OFFICE OF THE COMMANDING OFFICER
TURNER FIELD

ALBANY, GEORGIA,
October 16, 1942

TO: The Officers and Enlisted Personnel of Turner Field.

1. I take this opportunity to show my appreciation and sincere gratitude to all of the personnel of this Command for the fine spirit of cooperation you have shown and with which you have worked to make Turner Field one of the outstanding military establishments in the Southeast Army Air Forces Training Center. We have all seen Turner Field grow in various stages from its infancy to the present time. Our field, though new, is slowly and steadily growing in prominence, not only in our own Training Center but in all corners of the United States, and also in foreign countries at the present time. Many of our graduate officers as well as those transferred, including our former enlisted personnel, have gone to other sections of the world with the armed forces, to them we say God speed.

2. To those who remain to carry on the name of Turner Field let me say that we have a most important battle to fight here on our home front. Our main job at Turner Field is to "Keep 'Em Flying." To date you have done your job well. I know that with the same spirit of cooperation which you have all shown in the past we will carry on our job and "Keep 'Em Flying" until our job is done.

HISTORY OF TURNER FIELD

Situated on the low rolling plains of colorful South Georgia is Turner Field, an Army Air Forces Advanced Flying School, and a comparatively new addition to the Southeast Army Air Forces Training Center, which is rapidly building America's new "Empire of the Air."

Turner Field, is snuggled in the very heart of Dixie, approximately three miles distance from Albany, known far and wide as the greatest pecan center in the world, and a mecca for quail hunters.

The selection of the name Turner was a popular choice throughout Georgia, and rightly so, in that it was named in honor of a flying officer who was typical of the energetic and able men who strive continuously to "Prepare For Combat."

Second Lieutenant Sullins Preston Turner, a United States Army Air Corps aviator who gave his life in the service of his country, was a native of Atlanta, Georgia "Tops", as he was called by his intimates, was popular throughout the entire state for his unblemished record of professional skill in the United States Army Air Corps.

He matriculated at Emory University where his father, Dr. E. K. Turner, was Latin professor. Lieutenant Turner first became greatly interested in Albany as an aviation center when studying at Emory. He sought permission to land his plane here, and finally obtained it.

However, he never had an opportunity to bring his craft to the ground here. "Tops" lost his life in line of duty at Langley Field, Virginia, just one week after permission to land at Albany was granted him.

On June 25, 1941, the first contingent of Air Corps soldiers assigned to the Air Corps arrived at Turner Field. The first plane to land at Turner swooped down on the broad, smooth runway on July 17, and was piloted by Lieutenant Colonel John R. Skeldon.

Pilot cadets receive their distinctive wings here after the most rigorous training schedule of any nation. The policy of "men to match the planes—planes to match the men" is strictly adhered to at Turner Field. The first class of pilot cadets at this field were graduated October 31, 1941.

At Turner, a United States Army Air Forces cadet goes through the "polishing" process, transforming him into a superb and finished aviator, fully capable of the job he knows must be done and deserving of his wings.

Emphasis is placed on the best methods of flying, while new methods are also taken up.

Originally, Turner Field was an advanced flying school for pilots, and a navigation school as well. Recently, however, the navigation school moved out, and at the present time only pilots receive their wings here.

As part of the "Hands Across the Sea" policy, cadets of the Royal Air Force come to Turner for their advanced schooling. The first RAF class to receive training and wings from the United States Army Air Forces was stationed here. They have met all requirements and have proven themselves in ace-high form.

Turner Field has formidable basketball and baseball teams, a colorful band, drum and bugle corps, and a popular dance orchestra. Softball, basketball and volleyball leagues within the post make for friendly rivalries.

Constant improvements have been made on the field since the early days of its existence. The enlisted personnel have had more and more recreational facilities built for their use, and still more are in the process of construction. Among those soon to be completed are six modern bowling alleys, a fully equipped recreation hall, and three clay tennis courts.

Officers, too, are well supplied with means for passing their spare time. An athletic field with facilities for all sports is at their disposal, and this field, in conjunction with regular calisthenics keeps the officer staff of Turner in top notch physical condition. Then too, the Officers' Club, with its well appointed lounge rooms and dining room is a second home that is the scene of frequent Saturday night dances.

Non-commissioned officers also have their club, located several miles outside the Post. The NCO Club was formerly a night club, and it has proved a popular social meeting ground for the men with the grade of Corporal and above. It is spacious, well furnished, and has ample room for dances. A regular restaurant is maintained, where good food is sold at prices that are usually lower than can be obtained in civilian restaurants.

Thus, out of which was merely an empty field and a pecan grove—has emerged a thriving military airdrome.

Turner Field is contributing greatly to the "Wings of Liberty" that are polka-dotted the azure skies throughout the nation, and its men are armed with teeth-gritted determination to stand by their two-fold battlecry of: "Prepare For Combat—Keep 'Em Flying"!

Before any plane can take to the blue—it must have a weather report; the weather staff gives a complete and accurate report as to visibility, ceiling, wind, etc. This is absolutely essential to all pilots.

RAEES

Radio plays a vital part in modern aviation —plane to plane, plane to field, and field to field communications are all vital aerial activity.
