"The customer decides to buy the record (in spite of handicaps). We wrap it up, thank him, let him go (glad that he is gone so that we can go back to our work). We didn't get that man's name and address or inquire if he had plenty of needles at home and play a few of 'those other' records for him. We growl a bit and damn our competitor for getting all the business, and say that if our store was better located we could do more business.

"Isn't it funny how many of these things you think are true of your competitor? That isn't the funniest thing, however. The big joke is that your competitor is saying the same thing about you, unless you have a really up-to-the-minute Victor store. It's dollars to doughnuts that no matter how fine your store is you can get more business, make more money and please your people better if you will make a few changes. Do it now.

"Who is it that is 'co-operating with failure' and 'courting stagnation?' Maybe, as you say, there are two of them, and that the other one is your enemy—but you'll get rich faster on your profits than you will on his losses. Phone your contractor and get things started now.

"Don't wait for prices to go lower. Prices are going down only when there is no demand for building material or labor. When these conditions come about there will be a scarcity of customers and plenty of everything else—but profits."

HOW PARIS BUYS ITS RECORDS

American Ideas of Free Service Unknown in French Capital—A Charge Is Made for Each Record Played—Somewhat Like a Telephone

French methods in regard to the sale of records are certainly unusual and ingenious, but they would hardly meet with the approval of American customers who are accustomed to listening to records under the most favorable circumstances. An officer recently returned from France tells the story of how one selects records at some of the big shops in Paris.

The American idea of free service to customers in the purchase of any make of talking machine records is quite unknown in the French capital. If one wishes to hear a record before purchasing the only way is to pay for the privilege at the rate of f.1 for five records on week-days and f.1 for four records on Sundays. You step up to the cashier and purchase as many metal tokens as you wish to hear records and enter a special listening room.

Imagine a long corridor like an arcade lined all along the side with chairs, each facing an automatic apparatus something like a telephone attached to the wall. The customer seats himself in the chair and, after inserting a metal token in the slot, registers the numbers of the different records he wishes to hear played by means of numbered dials not unlike a combination on a safe. Then he takes up the ear tubes and attaches them to his ears and listens. The attendants (located in another part of the building, usually on the floor below) place the record on a transmitting instrument and the selections are played and heard distinctly through the ear tubes at the listening station.

After listening to as many records as he wishes, using a metal token for each, the customer passes through a door to another room where he makes his purchases. These talking machine record arcades are quite popular as an inexpensive place of entertainment and are patronized by all classes of people who pay about 3 cents to hear any selection they wish played.

One cannot but wonder how American customers would take to this certainly ingenious plan. In departments of many of the great stores customers are conducted to soundproof, fresh air ventilated record rooms and given an easy seat in a comfortable chair. The attendant brings the records desired and places them on the instrument. In this American way the customer is able to hear any record under the same musical conditions and in approximately the same environment as at home and, of course, all this service is free. Another feature of American store service which seems very popular of late are the free record recitals given in a suitable auditorium in connection with the talking machine department. These recitals quite reach the dignity of real concerts and are crowded for each program.

CHAS. HACKETT WITH COLUMBIA CO.

Noted American Tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co. to Make Records Exclusively For This Company—Scores Big Success

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced this week that Charles Hackett, well-known tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who received a tremendous ovation when he made his debut at this Opera House recently, will make records exclusively for the Columbia library.

Long before the night set for his American operatic debut in the famous Metropolitan Opera House the reputation of this tenor had preceded him from South America, where he had won the enthusiastic commendation and approval of the leading musical critics and most prominent musicians.

A native of New England, this young tenor had sailed for Italy nearly six years ago, and during the past six years he won for himself an international reputation as one of the leading tenors of the present generation.

Mr. Hackett made his debut at the Metropolitan Opera House in the opera "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," and from the moment that he appeared before his audience it was evident that a tenor of unique quality had been discovered. It was fully a half minute after Charles Hackett had sung his introductory aria in his New York debut before the assemblage at the Metropolitan Opera House ceased its applause.

It has been said by musical critics that the delightful art of this young tenor (who is not yet thirty), his distinction in interpretation as well as in enunciation of the words of whatever aria or song that he sings, should make his Columbia records as unique as the artist himself. His associates at the Opera House have paid this artist the unusual compliment of terming him a "virtuoso tenor," the first that America has known for many years.

THE EIGHT CYLINDER MOTOR and the TRIPLE THREAD WORM

IN the explosion chamber of the eight cylinder motor the shock impulses occur so frequently that vibration is reduced to a minimum. The eight cylinder purrs along the road.

And the triple thread worm of the Stephenson Precision-Made Motor, by allowing the maximum number of teeth to be constantly engaged with the fibre gear, reduces vibration and noise to a minimum.

It makes the Stephenson Precision-Made Motor a silent, even-running motor. One reason why it is a precision-made motor.

DIXIE PHONOGRAPH CO. ORGANIZED

HIGH POINT, N. C., April 4.—The Dixie Phonograph Co., recently incorporated under the laws of Delaware for the manufacture of talking machines, are now established in their modern factory building in this city. A particular feature of their new machine will be the facility with which the motor may be reached. The motor board is tray shaped and hinged at the back and may be easily lifted to reach the motor. An exceptionally fine motor has been installed and the tone value is claimed to be individual in its sweetness and volume. Each instrument is equipped with the Eject-o-File record filing system and has many patented features. The officers of the company are F. F. Slocumb, president and treasurer; E. M. Howard, vice-president, and E. H. Fairbanks, secretary.

Harry Brazen has opened a new retail piano and talking machine store at 1654 South Hamilton avenue, Chicago. The establishment is well equipped for the trade.

BUSINESS NEAR A PRE-WAR BASIS

Globe-Wernicke Co. Report Increasing Demand For the Brown Disc Record Cabinets and Globe-Wernicke Section Record Cabinets—Expansion the Order of the Day

CINCINNATI, O., April 7.—Since the signing of the armistice the Globe-Wernicke Co., of this city, has been able to accept and fill orders for Brown Disc record cabinets and Globe-Wernicke sectional record cabinets. The factory is rapidly approaching a pre-war basis, and facilities are being enlarged steadily in order to bring the production of the various Globe-Wernicke lines to the high water mark that was held prior to 1917. During the war period the Globe-Wernicke Co. received from the Government tremendous orders for filing equipment calling for immediate delivery. For many years past this company has taken care of a large portion of the Government's filing requirements, but the war emergency increased the company's responsibilities many times over.

At the present time new buildings are being erected and plans are being consummated for a general merchandising and publicity campaign that will be of keen interest to the talking machine trade. Brown Disc record cabinets and Globe-Wernicke sectional record cabinets have won considerable popularity during the past few years, and are now being handled by well-known dealers throughout the country.

In addition to its domestic activities the Globe-Wernicke Co. will shortly open in New York City new export warehouses, together with large export offices for the exploitation of the entire line of the company's products, including disc record cabinets in foreign countries.

COLUMBIA NEWS BRIEFLETS

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from a visit to the company's branches in Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and other important points. He states that the business outlook in the West is splendid, and that Columbia managers report the closing of the best first quarter in the history of the company.

F. S. Binger, who recently joined the Columbia sales staff after spending many years as a member of the auditing division, has been appointed a member of the staff at the Chicago branch and has already assumed his new duties in the "Windy City."

O. F. Benz, of the general sales department, visited the Columbia branches in Cincinnati and Pittsburgh last week, conferring with the branch managers relative to promotion plans and other matters.

Effective Selling Arguments Which Can Be Employed by Jobbers in Records

By John Cromelin
General Sales Manager, OkeH Records

No. 1—The Spur of the Record Department

I use the word "spur" with thanks to an energetic Western record jobber who first called my attention to that particular role of the record department in the numerous department stores, drug stores and other business institutions where he succeeded in establishing a new record department.

"You know," went on my informant, "after many years of successful record jobbing it has only been of late that I began to grasp the universal dimensions and power of the talking machine and record business. In that respect I suppose I'm like most of my fellow jobbers. In the rush of business and flood of prosperity we're carried along at such a breakneck pace that we hardly find time to observe some of the most vital features of our trade. I mean the greatness of the very arguments which prove to be the success of our salesmanship.

"For instance, it was through the owner of a small department store in Michigan that I learned the value of one of the most vital record selling points. Here was a man who established his record department with great skepticism. He did not want the noise around the place. He couldn't spare the space for booths. He feared the expense—he hadn't sufficient window display. For a matter of fact he had about all and a few more reasons for not doing it than I've ever heard quoted from any dealer. After the first prosperous six months he confided to me with a smile:

"Say, Mr. Cromelin, let me tell you that if I hadn't made a cent profit on that bloomin' record department that you talked me into—I'd still be ahead of the game."

"How do you figure that out?" said I.

"Well, you see," winked my Michigan friend cheerfully, "that new department sort of put the spur into the other departments. Every few days the record department received some new snappy advertising matter from the manufacturer headquarters with instructions how to display it to best advantage. Those girls carried out the scheme to the last letter, and I tell you they made things hum.

"After that, if any of the managers of the other departments complained to me about business being groggy or a bit under weather, all I'd have to say was, 'Well, look at the new record department.'

"That was the spur, you see. Now those other department managers break their heads to scheme up new ad campaigns and novel means of display. You can tell there's new blood in the store. The spur works like a charm."

No. 2—New Faces

The selling argument of the former chapter suggests talking point No. 2.

All over the country drug stores, stationery stores, furniture and hardware establishments are adding phonographs and records to their stock.

It is evident at first thought that the "New Line" of merchandise will draw a new following to each of these shops. Let us begin with the furniture store. It is a well-known fact that the furniture store is about the least frequented shop by any man or woman. As to young men and young ladies—perhaps they visit these places every leap year or so—to buy someone a present, or on a still more important occasion of picking out the furnishings for their own new nest.

Now note the change with the opening of the new record department. The very people—the growing up new generation on whom the future of the furniture stores depends—the very folks who formerly were such rare visitors, will now flock there in pairs and groups. It will not be a case of "papa" or "mama," but the entire Jones or James family will eventually wend its way to that furniture store.

No. 3—Records Boosting Music Lines

Here seems the proper time and place to undo one of the mischievous charges made by some folk, hindered with a narrow vision, against the phonograph and record industries, viz., that these new industries have retarded the sale of sheet music and musical instruments as well as reduced the number of music students.

Fortunately all statistics on hand prove that just the contrary is the case.

Upon inquiry in fifty stores where there are musical instruments and sheet music sold right alongside of phonographs records we learned that in every instance they found a positive increase in the sale of sheet music and musical instruments since the records have been added to their stock.

And as to music teachers, all over the land they are enjoying great prosperity and almost without exception agree that the phonograph record is their greatest agent for new pupils. The record has also popularized the higher musical standards throughout the country in a measure as they never were known or accepted heretofore.

These are points worth while remembering and playing up to good advantage wherever a new record department is to be added to a store carrying sheet music and musical instruments.

All over this country there are millions of boys and girls, young men and women, dreaming dreams of the time when they will be able to sing or play this or that composition as well as Mme. So-and-So or Signor This-or-That on their favorite records.

Nothing proves more convincingly the seriousness of their dreams than the many, many instances each of us knows of when we eaves-dropped listening to our neighbor's daughter's pathetic but repeated brave attempts following some famous coloratura soprano's record.

Finally the aspiring damsel comes to the conclusion that perhaps she had better thump the melody on her piano before she makes a final bold attack to sing it a la prima donna style. The next step is a trip to the sheet music counter and right then and there is sold a copy of that number in a lower key—a sheet of music which was positively not sold by the sheet music department—but by all workings of logic was sold through the efforts of the record department.

And this is but one angle out of thousands! A record selling point worth while remembering. Yes—and worth while repeating.

Important Notice to Dealers

Why Every Dealer Should Handle The Highest Grade Phonograph Steel Needle in the World.

The WALL-KANE

First—Each WALL-KANE needle is guaranteed to play 10 records on any Phonograph, the tenth playing as clear as the first.

Second—Phonograph owners will always purchase WALL-KANE needles, since they eliminate the troublesome changing of needles after each record.

Third—WALL-KANE needles are scientifically prepared, and, by reason of special composition, are beneficial to the grooves of the record, thereby adding to its life.

Fourth—WALL-KANE needles minimize the usual scratching sound of the ordinary steel needle and greatly improve the clearness and tone of reproduction.

TEST PROPOSED TO DEALERS TO PROVE THE SUPERIORITY OF

Wall-Kane Steel Needles

Take two standard disc records of the same selection, play one ten times with the same WALL-KANE loud needle; play the other record, the same selection, ten times, but with ten new, full-tone steel needles.

You will find that the record played ten times with the same WALL-KANE needle will sound clearer, will have less surface noise, and that under the magnifying glass the grooves of the record played ten times with the ten steel needles will seem to be more disturbed.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles, Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary steel needles, retails for 15c, costs the dealer 7½c., 8c. in the Far West.

FINE NEW HOME FOR STANDARD TALKING MACHINE CO.

Prominent Victor Wholesalers of Pittsburgh, Pa., Purchase Commodious Four-Story Building in Heart of Commercial Center of City for Their Exclusive Use

PITTSBURGH, PA., April 8.—Although the Pittsburgh territory is experiencing the same shortage of Victor goods suffered by the balance of the country, the Standard Talking Machine Co. has just exhibited its faith in the future development of the trade by purchasing one of the most pretentious properties in the talking machine trade, right in the heart of the commercial center of the city and which will provide the opportunity for a tremendous expansion of the company's business.

The new Standard plant is a four-story brick building at 305-309 Penn avenue, which was erected and used as a department store. The street appearance is very attractive, the front is faced with light fired brick, and the lines of the building itself are excellent. It is now being studied with the thought of making it the Victor landmark of the region.

In size it is large enough to provide amply for the tremendous expansion on which Standard is banking. With a frontage of fifty-four and one-half feet and a depth of 135 feet, it has a total floor space of nearly 30,000 square feet, besides the basement, practically three times that of the building now occupied. It is easy of access in every respect. Its own freight siding delivers goods directly onto the second or storage floor, thus eliminating one of the chief obstacles to a quick and an economical handling. From the storage floor a gravity conveyor will deliver to shipping room on the first floor. An inside loading room makes it possible to load and unload delivery trucks inside the shipping room.

In discussing the building, President Roush explains that the arrangement of the record department, record stockroom, packing and shipping has been given more study than any other problem. "When we're done," states Mr. Roush, "we'll have a record service that recognizes no speed limits." The record department is located near the front door, the record stock in the center of the building, the packing and shipping rooms at the rear—all on the first floor, so that all orders progress from one department to the next without any overlapping.

Mr. Roush's office will be located on the second floor, together with the directors' room and an assembly room. French Nestor's and Wallace Russell's offices will be located on the first floor, as will also the salesmen's offices, dealers' record room, and general offices.

The office arrangement both on the first and second floor has not been announced, but a certain reticence in discussing this phase of the plans leads one to believe that this will be something unique.

The success which this development indicates has come to the Standard Talking Machine Co. is well merited, for no Victor jobber has been more persistent in maintaining the trade ideals in sticking tenaciously to its own established policies, in continuous advertising in season and out, and, most important of all, in maintaining an organization of high-grade men capable of executing such broad-gauge policies.

In its "dealer service" work it has been a pioneer, having organized and maintained for years, even during the shortage, a service and advertising department whose chief object has been to help dealers sell goods already on their shelves. The excellent work done by this department in bettering record conditions and the indirect results from its efforts are already well known to the trade.

As a territory policy, a logical "home field" was carefully mapped out many years ago, and all Victor merchandise received from that day to this has been conscientiously pro-rated within those limits.

The Standard Co. of Pittsburgh chose the right paths of Victor merchandising when the game was young and no one will withhold all due credit from its alert and capable officers for the steady growth which has now resulted.

SUPERTONE CO. EXPANSION

Offices Opened in Chicago and in Philadelphia—Display Also Being Made at New York Furniture Exchange—Line Meeting With Success

The Supertone Talking Machine Co., New York, manufacturer of "Supertone" talking machines, has opened Chicago offices in the Republic Building, and has appointed Matt. J. Kennedy in charge of this branch. Mr. Kennedy is well known in the Chicago talking machine trade, and will introduce a special plan of co-operation and service for "Supertone" dealers in Chicago territory.

The company has also announced the opening of a Philadelphia office in the Real Estate Trust Building, with C. L. Stephenson in charge. Mr. Stephenson has been identified with the talking machine industry for several years, and is thoroughly qualified to give the "Supertone" line aggressive representation in Philadelphia and the adjacent territory.

The "Supertone" machine is meeting with considerable success, and officers of the company state that the factory is working to capacity to give service to the dealers handling the line. The "Supertone" models 2, 3 and 4 are proving very popular with the trade, and good-sized orders for these machines have been received from some of the best-known talking machine houses in the country.

The "Supertone" line is on display at the New York Furniture Exchange, and has the distinction of being the only talking machine displayed at this important exhibition. Several important deals have been closed at this Furniture Exchange as a direct result of the exhibit.

NEW CORPORATION TAKES BUSINESS

The business of the Riggins Piano Co., Bridgeton, N. J., has been taken over by Riggins, Gaskill, Hunt, Inc., of which the officers are Ralph G. Riggins, Carl Gaskill and R. Winfield Hunt. A complete line of Victor talking machines will be carried in the store at all times, with all of the latest and best selling records for that instrument.

THREE NEW INCORPORATIONS

The Supreme Phono Parts Co., Manhattan, has been incorporated to manufacture record needles and parts at a capital of $20,000 by M. H. Rechell, S. Nadel and A. Clarke, 32 Cooper Square.

The Concert Record Mfg. Co., Manhattan, has also been incorporated by the above men at the same capital stock.

UPWARD TREND IN BUSINESS

President Edgerton, of the Empire Mfg. Co., Tells of Conditions in the Large Territory Which They Supply With Shipping Cases

GOLDSBORO, N. C., April 5.—The Empire Mfg. Co., of this city, report brisk activity in all departments, but particularly in that department producing shipping cases for talking machines. The spirit of expansion noted throughout the talking machine trade has manifested itself in greatly increased orders for their shipping cases. H. Weil, secretary of the company, is completing a business trip in the interest of the Empire Mfg. Co. that has carried him through the Northern States.

A. H. Edgerton, president of the company, in speaking of general trade conditions, noted the distinctly upward trend and said he had yet to find a person in the trade pessimistically inclined. The success of the Empire line of shipping cases he attributes to their lightness and the attendant saving in freight rates. It is estimated that their re-enforced three-ply ve-near cases weigh slightly over one-half that of a case of corresponding size and strength constructed of lumber: The veneer cases are said to be air-tight and to have reached the highest degree of perfection obtainable in their water-proof qualities.

Triangle Phono Parts Co. Opens Branches in Chicago and Philadelphia

The Triangle Phono Parts Co., New York, manufacturer of "Triangle" tone arms, sound boxes, etc., and distributor of Heineman and Meisselbach motors, etc., has announced the opening of a Chicago office at 932 Republic Building, and a Philadelphia office in the Real Estate Trust Building. C. L. Stephenson, well known in the Eastern trade, has been appointed Philadelphia representative at this address, and is making plans for an aggressive campaign.

The Triangle Phono Parts Co. states that it has secured excellent orders from manufacturers during the past few weeks.

SAVINO AS A COMPOSER

Musical Director for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. Has Many Hits to His Credit

It is generally known in the musical world that one of the most popular hits of the day is "Indianola," which has achieved remarkable success, both in dance and vocal form. It is interesting to note that the composer of this number is D. Savino, who has been musical director for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. for the past two and a half years.

Mr. Savino is a co-writer of "Indianola" under one of his several nom de plumes, and has also been a co-writer of many other popular hits, some of which are "Kentucky Dream," "Himalaya," "Pahjamah," "My Desert Fantasie," "Arabian Nights," etc.

Mr. Savino, who is a graduate of the Conservatory of Naples, is well known in musical circles here and abroad, and has more than thirty classical compositions to his credit. Many of these numbers have won signal success, among these being his "Prelude," "Scherzo in E Minor," "Gavotte Impromptu," "Concerto in A Minor for Piano," etc., etc.

Huntley-Stockton-Hill Co., the live-wire exclusive Edison dealers of Greensboro, N. C., gave Frieda Hempel a rousing welcome on her first visit to their town recently. S. F. Johnson had charge of the window decorations, and Miss Irene Hedgebeth, in charge of the record room, gave several preliminary recitals.

NEW COLUMBIA SALES PLAN

Columbia Representatives to Use New Sales Plan in Behalf of "Symphony Series" Records

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has just advised Columbia representatives of a new sales plan in behalf of Columbia "Symphony Series" records. These records constitute selections made by any Columbia artist or organization that has appeared in concert, and all records made by grand opera artists.

The advertising department of the Columbia Co. has gone to considerable expense in preparing special mailing inserts, which are of unusual interest to record purchasers because they give a story of the artist's career. These mailing inserts are designed in many colors, and in addition to featuring an attractive photograph of the artists present illustrations descriptive of the artists' career or the selections they have recorded. In advising the dealers of this new plan the Columbia advertising department sent out sample inserts featuring the following Columbia artists who make "Symphony Series" records: Seidel, Stracciari, Lazaro, Grainger, Lashanska, Lucy Gates, Barrientos and Oscar Seagle.

It is suggested that the dealers mail these artistic inserts to a selected list of customers, and attention is called to the fact that there is a percentage of people in every district who like "better" music, and that "Symphony Series" records are prestige builders.

DEATH OF EDWARD L. THOMPSON

Edward L. Thompson, a member of the sales staff of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., died recently at his home, 132 Montague street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Thompson had been ill only a short while and succumbed to an attack of double pneumonia. He had been associated with the Columbia wholesale staff for several years, and was one of the most popular members of the organization, having visited the trade in New Jersey and Brooklyn. The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon, and were attended by Lambert Friedl, manager of the New York Columbia branch, and several members of his staff. Mr. Thompson is survived by a widow.

WALL STREET STOPS COLLECTING

Lower Wall Street Association Ends Campaign to Secure Musical Instruments for Sailors

The Lower Wall Street Association closed its formal campaign for the gathering of musical instruments for use by the boys of the United States Navy by a special meeting held recently at the offices of the National Sugar Co.

As a result of the unique work, which has spread over nearly a year, the organization has gathered over 500 musical instruments and about 1,700 phonograph records, which have been distributed to fifty-three ships; also navy hospitals, aviation fields, naval stations and canteens.

SOME STRIKING WINDOW DISPLAYS

Dealers Will Be Interested in the Attractive Window Arrangements Prepared for Them—Displays Linked Up With National Publicity

The outstanding feature of the dealer service window display for May, as prepared for Columbia dealers, is a faithful tie-up with the company's national advertising for the month. The centerpiece, consisting of three separate surfaces of cardboard, cut out and arranged so as to open one behind the other and lend considerable depth to the figure, is a replica of the copy that will be run.

This form of display brings to the dealer that essential element for identifying his shops as a part of the Columbia organization and permits him to realize on the company's publicity investment. What the public will see in the magazines and newspapers throughout the country during May will again be brought forcefully to its attention in the retail windows.

In addition to the centerpiece there is the customary number of smaller cards and cut-out record holders, listing and illustrating nearly the complete May issue of Columbia records, and these have undergone an art treatment somewhat different than has as yet been attempted, the bold poster effects and masses of color being replaced by fine pen and ink sketchings.

The records in this May list, by reason of their particular titles or characteristics, are peculiarly international. There is the Spanish Orchestra, the selection from the Japanese opera, "Madame Butterfly," the Italian folk-song that Straccjari sings, and the Gypsy airs played by Seidel; the "Athlone" selection and Irish song, the "Arabian Nights" dance record and "Don't Cry, Frenchy,

EXPORT LICENSES VALID TILL USED

The War Trade Board announces, and has so advised collectors of customs and the Post-office Department, that except those licenses for exportation to Norway, Sweden, Denmark and European Holland, which are by their terms limited to a particular date, all export licenses issued on or after November 15, 1918, and all export licenses which were unexpired on the 15th day of November, 1918, will be valid until used, unless revoked, notwithstanding such licenses are stamped as expiring on November 15, 1918, or subsequently thereto.

HALL MUSIC CO. IN NEW QUARTERS

The Hall Music Co., Kansas City, Mo., has removed from its former quarters at 817 Walnut street to 1031 Grand avenue. The new location is considered a very good one, as the adjoining rooms have been leased by the Government for use during the Liberty Loan drive in April. Talking machine business has been unusually good and a great increase in the number of cash sales is reported.

EJECT-O-FILE CO. PLANT REMODELED

Equipment Insures Large Production of the Specialties Made by This Concern

HIGH POINT, N. C., April 4.—The factory buildings that were acquired by the Eject-O-File Co. at the first of the year have been thoroughly overhauled and are now laid out in a thoroughly efficient basis that will allow for a large production. Some of the most modern and intricate woodworking machinery known has been installed and the plant in its present state is said to be one of the most complete, not only in the South but throughout the entire country as well.

The Eject-O-File Co. own five acres of land surrounding the factory buildings, which allows for great additions to the present structures which seem inevitable from the large volume of orders now being received. Situated on the main line of the Southern Railway excellent freight service is possible. Complete facilities are at hand for the making of Eject-O-Files and Eject-O-File cabinets from the raw lumber through to the finished product. An interesting and thoroughly efficient drying machine is now being installed, which through oxidizing the air completes a dry varnishing job in twenty-four hours that would otherwise require four days or in one week against three weeks by other processes. E. M. Howard, vice-president of the company, who enlisted last year and was commissioned as lieutenant, received his discharge last November and has moved with his family to High Point, where he is giving his personal expert attention to the production of the Eject-O-File. Mr. Howard saw service overseas and returned to his civilian affairs shortly after the armistice was signed.

Mr. Howard reports that the "Cabaola," a cabinet in which a small table model may be placed, giving the appearance of an expensive floor model, is meeting with much success. The cabinet is also equipped with the Eject-O-File filing system.

CHICAGO FIRM TAKES NEW LEASE

The National Phonograph Co., Chicago, Ill., has leased the second and third floors of the three-story building at 1824 to 1834 Albert street. The new space will be used in connection with the main plant on Twelfth street and the rental is said to amount to $21,000.

RAPID STRIDES IN PRODUCTION MADE BY THE VICTOR CO.

John C. Paine, of Victor Co., Addresses Talking Machine Men at Recent Meeting and Tells How the Factory Is Rapidly Getting Back to Normal Output—Officers Nominated for Ensuing Year

A meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., was held on the afternoon of March 19 at the Cafe Boulevard, Broadway and Forty-first street. A luncheon preceded the meeting proper. As special speaker for the occasion the Victor Talking Machine Co., at the invitation of the above association, sent John C. Paine, of their organization, to address the gathering. He was introduced to the members by President J. T. Coughlin through the medium of a few well-chosen remarks.

Mr. Paine opened his remarks in a semi-humorous vein and quickly got on to his subject, telling of his close touch with the trade through recent appearance before the talking machine dealers of Atlanta, Ga.; St. Louis, Mo., as well as Chicago. His subject may properly be termed "A Message of Optimism." He pointed out how the armistice has brought business and new prospects, giving all an opportunity to do the things which we were eagerly waiting to do. "The Victor Co.," said Mr. Paine, "was selected to do war work because the Government saw there an opportunity that could be developed along the lines it required. For instance, the Victor Co. had more kilns than any other company, a wonderful advantage in airplane work. There are no kilns like these in the world and all of the dry kilns in the country if put together would not be greater than the Victor's. The Government took them over. It saw a cabinet factory, the very thing necessary in building air boats, and it took the cabinet factory over. It saw an unsurpassed metal working plant, and it took it over. It saw a toolmaking plant, many of the workers in which were ex-Elgin Watch Co. employes, who were making tools to measurements as fine as $\frac{1}{4}$ of 1/1000 of an inch, and it took it over. The record-pressing plant was the only thing left and from this a number of employes were taken into the army and into shipbuilding plants. Some think that the Victor plant has done more than its share, but Mr. Freeman believes that the Victor Co., having done all that it possibly could, only did what it ought to have done.

Government Uses Victor Recording Experts

"The Victor talking machine plant has been built on an ideal and the heads of the company have always looked forward to one thing, and that is perfection. They have been satisfied with nothing less than that. Nothing takes the place of creating a better talking machine. Scientists and experts in sound recording are constantly at work in a room closed to all but Mr. Johnson and Mr. Haddon. There they labor daily and experiment, so that nothing in the field of sound recording will ever excel what is controlled by the Victor Talking Machine Co. When the Government found out that we had such men it asked for those men for use in locating submarines and air ships. They took our experts and sent them to New London and there they labored and one of our own scientists invented the device which was one of the principal factors in locating and destroying submarines.

"Following the armistice we got rid of war contracts as rapidly as we could, and to-day we are in a position very similar to what we were in March, 1917, at the height of our production. The war hit us before it did the rest of the country. We had built a tremendous cabinet factory. It gave us a floor space which, if put cut in a building 100 feet wide, of the old saw-tooth roof style, would be four and a half miles long. That is the size of the present plant. After we had built this wonderful new plant we had only to equip it, but we could not do it because we could not buy the equipment. We found that the allied governments had contracted away ahead of us, so that we could not buy motors, we could not buy machines, we could not buy steel, and we were never able to put into operation the tremendous plant which we had built. That plant to-day is going into operation.

Capacity of Victor Plant Greater Than Ever

"The maximum production of the Victor plant is a great deal bigger to-day than ever before. We have as many record presses in operation now as were in operation in March, 1917. However, the character of labor is different, for in a majority of cases it is inexperienced. It is not hard to learn a record pressing job, so these workers will soon be experienced and we will soon be able to put out records as in the past. As to machines, by May, and at all events not later than June, we will be able to supply the market with as many machines and records as we ever did in the past. By July we will have reached the maximum production.

"The war has developed a demand on the part of the public that nothing else outside of a world war could have developed. It is not really the high wages that did it. This country faced a problem that nothing else outside of a world war could have solved. We had devoted all of our energies to a materialistic idea. We had been training our boys and girls along vocational lines. We were running astray. We were running away from democracy. Democracy springs from the heart of man, and not from the mind of man, and the war brought us face to face with democracy, and we have been seething with it. The only thing which can preserve the needs of this spirituality is music. The first cultural thing is music, and the talking machine can supply this cultural need quicker and more satisfactorily than anything devised by man.

"That means that the demand which has been created is going to go on and on and on. We are not going back to the old standards of the imperialist. We will cultivate democracy and we are going to become more cultured. I predict a prosperity for the Victor dealer undreamed of in any of his best laid schemes of the past.

The Spirit of Service Is the Big Thing

"I was asked by a dealer, 'Will the Victor Co. feel badly if I take on another line?' I do not think the Victor Co. will; why should they? I am sure that they won't, but the vital question is, will the public be prejudiced against a dealer who is known as a Victor dealer and then offers something else? That is the big thing. The spirit of service is the new method going into effect. Give service in the way of cultivating your customers.

"The Victor Co.," said Mr. Paine, in concluding, "are not going to stop for one instant in creating a demand for Victrolas and for Victor goods. They are going on with their tremendous advertising possibilities to create a demand on the part of the public for Victor goods, and they are going to supply the demand which they are creating. They are going to put the Victor in such a condition that they will be able to supply that demand. You, on your part, will have to meet the public demand in a broader, bigger and better spirit of service than you have ever done before, and a success is yours which you have never dreamed of."

His remarks were received enthusiastically by the dealers and a spirit of optimism seemed to prevail at the close of his remarks. A rising vote of thanks was tendered him and he obliged several of those present by answering their individual questions.

The entertainment committee charged with arranging the annual meeting and banquet to be held at the Pennsylvania Hotel on the evening of April 10 then made their report and showed that plans were arranged to handle the biggest gathering in the history of the organization.

A committee was appointed to devise ways and means to further the passage of the new Stephens bill, which will come up before the next session of Congress. The committee is composed of Irwin Kurtz, E. Leins and Henry Meilke.

Committee Nominates Officers

The nominating committee then reported that officers of the past year were nominated again, with the exception of R. A. Tusting, vice-president for New Jersey, E. P. Perkins being nominated to succeed him. The present officers are J. T. Coughlin, president; Sol Lazarus, vice-president for New York; A. B. Clinton, vice-president for Connecticut; E. G. Brown, secretary, and A. Galuchie, treasurer. The new executive committee will be composed of E. Leins, J. Schick, Albert Ross, William Birdy, John E. Hunt and Henry Epstein.

IMPORTANT NEW REPRESENTATIVES

Established by the New York Album & Card Co. in Chicago and San Francisco

The New York Album & Card Co., New York, manufacturer of "Nyacco" record albums, has appointed Thomas J. Cullen, of the Cullen-Marsh Co., Chicago, Ill., Middle West representative for these products. W. A. Carter, 57 East Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., has been appointed Chicago distributor for "Nyacco" albums, and an intensive sales campaign in this territory is now being formulated.

The New York Album & Card Co. has also appointed Walter S. Gray, Chronicle Building, San Francisco, Cal., Pacific Coast representative for "Nyacco" albums, and Mr. Gray's thorough knowledge of the business situation in this part of the country will undoubtedly enable him to give this album line valuable representation.

Philip Potomack, a brother of N. J. Potomack, vice-president and sales manager of the New York Album & Card Co., has been appointed on the company's traveling staff, covering the East.

NEW "ARTO" RECORDS COMING

Company Organized in Orange, N. J., to Make Records Under New Patents

The Arto Co. has recently been organized for the purpose of manufacturing talking machine records. The factory will be located in Orange, N. J., and will be, in fact, an adjunct to the extensive plant of the Standard Music Roll Co. Ground has already been broken for the new addition. G. Howlett Davis, president of the Standard Music Roll Co., will also be president of the new Arto Co., and Chas. H. Mitchell, a practical man of long experience in the record field, will serve as vice-president and superintendent. The recording factories will be located at 235 West Twenty-third street, New York.

It is understood that the Arto Co. has formulated a decidedly ambitious program, which is rapidly being carried out, and it is expected that the new records will be offered to the trade in the near future. The records will be known under the name of "Arto," and will be devoted exclusively to popular selections. For some time past the research department of the Standard Music Roll Co. has been doing experimenting and developing work with a view to introducing a new record. Mr. Davis, himself an inventor, has been a big factor in the engineering end, and has surrounded himself with a corps of experienced men in record making.

The Arto record will be manufactured under new patents, and it is understood they can be played with equal facility and with excellent results with the sound box in either the vertical or lateral cut position. It will be placed on the market as a universal cut record.

 An Exclusive Feature of
Parr Central Universal Tone Arm

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically. The first scientifically constructed universal tone arm.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm is furnished in any length required and the sound-box can be turned, allowing the needle to be changed with ease, and by a reverse movement the box returns to normal playing position. The needle always rests in the same point, direct center, playing either position.

ANNUAL MEETING OF LINDSAY, LTD.

Prominent Canadian Music House Has Most Prosperous Year—Bonus for Employees—All Directors and Officers Re-elected

MONTREAL, CAN., April 9.—The annual meeting of C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., was held yesterday at the head offices of the company in this city and the reports indicated that the year just passed had been the most prosperous in the history of the company's business. In appreciation of the fact a bonus of 10 per cent. cash was voted to all members of the staff who had been with the company since March 1, 1918, and the usual stock dividends were declared. All the officers were re-elected as follows: C. W. Lindsay, president and general manager; B. A. Edward, secretary, and W. A. H. Robinson, treasurer.

E. C. Boykin, manager of the Edison Shop on Fifth avenue, New York, reports the continuance of the strong demands for the Edison machines. The several new models displayed have achieved instantaneous popularity.

ACTIVE TIMES IN BALTIMORE

Columbia Dealers Meet—Notable Artists Heard During Month—Other News Throughout State

BALTIMORE, MD., April 8.—William S. Parks, manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., reports March as the biggest month's business in the history of the branch.

A big dealers' gathering in the Southern Hotel on Friday, April 11, is planned by Mr. Parks. All Baltimore dealers and as many of the nearby dealers as possible have been invited to attend. Some of the officials of the New York office are expected to come. The sales staff and the various department heads from the local Columbia office will be on hand.

Many Columbia artists visited various sections of the Baltimore territory during the month. Amparita Farrar was in Washington for quite a while and helped in boosting the sale of records. Harry C. Grove, who has a Columbia headquarters at 1210 G street, Washington, and who for some time has been using only the first floor of the building, has now leased the entire three-story building. The second floor will be used especially to display all models of Columbia, with a special setting for the period design Grafonolas.

The Columbia Co., Norfolk, Va., is just now making extensive improvements in its place, and is installing ten Van Veen Co. booths. The Columbia Furniture Co., Southern Furniture Co., and James Cowen, all of Richmond, are also installing the Van Veen type of booths, as are GUSDORF & JOSEPH, of Baltimore.

Mr. Parks announces that the national advertising of the Columbia has been extended to Raleigh, N. C., and that dealers in sixteen surrounding towns have come in on the co-operating plan and are using entire pages.

Oscar Siegel and Barbara Muriel were in Pulaski, Va., on March 26. Charles Harrison and the Steller Quartet were in Winchester and Roanoke, Va., during the month.

SONORA SIGN IN SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 5.—Apparently desiring to go New York one better when it comes to Sonora advertising, the Sonora Phonograph Shop, at 109 Stockton street, this city, has had placed in a splendid location in their city a billboard, which is one of many and which for attractiveness would be exceedingly hard to surpass.

Striking Sonora Sign in San Francisco

The artistic columns shown thereon are splendid pieces of architectural decoration and would do credit to many a marble edifice in Chicago or New York. The coloring of this outdoor publicity is superb and the design is marked by a restraint and simplicity which make it a gem.

This advertising has created no end of favorable comment in San Francisco and furnishes an example of outdoor advertising which, if it were followed generally, would make this form of publicity a subject of general commendation from the public.

TYPES OF PEOPLE WE ALL KNOW

A Record Expert, Incognito, Gives Some of His Views on Different Kinds of Record Buyers—The Last One Is the Best

The spirit of spring was upon the man who was known in the busy world of industry as the record expert. He leaned back in his chair and gave expression to the result of his musings. His thoughts had to do with the musical taste of record buyers and he gave his verdict to the expectant ears of those who looked upon his word as law. It was indeed an unusual happening, for he said that record buyers were divided into two classes—those who liked "The Rosary" and those who did not.

As his hearers pressed around him, plying him with many questions, he became more confidential and told how the various types of enthusiasts may be known and classified. The salesman must become a tailor of the mind, a mental measurer, who can tell by such subtle means as the hem of a handkerchief just what sort of a selection his customer is about to call for, whether it be an aria or a purple "blues."

But the game of judging human idiosyncrasies is by no means subject to hard and fast rules, for how could one tell that a certain operatic star never bought any but ragtime pieces and selections which he himself had made? The very uncertainty of the game makes the successful man more worthy of commendation.

Then, wandering a bit from his subject, the loquacious expert told about the connoisseur of the Diogenes type, who is ever on the search for the perfect record. He must have a full dozen copies of a record played, listening to each one with an ear attuned to the music of the spheres, until he at last finds the one without a flaw.

As a counterpart of the tired business man we have the weary woman shopper, too often of a type super-robust and too heavily laden with numerous bundles, who, when she sights a demonstration booth, lays her course for an easy chair and demands to hear some music that is restful and nice. No doubt the sentimental melodies of Ethelbert Nevin were inspired by such scenes as these.

The expert was getting pessimistic when the sun passed behind a cloud and he saw the eternal silver lining. He brightened into a smile and spoke of the saving grace of the occasional customer who adores all the selections played by the weary salesman and takes them to a distant land where she cannot bring them back to be exchanged. Such a happening is always the brightening touch and makes the perfect end of an otherwise harrowing day.

THE PLAYER-PIANO PHONOGRAPH

A. W. Johnston, vice-president of the Standard Pneumatic Action Co., Fifty-second street and Twelfth avenue, New York, has announced that they are now ready to market a player action and talking machine combined. The mechanism for the talking machine is to be placed alongside the spool box of the player action, while the tone chamber will be directly through the spool box. The new instrument is to be known as the Player-Piano Phonograph.

W. BRUNNER WITH COLUMBIA CO.

Lambert Friedl, manager of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Co., has appointed Walter Brunner a member of the company's traveling staff. Mr. Brunner, who has been associated with the local Columbia branch for a number of years, will visit the dealers in North Brooklyn territory, and his intimate familiarity with the problems confronting the dealers will undoubtedly enable him to give his clientele practical co-operation and service.

FILES SCHEDULES IN BANKRUPTCY

Leonard Markels, manufacturer of phonograph motors, formerly located at 165 William street, filed schedules of bankruptcy on Wednesday showing liabilities of $76,352 and assets consisting of stock and accounts, amount not stated, turned over to the assignee. At a meeting of creditors held at the offices of Peter B. Olney, referee in bankruptcy, Marcus Helfand was elected trustee with a bond of $10,000.

PURCHASES NEW BUILDING

BOSTON, MASS., April 7.—Frank B. Curry, manufacturer of the Curry "Soundproof" demonstration booths and record cases, has purchased the entire building at 72-74 East Dedham street. Manufacturing facilities will be greatly increased and occupation of the new factory will probably take place, it is expected, about June 1 of this year.

TAKES CHARGE IN PHILADELPHIA

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced on Thursday the appointment of N. J. Wilcox as manager of the Columbia branch at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Wilcox, who is a newcomer in the phonograph industry, succeeds A. J. Heath, who resigned with the regrets of the Columbia Co. in order to open an exclusive Columbia retail establishment, the location of which will be announced as soon as plans under consideration are perfected.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF TALKING MACHINE MEN A SUCCESS

Affair at Hotel Pennsylvania on Thursday Evening, April 10, Proves a Great Social Event—
Ernest John, George W. Hopkins, J. R. Young and Jas. T. Coughlin Speak

The annual banquet of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., held in the grand ballroom of the new Hotel Pennsylvania on Thursday evening, April 10, was an unqualified social success, and from that viewpoint was one of the most elaborate affairs held in the history of the association, with approximately 400 members of the trade and their friends and ladies numbered among those present.

The committee had announced that there would be plenty of dancing, and this served to attract a host of young people who did not wait until the dinner was over to exhibit their new steps, but filled in the time between courses dancing in the liberal space left in the middle of the ballroom for that purpose. Various singers also entertained while the dinner proper was in progress, and at its conclusion John E. Hunt, ex-president of the association, introduced the present incumbent of the president's chair, James T. Coughlin, as toastmaster.

President Coughlin Talks on "Co-operation"

Mr. Coughlin, who is a deep student, took occasion in his opening address to emphasize the desirability for co-operation in the trade as a patriotic duty to the country. Mr. Coughlin declared that patriotism was not alone necessary in times of war, but was equally essential during the period of peace when it meant giving to the country what was needed when it was needed. He developed his talk into a strong appeal for support for the forthcoming Victory Liberty Loan, and explained to the talking machine men present the necessity for raising money to bring the soldiers back from France and to take care of and clean up the war obligations of the nation.

Ernest John Tells of War's Lessons

The first speaker introduced by Mr. Coughlin was Ernest John, manager of the advertising department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. Mr. John, after stating that the most welcome news to the dealer would be to the effect that he would get all the goods needed, although just now such news would be fiction, declared that the Victor Co. was putting forth its best efforts to increase the factory output, and that those familiar with the size and efficiency of the Victor Co. would be alive to what that meant.

The speaker took occasion to point out that even wartime handicaps had their lesson, for conditions during the past couple of years had done much to modify the views of dealers as to the salability or unsalability of Red Seal records. He told of an experiment in exploiting little known and apparently slow-selling records so successfully that 65 per cent. of a dealer's stock of such records was moved with little delay. He declared that the handling of Red Seal business did not require a technical knowledge, but simply sense enough to draw parallels between customers, and to divide the appeal for various forms of music, giving sentimental ballads, for instance, to the people who liked such things.

Red Seal records, stated Mr. John, had made the business what it is, for through them the musical people in every community came to give approval to the talking machine as an art instrument. Mr. John also had some interesting comments to make regarding the record supplements, what they were intended to accomplish in the matter of business building, and how they should be distributed to obtain the greatest effect. He issued a special warning against duplication in distribution, as diminishing the value of the publicity.

J. R. Young Speaks on "Service"

The next speaker was J. R. Young, of the Convention Bureau of the Merchants' Association of New York, who had for his subject "Service," and handled that subject along broad and interesting lines.

Geo. W. Hopkins' Live Address

The final speaker was George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., who added to his already wide reputation as a speaker on business matters. Mr. Hopkins, who had been in Canada, came directly from the train to the dining hall while the banquet was in progress, in order to keep his engagement with the talking machine men.

In opening his address Mr. Hopkins declared the first essential of business was service, and that service, in fact, was of prime importance in everyday life, to such an extent that even the officers of the new army were called upon to sell service to the United States Government. He declared that the latest idea in business was that of self-service—a plan that could be and, as a matter of fact, had been adopted most successfully in the talking machine trade. He said that simply hanging slow-selling records on nails where the customers could see them had resulted in sales, and that this method followed by one dealer with sixteen demonstrating booths had resulted in the sale of five records per booth per day.

Mr. Hopkins made a strong plea for salesmanship, and declared that the popular hits of the day, such as "Smiles," did not have to be sold or even played, the customer coming in with a well-defined idea of what was wanted. The dealer's duty in such a case was to bring out a second record, not quite so popular, and use a little salesmanship in selling that second record to the customer, thus increasing each sale at least 100 per cent.

The speaker offered some interesting and practical selling hints, calling attention to such little details as the proper method of winding the motor with a wrist movement, the supplying of paper patterns to prospects so they could determine where the machine might be placed to advantage in the home, and the classification of prospects. He declared that the appeal should always be along simple lines, for that method gets the most direct results. He urged that dealers follow natural channels in selling their goods, thereby reducing the sales resistance to a minimum.

He told of the wisdom of the Government in putting over the War Savings Stamps drive by appealing directly to the children on the popular quarter basis, and why the plan had been so successful. Mr. Hopkins' address was dis-tingly practical and gave the talking machine men advice that could be utilized in their business, and in closing declared that genuine salesmanship was lacking to a great degree in the retail trade and the deficiency should not be overlooked. He said that many dealers with large businesses had not developed on sound lines, but had simply swelled up through circumstances. Grow up, but don't swell up, was Mr. Hopkins' final warning.

Just a Little Jazz

At the conclusion of the speaking the general program of entertainment was again taken up. There was plenty of dancing to the accompaniment of the Van Eps Quintet, and at intervals prominent talking machine artists, including Henry Burr, Arthur Field, Munro Silver, J. Victor Arden, Billy Murray, Teddy Morse, Miss Marion Harris, Miss Jean McCarthy and the Van Eps Trio, sang or played for the edification of the guests.

Special credit must be given to all members of the committees for the complete success of their efforts, and to J. J. Davin particularly is due much commendation for the elaborate character of the entertainment provided. Various other details connected with the affair were handled by Sol Lazarus, A. Galuchie, John E. Hunt and E. Leins in a most commendable way.

A Real Surprise

One of the surprises of the evening was the offering of an idea as to the manner in which the drought could be avoided after July 1. At the conclusion of one of the songs referring to that subject a big Victrola was rolled out, and when the doors were opened there were revealed boxes of cigars in the tone chamber, and several bottles of first-class liquor in the place where the records ought to be. If some one will only invent records that may be dissolved in water to make booze after their musical value has gone the idea will be complete.

OPENS STORE IN REDLANDS, CAL.

The Mattson Bros. Music Co. has opened in Redlands, Cal., in the Deming Building, which has been leased by V. H. and R. M. Mattson. A full line of talking machines and musical merchandise will be carried in this new store.

The Grafonola Shops, Inc., a Massachusetts corporation, is now qualified to do business in Indiana. $500,000 of its capital stock is represented in that State, and Walter G. Wilson, of Indianapolis, is named as agent.

INAUGURATE ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

Emerson Phonograph Co. Arranges for a Large Space in the Leading Newspapers in Various Parts of the Country—Advertising Campaign Is Cleverly Conceived and Highly Praised

The Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, has announced one of the most extensive and far-reaching newspaper advertising campaigns that has been launched in talking machine circles for some time past.

According to the schedule outlined by the company's advertising counselors, large space will be used twice a week, column space twice a week, and artistic seven-inch cards the other days of the week.

The column advertisements are exceptionally praiseworthy, featuring a unique method of listing various records with a border of music notes that is both timely and attractive.

Emerson list. The reproduction of these cards in the advertisement of the Emerson Record Sales Co. in this issue will give some idea of the distinctive nature of this advertising.

This continuous advertising campaign has been announced to Emerson dealers in the cities mentioned, and the company has already received hundreds of congratulatory letters from its representatives, who are delighted with this practical form of co-operation and assistance.

PATHE RECORDS BY EUROPE'S BAND

Great Military Organization of Artists That Won Fame Throughout France During the War to Make Pathé Records Exclusively

An announcement of unusual interest was made this week by the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. to the effect that Lieut. Jim Europe's Military Jazz Band has been engaged to make records exclusively for the Pathé library. A and they fairly went "over the top" to jazz time. This famous band played on the Champagne front, where their regiment held a sector as one of the combating units of the glorious Fourth French Army under General Gourand. Here they jazzed every day for our men and for the French sick and wounded in all the hospitals. This band found its way into the very hearts of the French people, and it has made the American jazz the favorite music of France.

These famous "hell fighters" of Jim Europe have returned and are now touring the country. They are being received everywhere with tremendous popularity, and Jim Europe is to-day without doubt the leading exponent of jazz music. Before the war he was the most popular conductor of New York's favorite dance orchestra, and he is adding to his prestige and success day by day.

The solo artists of this great band are remarkable. Lieut. Noble Sisson is a tenor who has won international recognition, and sings Southern songs the way they should be sung. The Singing Serenaders, the famous double quartet in this band, harmonizes in a way which has won unqualified approval. The novelty selections of this band are unusual, and the boys produce results different from anything that has ever been done before. The Percussion Twins are wizards with the drums, and Al Jolson, who sings popular ballads, is known as the "colored Jack Norworth."

Roy A. Burr has opened a new music and talking machine store in Eastport, Me.

W. S. GRAY'S REMARKABLE PROGRESS

Pacific Coast Jobber in Talking Machine Accessories Has Built Up a Great Business

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 3.—The members of the Pacific Coast talking machine trade are taking a keen interest in the remarkable progress being made by Walter S. Gray, who handles a complete line of talking machine accessories in the Chronicle Building, this city. Mr. Gray's achievements are little short of phenomenal, for, starting eighteen months ago with practically nothing at all, he has developed an accessory business that is probably as large if not larger than that of any similar distributor in the country.

During the past few months Mr. Gray has secured the agency for a number of well-known products in the talking machine trade, and month after month he has announced something new to the talking machine dealers. He never includes these accessories in his line until he is certain that they will give satisfaction, and a goodly portion of his success may be attributed to the care and consideration that he bestows upon the requirements of his clientele.

Mr. Gray has also devoted a considerable part of his time to the educational advancement of the talking machine business, and in many instances has taken the trouble to show the dealer by actual figures how an accessory department can be developed into one of the most profitable departments in the dealer's establishment. In fact, Mr. Gray has received many letters from well-known talking machine dealers along the Pacific Coast thanking him for the suggestions he has given them, which have enabled them to increase their business many times over through the installation of an up-to-date accessory department.

"Trade News Service," published monthly by I. Davega, Jr., Inc., in the interest of the Victor dealer, made its initial appearance in April.

Lieut. Europe's Military Jazz Band

number of new jazz selections and popular and instrumental vocal hits will be released this month.

There is no doubt that the snappy melodies of Lieut. Jim Europe's Military Jazz Band played an important part in the allied victory. Music—particularly Jim Europe's jazz—kept up the morale of the boys at the front and cheered them into the fight.

Jim Europe and his "hell fighting" veterans played for the boys in the front line trenches,

Matters of Importance to the Industry Discussed at Extraordinary Meeting of Gramophone Association—Import Question a Leading One—Government Views on Protection—Records of Jazz Music Win Favor—British Motor Manufacturers Enter Field on Big Scale—New Record Lists—Revised Gramophone Price Lists—Ex-Soldiers Returning to Trade—British Industries Fair Coming

LONDON, ENGLAND, March 29.—The recent extraordinary general meeting of the Gramophone Association, reported elsewhere in this section, was the outcome of a desire to ascertain the opinion of the trade as to the advisability or otherwise of maintaining (a) the present system of official control by license, (b) the import duty on musical instrument goods of 33½ per cent. It is a point worthy of interest that the officials of the association, supported by a few members, rather leaned towards a continuance of Governmental license control and the maintenance of the tariff on the ground that, apart from the possibility of dumping, neutral manufacturers of small musical instruments and parts thereof were in an established position favorable to an increase of exports to Great Britain, which, of course, would place at a great disadvantage British firms who had been unable to organize for this class of output, owing to war work. The great need therefore is to retain the present system as likely to afford the strongest possible means for their protection. The significance of this standpoint is apparent in the light of recent disclosures that certain British undertakings are under way for the manufacture of motors, tone arms and other similar lines for which hitherto we have been mainly dependent upon imports. Again, one or two British houses made a successful effort during the war period to supply small lines, particularly in connection with gramophones, and other firms desirous of resuscitating their pre-war plans naturally demand at this stage the fullest protection. That is reasonable enough. But, on the other hand, the maintenance of license control as at present absolutely excludes from participation in the business all those who did not directly in their own name import musical instrument goods and parts before the establishment of the license system. A strong claim was made for the out and out removal of all control, it being contended that the tariff alone would be sufficient protection for British manufacturing interests. Incidentally it was inferred by one prominent trader at the meeting in question that if necessary prices could be reduced, as on motors alone a profit had been made of 30 per cent.!

On voting, a majority of members present were in favor of recommendation being made in official quarters to cancel licenses altogether and maintain the tariff at a minimum of 33 1-3 per cent.

The Government's Fiscal Policy

At the time of the foregoing meeting the precise attitude of the Government as to fiscal trade policy was in considerable doubt. This has now been made known officially in Parliament. The principle upon which the Government proposes to act will hurt the feelings of ardent free-traders, but we think will produce a feeling of relief among all directly interested or who are out to encourage the re-establishment of British industries. It is planned to abolish all import restrictions on goods coming from any part of the Empire, on raw materials for British industry—unless otherwise by special consent—that semi-manufactured articles shall be admitted free of tariff except in cases where they are produced by industries which it is necessary to foster in Great Britain, and that the present restrictions on manufactured articles shall be continued until September 1, when the matter will be reconsidered from the viewpoint of British trade interests.

It will be realized that the Government is alive to the necessity of affording protection from foreign competition to British industries in the course of re-establishment or which had been encouraged to extend in consequence of being unable to import as a direct result of the war. Protection for a time, at any rate, as against control is the keynote of free expansion. This official statement may therefore be accepted in the light of a guarantee, and should go far to remove the great amount of uncertainty which has for so long exercised the business community. There can be little doubt that the views will produce a measure of keen satisfaction, but a word of warning may not be out of place. As in all things official, the present pronouncement is a wee bit obscure in its language, and of course is open to opinionated interpretation. What is meant, for instance, by "semi-manufactured articles," and further, will the position of the British musical industry be officially regarded as, in the language used, "essential to foster in this country?" The trade will, of course, answer in the affirmative. With that we agree. But at the same time the question requires clearing up, and, leaving the matter for a considered judgment, we may at this stage rest assured that the association's committee will not overlook it. The Board of Trade, by the way, expects to issue the actual list of restrictions which are to be maintained, about the end of March.

Free Empire Imports

SINCE WRITING THE ABOVE I AM OFFICIALLY ADVISED THAT THE BOARD OF TRADE HAS ISSUED A GENERAL LICENSE TO THE CUSTOMS PERMITTING THE FREE IMPORTATION OF ALL ARTICLES ON THE LIST OF PROHIBITED IMPORTS WHEN EXPORTED FROM AND ARE THE PRODUCT OR MANUFACTURE OF ANY PART OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

SIMILAR INSTRUCTIONS HAVE BEEN ISSUED IN RESPECT OF THE IMPORTATION OF RAW MATERIALS FROM ANY SOURCE.

"Winner" Jazz Band Records

The various gramophone record companies are fully alive to the new jazz band and jazz dancing craze, and among those to cater to it the Winner is well to the fore. A further big list is in course of preparation, and these selections will doubtless be ready for detailed mention in my next report. Some good stuff is promised, and it would be as well if oversea dealers interested place themselves immediately in communication with this firm in order to secure early particulars of the records available.

Another Motor Manufacturing Concern

Freedom from foreign domination is today the battlecry of the British gramophone trade. In common with other sections of the gramophone press, your correspondent has afforded facilities of publication to those interested in the establishment of British manufacture. The object has in part been achieved, for I am able this month to announce the plans of two new companies incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing British mechanisms. One is styled British Gramophone Motors, Ltd., reported elsewhere, and the other—Gramophone Components, Ltd., with which concern this short article mainly deals. Capital, £10,450; subscribers: Frank Samuel, 70 Finchley Road N. W.; Alexander John Stravridi, 68 Oxford Gardens W., the first directors being, in addition to these two gentlemen, Constantine Craies, Wilfred Sampson, Samuel and Albert Frederick Paillard.

The plans and policy of the company were outlined by Mr. Frank Samuel. He said: "I welcome and appreciate your desire to offer the readers of The World some details of the interesting and, I venture to say, unique manufacturing service which is in course of development. What present information I can give is freely at your disposal, if only for the reason that our prospective patrons should know we will be able to produce in time for next season's trade, given that our plans mature, as they have every prospect of doing. We are in negotiation for a suitable factory, where every part of the motors will be made. It should be understood that there is no question of being merely 'assemblers'; we intend actually to manufacture in a British factory, and this without qualification. Our present arrangements provide for an output of four different models—single and double spring, embodying, of course, the best worm-gear drive principle of construction. We are installing an up-to-date plant, which, by the way, is already bought, capable of handling an annual output in the neighborhood of 100,000 complete sets—motor, tone-arm, sound box, turntable, etc.

"Our policy is based upon a broad outlook, and as soon as our production permits we hope to supply the demands of the general trade without restriction."

The foregoing outline of the plans and policy of this new British motor manufacturing concern is particularly encouraging to those of us who had almost despaired of the prospect of combating foreign sales in our home and colonial markets.

Zonophone New Issues

Appropriate to the dancing season are recent Zono issues of suitable selections of a terpsichorean nature, not omitting, of course, the famous jazz. All England is paying homage to the art, and great in consequence is the profit of the dealer. Sales of dance records are phenomenally good, as also may be said generally of Zonophone issues. One in particular, called the "Grand Peace Record," has created quite a furore. It portrays with remarkable fidelity the arrival of the troops in London and the Royal Review. The record is really a marvelous piece of staging, more people having contributed to the recording and making thereof than in any similar kind of record, we should think. Prior to the whistle announcing the arrival of the troop train there is a vivid presentation of the noise and hubbub and witty remarks peculiar to a great crowd of people in waiting, and as the troops form up at the word of command there breaks out a roar of cheers in welcome acclamation of the brave lads who have carried the flag to victory. See, the Conquering Hero Comes, and other suitable items are played by a good band, the waiting crowd also contributing various vocal efforts—Tipperary, When Tommy Comes Marching Home, Home, Sweet Home, etc.

The Royal Review then opens up with similar effects, a fine band rendition of God Save the King announcing His Majesty's arrival on the parade ground. Then, as the allied contingents pass by, the various national anthems are played in turn, Rule Britannia being the grand finale. It is certainly a most "natural" presentation of a natural event, and we think is the finest descriptive record of its kind yet published. In every way the company may honestly be congratulated upon the production of a record acceptable to all gramophonists.

The Gramophone Industry Victory Fund

As mentioned in our last issue, a Trade Victory Fund has been inaugurated as an expression of sympathy with and some little acknowledgment of the services of those brave men who have in the war suffered the loss of vision. The future of these men, though severely handicapped, must be made as pleasant and useful as possible. To this end the Gramophone Industry will materially assist by providing the necessary means of tuition in order that each sufferer may learn a particular trade, and thus assure unto himself an independent living free from the taint of charity. That is the object of the fund. The amount necessary is estimated at £10,000. Already subscriptions to the value of well over £4,000 have been registered. The amount which it is hoped to secure will be applied to the establishment of a special section at Sir Arthur Pearson's institution for blind soldiers, St. Dunstan's Home. The section would bear a name identifying it with the Gramophone Industry. Sir George Croydon Marks, M. P., has consented to act as honorable treasurer, and subscriptions may be sent to him at 57 Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, W. C. 2. He gives twice who gives quickly!

The First Reliable British Gramophone Motor

Under the style of "British Gramophone Motors, Ltd.," there has come into existence a new company, capitalized to the extent of £20,000, whose business it is to fill the proverbial long felt want by marketing an all-British gramophone mechanism. Notwithstanding that pre-war foreign imports of gramophone motors amounted to something over half a million annually, no serious attempt was ever made to establish a manufacturing industry in this country apart from an endeavor made by Messrs. Spratt Bros., at Walthamstow, which, however, eventually succumbed to foreign competition. We have at last got a real progressive organization in the shape of this new concern, determined that our future mechanical music shall be delivered as much as possible by British motive power.

The company at their Ludgate Hill offices stated that manufacture has reached a stage which permits deliveries being promised early in April, if not before. "There will be two types—single and double 7/8-inch spring, the construction being on the worm-gear principle. We have in our Putney works," stated Mr. Carter, one of the managing directors, "an organization fully equipped with appropriate plant which will eventually enable us to manufacture every part of our motors, with the exception of the mainsprings, which, being a skilled specialization, we do not care to touch at the moment. While it is our intention to firstly concentrate upon satisfying the requirements of the home market, we hope eventually to develop trade abroad that will render the British colonial buyer, at any rate, independent of continental supplies."

Manufacturers, assemblers and wholesale dealers are out to support British endeavor. In this case it can be encouraged by the knowledge that a reliable British motor is now obtainable. The right men are behind the enterprise, men of practical experience and knowledge, who know and appreciate the importance of the task they have undertaken. Signor Giuseppe Gidino, a man who has had a large practical experience in the trade, is in charge of the British Gramophone Works. Under his management we are assured of high-grade output only.

Revised Prices for Gramophone Goods

Since the armistice a few reductions have been made in the prices of certain gramophone lines—machines, needles and records. If this was the result of a corresponding revision in the cost of materials, labor, etc., it would be fully justified, and at the same time might be accepted as a welcome augury of better things in prospect. But such a view has little or no foundation in fact, for, except perhaps in one or two minor cases, no general price reduction has, or can be, made, owing to the demands of labor for the maintenance of war-level wages; and to the impossibility of obtaining any substantial relief in the cost of materials until the transport and general commercial services of the world resume a more favorable position. It is therefore to be feared that any revision of prices for gramophone goods, especially in regard to machines and records, can only be justified by a possible saving of economy in other directions, or as an advertisement attraction. In any case, it must be as welcome to the dealer as to everybody concerned. Given an improvement in general conditions, present profits will allow of competitive action, and there is nothing like competition to level up on selling values. Enterprising firms will take action along these lines as soon as conditions permit. In this respect one of the first is Messrs. W. H. Reynolds, Ltd., who have reduced the prices of some of their instruments by as much as 12½ per cent. It's a good example, which we hope soon to see others emulate.

"His Master's Voice" Dance Music

A doubtful vote of thanks is due to Uncle Sam for the introduction of the jazz. We have heard the American Jazz Band; we see everywhere that nothing is a success unless it incorporates at least an element of this amazing craze for jazzing. It seems to grip old and young alike. A staid editor of a London music paper is even said to have astonished the office boy by turning the editorial sanctum into a jazz room, where he practiced the noble art as a relief from his ordinary duties. Doubtless he possessed one of the famous jazz charts issued by the Herman Darewski Publishing Co., and now comes an announcement by the Gramophone Co., Ltd., of a fine new list of dance records, "all suitable for jazzing." There are records of waltzes, fox-trots, two-step, one-step, all the latest dance numbers, by the Coldstream Guards Band; also some dancing hits from the latest London shows—"Us" and "Hullo, America," by the Savoy Quartet.

In connection with this dance issue a splendid color-poster suitable for shop or window display is available, "H. M. V." dealers having already received a copy. Special jazz blocks for dealers' advertisements have also been prepared, and altogether the company has made a splendid effort to provide suitable material to enable their dealers adequately to satisfy this jazzing demand.

Exclusive records go to make the March general supplement. Among these issues are items by the new Polish Premier, Paderewski; Alma Gluck, Kirkby Lunn, John Harrison, Cedric Sharpe, Marjorie Hayward, Marie Hall, Mark Hambourg's Trio, etc., a wonderful galaxy of talent which serves to associate mechanical music as closely as in its present form it can possibly get to the real thing. Indeed, the difference is in fact infinitesimal.

Notes by the Way

At Barnett Samuel & Sons, Ltd., recently I met Wilfred Samuel, who is back in civilian harness again after a battle experience on several of the British war fronts. He looks none the worse for his many exciting adventures through which he has been fortunate enough to pass without injury. Good luck to him!

I am glad to learn that Mr. Herbert Ridout, the ad genius of the Columbia Co., is again at his desk after a successful bout with that enemy, the flu.

Louis Young has also been compelled to take a few weeks' rest in the country. Feeling all the better for the change, he is now back at the office, and a little bird whispers that things will shortly hum at the new Helmet Row factory.

Remarkable though it may be, I learn from the Winner Record Co. that there is still a goodly demand for such records as carols, descriptives, as for instance, one issued in commemoration of the Titanic steamship disaster, "The Other Department, Please," and similar hits of five or more years ago. There were over one thousand of the Titanic records on order at the time of my visit to the Winner factory. Astonishing!

The Sound Recording Co. advise that they are overcoming production difficulties as a result of the return of many of their old hands; they are in a position to satisfactorily meet increasing trade requirements. A comprehensive list of new, up-to-date numbers of the "Popular" records is now ready.

I learn that A. Balcombe, 61 City Road, London, has received offers from the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., for the representation of their interests on this side. Upon the relaxation of shipping, import and other official restrictions, which may not be long in coming, Mr. Balcombe may definitely take care of the Heineman agency in all its varied activities—a big thing, to be sure. The matter is still under negotiation, so that a definite announcement cannot be made at present.

The continued big demand for "His Master's Voice" opera in English records has prompted the company to publish a special list of the series from their main catalog. It is a timely reminder, in view of recent far-reaching proposals, for the revival of operatic performances in London. This "H. M. V." grand opera in English program has been steadily built up during the past few years, until to-day it is far and away the most comprehensive and popular series produced, embracing most of the standard works recorded by leading British artists. Thus is the gramophonic art elevated to the level of all that is best in music.

Another "H. M. V." list itemizes London's greatest musical successes—revues and such like.

Foreign postage is soon likely to cost us more. It is proposed to charge 4d instead of 2½d for letters and 1½d against 1d for postcards. The latter is not unreasonable, though the increased rate for letters will not be welcomed. The new rates may conceivably be uniform for all foreign countries, if passed, as the proposition emanates from the International Bureau at Berne of the Universal Postal Union.

The British Industries Fair

This year's fair was undoubtedly a magnificent representation of the arts and crafts of Great Britain. The exhibits largely outnumbered any similar show, and all reports go to prove that visitors attended in abnormal numbers. Every effort was made by the Board of Trade, under whose auspices the fair was held, to provide an efficient service in regard to information re development of export trade, conditions in foreign countries, tariff rates, import and export values, etc., but, it must be admitted, there is much room for improvement in the classifying of data. The Music Industry was again officially excluded owing to lack of space. Two firms managed to obtain special permission to exhibit. Messrs. Harper & Co. made a display of leather and American cloth music cases, in which business was fairly brisk, though not up to expectations. On the other hand, good orders were secured by the Disque Cabinet Co., Ltd., for their range of gramophone record filing cabinets, the construction and special features of which are unique. As a commercial proposition, record filing systems offer unlimited sales scope, if properly developed through the usual retail channel. It has never been a great feature of the trade on this side, and that is all the more reason why this prospectively good branch of the industry should be encouraged.

For the rest, the British Industries Fair was of no special interest to the trade, except it be to stimulate a desire that musical instruments should be given "a place in the sun."

WILL MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The business formerly conducted under the name of the Cabinet & Accessories Sales Co. has been incorporated under the name of the Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., with Otto Goldsmith as president, and M. Goldsmith, secretary. Mr. Goldsmith reports that the volume of business transacted is increasing at a remarkable rate, and that the initial ad appearing in The World last month brought inquiries from practically every State in the country. Their present quarters are already proving inadequate, and on May 1 they will move to 145 East Thirty-fourth street, where they will have about ten times their present facilities. Mr. Goldsmith, accompanied by his daughter, who is secretary of the company, attended the dinner of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., and presented all who were there with an attractive novelty in the shape of a pocket nail file.

A. Bushnell & Co., Watertown, N. Y., recently opened a new Pathé department in their store. In celebration of the event an all day concert was held and the public was invited.

EDISON JOBBERS VERY BUSY

Harger & Blish Issue Report Showing Thriving Condition of Business in Their Territory.

DES MOINES, IA., April 1.—Harger & Blish, Edison jobbers of this city, have been doing an excellent business in the Edison line with a clientele of dealers scattered over a very wide area. They recently made a compilation of reports from some of their dealers, a compilation showing without exception that every dealer on their list was jubilant over the present demand for the Edison line. An idea of the wide area being covered by the Harger & Blish concern will be obtained from the following partial list of dealers mentioned in the compilation referred to above: M. E. Daniels, Milo, Ia.; W. H. Worley, Nodaway, Ia.; C. R. Quade, Ames, Ia.; F. E. Miller Drug Co., Kimball, So. Dak.; Paule Jewelry Co., Burlington, Ia.; Reinemund & Co., Muscatine, Ia.; the Killian Co., Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Roy Alexander, Montezuma, Ia.; W. P. McIntire & Son, Rolfe, Ia.; J. S. Wilkins, New Hampton, Ia.; F. M. Cooper & Son, Woodward, Ia.; E. W. Coburn & Son, Waterloo, Ia.; Shroyer Music House, Bethany, Mo.; Gooding Bros., Bedford, Ia.; J. F. Shuet, Jefferson, Ia.; Mueller Music House, Elkport, Ia.; W. J. Julius, Pomeroy, Ia., and J. B. Holsey, Veblen, So. Dak.

The messages from these dealers, optimistic in every sense, contain many interesting statements regarding individual sales, showing not only the increasing demand for the Edison line in their localities, but also showing that each one of the dealers was live and progressive in his method of going after and consummating sales.

St. Louis, Mo., April 2.—The Columbia dealers of this city and a number from out of town gathered at the Hotel Statler recently for a "talk-it-over" dinner. Manager Roose, of the local branch, presided and talked to those present on Columbia prospects, company plans and what the dealers could expect and what was expected of them. Ed S. Lebens, of the Post-Dispatch staff, talked on advertising. Mr. Lebens handles most of the advertising for the musical instrument dealers for his newspaper and gave some practical ideas as to what to advertise, when and how.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—SOUND BOX AND TONE ARM CONNECTOR.—Charles F. A. Sturts, San Francisco, Cal. Patent No. 1,291,239.

This invention relates to a sound box and tone arm connector for talking machines. One of the objects of the present invention is to provide a co-operating interlocking connection for securing sound boxes, which are used in connection with talking machines, to the tone arm or swinging neck thereof in such a manner that the sound box may be quickly and securely locked on the neck and as readily removed.

Another object of the invention is to provide a connection which preserves the vibrations peculiar to articulate speech and musical sounds and to a large extent excludes metallic and discordant sounds produced by metallic connections, this being produced in the present instance by interposing a rubber gasket and a split ring between the sound box and the tone arm which serve as an insulator and also permit tightening of the joint when the connection is made.

Figure 1 is a plan view, partly broken away and partly in section, showing the connection formed between the tone arm and the sound

box. Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the split ring. Fig. 3 is a side elevation, showing the rear side of the tone box and the connection between the tone arm and the sound box.

REPRODUCER.—Charles F. A. Sturts, San Francisco, Cal. Patent No. 1,291,238.

This invention relates to a reproducer for recording or transmitting articulate and musical sound vibrations from the record of a talking machine. One of the objects of the invention is to produce and preserve the vibrations peculiar to articulate speech and musical sounds to the exclusion of metallic and discordant sounds produced by scratching or frictional effects in phonographs, and particularly to produce a softer, purer and more natural tone than has heretofore been possible. Another object of the invention is to provide a novel mounting for the needle holder and the stylus bar, and also a construction which permits the reproducer to be used either on a vertically cut record or a lateral cut record.

section on line 3—3 of Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a rear view of the reproducer. Fig. 5 is a bottom view of the same. Fig. 6 is a side elevation of the stylus holder. Fig. 7 is a plan view of the bearing plate. Fig. 8 is a perspective view of the stylus arm.

TALKING MACHINE.—Max Krauss, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,291,027.

This invention has for its primary object the construction of a machine in which a plurality of records, either single or double-faced, and of any desired diameter, can be set up, and any one of them, at the selection of the operator, be played.

This invention embodies improvements upon a talking machine invented and patented by Mr. Krauss under United States Letters Patent, No. 1,199,192, dated September 26, 1916, and its object is to enable one to remove any one of the discs without being under the necessity of removing a given number or assemblage of them. The present machine, moreover, is adapted for use with any form of sound box.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 represents in top plan so much of a talking machine embodying the invention as is necessary to illustrate it. Fig. 2 represents in side sectional elevation on the dotted line 2—2 of Fig. 1, the machine of Fig. 1, certain of its component instrumentalities being shown in side elevation. Fig. 3 is a fragmentary side view upon an enlarged scale of one group of records partly in section and partly in elevation, the sight being taken on the dotted line 3—3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a fragmentary end elevation on the line 4—4 of Fig. 2; and Fig. 5 is a fragmentary side view of a modification.

PHONOGRAPH ATTACHMENT.—William B. May, Denver, Colo. Patent No. 1,292,349.

This invention relates to phonograph attachments, and its primary object resides in the provision of a brush of simple construction adapted to thoroughly clean the grooved face of a sound record while it is being revolved by the motor of the phonograph instrument to which it is attached.

With the above object in view, the invention comprises a brush made of any suitable material, which is connected with a spring to receive a gentle downward pressure for its frictional contact with the record.

The spring is mounted upon the casing or motor box of the instrument, and is rotatable about an upright axis for its adjustment to move the brush into and out of contact with the face of a record supported upon the revolving table of the phonograph.

The brush is pivoted on the spring for its self-adjustment to follow the usual wobble of the record, and its pivotal axis is preferably arranged nearer its forward end to cause it to tilt when it is separated from the record, and thereby facilitate its subsequent movement onto the face thereof.

Figure 1 represents a fragmentary perspective view of a phonograph to which the attachment is applied. Fig. 2, a fragmentary plan view of the phonograph showing the attachment in its operative position with relation to a sound record supported thereon. PHONOGRAPH.—Donald Milne Manson, Hamilton, Ontario. Patent No. 1,291,985.

This invention relates to improvements in phonographs and the object of the invention is to devise electrical means whereby after a record has been played the needle may be carried back to the beginning so that the playing of the record may be repeated, and it consists essentially of an arm secured at one end to the sound box crook, magnetic means for drawing down the opposite end of the arm, thereby raising the sound box and needle from the record, means counterbalancing the weight of the sound box during its return or downward movement, a circuit for the magnet, a switch for making and breaking the circuit, a downwardly projecting portion carried by the taper tube, an adjustable stop designed to be turned in position to correspond with the starting point of the record, and a spring connected to the taper tube and to the bracket thereof and adapted to turn the taper tube from the center of the record when the needle is out of contact with the record to the starting position, whereby the taper tube is stopped from further turning by the projection thereof engaging with the adjustable stop referred to above.

This invention relates to phonograph sound boxes, and some of the objects thereof are to provide a sound box of very simple construction requiring little time and practically no skill in assembling; which insures the very desirable inward pressure on the diaphragm into normal contact with the strongest side of the box; which permits ready adjustment of this pressure; which provides a suspension for the stylus carrier at four points on the same axis; which provides a direct bearing of the stylus carrier on the box at two points instead of on lines or surfaces; which in one embodiment has the last named bearings on knife edges held against displacement; which provides means for lateral adjustment of the outer ends of the stylus carrier holding means; and which provides a noiseless insulation for the said holding means to prevent metallic sounds at the points of support thereof in the reproduction of a record.

detached view of the stylus carrier and diaphragm arm; Fig. 6 is a detached view of the stylus carrier holding means, with insulating means at the ends thereof, one of which is detached; Fig. 7 is an enlarged fragmentary section taken on the line 7-7 of Fig. 1; Fig. 8 is a similar view taken on the line 8-8 of Fig. 1; Fig. 9 is a fragmentary view similar to Fig. 1

STYLUS HOLDER.—Roy N. Brown and Anton H. Rintelman, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,292,575.

This invention is concerned with needle-holders for sound-reproducing machines and is designed to produce a needle-holder of simple construction, and by the use of which the tone can be easily and quickly modified so as to change it through any desired intermediate gradations from a powerful tone to a much less powerful one without changing the needle or removing it from its holder.

TALKING MACHINE.—Clinton E. Woods, Bridgeport, Conn., assignor to the American Graphophone Co., same place. Patent No. 1,293,602.

It is an object of this invention to provide a sound-recording or reproducing machine with a motor and control mechanism therefor so designed that the sound-record will be brought to normal speed practically instantaneously upon starting the motor, and will be brought to rest practically instantaneously upon stopping the motor.

It is a further object to provide a driving motor that will exert a large initial torque to bring the driven elements to normal speed practically instantaneously, and automatic means to reduce the torque of said motor as the driven elements approach their normal speed.

Yet another object is to provide, in combination with the motor, a stop mechanism that shall be automatically rendered operative by the ceasing of the rotative torque of the motor, and that shall be automatically rendered inoperative by the starting of said motor.

A still further object is to provide a start-and-stop device for the motor that is bodily movable at will with respect to the motor and its associated elements, whereby said start-and-stop device may be moved about to suit the convenience of the operator.

Another object resides in supporting the motor from the main frame so that vibrations of the former are not transmitted to the latter to interfere with the quality or accuracy of the recordation or reproduction of sound.

Figure 1 is a diagram of a suitable arrangement of electrical circuits, when the motor employed in the present invention is electrical; Fig. 2 is a bottom plan view of a sound-recording or reproducing machine embodying the present invention; Fig. 3 is a detail elevation of the motor; Fig. 4 is an end view of the motor; Fig. 5 is a fragmentary side view of the motor; Fig. 6 is a detail of the device for receiving the thrust of the motor shaft; Fig. 7 is an elevation of a machine embodying the present invention and illustrating a start-and-stop device associated with a flexible tube in communication with the sound box; Fig. 8 is an enlarged vertical cross-section of the switch carried by said tube; Fig. 9 is a still further enlarged horizontal section through the switch of Fig. 8; Fig. 10 is an elevation of a machine embodying the present invention and illustrating a start-and-stop device therefor in the form of a foot-controlled switch, the latter being shown in enlarged vertical section; and Fig. 11 is a further enlarged vertical section of the switch of Fig. 10 at right angles to the section of the latter figure.

TALKING MACHINE.—Merwin E. Lyle, John J. Scully and Frank L. Capps, Bridgeport, Conn., assignors to the American Graphophone Co., same place. Patent No. 1,293,489.

This invention relates to talking machines, and has for its object to produce a machine of this character at a minimum cost without decreasing its efficiency or detracting from the character of the sound reproductions secured therefrom. The invention has reference more particularly to the disc form of talking machines, either of the so-called "hornless" or the horn type, and provides an extremely cheap cabinet or casing for the motor mechanism and support for the tone arm and parts connected therewith. These ends are accomplished by providing a base and top, shown as struck up from sheet material such as sheet-metal, and side walls composed of sheet material such as sheet-metal retained between the base and top by suitable means, such as bolts, the motor preferably being hung from the top of the casing by suitable supporting bolts. In the case of the "hornless" form of machine, the wall of the cabinet is so shaped as to cause it to form the sound amplifier into the narrow or reduced end of which the tone arm enters; whereas, in the horn form of machine the tone arm and horn are suitably supported on the outside of the casing. In the form shown, for universal movement in a bracket at the side of the machine on a bent rod or wire support the tone arm and horn being so mounted upon the said rod as to be capable of movement in a vertical direction, and said rod itself being free to move in a horizontal direction in the bracket, while the bent rod at the same time forms an efficient support for the tone arm proper when the reproducer is thrown to one side.

In said drawings: Fig. 1 is a perspective view of the "hornless" form of the invention; Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the base, the walls and the top supporting the tone arm and motor, the parts being separated in vertical alinement to better disclose the construction; Fig. 3 is a vertical sectional view of the tone arm support; Fig. 4 is a side elevation, with parts broken away, of the horn form of the machine; and Fig. 5 is a perspective view of the bracket and rod or wire for mounting the tone arm and horn.

OPENS FACTORY IN NEW YORK

The Butterfly Phonograph Motor Corp. has purchased the assets of Leonard Markels, former motor manufacturer who was adjudged bankrupt recently. The company has opened a factory in New York, and Mr. Markels has been engaged as general manager.

H. C. Castello has become manager of the talking machine department of the Kaufman-Straus Co., Louisville, Ky., succeeding H. V. Boswell, who has gone to Baltimore.

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY

Sonora

CLEAR AS A BELL

The only phonograph sold without offering “easy payments” as the leading attraction

SONORA is sold on a quality basis and the purchaser realizes he is getting full value. The Sonora appeals to people who are able and ready to pay cash for the phonograph they choose and the Sonora is offered and bought for what it is—the method of payment is always a secondary consideration.

The magnificent matchless tonal beauty of the Sonora and its many important exclusive features of construction make it the most wonderful of all phonographs. That explains its tremendous sales and its ever-growing popularity.

Prices $50 to $1000

MAJOR PAILLARD IN NEW YORK

Prominent Manufacturer of St. Croix, Switzerland, Given a Dinner at Waldorf-Astoria by Geo. E. Brightson, President of Sonora Co.—Interested in Talking Machine Progress

A recent visitor to the executive offices of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., New York, was Major Paillard, of E. Paillard & Cie, St. Croix, Switzerland, one of the largest manufacturers of musical instrument parts in the world and the producer of motors for the Sonora organization.

Major Paillard manufactured the first motor for Sonora many years ago, and since that time has had occasion to be astounded frequently at the remarkable growth of Sonora sales in the United States. Quite often the large orders which were cabled to Switzerland seemed so gigantic that to the Swiss factory officials they were almost beyond belief, and confirmation cables were requested before they could be accepted as true.

At a dinner given at the Waldorf-Astoria by George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., to Major Paillard and a number of visiting Sonora dealers the visitor from Switzerland gave some interesting information regarding conditions at home. Great difficulties were confronted and overcome by his house during the last two or three years of the war, as raw materials were extremely difficult to secure, and coal, even at the present time, costs $60 a ton. Major Paillard explained that it cost him about $500 a year to heat his own home, and naturally the cost of fuel for factory purposes runs into formidable figures.

As is the custom in Switzerland, every citizen has to perform military duty, and, starting in an officers' training school in 1902, Major Paillard was successively a cadet, second lieutenant, first lieutenant, captain and in 1917 was commissioned to his present rank as major in the artillery, his long experience on mechanical devices being of great service to the army.

With the signing of the armistice the Paillard factories began to make arrangements to increase their output materially. The raw material situation is constantly improving, and within thirty days it is expected that there will be an increase of motor production for Sonora of over 100 per cent. While in this country Major Paillard visited the immense Sonora factories at Saginaw and other points, and made a careful study of general business conditions.

A salesman with a good record behind him usually is the one who has a good record to show his customer.

CO-OPERATION AND REGULATION ANENT INSTALMENTS

Interesting Analysis of a Very Important Matter by Samuel Klugherz of The Home Music Co., Lancaster, Pa.—Would Control Unscrupulous Dealer—Manufacturer Should Make First Step

A cure for the ills of the instalment business has been suggested by many writers upon the subject.

The likelihood of an evolution from unwelcome to desirable conditions in the "part payments" field of the talking machine business is remote. Individual efforts at reform and dealers' meetings and conferences held for the same purpose invariably bring to light only divided counsel.

Delinquent accounts receive the same anxious study from the ignorant, impractical, unethical, piratical dealer (and every community has such) as from the well-meaning, conscientious business man.

The cry for relief and betterment comes as loudly from the undeserving as the deserving. It is the unscrupulous dealer that stands in the way of reform. Control him, and you will find your cure.

"But how control him?" I can almost hear

TYPEWRITING TO "TALKER" MUSIC

Syracuse High School Uses Talking Machine in Commercial Department to Help Beginners—Plan Has Proved Very Successful

The West High School of Commerce, Syracuse, N. Y., has now added the talking machine to its typewriting department and has found the experiment very successful. When the bell for classes rings the pupils sit down at their machines, the record is started and the keys click to the music. Under this system there is a great increase in accuracy and there are no cases of "typewriter nerves" so common to beginners.

J. A. Curry, an instructor in the West High School, says: "One needs rhythm in typewriting. It is easy for beginners to develop typewriter nerves before they become accustomed to the click of typewriters all about them. At first there is a slight decrease in speed, but there is far greater accuracy, and the pupils are much less tired after an hour than they would be without music. It is really a method of psychic control that is most effective."

THE VICSONIA FOR AUSTRALIA

Sales Rights For Vicsonia Reproducer in Australia and New Zealand Placed With Prominent Talking Machine Dealer in Melbourne

Through a deal recently closed by James W. Greene, export manager of the Vicsonia Mfg. Co., Inc., New York, the exclusive sales rights to the Vicsonia reproducer in Australia and New Zealand have been placed with one of the largest talking machine dealers in Melbourne, Australia. The export business of the Vicsonia Co. is also expanding in other directions.

Although the Vicsonia Co. has expanded its manufacturing facilities considerably during the past six months and has been able to get supplies in larger quantities, the demand for the Vicsonia reproducers still keeps somewhat ahead of the output, but the company is contemplating steps to still further increase production.

NEW KENTUCKY MUSIC STORE

The Hardwick Jewelry Co., Owensboro, Ky., has opened a music department in the store and has installed several booths for demonstrating the Victor talking machine and records. At present there are very few machines in stock, as they are placed as soon they arrive. A large record library has been added and sales are very large.

NEW VICTOR WHOLESALER IN TOLEDO

Toledo Talking Machine Co. Organized to Take Over Wholesale Victor Business of the Whitney & Currier Co., That City

TOLEDO, O., May 1.—The wholesale Victor department of the Whitney & Currier Co., the prominent music house of this city, has been taken over by Ludwig & Co., who have organized the Toledo Talking Machine Co. to take care of the business. The new company will wholesale Victor products exclusively and will have no connection with any retail store. Charles H. Womeldorff is manager of the company, and Warren L. Kellogg has been appointed traveling representative.

KIESS BECOMES FIELD SUPERVISOR

Assumes This Important Post With the Pathé Frères Co., With Headquarters in Brooklyn

H. N. McMenimen, managing director of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., announced this week that O. M. Kiess had been appointed field supervisor for the company, with headquarters at the executive offices, 20 Grand avenue. Mr. Kiess will keep in close touch with Pathé jobbers throughout the country, devoting his time to practical co-operation with the sales organizations of the various Pathé distributors.

O. M. Kiess has been identified with the talking machine industry for a number of years, having been manager of the Buffalo branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. for several years. He joined the Y. M. C. A. service during the war, and his thorough knowledge of phonograph merchandising makes him a valuable addition to the Pathé organization.

RECEIVES "WORLD" AT THE FRONT

Eclipse Music Co. Man Received the Talking Machine World Every Month—Kept in Touch With All Trade News and Events

The high esteem in which The Talking Machine World is held by all those interested in the trade and its value as a means of keeping in touch with the progress of the industry is shown by the great number of copies sent to soldiers at the front, who, even during the stress of war, wanted to keep themselves informed about the business they had left behind them. Corporal Earle Poling, formerly connected with the Eclipse Music Co., of Cleveland, O., writes the following letter from A. P. O. 757, France, under date of March 25:

"Have been getting your paper in due time each month and I want to assure you that The Talking Machine World is a great comfort to a talking machine salesman who is a member of the A. E. F. and has no other way to keep in touch with the trade events."

EFFECTIVE USE OF MOVIE PICTURE

The mutual benefit to be derived from co-operation of members of the trade and motion picture men is illustrated by the following story from the West: C. D. Easton, of Kelso, Wash., an Edison dealer, took advantage of the fact that there was to be shown at the local theatre a picture called "Bonnie Annie Laurie," and on the night of the show a notice was flashed on the screen announcing the song as sung by Anna Case. The stage was darkened during the selection, and when the song ended the lights were turned up, disclosing a phonograph at the side of the stage. This made a great hit.

Looking inward gives you mental strabismus, a peevish personality and an ingrowing disposition. Look out.

How the Talking Machine Record Has Made Orchestral Music Widely Known and Popular

Nothing has done more to popularize vocal music in America than the talking machine record. "Popularize" is not, however, an adequate word to express the achievement, for the record has brought into the homes of our people the voices of the greatest artists in the world—men and women who can be heard only in the greatest opera houses and concert halls and whose abilities are beyond all question pre-eminent. These great artists in the homes, no matter whether it be the farm, hamlet, town, or city, have brought into the lives of the people the great operatic works of the masters, and in this way have created a close bond of friendship and sympathy between the singers and the hearers, with the result that great singers in concert and opera admit that the talking machine record has been a tremendous influence in arousing interest in their performances and recitals, no matter where they appear.

This is surely a great accomplishment, and one which the historians must make note of when they come to analyze the development of musical appreciation in America during the past few years.

With the broadening out of perfection in recording the talking machine is entering a new sphere, so to speak, when it brings to music-lovers the records of the great symphony orchestras. To-day those who love instrumental music can hear the great works of Beethoven, Tschaiikowsky, Brahms, Schubert, in fact, all the great orchestral works, recorded by the leading symphony orchestras of the country, notably the Boston Symphony, the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Symphony, and a number of others. Symphony is the highest expression of musical form, and it is a class of music that is not popular with the masses, simply because it has been considered aristocratic and somewhat removed from the appreciation of the hoi polloi. This, however, is only an artificial or social condition, and is due largely to the lack of familiarity of the majority of the people with the famous symphonies.

Now that records of the works of the great symphonists can be secured, and their music heard in the home, the lover of music is able to get a new conception of the beauties of the score—an appreciation of the various orchestral colorings—an understanding of the special functions of the strings, brasses, reeds. He is able to learn to appreciate how the great masters have worked up such marvelous colorings with the instruments of the orchestra.

There is no question but that the attendance at orchestral concerts throughout the country will be largely increased through the growing appreciation of the records of the great orchestras. The development will be very much as it has been with the records of the great operatic and concert singers. It will not only add new fame to the orchestras, but it will bring the music which they interpret before an army of people who will be able to enjoy at their leisure, and in detail, their beloved "bits" from the great symphonies, and in this way be educated to a new appreciation of the works of the great symphonic masters.

The educational value of the talking machine record has thus demonstrated afresh that this industry has unquestionably a tremendous mission for the uplift and advancement of music in America, despite the views of some all-wise critics who a few years ago held otherwise.

Dealers Should Hook Up Their Publicity With Manufacturers

Just how many talking machine dealers really get the full benefit of the enormous amount of advertising material supplied to them by the manufacturing companies? We do not mean dealers who take the material sent them and display it with more or less care in and about their show windows, but dealers who, using the supplied material as a basis, utilize individual ideas in giving a local touch to this free material. No matter how expensive or how attractive the advertising matter sent out by the manufacturers, or how it is displayed in the show windows, it is self-evident that if all retailers used that material and nothing else the ordinary citizen after passing half a dozen or so talking machine stores with exactly the same publicity matter meeting his eye is going to lose interest. It would be the case of just another display to be passed by rather than something original to attract his attention.

The proper thing for the retailer to do is to study the advertising matter that is supplied him and make an effort to display the particular types of machines, and especially the particular records, to which the publicity directly refers. This takes a little trouble, but it serves to link up in the mind of the observer the machine, or record, with the ad. He is showing that the dealer has that particular advertised product at hand ready for sale, and anything beyond that the dealer himself must accomplish by actual personal contact.

There are so many local events that can be hooked up with the manufacturers' advertising that it seems a little short of criminal for the retailer to trot along in a rut without endeavoring to do a little work on his own account, even if nothing more than pasting a national magazine advertisement on the show window and running a tape, or tapes, to the products advertised, which last has the effect of making the advertisement a personal rather than an impersonal one. The result is two-fold—it gives to the dealer the direct power of the national advertising at present being run, and hooks up his story with future advertising of the same product, for the magazine reader coming across the advertisement of a certain machine and a certain record soon begins to connect that advertisement with the local dealer who handles these products. It is in the development of this unconscious connection that the dealer can afford to spend almost unlimited time and money in his local advertising.

The big advertisers themselves who make a specialty of dealer's advertising service frequently complain that all too many retailers simply cast the bulk of the free advertising matter aside, often without opening the package, and utilize only a small proportion of it, if any. Then if the retailer is inclined to use only a small proportion of all of the matter it does not in any sense prevent him from making the most of the matter used by utilizing some of his own ideas.

The Grafonola Shops, Inc., Wilmington, Del., has been incorporated to deal in manufactured goods of all kinds, with a capital of $25,000.

THE MAN OF IDEAS AND NOT LOCATION MAKES BUSINESS

How H. H. Brooks Staged Two Entertainments in Union City, Ind., That Opened the Eyes of the Public—Mrs. Oberndorfer Lectured—Closed Many Sales—Dealers Should Make Note

UNION CITY, IND., May 2.—H. H. Brooks is a talking machine dealer in this town (which is small in population only, as Mr. Brooks has proved). Some time ago he decided that he would pull some big town stuff and increase his sales. He wrote to Chicago and secured a promise from Mrs. Anne Faulkner Oberndorfer, chairman of the Western Division of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, that she would appear at two entertainments to be given in Union City by the talking machine man.

Mr. Brooks' next move was to engage the Union City Opera House for his two evenings of entertainment. Next he rounded up all of the town's local theatrical talent and got up a show. The show was advertised. The attendance was remarkable.

The first night opened with enthusiasm at a high pitch. The curtain went up and showed a stage furnished with musical instruments from Mr. Brooks' store. There was a $1,500 Brunswick talking machine, a Melville Clark combination player-piano and talking machine, ten upright and player-pianos, three grand pianos and over twenty-five talking machines of various sizes—all on this same stage. Mrs. Oberndorfer, from Chicago, was the lecturer, and her subject was "Music and Patriotism." She was aided in her talk by home musical talent and by talking machines and player-pianos. Citizens of Union City were delighted. There was enthusiastic community singing to the accompaniment of three player-pianos playing in unison, a sight—or sound—which thrilled the audience. The curtain went down amidst a roar of cheers.

The next and last entertainment on the following night opened with the same stage setting and the same program, with the exception that Mrs. Oberndorfer spoke on the subject, "Music in the Home." When the curtain went down on the first part of the performance one of the town's well-known young men (the minister's son) leaped on the stage and entertained the assemblage with jazz music executed by the town's jazz orchestra. In the meantime, back of the curtain they were changing the setting, and when the curtain was raised there was exposed to the view of an appreciating public an actual scene of music in the home, with a piano, talking machine, etc. This closed the second

TO EXPAND COLUMBIA CO. BRANCHES

George W. Hopkins, General Sales Manager of Columbia Co., Announces Plans to That End in Chicago, Indianapolis and Los Angeles

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced recently the consummation of a number of important deals which provide for the development and expansion of several of the company's wholesale branches. Columbia business throughout the country has been making such phenomenal progress that a number of the branch managers have been in conference with Mr. Hopkins, pointing out why additional floor space in their respective cities is imperative.

A lease has been signed whereby the Columbia branch in Chicago will occupy a new home in the McNeill Building, on Jackson boulevard and Market street, and in these new quarters Manager Fuhri and his staff will have greatly increased facilities which will enable them to handle adequately the fast-growing Columbia business in this territory.

The Columbia branch at Minneapolis has just leased a new six-story building at 1820-22 North First street, and this up-to-date and modernly equipped building will be utilized to excellent advantage by Manager Sprague and his associates to give the Columbia clientele in this section of the country maximum service.

The Columbia Co. closed a lease last week for a new building for its Los Angeles branch. This building is now being erected according to the company's specifications, and Manager Stidham and his staff will have every opportunity to look after dealers in southern California.

THE season of the year is approaching when the jobbers and dealers handling the products of the various prominent talking machine companies gather together for their annual business conferences, and several national affairs of this character are already scheduled for the next couple of months. Some of the organizations have not held general conventions for a couple of years owing to war conditions. Others, although holding conventions, found war problems interfering with the planning of any definite moves owing to temporary uncertainty of the future. Now, however, the war is out of the way, or practically so. Business conditions are returning to normal at a satisfactory rate, and the future is so pregnant with possibilities and opportunities that conventions for the interchange of ideas, regarding selling plans, are not only desirable but highly necessary.

There are many questions of readjustment of production and selling methods to meet changed conditions that must be faced by members of the industry. It is safe to say that pre-war methods cannot obtain successfully for some time to come at least. Conditions have changed materially, and are continuing to change almost over night, in many respects for the better. The demand from the public is keeping up at a remarkable rate, and, although the factories get back to the 1914 or 1915 basis, the new markets that have developed since that time promise to produce orders in excess of the normal supply.

There have been many new concerns entering the manufacturing and selling fields, and among the former there are several, especially those concerns which have given heed to quality instead of price, that have achieved and are achieving a satisfactory measure of success. Yet these new concerns, where they are actually giving value, are finding demands to be in excess of supplies. This all makes for changed selling conditions, the demand for cash or short terms, the development of high-grade business, and the building for a future when production and demand reach a comparative basis and competition again becomes a genuine factor in the talking machine industry.

The program for future development cannot be handled off hand, for it is important enough to be worthy of close study; where some hundreds of thousands of men are engaged in forwarding the interests of one particular product the best results are obtained through the interchange of ideas, the telling of experiences that may serve to act as a guide to someone else in the same line. An interchange of ideas will serve to build up an organized system of business that should, and will, prove more productive and satisfactory than individual effort unassisted.

The jobber or dealer who has the opportunity this summer of meeting together with his fellows in the trade owes it to himself to take advantage of that opportunity. He is bound to be the gainer.

THE value of advertising as the great lubricant to business was never more widely recognized than to-day. Our leading institutions have been carrying on tremendously active campaigns since the close of the war, and with satisfactory results, judging from the steadily improving condition of business which now prevails throughout the country.

There is no question but that these great advertising campaigns have nullified the inertia or uncertainty in the business world which was expected following the signing of the armistice.

The importance of advertising as a trade stimulator has been officially recognized by the United States Department of Labor, which through Secretary Wilson has carried announcements in the daily papers in which it is pointed out that "people will buy if you tell them about the things you have to sell," and adds further: "The American public is a buying public. It has the money to spend, and will spend it if you will show them the need for spending it. Therefore—advertise! This is the message from the Department of Labor to all live, progressive merchants who believe in the future prosperity of America. Tell your story through the press and reach the greatest number of potential customers at the smallest cost. Advertising, intelligently planned and executed, is the surest, quickest and most economical means of securing sales—stimulating business."

What is here preached by this important department of the National Government is, of course, not new, because every progressive merchant and manufacturer comprehends that success in business to-day is absolutely impossible without the use of well considered publicity. Everyone is an advertiser to-day; the only man who does not advertise is a "dead one."

Leading talking machine manufacturers have been in the forefront of the great army of successful Americans who understand and appreciate the value of advertising, and it may be said that throughout the entire industry, whether in manufacturing, jobbing or retail fields, talking machine men are understanding more and more the essentiality of this great factor in success. It is true that some are still lagging and must be awakened, but the great majority have become alive to the fact that their business cannot survive unless they use up-to-date methods of publicity.

Ability of a high order is required to conduct successfully manufacturing and retail establishments. It is one thing to create and another to market successfully. Each function is interdependent; both are of prime importance. The sales manager, or the executive who is working for the future, must be well posted in the principles of advertising, even if the details of the department devoted to publicity are entrusted to a manager. This knowledge means a sympathetic support of publicity as one of the great factors in bringing a greater volume and a more satisfactory class of business to the establishment.

The purpose of an advertisement is to sell goods. Newspaper space is too expensive a medium to be used for the exploitation of the writer's wit or cleverness. The ad writer who constantly bears this purpose in mind will produce effective ads despite faults of minor construction or display. When the simplicity of purpose of an ad is realized it will be seen that its preparation is merely a matter of salesmanship. The duties of the adwriter and the salesman are identical and their methods should be the same. Every salesman should have a well-defined system of approaching, interesting and selling goods to a customer, and the principles of this system can be applied equally well to an advertisement. Any successful salesman who is capable of analyzing his system of selling goods, who can tell just how and why he induced the customer to buy, is also capable of constructing an advertisement if he applies the principles of his salesmanship to his advertisement.

OF significance to the music industry are the figures just issued by the Department of Agriculture to the effect that the total spring and winter wheat crop grown in the United States this year promises to be the greatest produced by any nation in the world's history. To the estimated winter yield of 837,000,000 bushels announced recently we can now add a spring wheat crop that will bring the total of all wheat up to 1,100,000,000 bushels this year, and it may run beyond that figure. The only crops ever approximating this were a winter yield in Russia of 800,000,000 bushels in 1913 and a single billion-bushel yield in the United States.

This promised 1919 yield, with a guaranteed price of $2.26 per bushel by the Government, means a return of approximately $2,500,000,000 to our farmers. This is a stupendous sum of money, and it is logical to assume that a large share of it will find its way into the coffers of dealers and manufacturers of musical instruments.

Never in history were the prospects so bright for a tremendous volume of business as in the year 1919, and it is up to the manufacturers and dealers to prepare to meet the situation as it now exists—it is a time for broad-gauged action in the matter of manufacturing, and retail expansion along safe lines, and the employment of carefully prepared publicity that will bring the products of our manufacturers to the attention of the purchasing public.

TALKING machine men throughout the country should lend encouragement to the movement to bring about the establishment of a permanent memorial to the soldier heroes of the world war—the form suggested being an auditorium for the use of the public, and primarily for the propagation of music. A memorial of this kind is better than a slab of marble—it represents a permanent tribute to the men who have given their lives for the preservation of civilization—a tribute doubly appreciated, because it serves a noble and useful public purpose in a town or city.

The talking machine has been a potent factor during the war in stimulating confidence and courage among the men who entered the camps—the men who went to the sea in ships—the men who entered the trenches and went into the great battles of the war with music in their hearts. And what is more appropriate than that the love of music be stimulated through a memorial auditorium of this kind? No better means can be conceived of keeping the impression in the minds of the public of the debt they owe to the men who served in France than such a structure. It will have an educational force that will be tremendous.

Among all thinking men one of the great questions of the day is what will supplant the saloon among the men who make it their social center, or exchange for ideas. It seems to us that an auditorium in the leading cities and towns throughout the country, as outlined above, would constitute the basis of a community or social center movement that would do much to replace the saloon, which will soon disappear from "our midst." In the programs of events possible in such a memorial auditorium the talking machine would necessarily play a prominent part combined with lectures and other educational features as attractions. In this way the auditorium could be made a center of social activity and intercourse that would be more effective than the moving picture theatre as a replacement center for the men who formerly found the saloon indispensable.

The suggestion of an auditorium as a permanent memorial to our soldier boys emphasizes in most pleasing form public appreciation of their services, and moreover brings this fact to the minds of the people each time it is used. It represents practical patriotism in an eminent degree and marks a movement along commonsense, constructive lines, that merits the highest encouragement.

ONCE again and for the fifth time have the music interests of the country gone over the top in support of the Government in subscribing to and influencing subscriptions for the Liberty Loans. This time it was the Victory Loan, announced as the last of the series, and designed to clean up the war debt and bring the soldiers home from France, as well as to take care of those who have suffered from the war.

Not only have the music interests been instrumental in raising many millions of dollars in subscriptions to the Victory Loan in their own ranks, but music itself has proven a powerful factor in promoting the campaign in other directions, for it is doubtful if a meeting or rally was held at which music in some form or another was not a strong attraction.

To the credit of the talking machine trade be it said that every member responded whole-heartedly to the call, that not only did the manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers buy liberally, in some cases to the extent of a million dollars or more, but that the artists whose names are found on the record lists, such as Heifetz, for instance, were quick to volunteer their services to stimulate Victory Note sales.

Perhaps the talking machine men put forth just a little extra effort this time in the belief that with this final loan out of the way there will be nothing further to interfere with the purchasing power of the public. The needs of the Government, of course, come first, but with those needs satisfied the talking machine men feel that there will be considerable money ready for machine and record purchases and ready to be released in other channels of trade.

THE victories of business, as in life, are won not in the marts, nor in the fields, where the decisive struggle takes place, but in the obscure and forgotten hours of preparation. Success or failure lies in the hands of the individual long before the final test comes, and this is particularly true in all lines of trade in American to-day, for the greatest test of business comes with the war's end. The business man who believes in the value of his name and his product and maintains this position before the public will be best prepared to reap the reward of increased business and increased appreciation for his product when peace is officially proclaimed throughout the world. Compensation for war waste, according to a leading student of economics, will be found in an enormous non-material wealth in the form of improved habits, a finer temper among the people, as well as in quasi-material wealth such as improved methods of production.

How the Attractive Talking Machine Department Wins Out With the Public :: :: By Warfield Webb

So much depends upon the effort put forth in handling, displaying and selling of talking machines that it does not matter so much where or by whom the machines are sold as to what share of success is really possible. The main consideration in the matter of handling talking machines lies with the store and its management. If you are seeking success with that keen-eyed determination that wins over many obstacles there is no reason why this should not be realized. If the department store has a live section devoted to this one idea, why cannot this be made to prove a more than ordinary success? The fact that there are to-day some striking instances of this kind proves it to be true. And truth is what most of us desire in seeking to prove a claim. Indeed, there is little room for argument were the case any different. Some department stores are making good in the sale of talking machines and records, but this is due to managers who have a keen sense of appreciating the requirements that make this possible. They are, in other words, live, modern, progressive, and offer such inducements as will bring to their stores a high class of trade and a large volume of business.

Much depends, we might say all depends, upon the effort put into the display features, in the salesmanship and in the desire to make every customer just another asset to the store. The unattractive department, like the inferior store, is not going to appeal. There must be real attractions, and let us cite an instance in point where there has been an effort made in this way to induce sales.

In one of our large cities there is a department store that has a section given over to the display and sale of machines and records. A special place has been allotted to this department. It has been enclosed in a glass partition that entirely separates it from the remainder of the store. In fact, it could be looked upon as a distinct store within a store. The interior is very attractively decorated in cream color, the floor is covered with velvet carpet to harmonize with the walls and ceiling and the booths are builded in a way that makes them attractive. They are of medium size, and the records are placed on the opposite side of these, so that the salesman can simply step outside the booth and select a given record without any undue loss of time.

Easy chairs, table and lamp give the section outside the booths a homelike appearance. There is a feeling of comfort and restfulness that makes the visitor feel at home. He is removed from the harsh surroundings that often make the store so distasteful. A fountain is to placed here which will still add its charm to the setting. It invites. It makes possible that comfy feeling that should be a part of the talking machine store.

There is a long section running parallel with the booths that is filled with chairs. At the end of the section a small platform is erected, and on certain days of the week free concerts are given to the public. These are advertised in the newspapers, and in this way the public is invited to call. One does not have to come with the idea in mind that he will be expected to make a purchase. He can come at any time, to be sure, but the public concert idea helps to increase the number, and there will be less of that hesitancy in the minds of many who refrain from visiting such a store unless they really have in mind a purchase.

Now this store is making a success of its talking machine department. It is under the management of a practical man, who sees and values the importance of doing things in the right way. He is a progressive man, and one who, with the consent of the management, has made possible the development of the idea to the end that it is growing to be a big success. When he came to take charge of this department, some months ago, there was only a nominal amount of consideration given to the sale of machines and records. There was a section devoted to the idea, but it was in the open, we might say, with a few ordinary booths and some attempt to make it attractive, but it was lacking in the vital elements.

Could sales be made to count for much with this handicap? What was there about the department that made it appeal? Little, indeed. It

*Whether Department or Single Stores, There Must be Inducements so the Public Will

was, it is true, much like many other departments of the same kind noted in both department stores and in stores giving part of their attention to the sales of machines and records, but it lacked the elements that would make it a striking feature. You can hardly expect to make the public seek a department of this kind in large stores alive with business for the same reason. But the manager saw what was lacking. He had the backing of the store manager, and what has been the result? A complete transformation.

The department was moved to another floor. It was, as we stated above, given the distinction that has made it a most attractive part of the large store. The public concerts will be sure to add still more to the popularity of the department and make it a leader, not only in department stores, but among regular talking machine stores, too.

Is the store a success that offers some particular inducement to the public to seek it? Is it necessary that the store be exclusively a talking machine store? No. The whole secret lies with the management and with the efforts that are made to induce the public to seek it. There is a great deal of competition in this same city. There are many stores that offer the public inducements to seek them. There are several department stores that have sections devoted to the sale of records and machines. Here then is the whole definition of why this store, this section in a department store, is making such notable success.

It is more in the nature of the effort made than in the store, its location, its attraction and its sales possibilities. Success can come to any dealer, but he must make this possible with the efforts that cost time, money and just a little progress that is in advance of the public—that is a step ahead of the store where there is a lack of this same idea.

As to the public concert idea, it is not new to some stores. But where will it be found in a department store outside of New York and a few other cities? Where the idea of that separate section—that homy appearance, that system, that eagerness to please? Make the public come to you is the one big idea that must be noted in all our endeavors. The public will come often if the inducements are really worth while. But these must be so keen and so attractive that there will be a reason for the visits that can make them frequent, and that will in this way induce sales.

Why not then go a step further in your endeavors to please the public? Why not a little more effort to make the public seek you? If one man or one store can do so, there is nothing to stop another from the realization of this same increased demand.

Harry Gennett, vice-president of the Starr Piano Co., was in town last week, having come from the factory in Richmond, Ind. He reported business excellent in every way.

LIEUT. BROWN BACK FROM WAR

Son of Henry C. Brown, Sales Manager of Victor Co., Now in Toronto Awaiting Discharge From Royal Flying Corps—Presented With Baby Daughter as Post-War Surprise

Henry C. Brown, Jr., son of Henry C. Brown, sales manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and well known to the talking machine trade through his active connection with the industry before the war, returned from overseas on the S. S. "Bohemia," landing in Boston on April 2 and going from thence to Toronto, where he expects to be mustered out shortly.

Mr. Brown, who held the rank of lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps, had a fine surprise when he reached Toronto, for his wife, who was waiting for him in that city, had presented him with a baby daughter on March 27, while he was in about mid-ocean. Incidentally, Grandpa Brown does not feel so bad about the new granddaughter, either.

Lieutenant Brown has been in the service continuously since June, 1917. From June to October, 1917, he was in the American field service with the French army transport militaire headquarters at Soissons. He joined the Royal Flying Corps in November, 1917, and trained in Canada and Texas until April, 1918, acting as instructor much of the time. He acted as air pilot in England from July, 1918, until the date of the armistice.

Although Lieutenant Brown's future plans after his discharge from the army are yet to be announced, it is probable that he will re-enter the talking machine field, in which his interests lie.

THE ARTHUR WARD CO. GROWING

The Arthur Ward Co., Owosso, Mich., in response to the growing business in talking machines and records has enlarged and remodeled the main salesrooms and added several handsome demonstration booths which will be devoted exclusively to the display of Columbia records and machines. In the new department is a record case extending the entire length of the room.

LIKE EUROPE'S JAZZ BAND RECORDS

Pathé Records Made by Famous Military Organization Please the Public, According to Reports of Dealers Throughout Country

The recording organization of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. points with pride to the remarkable record which it established in the production of the Pathé records made by Lieut. "Jim" Europe's Jazz Band. As announced in the April issue of The World, this famous military organization has been engaged to make records exclusively for the Pathé library, and the first records are now in the hands of the dealers.

Within two weeks after Lieut. Europe's Jazz Band had visited the recording laboratories and made several records these records were ready for shipment to the dealers. For speed and efficiency this accomplishment is worthy of the congratulations which the Pathé Frères recording staff has received from the company's representatives. Incidentally it may be mentioned that these Europe Jazz Band records are meeting with great favor everywhere, and Pathé dealers state that their patrons are delighted with the fact that records by this band may be found in the Pathé library.

VICTOR RECORDS BY S. FRIEDBERG

Clever Young Polish Tenor Who Is Also a New York Retailer Makes Polish Records Which Are Destined to Prove Popular With Public

In a recent issue of new Polish records the Victor Talking Machine Co. announced several selections by Sidney Friedberg, a young Polish tenor who has repeated in New York the successes he achieved in Warsaw, Lodz, Paris and other European cities. He is a native of Lodz, in the Kingdom of Poland, and his first Victor record, comprising two popular and familiar Polish airs, has met with a pleasing sale throughout the country.

Incidentally, Mr. Friedberg is a practical talking machine man, being the owner of the Strand Talking Machine Co., 813 Westchester avenue, New York. He has won a host of friends in the musical world, and is attaining pleasing success in developing a profitable clientele in the busy Bronx section, where his store is located.

INTERESTING HUMOROUS ARTICLE

"The Prince and the Lungalion" is the title of a humorous and interesting article written by Warren Woodruff Lewis in a recent issue of "Judge." In this article Mr. Lewis pays a visit to several talking machine establishments with the idea of purchasing an instrument for his home. He describes his visits in a semi-humorous vein, referring to the sales arguments advanced in behalf of some of the well-known makes of talking machines. Incidentally it may be mentioned that Mr. Lewis recently purchased a Sonora phonograph for his home.

After splendid service in that capacity he was sent forth to take charge of the Cincinnati branch of the Otto Heineman institution. The extensive trade he built up in these parts speaks eloquently of his selling ability. Next we find Mr. Neumeister as sales manager of the OkeH record division at the Otto Heineman headquarters in New York.

Mr. Neumeister has just completed an eight weeks' trip throughout the Middle Western States and has opened many new accounts for the popular OkeH records.

How Talking Machine Men Can Help "Keep the Smoke Stacks Smoking" :: :: By W. B. Stoddard

Recently there was held in Los Angeles an Industrial Exhibition that attracted throngs of visitors from all southern California. It was done with the object of calling attention to home products, so that their demand might be largely increased. "The purpose of the week-long drive," said Director James R. Hill, of the manufacturers' committee of the Chamber of Commerce, who had charge of Industrial Week, "was to stimulate the patronage of Los Angeles products. This would mean increased production, which in turn could only be gained by hiring more men. In this way we could secure a position for every returned soldier and sailor, which was what we set out to do."

Special posters were designed to give publicity to the week—the same representing a business man greeting a soldier and sailor with extended hands. Calls were issued for a slogan which would express the purpose of the campaign, and out of the many submitted the short and pithy one "Keep the Smoke Stacks Smoking" was chosen. A prize of $20.00 was offered for the best set of verses composed on that theme, which could be sung to the air of "Keep the Home Fires Burning." A number of excellent poems were sent in and the following catchy refrain was chosen as best representing the spirit of the occasion:

Keep the smoke stacks smoking; every stoker stoking,

Now the lads are coming home work can't be slack.

Start new wheels a-humming, send new drummers drumming;

Turn your pockets inside out—it will all come back.

This was sung in a manner to raise the roof at the noon-day Business Men's lunch, held mid-weekly at the Hotel Alexandria, at which time 600 of the city's representative business men enjoyed a lunch consisting entirely of made-in-Los Angeles products, and listened to music of records the cabinets of which were a local product.

It being desired that as much publicity as possible be given the different manufacturing concerns, the city was thoroughly canvassed by the manufacturers' committee and the use of all possible show windows secured in which the products of local concerns, and the manufacturing thereof, could be shown. The response was liberal, and no inconsiderable part in the success of the week was due to the hearty co-operation of Los Angeles music concerns.

All of the local music houses had attractive displays and whenever possible featured local products. The Jones Music Co. had an especially attractive setting. The floor was covered with an Oriental rug whose prevailing hue was a warm red. Seated on a chair draped with green velvet was the life-size bronze figure of a smiling negro boy. On either side of him were banjo and mandolin, the latter made by the Jones Co. At one side of the display was a talking machine cabinet, and between the boy and instrument was a panel card, with long arrow pointing to the cabinet fastened to it. The sign read: "Gee, Dat am some phono-graf! It plays all makes of records, is fully guaranteed—and look at the price! Only $175.00." A card in front of the cabinet announced that it was made in Los Angeles.

Of much interest to the mechanically inclined was the display of the Southern California Music Co. The window was floored with green plush, on which were shown a number of ukuleles and banjos in the process of manufacture, while on low tables were a number of the completed instruments. A card announced: "This popular style made in Los Angeles." In the center rear was a talking machine and cabinet in the process of making, all of the parts being strewn about, while a card announced: "The Burnham phonograph parts—tone, chamber, motor, sound box, turntable, lid rest, lid hinges—a Los Angeles-made product—plays all records."

Robinson's had a display which was very effective from its very simplicity. A talking machine was shown in its natural environment, the music or drawing room. The walls were tinted a soft gray, with draperies of scrim to harmonize, while the floor was covered with an Oriental rug in neutral tones. Three phonographs were shown, one being open to show the turntable, and at this one stood a little fellow taking a record from the cabinet to place upon the machine. Down front was a large framed picture showing the factory at which the instrument was made. The finishing touch was given by one of the official posters.

Barker Bros., house furnishers, had the most elaborate display of any music house, and the manner in which they advertised drew crowds to their windows and store. Taking advantage of the fact that the Japanese prima donna Tamaki Miura and her opera company were playing an engagement at one of the local theatres, they fitted up two of their large windows as a Japanese bed-room and sun parlor, with brocaded hangings and background of paper panels. They announced through the papers that these rooms would be occupied two afternoons of the week by four pretty geisha girls from Japan, and on both days the little misses were drawn through the streets from the theatre to the store in their jinrikashas, and took up their abode in their adopted home. During all this time talking machines in the windows gave selections from "Madam Butterfly" and "The Geisha," the two operas being sung during the week. During the time the window was untenanted the phonographs still held the crowds with airs from "The Mikado," "Iris," "Madam Chrysanthemum" and other songs and operas bearing on the land of the cherry blossoms. The stunt was one that could be duplicated by any dealer, whether Japanese opera was being sung in the city or not—and it would be sure to give an enviable publicity to records, not only Japanese, but all kinds.

The second day of Industrial Week witnessed a huge trade parade, in which 316 floats depicted manufacturing of all descriptions that was carried on in Los Angeles. At the head of the long procession, directly behind the mounted police, marched a contingent of returned soldiers and sailors, who bore great banners: "Returned From Duty, Now Do Your Duty."

The entire affair was a trade rally such as could be "pulled off" by any enterprising city that desired to increase the consumption of home products, and the slogan "Keep the smoke stacks smoking" is just as applicable to the cities of the North and East as to the City of the Angels among the orange groves of sunny southern California.

Is Your Stage Setting Harmonious?

DESIGN NUMBER NINE "ADAM".

A TYPICAL INSTALLATION FOR NEAL, CLARK & NEAL, BUFFALO, N. Y.

AS a caterer to the better instincts of people, you are to be classed with the musical producer. He plans, perfects and revises his stage settings—he knows the value of a good frame for his productions.

Your store is your stage. In it you demonstrate the recent perfections of the instruments you sell, and give recitals of the latest records.

Is the setting in harmony with the merchandise? Are your appointments such as would influence the prospects? Has your store the atmosphere of refinement? Is your space arranged to the best possible advantage?

The Unico System gives to every music house the distinctive tone of cultured taste, while every unit in the line has the greatest utility value.

The simplicity, yet richness of the cabinet maker's art, is expressed in all Unico designs. The construction of Unico Equipment combines economy, beauty and enduring strength.

A store need not be unattractive whether the area is large or small. A Unico Department will instill the "home atmosphere" into your establishment.

The Unico System includes equipment for the modest store as well as for the more pretentious one. The Patented Sectional Units reach you ready for use and are installed without confusion or costly interruption. Future changes in size, plan or location are made with equal ease.

These and many other invaluable Unico features are fully covered in our latest booklet, MUSICAL MERCHANDISING—mailed on request.

Send to-day the dimensions of your available space. Plans and estimates for a complete department will reach you promptly.

EDISON CONVENTION JUNE 26-27

Fifth Annual Gathering of Edison Dealers Will Be Held at the Hotel Commodore, New York—Many Important Addresses Scheduled—New Playlet to Be Presented for Dealers

The fifth annual Edison dealers' convention will be held in New York on June 26 and 27. The Hotel Commodore has been chosen as headquarters for the convention, and Mr. Sweeney has most cordially invited his Edison guests to make themselves at home not only there, but in his other hotels in the vicinity.

Edison conventions are celebrated the world over. The plans for this one look as though it was going to be the best yet. The one thing all its speeches seem to have in common is that each is to be delivered by the highest authority on his particular subject in the country. Some of the items already scheduled are: An address on financial and business conditions of this country in the future by an official of America's greatest banking institution; a lecture by Miss Elsie de Wolfe, or her associate, Mr. Petry, concerning the artistic furniture values of the new cabinets which the Edison laboratories have developed; a talk by one of America's foremost manufacturers of fine furniture, setting forth the difference between the materials and workmanship employed in Edison cabinets and the materials and workmanship in ordinary cabinets; an official statement by Thomas A. Edison of his plans for the future. This will be the most important statement Mr. Edison has ever made concerning the future of the Edison phonograph.

Another item on the convention program is a new play—a rollicking farce entitled "Eye Hotel Commodore, New York City Value," for which the cast is already selected, and which will be in rehearsal shortly. Last year's play, you may remember, was "The Dotted Line." This one will have the advantage over "The Dotted Line" in that much more time and attention is being given to its production. The actors will portray well-known figures in the phonograph industry. They will be given every possible opportunity to study the characters which they are to delineate.

Another feature of general interest will be a talk by a prominent music critic concerning the part which the New Edison will play in the future of music.

Edison conventions combine the precision of a theatrical performance with the spontaneous good fellowship of a club meeting. A record attendance is predicted, for already, six weeks ahead of time, acceptances to the convention invitations are coming in thick and fast from all over the country.

THE FORCE OF PUBLIC OPINION

Two Prominent Artists Tried to Defy This Force With Disastrous Results—The Talking Machine Field Has Obviously Changed

The changes that have come about in the talking machine field, regarding public opinion, in the last ten years are well illustrated by the attitude of a prominent artist who has made many records. When this singer made his first records the attitude of the public toward this kind of music was such that he feared losing his position and sang under an assumed name. This name is to-day well known in the record field.

Again, there is the tale of the singer who refused to make the kind of records the public demanded, thereby defying the power of the general public. His experience shows the power of popularity in creating a certain kind of records. The company having him under contract decided to let him have his own temperamental way. In a short time his manager was visiting the recording laboratory trying to resume business on the old scale. He said that several concerts had been lost because he had no new records to show the people, and he now saw the mistake he had made. These two examples show that to-day the buying public is a factor which cannot be neglected in the matter of the kind of music to be made.

Application was duly filed on May 1 for a charter for the Tabe-a-nola Phonograph Co., Reading, Pa. The applicants are Chas. F. Mengel, J. George Hill and John D. Marburger.

TWO ARTISTS WHO MADE GOOD

Noted Musical Critic of the New York Times Pays Tribute to the Achievements of Rosa Ponselle, Soprano, and Charles Hackett, Tenor, Both Americans, Who Scored a Great Record in Recent Metropolitan Opera Season

In a recent issue of the New York "Times," under the heading "So Ends the Opera," there appeared a most interesting and important editorial which briefly summarized the accomplishments and achievements of the Metropolitan Opera Co. during the season that has just closed. This article was of more than passing interest in view of the fact that the "Times" is recognized as one of the country's leading newspapers and its editorial columns are accepted as authoritative.

In one paragraph of this editorial the following was said: "Rosa Ponselle stepped to front rank in a single winter, though she sang in but two operas. Charles Hackett, a native tenor, succeeded on Caruso's own stage."

It is interesting to note that both of these "stars" who were singled out for individual mention in this editorial have arranged to make records exclusively for the Columbia Graphophone Co. The honor bestowed on these two native American artists in this article is more significant when it is considered that they are the only artists mentioned by name in the editorial.

When it announced the early part of the year that Rosa Ponselle would record exclusively for the Columbia library the Columbia Co. received the enthusiastic congratulations of its dealers from coast to coast. Miss Ponselle stepped from comparative obscurity to fame over night, and musical critics already proclaim her as one of the world's greatest dramatic sopranos. She has won recognition as the "find" of the present operatic season, and her magnificent voice has gained the hearty commendation of the most discriminating musicians and opera lovers. At her debut in the Metropolitan Opera House Miss Ponselle received an ovation that has been equaled by very few artists appearing at this famous Opera House, and it is safe to predict that her fame and prestige will be greatly enhanced next season.

The first Columbia records by Miss Ponselle have already made their appearance and have been favored with a remarkable reception by Columbia dealers and their patrons. In fact, the demand for the Ponselle records has even exceeded the highest expectations of the Columbia executive and sales organization, and it has been well nigh impossible to fill the orders received from Columbia representatives.

Following closely on the heels of its Ponselle announcement, the Columbia Co. gave additional surprise and satisfaction to its clientele by announcing a few weeks since that Charles Hackett, native American tenor, had been signed to an exclusive Columbia contract. This young and brilliant artist also stepped into fame in one night, and at his Metropolitan debut won a triumph that has echoed from coast to coast. He is considered to-day one of the world's foremost tenors, and his Columbia records, which will be issued in the near future, will be awaited with keen interest by Columbia dealers.

NEW BUILDING FOR SHEPHERD CO.

The Earl Shepherd Co., Klamath Falls, Ore., is soon to occupy a new building in the heart of the business district. Demonstration booths of the most modern type made by the Unit Construction Co. and many other features will make this one of the best talking machine stores in that section of the country. E. T. Shepherd writes that he has gained many valuable points on store arrangement from The Talking Machine World. Among the lines of machines carried by the Earl Shepherd Co. are Victor, Sonora and Columbia.

EIGHT-MILE TALKING MACHINE

The giant talking machine mechanism installed at Point Judith Lighthouse, which sends its warning to ships at sea for a distance of eight miles, will soon be in operation again. For some time the dynamo of the power plant have been out of commission and the rocky coast has been without the warning which has proved so successful in preventing many accidents to homecoming mariners.

Give your customer credit for knowing as much about some things as you do, even if you don't believe it yourself. Tell him something he already knows—it flatters his vanity.

The Secret of Success

Someone once said "The first requisite of success is not to achieve a dollar but to confer a benefit."

"To confer a benefit" should be the guiding principle of every Edison dealer. To accomplish that, it is necessary to realize and to believe thoroughly that by the sale of every Edison instrument and RE-CREATION, you are indeed conferring a benefit.

BRUNSWICK LINE IN NEW YORK

Gimbel Bros. Now New York Agents For the Brunswick Machine—Entire Floor Space of Talking Machine Department Used

The announcement that Gimbel Bros., New York City, had taken on the entire Brunswick phonograph line brought to light one of the largest talking machine deals in this city. Edward Strauss, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., closed the deal by which the Gimbel Bros. music salons become the New York headquarters for the Brunswick machine. The entire floor space of the talking machine department is given over to the display of the Brunswick models, many private demonstration and display rooms are handsomely fitted up to accommodate customers, and all models are shown in each room, ranging in price from $100 to the most costly.

The fact that the Brunswick machine has been introduced in New York on such a large scale speaks well for the growing popularity and demand for the instrument. Each machine is equipped with the "Ultona" reproducer, permitting all makes of records to be played.

A very attractive window display announces the new line to the public, and the machines are arranged in a way to show off to best advantage. On one machine the scroll work is removed to show the Brunswick amplifier in position and to give an idea of how this all-wood sound chamber works. Throughout the music department different models are placed so as to attract attention to the new machine.

Gimbel Bros. carried page ads in the daily papers announcing their recent acquisition.

CHESTER I. ABELOWITZ TO MARRY

Chester I. Abelowitz, of the sales staff of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., will be married on June 1 at the Hotel Astor to Miss Hannah Lewis, of 910 Riverside Drive, New York. The honeymoon will consist of a trip to the Pacific Coast, stopping off at Chicago to attend the music trade conventions.

CELEBRATES GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Terre Haute Department Store Makes Event Occasion of Big Celebration—Talking Machine Department Entertains Public With Concerts by Well-Known Musicians

TERRE HAUTE, IND., May 5.—The Herz Department Store, well-known Victor dealers of this city, recently celebrated its fiftieth anniversary, and the event was the occasion for a real holiday. On the day of the celebration the store was closed in memory of the founder, A. Herz, who began the business in 1869, and a banquet was given for all employes and their guests.

A month before the day of the anniversary an extensive campaign of advertising was carried on, each department of the store having a special time at which its goods were displayed to the public in an attractive form. The Victor department, which suffered during the war through lack of machines and records, nevertheless held a free concert and invited the public to come and enjoy it. James F. Neece, manager of this department, engaged such well-known artists as Billy Murray and Henry Burr, and the entertainment was a great success. Although there were no sales to be made on that day, the public received the Victor lines with so much enthusiasm that Milton E. Herz decided to enlarge the talking machine department in order to take care of the increased trade soon to come.

The advertising carried in the local newspapers before the anniversary sale was intended to confirm and strengthen the prestige of the Herz store, and it proved of great value in preparing the public for the event. The celebration was a great success from every point of view and was a fitting tribute to the business carried on for half a century of fair dealing and good management.

J. Kellestine, an Edison dealer in Owen Sound, Canada, the home of Lieut. Col. Bishop, the famous ace, thought that it would be a good idea to celebrate the homecoming of the hero by selling a new phonograph to the father. He made the sale without any difficulty.

TALKING MACHINE EXPORTS GROW

Exports, Including Records, for Eight Months, Ending February 28, 1919, Total $2,802,004

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 3.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of February, 1919 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following figures on talking machines and records are presented:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during February, 1919, amounted in value to $19,572, as compared with $24,066 worth which were imported during the same month of 1918. The eight months' total ending February, 1919, showed importations valued at $162,884, as compared with $214,844 worth of talking machines and parts imported during the same period of 1918.

Talking machines to the number of 7,506, valued at $184,545, were exported in February, 1919, as compared with 5,565 talking machines, valued at $154,943, sent abroad in the same period of 1918. The eight months' total showed that we exported 33,897 talking machines, valued at $964,251, as against 60,541 talking machines, valued at $1,675,681, in 1918, and 48,729 talking machines, valued at $1,202,394, in 1917.

The total exports of records and supplies for February, 1919, were valued at $296,966, as compared with $104,376 in February, 1918. For the eight months ending February, 1919, records and accessories were exported valued at $1,837,753, as compared with $1,275,514 in 1918, and $966,463 in 1917.

OPPORTUNITY FOR FOREIGN TRADE

In the list of trade opportunities issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce appears the following: 29164—A firm of merchants in Belgium desire to purchase talking machines, musical instruments of all kinds, musical supplies and pianos. Information may be had at the office of the bureau, Washington, D. C., or its district offices.

New Tonal System Supplants the "Megaphone" Type

THE genius of an inventor has developed a phonograph differing in all essentials from every other sound-reproducing instrument in existence.

Forest Cheney,—violinist, teacher of music, and student of acoustics—brought forth the Cheney as a protest against unscientific methods of amplifying tone.

It was his desire to use the phonograph in correctly interpreting the masterpieces of music, as a guide and inspiration to his pupils.

Failing to find perfection in phonographs employing the "megaphone" principle, Prof. Cheney began a series of acoustic experiments along entirely original lines.

He evolved a phonograph embodying the principles employed in the resonating air chambers of pipe organs, with an amplifier carved from white spruce and maple, with the curves of a violin.

The
PHONOGRAPH

The Cheney is a revolutionary improvement in sound-reproducing instruments—reproducing the natural tones of voice or instrument in all of their original purity and beauty.

Music lovers everywhere acclaim Prof. Cheney's invention as the supreme achievement in phonographs.

Dealers are invited to write for details of our proposition.

NEW FIELD OF ACTIVITY OPENED UP

Emerson Record Sales Co., New York, Appointed Metropolitan Distributors For The Talking Book Corp., Which Manufactures a Complete Line of Talking Books, Animals and Dolls

The Emerson Record Sales Co., New York, metropolitan distributors for the products of the Emerson Phonograph Co., have also been appointed metropolitan distributors for the Talking Book Corp., New York, which manufactures a complete line of "talking" books, animals and dolls. These "talking" books and toys are manufactured under a license agreement with the Emerson Phonograph Co., and are the invention of Victor H. Emerson, president of this company. As they are produced under Emerson patents they are universal cut, and can be played on any make of talking machine without an attachment.

The "talking" book is a phonograph record in a new guise, for it is a story book, brilliantly illustrated in colors, appealing to the juvenile taste. The book contains a "flexible" disc record which tells the story, book, pictures and all being placed direct on the machine. The flexibility of the record is an important feature, for by the use of recent inventions a record has been perfected which practically eliminates the possibility of breakage.

In addition to the "talking" books the series of "talking" animals is particularly interesting, for these "talking" animals have an educational value that can hardly be overestimated. The "talking" dolls are attractive and instructive, as, for example, the "dancing girl" features a rendition of the polka, which is intended to serve as a first dancing lesson for the little child.

Elocutionists of note and merit make these talking records, so that the child's ear is attuned to perfection of sound from infancy, and thus is readily taught what would otherwise cost considerable time and money. New subjects will be produced monthly, and, judging from the enthusiastic reception given these "talking" records by talking machine dealers, this innovation in the record field is a decided "hit."

In order to co-operate with its dealers the Emerson Record Sales Co. has perfected an intensive plan of service which can be utilized to excellent advantage in developing the demand for these "talking" records. A most attractive series of window cutouts is now being distributed to the dealers, and these cutouts are now being featured in many local show windows.

GOOD MARKET IN SOUTH AMERICA

Brazil Especially Offers Opportunities for American Talking Machines and Other Instruments—Trade Steadily Increasing

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1.—There is a rapidly growing market for American talking machines in South America, especially in the larger cities of Brazil, according to advices received from commercial attaches and consuls in that country. In 1918 the United States sold more than $200,000 worth of talking machines, records and other instruments in Brazilian markets in spite of the restricted shipping facilities. The official figures covering the export trade to Brazil are as follows: Talking machines and records sold in 1917, $100,722; in 1918, $121,000. Pianos during the same periods, 1917, $90,318; 1918, $97,512.

This trade with Brazil came to our manufacturers almost unsolicited and shows that there is a tremendous field for trade when they go after business in earnest. Even under the unfavorable conditions of war the exports from the United States to Brazil were greater in 1918 than in the preceding year, and it is evident that in the countries of South America there lies a great opportunity for expansion.

The Waddell Co., Greenfield, O., has entered the field of talking machine manufacturing and has put on the market what is known as the music table and music stand. The latest addition to their line is a cabinet style machine.

PRAISES EDISON PERIOD MODELS

Miss Elsie de Wolfe Comments on Beauty of Popular-Priced Art Models—Sails for France to Continue Relief Work Among Refugees

A short time ago Miss Elsie de Wolfe, America's foremost designer of household decorations, stopped in at a display of the new moderately-priced Edison period models at the laboratory music room in Orange. After looking them over she confessed to having been completely ignorant of the existence of such cabinets for phonographs of moderate price. "Of course, I have seen the costly period cabinets which you and other companies get out for customers who are willing to spend several thousand dollars for a phonograph," she said. "I have even designed one or two myself. But I had no idea that there were such cabinets as these in the reach of the average buyer."

Some one explained to Miss de Wolfe Mr. Edison's reasons for extending the use of period cabinets to the medium-priced Edison instruments. When he observed that the costlier models were so enthusiastically received and were causing so much favorable comment in circles where beautiful furniture is appreciated he immediately arranged to have all Edison phonographs incased in equally authentic period cabinets. "If the people who can afford more expensive phonographs like beautiful cabinets every one should have a chance at them," was his course of reasoning—and Miss de Wolfe enthusiastically agreed. In fact, she is so enthusiastic on the subject that she has consented to permit a signed statement of hers to be used in the Edison Co.'s national advertising.

Miss de Wolfe has just sailed again for France. Her work for refugees in this war is not yet over—although she has been actively engaged in relief work ever since 1914. She was at her home—a charming chateau near Versailles—when the war broke out. She has done everything, from serving as a nurse's assistant to founding a hospital of her own at Versailles. Her activities in France are well known.

$20,000 CONTRACT FOR ONE HOUSE

Manager M. D. Fields, of the Rice Furniture Co., Jackson, Miss., recently closed a contract for $20,000 worth of Victrolas and Grafonolas in New Orleans. This is the largest order ever placed in Jackson and speaks well for the volume of business in talking machines done by this house. Ben Martin, manager of the talking machine department of the Rice Furniture Co., is well known in the State as an expert in that line and is a good salesman, as shown by the fact that in one day's regular business he sold $1,200 worth of machines.

It looks as if record albums are in a fair way to take the place on the home table of the dusty family album.

A PROGRESSIVE MUSIC HOUSE

W. C. DeForest & Son, Sharon, Pa., Conduct Talking Machine Department of Metropolitan Proportions Under Bennett Lemax

SHARON, PA., May 1.—What is considered one of the most complete music establishments between New York and Chicago is that of W. C. DeForest & Son, of this city. This store, which is located at 106-8 State street, has a floor space of 143,000 square feet and a talking machine department that is a model of its kind, in which both Victor and Edison lines of machines and records are handled most successfully under the management of Bennett Lemax.

The business, which is under the direct supervision of M. V. DeForest, a live wire music man, known to the trade throughout the country, was established in 1868 in a small way, but has since grown to a point where there is not only a store of metropolitan proportions maintained here, but branches are also conducted in Greenville, Pa., and Warren, O.

In the talking machine department of the local store there are sixteen soundproof record booths, in addition to a large showroom for machines, and all are handsomely equipped and furnished.

DeForest & Son also handle several leading lines of pianos in a big way.

Tact and Common Sense in the Administration of Collections and Credits :: :: By Dorchester Mapes

Secretary-Treasurer R. C. Wade Co.

[EDITORIAL NOTE.—It is a safe assertion that no department of any business, big or little—retail, jobbing or manufacturing—is more important or more essential to the success of that business than the management of its collections and credits. The buying, the producing and the accounting may be perfectly done but if the credit and collection department does not do efficient work—serious trouble will surely result.

We are fortunate in being able, this month, to give our readers a concise treatise on this all-important question, by Dorchester Mapes, secretary and treasurer of the R. C. Wade Co., Chicago, which is worthy of close consideration. By referring to an article that appeared in our issue of November 15, 1918, we are reminded that Mr. Mapes is qualified, by long experience and careful study, to speak on this subject.

We are reminded, too, that some years ago (while he was serving on the board of directors of the Credit Men's Association and as credit manager for one of our largest manufacturing institutions) Mr. Mapes prepared and delivered an address on the same subject, which was subsequently published in pamphlet form by the National Association of Credit Men. In commenting on this address, H. E. Hutchings (then chairman of the business literature committee of the National Association) said, in part:—"In such literature, business is lifted to a loftier plane than mere barter, cunningly and shrewdly manipulated, and takes its place as a great and universal force in bringing about a higher and nobler civilization."

Credit is as old as business itself and business is as old as the human race. More than three hundred years before the time of Christ Demosthenes said: "Credit is the greatest capital of all toward the acquisition of wealth," and, as credit is still a decidedly unknown quantity, credit men are in no danger of being mustered out.

Important as is the handling of credits in any business, it is not more so than the intelligent and forceful management of collections. In fact, the relationship between the two is as close and intimate as between the once-famous "Siamese Twins"; sever them and you make miserable cripples of both—and both will sooner or later come to a disastrous end.

To forestall any possible misconception of what may follow it can safely be stated that the largest individual losses and the largest in the aggregate also come from two distinct classes of debtors—to one belong those concerning whom we have no hesitation and give ourselves no uneasiness—to the other those whose credit we know is extremely doubtful, yet to whom (for some reason, good or poor, and best known to ourselves) we extend what we know to be excessive credit. In short, our heaviest losses come from sources whence we have either least reason or most reason to expect them.

Passing, for the time being, these two classes of accounts, it is safe to say that tact, decision and good judgment in handling collections are even more important and more essential to good results than in passing upon the original credit. There is an element of chance in all credits, whereas with collections it is a question of close, constant attention, coupled frequently with decision and tact and always with good judgment.

Having confidence that your collections are being rightly handled, you can afford to extend a reasonable amount of credit to anyone about whom there is nothing on record that is positively bad. One may almost say, regarding the average run of accounts: "Take care of the collections and the credits will take care of themselves."

Accounts with concerns in moderate credit can, by ordinarily good judgment in passing upon the credits, coupled with careful, consistent, persistent and tactful work in looking after collections, be so handled that even the percentage which must eventually fail will show an actual profit.

By the general run of accounts is meant practically all that do not come under one of the two classes first mentioned as being above question or having no actual basis for credit. The general run of accounts may be further classified under these heads:

First: Good only for cash with order.

Second: Good only for one small bill at a time.

Third: Good for a moderate amount in proportion to investment.

In the first class we will quite likely place many who really are, if we did but know it, entitled to a fair amount of credit. Reports do them an injustice or, perhaps, they have done themselves an injustice by refusing to give information as to their affairs. Therefore, in dealing with this class, it behooves us to be painstaking. Tell them we presume reports do them an injustice and that, when we know them better, we will no doubt be perfectly willing to give them credit. Will they not send us cash for this first order, so that we may ship promptly and, at the same time, give us references and a statement of their affairs. If they would like to establish a better general credit, we will help them all we can. Many times this will bring the money and the information and be the beginning of a good account.

To the second class, those considered good only for one small bill at a time, belong a vast number of buyers whose accounts are exceedingly valuable and the handling of which calls for the most painstaking, the most watchful, if not the most diplomatic work of the collector. In too many offices it is a custom for the credit man proper to open an account, fix a small limit which he thinks conservative and then leave the future handling of the account to assistants and to a collection department that is managed sharply, perhaps, but with a lack of intelligence as to general results. There is too great a tendency to overlook the value of these small accounts, too strong an inclination to say: "If not prompt, shut them off," instead of, by the use of persuasion and tact, making and keeping them good and profitable.

In dealing with the merchant who lacks capital or experience, or who (for any of many reasons) needs careful handling, for his own good as well as for ours, "horse sense" will teach us to drive with a tight rein and keep the whip gently tapping him on the back, just to remind him that we are attending strictly to business. Merchants of this class have no inclination to fail, no incentive to fail; in fact, it is practically impossible for them to fail if we do our part properly, for it is only when a man gets heavily in debt that he is tempted to fail, or hopelessly in debt that he is discouraged into a failure. If we handle him kindly but firmly and convince him that what we require is for his best interest he will be most apt to pull along and succeed. But if we shut him off—without why or wherefore—he will, if he has any bad in him (and most men have), soon find that, in order to get goods at all, he must scheme or misrepresent his condition—and then there is sure to be trouble. On the other hand, if we sell him and then fail to keep him up to the mark, we will certainly have the responsibility of a failure on our shoulders.

The third class, good for reasonable amounts in proportion to investment, comprises the great majority of accounts and requires the best ability and the closest fraternity between collections and credits. The first question in each such case, of course, is, what is a reasonable amount? and this depends upon such a variety of facts that each case should be considered separately. Then, too, what would be a reasonable amount to-day may not be to-morrow. After having had the account on our books for some months the account itself is a fair, but not always dependable, pulse or meter.

The custom of fixing an arbitrary limit of credit is, no doubt, more extensively in vogue respecting this class of accounts than any other, and yet the principle is all wrong. No argument is needed other than the simple statement (which none will deny) that each individual credit man can do no more than fix a limit for his own account, whereas the limit of credit to which any merchant is entitled must be determined as a whole and upon the basis of his condition and individual qualifications. As the conditions change constantly so should we have a constantly changing opinion as to the limit of credit, or even as to the advisability of continuing the credit at all. For instance, we might fix a limit of, say, five hundred dollars on thirty days' time, and in two months find the man owed only four hundred dollars, but half of it past due and no payments made. Would we be apt to ship the balance of the "limit"? Or, again, we might find in six months that such an account was up to the "limit," but nothing due and all bills paid promptly. Would we decline to ship a reasonable additional order?

If we could all get together and examine the man's books (if he had any) we could very intelligently decide what line of credit he was entitled to from all of us combined. But for each of us independently to set an amount that we are willing to let him owe, and then let that account run on as long as it keeps within the amount without knowing what the others of us are doing, is wrong. We may have a very decided opinion, and good opinion, to-day; next week we may feel (or perhaps should feel) very differently. Having once opened an account upon the basis of the best information then obtainable we should thereafter be governed, not by an arbitrary limit, but by having constantly before us the facts upon which we based our original opinion and by keeping up a running comparison with our experience in the case.

If an account of this class grows in volume we should know if the growth is natural, if the customer's business is growing healthfully and without overtaxing his capital and we are simply getting our share of the increase, or if we are giving him better satisfaction than our competitors and for that reason getting more of his business, then it is a good sign for us; but, on the other hand, if we are getting the increase of business through the fact that some competitor has become dissatisfied with the account, or if it is (as it may be) the forerunner of a "load up and sell out" game, then it is quite a different sign. To decide a point of this kind may require ability and discretion of a high order, but the point is one that should not be overlooked, it is important.

Again, if a customer in this class becomes slow and asks for extra time we should know the reason before granting it; there may be every reason why we should, there may be just as good reasons why we should not. Whichever way we decide it should not be done indifferently. We should either grant the request cheerfully, taking care to make it understood that it is granted as an accommodation, not as a right, or if we decide not to grant it, decline it positively but kindly, and, having done so, insist on a settlement.

We now come to a consideration of the two classes first mentioned. On those which seem to be above question there may be reason for fixing a limit of credit. But this limit is not a question of how much credit the customer is entitled to, rather how much the seller can afford to risk on any one individual account; that is to say, how many eggs he can afford to carry in one basket. Fire insurance companies adhere to this principle strictly and the law requires it of national banks. Failures among this class come seldom, but when they do they fall with terrific force and there seems no possible way to guard against them—they are like the lightning, you cannot tell when or where they will strike.

Regarding the other class, in selling whom one knowingly takes an unwarranted risk, very little need be said. Some buy lottery tickets, some play poker, some play the races and invest their money in ten-to-one shots or worse; if they win they win, if they lose they lose; perhaps they can afford to, perhaps not, but we cannot prevent it in any event for, as has been said of woman, "If she will, she will, you may depend on't, and if she won't, she won't, so there's an end on't."

In closing, let us briefly consider one other relationship, namely, that of both the credit department and the collection department to the debtor class as a whole. If, as credit men, we conceive of no further duty, no higher duty, than passing judgment upon the credit risks that come before us each day and (after having once said yes or no) letting them pass as matters finally disposed of, then we are making ourselves the selfish tools of selfish institutions. We are becoming more narrow and self-sufficient instead of keeping in the front rank of civilization and development. Nor are we, in following this selfish policy, serving even our own individual best interests; yet some of us follow this course all the time and all of us some of the time. Now let us see what higher duty we can find to perform and how best to perform it.

We are, whether we are so accredited or not, the guardians, the "watch dogs" if you please, into whose keeping is given the most hazardous property of the various concerns we represent. It is expected of us that we be of unflinching determination, yet not stubborn; quick of decision, yet not hasty of judgment; we must discern between truth and falsity, but must be neither credulous nor incredulous. We must be accurate judges of human nature and character; we must be even tempered, calculating, patient, yet quick to act in an emergency.

Few of us, perhaps, embody all these qualities to a high degree, yet certainly the confidence that is reposed in us demands that we make that our aim. Does it not seem to you that with the qualities ascribed to us and with that lack of knowledge of business principles and the loose business ideals which we see about us, with these qualities and these opportunities we can become educators of the great mass of smaller merchants who are, be assured, susceptible of it and in whose advancement lies our best success? All this is perfectly practicable and the word "educator" conveys a sense of the loftiest, noblest purpose of mankind.

But how can we become educators? Shakespeare made Iago to say, "I never found man to know how to love himself"; and Benjamin Disraeli said, "Self-love is a principle of action." Can we not, and shall we not, disprove Shakespeare and bear out Disraeli by making self-love our principle of action, to the end of educating

The Brunswick Brought New Standards and Gained a Lasting Success

THE Brunswick is an achievement of which its makers are proud. Never has a phonograph been received with such universal enthusiasm. Lovers of music found in it the complete satisfaction they had long sought. Their praise sent thousands more to Brunswick Dealers. And these in turn were no less amazed and delighted when they had heard it.

Its Great Selling Features

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction has been widely advertised and discussed. It is a remarkable advance over old methods that has aroused the interest and attention of the public. Its revolutionizing features have meant increasing volume of sales to Brunswick Dealers.

An Artistic Triumph As Well

But the House of Brunswick was not content with setting a new standard of tone reproduction. They have also created a series of cabinets of unusually beautiful design. For grace and dignity these are unapproached. Each is a work of art—an achievement in fine cabinet-making.

Brunswick Service Backs the Dealer

Aiding Brunswick dealers are the resources and the extensive distributing organization of The House of Brunswick. Strong, convincing advertising in national publications and the co-operation of a competent and expert dealer service has simplified the sales-building problem.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction

Of Paramount Importance to Dealers

BEFORE The Brunswick there was a wide demand for a phonograph that would more faithfully reproduce musical tones. A noticeable harshness and metallic quality invariably detracted from the listener's enjoyment.

Then came the Brunswick Method of Reproduction. At once it displaced old methods and set up a new standard for comparison. And the reception accorded it was sensational. It fulfilled all expectations of what a phonograph should be.

The Ultona

The Brunswick was the first to play all records with faithful regard to their individual requirements. By a simple device — the Ultona — it brought unrestricted choice of records from the lists of all great makers. The Ultona requires no changing of parts. Just a turn of the hand presents the proper needle and diaphragm to any record, regardless of the recording method employed.

The Brunswick Amplifier

The Brunswick Amplifier solves the problem of harsh, strident tones. It banishes metallic sounds and brings to all records a clearer, truer quality. Built entirely of holly-wood, moulded to conform to proved acoustic laws, it builds up and projects a full, round tone.

Other Advantages

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction has also succeeded in greatly decreasing objectionable surface noises. And a controller at the back of the instrument permits of increasing or diminishing the volume of tone to meet the needs of larger or smaller rooms.

Explain It to Your Customers

Dealers should study the Brunswick method of Reproduction. It is the most important development in the phonographic field today. Its superiority has proved a vital selling force.

the people with whom we do business, to their gain and to our own as well? Let us do it conscientiously and persistently and see what it will do for us. We will not find it laborious, but fascinating, rather, and it will show quick results in specific cases and a gradual, sure elevation of the class of small merchants to whom a moderate amount of credit is a business necessity. More often than not (when used intelligently) kind, painstaking treatment pays us best, even though we calculate solely on a basis of dollars and cents.

This argument has been rambling, but perhaps it has made some things clearer, even though it has advanced nothing new and, if so or not, these few things can be set down as truths:

No man can guard against the unexpected, so do not lose heart when you get caught on an account that everybody considered good; you have committed no fault, no crime.

The man who makes fewest losses is not always the best credit man. The losses may have been saved at the expense of valuable business. It is easy to say no, but it may indicate lack of courage or industry, and a coward or a laggard has no place in a credit department.

The idea of fixing a limit of credit on an account and then allowing ourselves and our offices to be governed thereby is wrong. It is very likely to prove a trap set by ourselves only to catch ourselves.

The credit man should be just as ambitious to increase sales as any salesman, but his ambition needs a truer balance wheel and a more delicate, more responsive governor.

The credit man who extends credit on an overdue account, without getting at the facts of the case, or who fails to see that collections are handled with the same degree of intelligence and discretion as he is expected to give to the credits themselves, injures his own business, injures your business, injures the debtor's business, injures all business, for, leaving out the deliberate thief, most debtors are good until some of us let them get behind; therefore, if we allow them to get behind and discouraged by a load of debt we are not only breaking down the individual's credit, but we are actually striking at the very vitals of the credit system.

The credit man of experience and ability has at his command a fund of valuable knowledge and he should not be content to act thereupon arbitrarily, but should give reason and argument, thereby gaining better results for himself and, to a degree at least, educating his customer along the lines of better business methods and greater business honesty.

A. D. Robbins Returns to Old Post After Discharge From Service—E. S. Palmer Also Back

A. D. Robbins has rejoined the traveling staff of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, after serving abroad in the Aviation Corps of the U. S. Army. Mr. Robbins is calling upon Victor dealers in Brooklyn and New York, and his many friends in the trade will be glad to know that he has resumed his former position.

E. S. Palmer, who was formerly a member of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.'s staff, but who entered the retail field a few months ago, has rejoined the company's forces. Mr. Palmer succeeds A. J. Wilckens, who has severed his connections with the Victor industry to enter the wholesale drug trade.

WALTER BRUNNER JOINS COLUMBIA

Lambert Friedl, manager of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Co., has appointed Walter Brunner as a member of the company's traveling staff. Mr. Brunner, who has been associated with the local Columbia branch for a number of years, will visit the dealers in North Brooklyn territory, and his intimate familiarity with the problems confronting the dealers will undoubtedly enable him to give his clientele practical co-operation and service.

COLUMBIA CO.'S STRONG POSITION

Has $4,000,000 Cash on Hand With Most of the Early Charges Written Off—Rise of Common Stock From $62 to $250 a Share

The remarkable prosperity enjoyed by the Columbia Graphophone Co. is shown by the increase in the value of the common stock, which has soared from $160 to $250 a share and which a year or so ago sold for $62. The company is in a very strong financial position, and the report which will be issued next month will show that there is $4,000,000 cash on hand and in banks, with most of the earlier charges written off.

To-day the Columbia Graphophone Co. has unfilled orders on hand for 90,000 Grafonolas, several million records and thousands of dictaphones. The three factories at Bridgeport, Toronto and London, employing many thousands of men, are working at capacity. Early in April the common stock was placed on a 10 per cent. cash dividend basis with an extra dividend payable in stock. The remarkable progress of the concern is an indication of its able management.

the phonograph since the time of the poster, twenty-three years ago. The poster advertises a concert given in a Methodist church, and puts special emphasis on the fact that there are no ear tubes on the machine, and that hundreds can hear it at the same time. A glance at the machine pictured shows the wonderful progress made in the art of mechanically reproducing sound since then, when the old cylinder machine with its horn is compared with one of the present-day period models of the new Edison. Doubtless the church concert was a great success, and there were probably persons in attendance to whom the little machine seemed a weird and wonderful thing. The present-day machine is no less wonderful, but the weirdness has passed away, leaving in its place a deep appreciation of the mechanical genius which has made the recreation of the voices of the world's greatest artists accessible to everyone at all times. Surely the "world do move."

FREE SONORA ADVERTISING SERVICE

Company's Advertising Department to Furnish Cards and Other Material Which Can Be Used in Show Windows and Store Interior

The advertising department of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has announced that Sonora dealers will receive in the future a free advertising service, consisting of cards and other material which can be used to excellent advantage in the show windows or in the store interiors. Several of these cards and accompanying dealer helps will be sent out each month, and those now being completed are exceptionally handsome.

Such trade helps as electric signs, costly glass signs, expensive display material, etc., will not be furnished hereafter free by the Sonora Co. Material of this kind which is now on hand is being sold at prices quoted in the official sales help booklet, mailed some time ago to Sonora dealers. After the present supply of this material is exhausted the dealers will be referred direct to the manufacturers for further supplies

NOW "SIR HARRY LAUDER"

Popular Singer and Raconteur Knighted by King of England for Service in War Time

Millions of people in the United States who know Harry Lauder through his inimitable Victor records, as well as those who have had the privilege of hearing him in person, will be pleased to learn that this quaint Scotch minstrel of the music halls is now Sir Harry Lauder, having been knighted by the King of England for his invaluable services during the war. This recognition of the splendid work done by Harry Lauder for the cause of the Allies during the war will certainly meet with the approval not only of his fellow countrymen, but of his admirers on this side of the "big pond."

In commenting upon the honors bestowed on Harry Lauder, the New York Times editorialized thus the other day:

"It is not easy to realize that this favorite of the music halls, who from the stage has called upon the audience so often to join in the chorus of his ballads and topical songs, is to be made a knight. Never had knight a humbler origin or a more singular career. He tells you in his autobiography in the English 'Who's Who,' that he was educated by 'Stumpy Ball as a half-timer in Arbroath,' and that he was 'first a mill boy in a flax-spinning mill, then a miner, now is what the people have made him.' It was at his native Arbroath that Harry Lauder sang his first song as an amateur when a 'star' was missing. In the vernacular, he did not 'get the hook,' being applauded from the start.

"Harry Lauder, as he became famous, made pretensions to some education. He tells us that he has written a Scotch comedy; also that he is a composer—of his own music, which is so much broken by monologue often better than the score. Like more distinguished men in 'Who's Who,' he has his recreations; 'trying to hit a wee gutty ba', trying to catch salmon and trout, motoring, shooting.' He is a clubman, too; the 'Tooting Bec and Kirn Golf.' So he was gradually qualifying for society far above the pit mouth and those obscure days of poverty. The most democratic of all wars has translated Harry Lauder into a knight, and richly he deserves the honor, as compared with a great many previous aspirants and doubtless with some of the new company in which he finds himself, for he has done his 'bit' in the war in his human and useful way, inspiring his countrymen to greater sacrifices and forever endearing himself to them on the stricken fields of France."

GALLI-CURCI A "MORAL DANCE"

Pittsburgh Customer Has His Own Ideas About Quality—A Companion Story

A salesman in a Pittsburgh talking machine store had interested a customer from a neighboring town in a number of Red Seal records and was working for more business along that line. As he was demonstrating some records by prominent operatic artists he asked casually, "What do you think of Galli-Curci?" "Personally, I think it is a very moral dance," was the startling reply of the customer.

This story, declared to be true, reminds one of the remark of the customer who was asked if he had ever seen Mary Garden in "Thais." "I never knew she wore them," was his answer.

REPORTS PROSPEROUS CONDITION

Vitus F. di Lustro, New York manager of the "Indiana" Die Casting Corporation, with headquarters in the Tribune Building has assumed all details concerning the business of this firm in the East, and reports that he has found exceptionally prosperous conditions existing throughout the talking machine industry.

Mr. di Lustro reports that activities in other industries using die castings are rather quiet, but in the talking machine industry there is a rushing business. Mr. di Lustro briefly summed up the situation in the following sentence: "I am not looking for a boom in the talking machine industry, for the boom is already here, and we are receiving a very satisfactory amount of this exceptional business."

The man who looks ahead won't "see his finish."

WHY DEALERS SHOULD BE PREPARED

Pertinent Remarks by V. W. Moody on Importance of Being Equipped to Meet a Greater Activity and Prosperity in Business World

A message to Victor dealers that is based on optimism, logic and practical suggestion is contained in the following bulletin recently issued by V. W. Moody, general manager of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., Buffalo, N. Y., Victor wholesalers:

"The basic principle of life is action. Where there is no action there is no life. When action ceases life automatically ceases and disintegration begins. A merchant cannot stand still. He must go forward or backward. This circular is addressed to thinking men.

"When the time comes in the experience of a merchant that he is satisfied with his business—satisfied that it is good enough—satisfied that there is no room for improvement—he is going backward, and it is then that his competitor takes the lead—and holds it.

"The taxes due to war expense will compel high prices for some time to come. This applies to everything—labor, house rent, raw materials and manufactured goods. Building material is probably as low as it will be for another twelve months, and labor costs certainly will not reduce very much. How much do you figure you can save by delaying your improvements a year—one hundred dollars—three hundred dollars—three thousand dollars? Is the saving worth while if your business is going to be handicapped the whole year? All Victor men should make their improvements as fast as labor and material can be obtained. Your Victor profits of a single month will probably pay for all of your improvements. Any merchant properly conducting his business can make more money when prices are high than when prices are low.

"True enough, you did have a remarkable talking machine business during the past season, but just think how much more business you could have done—how much greater your profits would have been—had you been able to obtain all the Victor goods you needed and had you been able to take care of all of the business offered you.

"The merchant who feels that he can afford to delay his improvements 'until prices go lower' will probably find that when that time comes there will be no need of making his improvements, for the very good reason that he will not have business enough to warrant the new investment.

"Victor goods will be obtainable in greater quantities than ever before. Business will be done in greater volume than ever before, and some dealers—those who are prepared—will make money as never before.

"One of our conservative dealers said that each of his booths was worth $1,000 a year net to him. When he had two booths he made $2,000 a year in his record department. To-day he has twelve, and states that he made over $12,000 in records last year.

"What move could you make—what policies can be adopted—that will help you off on an even keel in the hurricane of prosperity which is shortly to come upon this entire country? A new and greater prosperity will be the natural result of taking up with a rush the resumption of building and manufacturing, both of which were brought practically to a standstill during the war period."

WATROUS & RUMSEY OPEN STORE

The new Watrous & Rumsey store, which recently opened in Perry, N. Y., carries an excellent line of talking machines and records as well as several makes of pianos and player-pianos. Three soundproof demonstration booths have been built for the display of Edisons and Victrolas. The interior of the store is handsomely decorated and fitted up for the display of all kinds of musical goods. A new $1,000 Edison instrument, an eighteenth century period model, was displayed on the opening day. Beside the Victor and Edison machines this store also carries a handsome and complete line of grand and upright pianos and player-pianos.

INCORPORATED

The Cabinet and Accessories Co., Manhattan, has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000 to deal in talking machines. The incorporators are W. Y. and O. Goldsmith, 196 Homecrest avenue, Brooklyn.

"L'ARTISTE" MAKES ITS DEBUT

New Talking Machine Made by the Grand Rapids Phonograph Co. to Make Initial Showing at Furniture Market at Grand Rapids

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., April 29.—The Grand Rapids Phonograph Co., which is owned and operated by the Grand Rapids School Equipment Co., who has been established many years in this city, will make the initial showing of its new talking machine, "L'Artiste," at the Furniture Market which opens at Grand Rapids on June 20. Its entire plant, which has been devoted to Government work during the period of the war, will now be devoted to talking machine production, and the annual output is estimated at 50,000. The line is to be a quality one, and a finely illustrated catalog is now in the course of preparation, which will be ready for distribution about June 15. The extensive plans for merchandising now in view will undoubtedly bring this new phonograph to the attention of a large clientele.

What Constitutes a Real Live Talking Machine Dealer?

The world moves. Brains count. "Efficiency is the watchword of the age," not only in manufacturing methods but also in advertising, selling and distribution.

This is "old stuff," you say. True, but isn't it a fact that many retailers keep their "nose to the grindstone" so close that they do not see a good many things that concern them vitally? There is many a retailer whose store is neat and clean, the clerks courteous, the details of accounting, buying and stock-keeping looked after carefully, and yet he is not a "live dealer."

There are two systems of distribution, as we all know—the "mail order" system, which eliminates the dealer—and the dealer system, in which the dealer is the important factor. The object of both systems is to get the consumers' business. The mail order system has weak spots—so has the dealer system, but the dealer himself, we are sorry to say, is generally the weak spot in the dealer system. Perfect harmony, co-operation and team-work are absolutely essential to the dealer system, and our definition of the really live dealer is one who is in real harmony with the system under which he exists commercially, and who co-operates to the extent of his ability with all the various efforts of the manufacturers whose goods he distributes. We all know how the mail order houses concentrate their efforts on those towns and cities where the merchants are not "live ones."

Relax. Stop and think. Cut loose occasionally from the details of your business and ponder over these facts. You are part of a system and in order for this system to work most smoothly and efficiently, and incidentally to make the most money for you, you must "pull together" with the manufacturers whose goods you handle. Your interests and theirs are identical as long as you have their goods on your shelves and counters, or in your warehouse.

Any dealer who doubts these statements should find out the facts for himself. Any up-to-date manufacturer who distributes through the dealer system will tell you that the greatest problem of his sales department is to get the full co-operation of his retailers.

Are you doing your share to remedy this weak point in the "dealer system"?

Manufacturers are spending immense sums in brains, energy, time and money for "dealer's help" to connect you up with their goods, to increase your sales, as well as their own. Whenever you allow a dollar's worth of this effort to go to waste you are guilty of contributing to the weakness of the "dealer system." You are dissipating the efforts and the money of the manufacturers who are your co-workers, a part of the same system of distribution as yourself, and whose interests and your own are identical.

When a manufacturer offers you a new scheme for co-operation, or sends you a "dealer's help," therefore, what is your duty? Do not waste it, throw it aside, neglect it or forget it. Remember that he has put his time, thought and money into it, all for the mutual benefit of the system of distribution of which both you and he are important members. Use the help he offers if you can possibly do so. Even go a little further and put yourself to a little inconvenience, if necessary, to show that you have the co-operative spirit. Tell him that you have done so; or, if for some good reason you cannot do it, tell him the reason. He will be glad to have your opinions. If he has sent you something that you cannot possibly use, return it to him, so it may not be wasted.

Are you thus doing your best to keep the system well oiled, of which you and the manufacturers are cogs?

Are you a live dealer?

SUBJECTS OF INTEREST DISCUSSED

"How to Make a 100 Per cent. Mailing List" is the title of a full page article that constitutes the feature article of the May issue of the "Columbia Record," the house organ published monthly by the Columbia Graphophone Co. This article contains many practical suggestions that can be used to advantage by the Columbia dealer in compiling an efficient and productive mailing list.

There are a number of articles in the May issue devoted to happenings in the establishments of Columbia dealers throughout the country, and these pithy paragraphs carry a message of import and timeliness. A new series of moving picture slides is also announced in this edition of the "Columbia Record," and attention is called to the fact that the Columbia Grafonola traveling kit will be advertised extensively during June.

Plans for summer retail talking machine campaigns are now in order.

MAKING THE SCHOOL KIDS "HEP" TO REAL MUSICAL DOPE

How One Talking Machine Dealer Played the Music Memory Contest Thing Both Ways and Cleaned Up in Publicity and Cash—Catching 'Em Young and Training 'Em

Sam Blake, the talking machine man, was grabbing off the news in the morning paper en route to his office when he lamped a little paragraph headed "Music Memory Contest Opens" and received a shock thereby. Sam's reminiscences of music memories were indeed sad, consisting chiefly of recollections of a crabbed old teacher who said "dis" and "dat," smelled of limburger and beer and insisted on rapping his knuckles for every blue note, and likewise recollections of his mother, switch in hand, watching him practice the scales on the piano, while the gang, shy one for the baseball nine, were whistling their lips sore outside.

Coming back to life Sam lamps the paragraph again, and discovers that the dope is to make the school kids memorize the tunes of fifty of the best patriotic and classic selections of music, together with the names of the composers, so that they will be able to recognize them in the dark without the aid of magic. He learns further that the contest opens next week; that the contestants have several weeks to study, and that it is suggested that those who are able study by means of talking machine records. Then he grabs his knife and digs that paragraph right out of the page, together with the list of music that accompanies it.

Sam's first job at the store is to look over his record lists and discovers that he had about two-thirds of the selected titles in stock, and that all but two of them are to be found in the catalog. The jobber gets a rush call for records that he forgot had ever been pressed, and then Sam proceeds to work up a bit of local color, as it were. A sign in the window tells the public that he was "hep" to the fact that there is a contest going on, and that he was the baby that can help out the hard workers by supplying records of the music, the titles of the records, with the prices being attached thereto.

Then he jumps up to the school and bulls the principal and the music supervisor into the belief that without him and his machine and records the contest is going to be a fliv.

The result is that due announcement is made to the effect that Sam is going to run a little class of music study of his own in the assembly room of the school three afternoons and two evenings each week. It's not going to cost the sweet little children a jitney so long as they promise to carry home one of his circulars and a record list to pa and ma. Just checking the record list for bringing desired numbers to the home by first boy C. O. D. is the message that Sam sends with the sweet innocents.

Just so his classes won't be crowded in school Samuel insists that each bright pupil fill out a little card with papa's name and address for which he, or she, will receive a pretty little ticket admitting one to the classes. Pa gets a circular by mail, is called on by Sam, or his salesman, and digs down for at least one record, and perhaps a dozen or more.

"Music memory is a great thing," quotes Sam in his talk. "In fact, my memories of my early experiences with music are the freshest I possess. If you're going to put your girl in this contest don't let her travel under a handicap, for these records are going to give her knowledge and you pleasure. If she don't get them now she'll want them later on and then maybe I won't have them." Business with order blank follows here.

"Memorizing music is a great little stunt," declares Sam, "and if I can make these kids memorize my name and address at the same time they are filling their minds with melody the old cash register isn't going to get rusty for a few years at least."

Mr. Talking Machine Dealer, the moral is obvious!

EFFECTIVE FISCHER CO. PUBLICITY

Tells How the Pathé Phonograph Plays Its Part in "Head Over Heels"

CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—When "Mitzi," the popular musical comedy star, appeared in this city in "Head Over Heels" the Fischer Co., Pathé jobbers, used newspaper publicity to feature the fact that a Pathé phonograph was used on the stage during the entire engagement at the Euclid Avenue Opera House. Artistic advertising appeared in the Cleveland "Plain Dealer," and the illustration used in this advertising embodied a human interest appeal which contributed materially to the success of the campaign. The publicity was on a high level and won praise from experts in the advertising game.

One illustration featured "Mitzi" as she appeared in "Head Over Heels," and another picture showed this well-known "star" listening to a Pathé phonograph. Attention was called to the fact that in the Pathé library there is a record featuring the hits from this successful musical comedy, and there was also reproduced a letter written to the Fischer Co. by B. S. Bachelder, business manager for "Mitzi," which reads as follows:

"Will you be so kind as to send a Pathé phonograph to be used on the stage during the engagement of 'Mitzi' in 'Head Over Heels' at the Euclid Avenue Opera House? The Pathé phonograph was chosen by Henry W. Savage for these performances on account of its clearness and purity of tone and the excellence of its sound-projecting qualities."

SONORA BUYS HERZOG FACTORY

Plans to Build Half-Million Dollar Addition Immediately to This Well-Known Cabinet Plant in Saginaw—Management Remains the Same

The business between the Herzog Art Furniture Co. and the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. having grown so tremendously large and the relationship so intimate, it was found desirable on the part of both, in order to work the future out on a basis that would be the best for all concerned, to amalgamate the interests. After deliberation on the part of the officers of the Sonora Co. with those of the Herzog Co. arrangements were concluded in which the Sonora Co. purchased the plant of the Herzog Co., so that to-day this great cabinet factory is owned by the Phonograph Sales Co., Inc.

The advantages that the trade will derive from this step will be many. It will enable the Sonora Co. to control absolutely the policy of the cabinet factory, which will be particularly in reference to the quality of the cabinets and the increasing of the output.

Immediately upon the consummation of the deal the Sonora Co. started on large building plans which have been under consideration for some time by the Herzog Co. for the increase of the output of the plant, and a half million dollars is being invested this year in additional buildings and equipment, all of which should be completed before the end of the year. This will make the Sonora plant in Saginaw by far the largest in the city, not only in factory space, but in the number of hands employed, which will be well over 1,000. The officers and management of the cabinet factory will remain practically the same as heretofore, and only the policy will be affected.

The Rexall Drug Store, Ottawa, Ill., will add a talking machine department to its store in the near future. Alterations are now being made to accommodate several demonstration rooms which will be attractively equipped.

ENGLISH DEALER OPTIMISTIC

Tells of Increased Demand For Machines and Records in That Section of England, and Is Most Optimistic Regarding the Future

A. Hindley, the prominent musical instrument dealer at 21 Clumber street, Nottingham, Eng., in a recent letter enlisting his name as a World subscriber remarked:

"It may interest you to know that at the present time there is a tremendous demand for machines and records in this part of the country; our great difficulty is to obtain enough machines, especially the higher grade models of 'His Master's Voice' and Columbia, for which the demand is far in excess of that previous to the war.

Harold A. Hindley, who was released from the army about two months ago, has again settled down to business, which during his absence was carried on by his father.

VICTOR WAR WORK VISUALIZED

Special Supplement to "Voice of the Victor" Includes Views of Different Departments of the Great Plant Working on Hydroplanes

A special supplement in "The Voice of the Victor" for April affords an unusual opportunity for the members of the trade to visualize the great work carried on by the company during the war in aiding the Government, and emphasizes the fact that the greater portion of the facilities of the enormous plant were devoted exclusively to war work, to the production of hydroplanes, as a matter of fact.

While it was generally known that the Victor Co. was patriotically responding to the call of the Government, and making every effort to assist in war production with a view to bringing hostilities to an early and successful conclusion, it is doubtful if any members of the trade, except those actually in close touch with the factory, realized to what extent the plant was devoted to that work.

WITHDRAWS ENEMY TRADING LIST

War Trade Board Removes Restrictions on Foreign Trade Except With Germany

Acting concurrently with the competent authorities of the Associated Governments, the War Trade Board announced that on April 29, 1919, all enemy trading lists heretofore issued or compiled by the War Trade Board would be withdrawn. On and after April 29, 1919, all disabilities heretofore attached to trade and communication with persons included in such lists ceased to operate, and all persons in the United States were authorized, subject to the other rules and regulations of the War Trade Board and, except as hereinafter provided, to trade and communicate with all persons outside of the United States with whom trade and communication is prohibited by the Trading With the Enemy Act.

The foregoing action does not modify or affect in any respect the present restrictions against trade and communication between the United States and Germany or Hungary, nor does this action authorize trade with respect to any property which heretofore, pursuant to the provisions of the Trading With the Enemy Act as amended, has been reported to the Alien Property Custodian or should have been so reported to him, or any property which heretofore, pursuant to the provisions of said Act, the Alien Property Custodian has seized or has required to be conveyed, transferred, assigned, delivered or paid over to him.

The Associated Governments, in taking the foregoing action, have reserved the right to re-issue the enemy trading list and to revive the disabilities hereinabove mentioned, should such action become necessary.

SHELTON CO. IN NEW OFFICES

The Shelton Electric Co., manufacturer of the "Simplicity" electric motor, has removed its executive and sales offices from 30 East Forty-second street to 16 East Forty-second street, New York. The company has leased extensive floor space on the sixth floor of this building, and ample facilities will be afforded to handle its fast-growing business.

In a chat with The World W. Gentry Shelton, president of the company, stated that the demand for the new "Simplicity" electric motor has far exceeded all expectations. In fact, this motor has met with such an enthusiastic reception that the factory is working day and night to keep pace with the orders. Factory enlargements are now under way, and Mr. Shelton expects to be in a position to give the dealers the most efficient delivery service in the very near future.

JOINS RANKS OF BENEDICTS

The many friends in the trade of Paul L. Baerwald, the popular Eastern traveling representative for the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., will be glad to know that this well-known talking machine man has forsaken bachelorhood. Mr. Baerwald was married a few weeks ago to Miss Colette Dearborn, of New York, and after enjoying a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Baerwald leased an apartment in New York City.

Important Notice to Dealers

Why Every Dealer Should Handle The Highest Grade Phonograph Steel Needle in the World.

The WALL-KANE

First—Each WALL-KANE needle is guaranteed to play 10 records on any Phonograph, the tenth playing as clear as the first.

Second—Phonograph owners will always purchase WALL-KANE needles, since they eliminate the troublesome changing of needles after each record.

Third—WALL-KANE needles are scientifically prepared, and, by reason of special composition, are beneficial to the grooves of the record, thereby adding to its life.

Fourth—WALL-KANE needles minimize the usual scratching sound of the ordinary steel needle and greatly improve the clearness and tone of reproduction.

TEST PROPOSED TO DEALERS TO PROVE THE SUPERIORITY OF

Wall-Kane Steel Needles

Take two standard disc records of the same selection, play one ten times with the same WALL-KANE loud needle; play the other record, the same selection, ten times, but with ten new, full-tone steel needles.

You will find that the record played ten times with the same WALL-KANE needle will sound clearer, will have less surface noise, and that under the magnifying glass the grooves of the record played ten times with the ten steel needles will seem to be more disturbed.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles, Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary steel needles, retails for 15c, costs the dealer 7½c., 8c. in the Far West.

Application of Period Decoration to Talking Machine Cabinets—Early French Renaissance

There is charm and grace about the French decorative art, generally very real, sometimes rather imaginary, that appears to have a special appeal for all people of the present day who give thought to the decorative treatment of their homes, and consequently to the designs of musical instruments and other home accessories which of necessity follow, as they sometimes lead, public taste.

As has been said before, Americans have become, largely through constant use, most familiar with the details of the Louis periods, for there is no question but that the decorative art of the time of Louis XIV, XV and XVI lends itself most readily to the elaboration of modern cabinet and furniture work. There are those designers, however, who seek to get away from the beaten track, who favor the unusual, who desire to create special designs that are absolutely distinctive in their details, and for the use of such ambitious designers there are found many decorative styles in the Italian, English, Flemish as well as the French schools from which to draw on for ideas. Designers of period cabinets for talking machines have been particularly resourceful in the adaptation of period styles for such cabinets, having before them practically a virgin field open for experimenting.

Among the period styles that should appeal to talking machine cabinet designers, as well as to other decorators, for the fact that it is not generally used, although quite artistic in its details, is the style of Francois I, named after the ruler of France from 1515 to 1549, during which reign was noted the greatest development of the style known as the Early French Renaissance. This Early French Renaissance, be it said, is more Italian than French in its characteristics, and is actually a French adaptation of the Italian Renaissance style following the campaigns against Italy carried on by Charles VIII and his successor, Louis XII.

When the armies of France came back from their various inroads into Italy they brought with them the influence of the Italian decorative arts, and although the general adoption of these arts by the French began with the reign of Charles VIII, it was not until Francois I ascended the throne a quarter of a century later that the Renaissance really came into its own in France. This development was stimulated by the fact that Francois had a natural love for art, and, having sojourned in Italy for a considerable period during the war which he, too, conducted against that country, had his enthusiasm for Italy's art aroused by direct contact.

Not only was Francois a patron of such great artists as Da Vinci, Del Sarto, Cellini, Della Robbia, Primaticcio, Serlio and Vignola, but he profited by the workmanship of a horde of artists and artisans who flocked to France after the fall of the Medici family in Florence.

Having as their king such a devoted patron of art, the members of the court vied with each other in the elaborate decorations and furnishings of their palaces and homes, and the arts were therefore greatly stimulated. Francois himself began to remodel the Louvre, and finally decided to rebuild it, and it was during his reign, in 1528 to be exact, that the great palace of Fontainebleau was begun.

As was the case with practically all the early decorative forms, the Early French Renaissance style is more or less massive and full of heavy detail. It probably never will be adapted in a general way to cabinet work, but should prove most acceptable where a distinctly original design is desired for a special purpose. Its very exclusiveness should recommend it to those who demand that feature in the things they buy.

The accompanying plate sets forth some of the principal details of the Francois I period in decoration, many of them lending themselves particularly well to the treatment of panels and mouldings on cabinets. The designer who desires to be master of his craft would do well not to overlook this most interesting period of the early French Renaissance.

TWO VIEWS OF MUSIC'S VALUE

One Enjoys Its Soothing Effects, Another Likes Its Noise, But Both Buy Anyway

It is a recognized fact that two people will do the same thing from entirely different motives.

It is recorded that Beau Brummel, the celebrated dandy, had the ceiling of his bedroom covered with mirrors in order that he could study graceful posing even while at rest, while a Yorkshire gentleman had his ceiling mirrored in the same manner in order that while on his death bed he could enjoy his favorite sport of cock fighting. This plan works out in music. One serious-minded individual will rave over music for its soothing influence, while his next door neighbor will rave over music because to him music means jazz, and jazz makes his feet itch for dancing. The pleasing feature of the idea is that whatever the motive, they both buy music in record form, which is as it should be.

LEASE 3,500 SQUARE FEET OF SPACE

William Phillips, president of the Superior Phono Parts Corp., stated this week that the company had leased space at 145 Lafayette street, New York, where it has 3,500 square feet available for the manufacture of tone arms, sound boxes, etc. The company expects to announce its complete line of products very soon.

RETURNS AFTER SERVICE IN FRANCE

Over a year ago Frank W. Hennigs, assistant to Arthur Berg, musical director of the Emerson Phonograph Co., left for France as a member of the United States Army. About the same time Jack Lawrence, assistant to Harry Marker, chief recorder for the Emerson Phonograph Co., also determined to be in at the finish, and left for the front. Both of these boys have now returned, and their associates at the Emerson offices have given them a royal welcome. Frank Hennigs has returned as a sergeant and a good cook, while Jack Lawrence won the stripes of a corporal. The Emerson Co. and every member of the organization is proud of these boys, who were in the thick of the fight at Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne.

PROSPERITY IN THE SOUTH

Messrs. Shire and Giles, Traveling Representatives For the Emerson Co., Tell of Great Activity in the Talking Machine Trade at Various Points Which They Visited

William A. Shire and M. O. Giles, special traveling representatives for the Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, returned recently from a Southern and Southeastern trip which included a visit to Emerson jobbers and dealers in this territory. They state that business conditions in this section of the country are excellent, and that Emerson jobbers report a steadily-growing demand for the company's records. The new lists are meeting with popular favor, and, judging from present indications, Emerson records will enjoy a banner year in 1919.

Mr. Giles left recently to spend a few weeks with the Emerson jobber in Pittsburgh, the Emerson Sales Co. This concern is developing a splendid business in its territory, and is adding new dealers to its clientele with regularity. Mr. Giles will work in close co-operation with the company's sales organization.

MAKING PROGRESS ON NEW PLANT

Work on the new Newark Heineman plant is progressing full steam. All contracts have been let for the construction of this big plant, and it seems reasonably certain now that the wheels will be humming in the completed plant by the latter part of the fall.

Carloads of machinery of the most modern type have been ordered for fitting up the various departments, and not the minutest detail has been left unheeded which may bring about an improvement in the famous Heineman-Meisselbach motors.

As Mr. Heineman puts it in his own terse manner: "This new plant will be dedicated to our trade-mark, 'Quality,' and, what's more, it's going to live up to it, too."

DOING A GOOD BUSINESS

The Wilmington Talking Machine Co., Wilmington, Del., is doing a very good business in Victor and Columbia machines. Eugene R. Pickard, of the Queen City Cycle Co., is manager of this concern.

Do You Look Far Enough?

You've got to look behind the first cost—Look at the Organization that makes your die castings. Choose one that will work in as close harmony with you as a department of your own plant.

The ordering of die castings is not the same as buying nuts, bolts, or other standard articles. All die castings are made to order.—each job is special, and requires long experience and skill in the art of die-casting, as well as thorough appreciation of your own manufacturing problems.

The best way to be sure of getting the results you want is to have your die castings made by an organization with the necessary qualifications.

FOUR SONGS ON A SINGLE RECORD

Idea Used in Film Melodrama May Result in Another Feature of Talking Machine—Both Hill and Dale and Lateral Methods Used on Record in "The Silk-Lined Burglar"

The day may not be very far off when the music-lover can have four records in one, if we may believe the latest wrinkle brought to light by our movie scenario scientists in their search for melodrama material. In the photoplay "The Silk-Lined Burglar," in which Priscilla Dean is starring, the action of the crucial moment hangs upon the fact that two distinct messages are written in the grooves of a record, one being an ordinary aria from an opera, and the other a secret code message of a German spy.

In reproducing this record by means of the ordinary needle, only the innocent song is heard, but when a specially constructed reproducer is used the incriminating evidence is secured. The process is simple enough to those familiar with the workings of the modern talking machine. The record is cut by a double process, the song being recorded by means of the usual hill and dale method, while the secret message is cut into the side of the grooves by the lateral process. Naturally enough the ordinary needle does not transmit the vibrations from the sides of the grooves, but only from the depressions at the bottom.

This novel idea has given rise to the suggestion that it might be possible to combine the two methods of recording so that two songs could be contained in each single record, or four songs in the case of the double disc. According to a well-known recording expert this plan is entirely possible. Such an improvement would result in a great saving of material, and if it proved entirely satisfactory would be a great convenience to everyone. It would enable the dealer to carry an assortment twice his usual size without any increase of space, and in the home would make it possible to have more records in the record cabinet. In these days of inventions nothing seems to be impossible to those engaged in the art of sound reproduction in its various phases.

OVERCOMING THE STOCK SHORTAGE IN INDIANAPOLIS

Jobbers and Retailers Catching Up Slowly—Demand Continues to Grow—Some Plans for Business Expansion—Ex-Warriors Returning to Their Posts—General News of Interest to Trade

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 5.—A slight relief in the machine and record shortage is reported by the local talking machine dealers, but business in most instances is still limited to the ability to get goods.

The Edison Shop is preparing to take care of its increased business. A. H. Snyder, manager, has moved his office into the front of the record and machine demonstration hall in the basement. His old office has been turned into a demonstration booth, equipped with summer furniture, with old rose colored draperies. The walls are done in mouse-color gray. Mr. Snyder is also arranging for turning the concert hall into demonstration booths with temporary partitions in anticipation of rush during the fall months. The April Edison business was as good as last October, he reports, and the Victory Loan campaign apparently is not affecting business. George Kadel, one of the crack Edison Shop salesmen, has returned from service in France with the tank corps. Kadel gained the name of "John McCormack of the Barracks" and is singing at the Circle Theatre. Mr. Snyder hopes to have him back in the harness soon.

The demand for Sonora machines is strong, Will Carlin, of the Carlin Music Co., reports. The chief difficulty is getting enough machines to supply the demand, he says.

W. G. Wilson, manager of the Grafonola Shops, Inc., is pleased with the big Columbia record and machine business.

The talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., of which C. P. Herdman is manager, had a record month in the sale of Columbia and Windsor machines.

T. H. Bracken, manager of the Starr Piano Co. store, says the talking machine business is unusually good. The Starr phonograph is fast getting to be one of the favorites in Indiana.

The Vocalion, Columbia, Edison, Victor and Cheney machines are making fine sales records for the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., where the record business is reported as exceptionally good.

The Fuller-Ryde Music Co.'s Victor department has had a big run in Victor machines, C. J. Fuller reports. He looks for one of the biggest talking machine years in the history of the business, when stock is procurable.

E. R. Askew, manager of the Pathé Shop, pulled an effective demonstration of the army and navy model Pathé before the Indianapolis city purchasing agent and the superintendent of parks. As a result he landed an order for three of the machines, which will be used this summer in the city's recreation work.

H. A. Kendrick, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., and Lieut. R. J. Waters, who was with the company until he went into the army, visited George Standke, manager of the Brunswick Shop, last week. The Brunswick business is very good, Mr. Standke reports, being limited to the product received. Mr. Standke as colonel in charge of Sector 46 in the Victory Loan campaign is making a big record. He is as enthusiastic about selling Liberty bonds as he is in selling Brunswicks.

H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, is more than pleased with the turnover of Victor machines and records his shop has been making since its opening several weeks ago.

E. L. Lennox, of the E. L. Lennox Piano Co., is expecting a big year for his talking machine and record department. In the new location of the store it makes an ideal downtown headquarters for records.

C. O. Mueller, buyer for the talking machine department of the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributors, reports that the demand for Pathé machines and records cannot be met, but he expects the situation to ease up a bit in the near future. The supply of records from the factory is getting more normal, he says.

The only limit to the Brunswick business is the ability to get machines, Frank S. Buttweiler, manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., reports.

The talking machine department of the Taylor Carpet Co., which handles the Victor line, is getting a nice machine and record business, is the report of Miss Minnie Springer, manager.

George Stewart, vice-president of the Stewart Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, has returned to his position after a long service in the Twenty-sixth Division in France. Harry Diehl, who was a sergeant at Camp Taylor, Ky., and Frank Williams, who was in the marines, are also back on their jobs. Mr. Stewart reports that the company is selling all the Victor machines and records as fast as it receives them.

There is a great demand for the Sonora, it is reported by the Kiefer-Stewart Co., Sonora distributors, and a big record in Sonora sales is looked for this year.

Ben Brown, manager of the Columbia Co.'s wholesale office here, accompanied by Robert D. Duffey, the Kentucky traveling representative of the company, visited the New York office and Columbia branches in Buffalo and Cleveland recently. Mr. Brown said he received encouraging reports in New York and expects the supply of Columbia machines and records will increase shortly. The space in the local office has been rearranged, Mr. Brown's office being changed, and he likes the new arrangement.

The latest Columbia records were played at a meeting of Columbia dealers held at the Lincoln Hotel last week. A number of out-of-town dealers were present. Reports from all of them were that Columbia business was fine. Walter Gaunt, a factory-trained service man, has arrived to take charge of the musical and Dictaphone service department of the wholesale office.

HOW ONE TALKING MACHINE RETAILER ACHIEVED SUCCESS

Mixing Real Brains With the Service Supplied By the Manufacturer Has Resulted in the Building Up of a Business That Has Attracted Public Attention and Brought Profits

An interesting story of how one progressive Victor dealer made good by taking advantage of the company's service and mixing it with a little of his own brains is one of the features of the April issue of the "Voice of the Victor." The story has a sufficient number of suggestions to make it valuable:

"I cashed in on your advertising from the very beginning. I decided to let you 'sell the idea,' as I term it, while I planned to sell 'service.' You present all the selling arguments necessary. In all my advertising—or at least as much of it as I can directly tie up with yours—I couple my name with Victrolas, Victor records, the Victor trade-mark, and talk service. When I get new customers I keep them. For some time now it has been necessary for me to concentrate on records—in fact, ever since you started to help equip my boy and the boy 'over there' with the wherewithal to fight. My business increased, too, month after month, and it was not by selling Victrolas, although I am still Victor exclusively. Records, by the way, were difficult to secure. Here is where my 'service idea' worked out: First of all, I didn't talk service until I was prepared to give service, and whenever I could not furnish a certain record my customers seemed actually astonished. That's what a reputation has done for me. My record-ordering system is a winner—it had to be so. One clerk devotes a good part of the day to ordering records. Consequently, my stock is practically complete in spite of the shortage—so nearly complete, in fact, I have retailers refer customers to me for records they cannot supply. In turn, I sometimes go shopping and buy records myself, merely to be in a position to live up to my service claims.

of spending it. Here again I watched your publicity. You seemed to have a set plan in your 'selling the idea' campaign. Later I did some figuring, set aside certain sums to advertise certain days in the week, and then I began to get results. Later I set aside about half of my advertising appropriation for 'good-will' advertising; that is, to retain and keep my name before my customers. A portion of the balance I divided into the number of new customers secured. Thus each new customer costs me so much in dollars and cents.

"This system prompted me to make strenuous efforts to keep my customers. Several plans I tried and found wanting, but finally I concluded my mailing list was the key to my problem. To begin, I carefully sorted out 'active cards'—customers that had bought records within four months—and started an entirely new file. Then I went through the balance of the cards, divided them according to addresses, bought three small, neat sample cases large enough to hold twenty-four records, talked with one of my clerks on the plan, selected a dozen of the cards showing the customers' record purchases, and he started on a scouting expedition. He politely informed the lady answering his ring that he had been sent to inspect the Victrola. He then tested the speed of the turntable, oiled the motor, tested the sound box. He carried three extra boxes with him. In case the sound box needed adjusting it was brought in and the extra box left with the customer, in order not to deprive them of music in the interim. Then, to test the machine, he played some of the new records. Well, it was a great stunt. He came back with four records. This intensive selling plan has been a regular feature of my business ever since. My 'special attention' file was a paying proposition from its inception. On one trip a short time back one of my clerks carried ten 'Smiles.' Sounds foolish, doesn't it, when 'Smiles' were so hard to get? But it was a definite plan suggested by the clerk. Picture this: The clerk would casually slip on 'Smiles,' and sell it. Mrs. So-and-So drops in, hears it, asks, 'Where did you get it?' That should give the store of service a boost. Customers that fail to buy within a four-month period are automatically placed in the 'special attention' file. It gives me at a glance a line on the progress I am making, enables me to make special efforts at a time when special efforts will pay. Then, too, it keeps the customer from losing interest. It costs something in time and money, but you know it also cost me something to sell them originally, hence when I 'make 'em' I try to 'keep 'em.'

"I continually follow the leads you give when you place a big advertisement, designed to 'sell the idea,' in the newspaper. I follow you so closely 'selling service' that I almost consider it all my own publicity. When you send me an announcement of a special record I likewise send my customer a special announcement. If it pays you it ought to pay me. I am constantly stepping on your heels with my service ideas. After some years of this 'follow the leader' I am beginning to have a pretty healthy respect for that much-abused word 'Service.' It compels me to stand on my toes constantly. More than that, it's the principal reason why I came to Camden to ask you about installing six new demonstrating booths. Saturdays used to be 'big days.' If a store full of customers is any guide every day is 'Saturday' in my business now.

"Keep right on 'selling the idea' and sending me the ideas. My business should run into six figures next year unless I have failed in my calculations."

This Victor dealer has truly found the secret of success—it centers in "service" and no dealer should overlook this fact.

WHAT HAVE YOU TO SELL?

We purchase in any quantity, anything you have for sale in the talking machine industry. The larger the quantity the better we like it. We can use cabinets, motors, tone arms, reproducers, springs, tabulators, micas, machine screws, wood screws, etc., etc., in job lots, or regular merchandise if the price is satisfactory. "EMERSONIAN" MAKES ITS DEBUT

New House Organ For Distribution and Dealers Will Be Edited by A. H. Cushman

Emerson distributors and dealers were introduced this week to the Emersonian, the new house organ published monthly by the Emerson Phonograph Co. in the interest of and for distributors and dealers of Emerson records. This publication succeeds the Emerson Spotlight, and, judging from present indications, the new house organ will be received enthusiastically by every member of the Emerson sales organization.

Arthur H. Cushman, director of sales for the Emerson Phonograph Co., is editor of this new publication, and his many years of merchandising experience and knowledge of retail selling problems and policies will undoubtedly enable him to make the Emersonian a practical and valuable publication.

The May issue contains a number of excellent articles that deserve to be read with interest by Emerson distributors and dealers everywhere. Several of these articles are illustrated, and the May Emersonian as a whole is a most attractive house organ.

Sometimes it is not well for a talker salesman to become a talkative salesman—he can often win his point by listening.

JOSEPH WOLFF LEAVES FOR EUROPE

Treasurer of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., to Visit England, France and Switzerland—Entertained at Luncheon Previous to Departure—Has Important Plans for Future

Sailing on the "Adriatic," leaving New York the latter part of April, Joseph Wolff, treasurer of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., accompanied by his wife, left for an extended trip through England, France and Switzerland. Prior to his departure he was given a surprise in the form of a farewell luncheon, at which over a score of men connected with the Sonora organization were present.

In England Mr. Wolff will visit London and other important cities, and will confer with the head of Sonora's export department, A. F. Bramley, who went abroad a short time ago and who has now a good grasp on the present situation in the leading continental countries.

After studying the British export situation Mr. Wolff will go to Paris for a short time and then pay a rather lengthy visit to the Sonora motor plant at St. Croix, Switzerland, where he will aid in laying out and have executed plans which will result in a greatly increased motor supply for his company.

At this time many improvements in the motor which have been worked out in this country and abroad will be introduced, and the Sonora motors will have many important improvements which will make them surpass their present very remarkable performances. After completing his work in Switzerland Mr. Wolff will return by a route which he has not as yet determined, possibly through England or Spain.

The increase in the output of Sonora motors will be pleasant news for Sonora dealers, because it means a greatly increased output. It may be mentioned here that a 75 per cent. increase in Sonora output is anticipated by August, and it is hoped and believed that the 1919 output of instruments will be two and one-half times as great as 1918, and even with this great increase it looks as though the demand will still continue to be far ahead of the supply.

TALKING MACHINES AND PIANOS

ANTIGO, Wis., May 6.—The Ravencroft-Jewell Jewelry Co. has been organized by H. E. Ravencroft and Harry E. Jewell to take over and continue the retail jewelry business of Fred W. Albright, who is engaging in the wholesale business at Chicago. The new owners are enlarging the scope of the business by adding a complete piano and talking machine department, which will be supervised by Mr. Jewell. He is an experienced member of the music trade and intends to install a very fine talking machine department.

“Have You Plenty of B&H Needles Home?”

—progressive dealers everywhere are asking this of each record customer

Nothing is quite so effective in making extra sales—and extra profits, of course—as a question of this sort.

Folks with genuine love for music hardly need to be reminded when they are “out” of B & H Fibre Needles. For they realize that in order fully to protect their investment in the costlier records, B & H Fibre Needles are the one and only thing to have.

“No wear on the record, no hiss in the tone!”

How many of your customers wouldn't like to avail themselves of these exclusive B & H Fibre Needle advantages? And how many would fail to feel free about buying more of your higher-priced, bigger-profit records because of them?

SELF-SERVICE RECORD FIXTURES

Columbia Co. Announce New Six-Wing Record Display Fixture and Record Service Plan That Will Make a Wide Appeal to Dealers

The dealer service department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. announce a new six-wing record display wall fixture and record service plan that is based on the old-established and successfully proven merchandising idea of "self service," which is substantially founded on human curiosity. Many businesses have thrived catering to and offering facilities and inducements to the public to "come in and look around," basing their sales possibilities solely upon the attractiveness of their merchandise to appeal through the eye.

The success of the famous five and ten-cent, Pigley-Wigley and department stores is attributable to this merchandising principle carried out in having all the goods on the shelves or tables, where shoppers are at liberty to see, touch and select the articles personally.

Notable among many are the book shops, where the major sales directly result from purchases of books selected by the shoppers themselves, who have been invited to walk about among the display tables and permitted to look at and finger the books, unapproached by salesmen until personal service is desired.

The Columbia self-service record fixture plan has been evolved to meet certain requirements and to perform definite functions. Its operation, as finally developed for Columbia dealers' use, is the result of many successfully applied experiments in dealers' shops and a close study of retailers' requirements. In its final form the plan presents many attractions and inducements to dealers with the possible objections eliminated.

"As heretofore," says the Columbia Co.'s dealer service department, "the requests and desires of your customers should be just as courteously and carefully met and the same or a greater amount of personal salesman's time and attention should be granted a customer who, by word or action, prefers to play the record from the fixture herself. She should be unhurriedly permitted to sell herself, with merely an occasional visit to inquire if there is anything desired, and an effort made to suit her with selections from stock similar in character to those chosen from the display fixture.

"Occasions are bound to occur when a salesman cannot always return to a booth on time to change the record. Instead of the awkward wait for assistance, with the customer's growing impression that she is asking too much time and attention, and the natural wish to get out and call again—which is bad for business—the 'Record Service' display will give the waiting customer something to do to relieve this situation and tend toward increasing sales. There is the same opportunity for the salesman to take a customer into a booth and try over the records requested, but the most versatile and active salesman cannot cover the entire record range in the limited time with a customer, especially if the store is busy. He can, however, personally sell, as he has done in the past, with additional exceptionally good possibilities of striking a peculiar fancy in bringing the customer's attention, through the medium of his record service display, to selections that would not otherwise be considered.

"Twenty-one caption insert cards have been provided under which any record in the Columbia catalog may be included. These insert cards are divided into two classes: General classification, under which records may be displayed of which there is over-stock, and those of particular merit from a recording or a musical value, and specific musical classifications under which records of a definite character are required.

"On the back of each of these inserts are record numbers and suggestions for the dealer to follow in selecting the records to display in the record service fixture.

"It has often been proven that people rely on others' recommendations and suggestions, especially in the purchase of music. The dealer may conveniently and attractively carry out the 'personally recommended' idea in the record service fixtures by keeping the six wings always filled and constantly-changing the display either by selecting other records and inserting different captions, or by transferring the different displays among the record rooms—the oftener the better."

INTRODUCE NEW SONORA MODEL

The Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has just introduced a new model named the "Nocturne," which replaces the "Fantasie" model. The "Nocturne" retails at $140, and deliveries of this new model started last month. Sonora dealers are receiving it with considerable favor, and it bids fair to become one of the most popular models in the Sonora line.

The "Nocturne" is provided with the popular Sonora envelope filing system, and in tone quality is in complete accord with the distinctive merits of the Sonora line. The cabinet is somewhat larger in size than the "Fantasie," and presents a more artistic appearance.

James K. O'Dea, the well-known Brunswick dealer of Paterson, N. J., has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Gloucester, Mass. The salt air evidently did him much good, for he is full of plans and ideas for the coming season.

THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., May 2.—The Fifth Liberty Loan has the call in this city and New England at this writing. Never behind in offering its money for the use of the Government the local trade again is to the fore, and by the time the period for subscriptions has expired the talking machine business will have been found to maintain its high prestige as a liberal supporter of the war and all that is associated with it.

Decorated for the Soldiers

The return of the Twenty-sixth Division was made much of in Boston and the representatives of the trade, especially along the route of the parade—the like of which has never been seen before—quite outdid themselves in the way of decoration. Such houses as M. Steinert & Sons, the Oliver Ditson Co., Chickering & Sons, C. C. Harvey, Hallet & Davis, the Aeolian, A. M. Hume Co. and others made more or less elaborate displays. Their employes had an excellent chance to view the parade, and there was more than ordinary interest as in the line of march were several boys—employes of the various houses.

Review of Trade Conditions

The telephone strike proved exceedingly inconvenient to the talking machine houses, for there is a large amount of business done by 'phone call. The strike lasted six days, and during that time business fell off considerably in some places, although as was to be expected there was a heavier mail during that period. There was a sigh of relief when the strikers returned to work. Business for April was unusually good on the whole, and there is a general feeling throughout the trade that from now on the improvement will be rapid. One thing is particularly noticeable: that with the announcement of new records there is an extremely sudden demand, and first consignments are quickly exhausted.

Columbia Dealers Meet

There was a well-attended meeting of Columbia dealers at the Copley-Plaza a while ago, and again was it demonstrated that the grill room in the basement of the hotel is an admirable place for a talk and demonstration, such as these periodic conferences are. Manager Fred E. Mann presided in his usual affable, easy manner, and his gracious introduction of George W. Hopkins, the company's general sales manager, and Miss Amparito Farrar, soprano, left no doubt in the minds of the dealers that he is an apt, impromptu speaker, who can when circumstances require it, sit down and play the accompaniments for any singer that may happen along. Mr. Hopkins gave a snappy talk, one that was chock full of live informing matter which dealers could absorb with profit to themselves. Miss Farrar, who made a distinct impression through a pleasing personality as well as the possession of a beautiful voice, sang several of the numbers which she has recorded for the Columbia, and the dealers got a good idea of what they may anticipate for good sellers later. The evening was an altogether delightful one, one of the best, in fact, that have been held under Manager Mann's supervision this winter and spring.

Expansion of Pathé Trade

The Pathé line carried here by Hallet & Davis Co. is making commendable strides in the New England and neighboring territories, but Manager R. O. Ainslie is finding it difficult to fill the demand. There are many talking machine dealers who are anxious to take on this line, but in view of the scarcity of goods Manager Ainslie has hesitated until he can see his way clearly ahead. He has been over in New York several times lately in an endeavor to get larger shipments of machines so that he can cover the field more effectually. Within the past few weeks the only new dealer signed up is F. S. Greene, of Westerly, R. I., who is developing a good business with the Pathé. The record business has been keeping pace with the machines, and all the latest hits are being eagerly purchased and in large quantities. Manager Ainslie has considerably rearranged his Pathé department on the fourth floor of the Hallet & Davis Boylston street headquarters, which gives him a large space for records.

Rejoins the Columbia Co.

Timothy Hayes, who was mentioned last month as having gone to one of the retail shops following his discharge from service, remained there only a few weeks, and is now back with his first love, the Columbia Co., at its Federal street wholesale quarters, where he is now head bookkeeper. Mr. Hayes is familiar with both the wholesale and retail ends of the Columbia proposition.

To Develop Foreign Record Trade

J. C. Stone, an Armenian, has been engaged by the Eastern Talking Machine Co., and will devote his attention to the foreign record department. The young man speaks five languages, and it is believed he will prove a valuable acquisition to General Manager Shoemaker's forces.

New Emerson Agencies

The Emerson Gold Seal records are having a big sale from the headquarters of the Emerson New England, which is now well located in its new quarters in Essex street. Manager Oscar W. Ray has a well-appointed private office, but he is not spending much time there these past few days, for he is flitting here and there engaged as is his large staff in stock taking. Manager Ray has lately placed as new agents for his output the L. M. Pierce Co., of Springfield; the Central Optical Co., at 26 Lisbon street, Lewiston, Me.; Manuel B. Francis, in New Bedford, and John M. Leonard, in Hallowell, Me.

Arthur H. Cushman, president of the Emerson New England, was a Boston caller a while ago, and others who honored the offices with a visit were B. R. Forster, the president, and H. W. Acton, the secretary of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., for which product, by the by, the Emerson New England is having a big demand.

Harry Beach a Visitor

Harry Beach, manager of the traveling department of the Victor Co., was in town a week ago and was taken through the territory by Robert Steinert, manager of the Arch street Victor department of the Steinert Co. Mr. Beach was well pleased at the volume of business done here and by the general conduct of the stores.

Ernest John a Visitor

Ernest John, editor and manager of "The Voice of the Victor," was a Boston visitor for a brief period about the middle of the month. He paid his respects to the various Victor dealers in the city and was given a pleasant welcome everywhere he visited.

Some Personals

Miss Anna Cronin, formerly an employe of the Victor department of the Steinert house, is now working under Manager White at the C. C. Harvey Co., where she is getting experienced in both the Victor and Edison lines.

C. E. Sheppard, the eastern Massachusetts traveling man for the Columbia, spent the Easter holidays in Philadelphia, where he has a young son. The vacation gave him a much-needed rest.

J. H. Burke Now in Charge

Richard M. Nelson, who has lately been turning his attention to the promotion of a theatrical enterprise, has severed his connection with the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., distributors for the Sonora, and Joseph H. Burke, who has been his assistant, now sits at the desk directing the local destinies of the concern. As acting manager Mr. Burke has the advantage of a good training received as Mr. Nelson's associate, and he has been so apt a student of the affairs of this business that he is the logical successor. Since the first of the year, says Manager Burke, there has been a big demand for the Sonora line, and the output is only governed by the amount of goods the local distributing center can secure. Manager Burke reports a phenomenal success with the Sonora silvered needle, which is now carried by fully twenty Boston houses.

J. O. Morris, the president, and H. E. Page, the treasurer of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., were here from New York a short time ago, and another caller was Paul L. Baerwald, sales manager of the OkeH records, for which this local house is finding a most encouraging call.

Mrs. G. P. Naylor, who, when she first associated herself with the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., was Miss Gertrude P. West, is severing her secretarial position in a few weeks. Now that her young husband is out of the naval service he is taking her to Denver, Colo., his home city, where he is to go in business with his father. The young woman has been a valued employe.

Sympathy for Roy F. Ott

The sympathy of the trade goes out to Roy F. Ott, the western Massachusetts traveling man for the Columbia Co., in the loss of his wife, who passed away at the home of her father, Joseph M. Bradley, at Huntsville, Ala. Her

IMPROVE SPRINGFIELD DEPARTMENT

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 4.—Important improvements have been completed in the phonograph department of the Adaskin Furniture Co. of this city and in its central location it is better prepared than ever before to meet the needs of a growing trade. B. C. Tillinghast, the manager, is well versed in the tastes of the buying public, for having been with Columbia stores, notably in Providence, he is able to send all the patrons away happy.

Another local establishment to make important renovations is that of the Franz-Yahn Service, located in Court Square. E. C. Fletcher, with a corps of assistants, is kept very busy.

INCREASING AMBEROL PRODUCTION

The daily production of the Edison Blue Amberol and Royal Purple records has been increased nearly 50 per cent. This increase in production has been obtained by the installation of new batteries of machines, increased force and increased space—larger quarters made necessary by this additional equipment.

This speeding up of the manufacture of Amberol records has been at no sacrifice of quality, but on the contrary the Amberol records are better now than ever before. The rigid inspection to which they have always been subjected is even stricter than previously. This improvement in quality has been largely due to Mr. Edison's personal interest in this work.

Herewith is reproduced a facsimile of the new catalog of the Edison Amberol records for 1919, which is now ready for distribution. It is a pretentious book of considerable technical excellence and artistic attractiveness.

ENCOURAGED OVER TRADE OUTLOOK

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 1.—Piper & McIntyre of this city are greatly encouraged over the splendid spring trade which they have been having these past several weeks. They have lately installed a new set of booths and are carrying the Victor, Edison and Columbia lines, for all of which they are finding a ready sale.

E. M. Morgan, who travels in the Boston territory for the Columbia, was married early in April to Miss Dorothy Darr at Wilkesburg, Pa. Mr. Morgan and his bride enjoyed only a short honeymoon, as he was obliged to get back on the job as soon as possible, owing to the rush of business. The couple are establishing themselves in Arlington.

Miss Amparito Farrar Visits Trade

When Miss Amparito Farrar, the soprano soloist, was in town in the interests of the Columbia-recital she had the pleasure of meeting first-hand a number of the leading Columbia dealers of the city, for the day after the Copley-Plaza conference she was escorted around the city by J. F. Carr of Manager Mann's staff and introduced to the trade. The singer was most gracious everywhere, and she was delighted at the finely-appointed shops the Columbia maintains in this city.

Aeolian Co. Auditor in Town

Thomas Pritchett, branch auditor of the Aeolian Co., was in town the latter part of April, having come from the Central West. He made his headquarters with Manager Hindley and his visit here covered a week. Manager Hindley has installed a new and handsome background to the show window, this being a large fivefold screen not unlike one that was there early in the winter with this difference: That whereas that one contained a series of panel pictures that depicted phases of the war the present one is suggestive of peace and summertime.

Miss Hennessy a Visitor

A recent visitor to Boston was Miss Jane Hennessy, manager of the talking machine department of the Tilden-Thurber Corp., Providence, R. I. When seen at the Vocalion Co.'s headquarters she was enthusiastic about conditions in her territory. This house handles the Vocalion, Victor and Brunswick machines.

OPENS STORE IN LYNN, MASS.

LYNN, MASS., May 1.—H. H. Crooker, who formerly had been associated with the C. C. Harvey Co., in Boylston street, Boston, has gone into business for himself and has opened a handsome Columbia and Edison shop at 31 Munroe street, this city. On the opening day the place was filled with flowers sent Mr. Crooker by the many friends which he made during his years in business. On that occasion he featured several handsome Columbia period models. Mr. Crooker's shop is beautifully finished. It has four soundproof booths, and the display department is done in mission style. He has associated with him Mrs. McClellan, who was formerly with the Harvey Company's Lynn store. Mr. Crooker has a fine location and there is every indication that good business is ahead for him.

ELECTED PRESIDENT AT AGE OF 23

Ben H. Sugerman, Brookline, Mass., has been elected president of the Rosen Talking Machine Co., of Boston. The new president is only twenty-three years of age, but possesses unusual executive ability and has been largely responsible for the success of the company. He has recently installed, on the second floor of his store, a concert room, where the latest releases are played for the public on the 1st, 10th and 20th of each month. The record library is one of the largest in the city and is at all times well supplied with all the popular sellers.

COLUMBIA LINE IN FITCHBURG

FITCHBURG, MASS., May 5.—The Lemay Furniture Co., having found there was a big call for the Columbia line, has taken this one on, and the department given over to the exhibit and demonstration of the line is a particularly attractive one. SCHLOSS BROS. ISSUE NEW CATALOG

Record, Music and Music Roll Cabinets, as Well as Piano Benches in Many Attractive Designs and Finishes, Shown in New Booklet

Schloss Bros., the well-known New York cabinet manufacturers, have just issued a new catalog showing their complete line of disc records, sheet music and player roll cabinets, together with piano benches. The catalog is gotten up in an attractive manner and carries illustrations of practically all their leading models.

Schloss Bros. have long been known as manufacturers of quality cabinets for the talking machine industry, but the sheet music and player roll cabinets and benches for pianos and player-pianos are recent additions to their line. These are produced in a number of styles to meet the various needs of the trade, and models can be obtained in mahogany, golden oak, weathered oak, fumed oak and early English designs. Some of the models are quite elaborate and most artistic in design. These mostly run in mahogany models. Their line of benches is most complete and they no doubt will be of interest to members of the trade.

Mr. Maxwell has manifested a keen interest in the various industrial problems that the end of the war has brought about. He was invited by the Government to be a member of the commission which went to England in January to study conditions abroad and which has recently made its report, but was unable at that time to absent himself from business for a trip across the water.

COMBINE ART AND PUBLICITY

Recent Artistic Illustrative Conceits in Advertising OkeH Song and Dance Records

If there is one proverb which is forevermore tabooed in the OkeH record advertising department it is "There is nothing new under the sun,"

A Clever Conceit

to use Laszlo Schwartz's words on the subject.

"That may have been the case before advertising became an art, but it has certainly been disproved ever since literary talent and the artist with brush and pen have joined hands in their effort to create original and artistic advertisements.

"The latest innovation in the advertising of the new OkeH song and dance hits derives its effectiveness from the fact that the principal element which makes a song popular is its appeal to our sentiment or to our sense of humor. The artistic title illustrations used in the latest OkeH advertising literature bring forth a cycle of surprises, each and every one of which tells a story all its own.

"This old world of ours is in need of a bit of fun right now, and these 'tiny pills of good cheer' coming in the company of the tuneful OkeH records will do their bit to spread just a little more sunshine."

A SUCCESSFUL SALESMAN

F. A. Hintermeister, of Scranton, Pa., Is Firm Believer in Highest Selling Ideals

One of the most successful Edison dealers in the opinion of E. C. Boykin, of the Phonograph Corp. of Manhattan, is F. A. Hintermeister, of Scranton, Pa., who handles the Edison exclusively. He is a loyal adherent to the best principles in selling, and never resorts to price-cutting or selling at less than proper terms. During the six months ending last December his books showed a net profit of $8,000. He attributes his success to activities on the road and says: "If all purchasers could have the attention they are entitled to there would be no end of prospects and sales. By coming in contact with our customers we are developing two strong points. One is to make a satisfied customer, and the other is to get prospects for future business."

R. MONTALVO EXPANDS BUSINESS

R. Montalvo, the well-known talking machine dealer of New Brunswick, N. J., has taken over the store adjoining his present quarters in that city, and with the same idea in view has added two new Overland trucks to the fleet now in service, making ten in all. Mr. Montalvo recently purchased the talking machine business of Vogel & Briggs in Plainfield, N. J.

GREY GULL RECORDS

In both Lateral and Hill and Dale

We can now take on a few—not many—of the best independent distributors.

Quantity production is in sight, and those distributors who contract with us can be certain we will back them up with all the records they can sell. We have steadfastly declined to undertake any obligations we could not fulfill.

Our policy is to build broad and deep, with a greater regard to our business ten years from now than to the immediate future.

The records we make are the product of fourteen months of exacting laboratory research. Not a single selection was placed on the market during this period although we could easily have manufactured many thousands every month. Our entire effort was concentrated on the production of a RECORD which could carry the Grey Gull Trade-Mark with credit in any company.

Distributors of the better class are invited to correspond with us, stating their needs and whether they are interested in the Lateral cut or the Hill and Dale cut, or both.

UNUSUAL PROSPERITY PREVAILING IN PITTSBURGH TRADE

Optimism Universal, Owing to Enormous Demand for Machines and Records—Standard Co.'s Victor Record Demonstration—Sonora Activity in Pittsburgh—Buehn & Co. Lease New Quarters

PITTSBURGH, PA., May 5.—The month of April will go down in the history of the Pittsburgh talking machine trade as one of the most prosperous from a business standpoint that has been chronicled in many years. On all sides there have been a tremendous number of sales of machines and records, and there is a most pronounced feeling of optimism in the trade here. This busy season has led to the development of larger and more commodious quarters by jobbers, as well as retail dealers, and it can be safely assumed that the year 1919 will be one of the "fat" years for the industry.

With the enterprise that has been so signal a feature of the Standard Machine Co., the matter of demonstrating the Victor records for each month is an innovation that has worked out exceedingly well. The dealers' demonstration at which the June Victor records were used was held at the Fort Pitt Hotel on Friday evening, May 2. A number of the principal Victor retail dealers were the guests of the Standard Co. at dinner, after which the demonstration took place. A XIV Victrola was used. The Standard Co. was represented by J. C. Roush, the president, French Nestor and Wallace Russell. This method is one that proves very satisfactory, as it affords ample opportunity for the dealers to get the "right line" on the new records and to exchange ideas that will be useful in the selling campaign.

John Fisher, the well-known and popular manager of the Victor department of the C. C. Mellor Co., reports trade as very brisk both in the jobbing and retail department. The month of April, he stated, showed a marked increase in the business over the same period a year ago. All that he needs, he said, was more Victrolas and more Victor records.

"Our business has shown a marked increase in the past month, and the only handicap that we are laboring under is the lack of sufficient Sonora phonographs to fill our orders with," said H. Milton Miller, the Pittsburgh manager of the Sonora jobbing agency. Mr. Miller stated that the popularity of the Sonora phonograph was growing very fast, and that the dealers found it easy to dispose of them, and he predicted that the present season would be a banner one for that line in the Pittsburgh territory. The sales department is under the capable management of Phil Kauffman, who is well known to the talking machine trade. Mr. Kauffman recently returned from Philadelphia, where he attended a conference of the Sonora sales forces and where plans were made for the Sonora offices to henceforth act as distributors for the OkeH records.

Another service feature of the Pittsburgh Sonora office is the establishment of a service department. By means of the new department all repair work of Sonora phonographs will be attended to, and dealers who have repair problems can assure their patrons of prompt service right at home. Mr. Kauffman stated that the "Baby Grand" and "Trovatore" styles of the Sonora were the leading sellers. The Sonora jobbing offices are located in the Jenkins Arcade, and the large show windows afford ample facilities for the display of the various styles of machines. Directly opposite the Arcade corridor are the offices of Gray & Martin, retail dealers of the Sonora.

The S. Hamilton Co. have opened a new piano and talking machine shop at 902 Wood street, Wilkesburg. The new place will be under the direction of Miss Hazel McLean. The Columbia Grafonola and Columbia records will be featured.

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers, in order to meet the increased demands on their wholesale and jobbing department have leased quarters in Stevenson & Foster Building on Seventh avenue, which will be utilized exclusively for the jobbing trade. A. A. Buehn, president and general manager of the company, stated to The World representative that the Edison phonographs and Edison records were in constant demand, and that the present wholesale and jobbing quarters located on the upper floors of the Buehn Building on Wood street was found entirely inadequate for the business. In the new building there will be 10,000 square feet of floor space, and when the work under way is completed the Edison jobbing offices will be a model.

The retail business, under the able management of M. M. Mitchell, will be conducted as at present, and there will be additional booths and display rooms installed.

H. C. Hornberger, manager of the Kaufmann & Baer Co. talking machine department, stated that sales were keeping up at a remarkable rate. Mr. Hornberger has under his direction a large department in which the Victrola, Aeolian-Vocalion and Columbia Grafonola are on sale as well as the records of the three instruments. The show and demonstration rooms are well arranged and Mr. Hornberger has an efficient corps of assistants.

"Our April sales were highly flattering, and the indications are for a continuance of the brisk business that we have been experiencing," said S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh Columbia Graphophone offices. One of the admirable features of the Columbia here is the service department, which has been of great advantage to the Columbia retail dealers.

H. J. Brennan, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Pathéphone Co., just returned from a business trip through the territory served by the company here. He stated that the demand for Pathé machines and Pathé records was quite pronounced. "Our business this past April showed a marked increase over that of April a year ago. I see only a bright future ahead."

Miss Bessie Finkelstein, office manager of the Pathé Shop, has resigned and will launch on the sea of matrimony very soon. Her fiancé is Samuel Case, of St. Louis.

"The Brunswick business is moving along at a very brisk rate, and the only handicap is the lack of certain styles of machines that our trade is calling for," said J. A. Endres, manager of the Pittsburgh distributing offices of the Brunswick. It was pointed out that as fast as consignments of Brunswick machines are received at the local offices they are sent out to dealers and for every machine there is often two or three applicants.

A. R. Meyer, manager of the talking machine department of the Joseph Horne Co., stated that it was the "old story" of not having enough merchandise to supply the demand. He, however, said that he was optimistic and felt sure that there were good times ahead when the normal status of the talking machine trade would return. Mr. Meyer, in addition to caring for the department, is secretary of the Pittsburgh Talking Machine Dealers' Association.

Herman Lechner, of Lechner & Schoenberger, dealers in the Victrola, Columbia and Edison lines, who is in direct charge of the talking machine department, said that business in all three lines was very brisk. When The World representative called at the department every one of the booths was occupied, and there were many patrons waiting their turn. It is understood that the firm is planning to enlarge.

M. O. Giles, Southern representative of the Emerson Phonograph Co., spent several weeks in Pittsburgh conferring with Jacob Hirsh, Pittsburgh manager of the Emerson Sales Co., and incidentally advising the sales forces.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, returned from a sojourn in Florida.

George W. H. Rewbridge, manager of the Victor jobbing department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., spent several days recently at the Victor plant at Camden, N. J.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR FRITZSCH CO.

Chas. Wiedemann, Stockholder in Cincinnati Talking Machine Concern, Brings Suit to Bring About Change in Company Control

CINCINNATI, O., May 3.—Charles Wiedemann, interested financially in the Fritzsch Phonograph Co., this city, Thursday, May 1, filed suit for the purpose of securing a receiver for that corporation. The company has a capitalization of $100,000, and he says $6,000 of common stock has been issued, and he holds 199 of the common stock and a like amount of the preferred stock. On October 3, 1917, the company borrowed $10,000 from the American National Bank, Newport, Ky., which has been reduced to $4,000. Mr. Wiedemann declares that he deposited his personal bonds as collateral for this loan and that the bank is now pressing for the balance of the amount due. He says the company owns valuable patents, but because of inefficient management has failed to produce and sell phonographs at a profit or in sufficient amount to fill orders promptly. Mr. Wiedemann wants the business continued. His son, Carl, is the treasurer.

MORRIS OWENS AGAIN IN HARNESS

Morris Owens, who resigned as a member of the traveling staff of the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, in order to "do his bit" in the recent war, returned from France a few weeks ago. Mr. Owens has rejoined the New York Talking Machine Co.'s sales organization and will be connected with the executive offices, working in close co-operation with the company's dealers.

The Sandersville Music Co., Edison dealers of Sandersville, Ga., did a remarkable business last year in the land where cotton is king. In a town of 2,500 people they sold over 200 Amberola and disc instruments in one season.

TALKING MACHINE SURVIVES STORM

Old Model of Edison Home Phonograph the Only Thing Not Demolished by Storm in Nebraska—Came Through Without a Scratch

One of the strange freaks which often happen during the cyclones in the Middle West was brought to light by the story from a little town in Nebraska in which an Edison home phonograph was the only thing to survive the storm. The home of A. Dockweiler was entirely demolished, his wife killed and he himself hurled some distance by the violence of the wind. In the midst of the wreck of house and furniture was found the talking machine without a scratch and ready for duty as if nothing at all had happened. Truly a remarkable happening.

SOME RECENT SONORA VISITORS

Recent callers at the Sonora executive offices, 279 Broadway, New York, included I. Montagnes, Sonora jobber at Toronto, who has arranged to start an energetic campaign, featuring the new Sonora semi-permanent silvered needles in Canada. A caller from the "City of Brotherly Love" was Pierson Cummings, of the Elite Phonograph Corp., which has secured a splendid location at 1311 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa., where an exclusive Sonora retail store has been opened. Mr. Cummings, who has been connected with the National Cash Register Co. and other large industrial corporations, is enthusiastic regarding the outlook for the Sonora line in Philadelphia.

From Buffalo, N. Y., excellent reports were given by Mr. Schwegler, of Schwegler Bros., in that city, who commented particularly upon the sales possibilities and musical merits of the new Sonora wooden tone arm equipment. Mr. Fink, of the Kranz-Fink Talking Machine Co., Baltimore, was another recent visitor at the Sonora offices, stating that this was his first visit to New York in about two years, as he had been too busy selling phonographs to leave his store for any length of time.

Gentlemen:-

Kindly mail me five packages of "Tonofone" needles, for which I enclose fifty cents in postage stamps.

I have tried out various makes of so-called semi-permanent needles, including the much advertised ~~Needles~~ "Needles", but have found nothing that in any way can compare with the "Tonofone" samples received from you a short time ago through your advertisement in the Talking Machine World. You simply cannot boost the "Tonofone" needle enough.

It takes only a trial to convince one of this. Kindly advise me by whom the Tonofone is carried in stock in either San Francisco or Oakland, Calif. If you are not represented by a jobber in this locality, may I take the liberty to suggest your taking up the matter with Mr. Walter S. Gray, Jobber of Talking Machine Accessories, Chronicle Bldg., San Francisco? I do not wish to appear presumptuous, but would like to see your product on sale in every phonograph store in the country, that is how much I think of it.

Yours truly,

P. G. Classman

Above letter speaks for itself—it is just one of many from dealers and music lovers everywhere. Tonofone is different—it is to other needles what the Nightingale is to the Bluejay. It is semi-permanent—it is universal in tone. One needle will play record after record (50 or more) loud or soft—each in its true tone and volume, in all its original purity—without squeak, squawk or scratch. Picture at right shows how they are packed. Price to dealers $6.00 net, per carton, delivered—immediate shipment.

Our "money-back" guarantee protects you absolutely.

THE GRAMOPHONE'S "RECORD"

Autobiography of a Machine That Cheered the Soldiers on the British Front

The following brief, although interesting, "autobiography" of a war-time gramophone was recently contributed to the Daily Express of London, England, and is worthy of repetition:

"Has nobody a kind word to say for the gramophone's 'little bit' in the war?"

"As a veteran gramophone myself, I think it is hard that we who have sung and played the music of home to our fighting men should ourselves remain unsung and unhonored.

"Look at me—a soldier's gramophone and honestly proud of myself. Perhaps I'm getting a bit wheezy in my motor, but it is surprising how a few new records even now will act as a tonic on one. I have been up the line with the boys, and count my scars as honors. I've played 'Destiny' in a dugout an hour before zero time, and then again the same evening in what had been a German trench.

"I had a short spell in a base hospital once, and have seen faces drawn with pain break into smiles as I gave them the music that reminded them of home. It was here that I was paid a great compliment. 'Sister' said: 'Well, I always hated gramophones, but now I see I didn't understand what they meant. Since this instrument came the dear fellows all seem twice as cheerful and bright. It has proved the doctor's best friend.'

"What a tribute, eh?"

"No one had to persuade me to play. It did not matter to me whether it was an excerpt from a Beccham opera, a Guards band selection, an old-fashioned ballad, a Pachmann pianoforte solo, or the latest comic song. Whatever it was, it was 'Blighty' music for some one, and I was there if I was wanted.

"Some of the records got a bit scratchy and worn out, but that again only went to show how my music was appreciated. And while I've got a motor that will hang together I ask nothing better than to keep on keepin' on alongside of the boys who have made the world a fit place to live in.

"Afterward? Well, they can scrap me and welcome, but I fancy after what my fellow gramophones and I have done out here there will be a warm corner for us in many a thousand hearts and homes when we all get back again."

THE KAY TALKING MACHINE CO.

New Concern Chartered to Take Over Retail Business of Blackman Talking Machine Co.

Among the recent incorporations chartered under the laws of New York State was the Kay Talking Machine Co., which is the name of the company that took over on May 1 the retail business formerly conducted by the Blackman Talking Machine Co. at 97 Chambers street, New York. As noted in last month's World the latter company will do a Victor wholesale business exclusively beginning May 1.

Louis Kay, one of the veterans of the Victor industry, who has purchased the former Blackman retail business, is head of the Kay Talking Machine Co. The recent announcement that Mr. Kay had purchased this business has resulted in his receiving hundreds of letters of congratulation from his friends in the trade throughout the country.

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[NOTE.—This is the twenty-sixth of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

MUSIC, RELIGION AND THE "TALKER"

The rigid minded reader may wonder whether the order of the words in the above title is as it should be; but the precise place of religion in what follows can better be determined by the reader when he has been able to find out what I have in mind. He may be surprised; he will not, I am sure, be shocked.

A good deal of rather loose thought has expended itself on the place of music in the church; and there are still those who take the position of the Scottish Puritans of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, that the organ is a "kist of whistles" which the "deil himsel" delights to blow. There are still country kirks in Scotland and meeting houses in remote hamlets in our own South and Midwest where the attitude towards music reminds one of the story of the deaf and rich old English lady staying at the laird's house in a far-away part of the Highlands. She was taken on the Sabbath to the nearest kirk, an "Auld Licht" house of worship according to the strictest tenets. Entering and sitting down, she took out her long speaking tube, adjusted it to her ear and composed herself for the opening of the service. Her entrance had attracted notice and her maneuvers with the speaking trumpet still more. The principal elder approached. Fixing her with a basilisk glare he sternly regarded the suspicious tube. Then, "Wumman," he thundered, "take notice. Ane toot an' y'er oot!"

The Modern Church

But our modern churches have thought things out in a very different manner. Or at least their practice has become that of utilizing the value of music to any possible extent within their financial and personal means. The worst trouble with church music is that its reference to the subject matter of Christian service is so little defined. The organ is a noble instrument and cannot be surpassed for the duty of leading congregational singing. But merely to be a leader of congregational singing is not a very important duty for an instrument of so much complexity and musical power as the modern organ. This instrument ought to be the means through which the attention of the congregation may be centered at appropriate moments upon the beauties and truths of religion. But this bridge brings up the question of suitable music, of organ playing and of choir singing. All these are important and many of them are, as regards most small churches, quite insoluble.

Evangelical Music

A very simple service like that of the Evangelical churches in general would seem to require mainly good solo music before and after, with singing by the congregation. But there is an interval always which can only be filled up rightly with music, and where the not very expert organist always falls down. Bad organ playing and bad solo singing are apparently deeply rooted in the Evangelical church system, but it is hard to see why this state of affairs should not be at least improved. The supply of good organists is beneath the demand, but the main reason for this is in the disinclination or inability of congregations to pay adequate salaries. Hence church music is too often gloomy or trivial, unworthy alike of the organ and of its player. Nor can it be said that the church singing question is in much better condition. It is no easier or cheaper to get good singers than to get good organists, and the cause of music suffers just as much from the trivialities which are perpetrated in the name of religion through bad singing and playing in church as does the cause of religion itself; and that is saying a good deal.

I may be entirely wrong, but I cannot see why a record of Clara Butt singing "O Rest in the Lord," or of Evan Williams doing "Comfort Ye My People" and "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted," is not a whole lot better for the mid-service solo than the warblings of a poorly trained singer on the platform or in the gallery of the church. As far as that goes, organ music has been recorded, although the numbers are so far very few. But why on earth is not the record of a magnificent string quartet better than the bad playing of an amateur organist? And why, for that matter, is not the fine record of an orchestra in a splendid movement from a great symphony just as much better? There are a number of fine quartet and orchestra records of just the right sort for church services and it only requires a study of the catalog to obtain them.

Sunday School Work

Now church work in these days is always more or less institutional. The Sunday school work we all know and then there are the many clubs and societies which meet in the church buildings somewhere. All these need and have constant use for good music. The talking machine is the very thing for them. Here, in fact, the argument need not be elaborated at all. Anybody can see the whole thing for himself.

But in regard to the introduction of the talking machine into the church itself, one can readily see that many objections will at once be voiced. The conservative element will immediately suggest that something irreverent is being put forward, but it is really very difficult to see why the talking machine is any worse in this respect than the organ or than the other instruments which from time to time make their way into the churches.

Demonstrations Will Overcome Objections

The objection which can best be urged is perhaps that the mechanical work of putting on and removing a record would detract from the solemnity of the service, but here again the difficulty is more apparent than real. Is anything worse than the attitudinizing of a solo singer? Again, why cannot the operation be hidden from sight of the congregation?

Now, of course, if the talking machine dealer can see anything in the considerations set forth here he will also see at once that here is a case which calls aloud for personal demonstration. It is something which most emphatically must be "sold" to the prospective customer. In a word, the congregation must certainly be caused to see that the innovation is appropriate as well as musically fitting. It is hardly to be expected, indeed, that the dealer will be able to go after church patronage in this way through any advertised campaign, for no one knows until he has tried how delicate a task it is to tackle anybody's religious convictions in a matter relating to the introduction of a new idea. But there is no doubt that in every community of any size there will be found one or more clergymen of open and enterprising temper, who will listen to the proposal of substituting good music, suitable and fine, no matter how presented, for music which, no matter how suitable and well intended, is quite incompetently and therefore quite unsuitably executed. Such men are always to be found, and when they are found their acquaintance should be cultivated, for they are the pioneers who will enter the new field and become its cultivators.

What I have said here represents only the presentation of what I know is a practical and promising idea. I do not say that it can be put into practice without preparatory work. I do not claim that its merits will gain it an immediate hearing. I do not say that there are no practical difficulties to be overcome in adapting it to the use of the Christian Church. But I simply ask, "Can you say that talking machine music is unsuitable, as music, for the use of the church?"

To this very pertinent question the answer must be in the negative, and that is all I ask. If the answer is in the negative, then the idea is a good idea. The field exists; and it is ready for cultivation.

The object of these articles is to show hitherto unknown or untouched fields for expansion of the talking machine trade, based on examinations of its musical possibilities. I aim to stimulate thought, and am always ready to defend my position.

ARTISTIC NEW SONORA POSTER

The advertising division of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has just received from its lithographers a new poster twenty-two by twenty-eight inches, featuring the Sonora semi-permanent silvered needles. Several colors are used on this new piece of advertising, which make it unusually attractive, and the photomicrographs of the original steel needle as compared with

MUSIC IS ITS OWN SALESMAN

The Salesman's Task Is to Select the Right Class of Music—One Record Sells Another

Music is often its own best salesman and has its own argument more convincing than the spoken word. The appeal of a song cannot be put into words; if it could be there would be no need for the song. When a record is being played for demonstration it is often best for the salesman to give the piece the floor, and not try to talk about the song or the melody, for by so doing the attention of the buyer is distracted from the record. To many people it is very annoying to be interrupted while listening to a song, especially if they are among those classed as music lovers. To such people there are no words which can persuade them to take a record they do not like, but if they feel the appeal of the piece they will buy it without any urging.

The modern record booths were built in response to the desire on the part of customers to listen undisturbed to the music of the day and hour. But if the salesman in his eagerness to make the sale insists in commenting on each bit of melody in the record he defeats the very purpose for which he brought the customer into the booth. The sale will not be made merely by playing records as they come. It is by selecting the kind of records which you think will appeal to the customer, and then playing these records so they will exert their own appeal, that the greatest number of sales are made. The task of the salesman is really one of character reading, or taste reading if you like, for once he has found out what type of music is desired or appeals to the customer the rest is only a matter of time.

Realizing the importance of the right kind of selection, many dealers make it a point to have a record playing as their customers enter the store. It is often possible to tell at a glance whether or not that particular type of music is liked by the customer, and to act accordingly in the selection of records for demonstration. Also, from the records asked for it is usually easy to find out what class of music would be most likely to sell. If the dealer depended entirely upon the sale of records asked for by his customer his sales would by no means be satisfactory, for one record nearly always sells another of the same type.

From these remarks it must not be understood that we favor the salesman being merely a psychologist—a dummy, so to speak. There is a time and place for everything. When the demonstration of a record is at an end the salesman should, if the customer expresses a desire for information, tell all about the particular record played—the composer, the singer and any other enlightening facts that will interest and educate. But he must study his customer and await his or her desires.

MISS GALLAGHER CONGRATULATED

The engagement of Miss Grace Gallagher, of Flushing, L. I., to Evan J. Thomas, of Whitestone, L. I., was announced this month;

the date of the wedding to be announced later. Miss Gallagher is in charge of the Victrola department at Irving Riesenburger's Victor establishment at Flushing, L. I., and is well known in Victor retail circles in this section of the State. She is thoroughly familiar with the Victor catalog, and her pleasing personality and detailed knowledge of Victor merchandising have been important factors in the pleasing success that she has attained in this special domain of the talking machine industry.

To Manufacturers of Talking Machines and Cabinets

First Impressions are most lasting.

This is especially true of the Talking Machine business. The first choice is always an attractive machine. Our beautifully figured cabinet parts catch the eye of the prospective purchaser and his interest in your machine is awakened. We do not manufacture complete cabinets but furnish all veneered parts in the white. Let us quote on your specifications.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 5.—The talking machine business in Philadelphia during the month of April was quite satisfactory, and, although the stock of certain machines was not as great as it was hoped, or even promised, for the month, yet the business done was a considerable per cent. greater than during the same month of 1918, and in consequence the dealers seem satisfied with the outlook.

It has become a serious question with dealers in certain of the high-grade machines whether it will ever be possible to make a supply to equal the demand, for the demand is growing at such rapid strides that it may be possible that the factories cannot keep up with it. But if this be true there need be little concern for the number of new machines and new factories that are continually being brought out and erected and are going to keep the dealers supplied and keep them prosperous.

Some Facts That Tell of Expansion

That there is an "era of good feeling" among the talking machine dealers is shown in the progress the various firms are making. On all sides this spring we hear of the talking machine men enlarging and improving their warerooms. This is not true alone of this city, but of this territory as well. At one house alone this week I was given this list of improvements:

Frank Tolan, of Chester, opened on May 2, one of the finest talking machine warerooms in the State. He moved out his furniture business to make room for it, he put down hardwood floors, and he added eight Unico demonstration rooms. William F. Lamb, of Pottstown, has also installed a number of new booths. The Werner Co., of Easton, Pa., have added nine more demonstration rooms, giving them a total of nineteen, which is remarkable considering this establishment is in a city of only 35,000 inhabitants.

The Landaus Music & Jewelry Store at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., have also added to their establishment five more demonstrating rooms, and have devoted the greater part of their first floor to the Victor exclusively. Riggins, Gaskill & Hunt is the name of a new firm at Bridgeton, N. J., who will handle talking machines extensively along with pianos. This firm was formerly the Riggins Piano Co., but with the addition of considerable new capital they are going to go after the talking machine business extensively. Jacob Sitnek, of Altoona, Pa., has spent several thousand dollars on improving his place to meet his increased volume of business, and F. Hayes Harmon, of Chambersburg, has made many improvements in his store. These are no doubt but a few of the many signs that are to be noted in this section of the belief in a future great business in the talking machine.

ing several days this week in Atlantic City and other New Jersey towns in the interest of his firm's product. The Brunswick business is rapidly growing in this section, and but for a lack of goods, which at present handicaps against a big drive, this machine would be in a firm place in our midst. Theodore Presser states that he has been doing very well with the Brunswick and several new dealers were added to the list in April.

The Penn Miniature Victor Dogs Liked

The Penn Phonograph Co. report that their business has been very, very good, the two adverbs emphasizing this expression. They state that they have no complaint with the Victor Co. in the amount of goods that have been shipped to them, and, although it did not come up to their expectations, yet the volume was considerable larger than last year. Both machines and records have been coming in better, and they had quite a satisfactory gain in their business over a year ago.

The Penn Co. have also been doing very well with their miniature dogs—"His Master's Voice"—made by means of small plaster-of-paris casts. They have sold many, many thousands of these dogs to the trade in every section of the United States, all of those receiving them writing in the highest terms as to the advantage of having them as an advertising medium in window displays. The firm are expecting Sergeant-Major Earle G. Dare, of the Eighty-second Division, to shortly return from France and to take his place with the company. Among the recent Penn visitors were Harry Goldsmith, of the Badger Talking Machine Co., of Milwaukee, and Ross P. Curtice, a Victor distributor, of Lincoln, Neb.

Manager Wilcox Fully Acclimated

N. J. Wilcox, the new Columbia manager for this district, has been here close to a month and has become fully acclimated. He took charge on April 10. He states that their business has been very good all along the line, although it is still a question of limited production. They can sell everything they can get, and they have been getting a good deal more than during the earlier months of the year. They are still holding a number of signed contracts upon which they have been unable to make delivery, but hope to be able to do so during this month. From the tenth of this month they expect to be able to ship all orders for records complete, and

Geo. W. Hopkins Gives Sales Talk

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia, was in Philadelphia on the 10th of April, and gave a general sales talk before the Poor Richard Club, of this city. Among the Columbia visitors during the month were Mr. Klugherz, of the Home Music Co., Lancaster, Pa.; Mr. Grim, of the Riegler Co., York, Pa.; Mr. Nace, of W. E. Nace & Co., Hanover, Pa., and A. E. Spangler, of Harrisburg, Pa. A. E. Manning, the firm's credit man, is still confined to the house through illness.

A. J. Heath to Enter Retail Field

A. J. Heath, the former manager of the local Columbia jobbing house, contemplates entering the retail field, and it was so announced when his resignation was given to the firm. He will make no definite plans for the present, other than that he expects to remain in Philadelphia. He says he will not make any definite announcement of his future plans until after he has taken a short vacation. The reason he will choose Philadelphia for his future activity is because it was in this city that he started in the talking machine business and his early training was received in this district.

Preparing for Jobbers' Convention

The Louis Buehn Co. report that their business in April was quite satisfactory, but it was not quite as large as it was in March. The reason for this is that they had a very respectable stock with which to start March. Mr. Buehn is working very hard for the success of the Jobbers' convention, which will be held in Atlantic City June 30 and July 1 at the Traymore Hotel, and he expects a big delegation from this city to be in attendance.

Sonora Jobbers in Larger Quarters

The jobbing of the Sonora phonograph is at present conducted by the Smith, Kline & French Co., with E. S. White in charge, at 1311 Walnut street, to which location they recently moved from 123 North Thirteenth street. They report that they have been having a very good business, but are seriously handicapped for the want of machines. They have not been able to open any new accounts during the month of April for this reason. There are at present fifteen representatives of the Sonora in Philadelphia, and all of them are highly gratified with the complimentary words of satisfaction coming from the customers to whom they have sold the machines. They have at present two salesmen who are covering their territory, but are doing little more than giving the trade the glad hand. But the factory reports that in a very short time they expect to have a much greater output, and the local jobbers are assured of getting in considerable stock during the month.

The retail store of the Sonora Phonograph Co. is now in charge of P. C. Cummin, who replaced Mr. Connelly, who, with a partner, has gone into the retail talking machine business at Twenty-seventh and Columbia avenue.

H. E. Blake Conducting Two Concerns

Herbert E. Blake, the large talking machine merchant at Eleventh and Walnut streets and South Eleventh street—now conducting two establishments—reports that his business is moving along in fine shape. His business increased 130 per cent. the past April in comparison with the April of 1918. He also states that both Edison phonographs and records are coming in in good shape, and they have already received several of the four new models that have been gotten out recently and which are very handsome instruments. They are expecting many more along during the month.

Mr. Blake is about to put on a new salesman, R. Rich, who has been in the Edison line for the past three years. The new store on South Eleventh street is coming along nicely. They are about to appoint a man to take charge of this store. The Columbia and the Steger are sold there exclusively, and the Edison only at the Eleventh and Market street stores.

Many New Cheney Agents

J. D. Shewell, the local jobber for the Cheney phonograph, reports that they have been getting the machines with much greater regularity, and have been able to place all they have received. He has established a number of new representatives in April, and is very optimistic as to the future.

B. L. Winders Takes Charge

Bayard L. Winders, formerly in the piano business in this city, has assumed charge of the West Philadelphia store of E. V. Martin, located at 224 South Fifty-second street. They handle extensively the Edison, the Cheney and the Vitanola.

H. E. BLAKE TO ACT AS CHAIRMAN

H. E. Blake has been chosen as chairman of the convention of Edison dealers, which is to be held on June 26 and 27, with headquarters at the Hotel Commodore, New York. Mr. Blake is president of the Philadelphia Edison Dealers' Association, and one of the most up-to-date Edison dealers in the business. He has always been a man of ideas, which he has been unusually successful in putting over. He has been in the Edison business long enough to have developed a remarkable understanding of the art of Edison salesmanship, and the results which he has gained command the respect of every salesman in the country.

Every Edison dealer is interested in knowing what his brother dealers are doing. Here is a report from N. Snellenburg department store of Philadelphia. The manager of their Amberol department says that he is selling from $30 to $50 worth of Blue Amberol records every day. And that is in the heart of a great city, too, when supposedly the Amberol records are more popular in the country.

LAMB'S MUSIC HOUSE OPENS AGAIN

Elaborate Program Marks Occupancy of Remodeled Quarters in Pottstown, Pa.—Window Display of Miniature Dogs Forming Victor Trade-Mark Attracts Attention

POTTSTOWN, PA., May 3.—Lamb's Music House, which has been extensively remodeled, presents one of the most attractive Victrola and piano warerooms in this section of Pennsylvania. After undergoing interior renovations and redecorations the remodeled warerooms were thrown open to the public for inspection at an "open house" held on Friday, April 11. No goods were sold and the affair was heavily attended. From 7.30 to 10 p. m. Lamb's Concert Orchestra provided music, and the evening proved a great success. New Victrola demonstration rooms have been installed as well as player demonstration rooms. The renovations have not only increased the attractiveness of the warerooms, but have added vastly increased services for handling their greatly increasing business.

The windows were handsomely decorated for the occasion, and a notable feature of the window display was the well-known dogs of the Victor trade-mark, which have been reproduced

RECOVERING AFTER OPERATION

The many friends in the trade of Al. Edelstein, traveling representative for the G. T. Williams Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., Victor wholesaler, will be glad to know that this popular Victor man is recovering rapidly from the effects of his recent illness. While calling on the trade the latter part of April, Mr. Edelstein was taken seriously ill with an acute attack of appendicitis. He was rushed to the Misericordia Hospital, where he was operated on immediately. He is fast recovering his usual good health and spirits and expects to be "back on the job" in a very short while booking his usually large orders for Victor talking machines and records.

NEW QUARTERS FOR COLUMBIA BRANCH IN MINNEAPOLIS

Extensive and Up-to-Date Distributing Plant Will Result From Plans Now Under Way—Fine New Headquarters for Aeolian-Vocalion—Other Developments in the Twin Cities

ST. PAUL and MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., May 6.—Work has been started on what is planned to be the largest talking machine emporium in the Northwest. It will be the future home of the Columbia Graphophone Co. in this section of the country and the plans have been prepared by Robert E. Rae, the company's engineer, who had in view to produce the most complete distributing plant that modern wisdom could devise. The company has obtained a long-time lease on what is known as the Harrison Building, 18-20-22 Third street North, Minneapolis, which is to be remodeled for the use of W. L. Sprague, the company's Northwestern manager. The latter states that there will be nothing to compare with his new quarters in this territory. Adequate space for future expansion is available at any time.

The Columbia Co. has had phenomenal success in the past year and its sales are mounting by leaps and bounds. Where the limit would be is unknown, for there never has been a time that the cry for Columbia instruments and records could be satisfied.

If the talking machine situation is similar all over the United States to that obtaining in the Northwestern territory the manufacturing headquarters must be a madhouse. Every jobber and dealer in the twin cities and the thousand and one smaller towns are at their wit's end every day to keep pace with the calls of the trade, and they have not yet struck the stride. At this time, when they should be assembling a stock against the inevitable and sturdy demand for the fall, they are not even able to supply the retail demand. Unless the manufacturers are able to greatly increase the output the situation next fall will be worse than deplorable.

Sewell D. Andrews, who dispenses the Sonora phonographs for the Minneapolis Drug Co., is in a typical plight. He is at sea. "We had hoped by this time," he said, "that the various industries would have reached normal conditions and that we would be in position to make plans for the fall and holiday rush. We are informed that every effort is being made to comply with our orders and doubtless that is true, but we are getting the machines that are so urgently needed. Some fine shipments have been received but the entire lot disappears, vanishes completely in a day or two. The Sonora has made a distinct hit in our territory."

Possibly the advent of the Aeolian-Vocalion in a big wholesale and retail warehouse at Nicollet avenue and Ninth street, Minneapolis, on May 15 will relieve the general situation so far as the public is concerned. The Stone Piano Co. of Fargo, N. D., one of the oldest and strongest music houses in the Northwest, will be the sponsor for the Vocalion and are understood to be prepared to launch an aggressive campaign for business.

Smiles wreath the face of E. L. Kern, one of the directors of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., but there are some grim lines among them. According to official report the Brunswick sales have increased over 500 per cent. in the past year, but the factory is not producing enough and hence the grimness.

George W. Nye, who is making the grand rounds of Montana and the Dakotas, is chafing because he is unable to open any new accounts for the Brunswick phonographs with dealers.

After a long visit to the general headquarters, Jay H. Wheeler, who supervises the Pathé business for G. Sommers & Co., believes that he will have a sufficient supply for the constantly growing call for Pathé machines and records.

Some improvement is reported in the Victrola situation, but neither the dealers nor the distributors are at ease—not by a long way. W. J. Dyer & Bro. and Beckwith-O'Neill Co. can assure the Victor Co. of some wonderful results in the next twelve months if the goods come through. There are some very fine Victor establishments in St. Paul and Minneapolis, the field has been intelligently and thoroughly cultivated and all that is wanted are machines and still more machines. John J. Roden, formerly with the Powers Mercantile Co., is now at the head of the Victrola department of the Dayron Co. He succeeds Arthur Magoon, who has taken the road for another line of business. A. H. Porter, who succeeded James Sandey as manager of the Victrola department with the L. S. Donaldson Co., is having the same troubles as his predecessor, that is, he is selling everything that he can get. J. L. Pofahl, head of

A new and amusing attachment to the talking machine has recently appeared on the market. It is styled the "Phono-Movie" and is a simple dancing figure placed in front of the turntable and which, through a mechanical means, executes an almost human dancing motion when records are played. The maker makes the claim that the improvement of this device over previous novelties of a similar nature is that it may the Golden Rule's Victrola business, is home from an extended Eastern trip. He is now supervising the enlargement and rearrangement of his quarters and promises just the finest retail plant in the Northwest.

The real hard-luck story comes from Laurence H. Lucker, president of the Minnesota Phonograph Co. "Our business is more than three times as extensive as it was a year ago, but we could make even a better showing if the Edison factory was able to get more goods to us. We are looking forward to the arrival of the new models with much interest as we hope that the production will be so large that we can do business the way we desire. As it is we are now down to two types, of which we have any quantity and our cup of tribulation surely runneth over."

be attached to the talking machine without the use of screws. A soft rubber pad placed on the bottom of the device prohibits the marring of the talking machine.

The novelty can be placed on the machine or removed from it instantly.

BUFFALO TRADE AGAIN DEMONSTRATES ITS PATRIOTISM

Exceeds Its Quota in Victory Liberty Loan Campaign—Death of John M. Schuler—Wurlitzer's New Store—Appreciation of Window Display Made by Wm. Hengerer Co.—Other News

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 5.—"Buffalo will see it through" is the slogan of the local talking machine trade in the Victory Liberty Loan campaign. The members are allied with the piano men in the drive, their combined quota being $175,000. At this writing it looks as if their total sale of subscriptions will go considerably over that amount.

The committee in charge of the sale of bonds follows: William H. Daniels, chairman; C. N. Andrews, vice-chairman; Fred A. Denison, Columbia Co.; Edward P. Erion, Erion Piano Co., George A. Gould, Gould Bros.; Jacob Hackenheimer, C. Kurtzmann & Co.; Robert L. Loud, Newton R. Luther, Wood & Brooks; Benjamin E. Neal, Neal, Clark & Neal; Albert Stettenbetz, Utley Piano Co.; Charles H. Wood, Wood & Brooks, and F. R. Wurlitzer, Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

Bricka & Enos, Edison dealers, are celebrating their thirty-fifth anniversary. Walbridge & Co., Victor dealers, are also having a celebration. They have just passed the fiftieth milestone.

"Our sales nearly all run to big machines," said L. K. Scott, manager of the William Hengerer Co.'s Victrola department. Mr. Scott celebrated Victrola week April 26 to May 3. He planned for the occasion and had a complete line of various models in the different woods at $25 to $282.50. Miss Irene Hitzel is in charge of the record stock at this store. Miss Hitzel says "Greet Your Customers With a Smile" is her motto.

"Smoke With Us" was a sign which recently appeared in the display window of the Hoffman Piano Co. The sign was for the benefit of returning soldiers, many of whom took advantage of the offer.

A trade excursion in which local talking machine jobbers will be represented will leave

Buffalo May 20. The excursionists will cover Western New York and Northeastern Pennsylvania, to get acquainted with the big men of the villages, towns and cities located in these districts. This will be the Buffalo merchants' first trade and acquaintance trip since the United States entered the war.

C. W. Strawn will manage the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.'s new store at 633 Main street, this city. Plans have been filed for the remodeling of this six-story building, which will represent an outlay of $250,000.

Four men were recently arrested in connection with the robbery of George H. Moessinger, treasurer of C. Kurtzmann & Co. One of the men is said to have confessed that he struck Mr. Moessinger with a billy, while a second grabbed the piano man's satchel, containing a payroll of $4,000. It is claimed that the other two prisoners helped to plan the hold-up.

A traveling man who covers the local trade is being hailed as a true prophet. According to his dope there will be an extra boom in the talking machine business when the country goes dry after July 1. He says he bases his prophecy on "past performances" in many dry territories which he has visited.

John M. Schuler, father of John and Albert Schuler, Buffalo piano merchants and talking machine dealers, died here recently. Mr. Schuler, Sr., had been a resident of Buffalo since 1854. For several years he manufactured pianos in this city. He was a prominent Mason.

In a window display contest held at the Advertising Affiliation Convention in Buffalo recently special commendation was made of the windows of the William Hengerer Co., Victrola dealers, arranged by Charles A. Cook. The display was mentioned as an almost perfect specimen of the window dressing art.

convention received some good tips from the window display experts who addressed the meetings. "Get away from the cheap displays and educate the public to buy a better grade of goods" was the keynote of their talks. The talking machine men were informed that should they advertise their goods their windows should be an absolute continuation of their advertisement and should be in complete harmony, as through part of the same layout.

C. G. Emenecker, former office manager of Denton, Cottier & Daniels, recently visited that firm after an absence of ten years. He is now in business for himself in Aberdeen, Wash.

W. D. & C. N. Andrews expressed themselves pleased with the general trade outlook. Victor machines are in great demand.

LARGE MEASURE OF ACTIVITY PREVAILS IN PORTLAND

Leading Talking Machine Companies Optimistic Over Present and Prospective Conditions—Stores Being Renovated and Enlarged and Everyone Making Ready for Great Business

PORTLAND, ORE., May 6.—The Bush & Lane Piano Co. have two new assistants in the talking machine department. They are Miss Helen I. Baker and Lester Schroeder. Mr. Schroeder has been in the talking machine business for ten years and is a thorough talking machine man. He came to Portland to study the Sonora and after a careful study decided to identify himself with the Bush & Lane Co.

Miss Baker is a special Sonora representative and calls upon Sonora owners introducing the Sonora silvered needle.

At Oregon Eilers the large new salesroom in the talking machine department has been redecorated and refurnished and four record demonstration rooms have been added. They have just received a new stock of talking machines—the Vitanola—and Miss Acevia Bennett, manager of the department, predicts a big future for it in Portland. She gave a dance in honor of the returned soldiers and sailors of Eilers Music House on the evening of April 10.

The Easter decorations of the windows of the Wiley B. Allen Co. won universal praise for their artistic arrangement. A large shipment of Columbia records has just been received by this company. They never before carried Columbia records, as they have only recently added the Columbia Grafonola to their stock.

The Record Shop on Broadway is growing in popularity. This attractive little shop, presided over by C. H. Williams, sells only Columbia records.

Pathé machines and records are in demand at Calef's Furniture Store. This store has a rapidly growing patronage in its well-managed talking machine department.

A fair supply of Victrolas is on hand in the talking machine department of Lipman, Wolfe & Co. and excellent business is being done.

The Meier & Frank Co.'s talking machine department sends no records out on approval, and J. H. Matney, manager of the department, says he finds it is a great benefit.

Miss Leita Hayes, of the Johnson Piano Co., sold a Cheney phonograph to a resident of Wrangel, Alaska, who decided upon a Cheney for his home in the Far North. Sixty-six Brunswicks were sold by M. W. Davis, manager of the talking machine department of the Edwards Furniture Store, during March.

The new record rooms at the Foley & Van-Dyke piano house are just being completed and a good supply of Pathé and Victor records is on hand.

The talking machine department of the Reed-French Co. has a wide-awake and efficient man at its head—M. C. Collins. A large variety of styles is carried by this house and Mr. Collins is unusually well acquainted with all of them. The morning of the World correspondent's visit he had sold a $175 Victor before 9 o'clock and said that was only a small beginning.

L. H. Covey, visiting representative of the Sonora Phonograph Co., is with the Bush & Lane Co. and will remain here about six months. The Sonora Co. gives a special service to all owners, this service providing a thoroughly skilled man to call on the owners and see if they are perfectly satisfied with the machine. Mr. Covey finds that the Portland owners of the Sonora who have bought their instruments from the Bush & Lane Co. are better served than in any other town he has visited.

The Hyatt Talking Machine Co. is having four more demonstration rooms added and is moving the business office to the front of the store. Miss Louise Marshall, who was in the talking machine department of the Meier & Frank Co., is now with Hyatt's.

The talking machine dealers are advertising extensively in the local papers. The Columbia

Grafonola is particularly well advertised and on one page of a daily paper are three big ads of the Columbia machines. There is no doubt that the Columbia Grafonola Co. believes in advertising. The Sonora dealer, Bush & Lane Co., has very high class advertisements in the papers calling attention to what they term the "Delightfully Different and Musically the Most Perfect Talking Machine in the World."

Wiley B. Allen has special advertisements calling attention to the proficiency of the Victor dance music and the superior record service that customers always find at the Wiley B. Allen demonstration rooms.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. has striking advertisements of the Cheney phonograph and the record advertisements which this house issues are always attractive and invariably well written.

OCCUPY MORE CENTRAL QUARTERS

Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., Now Located on Thirty-fourth Street—Business Shows Expansion in All Lines Carried

The Cabinet & Accessories Co., Inc., are now established in their new quarters at 145 East Thirty-fourth street, the central location of which is a distinct advantage not only in the shipping of goods but for the visiting trade as well. They occupy the entire ground floor, which has been entirely redecorated attractively. The new quarters not only provide vastly increased display space but also provide for the keeping of large stocks of the accessories sold. Oscar Zepernick, well known to the trade through his connection of many years with the American Talking Machine Co., of Brooklyn, is now connected with this company and will take charge of the detail work in the offices and warerooms. Otto Goldsmith, president of the company, reports that business is brisk and that an increasing number of dealers are taking advantage of the services that this company is offering.

CONDITIONS IMPROVING IN MILWAUKEE TRADE

Stock Situation Getting Back to Normal Slowly But Surely—Steadily Growing Demand Contradicts Predictions of Business Slump—How Various Leading Houses Are Operating

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 10.—Just six months have passed since the armistice was signed and in that time the talking machine business in Milwaukee and throughout Wisconsin has flourished as it never did before. Undoubtedly it would have assumed even more remarkable proportions but for the fact that dealers and jobbers were able to get only a percentage of their requirements from the manufacturers, and the factories were able to accept only a part of the orders because it takes time to get industry back to a peace basis.

At this time it is apparent that manufacturers have made excellent progress in the direction of getting back to a normal production of regular lines. Yet the production, growing as it is, does not yet seem to reach more than part way in satisfying the increasing demands of the public.

The immediate situation in the local retail field is as surprising as it is gratifying. In the main, predictions that there would be an after-war reaction have proven incorrect. Business has grown better instead of easing up. While it is manifestly unfair to compare the state of business at the middle of May to that at the middle of December, it must still be said that mid-spring demand is relatively as active as at that time.

If business men are to take a “cue” from the Victory Liberty Loan campaign now closing they can hardly help but feel that more of the dire things predicted about business slumps during the “reconstruction” period are coming true. In Milwaukee and Wisconsin the Victory Loan brought forth the largest over-subscription of any of the five campaigns, and solicitors are unanimous in declaring that the spirit of subscribers was far more exuberant. All of which must be taken as an indication that the public purse is well-filled still, and open. It is open to the dealers in reproducing instruments, records, etc., judging from the activity.

It is confidently believed that the remainder of the spring season and the coming summer will be active periods for the trade. Besides the many who have been disappointed in getting the machines of their selection, due to shortage of stocks in the last six months, there are in prospect hundreds of buyers who have been holding off because of the knowledge that goods are scarce, or who have been hoping that prices may decline. They can now get the goods and know that prices will not drop for a long, long time.

“When we catch up with orders we shall be able to say that business is good; in the meantime there is too much worry about satisfying our dealer trade to keep the mind in repose,” is the manner in which Harry A. Goldsmith,

“Mine has proved good in every way advertised and more besides. . . . Send two more gold plated, for my friends who heard mine. . . . Postal Money Order for $24.00 enclosed.”

Above four testimonials are quotations from customers’ letters received in two days last week.

A recent order from Flanner-Hafsoos Music House reads, “Send us twenty-five gold plated Ellis reproducers—quick—rush.” (One order from this concern was for 160 nickel plated.)

Testimonial letters are received from all parts of the United States, Canada, South America, etc.

The “ELLIS REPRODUCER” MAKES GOOD. “It improves with age.” “The more you use it the better it is.”

IT IS FOR MUSIC LOVERS but it does good work on rag time and jazz, although music lovers are your real prospects. Weight less than 4 ounces.

DISCOUNTS TO DEALERS

secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor distributor, characterizes the situation. Although stocks are coming through in increasing quantities, demands of dealers continue to grow relatively faster, and Badger warehouse floors are as bare as ever. Mr. Goldsmith looks for improvement from now on, not only in the supply but in the demand.

Charles J. Orth, distributor of the Puritan, is experiencing gratifying success in the promotion of this line. To handle the rapidly increasing trade Mr. Orth now has two men who do nothing but travel the Wisconsin territory to look after Puritan business. They are Adam C. Schroeter and W. H. Heise, who have been dividing their time between road work and duties at the Milwaukee wholesale and retail establishment. An indication of the interest which has been aroused by Mr. Orth’s progressive merchandising policy is the fact that a few weeks ago M. E. Smith & Co., Omaha, Neb., Puritan jobber in Nebraska, sent two delegations of staff representatives to Milwaukee to study Mr. Orth’s system.

The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., which distributes the Sonora in the Wisconsin and Northern Michigan territory, has been compelled to extend its dealer organization still further the last few weeks because of the insistent demand for the franchise in various parts of the territory. The company’s dealers in the Milwaukee or home territory report an exceptionally good demand for the Sonora.

The progress which the Brunswick is making in the Wisconsin territory is the subject of much comment in the trade. This is due not only to the acknowledged excellence of the instrument as it is to the aggressive work of Thomas I. Kidd, manager of the Milwaukee branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., at 275-279 West Water street. The phonograph department at this branch house is growing so rapidly that it has had to be given additional floor space and a larger staff.

Some of the most effective merchandising that is being done by local jobbers is that of William A. Schmidt, manager of the Phonograph Co. of Wisconsin, representing the New Edison. It is now possible to buy an Edison instrument or record in virtually every community in Wisconsin, the territory being so thoroughly covered by Mr. Schmidt’s dealer organization that prospective buyers have not far to go to find an Edison shop carrying a comprehensive stock of machines as well as records. From all points of the territory come reports of the most encouraging character concerning immediate business and the outlook for the future.

It required less than a week for the music trade division of the Milwaukee County Liberty Loan organization to complete its quota on the Victory Loan, due to the generous response of dealers and the well-organized work of Chairman Henry M. Steussy and his committee. The apportionment this time was $75,000, against $60,000 for the Fourth Loan, but this was reached in much less time and the over-subscription was materially larger than in any previous loan.

L. C. Parker, the new president and general manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, Victor retailer, tendered the first of a series of welfare parties in the auditorium of the store on April 23, the guests being the employes and department heads. Mr. Badger believes in treating his employes like business partners and the success of his idea already is apparent in the remarkable strides the Badger Shop is making under his management.

Emil O. Schmidt, formerly a prominent music dealer of this city, recently was arrested at Coffeyville, Kan., where he was promoting an oil and gas syndicate, on a charge of forgery and one of larceny as bailee, preferred by Milwaukee people. In Municipal court he was found guilty on the forgery charge and sentenced to serve a year in the house of correction. His attorneys obtained a certificate of reasonable doubt from the Supreme Court, which acted as a stay of execution until a hearing on the plea for a new trial, which is scheduled for May 16.

The J. B. Bradford Piano Co., with main store at 411 Broadway, and South Side branch at 596 Mitchell street, has recently greatly enlarged its Victor record department, which is now regarded as one of the largest and most complete in the Northwest. The Bradford Co. also deals in the Sonora and this section of the business also is being given much attention.

Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor, has made a personal gift to the Wisconsin State Historical Museum that is of more than passing note. It is a New Edison of the latest style, with a silver autograph plate, and has been placed in the museum as a companion piece to the replica of the first Edison phonograph.

By supplementing the national advertising campaign of the Aeolian Vocalion with choice local publicity, the Edmund Gram Music House is reaping a veritable harvest of sales. The intimate connection between the famous Pianola and the Vocalion has been a telling point in the sales work of the Gram House, which for years has represented the Steinway and Aeolian lines of pianos and players.

Richard H. Zinke, president of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., manufacturing the Record-Lite and other accessories and supplies for the trade, has been appointed official bandmaster of the Milwaukee Lodge of Elks, which is organizing a complete military band.

The Turner Music Co., Wichita, Kas., will soon occupy both floors of the building at 153 North Main street and will install many demonstration booths for the display of talking machines and records.

NEW VIEW OF VICTOR CO. PLANT

Special Supplement Just Issued Shows at a Glance the Extensive Scope of the Victor Co.'s Manufacturing Facilities in Camden, N. J.

Included in the budget of advertising matter for May sent out to its dealers by the Victor Talking Machine Co. is a new and elaborate view in colors of the great plant of the Victor Co. in Camden. The picture is reproduced in large size on eggshell paper, and is particularly appropriate for framing. Hung in the dealer's window, or store, it should impress the public most forcibly with the notable extent of the Victor Co.'s manufacturing facilities.

Accompanying the picture is a sheet of tissue paper upon which is printed in appropriate places descriptive matter regarding the various buildings of the plant. This unique method does away with the necessity of printing the information on the face of the picture itself.

AEOLIAN-VOCALION PUBLICITY

In the April 26 issue of the Saturday Evening Post the Aeolian Co. used a striking and artistic full page in colors featuring the Aeolian-Vocalion phonograph. This advertisement had a unique and powerful personal appeal that lifted it out of the stereotyped class of publicity, and which served to emphasize its appeal and attractiveness. "Home Again" was the basis of the illustration that was used.

EARL L. WOOSTER IN CHARGE

Earl L. Wooster is now in charge of the Victor department of the Anthony Furniture Co., Providence, R. I. Mr. Wooster has had considerable experience in the talking machine trade, and has handled Columbia and Edison machines as well as the Victor line. He has only just returned from the air force of the United States navy, having seen service at naval bases in England, Ireland and France.

PLYWOOD Packing Cases

The 3-ply veneer case is accepted as the standard for talking machines. Over 95% of all talking machines manufactured are packed in this type case.

There are differences in plywood cases as in every other manufactured article.

The fact that we have been making this type case for a number of years, and that we are exceedingly careful in selection of materials and in workmanship guarantees the high standard of Plywood Packing Cases.

Our mills make more 3-ply cases than any mill or combination of mills in the country.

All contracts to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from date of purchase unless paid in full within ninety days from date of purchase.

The Following Allowances to Be Made

No allowances whatever to be made on old style horn machines and obsolete types of talking machines, or square pianos, organs, piano players and music boxes.

On ebony upright pianos, old style fret work panel pianos, an allowance not to exceed 10 per cent. of the sale price of the talking machine to be allowed.

On modern type pianos and 65-note player-pianos, an allowance not to exceed 20 per cent. of the sale price of the talking machine to be allowed.

On 88-note player-pianos, an allowance not to exceed 30 per cent. of the sale price of the talking machine to be allowed.

All of the above allowances to be taken out in records and not to apply against the purchase price of the talking machine.

On talking machines of makes not handled by the dealer making the trade, and said machine is of modern type listed in the current catalog, an allowance is to be made not to exceed 50 per cent. of its original value.

Whenever a smaller talking machine originally sold by dealer is to be taken in exchange by same dealer on a larger talking machine, full value will be allowed if exchange is made within sixty days from original purchase date. After sixty days they will be accepted with the reduction of a rental charge of 2 per cent. per month from date of purchase, and cartage to and from customer's home.

The following uniform charge schedule has been adopted:

Service Charges

The following are labor charges covering any place that can be reached with a six-cent street carfare. Additional charges for out-of-town services.

MATERIAL

Broken parts supplied at catalog prices.

The members have been supplied with tags and one is to be attached to every machine sold.

President Val Reis has received numerous letters from dealers expressing their satisfaction with the terms and regulations and service charges and promising to adhere to them in all cases because they believe it is good business to do so. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. is so well pleased with them that it is going to reprint the terms and regulations and supply them to all its dealers, with instructions to adhere to them.

TO OCCUPY LARGER QUARTERS

New quarters will be occupied about July 1 by the Glen Bros.-Roberts Piano Co., of Salt Lake City, Utah. A lease has been taken on the street floor and basement of the Bamberger Building, at 161 South Main street, and commodious demonstration rooms for the Edison, Victor and Columbia will be provided for the convenience of customers.

GET-TOGETHER MEETINGS OF DEALERS IN CINCINNATI

Both Columbia and Edison Retailers Hold Meetings for Development of New Business Plans—Self-Service Idea Put in Operation—Columbia Branch Expands—General News

CINCINNATI, O., May 6.—So far as can be learned there is no decided change in the status of the talking machine market from a material standpoint. All jobbers and dealers are shy on machines. The record situation has improved during the past month. The situation, as a whole, is very gratifying.

The Willis Music Co. talking machine department has installed a self-serving device for the sale of records, being the first one of the kind in Cincinnati. D. F. Summey, manager, believes it will be a great help to houses running on a limited help scale. He finds that many buyers enter a store wholly without any idea as to whether they actually want to purchase. The rack permits them to make random selections.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. pulled off quite a novel stunt during the Victory Loan campaign which helped all Victor dealers. A small truck, containing a piano and three singers, patrolled the business section, the trio giving an exhibition of their vocal ability. Banners announcing the sale of Victor records covered the two sides of the truck.

Theodore Heck & Co., West Fifth street, jobbers for the Sonora phonograph, hopes the factory soon will be able to fill orders complete. What stock is coming through is immediately gobbled up. The department is in charge of Edward Crawford, who has recently taken on the Brunswick machine.

Every Edison dealer in the Cincinnati district is expected to be in the Queen City on May 12, when the annual get-together meeting will take place. Manager Oelman of the Phonograph Co. already has fifty acceptances. Edison machines are still slow in coming, but the record situation improved during the latter part of April.

Among the many out-of-town visitors to the local Columbia branch during the past week were W. T. Breeze, Brooksville, Ky.; Mrs. Jeff Thompson, Lebanon, O.; J. W. Stir, manager of the Distel Furniture Co., Portsmouth, O.; N. J. Bowermeister, Bowersville, O.; Messrs. Nagel and Kenny of the Shaw & Kenny Co., Huntington, W. Va.; F. R. Follis, of the Rike-Kumler Co., Dayton, O.; E. Riker, Reiley, O., and many others.

One of the most successful and enthusiastic meetings of Columbia dealers was recently held in the Deshler Hotel, Columbus, O. About thirty dealers attended the meeting, which was in charge of Assistant Manager Smith and Salesman Kraner. The new records were played and comments invited, after which a general discussion was entered into covering many phases of the talking machine game. The dealers attending were unanimous in asking for these monthly meetings to be held regularly.

Columbia dealers in Cincinnati were greatly disappointed to hear of the cancellation of Mme. Lashanska's appearance with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra April 25 and 26. This was an enforced cancellation due to a nervous break-down and up to almost the last minute Mme. Lashanska hoped to be in a position to fulfill her engagement.

Another addition to the Columbia local staff is H. E. Book, master mechanic. Mr. Book has received several months' training at the Bridgeport, Conn., factory and has come to take complete charge of the mechanical department and will arrange his work so that he will be able to spend considerable time with the dealers in this territory.

Miss Carrie Althausser, for several years manager of the old Columbia retail store, but later a member of the traveling department, had an attack of influenza developing into pneumonia, from which she died while in Huntington, W. Va. Miss Althausser had been with the Columbia Co. for over seventeen years in various capacities. Funeral services and interment took place in her home town, Louisville, Ky.

Extensive alterations are taking place in the local Columbia branch to take care of increased business. The record business has grown to such an extent that one floor of the six-story building is not sufficient to contain it and an extra floor has been taken over.

Manager Sigman, of the Victor department, the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., says: "The Victrola and record situation continues to prove somewhat embarrassing and every mail brings in new orders and inquiries. All available Victrolas were sold as fast as they came from the factory, and some purchasers who bought in December are still patiently waiting for their machines.

"The most gratifying feature of the month of April was the large sale of the better class of records. The public are rapidly becoming educated to the fact that these records have real merit, and are not the kind that they tire of quickly. April was a very satisfactory month considering the shortage."

NO TWO MASTER RECORDS ALIKE

No two master records of the same selection are ever exactly alike, according to a well-known record expert. Each musician of the band or orchestra, each time the selection is made, plays with a different degree of softness or loudness. The singer does the same thing, and this is a most important factor in the placing of the different instruments of the orchestra or of the voice. In making two records the instruments are never placed in the same position in the laboratory, and only exhaustive tests for each selection demonstrate how and where each should be played. Some records are made with one horn, some with four or five recording horns, depending on the selection and the artist and what results are desired.

HIGH-GRADE MACHINES HAVE THE CALL IN ST. LOUIS

Val Reis Discusses Psychology of Record Demand—Mozart Talking Machine Co. Affairs—Fitzgerald Files Bankruptcy Petition—How Caruso Has Helped Record Sales—Review of Conditions

St. Louis, Mo., May 1.—With the demand for machines and records increasing St. Louis talking machine dealers have nothing to complain about except that the still inadequate stocks deprive them of part of the benefit of the increasing demand. In machines the principal lack is still the higher-class models, and in records the lack is in the standard lines, which the factories are letting wait while they come as near as they can to supplying the call for current popular numbers. The dealers who have the best supply of high-class instruments are those who did not hesitate months ago or a year ago to order liberally even though there was at the time no telling when their orders would be filled. The bread cast upon the waters by foresighted dealers is returning now and the sales floors of such dealers are gradually filling, while the less provident dealers are still badly put to it to get enough stock to supply their trade.

Caruso has been helping record sales this week. He did not get here until to-day, but for a week his projected influence has been felt wherever records are sold in St. Louis. Caruso has been the dominant note in all the record advertising and dealers say his advent has not only greatly stimulated the sales of his own records but of other high-class records as well. For the week "class" has the right of way in the St. Louis record world. It is noticed that in frequent instances persons who are not able to get the Caruso record that they want take as a second choice something in the Caruso class rather than some popular thing. For these reasons it has been a big week for Victor records.

Val Reis, president of the Smith-Reis Co., studying the psychology of the record trade, has discovered that what might be called the incidental results of publicity and advertising are as calculable as the direct results. The incidental effects of Caruso's coming, mentioned above, have been observed by him in a less outstanding but not less positive way in his advertising. He has noted how the monthly bulletins not only result in sales of the new records, but stimulate the demand for standard stock. And when he puts an advertisement in a St. Louis newspaper featuring some particular popular record he relies upon the incidental results to pay for the advertisement and bring a profit to the store. Last week he was advertising "Smiles," and the advertising brought in a lot of buyers of "Smiles," but he did not expect the sales of "Smiles" to pay for the advertisement. What he did expect and what happened was that the "Smiles" ads stimulated interest in other records and the aggregate of sales traceable directly and indirectly to the advertising made the week's business good. This week he was boosting Caruso on the theory that activity in Caruso records would help the sale of all records. "When we boost Caruso we boost Caruso records," he said, "and when we boost Caruso records we boost all records."

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed this week in the United States District Court by Joseph P. Fitzgerald, former president of the Mozart Talking Machine Co. The petition places his liabilities at $29,795.39 and his assets at $115. The Franklin Bank of St. Louis is the largest creditor. The liability to the bank amounts to $21,000 on notes indorsed and cashed. The assets include 209 shares of stock in the talking machine company, which are of doubtful value, since an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against the company some time ago. The assets of $115 are made up of $100 worth of clothes, a $5 watch, eyeglasses worth $5 and a $5 pair of cuff buttons.

It is never too late to expect returns from talking machine advertising, in the opinion of J. F. Ditzel, manager of the Famous & Barr Co. music department. He thinks so because he got results last week from an advertisement more than ten years old. The Famous & Barr

Co. absorbed some time ago the business of a mail order dealer who used to advertise in the national magazines, but quit it more than ten years ago. But Manager Ditzel received an order from North Adams, Mass., for a machine that the mail order man used to advertise.

The Silverstone Music Co. has donated to the Army Hospital, recently opened in St. Louis, an Army and Navy model phonograph and a supply of records. The Silverstone Co. is awaiting shipments of the new Edison period disc models, which are to sell at $95, $155, $195 and $250. Records are being received in satisfactory volume, according to Mark Silverstone. "Till We Meet Again" came in late, but 1,500 were sold the first week. Harold Ruby, of the Silverstone Co., gave a recital recently at the Lafayette Park M. E. Church.

A. W. Roos, manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is spending ten days in New York.

C. R. Salmon, city salesman of the Columbia Phonograph Co., was host at the Columbia dealers' meeting at the Statler Thursday night. He played and talked the new records and explained the merits of the new No. 7 record rack. Mr. Fischer, of the Post-Dispatch, talked on advertising, and the dealers decided to do more tie-up advertising in connection with the big Columbia ads. Feist singers sang several of the popular songs which are coming out in the records, and Mr. Salmon impressed upon the dealers the great amount of publicity given to these numbers by the singers and advised them to stock well. A buffet luncheon was served. The meetings are held monthly and are proving a most interesting and valuable medium for the exchange of ideas.

Glenn Ellison and Miss Pauline Lawrence have been tone testing in the Silverstone zone to packed houses the past month. They were in St. Louis a few days ago on their way to Kansas City.

J. Fikuart, of Frankfort, Mo., an Edison dealer, and his bride were in St. Louis last week on their wedding trip.

Gleanings From the World of Music

THE PRESENT-DAY POPULARITY OF INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

The Part Played by the Orchestras in Winning Public Favor for Certain Compositions—Dance Craze Proves a Big Factor—Some Recent Instrumental Successes

The band and orchestra departments of the popular music publishing houses are showing greater activity than ever this season. It would appear from the results accomplished that the bands and orchestras, especially the orchestras, are becoming greater factors in the popularization of music. Not that they have not always been a force in developing the success of numbers but with the greater interest that has been shown in music they seem to have greatly enlarged the scope of their efforts and have become more powerful in advancing the interests of the popular publishers.

The publishers in the past have always first concentrated their efforts on making the song itself a success, for after all they are primarily song publishers, after which the orchestrations of the number were printed and the campaigns in those fields were inaugurated. This always appeared to be the logical step, but the greater interest that has been shown in music has brought many new developments, and from all indications the orchestra has become more active in the eyes of the publisher and this situation is being rapidly recognized.

During the past two or three years there have actually been several numbers the primary success of which must be credited to the work of the orchestras, and in at least two of the cases in question this decision is beyond dispute, inasmuch as the publishers of the numbers in question neither had the support of the concert or vaudeville singers nor did they have the cooperation of the trade. They did, however, have the fullest measure of assistance from the orchestras. This was no doubt due to the popularity of the composer of the numbers, and of course to the musical value of the selections themselves.

It is now freely admitted that the mechanical reproduction of a number does not injure in the least the sale of the song itself in sheet music form, but it was not at first so freely admitted that the record and the player-roll helped in popularizing a song. However, many of the leaders in the music publishing field have in recent years come to recognize that without doubt the mechanical reproduction of an instrumental selection does help to popularize the song and an analysis of the monthly releases of the various mechanical reproduction companies shows that there are always several numbers featured for dance. Without doubt dance enthusiasts are the most prolific of record buyers, and the majority must have the latest hits for their purposes each month. Here then is a method of popularizing music in instrumental form that would not ordinarily be open to the publisher.

Dance enthusiasts are quite critical and the selections for them are probably made with great care. If it passes their tests they, the dancers, become advertisers of the selections by humming them, by word of mouth, and by requesting them to be played when they go to places of amusement.

Probably not in recent years have there been as many instrumental successes as there are at the present time, that is to say, wonderfully big sellers and numbers whose popularity has not quickly waned. Among these are "Hindustan", "Beautiful Ohio", "Till We Meet Again", "Yearning", "Sweet Siamese", "How You Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm", "Kentucky Dreams", "Indianola", "A Good Man Is Hard to Find", "Always Chasing Rainbows", "Me-ow", "Mary", "Ja Da", "Chong", "Out of the East" and the various "shimmie" selections. These latter, however, probably have passed the zenith of their popularity and appear to have given way to selections which, to say the least, are both more musical and are more worthy in lyric form.

Men Who Make Popular Songs

No. 2—Ernest R. Ball

There is a question that has never been settled but is heard quite frequently, "Just How Long Can a Popular or Semi-Popular Composer Turn Out Successful Songs?" If there has ever been a time limit placed or if, as some hold, song writers are successful only in cycles, then Ernest R. Ball, whom we have always with us, is a living proof that all the theories in that regard are totally wrong.

One does not know how long Ernest R. Ball has been writing successfully, but despite the fact that he is still a young man we have from authoritative sources that it has been a long, long time. Probably his earliest and one of his most successful works was "Love Me and the World Is Mine." This number and his "Till the-Sands of the Desert Grow Cold" have become standard, and to-day despite their age can

In speaking of his works that have become standard one must not forget "Mother Machree," nor for that matter "A Little Bit of Heaven," the former of which is always a welcome addition to any program, and always receives a rousing reception.

It can be said without contradiction that Ernest R. Ball is one of the best-known composers of the time. Many of his works seem destined to live forever, and in addition he appears to have the faculty of writing numbers that are appropriate to the moment.

The following is a list of Mr. Ball's old, best and latest hits: "Will You Love Me in December?" "In the Garden of My Heart," "My Dear," "Turn Back the Universe," "Roll on, Oh Beau"

THIS BIG AD. WILL

FROM the Viewpoint of an advertiser, this ad. is a knockout! It has the power, the undeniable merchandising power, to sell Sheet Music and records big!

From the Viewpoint of an accountant, this ad., in the May and June issues of the country's big magazines, means thousands and thousands in real cash—the most costly campaign in the history of Feist advertising.

THOMAS EDISON in his message to American Business Men says, "Go Ahead!" We go a bit further than Thomas Edison—We say, "Go ahead—GO OUT—and GO AFTER!"

We're going ahead with big plans to prove that when we say, "You can't go wrong with any Feist Song"—we mean Records and Player Rolls—just as we mean Sheet Music.

We're going out with thousands and thousands of dollars in country-wide powerful advertising to put across two of the most wonderful songs that ever came down the pike.

We're going after 100% results for this advertising by backing it up with all the power of our song-boosting organization. This means that singers in theatres, singers in restaurants, talking machines and player-pianos—all will hook up to this advertising!

HOW ABOUT YOU!

The point is—will you hook up to it? We believe the Record and Roll field is like an unexploited gold mine, a gold mine in your own community, your own shop, that has never been properly touched. We are ready with tens of thousands of dollars to go after it. Are you ready with your co-operation to go after it with us—and share the returns?

We have selected, to head this big campaign, two of the most beautiful, most powerful songs that ever bore the Feist imprint. "Campfire"—if our many years' experience as music publishers has taught us anything—is a sure hit. "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose" is already a sweeping success, the song hit of the biggest show hit in America, "The Better 'Ole," now being played by five companies all through America.

Look at the ad. that will run in all big American magazines, consider the real cash behind this campaign—then decide you are going to be in on the returns. Co-operate! Stock up with the Records! Boost them! Display them! Talk them! —and they'll bring home the bacon!

ADVERTISING HELPS MUSIC SALES

Printers' Ink Points Out Effective Results of National Advertising Campaigns Carried on by Prominent Music Publishers

Some interesting comments upon the manner in which the music publishers, through national advertising, have been able to create a demand for their hits almost simultaneously throughout the entire country appeared recently in Printers' Ink and are as follows:

"The Schoolmaster has enjoyed reading many erudite articles in his (as the newspaper funny columnists would say) favorite periodical, on the sectional demand for merchandise. And lunching with several executives at the Victor Club at Camden recently, he projected the subject into the sprightly conversation.

"Where does jazz reach the pinnacle of its syncopated popularity? In what sections do the 'blues' most make their haunting indigo appeal? Do farmers like grand opera and are ukulele melodies played by record on the beach at Waikiki?

"This is what the Schoolmaster was informed: There is a deep religious strain throughout the Central West and parts of the South, which manifests itself in an unquenchable demand for sacred records, such as 'Abide With Me.' But in curious contrast, the South also furnishes the most voracious market for jazz. In Texas they like both jazz and 'blues'—but there is little liking for such giddy melody in Virginia. The appreciation for grand opera and alleged highbrow offerings is most evident in the East and California. The big city stores are kept working overtime wrapping up dance records—and where do you think the Uncle Josh rube monologues go best?

"Right! The rural neighborhood and country hamlet get the most fun from satires on the hick of days gone by.

"Your preceptor was also interested in a commentary on the efficacy of advertising indicated by the simultaneous introduction of new popular song records. Before sheet music was nationally advertised, it took a period of several months for the latest Broadway melody to percolate to the remote corners of this mammoth continent. A song that made a hit in New York would result in a run on the local Victor shops—but the zenith would not be achieved in Chicago until three months afterwards, and perhaps six months would elapse before it was asked for in the stores of San Francisco.

"But now the demand springs up with mushroom growth—simultaneously wherever the particular selection is likely ever to be popular. Part of this is due to increased public travel. But most of it can be attributed to the national advertising of sheet music."

Why We Can't Get Along Without Popular Songs

By Walter E. Colby, Editor of the "Tatler"

Did you ever stop to think what a somber world this would be without popular songs? Have you ever realized the really important part that these songs play in the life of the people and the nation; how they both reflect and influence public opinion and mood?

Take the popular war songs, for instance. After the late war started there was strong opposition to our getting mixed up in it. War seemed an abhorrent thing and the song, "I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier," not only reflected the public opinion of that time, but helped to sustain the people's determination not to become embroiled in the terrible conflict. Later, when Germany's deeds made it necessary for us to take up arms, the inspiring martial strains of "Over There" stirred the people to great outbursts of patriotism; helped to raise Liberty Loans and send our soldiers to victory.

As things grew more serious and threatening, the more the demand grew for livelier songs. They helped keep spirits up. Look what "Tipperary" did for the English Tommy! And when our boys sailed away you didn't hear them singing, "How Can I Bear to Leave Thee?" Not much! It was "Where Do We Go From Here, Boys?" And for some time after the American soldiers got to France the people over there thought our national anthem was, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here!" Those popular song slogans did their little bit in helping people help win the war.

"Marching Through Georgia" was a popular song at the time of the Civil War and for that matter our national anthem was so considered at that time, although now it has acquired a more dignified standing.

In peace times the popular song is an equally important factor in human affairs. Millions of dollars are invested in their production, billions of copies are sold yearly, and wherever you go, whichever way you turn you hear them played, sung or whistled.

In fact, they provide so much wholesome and welcome entertainment, diversion and amusement for the majority of people that we wouldn't be at all surprised to see the persons who are pushing the prohibition of wines, tobacco, tea, coffee and everything else that tends to furnish a little joy and comfort in this vale of tears—we say we wouldn't be at all surprised to see these persons start a campaign against popular songs.

Why not? They're a source of innocent enjoyment, so why let 'em live? They provide amusement and therefore they are wicked! Why should a man whistle when his day's work is done? He should go on working and thinking of serious things. No woman should sing a popular air around the house, it impairs her efficiency as a housewife. We'd hate terribly to hear our wife singing, "When You See Another Sweetie Hanging Around." We'd be afraid it might make her fickle. Why should anyone play a lilting melody on the piano when there are hymns to be had? And jazz! Ye gods! Perdition simply yawns for the jazz fan!

So we may expect the following amendment proposed by those who are trying to make a sewing circle out of our well-known globe:

"No song, selection, tune or musical composition whatever of a popular nature shall be written, bought, sold, sung, whistled, played, exported or imported within the confines of the United States.

"On certain occasions that shall be specified by statute, such as New Year's, signing of an armistice, or the permanent retirement of W. J. Bryan, musical selections containing no more than 2½ per cent. of syncopation may be rendered by properly licensed persons.

"Congress shall have power to enforce by appropriate legislation the provision of this article." This will be the nineteenth amendment. YES, IT WILL!

TRADE FLOURISHING IN CONNECTICUT

Dealers Throughout the State Report Enormous Demand for Leading Machines and Records—A Newsy Budget That Tells the Tale

NEW HAVEN, CONN., May 6.—Talking machine business in this section of Connecticut is flourishing just now and there is not a dealer handling the better known lines of machines and records who would not be able to dispose of considerably more stock if he could obtain it from the factories. However, both machines and records are beginning to arrive in larger quantities and the general outlook is exceedingly bright.

The Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Edison jobbers, with the co-operation of their dealers have recently completed a series of tone tests, participated in by the Edison artists, Miss Ida Gardner, contralto concert soloist, and Harold Lyman, one of America's foremost flute soloists.

The tone tests were rendered in South Norwalk, Bridgeport, Ansonia, Cheshire, Waterbury, Bristol, Stafford Springs and Danielson, Conn., also in Turner's Falls and Webster, Mass. The dealers reported that the demonstrations were most novel and were enjoyed by large and appreciative audiences.

The Edison Shop, under the supervision of H. L. Ellenberger, is in the midst of a specialization sale of two weeks' duration, featuring the Sheraton model, of which type they had secured a carload shipment. A unique window display was observed, showing a large-sized painting of an American Railroad Express car well packed with Sheraton models, and several packing cases containing instruments, placed in the show window to give the effect of being unloaded from car. Mr. Ellenberger reports a good demand for all Edison models and for the Sheraton model in particular.

Edward Gallo, vice-president of the Horton-Gallo-Creamer Co., Victor jobbers, reports that the demand for Victor product exceeds, to a large degree, the present supply.

Howard Graff, Horton-Gallo-Creamer Co.'s popular salesman, says that he finds business very good throughout his territory, most dealers informing him that they could double the amount of their business if it were possible to secure more goods.

H. L. Moorey, recently appointed manager of the Columbia Co.'s wholesale branch, is exceedingly busy at his desk and with occasional trips to the factory. Judging from conversations with several of the exclusive Columbia dealers throughout the territory, Mr. Moorey's ideas and plans for service to these dealers are interesting, and it is the consensus of opinion that the Columbia interests will be well cared for.

The Grafonola department of the Edward Malley department store, one of the most attractive talking machine parlors in the city, is flourishing under the capable management of Miss M. O'Brien, who has been connected with this department since its inception in 1915.

W. E. Fulton, manager of the Calder Shop, the exclusive Victrola shop of New Haven, and whose motto is "Victor Victrolas and Victor Records Exclusively," says that the demand for Victor product greatly exceeds their present supply and their one wish is for more machines and records.

T. A. Clarke, manager of the Vocalion department of Chamberlin Furniture Co., reports an ever-increasing sale of Aeolian-Vocalions and Vocalion records.

John Duncan, manager of the department in the Gamble-Desmond store where are shown a goodly number of Brunswick and Pathé instruments in the elaborate surroundings, reports these instruments with the Pathé records experiencing a flourishing sale.

L. P. Cornet, who was actively engaged in the talking machine business in this city for several years, was a recent caller upon the trade, who are looking forward with considerable interest to the appearance of a new semi-permanent stylus which Mr. Cornet intends to place upon the market in the near future.

A PROGRESSIVE BUFFALO MAN

Charles F. Hoffman Has Built Up a Large and Successful Trade in Northern New York—Has Built Up a Very Strong Organization

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 5.—One of the most popular, wide-awake and progressive music dealers in this city is Charles F. Hoffman, head of the Hoffman Piano Co., 696 Main street. He has been associated with the piano business all his life, and started business for himself with a stock of five pianos at 943 Main street in November, 1908.

At the present time his establishment occupies a floor space of approximately 5,000 square feet, and in addition to handling a high-class line of pianos the Hoffman Piano Co. has been appointed jobbers for the OkeH record line; also handling Sonora and Brunswick phonographs and Emerson records at retail.

ANNOUNCING

The machine remains the same. The former quality, workmanship, tone and finish—all are identical to the phonograph which has sold so successfully in the past under the name of Belcantola.

And as before, this machine is still an attractive proposition to jobbers and dealers who are looking for a high-grade phonograph to sell on an exclusive-territory basis. Write for details.

It's large enough, we trust, to accommodate our rapid growth for several years at least. It's built to stock the immense supply of Victrolas, Victor Records and Victor accessories our trade demands.

There are four floors and basement to the building, and every idea of equipment that would facilitate office work, stock keeping and shipping has been incorporated.

A Reception Room which visiting Victor dealers may make their very own is one of the features of our newer building—A decided innovation, however, is our "Service Room"—a sort of an advertising office—an exchange wherein are brought together all of the new publicity plans and selling stunts of the Victor business.

All this is yours, Mr. Victor Dealer, and we want to "show you through" from "A to Z" the very next time you are in Omaha.

SAN FRANCISCO TRADE MAKING GREAT STRIDES

Leading Dealers Report Careful Buying But Volume Is Large—Period Styles Win Favor—
Stern Corp. Anniversary—Latest News

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., April 28.—While business has not been rushing the last month the general average of activity points to a normal condition in the trade, despite the competition with the Victory Liberty Loan. There is very little reckless spending now in comparison with two years ago; well-paying jobs in the industrial plants are not so easy to get and hold and hence the workers are inclined to be more conservative in manipulating their wealth. The record business is encouraging all along the line and the success of new makes of records is little short of marvelous, considering the established reputation of the old standard makes.

Showing OkeH Lines

L. R. Gruen, Pacific Coast manager for the Otto

Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., is back in the San Francisco office after a trip to the southern end of the State. He says the Heineman lines were well received in Los Angeles and San Diego and that business has been most favorable at all the principal Coast cities. Mr. Gruen will make a trip to the Northwest early in May. The San Francisco office now carries a sample line of the OkeH Talking Machine made exclusively for the foreign export trade. Four sizes are shown. There has arrived also a large stock of OkeH records to supply rush orders on the Coast.

Use Windows During Parade

and during the monster parade on April 22, the special holiday for welcoming home the California fighters who distinguished themselves at Argonne, Mr. Gruen entertained a number of guests at the office, from which an exceptionally fine view of the parade was possible. The windows were lavishly decorated with flags and "Welcome Home" banners.

E. C. Johnstone Entertains Staff

In appreciation of the earnest co-operation of his staff in making the first quarter of the year such a signal success E. C. Johnstone, manager of the Sonora Phonograph Shop on Stockton street, entertained the entire force at a dinner and theatre party a few weeks ago. The dinner was preceded by a business meeting at which the means and methods best suited for merchandising were discussed. The dinner was held at Tait's Cafe and after the dinner the party adjourned to the Columbia Theatre.

Display of Edison Period Designs

The Edison Shop this month is featuring in the show window phonographs in the beautiful and dignified William and Mary style. One of the most marked advances in the talking machine business the last year has been in the improvement in cabinet designs.

Men Back From Service

Robert Cannon, of the talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co., returned with the famous 363rd Regiment of the 91st Division, A. E. F., on April 22. He was one of the fighters who served in the big doings at Argonne. Martin Klein, of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is another war hero to return on April 22. He served in France with the 347th Artillery, saw activity at Argonne and was away a year and a half. J. J. Black, of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who is serving as a yeoman in the Navy Department at the Union Iron Works, expresses himself as being so fascinated with the service that he is considering seriously the matter of re-enlisting.

Byron Mauzy Makes Improvements

Byron Mauzy has worked out a plan whereby the merchandising of talking machine goods is expected to be facilitated somewhat. The main floor is now largely devoted to talking machines and demonstrating rooms, several new sound-proof rooms having just been built in, and the arrangement is such that each make of talking machine is segregated. By displaying and demonstrating each make under conditions best suited to bring out its strong points Mr. Mauzy believes the general volume of business will be increased and customers given the greatest satisfaction.

The record sales alone of the San Francisco branch of the Columbia Co. during March were as great in value as the total business of the office for the same month a year ago. This month was the second largest in the history of the office.

Celebrates Third Anniversary

Frederick Stern, president of the Stern Talking Machine Corp., gave a dinner to his employes on April 15 at the Palace Hotel. The affair was to celebrate the third anniversary of the company's business career and in appreciation of the guests for the part they have played in making the enterprise a success.

Attend Rotary Club Convention

Byron Mauzy and family and Charles Mauzy and wife made a party on a trip to southern California during the latter part of April. The

The Oakland business of the Stern Talking Machine Corp. has been capitalized independently for $40,000 and is to be operated under the title of the Rex Phonograph Co. L. Annual Picnic on May 4

The Employees' Association of the Eastern Outfitting Co. has planned to hold its annual picnic at Pinehurst on May 4. A Columbia Grafonola will be one of the prizes for the contests arranged.

Live News Boiled Down

F. K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a visitor to the San Francisco office about the middle of April. He was met at Los Angeles by Nathan Milner, the San Francisco manager, who went south for that purpose.

The Leonard Piano & Music Co. of Miami, Ariz., has been made the Arizona distributing point for the phonograph accessory lines handled by Walter S. Gray of San Francisco. Mr. Leonard concluded the deal on a recent visit to Mr. Gray in San Francisco.

Omer N. Kruschke, manager of the Western Phonograph Co., San Francisco, has returned from an extended trip through his territory in the South and he is much gratified by the favor accorded to Pathé merchandise.

F. B. Travers, Pacific Coast manager of the Sonora Phonograph Co., stopped at the Sonora factory at Saginaw, Mich., on his return trip from the convention of the company's sales managers in New York. He says the outlook for Sonora business on the Coast is brighter than ever in view of the splendid productions being turned out at the factories.

NOW EXCLUSIVELY WHOLESAL

Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., Inc., Makes Debut on May 1—Trade News Service Makes a Decided Hit With the Retailers

On May 1 I. Davega, Jr., Inc., became the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co., exclusively wholesaling Victor merchandise. Finishing touches are now being put on their new building at 138-140 West 124th street, which is expected to be one of the best-equipped and most attractive wholesale warerooms in the country. The May issue of Trade News Service has been issued. This monthly publication is sent out each month by the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. and is in itself a valuable help to the Victor dealer. Many congratulatory letters have been received relative to the April number, which was the initial issue. The leading editorial in the May issue is headed "Bigger Victor Business" and succeeding articles deal in detail with window dressing, advertising, repairing and the mailing list—all of these subjects being part of Knickerbocker service. Another article of particular interest is one on "Quality, Value and Price." The hearty manner in which the first two issues of this paper has been received assures a bright future for it. It is planned to publish it each month.

STEINOLA CO. WAS NOT RESTRAINED

The Steinola Co., Inc., Kansas City, Mo., advises The World that the recent action brought by Steinway & Sons and reported in this paper was to prevent the registration by the Steinola Co. of the name "Steinola" as a trade-mark on talking machines. The Examiner of Interferences of the U. S. Patent Office decided in favor of Steinway & Sons, and refused the application to register the name "Steinola," but inasmuch as no court action was taken the Steinola Co. states that the report that it had been restrained from using the name was erroneous. A restraining order can only be issued after a court action.

GREAT RECORD OF UDELL WORKS

First Manufacturing Concern in Indianapolis to Go Over Top for Victory Loan—Reduce Working Hours in Factory Voluntarily

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., May 5.—These are busy times at the Udell Works in this city, not alone in keeping up production to meet an unprecedented demand for Udell talking machine record and music roll cabinets, but in taking care of the company's Victory Loan quota. In the latter connection it is to be reported with pride that the Udell Works was the first manufacturing concern in this city to go over the top for the Victory Loan, the subscriptions being already ahead of the total of the Fourth Loan and still growing.

Incidentally it is interesting to note that beginning May 1 the working time in the Udell factory will be cut from fifty-five to fifty hours per week, without any cut in wages. This is a voluntary act on the part of the company, who believe that their workmen will be able to keep up and even increase production on the shorter hour basis. The employes are distinctly enthusiastic over this voluntary act of the company, and increased efficiency is sure to result.

The demand for the Udell Blue Book, showing the various new styles of cabinets with descriptive matter, has been so great that a second edition has become necessary and is now on the press.

The Feather or the Point?

Some people were inclined to be incredulous until they had the opportunity to actually inspect Uniform Needles.

And you would do as have all who examined them — marvel at the marked superiority of the ball point Uniform over the ordinary steel needle.

Every Uniform Needle is finished mechanically in point before it is given a lustre. In the case of all other steel needles the quality of the point depends wholly on the length of time given to the polishing operation.

Is it any wonder you many times have a feather instead of a point?

And—unfortunately—you can tell only when you put the needle on the record, and then the inevitable apology to your customer. "The needle is bad." Have you ever heard this expression in your own store?

You will find you never have to apologize for Uniform Needles, for you always get the point and not the feather.

Can we prove it to you, too?

What one Dealer told me

He was demonstrating with his most expensive instrument. All his enthusiasm had gone into his praise and admiration of the beautiful voices about to be reproduced. Confidence, determination, and anticipation—all were his; and then,—that indescribable sound that comes with a bad needle. The point—notwithstanding the needle had been changed—had gone bad. His prompt explanation—he was too good a salesman to apologize—seemed to suffice; but, as the result proved, it only seemed to suffice. The hurdle was too high—he could not get the customer's mind diverted from the fact that the record cost five dollars, and, as she had been told, the needle point had become blunt with two or three revolutions of the record, and blunt needles mean something to women, for they do know much about needles.

But he started to switch the subject with the statement that it was all in the game, or something equally as good tempered, and I did not interpose a remark until he said he found the same thing to be true of every make of needle he had ever tried.

But perhaps you would like us to show you, too. You, too, would like to know how all other needles frequently have a feather, and how the Torrington Company overcame the difficulty in producing Uniform the needle with the ball point.

Imagine a large quantity of needles rolled for some time in order to produce a polish and at the same time go through the operation of having the points cleaned off.

You remember having seen the cigarmaker roll the weed back and forth and carefully adjust the tapered end so that no fine and small straggling pieces remained; well, that's what the machine we're talking about, the one the other fellow uses, tries to do—only the machine isn't as human as the cigarmaker—It can't change the feather into a point!

If you knew, as I am telling you it is so, that the Torrington ball point is made with a separate and distinct operation—made with mechanical precision—not rolled by guesswork—wouldn't you be interested to know the rest of the story—particularly when it concerns your increased profits?

WEYMANN FAMILY TO BE REUNITED

Herbert, of the Navy, and H. Power, of the Army, Will Soon Be in Business Harness—Business With the Weymann House Is Brisk

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 5.—The family of H. W. Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Sons, Victor wholesalers of this city, will shortly be reunited once more. Herbert Weymann, who

Herbert W. Weymann served in the navy during the war, has returned some time and has already resumed all details as assistant to the general manager of the retail department. H. Power Weymann, who is with the American Expeditionary Force in France, is leaving for home and will immediately resume his duties as assistant to the general manager of the wholesale department. Mr. Weymann writes that he wants no furlough when he returns, for while he has been away he has evolved a number of new ideas which he is anxious to put into practice. H. W. Weymann expresses himself as very optimistic over the outlook for the Victor wholesale business for the balance of the year. The Keystone State line of musical instruments is continuing to be much in demand and their monthly sales are only limited to the output of that month. Preparations are being made to job on an extensive scale a well-known line of player rolls.

LABOR IMPROVEMENT HELPS OUTPUT

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 6.—The National Decalcomania Co. of this city who have catered to the talking machine dealer and manufacturer for some time reports greatly increased business in proportion to the good business prevalent throughout the trade. The labor situation has improved and more space seems necessary to handle the increasing amount of orders.

MISS PETERS GUEST OF HONOR

Head of Retail Department of Kay Talking Machine Co. Honored by Dinner Given by Former Associates in Blackman Co.—Presented With Gold Wrist Watch as Token of Esteem

As noted in last month's Talking Machine World, Miss Libbie D. Peters, formerly head of the retail department of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., has joined the sales organization of the Kay Talking Machine Co., which has purchased the retail business previously conducted by the Blackman Talking Machine Co.

Miss Peters was associated with the Blackman organization for ten years, and as a mark of the esteem and affection in which she is held by her former co-workers Miss Peters was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Arkwright Club on Thursday evening, May 1. There were present at this dinner the older employees of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. and Louis Kay, president of the Kay Talking Machine Co.

During the course of the evening J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the company bearing his name, paid a well-deserved tribute to the loyalty and invaluable services given by Miss Peters during her ten years' connection with this company. Fred P. Oliver, vice-president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., then presented Miss Peters with a very handsome gold wrist watch suitably inscribed, stating that this was offered as a token of esteem from the employees of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.

Frank Tillinghast, who was also previously connected with the retail department of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., has joined the staff of the Kay Talking Machine Co. At the dinner on May 1 Mr. Tillinghast was presented with a platinum and diamond scarfpin from his former associates of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.

VISITING SOUTH AMERICAN CENTERS

R. C. Ackerman, export manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., is now in Havana, Cuba, and the orders he has sent in to date indicate a healthy business outlook in that country, together with an active demand for Heineman products. From Havana Mr. Ackerman will leave for Merida and from there will go to Mexico. After making an extensive tour of Mexico he will again return to Cuba, and before returning to the United States will spend quite some time in Porto Rico.

- ☐ The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same center in both positions.
- ☐ Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.
- ☐ The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.
- ☐ The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers. Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.
- ☐ The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.
- ☐ The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.
- ☐ The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

FROM OUR CHICAGO HEADQUARTERS

Edward Van Harlingen Eugene F. Carey
 William Braid White Arthur E. Nealy
 A. Snyder

World Office
 Republic Bldg., 209 South State St., Chicago
 Telephone: Wabash 5774

CHICAGO, ILL., May 10.—There seems to be no end to the stream of orders coming in to the manufacturers of talking machines in this section. Factory capacity has been reached by all manufacturers long ago and many of them have been spending a good deal of their time hustling along looking for woodworking plants to help them out. In several instances manufacturers have been successful in securing additional help in this way, but there still remain great numbers of talking machine men who would welcome a cabinet plant with open arms. One reason why there are so few cabinet factories willing to manufacture for talking machine men is that the cabinet man himself is out for the same business. He has been getting ready to put his own instrument on the market and so has all he can do to take care of his own demand.

The building trades in Chicago and vicinity are being taxed to the utmost by all kinds of manufacturing concerns who want to put up additions to their plants. The talking machine man who has a plant has been finding it necessary to consider putting an addition to his factory, but it seems he has been a little bit slow in getting in his order. He must therefore wait until some time in the future before he has the necessary room to take on more business. The manufacturers who were foresighted enough to see the amount of business that was to come their way began building operations some months ago. They, of course, will soon be in a position to increase their capacity in order better to take care of their trade. Still other companies have had their new additions completed and have found it necessary to add to those.

One noticeable thing is that in all the rush the goods being turned out this year are far superior to those of last year. The people who are buying talking machines to-day want value for their money. While it is true that it is still possible to sell a $25 machine for $50, these possibilities are few and far between. The general tendency to-day of the buying public is to ask for nothing cheaper than a $75 machine, something new for them. This is not only the case with the "talker" dealers, but it is the case with dealers in all lines of business. Quality, not quantity, is what the buyers are asking for; and they are seeing that they get it.

Another thing rather noticeable is that some dealers and some manufacturers, too, are falling down in their advertising. A great many of these men think that because of the fact that they can sell as many instruments as they can get there is no need for advertising. They seem to think that just because they are for the time oversold they may safely neglect their publicity. They forget that the biggest advertisers in the country to-day are those who have the greatest number of unfilled orders on their desks. In this they are wrong. Now is the time for them to build up good-will, and firmly establish the name of their goods in the trade. When business begins to decline and they are thrown on the market in competition with the fellows who have built up a good-will through their advertising they will be left behind. The only argument they offer is that if they continue to advertise they will have still greater volume of orders which they cannot fill. The fact may be true, but it makes poor argument. Right now is the time to advertise for prestige, so as indelibly to impress "the name" on the public mind. He who will figure out a campaign along these lines will turn the trick.

C. E. Goodwin Says "Prepare!"

"Edison dealers of the Middle West, shake hands! We are about to enter upon an era of big business unexampled in Edison history. The dark days are about ended." So says C. E. Goodwin, president of the Phonograph Co., and the big, broad smile now stamped upon his face would seem to indicate the strength of his convictions.

"A country or a people don't get over war in a few days. That takes time; and it also takes time to put war-time manufacturing operations back on a peace footing. But American manufacturers, especially in our own line, have come through the first period of readjustment with colors flying and guns booming. There will be more Edison machines and more Edison records this year than ever before. This will be the biggest summer in Edison history, and at that the supply will not begin to meet the demand. But why be pessimistic over the fact that you're doing excellent business but can't do more?"

"The period models are now coming through in fine shape—meeting all expectations; and the outlook for this particular type is very good indeed. It is indicative of the higher education of the talking machine purchasing public.

"Farmers are buying their heads off. They, it is true, are the principal cause of the present demand, but the people in the small towns and cities are having their share in the great prosperity that has struck the trade."

Ridgeway Leaves for Newark

P. S. Ridgeway, who since October has been manager of both the retail and wholesale talking machine departments of Thos. E. Wilson & Co., resigned his position last week. Mr. Ridgeway left on Saturday for Newark, N. J., where he will reside in the future. Mr. Ridgeway will take care of the business left by his father, who died several months ago.

The company, founded by his father, is the Newark Emblem Co., of Newark, N. J., and Mr. Ridgeway will look after the interests of that institution from now on. Thos. E. Wilson & Co. have not as yet announced his successor.

While in charge of the talking machine business of Thos. E. Wilson & Co. Mr. Ridgeway was very successful. At the time he took over the management of this department he succeeded the late A. L. Spring. Mr. Ridgeway's many friends in the trade were sorry to see him leave and wished him all the success in the world in bidding him good-bye. They are all betting 1,000 to 1 that "Ridge" is going to be as successful in his new venture as he was in the old.

"Old Dealers First"

So says H. B. Bibbs, sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. "In spite of the fact that our factories have been steadily increasing their output, and in spite of our best efforts to keep ahead of demand, orders seem to run just ahead of us. We are endeavoring to give previously established dealers the best possible in service, and for that reason we are still unable to take on any of the numerous applicants who write us. Our present dealers must be taken care of in good shape before new ones will be considered."

Wallace Brown, district manager for the Brunswick Co. in Detroit, came to Chicago for (wholesale only) is equipped to supply the trade with instruments and records and to furnish complete advertising and other branches of service.

THE establishment in Chicago is a branch of The Aeolian Company in New York. Dealers will appreciate the advantage of direct contact with the manufacturers whose vital interest in the sales promotion of their goods is obvious.

Aeolian Service is famous in the music trade. Coupled with the recognized supremacy of the Aeolian-Vocalion and Vocalion Record it makes representation of these goods the most valuable franchise in the phonograph industry.

The advertising service furnished dealers includes newspaper advertisements, window cards, store hangers, booklets, etc. The newspaper advertisements are prepared to enable the dealer to tie up his local advertising with the powerful campaign of Vocalion publicity in the Saturday Evening Post and other mediums.

cleared up, the charge withdrawn and the difficulty, so far as the bank was concerned, settled, but in the meantime, after reading the newspaper story, Wade C. Sandburne, who held a mortgage on Mossner for some $11,000, foreclosed with $4,500 still unpaid. The musical instruments in the Republic Building salesrooms were taken possession of by the mortgagee and everything removed. Later other creditors of Mr. Mossner entered a petition against him in involuntary bankruptcy, which is still in Referee Eastman's court. Mossner was present at but one of these hearings; he took sick Sunday the 20th, and passed away on the 24th. Although too ill to attend the hearings, he had not been considered in a serious condition, and the end came unexpectedly. He is survived by a widow, son and two daughters. The funeral took place Monday, April 28, and the remains were taken to Montrose Cemetery.

Krasberg Mfg. Corp. Making Motors

The Krasberg Engineering & Mfg. Corp., a Chicago concern, well known as manufacturers of tools, jigs and special machinery, and more recently of talking machine motors, announce that this latter branch of their business has so expanded as to have absorbed the greater part of their manufacturing facilities. Although they started manufacturing talking machine motors in a small way as far back as two and a half years ago, this fact has never before been published to the trade. Now that they find this has become the most important and interesting of all their activities they have decided to let the trade know a little something of themselves and their work.

The Krasberg Engineering & Mfg. Corp. is incorporated under the laws of the State of Illinois for a million and a half dollars. R. Krasberg is president of the concern. This gentleman, a natural-born mechanic, has spent his entire life in machine shops of all parts of the country. He has had twenty-two years' actual shop experience and is thoroughly conversant with every phase of special machinery manufacturing. It was but four years ago that he entered in business for himself and since that time has succeeded in building up an organization of considerable size. It has been said of him that he "started on his nerve and continued on his knowledge." Being himself a past master at things mechanical he has made a hobby of gathering around him men who are primarily of a mechanical turn of mind, even though their work is of a sort demanding executive ability apart from mechanical knowledge. He has always been an exponent of methods for economical and interchangeable manufacturing and has succeeded in impressing his men with the importance of the development of such processes.

The concern is particularly fortunate in having the services of the well-known technical expert, C. A. Valiquet. Mr. Valiquet serves the company in an advisory capacity. This gentleman has been connected with the talking machine business for some twenty-five years and was one of the first men in the country to build talking machine motors. Since then he has designed a number of these for different manufacturers. He is a strong talking machine enthusiast and a keen student of every new development.

WARNING TO THE TRADE

On May 13, 1919, the United States Patent Office issued to The Empire Phono Parts Co. a patent covering the DESIGN of Tone Arm invented by The Empire Phono Parts Co., and a second Design Patent has been allowed by the U. S. Patent Office, thus covering the Empire Tone Arm design in every possible variation. The Empire Tone Arm is ORIGINAL in design, and is entirely different from any other Tone Arm in appearance, and it is the appearance of the Empire Tone Arm that gives it its greatest value, irrespective of its superiority in mechanical construction, etc.

As is usually the case when an article of real merit is put on the market, unscrupulous competitors have attempted to copy our Tone Arm, not only in design, but also in mechanical features, and it is our intention to protect our rights by court action against all infringers of our patents. The United States Courts have held that Design Patents are infringed if the copy bears even a colorable likeness to the original, and they have also held that not only the manufacturers, but also all purchasers or users of infringing devices are equally liable for damages.

We therefore desire to warn the Trade against the purchase or use of any Tone Arm which resembles the Empire Tone Arm, and to notify all parties that we shall hold them to a strict accountability for any unauthorized use of our patents.

THE EMPIRE PHONO PARTS CO.

JOHN H. STEINMETZ,
Secretary and Treasurer.

The Krasberg Corp. plan immediate enlargement of their manufacturing facilities. They have found the talking machine business the most fertile of all their fields of manufacture and have within the last six months more than quadrupled their business.

"Talking Books" Will Interest Trade

A. H. Carlyle, Western representative of the Talking Book Corp., located at 358 Fifth avenue, New York, has been traveling through the Middle West and reports great interest in the products manufactured by his concern. The Talking Book Corp. manufacture small books, paper dolls, animals, etc., upon which small records are attached reproducing the story told in print. The products manufactured by the Talking Book Corp. are merely toys for the little tots, but are said to interest the grown-ups from an educational viewpoint. The idea of placing the books with records attached on a talking machine is entirely new and its development will be watched with interest by the trade.

Change Name to Oro-Tone Co.

The Combination Attachment Co., manufacturing talking machine parts, announce that their name has been changed to Oro-Tone Co. As told in the last issue of The World, this company reorganized a short time ago for the purpose of increasing and enlarging their business. The old Combination Attachment Co. was first organized in July, 1915, by Messrs.

L. & H.'s Small Instrument Displays

Much interest is being directed this month to an unusual display in one of Lyon & Healy's Wabash avenue windows. A window card bearing this announcement explains the reason:

Window No. 16 is a series displaying the musical merchandise in this store. A different instrument will be shown every day.

Mandolin, ukulele, banjo, violin, flute, tambourine, ocarina, in fact, as many styles of small musical instruments as possible from the Lyon & Healy stock—which embraces practically "Everything known in music"—will be exhibited. Another window card changed daily gives a concise history of each instrument.

It is notable that among those who gather about this window, especially at noontime, are many who return from day to day.

Remodel Empire Offices

The Empire Talking Machine Co. have found time during the past month to remodel their offices at 425 South Wabash avenue and to re-decorate throughout: a regular spring cleaning, as it were. John H. Steinmetz, president of the concern, has had a separate private office constructed for himself at the front of the fourth floor facing upon Wabash avenue. A great deal of new office appliances has been installed.

Preliminary announcement of the new Empire Universal Cut records brought forth a deluge of inquiries, and considering the short period during which the new records have been on the market they have found great favor.

Revive Kimball Soldiers and Sailors Club

The employes of the W. W. Kimball Co., the prominent dealers and manufacturers of this city, met last month and decided to bring back to life their Soldiers and Sailors Club, which was dropped at the time of the armistice so as to be able to render service to the boys who are remaining "over there" for an indefinite period.

Will Play Lateral or Vertical Cut Records

Attention is called to the fact that in last month's Talking Machine World in an announcement of the manufacture by the Empire Phonographs Co. of a new Empire Universal attachment No. 2 for use on Edison machines, it was said that the attachment is for use with lateral cut records only. This was a mistake. The attachment is made to play either lateral or vertical cut records.

Speeding Up With Music

"Certain old heads in Washington are discovering that music speeds up work." So says an article in a prominent woman's publication.

Grandmother knew that secret when "Lorena" and "Maggie" were young. Sailors knew it in Columbus' time. When water travel was done by sail no skipper would take out a craft unless he had a good "chantey man." This chantey man led the singing when there was hard work to do. Hardened sailors unfurled frozen sails in icy blasts that tore their fingers, working with a will to the rhythm of a song. They were rough ballads, most of these chanteys, unsavory histories of famous port towns, songs of Davy Jones and his Locker and the Port of Missing Ships; of dead men and lost souls, but all had a challenge and a rhythmic swing.

In some restaurants, during the busy, crowded lunch hour, fast music is played because, unconsciously, people speed up to the tempo. This may be a questionable use of music. But there are valuable uses. In some business schools stenographers learn to run typewriters to fast

Heineman Expansion in the West

The big business built up throughout the Far West and Middle West by the local branch of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., under the able management of S. A. Ribolla, has finally led to the founding of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. of Illinois, Inc.

The new concern has been given the sole representation for all the Heineman-Meisselbach and Dean products in the following States: Illinois, Missouri, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, Kentucky, Tennessee and Minnesota. The president and treasurer of the new company is Otto Heineman; secretary, Jacob Schechter; general manager, S. A. Ribolla, and assistant manager, C. W. Neumeister.

The newly-organized concern will concentrate all its efforts on proper distribution of Otto Heineman products and on hearty co-operation with its trade in the above-mentioned States. This will assure for all Heineman-Meisselbach and Dean products a greater popularity in the Middle West than ever before.

OkeH Records have played an important part in building up the great volume of business which the Chicago branch of the Heineman House has developed in so short a time. All throughout the West the OkeH records are well known, not only through their tone quality and prompt deliveries, but also as a profitable business proposition. Scores of jobbers who secured the agency for this popular record some months ago cheerfully testify to its success with ever-increasing orders.

Old-Time "Talker" Dealer Retires

Will F. Cheshire, said to be the first music dealer in Illinois to handle the Edison phonograph, recently sold out his business in Rockford to Fred G. Hawkinson. Mr. Cheshire has been engaged in the music business for over three decades at a store located on Seventh street. He came to Rockford from Nashville, Tenn., where he had been connected with the Jesse French & Sons Piano Co. His life in Rockford has been of a public character. He organized the Rockford Progressive Club Orchestra some years ago. It was in 1889 that he first handled the Edison phonographs. When

FROM OUR CHICAGO HEADQUARTERS

Dealers frequently are called on to supply quickly some popular Steger phonograph model which may be temporarily out of stock. A telephone call to Steger & Sons' warerooms means that within a few hours the desired instrument will be loaded on the new truck and on its way to the waiting dealer. By prompt delivery the latter is often enabled to clinch a profitable sale, which might otherwise be lost through delay.

This service is advantageous to the dealer who carries a representative line, from the standpoint of helping him to keep the right amount of stock on hand. He is not in danger of overstocking, as he knows that he has the well-filled warerooms of Steger & Sons to draw from on a few hours' notice. He is enabled to concentrate his energies on selling and is free from the bugbear of slow deliveries.

Incidentally, this truck has been found very useful by the retail as well as the wholesale departments. Urgent calls can be answered in short order. Whenever necessary a quick run can be made to the company's immense phonograph factories at Steger, Ill., twenty-nine miles south of Chicago.

Steger representatives in the Chicago district have found this service a material and very important help. Their expressions of sincere appreciation reflect credit on the progressive spirit of the Steger & Sons institution.

Demand for Personal Records

A large opportunity awaits some enterprising duck with a little capital and some ambition in Chicago. There is a big field in Chicago which seems to have been entirely neglected by the trade.

Hardly a day goes by that the Chicago office of The Talking Machine World does not receive an inquiry from an individual or firm asking where they can have a special record made for them. At present there is no one in Chicago who can make a master record. It seems as though all of this business were being carried on in the East. The records called for in the past were mostly recordings of the voice of some ambitious mother's child. In the last few months, however, there have been quite a number of inquiries received here vastly different from the above mentioned and which promise to open a large field for work of this kind. One large company recently called up and asked where they could get in touch with some recorder who would get them out a record telling a salesman's story directly to a prospective customer. The idea was that this company intended getting out a new record each month upon which would be recorded a salesman's story concerning the company's wares, which would be mailed directly to the prospect, who in turn would put it on his machine and listen to what the salesman had to say.

This company intends sending out its first record along with the catalog, the record to be merely explanatory of the catalog. After that the intention is to send out a regular monthly letter by record.

This is an idea which those who are in the recording business should heed. Chicago, without a doubt, is the biggest mail-order center in the United States. Here, indeed, the mail-order business started. Chicago has remained the greatest mail-order center, and there are hundreds of firms here who could be approached on matters such as this, and who, without a doubt, would be quick to take up the subject of circularizing their trade by records instead of letters.

Then again there are hundreds of other concerns, such as automobile manufacturers, farm machinery makers, etc., who would be likely customers for a record such as this. This field should apply not only to Chicago but to all other large cities as well; but just now it is Chicago which is ready and howling for it, with nobody paying the slightest attention. Now, won't some member of the trade be a good, kind daddy to Chicago and start the ball rolling by coming here and opening a little recording studio for commercial purposes?

Chicago Talking Machine Co. Sounds Optimism

The Chicago Talking Machine Co. is, by nature, one of the most optimistic concerns in the business and their vision includes nothing if not optimism, but listen.

"The demand for talking machines will keep up if wages keep up—and wages are going to keep up. Here are reasons. The crops of the year 1918 netted the farmers of the country $2,000,000,000 more than any year previous. The farmers are spending this money, and, perhaps, it is they who are the cause of the present great demand, but their money is being put in circulation in many ways and when money circulates prosperity circulates. When the farmers spend eventually the city man spends. It gets around to him sooner or later.

"New factory buildings are being built again. Industry is starting up. Soon individuals will start building homes. This will come just at a time to lend a mighty impetus to prosperity. But getting closer to home Victor dealers are going to get machines faster than ever before this fall. July 1 will witness the commencement of the Victor factory expansion, and before the year is up dealers will find that there has been an output in excess of any year previous, even of 1917, which represented the apex of Victor production. The indications are now that, contrary to precedent established in former years, dealers will continue doing a large volume of business right through the summer months. No dull times this year."

A Good Trade Barometer

Simultaneously with the announcement by many record retailers throughout the country that higher-priced operatic records are finding increased popularity comes the announcement by F. D. Hall, president of the B. & H. Fibre Mfg. Co., that new accounts have formed 15 to 20 per cent. of last month's business, swelling a total number of orders in excess of any past month in the concern's history. Mr. Hall is a strong enthusiast for the higher-priced records; in fact, he is known to many members of the trade as the possessor of one of the finest record collections in the country to-day, but he is just as enthusiastic in his support of the fibre needle for use with such records. That statistics of record sales and records of fibre needle sales will vary in direct proportion Mr. Hall is confident.

To speed up production Mr. Hall has now reorganized his factory forces so that each department, splitting, preparing, pointing, assorting, packing, etc., is under a separate chief responsible for the work under him. Mr. Hall has also completed the enlargement of the factory space and has installed new machinery.

Kimball Increase Space

A. J. Cullen, manager of the wholesale talking machine department of the W. W. Kimball Co., has just moved into his new offices in the Kimball Building. A large rehearsal hall has been given over entirely to the wholesale talking machine department and new equipment installed. A number of foreign-record racks have been placed in the new space.

Wartell Phonograph Co. a New Concern

The above has been organized in Chicago for the manufacture of a new talking machine to be known by the name "Watrola." The concern will wholesale exclusively, and models of the cabinet and console type will be produced.

Advertising Campaign for Steger Machines

C. E. Byrne, advertising manager of Steger & Sons Mfg. Co., manufacturers of the Steger phonographs, announces that he has inaugurated an extensive national advertising campaign in a number of the country's large magazines. This advertising, commencing in May, will be continued right through the rest of the year. Steger & Sons have produced a complete new line of talking machines and pride themselves upon the fact that now the Steger factories make every part that goes into the construction of their machines. The factories of this concern have been working at full capacity of late in an effort to keep abreast of orders. They are now increasing their facilities for manufacture and believe that fall business will find them ready.

Branch Business Increasing

The Western News Co., manufacturers of the Tel-O-Tone instruments, have found an excellent trade in a number of Western and Middle Western cities of late. Kansas City, Denver, Portland, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Omaha and Vancouver, B. C., all of which have Western News Co. branches, seem to have proven exceedingly fertile fields for talking machine salesmen. In particular it has been noted that the higher-priced models go exceptionally well. Of course, the demand for the medium-priced instruments has continued steady, but it is the higher-priced ones which have had the most marked increase. This opinion is based on reports made by dealers located in widely separated sections of the country.

Cherington Mfg. Co.

The Cherington Mfg. Co., of Waukegan, Ill., with Chicago offices at 108 West Lake street, is getting back on a pre-war basis of production. This concern, as formerly, will turn out everything in the phono-part line from casters to tone arms. Harry T. Carroll, of this company, states that at the present time they are laying especial emphasis on the production of a tone arm, deliveries on which are being made now.

Sterling Devices Co.

The Sterling Devices Co., with present factory and offices at 467 East Ontario street, this city, have laid broad and comprehensive plans for entering the phono-parts business on a large scale. The gentlemen directly interested in this new project are well known and prominent in the trade. Rudolph Krasberg, president of the Krasberg Engineering & Manufacturing Corp., is directly interested, and will give to this new firm the benefit of his long and successful experience in the production of various phonograph parts. The president of the concern is Julius Keller, Sr.

The vice-president is W. O. Meissner, who might well be termed a mechanical genius—an inventor with many successful phono-part patents to his credit. The secretary and treasurer is M. J. Egleston. The Sterling Devices Co. are now prepared to handle any proposition that has to do with the manufacture of phono parts. At the same time they are going to turn out a product under their own name—the “Sterling Reproducer and Tone Arm.” This product is an exclusive invention of Mr. Meissner’s, and is being put out under letters patent. Mr. Egleston states that the factory is all equipped and ready for business, and that the production on the new tone arm and reproducer will be in full swing by the first of June.

To Represent Jewel Concern

Cullen, Marsh & Co. have recently acquired representation in this country of a foreign jewel manufacturing concern. They have secured this in expectation of the great demand which, it is believed, will prevail here during the fall season. Cullen, Marsh & Co. recently opened branch offices in Montreal, P. Q., and Buenos Aires, Argentina. This concern is also representing the New York Album & Card Co. in Middle Western States. T. J. Cullen is in charge of the latter representation.

Add to Shipping and Assembling Space

As a means to increased production the World Phonograph Co. have added 15,000 more square feet of floor space at 727 West Van Buren street. The new space is directly adjoining the company’s plant on Tilden street, and will be used exclusively for assembling and shipping. This will provide more room in the factory proper for the actual manufacture of cabinets and parts.

The expansion of activities of the World Phonograph Co. of late has been remarkable. Under the progressive direction of Ernest C. Cook the corporation has made distinct strides in quality and quantity of output and in increasing goodwill in the talking machine trade. Mr. Cook is making stupendous efforts to keep abreast of his orders. Every department of the factory has been organized to develop the best methods of manufacture. As was announced in this paper some time ago the World Phonograph Co. now produces its product practically in its entirety. While this involves complexity of organization in the factory, still it is believed to be worth while and a great asset to the company and its representatives.

New Concern Moves Into Republic Building

The Tonograph Corp., manufacturers of talking machines and formerly located at 112 East South Water street, have removed to the Republic Building, State and Adams streets. Ivan P. Florsheim, president of the concern, states that only a display stock and offices will be maintained in Chicago. The factories are located at Rockford, Ill.

Cheney to Exhibit During Convention

The Cheney Phonograph Co. will make a display of their full line of phonographs at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, during the convention of the piano manufacturers, dealers and other allied interests from June 2 to 7.

Making Good Progress

The Universal Stamping & Mfg. Co. have now secured enough men to make up a full force. They are now in position to produce an unlimited number of motors, tone arms and sound boxes. They report that their factory has been remodeled to some extent, and that they now have available eighty thousand square feet of floor space. They have recently installed new machinery and their equipment to date is up to the minute. One thing in particular for which this company is becoming known is that everything going into their Universal motor is made in their own factory.

New Motrola Jobbers

Three new jobbers have been added by the Chicago branch of Jones-Motrola, Inc.; the Beckwith-O’Neil Co., Minneapolis; the Fuller-Morrison Co., Chicago, and the Hoeffler Piano & Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

CONCERNING DEALERS AND TRADE CONDITIONS

Impressions of Interest and Value Presented by I. A. Lund, Traveling Representative and Production Expert of Mandel Mfg. Co.

I. A. Lund, the Mandel Mfg. Co.'s well-known production man and traveler, has just returned to Chicago from a trip through Ohio and the western region of Pennsylvania, where he has met with the same conditions of unexampled prosperity as are obtaining in other parts of the country. He has made a number of trips this spring and talks very interestingly about a number of things. Upon his return from the last trip The World representative got hold of him, sat him down in a corner and elicited the following:

"Shakespeare was right when he said 'you don't need salesmen to sell good talking machines.' Little boys can do it. Business at present is extraordinary. Business being what it is now, what will it be in the future? This is the greatest game that ever was, and this is the greatest year that ever has been. More than this, the business is destined to keep pace with the big business traditions of this country. Still, in the face of all of this there are dealers who are 'dead.' They merely close their eyes, and yet somehow they get the business anyway.

"Yes, some of it is due to publicity. Publicity is creating the incentive to purchase and a large number of dealers have had their laudable part in instigating this publicity. But there are many dealers who have not shouldered their part of the publicity burden. Do these realize that the talking machine industry spent $14,000,000 in publicity alone last year? As long as this sort of thing is kept up and the purchasing power of the public rests unimpaired I can see nothing ahead but prosperity for the entire talking machine business. And here's another thing. It takes money to buy booze, and booze can't be bought after July 1. That's going to make things all the brighter for us. Despite the fact that during the war the majority of people were spending more money than before, the fact has been shown that they were not spending all that they were earning, for they had been educated up to a higher standard of living. It is these people with whom we are doing business to-day.

"I find great difficulty sometimes in impressing dealers, particularly furniture dealers, with the fact that a talking machine is not purely a piece of furniture but a musical and a mechanical proposition. It is not a question of how the consumer uses a machine but how he or she abuses it. Some dealers come in for the blame on this question. They fail to impress upon the mind of the customer that a machine should be properly wound and properly oiled. On this last trip I ran into one dealer who was crating a machine for shipment to a customer and who had merely rubbed an oiled rag over it, giving it no examination at all, after receiving it from his jobber. That machine had traveled over three hundred miles. No wonder some dealers have to employ two or more maintenance men.

"Now about dealers getting behind. Of course, just now there are perfectly good reasons why all dealers should be unable to obtain as many machines as they need. The demand is much greater than the supply. But right here is where I wish to register my little protest against the fact that dealers fail to order when they do have the chance. Every spring, after the holiday season, during the past five years, I have heard numberless dealers say, 'This year will not be as good as last,' and every year, of course, they go short of machines. This year the supply of machines will be shorter than ever, but there are any number of dealers who don't know it, and don't want to know it! They seem to think the salesmen are kidding them along.

"If they would analyze facts and take advantage of conditions and opportunities as these actually exist, the laws of supply and demand would work much more smoothly. No one is asked to deal in futures, excepting to order early and make certain, so far as possible, that they have this year's stock all ordered by September. More than this, if they have plenty of machines on hand during the summer months they will try harder to sell them at this time. I have heard large furniture dealers say, 'I can't sell talking machines in June, July or August.' I cited an instance, only a block away, to one of these furniture men where a talking machine dealer was selling, on an average, twelve machines a week during the summer months. The former replied, 'Yes, but he goes after it.' Certainly he went after it. Was the other waiting for it to come to him?

"The talking machine to-day has become a home commodity and essential. Most people, when furnishing their homes, do not figure them as complete without one. If they do not figure that way it's up to Mr. Dealer to convince them. And let me pause to remark right here that this is not a very difficult thing to do. The talking machine appeals to absolutely everyone—in every walk of life."

ESTABLISH FOREIGN AGENCIES

CHICAGO, ILL., May 7.—Dorchester Mapes announces that the R. C. Wade Co. have arranged for direct representation of Tonofone needles in a number of foreign countries. Their Mr. Wettin sailed on the "Mauretania" on the 12th of April for a trip around the world. He will direct his efforts towards establishing new representatives in foreign cities not already handling the Tonofone needle. Representation has already been established in the following cities: Sydney, Australia; Melbourne, Australia; Wellington, New Zealand; Havana, Cuba; London, Paris, Milan, Oporto, Portugal; Tampico, Mex.; Barcelona, Spain; Johannesburg, South Africa; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Valparaiso, Chile; Georgetown, British Guiana; Bogota, Colombia; Hong Kong, China; Tokio, Japan; Manila, P. I.

EMERSON PUBLICITY IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, ILL., May 8.—The Emerson Phonograph Co. of Chicago is to be complimented on the clean, effective advertising campaign it is carrying on in Middle Western newspapers. Single column, double column and triple column, Mr. Clement has succeeded in providing the Emerson clientele with business-pulling ads. This month he has prepared a new list of matrices which he is using himself and which he offers to his dealers. They are very similar to the list prepared by Mr. Clement last month and feature snappy, readable copy illustrated by small, catchy illustrations. "Get Your Name Before These 1,873,660 People" is the title of the outside page of the advance proofs.

VITANOLA AIDS FOR RETAILERS

New Show Cards and Road Signs Now Provided—Valuable Booklet in Preparation—National Advertising Campaign to Start Soon

CHICAGO, ILL., May 5.—Among other factors that have served to promote the popularity of the Vitanola is the dealers' service inaugurated by this company some time ago, and which is now being carried on in a broad way. The sales helps offered to the retailers are carefully developed and have a real value which is duly appreciated.

One of the latest dealer's helps issued by the Vitanola Talking Machine Co. is a handsome window display card sixteen and one-half inches wide by ten and three-quarter inches deep, and embossed on heavy board by a new process. One of the latest models of a Vitanola machine in mahogany is shown in natural colors. The Vitanola name is embossed in a rich velvet-like fabric with the letters edged with gold. The border and the other type matter, including the phrase "Plays All Records—Perfectly," are in raised gold. The entire effect is bound to attract immediate attention.

In addition to the showcard mentioned, the Vitanola Co. are also offering to their dealers lithographed metal road signs. They are also publishing a new booklet entitled "Making a Phonograph Department Pay," which contains many valuable suggestions, and likewise announce a national advertising campaign which will start with a full page in the Saturday Evening Post of May 31.

Chicago is a real busy spot these days.

"TALKER" MUSIC BY WIRELESS

Talking Machine Concert Links Ships at Sea 100 Miles Apart—Marvelous Achievement

"There's a Long, Long Trail" flowed melodiously from the wireless telephone on the transport "President Grant" as it plowed its way toward this port one day last week. Soldiers and sailors picked up the tune, some of them swung into a one-step and others crowded near the big megaphone.

There was no trail. The strains that poured out of the horn on the "President Grant" were being played by a talking machine aboard the transport "George Washington," 100 miles ahead. Through the air they tumbled over one another until the instrument on the "President Grant" picked them up. Then out came the song, distinct and harmonious. Every ship equipped with a wireless telephone within 100 miles of the "George Washington" could have heard the music. One of them did—the "Cap Finisterre," which wirelessly back its thanks with a request for more.

Details of this latest marvel of the wireless telephone were told by officers of the "George Washington," which arrived last week. The deep blue sea concert was part of the program for a dinner given by the officers of the Thirty-second Division on board the "George Washington" for Major-General W. M. Haan, commander. At the same time dinners were being given by units of the Thirty-second on the "Cap Finisterre," the "President Grant" and in Coblentz. All arrangements for the simultaneous dinners were made by wireless, and the assistance of the General Electric Co. was enlisted to provide new devices and amplifiers for the music.

Secretary Baker was on the "George Washington" and made an address that was heard on the ships and in Washington. The liner was too far from Coblentz.

The "President Grant" men clamored for more music and got it—"Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Over There"—half a dozen of the most popular war songs. When the program was completed there was a general round of felicitations over the 100-mile music stunt.

HOWARD PIANO CO. IN NEW STORE

The F. C. Howard Piano Co., Liverpool, N. Y., has moved to larger quarters at 119 West Onondaga street, and in the new store will be carried the Pathé, Columbia and Meteor talking machines as well as a full line of records.

An English inventor has patented a process for so treating the edges of paper money that, when placed in a phonograph of his invention, they produce words attesting their genuineness.

NEW DISTRICT MANAGER FOR VICTOR

Thomas McCreedy, of the Traveling Department, Appointed to Important New Post in Metropolitan District—Is Well Qualified

The appointment of Thomas McCreedy as New York district manager of the traveling department of the Victor Talking Machine Co. is not so much the result of the Victor policy as it is of Mr. McCreedy's own policy, which is summed up in a statement he recently made regarding selling in general. "The secret of sales success in the talking machine—or any other business—is to represent the product which is recognized as the best in your line."

A long experience in sales promotion and advertising work, than which there is no better schooling in the broad questions of general merchandising, has equipped Mr. McCreedy with unusual talents. In following his sales promotion work previous to his connection with the Victor Co. Mr. McCreedy has put his broad shoulders to the wheel and his active mind to the task of solving many a difficult merchandising problem.

His interest in the talking machine business began with the Victor Co. and regardless of the fact that he is a man of broad vision he can see no goal ahead where the Victor Talking Machine Co. is not concerned. Dealers in Ohio, Kentucky and western Pennsylvania have reason to remember him because of his wise counsel and efficient business building as a Victor traveling representative in those territories, and Victor dealers and distributors in the Manhattan territory can congratulate themselves because of his present connections in that section.

No dealer's problem is too small to get the best that Mr. McCreedy has to offer in merchandising advice and the services they get from him in this respect are unusual, to say the least. Give a man all the opportunities offered by the Victor Co. to learn everything there is to be known about the talking machine business, and add to that a wide previous knowledge of merchandising gained through sales promotion and advertising, and you have summed up only part of Mr. McCreedy's business assets. A joviality held well enough in check to meet any serious situation with the gravity it demands, a hearty manner, and, more than anything else, human sympathy, are all attributes that go to make up Thomas McCreedy.

For fear that anyone might mistake this for an epitaph, let it be remembered that Mr. Mc-

Creedy is so much alive that many big men in the talking machine business refer to him casually as "Mac" with the belief that everyone understands whom they are talking about, and to prove that he is human it might be added that as many more big men call him "Tom," which is an honor that many colder-blooded citizens carrying the same first name never achieve.

THOMAS A. EDISON'S SON RETURNS

William L. Edison Back From Service With the Tank Corps—Declares Tanks a Failure

First Sergeant William L. Edison, son of the famous inventor, was among the returning soldiers on the transport "General Goethals," which recently docked at the Bush Terminal. He was a member of the 318th Replacement Corps, but went over with the 306th Tank Squadron and served with the British in the Arras sector. In France he was foreman of a salvage and repair plant and had good opportunity to study the army tanks, and declares that the British tanks were a failure because their slow movements made them a fine target for the enemy guns. The Americans soon abandoned this style of tank, he says, and adopted the lighter model known as the whippet tank, which won out.

THE DAYTON MOTOR

Why Does the Dayton Motor Deliver on These Points?

Because:

The Dayton Motor is built in a factory where ACCURACY is developed to the very highest degree. Every part entering into the construction of a Dayton Motor, the Frame, the Gears, the Shafts and even the smallest screws are made to micrometer gauge, down to limits of a fraction of 1-1000 part of an inch.

We know, before it leaves the factory, that every Dayton Motor is going to give perfect satisfaction. Every part is tested for accuracy on specially designed gauges, while in process of manufacture, and then, finally, the assembled Motor is given a thorough playing test before we send it out.

A Phonograph Motor, like a watch movement, must be absolutely accurate to the minutest degree to be perfect. That is why we employ the most accurate, automatic, labor-saving machinery throughout our plant, and put this saving into additional Inspection and Testing, producing an ideal product far above the average in point of Service and Satisfaction to the user.

Over 30 per cent. of the cost of Dayton Motors is now represented in Inspection and Testing. The Springs are made specially for Dayton Motors to our own specifications and tested in our own laboratory, every piece of metal used in our motors is subject to our own laboratory test—and you get the benefit, in a Quiet-Winding, Silent Running, Unwavering motor—The Dayton—The Scientifically Refined Motor.

Achievement in this, as in other great accomplishments, has not come to us all at once; the Dayton Motor is the product of gradual development, the result of painstaking effort, years of preparation and a heavy investment in equipment and highly specialized tools.

We give you QUALITY and SATISFACTION in every meaning of the word.

CLEVELAND TRADE TAKES ACTIVE PART IN VICTORY LOAN

Talking Machine Dealers Give Space, Time and Efforts to Cause of Government—Continue Campaign Against Misleading Advertising—Business Reports Are Excellent—News of Interest

CLEVELAND, O., May 5.—The Victory Loan campaign is now taking the time of most of the talking machine dealers, distributors as well as retailers. The house-to-house methods adopted at the beginning of the drive to secure pledges for more than $81,000,000 from Clevelanders have been abandoned. This method required the services of hundreds of solicitors. Instead of making house-to-house solicitations from now on the drive will be conducted along lines adopted by campaigners during the four other bond sale drives—that is, business houses will take subscriptions direct from their employes and appeal to their patriotism by urging them to make their concern a 100 per cent. establishment.

Among the dealers who have been stimulating the loan by unique window displays of German war trophies are the Collister & Sayle Co., Victor dealers; the Harmony Music Shoppe Co., Beuscher's, the B. Dreher's Sons Co., the Wolfe Music Co., the Goodman Piano Co. and the Starr Piano Co. The Collister & Sayle display of war relics is one of the most interesting in the city and has attracted widespread attention.

One of the Victory Loan musical attractions in street parades is the girls' drum corps of the May Co. These girls, nearly fifty of them, are employes of the company, and under the direction of the piano and talking machine department have become a sort of "permanent fixture" of this big department store. The girls are well-drilled and wear natty uniforms and make a big hit wherever they go. They also provide entertainment for the store's employes. The organization reflects the up-to-date methods of the music department, which is under the direction of Harlan H. Hart.

The "clean up" campaign being waged by musical instrument dealers to eliminate false advertising is having a splendid effect. An uptown dealer who was caught at this game, after being given a severe panning before a committee of the Better Business Men's Association, promised to cease misrepresenting the facts in his daily announcements and has toned down his flaring offers of alleged bargains. A. L. Maresh, recently appointed ad censor of the Cleveland Music Trades Association, says indications are cleaner business methods will prevail among this type of dealers in the future.

"Me-Ow," a comedy melody published recently by the Sam Fox Publishing Co., this city, is having a big run in record sales. The song is one of the biggest hits this enterprising music publishing house has ever offered the public. "I'm surprised at the volume of sales," Sam Fox said. "The song promises to have more than a usual run, so far as time goes."

D. O. Mills, who operates a chain of self-serve restaurants in Cincinnati and Columbus, has just opened the biggest place of the kind in Cleveland, having room for 600 guests at one time. The opening on May 1 was marked by a great display of flowers and music. Talking machines and player-pianos will be used to entertain guests in the afternoon and evening.

Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the Eclipse Music Co., Victor distributor, reports an increase in the supply of machines and stock, but says he is still unable to meet demands. Big department concerns, like the Halle Brothers and the Higbee Co., catering to the highest class of people in the city, are still hopeful of adding Victor machines and records to their line of merchandise.

The Cheney Sales Co., on Euclid avenue, reports increasing sales of Cheney talking machines. As distributors for this popular make the concern has made a big hit with the trade in Northern Ohio. Many talking machine lovers in Cleveland prefer the Cheney machines.

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has extensively altered and enlarged the talking machine department and a formal opening will be held in the near future. Another firm considering plans for enlarging is the May Co., which plans to add at least ten new booths.

"Trade-Ins" are finding a big sale among machines in Cleveland. Dealers say they can dispose of talking machines which are in good condition without any special effort because of the shortage in the supply of new machines.

Local dealers are not making any drives in daily newspaper advertising at present. The advertising features records reproducing patriotic songs and bargains in talking machines, old and new, as well as player-pianos, records and player rolls.

The Phonograph Co., 1225 Huron road, is preparing for a big Edison demonstration and concert on the third floor of the establishment the afternoon of May 14. An advertising expert of national reputation will discuss this end of the game, and guests of the management will be entertained with some high-class musical selections reflected in Edison records. There will be a luncheon at the Cleveland Athletic Club and a banquet at the Hollenden Hotel in the evening. The affair will be conducted by L. N. Bloom, secretary, and Benj. W. Smith, president of the Phonograph Co., whose electrical display at night is one of the prettiest advertising attractions in the city.

Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., announces that the matter of organizing Ohio's Victor talking machine dealers has been turned over to C. H. Grinnell, of Detroit, and he is very anxious to see all of Ohio's dealers in an organization.

The appearance of Galli-Curci in Cleveland on May 7 called for an increased sale of Victrola records reproducing her songs. Dealers in Victor records had a heavy run.

The Fischer Co.'s offerings of Pathé stock is the largest in this section of Ohio. New Pathé hits offered the first of the month had a big run.

An important change is the acquisition of the Victor agency by the Wolfe Music Co., which in the past has featured the Columbia and Cheney machines. A strong advertising campaign is planned when the new department is opened for business.

Another Pathé dealer is announced in the Bing Co., which is expected to open a talking machine department soon.

A campaign has been started on the sale of the higher-priced machines, especially period designs, according to C. H. Kennedy, sales manager of the Cleveland district of the Columbia Graphophone Co. Already many sales of costly machines are reported.

The Muehlhauser Bros. Co. is also among the firms making improvements in their talking machine departments. Manager Otto C. Muehlhauser is giving particular attention to this work, and the entire first floor will be given over to machines and records. The Sonora, Miraphone and Stradivara machines will be featured and a drive on these machines will soon be undertaken.

EILERS LITIGATION BEFORE COURT

PORTLAND, ORE., May 6.—Suit brought by Ernest W. Hardy, as trustee in bankruptcy for the Eilers Music House, against the Oregon Eilers Music House, opened before Circuit Judge Gantenbein yesterday with all indications of lasting a month. The action seeks the clearing up of various phases of proceedings involving the Graves Music House, the Oregon Eilers Music House and subsidiary corporations, including Eilers Talking Machine Corp., and the appointing of a trustee for the defendant corporation on the ground that funds have been mismanaged and dissipated by the president, Hy J. Eilers, to the detriment of the stockholders of the plaintiff concern.

To every dealer in Phonograph Records:

We have no quarrel with the release dates of operatic records. As third largest producers of records in this country, we are interested in popular records where 80% of the sales are made. In selling hits, you know as well as we do, that time is money—"The early bird gets the worm." The hit that is on the market first cashes in for you.

When the big buying waves start in you have a right to expect prompt action from the record makers you represent. To you dealers who have suffered through their inability to stock you promptly, we invite a careful study of the table opposite.

LOS ANGELES TRADE PLEASSED WITH STOCK CONDITIONS

Larger Shipments Now Reaching Dealers—Moving Picture Shown of Victor Factory—Columbia Dealers Meet—Death of H. E. Hollands—New Stores Opened and Other Changes of Interest

LOS ANGELES, CAL., May 5.—Business was exceptionally good in Los Angeles during April, and all of the local dealers are looking forward to a year of prosperity in the talking machine line. More machines and records were received by the jobbing houses than during any previous month this year, and stocks are beginning to gradually fill up, although all are far from being normal yet.

The Victory Loan drive is on in full force, and there is no doubt but that Southern California will go over the top this time, as it has done heretofore. The music dealers are very proud of the fact that they have all oversubscribed their quota at each bond issue.

A most unique and interesting entertainment was given at the Walker Theatre, Seventh and Grand avenues, Thursday evening, April 24. The performance consisted of moving pictures of the Victor factory, and it goes without saying that they were enthusiastically received by the large number of local Victor dealers and their employes who were present. This show was given through the courtesy of Sherman Clay & Co., local Victor jobbers. C. S. Ruggles, manager for the above company in Los Angeles, was master of ceremonies, and J. A. Frye, California representative of the Victor Co., made a very interesting opening and closing talk, and also fully explained the pictures as they were thrown on the screen. Many salesmen and saleswomen connected with the talking machine departments saw these pictures and now have a better idea of how the Victor is made and marketed. The main office of Sherman, Clay & Co., of San Francisco, was represented by Fred Royal Sherman, vice-president; Andrew G. McCarthy, treasurer, and George Washington Bates, comptroller of the company.

F. K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager of the Columbia Co., New York, visited Los Angeles April 10 and stayed over for four days. All who had the opportunity of meeting Mr. Pennington expressed themselves as particularly gratified at making his acquaintance, as he is an inspiration in many ways. Local Manager William F. Stidham called a special meeting for his sales organization to meet Mr. Pennington, which was attended by Mr. Felger, of Arizona; Messrs. Ackley and Hancock, of Southern California, and Mr. Farquharson, of Los Angeles.

The dealers' meeting to hear the advanced list of Columbia records took place at the Alexandria Hotel on April 9. There was a good attendance. The sale of Columbia records from Los Angeles branch exceeded all previous sales during the month of March. Grafonola sales were also big.

The Andrews Talking Machine Co. have taken on the Columbia agency and now have a complete stock of records and machines of that make.

James G. Stitt, son of J. A. Stitt, who for many years was connected with the Southern California Music Co., of this city, has joined the talking machine staff of the above company. Mr. Stitt has but recently been discharged from the army, where he held the commission of lieutenant in the tank service.

Great regret is expressed at the recent sudden death of Mr. H. E. Hollands, of the Vernon Music Co. The deceased was beloved and admired by all who came in contact with him, owing to his geniality and optimism. Many beautiful wreaths and tokens were sent as a last mark of respect to the funeral. The greatest sympathy is felt by all for Mrs. Hollands.

R. J. Campbell, who has been with Sherman, Clay & Co. in the Victor wholesale department for many years, has severed his connections with that company and will be hereafter associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co., wholesale, in this city.

Barker Bros. have opened a branch store to represent their music department at Pomona, Cal., under the management of G. P. Meek. The new branch will be devoted mainly to talking machines, and will also carry a stock of pianos.

E. A. Geissler, of the George J. Birkel Co.; Herman Beck, manager of the Victor department of the same company; George Marygold, of the Southern California Music Co.; E. P. Tucker, of the Wiley B. Allen Co.; J. F. Salyer, of the Bartlett Music Co., and B. Platt, of the Platt Music Co., constitute the Victory Liberty Loan Committee charged with getting subscriptions from the local music trade, and they are meeting with much success.

The Starr Piano Co. is having the interior of its store on Hill street remodeled to make room for four new phonograph demonstrating rooms and increased record space to take care of the company's growing business.

The piano and talking machine sales forces of the Wiley B. Allen Co. were tendered an informal banquet in one of the large offices at the company's store last week by Manager E. P. Tucker in order to talk over business matters.

Victor dealers took advantage of the recent visit of John McCormack to this city to boost the sale of McCormack records.

WIRELESS MUSIC DELIGHTS CROWD

Many People in Liberty Way Entertained by Music of Talking Machine Transmitted by Wireless—First Tryout of New Invention

One of the most interesting of the many features of the Liberty Loan campaign in New York City was the entertainment of the crowds in Liberty Way by the music of a talking machine transmitted through the air by wireless and made audible to the hearers by means of aerial trumpets suspended high over their heads. This was the first public tryout of the new invention, and was conducted by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Western Electric Co.'s laboratories.

DELIVERING TALKING MACHINES BY TAXI IN MONTREAL

Strike of Carters Proves Embarrassing and Expensive to Talking Machine Dealers—Free Recitals Increasing in Number—Silver Jubilee of N. G. Valiquette, Ltd.—General News

MONTREAL, CAN., May 5.—The carters' strike here has hurt business generally in all lines, including the phonograph dealers, who have been unable to deliver the machines sold except by hackmen or taxicabs. Business during the past month has been excellent, both in disposals of machines and records. As one dealer expressed himself, the more high-class artists that appear locally in recitals the more educated the people will become in purchasing high-class grand opera, classic and instrumental records of the better and more expensive class.

A woman who recently had occasion to visit several of the main centers in Canada remarked upon her return that it had been a revelation for her to see how good music was being brought within reach of the ordinary, every-day man and woman by means of talking machine recitals. It fell to this woman's lot to meet many persons who had been introduced to and favorably impressed with grand opera selections this way. They had also made the acquaintance of many of the standard classics which appealed to them when they learned that classical music is simply the music that lives.

One finds in many towns talking machine recitals are given periodically and without charge. At one recital between 300 and 400 persons listened to some of the greatest selections known in the musical world by singers, pianists, violinists, cellists, choruses and orchestras of international fame. A prominent tenor touched on this very point in the course of a recent interview when he said: "Your people are now 'up' in classical music; they really prefer it, I believe, to the cheap, or rather the vulgar, kind." "To what do you attribute that change?" he was asked. "To the spread of the talking machine mostly," he answered.

Marceau & Son, 288 St. Joseph street, Quebec, have taken on the Columbia representation.

Gauvin & Courchesne, who are large distributors of His Master's Voice products in Quebec City, have opened a branch store in lower town. This now gives them Victor representation up and down town.

Paul Dupuis will hereafter be in charge of the record stock of C. W. Lindsay, Ltd.

N. G. Valiquette, founder and president of N. G. Valiquette, Ltd., and one of the directors of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., was recently the recipient of a sterling silver humidor suitably engraved to commemorate the silver jubilee of the firm. The gift was presented by the officers and members of the staff, some of whom have been with Mr. Valiquette since the beginning of his business career. Mrs. Valiquette was presented with a bouquet of twenty-five American Beauty roses as a mark of the staff's appreciation of her kindness on many occasions.

Paul Guertin, of the Three Rivers, Quebec, branch of Eug. Julien & Cie, Ltd., is authority for the statement that his firm sells more Columbia and Pathé records at $1.50 than it does of the 10-inch records of lesser price.

Pathé and Aeolian-Vocalion models are being distributed in large numbers by the Phonograph Shop of Montreal, Regd., and Manager George S. Pequegnat is always alive to the best interests of these makes in putting over publicity stunts or advertising of an unusual nature that gets attention both for his store and these makes of phonographs.

An active demand is apparent for Sonora and Aeolian-Vocalion goods at the phonograph parlors of Charles Culross.

J. J. Flynn will shortly remove to 556 St. Catherine street west, where he will have up-to-date quarters.

Bradshaw Clarke, head accountant of Layton Bros., on the occasion of his recent marriage was presented by the firm personally with a Style A 100 Moderna Edison phonograph.

Mr. Depocas, of the Canadian Graphophone Co., Ltd., Columbia distributors in the Province of Quebec, finds grounds for very optimistic views of the talking machine situation in Quebec Province, and states that the demand has never been so good, and with the present bright outlook there seems to be no let-up in orders.

At the factory of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., this firm is finding it hard work to keep pace with the demands of dealers all over Canada. Incidentally this demand is breaking all previous records in the history of the firm, with no present indication of letting up for some time to come, so great is the popularity of His Master's Voice lines throughout the Dominion.

"The demand for Victor products keeps up wonderfully; in fact, so much so that we cannot get sufficient models to fill our orders," report Foisy Frères.

R. Valiquet, St. Lawrence boulevard, is enjoying a rattling good business, and in his territory is pushing the Pathé line of machines and records with particularly gratifying success.

Continued evidence of the popularity of Columbia goods is evident at the local agency of

J. W. Shaw & Co., where sales in these makes show steady growth.

Owing to their constantly increasing business, Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., have found it necessary to open a wholesale branch in Montreal. They have secured exceptionally fine quarters in the Jaeger Building on St. Catherine street West, an exceptionally favorable location. Large stocks of both machines and records will be carried and a competent staff will be ready to give perfect Pathé service to the trade in the Province of Quebec. Robert Rice, brother of Gitz-Rice, has been secured as manager. Robert W. Burgess, who has had charge of the sales office in Montreal during the past year, has been promoted to an important position in connection with sales at the head office in Toronto. The new branch will be open for business the early part of May and a complete Pathé line will be constantly on exhibit in their very attractive showrooms.

H. C. Wilson & Sons, Ltd., Sherbrooke, Que., are again making further extensions to their business by purchasing the three-story building adjoining their present quarters. This will give them a very largely increased floor space and one of the largest music stores in Canada. The first floor in the newly acquired property is now being fitted up for a special Victrola department with soundproof rooms for record hearings.

Duchesne & Grimard, Ltd., 1360-62 Des Erables street, who started manufacturing talking machines here two years ago in a modest way, are to-day turning out fifty machines a day in eight different models of up-to-date styles.

INTERESTING DEVELOPMENTS IN THE TORONTO TRADE

Music Supply Co. Ends Ninth Successful Year With Columbia Line—Big Plans for Coming Year—Starr Co. to Send Out Travelers—Campaign for Advancement of Music

TORONTO, ONT., May 1.—This month the Music Supply Co., distributors of Columbia Grafonolas and records in this city, began their ninth business year. Their record to date is one of which the proprietors, John A. Sabine and Chas. R. Leake, may well be proud. From a humble beginning they have seen their business grow to large proportions and the limit is still far beyond the horizon. With increased factory support and still further service improvements the Music Supply Co. are preparing to meet their dealers' requirements better than ever before. John A. Sabine, following a visit to New York, left early this month for England on a well-earned holiday, expecting to be away for two or three months.

In a personal note from New York to the firm's dealers Mr. Sabine said: "Our new fiscal year starts next month. Plans are being made for increasing your record sales threefold and for an increase of 150 per cent. in your sales of Grafonolas."

Commencing May 1 the Starr Co., of Canada and London, are to have three travelers work Ontario, also two Winnipeg West and one in the Maritime Provinces. This in addition to ten travelers now selling Gennett records exclusively.

D. S. Cluff, who has been connected with the music trades for many years, has joined the wholesale department of Gerhard Heintzman, Ltd., in the capacity of sales manager for the Dominion of Canada.

The work of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music to stimulate greater public interest in music was heartily endorsed by the members of the Niagara Peninsula Music Dealers' Association at their annual meeting. Different members expressed the opinion that the work of "The Bureau" during the past two years is largely responsible for the spontaneous demand for music instruments that characterizes this year's business. It was decided by the members to continue their financial support, and the belief was expressed that it is one of the best investments they could make.

A question was asked by one of the members as to the experience of the other dealers on the matter of talking machine records on approbation. One member stated that his house had recently discontinued approbation practices, with the result that there was an immediate increase in the succeeding two months' business, with an elimination of complaints of records having been used. In fact, he found the innovation so successful from every point of view that it was necessary to enlarge his record department. Still another member stated that it had always been the practice of his house to refuse records on approbation. Another member found that his idea of a half-way course was satisfactory. He soon found out the undesirables or the people who were securing records on approbation merely for the purpose of entertaining themselves and returning the records.

E. H. Van Gelder, of the firm of I. Montagnes & Co., Toronto, the Canadian distributors of the Sonora, has returned from a visit to his old home in Amsterdam, Holland. Mr. Montagnes was on a business trip to New York when the steamship "Amsterdam" reached that port and met his business partner there.

The most significant evidence of the increased interest in music in the public schools was the unanimous endorsement of a resolution passed by the public school section urging the minister of education to list the Columbia Grafonola as a school supply and make it obligatory for every school district to purchase a machine and records for every school in the Province.

IMPRESSIVE MUSIC SUPPLEMENT

Winnipeg Piano Co. Uses Eight-Page Music Section of Daily Paper in Advertising Their Many Lines of Instruments

One of the features of the Progress Number of the Manitoba Free Press, of Winnipeg, Man., was an eight-page section, full newspaper size, devoted entirely to music and musical instruments. The front page of the section was occupied by a beautifully designed full-page advertisement of the Winnipeg Piano Co., which, in addition to selling pianos, also feature Columbia Grafonolas and Edison phonographs.

The other seven pages of the supplement were well filled with half-page, quarter-page and smaller advertisements placed by the manufacturers whose products are handled by the Winnipeg Piano Co., the name of that company appearing prominently in each advertisement and being the only local house mentioned in the supplement. The supplement made a unique and impressive showing. One of the features of the text was made of portraits of A. E. Grassby, president, and W. A. Smith, vice-president of the Winnipeg Piano Co., together with portraits of half a dozen members of the sales staff.

CANADIAN EDISON DEALER WINNER

REGINA, CAN., May 1.—W. G. F. Scythes & Co., Ltd., are progressive Edison dealers, having been established in this city for twelve years, during which time they have built up an extensive piano and talking machine business. P. Sydney Tutté, who is in charge of the talking machine department, has been giving some interesting window displays during the past year, and the Edison Co. awarded him first prize in the 1918 Canadian window dressing competition conducted for Edison dealers.

NEW RECORDS POPULAR IN CANADA

OkeH Records Win Favor Immediately Upon Being Introduced Into That Country

TORONTO, CAN., May 2.—Long before the new Heineman product, the OkeH record, became known in Canada the Canadian buyers of motors and phonograph supplies were well acquainted with the Otto Heineman products, and the Heineman OkeH records added to the great popularity of these products.

Since the OkeH record made its way into Canada the Toronto offices of the Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., are busier than ever before. To use Manager Pott's characteristic remark in reference to Canadian trade conditions: "Before the OkeH records came to herald aloud the merits of the Heineman phonograph products I had 'silent' merchandise to sell—Heineman motors, tone arms, needles, etc., and they had to be bought and used before people became convinced that everything that bears the Otto Heineman label signifies quality. Now we sing a different tune. All we have to do is to start off an OkeH record and leave the rest to it—the Heineman motor and phonograph supplies couldn't talk for themselves, but the OkeH record does. And, by the way, when that record begins to reel off its own 'talking points' there is but one thing left for us to do—take a pencil and order pad and write out an order."

60 MILES AN HOUR SELLS RECORDS

H. E. Wimperly, Manufacturer of Peerless Phonograph, Makes Sale to Traffic Cop After Exciting Race for Eight Miles

TORONTO, ONT., April 30.—H. E. Wimperly was hurrying back to the city the other day and his mind was intent on everything but speed laws and traffic cops. Just outside of Oakville he caught sight of the wary constable hiding behind a post, and in order to rid himself of the unpleasant sight stepped on the accelerator with considerable determination. After a mad dash of eight miles he was forced to stop at a railroad crossing on account of a lagging freight train.

As he slowed down for the crossing a darkening of his side curtains, which were all on and tightly fastened, caused him to look up suddenly only to meet the accusing eye of the cop who demanded the curtain be opened up. It was promptly unfastened. "You gave me quite a chase. I thought I would have caught you in a mile and a half at the most. The next time you are coming out bring me out No. 216053. I've heard Ruthven McDonald sing "The Admiral's Broom," and I don't know of anything I like better. I want others, too, but I marked them all down and the money is here, too," as he handed in an envelope. He started his motorcycle and with a wave to the astonished music dealer disappeared in a cloud of dust before the latter realized that nothing was said about a summons.

will undoubtedly prove of immense value and assistance to the Sonora factory officials, who have been handicapped by a lack of additional factory facilities for some time past.

ing all records, and Sonora jobbers throughout the country report the greatest business in their history. The plant at Saginaw is working day and night to give the jobbers and dealers adequate service, and this new building will be another link in the fast-growing chain of Sonora factories.

MUSIC MAN BUYS VICTOR SHOP

C. Fred Danielson, Jamestown, N. Y., for many years active in the music business of that city, has purchased the Victrola Shop at 314 Cherry street and will continue the business, featuring the Victor line of machines and records.

AN ADVENTURE WITH A CELEBRITY

Miss MacPherson, of the Edison Shop, Kansas City, Tells of an Interesting Meeting With Mischa Elman—Hears a Number of Records

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—Miss Ophelia MacPherson has been in charge of the concert room at the Edison Shop, retail, for a number of months, where she has given hundreds of concerts, always explaining fully every record, its meaning, composition and place in the opera, if it is an operatic selection, but she never before had an experience quite like the one she related to me. She called it "An Adventure With a Celebrity Who Had a Sense of Humor."

Two men, obviously foreigners, came into the concert room one day recently and asked to hear one of Albert Spalding's records. They listened attentively and then asked to hear Carl Flesch's "Le Menetrier." Before the playing of each record explanations were made by Miss MacPherson as to the meaning of each selection. Sensing some sort of a frame-up on the part of the men, she inquired if they were already familiar with the record and artists, to which they assured her they were somewhat.

Their strange actions continuing she proceeded to tell them what she thought of them. One of the men began to explain that they were merely discussing her ability as a saleswoman, whereupon she informed him that she was not even trying to sell a record, her work was only to make people want them.

After quite a lengthy program interspersed with a great deal of interesting conversation, Miss MacPherson put on her wraps and expressed her intention of going to lunch. Then one of the men said: "The reason why I asked you to play all of these selections and asked you for your opinion of records and machines was because I make Victor records myself."

"Would you mind telling me your name," said Miss MacPherson.

"MISCHA ELMAN," he said.

Then they immediately became better friends and had another little chat, forgetting the lunch-engagement for the time being.

Mischa Elman was passing through Kansas City on his way to the East from Lindsborg, Kan., where he took part in a musical affair and visited practically all members of the musical trade.

DETROIT EXPERIENCING GREAT PROSPERITY RIGHT NOW

Reasons Why Talking Machines and Records Will Be in Big Demand This Summer—Marshall Reports 300 Per Cent. Increase—Wallace Brown's Anniversary—Dealers All Optimistic

DETROIT, MICH., May 6.—If the talking machine business gets any better dealers are going to be wishing that it is just the opposite—at least until they can get more merchandise and at the time they need it most. Detroit is experiencing great prosperity right now; new homes by the hundreds are needed and will be built this summer; the present demand for machines is unprecedented and dealers are wondering what will happen next fall when the demand will be still greater. Each year dealers are finding out that the talking machine business is a twelvemonths business and not seasonal as in the early days. The dullest months of the pioneer days are now just as good as the most seasonable months. During the summer months people buy cheaper machines for their country resort places, and they buy more records; in winter and cold weather they want machines and records for their homes. This condition makes the talking machine business one of the very best for dealers, because in all other lines dealers have their good months and their off-months.

C. L. Marshall, the Detroit jobber for Sonora, reports business 300 per cent. better than a year ago at this time. One of the biggest Sonora accounts in Detroit is the J. L. Hudson Music Store, 68-70 Library avenue. Edward Andrew, manager of the talking machine department, added the Sonora line nearly two years ago, and he carries a complete and large assortment. The fact that the Hudson store advertise it extensively and push it vigorously is the best indication of what they think of the Sonora.

Henry S. Doran, Michigan avenue dealer in Victor goods, has made reservation for the Detroit Board of Commerce boat cruise June 26 to 30.

A. A. Grinnell, treasurer of Grinnell Bros., who looks after the wholesale Victrola departments, expects to leave for a trip East some time this month, which means he will be a visitor at the Victor factory. He says there has been some improvement in the arrival of machines and records, but that the factory is still far behind and that he doubts if it can ever catch up from the way orders continue to pile up.

Wallace Brown this week celebrated his second anniversary as Brunswick dealer. "During those two years we have done a remarkable business," said Mr. Brown. "But two reasons are responsible—quality merchandise and constant advertising." Mr. Brown is probably one of the best talking machine advertisers in the country. He uses every medium from newspapers, theatre programs and circulars to billboards and street cars. "Keep constantly at it is the only way to get results from advertising," he said. Recently he adopted the caption of "It Speaks For Itself" in connection with the Brunswick.

Sam Lind, Detroit manager for the Columbia Graphophone Co., says: "We are so far ahead of anything our branch has ever done for the first months of the year that it is almost unbelievable to compare figures, and the surprising thing of it all is how dealers keep on ordering—and just where all the machines go to. Yes, and record business is even better. Columbia records are getting better all the time, and our company is to be congratulated for the progress they have made in this branch of the business. We are not making any effort to take on new dealers for the present, as we have all we can handle to satisfy those we already have with merchandise. We don't know of a single dealer who is not at least 100 per cent. ahead of his business in 1918."

R. B. Alling, of the Phonograph Co. of Detroit, says there has been a big improvement in factory shipments, as a result of which he has been able to take better care of his dealers. Mr. Alling is exceedingly well pleased with wholesale as well as retail business, and was never more optimistic about trade conditions.

Manager Chambers, of the wholesale Pathé department of Williams, Davis, Brooks & Hinchman Sons Co., says that business just seems to be pouring in by every mail, and that both city and State dealers must be enjoying wonderful trade, from the size of their orders.

The Cheney line of talking machines, which is represented by half a dozen dealers in Detroit, is growing and growing in popularity, and dealers say that it is bringing the very best class of people to their stores.

Manager W. H. Huttie, of the Starr Piano Co., which is also the State distributor for Starr phonographs, says that goods are delivered to dealers without being unpacked. "As soon as a machine comes in we have some customer or some retailer who is waiting for it," he said.

SELLING AGENTS FOR NEW NEEDLES

New England Musical Instrument Trading Co.
Sole Selling Agents For Bell Hood Needles

The New England Musical Instrument Trading Co., 127 East Twenty-third street, New York, have been appointed sole selling agents of the Bell Hood semi-permanent point needles. The needles are the invention of Rudolph Steinart, of the well-known Steinart family, and as now produced embody a number of improvements. Among the features claimed for the Bell Hood needle are that they play from fifty to a hundred records, eliminate scratching, purify and humanize the tone.

The New England Musical Instrument Trading Co. is now able to deliver these needles in quantity lots, and the present plans for the exploitation of the product call for an intensive campaign bringing the merits of the needles both before the trade and the public.

The Brunswick line has been taken on by the Tilden-Thurber Corp., Providence, R. I., and is proving popular in that territory.

A SCIENTIFICALLY PERFECT SOUND REPRODUCING COMBINATION

OPPOSED TO COMMISSIONS BEING PAID FOR PROSPECTS

Jesse F. Houck, of Memphis, Tells Why It's Unwise to Encourage Sales by Giving Commissions in Cash or Merchandise to Those Who Are Instrumental in Bringing New Trade to Store

It is quite evident that the members of the talking machine trade are distinctly opposed to any suggestion that any commissions be paid either in cash or merchandise to those who are instrumental in bringing new trade to the store, the objecting members having had experience with the results of the system of paying commissions in the piano trade, which is gradually being eliminated.

In The World last month there was published a special article by Courtenay Harrison on the subject of "Capitalizing Customers' Friendship," in which was included the suggestion that records be presented to those who turned in the names of prospects. In protesting against this suggestion, as offered by Mr. Harrison, Jesse F. Houck, vice-president of the O. K. Houck Piano Co., prominent Victor wholesalers of Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"My experience would indicate that aside from price-cutting the payment of commissions to parties outside one's business organization is the most harmful of all business practices. It is therefore with considerable regret that I have noticed in the different trade papers lately suggestions which are equivalent to an endorsement of this practice. In the article 'Capitalizing Customers' Friendship as an Aid to Securing Future Business' appearing in your own publication of April 15, it is suggested that the dealer give his customers a couple of records in return for the names of machine prospects to whom sales have been made.

"The Rotarian motto, 'He Profits Most Who Serves Best,' is really a principle which applies to every phase of life—just as surely as effect follows cause and reaction follows action, reward follows service.

"You join the church not because you expect any financial benefits by doing so, but because it is the right thing for you as a Christian to do, and if you serve your church you are sure to receive financial and social as well as spiritual benefits because the law of service has so decreed.

"If the dealer serves his customers because it is the right thing for him to do and because he is really interested in them the law of service ordains that he shall thereby profit by securing their friendship and influence. This is his just reward, or, to put it another way, he has by the service rendered bought and paid for his customers' friendship and influence, then why pay for it a second time?

"Would the customer give his friend's name or use his influence to secure the business for the dealer if the service rendered him had not been satisfactory? No! and further, the offering of a commission would be considered an insult.

"The customer in giving a friend's name or using his influence in the dealer's behalf is prompted by a desire to have his friends profit by the service which has proven so satisfactory to him and not by any special interest in the dealer. No reward is deserved and none is expected and when offered it belittles the customer's friendship and creates an impression which is sure to undermine the feeling of confidence without which there can be no satisfactory business relations or friendship.

"Much ado you say about the occasional giving of two or three records. The trouble is it will not stop there, as the average salesman follows the line of least resistance. Before long the dealer's entire sales force will be making this offer promiscuously, another dealer takes it up and offers six or eight records, another twelve or probably cash with the result that sooner or later the entire trade will be demoralized.

"The practice of paying commissions to outsiders belongs to the dark days of the past when subterfuge and chicanery were a general practice in trading but, in these modern days of enlightenment, the public knows that no merchant can afford to pay a commission to outsiders without including it in the price of his goods; hence, any trade doing so is looked upon with suspicion and distrust.

"As you have always opposed methods which would tend to lower the trade from the high plane it has for so long enjoyed in the public's confidence, I hope you will use your influence against the adoption of this harmful practice."

We heartily agree with Mr. Houck's views.

SPEAKS BEFORE CONFERENCE

W. A. Willson, of the Columbia Co., Speaks on Educational Value of Talking Machine at Americanization Conference Session

The use of the talking machine as an aid in teaching English to the foreign born in this country was the subject of a discussion by W. A. Willson, manager of the educational department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., on May 12, at the conference in Washington under the auspices of the Americanization Division. This conference was called for the purpose of arousing this nation to action in regard to the education of its foreign population, and was attended by men and women who have had practical experience in field work among foreign born.

In view of his experience in this special field Mr. Willson was able to give a very interesting and enlightening talk on the great possibilities of the talking machine in helping these foreign-born peoples to become real Americans. The educational value of the talking machine is being rapidly recognized all over the world and is especially well fitted to aid in the work of Americanization.

The Pathéphone is being featured in an advertising campaign being carried on by the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co., Denver, Colo., and some very striking ads are appearing in the papers.

GOOD FEELING AMONG DEALERS

Doing Away With the Jobber-Retailer Great Benefit to Trade, Says Sol Lazarus, Vice-President of Talking Machine Men, Inc.—Plans Under Way For Annual Picnic

"The talking machine trade is to be congratulated on the doing away with the jobber-retailer, and the results have done much to promote a greater feeling of good will among the dealers," says Sol Lazarus, the well-known vice-president of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., New York. "Now that everyone is out in the open and is an out-and-out dealer, jobber or retailer, the benefits are apparent everywhere and ill-will in the trade is less common."

The Talking Machine Men, Inc., are already making plans for the annual picnic in the fall, and it is expected that this year it will be held either at Rye Beach or Bear Mountain some time in August or September. The outing last year was a decided success, but this year's party is scheduled to be some celebration if the tentative plans outlined by Mr. Lazarus are worked out. It will be an all-day affair this year, with an early start, so that no unnecessary time may be lost. The ladies will be present, and the trip will be made from the city to the destination by auto. The dealers who have machines are being gotten in touch with, so that there may be no lack of transportation when the curtain rises. A real swimming contest will be held this year, and there is a chance for any budding champion to show his (and possibly her) skill.

The value of the talking machine men's association is not to be underestimated, and its members should take advantage of the many opportunities it offers, declared Sol Lazarus. He went on to say that too many dealers lacked initiative and were content to let others do things for them. The association has grown wonderfully since the old days, when there were but seven members, but there is danger of stagnation unless every man is alive to the possibilities offered by such an organization.

The election of new officers is near at hand, and according to report there may be some radical changes in the personnel of the association.

MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS

The Parr Mfg. Corp., who have for a number of years been located at 1 Union Square, New York, have moved their executive offices to 100-108 West Twenty-third street, New York. The Parr Mfg. AN IMPORTANT DEAL IN TOLEDO

New Interests Take Over the Wholesale Victor Department of the Whitney & Currier Co. and Plan to Incorporate New Company Under Name of the Toledo Talking Machine Co.

TOLEDO, O., May 6.—A very important deal of great interest to the talking machine trade was consummated in this city last week when Eastern and local interests purchased the wholesale Victor department of the Whitney & Currier Co., and arranged immediately to incorporate the business under the name of the Toledo Talking Machine Co.

The incorporators will be: C. A. Ericsson, J. J. Ryan, L. D. Perry, H. C. Truesdale, W. L. Kellogg, C. H. Womeldorff and Ludwig & Co. The officers will be: C. A. Ericsson, president; J. J. Ryan, vice-president; L. D. Perry, treasurer, and C. H. Womeldorff, secretary and manager.

The Toledo Talking Machine Co. will wholesale Victor product exclusively, and will have no retail affiliations. Chas. H. Womeldorff will assume the management of the new company, and the trade can expect the same fair dealing in the future as they have had in the past.

Warren L. Kellogg will represent the new company on the road, and it will be gratifying to his large circle of friends to know that he will be not only one of the incorporators of the company but will also be on the board of directors.

The new company plans to continue the policy of definite and equitable service to the dealers, and to improve that service whenever the opportunity permits. It is believed that the absence of any retail interests will facilitate the carrying out of this plan materially.

TO OPEN NEW STORE IN NEWARK N. J.

H. Litvak has arranged to open a new talking machine store at 485 Springfield avenue, Newark, N. J., on or about June 1, where he will handle Columbia graphophones and records, together with a line of music rolls and sheet music. He has also arranged to get The Talking Machine World regularly each month, which indicates that he has the proper idea of good business practice.

APPRECIATE VALUE OF EQUIPMENT

Ninety Unico Demonstrating Rooms Installed at Lit Bros.—Twenty-eight Installations by Unico Co. Reported for April—Great Showing

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 7.—Finishing touches have been given to the Victrola department of Lit brothers' department store of this city, which make it the largest talking machine department in the world. Ninety Unico demonstrating rooms and a full equipment of record counters and filing equipment for 100,000 records have been installed by the Unit Construction Co. An idea of the growth of this department may be gained when it is remembered that this department was inaugurated in 1915 with only five Unico demonstrating rooms.

Twenty-eight complete installations are reported by the Unit Construction Co. for the month of April and a tribute to the popularity of the Unico equipment is found in the fact that seventeen out of the twenty-eight are for additional equipment from dealers already supplied with Unico system equipments.

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the Unit Construction Co., reports that the outlook for the future is beyond all precedence, not only work under contract but projected improvements as well, and the area of this expansion extends from Texas to Seattle and from Seattle to Maine.

Recent equipment has been installed in such well-known talking machine houses as C. C. Harvey Co., Boston, Mass.; M. Steinert & Sons, Waterbury, Conn.; Bloch & Kuhl Co., Peoria, Ill.; Cable Company, Chicago, Ill.; Rorabaugh, Wiley Co., Hutchinson, Kan.; F. J. Weigand, Barberton, O.; Weser Bros., Newark, N. J.; Jordan Piano Co., Washington, D. C.; Marcellus Roper, Worcester, Mass.; Robelin Piano Co., Wilmington, Del.; Gewehr Piano Co., Wilmington, Del.; Pearson Piano Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; Beerman's Music House, Muskegon, Mich.; Mandel & Schwartzman, Bloomington, Ill.

The Unit Construction Co. has opened Boston headquarters at 85 Essex street, that city.

EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF GRAFONOLA

Impressive Proofs of the Importance of the Talking Machine in the Sphere of Education the Basis of Interesting Volume Issued by Columbia Co.—Admirably Conceived

"The Grafonola in the Class Room" is the title of a new publication issued recently by the educational department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. It contains graded catalogs of educational records and is noteworthy for its artistic appearance and the valuable assistance it affords Columbia dealers.

This publication was compiled under the personal direction of W. A. Willson, head of the Columbia Co.'s educational department, who is to be congratulated upon the production of a book that is one of the most informative and interesting contributions to trade literature. Typographically it is in complete accord with the character and importance of the educational

Music Appreciation in the High School

"Rural Schools"; "Seashore's Measures of Musical Talent"; "Music Foods—A Basis for Music Appreciation"; "Lure of Music"; "High Schools"; "Normal Schools and Colleges"; "Community Music"; "Physical Education," and "Outline For Twenty Lessons in Appreciation." Many of these sections are subdivided into various headings, as for example: "Grammar Grades" has ten distinct sections, "High School" has over twenty, "Physical Education" has a half dozen headings, and an alphabetical list of Columbia educational records in the back of the book provides for maximum convenience somewhere in the use of this publication.

The illustrations are worthy of more than passing attention, for they emphasize the remarkable success achieved by the Grafonola and Columbia educational records in recent years. In fact, they have an educational value in themselves, and contribute materially to the importance of this new book.

The progress that the Columbia Co.'s educational department has made during the past few years is little short of phenomenal. It was not work to which it is devoted in its entirety. This book is divided into a number of sections, among the most important of which are the following: "Columbia Plan of Teaching Music Appreciation"; "Music in the Home"; "Kindergarten and Primary Grades"; "Grammar Grades";

AS in masterpieces of art, the superiority of this record is the result of infinite pains and faith in the inherent desire of men and women to have the best that human minds and hands can make.

It is not a record for people who like the cheap, the tawdry, the commonplace—but for those who appreciate and cherish the fine and beautiful things in life.

The output of this record, like the output of the Rolls-Royce car, is limited because master work can not be done in quantity.

We recommend that distributors write us, planning six months in advance to handle The New Lateral Record.

FORM PACIFIC PHONOGRAPH CO.

Business Men of Portland, Ore., Organize Company to Make the Stradivara Phonograph for Pacific Coast States—Large Plant Secured

PORTLAND, ORE., May 5.—W. P. Wiggins will be president and E. W. Barlow vice-president and general manager of the Pacific Phonograph Co., which has been newly incorporated by a number of prominent business men of Portland for the manufacture of the Stradivara phonograph. The board of directors will be composed of W. P. Wiggins, E. W. Barlow, F. L. Eddy, George Broughton, F. N. Clark and two other business men.

The company has acquired the building at East Thirty-third street and Broadway, which was the O. K. Jeffrey airplane plant, and is at present operating with a force of forty workmen. Within the next thirty days the force will be increased to 100 workmen. The force includes expert cabinetmakers and woodworkers. By July there will be 150 employed at the plant. The corporation succeeds the Sahlstrom corporation, which operated a plant in South Portland for a year under the management of L. D. Gilman for the manufacture of the Stradivara. The new company is capitalized at $75,000, and has secured the rights for the exclusive manufacture of the Stradivara phonograph for twenty years in the Pacific Coast States—Oregon, California, Washington, Idaho, and also in Nevada, Arizona, Utah and parts of Montana and Colorado.

It was necessary to enlarge the plant, whose capacity was only forty machines a day, while the demand is for 100 or more a day. The enlargement of the plant called for larger capital, which would give greater facilities. The O. K. Jeffrey building was secured by taking over the entire capital stock of the Broadway investment company for $70,000. The organization of the new company will be completed in a few days, and in the meantime the plant is turning out machines as fast as its present facilities will permit.

MICKEL BROS. CO.'S NEW HOME

Elaborate Quarters in Omaha Provide for Excellent Service—Numerous Innovations Introduced for Benefit of Retailers

OMAHA, NEB., May 7.—The Mickel Bros. Co., with the excellent facilities of its new building in this city now fully available, is showing even more than its wonted energy in taking care of the requirements of the Victor dealers in its territory, and in evolving new service and selling helps for those same retailers. In other words, the company is doing everything to maintain its reputation as being the largest and liveliest Victor wholesale house in the corn belt.

The new home of Mickel Bros. Co. in Omaha comprises a four-story and basement building, specially equipped throughout to meet the special demands of the company's business. A reception room where visiting dealers can make their headquarters is one of the features of the new building, but the most interesting innovation is the "Service Room," where the latest publicity and selling plans to stimulate Victor retail business are offered for the consideration of the dealers. Of course, the stock keeping and shipping facilities are of the latest.

The new facilities offered by the building in Omaha, coupled with the opportunity for service by the Mickel Bros. modern quarters in Des Moines, should prove distinctly interesting to Victor dealers in that section of the country.

The Stencil Phonograph Mfg Co., Manhattan, has been incorporated at Albany with a capital stock of $25,000 by W. E. Hitchkiss, M. Neckritz and M. H. Rechell, 141 St. Anns avenue.

The Frank Preuss Co., 1216 Walnut street, Milwaukee, Wis., has recently entered the music trade in that city, and is now the only dealer in Milwaukee handling the Edison exclusively.

RECORD MAKERS GO ON TOUR

Group of Artists Will Give Concerts in Ohio and Pennsylvania This Month

"The Popular Record Makers," the group of record artists who have for several years past appeared in concert in various sections of the country under the management of H. H. McClaskey, have arranged to start on a tour of Ohio and Pennsylvania, leaving New York on May 18. The record makers will appear in Akron, O., on May 20; Youngstown, O., May 21; Alliance, May 22; Canton, May 23; Connellsville, Pa., May 24; Uniontown, Pa., May 25; Altoona, May 26; Ridgway, May 27; Punxsutawney, May 28, and Butler, May 29, and they are assured of a hearty reception.

The record makers on tour will include Henry Burr, Arthur Collins, Billy Murray, Byron G. Harlan, Albert Campbell, John H. Meyer, Fred Van Eps and Frank Bantat, as pianist. The various concerts will be held in co-operation with local dealers.

VISIT OF OPERA CO. HELPS EXPAND SALES IN ATLANTA

High-Class Records Have Call, Owing to Public Hearing of Great Metropolitan Artists—Dealers Handling All Lines of Machines and Records Report Wonderful Month—Prosperity in the South

ATLANTA, Ga., May 7.—The talking machine dealers generally in this city report nice business in the month of April. They each and every one benefited very much by the visit of the Metropolitan Opera Co. here the week of April 19-26, as all the leading companies were well represented in the various operas presented, and the publicity given by the talking machine companies themselves, the musical critics in the newspapers, the society editors, and last but not least, by the individual dealers themselves, was amazing and most gratifying to all in the industry. The sale of symphony records was greatly stimulated both before, during and since the opera engagement.

Taken as a whole, this season's work was the best, the attendance was the largest and the money receipts the most since the Metropolitan Company began coming to Atlanta, this being their ninth visit here. Caruso, Lazaro, Mardones, Martinelli, Bada, De Lucca, Rothier, Scotti and others were in their best voices and all shone with new lustre. Ponselle, Muzio, Alda, Barrientos, De Launios and others of the ladies sang as they have possibly never done before and too much cannot be said of their wonderful achievements and great triumphs in their various repertoire.

Dealers are getting more stock than in some time, and the outlook is quite encouraging. Individual reports follow below:

The Atlanta Talking Machine Co., Columbia dealers and who also have the Vocalion, say, through Mr. Lawshe, store manager, that their business in volume, as to terms of sale, cash sales and cash record business is progressing without any signs of diminution, and they look forward with confidence to the future.

The Cable Piano Company report through Mr. Salter, manager of the Victrola department, that they had a wonderful month. With the weather clearing as to source and quantity of supply at least to some extent, and with the public as eager as ever for Victor product he expects to proceed with assurance and to reach new records in sales volume this year. Mr. Salter and Mr. L. J. Evans of the same organization have organized the Evans-Salter "All Star" concert series and will bring to Atlanta from time to time some of the world's greatest singers and instrumentalists.

The Haverty Furniture Co., Columbia dealers, who also sell the Pathé, put on in April one of the greatest lines of publicity ever placed before the Atlanta public. Their advertising manager was given carte blanche as to publicity and featured all Columbia artists here during the week. Especially did Miss Rosa Ponselle, Mme. Barrientos and Hipolito Lazaro come in for generous space in the daily papers, window display, etc., at the hands of this company.

The main store of the Haverty Co. in Atlanta, as well as their eight or nine stores in other Southern cities, report business as continuing in most satisfactory shape and volume.

Phonographs, Inc., the local Edison jobber, and who also have a most attractive and successful retail store in this city, had as their guests during the week of grand opera twenty or thirty of the principal Edison dealers in their territory, and all expressed themselves as having had a most profitable and enjoyable visit. A convention was held while they were here.

The Philips & Crew Piano Co., the oldest Victor dealers in Georgia, are quoted as continually reaching and passing old records in their Victrola department. This concern is of such high reputation and is so well known to the public, that coupled with the merit and strong standing of the line it handles it is able at all times to be one of those at the head of the procession. Under the guiding hand of Harvey Phillips, president of the company, and resident director, the concern is making more than a passing impression in the talking machine field.

Travelers in Georgia, Alabama, Florida, North and South Carolina all report business in most excellent shape. The sales volume (wholesale) is running from two to three times that of 1918.

JONES-MOTROLA EXPANSION

New Jobbers Appointed in United States—
New Norwegian Representatives—Extensive
National Advertising Planned This Year

The Perry B. Whitsit Co., of Columbus, Ohio, and The Buehn Phonograph Co., of Pittsburgh, are among the firms that have lately taken on the Jones-Motrola in a jobbing way. The Norwegian Phonograph Co., of Christiania, Norway, has been appointed foreign representative of Jones-Motrola, Inc., with a territory which covers all of Norway. Additional national advertising is being planned by Jones-Motrola, Inc., in addition to that now appearing in Life and the Literary Digest. The new magazines to be used include Vogue, Collier's, Scientific American and the Ladies' Home Journal. The factory is very busy with orders on hand.

NEARLY ATE THEM

A fussy little man hurried into a Federal street restaurant and excitedly said to one of the waiters:

"Were you here half an hour ago?"

"Yes," the waiter replied.

"And did you wait on me?"

"I rather think I did."

"Well, I lost something when I was in here."

"What was it?"

"A half dozen small-sized disc records."

"I have them right here back of the counter for you, but they are a trifle mussy."

"Whatdye mean, mussy?"

"You left them there on a plate and the next gink who came in poured syrup on them, thinking they were a stack of wheats."

DESCANTS ON THE WONDERFUL ADVANCE OF THE INDUSTRY

Otto Heineman Tells Why There Should Be "a Phonograph in Every Home" in Most Interesting Talk With The World—Tells of Its Remarkable Influence Educationally

"A phonograph in every home" has for many years been the motto and slogan of Otto Heineman, president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. In fact, this phrase or statement has become more than a slogan to Mr. Heineman, and it may be considered in the light of a hobby. By his associates and co-workers it is regarded as part of Mr. Heineman's life work, and the greater his success the broader his vision of the task, and the keener sense of the turer soon made it possible for the average man with but moderate means to add this most complete of all musical instruments to his furnishings which make for a beautiful home.

"And to-day! To-day even the poorest man can make no excuse about a talking machine, for to-day there is a machine within the reach of every laboring man. Now it's simply a question of a systematized and thorough canvass of this vast country, and I'm sure that American obligation which he feels standing at the head of the great institution which is certainly "doing its bit" to place a talking machine in every home.

Mr. Heineman recently consented to give The World an interview in connection with his "hobby," in the course of which he said:

"You want me to tell you what I think a phonograph in every home will mean to the world—well, you see, it's difficult to appreciate what a phonograph in every home will mean unless you take a glimpse back to the early days of this wonderful industry.

"In the beginning the talking machine was a great luxury, just like the piano during the early days of musical history, when only people of great means owned one. Fortunately, in America the progressive phonograph manufac-genius will soon surmount all obstacles, as it has done so frequently in the past, and my slogan of 'A Phonograph in Every Home' will be no mere slogan, but a wonderful fact.

"You see, when there will be a talking machine in every home it will not be possible for the children of the poor to grow up without hearing the best in musical art. They will grow up with a fair conception of what a wonderful and vital role music plays in the life of every individual, in the home life, in the community and in our national development. These children will grow into men and women who will be able to appreciate music intelligently, and through the proper development of their aesthetic side they will turn out to be better citizens and better homemakers.

"Have you ever thought of it that even to this day the so-called musically educated person is as a rule a very one-sided musical person? He either knows all about vocal art or is well versed on piano playing or is a fiddle crank or knows all band pieces from the days of King Dodo, but very few of them have a well-rounded knowledge of music in all its branches.

"That's not going to be the case in the future, when there will be a phonograph in every home. It will be possible for any one to get acquainted with the best renditions of popular songs, ballads, symphonies, art songs, violin and piano solos, etc., no matter how far they live from the music centers of the world.

"Have you ever considered what the American-made record has done for the American composer and the American artist? It is true that the progressive music publishers have accomplished much in spreading American music abroad, but it goes without saying that what they have achieved is merely a drop in the bucket compared to what the American-made talking machine and record is doing in boosting American music all over the world.

"It is most fortunate that America should be the leader in the phonograph and record industry, for it will strengthen the world's tribute which has been paid to American inventive genius and to American workmanship ever since we flooded the world markets with shoes, farming implements, typewriters, etc.

"Thanks to American talent, it is possible for a music lover in Zanzibar to entertain his guests with 'Yankee Doodle'; thanks to the progressive American record manufacturer it is possible for the Eskimo mother to put her babe to sleep with 'Mighty Lak a Rose'; the king of Zululand can learn the fox-trot to the tune of 'Hindustan' and the caravan can stop under the Pyramids for lunch and turn on the 'Beautiful Ohio.'

"Just this much more. I feel sorry for any man, whether record manufacturer, jobber or the smallest dealer, who keeps on selling his records and talking machines thinking all the while of the profits involved in the deal, and meanwhile fails to derive the real happiness which every man should consciously feel every time he does something to make a man happier and the world more cheerful and enlightened."

CELEBRATES 30TH ANNIVERSARY

Frank Tollin, Victor Dealer, of Chester, Pa., Also Occupies New Store in That City

CHESTER, PA., May 2.—Frank Tollin, Victor dealer of this city, has completed thirty consecutive years of successful merchandising and celebrated the anniversary with the formal opening of his newly equipped store at 617 Edgemont avenue. Six new sound-proof demonstrating rooms have been added and added facilities have been installed to take care of the large talking machine trade. This department is in charge of Nathan A. Tollin, a son of the proprietor, and as a result of his careful management is enjoying continuous growth. The opening was well attended and each customer was presented with a four-inch high miniature plaster-of-paris Victor dog, made by the Penn Phonograph Co.

LEASE FACTORY IN PERTH AMBOY

The Kimberly Phonograph Co., manufacturers of the Kimberly phonograph, has leased a factory at Perth Amboy, N. J., for the production of these instruments. The offices of the company will remain at 206 Broadway, and several business men of Perth Amboy are now interested in the company.

PROGRESSIVE EDISON DEALER

The Sandersville Music Co., of Sandersville, Ga., exclusive Edison dealers, did a business last year of which they are justly proud. In a town of not over 2,500 in population they sold over 200 Amberolas and disc instruments. This year they expect to sell at least 100 Amberolas and 200 discs.

TALKING MACHINE TRADE OVERSUBSCRIBES LOAN QUOTA

Allied Music Division Raises Over Seven Millions in New York for Victory Loan, With Talking Machine Interests Playing an Important Part in the Subscriptions

Going away beyond their quotas with subscriptions to Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes appears to have become more or less a habit with the Allied music interests in and about New York, with the members of the talking machine trade doing their full share of the work, or maybe a little more, both in the matter of subscribing and in getting subscriptions from others.

The campaign carried on by the Allied Music Division, Industrial and Professional, in which the talking machine trade was incorporated, in connection with the floating of the Victory Liberty Loan, is to be accepted as a wonderful example of businesslike effort. In fact, this division is credited with being the first to go beyond its quota of $2,750,000.

The chairman of the committee was C. C. Conway, of the Hallet & Davis Piano Co.; treasurer, Charles Jacob; secretary, Albert Behning, with J. Newcomb Blackman, of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., and C. G. Child, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., as members of the Advisory Committee. H. L. Willson, of the Columbia Co., was one of the vice-chairmen, and E. N. Burns, of the same company, and V. E. B. Fuller, of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., were members of the Concert Committee, under the chairmanship of Herman Irion, of Steinway & Sons. The committee in charge of the work of securing subscriptions from the talking machine trade was made up of W. H. Alfring, Lambert Friedl, Thomas F. Green, George W. Hopkins, E. H. Jennings, William Maxwell, A. P. Plumb and E. A. Widmann.

The first committee meeting of the Allied Music Division was held at the Pennsylvania Hotel on April 18th, at which time Chairman Conway declared that there was no reason for prolonging the job beyond the time necessary to record the subscriptions. He said the main idea was to oversubscribe the quota and get back to regular business. In other words, there was no sense in spending three weeks over a one-week job. That other members of the music trade held the same idea was indicated by the fact that at a second meeting held one week later at the Hotel McAlpin subscriptions totaling $4,300,000 were reported, and four days later, after an elaborate rally held at the Metropolitan Opera House on April 28, the actual subscriptions in hand were approximately $7,000,000 in the aggregate.

Although accurate detail figures are not available at the present time, the Allied Music Division is officially credited with having subscribed over 250 per cent. of its quota, or a total of over $7,400,000. It was the first division to go over the top, and at the finish was topped by only one subdivision of the eighty in the Rainbow Division. It is a record to be proud of.

The rally held at the Metropolitan Opera House, while not so elaborate as that held at Carnegie Hall during the Fourth Loan, nevertheless attracted a capacity audience by featuring two world-famous artists, Jascha Heifetz, the noted violinist and record artist, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, famous pianist and composer. The speakers included Admiral Mayo, Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty. The first sensation of the evening came when C. G. Child, of the Victor Talking Machine Co., offered to subscribe $500,000 worth of notes if Mr. Heifetz would play Schubert's "Ave Maria" as an encore. The violinist complied with alacrity. This offer was later topped by one of $1,200,000 for an encore by Rachmaninoff.

There was less excitement about securing subscriptions for the Victory Loan than in any of the previous campaigns, and yet the results were unusually satisfactory. It was looked upon as a strictly business proposition, and within ten days after the opening of the campaign the local headquarters again went back to a normal pre-Loan basis.

Reports from the various sections of the country indicate that talking machine jobbers, manufacturers and retailers in all sections did their full share in making the Victory Loan a success, and it was interesting to note that while they were working for Uncle Sam business kept right on at a top-notch rate. Probably the announcement that it would be the last loan of its kind had something to do with the results, but the fact remains that the results were positive in their character.

NEW HOME FOR VICTOR DEALER

Many guests prominent in the talking machine industry were entertained at the recent opening of the new store of the Bahr Piano & Music Co., of Quincy, Mass. Among the guests were Herbert Schoemaker, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., and Frank Horning, New England manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., and his wife. The musical program of the evening was enjoyed by everyone, the features being selections by Farrar, Scotti and Caruso reproduced on the Victor.

NEW HOME FOR LYRIC MUSIC STORE

The Lyric Music Co., Ogden, Utah, has purchased the stock of the Consolidated Music Co., and after extensive alterations a formal opening of the new store was held a short time ago. C. L. Madsen, formerly local manager of the Consolidated Music Co., is president and general manager of the new concern, which carries Victor and Aeolian-Vocalions and a complete line of records.

Mrs. Mary L. Easton, mother of the late Edward Easton, former president of the Columbia Graphophone Co., of Hackensack, N. J., died at her home on May 3.

TRADE CONTINUES UNUSUALLY ACTIVE IN KANSAS CITY

Goods Coming in With Greater Frequency—Plank's New Post—Edison Used in Bible Class—Linguist Manager of Jenkins Store—Caruso Helps Victor Record Sales—Dealers Optimistic

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1.—The talking machine trade this spring is unusually active, and all dealers report an increase over last year's business during these months. Although in some cases a shortage of goods is a handicap, as a general rule shipments are coming in with greater frequency and regularity, and it is possible to catch up with the demand somewhat.

B. L. Plank, who for five years has been factory representative in this territory for the Victor Co., is now direct assistant under A. A. Trostler, in the Victrola department at the Schmelzer Arms Co., and is very much pleased with the trade, records being especially in demand.

Hazel Emmerson, formerly with the Columbia, retail, is now on the sales force in the Victrola department at the George B. Peck Dry Goods Co. Business has been keeping up in fine shape in this department, according to Miss Moss, manager of the department. The record business has been especially good. The most popular numbers have been "I'll Say She Does" and "Mickey."

C. R. Lee, of the Edison Shop, opened his men's Bible class last Sunday morning with Bible reading and hymns on the Edison. The feature was advertised in the weekly bulletin of the Hyde Park Christian Church and an enormous crowd was present. Everyone expressed approval of this method of conducting the class. The occasion afforded one more unique way of bringing the Edison's qualities before a large body of listeners and prospective buyers.

It has been the custom of the Edison Shop to hold weekly meetings of the retail sales force for the discussion of various topics of interest. Each week a subject is discussed by some one of the sales force. The subject under discussion on April 30 was "Opera," by Miss MacPherson, who selected two operas and told the stories, illustrated by records. The idea is to educate the sales force in the knowledge of the principal operas, so that they can properly present them to their customers. Every subject of interest to the trade is treated in this manner and with the finest results. It is surprising the amount of interest that is shown and the amount of real practical knowledge which is gained.

O. D. Standke, manager of Columbia Shop, retail, reports a wonderful demand for Columbia, both machines and records.

Business at the Edison Shop instead of decreasing with the spring months, as is usual, has been increasing. The April business shows a 400 per cent. increase over the same month of last year, and passed last April's sales record at the end of the sixth day of the month. While there is still an unusual number of cash sales the payment plan is more popular than a few months ago. Many customers are taking advantage of the ninety-day payment plan, on which there is no interest charge.

Fred C. Linguist, formerly with the Sherman, Clay Music Co., of Tacoma, Wash., has been made manager of the Victrola wholesale department of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. Ira C. Hershner has recently been made manager of the city sales in the Victrola department at Jenkins'.

The J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. is making a Caruso drive this week, previous to the Caruso concert to be held in Convention Hall May 5. They are displaying Caruso records and featuring them in advertisements. Tickets for the concert are on sale at the store. McCormack records were very popular after his concert recently in Convention Hall, according to all Victor dealers.

Burton J. Pierce and J. W. Jenkins, III, will represent the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. on the "Victory Special," twenty-eighth annual trade extension trip of the Chamber of Commerce of Kansas City. The trip starts from Kansas City on Monday, May 5, and will pass through many towns in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, stopping in the larger centers for luncheons and speaking engagements. The party will return to Kansas City on May 10.

Harry Wunderlich, of the Wunderlich Music Co., stated that April was the best month, with the exception of last December, that he has enjoyed for two years in all departments. During the month of April he sold twenty-two grands of the highest standard makes. Business in the talking machine and regular piano departments was equally as remarkable.

Nelle Williams, who has charge of the Victrola department at the Jones Store Co., reports that the demand is keeping up far ahead of any previous year. Machines are being received in larger quantities, however, and it is expected that soon the demand can be supplied.

A little reminder of the Victrola and record department of the Jones Store Co. is run every day in a little advertisement in the local papers. The general plan of the advertisement is the same every day. The space used is only about four inches, single column. The upper half of the space is devoted to a cut of a Victor record, on which is "Jones for Victrolas and Records." Often there is nothing below the cut except the name of the store, but when there is anything special to feature it is mentioned here. For instance, at the first of the month, a complete list of the new records is published. After a concert records of the artist are featured, etc.

INCREASING LINE OF DISTRIBUTORS

The C. E. Ward Co., makers of khaki moving covers and other specialties for the talking machine trade in New London, O., have been increasing the line of distributors who handle their goods from month to month. The latest to fall in line is Cohen & Hughes, Inc., the prominent dealers of Washington, D. C. Business with the Ward Co. is very brisk.

WHY HARPONOLA is Best

Best as a complete proposition because it is best in finish, best in tone, best mechanically and best from a profit standpoint.

The Price

The proof of price advantage can't be put on paper. You have to see the machine, test it, hear it play and then sell it to really know that it is the best proposition from a dealer or distributor standpoint.

- We assert that it is.
- Of this be sure—prices on talking machines will be higher.
- Materials are not coming down—neither is labor dropping.
- Demand is growing more insistent all the time. Excess demand always raises prices.
- Not because this company will take advantage of a trade demand—but because excess demand will unfailingly increase the cost of our supplies from original sources.
- For your own protection our earnest suggestion is that you place your orders now and protect yourself against price increases.

GREAT COLUMBIA GATHERING IS PLANNED FOR BALTIMORE

150 Columbia Dealers and Salesmen to Meet May 16—New Quarters for National Piano Co.—
New Vocalion Agents—Cohen & Hughes' Cheery Report—Progress All Along the Line

BALTIMORE, Md., May 6.—While distributors reported exceptionally good business for the month of April, with some of the retailers there was a falling off in business, due to several causes, the principal causes being Easter and the Victory Loan, together with several big charitable drives that have been in progress for some time. Taking the business as a whole, however, the trading has been up to the mark in the majority of cases, and so far this year the business done in the four months of 1919 exceeds that for the same period in 1918.

Among the important announcements of the month is that of the National Piano Co., Pathé distributors, which firm plans to have one of the finest quarters in the city about June 15. Last week the firm moved into temporary quarters at 315 North Howard street. The new quarters will be located at 322 and 324 North Howard street with additional space in the rear buildings, 323 to 329 State street. Mr. Rosenstein is well pleased with business conditions and the way trading has gone. Records and machines are coming in better.

A monster sales meeting at which between 100 and 150 Columbia dealers and sales folks are expected to be present will take place at the Southern Hotel on Friday, May 16. William S. Parks, manager of the local Columbia territory, announces that George W. Hopkins, sales manager for the Columbia Co., will come from New York, and that Amparito Farrar, one of the Columbia artists, will also be on hand. At the sales meeting last month at the Southern, and which was gotten up at very short notice, about two score dealers were on hand. O. S. Benz, of the sales manager's office in New York, and George O'Conner, the artist, were also there.

April proved a good month, said Mr. Parks, and May records have started in in good shape. There was also a liberal shipment of machines, but not near enough to meet the demand. While the latter part of April slowed up a little, the month of April has opened up strong, with a big batch of orders. This month, Mr. Parks predicts, will be a record one. Mr. Parks is well pleased with the fact that Frank Dittleson, a Columbia artist, has become a member of the Peabody faculty, one of the oldest and best-known conservatories in the country, and will be a member of the staff of the violin department. He will assume his duties when the fall season opens.

Harry Grove's Washington store is fast reaching a finished state, and with the decorators and artists out of the way the place will soon be ready for real business in all departments. O. J. DeMoll, of Washington, announced the appointment of Mr. Gray as manager of his Grafonola department. Mr. Gray was formerly with the Knabe Warerooms, Inc., Washington. Edward Robinson, 1306 G street northwest, Washington, is one of the recent Columbia dealers. Among the visitors to Columbia headquarters were H. E. Rominger, of the Rominger Furniture Co., Winston, N. C.; O. M. Ramsey, Martinsburg, W. Va., and John White, of the Southern Furniture Co., Richmond, Va.

The Vocalion line appeared for the first time in the talking machine of Hochschild, Kohn & Co., one of Baltimore's leading department stores. Exceptionally attractive ads in the newspapers announced the line was there. The contract for the line was signed last December, but it was only a few days ago that the company was able to get a supply of machines that permitted of the announcement. Sanders & Stayman, the distributors for the line, report a fine April business, with the trading for the four months of this year way ahead of the same period last year. A. J. Boden, of the firm, expects to see some real good business just as soon as the Victory Loan and other drives are closed.

For Cohen & Hughes, Miss E. M. Griffith, manager of the wholesale department distributing the Victor line, says that business is coming along better and there is an improvement in receipts of records and machines, but still the goods received are far from meeting the demand. Many dealers visited the company during the month, including Messrs. Paige and Levy, of Ferguson, Lillienfeld & Lightfoot, Norfolk, and Rewbridge, of S. M. Rewbridge Brothers, Beaver Falls, Va. Mr. Ware, of the Victor Co. headquarters, spent some time at the headquarters during the week, and W. T. Davis, of the Victor traveling department, also stopped off on his Southern tour.

Joseph M. Mann, for the Mann Piano Co., Victor and Sonora dealers, says that business has not been quite as good as it was over the same period of last year, but expects to see it take a brace. Mr. Mann says that he has been receiving many words of commendation for the Sonora.

For the music department of the Hub, M. J. Rogers, manager, reports a fine business in Victor, Columbia and Sonora lines, this firm being one of the few in the city handling the three lines. Mr. Rogers says that the Sonora machine has been receiving some fine notices from their customers. The record receipts during last month and so far this month appear to be improving, especially with the Victor.

Albert Eisenbrandt, of H. R. Eisenbrandt Sons, spent several days in New York last week, and while making the trip principally in the interest of musical instruments for his instrument department also looked over the talking machine field.

April showed ahead of the same month of last year, reports W. C. Roberts, of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., Victor distributors. Mr. Roberts is looking forward to the time when some of the regular numbers of records will come through,

Robert Ansell, who is just now conducting one of the leading music houses in South Baltimore, plans to come into the retail shopping district of the downtown section of the city about September 1. The firm will carry the Victor line and the downtown firm will be known as Ansell & Moses.

The G. Fred Kranz Music Co., Saratoga and Charles street, have opened up their Victor department, their new booths and other essentials to their Victor department being now installed. The location is one that should bring a very high-grade class of business to the firm.

Galli-Curci, soprano, and one of the Victor stars, is going to return to Baltimore for another engagement and will be seen at the Lyric on May 22. This concert should stimulate the sales of Galli-Curci records, just as it did before.

COLUMBIA DEALERS IN KANSAS CITY TERRITORY MEET

Two Hundred Dealers Guests of Columbia Co. at Luncheon Given at Muehlebach Hotel—Addresses by E. A. McMurtry, R. L. Burke, Who Spoke on Window Display, and E. J. Black

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—Nearly two hundred dealers and salesmen for the Columbia Graphophone Co. in the Southwest district, which comprises Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas, were guests of the company at a luncheon given in the ballroom of the Hotel Muehlebach recently. Miss Lucy Gates, of New York, concert soprano and a record soloist for the Columbia, was a guest of honor at the luncheon.

After the luncheon E. A. McMurtry, local manager of the Columbia Grafonola Shop, wholesale, as toastmaster, introduced Miss Gates, who favored the guests with several of her favorite Columbia numbers. She then led a discussion with the audience on the class of music demanded by the public at present, desirous of gaining the dealers' viewpoint on the best sellers in records before going back to New York to make a new series. Miss Gates, backed by a great majority of dealers, is of the opinion that arias from the classic operas would be more popular and better sellers if sung in English.

Mr. McMurtry explained briefly the causes for the great merchandise shortage, which is greatly handicapping nearly every Columbia dealer, but gave an optimistic report of the future outlook on the supply problem. "The Columbia is making every effort to satisfy the dealers," said Mr. McMurtry. They are now turning out 55 per cent. more records than ever before in their history and the Kansas City territory is receiving 100 per cent. more than ever before, so great is the demand."

Mr. McMurtry urged the dealers to order their records as soon as possible and order the largest possible quantity which they can use. "Too many dealers order just a few at first to see how the public will take them and then come back with a rush order about the middle of the month, which in most cases cannot be filled. Buy your records and then make the public want them. Don't let the public always tell you what they want. Make them want what you have in stock. In nine cases out of ten they make up their minds to a certain selection and then don't even know whether you have anything else or not which might please them more. If the customer doesn't know you have certain selections, of course, he will never want them. It is up to the salesforce to introduce the new records and make them sell."

In speaking of record prices Mr. McMurtry said: "There is a tendency on the part of the public to buy the moderately priced records, not to exceed $1.25 or $1.50, except on rare occasions. It is up to the dealer to make them demand the higher priced records by the most noted artists. Everyone is accustomed to paying many times as much for other commodities than he did before the war. Records have advanced very little, so it should be an easy matter to convince the customer that he can afford a better record and higher class of music. It is good policy to show the customer a better record than the one asked for."

R. L. Burke, of the R. L. Burke Music Co. of Joplin, Mo., gave a very instructive talk on "Window Displays, Their Purpose and Cost." He based his discussion on the statement that the customer's first impression of the store is what he sees in the window, so it is of utmost importance to make the display windows attractive.

In this same connection Ed J. Black, of the Black Music Co. of Springfield, Mo., said: "Your display windows are the eyes of your store. Keep both eyes open! It detracts from the appearance of any one to be blind in even one eye. The same is true of your store." Mr. Blake also urged that dealers should make their stores homelike by making everyone feel welcome, whether they make a purchase or not.

The entire meeting was a success and every member took an active and enthusiastic interest. It is planned by the Kansas City wholesale branch to hold these meetings at regular intervals, perhaps as often as once a month as a means of exchanging ideas.

CHANGE NAME TO "DUSONTO"

Belcanto Co., After Finding Name of Product Had Been Used, Makes Announcement of Change—Plans for Increased Production

Announcement has been made of the change in the name of the Belcantola to that of "Dusonto" by the Belcanto Co., Inc., 130 West Forty-second street, New York. The change was made, owing to the fact that it was discovered that a name somewhat resembling the Belcantola has been and is now being used by another concern. The same general construction and finish will be maintained, as well as the tone quality, which has been found in the instrument under the old name. The name of the company will remain the same.

The company is contemplating an increase in production so as to be able to take care of the increasing business which has come from a number of newly appointed distributors.

The policy of the company is to put on new distributors only as the production is increased, and in this way prompt deliveries can be assured during the months when the demand is the greatest. Not only does the company limit the number of distributors to the production, but they also inform each distributor just how many machines of each model he will be able to obtain each month, and the distributor in turn is thereby enabled to promise his dealers a certain steady delivery of machines.

REALIZING ON PUBLIC APPRECIATION OF NAME VALUE

How the Advertising of Talking Machine Manufacturers Has Been Calculated to Acquaint Public With Definite Names—What the Victor Co.'s "Look Inside the Lid" Advertising Accomplishes

Probably in no industry has name value proven a more potent factor than in the talking machine trade, due to the fact that the leading manufacturers in their advertising, and in conjunction with other definite selling arguments, always emphasize strongly the name of their product in a way to impress it upon the minds of the buying public. As a matter of fact, a great deal of the advertising of talking machine of that particular make, and have passed on to him some of their enthusiasm. It is in this connection, with people in this frame of mind, that name value proves an asset of incalculable power.

In view of this fact it is pertinent to note therefore that the Victor Co. advertising in the national magazines just now has a new appeal that is proving interesting to, and causing comment among, the members of the trade throughout the country, especially those who have devoted their efforts for years to cherish the name "Victrola" and the marketing of that product. The copy is nothing more or less than an invitation to the buying public, to whom the name "Victrola" is so familiar, to "Look Inside the Lid" of the machine they are about to purchase for the Victor trade-mark. It is the most direct attempt yet made in the trade to profit by the upbuilding of name value, and the results should be immediate.

The trade-mark showing the Victor dog is well known in every part of the world, and the product upon which it appears has established for itself a definite quality value—a value that is not only recognized by retail purchasers, but also fully appreciated by the members of the talking machine trade who have not hesitated to profit a bit on Victor prestige by selecting cabinet designs and names for their instruments approaching as closely as possible the Victrola line and the Victrola name.

The slogan "Look Inside the Lid" is the direct answer to this challenge, and likewise it is first-hand assurance to the purchasing public that if they seek a genuine Victrola they can be sure of their purchase by looking for the trade-mark, either under the lid of the cabinet machines, or on the side of the cheap models. Those concerns in the trade who have endeavored systematically to build up the value of their trade-mark name have been quick to recognize the fact that their name value is an asset beyond compare. The Victor Co. has crystallized this idea by relying upon the name value created by years of effort and the expenditure of millions in advertising, making a direct appeal to those who have been taught by this publicity to have a high regard for Victor products, and the desire to own those products.

The Belltone Phonograph Mfg. Corp. has been incorporated under the laws of New York at a capital of $10,000.

The "Look-Inside-the-Lid" Appeal manufacturers has been what advertising men call cumulative publicity. In other words, there are a certain number of sales to be made immediately as a result of the direct appeal in the advertising, but there are many more sales that can be made in the future as a result of that same advertising.

People do not buy talking machines as a rule offhand. They get the idea that they would like one, finally become convinced that they must have one, and then sometimes study the financial and other questions before making the final decision to purchase. These operations take time. In emphasizing the name value of their product, therefore, the talking machine manufacturers have been instilling in the minds of these delayed buyers the belief that when they do buy a machine or some records they are going to buy those of a certain particular make. The advertising is calculated to so impress the prospective purchaser that when he thinks talking machines he thinks instinctively of a particular make. He may have been trained in this line of thought simply by the advertising he has seen, and just as likely by the fact that one or more of his friends may own a machine

MAKES EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY

What the Victor Co. Did to Win the War Utilized to Good Purpose by Ed. Usoskin, Inc.

The leading article in the current issue of "The Voice of the Victor" telling of the work of that company in producing instruments of war has been attractively reproduced by Ed. Usoskin, Inc., as a window poster. This is not a part of the monthly display service for Victor dealers issued by this firm, but is to be sent out gratis to the Victor dealers on their books. The various pages have been greatly enlarged to facilitate easy reading, and an attractive title card has been designed reading, "What the Victor Co. Did to Win the War." Colored strips and arrows are included to connect the various cards in the window and the cumulative effect is one warranted to attract and hold the attention of the passer-by. Ed. Usoskin, Inc., have also made a specialty within the last few months of reproducing some of the national advertising of the Victor Co. for display purposes. This matter was also supplied to the dealers without extra charge and served materially as a sales help.

The Edison Phonograph Shop, Springfield, Mass., has leased a store at 488 Main street and will take possession of the new quarters about June 1.

This is not an "ad"

It is a call for a referendum vote on a matter of very vital concern to talking machine dealers everywhere

STANDARDIZATION, CO-OPERATION and ELIMINATION OF DUPLICATION were preached and practiced after we entered the war. Now that we have learned to do all these things under pressure, why should we not continue to seek the same advantages under normal conditions?

Dealers in talking machines—customers of ours—many of whom hold agency contracts for more than one of the standard makes of machines—have asked us to take up with manufacturers of machines the matter of establishing a definite and exact standard of base dimensions and finishes for the several portable models, so that a cabinet purchased for a Victrola VI could also be used for a Columbia 25 (Model B), and so on down the line, and would exactly fit the cabinet and match the finish in each case. This condition does not now prevail.

We hesitated about broaching this subject, but after giving the matter considerable thought we realized that standardization along these lines would be an invaluable boon to the dealer, and decided to go ahead and take it up.

We know full well that no results will be attained unless it can be shown in very conclusive fashion that there is a popular demand for the thing on the part of the dealers.

We shall be able to reach all of our customers by using the mails, and this announcement will reach a great many other dealers, but there are many others who still will not know about this movement, consequently it is very essential that those dealers who are interested should fill out the coupon on this page. Be sure to answer all of the questions, and mail it to us. We shall then tabulate the data and perform our part of the service.

From a manufacturing standpoint the changing of the base dimensions of machines is rather serious; it involves many changes which the non-manufacturer cannot understand; but the adoption of standard and uniform finishes for portable models of the different manufacturers sold at approximately the same prices is a thing that can easily be brought about.

All dealers interested in these changes are requested to answer the several questions on the attached coupon and mail it to us. Don't delay!

COMPLETING ARRANGEMENTS FOR JOBBERS' CONVENTION

Business Questions to Be Handled in Two Afternoon Sessions at Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, on June 30 and July 1—Annual Golf Tournament on Saturday, June 28—July 2 to Be "Victor Day"—Important Matters Coming Up for Discussion at This Very Important Gathering

Plans for a general convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers to be held at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, June 30 and July 1, are now practically completed, and Louis Buehn, chairman of the Arrangements Committee, has already notified the members of the association what they may expect in the way of a program.

The Business Program

On the opening day of the convention, Monday, June 30, there will be held a meeting of the Executive Committee with the first general session taking place in the afternoon. No fixed entertainment plans have been made for Monday evening in order that the delegates may feel free to wander, as their wills and tastes dictate, in and about the various resorts of Atlantic City.

On Tuesday morning, July 1, the various conventionists will make up a bathing party and spend an hour or two in the briny. Another general session of the convention will be held on Tuesday afternoon, and in the evening there will be held the annual banquet, which, it is promised, will be an affair of unusual brilliance, with some lively entertainment and talks by talking machine men and others.

Wednesday, July 2, will be "Victor Day," and the jobbers will enjoy entertainment provided by the Victor Talking Machine Co., details of which are not yet ready for announcement.

The Golf Tournament

On the Saturday preceding the convention, June 28, there will be held the annual golf tournament, for which a number of entries have already been recorded. One of the features of the program this year will be the contest for the Blackman cup. This is a new prize—a handsome silver cup offered by President J. Newcomb Blackman, the cup to become the property of the golfer who wins it three times. There are also several other handsome prizes to be offered as a spur to the Knights of the Niblick. The tournament will be held at the exclusive Sea View Golf Club, at Abescon Beach, the arrangements being made by Louis Buehn.

Important Matters For Discussion

The program of matters to be discussed at the business sessions promises to be a most interesting and important one, for there have arisen during and since the war a number of problems that require careful study and adjustment. One of the chief questions that will come up for discussion will be that of maintaining present list prices of machines and the distribution of any savings created through increased production and manufacturing economy by increasing the discounts at present allowed to wholesalers and retailers. The general feeling is that list prices could stand a further increase if necessary in view of the fact that talking machines have advanced less in price than any other product.

In absorbing increased production costs it has been necessary to shorten discounts to the trade, which has proved rather a heavy burden in view of the fact that the cutting of discounts came at a time when turnover was also reduced and the cost of doing business had risen to a high level. It is held by many jobbers that some adjustment of list prices and discounts is absolutely necessary in order to enable many concerns in the trade to maintain their present organizations and pay the increased salaries now demanded. It is felt that the maintenance of trained distributing organizations is necessary as a matter of prime importance, and should receive first consideration. Various tax questions, new legal matters, the question of equalizing freight charges for the protection of jobbers in distant parts of the country and other matters of similar tenor will be brought up at the convention.

SOME CHANGES IN RICHMOND, VA.

James Cowan Secures Control of Colonial Piano Corporation—A. J. Crafts Piano Co. Renews Lease—New Branch Planned

RICHMOND, VA., May 8.—There have been a number of interesting changes in the local trade recently, among them being the purchase of the controlling interest in the Colonial Piano Corporation by James Cowan, the pioneer Columbia Grafonola dealer here. Mr. Cowan maintains stores on both Main and North Broad streets.

The A. J. Crafts Piano Co. have just signed a new lease on their present store, and also the adjoining store. Remodeling operations will begin at once, and the improvements will include a number of soundproof talking machine booths. The general offices of the company will be moved to the second and third floors of the building, and the cashier's office moved to the mezzanine floor in order to allow more display room.

The general offices of the Starr-Crafts Phonograph Co. have been moved to the fourth floor of the Commercial Building, on Second street. The Crafts Piano Co. incidentally have arranged to open a branch store on Fayetteville street, Raleigh, N. C., where, in addition to pianos, they will handle Starr phonographs and Gennett records. Theodore H. Bower will be manager of the branch store, which is expected to be ready for business in about a month. With the opening of the Raleigh store the Crafts Co. will discontinue their branch in Wilson, N. C.

WM. J. FITZGERALD RESIGNS

BOSTON, MASS., May 6.—William J. Fitzgerald, after an eighteen years' association in the local phonograph business, has severed his relations with the Eastern Talking Machine Co. In view of the fact that Mr. Fitzgerald was a sufferer from the influenza for several weeks early in March he feels that a rest is now in order. He says he is considering several good offers.

INCREASING WESER OUTPUT

Weser Bros. in Shape to Produce Sixty Machines Weekly—Weser Motor Well Protected

Weser Bros., Inc., 524 West Forty-third street, New York, have just increased their factory capacity so that they will be in a position to manufacture henceforth at the average of sixty Weser phonographs per week. Great study and thought has been put into the perfecting of the Weser phonograph, which has been in the making for several years. It embodies many individual characteristics which were created by the late John A. Weser, who was considered one of the greatest inventors in the musical industry.

One of the most salient features of the Weser product is the motor, which has been perfected in the Weser factory and is manufactured there in its entirety. Many thousands of dollars were spent in perfecting this motor, and the machine was not put on the market for trade consumption until Weser Bros. were absolutely sure that the motor would perform to the absolute satisfaction of the purchasing public as well as the trade itself.

The machines are produced in several models, the cabinet work being of the highest quality, and embodying many individual features which give them character and true artistic excellence.

Lohr & Bristol, of Muscatine, Ia., have opened a new store in Wilton and will carry a good stock of talking machines and records.

COLUMBIA DEALERS ATTEND REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING

Lambert Friedl Acts as Chairman—R. F. Bolton Tells How to Expand Foreign-Language Record Business—Sascha Jacobson and Irving Kaufman, Columbia Stars, Entertain the Dealers

Columbia dealers in metropolitan territory were the guests of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. at a very interesting dealers' meeting held late last month in the Green Room of the Hotel Mc-Alpin. This series of meetings was instituted last year by Lambert Friedl, manager of the local Columbia branch, for the purpose of giving the dealers an opportunity to hear the new mid-month records, and in order to introduce personally various Columbia artists to the dealers. These meetings have won signal success, and Manager Friedl has well deserved the hearty congratulations he has received from his clientele in this territory upon the value and practical import of these gatherings.

At this meeting more than two hundred Columbia dealers and members of their sales staffs accepted the Columbia Co.'s invitation to hear the new June mid-month records, listen to a few pertinent business discussions and to meet in person Sascha Jacobson, well-known violinist and exclusive Columbia artist, and Irving Kaufman, another popular Columbia artist.

Mr. Friedl presided as chairman, and after playing several of the new mid-month records, which were enthusiastically received by the dealers, he introduced R. F. Bolton, sales manager of the Columbia Co.'s international record department, and one of the veterans of the Columbia organization. Since taking charge of this important branch of the company's activities Mr. Bolton has achieved splendid results, and the sales totals of foreign language records are steadily increasing under his able guidance. He has made a careful study of the possibilities of this field, and his research work has proven invaluable to the dealers.

In his interesting talk Mr. Bolton, by means of charts, graphs and bulletins, visualized the plans and expectations of his department to excellent advantage. He pointed out that many new thoughts have been adopted by his department, which aims to make the sale of international or, as they are popularly termed, "green label" records a matter of satisfaction and profit. The advertising used in behalf of these records is effective and far-reaching in scope, and every dealer at this gathering received one or more valuable hints relative to the development of foreign-language record business.

In introducing Irving Kaufman, one of the best-known local recording artists, Mr. Friedl advised the dealers that another member of the Kaufman family would also entertain them, this latter artist being Irving's brother, Jack. These two favorites of the vaudeville stage and recording world favored the dealers with a number of selections, which made a decided "hit." Irving and Jack Kaufman are recording duets for the Columbia library, and, in addition, Irving Kaufman will continue making the popular and topical records which have made him a prime favorite with Grafonola owners.

As one of the musical "treats" of the afternoon Mr. Friedl presented Sascha Jacobson, one of the most successful American violinists of the younger generation, and who has won remarkable success on the concert stage. Mr. Jacobson plays for the Columbia library exclusively, and prominent critics have predicted that this young American will steadily enhance his prestige and standing year after year. At this gathering Mr. Jacobson played three numbers which served to emphasize his masterly art and musicianship.

During the course of the afternoon Harry Osgood made an interesting address, showing how the Columbia record library had gained tremendously in prestige and scope during the past few years, and in the course of his address paid a merited tribute to Theodore Bauer, concert and operatic director of the Columbia Co.

As a fitting close to an excellent meeting Mr. Friedl announced that the next speaker would be C. W. Woddrop, vice-president and treasurer of the Columbia Graphophone Co., and a keen student of the most important phases of this industry. Mr. Woddrop's message to the dealers was based on the "Value of Good Will in the Dealer's Business." He suggested that the dealers cultivate and develop the good will of their employes, and commented upon the importance of the creation of a feeling of good will between the dealer and his banker. Referring to the future business outlook Mr. Woddrop stated that it is the consensus of opinion among the leaders of the business world that the coming ten years will be the most prosperous in the history of the world, and that we are on the threshold of unprecedented prosperity. In closing Mr. Woddrop spoke a few words in behalf of the Victory Loan, his remarks being heartily applauded.

The People's Drug Co., Marion, Ind., has announced that the Victrola department will be enlarged and improved, and that a new window for the display of the Victor machine will be added to the present store.

A Sales Force That Places Service Above the Solicitation of Orders

By Frederick C. Kendall
(In Printers' Ink)

Of unusual interest to the talking machine trade was the leading article in Printers' Ink of April 24, in the course of which Frederick C. Kendall, under the caption "A Sales Force That Doesn't Solicit Orders," set forth at length the facts concerning the sales organization of the Victor Talking Machine Co., making a special point of the obligation of the Victor salesman to give service to the jobbers and dealers rather than to solicit orders. The article read in full as follows:

Suspended above the roll-top desk of many a sbrewd sales manager is a celluloid sign calculated to cast fear and trembling into the mind of the laggard salesman, trigger-quick with his artful alihis. It is a time-tried and tested conscience-pricker to the man-who-almost-got-an-order, the chap-who-nearly-sold his customer and the fellow-with-a-promise-for-next-week.

It reads, "Results—Not Excuses." And the commonly accepted interpretation of results is orders.

In contrast, which can be best characterized as refreshing, the Victor Talking Machine Company has, through diligent training, developed a staff of salesmen who don't take orders.

Perhaps this statement is a trifle extravagant. Occasionally the men do take orders; but only when the merchandise selected represents a forward step in retailing or an advance in the character of equipment sold. As one retailer expressed it: "They are not high-priced sandwich men who come into my store generally when I am husy and want me to stop selling goods to give them an order."

The chief joh of Victor traveling representatives is to give service.

The sales distributive systems of the organization are, of course, partly responsible for this condition. Victor machines and records are sold through the Johher to the Retailer who bas agency for Victor sales. The Jobber has his own men visiting the trade at regular intervals and the function of the Victor traveling staff is to supplement the efforts of the Jobber's salesmen in teaching the Dealer how to sell his goods. Obviously, these men must possess the ability of salesmen, but their knowledge also includes a thorough understanding of merchandising, advertising, accounting, store systems and the selection and training of retail sales people.

Ordinarily, they do not solicit orders. That is left to the salesmen of the local Distributor from whom the Retailer obtains his supplies. Some of the men have never sold a single bill of goods. But where a member of the Victor traveling staff succeeds in educating the Dealer to carry a complete stock, rather than have the order wait until it is passed to the Jobber's salesman, he is privileged under these conditions not only to accept orders, but to solicit.

Usually the Jobber's salesmen call on the trade every month. They work on schedule and have comparatively little time to devote to a study of the merchant's business problems. Moreover, they do not always possess the specialized training that fits them for such work. The Victor men, on the other hand, have unlimited time at their disposal to offer constructive criticism and, to quote the hand-book of the traveling department, "To help the retail and wholesale merchants in this industry to become bigger and better merchants; to impart to the trade the Victor company's ambitions, and to keep the officials of the company constantly in touch with outside conditions." So, the mere matter of getting orders is a negligihle factor. The company even states that it considerably lessens a man's standing with the trade to accept orders which would ordinarily be placed with a Distributor. Consequently, the solicitation of business is not encouraged.

SEEKING THE RIGHT RETAIL OUTLETS

One of the most interesting things in the development of the Victor industry has been the gradual evolution in the character of merchants presenting their line to the local public. Originally the talking machine was looked upon as an interesting toy. In 1901 Eldridge R. Johnson organized the Victor Talking Machine Company, and immediately the infant organization started a policy which has been one of the mainstays of the industry to the present day. They invested every penny of their surplus in advertising their talking machine. The sales increased and gradually the public began to have a high respect for what was first regarded as a curious plaything. Eighteen years ago hicycle shops were as common as garages are to-day, and it was largely through the hicycle shop that the retailing of Victor talking machines was first introduced.

The products were not taken seriously as a commercial proposition, being looked upon more as a novelty acceptable to the hicycle dealer because of his having a line profitable only during the summer months and in need of something which would fit into the winter season.

Next, the jeweler and furniture dealer were persuaded and eventually, when other merchants found that there was a demand for talking machines, they began to cast inquiring glances at this new product.

There was tough sledding for the first few years, but gradually there came an awakening on the part of the better-class merchants concerning the commercial opportunities of this novel music-maker. Department stores found that the demand was of steady growth. The piano stores, however, were extremely conservative regarding the sales possibilities of the Victrola. Now, however, Victrolas are sold in the highest type of retail stores, and the sale of talking machines has, in many cases, proved a life-saver for retail piano dealers.

"After all is said and done, the success of this industry can be traced almost wholly to the Victor Company's ability to build up a strong retail merchandising organization," said H. A. Beach, manager of the traveling department. "That this has been accomplished is well testified to by the character of the Victor clientele of to-day. It is a fact, well understood, that an article, even though it possesses wonderful merit and is extensively advertised, will not find its way to the consumer without the proper co-operation of the local merchant. Consequently, our first thought has been to associate our line with the merchant of high standing, and once we have secured representation, to concentrate our energies in building up the trade of this man.

"In order, of course, to give a dealer any worth-while help, or to be of any assistance to him in developing or improving his business methods, it is necessary that we have clearly in mind all the conditions with which we must deal. It is very much like the doctor, who, before he can prescribe for his patient, must first diagnose the case; the builder first has an architect draw the plans outlining the work to be done. So it is with every human activity requiring skill, we must first know the materials and conditions with which we are working, and then know how to use them. The rest is easy.

"It has been our experience that the qualifications of a successful dealer are divided briefly under the following headings: First, capital; second, location; third, merchandise; fourth, organization; fifth, selling plans; sixth, service. We have seen many examples of the dealer who is well equipped financially who has a store well located, is carrying a good line of merchandise, but is a miserable failure as a business man because he lacks proper organization. We also find dealers who have all the other qualifications, but lack the necessary capital to take care of their business. The abundance of strength in some of these may overcome weaknesses in others. But in the end the organization must be well balanced if it is going to do the best work."

POINTING TO SUCCESS OR FAILURE

"In developing the activities of our traveling representatives, we have grouped the characteristics of a successful merchant for the purpose of analysis. Not all phases of a dealer's business, naturally, are apparent to our men; therefore, they must be guided by the symptoms.

"Under the heading of Capital we have a number of symptoms to go by—first, How does the jobber look upon the merchant's credit? Second, Is he discounting his bills? Third, Is he carrying his own leases or is he discounting them through some bank or financier? Fourth, Is he experiencing any difficulty in getting goods, due to poor credit? Fifth, Do the stocks he is carrying indicate that he has ample funds?

"Under the heading of Location our experience indicates that a successful dealer must be located in the main retail business section, preferably on the ground floor. Such successful chain retail enterprises as the Woolworth stores and the United Cigar stores go to great expense and effort to determine the value of a future location before opening a shop. In the case of the latter concern their custom is to place a man with a counting machine in his hand directly opposite the point where they contemplate leasing. He checks every man passing that store for a full week's time.

"All these things endorse our conclusions that a location on a main business thoroughfare is to be considered the best. Therefore the symptoms from which we judge a man's location are—Is he on a main business street or side streets? Ground floor, basement or upper floor? Near department stores, Woolworth stores or United Cigar stores? Near street car transfer points, railroad terminals, theatres, cafes, etc.? Is he in proper surroundings? It is obvious that a Victor store located between a butcher shop and a delicatessen store would not be in the proper environment.

"To us the third heading of Merchandise is particularly significant. If the Victor dealer does not sell our line exclusively, the energies of our traveling representative are naturally focused in bringing about as great a concentration as is consistent with general conditions. Other things closely related are the condition of the merchant's stock, the assortment of his records. Does he have a capable manager? Able assistants? Producing salesmen? Good repairmen? Are his accounting methods sound? Is his credit department flexible as well as careful? Are his clerks eager for suggestions that will help them?

"It is a natural condition that the subject of selling plans receives more attention than other departments from our representatives. The reason is that, to most of us, merchandising has been our life work and, consequently, we are quick to perceive any deficiencies along this line. On entering a store, some of the early questions asked are—Does the retailer use a mailing list? Is the mailing list kept up-to-date? Is his advertising productive and well planned? How is the retailer advertising? Is he making full use of his windows? Is his advertising appropriation spent judiciously?

"The question of service is naturally a most engrossing one. Here are grouped such things as the appearance of the store, deliveries, booths, type of sales clerks, arrangement, decoration and atmosphere of the store. We are curious to know whether a store is clean and cool, for these things naturally exert an influence upon the type of customers catered to."

It is, therefore, apparent that traveling representatives for the Victor organizations are specialists in the retail business. They must have retail and wholesale experience, a knowledge of accounting—for a good deal of the Victrola business is conducted on the installment plan. They must understand the financing of the business, the dangers of the extension of too long credits, etc. They must know how to choose stocks suited to the condition of a town, the selection of a store location and the training of sales people. Instead of knowing the Victrola business alone, they must be kept informed of general trade conditions.

The success of the traveling department of the Victor organization is due largely to the fact that the recommendations of its members are not stereotyped systems, but personalized recommendations based upon an intimate study of the merchant's particular business. They do not attempt to dictate to the retailer, but analyze conditions and suggest improvements. They persuade the dealer to put in artistic demonstration booths, hardwood floors, rug, plants, artistic furniture, etc., in order to create the proper atmosphere and attract a better grade of customers.

"I can quickly recall from my personal experience," related Mr. Beach, "several instances which show just how our traveling staff operate. A few years ago one of our men visited a flourishing manufacturing town in Pennsylvania. We knew we were not getting proper distribution at that point. So the representative made a careful study of the conditions surrounding this dealership—the class of employes, the type of merchandise carried, charge systems, etc. Then after these observations he called upon the merchant, introduced himself and then diplomatically suggested a few obvious improvements that could be made. This merchant, however, did not take kindly to the criticism of the manner in which he was running his business. He maintained that as he was paying the bills, he could do what he darn well pleased.

"Our representative impressed upon him the fact, however, that to employ an efficiency man would cost him around $1,000. Even then it would be impossible to secure the services of an individual who had made a study of the talking machine business. By showing this successful merchant that our interest was not entirely selfish, our traveling representative gradually broke down his reserve, with the result that at midnight they were still in the store making plans for complete reorganization of the business. And it was not until two o'clock that they finally separated.

"The final outcome of this particular case was that while the man was head over heels in debt, three years later he came to the headquarters, showed us his bank account and stated that he intended to open branch stores in the surrounding neighborhoods.

"As originally found, this dealer depended solely on his wife for clerical help—a most delightful woman for a home, but poorly suited for work of such character. A change was suggested and carried out with the employing of competent salespeople, new fixtures were built, etc. The wife was installed in new duties as a homemaker, and it was not long before that merchant was coupling real home pleasures with work under conditions which were decidedly more favorable. One of the things our traveler impressed upon this merchant was the importance of concentrating on merchandise he best understood and merchandise which permitted a quick turn-over.

"So, here is an example where our traveling staff is not only performing a service to our own organization, but helping to raise the standards of retailing throughout the country."

"In some cases," Mr. Beach states, "it is necessary to adopt rather unusual methods to bring a dealer out of his lethargy. Some have to be told the rudiments of the business, while others merely require a simple suggestion which will start them thinking in the right direction.

"In developing the retail clerks, no set manual of instruction is prepared. This phase is also handled personally by the representatives. They explain the importance of becoming familiar with the Victor catalog, and also memorizing the interesting facts printed regarding the artists and composers. They try to arouse the ambition of the clerks and frequently give them a list of books on salesmanship that can be obtained from the library."

THE VICTOR STANDARD OF CO-OPERATION

Mr. Beach explained that the Victor organization is thoroughly solid on the idea of true co-operation. "To our minds this is selling goods to the consumer, rather than selling to the retailer. Ninety per cent, of the help our representatives give is unsolicited. A subject is opened up during the conversation, and frequently the merchant does not realize that he has been placed in possession of many valuable facts. But provided he puts them into operation, we are contented. We don't, of course, set down rules or regulations for running a store, but try to explain to our dealers the principles of merchandising. We prefer to tell them how to determine what to do, for this teaches them the resourcefulness which is so necessary in keeping up with competition."

When Victor traveling men appear on the scene, the dealers do not feel "Here comes someone to take away my hard-earned money." Rather, they are glad to welcome the visitor who talks, not with an order book in one hand and a poised pencil in the other.

The advance notices to the trade typify the attitude of the organization toward its agents. "Nothing is more inspiring than an occasional conference with someone interested in the same problems as ourselves," reads one of the notices. "Our Mr. Wolcott will visit you on April 19, and we hope that your talk will prove mutually profitable." Another announcement states that "The observations and experiences of one seeing our problems from a distance are often helpful."

The traveling department of the Victor Company has served as valuable training for many men now occupying positions as managers with jobbers or large Victrola departments. Many graduates have gone out from the parent organization. Some of these are occupying responsible positions—and it must be remembered that many of the operations are of considerable magnitude.

"We try to impress upon our men," Mr. Beach concluded, "that the Company has no desire to permit what might be construed as coercive handling of the trade. The duties of our traveling staff are promotional, pure and simple. We want our men to spend sufficient time with each account in order that they may analyze the existing situation and put into effect a remedy which will tend toward correcting any of the weaknesses they find. They must not leave any point until they are fully satisfied that they have done all possible to bring that merchant to a profitable state of development.

"Moreover, not only most of our men bend their energies toward improving the merchandising methods of our distributors, but spread abroad the Victor spirit and put into action the policies and ambitions of our Company. They also act as the eyes of the organization, scouting out along the firing line for new developments in trade. So, though we often boast that our men are trained not to sell merchandise, we feel that their work is indispensable to the development of the organization."

TALKING MACHINE TROUBLES AND HOW TO REMEDY THEM

Conducted by Andrew H. Dodin

[This department of The Talking Machine World is designed for the service of all classes of our readers, including those who make, and those who sell, talking machines. Andrew H. Dodin, who conducts this department, has a wide and enviable reputation as a repairer of talking machines and conducts an exclusive talking machine repair shop at 176 Sixth Avenue, New York. Tell him your troubles through The World and he will help you if possible. The service is free.—Editor.]

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

St. Louis, Mo., April 17, 1919.

Andrew Dodin, care Talking Machine World.

We have read with interest your several articles conducted through the repair department of The Talking Machine World.

We wish to ask your assistance with reference to one or two matters which trouble us very much from time to time. The first is noisy motors, which is very prevalent in certain makes. The motors when first put in use run very smoothly, but after a while begin to rattle very much, and we find that this is caused by the fly wheel and worm drive connection.

We have tried to eliminate this noise by making adjustments at either end of the fly wheel shaft. Sometimes this helps and then again it does not. We were told by one of the phonograph manufacturers to shave the felt which rubs against the fly wheel. This seems, at times, to eliminate the trouble. Will you please let us know what your experience has been?

We are sending to you, under separate cover, a type of reproducers which is used by several of the phonograph manufacturers. This reproducer is not a very substantial article. Very frequently these reproducers buzz and blast shortly after they are put into use, and we find it necessary to replace them on sample machines, standing on our floor, even before the machines have been sold.

It is a very difficult box to get into, as it must be opened from the face side and the mica is put in from the face side. We note that the mica is never shellacked to the rubber gasket as is the case with the Victor box.

We also note that the micas used in this box are the size of the opening through which they must pass, and therefore do not extend in many cases, far enough over the rubber gasket to pack them securely.

We will appreciate very much an article from you describing the best way in which this reproducer should be handled.—Larkatone Music Co., Inc.

ANSWER—The trouble you refer to in the motors is undoubtedly to be found in some part of the governor mechanism. I have had a great amount of this trouble in all styles of motors using the rawhide gear (or fibre gear) on the governor drive, and there seems to be no set rule for curing the trouble. As a rule, you will find the governor bearings worn so that there is side play on the bearing points of the governor spindle, then again you will find the little check pad of felt has become very hard at its point of contact with the governor disc. Shaving this hard surface away and soaking in oil helps. Again (and in my opinion the chief cause of trouble) the cuts of the fibre or rawhide gear on the turntable spindle are very rough. Upon the finish of the cuts in this gear and the spiral cut on the governor spindle depend the quiet or noisy running of the motor.

To see a governor spindle made, how it is cut on the lathe, tempered, ground, polished and lapped down to its exact size, one would say, upon looking at it with the naked eye, that it was absolutely smooth, especially in the spiral cut. However, if you place it under a microscope you will quickly change your mind, for you will find instead of a perfectly smooth surface one full of cuts and holes and the wonder is that it ever can be made to run smoothly. However, it can be done and I have often found that with a little experimenting and trying several different governor spindles, bearings and turntable spindles it is possible to get a combination that will run satisfactorily.

As to the sound box, it is possible to get as good results from this sound box as from any other make.

The points to be very careful about in assembling it are to shellac the mica to the bottom gasket, place the needle bar in position, being sure to get the little pads of rubber in proper position under the tension springs, place needle bar mica screw into position and then put top gasket into place.

If you place top gasket into place before putting on needle box you will probably move the mica out of position and so cause trouble.

If it is assembled very carefully you should not have any trouble and the box is susceptible to adjustment above the average of the independent makes.—A. H. Dodin.

Lebanon, Pa., May 6, 1919.

Editor Talking Machine World.

A friend of mine has a large Columbia Grafonola De Luxe and when certain band or vocal records are played on it with a loud needle it has a buzzing sound on the high notes which is very annoying. When these same records were played on another machine they did not buzz. Some claim it is the fault of the sound box, others that the turntable does not run true. If there is any remedy for this trouble I would be pleased to hear about it.—Earl C. Yordy.

ANSWER—Your trouble is in the sound box—try tightening the clamp ring on the rubber gasket, and also tighten the needle bar by screwing in the pivot screws and readjusting the lock nuts on them. The turntable running untrue will give more pronounced needle scratch, but will not cause the buzz you write of.

N. J. WILCOX IS MANAGER

Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced very recently the appointment of N. J. Wilcox as manager of the Columbia branch at Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Wilcox, who is a newcomer in the phonograph industry, succeeds A. J. Heath, who resigned with the regrets of the Columbia Co. in order to open an exclusive Columbia retail establishment, the location of which will be announced later.

great value to them in making their Emerson department distinctive and attractive.

A new set of display cards is sent the dealer each month featuring the month's releases. The display is arranged so completely as to enable the dealer to change his window trim each month with very little trouble and keep the public constantly informed of the latest hits.

Automatic Change of Weight

An Exclusive Feature of Parr Central Universal Tone Arm

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically. The first scientifically constructed universal tone arm.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm is furnished in any length required and the sound-box can be turned, allowing the needle to be changed with ease, and by a reverse movement the box returns to normal playing position. The needle always rests in the same point, direct center, playing either position.

FINE NEW HEINEMAN OFFICES

Headquarters of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. in New York Provided With Most Modern Equipment to Handle Business Efficiently—Some of the Departments

The accompanying photographs tell a story of growth and progress. They represent views taken recently in the new offices opened by the Advertising Department, Laszlo Schwartz, Mgr. Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., at 25 West Forty-fifth street, to house the company's purchasing, clerical, advertising, manager of the Eastern sales and sales managers' departments, tive offices of the company, together with the financial, accounting, bookkeeping departments, etc., and the private offices of the executives, remain on the sixteenth floor.

At the present time, the company occupies the entire second floor of this building with the greater portion of the sixteenth floor, and judging from the tremendous demand for Heineman products, additional floor space will be required in the very near future.

The heads of the departments located on the second floor are delighted with the facilities afforded them, for the lighting arrangement and the general layout of the offices are ideal. The large reception room affords visitors to the second floor maximum comfort and convenience, and the shipping department is equipped with the most approved and up-to-date methods of transporting records. This department is one of the most important on the floor, for the OkeH record business is proving phenomenal.

SOLOTONE MFG. CO. IN QUAKER CITY

Entire Building at 1727 Chestnut Street Leased for Showrooms and Offices—Concert Hall a Feature—Ready for Occupancy Soon

PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 8.—The entire building at 1727 Chestnut street, this city, has been leased by the Solotone Manufacturing Co., of Lititz, Pa., for showrooms and executive offices. The premises have been thoroughly renovated, improved and redeccorated, and will be occupied within a few days. The first floor is divided into various rooms, each one to accommodate a particular period design, and the upper floor will be used for executive offices. There will also be a concert hall, in which interesting programs are planned to be given. The entire line of fifteen models will be shown, and the central location of the new warerooms is convenient not only to the buying public, but to the visiting trade as well.

REMOVE PLANT TO BOONTON, N. J.

The factory of Vitalis Himmer, Jr., manufacturer of tone arms, sound boxes, etc., and the plant of the Audion Phonograph Co. have been moved from 77 Reade street, New York, to Boonton, N. J. At this address the company has a thoroughly up-to-date and modernly equipped factory, and plans are being made to handle a large volume of business this year.

Two Western dealers who have recently taken on the Brunswick line are Forbes Pharmacy, Cheyenne, Wyo., and the Blackmarr Furniture Co., Boulder, Colo.

C. A. GRINNELL'S GENEROUS WORK

Prominent Member of Detroit Trade Has Long Taken Active and Unselfish Interest in Association Work—His Support of Music

DETROIT, MICH., May 5.—Although the development of the great business of Grinnell Bros. has engaged his best efforts for nearly forty years C. A. Grinnell has still found time to give unselfishly of his efforts for the benefit of the industry at large, and has proven a big factor both locally and nationally, in every move for the betterment of the music trade and the development of interest in music as a whole. Ten years ago he was elected president of the National Association of Piano Merchants and rendered yeomanlike service in that office. During his administration the association registered its largest list of members, 1,100. It was Mr. Grinnell who established the system of State Commissioners to keep the association in touch with the trade in every section of the country.

Although a member of the Piano Merchants' Association for sixteen years Mr. Grinnell never missed an executive meeting and only one annual convention of that body. He has always declined honorary offices, and it was only under great pressure that he was induced to become president of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, which office he now holds. It was at Mr. Grinnell's suggestion that George W. Pound, general counsel of the Chamber of Commerce, has been making his coast-to-coast trip addressing music dealers in every section of the country.

In forwarding the cause of music itself Mr. Grinnell is best known for his work in promoting the singing of Christmas carols. Last Christmas 10,000 children and adults sang carols in the streets of Detroit, despite bad weather, and Mr. Grinnell sent to every army cantonment of the allied soldiers throughout the world copies of a special service carol to be sung on Christmas Eve. Interesting photographs show the British soldiers in the Holy Land under General Allenby singing the carols at Bethlehem.

During thirty of the forty years he has been associated with the music business in Detroit Mr. Grinnell took no vacation. For the past few years, however, he has endeavored to spend the months of February and March each year at his Florida home at Seabreeze, near Daytona Beach, where he rests up a bit and makes plans for greater expansion and progress in the music industry.

SOME SPEEDY RECORD MAKING

Emerson Phonograph Co. Turns Out Special Record of Speech for Banquet Within Three Days After the Order Is Given

Under the heading "Emerson Speed" the following article appears in the "Emersonian," the new house organ published by the Emerson Phonograph Co.:

Monday afternoon, March 10, 3 o'clock. Telephone bell rings. Voice inquires: Is this Mr. Seiler? MR. SEILER: Yes, Mr. Seiler speaking. VOICE: This is Mr. Wurzburg, general manager of the Nast Publications (Vogue, Vanity Fair, etc.). MR. SEILER: What can I do for you, Mr. Wurzburg? MR. WURZBURG: Mr. Condé Nast, president of our company, has just returned from abroad. On Thursday night of this week the executive force of this organization is giving him a dinner. Mr. Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair, is to preside as toastmaster. He is to make a speech, welcoming Mr. Nast home after being abroad six months. He has requested Mr. Nast to reply, but Mr. Nast considers his speeches very poor entertainment, and refrains from making one whenever he can. Instead, we have an idea we want you to work out for us, if it is possible. MR. SEILER: Well, what is it? Shoot, and we will see what we can do. MR. WURZBURG: When it comes time for Mr. Nast to reply, we propose to prevent Mr. Nast from speaking. We have a phonograph concealed at one end of the table and reproduce a speech in reply to Mr. Crowninshield, without Mr. Nast doing any talking. MR. SEILER: You mean that you want us to record a speech on an Emerson Record, manufacture a record for reproduction Thursday night, and this is 3 o'clock Monday afternoon—three days—some proposition. MR. WURZBURG: Yes, that is what we are asking you to do. MR. SEILER: Well, wait a few minutes; I will talk it over with our recording and manufacturing departments and will call you back. Fifteen minutes later. Telephone in Mr. Wurzburg's office rings. MR. SEILER: Mr. Wurzburg? MR. WURZBURG: Yes, speaking. MR. SEILER: This is Seiler. Will you have your speaker at our recording department Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp? MR. WURZBURG: Yes. MR. SEILER: All right, we will do the rest. Tuesday, 2 o'clock. Scene in Emerson recording room, Mr. Crowninshield on hand, makes two ten-inch records, containing a speech of approximately seven minutes. Two days intervene. Thursday afternoon, 3 o'clock, Emerson delivers to Mr. Wurzburg personally two finished records each of the speech. Five hours later. When time came for Mr. Nast to make his reply to Mr. Crowninshield's speech, he arose, remained silent, but a phonograph produced a speech as clear as a bell—each word was distinct and audible to everybody in the room. Shouts of laughter and applause greeted this speech, far greater than is usually given to the most finished and wittiest of after-dinner speakers. This is an excellent example of Emerson's initiative, speed and manufacturing technique. The publishers were delighted and extremely well pleased, and we were rather well satisfied with ourselves—thank you. This letter was sent by Mr. Wurzburg, general manager of the Nast publications, to Mr. Seiler, of the Emerson Co.:

DEAR MR. SEILER: "Of course you know what a wonderful hit was made with the 'prepared speech' that you so kindly turned out for us, in record time, for use at the dinner we gave to our publisher, Condé Nast. "I have already told you what a surprise it was to Mr. Nast when he was called upon to make his speech and we started the record and delivered the speech for him. Everyone hugely enjoyed Mr. Crowninshield's witticisms, which were rendered the more effective by reason of the fact that he succeeded in simulating Mr. Nast's voice almost to perfection. "We owe this rare treat first of all to the kindness of Mr. Leeming and yourself, and secondly to the enterprise that enabled you to accomplish the impossible—to manufacture and deliver the record to us within 48 hours from the time that Mr. Crowninshield talked into the recording instrument. Your achievement gave me particular pleasure because the idea of making this record came to us as an eleventh hour inspiration, and the committee that was appointed to look into the feasibility of the idea reported back, after investigation, that the thing could not be done in less than three weeks' time. I took great satisfaction, therefore, in being able to show that your company could achieve the impossible. "Let me again thank you and the various members of the Emerson organization for the many courtesies shown and for the splendid co-operation in bringing about this unique and delightful result. Sincerely yours, (Signed) "FRANCIS L. WURZBURG."

This letter was sent by Mr. Crowninshield, editor of Vanity Fair, to Mr. Seiler: MY DEAR MR. SEILER: "Benjamin Franklin did his bit when he took the juice out of the old thunder-cloud that was hanging around over his cow barn. Later on, Thomas Edison chipped in a little blue chip when he took Franklin's thunder juice and made it run errands for him through the little grooves that one finds—in your profession—on those magical little hard rubber discs. "But Franklin and Edison were pikers, both pikers! "It needed you to come along and do something really wonderful for the world—something to take the ancestral curse off of after-dinner speaking. No man, from now on, will ever have to arise from his seat at a banquet, adjust his tie, move the tumblers and finger bowl away, cough, and tremble with nervousness, simply because he must, perforce, address a banquet audience with a torrent of thoughts, feelings, anecdotes, split infinitives, contradictions, stammerings, mixed similes, and so-called funny stories. "Hereafter, all that a speaker will have to do is to call, two days before a banquet, at good Dr. Emerson's (three flights up, twenty years at the same corner, never lost a banquet audience, special attention given to the ladies), and just allow good Dr. Emerson to do the rest. "Really, sir, you and your company are pathfinders, pioneers, adventurers in a great cause. Our thanks, good wishes, congratulations and regards go to you all. Gratefully and truly yours, (Signed) "FRANK CROWNINSHIELD."

HOFFAY REPRESENTATIVES EXPAND

George A. Lowe Co., Ogden, Utah, Have Territory Greatly Increased

Announcement was made early this month by the Hoffay Talking Machine Co., Inc., that the George A. Lowe Co., Ogden, Utah, Hoffay distributors, have had their territory greatly enlarged. By the new arrangement their territory now comprises the entire States of Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

The George A. Lowe Co. is one of the best-known, most influential and progressive houses in the territory named, and they have had great success in merchandising the Hoffay product. It is understood that their advance orders for Hoffay products covering the ensuing months of the present year total over $100,000.

CORLEY CO. TO DISTRIBUTE ROLLS

RICHMOND, VA., May 2.—The Corley Co., of this city, Victor wholesalers, announced several months ago that they were planning to wholesale a popular line of player rolls. Negotiations have been concluded whereby they will become wholesale distributors of the products of the Standard Music Roll Co., which include the Perfection, Auto Word, Sing A Word and Arto rolls. This is another manner in which "The House That Made Richmond Musical" may live up to its slogan. Considerable space has been given over to this new department.

The Cambridge portable phonograph has been introduced to the trade in Boston by the Fredrickson Bros.

MEETING OF PORTLAND ASSOCIATION

G. F. Johnson Makes Vigorous Plea for Co-operation Among Dealers—Makes Plea for High Note in Business—Other Interesting Addresses Made by President Hyatt and Others

PORTLAND, ORE., May 6.—At the last meeting of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Portland at the Hazelwood restaurant an excellent dinner was served and an unusually fine business session was held. Fifty-four were present at the meeting, every talking machine house in the city being represented.

G. F. Johnson, of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., was the principal speaker of the evening, and was introduced by the president, E. B. Hyatt. Mr. Johnson made a plea for better harmony and co-operation among the dealers. He spoke of the opportunities out here—in this substantial, prosperous city of Portland. Capital, labor and brains are found here and there is a fine open field for all. "It is not necessary," said Mr. Johnson, "that cut-throat methods should prevail. Let us be creators rather than destroyers. We are at the threshold of great things. Opportunity is at hand, and we must be able to meet it. We are going to strike a higher note in our business, and in order to do our best we must have faith—faith in our business and confidence in and respect for one another. A man who will work with intelligence and persistency need use no methods but those of honesty and sincerity to become successful. Portland is free, rich and fine, and the talking machine dealers are having now and will continue to have a wonderful opportunity if all work in harmony. With heads up and unafraid we can face the world. Choose right methods, deal kindly with competitors and let us have a healthy, clean and fine competition."

After Mr. Johnson's address remarks were made by several of those in attendance. E. B. Hyatt, the president; C. A. Alphonse, secretary; Taylor C. White, vice-president; James L. Loder, of the Bush & Lane Co., and Mr. Barlow, who has succeeded L. E. Gilham as manager of the Stradivara Co., were among the speakers. Mr. Hyatt endorsed what had been said by Mr. Johnson and urged all to do what they could for the good of the association. Mr. Loder referred to the trouble occasioned by the removal of the Columbia wholesale house to Seattle. Mr. Barlow spoke of the new manufacturing plant of the Stradivara Co., which he called "A pretty husky infant," and invited all members of the association to visit the new factory. Mr. Barlow said there is not a line of merchandise in Portland where the price is maintained as in the talking machine business.

After a few more remarks in which good feeling was very manifest the meeting, which was the best attended and most successful of any ever held in Portland, adjourned.

At the next meeting officers will be elected by ballot for the coming year. The organization is three years old.

REDWOOD FOR "TALKER" CABINETS

Louis Gruen Tells of the Results of Investigation of the Merits of California Redwood

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 2.—Louis Gruen, the Pacific Coast representative of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., who has just returned from an extensive tour of the far Western States, has set into motion the California Redwood Association, and evidently it will not be long before all along the Pacific Coast from Seattle to San Diego there will be scores of independent talking machine manufacturers building instruments from world-famed California redwood. It appears that after thorough research and extensive experimenting Mr. Gruen discovered that this wood can be used for cabinets to as good if not better advantage than the lumber used in cabinets from the East. He claims that it is better adapted to climatic conditions and possesses tone producing qualities which will give the California talking machines advantages in appearance and quality.

F. M. CONDON ELECTED SECRETARY

Frank M. Condon has been elected secretary and director of Condon & Co., Inc., Fifth Avenue Building, and will take an active part in the sales organization. Mr. Condon lately returned from overseas, having been with the American Air Service for sixteen months. He was attached to the 93rd Aero Pursuit Squadron, which was in the 3rd Pursuit Group,

Frank M. Condon

Air Service, First Army. This organization participated in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse drives.

Condon & Co. are greatly pleased with the active demand for the Torrington Co.'s ball point Uniform Needle product, for which it is the sole distributor. Wm. A. Condon, president of Condon & Co., Inc., states that all who have seen the product have expressed the greatest admiration for the quality of it, as the trade has long been educated to use a quality product in the all-important needle item.

Modernola

—It Sells Easier

IN an exclusive class—a Circular Machine with beautiful Silk Lamp Shade. An innovation—yes, a wonderful one! The Modernola has irresistible appeal for lovers of the home beautiful. We sum up this appeal in our advertising slogan—"A Home Delight to Ear and Eye."

There is sweetness and evenness of tone in the Modernola. The designing of the machine is most unique and artistic—not freakish. The construction is right. The finish carries unmistakable suggestion of richness and luxury. Prospective buyers turn away from popularized machines to admire the Modernola. And they buy it.

United States Government Patents granted on the designs and exclusive features of the Modernola greatly enhance its value as a selling proposition—make sure and substantial the profit to manufacturer, jobber and dealer.

INCREASE CAPITAL TO $2,500,000

Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. Certify to This Increase Made to Meet Growth of Business

The Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has certified an increase in its capital from $1,900,000 to $2,500,000. This increase has been authorized by the company's stockholders in order to handle the growing Pathé business of this institution.

The Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. is closing a record-breaking business that is far and beyond the corresponding period of last year. The demand for Pathé phonographs and Pathé records is exceeding all expectations, and the executives of the company are doing everything in their power to give the jobbers and dealers efficient service and co-operation. Pathé records in particular are meeting with a popular reception from Pathé representatives and public.

EMERSON KAUFELD TRIO RECORDS

The Emerson Phonograph Co. will shortly release a series of records made by a new vocal combination which will undoubtedly be accorded a hearty reception from the company's dealers. This combination is a new trio made up of favorites in the recording field. They call themselves the "Kaufelds," consisting of Arthur Fields and the Kaufman Brothers.

Their advent as a trio was somewhat of an accident. The three singers were in the recording room of the Emerson Co., while Harry Marker, chief recorder of the company, was waiting to make test records of some new singers. When he asked if the singers were ready, Mr. Field answered yes, and as a practical joke the three popular artists advanced to the horn without preparation, a song was decided upon on the spur of the moment and the test was recorded.

When Mr. Marker saw what was taking place he continued the recording, put the wax master through as a test, and the result was so surprising and startling that the Emerson Co. immediately engaged the trio to sing a series of songs.

Experts who have heard the test records state that the voices of this trio blend perfectly; the enunciation is clear and distinct, and the three voices sound almost like one singer. The Emerson Co. predicts unlimited success for the records made by the Emerson Kaufeld Trio during the coming season.

SUCCESS WITH STRADIVARA

Smith & Johnson of Coffeyville, Kan., Entering Dealers, Use Auto Delivery and Win Out in Competition in That City

That the phonograph business is good in Kansas, and also that the Stradivara phonograph is bringing success to live dealers, is manifested in the activities of the firm of Smith & Johnson,

Two Stradivara Enthusiasts

Coffeyville, Kan., who have been handling the Stradivara but three months and have made some phenomenal sales in that time. So great has been the demand for these machines that the firm has been compelled to use the automobile delivery which may be seen in the accompanying illustration with Messrs. Smith and Johnson standing beside a delivery car.

Reports received by the Compton-Price Co. from this enterprising concern show that in many instances they have met with keen competition and have won out because of the superior quality of the Stradivara.

"MODERNOLA" IS AN INNOVATION

JOHNSTOWN, PA., May 10.—An innovation in the talking machine industry is announced in this city, where D. Hall Wendell, an executive of the Johnstown Grocery Co., and well-known business man of this city, has organized a $100,000 corporation to market a machine that has pronounced individuality. Mr. Wendell's machine, the 'Modernola,' is of unique circular design with a rich silk lamp-shade attachment.

The Modernola Co., which is manufacturing this machine, has its factory at Somerset, Pa., at the present time, and a new and larger plant is now in construction at Johnstown. The company has been granted patents on designs on the lamp-shade attachment feature, and an advertising slogan has been adopted—"A home delight for ear and eye," which will be used extensively.

E. A. WIDMANN OFF TO EUROPE

President of Pathé Frères Co. Leaves May 15 for Five Weeks' Stay in Europe

E. A. Widmann, president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., will sail today, May 15, on the steamer "Espagne" for a six weeks' trip abroad. According to his present plans Mr. Widmann will make his headquarters at Paris, France, at the offices of the Pathé Frères Co. in that city. He will confer with Charles Pathé, head of this famous European organization, regarding a number of important plans and ideas, and contrary to his usual custom of working twenty hours a day Mr. Widmann hopes that on this trip he will have time to play a few rubbers of bridge.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Widmann was the guest of honor at a "bon voyage" dinner given him by his associates at the Old Colony Club at the Hotel Manhattan. At this dinner Mr. Widmann received the hearty good wishes of his co-workers for a pleasant trip abroad, and when it is considered that the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. is closing the greatest business in its history Mr. Widmann well deserved the congratulations that he received at this dinner from all his associates.

GRANTED PERMANENT INJUNCTION

CHICAGO, ILL., May 12.—An important decision was handed down last week in the Superior Court of Cook County, granting a permanent injunction against Herbert Hufmeyer on a complaint of the Chicago Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. The defendant in this case had used, it is alleged, the name of the Chicago Talking Machine Co. in the course of manufacturing and merchandising talking machines, and this company took steps immediately to protect its rights to the name and good-will which it had spent thousands of dollars to create and maintain.

TO HOLD ANNUAL DINNER AND DANCE

The annual dinner and dance of the employees of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, will be held on June 7. As usual, the employees will be the guests of the company at this dinner, and the annual distribution of bonuses will take place on that day. This event is always keenly enjoyed by the members of this organization, and this year's affair promises to out-distance all others.

DEATH OF LIEUT. JAMES R. EUROPE

Leader of Famous 369th U. S. Infantry Band Meets Tragic Death in Boston—Organization Recently Made Number of Pathé Records

The tragic death in Boston on May 9 of Lieutenant James Reese Europe, better known as "Jim Europe," after an altercation with a member of this famous band, ends a career that was one of the sensations of the music world.

Jim Europe was born in Mobile, Ala., in 1881, but by reason of his long metropolitan career he is properly considered a New Yorker. After picking up musical education wherever he could, he became not only a conductor of individuality, but a composer of no mean skill, an accomplished pianist and a musician who could play any instrument in the band.

Before the war he was the most popular leader of New York's dance hall orchestras, and the one man who made jazz music the favorite music of the day. When the war started Europe enlisted, and soon became the leader of the most famous band of the American forces. He led his "Hell Fighters" (369th United States Infantry) band overseas and made American jazz the favorite music of France. This famous fighting band cheered the boys "over the top" and was a very determined factor in helping win the war. Europe's band played for Generals Pershing and Gouraud, and at their direction went through France, playing at the various rest camps and hospitals and in Paris.

Since his return from the battlefields of France, Europe's jazz band has made a sensational tour in this country, playing to packed houses in every city. Everyone that has heard this remarkable music has gone wild about it.

Although Europe has died, his wonderful music will fortunately live forever. This famous leader and his "Hell Fighters' Band" have made records for Pathé of all of the favorite selections. These Pathé records give Europe's music at its best. By means of these records the jazz music, inaugurated and perfected by this wonderful leader, will stand as a lasting memorial to the skill of Lieutenant Europe and enable American dance lovers to always hear this splendid dance music.

LATEST CHARMAPHONE LITERATURE

The Charmaphone Co., manufacturer of the Charmaphone phonograph, has just issued an attractive folder featuring its complete list of instruments. This company has opened executive and sales offices at 39 West Thirty-second street, and during the past few weeks has established important agencies with dealers in different parts of the country.

The Charmaphone phonograph is manufactured in its entirety at the company's plant in Pulaski, N. Y., and this factory is splendidly equipped to give the dealers efficient and satisfactory service. One of the most popular models in the Charmaphone line is the model No. 80, which embodies all the desirable features to be found in a successful talking machine. All models of the Charmaphone are equipped to play all makes of records without the use of an attachment.

PERFECTS NEW TYPE OF MACHINE

F. D'A. Goold Applies the Principle of the Violin Sound Chamber to the Reproduction of Talking Machine Records—Also Invents a New Universal Reproducer

F. D'A. Goold, who some two years ago produced a new type of talking machine without metal reproducer, diaphragm or tone arm, which at the time was described in The Talking Machine World, has in the interim worked to perfect this instrument, and has just completed a new model much smaller in size than the original, and in fact corresponding in size to various machines now on the market.

In the new machine music is reproduced through the medium of a wooden sound chamber similar in size to the body of a violin but of square shape. The needle arm is attached to one corner of the box, the other corner being attached to the side of the cabinet, so that the reproducer can move freely. Through clever arrangement hill and dale records can also be played on the new model. The reproduction is pleasing, particularly in the playing of instrumental numbers, although it also brings out the qualities of the voice very acceptably. It is probable that arrangements will be made to market the machine in some form or other in the near future. Mr. Goold has also perfected a new universal reproducer which he expects to offer to the trade shortly.

Mr. Goold is a veteran talking machine man and for many years was connected with laboratories of prominent concerns both in Europe and this country. This experience is enabling him to evolve an entirely new principle in reproduction that is distinctly interesting, regardless of its value as a commercial proposition.

The Standard Accessory Corp. has been incorporated in Milwaukee to manufacture record flashers, equipment and accessories for talking machines. The capital is $50,000.

E. P. HAMILTON RESIGNS FROM LOESER & CO.

After Exceptional Success as Manager He Gives Up Post to Engage in a Broader Trade Project—His Interesting Career in the Trade

Just as The World goes to press the very interesting announcement is made that E. Paul Hamilton has resigned as manager of the piano, Victrola and music departments of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, in order to engage in a broader project, details regarding which are not available for publication.

The announcement comes as a surprise, inasmuch as Mr. Hamilton is probably one of the best known retail music men in the country to-day, and one of the most active in trade development work. He started as manager of the Loeser department in 1909, with a staff of eight, and through his energy, resourcefulness and managerial ability the business of the department developed steadily until to-day the Loeser department is credited with selling more musical instruments than any store in the Brooklyn district, and over 100 people are employed in the music department.

Mr. Hamilton has taken an active part in the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, and is at the present time vice-president of the National Association of Piano Merchants. Inasmuch as Loeser & Co. are Victor wholesalers, he has been in close touch with that phase of the business, as well as with the retailing of machines and records and the problems involved therein. For a number of years he handled the advertising department personally, until a special advertising staff was organized.

Mr. Hamilton's special forte appears to be bringing about co-operation between his co-workers. Although by right insisting upon his prerogatives as manager he has always realized that the success of his department depended upon the co-operation of every employe therein, and has emphasized that idea in a tangible manner, and to the financial advantage of the ambitious employes. The extent to which Mr. Hamilton has developed the business of the talking machine department is indicated by the fact that during the month of December for several years past the sales in that department have exceeded by a wide margin the sales for the entire year at the time Mr. Hamilton took charge.

Mr. Hamilton's contract with Loeser & Co. does not run out until January 1, 1920, but it is believed that arrangements will be made whereby he may leave to engage in other work considerably before that time.

APPROVE PREFERRED STOCK ISSUE

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Columbia Graphophone Co. held at Bridgeport last Friday it was voted to amend the certificate of incorporation so as to facilitate the issue and sale of 72,000 shares of preferred stock now held in the company's treasury. The proceeds will be used in part to retire bonds and notes of the American Graphophone Co., the business of which was acquired by the Columbia Co.

WYOMING MUSIC STORE EXPANDS

The Decker-Cummings Music Co. Opens New Store in Sheridan—Formal Opening Held on May 6—Victor and Columbia Dealers

The Decker-Cummings Music Co., Sheridan, Wyo., has opened a new store in the Keenam Building, 105 South Main street. A formal opening was held on May 6, when a cordial reception was held to the general public. An attractive musical program was a feature of the opening at which a five-piece orchestra rendered a pleasing concert. The new store has large demonstration rooms for the display of Victor and Columbia machines and records as well as all kinds of musical goods. The Decker-Cummings Music Co. is one of the largest music stores in Wyoming, and now has twice the floor space it formerly had, the increase being brought about in response to the rapidly-growing business.

PLEASED WITH WESTERN OUTLOOK

Otto Heineman and John Cromelin Delighted With Trade Conditions

Otto Heineman, president, and John Cromelin, general sales manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., returned Monday from a visit to Chicago. While in that city they made their headquarters at the offices of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. of Illinois, which was recently formed to take care of the tremendous Heineman business in the Middle West.

In a chat with The World Mr. Heineman stated that business in the West is phenomenal, and that the talking machine industry is enjoying unprecedented prosperity. All of the company's products are sharing in this activity, and there is every reason to believe that 1919 will be the greatest year in the history of the talking machine industry. This is indicated in many ways that are impressive.

Orders have been received from the American Red Cross Society for several million Brilliantone needles for use in entertaining the returning soldiers.

EMERSON FORCES ENTERTAIN

A ten-act entertainment was given for the Rainbow Division at Camp Merritt on May 6 under the auspices of the Emerson Phonograph Co. This was the fifth entertainment given for the United States Army boys by this company, under the direction of Louis D. Rosenfield.

The May 6 entertainment was a signal success, and among the artists who appeared were: Mme. Maria Grever, Spanish prima donna; Paul Colitte, Italian singer; Miss Delphine Marsh, well-known contralto, and the Novelty Orchestra, composed of mandolin, violin, guitar and piano, conceived and arranged by Paolo Bolognese, Italian composer. Ragtime and jazz were taken care of by Julius Harris, and Martin Duff, popular juvenile contralto, also contributed.

As on former occasions, the Emerson Phonograph Co. treated the boys to a royal entertainment, and at the close of the concert "smokes" were distributed gratis.

NEW VAN VEEN PRODUCTS

Introduce Sectional Record Racks and Record Sales Counters for Installation in Stores

Arthur L. Van Veen & Co., New York, manufacturer of Van Veen "Bed-set" booths, has recently placed on the market a new product which is meeting with considerable favor among dealers. This product, which consists of the Van Veen sectional record racks and record sales counter, has already been installed in the establishments of dealers in different parts of the country.

The racks are attractively finished to match the designs of the booths where they are placed. They occupy only three feet in width by thirteen inches in depth and are arranged to accommodate both ten and twelve-inch records. The racks are "foolproof" in that no complicated mechanism is used. The backs are dust-proof, and the racks are artistic in appearance.

The new record sales counter perfected by Mr. Van Veen embodies all the desirable features that the dealers require in such a counter. Its design and the general arrangement make for utmost simplicity, as every drawer in the counter serves a definite purpose; there being no unnecessary drawers to fill up with "junk." One of the features of this counter is a detachable rack that is placed along the front edge for the display of catalogs, supplements, etc. The use of this rack keeps the record literature clean and does away with unnecessary furniture.

Before placing these racks and counter on the market Mr. Van Veen conferred with a well-known talking machine manufacturer, who from his long experience in the retail field was well equipped to give Mr. Van Veen valuable suggestions as to the dealers' requirements which are embodied in these products. They aim to enhance the efficiency of the sales people and provide for maximum convenience in filling and handling customers' orders.

In a chat with The World Mr. Van Veen stated that during the past few weeks his company had received several orders from well-known dealers in the East who are installing "Bed-Set" booths. Mr. Van Veen is making a feature of offering the dealers personal service, and he has several special representatives who visit the talking machine dealers with the idea of ascertaining local conditions and installing an equipment that will meet this condition. This personal service has proven an important asset in developing the demand for Van Veen products.

New York Talking Machine Co. Introduces a Decided Novelty in the Form of a Weighing Scale—How New Service Item Operates

The New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, has just issued a new service item for the use of its dealers which is meeting with popular favor and success in the metropolitan territory. This company is always on the lookout for new ideas that will add to the business and profits of the Victor dealer, and many of these service items have won the enthusiastic commendation of the Victor merchants.

This latest service item consists of a weighing scale that has been put into actual service by a Victor dealer in New York, and which seems to be a magnet for business. The scale is generally placed either in the doorway or in front of the store, and in addition to attracting a crowd it sells records.

In the center of the face of the scale is a brass-rimmed glass case with a hinge and lock device which makes it possible for the dealer to make a daily change of his records. Underneath the record is printed the words, "To-day's record suggestion," with the dealer's imprint conspicuously displayed. There is also a pocket on the lower part for holding literature.

This Toledo scale, which has been used with remarkable success by the Toledo Co.'s New York office, at Chambers street, is one of the best weighing scales on the market, and is constructed strongly throughout. The accompanying photograph will give some idea of the interest aroused by this scale that is in use by the Victor dealer in this city.

Enlightenment on Question of Exportation of Merchandise to Great Britain—Increasing Manufacture of Motors—Trade Interested in Merchandise Marks Act—Progress of Gramophone Industry Victory Fund—Leading Talking Machine Companies Report Prosperity—Trade Wants Tonnage Rations Increased, Particularly in the Matter of Supplies of All Kinds for Talking Machines—News of Month

LONDON, E. C., May 1.—So much controversy and doubt seems to exist abroad in regard to the exportation of merchandise to this country that my opening remarks this month may well be confined to an enlightenment of the situation. It is, in the first place, very evident that the Government are averse to committing themselves at the present stage to a decision anent the permanent fiscal policy of the country. We are still in a state of transition regarding the great "change-over" and the position of labor, and this may be an operative period, at least until the Peace Treaty is signed, sealed and ratified. That period is provisionally estimated to expire on September 1, when such restrictions on trade as are still in force will be officially reviewed. Meanwhile, many important restrictions have been removed, and a commission of business men, at the instance of the Government, are charged with the responsibility of a careful and far-reaching investigation of the effects of restrictions on all industries. It is part of their duty to receive representatives from all interested (and who is not?) and make recommendations to the official department concerned in the form of a report. This report is awaited anxiously by the whole business community, and reasonable anticipations are that recommendations of the commission will favor the early removal of several restrictions which are particularly detrimental to the resuscitation of British export and import trade.

Independent of the Commission, the Board of Trade has already announced the issue of a general license permitting the free entry of all goods from any port of the British Empire. That does not mean that American-made goods, for instance, can be rushed across the Canadian border and from thence exported to England free of license or duty. The removal of the embargo applies only to such goods as are exported from and are the produce or manufacture of any part of the Empire.

Allies, neutrals and any foreign country other than enemy countries may, however, export raw materials freely to Great Britain. A general license has been issued which exempts all raw materials from the operations of the prohibitions of import. The Department of Import Restrictions, 22 Carlisle Place, London, S. W. I., will answer any inquiry arising out of a doubt whether an article is to be regarded as a raw material or a semi-manufactured article. This bureau of information may fully justify its existence if it can draw a clear line between raw materials, semi-manufactured articles and manufactured articles. In practice the distinction has always been more or less in dispute.

It should here be observed that freedom of import is also accorded so-called semi-manufactured goods when they are required for the purpose of British manufacture, except so far as they are produced here by industries which it is essential to foster or shield. There is not much elasticity about this. What little element of foreign thought or partiality remains in our industries is swamped by British determination to "feed its own horse," so to speak, and except in a few isolated cases free imports of semi-manufactured goods are ruled out.

Tonnage Rations Increased

Relying upon the maintenance of the 33-1-3 per cent. tariff duty as sufficient protection of British interests, the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers, etc., has passed a resolution urging the Government to grant a general license for the importation of motors, musical instrument parts and accessories. This the Board of Trade has refused, but agrees to increase the allowed monthly tonnage ration to 100 tons. The Department of Import Restrictions extends its authorization to the granting of licenses for the importation of violins, band instruments, accordions, mandolins and mouth organs for specific quantities. These licenses will be available when the goods arrive in this country. Applicants should furnish particulars of all orders placed abroad with the British Music Trade Industry Committee.

Efforts are being made, I understand, to secure from this committee licenses to import gramophone needles from Holland and piano actions from America. In all probability permission will be refused.

The whole trading community is favorable to the removal of Government control, the system of licensing and permits, which puts a heavy premium on business development. Their retention to-day can only be justified on the ground of lack of sufficient shipping, and for no other reason except it be to create monopoly.

are among them, and generally the new supplement abounds with titles of the quick-selling class. There is, for instance, a series of records by the renowned Murray Silver and his jazz band; two popular items by Billy Merson (exclusive to Winner's), whose name in connection with "Hullo, America," is so much to the fore, and the Royal Court Orchestra contribute to the dancing craze with "Maxina" and "The Missouri" waltzes. These are but a few of the many attractive numbers with which the list abounds.

The history of the Edison-Bell Winner record concern, the wonderful part it played in the great war, was recently the subject of an interesting double-column article in London's leading newspaper, the Daily Mail. Most of the important events mentioned, the useful war work undertaken throughout the years of strife, has already been told to our readers. It is another splendid Winner record, of which the whole trade is justly proud.

Special Issues of "Buzz-Buzz" and "Oh, Joy"

Quick to appreciate the sales potentiality of any Revue success, the Gramophone Co. has delighted its retail agents with the complete issue of some delightful records of the latest Revues, "Buzz-Buzz" and "Oh, Joy." Prominence is given to the popular items, and some fine examples of jazzing are given by the Mayfair Dance Orchestra. Every number in the list is a real recording success. Whether or not the reader likes this new jazz craze music doesn't matter. What does matter is that the records are selling big. As for "Oh, Joy," it does not belie its name, as far as the music is concerned, and the His Master's Voice Co.'s records carry the best impressions of it throughout.

News in Brief Paragraphs

Some time during this month Mr. Thomson, the well-known Scottish musical instrument dealer, will make a business trip to American and Canadian musical centers, taking in the city of Vancouver, where he maintains an up-to-date establishment. Mr. Thomson is a live wire up North. His retail salons at Glasgow, Motherwell and Clydebank are centers of interest for all the best and latest in connection with musical endeavor.

Easter music via "His Master's Voice" records is available in plenty. A very special program itemizes some choice music from the works of great composers, like Gounod, Mendelssohn and Elgar. Most acceptable!

Forty-five City Road, a building saturated with historical memories of successful and unsuccessful gramophone trade endeavor, is once again to have its windows cleaned and to put on a new coat of paint preparatory to housing Messrs. William Cooper Bros., Ltd., the popular gramophone accessory firm, and of "Coliseum" records. These premises will be additional to 63 City Road, 17 Clerkenwell Road and the firm's various provincial branches.

In a provincial town recently one of "His Master's Voice" 14 guinea instruments was sold second-hand for 21 guineas. More valuable with advancing years!

After the destruction of their fine premises at the corner of Clerkenwell and Farringdon Roads by a German bomb or bombs, the Murdoch Trading Co. restarted at 59 Clerkenwell Road, pending reconstruction. Owing to the very inflated costs of rebuilding, they have decided to reorganize at No. 59, where, as soon as the necessary alterations are completed, their trade service will make a big expansion.

The Zonophone Publicity Policy

Reiteration, we are told, is the soul of publicity. It well may be. But the kernel of success in advertising depends on other aspects equally, if not more, important than constant reiteration. One might accept the Zonophone publicity methods as a striking example. Zono records are boomed by large advertisements in the magazines and the newspapers throughout the country, in addition to which a mass of literature for trade and public distribution is issued. That may be taken as typifying "reiteration," if anything does. But quantity without quality enjoys only a short life in relation to successful advertising. Anyone can buy space, but it's useless in the long run unless occupied by forceful and attractive "copy" supported with goods of merit. That brings us to an appreciation of the Zonophone methods. I recently spent an interesting half hour in the advertising den of H. Frederick Keen, who is responsible for the whole of this company's publicity. Though not without some knowledge of the valuable sales propaganda emanating from Hayes, I must admit to a feeling of surprise at the multifarious aspects and quantity of the Zonophone advertisement campaigns. The department is a veritable advertisement manufactory. Here passed under my notice examples of the publicity methods in operation during the season which may now be regarded as nearing its close. The whole scheme presented the best possible illustration of what one may regard as the foundation of advertising success—quality records, sales-winning copy and care in its placement. Here, then, were the attributes of the success of the Zono Winter publicity campaign, conducted on national lines. The advertisements throughout are a study in the art of advertising—convincing, well written and attractive. They are usually illustrated to depict the class of record advertised. Mr. Keen is an enthusiastic exponent of all phases of publicity as essential to the building up or maintenance of trade, and reports that dealers are becoming alive to this fact in that an increasing number have contracted with their local press to carry a small announcement underneath the large Zonophone advertisement. In the composition of "copy" or the use of electros for this or any other publicity purpose, dealers can rely upon the assistance of the Zonophone service free of charge. All enterprising dealers will take advantage of this offer, we hope, and connect up their record service upon the lines indicated.

The All-in-One-Account Quick Service Firm

To those acquainted with the service offered by the British Polyphon Co., of Newman street, London, the above caption is good enough. It stands for the supply of Columbia, Regal, Zonophone and Winner records; also machines, parts and accessories—all in one account, meaning that traders can centralize their orders instead of having to go here, there and everywhere. This service will therefore be appreciated by overseas buyers whose suffrage the British Polyphon Co. seeks for the first time through the columns of The Talking Machine World, an enterprising and reliable firm with which to deal.

The Gramophone Industry Victory Fund

A well-written pamphlet distributed broadcast to the trade brings closely home to all of us a sense of personal responsibility in making adequate provision for those who have borne so nobly the brunt and hardships of service—of those especially who have suffered the cruelest of losses, that of eyesight. Surely it is a precious privilege to look after our blinded heroes, not in any sense of charity, but to provide the facility for them to earn their own livelihood! There can be no question about it, yet apart from the committee's subscriptions of over £4,000, little has been received from the great army of dealers whose businesses, wives and families have been protected from the horrors of Hunnish invasion by those very men for whom this appeal is made. No matter how small the amount, every dealer ought to make a contribution as a matter of duty.

The fund is to be applied in the following manner:

(1) One-half for the purpose of organizing and establishing a special section at Sir Arthur Pearson's wonderful institution for blinded soldiers, St. Dunstan's Home. The section would bear a name identifying it with the gramophone industry.

(2) One-half for the establishment of a gramophone industry benevolent fund—a fund which the industry owes to itself. The purpose of this fund would be for the relief and assistance of cases of distress among bona fide members of the gramophone industry in all its branches.

All subscriptions should be sent to the honorable treasurer, Sir George Craydon Marks, C. B. E., M. P., 57 Lincoln Inn Fields, London, W. C. 2.

exchanges by encouraging the early resuscitation of our export trade. It is a welcome sign which may expand to the benefit of our manufacturers still more within the near future. The Sound Recording Corp., of "Popular" record fame, advise me that "freight charges now ruling for oversea shipments, and the great reduction in insurances, have already resulted in a lively revival of business with our oversea friends." For which also an additional reason might be mentioned, i. e., the company's judicious provision of the right class of records. The selling value of even the best quality records is to a great extent determined by their "impressments." The Popular record directorate seem to make a special study of that aspect since their 1919 Budget typifies a general registration of good selling titles. Those records most in demand at the moment are a series of Victory marches embodying popular airs played by the Guards Silver Band.

The Difference!

Turning over some old papers the other day, we alighted upon a 1914 Daily Mail full-page "Decca" advertisement. The price of the instrument was advertised at two guineas. To-day it is somewhere about seven guineas.

British Gramophone Motor Manufacture

We are really on the road to success at last. Several serious efforts to manufacture gramophone mechanism are now under way. Since my last report, in which was published information concerning the plans and policy of two endeavors, news is to hand of a further two firms proposing to manufacture motors. At the moment I am not at liberty to descant upon these plans of the latter pending the actual production of the goods. As a matter of fact, there has been over-much talking which contrasts unfavorably with actual deeds. Publicity without the goods is liable to, and does in fact, cause considerable disappointment to the trade, members of which are still awaiting supplies of British motors, except in one case.

So far we have in prospect the manufacture of motors by the Gramophone Co., Ltd., whose arrangements are practically complete; the Columbia Graphophone Co., Ltd., a matter possibly of some few months yet; British Gramophone Motors, Ltd., from whom deliveries, I hope, may soon be expected; Gramophone Components, Ltd., plans under development, output expected in the course of a few months; Messrs. Hays, Hunter & Standen, Ltd., arrangements well advanced for early deliveries; and there are two or three other firms now seriously considering the question of manufacture apart from a midland firm whose output is on the market.

Altogether, we may at least hope for great things in time for next season's trade.

HEINEMAN LINE IN ENGLAND

A. J. Balcombe, of London, Now Representative for Heineman-Meisselbach and Dean Products in Great Britain and Ireland

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., of New York, has put into execution plans which they had drawn up quite some time ago. A. J. Balcombe, of 61 City Road, London, E. G. I., England, has been appointed the sole representative for all the Heineman-Meisselbach and Dean products for Great Britain and Ireland.

The Heineman Company's large London offices will not only carry a complete sample line of Heineman phonograph supplies, such as tone arms, sound boxes, Heineman-Meisselbach motors, Dean needles, the popular OkeH Records, etc., but will also be well stocked with all these products so that the extensive English trade which has been built up in the United Kingdom can be supplied from the London warehouse. This will assure prompter service and a greater co-operation for good.

A. J. Balcombe is well known in the phonograph trade, not only in England, but wherever the "Union Jack" flies. He has spent the best part of his life, well nigh 30 years, in selling phonographs and records and is considered by the trade as an expert in the fullest sense of the word. Mr. Balcombe is expected at the Heineman offices during the early part of June when he will make a thorough study of all the Heineman-Meisselbach and Dean plants, so as to gain first-hand knowledge about the manufacture of all products which he is selling in his vast territory.

As Mr. Balcombe puts it in his last letter: "The success of the Heineman products hardly needs my endorsement anywhere, for the 'Record of Quality,' the 'Motor of Quality' and the 'Needles of Quality' are trademarks which are well known in almost every part of the world, but I do want to become personally acquainted with your manufacturing processes so that I may add to the 'quality' message of your products, my enthusiastic boost."

ARTO RECORDS READY SOON

G. Howlett Davis, president of the Standard Music Roll Co., Orange, N. J., and several allied companies, who recently formed the Arto Co. for the purpose of manufacturing talking machine records which can be played on either vertical or lateral cut type machines, is making progress in the erection of the plant which will house the new concern.

The Arto records will be manufactured under a special patent and will be known as universal disc records.

TO MAKE ACCESSORY LINE

The Stencil Phonograph Mfg. Co. has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, with a capital of $25,000, the incorporators being W. E. Hotchkiss, M. Neckritz and M. H. Reckell. This company has been formed to take over the phonograph accessory department of the Crescent Talking Machine Co. It will be conducted as an entirely separate organization, and R. E. Faldl, formerly general sales manager of the Crescent Talking Machine Co., is general manager for the Stencil Phonograph Mfg. Co. The Playsall attachment and the other accessories formerly manufactured by the Crescent organization will be turned out by the new company, which has a factory in Brooklyn, N. Y.

DRUG CO. TO OPEN MUSIC STORE

In response to the growing demand for the Columbia machine in Butte, Mont., the Newbro Drug Co. has begun work on a new music store at 77 West Park street, and it is expected that the building will be ready in about six weeks. Louis Dreibelis, president of the Newbro Drug Co., recognized the need for a regular music store, for the business done by the talking machine department established as a part of the drug store was so large that new quarters were needed. New demonstration booths will be included in the equipment of the Park street store.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—SOUND CONTROL MECHANISM FOR TALKING MACHINES.—Charles J. Boushfield, Bay City, Mich., assignor to the Delphion Co., same place. Patent No. 1,295,083.

This invention relates to sound control mechanisms for talking machines. One object is to produce a simple and economical device for regulating and controlling the volume of sound emitted from the tone horn of a talking machine. Another object is to provide a device of this character that can be controlled during playing by the operator at any distance from the machine. A further object resides in the provision of a tone horn of a talking machine with a valve or muffler for controlling the volume of sound emitted therefrom and provided with means for operating the same.

In the drawings: Figure 1 is a sectional view of a cabinet talking machine with the device positioned therein; Fig. 2 is an enlarged plan view of the device; Fig. 3 is an enlarged side elevation of the device.

REPEATER FOR PHONOGRAPHS.—Frederick G. Pfrommer, Yonkers, N. Y. Patent No. 1,293,537.

This invention relates to a repeating mechanism for phonographs. One of the objects of the invention is the provision of an efficient construction whereby easy and smooth engagement and disengagement of the playing needle with the record is accomplished without marring either the record or the needle.

Another object is the provision of a practical construction of repeating mechanism which may be readily applied to standard forms of phonographs.

Another object is the provision of a repeating device which may be readily adjusted so as to operate in connection with different sized records.

tion, as Fig. 3; Fig. 6 is a section taken on the lines c—c of Fig. 2; Fig. 7 is a side view of the tone arm and needle lifting lever; and Figs. 8, 9 and 10 are diagrammatic sections showing detail relationships of several parts.

PHONOGRAPH.—Frederic A. DeLay, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,293,363.

This invention relates to improvements in talking machines and has for its object the provision of improved mechanism for automatically repeating the reproduction of a record and for automatically stopping the machine after the reproduction has been repeated a predetermined number of times.

a record has been repeated a certain predetermined number of times; Fig. 7 is a horizontal cross sectional view taken along the line 7—7 of Fig. 5 looking in the direction indicated by the arrows; and Fig. 8 is a fragmentary perspective view of a modified form of switching mechanism which may be employed for controlling the operation of the repeating electro-magnet.

This invention relates to phonographs and more particularly to means for modifying the tone which is transmitted from the sound box. It is the object of the invention to provide a device which may be readily applied to the standard types of phonographs and which when so applied will improve the quality of the reproduction by reducing or eliminating the metallic and mechanical sounds.

The present invention relates to an improved tone arm for phonographs, talking machines, and the like, the structural and operative advantages of which will be readily apparent to those skilled in the art from an understanding of the following description in connection with the drawings.

In the drawings, Figure 1 is a fragmentary vertical section of a talking machine showing the tone arm in side elevation; Fig. 2 is an enlarged vertical section of the tone arm shown by itself; Fig. 3 is an enlarged end view looking at the sound box and tone arm in Fig. 1 from the left side of said figure, the dotted lines showing the sound box and the end tone arm section swiveled into out-of-playing position; Fig.

PHONOGRAPH.—Magnus W. Turnquist, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,294,850.

This invention is in the nature of an improvement upon the repeat mechanism (with certain novel features added thereto) shown and described in Patent No. 1,249,251, issued December 4, 1917, for improvement in phonographs.

One of the objects of the present invention is to simplify and otherwise improve upon the repeat mechanism shown in the patentee's prior patent. Another object is to provide simple and efficient means for controlling the number of times that the musical selection is repeated, and for automatically stopping the mechanism when the piece has been played through the predetermined number of times. Another object is to provide a phonograph with controlled repeating mechanism actuated by the turntable drive shaft of the phonograph. Another object is to provide improved means in a repeat mechanism whereby record disc turntable or record of large or small diameter may be used.

This invention relates to sound recording and reproducing machines, and particularly feed mechanism for sound boxes of such machines adjustable to automatically repeat their co-operation with a given sound record at the will of the operator.

This invention is specifically adapted for such machines arranged to co-operate with flat disc records, and having sound conducting tubular arms or horns which move with the sound boxes, and are so constructed and arranged that repetition of the co-operation of the sound box with any given record is consequent upon such movement to an adjustably predetermined extent.

This invention is illustrated in connection with "The New Edison Diamond Amberola," having positive feeding means to sift the tone arm across the record, and also in connection with a "Victor talking machine," wherein the stylus shifts the tone arm across the record by coaction with the record groove.

It may be observed that although the two embodiments of the invention chosen for illustration herein are specifically different in their details of construction; they each include means to variably predetermine the initial and terminal positions of the respective sound boxes with reference to given sound records in combination with a single rotary cam constructed and arranged to automatically lift the sound box from co-operative relation with the record when it reaches a variably predetermined terminal position and to then return the sound box to its initial position and again lower it into co-operative relation with the record; said cam having the capacity to shift said sound box, throughout the maximum range of its movement, by frictional engagement with a cam plate carried with the sound box, but its effective capacity is adjustably variable in accordance with variations in the extent of different sound records.

This invention relates more particularly to a support for the cover of a phonograph cabinet, having for its object the provision of a construction which will automatically assume a supporting position when the cover or lid has been raised or tilted, the construction at the same time being such that a predetermined degree of pressure on the cover or lid, when it is desired to lower or return same to closed position, will move the support out of supporting position.

The invention may have expression in different mechanical forms without, however, departing from the spirit of the invention, the drawing, however, illustrating what is believed to be the best forms of the invention.

Figure 1 is a cross-sectional view of the upper part and lid or cover of a phonograph cabinet illustrating the invention in elevation, with the cover in closed position; Fig. 2 is a similar sectional view illustrating the position of the support when the cover is raised or tilted; Fig. 3 is a cross-sectional view taken on the line 3-3 of Fig. 1, looking downwardly; Fig. 4 illustrates a modified form of the invention, the upper part of the phonograph cabinet and portion of the cover being shown in cross section, with the improved cover support in side elevation, the supporting position of the device being illustrated in dotted lines.

PHONOGRAPH SOUND CHAMBER OR HORN.—Fred C. Lyon, Fayette, Ohio. Patent No. 1,295,911.

This invention relates particularly to sounding boxes or horns for phonographs, and has for its object the provision of certain improvements on features of the device, described and claimed in co-pending application Serial Number 220,747, filed March 6, 1918, whereby to enhance the tone producing qualities thereof.

This invention relates to sounding boxes or horns for phonographs and similar inventions, and has for its object the provision of an improved device of this character which will produce amplified, solid and distinct tones of full volume, give character and expression thereto, and at the same time prevent or reduce to a minimum the vibration and consequent singing or rattling of different adjacent articles when notes in tune with the articles are sounded.

The present invention relates to record cleaners for talking machines and more particularly to the type which operates in advance of the stylus or needle, for the purpose of cleaning the surface of the record during the rotation of the latter, an object of this invention being to provide a construction which is simple in form and inexpensive to manufacture, and does not require any special devices for mounting it in place. A still further object of the invention is to provide a cleaner which will utilize the centering pin of the record as an anchor by which the cleaner will be held to clear the face of the record under the influence of the reproducer as the table and the record turn.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a plan view of portions of a talking machine equipped with the present invention; Fig. 2 is a perspective view of the under side of the cleaner; Fig. 3 is an edge view; and Fig. 4 is a plan view of a modification.

Other patents recently issued but not described or illustrated are the following: Phonographic Dictating Machine, Evan Barnet Basch, Savannah, Ga.; Patent No. 1,278,565. Sound Box, Robert Head, New York, assignor to the Aeolian Co.; Patent No. 1,278,341. Remote Control for Phonographs and the Like, James Wares Bryce, Bloomfield, N. J.; Patent No. 1,279,245. AIDS IN SOUND TRANSMISSION

A. M. Nicholson in an Address Before the New York Electrical Society Tells of the Value of Rochelle Salts as a Sound Transmitter and Gives a Demonstration That Interests Many

A subject of more than usual interest to those in the musical field was discussed by the New York Electrical Society at its meeting one night last week when A. M. Nicholson, of the Western Electric Co., surprised his audience by setting forth the merits of sodium potassium tartrate, better known as Rochelle Salts, as a transmitter of sound. Mr. Nicholson said the salt can be used to energize telephones and demonstrated it by sending the music of a phonograph through 160 receivers scattered about the audience.

A current of sufficient velocity to do this was generated by the agitation of a single ounce crystal of the salt. The discovery was made, Mr. Nicholson said, by experiments shortly after we entered the war. The salt was first used with other chemicals to create electric force and finally experts discovered they could use it alone.

Mr. Nicholson sent an assistant out of the room with one of his Rochelle salt telephones and had him talk and whistle into it behind closed doors. The audience received the sound through a large receiver containing salt crystals which reproduced the tones perfectly and could be heard throughout the hall. The transmitter was then placed on top of a piano in an outer room and the music from the instrument was plainly heard through the big receiver.

"HYPNOTIC RECORD" BRINGS OUT ONE'S LATENT GENIUS!

With Latest Wrinkle in Records Every One Can Attain His Heart's Desire—Inventor Claims Through Hypnotic Suggestion the Golden Age Will Be Reached—How "Talker" Does Its Part

The talking machine these days is being used in so many different fields of human activity and endeavor that it is very hard to be surprised at any new suggestion as to a use no one has ever thought of before. From the brain of Gerald M. P. Fitzgibbon comes the latest wrinkle in talking machine mode called the hypnotic record, designed "to bring out latent genius for artistic or other achievements." The idea is said to have occurred to him when he was one of the A. A. U. champions on the cinder track and used to win many of his races by treating his opponents to the mental suggestion, "you can't win." Later when soothing his tired nerves with music from his talking machine, the germ of the new idea was born, and now he believes he has discovered one of the greatest truths of psycho-mechanics.

Believing in the power of "the hypnotic voice," one day he made a hypnotic record which was just as effective as the spoken word. He brought his subject into the room, turned on the record, and at once the subject was hypnotized. Eureka! And now the waiting world is to hear all about it. That such a disclosure should come at the end of the great war is another of our great tragedies, for had we known about it sooner we would have shipped talking machines and records to the other side instead of shells, and the struggle would have evaporated in a hypnotic trance!

In a few years, when this marvel of psychology has gone throughout the length and breadth of the land, it will have become trite to tell our budding youth that he can become the President of these United States, for by simply turning on the Victrola he can be inoculated with the germ of inspiration, and will become President when his age shall have made him large enough to climb the White House steps with dignity. As confirmation of this we quote the words of the inventor, who says: "The reason why a man with just normal powers can so often achieve

TALKING MACHINE EXPORTS LESSEN

Exports, Including Records, for Nine Months, Ending March 31, 1919, Total $3,164,367

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 15.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of March, 1919 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following figures on talking machines and records are presented:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during March, 1919, amounted in value to $39,842, as compared with $44,841 worth, which were imported during the same month of 1918. The nine months' total ending March, 1919, showed importations valued at $202,726, as compared with $259,685 worth of talking machines and parts imported during the same period of 1918.

Talking machines to the number of 3,544, valued at $139,275, were exported in March, 1919, as compared with 9,194 talking machines, valued at $239,049, sent abroad in the same period of 1918. The nine months' total showed that we exported 37,441 talking machines, valued at $1,103,526, as against 69,735 talking machines, valued $1,914,730, in 1918, and 56,146 talking machines, valued at $1,390,227, in 1917.

The total exports of records and supplies for March, 1919, were valued at $223,088, as compared with $199,903, in March, 1918. For the nine months ending March, 1919, records and accessories were exported, valued at $2,069,841, as compared with $1,475,417, in 1918, and $1,130,095, in 1917.

seemingly super-normal results is mainly because he has an overpowering suggestion. He believes in himself. He believes failure is impossible. In spite of every handicap and every interruption he is enabled to concentrate his whole mind on this achievement. The average person goes about his daily routine with his aspirations aiming everywhere. He wants to do any number of things, and cannot focus his energies on the accomplishment of anyone. Now nothing but suggestion can bring about this concentration, and hypnotic suggestion can be induced by the human voice." And there you are. Simple, isn't it?

So you see, every man can now be his own psychologist, and can do anything he wishes. The elusive Muse has been caught and imprisoned in a rubber disc and can always be had for the asking. Another field for the talking machine has been opened up, a field that would make every human being a buyer. Perhaps it is just as well that at present there is a shortage of machines, for if everyone could have what they wanted the world would be in a pretty state. When the inventor took his plans to one of the great recording companies it is said that the president of that concern literally held up his hands in horror and would have nothing to do with it. Evidently he saw the troubles it might bring out in the future. But the inventor was no whit discouraged, for he doubtless has been inspired by one of his own records and allows no obstacles to stand in his way. He plans to put his idea before the world himself. And there is an amusing side to that. If his theories are correct he cannot fail, for the inspiration received from his pet record will enable him to do all things. If he has set his hypnotic mind upon the accomplishment of his task, then there is no escape for the world. But he must be holding back a little, for we have not noticed it in the five-star finals lately.

RECORDS OF INDIAN-ALASKAN MUSIC

University of Pennsylvania Museum Secures Records of About 100 Indian Chants and Folk Songs Made by Louis Shotridge, Who is Chief of the Chilkat Tribe of Alaskan Indians

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 4.—Some day the University of Pennsylvania Museum hopes to give a special concert of Indian-Alaskan music. The concert will include about 100 Indian chants and folk songs, recorded on a talking machine. The records, which are unique in the history of voice production, have been brought back to the museum by Louis Shotridge, chief of the Chilkat Tribe of Alaskan Indians, who returned recently after four years' explorations among his own people.

Incidentally, Mr. Shotridge brings back with him a bride from his own tribe, a young Indian maiden whose knowledge of civilization up to the recent trip was confined to the "metropolitan" splendor of Sitka, Alaska. She will assist her husband in his coming work.

Mr. Shotridge took along a phonograph to record folk songs, especially the ceremonial chants that accompany every great demonstration of the tribe. Unfortunately, the guttural sounds did not record well, so he was obliged to commit the song to memory. They will be taken down in ordinary musical notation by an expert. There are more than thirty of these ceremonial hymns. In addition, he learned more than 100 folk songs, which will be recorded on the talking machine.

Chief Shotridge has secured hundreds of unique specimens, which will be placed on exhibition at the museum as soon as they can be catalogued. It is believed he is the first trained American anthropologist who has ever conducted explorations among American Indians, using their native tongue.

HIGH PRICES THEN AND NOW

$200 Was Once Considered Extravagant for a Machine—$6,000 Now an Every-Day Affair

When, not more than ten years ago, a $200 talking machine was put on the market, the move was regarded as a rash one. To-day one can pay $6,000 for a machine if so inclined. Machines costing between $1,000 and $2,000 are by no means uncommon, and talking machines costing as much as a baby grand piano are to be found in hundreds of homes in all parts of the country.

The public no longer wants cheap machines, as is shown by reports from dealers everywhere. The cheaper machines are generally passed by for the more expensive ones, for the reason that the average citizen is earning more money than ever before and is indulging his taste for music lavishly. The other day a man went to a certain music store to make his final payment on a high-grade talking machine. He made the payment and before he left the store he had bought a player-piano also. Cases like this are found on every side and make plain the reason for the great boom in the "talker" trade.

TO HANDLE COLUMBIA IN BUTTE

Louis Dreibelis, president of the Newbro Drug Co., Butte, Mont., has completed plans for the establishment of a complete music store in that city, where he will feature the Columbia Grafonola and records.

Among the innovations of the new store will be a department exclusively for children and a wax dance floor, where patrons may trip a light fantastic toe to the music of the special dance records to determine before purchase just how well suited any particular selection is for home dancing.

Why Dealers Should Identify Themselves With Every Effort That Uplifts Music :: By C. B. Shepherd

The movement for a more general appreciation of music and what it means on the part of the public, and particularly the children, is not in any sense new, but there is no gain-saying the fact that the movement has shown particular development along systematic lines during the past few years and especially since the beginning of the war. There has been no secret about this development of more interest in music for everywhere we have seen the organization of community choruses, some taking in certain districts and others embracing the singers of entire cities as large as New York, the introduction of folk singing in the schools, the conducting of official and semi-official lecture series covering the practical value of music in therapeutics and other activities that have reflected the earnestness of those working for the cause.

With all this stir about music, with all this organized effort to put music to the forefront, there arises the question as to just what the average talking machine dealer is doing to take part in that commendable campaign which is now being conducted in his own particular territory, or how he can become actively identified with the movement. Without accurate statistics to prove the fact frankness, following more or less close observation, compels us to express the belief that only a small, a very small proportion of the dealers are really showing a proper appreciation of the movement and what it means to them now and in the future.

Possible critics to the contrary the fact remains that the talking machine, backed by the direct, systematic and liberal efforts of the manufacturers and their representatives in special departments, has been largely, if not chiefly, instrumental in bringing about this new interest in music of the right kind, music that a few years ago was considered only for the classes and not for the masses.

It was the talking machine, in the first place, that brought to an army of people who had neither the means of learning nor the interest in learning otherwise the knowledge of the beauties that lie in music of the better sort, the operas, the symphonies and the other works of the great composers whose very names were hardly known to the majority of our people.

It was the talking machine that brought to the child in the schoolroom music's real message and which, through introducing music as a means of entertainment, pleasant entertainment, in the shape of folk songs and dances, march accompaniments and a help in history and geography, removed all fear in the child mind of the depths of music—made it something to be liked, something to be familiar with and to be appreciated.

All this the talking machine has done, and it has done more. It has turned millions of otherwise disinterested persons into music lovers and has made music, whether it be the heavy classics or the lighter popular airs, a necessity in their lives.

As the representative of the talking machine manufacturers and a distributor of their wares the dealer, whether small or large and wherever located, has played his part in carrying on the great work. He has assisted in the building of the great fabric and if he does not put forth the proper endeavor to realize on that effort then he is not fulfilling his duties as a dealer in a businesslike manner, but is falling down lamentably in his high duty as music's representative—a duty that is fast becoming a civic obligation.

In the first place the dealer should not wait for any local movement for music advancement, sponsored by others, to come to him and take him in its grasp, for he owes it to his business and his industry to search out for himself such movements in the process of developing, or create a movement of his own, if necessary, and then see that he and his establishment are constantly and prominently identified with the project, whether it be for the organization of a community chorus or for the granting of music credits in the schools.

The fact that the particular movement has not for its ultimate object the sale or purchase of talking machines and records should not in any sense deter the dealer from taking an active part, for every new convert to music, every new believer in its importance, has a distinct, though possibly indirect, bearing on the future of the dealer's business. Every such newly created musical enthusiast is the prospective purchaser of a talking machine and records or by carrying the message abroad may influence someone else to buy. Every child who, because of school credits, is caused to take a more direct and active interest in music, every individual who has been induced to take part in a community chorus, becomes a prospect for a sale of a machine and records, a prospect more live than 95 per cent. of those secured through the local blue book or the telephone directory. This statement is based on personal experience.

When prominent orchestras, soloists and musical lecturers visit his city, whether or not they have made talking machine records, let the dealer take care that he becomes identified with the appearance of the organization or artist. If possible, handle all or part of the ticket sale, or secure a place on the welcoming or concert committee. Other plans failing, at least show up prominently at the concert. Be seen, meet and talk with the musical people, get into the light persistently but not offensively, have your advertisement in the program and purchase box seats if the circumstances permit. It can all be charged to advertising and the publicity is getting to people who come close to being 100 per cent. interested in what you have to offer.

The talking machine dealer is, primarily, a music man as well as a business man. Upon his interest in music generally and upon the manner in which he can attract a portion of that interest to himself, his establishment and the talking machine and records he sells depends much of his real success.

There are many dealers who are content to move along the beaten path, to take the business that comes their way and be satisfied. They are simply merchandisers and would handle any other product the same way. The dealer who really hooks up with music is a specialist and a specialist generally has the advantage of his competitor who doesn't specialize.

STARR PHONOGRAPH CROSSES RHINE

Plays "Stars and Stripes" on Top of Famous Ehrenbreitstein Fort—W. H. Caldwell and H. N. Barringer Present at a Notable Event

SHELBYVILLE, KY., June 4.—The W. H. Caldwell Co., of this city, distributors of Starr phonographs and Gennett records, have received a letter from W. H. Caldwell, who has been doing Y. M. C. A. work in France and Germany for the last year, including several pictures taken upon the top of the Ehrenbreitstein Fort, the Gibraltar of the Rhine.

One of the pictures shows a Style ½ Starr phonograph photographed on top of the fort, ville, who before entering the army, was connected with W. H. Caldwell as traveling salesman, but who has recently been with Mr. Caldwell in the entertainment department at Coblenz.

Mr. Caldwell, who is a booking secretary for the Y. M. C. A. in the Third Army of the entertainment department, says that the Ehren-

W. H. Caldwell and the Starr Phonograph on top of the Ehrenbreitstein Fort at Coblenz, Germany. Mr. Caldwell is now doing Y. M. C. A. work in France.

which Mr. Caldwell says is "the first American phonograph owned by the American Expeditionary Forces to cross the Rhine, and the only American phonograph ever on top of the fort."

Mr. Caldwell adds that the picture was taken just after the phonograph had finished playing the "Stars and Stripes" with the American flag flying just above where formerly the German flag waved.

One of the other pictures shows Mr. Caldwell with five of his associates, including Howard N. Barringer, of Shelby-

NEW YORK, JUNE 15, 1919

JUST now with more or less long breathing spells between selling periods—because dealers find it impossible to get sufficient stocks of machines and records to take care of the demand that exists, much less the demand that might be created through energetic effort—there seems to be unbounded opportunities for giving earnest attention to the importance of improving the appearance and efficiency of retail stores in preparation for more strenuous business times to come.

It is true that there are many handsome talking machine establishments—many stores even in the smaller cities where the talking machine department is featured in a big way, and where it receives the proper amount of attention, both in the matter of equipment and operation—but to the man who travels more or less around the country it is quite evident that the talking machine houses which really show a true appreciation of the importance of their line are distinctly in the minority.

There are some small town merchants who have installed liberal and excellent equipment in their talking machine department, and who conduct their business on a metropolitan basis, but these dealers are so rare as to be worthy of special comment when their progressiveness is brought to the attention of the wholesalers and the trade press.

The chief trouble seems to rest with those concerns who devote only a portion of their establishment to talking machines and handle other lines of musical goods and general merchandise in various other departments. Here, in many instances, we find talking machines relegated to the basement, to a corner in the rear of the main store, or in a secluded space in one of the upper floors. There may be in the department only one or two booths for the accommodation of customers, and yet the managers of these stores—some of them at least—complain that the talking machine business is not what it is cracked up to be as a profit-maker.

The talking machine department must occupy a certain amount of space if it is going to be conducted at all, and the retailer who sets aside that space at the front of the store where it is the first department seen by the customer when entering the store is going to find that the percentage of talking machine sales will show a high record in proportion to sales in other departments requiring even a greater investment and more floor space.

The question of record booths alone is an important one, yet it appears to be not fully recognized in some instances. If the talking machine department is worthy of consideration, one or two booths will certainly not suffice, for if proper tactics are used in exploiting the line the ratio of sales will increase almost in direct proportion to the number of booths available for demonstration purposes. One wholesaler was recently informed by a dealer that his record booths showed an annual profit of $1,000 each. A careful investigation among other dealers by that same wholesaler brought to light the fact that $1,000 annual profit for booths was a conservative figure. On this basis two booths would mean only $2,000 profit, but five booths would mean $5,000. A goodly number of booths means that every prospective customer can be taken care of without delay; that there is no waiting; that the customer can be sold while he is in the mood and has little excuse to leave the store without buying. The idea fits well into that of an efficient establishment.

The retailer who hesitates to invest a fair amount of money in the equipment of his store or department has but to remember that the equipment of his establishment, the manner in which it is conducted, has a direct effect upon his business. The well-equipped, attractive department reflects prosperity and also success. It leads the customer to believe that he is doing business with an establishment of standing. It proves a distinct advertisement for the owner of the store, and also provides him with facilities for handling the increased volume of trade that is bound to come his way.

It is human nature to stick with the winner, and when it comes to a choice of doing business either with a well-equipped, attractive store or with a store where no effort is made to improve appearances, or provide an efficient selling system, then the attractive store is going to win out. The unattractive store does business largely through accident. The well-equipped store, however, does business naturally and wins trade by its very attractiveness.

THE tonic effect that advertising has on an advertiser's organization formed the basis of some comment in a recent issue of Printers' Ink that is very timely and of interest to our industry. In speaking of the influence of advertising it was pointed out that publicity braces up the whole force, making everybody from the stock boy to the chairman of the board feel prouder of their organization and inclined to step a little more lively in their work.

The explanation of this is that advertising exposes the situation to public view, and makes clear that any sort of negligence and inefficiency can no longer be hidden. Where advertising is properly sold to the organization it makes those connected with it realize that they are serving the public, and it gives them pride in serving it well.

It is this spirit that makes the real workman proud of his calling and proud of his skill. It is this spirit that makes him see that every detail of a talking machine is absolutely perfect, that nothing leaves the factory that would reflect on the name which appears on the instrument, or on the men who make it.

The more widely recognized the standing of a musical instrument the more every one connected with the institution labors to maintain that prestige. It is a logical—a psychological—development, for every one desires to uphold the dignified position held by a product in public esteem.

The stimulating influence of advertising rarely escapes any part of a business. It establishes an esprit de corps that solidifies the aims and aspirations of all departments of the advertiser's business—it establishes a closer union between the workbench, the wareroom and the public—it creates the desire to live up to the claims made, for advertising is the gonfalon around which every one rallies.

THERE is a great tendency among talking machine dealers in certain sections of the country, and even among dealers of what may be termed machines of standard and well-known makes, to indulge in a cheap form of advertising by the making of sensational price offerings of machines of little or no standing, or by offering long terms on better-known machines. It is, of course, quite evident that the trade, whether organized or disorganized, is in no position to legislate against this type of advertising. In fact, in other lines of trade it has been found impossible to formulate iron-bound resolutions that would have the effect of checking the evils of one sort or another. There is a moral influence that can be brought to bear, however, and now would seem to be the time to exert that influence in an effort to maintain the advertising of the retail trade on a basis comparable with that established in the early days of the industry.

Perhaps there is nothing unethical in advertising low terms or sensational bargains, provided the value is there, but there is no question that under existing conditions the practice represents very poor business sense. There are various State laws and Federal regulations that operate to check advertising that is deliberately misleading or untruthful. The advertising that should be brought to a higher plane, however, is that which, while perhaps truthful in the statements made, nevertheless gives the impression that talking machines and records are drugs on the market, and that retailers are forced to make strong inducements in order to dispose of stocks. Just now it is the sellers' market, in the fullest sense of the word, and the dealer who is conducting a clean business and showing a fair amount of aggressiveness, in the majority of cases, finds his chief trouble to lie in his ability to get sufficient goods to take care of the demand that is his.

The talking machine business has been built up by advertising that has appealed directly to the sense of culture. The arguments that have won success have not been those of price, but rather those setting forth the wonderful musical opportunities offered in the possession of a machine and a library of records. The impression has been created that the talking machine is something eminently desirable, sufficiently so to make it worth while for the prospect to seek out the machine rather than have it sold to him on a commercial price basis. Just so long as the talking machine is kept on a high plane, just so long will it maintain its prestige and continue to be a thoroughly desirable acquisition to the home. If the level of advertising and selling is lowered then the talking machine becomes a merchandising proposition—not something that brings the music of the world into the home, but something that offers entertainment at a low figure when purchased on that basis.

A BIT of good advice to those who are about to embark in the talking machine manufacturing business, or who contemplate expanding in that line, is that when a man comes to them and explains that he is thoroughly familiar with all departments of the manufacture of talking machines, knows all about recording and record-making procedure, and has had experience in all of the big factories of this country and in Europe, to make him prove his statements before investing heavily as a mark of confidence in his ability.

There are a goodly number of so-called talking machine men wandering around the country making startling claims as to their ability who have cost thousands of dollars to trustful manufacturers because the latter, ignorant of the details of the talking machine and record making themselves, sought someone to look after the practical side for them. If a man with money feels that he must embark in a business regarding the practical side of which he knows nothing, let him watch carefully the practical men who come to him full of broad statements as to their own ability. It is better to spend some time and trouble—a few hundred dollars, let us say—in the beginning to find out if a man is really competent than to spend thousands of dollars in useless experiments—useless because the employe ultimately could not produce.

BUSINESS in all branches of the talking machine industry seems to be most active. Manufacturers are putting the greatest possible pressure in their producing departments to meet the demands of distributors and dealers; as a consequence, talking machines and records are reaching the trade with more frequency and in greater volume than for some time past. The situation is far from satisfactory as yet, but it is most gratifying to note that conditions are bettering every day. With the increasing demobilization of the army forces hundreds of thousands of men are reaching our shores after a long sojourn in the fighting and occupation zones, and are rapidly being assimilated into all lines of industrial activity. The splendid campaign carried on by a number of manufacturers to recognize the work of our soldiers by guaranteeing "a job for every service star" has borne fruit, and few soldier boys who desire to work are without occupation—at least in the music industry.

INTO the caldron of suggestions out of which new laws for the period of peace and prosperity will come, the National Association of Manufacturers, at their meeting in New York recently, poured their ideas on the dominant problems of the day. The gathering, which was composed of men of the greatest eminence in the commercial sphere, discussed almost every topic of interest to industry at the three-days' conference, and many constructive addresses of distinct value were made by eminent speakers. At the final session important resolutions were adopted, and among the recommendations were the following, which are of interest to the music trade as well as many other important branches of the industry. They suggested:

"That Congress should review the existing anti-trust law in the light of economic fact, and should judge voluntary restraints of trade not by the fact of their existence but by their injurious or beneficial effect upon the public interest.

"That Congress should pass the bill recommended by the Federal Trade Commission to allow manufacturers of standard articles, identified either by trade mark or trade practice, to fix by contract the price at which the purchaser may resell them.

"That a programme of remedial improvement of the present revenue law be adopted based on the recognition that no system of taxation can be in the public interest that does not undertake to spread the burden of public support in due proportion over all classes of our citizenship, and that to disproportionately burden industrial investment and production is to discourage those factors of national life which by their nature contribute most powerfully to social progress."

Proper Store Equipment a Most Vital Essential to the Dealer's Success :: :: :: By W. B. Parsons

In every line of business it is well to keep in touch with what others are doing. In this way it is possible to get new ideas and to profit by the mistakes others have made. Perfection comes only as the result of experience, and no one should consider himself above taking advice as to how his business should be run. Many small dealers do not take the trouble to keep themselves well informed with their trade in general, thinking that they know all there is to be known about their own little sphere. They fail to read their trade organs, blind to the fact that these organs represent all that is new in the industry. Such dealers will always remain small dealers, for by their self-imposed ignorance they are shutting off all hope of expansion.

The appearance of their stores evidences whether they are progressive or retrogressive. There are some, unfortunately, who make no attempt to make their place of business attractive to the prospect. They think their trade will go around seeking them out. Meanwhile, a store which is clean, well-lighted and evidently well-cared-for is the store which will draw customers who intend to make purchases.

Leading talking machine manufacturers realize that their dealers should do all in their power to make their stores good to look upon, and have furnished specially-designed displays complete as material which would add greatly to any window display. In spite of this there are many dealers who do not even take the trouble to use this display material, or if they do their efforts are confined merely to the windows, and no attention is given to the interior of the store and its proper equipment.

The arrangement of the instruments is another matter which is too often neglected. Just because the store is small is no reason why machines should be herded together so that it is impossible to get a fair idea of any one of them. A talking machine is something which has personality, and will speak for itself if given a chance. The impression the machine makes on the prospect is far greater than any impression the dealer can make by merely talking about it.

Pays to Utilize New Ideas and Profit by the Mistakes Others May Have Made .:

Give the machine a chance and it will do much for you. It would be far better to have only a few machines in the store than to have it so full that it gives the feeling of being in a curiosity shop when one enters.

Then there is the matter of store equipment—a most vital essential to success to-day. The dealer who does not know the value and importance of soundproof booths for the use and convenience of customers in selling talking machines and records is behind the times. They have proven great money and trade-makers, and no matter how small the store, the soundproof room or rooms should be a first consideration. Dealers who have made investments in this line are regretting that they did not install them earlier. They enable the store in the smaller town to be as up-to-date as that of the big city.

So, if you are a dealer in talking machines or music of any kind, remember that two heads are better than one, take advantage of what others have learned, give thought to the appearance of your store, the arrangement of your instruments and up-to-date methods of exploitation. If you do this your business will not stagnate, but will grow into the kind of business you would like to have.

VICTROLA SALONS OPENED

The Steinbach Victrola salons have been opened at Bradley Beach, N. J., and these display rooms are handsomely fitted up for demonstration of Victrolas and records. The booths and other equipment used in construction of the new salons are said to have cost $10,000, but this was justified by the large business done by the talking machine department, which has rapidly increased since its inauguration some time ago.

ANSONIA, CONN., June 3.—J. H. Bartholomew, receiver for the Duo-Tone Co., reports good business. They have caught up with their orders and are now able to make prompt delivery. Their facilities have been increased and the present record of sales is said to compare favorably with the same period of a year ago.

Properly Trained Salesmen the Foundation of the Successful Retail Business :: :: By Willard S. Smith

Training a talking machine salesman is something that is essential to a successful career in that field and yet is too often neglected by employers who fail to see that in training their men they are laying the foundation for better business in the future. Dealers have often been heard to complain that their salesmen are poor or unreliable and do not take interest in their work. Unfortunately this is true in a great many cases, but the fault is not always with the salesmen but can usually be placed at the door of the dealer. If these dealers would stop to consider a moment they might realize that their troubles with their salesmen would not exist if they were willing to assume the responsibility of training and educating their employes in the work they are expected to do. They do not realize that many of these salesmen are just as dissatisfied with their work as the employer is with them.

Poor wages is at the bottom of much of this dissatisfaction, and it is the truth to say that it is extravagance to pay poor wages. An employer who cannot afford to pay good wages for good men really cannot afford to pay any wages at all, for what money he does pay for inefficient men is almost a total loss. No man can do his work, especially if he is beginning, unless he is instructed in the arts of his craft, and it is up to the dealer to take enough interest in his business to see to it that his salesmen are shown all the tricks of their trade.

Training is necessary in all lines of work, and nowhere is it more necessary than in the work of a talking machine salesman. Almost any intelligent man can make a good salesman with the right kind of training and help from his employer. Many of the leading talking machine companies invite inspection of their factories and every prospective salesman should take advantage of his opportunity to become familiar with the product he is selling. In this way he feels a pride in his work, and in the fact he is identified with one of the biggest things in modern business. His interest is stimulated, and he is better equipped to explain the merits of his line. All this makes for better salesmanship and is the result of training.

But the employer's responsibility does not end with sending his salesman to the factory to see how the machine is built. It is in the store that the greatest work can be done. Here the salesman can become thoroughly familiar with every branch of his art provided the employer does his duty. The young man should be provided with every available bit of literature bearing on his work, and the trade journals should always be within his reach. The matter does not end there, however, for he must not be left to his own resources to learn, he must be taught. The employer with his experience back of him can teach his men more in a few moments than they could learn in many weeks if left to themselves. The keynote of a successful organization is interest—interest on the part of every member of the force. It is the duty of the employer to stimulate this interest.

This can be done in several ways, although one of the most attractive ways is to have occasional gatherings such as dinners from time to time, where everyone can get together and exchange ideas with perfect freedom. Everyone should feel at liberty to make any suggestions as to ways in which the business could be improved. House dinners, followed by general discussions, have proved very helpful to many organizations. The dinner puts everyone in a pleasant frame of mind and they are ready to get together and hear the suggestions of their fellow workers. In this way they are induced to think seriously regarding their business and serious thought always has its results. Many a suggestion which has proved invaluable to the employer has come from the errand boy. In the general discussions following these meetings, the members of each department should be encouraged to offer any ideas concerning their work. Then they may have ideas regarding other departments and so on, all working together and taking interest in all parts of the work. It all comes down to the matter of interest and the employer's great task and duty is to stimulate this interest and keep it working for the organization.

If this is done the results will be all that could be desired and the many trivial matters that cause endless annoyance and trouble will be avoided to the benefit of all.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

The Phonograph Plus at the Price Minus

A FULL PAGE advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of June 21st will announce this talking machine to America. On sheer merit alone it has already won its way into homes by thousands and thousands. Now a big campaign of full page national advertising, of which this is only the beginning, will help introduce it into millions of homes.

Men in the trade, shrewd, well posted merchants, will recognize this instrument from the models here shown; our slogan—The Phonograph Plus at the Price Minus—perhaps serves sufficiently to identify it to them. And the mere mention of forthcoming extensive national publicity will be enough to rouse hundreds to action. Low stocks will be replenished, new agencies established; this sensational, fast-selling, big-profit talking machine will become an even swifter seller, and thus a still bigger profit maker.

Get the June 21st Saturday Evening Post. Look for the page like this. Judge for yourself how it will impress the millions of Post readers. Then act—as your business judgment dictates.

Educating the Children to the Entertainment Value of the Talking Machine :: :: By W. B. Stoddard

There are new fields opening for the talking machine every day, and one of the latest is for the amusement of the little ones of the nursery age and just past. All children enjoy music, and there have been many records made that they thoroughly enjoyed, but now they are having their own little nursery songs reproduced, and in a manner that will give many a bedtime entertainment.

Here is the way Hamburger's, Los Angeles, Cal., introduced some of these story records, a publicity campaign, by the way, that could be emulated by any progressive dealer in talking machines and records. This enterprising firm has a story-telling hour every Saturday afternoon, at which time a young woman especially engaged for that purpose gathers around her scores of eager-eyed children and tells them fairy stories, quaint legends and tales of the people of the woodland and forest. Recently the store took a quarter page in the local papers to address themselves directly to their little friends:

LISTEN, CHILDREN

Of course you are all coming to Hamburger's next Saturday afternoon to enjoy the story hour, and learn about Mother Goose's children.

This week we have a surprise in store for you, and on this special occasion we want you to bring your mamma or papa, uncle or auntie, or some grown-up friend to enjoy it with you.

We know you will all be interested. Be sure to come.

Saturday afternoon, three o'clock.
HAMBURGER'S FAIRYLAND

This wording of the invitation for the children to bring their grown-up friend instead of the usual "come and bring the children with you" appealed mightily to the youngsters, and they felt very important as they marched into Fairyland on Saturday afternoon with their parents in tow.

The Story Lady had near her a pile of records and a talking machine. She opened a book and began to read a little story in verse about different characters in Mother Goose, and as each character made its first appearance it sang a little song. Instead of reading this song, however, the Story Lady took up a record, placed it on the instrument, and it was sung in a manner to delight the large audience. At the conclusion of the entertainment there was much interest manifested in the story-talking machine, and the Lady explained that it was a new game gotten out by a well-known publishing house, and showed the books, which were of stout paper, illustrated with a number of colored pictures. Three of the sheets were double, fastened together, and in the pocket thus formed was placed a record containing the song to be sung at the introduction of each character.

Further interest in these "story-talker" records was aroused by a striking pair of windows arranged by the firm to give publicity to these records. The first pictured a well-appointed living or music room. The floor was covered with an Oriental rug, and in the corner was a talking machine. Near it was a tall floor lamp, with shade of rose-hued silk, and in the glow cast by this lamp was a large tapestry-upholstered arm chair, in which sat a mother in navy blue taffeta. Standing behind her in this chair was her small golden-haired daughter, holding a record. The mother was reading one of the Mother Goose stories, and close to the talking machine stood the elder daughter, with a record under her arm, ready to place it upon the instrument at the proper moment. On the floor were several copies of the book and a number of Mother Goose records.

The second window drew shouts of glee from the little people. It was floored with green, and in the corner was a talking machine cabinet. In the center was a papier mache toadstool, three feet high, on top of which was a snail of similar proportions. Around the big toadstools were smaller ones, two feet high, between two of them squatting a green frog two feet long. Beneath the toadstool was a great clump of ferns, and from the fronds there peeped out two gnomes with long white beards, dressed fantastically in the gayest of purples, reds and golds. On the floor were several copies of the books and a number of the records. Fastened to the latter was a card: "Songs by Bo-Peep, Simple Simon, and Old King Cole." Incidentally, there were three records with each book, and four different books with different sets of records in each. Another card suggested: "Imagine the Delight of the Little Ones When the Phonograph Turns Fairy God Mother and Reproduces the Voices of the Story Book People."

This window display could easily be reproduced, as any dry goods establishment would be glad to lend the three figures in order to give additional publicity to the new spring styles. Of course, in such a case there would be a card in the window: "Models through the courtesy of Blank Co." The frogs and toadstools could be procured from a dealer in pottery or cut from cardboard, while the gnomes are only dolls with false beards.

At another time they called the attention of mothers to the fact that America's beautiful national songs, the names of which all children know, are unfamiliar ground after the first two or three lines. Nothing impresses a fact so vividly on the mind as constant repetition, and if a number of the patriotic records are purchased and reproduced daily on the talking machine the grand old songs will soon be as familiar to the youngsters as "Jack and Jill."

Giving the children a personal interest in the talking machine by allowing them to have some records of their very own will not only tend to foster their natural love for music, but give them a pride in keeping the machine in first-class order—since it is partly their property—and these facts should likewise be impressed on the public in entering upon a campaign for "talkers" and records for children.

PROVING THAT OLD MOHAMMED HAD THE RIGHT IDEA

The Story of One Talking Machine Man Who Went to the Customers When He Found They Wouldn't Come to Him—Making Even the Commuter Stop His Rush for the 5:15

When Bill Smith leased the store for his talking machine emporium the suave real estate agent gave him the low-down on the location. He told him that at least 3,000 automobiles and 100,000 pedestrians passed the store every day. Developments proved that the real estate baby was right—more than right. The automobiles and pedestrians did pass the store—that was the trouble—too few of them came in.

Bill was not long in getting wise to the reason for the go-by. He was within three blocks of the railroad terminal most used by suburbanites. In the morning they had to hustle by to punch the time-clock, and at night they had to do the distance in nothing flat to catch the 5.15. Some of the old boys who had got to the point where they could blow in at 10 and out at 4, traveling in their limousines, dropped in once in a while, as did their favorite stenogs, to grab off a few new records, but there wasn't enough of this kind of trade to keep the wolf in the dim distance.

Bill fixed up his windows so that they stuck out like sore thumbs, and made men with their coat-tails sticking out behind them slow down to take a slash. The dames with the war-time skirts were traveling slow enough, anyhow, to glimpse the window while passing it, but they were stepping fast enough to go by. Bill advertised in the trains and in the stations, as well as in the newspapers, but the guy who can draft an ad that will stop a commuter in his rush is a better man than Gunga Din.

Finally, Bill sailed into the station one day to see his would-be customers flitter to and fro, and finally got wise to a booth conducted by a department store, where orders might be left in the morning and the merchandise called for at night. Bill, being a wise baby, fell for the idea right away. He murmured in the ear of the owner of the candy store, and started to work. Soon a sign appeared among the confectionery stating that the new record lists were ready for distribution and were full of musical sweetness. The sign also informed the eager public that record orders could be left with the candy dispenser in the morning and the records secured from him at night. The plan worked out pretty fair.

Then Bill got a better hunch. He took several hundred record lists, got out a nifty little circular and a sassy card, hired a wise kid, stuck a cap bearing his name on the kid's head and sent said youth wandering through the corridors of a dozen or more neighboring office buildings just shooting those circulars, in their envelopes, into the offices. The kid had such a good time he hated to take money for it. The little note with the lists simply said that a telephone call to Bill's store would be attended to right away, and that the records would be delivered to the office, or could be called for at the store or station. A three-way service for the busy guy. The card bore a picture of an overloaded commuter making his train with the line under it, "Don't Forget Your Music." Next came a description of the service Bill had inaugurated.

It was not long before a girl had to give her entire attention to telephone orders, and there wasn't any money lost at this rate, either. The busy man liked the idea, as did the lazy girl. They not only ordered by phone, but when they had an hour to spare dropped in to hear some of the new stuff, and the story of Bill's progressiveness traveled faster than the famous cootie in France. By and by the wives, lady friends and future husbands of the office workers coming to town on a shopping tour instinctively dropped into Bill's store to look over the new records. Now he doesn't care how many people pass the store every day, because he knows most of them are buying stock from him one way or another.

The moral, if there is any, is that while you can't stop greased lightning, if you are a good little electrician you can make it work for you.

BUYS VICTOR AND EDISON AGENCY

Bollong-Fooshee Co., San Bernardino, Cal., Takes Agency for These Two Machines—One of the Largest Deals Made in Many Years

One of the biggest changes in the talking machine trade in San Bernardino, Cal., was brought to light by the announcement that the Bollong-Fooshee Co. has purchased the Victor and Edison agencies from W. A. Manson and will feature these two lines in the future, together with the Brunswick. Arthur C. Lamb, a well-known talking machine expert who has been in charge of the W. A. Manson department for many years, will go to the Bollong-Fooshee store and manage the talking machine department for them. The acquisition of the Victor and Edison lines will necessitate extensive changes in the Bollong-Fooshee store, and six demonstration rooms will be added and the entire first floor remodeled to take care of the increased stock.

Line up!

How well we behave at this command!

Uniform Needles line up perfectly and you get the same playing result always. Line them up and compare them in every way.

Inspect the point and prove to your own satisfaction that the perfectly rounded ball point precisely fits the groove. You will observe the taper is free from grinding marks. The ends are made with a clean cut, you will find each package of Uniform needles contains one hundred perfect points. You know scientific manufacturing alone produces Uniformity.

Write for samples and prices at once. You will find you do not have to pay any more for Torrington Uniform Needles than you do for ordinary needles.

The Jobber said that he likened the talk of some people regarding the quality of their needles to the position of a certain campaign manager on the eve of an important election. His candidate was getting rattled. He was afraid to face the rapid fire questions of his opponent. "Do I dare to claim so much?" he asked his manager. "Claim," snorted the manager, "Claim everything."

The jobber said, charging like "sixty" in the past for immediate deliveries had given place to a chattering of quality, which would seem to be almost reverential in its feeling.

It is one thing to claim and another to make good.

Torrington doesn't claim—Torrington proves.

It is a whole lot easier to sell an article that is always one hundred per cent perfectly uniform, and a whole lot more profitable.

So my friend the jobber is selling Torrington and nothing else. He wants a needle that always gives his customer the same full round tone that only the Torrington ball point gives.

I think you will do as this man has done, for the thought "that anything goes" which apparently must have been the slogan of some manufacturers, has prevailed too long.

Lining up needles will speedily result in the critical dealers falling into line with Torrington Uniform.

It will pay you to promptly investigate our product.

EDISON TONE-TEST PLANS

Verdi E. B. Fuller Outlines Program for Featuring the Edison During Coming Season

In discussing the question of Edison tone-tests and the plans being made for tone-test programs for next season V. E. B. Fuller, general supervisor Thomas A. Edison, Inc., says, in part:

“Several of the publications devoted to the profession of advertising have commented from time to time on our tone-test recitals as unusual and very effective merchandising propaganda. These recitals have provided the keynote for most of our national advertising, and they have also proved individually successful and profitable wherever they have been given.

“The number of recitals booked during the season of 1918-1919 was the largest in our experience. Practically all of the dealers who had previously given tone-tests booked them again and a number of dealers who had not before given them gave their initial recitals.

“The present outlook is that the season opening in the fall of 1919 will be the biggest yet and we are trying to get enough artists to meet the demand. The recitals themselves have made it somewhat difficult, because those artists who have engaged in tone-test work have secured added popularity and have more and more been called into regular concert work. While this is gratifying and beneficial to the Edison business it sometimes causes embarrassment so far as the tone-test work is concerned.

“Among the artists whom we hope to put on tour are: Vernon Dalhart, Miss Amy Ellerman, Glen Ellison, the Fleming Trio and Mme. Mabelle Wagner-Shank, Mme. Florence Ferrell, Miss Ida Gardner, Miss Julia Heinrich, Miss Marie Morrissey, Mrs. Betsy Lane Shepherd, Miss Marie Tiffany and Hardy Williamson.

“Owing to their concert engagements, however, we will not have the unbroken time of all of these artists. Several newcomers also will be with us. They are Miss Leola Lucey, Mario Laurenti, the baritone of the Metropolitan Opera

DEATH OF JAMES A. FOSTER

James A. Foster, head of the J. A. Foster Co., Providence, R. I., Edison dealer and Edison Amberola distributor for that section of New England, died suddenly at his home a short time ago. His death was due to heart disease, and although he had been in poor health for more than a year he was constantly active in business up to the day of his death.

Company; Miss Clair Peteler, a young soprano; Miss Sibyl Sanderson Fagan, the talented whistler, whose charming records soon will be heard, and our old friends, Collins and Harlan.

“In arranging tours the effort will be made to send artists into localities where they have not previously appeared.

“The most important result secured by a tone-test is to get people to hear the New Edison for the first time and so to understand and appreciate it. It will also pay for itself in sales of Re-Creations and we are prepared now to take full advantage of this. Most of the numbers used on programs will be manufactured during the summer and ready for shipment before the season opens.”

SECURING ORDERS BY AIRPLANE

Lines Music Co. Emphasize Their Progressiveness by Using Plane for Commercial Purposes

The Lines Music Co., of Springfield, Mo., are distinctly up-to-the-minute. They advised the World Phonograph Co., of Chicago, that recently they called on one of their dealers in an airplane, and en route dropped circulars boosting the World phonograph, which they represent, and on their return did some stunts over the city which attracted considerable attention. Inquisitive ones were deluged with a shower of circulars which told them something of the World phonograph and its mission. Mr. Lines and Mr. Ellis were both scheduled to make flights in the plane, and it is said an order for a carload of phonographs was secured while on the aerial visit.

This is probably the first actual record where the airplane has been used in the talking machine trade as a sales medium, and the move certainly reflects credit on the Lines Music Co.

FEATURING VOCALION RECORDS

The advertising department of the Aeolian Co. has just issued two attractive posters featuring popular Vocalion records. One of these posters presents appropriate illustrations for the songs, “Eyes That Say I Love You” and “When Cherry Blossoms Fall,” both of these records being sung by Arthur Burns, tenor. Another poster features “Turkestan” and “Lullaby Blues,” sung by the Premier American Quartet.

Finer by Any Comparison Say Dealers of The Brunswick

Test it for tone against any American or foreign phonograph. Play all records—voice, piano, violin, orchestra—of all makes, and you will grant The Brunswick pre-eminence.

And though tone is the primary consideration in choosing musical instruments, judge it also for grace and beauty of appearance. Here again The Brunswick is supreme. You will say that no other phonograph equals it for elegance and charm of case design.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction

Of vast importance to dealers as well as owners is the Brunswick Method of Reproduction. It revolutionized all former standards of phonographic art. It pioneered in the playing of all makes of records. A remarkable, yet simple invention—the Ultona—made this possible. By a turn of the hand it presents the correct needle and diaphragm to any record, regardless of type or make.

The Amplifier—Another Advance

A scientifically designed tone-chamber of moulded wood—the Amplifier—banished the usual strident, harsh sounds. By eliminating all metal from its construction and by following the absolute laws of acoustics, its inventors secured a pure, round tone, as perfect as that of a rare violin.

Now in Enormous Demand

The success of The Brunswick has been sensational. It leaped at once into favor, and its popularity has never ceased to grow at an astonishing rate.

Dealers everywhere will tell the reason—because by any comparison, The Brunswick immediately shows its superiority.

ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

Made for All Lovers of Music by the House of Brunswick

The world-wide fame of the House of Brunswick is founded on the high standards of its products. Success has come in many fields by constantly striving to produce the best.

The Brunswick is a phonograph which meets every ideal of this 74-year-old house. Because it brought new and vital contributions to the phonographic art, because it bettered what had gone before, a great success was won.

The public acclaimed The Brunswick instantly. Dealers wrote from all parts of the country telling of its increasing popularity.

Then came the Brunswick Method of Reproduction. Old conceptions of tone were displaced. Former methods no longer satisfied. The initial success of The Brunswick became a lasting triumph.

Branches in all the leading cities of the country facilitate distribution to the dealer. They also permit a saving in selling costs that makes possible the unusual features of The Brunswick without an advance in price.

National advertising is constantly bringing the superiorities of this master-instrument to the attention of millions of readers everywhere. Brunswick service co-operates with the dealers in building sales.

A remarkable record is behind The Brunswick. A greater future is ahead.

HONORED BY SAGINAW BUSINESS MEN

Geo. E. Brightson, President of the Sonora Co., Dined by Prominent Industrial Magnates in Recognition of His Enterprise—Makes Interesting Historical Address

A very great compliment was recently paid to Geo. E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., at Saginaw, Mich., where a dinner was tendered to him by John L. Jackson. There were present the heads of the leading industrial and financial interests of Saginaw and other large Michigan manufacturing plants, and it was probably one of the largest gatherings of important men ever assembled in the history of that progressive lake city.

The host, in introducing Mr. Brightson, said that he had been a resident of Saginaw for sixty-five years and had seen a number of industries come, many of them large and some smaller, but that there had never been any person come to Saginaw to bring an industry there, or increase an industry already there, who would spend upwards of a million and a half dollars as Mr. Brightson, the guest of the evening, had done without asking either the board of trade or the town board for some contribution, and that this was an exceptional case.

In his remarks, following the introduction by John L. Jackson, Mr. Brightson said that he was pleased with the many complimentary remarks made by the guests present, that he was delighted with the progress which Sonora is making and that, being a business builder, he enjoyed greatly being among the progressive men engaged in commercial activities.

The occasion caused Mr. Brightson to look back over his own business career and he gave his audience some interesting reminiscences.

For many years Mr. Brightson was engaged in the sale of dry goods, and his first acquaintance with Saginaw City dated back to 1872, when that princely merchant, William Barrie, purchased from him a large bill of goods and Mr. Brightson, being a very young man at that time, felt extremely proud at having sold Mr. Barrie and always remembered this incident with great pleasure. In later years Mr. Brightson became acquainted and mentioned quite a number of other merchants in the city who had been customers of his. At this point Mr. Brightson related the incidents which led up to his connection with the Sonora phonograph.

In 1900, after having been connected with the H. B. Claffin Co., as a manager for many years, Mr. Brightson left this concern, bringing suit against it for what he considered a wrong-doing on the part of one of the principals. One of the suits was tried in the Supreme Court before the referee and a verdict was rendered in favor of the Claffin Co., which later was unanimously affirmed by the Appellate Division of the State of New York. However, Mr. Brightson, feeling that he was right in his claim, and being told by his attorney that the law was on his side, told his lawyer to "bite his teeth" in his brief and go to the Court of Appeals with the case.

A few weeks ago the Court of Appeals rendered a decision in Mr. Brightson's favor, reversing the earlier proceedings in court. The judge who wrote the opinion in the case announced that the unanimous verdict of the judges of the Court of Appeals was in favor of Mr. Brightson. This decision, which was reached in 1919, was received by Mr. Brightson with great gratification because it was the result of eighteen years' litigation.

This little story is necessary in order to understand how Mr. Brightson came to leave the dry goods field and seek another line of business.

A phonograph was brought to Mr. Brightson's attention and the Sonora Phonograph Corp. was formed in the year 1912. It began in a very small way with less than twelve employes and grew steadily. In 1914 it was several times larger than in 1912 and five years later, at the present time, its employes number thousands, and are engaged not only in the city of New York but in Saginaw, Mich.; Williamsport, Pa. St. Croix, Switzerland, and in other places where contracts have been given for supplies which the present capacity of Sonora's own plants cannot provide.

While it is true, as has been stated, that Sonora is spending upwards of a million dollars in Saginaw, its contract for goods in that city two years ago reached the enormous sum of $15,000,000. The growth being so extremely rapid it was finally deemed advisable to go to Saginaw and buy the Herzog Art Furniture Co. plant. Additional land space has been purchased also so that now upwards of twenty-five acres is the property of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., and most of this is covered by extensive buildings. Additional ones to meet future trade requirements are being planned.

Mr. Brightson further stated that despite the great growth of Sonora year after year, the company's finances have always been liquid, and in December, 1918, the company finished paying every dollar of indebtedness that it had borrowed from banks or banking institutions.

There are now on the books millions of dollars of unfilled orders. Sonora's sales have been made without traveling salesmen, it may be mentioned. The Sonora phonograph, because of its great popularity, is growing faster in sales than ever, and it is impossible to state when the supply of these instruments will catch up with the demand.

Mr. Brightson explained that he wished to be careful to avoid any appearance of boasting and simply gave facts concerning the Sonora in order that all might become acquainted with the conditions existing. He believed that everyone in Saginaw could take pride in having the Sonora as one of the city's prominent industries.

MIDDLETOWN DEALER MOVES

Lyman Payne, one of the enterprising talking machine dealers of Middletown, Conn., has recently moved into larger quarters at 71 Washington street. He carries a large line of Sonoras, Grafonolas and records as well as general musical merchandise.

The Tilden-Thurber Corporation, Providence, R. I., has added the Brunswick machine and expects to push the agency in that section.

SUMMER SALES

There are twelve good months for the Phonograph business—June, July, August and nine others.

That is one way to look at it.

Do not divide your year into dull months and busy months. Consider every month a busy month and then proceed to make it so.

To go back to June, July and August.

They are the mid-summer months. People sit on their porches, smoking, chatting; friends drop in. It is too hot to read; the theatres are closed.

The stage is set for the appearance of the Phonograph.

You must ring up the curtain.

THOMAS A. EDISON, Inc.

ORANGE, N. J.

THE EDISON INDUSTRIES AND THE SOLDIER

By GEORGE E. CLARK, Manager, Disc Record Mfg. Division, Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

The newspapers for months past have given considerable space to the problem of "What is to be done with the returning soldiers, sailors and marines?" Will the various industrial institutions throughout the country take back those who left their employment to go and fight the Hun, or will it be necessary for them to join the army of unemployed, and take their chances?

Geo. E. Clark

That the man who went into the service, offering his life for "the colors," should not be forgotten by a grateful people the Edison industries have emphasized by a consistent policy to restore that man wherever possible to the position he occupied when he answered the call "to arms," and the present finds in our shops and offices many men still in uniform, who have just returned from the training camps in this country or from the battle fields of France.

The problem of taking care of our returning soldiers and sailors has been no small one, as one familiar with manufacturing industries can well imagine. The places made vacant by those who joined the colors had to be filled. Men too old for service, or men who by reason of family responsibilities were exempt from military service, as well as many girls and women not previously employed in factory work, came forward and filled the vacant places, thereby permitting us to keep industry alive, and at the same time enabling us to do our part in supplying the sinews of war that made victory possible. These must also be considered in our reconstruction plans. Their service, while not on the battlefield, was none the less important, and to them we owe the same debt of eternal gratitude, and the same consideration must be shown.

By a careful study of our operations we found it possible to make certain changes whereby it has been possible for us to take care, not only of our own returning soldiers, but also to give remunerative employment to many other soldiers not previously in our employ, and at the same time we have provided continued employment for those who filled the gaps in our organization made vacant by those who went away.

Word was sent out through the American Red Cross that we could place in lucrative employment a number of men who had lost a leg, or possibly both legs, in the war, and it is not an unusual sight to see seated at our work benches men who received their wounds in the trenches of Flanders or in the Argonne Woods, or on some other part of the European battlefields.

It has been possible for us to take care of our boys thus far by placing, wherever practicable, our operations on an actual eight-hour day (three eight-hour shifts), thereby giving employment to practically all soldiers applying for work.

We shall continue our plans, and make similar changes to the end that the Edison policy with respect to its employes generally, and particularly in the returning soldiers, will ever stand forth as pre-eminently fair.

We are doing our part for the returning soldiers, and we are taking care of those who helped us so successfully to keep the "Home Wheels Turning."

TO HALT WORK OF THIEVES

How E. A. Schweiger, Inc., Warns Customers Against a Gang of Rascals Who Steal Machines and Motors in Brooklyn Territory

During the past few months local talking machine dealers have suffered considerably from the activities of a thief who has succeeded in securing machines and motors from talking machine owners upon the representation that he had been sent to repair the machine or take out the motor. Quite a number of these complaints have been received by Victor dealers in Brooklyn, and steps are being taken to counteract the activities of this thief.

One of the most practical ideas advanced to halt this work is utilized by E. A. Schweiger, Inc., a Victor dealer at 1525 Broadway, Brooklyn, N. Y. He inserts in all letters and literature sent out to his customers a red slip headed "warning" and reading as follows: "It has been brought to our attention that a certain man has called upon our patrons to repair Victrolas, claiming that he has been sent by us. We would ask you not to pay any attention to anyone calling upon you unless he presents a repair slip which will be issued to him by us." With this warning this company inserted a regular repair card which must be properly made out and presented by the man who calls for the motor or the machine. This plan is proving most effective.

FIGHTING PREJUDICE IN ENGLAND

British Writer Tells Why Talking Machine Was at First Unpopular in England—The Lack of This Prejudice Reason for Rapid Growth in Popular Favor in United States

An interesting British point of view regarding the growing popularity of the talking machine is shown in an article in the Talking Machine News, London. The writer gives his explanation of the rapid growth of the machine in America, and likewise his reason why its growth in England was not so rapid. He discusses the question under the subject of "Fighting Prejudice," and says:

"The insular prejudice which peculiarly characterizes the Briton has become a byword among nations. No matter what new thing is set before him, he views it with a contemptuous suspicion. It was notoriously so with railways, with gas, and, in pre-war days, with aeroplanes. The talking machine was jeered at and derided before it had been given a fair trial, and persons who should have known much better joined in the outcry. It is true the first machines were poor specimens of this new development of science, just as the famous 'Puffing Billy' was a poor specimen of the locomotive engine, but they gave indications of what might be arrived at by perseverance and the further application of skill. The prejudice, however, was established, and for over forty years it has been impossible to uproot it from the ultra-conservative minds of many of our countrymen.

"In America, the land of the instrument's birth, no such prejudice ever existed, and the consequence is the talking machine is the leading power in the musical world in the States. In this country we can hardly conceive the importance of the gramophone trade as an industry among our go-ahead cousins. Not only does it take its proper rank as a musical instrument—a rank which is to a great extent denied it here—but it is regarded as a most potent factor in education, and a school without a gramophone would stand in the same category as a school without a blackboard.

"Our dealers are well aware of the prevalence of this prejudice, a slowly dying one, but inveterately ingrained in some of the older generation, and it is up to them to fight against it tooth and nail. One of the most powerful weapons for the dealer to use in his conflict with ignorance—for prejudice in this case means ignorance—is the insistence that the talking machine is a musical instrument of the highest type, that it is not a toy or a piece of furniture for the house. He must demonstrate this with the utmost patience by placing the best records he possesses on the machine. If the unbeliever is without an ear, of course the case is hopeless, but when the prejudiced person has some knowledge of music it is always possible to convince him, though the task may be long and dreary.

"It is extraordinary that this unreasonableness exists more among the 'high-brow' element than among the common people. It is therefore necessary to have a scientific knowledge of the machine to impress the perverse. When the dealer has caught his unbeliever he must never forget to reiterate the fact that the talking machine is distinctly a high-class musical instrument, capable of reproducing the sounds of all other musical instruments, either in solo performances or in combination as in orchestra or band. Emphasis may not convince, but aural demonstration added to emphasis must have its effect in the long run."

TO MANUFACTURE CABINETS

The Climax Cabinet Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y., has been incorporated at a capital of $500,000 to manufacture cabinets for music rolls and records. The incorporators are Thomas I. Dean, Fred W. Miller and George W. Chambers, Buffalo.

The McKannon Piano Co., Denver dealers for the Victor machine, are using billboards throughout the city to advertise these instruments.

SHELTON ELECTRIC CO. FILES SUIT

Files Bill of Complaint Against the Victor Talking Machine Co.—Seeks Triple Damages

A bill of complaint was recently filed in the Federal Court by the Shelton Electric Co. of New York against the Victor Talking Machine Co., asking triple damages, aggregating $1,317,937.50 under the Sherman Law and charging that the defendant sought to deprive it of the benefits of its business as a manufacturer and dealer in talking machine motors. It is further alleged that the Victor Co. compelled its dealers to sign a contract which provided that no part of the Victor machine should be taken out and replaced by any device not made by that company. By means of this contract it is charged that the Victor Co. sought to create a monopoly in electrically-driven talking machines.

INSTALL NEW VICTOR DEPARTMENT

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., June 5.—The Lewis Bros. Co., of this city, have just completed a new Victrola department, which is claimed to be one of the largest and best-equipped departments in eastern Ohio. It is located on the ground floor of their large furniture store. There are eleven demonstrating booths, each having individual ventilation. Under the able management of F. H. Burbick the Victor business of this firm has been making rapid strides and long ago outgrew its old quarters, forcing the firm to add the new department at a time when material and labor were hard to get and very expensive. As Mr. Lewis said, "he had to do it or stunt the growth of the business."

INCORPORATED

The New England Piano & Phonograph Co. has been incorporated in Boston with a capital stock of $100,000. The directors are Charles G. Faux, of Brighton, president and treasurer, and Henry B. Peck and Hardy Harrock.

TO FEATURE PATHE IN FT. WAYNE

The music department of the Tepper store, Fort Wayne, Ind., was recently opened and created a new musical center in that city. The Pathé phonograph and records will be featured, and special demonstration booths have been installed for that purpose.

John T. Smullin, Jr., of Pocomoke City, Md., is planning to open a music store on Market street, where he will carry the Columbia line.

LARGE COLLECTION OF RECORDS

What is said to be one of the largest collections of records owned by one individual is that of Henry B. Hall, head master of the John Winthrop School, Dorchester, Mass. He is an enthusiastic advocate of the talking machine as a means of bringing classical music to the attention of students, and his collection represents an expenditure of $2,000. It is a collection that reflects his culture.

DEATH OF WILLIAM HENRY LEE

The Franklin Phonograph Co., Inc., has been incorporated in Philadelphia by Max Meiter and others with a capital stock of $50,000.

ACCORDED HEARTY RECEPTION

Condon & Co., Ltd., Tell of Popularity of Their Product With the Trade

In a chat this week with The World Wm. A. Condon, president of Condon & Co., Inc., stated that the trade had accorded a hearty reception to Uniform steel needles. These needles are now being used by dealers throughout the country, and Mr. Condon has received many letters from representative dealers stating that these needles meet every musical requirement of their customers.

Uniform steel needles have a number of distinctive features, and these features are being emphasized to excellent advantage by Condon & Co. in their present campaign. Mr. Condon's long association with the trade enables him to thoroughly appreciate the importance of furnishing the dealers with satisfactory steel needles, and the success that his company has achieved to date reflects the service and co-operation that he is extending to the trade throughout the country.

An Effective Collection System One of the Main Supports of a Retail Talking Machine Business

The difficulties often met with by talking machine dealers in regard to making collections on term payments are very troublesome and often cause the dealer much financial loss if they are not properly handled. To-day, when the majority of machines are sold on time payments, it is vitally important that the system of collecting the money due should be carefully worked out and kept up to date. Collection troubles have often caused many dealers to complain about the uncertainty of human nature and the like, but these complaints would not be heard if those dealers exercised due care in the extension of credit. Payments usually cover a considerable period of time, and in order to secure himself the dealer should see to it that his customers do not become delinquent. In so doing they not only cause endless annoyance to the dealer but make it harder for themselves by allowing one payment to slide until it is time for another and the two fall due together, making it often impossible to pay. Before the contract is entered into the dealer should satisfy himself that it is a good account and by doing so will save himself much worry and expense.

A fat order looks well on the books and is a source of satisfaction to the dealer, of course, but if the account is one that will give him trouble later on it should never have been opened. In their eagerness to make sales and fill up the pages of their books, dealers sometimes fail to investigate carefully the status of their customers. And on the other hand, families are often too eager to have a machine in their homes, and do not consider that they are putting a mortgage on their earning for a considerable period. They do not stop to consider that their payments must be met, and if they run on too close a margin and fail to leave something over to take care of emergencies, such as sickness or other trouble, they will become involved in difficulties. This is so often the cause of bad accounts and this cause could be avoided if the dealer would make the necessary investigations, informing himself thoroughly as to the financial condition of his prospect by means of personal investigation and references.

Some dealers have application blanks which the customer fills out before the sale is made, and on these blanks is contained information which should safeguard the dealer in extending credit. It is well to impress the customer with the fact that the payments should be made at your store, for in this way the dealer can keep in touch with his man without difficulty.

Keeping track of payments is perhaps one of the most important factors in the term payment plan. A good system of bookkeeping is absolutely essential, and unless a careful account of payments is kept trouble is sure to result. To allow payments to lapse and bunch up on the customer is to invite disaster. It is far easier for the customer to make his payments regularly, and he will be better satisfied than if he faced the necessity of making a large inroad on his resources at one time. This defeats the very purpose of the instalment plan which is designed to make payments easy by making them small.

Then the method of collection is often a troublesome one for the dealer. It is not necessary

*Getting Payments in When They are Due and at a Minimum of

to employ collectors in this work if the matter has been handled right at the start. With a good account it is usually sufficient to send a statement of the amount due and a check will be forthcoming. Many dealers, in trying to make the collections themselves, are forced to neglect the sales end of their business and leave the store in charge of a boy or girl who is practically useless as a selling factor. The belief that personal contact is beneficial in making collections is a false one, for it offers a chance for the customer to impose on the collector or talk him out of his purpose. Handling collections by mail is the best way.

When the payment falls due, as shown by the books in the office of the dealer, a statement should be sent at once to the customer. If the money is not paid within a reasonable time, say, three or four days on weekly accounts and a week or ten days on monthly accounts, a second statement should be sent upon which is noted the fact that it is a second notice. If the customer is still delinquent, send a final notice stating that unless payment is made it will be necessary to take action. Sending this final statement by registered mail is a good idea, for it makes it necessary for the customer to sign the post office slip. The fact of this signing increases the importance of the transaction and makes the customer realize that he is under a certain obligation. This method has proved satisfactory in most cases, especially where the accounts were live accounts and had been investigated before a contract was made.

Threatening letters are poor means of making collections, for they arouse antagonism, which is always detrimental to any kind of business. The music trade has taken pains to build its business on the basis of good will and the present status of the industry shows the correctness of that theory. Harshness is poor policy, but firmness is necessary and usually brings results. But harshness and firmness are very different things. This difference spells the measure of business success.

In conclusion it should be said that professional collection agencies are not the dealer's last resort. It is unfortunate but nevertheless true that too many of these professional collectors are unreliable and do the dealer more harm than good. Handle the accounts by mail, and if proper judgment has been used in establishing these accounts many of the troubles of collections will be lessened.

COLUMBIA DEALERS IN KANSAS CITY

Have Satisfying Get-Together Session as Guests of Columbia Co. Wholesale Branch

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 2.—More than seventy Columbia dealers situated in the local territory met with the officials of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., at the Hotel Baltimore here recently, for the purpose of engaging in discussions relative to the present and future of the business. One of the features of the evening was an excellent dinner, after which Toscha Seidel, the young Russian violinist and a popular Columbia artist, played several selections for the entertainment of the visitors, among them being "Ave Maria," a Hungarian dance, Dixie airs and a Turkish march, all rendered most artistically.

Miss Bessie Miller, supervisor of music in the Kansas City schools, gave a short talk on music in the schools and expressed her appreciation particularly of the Columbia Co. new catalog, "The Grafonola in the School," which she declared should prove a substantial factor in developing musical interest among children, as well as in improving sales for dealers. She urged the retailers to familiarize themselves with the arguments presented in this volume.

E. A. McMurtry, manager of the Kansas City wholesale branch, presided at the meeting and led the open discussion for business among the dealers. Thomas Devine gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the handling of records.

PATRIOTIC DISPLAY FOR JULY

A Timely Window That Will Make a Strong Appeal—Hooks Up Publicity and Patriotism

The Columbia Co.'s dealer service department has issued an attractive patriotic window display for July which will undoubtedly meet with the hearty approval of the dealers. This display is designed solely to provide the dealers a means to move the war-time records while there is the opportunity. The collection of war-time relics as a fad is growing to enormous proportions, and many helmets, iron crosses and other souvenirs are being manufactured to meet the trades.

Special Window for July

The suggestion that patriotic records will in the future be a fitting and lasting memento of the world war has been convincingly carried out on the two cards showing the heads of Generals Pershing and Foch. To start this collection this display emphasizes the fact that the living, breathing voice of Pershing himself as he spoke from the battlefields of France is available on a Columbia record. The Foch card lists standard selections of other nations engaged in the war.

The centerpiece is a complete tie-up with the July magazine copy of the Columbia Co., being the "Miss Columbia" illustration done in eight colors by the photo-litho offset process. Being of the regular artist poster size, this card will be instantly recognized as Columbia national advertising, marking the dealer's establishment as the selling place of Columbia records.

Trubin Bros., Red Bank, N. J., are building an addition to their store to take care of the increased trade in the music department, especially in the sale of talking machines.

The Brooklyn Phonograph Shop has been opened at 977 Hancock street, Brooklyn, by I. Langer and L. Jacobs.

CARRIERS MUST RECEIVE FREIGHT

Railroad Administration Orders That Freight Be Received When Offered Regardless of Schedules of "Shipping Days" in Effect

Shippers of freight in and about New York have suffered considerable inconvenience and no little expense as a result of the rules made by carriers serving New York under which a schedule of shipping days was established. As a result of this schedule shipments were only accepted and forwarded on specified "shipping days," and freight agents have refused in a great many instances to receive freight offered on other days.

The Merchants' Association of New York, maintaining that it is a common law obligation of the carriers to receive freight from any consignee on any week-day at any pier station in New York from which rates to the points of destination were on file, took up the matter with the Railroad Administration, with the result that the following circular letter was sent to freight agents:

"It is fundamental that the shipper has the right to route his freight and to tender same to the carrier at any pier or freight station on any business day destined to points to which there are through or joint rates properly applicable from such pier or station.

"It seems, therefore, necessary, in view of these complaints, to repeat instructions already in effect, namely, that in the case of any shipments tendered upon other days or at other piers than provided for in the Shipping Day Guide, such shipments should be received if there are in effect joint or through rates from the station at which tender is made."

It is suggested by the association, however, that shippers endeavor to co-operate with the carriers to as great an extent as possible in carrying out the shipping schedules without serious inconvenience to themselves.

MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The Favorite Phonograph Accessories Co., who for the past two years have occupied quarters at 1491 De Kalb avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., have moved into a new home at 1506 De Kalb avenue the same city.

Carl Kroenberger, president of the above company, states that his business has been constantly increasing during the past few months, and the demands for tone arms and needle cups especially have greatly increased.

LAKWOOD DEALER TO ENLARGE

Geo. H. Hurlburt, Lakewood, N. J., Victor dealer, has begun improvements on his property which when finished will represent an outlay of about $15,000. The Victrola department has grown rapidly during the last few years, and it was decided to drop the toy department and devote more time and space to the Victor line.

H. L. WILLSON RETURNS FROM WEST

Vice-President and General Manager of the Columbia Co. Pleased With Business Outlook

H. L. Willson, vice-president and general manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from a Western trip, upon which he called at the Columbia branches in Chicago, Cincinnati, Detroit, Indianapolis and Pittsburgh. This was the first opportunity offered Mr. Willson to call upon these Columbia branches within the last year, and his trip was therefore unusually interesting.

In a chat with The World Mr. Willson commented as follows: "Conditions throughout the West are splendid, and I was delighted to find that every phase of the business situation is decidedly encouraging. Our branches had only one complaint—a shortage of stock, this shortage applying both to Grafonolas and records.

"I was very much pleased with the progress being made with the Columbia products, particularly the appreciation of the dealers as to the quality of our product and the public demand for Columbia goods. The class of dealers handling our line is a matter of keen gratification, and there is an evident desire on the part of representative dealers to become and remain members of the Columbia family. The outlook, everything considered, is most satisfactory in every respect."

"Does It Play All Records?"

Certainly MAGNOLA does; and without any extra attachments, too. This is only one feature, albeit a most important one, in the thoroughly up-to-date equipment of the MARVELOUS MAGNOLA.

VICTOR CO. MAKING EVERY EFFORT TO INCREASE OUTPUT

B. G. Royal, General Superintendent of the Victor Factories, Outlines Reasons for Curtailment in Production During the War, and Tells of Production Plans for the Future

One of the main objects for discussion among wholesalers and dealers in Victor goods has been that concerning the prospect of getting more goods from the Victor factory to fill the steadily increasing demand for those products. In view of the existing situation, therefore, the following statement by B. G. Royal, general superintendent of the Victor factories, is of special interest. The statement appears in "The Voice of the Victor" for May and is headed "The Outlook for More Victor Goods," and reads as follows:

"It is interesting to learn that the trade does not fully understand exactly what we have accomplished in the way of converting our factories from a veritable beehive of wartime activities to a normal plant for the production of Victor merchandise in large quantities. Considering the problems confronting us we feel, in fact, we know, that our progress in this direction compares most favorably with other manufacturing organizations similarly situated.

"On that never-to-be-forgotten-day, November 11, 1918, we were virtually assured that the Government would require our services only for a short period and that accordingly we might proceed with plans previously formulated to manufacture Victor products exclusively. In this connection we realized fully that we had a big task before us, but even at that we did not anticipate the tedious and tiresome delays that we would be obliged to deal with, delays that were entirely beyond our control. Immediately following the signing of the armistice there was a very marked relaxation on the part of the entire nation, including the personnel of the various Government departments. It was extremely difficult to secure cancelations of contracts or, in fact, definite authority to discontinue work and dismantle equipment. Finally, on January 5, we received disposition orders on the Government materials on hand and in process of manufacture, thus making it possible for us to give undivided attention to our own problems.

"At that time our kiln plant, which was and probably is to-day the largest unit of its kind, was engaged to 90 per cent. of its capacity in drying rifle stocks and a great variety of ash and spruce lumber for use in the manufacture of aircraft.

"In our cabinet factory entire floors were occupied by special machinery installed especially for our Government work and not suitable for any other purposes. Besides this, additional floors had been cleared of machinery to provide ample space for the assembling of aircraft frames measuring more than 100 feet in wing spread.

"Our motor manufacturing department was engaged up to 85 per cent. of its capacity in the manufacture of thousands of different metal parts for aircraft, rifle parts, shell parts, adapters, boosters, etc. Here, too, the normal arrangement of machinery had entirely been done away with to provide the best possible facilities for our war work.

"After completing our Government contracts we had approximately 50 per cent. of our normal quota of workmen. We have since employed enough new men and women to operate our factories in the manufacture of Victor products to their fullest capacity, but many were found unsuited to the work. Our working force now stands at 80 per cent. of normal. However, additional employes are engaged daily, in fact, as fast as they can be instructed in their work.

"In the record factory, where the equipment was intact and only skilled labor needed, it was possible to increase production very rapidly and inside of three months we were manufacturing more records per day than we had ever done before.

"Victor instruments require four months to manufacture as we insist upon making them. An immediate start at quantity manufacture was made early in January, so that the first instruments of our 'after the war' production are just now coming through. This fact and the unprecedented demand may account for the trade having apparently overlooked a natural increase in the production of instruments of more than 60 per cent. since January 1, 1919.

"Never before have we undertaken an expansion program that has matured as smoothly as the present one, and we are more than pleased with the present outlook. We are bending every effort in an endeavor to operate our plant to full capacity by July, and are also giving full consideration to every practical suggestion for even greater capacity.

"We have every reason to believe that the decision of the board of directors to concentrate at least for the present on maximum production from our immense plant will prove a far-sighted policy and will insure the trade Victor products in large quantities within the shortest possible space of time."

BRANCH STORE IN FILLMORE, CAL.

R. H. Paulin, who has a large music house in Santa Barbara, Cal., has established a branch store in Fillmore, where a large stock of talking machines and records will be carried. A. Baronda is manager of the local branch.

Harry Swartz has joined the firm of A. Livingston & Sons, Bloomington, Ill., in the capacity of manager of the Victrola department. Business is very good with this concern, with plenty of orders on hand awaiting stock.

EVIDENCE OF INCREASING PROSPERITY IN BUFFALO TRADE

Activity in Various Lines of Industry Developing Purchasing Power—Many Sales of High-Class "Talker"—How Advertising Helps—Hengerer and Adam Concerns Adopt Free Insurance Plan

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—Buffalo talking machine dealers are scanning the horizon these days for signs of prospective prosperity. One of the many of these indications of good times ahead is the fact that a local automobile concern employing upward of 7,000 hands during the day shift has been compelled to put on a night force of nearly 800 men in order to keep pace with peace-time business. The high-speed activity at this and many other local plants that are turning out products in demand during the reconstruction period is certainly an inspiration to the talking machine dealers who see plenty of trade in sight. Factory workers employed at good wages are regarded by the dealers as first-class customers. The hourly wages of these men are practically the same as during the war.

The Hoffman Co. recently sold a $375 Sonora Invincible for cash. This is one of the many sales in this line reported at the Hoffman store. Harry G. Conger, of the Hoffman staff, has designed a beautiful electric sign for the front of the establishment, and a reproduction of the famous Sonora bell is a feature.

L. M. Cole, manager of Hoffman's talking machine department, reports that the public is taking kindly to the new OkeH records for which his firm has the distribution in this territory. Elaborate window signs advertising these records are being distributed, and the Hoffman store has been redecorated throughout and other improvements have been made.

Edward P. Houseal, former advertising manager of the William Hengerer Co., has completed his work as a director of athletics for the Y. M. C. A. in the Bordeaux region in France and is back home again.

Some of the smaller talking machine dealers say they are benefiting indirectly from a high-priced advertising campaign which one of the big firms in the trade is conducting. Many pages of advertising are being used in the newspapers in connection with this drive. The publicity is of the old-fashioned circus type and wartime language is used to express the terrible slaughter of prices. Prospective talking machine purchasers who visit the big store do not all buy there. Some who are attracted to the place by the advertising decide to do a little shopping around. In this way the small dealers line up a number of worth-while customers.

In the trade-boosting excursion recently conducted by the Buffalo Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers' Association the talking machine industry was well represented. The expedition was not a selling trip, but one of investigation, and business survey during the reconstruction period and order books were taboo. The excursionists traveled in a "million dollar special" train and visited twenty-eight western New York and Pennsylvania towns.

The William Hengerer Co. and J. N. Adam & Co., both Victor dealers, have adopted a plan of free insurance for their employes. In the first-named concern 750 persons are covered and the insurance in force exceeds $700,000. The number insured at the J. N. Adam & Co.'s store totals 825 and the amount of insurance is $697,000. According to the firms the insurance plan adds to the tie of friendship that has long existed between these stores and their employes and is another step that evidences the spirit of co-operation. Employes are not required to stand physical examination. One who has been employed for three months is insured for $300, at six months for $500 and thereafter $100 is added for each subsequent year's service until the amount of $3,000 is reached.

The eighth anniversary of the Goellner Furniture Co. was recently celebrated. This firm handles the Cheney phonograph. Frederick C. Goellner is president of the company and Edwin J. Kreinheder secretary-treasurer.

Much regret was expressed that George W.

Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, was unable to make his trip to this city. Not only the piano men but many of the talking machine dealers would have attended the reception that had been planned for Mr. Pound. William H. Daniels, of Denton, Cottier & Daniels, received the word that Buffalo would have to be left out of the itinerary.

A VISITOR FROM LOS ANGELES

Sheldon Morris Declares There Is a Big Field for Talking Machine Sales There

A recent visitor to New York and Eastern markets was Sheldon Morris, general manager of the Southern California Hardwood & Mfg. Co., who for some time past has been engaged in the manufacture of talking machines in addition to other activities. Mr. Morris stated that his company had made a number of improvements recently in the talking machine product, and one of his missions East was to secure fine cabinet woods.

In the matter of woods, Mr. Morris stated that the recent suggestion that redwood would be found most acceptable for talking machine cabinets was not practical, in his estimation, inasmuch as redwood for the most part, while desirable for many purposes, lacked a figure so desirable for cabinet and furniture work. Occasionally some redwood was found that showed a fair figure, but this finish was in chief demand with those who had their home furnishings in redwood and desired a talking machine to match.

As to trade conditions on the Pacific Coast, Mr. Morris declared they were excellent, and that the opportunities for the sale of talking machines of good quality appeared to be unlimited.

The Knight-Campbell Music Co., Denver, Colo., is featuring the Victor talking machine in the local papers and is carrying on an extensive advertising campaign which, as usual, is conducted along dignified lines.

BIG CONVENTION OF EDISON DEALERS IN KANSAS CITY

More Than 270 Dealers and Salesmen Gather at Hotel Baltimore and Listen to a Number of Informing Addresses by Men on the Firing Line—Elaborate Banquet Closed Meetings

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 2.—The most successful Edison dealers' convention ever held in Kansas City was held on May 19 and 20 at the Hotel Baltimore. More than 270 dealers and salesmen were in attendance, besides their wives and friends, who were also guests of the Edison Shop, wholesale, of this city. A most elaborate and instructive program was carried out during the two-day session. W. L. Eshelman, of St. Joseph, Mo., acted as chairman and presided at all of the meetings.

B. A. Parsons, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, gave the visitors a hearty welcome and also a very interesting and instructive talk on conditions and the future outlook for the territory around Kansas City during 1919. His statistics and statements were based on his own observations and experiences during the recent five-day trade trip taken by members of the Chamber of Commerce through Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. Indications point to the largest wheat crop in the history of Kansas for the current season. The estimates are that there will be at least 200,000,000 bushels, which alone means an enormous wealth and money circulation in the Kansas City territory. The territory will have millions of dollars to spend, and the Edison dealers are bound to benefit by it if they have the goods.

Following the address by Mr. Parsons, an open forum was held and a general discussion of many important questions followed. T. J. Leonard, from the Edison laboratories, answered many questions regarding matters at the factories as to the production of instruments and re-creations. One interesting and remarkable quotation from Mr. Leonard was that, though there are thirty-six Edison jobbers in the United States and Canada, the Kansas City territory gets one-sixteenth of the production of the Edison factories. These remarkable figures prove the popularity of the Edison in the territory, but, furthermore, they prove that M. M. Blackman, the Kansas City jobber, is constantly on the job and doing everything in the interest of his dealers in furnishing such a high percentage of goods.

After the open discussion there were three short talks on "Tone Tests and What They Mean to Business," by Frank Runnenburger, of Harrisonville, Mo.; Leslie G. Burkland, Moberly, Mo., and W. A. Vawter, of Marshall, Mo. These talks were enthusiastically received.

Glen Ellison, world-famous singer of Scottish dialect and an exclusive Edison artist, entertained the dealers and friends for more than thirty minutes with songs and musical sketches, which were very much appreciated.

As the afternoon session began, for forty-five minutes the time was devoted to a series of five-minute talks, which were extremely interesting and valuable to every talking machine dealer. The speakers and their respective subjects were as follows: C. S. Hixon, Richmond, Mo., "Get Acquainted With Your Jobber"; W. H. Wimber, Excelsior Springs, Mo., "Is It Well to Recognize Competition?" Fred M. Wells, Ottawa, Kan., "How the Edison Looks to a New Dealer"; W. M. Hinde, "Why I Am Going to Quit the Road and Go Into an Exclusive Edison Shop at Sedalia, Mo."; Claude C. Cosgrove, Wichita, Kan., "My Plans for an Exclusive Edison Shop in Wichita"; C. L. Dosch, Marysville, Mo., "How I Was Converted to the Edison and What It Has Meant to Me"; Clayton T. Cunningham, Hutchinson, Kan., "Let the Owner Call for Service, or Regular Sales Inspection Service"; Mr. Mode, Salisbury, Mo. These various subjects were handled in a masterly way by the speakers.

One of the most interesting and instructive talks of the afternoon was given by C. E. Goodwin, the Chicago jobber, on "The Edison Information Bureau."

Walter Welch, with Welch & Pope, of Macksville, Kan., told how in three months, in a small town of only 600 population, he sold $8,400 worth of Edison products. This set a new mark for the possibilities in the Edison line. Then followed another period for open discussion, during which the chairman called on several dealers for statistics or specific experiences along the lines discussed.

"Just What Is the Function of Advertising, and What May We Expect It to do for an Edison Dealer" was the subject well handled by W. C. Eckhardt, with the Gundlach Advertising Co. of Chicago.

In the evening in the Francis I room an elaborate four-course dinner was served, after which a theatre party was given for the guests at the Orpheum Theatre. Preliminary to the usual Orpheum bill Glen Ellison demonstrated to a packed house the reproducing qualities of the Edison phonograph. Miss Pauline Lawrence, another noted Edison artist, gave a piano solo also. The theatre party concluded a wonderful day's program and entirely successful from every standpoint.

Tuesday was devoted almost entirely to a get-acquainted conference, and dealers were given an opportunity to get all the personal information about their own business or the Edison business in general from any number of Edison representatives who were at their service during the afternoon.

EMERSON SINGER AT OPENING

Duff's Music House recently opened at Rockaway Beach, N. Y., and on the opening night a concert was held at which Miss Martha Duff, the juvenile Emerson record contralto, sang several selections. James Karp, the famous author of "Dixie Is Dixie Once More," also rendered a pleasing program for the occasion.

TALKING MACHINES AS PRESENTS

Becoming a Popular Gift Suitable for All Occasions—Shows the Trend of the Times Even if Not Strictly According to Our Friend Hoyle

The following story found in the talking machine page of the Boston Advertiser shows the trend of the times in the matter of gifts at least, and shows that the talking machine is competing with the time-honored silver service as a gift of appreciation. One of the Knights of Columbus war workers was given a welcome home dinner at a Boston clubhouse, and the present his friends chose for the occasion was a talking machine. In the old days he would probably have received a loving cup, a silver service or smoking jacket. But new times make new customs.

When the war worker had gone overseas to help keep the soldiers in good spirits the talking machine, which to a large extent replaced the military band within the fighting zone, went with him. The music the men heard for the most part, day in and day out, was the lively lilt of the talking machine, while the band was heard generally around headquarters or upon special occasions. Consequently, the men who gave this dinner to their returning friend chose that musical instrument as the most appropriate gift and felt that it would be a reminder of the historic days spent in France.

In days gone by it would hardly have been according to Hoyle to give a musical instrument to any one but a musician, but the talking machine has changed all that. Now all sorts of folks are glad to have a machine as a present, especially the returning boys, who have become regular talking machine fans.

The Brunswick Shop, conducted by the J. Goldsmith & Son Co., Memphis, Tenn., has removed its showrooms from the ground floor to permanent quarters on one of the upper floors, where the Victor line is also handled in very attractive display rooms.

THE EDISON CONVENTION CHAIRMAN

H. E. Blake, Edison Dealer of Philadelphia, a Wide-awake, Progressive Edison Booster

H. E. Blake, of Blake & Burkart, Philadelphia, Edison dealers, who will act as chairman of the Edison Dealers' convention late this month, is a man with practical ideas, and his store in Philadelphia is one of the most up-to-date in the country. He advertises extensively, not only in the ordinary ways, but in several original ways of his own. He issues a little house organ containing information of interest to his customers, he writes particularly good circular letters, beautifully gotten up and exceedingly interesting, and he utilizes plenty of newspaper space.

Mr. Blake makes a specialty of summer sales. Last summer he moved a great deal of old stock by sending out packages of Re-Creations to customers of his at their summer homes requesting that they return within a certain specified period of time those they did not wish to keep. This summer he will probably do the same thing.

One of the important things about this convention will be the open discussion of everything pertinent to the subject of phonograph selling. There will be a question box, of course, and it is none too soon for Edison dealers to finish jotting down questions which they would like to have put before the house at the convention. The open discussion bids fair to be mighty interesting. But aside from the discussion in session, private conversations with other dealers who have to meet identical problems would alone make the trip to New York worth while.

A VISITOR FROM NORWAY

A recent caller at the offices of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, was Th. Bjerke Gruner, from Christiania, Norway. Mr. Gruner, who is well known in Norwegian business circles, arrived here accompanied by Mrs. Gruner, and intends to make this visit a combination of business and pleasure.

He called at the Otto Heineman offices in view of the fact that he has recently become associated with a large phonographic enterprise which is rapidly becoming an important factor in Scandinavian commercial and musical life. Mr. Gruner planned to make an extended Western trip, visiting various business institutions in which he is interested.

OPENS SHOP IN YONKERS

The Concerto Phonograph Co., manufacturers of the "Concertola," has opened a shop at 36 Warburton avenue, Yonkers, N. Y., under the name of the Dell Distributing Co., which will be under the management of J. Dresner. A full line of Emerson records is carried.

The Denver Music Co., of Denver, has added the Brunswick to its talking machine department. The Victor and Columbia is also carried.

TALKING MACHINES ON THE RHINE

R. R. Souders, Former Columbia Man, Writes of Interesting Experiences in Germany

The World is in receipt of an interesting letter from Robert R. Souders, now in the Y. M. C. A. service with the army of occupation on the Rhine and well known as a talking machine man, having held managerial positions with the Columbia and other companies. He is at present business secretary of the Rhine Valley Leave Area, and sees to it that the boats taking the boys up the river are well supplied with machines and records as well as other necessities which make life pleasurable.

BOASTS OF A WAR RECORD

There recently returned to New York one of the Sonora "Portable" phonographs taken overseas by a New York soldier. This "portable" went away in its usual brown cowhide dress, but came back entirely different. Its present appearance, however, was not so very much of a surprise to those New Yorkers who had seen the War Department's parade of tanks and guns a short time ago. The little "Portable" is a mass of zigzag colored white, blue and brown streaks, and although the camouflage might not be eminently successful when it stands in the display rooms it doubtless would be highly effective if placed out in the open where this Sonora did most of its work in bringing joy and stimulation to our boys.

Sonora Portable Camouflaged

RECORD MATERIAL FROM WEEDS

Candelilla Wax Obtained From Waste Lands in Texas and Rio Grande Region Valuable

Candelilla wax, which is used in the manufacture of records, can now be obtained from Texas, and the wax industry has grown rapidly in that section of the country. This wax is obtained from the wild candelilla weed, and the commercial possibilities of this waste product were not realized until a few years ago. Since that time the value of the wax obtained from the Rio Grande region is in the neighborhood of a quarter of a million dollars a year. In the near future this region will be extensively developed and plants are now being constructed to obtain this wax.

CASH BONUSES FOR ACCURACY

Errors by Sales Force Cause of Much Loss to Employer—Reward of Accuracy Offers Incentive for Each to Do Good Work

There are many places in the routine of a retail store where slight errors by members of the sales force cause loss of money to the firm and make irritated and dissatisfied customers. The salesmen may write a name or address incorrectly or make a mistake in the price; the clerk may make a wrong entry or copy incorrectly; the auditing department may contribute an occasional error and the shipping clerk may bill the sale to the wrong person. All these errors, although they are as a rule trivial, cause annoyance and endless trouble to the firm and are all the more exasperating because they can be avoided with the exercise of a little care on the part of each individual connected with the sale.

Some stores realizing this fact, have instituted a system of rewards for accuracy; in other words, cash bonuses for the members of the force who make the fewest errors in their work. Given a little ambition, a mark to aim at, and a reward for attaining this goal, will make anyone strive to do the best work possible. It is not always possible to find people who will do accurate work just because they know it is to their advantage, for in the daily grind they often become careless and feel that it will make no difference to them in the end if they do make an error now and then. Cash bonuses for accuracy have proved very satisfactory wherever this system has been used, and is well worth the little expense to the house, for the cost is more than paid by the saving of lost effort and dissatisfaction. Keeping a record of the mistakes made during the month by each employe makes it possible to determine the efficiency of each and his value to the organization. By examining the records individual improvement can be noticed, and this serves as a guide to the management for promotion, because it reveals executive ability.

SOME RECENT PATHE VISITORS

H. E. Morrison, of Wright & Wilhelmy, Omaha, Neb., Pathé jobbers, who was a recent visitor at the factory of the Pathé Frères Phono. Co. in Brooklyn, spoke enthusiastically of financial conditions in his territory, and predicted a period of prosperity with a general increase of business throughout the West.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Potts also called at the Pathé factory recently, coming from Unionville, Mo., to inspect this plant. They have just opened a Pathé shop in that city and are making plans for an aggressive campaign.

Percy Hemus, well-known concert singer and Pathé artist, visited the Pathé factory recently and went through the building from roof to sub-cellar. He said that he had been making records so long for Pathé and had heard so much about the factory that he wanted to look at it himself. He was delighted with his visit and promised to call in the near future, when the new factory is completed.

In the illustrated supplement of the New York Times of May 25 there appeared a splendid photograph of Thomas A. Edison, his daughter, Mrs. Sloane, and his young grandson, Thomas Sloane—three generations of Edisons.

The Scotford Tonearm and Superior Universal Reproducer

The Ideal Combination

Plays All Makes of Records as they should be played

Price of Sample Prepaid
Nickel, $6.25 Gold, $7.75

Adjusted for Cabinet measuring 8 1/2 inches from center of Tonearm base to center of Turntable shaft

Distinctive Features

- ☞ The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same center in both positions.
- ☞ Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.
- ☞ The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.
- ☞ The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers.
- ☞ Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.
- ☞ The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.
- ☞ The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.
- ☞ The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

Why It Pays Talking Machine Dealers to Handle Accessories and Novelties

By Henry Daimer

For a great many years after the talking machine was first introduced to the American public in a thoroughly practical and musically artistic form there was no special effort made to develop accessories and novelties to sell in conjunction therewith. There was in fact no need for such things, because it took the entire effort and time of the retailers engaged in the talking machine business to promote the sale of machines and records in which the turnover was and is over 95 per cent. of the total sales made.

Within the last few years, however, conditions in the talking machine industry have changed materially. The number of manufacturers of both machines and records has increased to such an extent that to-day the retail dealer, instead of competing against four or five other products, finds himself seeking to sell a market that is also being sought by a great many others. Despite this fact the combined factory production of machines and the combined factory production of records have fallen very far short of satisfying the public demand, and retailers almost universally have been forced to operate in the face of a marked shortage of both machines and records, regardless of the particular brand or brands they might be handling.

This is the status of affairs to-day, and has been the status ever since the great world war first hampered factory production. It is, moreover, a condition that is largely responsible for the tremendous strides that have been made within the last few years in the accessory and novelty end of the talking machine industry. Retailers who normally would give but scant attention and time to accessories and novelties, owing to the comparatively small percentage of their total profit which would come through handling these goods, have found themselves in position, due to the shortage of machine and record stock, where they could not only afford to give time to the consideration of accessories and novelties, but could derive a fair percentage of their total profit from the handling of them.

All this being true, many inventors of great ability have concentrated on giving to the talking machine industry accessories and novelties that will have a popular appeal to the customers of the talking machine dealer and that will at the same time prove of commercial value for the dealer to handle. The results of the efforts made along this line are destined to be remarkable.

This is evidenced by the fact that in traveling around the country one can hardly find a talking machine dealer who does not handle one, and usually several different accessories and novelties.

The talking machine dealers, generally speaking, have been quick to realize the value of handling good, reliable accessories and novelties, as have also many prominent wholesalers. Probably the first thing that has attracted the notice of both retailers and wholesalers is the financial profit which many of these side lines are capable of producing when properly promoted. But the far-sighted ones have seen beyond this strictly dollar viewpoint, and have recognized a far greater accumulative value that accrues to the retail establishment that wins a local reputation for being the leading house from which to purchase accessories and novelties.

The far-sighted viewpoint is just this: Any retail establishment which establishes a record for being first in the local market with the latest reliable accessories and novelties automatically earns a reputation for being up to date and progressive. This reputation is worth an almost infinite amount to the dealers in an industry where the same impression cannot be conveyed through the main products handled, owing to the fact that the styles of machines and records do not change frequently, and what changes are made, or rapidly in getting out popular hits (as in the case of records), emphasizes the progress and up-to-dateness of the manufacturer rather than the dealer. In the case of accessories, on the other hand, the purchasing public relies more on the dealers' endorsement than on the original manufacturers, and therefore bestows the credit for progress, etc., on the dealer who first introduces novelties into a community.

Again the promotion of accessories is accomplished without added overhead expenses. They often make admirable features for use in window displays and for use in interior store arrangement. In either place they are brought to the attention of a wide field of buyers—in the case of window display to every passer-by and in the case of interior display to the purchasers and prospective purchasers of machines and records, and also to people coming to make payments on instalment sales.

Good, steady record customers are a particularly profitable field for accessories and novelties, but, discounting entirely the monetary side in the handling of accessories and products, it is doubtful if any dealer can afford to lose the great advertising value which comes through the handling of these specialties. It is indeed doubtful if anything will cause your store to be more talked about than accessories and novelties. Men, women and children love to tell their family and friends about the new this and that they saw at So and So's. It's wonderful advertising for a retail institution.

NEW STORE FOR COLUMBIA DEALER

J. A. Abrams, Columbia dealer of Pascagoula, Miss., has opened in new quarters in the People's Bank Building on Delmas avenue. This building is one of the handsomest in the city and offers an excellent opportunity to display the large line of Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia and Emerson records. Much space is being used in the local papers to advertise the new store where the Columbia is being featured.

CONVERTO CABINET EXPANSION

For over two years orders for Lundstrom Converto talking machine cabinets have been greater than manufacturing facilities could produce, but the C. J. Lundstrom Mfg. Co., of Little Falls, N. Y., have recently completed extensive improvements and have enlarged the facilities for making these cabinets so that the trade's immediate requirements can now be taken care of.

EXPORT TRADE INCREASES

Manufactures Now Going Abroad at Rate of $3,000,000,000 Annually, It Is Said

Since the termination of the war, exports of manufactures from the United States have continued to run at a rate of about three times as much as in the pre-war years, according to compilations of the National City Bank. The value of manufactures exported since the signing of the armistice has been at the rate of more than $3,000,000,000 annually, as compared with $1,000,000,000, or slightly less, one year before the war began.

Manufactures exported from the United States in November, 1918, the first month following the armistice, amounted in value to $272,000,000; in December, $229,000,000; in January, $281,000,000; in February, $280,000,000, and in March, $259,000,000, an average since the close of the war of $264,000,000 per month, or at the rate of $3,168,000,000 per annum, as against an average of little more than $1,000,000,000 per annum prior to the war.

These figures suggest that the large gains in exportation of manufactures which characterized the war years were by no means exclusively due to the demands for war requirements, but that, on the contrary, the growth in exportation of manufactures was largely due to other causes.

TO OPEN BRANCH IN LOS ANGELES

F. F. Brackett, Just Discharged From Aero Service, Will Represent Walter S. Gray in Southern California and Arizona

A visitor to The World sanctum last week was Forest F. Brackett, who received his discharge after 15 months' overseas service with the 157th Aero Squadron, where he rendered splendid service in behalf of Uncle Sam. Mr. Brackett left at once for Los Angeles, in which city he will have charge of Walter S. Gray's supply depot, and will also act as sales manager for southern California and Arizona for this enterprising San Francisco jobber in talking machine specialties.

Mr. Gray's trade has been developing so rapidly on the Pacific Coast that this new branch is absolutely necessary to meet the demands of his customers. Mr. Brackett will be joined in his work in this territory, at an early date, by Mr. Gray's son, who has been serving with the Army of Occupation in the Rhine sector, and who is expected back from Europe at an early date. Mr. Brackett and the junior Mr. Gray are old-time chums, and it goes without saying that they will make quite a record in developing the Walter S. Gray business throughout Southern California and Arizona.

THEY ARE ALL AMERICANS

How the Melting Pot of Humanity Contributed to Making of Music Through the Grafonola

A Columbia Grafonola lately shipped from the factory to South Africa for use among a British colonial regiment composed of Kaffirs, Sudanese, Hottentots and Egyptians was designed by an American named Smith. The material was selected by a Frenchman named Chagnon. The parts were machined by a Russian named Kuropatkin. Then hardened by an Irishman named Scully. Then plated by a Belgian named LaFeurs. Then buffed by a Greek named Verino. Then assembled by a Lithuanian named Marrowska. Then tested by an Englishman named Harmsworth. Then adjusted by a Bulgarian named Caraynoff. Then inspected by an Italian named Corsano. Then cabineted by a Hungarian named Horvath. Which had been made by a Turk named Kapitaakis. Which was polished by a Canadian named Waddell. Then crated by a Spaniard named Olsini. Then marked by a Scotchman named Christie. Then trucked by a Pole named Likaseski. Then forwarded by a Macedonian named Iamuly. All employed by a Yankee named—Gilhooley—Americans all.

SENDING IN SOME LARGE ORDERS

F. S. Soltin, who recently joined the sale staff of the New York Album & Card Co., has been sending in large orders from the Eastern trade, and to date has closed a number of important contracts for Nyacco albums. Mr. Soltin's extensive experience in the trade enables him to give the dealers valuable co-operation and service, and the results to date indicate that this service is meeting with the hearty approval of the trade. Mr. Soltin will leave shortly for a two months' trip, visiting the dealers in the West.

Important Notice to Dealers

Why Every Dealer Should Handle The Highest Grade Phonograph Steel Needle in the World.

The WALL-KANE

First—Each WALL-KANE needle is guaranteed to play 10 records on any Phonograph, the tenth playing as clear as the first.

Second—Phonograph owners will always purchase WALL-KANE needles, since they eliminate the troublesome changing of needles after each record.

Third—WALL-KANE needles are scientifically prepared, and, by reason of special composition, are beneficial to the grooves of the record, thereby adding to its life.

Fourth—WALL-KANE needles minimize the usual scratching sound of the ordinary steel needle and greatly improve the clearness and tone of reproduction.

TEST PROPOSED TO DEALERS TO PROVE THE SUPERIORITY OF

Wall-Kane Steel Needles

Take two standard disc records of the same selection, play one ten times with the same WALL-KANE loud needle; play the other record, the same selection, ten times, but with ten new, full-tone steel needles.

You will find that the record played ten times with the same WALL-KANE needle will sound clearer, will have less surface noise, and that under the magnifying glass the grooves of the record played ten times with the ten steel needles will seem to be more disturbed.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles, Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary steel needles, retails for 15c, costs the dealer 7½c., 8c. in the Far West.

MACHINE SHORTAGE STILL RETARDS CALIFORNIA TRADE

Sales Lost Through Not Having Advertised Goods in Stock—Conditions Improving—New Building for Clark Wise—Heine Co. Also Expanding—Trade Prospects Excellent in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 28.—Spring business has averaged large in volume with the leading talking machine dealers of California, notwithstanding the shortage of standard machines. The trade lives in hope that the manufacturers will soon again be in a position to supply goods promptly and steadily on all lines in popular demand. The inconvenience of not having well-advertised goods in stock is evident, and no doubt many sales are permanently lost because not clinched on the spot. High-class records are in steady demand, it being especially noticeable that McCormack records sold readily at the time the singer gave concerts in San Francisco. Small machines are moving well and a still brisker business in these machines and dance and song records is expected now that the vacation season is at hand.

Sonora Business Shows Steady Increase

The business of the Sonora Phonograph Co. on the Pacific Coast has shown a steady increase all along the line in recent months, and it is remarkable how large a proportion of the machines sold are of the more expensive models. Sonora jobbers report steadily increasing interest in Sonora goods. E. C. Johnston, manager of the Sonora Phonograph Shop, says the public appears to be much pleased with the new 1919 Sonora models which arrived here recently and that May business has averaged better than was expected. Several of the new $1,000 machines have already been sold.

Clark Wise Signs Lease for New Building

Clark Wise, who has been looking for a new location for many months by reason of his having to vacate his present store, has at last signed a lease for a long term on the entire building at 55 Stockton street. He will not be ready to move into the new quarters for some time yet, and the store will have to be remodeled. The new store has a frontage of thirty feet and is three stories in height. The location is exceptionally good, being in the heart of the retail shopping district. The owners of the building have promised to spend $20,000 on improvements before the tenant moves in. Mr. Wise expects to have his large talking machine department on the main and mezzanine floors, and the demonstration room will probably be located on the mezzanine floor. A new plate glass front will be built and the show window arrangements will be made as attractive as possible.

Eight-Story Building Planned

The Heine Piano Co., now located on lower Stockton street, has concluded a deal whereby it will have a new building on Stockton street, just north of Sutter. The plans call for an eight-story Class A building, which will cost approximately $125,000. A part of the building will be used as a conservatory.

Stern Corp. Expanding

The Stern Talking Machine Corp., of San Francisco, has completed plans for increasing its capitalization and expanding its business. The San Francisco branch will have an additional capital of $75,000, and the branch at Richmond, Cal., will have $15,000 additional. J. L. McInerney, formerly of San Francisco, is in charge of the Richmond store.

Visitors in San Francisco

William F. Stidham, the manager of the Los Angeles branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., and Frank Dorian, manager of the Seattle office, were in San Francisco during May conferring with Nathan Milnor, manager of the San Francisco office. The two visitors were entertained by motor trips into the surrounding country as guests of Mr. Milnor.

A Great Record Month

Andrew McCarthy, of Sherman, Clay & Co., head of the wholesale Victor business on the Pacific Coast, says more Victor records were sent out in April than in any other month thus far. Mr. McCarthy expects the machine situation to improve steadily from now on. Otto Rothlin, of the wholesale record department, paid a visit to the northern branches during the month to install an improved system in distributing and ordering records.

News of Wiley B. Allen Co.

The Wiley B. Allen Co. are to make improvements in the talking machine departments of several of their stores this summer. Besides the enlarging of the department in the San Francisco store, the Portland store will be remodeled and the talking machine department enlarged, while the store at San Jose will be remodeled in some departments. The Los Angeles store may also come in for some improvement work. James J. Black, formerly manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is out of the navy after serving about two years. Mr. Black is at present making a trip to the various branches of the company on the Coast. This house is highly satisfied by the way the public takes to the Brunswick machines and a large addition to the stock has just been received. The employes of the San Francisco and Oakland talking machine departments enjoyed a barbecue picnic at Niles Cañon on Sunday, May 25.

Other News of the Trade

Hon. William H. Johnson, a vice-president of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a visitor in San Francisco during the month.

Mr. Hartley, a Columbia dealer at Mountain View, and James Coffman, of the Modesto Music Co., Modesto, Cal., were in San Francisco on talking machine business last week.

R. H. Paulin, a well-known talking machine dealer of Santa Barbara, reports favorable results from his new store at Fillmore, Cal. A. Baronda is manager of the Fillmore shop.

Z. J. Loussac, a talking machine dealer of Anchorage, Alaska, was in San Francisco on one of his biennial trips during the month. He was entertained by Walter S. Gray, dealer in talking machine accessories, and he said business in Alaska was not brisk this year. Workers in the North have not had their wages advanced as fast as in other parts of the country and feel the pinch of high prices.

J. P. Garber, a prominent merchant of Kingsbury, Cal., recently put in a Columbia line and is enjoying splendid success with it in his district.

Mrs. M. Howell, of the Emporium record department, has resigned her position in order to reside at Portland, Ore., with her husband.

ACTIVITY IN LOS ANGELES TRADE

A recent visitor to New York was Sheldon Morris, general manager of the Southern California Hardwood & Mfg. Co., who is visiting the East for the purpose of securing equipment for the production of Hawthorne phonographs. Mr. Morris states that this phonograph is making exceptional progress, and that some of the best-known dealers in Los Angeles are now handling it. He also commented upon the fact that 150 accounts were opened in the past month.

TALKING MACHINE MEN, INC., ELECT NEW OFFICERS

J. T. Coughlin Again Heads Organization—Other Men Selected—Favor Passage of Stephens Bill—Gold Watch Presented to J. J. Davin—New Committees Appointed—Service Bureau Established

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization composed of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, was held on Wednesday, May 22, at the Marlborough Hotel, New York. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon and a good attendance was on hand.

According to the constitution of the association the election of new officers should be held in April, but at the April meeting a quorum failed to appear and it was necessary to postpone the election. While there was at first a misunderstanding as to the names of the nominees for the offices as submitted by the special committee appointed for that purpose this obstacle was soon swept away and the following officers were unanimously elected: J. T. Coughlin, president; Sol Lazarus, vice-president for New York; E. P. Perkins, vice-president for New Jersey; A. B. Clinton, vice-president for Connecticut; E. G. Browne, secretary, and A. Galuchie, treasurer. The executive committee will be composed of the following members: J. Schick, E. Leins, John Hunt, Irwin Kurtz, J. Helfer and L. Epstein.

At the luncheon each diner found at his plate a pamphlet containing propaganda in favor of the passage of the Stephens bill, which it is hoped will be passed at an early session of Congress. In the list of those supporting the measure is an imposing number of associations and individual firms, arranged by States. The pamphlet also contained the opinions of several statesmen who are supporting the measure.

J. J. Davin, who has headed the committees on banquets of 1918-1919, was presented with a gold watch by the association in appreciation of his work. It was presented with appropriate remarks by President J. T. Coughlin, who closed his address thus: "May this token of our respect for you be a source of permanent advantage and happiness to you, your family and friends is the sincere hope and wish of the Talking Machine Men, Inc."

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the association the following committees were appointed to hold office for the ensuing year:

J. T. Coughlin, permanent chairman; J. J. Davin, chairman of the outing committee. Grievance committee—Messrs. Arison, Helfer and Hunt. The dealers can readily appreciate the value of having a committee of this sort to confide their grievances to, which can be amicably adjusted and unpleasant misunderstandings brought to a quick and pleasant settlement. Law committee—Messrs. Kurtz, Mielke and Kay. This gives the members of the association free consultation on matters of delinquents, "skips," replevins, etc. The membership committee consists of H. Mielke, H. Bersin, Chester Abelowitz, B. Guy Warner, Louis Epstein, Sol Lazarus and A. Huesgen, and is composed of dealers representative of every manufacturers' line who are members in the association. George Millard and M. W. Gibbons were appointed as auditing committee.

A service bureau has been established under the chairmanship of Irwin Kurtz and Messrs. Velie and Davin have been appointed to assist, and the following will be the proposed duties of this committee, as outlined at the executive meeting:

"This committee is now in a position to render any service within their power that the dealers are in need of. The experience of the three members of this committee, together with the data they have collected for the past number of years, puts them in a position to answer and give advice on the majority of the dealers' problems, and such questions as they are unable to answer they will go out and dig up the information for the dealer in need. There is absolutely no charge for this service and the dealers should immediately avail themselves of this new bureau."

The month of July has been designated as "Membership Month." The drive will start July 1, with a luncheon, at which a very prominent speaker well versed on the subject of organization will address the members and prospective members. The lieutenants and their aids for the various sections of the city will be given their literature and instructions at this luncheon.

The Kerr & Smally Music Co., Phoenix, Ariz., opened on May 12. The store has been remodeled and additional demonstration booths have been installed.

COLUMBIA MAGIC MIRROR SIGN

Specialty Put Out by the Dealer Service Department of Columbia Co. Meets With Favor

The dealer service department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has produced recently a Columbia magic mirror sign which is meeting with considerable success. The face of the sign displays a perfect circular mirror, and when the current is off reflections are produced as in any ordinary looking-glass. When the light flashes the Columbia trade-mark glows through this mirror in an unusual multiple-repeating effect, fading indefinitely into the distance. The automatic flasher alternates the brilliant sign with the plain mirror. These incessant flashes are unusually penetrating and hit the eye with a positive result.

The face of the sign is framed in a one and one-half inch polished mahogany molding, fourteen inches in diameter, fitted with two wooden feet. The body is seven inches over all, including the cornucopia-shaped housing with vent holes, equipped with wire easel and adjustable to any height or angle.

$141,000 FOR CLEAN ADVERTISING

Associated Advertising Clubs of the World Extend Scope of Their Campaign Against Misleading Advertising—Advocate the Establishment of Standards of Practice

As the result of plans which have just been perfected the work which the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have been doing for the prevention of unfair competition through misleading advertising is to be multiplied several times, says a bulletin which comes out of the association's offices in New York City.

The plan calls for the raising of a special fund of $141,000 a year (on a three-year basis) and the selection of five prominent business men to act as trustees for the fund. These trustees are: F. A. Seiberling, president of the Good-year Tire & Rubber Co., Akron; Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., St. Louis; S. C. Dobbs, vice-president of the Coca-Cola Co., Atlanta; David Kirschbaum, president of the A. B. Kirschbaum Co., manufacturing clothiers, Philadelphia; Henry L. Doherty, president of Henry L. Doherty & Co., investment bankers, New York.

The bigger work will take four chief directions, (1) the establishment of a force of special investigators working out of the headquarters offices of the association in New York City, (2) intensive work for the establishment of additional local vigilance committees, this branch being under the supervision of William P. Green, who recently returned to the association from Washington, (3) the establishment of a bureau to do in foreign markets what has been done for the protection of trade in North America, and (4) intensified work in co-operation with various trade associations, representing important lines of business, toward the establishment of "standards of practice" by leaders in these various lines for the elimination of evil practices which have been allowed to grow up.

Local vigilance committees of advertising clubs are organized and their work is guided under the direction of the international office in New York City, and it has been found that the adoption of such standards has tended to eliminate much misleading advertising before it is published, for there are many practices among local advertisers which have grown up through competition and which each advertiser would be glad to eliminate if others would.

Simultaneously with the announcement that the $141,000 fund is to be raised and the work enlarged comes the further announcement that considerably more than a tenth of the fund is in hand.

HISTORICAL WINDOW DISPLAY

A window display showing the evolution of the talking machine from the most primitive model to the present-day machine was recently shown by McLellan & Stagg, Edison dealers, in Frederick, Okla. It attracted a great deal of favorable notice and praise.

ENTHUSIASM IS A VALUABLE ASSET TO THE SALESMAN

This Is Universally Conceded, But Its Practical Application in Securing Results Is a Matter of Distinct Importance—How Music Has Ever Exercised a Stimulating Influence for Good

There is no question but that enthusiasm is one of the biggest assets of any salesman. This fact is admitted. The practical application of the enthusiasm, however, is distinctly an important matter, and the manner in which this factor may be used to advantage in the selling of records is set forth as follows in "The Voice of the Victor" for May:

Have you ever had a friend come to you fresh from a fishing trip with his sunburned face alight, his eyes sparkling and radiating enthusiasm as he tells you about the big fight he had with a particularly scrappy, silvery denizen of the water? If so, you responded in sympathy and formed a mental picture of the sizzling line, the splash, the glitter of the silvery fins, the bent rod, the final plunge, and that crowning achievement—the landing. If the same friend told how his fishing trip had merely consisted in unsuccessful efforts to keep dry in pouring rain, and no fish biting, you would at once experience through sympathy and fellow-suffering a sense of dampened ardor and drooping discomfort.

This immediate response to the mood of others, so natural, so insistent, is an important factor in the Victor business. Your customers respond in exactly that way to your own enthusiasm over any record. If you have an enthusiasm for a certain record, and paint its glories in glowing terms, you may be sure your customer will enjoy a similar enthusiasm; while if you seem apathetic and indifferent, you will cast a similar blight upon him.

This is perhaps especially noticeable with dance records. Dancing is the prerogative of the young—the young of all ages. Dancing is indeed but an outward manifestation of inward sparkle and enjoyment; and this enthusiastic spirit is in a large measure engendered by the music and the manner in which the music is presented.

Enthusiasm is a kind of fire; it takes fire to kindle fire, and more fuel on the flames to make fire grow. The initial enthusiasm of the salesman and the joyous spirit of the music are to the customer as fuel is to fire. He burns with a like enthusiasm and both become enthusiastic through sympathy.

Have you ever questioned why music has from time immemorial been a part of religion? Why, for instance, were the Pilgrim Fathers compelled to add music to their worship after they had condemned it as an agent of the Evil One? The answer is that music engenders the fire of enthusiasm, without which mankind is almost incapable of perceiving the greater spiritual truths.

The same quality in music impels us to use music for dancing, mourning, soothing—for anything, in fact, which involves emotion.

For its fullest effect, however, music depends on the enthusiasm of those who present it to the audience. This is done to some extent—to a great extent—by the artist who makes the record. But if the salesman helps, if the salesman, too, responds to the spirit of the music, and awakens the enthusiasm of the customer, the enthusiasm engendered all around is immeasurably greater. The customer responds as you responded to the fisherman's tale; he glows with your enthusiasm.

Artists who perform in public will tell you that half the battle lies in winning the audience. Unless the artist can make his listeners share his enthusiasm for the music his best efforts will fall flat.

The late Evan Williams told us that he depended as much for success upon his own magnetic personality as upon his voice. Sometimes he would go into Victor dealers' stores and tell the salesmen something about his more difficult records. Such visits, he said, always increased the sales of his records, for, after hearing him, the salesmen would share something of his own enthusiasm in demonstrating the records to customers. Never again could they hear his records without seeing him as he stood before them with eyes alight describing the music he loved.

New Demonstration Car Has Been Added to Improve the Repair and Service Work

The Kimball-Upson Co., of Sacramento, Cal., had added to its force demonstration car No. 6, which will be used in the service of supplying spare parts for all kinds of talking machines. The repair and service department is in charge of W. Z. Pay, a well-known factory expert. A large supply of spare parts is kept on hand at all times, and many dealers throughout California, Nevada and Oregon have been availing themselves of this service. The talking machine department of the Kimball-Upson Co. is in charge of C. A. Moore, who says that the past month has been a very prosperous one.

The picture herewith shows John L. Taten and wick, Columbia and Pathé lines of machines and records and are persistent and enthusiastic developers of business.

He Wouldn't Buy the New Machine Without a VEECO MOTOR

That is why a private owner who had used a VEECO ELECTRIC MOTOR in his talking machine for 3 years and was going to sell it (including VEECO MOTOR) and purchase a high-class phonograph of another make refused to buy it until we assured him that a newest type VEECO MOTOR could be installed therein—that's satisfaction.

The improved VEECO electric motor is designed primarily and exclusively for Talking Machines. It is smooth and noiseless in action and practically fool-proof. Standard models run on any voltage from 100-125, A. C. or D. C., without adjustment. Other models for any voltage from 6-250. Furnished mounted on 12 or 12½ inch mahogany board ready to install, or without board, all ready to mount on such board as used by the manufacturer.

With the VITRALOID turntable, supplied with the motor, it makes a complete motor unit for high class machines.

CHOW RECORD THE LATEST

Still Another Use of the Talking Machine as a Preventive of Loneliness—This Time China Gives Us the Latest Fad in Records

Still another use for the talking machine! This time the latest wrinkle has its origin as far away as China, and the story was brought to light by the arrival of one of the big passenger ships from the Orient. Emmet W. Loree and his eight-year-old son who arrived in Manhattan from China the other day, brought with him a cherished record on which was recorded the conversation of the lad's favorite chow dog. When he was told that he would have to leave China the lad was very disconsolate at the thought of leaving his little friend behind. It was quite a problem to know just what to do, and the talking machine offered the solution. The boy's father had a record made of the dog's cheery "good morning" in his original barking style. Thus there was a complete record to bring to America, and now when the boy gets lonesome he takes out the record, hears his dog's voice, and is properly cheered up. This might be called a reversal of the well-known "His Master's Voice."

OCCUPY NEW STORE IN WATERBURY

WATERBURY, CONN., June 1.—The M. Steinert & Sons Co. has just moved its store into a new location which is in every way better adapted to meeting the needs of its rapidly growing business in this city. The store is still in North Main street, not far from the old location, and is 100 by twenty-four feet in dimensions. The interior is handsomely decorated and equipped with six up-to-date Unico booths, and is lighted by the indirect system. The store is under the management of Morton Probvensen, who is thoroughly familiar with the Victor line, which the store handles.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., June 1.—Rice & Kelly, of this city, whose establishment has been located at 285 North street, suffered severely from fire on May 14. This is a large furniture house, four stories in height, and one of its important departments was its phonograph, in which the Brunswick line was featured. Here particularly there was a severe loss. The total fire damage is estimated at $35,000.

PATHE DEALER IN NEW BEDFORD

John Alexander, of New Bedford, Mass., Pathé dealer, has opened a new store at 866 South Water street. At the formal opening a pleasing musical program was offered to the public. In addition to the Pathé phonograph and records this concern also carries musical supplies and musical instruments of all kinds.

The Griswold, Richmond & Glock Co., Meriden, Conn., has arranged with Frank Baker to take a newly created position as traveling representative for its Victrola department.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Same Governor Featured

Repair Department, Talking Machine World:

Does the shape of the governor ball or length of the governor springs make any difference in the running of a motor? Will a long governor spring tend to make a motor run smoother than a short governor spring?—M. B., Newark, N. J.

ANSWER.—No difference, it being understood that the balls and springs on governor are the same size, weight and shape. The shape of the ball in some cases will depend upon the amount of space you have in which to place governor, in relation to the casting, and should be determined at the time of designing the motor.

Why the Producer Blasts

Repair Department, Talking Machine World:

I have a machine of foreign make on which the reproducer worked very well when it was new. Recently, however, the reproducer blasts on ordinarily high notes and otherwise proves unsatisfactory. It has not been dropped or otherwise damaged, to my knowledge. Will you kindly suggest what may be the trouble with this sound box?—C. J. S.

ANSWER.—Blasts in reproducers are caused as follows: The rubber insulators or gaskets become dry and hard, leaving the diaphragm loose in its setting; the screws holding the needle arm to frame work loose, permitting the arm to become loose on its bearing points, the wax which is placed at the point of contact of the needle arm to the diaphragm may become cracked or the screws holding the metal back (or in some cases a face ring is used which presses against the gasket) may not be tight. If you look over all these points carefully, replace gaskets if necessary and tighten all screws, I would say the sound box should reproduce perfectly.

Spring Lubrication

Repair Department, Talking Machine World:

I have made several experiments in regard to spring lubricants, and have as yet found none that gives satisfaction.

No doubt you are familiar with the spring barrel in question, which is the new style Edison. There is an extra disc inside of the spring barrel cover which I cannot find the reason for using. Do you think this disc rubbing against the edge of the spring would cause a pounding sound, or jumping spring?

What do you think of dry graphite as a lubricant?—R. P., Indianapolis, Ind.

ANSWER.—For a spring lubricant for use in new style Edison motors would suggest that you try Dixon's Graphitoleo, which can be obtained in small cans and is manufactured by the Jos. Dixon Crucible Co., Jersey City, N. J.

As to the extra disc inside spring cage, do not think the same could cause trouble unless the side in contact with spring had become rough or cut in some way.

Think your trouble is more in the graphiting. I never use dry graphite for spring lubrication.

SOME INTERESTING LITERATURE

The Hoffay Talking Machine Co., Inc., manufacturers of the Hoffay "Airtight" talking machines and the "Resurrectone," a patented sound box, are issuing a new pamphlet describing the Hoffay machine and especially featuring the fact that the Hoffay tone arm is airtight in playing either the hill and dale or the lateral cut type of records.

Included in this publicity material are illustrations of a young lady demonstrating that by blowing through the tone arm when the sound box is either in the lateral cut or hill and dale position the tone arm remains airtight. The Hoffay Co. state this is an exclusive feature of the tone arms of their machines and they intend to give this and other features of their product much publicity.

The Melodious Phonograph Corp., of Delaware, has filed a notice of revocation.

and vice versa, too—if you tell your customers how Fibre Needles protect their investment in records.

Yes, it works both ways. A new patron buys high priced records from you. You remind him or her, casually, of the Fibre Needle and its many virtues. No wear on the records, ever. No hiss. Only the “pure” music, beautifully subdued in volume. Result: a Sale of Fibre Needles.

Then what happens? Friend patron, at home, “loves” the effect. Recalls your statement regarding “no wear”. Figures naturally that so long as the investment is thoroughly safeguarded, more fine records ought to be added to the just-started collection. And then—back to you for the records!

Constructive salesmanship, isn't it? See how it works out for you.

And, by the way, have you plenty of B & H Fibre Needles on hand?

EQUIPMENT GREATLY INCREASED

Thomas Mfg. Co. Add Materially to Their Manufacturing Facilities—Almost Every Department Expanded—Additional Inspectors and Engineers Cover Progress of Work

DAYTON, O., June 5.—The great increase in the demand for Dayton motors has compelled the Thomas Mfg. Co., of this city, to add materially to its manufacturing facilities. Recent additions to the factory equipment include a battery of multiple spindle drills, carrying from twelve to sixteen spindles, and more Brown & Sharpe automatic machinery, capable of working to close limits at high speed. This equipment is all under the direction of the inspection, engineering and experimental departments.

The inspection department has been reorganized with a thoroughly experienced chief engineer in charge. Additional inspectors have been stationed at various points covering the progress of the work, and any part having more than one operation is inspected between each operation. Limits are established as close as .0005 on certain parts, and other parts having more liberal allowances are held just as rigidly to the limit. The engineering department is complete in every detail, having a chief engineer and his assistants, and a department set aside for their work of designing, drafting models, improvements and adjustments.

A completely equipped experimental department is in operation with high grade machinery, tools and testing equipment. New motors are built in this department, torn down and rebuilt, in order to give the motor the advantage of the most severe tests. All suggestions from the users of Dayton motors are referred to this department for study and final adoption as standard factory practice. The men in this department have the advantage of working in soundproof booths, so that the Dayton motors are being developed constantly along the lines of noiselessness. The playing capacity is also being increased by studying and eliminating friction and loss of power at all points.

Another development in connection with the Dayton motor is the establishment of a practical service department. Service men are being trained constantly and are available for the use of any manufacturer desiring technical help

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW DISPLAYS DEVELOP PUBLIC INTEREST

A Recent Display of Talking Books and Dolls by G. Schirmer, Inc., the Prominent New York Music Publisher, the Subject of Much Commendation for Its Attractiveness

The Emerson Record Sales Co., 6 West Forty-eighth street, New York, metropolitan distributors of Emerson records and "talking books" and "talking dolls," is establishing a chain of window displays throughout the metropolitan district featuring these "talking" records.

Forty-third street, New York, one of the best-known music publishers in the country. Every item of "talking book" production is distinctly emphasized in this display—"talking books," "talking dolls" and "talking animals."

The Emerson Record Sales Co. states that this series of window displays is producing substantial sales and gratifying results, and dealers are enthusiastic regarding its practical value.

in the installation of his motors. These men are sent to the talking machine factories completely equipped with everything necessary to demonstrate the most economical methods of installing Dayton motors in their cabinets.

Final inspection of all details of the motor is made in the shipping room, insuring customers against any annoyance caused by the lack of a screw, bolt or other small accessory when motors are received. Extraordinary care is devoted to the motor power plant—the springs.

All springs used in Dayton motors are manufactured on a detailed specification not only as to size, thickness and length, but as to pulling power at various stages during the unwinding. The factory tests all springs on specially constructed testing equipment, and they are retested in the Thomas laboratory.

The Thomas Mfg. Co. also report an increasing demand for their tone arms and sound boxes, as well as their universal tone arm which is manufactured in several designs.

THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., June 2.—It does one good to see the enthusiasm that is everywhere manifest in the local talking machine business. Those who have been asleep have suddenly waked up to the opportunities that await them in this line of endeavor; and those who were afflicted with apathy or indifference have suddenly realized that there is big business to be had if only they exercise the accepted methods of seeking business. Everywhere there is a revival of interest and no better proof of the faith and confidence that the Boston trade has in the future of the industry is to be had than to note the changes, renovations, improvements and enlargements that everywhere are going on among the dealers and jobbers. Nobody is questioning about what is to come; all seem to know, to be convinced that there is a great future and those whose vision carries them into the period of next fall see something way beyond anything that ever was known even in the best days of the business. Already one hears of a phenomenal growth month by month, and May with some of the retail houses showed a 100 per cent. increase or more over previous months. The business is pushing along with a mighty rush and no mistake about it.

Prepared for a Busy Season

The Arch street establishment of M. Steinert & Sons Co. is making great preparations for a busy season, and the whole establishment from Robert Steinert, the manager, down to the most inconspicuous employe is fired with a zeal and enthusiasm that augurs well for prosperity.

It was about nineteen years ago that the Steinert house first became interested in the Victor proposition and beginning in a small way to demonstrate to a musically-inclined public that here was something that eventually must find its place in every home, the business has been developed to such a degree that today M. Steinert & Sons Co. not only has been able to build up a big local business but a similarly successful condition obtains at the firm's several branch houses throughout New England. One of the secrets of the success of the Steinert house is service in all that the word means—service that is prompt, service that is courteous, service that plays no favorites. At no time perhaps in the history of the Steinert business was there so severe a test of the company's real disposition toward dealers as during the late war and that its entire output was diverted to its dealers indicated that under the stress of emergency the house could be depended on to do its utmost to keep the trade in a satisfied mood. With conditions now vastly improved the best service possible is given dealers, who are getting a far larger proportion of their orders than in a long time.

Great Welcome for Mrs. Frances E. Clark

Mrs. Frances E. Clark, manager of the educational department of the Victor, was in Boston May 27, the guest while here of the Eastern Talking Machine Co. She came over for the special purpose of giving a talk before some of the music supervisors and teachers of music in the schools and it was her first visit here in several years. The recital hall of the Eastern's retail establishment, occupying almost the entire third floor of the Tremont street building, was used for the conference. Warren Batchelder, retail manager, was in charge of the arrangements, and Miss Grace Barr assisted in planning the afternoon's program.

There were thirty-five men and women present, including John O'Shea, head of the music department of the Boston public schools. Mr. Horning, who has general supervision of the Victor business in the New England territory, was present, and Mrs. Horning presided over the tea table. Following the afternoon's program Mrs. Clark was entertained at Pemberton Inn, whither the company of six, which included Retail Manager Batchelder, Miss Barr, Mr. and Mrs. Horning and Herbert Shoemaker, general manager of the Eastern's business here, went by motors. Mrs. Clark was brought back to Boston in time to take the midnight train for New York.

Install Unit Construction Exhibit

The Eastern Talking Machine Co. has aligned itself with the Unit Construction Co. of Philadelphia, which is arranging to install a model booth, 9 by 15 feet in dimensions, at the Essex street headquarters. There will be a record alcove with racks and wrapping counters, and eight panels will illustrate the different methods of booth construction, finishes and equipment. The Eastern Co. will be the New England headquarters of the Unit Co., and when Harry Baish of this latter house comes to town he will use this as his headquarters.

Conference of Columbia Dealers

Another of those delightful dealers' conferences was held by the Columbia in the Swiss room of the Copley-Plaza on May 13. Marion Dorian, the auditor of the Columbia, gave a talk, telling some facts about the early beginnings of the company and tracing its development down to the present time, giving special emphasis to the various factors which have been conspicuous in bringing the Columbia to where it stands to-day. It is safe to say that the Columbia dealers went away with a new fund of information regarding the really brilliant history of the company. For special entertainment there was Irving Kaufman, tenor, one of the Columbia artists, who contributed several songs.

Some of the out-of-town dealers present at this conference were the Misses Burns and Jeffery and Mr. McFee of F. W. Peabody Co. of Gloucester; Mr. Kingsbury of the G. H. Tilden Co., of Keene, N. H.; Mr. Hooper, manager of the graphophone department of the W. G. Brown Co., of Gloucester, and his associate, Mr. Johnston, and Mr. Steele of the Steele Furniture Co., of Derry, N. H.

Changes in Steinert Branch Personnel

The Steinert Company's Arch street store is soon to have the third floor equipped with Unico booths and there is to be a general rearrangement of the whole establishment with the one idea of increasing the quality of service and placing goods before the public in the most attractive way possible. Through its ingenious exhibits the company hopes to educate dealers as to the most efficacious way to advertise their goods.

Changes have been announced by the Steinert Co. in some of the personnel of its branch stores. Frank Cunningham, who was paymaster in the merchant marine, and who was formerly in the employ of the Steinert Co., is now in charge of the Bridgeport, Conn., establishment; Jerry Spillane, who formerly was with the Eastern Co. before he entered the nation's service, is now with the Springfield store; and Ed Welch, also with the Eastern before the war, is with the New Bedford warerooms. Emmet Ryan, after two years in France, is back with the house, devoting his time to the outside wholesale end of the business.

Sign Up Many New Dealers

The new Sonora phonographs that Manager Joseph H. Burke is receiving at the warerooms of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co. incorporate some of the important changes on which the Sonora Co. has been working for some time, and dealers have been quick to pick them up. Manager Burke has signed up several new contracts, these including G. W. Marsden, of Lawrence, and J. E. Bostock, of Taunton. Big business is the report that one gets from this house. A new advertising campaign is soon to be inaugurated in and around Boston, one that will show up the Sonora proposition to a new following. Business in the Silvered-toned needles is reported by Manager Burke as being very large, and several Boston houses are disposing of quantities of them.

Install New Service Department

Manager Burke is about installing a new service department in his Columbus avenue headquarters. This department will be under the supervision of Robert A. Powers, who comes here with a wide knowledge of what dealers need and should have in their business. The department will be completely equipped with signs and such accessories as a live dealer should possess by way of focusing attention on what he has to offer his clientele.

Makes Encouraging Report for Month

Manager Oscar W. Ray, of the Emerson New England, makes a most encouraging report of what the month just past was able to show, for there was a marked increase in all the products which the house carries. This of course was especially true of the Emerson records, the call having been especially heavy for some of the new reproductions.

Mr. Rosenfield, of the Emerson International, was in town about the middle of May and gave a talk to the salesmen. Another who was here and was entertained by Manager Ray was Mr. Porske, the sales representative of the Emerson International. While here Mr. Porske closed up with the West End Phonograph Co. at 74 Leverett street, this city, and with the Conclave Co. at 95 Staniford street, also in the West End. Arthur H. Cushman, president of the Emerson New England, was another caller, but he makes quite frequent visits to this city to consult with Manager Ray.

Manager Ray went over to New York over the double holiday (which included Memorial day) and he was obliged to go by rail, as his handsome new motor car has not yet arrived, though ordered some time ago. On his way home he made several stops to survey the business condition, these including places in Connecticut and Massachusetts.

The Boston Vocalion Chapter of the Aeolian Employees' Association was created here during the early part of May, and the organization bids fair to be an important factor, promoting the business and social interests of all who are members. At the regular gatherings the members of the families of the employes and their friends always will be welcome. The next meeting will be held on June 19, and by that time the organization will have been pretty well under way. An especially good time is antici-

John Alsen, formerly with George Lincoln Parker before entering service, has accepted a good offer from the Edison Co. to attach himself to its Springfield store, which has been lately taken over and moved from Worthington street to Main street. The store has been handsomely decorated and all the latest appliances for the better handling of business have been installed.

Some Personal Notes

Manager Fred H. Silliman, of the Boston quarters of the Pardee Ellenberger Co., is planning to go over with all his staff to the Edison convention which is to take place late this month in New York City.

Mr. Horning, general supervisor for the New England territory of the Victor, went over to Camden toward the end of the month, taking advantage of the double holiday. Another who went to Camden was Manager Shoemaker, of the Eastern, who, besides conferring with Victor officials, had the pleasure of spending the weekend with his family.

Paul Baerwald, sales manager for the Otto Heineman Co., was over here from New York the latter part of the month calling on the trade.

Arthur Chamberlain, manager of the phonograph department of the Iver Johnson Co., was away from his headquarters the middle of the month because of a trouble which affected his eyes.

Harry Fox, one of the Columbia artists, was lately in town and was taken about and introduced to some of the leading Columbia dealers by J. F. Carr, of the dealers' service department of the Columbia forces

Charles Shriber, a live young man, conversant with music in its various branches and especially familiar with Columbia records, has been appointed assistant manager of the Song Shop, one of Jerome H. Remick's enterprises.

Welcome for Wm. G. Gaston

A local visitor whom the Victor trade was glad to see the latter part of May was William G. Gaston, who is now the Victor traveling representative for the States of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Mr. Gaston is just out of service, where he was an ensign in the United States navy for eighteen months. During that time he was on the Battleship "Montana" stationed in the North Sea. Before entering service he was the Victor representative in New York City.

Manager R. O. Ainslie, of the Pathé, has just signed up the Happy Home Furniture Co. of New Bedford, which has installed a good-sized Pathé department, which will be under the joint management of H. J. Magnant and George Jusseaume. A large initial order for machines and records was placed. Another to take on the Pathé line is William Cuff, of South Braintree.

J. A. Tidmarsh in "Our Midst"

A new Pathé expert soon to appear in the local field is J. A. Tidmarsh, who comes to Boston from Chicago at the earnest solicitation of Manager Ainslie, who was associated with him in that Illinois city before coming East. Mr. Tidmarsh is coming to assist Mr. Ainslie in the New England headquarters, his special wish being to educate dealers in the use of Pathé superlatives backed up with a sound knowledge of the line. Mr. Tidmarsh has been associated with the Pathé goods for five years.

Busy Times With Ditson Co.

Business with the Victor department of the Oliver Ditson Co. continues good, and there is an increased demand for the higher-priced outfits. Manager Henry Winkelman is pleasantly anticipating the return of one of his faithful employes, Joseph Carlson, who has been at the front about a year and who is expected to arrive in New York in a few days. Mr. Winkelman is going as usual this summer to his farm at Athol, whither he goes and comes daily during the warm weather.

EDISON DEALERS FOR MICHIGAN CONVENE IN CLEVELAND

Convention of Edison Dealers for Michigan and Northern Ohio Discuss Many Topics of Interest—Warm Weather Helps Trade—Recent Important Grinnell Bros. Move—News of Interest

DETROIT, MICH., June 5.—It has been mighty warm for the past two weeks and indications point to a continuance of warm weather. It has been a stimulant in many lines of trade—in fact most lines, and this ultimately results in better business for the talking machine dealers. Record business is good, many people buying in large quantities to take to their summer homes. Especially popular are the dance numbers, one-steps and fox-trots.

There is a great tendency for better music, not the too classical selections, but the tuneful selections from the operas and musical shows. Dealers say they are selling more Red Seal records than ever and the same statement comes from those who are handling the various lines of talking machines.

The Phonograph Co. was host to about seventy-five Edison dealers from Michigan and Northern Ohio recently, who came to participate in the fourth annual convention. The meetings were conducted by R. B. Alling, general manager of The Phonograph Co., Detroit jobbers for the Edison, and the business sessions morning and afternoon were held in the recital room of the Edison Shop, 254 Woodward avenue. The entertainment was most lavish, comprising a luncheon at noon at the Hotel Pontchartrain grill room and a banquet and dinner dance at the same hotel starting at 6.30, at which there was also considerable entertainment. There were many subjects discussed pro and con at the business sessions, among them canvassing, salesmanship, advertising, tone test, new models, handling accessories, etc. T. J. Leonard, sales manager at the factory, was present and he delivered a talk on the new period models which will be in the dealers' hands during the summer months. Charles C. Fogarty, of Chicago, explained a special dealers' advertising service for Edison retailers which had been prepared by his agency. J. J. Callahan, now territorial supervisor for the Edison Co., was on hand. All in all the convention was very successful, both from a business and social standpoint. We are glad to mention that every dealer present expressed himself optimistically on trade conditions, declaring that if they could get the merchandise when they wanted it there wasn't any question that 1919 would easily be a banner year for dealers in this State.

A. A. Grinnell, treasurer of Grinnell Bros., who looks after the wholesale Victor departments of the firm, assisted by Charles H. Grinnell, announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Lola Marion, to Lloyd G. Grinnell. The wedding will take place June 25.

During the convention of the Edison dealers here a few weeks ago there was a special display of the new Edison period models which caused a great deal of interest and comment. Dealers were most enthusiastic over the new designs and all seemed to feel that they could sell large quantities of them. The Edison Shop has been pushing the new Simplicity motor of late, with good success.

Sam Lind, manager of the Columbia wholesale branch here, says he is already near his quota for the year and that he expects to be on "velvet" by the first of August.

Charles H. Grinnell, manager of the Grinnell Bros. wholesale Victor business, says there has been some improvement in the arrival of merchandise from the Victor factory, but that they will certainly have to "step more lively" to keep pace with the demand.

Roy Dupraw, of the Manophone Corporation, who is in charge of sales for Michigan, including the retail store on Broadway, has been enjoying a very brisk trade at the local store and says that dealers handling the Manophone have been ordering most liberally. The Manophone is made in Adrian, Mich.

The Leeds Phonograph Co. has opened a retail store at 234 Griswold street.

Dealers report a very brisk demand for small talking machines for use at summer resorts.

The Hudson store has carried some very interesting advertising lately on the Cheney talking machine, which has been proving a big hit at the Hudson institution. Several big shipments were received during the past sixty days, but the machines were disposed of almost as fast as they were received.

It seems to be generally true with dealers that it is not a question so much as to what a talking machine costs, providing it is not too high, but rather of how much down and how much per week, according to Wallace Brown, who is extremely busy operating his two retail stores, in addition to supervising the Brunswick wholesale department of the Brunswick.

Max Strasburg is enjoying the best year he ever had—and he is also doing more golfing than ever. He is one of Detroit's ardent golfers.

The Pathé Shop, Broadway, operated by H. N. Ness Co., has been doing considerable advertising of late and it is getting a lot of business as the result. The Pathé phonograph has come into great prominence during the past year and the Pathé records are at least 100 per cent. more popular to-day than a year ago.

The Sonora has a select list of Michigan dealers, and is very careful in signing up new dealers. They would prefer to have fewer dealers thoroughly responsible and who will push the line than dealers who simply buy the merchandise but who do not push it.

REMOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The Culp Phonograph Co. have moved to their new and greatly enlarged quarters at 298 Broadway, New York City, where they are surrounded by a number of the leading companies in the field, and therefore convenient to the visiting trade. Their new quarters afford exceptional facilities for manufacturing, and finishing touches are being placed on their attractive new showroom which will provide a harmonious setting for the eleven styles of the Culptone machines which constitute the line. A. Culp, president of the company, reports an increasing demand for the products of this company, whose slogan is "Made Up to a Standard, Not Down to a Price."

AFTER an ordinary steel needle plays one record the needle point is worn off (Photomicrograph A). But after playing one record with the remarkable Revolution! Opportunity!

The Talking Machine Industry is facing a great Transition Period—almost a Revolution—especially in the production and marketing of RECORDS.

We believe that right now there is a greater opportunity for distributors and dealers to lay the foundation of a great business, or greatly to increase an already established business, than there has been for the last 15 years, or will be for many years to come.

Grey Gull Records are taking a part in this revolution; building broad and deep, with a greater regard to business ten years from now than to the immediate future.

Within 30 days we will be manufacturing enough records, in both Lateral and Hill and Dale, to meet the needs of our present distributors, and also to take on a few more.

We will be glad to communicate with strong, progressive concerns in any part of the country, whether or not they have previously been closely associated with the Talking Machine industry, who are willing to represent us in their territory.

EXCLUSIVE SONORA SHOP IS OPENED IN INDIANAPOLIS

Charles Mayer & Co. to Handle This Line Exclusively With Ernest L. Arthur in Charge—Pathé Expansion—Edison Shop Publicity—Pearson Club Organized—Demand for Victors Is Active

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., June 6.—Charles Mayer & Co., conducting one of the best-known stores in the State, have opened an exclusive Sonora talking machine department. Ernest L. Arthur, who was formerly in charge of the Music Shop, of Kokomo, is manager. The Kiefer-Stewart Co., distributors of the Sonora in Indiana, for more than a year carefully studied the Indianapolis field with the idea of getting a high-class representation for the Sonora here, and chose the Charles Mayer & Co., which was established in 1840, and has a large store building in one of the finest locations in the city. The Sonora department fits into the business ideally and an aggressive newspaper advertising campaign will be started. The Sonora department has four large booths finished in gray enamel inside and with mahogany outside. Floor lamps in the booths add to the attractiveness. All the Sonora models are carried from the $100 to $1,000 styles.

E. R. Eskew, manager of the Pathé Shop, is encouraged over the improvement in the shortage condition in machines and records. Business is good, and Mr. Eskew is confident that the Pathé will make a record in sales in Indianapolis this year. He has delivered to the city recreation department the three Pathé Army and Navy models that will be taken around to the city recreation centers during the summer.

The Victrola department of the Fuller-Ryde Music Co. continues to enjoy a good business, C. J. Fuller reports.

T. H. Bracken, manager of the Starr Piano

Co., says that the Starr phonograph and record sales are keeping up a good record, and the rainy weather during May did not affect the business seriously.

Photographs of views of the Edison Shop were used effectively in newspaper advertising by A. H. Snyder, manager, in featuring the new Edison. The entire force of the advertisement and window display was to emphasize the fact that the Edison phonograph is the result of experiments in perfecting the New Edison, which cost $3,000,000.

One of these photographs showed the window of the Edison shop in which the new Edison machine occupied the center of the stage. On one side was a large poster showing the portrait of Thomas A. Edison and on the other was a dollar bill with the statement that it took 3,000,000 of them to perfect the new Edison. The record department of the store was featured in a special picture showing the record racks and arrangement of stock. The third picture is reproduced herewith and shows the display of the machine itself in the beautiful sales rooms.

The talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co. has organized a club known as the A. M. Club. Miss Lola Glasscock is president; Miss Mildred Mason, vice-president; Miss Ethel Hankins, secretary; Miss Frieda Ruth, society editor, and Miss Hazel Thomas, treasurer. Mrs. J. Ellison Fish, in charge of the department, and Mrs. Blanche Mitchell are honorary members. The purpose of the club is to stimulate co-operation among the department employes. What the initials A. M. stand for is a deep secret as The World correspondent learned when he asked for the full name of the club.

George Kadel, one of the crack Edison salesmen at the Edison Shop, who was in the tank service in France, is back on the job. A. H. Snyder, manager, reports that business during May was fine. The shop has bought a new delivery truck.

W. G. Wilson, manager of the Grafonola Shops, Inc., reports that business in May was ahead of the preceding month. Miss E. L.

Schneider, who has made a nice record as a saleswoman in the shop, is to marry Morris Huber, an advertising man, in June.

"Business is keeping up better this spring for a longer time than I have ever seen it," said C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co. store, which handles Columbia and Windsor machines.

H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, which handles Victrolas exclusively, visited the factory last week. Mr. Whitman said that when one sees the hundreds of machines the factory is turning out he is forced to wonder where they all go and why there is such a shortage.

Miss Minne Springer, manager of the Victor department of Taylor's, says that business is very good. The seal system of selling records, not permitting any to go out on approval, is making a hit with the customers of the store.

The Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributor, has rearranged its offices, increased its storage space and fitted out a room especially for visiting dealers. Walter E. Kipp, president of the company, is proud of the claim that he now has the best equipped wholesale house among Edison distributors. He is working hard for the Edison dealers' convention.

Back orders are being caught up with slightly at the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributors. Records are coming in better.

At the Stewart Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, business is still limited to the supply of machines and records, but the company is expecting soon to handle all its demands.

W. A. Wilson, general manager of the Columbia Co., visited the wholesale branch here recently. At the last regular monthly meeting of Columbia dealers Capt. Fuelcher, of Winton & Livingston, New York, spoke on the co-operation the dealers could give in arranging for the Columbia artists to appear in concert here. C. P. Herdman spoke on the value of co-operative advertising. Ben Brown, manager of the wholesale branch, discussed general conditions.

CLEVELAND TRADE MAKING DRIVE FOR SUMMER BUSINESS

More Stock Now Available—Inauguration of "Dry" Period Destined to Help Business—New Wurlitzer Home Nearly Ready—Dealers Attend Piano Convention in Chicago—Trade of the Month

CLEVELAND, O., June 5.—Talking machine dealers are making an unusually hard drive for mid-summer business. More stock is now available than has been supplied in many months and the outlook for a good season is especially bright. Members of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio are enthusiastic over the business outlook, according to Herman Wolfe, president of the organization. A prosperous summer season is also expected by R. E. Taylor, district manager of the Starr Piano Co.; the Fischer Co.; W. F. Young, manager of the Cincinnati branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., and E. M. Buel, head of the Cheney Phonograph Sales Co.

The Cheney Sales Co., 4400 Euclid avenue, reports an ever-increasing demand for Cheney talking machines and records. This enterprising Cleveland concern has developed a big business since it was organized several months ago.

Cleveland went dry May 26, when more than 1,300 saloons closed their doors under an amendment to the constitution adopted by the State's voters last November. Hilarious scenes marked the closing days of the "wet" period.

Business men are not worried over the outcome of the city's going dry. Piano, player-piano and talking machine dealers generally say they are glad "booze" has been eliminated, believing that better business will result in the end. They reason that salesmen who drank will now be better qualified during business hours to wait on patrons and that "mornings after" will no longer affect good salesmanship. Thus far none of the saloon sites have been let to music dealers. Cleveland will be out $1,000,000 a year by reason of there being no saloons, as each paid $1,000 a year license.

The Wurlitzer Co.'s new home in the six-story Euclid Building, 1015 Euclid avenue, will be ready for occupancy within a few months. The Wurlitzer Co., through Rudolph Wurlitzer, vice-president of the Cincinnati concern, recently acquired this new store site in the heart of the city on a twenty-year leasehold, rentals for the entire period aggregating about $1,000,000. The Euclid building property will be remodeled into one of the most complete music stores of the Middle West. Pianos, organs, talking machines, records, string and band instruments, music rolls, and other articles will be handled. The Wurlitzer Co.'s quarters, 600 Huron road, have been outgrown. The new site is more advantageous from a retail viewpoint, it being in the most valuable realty section of Cleveland's downtown business and shopping district, just a short distance east of what is known as "Gold Row," where the leading banks and other financial institutions are located.

The Collister & Sayle Co., Victor talking machine dealers, had a fine window display of stock for Memorial Day.

The Heuter Jewelry Co., 5372 St. Clair avenue, is one of the enterprising Cleveland concerns which sells Victor records and Victrolas as drawing cards.

"A Good Man Is Hard to Find" is a Victor record the C. C. Lipstreu & Son, 4025 Payne avenue, are pushing. Claus & Schroeder, 4124 Clark avenue, are booming OkeH talking machine records, among them being "Sundown in Birdland."

The Hippodrome Song and Gift Shop, 740 Euclid avenue, is one of the neatest places Columbia phonograph record seekers find in Cleveland when looking for novelties. This store, operated by Jerome H. Remick & Co., is full of everything interesting to music lovers.

"I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" is a Cheney record the Caldwell Piano Co. is pushing in show window displays and advertisements.

Cleveland dealers in Columbia talking machines and records are featuring Graveure, declared to be the "pre-eminent baritone." Columbia records reproducing pantomime dances by Colonel Read's Band are also featured.

The Aldrich-Howey Co., East Fourth street furniture dealer, is among the latest to add Victor records to the firm's general stock.

The Fischer Co., Pathé distributor, is featuring music rolls in window displays and pushing this class of stock with splendid results.

Many of the Cleveland talking machine dealers were visitors to Chicago the first week of this month, going to attend the series of conventions held there in the interest of the music trade business. The attendance of retailers and distributors was the largest on record, talking machine retailers who handle player-pianos and pianos joining the straight-out piano merchants, giving zest to this national gathering.

Among the visitors to Chicago were Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., and former president of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio; Herman Wolfe, head of the Wolfe Music Co. and president of the talking machine men's organization; Henry Dreher, head of the B. Dreher's Sons Co.; R. E. Taylor, district manager of the Starr Piano Co.; Harlan Hart, manager of the musical instrument department of the May Co.; A. L. Maresh, secretary of the Cleveland Music Trades Association; A. B. Smith, head of the A. B. Smith Piano Co. and president of the Cleveland Music Trades Association; Walter S. Raeder, head of the Harmony Music Shoppe; Otto Muelhauser, of the Muelhauser Brothers Piano Co., dealers in Corona talking machines; G. M. Ott, head of the Ott Piano Manufacturing Co., and several sales managers of other concerns as well as those just mentioned.

Walter Logan, vice-president of the McMillin Music Co.; Robert L. White, head of the Robert L. White Co.; M. O. Matlin, head of the Home Piano Co.; E. M. Buel, president of the Cheney Sales Co., distributors of Cheney phonographs; W. B. Ulrey, manager of the Cleveland branch of the Wurlitzer Co.; Irving H. Buescher, manager of the Buescher Co.; J. O. Raeder, secretary-treasurer of the Caldwell Piano Co.; W. F. Young, manager of the Cincinnati branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.; E. L. Lyon, sales manager of the Eclipse Musical Co.; Samuel Bruck, of H. B. Bruck & Sons; W. W. Wirth, head of the W. W. Wirth Co.; and Rex C. Hyre, attorney for the members of the Cleveland Music Trades Association.

Among the current popular talking machine records in Cleveland are these:

Columbia—"By the Camp Fire" and "Mammy o' Mine," by the Sterling Trio; "Bring Back Those Wonderful Days," by Bert Williams; and "The Music Box," by the Columbia Miniature Orchestra.

Starr—"An Old Sweetheart of Mine" and "Out to Old Aunt Mary's," by Harry E. Humphrey; "How Are You Going to Wet Your Whistle?" by Henry Frankel; "Eyes That Say I Love You," by Sam Ash; and "One and Two and Three and Four," by Irving Kaufman.

Victor—"Twilight," by Amelia Galli-Curci; "You'll Find Old Dixie in France," by Pietro; "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose," by Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra; "The Royal Vagabond" and "Canary" fox-trot, by Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra; and "When the Shadows Softly Come and Go," by Vivian Holt and Lilian Rosedale.

Pathé—"I've Got a Pair of Swinging Doors That Lead Right Into My Heart," by Arthur Fields; "I'll Say She Does," by Ernest Hart; "Round the Town," by Joseph Samuels' Orchestra; and "Everybody Shimmies Now," by the Synco Jazz Band.

Edison—"Dear Old Pal of Mine," by Thomas Chalmers; "Life's Dream Is Over," by Marie Rappold and Carolina Lazzari; "Night Time in Little Italy," by the Frisco Jazz Band.

Dance music at present is making a particularly strong appeal to devotees of terpsichore and to music lovers generally, according to statements of talking machine dealers.

YOU are cordially invited to visit our newly appointed offices (Chicago or New York) and hear a talking machine played as never before. Tonofone is absolutely different—it improves all phonographs. It makes all records better—makes good records great.

Remember this, no phonograph or record can possibly be one bit better than the needle with which it is played. Inferior needles are a positive injury to the phonograph business.

Tonofone is musically and scientifically right—it is to the ordinary needle what the nightingale is to the blue jay. The purity of its tone is marvelous—more marvelous still, it plays all kinds of records and all kinds of machines.

A single Tonofone will play fifty or more records and bring out every tone, loud or soft, high or low,—each one clear and pure and in its right volume. The nuisance of constantly changing needles is ended.

Tonofone makes the phonograph like "a thing with a soul"—makes it sing and talk like the human voice—makes it play instrumental music like the instruments themselves in master hands. Critics are amazed.

Tonofone is not an experiment—it has run the gamut and stood the test. It is the needle supreme—the needle that helps to sell all records and phonographs. It has set a new standard in "phonography"—it has come to stay.

Don't be without Tonofones—you need them. Our big broad business policy is indicated by subjoined order blank.

TWIN CITY TRADE STILL COMPLAIN OF STOCK SHORTAGE

Vocalion Formally Introduced in the Local Trade—Work Started on New Columbia Quarters—Trade Expansion Limited by Supplies—Talking Machine Men Joining New Merchants' Association

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., June 7.—The Aeolian Vocalions swarmed into the Twin Cities at the first of June with a blare of trumpets (in the newspapers) and already have become an institution. C. R. Stone, who is the Northwestern sponsor for the Vocalion line, was present to give it the right start, but expects to leave the local management to Col. Gerlach, one of the veterans of the trade in this territory.

The Aeolian headquarters at Nicollet and Ninth, Minneapolis, is one of the best equipped and advantageously situated music houses in the Northwest. The building, which is brand new, is nearly all plate glass and cannot be excelled anywhere for light and display purposes. In addition to a fine retail plant the headquarters will be devoted in part to distribution, as the Stone Piano Co. will control Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana and western Wisconsin. The New England Furniture Co., Minneapolis, and The Emporium, St. Paul, have taken on full lines of the Vocalion instruments and make liberal use of the daily papers to make it known.

Work began June 2 upon the new headquarters of the Columbia Graphophone Co. for the Northwest at 18-20-22 North Third street. This will be the largest talking machine plant in this territory and will be as complete and modern as the skill of the company's engineer can devise. Manager W. L. Sprague hopes to be installed about August 1, but fears that the contractors will disappoint him.

The only phonograph on the special train provided for the big trade tour of Northern Minnesota was a big fine Edison supplied by Laurence H. Lucker. He was represented by George H. Compton, the widely known traveler for the Edison lines.

Henry Doerr, of the Minneapolis Drug Co., Sonora distributor, also was aboard the train.

It may be reported here that dealers in talking machines continue to complain of the shortage of goods. Machines, particularly certain desirable and quickly selling types, are exceedingly hard to get, say the dealers, and they are full of reproaches and bitter complaints. There is little question but that many dealers are throwing business away every day, particularly such as hold to one line, solely because of their inability to obtain the goods wanted. The purchasers in these days of art furniture and period furniture and harmony have a rather clear idea of what they want and woe to the dealers that can't supply the want.

Jay H. Wheeler, who handles the Pathé department for G. Sommers & Co., after a personal visit to the home office, is much better satisfied with the treatment accorded him. It is possible to gather a stock for the big fall run and to accumulate several hundred thousands of records. He reports that the travelers are establishing Pathé agencies right along in various sections of the Northwest.

"Sales are fine, but production is poor," was the summary of the Sonora situation presented by Sewall D. Andrews, Sonora manager for the Minneapolis Drug Co.

One thousand Brunswick machines would salve E. L. Kern, director of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., while 2,000 would transport him to the Seventh Heaven. He knows that the parent company is moving heaven and earth to enlarge the Dubuque plant, but while the work is progressing nicely phonograph business is going over the dam every day. The fact that he is no worse off than others does not relieve his feelings very much.

Although it is impossible for the Victor dealers to supply the cravings of their fellowmen for canned music they are advertising heavily in the twin city papers to show the readers where to buy Victrolas. Foster & Waldo, the L. S. Donaldson Co., the Powers Mercantile Co. and the Golden Rule have patronized the press very freely of late, while at the same time complaining that it is impossible to get machines. Naturally shipments are coming through right along and each dealer doubtless is sharing equally in the distribution, so that no injustice will be done, but the Victor representatives, whether retailing or jobbing, are having a hard time.

Northwestern dealers generally are affiliating with the newly organized Minnesota Music Merchants' Association. They rather feel that their branch of the trade has been somewhat slighted in the division of offices. While it is quite true that no exclusive talking machine dealer has obtained preference, it should not be forgotten that all the officers are very extensive dealers in machines, among the very largest in fact.

RETURNS FROM SERVICE IN FRANCE

Homer B. Johnson, formerly of the Haverty-Rustin Furniture Co., of Columbia, S. C., is now with the Haverty Furniture Co. in Charleston, S. C. He has just returned from several months' active service in France, and is doing very well with the Columbia line. He says that the Columbia machine was as well known to the members of the A. E. F., as it is in the United States.

William Turner, Columbia dealer, at 1401 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y., will also handle the Pathé Actuelle in the future. He secured the new agency from the Buffalo Wholesale Hardware Co., Pathé jobbers.

BIRMINGHAM A THRIVING TALKING MACHINE TRADE CENTER

This Progressive Southern City Contains a Live Bunch of Dealers Constantly on the Alert to Expand Their Business Just as Soon as They Can Get Needed Stock

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 29.—L. C. Parker, president of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, Milwaukee, was a visitor in this city during the past week, being a delegate to the International Kiwanis Convention, which was held here May 21 and 22, and expressed himself as highly pleased with the outlook for Victrolas and Victor records for the immediate future. He was for years manager of the talking machine department of Gimbel Bros. in Milwaukee and greatly assisted Mrs. Clark, of the educational department of the Victor Co., who at that time was musical supervisor of schools in that city.

Manager Lowshe, of the Atlanta Talking Machine Co., paid Birmingham a visit the past week in search of Vocalions. This line has recently been taken on by his house.

The C. C. Holcombe Co. is now in process of making extensive alterations in its store. Several new booths have been installed, and the store front has been changed, making the general appearance much more attractive.

J. E. Cain, "The Little Furniture Man," bought a solid car of Vocalions of different styles for immediate delivery, and he is very optimistic regarding labor conditions in this section.

Oster Bros., Vocalion and Columbia dealers, bought last week a car of the former make in the higher-priced instruments, which is an indication that the demand generally is for the better grade machines.

The Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, report business on school machines extremely active owing to the fact that one of the Victor Co.'s educational representatives is working in Northern Alabama and Southern Tennessee.

B. G. Powell, local representative of the Columbia Graphophone Co., is now actively engaged in organizing the talking machine dealers of this city with the idea of bettering conditions in connection with terms, interest and contract business generally. Mr. Powell will have the support of the better class dealers.

Williams Music House report the purchase last week of $20,000 worth of Supertone talking machines ordered through Nestor Roos.

Frank Clark, of Clark & Jones, Knoxville, Tenn., spent several days here with the Emerald Co., and reports a difficulty in securing Vocalions. His visit here was largely for the purpose of securing machines for his Chattanooga and Knoxville stores.

Nestor Roos, representing the Supertone Talking Machine Co., reports business very good all through the South. Accessory business, Mr. Roos states, is exceptionally good.

The friends of C. C. Holcombe were glad indeed to see him again in his store after an absence of over a year. Mr. Holcombe was a member of the Tank Corps and recently returned from France.

R. B. Broyles has recently taken on the Pathé line and is opening up in a businesslike way. His opening announcement was made up of a full page ad in the local papers and his subsequent advertisements have every indication that he intends to "do it right."

Sales Manager Tracey, of the Vocalion department of the Aeolian Co., New York, was a visitor in Birmingham during the past week. Mr. Tracey is very much impressed with the outlook here and expressed himself as highly pleased with the work done by the company's representative in this territory—the Emerald Co. Better machine shipments in the future were promised.

F. W. Bromberg has moved his Edison Shop to the mezzanine floor of his jewelry store. He feels he can give better service having the department where it will be under his personal observation at all times. Heretofore the phonograph department was conducted two doors from the main building and was connected by a rear passage.

Clark & Jones Piano Co. have been featuring the past month the No. 150 and No. 75 Vitanolas. The management reports a very heavy business for this time of year on the latter type. The Victor and Widdicomb lines are also handled by this house and practically everything of these two lines that can be secured is sold in advance of its arrival. The new model Widdicomb machines are now being received, over which the salespeople are very enthusiastic. The regular monthly banquet to the employes of the talking machine department of this store will be held at the Tutwiler on May 30. The management set a certain amount of business which, if done any month, would entitle the employes to a banquet. A banquet has now been won for eleven consecutive months.

H. S. Jones, president of the Clark & Jones Piano Co., attended the Piano Dealers' Convention in Chicago last week. During his stay North he will visit several Victor distributors, as well as the Widdicomb factory in Grand Rapids, in an effort to get goods.

VICTOR RECORDS INTEREST MANY

BOSTON, MASS., June 4.—There was a large audience in Steinert Hall on the afternoon of Monday, June 2, to listen to a demonstration of the June Victor records. The records were played with the assistance of the Duo-Art. On request from persons in the audience any number desired was played.

POPULAR IN CANADA

The "Violaphone" talking machine needles, manufactured by the Fred Gretsch Mfg. Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., are proving very popular in Canada, and dealers are steadily increasing their orders. H. A. Bemister, of Montreal, is the Canadian wholesale agent for the "Violaphone" needle.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 4.—The talking machine business in the month of May was a little more satisfactory than it was in April, the increased production of the Victor, the Brunswick and the Sonora helping out the dealers in those lines, while the shipments of Edison, Columbia and other machines which have felt less the great drain have been able to satisfy their dealers nearly to the extent of 100 per cent.

The general feeling here is that the worst is over, and that from this on the situation is going to be a great deal more easy, but it also looks as if there was going to be a tremendous business in Philadelphia this fall and dealers in every line of talking machines are straining every possible way to get as much stock on hand to meet the wants of the dealers.

Columbia Co. to Occupy New Quarters

To show how this coming condition is impressing the dealers is shown in the improvements that are being arranged for among a number of the large jobbers and wholesalers. The chief change in this respect will come to the Columbia, at present at 210 North Broad street but which firm will move about the first of July, to much larger quarters in the Central Realty Corporation Building, located at the corner of Sixth and Filbert streets.

Manager Nelson J. Wilcox, who is in charge of the Columbia's interests here, has found such a move absolutely necessary. He went to New York last week for several days to discuss the situation with the Columbia people, for he not only wants much more room, but he wants to have one of the finest talking machine jobbing establishments in the country.

During the month the Columbia offices have been visited by the following: A. R. Harris, a representative of the Columbia record department; J. C. Ray, who came to this city to interview a cabinet factory to see whether it would not be possible to speed up work on cabinets; William Koburn, a representative of the Dictaphone Co.; X. H. Jarvis, a dealer of Milville, N. J.; H. H. Brown, of West Chester, Pa.; Mr. Kades, of Miller & Kades, Harrisburg Columbia dealers, who came down to get sufficient stock for the opening of their new warehouses at Steelton Pa.; L. D. Cameron, of the Cameron Piano Co., of Allentown, Pa., who have a large Columbia following in their section, and Mr. Fink, of Fink & Corbett, of Pottstown, Pa.; R. F. Bolton, sales manager of the International Record Department, New York; F. T. Bloom, manager of the Lauter Piano Co., of Trenton, N. J.; F. W. Zercher, of the Regal Umbrella Co., York, Pa.; Mr. Isaacs, of the Scranton Talking Machine Co.; O. F. Benz, of the Columbia general sales department, and Mr. Anderson, the Wilmington, Del., dealer.

Larger Wholesale Quarters for Weymann

H. A. Weymann & Son are at present rearranging their building to give much more attention than ever before to their Victor talking machine wholesale department. They are going to remove their offices from the second to the fourth floor, and will give over the entire second floor to their wholesale business, now that the Victor is beginning to get a sufficient stock to them to warrant such a move. H. Power Weymann, who has just returned from war service in France for more than a year, will assist his father in this Victor wholesale department.

Mr. Weymann states that the Victor Co. were so good to them in May that they have been able to get out a good percentage of their orders and the company promises them in June stock sufficient to fill from 80 to 90 per cent. of all orders.

Harry Weymann says: "Such a condition has not prevailed with us for more than a year." He is very much gratified at the number of dealers who remained loyal to the firm, and says: "Dealers who have confined themselves to the Victor line exclusively will no doubt receive the benefit, now that the Victor goods are becoming more plentiful. A great majority of our dealers remained loyal during the scarcity of machines, due to war conditions, and, notwithstanding their loss of sales, we feel sure that they will more than make up for this in the position it will give them as Victor representatives in their localities.

Semi-Annual Meeting of Edison Dealers

The Edison dealers of Philadelphia had their semi-annual meeting and banquet at the Bingham House on the evening of June 3. Forty dealers were present, besides a number of guests. The chief speaker of the evening was T. J. Leonard, of the Edison Sales Corporation, who spoke on production, the output of the factory, etc. C. G. Gardner was also a guest, and R. B. Cope, of the Girard Phonograph Co.

Herbert E. Blake, the leading dealer here in the Edison, says that his business in May was larger than in May of last year, and he says that June looks very good to him on account of the large amount of goods that is being received. The June list of records numbers sixty. Mr. Blake says they are doing very well at the 11th street store with the Columbia and Steger, although they are short of stock on the latter instrument.

Anxious to Get More Sonora Goods

Manager E. S. White, of the local Sonora jobbing house, says that while their business has been good they have been handicapped in the securing of stock. They have been unable to fill their orders on account of the shortness of stock. But they see a big change for the better in machines, and expect some substantial shipments in June and July, and they hope by fall to be able to supply all orders on demand. Francis J. Coupe, of the Sonora, was over from New York this week.

To Open Solutone Warerooms

By next week the new Solutone warerooms at 1727 Chestnut street will be opened with J. A. Scott in charge. They have a finely equipped building for the handling of talking machines, both wholesale and retail, and with very little altering, as the entire first floor is broken up into attractive rooms. They are getting in quite a lot of stock from their factory at Tenth street above Columbia avenue.

Join Estey Co. Forces

Bessie L. Bromley, long identified with the talking machine trade in this city, has joined the forces at the Estey Piano Co.'s talking machine department, where the Victor and Sonora are sold extensively. The firm are very much handicapped at present in having very little to sell.

Cheney Phonograph Progress

The Cheney is continuing to make rapid strides here under the direction of G. Dunbar Shewell. Mr. Shewell states that he is not able nearly to supply his demands. He has been having many applications for the opening of new accounts, but is unable at present to consider any of these, it keeping him busy to keep his old customers supplied. F. Marion Cheney, who has been in France as a sergeant major of the 108th Infantry, has returned to this city. He will resume work at the Cheney offices. He is a son of the inventor of the Cheney phonograph.

Charles E. Robinson, of 3851 Lancaster avenue, is making extensive improvements in his store in the way of building additional booths.

Harry Wilson Appointed Manager

Herbert E. Blake has taken on several new salesmen, including Charles Held, and he has made Harry Wilson, who has been with the firm since they started in business, the manager of his Eleventh street branch store.

Pathé Shop Improvements

Extensive improvements have just been completed at the Pathé Shop on Chestnut street by Walter E. Eckhardt. He has increased his booth rooms by ten, and has now one of the largest retail shops in Philadelphia in this respect. He has been able to get all the machines and records needed, in spite of a tremendous business, and in the record line especially fine results have been brought out of the Lieut. Jim Europe's band numbers.

Brunswick Shipments Increase

The Brunswick concern is in considerably better shape to begin the month of June than they were to begin the month of May. They have been getting some fine shipments. Manager F. J. Lyons, the local manager, is very much encouraged at the outlook. But the shipments are not yet sufficiently large to warrant them in accepting the many new dealers who are clamoring to become Brunswick handlers in this territory. C. P. Chew, formerly a traveling representative of the Brunswick, is no longer connected with the firm.

Returns From Florida Trip

William F. Lamb, the popular talking machine dealer of Pottstown, Pa., has just returned from a two weeks' trip to St. Petersburg, Fla., to which place he was accompanied by Mrs. Lamb. They have remodeled their talking machine department, to which they added a number of booths.

Penn Co. Report Gratifying Business

The Penn Phonograph Co. report a gratifying business in May. They have gone considerably ahead of last year, and while neither machines nor records have anywhere nearly equaled the demand upon them, yet they have been able to satisfy their trade by a considerably greater percentage of both. Both Mr. Miller and Mr. Barnhill, of the firm, are enthusiastic golfers, and they take alternate periods on the links. Mr. H. F. Miller and several other men recently purchased a tract of land in Roxborough district, which has been laid out as a golf course, bearing the title of the Roxborough Golf Club. Lawrence Moore, who was with the Twenty-eighth Division in France, returned the middle of May, has been mustered out and has taken up his old position with the firm.

The miniature dogs, duplicates of "His Master's Voice," are being sold in large quantities by the Penn Co. Recently it was suggested that the firm is "going to the dogs," but don't you believe it, or don't you have any feeling that they are trying out the business on the dog, for the Penn "His Master's Voice" is the greatest thing in the way of an advertisement ever gotten out by a local firm, in fact by any firm for the advertising of the Victor.

Raphael Levy & Sons have recently started to handle the Pathé machine at 726 Arch street. They have gone extensively into the business.

Pathé Line With F. A. North & Co.

One of the most important deals "pulled off" here in a long time has just been consummated between Walter Eckhardt, of the Pathé, and George Miller, head of F. A. North & Co., whereby F. A. North & Co. here, and at all the branch stores of the firm, will handle the Pathé extensively. "When I say 'extensively' I mean that nothing will be left undone to give the machine a satisfactory representation. F. A. North & Co. will devote considerable space on their first floor to the display of Pathé, and will devote all of their space in the mezzanine section to the talking machine business. They are erecting an additional story to their building at 1306 Chestnut street, and will move all their offices to the seventh floor of the building. The North firm have arranged to 'organize every one of their branches with the Pathé machines," said Mr. Eckhardt, who added, "This is probably one of the most important phonograph accounts in this city, as North & Co. are among the largest and most successful firms in this district."

Buehn Co.'s Interesting Report

The Louis Buehn Co., through its officials, report a gradual bettering of conditions among its dealers in Philadelphia, Pa., New Jersey and Delaware. Dealers are about completing unfilled machine orders left over from the Christmas season. Record stocks are still much depleted, but good monthly record shipments and sales have alleviated to a great degree losses being suffered by its Victor dealers. The Buehn Co. further report an optimistic and aggressive attitude being taken by its dealers, many of whom are completing or planning improved facilities for taking care of the business that inevitably is bound to come—providing sufficient quantity of Victor goods can be had.

Thousands of new homes are being built in this section and thousands more are in the process of planning, yet at the present time there is a shortage of over 30,000 homes in Philadelphia alone. Good wages and steady employment being enjoyed by the workmen of this section are making hundreds of new Victor customers. Dealers are but waiting the chance to get sufficient stock of machines and records so that they can change from the role of order-takers to salesmen and planners of constructive sales methods. Indications are that the time for this is not far distant.

Ensign L. D. Callahan, having been discharged from the service, is now back with the Louis Buehn organization, covering the prosperous coal region section. Ensign Edward P. Bliss, after a year in France, is covering the principal points along the main line of the Pennsylvania. William H. Nolan, who has been covering these combined territories for the past year, is now giving his attention to the city dealers in Philadelphia, and assisting Mr. Buehn on the inside. Aside from Mr. Buehn's many personal duties he has been placed in charge of the arrangements for the Victor jobbers' convention at Atlantic City from June 30 to July 2. In spite of all this he has managed to top off all this by a golf score of 93 on Memorial Day at the Seaview Golf Club, at Ocean City.

The Much Prized Dog

The Penn Phonograph Co. have given over one section of their building to "dog kennels," where their little "His Master's Voice" dogs are being decorated by a number of young ladies, many of whom are skilled artists from a local art school.

During these summer weeks attention of vacationists is being turned toward the portable type of talking machine which is finding much favor among devotees of seashore and mountains. PITTSBURGH TALKING MACHINE DEALERS PLAN BIG TIME

Dinner and Business Meeting at the Pines Will Be Victory Jubilee Session—"Mickey" Makes Big Hit—Why Fisher Figured!—Buehn Co. Removes—Starr Co. in New Offices—Other News

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 7.—The most interesting feature of the talking machine market here the past few weeks was the tremendous hit made by the celebrated motion picture film "Mickey," which opened at the Nixon Theatre May 19 and is still having a very successful run. As a result of the wide advertising, which was both novel and original, practically all of the talking machine dealers have had a very excellent business in disposing of "Mickey" records. The Victor, Columbia, Pathé, Emerson, Gennett, Edison and OkeH record dealers had very tasty displays of the "Mickey" scenario in their show windows in which the "Mickey" records were a prominent feature. Some of the more elaborate window displays were those of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., C. C. Mellor Co., S. Hamilton Co., the Pathé Shop, Star Music Co., Spear & Co., Lechner & Schoenberger, the J. M. Hoffmann Co., May, Stern & Co., and the Mentzer Victrola Shop.

The S. Hamilton Co. and May, Stern & Co. issued several hundred free tickets of admission to the Nixon Theatre to their patrons, the tickets calling for any seat in the house on payment of the war tax. This was a very commendable feature and was much commented on in music and show circles as a live advertising feature. T. E. Shortell, manager of the Hamilton talking machine department, and Manager Barry of the May, Stern & Co. talking machine department, both reported large sales of "Mickey" records.

What promises to be a red-letter event in the chronicles of the Pittsburgh Talking Machine Dealers' Association, and one which will mark a sort of a Victory Jubilee session, is fixed for Tuesday evening, June 17, at "The Pines." This will be the regular business meeting of the association, but mirth and good fellowship will be the dominant notes at the gathering, which will not only include the entire membership of the association but also representatives of each of the talking machine shops in the city.

The committee in charge consists of John Henk, chairman; Leo Half, J. E. McCormick, J. H. Phillips and W. J. Wright. The personnel of the committee is proof positive that there will be a very lively evening and that dull care will not even have "a look in." The affair will be marked by an elaborate dinner, the first big one that the association has had for some months and then will follow a novel program for the amusement and entertainment of the party. The members and their guests will meet at a central point and be conveyed to "The Pines" in automobiles.

John Fischer, the versatile and popular manager of the Victrola department of the C. C. Mellor Co., was in the business limelight quite prominently the past few days. On the occasion of the recent trade-boosting tour of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce he was a member of the delegation of business men who used a special train on a 600-mile trade extension trip through Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio. Then, on May 22, at a special meeting of the Kiwanis Club he was the "Silent Booster," and in that manner showed the beauty and advantage of having a Victrola. Despite this Mr. Fischer still is on the job and kept busy filling orders for Victrolas and Victor records.

P. W. Simon, the well-known Victor dealer of Uniontown, Pa., was in Pittsburgh on a business trip and incidentally scouting around for more Victor machines and records. He reports business as very brisk in the Fayette county metropolis, where he has a very busy shop.

W. O. Williams, head shipper of the C. C. Mellor Co., who went overseas with the American Expeditionary Forces, is back from the front and is on his old job again.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., and French Nestor, also of the Standard Co., spent several days recently in the East on a business trip.

G. L. Israel has succeeded H. C. Hornberger as manager of the Kaufmann & Baer Co. talking machine department. The firm has a very large section of the sixth floor devoted to the sale and display of the Victrola, Columbia Grafonola and the Aeolian-Vocalion. Sales of records are reported to have been very brisk during May for all three machines.

J. A. Endres, sales manager of the Brunswick phonograph in the Pittsburgh district, reports trade conditions as good and only limited by the number of machines. Mr. Endres has just returned from a business trip to Central Pennsylvania and reported the outlook as excellent for brisk business.

According to Manager A. N. Ansell, of McCreery & Co., the Victrola department of this concern is enjoying unusually good business in machines and records.

A. B. Smith, assistant manager of the Pittsburgh Columbia Grafonola offices, was a business visitor to Youngstown, Ohio, recently.

The Starr Phonograph Co., of Pennsylvania, is now located in their new offices and display rooms in the second and fourth floors of the large office building at 811 Liberty avenue. The second floor is devoted to the show and sales-rooms, which are in charge of H. C. Niles, secretary-treasurer of the company. A very attractive booth has been erected, in which the Starr phonograph and Gennett records are demonstrated. The fourth floor is devoted to stock and repair room purposes. Mr. Niles is much elated over the success he has achieved in placing Starr business in the Pittsburgh territory.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., who are opening a large piano and stringed instrument establishment at 615 Liberty avenue, will also establish a Victrola department where a full line of Victrolas and Victor records will be placed on sale. The booths are now in process of completion. They are located on the first floor and will be very attractively decorated. Mrs. L. Voltz, formerly with the W. F. Frederick Co., will be in charge.

Miss T. Green, who left the Buehn Phonograph Co. to enter war work during the war, is now a member of the talking machine department staff of Rosenbaum's, who handle the Columbia and Victor machines.

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison phonograph distributors, have moved the wholesale department from the Wood street building to the Stevenson building on Seventh avenue, adjoining the Chamber of Commerce building. A. A. Buehn, general manager of the company, stated that press of business and the need of

WHY don't you do better advertising?

WHY don't you write better advertising copy—the kind that strikes fire and burns a hole in the people's pocketbook?

WHY don't you use high-priced art work, more attractive cuts that give your store character and personality?

WHY don't you get up eye-catching window displays—originate more effective sales ideas?

Well, why don't you? Speak up!

Your answer is "No single retail store can afford to hire the talent that can do all these things."

You're RIGHT!

But listen—Did you ever think what could be done by Syndicating?

You know what syndicating is. The Associated Press is an example. Syndicating means dividing the big initial cost of a service into very small equal portions or shares, each subscriber paying only one por-

Do not think this syndicated advertising plan is new and untried. In the dry goods, hardware and other trades, similar services have been established for more than ten years. But this is the first time, we believe, any service has been so thoroughly and comprehensively prepared for any line.

Talking Machine World Dealer Service

Means

It means a syndicated advertising and merchandising service.

It means copy for your advertising written by men who have spent a lifetime learning one thing—how to write copy that can and DOES sell talking machines and records.

It means illustrations for your advertising that catch the eye, that have the appeal, the charm, the punch—the kind of art work that costs Real Money.

It means prepared layouts for your advertising that stand right up on printed pages and talk out loud. The man that makes them spent eight years here and two years abroad learning how.

It means merchandising plans and ideas that have been tested and proved—no blanks—every one a winning number.

It means this EVERY MONTH—12 months in the year.

It means a complete merchandising and advertising service that costs thousands of hard dollars to prepare, but only a few dollars to you, because it is syndicated.

For the Live Dealer in Each Territory— First Come—First Served

This is not "canned advertising." Talking Machine World Dealer Service is so arranged that you can get personal attention to your individual problems. The copy is written only a short time ahead of the publication, so that it keeps step with the changing conditions and late developments.

It represents the vast fund of experience and knowledge gathered in this industry by the Talking Machine World:

It represents the unlimited resources of capital that can go out and get the best there is, and pass it on to you—if you ask for it FIRST.

THE combined salaries of the men who create this service amount to $21,000 yearly—a figure no single dealer could maintain on his payroll for this purpose. The men composing Talking Machine World Dealer Service are the best we know about. In short, the Talking Machine World has not launched this new plan until it was ready, prepared and equipped to have it set a standard in keeping with the standard of the magazine itself.

more space made the change necessary. The retail department, under the direction of Mark M. Mitchell, will remain at the Wood street quarters.

Mrs. D. M. Clemson (Christine Miller), the well known Edison artist, was one of the Pittsburghers who went to New York last week to welcome home sons of Pittsburgh from the war zone. Mrs. Clemson made many friends at the training camps, where she sang so frequently before the men went to France.

H. J. Brennan, manager of the Pathé interests in the Pittsburgh district, stated that business conditions were very brisk and that new agencies were being opened for the sales of Pathé-phones and Pathé records in various sections in his territory. Two new Pathé dealers are A. Berman, at Altoona, Pa., and Joseph G. Gaal, at East Brady, Pa. D. P. Spance is the latest addition to the Pathé traveling force. The Trip-litt Pharmacy at Laurelville, Ohio, will hereafter be a regular retail agency for the sale of Pathé machines and records.

O. M. Kiess, of the general offices of the Pathé Co., with headquarters in Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending several days in Pittsburgh on business.

H. Milton Miller, manager of the Pittsburgh district of the Smith, Kline & French Co., Sonora distributors, reports a very strong demand for Sonora phonographs. Mr. Miller stated that he had a good-sized "waiting list" of dealers who wished to handle the Sonora Phonograph, which has been making quite a sensation in local talking machine circles. He said that the Sonora machines were practically all sold before they actually arrived in the Pittsburgh office. The Pittsburgh Sonora headquarters is also a distributing agency for the OkeH records, and sales of this popular line of records are reported to be very brisk.

Earle S. Miller, a son of Manager Miller, who served twenty-three months in the United States Navy, will in the future be connected with the Pittsburgh offices as salesman.

W. W. Parsons, special representative of the Pathé Frères Co., Brooklyn, was in Pittsburgh the past week demonstrating the "Actuelle" reproducer at the Pathé Shop. The difference between the "Actuelle" and the ordinary reproducer is that the tone is diffused in the same manner as one hears the voice or instrument itself, and it is heard in every part of the room instead of in front of the machine only with the effect of hearing the reproduction through a megaphone. The "Actuelle" plays all makes of disc records by simply turning the diaphragm and its accompanying arm.

MAKE AUTOMATIC COVER SUPPORT

NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—The Automatic Cover Support Mfg. Co. has been formed in this city to manufacture and market a new automatic cover support, the invention of A. F. Zega. Manufacturing quarters have been secured at 54 Jones street, and Mr. Zega will be directly in charge of the marketing of his invention. A large number of the new cover supports were manufactured before their introduction to the trade, which permits of immediate attention to orders received. One of the many interesting claims of this new invention is that it will operate equally well no matter from what angle it is placed.

PLAN FOR SUMMER OUTING

The Entertainment Committee of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization composed of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, is now making plans for the summer outing of the association, which will probably be held in August.

E. H. Lansing, of Boston, reports that the demands for his khaki moving covers are continuing briskly with every indication of a continuance of these good conditions.

LIBERTY PHONOGRAPH CO. PLANS

Distributors With Exclusive Territory Are Being Appointed to Handle the Liberty Line of Records—The Proposition Is Briefly Stated

CLEVELAND, O., June 5.—The Liberty Phonograph Co., of this city, manufacturer of Liberty lateral cut records, is making splendid progress in developing its merchandising and manufacturing plans. In a recent chat with The World J. DeK. Hill, assistant to the president of the company, stated that distributors with exclusive territory are being appointed to handle the Liberty line of records. The company will not try to supply the entire country at once, but plans to have its output for the first year average between three and five thousand records per day. These records will be confined to the territories embraced by New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Cleveland, expanding to new territory as factory facilities increase.

There will be one distributor in each of the five territories named, and part of these territories has already been taken. The first catalog of Liberty records will be released in August, although the company expects to get actively into production and supply the distributors in July.

OCCUPYING NEW FACTORY BUILDING

BOSTON, MASS., May 24.—Frank B. Curry, manufacturer of the Curry Sound Proof Booths and record racks, is now established in his new factory building, 72-74 Dedham street, the entire space of which he will occupy. This building provides greatly increased facilities. A model display room is being fitted up on the second floor, to which a private elevator will give convenient access. Among the Curry installations of the month was a particularly attractive one for the Grafonola Co. of New England at their Tremont street warerooms, which has been very highly praised.

Atlanta Dealers Report Best Month in Trade History While News From Alabama, Tennessee, South and North Carolina and Florida Is Cheering—Looks Like Busy Summer and Fall

ATLANTA, GA., June 5.—Conditions in general among the fraternity in this city have been very fine during May. The outlook is very bright and sales are at a new high mark. The wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. report through Manager Terhune that May, 1919, was the largest month in the history of the branch business, largely exceeding any previous month since the opening of the Atlanta branch.

The Elyea Co., Victor distributors, are quoted as having broken all records, and with the opening up of a more liberal supply of product this company expects to continue to reach and surpass previous high records.

Phonographs, Inc., Edison jobbers, are doing the largest volume of business since their opening here some four or five years ago. The New Edison has certainly made a dent in the talking machine market, and it is in greater demand than ever before.

The report of the dealers' convention in the last issue of The World contained an error in regard to the number of guests entertained by Phonograph, Inc., Edison distributors. About 200 dealers attended this convention, and T. J. Leonard, general sales manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and E. H. Phillips, credit manager, were among the guests.

The Haverty Furniture Co., Columbia dealers and who also sell the Pathé, say through J. J. Haverty, Jr., manager of the talking machine department, that May was the largest month's business that this old and well-known firm ever sold in his department, and with a better supply of machines being received he hopes and expects to break this record. Rosa Ponselle's records are in large demand, and her recent visit here did worlds for the sale of her records.

The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., the oldest Victor dealers in Georgia and a pioneer among talking machine dealers in the South, have just closed the finest month's business that they have ever sold. Their excellently organized and splendidly equipped store, under the guiding hand of Harvey Phillips, president and local director, has established a reputation for good service and together with the reputation and fine quality of Victor product is entering new high marks in the retail field each month.

The Atlanta Talking Machine Co., Columbia and Vocalion dealers, continue to sell to the limit of their capacity to get stock. Their trade in records is particularly gratifying and is proving a wonderful help at a time when it is hard to get talking machines. This company anticipates no slackening during the summer as the

LAWSON UNIVERSAL PHONOGRAPH

Many Orders Already Received for Machine Announced by Lawson Piano Co.—Built by Men of Long Experience in Piano Field

The Lawson Piano Co., whose executive offices are at 372 East 149th street, New York, are now making considerable progress with the Lawson Universal Phonograph, which was announced last month in The World. By way of standardization, which always works out materially for the benefit of the dealer, the Lawson Piano Co. is producing three models known as No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3, and ranging in price from $95 to $150. The company has had the Lawson Universal in process of construction for some time, and have not announced it until they became thoroughly convinced that the machine would give the dealers absolute satisfaction.

The company has been manufacturing pianos for many years, and its executives are men who have been associated also with manufacturers

South's great staple, cotton, is on a heavy advance and millions of dollars will be in circulation this summer on account of the old crop coming on the market in an otherwise off season at a good price.

The Cable Piano Co., Victor exclusively, say through Manager Salter of the Victrola department that their best expectations and anticipations are being fully realized and that the outlook is fine for continued large business. The Evans-Salter "All Star Concert Series" is bringing the best talent in the United States to Atlanta.

Reports from travelers in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Florida show that in each and every case in every city and town the volume of business in all standard lines and in records is larger than ever before in history, the volume as indicated by wholesale orders being from two to three times that of 1918.

of artistic instruments at all times. The Lawson Universal is equipped to play any make of disc record, and has a noiseless motor. It is also equipped with a tone modulator and automatic stop. Great care has also been taken in the cabinet work, which is of the same high grade quality found in the finish of other instruments manufactured by this concern. An attractive catalog is being distributed for use of dealers.

IN NEW YORK TO GREET HIS SON

The president of the Fletcher-Wickes Co., of Chicago, Ill., recently spent several days in New York City, where he came in order to greet his son returning from overseas service with the U. S. Army. While in town he called on a few members of the trade, and incidentally reported to The World that the demand for the sound boxes made by his company is particularly heavy at the present time, and that his company expects to offer a new tone arm in quite large quantities to the trade within the near future.

CONVERTO

PATENTED DEC. 11, 1917

Talking Machine CABINET

Converto Cabinets serve a distinct purpose in the up-to-date stock of talking machines. Experience has proved this for a large number of the country's largest and most successful dealers and distributors.

The Converto is a standard product. It displays itself, is easy to sell—in combination with small Victrolas and to present owners of those models—and, after the sale, there is no service required on your part.

It converts the Small Victrola into an enclosed cabinet type with dust-proof compartment, etc. Its combined cost—cabinet and machine—is lower than even the cheap, unknown cabinet machines of equal size.

Most of the leading Victor Distributors handle the Converto Cabinet as a STANDARD product.

MILWAUKEE ENJOYING ENORMOUS VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Local Dealers Tell of Largest June Demand in History—Difficult for Jobbers to Supply Stock to Satisfy Demands—This Applies to All Makes of Machines—New Wisconsin Association

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 12.—The early part of June this year has been by far the most active period of trade that local dealers have ever known at this particular time of year. The return of thousands of our soldiers and sailors from overseas and camps in this country during this and last month seems to have been largely responsible for a marked stimulation of the demand not alone for the instruments, but records, needles and other supplies and the labor-saving accessories that are being marketed. Every home desires music, especially the homes to which service men are returning. It seems that nothing satisfies quite so well as the talking machine or phonograph.

To meet this relatively enormous demand, the output of the factories has made only a percentage of gain, compared with requirements. While the shortage of instruments today is considerably relieved, the production still is far from being adequate. Dealers at this time of year desire not only to have sufficient stock in hand to fill current orders, but to begin to lay up stocks for the brisk trade of the fall and holiday season to come. In view of this desire, the present situation in respect to supplies of merchandise is not wholly satisfactory.

"We are still confronted by an unfavorable situation in regard to keeping our dealers supplied with instruments and records," said Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. "The Victor factories have been bending every effort to bring production up to requirements, but despite the marked success the company has achieved in enlarging output the demand is so very broad and pressing that every increase attained in production has been more than outweighed by the increase in requirements. There is now, however, a good prospect that supply and demand will become more equalized, although experience has taught us to refrain from making any predictions."

Almost every other wholesaler and jobber in this territory reports that the demand for instruments is greater than the ability of the makers to supply. While the stocks of some models or styles are apparently adequate, certain types cannot be had in anywhere near sufficient quantity, creating the impression of a general shortage.

"Although we are particularly fortunate in being in close proximity to the source of supply and have no long-distance shipments to contend with, we are not able to get nearly enough instruments to keep our trade amply supplied," said W. H. Heiss, of the wholesale department of Charles J. Orth, distributor of the Puritan in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. "For instance, the favorite 'bulge model' of the Puritan is far short of our needs, both locally for retail trade and throughout the territory for wholesale trade."

That the popularity of the Sonora has grown much faster than the available supply is the condition reported by H. M. Hahn, of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Wisconsin and northern Michigan distributor of this line. Mr. Hahn says that expansion of Sonora production which is being effected at this time by the acquirement of extensive production facilities will serve to place Sonora distributors and retailers as well in a most favorable position.

The Phonograph Co., of Milwaukee, distributor of the New Edison, has been able to make excellent progress in providing a fairly liberal supply of instruments and records to its retailers during May, but still is behind on its orders. Factory output is increasing, however, and the Wisconsin trade is to-day in a better position to make deliveries than it has been in a year and a half or longer. On certain styles, of course, back orders still form a considerable volume.

The Brunswick phonograph continues to make great forward strides in this territory, judging from the insistent and broadening demands made by dealers upon the Wisconsin wholesale branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. in charge of Manager Thomas I. Kidd. While it has not yet become possible for the house to fill all orders up to 100 per cent., the factory is rapidly gaining in output and Brunswick dealers will have little or no complaint to make concerning shortage of goods by midsummer.

Milwaukee dealers in the Pathéphone say there has not been the least let-up in demand, although as summer approached in former years a quieter market was experienced. This, of course, was true of all musical instrument business in years gone by. This year, however, as the coming of summer is merely a matter of a few days, the tone of trade is sustained at a high level reminiscent of the best periods of the year and a most gratifying volume is being done by all Pathé dealers.

The Aeolian Vocalion, represented by the Edmund Gram Music House, is experiencing steady and substantial growth, which is making it necessary for the Gram company to provide larger facilities for sales and stock purposes. At this time Mr. Gram has under consideration plans for the remodeling of a part of the store to bring this about. The plans contemplate also the installation of a new record counter at the front of the store, flanking the main entrance and situated directly behind the large display window at the right, which will relieve the congestion in the present record sales department. Miss Julia Wolff, one of the few women managers of phonograph departments in this part of the country, is making the Aeolian Vocalion section at Gram's a real headquarters for music-lovers, which is adding materially to the large volume of trade already enjoyed by this big music house.

The organization of the first society of music dealers of Wisconsin at Milwaukee on May 12 exceeds in importance only the fact that one of the most prominent figures in the talking machine and phonograph industry of the State was the unanimous choice for president. When the Wisconsin Association of Music Industries came into being, Richard H. Zinke, president and general manager of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., was elected its first executive. Until March 1, this year, Mr. Zinke was general manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, one of the largest Victor retailers in the country. When the Badger Shop was purchased by Leslie C. Parker Mr. Zinke assumed charge of the Record company, which manufactures needles, the Record-Lite, several other accessories and general supplies for the trade.

The new Wisconsin association starts with a charter membership of more than fifty dealers, practically every one of whom deals in reproducing machines. It was formed through the efforts of the Milwaukee Association, regarded as one of the most successful dealer organizations in the United States. Besides Mr. Zinke, the officers are: Vice-presidents, Albert E. Smith, Madison; Ralph E. Wilson, Oshkosh; secretary-treasurer, C. LeRoy Dennis, Milwaukee; directors, A. F. Schneider, Kenosha; Fred Leithold, LaCrosse; Lambert E. Gronier, Lancaster.

The new association plans to hold a big convention in Milwaukee during the week of September 8 to 13, at which time the annual Wisconsin State Fair will be held. Plans have not yet taken definite shape but arrangements will be made to provide activities that will attract the attention of the music industry of the entire nation.

Wisconsin industries devoted to the manufacture of complete instruments or cabinets and other parts continue to increase their outputs at the greatest possible rate because of the pres-

TRADE CONDITIONS IN NASHVILLE

All the Leading Dealers in This Progressive Tennessee City Report an Excellent Business

NASHVILLE, TENN., June 6.—Bond's Graphophone Shop, Columbia dealer, through E. E. Hyde, store manager, tells your correspondent that its trade in May was excellent. Stock from the Columbia Graphophone Co., in Atlanta, is arriving in better quantities and the record business continues in large volume. Mr. Hyde reports that the prospect for future fine business is good, and expects that the coming months will show a decided increase over any previous similar period. He has been particularly successful recently in selling symphony records, and Rosa Ponselle's records are in great demand. The Alcoholic Blues is selling in larger volume than any popular-priced record ever released by the Columbia Co.

Castner-Knott Co., Victor and Columbia dealers, report through Forest Taylor, manager of the music department, that their business is progressing in excellent shape. The demand for talking machines and records is growing as each week passes, and the volume of sales is expected to increase in an ever-ascending ratio. The Nashville territory is in a very prosperous condition, owing to large tobacco and other crops and the public is in a buying humor, and it has the money, too.

Claude P. Street Piano Co., Victor dealers, and who also sell the Vocalion, announce that Edward Brotherton, formerly manager of the talking machine department of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Atlanta, Ga., is now in charge of their talking machine department, and that under his skilled guidance their business has grown in the past sixty days in exceedingly gratifying proportions. Their sale of Victor Red Seal records has increased to a marked degree and with the probability of larger stock deliveries from the Victor distributors in the near future the outlook is altogether encouraging.

H. Brown & Co., Columbia dealers, and who also sell the Pathéphone, are quoted through Herman Stelver as doing a nice business. Their trade in Columbia records has increased very decidedly and this branch of their business is regarded as more important and valuable than ever before.

M. F. Shea, Edison dealer, is having a fine business, and the New Edison and Edison Recreations are in greater demand and more sought after than at any time in the past. The outlook couldn't be better.

Reports from travelers covering the Nashville territory are to the effect that business in twenty or thirty nearby towns is very active, and efforts are being made constantly by various parties to qualify as dealers in one of the leading lines.

INCORPORATED

The National Phonograph Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has been incorporated by H. H. Fleishman, with a capital stock of $50,000.

The Scott-Kelly Furniture Co., of Memphis, Tenn., has recently added the Mandel talking machine to its line.

RETURNS FROM SERVICE IN FRANCE

L. H. Crabtree, Jr., Who Was Wounded in the Battle of Chateau-Thierry, Convalescent—Son of President of the International Mica Co.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 4.—L. H. Crabtree, Jr., son of the president of the International Mica Co., has returned, wounded, from France and is visiting his friends throughout the trade. Mr. Crabtree's experiences throughout the great war are very interesting. He received his wounds at the battle of Chateau-Thierry, and was taken prisoner in a semi-conscious condition after only a very few were left out of his company. Company M, of the One Hundred and Ninth Infantry, had been completely surrounded, thus cutting off ammunition, communication and reinforcements, and their wonderful fight to the finish has been especially mentioned in official reports. Mr. Crabtree was fortunate indeed, as he was one of the twenty-two men who survived of the 250 men of his company who entered this particular battle.

Mr. Crabtree is still taking treatment for gas from specialists, but he is also devoting some time to the selling department of the International Mica Co. When he has recuperated sufficiently it is his intention to make a complete trip among the phonograph manufacturers and take up all details of the work which he so efficiently handled before entering the service of his country.

MAKES NEW TALKING MACHINE

J. M. Waddell, of the Waddell Woodware Co., Greenville, O., has produced a new talking machine. This machine was made following several experiments for the improvement of a music table which was being made by this concern, and after making further tests the machine will be manufactured in large quantities and brought to trade attention.

The New York Album & Card Co., Manhattan, has increased its capital stock from $10,000 to $50,000.

Michigan Distributors of Sonora Phonograph
Now Occupying New Quarters in Detroit—
Ohio Sales Co. Also Open Offices in Cleveland—Interesting Chat With Mr. Marshall

DETROIT, MICH., June 4.—C. L. Marshall & Co., Michigan distributors of the Sonora phonograph, are now located in their new quarters in the Butler Building, 82 Griswold street. This is a very desirable location in the heart of the wholesale district, and the company was fortunate in securing this space, as during the past few months the demand for space of this kind has been much in excess of what Detroit has to offer. The third floor of this building is being fitted into offices, with space for display of the entire Sonora line, including period models. At the rear of the floor is a service and stock-room.

The Ohio Sales Co., Inc., Ohio distributors for the Sonora Co., of which Mr. Marshall is also president and general manager, will open their Cleveland office in the Beckman Building, 409 Superior avenue, N. W., about the middle of the month. The company's suite in this building is now being decorated and furnished and will consist of sales, service and display rooms. Fred N. Wyatt, who has had charge of the sales department for the past three years, will have his headquarters at the Cleveland office.

In a chat with The World Mr. Marshall commented as follows regarding the general business situation: "While we have not been able to nearly supply the demand for our machines the progressive and aggressive policy of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. will relieve the situation before long, and we are making preparations to be in shape to handle all the business we can secure when the time arrives. We have not been able to take on any new dealers for the past four months, but have a very encouraging application list, and a large amount of orders for immediate shipment. The important thing now is a stock of Sonoras. The Sonora semi-permanent silvered needle is meeting with great success in our territory, and the advertising has produced wonderful results."

NEW STRADIVARA AGENCY

A new Stradivara agency has been opened by H. C. Barenstecher, at 1503 Fourth avenue, Seattle, Wash. The latest records will be on sale, and a full line of needles and other accessories will be carried. Mr. Barenstecher has had a wide experience in the talking machine field, having been for eleven years manager of the talking machine department of one of the largest concerns in the city.

REAL LIVE PATHE ROOSTER

During Centenary Week in Memphis, Tenn., the T. J. Beasley Furniture Co., South Main street, gave a special exhibit of the Pathé line and arranged a very effective window display. The famous Pathé trade-mark was represented by a real live rooster dyed red for the occasion and placed on a record at the main entrance of the store. This attracted much interested attention from passers-by and aided greatly in the increased sale of Pathé goods and a knowledge of their musical possibilities.

T. R. Crayson Lectures on Evolution of Talking Machine Industry—Victor Agency for Mulhollin—Twilight Recitals Popular—Layton Bros. Expand—Views on Advertising—News of Month

MONTREAL, CAN., June 1.—An interesting talk upon the inception, growth and development of the talking machine industry in America and Canada was delivered last week by T. R. Crayson, sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., at the regular luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at Queen's Hotel. Mr. Crayson traced the first ventures in the field from 1850, when the initial attempt to record sounds by means of smoked glass was made, up to the present time, when gramophones and dictaphones had become one of the most important factors in the social and business life of the community.

Mr. Crayson dealt at length on the remarkable strides made of late years by the dictaphone in supplanting the shorthand systems in business, and of the inestimable value of this instrument to the blind—in particular to blinded soldiers, who through it were enabled to earn their living.

In conjunction with their ever-increasing business the Mulhollin Piano Co. have remodeled their present quarters at 786 St. Catherine street West, and the same now presents comfortable and modern talking machines and piano parlors. They have lately been assigned the Victor agency and with increased facilities at hand for displaying and demonstrating machines and records they anticipate big results.

Foisy Frères, Inc. (O. Paquette manager), are handling a large number of Victrola sales, and the past month the greater proportion was of a cash nature. In records they have enjoyed a phenomenal run on the popular hits in vocal and instrumental and dance records.

In the hands of the Phonograph Shop of Montreal, Regd., the McLagan and Pathé lines are making rapid strides and are making new converts every day.

The final twilight recital in the piano salon of the N. H. Phinney Marble Building, Halifax, N. S., took place last week. To the regular numbers, which have always consisted of Edison diamond disc records, were added instrumental solos by local artists. These twilight recitals held weekly during the winter and spring months have proved a genuine success. They will be resumed in the fall and several new features will be introduced.

Owing to the rapid growth of their business, Layton Bros. are forced to extend their Edison and Columbia department to their own adjoining property, 552 St. Catherine street West. After extensive alterations have been made they will have ten additional record booths. Special care is being exercised in the appointments, so that they will be quite restful and comfortable. Their show windows will also be increased by an additional twenty-five feet frontage on St. Catherine street.

One representative local dealer who is noted for his particular style of advertising remarked that the average talking machine manufacturer in his advertising ran altogether too much copy to make an impression on the consumer, and in his opinion it should be devoted more along the lines of educational copy telling the public why their particular machine excelled other makes, and by so doing would greatly facilitate and help the selling of their line, as the consumer would know some of the selling and salient points of the machine when he came in to buy or look around.

Charles Culross reports a big business in Sonoras and Aeolian-Vocalions.

Anna Case, the Edison artiste, completely won the hearts of all at her brilliant recital in St. John, N. B., the past month, and while in that city expressed a wish to sing to the soldiers in the hospitals, a kindly and thoughtful attention that was appreciated more than it is possible to express. After visiting the various hospitals, including the military ones, a reception was held in her honor.

New incorporations in the Province of Quebec include the Cassavant Phonograph Co., Ltd., St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, capitalized at $75,000.

PROTEST FEATURES OF PROPOSED COPYRIGHT ACT TRADE

Talking Machine Interests of Toronto Object to Proposed Measure, Particularly to Retroactivity and Percentage Basis of Fixing Royalty Charges on Records—Confer With Senate Committee

TORONTO, ONT., May 30.—Following the conference with the Senate Committee at Ottawa in regard to the proposed copyright act, the talking machine interests had a second session with the committee. A strong brief was presented and the objections of the industry to retroactivity and to the percentage basis of fixing the royalty charges on records were again impressed upon the committee. At this date it would appear that a copyright act for Canada is temporarily in abeyance.

The Starr Co. of Canada, London, Ont., are out with a list of lateral cut records in addition to their catalog of the hill-and-dale type. For months there has been considerable speculation in trade circles regarding the possible appearance of lateral cut records, of which type the Victor and Columbia have been the sole exponents for many years, both in Canada and the United States.

In addition to the list announced by the Starr Co., other selections will be available at an early date. Already the firm report a remarkable business in their new records and have booked orders for regular monthly shipments.

The Starr Co. have received some very encouraging letters and wires from dealers who, in sending in repeat orders, have complimented the firm on the quality of the recordings and the records, which are made in Canada.

George Madden, for the past few years with the Rymal music store, is now connected with the Hamilton Piano & Music Co., 267 King street, East, in the capacity of assistant manager. This firm specializes in Columbia Grafonolas, Edison phonographs, and other lines.

The Virgil Phonograph has been put on the market by a concern in Oshawa, Ont.

WINNIPEG DEALER DISCUSSES DAILY PAPER PUBLICITY

Robert Shaw Tells of "Tie-Up" Campaign on Photo-Play "Mickey"—Tone-Test Concert Attracts Crowds—J. H. Ashdown Makes Some Interesting Points Regarding Publicity—Other News

WINNIPEG, MAN., June 6.—Robt. Shaw, of Cassidy's, Ltd., Columbia distributors, was very enthusiastic over the "tie-up" preparations for the photo-play, "Mickey." The following firms each gave a window for the display: Ashton's, Banfield's, Murphy Bros., the Phonograph Shop, T. Eaton Co., Hudson's Bay Co. and the National New Agency. In the Province, Bijou and Gaiety Theatres a Columbia Grafonola was placed on the stage playing the "Mickey" record, A2662, while in the entrance other machines were playing the "Mickey" fox-trot. Cards calling attention to the records had been hung in the entrance; 25,000 circulars were distributed containing a reproduction of the picture which appeared in the October Columbia record, giving the names as well of the firms who furnished the windows, and stating where "Mickey" records could be purchased. The billboards were taken up with "Mickey" posters, the daily papers with "Mickey" advertisements, and on the surface Winnipeg would appear to be "Mickey mad."

F. G. Schrafield, who has returned to Winnipeg to take charge of the Western Gramophone Co.'s business here, has taken off his coat and got down to brass tacks. Mr. Schrafield is looking forward to a busy season in "His Master's Voice" products, all indications pointing to an unusual summer demand for really good music.

The Winnipeg Columbia Dealers' Association, which aims to entertain all Columbia stars who visit Winnipeg, recently gave dinners to Percy Grainger, the noted Australian pianist, and Morgan Kingston, grand opera tenor, both of whom were here with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. The association also entertained the celebrated Deiro, original master of the piano-accordion, here on the Orpheum circuit.

Lieut. W. A. Albert, who returned from overseas a few weeks ago, is now on the staff of the Phonograph Shop.

Lilian Durkin, Winnipeg operatic singer, figured in a tone test concert in the Phonograph Shop, 322 Portage avenue, Saturday evening, which was unique in musical annals in Winnipeg. Taking phonograph records of the five better known makes, she sang in accompaniment to them indiscriminately, all being played on the same machine. Perhaps the most searching test was when she sang with a record of her own, "In the Land of Sky-blue Waters." The quality of tone which has made her voice could be caught with equal distinctness when she sang and when the machine reproduced her singing.

THE BEST SELLERS OF THE YEAR ARE JIM EUROPE'S Pathe JAZZ BAND RECORDS

"EUROPE'S BAND"

"One of the boys of our office went to war.

"On his return I asked him what American effort most impressed him and he answered JIM (Lieut.) EUROPE'S BAND.

"He said that the French and British bands would play and one would say to himself, 'what beautiful music!' But when Europe's Band came along, no one, whatever his race, could keep still. There was that pep, that something of life and animation that made everybody want to do something."

advertising these machine records? Dealers all over the country have tried various methods of advertising in their local dailies. The J. H. Ash-down Hardware Co., Ltd., after doing considerable experimenting, have found that it pays them to run a small separate advertisement on talking machine records and to advertise the name of only one Columbia record.

This firm has found that its results from this type of advertising have proven most satisfactory. They state that to advertise fifteen different records results only in confusion, whereas to pick on a very desirable title invariably brings a large number of people to the store, and very few of them leave with only one record. In other words, they draw people to the store to buy a single record and sell them a larger number.

R. H. Williams & Sons, Ltd., Regina, Sask., are now handling the entire list of Columbia records.

EQUIPMENT OF THE "STANDARD"

Praise for Meisselbach Motor Used in Equipment of Standard Player-Piano Phonograph

The Standard Pneumatic Action Co., New York, one of the country's largest manufacturers of player-piano actions, which introduced some time ago the "Standard" player-piano-phonograph, also publishes a valuable house organ entitled the "Standard Player Monthly," and in a recent issue of this publication it gave detailed information regarding the mechanical equipment of the instrument. It is interesting to note that the motor, tone arm and sound box commented upon so approvingly in the following excerpt are manufactured by the Meisselbach division of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co.:

"This player-piano phonograph is equipped with a Meisselbach spring motor. We consider this the best and most reliable motor for the purpose. It is especially designed to do most efficiently the work required, and all of the gears and pinions and even the frame itself if especially heavy. Nothing but cut gears are used. The worm gear is hand-made, and the fiber gear in which the worm runs is especially cut to give the best results. The sulpho-bronze bearings, micromic adjustments and nickel trimmings place this motor at the head of its class.

"The turntable in this phonograph runs nearly vertical, but is set at such a plane that it absolutely prevents the record from falling over.

"The tone arm is especially designed to give a full, round, deep tone, free from the scratch that is so annoying in many phonographs. It is of the universal type, and with its black die-cast base swings freely on its pivot bearings. The tone arm is so balanced that the needle runs firmly and smoothly along the sound waves.

"In the selection of the sound box great care was taken to select one that gives a pure, rich, full tone. The sound box will not easily get out of adjustment and will give the best results on all styles of records."

DEALERS' ASSOCIATION OF PORTLAND SELECTS OFFICERS

E. B. Hyatt Re-elected President at Recent Meeting—Miss Larson Becomes Manager of Meier & Frank Co.—Visiting Artists Help Record Sales—Stradivara Recitals

PORTLAND, ORE., June 7.—The Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Portland held its monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, May 20, at the Hazelwood Restaurant. There were forty-four present at the meeting, which was one of the most enjoyable ever held. The purpose of this meeting was the election of officers, and E. B. Hyatt, president of the association, was re-elected. C. F. Johnson was nominated for president, but declined. Paul Norris was elected vice-president and C. A. Alphonse secretary. The speaker of the evening was E. W. Barlow, manager of the Stradivara Talking Machine Mfg. Co., who gave a very interesting talk on "Constructive Salesmanship." L. D. Heater, of the Columbia Co., also gave a brief talk, explaining the new policy of his house in regard to establishing its base in Seattle.

There are now thirteen demonstration rooms and two large machine rooms in the handsome new store of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co. The Brunswick is a big seller at this house; the demand as exemplified in sales by C. A. Alphonse and W. A. Bartlett is for high-priced goods.

A number of changes have been made in the talking machine department of the Meier & Frank Co. J. H. Matney, who has been manager of the department for some time, has resigned, and Miss Madeline Larson, who has been a saleswoman in the department for six years, has been made manager. Miss Larson is one of the most efficient young women in the business, and will probably make a successful manager. Mrs. Z. Baker, who was formerly with Sherman, Clay & Co., is now in the Meier & Frank record department, and her experience will be of great benefit to this house.

The Foley & Van Dyke Piano House has a talking machine department whose sales average up well. The World's correspondent visited the store during the last week. An expensive Victrola and a $215 Pathé of the William and Mary period design were among the several sales closed. The record department, under Miss Lydia Metzger, is doing a splendid business.

A shipment of Edisons and a shipment of Columbia Grafonolas have just been received by the Reed-French Co. Miss E. Reils, who is in charge of the record department, is making a fine reputation for herself as a saleswoman.

Mrs. Olga Moreland has resigned her position in the talking machine department of Foley & Van Dyke to take a similar position at the Remick Song Shop.

J. H. Matney, who recently resigned as manager of the talking machine department of the Meier & Frank Co., is now with the Reed-

French Co. He will look after the outside sales.

L. D. Heater, who looks after the interests of the Columbia Graphophone Co. here, recently entertained F. K. Pennington and Frank Dorian, of the Seattle branch.

A handsome new office has been fitted up for James L. Loder, who is in charge of the Sonora department of the Bush & Lane Co.

There is a demand at the talking machine houses for sacred records—selections from oratorios, hymns, especially old-fashioned hymns; choir music, sacred music of all kinds.

The employes of the Bush & Lane Co. had a picnic at Shepherd Springs last month, being the guests of the manager. The party went in automobiles, and after luncheon at Shepherd Springs various points of interest were explored on the Highway and a supper was enjoyed in the evening at Eagle Creek.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. is receiving shipments of Cheney phonographs, but not enough to meet the demand. Very interesting advertisements of the Cheney are issued by Mr. Johnson, and the record "ads" of this house are among the most conspicuous and interesting in the daily papers.

John McCormack gave a concert on Wednesday evening, May 21, at the Public Auditorium and his records have been in demand to a greater extent than ever. It is very noticeable that the visits of popular record artists are exceedingly stimulating to the sales of their records. Madam Alda, Anna Case, Mabel Garrison, Lucy Gates, Pablo Casals, Galli-Curci and other artists who have sung for the Victor, Columbia and Edison talking machines and who have visited Portland this season have become more popular than ever before. The taste of the great mass of the people has been improved by the talking machine, and many who cannot afford to go to the concerts or who are prevented from going for other reasons find great satisfaction in the records, which so faithfully and artistically reproduce the music and which otherwise many could never hear.

M. W. Davis, manager of the talking machine department of Edwards Furniture Store, has placed on the market a liquid for cleaning, reviving and preserving phonograph records. This is an interesting development.

N. C. Collins has returned from a successful business trip in Eastern Oregon.

The Stradivara Co. gave a recital at the Powers Furniture Co. on Wednesday evening, May 21. This company carried the Victor, Brunswick and Stradivara machines. Wheeler Dodds has resumed his old position as manager of the talking machine department, and W. B. Maxwell, who managed the department so well during Mr. Dodds' absence, is now in the receiving department of the store.

The Plant and the Product

BEHIND the Stephenson Precision-Made Motor there is a plant, modern in every possible way. And every part of the Stephenson Precision-Made Motor is made here; no parts are manufactured in outside shops away from the supervision of the men who stand behind the business. And always in this plant, now in one department and now in another, is one of the principals of the business. Always watching out that every operation will be done as carefully, as painstakingly as he would do it himself; always instilling in the minds of the men in the factory that their work has earned for the Stephenson Motor an enviable reputation; that a standard has been established.

The Stephenson Motor is a Precision-Made Motor—and performance has earned for it that title.

TALKING MACHINE WORLD SERVICE

A department devoted to promoting retail sales — conducted by Robert Gordon

Editor's Note—This new department will be devoted exclusively to helping retailers in the talking machine industry to solve the merchandising problems with which they may from time to time be confronted. Whenever in doubt or subject to worry, write to Robert Gordon, care of The Talking Machine World, 373 Fourth avenue, New York City. Let him help you out of your difficulties. Robert Gordon, be it said, has under his direction a large coterie of experts, including the complete staffs of The Talking Machine World and Talking Machine World Service. Communications will be treated in confidence if so requested, but in any event you will have at your command the advice and counsel of experts who have specialized in every phase of modern merchandising, and who couple with this a vast practical experience in the talking machine industry. And now that we know each other, here's hoping we're all going to be the best of friends, and that Robert Gordon will prove a wonderful boon to you in the conducting of your business. He can if you will give him half a chance.

EACH year $500,000—yes, nearly a million dollars—is being spent by manufacturers in the talking machine business on sales literature, window material and dealer helps alone.

Mere printing and paper—the mechanics of the business-tools for the dealer to work with.

A million dollars—to help you sell the goods they have already sold you.

If this sort of material is so valuable, certainly there would be still greater value in furnishing dealers with concrete assistance, in meeting their own problems of merchandising and advertising.

The aim of this department is to enable the dealer to use to greater advantage the assistance furnished him by the manufacturer, especially to help him meet his individual problems of advertising and merchandising, in order that he may not only build a large business, but build it upon a solid and substantial foundation.

Effective advertising offers a very difficult problem for the dealer. It is an art requiring a high degree of special skill and training in order to obtain maximum results, and generally the dealer finds it impractical to engage a specialist in this field, or to lay out money for good illustrations, cuts, etc.

Likewise, in the domain of merchandising, good ideas, like all things of great value, are scarce and hard to obtain. If an idea is good, it will sell merchandise in California as well as in Maine.

To meet these two needs of the talking machine industry, The Talking Machine World inaugurates this month two new features: a complete dealer's advertising service, and a dealer's clearing house for merchandising ideas.

An announcement of the advertising service appears elsewhere in this issue. The merchandising side of the service will be developed monthly on this page, and also in more complete and detailed form in the advertising service, of which it forms a part.

* * * * *

SMOKE is pouring out of the factory chimneys. Day and night, in great, thick clouds, it mounts heavenward and spreads across the industrial sky in giant characters that form a word which the seeing eye can read—a word that portends great changes in conditions—

“PRODUCTION”

Clouds, not of war smoke, but peace smoke; not war production—that is out of the way at last—but peace production—talking machines, records, needles, motors, accessories, a thousand and one things you've been yelling for. The great manufacturers are at it again, 100 per cent. The factories are making smoke.

What about you? Are you burning up the business boulevard with your smoke—or, with your feet on the mantelpiece, are you lolling back in your easy chair smoking a pipe?

This is a seller's market—true enough, but the dealer who is clever enough to keep wearing out his shoe leather instead of the seat of his trousers is doing a whole lot more these days than merely taking orders. He is squeezing every drop of juice out of the present, and at the same time putting stuff away in his cellar against the days to come.

There is more than one kind of smoke. There is the heavy, blue kind that trails a benzine buggy struggling up the hillside and means half-baked fuel and wasted energy. Then there is the smoke that follows a big limousine—nearly invisible, but redolent of power and speed.

This is not a time to be content with flivver trade. Now, when the “dear public” is fighting to get your few machines away from you—now is the time to go after Mr. and Mrs. Limousine. Now shoot at the big game, on broad avenues and boulevards, your gun loaded with high-priced models and wadded with cash sale blanks. Then when “tomorrow” you have to dive down the side alleys, you can tell Mr. and Mrs. Flivver about how you bagged Mr. and Mrs. Limousine, and the argument has WEIGHT—to say nothing of the golden ballast added to Friend Bank Account.

When you can't make more than so many sales, beat the game by jacking up the horse power of each and every sale. Let the small fish go till leaner times—just now, harpoon the whales and take the fat. By doing this you'll be building up a business in records that will be a comfortable back log to prevent “cold feet” during wintry storms.

Don't let your selling machinery lie down and go to sleep because of that hypnotic word “shortage.” Keep it oiled up and running, ready to drop into high the minute you shift gears.

* * * * *

PROBABLY to a great many dealers, it seems at first a rather inopportune time to create a department which will specialize on the promotion of retail sales. Many, in fact most, dealers are today confronted not so much with the necessity of finding ways and means to sell as of finding ways and means to keep customers satisfied who require a particular model of machine or a particular record until it is possible to deliver the thing especially desired.

The great demand which to-day cannot be met has caused the average dealer to be little more than an order taker.

Such a state of affairs is intolerable for the merchant who is duly concerned over the future. The wise merchant starts his thoughts like all the others, but carries them through to a rational conclusion. He argues something like this:

“Confound it, we could do a $30,000 larger turnover if only the Blank Company would get us a few hundred machines of the models we need—of the models which we now have twenty sold, but can't deliver and therefore have to substitute a bastard machine. And if only the Blank Company would ship us the right quantities of the right records. I'll tell the whole world, it hurts to see so much A-1 business walk right by my door.”

* * * * *

And then having worked himself up into a frame of mind that would make any manufacturer or jobber feel as though he were on the Hun end of a Yank charge, this same WISE merchant cools down and calms himself into a soliloquy of sound reason, which runs like this:

“After all, have I got any right to upbraid the people upon whom I depend for machines and records? Are they really to blame?”

“The more I think about it the less reason there seems to justify my being a chronic kicker. I may be losing perfectly good business, but anyway it is ‘order taking’ transactions and not real sales that I am producing. Before I start assailing the sources of my supply, it is up to me to get out and energetically push, promote and close sales on models of machines and record selections that I have got and can get.”

* * * * *

It is sufficient for the purpose of this article to seek one end, viz., the inducing of talking machine dealers to drop the hackneyed and non-profitable course of complaining about shortages and to take up the formation of sales promotion plans calculated to insure a good live, profitable business when stock of all kinds is quite plentiful. That time is not now far distant, and it behooves every dealer to prepare by spurring up sales efficiency throughout his entire organization. More of this next month, when this department will be devoted to concrete suggestions on how to buck up merchandising efficiency in the face of a seller's market. In the meantime, get your mental airplane sailing above the fog, not through it.

"THE TRAINING OF A SALESMAN"

Volume on This Subject Written by William Maxwell, Vice-President of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Attracting Considerable Attention

William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., recently issued a volume entitled "The Training of a Salesman," which is attracting considerable attention not only in our industry, but every business man can find in it scores of ideas applicable to his own affairs. One of the most interesting reviews of this book recently appeared in the Boston Commercial under the caption, "Head of Selling Branch of Edison Concern Writes on Selling." The article read:

"The success of Thomas A. Edison is as often attributed to his ability in collecting the right kind of men around him for associates and co-workers as to his wizardly genius in electricity. The author of 'The Training of a Salesman' is one of the men Edison has gathered around him. He was selected because the great inventor believed that he could assemble and direct a selling organization that could find a market for the many various specialties that are continuously coming out of the New Jersey laboratories and factories.

"Selling Edison products, especially the newer ones, has always required something more than an 'order taker.' A man is not truly a salesman till he has broken new ground and opened new accounts. A good salesman creates the demand and the 'order taker' merely fills the demands that he finds already waiting for him. Mr. Maxwell is by necessity as well as by choice a salesman of the first order. This is why he holds down his job as head of the Edison selling organization.

"'The Training of a Salesman' is written in a very simple, easy manner. It does not have any of the characteristics of a text book except that it teaches you something on every page. Its purpose is to help salesmen increase their value to themselves and to their companies, but it is so entertaining as to never become irksome.

"The book is full of incidents that have come to the attention of the author during his years of experience. These add a human interest so fascinating and refreshing as to make the reader forget that he is trying to improve his selling ability. The 221 pages of large, clear type pass off in a single evening's pleasure reading. After discussing how to size up a customer, the author goes on to suggest means of approach that he has found valuable, as well as different ways of overcoming indifference. He gives a chapter on closing the order which fairly sparkles with new ideas.

"The book should be bought by a salesman for the purpose of getting a close-up view of Mr. Edison if for no other reason. The study of the great wizard of electricity presented in the present volume is probably the most valuable that has even been written. It is made by a constant companion and employe from close-up observations. Edison is presented as being as great a business man as inventor, a man with wonderful power of inductive and deductive reasoning and a student of the first order. He has a sublime confidence in his own infallibility which the author seems to think is wholly warranted. He has no confidence in others' writings or theories till he has checked them up with his own ideas and experiments. He has a system of his own for the judgment of men that seldom fails to secure the correct estimates of character and of ability.

"Every salesman should own this book. It contains words of council handed down from a man who has been able to sell himself to an astute judge and keep his account open."

KESSELMAN-O'DRISCOLL PROGRESS

Prominent Milwaukee Talking Machine Co. to Handle Pianos and a General Line of Musical Instruments—To Occupy New Building

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 9.—The progress of one Milwaukee retail talking machine company which soon will branch out to embrace a line of pianos and general musical instruments is noteworthy. It is the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., which a few years ago established a Victor store on the northwest side of the city. The business grew so large that two years ago the company moved to the heart of the city, occupying a three-story building. Last fall the Edison line was added. Now the company will become a piano dealer as well. Arrangements have been completed for the erection of one of the finest music stores in America on the three-cornered property bounded by West Water, Wells and Second streets, and known for many years as "The Triangle." On this most advantageous location the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co. is building a three-story music temple with foundations adequate for five additional stories when these become necessary. The design is classic and embodies the very best and foremost ideas gained from a survey of the greatest music houses in the country by L. M. Kesselman, president of the company. The exterior will be built in white enameled terra cotta and tile with art glass trimmings. When finished the building will be one of the show places of Milwaukee. It will be completed about August 15 or September 1, at which time the piano business will be added to the present Victor and Edison lines.

NEW DEALER IN BROOKLYN

A recent addition to the talking machine dealers in Brooklyn is L. Everett, manager of the Flatbush Talking Machine Shop, 1135 Flatbush avenue. This concern carries the Columbia Grafonola and the Sonora, as well as a full line of records in all languages.

A new talking machine shop has been opened in Akron, O., by Cramer & Perrine, at Market and Arlington streets. Columbia Grafonolas and records will be featured.

Plans for the Victor Dealers' Convention in Des Moines Now Under Way—Death of E. E. Hobbs—Bauman Buys Schlick Stock

DES MOINES, IA., June 7.—Arrangements are forming for the Iowa Victor Dealers' convention to be held here on August 26 and 27. The executive committee, consisting of L. E. Spencer, Iowa City; J. Donohoe, Ft. Dodge; Jos. Britt, Boone; L. E. Cohe, Waterloo; W. H. Stoaks, Grinnell, and R. McGregor, of Creston, will soon meet in this city and make definite arrangements for an interesting program.

Lieut. E. W. Lundquist has just returned from the service and taken up his work of traveling for Mickel Bros. Co. in Nebraska and western Iowa.

Arvid Nelson, for several years assistant manager of the Tri-City Piano Co., Moline, Ill., has taken over the management of the Davenport store.

E. E. Hobbs, manager of the Victor department of the Peacock & Baxter Furniture Co., Atlantic, and a member of the executive committee of the Iowa Victor Dealers' Association, passed away recently as a result of a severe case of Bright's disease.

Iowa Victor dealers are extending their sympathy to L. H. Hockspeier, New Hampton, on the loss of his wife.

H. A. Schlick, proprietor of the Schlick Music Store, Charles City, has sold his Victor stock and small goods to E. C. Bauman, who will continue the business under the old name.

W. H. Stoaks, president of the Iowa Victor Dealers' Association, has moved into larger quarters and installed a fine new Victor department, consisting of two soundproof booths and a modern record room.

H. L. Peters has taken charge of the Victor department of the Duncan-Schell Furniture Co., Keokuk, to succeed H. A. Duncan, who becomes assistant manager of the store. Business with this company is brisk.

USE AIRPLANE TO BOOK ORDERS

Marionville Dealer Places Order for World Phonographs With Airplane Representative

The appearance of the airplane used by L. E. Lines, of the Lines Music Co., Springfield, Mo., to advertise the World phonograph, caused quite a sensation in Marionville when it arrived on a Saturday afternoon. The town had been well circularized before the event, giving publicity to the fact that a representative of the L. E. Lines Music Co. was coming to book an order for these machines with the local dealers, Burney & Biddlecome. On the automobiles, which were used by the dealers to bring their friends to the landing field, were appropriate signs bearing on the qualities of the World phonograph and the merits of the airplane over all other means of transportation. The entire affair was, in every respect, a stupendous success.

GREAT GATHERING OF EDISON DEALERS IN CINCINNATI

Annual Meeting of Representatives of Phonograph Co. of Cincinnati Attracted Large Assemblage—Important Matters Transacted—Vocalion Trade Expands—Stock Shortage Still in Evidence

CINCINNATI, O., June 7.—One of the events in the local talking machine trade recently was the annual meeting of the representatives of the Phonograph Co. of Cincinnati held in this city the middle of last month, with Manager L. H. Oelman, of the local trade store, as master of ceremonies. Many subjects of exceeding interest to the Edison dealers, and to the trade as a whole, were discussed in a most enlightening way, and everyone present seemed to be well pleased with the results of this gathering. The meeting was one of the largest ever attended by Edison dealers in the Middle West, and among the houses represented were: Alma & Doepke Co., Cincinnati, O.; Anderson-Newcomb Co., Huntington, W. Va.; M. N. Billings, Chillicothe, O.; Balyeat Funeral Co., Van Wert, O.; J. A. Beatty & Son, Xenia, O.; C. F. The local branch of the Aeolian Co. reports a 100 per cent. increase for May in Vocalion sales over any other May in the history of the store. Mr. Byars says there has been an unprecedented demand in the last few weeks for the Art Style instruments. One of the officials of the Southern Railroad purchased one of the larger styles in the Duncan Phyfe period, and there was also a handsome blue lacquered Chipendale sold to a prominent Cincinnati family. From indications it seems that this coming fall will see a tremendous demand for the various Art Style Vocalions. There is no question but what it is policy to push these styles, inasmuch as it will create a demand among certain folks who are opposed to the conventional designs.

F. W. Darden has rented the storeroom, 915 Race street, where he will specialize in talking machines and accessories.

The Huss Bros. Phonograph & Piano Manufacturing Co., successor of Huss Bros., the latter having undergone a complete reorganization, will soon open a combined retail store and factory at 6, 8 and 10 West Canal street, the corporation having taken a ten-year lease on considerable space. Much attention is to be paid the talking machine end of the new house.

Manager T. Sigman, of the Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., says:

"The shortage in both Victrolas and records continues; however, we are living in hopes that the month of June will bring forth larger shipments from the factory. Many $25 and $35 Victrolas were sold, both wholesale and retail, as they were really the only ones available in quantities. Many sales were also lost because larger cabinet-sized Victrolas could not be procured. Among the many out-of-town visitors to the local Columbia branch during the past two weeks were Louis Horwitz, Lockland, O.; Mr. Polasky, Georgetown, O.; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Simpson, Hillsboro, O.; A. D. Kirk, Winchester, O.; Mr. Kleeman, People's Outfitting Co., Springfield, O.; A. F. Va.; H. B. Hutson, Bethel, O.; Fred Bailey, Washington Courthouse, O.

The feature film "Mickey," which is being shown at the Grand Theater June 1 to 14, is giving the dealers in Cincinnati an admirable opportunity to connect up with a live publicity stunt. C. L. Crandall, of the Big Feature Rights Corporation, of Pittsburgh, has been in town for several days co-operating with the local Columbia management in featuring "Mickey" in all the music stores in town. The Mabley & Carew Co. have given up one of their large windows on Vine street directly opposite the Grand Theatre for "Mickey" displays. The Grafonola Shops have a unique window dressing, and many other dealers in downtown Cincinnati are also going the limit with window trim, newspaper advertising, etc. As a result the demand for "Mickey" Columbia records is growing rapidly and dealers are placing large stocks to take care of the demand.

Miss Lucy Gates, the distinguished coloratura soprano, who, by the way, records exclusively for Columbia records, was a visitor to Cincinnati on Tuesday, May 27. Miss Gates came to town for a conference with Manager Thiele, of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, and obliged the local Columbia branch by visiting them and several Columbia dealers in downtown Cincinnati. A. F. Greenwood accompanied Miss Gates on her visits to the various dealers.

Mrs. Janet Furniss, formerly in the sales department of C. C. Baker, Columbus, O., has been added to the sales department of the local Columbia branch. Manager Dawson selected Mrs. Furniss for the position formerly occupied by the late Miss Carrie Althaus, inasmuch as her record experience particularly fitted her for the position. She is now making a trip among dealers of Central Ohio and spending considerable time with each one, instructing them in the many phases of record selling.

Improvements in the local Columbia branch are still under way, and they are being pushed rapidly to completion, due to the fact that General Sales Manager E. W. Hopkins has promised a visit to Cincinnati when the improvements are completed.

General Manager H. L. Willson, of the executive office, New York, stopped over in Cincinnati a day or two last week.

The Grafonola department of Mabley & Carrow Co. has been considerably improved by the addition of a fountain in the center of the department. The water plays over colored lights, and small turtles and fish disport themselves much to the enjoyment of the small children who accompany their parents to this popular music department for Columbia records.

The Grafonola Shops, Inc., 117 West Fourth street, the exclusive Columbia dealers, have made a push on children's records during the present and past months. Manager Fantle put some of his original ideas into his window trim and tastefully arranged several small chairs and tables in the window in such a way that it invited the admiration of all passersby.

New Columbia dealers listed during the past two weeks are the Kermit Pharmacy, Kermit, W. Va.; Miller Bros., Malta, O., and J. Tiller & Sons, LaFollette, Tenn.

R. B. Foster, formerly of the Corona Sales Co., Columbus, O., has been appointed Dictaphone sales manager for the local Columbia branch. He succeeds Mr. Arrington, who resigned. Special Representative W. C. Kabin, of the New York office, has been in Cincinnati introducing Mr. Foster to the trade.

PRIZE CUP FOR HEINEMAN SALESMAN

S. A. Ribolla, Manager of Chicago Branch of Otto Heineman Co., Wins Prize for Greatest Volume of Sales Made During Past Year

About a year ago Adolph Heineman, vice-president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., was the guest of honor at a dinner given to celebrate his sixtieth birthday. At this gathering there were present the managers and traveling representatives of the company, together with several of the presidents and directors of the financial institutions which handle the vast Heineman interests.

Among the latter was H. Rosen, a director of the Harriman National Bank, who, in addition Prize Cup Won by S. A. Ribolla to his prominence in financial circles, has also won fame as one of the greatest salesmen this country has ever known. The sale of $5,000,000 worth of life insurance in one year is one of Mr. Rosen's enviable records. Appreciating good salesmanship and recognizing its importance, Mr. Rosen during the course of this dinner offered a "cup of success" to the Heineman salesman who sold the most goods during the year.

This year has now closed, and S. A. Ribolla, manager of the Chicago branch of the Otto Heineman Co., has been awarded the prize. Judging by the tremendous growth of Heineman business in the States covered by the Chicago office, Mr. Ribolla will soon be due to win another cup or two.

Fred E. Yahr, One of Ninety-five Leading Business Men of Milwaukee Who Recently Made Interesting Trade Promotion Tour

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 9.—Fred E. Yahr, president of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., 207-215 East Water street, Milwaukee, distributor of the Sonora phonograph in the Wisconsin and Northern Michigan territory, was among the ninety-five leading business men of the city who participated in the seventeenth annual trade promotion tour conducted June 2 to 9 by the Jobbers' Division of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce. The party traveled in a special train and covered 1,000 miles in the six days, reaching into virtually every part of the State. The excursions were instituted in 1901, but were omitted in 1917 and 1918 because of the war. The object is to enable Milwaukee wholesalers and jobbers to meet retailers of the State on their own thresholds and form or renew intimate acquaintanceships which will result in tying the merchants closer to the jobbers than would be possible in any other manner. The plan has proven very successful.

Harry T. Young, representing the Chicago Hinged Cover Support & Balance Co., spent several days in the Milwaukee trade during the latter part of May. Mr. Young was able to add several manufacturers to the list of those who use the Chicago device as regular and standard equipment on their reproducing instruments.

TRADE IN LOS ANGELES SCORES HIGH-WATER MARK

The Past Month Showed Steady Advancement in All Branches of the Business—Stock Is Coming in More Plentifully and Dealers Are Commencing to Get After Trade—News of Month

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 4.—The talking machine dealers of this city have just wound up another very satisfactory month of business. There were, however, in May, short periods of slight dullness, but the net results, nevertheless, are found to be quite satisfying. In fact, several of the houses are again announcing that a new high-water mark has been established. Record sales have been especially good. The three concerts given here during the early part of the month by John McCormack naturally helped to boost the sales of the artist's records considerably, and there is also a big local demand for the late popular numbers. The month has found the dealers particularly liberal in the use of newspaper advertising space. The establishment of new agencies and new firms has also been a rather notable feature of the past month.

Talking Machine Dealers Meet at Dinner

The regular monthly meeting of the Retail Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Southern California for May, which as usual was held on the evening of the second Tuesday, took the form of a banquet at the Hotel Clark, with twenty-two of the members present. The dinner was followed by an open discussion of various matters pertaining to the trade.

New Phonograph Jobbing Company Organized

Founded for the purpose of conducting a jobbing business in phonographs, records and accessories, the Western Jobbing & Trading Co. has recently been organized in this city, with offices at 724 South Broadway. The company, formed on a partnership basis, is owned by Clarence A. Barker, Lawrence Barker and Earle Barker, and is under the general management of John W. Boothe, who is also manager of the music department of Barker Bros., furniture dealers. The firm enters business as the Southern California distributor for Sonora phonographs and needles and Mandel phonographs, and as jobber for the State of California for Emerson records. Other lines will probably be arranged for later. G. S. Love is assistant to Manager Boothe, and H. E. Berryman, formerly with the Victor branch here of Sherman, Clay & Co., has been employed as traveling representative.

Dealers Greatly Exceed Victory Bond Quota

The music dealers of this city exceeded the quota of Liberty Loan bonds allotted them in the recent drive by about 48 per cent. The

Glockner Co. Adds Mandel Line

The Wm. L. Glockner Music Co., in addition to representing the Edison line of phonographs and records, has taken the agency also for the Mandel phonographs and the Emerson records. The new agencies were arranged for through the Western Jobbing & Trading Co.

Herman Beck Joins Platt Music Co.

Herman Beck, who for a number of years has been manager of the Victor department of the Geo. J. Birkel Co., severed his connection with this company on May 31, and has become the new manager of the talking machine department of the Platt Music Co. Mr. Beck was one of the organizers of the Retail Talking Machine Dealers' Association of this city and its first president, his term expiring in January of the current year. He is regarded as a most capable talking machine man.

Geo. J. Birkel Co. Adds Columbia Stock

The Geo. J. Birkel Co., in addition to maintaining its Victor department, has put in a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and records. The initial stock amounts to about two hundred machines. The added department was first announced to the public on May 11, through the local newspapers with an ad five columns wide and about fourteen inches deep. The company anticipates doing an especially good lot of business with the Columbia art models.

New Music House to Handle Columbia Line

Richardson, Inc., is the name of Los Angeles' newest music house, which is located at 607 West Seventh street. The store opens for business early this month. It is centrally located, and the quarters are most attractive. The company has arranged to carry a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and records, and also has the agency of the Baldwin line of pianos. The talking machine department contains seven attractively designed soundproof demonstrating rooms, besides a great deal of shelving for records. The organizer and general manager of the firm is Wm. Richardson, who until a few weeks ago was the manager of the talking machine department of the Southern California Music Co., and who is one of the best-known phonograph men in Southern California. Associated with him in the management of the store is Joseph Carter, also extensively known in the talking machine trade.

Starr Piano Co. Completes Improvements

Alterations and improvements have just been completed by the Starr Piano Co. by which the phonograph space has been materially enlarged and partitioned off into four attractively finished demonstrating rooms and a long record room. The rooms are finished in old ivory, with the upper part of the walls consisting very largely of glass.

Remick Song Shop Adds Phonographs

The Remick Song Shop, which recently moved from 522 to 427 South Broadway, has opened a phonograph and record department, as agent for the Columbia line. Seven demonstrating rooms, besides a large record room, all attractively finished in oak and glass, have been provided in the rear part of the store. W. Salveter is the general manager of the shop.

Advertises Sales of Used Phonographs

The music department of Barker Bros. has been advertising during May, with an ad four columns wide and ten inches deep, a special sale of used phonographs—Victor, Edison and Sonora lines excepted. The first ad of the series announced "over forty different phonographs of various well-known makes which we have taken in as part payment on Victors, Edisons and Sonoras."

Trio Music Co. Gets New Phonograph Stock

The Trio Music Co., which began business here at 832 West Seventh street, about two months ago, has just received its initial stock of talking machines, which, manufactured for it by an Eastern company, it has named the Trio-Craft line. Gennett records are also car-

Johnston Store Alters Name and Interior

The general music store of T. J. Johnston, by admission to partnership in the firm of Mr. Johnston's son, Harold E. Johnston, who was recently released from service in the Marines, has had its name changed to Johnston's Music House. Alterations have just been completed by which the store, which is located at 408 South Broadway, is partitioned into two sections, with separate entrances. One of these divisions will henceforth be devoted exclusively to Victor and Columbia machines and records and the other division, under the name of Ye Harmony Shoppe, will handle only music.

STORIES OF THE STUDIOS

Two Happenings Full of Human Interest That Might Be Picturized to Advantage

The advertising department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. recently received two humorous accounts of incidents at the OkeH recording studios, which Advertising Manager Schwartz relates in the following interesting way:

Sam Ash brought his little tot to the OkeH recording studios, assuming that the kind young lady in the office would watch over his junior while he would record "Girl of My Heart." The little one had other plans and began to plead:

"I'll be good, Daddy, honest I won't move—I'll just shut up"—Hager, the music director, Hibbard, the recorder, and Daddy Ash were all so moved by the fervent plea that the little Ash was ushered in. The child was all eyes and ears—but no mouth until—yes, until his father changed a part of the song as per understanding with Mr. Hager.

The little one, who knew the song by heart, as Daddy sang it at home, could not see the celebrated Daddy go wrong, so he jumped down from his seat, ran over to the surprised artist and yelled above the orchestral accompaniment: "It's wrong, Daddy! It's all wrong!"

Next moment the kindly young lady in the office was mothering the tot. "Never mind, sonny, never mind." The child boohooed full force, and, while he insisted that "Daddy is wrong—I know he is," inside Daddy sang another record for "Girl of My Heart."

They were recording "A Little Birch Canoe and You"—the Sterling Trio—of course. Each man was minding his own business and getting along splendidly when, just before the beginning of the beautiful chorus, Burr, who has gotten the habit of doing a bit of humorous paddling stunt at that point, unconsciously began to go through the motions. No one dared to whisper "stop it," so he went on paddling his own canoe same as he did in public renditions of the song.

The stunt caused such mirth that eventually grins turned into smiles and finally the smiles developed into a roar of laughter, musicians, artists and director all joining in the chorus of mirth—all except—except Burr, who for a few seconds kept on paddling unconscious of the joke on him. That's another OkeH record which never saw daylight.

Peerless Album Co. Tells of Its Plans in Stimulating a Demand for Record Albums

The Peerless Album Co., New York, manufacturer of "Peerless" albums, has completed a practical system of co-operation whereby it gives the dealer assistance in stimulating the demand for record albums. The company recently prepared an attractive circular containing suggestions which if utilized by the dealer cannot fail to produce inquiries and sales for record albums. Philip A. Ravis, president of the company, has been associated with the talking machine industry for a number of years, and his practical knowledge of the dealers' requirements is proving an important factor in the success achieved by Peerless albums.

TRADE GROWS IN KANSAS CITY DESPITE SOME HANDICAPS

Shortage Now Confined to a Few Single Styles—New Concerns Opened Up—Messrs. Jenkins and Pearce on "Victory Special"—Edison Interests Expanding—News of the Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 6.—The talking machine trade in this city and territory has been exceptionally large during the past month, according to the dealers. The trade has shown a tendency to continue to increase, but the dealers are not experiencing the handicap that at first manifested itself when a shortage of stock became apparent. Shipments are arriving in good time and very little difficulty is being experienced. The shortage now is almost entirely confined to a few single styles of machines of many different makes, although there is some difficulty in keeping a sufficient supply of the more popular records in stock.

The remarkable feature of the trade here during the past month is that, despite the fact that the weather conditions were very bad, business continued to increase. The month of May this year brought a greater precipitation of rain than it has for many years and the entire month from a weather standpoint could be characterized as a gloomy one, indeed.

The Victor and Columbia department at the Smith, Barnes & Strohber Piano Co.'s branch has been increasing rapidly during the past few months. This is practically a new addition to the company's business here, and, of course, has not been developed to the extent that the piano business has. However, W. J. Simonson, manager of the branch, reports that the business has grown remarkably, and that he is planning to feature it in such a way as to encourage its growth that it may become something of a separate institution in connection with the piano business, and a special sales force may be assigned to that business entirely. Up to the present time the sales force of the Smith, Barnes & Strohber Piano Co.'s branch has been handling both the piano and the talking machine business. The talking machine business at the present time is nearly large enough to justify a change in the method.

W. J. Watkins, of the Watkins Music Co., Independence, Mo., recently acquired the Metropole Hotel in that city. He has already made arrangements for the remodeling of the structure and plans that it shall house his business, which is now cramped by small quarters on the north side of the Square. Mr. Watkins has one of the largest Victor agencies in this part of the country in proportion to the size of the town.

Fred C. Comer, assistant manager of the Starr Piano Co.'s branch, is an enthusiastic sportsman and declares that a man can find recreation in fishing and hunting, and also a philosophy that is of a helpful nature to any one engaged in the talking machine business.

J. W. Jenkins, III, and Burton J. Pierce, of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., recently returned after representing the firm on the "Victory Special," which was the twenty-eighth annual trade extension tour of the Chamber of Commerce of Kansas City. The trip took the representatives of most of the leading business houses and industrial corporations of Kansas City through many towns of Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, where many stops were made for luncheons and speaking engagements.

The new establishment of the J. C. McDonnell Music Co. has been completed. The interior of the store is done in white enamel and is particularly attractive. William R. Berry, manager of the company, reports that the business has been a great deal better than the company anticipated. The concern is placing on the market here the "Donola," which is made in two styles, both of cabinet design. The cabinet work is done in this city and the machine is assembled and finished at the McDonnell Music Co., a Sol motor being used. Up to the present time the company has confined itself strictly to a small retail plan, but intends to branch out into the wholesale business about July 1.

The Smith, Barnes & Strohber Piano Co.'s branch has been exhibiting in its large display window a machine which the company accepted in trade. It is one of original design, though of apparent amateur construction. The cabinet has been made of branches, and a small electric light placed in the top of the machine makes it ready for use at night or in a cabin in the woods. A small Columbia machine was dismantled and installed in the cabinet.

Nellie Williams, manager of the Victrola department at the Jones Store Co., reports that the business the past month has been active.

The Edison Shop during the past month has met with an extremely gratifying situation in its business. This is attributed directly to the recent meeting of the Edison dealers held in this city for a discussion of general business principles. The meeting seems to have brought forth a greater understanding among the dealers, and with such an understanding it is apparent that the work is going to be characterized by more harmony and co-operation.

ATTRACTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY

The Wiley B. Allen Co., Portland, Ore., has been advertising the popular song, "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm," with novel window decorations which answer the question. The window at the corner of Broadway and Morrison street has been made one of the most attractive in the city by Manager Case, and is arranged to represent a scene in the hay fields on the farm showing a farmer lad listening to the strains of the song on the Victrola. The Victor dog is used to good advantage in the display.

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[NOTE.—This is the twenty-seventh of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

ENVIRONMENT AND REPRODUCTION

Coming from the rooms where all sorts of talking machines are being exhibited in connection with the annual meetings of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce and of the constituent societies thereof in Chicago, one is struck once more, and more than ordinarily, with the very obvious fact that environment has everything to do with the success or non-success of talking machines. The statement may appear rather too completely obvious, but it covers more than would at first be implied by a hasty consideration. In a word, there is enough concealed within to make a worth-while appeal to the retailer for further consideration of a matter to which too little attention is usually directed.

I am well aware that every modern talking machine store which assumes to do a good business in any way goes in for small recital or demonstration rooms intended to reproduce the atmosphere and acoustic conditions of the home in which the prospective customer is to place the machine when the same has been purchased. But that does not alter the fact that there is a good deal more to the question of getting the most out of the reproductive possibilities of talking machines than the mere enclosure of them in individual demonstration rooms. The whole question of environment is one which merits the most careful study and which the retailer who attends to it will realize has the most important of possibilities for his own success.

The Individual Room

The object of demonstrating a talking machine is, of course, to impress the prospective customer with the machine's actual work, in circumstances as nearly as possible those of the home in which it is hoped the machine will ultimately be placed. But since we cannot reproduce the circumstances of the prospect's own home, save by accident, it follows that we must choose some ideal representation. This we do by means of the demonstrating booth or room.

The Home Environment

But in point of fact the home environment means a good deal more than just this. The demonstrating booth is not only indeed convenient; it is absolutely necessary. But there is more to the question of environment than just this.

Those who have studied the science of acoustics are well aware that the relation of this science to the art of architecture has not yet been entirely cleared up. It still remains that the vastly greater number of buildings are badly designed for the purpose of hearing, whilst business buildings are nearly always extremely bad in this respect. Echoes, reverberations, external and internal noises of all sorts abound, and even when the store building is fitted with individual rooms for demonstration its primitive vices of construction are only lessened, not at all cured.

Studying the Acoustics

Now I am firmly of the opinion that the retail talking machine store which is to show off the tone and the reproducing capacities of its machines to the best advantage must be studied in respect of its acoustic qualities much more closely than is usually thought necessary. The very first thing needful is to banish, as far as possible, all external noises from the talking machine department. This cannot be done by rugs and hangings alone, although rugs and hangings are useful enough in their way. They have, however, the disadvantage of muffling sound, and a room in which they are very prominent is never a good room for the display of talking machine reproduction.

Building Construction

The foundation of the acoustic plan of a store should be seen in the solidity of its construction and in the avoidance of the kind of construction which lends itself to external noise, echoes, etc. Such construction is found in many conditions of the ordinary building. Wood floors with thin partitions are extremely bad for acoustic purposes, and whenever possible cork filings, sawdust or other fillers should be used to block off noises from room to room and from partition to partition. Concrete floors are more solid, but are decidedly echoish, and should be dulled by the use of rugs and matings of soft texture. Leaky windows must be made solid and similar precautions taken.

Booth Design

When the store has been so treated as to render the amount of unnecessary incidental and externally-leaking noise as little as possible, attention may be turned to the design of the demonstration booths. Nothing can be added here to improve in any way the already excellent methods of construction adopted in the well-known Unit System booths so often largely used in modern retail stores for demonstration purposes. But it may be well to add, for the sake of those who propose to make their own demonstration rooms, a few remarks on securing proper reproduction from the machines placed in them.

In the first place, the rooms should not be too small. If they are too small there is not left around the machines a sufficient air space to filter, as it were, the sound waves emitted from the horn into an agreeable result for the hearer. In precisely the same way the utmost care should always be taken to arrange the chairs so as not to bring the prospective customer right up against the machine. Ten to one the customer wants to hear a clear, soft and mellow tone. Women, generally speaking, will prefer to listen to violin, voice or harp music rendered with just the effect mentioned.

Minimizing Scratch

Now it must be remembered that the wise demonstrator will always do everything possible to minimize the mechanical scratch which, in some form or another, or to more or less of an extent, is always heard in talking machine reproduction. Let the room be large enough, the chairs placed as far away from the machine as possible and the construction such as rigidly to exclude outside noises. Then, if the demonstrator sees to it that the prospective customer is placed always in a position to keep his ear from the direct line of the horn, the best results will be obtained.

Some of the above may appear to be childish, but experience proves that every recommendation here made has its basis on proved facts.

Furnishings

The furnishings of demonstration rooms should be chosen with the greatest care. Too much attention simply cannot be lavished upon the details. Each machine should be placed in a room where the color and style of the furnishings agree with it, and every effort should be made to reproduce the general outline of the ordinary prosperous home. We do not want pomp and luxury shown, for these strike a jarring note which should be avoided. The vast majority of one's customers are persons of moderate income who do not live in palaces.

What is wanted, as said before, is to make the prospect feel thoroughly at home and to awaken the feeling, "How nice this machine looks in this room and how much I should like to see it in our room at home. It would look just like it does now." From look to sound is but a short step.

These recommendations and observations may seem to some to be unimportant, but a little thought will soon lead to the reflection that they are, on the contrary, very important indeed. The environment is everything in selling music. That is the one most important fact to be considered. Everything we can do to render the acoustics of a store better adapted to the purposes of the talking machine, every precaution we can take to keep out interrupting sounds and other interferences, every idea we can put in operation to bring the talking machine before the prospect in a manner which will center attention upon its virtues without interruption or disturbance, will make for better business. Environment is everything. Keep this fact in mind.

both from dealers and the public. It is impossible here to show the beautiful colorings of the June poster, which is a symphony of moonlight, roses and a summer lake, but the accompanying illustration will give some idea of its attractiveness.

As one Sonora dealer stated: "There is only one trouble with the Sonora posters. They are so remarkably good that we won't want to accept anything less beautiful if it should be later offered to us by someone else."

COLUMBIA DELEGATES IN CINCINNATI

Recent Convention Largest in History and Attended by Delegates From Four States

CINCINNATI, O., June 5.—The convention of Columbia dealers in this city yesterday was a great success and was the largest in the history of the trade. Delegates from four States were present in large numbers and were enthusiastic over the prospects for a banner year. Many expressed their appreciation of the work done by the co-operation of all branches of the trade in making this the best convention ever. This meeting was held under the direction of F. F. Dawson and R. N. Smith. Addresses were delivered by George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Co.; W. A. Willson, educational manager of the Columbia Co., and H. E. Book, of the repair department.

The Music League of America was recently organized in New York, which has for its aim the furtherance of the public good through music.

World Office
Republic Bldg., 209 South State St., Chicago
Telephone: Wabash 5774

CHICAGO, ILL., June 9.—The general wholesale situation cannot be said to have been materially changed by any event of the past month. The preponderance remains on the side of demand, with supply lagging more or less painfully in the rear. That such an abnormal condition is not to be permanent is, of course, already an axiom, but one notes that dealers at least are less concerned about a reversal to old-time conditions than are manufacturers. In a way this is natural, for the dealer cannot be much blamed for wanting to find the traveler camping on his doorstep again begging him to take his goods. Of course, the condition in this respect has never been in the talking machine industry what it has been in other branches of the music trade, especially in the piano business. Still, the retailer would like to see the day of "demand less than visible supply" once more dawning; nor has he lost hope that this event will come into existence before so very long.

Meanwhile, one observes a most interesting tendency to increase the number of retail stores throughout the Chicago district. The new and rapidly growing Northwest residential district is blossoming out in all directions, and a number of new talking machine stores have been opened within the last few weeks in this large district. The fashionable Wilson avenue region is likewise showing a remarkable increase in the number of its small exclusive talking machine retailers, and other districts are not slow to follow. What all this portends is clear enough when we add the further observation that a number of the recent stores are branches of established downtown houses. This shows that the established Chicago merchants perceive plainly that the growth of demand on the part of the public for talking machines and records is a natural phenomenon and certain to become a permanent one. Chicago, it is true, has not exactly showed, up to date, the same abounding retail prosperity which has characterized the rest of the country, but this is due to purely local conditions which are, even now, in process of remedy. That the retail prospects for the summer and fall are splendid can be judged from the policy described above, which plainly indicates that merchants of established repute are going into the matter of expanding their equipment to tap the domestic demand which is beginning to show so strongly throughout the residential districts of Chicago.

This city is just now experiencing a great revival of residential building. A year ago, with the Government putting the lid on building of all sorts, Chicago found herself with a terrible shortage of housing facilities. The ban has now, of course, been lifted, and the outlying districts are witnessing a grand carnival of lot-selling and house-building. This means the addition of hundreds of homes in the suburban regions this summer, and every one of these means a talking machine. Hence the logic of the policy of expanding the retail talking machine business throughout these districts.

That retail merchants are interesting themselves more acutely in the intensive promotion of record selling is another observation worth making, since it is undoubtedly founded on fact. The tendency of all industries which have a specialized and detailed element in them, as subsidiary to a generalized and broad element, is to neglect the former in favor of the latter. The specialized feature of the business needs study, preparation and skill. Hence the smaller dealers tend to neglect it always. That is why the record business has not been so intensively promoted by the smaller merchants. But with the wonderful increase in the demand for talking machines and in facilities for the supply of reliable records it is to be hoped that we shall see an enormous improvement shortly along these lines.

Welcome Dealers in Daily Papers

During the recent trade conventions in Chicago some of the local talking machine men made excellent use of the daily newspapers in welcoming visiting dealers to the city and their plants. Lyon & Healy inserted large advertisements throughout the week, extending a cordial invitation to call and inspect whatever part of their extensive line of musical instruments interested them most. Merchants with their families and guests were invited to make use of the facilities provided in the Lyon & Healy waiting room on the mezzanine floor. Also a number of the visitors accepted the invitation to have their mail addressed in care of this concern. Theatre tickets and travel information were obtainable at the store and numerous other conveniences provided. In the talking machine department L. C. Wiswell received the visitors. Those who visited the Lyon & Healy service department were greeted by Messrs. Jefferson, Bennet and Motteyshead.

The Emerson Phonograph Co., manufacturers of Emerson records, used full-page advertisements in Chicago's leading papers telling dealers of the latest Emerson "hits" and inviting the merchants to call at their Jackson boulevard headquarters. Vice-President H. T. Leeming, of the Emerson New York office, and F. W. Clement, manager of the Chicago branch, welcomed trade visitors.

H. B. Levy, Western representative for the Aeolian-Vocalion, is now located in his new sales and stockrooms on the fourth floor at 525 South Wabash avenue. The Vocalion quarters have been extended an appreciable degree and a complete display of Vocalion instruments installed. Mr. Levy also has a complete catalog of Vocalion records at the Chicago ware-rooms. Hereafter, he states, shipments of these records to Middle Western Aeolian-Vocalion dealers will be made direct from the Chicago office.

Appoint Canadian Agents

The Fletcher-Wickes Co., manufacturers of reproducers and tone arms, at 6 East Lake street, Chicago, announce the appointment of the George McLagan Furniture Co., Stratford, Ontario, as exclusive Canadian agents for Fletcher-Wickes products. Business with this house remains as it has been for months past, with demand far exceeding supply and a stack of orders piled up so high that they form a rampart in front of the desks at the offices. Otherwise, as one might say, everything is lovely.

Home Study With the Talking Machine

During the past month Mrs. Oberndorfer, Western representative of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, has appeared before 150 women's clubs of Chicago and vicinity lecturing on the "Place of Music in the Life of the Clubwoman of the Future." Mrs. Oberndorfer believes that the greatest development of the world's music is coming to America in the near future, and her watchword is "Prepare." She believes in the study of good music through the medium of mechanical instruments in homes where there are no talented pianists. The talking machine and player-piano she believes to be especially valuable in this respect. The talking machine will probably prove most valuable, as it has a place in the greatest number of American homes.

Outlines for club music study prepared by Mrs. Oberndorfer have been accepted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs as their regular course of study next season. Programs on "Americanization Through Music," in which are specified selections on the talking machine and player-piano are used as illustrations, strongly demonstrating the value of this instrument as an aid to the study of music.

Wurlitzer Exhibits War Trophies

Within the past month the windows of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Victor retailers and jobbers in this city, have been exhibiting a most interesting collection of war trophies, the property of Sergeant C. S. Lathurby, Sixtieth Artillery. Directly in front of a display of Victor records are placed gas masks, bayonets, helmets, canteens, ammunition pouches, belts, shells and even a queer-looking German pipe. In another Wurlitzer window appears a framed panel of the American divisional insignia.

A Remarkable Window Display

A display of B. & H. fibre needles in the making appeared during the last fortnight in Lyon & Healy's most prominent show window which faces upon the corner of Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue. The needles were shown in process of manufacture from the original bamboo poles of the Far East to the finished talking machine needles, sharpened and packed for the American music-lover. Facing upon the Jackson boulevard side was a splitting machine operated by one of the B. & H. Fibre Mfg. Co.'s expert workmen. As the needles were split from the sectional bamboo blocks they fell down a chute onto the floor and piled up by the thousands against the window. Seated at a table on the Wabash avenue crowds surrounding the Lyon & Healy window from morning till night the public was very interested. A large placard hung towards the rear of the window announced that "These fibre needles, made in America by Americans, assure perfect tone reproduction and give longer life to your records." Setting off the rest of the display and forming a most excellent background were a number of long bamboo poles of a diameter and size larger than most Chicagoans had ever seen.

New Wymann-Babb Store

Wymann-Babb & Co., retail piano and talking machine dealers of Chicago, announce the opening of their large new store at Chicago avenue and Leamington street. They have been located a few doors down the street. The new location on the corner is expected to prove doubly advantageous. A. F. Wymann states that the manager of the new store will be Andrew Benson, formerly superintendent of the Morenus Piano Co., of Chicago, and before then with the Bush & Lane Piano Co., of Holland, Mich. Wymann-Babb Co. handle the Packard, Bond and Hallet & Davis pianos and the Brunswick and Columbia lines of talking machines.

The Value of Service!

The fact that two heads are better than one when it comes to selling an unusually high quality article would seem to be evidenced by a recent Sonora sale in Marshalltown, Ia. L. Golder, in charge of the Chicago Sonora office, tells the story, and it's a mighty good example of cooperation between the wholesale and retail elements in a talking machine sale.

Hubler's Phonograph Parlors are located in Marshalltown, Ia., and it seemed that this concern had their hands on a rather doubtful prospect for a $1,000 Sonora. S. R. Christoffersen, wholesale Sonora representative in Iowa, got wind of the fact and straightway hustled off to Marshalltown to see if he couldn't aid the dealer in making the sale. He succeeded, and here's a few lines Mr. Golder received from Walter T. Hubler, proprietor of Hubler's Phonograph Parlors:

"I wish to thank you for the services which your Mr. Christophersen has rendered to us, especially in conducting the concert of last week. He came to us a stranger, but left a friend. He not only is of a strong personality, but is able to give a dealer many good ideas which, if followed, will surely be of benefit to him. The fact that he is in this territory is going to mean that Sonora will forge ahead and will eventually reach the highest sphere.

"He sells the goods himself and can also show others how to sell the goods. This is a point where many a good salesman falls down. He knows how to sell goods, but when that is done he is done. To impart that knowledge to the retailer is beyond him; he is not capable, in fact, in many cases he thinks it is not in his line to educate the dealer. If he only knew it that is where his future profits lie—in educating the man he sells, giving to him the fundamentals and also the enthusiasm which does not die the week after the salesman leaves."

Oro-Tone to Move to Larger Quarters

The Oro-Tone Co., now located at 20 East Jackson boulevard, is planning to move to larger quarters at 1808-1810 Irving Park boulevard. Leigh I. Hunt, treasurer of the Oro-Tone Co., stated that this move is necessitated by their comprehensive plans for enlarging the business and in order that the offices of the company might be close to the factory. At their new address the Oro-Tone Co. will occupy some 3,000 square feet of floor space. The assembling room will also be here. Within a block of the new place is the factory.

Unit Construction Co. Active in West

The Unit Construction Co. is planning an energetic campaign throughout the Central West for the improvement and modernizing of talking machine departments, which have outgrown their facilities for the efficient handling of increased business. It opened a Chicago office last March with E. E. Morton in charge and has been on the jump ever since. This gentleman believes that if a talking machine department isn't paying big dividends right now there are reasons, and one of these reasons is the failure to have a modernized, attractively constructed interior. Just now, however, the type of merchant who demands most of his attention is not the one doing too little business, but the one doing too much. The "overgrown" talking machine department with built-in booths that cannot be shifted form a large percentage of the retail stores of the country at the present time, and it is these Mr. Morton most wants to reach. The entire Central West will be covered intensively by Mr. Morton and his assistant, H. R. Mirick, who is out on the road most of the time calling upon the trade. Mr. Mirick was previously associated with Lyon & Healy in the talking machine business as wholesale representative and is well known.

E. E. Morton comes to the talking machine trade from the United States Air Service. It is a coincidence that he first became associated with the Government air work in the city of Chicago as far back as the early part of 1917. Later, on account of trouble with his eyes, he went to France as an ambulance driver, again transferred to the air service and was sent to Paris to the Aviation headquarters. After serving eight months in France he came back to take part in the production end of the aircraft program and was sent to the aircraft factories at League Island, Philadelphia, where he first came into association with the Unit Construction Co. This concern made wing sec-

A CHART OF MONTHLY SALES

How the Average Annual Business Is Divided Up Into Monthly Portions, Prepared by H. B. Bibb, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 3.—A chart showing the average normal proportion of the sales throughout the year has been prepared by H. B. Bibb, sales manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. talking machine division. It will be examined by the trade with great interest, as the chart is representative of the average business, not of one or two States, but of all the States in the Union. Particular care has been taken in the compilation of the figures received, and dealers from every part of the country have assisted in its preparation.

"I have corresponded with a large number of dealers," said Mr. Bibb, "and the figures from which the chart has been prepared are secured from all parts of the country from merchants selling various makes of talking machines. Individuals may be able to disagree with these figures, but they give a fairly good idea of business as a whole."

It will be noticed that almost one-half of the annual business was done in the last two months of the year, November and December, and considerably over half was accomplished in October, November and December. Probably one-third of the entire annual trade was encompassed between December 1 and 31. Of course, the chart is based on normal conditions and does not take into consideration the present unusual operation of the law of supply and demand. The chart shows business as it would be distributed if the dealer maintained a complete stock throughout the year and put the same amount of selling energy into every month of the year. Under present conditions, with supply considerably under demand, the business of each month will become more equalized, the business of the larger months carrying over into the smaller.

Here are cold facts, eloquent in their appeal. The necessity for getting stocks on the floor sufficiently in advance of the busy season to preclude the possibility of a shortage is strongly apparent. If the last three months of the year are the months for selling then it would seem to be equally true that the middle months are the months for ordering—especially in view of present conditions.

Mr. Bibb has had a large replica made of the accompanying chart and placed it over his desk for the benefit of Brunswick dealers.

Mr. Morton is possessed of mechanical talent, which should aid him materially in his association with the talking machine trade. He brings to his latest work appreciation of the value of decorative art and display merchandising methods gained in six years' previous experience in the advertising and sales field.

Trade Conventions Interest Public

The recent conventions in Chicago of the various music industries aroused quite a degree of interest in the minds of the newspaper reading public. Several local dailies gave events publicity in small but interesting items, and the fact that representative music dealers from all parts of the country were gathered here created, of itself, not a little interest. An article published in the Daily News was entitled "Sick? See Dr. 'Ragtime,'" and following this came a few pungent phrases dealing with music as a cure-all medicine. "Does the rheumatism bother you these wilting days? Get out the talking machine and slap on a record with lots of jazz in it. Think the heat will give you nervous prostration? Don't worry. Just hum to yourself a few catchy bars from a Strauss waltz."

"But," murmured a skeptical talking machine and piano dealer, "what good is it going to do us if they go around humming?—and how you gonna hum jazz, I'd like to know? I say, let 'em slip a snappy talking machine record on a good talking machine. That'll do the work."

Chicago Puts Victory Loan Over

Trade team No. 30, made up of the music industries of Chicago, reached and passed its quota of $1,100,000 at the end of one of the most exciting and hardest fought of all the five liberty loan campaigns. James F. Bowers, president of Lyon & Healy, was chairman of Team 30. He and his assistants all the way down the line deserve the greatest credit for their consistent and enthusiastic efforts. Pep and "stick-to-it-iveness" characterized the trade workers from the start to finish. It is difficult to mention the names of any of the salesmen who did such excellent work without mentioning all of them, but the talking machine man who piled up the largest total was Leslie C. Wiswell, who turned in subscriptions amounting to $106,900. Mr. Wiswell was in charge of all the talking machine divisions and was tireless in his work of rounding up subscribers.

W. F. Stevens, acting for the War Loan Organization, as captain of Team No. 30, wrote the following summary to James F. Bowers at the close of the campaign: "I want to express my extreme pleasure for the many courtesies received at your hands in serving with those veterans of the old battalion with whom I went through the fourth campaign, and the many new and attractive faces in the replacement battalion. It was a source of pleasure, and in spite of the considerable work was a lot of fun."

Chicago as a Musical Center

In a recent interview with a representative of The World S. A. Ribolla, general manager of the Otto Heineman Phono. Supply Co. of Illinois, whose headquarters are in Chicago, gave interesting and informative data relative to the importance of Chicago as America's greatest musical industrial center. Mr. Ribolla is thoroughly familiar with the growth of the talking machine industry in Chicago, and the remarkable success he has achieved with the Heineman organization may be attributed in a considerable measure to his intimate familiarity with every phase of the industry. Mr. Ribolla said:

"Some people are surprised at the unheard-of growth in the volume of business done by the music trades in Chicago. To me it's no surprise at all—it is as natural as it is for 'b' to follow 'a' and 'c' to come after 'b.' Anyone who has studied the commercial and industrial development of America must have noticed that Chicago by all the laws of nature and geography was destined to become a great trade and cultural center for the Middle West, Northwest, Southwest and for a good share of the Far West.

"The greatness of Chicago as a musical industries market was greatly enhanced by the fact that the States which it serves as a trade pivot are a happy combination of industrial-agricultural States.

"It is a well-known fact that in such territories not only is wealth more evenly distributed, but prosperity is also not as spasmodic as in parts of the country where the majority of people depend mainly upon certain industries for their source of income. This prosperity throughout the States whose buyers seek Chicago as a music trade center has brought about the result that the average man not only owns his own home in greater proportion than is the case throughout the Eastern States, but that he is also in position to acquire more and better fineries which make for a cozy and beautiful home.

"Some of the leading men in the musical industries were quick to grasp the above-mentioned wonderful advantages, and as a result within the space of two generations some of the most powerful musical industries grew up in Ohio and Illinois, also Indiana and in some of the other States.

"The men at the head of those great institutions were quick in grasping the magnitude of their opportunity, and have sought trade more intensively and have created a demand for musical instruments more systematically in the homes of the Middle West and in the surrounding States than one finds recorded in any other part of the land.

"Of course, the unheard-of prosperity of our farmers has also had much to do with the tremendous growth in Chicago's share of music trading. After all, the farmer is in greater need of music in the home than the city dweller. First, because the man in town can hear music rendered by professionals in theatres, churches, cafes, etc.; second, because home life in the rural districts blossoms out in its full glory after sundown—and it goes without saying that a home can well afford to get along without Persian rugs and cut glass, but few farmers would think of living their life of solitude without the good cheer that a musical instrument will spread in their midst day after day."

Brunswick Traveler in Ohio

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. have recently added to the list of their traveling representatives Jack Kennedy, who will represent them in northern Ohio. Mr. Kennedy is an old hand at the talking machine business, having been connected with the Eclipse Musical Co. of Cleveland for a number of years. The Eclipse Musical Co. are well-known Victor jobbers, and it was while connected with this concern that Mr. Kennedy became extensively acquainted with the talking machine merchants of Ohio. He brings to the Brunswick Co. an enthusiastic personality and the advantage of a personal acquaintance with practically every dealer in his territory, an asset that is of tremendous value.

Announce Their Removal

Consolidated Talking Machine Co. announce their removal to the building at 227 West Washington street, opposite the great Chicago Telephone Building. They have taken the entire building of three stories, with a retail store on the street level.

Have Developed Surprisingly

Cole & Dunas, of this city, who modestly started in the talking machine business a short time ago as jobbers of new and "second" records and who inaugurated the idea of selling records in batches according to retail price instead of according to catalog number, have developed most surprisingly during the last few months. In quick succession this concern has added to their line talking machine hardware, tone arms, motors and complete machines. A comprehensive catalog of talking machine hardware has just been issued for the convenience of the trade.

This has been prepared in the loose-leaf form, because of expected addition of new items from time to time. Cole & Dunas last month increased their wareroom space and are now shipping direct from the downtown office. They have also added to their force to permit of quicker shipments.

A Visitor From Tacoma

A recent caller on the local talking machine trade was Benjamin A. Almvgig, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., Tacoma, Wash., who was on his way to the East on a trip combining business and pleasure. Mr. Almvgig will call at the Victor factory in Camden, N. J., and will also visit New York, Boston and other cities before returning to the Coast. Regarding conditions in Tacoma, he stated that they are practically the same as those existing in other sections of the country, with the demand far in excess of the supply. Machines, and particularly records, however, are coming through in larger quantities, and in anticipation of further improvement in that direction plans are already under way for increasing the number of demonstrating booths in Mr. Almvgig's department from eight to twelve to take care of future demands.

Enlarging Manufacturing Facilities

The Krasberg Engineering & Manufacturing Corp., this city, are enlarging their manufacturing facilities to the extent of a seven-story building adjacent to their present large and attractive plant along the lake shore at Ohio street. This new building is 200 by 109 feet, so that the increased floor space will be very considerable. The construction and equipment of this additional plant will be of the same high quality and up-to-dateness that so plainly marks the present plant. As was announced in these columns last month, the Krasberg Corporation are now turning a considerably larger part of their production over to the manufacture of phonograph motors than they have heretofore, and it is reasonable to suppose that this new addition is in a way to take care of this increased pro-

Sonora Men Visit Factory

L. Golder, manager of the talking machine department of Van Houten & Zoon, Sonora jobbers of the Middle West, and P. E. Gilbert, of the service department, have just returned from a visit to the Sonora factories at Saginaw, Mich. Walter J. Hamlin, general manager for Van Houten & Zoon, also has been out of the city visiting Sonora headquarters in New York.

Mr. Golder reports that extensive plans are in contemplation for the enlargement of the Saginaw factories in the immediate future. This is necessitated by the inability of the company to keep abreast of present orders and to enable them to adequately take care of the fall business. No new accounts will be accepted now, says Mr. Golder, for a period of at least ninety days. The Chicago warerooms are absolutely bare, Van Houten & Zoon not having a single instrument in their possession.

Enlarging Factory at Geneva

The Hiawatha Phonograph Co., with general offices at 209 S. State St., Chicago, is building an additional story to their three-story factory at Geneva, Ill. This step is rendered imperatively necessary by the tremendous demand for Hiawatha phonographs, which has for months taxed the company's capacity, although they have been working almost entirely on their old customers. Only to-day they had a cash order from a new man from the South for a carload of Hiawatha phonographs, but they were compelled to turn it down. Therefore the new addition brings good news to the loyal Hiawatha dealers. It will increase capacity far more than 25 per cent., perhaps will double it, as it will permit the development of processes which will increase production to a far greater extent than the new floor space itself would indicate.

While making no changes in design or equipment the company is increasing the dimensions of all their styles, thus giving the dealer more for his money. This is the established policy of the Hiawatha Co.

Visitors During Convention Week

C. H. Morris, manager of the Velvetone Phonograph Sales Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., was a visitor during the convention and received some excellent orders. Mr. Canavan, who conducts their Los Angeles, Cal., branch, was also a visitor.

Closed Some Large Deals

Phil Ravis, president of the Peerless Album Co., New York, was a visitor during convention week and reported having closed some large deals on Peerless record albums. A Chicago branch was recently opened in charge of W. A. Carter at 57 East Jackson boulevard, and is already producing a fine volume of business.

The talking machine industry as a whole in the West gained considerably from the recent conventions of the piano manufacturers and merchants in this city.

WHAT ARE WE DOING ABOUT IT?

European Nations Already Planning to Get Grip on Future German Trade

English, French and Belgian manufacturers are apparently not awaiting the signing of the peace treaty before endeavoring to get a firm grip on German trade. Reports from Cologne indicate that British commercial agents are steadily arriving in Germany with a view to securing the business available along the Rhine. A significant fact is that representatives of some seventy British firms are reported to have formed a British Chamber of Commerce in Cologne. It is estimated, in a cable dispatch from that city, that French and English manufacturers have secured $150,000,000 of business. All this points to the fact that America's overseas trade endeavors will be too late unless rapid forward strides are made within a short time. Waiting for the peace treaty doesn't pay.

Joseph I. Carroll, sales manager for the Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, recently returned from a trip to Richmond, Va.

MODERN PHONOGRAPH SUPPLY CO. 107 Springer Bldg. 313 S. Clinton St. CHICAGO, ILL.

GREAT SUPPLY FACTORY SECURED BY CHENEY CO.

Cheney Talking Machine Co. Begins Plans for Expansion With Acquisition of Accounting Machine Co. Plant at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Announcement of what is believed to be only one of several steps taken toward a rapid increase in production of Cheney phonographs comes from Grand Rapids in the form of a statement that the Cheney Talking Machine Co. has purchased the plant of the Accounting Machine Co. in that city, and that this plant will within a short time be devoted entirely to the production of parts for the Cheney phonograph.

For the past few months the Accounting Machine Co.'s factory has been devoted partially to production of parts for this phonograph, but in line with its policy of perfecting its production, both in quality and quantity, the Cheney Talking Machine Co. accepted the opportunity to purchase the property, and has now added this to its other factory equipment in Grand Rapids.

The arrangement with Berkey & Gay Furniture Co. under which this famous furniture concern manufactures cabinets for the Cheney phonograph only will be continued, as will the operation of the Cheney plant on Mill street, Grand Rapids. With the co-ordination of these two plants and the Berkey & Gay plant it is believed that within a few weeks the production of Cheney phonographs will be materially increased over its present maximum.

It is announced that with the coming increase of production it will probably be possible to include in the company's trade extension plans several States in which the Cheney Co. now has little or no representation.

In connection with the annual convention of the Allied Music Trade in Chicago, June 2 to 7, the Cheney phonograph line was on display in rooms Nos. 708 and 710, Auditorium Hotel, and in the company's wholesale offices, eighth floor, Marshall Field Annex Building, and also in the phonograph department of Marshall Field & Co. retail, Burton Colver, Eastern representative, was in charge of the Auditorium exhibit, and several other representatives were in the city during the convention.

Plans for trade extension, including announcements in reference to new equipment features and aggressive advertising campaigns, will be given in detail to the trade in the course of a few weeks.

SOME SUMMER SELLING ARGUMENTS

Edison "Diamond Points" In Editorial Makes Some Live Suggestions Along That Line.

An interesting editorial in the current issue of Edison "Diamond Points" says in part, regarding summer sales:

"You can sell skates in winter, because that is when people skate. You can sell bathing suits in summer, because that is when people swim. People play the phonograph all the year round. In handling the New Edison, you are selling a product with a twelve months' open season.

"The only disadvantage connected with that sort of a proposition is that you have to work all the year round. You can't just hand out goods for three months and sleep for nine. It's up to you to be on the job every moment of the phonograph season, and to blame no one but yourself if your sales drop in any one month.

"But even though the Edison isn't of merely seasonal popularity, you do need to use seasonable arguments to sell it. That is true of any class of goods. The demand for soap is as steady as any in the market, and yet if you watch soap ads you will see that they feature snow scenes in winter and summer sports in summer as consistently as those of any other manufacturers.

"You know the summer arguments for the New Edison, or if you don't it is easy enough to work them out. Put yourself in the place of the prospect. Think how much you would enjoy the Edison."

TALKING MACHINE EXHIBITS MADE DURING PIANO CONVENTIONS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, ILL., June 10.—The talking machine manufacturers, as well as makers of talking machine accessories, were much in evidence last week during the conventions of the various piano trade organizations at the Congress Hotel. A goodly number of talking machine men had special exhibits at the Auditorium Hotel and neighboring hostleries, and those with local display rooms made special efforts to attract the piano men to those centers, and, be it said, the piano men, particularly the dealers, appeared quite anxious to see the new offerings in the talking machine line with a view to extending the scope of their business.

Among the talking machine houses which had special exhibitions during convention week were included the following concerns:

The Atlas Sales Corporation, Richford, Vt., manufacturers of packing and shipping cases for talking machines, had exhibits both at their local offices in the Webster Building and in the Auditorium Hotel.

The Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., of New York, exhibited their Brilliantone needles in counter display cases, also their new combination tone needles, which attracted much attention. W. A. Carter, district manager, 57 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, was in charge.

The local headquarters of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of course, had a full line of Brunswick phonographs on exhibition, but for the convenience of conventioners at the Congress, the company installed a special exhibition of the leading types of machines in the Auditorium Hotel.

Bush & Lane Piano Co. exhibited at their Chicago retail rooms, 824 Republic Bldg. Walter Lane, W. H. Beach, F. J. Congleton, Fred Kurtz and C. L. Beach greeted visiting merchants. In addition to the regular line of Bush & Lane pianos, talking machines made by this concern were also shown.

The Cheney Phonograph Co., Chicago, had two displays at the convention, one at their regular showrooms, 24 North Wabash avenue, and another at the Auditorium Hotel. The Auditorium exhibit was particularly attractive, inasmuch as it embraced practically all the styles of the Cheney line, including special period styles in a variety of finishes. The exhibit gave the impression that the Cheney product was high class in all particulars. Burton Colver and a corps of assistants took care of the numerous visitors.

Melville Clark Piano Co. exhibited in their wholesale warerooms in the Kimball Bldg., 25 E. Jackson boulevard. T. M. Pletcher and other members of the sales force met the visiting merchants. The Apollo player action and the combination Melville Clark player-piano and talking machine proved to be subjects of great interest to the visitors.

Federal Phonograph Parts Co., Chicago, exhibited at 8 South Dearborn street. A special exhibit of their talking machine accessories was shown and attracted much attention.

Fletcher-Wickes Co., Chicago, had a complete display of the latest models of their F. & W. sound boxes and tone arms at their headquarters, 6 East Lake street.

The Kamo-File Co., Rockford, Ill., had an interesting exhibit of a number of new talking machine record filing devices at the Auditorium Hotel in charge of Leslie Scott. The exhibit included a new filing device made up to resemble several volumes of books and designed to be set in the regular bookcase. There was also shown a special filing arrangement for installing in talking machine cabinets by the manufacturers. The feature of the company's files is the fact that the compartments are all lined with felt.

Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, displayed their complete line of Heineman and Meisselbach motors, together with tone arms, sound boxes, needles and other talking machine accessories at their local offices, 19 West Jackson Boulevard. From the number of visitors who inspected the line, it is to be assumed that some more piano manufacturers will start making talking machines shortly.

The Jones-Motrola Co., Inc., New York, with Chicago office at 57 East Jackson boulevard, showed at The Stratford the Jones-Motrola attachable to any talking machine in place of the winding crank. The new model has several advantages, one of which is that the motor cannot cut in while a record is being played. W. A. Carter, district manager, was in charge.

Krasberg Engineering Co. held an exhibit on the main floor of the Auditorium Hotel. L. P. Valiquet, the well-known talking machine technical expert, who is employed by the Krasberg Engineering Co. in an advisory capacity; C. T. Armour and Walter McGill received visitors and showed them the complete line of Krasberg spring motors. The Krasberg open spring motor was most emphasized, but they are also bringing out a new enclosed motor, and this model is also a feature of the exhibit.

The Mandel Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, showed five models of Mandel talking machines at the Stratford Hotel. The "news" for the dealers consisted of two models of cabinet machines, one in walnut and one in oak, with all of the exposed metal parts, tone-arm reproducer, turntable frame, brake, hinges, etc., heavily gold plated. Ben Reidler, Roy Black, Wm. A. Tindall, Mr. Lund and Mr. Spencer, of the traveling force, and Sales Manager M. B. Silverman were in attendance.

Milton Piano Co., New York, had an interesting exhibit at the Auditorium Hotel, a feature of which was the Milton combined player-piano and phonograph. John H. Parnham, George W. Allen and K. W. Curtis did the honors.

Nightingale Manufacturing Co., Chicago, entertained convention visitors at special quarters at the Congress Hotel, but confined the machine display to their showroom, 422 North Armour street.

Oro-Tone Co., Chicago, displayed the Oro-Tone attachment for playing lateral cut records on Edison phonographs at their local offices, 20 East Jackson boulevard.

The Peerless Album Co. showed their line of record albums in both red and black covers, at Room 256 Stratford, in charge of W. A. Coates, manager of the Chicago office, 57 East Jackson boulevard. Phil Ravis, of New York, president of the company, was a visitor during the week.

The Starr Piano Co., of Richmond, Ind., held a special exhibit of Starr phonographs and Gennett records at the Hotel Stratford during convention week. William C. Klumpp and Harry Berlin were in charge of the exhibit and extended a cordial welcome to the visitors, who inspected the various models of machines and listened to the latest recordings.

G. Howlett Davis, president of the Standard Music Roll Co., attended personally to convincing the various visitors to his suite in the Congress Hotel of the several merits of the Arto, Sing-A and other rolls made by the Standard Co. The feature of the display was a set of laboratory samples of the new Arto universal cut talking machine records which will be on the market in September.

Steger & Sons exhibited in their regular wholesale and retail warerooms in the Steger Bldg., corner of Wabash avenue and Jackson boulevard. Also the various styles of Steger talking machines were shown.

The Talking Book Corp., New York, had the advantage over certain other talking machine exhibitors through the fact that a display of their products on a special card was placed immediately adjoining the desk of the secretary of the National Association of Piano Merchants at the Congress. On the card was shown the talking dolls, as well as the talking books manufactured by the company, and a good many dealers took advantage of this opportunity of investigating the possibilities of the products.

Vitanola Talking Machine Co., Chicago, took occasion to secure special display quarters at the Auditorium Hotel for the period of the convention, where they displayed the entire line of Vitanola talking machines. They also received a number of visitors at their headquarters, 508 West Thirty-fifth street. The Auditorium exhibit included all the leading models.

Thomas E. Wilson & Co., Chicago, displayed several models of their "Wilsonian" phonograph in the Auditorium Hotel, under the supervision of E. Hirschfelder. There were several attractive models shown, ranging in price from $90 to $160.

ANNUAL REUNION OF BLACKMAN FORCES ENJOYABLE EVENT

After Enjoying the Show at the Palace Theatre Last Saturday the Blackman Organization Gave a Banquet at Murray's, When the Annual Distribution of Profits to Employees Was Announced

The tenth annual reunion and banquet of the employes of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, was held last Saturday, and the program offered the employes provided for a theatre party, dinner and dance. This year's event was thoroughly enjoyed by every member of the Blackman organization, and in view of the keen delight of the employes,

J. Newcomb Blackman

it is likely that similar programs will be carried out each year.

The members of the Blackman party assembled at the Palace Theatre at 2 o'clock and enjoyed one of the best vaudeville bills offered by this famous theatre during the current season. Every act was a headliner, and this part of the program was a signal success.

At 6 o'clock the Blackman organization visited Murray's on West 42nd street, where, as usual, the Egyptian Room had been reserved for their party. The menu was typical of the culinary achievements of this popular restaurant, which is one of the best known in the city.

At the close of the banquet, J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the company, gave an address of welcome, and during the course of his talk presented a brief resumé of the company's progress and activities during the past year. Mr. Blackman also gave interesting views regarding general conditions in the talking machine industry, predicting that the industry will grow steadily, and that 1919 will be the greatest year in the history of the trade. He commented incidentally upon the fact that his company had just closed the biggest May in many years, and stated, that judging from the present outlook, the fiscal year of 1919-1920 will be the best in the history of the company. Referring to the price maintenance situation, Mr. Blackman expressed his pleasure at the recent decision in the Colgate suit, which is deemed one of the most important handed down in recent years.

In the course of his talk, which was interrupted frequently by the hearty applause of the diners, Mr. Blackman paid a tribute to the loyalty and support of the employes of his organization. It is interesting to note that the average term of service of the Blackman employes is over five years, which indicates the co-operation and good will that exists among the employes of this company.

One of the unique features of this annual Blackman dinner is the distribution of profits to the employes. Ten years ago Mr. Blackman inaugurated a plan whereby every member in his organization who has been associated with the company for one year or more participates in the profits of the past fiscal year. This method of profit distribution among employes has been adopted by the leading and most successful concerns throughout the country, and Mr. Blackman well deserves recognition as one of the pioneers in this practical plan of co-operation. Each year new employes are added to the list of profit sharers, and in addition, Mr. Blackman has recognized the invaluable support of his older employes by making them stockholders in the corporation. In fact Mr. Blackman has left nothing undone that might add to the satisfaction and prosperity of his employes, and a considerable measure of the success achieved by his company may be attributed to his far-sightedness and liberal policies.

The first profit-sharing envelope of the evening was given by Mr. Blackman to Frank Roberts, secretary of the company, who has been associated with Mr. Blackman since the company's inception, 17 years ago. Mr. Roberts, who is also a stockholder of the company, is well known throughout this city as one of the best posted members of the Victor industry, and is beloved and esteemed by all his co-workers.

John L. Spillane, assistant secretary of the company, who has been a member of the Blackman organization for 14 years, also participated as a stockholder, and in the profit-sharing plan. Among the other stockholders who are employes are James F. Ashby, assistant treasurer, who has to his credit 12 years of service; H. C. Lansell with 10 years of service, and George Thau. The other stockholders include Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager of the company; Mrs. J. Newcomb Blackman, Mrs. Fred P. Oliver, Mrs. Anna A. Houghton, and Mrs. Irene C. Blackman.

The employes of the company who have been members of the organization for more than one year and who were therefore entitled to share in the profits of the past fiscal year were the following: John Hanley, C. R. Marquis, John Mills, A. D. Robbins, E. S. Palmer, Miss Elizabeth Reighton, Miss M. V. Johnstone, Mrs. M. G. Rudolph, Joseph Flanagan, Joseph Eble and Aaron Wood.

Fred P. Oliver

At the close of the banquet Mr. Oliver in behalf of the employes expressed the sincere appreciation of Mr. Blackman's splendid and liberal policies. Mr. Oliver also referred to the unceasing and untiring efforts of the company's employes, who are responding enthusiastically to Mr. Blackman's aims and plans.

From 10 o'clock until midnight the members of the party were favored with unusually fine dance music by three entertainers from the Clef Club and it was unanimously voted that the 1919 banquet was the best that has been given in the past decade.

Some Talking Machine Men Who Figure on the Links—Walter S. Gray an Old-Timer

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—The golf bug has invaded San Francisco, and the talking machine has not escaped. Walter S. Gray, the phonograph accessory man whose name is sometimes mentioned in these dispatches in connection with needles, is one of the victims. Mr. Gray is probably the dean of the players in the trade, having commenced his career several years ago, when he used to play with the late E. D. Easton, then president of the Columbia Graphophone Co., at Del Monte, on the latter's annual visits to the Pacific Coast. He is a member of the Lakeside Country Club, where two or three hundred players are frequently seen to tee off on a bright Sunday morning.

Mr. Levy and Mr. Jessen, of the California Phonograph Co., can be found often at the municipal links in Lincoln Park, where they are developing splendid golf form. This course, by the way, is unique, being situated in the heart of the city, and is one of the most beautiful in the State, with its surprising views of city, country and ocean, where the youth and the graybeard, the banker, professional man and office boy meet in happy democracy.

"Jimmy" Black and George Hughes, of the Wiley B. Allen Co., are also devotees of the sport, but Mr. Gray claims to be the champion of the talking machine colony.

"SURPRISE" MR. & MRS. BAERWALD

A little surprise party was held recently in the offices of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, when Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Baerwald, who were married a few weeks ago, were presented with a beautiful luncheon set. Mr. Baerwald, who is one of the most popular members of the Okeh record executive sales staff, found himself so touched by the kindness of his co-workers that for once in his life he hardly found words to fit the happy occasion.

ACTIVITIES OF DOEHLER EMPLOYEES

Association Organized for Insurance—Band and Outing Under Consideration—Doehler Plant Now on Pre-War Basis—Other Happenings

The immense plant of the Doehler Die Casting Co., of Brooklyn, N. Y., is now on an entirely pre-war basis. The facilities are greatly in excess of those previous to the war, as during the war period two new buildings were completed.

This month "Doehler Topics," the factory monthly of the Doehler organization, made its initial appearance. The editorial policy is in the hands of J. Honig, who has had charge of the Doehler advertising for many years. Of special interest is the announcement of the new Doehler Die-Casting Employes' Association, which provides life insurance, sick benefit, free medical attention and the same medical attention for any member of the immediate family at specially low rates. The benefits do not interfere in any way with the provisions of the New York Workman's Compensation Law, and the association is open to executive and workman alike who have been connected with the Doehler organization for a period of two weeks. Many plans are on foot among the Doehler employes. A Doehler employes' band is already a certainty, and an old-fashioned home-made picnic is planned for July 26 at Ulmer Park. The Doehler baseball team is now included in the Brooklyn Metal Industries Baseball League, and many interesting games are looked forward to. The Doehler employes were recently presented with a "Hun" helmet in recognition of their excellent work in the Victory Loan.

"HAUKOLA" SHOWN IN CINCINNATI

Timely Display in Windows of Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. Attracted Much Attention

A picture of the unique talking machine made from a beer keg which was used so effectively by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Cincinnati, O., has been received at The World office, but unfortunately the photograph was not clear enough to do full justice to the display and could not be reproduced for this issue. This display was used during the week Ohio went dry and was most appropriate. The setting of the windows was designed to give a rustic effect, and in the foreground reposing on an old stump was the "Haukola," with the Victor dog inquisitively nosing the soon-to-be-forgotten spigot. Under the machine was a sign calling attention to the records, "How Are You Going to Wet Your Whistle?" and "Alcoholic Blues." The records themselves were displayed to good advantage around the machine. During the time this display was being shown the windows of the Wurlitzer Co. were besieged with curious onlookers, and the results of the sale were both profitable and interesting.

FELLOWSHIP FACTORY MANAGEMENT

Success of This Movement Illustrated at the Plant of the Garford Mfg. Co. in Elyria O.—Body of Fifteen Has Final Jurisdiction

Under the heading of "Fellowship Factory Management" there appeared in a recent issue of the "Labor Advocate," a labor magazine published in Ohio, an interesting article telling how the Garford Mfg. Co., of Elyria, O., gives its employes a voice in its operation. This company is now controlled by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. of New York, and as outlined by the writer of this article the plan of operation at this plant is as follows:

"In each department the men were allowed to vote for their choice to represent them upon the board of managers. The person in each department receiving the greatest number of votes became the committeeman elected for that department. The only restriction was that in order to be a candidate the party had to be in their employ one year. Then the chosen committeemen from all of the various departments met and elected a committee of five from their midst to take all matters before the committee to represent the employers. The women of the factory were to choose one from their number and she then automatically became one of the committee of five elected to represent the employes. The foremen of the various departments elected a committee of five from their number to sit with the committee of five from the employes when meeting with the committee of employers. Thus a body of fifteen men had vested in them power of final action on all matters coming before the body."

Incidentally, it is pleasing to note that the Garford plant of the Otto Heineman Co. is working to capacity, and that additional facilities have been installed in order to increase the plant's output.

EDISON ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

As Outlined by Arthur J. Palmer, Advertising Manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

In making up the list of magazines that we have selected to carry our national advertising for 1919, we eliminated guesswork, indefinite estimate and our own judgment, as far as that was possible. We asked five thousand Edison owners to help us select the magazines best suited to carry our advertising and many of them enthusiastically responded. Here is how we worked the plan:

We wrote a letter to five thousand Edison owners in every State in the Union, large metropolitan centers like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, etc., being considered as States. The number of owners approached in each State or metropolitan center was based on the population of the respective States and metropolitan centers. We asked each owner what was his or her favorite magazine, in other words, what would be the best magazine for us to advertise in, in order to influence him or her toward the purchase of the New Edison, assuming that he or she were not already an Edison owner.

The magazines we are now using on our list are the ones which received the greatest number of favorable replies in the Edison owners' canvass.

NOW MANUFACTURING MOTORS

The Lucky 13 Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the "Cleartone" phonograph, and distributor of a complete line of phonograph parts, accessories, etc., is now manufacturing a talking machine motor, which will be known as the "6-60," these numerals indicating that it will play six records with one winding, and that it takes sixty revolutions for a full winding.

The Lucky 13 Phonograph Co. has become interested in a well-known machinery concern in metropolitan territory, and has arranged to take the entire output of this company. Arrangements are also pending whereby the company will control the motor output of several other large concerns.

IMPORTS SHOULD BE INCREASED

If the United States is to maintain its increasing export trade, which is such an essential part of national prosperity, it will be necessary to materially increase our imports of foreign goods, both raw and unfinished, was the opinion of the Sixth National Foreign Trade Convention recently held in Chicago. This country is now facing a difficult situation: in 1918 we exported $3,000,000,000 worth of goods more than we imported; we are now to receive half a billion dollars a year in interest on our war loans. The gold does not exist with which to pay such sums, nor is it possible to stimulate our investments abroad to a point sufficient to offset such a balance. It is clear that if we are to maintain our present large export trade we must increase our imports.

attention of the casual passer-by and impress upon him or her the value of music.

Following out this idea, one of the recent Sonora posters showed a picture of Gladstone and the Parliament buildings of London.

This paragraph is featured: Gladstone said: "They who think music ranks among the trifles of existence are in gross error because from the beginning of the world down to the present time it has been one of the most forcible instruments of training for arousing and governing the mind of man."

GRAFONOLA STORE IN TAMPA, FLA.

Frey-Magnon Co. Opens New Talking Machine Store to Handle the Columbia Line

The talking machine business of the Frey-Magnon Co., 1422 Seventh avenue, Tampa, Fla., which was inaugurated last month, is steadily increasing. This concern has the Columbia agency for that section and the Tampa Hardware Co. is the local distributor. The new store is complete in every detail and carries the largest stock of American and foreign records in the State. In addition to the Grafonola, a large line of musical instruments and supplies is handled. At the formal opening of the store a $50 Columbia machine was given away free and refreshments were served to all guests during the evening.

MAXWELL'S VOICE PROVES TRUE

The feature of Re-Creation No. 50509, namely the Re-Creation of the voice of Thomas A. Edison, that has particularly impressed dealers, is the introduction by William Maxwell. Practically all the dealers of the country have heard Mr. Maxwell speak in person at one time or another, and the majority of them have been quick to recognize his voice in his introduction of Mr. Edison.

ST. LOUIS TRADE BEGINNING TO CATCH UP ON STOCK

Still Some Shortage but Situation Is Improving—Waiting for Carload of Pathéphones—C. G. Child Addresses Victor Dealers—Artophone Co. Reorganized—Other News

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 1.—Perverse May weather affected talking machine sales somewhat but the ill May wind blew good for the records. The bad weather that kept folks indoors turned their attention, for entertainment, to the talking machine and when all the old records had been played the need of some new ones was suggested and on the next day's trip down town some were purchased and taken home for the next evening, which could be counted upon to be as drippy and depressing as the evening before. Numerous welcoming demonstrations for home-coming St. Louis soldiers also interfered with machine sales to some extent, but stimulated sales of patriotic and military records. The Victory Loan drive, the third adverse factor for the month, did not hurt the talking machine business as much as the piano business, but some ill effects were felt from it.

Notwithstanding all these things, however, it was not a bad month. Dealers are still able to sell about all the machines that they can get and more than they can get of the most popular styles and sizes. Jobbers are behind their orders. They are gradually catching up on some styles but making no appreciable progress on others. They are getting plenty of promises from the factories, but promises serve poorly in lieu of machines.

Charles L. Staffelbach, who manages the Pathé distribution from the Hellrung & Grimm House-Furnishing Co., is waiting for that carload of high-priced machines which he needs badly for filling orders. George W. Lyle was here last week from the factory at Brooklyn and Mr. Staffelbach wrung from him a promise that a carload would be right along. He has enough of the smaller kinds to go around, but the dealers are standing around waiting for the big ones. There is encouraging news that the factory is being enlarged and the capacity increased. Pathé territory is being extended. Mr. Staffelbach returned the other day from a trip through Western Missouri, where he placed a number of new agencies. Supplies of records are coming very well and improving all the time, he says.

St. Louis dealers and their clerks are better record salesmen than they were before C. G. Child, managing director of the Victor Recording Department, came here early in the month. When President Val Reis, of the Tri-State Victor Talking Machine Dealers' Association, heard that he was coming he called a meeting at the Missouri Athletic Association and Mr. Child was invited as the guest of honor and he told them a lot of things about records which the wisest of them did not know before. He told them how records were made and gave them some very useful instruction in selling methods.

Val Reis, president of the Smith-Reis Piano Co., thinks the time has come to do more merchandising and less demonstrating of records. For the past week he has had the east side of his store torn up with preparations for the installation of a quick-service record department. The installation is to consist of record racks against the wall and a high counter. Note the high. There will be no stools in front of it and it will even be too high to lean upon. The idea is to discourage tarrying. It is to be just as different as possible from the way that business is done in the demonstration booth, where the customer pays a visit and is nicely entertained and maybe buys something and maybe not, using up in the meantime a lot of the salesman's time, which costs the firm a considerable amount of money. Mr. Reis has an idea that the time has come to quit that sort of thing, which is a survival of the time when people had to be persuaded to buy records, the persuasion taking the form of endless demonstrating. He is going to try to educate his customers away from all that. He expects the people to come in and stand up to the counter and say what they want and get it and pay for it and carry it away, all in the time that it usually takes for a demonstration fiend to get very nicely settled in a booth for a half hour's entertainment. "If you buy a piece of sheet music you don't expect to have somebody sing it for you," says Mr. Reis, "and if you go to the book store to buy a book you don't expect to have somebody read it to you so that you can decide whether you want it or not. You buy it by the title and the author. Records should be bought the same way and I think they are going to be. I am going behind the counter and show the girls how I used to sell sheet music without demonstrating. I did it for two years without any demonstrating."

The Artophone Co. has been reorganized and the capital stock has been increased from $10,000 to $75,000. Edwin Schiele, formerly in the distilling business, is turning his attention to talking machines for the dry regime. He has been made treasurer of the company, succeeding Robert H. Cone in that capacity, Mr. Cone continuing, however, as president. The company is operating only through the big jobbing houses and is opening up a lot of new territory, especially in the South. Distribution in Europe is through the Artophone Sales Co., with E. V. Tetgens of London as manager for Europe. Agencies have been established at London, Paris, Brussels and Copenhagen. The Artophone Co. had a display at the recent Household Show at the Coliseum in charge of A. E. Hamm and E. V. Wagner.

Fred Coleman, proprietor of the Wellstone Talking Machine Co., 5849 Easton avenue, has been appointed manager of the Record Transfer Bureau of the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association, succeeding L. F. Ditzel of the Famous & Barr Co., who found himself too busy to give it the needed attention.

Philip Lehman, head of the Lehman Piano Co., is dropping talking machines, for the reason that he does not think there is any use of handling them unless they are handled right, and he has no room to handle them right. He has been carrying some Vitanolas and Nightingales, but will close out those that he has as soon as possible.

The Silverstone Music Co. has enough orders for Edisons, according to Myron Rosenberg, general manager, for the rest of the year, particularly for the high-grade machines. The firm is selling a good many Chippendales, priced at $285, at retail, in the absence of other high-grade machines. Dealers are doing the same. Mark Silverstone, president of the company, Manager Rosenberg and O. A. Reynolds, outside representative, will go East for the Edison convention to be held in New York June 26 and 27. A number of Edison dealers from around St. Louis also are going. Mark Silverstone was in New York and at the factory in East Orange last week.

E. C. Roth, secretary of the Koerber-Brenner Music Co., Victor distributors, has bought a new home in Webster Grove and has been moving into it during the past week.

H. H. Murray, mechanical engineer of the Victor Co., was in St. Louis recently.

Columbia dealers were given a dinner at the Statler Thursday by the officials of the Columbia Graphophone Co. wholesale department. Renewed attention was called by Mr. Salmon to the No. 7 record display rack which is being pushed. It has only been out in this territory for the past three or four weeks and is taking well. It is practically a self-service affair, for customers are expected to pick from it the records they want and take them to the salesman to be wrapped up. Columbia machines are coming better now and the dealers are in better humor. There is still a considerable shortage but substantial deliveries are expected in June.

EDISON SHOP IN WICHITA TO OPEN

An exclusive Edison shop will be opened in Wichita, Kan., some time this month by the Inness-Cosgrove Music Co., according to plans which have been announced. The new store will be in the building at 407 East Douglas street, which has been remodeled and equipped with eight soundproof booths. A tentative date for a formal opening has been set for June 15, and as soon as the alterations are nearing completion it will be possible to fix a definite time for the event.

TACOMA DEALER EXPANDING

T. R. Barth, of Tacoma, Wash., has again moved into larger quarters in response to his growing trade. The new store will be known as the Musicians' Supply House, and will feature the Pathé and Sonora as well as all kinds of musical instruments.

LATEST SONORA LITERATURE

1919 Edition of Sonora Catalog a Handsome Publication—New Silvered Needle Folder

The 1919 edition of the Sonora catalog which is just off the press is extremely attractive, and

New Sonora Catalog

the cover, which is printed in brilliant colors, constitutes a rich and unique design that hits the eye and holds the attention. It is undoubtedly one of the most inviting publications of the year. These catalogs are now being shipped to Sonora jobbers throughout the country, and the jobbers will arrange to have on hand large quantities as well as small folders and price lists.

The Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has suggested to Sonora dealers that they write to their jobbers direct, giving their requirements for this new catalog in order that they receive prompt shipment of this new book from the jobbers in their respective territories.

Another piece of recent Sonora literature consists of an attractive four-page leaflet, smartly printed in red and green and describing the Sonora Semi-Permanent Silvered Needle. This leaflet in condensed form gives the salient features of the Sonora needles, and the efficient use of this leaflet will undoubtedly stimulate sales. On the first page of the folder there is space for the imprint of the dealer.

ACTIVITY IN CHATTANOOGA TRADE

Dealers Throughout Tennessee Are Enthusiastic Over the Prospects for Increased Business—Chattanooga a Busy Trade Spot

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 9.—The talking machine and record business in this city has been very active, and dealers are enthusiastic over the prospects for increased business in the near future. This is one of the busiest cities in the South, especially in the music trade. The Stylce-Yarnell Furniture Co., of this city, Columbia dealers, report through Mr. Stylce, president of the firm, that they have been exceedingly gratified with sales in their Columbia department during May, and that they received more stock than in some months past, enabling them to care for customers who have been on the waiting list for a long time. This enterprising firm have during the past few weeks completely remodeled their Grafonola department, adding booths for demonstration and installing a complete equipment of record filing cabinets.

The Templeman Piano Co., Columbia dealers, enjoyed a very satisfactory record trade during May, and with their store recently entirely remodeled they are in better position than ever to take care of their constantly growing business. A feature of the month with them was the installation of a children's booth, suitably equipped and arranged to please the little ones, and at the same time interest the grownups.

The Rhodes-Mahoney Co. have for some time past been selling a large volume of business in their talking machine department. This firm, one of the oldest and strongest in the South, handle the Victrola and the Brunswick, as well as the full Victor catalog of records. Their big show windows on Market street are always attractive, and aid in the marketing of their stock.

The Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., Columbia and Edison, report through R. E. Johnson, manager of the music department, that business in talking machines and records has been proceeding in fine shape, May being one of the very best months ever enjoyed in his department. Mr. Johnson says that he is preparing to make an active drive for business in this city

TRADE-MARKED GOODS PROTECTED

"Talker" and musical instrument manufacturers are watching with interest the new bill introduced into the House of Representatives to protect trade-marked articles. The provisions of this bill aim to protect both the manufacturer and the public and provide for penalties for deceiving the public in the sale of trade-marked articles. The matter of substitution is also covered in this bill and severe penalties are imposed for the substitution of inferior articles for those made by manufacturers of established reputation.

HANDLING SHEET MUSIC IN TALKING MACHINE STORES

Some of the Opportunities That Lie in This Direction—Fits in Better Than Practically All Other Side Lines—Will Prove Profitable if Given the Proper Attention

Many of the successful talking machine merchants hold the view that it is not necessary for the dealer to carry side lines that are foreign to the industry. They hold that intensive sales methods and alertness on the part of the dealer should be all that is necessary to bring to his store a volume of business that should make it unnecessary for him to look elsewhere for profits. That, of course, is not to say that a dealer should not carry the necessary accessories which are desired on the part of the talking machine owners. However, very often dealers in looking for new sources of profit, and these are not always small dealers, by the way, often take an entire line that is not out of sympathy with their special selling line.

There is no doubt that in some communities and some districts the small dealer finds it necessary to carry some supplementary lines in addition to his talking machine products, and where this is so it would appear the logical method would be to carry a line of sheet music. It may be that many dealers feel that they cannot compete with the 10-cent stores in these sales, but live sheet music dealers throughout the country have proven during the past few years that this is not so, and even if it were true there is really no necessity to compete with the 10-cent stores, inasmuch as to-day there is a large number of fast-selling songs from publishers' high-class catalogs which retail at 30 and 40 cents, allowing the dealer a very fair margin of profit.

As a matter of fact, some of the biggest hits of the past year have been sold at that price, and the coming season, from all indications, will see music publishing houses place more and more numbers in what are known as their high-class catalogs. These numbers, once they are successful, sell just as readily as the more popular-priced ones. In fact, a display of the title pages generally means sales, as once a number is a recognized hit through the publicity which it receives from the publishers' professional department and by the aid of the bands and orchestras, as well as talking machine records and music rolls, the public becomes so familiar with the leading numbers that the titles immediately attract attention.

The talking machine dealer who finds it necessary to add an outside line to his stock will, in taking on sheet music, add something to his line that is not foreign to the goods that he features. Furthermore, many of his record purchasers will buy the sheet music of the records which they are taking home, as it has been proved to the satisfaction of most of those interested that the demonstration of songs on the records sells sheet music. In fact, one of the largest of the higher-priced syndicate stores in certain sections of the country has a talking machine demonstrator in its sheet music department, and instead of the numbers being demonstrated by a piano they are played by the talking machine. It has found that results from this method of demonstration have been excellent.

The investment in a stock of sheet music is not large, and if the dealer will confine himself to the fastest-selling numbers he will find the turnover is rapid—much more so than in gas mantles and other extraneous lines that have nothing to do, and should have nothing to do, with the talking machine dealer's stock.

Men Who Make Popular Songs

No. 3—S. R. Henry

Among the song writers who have contributed songs of great popularity during the past two seasons is Henry R. Stern, brother of Joseph W. Stern, of the firm of Joseph W. Stern & Co., who writes under the pen name of S. R. Henry.

S. R. Henry

The works from his pen have covered a wide range, and have been of the high-class as well as the more popular variety. One of the features of most of his songs has been the fact that they have also been exceptional successes as instrumental numbers. While he is by no means new to the song-writing field, the writing of such numbers as "Indianola," "Pahjamah," "Himalaya," "Tears of Love," and other such numbers has brought him decidedly into the limelight. Probably no writer in the field to-day writes with more ease than S. R. Henry, and despite the fact that he has a long list of songs he does not impress one as becoming a real enthusiast over his works, as is the usual song writers' wont. It may be that because the music-loving public generally receives his offerings favorably that he finds no necessity for becoming so. Among the other numbers from his pen which have been admittedly successes are: "Polly Prim," "When the Harvest Moon Is Shining on the River," "Peter Piper," "She Was a Grand Old Lady," "Down in the Old Cherry Orchard,"

MAKING ENCOURAGING PROGRESS

The Emerson Philadelphia Co. Building Up a Great Trade in Eastern Philadelphia, Southern New Jersey and Washington, D. C.

The Emerson Philadelphia Co., distributors for Emerson records in eastern Philadelphia, southern New Jersey, Delaware and Washington, D. C., have found conditions in their territory very encouraging. In a recent chat with The World Harry Fox, general manager of this company, said: "When we took charge of this territory a few months ago we anticipated good business, but the sales have gone far beyond what we had looked for. With the live sales force under my supervision developing a host of new and high-class dealers, with the Emerson product coming better all the time and fully meeting trade demands, and with the enthusiasm with which Emerson dealers are pushing the records, I am confident that the summer business will be followed by a busy fall."

TO BECOME A WORLD TRADE CENTER

Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange to Establish Clearing House for Commerce at Grand Central Palace in New York City

The new proposition of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange of New York to make Grand Central Palace a great clearing house for world commerce, for the extension of American commerce in foreign countries as well as the importation of foreign goods into this country, has been approved. It is now planned by the Government to turn Grand Central Palace back to the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange and the building will be used for the permanent display of all kinds of manufactured goods.

The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Exchange is said to have established foreign connections for export business in every important city in the world and manufacturers, jobbers, retailers and buyers will no doubt soon regard Grand Central Palace as a great trade center when visiting New York City. Clubrooms, office facilities and other means of increasing personal comfort will be installed in the building for the convenience of visiting merchants.

General Sales Manager of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Tells of Experiences at the Various Dealers' Conventions in the South.

General Sales Manager T. J. Leonard, of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has prepared for the benefit of the Edison dealers and to be published in "Diamond Points" a most interesting review of his experiences at the several conventions of Edison dealers held by jobbers in the South, including the conventions in Dallas, under the auspices of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., the convention in Atlanta, and also in New Orleans, reports regarding which have already appeared in The World. Mr. Leonard is distinctly enthusiastic over the direct results of these local conventions, and puts much of that enthusiasm into his writing.

Why the
is Best

We have shown you their superiority from the standpoint of Mechanical Equipment, Cabinets, Finish and Price.

This month we mention a more intangible reason for superiority, namely:

The Makers

When you get Talking Machines you get Talking Machines, and that is all there is to it, except that it really does make a lot of difference as to WHO makes those machines—the people you are doing business with.

The makers of Harponolas are furniture manufacturers of long experience, who know how to build good goods at right prices.

As sales manager of a big furniture factory and owner of a retail furniture store, as well as Harponola sales manager, I appreciate the problems of the talking machine dealer.

I know the kind of support he needs and I give that support.

When you handle Harponolas you get real cooperation.

Ask us for the Harponola Dealer Proposition—the best there is.

TRADE IN BALTIMORE SHOWS STEADY GAIN

Sales Meeting of Columbia Forces Great Event of Month—Important Addresses Made—Rosenstein Co. to Reconstruct—Bosee Becomes Manager—Other News of Interest

BALTIMORE, Md., June 4.—Talking machine business for May showed an increase with the retailers. With jobbers it went ahead of the corresponding month of a year ago. Receipts of machines and records showed a slight increase, and this is construed as a most hopeful sign. Many Baltimoreans are planning to attend the jobbers' convention at Atlantic City.

One of the big events of the month was the big sales meeting of the Columbia Graphophone Co., which was held at the Southern Hotel, and which was addressed by George W. Hopkins, general sales manager, and other officials of the company. More than 200 dealers were present as guests of Manager W. S. Parks, Jr., manager of the local Columbia headquarters. F. K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager; Westervelt Terhune, manager of the Columbia branch at Atlanta, Ga., and John McKenna, who is in charge of business for the Columbia Co. at St. Louis, were also on hand. A pleasing musical program was a feature of the evening, and included Amparito Farrar, of the Columbia staff of artists, who came to Baltimore especially for the affair. Besides hearing Miss Farrar personally many of her late records were played.

An insight into the big business being done by the Columbia Co. was given by the officials from New York. G. W. Hopkins as well as F. K. Pennington stated that the company had approximately $11,000,000 worth of unfilled orders on file at this time, but they hoped to be able to catch up with the business now that the war was over. Both men pointed out that the dealers little realized that the talking machine business faced a serious situation, for had the war continued about ninety days more there would not have been any product.

"It is the duty of all salesmen," said Manager Parks during his opening statement, "to post themselves not only on the records they are selling, but on the composers and the thought that resulted in the composition. Thus every salesman will be able to tell the history of every number worth while, and this interesting recital to customers will make possible the sale of the better grade of records. I know of no better way of making better salesmen than through the study of the "Lure of Music." Making the customer feel at home when he enters your establishment is a point that should not be overlooked. By so doing every person entering your place for a particular record may become interested in something else with the result that no person would enter your place without feeling under obligation to come back again."

Telling of the wonderful strides the Columbia Co. is making on the Pacific Coast, F. K. Pennington gave a very interesting recital of incidents of the trip through the West.

nington gave a very interesting recital of incidents of the trip through the West.

"Service" was the keynote of his address, and he made a plea for more attractive establishments and a closer study of salesmanship methods by all men and women engaged in the business. He also urged that all establishments provide a self-service department, and he proved by illustrations that whatever cost would be attached to such a department would be more than provided through the increased business that would come to the firms. The meeting concluded with a playing of all of the records that are on the June list.

Sol Rosenstein, of the Rosenstein Piano Co., announced that his establishment will be reconstructed and an entire new arrangement of the building provided. The plans provide for a very fine Grafonola department on the first floor with a number of booths. The piano and player department will be moved to the second floor and the repairing and tuning department will be on the third floor. Mr. Rosenstein's announcement is the third improvement contemplated for North Howard street within the next few months. The 300 and the 400 blocks of North Howard street will be two real musical blocks of the city, right in the heart of the downtown shopping district. Hammann-Levin Co., the Maryland Piano Co., the H. R. Eisenbrandt Sons Co., Inc.; the National Piano Co. and Charles M. Stieff, Inc., will all be located in the short space of two blocks, while a block south is the establishment of Cohen & Hughes and E. F. Droop & Son Co. and three large stores, all of which have exceptional music departments, the stores being Hoshild, Kohn & Co., Stewart & Co. and The Leader. This is certainly quite a musical center.

Although shipments improved slightly in both machines and records, Manager Parks, of the Columbia Co., reported a fairly good increase over the May of 1918.

Announcement is made by I. Son Cohen, of Cohen & Hughes, Victor distributors, that H. T. Bosee has been named sales manager of the company. The firm also announces that in Baltimore it has retired from the retail talking machine business, and that its entire retail equipment has been disposed of to the G. Fred Kranz Music Co. and to Ansell & Moses. The latter firm will have an establishment at 108 West Lexington street, but pending improvements to their location they will use part of the establishment of the Maryland Piano Co., Inc. The firm will continue in business in South Baltimore at Light and West streets, where they have a Victor department as well as a piano and player department.

W. C. Roberts, of Droop & Sons, Victor distributors, reports May business ahead of a year ago. He expects to see increased shipments of both machines and records, and thus make possible a better supplying of the trade. Due to three holidays and a great deal of very warm or rainy weather, the retail business showed a slight falling off. W. C. Roberts, Charles Hause, Edward and Carl Droop will all attend the convention of the Victor Talking Machine Jobbers to be held in Atlantic City.

F. C. Barker, secretary of the Maryland Photo-Stock Co., reports very good business as a result of a co-operative advertising campaign. For H. R. Eisenbrandt & Sons Mr. Sauer reports an increase in shipments of machines and records, but with receipts below the demand. W. A. Eisenbrandt was in New York recently attending the graduation of his daughter.

The National Piano Co., Pathé distributors, are hoping to be in their new quarters by the middle of August. Jesse Rosenstein, of the firm, spent most of the week in Chicago and will stop off at the Pathé factory on his way home from the convention.

BRUNSWICK SHOP IN FLINT, MICH.

A new talking machine store has been opened in Flint, Mich., known as the Brunswick Shop, under the direction of Fred Devendorf, well known in local music circles. This store will handle the Brunswick line exclusively and all makes of records. The interior of the store has been attractively furnished and soundproof demonstration booths have been added to the equipment. Manager Devendorf has been active in the local trade, having been connected with the Doty-Salisbury Co. and with Grinnell Bros. establishments.

lovers in that part of the city, and Mr. Ross has developed an extensive clientele, particularly for Victor Red Seal records. The A. I. Ross Music Store also has a branch on Steinway avenue, Astoria, and Mr. Ross is making plans for extensive alterations at this store, which will be started the latter part of the month. It is his intention to make this branch just as attractive as his establishment on Main street, and the accompanying photograph will give some idea of the attractiveness of the latter store.

PARCEL POST EXTENSION NEEDED

Extension of international parcel post service so as to give American exporters an equipment equal to that of Great Britain and other foreign countries was strongly urged by the Sixth National Foreign Trade Convention recently held in Chicago. This convention was attended by representatives of all factors of American industry, finance and commerce.

E. G. Brown, who was the delegate of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., to the music convention, presented the application of his association at the convention of the music industries held in Chicago last week, and at a meeting of the executive board the Metropolitan organization was elected as the following telegram advises:

"Your association elected to affiliated membership in National Association of Music Merchants, which is merchants' division of Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, by unanimous vote of executive board. Welcome to our work for advancement of music and protection of trade. You are assured of our hearty co-operation and best wishes. C. L. Dennis, secretary."

GEO. H. BUCKLEY A VISITOR

Geo. H. Buckley, treasurer and general manager of the "Indiana" Die Casting Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., paid a flying visit to the New York offices of the company in the Tribune Building during the past week. Mr. Buckley reported excellent business being received at their factory and that several large contracts in the talking machine field had been recently closed. Vitus F. di Lustro, manager of the New York offices, finds business very active in the Eastern territory and is much pleased with the outlook.

To Whom It May Concern

New York, June 1, 1919.

This is to notify you that, after a final hearing, Circuit Judge Manton, in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, in the case of G. Ricordi & Co., Inc., vs. Columbia Graphophone Co., held that the compositions of Gitz Rice cannot be reproduced upon mechanical instruments without the payment of royalties for the reason that Gitz Rice has been domiciled in the United States since October, 1917, and by virtue of his domicile is entitled to have his compositions protected under the United States Copyright Law, against reproduction of copies for sale and against their reproduction upon mechanical instruments.

Judge Manton, in his opinion, stated:

"I think it is clear that Congress intended that domiciled foreigners are entitled to the benefits of the provisions of subdivision (e), section 1, of the Copyright Act and that it intended only to exclude subjects or citizens of countries denying similar protection to our citizens;"

and in the case of the song "Dear Old Pal of Mine," the Judge said:

"An infringement is admitted if it be held that the copyright is good and should be protected. The correspondence indicates clearly that the defendant took the position that the copyright was void and afforded no protection to plaintiff. As indicated above, I think the position assumed by the defendant was erroneous and a decree is granted for the plaintiff.

"The decree should provide an injunction restraining the defendant from manufacturing, using or selling sound records adapted to reproduce the composition 'Dear Old Pal of Mine' until the defendant shall have served notice of its intention to use the composition in the manner prescribed by section 25, subdivision (e) of the Copyright Act, and until it shall have paid the damages awarded by this decree; further, it should provide for an accounting. An allowance of counsel fee of one thousand dollars will be awarded."

Any person, firm or corporation reproducing upon mechanical instruments the song "Dear Old Pal of Mine" without complying with the provisions of the Copyright Act will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

Very truly yours,

PENNINGTON RETURNS FROM WEST

Assistant General Sales Manager of Columbia Co. Back From Pacific Coast Trip—Reports Excellent Conditions in That Section

Frank K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned to New York recently after a six weeks' trip to the Pacific Coast. This was Mr. Pennington's first trip to the Coast, and he took advantage of the opportunity offered him to visit not only the Columbia branches throughout the South, Southwest and Far West, but to become acquainted personally with practically every Columbia representative in the large cities en route to the Coast.

In a chat with The Review Mr. Pennington stated that business conditions on the Pacific Coast are wonderful, and that every Columbia dealer whom he visited reported the closing of a record-breaking business for the first four months of the year. The retailers are enthusiastic regarding Columbia progress and the representation being accorded Columbia products on the Coast is most gratifying.

Mr. Pennington was informed by Columbia representatives that the new Columbia standard models and the extensive period model lines are meeting with phenomenal success, and the majority of the dealers predict that the future development of the industry lies in taking full advantage of the possibility of period model business. The "Lure of Music" is popular everywhere, and the dealers state that this book is proving invaluable educationally, musically and commercially.

Conditions on the Coast are duplicated throughout the South and Southwest, as in Texas, for example, there is an era of unprecedented prosperity that bids fair to continue indefinitely. Every industry is sharing in this activity, and there is a firm belief and confidence in the future.

During the course of his trip Mr. Pennington attended dealer meetings in San Francisco, Spokane, St. Louis and Denver, and although he made no formal address at any of these meetings he was given an enthusiastic reception by Columbia dealers, who conferred with him regarding practical and vital problems incidental to their individual establishments.

The Wollenberger Furniture Co., Evansville, Ind., has recently added to its stock the Empire line of talking machines and records and will push them in the future.

A GRATIFYING BUSINESS REPORT

Directors of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Well Pleased at Business Figures Presented at Regular Meeting Held Recently

At a regular meeting of the directors of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., held at the company's executive offices recently the usual 1 3/4 per cent. quarterly dividend on the preferred stock was declared. The directors received a most gratifying report of the company's business activities, and the figures submitted for their consideration indicate that this company is closing bigger business each month.

A. G. Bean, president of the Garford Mfg. Co., Elyria, O., which is now controlled by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., was a recent visitor at the Heineman executive offices, bringing with him splendid reports of the Garford plant's progress. This immense factory is working day and night to keep pace with Heineman motor orders, and new machinery now en route to the Garford plant will enable the factory to materially increase its output.

GREAT GATHERING IN LOS ANGELES

Columbia Dealers Attend Monthly Meeting—Address Made by Godowsky—Other News

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 3.—The Columbia dealers' monthly meeting took place on May 20 in the ballroom of the Alexandria Hotel and was attended by fifty or sixty Columbia dealers of their sales forces. The records for July were played, and later Leopold Godowsky arrived and was introduced to the company present. The world-famed pianist gave a most interesting address, in the course of which he described the recording of piano records, or rather the difficulties attending the recording of same. "You know," said Mr. Godowsky, "when a singer or a violinist or other instrumentalist records a solo he sways back and forth, to and from the recording horn. A pianist, however, cannot sway a grand piano back and forth in the same way, so—he is up against it. Possibly," continued Mr. Godowsky, "you would rather hear me play than talk!" and he forthwith, to the unqualified delight of his audience, played a number of pieces, duplicating in most cases his Columbia records.

Definite plans have not been completed for the erection of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s building on Los Angeles street near Eighth. The completion of this building (about August 1) will tend to relieve the congestion which has existed for some time in the Los Angeles branch at their present quarters owing to the enormous increase of business.

Mrs. E. W. Hollenbeck has been appointed manager of the Grafonola department of Remick's Song and Gift Shop.

Nat Schireson, of Schireson Bros., Columbia and Victor dealers, has just returned from a business trip to Chicago. He declares that the latter city has "nothing on" Los Angeles.

STARR CO. GET-TOGETHER MEETING

R. C. Mayer, Recording Expert For the Company, Brings the Message of Enthusiasm and Optimism From Richmond, Ind.—Mr. Mayer's Success Due Largely to His Cheerfulness

R. C. Mayer, head of the recording laboratories of the Starr Piano Co., in New York, where the Gennett records are made, has just returned from a short visit to the factories of the Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., where he went to attend an enthusiastic "get-together" meeting of the company's staff. Those who attended the meeting were particularly impressed with the tremendous increase in the production of Gennett records during the past month, coupled with the influx of orders from Gennett dealers.

Harry Gennett, vice-president of the company, disclosed plans which had been put into operation some months ago, which are now beginning to bear fruit, and which in the near future promise to produce results of the most satisfying nature. Incidentally a journalistic friend of Mr. Mayer has written a most interesting study of this recording expert, and the manner in which he gets results. Mr. Mayer's secret of success, he declares, is to be cheerful even when there is every reason to become excited. "I have learned that a good recorder is just a good student of psychology, then a good technician," declared Mr. Mayer. "Not that my personal good cheer counts for so much in the making of a good record, but it's my humble attempt to keep everyone else in good humor during those trying recordings that I believe has been more or less helpful in our efforts with Mr. Florida to make the Gennett records an artistic production." These comments are as true as they are pertinent.

See how the jobbers in The World can supply your wants with the greatest promptness and satisfaction.

QUAKER CITY EDISON DEALERS MEET

Great Gathering at Bingham Hotel Recently Under Auspices of H. E. Blake—Addresses by T. J. Leonard, R. E. Cope and Others

PHILADELPHIA, PA., June 9.—The meeting of the Edison Phonograph Dealers' Association of this section held at the Bingham Hotel recently was one of the largest and most successful ever held by that organization. The number of new members was gratifying and showed the growing interest in the work of the association. After the dinner given through the courtesy of the Girard Phonograph Co., H. E. Blake opened the business session with an interesting talk on the advantages and work of the association and its social features. He spoke also of the new plans by which each meeting will be addressed by some dealer on important points in the work.

He was followed by Thomas J. Leonard, sales manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., who explained the production situation and showed how the former difficulties are now being overcome. Robert E. Cope, general manager of the Girard Phonograph Co., outlined the plans for the coming advertising campaign, which will be the largest ever attempted by the Edison dealers of this city. Charles J. Gardner, supervisor Thomas A. Edison, Inc., spoke of the excellent business conditions in the Middle West, and predicted better business than ever this year. At the close of the meeting six dealers applied for membership.

The members and guests present at the meeting were: Thomas J. Leonard, sales manager Thomas A. Edison, Inc.; Charles J. Gardner, supervisor Thomas A. Edison, Inc.; Robert E. Automatic Change of Weight

(Patent Applied for)

An Exclusive Feature of
Parr Central Universal Tone Arm

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically. The first scientifically constructed universal tone arm.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm is furnished in any length required and the sound-box can be turned, allowing the needle to be changed with ease, and by a reverse movement the box returns to normal playing position. The needle always rests in the same point, direct center, playing either position.

ATLAS PACKING CASES

Proper Packing Pays

THE phonograph industry should adopt this motto without reservation. The nature of its shipments, with the consequent high freight classification, demands the use of a container that will at once be both light in weight and strong.

Realizing this need, and knowing full well the many unusual and difficult conditions confronting the standardization of a 3-ply veneer packing case particularly suited to phonographs, this organization (representing four large factories) undertook the task of making the best possible packing case for phonographs.

If intelligent and continued demand for a product is an indication of achievement, we have succeeded in our efforts to give the phonograph industry just what it needed—the “ATLAS” 3-ply veneer packing case.

To insure you against possible mistake we have trade-marked our product. “ATLAS” 3-ply veneer packing cases are made only by us. Their uniformly high quality and beauty in appearance, together with the unusually prompt and sure service we can always give, have made “ATLAS” cases “standard equipment” with the more particular manufacturers.

Should you be interested in better packing we would appreciate your inquiries.

KNICKERBOCKER CO.'S NEW HOME

Victor Wholesalers Have Admirably Fitted Up Establishment—Abram Davega Tells of Plans and Policies in Most Interesting Way

The Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. occupied their new quarters at 138-140 West 124th street during the past week. A series of delays in the installation of the special equipment of these modern warerooms made the actual date of occupation a little later than originally planned. It is expected, however, that within a few weeks the attractive display rooms, the concert hall, executive offices and the extensive system of record filing racks will be in a condition for inspection by the trade.

A new shipment of record racks in mahogany, golden oak and ivory has just been received. The Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. reports that their dealers have had exceptional results from the use of these record racks in the past, and that these new racks should prove popular to a greater degree.

The Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co. is also producing advertising fans with the dealers' imprints for distribution to their customers and for use in the demonstration booths and warerooms. Many complimentary letters have been received from dealers making use of this novelty.

Abram Davega, chief executive of the company, is greatly enthusiastic over the outlook for the future. "The problem of the Victor retailer is to get more Victor merchandise," said Mr. Davega. "I will tell him how. The way the dealer is most apt to receive increased shipments of Victor merchandise is through a manifested spirit of co-operation with the wholesaler in every way possible, by progressive and honorable methods of merchandising, and by really doing something to help the progress and development of Victor business. Proper representation of the Victor line should be given and must necessarily begin with featuring the Victor product. Proper representation would naturally include up-to-date show windows properly dressed, featuring the Victor merchandise and trademark. The store interior is also of great importance, and should be in keeping with the quality of the line displayed. The progressive merchant will, of course, not only keep his store neat but will see to it that all the Victrolas are kept in polished condition and in perfect mechanical order, and with the price-mark plainly visible. As many demonstration booths should be installed as possible in direct proportion to the size of the store.

"The dealer who helps the wholesaler sell slow moving, but thoroughly good records, is really co-operating with the wholesaler. The progressive retailer will also take advantage of the power of advertising, such as newspapers, billboards, curtains and mailing lists. The progressive dealer who features and energetically pushes the line not only benefits himself, but the wholesaler as well, and through his efforts earns the right to have more goods at his disposal to push. The wholesaler is cognizant of these efforts and takes these matters into con-

In view of the fact that there have been so many rulings and counter rulings calculated to confuse and in many cases work against the interests of the music industry, the trade should accept with alacrity the crumb of comfort offered in this latest ruling.

NO WAR TAX ON SALES TO STATE

New Ruling Exempts From War Excise Tax Musical Instruments Sold to State, County and Municipal Institutions in General

George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, has just called the attention of the trade to Article 10 of the new regulations (No. 47) of the Internal Revenue Department, which provides: "Articles sold to a State or a political subdivision thereof by the manufacturer for use in carrying on its governmental operations are not subject to the tax.

"Articles sold by the manufacturer to a State, county or municipal institution are also exempt from tax when paid for entirely out of public money."

This ruling is taken to indicate that no tax is to be paid upon pianos, talking machines or other musical instruments which are sold by the manufacturer for use in schools or various other public institutions in general and paid for

LAST CALL FOR CONVENTION OF THE VICTOR JOBBERS

June 30 and July 1 and 2 the Time and the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, the Place—Important Business Discussions and Elaborate Entertainment Features Planned

Within two weeks after this issue of The Talking Machine World is in the hands of its readers the general convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, will be in full swing, with an attendance, to judge from present indications, greater than that recorded at many previous meetings. Louis Buehn, chairman of the arrangements committee, has already issued a timely warning to those who have delayed in making reservations—a sort of last call, as it were.

The convention, as has already been announced, will be held on June 30 and July 1 and 2. There will be two business sessions, one during the afternoon of June 30, and the other during the afternoon of the following day, and it is planned to so arrange the various matters to come up before the convention that they may all be handled properly in these two sessions.

Recognizing the fact that Atlantic City is primarily a pleasure resort, the arrangements committee has not overlooked this factor, but has allowed plenty of time for general enjoyment. Both Monday and Tuesday morning the rank and file of the members and their friends will be free to enjoy to the fullest extent the pleasures offered by this famous resort and Monday evening will be left free for the same purpose.

On Tuesday evening, July 1, will be held the annual banquet at the Traymore, and on Wednesday morning, following the convention, will be held the annual golf tournament. It had been planned to hold the tournament on the Saturday preceding the convention, but it was felt that, owing to the number of club members who would naturally take advantage of the Saturday holiday to be on the links, the holding of a tournament on that day would result in confusion. Hence the change of the date to Wednesday.

Just what plans have been made for entertainment at the banquet are being held in deep secret, but, based on past performances, the results should be most satisfying. It is understood that there will be several speakers of note, among them the Hon. James M. Beck. On July 2 the Victor Talking Machine Co. will entertain the jobbers in Philadelphia with a concert, followed by a dinner and dance at the Hotel Bellevue Stratford. Some prominent artists will appear for the edification of the jobbers and their friends, but the Victor Co. is not yet prepared to make public the complete program.

It is expected that, as is usually the case, a large number of ladies will attend the convention, and liberal provision has been made for their entertainment while the men folk are wrestling with heavy business problems. Sailing parties, auto rides and special luncheons are among the features provided for the benefit of the female contingent. For those with both nerve and ambition may be also included hydroplane flights, Atlantic City having become a big center for hydroplane work.

Only two weeks to go, then all aboard for Atlantic City!

TO HELP AMERICA'S FOREIGN TRADE

One Billion Investment Trust Planned—Proposal Is Designed to Stabilize Exchange—Scope Would Be National With Government Dominating Conduct of Enterprise

The creation of a $1,000,000,000 National Trust Society, patterned to some extent after the investment trust organizations in Scotland and England, which have been financially successful for many years, in which the United States Government will hold a controlling interest, is being discussed by Cabinet officers, members of the Federal Reserve Board, and American business men. It is understood that a plan may be offered to Congress before the week is out for legislation permitting its organization.

The purpose of the plan is the creation of a revolving credit which will tend to stabilize exchange and allow American merchants and manufacturers to establish fair markets in countries where the dollar is now at such a premium as to prohibit the purchase of American goods.

The plan, which has evolved from conferences here and in Washington within the last week, calls for the organization of what really would be a national investment trust, in which the Government would not only participate, but would dominate, through ownership of half of the debentures issued. The remaining 50 per cent. of debentures would be sold to manufacturers, exporters, and national banks.

These debentures, according to the plan, would be issued against long-term notes of foreign Governments and banks, which would be allowed to establish dollar credits here, and who, in turn, would be able to extend them to their citizens and depositors at a rate which could be fixed in the several foreign countries.

The plan has been discussed along national lines for only a few days. It is asserted that it would extend the same opportunity to small savings banks in remote corners of this country to share in the profits of the financing involved in carrying on such foreign trade as is given the large banking institutions, which under existing conditions may pick and choose in this field. It is expected that it will meet with strong opposition, but it also is believed it will be strongly backed by American exporters, who, because of the chaotic condition of the foreign exchange market, find they are losing a large amount of foreign business because other countries are offering to finance purchases along with the delivery of merchandise.

It was learned this week that further conferences will be held in Washington and in New York, and a bill providing for the organization of such a national trust society will be introduced as soon as it is prepared.

The Spiegel Sonora Shop, Fort Wayne, Ind., finds that a second floor location is no obstacle to a flourishing business, for the store has just been remodeled to take care of its increasing trade.

GRAND RAPIDS A CABINET CENTER

Over 225,000 Cabinets Now Contracted For With Factories In That City—Machine Shops Planning to Manufacture Parts

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 7.—This city has become without question the leading talking machine and phonograph cabinet manufacturing center in the United States, and this direction is gaining a reputation that is measuring up with its reputation as a furniture manufacturing center. At the present time local manufacturers are holding contracts for over 225,000 cabinets for some of the best-known talking machines on the market, as well as for some machines not so well known. At the same time agents for other leading manufacturers have been endeavoring to place further contracts for cabinets and will probably be successful as other local factories begin to take up the work.

At the present time the wholesale value of phonograph cabinets turned out by the local plants is over half the value of the furniture output, and it must be remembered that Grand Rapids has for years been recognized as the furniture manufacturing center of the country. Just now there are some interesting developments promised. There are a number of magnificently equipped machine shops in and about the city, and several of these have made plans to engage in the manufacture of talking machine parts, such as motors, tone arms and sound boxes. When these shops begin to produce parts in substantial quantities we may expect to see Grand Rapids develop into one of the leading, if not the leading, talking machine producing districts of the country, turning out the complete machines ready to play.

TUSTING PIANO CO. CELEBRATES

Asbury Park Piano House Holds Successful Reception to Mark Fourth Anniversary

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 6.—The Tusting Piano Co. of this city gave an interesting and successful reception at its warerooms June 2, to mark the fourth anniversary of the opening of its present handsome establishment at 609 Mattison avenue. For this occasion R. A. Tusting secured the services of a group of popular Hawaiian singers and instrumentalists, who appeared in costume. This sextette of musicians included Ben Aeko, the wonderful steel guitar player; David Kaili and other well-known Hawaiian artists, who presented a program selected from the Victor catalog by the guests.

This event was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone present and the audience included music lovers from many surrounding towns. The Tusting Piano Co. had taken care of the incidental details in its usual satisfactory way, and its fourth anniversary was fittingly observed. One of the features of the day was the receipt of handsome flowers and other appropriate gifts from Victor jobbers in the East, who are keenly interested in the activities of this house.

BECOMES ADVERTISING MANAGER

L. M. Robinson, for Seven Years Connected With Edward Lyman Bill, Inc., Takes Charge of the Advertising Department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York

John Cromelin, general sales manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, announced this week the appointment of L. M. Robinson as advertising manager of the company, with headquarters at the executive offices, 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York. For the past seven years Mr. Robinson was associated with Edward Lyman Bill, Inc., publishers of The Talking Machine World and The Music Trade Review.

According to the Otto Heineman Co.'s plans, jobbers and dealers handling the popular OkeH record line will receive enhanced co-operation from the Heineman advertising division during the coming year. The OkeH record has achieved phenomenal success during the past few months, and jobbers and dealers throughout the country report an ever-increasing demand.

The Heineman advertising department will work in close co-operation with every member of the OkeH distributing organization, and judging from present indications nothing will be left undone that may assist the jobbers and dealers in developing and stimulating business in their territory. Special attention will be given to the issuance of literature that will enable OkeH dealers to take advantage of every possible opportunity to increase their business.

During the seven years in which Mr. Robinson has been associated in an important capacity with The World and The Review he has had an opportunity to acquire an expert understanding and knowledge of the talking machine business from almost every angle, but especially with respect to problems of merchandising. Under his able direction, therefore, the advertising department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. will undoubtedly afford OkeH dealers a very practical and worthwhile co-operative service.

* * *

On Thursday evening, June 12, just prior to Mr. Robinson's taking up his new duties with the Heineman organization, he was the guest of honor at a dinner at Mouquin's, tendered him by his associates on the staffs of The Talking Machine World and The Music Trade Review. Following some appreciative remarks, Mr. Robinson was presented with a beautiful gold watch, of Tiffany make, suitably inscribed.

MAKING IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Emerson Phonograph Co. Furnishes Details Regarding Its Plans In Connection With the Issuance of 9-Inch and 10-Inch Records

The Emerson Phonograph Co. made an important announcement this week relative to its future plans regarding the issuance of its 9-inch and 10-inch records. According to these plans the fixed policy hereafter will be:

First—All popular song hits of the day will be recorded as heretofore on the Emerson Gold Seal 9-inch records only.

Second—Dance, band and standard instrumental music will be recorded on Emerson Gold Seal 10-inch records.

Third—All religious, standard and semi-classical music will be recorded on Emerson Gold Seal 10-inch records.

Fourth—International Emerson label records of folk songs, marches, instrumental, semi-classical and operatic records will be recorded on 9-inch and 10-inch records.

In future the Emerson Gold Seal 9-inch and 10-inch records will be listed on the same bulletins, display cases and catalogs. The company has adopted this policy because it believes that it is exactly in harmony with the demands and wishes of its clientele.

AN INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION

Pathé Dealers Given Actual Demonstration in Cleveland Under Auspices of the Fischer Co.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 7.—A total of about 219 dealers, who conduct a retail business in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, visited Cleveland this week for the purpose of hearing a demonstration of the new Pathé Actuell, which was given by W. W. Parsons, general representative of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of New York. The demonstration was given in the handsome quarters of the Fischer Co., wholesalers of the Pathé line, located in this city. The visiting dealers were greatly impressed by the Pathé Actuell. M. Saunders, wholesale manager of the Fischer Co. in Cleveland, and R. J. Jameson, wholesale manager of the Fischer Co. division in Cincinnati, were responsible for the entertainment end of the affair, which included special dinners at the Rathskeller and at Peter Schmidt's famous chicken dinner resort.

A. W. O. L. BUT SAVED BY TALKER

Wonderful Effect of Talking Machine Music on the Sentry Enables Two Overdue Soldiers to Sneak Into Camp Undetected and Thereby Avoid a Sojourn in the Guard House

In one of our Southern training camps, located on the outskirts of a city of moderate size, two lads in khaki were holding a council of ways and means one summer night, just outside the boundary of the camp. The hour was past midnight and long ago they should have been asleep on their canvas cots in the company street.

But it had been a glorious night, and the Southern moon had been irresistible, even after the C. O. had issued strict orders that no man was to leave camp that night, for the next day the boys would be starting on the last lap of the Great Adventure. Consequently, as soon as the shadows began to creep across the sandy fields separating the camp from the woods along the road to town, our two buddies had slipped away for a last celebration. And now that they must return to camp they found difficulties in their way.

A double guard had been posted, and their instructions, which the two had overheard from their hiding place behind a clump of bushes, made the lads realize that above all things they must run the guard and get back into camp unseen. If they were caught it meant that their company would sail without them.

To complicate matters still more, the guard was composed of men from a rival company and there was no love lost between these two organizations. The two plotters lay in hiding and proposed plans in desperate whispers. From past experience they well knew all the spots where one might slip into camp unnoticed, but to-night all these loopholes were well guarded. "Something" had to be done, but what was the "something"?

At last the idea came, as ideas will, if the gods of chance are not too much occupied with their domestic troubles. One of the lads stole away toward a house which was near the corner of the fence marking the limits of the camp. In a few moments a light appeared in the room facing the guard and a window was opened softly. The boy rejoined his companion who had been anxiously awaiting his return. The sentry was at his post at the gate some fifty feet from the corner of the barb wire.

All at once, out into that summer night, silvered by the moonlight on the sand, floated the familiar strains of a talking machine playing one of those sentimental ballads so dear to the soldier's heart. The two conspirators waited breathlessly. Would their plan succeed? Their eyes were fixed on the sentry.

The record was played to the end, but the guard was still alert at his post. A moment's silence—then the song was heard once more, but very softly—even in the stillness it was difficult to catch the words. The sentry turned toward the sound, trying to follow the melody. Then, after a quick glance around to see that no one was in sight, he walked along the fence in the direction of the open window. At the corner he paused, absorbed in the music, thinking of someone he would like to see before he went "Over There." Meanwhile our two reprobates, whose hardened hearts held but one thought, slipped through the gate like two shadows. The music ceased and the sentry, with a sigh, resumed his post.

Ten minutes later as the two were crawling into their bunks one whispered to the author of the great idea, "Say, Bud, how do you get that way? You're a wonder."

And the youthful genius whispered back, "Me? Why, I used to sell talking machines out in Kalamazoo, and if I ever get a hold of that guard when it's all over, I'll bet I sell him a dozen."

"I'll tell the world," was the sleepy reply.

WHERE THE WORD "JAZZ" STARTED

Most people are aware of the fact that "jazz" music originated in the South, but perhaps few know just how the name itself started. The Columbia Record gives the following explanation: There was once a trio of dusky musicians, one a banjo player, one a singer and the third a maker of melodies by means of an empty tin can. This unusual trio came to be called the Jassacks Band, the name being the popular inversion of the jackass, the famous solo singer of the Southern States. Soon the name, according to the proverbial love for inaccuracy, was changed to Jazzacks and by the usual method of abbreviation developed finally into just plain jazz.

EDISON CONVENTION PICTURE

An attractive picture of the Edison Dealers' convention in Kansas City, held on May 20-21, and referred to elsewhere, was received at the World office too late for publication, and consequently many of the visiting dealers will not have the opportunity to see how well they look under the glare of the limelight. Judging from their contented expressions, however, the convention was one to instil joy into every busy heart, and business was not allowed to interfere with the usual festivities of such a gathering.

SOSS
INVISIBLE HINGES

Fine cabinet work has always demanded that hinges be as inconspicuous as possible.

Soss Hinges are Invisible

They are therefore ideal for beautiful cabinet work as the preservation of the beauty of unbroken lines in better grade cabinets is thus insured.

The leading manufacturers of the industry use Soss Hinges.

Soss Hinges are so accurately made and so easy to install that they save time and labor, as all mortising can be done by machine.

IMPORTANT COPYRIGHT DECISION

Rights of Canadian Composers Under Certain Conditions Sustained by Judge Manton in Suit of Ricordi & Co., Inc., vs. Columbia Co.

An important decision was handed down this week by Judge Manton of the U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York, in the case of G. Ricordi & Co. vs. the Columbia Graphophone Co. In his decision Judge Manton sustained the contention of G. Ricordi & Co., who claimed in its suit that the defendant had infringed the copyright of a musical composition entitled "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

G. Ricordi & Co., as assignee of the copyright for this musical composition, maintained that it had obtained rights which had been violated by the defendant, and Judge Manton in his decision granted an injunction "restraining" the defendant from manufacturing, using or selling sound records adapted to reproduce the composition "Dear Old Pal of Mine" until the defendant shall have served notice of its intention to use the composition in the manner prescribed by Section 25, Subdivision E, of the Copyright Act, and until it shall have paid the damages awarded by this decree; further it should provide for an accounting. An allowance of counsel fee of $1,000 will be awarded.

The song "Dear Old Pal of Mine" was jointly composed by Lieut. Gitz-Rice, who enlisted in the first Canadian contingent of the British Army at the beginning of the war, and Harold Robe, an American citizen. Lieut. Gitz-Rice is a Canadian by birth, but arrived in New York in October, 1917, after returning from the war zone wounded and gassed.

According to Judge Manton the question presented is "whether, assuming that under Section 1, Subdivision E, of the Copyright Act, a copyright cannot be obtained for a musical composition composed by Lieut. Gitz-Rice, is the case altered by reason of the fact that the words were written by Harold Robe, an American citizen?" On this point Judge Manton says: "It seems that since this musical composition is the result of joint authorship, Robe having composed part of it, it was the subject for which copyright could be granted, and should be protected under our act. It should be treated as if he and not his collaborator in authorship. Gitz-Rice, was the sole author thereof." Continuing, Judge Manton says, "In my opinion the copyright as granted may also be sustained for the reason that Gitz-Rice was domiciled in this country at the time of his application for his copyright and the publication of his composition."

SOLDIERS APPRECIATE PHONOGRAPH

Y. M. C. A. Secretary at Camp Sherman, O., Writes Letter of Appreciation to Otto Heineman for Gifts of Machines and Records

Otto Heineman, president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., received recently an interesting letter from H. W. Robinson, of Y. M. C. A. Hut No. 208, Camp Sherman, O., expressing the appreciation of the soldier boys at this camp for the Garford phonographs and OkeH records which Mr. Heineman had donated.

This letter read as follows:

"Dear Mr. Heineman:

"The five Model C phonographs, sixty OkeH records and two thousand needles came through all right and in fine condition. And yesterday the box containing one hundred and fifty records was delivered to me.

"We want you to know how much we appreciate your most generous gift. One of your phonographs was placed in the 'Y' Hut No. 208 and is being kept going almost continuously from morning till bed time. The soldier boys will play the phonograph in preference to our expensive machine; another was placed in Barracks 501, and the other three were turned over to the Red Cross to be used as they see fit in the wards.

"Mr. Eddy, head Red Cross man, said that the officers of the hospital would like one of the phonographs to use in a camp-lodge outside of Camp Sherman. I consented to this.

"All speak in the highest terms of the phonograph and records. And I want to assure you that we do appreciate your gift. You are giving a lot of pleasure to our soldier boys.

"Thanking you for your kindness, I remain, yours sincerely (Signed) H. W. Robinson."

NEW RECORD ENVELOPE SERVICE

Detroit Concern Plans to Issue Each Month Record Envelopes Bearing the Record Lists of That Particular Month for Dealers' Use

DETROIT, MICH., June 6.—The Lu-Franc Sales Service Co., of this city, have just made an announcement of particular interest to Victor dealers and jobbers. This company proposes to deliver on the first day of every month record delivery envelopes, or what are commonly called wrapping envelopes, printed with very attractive designs appropriate to the month, and containing in addition to the dealer's individual names and addresses a list of the records issued by the Victor Co. for that particular month, and a further list of specially selected records in keeping with the general spirit of the month. For example, the July envelopes are printed with a list of records that are selected because of their sales value, and also a list of patriotic records. Appropriate special lists will also be issued for other months.

The company states that it will no longer be necessary for the dealer to take in a year's supply of envelopes in order to secure them printed with his individual advertisement at a reasonable price, for the Lu-Franc Sales Service Co. have perfected an arrangement in their envelope mill that will permit of their furnishing these envelopes in small lots each month as the dealer requires them at attractive prices.

The ACME of Perfection

in tone reproduction is attained in the ACME soundbox, because of its scientifically correct diaphragm construction which produces the real scientific sound waves.

This illustration shows the short tone waves of the ordinary soundbox as used on most phonographs.

The "ACME" plays all records better

Nature's tone wave as produced by the ACME reproducer and approximately six times longer than tone waves of the ordinary soundboxes.

The result is an unmuffled NATURAL TONE of immense volume and an entire absence of that tin can, metallic tone of mica diaphragms. Made in Nickel and Gold to fit Victor, Columbia and Sonora.

SPECIAL ATTACHMENTS to play Victor and Columbia Records on EDISON Machines

Try an ACME reproducer for yourself. If not delighted you may return it. The price is right. Special inducements to live dealers and jobbers.

CAN MAINTAIN RESALE PRICES

Supreme Court Upholds Colgate Co. in Suit to Maintain Prices—First Authoritative Ruling on Price Maintenance Question

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The fight for the right of maintaining resale prices by manufacturers gained a big victory here recently in the decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court in the Government's appeal from the verdict of the United States Court for the Eastern District of Virginia at Norfolk, which dismissed the appeal and upheld the Colgate Co.'s contention that it was within its rights in requiring standard resale prices on its products, and also that it was privileged to decline to sell to dealers and retailers who refused to agree to maintain such prices.

The principal and only contention of the Department of Justice was that the Colgate concern, by selling its goods solely to dealers who would agree to resell only at prices fixed by the company, had entered into a "combination in restraint of trade" in the fact that it deprived other dealers of the opportunity to handle its products, as covered by the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The Supreme Court's decision is the first authoritative ruling on the actual proposition of the right of the manufacturer to maintain resale prices. Other decisions in various courts, including the United States Supreme Court, have been handed down, but these have all been based on some phase of the price maintenance question and not on the proposition itself.

The denial of the Department of Justice's appeal from the District Court's verdict leaves the whole question of price maintenance in a most favorable status for the manufacturer, not only as regards the interpretation of the law by the Department of Justice, but also as making necessary the enactment of legislation removing the price maintenance subject from the operation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

SOME CABINET WORKERS RETURN

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., June 9.—The strike of the cabinet workers here only temporarily affected the production of Edison phonograph cabinets. The cabinet manufacturers who make cabinets for the Edison Co. have reached an understanding with their employes and the latter returned to work on June 10. Workers in many other factories are still out.

AN INTERESTING NEW MACHINE

B. R. Seabrook Reverses Some Recognized Principles of Sound Control in Construction of His New Talking Machine

There is now on exhibition in New York the Seabrook talking machine, a new type of machine of a revolutionary character, invented by B. R. Seabrook, an engineer of Winnipeg, Man., and which has been demonstrated very successfully for some time past in Canada.

In building his machine Mr. Seabrook has reversed the usual order of things in many particulars. For instance, the horn of the instrument is not intended to and does not amplify the sound, the amplification being obtained through the means of a special sound "chimney" built into the cabinet. Whereas in the ordinary type of machine the sound becomes louder as one approaches the machine, in the Seabrook instrument it is quite the reverse. As a matter of fact the melody can be heard close to the horn without any unpleasant effects, but as one moves away from the instrument the sound volume increases perceptibly. As a result of Mr. Seabrook's invention he has succeeded in amplifying the sound waves after they have left the horn of the instrument, and has thus upset some recognized principles of science.

The material of which the horn is made is, as has already been stated, absolutely dead, does not vibrate, nor reflect sound waves, acting merely as a channel for guiding the sound in the proper direction. The horn can be so arranged as to direct the sound several degrees from the dead center if desirable, throwing the sound waves down, for instance, when the machine is placed in a gallery, and it is desirable to play to an audience seated below or throwing the sound waves upward when the reverse is the case. In connection with the work on his talking machine Mr. Seabrook has developed some interesting features in megaphone construction that serve to reverse the usual order of things. In short, he handles sound waves in a way that brings results entirely new.

Mr. Seabrook has established his laboratories in New York, where he has on exhibition four types of machines, including a monster model said to be able to spread sound waves over a distance of five miles, and intended for use in parks and large auditoriums, in fact, has been used for reproducing under such conditions. The smaller models of machines look much like the accepted types of talking machines, but their reproduction, particularly of the human voice, is unusually distinct, and free from blast or squeaking. An interesting feature of the machine is the fact that the pitch of the reproduction can be changed while the regular speed of the record is maintained. There is much about the Seabrook instrument to interest the progressive talking machine men.

EDISON DEALERS' CONVENTION TO BE RECORD BREAKER

More Than a Thousand Dealers to Attend Session at the Hotel Commodore, New York, June 25 to 27—Elaborate and Interesting Program Prepared—Banquet Features

All New York banquet records for size will be broken when more than a thousand dealers sit down to the Edison Dealers' Convention banquet, which will be held at the Hotel Commodore on Friday evening, June 27. Over 1,200 dealers have already sent in acceptances. Previous to the opening of the Hotel Commodore no banquet room in New York would have been large enough to hold such a gathering. Another record breaker will be the dinner show, which will be the most elaborate entertainment ever provided for such a banquet.

Elsie de Wolfe, the noted authority on piano furniture, who is still in France doing war work, is making every effort to get back in order to address the convention. Another prominent speaker will be Reginald de Koven, the famous composer of "Robin Hood" and many other operas, and who is busily engaged just now in writing an opera which will be produced by the Chicago Opera Company.

On June 25 there will be exhibited in the grand ballroom a display of the entire Edison line of period cabinets, which includes instruments ranging in price from $155 to $6,000. Two new cabinets, a Louis XIV and an Italian model, which have not yet been announced to the trade, will be shown.

"Eye Value," a one-act play, which is now in rehearsal, will have its first and only production at the convention. It is mildly satirical of certain well-known figures in the phonograph world.

An address will be made by R. C. Aimone, of the Aimone Galleries, New York. He is one of the most famous furniture designers in the world, and makes phonograph cabinets exclusively for the New Edison. Mr. Aimone will make a talk on the materials and workmanship employed by him in making these cabinets.

An open forum will be a special feature of the convention. It will be attended by a conference committee consisting of prominent executives of the Edison Co., therefore enabling an immediate and authoritative response to be given to any and all questions or suggestions.

Numerous prominent Edison dealers will address the Dealers' convention, as well as several men of national prominence in other fields of endeavor. A very important address will be made by G. M. Dahl, vice-president of Chase National Bank, whose subject will be "The Business Outlook as We See It." Among the Edison dealers there will be addresses by James P. Lacey, of Peoria, Ill.; E. F. Carroll, of Waco, Texas, and Frank A. Franch, of Manchester, N. H.

A very important announcement to dealers along the lines of co-operation will be made by the Edison Co. at the convention. These plans are of such importance that they contemplate the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars by the company.

In the room adjoining the banquet hall there will be an exhibit of advertising material of all kinds that is supplied to dealers, including several new and unusually attractive window displays that will surely interest the visiting delegates.

Each session of the dealers' convention will end at 1 p. m., giving dealers a daily opportunity to taste the delights of a June afternoon in New York. The seaside, an auto ride and a well-cooked supper at a wayside inn, a big-league ball game, the races—wherever they decide to go or whatever they determine to do, there will be plenty of time.

Altogether the plans of the Edison Co. will make this convention noteworthy in its history and it certainly will be a record breaker both for attendance and for practical value and interest to dealers.

LOOK OUT FOR STOLEN VICTROLAS

New York Talking Machine Co. Trying to Locate Whereabouts of a Truckload of Victrola 11's and 14's Which Were Stolen

The New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, is trying to locate the whereabouts of a truckload of eighteen Victrola 11's and 14's which were stolen on Saturday afternoon, May 31. The company had sent its truck for these Victrolas and the driver left the truck standing at Thirty-seventh street and Eleventh avenue while he went into a store to look for a rope. When he came back to the spot where the truck had been standing he found that the vehicle with its load of Victrolas had disappeared. The empty truck was found Sunday morning on Charlton street, but there was no sign of the missing Victrolas.

The following are the numbers of the machines that are missing, and the New York Talking Machine Co. will appreciate any assistance that the trade can give it in locating these instruments: Victrola 14's in mahogany Nos. 194390, 193592, 193281, 193315, 193359, 194381, 193664, 194401, 193663. Victrola 11's in mahogany: 527792, 530078, 530356, 530035, 530017, 530024, 530256, 529807, 530213.

Arrangements have been made with the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, Pa., by the Bailey Music Co., of Lancaster, N. H., for the installation of the Unico equipment.

SOME IDEAS IN SALESMANSHIP

Demonstration of the Advantages of Better Machines Will Lead to More Sales—The Prospect Should Convince Himself That the "Cheap" Machine Will Not Please Him

A thorough technical knowledge of the talking machine is a necessary part of the education and stock in trade of the good salesman if he is to make his prospect realize the value of a $100 machine as compared with a $25 model. Some have been rash enough to say that there was no difference between a cheap machine and one of a better quality except in the matter of outward appearance, that is to say, you were merely paying for the case and the inside mechanism was the same in all models.

There was a time when you could answer your prospect's question as to what was the difference between a $25 and a $100 machine by saying the secret was tone, but to-day, with the market flooded with many inferior machines, all making great claims of this thing or that, there is need for proof by actual demonstration. The salesman who knows his machines in every detail is the one who is able to show clearly to his prospect the advantage of the better grade machine.

A good way to make such a demonstration is to lead the prospect to a gradual appreciation of the value of a high-grade machine by starting with a small machine and working up to the better kind, explaining the difference and the advantage of each model over the preceding one, the superior quality of the motor, etc. Should the prospect show a fancy for any particular detail, it is up to the salesman to show him how much better this detail is carried out in the better machine, and prove the fact by careful demonstration. If each fact is proved to the prospect in turn the sale of a higher priced machine is assured, for you will have gotten the prospect in a buying frame of mind and he sees before him just what he has been looking for.

If he should express an interest in tone values a discussion of the construction of the sound box of the high-grade machine will show him why this machine produces the better tone. If his taste runs to appearances rather than to actual performance values, he can still be convinced that the best and most artistic model is found among the better grade instrument.

Once the fundamental points of the discussion have been established to the satisfaction of the prospect it is well to amplify and strengthen them by paying attention to the minor details which go to make up convenience and utility. Ease of manipulation, winding, automatic stop features and the like, all add to the convenience of the playing of the instrument and help persuade the prospect to buy that particular machine.

Another advantage of the higher-priced machine is the cabinet itself, which contains the records and provides a safe place for them. It is artistic in appearance and is an ornament to any room.

When you have finally made the sale of a higher-priced machine what have you done? You have led the prospect up through the various models, showing him the advantages of each one over the preceding model, taking advantage of his expression of any particular taste and illustrating by actual demonstration how this taste may be best satisfied. You have shown him the reason why he should buy a good machine instead of a cheap one, and in short have made him an asset in selling machines to others. And all this has been done in such a way that the prospect convinced himself as he went along, and did not have to depend on his good faith in you or your arguments. Unconsciously he showed you where he was most open to persuasion and you have taken advantage of this to make him realize the true facts in the case. He has bought a machine with which he knows he will be satisfied. You have made a sale and, what is far more, have made a good customer and one who will bring in others to your store. Incidentally you have helped to dispel the mistaken theory that there is no difference between a cheap machine and a good one except in the matter of appearance.

AN ATTRACTIVE EMPORIUM

New Showroom and Demonstrating Booths of J. Ramser's Sons' Music Shop in Moline, Ill.

These two photos give a very inadequate idea of the new showroom and demonstrating booths of the J. Ramser's Sons' Music Shop in Moline, Ill. This firm started out with only a department in a large store in that city, but their business grew so rapidly that they have now opened an exclusive music shop, where they will feature the New Edison. The shop is carpeted in old blue, and that gives the keynote to the color scheme. The booths are glass, as the cut shows, and are of up-to-date construction. The establishment is most attractive.

Exterior of Ramser's Music Shop

The opening of this new shop occurred quite recently and was celebrated by an Edison concert. A very attractive program was played on the phonograph, and was very much appreciated.

View of the Interior

Mr. Fry, the manager, made it very clear to all the guests that the shop was at their disposal at any time, and that they should feel free to call there without obligation to purchase.

Mr. Fry also announced a tone-test recital for the near future, at which Miss Gardner will demonstrate the merits of the New Edison.

HANDSOME NEW EDISON CATALOG

Thomas A. Edison, Inc., have just announced the publication of their new disc instrument catalog. The catalog is handsomely made, the sketches of the instruments being done by skilled artists, and in a setting appropriate to the period of the design. The colors used are brown and blue and are skilfully blended to produce an antique effect. As a whole this catalog is highly distinctive and cannot fail to impress even the most casual observer.

EDISON ARTIST IN LONDON

Maggie Teyte, a well-known Edison artist, has been engaged by the Society of American Singers to produce "Opera in English" at the Park Theatre in London next winter.

EDUCATING THE ANTI-MUSICAL

How John A. Scott Is Successfully Overcoming Certain Religious Prejudices Against Music in Certain Parts of the State of Pennsylvania

We hear much these days of the universal love and appreciation of music, of the fact that music is one of the essentials to human happiness, and that it is ranked by Governmental authorities as fourth in the line of necessities, coming immediately after food, clothing and shelter, yet there are sections of the United States where religious sects hold forth and where music is looked upon as a curse and is barred either in the church or home by religious scruples. It seems peculiar in these modern days that such conditions should exist, but they do exist, and the talking machine or piano dealer who has the courage to establish his business in or adjacent to one of the communities settled by any of these particular religious sects has the ordinary problems of business increased.

There is a religious sect in Conestoga County, Pa., and adjacent territory which regard music of any sort with religious horror, and not only refuse to permit the use of musical instruments of any kind either in the church or the home, but make every effort to avoid hearing the music produced by others. Although the members of the sect in question are energetic and without exception prosperous, the territory being rich in agricultural possibilities, and while they enjoy the benefit of the modern innovations in the conduct of their affairs and in the furnishings of their homes, they still maintain without abatement their prejudice against music in all forms.

A dealer in Conestoga County relates a situation in which a woman, enthusiastic over one of the talking machines he had for sale, purchased the same with the proviso that if her neighbors strenuously objected and ostracized her for the possession of this machine she would be privileged to return it. Two days after the sale he received a telephone request to take the instrument back. It seems that, despite the fact that it was mid-summer, whenever she played the talking machine her next-door neighbor, although fifty feet away, closed every window in the house and drew down the shades. This was no reflection whatever on the tone of the machine, but simply was the religious antipathy of the neighbor to listen to the phonograph.

At least one talking machine man in this afflicted territory has taken a certain amount of pleasure in endeavoring to overcome his religious prejudice by endeavoring to impress upon the members of the sect that music holds a prominent place in the Bible, and that in maintaining the Bible as a work of the Lord they must of necessity adopt the teachings that music is looked upon with favor by the Almighty. This particular talking machine man is John A. Scott, connected with the Solotone Mfg. Co., of Lititz, Pa., which make and market the Solotone phonograph. Mr. Scott himself is the son of a Lutheran minister, and is firm in his belief that true worship is enhanced by the use of music.

It was through his influence that an interesting article combating the existing antipathy to music appeared recently in the "Lititz Express," and for his own part Mr. Scott prepared a slip containing some interesting facts concerning the reference to music and musical instruments in various sections of the Bible. These slips he sent to various prospects whom he felt they would interest. The facts as presented by Mr. Scott show considerable familiarity with the good book, as well as considerable research work, and they might prove of value to other talking machine men who perchance may find themselves up against the problem of overcoming religious scruples. The facts as presented are as follows:

The sixty-six books comprising the Bible were written over a period of sixteen hundred years, from the time of Moses to the Apostle John.

The words music, musical instruments, musicians, song singers, singing, appear about 425 times; harps and viols, 150 times; shouting for joy, 75 times; joy, 200 times; happiness, 25 times; glad and gladness, 150 times; rejoicing, 300 times. Total, 1,325 times.

The word gloominess appears in the Bible two times. The word despair appears in the Bible four times.

It would appear, therefore, that since the earliest history of the human family, music, musical instruments, singing and joy have been encouraged by the writers—who were Godly men—legislators, patriarchs, prophets, kings, priests, statesmen, physicians, shepherds, tax gatherers, tentmakers, fishermen and men of every class of the community, in every stage of human progress and experience.

A recent addition to the talking machine department of the Shepard Co., Providence, R. I., is Miss Ruth Cannon.

OPEN BRANCH IN CINCINNATI

The Fischer Co., of Cleveland, Open Wholesale Division in Cincinnati

CLEVELAND, OHIO, June 7.—The Fischer Co., Pathé wholesalers of this city, recently opened up a branch wholesale division in Cincinnati, Ohio. R. J. Jamcson, who has long been associated with the Fischer Co., of Cleveland, in an executive capacity, is manager of the Cincinnati division, which will serve dealers located in Kentucky, Tennessee, West Virginia and Southern Indiana. The Fischer Co., according to the belief of M. Saunders, who is the wholesale manager, is the first Pathé jobber to reach such a large turn-over as to require a second wholesale headquarters. The business of the Fischer institution, it is estimated, will run in the neighborhood of a million dollars for 1919.

NEW CONCERN IN BOSTON

BOSTON, MASS., June 11.—The Boston papers to-day announced with big advertisements the starting of the New England Piano & Phonograph Co., located at 43 Tremont street. It is a corporation with $100,000 capital and its officers are Charles G. Faux, formerly with the Hallet & Davis house, as president and treasurer; Hardy Horrocks, a player expert, secretary; and these directors: Daniel L. Phillips, Vincent A. Jenkins, formerly with Chickering; B. J. Freedman, formerly with Hallet & Davis; H. B. Erb, Dr. William I. Green and Louis L. Cohen, of Boston.

The Most Important News of the Month Is the Removal of Restrictions on Imports and Exports on a Great Many Musical Products and Parts—Details of Colonial Tariffs—This Move Will Do Much to Expand Trade and Help Business—Londoners Due in New York—Interesting Gramophone Story—Luxury Tax Rejected by France and Great Britain—Interesting Budget of News

LONDON, E. C., June 3.—Great and important is the news this month. From time to time I have chronicled in these columns the gradual subjection of that unpopular lady known far and wide by the name of "Dora," a non de plume which, as my oversea readers are doubtless aware, is in reality the Defense of the Realm Act. Dora still exercises sway in a good many directions, but her power is almost negligent as far as the gramophone trade is now concerned. To commence at the beginning, as the Irishman is said to have said, it has already been made known that all control over the export of gramophone goods to countries other than enemy territory has been removed. British traders are therefore free to put into execution those long-mooted plans for the resuscitation of their export trade. To this end every effort will be, and is being, made, but until such time as materials become freer and productive capacity enlarged I am afraid that export trade developments cannot be so rapid as could be desired. I am happy to report, however, that my representations to different British houses to at least allocate a fair percentage of output for the oversea demands is meeting with some success. If we are to meet foreign competition in, for instance, our colonial markets, to the best possible extent they must be now fostered, even at the expense of home demands. Neglect this precaution and we will simply be forcing colonial buyers for their own preservation to treat elsewhere. Sentiment may carry orders to us from overseas, but let us frankly admit that will not be long-lived in the face of business failings. British manufacturers must realize this fact or rue the omission so to have done for—who knows how long?

Colonial Tariff Preference

The 33 1-3 per cent. import duty upon all musical instruments is now reduced by one-third in the case of goods manufactured within the Empire. From the British traders' viewpoint this concession is of very little material value, as few, if any, gramophone imports reach us from the colonies. Were it otherwise there would, of course, be something to measure. As it is, I believe we receive a few consignments of needles from Canada and that is about all in the gramophone line. It is reported, however, that there is in existence a firm in Canada manufacturing, or about to manufacture, gramophone motors, with an intention to market supplies here. If that be so, they will receive a welcome in the interests of free trade, though I doubt whether this proposed colonial supply will be looked upon with much favor by the several British houses now engaged in perfecting their own motor output, principally because the import duty margin is regarded as rather close. A little later, when all the new British gramophone motor factories are in full swing of production, all will be well. The English market in normal times can absorb many hundreds of thousands of motors beyond the present supplies, and in due time there will be room for all non-enemy products.

Removal of Import Restrictions

I now come to the most momentous announcement of all. At a largely attended meeting of the Gramophone Association about three months ago a majority of members resolved that the Board of Trade should be approached to remove the license control over gramophone imports. A majority favored free trading in this respect, being of opinion that the maintenance of the 33 1-3 per cent. tariff provided a sufficient margin of protection to British manufacturing interests. The association's executive accordingly tackled the Board of Trade officials, the result being a blank refusal to make any concession. A few weeks later, however, the amount of musical merchandise tonnage allowed to be imported was increased. And now comes the sudden news that all restrictions on the importation of gramophones, etc., are canceled. It has caused not a little surprise in trade circles in view of the attitude hitherto adopted by the Board of Trade. Well, the matter need not further be labored; the information we must assume is, by the resolution of the association, welcome to the trade, and that's all there is to it!

The official Gazette announcement is as follows: After duly considering the recommendations of the Consultative Council on Imports, the President of the Board of Trade has given the following further directions in regard to the prohibitions of imports. The restrictions on the importation of the following goods are to be removed:

cept organs, pianos, players and instruments of a similar nature.

The importation of the following articles is to be restricted as shown:

Harmoniums, organs, pianos, players and instruments of a similar nature should be admitted at the rate of 25 per cent. of 1913 imports, the ration to be based on number of instruments.

It will be seen that while such firms as Steinway, the Estey Organ Co. (having London branches) and other American makers of bulk-size instruments are left under much the same handicaps as the old rationing system, foreign manufacturers of gramophones, parts and accessories are now quite free to import their wares into Great Britain, being subject, of course, to the tariff duty. The road is thus thrown open to the probability of a big development of gramophone commerce between America and England. For keen business firms the trading prospects are decidedly good. There is a shortage here of practically everything in the gramophone line which it is not expected the home production or Swiss imports combined will adequately satisfy.

London Gramophone Men to Visit New York

The lifting of the embargo upon imports of gramophone parts and accessories may mean a speeding-up of trade relationship between United Kingdom buyers and American supply houses. Doubtless in this connection there is strong rumor of contemplated visits to the States by several leading members of the British gramophone trade. Already two well-known traders are on the way, being due in New York early in June. Mr. Frank Samuel, of the music house of Barnett Samuel & Sons Co., London, is making the trip via Canada. His wife accompanies him.

A. Balcombe, who has built up a successful gramophone business since the war commenced, sailed at the end of last month on the White Star liner "Baltic." The object of his trip is to complete negotiations for British agencies of American gramophones and records and perhaps other musical instruments. He is due in New York the first week in June.

Another prospective visitor to America is David Sternberg, of the Sterns Manufacturing Co., makers of the popular "Compactophone," and British agents for Mermod Freres Swiss motors. Owing mainly to pressure of work on this side Mr. Sternberg has so far been unable to fix a date for departure.

France and Great Britain Reject the Luxury Tax

The proposed tax on luxuries, under which category came pianos, gramophones and records, has met a well-merited end in both the French and British Parliaments. It was very hotly contested in the Paris Chambers, one member describing it as "enormously prejudicial to our finest and richest industries." A division was sought, resulting in the tax being annulled by 336 votes to 160.

In our own case, the tax on so-called articles of luxury was last year proposed by Bonar Law, who then failed to press the matter, threatening to have it brought forward in this year's budget. A strong opposition campaign was immediately organized by trade associations and Chambers of Commerce all over the country. Partly as a result thereof and in some measure perhaps due to the difficulties and the cost of its collection, the Chancellor's plan to exact this unpopular tax has fallen through, definitely. In his budget statement, Austin Chamberlain was brief on the question, merely remarking, "I do not propose to proceed with the luxury tax. I am quite ready to give my reasons for this, but it would unduly delay the committee if I did so." We shall not mourn over its stillborn body.

General News of the Day

Under date May 14 the "His Master's Voice"

Co. advise the trade that in the interests of increased production it has been decided to close their factories from July 26 to August 12. During this period the whole office staff will take their annual holiday, and orders for "H. M. V." goods cannot be dispatched during that period. Record orders received up to July 24 will be executed before the closure.

The trade press here record with evident interest the news of John Cromelin's connection with the enterprising house of Heineman. Mr. Cromelin holds a good reputation in British trade circles for courtesy and business acumen during the time he was with us, in charge of the Edison interests.

Among those British firms out to cultivate the Colonial trade through the columns of this journal is the firm of Craies & Stavridi, well known this side for the quality of their gramophone products. Upon the occasion of a recent call I had the pleasure of meeting Constantine Craies, who had just returned from Constantinople. As a captain in the British Macedonian army, he has seen over two and one half year's service, having been through much of the fighting which followed the British landing at Salonica. Mr. Craies expressed surprise at the conditions of things in general here, and is much impressed particularly as regards the present ruling prices in the gramophone trade. He modestly declined to discuss his part in the war, but his "bit" may be summed up as nobly done. During his long absence, the arduous responsibility of carrying on the business devolved upon Mr. Stavridi, who handled affairs admirably.

Just prior to mailing this report I am advised by Alfred Clark, managing director of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., that M. E. Ricketts, for over four years manager of the British sales branch and whose connection with the company dates back to 1899, has resigned as from June 30, when he joins the piano and publishing firm of Messrs. Chappell & Co., Ltd. The World's best wishes go with Mr. Ricketts in his new sphere, which will fortunately not preclude him from continuing his many useful activities on behalf of the musical instrument trade generally, in serving the interests of which during the whole war period, often at great personal sacrifice of time and labor, he has won the esteem and gratitude of the trade. The popular manager of the British Zonophone Co., Ltd., Wm. Manson, has been offered the vacant position and I learn has signified his acceptance. A wise choice, for few men are so well equipped in knowledge and experience of the gramophone trade, both in respect to the production as to the artistic side, as Mr. Manson. Hearty congratulations!

Advance information is to hand that the Columbia Co. have secured the exclusive recording services of Thomas Burke, the wonderful Lancashire tenor and the sensation of the Covent Garden opera season. Two of Mr. Burke's contributions—from "La Tosca," by the way—will be issued by the Columbia people this month.

Interesting "Winner" Items

Messrs. J. E. Hough, Ltd., of Edison Bell and Winner record products, are well forward with their plans of reconstruction following a long period devoted to war munition output, and progressive effort is the order of the day. As measured by the pre-war standard, "seasonal" trade is a thing of the past. Winner records were never so much in demand as at present, and as the company's sales manager tells us, "though every endeavor is made to keep up with the demand by maintaining full shifts at the factory, it is a steady grind all the time." The record programs each month include the topical revue, musical comedy and standard titles, many by artists exclusive to this company. A large new boiler is being installed in the record factory, by means of which Winner output will be considerably accelerated. The boiler measures somewhere about 40x12 feet. At the time of our call it had found a resting place on the pavement pending decision as to whether it would go through the yard gate or over some private gardens after the walls had been demolished. The local council were of course on the war-path.

Dealers overseas will be interested to learn that Messrs. Hough have now ready a series of their Edison Bell Discaphones, cabinet, hornless and exterior—horn models at prices varying from 4 to 40 guineas. The general quality is good, the equipment throughout being of a reliable standard.

Fitting Gramophone Springs

A subscriber of the Motor Cycle & Cycle Trades tells in a recent issue of that journal of his method in fitting gramophone springs without the use of a special spring winder, such as is used when fitting clock springs. He says: "In fitting new ones it looks easiest to drop the spring while wound up into the case, then releasing it by cutting the wire; but in practice this is not always so, as the outer slot may not catch on the peg in the case. I find the best way is to hold the spring in a cloth and cut the wire, thus releasing it, see that the catch inside the case is a good one and put the outer slot on it, being careful to see that it fits well on. Now hold the axle, or a substitute, vertically in the vise, case on it, mouth upwards, and free to revolve. Next work the spring in, pressing it in with the left hand while bringing more spring up with the right. It is quite easy to get them in, and I fail to see the use of a winder."

The Black List Now Whitewashed

By an official Order in Council it is made known that all names in Africa, America, Asia, and Europe have been removed from the "Trading with the Enemy Statutory List."

The Swiss Grant General Export Licenses

The export of gramophones, parts, etc., and all other musical instruments, except records, is now permitted by the Swiss Department of Public Economy, under a general license system, which, however, is revocable at any time. This general license applies only to exports through the Customs Bureaus on the Franco-Swiss and Italo-Swiss frontiers.

Famous Artist on Air Tour

One of our best comedians, Harry Tate, whose laughable skits appear on Columbia, by the way, is now to indulge in a new flight of fancy. He has conceived the idea of an aeroplane tour around the world. A Handley-Page aerobus has been engaged. It is roomy enough for Harry and his company of eight, with necessary scenery and baggage. The itinerary includes Gibraltar, Malta, Egypt, India, China, Japan, and thence on, by air if possible, to San Francisco. He avows he will tour America from aloft, somehow.

The Famous "H. M. V." Dog Muzzled

Nipper is not a victim of rabies, but apropos the muzzling order, a city music dealer is taking no chances. Considerable amusement was caused to passersby who were attracted to the window by the sight of our canine friend duly muzzled in accordance with the police order. A good ad gag in more ways than one!

A New Sound Box

Some manufacturers of sound boxes would do well to give more study to the artistic effect of their work in contradistinction to the purely mechanical side. The day when any old thing would do is quickly becoming a matter of serious consideration, now that metals are free and imports uncontrolled. This view was evidently not overlooked by the Sterno Manufacturing Co. when they planned their new sound box production, an advance sample of which I recently inspected. It is all-British, embodies most of the virtues and few of the faults of the war-time productions, gives a fine mellow reproduction of, in my opinion, just the right volume, and for those reasons should make a strong appeal to the masses. This new box will fit the majority of gramophones. Special attention has been paid to the mounting of the stylus bar, and by a new method of fitting with side screws which allows a carefully regulated all-round play of the stylus a favorable degree of tension is secured. Another consideration is the weight of the box. The mica diaphragm is $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches diameter, and as this size box made in metal would be of such a weight as to offer undue resistance in playing a record on a single-spring-motor machine it is equipped with a fibre back-plate. Altogether, the new Sterno production bespeaks a scientific appreciation of artistry on the part of the maker.

The Silver Steel Palladium Needles

From Messrs. A. Waite & Co., Ltd., I have received samples of the above-named needles for review. Quality of steel is the chief determining factor of a good needle. Under test, the Silver Steel Palladium Needle gave excellent results—good volume, without blast. It brought every detail out of the instrumental and vocal records played, and showed little or no sign of wear even over a full 12-inch record test. One needle, one record is a safe principle, though it would not be an unmerited claim to say the Palladium Needle is good for more.

Celebrities and Celebrity Worship

An article of more than usual interest appeared in "The Voice" recently from the pen of M. E. Ricketts, entitled "Celebrities and Celebrity Worship," which will doubtless interest a great many talking machine men in America. It reads as follows:

Is there a famous personage in the world who has never faced a camera? I have no knowledge that there is. To achieve fame and remain unphotographed certainly seems impossible, and in the universal interest it is only right that such an impossibility should continue. A photograph for universal exhibition should be considered as the inevitable accompaniment to fame, the obvious "penalty" of notoriety and the natural accessory of recognized genius. The privilege of seeing in the flesh the "great ones of the earth" is not vouchsafed to the majority of the public, who, therefore, have an undeniable right to a permanent photograph so that their imagination can be satisfied and their appreciation be unrestricted by conventional limitations.

Obviously it is hard to give full support and appreciation to somebody one has never seen, and simple faith is not an outstanding feature in the "make-up" of the people of to-day. The cry is for actualities, honest ugliness, natural beauty, unvarnished truths, plain facts. The eyes of the coming generation are growing wide open, they will see, and what are we preparing to satisfy their intelligent demands?

In every English-speaking nation Nelson is the schoolboy's hero, and any boy could identify his photograph out of a thousand. Knowing what their hero looks like, the boys can more easily understand how it was he endeared himself to all who were privileged to meet him.

Who among us at one time or another has not experienced the thrill of enthusiasm, the glow of inspiration that is created by even a glance at the portrait of a noble character? One reads the biography—one sees the portrait, immediately the written words live and an indelible impression is created in one's mind.

And as we to-day recognize the value of pictures or photographs of our celebrities, so are we learning to understand the subtle power of the human voice, and the realization of the immensity of this influence is almost overwhelming.

In the year 1905 the governors of the British Museum decided to form a collection of gramophone records of every famous person who had made a record, so that coming generations could go and hear records of those famous tenors, Caruso and Tamagno; those famous sopranos, Melba and Tetrazzini; speeches by Shackleton on his journey to the South Pole and Peary on his journey to the North Pole; Beck's famous eulogy of Britain's effort in the great war; the voices of Lloyd George, Asquith, Bonar Law, Churchill, Walter Long, Lord Roberts, J. R. Clynes, minister of food, G. Roberts, minister of labor, General Sir W. Robertson, Lord French, or those great actors, Beerbohm Tree and Lewis Waller.

Just let us think what it would mean could we listen now to the voices of the great Apostles delivering their orations; to Mark Antony making his famous speech over the body of Julius Caesar; to the speech of Boadicea when she gathered together the scattered forces of ancient Britain; to Joan of Arc when she rallied the French peasants, to the famous tenor Sims Reeves; or the speeches of the great Gladstone and Beaconsfield.

Let us try to imagine the loss of the world to-day. How great it is! Relatively speaking, we know nothing of all the greatness that has gone before us—we cannot grasp the essence of personality, the mystical spiritual influence, the intellectual reasoning, the physical appeal—all of these tremendous forces are lost to us, and this being so, how poverty-stricken the world is. We depend entirely on history, and, alas, upon all points of real importance historians themselves quarrel, and the real import of a speech or event suffers or flourishes in accordance with the mental attitude of the writer.

Coming generations will be materially better off than we are. Take, as one example, the future generation of singers. They will be able to study the renderings of famous works by the world's greatest artists who achieved fame generations before them. And consider also the help that will be given to future students of history—they will be able to hear the actual messages in the actual voices of the leaders of the civilized nations during the great war.

Can one truly realize the far-reaching importance to the Greek nation, not only of to-day, but of the future, of the actual speech made by the Greek premier, Venizelos, on the reasons why Britain should always be the friend of Greece, and why Greece should support the Allies? The influence of such a speech is bound to be colossal, and it was recorded in the English and Greek languages and circulated in thousands.

The Gramophone Co., Ltd., "His Master's Voice," have battled for years to lift the gramophone to its real sphere, and their success in securing the large list they have of records of the voices of famous musicians, orators, explorers, statesmen and military leaders augurs well for the future. I firmly believe that the day is not far distant when the public will just as easily be able to hear on the gramophone the voices of the nation's leaders as they can to-day see their photographs in the daily newspapers.

The day when the gramophone was looked upon as one of the seven plagues is gone for ever. The public are now beginning to understand and, therefore, to appreciate its tremendous power. With such instruments in hundreds of thousands of homes, the musical, educational and propaganda possibilities present a sphere so wide that one is temporarily staggered and forced to realize the truth of the statement of the "His Master's Voice" manufacturers that the business is yet only in its infancy.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8.—NEEDLE ARM FOR TALKING MACHINES.—Walter L. Eckhardt, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,296,638.

This invention has for its object to provide an improved construction of needle arm (stylus or needle support) for sound reproducing machines, including means for adjusting the stylus or needle with respect to said arm or support.

A further object of the invention is to provide an improved construction of needle arm and stylus or needle by the use of which a single stylus or needle of attenuated wire may be used a great many times for the reproduction of sounds for sound records without injury to said records and also by the use of which the sounds reproduced shall be more nearly like the original sounds impressed upon the record than heretofore has been practicable.

A still further object of the invention is to provide a needle arm or support by means of which an attenuated or fine wire employed as a stylus or needle may be rigidly and firmly held so as to prevent a vibration of the same independently of said needle arm or support.

It is also an object of the invention to provide a needle arm having a fine or attenuated point adapted to enter the sound grooves upon a sound record whereby, if occasion should arise, the needle arm itself may be employed to co-operate directly with a sound record without or independently of the stylus or needle for the reproduction of sounds from said record.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a side elevation of a sound box having secured thereon and in operative relation thereto a needle arm and stylus or needle embodying the invention, the said figure also showing a portion of a record in transverse section with which the end of the stylus or needle is in contact; Fig. 2 is a view in front elevation of said needle arm and stylus or needle separate from the sound box and enlarged; Fig. 3 is a view in side elevation of the same; Fig. 4 is a view showing a portion of said connection intermediate the diaphragm operating end of the stylus bar and the diaphragm, whereby a relatively short travel of said end of the stylus bar is translated into a relatively greater movement of the diaphragm. In other words, the present invention embodies means, positioned intermediate the diaphragm operating end of the stylus bar and the diaphragm, whereby the vibrations received at said end of the stylus bar are transmitted to the diaphragm through said means which amplifies such vibrations and delivers them to the diaphragm in their thus amplified condition.

A further feature of the invention resides in the mounting of the stylus bar for universal pivotal movement whereby the vibration of said stylus bar under the influence of either lateral cut or hill and dale records is automatically provided for, said universal connection performing the further function of compensating for the movements of the amplifying means.

RECORDER AND REPRODUCER FOR TALKING MACHINES.—Loring L. Leeds, Short Hills, N. J., assignor to Frank M. Needham, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,296,975.

This invention relates to the sound boxes of talking machines, and has for its object to improve the connection between the sound box and the bar or socket which supports the reproducing or recording stylus. The improved connection is of a very firm yet elastic character and insures a clear reproduction of sounds with a minimum of disturbing noises.

A specific example of the invention is shown in the accompanying drawings, in which Figure 1 is a side elevation of a recorder or reproducer

TURNTABLE FOR TALKING MACHINES.—John A. Davis, Boston, Mass. Patent No. 1,298,019.

This invention has for its object a new and improved turntable for talking machines and particularly for electrically operated machines, although it may be used with equal success on those which are mechanically operated.

At the present time many talking machines are operated by electric motors the current for which is taken from the ordinary lighting circuit. This method of operation has certain obvious advantages, but serious difficulties have arisen, particularly as the result of the use of metallic turntables on which the records are placed. The noise of the driving mechanism is transmitted through the spindle to the metallic turntable, which being resonant tends to magnify it and distribute it, thus increasing the objectionable noise. The vibrations of the resonant turntable are to some extent transmitted to the record and thus through the needle to the sound box, interfering with the production of the record and the purity of the tone therefrom and introducing extraneous noises into the sound reproduction.

Furthermore, as electrically operated talking machines are arranged for connection with the ordinary lamp circuit which is commonly 110 or 220 volts and as there is always danger of a short circuit in the instrument, there is danger of an electric shock to any one touching a metallic turntable which is in electrical connection through the spindle with the other metallic parts of the instrument. There is also equal danger of fire from a short circuit.

Accordingly the invention has for its object a new and improved turntable which overcomes the various objections previously mentioned.

The turntable embodying the invention is molded from a suitable insulating compound such, for instance, as one in which pulverized asbestos, mica, gum shellac and asphaltum are ingredients. This material is plastic when heated and is capable of being molded under heavy pressure and on cooling is rigid, strong, hard and an insulator capable of withstanding a relatively high voltage.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a top plan view of a turntable embodying the invention. Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the same; Fig. 3 is a section on line 3—3 of Fig. 1.

TALKING MACHINE.—Edward A. Eschinger, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to J. C. Clemmer, same place. Patent No. 1,301,787.

This invention relates to sound recording and reproducing machines, and particularly feed mechanism for sound boxes of such machines adjustable to automatically repeat their co-operation with a given sound record, at the will of the operator.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a plan view of the Victor gramophone aforesaid having a convenient embodiment of the invention in connection therewith. Fig. 2 is a side elevation of said machine shown in Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a full size plan view of the automatic feed mechanism indicated in Figs. 1 and 2, and Fig. 4 is a left-hand side elevation of said mechanism. Fig. 5 is a sectional view of said mechanism, taken on the line 5 in Fig. 3. Fig. 6 is a fragmentary sectional view, taken on the line 6 in Fig. 3.

TALKING MACHINE.—Edward A. Eschinger, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of one-half to J. C. Clemmer, same place. Patent No. 1,301,786.

This invention relates to sound recording and reproducing machines, and particularly feed mechanism for sound boxes of such machines adjustable to automatically repeat their co-operation with a given sound record, at the will of the operator.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a plan view of the Victor gramophone aforesaid, having a convenient embodiment of the invention in connection therewith. Fig. 2 is a fragmentary ver-needle arm in longitudinal section on the line 4—4 of Fig. 2; Fig. 5 is a transverse sectional view taken on the line 5—5 of Fig. 2; Fig. 6 is a transverse sectional view taken on the line 6—6 of Fig. 2; and Fig. 7 is a longitudinal sectional view taken on the line 7—7 of Fig. 3 in a plane at right angles to that on which Fig. 4 is taken.

PHONOGRAPH REPRODUCER.—Carl N. Moller, New York. Patent No. 1,296,833.

This invention is a phonograph reproducer, and the object of the invention is to amplify the vibrations of the stylus bar in their transmission to the diaphragm. A further object of the invention is to provide a phonograph reproducer adapted to operate on records either of the hill and dale or lateral cut type.

Speaking generally, the salient feature of the invention consists in an amplifier co-operating with the diaphragm and stylus bar, whereby the movements of the stylus bar are materially amplified prior to their transmission to the diaphragm, thereby increasing the degree of vibration of said diaphragm.

From a more specific standpoint, the invention may be said to consist in an amplifying tical sectional view of the machine shown in Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a fragmentary plan view of the feed mechanism shown in Figs. 1 and 2, but on a larger scale. Fig. 4 is a left-hand side elevation of a portion of the said feed mechanism, as shown in Fig. 3: said mechanism being in idle position, disconnected from the motor which drives it. Fig. 5 is a fragmentary, sectional, front elevation of a portion of the feed mechanism shown in Figs. 1 to 4 inclusive. Fig. 6 is a fragmentary plan view, similar to Fig. 3, but showing the said mechanism in operative position, in connection with the motor which drives it. Fig. 7 is a fragmentary, vertical, sectional view of the feed mechanism terminal stop device, taken on the line 7 in Fig. 3. Fig. 8 is a plan view of a modified form of initial stop device. Fig. 9 is a fragmentary elevation of the initial stop device shown in Fig. 8. Fig. 10 is a plan view of a modified form of an initial stop device. Fig. 11 is a front elevation, and Fig. 12 is a side elevation, of a modified form of initial stop device, of the same general character as the terminal stop device shown in Fig. 3 and which may be substituted for the initial stop device shown in that figure. Fig. 13 is a fragmentary perspective view of the bracket attached to the tone arm, affording a support for the fulcrum of the feed mechanism lever, and a support for the sound box when the latter is upturned into idle position. Fig. 14 is a side elevation, similar to Fig. 4, but showing a more compact arrangement of the cam and gear shifting mechanism, designed for the smaller type No. IX Victor machine, but adapted for use in the larger, No. XVI, machine indicated in Figs. 1 and 2.

REPRODUCING DEVICE FOR GRAPHOPHONES.—Henry Rolland Adams, Wayside, Tex. Patent No. 1,301,631.

This invention relates to reproducing devices for graphophones, and one object is to provide certain novel means for mounting the diaphragm in order that the vibrations shall be transmitted from each side thereof to a plurality of ducts having connection with a main duct or tone arm through which the sound passes to the horn or the like.

A further object is to provide a casing comprising a plurality of semispherical members with means for mounting a diaphragm across the chamber formed by said members, and means for connecting the opposite sides of the semispherical members with a common air duct, or tone arm.

A still further object is to provide certain novel means for mounting the needle and comprising a conical member carried within a tapered seat and separated from said seat by a sleeve of fiber, this conical member having connection with the arm connected with the diaphragm of the reproducing device.

Figure 1 is a longitudinal central section illustrative of the best practical embodiment of the invention that has been devised; the said section being on the line 3—3 of Fig. 2. Fig. 2 is a view, partly in plan and partly in section, of the upper casing section removed. Fig. 3 is a section taken in the plane indicated by the line 3—3 of Fig. 2.

SOUND BOX MOUNTING.—William T. Lakin, Long, Md. Patent No. 1,301,458.

This invention relates to improvements in phonographic tone arms. An object being to provide a tone arm including as one of the essential features a conduit, so mounted upon the end of the tone arm as to be capable of being swung completely back out of the way, making the turntable accessible for the placing and removing of the records.

Another object of the invention is to provide a tone arm, including a reproducer neck, adjustably mounted upon the end of the sound conduit, making the reproducer adaptable to both vertically cut and laterally cut records.

Another object of the invention resides in the manner of pivotally supporting the tone arm and of affording also a continuous unbroken tone passage.

Figure 1 is a plan view of the tone arm. Fig. 2 is a detail cross section of the sound conduit mounting on the tone arm. Fig. 3 is a detail section of a portion of the mounting. Fig. 4 is a detail section of the coupling connecting the reproducer to the reproducer neck. Figs. 5 and 6 are face views of the opposing portions of the sound conduit mounting. Fig. 7 is a side elevation of the parts shown in Fig. 1, portions being shown in sections. Figs. 8 and 9 are detail views of a portion of the reproducer neck, and Figs. 10 and 12 inclusive are detail views of several modifications of bearing pins.

REPRODUCER FOR TALKING MACHINES.—Henry T. Crapo, Boston, Mass. Patent No. 1,302,140.

The immediate object of this invention is to provide simple, but effective, means for use with the needle bar of such reproducers whereby a specially sensitive action is given to the needle as the latter follows the grooves of the record, the said invention briefly described consisting of a novel arrangement of a plurality of permanently magnetized points which act with a cushioning or balancing effect upon the needle bar, in opposition to the vibrating diaphragm.

For the purpose of explaining the said invention clearly the annexed drawings have been provided, in which the Figure 1 is a plan view of a reproducer embodying the present improvement, looking down upon the vibrator diaphragm needle bar, and Fig. 2 is a transverse sectional, view of the same taken on the line 2—2 of said Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a relatively enlarged view of the magnetized spider 15 and of the needle bar located thereunder, and Fig. 3 is a transverse sectional view taken on the line 3—3 of said Fig. 4.

PHONOGRAPH.—Clemma R. Raney, Chicago, Ill. Patent No. 1,302,217.

This invention has among its objects to provide an improved phonograph. It also aims to provide improved means whereby a series of records may be reproduced in a predetermined succession continuously and automatically. A further object is to provide improved means whereby a series of records arranged in predetermined order may be successively supplied to the record rotating mechanism of the machine and improved means whereby they may be discharged therefrom after they have been reproduced. A still further object of the invention is to provide improved means for controlling the sound arm and needle of the reproducing mechanism in such a manner as automatically to place the same in starting position upon a record, and improved mechanism whereby the sound arm may be automatically returned to its initial position after the completion of the record. More specifically, the invention has among its objects to provide improved and cooperating mechanism whereby the several results mentioned above may be obtained in the desired sequence, and to produce a machine adapted to reproduce a predetermined series of records automatically and continuously, which will function with certainty and accuracy during a protracted period of service without the necessity for repairs, which is capable of use even in the hands of an unskilled operator without danger of breakage, and which may at the same time be manufactured at small expense.

In these drawings Figure 1 is a partial plan view of this machine equipped with improvement, a portion of the record table being broken away to facilitate illustration. Fig. 2 is a side elevation of the mechanism shown in Fig. 1, a plurality of records being shown in the machine and portions of the frame-work of the latter being broken away to facilitate illustration. Fig. 3 is a side elevation of a portion of the mechanism, the record carrying support being shown in elevated position ready to receive the records. Fig. 4 is a detail sectional view of the record support showing the same in normal position and ready to discharge one of a plurality of records thereon. Fig. 5 is a detail side elevation of a portion of the record support. Fig. 6 is a detail transverse sectional view of the record table and its counter-balancing and rotating mechanism. Fig. 7 is a partial plan view of one form of record showing the different series of grooves and the axial rings thereon. Fig. 8 is a detail view showing the sound arm in inoperative position with respect to a record.

THE INSTRUMENT OF QUALITY
Sonora
CLEAR AS A BELL

TO glance over the names of Sonora owners is like reading a selected list of the substantial people of the community—the bankers, well-to-do business and professional men, the socially prominent women—those who take pride in buying the best are Sonora owners.

It is not necessary for the Sonora dealers to cry “easy payments” in order to make sales. Most of the people who buy phonographs are prepared to pay cash when they find it advantageous and quality is an inducement, as it is in the Sonora. And it is interesting to know that the demand for Sonoras is so great that our factories are working to capacity and are being greatly enlarged.

Write for information if you would like to enjoy the advantages which the Sonora dealer has.

Here are shown just a few of the beautiful upright and period models which are now available. The price of the Sonora ranges from $50 to $1000 and every Sonora is of matchless value because of its magnificent tone and its many important and exclusive features of construction.

TALKER AIDS AERIAL NAVIGATION

Recent Experiment in Washington Opens Up Another Use of the Talking Machine—Sound Transmitted to Airplane Over the City

One of the most unusual developments relating to the use of the talking machine in new fields is its adaptation as a guiding hand to aerial navigation. Experiments recently made public in Washington embody the talking machine in connection with the radio telephone and were demonstrated by the United States Signal Corps. By means of the device the voice of the talking machine was carried into the upper air regions and was audible to aviators flying over the city and announced to them that they were above the Capitol. The demonstration was conducted by Lieut. R. D. Duncan, Jr., of the Signal Corps, and is the result of long investigations by Major-General George O. Squier to make aerial navigation safer for the aviator.

In the experiment the motor attached to a Victrola was started and the wireless transmitter adjusted to carry the vibrations to the desired distance. The aviator, according to a prearranged schedule, sailed over the city and his receiving set picked up the words "Washington Beacon, No. 1," sent out into space by the machine below him. E. F. Droop & Sons, well-known music dealers of Washington, furnished the machine used in the experiment.

TALKING MACHINE AN AID TO ART

Mrs. Ethel Brasel, Manager Sherman-Clay Victrola Department, Shows Value of Talking Machine in Education of Children

Mrs. Ethel Brasel, manager of the Victrola department of Sherman-Clay & Co., Spokane, Wash., was recently quoted in the newspapers of that city on the subject of the value of the talking machine in the schools as an aid to the appreciation of art. The public school officials in that city have expressed themselves in favor of this method and are using it with success Mrs. Brasel said:

"The child whose home contains a talking machine is presumably a child who has a keener appreciation than the child who has not this advantage. Not one American child in a hundred, as the taste of the people now stands, is really musical from birth. We find only a small minority of children gifted with executive or creative talent in music, but every normal child has the capacity to enjoy music, and they should become acquainted with the good classics when the opportunity under proper guidance is available.

"The children should be taught to listen intelligently to music in the home through good records of world-famed artists. The talking machine presents the most interesting, most efficient and most attractive of all means for producing musical feeling and knowledge of standard classics.

"The child mind presents a field for promotive work in the love and appreciation of the noblest of all arts. We come to see more and more that music is something to be taught through constant presentation, and that a taste for good music is the most important element in the development of the strongest character and mind."

SHIP RECORDS BY AIRPLANE

At the inauguration of the first aerial transportation service in Boston the Grafonola Co. of New England sent a shipment of records from Franklin Field to Swampscott in one of the planes operated by the North Shore Aerial Transportation Co.

HOLD ANNUAL OUTING NEXT MONTH

Plans Perfected for "Big Time" of Talking Machine Men, Inc., at Rye Beach August 13—Sports and Eats Chief Features on Program

The annual outing of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization composed of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, will be held at Rye Beach, Wednesday, August 13. The trip to the beach will be made in buses and private cars, and the members will be notified of the time and place of the departure of the buses.

J. J. Davin, the only "active associate member" of the organization, with a committee, has made arrangements for the affair and it is probably the best-planned outing in the history of the association.

Aside from the elaborate dinner that will be served in the evening, a light luncheon will welcome the guests upon their arrival. Arrangements for water sports, including row boats, a ball game and field sports, are programmed, and in the evening the members and their guests will be entertained at a theatre party. The tickets will cost $4.00 and will include the bus ride, luncheon, dinner, theatre and an opportunity to take part in the activities of the day. The members will return to the city at 10 o'clock in the evening.

The various affairs of the program have been placed in the hands of individual committees. This arrangement, together with a perforated card divided in a manner entitling the holder to luncheon, dinner and theatre, etc., will, it is thought, make for efficiency in carrying out the day's program. Much of the credit for this year's affair, as usual, must be given to Mr. Davin, who, for the past few weeks, has placed much of his time at the disposal of the organization.

Following are the names of those in charge of the various activities: Transportation from New York to Rye Beach and return, Cass Riddle; luncheon and dinner, E. Leins and F. H. Ponty; bathing accommodations, John Hunt and Al Adelstein; water sports, row boats, etc., Mr. Saunders; baseball arrangements and field sports, Messrs. Spillane and Thaw; dancing arrangements, Mr. Bouregard; publicity, finance and printing, A. Galuchie and J. J. Davin; pennants and buttons, Sol Lazarus; reception committee, Messrs. McCoy, Stiles, Clinton and R. Tusting, Sr.

Pennants will be especially designed with the insignia of the association, and buttons to carry the name of each member will be provided.

"JAZZ" MAY START ANOTHER WAR!

Nations Vying With Each Other for Credit of Originating the Jazz Band Idea—Paris Daily Has Story Claiming France Has the Honor

Well! It looks as if France and the United States may have a little war all their own over the origin of the jazz band! There has been much speculation in the press of late in this country as to just where this tantalizing melody really started and while each one tried his hand at giving the only true history of its origin, placing the birthplace anywhere from the sunny South to the frozen North, everyone agreed that it was somewhere in this country. But now comes word in the shape of a cablegram to the New York Times stating that the well-known Paris daily, "Le Matin," declares the credit for inventing the jazz band belongs to France. It is not clear whether this statement is a part of the anti-American propaganda just now so prevalent in the French press, but it is made with evident feeling of conviction. The report goes on to say: According to this report the jazz idea originated in Paris in the time of the Directoire, when the people used to go with great frequency to ball concerts. The report goes on to say:

"In those days as well as now people did not know what to do to amuse themselves; so they made a noise. Those who had great taste for noise went to the concerts of the Cat Orchestra. There were twenty cats with their heads in a row on the keyboard of a harpsichord. The performers by striking the keys worked a device which pulled the cats' tails, causing a caterwauling which gradually took on as much volume of sound as the jazz band and was fully as musical and entertaining. This so-called American invention is only a recurrence." And there you are!

TALKING MACHINE EXPORTS DECLINE

Exports, Including Records, for Ten Months, Ending April 30, 1919, Total $3,572,154

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of April, 1919 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following figures on talking machines and records are presented:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during April, 1919, amounted in value to $30,402, as compared with $25,039 worth which were imported during the same month of 1918. The ten months' total ending April, 1919, showed importations valued at $233,128, as compared with $284,724 worth of talking machines and parts imported during the same period of 1918.

Talking machines to the number of 3,743, valued at $141,057, were exported in April, 1919, as compared with 8,558 talking machines, valued at $254,022, sent abroad in the same period of 1918. The ten months' total showed that we exported 41,184 talking machines, valued at $1,244,583, as against 78,293 talking machines, valued at $2,168,752, in 1918, and 62,606 talking machines, valued at $1,612,957, in 1917.

The total exports of records and supplies for April, 1919, were valued at $266,730, as compared with $177,973 in April, 1918. For the ten months ending April, 1919, records and accessories were exported, valued at $2,327,571, as compared with $1,653,390, in 1918, and $1,257,530, in 1917.

The National Vitaphone Sales Corp. has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey to manufacture talking machines, records, etc. The capital is $125,000.

Real Salesmanship in Retail Talking Machine Business Brings Its Rewards :: :: By C. B. Shepherd

The statement has been made that during the past few years at least there has been no real need for advanced salesmanship in the retail talking machine business. That is, salesmanship of the higher sort which is absolutely essential to success in other lines of endeavor, including the closely allied piano business. The excuse has been that, in the first place, the manufacturers' advertising brought the business for both machines and records right into the store of the dealer, who found the customer already sold before he had entered the store and required of the dealer only that he display and test a machine offered at a certain price or find in his stockroom records bearing certain specified titles or numbers. Secondly, it has been claimed, and with some degree of truth, that the market has for years been oversold in the popular makes of talking machines and records—that with the demand in excess of the producing ability of the factories the dealer had little else to do but fill the orders that came to him without any great personal effort.

Notwithstanding arguments to the effect that retailers are doing business without great effort and making some money at it, despite the oversold condition of the market, I, for one, maintain that genuinely efficient salesmanship is as essential to successful talking machine selling as to any other line of business. In every State and in every city or town where there are several competing dealers handling talkers the traveler will find one who believes in salesmanship and insists upon his staff using proper selling tactics. Without exception it will be found that that particular dealer is getting more than his pro rata share of the local business—enough more to make his salesmanship pay substantial dividends. The extra effort may mean only the sale of a machine here or a few records there occasionally, as representing business that would not have come to him naturally, but that little extra sale here and there makes a most substantial total during the year. It marks the difference between making an easy living and making money and leaves with the buyer the impression that he is doing business with a wide-awake store—a store that appreciates his patronage and wants more of it.

My experience indicates that the great lack of salesmanship that one runs against in the trade is due chiefly to the indifference of the dealers themselves who have found that sufficient trade comes to their doors to provide them with a good living. With this type of competition to meet it is little wonder that the progressive retailers, the fellows who go after business and sell their goods, stand out from the rest so sharply.

Every sale made to-day, every new customer impressed with the desire to do business with you, means just so much less left for future accomplishment. And the customer likes to be sold, likes to be made to feel that he is welcome in the store and is not breaking into a siesta. You, Mr. Dealer, like to receive attention yourself when you enter the haberdasher's or the of selling is to know your goods, because you cannot talk convincingly regarding the qualities of a product with which you are not familiar. Despite this there are to-day salesmen who cannot intelligently explain the difference between various types of machines, much less give any details regarding motor or sound-box construction.

People are asking for just such information to-day. The manufacturers are calling attention to special mechanical features in their advertising and the prospective purchasers are asking questions. They want to know just how one machine differs from another and it will not be long before the salesman who cannot explain that difference intelligently and convincingly will be out of luck. In the matter of records, for instance, the real salesman will not only be able to describe the difference between the types intelligently, but, regardless of whether he is selling lateral or vertical-cut records, will be able to tell just why the system used in making the particular record he handles is the best. The woods are full of good and logical arguments on both sides. Expert salesmanship means realizing on opportunity, an opportunity that many of the members of the trade who can be recognized readily have realized. Soon there may be changed conditions and selling will become a necessity.

cigar store, so why not credit your customer with the same human characteristic?

Giving the customer what he asks for, taking his money and letting him walk out without any comment beyond the brief "anything else to-day?" is neither salesmanship nor even service. By appealing to the customer who has once been so treated the live retailer with salesmanship and service back of him and a smile is taking away trade from the sleepy one and building up more than his pro rata share of trade. It's being done right now—look for yourselves.

If there is anything more pitiable than lack of salesmanship it is the performance of the salesman who knows he should try to sell but doesn't know how to go about it. This condition is squarely up to the dealer who employs him, but has not taken the trouble to train him. One of the fundamental principles

C. P. MACK ON COLUMBIA STAFF

Becomes Member of Los Angeles Traveling Staff—Will Cover Arizona Territory

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 3.—William F. Stidham, manager of the wholesale branch of the Columbia Co. in this city, has appointed Charles P. Mack as a member of the traveling staff. Mr. Mack, who, at the time of the signing of the armistice, resigned his commission of second lieutenant in the Field Artillery, returned to the Bartlett Music Co., of Los Angeles, with which he had previously been associated for a number of years. Mr. Mack's new appointment will take him to the Arizona territory, and his intimate familiarity with the problems confronting the dealers, together with his long experience in retail salesmanship, will undoubtedly enable him to give his clientele practical cooperation and service.

DEALERS ENLARGING THEIR STORES

Big Army of Dealers Making Ready for Marked Increase of Business Expected in the Fall

The New York Talking Machine Co. reports that many of its clients handling Victor machines are at this time enlarging their shops in order to meet the increased business which is expected in the fall. That this is the time to make improvements in order to accommodate the future business is unquestionable. Among those companies which have bettered their exhibiting and demonstrating departments are C. A. Hansenn & Bro., 4711 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, who have double-sized their store by buying the premises adjoining them. They have also renovated the shop and installed new fixtures.

The Fulkerson Music House, Carbondale, Pa., have recently installed a battery of four new booths in order to give their customers more exclusive service in the future. W. J. Killea, of Albany, N. Y., has moved from 74 Pearl street to number 35 Pearl street, in order to secure larger quarters and also to secure a better position. He has installed six new booths and has arranged a very attractive appearance at his new location. In New London, Conn., D. S. Marsh has installed six new booths in order to meet the increased business which has already crowded his present quarters, as well as to take care of the increased business which he expects in the fall.

MERCHANTS AFTER NEW BUSINESS

Taking advantage of the building boom going on in Burbank, Cal., merchants of Glendale are arranging to establish branch stores there. The Glendale Phonograph & Piano Co., Glendale, Cal., has leased a building in Burbank and will open under the management of Salamncia Bros.

A MESSAGE IN THE VICTOR CODE

Talking Machine Men, Inc., Send a Message to Their Membership That Requires a Victor Numerical Record Catalog to Decode

The Talking Machine Men, Inc., have just sent an important message in code to the membership of the organization. The message is in the nature of a Tri-State Union Recordgram, and instead of the ABC, Western Union or other codes of commerce the recipient, if he is in the talking machine business, needs only the Victor catalog code. The message of several paragraphs is made up entirely of record numbers.

For the benefit of those who have neither the time nor the inclination to grab a catalog and dig out the solution for themselves there is provided a translation. From the opening salutation 18438-16320, namely, "Tom, Dick, Harry and Jack"—"Greeting," to the signature, 35528, namely, "Very Good Eddie," it is a clever piece of work.

EDISON SHOP IN SPRINGFIELD

Marie Morrissey Appears in Person at the Formal Opening of New Edison Store

A new Edison Shop was opened in Springfield, Mass., on June 20, by B. L. Conchar & Co. at 488 Main street. This concern began business in that city three years ago when it opened the first Edison store in Springfield at 204 Washington street. Since that time the business has grown rapidly and new quarters were needed. The new location has been remodeled and sound-proof booths have been added and the rear of the store fitted up as a concert hall for recitals. At the formal opening Miss Marie Morrissey, the well-known Edison artist, and Jacques Glockman, 'cellist, rendered a pleasing program.

RETURNS FROM SUCCESSFUL TRIP

Geo. W. Hopkins Visited Leading Cities West and South and Transacted Much Important Business in the Interest of Columbia Co.

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, returned recently from a Western and Southern trip which included a visit to the Columbia branches in St. Louis, Dallas, New Orleans and Cincinnati. At St. Louis Mr. Hopkins introduced to the Columbia organization in that city and to the dealers John McKenna, who has been appointed manager of this branch. A. W. Roos, heretofore acting manager of the St. Louis branch, has assumed the duties and functions attached to the position of assistant manager.

From St. Louis Mr. Hopkins went to Dallas, where he attended a very successful Columbia dealers' meeting given under the auspices of Fred R. Erisman, manager of this branch. At New Orleans a similar meeting was held, and Wm. F. Standke, manager of the New Orleans branch, furnished the dealers with a practical and valuable program. At Cincinnati F. F. Dawson, manager, and Norman B. Smith, assistant manager, also arranged a dealers' meeting which was attended by Mr. Hopkins. Mr. Smith conducted the incidental details of this meeting, and the dealers were enthusiastic regarding the practical topics discussed.

PARLEPHONE PLANT LOCATED

The Parlephone Co., St. Joseph, Mo., which recently leased the building on Fourth street in that city, is now making an addition to its quarters. E. E. Trower heads the new concern, which will use the St. Joseph plant for the manufacture of cabinets for the machines. The other parts will be made elsewhere and shipped to this plant to be assembled.

NEW YORK, JULY 15, 1919

THE past month, being recognized as the convention season, has seen the holding of several conventions in the talking machine trade, bringing together various prominent trade interests. It is true that the industry has not yet advanced to the point, for some reason or other, where it can boast of a national association taking in representatives of all interests, but, in the absence of such an all-embracing body, it seems well that those wholesalers and retailers affiliated directly or indirectly with one or the other of the large manufacturing companies come together for a discussion of the business problems, and for the mapping out of campaigns for future business.

The conventions this year have been particularly important, inasmuch as the war has ended, and there have cropped up in its wake many questions of business character that require elucidation. The subject of production has, of course, been a dominating one for the trade throughout the country, which has been underfed in the matter of stock for many months past, and it is particularly timely now that the hunger for goods has passed the passive stage. For the various factories to get back on even a pre-war basis has been a severe task, but as they have approached that welcome goal they find that although production has lagged during the war period the demand has increased in almost direct ratio. In fact, pre-war standards of production and of marketing are not adequate to present-day needs.

Then, too, there are changes in sales policies that must be considered. It is just possible that a seller's market may not reign supreme in the talking machine field, and it is the duty of far-seeing business men to provide against any such contingency while laying plans in advance of any necessity for their carrying out.

These questions have been threshed out at several conventions more or less to the satisfaction of those directly interested. That the industry is not standing still in the matter of style development while endeavoring to catch up on production has been evidenced by the many new creations in machines that have been offered in and outside of the conventions. The industry is going ahead in more ways than one. It is broadening out, and does not require attendance at the convention to make known that fact.

The get-together spirit—the willingness to meet and discuss questions that are best solved through an interchange of opinion rather than by the sole efforts of the individual himself—is the spirit that should be encouraged, for it works directly to the advantage of the industry as a whole.

AFTER many months of effort on the part of various interested parties to persuade the talking machine interests to become affiliated with the piano and other divisions of the industry in support of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, thus having every branch of the music industry represented in that organization and making it all-embracing, it appears that the desired result has been obtained in some small measure at least through the recent affiliation of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., of New York, with the National Association of Music Merchants. The national organization is a divisional member of the Chamber of Commerce, and therefore the Talking Machine Men, Inc., through its membership in the Association becomes automatically affiliated with the Chamber of Commerce.

It must be admitted that the attitude of the talking machine men as a rule has not been favorable to the Chamber of Commerce plan, as a result of some idea, whether based on fact or not, that the piano men were inclined to gain their own ends in tax matters and other questions at the expense of the talking machine trade. With the urgent necessity for self-preservation removed with the ending of the war, it may be that a cordial relationship will be established between talking machine and piano interests in the nature of their business as members of the same music industry, with their business connections through retail distributing channels, and with the same advantages to be gained by a more general advancement of the cause of music.

The change in the constitution of the National Association of Piano Merchants resulted in the changing of the name of that organization to the "National Association of Music Merchants," and the opening of membership rights to all retailers in musical instruments clears the way for various talking machine organizations to become affiliated with that body, and through it with the Chamber of Commerce, without being under obligation to form their own distinct trade division.

THE members of the music industry have come to a full realization of a new attitude of the American public toward music and of the fact that the United States already is or is fast becoming the musical nation of the world. It is gratifying to find, however, that this new attitude of the public towards music and the influences that have brought about that new attitude have become recognized outside of the industry, proof of which is offered in a leading article in Printers' Ink recently by Frank H. Williams, in which the writer points out most convincingly that the advertising of the music industry during the past few years is the advertising that has most deeply affected American national life.

A number of factors joined together have succeeded in producing this recognized result, but without question the two leading factors have been the advertising of the talking machine manufacturers and of the player-piano manufacturers. Having developed their instruments to a point where they were not to be considered as novelties, these manufacturers concentrated their advertising arguments on music, and they kept pounding away on the fact that music was an essential part of the home life; that it was absolutely necessary to human happiness, and could be obtained readily, and in desired quantities and quality, through the medium of talking machines, player-pianos and other instruments.

Coupled with this advertising has been the propaganda for music carried on by various interests in and out of the trade, but principally by the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, which, through the encouragement of community singing, music-memory contests, co-operative advertising, and by other means, has served to co-ordinate and expand the various forces working for music to the end that the public has had music offered at every turn.

The straight advertising has been the primary cause of this new attitude toward music and things musical. The public was informed not of the details of the instrument, for it was assumed that it knew something of the product, but the attack was made along the lines of giving music lovers, and particularly those who had not given the matter thought, some idea of the opportunities of education and entertainment offered by the music obtainable through various types of instruments. Some years ago there was much criticism of "canned" music. It was a standing joke in certain quarters. Now this same "canned" music is taken seriously and its nickname has passed, for there is no question but that music produced by automatic means, either through the medium of the talking machine or the player-piano—the production of which requires little or no technical training and very little labor—has proven a dominating factor in making America musical.

The war unquestionably has helped in this work, for wherever soldiers and sailors congregated in any number they had the opportunity of listening to music and plenty of it, but without the war the advertising of the industry itself has brought results that have now been acknowledged by those who keep their fingers on the pulse of advertising and its effect. It is hoped that with the ice once broken this recognition will become more general, for music advertising deserves it.

THE announcement appearing elsewhere in The World this month of the return from France of E. A. Widmann, president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., with contracts for producing in this country phonographs and records approximating in value $100,000,000 annually, has a deep significance for members of the trade in general, whether or not they are allied with the Pathé interests, for it means a new and important step in the development of American talking machine and phonograph production.

The Pathé products referred to were formerly manufactured in France, and the transferring of the contracts for their manufacture to the United States and the placing upon the Pathé interests in this country the responsibility of taking care of all the requirements of the Western Hemisphere, together with those of England and her colonies, form one of the most important moves made in many years.

While these contracts will, of course, revert most directly to the benefit of the Pathé interests themselves, they tend to lend added importance to the talking machine industry in the United States, and every factor of the industry, whether allied or competitive, basks to a certain extent in the reflected glory of the achievement.

THE introduction in the House of Representatives by Representative Kelly, of Pennsylvania, of a new bill to provide for the maintenance of resale prices is naturally viewed with particular interest by piano and talking machine manufacturers, inasmuch as the provisions of the new bill apply most directly to the music industry. While it was hoped by many that the remodeled Stephens bill, with some objectionable features removed, and with provisions made for the supervision of fixed prices by the Federal Trade Commission, would be enacted into a law, it is generally believed now that the Kelly bill, broader in scope and with the objectionable features of the old Stephens bill eliminated, has even a better chance of being passed by Congress and of being enacted into a law.

The bill as it now stands is designed particularly for the protection of trade-marked names and special brands by preventing price cutters from utilizing these trade-marked names, or brands, in the carrying on of their practices to the detriment of the manufacturer of the product. It provides for a number of features, including the sale of excess old style or damaged stock at other than fixed prices at appropriate intervals, that the dealer in closing out his business may offer goods at less than the fixed prices, provided he has first offered them to the manufacturer, and includes provisions that are practical in their bearing towards possible objections to placing too much power with the manufacturer.

The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which the Kelly bill has been referred, is expected to hold hearings on the measure in the near future, and it is expected that the music industry will be well represented at such hearings. Certain it is that in the talking machine trade at least, and in the piano trade to a considerable measure, the growth of the business has depended to a tremendous extent upon the maintenance of prices, and that its future progress likewise depends in no small measure upon some form of protection against those who cut prices and by so doing tend to cast discredit upon trade-marked names and special brands of the industry that have become household words throughout the country as a result of millions of dollars spent in advertising them. If any evils ever resulted from the old systems of price maintenance, it is quite certain that they were far more than offset by the benefits recurring therefrom. The progress of the Kelly bill, in view of the existing situation, will be watched with interest.

THE importance of advertising as one of the essential factors to success in business is too obvious to need reiteration. Every progressive man to-day realizes that advertising does two things primarily—it creates a demand, and more important still it establishes a name value that is worth hundreds, thousands, or millions of dollars as the case may be, because it cost that much to create it.

No more striking illustration of the value of advertising can be adduced than the following paragraph written by M. P. Gould:

"The best known commercial agency in the country, an organization that does nothing but investigate business conditions, recently announced that 84 per cent. of the failures in the country were among non-advertisers. If ever there was conclusive evidence of the absolute necessity for advertising one's business, here it is . . . 'Out of every 100 failures 84 had done no advertising.' This tells the story!"

IN Grand Rapids, Mich., just now there is being held the first talking machine or phonograph exhibition, with close to two score manufacturers of machines, records and accessories represented. The exhibition in Grand Rapids is indicative of two things. First, that that city has become one of the recognized talking machine producing centers in the United States, and second, that the industry has developed sufficiently to make an exhibition of such size and character worth while, and sufficiently diversified to make it interesting. It is more than likely that an annual show of this character will become a feature of the trade, just as the holding of semi-annual furniture expositions is recognized as an institution. It is just one more bit of proof of the growth of the industry.

Observations on Various Plans of Increasing the Sale of Talking Machines :: :: By W. B. Stoddard

The Ankeny Drug Store, Corning, Iowa, which handles a standard line of Victrolas and a wide selection of records of all prices, has a novel way of increasing its business, which could be practiced to advantage by any firm dealing in talking machines whose territory included a farming community. The manager fitted up a runabout on which he could carry a talking machine, and whenever he could arrange to get away from the store he was outside soliciting business for that department. He found this branch of business a money-maker, and limited only by the time he could put in soliciting—in other words, the more time he put in the larger the sales. "After supper calls are very convenient for the farmers," he said. "At that time of the day the farmers have nothing to do, and are glad to have a caller to relieve the monotony of the evening. They can spend plenty of time listening to the demonstration and are more in the mood to buy than they would be if approached during the day."

The White Pharmacies, of Clinton, Ind., are another drug concern that have made a decided success in selling talking machines. Speaking of the way in which they have built up a substantial trade, C. M. White, Jr., said: "We had the floor space in the rear of the store, just off the prescription counter, so we built a demonstration room, took the agency for two kinds of machines and put in a stock of records. At first we thought that the regular store help could take care of this department, but we soon found that it takes more salesmanship to sell talking machines and records than to wrap up a cake of toilet soap. We therefore decided that in order to take care of the talking machine business which we were building we would employ a young woman to devote her entire time to it. Business greatly increased on taking this step, as patrons felt no hesitancy now in asking to have certain records, since they do not take a busy drug clerk from his regular work." Mr. White also said that as Clinton is an industrial city, with a large foreign population, the store keeps on hand a large number of records in foreign languages and likewise runs advertisements in the foreign paper, inviting the patronage of these aliens and advising them that at the White Pharmacies may be found records in their native tongues.

Henry Ford was once accused by a number of manufacturers of the more expensive and luxurious type of automobiles of ruining the market because he put out such a low-priced car. "Gentlemen," said the astute magnate, "you are entirely mistaken. As a matter of fact I am your very best advertising agent. When a man first gets the auto 'bug' he buys a Ford. After he finds out the delights of autoing and the possibilities of a car he wants one of more expensive type—and there you are. Thousands of men would not now be patronizing you if they had not first owned a compact little 'flivver.'" It was this species of reasoning that induced a Chicago concern to push a baby model of talking machine. They realized that many people who did not feel able to buy a high-priced instrument would put a moderate amount into a machine for the sake of the recreation it afforded—and once they had come to a realization of its possibilities they would be more than willing, later, to pay an increased price for a higher-grade instrument.

A well-known dealer in talking machines and records in Dayton, O., who does a large time-payment business, has hit upon an excellent plan of avoiding dunning a customer, and at the same time seeing that he was not lax in his payments. Shortly prior to the date on which a payment was due a printed card was sent, inviting the recipient to drop in and hear the new records—a list of which was printed on the same side. On the opposite side was written: "Inasmuch as the next payment on your talking machine is due June 17 (or whatever the date might be) I shall be glad to have several of these records set aside for your inspection when you visit us on that date to settle your account." This gentle reminder seldom failed of its purpose, as the firm generally knew the type of music preferred by each patron and made a careful selection.

That an excellent business may be done in a small town—especially if it is the center of an agricultural neighborhood—has been proved by Timothy Sammons, of Triumph, Minn. Mr. Sammons emphasizes the personal side of the business. He knows everyone in town and most of the surrounding country. "When I go to the city for my semi-annual buying trip I remember all the friends back home with picture post-cards. Last winter when my son and I made the trip we went into a place where they made post-card photos. I secured a large number of these and had printed on the card:

"Alden and I are in the Twin Cities buying a large selection of new records. We will have them on display and ready to be demonstrated at our store next week, and hope you will call and hear them."

This personal interest pays big, especially in a small town, and this postal card plan, with variations, could be used to advantage in hundreds of towns and small cities.

Like fine painting or jewelry does not come in bulk

AS in masterpieces of art, the superiority of this record is the result of infinite pains and faith in the inherent desire of men and women to have the best that human minds and hands can make.

It is not a record for people who like the cheap, the tawdry, the commonplace—but for those who appreciate and cherish the fine and beautiful things in life.

The output of this record, like the output of the Rolls-Royce car, is limited because master work can not be done in quantity.

We recommend that distributors write us, planning six months in advance to handle The New Lateral Record.

RE-SALE PRICE MAINTENANCE BILL IS BEFORE CONGRESS

Of Interest to the Talking Machine Industry—Provides Protection for Trade-Marked Names and Special Brands—Is Improvement Over Stephens Bill—To Hold Hearing Soon

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 1.—A bill has been introduced into the House of Representatives by M. Clyde Kelley, of Pennsylvania, which treats in a broad way the much-discussed question of price maintenance and resale prices in a way which is expected to meet with the approval of manufacturers. This new bill differs from the former Stephens bill in that it provides for the enforcement of its provisions regarding resale price maintenance. The bill is now in committee and a hearing is expected in the near future. The text of the bill is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That in any contract for the sale of articles of commerce to any dealer, wholesale or retail, by any grower, producer, manufacturer, or owner thereof, under trade-mark or special brand, hereinafter referred to as the 'vendor,' it shall be lawful for such vendor, whenever the contract constitutes a transaction of commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations, or in any territory of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, or between any such territory and another territory, or between any such territory or territories and any states or the District of Columbia, or with a foreign nation or nations, or between the District of Columbia and any state or states or a foreign nation or nations, to prescribe the uniform prices and manners of settlement at which the different qualities and quantities of each article covered by such contract may be resold: Provided, That the following conditions are complied with:

"(a) Such vendor shall not have any monopoly or control of the market for articles belonging to the same general class of merchandise as such article or articles of commerce as shall be covered by such contract of sale; nor shall such vendor be a party to any agreement, combination, or understanding with any competitor in the production, manufacture, or sale of any merchandise in the same general class in regard to the price at which the same shall be sold either to dealers at wholesale or retail or the public.

"(b) Such vendor shall file at the office of the Federal Trade Commission a statement setting forth the trade-mark or special brand owned or claimed by such vendor in respect of such article or articles of commerce to be covered by such contract of sale, and also, from time to time as the same may be adopted or modified, a schedule setting forth the uniform price of sale thereof to dealers at wholesale and the uniform price of sale thereof to dealers at retail, from whatever source acquired, and the uniform price of sale thereof to the public; and, upon filing such statement, such vendor shall pay to the Federal Trade Commission a registration fee of $10. Prices set forth in such schedule and made in any contract pursuant to the provisions of this act shall be uniform to all dealers in like circumstances, differing only as to grade, quality, or quantity of such articles sold, the point of delivery, and the manner of settlement, all of which differences shall be set forth in such schedule; and there shall be no discrimination in favor of any vendee by the allowance of a discount, rebate, or commission for any cause or by grant of any special concession or by any other device whatsoever.

"(c) Such contracts for the sale of such article or articles of commerce may provide for disposal sales at appropriate times, during which periods, duly set forth in such statement or in such schedule of prices as shall be filed by such vendor, such dealers may sell such article or articles of commerce for a price other than the uniform price as set forth in the schedule provided in the preceding paragraph (b): Provided, That such article or articles of commerce shall have first been offered to the vendor by such dealer, by written offer, at the price paid for the same by such dealer, and that such vendor, not less than thirty days prior to the date set forth for the next disposal sale, after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles, shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer.

"(d) Any article of commerce, or any carton, package, or other receptacle inclosing an article or articles of commerce covered by such contract and in the possession of a dealer, may be sold for a price other than the uniform price for resale by such dealer for such quality and quantity as set forth in the schedule provided in the preceding paragraph (b): First, if such dealer shall decide to discontinue the sale of such article or articles of commerce, or if such dealer shall cease to do business and the sale is made in the course of winding up the business of such dealer, or if such dealer shall have become bankrupt or a receiver of the business of such dealer shall have been appointed: Provided, (a) That such article or articles of commerce shall have first been offered to the vendor thereof by such dealer or the legal representative of such dealer by written offer, at the price paid for the same by such dealer, and that such vendor, after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles, shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer: Provided, (b) That such dealer, or the legal representative of such dealer, shall file at the office of the Federal Trade Commission a statement setting forth the reason for such sale, the refusal or neglect of such vendor to accept such offer, and the grade, quality and quantity of such article or articles of commerce to be so sold; or, second, if such article of commerce or contents of such carton, package, or other receptacle shall have become damaged, deteriorated, or soiled: Provided, That such damaged, deteriorated, or soiled article shall have first been offered to the vendor by such dealer by written offer, at the price paid for the same by such dealer, or at the option of such vendor, in exchange for similar articles not damaged, deteriorated, or soiled, and that such vendor after reasonable opportunity to inspect such article or articles shall have refused or neglected to accept such offer, and that such damaged, deteriorated, or soiled article shall thereafter only be offered for sale by such dealer with prominent notice to the purchaser that such article is damaged, deteriorated, or soiled, and that the price thereof is reduced because of such damage.

"SEC. 2. That the provisions of this act shall not apply in cases of sales of such article or articles of commerce to the United States, or any political subdivision thereof, or in cases of sales of such articles to any state or public library, or to any society or institution incorporated or established solely for religious, philosophical, educational, medical, scientific, philanthropic, or literary purposes, made in good faith for use thereof by such society or institution. "SEC. 3. That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the sale of any article or articles of commerce from which or from the labels, cartons, or containers of which, there shall have been removed such trade-mark or special brand and all other marks or means of identifications of the grower or producer, and concerning which, in reselling, at wholesale or at retail, no written, printed, or oral statement is made, or any other means whatsoever is employed, whereby such article or articles of commerce are alleged, or claimed, or suggested, or implied to be the product of, or are associated with the name and reputation of any such grower or producer."

Making the Show Window an Instrumentality of Profit and Prestige :: :: By Warfield Webb

To the more advanced dealer in talking machines the display window has a special significance. It is more than merely a space to fill with something—it must be used to keep the public's interest alive by always looking forward to a new or novel idea to be seen therein. This type of dealer lays particular stress on the value that this publicity space has for his industry, and he sees that it serves his purpose well.

Can he feel that this expenditure of time, cash and energy really does profit him sufficiently to justify it all? Has he any way in which to prove this to be a fact? Yes, there are times when results can be traced directly to the window just as they are found in other forms of publicity—results that are many times even more profitable.

Practically all kinds of publicity are going to cost money. The outlay will depend upon many things and the returns will also be determined by other essentials. The window, however, is, or should be, the least expensive of all publicity items. Much of the success that can be achieved, as in other things that call for profitable returns, will depend upon the attention that is given to make the display one of value. If the dealer only makes an ordinary, commonplace display how can he hope to receive in return more than an ordinary profit from the same? He must work along original lines to win out. And this kind of a window will pay a profit.

Let us take for an example some of the dealers who are giving the matter of unique window display some special consideration. We have in mind one store that does not often overlook an opportunity to take advantage of every incident that will help to increase the sales of records. Any singer of reputation, any musician who visits the city, any event that is of more than passing note, all these are made to serve as only another means of keeping alive the public's interest in records that will become a part of the event. But this is not all. The window is not simply filled with these records, but displays are made at times that will bring this idea forcibly to mind. Something in connection with the event or the person is featured. There is a reason or an invitation given the public to stop and inspect the display.

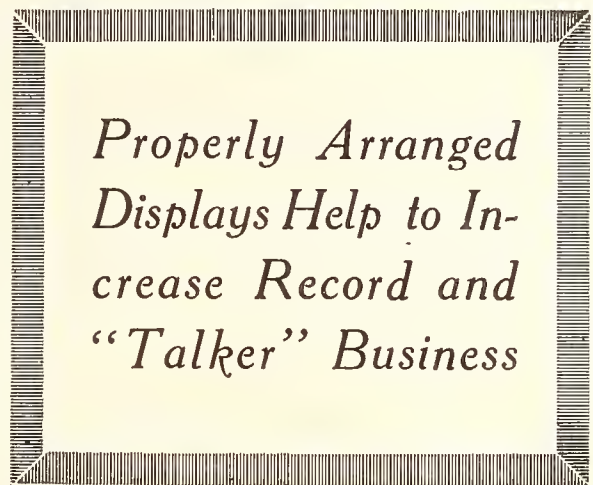

Does this help to sell records? Can it not be made to act as a reason for the sale of talking machines, too? Will this not be far more effective than an ordinary display that will not do more than cause a glance at the same? The answer must be in the affirmative.

Here is another store. The ideas to be noted are novel. This establishment features records and machines. The display rooms are attractive and the windows are made to offer a help in the sale of late records. In a very recent window display here a feature was made of the prohibition idea. There was a display that brought forcibly to mind the late records that carried the topical songs bearing on this idea. The display was novel, it was attractive and it was timely, too. That is the note that should be sounded. Have it up to date, if anything, and give preference to the late hits that are in the public mind.

Have something in the windows that will appeal and that will make the passerby stop and at least inspect the display. By means of a hint there will be offered a reason for making the looker-in a prospective purchaser of these records. It is the forceful reminder that makes the public buy in many cases. If you do not give them the cue, how can you hope to see them enter your store and ask for a record that would not otherwise be thought of? If you are going to depend upon them coming of their own accord often you will find that there will be a number of sales missed. The public must be given the hint that makes it think. Do you not fully grasp this in connection with your own purchases?

Why do you at times make a purchase that might otherwise escape you after you have seen it in some attractive window? No, it is this reminder, this face-to-face invitation, that puts it up to you to act then and there. There is that impelling power that draws you inside the store, and it is often more forceful than any other form of publicity. You want just that reminder that makes it a matter of quick purchase. Had this not been given you at this time—this moment when you were passing that store—you might not, often would not, give it any thought at all.

Therefore, why not offer the public a logical reason for stopping at your store and entering therein? Why not have your window made effective, and in this way force the prospective customer, the one whom you would not even hope to get in any other manner, to seek you? The first visit might lead to other sales and you can readily see the value of the first sale. It is an introduction to your store. Via the clever window invitation route you come to see that it makes these wavering customers real ones. And that is the object that makes your show window what the name implies. It is to show the public that you are in dead earnest.

Consider the many large stores to-day giving the display feature of their window the proper degree of attention. Does it pay them to do so? Their success indicates that it does. Just think of the vast sum that is annually spent in this one direction to attract and to arouse in the public mind that very special consideration that demands so much of an outlay. If the successful merchants of the country can find it a profitable investment, surely you can.

LEASES FACTORY IN S. NORWALK

The Wonder Talking Machine Co., South Norwalk, Conn., has leased the factory of Berman & Steinberg, wholesale fruit dealers, and the three-story building is well suited for the purpose of the new concern. The Wonder Talking Machine has a plant in New Haven, and the motors are made by a Willimantic firm. The occupancy of the South Norwalk factory will make possible a consolidation which will mean a considerable enlargement of business.

OLD MUSIC IDEAS DOOMED

Use of Talking Machine in School Helps to Overcome Perverted Views on Music

The increasing use of the talking machine in the schools is doing much to dispel certain old ideas regarding the place of music as a part of elementary school education. Not so long ago there were many school teachers and even university professors who believed that in order for a study to be of any value to the students it should be an unpleasant grind. To-day where such ideas prevail they are seldom openly advocated, for they are against the recognized standards of teaching methods.

The fact that well-taught music proves to be an enjoyable study to the average school class is one of the big factors in its being placed on the curriculum and talking machines purchased for school use. Wherever the talking machine has been used in a school it has always overcome the objections raised against it and proved by actual performance its value as an aid to education.

VICTOR JOBBERS MOVE TO HOUSTON

The Talking Machine Co. of Texas, Victor distributors, formerly located in Austin, Tex., will be located in Houston, Tex., in the future. This change was made because of the better facilities in Houston. The Southern Steamship Co. runs a boat each week from Philadelphia to Houston, and with the good rail and express lines in the Southern city the distributors feel that they will be excellently equipped to move their merchandise.

"MUSICAL MERCHANDISING" ISSUED

Unit Construction Co. Publishes Booklet Containing Practical Suggestions for Improving Wareroom and Demonstration Facilities

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 5.—"Musical Merchandising" is the title of an attractive book just issued by the Unit Construction Co. of this city. The excellent arrangement and layout is in entire keeping with the high quality of the line of demonstration rooms and fixtures described. A foreword dedicates the book to the attention of progressive men who have built up and are still developing the young but already tremendous business of providing accessible music for both classes and masses. The volume is profusely illustrated and contains a wealth of practical suggestions for the betterment of the appearance of the wareroom. The pictures shown are not imaginary, but are reproductions of actual installations in every part of the country.

In addition to the portrayal of numerous styles of demonstration rooms there is considerable space devoted to the record counters and racks, arch, lobby and ceiling treatments, panel rails, window and store fronts and case and fixture work for merchandising of every description. The book will undoubtedly be of great value to the progressive dealer. A Pacific Coast branch will shortly be opened under the direction of Donald Monteith, whose temporary address is the University Club, San Francisco.

CHANGES NAME TO THE REED CO.

World Phonograph Sales Co. Announces New Name for That Concern—No Change in the Organization—Relic of Airplane Smash.

PITTSBURGH, PA., June 23.—The World Phonograph Sales Co. has announced that the name of this concern has been changed to The Reed Co. This change was decided upon at the last meeting of the board of directors and was thought necessary in order that there should be no confusion of name with other companies. There is no change in the organization and the officers remain the same: W. H. Reed, Jr., president and general manager; A. K. Coulson, secretary and treasurer, and E. H. Miller, vice-president. The Reed Co. has been appointed exclusive distributor for the new Regina in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia. It also distributes Operaphone records, Brilliantone needles, Vallorbes, Wall Kane, Violophone, Tonophone and B. & H. needles, albums and talking machine supplies and Universal player rolls, wholesale.

BIG INCREASE IN PATHE ORDERS

Visitors at Brooklyn Factory Report Success in Their Localities With the Pathé Products—Trade Conditions Steadily Improving

Pathé dealers calling at the headquarters of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., 20-56 Grand avenue, Brooklyn, give glowing reports of the success they are achieving with the line in their various localities.

H. J. Brennan, manager of the Pittsburgh Phonograph Co., spent one day at the Pathé factory recently and said that the demand for Pathé machines and records is limited only by the available merchandise and that he is planning for a record-breaking year. He said: "Trade conditions, as they affect the Pathé phonograph, show a phenomenal increase in the number of orders, and the outlook is most satisfactory, not only in our wholesale and jobbing end, but also in our retail department, which is known as the Pathé Shop. Taken all in all, things are decidedly satisfactory."

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Allington, Jr., of the Freeport Music Co., Freeport, Ill., were seen at the Pathé factory one day last week. Mr. Allington expressed himself as highly pleased with the outlook for the coming trade season in his territory, and said that he was more than delighted with the sales he had made and those he had in prospect for Pathé.

Mrs. E. Richstaedt, The Pathé Shop, Newport, R. I., another visitor, was most enthusiastic in praise of the popularity of Pathé phonographs and records in her section of the country. She said, "We have been practically swamped with orders for both machines and records and although we have been somewhat handicapped by shortage of material due to wartime conditions, we feel confident that the end of the stringent period is in sight and that there will be a marked change for the better supplying of retail trade in the very near future."

OPENS NEW DEALERS' SERVICE

In order to establish a closer relationship with their dealers, the Emerson Philadelphia Co., distributor of Emerson records, has recently opened a new dealers' service department, which will be conducted solely and exclusively for the convenience of its dealers. This department will handle all correspondence from the trade pertaining to advertising, inquiries, service, etc. Harry Fox, general manager of this company, believes that such a department will fill a long-felt need of service between the distributor and the dealer and do much to stimulate greater interest in the record branch of the talking machine industry.

OKEH RECORDS OF WATSON SISTERS

Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., Announces That These Talented Young Stars Have Made Four Records of Popular Hits

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., announced this week that the Watson Sisters, well-known stars of the Winter Garden show, "Monte Cristo, Jr.," have recorded four of their most popular song hits for the OkeH record library exclusively. This list comprises the following selections: "Who Played Poker With Pocahontas?" "For Johnny and Me," "When You See Another Sweetie Hanging Around" and "Everybody Wants a Key to My Cellar." These selections will appear in the seventh record bulletin, and, judging from the enthusiastic comments of OkeH dealers who have heard these records, they should meet with a popular reception everywhere.

The Watson Sisters (Fannie and Kitty) have won signal success in "Monte Cristo, Jr.," which bids fair to have the longest run of any Winter Garden show in recent years. These two artists have individual and pleasing personalities, which have been important factors in their success and which are emphasized in the OkeH recordings of their humorous song hits.

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., is planning to institute an aggressive campaign featuring the Watson Sisters' OkeH records and additional selections by these well-known artists will be announced in the near future.

W. B. FULGHUM IN THE EAST

W. B. Fulghum, formerly manager of the Victor sales department for eleven years, and who is now an exclusive Victor dealer in Richmond, Va., recently made a trip East, visiting Camden, N. J.; New York, and Chicago. While in Camden he visited the Victor factory, and during his stay in New York he called on A. D. Geissler, of the New York Talking Machine Co. For the past two years Mr. Fulghum has been successfully retailing Victrolas and Victor records in Richmond, Ind., and his business has continually increased. Mr. Fulghum is an optimist and believes that there are possibilities in the talking machine industry yet undreamed of.

A. J. Oberlin, furniture dealer of Kankakee, Ill., has taken the Victor agency for that city, and has purchased the entire Victor stock of J. J. Rondy. He also handles the Brunswick.

McCORMACK AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

Receives His Papers on Anniversary of His Thirty-fifth Birthday—Proud of Honor

John McCormack is no longer to be known as the great "Irish tenor." On June 17, the anniversary of his thirty-fifth birthday, the famous singer and artist received his papers and became an American citizen. The next time he appears on the concert stage he doubtless will be known as the great American singer of Irish songs. Accompanied by his brother, James McCormack, his physician and his pianist, he appeared before Justice Thomas Donnelly in the Supreme Court and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. He was very enthusiastic over the ceremony and declared it to be the happiest day of his life.

Following the court proceedings he and his brother went to the City Hall, where the latter declared his intention of becoming an American citizen also. He gives promise of following in the footsteps of his celebrated brother.

PATHE FOREIGN RECORD DEPT.

Dr. Joseph Kalman, Head of This Department, Predicts Wide Field for Foreign Records

The Pathé foreign record department, under the skilful guidance of Dr. Joseph Kalman, is keeping pace with the phenomenal growth of the Pathé business. Much interest is manifested by the trade in the Pathé foreign line. Many jobbers calling at the factory have carried away with them new ideas suggested by Dr. Kalman that have been of material assistance in increasing that end of their business. Dr. Kalman is a linguist, speaking eight languages fluently, and has been many years in the foreign record business. He understands the diversified tastes of the various nationalities and the proper method of approach for each. With the backing of the Pathé foreign record department he is thus able to co-operate in a most efficient manner in the developing of foreign record sales. Dr. Kalman believes that this field has never had so wide a scope as now.

New Service Bureau of The Talking Machine Men, Inc., Will Be a Great Help to Members

What promises to be one of the most popular features of the sundry activities engaged in by the Talking Machine Men, Inc., is the new Service Bureau established recently by that organization under authority granted at the annual directors' meeting. The Service Bureau is designed to be co-operative to the fullest extent in securing from various members of the organization business forms of different sorts and details regarding special business methods using a very good card index, showing the history of the payments on purchases. At the time of the purchase the card is filled out with the amount of the sale and date on which each monthly or weekly payment is due. Space is left for the actual date of each monthly payment. A number for every day in the month appears at the top of the card, and the date the payment is due is checked off. A quick glance at the card gives the history of the purchase the purchaser. This form has proven most practical in actual use.

The above does not by any means cover the work contemplated by the Service Bureau, the plans being arranged to greatly extend its activities. As the dealers receive the benefits from this new service, and give their co-operation and encouragement, it is thought that the activities of the Bureau will be expanded greatly. This move on the part of the Talking that have proven successful, and making such forms and methods available to the other members of the body.

The committee in charge of the Service Bureau is composed of Irwin Kurtz and J. J. Davin, and these active workers have had the assistance of a number of the prominent local talking machine jobbers and retailers in carrying on their work. As a result there is already on file at the Bureau a most interesting collection of practical business forms, and other material calculated to conserve time and effort, and make for efficiency. There is sufficient variety of this material to meet almost any normal request.

The Talking Machine Men, Inc., already have over 25,000 standardized contracts in printed form. These are sold to the members of the association at a very small cost, and afford the dealer the maximum protection under the laws of the States of which the membership of the organization is composed, including New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Among the material that has been accumulated is a form of confidential statement to be filled out by the applicant for the purchase of a talking machine on instalments. This gives a complete record of the prospective purchaser and his history, including nationality, age, family, address, etc., employer's name and address, 'phone number, length of time in his employ, the name of former employer, whether the applicant belongs to a lodge or union and whether he owns any property, and whether he is at present a debtor to an instalment house. There is also a space for the names and the addresses of relatives and friends whom the applicant has known for three years.

A very good repair ticket is also available. This ticket is in three parts, one for the repair man, one for the office, and one for the customer, and gives the total record of the article to be repaired, time of delivery, etc.

Some of the dealers for some time have been and the condition of the instalments.

A price card, which includes the minimum instalments which will be taken for the machine, is also receiving the support of the new Service Bureau. This card is perforated into three parts: one is a price tag; one is for the history of the sale, including the delivery, terms, and the name of the salesman, as well as the date, and the third is to be filled out as a receipt to Machine Men, Inc., is a good one. It is constructive, educational and tends to raise the standard of the business practices followed by dealers. Those heading the committee are very active, and the results accomplished in so short a space of time are to be commended. Without doubt, under the present regime, the work will be greatly extended and all dealers will benefit by the new service bureau.

He Wouldn't Buy the New Machine Without a

VEECO MOTOR

That is why a private owner who had used a VEECO ELECTRIC MOTOR in his talking machine for 3 years and was going to sell it (including VEECO MOTOR) and purchase a high-class phonograph of another make refused to buy it until we assured him that a newest type VEECO MOTOR could be installed therein—that's satisfaction.

The improved VEECO electric motor is designed primarily and exclusively for Talking Machines. It is smooth and noiseless in action and practically fool-proof. Standard models run on any voltage from 100-125, A. C. or D. C., without adjustment. Other models for any voltage from 6-250. Furnished mounted on 12 or 12½ inch mahogany board ready to install, or without board, all ready to mount on such board as used by the manufacturer.

With the VITRALOID turntable, supplied with the motor, it makes a complete motor unit for high class machines.

HOW TALKING MACHINE AIDS IN NEW PSYCHOLOGY TESTS

Musical Capacity of the Individual Can Be Determined, Says Dr. C. E. Seashore in His Recent Demonstrations—Series of Records Prepared by Columbia Co. Used in Tests

The employment of the talking machine in working out experiments in psychology to determine the musical capacity of an individual has been successfully tried by Dr. C. E. Seashore, who has issued a booklet, called "A Manual of Instructions and Interpretations for the Measure of Musical Talent," which is used in conjunction with a series of five records prepared by the educational department of the Columbia Co. Dr. Seashore recently demonstrated his theories before the National Music Supervisors' Association in St. Louis, at which time he tested the musical talent of a class of school children. Following this he made a test of several persons in the audience, who were later given a chance to correct their own charts. The demonstration met with the highest approval of those present, and many expressed their belief that the future possibilities of Dr. Seashore's methods were almost unlimited and would be of great value in aiding in the education of our school children.

Dr. Seashore used the talking machine as the best medium for his test, because of the accuracy with which this instrument records even the slightest sounds. The first machine used for making the test was an expensive device, which could not have had a widespread use due to its prohibitive cost. By using the talking machine and Columbia records he believes that to-day these remarkable tests of musical talent are brought within the means of any school in the country. That the educational institutions of our country are not slow to realize the great value of this testing device is shown by the fact that several universities, many preparatory schools and a large number of the grade schools of the country have already adopted it.

Within the covers of the "Manual of Instructions and Interpretations for Measure of Musical Talent" there is a treatise on how the records are used and how to make charts of the students to be tested. There is also an introduction on the nature and use of the measure of musical talent, which reads as follows:

"Just as the great musicians live before us now in the wonderful reproduction of the modern phonograph, so the intricate experiments of the psychological laboratory may now be popularized by the faithful reproduction of the sounds of laboratory instruments and their scientific presentation.

"Musical talents vary enormously, both in degree and kind. Many of these capacities can be measured before musical education has been begun. It is of inestimable value for the art of music that these capacities and traits should be discovered early and be analyzed for the purpose of guidance in musical education. The material presented in these records furnishes measures for five of the most fundamental and essential capacities of the musical mind. As we may hear the prima donna sing in school and home, so we can command the scientific means for aid in the detection, analysis and rating of musical talents.

"These measures of musical talent comply with the following conditions: They are based on a thorough analysis of musical talent; they are standardized for content that does not need to be changed; they give quantitative results which may be verified to a high degree of certainty; they are simple and as nearly self-operating as possible; they are adapted for group measurements; they take into account practice, training, age and intelligence; they have a two-fold value in the concrete information furnished, and in the training and pleasure gained from the critical hearing of musical elements.

"These measures are adapted primarily for use in the regular music course and for special surveys in the public schools. They should be used first in the fifth grade, because this is the earliest age at which group measurements can be made satisfactorily, and it is early enough to make serious arrangements for a musical education. They should then be repeated in the eighth grade, just before the great sorting of children into the vocations of practical life and elective courses in the high school.

"They furnish also material for scientific entertainment in the home. Taking one test each evening this outfit provides material for five evenings of delightful entertainment in the form of a competitive game.

"For teaching purposes the tests furnish excellent class experiments in elementary psychology. If the performance of each of these tests is linked with the corresponding chapter of reading in the 'Psychology of Music Talent' this will furnish five days of intensive training in the measurement of individual differences. These class experiments, with required readings, will also fill a great need in the theoretical instruction in the music school. Such use of them will not conflict with the previous use in the entrance examinations in any way.

"All the test material for this series is contained on the five double-disc records. The measures are so adjusted as to be easy enough in parts for the poorest listener, and difficult enough in parts for the best listener. A measure consists in the playing of both sides of a disc. The playing of one side takes from four to five minutes. The material is so ordered as to regulate natural periods for the flow of attention.

"The disc may be played on any good standard phonograph, provided the instrument is in good, smooth running condition, properly set, balanced and lubricated. A first-class phonograph, well regulated, runs with an error of less than one-thousandth of a second per revolution. Care about winding is necessary. The instrument should be set for seventy-eight revolutions per minute for all the records except that of the sense of time; for that it should be set at sixty or sixty-five. Loudness appropriate to the room may be varied by proper selection of metal needles. Pupils should be supplied with test blanks in order to keep records."

Silent Power

RECENTLY announcement was made by the Krasberg Engineering and Manufacturing Corporation of its expanded facilities for the production of talking machine motors.

This concern, occupying an enviable reputation in the tool and machinery trade, has long been known for its thoroughgoing efficiency in the administration of its business and the manufacture of its product.

At the head of the concern is a master mechanic, a specialist in special machinery manufacturing—and all the way down the line, throughout his factories, he has gathered about him men of his own type, capable of turning out master products.

Several years of motor manufacture for some of the largest talking machine concerns in the country have evolved a motor second to none, incorporating the improvements and backed by the ideas of the

Traveler From the United States Found That His Spanish Records Were Unnecessary

An interesting light on the trade conditions between the Northern and Southern halves of our continent is found in the following story told by an American business man about his first experience as a traveling representative in South America for a North American concern. He had but a slight knowledge of Spanish and in order to help him in his work he had made a series of records designed to explain his business to the natives in their own tongue. When he arrived in South America and called on his men he started the records telling his story. His hearers listened respectfully until the last record had been played. Then they told him in very good English that they had enjoyed the performance, but they were perfectly capable of continuing the conversation without the aid of an interpreter.

RECORDEON CO. BUYS NEW PLANT

Walter H. Schwab and Edward A. Heaney have purchased the plant of the American Auto Body Co., Thirty-ninth and Villard avenues, Milwaukee, Wis., and will start a factory for the manufacture of talking machines. The new concern is known as the Recordeon Phonograph Co. and is capitalized at $100,000. The plant of the Minn Billiard Co. was purchased by the same men last December, also for the manufacture of talking machines.

FAULTLESS CASTER CO. BUSY

Stockholders of C. F. Kade Co. Vote to Exchange Stock for Shares in Plymouth Phonograph Co. at Fifty Cents on Dollar

PLYMOUTH, Wis., June 25.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the C. F. Kade Co., of Port Washington, Wis., held in this city last week and presided over by C. F. Kade, president of the company, it was voted unanimously for the stockholders of the Kade Co. to exchange their stock in that company for corresponding stock in the Plymouth Phonograph Co., of this city, on the basis of fifty cents on the dollar. On this basis, two shares in the Kade Co. are to be traded for one share in the Plymouth Co. at a par value of $100. At the meeting it was stated that the assets of the Kade Co. amounted to $109,000, or about half the par value of the company's outstanding stock.

COLUMBIA CO. BUYS BIG FACTORY

Takes Over the Large Factory Building Adjoining Its Present Plant in Bridgeport, Conn., From the Remington Typewriter Co.

The announcement was made last week of the purchase by the Columbia Graphophone Co. of the big factory adjoining the Columbia plant at Bridgeport, Conn., and owned by the Remington Typewriter Co. The factory building just purchased is on Railroad avenue, and has a considerable frontage on Clinton avenue, extending several hundred feet along the railroad. Part of the property is on the shore of Cedar Creek, and although there is no dockage there now, it is possible this may be developed later, according to officials.

The original factory was built forty years ago for the manufacture of Sharpe rifles. Just what departments of the Columbia Co. will be housed in the new building have not yet been announced, but without question the additional facilities thus provided will prove most welcome in solving the Columbia Co.'s present production problem.

The transaction was said to involve considerably more than a million dollars, the assessed valuation of the plant being $770,624, of which land and buildings total $360,000; machinery, equipment and stock, $417,263, and other property, $361, according to the City Hall records. The Remington Typewriter plant employs in the neighborhood of four hundred hands.

NEW BONUS FOR EDISON EMPLOYEES

ORANGE, N. J., June 21.—At the annual field day of the Edison employes recently held at Olympic Park, Irvington, it was announced by Charles Edison that a new bonus system would go into effect on July 1. The object of the new bonus system is to reduce wastage and it will apply to 7,000 employes.

Sonora Portable Figuring in a "Star" Capacity on the Stage These Days

A new musical show entitled "Come Along," which will soon begin a tour of the country and which is based on an American soldier's experience on the other side, includes a Sonora Portable in the stage setting in the second act. Six beautiful ladies sing a song about some gentleman who played the Sonora, and then to make the scene complete the six young ladies later appear, each carrying a Sonora Portable.

The Sonora Portable phonograph also appeared on the stage when the Lambs Gambol housed in the new building have not yet Farrell Case," by George M. Cohan, the stage setting consisted of a simply furnished room, a desk, chair, telephone and on a small stand a Sonora Portable. During the farcical sketch practically all of the actors were killed off, and the last one, trying to reach the window and shout for help, falls over, turns on the Sonora Portable and expires to its lovely strains. The playing of the Sonora Portable under such ludicrous circumstances was received with howls of joy by the audience, and through the door ever-famous George M. Cohan, accompanied by his own American flag, rushed in and took the applause which some say rightly belonged to the Sonora Portable phonograph.

LYONS FAIR TO BE HELD IN FALL

Musical Instruments Will be Exhibited in Fall Session, October 1-15—Official Representative Sent to New York—To be Held Twice a Year

The Lyons Fair has been so successful that the authorities in France have determined to continue it, running two exhibitions each year, one October 1-15 and the other March 1-15.

According to this plan the Fair will be divided into trade sections, each section being open to exhibitors only once a year, i. e., at one of the dates mentioned above, the plan being to group the sections at each fair in such a way as to prevent buyers of similar articles from having to visit the Fair twice in the same year.

The Fair does not consist of windows and showcases, but of real shops and offices, independent of each other, where each manufacturer may feel absolutely at home.

Entries should be sent before December 31 for the Spring Fair, and July 31 for the Autumn Fair. In the case of shipments from the United State, all samples, catalogs and exhibits must be in the hands of the American Express Co. within two weeks following the above-mentioned dates; that is, for the Fall Fair samples and exhibits must be in the hands of the American Express Co. on or before August 15. After these dates entries may be accepted, but the position of the stalls in their respective trade divisions cannot be guaranteed.

Musical instruments are listed under section 29 and are scheduled for exhibition at the Autumn Fair.

The Lyons Fair has recently sent to New York, as its official representative, Ernest Perrin, who has opened an office at No. 3 Park Row.

CHANGE IN EMERSON RECORD SIZES

June "Emersonian" Contains Much of Interest in This Connection—House Organ Praised

The second issue of the "Emersonian," which appeared last month, contains many helpful comments on handling the Emerson business, and is also full of interesting sidelights on Emerson recording. Perhaps the most interesting news to the trade to be found within its covers is the announcement of an important change in Emerson record sizes. All popular song hits of the day, it announces, will be recorded as heretofore on Emerson Gold Seal nine-inch records only. Dance, band, and standard instrumental music will be recorded on Emerson Gold Seal ten-inch records. All religious, standard and semi-classical music will be recorded on Emerson Gold Seal ten-inch records. International Emerson label records of songs, melodies, instrumental, semi-classical and operatic music will be recorded on nine-inch records. The Emerson Co. believes that by adopting this policy it caters to the demands and wishes of the public.

CHARGED WITH UNFAIR PRACTICES

Complaint Served on Boston Piano & Music Co. By the Federal Trade Commission

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—The Federal Trade Commission has served formal complaint of unfair competition against the Boston Piano & Music Co., Iowa City, Ia., and the defendant is cited to make answer before the Commission in Washington on July 21. The charge alleges fraudulent schemes and practices, and false representation in the interstate sale of talking machines and records known as "Masterphone" machines and records. It is charged that salesmen for the concern assured prospective purchasers that dealers were abandoning the sale of various standard makes of machines in favor of their product, and made other promises of exclusive selling rights and sales and advertising support which were not forthcoming.

Every dealer should keep up the campaign for music in his locality.

NEW PLYWOOD OF UNUSUAL MERITS

Wartime Product of Haskelite Mfg. Corp. Now Available to Trade—Albumin Glue Used

A new plywood manufactured under the name of Haskelite, which is produced by the Haskelite Mfg. Corp., whose executive offices are located at the Chamber of Commerce Building, Chicago, has many unusual features that should interest talking machine manufacturers. Instead of using the ordinary glue an albumin glue is used, which is set and hardened under a combination of pressure and heat. Due to the fact that a glue of this sort is used, further heating, soaking or steaming does not affect the glue to any noticeable effect other than that it sets more firmly. When a plywood is made up with this patent glue a paneling is obtained which has a minimum warp, and which is impervious to water, and will not warp when subject to heat. Because of the elasticity of the binding material, Haskelite can be bent at right angles without cracking, splitting, or in any other way affecting the exterior surface. Haskelite was a wartime invention and as a new product the Government did not allow the manufacturers to give publicity to their product during the war, as it was believed information about it might be of value to our enemies. Haskelite, as the plywood is called, is made up to practically any thickness, and in sizes to meet the demands of the individual. The variety of uses to which Haskelite may be put can be judged from the fact that to-day it is employed in the manufacture of the hulls of submarine chasers, the tops of automobiles, and the panels of art cabinets. In the latter a gum wood exterior is used, which, when finished, shows the unusual grain and obtains a high polish.

VICTOR CO.'S LATEST DIVIDEND

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent. and an extra dividend of 15 per cent. on the common stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 1 3/4 per cent. on the preferred stock of the company, payable July 15 to stockholders of record June 30.

BUYS OUT SCHIRMER DEPARTMENT

H. W. Hess Assumes Control of Talking Machine Department of G. Schirmer, Inc.

H. W. Hess, formerly of Tilden-Thurber, Providence, R. I., who last September took charge of the talking machine department of G. Schirmer, Inc., New York City, last Tuesday purchased this talking machine department from the Schirmer Co. Since the business was originally placed under Mr. Hess' management it has increased considerably. The business in the future will be conducted under the name of the Central Talking Machine Sales Co., Inc., but as far as the public is concerned all publicity, etc., will continue to be conducted and all retail business done under the name of Schirmer.

FRIDAY, THE THIRTEENTH, UNLUCKY

The Jinx Lures Piano and Talking Machine From Freight Car in Chicago Yards—The Judge Next Morning Proves Unsympathetic

We thought our luck on Friday, the 13th, was too good to be true. We knew that somewhere in this busy country the jinx just naturally had to pick on someone, and we have found out that the scene of the misfortune was in the New York Central yards in Chicago. On the afternoon of the fateful day a freight car entered the yards and was shunted to a side track. Within this car were a piano and a talking machine. The doors of the car were locked and sealed. An hour after the car came to rest the jinx descended and transported the instruments to the home of Lily Wallace, a negress, at 4130 Forestville avenue. Not long afterward two negroes greeted the gentleman at the bench with the usual "Good morning, Judge" and gave their explanation. The men were Henry Gest, sometime native of Florida, and Burt Burton, who rooms at the Wallace house.

"Boss, we ain't lugged nothing nowhere," replied Gest. "The things just followed us. We couldn't keep 'em from doin' it. And we was trying to coax 'em back to that freight car when we was arrested."

The negroes were held for freight car theft.

SALES REGISTER BOOK

Little Volume to Be Issued by New York Talking Machine Co. Will Greatly Interest Trade

A Sales Register Book to keep an accurate accounting system of the talking machine business by an individual concern is to be issued by the New York Talking Machine Co. This book will be gotten up in a loose-leaf binder style so that it is perpetually up to date. The book will contain a practical and modern system of registry: the purchase of talking machines, the models of the machines purchased, the date of purchase and the name of the jobber from whom they were obtained. It will also contain pages for the sale of machines, showing to whom the sale was made, the style of machine and the day of sale. It is believed that a book of this sort will greatly facilitate the dealer in keeping records of his purchases and sales.

F. R. SMITH IS PROMOTED

Former Head Bookkeeper in New York Made Assistant Manager of Boston Branch of Columbia Graphophone Co.

F. R. Smith, until recently head bookkeeper of the New York retail branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has been appointed assistant manager of the Boston branch of the Columbia Co. He will replace M. C. Perkins, who has resigned to take up the management of the Perkins Music Co., Malden, Mass. Mr. Perkins plans a vigorous effort in behalf of his new business, as he feels there is a splendid field in the territory in which he will operate. His store will handle the Columbia line exclusively.

COLUMBIA NOVELTY RECORD BOOK

New Booklet Featuring Green Label Records
One of the Handsomest of Its Kind—Contains Interesting Facts for All Buyers

One of the most impressive booklets among the many in the record field is the latest publication of the Columbia Co. called the “Novelty Record Booklet.” This booklet is handsomely and artistically arranged and contains many features that will attract and hold the attention of its readers. The front cover design is beautifully lithographed in colors and suggests one of the big advertising values of the novelty record scheme, featuring the new green label which has been adopted as the symbol of these records. The inside cover displays the green label itself. As for the pages of the booklet, each is devoted to the particular records of some foreign country, such as Spain, China, Japan, Serbia, Italy, Bohemia, Russia, Belgium, Holland, Turkey, Sweden and others, and contains a sketch concerning the music of that people which makes interesting and instructive reading. Around the borders of each page are little thumb-nail illustrations in soft tints of red, gray and green, accurately portraying the costumes, instruments and customs of the country the music of which is listed on the page.

The foreword explains the purpose and origin of this unique collection of records which has been produced in response to the belief that the music of the Far East is worthy of more

FOUND BIG WESTERN BUSINESS

John Cromelin, General Sales Manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., Returns From Interesting Trip

John Cromelin, general sales manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., returned to New York a few days ago, after visiting the trade in Grand Rapids and Chicago. In Grand Rapids Mr. Cromelin found the principal OkeH jobber, Chas. Kalder, most enthusiastic regarding the progress and success that he is making with the OkeH records. Mr. Kalder has completed arrangements to increase his sales force materially and additional salesmen are now visiting the dealers in his territory. They are co-operating with the dealers in every possible way and an extensive advertising campaign has been inaugurated.

In Chicago Mr. Cromelin visited the various OkeH jobbers and was pleased to find that the OkeH record is gaining steadily in popularity throughout the Middle West. The new bulletins are meeting with a hearty reception and the jobbers expressed their pleasure regarding the splendid tone quality of the OkeH record.

While visiting the Chicago trade Mr. Cromelin took advantage of the opportunity to call upon a large number of the “independent” phonograph manufacturers in this section, and found conditions phenomenal. Practically all manufacturers are far oversold and the principal problem confronting them at the present time is a question of product and not one of merchandising. From all indications, this year will be the greatest in the history of the phonograph industry and in fact the majority of manufacturers are already making plans for 1920 activities.

Announcement

I HAVE assumed control of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., and am reorganizing the business to assure the Record-Lite and Record Needle Cutter of their rightful prominence in the talking machine trade.

Increased and improved equipment and renovated factory methods insure that every piece of goods we turn out will be right in every detail. I guarantee this.

A new marketing plan insures absolutely fresh batteries—no deterioration—no battery stock in jobbers' warehouses.

Consistent advertising and energetic sales methods will characterize the business.

Record-Lite and Record Needle Cutter are destined now to become two of the liveliest selling specialties in the talking machine field.

I urge Jobbers and Dealers to take steps now to supply the trade.

IMPORTANCE OF BRANCH OFFICES

Recent Experience in Heineman Canadian Headquarters Shows Value of Fireproof Construction—Well-appointed Departments in Chicago and San Francisco Also Maintained

Had it not been for the fact that the office of the Canadian division of the Otto Heineman

Canadian Office, Toronto, Ont.

Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., is of absolutely fireproof construction, and that the receptacles for wastepaper and the like are of metal, a serious fire would have occurred recently. When C. J. Pott, manager of the division, entered his office on a recent Monday morning he found

Shipping Department, Chicago Office

the place full of smoke, and upon investigation he discovered that sometime between Saturday and Monday spontaneous combustion had taken place in some oil-soaked waste that had been used in the workshop. The waste set fire to a work bench, but the fire burned no further, owing to the fact that there was nothing but fireproof material around it. The stock in the warerooms was untouched. In one of the accompanying illustrations a view of the office may be seen.

The other two reproductions are of the shipping department in the Chicago office showing the painstaking methods pursued in facilitating Heineman service, while the other shows a corner in the office of the San Francisco branch. Standing to the left of the table is Manager L. Gruen, discussing in detail the important features of the motor held in the hand of one of his assistants.

The maintaining of these offices shows forcefully the thorough manner in which the Otto

Corner in San Francisco Office

Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., has the country covered from coast to coast so that jobbers and dealers handling Heineman products will at all times have the benefit of a branch office within a certain radius, as well as the home office in New York.

OPENS IN NEW LOCATION

The Phonograph Shop, North Adams, Mass., has opened in its new quarters at 24 Bank street. This concern will handle Edison and Steger machines and records. The shop is under the management of Walter Timoney, who has had much experience in talking machine work.

George E. Buss, Edison dealer of New Philadelphia, Ohio, has leased new quarters and will move in as soon as alterations are completed.

PRECISION CASTINGS CO. ENLARGES

E. N. Dallin Tells of Improvements to New Syracuse Plant—Finds a Gradual Trend Toward Aluminum Castings at Present

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 5.—A representative of The World in a chat with E. N. Dallin, of the Precision Castings Co., Inc., of this city, gleaned the following interesting information: "We are making large additions to our plant and increasing our equipment. When we are finished we will have one of the finest die casting plants in existence, although, of course, not the largest. We are doing a great deal of talking machine work, but are limiting ourselves to quantity production orders, as the character of our equipment is such that small orders cannot be economically run. We find a gradual trend towards aluminum castings and recently have booked large orders for some of the most difficult work in this line.

"We have also recently found that our factory locations in Fayetteville, N. Y., and Pontiac, Mich., are such that we are not subject to interference from the radical labor elements. Our employes are well paid and satisfied, and as far as we can see ahead will continue to remain so. The indications for business are encouraging and if they are realized our capacity will be far too small to satisfy the demand."

NEW UNICO BOOTHS INSTALLED

The Petersburg Music House, Petersburg, Va., has just added six new demonstration booths made by the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia. J. K. Fletcher, manager of the concern, is seeking a new location for his business and when located in the new quarters expects to have at least fifteen demonstration booths.

The Pathé Music Store, Alma, Mich., owned and managed by Frank F. Smith, has moved into new quarters on East Superior street, in the building directly opposite the store formerly occupied by this concern.

REPRODUCER MADE OF GAS MASK

Unusual and Interesting Souvenir Brought Back From France by M. C. Schoenly, Former Member of Victor Co. Traveling Staff

CAMDEN, N. J., June 30.—One of the most unique and interesting souvenirs of the great war has been brought back from France by M. C. Schoenly, of the traveling department of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who as a member of the 101st Engineers of the Twenty-sixth Division served eighteen months in France. The souvenir is nothing less than a most acceptable reproducer, fashioned out of a gas mask taken from a captured German, and used on a Victrola VIII, which had been donated to Company D of the 101st Engineers by Kraft, Bates & Spencer, the Victor dealers of

M. C. Schoenly

Boston, Harry L. Spencer being first lieutenant in the company.

After having passed through many battles unharmed the Victrola disappeared mysteriously in July, 1918, and reappeared two months later just as mysteriously, and with the reproducer missing. It was then that the German gas mask was utilized. The mica in the eye holes was made into a diaphragm, a piece of brass tubing from an exploded shell was used as a needle holder and the round rim holding the rubberized cloth and the metal breathing tube in place was also utilized, with the result that a very acceptable reproducer was fashioned. It is true that it did not bring out all the beauties of the records, but it met the emergency to the satisfaction of the soldiers.

The reproducer was literally hammered together, no solder being available, and the needle holder was held in place by a piece of string.

Sound Box From Gas Mask

Reproducing needles were fashioned from ordinary sewing needles, taken from the soldiers' kits. The reproducer proved a never-ending source of interest to soldiers and natives alike.

Mr. Schoenly, who brought the sound box back from France, was a member of the Victor traveling staff before enlisting as private in the First Massachusetts Engineers in June, 1917. He left for France on September 26, 1917, and during his eighteen months of foreign service was never absent from his company. His good service is testified to by the fact that he came home wearing a sergeant's stripes.

MAKES HIT IN PORTLAND PARADE

Wakefield Music Co. Has Attractive Float in the Victory Rose Festival Parade

PORTLAND, ORE., July 4.—The only music house taking part in the Industrial parade during the recent Rose Festival was the Wakefield Music Co., whose float was one of the most talked of and most admired. On the float was a "Cremona," the new phonograph which Mr. Wakefield has just completed and put on the market, which played dance music, while on the float three handsome couples danced to the music furnished as the procession moved through the streets. The young ladies were charmingly gowned and with their partners made an attractive and graceful picture. As the tens of thousands of spectators viewed the parade, the float was a big advertisement for the "Cremona." The whole idea was novel and the new instrument was advertised in a manner that caught on with the crowd.

TALKING PICTURES NOW POSSIBLE

Latest Inventions in Radio Transmission Make Possible Singing and Talking Pictures—Talking Machine Synchronized

According to Mr. Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the Marconi Co., the latest inventions in wireless transmission have made talking and singing pictures possible.

The cinema articulate opens up immeasurable possibilities in the world of popular entertainment and of educational science. Almost since the invention of the moving picture attempts have been made to introduce a method that would give the effect of making the characters talk. All these efforts were comparative failures. The nearest measure of success was achieved by the gramophone, but great difficulty was experienced in making the talking machine and the pictures synchronize.

For the secret of the new invention—well kept up to now—we have to turn to the greatest hidden force of modern science—wireless telegraphy.

Mr. Godfrey Isaacs, managing director of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., states that the invention has reached the stage of commercial enterprise.

"There is no doubt whatever about its capacity to reproduce all sounds," says Mr. Isaacs. "As you know, all the nations in the world have been engaged in experimenting in order to produce the real thing, and at last wireless has accomplished the seemingly impossible. This development is, of course, of the greatest importance to film producers. The spoken picture play has always been the goal at which they aimed. The one great difficulty of making the speech of the actor coincide with his actions has been overcome."

By the new process when a man speaks or sings his voice is photographed at the same time, and the new animated picture will be screened from the same roll. Music, of London, says that the actual difficulties of production are minute and the cost is not extravagant.

S. E. OVERTON CO. ENLARGING

The S. E. Overton Co., South Haven, Mich., is building the third addition to its plant in response to the rapid growth of its business. This firm makes piano benches and legs for talking machine cabinets and its product is in great demand all over the country.

CONVENTION OF EDISON DEALERS IN NEW YORK GREATEST EVER HELD

Many Notable Trade Subjects Discussed by Leaders in Edison Industry at Victory Convention Held in New York City, June 24 to 27

The fifth annual convention of Edison dealers, also known as the Victory convention, took place at the Hotel Commodore, New York City, June 24 to June 27, inclusive. It was the most successful affair of its kind ever staged, both from the standpoint of attendance, which ran up to nearly 1,500, and in practical results accomplished during the business sessions. The opening days of the convention were devoted to the meeting of the Edison travelers, the exhibit of special new period models, shown in the Western ballroom of the hotel, and the exhibition by the advertising department of the comprehensive lines of all forms of publicity utilized in connection with the Edison business. All sessions, for the first time, were open.

On Thursday morning, June 26, the convention started with a popular concert by one of the finest Edison orchestras. Thomas J. Leonard, general sales manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., opened the Victory convention with a hearty welcome to the great host of Edison dealers who had migrated to New York to join in the convention proceedings. He introduced H. E. Blake, Edison dealer of Philadelphia, as the chairman of the convention, who acquitted himself with distinction in this important post.

William Maxwell Outlines Future Factory Plans

The business program opened with an address by William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., the subject of which was "What the Factory Plans to Do for You."

Mr. Maxwell contrasted the present situation in America with that of a year ago by quoting the headlines from the New York Sun which appeared the opening day of last year's convention and the headlines from that day's issue. Then it was all war, now it is peace. He told how, while the United States was at war, the Edison organization had wholeheartedly and voluntarily devoted its efforts toward war work and explained how this patriotic but not-to-be-regretted policy had handicapped the Edison Co. as regards production when comparison is made with certain other manufacturers of the talking machine industry who did little or nothing to help Uncle Sam win the war. He then went on to say:

"However, I did not come here to prate of patriotism or offer it as an excuse. There is a temporary shortage of certain types of Edison phonographs. What is being done to relieve that shortage and when will it be relieved? Those are the questions you want answered.

The Temporary Shortage

"The war is over, but you notice that the hotels are still stingy with sugar, butter and bread. The war is over, but most of the department stores continue to give us war-time service. The war is over, but smokers are still dodging behind buildings to get a light from matches of 'war-time quality.'

"During the war, as you all know, it was difficult to get skilled labor in factories, if the factories were not engaged in war work. In some of our cabinet factories we were obliged to close our eyes to certain things that we would not have tolerated in normal times.

"When the armistice was signed we said to our cabinet people in effect: 'We have been easy with you, because we knew what you were up against. Now conditions are different. You must meet specifications 100 per cent. on the Chippendale. The new Sheraton is a real piece of furniture. It's got to be made and finished better than you ever thought of making the C-150.' We went through the entire line in that way.

"What happened? Of course, everybody said

William Maxwell

'Yes,' and promised certain deliveries on certain dates. I suppose it was hard for the cabinet manufacturers to make their men and foremen realize that the war was over. At any rate, the cabinets did not come through the way we wanted them, and they were rejected. Literally thousands were thrown back by our inspectors. The cabinet men said: 'You claim you are in urgent need of cabinets, that your dealers are suffering for goods. There is only one way to get cabinets and that is to lower your

H. E. Blake, Chairman of Convention standards and relax your inspection. You will bankrupt us and put yourselves out of business if you don't.' We said to the cabinet men: 'If that is the case we might as well begin now to get ready to go out of business, as the Edison Co. will not lower its standards or relax its inspection one iota.'

"We sent a neutral expert to several of our cabinet plants to make an unprejudiced investigation. He reported: 'You are enforcing the most rigid standards that were ever in effect in any furniture factory, but in view of the superb design of your cabinets I believe you are doing right.'

"One of the best-known retail furniture dealers in the country said to our general purchasing agent recently: 'You folks are preparing to make the Edison phonograph the finest piece of furniture in a man's home. We handle some pretty high-priced furniture but nothing that we are as particular about as you are about your cabinets.'

Production Approaching Normal

"Well, we finally won out. It took courage—it has given me a lot of new gray hairs—to refuse cabinets when we knew you needed them so badly, but it was necessary. To-day I believe every Edison cabinet factory is working to our standards in good faith. Cabinets are now flowing in fairly good quantities and the flow is increasing every week. July should bring material relief and August should place us almost abreast of our orders. We have put our own expert production men in several of the outside cabinet factories and they are accomplishing good results. We are doing everything possible to co-operate with our cabinet manufacturers. Recently we settled a strike which threatened to put three of our cabinet factories out of business for a month or more. We are sparing no effort and no expense to increase cabinet production and the results will soon be apparent.

"Our present cabinet specifications are so high that wood-working concerns which previously had supposed they could not afford to consider the manufacture of phonograph cabinets have discovered, as the Aimones did, that they have never made anything finer than Edison cabinets, and accordingly the ranks of our cabinet makers are being recruited by concerns whose work will correspond to that of Aimone. There is no furniture maker in the world to-day who is too exclusive or high class to make Edison cabinets.

No Shortage of Motors

"You have noticed that I speak only of cabinets in connection with the shortage of Edison phonographs. There is no shortage of motors and reproducers. We are making twice as many motors and reproducers as we ever made before. Our factory organization was never so efficient as now. The morale of our workers was not lowered during the war. Most of the war work which we did called for very fine workmanship. We did some work that other people couldn't do and I think the Government came to rely on us a great deal. I recall the case of a certain manufacturer who is internationally celebrated for the supposedly fine character of his work, but who fell down ingloriously on a certain implement of warfare which called for a high degree of precision. The Government asked us if we thought we could handle anything so fine as this particular device. We replied that while there were lots of things too coarse for us to make, there was nothing too fine for us, and we proved it quickly, to the Government's great relief and satisfaction.

"We are very proud of our manufacturing organization. We have good men. They feel that they are getting a square deal and they are happy. I don't believe any agitator could interest them for a second. I don't believe you need to worry about strikes at the Edison manufacturing laboratories.

"I suppose I should say a word about disc

Re-Creation production. All of you know by this time that we can make plenty of Re-Creations. Production is not as yet scientifically distributed, for the very simple reason that the moulds give varying outputs. A new mould is being introduced which will overcome this difficulty, and also provide a product of remarkably uniform quality.

"So much for what we are doing in the way of producing goods for you, and I find I have consumed nearly all of my time with that subject, without getting down to the topics about which I expected to talk. Fortunately Mr. Fuller is to talk to you to-morrow in detail about our various plans for dealer co-operation.

"Already you know about the Diamond Amberola co-operative advertising campaign. The dealer who doesn't push the Diamond Amberola this fall is overlooking a good thing and every dealer who is pushing the Amberola will certainly want to get in on the co-operative advertising.

to Miss De Wolfe and her work and to all that her endorsement of the Edison period cabinets means. He said, in part:

Victor J. Petry's Talk on the Importance of Period Styles

"What I am going to say may hurt. Until your reproductions of period pieces were introduced we decorators had our own troubles trying to make those commercial, expressionless masses of mahogany or oak blend with the general furnishings, and while I admit that some of your salesmen weighed carefully the pros and cons of what is termed 'eye values,' we had to look upon same through telescopes and smoked glasses.

"The only available process then known to us was that expedient so lately and successfully tested—camouflage. We had to resort to paint cleverness, versatility and resourcefulness in so many ways that I am sure she will give the same good account of her prowess in this particular regard.

"Let us not attempt to get up '57 varieties of design' merely for the sake of saying we have so many periods in stock, but let us adhere to what is now and always will be considered the best, if only a few very true and clever, reproductions."

Dorn Talks on Canvassing in a Metropolitan District

Following Mr. Petry came John Dorn, an Edison dealer of West New York, N. J., who took as his topic "Canvassing in a Metropolitan District." He said:

"Canvassing is the keynote and the foundation of salesmanship in placing many articles on the

and then to the most neutral of tones blending with the environment with perhaps a faint suggestion of embellishment such as striping or a limited amount of polychroming. We thought of period cabinets (this is a fact) but hesitated to thrust them on our customers, being ignorant of the relationship of same to the mechanical device—a very important feature.

"I have been told of a firm in Grand Rapids who formerly paid their then designer $3,000 per year. They were meeting serious and deserved competition till one decorator nervier than the rest told them they should more faithfully reproduce the gems of the antique. Finally they heeded his advice, secured the services of the foremost living designer for $15,000 per year and empowered him to purchase any noted specimens obtainable and no questions asked as to price. Their production and sales to-day far surpass and outclass any would-be competitors.

"Not only Mr. Rockabilt and Mr. Van Astor should be able to enjoy the happy combination of good music enclosed in a superior case. Mr.

market. The New Edison is no exception and our experience has shown us that direct canvassing is directly responsible for selling more phonographs than newspaper advertising, circular letters or other numerous forms of publicity.

"I do in no way want to leave the impression that newspaper advertising, etc., is not essential. We use the newspapers, mail out circular letters to follow up our prospects, and find the more publicity the more sales. But by direct house to house canvassing you get in touch with every home and every family. This gives you an opportunity to see personally if there is music in the home or not, and if there is any possibility of making a sale. I was asked to relate the methods we use in going about our work.

Make Your Call a Personal One

"As everyone knows, canvassers are about as welcome to the average home as prohibition is to the longshoreman, and for this reason you must make your call appear a personal one. This can be done by making a mental note of the party's name in the letterbox as you ring the apartment doorbell. Say, for instance, the party's name is Jones, and is the lady who responds to the bell. Your first remark, "Good morning, are you Mrs. Jones?" makes Mrs. Jones believe you have called to see her personally on some business, and she, of course, informs you that that is her name, and waits to hear the nature of your business.

"We then introduce ourselves, asking if she has a phonograph. The lady will inform you if she has one or not, and if she has none there is a good chance for a prospect, and you proceed accordingly.

"It is more than surprising to find, considering the enormous phonograph business done each year, the number of homes without them, people who are in circumstances to well afford them, many who have thought of having one at some time or other, but have never fully made up their minds. It is this class especially where canvassing counts, and with a little persuasion a sale is very often made. A few weeks' canvassing will assure any dealer, I am sure, of the number of prospects obtainable (especially in thickly populated districts), if they are only gone after.

Smith, Mr. Jones, and Mr. Brown should have their cabinets represent their personal tastes and environments equally as well as their wealthier brother. There is no reason why they should be compelled, on account of their limited wealth, to have to content themselves with bulky cubic foot and monumental effects.

"The whole matter of case designing is, if I might say so, in its infancy. America has so often, and especially lately, shown her alertness, Substitutes for Miss De Wolfe.

Following this Victor J. Petry (Beaux Arts, Paris), New York City, substituted for Miss Elsie De Wolfe, the famous authority on good furniture and interior decoration. Miss De Wolfe, who has recently given a very powerful endorsement to the Edison period cabinets, was scheduled to give a talk in person, outlining her opinion on the New Edison period designs from the standpoint of artistic home furnishing. Miss De Wolfe, however, was detained in returning from Europe, which accounted for the appearance of her associate, Victor J. Petry. Mr. Petry paid a warm tribute

"If you find your party has no music we usually ask if she has ever considered a phonograph as a means to give her that part of her entertainment which has long been lacking. She may tell you that she had been considering one some time ago, but has given up the idea, or was considering getting one later. It must be borne in mind that you are not selling some small article, where people will fall quickly for your proposition, and you hardly ever find a party who is so anxious as to tell you directly that she wants a phonograph.

Getting an Instrument in the Home

"For this reason we always have an Edison on the auto and when a prospect is found where there is a possible chance for an immediate sale we try to place an Edison in the home on approval for a period of two or three days. This can usually be done by explaining the re-creation of the human voice by Mr. Edison's new $3,000,000 phonograph, and telling them that it indexed on a prospect card, with name and address and whatever remarks may be of assistance on the return call, and this is filed away for the month in which it is believed the prospect can be interested.

"When that month arrives a return call is made, and we have sales on record where we have followed up a prospect two or three years and more before making a sale. These return calls always keep you in the prospect's mind, and when they do think of buying a phonograph they think of your store, and your chances of selling them are several times greater than if you had not followed them up diligently. They then come to you, and it is then usually an easy matter to close the sale.

After Prospects in the Winter Months

"In the winter months, when you are busy, and it is impossible to see all your prospects, a circular letter goes a great way in bringing the sale to you. We have used some of the facyears in determining just what constituted the ideal quality for diamond points, and of the very careful work which is required in shaping the diamond points. He said that there are seventy-five operations in making a diamond point, practically all of which have to be conducted under a microscope which magnifies up to 1,000 times the normal size. He said: "The diamond must be shaped to fit into the groove exactly, and considering the fact that on the Edison record there are 155 lines to the inch it will be evident how perfectly shaped the diamond must be to fit exactly so small a groove." He also stated that the Edison Laboratories have spent more than a million dollars in proper equipment and experimentation on the diamond point and that no other manufacturer of diamond points could hope to acquire the necessary equipment and knowledge for a smaller investment than a half million. He described the polishing and rounding machine is Mr. Edison's desire to have as many people hear the instrument as possible, and that he is using this method of introducing it, immaterial as to whether the party is ready to buy at the present time or not. Once your phonograph is in the home you have a good opportunity of selling it, for experience has shown us that 60 per cent. are never taken out again.

"We always leave about eighteen records and vary the selections, using a variety to make sure some of the re-creations will meet the musical requirements of the prospect.

"After the phonograph is placed we show the prospect how to operate the instrument, and demonstrate a few selections, generally using 80160, 'I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen,' and 82536, 'Ave Maria,' the old favorites. We then leave, telling the prospects that we will be back in a day or two and to give the phonograph a good trial. Our return call is generally in the evening, when all of the family are at home. You then meet the husband and the rest of the folks and wait to hear the verdict.

"They most always tell you how pleased they have been with the instrument, but usually have some excuse to offer, such as that they have large obligations to meet, that the cost of living is too high, or any other of the innumerable ones that are always presented to a salesman in any line. Then, if these objections can be overcome, which they very often can, your sale is made, and you have another Edison booster, besides another party to sell records to, which you would never have had if you had not canvassed and used that little persuasion which always leads to sales.

Successfully Overcoming Objections

"Furthermore, it does not mean that you have to go out canvassing six to eight hours a day every day in the week. We usually canvass about two and one-half hours a day about four days a week, but we make it a point never to miss a house or a family, for the party on the fifth floor of an apartment wants music as much as the party on the first floor, and there is never a week that passes but we can show some results from direct canvassing.

"It is not alone the immediate sales you make, but the prospects you obtain that lead to sales later. Every one who we believe is interested or can be interested at a later date is tory's circular letters and literature with very pleasing results.

"In addition, every person you sell is a booster for you, and with the Edison satisfaction they receive they tell you of their friends, and send them to you. Several of our customers whom we have sold through canvassing have sold from four to six phonographs for us and sold them to friends and relatives a good way from our territory who have gone out of their way to come to us.

"Make your customers believe you are giving them better service than they can get elsewhere, make them believe you are going out of your way to accommodate them, and they will go out of their way to help you make sales."

Geo. E. Clark Tells When a Diamond Is Not a Diamond

George E. Clark, acting manager of the Disc Re-creation Laboratories, then gave a very interesting talk on the subject of "When a Diamond Is Not a Diamond." He outlined in detail the exquisite skill that is required in making a diamond point for the New Edison. He told how the diamonds for the Edison diamond point are secured from the great diamond market of London, how it is necessary to select absolutely clear crystals of the very highest quality. He went on to explain how the Edison Laboratories were engaged for a great many which the Edison organization has developed after seven years of intensive study.

James P. Lacey, an Edison dealer of Peoria, Illinois, came next on the program and discussed "Enthusiasm with a Big E." He said:

James P. Lacey Tells Why Enthusiasm Is a Power

"You've been to a ball game on a day when your home team seemed, at the opening of the ninth inning, hopelessly beaten by the visitors. As the first man on your side, wearing a down-and-out expression that perfectly reflected the thoughts of the majority of your home town rooters, came up to the plate in the last half of the ninth to bat, a long lanky individual—whom all your business men classified as a no-account, good-for-nothing baseball nut—rose from his place in the bleachers, waved his skinny arms and pierced the murky depressing atmosphere of that ball park with this clarion command, 'Now, then, fellows, let's give 'em hell!' In just such proportion as your various natures ordinarily respond to the 'never-say-die-spirit' you rooters took up the cry and immediately your team evidenced a re-creation of fighting spirit. You won that game. Your town nut saved the day. He was an enthusiast.

"Enthusiasm, properly directed, always wins. An enthusiast is always a nut, but nuts are not always enthusiasts. That town nut, had he properly directed his enthusiasm along commercial lines, in place of idling it away on dope sheets and batting averages, would have become your biggest business man

"Consult your histories and you'll find that those who have dreamed big dreams, those who have been the most outspoken of radicals, are the ones to whom we pay the greatest homage. They are the ones in whom the spirit of enthusiasm is most pronounced. While I could occupy an hour in so doing, surely I need not delve further into the life of business, invention, sport, war or finance to illustrate to you the necessity of enthusiasm to our individual success.

"You show me a man without enthusiasm and I'll show you he has no personality, pep, ginger

Nearly all of our boys have returned from over seas. They are going through a period of readjustment to civilian life. Music is the great stabilizer, the great mental gyroscope that will help divert their minds to normal channels and ease them back into peaceful pursuits with a minimum of friction and with a renewed, a revived activity and enthusiasm.

This is the best reason in the world why Edison Dealers should now redouble their efforts to supply every home with a New Edison.

or any of those qualifications that make for big success.

"You can't successfully handle your dealership without these qualifications. Hear me, that man who criticizes, finds fault, spends his hours and days in worrying over the things which have not been done, is rapidly approaching stagnation. He is engendering in his employes, in himself, in his whole business organization, the spirit of pessimism, a word that also spells failure.

"If you are handling a line of merchandise about which you no longer can enthuse, either go take a vacation and reverse yourself or give it up. There are only two kinds of dealers; the live wire or enthusiast and the complainer or pessimist. You are in one or the other class. As the darky says, you either 'is' or you 'ain't.'

"There are several very necessary assets which every business, to be successful, must have. Were I to ask you the most important you'd yell 'Cash' at the top of your lungs. Yes, I admit it is important and further I admit it's easier to be an enthusiast when the bank balance is bulging than when the reverse is true, yet I question the all importance of cash. How about the asset of Character, Up-to-dateness, Honest Dealing, Popularity, Service, Vision, Pleasantness, and Imagination? Never heard of listing some of these things as business assets, did you? There are many more that could be added to the list. The trouble is, so many of us take too many necessary qualifications for granted. Why not analyze your business and yourself as well and determine positively just how you measure up to your job? Call the following statement ridiculous if you wish, but weigh it well before passing judgment: I consider Enthusiasm, intelligently directed, the greatest business asset of all—greater than 'Cash' or 'Credit,' because our store was a rank failure when cash was plentiful and enthusiasm absent.

"If you could analyze the story of the Diamond Disc Shop, of Peoria, you'd find ample proof of what enthusiasm can and will do. You'd find there was a time when cash gave out because of the lack of enthusiasm; a time when nothing in God's world but enthusiasm could save the situation. Enthusiasm entered, put new life into the organization, sold goods, created recognition over all the country for the store; as a matter of fact made that store almost everything that it is to-day.

"Oh, I could tell you a thousand little stories about enthusiasm as regards our shop, but, since figures better tell the story, listen: Our business in 1918 doubled the 1917 business with less than $1,000.00 additional expense. The sales for last December exceeded the entire sales for the first twelve months in business, and the sales this year have each month doubled the same month last year. And, gentlemen, enthusiasm did it.

"Don't imagine you can qualify as a real wide-awake dealer unless you are able to be a consistent as well as an everlasting optimist and enthusiast, because it can't be done. Too many of you have waited for the 'cream' stage to arrive before you thought of going after business. When that time does arrive there won't be any business for you to go after because the fellows who have fought on in spite of the difficulties will be the fellows who have covered the entire territory while you have been idling and worrying your time away.

"May I read you, in conclusion, the following verse from 'Success':

The man who wins is the man who does,
The man who makes things hum and buzz,
The man who works and the man who acts,
Who builds on a basis of solid facts;
Who doesn't sit down to mope and dream,
Who bumps ahead with the force of steam,
Who hasn't the time to fuss and fret,
But gets there every time—you bet.
The man who wins is the man who wears
A smile to cover his burden of cares,
Who knows that the sun will shine again,
That the clouds will pass, and we need the rain,
Who buckles down to a pile of work
And never gives up and never will shirk
'Till the task is done, and the toil is sweet,
While the temples throb with red blood's heat.
The man who wins is the man who climbs

The ladder of life to the cheery chimes
Of the bells of labor, the bells of toil,
And isn't afraid his skin will spoil,
If he faces the shine of the glaring sun
And works in the light till his task is done;
A human engine with triple beam
And a hundred and fifty pounds of steam.

Palmer Talks on News Value in Advertising

Following Mr. Lacey, Arthur J. Palmer, advertising manager of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., discussed the matter of "Advertising That Has News Value." His speech ran as follows:

"What constitutes a good advertisement? I should hesitate to pass judgment. I am frank to confess that I do not know positively just what does constitute a good advertisement, but I have my own ideas.

Arthur J. Palmer

"You might think that the shouting, circus type of advertisement, megaphoning to the public the fact that they can purchase the New Edison for almost nothing down and less than nothing a week, is good advertising, whereas I might think that an ultra-dignified advertisement, utterly devoid of all striking display and absolutely shunning even the thought of terms, is good advertising.

Distinctiveness in Advertising

"However, I am convinced that the character of the Edison magazine advertising which we have been doing for the past nine months is good advertising because it stands out from the ordinary routine of just plain copy on account of its distinctiveness. Each advertisement in itself constitutes a story, an account of something which has actually happened. It tells of a specific occasion on which a humanly interesting test of the New Edison's ability to recreate was made.

"When you open your morning newspaper you expect to find on the front page something different from that which you found the morning before. You eagerly scan the columns to find out what has happened, the latest occurrences out of the regular routine of daily life. Suppose you should find on the front page the same themes, the same stories in a new form, with new headlines, simply paraphrased from yesterday's stories. You would soon grow tired of reading that paper and would very shortly cut it out altogether.

"Then, isn't it logical to assume that a news twist to advertising greatly increases the reader's interest? I think there is no doubt about that, and that is why we strive to give every Edison magazine advertisement a news angle.

"You will recall the Lazzari advertisement, the Case advertisement, the Ciccolini advertisement and particularly the Fields advertisement.

Each one told of a happening of interest to the music-loving reader, each was a distinct advertisement in itself, each one possessed an individuality of its own, telling a story of its own, though all on the same subject.

"You remember when a boy, how when a crowd would gather up near a corner and people would come running from all directions, all the fellows would shout 'Something's up.' Something had happened out of the ordinary routine, something that quickened your interest and appealed to your natural curiosity to find out what was doing. Something of 'news value.'

Lessons from Motor Publicity

"When an automobile manufacturer wins a great race, like the recent Indianapolis classic, the next morning his announcement of the achievement appears in the papers. His car has accomplished a great feat. He does not come out with the mere announcement that his car has four cylinders, or six or eight cylinders. He hits you between the eyes with a live, interest-compelling statement to the effect that his product has demonstrated its superiority over its competitors. So it is with the tire manufacturer and the makers of the various automobile accessories used on the winning car.

"Recently I saw a striking advertisement of a new vacuum bottle that has an unbreakable lining. The figure of a man was shown handing one of the bottles up to the aviator of one of the overseas aeroplanes and the copy said that Hawker, Alcock and Read all had taken this make of vacuum bottle on their perilous trips across the ocean. How intensely interesting is such advertising to the prospective purchaser of the respective products mentioned.

"Remarkable in their field as such products are, I am sure you will agree with me that we have a much more interesting and far more wonderful product and a still more interesting story to tell—and I feel that we are getting our story across to the magazine-reading public with what I might call a 'front-page punch,' and I feel that that is due to the news character of each advertisement.

"Do not misunderstand me. I am not lacking in appreciation of the power of reiteration, but in order to make an advertisement one that will tell an interesting story we must have something more than mere reiteration of a basic theme. We must present our story in a new garb each time it appears, we must dress it up. We are endeavoring to do that by giving each Edison advertisement an individual appeal, a newsy slant that will make it as palatable as the news stories on the front page of your paper.

"It is our present intention to continue these advertisements that have news value so long as subjects hold out, perhaps here and there injecting an advertisement like that of our recent announcement of the new period cabinets.

"If we are correct in our judgment we are making a favorable impression with our present line of advertisements on the magazine readers of the country. We are creating reader interest right in the very neighborhood; in fact, in the immediate vicinity of every dealer present. That interest is an asset. What have you done about it? What are you going to do about it? We are planting the seeds of favorable impression. Are you fertilizing the soil and are you nurturing the crop by running the interlocking advertisements? That reader interest will evaporate into thin air if you do not concentrate it on your store.

"We should like to print the name of every Edison dealer at the bottom all our magazine advertisements. Of course, that is impracticable, but the next best thing is for you to run the interlocking advertisements and shoot out to your prospects the interlocking folders which we furnish coincident with every magazine advertisement we run. Get all that's coming to you out of our national advertising.

"You will find it highly profitable to tie up your store with 'Advertising That Has News Value.'

H. M. Purdy's Remarks

Following Mr. Palmer, H. M. Purdy, an Edison dealer of Atlanta, Ga., spoke on "Our One Best Bet—the Official Laboratory Model." He outlined why the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison is the best seller, due to such reasons as it is the model most extensively featured in Edison advertising, it is the model invariably used in the Edison tone-tests, it is the model used in comparison tests of all kinds, etc.

The Amberola Advertising Campaign

John A. Sherman next discussed "The Amberola Co-Operative Advertising Campaign." He spoke of the various ways in which the Amberola headquarters at Orange and the Edison Amberola jobbers are co-operating with the Amberola dealer for an ever-increasing business, and emphasized the fact that the Amberola business is not declining and that it is by no means an instrument the sale of which is confined to the rural districts.

Making Inspection Service Pay

A. D. Ulster, Edison dealer of Meriden, Conn., talked on "Making Inspection Service Pay." In his speech Mr. Ulster digressed to emphasize the extremely important position that service occupies in the modern business world. He enumerated several instances of where his company has rendered special services of a kind that might be deemed unnecessary or uncalled for, with the result that sales of an excellent character were made.

William Maxwell closed the speaking program for the Thursday morning session by reading a speech of R. L. Aimone, head of the Aimone Mfg. Co., New York City. Mr. Aimone was scheduled to give in person an interesting talk on the subject of period cabinets, the Aimone Galleries at present making a large number of period cabinets for the Edison Co. He was, however, called away by the sudden death of a relative, for which reason Mr. Maxwell read his speech to the conventionites. Mr. Aimone's address consisted of a glowing tribute to the quality and design of Edison period cabinets.

The Play "Eye Value" Makes a Hit

The session for Thursday closed with a novel comedy in one act, entitled "Eye Value," written by William Maxwell and produced by Verdi E. B. Fuller. The play took place in the office of Zebolin Oldfather, characterized as "An Edison Jobber and a Wise Old Bird." In the course of the play this same Wise Old Bird was duly convinced by A. Goldstein, a dealer-buyer, representing the Farmers' Bargain House of Intra-Reuben, Ill., that what the public wants to-day are high-class cabinets for phonographs, such as are found in the period models of the New Edison. The play was admirably written, as might be expected considering the authorship, and was well acted throughout. After the play, which finished about 2 p. m., the meeting adjourned until Friday.

Edison's Address Feature of the Session on Friday

The next morning, Friday, June 27, the Edison Dealers' business session resumed, starting in with a concert by the Edison Orchestra. The first event on the program was Thomas A. Edison's message to the convention, which was delivered in excellent form by William Maxwell as follows:

"A new order of things is emerging from the events of the past five years. Whatever may intervene, the ultimate result is going to approach more closely a square deal—for labor, for capital, for the merchant, for the farmer, for every one. The employer who is not square with his employes, or the employe who is not square with his employer, is going to be out of step with the times.

"Demagogues may muster a following of illogical radicals who advocate injustice as a means of gaining justice, and stiff-necked reactionaries may selfishly oppose the progress which destiny has decreed as humanity's reward for the sacrifices that have been made, but in the end there will prevail a just and honest basis for the relations between capital and labor.

"This new relationship cannot be legislated into existence. It will spring from the conscience and patriotism of the people. The time is coming when the unjust employer and the disloyal employe will share equal odium in the esteem of society at large.

The Efficacy of the Square Deal

"The square deal is fatal to radicalism. There can be no social revolution in the United States or Canada for the very simple reason that our Government and the Canadian Government are founded on the idea of giving everybody a fair show. There will be few disturbances of consequence if a majority of us adopt the square deal as our business creed and our social creed. One lone man, who believes in the square deal and has the courage of his convictions, might very possibly convert a whole community. Accordingly the good citizen to-day, in addition to conducting his individual business in harmony with the Golden Rule, has the duty of raising his voice and using his influence in behalf of justice for all—justice as much for the railroad corporation as for its employes, and for the common laborer as well as for the highly skilled artisan. I believe that Edison dealers will recognize this duty and that they will not be found wanting in its performance.

Thomas A. Edison

"Of our own business I think I need speak but briefly.

"A large production of disc Re-Creations is already an accomplished fact and steps are being taken practically to double our present production.

"Our only problem at the present time is to obtain a mould that will give us a definite production of absolutely uniform quality. We are introducing such a mould and its use will enable us to get our supplements on schedule and give us a more uniform product.

"The shortage of disc phonographs has been due to our uncompromising determination to have cabinets of the finest quality. We have finally succeeded in getting our standard accepted by the various manufacturers and the shortage of phonographs will be materially relieved in the near future.

"As most of you know, I devoted practically all of my time to Government work from January 1, 1917, to November, 1918. It is not my habit to lavish praise upon my business associates and employes, but it is no more than fair for me to say that in my absence our organization made an extremely good showing in the face of numerous difficulties. Thanks to the responsibility placed on our organization during the war I now find, much to my satisfaction, that the business requires less attention from me and that I accordingly have more time for the phonograph research work, in which I take such a keen interest and from which I derive so much pleasure.

Symphony Orchestra Recordings

"I have already renewed the experiments on symphony orchestra recording, which were interrupted by the war. It is too early to make any definite prophecies, but I feel confident that sooner or later we shall be able to record a full symphony orchestra of ninety-four pieces with a fidelity which will enable us to sustain a tone-test in comparison with the orchestra. Please understand that this does not mean a new record. It will be the same kind of record we are now making, although it will probably have to be twelve inches in diameter.

Continuous Research Work

"I have assistants working constantly—under my direction—in research that covers every phase of phonograph development. I am very happy to be able to say that, so far as I am aware, in the past six years no one has announced a so-called improvement or development in the phonograph art which involved a principle that was unfamiliar to us. I confidently predict that the same thing will be true during the next six years, and, for that matter, the next sixty years. In other words, we are in front and we intend to stay in front. By this I do not mean that you are to expect new and unusual types of phonographs or records. Our progress will be marked by improvements and refinements that will be reflected in a superior musical result, but that will not keep the trade in a turmoil of change. The method which we adopted in introducing the new period cabinets illustrates, I think, that we recognize that changes in our lines must be made in such a way that the dealers will not be prejudicially affected.

"Improved conditions make it possible for us to do a great many things for you dealers that we have not been able to do in the past. This convention has been chosen as the occasion for announcing some of our plans for dealer co-operation. I sincerely trust that the results will afford us justification for increasing our expenditures in this quarter.

Assurances of Future Prosperity

"None of us has the gift of looking into the future with absolute certainty, but I think all of us are satisfied that the next ten years hold large rewards in store for every one who is identified with the Edison phonograph. There may be temporary disturbances in business during that period, but basic conditions in this country are so exceedingly favorable that I think we need have no serious apprehensions and that we are all justified in going ahead with absolute confidence.

"When you go home from this convention I hope that each of you will carry with himself, or herself, the conviction that the Edison Co. will do its best in every possible way to serve your interests and merit a continuance of the loyal support which you have given it in the past. Also I should like to have you feel that the relationship between our company and yourselves is a little closer than the relations which ordinarily exist between a manufacturer and his distributors. All of you have my sincere best wishes."

The New Turntable Tone-Test

E. C. Boykin followed Mr. Maxwell and described in detail the new turntable tone-test, which has recently been put forth by the Edison

THERE is character to Stephenson accessories a character that adds a clearly defined selling value.

The polished edge of the turntable protects the felt against wear and fraying and adds to the attractiveness of the table-board. The Speed Regulator, too, is of a new design that permits the entire surface to be heavily nickel-plated and highly polished.

The brake acts upon a smooth track on the under part of the turntable, stopping it smoothly and promptly without any possible injury to the motor. Possibly these details may appear as of minor importance but these Stephenson character accessories add a clearly defined selling value.

organization, and which consists of placing several different makes of instruments on the same turntable so as to give them the same location. The plan is to have the dealers use the turntable whenever the New Edison must be sold in competition with other makes of instruments. Mr. Boykin outlined the conditions of the test in his talk, and also gave several turntable tone-tests, which made a distinct impression upon those assembled. He also rendered a report on the results that have been attained by the different Edison shops which have already put the turntable test idea into practice.

How to Get Part of Half Million

Verdi E. B. Fuller, Director of Sales Promotion of the Edison Co., followed Mr. Boykin and talked on "How to Get Your Share of That Half Million Dollars." Most of what Mr. Fuller said was of a confidential character, and therefore will not be reported in these columns. He outlined in detail how the Edison Co. proposes to spend an additional half million dollars for co-operation with the dealer along several definite lines.

Holden Talks on the Colgate Case

D. Holden, legal counsel of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., spoke next and took as his subject "The Colgate Case." He outlined the significant points in the proceedings of the Colgate case from start to finish, and dwelt on the extremely important bearing the final decision by the Supreme Court has on the matter of price maintenance. He said that the statements in the daily newspapers had from time to time reported this affair in an erroneous light, and that many believed the proceedings originated before the Federal Trade Commission instead of before the Federal Grand Jury of Virginia. The final decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court, he went on to say, gives the manufacturer and jobber the right to sell to whom he pleases, and also the right to announce in advance that said jobber or manufacturer may discontinue to sell to any retailer who does not uphold desired retail prices. On the other hand, he said, the Colgate decision makes it possible for any jobber or dealer who has purchased goods outright to sell at any price he chooses to sell at. In other words, the one restraining factor in the case of the retail merchant, as far as price maintenance is concerned, is the danger of his source of supply being cut off, should he start a cut-price campaign.

Pullin Chats on Record Service

F. C. Pullin, manager of the Record Service

Department, followed Mr. Holden and discussed "Catalog Numbers and Supplements." He informed the Edison dealers that the production difficulties which had been encountered during the war can now be forgotten, and looked upon absolutely as a thing of the past. He outlined the plans which the Edison Co. has in mind for supplying Edison dealers with all records of operatic, standard and popular selections in the desired quantities on time. He predicted great things for the future of the record business, as far as the Edison dealers are concerned.

Stimulating Musical Interest

E. F. Carroll, an Edison dealer of Waco, Texas, read an interesting paper entitled "Along Broadway, and Other Factory Printed Matter." In his talk Mr. Carroll described in detail how his company used the musical paper entitled "Along Broadway," published by the advertising department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., to stimulate musical interest among the residents of Waco, Texas, particularly with a view to increasing the sales of Edison records and of the New Edison. He reported the actual results obtained by his company through extensive use of "Along Broadway" and the other co-operative advertising matter secured through the Edison advertising department.

Sigmund Spaeth Discusses the Future of Music

Sigmund Spaeth, musical critic of the New York Times, came next, and dwelt on "The New Edison's Part in the Future of Music." He heralded the phonograph as the biggest educational factor in music and stated that successful musical education consists, not in imposing what is not wanted and needed, but in allowing the public to discover music values for themselves. This, he stated, can undoubtedly be best accomplished through the medium of the phonograph. Mr. Spaeth believes that all persons have an inherent or potential appreciation of music, and that it simply requires familiarity with music to bring out this musical appreciation. Familiarity, he stated, breeds enthusiasm in the case of all art, whether it be painting, sculpture or music, etc. Ragtime selections are easy to popularize, according to Mr. Spaeth, because the melodies are all very old, and while the public is not perhaps conscious of the fact, they have really heard these melodies time and time again. Mr. Spaeth contends that when the public is made equally familiar with the melody of the better class of music their enthusiasm for it will be infinitely greater and that for this reason phonograph dealers should bend every effort toward familiarizing the public with the melodies of the really great masterpieces of music. He went on by paying a very sincere and unreserved tribute to the musical perfection attained in the New Edison, and laid particular stress on its ability to reproduce tone quality and tone color. Mr. Spaeth closed by urging every dealer present to exercise the selective power which lies in his hand to induce the public to an intelligent appreciation of music in its finest forms, and said that, through phonograph dealers, the American musical taste can be developed to a really permanent enthusiasm and appreciation, to a point where America will be a really great musical nation.

C. M. Dahl on the Business Outlook

C. M. Dahl, vice-president of the Chase National Bank, next delivered a very interesting discussion on the business outlook as he sees it to-day. He made a very urgent appeal that every American citizen devote a certain amount of time to the conscientious study of public service to the end that our public officials may be of the type really required to guarantee the finest possible position for the American commonwealth. Business, he said, will take care of itself, providing the standard of public service is maintained on a fittingly high plane.

Selling Phonographs in the Summertime

Frank A. French, Edison dealer of Manchester, N. H., closed the speaking program with a talk on "Selling Phonographs in the Good Old Summer Time." In his talk he gave a list of the various kinds of entertainment which may compete with the phonograph during the summer months and also a list of the entertainments which may compete with the phonograph during the winter months. The balance sheet showed that actually there are more means of the public finding entertainment in the winter, particularly along musical lines, than in the summer, and that, therefore, the summer months constitute a particularly good time for pushing the phonograph business. He recommended that the dealer make a point of going out summer evenings and where he finds a family out on the porch, offering to have an Edison sent up and placed on the porch for the evening entertainment. He stated in cases where this had been done by his company the family would enjoy the music up to so late an hour that the instrument could be left with the family over night, in other words, moved off the porch, inside the home. By delaying for a day in calling for the instrument the family were given a chance to sell themselves on the phonograph, and in this way a considerable number of sales were effected during the middle of the summer season.

Open Forum Closes Sessions

The business sessions of the Edison Dealers' convention closed with an open forum. The following officials of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., were placed in semi-jury form before the Edison dealers: William Maxwell, vice-president; T. J. Leonard, general sales manager; C. W. Luhr, manager of the Edison phonograph works: George E. Clark, acting manager of the disc record manufacturing laboratories; W. E. Sanborn, manager of the Amberola record plant; W. H. Miller, manager of the recording laboratories; F. C. Pullin, manager of the record service department; Verdi E. B. Fuller, director of sales promotion; Arthur J. Palmer, advertising manager, and John Constable, chief engineer.

As soon as the jury had duly seated itself the Edison dealers were invited to bring up any questions of any description which they wanted to be answered. Quite a number of those present availed themselves of this opportunity, the questions asked bearing both on merchandising and the technical end of the Edison business. All the questions asked were promptly and effectively disposed of by the Edison official particularly qualified to answer each individual question asked. The meeting was adjourned at noon.

Most Enjoyable Banquet Brings Convention to Close

The annual banquet of the Edison Dealers' convention, held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Commodore on Friday night, June 27, was marked by unbounded enthusiasm and graced by many of the most famous artists in the musical world. Thomas A. Edison was the center of attraction and was wildly cheered by the 1,500 guests, who rose with one accord to give him a tremendous ovation when he entered the banquet hall. The big room was decorated with the Allied flags and the music was furnished by Earl Fuller's Edison orchestra, which also came in for its share of applause. William A. Maxwell was master of ceremonies and introduced each artist who appeared on the program. When he first appeared on the platform he received three rousing cheers and made his well-known bow, which should make him eligible for a place in the realm of the famous actors.

As for the dinner itself, it was complete and mere words cannot do justice to its merits. Everyone had the time of his life and even the delegates from the parched and thirsty zones got so used to the popping of the corks that they didn't dodge.

After the guests were comfortably seated they were startled by the appearance of a real live bear, which wandered up the aisle and paused to make a bow to Thomas A. Edison, and then mounted the platform to give the latest version of the "shimmy." "Big Jim the Jazz King" certainly made a hit with the dealers. Following this opening event the entertainers appeared in rapid succession and included some of the most famous Edison stars.

Mr. Maxwell proposed three cheers for Herbert E. Blake, of Philadelphia, for his good work as chairman of the convention and the response of those present left no doubt as to their feeling in the matter.

Amid redoubled applause the New Edison was moved to the center of the stage, following which "Frisco" appeared with his xylophone and gave an interesting tone-test of his own playing and its reproduction. Mr. Edison requested "Silver Threads Among the Gold," this being one of his favorite songs.

William A. Maxwell then rose and made the announcement which he had reserved for the occasion that Albert Linquist was the newest addition to the Edison staff of artists and the recreations of his songs would appear in the fall. Mr. Linquist sang the favorite song of the British Tommies, "Tommy Lad," which he sang when he was with the Red Cross in England at the outbreak of the war.

Miss Gladys Rice was the next singer, followed by the inimitable Al Bernard, who convulsed the entire gathering by his allusion to the key to his cellar. The subject seemed to be a very vital one to all, even to the delegates from the arid States. "When you spend $50,000 in one month on one girl there must be a lot to her," said Mr. Maxwell, ambiguously, as he introduced Leola Lucey, but there seemed to be no doubt in the minds of the guests that she was worth all of that. The Criterion Quartet sang "Ring Out, Sweet Bells of Peace" and responded to the encore with an original bagpipe number.

A telegram was read from Frieda Hempel, which speaks for itself: "All good wishes to the Edison convention. To-day is my birthday and I am drinking a toast here in the Adirondacks to the health of the dealers and to Mr. Edison and the organization. I saw the new catalog and think it is most beautiful and artistic."

Carl Jorn, the Metropolitan Opera star, sang a new song, "Singing to You," which will appear among the Re-Creations this fall.

The popular Marie Morrisey sang her favorites, "Just a Wearyin' for You" and "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," while everyone joined in the chorus with a will. A man from Dixie then moved the dealers from the Sunny South with his "Caroline"—yes, it was Vernon Delhart. Glen Ellison gave "Roaming in the Gloaming" and his bit o' Scotch was delightful.

Anna Case Receives an Ovation

The appearance of Anna Case caused the conventionites to fairly outdo themselves and the Dallas contingent could hardly keep themselves from storming the stage, so greatly did they admire the noted singer. This was her first time at an Edison convention and she was forced to respond to encore after encore, while the crowded galleries implored her to continue. She sang one of her own compositions, called "Song to the Robin." The Flemming Trio followed Miss Case and played in their own pleasing way.

Next Convention in New York

Mr. Maxwell then mounted the stage and asked where the next convention should be held. Suggestions came back with the patter of a machine gun. He then asked if it should be held in Chicago and the Western delegates were loud in their cries of approval. But he dashed their hopes by saying that considering the distance from the Windy City the vote was larger than he expected, by which we are to infer that the convention will be held here next year. In closing Mr. Maxwell expressed his appreciation of the large attendance and the good work done by all to make the convention a success. Dancing then began in the West Ballroom and with the last waltz closed the fifth convention, which was declared the best ever.

SPECIAL EXHIBIT OF NEW EDISON PHONOGRAPHS SHOWN

Several New Period Models and Complete Line of Regular Models Exhibited at the Hotel Commodore During the Edison Victory Convention—Advertising Department Also Has Display

During the fifth annual convention of Edison dealers a special exhibit of New Edison phonographs was made in the West End Ballroom of the Hotel Commodore. The exhibit included a very complete line of the regular line models and also of the special Edison period models of the more expensive type. This exhibit was dore was devoted to an exhibition by the advertising department of Thos. A. Edison, Inc. It consisted of a very comprehensive array of all the co-operative advertising, house organs, bulletins, display cards, Hansen window service, etc., that can be had by Edison dealers through headquarters at Orange. conducted primarily for the benefit of dealers attending the convention, but was also open to the general public. Throughout Tuesday the exhibit room was well crowded, both with members of the trade and the general public.

Among the brand new models of the New Edison which made their debut at this exhibit were the new Heppelwhite model at $155, the new Sheraton Sans Inlay at $195, the new Jacobean at $250, the new Louis XIV, the new XVIII Century English (Adam) at $450, the new Italian (Umbrian) at $450 and the new Chalet table model at $95. All these new instruments are very individual in design and are constructed on the same extremely high quality principles that characterize the entire Edison line. Another special room at the Hotel Commosay, this convention feature attracted much attention.

A brand new catalog entitled "Edison and Music" made its debut at the convention. It is very handsome typographically and contains artistic drawings of all the Edison instruments, including all of the various new models.

UDELL WORKS TO EXHIBIT

The Udell Works of Indianapolis have been making a good showing of their talking machine record cabinets and player roll cabinets on the north half of the second floor of the Klingman Building, Grand Rapids, during the great furniture exhibit that takes place in Grand Rapids annually each summer.

EDISON TRAVELERS HOLD THEIR SECOND CONVENTION

Progressive Organization Met at Hotel Commodore on Last Month and Discussed a Number of Subjects Which Mean Much for the Future of the Industry—Close With Banquet

The second Edison Travelers' Convention was held in the West Ballroom of the Hotel Commodore on Tuesday, June 24. The morning session started at 10 o'clock with a brief word of welcome by T. J. Leonard. Following him Wm. Maxwell, as chairman of the meeting, made a talk on general matters which included several announcements of surpassing interest to the men present. M. M. Blackman, of Kansas City, next delivered an address on "The Laboratory Model," in which he outlined the importance of urging dealers to promote this model at the present time and how to do it effectively. An open forum followed directly after Mr. Blackman's talk. It was led by Messrs. Geo. C. Silzer, of Des Moines, Ia.; H. G. Anderson, Indianapolis, Ind.; A. R. Holbrook, of Cincinnati, O., and L. Taylor, of Ogden, Utah, by whom various suggestions were given.

E. E. Hammond, of New Orleans, La., next delivered an interesting discussion on "Canvassing." He outlined how important canvassing is to successful dealership, and how he persuaded the dealers in the Louisiana territory to adopt his belief. Following Mr. Hammond's talk an open forum ensued on the subject of canvassing which was led by G. F. Maxey, Detroit, Mich.; G. A. Sholes, Milwaukee, Wis.; O. M. Fisk, Kansas City, and O. A. Reynolds, of St. Louis, Mo.

W. L. Hightower, of Kansas City, Mo., was the next speaker and took as his subject "The Amberola Co-operative Newspaper Advertising Campaign," after which an open forum followed bearing on the Amberola, which was led by C. W. Hough, Omaha, Neb.; H. D. Stinchfield, Minneapolis, Minn.; J. K. Nichol, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and J. F. Tolleson, of Atlanta, Ga.

Following this J. G. Brown, of Syracuse, delivered an address entitled "Dealers' Quotas—What They Mean to Both Jobber and Dealer," after which followed an open discussion by O. P. Curry, Dallas, Tex., and C. H. DeForest, of New Haven, Conn.

The meeting then adjourned for luncheon but resumed activities again at 2.30, starting in at that time with a discussion by P. P. Hawley, of Albany, N. Y., on "Travelers' Reports." An open forum followed bearing on travelers' reports in which everybody participated. H. H. Blish, of Des Moines, Ia., then spoke on the topic of "Tone Tests: In What Respects Can the Present Scheme Be Improved?" The open forum which followed the "Tone Test" address was led by W. D. Word, Atlanta, Ga.; M. R. Kreusch, Cleveland, O.; T. A. Dillon, Toronto, Can., and L. A. Sutfin, Chicago, Ill.

J. K. Nichol, of Pittsburgh, Pa., spoke next on the subject of "Inspection Service: What Is the Dealers' Most Frequent Objection and How Do You Usually Meet It?" An open forum followed, headed by J. D. Gowdy, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; G. C. Silzer, Sioux City, Ia.; P. P. Bassett, of Cincinnati, O.; J. Robinson, Philadelphia, Pa.

C. E. Stapleton, of New York, spoke next on "'Along Broadway,' and Other Laboratory Literature." The forum which followed was participated in by everybody. After that everyone took up the matter of new dealers-promotion plans with the result that many interesting and practical suggestions were made.

The meeting adjourned after having decided to hold the next Travelers' Convention at a time to be decided later.

Tuesday night those who attended the business session of the Edison Travelers' Convention were the guests of the Thos. A. Edison, Inc., at the Central Theatre, and enjoyed to the fullest extent the popular play, "Take It From Me."

VERY ATTRACTIVE UNICO MODEL DEPARTMENT INSTALLED

Interesting Feature of the First Floor of the Demonstration Building of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in Camden Is the Attractive Display of Unico Booths to Be Found There

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 2.—The Victor Talking Machine Co. have just installed on the first floor of their demonstration building in Camden a complete Unico model department as shown herewith. This was installed in order to demonstrate to their dealers visiting the plant the value of efficient department layout and equipment. The department, occupying a space 28x60 feet, includes a display lobby, display windows, machine and demonstrating rooms, record sales room with record racks and counter, manager's office, and stockroom, which has all been completely furnished and equipped. This department is designed and installed by the Unit Construction Co., and embodies the most advanced ideas in every detail and will undoubtedly prove of great value to Victor dealers in maintaining the following partial list of recent installations: Eastern Talking Machine Co., Boston, Mass.; Clark & Jones, Birmingham, Ala.; Floyd's Music Shop, Paxton, Ill.; P. strate to their dealers visiting the plant the value of efficient department layout and equipment. The department, occupying a space 28x60 feet, includes a display lobby, display windows, machine and demonstrating rooms, record sales room with record racks and counter, manager's office, and stockroom, which has all been completely furnished and equipped. This department is designed and installed by the Unit Construction Co., and embodies the most advanced ideas in every detail and will undoubtedly prove of great value to Victor dealers in maintaining a high standard of sales efficiency in their establishments. During the past thirty days the Unit Construction Co. closed contracts with over sixty concerns in various sections of the country for the installation of Unico departments. The wide extent of these installations may be visualized by

HELMUTH KRANICH, JR., RETURNS

After more than a year and a half service in the navy, Helmuth Kranich, Jr., son of Helmuth Kranich, secretary of Kranich & Bach, has been honorably discharged from the navy. During the latter eight months of his service Mr. Kranich was attached to the torpedo boat "S. S. Davis," which was on patrol duty on both this and the other side of the water. Before going into the navy Mr. Kranich was connected with the retail talking machine business.

INDUSTRIAL TENETS FIXED

Twelve Principles Indorsed by Referendum of American Employers

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.—Twelve principles of industrial relations have been indorsed by American employers, as represented in the membership of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Underlying the principle that "public interest requires adjustment of industrial relations by peaceful methods" were those declaring "the right of workers to organize," that "industrial harmony and prosperity will be most effectually promoted by adequate representation of the parties in interest," and that "industrial relations agreements should be faithfully observed." Fixing a basic day as "a device for increasing compensation" was held to be a subterfuge.

ALBERT SPALDING RETURNS

Albert Spalding, the noted violinist whose records made for the Edison have had such wide popularity, returned from abroad aboard the troopship "Dante Alighieri." During the war he served as an aviator and received his training in that branch in Italy. On the return trip he helped entertain the doughboys and delighted them by playing many selections. He made it a point to add his opinion that the war has done much for music and gave to the American soldier a better appreciation of the classics. While he is very much interested in aviation he is planning to return to the concert stage in the near future.

FINED WHILE GIVING SERVICE

C. J. Pott, Canadian Manager for Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., Has to Say "Good Morning, Judge"

"Ten dollars and costs" adjudged the magistrate in a Toronto Police Court to C. J. Pott, Canadian manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., who, when summoned before the "Beak," admitted that he might have been driving his car a little faster than the dizzy rate of fifteen miles per hour, which is the limit on Toronto streets.

"How can I give service at that speed?" counters Mr. Pott, who is more concerned about Heineman and Meisselbach products getting to the public via high-grade phonographs than he is in petty speed limits. In fact, his ear is so attuned to the rapid pace at the Heineman headquarters in Toronto that he just naturally goes over the speed limit.

NEW COLUMBIA DETROIT BRANCH

Manager Lind to Make Final Arrangements for New Branch in That City

S. E. Lind, manager of the Columbia branch at Detroit, is at present making final arrangements with the executive officers in New York for the equipment and arrangement of the new branch in that city. The new location of this branch will allow a larger operating space and has better shipping facilities which will ensure better service. The change in location is due to the increasing Columbia demand.

DEMAND IS MOST ACTIVE

Manager Bauer, of Cassidy & Co., Tells of Call For Victor Machines in Central New York

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 3.—The demand for Victor products in this city has been very great, with every indication that this exceptional demand will continue for some time to come. This highly encouraging report comes from Charles A. Bauer, the capable and aggressive manager of the Victor department of the Geo. A. Cassidy Co. Mr. Bauer, since his connection with the Victor department of the Geo. A. Cassidy Co. in 1911, has built a wonderful Victor business in Schenectady and his pleasing personality has won him a host of friends and made his department one of the foremost in the State. The general opinion of dealers in this section of the State is that Victor business has a very bright future in this section and all are planning to make the most of it.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 5.—The talking machine business in this city is still finding the same great demand that has existed all through the year. The factories were able to supply more goods in June than they had done during the previous months of the year, and conditions generally are improving.

More Victor records and machines were received in June and it looks as if by late in the fall this firm will be in a position to supply a most satisfactory quota of the demand.

New Building For Columbia Co.

On Monday of this week the Columbia Grafonola started in to remodel the new building at Sixth and Filbert streets, which may be occupied by August 1. There will be 27,000 feet of floor space to lay out, which will be divided between the Columbia, which will move down from Broad street, and the Dictaphone, which will move over from Chestnut street, so that both establishments will be under the same roof.

Aside from the necessary offices, storage section, warerooms, etc., a handsome reception room for the trade will be built, and in the center of the second floor there will be a fully equipped talking machine salesroom, with all the necessary furnishings to be used as a model for dealers who wish to get a thoroughly up-to-date establishment. J. M. Bayliss, of the service department of the Columbia, is here working on the new building.

Columbia and Dictaphone Picnic

On Tuesday, June 10, the managers and employes of both the Columbia Co. and the Dictaphone Co. held an enjoyable picnic at Neshaminy Falls, near this city. Every one was there from Manager Wilcox down. There were plenty of good things to eat, and sporting contests of every character were held. There were several baseball games from pick-up nines of both companies. There was a fat man's race, and this was won by Manager Wilcox, the prize being a handsome silk shirt, while the booby prize, a jumping jack, went to his assistant, H. E. Gardner.

A hotly contested egg race was also indulged in, and was won by D. S. Ramsdell, Mr. Westervelt leading until almost the finish, when he unfortunately dislodged his egg from the spoon and used it as decoration for his clothing.

Visitors to Columbia Offices

The Columbia Co. reports that business is improving right along, and the situation regarding machines and records is easing up materially. Among the Columbia visitors the past month were: H. L. Wilson, the general manager of the Columbia; R. E. Rea, who spent several days at the Philadelphia office; Calver Anderson, of Wilmington, Del.; R. L. Kieferle, a Columbia dealer of Lewiston; Mr. Youngjohns, of Norristown; S. N. Culver, of Delmar, Del., and H. Jarvis, of Millville, N. J.

Thomas J. Cummins, who for a number of years was head of the Strawbridge & Clothier talking machine department, has returned from France and has resumed his old place.

E. A. Manning, who contracted influenza last fall during the epidemic, has just returned to the Columbia, where he is the credit man.

Perfek'tone Co. Opens Warerooms

Philadelphia had a new firm added to its already long list in June, when the Perfek'tone Co. opened elaborate warerooms at 1127 Chestnut street. They have taken the entire building, which will be used for retail purposes. It has been elaborately furnished and all the case work of the Perfek'tone machines is of either reed or cane. The wholesale offices of the firm are located at the factory headquarters of Heywood Bros. & Wakefield Co., Fifth and Locust streets.

This firm represents the largest reed industry in the world, and the Perfek'tone machines are made at the Wakefield plant, at Wakefield, Mass.

New Edison Designs Popular

Herbert E. Blake, the biggest Philadelphia Edison dealer, reports that June was a most satisfactory month for him, although there was a shortage of machines during the month, due to the Edison Co. getting out a new line of period models which will be retailed by the dealers at from $155 up.

Two Firms Enlarging

R. L. Perrett, of the Grafonola Shops Corp., is making extensive improvements in his warerooms at 1107 Chestnut street. He expects they will all be finished by the first of September. During the month he was in Boston attending a meeting of the store managers.

A large addition to the building of the W. L. Hurley Co., Camden, N. J., is nearly completed, and will be one of the finest in this vicinity. At the store, which is located at the corner of Broadway and Pine street, they handle the Brunswick, the Victor and the Edison machines. They have been advertising the Brunswick extensively.

C. P. Chew Again With Brunswick

C. P. Chew has again assumed full charge of the selling of the Brunswick in this territory, and he says that in all his experience he never saw dealers ordering machines as they are doing at present. The Brunswick machines are coming through much faster, and the factory seems to be catching up to the demand. They have a number of applications on file for the handling of the Columbia by big firms here, but they have refrained from putting on any new dealers until their present trade orders are filled. A. J. Kendrick, the sales manager of the Brunswick, was

Sonora Shipments Improving

E. S. White, Philadelphia jobber-manager of the Sonora, reports that machines are coming through in a much more satisfactory way. He says that the factory has promised the Philadelphia house substantial shipments in the near future. Mr. White was a recent visitor to Indianapolis.

Dogs, Fish and Mr. Barnhill

The Penn Phonograph Co. reports that business has been fair in June and that records have been coming through a little more promptly. Mr. Barnhill, who recently seems to have developed an unusual passion for animals, and especially the dog, is turning that penchant into good hard cash in the production of "His Master's Voice" in great quantities. On a recent visit I found a large aquarium of goldfish on Mr. Barnhill's desk, and have been wondering how they were to be used, but it must be for some commercial purpose.

Earl G. Dare Back With Penn Co.

Sergeant Major Earl G. Dare, who recently returned from France where he was with the 32d Division, has assumed his old position with the Penn Co. Recent visitors were C. N. Andrews, of Buffalo, N. Y., and J. W. Bridge, of Lock Haven, Pa., Leon Wittich, of the Wittich store, Reading Pa., K. H. Troop, of the Troop Music House, Harrisburg, Pa. The Troop firm is at present building a special record room, and will add several additional demonstration booths, making a total of fourteen.

Recent Visitors From Other Cities

George Gwehr recently visited this city and called at a number of different stores. He is making extensive alterations at his Wilmington, Del., talking machine store, which, it is said, will cost him $40,000, and when completed will be the finest wareroom in this line in the State of Delaware. Mr. Holland, of the Roeblyn Piano Co., of Wilmington, was also here looking over the Philadelphia places to complete the plans that he has already made for the improvement of his warerooms. H. E. Gardner, of the Columbia, recently spent several days among the firm's trade in Pennsylvania. A clever young woman talking machine representative, Miss Frankel, was in this city recently calling on the trade, representing the Sterling Talking Machine Co.

Riggins Piano Co. Opens

The Riggins Piano Co., also extensive handlers of talking machines, had the opening of their new store on July 1, where more than double the former space will be given to the talking machine department.

E. E. Hipple, of the sales force of the Penn. has taken his family to Chelsea, Atlantic City, for the summer, and T. R. Clarke, of the same house, is spending the summer with his family at Pitman Grove, N. J.

over previous months, and I am very optimistic over the prospects, and believe that conditions are going to be normal in a very short time."

Gus Pleibel, for many years connected with the Weymann talking machine department, recently returned from France and assumed his old position. John J. Powers, formerly at the head of the talking machine department of the George W. Huver Co., and who was in France for a year and a half, recently resumed his old post. A. P. Ackley, the talking machine dealer at 3161 Frankford avenue, is making extensive improvements in his store. C. G. Gardner, the Eastern supervisor of the Edison, was a recent Philadelphia visitor.

Eckhardt Takes Talking Book Agency

Walter Eckhardt, the jobber and retailer here of the Pathé, has just taken the agency for the distribution of the Talking Book Corporation's little "Talkers." His territory covers Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia, North Carolina and Virginia. He has already placed these "Talkers" with the following firms: John Wanamaker, Philadelphia; Munger & Long, Camden, N. J.; Kauffman & Baer; Joseph Horne & Co., and Boggs & Buhl, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and the Schuldenfrei Dry Goods Co., of Atlantic City, N. J. R. S. Hibsman, who was recently with the Aeolian Co., has taken charge of Mr. Eckhardt's talking book department.

Mr. Eckhardt is at present very much engaged in the completion of a sales manual that he has been preparing for some time. It will give practical hints from a practical and successful dealer in talking machines.

Weymann & Son Add Music Rolls

H. A. Weymann & Son, well-known Victor and musical instrument distributors of this city, have found it expedient to add player rolls to their line. Many dealers on their list also carried music rolls and in the interest of efficiency and quick service H. A. Weymann & Son decided to make this addition to their stock. H. W. Weymann, who is in charge of this department, said: "The dealers will thus become identified with our three leading lines in their localities, all of which are of a quality that is indisputable. I look forward to fall with a most optimistic view and feel that the supply in all three lines will be greatly increased over corresponding months of last year." H. W. Weymann and family are spending the summer at Atlantic City, as usual, stopping at the Hotel Dennis.

COLUMBIA MEN BACK FROM FRANCE

D. V. B. Allen, formerly connected with the general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., returned recently from France with the rank of lieutenant after fourteen months' service in the U. S. Army. Mr. Allen has resumed his connection with the general sales department.

E. B. Shiddell, formerly manager of the Columbia Co.'s branch at Dallas, who resigned to go overseas with the U. S. Army, returned from France this week as a lieutenant, bearing the insignia of the Croix de Guerre and the Victory Ribbon with two stars. Mr. Shiddell will probably resume his association with the Columbia sales division in the near future.

The Central Talking Machine Shop, New York, has been incorporated with capital stock of $50,000 to manufacture talking machines.

TO REPRESENT AMERICAN MAKERS

William Gerner, of Chicago, to Visit Scandinavian Countries and Study Music Trade Conditions There for American Interests

CHICAGO, ILL., July 2.—William Gerner, for over thirty years a member of the Chicago piano trade, leaves Thursday of this week for New York, whence he will sail within a fortnight for a four months' European trip, a greater part of which time will be spent in Norway, Sweden and Denmark. The trip is taken with a view to studying conditions in the music trades of these countries and other European States in order to open them up for American-made pianos, players, organs, phonographs, music rolls, cabinets, benches and specialties. Mr. Gerner, himself a native of Norway, has already taken several trips to Scandinavia and in the past has done considerable export business. He is now entering this field on a permanent basis and expects to promote American trade with Scandinavia and vice versa. He will have associated with him his son, William Gerner, Jr., who recently received his discharge in France after sixteen months' active service with the A. E. F., and who is now visiting the music dealers abroad. While in New York Mr. Gerner will interview manufacturers with a view to obtaining representation of their products. His address while in that city will be the Swedish-American Chamber of Commerce. His foreign office will be 1 Graensen, Christiania, Norway, and the American office is 4909 Broadway, Chicago. A comprehensive system of export service has been devised.

BOOKED GOOD ORDERS ON TRIP

Fred S. Solton, of the sales staff of the New York Album & Card Co., has just returned from a five weeks' trip throughout the trade. This was Mr. Solton's first trip after his return from service abroad. He was well pleased with the reception given him by his old friends in the trade, which took tangible form in the volume of orders received. Mr. Solton found business conditions very good throughout, and was impressed with the recent growth of the trade.

Victory Rose Festival an Event of Last Month—Big Demand for Victrolas—Wiley B. Allen Operations—Dealers Placing Heavy Orders for Fall and Winter Demands—Other News

PORTLAND, ORE., July 5.—The Victory Rose Festival was the important event of last month in this city. It rather interfered with the business of the talking machine houses during the three days when the parades occupied the attention of the thousands of visitors who crowded the streets, but the after-effects of the festival were stimulating to the summer trade.

Charles H. Carder, of the Victrola department of Sherman, Clay & Co., has had orders for Victrolas from as far east as eastern Pennsylvania, orders which it has been impossible for him to fill on account of the shortage of stock. A firm in Crown Point, Ind., wrote to him and asked him if he could fill an order for them in twelve months, but Mr. Carder was absolutely unable to give them any assurance that the order could be filled even then. The demand in Portland and surrounding country for Victor machines is increasing.

Extensive alterations are being made in the Wiley B. Allen store. The record department will be put on the floor in which the shop is now located and this will make that department one of the largest and most complete on the Coast. Frank Case, manager of the local house, says that everything will be done to increase the efficiency of this department and make it comfortable and pleasant.

Paul B. Norris, manager of the Wiley B. Allen talking machine department, has made more than his usual number of big sales during the month of June. A good stock of machines and a fine supply of records is on hand.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. is extensively advertising the Cheney phonograph. Cheney style 1 is the big seller of the summer season. It is in great demand for dancing, and its popularity increases every day.

The Remick Song Shop has such pleasant well-ventilated demonstration rooms that many of the young people who visit this store for the purpose of buying sheet music go into these rooms and buy Columbia records. The new venture of the Remick Song Shop is well looked after by Mrs. Frances Powell.

L. D. Heater, of the Columbia Graphophone Co., reports very satisfactory business. The dealers are calling for the L-2 Columbia, a $225 instrument, which is a sensational seller. Mr. Heater says there is an extraordinary demand for big machines, although vacation models are wanted at present. The dealers here have been seriously handicapped by not being able to furnish these small models, which are so desirable for automobile trips, campers, and so forth.

A big shipment of records, including a fine assortment of foreign records, has just been received at the Columbia Grafonola shop.

Miss Reils, in charge of the record department of the Reed-French Co., has made some good sales during the month.

George W. Haskins, of the Burmeister & Anderson Co., Oregon City, Ore., who are dealers in Columbia and Edison phonographs, was a recent visitor.

A shipment of thirty-two Brunswick machines has just been received by the Wakefield Music Co.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. have a very handsome new sign in front of the entrance on Sixth street. The famous Victor trade-mark forms the upper portion of the sign, the word Victrola being shown in large letters beneath the firm's name. It is a double sign and equipped with flashes so that the sides are alternately light and dark.

H. E. L'Anglaise, of the Remick Song Shop, is in Portland at present getting Columbia stock for the Wade fibre needle cutter.

Taylor C. White, 309 Stock Exchange Building, exclusive jobber in talking machine accessories, is making a phenomenal success with his entire line. He has just closed a deal whereby he becomes the exclusive jobber for Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho and Montana for the Wade fiber needle cutter.

G. C. Cook has become sales manager for the Taylor C. White line. Mr. Cook is making a tour of the Coast States.

The Wax-Wilson Co., which is the distributor for the Tone-Clear, is having splendid success in handling the record cleaner and renewer.

It has just sold one concern in San Francisco $10,800 worth of the article.

Foley & Van Dyke are very fortunate in having a goodly stock of small machines on hand, which are in such demand during the summer months. Mr. Foley said that they took the advice of Frank McGallaird, representative of the Victor Co., who visited Portland a few months ago, and bought pretty heavily of small Victor machines.

Calef Bros. are placing very interesting advertisements in the local papers calling attention to the Pathé phonograph.

A new index card system has been devised by E. B. Hyatt, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co. All of his assistants are enthusiastic over the new method, which is a big improvement over any system formerly used.

M. W. Davis, manager of the Edwards Furniture Co.'s talking machine department, is one of Portland's best salesmen. He has sold a goodly number of small machines for camping and outing trips and in three days' time sold in addition five $200 Brunswicks, and a $225 Brunswick, and at present writing there is not a $200 Brunswick in stock.

The talking machine department of the Bush & Lane Co. continues to grow in popularity. More cash sales than usual have been made the past month.

Keenan & Jahn, Detroit, Mich., have opened a new store devoted exclusively to the display of talking machines and records.

Distinctive Features

The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same center in both positions.

Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.

The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.

The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers.

Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.

The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.

The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.

The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

TALKING MACHINE MEN, INC., MEET

Plans Completed for Strong Membership Drive
—Join National Association of Music Merchants—New Service Bureau Working Well

At the monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., the organization composed of talking machine dealers of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, held on the 18th day of last month, a full report of the plans for intensive campaign for membership which starts to-day (July 15) was presented.

The campaign will open with a luncheon at the McAlpin Hotel, where the membership teams and the dealers will be addressed by George W. Pound, general counsel and manager of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. The drive for new members will end shortly before the annual outing of the association, which is scheduled to take place at Rye Beach August 13.

E. G. Brown, secretary of the association, reported on his trip to Chicago early in June, when he was authorized to join the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. This the organization accomplished by affiliating with the National Association of Music Merchants, who are already represented in the chamber.

J. J. Davin, who has been taking an active part in the membership drive as well as in the new service bureau of the association, spoke for both committees. In the report on the new service bureau he showed that in many ways they were compiling data, etc., which will be most helpful to the dealers making use of the material. The committee will also enlist the services of Ed Usoskin and Otto Goldsmith. The former is already supplying much material to dealers through his sign service organization and the latter makes a specialty of jobbing in special accessories and materials for dealers.

The membership committee was authorized to have a button made containing the names of the individual dealers of the association, these to be worn at meetings and outings as a means of recognition, as well as to encourage the dealers to make the acquaintance of all the members of the association. This plan is followed by the Rotary Club and other organizations and is a good idea.

ISSUE THEIR INITIAL CATALOG

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., July 1.—The Grand Rapids Phonograph Co. of this city have issued their initial catalog to the trade. The book has been very attractively and artistically produced and the engravings portray realistically the nine models constituting the entire line. Five of the models are of the upright type and four of the Console type. All are in period designs, and the periods used are Chippendale, Louis XVI. Queen Anne, Adam and Sheraton.

BACK ON PEACE BASIS

Harry B. Haring has joined the general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., but has not yet been given a definite assignment. He was formerly with the Fourth New York Infantry and was later captain of a machine gun company, and saw several months' service with the A. E. F. in France.

NEW SONORA PERIOD DESIGN SHOWN

Italian Renaissance Model One of the Handsomest in Entire Sonora Period Family

Perhaps one of the handsomest of the Sonora Period family, namely, the Italian Renaissance Sonora, has just been brought to the public attention. This Italian Renaissance model is remarkably beautiful in both lines and in color. Due to the fact that furniture of this period is in vogue at this time, such a model is unusually timely. The cabinet will be forty inches high, twenty-six inches deep with a width of forty-six inches. It will be finished in oak and walnut, and all exposed metal parts are of antique gold finish. The Sonora phonograph quality is brought to its highest development in this model and the usual Sonora features, such as the motor meter, the tone arm and the tone modifier, are used in connection with it.

Sonora Italian Renaissance

Jazz records are big sellers with the Culp Bros. Piano Co., Inc., Fort Smith, Ark.

Jealous! Ambitious! Selfish! Proud!

GUILTY? Yes! Guilty on every count, and, what's more, we glory in it because back of it all is a Big, Generous, Impelling Motive.

JEALOUS of what others have done—AMBITIOUS to do more. SELFISH lest we may not do most—yet PROUD of what we already have done for the betterment of the TALKING MACHINE INDUSTRY and for the joy of phonograph users the world over. What have we done?

We Have Given to the World

The Universal Talking Machine Needle Supreme!

"Tonofone"

The Semi-Permanent
Needle That's Different

THE NEEDLE WITH THE WONDERFUL TONE-PRODUCING ELASTICUM TIP

"Tonofone" tip is plastic—not hard and harsh. It is elastic—not stiff and rigid. It is pliable—not brash and brittle. It is cylindrical, of correct diameter and blunt pointed—not tapered and sharp. Therefore it will not widen with use nor scratch like other needles. That's why each Tonofone plays 50 or more standard records without injury.

ITS TONES ARE MARVELOUSLY PURE!

"Tonofone" is not a loud needle, but brings out all the tone-value of the record without the scratch. It does not sacrifice the tone quality for the sake of volume. It is the "needle of quality."

ITS ARTICULATION IS AMAZINGLY CLEAR!

"Tonofone" tip being plastic and elastic, quickly shapes itself to the groove and picks out every one of those wonderful microscopic sound waves, thereby giving a perfect reproduction which no needle of any other construction can do.

OTHERS MAY IMITATE—NONE CAN DUPLICATE!

"Tonofone" makes the talking machine all but human—makes it sing and talk just like the human voice—makes it play instrumental music like the instruments themselves in master hands.

IT MAKES ALL RECORDS BETTER! IT MAKES GOOD RECORDS GREAT!
IT IS THE "MASTER NEEDLE"!

"Tonofone" is not an experiment—it has stood every known test. Musically, mechanically and scientifically, it is correct. It has set a new standard in "Phonography."

THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., July 3.—These are the days when business is expected to let up; no establishment looks for a serious drain on its line of machines or of records, although the shore and mountain business that has been developed the past few years has been surprisingly great. Machines that are especially popular are the lower priced ones, such as are adapted to camps and canoes, and to-day there is scarcely a lake or river resort where one will find a canoe without a machine. One hears of splendid prospects, and big ones, too, that will materialize in the fall, for good business is in the air. It is the lucky and businesslike dealer that plans now to place his fall order for goods, for there promises to be a shortage for those who are not early in the field.

Death of Russell L. Steinert

Robert S. Steinert, head of the Arch street Victor Department of the M. Steinert & Sons Co., has had the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the trade in the loss by death of his elder brother, Russell L. Steinert, president of the Jewett Piano Co., and associated also with the Steinert house. The young man while at a family outing dived into shallow water and hit his head on the bottom, so injuring himself that he died the following day at a hospital. Russell Steinert had been in business only a few years, following his graduation from Dartmouth College in the class of '12, and he had a most promising career before him.

Aeolian-Vocalion Forces Hold Picnic

The Boston Chapter of the Aeolian-Vocalion Co. held a picnic at Norumbega Park the last Saturday in June, and it was "some party." Manager T. W. Hindley was insistent that everybody should have a good time and between sports and dancing and canoeing and a good supper the company spent a pleasant afternoon and evening. In fact, so well pleased were all the members of Manager Hindley's staff that they may get together again at some resort before the end of the season. This organization, which was started less than two months ago, is accomplishing all that was bespoken for it, and it is developing a fine esprit de corps among all the employes.

Signs Up Many New Dealers

Manager Oscar W. Ray, of the Emerson New England, reports that the new 10-inch record just introduced has been a good seller from the start, and dealers are eager to get a large supply of them. Mr. Ray has lately been over in New York and Bridgeport, Conn., this trip being taken in part in connection with the company's plan to develop an international and foreign business for its product, and already 100 accounts have been opened throughout the New England territory. The Metropolitan Furniture Co. in Springfield, Charles F. Boardman in Gloucester and I. F. Corinha in Woburn are some of the new dealers who have lately been signed up.

M. C. Perkins in Partnership With Brother

One of the important changes to be announced this month is the resignation of M. C. Perkins, the right-hand man to Manager Fred E. Mann at the Columbia wholesale headquarters. Mr. Perkins, who has had a long and valuable connection with this company, has gone into partnership with his brother, A. M. Perkins; and the Perkins Music Store, located in the Auditorium Building, Malden, is the result of the combination. This new store was briefly referred to in this department last month, at which time it had been in operation about two weeks. In the meantime the Columbia business has been coming along at such a rate, for this is exclusively a Columbia store, that Mr. Perkins felt obliged to give all of his time to the enterprise much sooner than he had expected. Mr. Perkins was six years with the Chambers street, New York, quarters of the Columbia, and thereafter until coming to Boston he was manager of the Springfield store. Mr. Perkins has made many friends in Boston and both office employes and dealers will miss him greatly; but all are wishing him the best of success.

To succeed Mr. Perkins, Fred R. Smith has been brought over from the New York offices, where he has been well trained in the particular line of work he is called upon to take up here. Mr. Smith is a brother of Assistant Manager Smith, of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia. He reached Boston about the middle of the month.

Manager Mann, of the Columbia, spent considerable time the middle of the month in an inspection tour of the various Columbia agencies in Massachusetts and southern New England. He returned to Boston with a new fund of enthusiasm not only for the Columbia dealers, but for the volume of present business done and the fine prospects for the late summer and fall.

Showing New Vocalion Model

A new Vocalion model, No. 620, which will be included in the fall catalog of the company, is being shown at the Boylston street warerooms of the Vocalion and is being well spoken of by those who have examined into its merits. The handsome fivefold screen, "The Siren of Music," which attracts so much attention as the background for the Vocalion's window display.

A. E. Russell, of the Vocalion staff, recently spent a half-day studying the intricacies of the Vocalion laboratories and another half-day making a similar visit to the Columbia laboratories.

Install Larger Booth Equipment

Kraft, Bates & Spencer are having installed at their Boylston street warerooms a series of Unit booths which are being put in by the Unit Construction Co. There are to be six on one side and seven on the other and the general finish is to be old ivory. These booths are to occupy considerable of the floor space of the warerooms. Harry Spencer is giving his personal attention to the work. With the addition of these booths the warerooms will be especially well fitted to demonstrate the Brunswick proposition, with which the company is having marked success.

Developing Outlying Territory

A recent visitor to Boston was J. E. Pollard, manager of the United Talking Machine Co., of Rutland, Vt., which carries a large line of Columbia goods. Mr. Pollard says that he has lately installed a system of motor trucks which promise to perform a valuable service for the outlying territory, and he adds that he already has seen the good effects of this system as the business in the more distant sections has been wonderfully developed in a short time.

Found Business Moving Well

Joseph H. Burke got back toward the end of June from a week's trip among the principal centers of Connecticut, where he found business moving along in tip-top shape. He says that the trade everywhere is feeling in fine shape and they all are booked up with orders far ahead. Mr. Burke is planning to get away some time in July on a vacation with his family, but as yet he is undecided just where to go, although he leans toward a salt water trip. J. C. Morris, president of the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., was in town the middle of the month and expressed himself as well pleased with the way business is forging ahead in this territory.

Model Booth Near Completion

The model booth to be installed by the Unit Construction Co. at the large quarters of the Eastern Talking Machine Co. in Essex street is not reaching the state of completion as quickly as hoped for. The material now is all on hand and work on it will be rushed, so that it will be ready for use early this month.

It was found on the German submarine U-11, when she was surrendered to the Allies and made the trip from Plymouth, Eng., to New York City manned by officers and crew of the United States Navy. This record was presented to Robert S. Weeks, who was very prominent in the last Liberty Loan campaign, by the American commander of the U-boat when the boat was on a recent visit to Boston.

Some Brieflets

George Lincoln Parker, the Colonial Building Edison dealer, went down to Providence the latter part of June for his class reunion at Brown University.

Harold Clapp, who has been serving with the Twenty-sixth Division, and is now discharged from service, is again in charge of the talking machine department of Frank Ferdinand's store out in Roxbury.

Joins Forces in Boston

H. M. Blakeborough, who for quite a time was the New Haven, Conn., manager of the Columbia, has come to Boston, where he is associated with Arthur Erisman in the conduct of the Grafonola Co. of New England. Mr. Blakeborough at the New Haven establishment has been succeeded by H. L. Moorey, who has been one of the assistant auditors. Mr. Blakeborough has been in New Haven more than ten years.

Frank K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager of the Columbia, was a visitor here a short time ago, making his headquarters at Manager Mann's offices.

Vacations Now Under Way

E. J. Silliman, in charge of the record department of the Columbia, is the first of the Columbia forces to go away on his vacation; in fact, he is already home, following a pleasant two weeks in the country.

J. F. Carr, for the Columbia, started on a fortnight's trip toward the latter part of the month and his itinerary included Albany, N. Y., a trip down the Hudson and a several days' visit

General Manager Herbert Shoemaker, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., who is forging ahead most commendably, has been attending the Victor jobbers' convention at Atlantic City, where he met many of his old friends. Charles H. Farnsworth, president of the Eastern Co., was lately over at the Victor factory, remaining there for several days.

On Visit to Chicago

Harry Spencer, of the firm of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, whose house carries the Brunswick, was a Chicago visitor early in the month, having gone there for the convention of the piano men.

Did Surprising Business

Clarence W. Hill, manager of the Music Shop, located in the Meeting House Hill section of Dorchester, and which is an exclusive Columbia shop, did a surprising first day's business when he opened up a few weeks ago.

United Co. Takes on Another Floor

The United Talking Machine Co. of Brockton, Mass., has just added another floor to its talking machine department. The company's business has developed so rapidly of late that this addition was absolutely necessary to meet the demands of its customers. With this additional space there will be better opportunity to display a number of art models for which there was not room before. The company is planning to handle a line of pianos later on at not only its store here, but at its places in Plymouth and Willimantic, Conn.

Attended Edison Convention

Boston was well represented at the Edison convention in New York. Among those attending from this city were Manager Frederick H. Silliman and the four traveling men of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co., L. H. Ripley, F. S. Boyd, Guy R. Coner and E. B. Compton; William E. Birdsall, of the F. H. Thomas Co.; Francis White, of the Edison department of the C. C. Harvey Co., and Lawrence Barry, of the same company's Lynn store.

Kenneth Read, traveling man for the Victor department of the Steinert house, was one of those going over for the Victor convention in Atlantic City this week. Mr. Read made the trip by boat from Boston to New York. Prior to starting for the convention he made a tour of the Steinert houses through New England and was away for a week. Robert A. Steinert, manager of the Victor department, had planned to go to Atlantic City also, but the sudden death of his brother, mentioned elsewhere, caused him to abandon the trip.

The Edison parlors of the M. L. Parker Co., Davenport, Ia., have issued a new booklet for Edison dealers and prospects in that territory.

WINS REDUCED RATES FOR NEEDLES

Walter S. Gray Wins Fight for Proper Rates From Railroad Authorities—Big Saving

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., July 3.—Walter S. Gray has won the deepest gratitude of the talking machine dealers, not only of the Pacific Coast, but throughout the entire United States, for his strenuous work with the railroad authorities on the subject of rates on talking machine needles. For years the rate on needles has been double that of talking machines and parts. Many efforts have been made to convince the Western Classification Committee of the railroads that this was an erroneous classification, but without effect, until recently Mr. Gray took the matter in hand, with the result that talking machine needles are now classed as talking machine parts and bear the same freight rate. This is a clear saving of 50 per cent. of the former rate. The saving for the dealers in dollars and cents will be considerable, and many have expressed their appreciation of Mr. Gray's work.

The Culp Phonograph Co., New York City, are taking advantage of the summer months to bring their line forcibly to the attention of the trade. In this way A. Culp, president of the company, is planning to equalize the rush of the latter months of the year.

WIDMANN RETURNS FROM SIX WEEKS' EUROPEAN TRIP

President of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. Confirms Report That His House Will Handle All Pathé Phonograph Products for Entire Western Hemisphere—Schipa to Record for Pathé

E. A. Widmann, president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., arrived in New York Monday, June 30, on the French liner "Lorraine," after a six weeks' absence. Mr. Widmann confirmed the report previously received by cable stating that he had contracted with Pathé Frères in Paris to handle as from July 1 all the Pathé phonograph products for the entire Western Hemisphere, Great Britain, her colonies and possessions. Mr. Widmann announces that under this arrangement the British company, its stock, plant and policy will hereafter be controlled by his American company. In behalf of the American company Mr. Widmann has arranged with M. Jacques Pathé and M. Emile Pathé to act as managers in London. Since the war started the French Pathé Company have erected extensive factories in London, but these will be at once greatly enlarged so as to be a duplicate of the Brooklyn plant, which is now being extended to cover the whole block on Grand avenue from Flushing to Park avenue. Mr. Widmann said that records in France are selling at a very much higher price than in America, but that in London, although selling at a very much higher price than before the war, records are selling at about the same price charged in America.

Mr. Widmann also announces that Pathé has made an exclusive contract for the recordings of Tito Schipa, said to be one of the most wonderful tenors in France. Schipa's reception in the Royal Opera House at Madrid was greater than that ever given any other operatic artist. He is now in South America, where he will sing during the season, and later on will go to Chicago as leading Italian tenor with the Chicago Opera Association.

VAN WICKLE CO. REBUILDING

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 2.—Work is rapidly being completed on the new building of the Van Wickle Piano Co., Washington, D. C., and present indications are that the quarters will be ready for occupancy some time before the middle of the present month. Many important changes have been made in the structure at 1217 F street, which was destroyed by fire some months ago, and the new home of the Van Wickle Piano Co. will be able to take care of the increasing business of this concern. A large stock of pianos has been ordered from the manufacturers and in addition to pianos the Victor and Columbia talking machines will be handled.

The Starr phonograph and Gennett records are featured by the advertising of the Music Shop, Pittsburg, Kans.

FOUR-STATE ASSOCIATION PLANNED IN CLEVELAND

Plan to Organize Dealers of Ohio and Neighboring States in One Body to Be Taken Up This Week—Cleveland Trade Happenings

CLEVELAND, O., July 7.—The Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio will hold its monthly meeting July 17, when reports upon efforts to form an organization of dealers in four States—Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Michigan—may be received. It is proposed, if possible, to make Cleveland the headquarters of the four-State association, because dealers in this section of the Middle West recognize that the organization in Northern Ohio is a model one.

Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., distributor and retailer of Victor machines, and former president of the Cleveland association, is looking after the preliminary work of forming the proposed new body in Ohio. Charles Grinnell is doing a similar line of work in Michigan.

Several Cleveland men were among those who attended the conference of Victor jobbers and dealers in Atlantic City, the last week in June. Mr. Bennett headed the Clevelanders. Others included Charles Maresh, of the Maresh Piano Co., and M. O. Matlin, of the Home Piano Co.

The Cleveland Music Trades Association, several of whose members are handling talking machines, will have a picnic and outing at the country home of A. B. Smith, head of the A. B. Smith Piano Co., of Akron, O., and president of the association, July 14.

Talking machine dealers are pleased over the outcome of an effort of piano movers to raise their prices. A strike was threatened several weeks ago by these movers but a compromise was reached by dealers agreeing to pay certain competent men what they wanted and in some instances even more, leaving the incompetent mover without much real backing, so they never struck. The same agreement was reached with the piano tuners who wanted increased pay for their services. The best tuners are well paid.

Talking machine and piano dealers do not like the system some manufacturers have of billing pianos and talking machines and the boxes containing them on one bill.

Frank Jackson, a talking machine salesman, of St. Louis, was among the Cleveland visitors recently.

The big July Fourth home-coming celebration in Cleveland in honor of the city's discharged soldiers gave an impetus to music rolls, talking machine records and sheet music of the patriotic type. Cleveland's Director of Parks and Public Property, Floyd E. Waite, backed by the financial resources of the Mayor's advisory war board, staged a $10,000 pageant, "Democracy in the Making," in one of the parks. This was supplemented by a community chorus of 2,000 voices in the open air. Prof. Haper Garcia Smyth directing the army of singers. About 1,500 persons participated in the pageant. Parades, pyrotechnical displays, street carnivals and concerts by bands added to the day's festivities. The demand for talking machine records reproducing war songs and patriotic music was exceptionally brisk, all dealers said.

The Starr Piano Co. has just added a big line of phonographs to the stock of the firm's four Cleveland retail stores. Since the war ended the Starr factory, in Richmond, Ind., has been rushing to make up lost time on orders for talking machines.

Even the signing of the peace treaty has not brought out from under the ban talking machine records reproducing German songs. This class of records, when banned several months ago by members of the talking machine dealers' association, included about 1,000 titles. The Muehlhauser Brothers Piano Co. is featuring $1,000 Corona phonographs in July Fourth window displays. The Cheney Sales Co., 4614 Euclid avenue, distributor for the Cheney phonograph, is making big strides for new avenues of business in Cleveland and throughout northeastern Ohio.

T. H. Towell, president of the Eclipse Musical Co., says that the talking machine business is just getting "its findings" with music lovers. In addition to his talking machine interests he is president of the Cleveland-Cadillac Co., wholesaler and retailer in Cadillac and Dodge automobiles. The distributing department of the Eclipse Musical Co. is located on the second floor of this building, while the company's retail store is located a few blocks down Euclid avenue, in the heart of the city's shopping district.

The Brunswick phonograph machine is not only holding its own among others in Cleveland but is steadily finding a stronger foothold among lovers of high-class phonographs for home amusement. The firm's branch store, in Huron road, is always well stocked with machines.

The Young Furniture Co., which operates two of the largest house furnishing emporiums in Cleveland, is constantly adding to its talking machine line of stock.

The Glendale Phonograph & Piano Co., of Glendale, Cal., has leased a store in Burbank, and when alterations are completed this new branch will be run by the Salmanica brothers.

REMARKABLE DEVELOPMENT OF TRADE IN SAN FRANCISCO

Music Stores Rapidly Being Outnumbered—Heineman Progress—Recording Numbers of Talking Machines—Widdicomb Display at Baldwin's—Business Brisk, With Satisfactory Outlook

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., June 28.—Perhaps nowhere else in the country has the talking machine business shown such a remarkable development in proportion to the population as on the Pacific Coast. It seems but a short time since the business was a mere side issue of the music trade, while now the number of stores devoted exclusively to talking machine goods probably outnumber the regular music establishments. In the large cities some of these stores are regal in their equipment and occupy the most prominent locations in the business districts. The music houses, without exception almost, have been compelled to devote their most attractive space to the talking machine departments and judging by the vast amount of alteration work going on the future prospects are very bright. The shortage of standard machines is a great inconvenience to the trade, but there is no lack of new makes. The rapid increase in the number of manufacturers on the Coast is somewhat disconcerting and one wonders how success can be possible with most of them, especially when prices are being maintained on so firm a basis as they are at present. The general report is that the more expensive machines show the strongest demand.

Though only established in San Francisco a few months, the Pacific Coast branch of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., has already had to increase both its office force and storeroom space. L. Gruen, the manager, is gratified that his company has been so liberal in supplying him with stock notwithstanding the heavy Eastern demands upon the factories and he says this fact has done much to gain him the goodwill of the Coast trade. By making prompt deliveries he has won the confidence of his new customers and has established a reputation for excellent service. Jobbers in all the principal cities of the Pacific Coast region now handle Heineman goods and show a disposition to co-operate with Mr. Gruen in developing the market, both for the popular OkeH records and the various specialties. The repair department in San Francisco fills an urgent need and is kept busy all the time. Most of the Heineman and Meisselbach products can be repaired here without sending East. The 6C soundbox, the new product recently introduced to the trade, is considered a wonder for tone quality and volume. Some of the largest manufacturers of talking machines on the Coast are using it exclusively in their machines.

The Talking Machine Dealers' Association of the San Francisco Bay District, at their last business meeting, adopted a policy of recording the number of each machine which is brought in for repairs at the various repair shops, with the idea of keeping track of all machines. Thus stolen machines may be traced more easily and the dealers given greater protection against irresponsible buyers. A special list of missing machines will be placed with all the dealers so that they can be on the lookout for them. This co-operative measure helps to solve one of the most puzzling problems in the business. Other progressive plans will be discussed at the next business meeting.

F. A. Levy, president of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association and president of the California Phonograph Co., has planned to leave this week for an extended Eastern trip, combining business and pleasure. He will study conditions in the Eastern trade with the idea of discovering new wrinkles for the Coast business.

The latest arrival at the Sonora Shop on Stockton street is the beautiful $140 model called the "Nocturne." This machine will prove a winner, thinks E. C. Johnstone, the store manager, as it combines the best features of the Sonora machines with a popular price. Business on high-priced machines is encouraging. The special featuring of the Sonora Invincible has already borne good results. The demand for machines for country homes has increased this year, as the exodus to the country this summer is unusually heavy.

Andrew McCarthy, of Sherman, Clay & Co., is attending the annual jinks of the Bohemian Club at Bohemian Grove on the Russian River, an event which he never misses. Four members of the company are at the grove this year. Sherman, Clay & Co. are making extensive alterations in both their Tacoma and Spokane stores.

The talking machine departments will be greatly enlarged and improved by the addition of some of the newest equipment features.

R. E. Wolfinger, of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is about to leave for his annual vacation. This year he will visit the Yosemite and also southern California as far as San Diego. The chances are he will cross the Mexican border. Tijuana promises to be a popular resort for Americans in the very near future.

The Baldwin Piano Co., of San Francisco, has been displaying on the main floor for the last few weeks the line of Widdicomb phonographs manufactured in Grand Rapids. Mr. Thompson says he is trying out the idea of selling talking machines on the piano floor and if the scheme proves sufficiently attractive he will make it a permanent feature of the business. Some of the piano salesmen are former talking machine specialists. No records are carried.

New Pathé agencies recently established by Omer Kruschke, the Pacific Coast Pathé jobber, are: The Morgan Furniture Co., Livermore; J. R. Ricks, Dinuba, and Miller & Pinell, of Porterville.

Columbia business is heavy all along the line. Mr. Milnor, manager of the San Francisco office, has been calling on the Columbia agencies in the San Joaquin, and says the prosperous condition of the interior means a continuance of good talking machine and record business. The traveling force of the company has not yet been able to let up on activity despite the summer vacation season. Mr. Milnor attended the national convention of the Rotary Clubs at Salt Lake City June 16 to 21. Byron Mauzy, of San Francisco, also attended it on his way to the Piano Merchants' convention in Chicago.

BUFFALO CONTINUES TO BE A LIVELY TRADE CENTER

Fire Visits Neal, Clark & Neal Store—Confined to Basement and Rear—Andrews in New Wholesale Headquarters—Hoffman Expansion—Placing Orders Now for Holiday Stock—New Brunswick Agents—News of Month

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 2.—Fire visited the retail store of Neal, Clark & Neal, Victrola agents, on the evening of July 1. The loss was caused by fire, water and smoke and is estimated at $10,000. The fire was confined to the basement and rear and was held in check on account of the excellent judgment of the firemen. Several of them, who wore gas masks, were overcome by the smoke. The blaze broke out in the evening and after working about two hours the firemen had it under control. The place was kept open all night and the fans in the booths and the overhead suction fans were in operation until morning in driving out the smoke. Very few machines were damaged and the store was open for business as usual next day. B. E. Neal and O. L. Neal were absent at the time. They were attending the Victor Jobbers' convention at Atlantic City. They were reached by long-distance telephone by W. J. Bruehl, sales manager of the store, who apprised them of the fire. Mr. Bruehl sent a letter to all the Buffalo newspapers, in which he praised the good work of the firemen, who in extinguishing the blaze worked carefully and minimized the damage to the elaborate store.

W. H. Reilly recently arranged a beautiful New Edison window for the Utley Piano Co.'s store. There was a background of green lattice work in an arch effect and across the top were the words, "New Edison." The central feature of the display was an official laboratory model.

W. D. and C. N. Andrews have moved into their beautiful new wholesale headquarters in the Builders' Exchange at Pearl and Court streets. Complete details of the improvements in the building, of which they are owners, will be given later. C. N. Andrews and Mrs. Andrews attended the convention of Victor jobbers at Atlantic City. He and a member of his staff went on the trade-boosting excursion of the Buffalo wholesale merchants and manufacturers and furnished a Victrola for the trip. F. P. Besser recently returned to his former position with the firm. He served with the 106th Field Artillery in France. For a time he attended the American artillery school at Samur, France.

The Hoffman Piano Co., distributor of the Okeh records in this territory, is daily adding to its list of dealers. The Hoffman Co. has received a new shipment of these records and an abundance of high-class literature pertaining to them. "These new records are remarkably clear, distinct and full-toned," said L. M. Cole, manager of the Hoffman talking machine department. "We are planning for a great fall campaign on this merchandise."

With the temperature reaching the hundred mark, Buffalo's talking machine dealers are fixing their minds on Christmas. The reason is that on account of the shortage of goods many of them are wisely placing their holiday orders now. This they are doing for their own protection. So far as summer trade is concerned there is an extra heavy demand for summer portables, which fill the bill most satisfactorily. There is also a lively call for expensive models. Working people are demanding the best in talking machines and have plenty of money to buy high quality goods.

W. H. Tyler has been appointed a salesman for the William Hengerer Co.'s Victrola department. H. J. Childs, assistant manager, has a large acquaintanceship among Buffalo's downtown business men and this connection has helped him in making many sales.

"Please send in my subscription to The Talking Machine World," he said. "I want to be fully informed all the time and The World is by far the best medium."

L. H. Scott, manager of the Hengerer Victrola department, says that despite the hot weather business is better than last year.

Among the firms which have lately been appointed Brunswick agents are the Koskie Music Co., Hornell; the Andrews Piano Co., Jamestown, N. Y., and Arthur M. Ferris, Utica. Speaking of the foregoing concerns, J. R. Flynn, manager of the Brunswick branch in Buffalo, said: "On account of the high standing of these firms our head office decided to add them to the Brunswick family. The dealers of this section of the country are keeping the Buffalo branch busy explaining that it is impossible to take on any more dealers. Many of our best dealers are placing their Christmas orders in self-defense as they are seeing the light."

The young ladies employed by Denton, Cottier & Daniels recently held an enjoyable picnic at Delaware Park. Among the features was a ball game, which ended in a tie score. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Daniels treated the picnickers to a motor trip through Buffalo's parks and other delightful points about the city.

E. O. Hock, formerly connected with the Victrola department of the Robert L. Loud Music Co., has returned to the employ of that concern. For several months he was connected with the adjutant's department at Camp Upton.

A. F. Koenig, of the Koenig Piano Co., has bought a beautiful home at 611 Linwood avenue. Other residents of this thoroughfare include William H. Daniels, of Denton, Cottier & Daniels; George Goold, of Goold Bros., and Walter Erion, of the Erion Piano Co. Mr. Koenig and O. L. Neal, of Neal, Clark & Neal, were among those who recently attended the annual picnic of the Buffalo Optimists' Club.

A. H. Trotter, traveling representative of the Gibson, Snow Co., New York State distributors of the Sonora, was a recent caller.

The Hoffman Piano Co. is making a feature of models of the Sonora portables which were recently displayed in an effective manner in the Hoffman show window. L. M. Cole is manager of this department.

Joseph De Pasqualle, who was the "brains" of the gang that robbed George Mossinger, treasurer of C. Kurtzmann & Co., was recently sentenced by Justice Brown to thirty-eight years in Auburn prison.

A cargo of fresh opinions on business was brought home by 500 Buffalo boosters, who recently went on the Chamber of Commerce cruise to Cleveland. The talking machine trade was represented on the trip.

Edward H. Droop, of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., Washington, D. C., will occupy his lodge in the Blude Ridge Mountains this summer and will be able to keep in touch with his business in the capital.

With Two (2) Aggressive, Thoroughly Capable Victor Distributing Points—Omaha and Des Moines

And, if you were to ask: “Which is the bigger and busier, the Mickel ‘Omaha’, or Mickel ‘Des Moines’ establishment?” the answer would be: “They’re BOTH LIVE WIRES.”

Seldom, indeed, has any American concern succeeded in keeping TWO establishments so nearly alike in the matter of the business done, stocks carried and services rendered.

It’s merely a matter of geography—if the Mickel Omaha establishment looks a little nearer to you on the map or from there—if Des Moines will serve you quicker because of its closer situation to your town, well, then, make it Mickels at Des Moines.

Either way you are going to experience an immense amount of satisfaction. And, by the way, we are going to witness the BIGGEST Victor business in history this Fall. Are you measuring your wits against it? Better get the spirit and start the connection NOW, with

LIVELY GENERAL CONVENTION OF VICTOR JOBBERS AT ATLANTIC CITY

Great Gathering of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, the First Held Since the War, Took Place Last Week at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, July 2.—The general convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, the first meeting of the complete membership of that organization since 1917, was held at the Hotel Traymore here on Monday and Tuesday of this week, with the business sessions proving full of consequence and accomplishment.

Although no general meeting has been held for two years there have been held a number of executive committee meetings to consider the many problems growing out of the war and to the majority of these sessions the membership at large was invited, and, in fact, urged to attend. The association work has not lagged an instant. The official body of the organization had both initiative and the willingness to work and the result was that several serious situations were met and handled in a manner that has proven most gratifying to the members of the body. Then, too, as the conditions warranted, recommendations were made to the Victor factory officials and to the jobbers themselves regarding various phases of the production and marketing of Victrolas and records.

For the most part the general convention this week was given over to a review of what had been accomplished by the association during the past two years and the endorsement of the various recommendations to the factory and the membership at large as embodied in the reports of the president and secretary and presented before the meetings themselves. The confidence of the jobbers, as a whole, in the Victor Co. and its policies and satisfaction in the progress made by that company since the first of the year in getting back to a pre-war producing basis, or better, was plainly in evidence, particularly after a number of the Victor Co. officials, including R. L. Freeman, secretary of the company, had addressed the jobbers and set forth some facts regarding what the company had accomplished and planned to accomplish. At this meeting the jobbers themselves had some matters to discuss with and recommendations to make to the factory officials regarding future activities.

The attendance at the convention was excellent, practically 90 per cent. of the total association membership being represented. Although the arrangements committee had been busy in planning for entertainment, the fact that the majority of the jobbers came to Atlantic City primarily for serious business was evidenced by the fact that the two business sessions scheduled for Monday and Tuesday afternoon were supplemented by a third session on Tuesday morning in order that there might remain nothing undone.

After several executive and general committee meetings held on Sunday and Monday morning the first regular business session of the association was called to order on Monday afternoon and was devoted almost entirely to the reports of the officers and various committee chairmen.

President J. N. Blackman Reviews Conditions in Report

The first report presented was that of the president, J. Newcomb Blackman, which covered the period since the 1917 convention, reviewed present conditions in the trade and was most comprehensive generally. In his report President Blackman said, in part:

When you called me back to the presidency two years ago I not only appreciated the great honor, but accepted the office with a full realization of the responsibility involved.

War Service

We had been in the World War but a few months and with no precedent as a guide no one could forecast the events which have since made unparalleled history. Every true American must feel it a great privilege to live in this generation and to have taken part in the world struggle for the preservation of liberty, finally terminating with victory.

It was inevitable that true service meant sacri-

J. Newcomb Blackman, Retiring President

...ce, and among the many rewards of victory will be a better realization of the fact that most things worth while are accomplished by unselfish sacrifice.

The World Struggle and Business

Germany attempted to force autocracy on the world and prove that "might made right." In this attempt she undertook to tear down a foundation on which this country was built and under which it has prospered. The cost of defense has been great, but the victory is worth while, and, we hope, permanent. Likewise the talking machine business was established on a foundation of liberty in the manufacture and sale of honest merchandise. For years our industry was protected by legislation and in the courts. Then the price-cutter, like Germany, with ulterior motives and dishonest propaganda, attempted to force recognition of the false principle that "Opportunity Is Privilege."

Officers of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers for 1919-1920

President, George L. Mickel
 Vice-president, Thomas H. Green
 Secretary, A. A. Trostler
 Treasurer, W. H. Reynalds

... In the World War we fought with every resource, staking our lives on principles, which, if deserted, would be renounced. A year ago the enemy seemed to have victory in sight and then the tide turned and success crowned our efforts. During the same period and with the same confidence we have been defending the

The Recent Colgate Decision

It is my judgment that the recent Supreme Court decision in the Colgate case has correspondingly turned the tide and the principles of honest merchandising will soon be acknowledged and protected again.

We therefore meet in convention again with a feeling that the sacrifices we have made are worthy contributions to the cause of our country and our industry. Let us face the future prepared to meet, and solve as well, the many problems of the transition period.

1918 Convention Omitted

Your executive committee were sustained in their judgment that last year's convention should be omitted in keeping with the need for war economy and to avoid unnecessary travel.

Support Heartily Appreciated

Your officers, national councilor, executive and special committees have endeavored to faithfully perform their duties, which have been many and arduous. The support of these associates and the entire membership has encouraged and stimulated my efforts in serving as your president. It is, therefore, my privilege and pleasure to record here my grateful appreciation.

Communications through the mail and the trade papers have enabled your membership to keep posted on the association's activities. But to resume and refresh memories I want to review some of the most important.

Victor War Service

The patriotic action of the Victor Co. in immediately placing at the disposal of the War Department their entire organization and manufacturing facilities was in keeping with their reputation for leadership and service. The company's manufacture of war material necessitated extreme curtailment of their regular production and the entire trade patriotically and willingly shared in the sacrifice of business.

Industry's War Participations

With the general curtailment of business owing to the war the non-essential character of certain industries became a subject for interpretation. By personal and written argument the talking machine business successfully maintained its claim that it was essential during the war and that "music maintains morale." Its service and contribution were further demonstrated in the many Liberty Loan drives, the various camps, hospitals, on board transports and even in the trenches.

Executive Meetings

Our executive committee met four times since our last convention. Owing to the omission of our last year's convention and the importance of many changes and war restrictions we considered it advisable to hold open as well as executive sessions. All meetings were well attended.

Association Counsel

Owing to the complicated legal situation surrounding the conduct of our business the employment of expert legal counsel, at an annual retainer, was decided upon. Gilbert H. Montague, of New York, who has been closely identified with many test cases affecting sales policies, was retained as our general counsel. He is also one of the counsel for the defendants in the Victor-Macy case, where a number of our New York members are co-defendants. The clear and concise explanation and advice given by him in our two last general meetings, as well as his guidance in association procedure, have been extremely valuable.

Revenue Bill Work

Our efforts to avoid unreasonable and discriminating taxation have been very successful. The final tax in the 1917 Revenue bill of 3 per cent. on the manufacturers' sale price and a 1½ per cent. floor tax was really a compromise after many hearings and conferences in Washington, in which the Victor Co. and our association took a prominent part. The United States Chamber of Commerce, evidently through ignorance of the facts, presented our industry in a most unfavorable light in its referendum number 25—recommending drastic tax measures. Victrolas were all classed as luxuries, and a 20 per cent. tax on the retail price recommended. Discrimination was apparent, although no doubt unintended, for other musical instruments were classed more favorably and some exempted.

L. C. Wiswell, Free of Convention Worries

Protest on Referendum No. 25

Owing to the influence of this national body and its referendum I filed a strong protest with Mr. Goodwin, the secretary, which was published in the trade papers, and used by our secretary as a brief for the same purpose when our executive committee voted on the referendum in question. Later developments indicated that our efforts were successful.

1918 Revenue Bill

The 1918 Revenue bill necessarily taxed heavily almost everything except war merchandise. The original House bill imposed a tax of 10 per cent. on the manufacturer's sale price, as well as a floor tax. The need for revenue was so urgent that the representatives of our trade hesitated to protest too strongly. Convincing arguments finally resulted in the entire elimination of the proposed floor tax and the reduction to 5 per cent. on the manufacturers' sales. The net result was a 2 per cent. increase over the existing 3 per cent. tax in the 1917 bill. The Victor Co. met the situation in the manner now so well known and appreciated by absorbing and paying this increase.

Federal Trade Commission's Hearings

For the purpose of determining the merits of contending claims on the uniform price question the Federal Trade Commission conducted hearings in Washington on October 3, 4 and 5, 1917. A large attendance and free discussion resulted. Henry C. Brown and members of our association took a prominent part in the debate. The outcome may be best judged by the commission's recommendations to Congress in December of last year, that suitable legislation be enacted to protect reputable manufacturers against unscrupulous price cutters. The Stevens bill was referred to specifically as meeting the situation if amended to provide supervision by the commission. This amendment has since been made.

Action by the Department of Justice

The action of the Department of Justice investigating and declaring unlawful the continuance of certain sales policies affected the Victor Co. and many other manufacturers. In

Chas. K. Bennett, P. J. and T. H. Towell the spring of 1918 new Victor prices were announced and the trade were advised that they must exercise their own judgment as to sales and resale prices.

Fair Trade League

Our executive committee and members in open session unanimously agreed that we should join the American Fair Trade League and become permanent contributors. Your president was elected to the board of directors of the league to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Louis F. Geissler. At the recent annual meeting of the league the reports of Secretary Whittier and the league counsel, Joseph C. Davies, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, were extremely encouraging. The general impression is that with continued efforts the Stevens bill or other suitable legislation will be passed by Congress this session.

The Executive Meeting in January

Our executive committee meeting January 27 and 28, 1919, included two open sessions and was probably the most important and successful ever held. My report and recommendations contained so many subjects of permanent importance that I would like to present part of them at this time for further consideration. A special committee was appointed to prepare a report from the executive committee to the Victor Co. containing also certain suggestions and recommendations. The spirit in

Wm. Nolan, Who Took Care of the Ladies which they were received by the Victor officials showed an unmistakable desire to cooperate to the fullest extent. The response was almost immediate and perhaps the most important action taken was to equalize distributors' costs by a freight allowance announced in the company's letter, to take effect March 1, 1919.

Increased and Concentrated Production

The factory has promised to use every possible resource to greatly increase production. Our suggestion to concentrate manufacture on machines and records in immediate demand has been carried out very largely. The result has been that goods received have been at once sold and waste of labor and material in manufacture has been reduced to a minimum.

Record Supplement and Cut-out List

Monthly supplement issues have been kept down and the August list omitted for a purpose, I believe, generally approved. The large cut-out list announced will be a valuable guide and eventually afford much relief in record stocks.

Summarizing and without regard to preference I recommend that:

First—We continue our activities in the interests of legislation, such as the Stevens bill, and endeavor to accomplish the elimination of the present 5 per cent. manufacturers' tax.

Second—We continue our affiliation with, and support of, the American Fair Trade League.

Machine Jobbers, Held at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, N. J., June 30 to July 2

Third—The incoming president be authorized to continue employment of legal counsel according to his judgment, subject to the approval of the executive committee.

Fourth—That the executive committee's reports and recommendations to the board of directors of the Victor Co., dated January 28, 1919, be reviewed and supplemented according to the judgment of this convention or the executive committee.

Interesting and Constructive Report by Secretary Roush

The next report presented, which was likewise comprehensive and interesting, was that of the secretary, Joseph C. Roush, and was, complete, as follows:

The more important phases of the secretary's work since our last convention in July, 1917, have been covered from time to time by written reports direct to the membership.

In addition to the usual routine duties of the secretary's office during the past two years

The Palm Beach Twins, E. P. Hamilton and Thos. H. Green

there has been considerable special work, occasioning a number of trips to Philadelphia, to Washington and to the factory for conferences with President Blackman and other members of the executive board, attendance at hearings before the Federal Trade Commission, conferences with factory officials, etc. The secretary also sent many letters and telegrams to Congressmen and Senators on behalf of the association during our fight on the luxury tax proposition and the other discriminatory features of proposed tax legislation.

Since the last convention there have been four meetings of the executive committee as follows: November, 1917; April, 1918; September, 1918, and January, 1919. The necessity for these meetings, the action taken and the results achieved are, I believe, sufficiently well known to the membership without requiring a detailed review.

There has been added to the membership roll since July, 1917, the George D. Ornstein Co., of Philadelphia, Pa. Upon the admission of this company to membership it was considered that the important part which Mr. Ornstein had played in establishing and perpetuating the system of distribution which has made this association possible entitled him to a special note of welcome to our ranks. Accordingly, the executive board adopted a special resolution and caused it to be spread upon the minutes of the association and directed that a copy be suitably inscribed and delivered to Mr. Ornstein.

Upon receipt of the secretary's letter enclosing the resolution Mr. Ornstein replied: "Please accept and express to the members of the association my very sincere thanks for the very beautiful and highly flattering testimonial. It is most gratifying to have the little service which I rendered to the distributors acknowledged in this manner.

J. C. Roush, Retiring Secretary

"Your very truly, Geo. D. Ornstein."

The association has lost the following members; C. Becker, Guatemala, C. A.; S. B. Davaga, New York, N. Y.; Consolidated Talking Machine Co., Salt Lake City, Utah; Greenhut Co., New York, N. Y.; O. K. Houck Piano Co., Nashville, Tenn.; O. K. Houck Piano Co., Little Rock, Ark.; Orton Bros., Butte, Mont., and John Wanamaker, New York, N. Y.

These changes leave us a total membership at this time as follows: Full, 79; branch, 8; total membership, 87.

The secretary has collected and turned over to the treasurer since July, 1917, the sum of $16,600. He is very pleased to be able to report that all members of the association now on the roster have paid their dues in full to date and that all expense and other bills incurred by the association under its present administration have been paid. There are now no outstanding debts. The affairs of the association will be turned over to the new officers with a clean slate.

Members have been advised of the association's reasons for not holding the annual convention for 1918. The sentiment was strongly opposed to a convention upon patriotic grounds, the result of a mail vote on the subject being five for holding and sixty-one against holding a convention.

It has been the grievous duty of your secretary to chronicle since our last general meeting the deaths of Henry Horton, Elton F. Taft, Mrs. Leslie Wiswell, Robert B. Gregory, C. H. Eisenbrandt, and Russell B. Steinert.

Upon receipt of news of the death of each your secretary immediately sent on behalf of the association floral tributes and suitable expressions of regret.

The membership has been supplied with copy of the written report and recommendations of the association addressed to the Board of Directors of the Victor Talking Machine Co. at the close of the series of meetings held at Philadelphia last January. These recommendations to the factory were summarized under the following heads:

1. Equalization of distributors' costs f. o. b. distributors' city.
2. Greatly increased machine production especially on elevens and fourteens.
3. Immediate and adequate supply of popular selections while "hits."
4. Monthly supplement issues not to exceed twenty-five domestic selections.
5. Immediate record cut-out list of not less than 750 domestic selections.
6. Monthly supplements to be printed and distributed from a central Western point.

It should be most gratifying and encouraging to our members to observe the sincere and determined manner in which the Victor factory has undertaken to comply with our recommendations, and to note that in every essential respect they have actually complied. While it was not found feasible to print and distribute supplements from a central Western point as recommended, the problem of supplement distribution has nevertheless received earnest consideration, and I am authorized to say the factory will speedily announce a system which promises to give entire satisfaction to all concerned.

Fred H. Putnam, Charles Bruno and Fred P. Oliver

Measured from the standpoint of results actually achieved, these January meetings were perhaps the most important and productive sessions in the history of the association. I consider these results especially significant because they indicate a readiness upon the part of the Victor Co.'s Directing Board to carefully weigh the demonstrated needs of the trade when those needs are properly and concisely presented, and to co-operate sincerely with distributors and dealers in broadening and bettering the conditions under which we carry on the business of marketing Victor products—wherever and whenever such co-operation is possible and consistent.

In view, therefore, of the splendid prospects of early relief from the shortage of Victor products which has prevented the full exercise of our sales effort, and of the development of the legal situation as reflected in the Colgate case, with which you are now familiar, the present stability and the future prosperity of this industry seem doubly secure.

By way of recommendations for the consideration and action of the association at this time I beg to submit the following:

First. That the annual membership dues be reduced to $50 for full members and $25 for branch members, and that no membership dues for the year 1919-20 be charged or collected by the Association. When the annual dues were raised in 1917 to $100 the raise was consented to by the membership because it was considered there existed an emergency wherein the safety and success of the Association demanded a larger outlay of funds than the lower rate of dues would provide. That emergency is passed. In fact, the dues should have been reduced last year, and no doubt would have been reduced had there been a general meeting at which such action could properly be taken.

Second. That members of the Association take advantage of every opportunity to convey to the directors and department heads of the Victor Talking Machine Co. the fullest and clearest possible information as to general trade and competitive conditions existing in their respective territories, and that the urgent need of greatly increased production on both machines and records be constantly emphasized to the factory by citing specific cases, etc.

Third. That members who have up to this time conducted both wholesale and retail operations now carefully consider the rapidly changing trade situation and the future bearing which those changes may have upon the interests of a house conducting both wholesale and retail operations in the same territory.

Fourth. That members carefully consider the new status of competition and representation in our industry as compared with the old status of three to five years ago, and that a most thorough and thoughtful study be made of the subject of readjusting retail representation in such a manner as best to meet the needs of the line in each locality.

Fifth. That those members who believe the present level of list prices on machines and records is low enough, and in the interests of the line should not be reduced, express their belief to the directors and department heads of the Victor Co. at every opportunity. It has been said there is sentiment at the factory favoring return to pre-war price levels as soon as quantity production is again achieved. I submit that it would be more in the interest of the entire trade and would help to maintain better service to the public if the economies accomplished through increased production were expressed by an increased discount to the distributor, which would enable him in turn to quote a correspondingly increased discount to the dealer, leaving list prices approximately at the present level.

Treasurer's Report

A. A. Trostler, the treasurer, in his report, also covered the two-year period in a most efficient manner. The report covered the financial affairs of the Association for each of the two years and there was also provided a recapitulation, which might be accepted as a complete financial statement of the Association in detail. Incidentally the report indicated that the Association was in a most healthy financial condition.

Mr. Trostler was tendered a vote of thanks for the manner in which he had handled the duties of his office, a mark of appreciation that was also tendered the president and secretary at the conclusion of their reports.

Legislative Committee Reports

The legislative committee, of which George E. Mickel is chairman, presented a short report, much of the matter being already covered in the report of the president.

By-Laws Changed

In order to simplify matters a resolution was adopted changing the by-laws to provide for the holding of general conventions of the Association during the month of June or July instead of confining the convention period to the month of June as was formerly stipulated.

Annual Dues Reduced

Another resolution, likewise adopted promptly, provided for the reduction of the annual dues of association members from $100 to $50. The dues, originally fixed at $25, were increased during the period of the war to $100 to provide funds to carry on the greatly increased work of the association in handling the various problems growing out of wartime laws and regulations. With the passing of the emergency came the reduction of the dues, a move which was accepted most gracefully by the membership of the association at large.

After some discussion on general matters the meeting adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Much Important Business at Tuesday Morning Session

The convention session on Tuesday morning was devoted largely to the discussion of the several recommendations offered in the reports of the president and secretary, both in regard to matters to be taken up with the factory and

C. N. Andrews, Mrs. C. N. and W. D. Andrews other matters concerning the actual business of wholesaling machines and records. All the recommendations made by the officers were accepted and approved by the association as a whole, and their carrying out was left in the hands of the incoming executive committee.

Suggests Votes for Washingtonians

E. H. Droop, of E. F. Droop & Sons Co.,

Washington, together with W. R. Roberts, of the same house, brought before the association the question of securing the voting privilege for residents of the District of Columbia. As is generally known, residents of the district have no say by vote in the conduct of the Government, and a move is on foot to give them this right.

A. Davega and B. R. Forster

It was the consensus of opinion of the association members that the movement should be regarded favorably, but no definite action was taken.

Endorse Victor Co. War Policy

E. H. Droop presented to the association a resolution, adopted promptly and unanimously, supporting and approving the policy of the Victor Co. during the period of the war in turning over their manufacturing facilities to the Government for war purposes. The resolution was accepted as expressing most admirably the sentiments of the entire association.

Business Men and the Government

The association went on record as being strongly in favor of the idea of business men generally taking a more active interest in national politics, for the protection and advancement of the business of the country generally.

The association in convention reaffirmed the sentiment already expressed to the effect that factory production must not be allowed to lag, but should be stimulated to the greatest degree possible, with the assurance that the trade will be able to absorb and distribute any possible increase of production of Victrolas and records. At the same time some encouraging reports were received regarding the present increase in Victor factory output.

Favor One-cent Postage Campaign

On motion of A. Hospe, of Omaha, the association went on record as favoring the campaign that has been conducted for some time past providing for one-cent postage on letters.

Atlantic City Again Next Year

There was the usual discussion regarding the place at which the 1920 convention is to be held, and, as usual, the sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of returning again to Atlantic City, and this is the final decision. The exact date is left to the discretion of the executive committee.

Tellers Have a Busy Time

Considerable time during the morning was given over to the election of a new executive committee to preside over the destinies of the association during the coming year. It finally developed that twenty members had been nominated for the fifteen positions on the executive committee. A vote was then taken and the tellers disappeared ostensibly to count the votes to determine the result. Strict search was made but they were not found in time for the afternoon session.

Victor Officials Speak At Tuesday Afternoon Session

The final session of the convention on Tuesday afternoon was given over chiefly to a series of interesting talks by various officials of the Victor Co., although the question of determining the new officers was first settled, they being chosen from among the members of the executive committee as follows:

The New Officers

President, George E. Mickel, Mickel Bros. Co., Omaha, Neb.

Vice-president, Thomas H. Green, Silas E. Pearsall Co., New York.

Secretary, A. A. Trostler, Schmelzer Arms Co., Kansas City, Mo.

Treasurer, W. H. Reynolds, Reynolds Music House, Mobile, Ala.

In addition to the four officers named the executive committee includes: James F. Bowers,

A. A. Grinnell, C. H. Grinnell and George Martin Lyon & Healy, Chicago; P. B. Whitsit, the Perry B. Whitsit Co., Columbus, O.; J. C. Roush, Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh; J. N. Blackman, Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York; Louis Buehn, Louis Buehn Co., Philadelphia; Daniel Creed, Chicago Talking Machine Co., Chicago; A. A. Grinnell, Grinnell Bros., Detroit; Andrew J. McCarthy, Sherman, Clay & Co., San Francisco; Burton J. Pierce, J. W. Jenkins' Sons Co., Kansas City, Mo., and H. A. Winkelman, Oliver Ditson Co., Boston.

This will be Mr. Mickel's second experience as president, he having held that chief office of the association during the year 1914-15. His past experience should insure the success of the administration.

Victor Co. Officials Talk

Perhaps the most interesting features of the convention were the addresses made by Ralph L. Freeman, secretary of the Victor Co.; Frederick J. Staats, comptroller, and G. C. Child, director of the Recording Laboratories.

George E. Mickel

Mr. Freeman brought a most encouraging message to the wholesalers, and emphasized strongly the manner in which the Victor Co.

The Corley Co. Trio—Fred Kesnick, J. G. Corley and Frank Corley had worked since the first of the year in bringing the factory production back on its old basis, a task that was now completed. He stated that the company had recovered from the war conditions more rapidly than any other concern of like size and which had been in a similar position. The goal of the Victor Co., however, he said, is not simply to get back to a pre-war basis, but to go ahead with development work, and increase the output to meet the new demand that has grown for Victor products. Incidentally he outlined several new projects under way of distinct interest to both wholesalers and dealers, and which will be made public at the proper time.

Mr. Child for his part dwelt chiefly upon the record situation, and had some important announcements to make in that connection, and concerning moves now under way that should tend materially to increase the sales of Red Seal records. Mr. Child dwelt strongly on the fact that the success of the Victor record business lies largely in the attitude of the trade themselves towards the records, and urged that the wholesalers show a true appreciation of the tremendous musical value of the records, how they tend to place the best of music within the reach of the most humble, and work out their campaign along those lines, with a view to keeping the talking machine on its proper plane.

Mr. Staats also had some interesting information to offer the wholesalers as to factory conditions, the outlook for the immediate and distant future, and various plans under way calculated to develop and increase Victor business and prestige.

Rudolph Wurlitzer, C. Alfred Wagner and J. G. Corley Getting the Sun

At the conclusion of the talks by the Victor men several of the members of the association took occasion to discuss certain phases of the various questions brought up by the factory men, and present their views regarding sundry policies.

New President Installed

The new president, G. E. Mickel, was duly installed in office, and a vote of thanks was offered to the various retiring officers for their earnest work during the past two strenuous years, and their willingness to carry the burden of association duties during that period.

Tribute to Departed Members

At this point President Blackman called the attention of the association to several prominent members who had been cut down by the Grim Reaper during the past year, and a standing and silent tribute was paid to their memory. The convention then adjourned, preparatory to the annual banquet, the closing event Tuesday evening.

Annual Banquet Tuesday Evening a Splendid Success

Despite the demise of John Barleycorn the preceding midnight, and his absence therefore from the tables at the annual banquet of the association on Tuesday night, that affair was a success in every particular, and measured up well with preceding events, even the members of the Anvil Chorus proving that with noise-making devices handy they could still be happy without the flowing bowl.

Those who came to enjoy the banquet in all seriousness had the privilege of listening to what was probably the most masterly address on the talking machine and its relation to music that has ever been delivered before the association, the address being by James M. Beck, noted jurist, former Assistant Attorney General, and at the present time counsel for the Victor Co.

After the banquet proper had been disposed of to the accompaniment of some lively singing by the Peerless Quartet, and solos by the old record favorites, Billy Murray, Henry Burr, Frank Croxton and Monroe Silver, maker of the "Cohen" records, J. Newcomb Blackman, the retiring president, introduced as toastmaster James F. Bowers, who presided in the same capacity at banquets, for, lo, these many years.

Mr. Bowers immediately proceeded to make some of the diners feel badly by bringing up the question of prohibition and its effectiveness, quoting liberally from prose and verse to substantiate his contentions. His reference to Omar, "a loaf of bread, a pitcher full of lemonade, and thou," met with quick response, and after repeating Kipling's words,

"And when it comes to slaughter
You'll do your work on water,
And lick the boots of him that's got it," the toastmaster proceeded with the introduction of the several speakers of the evening.

J. Newcomb Blackman's Address

The first speaker was J. Newcomb Blackman, the retiring president, who outlined some of the trials and tribulations of the association members during the past few years, how they have rallied to the support of one another, and patriotically to the support of the Government during the period of the war without ever having lost confidence. He declared that now there was a rainbow on the horizon of business, and that the future was full of promise.

Charles K. Haddon, vice-president of the Victor Co., who was scheduled to speak, was compelled to be absent, due to the serious illness of a near relative.

The New President Introduced

The next speaker introduced was the new president, George E. Mickel, who after some humorous introductory remarks told of the responsibility of the future as it related to the Victor wholesaler, and how the call is now for energetic and resourceful business methods. He emphasized the tremendous size of the company, whose products the wholesalers represent, and the high standing of those products, and declared that they must be marketed in the best possible manner in keeping with their standing.

R. L. Freeman's Message

At the conclusion of Mr. Mickel's address a standing toast was drunk in honor of Eldredge R. Johnson, president of the Victor Co., after which Mr. Bowers introduced Ralph L. Freeman, secretary of the Victor Co., to make his initial address at the association banquet. Mr. Freeman told of the manner in which the Victor Co. had recovered from the effects of war conditions, having made greater progress since January 1 in that direction than any concern of like size and similarly placed. He declared that with the factory and distributing forces working together there was in sight an unparalleled era of prosperity for the entire trade.

In closing his brief talk Mr. Freeman invited the wholesalers to visit Camden on Wednesday and inspect the factory to see personally just what was being done to speed up the output for their ultimate benefit.

Letter From Louis F. Geissler

After Mr. Freeman's address the toastmaster read a letter from Louis F. Geissler, former general manager of the Victor Co., who, after extending greetings to the association members, expressed his regrets at being compelled to miss the banquet for the first time since the forming of the organization.

James M. Beck's Masterly Address

The feature of the evening was the wonderfully able and scholarly address of the Hon. James M. Beck, who is known to be a brilliant speaker, but surprised his most enthusiastic admirers with his talk on the talking machine and its relation to music. Mr. Beck declared that talking machine wholesalers, or many of them, did not fully appreciate the dignity of the work in which they were engaged. He declared that "talking machine" and other generic terms for music-reproducing apparatus did not begin to fully convey just what the product was designed to accomplish and did accomplish.

The "Printing Press of Music"

In making his point clear Mr. Beck coined a new term for the talking machine, the significance of which should not in any sense be lost on members of the trade. He termed it "the printing press of music," and declared that as the original printing press of Gutenberg had delivered the world from ignorance of the written word, bringing knowledge to the masses, instead of confining it to the few, so had the talking machine delivered the world from ignorance of music. While it is true, he said, that music is written, in that form it is understandable only to a comparatively small number. The talking machine, however, has taken this written music and interpreted it with all its wonderful meaning in a manner comprehensible to anyone able to hear.

Of music itself, and its history, Mr. Beck proved himself a profound student. He stated that music was known before language, and lived longer than language. He told how the "Marseillaise," written by a soldier of France, had survived and been recognized as the hymn of freedom and quality, while impassioned addresses of noted Frenchmen of the period were forgotten. The brilliant addresses of the period of the Revolution, with the possible exception of Patrick Henry's oration, were likewise forgotten, and yet the "Yankee Doodle" of the same period has survived, and still survives. taking music, therefore, robbing it of its mystery, and presenting it through the medium of records, in a manner understandable to the millions, talking machine manufacturers and their wholesalers, even though they may view the project solely as one of business, are nevertheless working for the benefit and uplift of humanity.

Then in addition to printing the music in understandable form for the ears of the masses, making it as comprehensible to the ear as the printed word is to the eye, said the speaker, the talking machine has enabled the noted singers of the day to be heard by millions of people all over the world, more people than they could appear before personally in a lifetime, if they sang before audiences of thousands nightly. The great singers of the past were known by reputation only to the masses, and personally to a comparative few. The voice of Caruso, in all its brilliance, however, is familiar to millions, in all parts of the world, familiar only because the talking machine makes it possible. Memories of the voices of other great artists have died with them, but through the talking machine Caruso's voice will be known and remembered through the centuries, declared Mr. Beck.

Speaking smoothly, quietly, the speaker held his audience spellbound for the better part of an hour, but out of the address there came one gem of thought, "the printing press of music."

At the conclusion of the speaking dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

Those in Attendance at the Convention

The attendance at the convention came close to breaking all previous records, not, perhaps, from the number of individuals who were present, but from the number of concerns who had sent delegates. There were few of the old faces missing, but instead of being accompanied by delegations, as in previous years, the heads of the companies came alone or with their wives. Some companies proved more or less liberal in providing nice seashore vacations for several of their staffs. The Droop delegation from Washington, for instance, consisted of five members.

Members of the association represented at the convention and their delegates were:

American Talking Machine Co., R. H. Morris; Andrews Music House, W. H. Andrews and M. T. Jordan; W. D. & C. N. Andrews, Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Andrews; W. D. Andrews, Syracuse, W. D. SPLENDID ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN JOBBERS BY VICTOR CO.

After a Visit to the Factory Victor Jobbers Are Guests at Special Concert Given at the Little Theatre, Philadelphia, Followed by a Dinner and Dance—Great Array of Artists

On Wednesday the members of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers were the guests of the Victor Co. on a tour of the factory in the afternoon, and at an elaborate concert at the Little Theatre, Philadelphia, in the evening, followed by a dinner, entertainment and dance in the roof garden of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

The wholesalers and their families left At-

In the evening at 8 o'clock the guests adjourned to the Little Theatre and enjoyed an elaborate concert, at which Jascha Heifetz, John McCormack and Sophie Braslau were the featured artists, with the Victor Orchestra, led by Pasternack, appearing in several numbers. After an overture by the orchestra, under the direction of Josef Pasternack, Mr. Heifetz played several numbers in his exquisite style, audience to their feet with his impassioned singing of Fay Foster's masterpiece, "The Americans Come." An encore number completed the program with the exception of some selections from "Eileen," played by the Victor Orchestra, whereupon Ed Droop, the gifted orator, arose and in glowing words expressed the gratitude of the Victor jobbers for the wonderful treatment accorded them by the artists, Mr. Child and the Victor Co.

From the theatre the party went to the Bellevue-Stratford, where during the service of an elaborate dinner in the Rose Room they were entertained by Joseph C. Smith and his orches-

They then visited the factory at Camden, where they witnessed some striking new models of the Victrola, of which due announcement will be made later, and were taken on a tour of inspection through various departments of the immense plant of the company in order that they might see for themselves just what strenuous efforts were being put forth in every department to speed up production. among them being a nocturne in E-minor by Chopin, a rondo by Mozart, a Slavonic dance in E minor by Dvorak-Kreisler and a series of Gypsy airs by Sarasate. In answer to the enthusiastic applause he gave several enjoyable encores. Miss Braslau sang a sacred number, "Father, Why Hast Thou Forsaken Me," most impressively, singing a lighter number as an encore. John McCormack, after an opening number by Donizetti, aroused his audience with a beautiful rendition of "Dear Old Pal of Mine," one of the favorite songs of the day, and an Irish ballad by Moore. He then brought many of the tra, the Criterion Quartet, the Misses Holt and Rosedale, Billy Murray and Ed Smalle, Victor Herbert, the Van Eps Trio, Pietro Deiro, Miss Adele Rowland and several other popular artists associated with the Victor recording staff.

VICTOR CONVENTIONITES TRY THEIR SKILL AS AVIATORS

Airplane Flights Attract the More Adventurous, While Sailing, Automobiling and Bathing Parties Add to the Enjoyment of Those in Attendance at the Atlantic City Meeting

As is usually the case at the Atlantic City conventions, the program of entertainment laid out by the Arrangements Committee was quite afternoon, at the Airport. A substantial delegation of talking machine men and their ladies went out to the grounds to watch the flights, gation appeared overanxious to repeat the experience.

On Tuesday at noon the ladies were taken in automobiles to the Sea View Country Club, where luncheon was served to them. Mr. Nolan and several of them had the courage to take to the air in company with capable pilots. A. A. Trostler was picked out by the aviator to accompany him on an exhibition flight, and the next birdman who inveigles brother Trostler into the same predicament will have to work some. Suffice it that a few nose spins and a loop-the-loop or two do not help the digestive apparatus to any great degree. Others who took the opportunity of "flying" included Ralph L. Freeman, Parham Werlein, V. W. Moody, Perry B. Whitsit, Miss Cecile Cohen, Mrs. I. Son Cohen and A. Davega.

Whether it was the $25 fee or the sensation is undetermined, but the fact remains that after a brief voyage in cloudland none of the deleagain did the honors and this popular gentleman had fifty-three representatives of the fair sex under his wing.

The unofficial program was likewise long and interesting, including bathing parties, and particularly on the night of June 30 bands of pilgrims wandered in and out of the many oases on or near the Boardwalk and helped to dry them up. Also the roller chairs enjoyed their usual popularity, the sad sea waves lost none of their attractiveness for bathing purposes, at least, while the piers offered desirable entertainment, and a good time was had by all.

Heard in the Lobby of the Traymore

Atlantic City always proves a lodestone to talking machine men and their families and it is therefore to be expected that there will be a good showing from all sections of the country at the convention. Although the number in attendance was not so great as at some previous conventions, that fact did not interfere with everyone endeavoring to have the best possible time when not tied up by the convention sessions. The regular crowd knew just where to go and what to do to have the best time, and proceeded to carry out their ideas without delay. Some were so anxious to get into the swim that they arrived two or three days before the convention opened. The balance kept right on arriving up to Tuesday night in time for the banquet. Owing to conditions covering railroad travel there was no attempt made to run special cars from New York or from the West, so some of the travelers made up special parties in order to break up the monotony of travel. The main thing is they all got there.

The threat that the country would go dry on July 1 stimulated the desire on the part of a score or more of our livest Victor jobbers to see the passing of the wet and the coming of the dry in proper style. The result was that a table for twenty was reserved in the Submarine Grille of the Traymore as far back as February, and a liberal deposit paid thereon. When the selected twenty on Monday night went down to enjoy the benefits of their foresight they found that there was plenty of room in the grille for probably 100 more who had not taken time by the forelock. Lack of a crowd did not interfere with the twenty enjoying the trip right up to the last moment. Some swore it was 2 A. M., others hesitated and the remainder declined to commit themselves. Besides the Submarine Grille all the leading resorts on or near the Boardwalk had their quotas of talking machine men and their ladies attending the wake of John Barleycorn, mostly in the guise of spectators rather than participants. In so far as action went it is no secret to say that most of them were disappointed.

Pittsburgh claims to have had the biggest delegation at the convention and appears to be entitled to that distinction, the Standard Talking Machine Co. being represented by J. C. Roush, French Nestor and W. H. Russell, and the C. C. Mellor Co. by W. C. Dierks, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fischer and P. T. Evans. P. W. Simon, a live dealer of Uniontown, Pa., was also declared in on the delegation.

E. F. Droop & Sons, of Washington and Baltimore, also sent a very substantial delegation, including E. H. and Carl A. Droop, W. A. Lyman and C. Hauser, of the Washington headquarters, and W. C. Roberts from Baltimore. At Atlantic City that delegation spelled generosity.

One convention visitor introducing an accessory did not have to visit the Boardwalk to hunt up his party. Going to his room one evening to demonstrate his product to a wholesaler he opened the door to find three of the hotel maids dancing merrily to the music of his Victrola. The accessory man was game and insisted upon the girls staying and making a real party.

The broad scope of the association membership is indicated by the fact that there were present at the convention men from Maine and men from Hawaii, C. B. Snow from Portland, for instance, and W. D. Adams from Honolulu. Florida, Texas and Illinois were also represented by native sons or successful visitors.

The Schloss Brothers Arrive

Never have rumors been so numerous at any convention as they were at the Atlantic City meet. To have accepted them all as founded on fact would have meant that the Victor Co., as well as every prominent wholesale house in the trade, is going to be reorganized. The funny part of it was that some of those regarding whom the rumors were true denied them point blank, while those referred to in rumors that had no basis frequently looked guilty, and kept the scribes guessing. It can be said, however, that many surprising shifts are going to be announced very shortly. In fact, some of them are already announced in The World this month.

The Schloss Brothers, cabinet men, arrived in due course in Edwin Schloss's Hudson super-six. Incidentally Mr. Schloss found time to burn up the roads around Atlantic City just to see what the car could do when pushed a little. On the straightaway it served to cure any desire to fly.

Sunburn lotion was at a premium with many of the convention visitors. The weather for a couple of days was pleasantly cool, and the bathers loitered on the beach without giving due regard to the fact that Old Sol was still on the job going strong. On Wednesday the sunburned element resembled a delegation of cripples.

On Tuesday afternoon one of the conventioners wandered into a cafe, with a thirst, in search of a highball. "Nothing but beer and wine," said the barkeeper; "that's orders." "Well, what about the bottle of whiskey I ordered this morning?" demanded the talking machine man. So good was his acting that he got away with the bluff and likewise the whiskey.

The ocean air and beautiful weather were not calculated to induce Atlantic City visitors to stay indoors, but nevertheless a few packs of cards being available some delegates were moved to closet themselves behind closed doors and give the call of the desert poker player to its mate, "Oh aces! oh aces!"

The convention received considerable attention in the columns of the local newspapers, as well as New York and Philadelphia dailies, through the efforts of George C. Kerr, publicity man of the Traymore. Brother Kerr has the knack of making friends with newspaper men and in rendering them every assistance in the conduct of their business. The result is much free publicity for the Traymore.

Fortunately for some of the bachelors among the jobbers several of their contemporaries had the foresight to bring their daughters to the convention. I. Son Cohen, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Cohen, for instance brought three, and that fact served to make the dancing so much more interesting.

Fred P. Oliver proved one of the busy bees at the convention in helping Louis Buehn to see that the arrangements worked out properly. Meanwhile Wiswell and Trostler, who have had much to do in the past, simply posed around the lobby nonchalantly and carefree.

The talking machine men may, and did, advocate high-grade music and the exploitation of Red Seal records, yet it seems to take some real wicked jazz to make them show unusual pep.

At the Atlantic City conventions the jobbers usually have a day or two spoiled by J. Pluvius, but this year was the exception. If the committee had ordered the weather in advance they could not have selected any better.

Those self-confessed experts of the trade who can go around the course at par, or in one or two strikes below, were keenly disappointed when it was announced that after the tournament had been postponed from Saturday to the following Wednesday and then to Thursday there were too few players left to make a tournament worth while. Several jobbers who had been telling each other how good they were fought duels on greens near Philadelphia and no prize cups were awarded.

Toastmaster Bowers' asides at the banquet were so delightful that banqueters were sorry when he started to introduce speakers. His usual dialogue of quotations with E. H. Droop were missing because Mr. Droop had gone home, but Ernest John proved a worthy substitute. It is said there is no subject known regarding which Mr. Bowers cannot quote

P. T. Evans, who accompanied the Mellor Co. delegation from Pittsburgh, is a real veteran of the great war. He went across as a member of an advance signal detachment of seventy-eight men, a part of the Twenty-eighth Division, and but eighteen members of the company came back. Eight members of the Pittsburgh talking machine trade, including Mr. Evans, were in the company, and only one of them was lost. The Twenty-eighth Division saw some hard fighting and Mr. Evans is privileged to discuss the war with authority.

It was a very peculiar fact that those who attended most of the heavy committee meetings were married men and that the meetings were mostly held during the evening. Another peculiar fact was that having disappeared after the meeting the committeemen returned, some seeking large bills in exchange for bunches of small ones and other strolling to the desk to have checks cashed. It might have been a coincidence, but—

The evening of entertainment by the Victor Co. was well duplicated in point of quality by the very handsome concert program and the

S. Ernest Philpitt and W. C. Roberts handsomely engraved and embossed supper-dinner menu. Both were real works of art.

ACCESSORY MEN AT CONVENTION

Take Advantage of Opportunity to Meet Jobbers and Introduce New Lines

As has usually been the case at previous conventions, a goodly number of manufacturers and distributors of cabinets, needles and other talking machine accessories took occasion to visit Atlantic City during the convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers.

Among those seen around the lobbies of the Traymore were Clement Beecroft, of Philadelphia, who took occasion to display to the jobbers a new type of cabinet with a revolving record compartment, working almost automatically and which does away with the usual cabinet door. He also displayed the other specialties for which he is the representative.

B. R. Forster, of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., New York, was also there with some interesting samples and the glad hand.

Otto Goldsmith, of the Cabinet & Accessories Sales Co., New York, was also much in evidence to tell about the merits of the Lundstrom cabinets and the other specialties he handles.

W. A. Condon, of Condon & Co., Inc., spent some time around convention headquarters and told those jobbers, not already familiar with them, something regarding the Torrington "Uniform" needles, for which his company is agent.

E. H. Lansing, the cover man from Boston, brought Mrs. Lansing with him and made a holiday of his visit.

Lewis C. Franc, of the Lu-Franc Sales Service Co., Detroit, took advantage of the opportunity of displaying to the jobbers his new special monthly series of record envelopes.

Phil Ravis, president of the Peerless Album Co., New York, looked the conventioners over, as did D. Tauber, president of the Progressive Phonograph Supply Co., New York, manufacturers of the Wall-Kane needles.

Edwin E. and Myron Schloss, of Schloss Bros., New York, the cabinet makers, motored down to the convention city for the purpose of shaking hands.

Rayburn H. Smith, H. A. Dalley and E. E. Morton, of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, the latter being the company's Chicago representative, were also seen about the Traymore during the convention period.

Jones-Motrola, Inc., New York, the New England Talking Machine Co., makers of the "Perfection" reproducers and other concerns were also represented.

GOLF CONTEST FOR BLACKMAN CUP

Although Formal Tournament Is Postponed a Number of Jobbers Enter Contest With the Handsome Blackman Cup as Prize—Regular Tournament Postponed Till Next Year

Although the official golf tournament to be held in connection with the convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers was postponed for a year, owing to the fact that it was found impractical to hold it either in Atlantic City or Philadelphia, due to conflicting circumstances, a number of the jobbers decided to enter into contest for the handsome cup offered by J. Newcomb Blackman, retiring president of the Association, and the match was played off at the Old York Road Country Club, Jenkintown, Pa., near Philadelphia, on Tuesday morning.

Throughout the playing of the entire tourney a closeness of scores made interest most keen, and it was not until the last few holes were played that A. C. Middleton and Burton J. Pierce forged ahead of the others. The final score found Mr. Middleton and Mr. Pierce tying for first place with the score of 79. Mr. Walz ran third with a score of 81, Mr. Buehn fourth with a score of 83 and Mr. Oliver followed next with a score of 85. Those who played were H. C. Middleton, director of the Victor Talking Machine Co.; Burton J. Pierce, of J. W. Jenkins' Sons, Kansas City, Mo.; Louis Buehn, of Louis Buehn Co., Philadelphia, Pa.;

The Blackman Cup

Elmer Walz, general manager of Cohen & Hughes, Baltimore, Md.; and Fred P. Oliver, vice-president and general manager of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.

In order that a final decision may be reached as to which of the two tallying the best scores may be awarded the cup for the coming year, a match will be played between Messrs. Middleton and Pierce at the first occasion when Mr. Pierce visits Camden. This eighteen-hole match will probably be played in the latter part of the summer, as Mr. Pierce expects to visit the city again at that time.

TWIN CITY TRADE PREPARING FOR HEAVY FALL BUSINESS

Work Begins on Elaborate New Home for Columbia Graphophone Co.'s Branch—Golden Rule Store's Victrola Department Enlarged—Vocalion Gaining Ground—General News

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, July 7.—Hot weather brings no surcease from troubles to the talking machine dealer or distributor in the twin city territory. Their woes may not be quite as plentiful as they were some months ago, but they are numerous enough. Primarily the source of the general discontent lies in the inability of the manufacturers to supply both machines and records in quantities that will meet the persistent and constantly growing demand. To be sure, the general situation has eased considerably in the past few weeks, and the horizon of hope and encouragement is somewhat brighter. Preparations are being made, however, for a record trade in the late summer and fall, the magnitude of which will only be limited by the shipping facilities of the manufacturers.

Work was begun last week on the new Northwestern home of the Columbia Graphophone Co., 18-22 North Third street, Minneapolis. This will be a distributing center solely. Manager W. L. Sprague, Northwestern representative, will have 30,000 square feet of floor space at his disposal to begin with and will have in reserve an additional 20,000 square feet. The arrangements will be as complete and convenient as modern engineering skill can devise.

Work already is underway for the enlargement of the Victrola department in the Golden Rule Store, St. Paul. Manager J. L. Pofahl has been on a study tour of the East and will incorporate some of the ideas he gathered into the plans for his new space. He will have about twenty demonstration booths, which will take care of the most of the 3,000 square feet allotted to him. Various other houses likewise are providing facilities for their talking machine departments.

The Aeolian-Vocalion after its fine start in the Northwest is getting a footing here and there through the active efforts of the Stone Piano Co., general distributors. Manager T. S. Leavitt, of the talking machine department in The Emporium, is completely satisfied with his new line.

More Sonoras, a great many more, could be sold in the Northwestern territory if the instruments could be obtained, says Sewell D. Andrews, manager of the Sonora department of the Minneapolis Drug Co. The improved baby grand model is finding many warm friends and all the Sonora dealers want them.

Minneapolis was represented by six "live wires" at the big Edison meet the last week in June. The party consisted of Laurence H. Lucker, Edison's Northwestern agent; H. E. Stinchfield, Joseph Lowy, George Compton and Captain Toppel, all of the Lucker organization, and Frank Gonyo, head of the talking machine department of the New England Furniture Co. Edison business in the cities and the country would be entirely satisfactory, but for one thing and that is—

George Mairs, head of the Victrola department of W. J. Dyer & Bro., St. Paul, and E. F.

O'Neill, of Beckwith-O'Neill, Minneapolis, have nothing to say. "What's the use?" they ask. "Everybody wants a Victrola."

Director E. L. Kern, of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is still away behind in his orders. The Brunswick machine is being extensively pushed both in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Really, the only manager who is not coming forward with some lusty denunciation is Jay H. Wheeler, who supervises the Pathé department for the G. Sommers Co. He does not say that he has assembled as big a stock as he would desire, but believes that he will be able to satisfy the majority of his numerous patrons in the Northwest.

OUTING OF SCHLOSS BROS. FORCE

Employes of Cabinet Factory Enjoy Lively Day at Coney Island Resorts

Schloss Bros., the well-known cabinet manufacturers of New York, gave an outing to their employes and a number of guests on Friday, June 18. The entertainment included surf bathing, followed by a banquet, after which the party repaired to Steeplechase Park, where all the sports of that resort were indulged in. Various other pleasures were programmed and the gathering returned to the city after a day of much activity. The employes were taken to the beach in three large sightseeing cars.

The Alexander Victrola Store, 118 Broadway, Long Branch, N. J., has undergone improvements and several new soundproof booths have been added.

BIRMINGHAM DEALERS INTERESTED IN NEW ASSOCIATION

Southern Victor Dealers' Association to Have Hearty Support of Talking Machine Men in Alabama—Unico Booths in Demand—Plan Nine o'Clock Saturday Closing—Other News

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., July 3.—Victor talking machine dealers of this section were very much pleased to receive letters from the Elyea Co. Victor distributors, Atlanta, Ga., calling together all Victor dealers in convention in Atlanta on July 16 for the purpose of forming the Southern Victor Dealers' Association. The Elyea Co. have had this step under consideration for several years, but have held the matter up pending cessation of hostilities on the other side. From all reports the convention is bound to be a success as dealers from all sections of the South have signified their intention of attending. This is most certainly a big step forward for the Southern Victor dealer.

The Cable-Shelby-Burton Piano Co., of this city, are now busily engaged in making extensive alterations and additions to their talking machine department. Mr. Burton, the genial manager of this progressive house, has said that the talking machine department is to be his "pet department" and from the evident growth of the department Mr. Burton's remark is true.

H. Allen Dalley, vice-president of the Unit Construction Co., Philadelphia, spent several days in the city investigating the merits of Birmingham as a distributing point for "Unico" products. Mr. Dalley was very favorably impressed with conditions all through the South and reported having taken many orders for "Unico" equipment.

B. F. Bibighaus, representing the Victor Talking Machine Co., spent several days here during the month. Mr. Bibighaus had been spending some time in the smaller towns of Mississippi and expressed himself as pleasantly surprised on arriving in Birmingham and finding so many "live" dealers. Mr. Bibighaus did not confine his visits to Victor dealers, but managed to call, for a short visit, on every dealer here.

J. D. Moore, manager of the wholesale department of Philip Werlein, Ltd, New Orleans, was a visitor in Birmingham for several days. It was Mr. Moore's first visit to this city since his connection with Messrs. Werlein and it gave him an opportunity to meet personally many of his good customers in this section.

Mr. Dahlberg, of the Dahlberg Talking Machine Co., Montgomery, Ala., was a visitor in the city for several days and reported his business to be unusually good for this season of the year. Mr. Dahlberg does not devote any of his time to the business, but leaves it entirely in charge of one of the young ladies who has been with him some little time. His house handles the Victor line exclusively.

Mr. Ely, of the Pathé Frères, spent two days here last week in the interest of his house. Mr. Ely made a special trip to the city to take up important matters with the Haverty Furniture Co., which handles the Pathé line in its chain of stores throughout the South.

A. R. Boone, proprietor and manager of the Talking Machine Co., this city, left on Saturday for Atlantic City to attend the Victor Jobbers' Convention.

Victor Wan has left the J. E. Cain Furniture Co. and accepted the management of the phonograph department of F. W. Browning. Mr. Wan is effecting extensive alterations in the Third Avenue store and promises to give the Edison and Vocalion lines a representation henceforth that they will do credit to these products.

Miss Willie Cox, of the Clark & Jones Piano Co., is spending her vacation in Chicago, where she will spend some time with Lyon & Healy in their Victor Department. Miss Cox expects to visit also the Widdicomb factory in Grand Rapids. Miss Cox is known to the Birmingham public as the "Phonograph Girl." She has been engaged in the business for many years and has probably sold more talking machines and records than any woman in the South.

The Clark & Jones Piano Co. report, as usual, a tremendous business for the past month. The house has looked for a falling off of its business during the summer months, but with judicious advertising and concentrated effort on the part of the salespeople the firm reports an extremely good business for June.

During the past week the talking machine dealers of this city signed a petition to close their doors at nine o'clock on Saturday evenings. This is decidedly a step forward because heretofore many of the dealers had no specified time to close and it created confusion in the minds of the record-buying public.

Last week quite a little excitement was created by a fire on the mezzanine floor of the C. C. Holcombe Co. Plumbers were at work and a gasoline burner exploded and set fire to everything in a radius of ten feet. Several of the salesladies lost wraps and other belongings and slight damage was done to other material on the floor.

The Clark & Jones Piano Co. purchased last week two new trucks for the delivery of talking machines during the coming season.

Loveman, Joseph & Loeb have been featuring the new Edison cabinets in their advertising during the past month. The phonograph department of this house is very much more active since the installation of Mr. Golden as manager, and the coming fall promises to be a busy season.

THE PROBLEM OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND IN CINCINNATI

Dealers Kept Busy in Trying to Make Two Factors Balance—New Machine Enters the Field—Big Convention of Columbia Dealers Held—Linking Up Records With Films—News of Month

CINCINNATI, O., July 3.—Getting ready for the fall and winter rush of business in the midst of unusual hot weather is the story of the retail and manufacturing trade of the Middle West. The merchants are not at all bothered about existing conditions, for the main question is to keep a satisfactory supply of selling records on hand.

P. H. Oelman, manager of the Phonograph Co., Cincinnati, was back at his desk Monday, following his attendance at the dealers' convention. While speaking highly of the usefulness of gatherings of this nature, Mr. Oelman's main thoughts were along the lines of a bounteous supply which is not forthcoming.

Holiday inquiries are being received at the Fritsch Phonograph Co., Canal and Main streets, where business is reported active.

Among the many out-of-town visitors to the local Columbia branch during the past two weeks were: George W. Hunter, Dayton, O.; E. C. Christian, of the Christian Music Co., Lexington, Ky.; Chester Fisher, Harrison, O.; Jacob Gordon, Butler, Ky.; Mr. Elmer Woodhead, Falmouth, Ky.; Mr. Shaffer, of A. R. Simpson Co., Hillsboro, O.; J. Margolis, of the Victor Furniture Co., Dayton, O.; Mr. Kramer, of the Sterling Jewelry Co., Dayton, O.; E. G. King, Williamsburg, O.; U. V. Walker, Owenton, Ky.; A. D. Kirk, Winchester, O.; A. R. Polasky, Georgetown, O.; J. J. Davis, Seaman, O.; W. T. Breeze, Brooksville, Ky.; C. L. Hutsiniller, of the Modern Drug Shop, Prestonburg, Ky.; Mr. Trapp, of Trapp & Gardener, Ripley, O.; Jeff Thompson, Lebanon, O.

"The Heart of Humanity," which played at the Lyric Theatre the past week, gave the Columbia dealers in Cincinnati an opportunity to tie-up with that film, by window displays, newspaper advertising, etc., and in that way sell more records of "The Heart of Humanity," which is recorded by the Columbia Co. Also "The Red Lantern," which is playing this week at the Lyric Theatre, is receiving co-operation from the Cincinnati Columbia dealers. A. F. Greenwood, formerly of the Cincinnati branch, has resigned, and as yet no one has been assigned to succeed him.

F. F. Dawson, manager, has been visiting dealers in Kentucky the past week.

R. F. Bolton, sales manager of the International Record Department, has also been a visitor to the Cincinnati branch in the past week. Mr. Bolton gave some very good ideas about selling foreign records.

The big event of the Cincinnati branch this month was the Columbia dealers' convention, June 4 and 5. There were over 100 dealers present, including their sales people. Mr. N. B. Smith, assistant manager of the Cincinnati branch, had charge of the meeting, which was held in the assembly room of the Sinton Hotel, while Manager Dawson presided in the evening at a banquet in the grill room of the same hotel. The first meeting opened with a talk by Chas. Corday, manager of the Leo Feist Inc., on advertising. The talk of the evening was made by Geo. W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co. C. K. Woodbridge spoke briefly about his branch of the business. The latter is connected with the Columbia Dictaphone.

The "Recall" will be the name of the product of the Huss Bros. Phonograph & Piano Manufacturing Co.'s factory, just being assembled at the northwest corner of Canal and Vine streets. It will be made in four sizes. The company will not be in quite shipshape for turning out goods under two weeks, according to C. C. Coppin.

Mrs. Janet Furniss has been spending considerable time with the Campbell Furniture Co., at Piqua, O., installing a new record system, and is having wonderful success in her work.

Manager T. Sigman, of the Victrola department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., is elated over the general trend of things in his territory. In speaking of business yesterday he said:

"The hot weather during the month of June did not affect the demand for talking machine goods, for the sale of Victrolas and records in our wholesale and retail departments was way over June of last year.

"Many small Victrolas, such as the $25.00 and $35.00 models, were sold to campers and vacationists, who seemed more than ever to realize the entertaining qualities these wonderful little instruments possess. 'Just the thing,' one young lady said, 'to have our dancing out on the lawn.'

"Instrumental records proved the best sellers this month, with jazz bands and dance records leading.

"'Service' seems to be the one great aim of all the enterprising Victrola dealers, and they are spending large sums of money for fixtures, booths, sign displays and many other attractive articles, in order that they may get their stores to look attractive and also for the convenience of their customers."

C. L. Byars reports the biggest Vocalion business the local Aeolian store has ever experienced in the month of June. He is still suffering a shortage of goods, but Mr. Byars feels confident that if some stock comes in to relieve the situation in July and August these two months will be record breakers.

Miss Hortense Palmer, one of the charming members of the Vocalion Record staff, has just embarked on the long journey on the sea of matrimony. Miss Palmer leaves with the congratulations and best wishes of all her associates.

One of the newest organizations to take on the jobbing of Emerson records is the Southern Sonora Co., Selma, Ala., which has been given the territory covering all of Georgia and Florida.

W. C. FUHRI JOINS HEINEMAN STAFF

Well-known Talking Machine Man Appointed General Manager of Record Division of Otto Heineman Supply Co., Inc.—A Man of Wide Experience in All Branches of the Industry

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., announced this week, through John Cromelin, general sales manager, the appointment of W. C. Fuhri as general sales manager of the record division, with headquarters at the company's executive offices, 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York. Mr. Fuhri will also devote his time to co-operating with and giving service to the users of all other Heineman products, including Heineman motors, tone arms, sound boxes, needles, etc.

W. C. Fuhri is one of the best-known members of the talking machine industry in the country. For the past twenty-one years he has been associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co., having occupied important executive positions with that company.

In 1898 he joined the Columbia forces at St. Louis, in a short time becoming assistant manager of that branch. After six months he was promoted to manager and two years later was district manager, with headquarters in St. Louis, his territory comprising the entire Southwest.

In 1906 Mr. Fuhri was transferred to Chicago, where he was given control of the entire district from New Orleans as far west as Salt Lake City. He occupied this post for ten years.

In 1916 Mr. Fuhri went to New York to become United States manager for the company, having under his jurisdiction the entire business throughout the United States. A change of policy influenced him later to request that he be reassigned to his former post in Chicago, where he has been for the past year.

Mr. Fuhri's past experience admirably equips him to render invaluable co-operation and service to the Heineman clientele. He brings to his new position a thorough knowledge of the phonograph industry and an intimate familiarity with all details of record and phonograph merchandising that is equaled by very few members of the trade. Mr. Fuhri will take a much-needed rest and assume his new duties within the near future.

ATLANTA TRADE CONTINUES STRONG

Summer Months Show No Lessening of Business—Leading Houses Report Continued Activity—Columbia Salesmen and Dealers Meet

ATLANTA, GA., July 7.—Reports from several hundred talking machine dealers in this State indicate that business is running in higher figures than ever, and the summer months are bringing no noticeable slowing up. Trade conditions are entirely satisfactory, largely due to the fact that cotton has advanced in price and a great deal of money is in circulation.

Manager Terhune, of the local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., recently made a trip to Florida and returned very much pleased with conditions as he found them.

A feature of the month was the meeting of Columbia traveling salesmen and dealers held at the Ansley Hotel early in June. After an excellent dinner the new records were played and short talks were given by various dealers.

Active summer business is reported by the Zaban Furniture Co., Columbia dealers; the Atlanta Talking Machine Co., the Cable Piano Co., Victor dealers; the Delpheon Shop, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Victor and Sonora dealers; the Phillips & Crew Piano Co., Phonographs, Inc., Edison jobbers, and the Elyea Co.

Prepare!

DURING the past year or more dealers have sold many excellent records for which there had been little demand.

THE extreme shortage which resulted in the dealer's inability to supply sufficient of the records asked for, forced him to familiarize himself with the class of records he could procure and to interest his customers in them.

THE demand for records will continue to grow and even with increased output there will be a shortage of many numbers.

ANTICIPATE this demand and see that you have a stock of those so-called slow selling records and do not lose profits other dealers are making.

UNITED PHONO. CORP. ENTERTAINS

Dealers From All Parts of Country Visit Puritan Phonograph Plant—Show Visitors How Machines and Records Are Made

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., July 2.—During Friday and Saturday of last week the United Phonograph Corp., makers of the Puritan phonograph, entertained dealers from all parts of the country who came to inspect the Puritan plant. The visitors divided their time between the factories at Grafton, Port Washington and this city. At Grafton they had the opportunity of seeing records made. At the banquet on Friday night a pleasing program was offered by the artists on the Puritan staff and the officials of the company outlined the plans by which the present success of the concern has been attained. Col. E. J. Barrett presided as toastmaster and gave the credit for the success of the Puritan to the splendid co-operation shown by the dealers.

Among those present at the banquet were: R. W. Micks, Gladstone, Mich.; L. J. Lively, Morrison, Ill.; Joe Frank, Bristol, Tenn.; O. C. Horn, Oshkosh; C. E. Whitcomb, Minneapolis, Minn.; Arthur T. Garrett, St. Paul; Robert J. Karsten, Milwaukee; Raymond A. Kuhn, Milwaukee; C. B. CHATTANOOGA TRADE STILL ACTIVE

Conditions for June Satisfactory—Sterchi Bros. Change Name—Trade in Rural Districts Unusually Active—Other News of Interest

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., July 7.—Business conditions in the talking machine trade in this city for June were very satisfactory. The volume of sales continued to be unusually large, and most dealers received shipments of stock with greater regularity than for some time past. The record business especially is very active, many of the manufacturers being oversold for months ahead on the standard pieces.

The Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., Columbia and Edison dealers, announce a change in firm name to Sterchi Bros. & Fowler. Mr. Fowler has for several years been an officer and stockholder in the firm, and his addition to the staff of this concern is a recognition of his work in the music trade in the South. This firm has for some weeks past been using much space in the local newspapers, and excellent results have been obtained from this form of advertising.

Other enterprising music houses that are sharing in the general trade here are the Stulce-Yarnell Furniture Co., Columbia dealers; Rhodes-Mahoney Co., Victor and Brunswick dealers; Clemons Bros., Victor and Sonora dealers; and the Templeton Piano Co., which has increased its talking machine department considerably within the last year. Reports from travelers in the surrounding territory indicate that business is very good in the rural district.

CONVENTION OF HEINEMAN EXECUTIVE AND SALES STAFF

Encouraging Reports Made at Two-day Gathering of Heineman Forces—President Otto Heineman Gives Valuable Data—Garford and Meisselbach Enterprises Steadily Progressing

Otto Heineman, president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., 25 West 45th street, New York, was the host at a luncheon given at the Hotel Astor recently in conjunction with a convention of his executive and sales staff. The meeting lasted two days and many important topics were discussed and plans consummated which will greatly enhance the co-operation and service offered to the Heineman clientele.

Otto Heineman

At the luncheon Mr. Heineman gave his staff some valuable data in connection with the remarkable progress of the various Heineman factories during the past six months. Figures were advanced showing that the output of Heineman motors has increased tremendously within the past year, and after submitting these figures Mr. Heineman paid a well-deserved tribute to the untiring efforts and indefatigable work of A. G. Bean, president of the Garford Manufacturing Co. (now a part of the Heineman organization), who has been in charge of the Elyria plant since the inception of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc.

Record of A. G. Bean

Mr. Bean, who was recently elected president of the Garford Mfg. Co., after being its vice-president and general manager for many years, is one of the best-known manufacturers in the Middle West. He has been an important factor in manufacturing circles throughout this section of the country for a number of years and at the present time is president of the Manufacturers' Association of Elyria. He has worked day and night to bring the Elyria factory to its present state of high efficiency and the phenomenal success attained by the Heineman motor may be attributed in a considerable measure to Mr. Bean's rare executive acumen, remarkable manufacturing knowledge and thorough familiarity with every phase of motor production. He has left nothing undone to make the Elyria plant a model factory in every sense of the word and visitors to this plant are amazed at its magnitude and scope.

Some time ago Mr. Heineman made a trip through the Middle West, spending several days at the Elyria factory, and after a conference with Mr. Bean arrangements were made providing for the enlargement of the plant in practically every department and contracts were awarded for new machinery. This machinery is now installed and its beneficial effect on Heineman motor production is indicated in the fact that the output during June far exceeded any month in the history of the company. Mr. Bean submitted preliminary estimates showing that July and August will even outdistance the June figures and the executive and sales organization was delighted to receive this gratifying news.

Encouraging Meisselbach Reports

A. F. Meisselbach, vice-president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., gave equally encouraging reports of the situation at Newark and in one of his usual witty speeches expressed his sincere appreciation of the co-operation that has been given the Meisselbach division by every member of the Heineman organization. The new $500,000 Meisselbach factory at Newark is making rapid headway, and when this plant is completed ample facilities will be afforded for the development and growth of the Meisselbach division. For several years past the demand for Meisselbach motors has been far in excess of the available factory output, but the new building will solve this problem satisfactorily and give Mr. Meisselbach and his associates an opportunity to vastly increase their output.

OkeH Records Going Well

John Cromelin, general sales manager of the company, furnished interesting data regarding the progress being made with the OkeH record. The sales organization was pleased to learn that the new lists of OkeH records have won enthusiastic commendation from well-known musical critics who have visited the OkeH record laboratories during the past few months and Mr. Cromelin advised the sales staff that manufacturing conditions will enable the record division to give immediate deliveries and prompt service to OkeH jobbers and dealers everywhere.

Brief addresses were also made by several other members of the executive staff, and among others who attended the luncheon in addition to those mentioned above were the following: Adolf Heineman, vice-president; Jacob Schechter, secretary; W. G. Pilgrim, assistant general manager; Pliny Catucci, chief engineer; A. L. Patrick, treasurer of the Garford Mfg. Co.; S. A. Ribolla, general manager of the Chicago branch; John Dean, of the Dean Division; C. J. Pott, Canadian manager; Anthony Vesseli, superintendent of the Newark factory; P. L. Baerwald and M. E. Schechter, managers of the Eastern sales division; W. C. Strong, of the Newark division; R. C. Ackerman, export manager, and L. M. Robinson, advertising manager.

TO ADDRESS TALKING MACHINE MEN

Geo. W. Pound to Speak Before Local Organization at Luncheon on July 16—To Launch a Strong Membership Campaign

George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, will address the members of the Talking Machine Men, Inc., at a special luncheon of that organization at the Hotel McAlpin on Wednesday, July 16. It is stated that Mr. Pound will have an important message to deliver to the talking machine men who, by virtue of their recently acquired membership in the National Association of Music Merchants, have become affiliated with the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce.

At the meeting on July 16 the Talking Machine Men, Inc., will launch their strong membership campaign, which will last the month, and will wind up at the annual outing of the organization at Rye Beach on August 13.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT ACT DROPPED

OTTAWA, ONT., July 1.—The special committee of the Canadian Senate on the proposed new Copyright Act has submitted its report to that body. It is understood that the bill will be dropped by the Government with the idea of introducing it again next session. In the meantime negotiations will be entered into with the United States in an effort to reach an agreement regarding a mutually satisfactory basis of copyright between the two countries.

SLIGHT SLUMP IN TOLEDO TRADE

Local Conditions Have Temporary Effect on Talking Machine Business—Stocks Still Slack—What Various Concerns Report

TOLEDO, OHIO, July 7.—Most of the local dealers seen by your correspondent report business not quite up to normal. This, however, is due entirely to the conditions here in Toledo.

The various Pathé, Columbia and Brunswick dealers report business fair. The Edison representative is having a fairly good sale on the higher priced models. Until local conditions improve business in the talking machine field will not show marked activity.

The Cable Piano Co. reports the demand for Victrolas in excess of its shipments, with a slight falling off in the demand for records.

The Whitney & Currier Co. are experiencing difficulty in getting a sufficient quantity of Victrolas and records to take care of their trade.

The J. W. Greene Co. reports business fairly good in all lines.

Chas. H. Womeldorff, manager, and Warren

L. Kellogg, assistant manager of the Toledo Talking Machine Co., have just returned from the jobbers' convention at Atlantic City, and report being very well satisfied with conditions at the factory. In their estimation the Victor Co. is doing all that is possible to speed up production. They were very favorably impressed with the new period designs just shown by the Victor Co., and believe that these machines will meet with a ready sale to the dealers and to the trade in general. All things taken into consideration, the past convention was the most successful of those held by the National Association.

The demand for Victor goods from the out-of-town dealers still continues unprecedented, and prospects are for an immense business this fall and winter.

CONVENTION OF EDUCATIONAL FORCE

Staff of Victor Co., Educational Department, With Heads of Departments Conducted by Jobbers and Dealers, to Convene in Camden

During the last week in August there will be held at the Victor Co. headquarters in Camden a general convention of the staff of the Educational Department of that company, under the direction of Mrs. Frances G. Clark, which convention will also be attended by the heads of the various educational departments conducted by wholesalers and dealers. During the course of the convention there will be held a number of interesting and helpful lectures by musical authorities as well as a series of descriptive concerts. The growing interest shown in educational work by the Victor wholesalers and dealers at large and the establishment of special departments by many of them to handle that phase of the business should serve to lend much interest to the forthcoming convention. Before the August meeting Mrs. Clark plans to spend a vacation of several weeks in Maine in order to recuperate after a distinctly strenuous season.

ANNA CASE ENTERTAINS WOUNDED

Soldiers From New York Hospital Guests of Edison Artist at Home Near Mamaroneck

An admirable climax to the notable war work accomplished by Miss Anna Case, the Edison artist, was a lawn party and concert given by her at her summer home near Mamaroneck on Flag Day to 200 wounded soldiers from a New York hospital. The feature of the entertainment was a short concert by Miss Case, assisted by some vaudeville acts from New York theatres. The entertainment was given on a side porch overlooking the wide lawn and Long Island Sound, the porch being draped attractively in the national colors. The soldiers and their nurses were grouped about the lawn, many of the former being in such shape that they had to be carried from the army ambulances on cots.

Miss Case sang a new song which she has just composed: "The Robin's Song," and her singing served to inspire the wounded soldiers immensely. "You don't know how much you've done for us, Miss Case," said one. "This is the happiest day I've ever known." After the entertainment supper was served on the lawn, and the guests returned to the hospital.

S. S. Hackett and his wife and daughter, all from Fresno, Cal., spent a few days recently in New York City. Mr. Hackett is of the Bristol-Cowan Co., large Columbia dealers.

Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. Sends Out a Number of Sales Aids in Form of Posters Bearing Particularly on the Sonora Portable

The Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., is sending to its dealers at this time some extraordinarily handsome window display posters, two of which are unusually apropos of this season, inasmuch as they feature the Portable. One of these posters pictures a Sonora Portable in connection with a wonderfully inviting vacation scene, composed of pretty girls, snow-capped mountains, and beautiful vistas. Another illustrates the Sonora Portable entertaining a party of smart automobilists while resting leisurely on the roadside, an illustration of which appears herewith.

Sonora Window Poster Much Admired

Both of these attractive posters prove to be extremely powerful arguments to demonstrate that the Sonora Portable is just the kind of musical instrument to be taken with one on a vacation.

Among other artistic lithographs which the Sonora Co. is sending out is one showing the Baby Grand in a fashionable shore home. All of these display posters are excellent in coloring and composition and undoubtedly constitute a set of the sales aids that will be appreciated by dealers.

E. J. WALZ WITH COHEN & HUGHES

Well-Known Member of Victor Co. Staff to Become General Manager for Cohen & Hughes, Prominent Wholesalers of Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 2.—Cohen & Hughes, prominent Victor wholesalers of this city, have just made the important announcement that Elmer J. Walz, who for the past fifteen years has been connected with the Victor Co. in various capacities, will become associated with the Cohen & Hughes organization as general manager on August 1.

In making the announcement Cohen & Hughes say: "Realizing that the reconstruction period is bringing bigger possibilities and broader responsibilities, we have found it necessary to augment our organization in order to give our dealers the full measure of support and co-operation to which they are entitled."

The wide experience of Mr. Walz in the Victor business eminently fits him for his new responsibilities, and it is expected that his association with the house of Cohen & Hughes will prove a distinct factor in the development of that company's business.

NEW DEALERS IN BELL HOOD NEEDLES

The New England Musical Instrument Trading Co., New York, distributors for the Bell Hood semi-permanent needle, have added many dealers to the list of those acting as agents for their product. The needle is meeting with success and from a consumer's standpoint is gaining much popularity. Philip Jacobson, head of the above company, is making a campaign to enlist the support of the dealers in the eastern territory which will be immediately followed by a drive in the Middle West.

EXHIBITS OF TALKING MACHINES AT GRAND RAPIDS SHOW

Interesting Feature of Semi-Annual Furniture Show Just Opened in Grand Rapids Is the Extensive Display of Talking Machines Made by Various Well-known Firms

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., July 1.—Grand Rapids is not only the headquarters market for all high-grade furniture, but it is rapidly becoming one of the leading markets in this country for the talking machine business, at least so far as semi-annual displays are concerned.

The exhibits in this market this summer of talking machines are attracting very pronounced attention, and the company that will admit doing a poor business has not yet been found. Indeed, one concern which does a very fair volume of business is known to have sold its season's output in the first two days of the market. That was unfortunate, it is felt, for obviously that concern sold to jobbers who were anxious to pick up all the stock they could get early. This is the only company in this market which has consented to sell in job lots. The others have talked this way: "We don't care if we don't sell our entire output. We do insist on our goods getting a wide distribution—that's the best sort of business in the end."

As was to be expected, among the most attractive exhibits in the market are those of the Cheney Talking Machine Co., the Michigan Phonograph Co. (Lauzon), the Widdicomb Co., and the Grand Rapids Phonograph Co. All of these concerns are essentially Grand Rapids products, very few parts used by any of them being made outside of this city. The Cheney is showing a large line in the Keeler exhibition building, its cabinet work, done by the Berkey & Gay Furniture Co., being fully as elegant as the cabinet work on any of that concern's highest-grade furniture. Walnut and mahogany in various finishes are used. Obviously one sees in these machines the acme of exemplification of the leading period styles, and buyers of high-grade furniture are proving insistent on being given fully as much elegance in cabinets as is found in the best period furniture.

The new Grand Rapids Phonograph Co., formerly the Grand Rapids School Equipment Co., is showing a number of models of its L'Artiste, in mahogany, walnut and oak. The company is using the Meisselbach motor and its own tone arm, and is producing a beautiful machine. The finished product will be on the market during the last week in August. Meanwhile a good business is being done, and jobbing will be maintained only in the far southern and southwestern parts of the country.

The Michigan Phonograph Co., which is a branch of the Lauzon Furniture Co., is making as its leader this season a large model in Japanese lacquer finish. The Lauzon is a most artistic model, with a finish that is easily accounted for by the fact that the same artists who have been making the famous Lauzon lamps for some years are now working on the finish of the cabinets. Two oaks, two mahoganies and a walnut are being shown in a variety of periods. The Krasberg Motor Co. had an exhibit in the same building.

The Widdicomb Furniture Co. in its phonograph department is showing twenty pieces in ten models in mahogany, walnut and oak, the prevalent period styles, and the same excellent quality of goods. The company did not bring out any new models for this exhibition, business in both furniture and talking machine lines being too great.

The Starr Piano Co., Richmond, Ind., as usual made an exhibit in the Furniture Temple, where it has been for six semi-annual seasons. Half a dozen high-grade machines were shown, and a good business was booked.

Exhibits of less pretentious character are being made by the new Crescent Co., the American Phonograph Co., the Arcraft Phonograph Co., all of Grand Rapids; Naturvia, made by the Natural Way Phonograph Co., in Zeeland, Mich., the Supertone, of New York; the Manophone Corporation, of Adrian, Mich., shown in the Morton House lobby, the first time in connection with a furniture exhibition; the Empire of Chicago, the Concertola, of New York, West Michigan Furniture Co. and other exhibits.

One of the centers of interest was the OkeH building, the entire ground floor of which had been turned over for exhibition purposes. Among the products shown in this building are: Heineman-Meisselbach motors and phonograph supplies, Dean needles, OkeH records, made by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York; Peerless record albums, Peerless Album Co., New York; B & H Fibre Needles, B & H Fibre Mfg. Co., Chicago; Fletcher-Wickes sound-boxes and tone-arms, Fletcher-Wickes Co., Chicago; Modernola talking machines, the Modernola Co., Johnstown, Pa.; Supertone talking machines, Magnedo needles and Triangle phono-parts, L'Artiste talking machines, the Elite phonographs, Elite Phonograph Co., Grand Rapids; Veeco electric motors, the Veeco Co., Boston, Mass., makers of Veeco electric motors.

In the Klingman Annex, where several of the smaller phonograph concerns are showing their exhibits in small booths, there is a large exhibit of talking machine accessories—motors, tone arms, modifiers, automatic stops, turntables, needles, gear winds, record albums, etc., in an interesting profusion.

Considering that this is the first ambitious effort ever made to stage an exhibit of phonographs in Grand Rapids, the results are fine. The buyers have also seen on exhibition cabinets made by ten to twelve furniture manufacturing companies on contracts for such concerns as Pathé, Columbia, Aeolian-Vocalion, Sonora, and others. It is said on good authority that phonographs and cabinets being made on contract in this city will aggregate twelve million dollars in value.

During the year 1918 the musical instruments exported by France to the United States amounted to $401,300. This was a decided decrease from the exports in 1917, which were valued at $981,000.

How We Serve the Dealer

☞ We give individual service to the dealer and prefer to lay out a plan that will meet his exact conditions rather than make his business fit our plans. We study the dealer's needs and requirements, bearing in mind that local conditions and surroundings may not always conform to fixed plans and specifications. Individual Service has been the key-note of our success.

☞ Send us a plan of your store showing doors, windows, and the position of other fixtures. Our service department will then lay out the installation best fitted for your store.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 10.—“Right now, when warm weather is supposed to bring me a breathing spell—when I am supposed to let business go by the board and get out of town on my vacation—right now I’m getting in my best work,” said a well-known Chicago wholesaler. “Do you remember that old gag—something about opportunity knocking at the door? Well, it’s true now if it ever was true. The old dame stands just outside the door of every talking machine man’s establishment in the country with money bags bulging under each arm.”

Roughly, but aptly, this expresses the ideas of a certain percentage of foresighted Chicago talking machine men, retailers as well as wholesalers. There seems to be an intention on the part of many to “make hay while the sun shines,” and accomplish during the summer what could not be accomplished if left until the fall. A desire to “get the jump” on the other fellow is apparent. It is the consensus of opinion that next fall will bring the apex of demand, that the holidays will offer a golden opportunity for establishing businesses upon firm and permanent footings which will outlast the present “boom.” Another reason for the unusual hot weather activity of many local talking machine men is the fact that although machines are hard to get now they will be much harder to get in the fall and it behooves both dealer and manufacturer to keep busy.

Local dealers are not losing sight in the mad scramble for machines of the fact that prestige and a reputation for conscientious dealing count for the most in the long run and that the narrow-minded policy of selling for the present, oblivious of the future, will in time eliminate the man who pursues it. The broader tendency is evident in local newspaper advertising, service to customers and window displays. Now, when the demand is so far in excess of supply, when there would seem to be the least call for effort in keeping one’s goods before the public, now the most progressive merchants are striking out with utmost energy. No other June or July has seen as much newspaper advertising of talking machines, or window displays of anywhere near equal merit.

Wholesalers are pursuing the same policy in regard to their distributors. They realize that now it is up to them to do their best by their dealer clientele, as the latter have done their best in slacker times. Although greatly oversold and assured that all output will be contracted for months in advance, the service was never better nor the desire to match increased output with higher quality more apparent. Building for the future seems to be the end toward which the majority of manufacturers are working. There are some on the other side of the fence, but they are as visible as a black dot of ink on a white sheet of paper.

Good Local Window Displays

Window displays of more than usual merit appear in a number of Chicago downtown talking machine houses. The fact that machines are scarce and hard to get seems to have had no detrimental effect upon the expense and energy expended in trimming the windows, nor has the coming of warm weather and what is usually termed the slack season had any backward effect in this matter; in fact, the talking machine window displays of the present time, if anything, are of a higher degree of excellence than has been seen since the first of the year. A number of merchants believe in the theory that a prospect starts “thinking” of buying in the summer or early fall and “makes up his or her mind” in the holidays. It then follows that the store which attracts the first favorable attention gets the ultimate business.

Lyon & Healy have had a most pleasing “real life” window of a summer place in the mountains, with a Victrola as the center of interest. The display appears in the large corner window of the Lyon & Healy store and lends itself admirably to this sort of a display. Around the edges of the window runs a little brook in which live fish to the number of some half-dozen or more are swimming. A miniature waterfall throws water down over mossy rocks into the stream and in a number of places along the “brook” air-bubbles can be seen continually arising from the bottom. Along the side of the stream a few birds, excellent specimens of the taxidermist’s art, stand in lifelike attitudes. At the rear of the window stone steps and an arch are pictured, leading back to a villa. From the arch hang great numbers of flowers, creating a very pleasing effect. A most lifelike, breezy out-in-the-open-air atmosphere is attained throughout the display, which starts one immediately thinking about vacation; but the happy mother and small boy listening to the instrument do not permit one to forget that the talking machine is a necessary part of the outing.

Quite another type of display, yet none the less original in its way, is that appearing in the Wurlitzer window, featuring the two records, “Alcoholic Blues” and “How Are You Going to Wet Your Whistle.” A representation of a Victrola, with the doors, turntable, tone arm, sound box, lid, winding lever, etc., bears the name “Dry-Ola.” This talking machine, constructed entirely from a beer keg, would seem a most appropriate instrument upon which to play the two funeral selections above mentioned. At any rate the people gazing in at the “Dry-Ola” with moistly interested eyes seem to voice their approbation of the display.

The Talking Machine Shop, exclusive Victor retailers of Chicago, are running true to their usual form in putting on a summer display which attracts the attention of the passerby immediately. Against a background of red brick, representing a homestead typical of millions throughout the United States, is built a small porch with very limited space. Upon this porch a Victrola, some records and two comfortable wicker chairs are placed and demonstrate what the small porch of the average family dwelling affords in the way of summer musical entertainment. The red brick background, gray and white railings of the porch, green lawn and flowers make up a most harmonious whole, well calculated to get action out of the man who has no talking machine on his porch.

The Brunswick Shop have a timely window in which a June bride is pictured as bending over the gift of a Brunswick instrument, enraptured with the music she hears. The figure is made of cardboard and dressed with silk. At one side of the window a large jardiniere of flowers is set, lending a colorful effect that is pleasing.

new store in Benton. C. D. Durham, manager, stated that the stock of the Southern Illinois Music Co. has been increased from $2,500 to $10,000 so as to enable them adequately to take care of their increased business. The company handles Edison and Columbia talking machines.

Big Opening at Decatur

The Linn & Scruggs Drygoods Co., of Decatur, Ill., held the formal opening of their new music department last month. The building in which the talking machine and piano departments are housed consists of three stories and a basement. The first floor contains demonstration booths, some talking machines and a stock of player-pianos. On this floor also is located the office of the manager, W. E. Rauch. The concert hall for the demonstration of talking machines and pianos is on the second floor. The third floor has a repair room and the basement is used for storage.

A "Get Together" meeting of all those connected with the newly established department was held on the morning of the "opening." In the afternoon a musical program was given at the recital hall with vocal and instrumental numbers rendered by prominent artists. Representatives Putnam and Page, of the Stewart Phonograph Co., Victor jobbers of Peoria, Ill., and Springfield, Ill., respectively, gave Linn & Scruggs a luncheon on Wednesday noon, and in the evening the Sonora Talking Machine Co. gave a Sonora supper. It may be mentioned in passing that the Packard Piano Co. started the ball arolling in the morning with a Packard breakfast. It is evident that Linn & Scruggs were well fed on the eleventh.

Vitanola Post Advertising

The Vitanola Talking Machine Co. recently inserted some very interesting and effectual page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post. "The Phonograph Plus at the Price Minus" is the title of one advertisement. In the opening paragraph of this page we find the name "Vitanola," explaining that the "vita" in their name is the Latin word meaning "life." Numerous cuts and interesting text matter completed the company's advertisement.

Columbia to Be in New Offices

The Columbia Graphophone Co. plans to remove in the near future from its present location, 12 North Michigan avenue, to new quarters in the McNeil Building. The Chicago branch will then have one of the finest wholesale display offices in the country. A complete model store with new record racks, counters, and booths, modernly equipped throughout, will be constructed and on exhibition at all times for the convenience of visiting dealers. Plans for the offices in the McNeil Building have been completed and construction started, but the Columbia Co. does not expect to be able to move for a short time yet.

Traveler Undergoes Operation

H. H. Michaels, traveling representative for the Chicago Talking Machine Co., Victor jobbers, recently submitted to a serious operation for stomach trouble in the Presbyterian Hospital. His friends will be glad to know that he is now practically out of danger and will soon be again calling upon talking machine merchants in Michigan and Indiana.

Rapidly Recovering His Health

John H. Steinmetz, president of the Empire Talking Machine Co., recently underwent an ocular operation in St. Luke's Hospital here. The operation occurred a few weeks ago and was an entire success. Mr. Steinmetz recovered quickly and again resumed his activities as chief executive of the Empire Talking Machine Co.

Crops and Talking Machines

C. E. Hitchcock, of "Hitchcocks," Wellington, Kan., believes in music and agriculture. He is in both businesses and just now finds both in a great state of prosperity. His son, R. W. Hitchcock, now actively in charge of the Wellington music house, sends the accompanying photograph of himself and father in one of their wheat fields to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., whose product they handle. The picture gives a good idea of the Kansas wheat crop of this year and promises many good things for the established music dealer.

"You will notice that the wheat is almost shoulder high," writes R. W. Hitchcock, "and of the very finest quality. We will harvest 450 acres of wheat on the farm this year and from

C. E. and R. W. Hitchcock in a Wheat Field the looks of things around here we begin to think that you people will get all the money."

Just Goes and Gets Married

Another A No. 1 saleswoman is lost to the Chicago talking machine trade! Miss Ruth Steele, who formerly had charge of the talking machine department of the P. A. Starck Piano Co., has been married to Captain Patrick F. Machler, who commands the hospital for wounded soldiers at Newport News, Va.

Visitor From the West Indies

A. Melenedez, music merchant with interests in the West Indies, is in Chicago with a big smile and a store of optimism regarding the music situation in our neighboring islands. Mr. Melenedez is here visiting his brother, who is employed with Armour & Co., and has stated that he intends to remain in the city for a month or two. He has a home in Havana, Cuba, where his largest musical house is established. He carries a number of lines of musical instru-

Now Occupy Entire Building

The Universal Stamping & Mfg. Co. announce this month that they have taken over the entire building wherein their plant and offices are located. The size of this building is 250 by 140 feet and is devoted exclusively to the manufacture of "Universal A6" three-spring motors and turntables, as well as the "Universal Auto Stop," "Star Stop" and "Sure Stop." One of the unique features of this factory is in the remodeling of a large room which was made absolutely soundproof. The walls, ceiling and floor of this room are made of very thick concrete. This room is devoted entirely to the testing of "Universal" motors and the men working herein are highly specialized in this art. The men work with stethoscopes as part of their equipment, and with the aid of the afore-said apparatus are able to detect the slightest sound that may possibly emanate from the motor. Their object is in the main to inspect each and every motor and see that it is absolutely noiseless before going out of the factory.

During the war the Universal Stamping & Mfg. Co. were turning out a great amount of special mechanism used in 75 millimeter guns, and the same employees that were working on this mechanism are now employed in the building of Universal motors and automatic stops. In doing this work the mechanics worked from French blueprints and thereby became well acquainted with the metric system of measurement. The machinery that was used in the manufacture of these parts is of the highest grade and all work turned out by them is accurate in every detail.

Change Store Name

Hereafter the George P. Bent retail piano and talking machine store, located at 214 South Wabash avenue, will be known as the "Chicago Music Center." Under the management of George Harry Bent and Charles Bent, just returned from service overseas, the store plans extensive campaigns for summer and fall business. George P. Bent, founder of the house, has retired and recently gave a farewell dinner to his many friends in the trade. After a two weeks' fishing and hunting trip in the woods of Wisconsin Mr. Bent will leave for his California home. The "Chicago Music Center" will continue to handle the complete Victor line of talking machines and records.

"Blues" In Alabama

Why is it that just now "Blues" seem such wonderful sellers? Is it because of the great drought that has struck the country, or just because this weird music appeals at any time in any place to the millions of people who have discovered it? John H. Steinmetz, president of the Empire Talking Machine Co. and manufacturer of the Empire records, cites an instance of the remarkable sale of this type of record in the South. The Music Exchange of Birmingham, Alabama, recently received a large shipment of "St. Louis Blues," Empire records, on a Saturday morning, and sold the entire lot before evening, with prospects of a big night's business yet to come. But then, sectionally speaking, why shouldn't "St. Louis Blues" be popular in "Alabam"?

Attend Edison Convention

C. E. Goodwin, president of the Phonograph Co., large Edison jobbers of this city, accompanied by L. A. Sutfin, H. D. Buchanan and J. R. Kittleredge, all prominent Edison men of Chicago, left the last week in June to attend the Edison conventions in New York. A special train, upon which was carried all of the Western Edison men attending the convention, left Chicago a few days previous to the New York opening date. The conventioners stopped off at Niagara Falls on their way East and were enabled to enjoy the trip through the Hudson River valley by daylight.

Carload Lots a Success

Otto A. Gressing, sales manager of the Vista Talking Machine Co., of Port Washington, Wis., who has strongly pushed the idea of wholesaling talking machines in carload lots, reports marked success of the method. He believes that dealers are ready for the carload-lot plan, especially with the trade in its present condition. Mr. Gressing states that O. O. Dice, well known to the talking machine trade, is now covering the Illinois territory, and that E. E. Kolar is traveling in Indiana.

Crystola Agency Here

Francis Evans, of the firm of Evans & Davis, has been placed in charge of this concern's newly acquired Crystola agency. Mr. Evans has just returned from service overseas and takes up his new duties with great enthusiasm. He expects to establish a number of agencies all over the country before the end of the fall. Evans & Davis are marketing the Crystola, not only in the Middle West, but in all parts of the United States. Besides talking machines this firm handles a number of well-known lines of pianos.

Meet Need for "Popular" Model

The Usona Talking Machine Co., which has been in the talking machine manufacturing business for over three years, has recently produced a new model designed to meet the great present-day demand for a machine of the cabinet type retailing under $80. J. D. Keating, president of the company, has found from his long experience in dealing with retail merchants, that the substantial cabinet model retailing at a price ranging between $70 and $80 is pre-eminently the machine in need by merchants at the present time. "The spring and early summer," says Mr. Keating, "have developed an enormous demand for this type of talking machine, and the fall and holidays will witness a further increase in the sale of machines at this price. It is true that there is, and will be, a great call for the higher-priced models, but there is no getting around the fact that the instrument retailing for $100 or less is the dealer's real source of revenue. However, this does not mean that a 'cheap' or inferior type will get across. Talking machine buyers are becoming more and more judicious in their selections every year and the lower-priced models must be well and artistically made."

Mr. Keating is well acquainted with all branches of the trade, and has had years of experience in the manufacture and marketing of machines both by direct sale and by mail orders. He was formerly connected with the Mazophone Co. in the capacity of general sales manager, where he came into close contact with talking machine people all over the country. The product he now manufactures has been upon the market for three years and includes an extensive line of instruments from the "popular model" above mentioned to art and period styles.

Now in New Location

The Phoenix Phonograph Co. is now located in its new plant at 2504 to 2506 West Van Buren street, this city. This company has been for the past five years manufacturing talking machines for the local trade, mainly, but have now decided upon going after the trade this fall. At present they have four models on the market, but it is their intention to change these styles within a very few weeks.

Vocalions Attract Trade

The firm of Bissell-Weisert, located in the Fine Arts Building, have been carrying in the daily papers advertisements of the Aeolian-Vocalion which possess extraordinary merit. The Bissell-Weisert company in both their piano and talking machine advertising appeal to a very high class of trade, in fact, the shops along our Boul Mich compare favorably with those of Fifth avenue in New York or the Rue De La Paix in Paris. So the Bissell-Weisert advertising, whether of talking machines or of pianos, is bound to bring in results commensurate with their merit.

"Actuelle" Visits Chicago

The Actuelle paid a short visit to Chicago the first part of the month and met quite a number of Western Pathé dealers, while demonstrating in several of the Pathé jobbers' warerooms in Chicago. It was introduced by W. W. Parsons, Pathé special representative, who is making a Western demonstration tour for that company. Mr. Parsons, who is a well-known figure in the Chicago trade, treated his many friends to a series of musicales, the artist of course being the Actuelle. It was the first time this new instrument was seen in Chicago. A great number of talking machine men took in the performances. All were highly pleased with the demonstration and thanked Mr. Parsons heartily for inviting them to the entertainment. Mr. Parsons took in several large towns in Illinois after leaving Chicago, and then started on a general tour of the Central Western States.

Home-Made Jazz Music Overseas

At the present time two Chicago boys and a third from the South, where jazz music is said to have originated, are popularizing the new American (alleged) music in France and Germany by the aid of home-made instruments. The two Chicago lads are J. H. Joyce and Andrew N. Nelson and they have made for themselves ukuleles, especially adapted to jazz music, from logs said to be fifty years old. And now they're wondering why the talking machine record men of the country always wear smiles and do such a large business.

New Hiawatha Model

The new addition to the Hiawatha Co.'s plant, announcement of which was made last month, is rapidly nearing completion, and the officers of the company announce that from present indications the space will be ready for occupancy about the middle of the month. The addition consists of a one-story building and basement, located at the side of the present plant, and the plans of this provide for a foundation strong enough to take an additional three stories. Free Moynahan said that the Hiawatha business has been growing to such an extent that they made this provision in the new building so that they could take care of future increases in their production. This new addition will allow them to increase their present capacity to practically double. Mr. Moynahan also announced that they are working on a new and unique model Hiawatha talking machine that will retail at about $1,000. It is expected that this new instrument will be ready for the trade in time for fall delivery.

Western News Agencies Active

The channels through which the Western News Co. market their instruments seem to have been enjoying particularly satisfactory business during the entire month of June and the early part of July. Demands made upon this concern have taxed their output severely, but according to the executives of the company increased facilities have taken care of the increase in demand.

Cards Bring Needle Sales

The artistic little placards prepared by F. D. Hall, president of the B & H Fibre Mfg. Co., for the use of retail talking machine merchants in calling the attention of customers to the merits of the B & H Fibre needles, have already produced results in the increased demands made upon the B & H Fibre Mfg. Co. during the past thirty days. This concern has materially increased its manufacturing facilities to accommodate the ever-increasing demand made upon it, but in spite of this and of the month of June, which usually brings with it a decided reduction in demand, the B & H Fibre Mfg. Co. is extending itself to the utmost in order to keep up with present orders.

"Inspirational Business"

E. P. Van Harlingen, Western representative of the Talking Machine World, published and distributed to his friends at the recent trade conventions in Chicago a little booklet entitled "Inspirational Business." Upon the cover of the booklet was written at the bottom of the page "What shall we do with the conventions when they are over?" Following this came an introduction voicing an appeal for higher ideals in business ethics. The author is only just recovering from an unfortunate accident of a few months ago, and the little publication was in the way of a greeting to his friends. Any who wish to have "Inspirational Business" will receive one upon request.

Good Business in Hardware

Cole & Dunas report favorably concerning their trade in talking machine hardware. The past month, although a little slower than early in the spring, has been very satisfactory and is many times better than the same month in any previous year. "I am confident that a large number of machines and records will be sold right through the hot weather," said Mr. Dunas. "The manner in which business has held up during the first hot weeks of the year convince me that there will be very little let-up."

Cole & Dunas have become distributors for the Krasberg motors, which they intend to push strongly. Another new item added to their catalog is a rotometer for indicating the proper revolutions per minute of talking machine turntables.

Catching Up on Deliveries

The Western office of the Sonora Phonograph Corporation finds itself in a slightly better condition so far as back orders are concerned.

The company is taking no new applications, but last month an account was opened with the C. H. Pill Furniture Co., of Fort Dodge, Iowa, a concern which had entered its application for Sonora machines quite some time back. The C. H. Pill Furniture Co. will handle a complete line of Sonora machines and accessories and will continue to handle the present line of Windsor models. "It is significant of the conditions in the trade at the present time that accounts filed three or four months ago are just being filled," said Mr. L. Golder, of the Western office. "There is to be no 'off season' this year."

A Progressive Department

Mandel Bros., well-known department store of Chicago, maintain on their ninth floor one of the finest talking machine businesses in Chicago. The small section opened three years ago has grown steadily, and now comes word that in the fall eight more sound-proof demonstration booths are to be added. O. C. Searles is in charge of the department and handles the complete Columbia and Aeolian Vocalion lines of instruments and records. The arrangement of the department is particularly attractive and suitable to an establishment of this sort. In a spacious center room a number of models are on exhibition and all around this are demonstra-

ONE OF THE FINEST PHONOGRAPHS

We Might Say The Finest
We Say One of the Finest
Because——

Our phenomenal success in the past year permits us to make this statement and prove every word of it.

If we were to substitute a word for the name Hiawatha that word would be quality.

Our tremendous increase in business is due to quality.

We are now enlarging our present plant, which will mean an increased production — in fact double our present output — this proves conclusively that the keynote of our success is due entirely to our quality phonographs.

Mr. Dealer: You should handle one of the finest phonographs and let Hiawatha quality be your trade mark.

Your initial order for one Hiawatha will enable you to do so

Our policy is just as fair as our claim.

Beattie is in charge of the record department, which is located on one side of the main room. Upon glass counters appear the latest Aeolian-Vocalion and Columbia record bulletins, and advertising literature of these two concerns makes up a very excellent display.

Six Best Chicago Sellers

Record sales during the past thirty days, in spite of the approach of hot weather, have shown very little decrease. The "hits" are going strong, and promise to sell well all through the summer.

In Victor records the six best sellers, as reported at the Talking Machine Shop, have been: "Juanita" by De Gogorza, "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose" by McCormack, "Kiss Me Again" and "Humoresque." "Oh, Susy, Behave!" and "Monte Cristo, Jr." "When You See Another Sweetie Hanging Around" and "Mammy O' Mine," "Bring Back Those Wonderful Days" and "Jazz Baby."

In Columbia records the best sellers as given by Miss Beattie of Mandel Bros. are as follows: "Chong" and "Waiting," "I'll Say She Does" and "What Is Your Name," "Core'n grato" by Stracciari, "Madame Butterfly" by Rosa Ponselle, "A Good Man Is Hard to Find" and "That's Got 'Em." "Mary Anne" and "Bevo Blues."

The Edison six best sellers as given by the Edison Shop are: "L'Ardita-Magnetic Waltz" and "Sundown in Birdland," "Looking This Way" and "Some Sweet Day, By and By," "My Bonnie, Bonnie Jean" and "Nanny," "Mummy Mine" and "Me-ow." "In a Kingdom of Our Own" and "When the Cherry Blossoms Fall." "In the Land of Beginning Again" and "Mammy's Lullaby."

In Pathé records, as reported by the Brunswick Shop: "Sweet Hawaiian Moonlight" and "Lullaby Blues," "Chong" and "On the Ozark Trail," "Mammy O' Mine" and "Wild Honey," "Alcoholic Blues" and "Lassus Trombone," "I'll Say She Does" and "Fluffy Ruffles," "After All" and "Hindu Lady."

Six best sellers in Vocalion records as given by Miss Beattie of Mandel Bros.: "William Tell," "Call of the Cosy Little Home" and "Behind Your Silken Veil," "Don't Cry, Frenchy" and "Bluin' the Blues," "Mary Ann" and "Gypsy Girl," "Indigo Blues" and "Oriental Jazz." "Eyes" and "When Cherry Blossoms Fall."

In Emerson records: "Shadows" and "Wild Honey," "Mammy's Lullaby" and "Hawaiian Moonlight," "Yama Yama Blues" and "Church

Demand for New Tone Arms

The demand for a quickly adjustable tone arm seems to have resulted in the case of the Fletcher-Wickes Co. in an unusually large bulk of orders during the month of June. According to this concern manufacturers of cabinets and those who assemble talking machines for wholesale distribution intend to leave no stone unturned in their efforts to attain a maximum output during the hot weather.

Artistic New Catalog

The Nightingale Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturers of the Nightingale talking machine, has just produced a very fine specimen of talking machine catalog. It is printed upon special multi-colored stock, elegantly illustrated throughout. The booklet makes a very handsome appearance.

Advertising With Blotters

The World Phonograph Co. has recently printed great numbers of blotters, bearing two illustrations of the well-known World phonograph in Adam, brown mahogany and golden oak, and the true color with the interesting text matter make up a very effective little card.

Book on Retail Management

"There is money—good money—in the right kind of a talking machine department," says the Vitanola latest service booklet, "Making a Phonograph Department Pay." "Merchandising anything nowadays is more than ever a matter of brains—buying brains as well as selling brains. And ideas are what brains feed and thrive on. Thus many say, 'Ideas are the very life of business,' despite that old saying about competition, holding that distinctly important position.

"It is in the selling end of the game that ideas play perhaps the larger part. Realizing this, the clever, aggressive merchant is always on the lookout for new thoughts and suggestions, new merchandising plans that can be added to his fund of original conceptions and turned to definite advantage in his business."

"Making a Phonograph Department Pay" will be found a valuable little brochure for any retail merchant to look over, whether or not he handles Vitanola talking machines. Throughout the booklet on every page, under the title "New Sales-Building Hunches," appear personal accounts from Vitanola dealers, citing original and effective ideas for marketing talking machines. How one dealer utilized the circulating record library idea for increasing talking machines sales; how another made profitable appeal to possible buyers by attracting little children to his store Saturday morning with a "Story Lady" hour; how an "inside" salesman utilized the slack periods of the day in securing "outside" business; how a high school building was used during the summer for giving free dances with the aid of a talking machine; how a factory superintendent was convinced of the value of a talking machine in keeping his workers contented—all of these and numerous other highly original schemes are listed in the book.

An article entitled "Where the Money is in the Phonograph Business" gives a straight-from-the-shoulder talk from manufacturer to retailer. Another entitled "Frankly, You Need More Than Just a Good Phonograph" points out the necessity for co-operation and service between the manufacturer and merchant. The book is printed in a cobalt blue and is filled with artistic illustrations. The cover bears a gold embossed imprint of a Vitanola model.

On Vacations

Miss Pauline Tishler, Miss B. Bren and Miss F. Hamilton of the Talking Machine Shop are away on vacations. Miss Tishler, well known to visitors to the Talking Machine Shop record department, has selected Denver, Colorado, as the place in which she will spend the summer.

Colored Record Arouses Interest

Miss G. Beattie, in charge of the record department of Mandel Bros. department store, reports great interest aroused as a result of the Aeolian-Vocalion's new colored record just placed upon the market. The color idea is something entirely new and causes a number of sales merely because of its novelty, aside from its musical merits.

Critic Reviews Conventions

Herman Devries, prominent Chicago artist and musical critic of the Chicago Evening American, highly impressed with the activities of music men in their efforts to spread the gospel of better music and better musical instruments, writes at length upon this interesting subject in the columns of his paper. He treats of the problems of musician and manufacturer and points out the mutual benefits to be derived from the closer co-operation of these two. Mr. Devries believes the music men made art possible and that Chicago occupies an important place as one of the future musical centers of the world.

"Chicago is giving an impetus to the musical industries in keeping with the advancement of music in America," he says. "The manufacturers have done more, probably, to advance music in this country than any other element that has had to do with this educational feature of life."

"There is fast being created throughout the length and breadth of this land and throughout the world, if you please, a greater and greater demand for music. I predict that this country is fast approaching the point where it will become the greatest musical nation in the world, and we must give credit to the men who have laid the foundation for this great advancement."

"To my mind the greatest move that has been made occurred right here in our own city of Chicago in this movement toward the bringing together of the musicians and the commercial side of music to the end that there will be given more music to the public, which is becoming more and more insistent as to demand, and becoming higher and higher as to the quality of music that must be supplied."

Announce Price Increase

The Vitanola Talking Machine Co. announce an increase in price now effective in a letter mailed to all of their dealers, which says, "The percentage of increase indicated is less than the figures in present manufacturing costs over those which prevailed when our previous prices were arrived at. Raw materials have steadily risen until today the same articles are two or three times more than a few months ago. Primarily the cause of the increased costs of materials is the prevailing higher rate of wages. We believe it is fair and just that every person engaged in the industry should receive full benefit of his labor, and we would not, even if it were possible, reduce costs by cutting wages. Realizing the necessity of being equally as fair with our dealers as with our labor, we have increased list prices."

Leaves on Thousand Mile Trip

W. J. Cummings, president of the Phoenix Phonograph Co., Chicago, leaves on Monday for a thousand mile automobile trip with Mrs. Cummings. They plan to make this trip their vacation and will be gone two weeks, traveling to Cleveland, Detroit, Windsor, Ont.; thence through Canada to Niagara Falls, thence to Buffalo and back home via Cleveland.

S. A. Ribolla Visits East

Interesting to the Trade

The Handy Mfg. Co., makers of all kinds of veneer presses, clamps and clamping machinery, are now placing on the market their "Handy" revolving all-steel-and-iron case clamp. This new device is made for the purpose of holding cases square while being assembled. The clamp is swung between two frames, so that it may be turned over at will by the operator. It is made of steel and iron and comes in three sizes. The pressure plate moves easily and the long two-inch screw permits it to travel thirty inches. After clamping the case it can be revolved to any angle, so that work can be done on either the front, back or bottom. The pressure is applied by a sprocket wheel thirty-five inches in diameter, which permits great pressure with little effort.

"Handy" All-Steel-and-Iron Case Clamp

To Move to New Quarters

M. J. Eggleston, secretary and treasurer of the Sterling Devices Co., made the announcement this week that this new company has grown to such proportions within the last few months as to be obliged to seek larger quarters. They have succeeded in making arrangements for larger and more ample space in the new building, which has just been erected across the street from their present location. This company is closely associated with the Krasberg Engineering & Mfg. Co. The Sterling Co. recently brought out a new model tone arm and reproducer and were about to make public mention of this fact when the representative of a large talking machine concern in Chicago dropped in for a friendly visit. He saw the new tone arm and at once brought the attention of his company to it, with the result that the company took over the new arm and reproducer for its exclusive use.

The drafting department of the Sterling Co. is now working on some new talking machine accessories and Mr. Eggleston says that in a very short time he will have another new tone arm and reproducer ready for the trade, as the blue prints are completed and work is being rushed on the first model.

The Latest!

It takes more than talking machine manufacturers and salesmen to point out the varied uses to which a talking machine can be put. The Chicago Daily News prints an interesting article entitled "Here Is Music De Luxe," which explains how two ingenious Chicagoans found the talking machine to be an indispensable necessity of life.

First there's Gus Ditrich, field marshal of the waiters at the Blackstone Hotel. Gus says the patter of an alarm clock in the morning outrages his nerves for the entire day. So he has rigged up an attachment between his alarm clock and his talking machine. Get the idea?

At ten o'clock every morning, or whenever waiters de luxe rise from their beds, Ditrich's clock jerks wide the doors of his talking machine and it sings good morning thus: "Oh, say can you see-e, by the dawn's early light—"

Well, that's all right, Gus, but listen to A. W. Parsons, Rogers Park, a clerk in a loop grain office. Parsons said he had put his talking machine to an even more helpful task. He said the machine was "saving his life"! Parsons has a seven-month-old son, named Julius. Julius has a musical voice; it reaches high C at precisely 3:15 every morning. "Why not connect the talking machine by a string to my bed?" thinks he. "When the kid starts whimpering I can pull the lanyard and the machine would begin grinding out 'Go to Sleep, My Baby' and 'There's No Place Like Home.'" He tried it—and oh, "Rock-a-by Baby"! It worked like an anaesthetic.

Arthur Dunham, organist at Sinai Temple and leader of the Philharmonic Orchestra, gave it as his opinion that the talking machine would find many unusual fields of activity. The lowbrows, he said, found inspiration while they worked in ragtime; the intellectuals found that they better enjoyed a book or a visit to the dentist if there was a talking machine playing a grand opera repertoire.

Sells to Foreigners

Constantine Xides, salesman for the W. W. Kimball Co., joined this concern a few months ago with the intention of selling pianos and musical goods to his own people, the Greeks of Chicago. He has made "good" solely through his own original methods and strong initiative. Mr. Xides stimulates musical and dramatic entertainment among the Greeks and Turkish population, helping them arrange plays, musicales and so forth, and always appears in person at each of these entertainments, speaking on the advantages of music in the home. He always makes known the fact that he is an agent for a talking machine concern and in this way manages to close many prospects that might otherwise not have matured at all. The foreign element in Chicago has always been one of the big problems for Chicago talking machine retailers. How to reach them, inspire confidence and create favor for a concern's goods has been the object of almost every large merchant. A number of Chicago concerns have representatives traveling among these people, but the present instance of a piano salesman carrying on active musical propaganda among the foreign-speaking element is not only novel, but it is effective.

From Pianos to Talking Machines

W. A. Berry, for many years wholesale traveling representative for Iowa and the northwest for the Cable-Nelson Piano Co., and who since July, 1918, has represented the Baldwin Co. in the same territory, has resigned from the latter house and will enter the wholesale talking machine business at Des Moines, Ia., as a member of the firm of Kirkhart & Berry. The headquarters will be 603-605 Sixth avenue. They will market the Mocking Bird phonograph, which will be offered the trade in five attractive models, including four of the cabinet and one of the "table" type. It is announced that the firm will be ready to make deliveries on or about August 1.

STEIN-BURN CORP. DEVELOPING FIELD

Prominent Corporation Take Important Steps Toward Developing the Manufacture of Talking Machines—Their Plans in This Connection

CHICAGO, ILL., July 5.—The Stein-Burn Corp. of this city have recently taken some important steps toward the development of the talking machine business which are of special interest to the trade.

This company have in a quiet way manufactured talking machines of the better grade for several years for a few distributors, and but recently have developed their capacity to a large and important point. They are now adopting a policy of selling exclusively through dealers and have a sufficiently large capacity and extensive line of both standard and period models to make it seem probable that within a comparatively short time the Stein-Burn Corp. will be one of the leading institutions of the industry.

The men back of the Stein-Burn Corp. have been successfully identified with large business interests of Chicago for over forty years. The president of the corporation is Charles Stein; vice-president, A. L. Redlick; secretary, J. H. Seibly, and treasurer, B. F. Stein. Executive offices are maintained in the Westminster Building and the sales offices and display room for dealers are on the second floor of the Heyworth Building, corner Wabash and Madison streets.

The same interests that are identified with the Stein-Burn Corp. are also financially and actively interested in the Stein-Burn Camp & Field Equipment Co., and many other varied enterprises of large proportions, some of which are devoted to the manufacture of steel products, paper products, automobile accessories, wood-working, cabinet making, etc.

Steinburn phonographs, it is understood, are to be advertised extensively through national magazines, newspapers and trade papers. The merchandising campaign contemplates a goodly amount of local newspaper advertising of a predominating character, paid for by the Stein-Burn Corp. and bearing the name of the local dealer. Arnold Joerns Co., advertising agency of Chicago, have the advertising plans in charge.

The Stein-Burn Corp. have announced a number of important planks in their trade platform, among which the following are of special interest:

"1. Only one dealer in a town will be accepted.

"2. Each Steinburn phonograph carries a five-year guarantee in the form of a bond, which is given, the purchaser and which obligates the Stein-Burn Corp. to repair or replace without any charge any parts that may be defective.

"3. The Steinburn phonograph plays all disc records without any additional attachments and has a number of exclusive patented improvements, among which the new Reflectocurve throat is especially unique."

The Steinburn line at present contains eleven models ranging in list price from $32.50 to $450.00. The models include popular cabinet styles of both curved and square designs, also period models in Adam, Chippendale, Queen Anne, Louis XVI and Console models.

HEALY FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

Marquette Healy Host at Gathering of His Three Brothers and His Sister After Their Strenuous Work Abroad During the War

CHICAGO, ILL., July 7.—Marquette Healy, vice-president of Lyon & Healy, was the happy host at a family gathering July 4. Himself and his four "kids," that is, his sister, Mary, and his three brothers, Columbus, Vincent and Augustine, held on that day the first family reunion after a separation of two years during which time the kids were all overseas on active service. The little celebration was held at the Healy home at Lake Geneva.

Augustine, Vincent and Columbus got into service uniforms just as soon as America entered the war. Columbus entered the Officers' Training Camp at Ft. Sheridan and won a commission as first lieutenant. He was in the third division, which fought in the Argonne. Vincent and Augustine joined the Marine Corps, obtained commissions and went across early in the game. The next of the family to go was Mary, who enlisted in the Red Cross. For a while she was barred from overseas service because her brothers were already over there, but the ban was raised in September, 1918. Miss Healy then was sent overseas and was stationed at Colombey Les Belles, France, where she served until a month ago, actively engaged in hospital work.

However, before leaving home they all got their heads together and elected that Marquette, the oldest son of the founder of the firm of Lyon & Healy, should stay behind and keep the home and business fires burning for them. So Mark stayed home and attended to the business. When he got them all together again, which happened to be the Fourth of July, he had everything known in fireworks ready for their amusement and it goes without saying that "a good time was had by all."

VITANOLA CO.'S NEW PLANT

The Vitonola Talking Machine Co. is rapidly perfecting its plans for the new plant, which will cost nearly half a million dollars, in Chicago. The proposed buildings will be substantial fireproof structures of most modern type.

The annual report of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. for last year shows a surplus after charges of $1,162,562, or the equivalent, after preferred dividends, of $13.73 a share on the common stock. This compares with a surplus of $1,211,889 in the preceding year.

EXHIBITS AT FURNITURE SHOW

Many Talking Machine Concerns Successfully Exhibit at Chicago Show—Large Volume of Business Transacted on This Occasion

CHICAGO, ILL., July 1.—The semi-annual furniture exposition, held in Chicago this year, has produced a highly satisfactory amount of business in both furniture and talking machine lines. All the talking machine concerns represented expressed particular satisfaction in this respect. Most of them have done from 50 per cent. to 100 per cent. more business than at any other previous exhibition. This probably is due to the general shortage of machines. Many exhibitors were forced to take all orders far in advance, the present output being completely taken up. Retail visitors to the exhibition have been plentiful, and all seem to possess great enthusiasm over the talking machine departments of their businesses.

The exhibits were held in two main furniture exhibition buildings in Chicago, located at 1319 and 1411 Michigan boulevard, and will continue till after the middle of the month. In these two buildings were the following exhibits:

The Vitanola Talking Machine Co. exhibited on the sixth floor of the building at 1319 Michigan Boulevard, with Sales Manager L. Samuels in charge. Mr. Samuels, who covers the territory between Chicago and Boston, had the following to say: "We have done a capacity business, far more than our expectations, right now during the summer months. The trade is better than it has ever been before, which is largely due to the fact that dealers are ordering ahead of time."

The Nightingale Mfg. Co. exhibited at 1319 South Michigan avenue, with Sales Manager M. K. Cowan in charge. "We have enjoyed a very good business," he said, "and our policy of shipping carload lots to jobbers and dealers has met with great response. I have been very pleased to accept the orders of a large number of merchants since the exhibition opened."

The Harponola Mfg. Co., with C. George Werner in charge, exhibited a complete line of their two products, the Chimonola and Harponola talking machine. The exhibit was held on the sixth floor at 1319 Michigan boulevard.

The Wartell Phonograph Co., with General Manager Wartell in charge, exhibited their complete line of "Wartrolas."

There was also a piano and talking machine concern represented in the Goldsmith Piano Co., of Chicago. Pianos, player-pianos and the Goldsmith Vocanola were on exhibition.

The Mandel Mfg. Co. held a very fine exhibit at 1411 Michigan boulevard, showing their complete line. W. C. Tyndall was in charge, assisted by H. H. Salzman. Mr. Tyndall reported the first few days of the exhibition as being highly satisfactory.

The Emerson Phonograph Co. exhibited at 1411 Michigan avenue, with C. J. Woodard in charge. Mr. Woodard was also very pleased with the attendance of merchants.

The Windsor Furniture Co. exhibited on the fifth floor of the building at 1411 Michigan avenue. G. M. Grace received visiting merchants. A complete Windsor line of cabinets and art period models were shown.

The Colonial Phonograph Co., of Sheboygan, Wis., exhibited their complete line at 1411 Michigan avenue. H. S. L. Allman was in charge.

The Playerphone Talking Machine Co. exhibited their complete line of instruments on the second floor at 1411 Michigan avenue. W. K. Cayton, sales representative, was in charge.

The World man picked up a clever little conversation on salesmanship at the Nightingale booth. "Now and then you will find a dealer so bent on selling a phonograph that he does not give his customers a chance to buy it. This is letting salesmanship run away with sense. The merchant who makes most of his money out of talking machines nowadays is the man who has the happy faculty of looking at phonographs through his customers' eyes—of hearing them through his customers' love of music and sense of sound. When he demonstrates a fine instrument, he encourages his customers to forget their surroundings and imagine themselves listening to the song of a Nightingale in the old home."

A number of most interesting little paragraphs in the manner of the above are distributed throughout the book. The comparison between the appearance of the Nightingale talking machine and the brilliant plumage of the Nightingale bird is very ingenious.

TIMELY TIP ON A TIMELY TOPIC

By D. S. GILLESPIE

Of the Universal Stamping & Mfg Co.

What is a talking machine motor? Is it merely a mechanical part of the talking machine, whose purpose is merely to revolve a turn-table, or is it an integral part of the sound reproducing mechanism? I claim it is both, and if anyone cares to consider it in this light an agreement will easily be reached.

As everyone knows, the pitch of the sound produced by a talking machine can be raised or lowered by controlling the speed of the motor. This has long been known and anyone who has been in the talking machine game for a day or so soon finds it out.

The speed of the turn-table is controlled by a little set screw situated on the motor board. The set screw is numbered and a little arrow on the handle, when pointing to one of these numbers, indicates the number of turn-table revolutions per minute. In many of the high grade motors now on the market this controlling device is accurate and dependable; but in many others it is theoretical. It is practical in some instances and theoretical in others sim-which policy has necessitated the best obtainable in materials and workmanship.

Usona cabinets are exceptionally well constructed. The finish put upon even the smallest of our models is equal to that of a high-grade piano, hand-rubbed and finely finished. The motors are double-spring, smooth-running and powerful—of the highest type and as near trouble-proof as any mechanism can be made. The Usona tone arms and sound boxes represent the latest and best now being produced.

ply because, while one manufacturer adopts a policy of putting on the market a motor mathematically correct in every detail, another will turn them out without the slightest thought of mathematics. "Mathematics" is used in this sense in lieu of and representing precision.

A motor cannot be made to run anywhere near right if it is merely "assembled." It must be "built," and built by the company which makes each and every part that goes into its construction. In this way each little piece that goes into the motor is mathematically correct and measured to the ten thousandth of an inch. This is seen to by a competent engineer and the work is therefore dependable.

The parts, when put together, will therefore fit exactly, and a motor made in this manner will give perfect satisfaction. Noise will be eliminated and the speed will be constant.

The salesman who is demonstrating machines should know these things above all others, and the more he knows about the motor the easier it will be for him to convince his prospect that the instrument he is offering for sale is of the best quality. He must know that rattling of the motor and variation of record speed will interfere with tone quality, for many a good sale has been lost on account of the salesman's ignorance in mechanical matters such as this.

Of course construction of cabinet enters largely into a sale but where the salesman can get a real music lover before a certain machine and demonstrate that this instrument emits the purest tone, free from any mechanical defects, such as mentioned above, he is doing more for the house he represents than he imagines, because a lover of music will always boost a pure-toned instrument. To the party who purchases an instrument for its furniture value, tone makes very little difference. Such a person buys the talking machine as a piece of furniture and regards it as such, whereas the music lover purchases it as a means of education and is generally broad-minded enough to boost it in trying to help educate others.

Therefore, if the talking machine salesman will remember that the talking machine motor is an integral part of the sound-reproducing mechanism and will impress this fact upon the mind of the music lover, he is sure to raise his stocks in the eyes of these people and in this manner greatly benefit himself.

BIG OKEH PACIFIC COAST TRADE

Communication From L. Gruen, Pacific Coast Branch Manager for Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Tells of Big Demand—Stradivaras Displayed at San Francisco Office

An idea of the splendid conditions of the talking machine business on the Pacific Coast was very forcefully manifested in a letter which was recently received by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York, from L. Gruen, Pacific Coast branch manager, who says:

"The demand for Heineman motors and records on the part of manufacturers and dealers on the Coast is growing so rapidly that the San Francisco office has been obliged to take more space and add to its office staff. The number of visitors is also increasing daily with the result that it has been found necessary to transfer to the factories numerous orders specifying delivery from stock.

"The jobbers are experiencing a call for Okeh records far beyond their anticipation, and consequently are clamoring for shipments in order to supply their dealers.

"The new addition to the San Francisco office is especially equipped as a service department, where all Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone arms and sound boxes are inspected before being shipped to the customer. This department contains motors and parts mounted in various positions, and the manager, L. Gruen, is enabled to instruct mechanics and cabinet manufacturers how to install and adjust motors.

"A number of prominent cabinet makers have decided to make cabinets of California redwood veneered, in accordance with certain specifications which Mr. Gruen worked out in common with the California Redwood Association.

"The San Francisco office is exhibiting a full line of Stradivara phonographs manufactured by the Pacific Phonograph Mfg. Co., of Portland, Ore., and will soon also show Queen Anne tables containing Meisselbach outfits.

"This year promises to be a record-breaker, and the outlook is bright both for the manufacturer and the dealer. The San Francisco branch of the Heineman Industries has booked some of the largest contracts ever placed by Coast manufacturers."

"NO PERCENTAGE IN ANNUAL CALF"

Some Timely Comments on Repeat Orders Found in the "Peptomist" for July

You have read of the town character who appeared before the Compulsory Work Bureau of his State Council of Defense with a vindication of his vagrancy that he "bought a cow now and then and gave it to a farmer who brought it up for its milk and gave him the annual calf as profit for the gift of the cow!"

This career, profession, what you will, occupied our friend's mind so fully he claimed recognition as a "worker."

What the Director thought of this workless, sweatless and probably payless job history does not say.

But we are reminded—

Did you ever know a salesman who turned over a good line of goods to a dealer with the understanding that the profits which came from the sale of the goods should go to the dealer, provided the "repeat order" came as profit to the salesman?

Did you ever run across any addenda in your reading of the history of "repeat order" salesmen?

A single "annual calf" does not make for a successful stock-breeding business, and an occasional repeat order does not make for success in any other line of business activity. Repeat orders must increase, expand, double. They must improve in quantity and quality, cover old fields and explore new ones.

There is no percentage in an annual calf.

There is no profit to you or your company in automatic repeat orders. They must be increased orders.

Selling a dealer is only half the job. You must work with him, trim his windows, educate his salesmen, investigate his stock, write his ads, develop his repair department, arrange his floor, suggest new sales letters, inaugurate sales plans, decorate his walls, introduce him to Columbia artists, instruct him in Grafonola

"MICKEY" REACHES PHILADELPHIA

City Gay With Unique Displays—Columbia Co. Wins Highest Honors With Its Big Float Featuring a Twelve-Foot Record.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 7.—The famous "Mickey" film has at last reached this city and How "Mickey" Scored in Quaker City the local dealers staged one of the best advertising campaigns yet held. Manager Wilcox, of the Columbia Co., had made a twelve-foot model of a record and mounted it on a motor truck which toured the city and attracted much attention. On the truck was a girl dressed like the heroine of the story and the huge crowds which everywhere followed the display showed that it was a big success. The mammoth record was placed over the entrance of the Forrest Theatre, where it remained as a constant reminder to the crowds attending the performances of the film. The individual window displays throughout the city numbered forty-two, showing that the dealers were awake to the possibilities of the occasion. Much credit for the success of the campaign is due J. D. Westervelt, of the Columbia Co., who spared no pains to make the celebration the biggest ever held in this city.

The O. K. Houck Piano Co., Little Rock, Ark., believing that sales are stimulated by regularly reviewing record sales, issues a list from time to time of the six best sellers in the record field. This has proven a very satisfactory business move.

The Instrumentized, All-Record Player

A Better Phonograph with a Better Selling Plan

"Nationalized for Wholesalers" and You

THE discovery that the nationally advertised trademark could be used, has been abused. The nationalized trademark of the Dalion will never be used to cut out the wholesaler! It will be used for their benefit—and yours.

Suppose, Mr. Retailer, that all your stock had to come by long distance shipment from factories—what big money you would be compelled to tie up in reserve stock. Let nearby wholesalers carry the reserve—do your business on small shipment turnover.

For self-interest, support your wholesalers, who deserve it because of modern merchandising methods. It's your protection against arbitrary dictation, as well as an assurance of service.

THE Dalion wholesaler steps out with a new standard of service—factory trained men to give you co-operation and show you the Merchandising Methods which bring success. Your Dalion wholesaler carries a big reserve stock—maintains a service department—is practically a factory branch.

—and behind the wholesaler, directly co-operating with you, is the Dalion factory promotion organization. We will back our belief in your success dollar for dollar with you. The details of our retail merchandising plan will prove it. Write for it.

The biggest unit of sale ever possible in almost every home—the greatest money-profit per sale—that's the phonograph business!

Are you interested in it on the basis of an extraordinarily attractive, exclusive agency proposition? Write for details—for figures as to your reasonably possible profits.

Why Dalion Sells Better

THE Auto-File—exclusive with the Dalion. Not only is it the neatest and most compact of record filing devices, but it makes it totally impossible to misfile or misplace records no matter how hurried you may be. By a marvelously simple and ingenious device every record must go back to its individual compartment before another can be taken out.

Instrumentized Tone Throat. The triumph of the Dalion, embodying the scientific principles of instrument acoustics, applied through the deft skill of hand workers. Their careful, individual shaping of the long-seasoned wood is not factory work but the proudfest touch of the real instrument maker.

Orchestra-Shell Tone Chamber. All-wood sounding chamber, shaped as scientifically as an orchestra shell, the Dalion gets its wonderful resonance and clarity.

Motors. Two- and three-spring, according to size of instrument. Long-running, easy-winding and guaranteed against spring breakage.

MILWAUKEE DEALERS EXPECT PROHIBITION TO AID TRADE

Look for Music to Supplant Alcohol as a Stimulant—Business Continues to Maintain High Level—Factories Increasing Productive Facilities to Meet Demands—General News

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 11.—Looking back over the first six months of 1919, or even back to the day when the war came to an end just eight months ago, the talking machine trade of Milwaukee feels as if it has been in a dream of bountiful goodness. Almost without exception dealers declare this period to have been the most wonderful in their entire experience. What is more, there does not appear to be the slightest reason to fear that this remarkable stimulation will suffer a decline for some time to come.

The transition of the United States to a bone-dry State on July 1 is expected to prove of great benefit to the talking machine and other music industries and form one of the most powerful influences to sustain the present brisk demand for instruments of all kinds, especially the talking machine. It is considered that there is nothing so peculiarly adapted to supplant what is taken away by prohibition as music—good music. There is no single musical instrument that is capable of reproducing every other kind of instrument, alone or collectively, as the talking machine.

It is with this belief in mind that the talking machine manufacturing industry of Milwaukee and Wisconsin is doing its utmost to extend the productive facilities to meet the present overwhelming demand, as well as the greater requirements to come next fall and during the holiday season. As a talking machine-producing State Wisconsin now ranks among the largest in the country and at the present rate of solid, substantial expansion it will probably improve this rank by the end of this year.

The Recordeon Phonograph Corp., Milwaukee, with a capital stock of $100,000, has been founded by Edward A. Heaney and Walter H. Schwab, who last December established the General Mfg. Corp. The General Co. is operating in the former factory of the Minn Billiard Co. and the owners have also acquired the plant of the American Auto Body Co. at North Milwaukee. The North Milwaukee property will be operated as the Recordeon Corp. Mr. Heaney formerly was president of the Milwaukee Talking Machine Mfg. Co.

The Multitone Mfg. Co., Eau Claire, Wis., has purchased the Eau Claire Trunk Co. plant and will use its present leased factory for cabinet work and the new main plant for other processes. The capacity will be 100 instruments a day within a month's time. E. J. Sailstad is president and general manager.

The E. H. Stafford Mfg. Co., McClurg Building, Chicago, has purchased the Caloric Co., Janesville, Wis., manufacturing fireless cookers and talking machine cabinets. The business will be continued as the Stafford-Caloric Co. and the plant devoted largely to cabinet production for the talking machine industry. The Stafford Co. also operates large plants at Paxton, Ill., and Ionia, Mich.

The F. Eggers Veneer & Seating Co., Two Rivers, Wis., which is widely known in the industry for its fine veneers and panels, is making a $125,000 factory addition, to be ready about August 15 or September 1. The additional facilities are needed largely because of the enormous growth of demands from the talking machine cabinet trade.

Milwaukee instrument manufacturers are participating in a campaign undertaken by the Milwaukee Association of Commerce to promote export trade on a much greater scale than before the war.

Milwaukee wholesalers and jobbers in talking machines say they are still suffering from an acute shortage of goods, but that there is every prospect of betterment in the supply during the coming months. According to Harry A.

Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., 135 Second street, Victor jobber in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, the demands from its customers in the last six months were relatively enormous and are still being kept at a high level by the unusual interest in the Victor.

The Columbia was the official instrument on this year's trade promotion trip of the jobbers' division of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, as it was on every one of the preceding seventeen excursions so far held. A party of 100 local jobbers, traveling in a special train, spent a week in covering 1,000 miles of Wisconsin to the tune of the Grafonola, which was furnished, as usual, by A. G. Kunde, distributor of the Columbia, with headquarters at 516 Grand avenue.

The splendid representation which is being given the Sonora phonograph in the Wisconsin and northern Michigan territory by the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., jobbers, Milwaukee, is a constant subject of comment in the local trade. The Milwaukee wholesale house has occupied an advantageous position in being able to make prompt deliveries and this has made for it and its line many fast friends among retailers.

Sales of the Brunswick phonograph in the territory handled by the Milwaukee branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. broke all records for a half-year period during the last six months. Manager Thomas I. Kidd expresses himself as immeasurably pleased with the manner in which the Brunswick is extending its acquaintance in Wisconsin and he graciously attributes this largely to the fine dealer organization which has been built up in the last two or three years and now embracing some of the largest and most prominent retail stores in Wisconsin and vicinity.

The demand for the New Edison has been far and away beyond anything that has ever been experienced and shows not the least sign of a let-up, according to the Phonograph Co. of Wisconsin. It has been an extremely difficult matter to keep deliveries commensurate with orders, but by dint of great effort Manager W. A. Schmidt has been able to satisfy not only dealers, but their patrons as well, giving the New Edison unusual prestige in this field.

Pathé dealers here and throughout Wisconsin have been favored with a remarkably good business during the last few weeks.

The Jackson Piano Co., manufacturer of pianos in this city, on July 1 opened a retail store at 425 Milwaukee street, which handles the Columbia line in addition to its own products and the Kurtzmann pianos.

Col. Peter F. Piasecki, in private life Victor dealer, at 441 Mitchell street, Milwaukee, has returned from foreign service after an absence of nearly two years. During his absence the business was ably conducted by Mrs. Piasecki, who earned a reputation as one of the best and most successful women dealers in the local trade. Col. Piasecki was commander of the 107th sanitary train and military police, Thirty-second Division.

C. C. Warner, Victor dealer in this city, has recently improved and enlarged his store by remodeling the building to embrace an adjoining store.

Alfred W. Fuchs, 1403 Green Bay avenue, who carries the Brunswick, Sonora and Columbia in his jewelry store, recently celebrated his silver wedding anniversary.

Leslie C. Parker, president and general manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, Victor retailer, described the Victor industry before a recent weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club and surprised the members with an array of interesting facts and statistics concerning this great interest and its equally great product. Mr. Parker told the Kiwanians that people in Milwaukee spend more than $650,000 a year in purchase of Victor instruments, records, needles, etc.

The J. B. Bradford Piano Co., a large retailer of the Victor and Sonora, on June 25 put into effect a strict one-price policy throughout its organization, being the first music concern in Milwaukee to adopt this plan. The one-price policy is one of many progressive merchandising plans introduced by Hugh W. Randall since becoming president and general manager of the company a year ago.

Miss Julia Wolff, manager of the Aeolian-Vocalion department of the Edmund Gram Music House, will soon have greatly increased facilities to accommodate the rapid growth of this phase of the business. Plans are being made for remodeling part of the main floor to provide more display and demonstrating booths and full-fledged counters for the sale of records and music rolls.

COLLINGS WITH PRICE T. M. CO.

Head of Trade Service Department of Victor Co. Resigns to Enter Wholesale Field in Newark, N. J., as General Manager of the Price Talking Machine Co.—Name of Concern to be Changed to Collings & Price Co.

L. W. Collings, for the past twenty years connected with the Victor Talking Machine Co., for a large part of that time as manager of the trade service department of that company, has resigned to become connected with the Price Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesalers in Newark, N. J., as general manager.

When Mr. Collings becomes officially connected with the Price Co., on or about August 1, the name will be changed to the Collings & Price Co., with Malcolm G. Price as president. New and larger quarters, modernly equipped, will be provided for the company in Newark and the territory covered will be extended to embrace northeastern Pennsylvania, including the rich coal districts and such cities as Scranton and Wilkesbarre, as well as northern New Jersey.

Mr. Collings' long and successful experience in the matter of providing service to the trade for the Victor Co. will stand him in good stead in his work of carrying out the ambitious plans being made for the new Collings & Price Co. in the matter of taking care of dealers' requirements in a big way and giving them the service that goes with the goods and a little more to spare.

A further and more complete announcement of the plans for the new Collings & Price Co. will be made very shortly and it is expected to be distinctly interesting.

OPEN NEW ESTABLISHMENT

A new talking machine store has been opened in St. Peter, Minn., by S. I. Snortum. This firm will handle the Victor line of talking machines and records. The establishment will be handsomely equipped with sound-proof booths and other essentials.

NOW MAKING OKEH RECORDS

Captain Pat Conway's Band Now Recording for Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc.—One of the Foremost Bands in the Country

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., announced this week that Captain Patrick Conway and his famous band are now making records for the OkeH record library. A series of records by this well-known band are now in preparation and will be ready for the trade within the next few weeks.

Capt. Conway is one of the foremost band directors in the country, and Conway's Band has appeared in practically every city of importance. It has won the enthusiastic commendation of music lovers everywhere, and when it appeared a few years ago at the Panama-Pacific Exposition it proved to be one of the most successful features of this Exposition.

Capt. Conway rendered invaluable service to the Aviation Corps of the United States Army during the past war as a bandmaster, and in recognition of this service he was recently appointed a Captain in the Aviation Corps. At the present time Conway's Band, with Captain Conway conducting, is filling a season's engage-

SOUTHERN DEALERS TO ORGANIZE

Elyea Co. Send Out Call for Meeting of Victor Dealers in Atlanta on July 16 for Purpose of Forming An Association of Dealers

On Wednesday, July 16, Southern Victor dealers are planning to meet in Atlanta for the purpose of forming a Southern Victor Dealers' Association. A recent circular mailed out by the Elyea Co., Victor wholesalers located in Atlanta, reads in part:

"Mark July 16 on your calendar. That's the day Southern Victor dealers will meet in Atlanta for the purpose of forming a Victor Dealers' Association.

"This meeting is now an assured fact. More than fifty of our best dealers have promised to come and we expect more than a hundred to be on hand. Will have good speeches, good entertainment, good time.

"A definite program will be sent you not later than July 12. But this much we can promise, a speaker from the Victor Co. and from the Talking Machine World will certainly be on hand to address you. You simply cannot afford to miss it. If you haven't already advised us that you are going to be on hand, do so at once. Get your name in the pot."

HAS ATTRACTED WIDE INTEREST

Demand for the Modernola Is Steadily Expanding—Shipments Made From New Plant

That the Modernola, the new circular instrument with the lamp shade feature, has attracted the attention and interest of dealers everywhere is evidenced by the inquiries being received by the manufacturers.

Shipments are now being made from the new plant at Johnstown, Pa., to all parts of the United States. The responses of American dealers to announcements made through the Talking Machine World have been such that operations for the present will not be extended into export business.

The rate at which orders are being received justifies the management in its belief that present output capacity will be needed for filling domestic requirements.

PROSPERITY IN PITTSBURGH HELPS "TALKER" INDUSTRY

Sales Are Active and Dealers Are Placing Orders for Fall—Important Association Meeting—H. M. Swartz Promoted—Stock Shortage Still Complained Of—Demand for the Brunswick

PITTSBURGH, PA., July 3.—One of the most hopeful signs on the horizon of the talking machine trade in the Pittsburgh district is the fact that the reconstruction plans in industry are having a tremendous influence in the iron and steel trade with the corresponding result that the operation of the mills is assured for many months to come. This also means that the high wage rate that has been in force for so long a time will continue. With plenty of work and high wages the fact is patent that many of the thousands of dollars put into circulation every pay-disbursing day will find their way into the coffers of the Pittsburgh merchants, and, of course, the talking machine dealers will also reap part of the harvest.

Trade in the talking machine industry here the past month has been good. Sales of talking machines have been steady, while records, especially those of a popular nature, have had tremendous sales. This is especially true of the Victor, Columbia, Emerson, Pathé, Edison and OkeH records, hundreds of which have been disposed of during June.

The value of the Victrola in welfare work was emphasized at a conference of welfare and social workers of the various welfare departments maintained by the Carnegie Steel Co., which was held at Munhall, Pa., Saturday, June 28, by Miss Lillian A. Wood, manager of the Victor educational department of the C. C. Mellor Co., Victor distributors. Miss Wood has had unusual success in presenting the merits and advantages of the Victrola and Victor records in the public school room.

The annual outing of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Pittsburgh, which marked the closing meeting of the season, was held at "The Pine," a suburban resort, on Tuesday evening, June 17, with over a hundred enthusiastic talking machine dealers in attendance. Charles L. Hamilton, president of the association, presided. Two new firms were admitted to membership, the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Victor dealer, and the Lohmeyer Pharmacy, Columbia dealer. J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., made reference to the legal decision in the celebrated Colgate case by the Supreme Court and its bearing on the talking machine industry. The dinner was the main event of the evening and everybody had a good time. There was music, both instrumental and vocal, Fred Newman, of the W. F. Frederick Co., enlivening the occasion with a number of songs. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of John Henk, chairman; J. H. Phillips, J. E. McCormick, Clark Wright and Leo Half. No meetings of the association will be held until fall, when Secretary A. R. Meyer will send out formal notices of the initial session.

S. H. Nichols, the able manager of the Pittsburgh offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., reported a brisk trade during June and stated that the amount of business done was far ahead of the same period a year ago. Mr. Nichols pointed out that the demand for Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records was most pronounced and that the various Columbia retail dealers all reported increased sales during the month just ended.

Harry M. Swartz, for the past two years in the employ of the Buehn Phonograph Co., has been appointed assistant manager by the directors. Both Mr. Buehn and Mr. Swartz have their offices in the new wholesale department of the company, which is now located in the Stevenson and Foster Building, on Seventh avenue, immediately adjoining the Chamber of Commerce Building. Fully 10,000 feet of floor space is provided in the new wholesale department for the sale and display of Edison phonographs and Edison records. The retail Edison department is still located at 513 Wood street, in charge of Mark M. Mitchell, whose attractive window displays featuring the Edison phonograph are both original and novel.

T. T. Evans, assistant manager of the wholesale Victrola department of the C. C. Mellor Co., is back on the job again, after having served Uncle Sam in the army overseas. He is being given a hearty welcome by the trade as he again resumes his visits. John Fischer, the manager of the department, after attending the Victor Jobbers' meeting at Atlantic City, took Mrs. Fischer and Junior Fischer, their son, and hied away to the wilds of Canada, where they will spend July. The Mellor Co. was also represented at Atlantic City by General Manager W. C. Dierks and Mr. Evans. P. W. Simon, the Victor Shop man of Uniontown, Pa., accompanied the Mellor delegation to the shore.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co.; French Nestor and Wallace Russell were the Standard Co. representatives at Atlantic City.

The W. F. Frederick Piano Co. utilized a novel publicity method in calling attention of the vacation contingent to the advantages of the Victrola as an essential in summer outings and picnics. George H. Rewbridge, manager of the wholesale Victor department of the Frederick Co., reported business as good and the demand strong. Mr. Rewbridge attended the Victor convention at Atlantic City.

H. Milton Miller, manager of the Pittsburgh offices of Smith-Kline-French Co., Sonora phonograph distributors, stated that the only handicap to a rushing business was the inability at present to supply all of the various styles of Sonora that are in demand. Earl S. Miller is the new roadman for the Pittsburgh office and is now visiting the various Sonora dealers in the Pittsburgh territory. The Pittsburgh office is also a distributing center for the celebrated OkeH records, which are having a brisk sale.

H. J. Brennan, manager of the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co., stated that he was preparing for a big rush for Pathe phonographs and records this fall.

H. C. Niles, secretary-treasurer of the Starr Phonograph Co. of Pennsylvania, stated that the demand for Starr Phonographs and Gennett records was good and that the retail dealers all reported trade as very brisk.

"The Cheney phonograph has made many friends in Pittsburgh and vicinity and we are more than pleased with the amount of business we are doing," said Manager Close of the Dauler-Close Furniture Co.

J. A. Andres, sales manager for the Pittsburgh district of the Brunswick phonograph, spent part of the past week in the territory north of Pittsburgh, calling on the Brunswick dealers. He states that the prospects are very bright for a successful fall season. It is intimated that the fall season will see the introduction of the Brunswick records on the market and it is predicted that the combination of the Brunswick phonograph and Brunswick record will be a tremendous selling card for the retail trade. It was stated that in order to care for the large increase in the Brunswick phonograph trade two additional floors had to be leased, which will be used exclusively for the display and demonstration of the Brunswick phonograph. The two floors are in the building immediately adjoining the present location of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Wood street and First avenue.

The demand here for the Emerson records continues quite strong, according to Jacob Hirsh, of the Emerson Sales Co., wholesale distributors of the Emerson records. He stated that shipments of records now coming in are giving the office an opportunity to fill up their back-record lists. He anticipates a real rush for Emerson records this fall. Mr. Hirsh was a visitor to the Emerson offices in New York last week.

The National Phonograph Co., a new Pittsburgh organization, who are manufacturing and distributing the Ultraphone, have opened a retail Ultraphone Shop in the Jenkins Arcade, with entrance from the Arcade and also from 518 Penn avenue. H. E. Fleishman, general manager of the company, stated that the Ultraphone advance orders were quite flattering.

Leo Half, of Half Bros., the Victor, Edison and Columbia dealers, of Homestead, Pa., stated to The Talking Machine World representative that the sales of Victor, Edison and Columbia records were keeping up at a swift pace, notwithstanding the warm weather. Half Bros. are well known to the trade and have a very fine talking machine department.

A. R. Meyer, manager of the Joseph Horne talking machine department, reports a splendid movement of Victrolas and Columbia Grafonolas.

The new manager of the Kaufmann & Baer Co. talking machine department is Hartley J. Pierce, who spent thirteen months in the merchant marine service during the war. He was connected with the Columbia department of May, Stern & Co. when he enlisted. The Kaufmann & Baer Co. handle the Victrola, Columbia and Aeolian-Vocalion machines.

STEWART CO. NOW WHOLESALE ONLY

Victor Wholesalers of Indianapolis Dispose of Retail Interests to the Newly Organized Indianapolis Talking Machine Co.—Other Items

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 3.—Arrangements have been completed for the sale of the retail interests of the Stewart Talking Machine Co., in the store at 110 Pennsylvania street, to the Indianapolis Talking Machine Co. Carl R. Anderson, until recently with the American International Ship Building Corp., is president of the new company, and E. R. Donnell, of Indianapolis, is treasurer. The new company will take charge of the store this month. The store will be redecorated, a tile floor laid and new booths added.

The Stewart Talking Machine Co., which

C. R. Anderson, Mgr. Indianapolis T. M. Co. was a pioneer in the Indianapolis field and for a number of years was the only Victor dealer in the city, will devote its interests exclusively to the wholesale field.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Stewart, George E. and James T. Stewart have been at Atlantic City attending the Victor Jobbers' Convention.

That the time is ripe in Indianapolis for an organization of Victor dealers is the opinion of H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, who hopes that the Victor dealers will take steps to organize for the purpose of looking after the interest of the Victor product. Mr. Whitman is running a series of moving picture advertisements, featuring customers carrying Victrolas out of his store.

Ernest L. Arthur, manager of the exclusive Sonora department of Charles Mayer & Co., is greatly pleased with the way the business of the new department is coming in. Mr. Arthur is pushing the Sonora to the front. Display billboard advertising is part of the campaign the company has adopted in aggressively going after business.

W. G. Wilson, manager of the Grafonola Shops, Inc., says there has been a demand for the portable machines for summer use, but the difficulty has been in getting such machines.

Columbia dealers who attended the regular monthly meeting at the Hotel Lincoln were enthusiastic over summer prospects. Ben Brown, manager of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Co., promises the dealers that there will be a marked improvement in the supply of records soon. Olin Bell, of Bell Bros. Piano Co., of Muncie, Ind., spoke on the sales qualities of a number of records which were played at the meeting.

William Cobin, special representative of the Dictaphone, was in Indianapolis this week. On June 19 Mr. Brown met with the Evansville Columbia dealers at the McGurdy Hotel in Evansville. G. A. Brentana, an Evansville advertising man, and Mr. Brown spoke.

George Standke, manager of the Brunswick Shop, was one of the live wires of the Indianapolis members of the Optimist Club who attended the International convention at Louisville, Ky., June 19 and 20. Mr. Standke assisted in electing H. G. Hill and J. M. Schmidt, of Indianapolis, to offices and also in bringing the national headquarters to Indianapolis.

During the recent meeting of the Shriners' Imperial Council here Mr. Standke pulled a fine window display in the form of the mysterious Wilmont, of Chicago. The crowds were kept guessing as to whether Wilmont was a dummy or a live man.

The A. M. Club, of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., is scoring some big hits through window decorations. Following a clever scene illustrating the Victor record, "By the Camp Fire," the club put in a window to feature "When You Look in the Heart of a Rose." A rose bower covered a Victrola on one side of the window and on the other side was an Edison with a large rose and inside the rose was a "Splash-me" doll. The record is offered by both the Edison and Victor and makes an ideal window display.

A. H. Snyder, manager of the Edison Shop, reports that June business was good and that the store is keeping up its record of a 90 per cent. increase over last year.

The Fuller-Ryde Music Co. scored a hit during Shriners week with a clever desert window scene with a nodding camel. C. J. Fuller reports that the Victor business continues good.

E. R. Eskew, manager of the Pathé Shop, is more than pleased with the way Pathé business boomed during June.

At the Kipp Phonograph Co., Edison distributors, the chief worry continues to be the ability to get goods fast enough from the factory.

Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributors, has been getting records in a trifle better, but the demand for records and machines still exceeds the supply.

Frank Buttweiler, manager of the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has a stack of prospective dealers on his file and he is hoping that conditions will permit him to increase the Brunswick business in this territory soon.

$52,000 worth of sales and advertising ability will work for you at 1/4 the cost of an office boy!

THE men who create the Talking Machine World Service are strong executives—at the top of the advertising profession and they know the talking machine business from start to finish.

For you these men will write advertising copy with the selling ideas that will fill your store with customers.

Just now, when you can sell all the machines you can get, you want copy that builds up your PRESTIGE, so that you'll be ready to overcome competition later on.

You want new business-getting ideas that you can use to boost your sales—

You want your copy illustrated by well known artists—

You want plans for window displays that will stop the crowds and make them look—

You want form letters written by a specialist who is paid regularly $100 for a single letter—

You want a complete sales promotion service that comes to you every month brim full of $52,000 worth of horse-power, pep and ginger—

If your store is small, the Talking Machine World Service may be worth $2500 per year to you. If it is big, the Service may be worth $25,000. The mechanical value of 204 mats or electros per year of striking illustrations with the advertising copy, form letters, window display suggestions, etc., is worth the small amount that the Service costs you.

ILLUSTRATIONS for the Talking Machine World Service are made by such artists as OLG.A THOMAS and ARTHUR FINLEY of "Vogue," CHARLES BASKERVILLE, Jr., whose work you can see in the July issue of "Scribner's"; HERMAN PALMER, famous as a regular contributor to "Judge"; FREDERICK T. CHAPMAN, who has illustrated the Arrow Collar advertisements, as well as many other artists.

This is what—THE TALKING MACHINE WORLD SERVICE —brings you, and it costs you about 1-4 as much as an office boy, because we are selling it to hundreds of dealers all over the United States, thereby dividing the cost into small units. We can't explain in one page a proposition as big as this. Send for a complete digest of the Service with full information and samples of the kind of work we do for you.

But remember—Only one dealer in each territory —and it is strictly first come, first served!

We want the best dealer in every territory to get this Service—not necessarily the largest, but the fellow who has both eyes wide open and will make the most thorough use of it when he gets it. If you're the man, sign this coupon before your competitor does.

You don't have to take this proposition on faith. We show you in advance just exactly what you get, and you can decide for yourself.

Fill out the coupon at once. The postmark on your letter will determine who is first when two or more inquire from the same territory.

Sign and mail this coupon today!

FINE NEW QUARTERS IN MILWAUKEE

Work Well Under Way on the New $75,000 Building Being Erected in That City for the Use of the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 8.—A beautiful building of classic design, costing about $75,000, is being erected by the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., 258 West Water street, on the triangular plot

New Kesselman-O'Driscoll Building

bounded by Wells, West Water and Second streets, for its large and growing business. The company now handles the Victor and Edison lines exclusively, but when it takes occupancy of the new store a complete line of pianos, players and grands, music rolls and other accessories and supplies will be added. The unusual success which has characterized the progress of the company in the talking machine business gives the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co. a splendid prestige and paves the way for the development of one of the largest and strongest music houses in Milwaukee.

Only a few years ago Louis M. Kesselman and Michael O'Driscoll started a small Victor shop at Twentieth street and Fond du Lac avenue. Within a short time it established a city-wide reputation for good service, making it necessary to expand and choose a more central location to maintain the high standard of service. Accordingly the company bravely invaded the heart of the downtown district, locating at 258 West Water street. This was two years ago in May. Since that time the Edison line was added. Now a full piano business is being established.

The "music temple," as the new Kesselman-O'Driscoll Building will be called, is illustrated herewith. It will be four stories high, with foundations to carry five or six additional floors when these are needed. The location is ideal, being only a block from Grand avenue.

Those who know the ability, energy and industry of the members of the company predict a bright and prosperous future in its second epochal move when the temple is completed about September 1 or 15.

SPECIAL DEMONSTRATING MACHINE

Novel Machine Used by Los Angeles Dealer in Demonstrating Records—Specially Designed and Suitable for Store Only

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 28.—Shown in the accompanying illustration is a specially constructed desk talking machine for demonstrating new records, intended to enable the customer to leisurely and comfortably wait upon herself. It is, of course, for use in the store in the selling of records and not for entertainment in the home. Designed somewhat along the lines of an ordinary writing desk the machine is operated in the usual way and the disc and needle are within convenient reach of the person seated before it. Taking the place of pigeon-holes on one side is a rack for records to be played and on the other side is a partitioned rack for those selected and rejected. There is also a holder for catalogs and underneath the glass of the partly covered top are lists of the latest numbers. A small glass cover fits down over the playing part when not in use.

The machine, which has been named a Phonograph Console, represents the idea of William H. Richardson, of the new Los Angeles music house of Richardson's, Inc., at 607 West

SOME INTERESTING DEVELOPMENTS IN ST. LOUIS TRADE

J. F. Ditzel Blossoms Out as an Author—Victrolas Cheer Telephone Girls During Strike—Tri-State Association After Misleading Advertising—Business Conditions Reviewed

St. Louis, Mo., July 2.—Business was good in St. Louis in June in talking machines and records. The only thing that kept it from being better was scarcity of machines. The supplies on hand and obtainable were not sufficient to meet the public's demands. That is not saying that at any time during the month a person who wanted to buy a talking machine could not find one. But it is saying that the person who wanted to buy was lucky if he found the kind that he wanted.

Manager J. F. Ditzel, of the Famous & Barr Co., by the way, is about to break into literature. He has taken his pen in hand and written an epic about women and music and how music helps women to bear the grind of the day's toil. He is going to send it forth in attractive pamphlet form to do its creative work in bringing to women the message that music waits to serve them at their tasks.

The Bell Telephone Co. thinks that music has charm to keep its girls in line when there is a strike on. The company has purchased a number of the Victor $90 styles to beguile the rest hours of the girls, who have to be kept in the exchange buildings during the strike. They were bought from the Famous & Barr department and Manager Ditzel remarks that there is a noticeable tendency among industrial corporations to supply talking machines for the stimulating of their employes during luncheon and other relaxation periods.

The Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association, which has been somewhat somnolent of late, woke up this week when President Reis, glancing through a telephone directory to see how his ad looked, saw another ad which did not look good to him. It told how a small dealer on the South Side had Victrolas, Brunswicks and one of the 57 varieties of olas. The executive committee of the Tri-Staters was hurriedly convened and an inquest held, at the end of which the matter was referred to the Better Business Bureau. The Tri-Staters are attracting a good deal of attention. An inquiry was received the other day for a copy of the constitution and by-laws from a group of Southern dealers, who are planning to get together in the same way.

Invitations have been sent by Manager C. L. Staffelbach of the Hellrung & Grimm Pathé department to all his dealers in Illinois and Missouri to come to town next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday or Saturday, or all four, and hear Mr. Parsons, of the Pathé Frères, New York, demonstrate the new Pathé Actuelle. Between 150 and 200 dealers are expected.

J. A. Schlichter has been appointed manager of the retail department of the Silverstone Music Co. He succeeds W. W. Mitchell, who resigned and has gone to his home at Waterloo, Ill. Leo M. Schlude, assistant manager for six years, has resigned to take the management of the B. Nugent & Bro. talking machine department. H. H. Ray, formerly with the Kieselhorst Co., is his successor. Mark Silverstone and M. Goldberg were in New York attending the Edison meeting.

The new quick-service record department at the Smith-Reis store is getting under way.

Several of the stores along Olive street lit up with red lanterns for the advent of the "Red Lantern" Victor records yesterday.

The Krite-Boyens Piano Co., which has been at Grand avenue and Olive street, opened Monday in its new store at 1012 Olive street. The Columbia department has very attractive French art glass bottles at the rear of the store. Miss Bertha Strasser is in charge.

John McKenna, of Chicago, has been appointed manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s St. Louis branch, succeeding A. W. Roos, who becomes assistant manager. The Columbia people are planning a big get-together meeting about the middle of July at the Hotel Statler for all the dealers in St. Louis and the branch's territory, including Little Rock, Memphis and other cities. About 150 are expected.

C. R. Salmon, city salesman for the Columbia, finished first in the needle drive for the St. Louis branch. He sold his million in ten days and was the fourth to finish his quota.

The Brunswick Shop is a new institution at Alton, Ill. It is at 309 Belle street and is in charge of R. J. Smith.

A. S. Engelmann, of the St. Louis Brunswick store, says he has taken no new orders for nine months because he did not think it fair to the old dealers whose orders are back. He has received assurances of great improvement in the deliveries next month.

The Mackey Furniture Co. has rented the five-story building at 1122 Olive street, adjoining it on the east, for pianos and Grafonolas. In the main store the musical instruments have not had a department of their own.

WHY WALL-KANE NEEDLES ARE SUPERIOR

The highest grade steel needle of American manufacture, and playing only one record, is put through a complicated, scientific, chemical process, by which the point of the needle is greatly improved. The popular explanation of the method is as follows:

An ordinary steel needle is made of wire, which consists of long, parallel running grains on the inside. This wire is inserted in automatic machines, which automatically cut off the steel needles.

The friction of the revolving record grooves will gradually flatten out the point of the needle, so that more and more grain of the steel will reach the record grooves. The WALL-KANE needle will eliminate the grain of the steel coming into contact with the grooves by a process which is accomplished as follows:

The steel needle is first dipped into a chemical solution which will take out most of the charcoal, making a closer unit of the needle.

Then the needles are dipped in several solutions, which place three different coatings on the top of the point, so that an entirely separate unit is created on the point, very much smoother and 25 to 30 per cent. softer than an ordinary steel needle's point.

More than three thousand revolutions are required to take off these three coatings by the friction of the point with the record. The playing surface of more than ten records do not amount to 3000 revolutions—that is why WALL-KANE needles will play at least ten records perfectly, and will make less surface noise, and by the distribution of the solution into the grooves of the record, the record itself will be greatly benefited, and its life prolonged.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles, Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary needles, retails for 15c, costs the dealer 7½c., 8c. in the Far West.

VICTOR CO. OBTAINS INJUNCTION AGAINST INFRINGER

U. S. District Judge Issues Injunction Against Charles E. Garvin and Associates Restraining Them From Manufacturing or Selling Talking Machines Infringing Victor Patents

CHICAGO, ILL., June 30.—The Victor Talking Machine Co. came out victorious in a legal battle which culminated to-day. The principals were the Victor Co. vs. Charles E. Garvin et al. To the Judges of the U. S. District Court of northern Illinois the Victor Co. petitioners showed that in January, 1918, they had filed their complaint bill for infringement of Letters Patent Nos. 814786, 814848, and 947227, and that action for preliminary injunction was made on the affidavit served and filed under an order to show cause, but prior to the hearing of said motion the defendants filed a joint answer disclaiming infringement as alleged in the bill. At the next hearing in February a final decree was entered adjudging the letters patents good and thereby an infringement of No. 914786 as to claims 2, 3, 6, 18, 21, 30, 37, 41 and 42, also No. 814848 as to claims 7, 9, 10 and 11 and No. 947 as to claims 29, 31, 32 and 37, and directing a writ of perpetual injunction for the reason that no appeal had been taken and that the time for appealing had expired.

On March 8, 1918, the perpetual injunction was issued and served on the defendants by the Deputy Marshal with summons.

It was alleged that C. E. Garvin, president and treasurer; August Hurt, vice-president, and Josephine Garvin, secretary, all of the Garvin-Brown Talking Machine Co., of Chicago, had manufactured, sold and continued to manufacture and sell during the proceeding, talking machines, amplifying horns and sound-reproducing devices, embodying and containing the inventions specified in the above-mentioned claims, and more specifically exemplified in the plaintiff's exhibit of the defendant's "Blackstone" produced in the court.

After a two days' hearing, during which the affidavits of a large number of prominent men in the trade were heard, Judge Anderson issued the following order, which became effective and in force immediately:

"First: The talking machines exemplified in the plaintiff's exhibit, defendant's Blackstone machine and manufactured by Charles E. Garvin, Garvin-Brown Co., Josephine Garvin and August Hurt are within the injunction heretofore issued herein against Charles E. Garvin, and that a writ of attachment for contempt issued forthwith against said Charles E. Garvin, Garvin-Brown Co., Josephine Garvin and the said August Hurt.

"Second: That an injunction be issued forthwith against Charles E. Garvin, Garvin-Brown Co., Josephine Garvin and August Hurt, and each of them, and each of their agents, attorneys, clerks, servants, employes, workmen and all holdings through or under them from further manufacture or causing to be manufactured, selling or offering for sale, using or causing to be used, talking machines identical with or like or similar to plaintiff's exhibit, defendant's Blackstone machine, or similarly made in imitation of plain-tiff's talking machine and for dissipating or parting with their assets until the further order of the court.

"Third: That this cause be referred to Charles M. Morrison, as master, to ascertain and report to the court the character and extent and circumstances of the violation of the injunction herein by the said Charles E. Garvin, by the said Garvin-Brown Co., by the said Josephine Garvin and by the said August Hurt, with authority to examine said Charles E. Garvin and said Garvin-Brown Co. and said Josephine Garvin and said August Hurt and each of them, and each of their officers, agents and employes, and to cause the production of their books for the above or any other purposes and the books of each of them to ascertain and report to the court the names of all purchasers of talking machines sold in violation of said injunction by the said Charles E. Garvin, by the said Garvin-Brown Co., and by the said Josephine Garvin and by the said August Hurt, with the addresses of said purchasers, the quantity and the dates of sale and of shipment and the prices received on each sale by the said Charles E. Garvin, defendant, the said Garvin-Brown Co., or the said Josephine Garvin, or the said August Hurt, and to ascertain and report to the court the total profits made by the said Charles E. Garvin, Garvin-Brown Co., Josephine Garvin, and by the said August Hurt, from the manufacture and sale of talking machines within the injunction since the 12th day of March, 1918, down to and including the last sale thereof, and the total damage of every kind and description caused the plaintiff thereby, and to ascertain and report the total expenditure made by, or for or on account of plaintiff in ferreting out and following up the said violation of injunction and in bringing the facts to the attention of the court in and by this proceeding and to and including the end hereof, and also the total expenditure of plaintiff in and for the main case.

(Signed) "Albert B. Anderson, Judge."

DROP LEVY ON AMERICAN FREIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Information has reached the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce that British shippers have been informed by the Atlantic Transport Line, Cunard Line, Leyland & Co. and other ocean carriers that hereafter the 5 per cent. levy on all freights and charges payable in the United States would not be collected. The levy was instituted at a time when the exchange rate was greatly to the disadvantage of Great Britain.

EXPANSIVE PLANS OF TRADE IN LOS ANGELES

Talking Machine Dealers' Association Broadens Name to Music Trades' Association—Outlines Policy—Month's News Budget

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 3.—The Retail Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Southern California, which was organized in this city something over a year ago, has now become the Music Trades Association of Southern California, which means that it has been expanded to embrace not only the talking machine dealers but also the dealers, both wholesale and retail, as well as manufacturers and jobbers, representing every branch of the music business. In other words, it has become, as its new name signifies, a general music trades association. The proposition of broadening its field came up officially at the regular monthly meeting of the talking machine dealers on the evening of June 10, which resulted in the calling of a special meeting for June 24, to which the members of the music trade in general were invited and asked to participate. The latter was held at the Alexandria Hotel, in the nature of a banquet, and was well attended. Besides adopting the new name and the proposition of expanded representation, it was also decided at this meeting to establish a permanent business office and to employ a secretary and manager, at a salary, for the association, to the end that greater and even better work may be accomplished. A committee, composed of E. A. Geissler, of the Geo. J. Birkel Co.; E. P. Tucker, of the Wiley B. Allen Co.; George H. Barnes, of the Barnes Music Co.; H. L. Brown, of the Lyon-McKinney-Smith Co., and Sheldon Morris, of the Southern California Hardwood & Lumber Co., was appointed to make arrangements for securing the secretary-manager and to report at the next meeting, which will probably be held on the evening of July 8. New or revised by-laws are also to be considered at this meeting. The old officers, however, aside from the secretary, are to be retained. On account of President J. W. Boothe being out of the city, the reorganization meeting of June 24 was presided over by E. A. Geissler. The association will be financed by assessing the various member houses on a basis of size or amount of business done, and it is hoped that the membership may be made representative of the whole of southern California.

Although their sales averaged up to a somewhat lower level than that reached the previous month, the talking machine dealers of this city are quite well pleased with their June record, for it, at least, represents a very material gain over the same month of last year. The first three-quarters of the month, in fact, was exceptionally good, while the closing week was a little quiet. A strike of the employes of the local telephone company, while not completely tying up the system, has been causing considerable confusion to business for the past ten days, and probably has more or less affected talking machine and record sales. The vacation period is also here, of course, and naturally helps toward making business a little slow. The Victor dealers state that they are finding it quite a little easier now to get record orders filled, and are hopeful that they soon will be able to push sales to much better advantage.

An unusually large assembly of Columbia dealers attended the regular monthly meeting of the southern California Columbia dealers, on June 18, in the ball-room of the Alexandria Hotel. In addition to the playing of the new issues of Columbia records a very interesting demonstration of finished ball-room dancing, to the accompaniment of dance records, was given by Miss Helen Van Pelt, teacher of dancing at the California Temple of Music, and Kenneth McLellan, teacher of ball-room dancing.

Work Started on New Columbia Building

Work was started last month on the construction of the new building for the Los Angeles wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. The building will be located on the west side of Los Angeles St., adjoining the corner of Eighth street, and is to be two stories high, with a frontage of 70 feet and a depth of 135 feet. It will be of concrete construction, finished with a terra cotta front and trim, and large plate-glass windows will be provided to permit of ample street display. The property is owned by James Slauson, and is controlled by the Columbia company under a long lease, which represents a rental in excess of $60,000. It is to be ready for occupancy early in the fall. William F. Stidham, manager of the company's southern California and Arizona business, is naturally taking great interest in the structure's progress, and says it is going to enable the branch to take care of its rapidly growing business to very much advantage.

Richardson's, Inc., Formally Opened
The new phonograph and piano house of Richardson's, Inc., at 607 West Seventh street, was formally opened on June 23. Compliments were bestowed upon the new rival in the field by other music firms in the nature of potted palms and a profusion of flowers, and many visitors called to pay their respects. The store is especially attractive in its interior arrangement and decorative scheme. William Richardson, formerly of the Southern California Music Co., is the manager, and the firm begins business with the agency for Columbia talking machines and records and the Baldwin line of pianos and players.

New Traveling Man for Columbia Line
William F. Stidham, manager of the Los Angeles wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., has appointed Charles P. Mack as a member of the traveling staff. Mr. Mack, who, at the signing of the armistice, resigned his commission of second lieutenant in the field artillery, returned to the employ of the Bartlett Music Co. here, with which he had previously been associated for a number of years. Mr. Mack's new appointment will take him to the Arizona field.

New Edison Department Manager
The Fitzgerald Music Co. announces the promotion of John D. Scouller to the position of manager of the store's Edison department. Mr. Scouller has been a salesman in the department for some time, and has proved a very capable man. He succeeds C. H. Yates.

Salmacia Brothers Establish Branch
The Glendale Phonograph & Piano Co., of 109 North Brand street, Glendale, Cal., has established a branch store in the near-by town of Burbank, which was opened for business in quite attractive quarters during the latter part of June. The Salmacia brothers, Frank and Vincent, started the Glendale Phonograph & Piano Co. about three years ago and have been doing an excellent suburban business.

Returns from Tour of Northern Territory
E. M. Bonnell, Pacific Coast wholesale traveling representative of the Sonora Phonograph Co., returned to his home in this city about three weeks ago from a tour of his Northern territory. He says he found it extremely easy to get orders, but adds that he is still having difficulty in getting a sufficient number of instruments to supply his dealers. He is hoping for improvement at an early date.

Capt. Louis O. La Mott Returns
Louis O. La Mott, formerly connected with the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co. here, is again in southern California, after about eight months' service in France. He has the commission of captain in the Coast Artillery, and is now stationed at Fort McArthur, near this city. He says he will continue in the army.

NEWS OF COLUMBIA VISITORS

Dealers From All Parts of the Country Call at the Executive Offices in New York

Among the recent visitors at the Columbia executive offices were the Layton Bros., who operate a Columbia talking machine store in Montreal, Can. Two of these four brothers have recently returned from Europe, having seen active service in the Canadian army. D. H. Delzell, of Salt Lake City; C. A. Delzell, of Denver, and C. F. Schaffarzick, of Spokane, have also spent a week in New York. D. H. Delzell is in charge of a Columbia jobbing establishment in Salt Lake City, operating under the name of Columbia Stores. C. A. Delzell and Mr. Schaffarzick also operate similar jobbing establishments under the same name in their respective cities. Horace Benjamin, vice-president of the Benjamin Temple of Music in Danville, Ill., who is a progressive Columbia dealer in that locality, also visited the Columbia offices last week. Mr. Benjamin reports an unusual activity in Grafonolas in his city and announces that his present stock is entirely sold.

Special Announcement to the trade

THE DAYTON MOTOR

Made in various sizes for a full line of cabinets from the lowest priced to the highest grade talking machines.

THROUGH Increased Manufacturing Facilities and complete release from Government work, we are enabled to announce that our output for this year will at last be equal to the enormous demand for Dayton Motors.

Those whom we have been unable to supply in the past will be interested to note that there will be plenty of Dayton Motors from now on.

Under the stress of intensive war production and the exacting requirements of the particular work on which we have been engaged, and to which the resources of this plant were applied, we have emerged on a peace-time basis with an organization and equipment the superior to which does not exist.

The training and experience of this strenuous period has developed an aptitude for precision in the men who have now turned their talents and attention from intricate war-work to the no less precise production of the world's greatest phonograph motor.

To the great majority of progressive talking machine manufacturers the Dayton Motor has come to be known as the symbol of advanced ideas—of the highest standards in material, design and manufacture.

The satisfaction and complete absence of motor trouble which the Dayton has brought about for other manufacturers will naturally follow its introduction in your machines.

There will be plenty of Dayton Motors from now on. We are ready to submit samples from stock for your inspection.

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[NOTE.—This is the twenty-eighth of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

THE PERSONAL PART

I am rather of the opinion that the most appropriate title for the present article would be "Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine Dealer." Why I think so will appear, I hope, in the sequel.

In nearly all the matter I have ever read in trade journals concerning the promotion of public love for music, with its commercial corollary, public purchase of musical instruments, the emphasis has invariably been put on the consumer, and never on the seller. Ingenious gentlemen write ingenious articles to show why the dear people ought to buy pianos or talking machines in enormous quantities, and thus be happy ever after. The arguments are often as ingenious as their writers, though once in a while one finds them by way of being a bit ingenuous instead. But the interesting point is that one never, or at least hardly ever, finds any emphasis on the seller's part in this proposed spiritual opening-up.

The Steak Fallacy

The superficial-minded person will argue that to sell beefsteak one need not be a grower of cattle, and that therefore talking machines can be sold without a knowledge of music on the part of the salesman. The analogy, however, is rather painfully inexact. If beefsteak were something which the public rather had to be taught to love then the best salesman would undoubtedly be the man whose wide acquaintance with the habits and nature of steers best fitted him to discourse with conviction, not to say enthusiasm, concerning the true relative value of various cuts of meat. The public indeed considers itself well able to choose its own meat. Does any one believe that it is yet ready to formulate its own demand for music and insist on getting its money's worth as well as what it asks for?

"Salesmanship"

The idea that a merchant need have no technical knowledge of the goods he sells embodies a fallacy that seems to die hard; yet is in fact dying more and more rapidly. The fallacy rests upon the assumption that selling is to be done by the exercise of a faculty called "salesmanship," which appears to mean the art of persuading the public to buy goods without reference to their intrinsic value. The worship of "salesmanship," however, has come to suffer an eclipse during recent years and to-day the business world, speaking broadly, is beginning to see that real "salesmanship" is exchange and nothing else. In a word, the business world sees that a sale in which both parties to the transaction make a profit is the only real sale; and that unless the merchant sells a full measure of satisfaction with each piece of goods he will not remain in business very long.

A few years ago, no doubt, such talk as this would have been greeted with sneers. To-day those who sneer take care to sneer alone and apart.

The truth, then, is that the successful merchant is he who best knows how to give the public what it wants and who begins by discovering for himself that what the public wants usually has to be taught to the public first. That merchant usually makes another discovery, which is that when the attempt is made to guide public taste intelligently the tendency of public desire is up and not down. Forward and not backward, towards the better and not towards the worse. In these words, indeed, may be summed up the experience of every great merchant; nay, of every man who has ever influenced permanently public thought.

"Selling Noise"

A merchant, in other words, is not fulfilling the requirements of his job if he is not thoroughly posted on the nature of his goods, on their technical features, and on the particular science or art which they subserve. A talking machine dealer who knows nothing about music, and hardly more about the mechanism of his machines, is a very unsatisfactory sort of person with whom to do satisfactory business. In fact, it is fair to suppose that satisfactory business cannot be done with him. It is all very well for such a merchant to say that he deals with many hundreds of men and women who want noise and nothing else. The answer is simply that if you sell talking machines and records on the basis of noise you sell them as noise machines and noise records. If you sell them on the basis of music then alone can you be selling them, and charging good round prices for them, as music-machines and music records. But to sell that which reproduces music, without anything about music, is exactly like selling real estate without knowing the location, the surroundings, the scenery or the nature of the buildings involved in the transaction. That sort of salesmanship might sell real estate during a land-boom, but it decidedly will not "go" at any normal time. Neither will ignorance take the place

"LAUZON" Phonographs

IN THIS AGE of science and progress, buyers of phonographs are becoming more exacting and critical each day. The cheap trouble-making talking machine is doomed soon to be a thing of the past. It is with a full knowledge of present conditions, that "Lauzon" phonographs are designed and made—they offer a foundation upon which a lasting and profitable business can be built.

THE CABINETS are works of art and harmonize with the better types of Period Furniture—beauty of case design is commensurate with beauty of tone.

THE "LAUZON" motor and mechanical equipment are of the very highest class and most expensive made.

of knowledge in music salesmanship, save only when demand, for any reason, goes crazy and swamps a temporarily embarrassed production.

Personal Enthusiasm

Indeed, there is no getting away from the primary argument. The merchant who wants to make a specialized business of the talking machine and its records has simply got to make himself acquainted with the rudiments of music loving if not with music as a science. He simply cannot stimulate the enthusiasm of others if he has none of his own. If he is to create around his business a permanent clientele of intelligent men and women who will buy from him steadily and in preference to going elsewhere . . . and in any normal community specialty retailing depends on this . . . he must feel of himself some of the enthusiasm he aims to create. If he does not love his finest records and the tone of his finest machines then he cannot possibly create any love for them where this does not already exist. If he could always depend upon a circle of buyers thoroughly intelligent in matters musical and capable of choosing intelligently for themselves it would be different. But in this day and age the American public have to be guided and led. How can the blind lead the blind?

The "Best Sellers" Talk

Let it not be supposed for a moment that the list of best sellers, with its overpowering majority of dance and vapid song numbers, represents the backbone of the talking machine game. That backbone is in the growing love of the American people for the highest class records. The history of the greatest talking machine industries shows this plainly. To make money in this business the merchant must sell high-class records. This means that he must be able to build up around himself a clientele of high-class intelligent music-lovers, who will appreciate the value of the high-priced machine and demand the high-priced artist record. But to do this again the merchant must at least be as intelligent musically as his customers.

These would seem to be self-evident truths but it is surprising how many will argue against them. Yet the history of the business proves that the best salesmen are those who can most intelligently talk about the records, the music, and the points of the machines. The merchant who takes no interest in this matter cannot expect his clerks to be better than himself. If

PATRIOTIC EMPLOYERS TO BE CITED

Those Who Give Back Pre-war Jobs to Soldiers and Sailors Will Be Permitted to Display the U. S. Shield on Firm's Service Flag

And now there is a citation for the employer—the employer who "makes good on his service flag." With their pre-war jobs filled or offered to between 70 per cent. and 80 per cent. of America's honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, Arthur Woods, Assistant to the Secretary of War, said recently in a letter from Washington that the War and Navy Departments had prepared a citation to be issued to all employers who assure the departments that they will re-employ everybody who formerly worked with them and left to serve in the army or navy.

The citation carries with it permission for the holder to display on his firm's service flag the shield of the United States. It is handsomely engraved, engrossed with the name of the re-he is to build up esprit de corps in his business organization and make it something worth while, he must himself show a good example.

That is why I insist that the talking machine dealer ought to make it his business to obtain as complete an acquaintance as he can with the best of the records he carries, with the acoustic principles of the talking machine, and with the subject of music in general from the point of view of an intelligent listener. When he can himself join in with the enthusiasm of an intelligent customer, and be sincere about it, he will have obtained a grasp on the foundations of his business which he cannot possibly get in any other way. Such a man will win out.

ipient and signed by the Secretary of War, Secretary of the Navy and Mr. Woods.

"All that is asked," Mr. Woods says, "is that the employer write an application for the citation, stating that he will employ his old service men, and address me in care of the War Department, Washington."

DEMURRAGE CHARGE CUT

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—Substantial reductions in demurrage charges were announced to-day by Director General Hines. For detaining cars, either loaded or empty, the charge will be $2 per day for each of the first four days and $5 per day for each succeeding day.

The new charges, which become effective July 20, compare with present charges of $3 per day for each of the first four days, $6 per day for each of the next three days and $10 per day thereafter. Heretofore, however, no charge had been made for cars detained for loading.

FINISHES GOVERNMENT CONTRACT

Thomas Mfg. Co. Now Back on Peace Basis Making Motors After "Doing Their Bit" for the Government—Interesting Developments

DAYTON, O., July 5.—When America entered the war for world freedom many of the large industrial plants of this country were either already actively engaged in the production of war material or were quickly enlisted in the work of producing the means that so completely overwhelmed Germany and ended the war a year sooner than had been expected. That the Thomas Manufacturing Co., of this city, manufacturers of the Dayton motor, played an important part in this connection is shown by the fact that during this time they were turning out a very intricate and exceptionally fine part of optical equipment, which was used on artillery and naval gun sights. An idea of the accuracy and close limits to which these pieces were manufactured can be gained from the fact that many of the graduations and distances had to be read with the aid of magnifying glasses.

Just prior to the outbreak of the war the Thomas Co. had installed extensive new equipment for the manufacture of the Dayton phonograph motor and this particular machinery happened to be the only kind capable of producing the necessary accuracy required on this work. Needless to say, almost their entire manufacturing facilities were quickly and intensively employed on this work to the practical exclusion of their regular product. With the coming of peace and the complete release from war production which the Thomas Co. executed with characteristic American energy and patriotism came the return of peaceful pursuits and their return to the exclusive manufacture of Dayton motors, tone arms and sound boxes, with the invaluable experience gained in making some of the most exacting war machinery ever produced. It is also reported that a large special machine formerly intended to be used in building ignition apparatus for the Liberty aeroplane engine is among considerable new and specially constructed machinery recently installed at the Thomas plant. This machine, it is said, had just been completed when the armistice was signed and is particularly adapted to the fine work required on Dayton motors. This big machine, with others, will have a great deal to do with increasing the output of the factory, and the company now believes they will be in a position to keep pace with orders and the steadily increasing demand for Dayton motors. To facilitate drilling highly developed multiple

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically. The first scientifically constructed universal tone arm, and the only one having this very important improvement.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

Length of tone arm required should be specified when ordering.
Needle change is facilitated by rotating sound box, which returns to normal position.
Needle always takes same position in playing any type of record, setting in direct center.

BUSINESS WITH AUSTRALIA GROWS

Prospects Deemed Favorable for the Continued Increase in the Consumption of American Goods—Talking Machines Much in Favor

The trade of Australia before the war was practically divided between England and Germany, with a relatively small amount coming from the United States. This was largely due to the fact, Trade Commissioner A. W. Ferrin at Melbourne points out, that the principal exports of Australia—wool, gold, wheat, meats, hides and skins—were normally exported to the English market. The sympathetic feeling between Australia and America, which has grown up from the war, he explains, will tend to encourage trade between the two countries.

An Australian market for American goods ought to be especially desirable, as the seasons are the reverse of those in the United States, permitting the American manufacturers to make good during the dull season for this trade which has been accustomed to place its orders nine months ahead of requirements. One of the drawbacks is the question of credits, but Australian bankers realize the situation and are willing to make arrangements with New York banks to pay American manufacturers for their goods upon the receipt of invoices and shipping documents, when properly authorized by Australian merchants who will pay the interest, exchange and collection fees upon terms pre-arranged with the bankers.

Australian merchants feel that while it would be advisable for representatives of American firms to make trips to the Australian market in order to establish connections, local agents could conduct the actual business more satisfactorily, owing to their knowledge of the financial standing of local concerns, of the best time to make shipments and of the grade of goods required.

The exports of American musical instruments to Australia have made great strides within the past few years, and the American piano and player is now recognized as an instrument of superior merit in that country. It is quite evident that the demand during war times will continue, because American musical products have won an established clientele.

and head of the Meisselbach division at Newark, N. J. He started his manufacturing career some thirty-five years ago when he decided that the fishing paraphernalia of that period was not up to the proper standard. He then perfected an absolutely silent fishing reel which attained success and which was the start of the Meisselbach institution.

Some years ago Mr. Meisselbach went further ahead with his inventive plans and placed on the market the Meisselbach motor, which has received an enthusiastic reception from manufacturers everywhere. About two years ago the Meisselbach motor became an integral part of the Heineman organization and this plant is now known as the Meisselbach division of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc.

The factory floor space has grown from 4,500 square feet to 60,000 square feet, but this is only the beginning, for in a few months the home of the Meisselbach plant will be a new $500,000 plant, with a floor space of over 200,000 square feet.

Gleanings From the World of Music

NEXT SEASON TO BE A BIG ONE FOR POPULAR MUSIC

Dealers in Talking Machine Records Will Do Well to Watch the Preparations of Music Publishers for Carrying on Strong Publicity Campaigns During Next Few Months

During the coming fall, according to the plans of the leading publishers of the country, some of the largest national advertising campaigns ever inaugurated in the publishing industry will be under way. Not only are the publishing houses that have carried on national advertising campaigns during the past season, and in seasons gone by, going to continue enlarging their plans, but it is now understood that several other large concerns have appropriated substantial amounts of money for this purpose.

It is conceded that the quick profits for the dealer are in the sale of popular songs and dance records. These mean constant sales to the same record buyers each month, and mean constant profit to the dealer. So he should watch closely the plans of the music publishers and jobbers during the fall as well as those of the record company for which he is agent.

National advertising alone does not sell songs. The leading publishing houses of the day have tremendous organizations, with representatives scattered throughout the country in every large city, and these representatives not only put into force plans for the popularization of songs in the city where they have their permanent location, but they also cover all adjacent territory. They see that the professional singers are plugging the songs, while the campaign is on; that bands and especially dance orchestras, feature them, and that practically every theatre and motion picture house features the numbers in their programs. The publishers that go into these large campaigns do it after much planning, and it is very seldom the songs selected to be featured in these big drives are failures.

Then, too, to-day they invariably have the support not only of the record corporations and their jobbers, but also of the music roll cutters, and all these forces, working toward one end, mean record sales for the live dealer.

The sale of songs and instrumental selections in sheet music, record form and in player rolls has greatly increased during the past two years. The music publishers are taking advantage of this, and these advertising campaigns, as now planned, are made for the purpose of caring for the greatly increased popularity of music of all kinds. The more music of all kinds that is sold the more will be sold, and the demands for sheet music and talking machine records during the coming fall will be so much greater than in past seasons that the dealer who does not prepare beforehand will find himself shorter of stock than at any time during the past two years. Consequently, cautioning him to be prepared and to take advantage of these campaigns is with a view to giving him time to stock up.

The greatly increased interest in sheet music has also added to the demand for standard works, and the demand for popular numbers in no wise impairs the salability of standard records. It must be remembered, however, that the popular songs—the songs of the moment—mean quick sales which are repeated with each monthly release, and these are the numbers that are going to be extensively advertised.

Men Who Make Popular Songs

No. 4—Theodore Morse

Probably one of the most successful composers, and one who is well known to the majority of talking machine dealers, is Theodore Morse, who is more frequently referred to as "Teddy." Besides being a successful song writer he is considered one of the best historians on musical matters in the country. As pianist with the "Record Makers" he has toured practically the entire country, always working in close co-operation with the talking machine dealers of the towns visited. He is a man of most pleasing personality, and, unlike a good many artists, he is successful in business activities. Among the composers and song writers he is referred to as "the old melody master," this despite the fact that he is apparently a young man. Frequently, when the younger song writers have difficulties in composing a melody to lyrics which do not readily lend themselves to musical composition, they take their troubles to Teddy, and in that manner he has probably been a co-author of hundreds of songs, for which he has neither asked nor received credit. He has a long list of songs to his credit, but it is unusual for him to refer to them himself. Among these are: "Blue Bell," "Dear Old Girl," "M-o-t-h-e-r," "Way Down in My Heart, I've Got a Feeling for You," "Arra-Wanna," "Keep a Little Cozy Corner in Your Heart for Me," "Little Boy in Blue," "Sing Me Love's Lullaby," and "Lullaby Blue." This latter number has been a big success during the past season, while "Sing Me Love's Lullaby," is a high-class number which has been sung and recorded by prominent operatic stars, and is without doubt a work which will remain in the standard catalog of the publishers of the song.

SONG WRITERS AND PUBLIC TASTE

Producers of Popular Music Fall Back on Ballads When There is Any Question Regarding Sort of Song Public Wants

When song writers find it hard to discern the public taste or pleasure in popular songs in any one season they always return to ballads. No matter what particular style of song seems to have great popularity at the moment, a ballad always has a fair chance of success, though they are, it is true, much harder to write successfully, and those of a high-class nature are most difficult to make popular. Seldom do such numbers become popular in any one season, and often require campaigns for a period of three or four years before they are finally accepted as big successes.

During the past season ballads which have lent themselves to waltz arrangements were among the most successful numbers produced in the popular and semi-popular field. The Oriental type of song also had quite a vogue, and the "shimmie" numbers, while their life was short, were big successes for a period.

The successful song writer must, if possible, anticipate the public's taste months in advance of the actual publication of his songs, inasmuch as it takes time to place them, and even after acceptance there must be a period of delay. Also the publishers may designate it as one of the numbers to be featured in a campaign with songs of entirely different type. The song writer, therefore, must take all these things into consideration many months in advance. For instance, at the present time most of them are writing for the fall season, and it would be a song of exceptional merit to be published by a popular house during the summer months. From all indications the coming fall will see many ballads of the higher type, especially as regards the lyrics, which are showing much improvement. In the novelty field we will without doubt have quite a vogue of jazz numbers. The song writers appear to feel that this is what the public will want, and most of those who can adopt this style of song are busy.

TRADE IN MONTREAL PREPARING FOR INCREASED DEMANDS

New Stores Being Opened and Established Stores Enlarged—Some New Products on the Market—Higher Grade Machines Have the Call—Opera Season in Halifax Helps Sales

MONTREAL, CAN., July 7.—Despite the warm weather, which has been intense here for the past few weeks, the retail talking machine business continues to hold its own. Many dealers in fact report a business quite as healthy as that which preceded the Christmas holidays and there appear to be no visible signs of depression or slackening. The greatest demand has been for the larger and more expensive cabinet models sold in large numbers as wedding gifts for June brides.

The Cosmopolitan Graphophone & Piano Co. is the only exclusive Columbia dealer on St. Lawrence Boulevard. L. Foisy, manager, has recently renovated the showrooms and added six extra soundproof demonstrating rooms. The assortment of Columbia Grafonolas is large and a most complete listing of foreign domestic records is carried in stock.

L. G. Fournier & Co., 114-16 Rideau street, Ottawa, Ont., are new Brunswick dealers.

Layton Bros. have been using attractive advertising copy featuring Edison machines and records. A recent announcement was devoted in its entirety to the records of Anna Case and was coincident with the appearance of this famous artiste in Montreal in the photo film "The Hidden Truth." The timeliness of this advertising, coupled with the prominence of this artiste, proved an impetus to the sale of her records.

R. J. Dales, 249 Laurier avenue West, represents His Master's Voice lines in the north end and states red seal records are the prime favorites.

Among recent sales made by C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., Ottawa, branch was a Sonora Grand to a prominent citizen of Hull, Que.

J. J. Flynn has opened newer and larger premises at 556 St. Catherine street West, where one floor is devoted exclusively to the sale of Gerhard Heintzman phonographs and Victor records.

N. G. Valiquette, of N. G. Valiquette, Ltd., one of the most important Pathé dealers in Canada, has secured the services of Albert Bien-jonetti as the head of the music department of his Home Furnishing Emporium.

A. J. Freiman, Ottawa, is now handling the Aeolian-Vocalion phonograph line in addition to other makes featured.

Employees of Layton Bros., Edison and Columbia dealers, recently held their first annual picnic. They chartered the steamer Three Rivers with Lavaltrie as their destination. The warerooms being closed up tight for the eventful day all hands were on deck.

An attractive window display of talking machines more than pays for itself, said Charles Culross, Sonora and Aeolian-Vocalion distributor. Aeolian records, for which he has the sole local distribution, are selling in goodly volume with Sonora needles enjoying immense popularity.

An exclusive Pathé phonograph salon has been opened up at 232 St. Laurier avenue W. under the name of the Phonograph Sales Co. with Hector Garand and Joseph Dumont as joint managers.

The Phonograph Shop of Montreal, Regd., recently demonstrated the Pathé "Actuelle." Manager Geo. S. Pequegnat is most enthusiastic over the sales possibilities of this latest Pathé model.

Brown's Talking Machine Shop (S. H. Brown, proprietor) is well satisfied with the second month's business, June sales in His Master's Voice lines proving most successful. Mr. Brown is looking forward to a good live fall business.

J. B. O'Brien has resumed the management of the talking machine department of C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., Ottawa, after doing "his bit" for a number of years in France.

The Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., retail stores are all handling a large quantity of business, both in machines and records, and state that every year sees a heavy increase in the call for the smaller His Master's Voice lines suitable for camping and summer cottages with an enormous demand for dance records.

C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., report no falling off in the demand for Columbia and Sonora machines and Columbia records.

Prattephone, Ltd., St. Jerome, Que., has been incorporated to buy, sell and manufacture talking machines with a capitalization of $49,000.

The Brunswick Shop is being accredited its full quota of trade and is more than pleased with the number of machines delivered the past month. It is fully confident that July will far outstrip sales the same month of last year.

Halifax, N. S., has just had a two weeks' season of grand opera by the Boston English Opera Co., which recently played at His Majesty's in Montreal. So successful was the local engagement that the company has prolonged its season and will return to Halifax for the week of July 7. It proved a great impetus for phonograph dealers in the call for records.

The high price received for fish has created an epidemic of extravagance among the fisherfolk along the South Shore of Halifax. They think nothing of paying ten thousand dollars for a house and turn up their noses at cheap cars, preferring high-priced machines, in which they drive grandly to the fish flakes and back again. In Lunenburg alone with a population of three thousand there are nearly two hundred automobiles and four shops specializing in talking machines and pianos, each as busy as can be.

SPIRIT OF ORGANIZATION PERMEATES TORONTO TRADE

Lesson of Co-operation, Taught by War, Not Wasted—Charles R. Leake Deserts Bachelorhood—H. B. Foreman Buys Osborne Phonograph Co.—Goederich Organ Co. Banquets Employees

TORONTO, ONT., July 6.—It is logical that the development of the talking machine industries should generate a series of problems, the solution of which suggests the desirability of organization. One of the effects of the war upon trade has been to force a more general co-operation of those in individual industries. The piano manufacturers are strongly organized. Retailers in the different centers are organized and getting good results in saving money, making more money and educating the public to a decent appreciation of the worth of the people in the music business.

Charles R. Leake, one of the proprietors of the Music Supply Co., distributors of Columbia lines, has surprised those of his friends who had supposed him to be condemned to eternal bachelorhood. Mr. Leake was married recently to Miss Marguerite Eleanor Brandon, niece of the Misses Brandon, of Richard's Landing, Ont.

Harold V. Utting, of Woodstock, Ont., who recently returned after nearly four years' service overseas, has taken up his residence in the city and will join his father, John Utting, in the piano and musical instrument business, 505 Dundas street, Woodstock. While he will identify himself with all departments of the store, his particular branch of the business will be the Grafonola and record department.

A newcomer in music trade circles here is H. B. Foreman, who has bought the business of the Osborne Phonograph Co., opened over two years ago by F. H. Osborne, on Broadview avenue. The Music Supply Co., distributors of Columbia Grafonolas and records, have begun their ninth business year. Their record to date is one of which the proprietors, John A. Sabine and Chas. R. Leake, may well be proud.

Unity of opinion does not exist in the talking machine trade in the question of sending out records on approval. Some dealers attribute much of the increase in their record sales to the adoption of the records-on-approval plan within certain limits. Others unconditionally oppose the practice.

At a banquet recently tendered the employees of the Goederich Organ Co. by its directors the musical program was furnished by the Royal talking machine, a product of this company's own plant. The occasion was the return of the president, Alex. Saunders, from his trip to Lyons Fair, in France. Following the luncheon a very informing talk on after-the-war conditions in Europe was delivered by Mr. Saunders.

Long before the new Heineman OkeH records had become known in Canada the Canadian buyers of motors and phonograph supplies were well acquainted with the Otto Heineman products. But it took the OkeH records to give the final touch to the great popularity of these products. Since the OkeH record has made its way into Canada's musical homes the Toronto offices of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., are buzzing.

John E. White, of the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., has just returned from a trip West, making the principal towns as far West as Swift Current, Saskatoon and Regina. Mr. White came home by way of Chicago, and the Brunswick orders, which the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. in the States has yet to fill, speak very well for the coming conditions in the trade.

"She was a good old pal" was the touching inscription scratched on a little Victrola IV, which has just come home from the Western Front, by the men who know what it was to have the comfort and tonic of music in the front lines. This Victrola, No. 183091D, was taken overseas by Sgt. R. M. Ross, son of T. H. Ross, the Vancouver music dealer, in February, 1916, and was three times buried in a dugout. The machine is literally "plastered" all over with names of the comrades of Sgt. Ross and the engagements through which they went. One of these, curiously enough, was the name of Signaler Elmer Howes, cousin of E. J. Howes, manager of the National Piano Co., Ltd., Toronto. PLANNING BIG FALL TRADE

C. W. Neumeister, Assistant General Manager of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. of Illinois, Tells of Western Activities

Charles W. Neumeister, assistant general manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. of Illinois, was a recent visitor at the executive offices of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., of 25 West Forty-fifth street, New York City. Mr. Neumeister spoke very encouragingly of the business situation in the West, stating that the demand for Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone arms and sound boxes was far beyond all expectations. "The talking machine manufacturers in this section of the country," he said, "are preparing for a banner fall trade, and in many instances are making plans to handle a business 100 per cent. greater than last fall. The OkeH record is gaining in popularity throughout the West with each succeeding bulletin.

CONVENTION OF DOEHLER FORCES

Sales Representatives of Doehler Die Casting Co. Hold Semi-Annual Conference in New York—Some Pleasing Social Features

The semi-annual sales convention of the sales representatives of the Doehler Die Casting Co. was held at the Brooklyn factory on Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28. A full attendance of the company's representatives from all parts of the country was recorded. Prizes were awarded to the holders of the three highest marks established during the six months then ending. The award of prizes of this nature is an innovation on the part of this company and the highly satisfactory results obtained during the past six months warrant the continuance of the practice.

The social end of the gathering was featured by an outing and boating party on Saturday, fathered by H. B. Griffin, general sales manager, as follows:

The party left the factory at Court and Huntington streets at 12 o'clock. Lunch was served at Bensonhurst Yacht Club at 1. The production manager, John Kirkland, was the host of the party on board his handsomely fitted 53-foot launch, the "Alwilda," which left the Bensonhurst Y. C. pier at 2:30, and after a leisurely cruise along the bay landing was made at the Belle Harbor Yacht Club at 6, where an excellent dinner was served, and the return trip started at 7:30, arriving at the starting point, the Bensonhurst Yacht Club, at 9:30, where, acclaiming the trip one grand event, the party disbanded and the 1919 Summer Convention of the Doehler Sales Representatives came officially to an end. It was one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

TO CONDUCT HEINEMAN RESEARCH

John J. Scully, Long in Talking Machine Industry, Becomes Head of Experimental Laboratory of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., New York

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., New York, announced this week the appointment of John J. Scully as manager of experimental laboratory with headquarters in New York.

J. J. Scully

Mr. Scully will have complete charge of all of the company's research and experimental work, and his previous experience admirably equips him for this important post. John J. Scully was associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co. for the past thirteen years, and since 1917 has been supervisor of the company's experimental and mechanical laboratories. For four years he was intimately associated with F. H. MacDonald, a pioneer in phonograph development, and during this period Mr. Scully acquired a thorough technical knowledge of the mechanics of this industry.

Mr. Scully has designed apparatus required for special adaptations of the phonograph, and in addition invented several labor-saving devices. He therefore brings to his new position an invaluable experience that will be at the disposal of the Heineman organization and clientele, and which will undoubtedly prove a tremendous advantage to every user of Heineman products.

TO ESTABLISH WESTERN OFFICE

D. Bartelstone, of Lucky 13 Phonograph Co., Makes Western Trip in Connection With Important New Distributing Arrangements

D. Bartelstone, president of the Lucky 13 Phonograph Co., New York, made a trip to Chicago and some of the larger trade centers in Canada during the early part of this month. Before leaving Mr. Bartelstone made no definite statement as to his plans, but it is understood that some Western interests were very anxious that he make the trip. It is reported that the company have made tentative arrangements for a Chicago office and announcement of their location is looked for shortly. The Lucky 13 Phonograph Co. have been closing a large volume of business in the West and the above move is being made to give greater care, if possible, to orders from that territory.

David R. Doctorow, general manager of the company, who was recently discharged from the United States Army, after distinguished service in France, has again returned to his duties. Mr. Doctorow is a well-known motor expert and besides the above connection he is interested in several machine tool companies. He contemplates making a trip in the near future visiting the trade in various parts of the country and getting in touch with trade conditions.

DELIVER PHONOGRAPH BY AIRPLANE

Edison Machine Carried Through the Air From Kansas City to Sedalia, Mo.

SEDALIA, Mo., July 5.—The delivery of an Edison phonograph by airplane is a feature just accomplished here through the enterprise of W. M. Hinde, of the Sedalia Music Shop. The instrument was placed in the airplane by The Phonograph Co., Kansas City, and was carried through the air to the Missouri State Fair Grounds near this city. Samuel Pickard, a veteran army flyer, piloted the machine, and although delayed and forced to land once by mechanical trouble, he succeeded in continuing his flight and reached the Fair Grounds without further mishap. The Edison phonograph stood the trip perfectly, and when landed was able to turn out the jazziest of jazz tunes without delay.

After the machine had been delivered, Mr. Hinde got into the plane, and flew over the Fair Grounds and the city, throwing out large quantities of handbills telling of the new airplane phonograph delivery. Mr. Hinde ended his flight in safety, but when the aviator attempted to take up the next passenger the machine crashed into a tree and both the aviator and his passenger were seriously but not dangerously injured.

Before purchasing the Sedalia Music Shop, Mr. Hinde was connected with The Phonograph Co., of Kansas City, as district manager. His enterprise and the successful manner in which the affair was carried off won columns of free reading matter in the local newspapers.

BULK SALES LAW IN PENNSYLVANIA

Through the activities of the Pennsylvania Legislative Committee of the Credit Men's Association, there was passed at the last session of the Pennsylvania Legislature a bulk sales bill which supersedes a law which had been found insufficient. The new act goes a step beyond the Michigan statute, which has usually been regarded as a model. It imposes in addition certain clear obligations on the vendee if the sale in bulk is to be legal. Business men should become acquainted with its provisions.

NEW PRINCIPLE INVOLVED

Copper Process Co. Announce Tone Arm Made Along New Lines That Interest

What is claimed to be a tone arm manufactured under new principles has recently been put on the market by the Copper Process Co., of New York City. The basic principle in the manufacture is copper plating on a core which has the shape of the tone arm desired. After the plating is of proper thickness the core is removed and the finished product without a seam is the result. The advantages claimed by the manufacturers are as follows: "The standard of production is obtained, for the same core is used no matter how many tone arms are produced. There are not as many separate pieces in a tone arm so constructed. The execution of more graceful lines and curves may be made and a practically limitless field of design may be carried out by this process of manufacture. The finished product, being made of copper, is practically unbreakable and has a much better surface on which to plate either with nickel or with gold. The plating generally has a much higher luster and is not subject to the usual peeling. The acoustic properties of the tone arm are claimed by experts to be much better when copper is used. Due to the method of manufacture samples for prospective buyers can be made at reasonable prices and in order that the proper service with the trade may be had the company announces that a corps of its experts on tone arm construction are at the disposal of the trade. Production is practically unlimited."

In summertime place orders for holiday trade.

Any Kids in Your Town?

JUST think what a wonderful additional market they offer to you! Just think what an enormous buying power they represent through their fathers and mothers, aunts and uncles, IF you have the right article!

TALKING BOOKS

—are the right article. They are making a tremendous hit with America's children. They are selling—in music stores, in department stores, in drug stores, in toy stores—selling wherever children are, and that's everywhere.

THREE BIG FEATURES

1. They advertise your store— because the kids want them, and bring their mothers and fathers in to get them, and then you sell them other records from your regular stock.

2. There is no dead stock— Every Talking Book is standard. The mocking-bird's song is the same next year as this year. And there's a new crop of kids every year!

3. There is no breakage— Talking Books are a new invention, containing unbreakable records, and little Jimmy can carry them along to bed, drop them on the floor and "treat 'em rough" without damage.

Fine for dressing your windows, because they're novel in appearance, contain pictures and are beautifully colored.

TALKING MACHINE DEALERS HOOKING UP WITH MUSIC

Talking Machine Dealers Find It Profitable to Watch Campaigns of Music Publishers and Arrange Their Local Campaigns in Accordance With Such National Advertising

During the past few seasons music publishers, particularly the publishers of popular music, have gone into national advertising in a big way, and have served to bring their latest issues and recognize the fact that a goodly proportion of the public secure their popular music through the medium of player-piano music rolls and talking machine records, and have made special mention of the publishers, and hooking up their own advertising with those campaigns as far as possible, there was offered an opportunity for increasing materially the sales of records. Through the medium of special posters and special window displays there has been much done along this line, an example of associating the record with the sheet music being presented herewith in the reproduction of an attractive window display of "Chong" in Meek's Music Store, Wilson avenue, Chicago.

It is understood in the fall music publishers will inaugurate publicity drives on a larger and more extensive scale than ever before and it would seem that the live talking machine dealer should look forward to these campaigns and take advantage of the opportunity they give him in featuring and disposing of record hits.

NEW LINE OF MACHINES GOING WELL

Franklin Phonograph Co. Producing Ten Attractive Models of Machines

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 1.—The Franklin Phonograph Co., Tenth street and Columbia avenue, this city, who presented their line of talking machines to the trade at the first of the year, report that their various models have proven very popular. The line now consists of ten models, eight being of the upright type and two table models. Excellent production facilities are available and the distinguished feature of the line is the tone quality and cabinet work. Territory is now being awarded to dealers throughout the country. One of the sales policies of the company is to deal direct with the dealer.

Harrison F. Thornell, well known throughout the talking machine trade, and formerly sales manager of the Bliss Reproducer, Inc., is now connected with the Franklin Phonograph Co. as general manager.

F. K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager of the Columbia executive office, is at present in Chicago in connection with business.

BIG REDUCTION IN LIST PRICES OF RED SEAL RECORDS

Victor Co. Announces That Records by Such Artists as Caruso, McCormack, Gluck, Kreisler, Heifetz, Etc., Will Be Retailled at Half Former Prices—The Democratization of Music

An announcement of unusual importance and interest not only to Victor dealers, but particularly to music lovers and the record-buying public, was made by the Victor Co. through the medium of large advertisements in the daily papers on July 10, when it was stated that there had been a general reduction made in the catalog prices of Victor Red Seal records, the reduction approximating 50 per cent.

As a result of the new departure the records of such famous artists as Caruso, Galli-Curci, Farrar, Gluck, McCormack, Melba, Culp, Heifetz, Paderewski, Kreisler, Scotti, Sembrich and a host of others may be purchased by the public at prices ranging from $1 to $1.50, instead of $2 to $3, as formerly. Quartets and concerted numbers formerly listed at $4, $5 and $6 may now be obtained at just half those prices.

Informal announcement of the new move was made at the jobbers' convention at Atlantic City and aroused widespread enthusiasm, it being the general belief that with Red Seal records selling at prices usually asked for records of popular songs of the day the demand for good music and the recordings of the great artists will be stimulated to a tremendous extent. Victor wholesalers were quick to apprise their dealers of the contemplated move, and the live retailers for their part lost no time in acquainting the public with the fact that reduced record prices were in effect at their particular stores, with suitable stocks to draw from. Frederick Loeser & Co., of Brooklyn, for instance, ran a big ad on the same day as the Victor announcement appeared, calling attention to the cut-price ruling and offering a substantial list of the most desirable records by leading artists available at the Loeser store at the new prices. Other retailers in various sections of the country likewise made quick capital of the new departure.

The talking machine is acknowledged to have accomplished tremendous work in acquainting the general public with the best in music, even with Red Seal records selling at the old prices. Now that they are obtainable at such a moderate cost they should prove even a greater factor in the general advancement of music interest in this country.

MUSIC AIDS AMERICANIZATION

President of Takoma Park Community Chorus Outlines Value of Music to Our New Citizens—Music Brings All Together, and It Helps Teach Foreigners Our Language

"The alien finds it hard to understand the average American's lack of true appreciation for music and frequently we overlook the opportunity to express to these newcomers America in terms of musical beauty," declares Mrs. Mary Louise Townsend, president of the Takoma Park Community Chorus, of Washington, D. C.

"Now, of course, music has an important place in American life, so large that we spend close to $700,000,000 annually for it, but it has not yet been so interwoven with the life of the people in any such measure as it is found to be in other countries. Most of our immigrants are from lands where music has long been recognized as a nationalizing force and used as such and these people come to us full of the music of their native land. Naturally, their impulse has been on arrival here, not finding music freely provided by the Government, to gather at once into societies of their own people, thus keeping alive through music and language the spirit and love of their native lands.

"If these newcomers could be gathered as quickly as possible after they come to our shores into community singing classes in English, several good influences would be set at work. In the first place, music would make these aliens feel more at home and would lessen their longing for the land they left behind. Time and time again it has been the testimony of immigrants that their chief reason for homesickness in America was the lack of music.

"In such community classes they would come in contact more quickly with our American citizens, for there is nothing like music to bring together people of differing nationalities and promote them in comradeship and a feeling of unity. Music is the one universal language for high and low, rich and poor, and people of every race and tongue. Would it not seem, then, to be a most potent factor for unifying the people of a democracy?

"Music would aid the foreign born to learn English readily. The association of the new language with a form of recreation and inspiration, which they already love, will do much to stimulate their affection and patriotism for the new country.

"Musical training, especially in groups, helps physical strength, unity of effort, obedience to leadership, self-control, and enthusiasm in a common cause. Through community singing in English, leading to community centers, our foreign-born element could be brought in direct touch with the Federal Government, and their education for citizenship could be inaugurated under auspices such as could not well be kindled by any other process. It unquestionably is the logical move."

TO OPEN STORE IN NEW YORK

Morris Brickner, who for some time past has conducted a retail talking machine store on Sutter avenue, Brooklyn, has arranged to move to Manhattan and expects to open a new store at 1681 Madison avenue, about the middle of the month. He will deal in Columbia Grafonolas and records, sheet music, musical merchandise, etc.

“THROUGH THE NEEDLE’S POINT”

The following poem from the Irish News, Belfast, is self-explanatory and needs no comment other than to say that the budding genius who composed it must have been quite familiar with the Muse. It is called “Through the Needle’s Point,” and has been utilized to good purpose by Thos. E. Osborne, the prominent talking machine man of that city:

No tongue I have, no hands, nor yet a voice,
Yet talk, or sing, or play which is your choice.
There is no instrument that you can name
I am not mistress of; 'tis all the same,
With song, I sing untiring, with the purest tone,
Soprano, Alto, Bass, or Baritone.
All languages are mine; with wondrous skill
I talk, weep, laugh, and will your senses thrill

With stirring scenes from playwrights, comic, tragic,

All bow in turn to my resistless magic.
Music and song my captives, sound my throne,
I reign supreme, their Queen,

GRAFONOLA PRICES INCREASED

New Price Schedule on Machines to Be Put Into Effect by Columbia Co. on July 15

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has sent out to the trade a notice to the effect that a new schedule of prices on Columbia Grafonolas has been devised, representing a slight increase, and will become effective on July 15. The statement as issued by the company reads:

“Effective July 15 and on all deliveries after that date, the prices of Columbia instruments will be as follows:

A-2.....	$25.00
C-2.....	50.00
D-2.....	75.00
E-2.....	100.00
F-2.....	115.00
G-2.....	125.00
H-2.....	140.00
K-2.....	200.00
L-2.....	250.00

“Our company has absorbed all Government taxes and adhered to lower prices up to this time, with the hope that a more normal cost condition would prevail after the war. We find on the contrary that labor and material costs are advancing so rapidly and to such an extent that higher prices are imperative.

“We feel confident that dealers will welcome this advance in price, in order to help cover their increased operating expenses.”

ALBERT SPALDING TO WED

Announcement was made this week of the engagement of Miss Mary Vanderhoef Pyle, of New York and Bernardsville, N. TRIBUTE TO "JIMMIE" BOWERS

"JIMMIE"

Ten months have passed—how time has sped!
'Twas then you passed the gate;
Then that you left the life you'd led
For one ruled o'er by Fate.

Again you came to bid us cheer,
We men, too young to go,
You spoke as oft you've spoken here,
In deepened tone, and slow.

We found you changed but little, Jim—
Your "vocab" was just the same,
And though you had disabled limb
Your thoughts were far from lame.

We'll honor you—you've done your part
Throughout the darker hours,
For well we know that soul and heart,
You're a Culver man, Jim Bowers.

The above is a poem which recently appeared in "The Vedette," the official newspaper of Culver Military Academy, and was written in appreciation of the heroic fighting done by James Bowers, son of the president of Lyon &

Healy. It should be added that "Jim" Bowers, Jr., is slowly but surely recovering from the very severe wounds he received while in service overseas.

The text of the card itself is full of force and reads:

"We stand for action! We believe he who hesitates is lost—that 'sitting tight' means a losing fight—that the man who waits to see how things turn out will always be waiting—that prosperity is the wage of confidence.

"We fear nothing but doubt, hate nothing but idleness, dislike no one but the business man who expects to sell, but won't buy.

"We demand American goods made by Americans, ask fair prices, give good value, and offer live, active service.

"A belief in the above makes you a member. A distribution of that belief makes you an active member. Will you join us?"

R. F. BOLTON RETURNS

Sales Manager of Columbia Co.'s International Record Dept. Brings Back Good Trade Reports

Last week R. F. Bolton, sales manager of the international record department of the Columbia Co., returned from a trip covering many of the Western branches of the Columbia Co. On his trip, which began the 9th of June, he visited Buffalo, Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Cleveland. Throughout his trip Mr. Bolton found that there was an increased desire among the general public to obtain foreign language records. He expressed the belief that from the outlook which he gained while on his trip foreign records were going to enjoy a patronage much larger than ever before in the coming months.

TALKING MACHINE WORLD SERVICE

A department devoted to promoting retail sales — conducted by Robert Gordon.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—Mr. Gordon's article this month treats of what might be called the fine art of beginning your sale. This topic is of the utmost importance, and is much neglected at the present time. Doubtless you have heard the story of the Irish talking machine customer to whom the salesman played "Dot's Yiddisha Love" when he asked for songs of the old country. Things just as bad are done every day. The difference between the man who asks his customer intelligent questions, and the man who talks about the weather is the difference between a good salesman and a bad one. Mr. Gordon's analysis of the problem will go a long way toward promoting better selling.

WHEN you were a kid you probably played the kind of game where the leader thinks of a thing, and the others try to guess it by asking questions that will limit the possibilities, such as—

"Is it animal, mineral or vegetable?"

"Is it on this continent?"

"Is it in this room?"

Finally the winner guesses the thing that the leader has in mind.

The science of starting sales is akin to this game. You want to know what is in your customer's mind. Therefore, ask questions. Classify your customers. Get the right start and you'll finish right, too.

Naturally, you can't go at it as bluntly as in the kid's game; but you can get the same results.

First of all, ask yourself questions and answer them with your eyes. Size up your customer's appearance in detail, as if you were Sherlock Holmes expounding the science of deduction to Dr. Watson.

If your customer is a man, look at his complexion, hands and feet. His complexion will tell you whether he is an out-door man who works with his hands, or an office man who works with his head. The hands will tell you many other things—whether your man is of the cultured, artistic type, the laboring type, or the substantial middle-class type. Shoes and feet are extremely expressive of character, finances and station in life. Jewelry, such as scarf pin, watch chain or charm, fraternal emblems and rings add something to your estimate. The style and quality of his clothes tell you what type of talking machine he will buy.

If you are dealing with a woman, the externals are even more expressive than the man's. Her face, her hands and fingers, her clothing and jewelry, give you a good hint as to her tastes, her buying power and station in life; whether she is of the serious or frivolous type, whether the mother of a family or not, and a dozen other facts.

A man is interested more in tone quality and mechanical excellence. If he is of mechanical trend, let him wind the motor himself, talk to him about the spring and other mechanical features, and you get his attention.

A woman is interested more in the style of the talking machine, how it will look in her home, how it will match the other furniture, and its prestige value in the eyes of her friends.

All the while that your eyes are working, ask questions, just like the kids do in their game. Externals may sometimes mislead. Skillful questions never do, because they reveal what is in your customer's mind. Let the customers do the leading unless they are taking the wrong tack, but don't be afraid to ask direct questions yourself, such as—

"Have you ever heard our instrument before?"

The answer will be, "Yes, I have heard it at a friend's house," or "No, I am familiar with the such-and-such make," or a similar reply that will give you a direct lead.

Another question is, "Do you play any musical instrument?" The man may say "Yes, the player-piano," and then you know he can afford a fairly expensive model. He may say "No, but my wife plays the piano," or "My daughter plays the violin." Then later on you can say, "Your daughter will like this record," or "Your wife will like this model, for such-and-such reason."

The woman customer may answer that she has studied singing, which of course tells you to demonstrate some vocal records. There may be a hundred different answers to this question, and a hundred ways for you to take advantage of them. But the principle is to get close to your customer. Make your sales argument as pointed and individual as you can.

Ask younger people, "Are you fond of dancing?" If the answer is "Yes" you can demonstrate a dance record and you can talk about volume of tone. If the answer is "No" you will have avoided the error of playing the dance record to a person who prefers other kinds of music.

Mention the name of some famous grand opera star, and ask if your customer ever heard him sing. The answer will give you all kinds of leads. The customer may say "Yes, I heard him once in 'Aida'" or "No, I prefer concerts to opera. I heard Heifetz last year when he played here."

These answers naturally tell you what sort of records to play, also the type of person to whom you are selling, and how much he or she can afford to spend.

If the answer is "No, I don't care for that kind of stuff," you will be spared the bad mistake of playing "Un Furtiva Lagrima" to a customer who hates such music and wants to hear "Ja-Da" or "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

All this seems obvious when set down in black and white. Like any other trick, it's very simple when you know how.

The only trouble is, so few people know how.

* * * * *

ABOUT a year ago a very successful plan to increase business during the summer months was put into effect by the Lauter Co., which company operates retail stores in Newark, Jersey City, Trenton and Union Hill, all of New Jersey.

The plan was tried out with one man. A list was formulated of the good customers, many of them having large accounts. The salesman took a small case full of records, and went his way. He set out to cover each one of these customers by a personal call, with a black portfolio or brief case filled with records. So as to protect the records a piece of corrugated cardboard was placed between each two records. The record collection contained about fifteen selections with perhaps duplicates of five of these. The selections were made up of the very latest pieces, of which the company had a good stock, and included operatic, standard and popular numbers.

The idea of the original plan was simply to drop in on the customers during the hot summer afternoons and evenings while the family was enjoying talking machine music and to play for them a number of the selections which it had probably been too hot for them to go to the store and hear, and to take orders for delivery next day for such records as the customers might designate.

Experience showed it advisable to make these calls in accordance with the previous appointments rather than as an impromptu affair. The final practice was to telephone a given number of homes about 9 o'clock in the morning for the purpose of making an appointment for the afternoon or evening of the same day. In the case of lady buyers the appointment was usually made for four in the afternoon and in cases where the male head of the house did the buying for between eight and eight-thirty at night. Of course where it was possible to do so a series of calls were made in the same afternoon and the same evening. The results obtained from summer canvassing of this sort were exceedingly good. The sales in single homes ran from $8 to $9. Occasionally orders were also placed with neighbors of the family being solicited, who were visiting at the time of the demonstration.

In fact the scheme was such a success that where a salesman sold $5 worth of records in the store, he sold $40 to $50 a day outside. The intimate, comfortable atmosphere of the person's own home seemed far more conducive to sales than the store environment, at least during the hot weather.

Has your store tried this plan?

REGARDING MOTOR SPRINGS

The Talking Machine World, New York.

Will you oblige a subscriber by mailing us an answer to the following technical questions?

What widths and lengths of band steel are used in the respective models, old and new, of (1) Edison phonographs, (2) Victor Victrolas, (3) Columbias, (4) Sonoras, (5) Brunswicks, (6) Heineman motors (7) Meisselbach motors, (8) Thomas "Dayton" motors?

Where can one procure a measuring gauge to tell the thickness of band steel used in springs?

Norman.

Answer—The widths of main springs for the old style Edison phonographs are one inch by eleven feet for the standard type, one and a quarter inch by eleven feet for the home style. The Triumph model used a spring two inches wide by eleven feet long. There are several sizes and lengths of springs used in the Diamond Disc machines, the average size of which is one inch by twenty-three feet.

In the Victor models the most used springs are one inch by sixteen feet and one and one-quarter inch by eighteen and a half feet. For Columbia sizes are three-quarters of an inch by ten feet and one inch by eleven feet. In the Sonora types, three-quarters inch by ten feet and one inch by eleven feet are the sizes most used. The Brunswick, in their earlier types, used a spring one inch by eleven feet and in the later types one inch by fifteen feet.

The Heineman motor spring sizes are: Three-quarters of an inch by ten feet and three-sixteenths inch by fifteen feet and one inch by eleven feet. Meisselbach motors, seven-eighths of an inch by ten feet, one inch by ten feet and two inches by eleven feet. The Thomas "Dayton" motor spring sizes are the same in each corresponding types of motor as those used by the Meisselbach motor. The best-known Swiss motor is the Mermod motor.

A measuring gauge to tell the thickness of band steel used for springs can be obtained from any large hardware store and is called a micrometer. One of the best manufacturers of these instruments is the Brown & Sharpe Mfg. Co., 20 Vesey street, New York.

FEW BUSINESS FAILURES IN 1919

Past Six Months' Record Makes Best Showing in Nearly 40 Years—General Conditions Good —All Branches of Industry Growing

With business mortality at new low levels in recent months, says Dun's Review, a gratifying insolvency statement for the first half of 1919 has been indicated, and the exhibit is the best for the period in number of failures in nearly forty years. Exclusive of banking and other non-commercial failures there were only 3,463 defaults covering the United States in the six months ended June 30, 1919, with liabilities amounting to $68,710,886. Excepting 1880 and 1881, the number was less than in any similar period on record. The reduction from the maximum of 12,740 failures in 1915, with $188,587,535 liabilities, amounted to 72.8 per cent. and 63.6 per cent. respectively. The number was 41.2 per cent. and the amount of liabilities 21.7 per cent. less than in the first half of 1918.

Bradstreet's record shows 2,852 failures in the period with liabilities of $66,371,694. The percentage of assets to liabilities was 47.8. When it is recalled, says this agency, that the number of persons, firms and corporations in business is now more than double that of 1880, some idea may be had of the shrinkage in business mortality and of the apparently very prosperous character of the business now being done. Failures reported to Bradstreet's in June numbered 412, a decrease of 44 per cent. from the number in June a year ago, of 60 per cent. from that of June, 1917, and of 72 per cent. from that of June, 1915.

As far as the talking machine and music trade industry is concerned there have been few, if any, failures.

The BLACKMAN POLICY

During the War and TRANSITION PERIOD

DURING the War every patriotic business man willingly made the necessary sacrifices to achieve VICTORY.

DEALERS and JOBBERS generally were not able to manufacture war material but could and did give time, money and brains to the cause.

LOYALTY in the VICTOR BUSINESS was interpreted by BLACKMAN as an enlistment to "first win the war"—to support the VICTOR Company's patriotic leadership and not encourage competing manufacturers in making inroads on VICTOR supremacy while the factory was serving UNCLE SAM.

THE VICTOR Policy and the BLACKMAN Policy was a worthy sacrifice and we are glad so many BLACKMAN Dealers approved it with corresponding LOYALTY.

In allotting the small supply of VICTOR goods we received we were steadfast in our belief that we were obligated to reward loyalty and steady patronage.

In doing this we were obliged to decline new accounts and during the Transition Period we will continue that policy until the supply justifies a different one.

We are sure any fair minded Dealer will admit our obligation and we know Blackman Dealers have and will.

With greatly increased manufacture, supply and demand, however, VICTOR Distributors and Dealers must be "worthy representatives," or perhaps make way for others.

VICTOR LEADERSHIP and SUPREMACY must be maintained.

It is the BLACKMAN POLICY to help do it.

PORTABLE GRAFONOLA FOR R-34

Portable Columbia Machine and Goodly Supply of Latest Records Being Carried by British Dirigible on Its Homeward Trip to Furnish Amusement for Members of the Crew

A Columbia Grafonola and a supply of Columbia records are being carried back to England on the British dirigible R-34, according to was broken during the trip to America. Arrangements were therefore made immediately upon the arrival of the dirigible for a new machine, and a portable model Grafonola and a large supply of records were rushed to the landing field at Mineola, L. I., by automobile, and delivered to the members of the crew, who stowed it aboard the dirigible after inspecting it and trying some of the latest Columbia records. The picture herewith shows four members of the

SHARTLE WITH BUESCHER & SONS

Head of Credit Department of Victor Co. to Become Associated With Cleveland Wholesalers in an Executive Capacity

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—Howard J. Shartle, for a number of years connected with the Victor Talking Machine Co. in an important capacity and for the past three years in charge of the credit department, has arranged to leave the Victor Co.'s service to become connected with the W. H. Buescher & Sons Co., prominent Victor wholesalers of this city. Mr. Shartle will acquire an interest in the company, and although his official status is not announced just now it is assumed that he will occupy the post of general manager. Mr. Shartle is capable and aggressive and stands high in the esteem of Victor distributors and his associates with the company. When he takes up his new work he will take the best wishes of his friends with him. It is reported that he will come to Cleveland about September 1.

MAKING OF SPRINGS FOR MOTORS

Being Specialized in by the Schwartz-Herrman Steel Works, Inc., of Somerville, N. J.—Institution Widely Known in This Field

SOMERVILLE, N. J., July 8.—The Schwartz-Herrman Steel Works, Inc., are specializing strongly in the production of springs for talking machine motors. They are widely known as manufacturers of high grade specialties in tempered and untempered strip steel. Although they have made springs for the trade for many years, the remarkable activity manifested in the talking machine industry at the present day has led them to specialize even more strongly in this product. Their organization of trained metallurgists and engineers have developed an intimate knowledge of steel, which they have applied to the talking machine spring industry and have developed what they feel to be a logical spring that will meet the most rigid requirements. As most aptly expressing the qualities contained in this spring they have given it the name of "Lion Heart." A fast rule of the organization from its earliest history is to produce but one quality.

Louis Schwartz, president and general manager of the company, reports that they are very busy. Their large plant in this city is well equipped and new machinery is being installed in accordance with the demand. Mr. Schwartz is also very optimistic over the bright prospects for the future in the talking machine industry and is accordingly laying his plans to efficiently care for the constantly increasing business.

EMERSON FOREIGN EXPANSION

Have Thirty Branches in Fifteen Countries Outside of the United States—New Distribution in Cuba—Latin-American Catalog Soon

The export department of the Emerson International, Inc., which has been unusually active during the past month, reports that a number of valuable distributing franchises under the control of the foreign branches have been made. At the present time there are over thirty branches in fifteen countries outside of the United States.

Arrangements have just recently been completed with the well-known firm of Quevedo & Carbarga, of Havana, Cuba, for the exclusive distribution of Emerson records. Mr. Quevedo, who was present at the recording of several Cuban numbers for Emerson records, expressed his confidence that the sales of such records in Cuba would be unusually large. A new executive and sales force has been attached to this company in order to handle the proper distribution of Emerson records throughout the Island of Cuba.

In order that they may keep abreast with the export tendencies a Spanish catalog of typical Spanish, Cuban and Mexican selections has just been released for the South American trade. A new catalog of Russian selections and a list of Bohemian and Czecho-Slovak records has also been released. these records marking the latest addition to the Emerson list.

That the Emerson International has not overlooked the demand for foreign music in America may be shown through the fact that the Carpenter Paper Co., of Omaha, Neb., and the Southern Sonora Phono Co., of Alabama, have been added to their list of distributors.

EDISON PHONOGRAPH FOR R-34 CREW

"I have been greatly interested in your exploit, as it is the opening of a new epoch in human progress. Were it not for some important experiments I have on hand I would have given myself the pleasure of a call on you to extend in person my hearty congratulations on your great achievement. Will you give me the pleasure of accepting one of my phonographs with some records and carry the same on your return trip in commemoration of the first air voyage to America?"

"Wishing you a pleasant and safe return and with my compliments to you and your associates, I remain,
"THOMAS A. EDISON."

HANDLES THE MOTROLA

W. D. & C. N. Andrews, of Buffalo, and the W. D. Andrews Co., of Syracuse, N. Y., have added the Jones Motrola to the lines they wholesale. The arrangement was consummated during the past month.

START WORK ON NEW PATHE PLANT

Addition to Factory Resources Will Increase Output Materially—Business Very Active

Public announcement was made recently of an important Pathé move referred to in The World some time ago. This is the erection of a seven-story reinforced concrete building 170 feet front and 90 feet deep adjoining the present building of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., at 20 Grand avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The construction contract has been secured by the White Fireproofing Co. When this building is completed it will add 40 per cent. more floor space to the Pathé plant.

The new structure is the first of three units which they propose to erect within a very short time on Grand avenue, between Flushing and Park avenues. These buildings will be used entirely for the manufacture of records. Every known modern appliance is to be installed and will be the means of adding 1,000 more employes to the 700 now engaged in the plant.

Since Pathé first occupied the building on Grand avenue a year ago their business has grown 500 per cent. By a recent purchase they acquired the C. B. French Cabinet Plant at Metropolitan and Flushing avenues, with 110,000 feet of floor space. This branch is now running at full capacity in making one type of cabinet. In addition to this the Pathé Frères Co. controls many other cabinet factories.

“SMALL GOODS” A BIG ASSET TO DEALERS IN “TALKERS”

Samuel Buegeleisen, of Buegeleisen & Jacobson, Points Out How Talking Machine Dealers Can Create Prospects for Talking Machines by First Attracting Them Through Smaller Articles

Samuel Buegeleisen, of Buegeleisen & Jacobson, in an interview with The World emphasized strongly the advantages to be gained by the talking machine dealer also carrying a line of musical merchandise.

“The harmonica buyer of to-day is the talking machine buyer of to-morrow. With little or no extra expense the dealer can put in a very good line of small goods which if properly displayed will not only add luster to his establishment, but will make his place the headquarters of everything musical. To become known as ‘the’ musical dealer of the town is the reputation sought for.

“There are over a hundred million people in the U. S. and every one of them is a likely purchaser of something in the musical line. Each dealer has his own town to work on, and he certainly can get all of its business if he will go after it. Why do the mail order houses pull so much business from small towns? Because the people’s wants cannot be supplied by the local dealers, whereas the mail order houses carry complete lines, and advertise in such an attractive manner that they draw the buying public to them. Why should the town dealer let all that business get away, when it is perfectly possible for him to obtain a part if not all of it?

“Talking machine dealers expend large sums to get the prospect into the store. Much of this expense will not be necessary if they also carry small goods, and have a proper window display. They will then be catering to the masses and the man who wants something in the musical line will not send miles away for it if he can get it in his home store.

“The subject of display is a vital one. To the average person nothing looks so bleak and cold in a store window as a lone piano or a talking machine. How many people stop to look at such a window, even though it may have a setting of fine draperies and a handsome lamp or something of that sort entirely foreign to the nature of the merchandise displayed? You can fill windows with only talking machines and they will not get half as many ‘lookers’ as one window properly dressed with violins, banjos, drums, band instruments, etc. Why not these instead of the lamp and the draperies or other trimmings which take up valuable space and can bring you nothing? There is no line of merchandise in the world, and I say this without prejudice, that is capable of such attractive window display as musical instruments—well arranged with prices shown on the various articles. Such a window will be so full of human interest that it will take the ‘looker’ by the coat and lead him right into your store.

“By way of comparison learn the lesson that the modern cigar store has to teach. In former years the usual tobacco store was a dingy place, a window full of junk and a wooden Indian in front. The only way you could tell it was a tobacco store was because the Indian stuck so manfully to his job. What was the result? Attracted by clever magazine advertising on the part of manufacturers of cigars, the discriminating cigar smoker sent away for his smokes. A certain tobacco company solved the problem by studying the wants of the public and by up-to-date methods of display that made their windows almost speak to the passer-by. Other cigar stores followed suit and as a result the mail order advertising of cigars, etc., has practically ceased. The consumer can now get what he wants in his home store.

“The talking machine dealer can bring about the same results if he will take the tip. We have representatives in every part of the country who are trained to assist the dealer in selecting his line, and if any that are interested will com-

INCREASED LIST OF DEALERS

The Charmaphone Co., manufacturers of the Charmaphone phonographs, continue to add to the list of dealers handling their line of popular-priced machines. The company's factory is working overtime to fill the demands, and from present indications working at capacity for many months to come will hardly enable the sales department to feel at ease with the conditions. Orders are being booked well in advance and the large factory of the concern is speeding up in every possible way, without lowering the quality, to handle the present heavy sales.

NEW GRAFONOLA DEALERS

Landsman & Carl, Inc., have opened an attractive store at 466 Sixth avenue, New York, near Twenty-eighth street, where they are featuring a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and records as well as Q R S and other makes of music rolls, photographic supplies and other goods. The outlook for the coming season is unusually bright.

MR. TAUBER FAVORABLY IMPRESSED

D. Tauber, president of the Progressive Phonograph Supply Co., New York City, returned from an extensive trip in time to attend the jobbers' convention at Atlantic City. His trip carried him as far as the Pacific Coast and then as far south as Texas. Mr. Tauber was much impressed with the excellent business conditions prevalent in the talking machine trade, and found that these conditions were not alone confined to any one section of the country, but covered all sections.

ELECTION OF EMERSON DIRECTORS

The annual election of the directors of the Emerson Phonograph Co. was held last month. All but two of the directors were re-elected, those two being G. Sylvester and John Van der Werss. The two newly elected directors are Louis B. Hall, Jr., of the banking firm of James B. R. H. ZINKE IN THE EAST

President of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Attends Convention and Enjoys Vacation Which He Spent at Eastern Points

R. H. Zinke, president of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, Wis., was one of those who were present at the recent convention of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers in Atlantic City, where he met a number of friends who were interested in his product and in his personality.

Mr. Zinke has been spending a vacation in the East, and while in New York made his headquarters at the Elks' Club, 108 West Forty-third street. He enjoyed his stay in the metropolis immensely and while he did not devote himself strenuously to business, being here on a vacation, yet he has managed to bring the merits of his products to the attention of many members of the trade.

Mr. Zinke has perfected plans for a very active campaign in behalf of the various specialties which his company manufactures, and it can be safely said that the Record Needle & Mfg. Co. will cut a considerable figure in the trade this fall.

"PATHE NEWS" MAKES ITS DEBUT

Issue number one of volume number one of Pathé News came off the press Wednesday, June 25, 1919. It is a four-page newspaper devoted to items of news about the Pathé industry, and also features the advertisements, etc., which the Pathé advertising department is preparing for the use of its dealers. The whole paper is gotten up in an exceedingly snappy style. It is full newspaper size, but is printed on a super paper, so as to reproduce half-tones. The first issue of Pathé News contains a very striking picture of the Pathé plant.

GARFORD EMPLOYEES HOLD OUTING

Baseball Games and Other Sports Entered Into With Great Enthusiasm—Prizes of Money, Phonographs and Records Awarded

ELYRIA, OHIO, July 3.—The employes of the Garford Mfg. Co. of this city held their annual picnic at Crystal Beach, Ohio, recently and this outing was the most successful that has ever been given by the employes of this company. The picnic was arranged under the auspices of the Shop Committee and the various sub-committees worked untiringly to make the day enjoyable from start to finish. Over 1,400 Garford employes attended the picnic and from the moment that they arrived at Crystal Beach they were kept busy participating in the various events on the sport program.

Starting after luncheon, the dance devotees were given free reign and a prize waltz at 4 o'clock brought forth many of the dance experts of the factory. The second and third prizes consisted of OkeH records, which were donated by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc.

The men's ball game was called at 10:30 a. m., the winners receiving $25 and the losers $15; these prizes being contributed by A. G. Bean, president of the Garford Mfg. Co. The prizes for the girls' ball game consisted of $20 for the winners and $10 for the losers; Otto Heineman, chairman of the board of directors of the Garford Mfg. Co., donating these prizes.

There were 50-yard and 100-yard dashes for young men, single ladies, married ladies and girls under 14 years, and other unique events on the program consisted of a fat man's race, fat ladies' race, a three-legged race, pie-eating contest, cracker-eating contest, egg-eating content and a tug-of-war.

There were several cash prizes donated by Otto Heineman and other prizes consisted of Model "C" Garford phonographs, OkeH records, boxes of cigars, etc. The Garford phonographs were donated by the Garford Mfg. Co., and the OkeH records by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc. Other well-known companies also donated prizes for these sports.

The Jones Music House, Grand Rapids, Mich., is carrying on an extensive advertising campaign, to push the sale of special vacation outfits of portable machines.

This advertising is very timely and the results have shown that all people need is a little reminder.

Demand for Van Veen Booths Will Compel the Opening of a Branch in Chicago—Business Very Active Throughout the Country

Arthur L. Van Veen, of Arthur L. Van Veen & Co., reports that orders for Van Veen "Bed Set" booths, record racks and counters are coming in strongly from the South and West. Business from this section of the country has grown in such large proportions that preparations are being made to open up a branch office in Chicago. A number of successful installations have recently been completed in the South and through Pennsylvania which have called forth enthusiastic commendations from the dealers thus equipped. New England has also shown much activity in this connection. Several contracts have been closed for work in New Haven and Bridgeport. A record was recently made in quick installation in the case of Furer Bros., of Stamford, Conn. The complete installation was made and ready for business within two weeks from the time the order was received in New York. Mr. Van Veen has experienced a particular demand on the part of the dealer to have the booths installed under the personal supervision of his own skilled mechanics. The small extra cost entailed has been found to be thoroughly covered by the complete satisfaction of having the equipment rightly installed.

All dealers seem to recognize the value of proper equipment as a sales asset.

British Music Trades' Industry Committee Studying Tariff Conditions to Protect English Manufacturers—Wm. Manson and H. Frederick Keen Added to Gramophone Co., Ltd., Staff—New Catalog—London Edison Society Formed—Victory Convention Held—Record Exchanges Discussed—"Winner" Records Selling Fast—Trade Rejoicing Over Lifting of Import Restrictions — Balcombe's United States Trip Delayed—Other News of Interest

LONDON, E. C., July 1.—There is no question about the removal of the import restrictions on musical instrument parts and accessories having created much interest and satisfaction throughout the trade. True, it is not altogether accepted as a matter for general satisfaction, owing to the peculiar position of those manufacturers whose immature plans are thus faced with a handicap of unexpected proportions. To such, the margin of protection afforded by the maintenance of 33 1/3 per cent. tariff duty is regarded as insufficient, at least until they are in a position to produce in bulk. That is perhaps natural. But while appreciating its local viewpoint, I think the manifold interests of the industry demand a broader basis of consideration. With every sympathy and every desire to further the interests and output of British productive effort, I am frankly convinced that the present import tariff is good enough margin of protection on manufacturing and market costs against Swiss, French, Italian, American or other imports. To maintain otherwise, now that the object of rationing imports (mainly to conserve shipping space) is unnecessary, would savour of a suspicion in the direction of profiteering and monopoly. By all means let us avoid anything of that nature; it has so far been foreign to the British gramophone industry. If we start on the basis of selling goods subject to a reasonable gross profit, rather than the how-much-can-I-get policy adopted in all too many trades, healthy competition will not hurt us. The cost of materials and labor is more or less on a par throughout the world, and if in some quarters these attributes are easier than in England, signs are not wanting that equality is rapidly approaching as the result mainly of the great unrest permeating all ranks of labor. That being so, the prospect of increased foreign competition in the British markets should raise no undue alarm, providing our manufacturers maintain an enterprising policy and persistent effort in keeping with the times.

There is one form of protection, however, which we must absolutely insist upon, in addition to the tariff. I refer to the feared dumping of enemy products on the British market. To allow this would very severely handicap our present and prospective manufacturers of gramophones and their parts. The very high ruling prices of today must be fought against by every legitimate method, but we cannot expect production to attain such proportions as will permit of the lowering of prices if huge quantities of enemy goods—and doubtless big stocks are ready—are allowed import here at prices ruling, it is feared, at little above cost in order to turn-over the capital-value they represent. This matter is receiving the close attention of the British Music Trades' Industry Committee, and representations for increased tariff protection will be made to the Government, which, by the way, has already promised some form of legislation to prevent the "dumping" of enemy stocks.

His Master's Voice Staff Changes

I am now able to supplement the report in our last issue concerning the resignation of M. E. Ricketts from the position of British sales manager of the Gramophone Co., Ltd., and the appointment of Wm. Manson in his place.

By his unfailing energy and conspicuous commercial ability, Mr. Ricketts enjoys a well-merited reputation with "His Master's Voice" clientele, and in his new position as manager of the piano branch of the House of Chappell there is ample scope for the exercise of his firm belief in the future of British pianofortes. He is a veritable genius in organization and the creation of successful selling campaigns. Mr. Ricketts commences his new task with the hearty good wishes of all his music trade friends, who will not soon forget the invaluable aid and advice always freely at their disposal in matters of grave concern continuously arising throughout the whole war-period of official trade control.

In taking up the reins thus relinquished by Mr. Ricketts, Wm. Manson brings to bear an experience of the gramophone trade second to none. As manager of the British Zonophone Co., Ltd., for the past eleven or twelve years, he has gained an unrivaled knowledge of the manifold desiderata involved in the production and marketing of a quality record, the successful accomplishment of which bespeaks a happy result all round for the Gramophone Co.'s choice of Mr. Manson as their new sales manager.

It is no light task Mr. Manson has undertaken, as he is retaining the managership of the British Zonophone Co., Ltd., in which, however, he will have the services of a fully qualified assistant. In congratulating Mr. Manson upon his additional appointment as manager of the British sales branch of "His Master's Voice" Co. I am but echoing the sentiments of all those in the trade, and they are legion, who know and respect Mr. Manson for his honesty of purpose, business acumen and courtesy to all men.

H. Frederick Keen, I learn, will in future take sole charge of the "His Master's Voice" advertising department. This appointment follows his relinquishment of a similar position with the British Zonophone Co., Ltd., in favor of V. H. Lloyd, who has now entered upon his duties. No better example of art allied to advertising could be found in the whole talking machine field than the Zonophone method of publicity, for which Mr. Keen was responsible. More than once it has been descanted upon in these columns as distinctive in the thought and experience its lay-out, choice of types, the sales-winning appeal of its text indicate. In the application of advertising, and in its study, Mr. Keen's work expresses a modern line of appreciation of the value of this ancient channel of commerce it is always up-to-date and, above all, convincing. Congratulations!

"His Master's Voice" New Instrument Catalog

Owing to the vast amount of war work undertaken by the Gramophone Co. during the last four years or more, the production of gramophones was more or less reduced, from the dealers' viewpoint, to starvation diet. The reason is fully known and I believe fully appreciated by the company's agents throughout the kingdom, who, for the most part, have remained loyal to the "His Master's Voice." And now one can imagine with what enthusiasm they will welcome a return to normal supplies. Since the armistice or as soon thereafter as officially permitted, the company's huge factories at Hayes have been under careful reorganization. The change-over from war to peace output has necessitated considerable rearrangement of the machine shops and the installation of balancing items preparatory to resumption of the manufacture of motors, tone arms and other fittings. While not entirely accomplished, sufficient has been done in the way of single-spring motor production to warrant the issue of a new instrument catalog, with, of course, the prospect of immediate deliveries. The folder before me illustrates some beautiful models of the Cabinet Grand (four designs), Table Grand (three), hornless (four), and exterior horn (three). The woods used are mainly oak and mahogany, and the equipment is of the usual "His Master's Voice" high standard of workmanship, finish and quality through. "Some" business this next season, for sure!

Formation of the London Edison Society

Phonograph enthusiasts—members of various London talking machine societies—have evinced keen interest in the idea of a joint association to be known as the London Edison Society, its objects being social intercourse between its members, in addition to the scientific and musical study of sound-reproducing apparatus, and its application. Formation has been completed after considerable negotiation and meetings between the officials of all the London talking machine societies. Thomas A. Edison has been invited to accept the presidency. Headquarters have been chosen at the Food Reform Restaurant, Furnival street, Holborn. To the chairman, Norman F. Hillyer, and other officials of the London Edison Society, we would tender our congratulations upon the fruition of their efforts to consolidate and maintain the interests of those whose loyalty to the cylinder has remained unshaken, even throughout the war period when new Edison records were unobtainable.

From all we hear, by the way, it seems likely that the Edison Corporation will in the future concentrate almost exclusively upon disc output for this market at any rate. There is, however, little prospect of early future consignments in bulk, owing, as we are given to understand, to the American demand being so much ahead of actual available supplies. For such a super-quality record as the Edison, there is ample scope this side for big business, and the sooner it is looked after the better. A wish and a want echoed by all Edisonists.

The Cake is Awarded to a writer in a London talking machine paper for a curious journalistic lapse. Speaking of the musical side of garden parties, etc., and the value of the gramophone at such functions, the writer refers to an occasion when a tennis game being on, considerable filip was given to the play by the use of a gramophone brought along by a visitor, and goes on to say that " . . . the host, not being the possessor of an instrument himself, was so ashamed with what he heard that he announced his intention of purchasing a gramophone . . ." It reads somewhat paradoxical, but the moral may be read by every dealer who is out to cultivate a large trade this summer season.

The British Music Convention

This year's Victory Convention will be held at Birmingham June 19 to 23, inclusive. Perhaps the chief subject on the agenda is the proposed "Federated Board of Music Industries of Great Britain and Ireland," in which ambitious scheme is centered a great amount of real enthusiasm. Its description is partly self-explanatory, and at some future date space may be found in this journal for a detailed account of the wide-sweeping objects the idea embraces. The Gramophone Association will be represented by M. E. Ricketts, president, and the vice-president, Frank Samuel. Also Louis Sterling, who will read a

The Value of Record Exchange Schemes

There is, of course, a fine sales field for the average smart dealer to cultivate during the summer months, especially in the direction of the provision of music for outdoor entertainment. But all said and done, the present is perhaps the quietest time of the year, and it should therefore be taken advantage of for a general clean-up. Excluding the operations of the scrubbing brush, etc., those dealers who can manage it will call in the painters and have the whole place refurbished inside and out. The best sales magnet is a bright, clean and attractive shop.

But I am not so much concerned with this side of the question as the matter of stock. Recognizing that a fresh, up-to-date stock is the basis of retail success, most manufacturers offer the dealer at least one opportunity during the year to exchange broken, damaged or otherwise unsalable discs for new ones. The terms are usually on the basis of three to one. That is, the dealer must order three new records for every one returned, full credit being given for one, the other two being charged at the usual rates. The dealer must pay carriage on the records he returns for exchange. Now, without such a scheme, the small capitalized retailer's expenditure upon stock would not be at par with takings. A broad average estimate goes to show that something like a third of his money investment upon records is dead for much too long a period. He should at least turnover this capitalized record stock within a period of three to six months. More often than not the main part of it lays dormant until relief is found under one or the other of the periodical exchange schemes. So many ephemeral records are issued, which the up-to-date dealer must stock, that he often finds himself overburdened with stuff of this class. Its sale is practically dead in three months' time or less. An accumulation of stock is all too rapidly gained, and dealers in such a position naturally find their future activities restricted unless advantage is taken to exchange on the basis mentioned.

Supposing the dealer to return 100 unsalable records, it means finding room for 300 new ones, in choosing which he is confined, be it remembered, to records already issued. Exercising the most careful choice, a percentage will be left which he must hold until he can again "afford" an exchange. In the matter of his salable stock, gradually decreasing because lack of sufficient capital reserve precludes a clean sweep of the old stuff, he must eventually find himself compelled to reduce his monthly orders for new records. The whole trouble rests in the fact that in taking advantage of the exchange retailers are forced to overload their stock by the manufacturers' stipulation that the new records must be chosen from existing lists. It is just this restriction which mars an otherwise equitable proposition. There is a fair remedy, I think, which would obviate the compulsion thus put upon dealers to mortgage their future orders. Returning, say, 100 records and having to order 300 in one or two weeks, at the outside, compels the average dealer to go slow for the following month or so. It might well be avoided by giving him the option to order, say, 200 during the period of the exchange and 100 from the next list issued.

While I appreciate that by confining the dealer to order from lists already issued, the manufacturers may hope to relieve their own stocks and avoid loss on the records issued during the month following the exchange, in the interests of sound business, it would be far better to take a long view, and attempt to neutralize loss by compiling a specially attractive programme and perhaps create additional sales by increased advertising. In any case, exchange schemes are costly affairs, alike to the manufacturer and the dealer.

Having withdrawn about eighty records from their catalog, the British Zonophone Co., Ltd., recently gave their dealers an opportunity of exchanging any such records in stock for new ones on the basis of three to one. This is the first Zono exchange since the war, I believe, and it is reported a big success.

The Winner Co. also introduced an exchange scheme last month (June). It was on the 3 to 1 arrangement and applied only to any unsalable "Winners" dealers had in stock. This scheme does not affect in any way the permanent one, under which the Winner Company accepts as old junk all records (except Columbia) for exchange on the basis of one new Winner for every six scrap records returned.

New "Winner" Records in Popular Favor.

The usual careful choice of titles characterizes the latest Winner programme, which is also notable for the number of artists who record only for this company. In the latter category are over sixty per cent. of the issues. The Band of H. M. Irish Guards contribute three doubles comprising marches, fox trots and various gems from one of musical London's most popular productions, "Oh, Joy!" Another "exclusive" is made up of records by The Two Bobs, comedians of great ability and humor. Their class of selection is always calculated to raise a good laugh, and "Jingaboo Man" and "Torpedo Jim" are no exceptions to the rule. A good double by the Royal Court Orchestra gives a splendid presentation of the most acceptable airs from Darewski's latest success, "Buzz Buzz," and a couple of dreaming items of the waltz type are down to the credit of the Bohemian

A Gramophone Industry Benevolent Fund

In connection with the Victory Fund, which, by the way, is still open for subscription, the organizers announce the establishment of a Benevolent section, the idea being that our trade should at any time be in a position to financially assist those members of the industry who may require it by reason of unfortunate circumstances. The movement is making but slow progress and it is hoped that a fillip may result now that the scope of the Fund has been widened.

As a result of his sensational success at the Covent Garden Opera, it is reported that the new tenor, Tom Burke, who records exclusively for Columbia, by the way, is being offered fees of three figures to sing at some provincial concerts. Few, if any, native artists can command such fees.

Trade Restrictions Removed—Other Notices

Of great importance to manufacturers of record material is the announcement of the issue of a general license permitting the importation of Stearine.

The Consultative Council on Imports has completed its work, and traders will be glad to learn that the Board of Trade have now issued an up-to-date list of the import relaxations and existing restrictions, in two parts: (1) The articles which may be imported without license from the Department of Import Restrictions, and (2) the articles which may not be imported without licenses from the department.

The relaxation of import restrictions applies to all parts of gramophones. There seems to have arisen some question as to whether gramophone needles would come under the heading of a "part" or of steel. The former, of course!

Another announcement withdraws the prohibition against trading with firms or persons on the various blacklists published from time to time. As a matter of fact the Board of Trade have issued a general license authorizing persons in the U. K. to open credits on behalf of persons or bodies of persons (as the official advice quaintly reads) in enemy countries for the purpose of financing transactions that have been authorized under the Trading with the Enemy legislation in the U. K. or any other part of his Majesty's Dominions, and transactions between persons residing or carrying on business outside his Majesty's Dominions which have been authorized by the allied and associated Governments or any of them.

Announcement is made by the Foreign Trade Department that articles for export may now be consigned to all and any persons and firms in China and Siam.

H. M. Customs have been advised that all export licenses are to be considered of unrestricted validity even though a time limit for shipment may be stated thereon.

The official administrator for Palestine announces that a good market is open for British merchants. He would welcome the receipt of catalogs and facilities for consultation will be given to interested parties in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Haiffa. Musical instrument catalogs are specifically mentioned, and should be addressed to Headquarters, Economic Section, O. E. T. A., Jerusalem, Palestine. In pre-war times enemy goods obtained a strong hold in this market. Rumor has it that the Japanese merchants are now making a big onslaught in near-Eastern fields, and to British firms the Palestine administration's good advice to cultivate this market therefore comes at a most opportune time.

Apropos this question of trade cultivation of the near-Eastern markets, an opportunity is now open for British musical instrument makers to take part in the British Manufacturer's Exhibition to be held next October and November at Athens, promoted by the Federation of British Industries, 39 St. James St., London, S. W. 1. Early application is desirable.

Miscellaneous Items of General Interest

A. J. Balcombe's proposed visit to America has been postponed. The trip was planned at the instance of the Otto Heineman Corporation, whose many lines of gramophone goods Mr. Balcombe will handle this side as sole agent for Great Britain and Ireland. Partly owing to the late arrival of sample consignments of motors, due to shipping congestion, there has been no opportunity of showing them to the trade. The postponement of his visit until July 20 (provisional sailing date) will now afford Mr. Balcombe a chance of sizing up the situation and sales prospects. Armed with this information, his negotiations can be conducted upon a more satisfactory basis. It is understood that if conditions warrant the Heineman people will consider laying down a motor plant and record factory in England.

Cross Seas Parcel Post

In urging British manufacturers to cultivate trade in the Scandinavian markets, the Secretary of the Gramophone Association gives currency in his latest Bulletin to an alleged statement by an American traveler that "We mean to push the business right along, and when England is ready there'll be nothing left for her to do."

From the same source we learn that there are two parcel post services between England and the U. S. A.—the official and the semi-official. The official is the one recommended so long as the regulations as to weight and size are complied with, as the packages through that service are delivered direct by the U. S. A. authorities without formal customs entry; whereas by the semi-official service Custom House entry and the employment of a broker are involved.

An American Visitor

Among distinguished visitors who are looking around the trade this side is Mr. Landay, of the American house of Landay Bros. His views on the trade situation may be available for report next month.

Tell Me the Old, Old Story

A funny yarn has come to light here concerning the manager of a talking machine recording firm. Some time back a New York music publishing house issued a new setting, it is said, of Ben Jonson's "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." An advertisement of it came under the notice of our recording friend, who promptly remitted a note to "Ben Jonson, Esq." care of the publishers, offering for a suitable consideration to include his new song in their record catalog. The letter never reached Ben, but his spirit radiated "some" smile, you bet.

The Educational Value of the Gramophone

Due to the war and perhaps air-raids, lectures were more or less abandoned for want of audiences. This pleasant and educational form of recreation and instruction is now gradually making a welcome return. An appreciative audience was drawn to hear Harold Wild's recent lecture on the "History of the Orchestra and Orchestral Music," in which, by the way, he introduced a Gramophone to demonstrate the theme of his interesting discourse. He couldn't bring this and that well-known orchestra, but he nevertheless delighted his audience with records of their brilliant orchestral work. It is said that the records created a great impression in an educational respect.

Among the recent visitors at the Columbia executive offices were T. E. Shortell and Mrs. Shortell, R. Sayre, Miss Werhle and Miss McLean, of the S. Hamilton Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., Columbia dealers. These visitors spent some time at the Columbia factories in Bridgeport

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—PHONOGRAPH.—Clinton B. Repp, New York, assignor by mesne assignments to G. H. Alonso, same place. Patent No. 1,302,433.

The main object of this invention is to provide a phonograph wherein the indicated sound waves are transmitted through a vibrator member to a diaphragm placed under tension through said vibratory member, wherein the direction of the application of stress or pressure upon the diaphragm may be varied to adapt the machine to use with records wherein the indicated sound waves have a vertical undulation, or records wherein such indicated sound waves have a lateral undulation. A further object is to provide in a machine of this character means applying pressure upon the stylus point through an auxiliary supporting or controlling arm, the connecting means between this arm and the vibratory member being so constructed as to permit that change in the position of the vibrator member incidental to the change in the direction of the application of pressure there through to the diaphragm. A still further object is to provide a machine of this character wherein any variance in the arcs described by the vibrator member and by the auxiliary supporting or controlling arm will be automatically compensated for in a manner to avoid any false tone in the reproduced sounds. A still further object is to provide a machine of this character wherein the pressure will be placed upon the diaphragm by means of a spring and a loop member capable of movement relative to the diaphragm, the means tensioning the said spring being capable of such adjustment as to vary the direction of the application of pressure without materially varying the degree of such pressure. A still further object is to provide a machine of this character wherein the auxiliary controlling or supporting arm will be so supported and will have the requisite pressure so applied thereto, through the spring, as to avoid the development of independent vibrations in said spring or any retardation of said arm in following the indicated sound waves upon a record under the control of the vibrator member. A still further object is to provide in a machine of this character a concealed horn so constructed and arranged relative to the sound box as to permit said horn to have vertical movement relative to the sound box without disconnecting the horn from the sound outlet of said box. A still further object is to provide in a machine of this character a concealed horn so related to the outlet of the sound box as to permit the concealed horn to be disconnected from said outlet and the substitution of an ordinary horn therefor. And a still further object is to provide a machine of this character, the various parts of which will be so constructed and arranged as to minimize likelihood of the development of such vibrations as would interfere with or impair the sound vibrations indicated upon the record passing to the diaphragm while permitting the machine to be economically produced.

Referring to the drawing: Fig. 1 is a front view in perspective of the sound reproducing means of the improved phonograph. Fig. 2 is a rear elevation thereof. Fig. 3 is a detail view of the mount of the vibrator member. Fig. 4 is a vertical section through the cabinet, showing the sound reproducing means in elevation. Fig. 5 is a horizontal section on the line 5—5 of Fig. 4, showing the horn in elevation, and Fig. 6 is a rear view of the upper part of the cabinet.

TONE ARM FOR TALKING MACHINES.—James F. Smith, St. Louis, Mo., assignor of one-third to Anthony F. Ittner and one-third to Arthur H. Bradley, same place. Patent No. 1,302,478.

This invention relates to tone arms for talking machines, and particularly to tone arms used in connection with sound boxes of the type shown in pending application Serial No. 105,141, filed June 22, 1916. The present application is a division of said application Serial No. 105,141.

The objects of the invention are to provide an inexpensive tone arm for talking machines which is neat in appearance and of simple construction. Another object is to provide a flexible mount for the tone arm, whereby it is free to move laterally and vertically within suitable limits.

in Fig. 2. Fig. 4 is a vertical cross-section of the flexible joint for the tone arm taken at right angles to Fig. 3, and Fig. 5 is a horizontal section through the tone arm on the line 5—5 in Fig. 3.

SOUND BOX FOR TALKING MACHINES.—James F. Smith, St. Louis, Mo., assignor of one-third to Anthony F. Ittner and one-third to Arthur H. Bradley, same place. Patent No. 1,302,479.

The invention relates to sound boxes for talking machines of the type shown in pending application filed June 22, 1916, Serial No. 105,141, and particularly concerns the stylus lever construction and its adjustable mount.

The objects of the invention are the elimination of incidental noises and the improvement of the tone qualities and volume of sound produced. Further objects are to provide for the adjustment of the pitch and the loudness of the tone, and to arrange for the proper mounting of the sound box with relation to the record for satisfactory operation with all kinds of records.

The invention consists in a stylus lever and a spring mounting therefor, permitting adjustment for sensitiveness and amplitude of the vibrations of the stylus. The invention also consists in the details of the connection between the sound box and tone arm.

same. Fig. 3 is a cross section on the line 3—3 in Fig. 2, looking in the direction indicated. Fig. 4 is a plan view of the sound box shown in Fig. 1, the tone arm being shown in central horizontal cross section. Fig. 5 is a back view of the sound box, showing a portion of the tone arm. Fig. 6 is an enlarged vertical sectional view of the pivoted portion of the stylus lever. Fig. 7 is a bottom plan view of the spring support for the stylus lever, and Fig. 8 is a face view of a modified form of stylus lever, the device being shown in position to play records having lateral undulations.

This invention relates to sound intensifying horns and particularly to means for clarifying the tone delivered by such horns and to avoiding the confusion thereof, incident to the use of these horns as heretofore made.

It is the object of the invention to remedy the defects and disadvantages above described and to produce a horn, particularly applicable for intensifying fine and delicate music, in which extraneous audible tones will be diminished and in which clash or confusion of different parts of the horn at the same time instead of producing a perfect response to the music will be rendered impossible.

It is a further object therefore to prevent this excessive vibration at the end of the horn, first, by tightly binding said end to the body of the horn, or second, to weight the end of the horn, or both, whereby the particles at the end of the horn will be prevented from vibrating excessively, but will have their vibrations brought into uniformity with those in the body of the horn, thus eliminating any interfering vibrations and encouraging those that improve the quality of the music.

It is a still further object of the invention to suspend each section of a horn made according to the invention in such a position as to interfere as little as possible with its freedom to vibrate as the music demands.

In the drawings Figure 1 is an elevation, partly in section, of a phonograph equipped with a horn built according to the invention. Fig. 2 is a cross section on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1.

PHONOGRAPH RECORD.—George Leake, Mason City, Ia. Patent No. 1,303,074.

The device forming the subject matter of this application is a record for a phonograph and the invention aims to provide a structure of the kind mentioned which may be played continuously, by reversing the direction of rotation of the record.

It is within the province of the disclosure to improve generally and to enhance the utility of devices of that type to which the present invention appertains.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a top plan showing one form of record constructed in accordance with the invention; Fig. 2 is a fragmental section taken longitudinally of one of the grooves; Fig. 3 is a perspective showing the projection or stop which operates the reversing mechanism; and Fig. 4 is a fragmental elevation showing a slight modification in the invention.

SOUND REPRODUCING MACHINE.—Francesco Ci-relli, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,302,900.

This invention relates to improvements in sound reproducing machines, the object of the invention being to provide a machine of the character stated which dispenses altogether with the ordinary horn, which may be readily carried from place to place, and occupy but relatively small space.

A further object is to provide an improved construction of box in which the sound waves are directed by a tone arm into a chamber having perforated walls located at one end of the box, leaving a chamber at the other end, or front portion of the box, for the turntable and record discs.

A further object is to provide a sound reproducing machine of the character stated which provides a drawer for the accommodation of the tone arm and sound box when disconnected from normal position, and permits the assemblage of record discs on the turntable where they can be conveniently supported when the machine is to be moved from place to place.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a perspective view illustrating the improvements. Fig. 2 is a view in longitudinal section. Fig. 3 is a view in transverse section. Fig. 4 is a view in section on the line 4-4 of Fig. 2, and Fig. 5 is a fragmentary sectional elevation showing certain of the coupling parts in register with each other.

POST CARD.—Shirley E. Stout, Mitchell, S. D. Patent No. 1,303,842.

This invention is an improvement in post or other cards and has particular reference to a card on which sounds may be recorded and answers reproduced.

An object of the invention is the production of a card having a portion thereof provided with a record-receiving surface and which, after having a record groove formed in said surface, may be readily and safely forwarded by post, whereupon the recipient may reproduce the message thereon.

Another object is to provide a recorder-reproducer which is used in connection with a talking machine for making and reproducing a sound record groove, means being employed in connection with the post card and recorder for guiding the stylus of the latter.

Figure 1 is a side elevation of the recording and reproducing apparatus, the post card being shown in transverse section. Fig. 2 is a vertical longitudinal section of the recording and reproducing sound boxes. Fig. 3 is an elevation of the recording sound box, the post card being shown in fragmentary section. Fig. 4 is a fragmentary top plan view of the post card, the recorder being shown diagrammatically. Fig. 5 is a plan view of a blank card. Fig. 6 is a section on the line 6-6 of Fig. 5. Fig. 7 is a view similar to Fig. 5 showing a guide disc used in connection with the card when recording, or reproducing. Fig. 8 is a side elevation of the turntable of a talking machine, the post card being mounted thereon and engaged by the recording stylus. Fig. 9 is a top plan view similar to Fig. 7 showing a record groove thereon in dotted lines.

PHONOGRAPH.—Frank A. Lee, Cincinnati, O., and Frank G. Rose, Dayton, Ky., assignors to the John Church Co., Cincinnati, O. Patent No. 1,303,686.

This invention relates to megaphones for phonographs or graphophones. The object of the invention is to intercept and throw back at varying angles the sound waves which would otherwise pass directly from the throat of the megaphone directly out through the mouth thereof, so that these waves strike either against the sides of the megaphone or the throat thereof, and, thus traveling a longer distance and striking vibrating surfaces, are enriched and clarified in tone. The further object of the invention is to take advantage of the vibration of the surfaces against which the sound-waves strike to further enrich and clarify the tone of the apparatus.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a general perspective view of a phonograph provided with the improvement. Fig. 2 is a longitudinal vertical section of the megaphone and throat, the latter being modified from that shown in Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a detail perspective view of the improvement, as shown in Fig. 1, but with another modified throat. Fig. 4 is a section similar to Fig. 2, but showing the throat of Fig. 1, and showing a plurality of deflectors in the megaphone; and Figs. 5 and 6 illustrate modified deflectors.

This invention relates to a device which may be attached to the existing and standard forms of talking machines and has for its purpose the effecting of a retarding action of the downward movement of the sound box tube or movable horn arm of a Victrola, should the said sound box be accidentally or prematurely released while the stylus is being lowered and adjusted in position on a record, thereby preventing any possible injury to the stylus or scratching or mutilation of the record.

The objects of this invention are to provide an attachment of the character above indicated which comprises a minimum number of parts capable of being easily and cheaply manufactured, repaired and assembled, and at the same time enable the same to be readily and quickly attached to the standard talking machines without in any way disturbing or altering the organization and arrangement of the parts of the talking machine to which said attachment is connected.

Figure 1 is a plan view partly in section of a taper tube and sound box tube of a Victrola with the invention attached. Fig. 2 is an enlarged sectional view taken on line 2-2 of Figure 1. Fig. 3 is an enlarged sectional view taken on line 3-3 of Fig. 1. Fig. 4 is a per-

AUTOMATIC LID SUPPORT.—Carl Edward Wilton, Philadelphia, Pa. Patent No. 1,303,441.

This invention relates to the class of devices used on such articles as phonograph cabinets for maintaining the top or lid thereof in open position against inadvertent closing. The object of the invention is to produce such a device that is very simple yet positive and dependable in action and a device that may be installed with a minimum of expense.

Figure 1 shows a side elevation of the device in place on phonographs. Fig. 2 shows a perspective view of the bracket and with the cam in place. Fig. 3 shows a vertical section taken in the plane of the pivot of the cam. Fig. 4 shows a side elevation of the cam. Fig. 5 is an edge view of the bar; and Fig. 6 is a side view of the same. Fig. 7 is a view similar to Fig. 1, but with a modified form of the device. Fig. 8 is a view of the bracket in this modified form. Figs. 9 and 10 show the different positions the cam of this form assumes. Fig. 11 shows a side view of the modified bar; and Fig. 12 is an edge view.

This invention relates to improvements in talking machines. One of its objects is to provide improved tone arm and reproducing apparatus to adjust the reproducing apparatus into and out of operative relation with the record. Another object is to attain in an adjustable mechanism a more direct and nearly straight path for the sound vibrations from the reproducing mechanism to the megaphone. Another object is to provide for the protection of the reproducing mechanism in its inoperative position and to enable a shallow lid or cover to be employed.

Another object is to attain improved angular positions of the stylus with reference to the record for either lateral or hill and dale types of record and for adjustments to both positions. Another object is to provide an improved pivotal mounting and adjustment for the tone arm to facilitate the travel of the reproducer across the face of the record.

Figure 1 is a plan view of a talking machine record and tone arm embodying the improvements, with the reproducer in operative position.

Fig. 2 is a side elevation partly in vertical section, illustrating the pivotal bearing for the tone arm in central vertical section and the reproducer in idle position with the casing lid closed.

Fig. 3 is an enlarged detail of the reproducer illustrating the adjustment of the stylus to engage records of different type.

Fig. 4 is a detail illustrating the angular position of the reproducer with reference to laterally-cut records.

Fig. 5 is a view similar to Fig. 4 illustrating the position of the reproducer and stylus with reference to the hill and dale type of records.

Fig. 6 is an enlarged sectional detail on line v v of Fig. 3, illustrating the pivotal mounting for the stylus.

NO VICTOR RECORDS FOR AUGUST

Victor Co. to Take Advantage of Opportunity Thus Presented to Take Care of Volume of Unfilled Record Orders Now on the Books.

In order to catch up to some extent at least with the large number of unfilled orders for records that have been accumulating for some months past, the Victor Talking Machine Co. has announced to its wholesale jobbers and dealers that no new record supplement will be issued for August, but that the efforts that would ordinarily be devoted to the producing of new records will be used for pressing records to fill orders now on hand. The official announcement of the company says in part:

"To furnish you with records you have had on order for some months past, we have been compelled to take extraordinary measures, and have decided to list no new records for August, 1919. Instead we shall devote all our energies for one month to the manufacture of records for which the trade has a large unfilled demand.

"We shall, however, issue a supplement in which we have listed a greater number of records than usual, and in greater variety. The records so listed are all excellent selections and, better still, they are records of which there are some stocks available in the hands of our distributors."

Paramount Records

The Popular, All-Hit Line of Independent Records

NOTHING but headliners on Paramount's monthly lists. If it isn't a hit, you won't find it under the Paramount label. They run two to the record—always. "Paramounts" draw trade like a magnet, and they don't gather dust on your shelves, because no weak numbers are offered.

Paramount selling aids—above all, Paramount superiority—keep them moving, so that they offer jobbers and dealers the most liberal returns of any leading record on the market.

Ask today for the Paramount Proposition. Make your store a Paramount store, establish yourself as the leading dealer in your locality and profit by Paramount's growing popularity.
