Saratoga — how the British had come

Hughes down from the north and another division was to come up from the south, and they were to control this great highway and make Washington's success impossible. But the British General in New York did not get word in time and he did not complete the arrangements that were expected; and Burgoyne who came down our beautiful Champlain Valley did not get any farther than the battlefield of Saratoga, where it was settled in a final decisive contest that America should be the home of the free. So we have a free country founded upon sentiments of liberty and equality.

"In those early days the Hudson was full of white wings. They went up the Hudson in sailing vessels, boats that tacked about to get through the gateway of the Highlands, and finally, after many days, reached the head of navigation. The ports along the Hudson were the homes of skippers, men who were famous as captains of ships, and the whole river was full of these beautiful vessels, large and small, propelled by sails. And then came the other great man whom we celebrate, Robert Fulton.

"Now, Robert Fulton did not discover how to make a boat go by steam all at once. If you ever expect to accomplish anything in this world you must depend upon work, work, work all the time, with but one desire: to do your best and find out what is true, and stand for it every time. That was the reason that Fulton discovered how to make boats go by steam. He toiled and experimented. He tried all sorts of ways; and every way he tried he seemed to be doomed to failure; but finally, as a result of his patient work he got a boat that did go, and that boat was the Clermont; that boat was the father of the Oregon, the father of the Inflexible, the father of all those mighty vessels propelled by steam, that have come to us from the Nations of the earth on this happy day bearing their messages of good will.

"The result is, we have the commerce that made a great State and that commerce came from the region of the Great Lakes through this valley of the Mohawk, and on to the Hudson — for this is one of the most famous routes of trade in the world. You are here enjoying its opportunities and making this a great industrial center.

"We are celebrating to-day events that made a State, and the State contributed to the making of the Union. But we must to-day on this beautiful Sabbath, after two weeks of enjoyable celebration, realize that free institutions will not perpetuate themselves, that discovery and invention alone cannot make a country great. And so Governor to-day, we must rededicate ourselves to the cause of freedom, deter- Hughes mining that we will have life wholesome and sane and sweet in this beloved land; and that we will make more real the equality of opportunity of which we boast.

"Boys and girls, don't grow up with the idea that you must wait for some great thing to do. The boy who gets on best in this world is the one who tackles the job right in front of him and does it the best he knows how. Take the work that comes to you, whether you like it or not; take the work that comes to you and do it. Do it a great deal better than anybody expects you to do it. Don't be trying to see how little you can do. The successful men in this world are men that are determined to conquer every obstacle and are simply anxious for an opportunity to do their best according to the talent God has given them.

"Oh, I don't take any gloomy view of the future of this country. How could one take a gloomy view and look at the boys and girls in our public schools? Yesterday I was at Troy, and they gave me an escort of boys and girls from the public schools. I must add a word about the girls. The girls were in the parade; and when I saw them with their arms akimbo marching so gracefully and with perfect discipline, I said to myself, it may be that women cannot bear arms, but if they could, they would bear them a great deal more gracefully than the men. And there were these boys and girls marching to the stand, where they sang our patriotic songs; and to-day you have gathered here, joining in a beautiful hymn of praise and about to sing our national song. Go to every hamlet and every city in our land and you can duplicate this scene. Our schools are full of alert, intelligent boys and girls. You teachers who are here, do not be discouraged because the lessons are not always learned as you would like them to be. Parents, do not think that it is necessary for progress to have perfect children. The world does not move that way. But we are all the time getting a little better; more appreciative of our advantages; more anxious to learn; more devoted to honorable objects in life. And so to-day, I give you the greeting of the Empire State, and my cordial wishes for your happiness and prosperity.

"This Celebration is worth while, because from the northern part Governor of the Hudson to the great metropolis with its teeming millions, Hughes the children have been brought together to realize what the land is that is represented by our beautiful Star Spangled Banner. Long may it wave over a contented people."

The Governor's address was followed by the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner," the playing of "The Pilgrim's Chorus" from "Tannhauser;" the singing of "America," and the pronouncing of the benediction by the Rev. Frederick S. Sill.

Union
Church
Service

In the evening another remarkable religious service was held in the Reformed Church, in which six different churches united in praise and thanksgiving. The churches represented and pastors present were the Second Street Presbyterian Church, Rev. C. Waldo Cherry, D.D., pastor; the First Baptist Church, Rev. Judson C. Hendrickson, pastor; St. John's Episcopal Church, Rev. Frederick S. Sill, D.D., rector; First Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. Chas. W. Rowley, pastor; St. James Methodist Episcopal Church, Rev. John H. Clark, pastor; Silliman Memorial Presbyterian Church, Rev. Geo. A. Armstrong, pastor; Reformed Church, Rev. Oliver H. Walser, D.D., pastor.

The interior of the large edifice, which was thronged with the largest congregation of recent years, was beautifully decorated. The altar and pulpit were draped with the Stars and Stripes, with a background of draped American flags. The Hudson-Fulton colors, orange, blue and white, were also used in great profusion. The music was rendered by a male chorus of fifty voices, composed of the members of the various local choirs. The program included an organ prelude, Handel's "Largo," by Miss Florence Secor; the Doxology, by the choir and audience; the Lord's Prayer, led by Dr. Walser; Salutation Anthem, "We Come Unto Our Fathers' God," by the male choir; recitation of the Creed by the congregation; singing of Gloria; alternate reading of Psalm 24, led by Mr. Hendrickson;

singing of Psalm 84 by the choir (the original Dutch words being used); reading of Hebrews XI: 23-40 by Dr. Sill; prayer by Mr. Rowley; singing of the offertory, "Be Thou Exalted High," by the male chorus with tenor solo by Mr. Samuel Whittam; sermon by Dr. Cherry; Kipling's "Recessional," sung by Mr. Richard Reece of Troy; the hymn "Jerusalem the Golden," sung by the choir and congregation; prayer by Mr. Armstrong; "America," sung by the choir and congregation; the benediction by Mr. Armstrong, and a postlude on the organ.

Union
Church
Service

On Monday, October 11, the Celebration which began in New York on Saturday, September 25, was brought to a close in Cohoes.

During the afternoon, the local committee took the President of the Commission, General Woodford, and other distinguished guests in carriages and automobiles to the Island Golf Club house where for an hour was held a reception at which the citizens of Cohoes were introduced to the visitors. About 5 p. m. was served a luncheon at which Mayor Hanson acted as toastmaster. For the following resumé of the addresses we are indebted to the Cohoes Republican:

Reception

General Woodford said that it was fine to see the admirals of the different navies of the world assembled at New York, to see the great war vessels, and to see the marching soldiers and sailors from the fleets; but the grandest spectacle of all was to see the 300,000 children from the schools in forty-six districts of New York as they paraded the streets of the great metropolis. The next great sight was the illuminations in New York and elsewhere. Another grand spectacle was to see the sailors and marines from the seven foreign fleets, carrying their arms as though they were in their own country, for this was a parade of peace and good will. But beyond all the admirals and fleets, beyond the illuminations and the marching columns, was the great influence for good that was to follow this Celebration.

General
Woodford

General
Wood-
ford

It showed to the world the democracy of the people of the United States who take these celebrations joyously yet seriously. He said that it was interesting to know that not in the same time in thirty years had the death rate been so low; or had there been so little crime or so few accidents as during the two weeks of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The Celebration had cost a great deal of money, but it was worth all of it and more for the good it will do. In conclusion he complimented the people of Cohoes for their enterprise in the Celebration.

Col. Mac-
Arthur

Col. Arthur MacArthur of Troy, Chairman of the Upper Hudson Committee, said that it was most befitting that the President of the Commission (General Woodford) should complete the grand Celebration at the peaceful headwaters of the Hudson, at the point where the Indian castle of the Mohicans was, and where Henry Hudson turned back to the sea, being unable to sail further north. This Hudson-Fulton Celebration stood as a monument to the enlightenment of the world by pioneers in daring. Every man, woman and child had been impressed. History made itself felt the more people came in touch with it by such celebrations as these of events of the past. And the delegations that came here from Europe, Asia and Africa would return to their homes, bearing with them a higher appreciation of the greatness of America.

Hon.
Benj.
McClung

Mayor Benjamin McClung of Newburgh began his remarks in a humorous vein, telling of the strenuous life that the Committeemen had led during the past week and how they wore their top hats and dress suits before breakfast — having put them on after 6 in the evening before. He then spoke about the friendships formed among the men who had been associated together in the Celebration coming up the river, and said that he was heartily in favor of a suggestion made by Mr. Scanlon of Cohoes that these men should form an association for social purposes and be legally incorporated. He said that this was the very first time that he had ever set foot upon the soil of Cohoes and hoped to remain long enough to see some of its business industries. He invited all friends present to come and visit him at Newburgh.

Mayor Hanson, in introducing Mr. Cornelius F. Burns of ^{Mr. C. F. Burns} Troy, spoke of him as one of Troy's leading men in arranging the Celebration, and said that he had proved to be a good friend to Cohoes.

Mr. Burns said that the people of Troy had a kindly feeling for the citizens of Cohoes and that he himself always felt at home there. He also referred to the remarks made by Mayor McClung and General Woodford about the kindly feeling that the Celebration had created among the people of the different cities and said he coincided therein.

Mr. Benjamin Hamilton, Secretary of the Upper Hudson ^{Mr. Benj. Hamilton} Committee and Commodore of the Upper Hudson fleet, said that the Celebration was an event long to be remembered with pleasure. The sail up the river had brought back memories of school-boy days and the stories then read about Hudson and Fulton. He also commented on the Celebration as a factor in cementing friendships between different communities along the river.

City Attorney Scanlon of Cohoes, the last speaker, said it ^{Hon. John Scanlon} had been a privilege and pleasure to become acquainted with representative citizens from Newburgh to Cohoes, men of culture, integrity and intelligence with whom it was most pleasing to associate, as they sailed up the Hudson, and he would ever look back to his association with them with fond recollections. They were not men of petty jealousy and he trusted that their friendships would last, for he now knew that he had friends in every city along the river and he rejoiced to see many of them there that day to honor the city with their presence.

On Monday evening, October 11, was held the finest military, ^{Night Parade} fireman and civic parade ever seen in Cohoes. The largest crowds of the day began to pour into the city about dusk. Every city, town and village within a radius of twenty miles sent its quota of spectators to swell the throng which was estimated to number 50,000 persons.

The crowds which lined the streets were inclined to behave well. There was much noise with horns, cow-bells, rackets, frying-pans, etc., but no serious disorder. The streets through which the procession marched were a maze of color and gorgeous with illuminations. The electrical display, by its brilliancy, turned night into day. Thousands of cleverly hidden incandescent bulbs, arranged in the decorations, flashed into light, and with the Court of Honor, handsomely decorated buildings, and general appearance suggestive of fairyland, the city has never presented a more beautiful appearance.

It is estimated that there were over 2,000 men in the procession, which marched in the following order:

River
Carnival

The Celebration on the river at the head of navigation on Monday evening, October 11, brought to an end not only the local ceremonies but also the entire Hudson-Fulton Celebration. Commodore Mitchell and the other officers of the Country Club had the river carnival in charge. The aquatic procession, including about 100 gaily decorated motor boats, canoes and rowboats, started about 9.45 p. m. The flagship Cambour led the fleet, followed by the judges' boat Valiant. The latter was followed in turn by the tugboat Frank R. Roosa with the Troy City Band and representatives of the press. At the signal of a rocket, the procession started from opposite 13th street, Lansingburg, and moved up the west side of the Hudson river to a point below the Beacon Electric Co.'s cable at 22d street, Lansingburg. Thence it crossed to the east side of the river and went down stream to a point below Glen avenue, Troy, whence it crossed to the west side again and proceeded up stream as far as 18th street. As the procession turned down stream at 22d street, the fireworks display on the hilltop at Upper Van Schaick Island was begun. During the carnival, the river, from Waterford to the State Dam, was kaleidoscopic with the scintillation of innumerable colored lanterns. There have been some beautiful water carnivals at Cohoes in past years, but none to equal in splendor that with which the Hudson Fulton Celebration was brought to a close.

Mayor's
Letter

The Celebration in Cohoes was characterized by Mayor Hanson in the following official letter issued on Tuesday, October 12:

“COHOES, N. Y., October 12, 1909.

“TO THE CITIZENS OF COHOES.—I feel as Mayor of the City of Cohoes that I cannot permit the great festivities and Celebration that took place during the past two days in our city to go by without, on behalf of the city, expressing my great appreciation to the citizens for the great effort, by them, in making the Celebration a success. Mayor's Letter

"The bringing together on Sunday afternoon of great numbers of school children of our city, and the blending together of the children of all nationalities and creeds to join in the religious Celebration and to be addressed by the city's very honored and distinguished guest, His Excellency Governor Hughes, is something that will always be remembered as one of the great events in the history of our city.

"The words of advice given by His Excellency the Governor I know were drunk in by every child and every adult, and the children of the city were inspired and will profit by the advice given.

"To those who brought the great demonstration about and made it possible for the assembling and blending together of all the children of our city, all honor is given. It was not the effort of one, but the combined effort of all.

"The Celebration of yesterday is on a par with, if not surpasses, any other Celebration in the history of our city, and the festivities, participated in by all our citizens in honor of the discovery of the Hudson River and the application of steam to navigation, are such as will never be forgotten.

"I desire on behalf of the city to thank the members of the various committees who were untiring in their efforts to make the Celebration a success, and their efforts will always, I trust, be appreciated and remembered by the citizens of Cohoes. That their efforts were not in vain is demonstrated by the great result.

"The river demonstration surpassed anything and any festivity ever held on the waters about our city. This scene was one beautiful to behold and one, I trust, that will never be forgotten. Its beauty and grandeur were such as will impress themselves upon the minds of our citizens for years to come.

"In commemorating the great events of the discovery of the Hudson and the application of steam to navigation, Cohoes did herself proud and has placed herself upon a par with the sister cities of the State.

"This great demonstration and commemorating festivities are not the results of any one mind or of any one effort, but are the result of combined efforts of all our citizens generally and demonstrate that combined effort and civic pride will do much to put our city upon the pinnacle where she belongs.

"Again in behalf of our city I congratulate our citizens.

"M. D. HANSON,

"Mayor."

CHAPTER LX

HUDSON RIVER PARKS AND SCENERY

ONE of the most valuable features of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration along the whole Hudson River was its influence in arousing the civic pride of the various localities and the stimulus which it gave to local improvements. Where these improvements were in the nature of creating parks and preserving natural scenery, they expressed what may be called the aesthetic side of the Celebration. In some cases, as in the City of Troy where an ordinance was passed establishing a new park, the projects were actually consummated. In other cases, seed was planted which, it is hoped, will eventually bear fruit. Among the latter were three notable projects which may appropriately be recorded in this report, namely, the proposed Municipal Park on Inwood Hill in New York City, the proposed State Park at Verplanck's Point, and the proposed State Park for the preservation of the scenery of the Highlands. For each of these undertakings the Commission had a special committee. Mr. John E. Parsons is Chairman of the Inwood Hill Park Committee, the Hon. Cornelius A. Pugsley Chairman of the Verplanck's Point Committee, and the Hon. Alton B. Parker Chairman of the Hudson River Scenery Committee.

Inwood
Hill
Park

Inwood Hill forms the northernmost extremity of Manhattan Island. It is about 3,600 feet long, about 1,250 feet wide, and extends along the Hudson River from Dyckman street on the south to Spuyten Duyvil Creek on the north. Near the northern end it has an altitude of 217 feet. Roughly speaking, it has an area of about 105 acres, but it was proposed to take for the park only about 75 acres lying north of the valuable property bordering on Dyckman street or even less if necessary. The hill presents a beautifully rounded contour, is thickly wooded, contains few buildings, and appears almost as it did to Henry Hudson 300 years ago. From it, a more extended view up the Hudson River can be had than from any other part of Manhattan Island. Besides its landscape beauty, it has many historical associations. At the base of the cliffs on the eastern side, near Cold Spring, is a rock habitation in which the aborigines dwelt. This is known from the native implements and utensils found therein and now preserved in the American Museum of Natural History. Manhattan Island thus presents the extraordinary contrast, not paralleled in any other city of America, perhaps in the world, of having at one end an aboriginal dwelling and at the other the tallest buildings that modern architecture can create. Around the rock dwelling are extensive shell heaps left by the Indians belonging to the tribe which attacked Hudson on his return down the river. On the summit of the hill stood the Cock Hill Fort during the American Revolution.

Inwood
Hill
Park

While the idea of a public park at Inwood Hill had been agitated by certain civic organizations before the creation of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, the intrinsic value of the proposition, its historical propriety and its relation to other projected improvements appealed so strongly to the Trustees that it was taken up as an object of prime importance at the very first meeting of the Executive Committee of the Hudson Ter-centenary Joint Committee on December 16, 1905, and for over four years the Inwood Hill Park Committee, under the Chairmanship of Mr. John E. Parsons, has labored assiduously, not only to persuade the municipal authorities of the desirability of creating the park, but also to facilitate the negotiations for the acquisition of the property. The first communication on this subject was addressed to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment on August 15, 1906, recommending the acquisition of 75 acres for the proposed park. During the next nine months, the Inwood Hill Park Committee made a careful analysis of the situation, with the aid of expert assistance, and on May 8, 1907, laid the project before Mayor McClellan personally at the City Hall. The delegation which accompanied Mr. Parsons at this interview and which affords an index of the quality of public sentiment in favor of the Inwood Park Hill project was composed of Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, President of the Commission; Mr. Herman Ridder, Presiding Vice-President of the Commission; Hon. Levi P. Morton, ex-Governor of New York and ex-Vice President of the United States; Hon. Frederick W. Seward, ex-Secretary of State of the United States; Mr. Tunis G. Bergen, Mr. William J. Curtis, Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, Hon. Warren Higley, Mr. George A. Hearn, Mr. Samuel V. Hoffman, Dr. George Frederick Kunz, Hon. William J. McKay, Rear Admiral George W. Melville, U. S. N., Mr. Frank D. Millet, Mr. Bayard L. Peck, Col. Henry W. Sackett, Mr. Isaac N. Seligman, and Mr. Aaron Vanderbilt. The Mayor, who appeared to regard the proposition with favor, requested that the Commission send him a formal communication on the subject which he could lay before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. In compliance with this request, the following letter was sent:

Inwood

"May 20, 1907.

"HON. GEORGE B. MCCLELLAN, Mayor, City Hall, New York:

"DEAR SIR.—The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission avails itself of your kind proposal to put before you in writing the purport of the application made by the Commission to you at the interview which you were so good as to accord to it on May 8.

"Under date of August 15, 1906, the Commission caused to be sent to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment an appeal for a park at Inwood Hill for the double purpose of preserving the hill as a Hudson-Fulton memorial and of using it for such erection, architectural or sculptural, as would indicate and establish its memorial character.

"A copy of the appeal, for convenience of reference, is sent herewith. (See pages 160 and 161 of the printed minutes.)

"In support of our application to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and for submission by you to the Board, permit me to add this:

"The park has already been recommended by influential civic societies and by the city's own engineers. It would secure almost in its primeval condition the last portion of Manhattan Island in respect of which this is possible. From this beautiful wooded knoll, appearing to us to-day almost as it did to Henry Hudson nearly three hundred years ago, a more extended view up the Hudson River can be obtained than from any other part of the island. Besides its landscape beauty, it has many historical associations. At the base of the cliffs near Cold Spring is a rock habitation in which the aborigines dwelt, as was proven by implements and utensils excavated therefrom, and now preserved in the Museum of Natural History. Around it are scattered extensive shell heaps left by the Indians who belonged to the tribe which attacked Hudson on his return from his voyage up the river. On the summit of the hill during the Revolution stood the Cock Hill Fort.

"We are proud to think that New York has already taken its place as a metropolitan city. We point with satisfaction to the mammoth strides with which its population grows. We anticipate in the near future the time when every available part of the island will be used to meet the needs for residence and business of those who wish to make New York their home. The tendency has been and will continue to be in the direction of density of population. What our people need at the present time, what as time goes on will become more and more necessary, will be open spaces which can be used for health and diversion. Nature provided two such places of exceptional suitability at the two ends of the island, one at the Battery and the other at Inwood. The lower end has lost its original character. It has lost everything which associates it with the early history of the settlement. The Government House disappeared years ago. What is left to us is the hill at Inwood.

"There has always been a close association between seas or rivers and the important cities which have been built upon their banks. There will at once occur to our minds Thebes and the Nile, Rome and the Tiber, Constantinople and the Bosphorus, Vienna and the Danube, Paris and the Seine, London and the Thames. Every mile of the Rhine from its source to its mouth is impressed with the history of the continental nations of Europe. New York has been more bountifully endowed than is the case with any of the great capitals, whether of the past or of the present, in the fact of the magnificent stream which makes its harbor, which brings it into touch with all the rest of the world, and which from the first settlement appealed alike to our Dutch, our English, and our Colonial ancestors. Its value to us is always more and more apparent. The question presented by our application is whether there shall be lost to us the one historical possibility which goes back to the beginning, and which may continue to the end. The difference, in respect of which pre-eminence may be claimed for other great rivers, is in the history with which they are associated.

Inwood
Hill
Park

Pardon us if we make too strong an appeal to sentiment and civic pride. The work of man's hands is perishable. The Coliseum may fall to the ground, the arch of Constantine crumble into dust. The seven hills of Rome will endure forever.

"Permit us to submit that the interest of the city now and hereafter, the well-being of the large population which is to crowd the upper part of the island, and suitable regard for historical association, for the past, and for patriotic feeling, and the urgency which requires that New York shall be rounded out in every direction which is consistent with its importance, require the preservation of this hill.

"When the matter was first considered by the Commission it was thought that its application should be for the entire hill from Dyckman street on the south to its northerly limit, embracing an area of about one hundred and five acres. The Commission is most anxious to yield to every consideration of economy which is consistent with the accomplishment of its purpose. It has come to the conclusion that in large measure the purpose which it and many others have at heart will be accomplished by reducing the area so as to omit the part of the hill which bounds on the upper side of Dyckman street, and to omit the lower part of the hill to the eastward, thus reducing the area to not very much more than sixty acres. The Commission has caused inquiry to be made about values and is satisfied that the acquisition of this property ought not to involve an outlay beyond $2,000,000. And it must be kept in mind that if any scheme for roads, over or around the hill, is to prevail, and if the bridge shall be built, with its necessary approaches, this will involve a material expenditure which will be saved to the city when the city becomes the owner of the hill.

"Yours respectfully,

"STEWART L. WOODFORD,

"President.

"HENRY W. SACKETT,

"Secretary."

It is not necessary to particularize here all the various calls upon, interviews with, and communications to the municipal authorities on this subject. All had the same end, namely, to induce the city to acquire the park and to coordinate with it the other public improvements proposed at that end of the island.

The relation which this proposition sustains to other proposed public improvements, above alluded to, is this: For a decade or more, the city has contemplated extending Riverside Drive northward from its present terminus on the south side of Dyckman street. It has planned that this extension shall be made across Dyckman street by means of a viaduct; across Inwood Hill by a driveway; and across Spuyten Duyvil Creek by a bridge, which, it is proposed, shall be called the Hudson Memorial Bridge. Thus there are three inter-related propositions affecting the northern and western portion of Inwood Hill, namely, the acquisition of land for the bridge approach; the acquisition of land for Riverside Drive and the acquisition of land for Inwood Hill Park. The Inwood Hill Park Committee, representing with authority the sentiments of the Commission, has taken the position that from considerations of public policy, the city should not deal with these three phases of the subject independently and consecutively, but should cover them all together and simultaneously by the acquisition of the 75 acres, more or less, recommended for the park. The Commission has pointed out to the municipal authorities that if land for the bridge approach or for the Riverside Drive extension only is acquired, the price of the adjacent property will immediately be raised, and the city will be confronted with the same situation as that which it faced when it acquired Central Park. In that case, the city purchased the area from 59th to 106th streets, a distance of 47 blocks, for $5,111,426. When it came to adding the four blocks from 106th to 110th street, which should have cost, at the same rate, about $435,000, it was astounded by a valuation of $1,499,429 — an increase at the rate of more than 300 per cent in three years. In other words, the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission argued that with respect to Inwood Hill, the city would save money by acquiring outright the 75 acres recommended, whereas it would be bidding against itself if it took the property piecemeal. The Commission also urged that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment give the park plan precedence

Inwood
Hill

over the bridge plan, for the reason that the bridge is not needed now. As the building of the bridge can be postponed until after the acquisition of Inwood Hill Park without risk of increased cost of constructing the bridge and without injury to public interests, while the reverse course will inevitably involve a greatly increased cost of the park property, the best policy of the city would seem to be obvious.

The Commission has also taken another position with reference to this proposition, namely, that it will assist in every legitimate way to bring the municipal authorities and the Inwood Hill property owners together, but it will not countenance excessive prices for the property. When the Commission first brought the proposition to the attention of the Mayor and Board of Estimate in 1906, it secured a number of options, sufficient to establish a basis for acquiring the whole 75 acres, and had reason to believe that a considerable part of the 75 acres in question could have been purchased on the basis of not to exceed $2,000,000 for the whole.

At present writing, the Inwood Hill Park project remains in statu quo. The Inwood Hill Park Committee, however, by authority of the Trustees, remains in active service, and it is hoped that the city authorities may soon see the wisdom of conserving this last remaining vestige of almost primeval Manhattan as a legacy for future generations.

Ver-
planck's
Point
Park

The proposition for a State Park at Verplanck's Point on the Hudson River was in part the result of a proposition to hold a World's Fair at that point. This project was advanced at a public hearing by the Commission on December 29, 1905. By the middle of the following year, however, the idea of a World's Fair had practically been thrown out of consideration by the Commission, and instead thereof, the Plan and Scope Committee recommended on June 13, 1906, that a State Park be created at Verplanck's Point. The report set forth the arguments for the park in the following words:

"We recommend that the State of New York authorize the acquisition by agreement or condemnation of about 20 acres on Verplanck's Point, or so much as may be necessary to embrace the salient landscape and historical features of the point, for a public park.

Ver-
planck's
Point
Park

"Hudson sailed between Stony and Verplanck's Point on his northward voyage September 14, 1609, according to an easily recognizable passage in his journal, and anchored here on his return trip, October 1. These two headlands form the natural gateway to the Highlands and have been likened by Irving to the Pillars of Hercules, of which Stony Point is the Gibraltar. The State already has a reservation of 34 acres on the Stony Point Battlefield, which has been improved under the care of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society and is now visited by nearly 20,000 persons a year.

"On Verplanck's Point, the military complement of Stony Point, stood Fort Fayette, which shared the vicissitudes of the post across the river, and the remains of which are still extant. Here, in 1782, Washington and the American army received Count Rochambeau and the French auxiliaries en route from Virginia for Boston. The hill on which Washington's marquee stood is one of the conspicuous eminences in that region. Between the two points was the famous King's Ferry, which was the principal trans-Hudson thoroughfare between New England and the West and South during the War for Independence, and across which all the great commanders and conspicuous figures of that period and troops of all the armies passed at one time or another.

"This point, while not lacking diversity of elevation, is not so rugged as Stony Point, and is readily adaptable to the purposes of a great recreation ground for wholesome popular enjoyment such as does not exist either in the City of New York or elsewhere in the State. The rapid growth of the metropolis and the increasing difficulty of providing adequate recreation grounds within the city limits; the justice of reserving from private ownership suitable places where the people at large, in city and county, can have access to and free enjoyment of the beauties of the world-famous Hudson; and the material shortening of time-distances by improved transit facilities, are added reasons for giving to the people on this occasion this eligible and interesting reservation on the east bank of the river."

1755145

In pursuance of this recommendation, the Verplanck's Point Committee, of which Hon. C. A. Pugsley of Peekskill is Chairman, prepared a map and secured estimates upon which it based specific recommendations to the Trustees on January 23, 1907. The map and recommendations in detail appear on pages 221-226 of the Official Minutes. From this report, it appeared that about the year 1830, with a view to real estate developments, Verplanck's Point was laid out as a city, to be called Verplanck, with streets and avenues somewhat upon the plan of the City of New York. This plan is used locally in the indication of property lines. The Committee recommended the acquisition of various parcels, embracing a total of 105 acres. It included the principal water-front of the point, Washington Hill, and a parkway connecting them. This area would include not only the most salient topographic features of the point, but also the localities of chief historical interest — the site of Fort Fayette, the Battery, the Ferry landing, Washington's Hill and Camp Ground. It was estimated that the water front property could be bought on the basis of about $1,000 an acre and the portions farther back at prices ranging from $500 to $700 an acre.

planck's

On April 16, 1907, the Hon. James K. Apgar introduced in the Assembly a bill "to provide for acquiring land on Verplanck's Point in Westchester County for a Hudson-Fulton Memorial Park and making an appropriation therefor." The bill appropriated $125,000, but failed to become a law.

On February 10, 1909, the Hon. F. L. Young introduced substantially the same bill in the Assembly, the appropriation this time being reduced to $75,000, but this effort was equally unsuccessful.

The Hudson River Scenery Committee, of which the Hon. Alton B. Parker is Chairman, was authorized to be appointed at the meeting of the Trustees held on September 23, 1908. Upon assuming their duties, the Committee asked Mr. F. P. Albert, for many years an active champion of the natural beauty of the Hudson Valley, to assist them as Secretary of the Committee. The principal object of this Committee was to save the Highlands of the Hudson River as a tribute to the memory of Hudson and Fulton. It was felt that there could be no more fitting memorial of Hudson's and Fulton's achievements than provision that these silent witnesses of the passing events of centuries should remain undespoiled of their natural beauty and grandeur. High-lands Park

The arguments in favor of the undertaking of this Committee are well set forth in the following report to the Trustees:

"One purpose for which this Committee was created having been 'to promote legislation,' this Committee respectfully recommends the indorsement by the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the accompanying bill entitled 'An Act to establish a State park in the Highlands of the Hudson River, as a memorial to Henry Hudson and Robert Fulton, to provide for the selection, location, appropriation and management thereof, and thereby to preserve the natural scenery of the Hudson River.' The adoption of the bill is suitable to the purpose for which the Hudson-Fulton Commission was created, and will redound to its credit as an enduring tribute to Hudson and Fulton. What has been arranged for as enduring in character in proximity to the City of New York is altogether commendable, though local, but the Hudson River extends northward 150 miles, and Hudson and Fulton had relation to the river in its entirety. It was the natural scenery that the early navigator discovered and knew, and it was Fulton's revolutionary changes in the application of steam as a motive power of commerce that has brought the upper reaches of the Hudson nearer to a great metropolis.

"In favor of this bill it may be said that thirteen miles of the Palisades having already been protected at a cost of $450,000, the even more beautiful and varied scenery of the Highlands of the Hudson, which extend fifteen miles between Peekskill and Newburgh, will be saved for the People of the State of New York, and the State will not be humiliated by the vandalism of trade in the eyes of travelers from all parts of this country and all parts of the world.

"Along both sides of the river are highways, rendering this park accessible; conversely it may be said that this strip will add beauty to those highways and eventually afford the immediate means of communication along the western shore with the metropolis.

"While it is true that this Commission is 'Hudson-Fulton' in name, and is concerned with providing memorials to the man who discovered the Hudson River, and who sailed past the Highlands long before the establishment of our Republic; also to the man who adapted steam to navigation; yet you are preserving a region full of the memories of our Dutch traditions, described in American poetry and fiction, and replete in associations with early American history.

"Your Committee, as individuals and as a body, has received a considerable

Highlands
Park

number of communications (John Bigelow, Herbert Satterlee et al.) expressing the hope that the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission may provide enduring memorials in the way of permanent assets to the State of New York.

"Regarding Section XVIII, it may be said that a number of property owners in this region, appreciating the effort to preserve this natural scenery, will help this movement by turning in their lands at a nominal value.

"The delayed protection for the shores of the Tappan Zee presents the problems of saving the remaining Highlands of our river from further destruction, with unusual force. Careful investigation places the present value of the quarries now in operation there at $5,000,000, while before their lodgment, undisturbed in its natural beauty, the whole of Hook Mountain, where the quarries are now in operation, could have been bought for $25,000 or $30,000. To delay protection of the natural scenery of the Hudson River until after serious damage has been done, and then in preventing the further defacement to be compelled to pay enormously for damage already inflicted, does not appeal to the practical business mind as a position in which the interests of the public should be placed or remain unprovided for, and the action taken by some of our commercial organizations clearly indicates that view of the question."

In order to stimulate public sentiment on this subject, the Committee issued a circular, containing the foregoing report and the following public appeal:

"To the People of the State of New York:

"The Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commissioners appointed by the Governor of the State and Mayor of the City of New York for the purpose of commemorating two important historical events in our national life, have appointed the undersigned Committee to secure legal protection for the Highland scenery of our river from the defacement which is spreading along its shores.

"The vital importance of checking the ruthless destruction of the natural resources of our country has become a matter of national solicitude and State authorities are aroused to the necessity of stopping the waste and ruin of those valuable gifts of Nature which should contribute to the general welfare.

"As three days of the approaching week of Celebration are to be devoted throughout the State to civic and religious ceremonies; when in its pulpits and educational centers serious thought and expression will be given of the far-reaching effort of those eventful periods on our existence and growth as a nation, these lessons should be permanent and their educational value not confined to the week of Celebration or limited in their scope of influence to the present generation, but should in commemorative and commanding form be perpetuated.

"No ordinary character of memorial seems adequate to express the national interest which centers in events so closely related to the progress of civilization on the North American Continent, and none of the many attractive forms of nature with which this good land of ours is so richly embellished are as familiar or appeal as strongly for protection as the Highland region of our river. Through the Hudson Valley flows the tide of traffic and travel of a Continent and millions of people delight in the quiet enjoyment of its magnificent scenery. Throughout this region cluster the recollections of Revolutionary strife and by investing them now with the distinction of memorial monuments additional interest will be given to the world-renowned Highlands of the Hudson. ^{Highlands Park}

"Rarely does such an opportunity occur in the performance of a specific public duty to secure also a great public benefaction, and as the State of New York is alone responsible for the preservation of the natural scenery of our river, the cooperation of every citizen is invited in support of the measures of the Hudson-Fulton Commissioners, to make as an enduring part of the coming ter-centennial celebration, security for all time of these natural monuments of the Hudson as memorial monuments of the nation.

"ALTON B. PARKER,
"Chairman.

"F. P. ALBERT,
"Secretary."

The efforts of the Committee to arouse a general interest in preserving this permanent form of memorial met with gratifying response in a practically unanimous public approval of the plan. No feature of the Celebration received more thorough endorsement by the press of the City and State of New York than that for the preservation of the romantic scenery of the river.

Through their Committee on Forestry, the Federation of Women's Clubs of the State of New York took an active interest in the cause. The published statements of the Hudson River Scenery Committee were circulated throughout the State by the clubs of that organization, and upon their invitation the Secretary of the Committee addressed the members of the Federation at their annual convention at Rochester in November, 1909.

While the Committee's bill (Wainwright-Merritt bill No. 1318) for the protection of the wild forest growth of the Highland region, some seventy square miles in extent, passed the Legislature and was signed by the Governor, their bill for the preservation of the Highland scenery of the Hudson River (Bennett bill No. 2274) was withheld by the Finance Committee of the Senate because of the appropriations already agreed upon for the Celebration ceremonies, and on May 26, 1909, at the regular monthly meeting of the Trustees of the Commission, Judge Parker, Chairman of the Committee on Hudson River Scenery, presented the following report:

"The Committee on Hudson River Scenery reports:

"That they have prepared and caused to be presented to the Legislature, two bills for the protection of the scenery of the Hudson River.

"The one (Wainwright-Merritt bill No. 1318) which provides for the preservation of the wooded slopes of the Highlands extending over an area of seventy-five square miles under the care of the Forestry Commissioner, has passed the Legislature and has been signed by the Governor.

"The other (Bennett bill No. 2214) having for its object a continuation of the methods employed to protect the Palisades to a point as far north as Newburgh, after passing the Assembly and to a third reading in the Senate, was held back from a favorable report by the reluctance of the Finance Committee of the Senate to make any further appropriation this year than the $300,000 given to the general celebration fund.

"With an expenditure of $229 out of the appropriation of $250 (vouchers for which are in the hands of the Assistant Secretary) your Committee has through different organizations and clubs distributed throughout the State fifteen thousand illustrated pamphlets and brought the subject to the notice of all the leading newspapers. The effect of this work has been an aroused public interest and a practically unanimous endorsement by the press of the plan embodied in the bills to save the Highlands from further defacement, as a suitable permanent tribute to the achievements of Hudson and Fulton.

"We are sorry not to report that we have accomplished the mission you assigned to us. But we do report our belief that the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission can yet accomplish the public service which it set out to render — not this year, it is true, but next. If it be the desire of this Commission to have the Committee on Hudson River Scenery continue on its behalf the efforts already made to secure legislation along the line of the Bennett bill, you have but to indicate your wish, to ensure the earnest efforts of the Committee.

"It is to be regretted that it cannot be said to the multitudes who witness your decorous and impressive ceremonies: 'The law making power of this State has said, no longer shall the ruthless defacement of the beautiful Hudson River be permitted.' But you can at least give the assurance that the work will not stop until that most to be desired result is accomplished." High-lands Park

The Committee's report was accepted, its work commended, and the Committee continued.

Having extended the life of the Committee until the object for which it was appointed was accomplished, the work for the protection of the Highlands was again taken up with reasonable assurance that the next Legislature would approve of the measure. In the meantime, events have occurred which may limit the work of the Committee and which should insure the protection of the Western Highlands through the generous gifts of private citizens in land and money, which have been offered to the State of New York with a condition that the jurisdiction of the Palisades Interstate Commission shall be extended from Stony Point to Storm King, including the entire Western Highlands of the Hudson River. Further initiative, therefore, by our Committee relative to the preservation of this section of our river shores may be unnecessary and only the pleasant duty remains to aid as far as possible the realization of this public benefaction.

When the Western Highlands shall have been placed under the protective care of the State, the unguarded eastern shore will still be open to the attacks of the quarrymen and the intrusion of other injurious interests which, suppressed on the one side, will naturally seek lodgment on the other. It is hoped, however, that the work of our Committee may help to guard the Eastern Highlands from injury, before the invasion of ruinous enterprises render the task more difficult and vastly more expensive.

CHAPTER LXI

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS TO GOVERNMENTS

The Last
Formality

THE last formality of the Celebration was the presentation of gold medals and accompanying addresses to the heads of nations which were represented by naval vessels at the commemoration. The Commission felt under especial obligations to the governments of the United States, Great Britain, the Netherlands, Germany, France, Italy, Mexico and the Argentine Republic for sending vessels of their navies to join the great international fleet, and thought that the occasion should not be allowed to pass without making to them a direct expression of appreciation and good will.

The Medals

The Commission therefore had eight copies of the Official Medal, three inches in diameter, struck in gold from specially cut dies. Upon the edge of each were engraved the words: "To the Government of (name of Government) from the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, September 25—October 9, 1909. A token of Friendship and Appreciation." Each medal was enclosed in a Russia leather case, suitably stamped, and each was accompanied by a letter, engrossed, illuminated, and beautifully bound in book form, in hand-tooled covers. The medals and engrossed addresses were made by Tiffany & Co.

Order of Presentation

The first medal was naturally presented to the Government of the United States, and this presentation took place on Tuesday, November 23, 1909. In presenting the medals to the foreign governments, the rule which recognizes the heads of nations as equals required the observance of no order of precedence and left the Commission free to consult its convenience. General Woodford, the President of the Commission, to whom was entrusted the duty of delivering the medals, therefore presented the European testimonials in the following order: To the Queen of the Netherlands on December 28, 1909; to the Emperor of Germany on January 12, 1910; to the President of France on March 1; and to the King of Italy on April 25. It is expected that the presentation to the King of Great Britain will be made next month.* The medals for the President of Mexico and the President of the Argentine Republic were, by the courtesy of the United States Department of State, sent in the diplomatic pouches, the one to the United States Ambassador at the City of Mexico and the other to the United States Envoy at Buenos Aires, and were presented by them on January 26 and March 3 respectively.

In making the presentation to President Taft at the White House, in Washington, on Tuesday, November 23, General Woodford was accompanied by Colonel Henry W. Sackett, Secretary, and Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, Assistant Secretary of the Commission. The ceremony took place in the Cabinet Room. The President and his full Cabinet received the delegation standing. General Woodford addressed the President in the following words, concluding by handing to the President the engrossed copy:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 15, 1909.

The HONORABLE WILLIAM H. TAFT, President of the United States:

SIR.— In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of the United States an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the Exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of Steam Navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

* The presentation to the King of Great Britain was made on June 30, 1910, after the date of this report. See page 1132.

To the President
of the United States

The two events commemorated in the Celebration of which this Medal is a souvenir were of more than local importance. In effect, they were of National and even International significance. One brought to the knowledge of Europe and opened to Civilization the great river to which, more than any other single natural factor, is due the greatness of New York State and New York City. The other has given to all the navigable waters of the earth a value which they did not previously possess, has narrowed the Ocean, in point of time, to one-seventh its former dreary breadth, and has promoted the neighborliness of nations to a degree which cannot readily be estimated.

Realizing the important influence of these and related events upon the moral as well as the material welfare of our own and distant peoples, our Commission planned a Celebration which, in its effect at home, was designed to educate our cosmopolitan population in their own history, stimulate the culture of their higher faculties, increase their civic pride, and strengthen their loyalty to the institutions of our Government. With respect to the Foreign Nations which, through the good offices of the Federal Government, became our guests, it was designed to bring them together in friendly intercourse, acquaint them with the best features of our American life and character, show them the cordiality of our friendship, and cement those bonds of mutual confidence and affection which are the surest conservators of international peace.

For whatever measure of success has attended our efforts in these directions, we are largely indebted to the official countenance and practical assistance of the Federal Government.

Permit us, therefore, in behalf of our Commission and of the people of the State of New York, to thank you very heartily for the cordial cooperation which, through your sympathetic interest and by your official orders, was extended to us; and to communicate through you to the members of your Cabinet, and particularly to the Honorable the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Postmaster-General, the assurances of our sincere appreciation of the hearty collaboration of their Departments.

Permit us also to express the pleasure and instruction which the presence of the Navy and Army gave to the millions of spectators of the Naval and Military pageants. The sight of our superb fleet on the river and the spectacle of the personnel of both the Navy and Army on land, were deeply impressive and cannot have failed to exalt our national pride in these arms of the Government.

In respectfully requesting you to accept this Medal, Mr. President, may we ask you to cause it to be deposited in the archives of the Government, not only as a memento of our Celebration, but also as a token of our appreciation and a pledge of New York's loyal devotion to the Government of which you are the honored head. To the President of the United States

With assurances of our high esteem, we have the honor, sir, to subscribe ourselves

The President replied by reading the following letter, which he subsequently handed to General Woodford: President Taft's Reply

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Washington.

November 23, 1909.

GENTLEMEN.— In response to your letter of November 15, and your personal presence with which you honor me, I beg to thank you for the official gold medal struck by your Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

President Taft's Reply I congratulate you upon the great success of the appropriate celebration which you inaugurated and carried out, and I am very glad to receive at your hands this permanent memorial prepared by you to indicate the cordial cooperation of the National Government in all its branches in making the Celebration a success. As you request, I shall cause the medal to be deposited in the archives of the State Department as a memento of the Celebration and as a token of your appreciation and as a pledge of New York's devotion to the Government of the United States.

Very sincerely yours,

WM. H. TAFT.

To the HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, The Tribune Building, New York, N. Y.

After this formal exchange, the President engaged in informal conversation with the representatives of the Commission, expressing the most cordial sentiments towards the body which they represented and the pleasure which it gave him to cooperate in the Celebration.

To the Queen of the Netherlands Before General Woodford sailed for Europe, the following letter was sent through diplomatic channels to the Queen of the Netherlands:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 10, 1909.

HER MAJESTY, WILHELMINA, Queen of the Netherlands:

YOUR MAJESTY.—I am charged by the Trustees of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York with the agreeable duty of expressing to Your Majesty the very great pleasure which this Commission and those whom it represents have derived from the participation of the people of the Netherlands, under Your Majesty's gracious encouragement, in the Celebration just closed.

The Celebration was originally projected to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the Exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson under the auspices of the United Dutch East India Company in 1609, which led to the settlement of this City and State by the Netherlanders; and although to this was subsequently added the commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of Steam Navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807, the predominating idea throughout was the great debt which we owe To the Queen of the Netherlands to those courageous pioneers of Netherlandish blood who braved the perils of the sea and the privations of the wilderness to plant civilization on these shores three centuries ago. We feel that the liberal institutions inherited from the Netherlands in the midst of their memorable struggle for political liberty and the rights of self-government have been to our people, as they have been to yours, an important element in their unity and happiness.

We desire to thank Your Majesty cordially for the message of sympathy and friendship brought by your distinguished representative, the Honorable J. T. Cremer, and to assure you that it is heartily reciprocated. Our adoption of the old colors of the Netherlands in the Official Flag of this Commission attested our deep veneration for the traditions which bind us in ties of affection to the Netherlands and we were deeply touched by Mr. Cremer's act, at your command, in saluting with his lips this emblem of our mutual friendship.

We desire also to thank Your Majesty and your people for the delegation of distinguished citizens who so worthily represented Your Majesty's Government, the Royal Navy and Army, the Municipal Governments, and the intellectual culture and commercial enterprise of your Nation. It was a great pleasure to have them as our guests, in both their representative and personal capacities, and our only regret was that their stay with us was so brief.

We are grateful not only for the happy memories which this reunion with our Dutch Motherland has left to us, but also for the tangible expression of the good will of your people, extended under the patronage of Your Majesty's Royal Consort, Prince Henry, in the form of a reproduction of the historic ship the Half Moon. This vessel, built with such affectionate care and at such generous expense, was the focus of the attention of millions of people and was the object of their most intense interest. The Half Moon, and the pictures thereof also generously sent to be placed in our public schools, will long serve as outward symbols to recall to coming generations those heartfelt sentiments of international friendship which we gladly cherish toward your Nation.

Our happiness on this auspicious occasion has been enhanced by the knowledge of the felicity and prosperity of the people of the Netherlands under your benignant reign, and particularly by the knowledge of the great blessing which has recently come to you and your people and which promises a happy continuance of the reign of the House of Orange.

May Heaven's richest benediction rest upon Your Majesty, Your Royal Consort, the Heiress Apparent and your happy people, and may your health and prosperity be as enduring as the ties of affection which still bind the New Netherlands, under their newer name, to the Old Netherlands.

With Your Majesty's permission I shall, as soon as possible after the first of December, give myself the honor of paying my respects to Your Majesty,

To the Queen
of the Netherlands

and presenting to you the Commemorative Gold Medal which the Commission is preparing for those Governments which honored us by sending vessels of their navies to the Celebration.

In behalf of the Commission, I have the honor to subscribe myself,
Your Majesty's faithful friend,

STEWART L. WOODFORD,

President.

Secretary.

Assistant Secretary.

Receiving an intimation of the Queen's pleasure, General Woodford presented the medal and address to her at the Hague on Tuesday, December 28, 1909. The address was as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HER MAJESTY, WILHELMINA, Queen of the Netherlands:

YOUR MAJESTY.—In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of the Netherlands as represented in Your Majesty's person an Official Gold Medal struck in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the Discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson under the auspices of the Dutch East India Company in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of Steam Navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807. And we beg you to accept it not only as a memento of the important events commemorated, but also as a token of our sincere appreciation of the generous participation of the Netherlands in our festival.

The presence of the Netherlands armored cruiser Utrecht, the gift of the facsimile of the famous ship the Half Moon, the attendance of the distinguished delegation of high officials and prominent individuals representing the Government and People of the Netherlands, and, above all, the messages of goodwill brought from your Nation to the people of our State, were most gratifying evidences of a friendship highly prized by us.

We avail ourselves of this opportunity to express our gratitude for the generous sentiments thus manifested, and to assure Your Majesty and your people that they are cordially reciprocated.

The two events whose anniversaries were linked together in our Celebration by their common association with the Hudson River have themselves done much to link together the Old World and the New; for while Hudson's voyage brought to these shores the progressive European civilization represented by the Netherlands, the demonstration of the practicability of steam navigation by our inventor, on the other hand, has brought America nearer to Europe, promoted the neighborliness of Nations and conduced to the friendly intercourse and interdependence of all peoples.

In renewing to Your Majesty and the people of the Netherlands the hope that the ties of blood and tradition which have bound our two countries together so strongly for three hundred years may continue with unimpaired strength during the centuries to come, may we also express the hope that in the Congresses of the Nations to be held in coming years within your borders, the united sentiments and endeavors of your Nation and ours may conjoin to promote the peace and happiness of all mankind.

In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission and those whom it represents, we have the honor to remain

President.

To the Queen
of the Netherlands

During his stay in the Netherlands the President of the Commission received marked expressions of hospitality from the Queen and the people of the Netherlands. Among other attentions shown him were an invitation to a dinner given by the Queen at the Palace at the Hague, an invitation to the Court Ball, and an invitation to an official dinner and reception by the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

To the Emperor
of
Germany

On Wednesday, January 12, 1910, Emperor William of Germany gave General Woodford an audience at which the medal and address to the German Government were presented. The address was as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS MAJESTY, WILHELM II, German Emperor, King of Prussia:

YOUR MAJESTY.—In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of the German Empire an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

We beg you to accept this medal and to cause it to be placed in the archives of your Government as a memento of the two events commemorated, one of which led to the coming of European civilization to what is now the State of New York, and the other of which has promoted the commerce and mutual intercourse of all Nations.

We also ask you to accept it as a token of friendship and an evidence of our sincere appreciation of the generous participation of the German Government in our festival.

We thank your Majesty for the sympathy and good will manifested by yourself and your Nation in the presence of your distinguished delegate Grossadmiral von Koester, your superb naval vessels Viktoria Luise, Hertha, and Bremen, with their officers and crews, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives at our Celebration. And we are particularly grateful to Your Majesty for the message of friendship which was delivered by Grossadmiral von Koester, and which we heartily reciprocate.

To the Emperor
of
Germany

The ties which unite our two nations are deep-rooted and of long standing. We cannot forget that while our tongues speak another language, our blood comes ultimately from that great Germanic fount which has fertilized so vast a field of the world's civilization. In many ways, by more direct transfusion, we have been strengthened from the same source. From the days of our infant colonies when the sturdy German emigrants settled in peaceful industry upon the banks of the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers; through our struggle for National Independence in which our Washington had the invaluable help of Frederick the Great's aide-de-camp, Baron von Steuben; down to the present time when about one-fourth of the population of New York City is of German nativity or parentage, our debt to your people has steadily increased. With a population so varied as ours, we may truly say that our State, as well as our nation, has many Fatherlands, among which the German Fatherland will always be cherished warmly in our affection and will always hold a high place in our respect.

We trust that these sentiments of our mutual esteem so highly prized by us will continue, and grow stronger if possible in the years to come, and we indulge the hope that not only between Germany and the United States, but also between all the Governments whose fleets honored us so conspicuously by their presence at our festival, the memories of that friendly gathering may strengthen all international ties and promote the fraternity of all Nations.

With renewed thanks for the distinguished consideration shown by Your Majesty's Government to our State and City, we have the honor to remain with great respect,

Your Majesty's faithful friends.

The foregoing address bore the seal of the Commission and the same eighteen signatures as are given on page 1119.

The Emperor read his answer in English. He expressed great pleasure at receiving the medal and the address to His Majesty over the signatures of the officers of the Commission. He begged the President to convey to his associates his warmest thanks and to say that the medal was accepted as a memento of two memorable events of the greatest importance in the development of New York City and the United States as a whole. He said that he had heard with great satisfaction

Emperor
William's
Reply

Emperor from Grossadmiral von Koester how well the German vessels
 William's had been received by the Commission and the American people.
 Reply Their officers and men had returned filled with gratification at their reception in New York and praising American hospitality. Continuing, he said:

"I sincerely hope that the Hudson-Fulton Celebration has formed a new link in the chain uniting our two kindred nations, which already are bound together by so many strong ties."

General At the conclusion of his formal expressions the Emperor Wood- addressed General Woodford personally, saying that he was ford glad to see him in Germany and to make his acquaintance Deco- after he had read and heard how well he had fulfilled the rated arduous and honorable task imposed upon him in connection with the Celebration. He then conferred upon the General the Crown Order of the First Class.

After these formalities, the Kaiser talked with General Woodford and Ambassador Hill for about three-quarters of an hour, and further manifested his cordiality by having the President bidden to the service in the Royal Chapel and to the great breakfast in the White Saal at the Ordenfest, and receiving him at Court.

Imperial Simultaneously with the courtesies to General Woodford,
 Honor the Emperor also gave evidence of his high regard for Mr.
 for Mr. Herman Ridder, the Acting President of the Commission, by Ridder sending to him, through the German Consul-General in New York City, with his signature, a large framed oil portrait of himself by the great Hungarian portrait painter Philipp Laszlo.
 Mr. Ridder was advised of this mark of imperial favor in the following letter:

IMPERIAL GERMAN CONSULATE,
 New York.

January 12, 1910.

MY DEAR MR. RIDDER.-- It gives me great pleasure to notify you that His Majesty, The Emperor and King, has been good enough to present you with his portrait as a token of his esteem for services rendered during the Hudson-Fulton Memorial. As soon as the picture arrives I shall notify you.

Expressing my sincerest congratulations for this distinction I have the honor to remain

Very truly yours,

R. FRANKSEN,

Imperial Consul-General.

On Tuesday, March 1, 1910, General Woodford made the presentation to the President of the French Republic at Paris. To the President
of France

The address was as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS EXCELLENCY, ARMAND FALLIERES, President of the French Republic:

YOUR EXCELLENCY.—In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of the French Republic an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

May we ask you to accept this medal and place it in the archives of your Government, not only as a memento of the events celebrated, but also as a token of our friendship for our sister Republic and a mark of our appreciation of the generous participation of your Government in our festivities.

Permit us upon this occasion to offer to you, Mr. President, to your Government and to the people of France, our sincere thanks for the honor shown to us by the assistance of your distinguished delegate, M. Jean Gaston Darboux, your warships Justice, Liberté and Vérité, under command of Contre-Amiral Le Pord, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives at our Celebration; and particularly for the messages of good will, of which they were the bearers. The kindly sentiments expressed by them found lodgment in hearts which still glow with gratitude at the memory of the generous ardor which in the days of our nation's infancy gave to our Washington the companionship of your Lafayette; of the chivalrous treaty of alliance which brought us the inestimable aid of your Army under Rochambeau and your Navy under De Grasse in win-

To the President
of France

ning our political independence; of the far-sighted wisdom of your Napoleon, which made practicable the enlargement of our domain by the acquisition of Louisiana, and of many other evidences of the helpful sympathy of France which have made the United States her debtor.

In the commemoration of the exploration of our river by Henry Hudson, we have not been unmindful of that earlier voyage of Verazzano who brought the flag of France to the waters of our harbor in 1524, nor of the voyage of that other great explorer Champlain, who, contemporaneously with Hudson's voyage in 1609, entered our territory by way of the beautiful lake which bears his honored name. Nor have we forgotten, in the commemoration of Fulton's inventions, that the waters of the Seine witnessed his earliest practical experiments in steam navigation which found their commercial development upon the Hudson.

In the contemplation not only of the ties by which destiny has so closely knit our two peoples together, but also of the marvelous development of the science of navigation which has brought all Nations together in more intimate intercourse than ever before, we cannot fail to be impressed with the fact that in the universal society of Nations as in the more restricted society of a single Nation, no individual lives unto himself alone, but that, in our modern civilization, national influences, like personal influences, are reciprocal; and national responsibilities, like personal responsibilities, are mutual.

We venture to hope that the fraternal gathering of the nations at our festival in commemoration of achievements in navigation may symbolize the growing fraternity of all peoples, and that the bonds of friendship which so happily subsist between our two beloved Republics, may continue forever unbroken, an example of the universal brotherhood of all Nations.

"Accept for yourself, Mr. President, for your Government and your people, the assurances of our warmest friendship and highest respect, and believe us to be

Your faithful friends.

The address bore the seal of the Commission and the eighteen signatures mentioned on page 1119.

President Fallières was very gracious and not only expressed his cordiality verbally, but also extended to General Woodford the courtesy of the Presidential Box at the Grand Opera.

To the King of
Italy

On Monday, April 25, 1910, the medal and accompanying address to the Italian Government were presented to the King of Italy at Rome. The address was as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK. To the King of
Italy

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS MAJESTY, VITTORIO EMANUELE III, King of Italy:

YOUR MAJESTY.— In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of Italy an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the exploration of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

We pray you to accept this medal and to cause it to be placed in the archives of your Government, not only as a souvenir of the ceremonies which were held from September 25 to October 9, 1909, in memory of the founding of our City and State and the development of our commerce, but also as an evidence of our appreciation of the generous participation of your Government in our festival.

We were highly honored by the presence of your eminent delegate, Vice-Admiral Alfonso di Brocchetti, your naval vessels Etna and Etruria, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives; and we were particularly gratified by the friendly messages communicated to us on behalf of your people. For these testimonies of your sympathetic interest, we offer you our sincere thanks and assure you that the friendly sentiments of the Government of Italy are heartily reciprocated by our own people.

The participation of your Government in our festivities fulfilled our confident expectation of the interest which Italy — the seat of the Eternal City, the radiant point of a great civilization before America was known, and the birthplace of great navigators — would take in the commemoration of an important exploration and a valuable invention for the promotion of navigation; for we cannot forget that Marco Polo, whose discoveries in the Orient stimulated the later voyages to the Occident, was an Italian; nor are we unmindful of the fact that Italy gave to Spain Columbus who discovered America; to England Cabot who explored our continental borders, and to France Verazzano who first revealed our harbor to the Old World. For what Italy has done in bringing European civilization to these shores, and for what she has given of her ancient culture toward the intellectual development of our people, the United States owe her an inestimable debt.

In gratefully acknowledging this ancient obligation to your country, we are also happy in the knowledge of the many personal bonds which unite us

To the King of

to-day. In the large number of Italians who have come to our hospitable shores to make their homes; in the pilgrimages of the many Americans who continually go to Italy to visit your shrines of art or to derive benefit from your sunny clime; in the material relations of our reciprocal commerce; and in the spiritual relations which connect a large number of our people with their religious head in Rome, we have mutual ties which are among the strongest that can bind one people to another.

"In repeating to Your Majesty our appreciation of Italy's participation in our festival, permit us again to assure you of our sincere respect and esteem.

Faithfully your friends.

King
Emanuele's
Reply

This address bore the seal of the Commission and the same signatures as the other addresses to heads of governments. The King was very cordial and conversed with General Woodford in the most affable manner. He expressed admiration for the medal and noted its fine points and excellent workmanship with the knowledge of an expert. He said it would form an important addition to his collection of such articles. He also expressed great pleasure at the accompanying engrossed message. The conversation then turned upon different topics. Referring to New York, the King said he considered it the second largest Italian city in the world.

The King further signified his pleasure by sending through his Ambassador at Washington the following message:

REGIA AMBASCIATA D'ITALIA

No. 863.

WASHINGTON, May 25th, 1910.

HONORABLE EXECUTIVE OFFICERS OF THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION
COMMITTEE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK,

The Tribune Building,

New York:

GENTLEMEN.— On the 25th of April, General Stewart J. Woodford, President of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee of the State of New York, presented to His Majesty the King, together with a very courteous address, a handsome gold medal especially coined by your Committee for commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson and of the hundredth anniversary of the application of steam navigation, inaugurated by Robert Fulton, along that river.

His Majesty greatly appreciated the gift and personally made known to King
General Woodford his sincere appreciation thereof. Enianuele's
Reply

However, His Majesty is desirous that his expressions of thanks and of appreciation be renewed to your honorable Committee which so ably conducted the Celebrations commemorating those two historical events, and I have been accordingly instructed to fulfill this very agreeable charge.

I avail myself with much pleasure of this opportunity to offer to you the assurances of my very distinguished consideration.

MONTAGLIARI,

Italian Chargé d'Affaires.

The medal and address to the Government of the Republic To the President
of Mexico
of Mexico were kindly transmitted by the United States Department of State to the American Embassy in the City of Mexico and were delivered to President Diaz at the National Palace by the Hon. James G. Bailey, Chargé d'Affaires, on Wednesday January 26, 1910. The President of the Republic, in accepting them, requested Mr. Bailey to convey to this Commission, through the State Department, his deep appreciation and that of his Government and the people in general at being made the recipient of this honor. Mr. Bailey was accompanied on his visit to the President by the Hon. Federico Gamboa, Sub-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. The message accompanying the medal was as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS EXCELLENCY, GENERAL PORFIRIO DIAZ, President of the United Mexican States:

YOUR EXCELLENCY.— In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of Mexico an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

To the President
of Mexico

We beg you to accept this medal and to cause it to be deposited in the archives of your Government, not only as a souvenir of the Celebration itself and a reminder of the events commemorated, but also as a token of our friendship and our sincere appreciation of the great honor which your Republic conferred upon us by taking part in our festival.

The presence of your distinguished delegates, Señor Don Carlos Pereyra and Captain Manuel E. Izaguirre, your warship Morelos with its officers and crew, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives was a gratifying testimony of the sympathy and interest of our great sister Republic. For these evidences of your friendship, and particularly for the messages of good will brought to us by Señor Pereyra, we give you our most cordial thanks, and assure you that the sentiments thus expressed are heartily reciprocated.

In commemorating the great voyage of exploration which brought the civilization of the Old World to the region which now forms our State we have not been forgetful of the earlier advent of European culture in the golden land of the Montezumas nor of the great influence which the discovery and settlement of Mexico had upon the later voyages which resulted in the settlement of our own country. And in the celebration of the great invention of steam navigation, we have rejoiced in the knowledge that all Nations have partaken of its benefits and that all have been drawn closer together thereby.

In the growing fraternity of the peoples of the world so expressively symbolized in their friendly union in our festivities, one of the greatest sources of gratification to us is the feeling of good will which so happily exists between our two Republics. By Nature, which has placed our nations in such intimate physical relations, by the arts of man which have developed our commercial intercourse by land and by sea, and by those sentiments of mutual interest which propinquity so powerfully fosters, the destinies of our two countries have been joined in such a manner that one cannot be indifferent to or unaffected by the welfare of the other.

In sending to you this testimonial of respect and good will from the "Empire State" of the Union and from the Metropolis of the New World, permit us to express the hope that the bonds of concord which unite our peoples may continue and grow in strength as the centuries come, and that our friendship may be both an example and an influence to promote the peace and happiness of the world.

Be pleased, Mr. President, to accept for yourself, the officials of your Government and the people of your Republic, the renewed assurances of our high esteem and our hearty appreciation of your generous participation in our Celebration, and believe us to be

Your sincere friends.

The address bore the seal of the Commission and the eighteen signatures mentioned on page 1119.

Under date of March 16, 1910, the Secretary of State transmitted to this Commission the original letter of President Diaz making further acknowledgment of the medal and the following translation: President Diaz's Reply

MEXICO, January 27, 1910.

SIR.—Mr. James G. Bailey, Chargé d'Affaires ad Interim of the United States of America in Mexico, yesterday morning placed in my hands your kind letter dated the 27th of November of last year, as well as the gold medal which was struck especially to commemorate the Third Centenary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609, and the First Anniversary of the happy inauguration of steam navigation in the waters of the said river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

I have already expressed to the Chargé d'Affaires of the United States of America that which I am pleased to repeat to you, as follows: That I accept with especial appreciation said medal, which I have requested to be carefully kept by the Government of the Republic in a visible and adequate place; which medal I also consider to be a souvenir of the memorable celebration previously mentioned as well as an expression of your friendship and of your appreciation of seeing that the Republic of Mexico was represented in said commemoration; as by this last act I desired to express, once again, the admiration which the people and the Government of Mexico entertain for the notable happenings which the United States of America treasures in its prestiged history of a large and progressive country.

In my turn it is also very gratifying to ask you, Mr. President, to accept for yourself, and to extend to the other subscribers of the letter which I have the honor to answer, the sentiments of true consideration with which I have the pleasure to subscribe myself.

Sincerely your friend,

PORFIRIO DIAZ.

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
 New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS EXCELLENCY, JOSE FIGUEROA ALCORTA, President of the Argentine Republic:

YOUR EXCELLENCY.—To the undersigned Executive Officers of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, has been committed the agreeable duty of transmitting to you for the Government of the Argentine Republic an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609 and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

May we ask you, Mr. President, to accept this medal and to cause it to be placed in the archives of your Government, as a souvenir of the Celebration in which the Argentine Republic gave us the great pleasure of taking part, and as a token of the cordial friendship of the people of this State for yours.

The presence of your distinguished delegate Señor Don Julio Carrie, your warship bearing the honored name of your celebrated General and President Sarmiento, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives was a gratifying evidence of your friendly interest. For this generous testimonial of good will, and particularly for the kind sentiments expressed to us on behalf of your Government, we beg you to accept our sincere thanks and assurances that they are heartily reciprocated.

Permit us also to felicitate you upon the significant naval representation of Argentina at our festival. Of all the vessels composing the notable international fleet gathered in our waters from September 25 to October 9, your warship, the sole naval representative from South America, which traveled 6,600 miles from Buenos Aires to New York, came the longest distance from home to attend our Celebration. This voyage not only illustrated the vast progress in navigation during the past century and the value of steam propulsion in bringing together people from distant parts of the earth, but it also afforded a striking illustration of the enterprising and progressive spirit of your Republic, upon which we offer you our hearty congratulations.

In renewing to you our cordial thanks for the generous participation of your Government in the commemoration of the founding of our State and City, we express the hope that the friendship between our two Republics may continue and grow stronger, and that the intercourse between our peoples may become more intimate with the lapse of time.

With cordial wishes for the welfare of your Government and the peace and prosperity of your people, we have the honor to subscribe ourselves,
 Your faithful friends.

The letter bore the seal of the Commission and the same signatures as the others to the heads of governments.

President Alcorta expressed his warm appreciation of both the medal and the letter and was particularly interested in the signatures subscribed to the latter. He requested Mr. Sherrill to convey through the State Department to the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission the warm thanks of his Government and himself and his gratification that the friendly act of the Argentine Government in sending the Presidente Sarmiento to take part in the Celebration had been received in such a spirit of friendly appreciation by the Commission. Later, in the following letter, the President formally acknowledged the receipt of the testimonials:

Reply

BUENOS AIRES, March 23, 1910.

MESSRS. STEWART L. WOOFORD, ANDREW CARNEGIE, and all the other members of the Commission "Centennial Hudson-Fulton."

SIRS.—With the greatest pleasure I received from H. E. the Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States, Mr. Charles H. Sherrill, the gold medal that the Hon. Commission has dedicated to the Argentine Government, as a memorial of the Centennial Hudson-Fulton, where this Republic was represented, as a pledge of the cordial friendship, which so happily exists between both peoples.

I want to show my gratitude to the honorable members of the Commission for such a significant and agreeable memorial as well as the manifestations of friendship accompanying it.

The Argentine Republic which, bound by so many moral ties, especially of institutional order, is attracted by the sympathy of that exemplary people in the initiations and energy in the work of civilization, has contributed in the expression of the homage of cordiality and admiration towards the United States, in the commemoration of the discovery of the great river and of its steam navigation, which raises Fulton to the quality of a benefactor of humanity, whose relations of fraternity and progress have been founded upon the rapid exchanges, facilitated by his prodigious invention.

President Alcorta's Reply In thanking you once more for these gracious demonstrations, as well as for the votes you have formulated for the Argentine nation and people, and in formulating myself the same votes for the friendship between both peoples, and for the strengthening of its reciprocal social relations that may become more close and cordial, I avail myself of that occasion to present you, dear sirs, the assurances of my highest consideration.

J. FIGUEROA ALCORTA.

To the King of Great Britain

Owing to the death of King Edward VII of Great Britain, the presentation of the medal and address to that Government was delayed, but since the date of this report, and while it is in the printer's hands, we are advised that General Woodford presented them to King George V at Marlborough House, London, on Thursday, June 30, 1910. As this was the last formal function of the Commission, we avail ourselves of the interval before printing to insert the following details and thus complete the account:

The address accompanying the medal, prepared before the death of Edward VII, reads as follows:

THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

Headquarters, The Tribune Building,
New York, N. Y.

November 27, 1909.

HIS MAJESTY, EDWARD VII, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British Dominions beyond the Seas, King, Emperor of India.

YOUR MAJESTY.—In behalf of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, the undersigned Executive Officers have the honor to present to the Government of Great Britain an Official Gold Medal struck by the Commission in commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River by Henry Hudson in 1609, and the 100th anniversary of the successful inauguration of steam navigation upon that river by Robert Fulton in 1807.

We beg you to accept this medal and to place it in the archives of your Government, not only as a memento of the two events commemorated, but also as a token of friendship and an evidence of our sincere appreciation of the generous participation of your Government in our festival.

To the King of Great
Britain

For the good will so manifestly shown by your Majesty in the presence of your distinguished delegate Admiral of the Fleet, Sir Edward Scymour, your great warships the Inflexible, Drake, Argyll, and Duke of Edinburgh, with their officers and men, and your Diplomatic and Consular representatives, we extend to Your Majesty our sincerest thanks. And we particularly thank Your Majesty for the friendly greetings brought in behalf of yourself, your Government and your people, which we most cordially reciprocate.

The Celebration, in which your Nation honored us by taking so conspicuous a part, contained much to remind us of our past debt to Great Britain, and to strengthen the bonds existing between us. In the courage and skill of the great English navigator who first explored the river which perpetuates his name and opened this territory to civilization, we were reminded of the indomitable spirit of the English sea-kings who laid the foundation of Great Britain's sea power and opened the way for the permanent planting of Anglo-Saxon civilization in the New World at Jamestown two years before Hudson's voyage. In the achievement of Robert Fulton, a man of Irish parentage, whose steam-boat the Clermont was propelled by an engine built by English manufacturers in Birmingham, working upon a principle discovered by the Scotch inventor Watt, we were reminded of our many-sided indebtedness to Great Britain for the development of an invention which has promoted the commerce of all Nations and conduced so largely to the happiness and prosperity of mankind.

In the historical retrospect to which our Celebration naturally led, we have recalled our obligation to Great Britain for the fostering care with which she cherished the young plant of colonial life first set in the soil of our present State by the Dutch, grafting it with her own stock and nourishing it with her own blood; and we have been reminded of our debt to our English Motherland for the impress made upon our life and character by a century of her nurture. In all the thoughts which have come to us at this time, nothing has been a source of greater pride than the memory of our great Anglo-Saxon heritage of blood, language and institutions, and nothing has been a cause of greater happiness than the knowledge of the indissolubility of the bonds of true affection between your people and ours, which have withstood the vicissitudes of political change and which still maintain the unity at heart of the English-speaking race.

May we indulge the hope that as your great navigator and our great inventor represent the genius which has conquered the wilderness of the sea and brought all nations together in more intimate intercourse, so our two countries may

King of Great
Britain

cooperate as one people in promoting those amenities between all nations which shall conduce to the peace and happiness of the whole world.

Again thanking Your Majesty for the distinguished consideration which you have shown to those whom we have the honor to represent, we remain, with great respect,

Your Majesty's faithful friends.

The letter bore the seal of the Commission and was signed by the President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Commission like the other addresses.

General Woodford was accompanied to Marlborough House by Ambassador Reid and they were received by the King very promptly. Three men were waiting in attendance, and by a pleasant coincidence one was the British Ambassador to Holland, who was present at The Hague at the function when General Woodford was received by Queen Wilhelmina and presented the first of the European medals.

King
George's
Reply

The King was as courteous, kind and cordial as possible, and seemed deeply touched at receiving the medal sent to his Government and the address prepared for his father. He spoke most kindly of the reception given to the British ships and to Admiral Seymour; remarked that being a sailor himself he had been very much interested in the naval display at New York, and spoke in the highest terms of Admiral Seymour. The interview lasted about half an hour. The King then handed to General Woodford the following reply to the Commission's address:

GENERAL.— It is with feelings of deep emotion that I receive this address from you and the Executive Officers of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission of the State of New York, for its words were chosen to be addressed to my dear father, who, together with his Government, had so cordially associated himself with the festival for the commemoration of the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River and the 100th anniversary of the inauguration of steam navigation upon that river.

I sincerely thank you for the friendly sentiments contained in your address and also for the official gold medal struck by the Commission as a memento of the two events commemorated, and I know that it will be prized by the Government of this country as a memento of the festival and as an evidence of that friendship and hospitality which were so warmly extended towards those who represented the Government on that occasion. King

Reply

I most heartily join in the hope expressed by you and the signatories to the address that our two countries may ever work together in the promotion of everything that is conducive to the peace and happiness of the whole world.

In reporting the conclusion of his delicate and responsible foreign mission, General Woodford wrote, before his return to America: Foreign
ation

“Everybody on this side appreciates and honors our great City and State. There has not been a personal note in any kindness shown me, but always and everywhere the cordial desire to show honor to New York and the friendliest appreciation of the manner in which New York welcomed and took care of her guests at our marvelous Birthday Festival.”

CHAPTER LXIII

COMMITTEES OF THE COMMISSION

Development of the Committees

DURING the first year of the existence of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, only about twelve committees were appointed. The largest of these was the Executive Committee, consisting of 44 members, the number fixed by the by-laws. These Committees, most of them of small numbers for convenience, simply covered the first necessities of the organization. By the end of 1908 the number of committees had been increased to only fourteen, as they were still working out the elements of the plan of Celebration. By November, 1908, the details of the Celebration had been mapped out and the Board of Trustees was then ready to summon every member of the Commission to active work. On November 30, 1908, a meeting of the full Commission was held in the City Hall, New York, when Acting President Ridder announced a system of forty-two working committees covering various phases of the plan of Celebration. Every member of the Commission was assigned to one committee or more. During the next ten months nine more committees were added to attend to details as they developed, so that at the time of the Celebration there were fifty-one working committees. Persons who were appointed members of the Commission during the few months just prior to the Celebration largely as a matter of compliment were not added to the committees whose plans, by that time, were fully crystallized.

Following is a list of the Committees as they stood at the time of the Celebration, together with an outline of their duties as prescribed when they were appointed. Where the Secretaries of Committees were members of the Commission, they are here mentioned and not otherwise, the following list con-

aining only the names of members of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission:

APPENDIX

HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION ODE

BY

JOSEPH IGNATIUS CONSTANTINE CLARKE

REPRINTED BY REQUEST FROM
THE NEW YORK TIMES OF
SEPTEMBER 26, 1909

AN ODE

FOR THE HUDSON-FULTON CELEBRATION

AT the request of several prominent citizens we append ^{Mr.} the following Ode, written by Mr. Joseph Ignatius ^{J. I. C.} Constantine Clarke of New York City, printed in the ^{Clarke} New York Times on Sunday, September 26, 1909:

*Here at thy broad sea gate,
On the ultimate ocean wave,
Where millions in hope have entered in,
Joyous, elate,
A home and a hearth to win;
For the promise you held and the bounty you gave,
Thou, and none other,
I call to thee, spirit, I call to thee, Mother, America.*

*Spirit of world of the West
Throned on thy lifted sierras,
Rivers the path for thy feet,
Forests of green for thy raiment,
Wide falling cascades the film of thy veil,
Moon-glow and star-flash thy jewels,
Sunrise the gold of thy hair,
Sweet was thy lure and compelling.*

*Europe, pale, jaded, had palled us,
Asia, o'ergilded, repelled us,
Africa, desert-faced, haunted us,
Thou, when in freshness of morning, hadst called us
And wanted us,
Held us.*

*Over the ocean we came then,
Wondering, hoping, adoring,
Called thee our mother, kissing thy feet,
Kindling our love into flame, then
Old worlds and old loves ignoring,
Making new bondage sweet.
Bless us to-day, O Mother.*

Hark, how the bells are chiming,
How wind the horns, how cymbals clash,
And a chorus, in mighty volume tuning,
To tramping beat that never lags!

Mr.
J. I. C.
Clarke

Heavily booming the cannons flash,
And the air is thrilled with the snapping flags!

Where passed the grim Briton with venturing prow
In the cycles fled.

The city that stands like a fortress now,
Turreted high by the edge of the water,
America's eldest, magnificent daughter,
With garlands is twining her brow,
For joy that her laughing heart remembers
Three hundred red and gold Septembers.

To catch the glint of her proudest glance,
To hear the heartening music of her drum,
To see her banners flutter and advance,
Glad in the sunrise, let us come.

Not as came Hudson thro' mists of the sea —
Dipping and rolling his Dutch-built ship —
Scanning the landfall with hungering eyes
And close-clenched lip,
By morning and noon,
Creeping past headland and sand-billowed dune,
Wing-weary ghost of a phantom quest,
Steering athrill but where waters led west.

Not as when taking the sweep of the bay,
Sparkling a gleam in the brave Autumn weather,
Silent of man in the new dawn aquiver,
Anchored his lone ship lay.
Not as he sailed where the hills draw together
Holding his course up the broad-breasted river,
Only the dream of Beyond in his brain,
Only the seas of Cathay to attain,
On till the narrowed stream told him 'twas vain.
Then back as one baffled, undone,
Unknowing he'd won by the gate of the sea
The throne of an empire of peoples to be.
Peace to his dream that found ghostly close
Mid the sheeted wraiths of the arctic snows!

Not as came Fulton: even he
Came brooding at the level of the sea,
Erect among the genius-brood of men,
Grandson of Ireland, son of the land of Penn.
Pale-browed, nursing a great work-day dream —
Harnessing the racers of the deep to steam
Here first his Clermont turned her paddle blades,
And so, our flag above his craft unfurled,
He steamed beneath the Palisades,
The Father of all steam-fleets of the world.

Well may Manhattan glory in his fame,
 And on her highest roster carve his name,
 Yet, not as came he, let us come.

Mr.
 J. I. C.
 Clarke

No: to the skies as on wings
 Let us rise,
 And come from the east with the faint red dawn
 Haven and harbor are carpets of trembling gold
 And the silver mist to the green hills clings
 Till the mounting sun has the web withdrawn,
 And behold,
 The city lifts up to its height at last,
 With frontage of hull and funnel and mast
 In the day's full beam,
 And over the sky-topping roofs in the blue,
 Over the flags of many a hue
 Are waving white pennons of steam.

We know thee, Manhattan, proud queen,
 And thy wonderful mural crown,
 With Liberty islanded there at thy knee,
 Uplifting her welcome to those who'd be free,
 And beckoning earth's trodden down.
 We know how the waters divide
 And unite for thy pride,
 And the lofty bridges of steel stretch bands
 To the burg on the height that stands:
 For thy wealth's overflow:
 With the freighters creeping between,
 And the slow, slanted sails slipping to and fro,
 As the giants of ocean steam in and go forth.
 We trace thy slim island reach up to the north,
 Its streets in arrowy distance aloom,
 Its marts, its homes, its far-off tomb;
 The pleasure greens dotting thy vesture of white,
 And tower and steeple like spears in the light.

Lift thee, Manhattan, no peer to thy strength,
 Energy crystalized in turrets of stone,
 Force chained to form thro' thy breadth and thy length,
 The builders' Gibraltar, the fortress of trade,
 Might of the mart into monument fashioned,
 Mammoth translated to mountain-man-made,
 The clouds ever higher and higher;
 And the clang of the anvil, the steam-shriek impassioned
 Seem calling from girder and frontlet of steel
 Upward thrown,
 With the square-chiseled blocks,
 As they build ever higher and higher,

Mr.
J. I. C.
Clarke

And then, for firm planting thy heel,
They delve ever deeper to heart of the rocks.

Deep in thy vitals the dynamos whirring
Are feeding thy nerves that are wires,
Thy tunnels, thy veins,
Stretch out as the human tide swerves,
And thy hidden fires
With the breath of thy bosom stirring,
Make life in the dark for thy lightning trains.

And out of it all a new beauty arising,
The beauty of force,
Winning a triumph beyond thy devising,
Height-mad and power-glad
Pinnacled, domed, crenelated,
Masonry clambering course upon course
To a glory of skyline serrated,
Lofty and meet
For the worship of all the waves laving thy feet.

Mighty, ay mighty Manhattan,
Grown, while Time counted but three arrow flights,
From bare strand and woodland and slow rising hill—
A handful of red men encamped on thy heights—
To the city of millions:
Of millions to ever the goal,
City whose riches are billions,
Whose might never fails,
Whom the nations from far off salute,
And the voice of a continent hails
On thy festival day!

While the cries of the multitude roll
In praise of thy marble-hewn body majestic,
Sing to me, queen, of thy soul.
Sing of thy spirit, thy mind.
Remembering then,
The kernel and not the rind,
The heat not the fires.
We shall not judge thee by thy tallest spires,
But by the stature of thy men;
Not thy great wealth of bales and casks and gold,
Nor mounting scales of what thou'st bought or sold
Shall here suffice,
But riches thine in virtues beyond price;
Not all thy beauteous daughters costly gowned,
But of thy women chaste and wived and crowned;
Not all thy gold in public service spent,
But test of equal, honest government;
Not creeds or churches, tabernacles, shrines,

But faith that lives and love that shines;
 Not courts and Judges multiplied,
 But Justice throned and glorified;
 Thy reasons clear before the world avowed,
 Not voice of easy conscience of the crowd;
 Not by thy thousand colleges and schools,
 But culture greater than their turns and rules;
 Not by thy topmost reach of speech and song,
 But by their lift to light and art that's long,
 And from the mingling races in thy blood,
 The wane of evil and the growth of good;
 Not the high-seated but the undertrod;
 The brother-love of man for man,
 Ideals not ambitions in the van;
 Not thy lip-worship but the immanence of God.

Mr.
 J. I. C.
 Clarke

But we who'd mete thy steps upon the heights,
 And thy soul-message ask
 Know well the battles that thy day's work brought.
 No Greek Atlantis art thou, Plato's thought
 Made sudden real;
 No fair Utopia thou of mounts ideal,
 Eased of thy burden and thy task
 With long surmountings in the darkness fraught.

Swift thy foundations grew, but nights of tears
 And days of dark foreboding marked thy years.
 Here freedom battled with the tyrant's might,
 Here Washington — Immortal One — made fight.
 Here swung the prison ships, and here the jail
 Whose gallows freed the soul of Nathan Hale.

The orange flag of Holland flew
 Above thee for a space.
 Then England's red for decades flew
 Flushed crimson in thy face,
 Until our arms set over thee
 The flag none may displace;
 That waving free shall cover thee
 While lasts the human race —
 The flag that to the breeze we threw
 When skies of hope were bare,
 Its red our blood, the sky its blue,
 Its stars our watchlights there.

Full oft the ocean harvests at thy doors
 Shed sodden grain upon thy threshing floors,
 The sound, sweet ears with wild tares reached thee mixed,
 Long-fixed beliefs came hitherward unfixed.
 Long-crushed desires that freedom bids to bloom,

Mr.
J. I. C.
Clarke

The yoke thrown off, for lawlessness made room.
How could it other? Slorn of lords and guides
They pressed atov'rd thee over westering tides.
From lauds of Czars and Princes still they come,
Some young and lusty, open-browed, and some
Oppression-stunted, famine-driven, sad.
All praying thee for welcome fair and glad —
A niche, a shelter, honest toil and home,
And these thou givest, Queen beside the foam.

And stout their grateful millions stand on guard,
Their brain and muscle working thee reward —
The solid Dutch, the level English strain,
The gifted French, our allies tried and true,
The German staunch, the Kelt of Ireland bold,
Italian fire and Spanish pride; the Jew
Keen-witted, dragging here no ghetto chain;
Each giving thee their lore, their art of old;
Each fired by thee with Lopes and raptures new.

And Queen, thy women exquisite,
Thy clear-eyed maids, thy mothers pure —
Pledge of thy greatness sweetly to endure!
By these I bless thee in thy day of joy,
Thy wide-thrown halls, thy hospitable board,
Thy heart of anxious service, and the rays
Of kindness within thy bosom stored.
No evil shall thy graciousness destroy,
And so I bid thee with increasing days
No whit thy fair ambitions to abate;
Fulfill thy destiny of good and great.

Hark, the message of Manhattan's soul!

*Constant my soul on the hard path of duty,
Striving to win to the levels above,
Longing my soul in the garden of beauty,
Eager my soul in the service of love,
Tender my soul to the angels of pity,
Humble my soul to the bearers of light,
Fearless my soul at the gates of the city,
Stalwart my soul for the ultimate right.*

*Mighty my dreams of a city imperial,
Radiant, free with an ordered law,
Rich, but with mind-gold beyond the material,
Powerful, merciful, just without flaw,
Thrift-strong and gentle-voiced, rippling with laughter,
Song-filled, and thrilled with the triumphs of art,
Poverty banished and now and hereafter,
Peace in my bosom, joy in my heart.*
