FOREWORD

WITH a keen consciousness of their impeccable veracity it cannot be said that the editors take any great pleasure in presenting the 1927 YACKETY YACK to the student body.

To the aforesaid was assigned the task of editing the annual, except when their ideas failed to coincide with those of the Senior class. In their strenuous efforts to eliminate a gross exaggeration—to wit, the Senior writeups—the editors encountered an unimaginable opposition from the concerned class whose vanity could be assuaged in no other manner. After begging and pleading that their honor be held inviolate (to which they received no comforting answer) the Seniors, with the exception of a rational few, even demanded that their rights be respected and their dignity unassailed, meanwhile trying to impress on ye editors the gravity of their inexcusable transgression. Realizing that the Senior class was, in all seriousness, an integral part of the student body, the editors, debased in their humiliation and drowned in their despair on account of the atrociousness of their feeble attempts, pushed aside all thoughts and intentions of true representation, and, as gracefully as was possible under the circumstances, acquiesced to the stern demands of His Portentous Majesty, The Senior Class.

DEDICATION

IN October, 1926, William Rand Kenan, Jr., (B.S. 1894) of New York gave to the University of North Carolina the funds for the erection of the Kenan Memorial Stadium, in honor of his father and his mother, William Rand and Mary Hargrave Kenan. This act of Mr. Kenan becomes, in the span of University history, the latest of many events which have kept the Kenan family and the University closely intertwined since the last years of the eighteenth century.

James Kenan, "representing the District of Wilmington," was the second trustee ever elected after the original group designated in the enabling act of the Legislature of 1789. He met with the board in its third meeting, held in Fayetteville on November 18, 1790, and continued actively in the capacity of trustee until 1799. To him, as to his great grandson, Thomas Stephen, there is a tablet in Memorial Hall.

One son and three great-great-grandsons of James Kenan have also sat upon the Board of Trustees for a combined term of fifty-five years. The terms of two were brought to a close by death, of two by removal from the State, and of one, that of the original James Kenan, by resignation. Thomas Stephen Kenan was for twenty years president of the General Alumni Association.

Three great-grandsons of James Kenan were graduated from Chapel Hill: Thomas Stephen, A.B., 1857, A.M., 1858; James Graham, A.B., 1861; and William Rand, A.B., 1911, "as of 1864," his fourth year being spent in the Confederate Army rather than upon the University campus.

Four of his great-great-grandsons in a direct line have been students here, two of them remaining to graduate; and two great-granddaughters have married University Alumni. One great-granddaughter, Mrs. Graham Kenan, is the donor of the Graham Kenan Fellowship in Philosophy; another, Mrs. Mary Lily Kenan Flagler Bingham, gave the Kenan Endowment Fund of a million and a half dollars—an award for the excellence of the teaching faculty and the largest factor in holding together the abler faculty members during the recent years of readjustments; and a great-great-grandson, William Rand Kenan, Jr., is the donor of the Kenan Memorial Stadium, now in process of construction.

The University takes pride in her long record of service to the members of this illustrious family. She has won continuity in her development and gained strength through the power which she has gathered from the Kenans: statesmen, soldiers, business men, educators, citizens, wise counselors, and benefactors. Truly, there is a Kenan Tradition which is woven into the very life of the institution; and the University feels privileged to honor the Kenans, for in so doing she honors and lends strength to her own cause.

Mr R. K. Smith Jr

Adam A. Kluttz

1857—1926

ALTHOUGH Adam Alexander Kluttz practiced medicine for only a few months after he won his degree, and was known to the University and the village as a man of business, everybody always called him Doctor Kluttz.

He was one of the old-timers—one of the men who dwelled here when Chapel Hill was a secluded and drowsy village where people drew their water out of wells, lit their homes with oil lamps, and drove about in buggies. There was about the place then an intimacy, an air of peace and leisure, which has now long since fled. The village had the drawbacks of remoteness, but it had likewise the charm of remoteness. Through all of the changes that followed, Doctor Kluttz retained the qualities, of outward bearing and of character, that made him so perfect a part of the scene in the eighties and nineties. When he had become used to riding in his high powered car, anno domini 1926, he had the same deliberate, unruffled, whimsical ways as when he sold books and fruit and candy and toys and whatnot in the reigns of Battle and Winston.

Toward the end of his days, having quit commerce, he took things easy. On balmy days he sat in a swinging chair on the front porch of his home and exchanged greetings with the passers-by. When it was too cold for porch life he sat by the fire in the living room. But he did not pass all his time thus. Only a few weeks before his death, to a friend who expressed envy of his leisure, he said he had worked in the garden three hours before the friend had eaten breakfast—and produced evidence from eye-witnesses.

All manner of men—scholars, merchants, whoever it might be—found him congenial company. One of his frequent callers was Jack Lloyd from out in the country—and before Jack was out of the yard he would be holding conversation with the scientist, William C. Coker, or M. C. S. Noble or some other University professor.

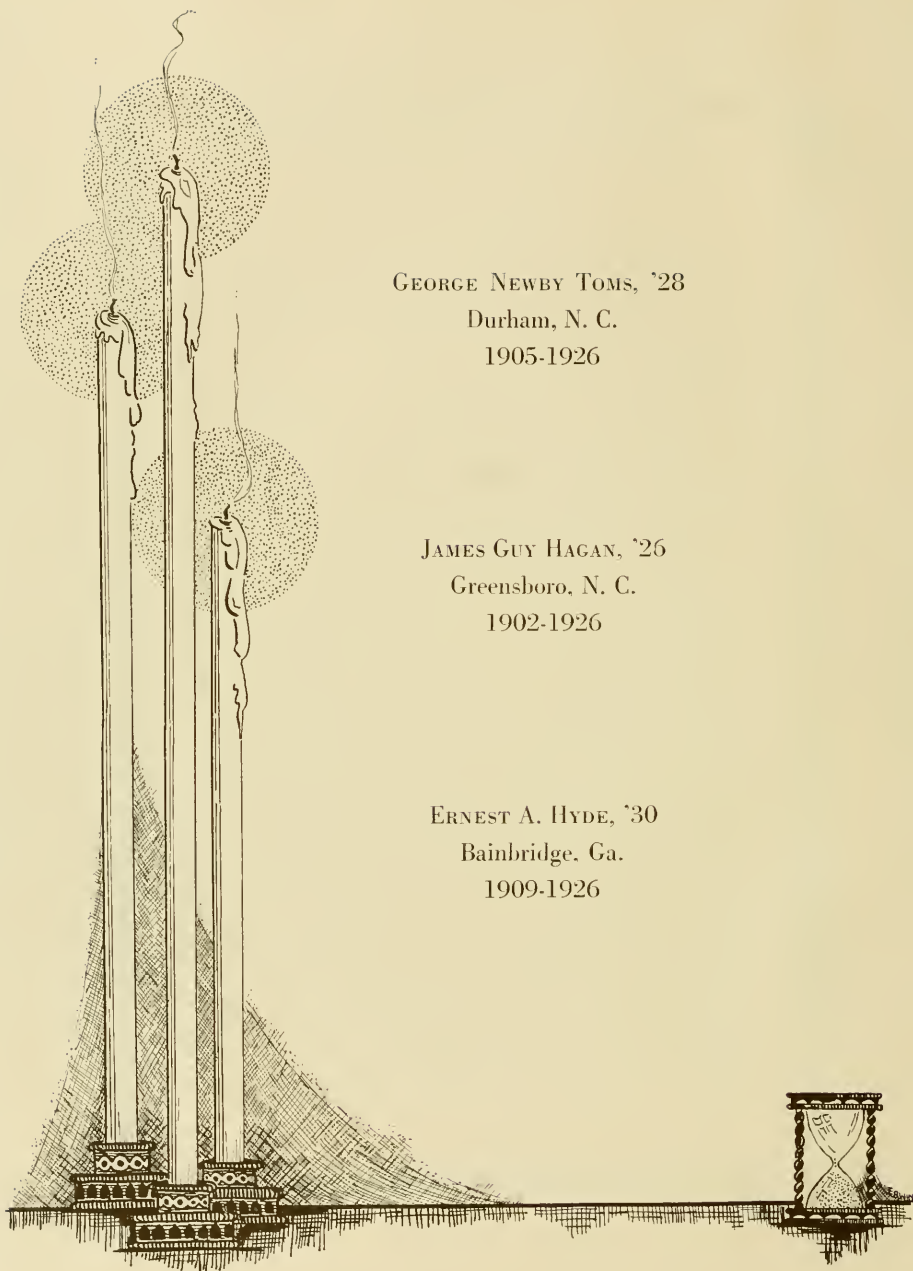

To a stranger he might give the impression of being a little stolid. But those who knew him best saw in him a ready understanding and a lively humor; and something better still, a lovable nature.

William Cain Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

A X A.

A college education is not only a means of gaining vast quantities of material, but also is the opportunity for us to make life more livable by improving the intangible qualities, by developing the aesthetic tastes, and by cultivating a broad mind. Many forget or never stop to think of the highest significance of a university education, but "Pete" has gained much during his four years here.

With great awe in his merry eyes, he came to Chapel Hill four years ago to strain himself in Civil Engineering, and in acquiring the fundamentals of his chosen profession, he has succeeded admirably.

Of "Alex" it may be said: "Here is no freak—neither an intellectual genius nor an athletic luminary—but first of all a darn good fellow, an untiring student, and no mean athlete; able to take college life seriously without becoming a hermit, accepting defeats without becoming discouraged, and bearing his successes without becoming a snob."

WILLIAM TASSE ALEXANDER

Derita, N. C.

Age: 23

Degree: A.B.

Dialectic Senate; Freshman Debating Society; Der Deutsche Verein; Cheerois; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society; North Carolina Academy of Science; Mecklenburg County Club; German Club.

William Tasse Alexander, of Derita, arrived upon our campus four years ago merely as one drop in the annual green tidal wave; but no member of the Psychology Department would have failed to pick out William as an exceptional man. And one glance at the above statistics will prove to even a casual reader that his quest after prominence has not been quite as fruitless as it might have been. "Demitasse," as he is no doubt playfully called by his witty collegiate acquaintances, will certainly make his mark in the world if it's only a black one, won't you, "Demi"?

THOMAS DIXON ALLEN

Shelby, N. C.

Age: 23

North Carolina Club; Cleveland County Club.

"Allen," (thus known on the campus) is a native of Cleveland County and a highly esteemed student in the Commerce School. Like the Sun he runs his daily course and sheds light in many "dark" places.

In Allen we find a staunch friend and a loyal classmate. He is a good Samaritan to Accounting 1 students, and his accuracy in handling numerals has placed him upon a pedestal in our minds.

Banking and Finance are his present objectives, but despite the fact that he endeavors to make us believe that he's a woman hater we commend him to a pair of brown eyes.

GEORGE HURON ARNOLD

Freshman Debating Society; Randolph County Club; French Club; Bible Discussion Group Leader; Dialectic Senate; North Carolina Club.

The inclemency of weather has no more effect on Arnold's smile than kissing has on the painted lips of a flapper. There is an intangible something about his jovial smile and cheery greeting that makes him unforgettable to his many friends.

He has not been a leader in campus activities; his course was not conducive to that. And we doubt that he has any ambition other than to practice medicine. All his energy seems bent toward a thorough preparation for work in that profession. G. H. will be just the type of doctor that we would want for a family Physician, or we miss our guess.

RANDALL FRANKLIN AUTRY

Cooper, N. C.

Age: 23

Degree: A.B.

Carolina Glee Club; Sampson County Club.

In the early fall of 1923, Autry, another son of Sampson County, famous for highland cotton and huckleberries, decided to expose himself to higher learning in this institution. The thirty-nine courses that he passed during his three years with us with a grade above the average, is evidence enough that he learns easily what ever interests him.

He will follow the profession of an educator, and the school that he serves will be fortunate, for he has proved through experience that he is a successful teacher. Carolina, you are losing a student in the real meaning of that term, but the State is gaining in Autry a man whose motto is service.

He has attained one of the highest honors in the Electrical Engineering School, but at the same time he has searched far afield, searched with an open unprejudiced mind, and has developed a sound, practical, happy philosophy of life.

To us who know him, he is always the same jovial, true friend, always willing and eager to lend a helping hand.

"High pressure's" personality is graced with a keen, sparkling wit, irresistible to his acquaintances, indispensable to his friends. Besides his bursts of dashing humor, Tartt's unaffected simplicity will identify him in the hearts of his friends for years to come. Staunch honor and winning personality bid high for success in the business world. Here's to you, Tartt!

This boy Black is an irritating person. To begin with, he didn't enter here as a freshman like most of us, but transferred from Davidson, and had a sophisticated manner of finding his way around the campus that was extremely annoying to those of us who learned by experience (and hard knocks). In desperation he sat on classes apparently inattentive, yet always beat us poor plodders. The girl friend confided to us "He's actually handsome. Why, my dear, his features—!" We are sorry, but we are forced to predict for Stan a future marred by continuing success, due to the maddeningly simple control intellectual superiority exercises over matter. Selah!

"Buck," as he is affectionately known on the campus, is a man of sterling character and rare ability. His personality is strikingly magnetic, and his courteous and affable manners stand him in good stead in turning casual acquaintances into lasting intimacies that will stand the test of time.

The record "Buck" has made in the classroom is one of which any one would be justly proud.

In bidding "Buck" farewell we wish him luck, and to predict anything other than a successful future would be entirely inconsistent with the foundation that he has given us upon which to stand and prophesy.

Here's a chap who appeared on our campus unnoticed. To the wonders of Chase's University, he didn't fail to open his eyes wide, and perhaps his mouth too; however, that may be, but just the same Earl struck his stride. On classes, on the campus, and at dances, this "elongated" piece of smiling humanity very soon became known, loved, and sought after. If the past is any mirror of the future, Beatty, with the conquest of the campus, with the scalps of forty courses and with the victory of a successful Summer School, will sooner or later slash the Gorgon's Knot of Life.

A cheerful smile—perhaps "grin" is better—is one thing that Joe is never seen without.

He would have had an awfully hard time finding something to do if intra-mural athletics had not been thought of, not to mention the glee club.

Although he hails from the Capital City, we are sure that none of the numerous squirrels there have ever bothered him, even though he is a firm believer in the old saying, "Never let your studies interfere with your education."

"Put" came to us in the fall of 1924 and registered in the Medical School. After studying in this department for one quarter he discovered his mistake and changed to Pharmacy. He heard the call of the "pill-rollers" and answered with all the pep which goes into the making of a successful business man.

"Put" can do as much in the "lab" as any man who ever entered here—and do it well. He is every inch a Carolina man. This he has proven by regular attendance at all athletic games and at the "Pick." And yet he still keeps up with his numerous studies and maintains a standing that is not to be sneezed at.

His morals stand out as being those of a gentleman.

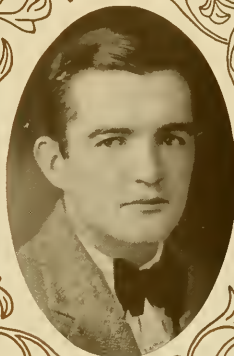

Herman's modesty and reserved characteristics together with his ever present optimism are so typical of him that we will always think of him in this light. Since Herman has cast his lot in the field of business, we predict equal success for him in future life.

To relate the story of Fuller's four years here at the University would necessarily involve the following of the social and progressive organizations of the campus. Popularity cannot always be attributed to membership in various clubs; but, regardless of this, Fuller's merited popularity is evidenced not only by these memberships but by general concensus of attitudes toward him. Among those who know him best he is esteemed for his unusual character and delightful humor; and, judging from his ability to do things adequately and conservatively, there is no doubt that his success in the outer world will be assured.

He is a student of rare personality and is liked by every one who meets him. When it comes to social life, "Bull" is a second Arabian sheik, and when it comes to weekends, he is very hard to find on the Hill for he is equally as popular with the feminine sex as with the masculine.

His ability to pass all his work and the major portion of the day in slumber is quite remarkable. If he can do this, we see no reason why he should not be very successful in the life that he is entering. "Speedy" believes in the old adage; "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." In his Freshman and Sophomore years he kept his nose strictly to the grindstone, but the pressure was lessened when he made acquaintances on the Hill and suffered a severe attack of St. Marysitis.

His nickname applies in two contrasting respects; it was given him because of his slow and deliberate movements, but it also indicates his quickness to learn. His mind and body travel at widely different speeds. Other of his personal traits are a fatal weakness for the ladies and a frequently occurring desire to produce music vocally and by means of stringed instruments.

Academically speaking, it would mean the downfall of the average college boy to have the constant use of a motor during his four years sojourn within our halls of learning. But Eddie is not exactly the average boy—any of the fair ones of Sweethrier, Converse, or Hollins will bear us ample testimony to that effect. His college career has been frequently punctuated by weekend trips to social centers, but with all his motoring activities Eddie has found time to consider the more serious things of life, not the least of which was passing courses. Since then he has put out odd (very) bits of poems, known only to the elect among his friends. His musical soul is given voice through his violin. Herbert was serious minded, and was determined to master these things. For this reason he did not worry because he was unable to take part in as many activities as he would have liked; however, he did a great deal outside of his school work and he was really a pusher in whatever he undertook.

Bob spent two years at Duke University before entering Carolina. Like most students he came here primarily for an education, as is evidenced by his name appearing on the Dean's list. During his college career, however, he has blended work and play in such a manner that the results have been those of real accomplishments.

Bob has an attractive personality which, combined with his admirable qualities, has won the respect and admiration of all those who have come in contact with him.

Any person endowed with such qualities is sure of a future that will reflect credit, not only on the home town but also on the State and the University.

GRANVILLE BAXTER COLEMAN

Canton, N. C.

Age: 21

Degree: A.B.

Although Granville, is one of the most conservative boys on the campus, he has won a host of friends during his residence at the University. His quiet demeanor and sane outlook on life have never failed to demand respect. He will lay aside anything that is occupying his time in order to engage in a good argument, especially if the argument concerns sociological theories. Here he expresses his opinions without reserve, and after the manner of one whose scope of reading has been wide. "Ronald" intends to study illustrating after he leaves the University, as drawing has always been his favorite hobby.

COUNCIL WOOLEN COLWELL

Watha, N. C.

Age: 22

Degree: A.B. in Ed.

To finish a four-year college course in three years, including summer school terms, while earning one's way is the work of a man. It shows perseverance that is not portrayed in athletics and other extra-curricula activities. Colwell has not excelled in scholarship, but his grade average is high. The Class of '27 is proud to have such a man to finish with it.

He is by nature quiet, unassuming, and serious yet humorous and affectionate with those who know him well. He has a large number of friends who admire him for his study morality, honesty, truthfulness, and merit.

"Hatchet" is a good egg. Energetic, capable, possessing a keen mind, and an unflagging interest in all that he undertakes. That, sums up the attributes of "Hatchet." His personality is quiet but forceful, his friendship lasting and true. It is our opinion that, though small in person, his dynamic mental force will push him to the fore once he has found his niche in the world of affairs.

"Hatchet's" latent athletic ability might have caused him to star in the sports spotlight had he trained under more auspicious circumstances or had he been more inclined to shine.

JACK ARMSTRONG CROW

E Φ Δ.

"Professor Jack" hails from Dallas, Texas, but he possesses scholastic qualities which do not correspond to the romantic spirit of the western frontier. He far surpasses the average in intellect, in fact, it is impossible to give this noteworthy gentleman the kind of write-up that he really deserves.

He has, through his persistent study and pleasing character, received a harvest of campus honors, including membership in Phi Beta Kappa. He is a "shark" when it comes to romance languages having acquired a fluent speaking knowledge of Spanish here and at the University of Mexico. This year he became a member of the staff of romance languages.

Behold the second Booth! As an actor of character roles Dwight has few equals in amateur circles. He is an outstanding member of The Carolina Playmakers, having played important parts in, "She Stoops to Conquer," "Trista," "In Dixon's Kitchen," and "The Miser."

Although he partakes of all the pleasures and frivolities of college life he is recognized as a religious leader. His vital interest in religion and his regular attendance to all forms of religious worship proves by his example that the University of North Carolina is still a stronghold of religious faith.

KENNETH GEORGE DACY

Asheville, N. C.

Age: 24

X T.

Ken has attained a real college education by frequent combination of extra-curricular activities with his studies. He has had more than usual interest in student enterprise, which has given him extensive acquaintance throughout the University. He has spent considerable time with the Geology department being known as Mr. Dacy by the Commerce School Freshmen.

Dacy was not born in Carolina, but he has been naturalized so completely by the Asheville climate that those who knew him as a kid must admit he is a Tar Heel.

Arthur came to the Hill with the other raw recruits from Charlotte who arrived in the fall of '23. Already interested in science, he was determined to face and overcome the terrors and obstacles presented by the B.S. degree. He had seen service on the cinder path in high school days and had a reputation for distance. In both studies and track he has been exceptionally successful. His track work, mostly distance running, earning the much-sought-after N. C. for him. "Art" knows his chemistry." He has a fine personality, and we, do not see how he can fail to make a mark on his section of the book of Life.

Whether it be at a party or the bull session on the fatal night before final examinations, "Chunk" is always there with a jovial smile. If a man is the product of his environment, Salisbury must be a perfect Utopia. There is nothing in "Chunk" which would make any one believe that he ever had a gloomy thought.

Although he always has time to laugh, he also takes time out for books occasionally. You couldn't call him a Book worm, but when it comes to passing courses in a pinch, "Chunk" is a genius. No better proof of this could be offered than the fact that he passed nine courses in the last two quarters of his Senior year.

FRANK ARTHUR DANIELS

Age: 22

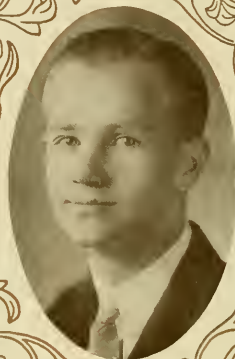

Degree: A.B.

Football Squad 1924; Assistant Leader Fall Dances 1926; Cabin; Minotaurs; Pan-Hellenic Council.

Δ K E.

Frank is undoubtedly one of Carolina's remarkable figures. His well-known slouch has been seen on the campus as often as four full years permit, and the attitude from which it grew portrays accurately his character. The number of his activities is not great but their worth is considerable, and the good judgment with which he handles every situation makes him invaluable in whatever function he happens to be concerned.

Briefly Frank is an individual who stands out among those around him unassumingly superior, and that is why those who know and value his friendship call him "Uncle."

FRANK NEWBURNE DAUGHETY

Δ Σ Π.

Hundreds of years ago a lantern was used in a search for an honest man. Now artificial light is not needed; integrity "shines" for itself. Frank has a combination of integrity, persistency and energy that helps him to win any goal upon which his mind is fixed.

These qualities have not made him a recluse, as is shown by his ability to attain and retain friends. When he goes out from the University he will take with him as a lasting treasure the friendship of many who, have been glad to be known as his friends.

JOHN ROBERT DEJOURNETTE

"J. R." rambled here from the University of Chattanooga where he spent his first two years away from the hills of Georgia. Back and forth over the "Hill" he could be seen seeking for a good live story for the "Tar Heel" and during spare moments he indulged in the "delights of Socrates." Although known to some as the singing journalist this handsome brute will probably get a reputation in the "real" world as the stinging journalist. At least these tendances were shown at times when many of his publicity seeking friends who sought "Tar Heel" glorification were quickly though painfully refused.

JAMES MARION DEW

Raeford, N. C.

Age: 22

"Fresh as the morning Dew" this gentleman came to Carolina after spending three years of his life at Davidson. We do not condemn him for the mistake he made three years ago but we regret that his arrival here has been delayed.

Dew's poise, sobriety, and suave courtesy mark him as a man of good lineage. His self-reliance and independence are remarkable. The best that can be said of Dew is a gentleman and a worthy Carolina man.

Dew plans to enter medicine at Carolina next year. We wish this gentleman unlimited success.

"Freddy" is one of those boys who limits, comparatively, his intimate friends to a "chosen few." He is not so ostentatious that his name is familiar on the lips of every student; and yet those who know him well are, in every case, his staunch friends. In all of his interests he works hard and never shirks a task. His record in the Registrar's office is one which many might envy, and yet he has gotten more out of his four year's stay than mere knowledge from books. "Moderation in all things" seems to be his chief characteristic.

This versatile lad came to us from the Palmetto State four years ago determined to become an engineer. The result is success and now, whether its mass diagrams, reinforced concrete structures, or highway bridges, Earl is right there with the goods. His ability to take notes on every important fact given in class and to appear half asleep at the same time is quite uncanny. As for his frequent trips to the post office—well, he usually returns with a broad smile on his face and there's bound to be a reason.

John Amon Downs of Cofield is one of those delightful men on our campus who are really and truly prominent. He is President of that wonderful Eses Club, which must be something like the Ku Klux Klan because no one knows anything about it—not even the members. And John is a real Thespian, too. Whenever he has trod the boards, thunders of applause have always rocked the theater. When he graduates and goes on Broadway he will have lots of mash notes. Won't you, John?

FITZHUGH DURHAM DUNCAN

"Dunk" is a man with whom you have to be intimately associated in order to really appreciate his many good qualities. Once you know him and get him started he has more than his share of spirit—"Carolina" and otherwise!

You do not see a long string of statistics under 'Dunk's' farcial presentation. However, if you compiled a few statistics, you would find a string of four years of hard work, and a commendable scholastic average behind him. He has enjoyed his stay at Carolina, and has many friends among the student body.

While Mary herself isn't aware of it and her acquaintances would never suspect it, she is a vamp. Her friends have discovered many charms beneath her demure way, the secret perhaps being due to her sympathetic manner and the sincerity of her friendship.

We all wish her much success, good luck, and happiness for a lifetime.

Tom's four years' sojourn at Carolina has been spent in doing his work reasonably well, dabbling in politics a bit, and in a detached sort of way watching the whole of college life rush by him. "Gii" has made a success of his four years at Carolina. We make this statement with plenty of foundation, for the friends he leaves and the record he has made speak for themselves. His college career has been well balanced, enough of activities, and enough of studies.

"Fair play" has been his creed, whether it was in political elections or on the athletic field. That quality will lead to success anywhere.

We have a sneaking idea that after teaching one year he will return to his Alma Mater to pursue the legal studies of "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

Pat is a staunch supporter of Carolina and a great believer in the Tar Heel's supremacy in athletics. Very few athletic contests here and abroad have found Pat absent from their gates. He has been a star player on all of the Grimes, Intramural athletics teams for the four years that he has spent here. There is still another sport which he likes—the Pickwick.

Never seeking an office, never wishing to occupy the spotlight, caring not for passing vanities and unstable glories of campus honors, Pat has wheezed through four years at Carolina and has come out of Dud's School of Commerce ready for the "beats and bangs" of the business world.

EUGENE ALSTON GREENE

High Point, N. C.

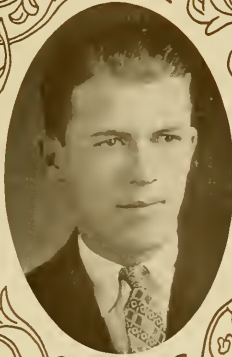

Age: 24

Degree: A.B. in Ed.

Dialectic Senate; High Point Club; Baseball Squad (2, 3, 4); Thac.

"Monk" Greene has always been an unpretentious, reticent student who is aptly characterized in terms of the old adage: "Still water runs deep." His ardent adherence to the law of moderation as the key to a happy and successful life has made his character highly esteemed by the selective few who know him well.

He is a keen lover of competition whether in scholastic achievement or on the athletic field, and his never failing good sportsmanship is ever welcomed in the game.

In "P. H." we have a man of most unique character. He is not one who has just missed Phi Beta Kappa, nor one who has barely passed. He is frank and can always hold up his side of an argument.

"P. H." is a pure gentleman and a staunch friend. His many friends, both at N. C. C. W. and U. N. C. will miss him and his ever present humor, but all can be assured that whatever he undertakes he will make a success of it. A good sport and a true pal—a man who shall remain in our memory long after we part as classmates.

BUNN W. HACKNEY, JR.
Durham, N. C.
Age: 23
Degree: B.S. in Commerce

Vice President Freshman Class; Freshman Football; Freshman Basketball, Captain; Freshman Track; Varsity Football (2, 3, 4); Varsity Track (2, 3, 4); Varsity Basketball (2, 3, 4); Captain (4); President Sophomore Class; Durham County Club; Committee of 100; Athletic Council (4); Student Council (2, 3); Monogram Club; Davie Cup Award; President Athletic Association (4); Golden Fleece.

Α Χ Α, Ε Φ Δ.

Athlete, student, campus leader—such are the titles that fall easily upon the head of Bunn. His alert mind and sound judgment have done much to place Carolina in her high position.

His bigness is written in two phases, "Golden Fleece" and "Davie Cup." The first picked him as one of the dozen most prominent men on the campus; and the latter chose him as Carolina's foremost man from the standpoints of leadership, character, and versatility of activity.

ONSLow BONNER HAGAR, JR.

Danville, Va.

Age: 22

Degree: B.S. in Chemistry

$\Lambda \times \Sigma$.

Hagar decided four years ago that a successful career in radio was too ethereal, abandoning this he chose chemistry as his profession. Nevertheless he is often found swapping ideas with the radio men in Phillips Hall.

Hagar's real specialty in chemistry is dyes. When he finds an organic compound that has color it throws him into raptures. If it will dye cotton he is pleased even more, and if it is bright red his elation is without bounds.

As a person he is quiet and unassuming; as a student he is deep thinking and thorough; and as a friend he leaves nothing.

DAN HALL

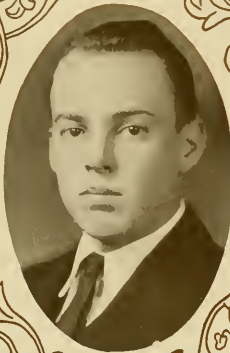

Mars Hill, N. C.

Age: 22

Degree: A.B.

Dan came to us in his Junior year, having taken his first two years of college work at Mars Hill College. We feel that it was unfortunate for him, and the rest of us too, that he did not come sooner.

When it comes to working Math Dan beams brighter than ever. He seems, by some mystic method of his own, to be able to cast a magic spell over the most difficult problem and make it behave itself no matter how cranky it may be. It will have to be admitted however that he seems to enjoy his Math much more than his Latin.

MARCUS LAFAYETTE HAM, JR.

 Age: 20

 Θ K N.

When Marcus came to the "Hill" he was termed the "greenest of green." By the time he had thrown away his rifle-barreled trousers and found that he, too, could be an honest-to-goodness cake eater, he was a regular fellow. He soon began to fit right into campus life, and now numbers his friends by the hundreds.

Marcus is going to be a professor. In this field his success should be assured, because he always puts his point across with a personality that is pleasing.

WILLIAM C. HAMMOND, JR.

Randolph County Club; Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

William Clinton Hammond, better known as "Bill" or "Bull," comes to Carolina from Guilford. Bill dropped in on us in the fall of '25 and started in with the present Senior class. He has been quite an asset, so thinks the Chemistry class of this year, due to his sunny disposition and to his happy faculty of lessening the long hours of laboratory with his marvelous line of "bull."

It has been rumored that Bill is about to lose his bachelorhood, at least we know he goes to Flora MacDonald about every week end.

"Hank," although not a football hero, a shining literary light, a paragon of learning, or a sheik, is above all a gentleman. Dependable, loyal, and generous, with a brilliant mind which he has consistently refused to dull by the humdrum routine of ordinary school work. He is always a welcome addition and an easy favorite where good comradeship and true fellowship are highly valued. His strong personality quickly attracts friends, and those friends having gained an insight into his real character, come to count that friendship as one of their most valued possessions.

E Φ Δ.

We have never known Jim Hanner to miss an opportunity for a good bull session. The subject makes little difference, although his favorite ones are literature, travel, and the superficiality of the female sex. It is his belief that rational discussion is the height of enjoyment, and he is convinced that enjoyment is the greatest thing in life. We are inclined to believe that he has the right idea.

ROBERT MARION HARDEE

Cabinet (1, 2, 3); Sub-Assistant Basketball Manager (2), Assistant Manager (3), Manager (4); Senior Class Executive Committee; Monogram Club.

This man has done more to fan the dying embers of Carolina spirit into a blaze than any man ever to attend the University.

The qualities that are innately his—a dynamic personality, sincerity and geniality—have made him the best known man in school. He has served Carolina unswervingly all the way from managing the basketball team to heavy "politicking"—never failing to bring further brilliance to her undying glory. We predict for Robert a life chock-full of honor, success and happiness.

JOHN WILLIAM HARDEN

Bible Discussion Group; Carolina Playmakers, "The Romancers," "A Thousand Years Ago," "She Stoops to Conquer," 1926 State Tour; North Carolina Club.

E Φ Δ.

Not only is Johnnie an honest man but he is a sham-hater on whom time has stamped many worth-while things—one of those friends who can satisfy and stimulate the senses more than all the mummery that panders to the least impulses of college students.

And strange as it may seem, this huge hill of lovable flesh has a Valentino complexion. Maybe he acquired it in the Playmakers; but if you don't believe he has it, ask the librarian at Graham.

LUTHER BRIDGES HARDESTY

Newport, N. C.

Age: 21

Degree: B.S. in E. E.

Carteret County Club; A. I. E. E.

"Brid." came to Carolina with the purpose in mind of chasing what he now knows as "Daggett's Electron" until he could obtain enough data and knowledge to classify himself as an entrant to the world of electricity. His purpose has been practically accomplished by now, though he modestly asserts that at present he is more misled by engineering terms than ever before, but who wouldn't be?

With all this work, "Brid." has had time to step outside and make friends with his fellow students, and to be a friend of whom his friends are proud. Need more be said for him?

And Billy, with his cheery smile and his sunshiny disposition and his unflinching equanimity, is quite a wonderful fellow. Aren't you, Billy? Billy is a college man in miniature, and he offers a wonderful opportunity for the campus to use its most hackneyed adages. We wish for Billy a life of sunshine and flowers, and even when he dies, we hope he will have a lily in his hand.

ROBERT CHALMERS HARRIS

Concord, N. C.

Age: 25

Harris is a boy who has obtained many real and tangible results from his stay at the University. Sometimes he is reluctant to admit this; nevertheless, on being pressed, he will. He is an industrious and honest worker, and as a result his scholastic attainments have been of a superior type. We are sure his bachelor days are definitely numbered.

Harris possesses a quiet, unassuming disposition. His is just that type of personality that one can't help but admire. These qualities, coupled with his ability, should make him a great success in whatever line of work he chooses to follow.

Determination, ambition, and perseverance have played no small part in the success this lad has attained during his college career. "Hat," as he is familiarly known, is a student, musician, and athlete, and a friend to all. If you are looking for a wide awake, energetic, good natured chap, here he is. He is one of those kind who really knows how to be a friend. He is possessor of a pleasing personality, an everlasting friendly smile, and an ever ready helpful hand, combined with quality of leadership and refinement.

HORACE STATEMAN HAYES

Gates, N. C.

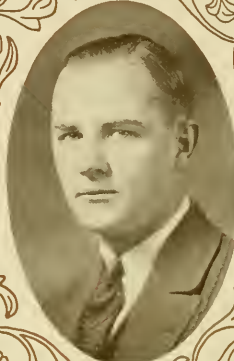

Age: 20

Phi Society; Freshman Inter-collegiate Debate; Winner Freshman Oratorical Medal; Assistant in Library; Intra-mural Basketball, Football; Track Squad.

"H. S." is a born social mixer. He fits anywhere and fits well—on the ballroom floor a low soft voice, a few clever words, and a "darn" winning smile gives him a laps lead. In the society hall his oratorical ability has proven to us that he possesses characteristics of real leadership and any one wishing to beat him out in the inter-collegiate debates this Spring will have to work and work hard.

If courtesy, energy and a "dogged" determination to win are prerequisite to success, we predict for "H. S." a bright future.

ALTON DEWITT HEAFNER

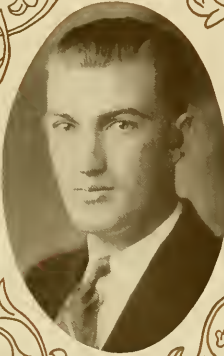

Crouse, N. C.

Age: 22

Degree: B.S. Commerce

"Dee" has tried selling everything from Bible to Real Estate. When he came down here four years ago he seemed pleased to say that he was from Crouse. He soon learned however, that not many of the students seemed to know much about North Carolina geography. Now he says he is "from the country near Lincolnton."

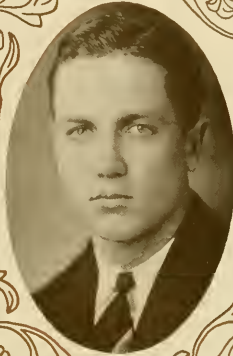

"Dee" is optimistic. His lessons are easy for him. He always finds time to "Catch a Pick," play Bridge or to "gas" about his past experiences. His future will be more interesting, we hope!

JAMES HARLAN HEAFNER

"Jin" is of the unobtrusive type. He doesn't climb upon the housetops and herald his presence. He is slow, deliberate, but sure and exceedingly determined.

Never seeking an office, never wishing to occupy the spot-light, caring not for passing vanities and unstable glories of campus honors, "Jin" has breezed through four years at Carolina and has come out of "Dud's" School of Commerce ready for the cruel business world; and here's hoping for him great success in what ever field he may choose.

"Ed's" frankness, sincerity, and willingness to "hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may" have won the respect and admiration of all who have come in contact with him.

Ed has been one of the few of us who has known how to get a "college education" while in school. He has taken part in numerous campus activities, graduated at the end of the first quarter of his Senior year, had time for bull-sessions, work-outs in the gym, social functions, and the ladies too. In short he is an all-round fellow.

HADLEY MONROE HENDRICKS

High Point, N. C.

Age: 23

Degree: A.B.

High Point Club; French Club; Dialectic Senate; Randolph County Club; North Carolina Club.

Hendricks is a thoroughly likable, quiet and reserved sort of chap, with the knack of getting things done with a maximum of results and a minimum of effort. He is the kind of fellow we like when the world seems topsy-turvey.

Hendricks is cynical, and perhaps a trifle supercilious, in his attitude toward women, classifying them somewhere between nuisances and "necessary evils." We doubt not, however, that he is riding to a fall, and it is only a matter of time before some beautiful young damsel has him securely roped and tied.

Quiet, congenial, unassuming, dependable—these are the words that best describe Everett. That he has ability and that he also has the unique knack of knowing how to use that ability have been proven by an enviable record on the cinder path of Emerson Field. "Higgins," as he is sometimes called, has been among us but a brief five years, and so it is difficult to form more than a rough estimate of him, though it is averred that he is quite the contrary, judging from certain feminine casualties who seemed much surprised, on taking Latin 407, to learn that Ovid wrote the Ars Amatoria.

Billy is not philosophically inclined but rather has acquired a happy faculty for popularity, always proving himself a staunch friend. We forecast for him a future, fair and warmer.

William Ellis Hunt is unanimously accorded the title of all-round good fellow. He always has a cheery word for everybody on the campus and his presence is always the cause of much gladness in our midst, isn't it, William? And he has a sort of mysterious, hocus-pocus way with the girls which makes them fall for him in flocks and herds. We and your girl friends will all be cheering for you, William, when you start out into the cruel universe to make a scintillating success of yourself.

MARVIN LEE INGRAM

"If you want that job done well, get Ingram to do it." That's what they say about M. L. whether it be in his classes or his work in the library. Because of his even disposition and keen sense of humor, association with him is a pleasure. For three years of his college career he has worked in the University library as an assistant. Sometimes he mentions taking up library work as a profession instead of the usual teaching.

If unusual ability combined with conscientious effort are prerequisites of success, M. L. has nothing to fear.

ERNEST BOSTON ISLEY

As Mr. Isley has been with us only two years, an explanation of his former activities is in order. He attended Elon as a Freshman in 1907-08. He has been a teacher in the public schools for several years. Served in the Medical Department of the Regular Army from 1916 to 1920, seeing service on the border and with the A.E.F. He was a co-ed, at N. C. C. W. during the summers of 1923 and '24.

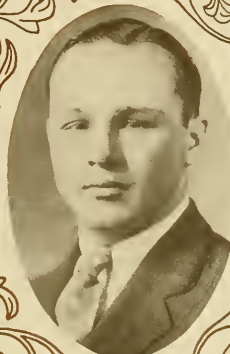

Those of us who know him best on the campus feel assured of his future success in his chosen profession.

WALTER CLINTON JACKSON, JR.
Greensboro, N. C.
Age: 21
Degree: B.S. in Commerce

△ Σ II.

Walter Clinton Jackson is the most commercial man in the Senior class and we must offer our most insipid congratulations to Greensboro, for it is to this city that the campus is indebted for such a great addition. Even in high school Walter was extraordinarily proficient with a lead pencil, and it is a matter greatly to be regretted that, since coming to the University, he has learned to use a fountain pen. Walter is also quite an artist and we are quite sure that he will be an enormous success drawing shekels (Now wasn't that a clever pun to put in your write-up, Walter?)

HUGH BEVINS JENKINS

Track Squad '24-25-26; Boxing Team '24-25; Football '25-26; Lincoln County Club.

"Jenks" hails from the Western part of the State and is endowed with the vigor so characteristic of that section. Upon the gridiron, his powerful line smashes have given joy to many a follower of Carolina football. Few have worked harder and with more determination, and we hope that he will be back next fall to help carry Carolina to victory with those self-same smashes.

Outwardly he is quiet and unassuming, but he possesses those sterling qualities of sincerity and friendliness which have gained for him so many friends and admirers.

HOWARD ATWATER JOHNSON

Asheville, N. C.

Age: 21

Degree: B.S.

American Society of Civil Engineering.

Although a native of the Buckeye State, Howard has gradually become thoroughly "Tarheel" and he can now speak English almost as well as the natives. Judging from his appearance, one would say that Howard is a bit lazy. He is energetic but believes in the Theory of Least Work. He never says anything which is not worth listening to and seldom indulges in "bull sessions." He devotes much of his time to hard work and study. The engineering class feels Howard's presence and predicts for him a brilliant future in the field of Sanitary Engineering.

JOSEPH HARRISON JOHNSON

Here is a true example of the "self-made" man. Coming to Carolina four years ago entirely unknown, and without an atom of "pull," Joe has accomplished wonders.

As the above statistics exemplify, Joe is a cultural gentleman to the Nth degree. He has accomplished one thing which is particularly noteworthy. It is none other than Joseph Johnson himself who composed our new college song, "The Spirit of U. N. C.," the words and music of which are original, and we believe much credit is due him for handing this down to the future generations which will come to Carolina.

A few achievements. The proof of a student's loquacious ability is to be elected President of the Dialectic Senate. Nor is oratorical splendor the only requisite for this campus honor. Donald was selected for this job.

It is generally known that studies and athletics seldom go hand in hand. Don has yet to flunk a course, and last year he was good enough at baseball to make all the varsity trips. Watch his smoke around shortstop this year.

With this goal in view, he lifted his trusty pick, bent his shoulders, and hove to. Result: All around good sportsmanship, plenty of friends, an average athlete, and a good student.

He is a deep-thinking, serious-minded student; a hard-fighter, clean-playing sportsman; but above all, a true, loyal and considerate friend.

Davidson's loss is our gain and his presence here is a source of enjoyment to all those that know him. May he enjoy to the fullest extent the success in life for which he has been preparing himself mentally, physically, and morally!

Ward Dix Kerlin, Jr., migrated to Chapel Hill from Moorestown, N. J. His previous collegiate abode was Williams College. Although only a Freshman, he there suffered an indigestion of paternalism and decided to seek another institution where he could give more expression to his individualism. He has now been imbibing Carolina's tree atmosphere for the last three years, and it is with reluctance that he contemplates leaving. Ward's salient characteristics are sobriety and reserve, but despite these he has formed numerous lasting friendships. The only obstacle he encountered here was French, and by perseverance he overcame that—after the departure of one Van Landingham.

John is an example of the divine average; he has made twenty four C's in the University, but that is no implication that he doesn't know his stuff. He is not a politician, but he believed in "voting early and often" and was always considered an excellent side-kick. The reason for this is self evident: John is a Georgia cracker, with a sunny disposition, a good-natured grin, and a tendency to hand out "whimsically" humorous remarks that imply more than they say.

Here we have a man who takes his work seriously, but not to the seclusion of other phases of his college life. Though he spent only the last two years at Carolina, Tom has made many friends. It would not be fair to him not to mention that he has quite a fondness for the fair sex and it is our idea that he is very successful in this line. His summer school here developed this talent quite a bit from the rumors that leak out from time to time.

But speaking more seriously, Tom is one of whom we are proud; and though he has not selected his life work, we expect to see him make a name for himself in whatever it may be.

Because of his hulk they call him Firpo. But he is far from having the pugilistic mien of his namesake—goodnaturedness is one of his prime characteristics. Firpo may not have acquired all the honors obtainable at Carolina nor has he like some campus celebrities soared meteorlike through the higher spaces, but he has demonstrated a fine spirit of citizenship that has made him an amiable place on the campus. Firpo has constantly been a willing worker, and his impulses are most friendly and generous.

Tom has combined success in his studies with many other things that make for a well-rounded college career. His aptness for quick, clear thinking has brought him to the fore in his study of Blackstone, and won for him a coveted place in the campus life of the Hill.

Tom's versatility has been evidenced by his good work on the athletic field and prominence in class and social activities.

His business ability is his outstanding characteristic—and there are few things Tom cannot manage just a shade better than the next person.

It would be useless to predict a successful future for him; it is inevitable. He is going to enter the Medical School next year and let us hope that he will continue his unflinching ways until the highest peak of success has been reached.

How impossible it is to describe such a character as Henry. To use the flowery phrases and effusive praise bestowed on others would only cheapen the deep admiration and sincere friendship for him which we wish to express. To know Henry is to like him. His keen sense of humor and friendly ways have won for him friendships that will last long after the class of '27 has been disbanded. His only faults are his generosity, his unselfishness, and his consideration for every one's feelings.

He is blessed with an unusual degree of stick-to-itiveness, which is vouched for in the business office of the Tar Heel as well as in Professor Peacock's Accounting classes. However, this does not tell the whole story, for he is equally as good when it comes to "les affaires de la coeur." Ask the girls of N. C. College.

As yet Warren is undecided as to the course he will follow after he has gotten his A.B. Our guess is that he will follow the squared circle for a year or two and then take up the study of law. Best o'luck "Add."

Zack hails from Moyock, "the City by the Sea." As soon as he arrived at Carolina, he showed his ability on the mat, and the fact that he was captain of the wrestling team for two years shows the high esteem with which he is held.

On the campus, in the classroom, anywhere, he is just Zack. In his medical profession, and in his dealing with Dan Cupid, we hope for him all success.

May success crown your efforts, and may you render the world the greatest service.

To be or not to be a juggler of facts and figures was a problem that gave "Jack" little trouble. He must have been born figuring. Fortunately for the School of Commerce he cast his lot with Prof. Peacock's "figgerin" boys during his Sophomore year.

If he can accomplish as much in the world of business as he has in the School of Commerce, he will some day control a great many of those elusive but desirable dollars.

Watkins is the most distressingly sane person in the Senior class. He has realized the truth—that the enormous value of a college education is largely mythical, and he is more than willing to shake the dust of machine learning from his feet. Watkins leaves this domicile of knowledge with the doubtful talisman of a degree and a prevailing feeling of disgust. He was born with the gift of seeing through shams, and education has proved to be no exception.

Bill hails from that old historical center of Southern aristocracy—Charleston. He deserted us one year to study the prevailing "economic" conditions in Europe, returning fully convinced that Paris is the place. Casting aside his globe-trotting mania, he reentered Carolina, determined to make a name for himself. A glance at the above statistics is substantiating.

Upon his graduation, Bill marks the passing of a campus figure known and admired by all. Having once worked as a flagman, he plans to make transportation his life work. May he travel by Pullman!

Merrill has adopted the policy that little things are too small to worry about, and larger things are not large enough to become excited over. A calm, non-assuming attitude, together with a substantial amount of genuine humor, makes us appreciate him as a companion, and seek him as a friend.

We always find him interested in the happenings on the campus. We find, therefore, that he has not only broadened his capacity as a student of Engineering, but has also acquired and given much to the campus life.

But to come down to brass tacks, he has led several dances, he has passed several courses, he does belong to several social organizations. Taking all in all, it is certain that Fin has been a credit to himself and to the University.

Glenn does not make friends very easily but is liked and respected by those he does know well. Unlike many men, he is always willing to take his own time to help a friend in any problem he can—and he generally can. Senior Class History

IN the fall of 1923 the Class of '27 entered the University; since that time we have led a checkered career. The Campus first knew we were here when our class, perfectly organized and led by President Jimmie Williams, won a crushing victory over the Sophomores in the annual snowball fight. In the winter quarter the basketball team won the Southern Championship, and the Campus went wild. Few of us will forget the bonfire at the Old Well, and the march to Durham afterward. It was indeed a picture for the farmers to view, as students, clad only in pajamas and bathrobes, headed by the University Band walked to the neighboring city "to let the world know." The partial burning of Swain Hall cast to the winds all our ambitions for a smoker, as well as our visions of future meals. Only the kitchen burned, however, and not the storeroom where grits were kept. The Pick was burned by another fire, and Gerrard Hall was utilized as a Theatre, its staid old walls resounding with the applause for Gloria Swanson, Jack Holt, and others. This year saw the fall of the Boll Weevil before the faculty opposition, and the birth of the Carolina Buccaneer. It also marked the first anniversary of the Publications Union which has now grown into a lusty infant. Virginia was handed two shut-outs here, and the student body moved over to Greensboro to witness the third, and to attend N. C. C. W.'s reception. We set a precedent by having money in the treasury at the end of the year, and electing a class president who was not an athlete.

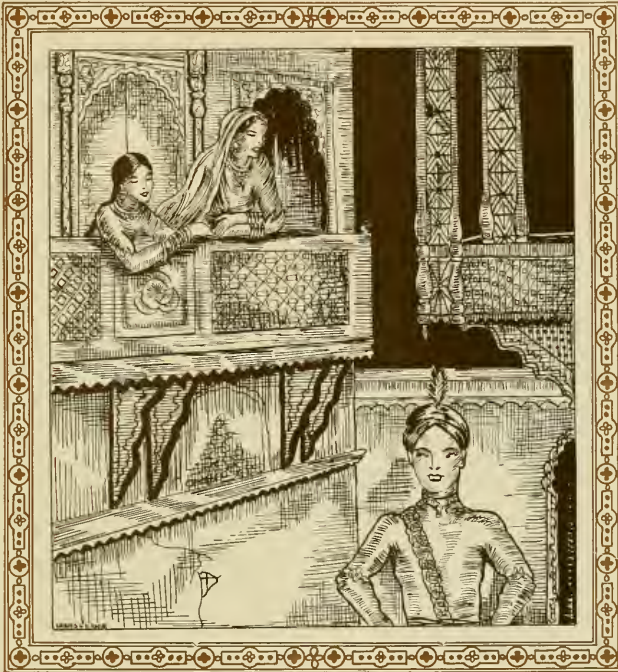

Bunn Hackney led the class our Sophomore Year. The Tin Can had been completed and was ready for use, and Intra-mural athletics were well under way. The Di and Phi reformed, the Di becoming a Senate. The Co-ed house burned, but, as fate would have it, the new one was under construction. The Glee Club, through the efforts of Mr. Weaver, went to Kansas City. Dr. Greenlaw was elected president of the American Association of Universities—and left the University for Johns Hopkins. The basketball team won the championship again and Tulane was burnt in effigy. Mr. Poole became angry in a stormy session of the Legislature and threatened to abolish the study of science at the University with his bill. The dormitories in the triangle were occupied for the first time this year, and Dr. Coker began his program of beautifying the campus. The Playmakers progressed, securing the old Law Building for a theatre. It was a large gift: the first theatre in the United States to be set aside for the development of folk plays. Rameses I made his first debut this year and accompanied the athletic teams on their trips. His first appearance in the Tin Can, however, was marked by an incident which required the extinguishing of the lights.

Our Junior year was indeed a busy one. Bob Sides was our president. Cameron Avenue was paved, and mud-slinging was stopped—at least literally. Old South was doomed, and plans made to remodel it and use it as an administration building. President Chase went to Oregon, but, after giving us a big fight, decided to remain at Carolina. The basketball team won the Southern Championship for the third consecutive time, amid much rejoicing on the campus. Bunn Hackney was chosen as one of the members of the All-Southern team, and was elected captain of the 1926-27 team. "K. O." Warren represented the University, and won the Junior National Amateur Heavyweight Championship. Fleet-footed "Gus" McPherson lowered the State record for the 100-yard dash to 9.8 seconds. At the initiation of Phi Beta Kappa a large number of men were elected from the Junior class. Virginia was tied in the annual football classic, and took two out of three in the baseball series. The celebration of the Semi-centennial of the opening of the University since the Civil War was celebrated this year. Two Co-eds were given a separate cheering section of their own, and during the year more boys than usual were seen wending their way toward the Co-ed house.

The last lap of our college career awaited us on our return to the "Hill" in the fall of our Senior year. "Red" Smith was elected to bear on his shoulders the burdens of the class presidency. A new system of athletic coaching was introduced, and some of the younger sports were brought to the front. Mr. Kenan solved the problem for a new stadium by his substantial gift of $275,000. Work was begun on the new stadium immediately after Christmas. Dr. Workman was elected head of the School of Religion that was opened for registration in the fall quarter. The class exhibited its conservative element strongly by voting overwhelmingly for the retention of the Senior write-up. Quite a bit of oratory was displayed in the process, however. More than the usual number of dances were held on the "Hill" this year, and many of our number figured prominently in them and in the other social activities.

And now we draw the curtain on the history of our college career, and turn to view the prospect that lies before us, which is our Real History. One thing more—may the ties of friendship which we have formed during these four years remain ever true.

The Baseball Season of 1926

FROM a standpoint of games won and lost, Carolina's 1926 baseball season cannot be called a success, but it was still far from a failure. Only nine games were won out of twenty-five played, but a number of promising players were developed and should furnish a nucleus for a great outfit during the coming season.

When "Duke" Duncan, former Tar Heel infield star and Piedmont League manager, took over the coaching reigns in March he found only five lettermen around whom to build his team. They were Hatley, Dodderer, Sides, Jones and Poyner. "Johnny" Johnson, All-State shortstop and captain-elect, left the University early in the winter quarter due to the illness of his mother, and the squad began the season without a leader.

"Touchdown" Jones, veteran third-sacker, was elected captain before the opening game. Coach Duncan filled the gaps from the scrubs and Freshmen of the '25 season, and the campaign opened with fair chances. Dodderer had been shifted to first. Sides was back on second, Tenney took over Johnson's shortstop berth, and Captain Jones was on third. Hatley, Young and Mackie, the latter two being Sophomores, played throughout the year in the gardens and developed into the best trio of fly-chasers in the South by mid-season. Poyner, Westmoreland and Sapp were the big guns of the pitching staff.

After dropping the opener to Dartmouth by the count of 5 to 4, the Duncanites took to the road for an Easter trip through western North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland. Lehigh was defeated at High Point on Saturday before Easter 11 to 10. The game prove a "swat-test" for both teams. Sides doubled in the ninth to drive home the winning run.

Davidson took a hectic encounter in Salisbury on Easter Monday 9 to 8, a desperate rally by the Tar Heels falling just short of pulling the game from the fire. Ed Mackie began a systematic attack on the ball with three safe blows, including a smashing triple to the right field fence.

V. P. I. played host to the Tar Heels in the first game in Virginia and took a terrible 13 to 4 walloping. Hatley, Young, Sides and Webb drove out nine singles between them. Then came three consecutive losses to top the trip. Catholic University won their game 6 to 5, with Mackie's three hits featuring for the Tar Heels. Nihiser, Maryland box ace, was right in that game, and the Old Liners turned the Downhomers back 6 to 1.

Fred Darlington, Cavalier star, began the Virginia series by hicking the Tar Heels 7 to 3 at Charlottesville. That same young hurler came back later and won the annual Greensboro "classic" for the Old Dominion.

A 3 to 2 win over South Carolina and a 5 to 4 triumph over Duke marked the return to Emerson Field. Hatley's homer featured the Duke tilt, with Mackie turning in 4 safeties in 5 trips in the same afternoon. The Tar Heel outfield gathered 8 hits in the first Elon game which went to the Christians after 11 innings by the score of 9 and 7. Young hit for the circuit.

Bill Poyner turned in the best game of his career to win the Virginia game here 12 to 4. Mackie, Sharpe and Hatley hit homers to lick "Mulligan" Holland in the Cavalier star's final battle here. The Cavaliers, however, came back strong and won the Greensboro battle 6 to 2. Homers by Mackie and Webb furnished the Carolina scores.

The batting of the entire Yellow Jacket nine featured Georgia Tech's two wins over Carolina on Emerson Field. The scores were 10 to 5 and 11 to 3. Then came the 16 to 5 win over Lynchburg, followed by losses to State and Wake Forest in succession by scores of 4 to 3 and 8 to 6. The Baptists only garnered 2 hits off Poyner, Sapp and Westmoreland in their game.

Gulford was beaten here 9 to 2, but Wake Forest slaughtered the University nine at Pinehurst 11 to 4. The two final games with Duke resulted in an even break. Carolina won the game here 8 to 7, but dropped the final game in Durham 17 to 9.

Wake Forest was turned back on Emerson Field 12 to 7, but State and Elon tacked three straight defeats on the Tar Heels to conclude the year. The first State game in Raleigh was dropped 8 to 2, while Elon won their own commencement contest 5 to 4. The Techmen won the final game here on Alumni Day 7 to 6 after 11 hard frames. Captain Jones finished his career with 3 hits in 5 trips to the plate.

"Kirby" Hatley and Tom Pearsall were elected captain and manager of the 1927 team.

The Season

THE Tar Heel racketeers, under the leadership of Captain "Hap" Whitaker, battled their way through a successful season as regards meets won and lost. They won seven dual meets, lost one, and tied one. They also entered the annual State Intercollegiate Tournament, the Southern Conference Tournament, and the Mid-South Tournament at Pinehurst, but all University entrants were eliminated before the semi-finals.

The Virginia Cavaliers were the first to fall before Captain Whitaker's men. The score of this opening victory was 5 to 2. Wake Forest was then defeated 5 to 1, followed by two wins over the Duke netmen by scores of 5 to 2 and 6 to 1.

The Wofford Terriers invaded the "Hill" and were turned back 4 to 2, while the South Carolina Gamecocks knotted their meet at three matches all. Wake Forest was turned back in the return engagement 5 to 2 in the last intercollegiate meet of the spring season.

Two meets with the Greensboro Country Club court artists concluded the season. The Tar Heels split with the Gate City outfit, winning the first meet 6 to 1 and dropping the finale 5 to 4.

Carolina won firsts in 100 yard dash, 440 yard hurdles, and 4 mile relay. Took second in 220 yard dash and distance medley relay. Acknowledged best team record.

The Track Season 1926

STARTING the 1926 season with many stars gone from the great track team of the years before, Coach "Bob" Fetzer developed another strong aggregation of cinder artists and piled up the most impressive record ever made by the Tar Heels in track athletics.

The record for the season showed a clean slate, kept so by seven wins in dual meets, and victories in the State Championship and Southern Conference Meets and the best record in the annual Georgia Tech Relay Carnival.

The high spot of the year came on May 15 and 16, when the Tar Heels played host to 18 Conference teams in the first Conference Meet ever held in this section of the South, and galloped off with premier honors and the Dixie track crown.

"Gus" McPherson, Lawrence Watt, Gaen Elliott, Jeff Fordham and Captain "Cholly" Jonas were the outstanding men throughout the season. Of that number McPherson (captain-elect), Elliott and possibly Watt will be back for the 1927 campaign.

The Tar Heels met and swamped the Duke runners in the opening meet on Emerson Field late in March. Taking 13 first places in 14 events Coach Fetzer's men ran up 94 $\frac{2}{3}$ points to 31 $\frac{1}{3}$ for the Blue Devils. McPherson won both dashes for 10 points and high individual honors.

Washington and Lee invaded the "Hill" the day before Easter holidays, but the Generals were outclassed in every department and the Carolina crew won its second meet 88 to 38. Jeff Fordham took firsts in the javelin and discus and a second in the shot for 13 points. "Gus" McPherson flashed down the straight-away for a new Carolina record of 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ seconds in the century dash.

The biggest score of the year came against South Carolina at Columbia. The Gamecocks were snowed under in the first meet of the Easter trip by the score of 108 to 18. The Tar Heels took all three places in the 100 yard dash and the half mile. Fordham, with 13 points, was again high point man.

Two days later Coach "Bob" divided the squad, taking the eight best men to Atlanta for the Tech Relays and sending the remainder to Davidson to meet the Wildcats on the same afternoon. It was then that Carolina's splendid reserve strength made itself felt. The "stars" swept to victory in the Relay Carnival in the Georgia capital, and the others swamped Davidson 82½ to 45½.

McPherson took first in the hundred and second in the two-twenty. Watt set up a Southern Record in winning the 440 hurdles, Captain Jonas, Henderson, Pritchett and Elliott won the four mile relay for the second successive year, and the Carolina medley distance team took third. These marks comprised the best team record and the Tar Heels were credited with winning the Carnival. Fordham, with 13 points, and "Scratch" Giersh, with 12 points, were the stars of the Davidson victory.

The next week Carolina won from Virginia and V. P. I. in the space of three days, by scores of 65 to 61 and 87½ to 38¼. It was the second straight win over the Cavaliers, and was marked by the Tar Heels taking 17 out of a possible 18 points in the hurdles. Two records were smashed in the V. P. I. meet, McPherson lowering his own two-twenty mark from 22-flat to 21.5 seconds, while Williams raised a shotput record that has stood since 1907 to 41 feet 1¾ inches.

Carolina's victory in the State Championship Meet (with 98 points) brought the fifth straight State Title to the "Hill." Fordham broke the State Record for the javelin, when he tossed the spear 181 feet 11 inches. This win was followed the next week end by an 82 to 44 win over the Wolfpack in the annual dual meet with State. Carolina bettered Conference records that day in the two-twenty, the low hurdles, and the broad jump.

Then came the climax to the season! In the greatest track meet ever witnessed here the Tar Heels emerged "Southern Champions" over teams from eighteen other Dixie colleges. Elliott's new record of 4 minutes 21.2 seconds in the mile run, and Watt's Conference mark of 24.6 seconds in the low hurdles were the greatest performances by the Tar Heels. The mile time was the fastest hung up by an American college miler during the year.

"Gus" McPherson was elected captain for 1927, with Frazier Glenn as manager.

The Season

THE Tar Heel cross-country team, celebrating its first full season as a letter sport, romped home with the Conference Championship, took the fourth consecutive North Carolina title, and emerged victor in every dual meet on the schedule. This record completed three full seasons without a defeat in the hill-and-dale sport.

Galen Elliott, sensational miler of last season's track team, proved the star of the Tar Heel harriers. He finished in first place or in a tie for first place in every meet of the season except the Virginia dual meet. In that race, which was run between halves of the annual Thanksgiving football game, he took it easy and saved his energy for the State meet the following week. He led the cream of Dixie's distance men home in the Conference Meet, covering the five mile course at Athens, Ga., in 26 minutes 45.6 seconds to set up a new record for the event.

The Duke harriers were swamped 17 to 43 in the season opener, (small score winning) while the Wolfpack of N. C. State were entirely outclassed and went down in the second dual test 15 to 48. The first six men to cross the line in the State meet wore the big blue "N. C." of the Tar Heels.

Then came the Conference Meet at Athens, and the point score showed the Tar Heels to be just twice as strong as Auburn, who took the second team prize. All of Carolina's five scoring men finished among the first fourteen men.

The Virginia Cavaliers fell between halves of the annual Thanksgiving grid classic by the count of 20 to 44. Hutchens, of Virginia, won first place, while Elliott loafed through to save himself for the State championships the second Saturday after Thanksgiving. In the "Big Five" Championship only Carolina, Duke and State entered teams. The Tar Heels finished all their seven runners among the first nine to cross the line, and won with a score of 19 points. Duke and State tied for second with 59 points each. Elliott, Captain Daniels and Pritchett tied for first place.

The Football Season of 1926

WHEN the new Tar Heel coaching staff reported on the "Hill" the first of September anything but a cheerful prospect confronted them. Their problem was to take a green squad, instill an entirely new system of play, and mold a creditable eleven to send against Wake Forest. All that within a period of eighteen practice days, and with only three regulars from the 1925 Tar Heels as a nucleus.

"Chuck" Collins, star end on the Notre Dame "Four Horsemen" outfit of 1924, was head coach, and Bill Cerney, star back on the same Rockne squad, was in charge of backfield play. Coach "Bob" Fetzer, beloved of all Carolina men for five years past, remained as line mentor. These men never gave up in the face of the rotten prospects. They were made of sterner stuff, and on September 6 early season work began with more than three score candidates reporting for practice.

Three weeks later the Carolina outfit met Wake Forest on the Baptists' own field and lost by the score of 13 to 0. That third Baptist victory in three years spread consternation in the ranks of the Carolina alumni, but the Tar Heel coaches and players labored on undiscouraged. They knew what they were about, and the experience was invaluable to the youngsters on the Tar Heel roster. Fourteen of the twenty-four men who saw service in that opening game were Sophomores, and several others were playing their first varsity game.

A week later Tennessee swamped the green youngsters at Knoxville, Tenn. by the overwhelming count of 34 to 0. Walls of despair echoed from the alumni of the less sturdy vertebrae, but the more hopeful said, "Wait until mid-season." Their faith was justified by later performances.

The Saturday following the Tennessee massacre Tom Young tucked a fumbled punt beneath his arms and sprinted 70 yards down Emerson Field to lick the South Carolina Gamecocks 7 to 0. The Palmetto State eleven came to the "Hill" highly touted with a win over the strong Maryland team, but the speedy Carolina halfback crushed their fame beneath his flying feet.

The Duke game proved a tough battle on a muddy field, but Gus McPherson, Tar Heel track captain and sprinter par excellence, making his first bow to the football public, celebrated his debut with a six yard dash and dive off tackle for a touchdown. This score came in the last period and gave the Tar Heels a 6 to 0 win.

That same McPherson grabbed the opening kick-off of the Maryland game at College Park, Md. and dashed 93 yards for a touchdown, but Maryland came back and crossed the Carolina goal twice in the opening period to win 14 to 6.

The annual N. C. State clash, moved to Emerson Field for the first time in two decades, proved easy going for the rejuvenated University eleven. Touchdowns by Foard and Furches in the fourth quarter gave the Tar Heels a 12 to 0 win out of what had promised to be a scoreless tie.

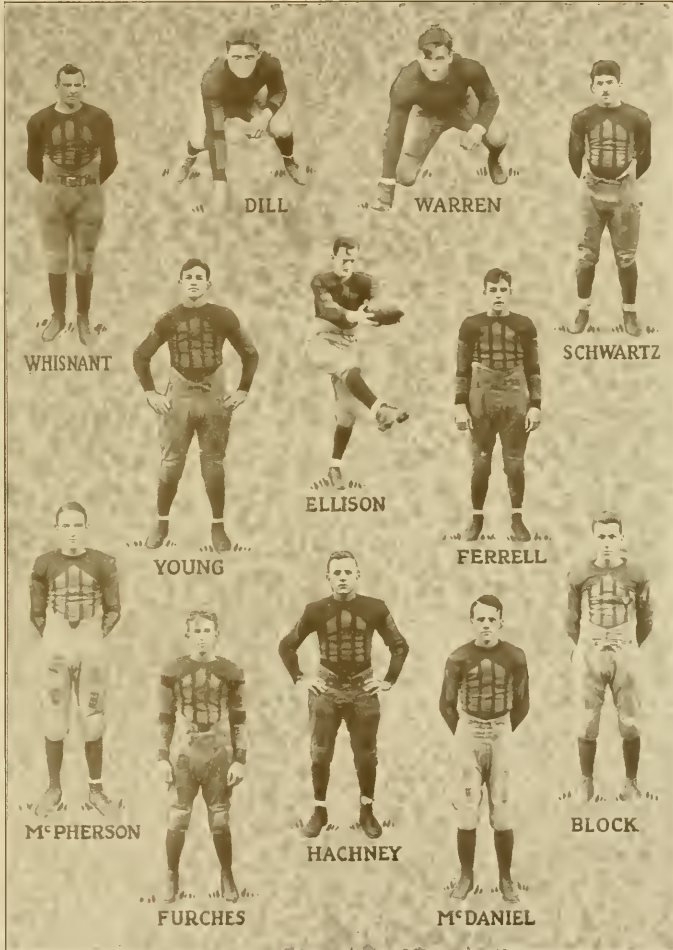

The "Flying Squadron" of Virginia Military Institute invaded Emerson Field a week later, but the Carolina outfit clipped their wings to the tune of 28 to 0. Billy Ferrell started the track meet with a 64 yard dash for a touchdown in the first five minutes. Tom Young carried the ball 65 yards on two plays to give Carolina her second touchdown. Shuford contributed a third on a 12 yard pass play, and Gus McPherson dashed 50 yards through the entire Cadet squad for the final score.

A daring aerial attack, sprung suddenly in the opening minutes of the game, caught the Tar Heels unaware, and the Davidson Wildcats were over the line with a touchdown in less than two minutes after the opening whistle. Three consecutive passes netted 60 yards, and three line plays battered the ball over. Another rally following a Carolina fumble gave the Wildcats the ball in Tar Heel territory, and Dick Grey, of the infallible foot, drove a drop-kick through the posts to cinch Davidson's 10 to 0 win and the State Championship.

For the second consecutive year Pete Mackall, Virginia guard, place-kicked a field goal for the Cavaliers, but this time there was no tying goal in the fourth quarter. Bunn Hackney went in the game in the fourth period, but with instructions to run the ball rather than kick. The play failed and the annual Thanksgiving classic of 1926 goes into the records as a 3 to 0 victory for Virginia.

The Tar Heels placed from three to five men on practically every All-State pick, with Schwartz, Morehead and Whisnant leading the lists. Twenty-seven letters were awarded, and twenty-one of these men will return for the 1927 season.

The 1927 Basketball Season

THE cycles of athletic success roll on, and champions rise only to be crushed beneath the advancing chariot wheels of the new order. For three years the gallant sons of old Carolina successfully staved off ambitious seekers after the Southern Conference cage crown, but the last night in February saw the 1927 Tar Heels go the way of all champions.

Fighting gallantly until the last whistle, Captain Bunn Hackney and his cohorts fell before the tremendous onslaughts of a title-hungry Georgia Bulldog. With impressive victories over both Tennessee and Auburn in the first two rounds of Tournament play, Carolina was rated a favorite over Georgia, but the Bulldogs would not be denied. Three long goals in the closing minutes gave Georgia a 23 to 20 win, and marked the first defeat a Carolina team had suffered in Atlanta since 1923.

The opening of the 1927 season found only two lettermen back as a nucleus for the team, but Coach Jim Ashmore built a winning combination around Captain Bunn Hackney and Billy Vanstory. Captain Hackney was the only regular form the 1926 championship quint. Such stars as Jack Cobb, Bill Dodderer, Billy Devin and Artie Newcombe—All-Southern heroes of years past—were gone. Their places were filled by youngsters, but those youngsters played great ball.

Rufus Hackney, brother of Captain Bunn, stepped into Cobb's shoes and was a consistent performer throughout the year. Carr Purser, brother of the unforgettable Johnnie Purser of the 1925 champions, took over Newcombe's pivot berth. "Pinky" Morris became Captain Bunn's running mate at guard. And what a great little guard he did make! Mention as an All-Southern guard shows the estimation in which he was held by sports-writers and coaches. These men, with such reserves as "Red" Price, Bob Sides, Henry Satterfield, Robert Baggett, George Cathey and Perkins, went through the season with 17 wins against 7 defeats.

The season opened with five practice games with Y. M. C. A. quints, and the Tar Heels won four of the five contests. The one loss was by a one point margin to the Salisbury tossers. The regular season opened with an overwhelming 64 to 5 victory over Hampden-Sidney. This game showed some of the tremendous power in Carolina attack. Before that fans and sports-writers had hesitated to apply the old name of "Flying Phantoms" to them, but by that performance they demonstrated their new grown wings.

The season progressed rapidly with the Phantoms winning the majority of their games. Only a split series with Wake Forest robbed them of undisputed State honors. As it was they divided the "Big Five" title equally with the Demon Deacons. Maryland hung up the only pre-Tournament wins by a Conference team. Even the Georgia Bulldogs, who put the Tar Heels out of the tourney play, fell early in the season by a six point margin.

Captain Bunn Hackney made his final bow to Dixie cagedom when the last whistle blew to end the Georgia game. With his passing goes the last of the players who for three years wrote the most brilliant pages of southern basketball history. Along with Bunn goes Bob Sides, capable reserve, but they leave behind them some fine prospects for coming years. With such players as Vanstory, Rufus Hackney, Purser, Morris, Baggett, Price and Cathey still in harness, who knows what may happen next year? The King may rise again!

The Season

FOR the second successive year Coach "Chuck" Quinlan's Tar Heel grapplers brought the championship of North Carolina back to the "Hill." The Tar Heels defeated every wrestling squad in the State to win the honor, winning victories over Duke, State and Davidson in succession. The only defeats of the year came in meets with V. M. I. and V. P. I.

Coach Quinlan began the season with a number of lettermen from the 1926 squad and several promising youngsters from the reserves and freshmen. Building his team around such veterans as Captain Add Warren, Motsinger, Taylor, and Leary, he developed a fighting crew of matmen. He filled the gaps with Abbitt in the unlimited class, Gardner in the 145 pound division, and Uzzell in the baby class.

V. P. I. furnished the opposition in the opening meet of the year, and the Gobblers won by an 18 to 3 count. Gardner was the only man to win his match, although the other six matches went on close time decisions. The only other loss came at the hands of the V. M. I. Cadets by a 16 to 11 score.

Following the two defeats in a row, the Tar Heels took a brace and topped the season schedule with three straight wins in their dash for the State title. Duke fell before the determined onslaught 12 to 11 in the hardest meet of the year. State was conquered 16½ to 6½, and the Davidson Wildcats were tamed to the overwhelming count of 22 to 5.

To Voice Gardner, plucky 145 pounder, goes the individual laurels. The Greensboro youth won every match on his schedule and proved himself one of the greatest college wrestlers in the South. Captain Warren and Motsinger, finishing their careers on the mat for Carolina, dropped only one decision each. Their lone defeats came in the first meet of the year.

UNDEFEATED throughout the season and with smashing victories over every boxing team in the Southern Conference, the Tar Heel mit team stands forth in bold relief among the greatest college boxing outfits in the country. Despite the fact that they dropped the Conference title to Virginia in the first annual Conference Tournament, the Tar Heels point proudly to their record in dual meets, and the fact that they decisively defeated the Virginia seven in mid-season shows that the Carolina men were the class of the South.

Three of the individual members of the team, Captain "Ox" Shuford, "K. O." Warren, and Ed Butler, went through the season without a defeat and emerged undisputed champions in their weights. Charlie Brown, smashing middleweight, and Earl Carpenter, clever little bantam, won the majority of their fights. Brown dropped two decisions, one of them in the semi-finals of the Tournament. Carpenter lost only three fights, all on close four round decisions. The season record shows that in six dual meets the Tar Heels won twenty-eight bouts, dropped fourteen and tied one.

The outstanding feat of the season was of course the smashing 5 to 2 triumph over the Virginia Cavaliers. A victory over Virginia always stands out in Carolina athletic annals, but this one was especially noteworthy. It was so because the Cavaliers had never been defeated in the South until that night in February, and only twice in six years of boxing had they bowed to an enemy team. Their only previous defeats were at the hands of Colgate and Penn State, national champions of 1924 and 1926.

The other victories were over Florida, V. P. I., Georgia, Washington and Lee and V. M. I. The 'Gators fell in the opening meet by a 5 to 2 score that indicated something of the power of Coach Rowe's pugs. V. P. I. came, saw and was defeated 5 to 1, and the following week the Tar Heels invaded Georgia territory and crushed the Bulldogs in their own ring 4 matches to 3. Then came the victory over Virginia, followed by a three day road trip through western Virginia on which both Washington and Lee and V. M. I. were defeated by the same score of 4 to 3.

DEDICATION

For the benefit of those who know not, the editors Who's Zoo, from their conservatory in the basement of Alumni, respectfully turn the radiant effulgence of their solar spotlight upon the various suns, stars, satellites and asterisks around whom our collegiate world revolves.

To those unfortunates who have not experienced the Utopian delight of bathing their proletarian personages in the satisfying smiles of these diaphanous demigods this illumination may perhaps serve as a Who's Who; to those, more fortunate, who have been able to associate daily with these colossal collegians it may perhaps serve as a What's What; to the lustrous luminaries themselves it is lovingly dedicated with a respectful "Here's How"; but to the editors it is merely another "That's That."

STAVE BARRELL
 South Carolina
 Degree: 99 44-100
 Age: Modest

Columnist; Postist; Stickist; Twigist; Lastist; Weaker Bureau, Hot Air Department.
 Baiter.

Stave is one of the campus leaders but the hell of it is that no one wants to follow him. He's helped to clean up the campus with his Driftwood Fire in the Tar Heel. It's a hot column and Stave just missed his aim by a couple of flames. He meant to warm the campus but the wind changed and Stave got burnt—by the fire. Oh, yes, he's one of these here conscientious guys what tries to do the right thing but this time Stave got left. What he got left, nobody knows because he won't tell but we have our suspicions. Stave was going to join the Molden Grease but he changed his mind. He decided that he didn't want to be a goat. It is rumored that as soon as Stave learns to cuss a little, W. O. Saunders is going to add him to the staff of the Independent. Or perhaps it's the Savannah Hawk-Eye.

MARTIN LUTHER CEDAR BIRD
 Mount Hairy, N. C.
 Degree: Not so Hot
 Age: Plastic

Mud Pie Artist; Ditch Diggers' Union; Night Watchman at the City Dump; Lemon Skin Club; Back Patter; Talker in the Ear; Reptile in the Pampas; Osculatory Champ; Booster of the Cadry Clan; Promoter of the Right Man; Pooper-up on Yaller Yeast; Spit Ball Artist.

After Llama's Craw.

Martin Luther is leaving us, but he will be long remembered. Whenever a garbage truck goes by and wafts its odor upon the breeze the boys will gather under the Davie Poplar and say, "Do you remember Martin Luther Cedar Bird?" And their eyes will fill with tears. After all, four years is a hell of a long time to wait for relief. Bird was a very picturesque character—every year he appeared in a new frame. However, he is to be congratulated for missing out the only time he ran for office. So is the campus. When Martin Luther goes out into the great world he should set up as a real-estate dealer—he certainly knows his dirt.

SICKLY GEE CHOPHELL
 Hay Deer, N. C.
 Degree: A. B. C. D.
 I.Q.: 1

Advertising Manager for Pepsodent Co.; Knickerbocker Club; Issuer of Warnings; Student Tonsil (Almost removed); Issuer of Warnings; Sponsor of the Baccanier (ex officio); Issuer of Warnings; Campus Museum of Natural Pestology.

Sigma Omega Sigma.

Sickly is our campus Samson and he has almost succeeded in pulling down the pillars—but he wasn't quite strong enough. All during the year he has made it his especial task to see that each and every Freshman was given a thorough course in Carolina ethics—a la Chopphell. His most treasured possession is his oratorical dignity and the words—warning words—flow in sonorous rivers from the springs of his full square jaws. He is one of our campus big men, and as such his soul rises serenely above the vagaries and criticisms of his fellows—and even farther above his own capabilities. Stop! Look! Listen! All hell to Sickly and his glorious achievements.

GASH CHONSON

 Degree: Blow Out
 Age: Three Cylinders

Purity League; Cleaner of Campus; White Wings; English 23; Wisher for Office; Boxer (grape nuts); Woman Chaser; Brazier Club; Dope Drinker; S. T. P.

Bowlsoup.

Gash is one of those elevah lads who hates to show his physical powers to anybody—unless he can get a little publicity as a result. He claims that he is going to write stories for True Confessions and box on the side. He's made quite a name for himself here on the campus but we'd be put in jail if we published it. We have it on good faith that in one of his boxing bouts, an opponent said "Dad Burn-it" and Gash promptly threw down his gloves and refused to dance another step until the horrid brate had retracted the statement. Now that's what we call a gentleman but then we have heard some people call Syd a gentleman so we don't know just what to do about it. He's a high powered guy when he's not hitting on three cylinders and has his cut out on. More luck to you, you'll need it.

HEBREW GEYSER
Stoney Point, N. C.
Degree: 36, Centergrade
Age: Dubious

Ex-conductor of the Southern; Publicity Seeker 1, 2, 3, 4—; Shining Example; Orchestra Jumping Jack; Publicity Seeker; Co-ed House 224-y; Wet Nurse of Freshmen; Jerusalem Club; Clothing Fleece.

Alpha Alpha Alpha (ad infinitum.)

Hebrew always was a very exacting boy. He first came to the campus with the idea of making a lot of money and since then, he has coerced many and sundry unsuspecting boys to help him. He had a beautiful plan last year so he put on a show and paid out the enormous sum of $50.00 just to run the thing under somebody else's name. Now that was foolish. Then he started running a bus line. He invited a few boys to ride from their home back to the Hill and then charged them three dollars apiece for the ride. There were four boys and Mr. Geysler went to Durham every week-end for the next month.

Degree: Third
Age: Y. M. C. A.

Tarnished Frieze; Behind Corner; Colder'n Freeze; State of Coma; Stolen Frieze; Right Attitude (by necessity); Sign Snatcher; Campus Big Men; Democrat; Treasurer of the Germ Club; Golden Fleas.

Pied Cap-a-pie.

Yawn Brassiere is President of our local chapter of the Lung Men's Frisking Association which isn't at all exclusive, because every one on the campus is taken in. Every now and then Yawn and his fellow-members of the campus Big Men's Club arise to give a paternal word to the meek and lowly Freshman, even though hazing is considered a shipping offense. During his first two years Yawn was very modest and contented himself with saying "Louder, please," but since then he has disintegrated very one else by his own squeaking. And oh yes! We almost forgot to mention that Yawn is extremely tolerant. We know this because he told us so himself and, besides, he gets along all right with his brothers in our Golden Corner Society.

HALTER JELLY

Degree: Fever Heat
Age: In The Woods

President Jewnur Class; Politicker; Gum Chewer; Horse Radish Club; Nimcompoo Society; Delegate Urp's Convention; Whoozis County Club; Red Neck Tie Association; Wangdoodler.

Baiter.

Halter sets the fashion for clothing in Chapel Hill. Not long ago he came out with only his pajamas on and before a week was up, the whole student council were wearing them to bed. They said they liked them much better than the old-fashioned night shirt. However, Halter is always in demand at the Hen-House because he knows so many cute jokes and he's not ashamed to tell them right before the ladies' ether. Yes sir, he's a hot sport because he says so himself. We predict many things for Halter but we don't tell him because it might hurt his feelings. The University authorities have about decided to let him graduate because they are tired of seeing him hang around. They say that he has already been here three years too long, at least that is what we hear.

PIMPLE MAADRY
Giraffe Neck, N. C.
Degree: Low
Age: Prep-School

Tar Squeel; Largest Unread Editor On Earth; Brother of Bob; Exposer of Personalities; Brow-Beater; Egg-Beater; Dead Beater; Post; Friend of Syd Happell; Carboo Club.

Wasn't Rushed.

Everybody on the campus knows Pimple, they're sorry to say. He's been associated with the Tar Squeel for, oh, ever so many years and finally they gave him the editorship just to get him to leave the sheet alone. But he has been a wonderful help to the staff because every time they have a lot of space to fill up, they simply call on Pimple and he sits down and agitates the typewriter. He also writes paragraphs when he has nothing else to do and they read like it. Everybody fights over him, though. One night the staff had a free-for-all as to whether they would run an open forum of Dula's or Pimple's editorial. They finally compromised by running an advertisement of C. C. pills.

SCARLET MITH
Holesbarrow, N. C.
Degree: D.—Ph.—
Age: 22 pictures

Hypnotic Association; Idiotic Association; Self-Ecstatic Association; Headlight Club; President of the Senior Brass; Between-the-walls Athletic Pup; Sub-rosa High Hat Club; Super-rosa Joviality Association.

Alpha Beta Gamma Delta Goldfish.

Scarlet received this enticing nickname by virtue of the fact that he is one of our sorrel-topped notables. His sub-rosa nickname is "Woodpecker" because he is so hammer-headed. At a recent meeting of the Splenior Class Scarlet presided, called the roll, answered "Present," and was unanimously elected the most popular man in the class. He is a marvellous athlete as you may easily see if you watch him dance. He is always in demand and generally in deway. Every one on the campus knows him because he is so self-evident. His magnetic personality and taking ways will assuredly draw for him everything but pure gold. Any one, and especially he himself, will tell you that he will make a great success in the world of business—funny business.

ALLGONE REDWOOD
Liquorton, N. C.
Degree: K. K. K.
Age: 21 Candles

Senior Ex-yeggative Committee; Cedar-bird Club (now amalgamated with United Possessors of Carolina Spirit); Advocate of Majority Rule; Tar and Feather Club; Wise-cracker; Knicker Club (1, 2, 3, 4); H. A. Club (by initial and heredity); Would-be Yellow Journalist.

Stammer Stigma Toy.

Allgone is popularly known as "Inopportunity," because he knocks continually. He is always cheery and is not lousy—pardon us—lazy. He is a yellow journalist in embryo (and even at that he attained a greater development along his line than in any other). Recently, during the mid-winter vacation of the Tar Heel staff, he impregnated a column in the Screener Issue. The column wasn't much more than a slender prop, but it purported to be a gigantic expose of the Senior Superlatives—inside dope which, despite its radical personalities, proved to be nothing more than pasteurized milk. Allgone is also fond of repartee and he prides himself on his scintillating wit; but "even his best friends won't tell him."

PLUS WARRING:
Eddy, N. C.
Degree: Last
Age: 2

Boxer (sardine); Kindergarten Club; Aesthete; Bull Headed Club; Ego Club; Egg Club; Dummy Club; Campus Light (Shine); General Nuisance.

Slinga Forka Hay.

Plus, as he is known on the campus, has a mis-leading name. It should be minus plus minus some more minus. Plus took to the squarred circle because his head is never lonely there. He took philosophy but he couldn't fool people; they knew that he was just trying to cover up what he didn't know. Anyhow, he's got it all in the neck just because he licked a couple of fellows in a boxing match but he's so dumb he ran for a shovel when he heard that the Four Horse-men had come to town. All the barbers charge him seventy-five cents for a hair cut because the doctor charges twenty-five cents to extract splinters from fingers. We don't know what he's going to do when he leaves here unless he goes to work in a coal mine.

BLACK WILLIAMS
Grandpill County, N. C.
Degree: Shouldn't graduate
Age: Of Innocence

Controversy Band; Hand Organ Club; Pusher of Political Perambulators; Carolina Spirit (5, 6, 7); Substitute Cheerio; Old Yeast Dormitory Club; Centenary of Senior Class; Nize Boy Association; Grats Member of Y. M. C. A.

Basins.

Black, as you will see by his statistics, is a nize boy and he is exceedingly popular on our campus, particularly with those who do not know him. He has the courage of his convictions, though he has never served on the Student Council. Despite the fact that he is more or less of a non-entity, he is a wholesome influence on our campus. Black always supports every Carolina team with exceptional seriousness, and his deep, manly, husky voice adds much that is base to our cheering. He is a distinct part of the band and his music has grate powers. And, since he abhors borrowing, he never fails to blow his own horn.

Ye shall know them.*

A Ballad

The poets sing of an English King
 Ten thousand years ago,
 Who ruled his land with an iron hand
 But his mind was weak and low.

He loved to chase the bounding stag
 Off in the royal wood,
 And, too, he was exceedingly fond
 Of peach pie nice and good.

His only leathern garment was
 A thread-bare woollen shirt,
 With which he tried to hide his hide
 But he could not hide the dirt.

The Royal head was exceedingly thick
 And exceedingly full of fleas,
 The Royal pants were much too short
 And baggy at the knees.

The Queen of Spain was a sprightly dame
 And a sprightly dame was she,
 She loved the fool who tried to rule
 In the kingdom by the sea.

So she sent a special message by
 A special messenger
 Inviting the king to come and spend
 A couple of months with her.

The King of France was a puny guy
 And he ruled the land of Gaul,
 He rode his horses every day
 But his horses all were small.

When he heard what the queen had done
 He swore around his court
 He hated the king across the sea
 For he won in every sport.

So he sent the Duke of Rippty-Rap
 To give the queen a suit case strap
 But it didn't suit the case of the King of England.

When the awful news reached England's walls
 He swore he'd burn down France's halls

So he offered half his kingdom and
 The hand of fair Hortense
 To a loyal British subject to
 Commit the dire offense.

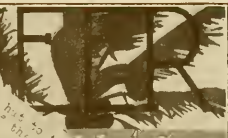

The Duke of Suffolk crawled his horse
 And rode away to France
 He swore he was a suitor and
 The king began to dance.

To the king's front porch he clapped a torch
 And laughed and watched the front porch scorch
 And then he galloped away to merry England.

A Play in One Act and Three Scenes.

The principle does the acting.

We are sorry but the censors cut the three scenes.

The curtain rises on very soft music and in the background, the stars are playing ring-around-the-rosy with the moon. The moon clouds up and it looks as it will rain but it is only the property man who expectorates from between the wings.

PERCIVAL: Ah, me proud beauty is gone! Some one has stole me gal. Ah, ah, ah!

PHYSICIAN: Say 'ah' again. Your tousils look rather badly. That's it.

PERCIVAL: Ah, no more can I have dates with those co-eds. Ah, ah, ah!

PHYSICIAN: Yep, they're in bad shape.

PERCIVAL: My Adam's Apple has grown and is crowding them out of proportion. Ah.

NURSE (enters): There is another patient.

PHYSICIAN: Well, tell him to be patient.

PERCIVAL: What about a date tonight, Patootie?

NURSE: Sure.

PHYSICIAN: Remember, take care of your tousils.

PERCIVAL: I forgot. I gotta woik tonight.

NURSE: Oh, well. Have it your way.

PERCIVAL: Can't. It's the doctor's orders.

NURSE: You're not in the army.

PERCIVAL: Well, if you ain't no ant-eater, let's go.

NURSE: What'll we do?

PERCIVAL: I can't say.

NURSE: Why?

I've got a girl dear little Beck --- I love her yes I do

The first system of music features a vocal line in G major with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 2/4 time signature. The lyrics are "I've got a girl dear little Beck --- I love her yes I do". The piano accompaniment consists of a right-hand melody and a left-hand bass line.

I've got to say that she's some neck, there's nothing she won't do

The second system continues the vocal line with the lyrics "I've got to say that she's some neck, there's nothing she won't do". The piano accompaniment includes a dynamic marking of p-f (piano-forte) in the left hand.

No I bought Beck some Carters at the five and ten cent store

The third system has the lyrics "No I bought Beck some Carters at the five and ten cent store". The piano accompaniment includes a dynamic marking of mf (mezzo-forte) in the left hand.

But she gave them to her grandma Well, I won't see them no more

The fourth system concludes the piece with the lyrics "But she gave them to her grandma Well, I won't see them no more". The piano accompaniment continues with a steady bass line.

Spottery Nicks' Letter Box

DEAR MISS NICKS:

I'm a co-ed and this is my first year on the campus but of course that doesn't prevent me from having a large male following. I dress well and am really good looking and every one says I dance as well as any of the girls in the dormitory and that's saying quite a bit. I think I do very well considering the fact that I have so many dates and make such good marks on all my classes but it's no less than can be expected of me because I really am an exceptional girl. But there's one matter I want to ask you about. Now I had a friend, perhaps you know her, a Miss Squaw, who actually tried to take one of my boy friends away from me. Now I don't mind the loss of one boy because I can always get a lot more but it was the principal of the thing. The boy must have a very low mentality, at least that's what my room-mate said, to make such a change. Then he went off for a while and wrote me the mushiest letters you ever saw. All the girls in the house said that it was absolutely the most love-sick dribble they had ever seen. Now he sees his mistake and wants to come back. Should I accept his apologies and continue as we did before he played the fool with me?

PEONA.

DEAR PEONA:

I can't imagine why the boy came back. If I'd been him, I'd have gone to South America but since he's back—well, that's his hard luck.

SPOTTERY NICKS.

DEAR MISS NICKS:

I just love to read your daily advice to young people and as I find that I need some one to take an interest in me, I am writing to you to tell you all my troubles. As you have probably guessed, I am a co-ed and of course I have many chances to fall in love but there have been so many boys that I don't know just what to do. Now there is one boy who I think is just too cute for words and he belongs to the Baiter Thater Pies but he's rather dumb. Now of course you wouldn't believe that because that fraternity is supposed to have only good scholars in it but I've been wondering just what to do about it. He calls on me and sits in one corner of the divan half the time and the rest of the time, he tries to wring my neck off. He's really brutal at times. Now should I encourage him or should I do just as the other girls do? I'm as innocent as I can be and I wouldn't two-time a boy for the world. Please advise me.

SPLATHERINE.

DEAR SPLATHERINE:

I've heard quite a bit about you from my boy friends and if what they say is true, I don't think you need any assistance whatever in engineering your love affairs.

SPOTTERY NICKS.

 Frederick II (the Great) of Prussia. In our chapter on the Germanies, we have seen how he fought all Europe to gain prestige and power for Prussia; we shall now see how he endeavored to apply scientific methods to the government of his own country. Frederick the Great of Prussia, 1740-1786
 Hal Hee!
 With the major intellectual interests of the eighteenth century, Frederick II became acquainted quite naturally. As a boy he had been fond of reading French plays, had learned Latin against his father's will, had filled his mind with the ideas of deistic philosophers, and had seemed likely to become a dreamer instead of a ruler. But the dogged determination of his father, King Frederick William I, to make something out of Frederick besides a flute-playing, poetizing philosopher, had resulted in familiarizing him with elaborate financial reports and monotonous minutes of tiresome official transactions. Young Frederick, however, learned to like the details of administration and when he came to the throne in 1740 he was not only enlightened but industrious.
 The young king had a clear conception of his duties, and even wrote a book in French about the theory of government. "The prince," he said, "is to the nation he governs what the head is to the man; it is his duty to see, think, and act for the whole community, that he may procure it every advantage of which it is capable." "The monarch is not the absolute master, but only the first servant of the state." Frederick was indeed the first servant of Prussia, rising at five in the morning, working on official business until eleven o'clock, and spending the afternoon at committee meetings or army reviews.
 He set about laboriously to make Prussia the best and most governed state in Europe. He watched the judges to see that they did not render unjust decisions or take bribes. He commissioned jurists to compile the laws and to make them so simple and clear that no one would violate them through ignorance. He abolished the old practice of torturing suspected criminals to make them confess their guilt.
 Education, as well as justice, claimed his attention; he founded elementary schools, so that as many as possible of his subjects could learn at least to read and write.

See the apple?

It is an apple.

They grow on trees.

They are good to eat.

When they are red, they are ripe.

When they are ripe, they can be sold.

It is possible to get money for ripe apples.

People also get stomach ache from green apples.

You can buy things with money but not with stomach ache.

If you are clever, you can get more than money for ripe apples.

You can get food, a good time, night clubs, motor cars, fruit and cherries.

If you are a middle-man, it is best to be the man on top. There should be no middle-man in the game of life.

Three is too many. You can sell anything that is ripe except eggs. No one wants a ripe egg except a man going to a play.

When apples are ripe, they are not rotten. A ripe egg is a rotten egg. Therefore eggs are not apples and should not be confused.

You can skin a ripe apple but you cannot skin a ripe egg. If you skin a ripe egg, you have to pluck it. The feathers should not be eaten.

See the pretty apple? It is an apple. The apple is red. So are roses and cherries.

Extracts From a Campus Character's Diary

Tue.—Went to Durham today to see the show. Back and caught a date with L. S. May the Lord have mercy on people who catch dates without thinking beforehand.

Wed.—Late to eight-thirty. These damned profs are so unreasonable. Passed Joe B. going to lunch. Had his nose so high in the air he didn't see me. Glad of it.

Thur.—Got a pretty bad cold. Sure feel sorry for those two co-ed dates I had last night but they can't blame me, I warned 'em.

Fri.—Never saw such fools. Jim and I ordered two ham sandwiches today and wanted onions on one of them. The waiter took up fifteen minutes trying to decide which sandwich to put the onions on.

Sat.—No classes today. Dropped over to the Tar Heel office to see a friend. He wasn't there but Bryon White was. My hard luck. Had circles under his eyes and a guilty look. "Must have studied last night."

Mon.—Didn't wake up yesterday. Got drunk late Sat. night. The only thing that bothered me was that I had to take Sid C. home. He sure was tight.

Tue.—Passed Robbins F. on the campus today. Suppose he's applying for a membership to the House of David.

Wed.—Heard some spicy dope on that egg Schaffner today. I don't doubt that it's true but even if this is my own personal diary. I wouldn't pollute it's pages with what I heard.

Thur.—Flunked a quiz today but it doesn't matter. Some one told me that Byron was pretty good in Latin. Nurses a whole stable. Was talking with him the other day. My Latin is rather bad but I referred to friend Byron as a good looking homo. He blushed violently and almost got mad.

Fri.—Thought about Pat Pretlow today. Laziest boy I've ever seen. Don't believe he has energy enough to go to sleep. Wish he'd shave and get his face lifted.

Sat.—Went to Greensboro today and am just back. Saw Kenneth J. around the station. He looked pretty suspicious. Must have swiped a package of gum.

Sun.—Saw Katherine J. today. Bet St. Mary's celebrated last year. Carolina will next year. I hear she's a nice girl.

Mon.—Talking to Julian S. today. Hear he's going to get married. The girl had better watch her step, and not get married in South Carolina.

Tue.—Saw Ted S. today. He's editor of the Buccaneer. Immediately thought of Katherine J. I think Ted's about the fourth.

Wed.—Slept through my eight-thirty. Walter Kelly came in late on my nine-thirty. Certainly glad that I'm not a Junior.

Thur.—Sure am bored tonight. Had a very trying day. Talked for almost two hours with Holt McPherson.

Fri.—Saw Tom Rollins from a distance today. Thank God for distance!

Sat.—No classes today. Slept until two o'clock. Went to lunch at the Cafeteria. Bryon White sat two tables away from me. I lost my appetite.

What The Well-Dressed Man Will Wear on the Campus

Styx and Stones

I. PROFESSOR—OLD STYLE

Greek Gods in plaster casts surrounding
 His den upon the second floor
 Are vacant as the circles bounding
 Zeroes where nothing was before;
 They watch his coming and his going,
 Hear him discuss the arts of Rome,
 His crooked lantern-pictures showing
 Cracked outlines of their ancient home.

II. PROFESSOR—NEW STYLE

A hearty fellowship drips through his voice;
 He slaps the backs of colleagues, calls them "Doctor,"
 Attends all football rallies, will rejoice
 When poker-playing fans outbluff the proetor;
 Legging for science, Saturday to Monday,
 He shifts to Love and Miracles on Sunday.

III. INFERIORITY COMPLEX

Six negroes rake the lawn, six souls in fetters
 Of a more midnight flesh than that I'm in;
 And round them on the grass their young white betters
 Drop paper, tin-foil, and banana-skin.

IV. IN A BOOKSTORE

Lean, lofty and alert, he lounges in,
 Dissects the shelves with solemn condescension;
 The classics raise his eyebrows, and a grin
 Fogs his thin lips at their too frequent mentions;
 Selecting only sweets from learning's pantry,
 He purchases Thais and Elmer Gantry.

V. SELF-CONTROL

The great God Pan, attending in disguise
 A showing at the Pick of Pagan Passion,
 Heard cat-calls, sought the cause in some surprise,
 And watched the actors clinch in love's old fashion;
 Then musing on the scene, went home to jeer
 Two mating sparrows and a pair of deer.

VI. P.H.D. TWO YEARS AFTER

With painful and enthusiastic ardor
 He manufactures essays by the score,
 Makes midnight raids on learning's frowsy larder,
 Throws custard pies at Marlowe, Lamb, and More.
 Parading footnotes, organizing learning,
 He builds dead articles from deader facts,
 Forever barren and forever burning.
 Condemns, distorts, despises, and detracts.

VII. EROS TURANNOS

Ignored, disdainful, conscious of her drouth,
 Her bright young body and her kissing mouth,
 My co-ed, studying Browning, acridly
 Repeats his line: "A world of men for me!"

VIII. ALL KNOWLEDGE FOR THEIR PROVINCE

Intensely as an anchorite after fasting,
 The class in chemistry takes notes on radium;
 They suddenly jump and smile. The men are blasting
 Rock for our stadium.

IX. EDITOR

Portentous as a Solomon or Greeley,
 He makes assignments, soothes indignant profs,
 Composes editorials, flat and mealy,
 On college spirit or on visting toffs.
 And spelling optimism with two o's,
 Instructs the campus how to cure its woes.

X. POLITICIAN

The child is father to the man:
 So was it when his life began,
 And will be to its close.
 The voice, the confidential air,
 The smile, the handshake, and the stare
 Alike forecast his days shall be
 A profitable piety,
 Untouched by human woes.

THE PILOT ORGANIZATION

The President, three vice-presidents and the Agency Manager of the Pilot Life Insurance Company are University of North Carolina Men. There are also several younger Carolina men making good in the ranks of the Company.

Members of the class of '27 are invited to visit the Pilot and talk over their business future with men who faced exactly the same problems not so many years ago. The Pilot has a special training school for new men.

BUILDERS DREAMS

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to interpret the ideas of the Staff and create in material form their vision.

From the art work and engravings to the finished book, this volume is the result of organized cooperation with the Staff.

Such able cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

To those Staffs desiring complete cooperation from art work and engravings to the finished book, we offer unexcelled service. Complete service means undivided responsibility as to the result—one organization to correspond and talk with—one trained director to merge the many ingredients into the finished product.

You, too, may be proud of your annual.
