ORDERS THOUGHT
meet by his Maiestie and his Priuie Councell, to be executed throughout the Counties of this Realme, in such Townes, Villages, and other places, as are, or may be hereafter in*fected with the Plague, for the stay of further increase of the same.*

S the most louing and gracious care of his MAIESTIE for the preseruation of his people, hath already bcene earnestly shewed and declared by such meanes and wayes as were thought expedient to suppresse the gricuous Infection of the Plague, and to preuent the increase thereof, within the Citie of London, and parts about it; so whatsoeuer other good meanes may be yet remaining, which may extend and proue behouefull to the Courtrey abroad (where his MAIESTIE is sorie to vnderstand that the Contagion is also in many places dispersed) it is likewise his gracious pleasure that the same be carefully prouided and put in practise. And therefore hauing taken knowledge of certaine good Orders that were vpon like occasion published in times past; together with certaine Rules and Medicines prescribed by the best and most learned Physicians; and finding both of them, to serue well for the present time, his MAIESTYE is pleased that the same shall be renewed and published: And withall straightly commandeth all Justices of the Peace and others to whom it may appertaine, to see the said Orders duely executed.

THE PRIMUS FROM HIS MAIESTYE'S

Nprimis, All the Justices in euerie Countie, as well within the Liberties as without, immediatly vpon knowledge to them giuen, shall assemble themselues together at some one generall place accustomed, being cleare from Infection of the Plague, to consult how these Orders following may be duely put in execution, not meaning that any Justices dweling in or neare places infected, shall come thither, whiles their comming may bē doubtfull. And after their first generall assembly, they shall make a distribution of themselues to sundry limits and diuisions, as in other common seruices of the Countie they are accustomed to doe, for the prosecution thereof.

2^o First,

regarding the execution of the layut.

2 First, they shall inquire, and presently informe themselves by all good meanes, what Townes and Villages are at the time of such assemblie infected within every their Countie, and in what Hundred or other division, the said Townes and Villages are, and how many of the same places so Infected, are corporat Townes, market Townes and Villages, and shall consider of what wealth the inhabitants of the same Townes and Parishes are, to bee able to relieu the poore that are or shall be infected, and to bee restrained in their houses.

3 Item, thereupon after conference used according to the necessitie of the cause, they shall devise and make a generall taxation, either by charging the Towne infected with one summe in grosse, or by charging the speciall persons of wealth within the same, to be forthwith collected for the rate of one moneth at the first, and so if the sicknesse shall continue, the collection of the like summe, or of more or of lesse, as time and cause shall require, and the same to be every first, second, third, or fourth weeke employed to and for the execution of the said orders. And in case some of the said Townes infected shall manifestly appeare not to be of sufficient abilitie to contribute sufficient for the charges requisite, then the taxation or collection shall bee made or further extended to other parts, or in any other further limits, as by them shall be thought requisite where there shall bee any such Townes or villages so infected, and unable to relieu themselves. And if the said Townes be scituated in the borders and confines of any other ther shire, then as the Justices shall see cause and neede for the greatnessse of the charge requisite, that the parts of the shire ioyning to the Townes infected be not able, they shall write their letters to the next Justices of the other Shire so confining, to procure by collection some reliefe, as in like cases they are to relieve them, in respect of neare neighbourhood of the place, and for that the same infection may bee the better staied from the said adioyning places, though they be separated by name of the Countie.

4 Item, they shall cause to be appointed in every Parish aswell infected as not infected, certaine persons to view the bodies of all such as shall die, before they be suffered to be buried, and to certifie the Minister of the Church and Churchwarden, or other principall officers, or their substitutes of what probable disease the said persons died: and the said viewers, to haue weekeley some allowance, and the more large allowance where the Townes or Parishes bee infected, during the infection, towards their maintenance, to the end they which shall bee in places infected, may forbear to resort into the company of others that are sound: and those persons to bee sworne to make true report according to their knowledge, and the chiose of them to be made by direction of the Curate of the Church, with thre or foure substantiall men of the Parish. And in case the said viewers either through fauour or corruption, shall giue wrong certificate, or shall refuse to serue being thereunto appointed, then to cause them to be punished

punished by imprisonment, in such sort as may serue for a terror to others.

5 Item, the houses of such persons out of the which there shall die any of the plague, being so certified by the viewers, or otherwise knowne, or where it shall bee understood, that any person remaineth sick of the plague, to bee closed up on all parts during the time of restraint, viz. six weeks, after the sicknesse bee ceased in the same house, in case the said houses so infected shall bee within any Towne having houses neare adioyning to the same. And if the infection happen in houses dispersed in Villages, and separated from other houses, and that of necessitie, for the seruynge of their cattle, and manuring of their ground, the said persons cannot continue in their houses, then they to bee nevertheless restrained from resorting into company of others, either publikely or priuately during the said time of restraint, and to weare some marke in their uppermost garments, or beare white rods in their hands at such time as they shall goe abroad, and if there be any doubt that the masters and owners of the houses infected, will not duely obserue the directions of shutting up their doores, specially in the night, then shall there be appointed two or threé watchmen by turnes, which shall be sworne to attend and watch the house, and to apprehend any person that shall come out of the house contrary to the order, and the same persons by order of the Justices, shall be a competent time imprisonned in the stockes in the highway next to the house infected: and furthermore, some speciall marke shall bee made and fixed to

to the doores of every of the infected houses, and where any such houses shall bee Innes or Alehouses, the signes shall be taken downe for the time of the restraint, and some crosse or other marke set vp on the place thereof to be a token of the sicknesse.

6 Item, they shall haue good regard to chuse honest persons that either shall collect the summes assessed, or shall haue the custodie thereof, and out of the said collection to allot a weekly proportion for the finding of victuall, or fire, or medicines for the poorer sort, during the time of their restraint. And whereas some persons being well disposed to yeld almes and relief, will be more willing to ghe some portions of victuall, as corne, bread, or other meat, the same shall be committed to the charge of some speciall persons, that will honestly and truly preserue the same, to be distributed as they shall be appointed for the poore that are infected.

7 Item, to appoint certaine persons dwelling within the townes infected, to prouide and deliuere all necessaries of victualls, or any matter of washing or other attendance, to keepe such as are of good wealth being restrained, at their owne proper costs and charges, and the poore at the common charges: and the said persons so appointed to be ordered, not to resort to any publique assembly during the time of such their attendance, as also to weare some marke on their upper garment, or to beare a white rod in their hand, to the end others may auoid their company.

8 Item,

against the Infection of the Plague.

8 Item, that in the Shire towne in every Countie, and in other great townes meet for that purpose, there may bee provision bespoken and made, of such preseruatiues and other remedies, which otherwise in meaner townes cannot be readi- ly had, as by the Physicians shall be prescribed, and is at this present reduced into an Aduise made by the Physicians, and now printed and sent with the said Ordres, which may be fird in market places, upon places usuall for such publique matters, and in other townes in the bodies of the parish Churches, and Chappels, in which aduise onely such things are prescribed, as usually are to be had and found in all Countreys without great charge or cost.

9 Item, the Ministers and Curates, and the Churchwardens in every parish, shall in writing certifie weekly to some of the Justices, residing within the Hundred or other limit where they serue, the number of such persons as are infected and doe not die, and also of all such as shall die within their parishes, and their diseases probable whereof they died, and the same to be certified to the rest of the Justices at their assemblies, which during some conuenient time would bee every one and twentie daies, and thereof a particular booke kept by the Clerke of the peace or some such like.

10 Item, to appoint some place apart in each parish for the buriall of such persons as shall die of the plague; as also to give order that they bee buried after Sunne setting, and yet neuertheless by day light, so as the Curate be present for the

obseruation of the Rites and Ceremonies prescribed by the Law, foreseeing as much as conveniently he may, to be distant from the danger of infection of the person dead, or of the company that shall bring the corpse to the graue.

11 Item, the Justices of the whole Countie to assemble once in one and twentie daies, to examine whether those orders bee duely executed, and to certifie to the Lords of the Priuie Councell their proceedings in that behalfe, what Townes and Villages be infected, as also the numbers of the dead, and the diseases whereof they died, and what sums of money are taxed and collected to this purpose, and how the same are distributed.

12 Item, the Justices, of the hundred, where any such infection is, or the Justices next adioyning thereunto, to assemble once a weeke, to take account of the execution of the said Orders, and as they finde any lacke or disorder, either to reforme it themselves, or to report it at the generall assembly there, to bee by a moze common consent reformed.

13 Item, for that the contagion of the plague groweth and increaseth no way more, then by the use and handling of such clothes, bedding and other stiffe as hath beeene worne and occupied by the infected of this disease, during the time of their disease : the said Justices shall in the places infected take such order, that all the said clothes and other stiffe, so occupied by the diseased, so soone as the parties diseased of the plague are all against the Infestation of the Plague.

of them either well recovered or dead, bée either burnt and cleane consumed with fire, or else ayred in such sort as is prescribed in an especiall article contained in the Advise set downe by the Physicians. And for that peraduenture the losse of such apparel, bedding and other stufse to be burnt, may be greater then the poore estate of the owners of the same may well beare: it is thought very good and expedient, if it bée thought meett it shall bée burnt, that then the said Justices, out of such collections as are to be made within their Countieſ for the relief of the poorer ſort that bée infected, allow also to them ſuch ſumme or ſums as to them shall be thought reasonable, in recompence of the losſe of their ſaid ſtufſe.

14 Item, the ſaid Justices may put in execution any other Ordres that by them at their generall assembly ſhall bée deuized and thought meett, tending to the preſeruation of his Maiestieſ ſubiects from the infection: and to the end their care and diligēce may the better appear, they ſhall certifie in writing the ſaid Ordres newly deuized: and if any ſhall wilfully breake and contemne the ſame or any of the ordres herein ſpecified, they ſhall either preeſently puniſh them by impriſonment, or if the persons ſo contemning them, ſhall be of ſuch countenance as the Justices ſhall thinke meett to haue their faults knowne to his Maiestie, or to the Councell, they ſhall charge and bind them to appear before Us, and the contempt duly certified, that there may be a moze notorious sharpe example made by punishment of the ſame by order of his Maiestie.

Orders to be obserued.

15. Item, if there be lacke of Justices in some parts of the Shire; or if they which are Justices there shall be for the time absent, in that case the more number of the Justices at their assembly shall make choice of some conuenient persons to supple those places for the better execution hereof.

16. Item, if there be any person Ecclesiasticall or Lay, that shall hold and publish any opinions (as in some places report is made) that it is a vaine thing to forbear to resort to the Infected, or that it is not charitable to forbide the same, pretending that no person shall die but at their time prefired, such persons shall be not onely reprehended, but by order of the Bishop, if they be Ecclesiasticall, shall be forbidden to preach, and being Lay, shall be also enioyned to forbear to utter such dangerous opinions upon paine of imprisonment, which shall be executed, if they shall perseuerre in that error. And yet it shall appeare manifestly by these Orders, that according to Christian charitie, no persons of the meanest degrée shall be left without succour and relieve.

17. And of these things aboue mentioned, the Justices shall take great care, as of a matter specially directed and commandied by his Maiestie upon the princely and naturall care he hath conceiued towards the preseruation of his subiects, who by very disorder, and for lack of direction doe in many parts wilfully procure the increase of this generall contagion.

Angla 1604. 11.3. nothing to do with this

An

An aduise set downe by the best learned in Physicke within this Realme:

Containing sundry good Rules and easie Medicines, without charge to the meaner sort of people, as well for the presertation of his good Subiects from the Plague before infection, as for the curing and ordering of them after they shall be infected.

Preseruatiue by correcting the aire in houses.

Take Rosemarie dyed, or Juniper Bay-leaues, or Frankincense, cast the same on a Chafendish, and receiue the fume or smoke thereof: some aduise to be added Lauander, or Sage.

Also to make fires rather in pannes, to remoue about the Chamber, then in Chimneys, shall better correct the aire of the houses.

Take a quantity of Vineger very strong, and put to it some small quantitie of Rosewater, ten branches of Rosemarie, put them all into a Basen, then take five or six Flintstones, heated in the fire till they be burning hot, cast them into the same Vineger, and so let the fumes be received from place to place of your house.

Perfuming of Apparell.

Such apparell as you shall commonly weare, let it bee very cleane, and perfume it often either with with somer red Saunders burned, or with Ioni per. And if any shall happen to be with them that are visited, let such persons as soone as they shall come home, shifte themselves, and chare their clothes, in open aire for a time.

Preseruation by way of defence in open aire, and common assemblies to be vsed outwardly.

IT is good in going abrood into the open aire in the streets, to hold some things of sweet sauour in their hands, or in the corner of an handkerchiefe, as a sponge dipped in Vineger and Rosewater mixt, or in Vineger, wherein Wormewood, or Rue called also Herbegrace, hath bee ne boyled.

Preseruative by way of inward medicine.

TAke a quantitie of Rue, or Wormewood, or of both, & put it into a pot of usuall drinke, close stopped, let it lie so in steepe a whole night, and drinke thereof in the morning fasting.

In all Sommer plagues, it shall be good to use Sorrel sauce to be eaten in the morning with bread. And in the fall of the leafe to use the iuyce of Barberies with bread also.

Mens bodies are apt

Mithridates Medicine.

Take of good Figges, not wormeaten, cleane washed, of Walnuts the kernels cleane picked, of either of them an hundred, of the leaues of gréene Rue, otherwise called Herbegrace, the weight of it. 8. of common Salt the weight of iii. d. cut the Figges in pieces, and stampe them and the Walnut kernels together in a morter of marble or wood a good space, vntill they be very small, & then put the Rue leaues vnto them, stampe and stirre them well together with the rest, last put in the Salt and stamp and stir these things together, vntill they be incorporated & made of one substance. Of the which take the quantitie of ii. or iii. Figges euery morning fasting, to children the halfe will serue, and he that listeth to increase or diminish the substance of this medicine, shal easily do it, by taking of a greater or lisse quantity of the simples according to a due proportion.

A well approued Medicine to preserue.

Take of the finest cleare Aloes you can buy, in colour like to a Liver, & therefore called Hepatica, of Cinamon, of Myrrh, of each of these the weight of iii. French crownes, or of xxii. d. of our money, of Cloues, Maces, Lignum Aloes, of Maslick, of Bole Oriental, of each of these halfe an ounce: mingle them together and beat them into a very fine powder. Of the which take euery morning fasting the weight weight of a groat of this in white wine delayed with water, and by the grace of God you shall bee safe from the Plague. No man which is learned, if he examine the simples of this medicine whereof it consisteth, and the nature and power of them, can deny but that it is a medicine of great efficacy against the Plague, and the simples whereof it is made, are easily to bee had in any good Apothecaries shop, except Bole Oriental, which is vsed in the stead of true Bolus Armenus.

Take a dyie Figge and open it, and put the Kerne of a Walnut into the same being cut very small, thre or four leaues of Rue, commonly called Herbegrace, a corne of Salt, then rost the Figge and eat it warme, fast iii. or iii. houres after it, and use this twice in the weeke.

Take the powder of Turmentil, the weight of vi. pence with Sorrel or Scabious water in Summer, and in Winter with the water of Valerian or common drinke.

Or else in one Day they may take a little Wormwood, and Valerian with a graine of Salt. In another day they may take vii. or viii. berries of Juniper, dyed and put in powder, and taking the same with common drink, or with drinke in which Wormwood and Rue hath bee ne stee ped all the night.

Also the triacle called Dieteslearoun, which is made but of 4 things of light price easie to be had.

Also the root of Enula Campana, either taken in powder with drinke, or hanged about the brest.

Likewise a peece of Arras root kept in the mouth as men passe in the streets is verie good Cordiall.

Take six leaues of Sorrell, wash them with water and Vineger, let them lie to steepe in the said water

water and Vineger a while, then eat them fasting, and keepe in your mouth and chewe now or then either Stewall, or the roote of Angelica, or a little Cynamon.

Take the roote of Enula Campana being layd and steeped in Vineger, and grosse beaten, put a little of it in a handkerchiefe, and smell to it if you resort to any that is infected.

¶ For women with child, or such as be delicate and tender, and cannot away with taking of Medicines.

Make a tost of white or of the second bread as you thinke good, and sprincke on it being hot, a little good wine-Vineger, made with Rose leaues, and for want of it, any good common, or vsed Vineger, and spred on the tost a little butter, and cast thereon a little powder of Cynamon, and eat it in the morning fasting. The poore which cannot get Vineger nor buy Cynamon, may eat bread and butter alone: for butter is not only a preseruatiue against the Plague, but against all manner of poysongs.

When one must come into the place where infectious persons are, it is good to smell to the root of Angelica, Gentian, or Valerian, and to chewe any of these in his mouth.

Another preseruatiue for the Poore.

It shall be good to take an handfull of Rue, and as much common Wormewood, and bruse them a little: and put them into a pot of earth or tinne, with so much Vineger as shall couer the herbes: keepe this pot close couered, or stopped, and when you feare any infection, dippe into this Vineger a peece of a sponge, and carrie it in your hand and smell to it, or else put it into a round ball of Yuorie, or Juniper niper made full of holes of the one side, carrying it in your hand vse to smell thereunto, renewing it once in a day.

To be vsed after infection taken.

For as much as the cause of the Plague standeth rather in poyson, than in any putrifaction of humours, as other agues doe, the chiefeſt way is to mooue ſweatings, and to defend the heart by ſome Cordiall thing.

Suppositorie.

If the patient be coſtive and bound in his bodie, let him take a Suppositorie made with a little boyled Honie, and a little fine poulder of Salt, and ſo taken in at the fundament, and kept till it mooue a ſtoole.

An excellent Medicine made without charges.

Take of the poulder of good Bayberies, the huske taken away from them, before they be dryed, a ſpoonfull: Let the Patient drinke this, well mingled in a draught of good stale Ale or beere, which is neither ſoure, nor dead, or with a draught of white-wine, and goe to bed and caſt himſelfe into a ſweate, and forbeare ſleepe as is aforesaid.

Another ſoueraigne remedie, that is, a ſtilled water.

Take the inward barkē of the Ashe tree, a pound of Walnuts with the greene outward ſhelles, to the number of fiftie, cut theſe small, of Scabious, of Veruen, of Petimorell, of Houſeleeke, of euery one a handfull, of Saffron halfe an ounce, powre vpon theſe the Strongeſt Wineger you can get, fourre pintes,

CURE OF MY THERMIS.

pintes, let them a little boyle together vpon a very soft fire, and then stand in a very close pot well stopt all a night vpon the embers, afterward distill them with a soft fire, and receiue the water close kept. Giue vnto the Patient laide in bed and well couered with clothes, two ounces of this water to drinke, and let him be prouoked to sweate, and euery sixe houres, during the space of twenty foure houres, giue him the same quantitie to drinke. This medicine for the worthinesse thereof, and because it will stand the maker thereof in little charge, it shall be very well done to distill it in Sommer when the Walnuts hang greene on the tree, that it may be ready against the time that occasion serueth to vse it.

I. Bloodletting.

If the Patient be full of humors which be good, let him immediatly be let bloud vpon the Liner veine in the right arme, or in the Median veine of the same arme (if no soze appeare) in the first day.

2. Medicine purgatiue.

For the Poore take Aloes the weight of sixe pence, put in the pappe of an Apple: and for the richer Pilles of Rufus to be had in euery good Apothecaries shop. After letting of bloud and purging (as shall be needfull) some of the fornamed Cordials are to be vsed,

These preparations thus vsed the first day that the Patient shall fall sicke, as cause shall be to vse the one or the other (no soze appearing) in which case if the soze shall appeare, they are both to bee forborne, the next is to vse all meanes to expell the poyson, and to defend the heart by Cordials.

3. Medicament expulsive.

The poyson is expelled best by sweatings prouoked by posset Ale, made with Fenell and Ma-rigolds in Winter, and with Sorrell, Buglosse and Borage in Sommer, with the which in both times they must mixe the Triacle of Diatessaroum, the weight of ix. d. and so to lay themselves with all quietnesse to sweat one halfe houre, or an houre if they be strong. For they that be neither full of humours nor corrupt in humours, neede neither purging nor letting of bloud, but at the first plunge may moue themselues to sweate with Cordiall things mixt with such things as moue sweate, and are before declared.

What is to be done when there is any rising or swelling in any part.

 Shen if by these three means the poison be expelled outward by botches, carbuncles or markes, called Gods marks, according as nature doth ex-pell, so must the further proceedings be, prouiding still, that they continue still in the vse of the cordiall and moderate sweating now and then, all the time that the sores be in healing, which must by the Surgeon be handled with great discretion.

Medicines to be vsed in ordinarie diet.

IT is thought that the poulder of Harts horne hath a speciall prerogatiue, to be vsed all the time

time of their sicknes in their broths, and supping, which in Sommer must euer haue Sorrell, Borage, Buglass, and in Winter, Betony, and Scabious, or Morsus Diaboli: and if their habilitie do not serue, let them vse it with Aleuries made with a little Nutmegge, or one Cloue, or with Cawdles in like maner made with Cloucs, Maces, Nutmegs, Sanders or such like.

Both to preserue and cure the sicknesse.

Take an egge and make a hole in the top of it, take out the white and yolke, fill the shell with the weight of two french crownes of Saffron, rost the said egge thus filled with Saffron vnder the embres, vntil the shell begin to ware yellow, then take it from the fire, and beate the shell and Saffron in a morter together, with halfe a spoonefull of Mustard seed, take of this poulder a french crown weight, and as soone as you suspect your selfe infected, dissolute it into ten spoonefuls of posset ale, and drinke it luke warme, then go to bed and prouoke you selfe to sweating.

To be vsed in the first time of the sicknesse.

Another is to take fve or six handfull of Sorrell that groweth in the field, or a greater quantitie according as you will distill more or lesse of the water thereof, and let it lye infriised or steepped in good Wineger the space of fourre and twentie houres, then take it off and drie it with a linnen cloth put into a Limbecke, and distill the water thereof: And as soone as you finde your selfe touched with the sicknesse, drinke fourre spoonefuls of the said water with a little sugar, and if you be able, able, walke vpon it vntill you doe sweate, if not, keepe your bed; and being well couered, prouoke your selfe to sweating, and the next day to take as much againe of it, a little before supper.

Item, to prouoke vomit with two ounces of ranke oyle, or walnut oyle, a spoonefull of the iuice of Celendine, and halfe a spoonefull of the iuice of radice root, so that the partie Infected do walke and not sleepe, is better then any letting of bloud, or any purging. For the disease neither can suffer agitation of humors, nor when one is infected, hath no time to bleede or to purge.

Outward Medicines for to be applied to the sore.

The first.

Take of Scabious two handfuls, stampe it in a stone morter with a pestell of stone if you can get any such, then put vnto it of old swines grease salted, two ounces, and the yolke of an egge, stampe them well together, and lay part of this warme to the soze.

The second.

Take of the leaues of Mallowes, of Camomill flowers, of either of them an handfull, of Linscende beaten into poulder two ounces, boyle the Mallow leaues first cut, and the flowers of the Camomill in faire water, standing aboue a fingers breadth, boyle all them together, vntill all the water almost be spent: then put thereunto the Linscende, of Wheate flower halfe an handfull, of swines swines grease the skin taken away, three ounces, of oyle of Rose two ounces, stirre them still with a sticke, and let them all boyle together on a soft fire, without smoake, vntill the water be utterly spent, beat them all together in a morter, vntill they be well incorporated together, and in feeling smooth and not rough: then make part thereof hot in a dish set vpon a chafindish of coales, and lay it thicke vpon a linnen cloth, applying it to the soze.

Another excellent Medicine to ripen and bring out the sore.

Take a white Onion cut in peeces, of fresh butter iii ounces, of Leuen the weight of xij d. of Mallowes one handfull, of Scabious(if it may be had)one handfull, of Cloues of Garlick the weight of xx d. boyle them on the fire in sufficient water, and make a pultesse of it, and lay it warme to the soze.

Another.

Of the soze it selfe doe thus. Take two handful of Valerian, three roots of Danewort, a handful of Smalledge, or Louage, if you can get it, seethe them all in butter and water, and a few crummes of bread, and make a pultesse thereof, and lay it warme to the soze vntill it breake.

Another for the same.

If you cannot haue these herbes, it is good to lay a loafe of bread to it hot as it commeth out of the ouen (which afterward shall bee burnt, or buried in the earth) or the leaues of Scabious or Sorrell rosted, or two or three Lillie roots rosted vnder embers, beaten and applied.

A generall

¶ A generall medicine for all sortes of people taken with the Plague, to be had without cost.

Take of the roote of butter burre, otherwise called pestilent wort, one ounce, of the root of greac Valerian a quarter of an ounce, of Sorrell an handfull, boyle all these in a quart of water to a pint, then straine it, and put thereto two spoonefuls of Vineger, two ounces of good Sugar: boyle all these together vntill they be well mingled, let the infected drinke of this so hot as he may suffer it, a good draught, and if he chance to cast it vp againe, let him take the same quantitie straight way vpon it, and prouoke himselfe to sweate, and he shall find great helpe.

Time of continuance apart from common assemblies.

Such as haue beene infected, shoud keepe their house, without being conuersant with the whole, vntill the sores shall haue left running and be perfектly whole and sound, which in sanguine and cholerike persons will be healed sooner, than in melan-cholike, and flegmatike complexions.

Such persons may not well bee conuersant with them which are not infected, for the space of one moneth.

Infected clothes.

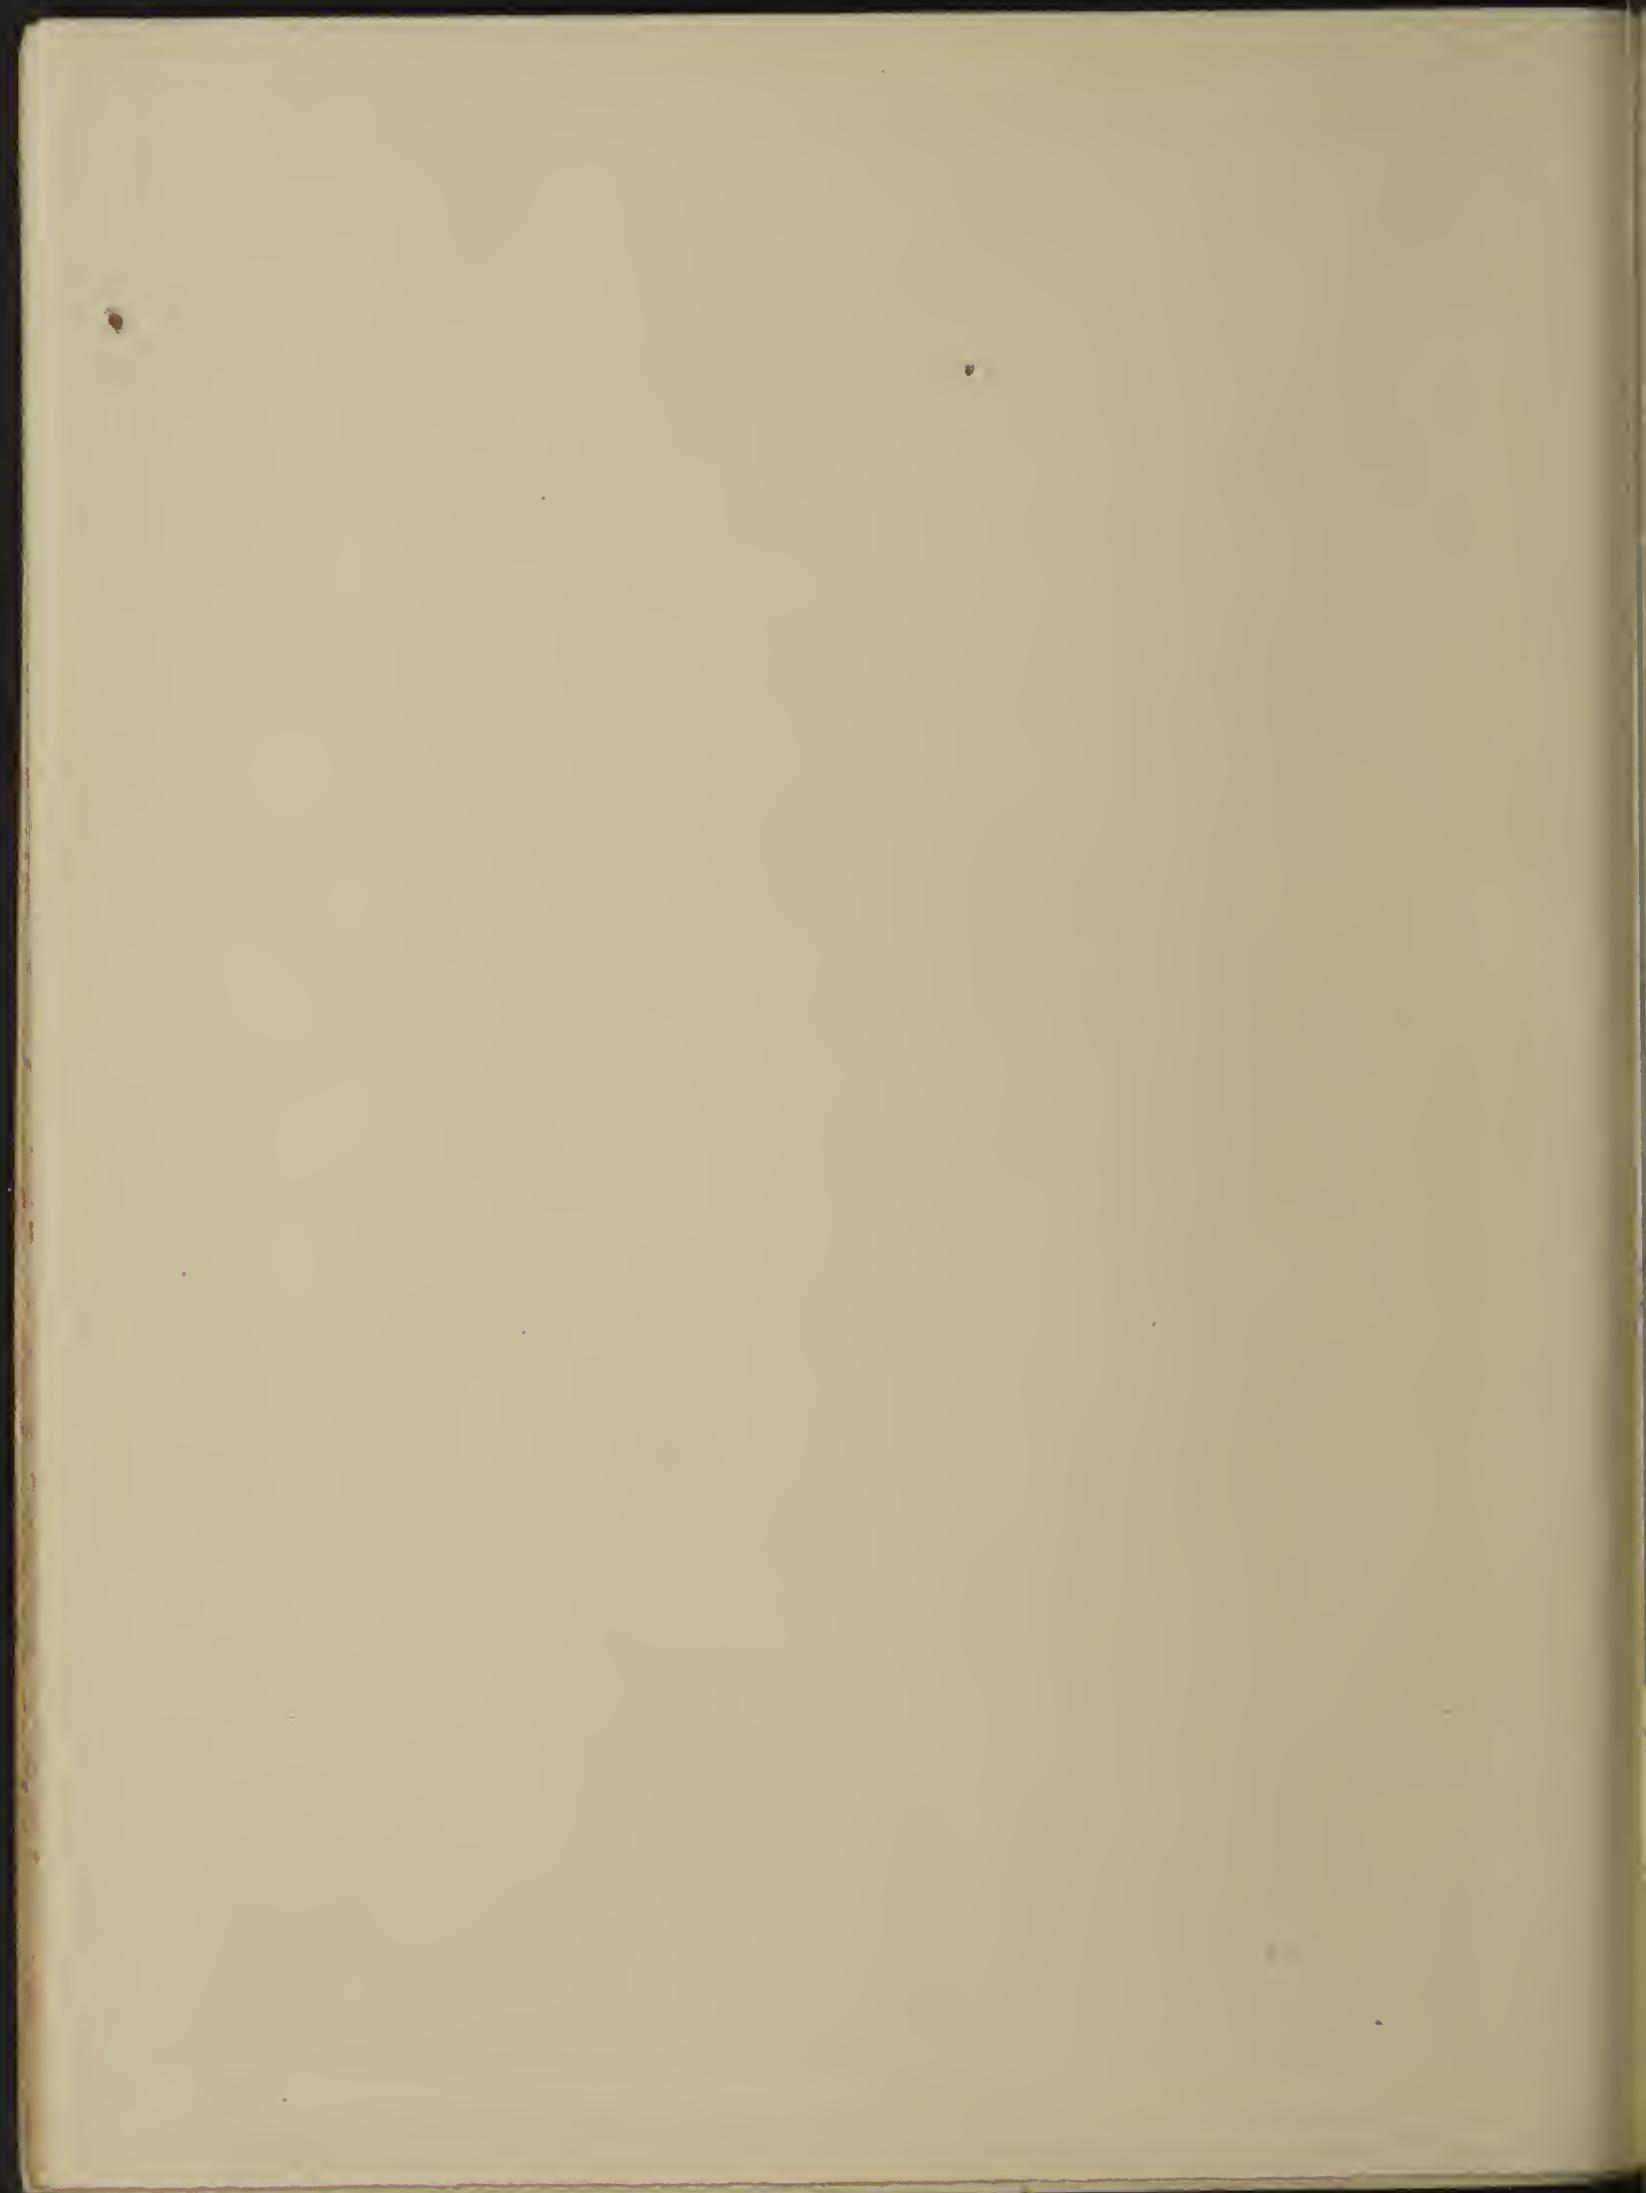

The Contagion suspected to remaine in clothes, either woollen or linnen, cannot well be auoyded by better meanes than by fire and water, by often washing and airing the same in frostes, and sun-shine, with good discretion, and burning the cloths of small value.
