EXPLANATORY.

The following work is divided into two parts :

I. The Writings of Hamilton, other than official, and those relating to him, chronologically arranged under the date of the first edition.

II. The Official Writings of Hamilton (Treasury Reports and Circulars), with the same arrangement.

The initials which precede the numbers at the end of the description, indicate certain public libraries in which the books may be consulted.

The authorship of the following works has been wrongly attributed to Hamilton :

American Arguments for British Rights ; being a republication of the Letters of Phocion. . . . Charleston, S. C., 1806.

By William L. Smith. See Stevens' Historical Nuggets, No. 3262.

Examination of the late Proceedings in Congress. See No. 53 infra.

“ “ “ Treaty. . . . By Cato. See No. 59 infra.

Hamilton (A.). Considerations in favor of a National Bank. New York : 1834.

“ “ Letter on the Subjects of Banks and Currency. New York : 1839.

Hamilton (A.). Letter submitting a plan of a fiscal agent. Washington : 1841.

By a son of Alexander Hamilton.

Letters addressed to the Yeomanry of the U. S. See No. 52 infra.

Politics and Views of a Certain Party Displayed. See No. 49 infra.

Reflections on Monroe's View of the Conduct of the Executive. By Scipio. . . . 1798.

By Uriah Tracey. See Brinley Catalogue. Part 3, lot 4839.

Vindication of the Treaty . . . with Great Britain. By Curtius. 1795.

By Noah Webster, with the exception of Nos. 6 and 7, which are by James Kent.

Wolcott (O.). An Address to the People of the United States on the Subject of the Report of a Committee . . . appointed to Examine and Report, whether Monies drawn from the Treasury have been faithfully applied. . . .

By Oliver Wolcott. Boston : 1802.

Hamilton was said to have assisted Wolcott in this work, and it is very probable.

N., B.A. 1

Written in answer to "Free Thoughts, on the Proceedings of the Continental Congress. . . . By a [Westchester] Farmer" [Samuel Seabury.] and issued from the press within a fortnight of that pamphlet's publication. Although written when Hamilton was but seventeen years of age, and a student in Kings (now Columbia) College, it was so able in style and argument that the authorship was attributed to both William Livingston and John Jay. The Loyalists could not let it go unnoticed; and it was answered in No. 2.

"FARMER A. W. has seen a pamphlet, entitled, 'A Full Vindication of the Measures of the Congress, etc.' He is neither frightened nor disconcerted by it; nor does he find any thing in it to make him change his sentiments, as expressed in the Free Thoughts: If the author of the Vindication has any teeth left, here is another file at his service. A. W. would be well pleased with an opportunity of vindicating both his publications at the same time, and he will wait ten days for this Friend to America's Remarks upon the Examination into the Conduct of the Delegates, which he supposes will be full time enough for so very accomplished a writer to ridicule all the wit contained in it." Postscript to "The Congress Canvassed . . . By A. W. Farmer."

8vo, pp. 37.

N. 2

Also in "London, Reprinted by Richardson and Urquhart, 1775." 8vo. pp. (4) 90.

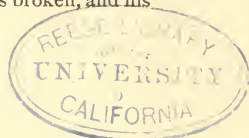

The authorship of the "Westchester Farmer" tracts has been ascribed to Dr. T. B. Chandler, Dr. Charles Inglis, Isaac Wilkins, and Dr. Samuel Seabury, but the question is settled by a document printed in volume 8 (p. 117) of the "Magazine of American History," in which Seabury states himself to be the writer.

Samuel Seabury was suspected of being the "Westchester Farmer," and was seized by a party of "Regulators," and carried to New Haven; where he was kept in confinement and every endeavor made to induce him to confess himself the writer. They were by far the ablest arguments against the Whigs in America; and were not only answered by them, but copies were, with due formality, tarred and feathered, or burned, by Sons of Liberty; and Rivington's printing office was entered, his presses broken, and his type thrown into the street.

8vo, pp. iv, 78.

N. 3

Signed "A Sincere Friend to America." A much more elaborate work than the Vindication.

"N. B.—An Answer to the preceding Piece by A. W. Farmer, was advertised to be in press with the following title: 'The Republican Dissected; or, The Anatomy of an American Whig;' but, by a sudden and unexpected Revolution, the Liberty of the Press was totally destroyed, and nothing could be printed on the side of Government." MS. Note by Dr. T. B. Chandler, in a copy of the pamphlet in the N. Y. Hist. Soc. Library.

N. 9

At the close of the Revolutionary war, the popular feeling against the Tories was so strong that it was next to impossible for them to obtain justice. At this time Hamilton rendered them great service, in his argument in the Rutgers-Waddington case (unfortunately not preserved) and still more in the Letters of Phocion. For a reply see No. 14.

Mr. J. C. Hamilton states that Phocion was reprinted in England; and Mr. Sabin (Dict. 29962) gives several editions not in this list; but I am inclined to believe both are in error.

[Ledyard (Isaac).]

[Hamilton and others.] The Federalist. N. Y.: 1788.

The/Federalist :/A Collection/of/Essays,/written in Favour of the/New Constitution,/as agreed upon by the Federal Convention,/September 17, 1787./
In Two Volumes./Vol. I./New York :/Printed and Sold by J. and A. M'Lean,/No. 41, Hanover-Square.
/M,DCC,LXXXVIII.

2 vols. 12mo, pp. vi, 227—vi, 384. N., B.A. 17

The first edition in book form. It is difficult to find in uncut condition, or on thick paper.

Jay wrote numbers 2, 3, 4, 5, and 64; Madison numbers 10, 14, 37 to 48 inclusive; numbers 18, 19, and 20 are the joint work of Madison and Hamilton; numbers 49 to 58, 62 and 63 are claimed by both Madison and Hamilton; the rest of the numbers are by Hamilton. The authorship of the 12 numbers claimed by both Madison and Hamilton is fully discussed by Mr. Lodge in the Proceedings of the American Antiquarian Society for 1885, and in the ninth volume of "Hamilton's Works," Mr. Dawson's and Mr. J. C. Hamilton's editions of the Federalist, and in the Historical Magazine, Vol. 8, p. 305.

"It would be difficult to find a treatise, which, in so small a compass, contains so much valuable political information, or in which the true principles of republican government are unfolded with such precision." American Magazine for March, 1787.

"To our ancestors it was little more than a huge Federal pamphlet. To us, it is the interpreter of the Constitution. There is no reason whatever to suppose that the followers of Clinton gave any more heed to the writings of Publius than did the followers of Hamilton to the foolery of Brutus and the nonsense of Centinel. Indeed, six administrations passed away, and a new generation sprang up, before it was discovered that the modest volume of essays about which editors and biographers were wrangling was, after all, the best commentary on the Constitution that could be written. That the work is a true statement of what the framers of that instrument meant it to be cannot be doubted. Two of the authors had sat in the convention, had taken part in the debates, had listened to the objections lodged against every article, and had come away with notebooks and memories full of that precise information the task required. Nothing was left to conjecture; every thing was known." McMaster's "Hist. of the People of the U. S.," Vol. I, p. 484.

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. Paris: 1792.

Le Fédéraliste,/ou/Collection de quelques Écrits

18

2 vols. 8vo, pp. (5), xxii—lii, 366—(4), 511.

The two editions noted above are identical as to matter and composition, with the exception of the introduction, which is omitted in the second.

Translated by Trudaine de la Sablière, who added an Introduction, and Notes, most of which are merely explanatory of such parts of the text as would be unintelligible to the French reader.

A reissue, with new titles, of the second issue of No. 18.

[Hamilton and others.] The Federalist. N. Y.: 1799.

The/Federalist :/A Collection of/Essays,/written in favour of the/New Constitution,/as agreed upon by the/Federal Convention,/September 17, 1787./In Two Volumes./Vol. I./New-York :/Printed and sold by John Tiebout,/No. 358 Pearl-Street./1799.

2 vols. 12mo, pp. vi, 227—vi, 384.

C. 20

Of the first edition of the Federalist a few copies remained unsold, which passed into the hands of John Tiebout, who printed new title-pages. It is the scarcest edition. See Mr. Dawson's Introduction (No. 37), p. lxxvii.

[Hamilton and others.] The Federalist. N. Y.: 1802.

The / Federalist, / on the New Constitution. / By Publius. / Written in 1788. / To which is added, / Pacificus, / on the Proclamation of Neutrality. / Written in 1793. / Likewise, / The Federal Constitution, / with all the Amendments. / Revised and Corrected. / In Two Volumes. / Vol. I. / Copy-right secured. / New-York : / Printed and sold by George F. Hopkins, / At Washington's Head. / 1802.

2 vols. 8vo, pp. viii, 317, (1)—v, 351.

N. 21

Edited by John Wells. "In the year 1802, Mr. Hopkins, printer, of this city, intending to publish a new edition of The Federalist, took this opportunity to apply to Gen. Hamilton, and solicit him to correct and revise the numbers, and, so far succeeded, as to obtain his consent to assist in the revisal, provided a gentleman of competent literary talents would undertake to make the first verbal corrections, for the original idea was to be strictly adhered to:—He then examined the whole with his own eye, previous to its being committed to the press, and saw that it was free from literary blemishes." William A. Coleman in the N. Y. Evening Post, March 25, 1817.

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. N. Y.: 1810.

The / Federalist, / on the New Constitution ; / written in 1788, / by Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Jay and Mr. Madison. / To which is added / Pacificus, / on the Proclamation of Neutrality ; / written in 1793, / by Mr. Hamilton. / A new edition, with the Names and Portraits of the several Writers. / In Two Volumes. / Vol. I. / New-York : / Published by Williams & Whiting, / at their Theological and Classical Book-store, / No. 118, Pearl-Street. / Printed by J. Seymour. / 1810.

2 vols. 8vo, pp. iv, 368, 2 portraits—iv, 368, portrait.

22

A separate edition of volumes 2 and 3 of the "Works of Hamilton," as edited by John Wells, in 1810. It is identical in matter with No. 21, with the addition of the names of the authors from "a private memorandum in his (Hamilton's) own handwriting."

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. Phila. : 1817.

The/Federalist,/on the New Constitution ;/written in 1788,/by Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Madison, /A New Edition,/with the Names and Portraits of the several Writers. /Philadelphia :/Published by Benjamin Warner, No. 147, Market Street./William Greer. Printer. Harrisburg./1817.

23

The first single volume edition. It follows the 1810 edition in matter.

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. Phila. : 1818.

The/Federalist,/on the New Constitution ;/written in 1788,/by Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Jay, and Mr. Madison. /A New Edition,/with the Names and Portraits of the several Writers. /Philadelphia :/Published by Benjamin Warner, No. 147, Market Street,/and sold at his stores, Richmond, Virginia,/and Charleston, South Carolina./1818.

8vo, pp. 504, 3 portraits.

24

Printed from the same forms as No. 23, with the addition of an appendix, containing the Articles of Confederation and the Constitution.

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. Wash. : 1818.

The/Federalist,/on/the New Constitution,/written in/the Year 1788,/by/Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Madison, and Mr. Jay,/with /an Appendix,/Containing/the Letters of Pacificus and Helvidius,/on the/Proclamation of Neutrality of 1793 ;/Also, the/Original Articles of Confederation,/and/the Constitution of the United States,/with the/Amendments made thereto./A New Edition./The Numbers written by Mr. Madison corrected by Himself./City of Washington :/Printed and published by Jacob Gideon, Jun./1818.

8vo, pp. 671.

Mr. Madison claims the authorship, in this edition, of Nos. 18, 19, and 20, which Hamilton had given as their joint work ; and 49 to 58, 62 and 63, which Mr. Hamilton had claimed for himself. In spite of the research and study devoted to the dispute, it is to-day impossible to give the authorship to either with any certainty.

Hamilton and others. The Federalist. Wash. : 1821.

The/Federalist,/on/the New Constitution,/Written in/the Year 1788,/by/Mr. Hamilton, Mr. Madison, and Mr. Jay,/with/an Appendix,/Containing/the Letters of Pacificus and Helvidius,/on the/Proclamation of Neutrality of 1793 ;/Also, the/Original Articles of Confederation,/and/the Constitution of the United States,/with the/Amendments made thereto. /A New Edition./The Numbers written by Mr. Madison corrected by Himself./City of Washington : /Printed and published by Jacob Gideon, Jun./1821.

All ever printed. This volume contains the text of the Federalist, entire, and an Introduction, containing a history of the origin, original publication, the controversy over the disputed numbers, and a bibliographical list of editions, all being treated with great thoroughness. It was Mr. Dawson's intention to give, in the second volume, the alterations which had been made in the text of the various editions, and MSS. notes from copies of the work which had belonged to the authors and other statesmen. The Introduction gave offense to the Hamilton and Jay families, and gave rise to the following pamphlets :

Correspondence/between/John Jáy and Henry B. Dawson,/and between/James A. Hamilton and Henry B. Dawson,/concerning/The Fœderalist./ New York :/Printed by J. M. Bradstreet & Son./1864.

8vo, and 4to, pp. 48, covers.

Of the 4to edition only 25 copies were printed. The title on the cover reads "Current Fictions tested by Uncurrent Facts." Mr. Dawson advertised "Currént Fictions, No. II., but it was never printed.

Many reissues, with a change of date only.

Contains an "Historical Notice," which is an endeavor to prove Hamilton the author of the doubtful numbers ; in fact, the whole tendency is to magnify Hamilton's part of the work, even the names of the other authors are printed in much smaller type on the title.

The alterations in the text made by the different editions is added, as also the papers signed "Philo-Publius" by William Duer.

The outline of the first speech was written by Hamilton, and the draft is printed in both editions of his Works.

The first speech was answered by Madison, in the following : " Speech, /in the /House of Representatives /of the /Congress of the United States, /Delivered January 14, 1794, /By James Madison, of Virginia, /in Support of his /Propositions, for the Promoting /of the /Commerce of the United States, /And in Reply to /William Smith, of South-Carolina. /New-York—Printed at Greenleaf's Press. /1794."—to which Smith replied in his second speech.

"I am at no loss to ascribe Smith's speech to its true father. Every title of it is Hamilton's except the introduction. There is scarcely any thing there which I have not heard from him in our various private though official discussions. The very turn of the arguments is the same, and others will see as well as myself that the style is Hamilton's. The sophistry is too fine, too ingenious, even to have been comprehended by Smith, much less devised by him. His reply shows he did not understand his first speech ; as its general inferiority proves its legitimacy, as evidently as it does the bastardy of the original." Jefferson to Madison, April 3, 1794.

This is only the first twenty-two numbers, thirty-eight being the full number. It was the intention of the publishers (as announced on the verso of the title) to publish the remainder as a second part, but it was never carried out.

Printed originally in the Minerva. The joint work of Hamilton, King, and Jay. Mr. J. C. Hamilton states (Hist. Repub., vi., 273) that numbers 23 to 30, 34 and 35, are not by Hamilton, though the MSS. is added to, interlined, and altered by him.

“I have a secret to communicate to your prudence. The defense by Camillus was written in concert between Hamilton, King, and Jay. The writings on the first ten articles of the treaty were written by Hamilton; the rest by King, till they came to the question of the constitutionality of the treaty, which was discussed by Hamilton. Jay was to have written a concluding peroration; but being always a little lazy, and perhaps concluding upon the whole, that it might be most politic to keep his name out of it; and perhaps finding that the work was already well done, he neglected it. This I have from King’s own mouth. It is to pass, however, for Hamilton’s. All three consulted together upon most, if not all the pieces.” John Adams to his wife, Jan. 31, 1796. (Works. I have deemed it proper, on account of the prominent part taken by Hamilton in the writing of the Farewell Address, to place the title of the first (?) edition in this list. Yet, when Washington signed and issued it to the public in his name, the ideas and sentiments became his, and should so be treated.

See Mr. Binney's "Formation of Washington's Farewell Address," vol. 7 of Mr. Lodge's "Works of Hamilton;" vol. 12 of Sparks' "Writings of Washington;" "Memoirs of the Penn. Historical Society;" and J. A. Hamilton's "Reminiscences."

8vo, pp. viii, 312. N. 67

Chapters V. and VI. contain the charges against Hamilton of speculation in government securities, which drove Hamilton to the confession of his true offence in the Reynold's pamphlet (No. 64). Far from satisfied with that explanation, Callender renewed his charges with even greater vituperation in the following work.

Callender (J. T.)

Sketches / of the / History / of / America / By James Thomson Callender / [Entered according to Law.] / Philadelphia : / From the Press of Snowden & M'-Corkle, / No 47, North Fourth-Street. / 1798. / [Price one dollar.]

8vo, pp. 263, (1). N. 68

Chapter V. is devoted entirely to Hamilton, and largely to the "Reynold's Pamphlet." This portion of the work was reprinted in the "National Magazine" for June, 1799.

Callender was by birth an Englishman, but was compelled to fly from that country to escape from justice. On his arrival in this country he sided with the Jacobin or French party, and entered the field as a pamphleteer. Although writing in a time which, for partisan and libelous pamphlets, has never been equalled, he was among the bitterest and most untruthful. For a number of years he received aid, both information and money, from Thomas Jefferson ; and it was through him that he obtained the papers on which he grounded the charges of peculation against Hamilton. On Jefferson's election to the Presidency, however, he refused Callender some office which he had requested, and Callender changed his politics, and repaid his favors with abuse.

First and author's edition. Only a few copies printed for Hamilton as a private circular among a few political friends, with the hope of giving Pinckney a majority over Adams. Aaron Burr by some means obtained a copy, from which copious extracts were published in the Republican press, with the most damaging results to the Federal party. All secrecy being lost, Hamilton presented the copyright to John Lang, who printed three editions within the year. This and Adams' reply are probably the plainest talk ever indulged in, in print, between two great statesmen. It received many answers, from both Republicans and Federalists.

Mr. Adams prepared an answer to Hamilton's letter in 1801, which he published in 1809, in a series of letters to the Boston Patriot, which were collected and republished in pamphlet form in the same year. The editor of this edition of Hamilton's letter says : " Mr. Adams having thus rudely revived the remembrance of his controversy with General Hamilton, and his quarrel with his cabinet, it is but an act of ordinary justice to present to the public view, in a new edition, the whole of the work, which is now almost extinct ; and from which he has so copiously extracted." See No. 115.

"I have received, this evening, your favor of the 26th November, with the Pamphlet inclosed. I have read it over in more haste than it was written in, but am so far possessed of its purport as to be better pleased that it was written in thirty hours, than if it had been the elaborate production of a week, because it shows the first impressions of the writer upon reading the pamphlet it is in answer to. This last pamphlet I regret more on account of its author than on my own, because I am confident it will do him more harm than me. . . . It would take a large volume to answer him completely."—John Adams to Dr. Ogden, 3d December, 1800.

PART SECOND.

NOTE.

Few of the Reports have title-pages, and many not even head-lines. In such cases I have made extracts from the letters of transmission which seemed to explain the subject of which it treated. The arrangement is chronological, the date appended to the letter to Congress being the guide.

Many of the Treasury Circulars were, during the first two years after the organization of the Department, issued in MS. It has seemed best, however, to include them in this list, merely noting the fact.

1789. Sept. 19. Estimates of Expenses for 1789.
