CATERING TO THE NEEDS OF MEN

Unique Policies of Talking Machine Store Located on Lower Broadway, New York, of Interest Because 90 Per Cent. of Sales Are to Men—Arrangements Made to This End

The Trinity Talking Machine Co. is located in the heart of New York City's downtown business section—on lower Broadway—where executive offices of the country's largest financial and commercial institutions predominate. Few women shoppers ever penetrate into this territory, and the manager of the Trinity Talking Machine Co. has found that about 90 per cent. or more of the company's sales are made to men. Many of these men occupy important positions with their respective concerns, and have plenty of money to buy records with if they can be once placed on the customer roll. The Trinity Co. has made an extensive drive for a clientele of this sort, and has succeeded in large measure.

A recent visit by a representative of The World disclosed a series of unique policies, all of which are based on the class of trade sought and the location of the establishment. For instance, this store is never open evenings, for after business hours this section of New York is practically deserted. At midday, however, when most men devote an hour or more to lunch, the Trinity Co. does its rush-hour business. In fact, the lunch hour, and the hour or two immediately following the close of the business day are best fitted for attracting new and regular customers.

Whereas very few retail concerns do a record business of more than one-half the total sales for machines, this company's record sales constitute the majority of the business done. Whereas most demonstration booths are furnished with a view to pleasing the feminine eye, the booths of the Trinity Co. are designed for the especial comfort of men. The great quantity of handsome smoking stands is a feature found in few music stores, but in this case they have proved a powerful factor in making customers feel thoroughly at home. There is no need to throw one's party cigar away before entering the Trinity Shop, because from first to last it is the desire of this company to cater to the whims and fancies and desires of the male sex. Victor, Columbia and Pathé records are handled.

RECORD ARTISTS IN POTTSTOWN

Ada Jones, McKee Trio and Shannon Four Appeared in Concert in That City Recently Under the Auspices of Lamb's Music House

POTTSTOWN, PA., January 2.—Talking machine enthusiasts in this city and vicinity were given a genuine treat by William F. Lamb, of Lamb's Music House, Victor dealers here. A number of prominent talking machine artists gave a concert at the local Opera House on December 26. The concert was in the nature of a celebration. Among the artists who appeared was Ada Jones, one of the veterans in the field, and likewise one of the most popular record makers. Then came the McKee Trio, consisting of Seraphine E. Albisser, violinist; Jacques DePool, cellist; and William E. Berge, pianist, followed by the Shannon Four, consisting of Charles H. Hart, tenor; Harvey W. Hindermeyer, tenor; Eliot Shaw, baritone, and Wilfred Glenn, basso.

Miss Jones sang several coon and character songs, and the McKee Trio played selections from the opera, as well as a number of popular airs, such as "Smiles," and the quartet sang old and new popular songs. In addition the individual members of the trio and quartet appeared in solos. The audience was a large and enthusiastic one.

MUSIC AS A CIVILIZING INFLUENCE

Facts Show That It Inclines People to Be Law Abiding—Musicians Keep Out of Jail

Does music keep people out of jail? It has often been said in print that music was brought into the world to uplift and beautify our humdrum mechanical lives. A public school principal regrets that his teachers are only giving one and a half hours a week to the study of music. He regrets this because he says through music and its educational value young people become better citizens, more useful members of society and more efficient servants of the State.

But now a man comes forward and submits figures to show that musicians give the jails a wide berth. Out of somewhere about 150,000 professional musicians in the United States it is said there are only fifteen in the nine largest penitentiaries throughout the Republic. This makes a good showing when the corresponding figures are considered—thirty-nine out of only 57,000 bankers in these penitentiaries; thirty-three out of 115,000 lawyers; twenty-two out of 150,000 physicians, and six out of 35,000 painters or artists. It begins to look as if music keeps you out of jail or at least helps to. Hence, cultivate the talking machine habit.

The "Dreamer" who wakes when the Alarm Clock of Duty goes off is a "Doer" you can't stop!

KEEP THE STORE WINDOWS LIGHTED

Talking Machine Dealers Will Find It a Profitable Investment to Keep Their Show Windows Lighted and Their Products Well Displayed in the Winter Evenings Now With Us

Now that we are in the midst of winter with its long dark evenings, the efficiency of the talking machine dealer's store and window can be enhanced considerably by a suitable display properly lighted. The well lighted window will attract possible purchasers in much the same way that moths circle round a flame. People prefer to walk on the bright side of the street, rather than the dark; they will linger in front of the cheery-looking store when they pass the dull store by; and to get them to look or linger is to get them to take a first long step in the right direction.

Wonderful advances have been made in recent years in the direction of effective store lighting, and there is no line of business in which the stock affords opportunity for more effective displays than that of home furnishing. And while electricity makes abundance of light readily available, it also lends itself as no other lighting system does to highly efficient yet subdued effects that display the goods to the best possible advantage without distracting attention from the window.

A well lighted store and window is unquestionably a paying wintertime investment.

Our National Victory Should Make Business Men Optimistic

The nation has entered the New Year with a great military and moral victory to its credit, and the thought uppermost in the minds of those engaged in business is naturally concentrated on the problems to be faced and solved during the period of readjustment which is now here.

There are, of course, conflicting views regarding what may be expected by business men, and particularly by talking machine men, manufacturers, jobbers and retailers alike, during the next twelve months or more—or until conditions really get back to normal. There are, of course, the pessimists, who see nothing but a demoralization of industry and of labor during the process of readjustment and reallocation. The great majority, however, are optimists, who believe that conditions for the next few years will be such as to secure at least a fair measure of prosperity.

The optimists, may it be said, appear to have the balance of argument in their favor. There will, of course, be many millions of men returned from military service and direct war work into the pursuits of peace, but this does not in any sense indicate that there is going to be any tremendous drop in their earning power. Wages will have to be stabilized in a certain measure, but the losses incurred by war workers in the matter of wages will be more than offset by the earnings of the several million men who, while in military service, have been consumers rather than producers, and who dropped out temporarily from the purchasing element.

The big argument in favor of future prosperity is the fact that construction and development work of all kinds has been at a standstill in Europe for over four years, due directly to the war, and in America for a similar period, due both directly and indirectly to the conditions surrounding the conflict, the high cost of materials and labor in particular making it dangerous to speculate in developments with a possible early drop in value.

In other words, the greater part of the world has been standing still, or possibly going back, for a period of four years, and it will be the task for a number of years to come to make up for this period of lethargy, and bring the developments up to the normal point where they would have been under ordinary conditions of progress.

America for the next two years is going to be the market place of the world. From this country all Europe must draw a large percentage of their building materials for purpose of reconstruction, their agricultural and industrial material, and even their food, for it will be some time before the agricultural situation abroad can be adjusted.

This all means that the demand upon our material resources is going to be heavy, that labor is going to be employed steadily and at substantial wages, and that those in industrial and agricultural pursuits will have a fair supply of money to put into circulation. It means that talking machine manufacturers, jobbers and dealers are, barring the unexpected, going to find substantial fields available for their products, even though increased production now possible will enable them to keep closer to the demand for talking machines and records than under war conditions.

Perhaps there will be no tremendous labor prosperity, but it is a recognized fact that after all the wars of the past century there has been a substantial period of good times. There is no reason to assume that the same rule should not hold good after the greatest war in history. Certainly there is great work to be done. Work means demand for materials and labor, and demand for materials and labor means money in circulation. Undoubtedly the talking machine men will get their share of the prosperity which is already discernible to those who read the signs of the times aright.

J. G. Early, formerly head of the Early Music House in Fort Dodge, Ia., has returned to the field in that city, and has purchased the stock of the B. M. Joy Music Store, which he will operate under his own name.

Backing Up an Elaborate Front With the Proper Kind of Inside Service :: By H. L. Benjamin

A talking machine dealer recently received a request from a customer to call at an apartment in a locality generally recognized as "swell" for the purpose of talking over the private sale of a machine. The request was written on beautifully monogrammed paper of high quality, and the dealer hastened to answer. He found that the entrance hall of the apartment house, of which the decorations were of rich marble, took up most of the ground floor, and was elaborately decorated with statuary, and ebony hall boys. The elevator, however, took him to a four by six apartment, furnished like a mountain camp. In other words, rough. The result was that in talking over terms the dealer would see nothing but cash. It didn't look as though the money was there.

That happened to be one dealer's experience, and, yet, customers have similar experiences every day in doing business with talking machine merchants in their stores. The dealer hires a store in a prominent location, pays some attention to his window displays, advertises liberally perhaps and then ushers the customer into a store that looks and smells as ancient as the Catacombs. Moreover, the customer is like as not to be met by some clerk who acts as though simply to speak to the prospective buyer is a matter of condescension on the part of the sales person who had more important things to do. To sum up, the dealer's equipment consists of 90 per cent. front, and 10 per cent. service. The result is that, although the customer, being in the store, may buy, that same customer is not inclined to come back and enjoy a similar experience.

Advertising is intended primarily to attract the customer to the store, and it depends largely upon the impression made by the store upon the people therein whether the customer becomes a permanent patron or goes away disgusted after the first visit. If the advertising is only going to bring the customer in once, then it represents very costly publicity. It is what the customer finds after he gets into the store, the service that is rendered, the general attractiveness of the interior and the stock, that serve to keep him interested and encourage him to come back to the same store for more goods.

There are still a good many retailers who believe that the customer comes into their store because he must have a certain machine, or a certain record, and that the manner in which he is treated makes little difference, provided he makes the purchases originally intended. But if each customer is handled only once, and each new sale means another patron brought into the store, then business is of the most unprofitable kind. It is the trade that comes steadily and regularly that makes for profits, for the proportion of selling expense in handling this class of business is sufficiently low to be worth while.

Big advertising and a good location are not

*Ninety Per Cent.
Front and Ten Per Cent. Service

sufficient assets to the retailer. The store must not only be well arranged, but clean. There are some who would resent the thought that their stores were not clean, but the writer has frequently seen machines in demonstrating rooms which were covered with dust, and with the metal work looking as though it had not been touched by the polishing cloth for months. This is not calculated to impress the buyer.

Then, again, many employes are inclined to be careless, and at times actually uncivil in their treatment of the customer, and it is surprising to note how this tendency has increased during the war period when stocks were short, and employes felt that the dealers must retain their services, or that new jobs could be had without difficulty. With the improvement in the labor and stock situations, the average salesman or saleswoman will, if they have any sense, take warning and change their attitude toward the buyer. But the dealer or the manager will do well to see that this new attitude is compatible with good business practice. His help need not of necessity be servile, but should be distinctly courteous and leave with the customer the impression that he has been treated considerately.

A big front means nothing unless there is something back of it, and the little things are what count. If a record is not in stock it will not do for the sales person to inform the customer of the fact and then turn away, but it is incumbent upon him to at least express a certain measure of regret and endeavor to ascertain if the customer might not perchance be interested in some other records of a similar character. The average salesman declares that this is just what he does, but as a matter of fact on more than one occasion the writer has heard a clerk say to a customer that "I haven't got that record and do not know when I will be able to get it" and then walk away to resume an interrupted conversation with some other clerk.

Then, again, it sometimes happens that the desired record is in stock, and the customer is ushered into a demonstrating room to hear it. Sometimes a fresh needle is not available and the salesman has to go after it, or the needles in the cups are all loud toned and the customer's ear drums receive no consideration. Just little things, but they don't fit in with the idea of retail service.

Competition within the next few years is going to be very strong, particularly after factory production reaches a pre-war standard or better. If the retailer wants to keep trade coming to his store he will make it worth while for customers to do so. It means spending some money for booths and fittings. It means hiring competent help and watching that help. It means keeping machines polished and dusted and floors clean. It means putting forth every effort to not only keep stock up to date, but to make the customer feel at home and anxious to come again.

Simply spending money on equipment is not all. There is one man who spent over $20,000 in fitting up a talking machine store on the second floor of a medium-sized building, and the results are truly remarkable, but even that $20,000 would be wasted were the selling system not watched carefully, and the interior given constant attention. If the dealer's available capital is limited don't put it all in the front. Let the interior of the store and the service that goes with that interior receive its due proportion of attention.

THE PERFECT PLAN

HOW HAVE YOU PLANNED YOUR PEACE BUSINESS CAMPAIGN

Millions of American Soldiers Are to Be Turned Into the World of Business—They Will Be Your Salesmen or Your Buyers—Now Is the Time for Leadership and for Ideas

Five million glorious boys, radiating health, bursting with animal spirits, laughing, joking, free, frank and friendly! That is the army Uncle Sam is going to turn loose into the world of business when the troops are demobilized. Tireless, hard as nails, indomitable in spirit, they will swarm into business as they swarmed into the Germans—disciplined and responsible, but utterly fearless, and invincible. No problem that business can offer can long vex men who have solved the problem of advancing under fire. Nothing in business that initiative can do will be impossible to men who have gone singing into the Valley of the Shadow, says the Voice of the Victor.

Have you, in your after-the-war thinking, given any thought to your salesman, Tom Jones, who went out with his draft with pale cheeks and narrow chest, looking—well—a little shop-worn? He is coming back all of a man, his face tanned, his body hard, his mind active, brimful of initiative and resource. Your customers will be proud to shake him by the hand, and he in turn will look on the world with new eyes. He will have seen a foreign country, discovered his French, English and Italian brothers, and learned that they, too, are men. He will have acquired a new neatness and efficiency in his work, and, thanks to his years of discipline, will respond quickly to any plan you may have formed, just as he has learned to respond to his officer's orders. He will be "up on his toes" all the time; and if you are not a match for him in "pep" he will probably leave you for a better man. And he won't be afraid to quit, either, because he will have friends everywhere—men who have been his comrades, shared his hardships, smoked his cigarettes, eaten his "slum," and given him in turn all they have to offer.

Business is going to be a bigger, better thing after the war than it has ever been before. These hard young animals with brains are coming back to "God's country," and they are going to "whoop it up" as they never whooped it before. Fresh, eager, restless, still young and their lives before them, they are going to make the most of peace because they know what war means.

There is one thing these boys will lack when they come home, unless we are prepared to give it to them; and that is good leadership. They have been working under officers whom they trust, and love—by whom, in turn, they are trusted and loved. Those of us who were not "Over There," but tried to carry on our business under wartime difficulties, have been disciplined also. We were compelled at times to stop when every instinct bids us go ahead; compelled to consider other people's needs when our own seemed imperative. And like all discipline, it was good for us. Is it making or breaking you?

In time of war prepare for peace. The business executive of today is mostly trying to steer a straight course through new shoals and shallows. Tomorrow when peace has definitely come he will have an army at his back, an army trained and disciplined, needing only the right leadership to do the impossible. Now is the time to plan. Plan your peace business campaign to the last detail, and begin to put it into operation. You will be the "officer of the day," and the boys will follow you wherever you go—such boys as you never dreamed of leading.

FORM NEW ORGANIZATION

WAS FORMERLY A SCRIBE

Percy A. Ware, a member of the traveling staff of the Victor Talking Machine Co., covering the Carolinas, Tennessee, Georgia and Virginia, as well as other Southern cities, was formerly a newspaperman in Newark, Pa.

The store which runs its financial department haphazard will soon not be a store.

AN INVESTMENT THAT PAYS

The Up-To-Date Store With Proper Equipment Is Not Only a Trade Promoter But a Money Saver for the Dealer—Facts Worth Noting

Bert Ketchum says that thirty minutes' time wasted daily by a $50 a month clerk costs his employer $39 a year, which represents 5 per cent. interest on a $780 investment. In other words, that firm could invest even $600 for new equipment and make a profit on it. Thirty minutes of wasted or unproductive time daily by a $2,000 a year man costs the firm $123 per annum, or 5 per cent. interest on $2,460.

These figures printed in "Office Equipment" set one thinking, and give the key to the wisdom of talking machine dealers using modern and up-to-date supplies in their establishment. Today stores are judged by their appearance just as a man is judged by his clothes and general bearing, and every factor, no matter how small it may be, that tends to facilitate the better conduct of business and help the needs of customers, is to be commended.

 Cable Address: "Elbill," New York.

WITH achievement of victory on the battlefield, it is now up to the talking machine industry to achieve victory in the domain of business—to develop all forces and all energies toward making the year 1919, which has just made its debut, one of the greatest in the history of the industry. To put business back on a normal basis calls for consistent and untiring effort along progressive lines. Business men must have faith and courage—must realize that the clouds are gone, and that we are now entering a new era of expansion and prosperity for the entire nation.

The great moral victory achieved by the United States in entering the world war to uphold the rights of humanity and justice has made this country known and admired the world over, and we must maintain this reputation not alone in the field of statesmanship and arms but in commerce. American manufacturers will undoubtedly find a larger market throughout the world than ever before, and in the enlarged export field the talking machine will play a notable part.

There is no other product so distinctly American as the talking machine—no other product in its development and construction has won a higher standing for reliability and value. Hence it only needs the spirit of enterprise on the part of our manufacturers to bring the products of this typically American industry to the people of the world in a larger measure than ever before.

At the present time, of course, the immense demands of domestic buyers must be met, but we must work not only for to-day but for the future. 1919 will be a year of restoration of industry to not only its former status, but to a greater expansion, for we have learned much during the past year as to what organization and concentration can do in this country in the way of speeding up factory production and in attaining other ends most desirable in the business world.

The War Industries Board, for instance, although exercising strong control over industries such as ours, has nevertheless brought real benefit by compelling talking machine men to take stock of their own businesses—to present accurate figures as to their equipment, capital invested, output, etc., by compelling the compilation of statistics that should prove invaluable. Members of the industry have learned to work together, to discuss problems of their businesses, and this spirit of co-operation should continue, for from this spirit of frankness and harmony greater results must inevitably accrue to individual enterprises, as well as to the talking machine industry as a whole.

ONE need not be a persistent optimist to believe that some beneficial developments in the matter of price maintenance will soon materialize—that the long fought battle to bring about some definite means for insuring the maintenance of fixed prices on trade-marked and patented articles, provided such prices are equitable, is likely to result in favor of the manufacturers of such articles and those who on principle are in favor of the price maintenance idea.

The price maintenance question has long been a debatable one, and those who have championed the cause have found traveling at times rather rough and their championship somewhat expensive. The situation looked particularly difficult when the Supreme Court of the United States and the various Government agents, including the Federal Trade Commission, appeared to put their feet down on price maintenance and hold for an open market for the seller. In other words they held that the seller, having become possessed of the article in question, could dispose of it at any price he saw fit.

Recent developments, however, have indicated that the authorities have suffered a change of heart, that they have become cognizant of the damage that can be done by the unscrupulous price cutter through the way in which he can undermine legitimate industry, discourage capital, and indirectly keep his heel on the neck of labor. The result has been that the Federal Trade Commission only recently went so far as to advise Congress that it would be favorably inclined toward some form of legislation that would permit of the maintenance of resale prices on trade-marked and patented goods, and would permit of the drawing up of contracts holding the retailer to an observance of such prices, provided the contracts adopted by the manufacturer would be subject to revision by some competent authority to insure their fairness to all concerned.

This new attitude by the Federal Trade Commission is acclaimed by those who long have realized what price maintenance has done in the building up of the talking machine business on the solid foundation on which it rests to-day, and particularly what it has meant to the smaller exclusive dealer who could go his way in the past without being threatened with business extinction by the price cutter, who usually had immense buying capital at his command and few scruples as to how to proceed.

It is generally believed that if the well-known Stephens bill is so amended as to include in its provisions means for subjecting price maintenance methods and contracts to official supervision, either by the committee representing the Federal Trade Commission or by some other body, the bill will have a very fair chance of passage, and one of the strongest arguments of those opposed to fixed prices will be overcome.

The supervision of price maintenance methods will be welcomed by those manufacturers who set a fair retail value on their products and whose sole aim is to protect their good-will and trade-mark and patent rights from the price cutter, and who desire to restrain the latter from utilizing names and products of recognized and standard values in the eyes of the public, for the purpose of foisting on that same public other articles of unknown origin at higher than ordinary prices.

It may perhaps be true that in endeavoring to maintain prices some manufacturers have overstepped the bounds and have sought to fix a retail value on their products not warranted by manufacturing and selling costs. Manufacturers of this type have in a considerable measure and to a considerable degree served to attract disagreeable attention to the principle of price maintenance generally. The talking machine trade, however, can feel with all consciousness that in supporting price maintenance as a principle in their industry they are also working in all fairness to and for the benefit of the public as much as for themselves. The history of the industry demonstrates the correctness of this viewpoint.

With the war excitement out of the way and peace time legislation again receiving proper attention, it is hoped that the price maintenance question will receive the favorable consideration it deserves from our national legislators.

MEN who are in a position to know declare that we may expect a wave of advertising during 1919 that will exceed all previous records. In other words, there is reason to believe that American business men who for months, or years, as the case might be, have been marking time in the matter of exploiting their wares, will go after business through the columns of the newspapers and magazines as never before in the history of the country. It is logical to believe this as there is much that can only be accomplished through the medium of judicious publicity.

Most of the world has stood still during the greater part of four years. We in America have gone ahead little, if any, for the greater part of two years. It has meant that normal development was halted, and now with a clear future it is only natural that every manufacturer with a grain of ambition will endeavor not only to develop his business on a normal basis, but will try to get back some of the business lost during the dark months. Not only will the old and recognized advertisers redouble their efforts and increase their appropriations, but many new advertisers, having watched for the proper moment, will enter the field in competition. It means that the man who expects to hold up his end in the battle for business that is before us must give the question of advertising his keenest consideration. It is going to be the manufacturer who utilizes the full power of advertising during the year to come who is going to reap the reward in the matter of business. The man who hesitates is not only going to lose potential business, but is going to suffer directly through competition.

It must be said for the talking machine trade, so far as the leaders of the industry go, that there was little if any cut in advertising appropriations during the war period. Output was curtailed and trade demands went by the board, but nevertheless there was always kept before the public the names of the products and their value in the war and in the home, not with the idea of influencing immediate business, because immediate business could not be handled, but with the idea of impressing the public with the products and the names, so that when supplies were again available it was only a question of reaping the crop of business that wartime advertising had been developing. Although normal advertising was kept up during the war it is most likely that even these big appropriations will be increased materially in the drive for new business. Those who have cut off their publicity or curtailed it will be compelled to do some tall hustling to keep step with the procession of live merchants who realize and make use of the power of advertising.

Nineteen-nineteen is now with us, and there is no time to be lost in carrying to completion the campaigns for business planned for the year. Advertising is going to prove one of the most potent factors in the reconstruction of American business along peace lines, and the manufacturer who does not recognize this fact is going to suffer and suffer greatly.

GENIUS is only the power of making continuous effort, according to the late Elbert Hubbard, who with his unusual skill in word structure pointed out that the line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it—so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it. How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience, would have achieved success. As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in. In business, sometimes, prospects may seem darkest when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.

IN the talking machine trade, as in practically every other line of endeavor, problems of merchandising are receiving an increased amount of attention. In the old days, in fact only a few years ago, the rule was to hire the salesman and turn him loose on the prospect. If he was a good salesman in his own right he held his job and prospered, but if he proved to be a poor salesman he didn't last long. The sales problem was looked upon as distinctly a problem for the individual, and he was left to work out his own salvation, and so long as the results were more or less satisfactory there was no interference with his plans.

Now, however, there is a new realization of what salesmanship really means, because men have learned that selling is not a problem for the individual, but rather is a problem for the organization, and that although the ideas of the individual salesman may be good, if those ideas are joined with the ideas of some other salesman, then a selling system can be evolved that is not only going to mean more business for the organization as a whole, but work to the benefit of every man in it. The result is the development of the sales conference idea.

The larger companies in the field now call their dealers and salesmen together at regular intervals for the sake of discussing merchandising and sales problems, and evolving campaigns that will not only get results, but will, as a result of the experience gained, be possessed of as few flaws as possible. Ideas are exchanged and every dealer, if he is awake, enters into the conference hall with some new and valuable thoughts on how he can improve his business, and, most important, make more money from a certain amount of effort and a certain amount of invested capital. The dealers in turn holding conferences with their salesmen can pass on these thoughts, and on the other hand compile valuable selling material from the ideas and experiences of their own sales staffs.

The basic thought is that no man, or no one group of men, knows it all. Each individual and each group has met and overcome different problems, and the problems that one individual has met may come later to another of the craft. It is, therefore, much better to have at hand a solution based on experience than to work blindly and evolve a new and independent solution of the problem. It is simply the idea of business co-operation brought home. The tendency toward conferences of selling forces is one that should be encouraged to the utmost, for it should mean more and better business, especially in the industrial activity that is going to show itself in every ramification of the immense business structure of this country during the months and years that are before us.

HOLIDAY BUSINESS RECORDS SHATTERED IN INDIANAPOLIS

Trade Enthusiastic About Quality of Sales Made in December—New Year Opens With Big Sales of Machines and Records—Indianapolis Will Be Big Market During 1919

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., January 6.—All previous holiday business records were shattered with the closing of 1918, the local retail and wholesale talking machine dealers report. Not only had the business been brisk since October, but the last minute rush of Christmas buyers found the local retail dealers selling their machines without time for demonstrations in many instances.

What the dealers regard as a most encouraging and significant sign is that the sale of machines and records since Christmas has been good. No doubt is expressed as to the opinion that 1919 will prove a big year.

H. E. Whitman, manager of the talking machine department of the Pearson Piano Co., said that the holiday business came not only from the wage earning class, but from the wealthier classes, which previously had been holding back on the purchases pending the development of the war situation. A large number of the higher-priced machines were sold and the total business is far ahead of the holiday record of 1917.

The Edison Shop sold out entirely in two styles and showed an increase of 200 per cent. in its cash business alone, A. H. Snyder, manager, reported. Business has been coming back briskly since Christmas, and the record business necessitated the doubling of the counter space.

J. L. Peter, manager of the Columbia store, said that the season was the most wonderful one he had ever experienced in the business, and remarked that he had had a 400 per cent. increase over December of 1917.

C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., pointed out that the business in the Columbia machines was at least 100 per cent. better than in December of last year, while the stock of Windsor machines was entirely sold out.

R. B. Goldsberry, manager of the talking machine department of the Mooney-Mueller Co., Pathé jobbers, has been filling orders as fast as he could get the goods from the factory. The art models went big, Mr. Goldsberry said. He estimated an increase of 100 per cent. over last year for the holiday business.

The Stewart Talking Machine Co. have been making every effort to get as many machines as possible to the dealers. They have been running full-page advertisements telling the public how the Victrola “went to war” and explaining the reason the Victor dealers were not able to supply the demand this year. Harry Diehl, formerly retail manager for the company, who is now a sergeant in the army, and Harry Ray, also in the army, who formerly was manager of the talking machine department of the Pettis Dry Goods Co., visited the offices recently.

Ben Brown, manager of the Columbia wholesale department, said that the demand for machines and records keeps growing in spite of the Christmas onslaught. Ben Loventhal, proprietor of the Grafonola store at Louisville, Ky., came to Indianapolis last week and took 1,200 records back with him as baggage. F. F. Dawson, manager of the Columbia branch in Cincinnati, was also a visitor. The talking machine department of Silverstein Bros., Terre Haute, Ind., did a fine business in Columbia machines and records. This is one of the new big accounts opened by the local branch several months ago.

W. E. Pearce, manager of the talking machine department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender branch, is expecting a big year for the Brunswick. At the Brunswick Shop the Christmas business practically cleaned out the store, and George F. Standke, manager, took a hurry-up trip to Chicago to see if he could get a rush order through to take care of the business after Christmas.

E. R. Eskew, manager of the Pathé Shop, said that business is coming right back in great form after the Christmas rush.

The Fuller-Ryde Music Co. were well prepared to handle their increased business in Victrolas this year, as they had rearranged their store and built several booths. The store now rivals any of the up-to-date talking machine stores in appearance, and the proprietors are more than pleased with the change.

ATTRACTIVE VICTROLA ROOMS

Each of the Twenty Demonstration Booths in New Stores of Geo. S. Dales, Akron, O., Dedicated to Some Prominent Record Artists

AKRON, O., January 3.—George S. Dales recently opened a large and most attractive Victrola parlor at 128 Main street, this city, with many original features incorporated therein. In addition to sales and reception rooms and three concert halls, there are twenty demonstration booths, each booth decorated in a distinctive manner and dedicated to some prominent Victor artist, such as Caruso, Farrar, Melba, Lauder, etc. The decorations are designed to indicate some distinctive characteristic of the artist or of the artist's work. The furnishings, including tapestries, carpets and furniture, are rich and elaborate.

The floor of the main lobby is polished for dancing and it is the intention of the proprietor to allow private parties to make arrangements for its use. This will also include societies and lodges. A section of the lobby is specially arranged for those wishing to make engagements with their friends and daily concerts, vocal and instrumental, are given.

George S. Dale carries a complete stock of records and has proven himself one of the most progressive talking machine dealers in the country. Souvenir booklets outlining the history of the store and illustrated with many photographs were given to callers on opening day.

Making the Show Window the Dealer's Greatest Trade Promoter and Profit Maker :: By J. A. Parsons

The arrangement of a talking machine window is, of course, a matter of individual taste. There are a great many dealers who ignore the value of their show window altogether; they forget that it is one of the greatest trade promoters and profit makers in the advertising end of their business, and in this connection its possibilities as a means of attracting and interesting the public should never be overlooked.

The dealers in the talking machine trade have been fortunate in the fact that manufacturers have been most generous in providing specially arranged window displays, which when properly presented are most effective in their results, and give the talking machine dealer's window a distinctiveness that makes his store stand out among those of his neighbors in a manner that creates favorable comment.

Too many dealers, however, do not take pains in properly arranging or presenting these window displays prepared by the manufacturers with the result they make a sloppy, cheap, unfinished appearance that does anything but help the dealer or the products he handles.

It should be kept in mind that the window displays prepared by manufacturers represent a large investment, and, just like the literature they issue, should be utilized in a most painstaking way and brought correctly to public notice, because everything is being done with the object in view of aiding the dealers, and bringing the products they handle before the public in a way that will bring the best results.

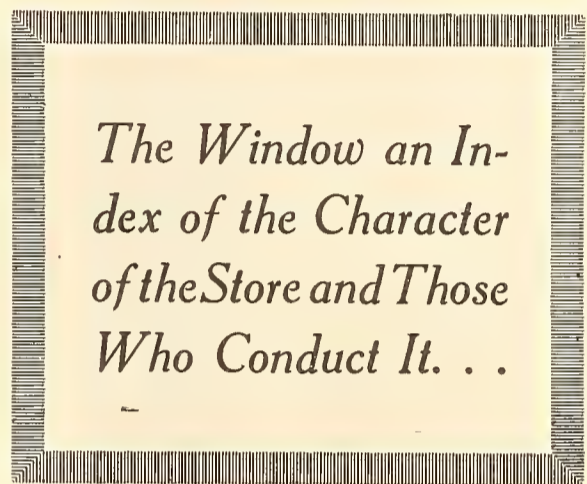

Some of the modern displays testify to the rapid development of art in advertising as far as window displays are concerned, and in cards and other forms of display pictorial impressions are conveyed that represent really clever artistic work.

There is a tendency, however, on the part of many dealers to crowd their windows unduly, particularly where cards are used, giving the impression of a bargain display in a cheap dry-goods store with the prices tagged on.

Simplicity, after all, is the great key to success in window display and where special window designs are arranged, such as those furnished by the manufacturers, nothing else should be used. The window scheme should be adhered to in its purity without any additions.

Where the dealer prepares his own window

he should keep some central idea in mind, either a special machine, or a certain series of records. The latter might be utilized in the event of the visits of opera or concert singers. A photograph of the artist might be featured surrounding it with a number of his or her records, then balancing the remainder of the window space in a manner that will not detract from the central subject.

One thing should be remembered, that it is wise to get away from trying to get too much in a window, and this, as just remarked, is a tendency that is growing these days, owing to the amount of cards and illustrations in connection with record displays which are furnished dealers; they are often used indiscriminately and without a proper sense of appreciation of their worth.

The psychology of window display should also be considered because the window is an index of the character of the store and the man or the men who run it. The attractive window means the attractive store; it means that it is conducted by people who are particular and precise in their dealings, who believe in carrying the highest class goods, and who boast of a sales force that understands handling customers intelligently and with proper consideration.

A TALKING MACHINE MAN'S LETTER

Sends Interesting Communication in the Vernacular of the Trade to His Son "Over There"—Key to Why Son Won Out

An employe of a talking machine company whose son had left the factory to take part in the Great Adventure "over there" hit upon the idea of writing to his son in the gramophonic terms familiar to both in their working hours. This interesting epistle was the result:

"My Dear Boy:—The matrix and I send you our best love and good wishes, and express the hope that this old turntable of a world, which at present doesn't seem to run true, has not wobbled enough to spoil your record and the harmony of your existence. At present there would seem to be a knock in the motor that runs the old turn-table. Possibly this is the sound of the guns of Freedom hammering the spirit of Justice and Democracy into the slaves of the Kultur of the Beast.

"Whatever you do, son, remember while you are over there never to run off-centre. A man who runs off-centre spoils his record and creates discord. You have good stock in you, boy, for you're a Yankee product, so keep your record bright and shining. You bear the label of Columbia, which is recognized by friends and enemies as a mark of quality. Live up to your label. You are not absolutely flawless, but I trust that the needle of life may not meet you with many bad spots in your record. The only perfect Master Record was made two thousand years ago; there hasn't been an absolutely perfect one made since.

"Be sure your motor is fully wound up before you begin the music that is to make Fritz dance. Don't get run down. If you notice any signs of it you'll always find a crank willing to wind you up. Above all, boy, don't lose your spring.

"Run steady, true, and regular, son, and remember we are all at the back of you, to the last needle.

"With best wishes for a safe return.—The Governor."

How to Keep the Instalment Accounts on the Right Side of the Ledger :: :: :: By Courtenay Harrison

Five out of ten talking machine stores would without a doubt have to quit business if they stopped selling machines on the "payment" plan. But they won't quit this plan, and there is no reason why they should. The great American public has become used to buying everything from jewelry to clothes on the time-payment plan, and with each passing year this method of retailing is being put on a higher plane and is becoming recognized as the logical method of selling goods to people in moderate circumstances who compose the greater part of our population.

The payment plan is here to stay, but just for that very reason talking machine dealers should study ways of improving their methods of handling payment accounts so that they can do the largest possible business with the least risk. Of course, when a machine is not paid for it can always be "pulled" under the leases usually signed up when the sale is made, but any talking machine retailer knows that the more of such cases that arise the more expense he is put to, the more second-hand stock he accumulates, the more bookkeeping he has to do, and there are cases, of course, where such accounts are nearly a total loss when the customer fails to meet payments and "skips," taking the machine along.

Obviously care ought to be exercised in giving credit privileges if collections are expected to turn out well, and hence if sales are expected to prove profitable. Because, as already intimated, there is no use of selling goods that only pile up trouble and that eventually prove to be more of a liability than an asset. On the other hand whoever has charge of arranging for a credit ought not to be too quick or harsh in judgment. In fact, the happy medium of extending credit on the time-payment plan is for each prospective customer to be treated as an individual, and each case taken on its own particular merits. As "sure as shootin'" a business that has too many set "rules" for opening payment accounts is going to get stung occasionally, just as is a concern whose rules are not so strict, and besides, by having rules and enforcing them too strictly, a lot of good business will be "passed up" that otherwise could be put on the books and made to yield a profit.

From my personal experience in retailing talking machines on the payment plan and from talks with other phonograph store owners I have gathered considerable information about the best way of making instalment accounts remain on the profit side of the ledger always, and other dealers may be interested in some of these ideas. Understand, however, that they have to be interpreted to meet the locality where they are applied, and they are not meant to apply to individual cases. Instead these "rules" are for common sense use, and fit the general situation.

In the first place, when a person comes in and wants to purchase a machine on the payment plan a fair down payment ought to be demanded. If the customer can't pay anything down, this very often indicates that he or she is extravagant, and will not be able to meet subsequent payments. Next, as to arranging the size of the after-payments: Don't make every time you have a time-payment customer call at the store to make a payment you get a chance to interest him in records and other things. Many sales can be made in this way that you would not otherwise make.

Speaking again of extending credit, you should demand an unusually large down payment from colored people, foreigners, questionable characters and people just starting in any business. Statistics show that the classes named are very poor risks for the dealer who sells on the time-payment plan.

Don't sell a machine to a lawyer on the payment plan. If his credit is not good enough for open account, better keep the machine on your floor. Lawyers know how to "beat about the bush" so well that if they want to renig on a time-payment agreement they can keep you out of your machine and money for a long, long time, and besides cause you a lot of unpleasant notoriety and expense.

Some time back I spoke of the necessity, in order for collections to come along smoothly, of not making the payments on a machine any more than the customer agreed could be met cheerfully, and promptly. Sometimes, however, even when this precaution is taken, the customer will fall behind in payments. Naturally, you either write him a letter and ask him to come in and settle—you keep writing letters, maybe making the customer "sore"—or else you send a collector who will often get into a heated argument about the missing payments, and also will get the customer "peevied." Now the best way of disposing of such cases is to get the customer into the store, and then make an entirely new agreement, one that the customer can meet. What is the use of working your head off to make a customer keep up a two-dollar per week payment, and in so doing making the customer sore, and perhaps having finally to take back the machine, when by getting the customer to come into the store and have a heart-to-heart talk you can make a new agreement changing the payment to one dollar a week, and still get your money eventually, and keep the customer's trade and friendship? Isn't that just using common sense? Of course, such leniency, if you wish to call it that, need not be extended unless you have exhausted all other means of "getting the money or the machine," but such "leniency" pays in the long run when it is extended.

Referring once more to having people come to your store and pay, one of the most successful talking machine stores I know of does this: After a customer has come in and made arrangements to get a machine on time, and has made the first payment, that customer is sent a them too large, or the customer will not be able to meet them and your having to "dog" him for the money will make him dissatisfied, will lose his friendship, and ultimately perhaps result in your having to repossess the machine. In other words, the secret of success in your credit methods is not how big you can make the payments, but how well you make the terms to fit the individual customer so that he can promptly meet each payment, can do it cheerfully and hence will remain a friend and booster of your store, and a record buyer, too.

If you make the terms right, and keep your customer "in tune" properly you should do away with your collectors, if you have any, and instead have your customers come into the store and pay their own instalments. There is no reason why you cannot make this plan a success. If some of the biggest furniture stores in the country, catering to "high and low" classes of trade, can make a success of the plan of having 95 per cent. of their customers come in and pay instalments, you certainly can do it. Of course, some people would rather have a collector call on them, but if you have only a few such accounts, one of the boys can take an afternoon off each week and round these up.

The average person, if half-way decent, likes to be put on honor, and deep down inside takes a certain pride in being trusted to come in and pay accounts when they are due. Another thing, neat card, in a small envelope, showing the date of the next payment (in the manner of a bank savings card for one of the popular Christmas fund accounts) and on the back of the card is printed a list of popular records for the customer to pick from. Enclosed with this card is a letter that says:

"We are very much pleased to have you for a customer for one of our Blank talking machines, and we feel sure you will derive much pleasure from it.

"Herewith we enclose for your convenience a little card containing a list of some records you might care to own, and showing when your next payment is due. When you come in to make this payment, we will be glad if you would bring the card along."

The customer brings this card along, each payment is entered upon it, and hence the customer has a real pride in watching these payments "total up" just as if it were a bank savings account or anything of the kind.

Where you have to send out a collector on a "bad" account, always try to get a promise, at least, out of the delinquent customer. If this promise is broken, have the collector get another promise and call attention to the previous one that was broken, because nearly everyone in moderate circumstances owes, at least at certain periods, more money than he can pay. But if a certain firm has extracted from him a definite promise to pay a certain amount on a certain date, he will nine times out of ten pay that firm ahead of any of the others whom he had been able to "stall off" without giving them a promise.

In concluding I want to quote the "credit rules" given by a large mid-west furniture store to its talking machine department, and to other departments too, for that matter, rules that have resulted in bringing unusual success to the store in doing a time-payment business. Here they are:

1. Be sure of the customer's honesty, then his ability to meet the terms you make.
2. Make a definite agreement and have it signed.
3. Watch the payments regularly and call attention to any delinquency promptly.
4. If the delinquency becomes serious, never threaten, but call attention to the broken promises and make a new agreement.
5. Finally, get the money or the machine, the latter only if the balance warrants it.

MERCHANTS LOOK FOR BIG TRADE EXPANSION

Answers to Questionnaire Sent Out by Merchants' Association Demonstrate That Foreign and Domestic Trade Will Grow

With cancelation of war contracts and uncertainty in the labor problem mentioned as chief factors in the readjustment of business and manufacturing, all companies questioned by the Industrial Bureau of the Merchants' Association of New York recently reported that they expected an immediate expansion in domestic and foreign trade, according to an announcement made by the association.

In explaining that the query particularly "asked for a statement of the obstacles which are retarding the return to normal conditions," the report said that "optimism was dominant in replies from the manufacturing members in response to a request for their opinions regarding the industrial outlook." The query drew replies "from manufacturing plants in practically every field of importance in the metropolitan district."

"A few of the factories have not been disturbed at all by the war," says the report. "Others have been devoting their entire capacity to the production of munitions and war supplies. Still others have been working on war contracts and at the same time filling civilian orders. The withdrawal of the Government from the market, which is now in progress, is the largest single factor affecting industry, and practically all manufacturers speak of the effect of the cancelation of Government contracts. It is therefore encouraging that the Government departments having large contracts in this district have practically completed their plans for adjusting canceled contracts and are ready now to operate with promptness."

In outlining the work of the cancelation and in giving the list of the bureaus doing the work the report says that final decision on most of the settlements is made in Washington, and that so many readjustments have been made that it has been impossible to estimate the probable length of time for settlement of all contracts.

Most of the manufacturers who replied to the query discussed the labor situation, the report says, and expressed doubt about future conditions. All of them expressed the hope that the perplexities would be cleared up soon, so that they could make plans for expansion.

"The shifting of great masses of workmen, development of new industries and new industrial sections, present high wages, the demand for overtime work, and many similar conditions resulting from the war period, make the labor situation very complex," says the report. "In some case there is an actual labor shortage of all kinds, while in other cases there is simply a shortage of skilled labor, or even a surplus. It is obvious that in many lines of industry there must be a readjustment of the labor supply.

"In many cases manufacturers expect that wages will remain at their present high level for a considerable period, while in other cases it is claimed that former markets cannot be developed again until wages have fallen somewhat, because of the high prices resulting from high cost of production, which, in turn, is due largely to high wages.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that recently in many cases production has fallen off materially, thus making very high prices necessary for the product unless the cost of production is again decreased, either by decreasing wages, increasing productivity of labor, or by both. A number of manufacturers still complain of the difficulty of obtaining competent labor, irrespective of wages offered."

A life must be either masterful or miserable—able to control itself, able to overcome obstacles, able to dominate circumstances, or else it will be harried by many trifles into constant discontent.

N. B. JOHNSON VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Representative of Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co. Dies of Injuries Received When Struck by an Automobile While Boarding a Car

DALLAS, TEX., December 28.—N. B. Johnson, a prominent member of the Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers in this territory, died several days ago as a result of injuries sustained in attempting to board a street car on December 8, when he was struck by an automobile. Mr. Johnson's former duties will be taken care of by A. H. Curry, general manager, and F. C. Beattie, secretary and treasurer of the company, until his place in the organization can be filled.

NEW INCORPORATION

The Phonograph Improvement Co., Ft. Washington, Wis., has been incorporated with capital stock of $300,000 to manufacture phonographs. The incorporators are Wm. H. Thommen, Harry W. Bolens and Olaf Elton. The new concern will start in business in the near future.

VICTOR JAN. RECORD SUPPLEMENT

Cover Design Featuring Return of American Troops Is Significant and Timely

The front cover design of the new January Victor record supplement is of particular and timely interest, inasmuch as it illustrates most graphically the sentiment back of George M. Cohan's latest song, "When You Come Back," and shows some soldiers from overseas being welcomed by their friends upon their return as victors. The record of the song incidentally is included in the January supplement and is sung by no other than John McCormack. There are a number of excellent and timely features in the January list, of which due announcement will probably be made by the manufacturers. One of the features is the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," by Mme. Schumann-Heink. In addition there is a goodly selection of timely and popular numbers.

Remember that there is something to be considered besides pattern in the fabric of life. There is fiber.

Educational Value of the Talking Machine Constantly Gaining Wider Recognition

Slowly but surely the educational value of the talking machine is winning merited recognition from a large number of writers and musicians who formerly underestimated or inadequately considered the talking machine as a great uplifting, civilizing force. Magazine contributors and editorial writers in the daily papers are at last perceiving that the talking machine has been and is one of the greatest factors in bringing about a knowledge of the best in music, hence it is receiving a more sympathetic consideration at their hands.

The vital and constructive part played by music in the war and the utilization of the talking machine as an instrumentality in this connection have undoubtedly focused a large measure of attention on this instrument and its possibilities in musical and educational spheres. The other day the musical editor of the Winnipeg Free Press in discussing the value of the talking machine in the school remarked:

"From a blatant box with an unsightly horn, assailing the ear with screechy and muffled reproductions of nasal voices and tinny instruments, the talking machine has evolved to its present high status—that of a high-class musical instrument—in a very few years.

"It was always miraculous! The improvements, amounting now almost to perfection, have added little to the miracle, which was there, full-grown and almost breath-taking, even in the crudest old product of the early, early days of the phonograph industry.

"But the successive improvements have given it an entirely different status. Once a plaything and a novelty—outside the pale of serious musical consideration—and little more than a toy for the amusement of children and grown-ups of a novelty-loving turn of mind, the talking machine has thoroughly invaded the sphere of music in its very highest manifestations, and is now the greatest force making for musical education in the world.

"Just as moving pictures popularized the greatest histrionic artists and gave them nightly audiences of many millions, so the talking machine has given to millions of homes the best performances of the world's supreme musicians, and made it possible for the most isolated settler in the wilds of civilization to hear nightly the fine artistry of metropolitan artists.

"It has accomplished a wonderful revolution; but the half of its influence has not yet been fully appreciated or taken advantage of by those who have musical education seriously at heart. There has been, until quite recently, a more or less scornful acceptance of the talking machine by music teachers and musical educators, a sort of 'damning with faint praise' which has retarded the use of the talking machine as a means of teaching.

"Tutors who still take that stand are now, of course, open to ridicule, since artists of far higher musical authority than themselves use the talking machine as a vehicle to place their performances before the public. It is worthy of note, too, that those who hear the great artists via the talking machine are often treated to a better rendition of a given number than those who hear the artist in the flesh on the concert platform or the operatic stage. And this, for the reason that the artist who is recording will often perform the piece from ten to fifteen times, improving the rendition by a study of the record previously made, until the final record is well-nigh perfect.

"As far as the ordinary household is concerned, the talking machine must be as close to reaching a 'saturation point' as it perhaps ever will; but the greater sphere of usefulness in the schools is as yet almost untouched.

"The local government has already instituted some inquiries which point to the fact that talking machines in Manitoba schools as an aid to musical education have already been seriously considered, however, and may be an accomplished fact within the near future. A few schools have them now, of course, but the general use of them as a standard piece of school furniture (they will be as common as blackboards in the schools of the future, most certainly) is still a long way from consummation.

"What largely stands in the way of prompt action along that line is the attitude of musicians who are still apt to reply in a half-hearted manner when questioned as to the efficacy of the talking machine as a means of musical education. It is with them really little more than a matter of prejudice, and the sooner it is brushed aside and a broader view taken of the hundreds of various methods of fostering and developing musical appreciation in the young and in grown-ups of insignificant musical taste, the better it will be for the cause of music in general."

Edison Message No. 34

Have You Hired a Soldier-Salesman Yet?

Mr. Edison recently made to you Edison dealers the only public statement he has given out since the Armistice was signed. It was an important communication. The newspapers thought so, and gave it great publicity. The most important thing in it was this:

“Every business man should speed up his sales organization. The salesmen of this country can do more than anyone else to keep the wheels of industry turning at full speed. The salesman had to take a back seat during the war but his time has now come. Give him a chance.”

There is no Edison dealer too small to put on one more salesman. Many of you can profitably use several more. A good salesman always pays his way. Give the boys a chance to make good. Speed up your sales.

Work and More Work the Genuine Secret of Successful Salesmanship :: :: :: By Joseph I. Carroll

Manager of Sales, Emerson Phonograph Co.

"Salesmanship is a science; is an art." Well, it may be, but that definition, to me, is a trifle highbrow; a bit theoretical. While I have great respect for other men's opinions, especially those who can speak with rightful authority, yet, in my humble way, I prefer to regard salesmanship from a more practical angle. I insistently incline toward the belief that salesmanship is work, work and more work, guided by certain fundamentals of purpose, direction, method and judgment, which it is my privilege to discuss.

Throw into a dish a real "worker," good health, reasonable ability, neat appearance, sound habits, some business sense; spice it all with fair personality, courtesy, thoroughness and earnestness; mix well with common sense; bake to a turn and out of the oven of experience draw a finely moulded and successful salesman. That's my recipe.

Naturally, there is no set rule for the positive determination of a good salesman. A man may have all the requirements but one and the one lacking may nullify all the others.

There are certain qualities which, no doubt, would enhance a man's selling ability, but which, in themselves, would by no means guarantee ability to sell. Of these I point particularly to personality, brilliancy and education; yet, I maintain with firmness, that all else being equal, salesmen possessing one or all of these attributes are bound to soar far above their fellows.

I am not among those who insist that a salesman is born, not made. To my mind, a larger proportion of salesmen are made than are born. True enough, many men are born with a certain natural ability to sell, which, however, requires much guidance and training before they become what can safely be called "a salesman." In my experience I have seen several instances of men who, by all standards, had none of that quality called "born or natural ability," but who had instead, in a big measure, energy, determination, studiousness, reliability and confidence; and so greatly outdistanced the man of the so-called "natural ability." Practically every sales manager can point to striking instances of this kind in his experience.

It is notable that there are large numbers of men employed in the capacity of salesmen who flit from one job to another, never "making good," always proving a burden to their concerns and a heavy expense before their real lack of worth is discovered. Such men are the bane of the sales manager. Their trouble too frequently is due to the fact that they are in a field where they are entirely unadapted. Perhaps as office men, doctors, lawyers, engineers, in agricultural pursuits, or in one of many other occupations, they would be pronounced successes. On the other hand, there are fellows now struggling without possibility of success, not only in the professions just mentioned, but in menial jobs, who have latent ability which, if trained and developed, would put them among the big earners as salesmen.

Failures in life, to a very large degree, can be traced to the fact that men are following pursuits for which God never intended them.

Give me the "worker," the man who is absolutely honest and dependable, for it is safe to say he'll very often possess the other necessary qualifications, or if not he'll employ every means to acquire them under careful direction, for the worker strives for success, and will leave nothing undone to equip himself with the essentials to that goal. I'll gamble on the "worker" every time. Let my competitor have the "born salesman" chap. They are too often unsteady, unreliable, spasmodic and hard to handle.

The "worker" is constantly on the job. He catches the early train out of town in the morning and the late train into the next town. He travels when it least cuts into the time that should be spent in seeing his trade. He not alone makes every minute count close to 100 per cent., but he handles his job with thoroughness in every detail, applying himself studiously to gaining a full knowledge of his line, as well as that of his competitor, and, equally as important, to studying the simplest and most convincing presentation of the knowledge thus gained.

Granted a man be a "worker" there are certain other fundamentals, not beyond any man to acquire. A salesman should study; study always to overcome defects which become manifest as he goes along. The successful salesman seldom is derelict in this respect.

Give attention to your appearance. Be neat, not gaudy. Acquire a manner—and it can be acquired by persistence—wherein courtesy and dignity predominate. Every man has some personality. Develop it. Watch other men who have it in abundance. Imitate them, if you will, little by little. It can be done, and gracefully, too. It's a great help in salesmanship.

Assuming a man's health is good—and it must be kept so—forcefulness follows, for is he not a "worker" and work and application beget "force," a very essential quality in salesmanship. Good health can only be maintained by sound habits. The "wine, woman and song" traveling man is a creature of the dim and distant past. To-day the successful representative is the thinker, the planner; the man who uses his spare moments to lay out his work in a systematic and orderly fashion, who diagnoses each case wherein he has failed, and rearranges his forces to strengthen his apparent weaknesses, and to attack where his object is most vulnerable, who works every available town on his territory with the same amount of interest, whether the town be large or small, who treats small merchants with consideration equal to that which he extends the big buyer. Such a man will work every square inch of his territory until it yields the maximum business.

Regarding habits; if wine, woman and song, yea, cards, are part of your life, let each fit in, in its proper place, and each in moderation—much moderation, but under all circumstances so discipline yourself that no one of them interferes with your ability to produce sales, and produce them in a manner creditable to yourself and your organization. Be a gentleman always.

In the man who has achieved marked success in selling you will almost invariably find outstanding certain features in his make-up. He is a student of human nature and applies his knowledge. Rarely does he approach two people or treat with them exactly alike; he displays much versatility in his methods; he impresses his customer with confidence in his sincerity, and faith in his judgment; in a word, he dominates, but with a diplomacy which lends charm to his work.

The real salesman is short on "bluff" and long on conviction. He conveys truth and value. His feet are squarely on the ground, his head well and securely poised, and his manner fearless, but never offensively aggressive. He leads to a favorable decision; never crowds his customer. He believes in himself and his merchandise; has unshakable faith in his house, and is proud of his job.

Still other points are well to mention in the conduct of the well-organized salesman. He will have developed to a high degree his ability to concentrate on his argument and his work. It will be conscientiously prepared and arranged in logical order and the whole will be governed by an all-abiding and controlling intelligence.

Tact, in all walks of life, is desirable, but the advice to the salesman in his interviews to waste neither his own nor his prospect's time is invaluable.

We will concede that there are many kinds of salesmen. Some sell big concerns, some the small dealer. Others call upon those who require frequent visits, while many reach their trade very infrequently. Some flash for a moment, while others grow steadily. Certain men can make large sales once, but dare not come back—the slick kind. But to me the real salesman is the man who takes a territory, builds it up and grows stronger and more popular with each successive trip.

To most seasoned salesmen the ideas brought forth herewith are more or less elemental. They may gain nothing from them, but if the poor chap who is unsteady and floundering, and the young fellow who is just starting out, receive the slightest stimulation I shall have been amply repaid for my trifling effort.

In conclusion, there is the exceptional, the rare—very rare—and brilliant salesman, the man that does tremendous things. I cannot discuss this type for I am not "one of him."

MAXWELL'S BOOK FOR SOLDIERS

Latest Volume on Salesmanship to Be Sent to Soldiers in France

With the coming of peace comes the era of the salesman. The throttle of the great engine of American industry is open wide; the orders are full speed ahead. With increased production in every plant throughout the land, the salesman's part in the life of business becomes vital. As Mr. Edison said recently, "The salesman had to take a back seat during the war, but his time has now come. He can do more than anyone else, now, to keep the wheels of industry turning at full speed."

The Young Men's Christian Association in its work with the soldiers abroad recognizes this importance of salesmen to American industry. It has decided to make available for the boys "over there" waiting to return the study of salesmanship so that when they get back such of them as desire may enter the ranks of American business as salesmen.

To further this plan the Y. M. C. A. has purchased 2,200 copies of William Maxwell's book entitled "Salesmanship" to send to the Yanks overseas who intend to enter the selling game when they come back.

If one does not believe that honesty is the best policy, one should try it.

HAVE LEASED NEW BUILDING

Diamond Music Co., of New Orleans, Moving to New and Larger Headquarters

F. S. Hemenway, president of the Diamond Music Co., New Orleans, Edison jobbers, writes: "Owing to the early expiration of our lease of 151 Baronne street, and the fact that the building does not answer our purposes, we have leased a three-story building at 341 Baronne street, which is large enough to accommodate both our wholesale and retail departments. We are renovating and improving this new location and will move into same during the month of January. The new building is twenty-five feet wide by one hundred and eight feet long, ground floor, and when we get settled into this we will be in much better position to serve our customers satisfactorily.

"It was always a handicap to run the two departments separately, requiring two separate organizations as they were three blocks apart, but now we will have them under one roof where the writer and our Mr. Donnelly can look after every detail of both departments. Our wholesale offices will be on the second floor, and the ground floor will be devoted to the retail department and the re-creations. We are fitting up the whole front of the building into a large reception room with ivory fibre furniture and Wilton rugs, cretonne hangings and furniture covers. We are adding another booth to what we had in the old place, making a total of four booths and the large reception and recital room. The fixtures will be refinished in ivory, and we think the appearance will be a great improvement over the old place."

INCREASE IN FOREIGN TRADE

The total foreign trade in the United States in the four years preceding the war was $15,972,000,000. In the four fiscal years since the war began it has increased until it now amounts to $29,332,000,000.

CLEVELAND TRADE DISPLAYS REAL PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT

Henry Dreher a Firm Believer in the Products He Sells—Chas. K. Bennett Invents a New Sales Aid for Retailers—Best Selling Records Cover Wide Field—General News

CLEVELAND, O., January 7.—Henry Dreher, head of the house of the B. Dreher's Sons Co., who is spending the midwinter in Florida playing golf and hunting, is a great believer in the usefulness of the talking machine. "I have one in my dining room at home," said he, "and when I sit down to breakfast I listen to some favorite singer's voice. The music gives me a better appetite, and I leave the table in good humor for my day's work at the store. The talking machine has a wonderful future and broad sphere of usefulness. The war has helped the music trade business by stimulating an interest in good music, and, after conditions have been readjusted and we are back to a normal peace basis, piano and talking machine manufacturers, distributors and retailers will find a big volume of new business awaiting them which will prove very profitable."

The Starr Piano Co.'s Richmond, Ind., plant, which was heavily taxed in making war materials for several months, is now pushing at full speed on talking machines. The company did not "catch up" with orders received early in 1918 until after the middle of the summer.

Chas. K. Bennett, manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., in this city, is the inventor of a novel record display fixture, which is destined to win, on its merits, a large measure of popularity in the trade. In telling of his invention to The World he said:

"I have felt for some time past that if a dealer could file his records 'face out' instead of laying them flat or on edge, as is the custom, the sales would materially increase and a great number of slow-moving records would pass on to the consumer; however, lack of wall space prohibits this plan. This started me figuring how I could display records and do it in a limited space. The usual printed lists of records were fast becoming passé on account of the records so listed being unobtainable, so I started to figure how I could display the records instead of the lists.

"The 'Eclipse Serve-Self Container' was the outcome, and hand-made samples having been tried out here in Cleveland for some time past convinced me of the advisability of manufacturing these devices to furnish to the trade at large.

"While the present form is limited to bulletin display racks, samples are now being prepared which will enable a dealer to display these containers on his wall or in his booth and still another will be made in the form of an easel that can be displayed on a table or cabinet.

"From actual experience I find that a consumer likes to look at the records he buys, much the same as he selects a necktie, for in a great many instances the title of a record in a catalog or on a sheet doesn't mean as much as when the customer can see the title itself on the records. I believe every dealer of talking machine records has had this experience, for I have failed to see a single instance in all my traveling among the trade where dealers did not leave a stack or have a few records scattered over the counter, and this has, almost invariably, resulted in the records being scratched or marred in some manner and has made them unsalable.

"The Eclipse Serve-Self Container displays the records in a great variety in a small space with the possibility of getting scratched being eliminated and at the same time each record is accessible. Dealers of talking machines will deem it advisable to equip their stores with these containers immediately, as the cost is but slight compared to the sales that will be made, in fact, they should pay for themselves in a comparatively short time."

The Cleveland Music Trades Association, several of whose members are talking machine retailers, at the December gathering discussed unethical advertising of musical instruments. The members are disposed to draw the line close and insist that such advertising be "strictly legitimate" and in "no way misleading to the public." The association a year ago expelled a member for advertising used instruments as new ones.

"Offerings in the world of talking machine records for the new year promise much, if the January lists of the different manufacturers are a sign," said the musical critic of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, in reviewing offerings for the current month. "Without exception the manufacturers have announced the acquisition of new artists who are new to phonograph lovers. There is much in store for Cleveland devotees of the phonograph, local dealers declare, and old favorites are to be heard in new songs that, while not new, endure because of their merit."

Records, according to local dealers, now in demand include:

Pathé—"Anvil Polka" and the "Whistler and His Dog," by the American Regimental Band; "Flags of Freedom" and "Solid Men to the Front," by the same; "'Neath the Autumn Moon," by Grace Hoffman, and "Love Me or Not," by William Simmons.

Columbia—"Oh, How She Could Spanish," by Irving Kaufman; "Merrily We'll Roll Along," by the Peerless Quartet, and "Everything Is Hunky Dory Down in Honky Tonky Town," by the same.

Victor—"Mad Scene From Lucia," by Gallucurci; "Dixie," by Mabel Garrison; "Bluin' the Blues," by the Original Dixieland Jazz Band; "The Missouri Waltz" and "Kiss Me Again," by Joseph C. Smith's orchestra; "For Your Boy and My Boy," by the Peerless Quartet.

Starr—"Ring Out, Wild Bells," by Royal Dadum; "My Paradise," by Conklin's Society

Orchestra; and "After You've Gone," by Codey's Band.

The "Society of Concerts of the Conservatory," as its official title goes, more generally and conveniently known as the French Orchestra, now touring the United States, stimulated interest in talking machine music by a concert at Gray's Armory, December 29. This band is now working for the Columbia Co.

W. F. Young, manager of the Cleveland branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has been made receiver for the Helm Amusement Co., which failed a few days ago. The company operates the biggest pool and billiard rooms in the city and had bought heavily of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender concern. The war, flu epidemic and other handicaps forced the Helm concern to the wall. Among the assets of the Helm concern are several talking machines supplied by Mr. Young's firm.

The Collister & Sayle Co., Victor retailers, are offering one of the finest lines of machines and records ever displayed in Cleveland. A window display, unique in its variety and make-up, is one of the features of the January drive.

"I think the talking machine dealers will have the best year they have ever known for business," said Charles K. Bennett, manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., and president of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio. "I hear encouragement from retailers who come to our store daily. We can not fill all our orders but I believe manufacturing plants will soon be able to swing most of the business they receive."

The receiver of the Goodman Piano Co., which was placed in bankruptcy several months ago, has been asked through the common pleas court to distribute some of the funds collected. A creditor holding several thousand dollars' worth of notes given for talking machines seeks to have some of the notes paid. The receiver is still disposing of the Goodman stock and maintaining the retail store, in Huron road.

The Fischer Co., 25 Taylor Arcade, is featuring Pathé records, including "The Rose of No Man's Land," "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," and "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning," with great success. Business with this company is steadily expanding; it is placing Pathé phonographs with the best people.

The May Company reports an unprecedented sale of talking machines, records and player-pianos for the holidays. "Business in January has started with a big rush," said Dan J. Nolan, manager of the firm's piano department. "The big question with talking machines and records is to get the goods from the makers."

County Treasurer John A. Zangerle, who is a national authority on taxation, is opposed to taxing household goods, particularly musical instruments, because, he says, they are educational factors. "There is about as much sense in taxing a Victrola or player-piano in my home as there would be in taxing a school house," he said. "Both are built for educational purposes and should be free from taxes."

HOLIDAY BUSINESS ON PACIFIC COAST BREAKS RECORDS

Estimated That Over $1,000,000 Worth of Business Was Lost Temporarily at Least Through Shortage of Stock—Many New Columbia Dealers—Changes Among Sales Staffs

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., January 2.—No previous Christmas season has equaled that just passed in the history of the San Francisco talking machine trade, as far as the business volume goes. The eleventh hour rush was unprecedented. The "flu" no doubt prevented much earlier shopping, but more likely the rush was the result of a sudden realization that this was a good time to celebrate peace and prosperity. Many dealers ran out of popular records and machines of course. Victor goods were scarce in certain styles and as it is not the policy of leading houses to urge patrons to accept substitutes, the loss of sales through lack of stock must have been enormous. Andrew G. McCarthy, head of the Pacific Coast Victor wholesale agency of Sherman, Clay & Co., stated that he could easily have sold a million dollars more of Victor goods had they been available in the year past. The fine new lines of talking machines made a strong bid for favor and thousands of little-advertised machines were disposed of at good prices. The profits this season have been large notwithstanding the many setbacks to business.

All Types of Records in Demand

The many high class concerts recently have had the effect of increasing the sales of classical records, yet popular war and patriotic selections are still going strongly. The time is ripe for peace parodies on the popular war songs. Records of all the standard makes shared in the heavy Christmas demand and machines which play the different kinds of records sold exceptionally well. Never before have the higher priced instruments sold so readily and upon such favorable terms. The percentage of cash sales was far above normal, and the initial payments upon instalment sales averaged higher than formerly.

Miss Hazel R. Layton, who has been with the Oakland Phonograph Co., has accepted a position with the Eastern Outfitting Co. of San Francisco in the talking machine department.

Frederick Stern, president of the Stern Talking Machine Corporation, has been placed at a great disadvantage lately by reason of twelve of his employes being ill, still he is managing somehow to keep things running efficiently. Holiday business is very heavy and promises to continue so well into the new year.

Many New Columbia Agencies

Among the new accounts to be opened by the San Francisco branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. are the following: The Wiley B. Allen Co., F. Friedman Co. and Hale Bros., San Francisco; The Oakland Phonograph Co. and the Capwell Co., Oakland; Tupper & Reed, Berkeley; Fred R. Howe, Santa Cruz; Steinhauer & Eaton, Watsonville; Chas. Burroughs, Sebastopol and the Gern Music Co., Maryville. Many other new accounts have been opened also throughout the state and the San Francisco force has been rushed as never before. Mr. Milnor, manager, says business has tripled in December. They moved over a thousand cabinet machines the first three weeks of the month and did an enormous record business in this territory.

To Attend Meeting of Columbia Managers

N. F. Milnor, San Francisco manager of the Columbia Co., is about to leave for New York, where he will attend the annual convention of Columbia managers. Mr. Milnor has been much overworked lately and he hopes to get a little rest, at least on the train which takes him back East.

W. E. Henry, who has charge of the foreign records in the Coast territory, is in Los Angeles spending the holidays with his family.

J. A. Frye, Pacific Coast factory representative of the Victor Co., is at present in San Francisco and expects to remain here about a month.

Puts Furlough to Good Use

J. J. Black, secretary-treasurer of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who is serving as a clerk in the navy, was allowed a ten-day leave of absence just before Christmas and he spent the vacation working like a slave in the talking machine department, his former stamping ground.

Interesting Personal Items

Francis P. Corcoran, manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., is spending the holidays in Seattle, having decided to visit his wife, who is at her mother's home and is not in the best of health. In the meantime R. E. Wolfinger is acting manager of the talking machine department, which is doing a fine business.

The talking machine department of Clark Wise & Co. did a fine holiday business. Mr. Buffa, formerly with the California Phonograph Co. and more recently an employe in the war industry of the Union Iron Works, is again selling talking machines. He is with Clark Wise & Co. and prefers the music business to riveting steel ship plates.

E. C. C. Johnson, who has been in training at Camp Pike, is now on the force of the Sonora Phonograph Co. in San Francisco.

The new manager of the talking machine department of the Eastern Outfitting Co., San Francisco, is D. S. Hollingshead, who was formerly in business for himself in Baltimore, Md. He succeeds George T. Hively.

Fine Demand for Pathé Products

O. N. Kruschke, San Francisco, reports fine business on Pathé machines this month with the California trade. He has placed many important new agencies recently, among them three in Kohler & Chase stores and one with Byron Mauzy, San Francisco. Mr. Kruschke has returned from a trip through northern California and, though he found business conditions somewhat uncertain by reason of the influenza epidemic, he was not disappointed in the volume of orders taken.

Association to Resume Meetings

The Talking Machine Dealers' Association of San Francisco and Bay Cities will resume regular meetings after New Year's. Billy Morton, of Sherman, Clay & Co., who has gained fame for the success of the dinners he has arranged for the members, is planning to outdo himself the coming year. With conditions approaching normal there will be more opportunity for social functions as a side issue to business meetings than was formerly the case.

The Kohler & Chase talking machine department has added a complete line of Stradivara talking machines and this line makes a splendid showing in the space allotted to it on the main floor.

E. M. BURNHAM VISITS THE EAST

Well-Known Talking Machine Manufacturer of Los Angeles Places Orders in New York

E. M. Burnham, of the Burnham Phonograph Mfg. Co., Los Angeles, Cal., was a recent visitor to New York City, and while here was a guest of Frank T. Nutze, of Stephenson, Inc. As this was Mr. Burnham's first trip East, in addition to taking care of a number of important business matters, he found time to motor to Atlantic City with Mr. Nutze for a week-end, where the photo here reproduced was taken.

E. M. Burnham F. T. Nutze

Mr. Burnham, while here, placed substantial orders for phonograph equipment with various firms, and, of course, this included the Stephenson precision-made motor, which Mr. Burnham uses in his higher-priced phonographs.

SOUND BOX THIEF ABROAD

Slick Worker Makes Good Haul in New York Stores During Holiday Season

The Victrola sound box thief is again abroad in the metropolitan district of New York, and has been very successful in making raids during the holiday season. Only recently he got away with eight sound boxes from one store. In working his game the thief comes into the store and inquires if a woman and child are waiting for him to make a final selection of a Victrola. On being advised that such is not the case he asks if he may be permitted to wait a few moments until they arrive. Permission being granted he wanders about the store and in the booths, looking at the various machines, removes as many sound boxes as possible, then walks out. The following description is given of the thief: About five feet five inches high, dark hair, pale yellow face, of Jewish type, wears a dark overcoat and soft fedora hat. He looks very slippery, according to one dealer.

GREAT GROUP OF VICTOR ARTISTS

Supplement Showing Many Victor Artists in Their Best Known Operatic Costumes Issued With "The Voice of the Victor"

One of the features of "The Voice of the Victor" for December, which made its appearance just prior to the Christmas season, was a large insert, lithographed in several colors, and showing twenty-four of the leading artists on the Victor list in the costumes of the opera parts in which they are best known. The showing is a most impressive one, and the supplement was so arranged that it could be framed and used for window or store display by the dealer. Incidentally the dealer who did not so display it overlooked a fine bit of publicity.

No man succeeds at every attempt, but the harder you try to succeed each time the easier you will find it to succeed the next time.

There are also included and carefully classified the folk dances of other countries, including Finland, France, Ireland, England, Belgium, Russia, Sweden, etc. The illustrations themselves furnish excellent guides as to the use of the Victrola for the purposes of dancing instruction.

STRACCIARI IS FEATURED

In February Window Prepared by the Dealer Service Department of the Columbia Co.

The dealer service department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. has prepared for the use of Columbia dealers an artistic February display, which embodies an unusual art treatment with a strong poster design; the display being lithographed in eight striking colors, backed by a brilliant blue.

The centerpiece, showing the head of Stracciari, the famous baritone, is the second Co-

Unusual Art Treatment of Window Display
Columbia artist to be featured in this prominent way. This card and others which will follow can be framed and used for interior decoration. The smaller card, calling attention to the new Columbia record catalog, is also of a permanent nature, and after it has been used in the window may likewise be framed and hung in the store.

The six cut-out record holders are of unusual design and beautifully illustrated. These holders, when equipped with Columbia metal display records, will concentrate upon the particular records they list, thereby stimulating the demand for these different selections.

In addition to the cards and cut-outs shown herewith there will also be furnished with the February display a fourteen-inch streamer featuring the popular selection "Till We Meet Again." The "Nightingale Waltz," by the Gypsy Orchestra, a record from the international record department's list, is featured on a separate record holder cut-out, and this Gypsy Orchestra music is becoming more popular day by day.

THE PELLETIER CO. CELEBRATES

Marks Fifth Anniversary as Edison Phonograph Representative in Striking Fashion

St. LOUIS, Mo., December 31.—The Pelletier Co., the talking machine store of this city, recently celebrated their fifth anniversary as Edison phonograph representatives in a most elaborate manner that attracted widespread attention from the public.

One of the features of the celebration was the arrangement of an attractive window, illustrated herewith, with a birthday cake as the centerpiece. The cake alone served to arouse the interest of many of the citizens, with the result that the phonograph department of the store was crowded throughout the days of the celebration. In the department proper daily concerts were given and attractive souvenirs were distributed.

The Pelletier Co. have been most successful in the handling of the phonograph here, because they have given this department earnest attention, and have featured the Edison line in a big way, both in advertising and in tone tests under their own and factory auspices.

SOME SALESMANSHIP ESSENTIALS

There Are Six Fundamentals Which Every Salesman Who Desires to Succeed Should Possess, If He Is to Achieve His Goal

There are six essentials which a salesman should have. The first is self-respect. A man should reflect credit upon his house. Second: Knowledge of your goods. Never stop studying them, for study is the simplest way to impart this knowledge to a prospective purchaser. Third: Industry. Good hard work is necessary to success in business. Fourth: Tact. This is the ability of a salesman to do the right thing at the right time. Fifth: Resourcefulness. A salesman should have the ability to meet and overcome new and unexpected obstacles. Sixth: Enthusiasm. This comes from a thorough knowledge of your goods and the knowledge and belief that your goods are superior.

BROOKS MFG. CO., Saginaw, Mich.

VERY OPTIMISTIC IN CHATTANOOGA

Dealers Closed Big Holiday Business—View Prospects for Big Trade in 1919 With Confidence—Business Is on a Healthy Basis

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., January 7.—Dealers generally in this city report exceedingly gratifying business during the month of December. The following few individual reports from various firms give an impression of the general trend of business:

Templeman Piano Co., through Miss Edna Burchfield, manager of the Grafonola department, say that they were entirely pleased with the amount of business done in December, and while they could have done even more business had they secured larger stock, still even as it was their sales force was pushed to the limit waiting on customers. The Templeman store was beautifully decorated with a generous assortment of holly wreaths and presented a most attractive and tasteful appearance.

Miss Burchfield is anticipating a most active January and is making preparations for a much larger business in 1919 than in 1918.

The Rhodes-Mahoney Co., Victrola and Brunswick dealers, enjoyed an unusual Christmas business and the whole month of December sold to the limit of stock on hand. They had the foresight months ago to begin combing the country for talking machines, and after careful investigation bought a large stock of Brunswicks to supply the demand which they knew would exist in December. Their record business was fine and they are well pleased with business done last month.

The Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., Mr. Johnson, manager of the talking machine department, and who sell the Columbia and the "New Edison" lines, were busy all the month of December and after the 24th inst. were absolutely sold out on all types that they had on hand the forepart of the month, and were regretfully forced to turn customers away or in some instances to take orders for future delivery. Mr. Johnson in common with all dealers expects no slackening in the demand this year.

The Stulce-Yarnell Furniture Co., Columbia exclusively, report through Mr. Stulce, senior member of the firm, that their Christmas anticipation as to business was fully equaled, and everything in the store was sold, leaving them ready for the new year with fresh stock (en route) and a most promising outlook.

The forecast for the new year in Chattanooga and vicinity is excellent.

ATTRACTIVELY ARRANGED PARLORS

Greenpoint Talking Machine Co. Install Number of Soundproof Booths—Business Brisk

Among the increasing number of attractively fitted up parlors of talking machine dealers in metropolitan territory may be classed those of the Greenpoint Talking Machine Co., Victor representatives, 638 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. This concern recently installed a number of soundproof booths, and have every facility for demonstrating to excellent advantage the merits of Victor machines and records. During the absence of Louis R. Sherman, the head of this company, who, by the way, enlisted in the U. S. Navy last May, and who is now on Coast duty, the demands of customers are being looked after very ably by Mrs. Sherman, who reports a splendid holiday business, and is very optimistic over prospects for the New Year, now that war restrictions are lifted, and there is every possibility of getting both machines and records to meet the demands of their increasing patronage.

The General Mfg. Corp., Milwaukee, Wis., has been incorporated with capital stock of $100,000 to manufacture talking machines, phonographs, automobile accessories, etc. The incorporators are Michael Levin, Joseph G. Konop and Josephine P. Shea.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., January 6.—There is joy among all the talking machine men at this period, owing to the greatest holiday business they have ever enjoyed, as well as one of the greatest periods in profits they have yet passed through. It is rare to see so much enthusiasm tempered with so many regrets; enthusiasm at the amount of money they have made, and regrets that the business placed in their hands could not be handled for want of goods.

It seems most unfortunate when a merchant can see money within his grasp, and has every facility for handling and raking it in, and yet he must stand the "rake" aside idly because conditions force him to keep it out of use. It is the general opinion of the dealers that 1919 is going to be a much more profitable year for them than the one just passed, for they believe that business is going to continue good throughout the year, and that they are going to get the goods, now that the war is over, and in sufficient quantities to meet all demands.

It is believed that it will probably be the first of April before a materially larger output of machines will be coming from the factories, but they think it will be only a month or so before the record situation will have been cleaned up and this end of the business will then look very much brighter.

Could Have Sold 1,000 Per Cent. More

Manager A. J. Heath, of the Columbia Co., states that while the machine shortage was very acute at times, yet his house was fortunate in receiving a number of carload express shipments just before Christmas that enabled them to deliver at least a few machines to all of their dealers, and thus help them out partially. Mr. Heath says that, owing to the popularity of the Columbia, he believes that had they been able to supply the machines and records their dealers would have been able to have sold 1,000 per cent. more than they did.

"One remarkable thing about the holiday business," says Mr. Heath, "was that the dealers enjoyed a large percentage of cash business, and when they did sell on the deferred payment plan the payments were substantial, averaging from seven to ten months."

As to records, the Columbia Co. received, during the month of December, a number of freight shipments of records, as well as two carloads of express shipments which enabled them to keep their dealers well supplied with standard numbers as well as the popular selling numbers. "While the shortage of Grafonolas during the past year was very acute," says Mr. Heath, "all of our dealers were able to make up any losses in machine business by additional sales in records, and, as the record business is cash, it is my firm conviction that the dealers are in a more healthy condition financially than ever before."

O. F. Benz, the Columbia's record expert, was a Philadelphia visitor recently, as was R. E. Rae, of the Columbia general sales department. Mr. Heath left the end of the week, accompanied by C. A. Malliet, in charge of the Dictaphone part of the business, for New York to attend the convention of Columbia dealers which began in that city on the 6th.

E. A. Manning, a Columbia representative here, who has been seriously ill for more than three months, is now entirely out of danger, although it is hardly possible that he will be able to return to his work before a month or six weeks.

Louis Buehn Tells of Terrific Demand

Louis Buehn, of the Louis Buehn Co., says

there was a terrific demand for Victor talking machines and records during December, and while his firm did a very good and a very profitable business it was nothing in comparison with what it would have been possible for them to do had they been able to get Victor machines and records.

Mr. Buehn states he believes that it may be three months more before the situation will become satisfactory, when the supply will be equal to the demand. He hopes that by April the jobbers will see a marked improvement in machines, and he believes the record situation will better itself within a month. E. P. Bliss, Jr., who is in the Government radio service, has just returned from Europe on the "Utah," and is helping out at the Buehn store, although he is still in uniform.

Geo. M. Austin Buys Ediphone Business

Mr. Buehn has sold the Edison dictating machine end of his business—or, more properly speaking, the Ediphone business—to George M. Austin, who has been in charge of the business for the past five years, since his coming to this city from the South. Mr. Austin will continue the business at the present location, where he has ample quarters, and where he has already met with much success.

Mr. Austin says that he believes his line of the trade is going to have a very good year, for while it might have been expected that the shortage of help during the war would be of benefit to the dictating machine, it really was not, and they had as hard a time as before the war in trying to convince the business man of the great advantage as a time saver of the dictating machine. The Ediphone was placed in a number of big establishments during December, the two most notable being the Atlantic

WHAT happens in your store when a customer has $200?

Do you sell him, say, a $165 machine and $35 worth of records, or a Victrola for ALL the money? It is an art to develop a consistent record buyer, for persistent record sales create and sustain a profitable business.

By all means, sell the highest priced models, but stop at the amount which is a burden to the customer. Build a business FIRST and good sales will come afterwards.

PENN SERVICE

This year begins its twenty-first year of service to, and hearty co-operation with, talking machine dealers, with greatly increased facilities.

—is in the past.

Suffice it to say that PENN SERVICE has been made to mean much during the past year.

It could not, of course, offer an abundance of merchandise—but it did offer co-operation to the dealer in his merchandising problems and a fair and equal distribution of the machines and records that were obtainable.

Thus PENN SERVICE, in spite of curtailments, meant more than ever before.

Business conditions cannot be accurately predicted at the present date

But—

It would seem that with the lifting of war curtailments, the release of labor, and the return of industry to peace-time pursuits, the talking machine trade will gradually return to not only normal conditions but a record year.

PENN SERVICE will then exceed all its former high attainments. The new building which we now occupy offers, through its large area and efficient equipment, unexcelled facilities for dealer service.

We are, furthermore, exclusively wholesalers, which means that our entire energies are devoted to the dealers' needs.

Among Mr. Austin's visitors the past month were Mr. Dexheimer, factory representative, and N. C. Durand, vice-president of the company.

Pathé Sales Increase 300 Per Cent.

The Pathé Co. increased their business in December more than 300 per cent. over any previous month. They have had to entirely readjust conditions in the office to handle it, and have had to get another building to care for their wholesale end. Mr. Tay has moved his office to the rear of the shop, and the clerical force has been considerably enlarged. Mr. Eckhardt says that they had a good gross year in 1918, and now he was going out to have a big net year in 1919.

Mr. Eckhardt in commenting on the wonderful trade possibilities for the Pathé line dealers in 1919 said: "Eventually the Pathé retail and wholesale business will be dissociated, and the first step in this direction has been made in the renting of a five-story building at 104 Chestnut street for the storing and handling of the wholesale end of the business, but the offices for that end will remain, for the present, at the Pathé retail shop."

Weymann Sees Encouraging Outlook

H. A. Weymann & Son have been enjoying a wonderful talking machine business and the holidays practically cleaned them up. They have received promises from the Victor Co. of an early return to normal conditions in the shipments of machines and records, and with a return of a number of men formerly in their employ, but who were in Government service, they are starting the new year with a most encouraging outlook. Among the visitors to the Weymann store the past week was Charles H. Godfrey, the talking machine dealer of Atlantic City.

Penn Co. Issue Handsome Calendar

The Penn Phonograph Co. are well satisfied with the December business and feel that they have good reason to enter the new year optimistic as to the outcome. The firm have distributed a very handsome calendar to the trade. They have received word from Earl Dare, formerly their head bookkeeper, to the effect that he expects shortly to return to the office from France, where he is now serving as a sergeant in a machine gun supply department.

H. E. Blake Tells of Progress

Herbert E. Blake, the big Edison dealer at Eleventh and Walnut streets, says that his business in December went way beyond anything he had figured on doing, and way beyond anything they ever did before. They are still working on their Christmas deliveries. During the entire holiday season they were kept at the store every night until 10 o'clock and often later.

Gives Dinner to Edison Dealers

R. B. Cope, the Edison distributor here, and head of the Girard Phonograph Co., will give a dinner late this week to all the Edison dealers in this city at the Bingham House.

Geo. W. Davis Falls in Line

Morris Goodstein has sold his talking machine store, located at 5207 Market street, to George W. Davis, a Philadelphia merchant. The business will be continued at the former address, with Homer Davis as the manager. The place will be considerably improved, and with a live wire as is Mr. Davis success is assured in advance, as the store is admirably located.

TWENTY-FIRST YEAR OF BUSINESS

Penn Phonograph Co., of Philadelphia, Attain Their Majority This Year—Have Made Wonderful Progress Under the Capable Direction of H. F. Miller and T. W. Barnhill

PHILADELPHIA, PA., January 6.—The year 1919 begins the twenty-first year of the business life of the Penn Phonograph Co., of this city. In 1898, while the country was in the midst of another war, this firm was organized by John B. Miller, together with H. F. Miller and T. W. Barnhill, who are the present "men behind the guns" in the organization. They came together to conduct a jobbing business, although at first the lines carried were the old style Edison and Columbia machines using cylinder records.

The subsequent history of the firm is very interesting. At the beginning the entire affairs of the business were carried on by the three principals, and the large organization which Mr. Miller and Mr. Barnhill are now at the head of is a great testimonial of their untiring efforts. Their success has been attributed to the fact that from the first day of their business career dealer co-operation was the keynote. The dealer's needs were carefully studied and hearty support was given. The growth of the Penn Phonograph Co. has kept pace with the expansion of the industry, and the contribution to each other's success was mutual.

When the Victor Co. was organized the Penn Phonograph Co. foresaw the great possibilities of the disc record, and became the first jobbing house in Philadelphia to carry the Victor line.

The new year finds the Penn Phonograph Co. established in their new building at 913 Arch street, which is the last word in efficiency for handling the business of their large clientele. The various floors are laid out with a view to taking care of the dealer's needs in the best possible way. The newest devices known have been installed, and when normal conditions are once more returned there will be the opportunity to demonstrate these exceptional facilities to the full extent.

The remarkable growth of this organization in the past is an indication of the further progress to be expected during 1919, which, it is generally predicted, will be one of the greatest years of expansion that the talking machine trade has ever known.

ATLANTA TALKING MACHINE TRADE READY FOR FUTURE

After an Unusual Volume of Holiday Business the Various Concerns Are Planning to Secure Full Benefits From 1919 Prosperity—Some Interesting Business Reports Made

ATLANTA, GA., January 8.—Trade conditions in this city during December were exceedingly fine. Despite the shortage of talking machines, which has been apparent for some time, there was such an opportunity afforded to sell anything and everything that had the appearance of a phonograph, any price, any style, any make and any finish, that the business done was "easy money."

The Haverty Furniture Co., one of the largest Columbia dealers in the South, who also sell the Pathéphone, say that their December business was in all respects as large and satisfactory as they had expected. They were fortunate, owing to their great purchasing power, and the keen insight of their executives, in having placed orders early in the year, which gave them a reserve stock to sell in December, and to use the words of Mr. Wilson, manager of the Grafonola department, they "mopped up." Reports from the Haverty chain of stores in Tennessee, Alabama, Texas, South Carolina and many Georgia cities are all to the effect that they sold to the limit of their ability to supply during December.

The Delpheon Shop, Arcade Building, Mr. Sunderland, manager, who sell the Columbia and the Delpheon, are quoted as saying that they are exceedingly gratified with their December business, it being far larger than last year, and that in the face of more difficulty in getting stock. This is explained by the fact that their record sales have increased wonderfully, and this increase helped to make the total volume of sales larger.

An innovation was "pulled" by Mr. Sunderland on Christmas Eve, when he secured a singer, placed a Grafonola in the front of his shop, secured a supply of the Columbia record, "Rose of No Man's Land," and sold the first hundred of the records in an hour. He says it was the brightest spot in the holiday business.

The Cable Piano Co., the largest Victor dealers in the South, were agreeably surprised when they received a shipment of the $275 model Victrolas just before Christmas, and they therefore had a substantial offering for some of their many eager customers. The big store, so Mr. Salter, manager of the Victrola department, says, has been crowded all during December, and they had a very gratifying volume of sales. With the prospects of the Victor Co. being much better able to supply the exceedingly active demand for Victrolas early in the year, they expect a record business in 1919.

I. M. & R. D. Bame, Victor and Sonora dealers, have been as busy as possible all during the past month, and by very careful management they were able to place in the hands of those whom they really preferred as customers almost what they wanted as to style, make and price.

The Zaban Furniture Co., Columbia dealers exclusively, report a large December business, with more cash, larger record sales, and heavier first payments than ever before. This concern has only been open about a year and the volume of their business is now equal to that of some dealers who have been in business for two to three years. This indicates fine management and intelligent selling methods. The firm members express themselves as being entirely pleased and satisfied with their year's business and with the Columbia line.

The Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., with Edward Brotherton in charge of their talking machine department, are well pleased with the holiday business, and particularly so with the increase in the total sales of 1918 over 1917. Mr. Brotherton, who is one of the most experienced phonograph managers in the South, took charge with them about six months since, and they have grown and increased every month since. This old and representative house sell the Victrola and Sonora, and also the Emerson record.

The Atlanta Talking Machine Co., of whom it was written in these columns last month that they had changed hands and were looking to largely increase their business, have enjoyed a wonderful holiday trade. They had on hand when December opened quite a large stock of Aeolian-Vocalions, and with these and such Grafonolas as they could get they had practically enough to meet the demand. They are the oldest Columbia dealers in Atlanta, also were the first Vocalion dealers in the Southern States, and one of the first ten or twelve in the United States, it being a matter of record that the first Aeolian-Vocalion ever sold south of the Potomac River was retailed by this company in this city. In common with all talking machine dealers they anticipate a great business in 1919.

Phonographs, Inc., and the Diamond Disc Shop, the first being the Edison jobber, also conducting a retail store, and the second retailers across town, received just before Christmas a solid car of the "New Edisons." It is needless to say that this brought "joy to their souls," and they were disposed of to the very last instrument as rapidly as they were placed on sale. The "New Edison" and the Edison records are continuing an ever-increasing volume of business locally, and the local jobber is adding new dealers as fast as they can be supplied.

The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., Victor jobbers, have had an enormous trade which it has been difficult to fill as fully as they would like, owing to the scarcity of Victor goods. Now that the war is at an end they are quite pleased over the outlook for 1919.

The Columbia Graphophone Co., through Westervelt Terhune, manager of the local branch, have just completed the largest year's business in the history of the company, and he expects a very much larger business in 1919 than in 1918. All of the selling force traveling out of Atlanta were much pleased with their year's sales, and really feel that in addition to the actual business obtained they made many warm and loyal friends for Columbia in 1918.

Elyea-Austell Co., through Mr. Upshaw, in charge of the Victrola jobbing department, who have the State of Georgia, have simply been "hands up" all during the past year. It was not a question of selling such Victrolas as they could get to their retail friends—it was to fight to keep them from being taken away from them, even before the stock actually reached the wholesale warehouse, so eager were dealers for Victrolas. All things considered, they had a wonderful year, and in 1919 expect to do better.

Distinctive Features

- ☞ The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same position in both positions.
- ☞ Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.
- ☞ The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.
- ☞ The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers. Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.
- ☞ The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.
- ☞ The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.
- ☞ The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

MEETING OF PORTLAND ASSOCIATION

Rush of Holiday Trade Results in Low Attendance—Special Drive for New Members—Object to Including Records With Machine Price

PORTLAND, ORE., January 4.—There were only fourteen present at the monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association on Tuesday evening, December 14, but while small in numbers it was big in spirit. The small attendance was due to the fact that a number of the talking machine stores kept open later than usual to look after the Christmas rush and were tired out. Some of the association members are recovering from the influenza and severe colds and were unable to be present. But, as before stated, the meeting was a lively one and important suggestions and plans were made for the future. The meeting was held at the Imperial Hotel and after a dinner which is always an enjoyable and interesting feature of these occasions the meeting was called to order by Taylor C. White, vice-president. After the minutes had been read by C. Alphonse, the secretary, suggestions were made by Mr. Morris, of the Wiley B. Allen Co., Mr. Loder, of the Bush & Lane Co., Mr. Matney, of Meier & Frank Co. and other members as to the best methods to be pursued for the good of the trade. These meetings have established a fine feeling of friendship among the dealers and have been of great benefit to all who have attended them. The desire of the president, E. B. Hyatt, is that this feeling of friendship and helpfulness shall grow, that business conditions shall be conducted in a manner that will be of benefit to the public as well as to the dealers and their assistants. Speakers of prominence will be provided for future meetings and a committee was appointed to call upon all the talking machine dealers and try to secure their interest and get every talking machine dealer in the city to join the association and take an active part in the meetings.

It was the consensus of opinion that records should not be given with machines when they are sold. The instruments are offered at fair, reasonable prices and there is no reason why records should be included in the sale price. The record business is a business in itself and customers are understanding that and are, in most cases, perfectly satisfied to purchase a talking machine on its merits and then buy the records they prefer.

The attention of the association was called to the fact that a furniture dealer was advertising Victrolas at reduced prices. Mr. Hyatt made a motion that this cut rate business should be looked into and then reported to the association. The next meeting of the association will be held the second Tuesday in January.

IMPORTANT VICTOR CO. STATEMENT

Reasons for Scarcity of Victor Products Explained in Statement Just Issued to Trade

The Victor Talking Machine Co. under date of December 18 sent out the following communication to the trade:

"To attempt to capitalize our efforts in the performance of our patriotic duty would have been decidedly unpatriotic from our viewpoint, and accordingly we repeatedly refrained from publicity of this type throughout the entire period during which we were participating in war work for our Government.

"Now that we are definitely out of the war we feel some explanation is due the public concerning the unprecedented shortage of Victor products, and to assist in alleviating in a measure the conditions confronting Victor dealers we have designed a special card for use in your store. Two are enclosed and additional cards are now going forward to Victor wholesalers for use in demonstrating rooms where needed.

"The war has been brought to a successful termination simply because of the sacrifices that all of us have freely made, and those of us who have made such sacrifices can once again turn to our peaceful pursuits with a full knowledge and clear conscience of a great duty well done. The popularity of Victor products is greater today than ever before, and consequently your share in our future prosperity is definitely assured."

The card referred to reads as follows:
To the public:

Feeling that some explanation is due to the public concerning the unprecedented scarcity of Victrolas and Victor records, we desire to make the following statement:

The above condition is due, as all such conditions must primarily be due, to the unquestioned popularity of Victor products. It is also due to the fact that so long as the United States was at war we believed our paramount duty lay in assisting the Government in the prosecution of the war to the fullest extent of our abilities; our facilities had been freely offered and accepted.

Immediately upon the signing of the armistice and our release from Government obligations, we took all necessary steps to insure the earliest possible return to an increased output of Victor products, but in the interim we would bespeak for Victor dealers and for ourselves some measure of consideration which we believe will be accorded by every patriotic American.

ATTAINING THE SUPERLATIVE

Most anybody can do business fairly well. Many men can do business very well. A few can do business superbly well, but the man who not only does his work superbly well but adds to it a last touch of personality through great zeal, patience, and persistence, making it peculiar, unique, individual, distinct and unforgettable, is an artist. And this applies to all and every field of human endeavor—managing a talking machine store, a hotel, a bank, a factory—writing, speaking, modeling, painting. It is that last undefinable touch that counts: the last three seconds he knocks off the record that proves the man a genius.

DECKS CLEARED FOR THE NEW YEAR IN PITTSBURGH

Available Stocks Wiped Out by Holiday Business and Jobbers and Retailers Are Preparing for a Lively Future—Various Changes Reported in the Local Trade

PITTSBURGH, PA., January 5.—Unprecedented conditions prevailed in the talking machine field in this city during the holiday season just closed, for never before was there such an insistent demand for talking machines and phonographs of all the leading makes and popular styles. Retailers, as well as jobbing houses, were practically sold out before Christmas Eve, not only machines but in the more popular records, for the latter seemed to enjoy unusual favor as Christmas gifts. Gift certificates for records were used with great success, and served to stimulate business greatly. Naturally the trade is in an optimistic mood regarding the future, the general attitude being reflected in the opinion of A. B. Smith, manager of the Columbia branch here, who gave it as his belief that 1919 was destined to be "one of the greatest years in the history of the talking machine trade," due to the return of the soldiers from overseas and the readjustment of business generally.

The C. C. Mellor Co., Victor distributors, reported all sold out a week before Christmas, and were then making sales contingent upon the arrival of new shipments of Victrolas.

The Victrola Department of McCreery & Co., under the management of A. N. Ansell, had only three Victrolas on hand the day after Christmas and they were awaiting shipping orders.

Although A. R. Meyer, manager of the talking machine department of Joseph Horne & Co., supplemented his Victrola stock with a complete line of Columbia Grafonolas and records, there were not sufficient goods to supply the holiday demand.

H. J. Brennen, manager of the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co., stated that he was highly pleased with the 1918 business record, which he said indicated in a "most unmistakable" manner that the Pathé had come to stay in Pittsburgh and that the outlook for 1919 was exceedingly bright.

Mr. Brennen stated that the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co. was well fortified for the Christmas sale and that the foresight of the company in placing several carloads of Pathé machines and Pathé records in stock was justified in view of the big sales that were made during the holiday season.

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers, through A. A. Buehn, general manager, stated that in view of general conditions 1918 had proved a most satisfactory year, with more orders for Edison goods than could be handled.

The annual dinner and theatre party of the Buehn Phonograph Co. staff of employes was held on Saturday evening, December 28. The dinner was held at the Fort Pitt Hotel, at which Manager A. A. Buehn was the toastmaster. He made a brief talk appreciative of the loyalty and efficiency of his co-workers in "boosting" the Edison in the Pittsburgh district. Following the dinner the vaudeville show at the Davis theatre was enjoyed by the party.

Gray & Martin, Sonora distributors, reported a very satisfactory year although they were compelled to take many delayed orders for Sonoras, due to the shortage that existed just before the holidays. It is hinted that the firm, who are handicapped in their present quarters, are likely to branch out on an extensive scale shortly and may embark in the sale of pianos and player-pianos in a new location.

The latest phonograph to make its bow into Pittsburgh is the Brooks Automatic Repeating Phonograph, which is now established at 3009 Jenkins Arcade, where the sales and demonstration rooms are located. The sales agent is Newton B. Heims, who was formerly connected with the Victrola department of the W. F. Frederick Co.

With the advent of the New Year a change has been made in the Victrola department of the W. F. Frederick Co. by which the entire retail trade will be under the personal direction of E. B. Heyser, general manager of the company. The Victrola department itself will be directed by G. W. Watkins, while Harry Buck will have charge of the sales of Victor records.

George S. Hards, who for the past eight years has been in charge of the Frederick Co. Victrola department, is to retire, effective January 15. Mr. Hards opened the original Victrola department for the Frederick Co. and was a potent factor in placing the retail department on the high plane that it exists today.

George H. Rewbrid, manager of the wholesale department of the Frederick Co., stated that the trade was very satisfactory considering the lack of stock.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, was called to New York by the death of his brother, L. L. Roush, who was well known as a portrait artist. His death occurred December 19. Mr. Roush has left for Seabreeze, Florida, where he will spend the remainder of the winter.

French Nestor, of the Standard Talking Machine Co., was bereaved by the passing away of his brother, Frederick Nestor, at Parsons, West Virginia, shortly before the holidays.

E. C. Rauth and H. G. Koerber, of St. Louis, Mo., well known to the Victor trade, were Pittsburgh visitors on their way east to Camden, N. J., and New York.

The Dauler & Close Furniture Co. reported an exceptionally busy season on the sale of Cheney phonographs. Mr. Close stated that the higher priced Cheney phonographs were in strong demand and that the last machine in the wareroom which was sold on Christmas eve was eagerly striven for by at least six prospective customers. The sale was made to a home where a soldier boy was to be on a Christmas furlough.

J. A. Endres, sales manager of the Brunswick phonograph, in the Pittsburgh district, was enthusiastic concerning the excellent record made by his department during the year that has just closed. He said: "We are very proud of the accomplishment made in the Pittsburgh district in the sales of the Brunswick and I am more than confident that with the passing of wartime conditions there will be an abundance of Brunswick Phonographs and that the sales for 1919 will be record breaking."

In a recent issue of The World it was stated that the Victrola department of Kaufmann's, "The Big Store," was under the supervision of E. F. Harwood, with Mrs. C. H. Walrath in direct charge. Mrs. Walrath advises us that she has been in entire charge of the department as buyer and manager for the past fifteen months, and is likewise in charge of all collections for the piano and Victrola departments.

The Joseph Horne Co. had a splendid Victrola exhibit, which their display manager, C. F. Goettman, conceived to show off gowns for children, some furniture, but principally the handsome Victrola. The Children's Party was the theme and the kiddies were in party dress while the little hostess turned the crank of the Victrola. The Victrola came from the department of A. R. Meyer, who has splendid display rooms on the balcony at this large Pittsburgh department store.

Corporal George B. Davis, who prior to his enlistment in the army was shipper in the wholesale Victrola department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., this city, made the supreme sacrifice in France, passing away from mustard-gas wounds. Corporal Davis was twenty-three years of age and was well known to the retail talking machine trade of Pittsburgh and vicinity. He died September 27 last. He was connected with the One Hundred and Third Field Signal Battalion. He had been on the front in active service for forty days when he was fatally hurt.

THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., January 3.—It may not as yet be easy to get used to writing the new year, 1919, and it may be some time yet before everyone will have fallen gracefully into the habit, but certain it is that the year is going to be momentous in business history. That seems to be the view taken by the trade everywhere. Whereas several months ago no one would have dared to make a prediction as to the future of business, now there are unexpected activities to be witnessed in every talking machine organization throughout the city, all of them falling over themselves in their eagerness to make ready for the big business. There was not an establishment throughout Boston that did not do a land-office business in December, and there are those who see a continuation of this right through 1919, judging from the call this month.

Need for an Organization

One thing that would help materially to increase business generally and make for better feeling all around is a talking machine organization. On this the first of the new year it is most fitting to speak emphatically of this matter. The talking machine industry locally is almost the only line that is not represented by some official organization. Whether the lack of some sound trade body is due to feelings of mistrust on the part of certain men the writer is not altogether prepared to say, but he does know, if hearsay report is to be believed, that when an attempt was made several years ago to start an organization, which began auspiciously with a dinner at the Quincy House, one local dealer quite discouraged the members of his staff from joining. This was most unfortunate. Such a spirit never can make for corporate success. There should be a broad feeling, a mutual understanding, a fine spirit of cooperation, and all this can be created in no way so satisfactory as through a trade organization. To some of the enterprising spirits in the talking machine business in Boston this appeal is made: that the trade get together for individual, mutual collective benefit. Everyone would be the beneficiary of some well-organized organization. The benefits of such far outweigh the disadvantages—if there are any. In fact, there would be nothing to lose and everything to gain. Let the trade give this matter serious consideration. This department would like to hear from the trade touching this matter. If anyone can present a good valid reason for not organizing we will be glad to give publicity to said reasons in this department.

Organize Emerson New England, Inc.

Oscar W. Ray, whose identification with the Emerson Co. here in Boston won him many friends in the local field, and who temporarily dropped his talking machine interests to enter war work over in New York City, is back again in Boston and bids fair to be identified with the Emerson interests in a far larger way than ever before. Mr. Ray now becomes vice-president and general manager of the Emerson New England, Inc., whose sales offices comprise a large suite on the sixth floor of the Little Building. A few of these rooms Mr. Ray occupied before going over to New York. The Emerson New England, Inc., is a new concern with the following-named officers: President, Arthur H. Cushman, whose name is readily identified with Emerson interests; secretary, M. B. Ray; treasurer, James M. McLaughlin; and directors, Messrs. Cushman, Ray, McLaughlin and Oscar W. Ray (previously mentioned as vice-president and general manager), and Edward McLaughlin, the consulting lawyer of the concern. James M. McLaughlin, the treasurer, is a Boston man who has long been interested in the talking machine proposition largely from the educational standpoint. He was at one time director of music in the Boston public schools and is a close student of music in its best form. He has long recognized in the talking machine a valuable medium of instruction and he has become associated with this new concern with a strong desire to force home upon the public the Emerson's especial advantages in this particular field.

The Emerson New England, Inc., will have an organization of ten people in the office, and five men on the road and these will cover all of New England. C. D. McKinnon will have the Boston territory. He has had four years' retail experience with the Victor, and was with the Emerson for a time in New York State. A. J. Deslaurier will have eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island. H. L. Coombs will have western Massachusetts and Connecticut, and James M. McLaughlin, Jr., will cover Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

General Manager Ray, who will divide his time between Boston and New York, is most enthusiastic over the new proposition. He is a man of far-seeing judgment and has distinct ideas as to the future of the Emerson proposition if conducted along painstaking business lines. He believes that the public will be receptive to good service, and with the line of goods that the Emerson not only now has but proposes to make distinctly adaptable to the needs of a music-loving public, he plans to give them the best of service. The new organization is one he knows that will command the attention of business men even apart from the more strictly field of music, and with a strong organization so far as its personnel goes he sees a most attractive future for the new concern.

Eastern Talking Machine Co. Expansion

George A. Dodge, the new head of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., who is making a strong bid for the 1919 business he is sure is coming, is planning several improvements in his Tremont street establishment, all with an eye to giving the public better service in these headquarters which now are altogether devoted to the retail business. Wholesale Manager Fitzgerald is now located at the Oxford street headquarters, which for the wholesale purposes are to be so enlarged that it will not be long before the entire building will be in use. Mr. Dodge has already enlarged his private office on the third floor of the retail store, and he is planning to have the executive offices for his clerks, which are on this

Fred E. Mann Expresses Appreciation

Manager Fred E. Mann, of the Columbia Co., has addressed a fine New Year's letter to all his dealers in this locality. He congratulates the dealers "because of the fine spirit of co-operation which has been evidenced by practically every dealer during this period of intense shortage of production, and we wish also to express our thanks for the cordial support which about 75 per cent. of the dealers under the jurisdiction of the Boston branch have given our dealers' service department in the first year of its reorganization."

One significant paragraph in Manager Mann's letter reads as follows: "The shortage in Grafonola production has not been without advantages, because it has taught many of us how to vastly increase our record sales, and with the normal increase of Grafonola production which should make itself felt within the next few weeks we should not for a moment lose sight of the excellent profits which come from the sale of records. With this constantly in mind we will find it comparatively easy to show very substantial increases in record sales during 1919, just as these increases have been brought about in 1918."

Manager Silliman reports that the December business was surprisingly heavy, and there are indications, provided that the goods can be had, that January will be the biggest similar month in the history of the company. Through this Boston headquarters Frank French, proprietor of the Studio Shop at Manchester, N. H., exclusive Edison dealer, was able to sell an Eighteenth Century English period Edison model valued at $1,400 to Mr. Plant, of Plant Brothers, manufacturers of Manchester. This handsome model was taken from Boston over the road by automobile.

Large New Year's Business

Manager Mann reports the Columbia business as very large. By the time the New Year had arrived the local stock was entirely sold out, with many large unfilled orders on the books, which will probably be delivered some time during the current month. Mr. Mann went over to New York this week so as to be present for the managers' conference which meets in the metropolis on January 6.

To Look After Brunswick Distribution

The demand for Brunswick machines handled by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., whose headquarters are at 94 Washington street, is reported to have grown to such proportions that it was necessary to place the New England distributing agency in other hands, and Harry L. Spencer, head of the Boylston street house of Kraft & Spencer, Inc., has taken it over. Mr. Spencer will push the Brunswick for all it is worth.

Cheney Placed With Many Agents

The Cheney proposition in the hands of Herbert L. Royer mounted into large sales during December, and the house was considerably behindhand in delivering goods. Mr. Royer has lately placed the Cheney with several out-of-town dealers who are in a position to introduce it among a large following.

Plans for Big Pathé Expansion

Wholesale Manager Ainslie, of the Pathé department of the Hallet & Davis Co., says that he succeeded in supplying the dealers with machines, though some of them had to be satisfied with cheaper-priced outfits than their customers were really demanding. Manager Ainslie is daily expecting in this city J. A. Tidmarsh, who has been associated with the Pathé line in Chicago, and who is coming to Boston to make a special study of the Eastern methods of handling the machine and the situation in general with a view to copying Mr. Ainslie's program, which has met with such marked success at this end. Mr. Tidmarsh plans to remain here a month, and will then return to Chicago, from which city he will travel as a special phonograph man, his work among the road men to be of an educational character. He will cover a field inclusive of Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana and Ohio. Manager Ainslie has some very pronounced ideas as to conducting his Pathé department, and he is getting things into shape for a prosperous 1919. He is having the rear portion of the fourth floor of the Boylston street quarters made over into a record room, and tiers of shelves are being installed sufficient to carry thousands of records.

Enter Business Together

George Rosen, formerly associated with the Rosen Talking Machine Co. in School street, and Ralph Silverman, who prior to his enlistment in the United States Navy was assistant manager of the same house, have entered business together and will give their entire attention to the repairing of talking machines and supplies. They have organized under the name of the Phonograph Supply Co. of New England, and have taken quarters at 28 School street. They are both experienced young men and are widely known and popular in the trade.

Closed a Great Year's Business

Walter Gillis, manager of the Victor department at the Henry F. Miller establishment, reports that he had a very large December business which was almost the equal of that of a year before. Mr. Gillis is eagerly awaiting the return of his son, Walter Gillis, Jr., who has been in France with the 101st Engineers for considerably more than a year. He should be home now by the early spring, it is thought.

Death of Chas. P. Trundy Much Regretted

The trade is called to mourn the death of Charles P. Trundy, who after several years of uphill work finally found himself at the head of the New England Talking Machine Co. at 16 Beach street, and the tone arm which his company was able to produce under his careful development is regarded very highly in the trade. Mr. Trundy had been identified with the Boston talking machine business for a number of years, although he was only thirty-seven years of age. He had been manager for George Lincoln Parker for some time, and also had been associated with the Eastern Talking Machine Co. He is survived by a mother, who lives in Lynn, and who will probably carry on the business. Mr. Trundy had been ill with influenza but a short time and his death occurred at a local hotel, where he happened to be when stricken with the dread disease. Frank Edgar Belyea, who has been associated with Mr. Trundy for nearly a year in the factory, and is sympathetically familiar with the tone arm, will remain in immediate charge of the factory for the present at least.

Making Their Periodic Auditing Visit

Messrs. Moorey, Victor and Tonsmiere, Columbia auditors, are spending a few days in Boston going over the affairs of Manager Mann's department, making their periodic inventory, as it were. The auditors come over here quarterly and are always pleasantly entertained while in town.

Scoring a Great Success

Richard Nelson, whose headquarters are now in Columbus avenue, has been making a great success in the distribution of the OkeH records. One of his new staff is Richard Keyes, who is about starting out in Massachusetts territory for this line. Mr. Nelson had a big business during December in Sonora machines, and he says with him it was about the same story as with other talking machine dealers—difficulty in getting an adequate amount of goods. He reports that the business in the new Sonora-silvered-needle has been phenomenal. He has been able to dispose of large quantities of them to many local houses and the demand is growing fast for this line. Mr. Nelson has just returned from a week's trip to Old Point Comfort, Va., whither he took Mrs. Nelson.

over in New York the end of the year (naturally remaining over for the New Year's Eve celebration) to try and get a supply of machines of which the Boston headquarters are sadly in need. It is learned that every Vocalion dealer made a splendid showing during December and that the total business throughout the local territory was very large indeed. Edward Kitson, who has had several years' experience in the talking machine business, has associated himself with the Vocalion and will spend most of his time on the outside.

Installs Columbia Department

Summerfield's, a large Boston furniture house, with branches in other big centers, especially Detroit, and which handles the Columbia, has taken over the Sterns Furniture Co. at Worcester and installed a Columbia department, which has met with pronounced success from the start. The December business is reported to have been enormous despite the fact that there had been no time to install demonstration booths. These are now being put in.

Sympathy for Mr. Skelton

H. R. Skelton, who travels for the Edison line in the role of field supervisor, is receiving the sympathy of his many friends in the serious illness of one of his young children at his home at Nantasket. The little one was taken ill during the holiday season and the father was unable to get away into his territory as early as he had anticipated.

Death of Mrs. Mellon

Mrs. Catherine Mellon, one of the staff of bookkeepers of the Columbia wholesale, died a few days ago of pneumonia. She had been with the house for two years and was a most valued employe.

T. N. Newton, head bookkeeper for the Columbia, who had been ill for several weeks, has again been welcomed back to the wholesale department by his many friends.

Opens Another Store

Carbone Brothers, who lately opened a very successful Columbia shop in Washington street, at the South End, has taken another store, this time at 482 Broadway, South Boston, where business has started off most encouragingly.

Why He Feels Happy

Joseph H. Burke, associated with Richard Nelson in promoting the Sonora proposition, is handing out cigars to his friends. The reason is plain—he has just become the father of a little daughter, Eleanor D. Burke. The little miss was born in Hartford, Conn., where Mr. Burke is located.

Death of William A. Hine

Those who pleasantly knew William A. Hine during the time he was with the Columbia headquarters here in Boston will be sorry to learn of his death at Birmingham, Ala., a few weeks ago. Before coming to Boston Mr. Hine was located in Connecticut. He was a good salesman and on leaving Boston he went South, from which section he originally came. He was seized with the influenza and was sick only a short time.

Last year showed the fewest bankruptcies in the past ten years. The total when the act went into effect in August, 1898, was 26,482. The settlements by compensation or dismissal also were larger than for several years past.

KAHN HOME FROM ACTIVE SERVICE

Former Talking Machine Man Has Thrilling Experience as a Bomber in Marine Branch of U. S. Naval Aviation Service in France

David Kahn, well known in the talking machine trade in and about New York, who joined the U. S. Marines at the beginning of the war, was in the city last week on a furlough, having returned from active service in France. Mr. Kahn, shortly after his enlistment, was transferred to the Marine branch of the Naval Aviation Service as a bomber, and was in several combats in the air over the fighting line, his machine bringing down two German planes. He declares that the war ended too soon to permit of the building up of a proper record. Mr. Kahn, who is now a corporal, brought back with him a number of interesting souvenirs, including a handsome German officer's helmet, as well as a German rifle taken from the crew of a German plane brought to earth by Mr. Kahn and his companion.

Judge Mayer Declares EMERSON RECORD is First Successful and Commercial Phonograph Record Which May be Played on Either a Hill and Dale or Zig-zag Type of Phonograph

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

AMERICAN GRAPHOPHONE COMPANY, Plaintiff, against
EMERSON PHONOGRAPH COMPANY and VICTOR H. EMERSON,
Defendants.

In Equity. Suit for infringement of Claims 1 and 2, of Letters Patent No. 688,739 to Joseph W. Jones, granted on December 10, 1901, on application filed November 19, 1897, for "Production of Sound Records."

LIVINGSTON GIFFORD, RALPH L. SCOTT and C. A. L. MASSIE, all of New York City, for Plaintiff.
FREDERICK P. FISH and W. JAY ENNISON, both of New York City, for Defendants.

MAYER, District Judge:

This patent has been the subject-matter of considerable litigation and was adjudged valid in American Graphophone Co. v. Universal Talking Machine Mfg. Co., and Same v. American Record Co., 151 F. R. 595 (January 14, 1907); and American Graphophone Co. v. Leeds & Catlin Co. et al., 170 F. R. 327 (April 30, 1909).

The invention, as stated by Jones in his specification, "relates to the commercial production of sound-records, and has for its object the production of a number of copies of an original record characterized by lateral undulations of substantially uniform depth"; and he claimed:

"1. The herein-described method of producing sound-records, which consists in cutting or engraving upon a tablet of suitable material, by means of the lateral vibrations of a suitable stylus, a record-groove of appreciable and practically uniform depth and having lateral undulations corresponding to the sound-waves, next coating the same with a conducting material, then forming a matrix thereon by electrolysis, and finally separating this matrix and pressing the same into a tablet of suitable material, substantially as described.

2. The process of producing commercial sound-records of the type indicated, which consists of first preparing a flat tablet or disc of soft wax-like material, then engraving thereon by means of the lateral vibrations of a suitable stylus a record-groove of appreciable and uniform depth and having lateral undulations corresponding to sound-waves, next rendering the surface thereof electrically conductive, then forming a matrix thereon by electrolysis, next separating the matrix from the original record-disc without the use of heat, and finally impressing said matrix into a disc of suitable material to form the ultimate record, substantially as described."

The value of the opinion supra consists not only in the fact that they state the conclusions of the court as to the questions then presented, but also that they make clear what it was which the court then considered to be a differentiation from and an advance beyond the prior art sufficient to characterize an invention.

It is an interesting and entirely human characteristic of patent litigation that, as time goes on, the owner of the patent seeks to extend the scope of its claims as far as possible, while those who seek its benefits are constantly contending for a construction which shall narrow that scope. Thus it is, where a patent has once been declared valid and a controversy later arises in a suit inter alios, that so much argument is presented as to what the court in a prior litigation really decided. Where, as in this case, the court wrote, many years before, it is helpful to remember (although not controlling) that the question of invention was looked upon with eyes which saw the art as it then seemed.

Errors, of course, may occur, especially in abstruse arts, but, speaking generally, the view entertained by the courts in the earlier days of the life of a patent, is usually a safer guide with which to judge invention and scope of claims than new and later contentions which, as the case may be, seek to enlarge or defeat the inventor's accomplishment.

In the case at bar (except for the Wurth and Johnson defenses infra) the record on the question of invention seems to be substantially the same as that which received such careful consideration in the reported opinions, supra.

The claims are, of course, for a combination and plaintiff contends that the great value of the Jones process lay in the matrix and that the act of cutting the original record groove is only one of five steps in the complete Jones process. The opinion of Judge Townsend, in 151 F. R. 595, supra, demonstrates that the inventive feature rests in the lateral cutting step, which was then regarded as new in the art. The result was the production in the sound record of lateral undulatory grooves of even depth corresponding to sound waves, and that result achieved a notable commercial success. Several extracts from Judge Townsend's opinion could be quoted to support the construction of his opinion here stated, but it will suffice to extract the following observation made in relation to the Young British Patent No. 1487 which was then considered the closest reference in the prior art:

"And we conclude, in the light of the prior art, that the changes from Young to Jones involved invention, because, inter alia, Jones was practical. Young was impractical: Young was before the public for six years before any 'skilled artisan' succeeded in adjusting the various elements so that a flat sound record of the type in question could be produced, and no one prior to Jones saw that it could be adapted to a practical disc record with lateral undulations; there were inherent objections to the practical production of varying depth records, which Jones found did not exist when the known or suggested processes were applied to laterally undulating grooves of even depth."

Indeed, it was in respect of what the District Court described as a "step forward" but within limit of a man skilled in the art (i. e., "the step by which the stylus is cut or engraved by the lateral movement of the stylus, instead of undulations being traced or etched") that the Circuit Court of Appeals differed from the District Court and reversed the decrees by which the District Court had declared the patent invalid.

The file wrapper, whose history need not be recited, fully confirms the view as to the "step forward"; and, of several expressions in the specification itself, none is more convincing than the statement of Jones:

"For the foregoing reasons I do not claim my new process in connection with sound-records characterized by vertical irregularities, but limit it to records characterized by lateral undulations of practically uniform depth."

When Jones filed his application, the art was familiar with (1) the Bell & Tainter or Edison type known as "graphophone" records and (2) the Berliner type known as "gramophone" records—both of which have survived in the art. The former known as "hill and dale" are characterized by vertical undulations; the latter known as "zig-zag" by lateral undulations.

It was to the latter that Jones devoted his attention and what he accomplished and all he accomplished was to so cut his groove as to obtain his characteristic lateral undulations of practically uniform depth.

In this case, defendant has presented two defenses, not heretofore directly before our Circuit Court of Appeals; the Wurth use and the Johnson defense. The former may be passed by as merely experimental and, in any event, of no consequence in this litigation.

The Johnson defense has two aspects. It is claimed (1) that Johnson was prior to Jones and that Johnson's prior use fully covered the Jones invention, and (2) that a decree in a suit between the Victor Company, as plaintiff, and the American Graphophone Company as defendant, (the plaintiff here) and the Johnson patent, are admissible in evidence.

The decree referred to was the result of the opinion of Judge Ray in 1911, in Victor Talking Machine Co. v. American Graphophone Co., 189 F. R. 359. That decree was affirmed by consent of the parties, by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Johnson patent, which was the subject matter of the decree, was No. 896,059 granted to Eldridge R. Johnson August 11, 1908, which was found to have been a divisional application of patent, No. 778,975. The original application of Johnson was filed on August 16, 1898, and the divisional on November 12, 1904.

That the decree and Johnson patents supra, are not admissible is too plain for argument; but the testimony as to the Johnson use is clearly admissible. Judge Ray, in his opinion, drew a very close line of distinction between the Jones patent and the Johnson patent, holding the view that they were both valid. The case on this point was so debatable that there well might be doubt as to the result in the Circuit Court of Appeals, if that controversy were reviewed by that court on the merits. The question here, however, is whether the testimony of Johnson and those who corroborate him in various respects, establish under familiar principles, that prior use which will defeat the Jones patent.

Taking the Johnson defense testimony at face value, it is apparent that Johnson's work went no further than ideas and the formative or experimental stage until after the Jones application date.

No record produced by Johnson was put on the market until 1900. In September, 1896, Johnson, with one Haddon, visited one DuBois, a friend of Haddon. Johnson testified:

"I explained to Mr. DuBois substantially what I was seeking to accomplish. I asked him if wax surfaces could be electroplated with copper, and if such electroplate would be accurate reproductions of the surface of the wax. I told him they must be very accurate. Mr. DuBois assured me that this could be done. I then gave Mr. Haddon a fragment of one of the wax tablets upon which I had made a record. Mr. Haddon, after further consultation with Mr. DuBois, brought to my office in a few days the piece of wax record which I had given him, having sound waves cut with laterally undulating lines of even depth on its surface. He had succeeded in making a perfect deposit of copper on the fragment of record. I took the record from him and carefully separated it, the wax, from the copper without injuring either one. I immediately made a careful examination of the same copper deposit with the strongest magnifying glass in my possession at that time. This observation and examination convinced me that the copper reproduction was very accurate and I knew from that time on that my process could be used commercially and that I could manufacture disc records with laterally undulating sound waves of even depth, of a superior quality to anything theretofore known in the art."

This fragment of irregular shape cannot be called a matrix for the purposes of this case.

After 1896 Johnson did nothing until December, 1897. It was not until then that he "succeeded in finding an expert" (one Nafey) whom he thought "competent to carry out" his plans. Nafey started to work in January, 1898, and the first copper matrix was made about April, 1898. Duplicate records were not manufactured until about the same date. Even then, Johnson said, "the records were not shown indiscriminately. A number of people saw them and I reproduced them for a number of people but it was always confidentially"; and, indeed, he made every effort to keep his work secret until 1900.

Without further reference to the testimony of Johnson and his associates and friends, it must be concluded that the so called Johnson use did not anticipate Jones. One fact, however, is established by Johnson's testimony which disposes of any emphasis as to electroplating and that is, as to the general use of the Berliner process for reproducing records by the electroplating process, such records having been electroplated and duplicated by the Duranoid Manufacturing Company of Newark, N. J., as far back as 1896.

Defendants offered in evidence the Clark and Johnson patent No. 624,625 granted May 9, 1899, but applied for prior to the date of the Jones application. This is not prior art in this case.

and the motion to strike out the testimony in respect thereof must be granted. With the record in this situation, the patent in suit must be held valid and this patent must be excluded, and the case thus comes down to the question of infringement. Emerson, for many years, was in plaintiff's employ and plaintiff urges this fact as having some bearing on the question of infringement. So far as this record discloses, Emerson was not guilty of any wrongful or improper acts. He availed of existing knowledge open to all the world and endeavored to devise a process different from that of the patent in suit. This he was fully entitled to do. There are, of course, cases when the conduct of employes may effect their standing in a court of equity, but this is not one of them. What Emerson did no one else had done in all the years during which this beneficial art was progressing. He adopted what might be called the midway between the vertical and lateral systems and tilts the cutting tool at an angle of 45°. What Emerson sought commercially was the production of a record which could be played sufficiently well for commercial purposes upon all types of phonograph machines. The artistic result might not be (and, indeed, is not) equal to that attained by the Berliner or zig-zag, but Emerson evidently appreciated the well known fact that the majority of the buying public is well enough satisfied with pleasing music and does not concern itself so much with that accurate and fine reproduction so necessary to the comfort of those gifted with discriminating ears and trained in artistic appreciation.

His appeal, therefore, was to owners of all types of machines and I am satisfied that in seeking this field, he has made an honest effort not to entrench on the Jones patent.

On first impression, it may seem that the Emerson angle is a mere evasion but the testimony of the experts and the demonstration of actual playing of the records in the court room, soon make clear that the question of infringement is both real and difficult.

Primarily, it is important to ascertain whether the Jones patent was generic in the sense that it covered broadly any process other than the hill and dale, up and down, or Edison (as variously called) or must be confined to the precise terms of its claims with a reasonable range of equivalents. The court and file wrapper history concur in showing that while the Jones patent was a valuable advance, it was in no sense generic. The District Court, on two occasions, (in the Universal and Leeds & Catlin cases, supra) had held the patent invalid and the result, as hereinabove indicated, was that the appellate court found the inventive feature, in effect, to be that which had to do with lateral undulations.

The outstanding features of the claims cannot now be modified or lightly laid aside. They are (1) a record groove of appreciable and practically uniform depth, and (2) having lateral undulations corresponding to sound waves.

The word "practically" does not appear in Claim 1 and is inserted merely by way of safeguard in Claim 2. In effect, in this case, "uniform" and "practically uniform" mean the same thing. Further, they are words of limitation and not of description.

The question then is whether the Emerson record groove is of uniform depth and has lateral undulations corresponding to sound waves, and whether the Emerson has vertical undulations which are idle or which perform a useful function. Ocularly the grooves of plaintiff and defendants appear different. There are variations of depth in defendants' groove and vertical undulations in the bottom thereof. Defendants contend that these differences are caused by the different method and angle of cutting and result in different aural impressions between a pure Victor or Columbia zig-zag record played on plaintiff's machine and an Emerson record played on the same machine, while, in addition, the Emerson can be well played on an Edison machine. Plaintiff insists that the vertical undulations in the Emerson record are inert and do not perform any useful function.

The Jones undulations are lateral; i. e., confined structurally and operably to the side walls and do not extend to the bottom of the groove and are necessarily of uniform depth because, as plaintiff's expert stated, "what we mean ordinarily by a laterally vibrating tool is one which cuts a groove of substantially uniform depth: the two thoughts go together." Such is not the case with the Emerson groove.

The Jones lateral undulations are in both sides of the groove alike and undulate in absolutely parallelism.

In the Emerson groove, according to the testimony of Professor Morris, a highly skilled microscopist, on behalf of plaintiff, "there is a correspondence" between either side with the other side or either side with the bottom; but "there is no exact parallelism." It is but fair to add that Professor Morris characterized the lines as co-swinging, "that is to say, all swung toward the inner part of the disc or all toward the outer part of the disc together; they were not parallel but they were according."

With these important physical differences (1) in position of cutting tool and (2) in appearance of the grooves under the microscope, came the battle of the experts. It is impracticable to go into the many contentions in detail. Both experts, Mr. Wadsworth and Mr. Dyer, have lived with the art and are frank as well as able. Their testimony represents their sincere convictions and I have no doubt that a court of scientists would be quite as much at variance as they are. I am disposed to conclude, however, that the Emerson groove oscillates vertically to the same extent as it oscillates laterally and that the Emerson tool vibrates not in a straight vertical line nor in a straight horizontal line but in a single straight oblique line, incidentally lowered and raised while swinging from side to side. When, however, it stops at any point of the oblique line of its travel, it stops completely and does not swerve to the side.

The vertical or hill and dale undulations of Emerson are, therefore, real and do perform an active and useful function. Whether this conclusion is correct or not, it is at least apparent that the burden of proving infringement has not been sustained by plaintiff and the situation is, as matter of law, very much like that discussed in General Electric v. Sundh, 251 F. R. at page 286.

I have given little consideration to the experiment (the good faith of which is not questioned) of the "buffed" matrix and the comparison with the "unbuffed" matrix. Such experiments occasionally may be reliable but, generally speaking, they are full of uncertainties. The moment there is departure from the precise device, the controversy is diverted. To add or subtract from a device—especially where we are dealing with infinitesimal variations—leads surely to doubt and confusion.

Finally, it is an important, outstanding and emphatic fact in this case, that, whether well or badly done, the Emerson record may be played on either a hill and dale or zig-zag type of phonograph—a result which was never before commercially attempted.

The bill is dismissed with costs.

GREAT INCREASE IN OUR TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

American Manufacturers and Exporters Have Increased Their Commerce With South American Countries 160 Per Cent. Since the Beginning of the War—Future Opportunities

United States manufacturers and exporters have increased their trade in Brazil and other South American countries by more than 160 per cent. since the beginning of the war, according to J. W. Sanger, Trade Commissioner of the United States Government Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who recently returned from a survey of the business opportunities south of the Equator.

"Imagine ten large stores in one big city, and one of these stores doing more business than all the other nine combined," said Mr. Sanger, "and that will give you some idea of the position we are in to-day. It is an amazing record. We are now selling South American countries more than half of everything they import. Our total export trade is now counted in billions of dollars."

The Commissioner said that "with the signing of a peace treaty, a practical certainty within six months or a year, it is not a day too soon to begin making definite plans to meet the keen competition in foreign trade that must come almost immediately." The hundreds of millions of dollars invested in new factories and ships, he said, mean that America must find fresh outlets for her enterprise and industry.

Need Representation

"We need more and better direct representation of our manufacturers in the important trade centers of Brazil and other South American countries," he continued. "This may come about through taking the fullest advantage of the new Webb Export Trade Act or in other practical ways.

"We also need a fast and regular freight service to every important port of Latin America. Without it we will be as crippled as a department store that depends upon casual messenger boys to make its deliveries. Then again we must be prepared to meet the actual needs of these countries regarding credit extensions.

"The biggest single incentive to foreign trade is foreign investments. Unfortunately our holdings in South America are practically negligible. In a short time our immense surplus capital will seek investment. Brazil in particular needs this capital and will pay us handsomely for it.

"How many people in the United States know that Brazil alone is larger than all the United States? Yet, except for its thinly settled coast line it is practically untouched. It is one of the richest countries in the world and is destined to develop along similar lines to our own country in the last hundred years. It has every natural resource that we had, and, in addition, others that nature did not give us. Our talking machines, typewriters, sewing machines, safety razors and a great number of other American products are standard with Brazilians to-day. It is up to us to make just as well known the thousands of other products that we make and that they need just as much."

Advertising Imperative

To accomplish this, Mr. Sanger said, it was necessary for American manufacturers to advertise their goods "down there." In South America, he said, advertising methods are crude and much as they were in the United States thirty or more years ago.

"We have scarcely even begun to use this power, this promoter of sales and goodwill in South America," continued Mr. Sanger. "I have unmistakable evidence that the people of that country respond amazingly even to the crude forms of advertising offered them.

"The biggest thing that could happen to advertising down there would be for broad-gauged American advertising men to take more interest in it. These countries await the stimulus of American advertising genius properly adjusted to meet their needs. But let the American advertising men put this in their note books: Spanish is the language of all South America except Brazil, where Portuguese is spoken. Brazilians are offended if you write or speak to them in Spanish."

MAXWELL TOO BUSY TO TRAVEL

Vice-President of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Compelled to Refuse Government's Request to Visit Europe as Member of Commission

William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was recently asked by a Government official whether he would serve on a commission that the Government proposes to send abroad in January to study and report on industrial and commercial conditions in Great Britain and France. Urged by some of his associates to accept a place on the commission he replied: "Why, I can't even get down to Newark, five miles away, to see a prize fight, and everybody knows how I love prize fights. They're having some dandy fights in Newark, and I've been trying for a month to see one, but something always comes up to prevent it."

Mr. Maxwell believes that 1919 is going to be a banner year in Edison history. "It's the time I've been waiting for," he remarked. "Plenty of Re-Creations, fine quality, everything right at last. Watch our smoke from now on. And then there's the Amberola line; big doings in 1919 on the Amberola line, too. Everything has to be worked out by February 1. After waiting all this time I'm not going away just as the fun is about to start."

Credit and Collections Among the Most Important of Many After-War Problems

By M. M. Reinhard
Credit Mgr. New York Talking Machine Co.

The period of after-war reconstruction which we are entering at the present time will bring forth many problems. They should be the object of serious consideration by the Victor retailers.

Among these problems is the matter of credit and collections, which is bound to be affected with the bringing back of two million men and the naturally changing salary and rate schedule which must follow.

What is credit? An authority on the subject states that credit is the power to obtain goods or service by giving a promise to pay money on demand or at a stipulated day in the future. It is therefore obvious that in giving credit, retailers should act only with due deliberation. It has always been a well-known fact that most retailers have been rather over-hasty and careless in granting credit, due to a number of reasons, principally the quite natural desire to do a bigger volume of business than their competitors, but sadly neglecting to look into the quality of the business they obtain.

Another well-known reason is the dealer's fear in asking his prospective customer questions absolutely necessary to enable him to judge his credit standing, fearing to offend and drive him away to some competitor. Rather than do this he accepts what meagre information he gets at times and in his hasty hooking of a prospect he makes terms which are in a good many cases ruinous to his business.

Another and very common reason for loose credit granting is the fact that very few dealers know the actual cost of their doing business, as they do not keep a proper set of books from which they could easily ascertain cost of instalment collections, credit losses, etc. This at least has been my experience in traveling through the Eastern section of the United States and especially so in the Metropolitan District. How can these dealers, more so under the present abnormal conditions, know where they stand if they do not keep a proper set of books? They will go on selling machines at terms that are absolutely inviting bankruptcy and disaster, simply excusing themselves by stating "so and so" is offering his goods at these terms and we must meet them or lose the business. They overlook entirely the fact that "so and so" is usually a reliable big business house with plenty of capital—a house that keeps proper records and knows it can put out its merchandise at such terms and get by. Where does the small dealer stand? Before he knows it, he has every dollar of his capital outstanding and instead of being able to discount his purchases from his jobbers he has to settle with notes and pay additional expense in the form of interest.

Under present competitive business conditions, a dealer must, wherever possible, take advantage of discount in order to leave him a sufficient margin of profit.

The dealer should keep a simple but comprehensive set of books allowing him at a glance to know where he stands. Terms should be shortened and an everlasting watch of collections on his instalments should be installed.

As an illustration, if a dealer has $10,000 in outstanding instalment accounts and sells on a basis of 10 per cent. down, 10 per cent. per month, he knows he must take in $1,000 or approximately that per month outside of his cash and new business, and the keeping of proper records will always enable him to check and see if his collections are keeping up to the proper percentage.

A short time ago the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in a special communication to the retail trade of the United States said—the Bureau of Internal Revenue will be compelled to check the income tax returns far more closely than before. The retail merchant who is able to place before the Internal Revenue inspector, book records showing exactly how he arrives at his statement of net income will greatly facilitate the work of the Internal Revenue Department and save himself annoyance and expense.

The present time with its abnormal shortage of merchandise is the proper time to apply these remedies. Shorten your terms, get busy and take an inventory on the first of the year and install a simple set of books which at all times will enable you to watch your instalments closely and get in your collections in strict accordance with your terms—and right here is where the up-to-the-minute credit department fits in—right here—Mr. Dealer pack up your accounting and bookkeeping troubles in your old kit-bag and go to your wholesaler and talk to the credit man.

Don't labor under the old-fashioned mistaken idea that the credit man is a sort of ogre and is the last man a customer should want to meet—that is not so now—regard the credit man as your friend, adviser and counselor. He will always meet you with a smile and be only too pleased to help you out to the best of his ability in elucidating any problem that might come up for consideration.

MAKE A GREAT SONORA SHOWING

Yahr & Lange Co., Milwaukee, Pay a Tribute to Sales Possibilities of the Sonora

An interesting letter was recently received from Fred E. Yahr, secretary of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Milwaukee, Wis., wholesale distributors for the products of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. This concern handles many well-known products in other mercantile fields, and Mr. Yahr's letter, which reads as follows, is therefore an unusual tribute to the sales possibilities of the Sonora phonograph:

"We believe that we have had the greatest success with the Sonora agency of any line that we have ever taken on. A year and a half ago we were to contract for a specified amount of instruments to be sold in 1917. We sold very nearly twice this amount in the month of December. We believe we have more than doubled our requirements this year, and we are looking forward for a very big year in 1919.

"The Sonora is being recognized as the highest class talking machine in the world, and our dealers are free to admit this, as we receive letters of this kind every day. We believe that we have started our dealers off in the right way, in securing cash for sales, or at least a large initial payment.

"We have done everything possible to secure a large stock of instruments, but at the present writing we are out of several of our best numbers. The Baby Grand at $190—we have not a single instrument in the house, and have a great many on back order. We recently published an advertisement in the Milwaukee newspapers advising the dealers that over fourteen carloads of Sonora phonographs, approximately twenty-two hundred instruments were received during ten months, with three more cars now in transit.

"We think we will have no trouble in doubling this amount next year, as we have secured the services of two competent salesmen, H. M. Hahn and George J. Campbell. Both of these salesmen will give our Sonora dealers maximum service and co-operation, and as they are very enthusiastic regarding the Sonora phonograph, we feel sure that they will assist our dealers materially."

TRADE ACCEPTANCE AS A COLLECTOR

Why Some Merchants Have Urged Its Use in Business to Collect Slow Accounts

J. H. Tregoe, secretary of the National Credit Men's Association, in a recent statement relating to the trade acceptance and its use in business, calls attention to the fact that the acceptance has been widely applied as a means of collecting book accounts rather than as a piece of bankable paper.

He says: "We found through the testimony of those of our member concerns who were quickest to see what the Federal Reserve act had given American business that the trade acceptance in substitution for the open-book account is a great collection instrument, and that it tends to eliminate abuses which apparently are inherent in the open-book account—abuses which are not only annoying but exceedingly burdensome, such as the neglect of terms of sale, unreasonable claims, reckless returns, etc.

"This secondary reason for the adoption of the acceptance naturally came first in the mind of many business men as they saw in the acceptance a cure-all for costly abuses, and also a means of simplifying collections. The result was that they asked their customers for acceptances, not that they might use them for financing their requirements at the bank, but purely for collection purposes, and perhaps these concerns, if they borrowed at all, continued to borrow on single name paper."

Miss Minna Seegar, manager of the record department of the Grafonola Shop, 730 Main street, Houston, Tex., is building up a very excellent trade which assumed enormous proportions during the holidays.

COLUMBIA CO. CHANGES ON COAST

Headquarters for Pacific Northwest to be Moved From Portland to Seattle

PORTLAND, ORE., January 4.—Radical changes have been made in the management of the Columbia Graphophone Co. in the Pacific Northwest. The wholesale business will be removed from Portland to Seattle, which will be the headquarters of the company. All accounting will be done there and all the stock moved from Portland to Seattle, from which point shipments will be made to dealers. L. D. Heater, who has been manager of the wholesale house in Portland, will remain here and be the local representative of the wholesale department. Mr. Heater will be relieved from all detail work so that he can give his time and attention to the promotion of sales work among the dealers.

Arrangements have been made to send some of the sales people of the Portland branch to Seattle, while others have obtained positions in Portland. Mr. Heater is well liked and respected in Portland and his ability and integrity are unquestioned. By his energy and business insight he has placed the Grafonola in the hands of most of the very best dealers on the Coast. The lack of machines has been a great loss during the Christmas season. Mr. Heater says they could have sold between $50,000 and $100,000 worth more machines if they could have been obtained. In spite of this the month of December was the biggest month ever experienced in the business. The record sale was enormous and more could have been sold if they had had them.

'TIS WORRY THAT KILLS

It isn't work that kills men, it is worry. Work is healthful. You can hardly put more work on a man than he can bear. Worry is the rust on the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, it is the friction.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Talking Machine Manufacturer Said to Have Made Contracts for Delivery of One Million Feet of Mahogany Veneer for Cabinets—Increasing Supply of Mahogany Available

BOSTON, MASS., December 31.—In anticipation of a period of prosperity, with an attendant heavy demand for talking machines, one of the largest talking machine concerns in the country placed contracts for 1,000,000 feet of veneer to be used in the manufacture of its machines.

This order is only a forerunner for many other large orders for mahogany and veneers that are to follow, in the opinion of William I. Palmer of the firm of Palmer, Parker & Co., of Charlestown, rated among the largest Boston dealers in mahogany.

Mr. Palmer was discussing conditions in the mahogany trade. He declared that the withdrawal of Government orders for mahogany and other hard woods has naturally resulted in a temporary lull in the activity of the trade.

Meanwhile conditions are adjusting themselves to meet the coming demands of trade, he said. Mahogany prices are high just at present, first grades being about 100 per cent. above pre-war prices, while the cheaper grades are from 30 to 40 per cent. higher than in 1914. Prices have been held up by continued demands of the Government for large stocks and will undoubtedly continue for a short time.

Mr. Palmer predicts that mahogany will never descend to its pre-war prices. The existing heavy freight rates have much to do with the present scale of prices, but with the reduction in transportation rates, which must come, mahogany prices will be lowered accordingly.

The demand for mahogany will be heavy for some time to come, in the opinion of Mr. Palmer. In support of this opinion he declares that the stocks of manufactured mahogany goods are lower than they have been for many years.

NEW EXCLUSIVE COLUMBIA ARTISTS

Paris Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and French Army Band Now Recording for Columbia Co.—Two Important Acquisitions

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has just announced the addition to its recording library of the Paris Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and the famous French Army Band; these two organizations making their first records for the Columbia Co. and being under exclusive contract with this record library.

The Paris Conservatory Symphony Orchestra, which is conducted by Andre Messager, is the oldest symphony orchestra organization in the world, having been organized over a hundred years ago. There are eighty-six players in this orchestra, all of whom have achieved considerable renown as soloists and the majority of whom are veterans of the world war. The orchestra is making an American tour under the direction of the French High Commission of the U. S. Government.

facturers are among the heaviest users of mahogany and veneers, and in each case the stocks are very low, so low, in fact, that the demand for some time past has exceeded the supply.

Present stocks of mahogany are not as low as might be expected. Contrary to other lines of trade the supply of mahogany has been replenished two or three times each year, all during the war period, by the arrival of shiploads of the wood, principally from Africa.

a particular friend of Saint-Saens (whose "Deluge" he conducts for the orchestra's first Columbia record). For many years Mr. Messager has been a prominent figure in French musical circles, having been organist of St. Paul's, director of the Opera-Comique, and during the past year conductor of the Paris Conservatory Symphony Orchestra.

The famous French Army Band consists of sixty-one uniformed veterans of the world war, many of whom were wounded at the Marne and

NOT A CLOUD ON THE HORIZON IN THE PORTLAND TRADE

After a Record-Breaking Holiday Business the Majority of the Dealers Are Looking Forward to a Year of Great Activity—Many New Concerns Entering the Field

PORTLAND, ORE., January 3.—There have been big Christmases in Portland before the Christmas of 1918, but there has never been any that approached in magnitude of sales, particularly of talking machines, this Peace Christmas of 1918. There was only one fly in the ointment of local dealers and that was the shortage of stock. Every store is about cleared out now.

The Hyatt Talking Machine Co. found it impossible to wait upon all the customers. The big, handsome new store of this company, with their unusual number of demonstration rooms and additional number of salespeople, was not able to attend to the crowds who wanted machines. Victors, Edisons, Columbias or Brunswicks were all in demand.

The Wiley B. Allen Co. phonograph department was one of the busiest places in Portland during the whole holiday season, and the business shows no slowing up since, according to Paul B. Norris, manager of the department. Edisons, Brunswicks, Victrolas and Cowan-Classiques were sold.

James F. Loder, manager of the talking machine department of the Bush & Lane Co., says that he has not experienced such a December in the nine years he has been in business. Sonoras are selling wonderfully well and the highest priced Sonoras are the most frequently selected. Big first payments and all cash payments are the rule.

"I'd like to have some sacred records," said a woman customer to a young lady demonstrator in the record department of one of Portland's big stores. "Is there any special one you would prefer, madam?" inquired the young lady.

"Yes; have you 'Cohen on the Telephone?'" inquired the woman.

Another customer wanted "The Hired Girl's Dream" ("The Herd Girl's Dream"). Still another wanted "a record that began close up to the edge and went down to the other edge."

The phonograph department of the G. F. Johnson Music Co. keeps on growing and growing. More demonstration rooms have again been added, and if the Cheney phonograph becomes more popular an addition to the building will be needed.

Geo. W. Sanborn, who is in the phonograph brokerage business in Portland, has returned from a business visit to six cities in the East.

The Portland branch of the Wiley B. Allen Co. has been designated by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. as the chief distributor for Oregon and California of the phonographs made by this company.

The Cheney phonograph, which is carried by the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., is more than making good in Portland.

The home of J. C. Cooney, an employe of the Columbia Phonograph Co., was destroyed by fire the middle of December. Mr. Cooney has seven children who were with difficulty rescued from the flames.

Laraway's Music House, of Eugene, Ore., is now carrying the Brunswick phonograph, which it is extensively advertising with good results.

The Hovenden Piano Co. has added some new record rooms to its phonograph department. These rooms are tastefully and comfortably furnished with Victrolas and Stradivaras.

Frank Dorian, the new manager of the Seattle branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a Portland visitor last month.

L. D. Heater, manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., could not get any more machines and his Christmas trade was at a standstill as a consequence.

The G. F. Johnson Piano Co. had a big supply of Cheney machines in stock at the beginning of the holiday season and more shipments arrived, but every one was sold out. Victrolas were also sold out, although that stock was limited. The talking machine department of this store has recently been enlarged.

The talking machine department of the big store of Meier & Frank Co. was also crowded to capacity all during the holidays.

S. J. McCormick, who is manager of the Columbia retail department, says he never saw or imagined anything like the rush for records.

The Wakefield Piano Co. sold about all the Brunswicks it had in stock, as well as Pathés, which it is just adding to its stock.

Harold S. Gilbert, who carries the Columbia, is sold out. Soulé Bros., who handle the Brunswick, had a most successful Christmas season. Graves Music House, Oregon Eilers, all shared in the big talking machine business done during the Christmas time.

Sieberling & Lucas, who are primarily a small goods firm, have carried talking machines recently and are so much encouraged with the sales during the year that they intend expanding this branch of their trade.

The Reed-French Piano Co. has sold out nearly every machine of its new stock and the prospects for a wonderful year in talking machines is evident at this store.

The Stradivara Co. has been doing an unprecedented good business and the Stradivara is taking a prominent place in the talking machine field in Portland.

All the furniture stores that carry talking machines have become more than ever convinced that the talking machine is a big factor in their business. Powers' Furniture Store, which carries the Victrola and the Brunswick, and which is under the skilful management of W. B. Maxwell, did not have room enough to accommodate the buyers.

Calef Bros., who carry the Pathé, have sold out nearly their entire stock and they were well supplied before Christmas. Mr. Calef is delighted with the success of the Pathé and is expecting a big shipment of these phonographs in the near future. The demand for them has not lessened since Christmas.

The Application of Period Decoration to Talking Machine Cabinets—The Louis XV Style

There is something about the more popular French Louis styles of decorative art that has a strong attraction for designers, and for that matter the public of the present day. Perhaps it is because there is a certain element of romance found in French decorative art, but more probably it is because the leading French Louis styles have a grace and delicacy not found in the decorative styles of other countries or other periods.

Of all of the French styles the best known, and probably the most used, is undoubtedly the Rococo style, developed to a high degree during the reign of Louis XV, who presided over the destinies of France from 1723 to 1774. This particular monarch made a historic reputation for his love of women, his extravagance, and his utter contempt for the common people. The last great King of France, he used his Kingship merely to promote his pleasure and to increase the gaiety and recklessness of the court, and this tendency is particularly noticeable in the decorative art that developed during his reign, for Rococo is nothing if not extravagant and reckless. As to the Rococo style itself, there are many varied opinions. For some it has a strong appeal, while others condemn it as utterly bad. However, it may be said that it has nothing in common with the earlier classic styles, and represents an entirely new development in decorative art.

During the period of the regency the connecting link between the reign of Louis XIV and Louis XV designers had a tendency towards elaborateness in decorative art, and developed a style that, although extravagant, was nevertheless harmonious in its lines. The Louis XIV style, for instance, was more or less regular, lines and curves balanced, and there was a certain sense of order observed. During the regency this same sense of order prevailed, but the designs became more or less extravagant. During the reign of Louis XV, however, all sense of order was thrown to the winds and designers went to great lengths to create effects that were, to say the least, startling.

The two ruling spirits of the style were Meissonier and Boucher. Oppenort, in the regency, had finally broken away from the Louis XIV style, and Nicholas Pineau and others had, in furniture, etc., produced quantities of the most atrociously curved and twisted designs. Meissonier brought more talent to his work than was to be found in any of the regency designers.

He was, in a way, a forerunner of the modern "beauty for beauty's sake" enthusiasts. He threw aside all pretense of giving a meaning to decoration—if he evolved a beautiful effect he was content and it must be said to his credit that he was a thorough master of his art. The Rococo of Meissonier is always graceful. His shell-like curves are things that have been the

the right will curve downward, while the middle decoration points to one side or the other. And yet the completed decoration has an effect of balance that is delightful. The secret is that instead of balancing identical details Meissonier balanced masses. Perhaps an idea of this may be given by comparing these designs to a beautiful yacht. In a yacht the bow and stern are dissimilar while the mast rises at an angle, and yet the boat, whether at rest or in motion, gives an impression of perfect balance. So with the eccentric balanced art of Meissonier.

And it must never be forgotten that the Rococo, while a development, was a forced growth. It was desired to produce a new style, and it had to be a style to harmonize with the court. As an arbitrarily created style the Rococo is one of the wonders of the art world.

An interest in the art of China and the Far East aided the cause of the contrasted balance, and it is to the credit of the Rococo designers that they absorbed much Chinese art without giving forth any of the grotesqueness that afflicts some Chippendale examples.

Briseaux and Blondel, later in the reign of Louis XV, still further varied the Rococo by introducing more straight lines. The long narrow moulding panels with Rococo corners and cornices are due to them. Cuvilles, another designer, was more eccentric and leaned toward the Chinese style, particularly in applied decoration in furniture, etc.

In color, gold was abundantly used in connection with white, and large mirrors were everywhere, reflecting the brilliance of the decorations. Lilac, lemon, jonquil, pale sky blue, light rose, gray, and other delicate tones were the favorites, in distinct contrast to the strong colors of the Louis XIV.

Whatever may be said against the Louis XV furniture—that it abandons the proper lines in construction, that it is overornamented or ridiculous—it must be admitted that in abandoning stateliness for luxury the king brought into being the comfortable modern furniture.

The Vernis-Martin dates from this period, having had its birth in a desire to equal the lacquer of the Chinese. Caffieri, one of the greatest makers of metal furniture mounts, produced during this period ormolu work that has never been equaled, although in Gouthiere he had a worthy rival.

All the panels that were formed by the Rococo wall decorations were filled with scenes typical of love—cupids, flowers, etc.—and the ceilings usually bore clouded sky effects in which cupids, mythological nude figures, etc., disported themselves.

The word Rococo is commonly supposed to be a made word derived from "roc et coquille" despair of later workers, for they have a life and grace of their own that was greater than their mere form. In other hands his grace becomes heavy and ridiculous or light and silly.

The Rococo style, as introduced by Meissonier was an evenly balanced arrangement of fanciful shell work, but he soon developed the contrasted balance that is one of the striking features of the style. In this method the shell scrolls seem to be placed without regard to balancing one side with the other. A scroll on the left of a panel will curve upward while that on (rock and shell), or from "rocaille" (rock work), on account of the frequent use of rock and shell motifs. In the later Rococo the rock detail was less in evidence while the shell work was expanded into elaborate details.

The Rococo may be said to have had its origin in Italy, rather than in France, and was in its earliest form an actual conventionalization of rocks and shells. It is odd that this style, which is considered typically French, should have had its birth in Italy and have reached its most elaborate form in Germany.

Notwithstanding the extreme difference between the elaborate and apparently original Rococo and the stiffness of the Greek, it is a fact that the Rococo masters held that they were working under Greek rules of art. To them the Rococo was merely a new form of applied ornament, which they used in connection with Greek rules of proportion instead of the usual acanthus and other Greek ornamentation. Of course, this was largely cant. The style soon progressed beyond all bounds of Greek art, but in proportion it certainly clung to the Greek orders of architecture.

Of François Boucher it has been said, and rightly, that he was not in the fashion, but that he was the fashion, during a large part of the reign of Louis XV.

Boucher's works truthfully represented the ideas and manners of his time. They are voluptuous, almost to indecency in some cases, and so was the French court of that period.

Certainly the Louis XV style can be considered a romantic style, and its history was probably that of the gayest court in all Europe. It was created at the time of Madame de Pompadour and Madame Du Barry, and it is naturally to be assumed that nothing connected with these fair ladies could be stilted, or, if we may be permitted to say it, distinctly respectable.

The Louis XV style has already been adapted, in more or less elaborate form, to the decoration of talking machine cabinets and lends itself most readily to that purpose, inasmuch as there is an undeniable richness and attractiveness in the lines and the style fits well in a variety of decorative schemes. The Vernis-Martin treatment has made a special appeal to the producers of the more elaborate and expensive talking machine cabinets, and in this treatment the Louis XV style is seen at its best.

GIVES CHRISTMAS LUNCHEON

Otto Heineman, President of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Entertains His Staff at Luncheon at Delmonico's—Members of Fair Sex Entertained at Churchill's

Otto Heineman, president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., was the host on Christmas Eve at a luncheon given to the members of his staff at Delmonico's. For the past few years Mr. Heineman has entertained the heads of his various departments on Christmas Eve, and this year's party was the most enjoyable that has yet been held. Among those who were Mr. Heineman's guests were Adolf Heineman, A. F. Meisselbach, W. G. Pilgrim, John Cromelin, Jacob Schechter, John Lotsch, C. T. Pott, C. W. Neumeister, W. C. Strong, R. C. Ackerman, Paul L. Baerwald, and M. S. Schechter.

In order that the fair sex in his employ might not feel slighted at not being included in this luncheon party, Mr. Heineman made arrangements whereby all of the girls assembled at Churchill's for a Christmas Eve luncheon. Miss F. Aufrichtig, cashier for the Otto Heineman Co., was the hostess at this luncheon, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all of the girls.

Several of the Heineman branch managers are visiting New York this week, conferring with Mr. Heineman regarding plans for the new year. S. A. Ribolla, manager of the Middle West branch, with headquarters in Chicago, arrived on Monday, and gave Mr. Heineman an encouraging report anent the outlook for 1919 in his territory. C. T. Pott, Canadian manager, also spoke enthusiastically of the business situation in Canada, and judging from all indications the Heineman Co. will enjoy next year record-breaking sales totals in all its divisions.

BIG TRADE IN BIRMINGHAM

Clark & Jones Piano Co.'s Sales of Pianos and Talking Machines Amounted to $44,000

Ernest Urchs, manager of the wholesale division of Steinway & Sons, received an interesting letter recently from the Clark & Jones Piano Co., Birmingham, Ala., regarding the business closed by this house during the month of December. According to this report the total business for this month was $44,000, which is a remarkable figure for a city of Birmingham's size. Approximately $11,000 of this total represented cash business on talking machines, and it is safe to assume that about 60 per cent. of the entire business was for cash. Mr. Urchs, as treasurer of this company, is naturally greatly pleased at this excellent report, which reflects the stability of conditions in the South at the present time.

Early this month Mr. Urchs left for a three weeks' trip through the South, which included a visit to the Clark & Jones Piano Co. and the Phillips & Crew Co., Atlanta, Ga., of which company Mr. Urchs is also treasurer. He will also call upon some of the other Steinway representatives in this section of the country.

WHY OPTIMISM REIGNS SUPREME IN MILWAUKEE TRADE

Following Satisfactory Holiday Business New Year Opens With Unprecedented Activity—Members of Trade Tell Why 1919 Will Be the Greatest Talking Machine Year in History

MILWAUKEE, Wis., January 8.—The manner in which talking machine business has been sustained during the first week and a half of the New Year has created a feeling of the most optimistic kind among local retailers. Normally, the immediate post-holiday period is quiet and dull, but this year trade after Christmas showed hardly a falling off and it has been relatively brisk since January 1. One of the reasons for this condition may be that dealers were so short of stocks as Christmas approached that there were many disappointments, and new stocks which have been dribbling in since then have been snatched by eager buyers as rapidly as goods arrived. Another reason is that a considerable number of people this year have preferred to avoid the congestion of the holiday shopping period. However, one of the best reasons is that thousands of workmen in Milwaukee industries received a bonus on Christmas or New Year's and have been investing this somewhat unlooked-for money in talking machines.

Milwaukee talking machine jobbers say that the prospects for the year are bright; in fact, most of them are inclined to the belief that 1919 will be the greatest talking machine year in history. In this view they are borne out by the opinion of retail dealers, who say that if business during the first ten days of January may be considered a fair criterion, the remainder of the year will establish new records all along the line. At this time it is merely a question of procuring sufficient merchandise to fill new and back orders. The way lies open for the broadest development of business in the history of the United States, and business men of Milwaukee, more especially the talking machine dealers, have set themselves to the task of taking the fullest advantage of the most glowing opportunity that has ever been presented them.

The Badger Talking Machine Co., Victor jobber in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, says the outlook for 1919 is unquestionably the most promising that it has yet known. Its 1918 business was exceptional, despite the fact that only a part of the goods which its trade demanded of it could be supplied. However, the prospect is for a more generous supply as the new year advances.

The Phonograph Co. of Wisconsin, Edison jobber, has cleared the decks for its biggest business year. The company some time ago prepared the way for a gradual retirement from the retail field by appointing the Kesselman-O'Driscoll Co., 258 West Water street, as retail dealer. In time the Edison Shop, operated in connection with the jobbing business, will probably be discontinued, so that all efforts and energies may be bent upon the wholesale trade.

The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., representing the Sonora exclusively in a wholesale way in Wisconsin and the Upper Peninsula, closed its second year of this connection with a decidedly material increase in business volume over the first. H. M. Hahn, sales representative, expresses the opinion that unless unforeseen conditions should arise the new year should double up on 1918.

Thomas I. Kidd, manager of the Milwaukee branch, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., was among the wholesalers who was fortunate enough to be able to supply the retail trade with machines nearly up to 100 per cent. of requirements during the past year, in spite of the fact that the demand for the Brunswick during 1918 was nearly twice that of 1917. Under the foresighted guidance of Mr. Kidd, Brunswick dealers throughout the territory, accumulated stocks at the same time that they were breaking sales records and when the rush came they were prepared.

A. G. Kunde, distributor of the Columbia, was overwhelmed by the demand for machines and records during the Christmas season and his warerooms were virtually bare of supplies at the close of the year. Columbia retailers throughout the city did their best to have ample stocks on hand when they entered the holiday period, but buying was far beyond expectations and many stores were "cleaned out" when Christmas Eve rolled around.

Miss Julia Wolf, manager of the Aeolian-Vocalion department of the Edmund Gram Music House, broke all past records for number of sales and volume of business during 1918. The holiday season was far and away the best the Gram house has ever experienced, both in talking machines and pianos, and an outstanding feature this time was the large number of spot cash sales. It is a matter of note, also, that the initial payments made on deferred contracts were from 25 to 50 per cent. larger than ever before, without any particular urging on the part of salespeople. This is considered excellent testimony as to the state of the Milwaukee purse. The new Aeolian-Vocalion records went like the proverbial hot cakes at Christmas, and the Gram house has a vast number of back orders to fill during the next thirty or sixty days.

The co-operative advertising campaign conducted by the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries from the middle of October to Christmas undoubtedly was one of the most compelling factors in holiday trade. The campaign was directed largely at talking machine and record sales and brought wonderful results.

The association will hold its annual meeting on Thursday noon, January 16. As usual, the meeting will be held at the Hotel Wisconsin and will be preceded by luncheon. Members have been eager to learn the experiences of their fellows with the new interest-charging plan adopted October 1. As previously noted in The World, all deferred-payment contracts made from that date on contained a 6 per cent. interest clause. So far as can be learned, not a time sale was made that was not subject to interest. This is the first time that such a charge has been uniformly made by Milwaukee dealers. Little or no business was lost because of the institution of the charge, especially inasmuch as all members adhered to the clause and prospective buyers could not go from store to store and find one who would sell without interest.

Charles J. Orth, wholesale and retail distributor of the Puritan, reports a wholly remarkable business for the year in general and the holiday season in particular.

Articles of incorporation were filed recently by the Phonograph Improvement Co., Port Washington, Wis. The capital stock is $300,000, and the incorporators include William H. Thommen, Harry W. Bolens and J. B. Thierry, a well-known Milwaukee piano and organ dealer. The articles state the objects to be the manufacture and sale of talking machines, phonographs and parts.

The General Mfg. Co., Milwaukee, has been organized with an authorized capital stock of $100,000 to manufacture, wholesale and retail talking machines, phonographs and other musical instruments. The promoters are represented by Joseph G. Konop and Michael Levin, attorneys.

The Multitone Mfg. Co., Eau Claire, Wis., which established a factory for the manufacture of the Multitone phonograph last July, is so crowded in its present quarters that plans are being made for the erection of a complete new plant next spring.

E. S. PALMER BECOMES MANAGER

Edgar S. Palmer, formerly a member of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.'s traveling staff, has been appointed manager of the Ideal Music Co.'s Brooklyn store, and judging from the recent sales totals of this store Mr. Palmer will achieve a pleasing success in his new post.

TALKING MACHINE MUSIC MUCH FAVORED IN KANSAS CITY

Demand for Talking Machines and Records Emphasizes This Trend Emphatically—Dealers Cleaned Out of Stock—Look Forward to Immense Trade During New Year—News of Month

KANSAS CITY, Mo., December 4.—The talking machine business is practically at a standstill in Kansas City, except for a few dealers. The great Christmas demand has depleted already short stocks and there seems to be no hope for new shipments in the near future. The street car strike, which has tied up practically all lines of business for the past three weeks, has seemingly not affected the music trade to a very great extent. The demand for musical instruments of all kinds has never been so great as this year, according to practically every music dealer in the city. People seem to have been awakened to a new realization of the value of music since the war. Then, too, a class of people are buying now who have never before been able to afford these instruments, due to the greatly increased wages of the laboring class during the past year. The greatest demand has come from this class and they are buying good merchandise. Practically every cabinet Victrola in the city was sold out, but every dealer has several of the small machines, showing that the greater demand has been for the better grades. In nearly every case initial payments have been made larger and the term of payment has been shortened.

Harry Wunderlich, of the Wunderlich Piano Co., said: "We used to make every effort to interest a customer in buying a talking machine. Sometimes we even used almost desperate means to make a sale. But during the last two months I have held my breath every time a customer came into the store for fear he would ask to see Victrolas or want to hear some of the latest records. We needed to make no effort to sell talking machines, but our Victrolas were absolutely cleared out for Christmas. We still have a few Brunswicks on hand.

"It is my policy at present, with such unsettled conditions, to be absolutely sure of a customer before closing up a deal," said Mr. Wunderlich. "Because wages have been raised at such a rate during the past year there is no reason to believe that they will necessarily be maintained. There is bound to be a period of unrest among the laboring classes until conditions adjust themselves to the pre-war basis again.

"For this reason I try to be sure that a customer is not relying on his suddenly increased wages to carry him through with his payments before I make a sale. Too many people are assuming debts which they would never be able to meet if their wages should be reduced."

"We are absolutely out of business," said Burton J. Pierce, manager of the Victrola department at the J. W. Jenkins' Sons music store. "We just naturally haven't anything to do, our stocks are so depleted. We haven't a cabinet machine left and only a very few of the smallest machines. Our record shelves are bare."

Mr. Pierce had charge of the management of the French Orchestra, which was in Kansas City December 15 and 16 under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. About 3,000 tickets were sold for the entertainment, which was a very good showing considering the conditions at that time, due to the street car strike and "flu."

Willard Pierce, son of Burton J. Pierce, has been released from the S. A. T. C. at Kansas University. He has been spending the holidays at home, but will return to the university to continue his college work.

O. D. Standke, manager of the Victrola department at the Geo. B. Peck Dry Goods Co., is spending New Year's and a few days following on his farm south of Kansas City. He expects to bring back several carloads of rabbits.

Robert Murray, of the Henley-Waite Music Co., is seriously ill at his home with the influenza. His physician states that he will not be able to return to his work for at least four weeks.

S. M. Henley, manager of the Henley-Waite Music Co., is spending his time this week co-operating with the Street Railways Co. in giving the public service, as a member of the Seventh Regiment N. G. M. The Seventh Regiment was called out Saturday, December 28, to prevent violence from the strikers, while street car service was being resumed.

A. Arber has returned to his position in the Victrola department of the Jones Store Co., after being given a discharge from service in the Radio School at Graceland College, Lamoni, Ia.

Charles R. Lee, formerly with the Edison Shop, of New York City, is now with the Edison Shop, retail, of Kansas City. He expects to go with the wholesale soon.

I. W. Foster, formerly with the Edison Shop, in Kansas City, has returned to his former position after spending a year and a half as traveling salesman for the Edison in Montana and Idaho.

Mr. Linnins, utility man for the Edison Shop for over four years, died recently from the influenza. H. R. Hunt, of Ionia, Mich., has taken Mr. Linnins' place.

"We have had a tremendous business this holiday season," said Mr. Watson, manager of Edison, retail. "Our sales have been 100 per cent. better than last year. Owing to our large stock of merchandise, secured early in the year, we suffered no serious shortage of stock, although many people have taken out machines just to hold until their particular style is received."

"Business has been wonderful considering conditions," according to Mr. Hall, of the Hall Music Co. "There has been an unusual demand for oak machines. I have seldom had a call for oak finish until this season. The popular finish has always been mahogany in the past, but for some unknown reason there has been a great call for oak, which could not be supplied."

Francis S. Whitten, president of the Columbia Graphophone Co., who during the past few years has occupied the important post of lieutenant-commander in the U. S. Navy, has exchanged his navy uniform for civilian clothes, and is again at the helm at the Columbia executive offices in the Woolworth Building.

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[Note.—This is the twenty-second of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

MAKING THE MOST OF THE WAR

Well, the war is over and the great work of reconstructing the world is about to begin. In a good many ways, perhaps, that work will be quite as exciting as anything which has happened since 1914; and he would be a crazy, unbalanced optimist who should suggest that the chances of further trouble no longer exist. There is still a pot a-boiling out there in Eastern Europe and explosive material is still stored in quantities not at all comfortable. Still, in a large way, in a national way, the rush and hurry, the strain and tenseness of 1918 are gone; and we have to ask ourselves what we are going to make of 1919. There are a good many ways of looking at the great questions we must solve. In this article I am trying to get the featuring-the-musical-possibilities angle.

Talkers and War

Now, in the first place, it is fair to point out that the talking machine and its records have this year been more than ever "discovered." It is only necessary to talk with a soldier returned from overseas, or with one of the gallant men who have been out there with the armies of our Allies since 1914, to know that the mission of music in warfare of the modern kind is extraordinarily important. It is safe to say that the talking machine has done more than any other musical instrument to make itself pre-eminently the musical essential, par excellence, of the entire war. The peculiar conditions of warfare as they have been revealed during the last four years have created for the talking machine a place which no other instrument could possibly have filled. It cannot be too strongly insisted on that the soldiers as they return from overseas will return with a genuine feeling of respect and love for the talking machine which will be perpetuated by the memories of their days abroad. Every returned soldier knows that it has helped him through many a time of deep depression, and he will not forget quickly his debt of gratitude to the war-worn, battered machine and the few scratchy discs which did such noble work in giving him strength to carry on.

So we may as well recognize from the start that the talking machine has proved its right to exist as an essential. It seems to me that we can use this fact to our own advantage. But it also seems that unless we so use it as not to cheapen its associations with the war we shall do far more harm than good.

Don't Kill the Game!

The difficulty with the small-minded man is, of course, that he is small-minded. Give such a man a job to advertise the talking machine on the basis of its proved war record and he will kill the entire game in six months. He will play war and war and dug-outs and gas shells and "over the top" (d—n that phrase, anyway) until every returned soldier and his sweetheart will be sick to death of the whole business. The crude stuff is not the thing we want during 1919. What we want to do is to drive home the great service the talking machine has done for the winning of the war; but we do not want to perpetuate the memory of war horrors.

Here is an opportunity to the bright and keen dealer. I have often pointed out that the biggest problem before the talking machine trade is to keep the people buying records of the better class. To keep them doing this and to stimulate public interest in the purely musical qualities of the talking machine is a task worthy the efforts of the best publicity man we have ever had in the industry. 1919 must be strongly tinged with war-thought anyhow; it is up to us to connect the talking machine on its musical side with the war-thought; not war-horrors.

Opposites

Now, it oftentimes happens that things work by the rule of opposites. To the returning soldier the one thing he will above all find most interesting and charming will be domesticity and peace. He will begin to think of a little home, of a charming little wife; and a nice little talking machine cosily stuck into the usual cosy corner of the living room. It may be small-town stuff, my friends, as the snobs of New York and Chicago say, but it is true. Now, if I were planning a talking machine musical campaign for my store this year, I should reverse-English this war-stuff by working the domestic idea all I could. For instance, I should insist on pushing the domestic music with vigor, advertising the domestic records, and putting on a special "domestic" recital every two or three weeks. But what do you mean by "domestic"? says some curious yet slow-thinking person. Simply this, O dense one: All sorts and kinds of music which lead a chap to think of home and domestic bliss and all the rest of it. Let us take a look at the situation in this light.

Wedding Bells

It may seem fantastic, but I should certainly advertise all the marriage music I could find, including the "Marriage of Figaro" numbers, which so many of the fine sopranos have sung for Victor, Columbia, Edison and Pathé. I should make a collection of all the wedding marches I could find. I should instruct my clerks to try not only the modern hits but "In the Gloaming," "Bonnie, Sweet Bessie," "Annie Laurie," and all the old love songs I could find, on every soldier who came into my store. I should keep my demonstration machines busy with the domestic stuff till you couldn't rest.

New Freedoms

But there are other angles to this fascinating game. I said above that we want to capitalize the war-thought but not the thought of war's horrors. Well, part of the war has been the awakening to consciousness of peoples who have been oppressed for centuries and now at last find themselves constituted new and free states. The national music of these peoples—the Czecho-Slovaks (Bohemians, Moravians, Slovaks)—is splendid. The Victor Co.'s monthly Bohemian bulletin, to take the one I looked at first, is fine stuff. Then there are the Poles; and we all know what Polish music is. Again, there are the Serbs and Jugo-Slavs. There is much fine Serbian music to be had. I should most certainly, if it were my job to do so, advertise and push the national music of all the new states. Scarcely a city or town in the country but has among its hard-working, intelligent citizens some Poles, Czechs or Jugo-Slavs. Now is the time to get out a selection of national songs of these new states and advertise them to beat h—ades! Don't forget also that when we are talking of the musical possibilities of the talking machine we might as well remember that it is not necessary to confine the selling of national music to natives or their descendants of the countries. The American people have heard much about these new states since the war began to turn in favor of the Allied Powers; and now colleges and women's clubs are studying their history and institutions. Their music, then, has an appeal very general in its range. Why not advertise and take advantage of this?

Clean Stuff

In the same way the war has given a great impulse to the thought of military preparedness and has stimulated the manly virtues. Women have likewise had their lesson and are beginning to understand as never before their importance and the splendor of their position in the world as partners, not as inferior helps. This, too, has its bearing on the problems of selling record-music to the people. What is wanted is to emphasize the out-doors, manly, simple life, the life of clean living and clean thinking. This year, then, the wise dealer who wants to fall in with the prevailing thought of the people will put the ban on the cabaret stuff all he can. He will do his best to denature the jazz, and will push the sale of healthy stuff like Sousa's marches, the old-fashioned patriotic and martial songs, the songs that tell of the great out-doors, and so on. There is a big field here for development.

BETTER GRADE INSTRUMENTS IN DEMAND IN NORTHWEST

Leading Dealers Report That Demand During Holidays and Opening Month of the New Year Was Unprecedented in Northwest—Anxiously Awaiting Shipments of Stock—Review of Month

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., January 6.—Past records are useless in comparing the success of the talking machine dealers of St. Paul and Minneapolis for the past three months. Trade grew very brisk shortly after the crops began to move to the terminal markets, particularly in the rural districts, and then when the armistice was announced the cities became very active with the result that the dealers had a December that really could be dubbed as glorious in comparison with former star records.

"There never was anything like it in the Northwest," declares Archie Matheis, head of the Talking Machine Co. of Minneapolis. It would be well to listen to Mr. Matheis, for he is the unquestioned dean of the talking machine dealers of the Twin Towns. Speaking for himself, he states that the December trade was the heaviest and the best he has ever known.

All the men in the phonograph business shared in the great prosperity. The big jobbing houses had more orders than they possibly could fill and the dealers in retail almost were mobbed at times by the eager seekers for the modern musical instruments. It was impossible for them to meet the calls, and to hold sales hundreds of small models were sent out with the promise of replacement when the business had righted itself after the great holiday drive.

It was noted that virtually all the buyers wanted the larger and better grades of instruments. This was the invariable tendency in every shop in the Twin Cities, and distributors tell the same story. So easy was it to dispose of talking machines that none of the houses allowed more than twelve months on instalment sales, and some houses, notably the Cable Piano Co., placed the limit at ten months. Many of the first payments were made in Liberty Bonds, although holders of these securities are urged to retain them for a considerable period.

It may be stated as a fact that one house alone sold fully 100 machines of the $300 model of a high grade phonograph. Further details are forbidden by the informant.

Beckwith-O'Neil Co. were cleared out of every Victrola above the $90 style. The house has not been able to even approximate the wants of its many customers for several months. Its record business has been very large and the stock has been kept up fairly well.

W. J. Dyer & Bro. have been about as helpless as the other Victor distributors. They have pulled every string within reach, time and time again, but with indifferent success and they were able to offer but little consolation to their patrons. It was a trial to such a conscientious merchant as W. J. Dyer to be compelled to refuse all business friends, many of whom he had had relations with for more than a generation, but Victor machines were not obtainable for love or money.

G. Sommers & Co.'s immense stock of Pathé instruments and records almost dwindled away, and is now to be found scattered from Wisconsin to Montana. Manager Jay H. Wheeler is now taking account of the character of the sales and trying to accumulate another whale of a stock for 1919 distribution.

Sonora phonographs jumped into the limelight in a bound. Sewell D. Andrews, manager of the Sonora department for the Minneapolis Drug Co., has established various Twin City and rural connections that henceforth will keep the instrument in the front rank. The increase in the volume of business should be flattering to the house as well as encouraging to the manufacturers.

Likewise the Brunswick was given a splendid impetus, mainly through the efforts of Boutell Brothers, the big furniture house. They advertised the Brunswick widely and without any doubt obtained results. The Brunswick is making consistent headway in the States west of the Twin Cities, through the persistent efforts of Director E. L. Kern and his traveling staff.

Foster & Waldo, who now carry four complete lines of talking machines, the Victor, Edison, Columbia and Sonora—so far overtopped all their previous efforts to sell this class of musical instruments that they have nothing by which to make comparison. Robert O. Foster states that the house easily could use twice the space for their talking machine department they now occupy and are hoping that they soon will have assurance that additional space will be provided.

W. J. Dyer & Bro. will greatly enlarge their retail salesrooms, but are not prepared to make the announcement at this time. It does not intend to be caught again as it was in the holiday crush of 1918. The sister house in Minneapolis, the Metropolitan Music Co., was compelled to make some emergency expansion of its Victrola quarters, which proved a great relief when the crush came.

J. A. Pofahl, manager of the talking machine department of the Golden Rule, a large St. Paul department store, was able to report a record business for his department.

J. A. Sandey, head of the talking machine section of the O. S. Donaldson Co. department store, also had an exceptionally fine business in Victrolas, that is as far as he was able to obtain the goods.

Laurence H. Lucker, president of the Minnesota Phonograph Co., northwestern distributors of the Edison phonographs and records, has been seriously ill with influenza. He was stricken just at the opening of the holiday rush, but found an able lieutenant in his assistant, Mr. Lowy. The Edison figures for the closing quarter of 1918 are so far ahead of 1917 that mere percentages mean nothing.

The only thing that Manager Sprague, of the Columbia Co., was able to report was that absolutely everything, of the biggest stock ever, had gone.

TALKING MACHINES WELL "CLEANED UP" IN CINCINNATI

Barren Stockrooms and Orders for New Stock Tell the Story of the Greatest Volume of Business in the History of the Trade in That City—Sales Percentages Total Big

CINCINNATI, O., January 3.—A most artistic clean-up of talking machines and records was the predominating feature of the holiday season in this city. Barren stockrooms and orders for new stock graphically tell the story of the greatest volume of business in the history of the trade. Big lines and small lines shared in the demand. It was a case of selling a phonograph, irrespective of the make and the dealer who had the supply was truly a fortunate individual. Only one dealer near Cincinnati is known to have taken Liberty Bonds as part payment. Anyhow the practice was not general for the supply houses say they have had but one request to accept this paper in payment for goods.

Three new styles will be added to the line of the Crystola Co. during the year, one of these to make its appearance very shortly, selling at $175 retail. The company has been operating on only two styles and found itself somewhat handicapped. The Crystola Co. closed the year with a volume of business far beyond the expectation of the management.

The Phonograph Co. started 1919 with positively nothing to sell and orders coming in from dealers requiring shipment of goods, showing them to have exhausted their supplies. Manager Oelman this morning stated that several carloads of stock were en route to Cincinnati and he expects to have these ready for Edison dealers before the end of another week.

Manager T. Sigman, Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., said: "The month of December was an excellent one considering the amount of Victrolas and records we had in stock to sell. The "Sold Out" sign was hung up long before Christmas, and every cabinet machine we had was sold, and thereafter substitutions were made, and in every case was accepted as conditions were well known to the buyers.

"The spirit of Christmas was never more thoroughly shown than it was during the holiday season this year, and it made the lot of the dealers easier considering the tremendous shortage; substituting being necessary both on machines and records in many cases.

"A hurry-up list of records of what we had in stock was rushed to the dealers in time for them to supply their customers with a good selection of Christmas records. Red seal records sold better this month than they have for a long time, and we attribute it to the large sales of the 'Book of the Opera' and to the extra efforts made by our expert red seal record sales force."

The Columbia Graphophone Co. has just closed a very successful year at their Cincinnati branch. Manager Dawson reports that a very encouraging part of the business is that collections have run ahead of sales.

December, 1918, compared to December, 1917, showed an increase well over 100 per cent. This makes December by far the largest month in the history of the local branch. Record sales have shown a steady increase for months past.

Manager Dawson, Assistant Manager Williams and Salesmen Bright and Simms are very happy and look forward to their work in 1919 with a great deal of enthusiasm and pleasure.

Business at the Columbia retail store the last six months of the year showed an increase of 150 per cent. over the same six months in 1917.

C. L. Byars, of the Aeolian Co., reports the biggest December Vocalion business in the history of the store. Three of the most popular styles of instruments were sold out entirely, and there is every reason to believe that the volume of business would have still been greater had they stock enough to meet the demands. There was a big demand this season for the higher-priced instruments, and Art Styles.

The most remarkable feature about the December business, however, was the manner in which the public took to the Vocalion records. Mr. Byars prophesies that the talking machine dealers are now entering upon what should prove the most prosperous and successful year ever experienced in business. The public has conserved and saved for so long that now that the war is over they feel like cutting loose of the purse strings again and indulging in a few of the luxuries which they have had to forego.

The Cincinnati branch of Steinway & Sons closed out its talking machine department during December and will hereafter confine its attention exclusively to straight piano selling.

That the Vitanola talking machine, the product of the Vitanola Talking Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., is growing in popularity is evidenced from the fact that E. Kleeman Co., the Dines Furniture Co. and the Sample Furniture Co., all report a very good business in these machines.

FIRE DESTROYS KENYON FACTORY

Big Talking Machine and Cabinet Plant at Mexico, N. Y., Burned Down—Plans Already Made for a New and Larger Plant

MEXICO, N. Y., January 4.—The plant of the R. L. Kenyon Mfg. Co., of this city, manufacturers of the Charmophone talking machine and also producers of talking machine cabinets, was totally destroyed by fire on Tuesday. The entire loss is covered by insurance, and the executives of the company are now making arrangements for temporary manufacturing, with the expectation of filling orders to the dealers as quickly as possible.

In a chat with The World an officer of the company stated that plans are now being drawn for the construction of a modern, up-to-date fireproof plant upon the site of the old factory. Work upon this plant will be commenced as quickly as possible, and the company expects to take care of its orders most efficiently when the new plant is completed.

FUTURE HOLDS GREAT PROMISE FOR TRADE IN MONTREAL

Believed That Return of Thousands of Soldiers Will Have Excellent Effect on Talking Machine Business—Dealers Using More Progressive Methods in Going After Business

MONTREAL, CAN., January 3.—In comparing holiday business of 1918 as against 1917 it shows a large and healthy percentage of all-round increase. One particularly good aspect was the large amount of cash business and the demand for the higher and more expensive models, the call for which is steadily growing more apparent day by day.

There never has been a year when the talking machine manufacturers and the individual phonograph dealers invested so much money in printer's ink, added to the fancy dress and brilliant array of the show windows which brought festive spirit to the passers-by, all of which had telling results. It was the consensus of opinion among all dealers that the return of thousands of men cannot but fail to have a stimulating effect on the talking machine industry, and this demand will create a prosperity in which the talking machine industry will have its just share.

Arthur K. Kempton, 8 McGill College avenue, the dealer in phonograph specialties, has just returned from Chicago and other Western points, with a number of exclusive Canadian agencies. He has secured the exclusive distributing rights in Canada of the "Tonofone" and "Goldentone" needles, and also for the Rotometer, a device for testing the speed of the turntable. The agency for a repeating device has been arranged and a stock is on the way.

The Standard Cabinet Co., Ltd., head office Montreal, has been incorporated with a capital of $95,000 to manufacture among other things phonographs, musical instruments, etc.

H. S. Berliner, vice-president Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., Montreal, spent a couple of days in Toronto early in the month. His Master's Voice, Ltd., of this city, are the Ontario distributors of the products of the Berliner factory, while the Western trade is taken care of by the Western Gramophone Co., of Winnipeg and Calgary.

Theoretically and practically Mr. Berliner is a pronounced optimist. In post-war conditions he sees a greater musical demand than ever and has made such additions to his factory as to insure the output of records being constantly maintained equal to or just ahead of the demand.

During the war recording in the company's laboratory at Montreal was extensively developed and regular additions made to the catalog of "His Master's Voice" records in all-Canadian recordings.

"His Master's Voice" record No. 245,000 is to be available to the general public. This record is a desirable souvenir for any household that has any means of playing it over, having unique historical association. It is the address by Sir Thomas White, K.C.M.G., Minister of Finance for Canada, and was his deputy in addressing the thousands of workers on the recent Victory Loan campaign.

"Our holiday business was remarkably good," said Charles Culross referring to Sonora and Aeolian-Vocalion lines, and to look around his warehouses it certainly was "some clean-up," as it looked as if he was going out of business or his credit had been stopped.

S. H. Brown, retail sales manager of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., paid a flying visit to his home town, Providence, R. I., partaking of his Christmas dinner with his mother. On his way home he visited Boston and called upon the Eastern Talking Machine Co.

"Biggest business in years," said Retail Sales Manager S. H. Brown, of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., discussing holiday trade. "People who have been earning big wages the past year have saved largely, and what was more to their liking than a gramophone? They had in their earlier days always coveted one, and now they had the money, a Victrola naturally suggested itself to them. What was the result? On Christmas Eve we were cleaned out of all cabinet models. Did you mention records, 'His Master's Voice records?' said Mr. Brown, "why they went out of our stores by the thousands. This year as in other years our record certificates proved most popular."

"We are proud of the volume of business transacted during December, especially the holiday trade, and we have yet to hear of a complaint as regards the delivery of machines made on Christmas Eve," said Manager Geo. S. Pequegnat, of the Phonograph Shop of Montreal Reg'd. Pathéphones sold constituted all types, exclusive of table models, Queen Mary and William designs proving most popular. Aeolian-Vocalion lines were also great favorites; 75 per cent. of the machines sold were of a spot-cash nature.

The Phonograph Shop of Montreal Reg'd, are now advertising in the street cars, and have a series of well-prepared illustrated cards which they are using, giving publicity to the various high-class lines they feature.

Anna Case, the Edison artist, will, during January, give a concert in His Majesty's Theatre for the benefit of the Montreal Association for the Blind, of which Philip E. Layton, of Layton Bros., exclusive Edison dealers, is one of the leading workers.

VIGOROUS CAMPAIGNS FOR 1919 PLANNED IN TORONTO

Louis F. Geissler, of Victor Co., Tells of Importance of Music in the Schools—To Increase Output of Sonoras in Canada—Good Reports From the Canadian Northwest

TORONTO, CAN., January 9.—That the music dealers have unlimited trade opportunities through the introduction of music in the schools was the sentiment expressed by Louis F. Geissler, the general manager of the Victor Talking Machine Co., who spent a day in Toronto on his return East from a duck hunt in Manitoba. Mr. Geissler was quite impressed with the musical development of this country as evidenced by the numerous and attractive music houses of this city. Though he found the Manitoba wild duck wily and speedy of flight Mr. Geissler stated that he had a most enjoyable holiday.

In an effort to secure further shipments of the Sonora I. Montagnes, of I. Montagnes & Co., Canadian distributors of the Sonora line, has returned from a week in New York.

With the war concluded the manufacture of the Sonora line in Canada is to be prosecuted more vigorously than before, so that eventually Sonora dealers will have the complete range in Canadian-made goods.

Mr. van Gelder, of this firm, sails for Europe

The Brunswick Shop recently donated a Brunswick phonograph to the Army Service Corps Military Benefit.

Massicotte & Renaud have registered as dealers in phonographs.

Foisy Freres, Inc., are exceptionally well pleased with the past year's business and the month of December in particular.

On the Saturday previous to Christmas, Almy's, Ltd., Grafonola department sold nearly five hundred Columbia records, this in addition to disposing of a large number of Grafonolas of various types during the month.

Optimism was the keynote of the remarks made by C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., to your correspondent as regards business for January. Referring to the month just concluded, they stated the call for Sonora and Columbia machines had been more insistent this year than they have ever seen it.

Leon Comen has opened up Pathé parlors at 211 Sherbrooke street West, where he is featuring the complete Pathéphone line and library of Pathé records.

Layton Bros. delivered during December a large number of Edison and Columbia machines, while their business in records of these makes was most gratifying.

The Cosmopolitan Graphophone & Piano Co. have opened up at St. Lawrence boulevard, where they are specializing in Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records.

Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., represented in the Province of Quebec by Robert W. Burgess, with headquarters at the New Birks building, Montreal, are building up a trade here that is worth while. Their increase in sales will run 200 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago.

in the very near future and expects to be absent several months. He will first visit his home in Holland after an absence of nearly fifteen years and will visit other countries in connection with business.

E. Standfield has just returned from a trip through Western Canada in the interests of Starr phonographs and records. In the comparatively short time since the Starr line was introduced to the Canadian trade it has made remarkably good progress and this is particularly so in the West. The Starr Co., of Canada, distributors of the line, and whose headquarters are at London, are anticipating a greater demand for music than Canada has ever known.

W. D. Stevenson, of Starr Co., of Canada, recently visited the Starr factories at Richmond.

The Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., of this city, have taken on the Sonora line.

H. V. Kautzman, formerly with I. Montagnes & Co., is now connected with Heintzman & Co., Ltd., at Niagara Falls.

THE TRADE SITUATION IN TORONTO

Bruce Beattie has opened his third Columbia Grafonola shop in this city, his newest location being the Yonge Street Arcade.

K. A. Ross, who recently completed a tour of the West in the interests of Musical Merchandise Sales Co., distributors of the Brunswick phonograph, tells of an interesting visit with George Johnson, a large automobile importer of Brisbane, Australia. Mr. Johnson, who was spending a few days in Vancouver on his homeward journey, hunted up Mr. Ross on hearing that a Brunswick representative was in the city. He and Mrs. Johnson had just purchased a Brunswick for their home in Brisbane and it was being shipped from San Francisco to their home, where they looked forward to much enjoyment from the instrument of their choice.

Mr. Landon, the associate of James P. Bradt in the management of the Canadian division of Columbia Graphophone Co., returned to Toronto from a visit across Canada to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Landon, who has an extensive experience in salesmanship, and an intimate knowledge of the Columbia Co.'s history and products, sees in Canada marvelous opportunities in industrial progress and tremendous possibilities for the music industries.

The E. J. Coles Co., Woodstock, Ont., are featuring the Starr phonograph.

An eight-foot Vocalion record in the window of the Nordheimer Piano & Music Co., Ltd., Toronto, has created much local interest and comment. The giant record, a reproduction of the Vocalion standard record, was with some difficulty placed in the store as the doorways, generous as they are, were not designed to accommodate such monsters. A spectator expressing his wonderment to E. C. Scythes, general manager of the firm, gravely inquired if it would be a pretty loud record. He was duly impressed with the information that if played it would be heard at least to the island, almost two miles away, and he continued to wonder at the marvels of science.

C. J. Pott, Canadian sales manager for the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., and Mrs. Pott are among those who went down to New York for the Christmas holidays.

Malcolm F. Wood has taken up his new duties as manager of the Victrola department at Whaley, Royce & Co., Ltd., on Yonge street.

D. S. Cullen has opened up at Kitchener, Ont., with the Edison Diamond Disc.

L. Baxter, general sales manager for the Thomas Mfg. Co., of Dayton, O., whose phonograph motors and parts are well known in Canada, was a recent visitor to his firm's Toronto office.

Arthur Pellerin & Co. have recently opened up at 420 Rideau street, Ottawa, Ont., where they are featuring many makes of phonographs.

The Ottawa Phonograph Co., 312 Bank street, with the Pathéphone as its leader, is Ottawa's newest talking machine dealer. An attractive store with a complete library of Pathé records and a full range of Pathé machines and gold medal phonographs are featured.

George H. Honsberger, of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., has returned to headquarters at Toronto from a successful trip through Western Canada. Mr. Honsberger made a thorough canvass of the territory from Winnipeg to Edmonton, the result being many new agencies for the "Red Rooster" line. He had many opportunities of talking with farmers, and invariably found them optimistic and in a buying mood, except, of course, in the localities where crops proved disappointing. Altogether he found the prairie farmer appreciative of music in the home, and a particularly gratifying prospect for the dealer in phonographs.

Various alterations are nearing completion in the retail department of the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., this city, which, of course, will be of greater convenience and attractive to all departments concerned. The main floor is being taken over by the phonograph department, under the management of "Jeff" Ford. This will provide Mr. Ford with two floors for retail selling. The entire main floor, including recital hall, has been decorated and rearranged, the main portion of which will constitute sales department for instruments. The second floor, formerly the entire retail phonograph department, has been rearranged for the sale of records entirely, seven new, soundproof, demonstrating rooms being added, making a total of fifteen for this department. Mr. Ford has also worked in a very convenient and very compact record room for Edison Re-Creations, which, in a small space, will have a capacity of 20,000. The total record filing capacity for the department represents from 35,000 to 40,000 records.

The allotment of additional space to departments was made possible by the removal of wholesale departments to a separate building at 468 King street, West, where they are now comfortably located and in a position to provide much improved service.

A. F. Meisselbach, of Newark, N. J., who joined the organization of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. when that firm acquired the Meisselbach factory some time since, was a recent visitor to Canada. He spent the better part of a week here, shaking hands with his business friends and in visiting the Heineman Toronto branch.

Among the numerous victims of the Spanish influenza in, and allied with, the music trades was Frank A. Smith, of Kitchener, a direct mill agent for a variety of supplies and accessories for the piano and talking machine manufacturers. The business conducted by the late Mr. Smith is being taken over by A. B. Caya, who for a number of years had represented a number of prominent firms. Mr. Caya has office and showrooms at 28 King street East, Kitchener. Mrs. F. A. Smith will retain an interest in the business.

Columbia dealers have been notified by James P. Bradt, Canadian manager of the Columbia Co., that President Wilson, who has upset tradition by being the first President of the United States to leave the shores of that country, requested that a Columbia Grafonola and an assortment of Columbia records be placed on board the "George Washington." The press representatives to the number of 300, including some of the most prominent newspaper writers, also had a Grafonola and Columbia records.

"Every one of us should be mighty glad that we are in the musical business. Music speaks in all tongues, and all ears understand. It is a tremendous influence," concluded Mr. Bradt in his letter to the dealers.

A COLUMBIA ROMANCE

A real Columbia romance was celebrated on Christmas Day when Miss Katherine Grant, secretary to O. F. Benz, of the general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was betrothed to David A. Wise, manager of the record department of the Columbia Co.'s Pittsburgh branch. Miss Grant is a native Pittsburgh girl, and both she and Mr. Wise have been associated with the Columbia Co. for several years.

ST. LOUIS IN HIGH SPIRITS OVER THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

During Holidays Machines of All Kinds and Conditions That Could Be Procured Were Disposed of—Demand Absolutely Unprecedented—Everyone Feels Optimistic Over Future—News of Month

St. Louis, Mo., January 7.—Local talking machine merchants had quite a novel experience the recent Christmas, when a good many of them sold practically all of the stock in their stores. Nearly all of them departed from their usual exclusive lines and sold other machines, some advertising these machines and others merely selling them.

In most of the Olive street stores records for the last of the Christmas trade were being demonstrated on box machines that sat upon cabinets that did not fit. In one case a large golden oak box machine was sitting on a small mahogany cabinet, and this combination sold many records. Also it helped to convince doubters that the house really was sold out, for it certainly was a grotesque combination.

There are many stories being told up and down the street about the stickers that were sold, including high priced golden oaks, which seldom sell well here, and of the high terms, especially toward the close of the rush. If a storekeeper expressed doubts as to whether he ought to let the customer have the machine because it was partially promised elsewhere, often the customer present would raise the terms as a lure to the sale, and he most often would win.

After a rush of this kind in which it seemed that pretty nearly everybody who wanted to get a machine got one of some kind or other, there has come more or less discussion as to the future.

Manager Roos, of the Columbia, said on this line: "I am advising all of our customers to get in their next Christmas orders just as soon as possible, for I certainly believe that there will be a scramble next year. I look certainly for two years' business at capacity of the standard factories. I believe that a good deal of the trade this year is merely a feeder for the trade that is to come. At our retail branch we do not exchange any machines at all. It is a straight sale or we do not make it."

This idea of business is held by many others and a good many of the local merchants already are writing orders that look to the entire year in trade. They are willing to take these machines as soon as they can get them and store them until they are needed.

Mark Silverstone, Edison jobber, said: "We are counting upon at least a 100 per cent. increase in business for this year. We are advising our dealers to this effect and everything is being carried forth with this idea. We had a most excellent Christmas season, but toward the end it was necessary for us to talk our prospects up to $285 instead of letting them spend what they had in mind. This was not difficult this year, because the people had money, or excellent prospects and were not afraid to let loose of it."

There have been several rumors that important employes in the various houses would be in new places after the first of the year, but at this writing only one has been announced. J. B. Sabath, manager of the talking machine department of the Kieselhorst Piano Co., has left that firm and has not yet made his new connection known. He is succeeded by Theo. W. Maetten, a long time employe of the House of Kieselhorst and a successful piano man. He will be assisted by Charles O. Thompson, the advertising man, who becomes detail man in the talking machines. Miss Emma Hammer is head of the record department.

The Victor dealers appear to be in excellent spirits over their prospects, despite the slight stocks they had for the Christmas trade. The local dealers through the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association have been urging the Victor Co. to come out in a general advertising campaign and state plainly to the public exactly the reason for the shortage of Victor goods this season. They have wanted the recent statement to the trade by the Victor Co. made public, just as the razor and other companies have been telling the public why their products were so nearly off of the market. E. C. Rauth, of the Koerber-Brenner Music Co., Victor jobbers, visited the Victor factory recently to present in person the request from the middle west. It has come to the dealers here that their petition has been favorably heard and such explanation will be made to the public.

Mark Silverstone, president of the Silverstone Music Co., went to Palm Beach early in January, expecting to remain there until the Edison Jobbers' convention in February. He expects to return to St. Louis about the middle of March.

A recent visitor here told of a soldier who returned to Winnipeg, Canada, while the visitor was there, and exhibited a handful of talking machine needles that had been picked from his legs and back. The story of the wounded man was that he was hurt by a shrapnel and had almost 100 small cuts. At the hospital the metal in his wounds caused much wonderment until some practical person recognized the bits of steel as talking machine needles. They were unable to tell whether or not they had been used.

The armistice signatures did not look alike to all persons. Over in the coal mining district a talking machine dealer had an order for seventy-five machines for holiday shipment placed with a St. Louis jobber. He immediately wired the jobber to cancel the order and also to revise his record order and drop all of the high priced records. At last reports, the man had just about cleaned up on his stock on hand of machines, and still had high priced records on his shelves. He saw the thing right, for the demand for coal slumped immediately and work became very scarce in the mines toward Christmas and there was none at all during the holidays. But it can be said that miners were good customers while they were getting the big money. One dealer in an Illinois town of 3,000 offered to wager that he had sold more opera records from $3 up during the last year than any St. Louis dealer. His wager was not accepted.

Several entirely new machines have been pushed here recently and apparently have sold well. Most of these newcomers have not been listed previously, but some of them are quite well known.

R. H. Cone, Jr., of the Artophone Co., says that the unexpected retail trade during the holiday season has somewhat upset his plans for entering the jobbing trade as freely as he expected to early this year. He was in almost as much trouble over stock for his retail trade as were the purely retail dealers, and the jobbing trade that the company has had from its beginning has been increasing its demand steadily. As a result, he does not know just when he will be in a position to extend his activities.

Along with the other good features of this brisk holiday business, most of the dealers have been insisting on more than ten per cent. down and nothing longer than ten months, or perhaps fourteen months for the complete bill of machine and records when the customer was talked up to a considerably higher priced machine than was anticipated.

Max Rooten, a collector for the Dell Phonograph Distributing Co., 444 Broadway, New York, reported that he had been held up and robbed of $40 by two negroes on West 135th street, one night recently. The robbers have not yet been apprehended.

BUSINESS INCREASE IN NASHVILLE

O. K. Houck Piano Co. Handle Heavy Victor Trade and Expect Big Things in 1919—100 Per Cent. Columbia Increase—Excellent Business Reports From the Country Districts

NASHVILLE, TENN., January 6.—All the dealers in this city report fine holiday business and an excellent December and also the largest business in 1918 ever known. It is estimated that on an average the volume of sales for all dealers in the city increased from 50 to 100 per cent. over 1917. Individual reports from the various houses follow.

O. K. Houck Piano Co., Victor jobbers and retailers, with branches in other cities South, did a splendid December business, and were in the fortunate position of having retained a certain portion of their wholesale stock for their retail demand, and thus affording their local customers the opportunity of buying a limited portion of what they really wanted, when it was practically impossible to buy any standard make talking machine. The Houck Co. did an excellent year's business, and are so well and favorably known in Tennessee that with the probability of a somewhat larger supply of Victrolas and Victor records this year they hope to do great things in 1919.

Bond's Graphophone Shop, Columbia exclusively, through E. E. Hyde, manager, say that their business for the year just closed was practically 100 per cent. increase over 1917, and they expect an even larger volume in 1919. They were busy up to the last minute the day before Christmas and sold every Grafonola in the store before closing. All possible endeavor is now being put forth to replenish the stock for the demand which shows no signs of slackening.

The Castner-Knott Co., Victrola exclusively, has one of the most attractive and pleasing music departments to be found anywhere. Mr. Traylor, manager of the Victrola department, tells The World that they kept "just ahead of the hounds," and were, by anticipating their requirements as far ahead as possible, able to satisfy the very large demand in a satisfactory manner. Mr. Traylor is quite sanguine over the outlook in 1919.

H. Brown & Co., Columbia exclusively, have just closed the best year since they have handled the Grafonola. Their increase was nearly 100 per cent. They occupy one of the best locations in Nashville, have a large and loyal following and are constantly on the lookout for modern methods by which they can make their Grafonola department more up to date and attractive.

The following towns in the Nashville territory all report the largest business in 1918 they have ever known: Columbia, Clarksville, Gallatine, Murfreesboro, Tracy City, Tullahoma, Lawrenceburg, Petersburg, Springfield and Winchester. In almost every one of these somewhat smaller but relatively important towns Columbia, Victor, Edison and other dealers are preparing to make enlargements or improvements in their phonograph departments, engaging expert sales people and increasing their investment to keep pace with the constantly growing demand.

Nashville dealers and those in the towns above mentioned send New Year's greetings to The Talking Machine World and to the fraternity in general, with the hope that 1919 may be the best year in every particular that has ever been known.

INTRODUCE NEW MODEL OF CASTER

Faultless Caster Co. Having Big Call for New Model for High-Class Phonographs

EVANSVILLE, IND., January 5.—The Faultless Caster Co., of this city, one of the largest manufacturing concerns in this section of the State, has recently added to its extensive line of casters a new model, which is particularly designed for use on high-grade phonographs. This caster, which has been introduced under the name of the "New Faultless" felt caster, has many distinctive features which insure its success, particularly as the cushion tread of the wheels rolls over the floor with a quiet firmness that preserves the perfect construction of the phonograph.

The Faultless caster has won recognition from many well-known talking machine manufacturers as a material factor in the success of their instruments. These casters have been adopted for use by manufacturers in all parts of the country, and the company has received many letters of commendation from makers of talking machines.

The Faultless Caster Co. has an extensive plant in this city, and the progressiveness of the company has resulted in its products winning international popularity. Its manufacturing policy has always had one aim, namely, to make quality the predominating factor, and this "New Faultless" felt caster thoroughly reflects the principles of this policy.

PRAISE FOR EDISON ADVERTISING

Warren W. Burgess Analyzes the Sort of Copy Used in Selling Edison Phonographs—Wm. Maxwell Talks on Use of "Advertising Hop"

In a recent address before the members of the Advertising Club of New York William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., related most interestingly the manner in which the business of selling Edison phonographs had been stimulated, and was being stimulated by means of widespread advertising. Mr. Maxwell emphasized particularly the fact that most of the Edison copy was designed primarily to sell the products, and not simply exploit the name, and likewise had considerable to say regarding the use of sensational advertising methods, or, as he put it, the use of "advertising hop," in an effort to stimulate business. He compared the use of sensational advertising with the use of narcotics by an addict for the purpose of securing temporary stimulation without permanent benefit.

That the Edison copy has attracted the favorable attention of advertising men generally was indicated by a letter sent to Printers' Ink by Warren W. Burgess following the publication of Mr. Maxwell's address. In his letter Mr. Burgess said in part regarding the Edison advertising:

"We have all read Edison copy, and personally I think most of us have been impressed with what S. Roland Hall would call the 'Key Note.'

"The dominant thought in most Edison copy is that you can't tell or distinguish the Edison sound reproduction from the original.

"If this isn't selling copy, what is? To me it seems as though this 'key note' drives hard at the very best prospects there can be for Edisons. I say this because, owing to the higher price on Edison in comparison with other machines, the manufacturers must appeal to the musically educated, or perhaps I should say to the lovers of classical and near-classical music.

"It isn't likely that many Edison owners are fond of 'jazz'—their ears are attuned to softer notes—to the offerings of the most prominent operatic stars.

"If this is the case—then the copy featuring the fact that you can't tell the Edison reproduction from the original rendition is surely subtle selling copy—copy that paves the way for the higher price, because it makes the quality appeal.

"And also what would you call the copy referring to the Diamond Disc—no changing of needles? Selling copy surely.

"The mid-Western delegation doesn't know what the sales cost in percentage terms is on Edisons, but I agree with myself in thinking that Edison has used, is using, and will use selling copy—profitably.

"Really, isn't it mighty hard to write anything but sales copy—I mean 'reason why' isms?"

Don't wait for the boss. Be a self-starter.

PITTSBURGH ASSN.'S GENEROUS GIFT

Talking Machine Men Present Victrola and Player-Piano With Records and Rolls to New Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in That City

PITTSBURGH, PA., January 4.—The Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Pittsburgh again evidences its alertness and vigor in its activity towards furnishing a suite of rooms as a soldiers' and sailors' club in Pittsburgh. This club is located on one of the principal business thoroughfares in Pittsburgh—in fact, is in the Public Safety Building and occupies the ground and the fourth floors.

The association has raised funds and has purchased for this clubroom a Victrola XIV mahogany with a large selection of records and a high-class player-piano with a fine selection of player rolls. As is shown by the accompanying photograph these instruments form the feature attraction of the very attractive room, where many hundreds of soldiers and sailors are entertained daily.

The rooms are in charge of a central committee appointed by the Mayor of Pittsburgh and are in the opinion of some of the soldier boys who have visited similar rooms in other cities the most attractive outfit of its kind they have seen.

The instruments furnished by the association bear an attractive engraved plate stating that they were presented to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club by the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Pittsburgh.

VICTORY SPIRIT FOR 1919 PREVAILS IN BALTIMORE

A Great Business Year Closed Despite Shortage of Stock—Optimism and Confidence Pervade as far as the Outlook for New Year Is Concerned—The News of the Month

BALTIMORE, Md., January 7.—Baltimore talking machine dealers closed one of the best years of their careers despite the fact that throughout the year they were always short of products, but now they are optimistic and are firm in their opinion that 1919 is going to be the greatest year in the history of the trade.

Dealers declare that had the stocks come through the business done in this territory would have been at least 100 per cent. greater. The retailers all showed increases in their trading, while the distributors fell back somewhat in their wholesale dealings.

The Christmas holiday trading came with a rush and as the new year opened the business continued just as though the holiday season was still on. Many persons used records as Christmas gifts, some firms providing special holly boxes for the gifts. While in the past there has always been some gifts of records as Yuletide offerings, this year the presents in that direction were far greater than ever before.

Optimism that pervades the trade is really the best sign of conditions that are to come and without exception all of the dealers are in that frame of mind. Distributors are insisting that the small dealers who desire to handle their line equip their establishments in an up-to-date manner, otherwise they will lose the lines. This method is being used by the distributors, especially in the rural districts of the State, and is already meeting with success.

"We look forward to the greatest year we have ever had," was the comment of William S. Parks, manager of the local Columbia branch. "I say conservatively that we will do 100 per cent. more business this coming year than we did in 1918, when despite our shortage of goods from time to time we went ahead. I am advising all of our dealers that they invest all of their profits immediately in surplus stock and to begin at once to place their orders as far ahead as possible. I believe this is going to be a big year, due to many conditions."

While the Columbia Co. was not able to get sufficient machines to handle the demand, the big shipments of records that arrived late in December made possible a greater business than that done in machines and records during December, 1917.

Philip Levy Co., Columbia dealer, Norfolk, Va., has just increased his talking machine department and added three new booths. Reams, Jones & Blakenship, Roanoke; McGee-Cole Furniture Co., Lynchburg; O. M. Ramsey, Martinsburg, W. Va., and H. A. Garren, Washington, D. C., Columbia dealers, are all modernizing their talking machine departments in preparation for big business.

The Dealers' Service Department at Columbia headquarters here is being enlarged and now a double-deck show window, to produce ideas for Columbia dealers, is being arranged. A visitors' room has been arranged by Manager Parks, where the various representatives from Columbia factory and visitors to the branch may enjoy the comforts of home. Daniel DeFoldis, who is in charge of the department, was presented a real New Year's gift when the stork visited the DeFoldis home and brought Jean DeFoldis to bless the union. Mrs. Cooke, wife of S. C. Cooke, assistant Columbia manager here, is very ill, as is their young child. H. P. Wise, office manager of Columbia, is ill. He has just been appointed credit manager.

W. C. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Son Co., Victor distributors, says that December was the largest retail business ever done by the firm and that the wholesale business fell off twenty per cent. The year's business wholesale and retail together broke about even with 1918. Both records and machine shortage handicapped the business. Mr. Roberts said that three out of every five customers that came to the place went away without the records they wanted and this he says is a fair sample of general conditions.

I. Son Cohen, of Cohen & Hughes, Victor distributors, said that he would not like to make a comparison in business of this year. "We did not receive any goods worth while," he said, "and what did come to us we divided equally between our dealers and our own retail department. We did not keep any more goods for our own use than we gave to our dealers and all were treated alike. We give our trade first consideration."

A. P. Petit, manager of the talking machine department for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is enthusiastic over the reception accorded to the Brunswick, and bemoans the fact that he was not able to get nearly enough goods to handle his trade. Mr. Petit has a number of contracts waiting to be signed up but will not take on any more dealers until he is able to take good care of all those he has.

Jesse Rosenstein, of the National Piano Co., Pathé distributors, says: "Our business was truly phenomenal and went far ahead of what we anticipated. Many of our dealers unfortunately waited for the last minute before placing some of their orders, and these were disappointed. We cleaned out every machine we had in the place and our record business was better than 500 per cent. in excess of what it was the previous year."

Henry Eisenbrandt, of H. R. Eisenbrandt & Sons Co., is ill at the Union Protestant Infirmary and his condition is critical. He was operated upon a few days ago and his case is baffling the surgeons. He was in charge of the talking machine end of the business, the firm being one of the Victor distributors. W. A. Eisenbrandt, who looks after the band instrument and small goods department of the firm, was hard put to look after all the details, but Mr. Reiser, of the wholesale department, handled things very well. The firm was unable, like the other Victor dealers, to get near enough products to handle the demand.

Sanders & Stayman, Vocalion distributors, had prepared for a big Christmas rush with their line, but more than 100 sales for high-priced models of the Vocalion were missed because of insufficient goods to supply the trade.

'EXTRA LOUD' SONORA NEEDLE SOON

Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. Arranges to Add a Fourth Grade to Its Present Line

"The demand for the new Sonora needles has proven to be exceptionally fine," said an officer of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. in a recent chat with The World. "We are planning to introduce very shortly a fourth grade of our needle, which will be designated as 'extra loud.' This will give us a complete line, comprising the extra loud, loud, medium and soft. Quite a number of people who have visited our retail stores during the past few weeks to inquire regarding our needles have tried them out carefully and have been enthusiastic regarding them.

The advertising in behalf of this needle will be conducted on a large and extensive scale, and the opening gun in this advertising campaign will consist of a full-page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post, which will appear on January 18. This will be followed up by advertising in a large number of national magazines, including the Red Book, American Magazine, Literary Digest, Collier's, etc.

"Our dealers tell us that their clients are very well pleased with the new Sonora needle, and have commented particularly upon their excellence of tone and their general qualities.

"We have just prepared some new counter cards for the dealers which present six packages of needles and the attractive appearance of these cards will undoubtedly create a pleasing impression upon visitors to the dealers' warerooms and will thereby act as automatic salesmen."

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm

IMPORTANT and EXCLUSIVE FEATURES

Automatic Change of Weight

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically.

Other Important Features

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm is adjustable to any length required and the sound-box can be turned, allowing the needle to be changed with ease, and by a reverse movement the box returns to normal playing position. The needle always rests in the same point, direct center, playing either position.

THE GREENWICH VILLAGE VIEWPOINT

Genuine Villager in the Person of Ray Cummings Now a Member of Edison Force

On Thomas A. Edison's payroll is what is known as a true villager, not an habitue of the Black Cat and the erstwhile Purple Pup—not even a Brevoorter—but a person who really lives in and belongs to Greenwich Village.

William Maxwell, in speaking of Ray Cummings, special attaché to the Edison advertising department, remarked: "We have our people who 'catch' all the shows, hobnob with the music publishers and watch their pluggers at the cabarets—those men have what we call the Broadway viewpoint. The Broadway viewpoint is all very well, but rather restricted. We went down to Greenwich Village to get a man who lived in an artistic atmosphere and possessed a point of view entirely detached from that of the Broadway philanderer—that man is Ray Cummings.

"He is a real villager, not the kind you see at the Lafayette on Saturday night, when long-haired men and short-haired women gather to be stared at by transients. Cummings lives in the village because he is artistic and because the village furnishes the ideal atmosphere for artistic development. He knows music because he is naturally musical. He writes stories (and sells them, too, by the way) because that's his idea of the best sport in the world."

An artist who is both musical and literary to write up a musical instrument for the public—could a better combination have been found?

DEMAND FOR HIGH-PRICED SONORAS

Feature of the Holiday Business Was the Willingness of the Purchasing Public to Pay Big Prices—Period Models Prove Popular

During the past few weeks the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., has received reports from Sonora dealers in different parts of the country, which show that they have had no trouble at all during the Christmas season in selling the highest priced models of Sonora phonographs. Many of the dealers state that there is a marked tendency on the part of discriminating buyers towards the purchase of period designs, and these instruments increased steadily in popularity during the past year.

"It now looks as though period model designs will be leaders in the high-class field in a comparatively short while," said an officer of the company recently. "This does not mean that the standard upright models will disappear or lose their popularity altogether, but the music-lover who desires to spend from $300 to $400 for a phonograph will in many instances endeavor to secure an instrument that will harmonize with the furnishings of his home, even though the investment may be somewhat larger than he anticipated making." The Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. will give its dealers maximum co-operation during the coming year in developing their period design business.

CONVENTION OF AUDITING STAFF

Men of Columbia Co. Who Keep Tab on Audits Discuss Many Subjects of Interest—Marion Dorian Presides at the Sessions

On Monday and Tuesday of this week there was held at the Hotel McAlpin the annual convention of the auditing staff of the Columbia Graphophone Co. This convention was held under the auspices of Marion Dorian, chief auditor of the company, and was devoted to a discussion of the work of the auditing department, together with kindred subjects of practical importance. These subjects covered accounting, stock keeping, stock handling, etc., together with the incidental problems that the auditors met in their visits to the Columbia branches throughout the country.

Mr. Dorian presided as chairman at this convention, and among those present were E. O. Rockwood, assistant to Mr. Dorian; Homer Reid, Hayward Cleveland, T. A. Laurie, Fred S. Burger, H. L. Moorey, W. G. Wustenfled, C. A. Klebart, W. E. C. Heim, F. P. Tonsmeire, S. S. Gilroy, Harry P. Richter and Richard A. Grant.

H. C. Cox, controller of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was the honored guest of the auditing staff, and took a keen interest in the deliberations of the conference. The auditors attended the banquet on Thursday evening, which was given by the executive office to the Columbia branch managers and Dictaphone managers, who were also in conference the past week at the Hotel McAlpin.

MAKING MOST OF A SINGLE TALENT

There are few people who can cultivate ten talents. The development and right employment of one is quite as much as most of us can accomplish. And, as a rule, the people who are of the most service to their generation, and climb highest, are not the brilliantly endowed, but those who put all their effort into making the most of a single talent.

IMPORTANT POST FOR H. A. BUDLONG MURATORE ENDS WORK FOR SEASON

General Sales Manager Cromelin Announces His Connection With the "OkeH" Record Division of Heineman Phonograph Supply Co.

John A. Cromelin, general sales manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., New York, announced this week the appointment of H. A. Budlong as a member of the company's "OkeH" record division in an important administrative capacity.

H. A. Budlong

Mr. Budlong is one of the veterans and pioneers of the phonograph industry, having been associated with the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s factories at Bridgeport, Conn., for more than twenty-five years. During this quarter of a century he occupied numerous important posts in the executive departments, and in recent years was assistant manager of the Columbia factories. He is thoroughly versed in all details of the record industry, and will doubtless render a great amount of invaluable service to the "OkeH" record division.

EMERSON LINE IN NEW ENGLAND

Exclusive Selling Rights in That Territory Given Over to Recently Formed Emerson New England, Inc.—Headquarters in Boston

The Emerson Phonograph Co. has given exclusive rights to the sale of its products in New England to Emerson New England, Inc., of 80 Boylston street, Boston, Mass. The general manager of the company is Oscar W. Ray, for a number of years manager of the Boston office of the Emerson Phonograph Co. This company will carry complete stocks of Emerson products in Boston, from which point all shipments to the New England trade will be made. They will endeavor to give New England dealers 100 per cent. service on the delivery and handling of Emerson records.

This new company is largely owned by Boston business men and its interests will be entirely centered in the New England trade. A careful study will be made of the particular requirements of this trade, with a view to making the Emerson record department in the stores of New England dealers one of their most profitable and satisfactory departments.

W. A. Ingalls, a member of the sales staff of the Portland, Me., branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., was a visitor recently to the company's executive offices. Mr. Ingalls spoke enthusiastically of business conditions in Maine, and expressed the belief that the Portland, Me., branch will enjoy during 1919 the greatest year in its history, even exceeding 1918 sales totals, which from all indications will break all records.

Prominent Tenor, Suffering From Nervous Trouble, Is Ordered to Take Long Rest

Lucien Muratore, the internationally famous grand opera tenor, who makes records exclusively for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., will be heard no more in public this season, according to information that came from Chicago recently. While in that city Muratore was stricken with an old nervous trouble, aggravated largely by several months spent in the trenches in Europe, and by war work in this country, and was confined to his bed. When convalescent the singer was advised by physicians to take a complete rest, as the only sure means of avoiding permanent disability. Muratore, accompanied by Mme. Muratore, better known as Lina Cavalieri, sailed for his home in France last week.

Muratore has made a large number of records for the Pathé library, and his admirers will certainly be able to get much consolation out of the fact that although he will be heard in the flesh no more this season, and perhaps very little for a short time, the golden tones of his voice are nevertheless carefully preserved on records, and may be enjoyed for years to come.

JOINS METROPOLITAN SALES FORCE

The local wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. announced this week the addition to its staff of I. Szekely, who is preparing to give the Columbia dealers in metropolitan territory practical advice and suggestions regarding foreign records. Mr. Szekely is also planning to assist the dealers in the preparation of advertisements, circulars, follow-up letters, etc., in any of the languages in which the Columbia Graphophone Co. issues records.

This announcement is important in view of the fact that it reflects the tremendous popularity of the foreign-language records now being issued by the Columbia Co. The demand for these records has already far exceeded expectations.

Everybody is singing these BIG SONG HITS

AMERICA has been called a singing nation, and why should we not sing when we have such sing-compelling songs—as these three new hits from “Song Headquarters”?

During the past year, in the parks, in the theatres, in the homes, in the camps, and right on the battlefield, America was singing as she went about her business of making the world safe for democracy.

We cannot help but feel proud of our help in furnishing the songs to keep America singing. Let us review some of the “Feist” hits for 1918.

First, there was “Over There,” a song that has been nearly as popular as our national anthem, and then follow the long list of other “Feist” hits shown here.

“The Navy Will Bring Them Back”
“Tho the Army is the clover, ’twas the Navy brought them over” is the depth bomb of this gloom destroyer. And they’ll bring them back, too, to the tune of this rollicking melody that has all the dash of a pesky submarine chaser. It’s the Navy’s “Over There”—and just like our Navy it’s full of “pep” and spirit. Hear it—sing it—play it—it will blast its way to your heart. Howard Johnson, U. S. Navy Yeoman, wrote the words, Ira Schuster the dashing melody.

“I feel so happy” said the girl after a good cry,— maybe you know how that feels. Well, that’s how this wonderful “forgive and forget” ballad gets hold of you. There’s nothing sad about it—everything glad about it. It’s another “I’m Sorry I Made You Cry,” with beautiful words and a haunting melody that’s sure to “get” you. It should be in every home—it’s a peace maker and a joy bringer. By Grant Clarke and Geo. W. Meyer.

SELF-SERVICE RACK HELPS SALES

Eclipse Musical Co. Adopts Clever Idea With Great Success—Help to Save the Time of Both Clerks and Customers During Holiday Rush

CLEVELAND, O., January 4.—One of the features that aided materially in the handling of an immense volume of retail holiday business by the Eclipse Musical Co., this city, was the installation of a Self-Service Rack, illustrated herewith, and which accommodated forty-four records, each one prominently displayed. In the back of each record was carried a stock of that particular number, and as rapidly as the first record was moved, or sold, another one of the same title was set in place.

"During the Christmas holidays we had three times our usual number of sales people taking care of the trade," said Chas. K. Bennett, general manager of the company, "and even with this addition of help we were unable to properly handle each customer; however, the addition of this rack helped out materially, as at times we found as many as eight people selecting records from this rack at one time.

"During the three weeks prior to Christmas and from actual count taken this Self-Service rack moved 618 records, all of which was done without the aid of a sales person, and in a great many instances the records displayed were such as might be termed slow-moving records and ones that otherwise perhaps would not have been sold.

"The rack has proven so successful we have determined to keep it in our place, as we find our trade quite pleased being able to walk the length of the rack and see the records displayed, more so than they would be at merely a printed list.

"The feature of keeping the stock in back of the record display is new, as well as very practical, as it enables us to fill up the vacancies as they occur without the necessity of running back to our regular stock or surplus bins. Inasmuch as the idea seems to be new we desire to have same announced in your valuable magazine, so that other Victor dealers around the country may adopt the scheme, as the same will unquestionably prove valuable to anyone who takes it up."

REJOIN BLACKMAN CO. STAFF

A. J. Wilckens and A. D. Robbins Return to Sales Staff—J. H. Giles in Europe—H. C. Lansell's Fine Work—Is Dean of Traveling Staff

The Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, announced this week the return to the company's traveling staff of A. J. Wilckens and A. D. Robbins, both of whom served Uncle Sam in the recent war.

Mr. Wilckens, who was in the U. S. Navy, and who saw active service on a submarine chaser and in convoy work, will resume his visits to the Blackman clientele in New Jersey territory, and Victor dealers in this section will undoubtedly be glad to welcome the return of this popular wholesale man.

A. D. Robbins was a member of the 315th Aero Squadron, and after training in this country left for England, where he had just completed an intensive course of training when the armistice was signed. Mr. Robbins will call upon the Blackman dealers in New York and Brooklyn.

Lieutenant James H. Giles, who was also a member of the Blackman traveling staff before joining Uncle Sam's forces, is now in France, and when the armistice was signed was in the first line trenches. Lieutenant Giles has seen very severe service in France, and his many friends in the trade hope that he will soon be back in America.

H. C. Lansell, the dean of the Blackman traveling staff, and one of the most popular members of the Victor wholesale fraternity, has been rendering the Blackman clientele yeoman service during the past year, and through his extensive knowledge of the dealers' requirements has been able to assist Victor retailers in solving many important problems.

DOING GOOD WORK WITH Y. M. C. A.

R. A. Souders, the well-known talking machine man, long identified with the Columbia interests, has been doing very effective work with the American Y. M. C. A. in Winchester, England, and his efforts have been highly spoken of by the officers who frequented the officers' "hut" with which he is associated. The editor of The World in a recent communication had the privilege of receiving from Mr. Souders a very interesting volume, "Explaining the Britishers," which was written by an American. Mr. Souders, we are glad to learn, is enjoying the best of health.

PREDICTS YEAR OF PROSPERITY

A. Culp, president of the Culp Phonograph Co., New York City, producers of the Culptone line of talking machines, has just closed an exceptionally fine holiday season and predicts a year of great expansion and prosperity for the talking machine trade during 1919. A number of new dealers have recently been added and the volume of reorders assures a bright future for this new line during the coming year.

INCREASE SIZE OF TERRITORY

Smith, Kline & French Co., Sonora Distributors in Philadelphia, to Cover Large Section of Western Pennsylvania and Maryland

The Smith, Kline & French Co., wholesale distributors for the Sonora phonograph, with headquarters in Philadelphia, have recently increased the size of the territory under their supervision considerably through the addition of western Pennsylvania and Maryland. The Smith, Kline & French Co. has built up a remarkable business in Sonora products, and the sales during the past year were far beyond expectations.

The central distributing point for the Eastern section will be in Philadelphia, while the second distributing center for the Western section will be established in Pittsburgh. A competent sales staff will co-operate with Sonora dealers in this territory, and the prestige of the Smith, Kline & French Co. in mercantile circles insures the efficiency of the service.

"When alone think of your own faults, when in company seek to forget the faults of others," is a French saying which bears translation into English well, and which, translated into conduct is still better.

INTERESTING REVIEW OF TRADE CONDITIONS IN DETROIT

Despite Handicaps of War, Lack of Merchandise, High Prices, Etc., 1918 Was a Banner Year in Wolverine City—Great Plans Being Perfected for New Year—Few Retail Changes

DETROIT, MICH., January 8.—With the year 1918 passed into oblivion, it is necessary to say a few words only to describe the kind of a year it was for the Detroit talking machine dealers. For the past twelve months we have been telling our readers that if the manufacturers could supply the machines, dealers would sell them and lots and lots. And so they did—they sold all they could get, with order upon order unfilled as the new year arrived. We would not be expressing the feeling of the local dealers if we did not say that despite the handicaps, war, lack of merchandise, high prices, etc., 1918 was a banner year for the local industry, but, on the other hand, it would have been a phenomenal year for gross and net business and profits if conditions had been normal, and if dealers could have received as many machines as they had calls for.

Every dealer handling any nationally advertised machine, such as the Victrola, Columbia, Pathé, Sonora, Aeolian-Vocalion, Starr, Edison, Brunswick, Cheney, etc., had no trouble at all to dispose of everything available. Dealers knew all year what the condition would be at holiday time, so when there was a shortage dealers simply took their medicine, looking into the future with more optimism and hope. A few dealers fortunately received good-sized shipments the week before Christmas, which was a big help.

For 1919 there is nothing that can prevent it being the greatest of all years for Detroit talking machine dealers. Everything points to great prosperity, this being the prediction of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers in every line of business. With the growth that is certain to take place in Detroit as a natural consequence, new homes by the thousands are needed and will be erected, providing the men and materials are available. The hundreds of people who were disappointed in not being able to buy during 1918 are certain to be buyers during the present year. In fact, from whatever angle you view the future of the talking machine industry you cannot fail to become enthusiastic and optimistic. The business is there waiting—it is merely a case of the manufacturer producing enough of each style to supply the jobbers and dealers.

As for records, there is nothing that need be said. It was certainly a great, big year for all kinds and makes of records. Records of every kind were popular, old melodies, patriotic, operatic, classical, humorous, song and dance records. There were a number of tremendous hits during the season, one of them being "Smiles," which proved to be one of the biggest hits in many years.

Jobbers located in Detroit, selling the various nationally known machines, report that they had a good year, but, of course, nothing as compared to what they could have done under favorable conditions. Jobbers did everything to get more merchandise, but the factories simply could do no better. The same unprecedented demand existed all over the country—it was not merely a local condition. Manufacturers had every jobber yelling for goods, and assured them all that they were doing their very best to treat every jobber alike. The writer is frank in saying that several local jobbers of talking machines were "quite peeved" at not being able to secure enough machines, but this was merely because they could not rejoice in seeing good profits lost even though it was due to conditions beyond the control of anyone.

The Detroit Talking Machine Dealers' Association expects to hold its annual meeting some time this month to elect new officers and to discuss matters and problems for the new year. When the members compare present-day methods with several years ago they are glad they organized. Principal among the good things accomplished since organization has been the unanimous charging of interest, cutting down the sending out of machines on approval and increasing the number of records taken out on approval that must be kept. Dealers have also contracted liberally for newspaper space.

There will be no change in the jobbing situation for 1919—Grinnell Bros. will continue as Victor jobbers; the Phonograph Co., of Detroit, will continue to job the Edison; the Columbia branch will continue to be maintained by the home office, which locally is in charge of Sam E. Lind; Williams, Davis, Brooks & Hinchman Sons are the Pathé jobbers, while the Sonora will continue with C. L. Marshall & Co.

Among retailers there will be few changes if any—the good old reliable dealers, who do business along business lines, and who have established themselves thoroughly, will continue with the same lines. Grinnell Bros., Victor; Wallace Brown, Brunswick; Max Strasburg, Columbia and Victor; J. L. Hudson Co., Victor, Sonora and Cheney; Detroit Music Co.; Columbia; Edison Shop, Edison; Frank Bayley, Edison; Pathé Shop, Edison; Keenan & Jahn, Aeolian-Vocalion; Woodmansee, Columbia; Cable Piano Co., Victor and Columbia; Kimball Piano Co., Pathé; Goldberg's, Victor and Columbia, and so on right down the line.

The Talking Machine World will continue to be represented by Jacob Smith with offices at 719 Free Press Building, Detroit, who will always be glad to receive news items from dealers and those in the trade.

NEW SALES COMPANY PROGRESSING

Emerson Record Sales Co., Inc., Engages Two New Representatives to Cover Territory

The Emerson Record Sales Co., Inc., which was recently formed to distribute the Emerson Gold Seal (large-sized) records in metropolitan territory, is achieving signal success, and the company has received enthusiastic praise from the dealers regarding the service it is rendering.

Messrs. Hodgkinson and Goodman, formerly covering Manhattan Island, Brooklyn and Long Island for the Emerson Phonograph Co., have been engaged to cover the same territory for the Sales Co., and satisfactory arrangements have also been made for the handling of the New Jersey and Connecticut territory.

The Gold Seal records produced by the Emerson Co. are meeting with popular favor throughout the metropolitan district, and the dealers state that the new lists are providing them with ample opportunity to develop the demand for these records.

CHICAGO, ILL., January 8.—When one stops to look back and figure out what kind of a year 1918 was he wonders how he managed to keep his head and go through it in the way he did. All through the year there was more or less curtailment to keep the manufacturer worried, and through the first half of 1918 there was not much of a demand from the retailer. Therefore, the curtailment at first did not worry Mr. Manufacturer to any great extent until shortly after the first half of the year, when the demand began to assert itself and the pressure began to be felt.

When word of the big victory came from across the water, however, the talking machine business really kicked over the traces and tore like a whirlwind through the balance of the year. When news of the victory came the turning point of the trade in the West also came, and reports tell us that this same spirit prevailed not only in all parts of the United States, but in Canada as well.

The demand for talking machines and records grew to amazing proportions, far greater than anyone had dared even to dream. Men a few months previous would have been regarded as crazy if they had made predictions that the demand would reach such proportions. However, when the end of the year rolled around, the same fellows who would have said the predictor was crazy were talking big enough to make him a piker.

The pre-holiday rush of business put the manufacturer in a hole so far as stocks were concerned. Orders piled up on his desk in such proportions that it will take months before he reaches the bottom.

And what brought it all about? Was it high wages? No. High wages were secondary. The primary factor that brought about the big rush of business was the saving spirit that had been taught to the country by the United States Government. Anyone who cares to look back over other years of prosperity that swept the country is always sure to find that a high mark of prosperity was always followed by more or less depression. This was simply because in other eras of prosperity the working class couldn't stand the strain of having money and not spending it. They spent it as fast as they got it, and naturally when the wave of prosperity had run its course the worker was broke.

The wave of prosperity we have just gone through, however, is taking an entirely different course; one that will prove a benefit, and not a detriment to the country. That is to say, owing to the Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps, not only the working man, but his children, have got the saving habit. The high wages were put into Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. The people began to know what the color of money looked like. They knew what saving meant, and the benefits to be derived from it. However, the habit of saving has not caused the saver to become penurious. Instead he has become conservative. He has saved and at the same time has purchased what he wanted. He has purchased the necessities of life, and after that the things necessary for home enjoyment and comfort. One of the things, happily for the trade, that he has picked on as a necessity is the talking machine and the record. That is the spirit which predominated all over. Music for home comfort, education and celebration. The worker is celebrating the big victory with music as he never did before. His home comforts are better than they ever were before, and the same applies not only to his own musical education, but to that of his children.

Families who never harbored a thought of possessing a talking machine now are the proud owners of one, or will be soon. Those who already own talking machines have aroused the enthusiasm of others who are good prospects and intend to get a talking machine just as soon as there are some on the market.

The retail man has a prospect list to-day larger than he ever had before. Each prospect can be banked upon as being a sure sale. The market around the holiday season was over-running with prospects, but the dealer was cleaned out of records and talking machines and couldn't satisfy the prospect's wants. In other days when this happened to a dealer the prospect merely went down the street and got his machine some place else. This year, no matter where he went, if he wasn't one of the first buyers in line he had to wait and couldn't get a machine for love or money.

The question now is what do the manufacturers and dealers think of the demand. As soon as the prospect lists have been satisfied will the demand die down? There isn't a man in Chicago who has a prospect list who believes this. There isn't a manufacturer in Chicago who has a good list of retail dealers on his books who believes it. The predominant belief here is that the demand will continue to grow. It is believed that no matter how hard the manufacturer works and how many instruments he puts out this year he will still be unable to accumulate a supply in excess of the demand.

Both the wholesaler and retailer base their beliefs on this fact. When the holiday rush started it was thought that a major portion of the business done would result in payments with Liberty Bonds instead of cash. This was not a fact. Surprising as it may seem, there were very few Liberty Bonds offered in payment for instruments and records. It was nearly 100 per cent. cash basis business throughout. In banking circles it had been expected that there would be a big rush of people cashing in on Liberty Bonds in order to make payments on holiday purchases. Again all signs failed, and a round of the banking district revealed the fact that instead of a maximum business in Liberty Bonds there was a minimum business carried on. And what does all of this mean? It simply means that the people have cash besides their Liberty Bonds. It means that they must have plenty cash on hand or else they would have held onto what they had and sold their Liberty Bonds. It also means that the Liberty Bonds and cash that they still have on hand will mean big business all over the country for the year of 1919. It means that conservative saving and buying is now a habit with the public of the United States, and that the old abuse of squandering was laid to rest with the troublous times of 1918.

How About You?

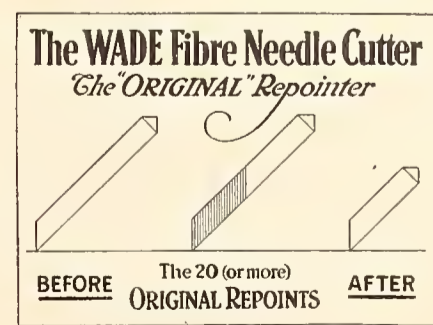

During the holiday week a World representative who was nosing around for news went into a certain shop and mingled with the many purchasers in order to find out just what kind of music the people were asking for. Instead of getting news about music he got a little tip on salesmanship by overhearing a conversation carried on between two gentlemen, whom we will call Mr. A and Mr. B. Mr. A said, "Did

THE general outlines of the Vitanola are the same today as at the beginning, but scarcely a month has gone by without the addition of some change, refinement or embellishment. Today we are willing to offer our line, as illustrated herewith, in competition with any other phonograph line on the American market, as to the beauty and dignity of the designs, and as to tone quality.

Concurrently with the improvement in the appearance of the Vitanola, there has been the same continued improvement in quality. This applies to materials, workmanship and mechanical equipment. The new models here shown are equipped with enlarged and voluminous tone chambers, improved motors, new tone arms and sound boxes. The wonderful improvement—the absolute perfection—of the tone of our new machines cannot be illustrated. It must be heard to be appreciated.

you get your machine yet?" Mr. B. replied, "Yes." Then A asked, "What was the reason that it took you so long to make up your mind?" B said, "I had my mind made up six months ago." Then A came back, "Well, why didn't you buy?" B replied, "For this reason. About six months ago I came in here with my mind made up to purchase a certain style machine. A salesman waited on me, showed me just exactly the machine I wanted, but kept me from buying by acting against my principles. I wanted that machine, had the money in my hand to pay for it, but he kept praising it so doggone much and making so many knocking comparisons with other machines that I walked out. I had been back several times and each time I came back the same thing happened. I merely wanted the salesman to get next to himself, but it seems he couldn't tumble. If he were here to-day I'd walk out again. Happily for the company he has been fired, so I bought my machine to-day from a different sales person, who praised all machines, but the one he was handling just a little bit more."

No doubt there are a great many salesmen in the field to-day who have had a prospect walk out due to no apparent reason. It would be a good idea if they would stop and go over their conversation and see if the above has not been the cause of losing a prospect.

Installing New Machinery

The business of the R. C. Wade Co., manufacturers of the well-known Tonofone semi-permanent needle, has grown to such proportions in the last two months that they have been obliged to increase the size of their present workshops. R. C. Wade, the inventor of the needle and also inventor of the automatic machine for its manufacture, has designed a new machine which will permit the making of twice the number of Tonofone needles at one operation as was formerly possible. Mr. Wade has one of these new machines at present in working order and has another one being made. Another automatic machine to be used in getting out Tonofone needles has been designed by Mr. Wade, and is said to be most ingenious. The new machine is an attachment to the stamping machine, which when in running order will not only count out, but will pack any desired number of needles in a specially constructed receptacle, and at the same time label it.

Dorchester Mapes, secretary of the company, announces that Tonofone is now represented by dealers in every State in the Union and Canada. The latter territory is being looked after most capably by Arthur K. Kempton, of Toronto.

Celebrate Anniversary

The Fuller-Morrison Drug Co. has just completed its first year as wholesale Pathé distributor. M. P. Mears, who is manager of the talking machine department for that company, is more than pleased with the results accomplished by his travelers during the twelve months that they have been handling the Pathé line. The Fuller-Morrison Co., it will be remembered, took over the Pathé agency for Chicago and adjacent territory from the Hallet & Davis Piano Co. when the latter closed its branch in this city. The Fuller-Morrison Co. retained the already established agency of the Hallet & Davis Co., and in the past year has added about an equal number of good accounts to its already long list. They are building up a very large foreign record trade in Chicago and contiguous territory. Manager Mears is being very ably assisted by Pathé Special Representative Ely, who has been here for several weeks working along these lines.

New Chicago Companies Formed

Isaac Schiff, formerly president of the Schiff Furniture Co., Chicago, but now vice-president of the Independence State Bank, of this city, announced that he has become interested in a new $100,000 corporation to manufacture talking machines. The new company is at present taking bids for cabinets and motors. The new company intends to assemble its instruments at first and is contemplating the purchase of a large warehouse.

Mr. Schiff has been connected with the furniture industry for the past twenty-seven years and was for four years chief buyer for the Chicago House Wrecking Co.

T. V. Garvin has been made head of a new company that will shortly be incorporated for $50,000. The new company will manufacture and assemble its own machines, which they will shortly put on the market. Their intention is to start with three models that will be known as the Gartrola.

Mr. Garvin has been for many years connected with the mining industry and is the owner of some fine graphite and mica deposits located in Colorado.

Victor Jobbers Meet

An informal meeting of Victor jobbers was held at noon Monday, January 6, at luncheon at the Chicago Athletic Club. The jobbers met at the request of George E. Mickel, of Omaha, Neb. Those in attendance were Jas. F. Bowers, Perry B. Whitsit, of Columbus, O.; A. A. Trostler, Kansas City, Kan.; Rudolph Wurlitzer, Cincinnati, O.; A. A. Grinnell, Detroit, Mich.; Sam Goldsmith, Milwaukee; E. C. Rauth, St. Louis, and L. C. Wiswell.

Take New Plant

The first of the year finds the Wizard Talking Machine Co., of Chicago, moving from its old location at 3219 West Lake street to its new large plant at 1977 Ogden avenue. This company is adding three new models to its line.

Wm. Cummings, head of the company, announces that within a short time they expect to be able to manufacture and assemble their instruments all under one roof.

Inventory Disclosures

Inventory week in Chicago brought to light many interesting incidents. For example, last week, when the Chicago Talking Machine Co.

made its inventory, it was discovered that the stocks of both machines and records were at a very low ebb. The amount of stock on hand at the end of the year was lower than for the corresponding period ten years ago, when the company was practically in its infancy.

Death of Robert B. Gregory

Robert B. Gregory, the lamented president of Lyon & Healy, whose passing away on December 14 profoundly affected the music industry of all the country, was in many respects a most remarkable man. He had been associated with the great house of Lyon & Healy for fifty-four years and served successively as salesman, small goods manager, treasurer and president. He never lost his interest in the small goods department, which had his special care during half a century of steady business activity.

A man of much charm in manner and speech, he had many warm friends and few or no enemies. Chicago loses one of her great citizens in him. His social and community activities were various. He was a main supporter of the summer concerts and opera at Ravinia Park, Chicago's famous resort on the North Shore, near which he had a country house. He was a founder and director of the Chicago Savings Bank, a director of the Legal Aid Society, a director of the Church Home for the Aged and a vestryman of Trinity Church, in this city.

Robert B. Gregory was the sort of man whose powerful mind affects strongly and beneficially his whole community, but who cares nothing for self-exploitation or self-advertisement. His influence was little trumpeted, but it was everywhere felt, and everywhere for the good of his city, his house, or his business associates, as the case might be.

At the funeral, which was held from Trinity Church, the Episcopal Bishop of Chicago officiated and more than five hundred persons were present, amongst whom were to be seen almost every important music trade man of Chicago. Telegrams of sorrow and condolence were received from the Victor Talking Machine Co., from the Aeolian Co. and many other prominent Eastern houses.

Helping the Dealers

The method employed by the Brenard Mfg. Co., Iowa City, Ia., in introducing its Claxtonola models to the dealer, is something that is very unique and well worth considering. The method in vogue with this company is that when an agency has been established in a town the traveler who handled the deal is not supposed to jump on a train as soon as the ink on the contract is dry and beat it for the next place. He takes off his coat and hat and gets busy with that dealer and figures out ways and means to bring about successful sales. The dealer is taught the very latest methods of follow-up letter systems for prospects. He is taught the best methods in vogue applicable to local newspaper advertisements. Then again, he is taught the best methods to follow in laying out his talking machine department and show windows. In other words, the traveler must ascertain just how much the dealer knows about the talking machine business and whether or not he is up-to-date in his methods. He is given the very best kind of suggestions, whether he is an established dealer or a new beginner.

But the educational process of the Brenard Co. does not end with the dealer. It goes a step further. It takes into consideration the sales force. The traveler when he is through with the dealer is cautioned to find out what the sales people know about talking machines, what they know about records, what they know about customers, how to handle them and how to find out what they like. For this purpose the Brenard Co. has established what is not unlike a salesmanship correspondence school. They have printed twelve interesting little pamphlets entitled "Twelve Vital Points to Salesmanship." The sales person's name is placed upon the mailing list and he is sent book number one. After he has studied this, he is asked to write a little outline of a nature that will tell at a glance just how much of the first lesson he has absorbed. He is credited on this, and if passed the second book is sent, and so on until by the time the twelfth book has been received the sales person knows a great deal more about selling a talking machine than he thought could possibly be attached to the industry.

G. P. Ellis on Trip

Griffith P. Ellis, sales manager of the Chicago Talking Machine Shop, left on the third of the month for a two weeks' trip to New York, Philadelphia, Indianapolis, Detroit and other points in Michigan.

On the Sick List

V. K. Tremblett, who travels Indiana and Illinois for the Chicago Talking Machine Co., has been in the hospital for the past ten days. He had been suffering from a severe cold, which threatened to develop into pneumonia.

T. W. Williams, Chicago salesman for the Chicago Talking Machine Co., has been home for the past two weeks with the "flu."

Empire Business Growing

November, dating from the day the armistice was signed, and all of the month of December found the Empire Talking Machine Co., of this city, busier than it was at any time since the foundation of the company and that month and a half the business carried on by the Empire Co. was equal in shipments to the total of the eight months immediately preceding that date. Just as soon as it was authentic that the armistice had been signed and permission was given by the Government to go full steam ahead President John H. Steinmetz sent out orders to his factory to put on all the help that could possibly be obtained. This was done, and as a consequence within a few days the Empire Co. was working three shifts per day and all day Sunday. In this way the Empire Co. was able to supply its many dealers with talking machines in time for the holiday trade. Even up until the day before Christmas in many instances orders that were received in the morning were shipped out the same day.

The Empire Black Seal records were in increased demand for the holiday season, and this demand has been steadily growing at the beginning of the New Year. The Empire Co. is well pleased over the popularity and standing of its records, and believes that within a few short months they will be known in all parts of the country.

Victor Traveler Visits

Wm. F. Fries, who represents the Victor Co. in Iowa, Minnesota and South Dakota, stopped off in Chicago recently for a visit. He was on his way to join a conference of the sales department at the Victor factory at Camden.

Vitanola Active

"Speed" has been incorporated in the name of the Vitanola Co., or if not, soon will be, unless all signs fail. A representative of The World called at their Thirty-fifth street factory recently, and when he came back to The World office he remarked that he never saw such a

Two Great Selling Features Every Brunswick Dealer Appreciates

THE Brunswick Method of Reproduction has brought about an increased volume of sales. Dealers everywhere join in praising this great idea.

Most dealers realize the drawbacks to old methods of reproduction, and the public, in becoming acquainted with The Brunswick Method, is losing interest in yesterday's standards.

The House of Brunswick is educating the music-loving public to make comparisons. In its advertising in national publications The House of Brunswick is stating compelling facts—which few purchasers care to ignore.

The current advertising campaign spotlights two features of The Brunswick Method of Reproduction: [1] The Ultona and [2] The Brunswick Amplifier.

A description of the Ultona is enough to make the average buyer anxious to see this new all-record player.

In speaking of The Brunswick Tone Amplifier, we state how The Brunswick attains superior reproduction by complying with acoustic laws, and how we avoid old conceptions.

By studying our advertising, you will note that it is pure selling copy, the exact arguments you and your salespeople can use to great advantage. It is straight from the shoulder, and presents compelling REASONS WHY.

The Brunswick
ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

This super-phonograph, as hundreds of Brunswick Dealers will attest, has won high rank as a profit and friend-maker. And its popularity is ever increasing

We are proud of its reception and of the fine dealer connections it has brought to The House of Brunswick. We have placed our faith and our resources behind this phonograph and we know that an even greater future is attainable.

More and more The Brunswick is winning friends—everyone who hears it recognizes its worth. We intend to increase this appreciation of The Brunswick—and every Brunswick Dealer will profit thereby.

busy bunch in his life. In every corner of the big factory, the workers were bending over their tasks, working at top speed. Manager Sam Schiff was buzzing around, here, there and everywhere, overlooking everything! major and minor, and seeing that in spite of the terrific speed at which the men were working their work was accurate and that it would comply with the quality specifications of their well-known product.

In the bookkeeping department, the clerks were busily engaged summing up the results of the past year. This work when finished disclosed the facts that supplies were plentiful, stocks of the finished Vitanola product were rather low, and that the Vitanola Co. had turned out more instruments in 1918 than in any other two years combined.

The company is working to capacity, not only on Thirty-fifth street, but in its big new plant out in Cicero. This Cicero plant, by the way, has just had completed an additional wing to the building. In both factories they are working night and day shifts and Sundays as well. This is for the purpose of trying to dig themselves out from under the immense amount of orders on hand. Manager Schiff believes that he will be able to clean up within a month or so, and then take care of the orders that come in normally.

Unique Holiday Window

One of the most interesting window displays ever made in Chicago was shown in the Jackson boulevard-Wabash avenue corner window of the Lyon & Healy Building during the holidays. This window, which faces on both the above-named streets, was taken up with a monster replica of the upper portion of a Victor talking machine, the background being the lifted lid, and the foreground, which occupied the space of about ten by twelve feet, showing the upper portion of the cabinet, together with the tone arm, reproducer and a gigantic turntable, surmounted by a Victor record. An attractive sign is pendant from the uppermost portions of the lid. It was gotten up to represent a holly wreath and the inscription contained therein was "Will There Be a Victrola in Your Home Christmas?"

Seeking Larger Quarters

J. L. Abbott, of the Chicago Hinged Cover Co., was asked this month by The World why he had no news items. Mr. Abbott replied, "Too busy." "What do you mean, busy," we asked him. "Just what I say," he replied. "Out at our plant at 2246 West Sixty-ninth street we have been working hard. I used to have time to attend to my work and still rubber around a little and see what was going on in the trade, but orders have been coming in so fast lately, and so heavily, that all I've got a chance to do is to get home and have a sleep occasionally. We thought when we moved into our present location in September, 1916, that we had enough room for all the business we could ever expect, but last year showed us, like everyone else, that things didn't pan out in their old set way. Everything that we used to be able to bank on turned out different not only with us but with everyone. We found it out, and the result is that the prediction we made in 1916 that we had enough room was wrong. The business we are doing now necessitates additional factory space, and for that reason we are looking around for a larger building."

Cigars on Him

Wm. A. Nolan, who travels in the East for the Louis Buehn Co., of Philadelphia, recently traveled into Chicago, and while here he became the happy husband of a blushing bride, Miss Louise Sutton, who was connected with the record department of Lyon & Healy. The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Anne Oberndorfer, 1331 East Fiftieth street, on Tuesday, December 31, at 5 p. m. The wedding was quite a surprise to Bill's many friends in Chicago, but they got back at him with a lot of kidding, incidentally telling him that it was a good way to end the old and begin the New Year.

Full List of Red Seal Records Brings Joy

Victor dealers in Chicago were recently made happy when the Victor Co. announced that for the first time since last March they are in a position to issue a full monthly list of Red Seal records. This will apply to Victor's February Red Seal bulletin, and it is expected that orders will be filled 100 per cent.

A Souvenir

The Chicago Talking Machine Co. recently presented its dealers with a beautiful 1919 souvenir. It was a silver-handled combination letter opener and knife. The handle was beautifully embossed with the company's name and on either side in bas-relief were also a soldier and a sailor.

Catching Up With Orders

The Lakeside Supply Co. announces this month that it is still way behind in its orders on tone arms and that orders are continually coming in. Their Canadian business has received added impetus since A. B. Kempton has taken over their line of Jumbo tone arms and Lakeside rotometers.

The Fricke brothers, who are heads of the concern, have been working along lines of improvement for their Jumbo tone arm 5L, and now report that it has reached the highest state of efficiency. In the former Jumbo tone arms it was necessary to add an extra weight when playing Pathé and other records, but they have designed a tension set screw located at the base of the arm, which does the trick by a simple turn.

The Lakeside rotometers have had a very good demand and are now being put out gold-plated, but the price remains the same. The reason stated by this company for putting out a rotometer gold-plated without raising the price is that the overhead has been reduced to a minimum now that they are putting it out in such large quantities and that production alone makes this possible.

The Lakeside Co. also states that it has a plentiful supply of the Stephenson precision motors on hand, and that the supply of these motors has been increasing steadily in the past few weeks.

Optimism Prevails

L. C. Wiswell, manager of Lyon & Healy's Victor department, is one of the most optimistic members of the talking machine trade in Chicago. His remarks regarding the coming business year are well worth noting. "The coming year will be from a business standpoint the greatest that the talking machine industry has ever seen. The more letters we get from our dealers the more I am convinced of this fact. The sales of talking machines and records will grow to proportions greater than we have ever known, and I doubt very much whether or not the manufacturers will be able to take care of the demand. Even if the merchandise should come in larger quantities than ever before, it is the opinion of not only myself, but everyone with whom I have recently talked that the demand will exceed the supply. Further, the opinion is general that high-priced instruments will predominate, and that there will be more cash with order than ever before. The same applies to records."

Empire Phonoparts Increasing

The Empire Phonoparts Co. have recently increased their manufacturing facilities to such an extent that their output of tone arms, sound boxes, etc., has been increasing to approximately double the former production. The Empire Co. has acquired a number of new large accounts, and among them many manufacturers of high-class talking machines who assert that they will adopt the Empire models of tone arms and sound boxes as their standards for the year 1919.

National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, who has been looking after the campaign of music in the camps started by the Chicago Piano & Organ Association last winter, recently received a telegram from a high official of the American Red Cross in Washington, requesting a shipment of 100 Edison records to the boys at the hospital at West Baden, Ind. Mrs. Oberndorfer could only find fifteen records in her stockroom, so she called up C. E. Goodwin, manager of the Phonograph Co., who has more than once come to the rescue of Uncle Sam's boys who wanted records, and told him of the situation. The result was that the West Baden Hospital received an express package containing eighty-five records, which were sent by Mr. Goodwin.

Now for Electric Signs

Now that the coal supplies are getting back to normal and the restrictions on electric signs have been removed, energetic dealers who have not already taken advantage of this excellent means of night advertising will be anxious to equip themselves to the best advantage. The Federal Sign System (Electric), Lake and Desplaines streets, Chicago, a concern with immense facilities and long experience in the devising and construction of electric signs, make a most favorable proposition. They will supply a sign installing system on the payment of the first of twelve monthly instalments, thus making the burden of payment a very light one and enabling the dealer to start the new year with his best foot forward.

Revived Production Facilities

The many friends in the trade of the Scotford tone arms, the Superior universal reproducer and other phonograph specialties made by Barnhart Bros. & Spindler, this city, will be glad to know that now that the conditions which made it necessary for this concern to turn over practically its entire plant to the production of war munitions are over, that company, having practically finished its contracts, will soon have the production of phonograph specialties on a normal basis. R. M. McArthur, who is in sole charge of this department, and whose attention has been diverted from it because of the war work, states that now he is properly getting things in hand and that he will soon be able to take care of the trade and make deliveries.

Milwaukee Business Fine

A. Kesselman, of Kesselman & O'Driscoll, Milwaukee, was in town last week and said some mighty interesting things. He remarked that Milwaukee did more business during the last month and a half of the old year than it had done in the previous six months. "We did not know there was so much business to be done, and the Lord only knows how much more could have been done had there been goods enough to go around. The dealers here face the first of the year with empty record bins and no machines. Nevertheless, they are not downhearted because they know that the demand will be there just as soon as they get records and machines enough to go around."

Mandel Plans for 1919

M. B. Silverman, of the Mandel Mfg. Co., in a chat with The World this week stated that the company saw every reason to expect a great expansion of the talking machine business in 1919 and was preparing vigorously for it. "We had a very excellent business last year, but, of course, were compelled to move conservatively on account of the various restrictions on production and supplies," said he. "We have now arranged to utilize the productive capacity of our plants at Benton Harbor and Chicago to the utmost and have perfected an energetic sales campaign. We have enlarged our traveling forces and have arranged for further extension of our system for co-operating with the dealers, which has been a factor in the rapid growth of the business of this company."

Over the Top

C. E. Goodwin, manager of both the Phonograph Co. and the Edison Shop, reported that the retail shop had just completed the biggest December business in its history. Before the holidays were half over they were entirely sold out of models 150 and 200.

Corporal H. D. Buchanan, who formerly traveled Illinois and Indiana for the Phonograph Co., is still stationed at Camp Funston, Kansas. He has been there since last September and writes that he expects to be back and on the job soon, traveling his old territory.

Now a Newsman

John Thune, who formerly had charge of the advertising detail for Lyon & Healy's Victor department, left the first of the year to take a position with Petroleum Age, a magazine published in this city. His place has been filled by H. R. Mirick, who for several years has been Lyon & Healy's Victor representative in Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

B. & H. Publicity Campaign

The B. & H. Fibre Mfg. Co. are making preparations for an aggressive advertising campaign for 1919, which will have the effect of putting the merits of the B. & H. fibre needle before the public as well as the dealers more forcefully than ever before. Announcements as to the nature of this campaign will be made later. The company have now in press, however, an extremely artistic illustrated folder, which will be a convenient size for enclosing in a regular business envelope, and which will tell the fibre needle story pertinently and convincingly. It will be ready for distribution about the 15th of January, and dealers are invited to ask their jobbers for a supply for distribution to their customers.

old-timers in Chicago. Mr. Vining had been connected with the music industry of this city for over thirty-five years, having started as a boy with the Kimball Co. over thirty-five years ago. He had been connected with some of the biggest houses in Chicago and had been in business for himself at various times. Some time ago he was appointed general office overseer for the Chicago branch of the Columbia Co., but ill health necessitated his giving up this position a few weeks prior to his death.

When Selling Records

Very often the question comes up, "What are the best methods to pursue when selling records?" This has always been a mighty hard question to answer. The method that will work wonders for one man will absolutely fall flat for another man and vice versa. Therefore, no attempt will be made by The World in this item to either advocate or condemn the following methods which were described by F. W. Clement, manager, and J. C. Fraser, Illinois representative, both of the Chicago branch of the Emerson Phonograph Co. We will merely print the argument for what it is worth to the reader.

Mr. Clements believes that every demonstration booth should have a rack therein containing samples of at least three classes of music, for example, classics, dances and songs, the latter two up-to-date and popular. The prices of each selection should be plainly exhibited. A notice should be pasted above the rack specifying that "these records are samples and are, therefore, liable to be found slightly defective, owing to improper handling. Pick out the selection you want, and we will see that the record you select is in perfect condition."

Mr. Fraser believes that the same method be pursued, but he goes one step further. He believes that the "rack" should not be a geometric contrivance, such as a series of enameled angle irons, as in general use, but that the rack should be a large cloth, attached to the wall of the booth, and should contain little pegs to hold the records, that is, a little peg that can be readily inserted through the center hole of the record.

Mr. Fraser has had much success with this method throughout central Illinois. He believes that a black record is more effective when placed against a green background, and says that in many instances he was enabled to secure a dandy background for country dealers by paying a visit to the local pool hall and purchasing the discarded billiard table cover. From time to time it is necessary for the owners of pool rooms to replace the green covering of their table with a new one, because of the fact that the resiliency of the old cover has been reduced. One is always able to make a purchase of this kind for a dollar or two.

Both gentlemen are well agreed on one thing. That is as to the number of samples the traveling man should carry with him. Both believe that a traveling man should carry as few sample records as possible. When a man goes out with a sample case loaded with records it looks as though he were going on a concert tour, instead of a record selling expedition. They believe that a traveling man should go into a retail store and spend his time telling the dealer how much money he can make off that particular line of records, or if he is already established spend some time in trying to help the dealer find out what is wrong with his department. The fellow who goes into a dealer's store with a trunk load of records and plays every one of them before talking business is not only losing time for himself, his company and the dealer, but money.

B. R. Forster a Visitor

B. R. Forster, president of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., of America, Inc., accompanied by Mrs. Forster, spent a few days in Chicago this week. Mr. Forster stopped off while en route to California to visit some of his Chicago friends.

Loaded Down With Orders

The Western News Co., manufacturers of the Tel-O-Tone talking machine, whose famous motto, "the soul of music dwells within," has become so familiar to the readers of The World, report themselves loaded down with orders, inquiries, and more orders, until they do not know where to turn. They are at present engaged in bringing out some new designs in cases and are expecting to make some elaborate announcements along these lines in the near future. W. Cheney Beckwith, talking machine manager of the company and father of the Tel-

O-Tone, informs The World that his company would be glad to get in touch with some good distributors who would take on entire states; meaning by this not merely state traveling salesmen, but men who are prepared to open warerooms for display of the line and also to call on every dealer in their territory. To a few such men the Western News Co. can offer an exceptionally fine proposition.

Secures Patent on Tone-Deflecting System

The Magnola Talking Machine Co., 711 Milwaukee avenue, this city, has just received its patent papers in connection with the tone-deflecting system of construction which has now for some time been a feature of all styles of Magnola. The construction is simple but effective and the company finds that by using it a clearer reproduction is obtained with less mechanical scratch and better detail. The sound waves are conducted from the tone arm along a channel which descends into the cabinet at an angle of forty-five degrees. It is then brought to a stop at a panel which is placed to form the upper side or roof of the tone chamber and which is also at an angle of forty-five degrees with reference to the channel. The tone chamber itself is shaped as a prism with the right angle in it formed by the junction of the lower side with the open end of the chamber. The other two angles are each of forty-five degrees.

The sound waves are thus reflected from the tone arm into the channel and from the end of the latter through a rectangular slit upwardly against the roof of the chamber at an angle of forty-five degrees. Thence they travel outwardly through the open side. The result appears to be to strengthen the portions of the wave which proceed from the sound box direct, whilst minimizing the incidental vibratory elements which accrue from the friction of needle against record, from the natural vibratory period of the sound box or from other disturbing causes.

The construction also allows for a very effective tone control through a shutter in the channel.

Ed. Strauss a Visitor

Ed. Strauss, manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., of New York, is in Chicago this week. Mr. Strauss visited the main office of the Brunswick Co. for the purpose of securing more goods. He reports that the New York branch could keep a factory of its own busy, and to back up his statement he exhibited orders amounting to more than six car loads of Brunswick machines.

Brunswick Double Up

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. are making plans for the year of 1919 to more than double its output. It is the aim of this company to manufacture during the coming year approximately one hundred and twenty thou-

R. R. HINMAN A STEGER ENTHUSIAST

New Sales Manager of Phonograph Division of Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co. Sees Many Points of Salability in Their Phonographs

"We contend," said Roy R. Hinman, "that the Steger phonograph is particularly worthy of the attention of progressive dealers because of its all around excellence and distinctive selling points."

Mr. Hinman is the sales manager of the phonograph division of Steger & Sons Piano Mfg. Co., of Chicago, and Steger, Ill. A long and extensive selling experience has given him a comprehensive knowledge of sales conditions and an appreciation of opportunities for trade development, that is reflected in the successful distribution and sale of these products throughout the United States and foreign countries. He was born in Kansas—and if the pep and energy that he puts into his work of interesting, enrolling and encouraging Steger phonograph representatives are due to his early environment they certainly speak well for Kansas home-grown products.

"Speaking about the Steger phonograph," suggested Mr. Hinman, "just consider that the Steger tone arm, which is protected by basic patents, permits you to play all records correctly—with the precise degree of pressure required by any particular make of records without using any attachments. Outside of needles, there are no parts to change."

"We claim," he added, "especially faithful tonal reproduction, because of the advantages afforded by the Steger tone arm and sound chamber. Some persons have a mistaken notion regarding the Steger phonograph. They do not know that it is made in immense factories exclusively devoted to its manufacture. It is constructed with the same degree of care and attention that is given to the making of art style Steger pianos, moreover the talking machine division of Steger & Sons is totally distinct and independent from the piano and player-piano divisions."

Mr. Hinman is proud of the progress that has been made in bringing the Steger phonograph to its present state of perfection. "Our organization," he added, "is made up of specialists, who have concentrated all of their ability to make the Steger represent the embodiment of artistic and constructive excellence.

"A perfect phonograph has no tone of its own," stated Mr. Hinman. "It merely is a reproducer of sound. Its worth is dependent upon its quality of reproducing a tone or sound, without adding to or detracting from it. If you hear an artist sing in a concert, you want to hear his voice reproduced on a phonograph with fidelity—and not changed by any so-called 'tone' of a talking machine. The Steger gives every sound with fidelity—tone for tone.

"We are spending thousands and thousands of dollars for national magazine advertising in 1919—to help our dealers—because their success with the Steger phonograph and our knowledge of its great selling points warrant this vast expenditure. We are daily appointing new dealers."

The accompanying cut is a reduced reproduction of one of the advertisements being run in a campaign, including the Saturday Evening Post and a number of the highest grade and most widely circulated periodicals in the country. The Steger advertising department has worked out an elaborate system of dealers' helps, including effective newspaper copy, elec-

MUTUAL CO. CLOSE GREAT BUSINESS

In a chat this month with The World Wm. Phillips, president of the Mutual Talking Machine Co., New York, commented upon the excellent business closed by this house during 1918. Mr. Phillips states that Mutual tone arms and sound boxes are being used exclusively by some of the best-known manufacturers in the trade, and that these products are apparently giving splendid service to their users. During the past few months the company closed several important contracts with representative manufacturers, and in order to handle its fast-growing business Mr. Phillips is endeavoring to secure larger quarters, which will enable the company to increase its output materially during 1919.

TRI-STATE ASSOCIATION TO MEET

Annual Session of That Organization to Be Held on February 5 in St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo., January 7.—The directors of the Tri-State Talking Machine Association have decided to call the annual meeting of that association on February 5, when a full attendance of members will be urged. This meeting was planned for October, and at later dates, but was postponed because of the influenza quarantine. It is expected that by February the Victor dealers will have much to discuss, as it is the expectation that the flow of new Victor stock will begin about that time. The details of the program for the meeting will be announced later.

USING CLEVER LOCAL PUBLICITY

The advertising department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., received recently the accompanying photograph from H. C. Grow, Springfield, Mass., successful phonograph dealer in that city, who is handling the "OkeH" record line manufactured by the Otto Heineman Co. Mr. Grow is featuring the "OkeH" record line to excellent advantage, and, according to his plans for the coming year, he will use considerable local publicity in behalf

E. H. LANSING VISITS NEW YORK

E. H. Lansing, well known to the trade as the originator of moving covers for the talking machine, with headquarters in Boston, was in New York over the first of the year. He expects great expansion throughout the trade during 1919 in both domestic and foreign business, although a reduction in the prices of raw materials cannot be looked for immediately. Mr. Lansing announces an enlarged production of the Lansing covers for the coming year in accordance with his optimistic predictions.

The Aristocrat of Phonographs

No other Phonograph has ever created such favorable and widespread comment in the Talking Machine World. The "Widdicomb" is now being successfully featured by the leading houses throughout the country.

TRADE IS ACTIVE IN WINNIPEG

Leading Dealers Report Busy Times and Splendid Prospects for the New Year

WINNIPEG, CAN., January 5.—Business in talking machine circles is most satisfactory. Arthur S. Joy, of the Phonograph Shop, says everything is splendid and cash sales are good. This firm is cutting out the small payment business and is having marked success in the change. "We are also cutting out ragtime to a great extent and are going after real music," said Mr. Joy. "People seem to be demanding the change, and we are putting ourselves in a position to accommodate them."

Robt. Shaw, of Cassidy's, Ltd., distributors of Columbia lines, says that shipments are coming forward much better now, owing to increased factory facilities, and the firm is getting in a much better position to supply the ever-increasing demands. He remarked that the business outlook was excellent.

"All I want is stock," said H. E. Sternberg, of the Musical Merchandise Sales Co. "I can sell all the Brunswick machines I can get and then some." Those utterances speak well for the volume of business done by the firm.

The Western Phonograph & Sapphire Disc Co. speak well of December business. They have disposed of a large number of OkeH records.

J. J. McLean & Co. have joined the ranks of new Sonora dealers.

T. E. Oliver, Wawota, Sask., has recently been enrolled as an Edison representative.

Mr. Conlin, of the Western Gramophone Co., is a very busy man, as is likewise the whole staff. He is expecting big things from the coming appearance of the San Carlo Opera Co., and is ready to meet the demand for Victor grand opera records. Mr. Conlin says there has been an exceptionally big trade in educational records of late.

EXPECTS BIG CABINET DEMAND

According to the statement of Ben Ferrara, of the cabinet firm of that name, Oneida, N. Y., the demands for cabinets of both stock and specially designed models during the coming year will be heavier than during the past two seasons. His plant has already accepted several large orders, the deliveries to commence at once and continue during the balance of the year.

GAVE CHEVRONS TO FIGHTERS

The S. B. Davega Co., the well-known Victor jobbers of New York, have given their entire stock of service chevrons to soldiers, sailors and marines.

NEW COLUMBIA ARTIST ANNOUNCED

Miss Rosa Ponselle, Dramatic Soprano of Metropolitan Opera Co., Will Record Exclusively for the Columbia Record Library

The Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced this week that arrangements have been consummated whereby Miss Rosa Ponselle, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who made a sensational debut recently at the Metropolitan Opera House, will record exclusively for the Columbia library. Miss Ponselle's records will be announced in the very near future.

The rise of Rosa Ponselle in the musical world is meteoric, to say the least, as less than a year ago she was a member of the vaudeville team of Ponselle Sisters, which was then playing in the leading vaudeville houses. While this act was appearing in New York, Wm. Thorner, well-known singing teacher, chanced to hear it, and was so impressed with Miss Rosa Ponselle's voice that he arranged to give her a course of lessons in operatic singing. She made wonderful progress under Mr. Thorner's able teaching and was coached in the preparation of difficult operatic roles by Romano Romani, operatic conductor for the Columbia Graphophone Co. As soon as Miss Ponselle had completed her course of training, the Metropolitan Opera Co.'s musical critics assembled to hear her, and she was engaged for this famous organization after her first trial.

She appeared at the Metropolitan Opera Co. this season, making her debut in "La Forza del Destino," and newspaper critics proclaimed her as one of the musical "finds" of this generation. Her position in the operatic world has been strengthened since her debut by her successful appearances in several difficult roles.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. is to be congratulated upon the acquisition of Miss Ponselle to its recording libraries, and full credit for the consummation of this arrangement should be given to Theodore Bauer, director of the Columbia Co.'s concert and operatic department, who has been responsible for the addition of many famous artists to the Columbia recording staff.

The following newspaper comments regarding Miss Ponselle will give some idea of the remarkable beauty of her voice. The New York World said: "Seldom does a Metropolitan audience respond as warmly as this one did last night to the new singer, Rosa Ponselle. After her first act aria the people applauded in a way that showed their feelings and this happened again after the splendidly sung duet with Caruso. Miss Ponselle's voice is a dramatic soprano of more genuinely beautiful quality than has been heard at the Metropolitan in many a season."

The New York Times said: "What a promising debut! Added to her personal attractiveness, she possesses a voice of natural beauty that may prove a gold mine. It is vocal gold anyhow, with its luscious lower and middle tones, dark, rich and ductile; brilliant and flexible in the upper register."

The New York Herald said: "The debut of Rosa Ponselle was a definite and pleasurable surprise, amounting to a sensation. For a girl fresh from vaudeville to come on the classic stage of the Metropolitan and sing with the poise, authority and ease of a veteran with a beautiful luscious and wonderful even voice of two octaves compass, with a tone production smooth and efficient, struck me as little short of marvelous, and I am sure the audience thought so too."

VERITONE PLAYER AND PHONOGRAPH

Veritone Talking Machine Co. Now Producing Two Instruments—Player Can Be Handled Profitably by Talking Machine Dealers

The Veritone Talking Machine Co., 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York, is now producing a Veritone player-piano in connection with the Veritone phonograph. The Veritone player-piano is an instrument which is equipped with a highly efficient player action, which has many individual features and can be handled profitably by talking machine dealers in connection with their regular business.

The Veritone phonograph has since its inception become a popular seller, and agencies for this instrument have been placed with many representative dealers throughout the country. The special sales plan, which has been developed by this company, has also been of interest to many dealers who have found it most profitable.

MAXWELL TELLS WHY LABOR MUST BE KEPT PROSPEROUS

Vice-President of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Writes in a Most Illuminating Way Regarding Reconstruction Problems Following Ending of the War—Of General Interest to Trade

"To my mind the business prosperity of the country during the first year of peace depends more upon the way labor is handled than upon any other single factor," writes William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., in an article written by him and published in the Outlook Magazine. "I should like to see the redistribution of our war workers and the return of our soldiers to the pursuits of peace made the occasion for an enormous patriotic campaign, somewhat similar to a Liberty Loan drive, with every employer, from the humble truck gardener to the millionaire manufacturer, doing his bit to the best of his ability in providing employment for the men who have worked and fought to win the war. In addition to revealing fully and quickly the opportunities for labor that are in actual existence, I believe that the enthusiasm resulting from a widespread patriotic appeal would, in a considerable degree, overcome the doubts and indecision of business men, disturbed and bewildered by the first few unfavorable phenomena that attend the transition from war to peace."

Mr. Maxwell urges that the Government enter immediately upon the complete rehabilitation of the railroads, thus tending to "stabilize the price of steel and establish a post-bellum standard of wages in the steel industry." He says further: "There is no reason why the Government should not now underwrite feasible physical improvements in our transportation system on a basis that will protect the stockholders and bondholders. It is better for the Government to buy rails at stabilizing prices, even though their cost must be subsequently depreciated than to buy shells that will never be fired."

Mr. Maxwell recommends the earliest possible resumption of public work by the Government. He also lays a similar duty on the States and cities, saying as follows:

"The States and municipalities have also an opportunity to aid in maintaining wages on a parity with the cost of living. Under the influence of Governmental example and prompted by Governmental precept, they could launch a large amount of much-needed improvements.

"Thousands on thousands of miles of good State roads are needed. There is no better investment than good roads, and, all conditions considered, there was never a better time to launch a nation-wide campaign of State-road building.

"Widespread municipal improvements, in addition to providing work for wage earners and a market for material, will tend to revive private building, although a building boom is the last thing to be desired from a financial standpoint, and I think the banks may be depended upon to prevent undue expansion in that direction.

"In passing it is perhaps well to draw a distinction between public investments and private investments which turn liquid capital into frozen capital in the face of inflation that makes the present value of a dollar considerably less than it will probably possess two years hence. In the first place, public interest and benefit provide automatic amortization of practically any depreciation of investment that results from the appreciation of the dollar, whereas only exceptional circumstances of highly profitable operation enable the individual to absorb such losses with equanimity. In the second place, the liabilities incurred by a State or municipality, for wise expenditures in useful public improvements, possess a ready negotiability and high investment value which distinguish them from individual liability incurred for the purpose of fixed investment. Nevertheless, there is a limit beyond which States and municipalities should not go at the present time in the matter of fixed investments, but I feel reasonably convinced that the impending emergency can be handled well within that limit.

"How soon the cost of living will decline to a point where wages may be decreased without disastrously curtailing the purchasing power of labor is a matter of conjecture. Corn declined on peace rumors, but the price of the 1919 wheat crop has already been guaranteed, and the average price of corn will probably reflect the price of wheat. The price of corn in turn tends to establish the average price of pork and beef. There seems little prospect of a substantial decrease in the price of bread and meat before the fall of 1920. Woollen garments should be lower after six months of peace. Cotton is at present an enigma with the paradoxical possibility that peace will result in lower prices.

Manufactured articles, on the whole, declined more rapidly in price after the close of the Civil War than basic commodities, and the same seeming phenomenon may occur again. It is possible that labor on the average could absorb a 10 per cent. decrease in wages within a year after the end of hostilities. At any rate our first six months of peace, in an extreme sense, and the second six months, in a very high degree, represent from every angle of the employment problem an emergency with which the Government must deal and with which it can probably best deal by invoking a national spirit of patriotic co-operation, rather than by an attempted perpetuation in peacetimes of the bureaucratic methods that have been cheerfully accepted as a necessity of wartimes.

"Needless to say the employment problem, although without doubt the most important peace problem, is but one of many weighty and perplexing problems.

"To work out a practicable plan by which our allies, already indebted to us some $8,000,000,000 or $9,000,000,000, can finance the enormous purchases from us, on which we are relying, is unquestionably the greatest problem of international finance that has ever presented itself for solution.

"To decide on the wisest disposition or use of our Government-owned ships involves a principle that was a live political issue for several years, and now demands immediate reconsideration. The correction of our present system of taxation is a pressing question in the light of our other problems, and one that is full of political dynamite.

"To adapt our tariff laws to the industrial reactions, to the war, that occur in the various nations of the world is a task which should be approached in a state of mind that no previous Congress has ever manifested in respect of tariff matters.

"The foregoing are but a few of the intensely interesting problems that must be solved and that are likely to wreck many a promising political career. Will our statesmen risk their political prospects as courageously as our soldiers have risked their lives?"

REPORTS CONTINUED PROGRESS

Hoffay Co. Has Made Substantial Gains Despite War Conditions—Adopts New Slogan to Describe Product—Big Advertising Campaign

The Hoffay Talking Machine Co., Inc., New York, manufacturers of the "Hoffay Airtight," which has been specially designed to play records of all makes, continues receiving a great volume of business from dealers already established as Hoffay agents and from other dealers who are getting the company's list.

Letters accompanying the orders contain very congratulatory remarks from dealers about the selling merits of the Hoffay products, which lead the Hoffay people to look forward to the most successful year in the life of the company during 1919.

The Hoffay Co. has recently adopted a new exclusive slogan, which informs the reader that the Hoffay not only plays all records but "Produces Music Out of Records of All Makes." This clearly shows the artistic aim of the Hoffay Co., as stated by their president, Joseph Hoffay.

Mr. Hoffay says that the success of the Hoffay has not only meant to dealers the disposal of a great number of machines but has helped, and is helping, them to increase the sale of their records. He also said: "The Hoffay Co. was established in June, 1915, and the way progress has been recorded shows unmistakably that in this concern not only permanency of business is assured but that quality stands behind the Hoffay products. In no other way could the company have expanded to so great an extent during the trying war period just passed."

The advertising campaigns which the Hoffay firm has carried, and is carrying, in local papers of their agents' territory assist materially in disposing of Hoffay products. The Hoffay Co. announces that an even larger appropriation for advertising purposes, for the benefit of dealers, is available for the ensuing year.

BUFFALO TRADE HIT BY BUSINESS TORNADO AT XMAS

Only Smaller Types of Machines Left on Wareroom Floors After Holiday Rush—Early Relief Expected in Matter of Stock—What the Various Companies Have to Report

BUFFALO, N. Y., January 6.—The various talking machine stores and departments in Buffalo, after Christmas, looked as though a tornado had swept through them, that is, so far as stocks of machines and records went. There were some of the smaller types of machines still available, for the demand had been heaviest for the higher priced cabinet models, but even the smaller machines were mighty scarce in most places. Of course, there was some business lost, temporarily, through the inability of the dealers to supply the desired models but the general clean-up served to bring some real money to the retailers and, as one of them put it, also saved them much work in taking inventory at the end of the year.

Early relief from the machine shortage has been promised and as a result the local trade expects to reap a genuine harvest during 1919, particularly as there is and will be considerable industrial activity in Buffalo and vicinity for some time to come not dependent upon war conditions. A particularly pleasing feature of the business just now is that the public has been educated to the point of paying cash or very substantial instalments in order to get any machines at all and the dealers hope that the effect of the education will be felt in the peace-time business.

The wholesalers and jobbers in the various lines of machines were the first to experience cleared floors, for the demands of the dealers kept the stocks at low ebb sometime before Christmas, and it frequently happened that goods consigned to jobbers were delivered to dealers right from the railroad stations.

C. N. and W. D. Andrews, the Victor wholesalers, did their best to apportion available stock to the best advantage of their dealers and accomplished much in tiding over some of the houses until the final rush came. Despite scarcity of goods the Andrews house reported an excellent year's business and an outlook for 1919 that could not be surpassed providing the factory gets back to a normal basis soon.

"Our phonograph business in Buffalo exceeded our expectations," said J. R. Flynn, manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.'s branch in this city. "While we tried to give good service and take fairly good care of our dealers we were one thousand machines short in filling orders. Of course, Buffalo had their allotment, but business went way ahead of expectations. However, the factory is rushing cars of phonographs and we expect to be able to catch up by the middle of January. E. W. Edwards & Son Department Store at Rochester have been handling our phonographs for some time and just recently had the line added to their Syracuse store. Their business in both stores on the Brunswick phonograph trebled their expectations. The Thomas Piano Co. of Lockport did about four times the business they expected to do. In fact all of the Brunswick dealers were over-sold in the Buffalo territory and also in Syracuse. The double Ultona reproducer has simply done wonders for the Brunswick Phonograph."

"Our year is ending," said F. A. Denison, Buffalo manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co., "with our business for October, November and December a little more than double what it was for the same three months of the previous year. We are ending without a phonograph left in our establishment and with many thousands of dollars in unfilled orders. Record shipments toward the end of the year began to come through much better and we did a phenomenal business in that department."

"Things look exceptionally bright for the new year and if our factory is able to increase its output 1919 is certainly going to be by far the biggest Columbia year that has ever happened. As far as we hear and this branch is concerned there is not a cloud in the sky and all we want is lots of machines and records and we will be able to hang up sales figures way ahead of anything this branch has ever had."

William H. Daniels, head of the big piano and talking machine house of Denton, Cottier &

Daniels, has been elected president of the Buffalo Club, an exclusive organization of business and professional men of this city.

Proprietors of talking machine firms in this city continue to give serious thought to reconstruction and peace business. With a general unanimity their patriotism will be shown in taking back into their employ all workers, with good records, who have been in military or naval service.

"Whereas there was some doubt about the efficiency of one delivery a day and the closing of the large stores in the evenings before Christmas," said Ralph R. Hudson, president of J. N. Adam & Co., Victrola dealers, "we have found that these factors have brought about a greater volume of trade distributed over a longer period. Christmas trade began briskly the day after Thanksgiving and the earliest weeks showed constantly increasing business. This was handled by the delivery system to great advantage."

Henry Jones, former head of the Jones Piano Co., of Buffalo, is among Uncle Sam's soldiers who will be mustered out shortly.

The extensive war program of the Victor Talking Machine Co. was recently emphasized in several columns of newspaper advertising by Neal, Clark & Neal, of this city.

The Buffalo Retail Clerks' Association, of which some of the talking machine salesmen are members, has expressed opposition to a return to old working conditions, whereby certain local stores are kept open every night of the week.

John Schuler had such a heavy demand for Sonoras that he cleaned out his entire holiday stock. His salesmen are W. Robert Fitzgerald, Ray Savard, Richard Nevills and Henry Marsh.

Even after what they term "an unprecedented Christmas rush," Goold Bros. continued to have a steady, normal trade right up to and after New Year's day. This concern features the Victor, Sonora and Pathé lines.

A recent Buffalo caller was Thomas P. Clancy, of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co.

Grafonolas are handled by Lewin Bros., who recently opened a new store in Ellicott Square.

Herman Baer, formerly of the staff of the Utley Piano Co., Inc., is still in military service in Washington.

A. F. Koenig, of the Koenig Piano Co., reports that his sale of Pathé talking machines was beyond his expectations.

Second Annual Convention of Columbia Managers

Columbia Branch and Dictaphone Managers Hold Conference This Week at Hotel McAlpin—Visit Factories at Bridgeport and Discuss Important Merchandising and Manufacturing Subjects—George W. Hopkins Presides as Chairman—Gala Concert and Annual Banquet at Hotel McAlpin

The second annual conference of the branch and Dictaphone managers of the Columbia Graphophone Co. was held in New York this week, and was such a decided and emphatic success that two days were added to the original program. George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the company, was chairman of the conference, and arranged a program which was noteworthy for the practical value of every detail. Mr. Hopkins was assisted by Frank K. Pennington, assistant general sales manager, who acted as assistant chairman at the conference, and by C. K. Woodbridge, sales manager of the Dictaphone.

When the managers left New York last year after attending their first annual conference, they expressed the opinion that it was well nigh impossible for any convention to be more valuable than their 1918 meetings. However, every visiting manager in New York this week admitted that the 1919 convention far surpassed the previous meetings in the practical strength of the programs, and the spontaneous enthusiasm of every member of the Columbia organization. The managers entered heartily into the spirit of the conference, and Mr. Hopkins well deserved the sincere congratulations that he received from his sales force upon the completion of the week's activities. In fact, the managers stated that this convention had benefited them tremendously, and that the dealers in their respective territories would receive tangible dividends as a result of this conference in the nature of maximum service and co-operation during the coming year, plus the new ideas and thoughts that were sown at the meetings.

The 1919 conference opened on Monday evening with an informal dinner in the green room of the Hotel McAlpin, at which there were present the branch managers and the Columbia executives. This gathering consisted of a pow-wow at which the branch managers did the talking and the executives did the listening. The import of this informal talk was indicated by the fact that the meeting did not adjourn till the small hours of the morning.

Visit Bridgeport on Tuesday

On Tuesday, January 7, the branch and Dictaphone managers, together with the executives and the Columbia Co.'s department heads, left for Bridgeport to visit the immense Columbia factories in that city. Two hours were spent in a tour of the East and West plants; the branch managers devoting their activities to the former plant, and the Dictaphone managers to the latter. This factory visit was thoroughly enjoyed by the managers, as it gave them an opportunity to appreciate at first hand the wonderful efficiency and tremendous extent of the Columbia Co.'s great manufacturing organization.

At noontime the branch and Dictaphone managers were the guests of the factory executives at a luncheon given at the Hotel Stratfield in Bridgeport. Several interesting talks were made at this luncheon; the speakers being introduced by Mr. Hopkins, who acted as toastmaster. Among these talks were "Factory Accomplishments," C. A. Hanson, general works manager; "New Motors and the Non-Set Stop," R. R. Mead, assistant general works manager; "Keeping Them Moving," R. L. French, traffic manager; "How We Help Win," Henry C. Cox, controller; "Ordering From Factory Standpoint," Percy Brown, general superintendent of record manufacture.

During the afternoon the Dictaphone managers gathered at the West plant to listen to a practical demonstration by John J. Scully, whose subject was "Building a Dictaphone." The branch managers spent the afternoon inspecting the West plant, and the Columbia party left for New York on the 5.40 train. An informal dinner for the Dictaphone managers was held in the green room at the Hotel McAlpin, where the managers were given an opportunity to use the A-7, and the executives did the listening.

Wednesday's Joint Conference

On Wednesday morning all of the managers assembled for a joint session, and listened to a able seat in this large and handsome room was occupied. Interesting talks were made at this meeting by R. W. Knox, advertising manager of the Columbia Co., who discussed "Advertising as Co-operation"; George W. Hopkins, who discussed "Retail Merchandising," and C. A. Hanson, general works manager, who furnished the dealers with a practical resumé of 1918 activities at the Columbia factories.

The feature event of the afternoon was the the Columbia Co. upon securing the services of a man who is leaving nothing undone to provide for the success and prosperity of the Columbia dealers.

Dictaphone Managers' Conference Wednesday

On Wednesday afternoon the Dictaphone managers were in conference and listened to the following practical talks: "Dictaphone Selling Policy," George W. Hopkins; "Hiring Salesmen," C. K. Woodbridge; "How We Sup-splendid address by Francis S. Whitten, president of the company, entitled "Another Big Vision." Mr. Whitten's talk served as an inspiration for the entire conference, and his address was followed by a number of practical talks entitled "Organization Chart," A. P. Anderson; "How to Get 100 Per Cent. From an Audit," Marion Dorian, chief auditor; "House Organs and How They Play," Paul Hayden; "What the Research Laboratory Means to Us," C. M. Goldstein; "Handling Kicks in the General Manager's Office," H. A. Yerkes; "Closer Co-operation Between Musical and Dictaphone Departments," George W. Hopkins.

The "Ideal Dealers' Meeting"

On Wednesday afternoon the branch managers were the guests of Lambert Friedl, manager of the local wholesale branch of the company, who staged for their benefit an "Ideal Dealers' Meeting." Mr. Friedl has for several months past extended invitations to the dealers in his territory to assemble as his guests and listen to the midmonth records. These meetings have proven signally successful, and on Wednesday the visiting managers were given an opportunity to view the practical side of the gatherings.

Wednesday's meeting was held in the ballroom of the Hotel McAlpin, and the interest aroused among the dealers was reflected in the fact that standees were present, as every avail-introduction to the managers and the dealers of Rosa Ponselle, operatic soprano, who only recently joined the Columbia recording library, and will record exclusively for the Columbia Co. Miss Ponselle, who made her debut at the Metropolitan Opera House this season, has been acclaimed by critics as one of the "finds" of the present generation. She favored Wednesday's gathering with several selections, and was received so enthusiastically that she was obliged to respond with numerous encores. Every member of the Columbia organization who was present on Wednesday congratulated the executive heads of the recording division upon the acquisition of Miss Ponselle to the Columbia library, and the managers stated that her wonderful voice forms an invaluable addition to the company's record catalog.

Several other Columbia artists contributed to the enjoyment of Wednesday's program, including Arthur Fields, the popular composer and singer, and two instructors from the Hepburn Wilson Dancing Studios, who danced to the music of the new Columbia dance records.

During the course of the afternoon Irwin Kurtz, well-known Columbia dealer, presented a set of resolutions to Mr. Hopkins in behalf of the New York dealers. In these resolutions he expressed the dealers' appreciation of the indefatigable efforts made in their behalf by Mr. Hopkins and his organization, and congratulated Speare, manager Fifth Avenue Shop; "Exporting Under Difficulties," E. F. Sause, export manager; "How to Use a Sample Case," N. B. Smith; "Scientifically Simple," George W. Hopkins.

The Dictaphone managers were also in conference on Thursday, and their program was as follows: "Preparation for the Sale," C. K. Woodbridge; "Carry and Sell Plan," George W. Hopkins; "Demonstration of a Sale," J. C. Button, manager New York Dictaphone branch; C. A. Malliete, manager Philadelphia Dictaphone branch; "Competition Arguments and How to Meet Them," W. C. Kobin; "Promotion Department," C. K. Woodbridge; "1919 Advertising," F. H. Little, vice-president George Batten Co.; "How to Use Our Advertising," R. W. Knox; "The Executive Office as a Clearing House," J. S. Baker; "Building Reputation," F. K. Pennington; "Intensive Selling," C. K. Woodbridge.

BANQUET ON THURSDAY EVENING

On Thursday evening, in accordance with its usual custom, the officials of the Columbia Graphophone Co. gave the visiting branch and Dictaphone managers a banquet. This banquet was held in the ballroom of the Hotel McAlpin, and formed a fitting finale to the 1919 conference, which came to a close with this dinner with the exception of a two days' stay in Bridgeport by the branch managers.

There was presented at this banquet a musical concert and entertainment which in itself was well worth the cross-country tour made by some of the managers who attended the conference. This musical entertainment was provided with the idea of giving the managers a chance to hear personally some of the famous artists who record for the Columbia library, and to visualize the superb quality of these artists' voices. E. N. Burns, vice-president of the Columbia Co., was responsible for this remarkable program, being ably assisted by Theodore H. Bauer, operatic and concert director, who introduced the different artists.

Among the artists who were the guests of honor at this banquet were Mme. Amparito Farrar, Mme. Barbara Maurel, Josef Hofmann, Oscar Seagle, F. Castellani, Arthur Fields, Billy Murray, Lieutenant Gitz-Rice and his brother, Lieutenant Robert Rice, the Peerless Quartet and the Stellar Quartet, comprising Albert Campbell, Henry Burr, John Meyer, Chas. Harrison, Andrea Sarto and Frank Croxton; Prince's Orchestra, with Charles Prince conducting; Robert Hood Bowers and Romano Romani.

Each of these artists rendered several selections, but in every instance was obliged to give numerous encores in response to the enthusiastic and insistent applause of the diners. The artists entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion, and added additional selections and choruses in order to satisfy the guests at the banquet. This part of the program made the dinner a memorable one, for such a gathering of artists on a single occasion would undoubtedly attract a record-breaking audience in the country's largest auditorium. Incidentally it might be mentioned that this was the first performance ever given in the Hotel McAlpin by Josef Hofmann, the world-famous pianist, and exclusive Columbia artist.

During the course of the banquet Mr. Hopkins as toastmaster introduced several of the company's officials who made timely and interesting addresses that were enthusiastically received by the diners.

The first speaker of the evening was President Whitten, who paid a tribute to the splendid personnel of the Columbia organization, stating that their co-operation and hard work had enabled the company to go "over the top" in 1918. He asked that every member of the organization consider the Columbia Co. as "his company," and in closing expressed his appreciation of the co-operation that the Columbia Co. had been given by its many artists.

Mr. Hopkins then proposed that a toast, followed by three rousing cheers, be given to H. L. Willson, vice-president and general manager of the company. Mr. Willson has been away from New York the past few weeks recuperating from the terrific strain under which he worked during 1918. He is now spending a fortnight in the South, and, although he personally desired to make the trip to New York to attend the convention, contrary to the advice of his physician, he was finally prevailed upon to give his health the first consideration, and remain in the South in order to regain his usual vigor and energy. His enforced absence from the convention was deeply regretted by every one of his associates, and this regret was reflected

Mr. Willson's Message

In the frontispiece of the official program for the banquet there was presented Mr. Willson's 1919 message to the Columbia organization.

In closing Mr. Willson expressed his deep regret at his enforced absence, stating to his associates, "I have abundant confidence in you and the New Year."

One of the most interesting talks of the evening was made by Edward N. Burns, vice-president of the company, who is recognized as one operation the coming year, as a result of this talk.

C. W. Woddrop, treasurer of the company, told the diners that he had recently conferred with some of the most prominent bankers in the country regarding the outlook for 1919. Every one of these financiers told him that the

This message, which is typical of Mr. Willson's strength and force of character, reads as follows:

"If you think you're beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you'd like to win, but think you can't
It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost,
For out in the world we find

It's all in the state of mind.

But sooner or later the man who wins of the keenest students of recording and records in this country. Mr. Burns' address was intensely practical, and he offered important suggestions to the managers which they will undoubtedly adopt during the coming year. These suggestions, which were based on Mr. Burns' extensive knowledge of the talking machine industry, were noteworthy for their logic and sales value, and every manager, at the close of Mr. Burns' address, stated that their dealers will receive 100 per cent. plus in record co-

Columbia Co. is destined to enjoy during the next twelve months the greatest era of prosperity in its successful history. Mr. Woddrop presented facts and figures which served to emphasize the truth of this prediction.

Among the other Columbia executives whose addresses added to the pleasure of the evening were C. A. Hanson, Marion Dorian, C. K. Woodbridge, F. K. Pennington and George W. Hopkins. Mr. Hopkins, as the final speaker, gave a resumé of the accomplishments of the conference, and in behalf of the general sales manager's office expressed his sincere appreciation of the wonderful results achieved by the branch managers and their sales organizations during 1918, closing with the prediction that 1919 will be a record-breaking "Columbia year," both in sales and prestige.

It had been originally intended to bring the conference to a close with this banquet, but the visit to the factories on Tuesday had served to demonstrate the desirability of a two days' stay in Bridgeport in order to give the branch managers and the factory executives an opportunity for an intimate exchange of ideas. These two days were utilized to excellent advantage, and the managers left New York Sunday night imbued with renewed determination to make the coming year the greatest in the history of the Columbia Co., and filled with ideas that will enable their respective branches to help Columbia dealers along the most profitable lines.

Among the branch managers who attended this conference were the following: Westervelt Terhune, Atlanta, Ga.; W. F. Parks, Baltimore, Md.; Fred E. Mann, Boston, Mass.; F. A. Denison, Buffalo, N. Men prominent in the Edison organization attended the reception and bade Mr. Wilson Godspeed. Charles Edison, in a brief address, spoke of the great affection that Mr. Wilson had earned from his employes, and William Maxwell, vice-president and division manager of the musical phonograph division, on behalf of Mr. Wilson's associates, presented him with a wardrobe trunk, traveling bag and leather case.

Mr. Maxwell also spoke feelingly of Mr. Wilson's many fine qualities and the latter responded briefly, thanking his associates. Three cheers and a tiger were led by Charles Edison and Thomas A. Edison.

A VISITOR FROM ATLANTA

Porter Langston, secretary and treasurer, Atlanta Talking Machine Co., was a recent visitor to The World sanctum and spoke enthusiastically regarding conditions in his territory. Money is abundant, labor well employed, and there is an increasing demand for the Aeolian-Vocilion and Columbia lines which are handled in Atlanta, Ga., by his house. WAR SERVICES OF E. G. SCHLOSS

General Manager of Schloss Bros., Inc., Highly Praised for Work as Veneer Expert for Bureau of Aircraft Production—Now Free to Resume Activities in Civilian Fields

Edwin G. Schloss, general manager of Schloss Bros., Inc., New York, the well-known manufacturers of talking machine record and music roll cabinets, who has been in the service of the Government since the beginning of the war as an inspector of veneers in the Bureau of Aircraft Production, has now been released from his official duties and is now again able to devote his entire attention to the Schloss Bros. business.

Mr. Schloss, who is considered an expert on veneers and cabinet work generally, proved most valuable to the Government in passing on work of that character and his duties carried him to practically all sections of the country where airplane contracts were being filed. That his services were fully appreciated by the Bureau of Aircraft Production is indicated by the following letter sent to Mr. Schloss by Major H. B. Oakleaf, Chief of the Wood Section, who wrote:

"As Chief of the Wood Section and in the name of the Inspection Department, the writer wishes to express this organization's deep and sincere appreciation of the services you have rendered your country during the war.

"As President Wilson has said, it was as much the untiring efforts and wonderful support of the War Department's representatives at home as the courage and valor of our troops that brought victory to the United States and the Allies, and it was fear of the human and industrial energies so rapidly gaining momentum in this country that hastened the collapse of the German military machine.

"The writer also wishes to express his personal gratitude for the loyal, generous and effective support you have given him in the effort to make the Wood Inspection program a success."

WALL-KANE NEEDLES REDUCED

Lower Prices for Those Needles Announced as Result of After-War Conditions

D. Tauber, president of the Progressive Phonographic Supply Co., sole distributor for Wall-Kane steel needles, announced recently that the wholesale cost of this needle has been reduced, and that hereafter the price of Wall-Kane steel needles to the dealer will be considerably less than heretofore.

Regarding this change Mr. Tauber said: "As the trade knows, the Wall-Kane steel needle was the first to be increased in price when conditions necessitated such an increase, and with the return of approximately normal conditions we are the first to reduce these prices.

"The needles will retail at 15 cents per package of fifty as they have during the past year, but there will be a larger margin for profit for the jobber and retailer than there has been in the past. We have kept in close touch with the raw material market, and feel justified in reducing these prices in order to give our trade the full benefit of the present improved situation."

Leonard Markels, manufacturer of phonograph motors at 105 William street, New York City, has made an assignment to Marcus Helfrand.

BUSINESS SITUATION IN FLORIDA

Trade Conditions in That State Excellent, Reports S. Ernest Philpitt, Who Introduces His Son, Marshall S., to New York Trade

S. Ernest Philpitt, the well-known piano, Victrola and music dealer of Miami, Tampa and Jacksonville, Fla., and who also operates the music department in the store of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., Washington, D. C., visited New York this week and introduced to the trade his son, Marshall S. Philpitt, who, although only seventeen years old, has for the past year been acting most successfully as manager of the Philpitt store in Miami. During the holiday season just past the Miami store, under the direction of Marshall Philpitt, handled a business that exceeded in volume that of the Jacksonville and Tampa stores combined.

Mr. Philpitt, Sr., who handles Victrolas and the Steinway and other prominent makes of pianos at his various stores, reports that the business situation in Florida, and particularly in Miami, is most encouraging, although possible totals have been cut down somewhat, due to a shortage of Victor machines and records. The location in Florida of army and navy aviation schools and gunnery schools has served to help business somewhat, but as there was little manufacturing of war supplies done in that State there will be avoided some of the problems of the reconstruction period. Between the war and the "flu" there was a scarcity of help during the past year, but as the young men are coming back from the service this trouble is being overcome.

A very good proportion of the business now being done in Florida is for cash and the balance is in short-time instalments.

Mr. Philpitt and his son stopped in Washington and Philadelphia on the way North and will return to Washington, journeying to Florida from that city by automobile.

"INSTRUMENTS OF THE ORCHESTRA"

Latest Educational Work Issued by Victor Talking Machine Co. of Particular Interest to Schools—Exploitation Campaign Started

The Victor Talking Machine Co. has just announced the publication of their new "Instruments of the Orchestra" charts and accompanying booklet, the latest, and, be it said, the most valuable, addition to the Victor library of musical works of an instructive nature.

These charts are the result of several years' thought and experiment. Taken in conjunction with Victor records No. 35,670 and No. 35,671 and the descriptive booklet included with the charts, they give for the first time a complete presentation of the instruments for use in schools and colleges, amateur orchestras and by the interested musician.

The charts show the instruments in their natural colors (the playing position in photographic insert); the history, development and particular uses of each in expressing certain thought and emotion, and illustrations of their being so used by various composers are given in the booklet, while on the records are reproduced the exact tones of each instrument singly, in family groups, and in full ensemble. In the list of records given may be heard every possible combination of tone and infinite variety of coloring. The charts are tinted differently for each family of instruments and so numbered as to make it convenient to display each group together.

The complete set of "Instruments of the Orchestra" consists of eighteen charts showing the various instruments in detail and color with a fifty-two-page booklet of supplementary information attractively packed in a cardboard box. Additional booklets are listed at 35 cents each.

The Victor Co. has started immediately a strong campaign exploiting the new charts, and have mailed 65,000 descriptive folders to school

CRIPPLED MEN WHO MADE GOOD

Instances Where Loss of Limbs Has Not Interfered With Business Success

The great victories at Chateau-Thierry, at St. Quentin, in the St. Mihiel salient, and throughout the Argonne sector, cost the limbs of many of our bravest men. It is probable that quite a few of these war cripples will find their way into the music industry. Certainly these men need not feel discouraged, for the study of the lives of many cripples shows that success has often been attained because of and not in spite of a physical defection. System Magazine recently carried a two-page story showing the pictures of a number of men who have won a large measure of success even though physically imperfect. The pictures included that of M. J. Dowling, a man without either hands or feet, who became president of the Olivia State Bank of Olivia, Minn.; David B. Stansbury, a cripple since boyhood, who is one of Chicago's leading lawyers; Thos. D. Schall, who, though blind, is a representative in Congress from Minnesota; Otto J. Schwartz, who has lost both legs, but is a division correspondent for Sears, Roebuck & Co.; Henry Smith, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who is paralyzed from his hips down, but who is a very successful farmer; John J. Arnold, a man who lost both his feet, but who has become vice-president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and W. J. Roth, who at the age of fourteen lost his left arm, but at the age of thirty-two has attained the position of sales manager of the Stenotype Co. From the records of such men our war heroes should derive a powerful inspiration.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT

Dealers' Price of WALL-KANE steel needles is reduced to 7½c per package of 50; the retail price remaining at 15c.

WARNING

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles. Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary steel needles, retails for 15c, cost the dealer 7½c; 8c in the Far West. JOBBING TERRITORIES OPEN

WALL-KANE STEEL NEEDLES (made in America, of American steel, and by American workmen) are the standard trade-marked needles of the phonograph industry. Like any article that is a proven success, WALL-KANE STEEL NEEDLES are being imitated.

The genuine WALL-KANE NEEDLES are manufactured by intricate, chemical processes, and possess the quality of playing ten records perfectly, the last one as well at the first. They also improve the wearing qualities of the record.

Make this test to convince yourself of the superiority of WALL-KANE STEEL NEEDLES and to protect your customers and yourself from the damage caused by the use of imitations.

Take two standard disc records of the same selection, play one ten times with the same WALL-KANE loud needle, play the other record, the same selection, ten times, but with ten new, full-tone steel needles.

You will find that the record played ten times with the same WALL-KANE needle will sound clearer, will have less surface noise, and that under the magnifying glass the grooves of the record played ten times with the ten steel needles will seem to be more disturbed.

HOLD OLD-FASHIONED XMAS PARTY

New York Talking Machine Co. Have Tree and Gifts for Employes—A Beautiful Sentiment

In accordance with its usual custom the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesalers of this city, gave its employes an old-fashioned Christmas party on Christmas Eve, a mammoth Christmas tree being the center of attraction. This year's celebration was particularly enjoyable in view of the fact that many of the company's former employes, who have been serving their country during the past year, are expected back in the very near future.

There was the usual interchange of gifts among the employes, and in addition there were semi-humorous gifts on the Christmas tree, which were pertinent to the fads and fancies of the recipients. The company entered heartily into the spirit of the occasion, and every employe received a substantial bonus check as a Christmas gift, as a mark of the company's appreciation of their untiring efforts and loyalty during the past year.

This Christmas party served to strengthen the bond of good-fellowship and personal friendship which has long been an outstanding feature of the New York Talking Machine Co.'s organization, and which has undoubtedly been an important factor in the success achieved by this company.

SOLOIST AT ORGAN RECITAL

At one of the organ recitals given recently by John Knowles Kendall in College Chapel, Tulsa, Okla., he lightened a very interesting program by including an Edison Re-Creation of the "Ave Maria" adopted from the "Cavalleria Rusticana Intermezzo," sung by Frieda Hempel, which he accompanied on the organ. Needless to say the innovation made quite a hit, particularly as Miss Hempel is well known in the Southwest, having made a tour last November which opened in Oklahoma.

SOME MORE STRIKING PUBLICITY

Elaborate Feist Advertising Campaign on Featured Numbers Planned for Near Future—Will Include Special Announcements in the Saturday Evening Post and Other Publications

On Sunday, January 19, Leo Feist, Inc., will have a full-page advertisement in the Rotogravure Section of the New York Tribune featuring three songs from their catalog. In addition they will also carry a full-page announcement in the Saturday Evening Post, issue of January 18.

"The Navy Took Them Over and the Navy Will Bring Them Back," "Mother, Here's Your Boy" and "In the Land of Beginning Again" are the songs receiving this publicity, and each of them has already been made popular on the vaudeville stage and other places of entertainment.

In all the announcements special prominence is given to the fact that not only can these songs be had at all sheet music stores, but they can be procured for the player-piano and talking machine. This is of special interest to all talking machine dealers. During the year just past Leo Feist, Inc., have carried out some enormous advertising campaigns and with the above announcement it appears they are to carry publicity in behalf of their songs for the year 1919 on an even larger scale. As a matter of fact, national advertising to help sell songs in sheet music, talking machine records and player roll form has been a feature each season for a number of years past with that house, and there is no doubt that at the present time when they make an announcement to the trade of a forthcoming campaign all the dealers will co-operate. This not only includes sheet music dealers, but also those handling talking machine records and player rolls.

HENRY BURR A MUSIC PUBLISHER

Well-Known Talking Machine Artist Opens Studio in New York—Lieutenant Gitz-Rice Associated With the Company

The talking machine trade will be interested to know that Henry Burr, whose name is well known to millions of record users throughout the country, has organized the Henry Burr Music Corp., with offices at 1604 Broadway, New York. Associated with Mr. Burr is Lieutenant Gitz-Rice, the very successful song writer, who has recently been responsible for "Keep Your Head Down, Fritzie Boy," and other hits. Others well known in the music world will also be connected with the company, which will confine itself to the publication of music of the better sort.

Harry Friedburg has resigned from the People's Furniture Co., Clarksburg, W. Va., and opened a new talking machine store in that city under the name of the Columbia Music Co., located in the new Clifford Building on Fourth street.

SOLVING THE WAR LABOR PROBLEM

One Talking Machine Concern Drafted Chinamen and Aged Women to Fill the Gaps in Its Plant With Considerable Success

Now that the war is over, and some of the problems being eliminated, the public learns to what extremes manufacturers were driven in order to secure labor and maintain production. One talking machine manufacturer located in New York, despairing of getting Americans or Europeans, or even negroes, to work in the record department, went down to the Chinatown district of New York and managed by the offer of high wages to secure the services of a score or more Chinese. Incidentally, they proved very satisfactory workmen. Although lacking initiative, they proved wonderful imitators and every motion made by their instructor was followed exactly in the work. If his hand slipped accidentally, or some other false motion was made, the Chinaman performed the operation in exactly the same way.

Not only were the services of Chinamen utilized in this particular factory, but being unable to get sufficient female labor young enough to be termed girls, to work in certain departments, the manager turned to middle-aged, and even old, but active women, to fill the gaps, and says he is inclined to cater somewhat to that class in the future, inasmuch as they appeared much more satisfied with their jobs than the younger element, were steadier, and not at all inclined to skylark and waste time. Also there was sufficient light work around the factory that they could handle easily and comfortably.

The Star Trading Co., New York, has been incorporated with capital stock of $20,000 to deal in furniture, pianos and player-pianos, talking machines, etc. The incorporators are S. Gevirtzman, J. S. Ritter and S. Lipshitz.

MOST PROSPEROUS SEASON

Talking Machine Trade Overcomes in Good Shape the Handicaps of Poor Transportation, Scarcity of Stock and Epidemic of Influenza

LOS ANGELES, CAL., January 5.—In spite of all kinds of handicaps—transportation troubles, influenza epidemic, shortage of goods, etc., Los Angeles has just passed through the most prosperous holiday season in the talking machine business since the introduction of that commodity on the Coast. After the last mad scramble on Christmas Eve most of the music stores looked like they were just ending a very successful special sale and the late comers got very poor "pickings" in both records and machines. This was a great year also for the new type universal machines as many persons purchased them when unable to obtain one of the older makes. The Victor dealers were the hardest hit, and to-day few dealers have anything in stock with the exception of styles IV, VI, XVI and XVII.

The Columbia dealers were in nearly as bad a fix and only some of the most expensive models were in stock after Christmas.

The best sellers in the Edison Disc were the models 150 and 250, and many dealers ran short in those two designs.

Very few machines were "loaned" this year, and in many instances people were glad to take the model they wanted in any finish.

The record business this season was tremendous, and all of the stores were crowded for days with record buyers, and in many of the larger places it was necessary to establish a waiting list for the record booths.

The Retail Talking Machine Dealers' Association has not had a meeting since October. However, one is scheduled for this month, at which several important subjects will be discussed and adjusted. The membership now includes practically all of the dealers in the city.

Harold Jackson, manager of the talking machine department for the Wiley B. Allen Co., has been very ill with the "flu," but is now on the road to recovery. Mr. Jackson unfortunately was taken sick just before Christmas, but this did not prevent the company from having the biggest holiday business in the history of the house.

Sibley G. Pease, who has been identified with the talking machine business for the last fifteen years, is leaving it to go into the automobile line.

During his many years of service in this city Mr. Pease has been connected with the Columbia Co., the Fitzgerald Music Co., the Bartlett Music Co., the Talking Machine Co., Pease & Foote Talking Machine Co., Holmes Music Co. and the Andrews Talking Machine Co., which latter company he is leaving to enter the new field. Mr. Pease, beside being an experienced talking machine salesman, is also an accomplished musician, having for many years held the position of organist in one of the prominent Los Angeles churches. Mr. Pease is joining the sales staff of Washburn Bros., South Pasadena—a Los Angeles suburb—and will have charge of the accessory department for them.

Herman Beck, manager for the George J. Birkel Music Co., says his department looks like a Kansas cornfield after a grasshopper invasion and declares he has only two Victrolas left—a IV and XXII. Mr. Beck says their December business was wonderful and easily broke all previous records.

The Southern California Music Co. had a most prosperous business during December, and like all of the other dealers ran out of many models in all of the different makes they handle. W. H. Richardson, manager for the talking machine department, says they sold everything in Victrolas from the style VI to XVII.

SELF-SERVICE RECORD CABINET

Adopted by Many Prominent Dealers Is a Great Trade Stimulator and Worth Knowing

One of the most novel methods introduced lately by the Victor retailer is the "Self-Service Record Cabinet," which has been adopted by many prominent dealers. Shortage of clerks first led to its inception, though like many other schemes devised to meet wartime conditions it will undoubtedly become a fixture in those departments where it is now being used, says The Voice of the Victor.

The accompanying illustration shows the "Self-Service Cabinet" of the Talking Machine Shop, of Chicago, and will serve as a good model for all dealers who may care to install such a cabinet in their store. It is a one-tier record rack, much on the order of those used in record stockrooms, in each compartment of which the dealer places four or five records of the same selection. A small card is tacked over each compartment or bin, on which is printed the catalog number of the selection contained on the records in that bin and the title of the selection. The cabinet should be placed on a counter—as shown in the illustration—or on a table, so that the customer will not be obliged to stoop when selecting records from it.

The customer who wishes to avail himself of the privilege can select his own records from the cabinet, take them into an unoccupied demonstrating-room and play them over without any interference whatsoever. He then has merely to hand his selection of records to the cashier, who wraps them up and takes his money. Thus they are not only "self-service" but also "quick service" record cabinets.

The "Self-Service Cabinet" is not intended to—nor will it ever—do away with the individual service of the record salesman, as there are many people who rely on the salesman's suggestions entirely in selecting new records. The Talking Machine Shop has found it a great help, especially during a rush, and contemplates adding another tier to the cabinet shown in the accompanying illustration. So far this company has only featured quick sellers and records of the current issue in the "Self-Service Cabinet," though undoubtedly some of the less familiar records will be added as soon as customers become accustomed to the new service.

In installing such a cabinet care should be taken to place it in the front part of the store and near the demonstrating-rooms. It is also of imperative importance that you have some sort of sign—as the one used by the Talking Machine Shop—to acquaint your customers with the fact that the service is only meant to supplement your regular individual service and that the records contained in the cabinet are only a few of the many Victor records in your stock.

Otherwise, a great many people, especially those who enter your store for the first time, will get the impression that you employ no clerks to wait on customers and that the records contained in the cabinet represent your entire stock. For the purpose of explaining away these very natural conclusions it would be well to mention in all your advertisements that the new "Self-Service Cabinet" is only an auxiliary help and that your clerks will continue to give their individual attention to all who wish them to do so. It is important to emphasize this viewpoint.

HOLIDAY REMINDERS APPRECIATED

The New York Talking Machine Co., New York, Victor wholesaler, has just forwarded to its friends in the trade an artistic Christmas gift in the form of a combination paper cutter and a pen knife. As this gift embodies attractiveness and practicability, it will undoubtedly receive a hearty welcome from the trade, and the New York Talking Machine Co. has already received many letters of appreciation from the recipients of this Christmas token. It may be mentioned incidentally that this company also forwarded to its dealers handsome 1919 calendars, presenting oil painting reproductions of General John J. Pershing, Marshal Foch and Marshal Joffre.

To JOBBERS, RETAILERS and SALESMEN of "HILL and DALE" RECORDS

We have a brand new attachment which goes on the Victor sound box, and remains there permanently, which a child can attach and operate, and which when used makes the Victor a universal machine, enabling it to play all records with equal beauty of reproduction without removing or turning the sound box—thus making

Every Victor User a Potential Customer of Your Records

We are preparing to manufacture this attachment in quantities and would be glad to hear from any jobber, retailer or salesman who feel they would like to handle it.

Problems of Reconstruction Period Now Demanding Attention—Demand for Heavy Import Duties to Protect Native Manufacturers—Some Interesting Opinions—A Genuine Battle Record Produced—Electioneering Records Feature of Recent Campaign—Output of Popular Records to Be Doubled—What the New Record Lists Offer—Death of Wm. C. Gaisberg, Chief Recorder of Gramophone Co., Ltd.

LONDON, E. C., ENGLAND, December 31.—In retrospect the past year presents a vista as materially remarkable in itself as in its reflection of the social and commercial development that is, we firmly believe, to progressively crystallize during this and the years ahead. We pay sorrowful tribute in memory of the thousands of brave lives sacrificed on the altar of Prussian criminality, and we look back to the spring and the early summer days with mixed feelings. Though we knew it not, even in those dark days the Herald of Peace was already on the wing to tell us ere long that the valorous arms of civilization would be triumphant. It is a great and glorious result. Hand in hand with the coming of peace is the nation's determination to repair the ravages of war and reconstruct socially and commercially along lines that will make for progress in all walks of life based upon the lessons which Armageddon has taught. It is, of course, not an easy matter; there are many industrial problems to solve, some being of a political aspect which exert a particular bearing upon such industries as the musical instrument trade which, in pre-war times, was dominated by foreign activities. The question of free trade versus tariffs has yet to be decided. As a temporary war measure imports of gramophone goods, for instance, carry a tariff of 33½ per cent., but this cannot be accepted as any criterion of future official action. The least that can be expected, however, is that the Government will protect our industry and others from the threatened dumping of German and Austrian goods on the English and Colonial markets. Any attempt of this nature will very likely be done under the guise of and through neutral manufacturers—Switzerland and Holland, for instance. That is what we have to guard against. It has already been mooted in official quarters that the Government is alive to such a possibility and that suitable steps may early be taken to counteract it. There is an urgent call for legislation other than, and in addition to, the maintenance of the present import duty, as it is thought that the latter alone will not effectually prevent a rush to this market of German manufacturers anxious to unload their wartime accumulation of gramophones and parts, etc., at practically cost prices to secure a turnover. This big question is receiving the attention it deserves at the hands of our trade association and certain proposals will no doubt be laid before the Board of Trade. To inspire the necessary confidence among the dealers, especially those who have decided not to handle again goods of Teutonic origin, we think it a matter of public interest that the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers should at once make known whether all its members are prepared to undertake not to directly or indirectly import German goods again. We are aware that the association petitioned for an embargo on imports of musical instruments from enemy countries for a period of five years after the war, and it is at this stage important to know if all the members individually subscribed or had the opportunity to declare allegiance thereto. We hope and believe it is so, as unity in this direction must exert a big influence not only with the dealer, but with prospective British manufacturers of gramophone goods.

Important Opinion on After-War Problems

The following instructive views on the present and future conditions of the talking machine trade, contributed by key men of the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers, are of world-wide interest:

M. E. Ricketts, president, writes: With the conclusion of the armistice it is well to keep in mind that the mere signing of this important document does not mean brushing away all the irksome regulations that it has been the duty of the Government to impose upon the industry, and, although the majority of metals have been made free to purchase, it is only if one can get them. The industry is in the fortunate position of still being able to issue priority certificates, and in this case has received permission through the rationing authority to double the previous ration, with the exception of steel wire, and this item is being gone into by the Ministry to see what relief can be given to the industry.

With regard to timber, this is a very difficult matter, as the Government requirements are likely to be as heavy for the next two years as they have been in the past, owing to the large number of schemes under the reconstruction plan. I believe that timber will be rationed for years to come yet, and suggest for the consideration of the industry that in every possible case, where there is a great shortage of a particular timber, substitutes should be experimented with as there is, naturally, a greater freedom in home-grown timber than in imported varieties.

The governing feature of the whole question of reconstruction is that of shipping, and, as stated by Sir Chiozza Money in the House of Commons, our shipping will not be completely rebuilt for five years. Too rosy a view must not be taken as to the immediate possibilities of an enormous resumption of manufacture, but this, I believe, will all be in the best interests of the industry, insomuch as every house and every country in the world will only be able to advance in the same ratio and, therefore, it will give more time to the consolidation of the gains made during the next twelve months.

I do suggest as watchwords to the industry that we should strive for one thing, and always keep it firmly in front of us—to make such good goods at such a price that competition from any part of the world will fail to stop us from attaining the foremost place in commerce. It must be remembered that in the fierce fight for trade that is now starting there will be no room for sentiment, and people will not buy goods because they are British alone; they must not only be British, they must be the best.

Frank Samuel, vice-president, writes: It is well to consider in so far as is possible the effect which a gradual return to peace conditions is likely to have upon the various branches of our industry. There appears to be in certain circles a lack of imagination and a desire to minimize the difficulties which our industries will have to continue to overcome before normal peace conditions once again obtain.

Little doubt exists that a certain measure of Government control of industry will be essential for some time to come, and for this reason alone the activities of the association must continue to watch over and protect the interests of the trade in the matter of the allocation and supply of raw materials and, where necessary, the obtaining of import permits.

It may possibly not be realized to the full extent that this association is prepared to do everything which lies in its power to assist its members in creating and fostering any branch of manufacture previously carried on in enemy countries. Those of our members who may have schemes for development in hand are particularly requested to place themselves in touch with the secretary with a view to obtaining the backing and support of the association's organization. In many cases representations made to Government departments relative to concrete schemes for the development of our industry within the Empire are bound to have beneficial results, but the association cannot act unless members will state their views fully.

Whilst wishing to avoid any question of political controversy, the question of tariffs is one which before many months have passed will have to be considered with very great care, for upon the decisions come to upon this all important question the future development of our industries will largely depend.

There can be no doubt that in the future the Government intends to consult industries through their representative associations before taking steps vitally affecting the interests of the trades concerned. In this sense your association will in the near future have placed upon it the onerous responsibility of expressing the views of the industry upon the all-important matters above referred to.

To give your committee the fullest opportunity of acting upon every occasion in a manner best calculated to foster and develop the gramophone and musical instrument trade in this country, it is to be devoutly hoped that members, realizing to the full the opportunities and responsibilities which devolve upon them, will not be backward in freely expressing their views and aspirations to the association, formed and carried on for their benefit and that of the industry in general.

Louis Sterling writes: The present is, I think, an opportune moment to refer to the conditions that will immediately follow the conclusion of peace. While the impression may not be general that manufacturing and selling conditions will automatically become "easy" it does exist, and to a wider extent there is an optimism that misleads many into thinking that our affairs will revert to normal in a comparatively short time.

This false idea of an early resumption of anything approximately to pre-war conditions may easily lead to the abandonment—perhaps unconsciously—of the rigorous economies and other wartime measures at present observed, and such abandonment is the subject of this warning.

For some time (how long it is impossible to estimate) after the signing of peace, our trade will be faced with the identical problems that have confronted us during the four years of war; there may even be times when they become more acute.

Shipping facilities will be restricted as surely as they are to-day. Internal production and distribution will be as difficult as now. The labor problem is an intricate one, and finding individual solutions to it will not tend to lighten the general trade situation in the process.

So far from being the pessimist these reflections may suggest I view the future with confidence, but feel the need for sounding a warning lest any relaxation of individual or collective efforts to "carry on" may result from the impression that with peace will at once come plenty. We must make up our minds to continue without anticipating for some little time any lessened stringency of our present "rationed" existence.

A Real Blood and Iron War Record

A Bismarckian touch surrounds the issue of a real battle record by the "His Master's Voice" Co. All sorts of unique things and noises have at times been "impressed" for the purpose of imitation, but there is no fake about this war disc; it is an actual record made on the battlefield of the R. G. A. gas shell bombardment of the Huns just prior to the British capture of Lille. The report of the guns, the screaming and whistling of the shells as they winged their way through space towards the German lines, is all terribly and faithfully real. It is the most marvelous piece of recording even accomplished. The profits derived from the sale of this war disc are to be devoted to merciful purposes—the King's Fund for the Disabled.

A Musical Peace Xmas Celebration

The peace Xmas at home has been a musical one if the rush for records is any criterion. Determined purchasers packed the shops. The record supply held out well, except in the more recently popular airs redolent of the spirit of this Xmas tide. Machines were at a premium, and as was foreseen most dealers keenly felt the great shortage of supplies. H. M. V. agents made good use of the fine series of publicity literature, window pictures, etc., issued by this company to concentrate attention upon their great range of dance and other suitable music for Xmas enjoyment. There was a remarkable absence of advertising of the usual carol and sacred selections.

British Ministers Make Electioneering Records

The Gramophone Co. announce the issue of four special records by Winston Churchill, Walter H. Long, George H. Roberts and J. R. Clynes. The records carry speeches by these Rt. Honorable gentlemen to the British nation. We have not heard the records and cannot therefore speak as to their merit, but in any case it may be anticipated that such historical mementos of the Parliamentary election will be much sought after.

Trade With Holland Resumed

Export trade can now be resumed with Holland under license. Applications will be considered by the War Trade Department.

Records Made of Rubbish From Dust Bins

The above interesting if somewhat misleading statement figures in the propaganda publicity of the Salvage Exhibition authorities. With "there is no such thing as rubbish" as a kind of slogan, the exhibition at the Savoy Hotel, London, was held to demonstrate the many useful things that may be made from rubbish salvaged from our dust bins. As an example, among other articles on show, were some gramophone records made from waste cotton clippings. It, of course, takes more than that to make a record, and my readers will doubtless know that the waste in question is merely a substitute for the cotton flock ordinarily used for "binding" the record material. Instructive work, nevertheless!

Output of "Popular" Records to Be Doubled

With the suspension of hostilities—the virtual termination of the war—British gramophone and record manufacturers are on the move. Owing to the demand being so much ahead of supply there has not been overmuch time for the development of plans, but now that the boys are returning and official restrictions are being gradually lifted, things are expected to progress quickly.

The Sound Recording Co., who are makers of the "Popular" brand of records, have enterprisingly committed themselves to a big expansion. In conversation with the manager I learn that the whole record-pressing plant is being duplicated at the factory and will be in running order about the middle of February. This development, it is hoped, will enable the company to successfully grapple with the enormously increasing demand for Popular records from buyers all over the world. The recording department has fortunately been kept running full steam ahead, and there will be scores of new up-to-date titles, including a budget of new "Victory" marches, ready within the near future. Welcome news, indeed!

The World Covers the Universe

A letter received from the Sound Recording Co., Ltd., this city, pays unsolicited tribute to the value of advertising expenditure in The Talking Machine World. Under date of December 7 Mr. Chapman, the general manager of the company, writes in part as follows: "We have pleasure in advising you . . . that we can now renew our advertisement in your paper. It was with regret that we had to stop our advertisement for October, November and December, but we deemed it advisable, as we were being snowed under with orders from every quarter. . . . We have actually had to shut down orders for hundreds of thousands of records during these last few months, as it was utterly impossible to accept business from new houses. It need hardly be said that it has always been the endeavor of the proprietors to create for The World a cosmopolitan news and advertisement service that represents a real value to its readers. We believe we have succeeded. Our subscribers are numbered in thousands over every part of the world, and if ever there was a time when British manufacturers should appeal to them, with every prospect of excellent results, it is without qualification NOW!

Is the Luxury Tax Abandoned?

Owing to a general impression that this measure has been officially abandoned the Gramophone Association has circulated the trade and profession urging that there shall be no relaxation of effort on this important question.

The "Winner" Victory Records

As was to be expected under the happy circumstances, the different record companies are vying with each other in friendly competition by the issue of records of a triumphantly martial flavor, not forgetting the several airs which have obtained popularity with the joyous crowds of merrymakers. In this type of issue the Winner Co. is particularly strong this month. A special band number is 3277, bearing a potpourri of standard songs of the "Home, Sweet Home" class, military marches and national an-

December, 1918

We know that a great number of our Oversea friends are Subscribers to this Journal, we are therefore using this space to tender everyone our very best thanks for the courteous consideration which has been given us during the last few months in regard to some unavoidable delay in clearing our Shipments.

The coming Year 1919 now gives great promise of a quick return to something approaching normal labour conditions and Supplies of Raw materials, together with better facilities for ocean Transit and reduced Insurance premiums. We may say that the phenomenal growth demand for our Products, especially the "POPULAR" brand of RECORDS, has previously taxed the factory to its fullest capacity, but the Pressing Plant has been duplicated, and we hope same will be in running order within the next few weeks; we therefore expect to be efficiently equipped to handle and promptly ship all Cabled or mailed orders reaching us during the coming Year 1919, and give our friends lower quotations than those at present ruling.

them, with bell effects. It is a fine record. "The Dawn of Victory," records Nos. 3271 and 3272, also carries a medley of well-known items suitable to the occasion, and 3276 is a fox-trot record of "For Me and My Gal" and "Omar Khayyam." All these fine instrumental issues are rendered by the Band of H. M. Irish Guards, exclusive to Winner's. Another special issue is propaganda record No. 3273, "The Likes of They," sung by Charles Tree. This is dedicated to J. Havelock Wilson, M.P., and president of the Sailors' and Firemen's Union. The words of the song echo the union's threat not to unload or handle any German ships for a number of years. With each record a printed copy of the complete song is given. On the reverse side is coupled "Hats Off to the Stoker," also sung by Mr. Tree. It is certainly a good record, both titles being of the vigorous order, stirringly rendered by a baritone of great repute.

Restoration of German Trade After the War

The Plauen (Germany) Chamber of Commerce, which is largely interested in export trade, has made a number of suggestions for the re-establishment of German trade following the war. It is suggested that German Chambers of Commerce in foreign countries should be instituted and that they should be modeled on the English plan, but avoiding any impression that they are Government led. It is further proposed that banks should be set up to form a network over each foreign country, with a central establishment, and branches in all important towns. Further, that a commercial periodical should be commenced in the interests of German trade. Finally, it is also urged, an export directory should be forthwith prepared, and that the cinematograph should be used as an important agency of propaganda.

The Gramophone Association has strongly urged its members to exercise every possible endeavor and every unit of influence to counteract this insidious scheme.

Patriotic and Peacetime Issues on Zonophone

The British Zonophone Co. announces its intention to shortly issue a special grand list of records along the lines suggested by the above caption. I mention this matter in advance because the list will have been issued by the time this note is published, and because of the fact that from all I hear it is going to be the finest program of such titles ever issued by this up-to-date firm. And that is saying a lot when one considers the uniformly high quality and value of Zonos.

Meantime, attention is drawn to the issue of a varied list of marches, popular melodies and operatic overtures by the Black Diamond Band, which, by the way, is exclusive to Zonophones. The company boldly claims that this is the finest recording band in the world. There is certainly much in the band's own view in substitution, for its efforts reflect a uniformly high quality of rendition, no matter how varied and intricate the music may be. Evidence thereof in abundance is found in their brilliant contributions to the list in question, which comprises such marches as, for instance, "Sambre et Meuse," "Fire and Sword," "Semper Fidelis," V. C. march, "Victory Overture," etc., many recent musical comedy or revue compositions, and operatic selections of well-known overtures—"Ballet Egyptian," "Maritana," "I Pagliacci," "A Dream of Delight," etc. All the foregoing are exclusive of the usual acceptable batch of monthly issues, representing a mine of good sales for home and oversea buyers.

An Extraordinary Coincidence!

This war has produced many strange coincidences, and it is now the turn of our industry to contribute one in which is concerned Charles Norton, the comedian.

On war service he was lying ill at a hospital in Rouen and the patients of the next ward were playing gramophone records, when suddenly Mr. Norton had the extraordinary experience of hearing his own voice in his "Regal" record, "Pros at the Races," without a soul in the building being aware that the actual performer was himself lying ill in the next ward! Mr. Norton says the record cheered him no end, for it was a distinct reminder that there was a world which still took an interest in his work. But the remarkable coincidence impressed him more than he could explain.

Recording Superintendent Dead

The mysterious after-war malady which, for want of a better diagnosis, is still known as influenza, and is so often followed by septic pneumonia, continues to take its toll of victims. To this cause is ascribed the death of Wm. C. Gaisberg, the chief recorder for the Gramophone Co., Ltd., with which firm he had been loyally connected for close upon a score of years. His was the responsibility for this highly technical duty and, by the testimony of the very high standard of quality of the "His Master's Voice" records, right well did Mr. Gaisberg accomplish his artistic work. His musical ability and great skill rendered his services of priceless worth to the company and it will keenly feel his loss, as will all who came into contact with this genial and kindly soul. His was a sunny disposition that will be sadly missed by an exceptionally wide circle of friends in the trade and the musical profession. We all mourn his passing.

New Columbia Records Well Received

It is difficult to estimate the excellent impression created upon trade and public by the new issues of Columbia records. We are given to understand, and it is confirmed by all we hear, that never has a list of new records been received with such high approval and acclamation. Indeed, apart from the unique circumstances of its production, it is a wonderful "quality" list for all tastes, and we are not surprised that so complete a welcome has been accorded it. It cannot be too highly emphasized that this list is strictly in keeping with the avowed Columbia policy of elevating the taste of the gramophone public, without neglecting the "populars." Getting Our Trade Back

Speaking recently upon the speeding up of the demobilization of the services, Dr. Addison, the Minister of Reconstructions, incidentally remarked that our policy now was to bring back freedom to the export trade. There had already been released from the export prohibition about 300 different articles. Production on a big basis was possible in the future. As regards the raw materials of which we were short, an agreed program of shipping tonnage was given out last month. In respect to many material supplies the prospect was good so far as quantities were concerned. One of the biggest dangers to the rapid restoration of industries is the very considerable measure of hesitation noticeable in placing contracts, doubtless because of the fear of a drop in prices later. If this cautiousness is exercised too freely it will tend to serious unemployment and a paralysis of effort. Apropos the export trade outlook it is interesting to know that there are under construction 2,144 ships of a total tonnage well over 6,000,000, of which over 2,000,000 tons represent the share of the British Empire.

A Pantomimic Dark Horse

What the publishers describe as their "dark horse for pantomime" is the song "Maryland," created by Miss Beatrice Lillie in "Tabs" at the Vaudeville Theatre. The success of Miss Lillie's Columbia record of that swinging song is certainly the strongest evidence of its pantomime potentialities. The trade and public should take note.

Armistice Influences Columbia Record Sales

We are informed that the special issues of "Tails Up" and "Tabs" revues on Columbia records have been a conspicuous success. The merit of the records and the enterprise they typified were in themselves sufficient to insure this, but the fact of their issue having so closely synchronized with the armistice celebrations brought thousands of the public clamoring for the newest revue records—and these were they.

Friendly Trade Rivalry

Plans are maturing for the institution of a line of steamers from San Francisco to New Zealand, etc., which may possibly result in the diversion of a certain amount of trade from the United Kingdom to America, especially having regard to the shorter sea route as compared with the United Kingdom and the consequential lower freight rate. In this connection the Gramophone Association fathers a warning to its members urging them to take steps to strengthen our commercial relations with New Zealand.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 8.—SOUND RECORD AND MEANS AND METHOD FOR PRODUCING THE SAME.—James K. Reynard, New York. Patent No. 1,283,903.

This invention relates to a new and improved sound record for phonographs and the like, and also to a new means for producing such a record. The object is to produce a record having a groove of unique and advantageous characteristics.

At the present time there are three types of grooves. One is known as the "hill and dale" type; another as the "zig-zag" type; and a third is referred to as the oblique cut or "Emerson" type.

In order to use records having the "hill and dale" cut to the best advantage, it is essential that the diaphragm of the reproducing instrument should be placed in a plane inclined obliquely to the surface of the record and extending transversely of the line or direction of the groove so that the point of the needle or stylus may freely and accurately trail over the undulations of the bottom of the groove, whereby it will impart corresponding vibrations to the diaphragm.

In order to use a groove of the "zig-zag" type to the greatest advantage it is essential that the reproducing diaphragm shall be placed in a plane substantially vertical to the plane of the record and as closely as possible in, or parallel to, the line of travel of the record groove under the stylus, whereby the opposite side walls of said groove will uniformly engage the sides of the stylus near the point to impart the proper vibrations to said diaphragm. While it is possible in some instances to place the diaphragm in a different position, in connection with its use with a groove of the "zig-zag" type, and to thereby secure sound reproduction, such reproduction is very subdued in volume and is inferior and wholly unsatisfactory from the standpoint of artistic merit.

The aforesaid oblique cut, or "Emerson" type of groove, may be said to be a compromise between the "zig-zag" and the "hill and dale" types of grooves which makes it possible to use a diaphragm placed in either of the aforesaid positions and to get approximately the same results in either position so far as sound reproduction is concerned, but at a sacrifice of quality and detail as compared with the results attained by the use of either one of the first mentioned types of grooves. It is neither a full "hill and dale" nor a full "lateral" cut.

It is the purpose of the invention to construct a cut which, instead of being a compromise between the two first mentioned types of grooves at the sacrifice of quality or detail, might be referred to as a composite of both the "hill and dale" and the "zig-zag" grooves so that a reproducing diaphragm may be used therewith in either of the aforesaid positions or in any intermediate position, with substantially equally good results and substantially as good results as are obtained by the use of a strictly "hill and dale" groove or a "lateral" groove, and without sacrifice to quality or detail in sound reproduction. As a result of this improvement a disc record may be produced which may be used to the utmost satisfaction with a phonograph equipped with a sound box especially designed and positioned for use for a record having a "hill and dale" groove, or with another phonograph equipped with a sound box especially designed and positioned for a record having a "zig-zag" groove.

REMOTE CONTROL DEVICE.—Harry T. Goss, Rutherford, N. J., assignor to the Aeolian Co., New York. Patent No. 1,283,734.

This invention relates to improvements in remote control for phonographs or other motor driven musical instruments, and more specifically for electrically actuated means for controlling the driving motors and expression devices for such instruments, such, for example, as a valve for varying the volume of sound produced by a phonograph.

Its object is to provide a simple, efficient and sensitive electro-responsive actuating mechanism for starting the driving motor of a phonograph and for actuating an expression device therefor, with a manually operable remote control device by means of which a person at any desired distance from such an instrument may start and stop the instrument and may also control the expression device therefor, at will.

SOUND CONTROLLING MACHINE.—Charles M. Heck, Raleigh, N. C. Patent No. 1,283,510.

This invention relates to sound controlling machines, designed more especially for improving tone qualities. One of the primary objects is to provide a resonance chamber of improved construction, adapted to deaden undesirable overtones, and to amplify the desirable tones, as well as novel means whereby the resonance properties of the usual megaphone or sound amplifying horn in sound producing machines may be accurately varied during the operation of the machine.

A further object of the invention is to provide means whereby the resonance properties of the sound producing machine may be automatically adjusted, varied, and controlled by means operatively associated with a record surface, to the end that the sounds as emitted to the audience will be clear and free from unnaturalness, intensified and softened as required, and otherwise more nearly approach the natural sound desired to be reproduced.

Further, the invention includes a sound amplifying device or megaphone having therewithin adjustable sound absorption surfaces, and means for adjusting said surfaces to modify the sounds.

The invention also includes means for lengthwise adjusting the area or capacity of the resonance chamber, and in carrying out this feature of the invention advantage is preferably taken of a novel construction and arrangement of doors for the outlet end of said resonance chamber.

This invention relates to a device for amplifying the tone of a phonograph, and for rendering more distinct the annunciation in phonographic reproductions, as well as for reducing the usual annoying scratching effect accompanying such reproductions.

TALKING MACHINE.—Mark Jay Samuels, New York, assignor to Lyraphone Co., of America, Washington, D. C. Patent No. 1,284,467.

One object of this invention is to provide a talking machine which will effect a true, pure and accurate reproduction of tones or sounds, without the production of the false, harsh noises so often noticed in the operation of instruments of this character.

Another object is to increase the volume of sound emitted, by constructing the entire case and the sound amplifier of sheet metal, and so connecting these parts that the case will vibrate in unison with the amplifier.

Another object is to construct the sound amplifier in such a way that it will have the requisite stability and at the same time will be readily responsive to vibrations of various frequencies. Still another object is to provide air cushions for the vibrations of the amplifier, and thus eliminate all harshness of tone.

Referring to the drawing, Figure 1 is a plan view, partly in section, of this improved talking machine, and Fig. 2 is a side elevation thereof, partly in section.

STYLUS FOR SOUND REPRODUCING MACHINES.—Angelo M. Tozzi, Bayonne, N. J. Patent No. 1,284,820.

This invention relates to a stylus for sound reproducing machines; the object being to provide a hard durable stylus whereby tone quality is preserved and whereby wide variability of tone volume may be attained.

Accordingly the invention, generally stated, comprises a stylus composed of a stem or tang merging with a tapering concavo-convex portion terminating in a track point.

Figure 1 is a side elevation of a stylus embodying the preferred form of the invention, the device being illustrated as associated with a sound box and in playing position upon a record. Fig. 2 is a transverse section through the stem or tang of the stylus, as on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1. Fig. 3 is a similar section through the concavo-convex extension, as on the line 3—3 of

Fig. 1. Figs. 4, 5 and 6 are elevations of the stylus, on a larger scale, showing it in different playing positions which vary the tone volume.

TALKING MACHINE TABLE.—George R. Cudlipp, Los Angeles, Cal. Patent No. 1,284,249.

This invention relates to talking machines in which the records used are disc shaped, which discs are mounted horizontally upon a flat rotating table when in use on the machine.

Heretofore in the use of talking machines of the above character it has been found both difficult and awkward in removing the discs from the table after the same have been in use.

It is the object of the invention to provide means for easily and quickly removing the discs from the tables of talking machines.

similar to Fig. 2, showing a disc being removed. Fig. 4 is an edge elevation, partly broken away, of Fig. 1, with a modified form of the invention.

TONE-ARM MOUNTING FOR TALKING MACHINES.—Henry H. Murray, Riverton, N. J., assignor to the Victor Talking Machine Co., Camden, N. J. Patent No. 1,285,320.

This invention has to do with a form of mounting and bracket for a sound conduit forming a part of well-known talking machine apparatus. In particular, the device is used on talking machine apparatus wherein the tone arm is positioned upon a horizontal part of the cabinet and joins a sound amplifier there below, the amplifier and tone arm being placed with regard to each other so that an unobstructed sound conduit from the free end of the tone arm to the amplifier is provided.

In the apparatus to which this invention is applied the tone arm is maintained to freely move without substantial friction about a vertical axis in a fixed horizontal plane and therefore embodies coating parts which provide for said movement and at the same time restrain the moving parts from any displacement whatever vertically or horizontally.

The movement upon the vertical axis of those parts and that of those disposed to move in the horizontal plane are accommodated without requiring any introduction of parts within the interior of the tone arm. At the same time all parts are rigidly maintained in position while in motion and as well while not in action.

An object of this invention is to provide an antifriction bearing between the tone arm and its support, and to prevent any other movement of the tone arm on its bearing other than that about a vertical axis. As the tone arm carries at one end a sound box and is not supported except at its pivoted end, a considerable eccentric thrust is imposed on a mounting of this sort, the bad effect of which is offset in a complete way by the form of bearing herein described.

It is apparent that it is desirable that the mounting must be so formed and assembled as to permit the tone arm to move from one side to another of its path with the least amount of resistance, and it has been an object of these improvements to provide means of supplying and maintaining delicate adjustment as shown hereafter. Should any material resistance be present in this sort of a mounting it will seriously disarrange the action of the sound box upon the end of the tone arm. It is well known that such sound boxes, through the needle attached thereto, are moved across a record by reason of contact with a very delicate groove containing therein the recorded sound. Any substantial resistance in the mounting will necessarily tend to seriously interfere with the delicate action of the sound box and produce an undesirable result in the reproduction, and another object of the invention is to provide a uniformly smooth uninterrupted motion of the tone arm.

A further object of the invention is to mount the tone arm firmly so that no exterior vibrations can reproduce themselves in the parts of the mounting and thus impair the quality of the reproduced sound.

In the drawings accompanying this specification, and relating thereto, Figure 1 shows a tone arm in place in the mounting. At the other end of the tone arm a sound box is represented by dotted lines in contact with a record upon a turntable in position upon a motor board or other part of a talking machine cabinet. Fig. 2 shows an enlarged detail section for the most part of the large end of the tone arm in place in the mounting. Fig. 3 is a section upon line 3—3 of Fig. 1 with the tone arm removed.

The object of this invention is to provide a sound reproducer for use upon phonographs which, in addition to cheapness and simplicity of construction, shall have its elements so arranged and combined as to adapt themselves to accurate adjustment in such a way as to take up all lost motion while at the same time insuring the maximum delicacy, sensitiveness and freedom of action in the several movable parts, and that notwithstanding ordinary imperfections of construction.

This invention relates to an improvement in driving mechanism for phonographs and particularly to improved means for bringing the record automatically into engagement with the needle when the machine is started into operation and for likewise automatically separating these elements when the machine is stopped.

This invention is in the nature of an improvement on the structure shown in application, Serial No. 124,463, filed October 9, 1916. By the present construction the use is avoided of the counter-weight shown in the previous construction and other advantages in construction and operation are obtained which will be more clearly understood by having reference to the accompanying drawings in which is illustrated the preferred embodiment of the invention.

REGARDING SOUND BOXES

The Parr Sound Box

The Parr sound box differs from the usual pivoted sound box in the following way: The edge of the body of the box is scalloped, giving it a very attractive appearance, the diaphragm is of a special composition and the needle arm is assisted in its vibrating action by means of a horseshoe magnet, fastened to the back of the sound box, with the magnetic force exerted at the end of the needle bar, opposite the thumb screw.

The Pathé Sound Box

The deep cut of the Pathé record necessitated the designing of a very heavy sound box, and in what is known to the trade as the French Pathé sound box, we have the heaviest sound box now in use. Its weight does not attract our attention so pointedly as does the size of the diaphragm which measures two and five-sixteenths of an inch in diameter and is about eleven one thousandth of an inch thick. This is only six sixteenth of an inch less than twice the diameter of the diaphragm in the Victor Exhibition sound box, so familiar to us all. The stylus arm is made in a peculiar way, and is set at an angle to the surface of the diaphragm. The sapphire stylus is held in position by means of a nut, engaging a taper thread cut on the end of the arm, which is drilled deep enough to receive the shank of the sapphire mounting. The pivot mountings of the box are much larger than usual and the pivot screws are held firmly in position by lock nuts. If it is not fitted with a universal joint, the angle of the stylus arm and the size of the pivot mountings prevent the use of this sound box on lateral cut records.

The Bliss Sound Box

It appears that the often disputed question of the relative merits of rubber tubing and flat rubber washers for use as gaskets in a sound box is conclusively settled in the way the Bliss sound box is constructed, for it does not use either.

The chemically treated silk diaphragm is stretched over a metal ring and held in position in a manner similar to the way a banjo or drumhead is made. The silk is in this way pulled taut, and is ready to receive the vibrations from the pivoted needle arm.

A REAL "JAZZ" EDISON DEALER

Newly Established Edison Dealer Meets With Amazing Success

Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., Edison jobbers at Syracuse, N. Y., report the establishment of a new Edison dealer who obtained truly amazing results. This dealer is located in a small town named Attica, N. Y. He was rather a hard man to convince, but finally placed an initial order for one each of the various models and a complete assortment of re-creations. The order was placed about the first of last November, and was received by him about the 8th. On November 18 he telephoned the jobber—long distance—and asked him to have their representative call immediately as he had sold out his complete stock of instruments. Every one sold for cash, and two of them never were taken out of the crate. This is what J. G. Brown, general sales manager of Frank E. Bolway & Son, Inc., calls a "real 'jazz' dealer."

THE MAKING OF PERSONAL RECORDS INCREASES IN FAVOR

Prominent Members of the Trade Believe That the Actual Record of the Voice Will Soon Take Its Place Alongside the Photograph in the Favor of People in the Home

According to the opinion of a man who has long played an active part in the development of the talking machine industry to its present high position, there are to be expected some moves for the enlargement of the appeal of talking machines and records along entirely new or practically new lines. One of the most interesting points of his prophecy is that within a comparatively short time the personal talking machine record will be almost as common as the high-class photograph. In other words, that in addition to preserving a physical likeness of a loved one, people of sentiment will demand, and have offered to them, the opportunity of obtaining and preserving a record of the voice—a record that in most respects would have far greater value than even the most treasured family album.

There have been in the past efforts made along the line of encouraging the making of personal records, but those concerns in a position to take up the work, so far as equipment went, have found that all their facilities were required in meeting the general demand for their products, and that the time devoted to making a personal record at a reasonable price could be devoted with far more profit to the production of a record that would prove salable on the general market.

With the broadening of the industry, however, it is the belief that the personal record will again be taken up, and with more success than in the past. To start off, this service will, of course, be only for those who can afford the luxury, for recording work is expensive, and where only a dozen or so records are to be pressed from the masters those dozen records must command a price that will cover recording expense, and likewise leave a profit. Where this work is specialized in, however, it is believed that a sufficient demand could be created, especially among the wealthier people in the larger cities, to put the plan on a paying basis.

The talking machine man in question even goes so far in his belief as to hold that if the plan was properly exploited, and inquiries carefully classified and grouped, the recording experts with their apparatus can make a very profitable tour of the country, stopping for necessary periods in the various cities and finishing their work of producing the final records upon their return to the laboratories. It is an interesting thought regardless of its ultimate practical value.

TO HANDLE EXPORT BUSINESS

Emerson International, Inc., Organized With C. L. Seiler as President to Develop Foreign and Domestic Trade—L. D. Rosenfield on Staff

Emerson International, Inc., was incorporated this month for the purpose of handling and developing the export business of Emerson products and to handle the International Emerson records in domestic markets. The offices of the new company will be located at 366 Fifth avenue, New York.

The officers of Emerson International, Inc., are C. L. Seiler, president; Robert Clifford, secretary, and Benj. E. Smythe, treasurer. Mr. Seiler was previously associated with the Emerson Phonograph Co., and is well known in talking machine circles. Mr. Clifford was formerly connected with several prominent Chicago houses in a sales executive capacity. Mr. Smythe is first vice-president of the Scandinavian Trust Co., New York.

Louis D. Rosenfield, formerly manager of the Emerson Phonograph Co.'s international record department, and a recognized authority in this branch of the industry, has joined this new company and will be in charge of the merchandising end of the business. He will also be responsible for the production of the company's catalog, and he states his detailed plans will be announced in the near future.

THE POLICY TO WHICH TO ADHERE

One price! The fixed, uniform, fair price is the one strong protection of the small dealer against his big competitors who can afford to slaughter prices to control trade. Price-cutting in its essence is in restraint of trade. Let Congress make note of this fact.

BUSINESS DEPENDS LARGELY UPON YOUR SALES EFFORTS

Wm. Maxwell, Vice-President of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Tells How Dealers Can Be Patriotic and Also Expand Their Business by Helping Uncle Sam's Returning Soldiers Become Salesmen

"Under the stimulus of the war there was practically no sacrifice which we were unwilling to make. Patriotic fervor ran high, and, while there were a few human cooties who profiteered, they were an almost inappreciable minority. Taken in the aggregate, our wartime patriotism was practically above reproach, but a lot of us seem to feel that the necessity for patriotism ceased on the day the armistice was signed. The soldiers quit fighting that day and the work of transition from war to peace began. The responsibility was shifted from General Pershing to you and me. What are we going to do about it?" asks Wm. Maxwell, vice-president of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., in a recent statement.

"During the war your business and my business were not regarded as very important. You and I, however patriotic we may have been and no matter how much money we invested in bonds or gave to the Red Cross, probably did not contribute a great deal to the winning of the war. Certainly our respective contributions were relatively insignificant when we are compared with the boys who wore the uniform.

"Those boys are now coming back from camp and overseas. It's going to be a burning shame if a single one of them has to wait for a job. This is your chance and mine to demonstrate that our patriotism did not come to an end with the end of hostilities. Every soldier salesman we put on not only makes a job for that man, but if he turns out to be a good salesman his work makes work for others.

"Of course, you are going to take back all of your former employes who went to war—unless there are gold stars on your service flag. But that isn't enough. The man who has ten good salesmen working for him makes more profits and does more business than the man who has only one.

"This year gives every promise of being a banner year. The merchant, particularly the phonograph merchant, who doesn't put on additional salesmen to plant the seed and reap the harvest of orders that 1919 holds in store for him has probably nothing but sheer laziness as an excuse.

"Once in a while a merchant tells me that he would like to hire a salesman if he could get a good one. In other words, he is too lazy to take a little initial pains in training and directing the work of a green salesman. If farmers were too lazy to 'break' colts what would happen to agriculture? Many of you merchants consider the farmer unprogressive, but there are some merchants who are equally lacking in progressiveness.

"Uncle Sam took stunted, narrow-chested East Side boys and made fighting wildcats of them. There is practically no kind of an American or Canadian who cannot be made into a good fighting man, and there is certainly no American or Canadian, of reasonably suitable type, who cannot be made into a salesman.

"Training a salesman is one of the most profitable things a merchant can do. I know that it takes time, but it is time which you can well afford. I am sure you are now spending a portion of your time on work not one-half so important to the success of your business as the hiring and training of a few salesmen.

"Every Edison dealer has plenty of elbow room and ample population on which to work. The size of your business depends principally upon the size of your sales effort. How much sales effort will you put forth this year?"

HOMEWARD BOUND TO NEW ZEALAND

Louis M. Nathan, of Auckland, N. Z., in New York After Long Service in British Army

Among the many interesting visitors to the city the past few weeks was Louis M. Nathan, of the firm of Arthur H. Nathan, Ltd., Auckland, New Zealand, who handles the Grafonola and Dictaphone lines through the London office of the Columbia Co. He was en route to San Francisco after spending two years in the British Army, and naturally had many interesting experiences during his long and distinguished service. He stated that during the past year he had received splendid reports through New Zealand regarding the business outlook, and is now ready to enter a campaign for new achievements in the Antipodes.

TALKER LURES WILD DUCKS

Oregon Attorney Adopts a Modern Form of Decoy With Much Success

PORTLAND, ORE., February 3.—Luring wild ducks with a phonograph brought Ben Woolner, former Oakland City attorney, the legal limit in 15 minutes on the marshes of California. Woolner has a dictagraph in his office. He procured a duck and let it squawk into the transmitter, making a record of its sounds. Then, with a shotgun, the machine and some friends for witnesses, he set out for the marshes. The machine was placed in position and the "duck" record was put on. As soon as the squawks began to issue forth wild game mobilized from all points of the compass. Woolner shot his limit and came home. He has called his device the "Duckwerfer." It has a range of 1,000 yards.

Why the Self-Service Idea in Record Selling Tends to Increase the Volume of Business

One development of the recent abnormal holiday demand for talking machines and records, coupled with the scarcity of help in most stores, has been the adoption of the self-service idea in record selling, and we find that the idea worked out in many stores in a variety of ways. In fact, one concern has gone so far as to patent a special self-service system for records.

Whether the dealer takes one of the established systems or evolves a plan of his own, there would seem to be much to recommend a general adoption of the self-service plan, for normal times as well as during the holiday rush, not alone as a matter of economy, but as a means for enabling customers to make selections at their leisure and get in touch with slow-moving records that apparently would be hidden from them in the regular record racks.

There are many people right now who select their new records at random from the catalogs or monthly supplements who would make larger purchases had they the opportunity of looking over and testing a selection of records at their leisure, and without interference. These same people feel that if they take up a salesman's time by inspecting or trying out a dozen records they are under obligations to make some purchase whether or not they are particularly stuck on the selection offered. With forty or fifty records prominently displayed in the rack the customer can look them over comfortably and perhaps find several records among the lot which would prove most desirable to him, but of which he was in ignorance, owing to the fact that he had overlooked them in the rack and nobody had called his attention to their existence.

The self-service system, however, should not replace the catalog or supplant general selling plans, but rather should supplement the system. Those who purchase their records from the printed title or through the appeal of the artist's name should be encouraged to continue that practice and should at the same time be encouraged to spend a few moments at the self-service rack, with a view to finding something therein that is desirable.

On the rack, however, in normal times there should be found not only the popular hits of the day, or the records that are big sellers, but records of lesser fame, records that in the ordinary course of events must be actually sold to the customer. There are many concert songs of the better class and folk songs and many instrumental numbers of great musical value that are much appreciated by those of high musical culture which remain in the record racks because the customer does not ask for them, and the sales person does not take the trouble to bring them into view.

A talking machine dealer might learn a lesson from the methods pursued in the ordinary book store, where there are, of course, clerks to wait upon those in search of a special volume, but where the practice is to keep away from the customer and let him browse among the various volumes until he indicates that he has come across something he desires to inquire about, or purchase. After one or two books are purchased it will be found almost invariably that the sales person is inclined to offer other books of the same general character, because he has learned the customer's trend of thought and works along the line of satisfying that trend. When the patron of the self-service record system finds one or two records that appeal to him, then it is up to the salesman to make his approach and endeavor to interest the customer in other records of the same general character that may not happen to be displayed.

The self-service system does not take the place of salesmanship. It simply supplements it. There is just as much opportunity for the salesman to take the customer into a booth and try over a dozen records for him as there ever was, but even the most versatile or active salesman cannot run the whole gamut of record selections in the limited time he can allot to one customer, that is, if the store is at all busy. He can, however, sell to the limit in the booth and then while the customer is waiting for change perhaps—and making change can be delayed for a period in an emergency—call attention to a group of records on display. If every customer can be induced to look over those records and select at least one, then the service is a mighty profitable inducement, for the cost of installation is comparatively small, and the cost of maintenance, that of time, which might otherwise be wasted.

DELIVERY VAN AD BRINGS TRADE

E. E. Koontz, Moundsville, W. Va., Has Traced Over One Hundred Machine Sales to Advertising Matter Appearing on His Wagon

E. E. Koontz, of 224 Jefferson avenue, Moundsville, W. Va., has found the demand for the Edison in that section increasing so rapidly that he has been compelled to put a brand-new automobile delivery van in service. The van was made to special order and bears some attractive advertising on the sides, including a picture of Edison, and Mr. Koontz's address prominently displayed. Mr. Koontz declares that sales of over 100 Edison Diamond Disc phonographs have been traced directly to the advertising appearing on the company's van, which is kept constantly on the move throughout the country around Moundsville. Increase of business likewise forced Mr. Koontz to secure new quarters recently, and he now has one of the best stores in the city, the population of which is about 10,000.

RECIPE FOR GOOD HUMOR

Take twenty-four hours; mix thoroughly with the milk of human kindness, and spice of life to suit the taste; a little discretion, some common sense; knead with the hand of friendship and bake in the open hearth of love; do not allow it to cool too quickly by trouble, or become sour by affliction; serve with generous sauce and a bright smile.

Many a deckle-edged, rough-finished man has a better fibre than his evenly enameled rival. It doesn't pay to judge by appearances.

VICTOR CO. EXPLAINS REASONS FOR SHORTAGE OF STOCK

Victor Talking Machine Co. Runs Full-Page Advertisement in Leading Newspapers to Enlighten the Public as to the Reasons for the Recent Shortage of Machines and Records

Victor dealers throughout the country were distinctly gratified this month to see a full-page advertisement run by the Victor Talking Machine Co. in the leading newspapers, explaining to the public the real cause for the shortage of Victor products during the period of the war. The advertisement, of great typographical strength, and bearing a composite view of the great Victor plant at the bottom, reads:

"Don't blame the dealer for the shortage of Victor products—the Government needed us!

"To the thousands of people who have been temporarily inconvenienced through their inability to get the Victrola and Victor records they wanted; to Victor dealers everywhere who in the face of this extreme shortage stood loyally by us and steadfastly refused to offer inferior substitutes, we feel that an explanation is due for this scarcity of Victor products.

"Upon the entrance of the United States into the great world war the Victor Co. immediately decided to do its utmost in making war materials. It voluntarily offered its entire plant whole-heartedly to the Government, regardless of the fact that its regular production would be seriously curtailed, regardless of the setback which would temporarily result to the business it took years to build up, regardless of the profits which would necessarily be sacrificed.

"It would have been possible to hold off—to keep right on with our regular work and let others do war work. But the Victor Co. is a thoroughly American concern, and it does things in the big characteristic American way. It chose to help the Government to the very limit of its resources.

"The Government recognized the high state of perfection and thoroughly modern equipment of the gigantic Victor factories, and made more use of them until as much as 90 per cent. of the plant was at one time engaged in war work. If it were possible to disclose Government secrets and tell of the scientific experiments which were conducted and of the devices and products which were manufactured, the public would appreciate what a valuable help the Victor plant was to the Government in winning the war.

"Those parts of the Victor factories which continued to produce Victrolas and Victor records could not, of course, supply even a reasonable amount of Victor products to the public. And the shortage was made even more pronounced because thousands of Victrolas and still more thousands of Victor records were diverted to the use of America's fighting forces on land and sea—to entertaining and inspiring them, as well as to teaching them French and wireless telegraphy through the Victor special study courses.

"Great though the sacrifices were which the Victor Co. willingly made to help its country in its hour of need, we would not have it otherwise. And though the inability to get Victor products was exasperating to the public, we do not believe they would have had us shirk our duty. We count it an honor that we were able to serve our country. We are gratified that the Government found our factories of such value.

"And with the coming of peace we recognize the great task that devolves upon us. It is imperative that we supply as quickly as possible those people who, rather than accept inferior substitutes, decided to wait patiently until they could get the genuine Victor products they wanted. Added to this there is the increased demand that will come from new sources, for thousands of our returning heroes have learned to appreciate what the Victrola means in their daily lives. The demand upon our resources will be greater than ever, but we return to our chosen work with full confidence in our ability to meet the needs of the future.

"So while the Victor plant did its full share in helping to win the war, it is now again bending its energies to supplying the musical needs of the nation—of the whole world. From a gigantic beehive of wartime activities the Victor plant again resumes as the greatest musical industry in the entire world."

Some men climb the ladder of success. Others hold it. It's largely a matter of initiative—or the lack of it.

NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 15, 1919

WITHOUT regard for any uncertainty or hesitancy with which men in other industries may view the reconstruction period, and its problems, in the talking machine trade there has been a quick move to go ahead and to make up as rapidly as possible for the period of semi-inactivity. We find the established companies working out new and larger plans for the exploitation of their products along new lines. We find them increasing their advertising appropriation and preparing for big things both in the fields of production and distribution, in the very near future.

Of course they have a logical reason for thus putting forth every effort to make up for the past year or so. There is unquestionably an unsatisfied demand for both machines and records, a large proportion of which will exist until it is ultimately satisfied.

No less authorities than the investigators for the American Steel & Wire Co., who cover the country most thoroughly, have estimated that the existing demand for pianos alone is at least 50 per cent. in excess of available supplies. When it is considered that the price of the cheapest piano compares with what might be considered a high-priced talking machine—we do not refer to the period or special models—and when it is likewise considered that hundreds of families purchase talking machines who hesitate to purchase a piano, then the report gives reason to believe that in the talking machine field the demand is well over 100 per cent. in excess of available supplies.

This excess demand serves two purposes. First, it offers the opportunity for bringing production back to normal, or better, as soon as possible, with a certainty of finding a market for the output of the factories, and on the other hand gives the manufacturers and dealers something definite to realize on while concentrating a good proportion of effort in building for the future—stimulating a demand for the time when the present demand is satisfied.

Not only are old established companies showing great activity, but newer concerns in the field, many of whom have been practically dormant for the past two years, have shown signs of returning life, and it is safe to say that in view of existing conditions we may look for unparalleled development in all branches of the trade during the coming twelve months.

Each year for a decade or more, there have been those who have prophesied that the peak of the demand for talking machines and records had been reached, that the annual percentage of business would show a decline, and that such a large proportion of the population had been supplied with machines and records that the demand that remained, or might be stimulated, would just be sufficient to absorb a normal output of products, and make the talking machine business an average, but not a phenomenal business to be in.

Each year this prophecy has been made, and each year it has proven unfounded. With many manufacturers, wholesalers and dealers reporting that they held their own, and in some cases registering an increase for the period of the war, it will be a reckless man indeed who claims to foresee anything but a record-breaking year for the industry in 1919.

NOW is the time to take up seriously the question of organizing a permanent and national association of talking machine and talking machine supply manufacturers, for it has been proven that in time of emergency the members of the trade have been able to get together and co-operate with success. The War Service Committee, which has accomplished so much for the protection of the trade during the stress of war, might be used most effectively as a nucleus around which to build up a permanent organization. The members of the committee are representative men of the industry, and have had the experience of working together, which means much.

Having been brought together for protection during war time, it would seem inconsistent for the members of the industry to separate and travel along their several paths as in pre-war days. This period of reconstruction is bringing up many problems that the manufacturers can meet most successfully by co-operative effort. There will probably be legislation that must be watched and combated. There may possibly be some conditions in the supply field and in the export situation that will require organized consideration, or opposition.

The members of the National Association should not in any way interfere with the right of the individual to conduct his business as he sees fit, provided his efforts are within the law. The situation in the trade is such that the question of credits, terms and other matters may be handled by each company according to its own ideas, but there are many matters of such general scope and importance that every member of the trade has a legitimate interest therein, and it is for the consideration of these matters that an Association should be formed.

It has already been proven that members of the trade can be brought together in an emergency, and it should be comparatively easy to prove that they can be kept together after that emergency has passed for the purpose of presenting a united front in the field of industry. Now is the time to give the matter consideration.

It is also pertinent at this time to take up the question of the formation of local associations, preferably associations taking in dealers in all lines of machines, but if necessary confined to dealers in one make.

In practically every city or State where local associations have been formed there has resulted a general improvement in the quality of the trade in that immediate locality. This is due primarily to the fact that, owing to increasing intercourse as members of the Association, the individual merchants have managed to eliminate many evils and bad practices, and have thereby been able to do business on a better plane and for greater profit.

This would appear to be the time when a local association should prove most helpful in aiding the individual dealers in meeting the problems of the day and preparing for the future. To accomplish the result, however, the Association must be representative, must include the strong men of the trade, and must above all be an active factor. Too many organizations are simply social in character, when what is needed is an association composed of members who are ready to meet and solve business questions in a business way.

THE statement of the Victor Talking Machine Co. given to the public through full-page advertisements in the leading newspapers of the country, and setting forth facts regarding the manner in which the company handled war work, should prove of distinct benefit to Victor retailers, particularly as the caption read: "Don't Blame the Dealer For the Shortage of Victor Products. The Government Needed Us."

The patriotic spirit of the country did not die with the end of the war, and there are a host of people who will not only accept the Victor Co.'s statement at its full value, but will be moved to consider more closely the Victor product and have a more general appreciation of Victor ideals.

Conditions during the past year with the company's dealers were not in any sense the rosiest, but they for the most part appreciated the fact that the situation was an extraordinary one, and must be viewed from that angle. Through it all the majority of the dealers were unflinching in their loyalty, acting as a barrier so to speak between the public and the factory. They made no secret of their desire that the Victor Co. inform the public of the reasons for the stock shortage, and were particularly gratified when the company came forward with such a frank statement of conditions so prominently and admirably displayed throughout the country.

IN taking account of business problems of the year, and particularly of the cost of doing business, talking machine men must, of a necessity, give heed to the provisions of the new War Revenue bill which at this writing is practically in shape for the signature of the President, and prepare to meet the demands of the law when it is finally in force. The new law will place an additional financial burden on the members of the music industry—a burden not as heavy perhaps as was threatened for a time—but nevertheless sufficiently heavy to make the average business man pause and reflect seriously as how best to conduct his business in order to provide the necessary funds to meet the increased taxation without straining his business unduly. Not only must he consider the direct taxes on the talking machines and records themselves, but must likewise take due note of what the Government will demand from him in the matter of income and excess profit taxes.

The time to study the problem is not at the last moment when payments are actually due, but right now when there is the chance for a little leeway to gather together the necessary funds. The amounts involved will in most cases be heavy, and cannot be taken from the average business at a moment's notice. For those who are in doubt as to how they are to figure the tax liability under the new law, The World is in a position to offer advice which will be gladly given free of any obligation.

IN business life to-day it is being recognized more and more that service is the great essential to success. Handling the best and most satisfying products is absolutely necessary, but the best store in town must have, besides, the best sales force made up of people from the head down who never relax in their painstaking and courteous treatment of customers—in their desire to serve and help.

That is where the shoe pinches with a great many stores—the indifferent attitude of the sales force, who are not proof against wearing a frown if the prospective customer does not look like a certain buyer. The feeling, of course, is natural; it is a human weakness, but it is one that must be conquered if real success is desired.

It is in truth a great thing in the making of the best store in town to be first always with the best goods, and the latest designs, the best displays—the store where honesty and fair dealing never relax—but it must have that other great essential for its completeness to be the best store in town—an atmosphere of welcome and cheerfulness, with an unflinching attitude of attention that on its face shows pleasure and a desire to serve and help.

In the perfection and equipment of a store there are some things that can be borrowed and copied from the experience of others to the advantage of any merchant who travels and studies, but the big factors of service, good attention and courtesy must be developed in the store that is to benefit by them. And they must start with the man who undertakes to make the best store in his town—for with this fundamental policy in mind he is sure to command the support and respect of the public.

THE victories of business, as in life, are won not in the marts, nor in the fields where the decisive struggle takes place, but in the obscure and forgotten hours of preparation. Success or failure lies in the hands of the individual long before the final test comes, and this is particularly true in all lines of trade in America to-day, for the greatest test of business will come now that the war is ended. The business man who, believing in the value of his name and his product, has maintained his position before the public is now more than ever prepared to reap the reward of increased business and increased appreciation for his product. The recuperative powers of business are beyond comparison greater than in any former time. The seed sown by advertisers to-day is falling on fertile ground, and the harvest will be plentiful.

IMPORTANCE OF CREDITS

Necessity of Ever Being on the Alert in Order to Keep Business on a Healthy Basis

Good will is your most precious asset as regards those to whom you sell; credit as regards those of whom you buy and borrow. With an A1 credit there is no limit to your success. Without credit, or poor credit, and condemned to a cash-in-hand basis of dealing you'll never grow to any size. A fine credit standing is built up by years of integrity, and may be blasted by one reckless or wild transaction.

Don't dodge your creditors. That arouses suspicion. Meet them frankly and confidently. That begets faith in you. Always pay on the date you promised, or say why. Absence of check, and ominous silence, breeds suspicion of many things unfounded.

Trust sparingly. Insist that your debtors meet their obligations promptly. Be on hand to see they do. Never let an account drag. When it falls due, get the money or an explanation. Never threaten action and then fail to carry it out. Once a debtor knows he can string you he will.

The All-Records Phonograph Co., Indianapolis, Ind., has increased its capital stock from $30,000 to $60,000.

KEEPING TRACK OF FINANCES AND TALKING MACHINE STOCK

Many Systems Have Been Evolved, But That Used by the Pontiac Music Shop Is of Particular Interest to Our Readers, Because It Has Proven Its Practicability

There have been at various times numerous systems designed for keeping track of the finances and the stocks of talking machine stores. Some of these systems have been evolved by manufacturers, and covered records or machines alone. Other systems took charge of instalment accounts, and so on. In a good many cases, talking machine houses evolved their own systems of stock keeping, and have shown an inclination to keep the details in the dark, so far as it came to passing the information along to a competitor.

One system that has proven its practicability is that adopted by the Pontiac Music Shop, Pontiac, Ill. It is so arranged that there is presented on one card a complete report not only of the finances of the talking machine department, but also of the stock received, and the stock on hand. It represents a daily report that proves of inestimable value in keeping in close touch with the business. The Pontiac Music Shop realizing from experience the success of their system for daily reports, passes the information along to readers of The World that they may profit thereby.

SERGT. TRESTRAIL VISITS TORONTO

Former Advertising and Sales Manager of R. S. Williams & Sons Co. Now Serving in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army

TORONTO, ONT., January 31.—B. A. Trestrail, formerly advertising and sales manager of the R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., prominent Edison phonograph distributors of this city, and now a sergeant in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army, paid a short visit to his home here last week, while on furlough, after coming back with several hundred mental patients.

Enjoying Sergt. Trestrail's Visit

A delegation from the store met Sergeant Trestrail upon his arrival, and his friends listened with much interest to his recital of his experiences in France, he having gone abroad last May and had much work to do in hospitals close behind the line. His special work was in connection with victims of shell shock. One of Sergeant Trestrail's interesting stories concerned a "fake" aviation field with dummy planes and hangars to which the German flyers gave much attention, and which was bombed almost every night.

KEEP TRADE IN THE HOME TOWN

One often hears complaint of the large amount of shopping that is done outside of home towns. A number of these towns are allowing railroad fares with a certain amount of goods bought in their city. Perhaps local merchants' associations are overlooking a good bit in connection with this matter. With the proper advertising and activity of the local merchant it is feasible to curb this drain of business, and it can be demonstrated that people can buy as cheaply in their home town as they can in larger cities.

VEECO ELECTRIC MOTORS ARE DURABLE

In Witness Whereof:

We have received the following from a party connected with one of the large and extensively advertised talking machine manufacturers, stating, "I received the Veeeco motor and think it is a little wonder and a perfect product, etc., etc." Another writes, "We have been using this motor in our factory for the past year continually, at least four or five hours a day steady, and have never had any trouble with same." (This would equal at least ten years' work for the motor in the average home.)

The above extracts from unsolicited letters go to prove that Veeeco motors are not only satisfactory at the start, but are durable.

Doesn't that indicate durability?

The improved VEECO electric motor is designed primarily and exclusively for Talking Machines. It is smooth and noiseless in action and practically fool-proof. Standard models run on any voltage from 100-125, A. C. or D. C., without adjustment. Other models for any voltage from 6-250. Furnished mounted on 12 or 12½ inch mahogany board ready to install, or without board, all ready to mount on such board as used by the manufacturer.

With the VITRALOID turntable, supplied with the motor, it makes a complete motor unit for high class machines.

FOREIGN TRADE COUNCIL TO MEET

National Organization to Hold Annual Convention in Chicago in April—Many Important Topics Ament Export Trade to Be Handled

The National Foreign Trade Council will hold its sixth national foreign trade convention at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25 and 26, 1919. The formal call will be issued shortly by the chairman of the council, James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corp.

In the past these conventions have drawn an increasingly large number of the prominent business men of the country, representing all forms of industry, commerce, finance and transportation. To these will now be added the representatives of labor. In this way the delegates are supplied with a broad view of the business situation, with specific information to meet their individual needs, and with advice and inspiration for the coming year.

The convention in April will deal with foreign trade as a factor in stabilizing American industry—problems involving the conversion of war industries to the needs of peace; development of our foreign trade to provide employment for our soldiers, sailors and war workers, and the formation of a definite shipping policy.

The procedure of the convention will be along the lines that have proved so successful in the past: general sessions with prepared papers by the leading authorities, followed by discussion; group sessions, consisting mainly of discussion, in which the special interests of different types of business are treated; individual conferences with Government and trade representatives.

It is expected that the attendance this year will be unusually large. There is a growing realization throughout the country that foreign trade is essential to continued prosperity, and many concerns are turning to the foreign field for the first time. For these the convention offers an unusual opportunity to profit by the experience of older export firms and to learn the general policies of the country in respect to foreign trade.

J. W. M. Witt, who is running a talking machine repair shop in Albertville, Ala., reports excellent business prospects in his locality.

The Art of Attracting Customers to Your Place of Business and Holding Them :: By W. Webb

Where is your store located? Do you value it at its true worth, and what are you doing to make it appeal? There is an art in attracting customers to your place of business, and this is one of the vital matters that every dealer should keep well in mind. Your location is only of nominal value to you if the store itself does not attract. Can you not cite some instances where the fault in this respect is glaring? Can you not look about you and see wherein the error is being made that cuts down the profits on sales, and that actually curtails sales to a great degree? Stop and think just a moment, then.

Ask yourself this question, "Is my store properly located for the sale of talking machines and records? If so, does it attract so that the sales are as large as they can be made?" You are the only judge in this way, and if your opinion is at fault where will you turn for a better judge? You know what your annual sales amount to; you understand what your overhead is and what your possibilities are. Is your nearest competitor—not in distance, but in the amount of influence he has on the public—hurting you? If so, why? There is the big question mark, and you are the man who must answer it.

Now the sale of talking machines and records is not so complicated a matter that the public cannot be induced to seek the store where there is a reason for so doing. The customers are more eager to get service, stock selection, price and to enter an inviting store than they care very much about the location. The latter, of course, is a vital matter. The out-of-the-way street with its limited number of pedestrians, or its fewer autos, is not likely to be found a desirable section for many lines of merchandise retailed. There is, however, the more active thoroughfare with its attractive shops and larger number of passersby, and its life and hum of trade that offers a stronger location for your place of business. But even this is not going to force the public to seek you.

The upstairs shop can be made more attractive than the floor facing the street if the dealer is not fully alive to the public's keen interest in the properly conducted store. The power to appeal, the art to make the public seek you, the interest-arousing windows, the magnet that simply forces the public to enter, what and where are these to be found and what is the real secret that makes this a realization? We see it demonstrated in many cases. Why do we, for instance, go to a certain store?

Well, we will say, there are often many reasons. The store that does appeal, however, and that makes us feel that there is a double welcome has a great deal to do with it at times. We go many times because the invitation is so strong that it is hard to resist. These stores are not always in the very heart of the city. No, sometimes they are located on a street that is not noted for the number of people who pass a given point in every twenty-four hours. But the store has made itself known, and we simply go there with confidence and assurance of a right royal welcome, and with the knowledge that there will be nothing to cause us any serious disappointment.

But how did the store of this kind gain its reputation? Well, the instances vary with the individual cases, and the success did not come overnight. It was often gradual. It came from several reasons, however, that involved the means for building a foundation that was based on service, stock selection, and attraction.

Publicity had something to do with this larger success. This is a help, but it must be looked upon as a means only to an end, and if it is not conducted in the right manner it may just as well be left alone. By publicity in this connection we mean not simply newspaper advertising, poster announcements, circular letters and kindred methods, but store publicity, as we noted above, that will attract. Then there is the other and the more practical kind. This is very closely allied with service, for the pleased customer becomes your advance agent for larger sales.

Yes, there is the kind of store publicity that the dealer should place a very high value on—the type of advertising that keeps his store in the public mind, which prompt and regular customers will not forget. If he can give them a cause for seeking him he has the best possible asset in the matter of larger sales. Where shall we go for a talking machine? Who has the best selection of records, the kind that includes the latest as well as the best? This is what the buyers want to know, and if you can take care of these needs the public is going to seek you, even though you are not located in a big, high-priced heart-of-the-city store, where crowds continually pass your door.

Now take a personal stock of yourself and see if you can fulfil these requirements; see if you are doing so now. If you are not, the big, heart-of-the-city store might become to you a rather heavy burden, because the expense of upkeep and the not over large sales will soon make the overhead so topheavy as to cut into your profits in a way that will hurt. You want to give service. Do you understand what the meaning of this very significant term really means?

If you do and are willing to make it a feature of your location there will not be any logical reason for your sales not being good. Your location is going to help you only if the other factors are at work to make success a practical idea. The fact that you are located in a downtown section; have a big store and plenty of show without anything to really back this up is not enough to insure your larger success. That is why some of the dealers with the smaller stores wherein the attractions are worth while do make good.

Take into consideration your overhead. This is a mighty big profit devourer. It fairly eats the profits with the appetite of a giant. The smaller, attractive store that has the merchandise and the store that gives the real service can count on a nice business and the profits are real, too, not the imaginary kind. Keep that thought in mind at all times. Keep the questions of decreased overhead with its many entangling alliances well in the foremost part of your head. Then you can sit back and smile and take your profits and make your sales and keep your good customers while the man who tries to outdo you with the big show is losing his hard cash.

The value of your location is only part of the game you are playing. There are other matters that demand your attention. If you are going to keep these in mind and are really in earnest about making them a part of your line of action you can be assured that the outcome will be all that you can hope for, and that is success in its real meaning.

How to Celebrate the Return of Our Soldiers and Incidentally Develop Business :: By W. E. Dewell

Mgr. Kilian Co., Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Much has been written and said about phonograph business after the war. I have talked with many dealers who feel that the readjustment of labor conditions and the return of the soldiers may have an ill effect on the 1919 phonograph sales. It may have some ill effect that will, however, be offset by other favorable influences that will assist the sales in a remarkable way. 1919 should be the banner year in the phonograph industry. Its volume of business should far exceed that of any previous year, and I submit the following reasons why I think it should be:

Every phonograph manufacturer, jobber and dealer, especially the successful ones, agree that the selling of phonographs is largely a creative business. We must first create that desire to possess before we can sell. In the past that has been accomplished through many sources; by beautiful home illustrations, showing the family group enjoying the selections from the great operas, or perhaps a scene in home dancing, through the tone tests, by bringing a famous artist to the town or through advertising that you may keep the artist in your own home if you own a phonograph. Thus every effort has been one of creating a desire to possess an instrument.

In the past eighteen months the greatest of all creative agencies has been busy creating sales for the phonograph, I refer to the war. For example, the young man from the farm who goes to camp (and I have talked with many) finds that the first weeks there are indeed lonely ones for him. Naturally he turns to the first source of amusement that is available to him, the camp phonograph. Many pleasant hours are spent listening to the records he learns to love as dear companions. When that young man is once more back on the farm in the long quiet evenings he will crave to hear those old records he became so familiar with in camp. Thus the desire is created there that only can be satisfied with owning an instrument, and that means a sale for some live dealer. Consequently, more phonographs will go into rural homes in 1919 than have been placed there in any two previous years.

Then, again, the young man of the city who never stayed home in the evenings has learned the lesson of being kept at camp to spend his evenings and he is going to be more content to be at home. He also learned to love the music of the camp phonograph, and will not be satisfied until he can have one placed in his own home.

Many artists famous in the concert and operatic worlds have given their services to entertain in the camps. Many of the boys, hearing the very best talent we have in music, will want the voices of these famous artists in their own homes when they return. The one and only medium open to them is the phonograph.

Thus if it is true that the selling of instruments is a creative business we can well see that much has been accomplished in that direction. Far more has been done than advertising could possibly do in the same period of time. So to link our efforts with what has been done through these channels and work with a big year in view, the ultimate outcome will be the biggest year for every dealer in the country.

In your selling campaign this year I suggest that you secure the name of every family in the county that is represented on the honor roll and start a vigorous mail campaign. At present every thought is given to homecoming receptions to welcome home the boys. Why not enter into the spirit and when you learn of the return of a soldier boy help the family to celebrate by sending an instrument to the home to furnish the music? Do it whether or not you think there is a sale in sight. If this is followed out in dead earnest we will surprise ourselves with the results obtained.

REVIEW THE TALKING MACHINE SITUATION IN AUSTRALIA

U. S. Consular Agent in Melbourne Tells of Opportunity for the Establishment of a Talking Machine Record Factory—Some Figures on Import Trade That Are Interesting

According to the U. S. Consular agent in Melbourne, Australia, there appears to be an unusual opportunity just now for the establishment of a talking machine factory, and particularly a record-making plant in that country. At the present time the bulk of machines are imported from the United States and England, but duties and freight rates combine to make the prices high. There have been some attempts made to assemble cheaper grades of machines in Australia from imported parts, but these assembled machines have not met with any great amount of success. Talking machines in Australia, in proportion to the population, are not nearly so numerous as they are in the United States and other countries, although it would seem that if attractively priced and properly exploited good machines should find a ready market.

Customs receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1917, show that talking machines to the value of £55,000 were imported from the United States. During the continuance of the war, other countries are practically out of the market. The duty on talking machines of other than British manufacture is 10 per cent. ad valorem.

It is understood that the small manufacturers who assemble parts into cheap machines desire to have this duty increased, for local protection. No energetic effort has been made to push the sale of talking machines until within the past year. Hitherto, phonographs have been carried as a side line by dealers in pianos and other musical instruments and, until recently, no one has undertaken to handle them exclusively. A Melbourne firm, which carries nothing but talking machines, stated that within the past year it has imported 300 machines of the make it handles, and it further states that the more expensive styles sell more readily than the cheaper grades. The attempt to sell the more expensive cabinet gramophones is a comparatively recent venture, as formerly the horn machine was the favored type. As yet, the talking machine trade is in its infancy in Australia, and there is a good opportunity for the introduction of such instruments, for the people are very musical; but, owing to the lack of development of this trade, piano players, which are much more expensive, have gained the preference.

The present is seemingly an opportune time for establishing a plant for the manufacture of records in Australia. The situation is peculiar. Australia is so remote from other countries that it comprises almost a world of its own in musical matters. Artists from Europe and America usually remain many months, returning again and again to the same places if they become popular. Operettas, pantomimes, and musical comedies generally run from eight to ten weeks in each city. The rights to produce American and European musical successes in Australia are usually obtained soon after they become established at home, and local favorites present them in Australian theatres. Local musicians of ability are very popular, and visiting artists who meet with success are made much of, socially and otherwise, with the result that records made by such people would have a large sale if they could be made locally.

Imported records sell at prices greatly in advance of those obtained in America, and records could be made in Australia that would bring a lower price, and still yield a good profit to the manufacturers. The sale of such records would do more toward increasing the use of talking machines than any other instrumentality. It is important, however, that the material of which the records is made be such as to insure a perfectly smooth surface, and the best possible reproduction. Information as to the existence in Australia of raw materials for the manufacture of records is something that would have to be obtained by the manufacturers themselves, inasmuch as the composition of records is a trade secret.

The Impressive Campaign of Advertising FOR THE AEOLIAN-VOCALION

ONE of the important factors in The Aeolian Company's success has been the character of its advertising. For many years this has been maintained at the highest level and has set the standard not only for advertisers in the music trade, but for practically all others using magazine and newspaper space.

Aeolian instruments are natural leaders in their various lines by right of intrinsic superiority. At the same time, Aeolian advertising has contributed essentially to the widespread and ready acceptance of this leadership.

Aeolian-Vocalion publicity is typically Aeolian. Strong, dignified and convincing, it is as far above the level of ordinary phonograph advertising as the Vocalion itself towers above ordinary phonographs.

Dealers who handle the Aeolian-Vocalion and new Vocalion Record, are aware of this. They are directly benefited by the national publicity of the Vocalion and indirectly by the newspaper campaigns conducted in mediums with large spheres of influence outside of their immediate environments. Likewise, the provision made by The Aeolian Company, whereby dealers may profit through participation in the national publicity is an added advantage to those who handle the Vocalion.

Reproductions of Vocalion and Vocalion Record advertisements appear on the three pages following. These reflect the general character of Vocalion publicity and are current at the moment.

The advertisements on the two next pages are reproductions of the full pages in color appearing monthly in the "Saturday Evening Post". The one following is one of the newspaper advertisements appearing in different large cities.

The unquestioned superiority of the Aeolian-Vocalion; its many advantages and selling features; the extraordinary character of the new Vocalion Record; the exceptional service rendered to dealers; and the unapproached quality of Vocalion publicity, make the representation of this instrument an invaluable asset to every progressive music merchant.

ROSA RAISA

Prima Donna Soprano of the Chicago Opera Association

A PUPIL and protege of Mme. Campanini, she has already achieved sensational successes in London, Milan, Buenos Aires, Mexico, Chicago, and New York though still in her twenties. A leading Chicago critic has called Raisa "the greatest dramatic soprano in the world."

Raisa is one of the famous group of brilliant artists who are recording for the Vocalion Record exclusively. Her record of the celebrated aria from Il Trovatore "D'amor sull' ah' rosee" is a splendid example both of the superb quality of her voice and the wonderful new system used in making Vocalion Records.

The

A Wonderful Voice—A Wonderful New Record and—the World Famous Phonograph—

AEOLIAN=VOCALION

ON A CERTAIN SUNDAY afternoon last March, Rosa Raisa, prima donna soprano of the Chicago Opera Association, sang at a concert given in the Hippodrome in New York. No man, woman or child who attended that concert will ever forget it. They had heard what the critic of one of the leading New York papers called "the most marvelous, most glorious voice of any kind or character" which had come under his observation in many years.

THAT CONCERT, last Easter Sunday, is a memory. The tones that stirred its great audience to a "frenzy of enthusiasm" live only in the thoughts of those who heard.

In the beautiful Vocalion Studio on West 43rd Street in New York, however, Rosa Raisa has since sung many times. No great audience has been there to applaud, but the melodious notes of that wonderful voice have been preserved to thrill an infinitely vaster audience than any opera house or concert hall could hold.

Rosa Raisa is one of the great singers who are committing their art to the new Vocalion Record. In this Record, and the wonderful new system under which it is produced, are the means by which the world at last may gain a full measure of enjoyment from its gifted ones. Never before the Vocalion Record was perfected had the human voice been reproduced to do it actual justice.

THE new Vocalion Record has followed as a natural consequence the production four years ago of the Aeolian-Vocalion itself. Here was a great phonograph—an extraordinary scientific instrument, capable of playing records as records had never been played before.

Such improvement in the instrument suggested the possibility of further development of the record, and the new Vocalion Record is the successful result of the efforts in this direction. In combination, these two—Vocalion instrument, Vocalion record—represent the ultimate in phonograph development—the highest point to which the art of phonograph reproduction has yet been brought.

THE Aeolian-Vocalion is today supreme in the musical world. Its leadership rests on definite features of superiority, as follows:

VOCALION FEATURES

TONE—Due to its advanced and more scientific construction, the Vocalion produces richer, deeper, more beautiful and more natural tones than have hitherto been heard from the phonograph.

TONE-CONTROL—The Graduola—the artistic and exclusive tone-controlling feature of the Vocalion, enables the performer to shade and color the music as he will. It enables anyone to participate in the playing of the record, to give voice to his own musical ideas and to prevent monotony by slight changes in the record's stereotyped expression.

APPEARANCE—In both outline and finish, the regular upright models of the Vocalion establish an entirely new standard of beauty for the phonograph. The beautiful Period Styles, though inexpensive, are the most unusual and artistic phonographs ever displayed.

MECHANICAL PERFECTION—The Automatic Stop on the Vocalion is an example of the perfection in mechanical detail characterizing this instrument. Simple, direct and absolutely dependable, this device is the most satisfactory of its kind yet invented.

And The New

UNIVERSAL TONE-ARM—This great feature of the Vocalion, is a notable tribute to the skill and resource of the Aeolian staff. It provides the means by which every make of record can be played upon the Vocalion. With the record situation as it is today—with so many different manufacturers making records—this is the only way that all the great artists can be heard. Moreover, so well has this feature been designed that each make of record is played exactly as intended, thus producing from each the best results of which it is capable.

TRADE EXCELLENT IN ATLANTA

Increasing Quantity of Stock Is Received by Talking Machine Houses and Is Quickly Absorbed by Public—Reports Indicate That Prosperity Has Strong Grip in South

ATLANTA, GA., February 4.—Talking machine dealers in Atlanta generally report fine business in the month of January. In most instances the amount of business done was limited only by the shortage of stock. Detailed reports follow:

The Atlanta Talking Machine Co., who sell the Columbia line and the Vocalion, and have the oldest name in the Columbia retail business in Atlanta, have been running large space in the local papers, advertising the Columbia records, and their record business has increased amazingly as a result. They state also that their sales of talking machines have held up excellently, and that many parties who could not buy during the Christmas season have been able to fill their wants since. With the probability that the situation with the Columbia Co. will steadily improve from now on, they think that the volume of their business will be larger than ever.

The Cable Piano Co., possibly the largest retailers of the Victor line in the South, through Mr. Salter, manager of the Victrola department, report the volume of business to be very satisfactory, the public seeming quite as eager to buy as before Christmas, and the demand for both Victrolas and Victor records is very active. Mr. Salter looks for an indefinite continuance of this activity.

The Haverty Furniture Co., Columbia dealers, who also sell the Pathé line, through Mr. Wilson, manager of the talking machine department, say that their business is quite up to expectations, their record sales being particularly gratifying. They have taken on the Columbia line of foreign records, for which there is quite a demand in this city, and expect to do a substantial business with this addition. They say that their stores in Columbia and Charleston, S. C.; Birmingham, Ala.; Memphis, Tenn.; Savannah, Ga.; and Dallas and Houston, Tex., all report fine business in their phonograph departments.

The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., the oldest Victor dealers in Georgia, and the original and pioneer Victor house in Atlanta, wholesale and retail, say that their business is in excellent condition. They were fortunate in receiving early in the new year a substantial shipment of the popular Victrolas, and were thus able to satisfy many of those who had waited until after Christmas to get just what they wanted. They have recently been featuring the Victor records in the local papers, and have enjoyed a very fine record business.

With the probability that the Victor Co. will be able to make heavier deliveries in the next few weeks, they hope to be able to supply each and every one of their customers who have waited patiently for just the model they wish.

Phonographs, Inc., Edison jobbers and retailers, are continuing a fine business. The New Edison is becoming increasingly popular even in the smaller towns in the South, and as the rural people have money to buy almost anything they wish, this high-class instrument is selling readily both in Atlanta and in the smaller centers.

The Delpheon Shop, Columbia dealers, and who also sell the Delpheon, through Mr. Sunderland, state that their business is constantly increasing and expanding. Their sales are 100 per cent. ahead of 1918 and the outlook with them is very bright. Mr. Sunderland is active, aggressive and wideawake in the conduct of his business, and the result obtained recently with the Columbia line shows for itself.

The Elyea-Austell Co., Victor wholesalers, are already planning considerable development of their dealers' service program in anticipation of increased shipments of machines and records from the factory that will tend in the near future to place their business on a normal basis. E. N. Upshaw, of the company, recently attended the meeting of Victor jobbers held in Philadelphia, and took occasion while there to visit the Victor factories in Camden.

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Victor and Sonora dealers, say through Edward Brotherton, manager of the department, that their business is showing and has shown an increase every month for the past ten. The proprietors of the store are much pleased with the sales in this department and with Mr. Brotherton's capable management. The Sonora is gaining strength in Atlanta every month.

Dealers in various lines in towns adjacent to or tributary to Atlanta are reported by traveling salesmen to be selling quantities of phonographs and records. This includes Savannah, Macon, Columbus, Augusta and numerous other cities and towns.

RICHMOND, VA., January 29.—Frank W. Corley, son of John G. Corley founder of the Corley Co., Victor wholesalers, is back at his accustomed place as general manager of the wholesale department of "The House That Made Richmond Musical." At the outbreak of the war Mr. Corley entered the Naval Aviation Service and served until a very short time ago. While not yet too fully detailing their plans for 1919, it may be stated that the Corley Co. will energetically maintain their former high records for dealer service and pursue the accepted idea of expansion prevalent throughout big business in this country.

Patriotic Profits

Every day the wheels of industry are turning faster; every day the industrial activities of the nation are becoming more important. The moment the armistice was signed a vast responsibility shifted from General Pershing to you, and other merchants.

Of course, you are going to take back all of your former employees who went to war—unless there are gold stars on your service flag. But that isn't enough. It isn't patriotic enough, and it isn't profitable enough.

This will be a banner year for your business; all the signs promise that. Additional salesmen are not only advisable, they are necessary. And a soldier makes a good salesman. He is a trained fighter, and will fight for orders as he fought for Liberty—with all his heart and soul.

So hire a soldier-salesman and begin to gather in the patriotic profits that are coming to you.

How Best to Advertise Successfully a Retail Talking Machine Business :: :: By Joseph H. Moorehouse

There is so much written and spoken on the subject of advertising that the retail talking machine dealer who really wants to go about the advertising of his business in an effective and result-producing manner is somewhat at a loss as to how to begin and, after beginning, how to stay within the limits of safety in setting aside and spending, or rather, investing, his advertising appropriation.

Some of the advertising authorities have advocated the setting aside of a sum representing as low as 2 per cent. of the year's gross business for advertising. Others have advocated 5, 10 and even 20 per cent., and John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, is credited with the statement that if he had $25 to begin business with he would spend $20 of it in advertising.

All this naturally appears very confusing to the average retail dealer who is unable to retain and pay for expert advertising advice, but if he wants to get the real value for his money and at the same time be conservative he will realize the fact that much of what is written about advertising is based upon generalities, and that his advertising problems rest largely upon the local conditions he is called upon to meet, the prominence of the papers in his locality and the amount of publicity a specified sum will buy.

There is little that is haphazard about present-day advertising in the matter of selecting mediums, deciding upon space and, in fact, mapping out an entire campaign though it cannot be denied that there is and always will be considerable uncertainty regarding the effect of certain kinds of copy. The main fact to be considered is that advertising should be a fixed factor in the business—an investment that is in every way as essential as rent and, in fact, a trifle more essential.

The dealer should first consider the mediums, in other words the daily and weekly newspapers that cover the territory in which he operates, and then secure reliable information regarding rates, circulation and other factors. In this work the honest solicitor for the local newspaper, if he knows his business, should prove of material assistance for he can map out a tentative campaign for the dealer, which, while including his own paper, will also make use of other mediums that cover the same field at different times, in different ways or reach a different class of people.

The average dealer with only a small appropriation for advertising is frequently discouraged by the fact that some of his larger competitors can use advertising space that is beyond his means, but he is prone to forget that small space used consistently and with the proper kind of copy is as effective in the long run as pages and half pages used intermittently. The old story to the effect that the constant dropping of water will wear away the hardest stone was never better illustrated than in the case of advertising.

In the great majority of papers the advertiser can contract for a substantial amount of space at a surprising reduction from the one time rate or can contract for the appearance of a ten or twenty-line advertisement to appear daily, semi-weekly or weekly for the year, the rate of the daily insertion being, naturally, much lower. Space bought on this basis is generally known as a "rate maker" and gives the advertiser the privilege of increasing his space for any single issue at the same rate per line paid for the regular advertisement. This method has the advantage of giving the advertiser a special long-time low rate for single spreads of particular announcements and at the same time keeps his name before the readers of the paper every day when he has no special advertisement to run.

The dealer who really gives earnest attention to his advertising can, by the selection and arrangement of his copy cause even a comparatively small announcement to stand out from a page of advertisements and attract attention. The ability to select attractive type and borders and lay-out the display properly and attractively is as great an asset to the business of the dealer as his ability to close a hard sale.

It is the dealer who has something to say and says it who finds that advertising pays and not the man who is content with the time-worn copy "John Smith, fine talking machines, 12 Blank street, Jonesville." The latter almost throws his money away, for the local directory will give the same information without cost to those who are looking for a talking machine. If such copy is run daily or weekly year in and year out it may possibly impress some constant readers with the fact that Smith handles talking machines, but that is about all.

Talking machine or piano advertising, like all other kinds of publicity, is, or should be, simply a selling talk and should be developed on that basis. The language should be good, the arguments forceful and convincing and every effort made to put in the paper as attractively as possible just what a salesman would be expected to say to the prospective customer who made a personal call at the wareroom. The dealer who tells his reader through his advertisement just what he would expect to tell the same reader were he to meet him face to face in the store, will find that his advertisements will attract more profitable attention than when any other system is used.

There are two factors that make for value in advertising and they are price and name with the price keeping a trifle to the front. There are some talking machines, the names of which are so well known that the mention of the fact that the dealer is the agent for the line will interest the readers. Others, however, are interesting to newspaper readers only from the viewpoint of price, and in such cases prices should be made the basis of the printed selling talk.

Facts about the tone and the various structural features may be presented in an untechnical manner and serve to impress the reader with the qualities of the instruments offered even though he may not fully appreciate the significance of the various features.

An advertising campaign based on the system of selling and with the facts about the instruments told frankly is bound to prove a success if followed out consistently and intelligently. Good copy, attractive but dignified display and persistence are the elements that count.

OPTIMISM PREVAILS IN NASHVILLE

Wholesalers and Dealers in That Section Making Preparations to Market the Increased Stocks Which They Expect Soon to Arrive

NASHVILLE, TENN., February 4.—Castner-Knott Co., Victrola exclusively, are quoted through Forrest Traylor, department manager, as saying that they are in every respect pleased with the sales in this department except that if they could get more stock they could do a much greater volume of business. Detailed reports of their December business show that it was the largest December they ever enjoyed as to amount of sales. Their department is one of the most attractive your correspondent has ever seen, spacious, neat and well arranged.

Mr. Traylor is optimistic as regards business for the coming year, and is making preparations to get his full share. He recently made a rather extended tour of Northern cities.

Mr. Lawrence, manager for O. K. Houck Co., in the retail Victor department, says that even with the shortage of goods December, 1918, was ahead of any December they have ever experienced, and all things considered he is well pleased with results obtained. The Houck Co., who are also Victor jobbers, expect shipments from the factory to arrive shortly, and their many customers, both retailers and individuals, can then be supplied with Victor product.

At Bond's Graphophone Shop E. E. Hyde, manager, reports January as being well up to the standard of previous years. Shipments from the Columbia distributing headquarters in Atlanta have improved, and Mr. Hyde says if the service now afforded continues he will make a new record for 1919. The sale of records is particularly fine with this concern, their sales now being three times what they were a year ago.

M. F. Shea, dealer in the New Edison, is having a gratifying business, and this high-class phonograph, which for some months was not on sale in Nashville, having had no representation for a while there, is increasing every month.

H. Brown & Co., Columbia exclusively, say, through Mr. Stelzer, firm member, and who has the department under his immediate supervision, that they are much pleased with the way sales are going. Mr. Stelzer speaks in terms of high praise of the new model Grafonolas.

Reports from fifteen smaller centers near here are "all to the good," and every one in the fraternity seems to regard the outlook as altogether favorable to a prosperous year for those in the talking machine business.

VISITING PACIFIC COAST TRADE

Frank J. Coupe, director of sales and advertising for the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., New York, is now en route to the Pacific Coast, and according to his present plans will be away about five or six weeks. Mr. Coupe is visiting the Sonora jobbers throughout the country, and his reports to date indicate a record-breaking Sonora business everywhere.

Joseph Wolff, secretary of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., spent a few days at Sagamore, Mich., recently, visiting one of the Sonora cabinet factories in that city.

THOS. NILES WITH COLUMBIA CO.

The general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co. announced recently that Thomas Niles had been appointed a member of the general sales division with headquarters at the executive offices in New York. Mr. Niles succeeds Norman B. Smith, who has been appointed assistant manager of the Columbia branch in Cincinnati. Mr. Niles was recently discharged from the U. S. Army with the rank of captain, and prior to entering the service of Uncle Sam was associated with the American Chicle Co.

Greatness is never thrust upon a man who leads an aimless life.

NEW POST FOR N. B. SMITH

Becomes Assistant Manager of Cincinnati Branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co.

The general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, has just announced the appointment of Norman B. Smith as assistant manager of the company's Cincinnati branch. Mr. Smith, who assumes his new duties this week, succeeds G. H. Williams, who has resigned from the company's service.

In making this appointment, the Columbia Co. sales department has given a well-deserved promotion to Mr. Smith, for during his year's connection with the sales department at the executive offices Mr. Smith has won the esteem and admiration of all of his co-workers. Thoroughly versed in all details of Columbia merchandise and enthusiastic regarding Columbia quality, Mr. Smith will undoubtedly prove an invaluable assistant to F. F. Dawson, manager of the Cincinnati branch.

DISCHARGED FROM THE ARMY

Russell Hunting, Jr., well known in local recording circles, was discharged from the U. S. Army last week, with the rank of lieutenant. Mr. Hunting was stationed at Camp Upton and was preparing to leave for France when the armistice was signed. He has not made any definite announcement regarding his plans for the future, but in all probability will become associated, with one of the prominent record companies, as he has had several years' experience in the technical end of recording. Mr. Hunting is a son of Russell Hunting, special adviser to the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co.'s recording division.

The Ampliphone Phonograph Co., of Brazil, Ind., whose plant was recently destroyed by fire, have temporary offices in the Citizens' Bank Building. They will occupy temporarily part of the Brinkerhoff Piano Co.'s plant.

STOCK SCARCITY STILL PREVAILS IN PORTLAND TRADE

Dealers and Jobbers Alike Anxiously Awaiting Shipments of Machines and Records to Meet Immediate Demands—A Busy Oregon City—An Interesting Budget of Trade News

PORTLAND, ORE., February 8.—The big business done by the Hyatt Talking Machine Co. since they moved into the new store, and particularly during the holiday season, has diminished the stock to such an extent that Mr. Hyatt is anxiously looking for new shipments. Victrolas and records are scarce and the demand as great as ever.

The Stradivara Co. is starting off the year 1919 splendidly. There has been no falling off in the trade since Christmas. The Okeh records are in great demand.

A customer came into the salesrooms of C. Guy Wakefield and bought four phonographs at retail at one time, selecting one Pathé, one Stradivara and two Americans.

The Seiberling & Lucas Music Co. are increasing their floor space and adding to the sales force. Business doubled itself last year, and a still more prosperous year is looked for in 1919.

J. I. Chisholm, who has been a piano salesman with the Portland branch of the Bush & Lane Co., has resigned and gone into business for himself on West Park street. In addition to a piano department Mr. Chisholm will carry the Stradivara talking machine.

The Record Shop, a tiny shop situated next to the Orpheum Building, is busy selling Lucy Gates records. A concert given by the Apollo Club in the Auditorium on January 9 had Miss Gates as its soloist, and the delightful impression made by her beautiful voice stimulated the sale of her records.

Cheney machines are still being called for at the G. F. Johnson Piano Co.'s store. The trade since Christmas has been of unusual activity.

Miss Eva Wachtell, of New York, has joined the sales force of the talking machine department of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co.

L. C. Callahan, who was in an officers' training camp at Eugene, Ore., and then at the Bremerton Navy Yard in the aviation service, has returned to Portland and resumed his position as manager of the Columbia Dictaphone Co. J. R. Haight was in charge of the department during Mr. Callahan's absence.

A shipment of Victrolas and Cheney talking machines is eagerly awaited by the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., as all machines on hand were cleaned out during the holidays.

The Bush & Lane Piano Co. allow no records to go out on approval. James L. Loder, in charge, says the rule is rigidly adhered to, no approvals or exchanges being permitted. He says this rule will be of advantage to customers as well as to the firm, insuring them fresh goods in every instance.

The "Portland Music House" is the name given by Chisholm & Moffet to their new store at 163 West Park street. They handle the Stradivara line.

"The Lure of Music" was too much for L. P. Older, who left the Columbia Grafonola Co. to enter the shipyards three months ago. He has resumed his former position with the Columbia Co.

Interesting advertisements of the Brunswick phonograph are issued by Frye's Sporting Goods Store of Baker, Ore.

The Wakefield Music Co., under the management of C. Guy Wakefield, just sent a dozen machines to St. Helens, Ore., where a new branch store has been established. The Brunswick and Pathé machines are carried. W. S. Glover has joined the sales force.

The talking machine department of the Reed-French Co. is doing a big business in its new location on Washington street.

Paul B. Norris, of Wiley B. Allen Co., says this year is starting out much better than last year. People have more money and are buying better machines. When cash sales are not made—and they are the rule—the first payments are big. Victors, Edisons and Brunswicks are handled.

Only enough talking machines to display one or two in the windows and to use in demonstration rooms remain of the big stock of G. F. Johnson Piano Co. Victrolas and Cheney's are sold out.

Donald Smith has returned to Portland after a brief military experience at the officers' training camp at Corvallis, Ore., and intends going into the phonograph business again.

W. B. Maxwell, manager of the talking machine department of the Powers Furniture Store, has recovered from a severe attack of influenza and is again on duty in his department.

Paul B. Norris, manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., who had been very ill with influenza, has returned to work, but has lost 16 pounds in weight. He is as busy as ever, however, selling machines and is optimistic over business.

"FLU" DELAYS PORTLAND MEETING

PORTLAND, ORE., February 3.—The prevalence of the "flu" and the number of people in the talking machine business who are suffering with it was the cause of the postponement of the monthly meeting of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association. It is quite probable that no meeting will be held until the second Tuesday in February. By that time it is hoped the epidemic will be over. The great interest manifested by all members of the association increases instead of diminishes as time goes on. Arrangements are being made by Taylor C. White, vice-president, and other members who are on a committee with him to make the next meeting the best ever. Speakers of eminence, who can speak with authority on the talking machine business and on business in general, are promised by the committee, and if all goes well the February meeting will be a most important and profitable one.

CHRONICALLY SLOW ACCOUNTS AN EXPENSIVE BURDEN

When Cost of Carrying Slow Accounts Approaches the Gross Profit Figure It Is Time That the Account Was Closed, Says N. H. Tatman—Hints for Collection Department

The collection department should keep an accurate record of the additional cost of carrying slow accounts to determine definitely the cost entailed, such cost to be offset by the gross profit. When the account reaches a point where it is within 5 per cent. of the profit the account should be closed. A letter should be sent the customer, if a representative cannot call, setting out clearly and firmly why the account is no longer desirable. The amount figured as loss should be charged to loss account and not to expense.

The collection department should keep accurate records showing the additional cost of collection which will consist of clerical work in checking over accounts, making extra statements and cost of drafts if drawn, traveler's time taken from his regular duties, attorney fees if incurred and interest on account if not collected.

The customer who is chronically slow is as certain to be overtaken with failure as the sickly body is with fatal disease. Slow payments are habits formed which if allowed to go unchecked become permanent and will surely cause failure. It is a habit which if not corrected in time will prove fatal. One remedy would be to get the names of the slow customer's creditors and by trade inquiry develop his exact status. When the creditor who has the largest amount at risk or who has had the longest acquaintance with the delinquent has gathered the facts he should call upon the slow account, presenting the whole situation, making it plain there is no cause for alarm but that the creditors' representative is merely calling in the interest of the customer to show him the error of his ways and where these errors will bring him. If he fails to get a friendly reception, the creditor should firmly make it plain to the debtor that his procrastination cannot continue; that he is empowered to force a change. The large majority of slow accounts can be turned into desirable customers, but if not, a creditors' meeting should be immediately called to determine the best, quickest and most economical manner of bringing the account to an end, thereby stopping the drain.

Credit men who have carefully analyzed the slow account are sure to arrive at the conclusion that if the disease cannot be cured the best thing to do is to withdraw, for the longer the customer remains on the books the greater the loss.

The credit man can go into the affairs of the slow customer where others cannot, for he can appear as a friend desirous of helping his customer. This is not wholly an unselfish motive and the customer can be made to see that it is for the benefit of creditors as well as the debtor that the credit man is so solicitous of the debtor's welfare. If the slow customer is taken care of in time and does not have too many other faults, he can be put on the road to suc-

ISSUE NEW RECORD CATALOG

Complete List of OkeH Records to Be Found in Well-Arranged Volume Just Issued by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co.

The Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., of New York, has just issued a complete catalog of OkeH records, and this new publication indicates the rapid strides which this popular record library has made within the past few months.

The cover of the catalog presents the well-known "Victory" illustration that the company has used in its general OkeH record publicity during the past few weeks. This illustration not only appears on the new catalog, but is also featured on hanger supplements, motion picture slides, etc. The color scheme is red, white and blue, and this design is followed throughout the catalog.

The records are listed according to classes, among these being dances, heart songs, instrumental selections, popular songs, patriotic, standard songs, etc., etc. The diversity of this catalog indicates the possibilities for developing OkeH record business, and the hearty reception accorded these records bears testimony to their merit and sales value.

Among the popular artists who are represented in this new catalog are Joseph Phillips, Collins and Harlan, Henry Burr, Lewis James, cess, thereby saving the debtor's assets as well as making a profitable customer for the house. Whether or not it will pay the house to spend the necessary time and money to save a customer all depends upon the customer having the capacity, character and capital to acquit himself well when put on the right track. This must be decided in each individual case.

In conclusion, it is urged upon all credit grantors that they have the moral courage to close an account on their books which is slow and unprofitable. A credit man is doing his house as well as fellow credit men an injustice if he permits the slow account to continue to operate. The symptoms are so plain that none can fail to see the first effects of the slow account and right then and there is the time to apply the remedy before it becomes a fixed habit, the purpose being either to cure it or wind it up to prevent greater loss.

Arthur Fields, Arthur Campbell, Reed Miller and others. There are a number of 'cello numbers played by Vladimir Dubinsky, and Paul Eisler has contributed piano records to the OkeH library, which have met with marked favor. The Berkshire String Orchestra, well known in musical circles, also records for the OkeH library, and the dance records include selections by the Fred Van Eps Quartet, Majestic Hotel Dance Orchestra and other successful organizations.

ECONOMY WORTH CONTINUING

Probably one of the war economies which has been most widely adopted and is still most worthy of continuation is the plan of using the back of original letters for the carbon copy of the answer thereto, instead of making a carbon copy on a separate sheet of paper. This plan serves to save paper on the one hand, and makes for efficiency on the other, in that an answer-letter cannot possibly become separated from the communication to which it is a response.

The Application of Period Decoration to Talking Machine Cabinets—The Louis XVI Style

In our article on the application of period decorative art in The World last month we dwelt at some length upon the style of Louis XV, which can be held as representing the peak in French decorative art—that is, so far as flamboyance and extravagance are concerned. In the study of the French decorative arts, the development from the severe ecclesiastical lines of the Gothic, through the Renaissance, and the reigns of the Henri's, Charles, Francois, etc., to the time of the Louis, shows us a constant tendency towards greater elaborateness, although that tendency up to the time of Louis XV was held more or less within bounds.

It is the law of Nature that every action must be followed by a corresponding reaction, and it is, therefore, but natural that this law be followed out in the history of France, and in the history of her decorative arts, for art follows history. The constant development of court extravagance, which reached its climax during the reign of Louis XVI, naturally placed added burdens upon the population in general, and at the end of his reign the rumblings of revolution were coming closer and closer to the throne. It was but natural that realizing conditions Louis XVI should take steps to do away with court extravagance so far as possible, and to cater more strongly to the common people.

passé, but interest was turned towards the boudoir and intimate home apartments, and here the tendency toward conservatism made itself felt in the adoption of many classic details of the daintier order. No style has ever so well deserved the word "dainty" as that of Louis XVI. In fact, it seems a very feminine style, and has the appearance of less permanence than most of the other styles, due to the minor part played by the architectural construction. The modest taste of Marie Antoinette made itself felt upon decorative art even before she became Queen, and when she finally ascended the throne the tendency towards the classic was already well established.

In furniture, from which the modern cabinet makers would naturally get their ideas, there was a demand for the lighter styles, but with rich ornamentation copied to a considerable extent from the ancient Greeks. The scrolls once so common in French styles were replaced by straight lines, and the carved legs, columns, etc., by flutings. These flutings were often relieved by quills and husks partly filling them, some extending from the bottom part way up, and others from top and bottom, leaving a space of plain fluting in the center, the whole modestly decorated with plain gold or gold mixed with silver, which gave the appearance of red or green gold. In many cases the plain fluted legs of tables, desks and cabinets were relieved by stretchers.

Where panels were possible in harmony with the design they were filled by studies closely following nature and chaste grouping of Cupids, but with a total disregard for the mythical. The chief furniture and cabinet maker of the period was Reisener, who was established at the Bureau du Roi, Louvre, and who for twenty years worked for Marie Antoinette. His chief styles were in marqueterie, and these were adorned with metal work by Gouthiere.

The advancement of the French classical school of design received a check in the midst of the reforming process by the beginning of the Revolution, although it was partially resurrected during the first of the Empire period by the masters of the school, many of the chief having survived the turmoil of revolution after greater or less terms of imprisonment.

Interior decoration in France during the Louis XVI period reflected more than at any other time the personal style of one or two master decorators. Herewith are shown a number of decorative details quite frequently used in the period. They will all be easily recognized as to some extent typical of the style in question.

The flowing, undulating ribbon ends and grace—

Louis XVI Decoration Will Fit Modern Requirements

Louis XVI had good intentions, but little force of character, and his Queen had force of character but no means of making it felt. The result of this reform work, therefore, was that the courtiers and nobles played at being simple, and the elaborate court functions were given up. The heavy court decorations, therefore, became ful bowknots are among the most typical of the Louis XVI decorative bits. Ribbons and bows have been used for centuries in decoration, but always with a certain attempted dignity. The Louis XVI ribbons and bowknots do not try to be dignified. Like all else in that style they merely wish to be dainty, pretty and graceful, and the designers attempted to give the ribbons an appearance of motion, as if a breeze shook the ribbon ends. The result is that Louis XVI ribbon ornaments are usually peculiarly crinkled, but they are no less pleasing on that account.

APPLICATION OF PERIOD DESIGN

So, too, we notice in the floral and leaf festoons an attempt to embody lightness and grace rather than severity or dignity, and the lightness is gained, not by making the festoons and garlands thin and unnatural, as in the Regency style, but by keeping the color and shadows light, and by neutralizing the naturally staid lines of the festoon by close juxtaposition of light fantastic ribbons.

The Louis XVI scroll is also a type seen but seldom elsewhere. It is not a rounded scroll, but a flattened scroll, so that the effect is not that of a circle, but of an ellipse. This is a subtle method of suggesting the same delicate lightness that seems to have been the main desire of the decorators of that time. A circle suggests strength of resistance. An ellipse seems about to flatten out or break down, and the idea of something caught while in movement is what the decorator desired to suggest.

Nearly all the more delicate Greek decorative mouldings and decorative details were freely used. In fact, the entire Louis XVI style is an idyllic Greek. It is a Greek pastoral, but with the shepherds and shepherdesses in full dress. It is an attempt to combine a classic style with a romantic mode of thought, and the result is just what might be expected—a dainty, pretty bit of play acting in the lives of the people and an appropriate stage-setting.

More than any of its predecessors the Louis XVI was a style suitable for home life, and yet it was superb enough for a royal palace. By varying the fabrics and the amount of detail in the decoration, it could be made enormously expensive or to meet the needs of average wealth. It shows pieces depending on sheer beauty rather than on elaborate effects for their attractiveness and is a style that proves most interesting and satisfying to-day. A number of talking machine cabinet designers have already adapted the Louis XVI with great success and others are learning constantly of its value. The design is one of the most popular and lends itself most admirably to interior decorative schemes.

It's far easier to take things as they come than to chase after them when they've gone.

See how the jobbers in The World can supply your wants.

NEW UDELL CATALOG ISSUED

Handsome Volume of Nearly Thirty Pages Devoted Entirely to Illustrations and Descriptive Matter About Udell Record Cabinets—1918 Business Sets New Record for This House

A handsome new Udell catalog, which may be most appropriately termed a "Blue Book of Dependable Record Cabinets," has just been issued by the Udell Works, Indianapolis, the entire booklet, embracing twenty-eight pages and cover, being devoted entirely to Udell cabinets, designed especially for use with the most popular models of table machines of the leading makes, including Victrolas and Grafonolas, Pathéphones and Aeolian-Vocalions.

Each cabinet model is illustrated on a page by itself, with the appropriate machine placed thereon, and accompanied by detailed descriptive matter regarding the cabinet, its size, finish, capacity, weight, etc. Horizontal, vertical and felt interiors are provided for the various cabinets as desired. The descriptive matter has been compiled in such a way that the buyer can order from the catalog with a perfect knowledge of what he is getting, and that fact should prove of distinct value in increasing the sales of dealers.

The Udell Works have not taken any space in the catalog to blow their own horn, as it were, in the belief that Udell reputation for quality that has been maintained for so many years is sufficiently well known to make reiteration unnecessary, and that the principal desire of the user of the catalog is to learn something regarding the cabinets themselves. All the cabinets shown have already proven their popularity by demand.

One of the interesting features of the catalog is the page of newspaper cuts designed for the use of the retailer in his local advertising, electrotypes being supplied by the Udell Works at actual cost. The cuts are designed for use in column width advertisements, and include detailed sketches showing the use of the patented hinge rim at the back which serves to make the talking machine and cabinet appear as one complete whole.

So far as is known, this is the first attempt of a talking machine cabinet manufacturer to supply advertising material to his dealers, and opens a new avenue for dealer service.

According to Tom Griffith, sales manager of the Udell Works—who, by the way, has just returned from a most enjoyable vacation spent in Florida—that company is at present enjoying a big business, with absolutely no let-up following the holiday demand. As a matter of fact, a large part of the present output of the factory is being used to fill orders that have had to stand since before Christmas. The year 1918 was the best in the history of the Udell Works, and despite war conditions the prospects are that 1919 will prove even better.

"Right here we want to acknowledge that our advertising in The Talking Machine World has contributed very generously to our success,"

THE "SONORA BELL" INTERESTS

House Organ of Sonora Phonograph Co. Appears in New Dress With Timely Articles

The "Sonora Bell," the house organ published monthly by the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., New York, appears in a new dress for its January issue, and in its present form is one of the most up-to-date and attractive publications issued in the talking machine field. It has been revised, enlarged and generally improved, and contains a world of information that can be utilized to practical advantage by Sonora readers.

One of the most interesting articles in the January issue is contributed by George E. Brightson, president of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., who points out concisely and informatively the distinctive merits of the Sonora phonograph. There are numerous items referring to the advertising campaigns recently inaugurated by the Sonora advertising division, and particular mention is made of the pleasing success that has already been achieved by the Sonora semi-permanent silvcred needle.

Two pages are devoted to artistic illustrations of Sonora period models, and the suggestion is advanced that the dealers and their sales people acquaint themselves with the important features of these models and familiarize themselves with their selling points. The instruments presented in these two pages include the following Sonora period models, Louis XV, Duncan Phylc, Colonial and Gothic.

Edison once said he "could excuse an ignorant man groping in the dark," but he, "had no time to waste on a man that knew he was in the dark and didn't find his way out." THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., February 2.—January has certainly been some busy month in the local talking machine business. It has been the old story, difficulty of getting sufficient goods, and now that the ban is off on so many departments of war necessities money is flowing into channels which were more or less dammed up before while war activities were on. The general surmise that factories would be back to normal about March 1 has now given way to a new prediction, that it is more likely to be May, or even midsummer, as one dealer said to-day, one, too, who had just returned from one of the large factories. Of course, conditions have improved considerably over December and November, but the scarcity of goods is still a serious problem, especially in the face of greatly increased sales. With things as they are it is no easy task, in fact it calls for the exercise of great tact and good humor, for distributors to keep the trade at all satisfied.

Need of Wide Organization

Your correspondent has heard considerable talk since the last issue of The World reached town of the possibility, some say probability, of the trade soon getting together to effect some kind of a trade organization, such as was advocated in this department. The great trouble seems to be that no one wants to start the ball rolling; many are eager to fall into line if only some one will come forth and be the leader. One thing your correspondent has learned is this: That if the trade does not take the initiative soon, representatives of the Boston Chamber of Commerce will call upon the talking machine trade to declare themselves in favor of organization, for it is the determined purpose of the governing board of the Chamber to get as rapidly into line all trades and departments of business not already organized. By this means the trade will get a certain recognition from the Chamber which they do not now have, because unorganized. It is understood that the Chamber is going at this thing very seriously, and your correspondent knows for a fact that the talking machine business has been named to one of the governing board as one line of activity that needs attention. To be properly organized means a general solidifying of business all along the line, and with a concert of purpose, all for mutual good it is not inconceivable that occasions may arise when the support of one line of industry may be badly needed by another. Quite outside of the business advantages, there is the social side that might be advanced as one good reason for organization. A dinner once a month, or even bi-monthly, such as some of the organizations have, is one means of pleasant comradeship and would prove a valuable medium for members of the talking machine business to know each other better. As intimated last month, the arguments are entirely in favor of organization; there are few, if any, to offset them.

Incorporated Under Laws of Massachusetts

The Eastern Talking Machine Co. of Massachusetts was formally incorporated a week ago in accordance with the laws of this commonwealth. The capital stock is named as $300,000, and the incorporators are Charles H. Farnsworth, of Cambridge; George A. Dodge, of Boston, and James A. Morse, of Hull. Mr. Dodge, as already announced, is practically the head of the concern, which plans a big expansion of business. Under the name of the Eastern the company has been doing business here for a number of years. Originally it was incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, but one of the first things that Mr. Dodge arranged for when he took hold was to incorporate under the laws of Massachusetts, as this plan was from every point of view more advantageous to a broad conduct of business and with less hampering of influences than could have been possible under the old incorporation. Mr. Dodge has a great admiration for the Victor Company and its methods of doing business, and being distributors of that company's product it is his ambition to keep pace with it in every way possible.

Warren A. Batchelder's New Post

It will be good news to the local trade to learn that Warren A. Batchelder has come back into the trade after having been with one branch of war work since last summer. Mr. Batchelder has been at Newport News, Va., acting in an official capacity for the Motion Picture Bureau, which has been operated under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. On the first of the month Mr. Batchelder assumed his new duties as manager of the retail store which has heretofore been known as the Eastern, but which will soon be known to the public by some other name, something that will be more distinctively representative of the Victor-Victrola line. Mr. Batchelder is thoroughly acquainted with the business and has a host of friends which he made while with Chickering & Sons, the Henry F. Miller Co. and the Hume Piano Co. Meantime, a number of advantageous changes have been made in the retail establishment in Tremont Street and more are under contemplation, especially on the ground floor.

Makes Most Auspicious Start

Manager Oscar W. Ray, of the newly-formed Emerson New England, Inc., reports that his concern has made a most auspicious start and everything is looking rosy for a big year. His house has been appointed distributing agents for the Q R S player rolls and it is the plan of this concern to give twenty-four hour service, which means that all orders received will be given immediate attention. It has also been made distributing agents for the Brilliantone needles for all of New England, and an entirely new and original feature in the record industry is the flexible indestructible records in the shape of toys and talking books for children, which are largely for educational purposes. Several new people have been added to the office staff, and more will be taken on from time to time as the development of the business demands.

On Wednesday, January 22, all the local staff, with the exception of the traveling men, dined together at the Engineers' Club in Arlington Street. Arthur H. Cushman, president of the company, came over from New York. Another dinner soon will be arranged for at the same place, at which there will be present George Bliss, of the Q R S; A. H. Carlisle, vice-president of the Talking Book & Toy Corporation, and H. W. Acton, representing the Brilliantone needle. All the salesmen will also be present on this occasion.

Developing Brunswick Trade "Down East"

Now that the jobbing representation of the Brunswick phonograph has been taken over by Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., every effort is being made to push this excellent proposition to the fore among the trade. Harry Spencer, who has given the machine the most careful attention and study, is thoroughly convinced that here is something that only needs sufficient exploitation in the hands of competent demonstrators to convince people of its fine qualities. It is specially significant that since taking hold of the Brunswick this Boston company has entirely sold out its allotment and already the demand for the machines far exceeds the supply. F. H. Walter, who was the chief exploiter of the Brunswick phonograph when it was with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. at the other end of the city, is associated with the Kraft, Bates & Spencer house, and now that he is out of the service it seems good to him to be back in the trade once more.

Pathé Expansion in New England

The Brooklyn, N. Y., factory of the Pathé was honored with a visit a while ago from Manager Ainslie, of the Hallet & Davis Co., and he returned to Boston with some good shipments of goods, which carried him over a time of pressure. Manager Ainslie is getting his New England department into splendid working order. Special effort will be made from now

H. C. Spain, son of Herman T. Spain, of Chickering & Sons, is doing most effective work for the Pathe line. His special territory is New England, and lately he has been in Maine closing up with several new dealers, who are quite enthusiastic over the merits of the Pathe proposition.

Hearty Welcome for John Cavanan

Manager Henry Winkelman, of the Victor department of the Oliver Ditson Co., spent several days at the Camden, N. J., factory of the company the latter part of the month. The business done by his department in January was very satisfying, but would have been more so if all the customers desiring machines could have been more promptly taken care of.

There was one returned soldier who got a warm reception from his Oliver Ditson associates, especially those in the Victor department, and that was John Cavanan, who has been attached to United States Naval Battery No. 1. He returned to his old duties a short time ago after having been discharged from military service. He has been overseas seven months and saw severe fighting at Soissons and Verdun. Frequently men beside him were either killed outright or badly wounded, but he providentially came through without a single hurt.

C. C. Harvey Co. Musicales Interests

Following a pretty custom inaugurated last winter the C. C. Harvey Co. pleasantly entertained a large company of people one afternoon in January with a musicale at its Boylston street warerooms and in the course of the program the Victrola figured prominently. The feature of the musicale was Oscar Shaw, leading man of "Leave It to Jane," which is playing at the Majestic Theatre, around the corner from the Harvey establishment. He was assisted by several of the members of this same company. "I've Got the Blues for Home Sweet Home" was sung by Mr. Shaw and the record was subsequently played. Another number that received similar treatment was "Some Girls Do and Some Girls Don't." Following the musicale, which included the singing and the reproduction of several pieces, Winthrop A. Harvey, head of the house, entertained the contributing artists at a tea which was served in the red room. The musicale was planned and directed by Harold A. Thurlow, of Boston University.

Thomas Hindley Looks for Big Vocalion Year

Manager Thomas Hindley, of the Vocalion Co., states that his house has been vastly over-sold, and from before Christmas some of his customers have been patiently waiting for their machines. Mr. Hindley is looking for a very big year, and he is making arrangements accordingly, these including extensive changes in both the office and repair department, both of which will be subjected to a new system of operation. The record department, too, will come in for some up-to-date recognition. Thomas Pritchett, the company's auditor in the New York offices, was in town the latter part of January, remaining here a week.

Reports Large January Business

Walter J. Gillis Co., located at Henry F. Miller warerooms, has placed an attractive cover to one of the Victor supplements which brings his local distributing agency quite conspicuously forward among his patrons. He reports the January business in the Victor line as keeping up surprisingly well.

Joins New York Recording Laboratories

H. L. Coombs, who was the successful local manager of the Emerson for a time during a part of last summer and early fall, has associated himself with the New York Recording Laboratories, and for a short time has been at Port Washington, Wis., where the plant and general offices of the concern are located. Mr. Coombs, after he has become closely acquainted with the product of this house, will probably spend his time among the jobbers of the Middle West. Mr. Coombs expects to be in Boston some time during this month.

Has Quartet of Strong Men

Manager William Fitzgerald, of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., now has a quartet of strong men who are taking to the road. Charles Urlass, who has been a valuable member of the staff for some time, will cover Springfield and certain adjacent territory; H. W. Morong will devote his time to eastern Massachusetts; James Miller will take western Massachusetts and a part of New Hampshire and Vermont, and Ralph Longfellow, who comes to Manager Fitzgerald from Chickering & Sons, is having a special field mapped out for him. Manager Fitzgerald spent several days at the Camden factory the middle of the month.

Another who has joined Manager Fitzgerald's staff is Byron Dudley, who although away from the talking machine business for a time, is well-remembered by a number of people who have had occasion to patronize some of the city's leading shops. He is to be efficiency manager. It is Manager Fitzgerald's aim to make his headquarters recognized as Victor wholesale headquarters exclusively.

Shown the Sights Locally.

Walter Shannon, a new Columbia man, who is to associate himself with the New York end of the business, was in town for a week or more lately, familiarizing himself with this territory. He was taken in tow by several of Manager Mann's staff and his stay here was made quite pleasant. Mr. Shannon is to be with the Warren street, New York, branch of the company.

Demand Continues To Be Enormous.

At Manager Fred E. Hann's headquarters one learns that the Columbia business is far and away beyond the ability of the house to furnish the goods despite the fact that machines are coming along much better than a month ago. This, of course, is some compensation. Manager Mann, though there are some tempting opportunities presented, is holding off from entering into new contracts with prospective dealers, for he prefers until conditions change to keep the present dealers satisfied, especially those who have stood sympathetically with the company during its trying time. Meantime the record business is phenomenal, and according to reports it is growing by leaps and bounds.

Sylvester Succeeds Longfellow

Ralph Longfellow having resigned as head of the Edison and Victor department of Chickering & Sons, his place has been filled by the appointment of Roy Sylvester, who some time ago was with the Grafonola Company of New England and latterly at the C. C. Harvey store in Lynn. Mr. Sylvester will devote his attention to the office end of the business and the buying. Another new man at Chickering's is W. P. Dockendorfer, who is manager of the sales force.

John Alsen Will Be Home In March

John Alsen, who has been in service in France for sixteen months, writes home that he expects to be on this side sometime in March. His associates at George Lincoln Parker's Victor and Edison warerooms in the Colonial Building will be glad to welcome him back after his severe fighting in which he was wounded.

Rejoins C. E. Osgood Co.

Chester J. Sylvester, manager of the talking machine department of the C. E. Osgood Co., is back from service after an experience that unfortunately did not take him overseas. He has been at the Ensign's School at Newport, R. I., and going there first as a yeoman he was soon transferred to the Officers' Material School. Manager Sylvester reports that his competent staff did a fine business while he was away, and now that he is again on the scene he is hustling hard to get his share of the big business that is ahead for the dealers.

Charles L. Appleyard, one of Manager Sylvester's competent young men, also has been in service, but is now back home. He has been at Garden City, N. Y., with the Fifty-first Aerial Squad. About the time the armistice was signed Appleyard was expecting to be sent across.

Special Columbia Room for Youngsters

About wholesale quarters of the Columbia there is a little nursery fitted up with a Columbia machine as the chief feature, which is a great attraction to all the dealers who patronize the place. The room is done all in white, even the miniature table on which rests a Columbia machine being in that color. Everything about the room is such as would delight the eye of any youngster, and it was a happy thought of Manager Mann to make such a clever arrangement.

Form Subsidiary Company.

The Electric Supply and Equipment Co., distributors of Sonora phonographs, and of which Richard M. Nelson has been sales manager, has formed a subsidiary concern, to be known as the Musical Supply & Equipment Co., which will handle the entire musical end of its business. The headquarters of this newly-formed company will continue to be at 221 Columbus avenue, from which location all shipments will be made. With the increase of business several more people have been added to Manager Nelson's staff. The new company will confine itself exclusively to the distribution of Sonora phonographs, Vocalstyle player-piano rolls, OkeH records, and all accessories pertaining to the talking machine business. Associated with Mr. Nelson is Joseph H. Burke as assistant sales manager, who has been with Mr. Nelson in this valuable capacity now for some time.

Book Orders for Period Styles

The Boston headquarters of the Pardee, Ellenberger Co. have been meeting with notable success ever since the beginning of the year in distributing Edison goods, and Manager Silliman is especially happy in getting several good orders for some of the handsome period style of machines. Throughout Manager Silliman's territory the demand for the new records, which are coming along so well lately, has been very large.

Pleased With General Outlook

The Phonograph Supply Co. of New England, with quarters at 28 School street, has been doing very well since it opened up for business several weeks ago. Messrs. Rosen and Silverman are pleased with the outlook.

PURCHASE ANDREWS MUSIC CO.

BROCKTON, MASS., February 5.—The United Talking Machine Co., operating stores at 19 Main street, this city, and at 5-A Main street, Plymouth, has just purchased the establishment of the Andrews Music Co. at Willimantic, Conn., a place that is well known in that city. Samuel Feldman, of Plymouth, will manage the Willimantic store, Maurice Feldman, who has been located at the Brockton store since his discharge from military service, having been transferred to Plymouth. The Brockton establishment will be continued under the management of Charles Feldman and Charles Popkin, both intimately and favorably identified with the talking machine business, and who always carry a large line of Victor, Sonora, Columbia and Edison outfits. The United Talking Machine Co.'s officials are very enthusiastic over the immediate future of the talking machine business and they are on the lookout for more good stores, being desirous of being a big factor in the trade and over a wide area.

Semi-Permanent, Silvered

Needles

They're in big demand right now!

SONORA Needles are selling faster than anyone dreamed possible. Our advertising is far-reaching, and this, re-inforced by Sonora's reputation for quality, has induced the public to use these remarkable needles. One trial is enough to convince the most doubtful of their superior merit.

THIS shows on a large scale the action of the ordinary steel needle and the Sonora Needle on a phonograph record.

FIG "A"—Ordinary Steel Needle fitting record groove.

FIG. "B"—It is quite logical that the ordinary needle becomes of larger diameter at the engaging point as the needle wears down (owing to its taper form) and thus tends to wear off the edges of the groove of the record.

FIG. "C"—Sonora Semi-Permanent Needle, with parallel sides, which fits the record groove accurately always while wearing, and prolongs life of record.

They give a mellower tone, are more convenient, more economical, and preserve the records.

No matter what make or makes of phonographs and records you handle you need a stock of these popular, fast-selling Sonora needles which make an excellent profit for you.

TALKING MACHINE EXPORTS GROW

Exports, Including Records, for Eleven Months Ending November 30, 1918, Total $3,877,494

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 3.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of November, 1918 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following figures on talking machines and records appear:

The dutiable imports of talking machines and parts during November, 1918, amounted in value to $16,550, as compared with $33,815 worth, which were imported during the same month of 1917. The eleven months' total ending November, 1918, showed importations valued at $297,424, as compared with $407,117 worth of talking machines and parts imported during the same period of 1917.

The dutiable exports of records and supplies for November, 1918, were valued at $262,026, as compared with $173,159, in November, 1917. For the eleven months ending November, 1918, records and accessories were exported, valued at $2,104,778, as compared with $1,663,196, in 1917, and $1,121,885, in 1916.

VICTORY NUMBER OF THE 'TONEARM'

The January issue of the "Tonearm," the successful house organ published monthly by the Columbia Graphophone Mfg. Co., reached the company's executive offices last week, and immediately upon its receipt a note of congratulation was sent to the editors of this magazine, which was well deserved, for this edition is the finest that has yet been published.

The January issue is called a "Victory" number, and the front cover features pen and ink illustrations incidental to the W. S. S., Liberty Bond, Red Cross and War Work campaigns. The red, white and blue design forms an appropriate background for this cover.

The contents of the January "Tonearm" are unusually interesting, and every page will undoubtedly be read carefully by Columbia men. Illustrations are used to excellent advantage, and E. J. Wheadon, editor of this publication, promises that every 1919 issue will be on a par with the January number.

MOTOR CYCLE FOR DELIVERY

Popular Mechanics recently printed a picture of a motor cycle with sidecar owned by a musical instrument dealer, and used by him in a hilly section of the Middle West in delivering pianos and organs as well as talking machines. The chassis of the sidecar is provided with a platform to which the instrument is securely strapped in an upright position. According to the dealer he has never had any serious difficulty in reaching a destination with a heavy load.

The Ideal Combination

Plays All Makes of Records as they should be played

Price of Sample Prepaid
Nickel, $6.25 Gold, $7.75

Adjusted for Cabinet measuring 8 1/2 inches from center of Tonearm base to center of Turntable shaft

Distinctive Features

- ☞ The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same center in both positions.
- ☞ Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.
- ☞ The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.
- ☞ The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers.
- ☞ Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.
- ☞ The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.
- ☞ The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.
- ☞ The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

MUCH ACTIVITY IN SAN FRANCISCO DESPITE THE "FLU"

Talking Machine Dealers' Association Meets and Discusses Questions of Interest on Deferred Payments—Columbia Dealers Hold Dinner—Sherman, Clay Expansion—Stock Shortage Continues

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., January 29.—The January business with most talking machine departments has held up remarkably well considering the handicap of the "flu" epidemic. The enforcing of the mask-wearing regulation tends to keep people at home more than usual, though not to the extent noticeable during the first epidemic last fall. The shortage of Victor machines continues, but gradually the situation is improving. Popular records are not always easy to obtain. Special selling campaigns have been largely discontinued during the "flu" plague.

Meeting of Dealers' Association

The Talking Machine Dealers' Association held a meeting last week on January 16 and in conjunction the members sat down to a banquet at Bergez-Frank's Poodle Dog Cafe, as is the custom of the association upon occasion. This was the first meeting to be held for several months, yet no definite measures were acted upon officially. The "interest clause" feature in installment payments was brought up for discussion; the members argued pro and con, but could not agree on what action to take. The majority of concerns already charge interest on deferred payments and would like to adopt the plan if practicable. Some dealers have established policies, however, which it would be difficult to alter without alienating customers. F. A. Levy, president of the association, presided at the meeting, which was for the first time since his election to office.

Byron Mauzy Honored

Byron Mauzy has been honored by being elected to the presidency of the Mechanics Institute of San Francisco to succeed Livingston Jenks, who died recently. Mr. Mauzy was elevated from the position of vice president.

Dinner for Columbia Dealers

In order to promote good fellowship in the trade and to present the plans of the Columbia Graphophone Co. for the year, N. F. Milnor, general manager of the Columbia San Francisco office, has invited the Columbia dealers of the San Francisco Bay region to a dinner to be given at the St. Francis Hotel on January 30. Mr. Milnor will take advantage of the occasion to explain in detail what the company has in view for stimulating business during the year. The entertainment feature of the dinner will be the playing of the new records by Rosa Ponselle, of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

F. B. Travers to Stick to Wholesale

Because of the growing demands of the wholesale trade, F. B. Travers, Pacific Coast representative of the Sonora Co., has turned over the management of the Sonora Phonograph Shop on Stockton street in San Francisco to E. C. C. Johnston and will devote practically his entire time to the wholesale end. Mr. Johnston is an experienced talking machine man who was formerly with Sherman, Clay & Co. in the Northwest and who more recently was a lieutenant in the national army. Mr. Travers is at present calling on his agencies in South California.

New Quarters In Los Angeles

Sherman, Clay & Co. have moved into their new store in Los Angeles at 444 S. Broadway and in these quarters are better able to handle the great wholesale Victor business in the South. The company do not engage in retail business in Los Angeles, but confine themselves to the wholesale business in pianos, talking machines and other musical lines.

New Department in Redlands

The Adams Music House of Redlands, Cal., has been succeeded as Victor agents by Smith Bros., art dealers, which concern is installing a modern talking machine department. Smith

Bros. do a good business in Oriental art goods, and they believe the talking machine department will prove a valuable adjunct to their enterprise.

The Wise Hardware & Furniture Co. at Modesto, Cal., are making improvements in their talking machine department. The department will be much larger than formerly and will be modernly equipped.

Talker Men In the East

Andrew G. McCarthy, of Sherman, Clay & Co., and manager of the wholesale Victor business on the Pacific Coast, is visiting New York this month, accompanied by Fred Sherman.

Frank McGalliard, representing the Victor factory, is on his way to look after company interests in the Northwest and he will stop in San Francisco a few days this week.

Among the concerns of the San Joaquin Valley the Merced Drug Co. at Merced, Cal., is a new firm to take on the Victor line. Opening business is reported most encouraging.

TEMPORARY QUARTERS AFTER FIRE

The Phonograph Shop in Great Falls, Mont., is now located in temporary quarters at 8 Second street, North, that city, following a fire which destroyed the building in which the store was formerly located. Fortunately the staff managed to get out the stock of machines and records before they were damaged by flames.

TO OCCUPY LARGER QUARTERS

Taylor's Music House, Northampton, Mass., which handles Victrolas, together with prominent makes of pianos, has arranged to occupy new and larger quarters at 98 Pleasant street, that city, giving special attention to the talking machine department.

The Doherty Phonograph Co., Chicago, Ill., has been incorporated with capital stock of $25,000, the incorporators being Leo L. Gooch, Anna D. Gooch and Pat J. Doherty.

DEALERS ARE ANXIOUSLY AWAITING GOODS IN ST. LOUIS COURTESY THAT BROUGHT BUSINESS

Almost Impossible to Accumulate Stocks of Machines or Records to Meet Demands of Dealers Whose Shortage of Goods Is Alarming—Big Sales Campaign Under Way

St. Louis, Mo., February 5.—I asked a man the other day how the record business was. He answered: "I don't know. As far as our stock lasts it is fine and dandy. But how much better it could or would be I have no idea. The other day while in the East I heard of a jobber that was complaining about a bunch of stickers. I bought them almost without looking over them, and when I got home they had all been sold. It is my opinion if any dealer has stickers now, it is because he is not putting them before the public right."

This man probably expresses the opinion of all of the live merchants in this community. There is no jobber who will talk of 90 per cent. record shipments. They talk about 66 per cent. on new and 85 per cent. on the old catalogue, but they do not mean, usually, a shipment right off when the order is received.

And as to machines, the salesmen say that no dealers are as yet accumulating stocks and that their greatest trouble is in getting dealers to order such stock as is obtainable. All lines are promising much better shipments this month, but the salesmen and the jobbers say that unless all prospects fail there is going to be a great improvement in sales as the spring comes on. So, there you are.

Manager Staffebach, of the Pathé department of the Hellrung & Grimm Furniture Co., is planning additional demonstration rooms. The business has so outgrown the quarters that before Christmas the firm had to stop an advertising campaign that had been planned, because there were too many customers. This advertising was devoted chiefly to records and playing attachments for other machines. Mr. Staffebach says that he has not begun to see daylight in his jobbing orders on certain models.

Manager Roos, of the Columbia branch, says that his establishment continues to be chiefly a reshipping point for all except the fifty models. They get other models in in the morning and send them out in the afternoon. After a careful survey of his territory and prospects, Mr. Roos says that the only cloud that he can see in the sky is "that the factory might burn down." He cannot see anything else that is at all likely to stop business.

Mark Silverstone, president of the Silverstone Music Co., did not go to Florida as he intended last month. Instead he left early this month for the East and will attend the Edison jobbers' convention and take a rest afterward. The continued warm weather has had much to do with his prolonged stay here.

W. W. Mitchell, formerly manager of the wholesale department for the Silverstone Co., has returned to that company and is in charge of the retail department.

The morale of the Victor dealers is visibly improved since the publication here of the Victor Co.'s war ads. This is not intended to intimate that the morale had fallen low or anything like that, but the dealers were beginning to feel that they were rather in a corner. People had begun to ask, after hearing the explanation of the Victor shortage, "Well, why don't the Victor Co. tell about its work, like the safety razor and other manufacturers are doing?" Dealers in this community had been urging the Victor Co. to war work publicity for some time before the advertisements appeared. The appearance of the announcements was, therefore, met with enthusiasm.

At Aeolian Hall much satisfaction was expressed over the trade prospects, and many good words are passed for the interest shown by the public in the Vocalion records, as well as for the Vocalion instrument.

Robert H. Cone, Jr., of the Artophone Co., says that the quantity production has been a bit slower coming through than he expected, but that within the last weeks he has been able to take on some jobbing orders and meet their demands. He has increased his local advertising and the retail trade has instantly responded.

Manager Hammond, of the Vandervoort Music Salon, is exceedingly well pleased with results of the January sales. The Salon handles Victor and Brunswick instruments and has a heavy record business. Mr. Hammond recently has recruited J. B. Sabath, formerly with the Kieselhorst Piano Co., who is named as his assistant, and Roy Smith, recently with the Stewart Drygoods Co. of Louisville, Ky.

Miss Clementine Kimm, recently on the floor for the Silverstone Music Co., is now selling talking machines for the Kieselhorst Piano Co.

Loaning of Machine and Records for Hospital Concert Brings Excellent Volume of New Business to the Edison Shop in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo., February 3.—That a little courtesy that might be properly regarded as a good bit of publicity on the part of a phonograph dealer can result in some genuine business is indicated in the case of J. W. Watson, of the Edison Shop, this city, who is now selling Edison Diamond Disc phonographs and records in goodly numbers to the Catholics in a certain district of this city.

This new demand came as a result of a bit of courtesy shown to a priest by Mr. Watson. The priest came in for the purpose of hiring a machine and some records in order to give a concert in a hospital. Mr. Watson declined to rent a machine, and nearly took the priest off his feet by offering to send a machine and a liberal selection of records, and an operator to the hospital free of charge. A few days after the concert the priest himself came in and bought a $285 Edison and some records, and his parishioners have been steady customers.

"Our service is the same to every institution and with the same result always," said Mr. Watson. "Often we send out one of our men to manage the concert. After a concert at one of the churches the other night one of our salesmen sold three high-priced cabinet machines before leaving the church. It was certainly worth paying a couple of dollars for drayage for such a transaction, wasn't it?"

NOTED EVANGELIST DEAD

Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, very widely known as a preacher, lecturer and evangelist, who died on December 25, 1918, made two Scripture readings for Edison Re-Creations, which are listed in the Edison catalog as No. 80192—"Calvary" and "Peace Be Still." Dr. Chapman had a very wide following throughout the United States, and his death undoubtedly will make this number more popular.

The Interstate Phonograph Co. has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware with capital stock of $200,000 by William Schneider, Joseph Tramoloto, New York, and Harvey J. Osborne, Hackensack, N. J.

DEMAND IN KANSAS CITY CREDITED TO WAR AND QUALITY

Dealers Believe That Present Popularity of Talking Machine Is Due in Large Measure to Greatly Improved Product—Making Plans to Take Care of Future Business—General News

KANSAS CITY, Mo., February 4.—There seems to be no limit to the demand for talking machines in Kansas City. No one is able to exactly account for the great increase in the popularity of the talking machine during the past six or nine months. One dealer suggests that the war has stimulated the demand more than any other factor. People have never appreciated music as they have since and during the war. Another dealer suggests that the demand is due to the fact that the talking machine is becoming more and more nearly perfect. It is a fact that there is no comparison between the machine of to-day and that of five years ago.

The talking machine business has scarcely slacked up since Christmas, much to the surprise of most of the dealers, though it is true that part of the demand is from the same customers who attempted to get machines for the holidays, and were promised a better selection after the first of the year.

"We absolutely haven't a thing in stock," said Paul Bradford, manager of Brunswick, wholesale. "The factory is shipping direct to our dealers as soon as the machines are turned out. The Brunswick Shop, retail, is doing a fine business and there seems to be no slowing up since Christmas."

"Our business is wonderful and as yet we have experienced no shortage in merchandise," said J. W. Watson, manager of the Edison Shop, retail. "Sometimes our stock gets very low, but just in the nick of time we get in a new shipment and our customers can always be supplied. We are getting a fine lot of records now and for the first time in six months the supplements are being issued."

R. E. Wood has received an honorable discharge from service at Camp Sherman, Ill., and has returned to his position in the Victrola department of the Jones Store Co.

W. M. Hinde and O. M. Fiske, who have been connected for some time with the Edison Shop, retail, are now in the wholesale end of the business.

D. C. Deigh, with the Johnson Music Co., of Parsons, Kan., was a visitor to the trade recently and placed a large order with the Brunswick, wholesale.

Frank M. Briggs, for many years with the Victor Co., and formerly manager of the Victrola department of the Schmelzer Arms Co., is now with the local branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

R. E. Meehan, Brunswick dealer at Nourborne, Mo., died recently with the influenza.

C. B. Gammon, of the Gammon Music Co., of Carthage, Mo., recently sold out to the H. L. Beck Music Co. Mr. Gammon will take a vacation of about two months before deciding on a new location.

Flotow Evans, of the Evans book store of Pittsburgh, Kan., was a visitor to the trade recently and placed a new order for Brunswick machines.

Burton J. Pierce, manager of the Victrola department at the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., was recently in the East to attend the meeting of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers.

J. W. Jenkins, of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., and Mrs. Jenkins are spending a few weeks at a resort in Florida.

Butler & Son Piano Co., of Kansas City, Kan., Brunswick dealers, report an exceptionally fine business.

Nellie Williams, who has charge of the Victrola department at the Jones Store Co., reports a wonderful demand for machines and records. "Our customers were beginning to get very impatient, listening to the same old plea of no merchandise, but the page advertisement which has appeared in the newspapers, announcing the Victor's policy and explaining their reason for such a shortage of stock, has certainly lifted a great burden off of us," said Miss Williams.

"Our customers have been a great deal more lenient in their demands and almost apologetic in some cases for their impatience with us. It is surprising how many persons have read the advertisement. Nearly every customer makes some reference to it."

J. W. Simonson has come recently from Grinnell Bros., of Detroit, to take charge of the local branch of the Smith, Barnes & Strober Piano Co. He has been connected with the wholesale end of the music business for many years, and succeeds T. E. Johnston, who established the Kansas City branch three years ago.

S. M. Henley, manager of the Henley-Waite Music Co., and his bride spent a week in Chicago recently and attended the convention of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce.

The concerts by noted artists, such as Daisy Nellis, Guiomar Novaes, Reinald Werrenrath, Alice Neilsen, John McCormack, Eddy Brown, Roaul Vidas and others, have furnished much valuable material for advertisements during the past month. That these artists and any others of renown may be heard any night during the year, with a Victrola, Brunswick, Columbia, Edison and other machines, is the keynote of the advertisements.

MANAGING THE SALESMEN

The hardest task a man can be set to perform is to tell other people how to do a thing, when he does not know how to do it himself. A man who is set to manage a sales department should himself have had a selling experience. Usually they have been all through the mill, and that is why so many of them reach success. The best of them keep a close watch on what the salesmen are doing in the field, some insisting upon daily reports. An account is kept for each route traveled by each salesman, and the manager can tell at a glance which routes are paying best.

SOLDIER SALESMEN BACK TO TRADE IN INDIANAPOLIS

Dealers Looking Forward Hopefully to a Better Supply of Talking Machine Records—Trade Continues Very Active With Prospects of the Best—General News of Interest

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., February 1.—Local talking machine dealers are hopefully looking forward to the day when they will not have to worry about stock shortages. It is not a question of getting the business, but a question of having the goods to supply the demand, and the goods are coming from the factories slowly but surely.

Talking machine men who went to war are beginning to come back and they are finding their former positions open for them.

Emerson G. Knight, who was advertising man for the Stewart Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, until he joined the marines, will return to his position soon. Knight was wounded eight times in the St. Mihiel battle. His fellow employees at the Stewart Co. are planning a special entertainment for him.

Frank Williams, who was in the record department of the Stewart company, is expected to be back from the service soon, as is Harry Diehl. James E. Stewart has already shed his uniform and is back at work. George E. Stewart is with the army of occupation in France.

At the Edison Shop, A. H. Snyder, manager, is expecting H. G. Parker, one of his crack salesmen, who is now with the Marines, to be back on the job soon.

Following the return of Ben Brown, manager, and O. A. Wilkinson, dictaphone manager, from the New York Columbia convention, employees of the wholesale branch of the Columbia Co. here gave a luncheon at the Hotel Lincoln. W. G. Westenfeld and William E. C. Heyn, auditors of the company, made speeches. Mr. Brown, George L. Schuetz and J. L. Peters were the other Columbia men who talked on Columbia business.

Robert D. Duffy is now traveling the Kentucky territory for the Columbia company and J. A. Kirkpatrick has succeeded him as assistant manager to Mr. Brown.

The Stewart Talking Machine Co. is enlarging its record department and will be prepared to carry one of the largest record stocks in the Middle West. George E. Stewart and family are in Florida for the winter.

R. B. Goldsberry, manager of the Pathé department of the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., reports that January this year exceeded January in 1918 by 400 per cent. The Pathé record business has been so large that Mr. Goldsberry has not been able to keep up the stock. The D. N. Foster Furniture Co. of Ft. Wayne has put in a talking machine department and is handling the Pathé line.

George H. Standke, manager of the Brunswick Shop, is in Cincinnati on business for several days. Business at the Brunswick Shop has been fine.

A. H. Snyder, manager of the Edison Shop, reports that the cash business was the feature of the January business.

H. E. Whitman, manager of the Pearson Piano Co. talking machine department, says that business is excellent.

W. E. Pearce, manager of the talking machine department of the local Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. branch, says that big prospects are in sight.

C. P. Herdman, manager of the talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co. store, says that January ran three times ahead of January in 1918.

C. H. Sallee, retail sales manager of the Starr Piano Co. store, is pleased with the business in Starr talking machines.

J. L. Peter, manager of the Columbia store, says that business is keeping up steadily.

E. R. Eskew, manager of the Pathé Shop, says his store will soon have one of the biggest record stocks in Indiana and that the Pathé machines and records will be pushed hard. Mr. Eskew is well pleased with the prospects ahead.

At the Fuller-Ryde Music Co. Mr. Ryde reports the talking machine business as very satisfactory with the only complaint being in the present shortage of machines and records.

FIGURES ON FOREIGN TRADE

The Total Shows a Small Net Increase—Gain in Imports More Than Offsetting the Decline in Exports—Ocean Tonnage Improves

Figures covering the foreign trade of the United States during 1918, announced recently by the Department of Commerce, show a small net increase in the total, a gain in imports more than offsetting the decline in exports. The value of exports during the year was reported as approximately $6,150,000,000, compared with $6,226,255,000 in 1917, while the value of imports was $3,031,000,000, against $2,952,465,000 in 1917. Exports during December were valued at $566,000,000, a gain from $522,171,664 in November, imports aggregating $211,000,000 compared with $251,008,037 in the preceding month. The improvement in the supply of ocean tonnage and the removal of restrictions on foreign commerce by the Government are factors tending toward an expansion of trade, but conditions of supply and demand in the world's markets may prevent such a development reaching any great proportions at this time.

GETTING MORE MUSIC ON TALKING MACHINE RECORDS

World Correspondent Suggests Practicability of a Record of Larger Diameter Than Those Now Favored for Purpose of Carrying Music of Entire Opera or Symphony

Ever since the development of the talking machine record to a point where its musical possibilities were generally recognized, there has been much discussion as to the advisability and practicability of recording entire operas, or a lengthy musical composition complete on one record face, enlarging the size of the record to an 18 inch diameter, or more if necessary. Although experts have held that proper results could not be obtained by making records of 20 inch diameter or so, considerable thought has still been given to this question of getting more music on the record.

In this connection the following letter to The World from Theodore Fletcher, of San Antonio, Texas, is particularly interesting, and the editor of this publication would welcome comments from trade experts on the theories advanced by Mr. Fletcher, who says:

"Why is it that, since the popularity of the talking machine has become so pronounced, and its sales so great, nothing practical has been done to increase the capacity of the disc to enable longer pieces of music being performed.

"The tone of all standard machines is now so good that it would be folly for any maker to place an inferior article on the market, as it would have no sale.

"The result is that makers are now featuring details or adding improvements in the construction of the motor or cabinet and not adding one thing to improve the general utility of the machine.

"In 1888, Bell and Tainter took out a patent for a machine whose object it was to 'provide a uniform speed of disc travel under the stylus,' both for recording and for reproducing sound; the result of this aim was to greatly increase the capacity of a disc and also produce a uniformity of sound, for the vibrations producing a given note would always be of the same dimensions, no matter whether they were near the circumference or the centre of the disc. Not only this, but by adopting this method of making records, no reasonable limit need govern the size of the disc, and it becomes possible to reproduce whole acts from operas or sonatas, etc., instead of having to only reproduce snatches of the songs as is now the case, or in case of overtures, carrying them on several discs, which is an abomination, for the continual stopping, turning over the disc and starting again is not only a great nuisance, but greatly detracts from the enjoyment of the piece.

"A machine successfully constructed to give the disc a gradually increasing speed when the record is being made from the circumference toward the centre, or a gradually decreasing speed if made outwardly, so that uniform disc speed is maintained under the stylus throughout, should prove most advantageous, for a disc made this way, and having a diameter of 14 inches, 150 lines of phonograms to the inch, and a disc speed under the reproducer of 18 inches per second, would require about 20 minutes to play; and an 18 inch disc ought to carry a complete act of an opera, a long lecture, speech or reading.

"These advantages are worth while in my estimation, for think what a boon a machine of this description would be in a home or a hospital, a lecture room or a theatre, where a speech delivered by the world's great speakers could be heard.

"Mechanical difficulties prevented the successful working of the patent mentioned. Since then several other inventions have been brought out to attain the same object, but so far none are on the market.

"If this object can be worked out in a mechanical and positive manner, and the machine also able to rotate the disc at a uniform speed as the present standard machines do, so that it could also play the present standard record, do you think that it would have a bright future? And do you think that there is a field for an invention of this description?

"It seems to me that if this object is attained it would be a decided improvement on the present standard machines for use in places where continuous music was required."

MAKING STATISTICS PROVE USEFUL

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce Rearranging Its Tabular Statistics of Imports and Exports So as to Be of More Service

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is engaged in the task of rearranging its tabular statistics of imports and exports so as to make them of greater service. The first great step in this direction is the preparing of a proper and adequate classification. Up to the present time articles brought in or shipped out have been arranged in alphabetical order, with a few groups classified. This has its disadvantages, as those can testify who have tried, for instance, to look up "rubber" only to find it, after needless labor, under the I list as India rubber. Then the lists were subdivided in accordance with provisions in the tariff acts, which may have had its advantages when the duties were to be tinkered with, but which was the despair of all who had to consult them. The latter were forever running across the "N. E. S."—otherwise, not elsewhere specified—which included very many of the articles which business men were interested in. In the new classification there is not only a natural grouping similar to that in use in British and other statistics of trade, but the subdivisions are sufficiently detailed and explicit to be really informing.

Another good idea which is being carried out is a co-operation with the Census Bureau, so that a similar classification of domestic production may be made. In this way it will be possible to make comparisons of production, imports, and exports of the same articles. Suggestions are still invited from all interested for further improvement.

More people might try to pose as angels if everybody didn't start right in and begin to look at them with suspicion.

DEMAND FOR "TALKERS" GROWING THROUGH NORTHWEST

Manufacturers Will Have to Work Overtime to Supply Trade Needs—No Slowing Up in Retail Demand Since Holidays—Jobbers and Dealers Optimistic Over Outlook

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., February 3.—Talking machine factories will be compelled to run overtime to supply the Northwest with instruments during the coming year. There is no other alternative, for the people must have thousands of instruments and a plentiful supply of records. Dealers rather anticipated that there would be a marked decrease in the demands for music producers after the holidays, but the rush continues unabated and as far as appearances go the dealers are being driven as hard during the first week of February as they were just before Christmas. All hopes of assembling a good show line and a reserve stock have been wholly abandoned for the nonce. Shipments are better, but still fall far short of satisfying the incessant craving.

At the Edison Shop in Minneapolis Manager Milton H. Lowy last week was obliged to add two salesmen to his already large staff and to put another assistant in the record room. This in February, bear in mind. He reports that the wholesale business of the Minnesota Phonograph Co. for January was more than three times the output for January, 1918. Laurence H. Lucker, president of the company, was confined to the house for more than seven weeks with the Spanish influenza. He spends part of the day now at the office, but is not equal to a full day's work as yet.

The clouds that have been hovering over E. O. Kern, Northwestern manager for the Brunswick phonographs, are beginning to disappear, but he still thinks that the fates are playing against him, for he insists that he can sell Brunswicks faster than he can get them. George M. Nye is back from the army. Instead of reopening the Brunswick shop he will be on the road for the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co.

Eight drays were in line at the Foster &

Waldo store when it opened Saturday morning. They were there to take away talking machines—Victors, Edisons, Columbias and Sonoras—to various parts of the Twin Cities. There has been very little diminution from the unsurpassed rush prevailing prior to the holidays.

Having very few graphophones in hand, Manager W. L. Sprague, of the Columbia Co., made a tour of the West during the first part of February to look over the agencies in the Dakotas and Montana. Assurances have been given that Grafonolas will be more plentiful in a short time, as the manufacturing plants are getting down to normal basis, and all the handicaps are disappearing very rapidly. W. D. & C. N. Andrews to Move Business to Builders' Exchange on June 1 After Extensive Alterations Are Completed—Announce Discontinuance of the Retail Department

BUFFALO, N. Y., February 5.—C. N. Andrews, of W. D. & C. N. Andrews, prominent Victor wholesalers of this city, has purchased the Builders' Exchange at a price said to be in the neighborhood of $200,000, and after alterations costing several thousand dollars more the company will occupy the premises as an exclusive Victor wholesale house about June 1, giving up their present store at 632-634 Main street. The entire first two floors of the building will be fitted up for the Victor business and will be handsomely equipped and furnished.

W. D. & C. N. Andrews have incidentally sent a circular letter to the trade, dated February 1, announcing that they will discontinue their retail business on March 1, and will have no financial interest either directly or indirectly new line of Columbia records have been received and have been demonstrated to a number of Twin City dealers.

Of late the St. Paul and Minneapolis dailies have been carrying full-page ads of the Victor Co., explaining why there had been such a grievous shortage of Victor goods and giving assurance that the company will bend every effort to satisfy the long suffering and sorely tried public. The company can't move any too rapidly for W. J. Dyer & Bro. and the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., Northwestern jobbers, and a score of Twin City dealers who virtually have "sweat blood" during the past year.

W. J. Dyer & Bro. are enlarging their Victor quarters by adding two large rooms on the fourth and fifth floors of the Dyer Building to the jobbing department. This will give about 3,300 square feet of additional space and should relieve the pressure considerably.

BIG DEMAND FOR FOREIGN RECORDS

ATLANTA, GA., February 6.—Westervelt Terhune, manager of the local branch of the Columbia Co., recently enjoyed a visit from S. R. Lemberg, special representative of the foreign record department. Mr. Lemberg visited the principal trade centers in the Southeastern territory, and in company with the regular Columbia traveler in each particular district he called upon the dealers and after an interesting talk succeeded in every instance in placing with them a full assortment of foreign records which were most salable in that locality. From here Mr. Lemberg went to New Orleans and Southwestern points. The Columbia Co. have stocked a lot of supplies of foreign records in all languages in their distributing warehouse here.

TALKING MACHINE JOBBERS CONVENE IN PHILADELPHIA

Two-Day Session of Executive Committee and Members of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers Devoted to Discussion of Trade Problems Which the Future Will Present—Annual Convention to Be Held at Atlantic City June 30-July 1—Victor Co. Entertains

PHILADELPHIA, PA., January 28.—The executive committee and a goodly number of members at large of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers have just completed a most interesting two-day convention at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton, this city, at which the problems of the moment and the prospects for the future were discussed at length, and course of action decided upon.

On Monday morning there was a meeting of the members at large for the formulation of suggestions regarding matters to be brought up by the executive committee for action.

One of the first and most important matters to be discussed was that concerning the equalization of freight charges to jobbers in all sections of the country to be brought about by billing machines and records f. o. b. destination at a uniform price. The jobbers gave the plan their unanimous approval, and the Western members of the trade were particularly enthusiastic regarding it. The jobbers placed the matter before the Victor Co. for action, presenting their arguments in the form of a brief.

Another important matter was the reading of a report from Edmund A. Whittier, secretary of the American Fair Trade League, regarding the favorable status of the Stephens bill for the maintenance of retail prices, with the new amendments added to the bill, giving supervision of price-fixing methods to some Governmental agency, preferably the Federal Trade Commission. Mr. Whittier called attention to the fact that the Federal Trade Commission itself was converted to the idea that some price maintenance plan was necessary for the protection of legitimate business, provided the plan was properly supervised and controlled, and had gone before Congress with the suggestion that some legislation of that sort be adopted. It was the opinion of Mr. Whittier that the Stephens bill had a fair chance of becoming a law during the next session of Congress.

The jobbers also gave considerable attention to the record situation, and urged the Victor Co. to devote all energies to the issuing of a sufficient quantity of records of the popular numbers of the day to take proper care of the demand for those numbers while it is still active. There was also some discussion regarding the record catalog, and the further suggestion was made that some cut-out system be devised that would not only take care of records that have outlived their usefulness, but would also serve to reduce the number of artists, or at least keep the number down to a certain level, by cutting out those artists who had outlived their popularity, substituting therefor artists who had since risen to fame.

In considering the question of the reconstruction period, the jobbers emphasized the fact that the factory, jobber and dealer should all work together for the sole purpose of getting back to a pre-war position and then advancing by taking advantage of the lessons of the war, and continuing such economies as had proven practical and valuable. The main thought was that the most important question was that of keeping up an increasing production to a point where competition would again be on a basis of merit rather than existing because of the inability to supply goods.

The chief object was to get back to a normal basis so that normal profits could be enjoyed, and this plan could be most rapidly accomplished by an observance of a liberal sales policy from the factory right down the line.

It appeared to be the opinion of the jobbers that the existing list prices should not be reduced by the factory for a considerable period at least, or until the trade could be readjusted. Should any reduction in manufacturing costs be realized, as will probably be the case, it is felt that this saving should be distributed between the wholesaler and retailer to enable them to cover properly the increased cost of doing business, and likewise offset in some measure the heavy losses of income during the war period. Particularly will it be necessary for wholesalers and dealers to realize larger returns on their businesses in order to cover the increased taxation provided for in the new Revenue bill. It was felt that there was plenty of time in the future to consider any general plans for list price reduction.

Inasmuch as there are numerous problems cropping up of interest to the association membership at large, it was decided to hold a general convention at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, on June 30 and July 1, the arrangements for the meeting being under the supervision of Louis Buehn.

Tuesday morning the general meeting was addressed by Gilbert H. Montague, counsel of the association, who outlined briefly the legal situation as it now exists and affects the industry, paying particular attention to the effects of the recent Colgate decision on the question of price maintenance, and likewise reviewing the progress of the Macy suit, in which a number of jobbers are cited as defendants. Mr. Montague went into considerable detail and his remarks were most illuminating to the jobbers.

Following the address of the association's counsel, the executive committee went into closed session for the purpose of putting into proper shape the matters to be taken up with the factory officials.

At noon the jobbers were the guests of the Victor Co. at luncheon at the Bellevue-Stratford, at which were present Victor Co. officials and department heads. After the luncheon there was held a general meeting at which various trade questions were discussed by jobbers and factory men, the results of the deliberations not being given for publication. In the evening the jobbers were the guests of the Victor Co. at a theatre party, the play being "The Better 'Ole" at a Broad street theatre.

Clement Beecroft, the well-known cabinet and accessory man, acted as a sort of reception committee of one during the jobbers' meet and displayed his hospitality by taking a group of the visitors on an auto trip to Hog Island, the big shipbuilding plant whence have come many ships and some scandal.

Walter B. Fulghum, formerly manager of the order department for the Victor Co., also dropped into the Ritz during the meeting. Mr. Fulghum is now a Victor dealer in Richmond, Ind., and had to stand for some good-natured joshing about being on the receiving end for Victor goods.

Those present at the meeting included J. Newcomb Blackman, Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, president; I. Son Cohen, Cohen & Hughes, Inc., Baltimore, vice-president; Arthur A. Trostler, Schmelzer Arms Co., Kansas City, treasurer; J. C. Roush, Standard Talking Machine Co., Pittsburgh, secretary; George E. Mickel, Mickel Bros. Co., Omaha; James F. Bowers and L. C. YOU'VE got it; use it, please, in connection with this "picture" of the NIGHTINGALE.

Pictures don't tell you much about a talking machine; it isn't like putting in a line of tables or other furniture. You know how many phonographs you'd sell if printed reproductions were all your customers had to go by.

Outward beauty counts, of course; so do cabinet work and finish. But charm of tone, mechanical perfection and all-round "playability" tell most of the tale. They really make the value.

We ask you to fill out in your imagination our outline of the NIGHTINGALE. And to use your sound business sense in judging what must be in the instrument to make it the sure-fire profit-bringer that it's proven. Then send a try-out order. We'll gladly ship on trial. Suspend judgment and further action till you see your first NIGHTINGALE. But at least write for one today.

GEORGE E. BRIGHTSON IS HONORED BY HIS CO-WORKERS

Officers of Sonora Companies Present President Brightson With Handsome Gold Loving Cup at Complimentary Dinner—Appreciative Address Made by Mr. Brightson Aroused Enthusiasm

At a complimentary dinner given recently to President George E. Brightson by officers of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. and Sonora Phonograph Corp. and members of these organizations who have been with Sonora for some time, there was presented to Mr. Brightson a handsome gold loving cup on which was inscribed:

"Presented by the board of directors of the Sonora Phonograph Corp. and Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. to George E. Brightson in recognition of his skilful leadership in directing the Sonora phonograph to its supreme position in the talking machine industry. January 13, 1919."

It so happened that the secret had been very well kept and Mr. Brightson was quite overwhelmed when the cup was handed to him. He quickly took in the situation, however, and responded with a clever, impromptu speech, saying in part:

"After listening with great interest and appreciation I wish to thank you all for this great realize that I am somewhat in an embarrassing position.

"I have heard much said this evening of what I did. I hope you will not misunderstand me come any and all difficulties which may arise.

"Friction in mercantile industries and management of organization is very frequent. When I tell you there never has been any in either of our two companies or boards or in any of our executive work or planning, do you wonder at our great success? There has been, at all times, just the sweetest atmosphere existing and causing me to feel as if a halo were or think for a moment I do not fully appreciate all the eloquent and complimentary things which have been said of me this evening, when I say to you—it was we who did it. Most of you know, as I do, what one person can do with his head and hands is limited, but with an organization, be it large or small, results count by all pulling on the same string at the same time, pulling together with each and everyone looking the way they are pulling—not to look one way and pull another. With this condition great things have been accomplished by our Sonora organization.

"When I tell you that from the time of our first board of directors—a small one then in number—up to the present two boards, consisting of five to seven—twelve in all—there has been no time that I have met any opposition from these boards to my suggestions, and every motion or resolution has been favored by their approval, always unanimous, and that means much to a presiding officer. It is helpful, encouraging, and has caused me to feel at all times that I had a granite foundation under me. With that feeling as a keystone you can accomplish almost anything you undertake and over-about my head at all times. It is true we have achieved great results in a very short time—I might say most of it in four years. Our growth has attracted the attention of banking institutions and frequent comments have been made such as: 'It is almost unbelievable,' and in one case a bank president said to me that there was no record of the growth of any mercantile industry in this country that he could find that could compare with Sonora's results, he dwelling on our healthy condition and the liquidness of our assets. In this short time we have grown from a small business of a few thousands into millions. I must say, myself, I wonder at it—especially when I look back to early 1912 and remember that there were at that time not more than twelve people in our employ—mostly boys—very few of them past the voting age. Today I glance over our payrolls and find we can count our employes by the thousands, controlling as we do large plants in various places in this country and one of the very largest and of the highest reputation in our line in Switzerland, together with properties of our own also in this country, and I am not surprised that outsiders wonder at what we have accomplished.

"It was my pleasure to report at the board meeting in January that neither the Sonora Phonograph Corp. nor the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. owed a dollar for borrowed money; in other words, they had cleaned up during the year with all their banks, and in December anticipated much that was to come due in January. This will, no doubt, surprise many of you who are merchants, for you know how difficult it is to be entirely free from the use of any bank, with large growing businesses, rolling up, as in our case, in the millions.

"I cannot accept from you all that has been said this evening—that I did it. In 1912 I had with me a young executive worker who has been with me continually ever since, and I am sanguine from our results he has not thought of much of anything else from that day up to the present time. He had enjoyed with me our great achievements. At the beginning of our organization I did not have his usefulness during the first four months, for I was obliged to give him a vacation because of an impairment of his health, or nervous condition resulting from his former employment.

"In referring to this young man I wish to say from that moment to this he has been a right arm to me and of wonderful assistance, and I wish to say much credit is due him and I would feel, at this time, dishonest, if I withheld from him any credit which rightfully belongs to him. I cannot say enough along that line, for one so young, he has done his part fully and well and is entitled to his full share of the credit in our growth. I will ask Joseph Wolff to rise that you may all look at the one to whom I wish to give praise for his loyalty and industrious ability.

"Passing from reference to this young man I wish to say there are others who have been very helpful to me, and while time will not permit me to mention all, I feel it only proper that I should refer to the great value Mr. Morse has been to me, from our beginning, Mr. Coupe, after he joined our company in his capacity of sales and advertising manager, and Mr. Jennings as our assistant treasurer, and while so far I have only mentioned the male members of our organization, we likewise have many very useful young women who have taken their place and been of very valuable assistance to our organization, and inasmuch as we have presented two at this gathering I must give each of these two full share of their credit in our great work; Miss Mahoney, in charge of our correspondence, and Mrs. Brewster, the only female manager we have at any of our distributing stores. Their work has been of great value, and if time would afford I would be glad to dwell more on what they have accomplished for us.

"There have been many compliments paid me this evening. I appreciate them all fully. I feel like saying to you, however, as Charles Schwab did when he was placed in a similar position by reason of a complimentary dinner given to him in the Astor ballroom of this same hotel, where it was my pleasure to be the guest of our vice-president, Mr. Hasell—that he appreciated the compliments paid him and that he wished it to be fully understood, but the most pleasant and helpful compliment which he had ever received was from the workmen on the scaffolds surrounding the building of the ships, as he passed through the yards at the beginning of the great work—the men shouting, 'We are with you, Charlie.' He knew that alone he could do but little, but with his subordinates who gave him great assistance at that time, and the assurance of his workmen he felt he had a foundation beneath him and he set about making good the Government's requirements with assurance that he could do something, or at least make a great try at it. I have had that same experience with all of my employes from the beginning. We did it—not I."

HOW WAR DEMANDS INTERFERED

With Production of Mica Diaphragms for Talking Machine Industry—J. L. Frazee's Views

In a chat this week with The World J. L. Frazee, head of the Phonograph Appliance Co., New York, commented upon the fact that the company has recently made arrangements whereby its production of Crystal Edge mica diaphragms will be increased for 1919, adding:

"During the period of the war we were obliged to concentrate the greater part of our activities upon the production of mica products of all descriptions for the Government. We received large contracts for essential mica products, and these contracts required so much of our manufacturing space that we were able to give talking machine manufacturers only a comparatively limited degree of service. Our patrons, however, appreciated the difficulties under which we worked, and we feel indebted to the phonograph industry for the broad spirit which it has evidenced toward us during these trying times.

"With the signing of the armistice, however, we have been enabled to concentrate the production of our commercial mica business in our North Carolina factory, leaving our New York plant free and clear for the production of mica diaphragms exclusively. In addition to this increase in facilities we have enlarged our New York factory considerably, and are making plans to give the phonograph industry maximum efficiency and service during 1919. We will specialize to a considerable degree on the production of first grade India mica diaphragms, and will also turn out large quantities of Brazilian and domestic mica diaphragms."

Mr. Frazee returned recently from a trip through the Middle West, where he closed large contracts with some of the leading manufacturers in this section of the country. He states that the talking machine industry is enjoying a boom period, and that, judging from all indications, this era of prosperity will continue for some time to come.

DEALERS IN CINCINNATI ARE JUST "CHASING RAINBOWS"

Anxiously Awaiting Stocks to Help Them Fill Up Pots of Gold—Shipments Beginning to Arrive With More Regularity—Some Recent Changes Among the Local Staffs

CINCINNATI, O., February 7.—Another month is expected to see a decided improvement in the matter of supplies for talking machine dealers in the Middle West, but just now the situation is regarded as being almost hopeless. There is hardly a house in Cincinnati with a full supply of various sizes of talking machines and the buyers who continue to force their way into establishments either must purchase the art styles or the low-priced models.

Just now the great desire of the trade is to get stock and to get 'em by express since freight shipments take almost triple the usual time between Cincinnati and Eastern points. There has been a greater offering of Liberty bonds, which are being taken at the prevailing market price, in the purchase of talking machines. People appear to be anxious to dispose of their savings.

It is quite interesting to drop into the Columbia wholesale quarters on West Fourth avenue at the end of a big month like January, and in the midst of stock taking. W. G. Wustefeld, one of the company's auditors, is at the local branch checking the books and accounts, and at this writing is engaged in counting the several hundred thousand records carried in stock at this branch.

Geo. H. Williams, who has been serving the Cincinnati branch in the capacity of assistant manager for the past two months, left Cincinnati the last day of January to return to his old home at Seattle, Wash. He did not announce his future plans before leaving Cincinnati.

N. B. Smith, formerly associated with the general sales department at the Executive Office, New York, who has been appointed assistant manager at the Cincinnati Branch, took up his duties as such the first of February.

Manager Sigman, of the Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., is an optimistic man these days. His only big worry is slow shipments from the Victrola factories. He said:

"January, 1919, started out with a rush of orders which no doubt will cause even the most pessimistic talking machine dealer to sit up and take notice. Never in the history of the industry has such an avalanche of orders poured into our office, for both machines and records. Many out-of-town dealers visited our store, and it was very gratifying to notice the enthusiasm over the prospects of the future. Large machine and record orders were placed, and the trend seemed to be toward the higher price instruments.

"We are receiving large shipments of the red seal records from the factory, although it is hard to stock them, for they are sold as rapidly as received. Talking machine owners are gradually becoming educated regarding their great value, for they realize that records made by the great operatic artists can be heard over and over again with increasing pleasure. While the shortage will continue for sixty or ninety days, the wise dealers who place their orders early will not regret it, for there is every reason to believe that the year 1919 will prove to be the best year since the talking machine was placed upon the market."

Using the sheet music business as a basis for the idea, the Willis Music Co. will carry an entire catalog of records in its Victor department to be opened on West Fourth street about February 15 under the management of F. F. Summey. A few machines have already been secured, but the great desire of Mr. Summey is for records and more records. He intends to carry everything worth while in the disc line.

The Otto Grau Co. is putting some "pep" in its Victrola department. The Brunswick machine may be added to the line of that house.

The Crystola is being handled by the Butler Bros. Co., jobbers and manufacturers of pianos.

The Phonograph Co., of this city, expects to have a normal supply of Edison machines by April 1. Of course there will be some shipments in the meantime, but nothing like what Manager Oelman could use.

"The biggest January in the history of the Vocalion business" is the comment of C. L. Byars, manager of the Vocalion department of the local Aeolian store. "In spite of the fact that thousands of dollars' worth of business was lost, owing to the shortage of goods, there was a 20 per cent. increase in the business over the best January ever experienced. It is heartrending," he says, "to see business walking out of your store simply because you haven't goods to demonstrate."

J. F. McCarthy, who has been connected with the Vocalion sales force for several months, recently severed his connection with the Aeolian Co., and is going into the insurance business with one of the local companies.

Miss Dorothy Goodwin, one of the most clever record salesladies in the city, left the employ of the Aeolian Co. February 1 to take up her new position as assistant librarian in the Cincinnati College of Art. Miss Goodwin is a student of art and has real talent along that line, and her new position should be a great help to her in fulfilling her ambitions.

When we decided to add a record line to our phonograph department, we determined to carry a record that would give prestige to our business, and prove profitable to our dealers. After months of investigation we chose the OkeH Record as best meeting all of these requirements.

We are now ready to give our dealers practical co-operation in developing their OkeH Record business, and are certain that this line will prove a valuable adjunct to their general phonograph business.

If you handle the OkeH line there is no waiting for records that are "hits" of the day. This library records the "hits" promptly and we place them in your hands when you need them most. Just phone us that you need certain records, and we will send you your complete order the same day.

SEVERAL INTERESTING CHANGES IN MILWAUKEE TRADE

Wholesale and Retail Departments of Edison Representation Separated—Mrs. Geo. H. Eichholz Now Sole Owner of G. H. Eichholz Co.—Chas. J. Orth Honored—Sonora Outfit for Y. M. C. A.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., February 5.—The manner in which talking machine business has been maintained since the holidays is characterized as simply wonderful by local dealers. They have never known anything like it. January business was by far the most active and the largest in volume for the first month of the year that has yet been recorded and February has opened in a similar manner.

Only a continued shortage of instruments and records prevents the volume of business from being even larger than it is. While dealers are crying for instruments and records, the jobbers report that factories are swamped with their requirements. Deliveries have increased materially in the last few weeks, but the demand is such that jobbers cannot even place goods on their floors, being compelled to ship immediately upon receipt. In many instances cars are unloaded, goods checked, cases remarked and sent on their way to the dealer without ever seeing the jobbers' warehouse.

The record situation is perhaps worse than that on machines and the supply of certain numbers is equal to only a very small percentage of the demand, with back orders piling up in enormous fashion. "Smiles" has taken the lead as the most sought and least supplied record in the history of the local talking machine business. "Till We Meet Again" is another number that is breaking all popularity records.

The divorcement of the wholesale and retail departments of the Edison representation in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, concerning which mention was made in the January issue of The World, has been consummated. The Edison Shop, 213-215 Second street, which was the retail division of the Phonograph Co. of Wisconsin, located at the same address, was discontinued January 25 and the business distributed among the five Edison retailers located in as many sections of the city. Hereafter the Phonograph Co. will concentrate on the wholesale end of the business. William A. Schmidt is manager.

Another announcement of interest is that made February 1, stating that the George H. Eichholz Co., 542 Twelfth street, Edison and Victor dealer, has passed into the sole ownership of Mrs. George H. Eichholz, who also assumes the active management and direction of the business. The Eichholz store is one of the earliest retail establishments in Milwaukee and always has handled both the Edison and Victor. Its founder, George H. Eichholz, died in May, 1918, since which time his partner, Frank Preuss, has acted as manager, assisted by Mrs. Eichholz.

Charles J. Orth, exclusive wholesale representative of the Puritan phonograph and Paramount records in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, was signally honored and given rank with the great composers when the Chicago Symphony Orchestra gave Mr. Orth's symphonic poem, "Romance," a place on the regular program at the Chicago concert on January 30 and the Milwaukee concert on February 3. Only one other Milwaukee composer, Hugo Kaun, was ever honored in this manner. As a composer Mr. Orth is perhaps best known by his descriptive piece, "In a Clock Store," which came to be one of the best sellers in the talking machine catalogs, and also was played by Sousa's band on its famous international tour.

An interesting demonstration of the New Edison Re-Creation was given in Milwaukee during the week of January 20, when Lou Chiha, "Friscoe," the noted xylophonist, played in comparison to one of his own Edison records on the Majestic stage. Fortunately the entire bill of that week was of "all-star" quality, so that Chiha's act was witnessed by more than an ordinary number of people.

A large Sonora and a full complement of records formed a gift made to the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. last week by Fred C. Yahr, secretary of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., distributor of the Sonora, in association with Frank C. Klode, head of the C. W. Fischer Furniture Co., a Sonora retailer of Milwaukee. Messrs. Yahr and Klode have made frequent contributions to "Y" activities in the past, but none seems to be appreciated quite as much as this donation of an instrument and records.

as president. Mr. Zinke served as secretary during the past year and accomplished so many big things that when his name was advanced for the presidency there was no opposition and the election was by acclamation. Paul F. Net-zow, of the Waltham Piano Co., was re-elected vice-president. C. LeRoy Dennis, secretary of the National Association of Piano Merchants, and secretary and manager of the Better Business Bureau of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, was chosen secretary. William R. Winter was re-elected treasurer. The retiring president, Henry M. Steussy, was elected to the board of directors, succeeding Fred B. Bradford. Leslie C. Parker and Edmund Gram were re-elected directors. The association had a most successful year and plans to do even bigger things this year. President Zinke and Secretary Dennis have determined upon a course of action that ought to make the music trade of the entire country "sit up and take notice." The establishment of a retail credit bureau and the organization of a State association of music dealers are two of the principal aims of the new administration.

W. H. ALFRING'S EXTENDED TRIP

W. H. Alfring, manager of the Aeolian Co.'s wholesale departments, left recently for a trip to the Pacific Coast, and according to his itinerary will be away until March 1. Mr. Alfring will visit the Vocalion jobbers and dealers in many of the leading cities, and judging from the remarkable volume of business closed by Aeolian-Vocalion representatives in 1918 his visit will be timely.

PITTSBURGH TRADE AGAINST ACCEPTING LIBERTY BONDS

Discourage Practice of Taking Bonds in Payment of Merchandise at Face Value—General Business Conditions Improving—Princess Watahwaso Entertains Children—General News

PITTSBURGH, PA., February 8.—Trade conditions in talking machines in Pittsburgh are exceedingly brisk, that is, based on the amount of talking machines and records that the dealers are able to obtain. There is a tremendous demand for all the leading makes of instruments, and every jobber and retail dealer seen by The World representative the past week had the same tale to tell: "Have plenty of customers, but not enough goods to satisfy them."

S. H. Nichols, general manager of the local branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co. is very optimistic concerning trade conditions for 1919. He stated that January sales far exceeded his expectations and that there was an enormous demand for Grafonolas and Columbia records. The record business, Mr. Nichols said, "was simply amazing."

Another new Victrola shop for the Pittsburgh district will be opened on February 15 by George S. Hards, in Dormont, a residential suburb and community in which music is regarded as essential as eating. Mr. Hards, who retired on January 15 as manager of the retail Victrola department of the W. F. Frederick Piano Co., which position he held for the past nine years, has fitted out a fine Victrola shop in Potomac avenue, Dormont, and has been busy the past few days in a line of publicity work calling the attention of the public to the new shop.

The Pittsburgh Talking Machine Dealers' Association at their January meeting adopted a resolution to the effect that the membership discourage the taking of Liberty Bonds in exchange for talking machines and records. It was agreed that in cases where the dealer was compelled to take Liberty Bonds this would be done by accepting the bonds at their market value and not at face value as has been the custom.

More than 1,500 school children were entertained in a most delightful manner at the Schenley High School early in January, when Princess Watahwaso, the well-known Victor artist, sang, told Indian stories and danced. She sang all of the songs that are recorded in Victor records and also a number of others. She was given a remarkable ovation by the children who were fortunate enough to hear and see her. A similar entertainment was held later in the Holmes school. Both entertainments were arranged by Miss Lillian A. Wood, the popular director of the Victor educational department of the C. C. Mellor Co.

In response to a call from T. B. Windsor, a talking machine dealer of Tarentum, Pa., who handles the Victrola, Edison phonographs and Columbia Grafonolas, Princess Watahwaso gave a most delightful recital in the Tarentum Young Men's Christian Association on Saturday afternoon, February 1. Princess Watahwaso is now en route to the Central West on a concert tour.

The Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributors, report trade conditions as "very good." A. A. Buehn, manager of the company, was very hopeful concerning the immediate future of the Edison trade in this vicinity and anticipates a very satisfactory Spring trade. This, however, is based on the shipments from the Edison factory. Mr. Buehn by dint of energy and perseverance has built up a large and loyal clientage for the Edison phonograph in this section. J. K. Nichols is the new traveling salesman for the Buehn Phonograph Co., who will cover western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia.

At the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Association of Credit Men, A. A. Buehn, of the Buehn Phonograph Co., was elected a member of the Board of Directors.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, who is spending the Winter in Seabreeze, Florida, made a business trip to Pittsburgh, remaining here two days and then returned South.

H. C. Niles, secretary treasurer of the Starr Phonograph Co., is very enthusiastic concerning the trade in the present year as it will affect the Starr phonographs and Gennett records, and is satisfied that dealers will be well supplied with phonographs and records within a short time, as the factory is making every effort to keep up with orders.

Gray & Martin, distributors of the Sonora phonograph, who have large and tasty demonstration quarters in the Jenkins Arcade, are planning an extensive campaign for the year 1919. The firm have been keenly alive to the value of printer's ink in their efforts to introduce the Sonora to the public, and in this they have been eminently successful.

H. J. Brennen, manager of the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co., said: "The Pathé machines and Pathé records have made a distinct hit in Pittsburgh, and we are busy as beavers filling orders."

Among the new Pathé dealers listed is J. B. Wilson, who takes over the Pathé shop of the J. B. Lawhead Music Co., of New Castle, Pa.

J. W. Helbling, traveling salesman for the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co., is covering the West Virginia territory at present.

J. A. Endres, sales manager for the Pittsburgh district of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., manufacturers of the Brunswick Phonograph, made a very successful business trip to Johnstown and the adjoining territory, visiting the Brunswick dealers.

The Dauler & Close Furniture Co., sales agents for the Cheney phonograph, had very successful January sales of Cheney phonographs. Among the models that have attracted especial attention were the several period models.

H. C. Hornberger, manager of the talking machine department of the Kaufmann & Baer Co., has been making a series of special drives with the Aeolian-Vocalion, the Victrola and the

Mr. Brown will have his headquarters at the Brunswick Co.'s Detroit branch. He will, however, continue to operate his retail shop at 31 East Grand River, in addition to his new managerial duties. He has a fine knowledge of the talking machine trade and its requirements, and this together with his retail experience, will be of value in assisting Brunswick dealers in that territory.

L. C. PARKER BUYS BADGER SHOP

Former Manager of Gimbel Bros.' Department, Milwaukee, Enters Retail Talking Machine Field on Own Account—Long in Trade

MILWAUKEE, Wis., February 4.—One of the most important transactions in this retail field

in years was the purchase on February 1 of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, 425 Grand avenue, one of the largest Victor retail establishments in the country, by Leslie C. Parker, who for the past ten years has been manager of the Victrola department of Gimbel Bros.' local store. The Badger Shop heretofore was owned and controlled by the members of the Badger Talking Machine Co., 135 Second street, wholesale representative of the Victor. In line with the policy that is being adopted generally, wholesale and retail lines are being divorced and this is one reason why the Badger Co. has made disposition of its retail interests. Another reason is that the wholesale business and manufacturing interests of the owners of the Badger Co. have grown to such proportions that concentration has become necessary. These interests include the Record-Lite Co. and the Record Needle and Mfg. Co.

Mr. Parker has spent his entire business career in the music business. For twenty-seven years he has been associated with piano and talking machine interests. He now enters the field on his "own hook," as it were.

The Badger Shop was established in its present location on May 1, 1916. Previously it was conducted in the same premises as the wholesale business at 135 Second street. Richard H. Zinke, who has managed the retail business for many years, retires from the Badger Shop, but will continue to be associated with the Badger wholesale and manufacturing interests in an executive capacity.

Mr. Parker is a director of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries and one of its active workers. He was the first president of the Salesmanship Club of Milwaukee, and is vice-president of the Alexander Hamilton Institute. He is serving as a member of the educational committee of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce and a member of the board of the Club of Commerce of Marquette University. He is a noted figure in educational circles on advertising and selling. Mr. Parker's successor as manager of Gimbel's Victor department has not been selected as yet.

PORT WASHINGTON, Wis., February 3.—M. A. Supper, who has been with the New York Recording Laboratories, Inc., this city, makers of Paramount records since its organization, has become general manager of the company, and has general charge of all matters both at the local plant and the New York offices. Previous to his merited promotion Mr. Supper was sales manager of the company. The plans for development of the Paramount business under Mr. Supper's direction include the appointment of distributors to handle the line, and a large number of these have already been secured. There will also be considerable attention given to the matter of dealer helps. Mr. Supper has recently been spending some time on a business trip through Eastern sections of the country and Canada and will have some important announcements to make shortly.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN CHATTANOOGA

Business Active But Shortage of Goods Is Embarrassing—Members of the Trade All Optimistic Regarding Business for 1919

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., February 8.—Trade conditions in Chattanooga during the month just closed were in general very good. Most stores are still suffering from shortage of goods, though many of them have taken on secondary lines, many of which have merit, and are in this way to some extent able to take advantage of the very active demand for talking machines.

Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., through R. E. Johnson, manager of the talking machine department, who handle the Columbia, Edison and more recently the Starr, state that they are selling instruments as rapidly as they can get them. They report the demand far ahead of the supply. Their record business has increased, and taken altogether the outlook is satisfactory, with some hope of an alleviation in the shortage of product in the near future, this being the main factor at present in the business.

The Rhodes-Mahoney Furniture Co., Victor and Brunswick dealers, who took on the Brunswick line in a rather large way some months since, are understood to be doing a large volume of business. They have been particularly successful with the Brunswick, and it has acted as a bulwark for their talking machine department in time of stress.

The Stulce-Yarnell Furniture Co., Columbia exclusively, report that they have enjoyed a very gratifying business in the month just closed. Their sale of Columbia records has improved noticeably, so many persons having come into the market as record buyers since Christmas. Mr. Stulce is working into the talking machine game on a larger scale as each month passes, and finds it a most valuable addition to his regular furniture business.

The Templeman Piano Co., Miss Edna Burchfield, manager of the talking machine department, and who are Columbia dealers exclusively, are having their entire store remodeled, making arrangements for the constantly increasing business in the talking machine department. New booths are being in-

BILLY MURRAY'S NEW CONNECTION

Well-Known Recording Artist Arranges Also to Sing for Paramount Records

The New York Recording Laboratories of Port Washington, Wis., announce that Billy Murray is to sing for Paramount records. Mr. Murray already has built up a wide reputation as a record maker of high caliber for other companies and enjoys a large following among users of various makes of records. He will make his debut with Paramount in a comedy song: "Can You Tame Wild Wimmin?" which, according to Musical Director Walter Rogers, of the company's New York studios, is well adapted to Murray's talents. The record will appear in the next release.

WHAT HE DID!

A great salesman said: "I sold the goods. I did not merely lay cornerstones and get things into shape; I did not secure a promise of an order the next time; I did not fix the man for a future trade, and then brag about it. Not I. I got the man's name on the bottom of the order sheet. That's what I did."

TO OPEN BRANCH ON PACIFIC COAST

Distributing Headquarters of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. to be Opened in San Francisco With L. Gruen as Manager

Otto Heineman, president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., New York, announced this week the appointment of L. Gruen as manager of the company's new branch to be opened in San Francisco. Mr. Gruen left last week for the Pacific Coast, and as soon as he arrives there will arrange for the establishment of a branch office which will be central for the trade in that section. According to present plans a complete sample line of OkeH records, Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone-arms, etc., and Dean steel needles will be carried at the San Francisco office, together with a small stock of these products.

In commenting upon this move Mr. Heineman stated that the steady growth of the talking machine industry on the Coast had influenced him to open a branch in San Francisco, in order that the manufacturers in this part of the country might receive adequate service and cooperation. Inquiries have been received at the Heineman offices during the past few weeks which indicate that many well-known mercantile and manufacturing concerns on the Coast contemplate entering the talking machine industry, and there is every reason to believe that San Francisco will be the hub of an active manufacturing center during 1919.

Mr. Gruen, the manager of the San Francisco office, has been associated with the Heineman organization for several years, having spent some time at the company's factories in Elyria, O., and serving as assistant manager of the Canadian division. His most recent connection identified him with the Heineman branch in Chicago.

THINGS NECESSARY TO SUCCESS

To know every detail, to gain an insight into each secret, to learn every method, to secure every kind of skill, are the prime necessities of success in any art, craft or trade. No time is too long, no study too hard, no discipline too severe, for the attainment of complete familiarity with one's work and complete ease and skill in doing it. As a man values his working life, he must be willing to pay the highest price of success in it—the price which severe training exacts.—H. W. Mabie.

TO MAKE TALKING MACHINES

The Victory Phonograph Co., Lititz, Pa., has been incorporated with capital stock of $300,000 by Harrisburg and Philadelphia capitalists for the purpose of manufacturing talking machines. The new company has taken over the plant of the Yerger Mfg. Co. in Lititz and will begin operations soon.

TO DEVELOP GENERAL TRADE

B. G. Higley, President of Sona-Tone Phonograph, Inc., Tells of Plans for Development —Important Connections Are to Be Made

In a chat with The World this week, B. G. Higley, president of Sona-Tone Phonograph, Inc., gave a brief outline of the company's plans for 1919. This instrument has been on the market for about a year, and agencies have been established in all parts of the country. According to Mr. Higley's plans, considerable attention will be paid during the coming year to the development of export trade, and a number of important connections have already been made whereby this line will be handled by well-known export houses. In addition, several domestic jobbing arrangements have been consummated which will be announced next month, and a general policy of expansion and growth is the key-note of the company's plans for 1919.

B. G. Higley, head of Sona-Tone Phonograph, Inc., is a prominent New York corporation lawyer, who is identified with many extensive financial and mercantile interests. He is also the president of a bank up-state, and for many years has been an active figure in financial and banking circles. His business affairs have made him well known from coast to coast, and Mr. Higley brings to the Sona-Tone Phonograph, Inc., an invaluable knowledge of general mercantile and financial activities.

MAKING SHORT STAY IN FLORIDA

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager of the Columbia Co., left recently for a few weeks' stay in Florida, where he will take a well-deserved rest. Mr. Hopkins returned only a few days ago from a visit to the company's branches in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo, where he found the branch managers enthusiastic in their predictions for the new year.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 8.—For the first time in a year there seems to be a clearing of the talking machine atmosphere. For more than twelve months the dealers and jobbers have been struggling along short of stock, and trying to do business as best they could. They sold everything they could get, but it was maddening to see so much good money slipping away from them, but they could not prevent it. There is still a great shortage, but machines are beginning to come through faster, as well as records, and it looks to the merchants as if there was soon going to be an adequate stock. It may not be in the next three or six months, but every month it is going to be better, and it is with a sigh of relief that the dealers are accepting this changed condition.

There was a good but a limited business in January among all Victor dealers and jobbers; nor have the handlers of this instrument been the only ones to suffer. There has been a shortage of every character of machine worth considering in this class of merchandise. One firm—a recent product handler—told me that they had orders on hand for the supplying of their retail representatives that would require ten completely filled cars to transport them to this city, and yet they had but four on the road at the time of our conversation.

There have been no new dealers in this territory, for there would be no use for anyone to start the handling of the well-known lines, excepting a few who come and go monthly on such streets as Fifty-second and elsewhere. Many of these firms handle obscurely known machines and, naturally, do not live long. On the six blocks of Fifty-second street, between Market and Cedar avenue, there are at least ten handlers of talking machines, and into almost every vacant storeroom goes a new talking machine shop, to probably disappear inside of a few months, outside of the established houses there.

Louis Buehn Is Optimistic

Louis Buehn, of the Louis Buehn Co., states that they are now commencing to get some machines and records, and have been doing a very nice business. "So far as conditions appear to me," he says, "they never looked better. The Victor Co. are making a special effort to bring their factory back to its highest production, and early results are likely. I believe that by June we will be able to do a business equal to if not ahead of the business we done in 1917. Our business, of course, will be measured by what the Victor Co. will be able to give us. Records are beginning to come in in better quantities, which enables us to feel that within a few months we will be in a far better shape on records."

Better Deliveries Help Trade

B. B. Todd, the Arch street retailer of the Victor and Sonora machines, reports that he has been enjoying a very good business, and that he has been fortunate in getting a very good stock in hand, just about sufficient to fill their orders. Last Saturday was the largest day they ever had in the Victor product.

Expansion of Brunswick Business

The local Brunswick Co. headquarters are absolutely overrun with business and cannot begin to supply the demand for their machines. The manager recently covered their territory and found all their dealers quite enthusiastic over the instrument. He brought back with him a number of orders, many of them running even for shipments for the next ninety days. They could deliver today eleven carloads of Brunswick machines if they could get them, upon orders already placed. They intend to take care of their present dealers, and while the shortage exists will accept no new accounts. Theodore Presser, who recently took on the Brunswick, has been doing a very good business with the machine. M. H. Housell & Co., one of the largest dealers in northern Pennsylvania, have also been doing a remarkable business in the Brunswick line. They have on file a number of excellent prospects, but will not attempt to handle them until their present trade is supplied.

Penn Phonograph Co. Notes Improvement

The Penn Phonograph Co. states that their business picked up very considerably in January, particularly the record end. They note that the machine shipments have not improved to any considerable extent, but that the factory promises constantly improved conditions. Quite a number of the jobbers who were here recently attending the executive sessions of the Jobbers Association called at the offices of the Penn Co. and looked over their new plant and bestowed much praise upon it. Their sale on the Lundstrom cabinets and metal display fixtures has been constantly on the increase. They have been making a special effort on these lines.

Weymann Planning Big Campaign

Harry Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Son, states that the Victrola situation looks very promising, and he hopes to see an increased supply coming normal within the next three

John Powers Returning From France

John Powers, formerly in charge of the talking machine end of the Huver Piano Co.'s business, who has been in France for nearly a year, writes that he hopes to get a discharge and to return in a very short time.

January Shows Increase of 90 Per Cent.

Herbert E. Blake, the big Edison dealer at Eleventh and Walnut streets, reports that their business has been fine in February, and that they cannot "kick" for a minute. They have not been getting enough machines, but they received sufficient in January to increase their business about 90 per cent. over January, 1918, but they could use lots more. Records are coming along all right. They are getting as many of the new numbers as they can use, but have a little trouble in getting some old favorites.

Plan Educational Campaign

A. J. Heath, local manager of the Columbia Grafonola Co., has been in New York several days this week. The Columbia business in Philadelphia was about normal in January, but the outlook is very bright. Among the recent visitors to the Columbia headquarters was W. A. Wilson, of the educational department. They are at present engaged in arranging tours of eminent Columbia artists in the leading nearby cities, who will give concerts for exploiting the Columbia product.

Edison Dealers Meet and Dine

The members of the Philadelphia Edison Dealers' Association, with their salesmen and saleswomen, were the guests of Mr. Cope, of the Girard Phonograph Co., at a dinner given at the Hotel Bingham recently. Representing the Girard Phonograph Co. were Mr. Cope, manager, and Mr. Robinson, traveler. Supervisor Gardner and T. J. Leonard, general sales manager, represented the Edison laboratory. After the dinner Mr. Blake, president of the association, opened the meeting with a speech of congratulation to the dealers on the splendid business done by each during the holidays, and then turned the meeting over to Mr. Leonard.

During the course of the evening Mr. Leonard explained the status of production on both instruments and Re-Creations, and promised a greatly increased output. This statement, coupled with the present high quality of the product, elicited most optimistic predictions of the Edison business to be done during 1919.

A list of the dealers and their salesmen and saleswomen in attendance follows: Mr. Heimbach, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Weiler, Mauch Chunk, Pa.; Mr. Weiland, Allentown, Pa.; Mr. Flock, Allentown, Pa.; Mr. Schaffer, Phoenixville, Pa.; Mr. Stanton, Snellenburg & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Philip Moore, Germantown, Pa.; Mr. Bovard, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Trader and Mr. Levering, of Black & Burkart, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. Starr, Mr. Moss and Mr. Somers, of Starr & Moss, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. McPherson, Bridgeton, Pa.; Mr. Atkins, Mr. Davis, H. E. Blake and Mr. Lineback, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Davis and Mrs. Simmons, of Norristown, Pa.

Pleasing Growth of Business

Walter L. Eckhardt, the proprietor of the Philadelphia Pathé Shop, has just been elected as one of the directors of the board of governors of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce, having received the second highest number of votes. Business at the Pathé Shop, and in the Pathé wholesale end, has been phenomenal in January. Mr. Eckhardt says that January, 1918, recorded five and one-quarter times more business than for the same month last year. Mr. Eckhardt has found it necessary to increase materially his organization. A year ago he had eleven employes and to-day he has thirty-seven.

IMPORTANT MOVE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Emerson Philadelphia Co. Become Sole Distributors for Emerson Gold Seal Records

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 5.—The Emerson Philadelphia Co., which is located in the Parkway Building, Broad and Cherry streets, this city, are now sole distributors for Pennsylvania (including Philadelphia), east of Altoona, Delaware and southern New Jersey for Emerson Gold Seal records.

Harry Fox, who will act as manager and be in complete charge of the new company, has been one of the most successful salesmen of the Emerson Phonograph Co. since its beginning, and for nearly two years has covered the territory over which he will assume charge.

Emerson dealers throughout this section will welcome this announcement, and Mr. Fox assures them that they can rely upon greatly improved service and his untiring efforts in cooperating with them to help in building up their Emerson departments and increasing their profits.

The Dulcitone

THE Dulcitone is another strictly non-competitive Cable-Nelson product, and as such is being welcomed with great enthusiasm by those already familiar with Cable-Nelson values. This handsome talking machine meets the most exacting musical, mechanical and artistic requirements. Quality of reproduction is exceptionally fine. The motor is one of the most dependable on the market, and the cabinet construction and finish are distinctively Cable-Nelson—enough said.

Yet true to Cable-Nelson standards, the Dulcitone can be profitably sold at a price which places the dealer comfortably beyond the reach of local competition.

Hence for those realizing the demand for such a machine—a machine of quality commandable by the average pocket book—the Dulcitone affords a very remarkable money-making opportunity.

CANADIAN TRADE PROTESTS AGAINST WAR TAX BURDEN

Believes That the 10 Per Cent. Excise Tax Placed on Musical Instruments Should Be Divided Among Other Industries That Are Now Tax Free—Some Trade News From Montreal

MONTREAL, QUE., January 31.—When the talking machine trade so promptly agreed to cooperate with the Government in the raising of funds to meet the extraordinary expenses incident to our being at war and with unhesitating patriotism submitted to the 10 per cent. excise tax, this was assumed by the trade to be purely a war measure. At the time this 10 per cent. tax became effective some of the trade felt that 5 or even 3 per cent. would have been a high tax to impose and that some other lines might reasonably have been asked to share in the obligation, but nevertheless this additional burden was uncomplainingly accepted.

The ending of the war urges the pertinency of the trade considering whether to continue quiescent, or if this means of raising revenue is still necessary, asking that the rate imposed upon the phonograph business be reduced and some of the industries hitherto excluded from the requirements of this special taxation be invited to assume a share in the obligation.

Even during the war it was felt that an industry doing as much to uphold the Government morally and in business taxes, customs duties, war tax and patriotic contributions as the phonograph industries should not have been burdened to the extent of 10 per cent., while lines with no greater and perhaps lesser claims to consideration were not required to pay this tax.

If the camera and photograph supplies business, for example, or the candy manufacturer, or the publisher of books, should not have been called upon to contribute to the funds this 10 per cent. was designed to raise, then why impose it upon the talking machine and record industry when by comparison phonographs and records performed high patriotic service in the home and in the life of the soldier?

It looks to your correspondent as if the importance of this item of 10 per cent. excise tax justifies immediate and serious action on behalf of the trade.

Layton Bros., Edison and Columbia dealers, recently tendered their staff a banquet, at which seventy-five employes and their friends were entertained by the firm. Telegrams were read from the Thos. A. Edison Co. and the Columbia Graphophone Co. congratulating the firm on their wonderful business and wishing them success for 1919. The wives of P. E. and H. A. Layton were presented with bouquets of flowers from the staff.

During the visit of Alice Neilsen this firm in song recital used considerable space in the newspapers with large copy featuring her selections on Columbia records.

Josef Hofmann, pianist and Columbia artist, will shortly appear in Montreal in recital.

H. C. Wilson & Sons, Ltd., Sherbrooke, Que., exclusive His Master's Voice dealers, are carrying a stock of over 10,000 Victor records and maintain four separate demonstrating booths. Their trade is increasing every month.

Business for January with C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., was most encouraging after the tremendous volume of business done during December. Naturally they did not look forward to very big things during the past month, but 1919 has started out well with a nice gain over January of last year. Inquiries for Sonoras and Columbia Grafonolas have been particularly good with sales correspondingly active.

The Phonograph Shop of Montreal, Reg'd., are handling a large amount of business. According to Manager Geo. S. Pequegnat Pathé, Aeolian-Vocalion and other machines and records are enjoying considerable popularity. During the recent appearance here of Jacques Thibaud this concern ran large space in the newspapers, featuring this artist's repertoire in Pathé records, he being an exclusive Pathé artist.

The retail stores of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., are as usual taking care of all the business they can handle in the call for His Master's Voice products. Retail Sales Manager S. H. Brown expects to break all records in 1919, and judging from sales during January just closed he will not have much difficulty in attaining his goal.

N. G. Valiquette, Ltd., recently devoted considerable space to selections of the Paris Symphony Orchestra available on Pathé records.

INCREASED ACTIVITY APPARENT IN TRADE IN TORONTO

Full Advantage Taken by Dealers of Local Appearances of Prominent Recording Artists—Elaborate Wholesale Sales Campaign Started—General News of Interest

TORONTO, ONT., February 3.—By watching current events and looking for the opportunity the advertiser will frequently find it possible to link on to some occasion that will give him unusual prominence at no greater cost than his regular advertising.

Coincident with the appearance of Mischa Elman, an exclusive Victor artist, at Massey Hall, on January 14, the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., gave prominence to six of the most popular of his selections, which number nearly fifty. The announcement referred to admonished the public "To look for the trade-mark dog on it," and also showed an illustration of Elman in playing position.

The beginning of this month saw eighteen wholesale salesmen start out carrying Gennett records, for which the Starr Co., of Canada, London, are the Canadian distributors.

H. G. Stanton, vice-president and general manager of R. S. Williams & Sons Co., Ltd., has been elected to the council of the Toronto Board of Trade for the current year.

The Fauver Music Co. opened warerooms at 420 Yonge street recently and are handling Brunswick phonographs and records.

W. Puckett, F. A. Trestrail and J. E. White, members of the firm of the Musical Merchandise Sales Co., were recent visitors to Brunswick headquarters in Chicago. Mr. Puckett also lately paid his respects to New York City. L. J. Bourgette, Eastern Brunswick representative, with headquarters in Montreal, was among the month's callers in the Queen City.

E. H. VanGelder, of I. Montagnes & Co., Canadian distributors for the Sonora, recently sailed for Holland. He is combining both business and pleasure on this trip, which will take him to Belgium, France and Switzerland. He will also visit his mother, who is now in Holland.

Colin O'More, the Irish tenor, whose voice is recorded exclusively on Vocalion records, re-

This world-famed organization gave two performances in Canada, Montreal being the chosen city.

"There can be no two opinions as to the feeling of the people towards the Brunswick phonograph," said Peter S. Berlind, manager of the Brunswick Shop, "as our order books will bear ample testimony as to its general popularity."

Arthur K. Kempton, dealer in phonograph specialties, whose headquarters are at 8 McGill College avenue, Montreal, is establishing a Toronto branch in charge of J. E. Knapp, whose temporary office is 762 St. Clair avenue.

A. A. MacKenzie, New Glasgow, N. S., has added the Brunswick agency.

During the appearance of Alice Neilsen Victor dealers took advantage of the opportunity and ran heavy copy featuring this singer's recordings.

cently appeared in Massey Hall, this city, before large audiences. Aeolian dealers report a good demand for this artist's repertoire.

The Canadian tour of Harry Lauder gave considerable impetus to his records, and His Master's Voice dealers all over Canada report big sales both of his old and latest recordings.

Arthur Pellerin & Co., 420 Rideau street, the only French-Canadian exclusive dealers, will in the very near future devote their efforts to retailing exclusively one of the best and well-known makes of talking machines on the market.

The Ottawa Phonograph Co. have opened a new store at 312 Bank street under the management of Edgar Sibbitt, where they are featuring the Pathéphone.

The recent window of the National Piano Co., Ltd., was designed to capitalize for their Victrola department the general human interest in moving objects. A large wheel, in diameter almost equal to the space from floor to ceiling, was set up within a couple of feet of the window. It was decorated with green and red and the rim of the wheel was a continuous circle of His Master's Voice records. These were held by means of screws through the holes in the records and a small weight fastened to the edge of each record kept it from revolving so that it remained with the title always readable. The wheel revolved slowly, so that the record titles could readily be followed by the spectators, who were very numerous. A cord so small as to be invisible from the street formed the belt communicating power from a Victrola motor so placed in an alcove of the window as to be a separate motion attraction.

James P. Bradt, general manager of the Columbia Co.'s Canadian business; A. E. Landon, assistant to Mr. Bradt; John A. Sabine, Music Supply Co., Toronto; Robert Shaw, Cassidy's, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man.; and James Williams, of Calgary, Alta., have returned to their respective homes from the annual convention of branch and Dictaphone managers of the Columbia Graphophone Co. held at New York. This was the most successful convention yet held by the company, and the impression of the Canadian delegation was that the Dominion of Canada being on the map in a Columbia sense is fully recognized by the Columbia executives, so much so that during their visit additional equipment was shipped to the Toronto plant to provide a greatly increased output.

While in New York Mr. Williams was induced to make several recordings. He has a baritone voice of rare quality.

L. Frank Wilks, Toronto, who has never regretted his selection of a site on Bloor street, East, just seventy-five golden paces from Yonge street, has outgrown his store. He has decided to build an addition.

As customers exit from the Victrola department of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., at their Toronto store and approach the elevators they are confronted by a conspicuous sign, lettered in black and white, reading, "Don't forget your parcels. Do you need needles?" This firm's Victrola department was doubled in size shortly before Christmas, and now occupies the entire fourth floor, giving a spacious and airy general showroom, of ample size for recital hall purposes and flanked on three sides by demonstration rooms, there being seventeen of these with provision for additional rooms.

The record customer is directed to the glass-topped counter which is designed to act as an effectual silent salesman. While the record clerk is securing the necessary records to fill the customers' order the latter has in front of him the current lists, which frequently suggest additional purchases. These lists are the hangers sent out by the factory and are placed under the glass top of the counter. Being in large type they are so conspicuous that the customer cannot miss them, and many record sales are the direct result of this plan which makes it impossible to offend the class of customer that resents being invited to make further purchases.

The demonstration rooms in the "His Master's Voice" department of the Heintzman store are unusually large, and in them a whole family can be comfortably seated while making their selection.

One of the live talking machine departments, your correspondent has heard, issues a brief, telling monthly letter to the store's record customers each month. In these letters the personal touch is always evident. For example, here is a sample of one that went out with a recent bulletin of the month's new records:

"Dear Madam—You have visited our store upon several occasions when it has been impossible for me to serve you personally. But I have known of your visit and appreciated it. I trust that the records you purchased are giving you and your family pleasure and entire satisfaction.

"At any time you are in the store and you cannot locate the particular selection you desire, please ask for me personally. I want you to be served well, for it is friendly customers like yourself that enable us to conduct our business successfully.

"Just this week we received a large shipment of the latest records. They are about the best list of selections we have ever had. Would you drop in at your convenience and hear some of them? In the meantime we enclose a bulletin listing and describing these new records. Yours very truly (manager's name)."

A VERY EFFECTIVE POSTER OF EXCEPTIONAL INTEREST

For its dealers throughout the country the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has had made up an exceptionally handsome twenty-four-sheet poster, which is shown herewith. The poster is exceptionally effective and is unique in that it is virtually divided into two sections, the left half being for the illustration and the right half for the text, making an easily read and striking piece of publicity.

The artist who designed this was very happy in his selection of colors, the scene representing the interior of a high-ceilinged room with a heavy-beamed ceiling and rich woodwork. The front of a broad sweep of bold poster color which makes the grand instrument, which is illustrated, stand out in bold fashion.

Sonora dealers who have seen this poster have been much impressed by it, and it has been highly praised as carrying out fully the purpose for which it was intended. The general public will soon see these posters adorning the billboards in all parts of the country.

Do Men or Women Prove the Bigger Purchasers of Talking Machines and Record Outfits?

Investigations by Talking Machine World Correspondents Indicate That in the Majority of Cases the Woman Is the Deciding Factor in the Sale and Comes First As an Actual Purchaser—Some Data of Value for Advertising and Sales Campaigns

Women Bigger Buyers But Harder to Sell, Says Boston

BOSTON, Mass., February 6.—The question is often asked in a more or less interested manner: who are the bigger purchasers of talking machine outfits—men or women? That is a question, if one may judge by the diverse opinions expressed by dealers, which it is hard to answer one way or the other with any affirmative positiveness. One fact that is impressed upon the inquiring mind when the subject is broached is that it is far easier to sell a man a bill of goods than it is a woman. It seems to be the consensus of opinion, based on several years of observing study, that the average man, bent on possessing a machine, is easily convinced of the merits of a certain style once his mind is made up as to what he wants. And in coming to a conclusion which make he wants he does not spend a great deal of time inquiring into the merits of any one, though he may visit a great many dealers, each of whom is encouraging the sale of some one, or perhaps two or more makes. Perhaps it is because of a keen ability to grasp a problem quickly that he does not need a great deal of time to familiarize himself with the qualities or intricacies of a machine.

If the man is bent on making a present to his wife or family there are no others taken into his confidence after he has made his first inquiries among his friends; but if the family are acquainted with his purpose, and it may be they are the first to urge the purchase of an outfit, it most always happens that wife and perhaps sons—more often daughters—are given the privilege of examining what pater familias already has selected. Having set his mind on a certain type it is not easily changed, and despite certain objections that may be registered by other members of the household, the fact remains that he made the selection and eventually is paying the bill.

In the purchase of records the case is somewhat different. Wives and young folks are large buyers of records, often more so than the men. The middle-aged call for the classical, staid, ever-popular numbers such as would be chosen by the musically educated; the young people are strong for the dance numbers, selections from the newest light operas, while the small children are eager to possess those nursery pieces, bird imitations, and such like which are rapidly coming into vogue largely because of their educational qualities and secondly as means of entertainment. Almost without exception it is the father who buys these at the earnest solicitation of his child or children before he starts for his office. In fact, it's the final request before he goes out the door, and he dare not return at night without the coveted records.

Probably the experience of any single dealer is that in the course of the day the women customers far outnumber the men and they are record buyers almost exclusively. When it comes to women buying a machine they seldom have any definite idea of what they want when they arrive at the store. And when they settle on the make it sometimes takes several visits before they can make up their mind what particular style they want. Usually a salesman tries hard to have a woman make a final decision before she leaves the shop, knowing full well that if in the interim before a second visit she meets a friend owning another make of machine she may be weaned away from her first choice.

Women Do Music Buying for the Family in Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, PA., February 3.—According to local talking machine dealers, it is the woman of the house who does the actual buying of the talking machine and records, few men apparently making the final decision. Incidentally the women also buy records in greatest number, catering to the musical tastes of the various members of the family.

M. M. Mitchell, retail manager of Buehn

Phonograph Co., Edison distributors, said: "In practically every instance the initiative for buying a talking machine or phonograph is taken by the woman of the house. She, owing to often being kept at home by reason of household duties and caring for small children, feels the need of music. Naturally, a phonograph will be a means of passing the time and making the day a pleasant one instead of the usual humdrum. She decides what she wants and in almost every instance that has come under my observation the husband readily lets her make the decision even to selecting the records. I find that husbands from alien or foreign homes are the ones that choose high-grade grand opera music and they are willing to pay high prices for what they want."

Miss Bessie Finkelstein, of the Pathé Shop, said: "Women usually choose the machine when they visit our shop even though accompanied by their husbands. They always want a high-priced machine, and insist on having an assortment of records that will please every member of the family. For actual choice when it comes to classical selections, the women prefer those, while the men usually select the lighter and popular music."

John Henk, of the Columbia Music Co., exclusive Columbia Grafonola dealer, said: "In the general sense of the term the wife or woman of the house generally chooses the kind of talking machine she wants, and frequently tells her husband what she has chosen. Often she is able to bring him to the store to see the Grafonola, but in the great majority of cases the women make the entire selection of records and machines. They know the tastes of their men folks in the music line and always select records that they feel will please their husbands, first. The classical and sentimental music appeals strongly to the women, while the men prefer the martial airs and some of the popular music of the day."

both agreed that "the men folks usually leave the decision of buying a Victrola and Victor records to the women." They stated that very often husband and wife visit the Victrola department to look at Victrolas, and in practically every case the choice in the last analysis is made by the wife, the husband trusting to her judgment in the matter of style and kind of finish that a Victrola should have.

Percentage of Women Buyers Varies in St. Louis Trade

ST. LOUIS, Mo., February 8.—There is a clearly defined line of divergence in the proportion of men and women buying talking machines in St. Louis. The department and furniture stores run to a higher percentage of women buyers than the street level stores, which are mostly Piano Row stores.

The highest percentage favoring the women was 80 per cent., given by a large department store. None of the department stores placed the percentage of women at less than 70. The street level stores began at a doubtful 70 and ran down to a 50-50 proposition.

The big reason for the woman being the buyer was that the man was sold before any one started to look at machines. In most cases the woman buyer puts an absolute limit on her machine purchase, which the sellers believe is per an agreement at home. If she goes above this limit she asks that the machine be held and she and her husband come back later and look it over. The sellers believe that the initiative for buying in most cases is with the woman. The reason she makes the purchase most often by herself is that the man realizes that the talking machine is an article of furniture which must be considered as a part of the home and this question he passes to his wife because she has purchased the rest of the furniture, and she is the one to be pleased. Anyway, most men do not have a very high regard for their own taste.

As to records, the percentage of women buyers is usually 10 points less than on machines, until you come to the 50-50 proposition. The only store to express a belief that more men than women purchased records was an outlying store that has a heavy trade on foreign records. No downtown store admits anything more than an even break for the men. The highest percentage of women given was 70, and this was from a department and a furniture store. No one will admit of any distinct choice of records as between the men and the women, unless it is a tendency on the part of the men to pick the old ballads. There is this element that practically all mentioned, about 10 per cent., perhaps more, of the men buyers of records have every air of being sent for the records and most of them have lists which they consult. All record clerks assert that men are more easily and quickly waited upon than women. Few sales are made without demonstration except to men, but it is not unusual for a man to walk up to the counter, ask for a record and have it wrapped up. It is unusual for a woman to do this.

As to the dance records, St. Louis believes this is a 50-50 break between the young man and the young woman, almost the girl and boy stage. If older persons ask for them they usually apologize and mention the fact that the "young folks are going to give a party." The rags belong in the same category as the dance records. But as there are exceptions to all rules, there are some persons of gray hair of both sexes who delight in the dance and rag music.

There is getting to be in St. Louis, the smaller stores and some of the larger ones say, a class of foreign record buyers who take little except classic music.

70 Per Cent. of Sales to the Ladies in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., February 4.—A canvass of the San Francisco talking machine trade reveals the fact that women comprise over 70 per cent. of the customers for talking machines and records. Conditions vary somewhat in the different stores, but in no store do men buy more than women, though, of course, most of the money spent is by married women. The men customers are more satisfactory and in general better and quicker buyers than the lovelier sex, but in volume of persons, and volume of sales value, the female of the species is winner.

Clark Wise says that fully 75 per cent. of his talking machine and record customers are women, and the majority of these married women. He says young men buy more machines and records than young women, but that the taste of women is not apparently higher than men's, judging by his experience.

Byron Mauzy states that most of the shopping is done by women in his place of business, but that a great many records and machines are bought by men and women coming together. Very often the wife comes to pick out a machine, but will not decide definitely until the husband has been brought to see it. Young people buy many dance selections and song pieces, and are also good patrons of classical records. The Mauzy Co. is not able to state positively whether women give evidence of better taste than men or not.

E. C. C. Johnston, manager of the Sonora Phonograph Shop is confident that over 70 per cent of the people patronizing his store are women. He says that a third of his business is for cash and that men usually make larger initial payments than women. He finds that men prefer instrumental music records to song records and that the women buy songs more than men.

ARE MEN OR WOMEN BIGGER PURCHASERS OF TALKERS AND RECORDS?—(Continued from page 69)

Men buy in larger lots, as a rule, and with less hesitation. Record business responds quickly to song hits in the theatres and popular pieces played by the symphony orchestra or rendered by concert soloists.

The talking machine departments of the music houses on Kearney street, being in a more central location, have more men customers than the others, but even in these places the women customers outnumber the men by a goodly margin. Jazz music is bought more by women than by men.

Female of the Species Dominates Say Indianapolis Dealers

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., February 6.—The majority of the local talking machine dealers say that women buy the most talking machines.

When the dealers were asked by The World correspondent as to whom most of the talking machines are sold, men or women, in nearly every case they at first answered "It's fifty-fifty." This they explained by saying they meant that the sales would fall about evenly between women who came in the stores alone and women who were accompanied by their husbands. Most of them said men who came in the stores alone formed a small per cent. of the total customers.

C. P. Herdman, of the Baldwin Piano Co. talking machine department, said women did most of the buying.

C. H. Sallee, of the Starr Piano Co. store, said that 75 per cent. of the inquiries were made by women; that 40 per cent. of the sales were to women alone; 40 per cent. to women with their husbands and 20 per cent. to men alone.

A. H. Snyder, of the Edison Shop, said that women did most of the buying.

At the Fuller-Ryde Music Co., Mr. Ryde said women bought most of the machines.

At the Brunswick Shop, Mr. Izor, sales manager, said that their sales contracts would show more men's names than women. He said women generally did the looking and then brought in their husbands to do the buying.

E. R. Eskew, of the Pathé Shop, said that men did most of the buying and next came men accompanied by their wives. Mr. Eskew said the most satisfactory prospect from a salesman's standpoint was when a man and wife came in the store.

H. E. Whitman, manager of the Pearson Piano Co., said that women did most of the buying, but that there were many cases where women came in with their husbands to buy. The majority of the talking machine salesmen said that the women were the ones to be sold; that if a salesman "got" the wife he did not have to worry much about hubby.

All the talking machine men said that it was not a question of the men not being as much interested in talking machines as the women, but that most men did not have the time to do the shopping. In fact, most of the salesmen are inclined to believe that the men folks are crazier about talking machines than the women.

Husband Only Safety Valve on Price, Declares Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, O., February 8.—Talking machine dealers of this city are united in the assertion that the woman is the buyer and if the husband is along he acts merely as a safety valve on the price of the instrument to be bought. It is the woman who wants the music in the home and her wants in the record line run to the light and jazz stuff, whereas the man prefers band pieces and light classical selections.

Three out of five buyers of Vocalion instruments in the Aeolian store are women, according to C. L. Byers, manager, who said that the inquiry on the part of the Talking Machine World was along a line of questioning which he had considered on several occasions. Women, in selecting records, he said, show a leaning towards dance pieces, whereas the average male wants something in the band line with plenty of bang to it.

Women predominate in the purchase of phonographs at the Starr Piano Co., while if the buyer is accompanied by the male of the human species he is more inclined to consider the price of the article, but in the selection of records his mind runs to the substantial stuff.

A majority of the buyers of phonographs at the John Church Co. are women, according to Manager Faulconer, who said he had dealt with few men in this respect during the past three months. Semi-classical and popular records are demanded by the men.

The Victor department of the Otto Grau Piano Co. usually deals with the women in the sale of an instrument and their desires in the music line are usually along dance and jazz lines.

It did not take the several salesmen in the Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. long to figure who was the average buyer of a machine, the man or the woman. The female predominates, some of the salesmen believing 75 per cent. of the sales are made to women. Some casual questioning will usually bring out the fact that the husband and wife had discussed the proposed investment and the wife was turned loose on the market with the amount she was to pay for the instrument.

Women Do the Buying But the Men Help in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, WIS., February 5.—In Milwaukee the largest buyers of talking machines and phonographs are the women. Reports received from more than twenty of the leading retail dealers are to the effect that the lady of the house does the buying in 90 per cent. of the cases, although in about 40 per cent. of all cases the man of the house is brought to the store for the closing of the deal. The men either do not care to be bothered with the preliminary details of the selection, or shopping, but the woman waits for his approval before signing up. Experience in regard to the buying of records shows that the women do about 75 per cent. and the men 25 per cent. of the buying. The men usually come in with written lists prepared at home and do not spend much time listening to demonstrations. When the women come in to buy they want to hear all of the records on their lists and then some more. The kind of records that are bought by the men and the women are much the same—there is little to differentiate, according to local experience. It is not a rule here that the majority of classics are bought by women and the majority of popular and freak stuff by the men. With so many lists prepared at home, the selection usually covers a wide range, no matter whether the man or the woman of the house does the actual buying at the store.

Women Most Responsible for Trade Growth in Twin Cities

MINNEAPOLIS and ST. PAUL, MINN., February 3.—"Women are the buyers of talking machines," declares Archie Matheis, dean of the talking machine dealers in Minneapolis. "Sometimes they take their husbands along to help in closing the deal, but they make the first decision, and after allowing Mr. John to have a voice in the maximum price to be paid they select the style, and the finish of the machine that they want. It may be different in other places, but the best patrons the Talking Machine Co. has are the women."

"We must give the women credit for making the talking machine trade," says Manager J. L. Pofahl, of the Victrola and art departments of the Golden Rule store, St. Paul. "No computation has been made as to the exact share they have in the Victrola purchases here, but they are the most numerous buyers. We find it very profitable to cater to the ladies in every way, but particularly in the matter of records. They buy more freely than the men, and they select better music. The stuff called 'popular,' because there is no really fitting term, appeals to a majority of men, and while the same stuff also takes the fancy of some women, the great majority of the fair sex demand good music. At least 60 per cent. of our business is in records, and this result has been attained catering to the wants of the women."

Manager Sandey, of the Victrola department of the L. S. Donaldson Co., estimates that fully 75 per cent. of the patrons are of the suffragette sex. They are excellent customers also, for they invariably demand a better and a bigger instrument than the "old man" would take if he had his way.

"As in nearly all retail trade the women are the principal buyers of phonographs," says President Edward R. Dyer, of the Metropolitan Music Co., Minneapolis. "Sometimes the women take the men with them, but just as often they do not."

Milton H. Lowy, manager of the Minnesota

Phonograph Co., Edison distributors, is inclined to give the feminine world almost the entire credit for building up the phonograph business and for keeping it up. "We simply could not get along without them," asserts Mr. Lowy, and that is more than airy compliment to the sex.

Mere Man Enjoys the Respect of the Kansas City Trade

KANSAS CITY, Mo., February 3.—Opinions are somewhat diverse among the dealers as to who buys the machines and records and what kinds appeal to the lady of the house and to the men.

Nellie Williams, manager of the Victrola department at the Jones Store Co., finds that men buy the most machines and the highest class of records. "In many cases the man and woman both make the purchase and in other cases the lady looks at the machine first and later the husband makes the purchase. But in many cases the man decides on a more expensive model than the woman has chosen. On the other hand, often when the woman makes the choice and places the order, the man comes in and cancels it. We have less trouble in making our collections from the men than from the women. In the case of records, I find that it is much easier to interest the men in classic records, if they have not intended to hear them, than it is to interest the women. For instance, if we have not a certain piece in the 75 cent record, but have the same selection on a $2 record, by some Metropolitan Opera singer, the man is always quicker to appreciate the vast difference in the rendition and will prefer the latter, regardless of price. Women like light, catchy tunes, in most cases."

J. W. Watson, of the Edison Shop, finds just the opposite to be true. "Women make the most purchases and are in nearly every case the best to deal with. They appreciate opera and famous selections by famous singers much more than the men. The man wants martial airs, banjo music or jazz. He has enough of the serious at the office during the day. At home he prefers something light. It seems only natural that the woman should make the most purchases when she is at liberty during the day to make the selection. Occasionally, of course, an order is canceled by the man of the house, who perhaps feels that he is not able to make the payments, but such instances are exceptional. Women buy far the greatest number of records."

C. M. Robertson, who has charge of the talking machine department of the Kimball Piano Co., states that fully 75 per cent. of the talking machine buyers are women, and he finds their trade very satisfactory. "They make their payments regularly, even the ones who are not making their own money. Many working girls are buying machines at present. A great many of them are turning one or two Liberty Bonds into initial payments, some paying the entire amount in bonds. As for the records, women buy more of them also, though this trade is more nearly balanced. Popular selections have the biggest demand both with the women and men, especially the war songs. The majority of people do not buy the classical very often."

Opinions on Question Vary Among Portland Dealers

PORTLAND, ORE., February 3.—The question has been asked whether men or women are the greatest lovers of the phonograph, or, rather, who buy phonographs and who buy the high-class records—men or women?

The correspondent of The World in Portland visited the phonograph dealers and asked the question. It was an unexpected question and seemed to surprise the dealers. A number of them after considering the matter for a little while said it was "fifty-fifty." And this, at first, seemed to be the general opinion. Upon closer inquiry, however, a number of very dissimilar opinions were expressed.

The Hyatt Talking Machine Co. is a representative store. Big business is done there. Mr. Hyatt referred the matter to Miss Meighen, who has been with the company for a long time and has had a great deal of experience and is well qualified to answer these questions. Miss Meighen says that, while the trade is evenly divided most of the time, many more men bought machines during the holidays, that is before Christmas, than women. Men would come in, look at machines and afterward bring in their wives and make final decision. As for the records, Miss Meighen says that the older men buy the red seal records, young men and women usually buy jazz records.

S. J. McCormick, of the Columbia Co., says men come in, look over the machines but do not complete the deal until the wife sees what he has selected, and she usually buys what she wants. Miss Mildred Johnson, in charge of the record department of the same company, says men buy the red seals and women buy the jazz records.

Thomas Wilkinson, manager of the Bush & Lane Co., says that the machines are bought by women, and the records, especially red seal records, by men. Of course, many women buy red seal records, but young women, who are the largest buyers, buy dance music.

W. B. Maxwell, in charge of the phonograph department of Power's Furniture Store, says it is fifty-fifty in regard to men or women buying the machines. A man will come in and look at machines and say "I'll bring my wife," and when she looks over the different machines she selects the one she prefers. He thinks it is about even who buys red seal records. Young people usually buy jazz and dance music of all kinds.

M. W. Davis, of Edwards Furniture Co., says that if a woman comes in and has the authority to buy a machine without consulting her husband she makes the very best kind of a customer. She is usually intelligent and critical and easier to sell to than a man, because she gets interested in the parts of a machine, and when she understands the good points of an instrument she will buy it.

"Single women buy more machines than single men, but married men buy more machines than married women," said Leita Hayes, of the phonograph department of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co. A man will buy without consulting his wife, said Miss Hayes, but a woman will seldom buy without consulting her husband. Miss Hayes says that more women than men buy high-class records. Young women buy popular music and red seal records, but very few young men buy the red seal.

Paul B. Norris, manager of the phonograph department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., and this is one of the biggest phonograph departments in town, says that men and women buy about the same number of machines. Men, as a rule, buy more expensive machines than women. Single young men buy machines and so do single young women, but more married people buy than single ones, naturally.

Miss Bertha Serr, in charge of the record department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., says that the modern business men and the women who try to keep young buy popular and jazz music. However, people who have had musical advantages, or an innate love for the best in music, buy red seal records. This is not confined to sex or age, but depends upon the musical taste of the buyer.

Mrs. Wakefield, of the Wakefield Music Co., thinks there is little difference. Men and women both buy machines, but the man usually pays for it, he and his wife come in together and decide together. Men as well as women buy the red seal records. Young men and women buy more popular music than older people.

S. R. Christophersen has resigned as manager of the Tri-City Piano Co., Davenport, Ia., to become salesman for the Sonora Phonograph Corp. in the Iowa territory.

TRADE BETTERMENT CONTINUES TO PREVAIL IN DETROIT

Shipments of Talking Machines and Records More Frequent—Dealers Hopeful That Supplies Will Soon Accumulate—Grinnell Bros. Annual Meeting—Wallace Brown's Good Work—News of Month

DETROIT, MICH., February 6.—Another month gone and another month of splendid business. Dealers have been mighty busy filling orders taken during the holidays but not making deliveries. However, there has been a big improvement in shipments during January, and while not normal it has enabled dealers to take better care of their customers than in the fourteen months previous. Shipments may be slow, but they are sure to come as all restrictions are now practically removed. Record business has more than held its own. In fact, the record business is really phenomenal. If dealers have the records—the hits—it is no trouble to sell. The public finds more fault because it cannot get records. It is willing to spend money—has the money to spend—but the dealers haven't the goods. No sooner do they advertise a new hit when there is a complete sell out.

Ed Andrew, manager of the J. L. Hudson talking machine department, is in full charge of the store while his father, E. P. Andrew, is sojourning in California. E. P. Andrew left on February 6, accompanied by Mrs. Andrew. It is his first real vacation in about twenty years. Speaking of business, Ed Andrew says: "Business is all right—the trouble is to get goods. We have practically no machine stock to speak of, and our record department is completely slot. We order four and five times what we think we can sell, but we don't get one-fourth of the order. We have to disappoint people every day. But what can we do. We simply must make the best of it until conditions improve and we all get back to normal again."

Grinnell Bros. held their annual branch managers' convention in Detroit January 27 to 31. Business sessions were held in the morning and afternoon, and the evenings were for entertainment. There was a banquet and a masque ball in honor of the visiting managers. A feature of one business session was a discussion of ways and means for expanding the sale of Victrolas and Victor records, various ways of stockkeeping, reports, etc. H. W. Porter and C. Mitton spoke in behalf of the retail Victrola department; C. H. Grinnell, spoke for the wholesale; G. F. Martin, spoke on the Victor Transfer Bureau, while W. F. Cooper, spoke on Victrola repairs and equipments.

Wallace Brown, Brunswick dealer, who is now manager of the wholesale Brunswick phonograph department of the Detroit branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., has already made some important changes in the organization. He has appointed some new dealers, and has shown the way for expansion of business to the dealers already in existence. He has also engaged several well-known traveling sales people, so that within a short while we are sure to find the State of Michigan dotted with live-wire Brunswick dealers. Mr. Brown will continue to conduct his two local retail stores, both of which are doing splendid business. George Middleton, former salesman at the Brown institution, who went to war, is back on the job again, having received his honorable discharge from Camp Custer.

R. B. Alling, manager of the Phonograph Co., Edison jobbers, left February 7 for East Orange, N. J. He expects to spend about ten days in the East, a great deal of which time will be right at the factory. Mr. Alling says both wholesale and retail business is better than in January last year, and that the whole year looks like it will be a big one.

Frank Bayley, 114 Broadway, recently made extensive changes in his place. He removed the piano department to the second floor, which he leased, and now devotes the entire first floor to Edison phonographs and Edison records.

Sam Lind, Columbia branch manager, came back with 100 per cent. more enthusiasm as a result of having attended recently the second annual get-together of the branch managers in New York City. The Columbia had a phenomenal year in Detroit during 1918, but Mr. Lind says he is going to break it during 1919 by a good margin. "If the factory will give me the goods I'll sell them," he said.

C. H. Grinnell, manager of the wholesale department of the Victor division of Grinnell Bros., realizes that he worked under serious handicaps during 1917 and 1918, owing to the Victor Co. devoting much of its factory to war work, but with the return to normal conditions gradually Mr. Grinnell anticipates a remarkable year for business, all depending on how much merchandise he can secure.

The Keenan & Jahn store, exclusive Aeolian-Vocalion dealers, announces its first Aeolian records. There have been a lot of visitors to the talking machine department to hear the new records.

John McCormack records have been in great demand, being especially stimulated by his visit here in recital and the unusual amount of advertising given his records. Harry Lauder's records have also been in great demand due to his visit here for one week.

Dealers who handle Pathé records report the best January business they ever had. Pathé have been getting out some very timely hits in the past few months and the public have awakened to this fact, and dealers are benefiting. The Michigan jobbers—Williams, Davis-Brooks & Hinchman Sons—are enjoying unusual business in both machines and records.

INTRODUCING THE NEW RECORDS

Denholm & McKay Co., Worcester, Mass., Feature the New Titles In Public Recitals Held Each Month as Lists are Released

WORCESTER, MASS., February 3.—In order to introduce the new Victor records to Victrola owners and others interested in the latest titles, the Denholm & McKay Co., of this city, have inaugurated a plan of giving public recitals each month just after the new records are released so that music lovers may hear the latest operas most conveniently, and thereby be able to pass judgment and make selections.

The first new record recital was held late last month, and attracted an unusually large crowd. It was finally necessary to give complete recitals on two days in order that those who desired to hear all the new list might enjoy the privilege. A practical touch was given to the recital by supplying each visitor with a special program upon which could be checked the records desired, pencils being supplied in order that the checking might be done while the selection was fresh in the mind of the customer. No general effort of salesmanship is made during the concert, the visitors being left free to decide what they want and to place their orders in the usual way.

NOW IN CHARGE OF BUSINESS

The business of the New England Talking Machine Co., of this city, is being successfully managed by the mother and sister of Charles P. Trundy, whose untimely death was mentioned last month. Mrs. C. L. Levirs, the mother, and Mrs. W. H. Chisley, sister of the deceased, announce that the business will be conducted along the same high standard of efficiency as heretofore.

The Harmonola Talking Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., has been incorporated with capital stock of $1,000. The incorporators are Norris J. Leonard, Maurice Hamberg and Lily Bender.

This record, it is understood, is sponsored by extensive Middle West capital, headed by J. H. Smith and L. J. Mueller interests. Executive offices will be maintained at 1836 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, O., and laboratories at 16-18 West Thirty-ninth street, New York.

In a chat with The World Mr. Smith, president of the company, stated that the new record is the achievement of years of study, experience and experiments of F. W. Matthews, the inventor, and others associated with him. Mr. Smith is enthusiastic regarding the tonal qualities of the new record, and states that the company's first move from its executive offices will be to establish distributors in exclusive territory throughout the United States and Canada.

APPOINT NEW EXPORT MANAGER

Vicsonia Mfg. Co., Inc., Planning to Go After Export Trade in Active Way

With a view to developing the export business in Vicsonias systematically, the Vicsonia Mfg. Co., New York, manufacturers of the Vicsonia reproducer, have announced the appointment of James W. Green, 25 Church street, New York, as export manager for the company. The company incidentally is fast getting back to normal so far as production is concerned, and as labor and raw materials become more plentiful are catching up with orders in good shape, according to William J. Sess, president of the company.

The Manophone Corp., Adrian, Mich., manufacturers of the Manophone phonograph, are rearranging the various departments of their factory for the purpose of increasing the output.

No harvest of success was ever reaped from a sowing of wild oats.

GET PRIZE FOR BIGGEST INCREASE

CLEVELAND, O., February 3.—The Fischer Co., Ohio representatives for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., were recently awarded a prize offered by the Pathé Co. for registering the biggest increase in business of any of the company's jobbers during 1918. The Fischer Co. made a remarkable advance during the year despite unfavorable conditions, and believe that with the situation much improved they will be able to register a volume of business during 1919 that will place them well in line for this year's prize.

THE VALUE OF THE SHOW WINDOW

In calling attention to a recent specially prepared attractive window display, the Victor Talking Machine Co. offered the following live comment to its dealers: "Would you rent your show windows to the shoe merchant across the street? No, certainly no, because your rent comes in through your show windows. Whenever new customers or even your regular customers pass into your store they involuntarily pause to look over the merchandise you display, and what you display and the manner in which it is displayed is pretty sure to determine the customer's actions."

OPEN NEW VICTROLA DEPARTMENT

Sonneborn's Sons have purchased the three-story building adjoining their present quarters in LaPorte, Ind., and will occupy the store space with an elaborate new Victrola department.

The reading of this announcement without action on your part will avail you nothing. In all the world there is no line like this. "Lauzon" and "Grand Rapids" are synonymous for the best in good furniture.

Lauzon phonographs are superlatively perfect in design, material, workmanship and finish; are unexcelled in tone quality, and mechanically are as near perfection as is possible to make them.

We make these claims advisedly, having been identified with the phonograph industry continuously since the days of the Berliner Gramophone. Our twenty years' experience and guarantee are back of every "Lauzon."

Note the unusual values, particularly the $65.00, $85.00, $100.00, $125.00 and $150.00 models.

From all indications 1919 will be the greatest year in phonograph history.

TALKING MACHINE DEMAND IS VERY ACTIVE IN BUFFALO

Andrews and Wurlitzer in Real Estate Deals—Dealers Anxiously Awaiting Stocks of Machines and Records—Major Noyes Returns From Overseas—What Leading Dealers Report

BUFFALO, N. Y., February 5.—Potent signs of constantly increasing business are a feature of the talking machine trade in Buffalo this month.

As announced elsewhere in this issue, W. D. & C. N. Andrews have bought the Builders' Exchange, at Court and Pearl streets. This will be the future home of this firm.

Another big feature is the purchase of the five-story building at 674-676 Main street by the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. The purchase is announced as "a quarter of a million real estate deal." Forty thousand dollars will be spent in improving the building, which will become one of the finest music stores in the country.

"We are still short on shipments, but expect to be caught up by the middle of February," said J. R. Flynn, manager of the Buffalo branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. "We are very glad to say we have several prospective dealers on the waiting list ready to sign up with us as soon as the company gives us the privilege of doing so, but, however, we will not take on any new dealers until we are sure we can satisfy our old ones."

The fraternal spirit developed among Buffalo talking machine dealers on account of the shortage of goods in wartime seems to have continued during the present period. Various goods were exchanged among these merchants and genuine co-operation was the result.

President Koenig, of the Koenig Piano Co., has returned from a trip to Boston.

The Buffalo Retail Merchants' Association has the following merchants among its 1919 officers:—R. C. Hudson, president of J. N. Adam & Co., piano and Victrola dealers; Edward L. Hengerer, president of the William Hengerer Co., Victrola dealers, and T. M. Gibson, of Adam, Meldrum & Anderson Co., Pathephone dealers.

Several Buffalo dealers placed in conspicuous places the page ad which the Victor Talking Machine Co. recently inserted in local newspapers: "Don't blame the dealer for the shortage of Victor products—the Government needed us," was a feature of the ad.

Business in talking machines may be developed later by the Player Roll Shop, which opened recently at 672 Main street.

The help situation is improving at local talking machine stores. Employees—seniors and juniors—are not so independent as they were before the armistice was signed. They are hanging onto their jobs because others are hard to find.

William Turner, piano dealer at 1401 Main street, has taken on the Pathé line. His motto is "The House of Satisfaction." He says he operates on a strictly cash basis; that he doesn't have to worry about bills and is following closely the spirit of his slogan.

Emerson records are featured daily in the window displays of Besser's store, Main and Huron streets.

Twisting the titles of records is an oft-recurring incident at local talking machine stores. For instance, H. G. Towne, manager of the Victrola department of the Robert L. Loud Music Co., recently had requests for these: "Old Friendship" instead of "Oh! Frenchie," and "Hindoo's Dance," in place of "Hindustan."

Major Hal Noyes, who formerly traveled for W. D. & C. N. Andrews, of Buffalo, has returned from military duty overseas. He visited this city on his way to Texas. He was in the Motor Transport Division in France for seventeen months.

BOSTON BOOK CO. IN NEW QUARTERS

Plans for Increased Working Force and Equipment in New Plant in New York

The Boston Book Co., the well-known manufacturers of record albums, have moved from 43 West Fourth street to 40-46 West Twentieth street, New York. In their new home they have over 12,000 feet of floor space, and it is proposed to add greatly to the production. Over fifty new hands will be added immediately to the working force and a number of new machines are to be added to the equipment of the plant. These will all be of the labor-saving kind and will increase the output to a great extent. J. M. Alter, president of the company, looks for a very big year in the album field and the move into larger quarters was made with the idea in view of handling a greatly increased demand.

Habits are like appendices. When they begin to hurt it's time they were "cut out."

THE MUSICAL POSSIBILITIES OF THE TALKING MACHINE

Emphasized in a New Victor Volume Which Tells "How to Get the Most Out of Your Victrola"
—The Book Is Highly Educational and Illuminating in Its Information

It has long been felt by the officers of the Victor Talking Machine Co. that the enjoyment of the average Victrola owner could be increased to a material degree if some means could be devised for bringing directly to the attention of the machine owner in the home some idea regarding the musical possibilities of the instrument and particularly information as to how to take the fullest advantage of those possibilities. It was also felt that some information as to the proper use of the Victrola and facts regarding the proper care of the records would serve to increase interest and appreciation.

These thoughts have culminated in one of the first after-war moves of The Victor Co., the issuance of a comprehensive new volume entitled: "How to Get the Most Out of Your Victrola," copies of which have gone to the trade some time since, with the announcement that not only were additional copies available for dealers at a nominal price, but that in the future a copy of the booklet would be packed with every Victrola leaving the factory, as a part of the regular equipment, going with the instrument right into the home of the purchaser.

Dealers have, of course, in the past explained to customers more or less convincingly what they might expect and should expect of their Victrola, and how it should be used. The elaborate literature sent out by the company, the record supplements, the opera books, etc., have all been calculated to impress Victrola owners with the possibilities of the instrument, but the newest booklet, "How To Get the Most Out of Your Victrola," goes directly and frankly to the point, and in straight, understandable language brings to the Victrola owner the important message of music, and authoritative suggestions as to how music can be best appreciated. It tells, for instance, how with the Victrola, and some opera records, opera music can be studied and appreciated in the home and repeated at will to far greater advantage than were repeated trips made to the opera house. Opera music is analyzed simply and comprehensively, and an effort is made to explain its real meaning. The same with the music of the symphony orchestra and of the military bands.

Then come some instructive paragraphs regarding chamber music and piano music, followed by pages devoted to instructive text regarding the development and inner-meaning of sacred music, the status of concert songs, the appeal of popular music, and of dance music.

The sections of the booklet devoted to hints as to how to get the best results with the Victrola are so full of valuable information as to be well worthy of the attention of the dealer and his salesmen, as well as the machine owner. The question of acoustics, the simple rules for starting and stopping the machine, the regulation of the speed of the motor, the care of records, the proper use of needles, and the arrangement of programs that will appeal because they are well balanced—all these are of as much importance to the man who sells as to him who buys.

For the information of those who select records at random because they are unfamiliar with the building up of a well-balanced library, there are offered in the back of the booklet several suggested lists of records. There are lists totaling $10, $15, or more in value, so arranged that they can be combined without danger of duplication should the amount prepared to allot to record buyers be generous.

Taken all in all, "How to Get the Most Out of Your Victrola" is a booklet of which the Victor Co. and its representatives may well feel proud. From general introduction to final lists, it is a practical, common-sense selling aid to the dealer, and its value should soon be demonstrated.

PROMINENT ARTISTS PORTRAYED

In February Issue of the Usoskin Window Display Arranged for Victor Dealers

The theme of the February issue of the Usoskin window display for Victor dealers is "artist approval." Following the statement that every Victor record must have the approval of the recording artist, the various cards in the set portray prominent artists listening to and approving the reproduction of their voice or playing. The cards also reproduce the signature endorsement of the artists. It is the plan of Ed Usoskin, Inc., producers of these displays, to change the theme of display each month. In the January issue of "The Voice of the Victor" one-half page was devoted to the reproduction of parts of commendatory letters received by Ed Usoskin, Inc., from some of the many dealers using this display in widely separated parts of the country.

ANNUAL MEETING OF TRI-STATE VICTOR DEALERS' ASS'N

Members of Organization With Headquarters in St. Louis Listen With Enthusiasm to Excellent Talks on Business Subjects and Then Elect New Officers for Ensuing Year

St. Louis, Mo., February 6.—One hundred Victor dealers and sales folk met at dinner here last night for the annual meeting of the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association and to hear the message brought to them by John Gregg Paine from the board of directors of the Victor Talking Machine Co.

It was the first inspirational meeting ever held in behalf of a talking machine and, evidently, from the spirit aroused and the indorsement of the idea, will not be the last.

Mr. Paine, who is connected with the copyright department, told how the Victor plant, because it "is the best of its kind in the world" was needed by the Government for war purposes and how the factory and the dealers were compelled to make the sacrifice of temporarily losing their merchandise, although now the factory is being put back to musical instrument work as rapidly as thoroughly competent working men can be found. He told how the Victor experts and enthusiasts study each move toward perfection and how they rejoice at each new achievement. He held his audience completely for most of an hour and then was warmly applauded and every one present later assured him that his talk has been exceedingly helpful.

E. A. Parks, of Hannibal, Mo., revealed many of the little things that had made his business a success in a city of 25,000 people. He outlined his accounting system, his advertising and follow-ups. A thing that was new to most of his hearers was the occasional buying of souvenirs for those customers who were paying instalments. He said his biggest assets were the humanness and kindly spirit in his stores.

J. M. Mediary, of the Grand Leader department store in this city, read an earnest plea that means much to the dealer in musical instruments. The prestige of the Starr is a prestige gained from fifty years' experience in the creation of musical instruments, a vast wealth of knowledge which has been poured into the making of the Starr Phonograph. The public knows this. The music-loving public knows that "old friends are best." That is why the circle of those who own and love a Starr is constantly broadening.

It is easy to explain to a customer just why the Starr Phonograph is superior. "The difference is in the tone." The marvelous tone of the Starr—which is appreciated the moment it is heard—is due to "the singing throat" of the Starr Phonograph.

And the "singing throat" of the Starr Phonograph is due, in turn, to the material from which it is made—Silver Grain Spruce, the same wood as that from which the master violin-makers of olden days lovingly fashioned the priceless Stradivarius and the golden-voiced Amati. Surprisingly clear, mellow, resonant, the Singing Throat of the Starr is a revelation to all who hear it.

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[Note.—This is the twenty-third of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

WHAT ABOUT THE CHILDREN?

The time has come, the walrus said, to talk of many things, and anyway to talk of something else besides the war, war music, etc., etc., etc. For the present instalment of these articles, I propose to turn just as far away from the war as I can, and so elect to talk about the children.

Now, I am one of those who believe that just a bit too much mush used to be cooked up about the kids in the old pre-war days, when we had nothing to think about except making money. But now things are different. We have talked just a bit too much about other things during the past four years. Let us get back and take a look at the kiddies, using the horn of one of our talking machines for a telescope.

"Frills"

We can all remember the time when the idea of teaching the children in school anything except the three R's was regarded as quite absurd. We used to hear, a few years ago, much about "eliminating frills" from the school courses. But to-day we have found that the "frills" once so derided are often in fact the most solid elements in the child's education.

The object of "education" must surely be to "educate," which is to draw out, the talents inherent in the child, and no system of stuffing with facts will "educate" very much. It is much more likely to "induce" . . . indigestion.

Appreciation

The musical training children get in the schools is neither very thorough nor very efficient in most cases, but it is improving all the time, and the improvement is coming in proportion as the school authorities everywhere learn that the most useful thing they can do for the child musically is to train him or her in appreciation. Not one American child in a hundred, as the taste of the people now stands, is really musical from birth. That is to say, until we have raised the general standard of public taste, we shall find only a very small minority of the children gifted with executive or creative talent in music, but every normal child has the capacity to enjoy music, if the opportunity under proper guidance is made available. Just here comes the opportunity of the schools. Teach the children to listen intelligently to music.

Now the music dealer need not be reminded that if his community has in it any children who are learning to love music that community is gradually and surely becoming a musical community. A musical community is good for him; it is even better for the general life of the nation. A musical community cannot be a wholly ignoble community, for good music is ennobling to the character of a nation. Inject into the American combination of puritanism, individualism and tremendously energetic provincialism, the leaven of love for the tone art, and you will have an unbeatable combination.

Anyhow, there will not be much quarreling over the statement that the American school system should be encouraged to the utmost in teaching music appreciation to as many children as are brought under its influence; that is, to the majority of the children of this country.

The Talking Machine

Nor, we think, will there be any disposition to quarrel with the statement that the talking machine has been proved definitely to be by far the best instrument for the general teaching of music appreciation. The schools happily have for some years been experimenting with talking machines, and we know that the Victor Company has promoted intelligently the use of the Victor machine in the schools, supplying the teachers with special records, with instruction, with teaching material and with every required aid for presenting musical appreciation to children in the best possible way.

The Schools

Now this music movement is of the greatest importance and interest. Schools all over the country have adopted the talking machine in their work as an integral part of their cultural teaching. They have more and more come to see that music is something to be taught through constant presentation, and that a taste for good music is among the most important elements in the making of character and of a fine outlook on life.

Cannot the talking machine dealer take more effective account of these facts and turn them to his legitimate advantage in many and various ways? I think he can, and shall here set forth some of the ideas which come to mind in discussing this angle of the "musical possibilities of the talking machine."

"Listening"

Supervisors of public school music, who have come to understand the significance of the notion of music appreciation as applied to the child's mentality, have found that the first part of their task is to teach the child to listen intelligently. Indeed, in the true sense of the term, intelligent listening constitutes the whole of music appreciation. There is in reality no more to be taught. But, in the narrower sense, the sense of listening for the first time to something besides mere unrelated sounds, the teachers are finding out that children need very much care and very much patience. It is being found out that the normal child loves to listen to music, but that the worst obstacle is found in the lack of musical thought in the home.

The talking machine presents the most interesting, the most efficient and the most attractive of all means for producing musical feeling among the children, and the schools use it for this purpose more than they use anything else. Every child whose home contains a talking machine is therefore presumably a child more likely than other children to shine in the music appreciation classes. Here, it seems, is a tip for the dealer to follow up.

Contests

Let us take the first scheme that comes to mind. Suppose, during the school season, the dealer should inaugurate a number of afternoon concerts, say from 4 to 5, for school-children only, inviting them to come and listen to music on the talking machine, such music to be chosen in concert with the local supervisor of music. Let the dealer arrange a "listening contest" through these recitals, whereby the child who, after a course of them, can, at school later on in the term, recognize and describe most intelligently music which has been heard previously at the dealer's store during the recitals, and who has meanwhile learned most about this music, may receive a prize from the dealer. This prize might be in the form of a package of records, or a credit on the purchase of a talking machine, or something like that. There should be a prize in every grade above the fourth, say, to be competed for at the end of the school year. The recitals for the children might be held weekly between February and May, and the prizes distributed at the school graduating ceremony.

Results

A dealer who should undertake to do this would, of course, be careful to deal entirely through the principals of the school and the supervisors of music and should confine his efforts to one or two schools in his neighborhood. He might induce other dealers to take the same attitude, for it is quite certain that the results of these campaigns would be shown in generally increased sales of machines and records. Children whose homes do not contain talking machines will naturally feel the disadvantage and will use their powers of persuasion on their parents. Those whose homes do contain such machines will have more interest in buying records and would get into the habit of desiring more and better music. It is a fact too well known to need more than mere mention that the profits in talking machine record-selling come from pushing the best records, that is to say, the records of the highest musical class. The dealer wants to sell as many high-priced and high-grade records as he can, and is finding all the time that the one great obstacle to the steady and increasing sale of such records is found in popular musical ignorance. The great manufacturers one and all recognize this fact and are doing their best to help their retailers in wakening up the popular mind. There is more and better opportunity than ever just now to work this side of the talking machine game, for now, more than ever, the world is interested in music. But unless that interest can be directed to the best music, the world will soon forget its fad and go back to the old indifference.

The point I wish to make is that the child mind presents a field for promotive work in the good-music field which the dealer may and should seize upon. He may feel conscious at the same time that he is doing the very best of work. The promotion of love for good music involves no sacrifice of his own legitimate interests, since it is just as much his duty to sell good records as trashy ones. In assisting the child mind to understand and love the best in the noblest of all the arts, he is doing something to make the life of his own community richer and to co-operate with the school authorities in the great work of civilizing the American child. The dreariest of all mental deserts is that which is presented by the mind of the average respectable inhabitant of the average dull, respectable small or large community. The music business in any and all of its manifestations can only flourish in proportion as the community takes a live interest in the things of the spirit. One begins with the child if one is to have a community like this.

IT PAYS TO STUDY THE CATALOG

How Non-Selling Records Have Been Made Salable and Popular by Effort

In a recent chat with The World C. F. Bruno, of C. Bruno & Sons, Inc., Victor wholesalers, commented upon the fact that during the past year or two Victor dealers had learned to appreciate the true value of the Victor record catalog, and had called the attention of their customers to many records which had in the past been sadly neglected. The general shortage of Victor records prompted the progressive dealer to devote more of his time to stimulating the demand for records which he had regarded as "good" numbers, but which had not been given proper recognition by his sales staff. The shortage of product brought these records to the fore as excellent business getters, and Mr. Bruno suggests that Victor dealers continue this policy of studying the Victor catalog to advantage and instruct their sales people to sell Victor records of every class and division instead of concentrating upon the so-called "hits" which practically sell themselves.

THE ELLIS "Music-Master" Reproducer For Music Lovers

This Illustration is Actual Size

Quotation from a letter received from a Chicago customer, Dec. 17th, 1918.

"Your latest Ellis 'Music-Master' reproducer reached me several days ago and I have tried it out in every shape and form and it is simply a revelation, a wonder, a thing of beauty and a joy forever. I am delighted beyond my fondest dreams. It seems to be an inspired human being. Just as soon as the needle touches the record, one seems instantly transplanted into some musical gathering. It lets one farther back into the recording room than seems natural. I tried one of Caruso's hardest records with the loud steel needle, also my hardest band records and never a blur or discordant note. Oh, I tell you it is wonderful! You have certainly reached perfection and the only thing that could be more real would be to call in the artists themselves."

Flanner-Hafsoos Music House (one of Milwaukee's oldest and largest music concerns) just placed an order for 100 Ellis "Music-Master" reproducers after ordering lots of half dozen at a time during the past year and a half. "Our customers claim 'your reproducer does more than claimed and it improves with age,'" this firm wrote when sending the order.

FROM OUR CHICAGO HEADQUARTERS

E. P. VAN HARLINGEN,

World Office
Republic Bldg., 209 South State St., Chicago
Telephone: Wabash 5774

CHICAGO, ILL., February 8.—Last month the opening columns of the Chicago department of The World contained an article relative to the wave of prosperity which is sweeping the country, and the effect it has had upon the talking machine industry. It was pointed out that this wave of prosperity is different from any other in the nation's history, due to the fact that the people are actually saving money, whereas during other waves they had been spending it as fast as they got it.

The calamity howlers in the past were wont to rise up on their hind legs and howl that a depression was sure to follow prosperity. In this they were generally right, but these same fellows are few and far between at present, as the odds are against them, thanks to the saving habit; nor is there any likelihood whatsoever that a drought of depression will follow this present wave of prosperity.

In backing up this statement some authoritative facts are here related. For example, we quote from statements recently issued in the reports of both the Comptroller of Currency and the State Auditor relative to banking, both national and State. These statements are the first to be issued since the armistice was signed and speak volumes.

They show that the banks have had a material reduction in their aggregate loan accounts, while heavy increases are shown in their total deposits, their savings deposits and their cash resources. The statement covers the period from November 1, 1918, to December 31, 1918. On December 31 the loans and discounts of Chicago's national and State banks combined were $1,041,442,851, as compared with $1,002,904,782 on November 1. The total deposits for both kinds of banks at the close of the year showed $1,542,402,644, as compared with the previous total of November 1, of $1,474,829,075, or a gain of $17,573,509. Now the point that bears out our statements as to savings accounts is shown in the fact that nearly 40 per cent of this increase has been in savings accounts, which have increased to $27,906,597. The savings deposits in the national banks on November 1 were $15,233,902, and in the State banks for the same period the savings deposits were $245,479,923.

Now we all know that a great deal of money, in fact more than we had anticipated, was spent during the holiday season. Naturally, we should expect that the savings deposits for December 31 at the close of the holiday season would have decreased. However, this was not the way it turned out. On December 31 the national bank savings deposits had increased to $17,919,315, while the savings deposits of the state banks on the same date had increased to $270,701,107. These statements were further augmented by statements issued by comptrollers and auditors of other States and this proved conclusively that there was a lot of money in the country, although tremendous inroads had been made during the holidays upon both wholesale and retail stocks of all kinds of merchandise, especially those dealing in phonographs and records.

To give a clearer idea of how much the increases were, we will cite some figures as an example. For the sake of argument let say there are two million people in Chicago. [As a matter of fact, there are a little over two million and a half, but we take two million inhabitants to get round figures.] If we divide the total savings deposit increase, which amounted to $27,906,597 by the two million, our answer is that the per capita savings deposit had increased after the holidays to approximately $14. The above figures naturally mean a whole lot to the business man of the country, but where do the talking machine men come in? This can be very easily found out if one cares to take the trouble to keep an eye on the marriage license bureaus. The national selective service has been done away with and the enlisted men are rapidly being demobilized. Those who joined other branches of the service for the period of the war only are also being demobilized. All these young fellows are naturally looking on the brighter side of life and great numbers of them are "taking unto themselves a wife." It naturally follows that when a couple solemnly promise to love, honor and obey a new home will be established. The talking machine dealer is wise enough to know that the establishment of a new home means a new prospect. Taking all these things into consideration, what more can the talking machine dealer ask? Therefore, why should he not anticipate a big increase in his business during the year and especially more so as the summer months draw closer and June brides and June weddings become popular?

The Bread Floats Back

Who has forgotten the records which were given to the soldiers and sailors at home and abroad? No one, we hope. If anyone has forgotten the following may do something to wake him up. Recent purchasers of talking machines in Chicago have been asked by quite a number of salesmen what got the notion into their heads that they wanted a talking machine. The answer, in a great number of cases, has been that their purchase was due to a direct suggestion by sons in army or navy, who have learned to appreciate the power of music and its efficacy in binding up wounds inflicted by separation, loneliness and pain. Many a man who sent in a few records thought he was doing something for the boys on general principles of benevolence, but we have the fruits actually returning to us. That we did not expect it is not the point. What should interest us is the fact that the war has awakened among our boys a love for music strong enough to make them wish their home might contain, on their return, one of the talking machines they have grown to love. That is something really remarkable, and it is to be hoped that we shall not forget it. Indeed, if all signs do not fail, what has begun to happen will continue and we shall have a regular series of these influenced sales, not to mention the silent, unsung, but much felt influence of the greater love for music instilled into the hearts of many who might otherwise have been forever indifferent.

Then, again, let us not imagine that because the great struggle is over and the boys are returning there is no further use for talking machines and records in the army or the navy. To do this would be merely to waste the effort already put into impressing the minds of these boys. Thousands of them are returning and being demobilized each week. There are still other thousands who will return to be reconstructed and have their wounds healed. These we must care for. They are in army and navy hospitals in all sections of the country. Music will go a long way towards making them forget what they have gone through. So we say, dear trade, do all that you can in the vicinity

The attention of The World is called to the following little incident, which may prove of benefit to a number of salesmen. The story is that a woman called on a certain talking machine dealer in Chicago and selected an instrument upon which she paid a deposit to secure delivery; balance, of course, to be paid C. O. D. About an hour later she returned to the store and said that on second thought she would pay the entire balance and have it done with. She took the money out of her purse and was about to turn it over to the salesman when she decided she wanted to have another look at the machine she was purchasing. It turned out that the machine had been sent down to the shipping room. The report came up that the machine had been packed. The lady, however, was insistent, so the salesman escorted her to the shipping room, and showed her that the machine was all packed and tagged with her name and address. The salesman pointed this out to the woman, but still she wanted to see the machine. After much argument the box was opened and the lady looked at it, and said: "This is not the one I purchased." The salesman said it was, and the lady replied, "It is not. The one that I picked out had a tag on it exactly like the one on this machine, but it also had a mark on it that I put there when you were not looking." There was much discussion. The lady got real huffy, said that the salesman couldn't hand her any of that bunk and demanded her money returned. The result was that a sale was lost, and lost forever. We have no doubt that if Mr. Aesop, the fable man, were writing this item he would append a moral, "Mawruss, that is a dog of a different color. Don't switch machines or tags, either."

Getting New Factory in Running Shape

The Fulton-Alden Co., of Waukegan, Ill., are rapidly getting their new factory in running shape. The big plant is equipped with an especial complement of metal working machinery and they now expect to be able to turn out a new motor, which has been described in these columns within forty days. The line of supplies also includes tone arms, sound boxes, needle dispensing devices, efficiency cover balance and stay, and a new record filing device will shortly be on the market. The company is also now working on several new styles of the Fulton phonograph, which is expected to meet with special favor with the trade. It is announced in this issue that the company has changed its name to the Fulton Bros. Mfg. Co.

Ruger Appointed Branch Manager

F. A. Ruger, who has been associated with the Acme Die Casting Corp., of Brooklyn, for the past four years, has again been appointed branch manager for that well-known concern and will establish his office at 549 Washington boulevard, in the Machinery Exchange Building. He will represent the concern in all lines of trade and will have for his exclusive territory Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. Mr. Ruger stands high with the Western talking machine manufacturers, with whom the company does a very large business. He has just returned from the East, where he made his new arrangements, and is very enthusiastic regarding the talking machine business for the coming year as a result of his conversations with both Eastern and Western makers.

Frank M. Briggs, one of the best known traveling representatives in the talking machine industry, has been appointed by Brunswick as their representative in Kansas City territory. He has traveled extensively for the past fifteen years in the interests of some of the best-known talking machine companies in the country, and in securing his services H. B. Bibb, sales manager of the Brunswick Co., is to be congratulated. Mr. Briggs succeeds R. S. Pribyl, who formerly covered the Kansas City territory, but who has been transferred to Milwaukee as Brunswick's Wisconsin representative.

In commenting on the wholesale talking machine situation H. B. Bibb, general sales manager for Brunswick, says that it does not appear that there will be any let up in the demand for talking machines this year. "Dealers," says he, "are continually bombarding us with orders and report that they must have goods immediately. Our branch houses report that they were entirely cleaned out by January 1, and although our three big factories are working overtime orders are still piling up and all signs point to a record-breaking year.

"We recently received an order from the Red Cross for fifty machines to be delivered to Great Lakes, and our San Francisco branch received a similar order from the Y. M. C. A. to be delivered to the coast barracks."

Dan Creed Visited Eastern Points

Dan A. Creed, general manager of the Chicago Talking Machine Co. made a trip recently to New York and Philadelphia. While in the East he attended a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers.

Corporal Fred Morrish, Headquarters Co., 333rd Field Artillery, "Blackhawk" Division, has returned from overseas duty in France. He has already been mustered out and is now back in his old position as shipping clerk with the Chicago Talking Machine Co.

Sympathy for E. C. West

The trade of Chicago is extending its sympathies to E. C. West, of Chase & West Co., of Des Moines, Iowa, Victor dealers, owing to the recent death of his wife. While visiting in Texas Mrs. West contracted the flu and quickly succumbed. Interment was at Des Moines.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Calveard, of Louisville, Ky., spent their honeymoon in Chicago. Mr. Calveard is manager of the Harmony Co., of Louisville.

H. G. Power, of the Taylor Carpet Co., Indianapolis, was a recent caller on the trade.

Walter B. Fulghum, of Richmond, Ind., stopped off in Chicago recently while on his way to visit the Victor Co.'s factory at Camden. Mr. Fulghum was formerly manager of the order department of the Victor Co.

Miss Mary Carroll, manager of the talking machine department of the J. C. Baxter Piano Co., Davenport, Iowa, visited Chicago recently. George P. Lonergan, manager of the P. A. Berger Co., Peoria, was in Chicago recently.

George P. Cheatle, proprietor of the Music Shop, Springfield, Ill., visited the trade here.

Visited the Grand Rapids Show

Burton Collver, who is the well-known representative for the Cheney Talking Machine Co., was a recent visitor at the sales offices of the company. He was in charge of the exhibit at Grand Rapids in the company's permanent headquarters in the Keeler Building during the January furniture show. The market was a big success, said he, and considering the fact that the manufacturers didn't decide to hold their show until early in December the showing was creditable and the attendance excellent. Buying was in proportion to the attendance and was remarkable. It is predicted that the July show will be the largest ever held.

G. D. Shewell, president of the Cheney Sales Corp., of Philadelphia, was also among the visitors.

Return to Active Duties

Emerson dealers in the Omaha territory are congratulating G. W. Marquis upon his return to his duties as Emerson representative in that section. Mr. Marquis had been for the past six months in the United States service stationed at Camp Forrest, Ga. The trade he calls on in Kansas City, Omaha and St. Louis are indeed glad to get him back to take care of their wants once more.

F. W. Clement, manager of the Chicago branch of the Emerson Phonograph Co., has returned from a short trip to Detroit, where he went to look over the trade situation. He believes that it will be very hard for the trade to estimate at this time what the demand will be for the balance of the year. All the dealers he visited were of the opinion that there is no end of business in sight and that trade is increasing weekly.

A Newspaper Error

There is every reason to believe that some "cub" reporter down in Aurora was put on the carpet recently and given an admonition by his editor which will not be forgotten in a hurry. It is a well-known fact that cubs have a habit of getting things mixed up and a striking example may be seen from the following surprising item which appeared in a local Aurora paper on January 23.

"The Royal Phonograph Co. has purchased the grounds, building and machinery of the Hiawatha Talking Machine Co. The deal was brought about, owing to a fire at Ottawa, Ill., on March, 1918, when the Royal Co.'s plant burned down. At a directors' meeting it was said that the company would make a full and complete line of machines and have them ready for the market at an early date."

Anyone who has kept in touch with the trade for the past year knows that this is an error. It will be remembered that the Hiawatha Talking Machine Co., at that time known as the Ottawa Pianophone Co., maintained a plant at Ottawa, Ill., which was destroyed by fire early in the year. When news of the destruction of these buildings was made known, Fred Moynahan, treasurer and general manager of the Hiawatha Co., quickly assured his dealers that plans had been made to take care of their wants and within a week a factory in Chicago was leased and operations were resumed. Shortly thereafter a deal was consummated with the Royal Phonograph Co., Geneva, Ill., whereby the Hiawatha Co. took over the holdings of the latter, which were located at Geneva. The plant was purchased through Carlisle & Sons, real estate dealers of Geneva.

As regards the directors' meeting, which was said to have been held at Aurora, President Moynahan says this is also an error; that all directors' and other business meetings of the Hiawatha Co. are held in Chicago at their main offices in the Republic Building.

A. H. Rintelman, of the Republic Building, this city, has obtained trade-mark protection under Certificate 123755 for the use of the word "Goldentone," printed in the form of a semi-circle with its chord upward. This name has been used for some time past by Mr. Rintelman for his special permanent needle, which he calls the Goldentone noiseless phonograph needle.

In this instance they are making known to the patrons of Orchestra Hall during intermissions of the sensational photo play "Mickey," now being run there, that two certain Columbia records are both instrumental and vocal numbers of the well-known song "Mickey."

Two New Ideas Which Won Millions of Friends

WHEN the now-famous Brunswick was announced, most people believed that the utmost had already been attained in the phonographic art.

Hence they expected, and rightly so, that The Brunswick would have to bring out overwhelming betterments in order to win a place among the leaders.

And this great expectation was realized. The Brunswick created a memorable sensation. It commanded instant respect and admiration.

The Pioneer

Of the major instruments, The Brunswick was the first to play all records with faithful regard for different requirements. This feature alone created thousands of admirers. For it meant that a Brunswick owner could buy and play any record, whatever make.

Since different makes offer different artists, and no one make offers them all, music lovers saw in The Brunswick the opportunity to select their own library of records, without restriction.

The other outstanding Brunswick betterment was in tone production. By a more scientific amplification of tone waves, The Brunswick overcame many old-time crudities and brought out lovely tones hitherto lost.

Today The Brunswick Method of Reproduction is a recognized triumph. It means perfected reproduction to all who know it. And the news is spreading fast.

Two Famous Ideas

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction includes The Ultona, an all-record player. This master invention can be obtained on no other phonograph. The Ultona presents to each make of record the proper needle and diaphragm. All at a turn of the hand. It is a unique reproducer, not an attachment nor makeshift.

The Brunswick Method also includes The Brunswick Amplifier, an all-wood sound chamber built with scientific regard for acoustic laws. No metal is used because it muffles sound vibrations.

Before you decide which phonograph for your home, hear The Brunswick. Compare its tone. Note the Ultona.

A Brunswick Dealer will gladly assist you in making a tone test.

year with a rush which is still keeping up. The business of this company has grown wonderfully in the past few months and many new accounts and contracts have been signed up by high grade manufacturers, who have adopted Empire equipment exclusively. Within the next few weeks the company will bring out its new sound box, which contains a number of novel features and many improvements over the old one. This box, which has already been seen by many of the best phonograph mechanics in Chicago, is pronounced by all to represent a significant improvement in sound boxes. In order to take care of their constantly increasing business the Empire people have found it necessary to make some additions to the Cleveland factory, where much new equipment has been installed recently, including some especially constructed machines to be used in the manufacture of Empire sound boxes and tone arms.

Introduces John Church Co. Talking Machine

The new talking machine manufactured by the John Church Co., of Cincinnati, made its appearance on Piano Row this month and is on exhibit at the company's warerooms on Wabash avenue. This instrument was brought out by Frank A. Lee, president of the John Church Co., and marks an innovation as regards the amplifier. Talking machines have long been the hobby of Mr. Lee, and the amplifier is based on his ideas concerning sound reproduction. Mr. Lee has, it is said, given careful thought to the history of the old post-horn and followed its evolution carefully through its various stages until the modern cornet was reached. He has put this idea into the amplifier of his talking machine, believing that the tone will become more resonant and pure, due to a series of curves. The tone in traveling from the sound box through the tone arm is thrown into the amplifier, which is bent along lines similar to those of a cornet. The sound travels through this series of curves and is then thrown into the floating horn. In the forepart of the horn there is placed an oval-shaped disc known as the accumulator, which is said further to purify the tone by throwing it back into the horn. The instruments at present come in three sizes, two of which are in Chippendale design. The larger size is Sheraton inlaid and can be had with electric motor.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender Announcement

Considerable interest was manifested last week in the financial world by the offer of $4,000,000 of 6 per cent. short-time notes of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., which are to be redeemable in blocks of one-tenth of the total number annually from 1920 to 1929. In offering these notes the Continental & Commercial Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, which is the trustee, sets forth that the total assets of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. exceed $21,000,000, and the quick assets exceed $13,000,000, while the surplus net income for the year 1918, after making liberal allowances for taxes, etc., is estimated at nearly $1,500,000. The company is said to be the largest manufacturer in the world of billiard tables, bowling alleys and accessories, and is, of course, well known to the music industries as the maker of the Brunswick phonographs.

Glen Oyloe Homeward Bound

Glen Oyloe, of Ossian, Ia., who handles the M. Schulz line of pianos and player-pianos, as well as other lines, and is one of the best known Victor distributors in the northeast of Iowa, passed through Chicago on January 25, Saturday, en route for his home.

He came from Fort Sheridan Officers' Training Camp, whence he had just been discharged honorably by Uncle Sam. Mr. Oyloe has been in the aviation section and was training as a specialist in aerial photography. Although like many others he feels disappointed at seeing all

Change of Victor Representatives

R. S. Cron, who represents the Victor Talking Machine Co., has taken up his residence in Chicago and will look after the Victor interests in this territory. He succeeds L. R. Yeager, who formerly represented this company here, but was recently transferred to the New England district. Mr. Cron has heretofore traveled the territory comprised of Alabama, Tennessee and Florida.

Satisfied at Last

The R. C. Wade Co. has been receiving lately quite a number of testimonials relative to the merits of the Tonofone needles. Nearly all of these testimonials are coming from the trade direct, but occasionally something good slips through from an outsider. Perhaps the most interesting so far received is that which was sent in by H. C. Faber, a dealer who conducts an establishment at Monogah, W. Va. Mr. Faber sends in a lengthy letter and in starting goes back into his early life, telling how he had always been regarded as a "crank" on sound and how his "two extra large ears" had in many instances saved the day, so to speak.

He tells how he went into a shop in self-defense to purchase a talking machine and four records in order to keep his son quiet. He was so enthused within a few days as to the possibility of a talking machine and became so interested, that within a short time he had established himself as a dealer. Regardless of the fact that, as he calls it, "canned music" was a very wonderful thing, he soon came to know that no matter how costly the outfit with the smooth running motor, quiet spring, etc., this is all of no use without the most important part, the needle. He has ever been on the lookout for a "perfect" needle, the connecting link between the record and the machine. Here he believes ninety-nine and seven-eighths out of every one hundred people drop their interest, and play what they have, and get poor results, which are entirely due to the needle. He believes that if the dealer would pay more attention to the needle and educate the public who think that any old thing handed out named needle is all that is required, more people would become interested in talking machines and true tone production.

He finishes his interesting letter by telling of several incidents where he surprised some very critical friends by playing some operatic numbers with the Tonofone. He first played them with the ordinary steel needle and then repeated by using the Tonofone.

The above is only a sample of what the deal-

Big Year Ahead

W. A. Fricke, president of the Lakeside Supply Co., has just returned from an extended trip through Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Michigan, where he went to call on a number of large manufacturers of talking machines and accessories. He brought back the good news that everywhere he visited they are anticipating a big business year and everyone is loaded up with orders. All of the men he talked with have agreed that the tendency of the trade has been for the development of the high-grade goods and for the abolishment of junk instruments and equipment.

While on his trip Mr. Fricke was asked by the head of a large concern which is contemplating entering the talking machine game to act in the advisory capacity of consulting engineer. Mr. Fricke says arrangements have been made, and he has accepted the proposition.

The amount of business coming in to the Lakeside Co. has forced them to rent more space in the building wherein they are now located. They have now rented additional space, which practically doubles their quarters. Part of the space will be given over to the establishment of a research and developing laboratory, wherein inventors are invited to come and use the equipment for the purpose of perfecting their ideas.

New Company Incorporated

A new company known as the Firestone Phonograph Co. has been incorporated under the State laws of Illinois for $8,000. The incorporators are L. M. Firestone, E. L. Firestone and Harry Hart. L. M. Firestone is a son of Fred Firestone, manager of the city sales piano department of Lyon & Healy. Mr. Firestone, Jr., is well acquainted with the trade and has done more or less work with his father, who has the reputation of being one of the best piano salesmen in the city. The new company has opened its office at 59 E. Van Buren street, Chicago, and Firestone, Jr., believes that within a short time he will be in a position to put some traveling representatives on the road.

Lyon & Healy Concerts

The Lyon & Healy concert season is now in full swing and is a big drawing card on Piano Row. For the month of February they have a very entertaining program, headed by Edna Lucille Baum in character and classic dances and Mary De Laney, mezzo soprano. The concerts are given daily except Saturdays at 1, 2 and 3 p. m. A large size concert Victrola plays a prominent part in these entertainments and is used to show the efficiency of a talking machine as an accompanist. It is used for Miss Baum's dancing, and Miss De Laney's singing is accompanied by a Steinway Duo-Art piano. This is followed by a program consisting of eight numbers, many of which are Victor records.

H. J. Fiddelke Again at His Desk

H. J. Fiddelke, the wholesale Victor assistant to L. C. Wiswell, has returned to his desk. Mr. Fiddelke was confined to his home with pneumonia for the past two or three weeks. He first contracted the "flu," and while convalescing from this contracted pneumonia.

Johnson Motor Co. has at last brought its electric talking machine motor Model B to a point where it is claimed by many of the technicians in the trade to be practically perfect. The new Model B motor contains all the latest improvements and it is said that it cannot heat, that the current consumption is less than one-half per cent. per hour, and that it runs even and silent regardless of current fluctuations. It is so designed that it will run on direct or alternating currents and the alternating current can be of either the sixty or the twenty-five cycle.

Pleased With Trade Prospects

A. F. Meisselbach, vice-president of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. and manager of the Meisselbach division of the company, is on his first visit to the company's Chicago offices. "We expect the biggest year in the history of the talking machine business," he said. "The field has only been scratched and the opportunity even in this country is simply immense. It has been estimated that not one in seven families able to own phonographs do so, and I very much doubt if that tells the story by any means.

"I have been very much impressed of late in talking with manufacturers to note the satisfaction they express with the phonograph business. They are more than gratified with the results they have obtained. It is also a matter of gratification to see the progress that the substantial new manufacturers are making, in the perfecting of this product. There is an enthusiasm and earnestness about it all that promise great things for the industry."

From Chicago Mr. Meisselbach leaves for Canada and will spend some time at the company's headquarters in Toronto.

Mandel Activities

M. B. Silverman, sales manager of the Mandel Mfg. Co., passed an exceptionally busy month, not only taking care of the large amount of orders coming in but looking after the large and competent sales force as well. All of the old Mandel travelers are on the road and quite a number of new men have been added.

"Tonofone" The Talking Machine Needle Supreme

While in a Chicago suburban home, inspecting a high priced instrument made by one of the world's leading Talking Machine Manufacturers, a technician who is recognized as an authority recently heard, for the first time, a phonographic rendition with a "Tonofone" Needle. After listening to Galli-Curci's "Mad Scene" from "Lucia" and Alma Gluck's "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" he exclaimed, with all the fervor of an enthusiast,—

"That is certainly a wonderful needle—I never before heard such pure tones—such wonderful music from a phonograph."

"Tonofone" is different—absolutely different. It is made of different materials and embodies new principles—it is musically, mechanically and scientifically correct.

Roy Bloch is the latest addition to the force. Mr. Bloch will look after the Chicago trade.

HARMONOLA CO. INCORPORATED

Talking Machine Co. Incorporated Under Name Used by Price & Teeple Co. for Many Years

CHICAGO, ILL., February 3.—The incorporation of the Harmonola Talking Machine Co., Chicago, has attracted the attention of the Price & Teeple Piano Co., manufacturers of pianos and player-pianos, who have used the name Harmonola in connection with one of their player-pianos of well-known merit for a number of years. It has been heavily advertised and is known the country over in the music trade.

W. B. Price, chairman of the board of directors, is not in a position to state what action would be taken in the matter, but is positive that no one possesses the right to use the name "Harmonola" on any instrument, as it belongs to them and has been used by them in the shipment of musical instruments in interstate commerce for years. "We would naturally seek in every way to protect our interests in the use of this name," said Mr. Teeple.

VALUABLE VOLUME ON ACCOUNTING

"Accounting as an Aid to Business Profits," by W. R. Bassett, Contains Much Information of Decided Value to the Business Man

"Accounting As An Aid To Business Profits," by W. R. Bassett, has just been issued by the A. W. Shaw Co., Chicago, and is a volume of unusual value and interest, explaining as it does in understandable form the matter of accounting and cost accounting for the business man.

How well the author succeeded in emphasizing this phase of accounting is shown by a glance at the table of contents, which lists among others the following chapters: "How Much Accounting You Really Need," "Opening the Books," "How Accountancy Helps Sales," "How to Arrive at Your Statement of Condition," "How Bankers Analyze Your Statement of Condition," "What Is Good Will Really Worth?" "What a Cost System Means to Your Business," "How to Determine the Overhead Expense," etc.

The book is as devoid of the theoretical side of accounting as any volume of its scope and size could be and still serve well its purpose. It is very evident that the author, who is an accountant of national reputation, has placed special emphasis on the practical in accounting by indicating tested plans, methods and forms that have been successfully used by concerns throughout the country.

In his first chapter Mr. Bassett succeeds in convincing his reader that the only accounting worth while is that which combines an exact book record of transactions with an exact book record of operations, so that causes as well as effects may be analyzed.

One of the interesting features of this timely book is the opening up of a set of books for a hypothetical business concern and carrying them out step by step through partnership, incorporation and final dissolution exactly as they would be handled under everyday business activities. All the forms, agreements, contracts, and the like are reproduced and fully explained. One hundred and fourteen forms, including thirteen large inserts, amplify the text.

The book contains 320 pages, is bound in blue vellum and is priced at $5.00, postpaid $5.30

CHANGE NAME OF COMPANY

Business in Danville, Va., to Be Conducted in Future Under the Name of Clements, Chism & Parker, Inc.—Capital Stock Increased

DANVILLE, VA., February 6.—At a special call meeting of the stockholders and directors of the Hodnett-Chism Furniture Co., held January 27, the style of the firm was changed to Clements, Chism & Parker, Inc., and the capital stock was increased to $75,000. The names which now make the firm name represent the three active members of the company who have had actual charge of the business for a number of years. The same board of directors and officers will continue as before and the policies of the business are unchanged. The company has for some years conducted a very successful talking machine department in its store.

ENTERTAIN BOYS AT CAMP MERRITT

Noted Artists, Under Auspices of Emerson Phonograph Co., Bring Happiness to Soldiers

Happiness and good cheer were brought to Camp Merritt recently by a galaxy of artists who went over with the Emerson Phonograph Co. to entertain the boys just back from overseas. The boys packed the large auditorium of the Jewish Welfare Board, and their enthusiastic applause almost "shook the rafters" off the auditorium.

The program opened up with an amusing pianologue played by C. Linn Seiler, versatile and popular Bronxville society man. The next artist on the program was Mme. Christine Langenhann, often referred to as the "Czechoslovak Nightingale," and she entertained the boys with songs that they all knew by heart, and in which they joined. This artist was followed by the popular banjo-player Van Eps, accompanied by Arthur Bergh, musical director. The program continued with vocal selections by Charles Hart, well-known tenor; Mme. Alice L.

Mertens, concert contralto and baritone selections by Royal Dadman, who has attained signal success in musical circles.

As a fitting finale to the evening's entertainment Arthur Fields, one of the leading tenors in the recording field, gave several of his inimitable topical songs, and Monroe Silvers delivered a timely and laugh-splitting monologue. Billy Murray finished the program amidst a storm of applause that reflected his popularity with the boys from "over there."

The evening's entertainment was planned and managed by Louis D. Rosenfield, who contemplates staging similar entertainments for the boys in the near future.

The fourteenth annual Cleveland Food Show and Industrial Exposition ran for a week in Central Armory, beginning February 3. Among the attractive exhibits were those of the Ott Piano & Manufacturing Co., a Cleveland concern which assembles talking machines.

CLEVELAND DEALERS HOLD ANNUAL DINNER

Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio to Gather on February 20—New Officers to Be Elected—Latest News

CLEVELAND, O., February 5.—The annual meeting and banquet of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio will be held February 20, at a place not yet decided by the committee of arrangements.

During the meeting new officers recently elected will be installed. Herman Wolfe, head of the Wolfe Music Co., will succeed Charles K. Bennett, manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., as president. E. B. Lyons, sales manager of the same company, will succeed himself as secretary.

Efforts are being made to make the banquet and meeting of the dealers, who number over fifty from Cleveland and other cities of northern Ohio, the most important one ever held by the organization. Several prominent out-of-town representatives of talking machine producers will be assigned to speak on trade conditions.

"The demand for stock in talking machines still exceeds the supply," Mr. Lyons said. "Of course, we are receiving more machines than we previously got, but the supply is still short. Dealers are looking at the future with optimistic eyes, but are longing for brighter days in the trade."

There is considerable speculation in Cleveland over the effects prohibition will have on business after May 27, when the State goes dry, under an amendment to the Constitution, adopted November 5 last by voters. More than 1,000 saloons in Cleveland will cease to exist. Scores of them now occupy valuable premises all over the city.

Aside from the effect on realty conditions, business men are wondering what will be the direct effect on trade. Talking machine and piano dealers are disposed to regard the coming of State-wide and national prohibition as a boom for them. They reason that when "booze" is eliminated wage-earners will have more money to spend for musical instruments and music.

Charles K. Bennett, president of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio, is in New York looking after business. Mr. Bennett visited the Victor Co. factory, for which his firm, the Eclipse Musical Co., is distributor for this section.

The Collister & Sayle Co.'s display of Victor machines and records for February is one of the most complete in the city.

and mirth and melody, is still a favorite of music in Cleveland homes, and the production of phonographic records reproducing these has increased the demand for them. "Pickaninny," "Dixie Melody," "Georgia," and "Peaches" are popular. Among the most popular current records are:

Pathé—"You'll Have to Put Him to Sleep With the Marseillaise," by Arthur Fields; "Has Anybody Seen My Corinne," by Ernest Hare; "Jim, Jim, I Always Knew You'd Win," by Louis Winsh.

Victor—"Bring Back My Bonnie to Me," by Alma Gluck; "Oh, Frenchy," and "Me-ow," by Joseph C. Smith's Orchestra, and "Till We Meet Again," by Charles Hart.

Columbia—"You'll Find Old Dixieland in France," by Van and Schenck; "Take Me Back to That Rose Covered Shack," by Lewis James, and "The Nightingale" and "A La Soisson," by the Gypsy Orchestra.

Starr—"Famous Variations," and the "Swiss Echo Song," by Mme. Nadina Legal; "Wee, Wee, Marie," by Arthur Hall, and "The Rose of No Man's Land," by Henry Burr.

The Fischer Co., 25-27 Taylor Arcade, is featuring talking machine records this month and doing considerable newspaper advertising.

Herman Wolfe, the new president of the talking machine dealers, is a great believer in progressive, up-to-date methods in obtaining publicity through legitimate channels. Mr. Wolfe ran A. B. Smith, of the A. B. Smith Co., a close second in the recent contest for the presidency of the Cleveland Music Trades Association, and was easily the winner when it came to picking a new president of the talking machine dealers' organization. "We are now doing business in a period where live methods must be the retailer's guide to success," Mr. Wolfe said. "I believe in legitimate advertising."

Talking machine records reproducing German songs and orchestral selections produced by orchestras directed by pro-German leaders are still under the ban of the talking machine dealers. No records of this type are offered for sale.

The Starr Piano Co. is offering a large assortment of talking machines which belonged to the stock of the Wamlink establishment, recently purchased by the Starr people.

NEW STRADIVARA N. Y. SALESROOMS

Josiah Partridge & Sons Co., Eastern Distributors, Take Large Space in Marbridge Building—Compton-Price Factory Busy—January a Good Month in the Matter of Sales

Josiah Partridge & Sons Co., the Eastern representatives for the Stradivara phonographs manufactured by the Compton-Price Co., Coshocton, Ohio, have opened a large new display room in the Marbridge Building, Thirty-fourth street and Broadway, New York, comprising an area of 5,000 square feet. The company was formerly located in the Furniture Exchange in the Grand Central Palace. The new location is very central and is handy for buyers, most of the hotels being located within easy walking distance. The new quarters were opened on February 5 and they have been visited by many dealers since that time.

Reports from the factory of the Compton-Price Co. show a very pleasing increase in business since the first of the year. A large number of new representative dealers have taken on the line throughout the country, and December of last year as well as January of this year proved the largest months which the company have ever experienced in the history of their phonograph business. The factory of the Compton-Price Co. is particularly adapted for the manufacture of phonographs, being a two-story structure, adequately equipped with every up-to-date facility for these manufacturing purposes.

Not only has the mechanical part of the machine been brought to high perfection, but great care is taken in the cabinet work, for which the Compton-Price artisans have been well skilled, owing to their long experience in the manufacture of pianos and player-pianos which dates from 1872.

A poor excuse is better than none—if it passes muster with the boss.

CLEAN ADS IN LOS ANGELES TRADE

New Ordinance Makes It Unlawful to Advertise Second-Hand or Damaged Goods Without Announcing Their Actual Condition

LOS ANGELES, CAL., February 8.—The merchants in this city who, in announcing special sales, "forget" to state that the goods offered at low prices are second-hand, defective or damaged in any way will likely have to explain in court the reason for their oversight, as a result of a new ordinance recently passed in this city through the efforts of the Vigilance Committee of the Los Angeles Advertising Clubs.

The ordinance in brief provides that it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to advertise in newspapers, or by circulars, etc., the sale of any merchandise that is defective in any manner, is classed by the manufacturers as "seconds," or has been used without indicating plainly the actual conditions of the goods so advertised.

The penalty prescribed for a violation of the ordinance is a fine of not more than $500, or imprisonment for six months, or both.

COLUMBIA DEALERS' BANQUET

Retailers in San Francisco District Guests of Company at Elaborate Dinner at St. Francis Hotel—Manager Milnor Delivers Address

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., February 6.—Dealers in the San Francisco Bay district and their friends to the number of about eighty were the guests of the Columbia Graphophone Co. at dinner in the Italian Room of the St. Francis Hotel on the evening of January 30. A delightful menu was served, and everyone enjoyed the affair to the fullest extent. N. F. Milnor, Western manager for the Columbia Co., presided.

The tables were arranged in a large "U," which gave a very pleasing effect. During the evening music was provided by the famous Art Hickman Orchestra and dancing was enjoyed between courses. Singers were supplied by Leo Feist, Inc., and Sherman, Clay & Co. The musical program also included various records on the Columbia machine, among them the new numbers of Miss Rosa Ponselle, the latest acquisition to the Columbia staff, which brought forth much favorable comment, as did Al Johnson's latest hits.

Mr. Milnor was the principal speaker. He outlined the advertising program of the company, which, as planned for the year 1919, promises to be one of the most extensive campaigns of the kind ever launched in this country. He spoke of the difficulties caused by labor and material shortage, which hindered production to a considerable extent during the war, but stated these have been largely surmounted now. Incidentally, he called attention to the fact that the company has recently purchased an additional factory at Bridgeport, which will increase its facilities very materially.

Other speakers included Selby Oppenheimer, concert manager, and Mrs. Helen P. Howard, of the Hauschildt Music Co., in Oakland.

J. G. Widener Takes Over Columbia Stores in Three Western Cities

The general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced this week that an agreement had been made whereby its retail stores in Cincinnati, St. Louis and Indianapolis will be sold to J. G. Widener, who conducts exclusive Columbia establishments in Philadelphia and Hartford under the name "The Grafonola Shop, Inc." Mr. Widener expects to use a similar name for the Columbia retail stores in these three Western cities.

This announcement is in accord with the plan inaugurated some time ago by the Columbia Co. whereby it will retire altogether from the retail business throughout the country. Wholesale branches will be continued as heretofore at Cincinnati, St. Louis and Indianapolis.

Window Campaigns to Arouse Interest in Talking Machine Record Sales :: By W. B. Stoddard

Too many dealers seem to think that if they carry a good supply of the latest records in stock that is all that is really necessary. But notwithstanding the great public interest in, and the demand for, records these days, no dealer can feel satisfied that he has reached the limit in sales, and he must never cease his campaign to arouse interest, for it is the unconventional that attracts, and novel plans must be tried from time to time.

In traveling through the country it will be noted that the successful stores are those that are ever on the alert to utilize their windows to good purpose—to originate schemes that will catch the public eye and compel the attention of the public.

Some time ago the Eilers Music House of San Francisco, Cal., arranged a display which created considerable attention. In the large square window between the entrance doors they installed an upright piano; here two young men, pianist and vocalist, gave daily concerts at noon and again in the afternoon when the shopping crowd was the largest. A large easel was placed in regular vaudeville style, the name of the selection being rendered, and thus the sheet music and records handled by this house were admirably advertised. In other hours of the day a Victrola in the Eilers window rendered popular selections, a small boy in green uniform with gold braid being detailed to change the records, and see that the name of each selection was placed on the easel so that all could see.

For those who do not wish to employ living models it is suggested that they give the scheme of the Berliner Gramophone Company, Montreal, Canada, a trial. Overhead, in the lobby, just above the entrance door, was a gramophone, with horn attachment. In front of it was a board with double grooves so that a card could be slipped in and taken out. Whenever any new or well-known selection was being reproduced they placed in the grooves a card on which the name of the song was printed. Below, painted on the board, was the phrase, "Is now being rendered." In this way the name and melody at once became associated in the mind of the public.

Not only should the name and melody of the new records be given publicity, but this publicity should be timely. People are always on the lookout for appropriate selections for holidays and special celebrations, and if it is known that your store is bearing this in mind, and will have a special display several weeks in advance of the stated occasion, all in search of special music will be sure to flock thither. In order to attract the great number, however, who may not be acquainted with your custom in this respect, appeal should be made through that most efficient silent salesman—the show window.

Take for example St. Patrick's Day—it will soon be here. It is an occasion which is observed all over the land with dinners, dances, concerts and public gatherings at which Irish melodies are sure to be in demand. Individuals, glee clubs and choruses are always on the lookout for appropriate music for such an occasion. Recognizing this the Cable, Shelby, Burton Piano Company, Birmingham, set forth a striking and attractive window. At either end were tall white pillars, hung with records of Irish ballads, and between them an Irish harp draped with a green silk scarf. On a white easel was a life-size picture of John McCormack, the sweet singer of Irish songs. Many large shamrocks, cut from green paper, adorned the easel. Shamrocks were strewn on the floor and festooned on the wall, which was white. In front of the harp was an open copy of "The Harp That Once Through Tara's Halls"; while scattered over the floor were "A Little Bit of Heaven," "Mother Machree," "Kathleen Mavourneen," "The Kerry Dances," and "Where the River Shannon Flows."

Cohen & Hughes, Washington, D. C., was another concern that made St. Patrick's Day the occasion for featuring Irish music, especially that of Victor Herbert's latest opera "Eileen." The window was covered with green leaves and twigs and the ivory-tinted background was banked with ferns. On an easel in a green frame was a large picture of Victor Herbert, draped with an Irish flag. A Victor dog bore in his mouth a green card lettered in white: "You are invited to step in and hear the new Victor Herbert Irish records." Set in racks scattered about the floor were many records, to which were attached circular green cards lettered in white "Ireland, My Ireland," "Eileen Alanna," and other songs from the opera, while among them were several photographs of scenes from the opera, wreathed in green foliage.

The idea of special music for special days, and its featuring, both by window displays and concerts several weeks in advance of the date, could be extended indefinitely to cover May festivals, June weddings, Easter, Fourth of July, etc. With appropriate decorations of flowers and ribbons, wax models of life-size cut-outs the window can be made attractive.

For sheer artistic beauty in featuring records it would be hard to surpass that of the Fletcher Piano Company, Vancouver, B. C. Across the upper part of the background was a white fretwork covered with maple foliage in blue tint, and among which were many tiny electric bulbs in red, yellow and blue. Suspended from the center of this archway was a large black wooden sign in the shape of a bar of notes, lettered in white: "Note the notes; and note the price." All around the window was a series of pedestals of various heights, draped in white, on each pedestal being set a record, placed upright in a wire rack. Forming a large V extending from the center of the background to either side of the front was a ripple of black and white silk, upon which were laid clusters of scarlet poppies. In the center of the display on a mound covered with similar silk was a marble statue—"Anticipation"—showing the half reclining form of a nude youth, in listening attitude, with hand to ear and lips parted in anticipation of sounds he expected to hear. A Grafonola, concealed in the background, rendered springtime music.

RECORDS AID CONCERT MANAGER

Finds It Is Much Easier to Book Engagements With Local Concert Managers When They Are Taken to the Talking Machine Stores to Hear the Actual Voice of the Artist

That a proper appreciation of the publicity given well-known artists through having their voices recorded on talking machine records can prove of distinct assistance to the concert manager in making arrangements for concert and recital tours, is the experience of Alma Voedisch, well-known New York manager, who has just returned from a lengthy Western trip. Miss Voedisch has adopted the idea of inviting the local manager down to the talking machine store so that he might hear for himself the actual voice of the artist, as reproduced by the record, and also very likely be able to see a photograph of the same artist.

"There is no such thing as an unknown artist to-day," said Miss Voedisch, "if that artist has made a record. I have made eight trips to the Coast and on the first ones I had to offer abundant printed proof and do a great deal of talking about my artists and their personality. Now, I simply take them down to the shops to hear the records, and on the walls there always are pictures of the artists—so the local manager not only knows how the artist is going to sing, but how she's going to look.

"Aside from this great preliminary advantage all the talking machine jobbers and dealers are willing to work hard to make a concert of one of their artists a success. Not only am I able to assure many successful musical events through this co-operation, but I am able to book the artist in recitals and tone tests in towns all around the concert date. I consider records better than a regular office force when it comes to getting results."

PREPARE FOR GREAT BUSINESS YEAR

Reports of Enlargements and Changes by Victor Dealers Show Trend in This Connection

During the past few weeks the New York Talking Machine Co. has received letters from several Victor dealers stating that they either have enlarged their establishments or have awarded contracts for such enlargements. These dealers affirm emphatically that this year will be the biggest Victor year in history, and notwithstanding the accentuated shortage of Victor product they have sufficient confidence in the future to enlarge and renovate their Victor stores in order to be in a position to handle this record-breaking business.

A TIMELY WINDOW DISPLAY

The Victory Arch Window Prepared by Henry Mielke Wins Universal Commendation

The accompanying photograph presents a window display installed recently by Henry Mielke, 242 East Eighty-sixth street, New York, well-known Victor dealer. This display embodies timeliness and attractiveness, as it portrays the Victory Arch which is being erected at

Henry Mielke's Victory Arch Window
Madison Square in honor of the returning soldiers.

This window was praised by many prominent New Yorkers, who commended Mr. Mielke upon the appropriate character of the display, and the artistic manner in which the theme was carried out. The cost of the window was in the neighborhood of $75, owing to the architectural work incidental to the painting, but other backgrounds carrying out the same thought could probably be painted for considerably less. Mr. Mielke states that the window has yielded invaluable dividends in enhanced prestige.

HISLOP STORE IS REMODELED

ENTERTAINED BY HOME FOLKS

Miss Rosa Ponselle, the Noted Soprano, Tendered a Reception by Mayor and People of Meriden, Conn.—Records for Columbia Co.

MERIDEN, CONN., February 7.—Miss Rosa Ponselle, the famous soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., New York, whose recent debut was one of the sensations of the operatic world, was tendered a reception in this city recently by a committee appointed by the Mayor. Miss Ponselle is a native of Meriden, and her "old-home" folks took advantage of the opportunity to honor her in a befitting manner.

Mayor King delivered the address of welcome, and the prima donna was then presented with a chest of sterling silver by some of her Meriden friends. A banquet was tendered Miss Ponselle at the Hotel Winthrop, and during the course of the evening she favored the diners with several selections which were enthusiastically received. Miss Ponselle has already made arrangements to record exclusively for the Columbia Graphophone Co., and her first records are being eagerly awaited by her Meriden friends.

Edward J. Teany, formerly connected with the Pathéphone Distributing Co., New York, and who was recently released from the Ambulance Corps of the U. S. Army, has become a member of the city sales staff of the Pathé Frères Co.

LEASES LARGER QUARTERS

Supertone Talking Machine Co. Secures 20,000 Square Feet of Space at 311-319 Sixth Avenue, New York, to Meet Increasing Needs

The Supertone Talking Machine Co., New York, which is a subsidiary of the Plaza Music Co., announced this week that it had leased an entire floor comprising 20,000 square feet in the building at 311-319 Sixth avenue, New York. This floor will be devoted exclusively to the various mechanical departments incidental to the production of the Supertone talking machine, and cabinet factories will be maintained up-State as heretofore. The officers of the company state that the demand for this machine had so far outdistanced their previous calculations that the acquisition of additional manufacturing facilities was absolutely imperative. Executive and sales offices will be continued at 18 West Twentieth street, New York.

EFFECTIVE RECORD PUBLICITY

A very striking record advertisement was recently carried by C. J. Heppe & Son in the Philadelphia papers, in which the monthly record releases were featured inside of a border of records with the words "Heppe Victor Service" forming the keystone. The entire arrangement was very striking and attention compelling.

COL. BARRETT ANDREWS JOINS PATHE EXECUTIVE STAFF

Prominent Publicity and Merchandising Expert Will Be in Charge of Pathé Frères Advertising and Sales Promotion—Gives Outline of Company's Plans for 1919

E. A. Widmann, president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., has announced the addition to the company's executive staff of Lieut.-Col. Barrett Andrews, who until recently was a lieutenant-colonel in the Motor Transport Corps of the U. S. Army. Colonel Andrews will be in charge of advertising and sales promotion, and will make his headquarters at the executive offices of the company, 20 Grand avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

This announcement is of keen interest to Pathé jobbers and dealers everywhere, as Barrett Andrews has for many years been recognized as one of the country's foremost merchandising and publicity experts, and is an acknowledged leader in the inauguration of successful sales and advertising campaigns. At the present time he is also vice-president of Vogue and Vanity Fair, two signally successful national magazines.

Colonel Andrews resigned the presidency of Motor Life and the presidency of the Automobile Blue Book in 1917 in order to join the U. S. Army, and he sailed for France in June, 1917, as an adjutant in the Motor Transport Division. He was a member of the first body of American troops to leave America to participate in the European war, and in his capacity as an adjutant did yeoman work on General Pershing's staff in the formation of motor transport divisions in France.

When the United States Government decided that the Motor Transport arm of the service required enlargement and extension Mr. Andrews sailed for America, and he arrived here in July, 1918, to assist in developing this new division of the army. He was appointed a captain in the Motor Transport Corps and rendered invaluable services to the Government in training men for this important work. His efforts proved so productive of results that he was rapidly advanced as an officer, and when the armistice was signed had the honor of holding the rank of lieutenant-colonel. His friends affirm that he would have continued to advance steadily if hostilities had continued, for the Motor Transport Corps was proving a success far beyond expectations.

In an interesting chat with The World Colonel Andrews gave a brief outline of some of his ideas and plans in his new post, saying: "Although my headquarters will be at the Pathé executive offices I expect to devote at least 60 per cent. of my time to visiting Pathé jobbers and dealers throughout the country. I am planning to help the jobbers build up their business and develop their organizations. This will include the training of salesmen, wherever necessary, and an inauguration of a practical system of distribution wherever required. In other words, I shall endeavor to work closely with the jobbers to standardize selling and add to the value of their advertising, both by the printed word and the individual.

"Don't think for a moment that I am an efficiency engineer, for that is farthest from my thoughts, but I hope to be able to assist the jobbers and the dealers practically and profitably. Incidentally, I might mention that I have been associated with quite a number of interesting sales campaigns which embodied the principles I have in mind. In one of these campaigns we succeeded in placing our merchandise with more than 200 dealers who carried a Fifth avenue address on their letterheads. In addition I have been associated with several successful automobile campaigns, and while connected with the Butterick Co. sold textiles and furniture for the Butterick publications.

"Our plans for the future development of Pathé business comprise a general program of expansion and growth and now we have definately decided to form a closer liason with our European connections than heretofore, for cessation of the war will give us unlimited opportunities to take advantage of the wonderful repertoires at our disposal. We feel certain that the introduction of these records made by world-famous organizations abroad will prove an invaluable aid to dealers and Pathé records of this type will undoubtedly establish a place for themselves in the phonograph industry that will be unrivaled by any other library.

"Mr. Widmann told me the other day that his platform for 1919 will be based on a policy of consistent quality throughout every phase and factor of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co.'s activities. This platform will have for its keynote maximum quality backed up by maximum service. There is absolutely nothing new in this program excepting its consistency. Whether it is the art model or the $32.50 Pathéphone, each and every instrument will represent a standard of quality. There will be consistent service rendered in every division of the organization. From the factory to the jobber, along to the dealer and his sales people and then to the purchaser, every product bearing the Pathé trade-mark will represent quality and service. The purchaser of a Pathéphone or a Pathé record will be advised of the service that stands back of his purchases, and will be encouraged to take advantage of its consistency and strength if the occasion should require it.

"Included in Mr. Widmann's platform is a merchandising and distribution program that will undoubtedly be of interest to the trade as a whole. We no longer intend to give our line to 'any old' house in the phonograph business. We can serve only a few more jobbers, and in proportion a few more dealers. We shall select our distribution chain carefully and conscientiously, and if two houses in the same territory capable of doing approximately the same volume of business apply for a jobbing franchise the one which has the training, the clientele and the ambition will be given the agency in preference to the house which says, 'we would like

SPRING TONE TEST SEASON OPENS

Edison Artists Start Tours That Were Held Up by the Epidemic of Influenza

With the influenza epidemic almost entirely removed as an obstruction to concert work throughout the United States, the Edison spring tone test season opened last month.

Miss Ida Gardner, with Harold Lyman, started out at Shelby, N. C., on January 20 for a five weeks' tour of the Atlanta and New Orleans zones. Miss Gardner and Mr. Lyman are prime favorites in the several zones they have toured together on tone test work.

To Glen Ellison belongs the honor of opening the spring season in the West. His first tone test concert was in California on January 20. Vernon Dalhart opens in the Dallas zone on February 16 for a ten weeks' tour.

The indications now point to an unusually active spring Edison tone test season. Many of the recitals which were prevented by the influenza last fall will be given during the spring, and an increasing number of Edison dealers seem to have reached the conclusion that the best time to boost business is when it most needs boosting.

The United Talking Machine Co. with stores in Brockton and Plymouth, Mass., has bought out the Andrews Music Co., of Willimantic, Conn., and will operate the store as a branch of their establishment under the management of Samuel Feldman.

THOS. A. EDISON'S FIRST RECORD

First Recording of Inventor's Voice Heard in Patriotic Talk—A Birthday Greeting

Thomas A. Edison, who invented the phonograph forty-two years ago, has for the first time consented to have his own voice recorded on a phonograph record. The record contains a preliminary talk by William Maxwell, vice-president of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., who introduces Mr. Edison, Mr. Edison's talk being as follows:

"Our boys made good in France. The word 'American' has a new meaning in Europe. Our soldiers have made it mean courage, generosity, self-restraint and modesty. We are proud of the North Americans who risked their lives for the liberty of the world, but we must not forget, and we must not permit demagogues to belittle, the part played by our gallant Allies. Their casualty lists tell the story.

"However proud we may be of our own achievements, let us remember always that the war could not have been won if the Belgians, British, French and Italians had not fought like bulldogs in the face of overwhelming odds. The great war will live vividly in the minds of Americans for the next hundred years. I hope that when we do reverence to the memory of our brave boys who fell in France we shall not forget their brothers in arms who wore the uniforms of our Allies.

"I believe that the national airs of France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium should for all time to come be as familiar to us as our own 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

Following the inventor's address the national airs of our Allies are then played. The record was heard for the first time last week at the Edison laboratories in Orange, N. J. Mr. Edison celebrated his seventy-second birthday on February 11, and this record, containing his personal tribute to the boys who fought and won, is appropriate as a birthday greeting.

PLEASED WITH BUSINESS OUTLOOK

President C. Alfred Wagner, of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., Is Optimistic

In a chat this week with The World C. Alfred Wagner, president of the Musical Instrument Sales Co., New York, commented upon the excellent outlook for 1919 business in the various Victor departments controlled by this company. The managers of these departments say that the demand for Victrolas and Victor records far exceeds any previous year in history, and the sales totals are limited only by the merchandise available. Mr. Wagner is taking a personal interest in the success of these departments, and his thorough knowledge of general conditions has been an invaluable factor in the growth of these Victor departments, which are established in the leading department stores in different sections of the country.

EDISON DISCUSSES CONDITIONS

In Interview With Newspapermen He Gives Some Interesting Views on the Handling of the Problems of the Reconstruction Period

Thomas A. Edison, who celebrated his seventy-second birthday on Tuesday, February 11, while en route to his winter home in Fort Myers, Fla., granted a brief interview to newspapermen just before leaving for the South, and after declaring that he felt "fit as a fiddle" offered some interesting views on present conditions, and particularly the problems of reconstruction.

"The first thing to do is to find jobs for all the fighters and workers who helped to win the war. This will be easy enough if public officials everywhere will resume making permanent improvements and business men go ahead promptly about their respective businesses.

"The buying public is hungry for goods of all kinds. I notice that Shedd of Marshall Field & Co. says that December and January were the two biggest months in the history of the retail dry goods business. The purchasing power of the people is enormous and they have absolute faith in the future. The only danger is the business man who thinks he is long-headed and hangs back when he ought to go ahead. There is such a thing as being too shrewd and too close a bargainer.

"In Wall Street the man who tries to buy at the lowest point and sell at the highest usually gets left. It is the same way in business. Readjustments in prices are already in progress, but the man who lets his business run down at the heel waiting for prices to reach their lowest level is likely to lose a great deal more than he gains, and even if he should happen to strike it lucky and make a little higher profit, Uncle Sam will take part of this extra profit in taxes, so that the percentage is pretty heavy against the business man who lets his business stagnate in order to gamble on lower prices.

"I believe in business prudence, but right now

I think the most prudent thing a business man can do is to go ahead. He should not be afraid to go after orders and buy the materials that he needs to fill them."

Mr. Edison also made an excellent report regarding his own business interests and the manner in which they had been managed by his son, Charles, while he was in the Government's service.

MAKES ADDITION TO LABORATORY

H. J. Smith, Newark, N. J., Adds New Plant to House Various Departments

H. J. Smith, the well-known jewel expert, has added another plant to his laboratory. The new quarters are located at 54½ Franklin street, Newark, N. J., and there will be housed the departments devoted to grinding, sawing, roughing, rolling and experimental work. The executive offices will remain at the present location, 833 Broad street, as will also the recording and finishing laboratories. H. J. Smith, head of the company, in a recent interview, stated that after this country entered the war the demand for domestic jewels increased enormously and they have given such satisfaction that it was hardly probable that the talking machine industry will ever return on a large scale to the imported article. Mr. Smith is an expert and an authority on recording work and is consulted from time to time by some of the largest companies in the industry.

HARRY ROSEN SELLS OUT INTERESTS

Harry Rosen has sold out his interests in the Rosen Talking Machine Co., Boston, Mass., which he established eleven years ago, to S. M. Sugarman, his former associate, and has resigned as president and general manager. Mr. Sugarman will continue the business under the Rosen company name. Mr. Rosen plans to engage in a new venture in which his long experience in the talking machine field will prove of value to him.

PRICE FIXING UPHELD BY COURT

Judge Hand in U. S. District Court Hands Down Important Decision in Action Brought Against Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Members of the talking machine trade will be interested to learn that retail price fixing was upheld by U. S. District Judge Augustus N. Hand in a decision handed down last week in the case of Harold P. Baron, a dealer in automobile accessories, against the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., a manufacturing concern of Ohio, and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Inc., a sales organization of New York. Judge Hand rules that manufacturers who sell only to dealers who will agree to sell to consumers and at fixed prices do not thereby violate the Sherman Act, nor if they discriminate in prices between different classes of purchasers do they violate the Clayton Act unless this will lessen competition.

In his decision Judge Hand says in part: "There is nothing in the complaint to show how the alleged discrimination might substantially lessen competition and it certainly could not tend to create a monopoly. Every manufacturer holds a monopoly in the goods of his own manufacture, but there is no allegation that the defendants have a monopoly 'in any line of commerce' to use the term of the Clayton Act."

Judge Hand also takes occasion to remark in his decision that "the enforcement of the Sherman Act, if that act was read literally, would reach nearly every commercial enterprise. To understand the act at all we must view it in the light of decisions. There is no decision of the Appellate Court construing the Sherman Act to which I have been referred that prevents a single trader from rejecting a customer because he did not like the prices at which the customer resold, or otherwise disapproved of his mode of conduct. . . . It is impossible to see how a single person may choose one customer, or reject one customer without impropriety and not separately select, or reject a number of customers with equal freedom."

R. R. SOUDERS WITH Y. M. C. A.

Well-Known Talking Machine Man Writes of His Experiences in England—Meets Many Old Friends in and Out of the Army.

The World has just had the privilege of hearing from Robert R. Souders, for a number of years actively connected with, and active in, the talking machine trade in this country, who went abroad early last year as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, being placed in charge of the Winchester Officers' Hut, at Winnall Down Camp, Winchester, England. Mr. Souders writes interestingly of his experiences, and of the comforts and entertainments provided for American Army officers stopping in England en route to France or back home to America.

In describing the manner in which the Y. M. C. A. Officers' Hut is equipped Mr. Souders is particularly enthusiastic over the presence of a good-sized Columbia Grafonola, and a nice bunch of appropriate records. "It is needless to say that the Grafonola is quite indispensable, and is one of the chief sources of entertainment in the hut," writes Mr. Souders. "Since the signing of the armistice some of the most popular records are: 'Carry Me Back to Old Virginny,' 'Back Home in Tennessee,' 'Down Texas Way,' 'Indiana,' 'Home, Sweet Home' and others of similar sentiment.

"Speaking of London," continues Mr. Souders, "I want to mention something about the talking machine or gramophone shops which are quite numerous there. They are attractive in appearance and seem to be well patronized. In fact, I understand that the industry is enjoying unprecedented prosperity. I have had several enjoyable visits with my friend, James Van Allen Shields, of the Columbia headquarters, who was my first boss in St. Louis years ago. Both of us were transferred by the Columbia Company to Europe, Mr. Shields to London, and I to Berlin. I returned to the United States after a few years, but he is still in England, and managers to keep in touch with the homeland by frequent trips across the ocean. Mr. Shields is quite active in Y. M. C. A.

work, and gives much of his valuable time to it. "Among the many officers who have visited our hut have been several of my old dealers from Texas and Minnesota, in which territory I represented the Columbia Graphophone Company as manager of the wholesale branches. Needless to say I enjoyed seeing these old friends, but it seems strange to be calling them major, captain, etc. Albert A. Wieder, Columbia artist, is en route home, after having spent some time in Y. M. C. A. service in France."

Mr. Souders states that he expects to come home shortly at the expiration of his present agreement with the Y. M. C. A.

CHANGE IN MODEL DESIGNATIONS

David B. Bartelstone, head of the Lucky 13 Phonograph Co., New York, manufacturer of the "Cleartone" talking machine, announced this week that the company had made a change in the model designations and list prices of the various styles in this line. According to this recent announcement the changes are as follows: The old No. 65 will hereafter be known as No. 100, list price $75; the old No. 75 will be No. 150, list price $85; the old No. 85 will be No. 200, list price $100; the old No. 100 will be No. 250, list price $125.

LITTLE RELIEF FROM STOCK SHORTAGE IN LOS ANGELES

Dealers Disposing of High-Priced Models While Waiting for New Shipments of Medium-Priced Goods—Record Demand on the Jump—Many Concerts Help Business

LOS ANGELES, CAL., February 4.—The talking machine situation has not changed here and many local dealers have begun to feel the shortage acutely. The demand for both machines and records is on the increase with the supply getting smaller every day. Just when the "low water mark" will be reached is problematical, but let us hope that it will be soon.

The scarcity of the medium-priced instruments has boosted the sale of the larger ones and more "period models" are being sold this year than ever before. Many out-of-town people have been writing in for machines, being unable to obtain them from their local dealers. However, the larger dealer does not seem to be any better off at the present time than his small competitor, as a surplus stock is a rarity.

Sherman-Clay & Co., Victor jobbers, say business is fine; that it would be finer if they could get more stock. Charles S. Ruggles, the manager, says they have very little goods on the way, but expect the shipments to get larger from now on.

W. F. Stidman, manager of the Columbia Co., returned from the convention in New York, filled with "pep" and enthusiasm. He reports that the prospects for 1919 look particularly bright, and anticipates that the enormously increased capacities of the Columbia factories, together with the removal of restrictions, will insure plentiful supplies of stock. The demand for Columbia goods shows a wonderful growth which is being and will be still farther enhanced, as a result of the colossal national and local Columbia advertising campaign for 1919.

The demand for records in Los Angeles is remarkable and most of the dealers are hard pressed to get sufficient stock to supply their customers. The record booths at all the stores are kept going at full capacity and a visit to most of these places gives one the impression of a Christmas rush.

Miss Lucy Gates and the Trio de Lutece appeared at the Trinity Auditorium on January 23 and 24. A capacity house attended the concerts. They were charmed by the artistic programs presented. Miss Gates' beautiful voice thrilled the audience, who demanded encore after encore, and the Trio de Lutece delighted everybody by its faultless interpretation and purity of style. These artists record for Columbia.

Harold Jackson, manager of the talking machine department for the Wiley B. Allen Co., is back on the job again after a severe sick spell. Mr. Jackson says they had the best holiday business in the history of the Los Angeles branch.

Great interest is felt among the dealers on account of the concerts to be held during the month of February by Pablo Casals, the French Army Band, Josef Hofmann and Cantor Rosenblatt.

O. A. Lovejoy, local manager for the Edison Phonograph, Ltd., is much pleased with business during the last year. While they were out of different models for short periods, still they managed to keep their stock up in fairly good condition up to the present time. Mr. Lovejoy has a carload of machines in transit which will relieve his present shortage somewhat. The "Wedgwood" model of the Edison Diamond Disc, a new period design, has proven very popular and Mr. Lovejoy has orders for twenty and doesn't know just when he can fill them.

Mr. Newton, of the Fox Co., San Antonio, Texas, arrived in Los Angeles for a few days' stay.

Glen Ellison, the popular Scotch baritone singer, has just completed a two weeks' tour of tone tests in the southwest for the Thos. A. Edison Co. He appeared in Phoenix, Arizona, on January 20 under the management of A. R. Tavernes, local dealer. On January 24 he appeared in Riverside, Cal., managed by Keystone Drug Co., of that city. January 30 he gave a tone test to a capacity house at the Trinity Auditorium under the direction of the allied dealers of Los Angeles and on January 31 appeared in Santa Ana, Cal. The Carl G. Strock Co. are Edison dealers in that city.

L. C. Ackley, of the Columbia sales department, recently started out on one of his territorial trips in a new Studebaker car (his second) of a Royal Purple hue, the envy of all.

Walter S. Gray, who handles phonograph accessories with headquarters in the Chronicle Building, San Francisco, is in the city at present. Mr. Gray has the agency for the Pacific Coast for the Brilliantone needles and B. R. Forster, president of that company, is making the Southern trip with Mr. Gray.

Newton Hancock, until recently in the U. S. Navy, has joined the Columbia sales force. He has had an extended experience in the retail and wholesale business in the past and will be welcomed by all whom he visits.

Steel Needle in the World.

The WALL-KANE

First—Each WALL-KANE needle is guaranteed to play 10 records on any Phonograph, the tenth playing as clear as the first.

Second—Phonograph owners will always purchase WALL-KANE needles, since they eliminate the troublesome changing of needles after each record.

Third—WALL-KANE needles are scientifically prepared, and, by reason of special composition, are beneficial to the grooves of the record, thereby adding to its life.

Fourth—WALL-KANE needles minimize the usual scratching sound of the ordinary steel needle and greatly improve the clearness and tone of reproduction.

TEST PROPOSED TO DEALERS TO PROVE THE SUPERIORITY OF

Wall-Kane Steel Needles

Take two standard disc records of the same selection, play one ten times with the same WALL-KANE loud needle; play the other record, the same selection, ten times, but with ten new, full-tone steel needles.

You will find that the record played ten times with the same WALL-KANE needle will sound clearer, will have less surface noise, and that under the magnifying glass the grooves of the record played ten times with the ten steel needles will seem to be more disturbed.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS

Package of 50 WALL-KANE needles, Loud, Extra Loud and Medium, greater value than 500 ordinary steel needles, retails for 15c, costs the dealer 7½c., 8c. in the Far West.

GOVERNMENT HELPING EXPORTERS

Cargo Rates From North Atlantic Ports to Far East Cut in Half and War Trade Board Extends the Use of Blanket Licenses

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 4.—In order to make it possible for American shipping and commercial interests to compete on a fair basis with the interests of Great Britain and other foreign nations, the United States Board and the War Trade Board have taken steps to bring about material reductions in ocean freight rates to various parts of the world and to provide for blanket licenses in order to facilitate export shipments to all but enemy countries.

The Shipping Board, which had earlier in the week announced cuts in rates for trade with European ports which met the 662-3 per cent. rate reductions provided for British tonnage, to-day made heavy reductions in cargo rates from North Atlantic ports to Australia, South Africa and the Far Eastern ports. It is understood that these cuts were ordered as a result of information that similar action was to be taken by the British. The reductions ordered are about 50 per cent. of the old rates.

To-day's developments, it is predicted, will give an impetus to all trades. The rates have now been lowered both by Great Britain and the United States to something approximating the pre-war levels.

The new cargo rates from North Atlantic ports to the Far East are $20 per ton for close weight cargo, and $25 per ton for all other cargo, as compared with the previous rates of $40 and $45 per ton.

The War Trade Board explained that broadened scope would be given to the American exporter for the conduct of his business by the simplification of procedure and the relaxation of restrictions. This simplification in most cases takes the form of easing the exporter's task of procuring export licenses.

"The procedure by which the exporter was forced to procure export licenses during the war," an announcement read, "was vitally necessary while actual hostilities were in progress, but at the same time in many instances it was admittedly cumbersome. The present policy and tendency of the War Traffic Board is to relieve the exporter of any cumbersome procedure in the process of licensing as soon as it becomes possible.

"The present tendency in the relaxation of export restrictions is to transfer as many kinds of export shipments as is possible from the first class to the second. In other words, present policies aim to do away with individual licensing whenever possible and to substitute for this the system of licensing governed by the commodity in question or the country of destination."

TELLS OF MUCH-TRAVELED RECORD

KINGSTON, N. Y., February 12.—The following is an extract taken from a letter written by Sergeant William A. Carl, who has been with the Ambulance Service in the French Army since January, 1918. E. Winter's Sons, Victor dealers, in this city, sent him a record last January, addressing it to the camp at Allentown, Pa. He had left there, however, and the record followed him to France. He said:

"We have a machine at last, just arrived in time for Christmas with twenty records, but we have played 'Wait Till the Cows Come Home' about one hundred consecutive times, for it is the best record we have. We feel that we should paint a Croix de Guerre on the record, for it has been through every little fray with us, protected only by its little corrugated sides."

This particular section has won the Croix de Guerre and is allowed to have it painted on all of its cars.

We have heard about machines and records being carried around by the boys, but we think it quite remarkable that these boys should carry one record for nearly a year before they had a chance to play it, and still have the record unbroken.

ANNUAL SALES STAFF CONVENTION

The annual convention of the sales division of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., will start to-day at the company's executive offices, 25 West Forty-fifth street. The managers of the various branches and their assistants will confer with the executives regarding 1919 plans, and an important program has been arranged for general discussion.

DEMAND FOR "TALKER" CABINETS

L. W. Hough, of 20 Sudbury street, Boston, Mass., the New England representative of the George A. Long Cabinet Co., Hanover, Pa., reports a very large demand for the cabinets made by this concern in the territory which he operates. He has closed some very excellent orders for 1919 delivery, and is quite enthusiastic over the outlook.

CO-OPERATING WITH THE DEALERS

How the New York Recording Laboratories Are Introducing Ideas of Value and Interest

The Paramount people are always "on their toes." Not a month goes by that does not see several advances and innovations in the advertising or dealer co-operation ideas that are making the New York Recording Laboratories so popular with their dealers.

This month the regular monthly supplement appears in a striking new dress to attract the eye of the record buyer. The illustration shows the new cover with the improved

Paramount trade-mark as the central feature of the design. The colors, of course, are Paramount green and black, with the background of a light shade of green. The borders of the inside pages harmonize with the cover in design.

Each pairing of the month's releases is given an interesting and timely description and illustration. No pains are spared to achieve the attractive result obtained. It will command a second look and will be kept as a reference. The response of dealers and record buyers to the quality and salability of Paramount records has resulted in a demand that still keeps the pressing plant at Grafton, Wis., working at pre-holiday speed.

THE POWER OF WINDOW DISPLAY

Although it does not take the progressive retailer very long to appreciate the true value of attractive window displays, it generally takes a new entrant into the field some time to adjust his affairs to a point where he really is able or willing to give the proper attention to window arrangements. One of the exceptions, however, is E. I. Van Doren, who recently opened as an Edison dealer in Troy, N. Y. Mr. Van Doren, who had wide business experience before entering the phonograph field, gave his attention to window displays right off the bat, and that he has the proper idea is indicated by his first window display, which is admirable.

LEAVES ON WESTERN TRIP

C. W. Neumeister, of the Eastern division of the general sales department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., will leave to-day for an extended Southern and Western trip. During the past few weeks the company has received numerous inquiries regarding Heineman and Meisselbach products and OkeH records from this territory, and Mr. Neumeister expects to close many agencies on this trip.

GETTING AFTER DELINQUENT PAYERS

A good line of argument to follow in order to secure action from delinquent payers on instalment accounts is to picture your concern as their private banker. This in reality is exactly what every dealer does when he puts an instrument out on the instalment plan.

If he charges interest it is then precisely as though the customer had borrowed money from his bank in order to purchase the instrument. If the customer does not pay interest it is just as though a bank had loaned money without charge. In either case if the collector pictures himself before the customer as a banker instead of as the house which sold him the instrument it is sometimes possible to make the customer appreciate more fully the obligation which he owes, and to realize that the collector is not asking anything unreasonable when he asks the instalment customer to relieve a portion of the burden of being private banker for him.

SOME LOCAL NEWS BRIEFLETS

Edw. Strauss, manager of the phonograph department of the New York Brunswick headquarters, visited the home offices of the company in Chicago in January.

Among recent visitors to their headquarters at 29 West Thirty-second street was Capt. Reed Landis, reputed to be the second living American Ace and a son of Judge Landis. Before his enlistment Captain Landis was connected with the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. in the advertising department at Chicago headquarters. He has just returned and stopped at the New York headquarters on his return West.

Chester Abelowitz, of the New York sales staff, has been struck by Cupid's darts. His engagement to Miss Hannah Lewis, of this city, has been recently announced.

P. L. Deutsch, secretary of the company, made a trip East and made the New York offices his headquarters. Together with Edw. Strauss, of the New York office, he visited Boston during the early part of the month and concluded the arrangements whereby Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Inc., are to represent the Brunswick interests in that city.

A LIVE-WIRE OREGON DEALER

Carl Adler, Just Back From Army Service, Tells How He Puts Over Important Sales Deals for Phonographs in That Prosperous Territory

Carl Adler, Edison dealer in Baker, Ore., who has been in the service for some months, has recently received his discharge from the army. He was located in a Texas camp last, and he decided that the best way to get to Oregon was to go by way of New York. Incidentally, he took in Orange, too. "I may never come again," he commented, "at least, not until I come on my honeymoon, so I may as well see as much as I can now." While he was in New York we tried to get a little dope on selling methods in Oregon, for we have long known that Mr. Adler is considered a particularly live wire in that State. "Sure, I'll tell you how we do it," he acceded. "One day I heard of a prospect seventy-five miles out of Canyon City. I loaded in a C-150 and went up there. It was a farm of some thousand acres, with a couple of thousand head of cattle. You can imagine something about the country when I tell you that wild deer used to come down with the cattle in the night, and we could see them in the pasture in the morning.

"Well, they received me with open arms. They put me up overnight, gave me the best things they had to eat, took me deer hunting and did all they could to entertain me. It's really worth while to sell out there, just for the fun you have going around the country."

"But did you leave the instrument?" he was asked. "Why, of course," Mr. Adler responded.

A VISITOR FROM WATERLOO

Among the recent visitors to the New York offices of the Starr Piano Co., 9 East Thirty-seventh street, was William Schoonmaker, who carries the Starr phonograph line in Waterloo, N. Y. Mr. Schoonmaker reported very favorable business conditions in his city and the surrounding towns in which he sells. The outlook for 1919 is very excellent.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., February 8.—The Schmelzer Arms Co., through Charles J. Schmelzer, president of the company, has announced the promotion of A. A. Trostler, formerly manager of the Victrola department, to the post of secretary and general manager of the company. The promotion comes as a mark of well-deserved appreciation of Mr. Trostler's long service with the company, and in making the announcement of his new appointment Mr. Schmelzer states:

"Mr. Trostler's long experience and practical knowledge of the conditions in this trade territory will result in prompt and efficient service that will prove mutually beneficial. Mr. Trostler has been associated with us, as manager of our Victor talking machine department, for over fifteen years, and to all of our good friends who have come in contact with him through the avenues of this department he needs no introduction. To our many good customers throughout the various other departments of our activities we commend Mr. Trostler as a man of integrity, business ability, and one who is well able to maintain our reputation with the trade for fair dealing and good service.

"At the annual meeting of our traveling force and buyers it was significant that all were thoroughly imbued with the wonderful opportunities for increased business, and an era of prosperity greater than any in the history of this country."

Mr. Trostler has long been a well-known and popular figure in talking machine circles, and possesses aggressive and genial qualities that have meant much in his business success. He has always taken an active interest in the affairs of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, and is at the present time treasurer of that organization.

Geo. B. Davis & Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., who recently bought out the talking machine business of Morris Goodstein, are building up an excellent business with the Victor, Columbia, Edison and Sonora lines. The department, under the management of Homer C. Davis, promises to be one of the largest in West Philadelphia.

CELEBRATES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Frank L. Capps Honored by His Associates of Pathé Co. at Banquet

Frank L. Capps, in charge of manufacture at the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co.'s factory, Brooklyn, N. Y., was the guest of honor recently at a dinner given him by his associates to mark his twenty-fifth anniversary with the industry. E. A. Widmann, president of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., who was responsible for this informal banquet, was the toastmaster of the occasion, and in introducing Mr. Capps paid a well-deserved tribute to the loyal services rendered by this "veteran" to the Pathé Frères Co. and to the phonograph industry as a whole.

Mr. Capps is recognized throughout the trade as a foremost authority on record manufacturing. He is thoroughly familiar with every phase of record making, and the tremendous success achieved by Pathé records can be attributed in a considerable measure to his extensive knowledge and many years of experience.

When Mr. Capps entered the talking machine industry twenty-five years ago he became associated with the United States Phonograph Co., one of the pioneers in the field. Soon afterward he joined the forces of the American

Graphophone Co., manufacturer of Columbia products, and remained with that organization for fifteen years, occupying one of the most important executive posts. He joined the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. a few years ago, and has rendered invaluable service ever since.

One of the unique features of the dinner was the presentation by Mr. Capps of several records which he made twenty-five years ago, and the playing of these records proved most interesting to the Pathé Frères executives and department heads who were present.

CHAS. E. GORHAM OUT OF SERVICE

Chas. E. Gorham, formerly a Columbia dealer in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Newark, N. J., and who sold out his interests to accept a commission in the navy shortly after the declaration of war, recently was released from active service and has been appointed president of the New York Capital Co.

Automatic Change of Weight

An Exclusive Feature of Parr Central Universal Tone Arm

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm marks a new departure in tone-arm construction and removes the principal objection heretofore existing in universal arms. The weight to play either vertical or lateral cut records is automatically and accurately changed. This is a very novel and important improvement in tone-arm construction and should appeal to those who have wanted a tone arm that would not require the makeshift arrangements for doing what this tone arm does automatically.

OTHER IMPORTANT FEATURES

The Parr Central Universal Tone Arm is furnished in any length required and the sound-box can be turned, allowing the needle to be changed with ease, and by a reverse movement the box returns to normal playing position. The needle always rests in the same point, direct center, playing either position.

FRED E. YAHR ELECTED PRESIDENT

Heads Well-Known Yahr & Lange Drug Co., Which Handles Sonora Line in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis., February 10.—Fred E. Yahr, secretary of the Yahr & Lange Drug Co., 207-215 East Water street, wholesale distributor of the Sonora phonograph in Wisconsin and northern Michigan, was elected president of the corporation at the annual meeting on February 6. Mr. Yahr established the Sonora department and has given it his personal attention and intends to continue in this capacity, although he will be obliged in his new position to turn over more of the responsibility to H. M. Hahn, who has been his "right-hand man" as general Sonora sales representative since the company became distributor. Other officers of the company are: Vice-president, Leonard A. Lange; secretary and treasurer, John A. Dummer; directors, Max Rosenthal and G. G. Forster.

"Our business was very good during the past year," said President Yahr after the meeting. "The cost of doing business advanced in greater proportion than the business itself. But we look for a prosperous year to come."

TRADE HAPPENINGS IN WINNIPEG

Women Form 75 Per Cent. of Buyers of Talking Machines and Records in Alberta—Some Data for Advertising Men—Recent News

WINNIPEG, MAN., January 31.—"Keen observation leads me to see that we have been losing business by not catering more to the women shoppers," said a bright Alberta talking machine dealer to your correspondent. The World asked for further particulars of these observations and was told something like this: "Since coming to the conclusion stated I have talked the matter over with successful retailers in other lines than musical goods. The consensus of opinion is that women make over 75 per cent. of the family purchases to-day. The average man hates to shop. He is disposed to hand over to his wife the necessary cash for the thing they have decided to buy and say, 'Go and get whatever suits you, but don't ask me to tramp around looking at things.'

"A woman is no longer tied in the home with household duties all day. She has more time to shop. She enjoys it. To her it is a pleasure to go from store to store looking at all competing lines. She studies the newspaper advertisements and circulars that go to the house. She has the faculty of going into the details of various products. From now on my policy is going to be—specialize on securing the interest of the women shoppers."

If it be true that women do 75 per cent. of the buying, the policy of the dealer just quoted looks to be sound. Why should not more advertisements of instruments and records be directed to prospective women shoppers?

L. L. Merrill, formerly manager of the National Piano Co.'s Victrola department, and who spent the summer season of last year on his fruit farm in British Columbia, has just returned to the West from his visit to Toronto, London, New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Mr. Merrill represents Starr phonographs and Gennett records in the West.

The Winnipeg Piano Co. had the misfortune to lose Mr. Curtis, phonograph manager, who died from the effects of influenza after only a few days' sickness. He will be a very hard man to replace, being without a doubt one of the best talking machine men in Canada, combining with his youth and enthusiasm experience and tact rarely met with.

Manager Stenberg, of the Musical Merchdise Sales Co., distributors of the Brunswick, states that January business exceeded all expectations.

Cassidy's, Ltd., report excellent trade in Columbia lines and say the outlook is good for an immediate continuation of same. Robt. Shaw, manager, is at present on a trip to New York and Eastern cities.

Mr. Poisson, of the Canadian Phonograph and Sapphire Disc Co., is now out of uniform and is again in civilian life. He says OkeH records are taking well.

NEW VICTOR RECORD CATALOG

1919 Edition of Volume Advertised Most Extensively and Effectively

One thing that can be said of the new edition of the Victor record catalog—that for 1919—is that it has been advertised to an extent that has attracted attention throughout the country. In the first place, a double-page spread in the Saturday Evening Post was devoted entirely to that catalog, and what it represented to the music-lover, as well as the talking machine owner, the catalog itself being illustrated in colors. Then the regular advertisements of the Victor Co. in the daily papers of the country were also devoted in no small measure to the announcements and descriptions of the new record catalog, presented in a most attractive and alluring manner. Certainly this publicity should serve to stimulate new interest, and revive any lagging interest in Victor records, and particularly in the new additions to the list.

To hook up all this advertising with the dealer's store there were prepared and distributed elaborate poster cards, showing the catalog in actual color and with open pages against a background of light gray. The poster was of an attention-compelling kind.

The Melzer Co., 1046 Broadway, Buffalo, N. Y., Victor and Sonora dealers, are tripling their floor space.

R. H. Zinke Elected President of This Company at Recent Meeting in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Wis., February 12.—Richard H. Zinke, for four years manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, Victor dealer, 425 Grand avenue, which on February 1 passed into the ownership of L. C. Parker, has accepted the presidency of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., manufacturer of needles and other talking machine supplies in this city, in which he has been interested for a long time. His many friends in the local music field have been more than pleased to learn that Mr. Zinke will continue to be connected with the industry, as he recently was elected president of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries after serving a year as secretary.

The Record Needle & Mfg. Co. is owned by the same interests as the Badger Talking Machine Co., wholesale distributor of the Victor in this territory, and also the Record-Lite Co., manufacturing illuminating devices for talking machines. These interests owned the Badger Talking Machine Shop until it was purchased by Mr. Parker.

BELIEVE IN A NATIONAL BODY

A letter received from the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Portland, Ore., in response to a circular letter recently sent out by the Talking Machine Men, Inc., to all talking machine dealers' associations for the purpose of finding their opinion in regard to the feasibility of forming a national body, expressed their approval in a most emphatic way, stating, "They looked favorably on the idea and believed the good such a body could accomplish would be far reaching."

The Pease-Behning Co., Fortieth street and Madison avenue, New York, have secured the retail Victrola agency.

THE BUFFALO TALKING MACHINE CO. MAKES ITS DEBUT

This Institution, Whose Members Are Widely Esteemed in the Industry, Will Wholesale Victor Talking Machines and Records Exclusively—Plan Big Expansion of Business

BUFFALO, N. Y., February 10.—The Buffalo Talking Machine Co., which makes its debut in the talking machine industry this month, is a name new to the trade, but behind that name there lies an experience almost as old as the industry.

Fifteen years ago the Neal, Clark & Neal Co. was formed, and like most of the other old-timers this company handled practically every known make of talking machine and record. The Victor line ultimately established itself as a leader with them, with the result that the house was appointed a distributor for these products. The retail phase of the business held their attention until about 1914, at which time they started searching the field to find a man who was capable of exploiting the Victor wholesale business in keeping with the demands of the territory.

Early in 1916, realizing the possibilities of their territory, they secured the service of V. W. Moody, who had won recognition as a leader and creator of Victor business, having been directly associated with the development of the Chicago Talking Machine Co. and later with the New York Talking Machine Co. before going to Buffalo.

The coming of Mr. Moody to Buffalo marks the beginning of the second phase of the company's strides, for his contention has been always that a maximum wholesale business cannot be done in connection with a retail business. Acting on his suggestion the Neal, Clark & Neal Co. purchased the finest retail location available in the city of Buffalo, and in 1917 made alterations and improvements involving the expenditure of approximately $250,000, resulting in the establishment of one of the most attractive Victrola stores in the country.

The next step demanded removal from the old wholesale quarters and the fitting up of a new wholesale plant which is undoubtedly the "last word" in efficiency. The record vault alone has a normal capacity of 550,000 records, and a ready flexibility admitting of a further increase of 350,000, a total of 900,000 records.

That a separation of the wholesale and retail forces and plants would result in a maximum development for both has been proven to such an extent that Benjamin E. Neal has bought the retail interests and withdrawn from the wholesale field.

The directors of the new Buffalo Talking Machine Co. are Olin L. Neal, H. B. Clark and V. W. Moody. With Mr. Moody as general manager the company is eminently fitted to accomplish its aims which will be directed toward a constructive co-operation with the dealers of their New York territory and that of nearby Ohio and Pennsylvania. Probably in no city in the country is there as much improvement, alterations and talking machine building being done as in Buffalo, and the new company states that the start has not really been made.

PHONOGRAPH AIDS PHOTOGRAPHER

A photographer has found a phonograph a valuable aid in obtaining the desired facial expression in a subject. After studying the face of the person whose likeness he is to obtain he decides whether he wishes an animated, reserved, sad or pensive expression. He then places a record in the phonograph likely to stimulate the expression desired. For animation he will play such a tune as "Dixie," while to produce a sad or thoughtful expression "My Old Kentucky Home" or some other well-known sentimental number may be played.

March Display for Columbia Dealers Carefully Prepared and Has Strong Appeal

The March window display for Columbia dealers announced this week by the Columbia dealer service department has a number of fea-

Columbia Window Display for March features of unusual interest. The general color scheme is well calculated to remove any feeling of "March blues," for the center card and all the other cards are illustrated on a background of myriad bubbles of all the colors of the rainbow. Care and taste displayed in the relative arrangement of the display units, for balance and effect, paying special attention to prevent crowding, give this display a distinctive setting and a strong commercial appeal.

The March display comprises several artistic cut-outs and half-sheets which can be utilized to excellent advantage in stimulating the demand for the various records they feature.

Pioneer Associates Entertain Inventor and His Wife in Honor of Anniversary

ORANGE, N. J., February 11.—In honor of the seventy-second birthday of Thomas A. Edison, which occurs to-day, the Edison Pioneers, organized in New York a year ago by half a hundred friends who were associated with the inventor prior to 1886, entertained Mr. and Mrs. Edison at luncheon at the Robert Treat, Newark, at noon on Monday. A number of letters containing reminiscences of old times were presented to Mr. Edison by his friends. Following the dinner, Mr. Edison left for his plantation at Fort Myers, Fla., for a rest.

The pioneers, who include men from all parts of the world, held their first annual meeting on Monday morning in Newark. The present officers are: President, Francis R. Upton, of Orange; vice-presidents, S. Z. Mitchell and T. Commerford Martin, of New York; treasurer, Frank A. Scheffler, of New York; secretary, Robert T. Lozier, of New York; historian, William H. Meadowcroft, of Orange.

STRONG CAMPAIGN ON SHEET MUSIC

A. J. Stasny Music Co. Using Magazines of National Circulation and Call Attention to Fact That Music Has Been Recorded

The A. J. Stasny Music Co., publishers of popular and standard music, have joined the ranks of those publishers using magazines of large national circulation to exploit their song numbers, and in the Saturday Evening Post of both March 1 and 8 there will appear half-page advertisements featuring four of the most popular numbers in the Stasny catalog, and mentioning other active numbers in the list. In addition to calling attention to the numbers in sheet music form, the fact is also emphasized that the songs may be obtained on talking machine records and player-piano rolls. This should be of direct benefit to talking machine dealers, and is likewise to be accepted as indicating the recognition given the importance of the talking machine record by music publishers generally to-day in giving greater distribution for their music.

COLUMBIA NEWS GLEANINGS

Walter Shannon Joins Traveling Staff—Williams, Johnson and Matthews Rejoin Force

Lambert Friedl, manager of the local wholesale branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., announced last week the appointment of Walter Shannon as a member of the company's traveling staff. Mr. Shannon, who was formerly associated with the theatrical field, and is well known in musical circles, will visit Columbia dealers in Long Island, Staten Island and Queens.

John E. Biro, formerly a member of Mr. Friedl's staff, has resigned from the company's staff, and will sail for Europe shortly. It is understood that Mr. Biro, who concentrated his activities with the Columbia Co. upon the development of foreign language record business, will go abroad under the auspices of the United States Government.

Leroy Williams and John Johnson, who were discharged from the service of the United States Navy last week, have rejoined the sales force of the local Columbia branch, and are now calling on the dealers. Mr. Williams is covering the Bronx, Westchester County and Fairfield County, Conn., and Mr. Johnson's territory comprises sections of the metropolitan district.

John L. Matthews, who received his discharge from the U. S. Army recently, is also back with the local branch, and it is pleasing to note that Mr. Friedl is giving practical evidence of the Columbia policy of giving every man in the service an opportunity to rejoin the staff.

O. P. Graffen, one of the most popular members of the Columbia wholesale staff, is now visiting Columbia dealers in New Jersey.

Reducing Spring Breakage to a minimum

Inertia is greater at the circumference of a wheel than at the hub.

The spring barrels of the Stephenson Precision Made Motor are free to revolve independent of any gear . . . as the springs unwind the "slack" is taken up by the smooth, silent action of the slow moving drum. Violent jumping of springs is the cause of spring breakage. Violent, quick movement is eliminated in the Stephenson Precision Made Motor, because shock is absorbed by the inertia of the spring drums. This feature, in conjunction with the interchangeable spring drums is an exclusive feature of the Stephenson Motor—one reason why it is a Precision Made Motor.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF EDISON DIAMOND DISC JOBBERS

Large Attendance at Annual Gathering of Association at Hotel Knickerbocker, February 11 to 13—
Walter E. Kipp Re-elected President—William Maxwell and Carl H. Wilson Make Addresses —Trade Problems Discussed at Open Forum on Tuesday—Jobbers Entertained

The annual convention of the Edison Diamond Disc Jobbers' Association, which incidentally was a most successful and interesting gathering, was held at the Hotel Knickerbocker, New York, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, with an attendance of practically 100 per cent., only one jobber, located in Vancouver, being absent.

The program for the most part followed along the lines of those arranged for previous conventions, with the difference that there were many problems of the reconstruction period that required special discussion and special handling. Factory officials attended various sessions, told of the plans of the company in the matter of production and exploitation, and incidentally offered a big surprise to the jobbers, details of which will be announced publicly in due course.

Monday morning was devoted to getting the machinery of the convention in working order and selecting the new officers for the coming year. Walter Kipp, of the Kipp Phonograph Co., Indianapolis, was re-elected president unanimously, in recognition of his wonderful work as presiding officer of the association during the past year. The other officers elected were: Vice-president, F. H. Silliman, Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Boston; secretary, Frank E. Bolway, Frank E. Bolway & Son, Syracuse, N. Y.; and treasurer, George C. Silzer, Harger & Blish, Des Moines, Ia. In addition to the officers the Executive Committee will also include B. W. Smith, Cleveland; C. E. Goodwin, Chicago, and J. G. Harrison, St. Johns, N. B.

After the initial session there was a special luncheon in the banquet hall at the Knickerbocker attended by all the jobbers and a number of the officials of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., at which the feature was a lengthy and comprehensive address by Carl H. Wilson, first vice-president and general manager of the company, who, as announced recently, is about to start on a lengthy vacation.

The Monday afternoon session was devoted chiefly to an address by William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., who outlined at great length the various plans of the company for business development during 1919. The information offered by Mr. Maxwell was of the most encouraging sort, and indicated that his company has long been working on plans for business advancement.

On Tuesday morning there was held an open forum at which the jobbers brought up for general discussion various subjects of importance and interest, and concerning for the most part future business plans. This session was followed by a "Dutch treat" luncheon and in the afternoon the jobbers assembled to witness the showing of the new Anna Case film under the auspices of Verdi E. B. Fuller, adjourning afterwards to the convention hall for further discussion.

Wednesday morning was given over to a special address by George C. Silzer, of Harger & Blish, Inc., Des Moines, in which he reviewed many matters of prime importance to the Edison men and gave his views regarding them. Wednesday afternoon's session was more or less in the form of an open meeting, and in addition to an address by Charles Edison, who now fills such a prominent place in the Edison organization, there was an address by Sigmund Spaeth, musical critic of the New York Evening Mail, on the subject of "Musical Values in Their Relation to the Phonograph"; a talk on financing business by George A. O'Reilly, the financial expert of the Irving National Bank, and some interesting comments from Adolph F. Gall, technical director of the Re-creation Department of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

An honored guest at the final session was the Hon. Charles E. Hughes, former Governor of New York State, who made a brief address. The convention wound up with an elaborate banquet at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel on Wednesday evening, at which the jobbers were the guests of the factory officials and at which they were provided with entertainment of a high order by Edison artists and others.

Before and after the convention sessions the majority of the jobbers took advantage of the opportunity of visiting the factory in Orange, N. J., although no special trip to the plant was scheduled.

Among those present were: A. H. Curry, Texas-Oklahoma Phonograph Co., Dallas, Tex.;

The line is an extensive one, consisting of a number of upright models in the various period styles, ranging in price from $65 to $450. The Michigan Phonograph Co. has been in existence for the past two years and the founders, George M. Cook and H. W. Knobloch, have established themselves in the minds of the trade as men of long experience and ability and this association with the Lauzon Co. is a distinct tribute to their energy and progress.

The company are jobbers for Paramount records and will shortly open a branch distributing office in Detroit in the Broadway Market Building. They also handle a full line of supplies and are able to take care of the dealers' wants very completely. Mr. Cook, by the way, has been associated with the phonograph game all his life and when in the music business in Cincinnati years ago had the distinction of receiving the second Berliner gramophone shipped into Ohio. Both Mr. Cook and Mr. Knobloch had had extended experience in the retail and wholesale business before becoming associated with the Michigan Phonograph Co. and are therefore well equipped for understanding the dealers' problems and to lend their experience in creating a line meeting every need of the trade.

IMPORTANT CHANGES IN BALTIMORE "TALKER" TRADE

Outlook for Business Is Cheering—Cohen & Hughes Retire From Retail Field—Kranz Music Co. Makes Its Debut—New Columbia Dealers—Activity With Droop & Sons Co.—News of Month

BALTIMORE, Md., February 7.—Judging by the business done in the opening month of 1919 this year is going to be a great one for business, according to the dealers and distributors. Retailers who were fortunate enough to obtain goods were able to show increases in business.

Dealers are all cheered with the intimations from many sources that the large companies, especially the Victor, expect to have their record shipments up to first-grade order by March, and the fact that shipments this month and last month are an improvement over what they have been. The machine situation is also expected to show big improvement very shortly.

One of the most important announcements to be made within the next few months is that of the removal from the retail field of Cohen & Hughes, one of the largest Victor distributors in the South. This firm has for more than a year had a distinct wholesale department. This firm has leased the salesrooms of its Howard street establishment, where it conducted a retail Victrola and piano department to a women's wear store. Occupation of this building by the new holders of the lease is expected on May 1.

With the passing of Cohen & Hughes from the retail field there enters a new firm into the talking machine business, that of the G. Fred Kranz Music Co., at present located at Fayette and Charles street in the same building that quarters the Kranz-Smith Piano Co. and the Kranz-Fink Talking Machine Co. The Kranz Music Co. will take up new quarters at 303 North Charles street about March 1, and will fit out their new building with modern quarters and plan to place at least ten booths in the new home. The firm will, besides handling the Victor line, have one of the most up-to-date sheet music establishments in the city and a modern small goods department. Charles W. Glaser is president, and William F. Vordemberg vice-president and secretary of the company. Joseph Grottendick, for many years with the H. D. French Piano Co., in charge of the sheet music department, is now on the staff of the Kranz Music Co.

For the Columbia Graphophone Co. William S. Parks, the local manager, makes an excellent report. He is happy in that his force bettered his expectations with the business done during January.

"When I returned from New York," said Mr. Parks, "I set a minimum sales mark for each month of 1919, at a slight increase of about 100 per cent. over the corresponding month of a year ago. My men met the test and surprised me with their efforts; despite the fact that we only were able to get a few machines and all of the business had to be done with records."

MICHIGAN PHONOGRAPH COMPANY
785 Ashton Bldg. :: Grand Rapids, Mich.

Among the new Columbia accounts are Thompson & Thompson, Anacosta, D. C.; A. G. Powell, West Point, Va.; C. E. Cline, Frederick, Md. This place is being turned into a very modern talking machine establishment.

W. C. Roberts, manager of E. F. Droop & Sons Co., says that business has not been going ahead very rapidly in the wholesale end because of stock shortage. During the month Mr. Roberts made several trips to the Victor factory seeking to obtain more goods. "I have been able," said Mr. Roberts in discussing his retail business, "to keep our retail end going fairly well because I have been buying records and machines as well whenever the opportunity presented from distributors from as far as Texas and even into New York." Edward Lyons, of the Eclipse Music Co., Cleveland, O., was a visitor to the Droop store during the month.

James Cowen, the Richmond, Va., Columbia dealer, has purchased the interests of the Colonial Piano Co., and has already begun enlarging his talking machine department.

The Avon Comedy Four, a popular quartet, who have made a number of records, visited many Columbia dealers in company with Dan Defoldes, who is in charge of the dealers' service department here. The Columbia Co. also plans to popularize many of its artists through the holding of a number of recitals and concerts in Baltimore, Hagerstown, Winchester, Roanoke and other points. To this end Vera Bull, of Winto & Livingston Booking Agency, has signed up a number of artists for these recitals, including Barbara Maurel, Amparito Farrar, Toscha Jacobson, Oscar Seagle and the Columbia Stellar Quartet. Hulda Lashanska, soprano, will appear at the Lyric on February 21, and she is one of the Columbia stars.

For Cohen & Hughes Miss E. M. Griffith, in charge of the wholesale department, said that business is not showing much at this time because of lack of goods, but that present shipments showed some improvement over past months. I. Son Cohen, of the firm, is in Florida taking a much-needed rest. L. F. Ziegler, of Edenton, N. C., was a caller at the C. & H. headquarters during the month.

A. P. Petit, manager for the phonograph department of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., is not in a very good frame of mind. He was called back from a very successful trip after being out a few weeks when he expected to be out on a three months' trip. His firm is desirous of keeping its present accounts well supplied and will not take up any new orders unless for delivery four or more months' time. Mr. Petit visited Hagerstown, Md.; Harrisonburg, Clifton, Petersburg, Richmond, Va.; Raleigh, N. C., and other points and says the South is booming with business.

Jesse Rosenstein is joyful these days over the reception of the Pathé, and while he has not been able to get all the machines he has needed he has been fairly successful in keeping most of his dealers happy. He reports a big increase in the volume of business in Pathé records and the sale of more than 1,000 Pathé attachments for the other machines during December and a great quantity in January. Eddie Rosenstein, of the wholesale department, has signed up the Miller Music Co., Waynesboro, Pa., with Pathé and Emerson accounts. The Little Joe Weisenflet Co., Baltimore, have become Emerson dealers.

SOME QUERIES AND ANSWERS

The Size of Ball Sapphires

New York, January 10, 1919.

Editor, Talking Machine World.

Dear Sir—Can you inform me through your Repair column the size of the ball sapphire needles used on records made like the Pathé?

Would appreciate any information you could furnish me.—N. Y. Jewel Co.

ANSWER—Ball sapphires for use on disc records are made in sizes varying from ten to thirty one-thousandths of an inch in diameter of the ball, and are set in brass or German-silver holders which enables them to be held tight in the needle arm of the sound box in the same manner that a steel needle is used.

Why the Grill Is Cloth Covered

Kingston, N. Y., February 2, 1919.

Editor, Talking Machine World.

Dear Sir—In my talking machine the back of the grill of the horn is covered with a green cloth. Does this cloth have anything to do with the playing of the machine? I find when I take the grill out and play the machine that I get a very much better tone.—J. E. Ostrander.

ANSWER—The green cloth is put on the grill to cover the view of the horn, which in many machines is left unfinished. Different colored cloths are used also to contrast with the wood of the cabinet. Personally, I favor a finished horn to match the cabinet, which makes it unnecessary to cover the grill and gives the benefit of a clearer and fuller reproduction of a record.

Anent Record Cleaning Brushes

New York, January 30, 1919.

Editor, Talking Machine World.

Dear Sir—In an argument with a friend of mine I claim that the so-called record cleaning brushes are of no actual benefit in keeping a record from being scratched when played with a steel needle.

Can you give us your opinion in the matter, for which I thank you in advance?—T. R. Huxley.

ANSWER—My opinion is that a properly made record brush used in the right way helps to prevent scratching records.

The brush must be made of a coarse ribbed cloth fastened in such a way as to not have any part but the cloth come in contact with the record surface.

I have only recently examined a new brush which revolves itself as it is run around the surface of the record. Hidden somewhere in this brush is a quantity of fine graphite which works through the surface of the cloth and lubricates the record surface just enough to form a little coating of graphite in the grooves of the record.

There is less liability of scratching a perfectly clean record surface as there is in scratching one which may be covered with dust.

EXHIBITOR AT ANNUAL TOY FAIR

Garford Mfg. Co. Showing Models of "Baby" Cabinet Toy Phonographs

The Garford Mfg. Co., Elyria, O., manufacturer of the Garford phonograph, which has attained signal success throughout the country, is one of the exhibitors at the annual "Toy Fair" which is now being held in New York. The company's exhibit is in charge of Homer Stephens, sales manager, and the products on display comprise the "Baby" cabinet toy phonograph, Model X, and the smaller table model of the "Baby" toy phonograph which has been on the market for some time.

Mr. Stephens states that he has received large orders for the cabinet model from many of the leading houses throughout the country, who are planning to merchandise it aggressively during the coming year. This instrument measures seventeen and one-quarter inches in height, eight and five-eighths inches in wider and nine and five-eighths inches in depth. It is provided with a one-spring worm gear motor, and has a five and one-quarter-inch turntable, a high-grade sound box, and a speed regulator. It plays records up to seven inches in size and the cabinet has an attractive mahogany finish.

Mr. Stephens left for Elyria this week to spend a few days at the company's executive offices, but the importance of the Toy Show and its unlimited sales possibilities will necessitate his return to New York the end of this month in order to give personal attention to developing the "Model X" business.

ADDITIONS TO COLUMBIA FORCES

The general sales department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced this week the addition to the Columbia sales force of F. P. Conklin, John Henderson and H. L. Moorey.

Mr. Conklin has been appointed a member of the sales force at New Haven, Conn.; H. M. Blakeborough, manager. Mr. Henderson has joined the force of the Indianapolis branch; Ben L. Brown, manager. Mr. Moorey, who has for several years been a member of the auditing division, is now preparing to join one of the Columbia branches, and his definite assignment will be announced later.

THOS. J. LEONARD'S RAPID RISE

General Sales Manager of Musical Phonograph Division of Thos. A. Edison, Inc., Climbed the Business Ladder Rapidly

Thomas J. Leonard, the general sales manager of the musical phonograph division of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., was originally an accountant, later an assistant advertising manager, next an assistant sales manager in another line of business and for the past six years in the musical phonograph division, first as assistant sales manager and later as general sales manager.

Thomas J. Leonard

Tom Leonard, according to Mr. Maxwell, is "better liked by Edison jobbers and dealers than any other man in the musical phonograph division. Not that he tries to curry favor with any of them, but because he is always reasonable and considerate, and if there is any misunderstanding goes out of his way to make everything clear."

Mr. Leonard has a taste for politics, which his duties as general sales manager do not permit him to indulge except in occasional arguments with Mr. Maxwell, who professes to regard him as the most benighted Democrat of the age.

Tom Leonard is also celebrated as a practical joker. "He breaks out every so often," says Robert Michie, manager of the order and service department. "About once in two months you can count on him to pull some kind of a joke on somebody. Mr. Kipp, the president of the Edison Jobbers' Association, will testify that there is frequently considerable finesse to Mr. Leonard's jokes."

FOUND THE WEST PROSPEROUS

Adolf Heineman Gratified With General Business Outlook as Noted in Recent Trip

Adolf Heineman, vice-president and assistant general manager of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, accompanied by John M. Dean, of the company's Dean needle division, visited the Western trade last week, calling upon the manufacturers and jobbers as far west as Kansas City and in the Northwest section. In a chat with The World he commented upon the fact that the talking machine trade in the West is enjoying an unprecedented era of prosperity that gives every indication of continuing for some time to come. The manufacturers are working to capacity, and the jobbers state that their business is limited only by the merchandise received from the factories.

The situation in the needle field is very encouraging, and Mr. Heineman found that "Dean" needles are gaining in popularity with the trade day by day. While on this trip Mr. Heineman also inquired regarding the progress of "OkeH" records and was gratified to find that without exception the jobbers and dealers handling this line are closing a business well ahead of all expectations.

ROSA RAISA IS FEATURED

The Aeolian Co., New York, carried an artistic full-page advertisement in colors in last week's Saturday Evening Post, devoted to the Aeolian-Vocalion records made by Rosa Raïsa, the famous prima donna soprano of the Chicago Opera Co., who records exclusively for the Aeolian-Vocalion library. This advertisement gave a brief resumé of Mme. Raïsa's accomplishments and achievements in the operatic world, and called attention to a concert given last year at the Hippodrome in New York, when Mme. Raïsa received a tremendous ovation from a capacity audience, and remarkable encomiums from the musical critics of the leading local newspapers. This advertisement combined prestige talk with sales arguments that made the page unusually effective and interest compelling.

SECRETARY REDFIELD SAYS COMMERCE MUST BE RESTORED

Tells Members of Foreign Trade Council of the Work Ahead of the United States in Rehabilitating Both Foreign and Domestic Commerce—Work Must Be Done in an Unselfish Spirit

Secretary of Commerce Redfield told the members of the Foreign Trade Council at a dinner held at the Hotel Astor recently that the United States, facing the possible necessity of turning from a war on autocracy to a war on the anarchy of Bolshevism, must plan its foreign trade in a spirit of service to the afflicted nations of Europe and not in one of selfish exploitation. The council, made up of members of the Secretary's official family and heads of leading business and banking houses, heard Mr. Redfield explain in detail the augmented service his department is prepared to give to the commerce of the nation, which he did to emphasize the need for the threefold appropriation he is asking of Congress this year in order that the expanded need of the reconstruction period may be met.

Many of the department's trade commissioners in foreign countries, and other agents, recently returned, told in detail of the latest trade conditions in the countries they had left. In general they advocated slow and careful proceeding on the part of American business men, whom they urged not to rush abroad to sell goods before they were amply fortified with information.

Gerhard M. Dahl, vice-president of the Chase National Bank, was applauded heartily when he told the gathering that the greatest of all essentials for American business is co-operation on the part of the Government, a sympathetic attitude on the part of the public, and a willingness on the part of business itself to become a large importer of foreign securities.

"As far and fast as we may we must set our commerce free from all restrictions and look toward a great and growing domestic and foreign trade," Mr. Redfield said in his address. "The viewpoint of the Department of Commerce toward this matter is shown in the fact that at its request it is to receive, in a pending bill, double the funds for commercial work it has ever had. This is not all it asks, but it will help. Business men, whether public or private, must, however, consider actual facts in planning both the time and the extent of their trade efforts.

"There are those who seem to think that the commerce of the United States has two distinct parts which have little in common. They speak of foreign commerce and of domestic commerce as separate and even at times as almost antagonistic.

"One cannot in truth promote foreign commerce without thereby aiding domestic commerce. Nations do not, indeed cannot, live unto themselves alone, any more than men can and do. The man, or the nation, that is self-centered fails of his high calling. We may not in foreign trade or in domestic policy be keepers merely of ourselves. Experience and economics as well as ethics answer affirmatively the question, 'Are nations their brothers' keepers?'

"It was characteristic of American energy that when the President announced the close of active military operations through the signing of the armistice many in our land jumped to the conclusion that the war was over and that all that was necessary was to take up the threads, go ahead and readjust quickly, 'get busy,' get results.

"A program of readjustment was suggested, and we were to push ahead with business as usual. These ardent spirits—whose energy is not to be abused, for it is that which has created America and won the war—forgot, however, certain facts which made their ardor unpractical. In the sense of military operations the war was over; in the sense of war problems, war limitations, war difficulties, war responsibilities, it was not over, is not over yet.

"Consider well the problem of credits. We are the greatest unexhausted reservoir of finance, but if we are at one and the same time to finance a greater revival of trade at home and a large part of the necessary reconstruction abroad, may there not be a question whether this tool of trade will be overstrained to do all the work required of it? The apostles of hurry should remember that conditions seem to be such that we who would trade must also furnish the means to pay the bills, and this not for ourselves alone but for others as well. This is a new problem, a war problem, a novel responsibility, but very real. Our brethren overseas are doing their best to care for themselves, and we should aid them in every way which lies within our power."

FEATURING PERIOD DESIGNS

The Widdicomb Furniture Co. Have Prepared a Very Large Line of Phonographs to Appeal to the Purchasing Public in 1919

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., February 10.—A very active campaign, both of production and exploitation, has been prepared for the coming year by the Widdicomb Furniture Co., manufacturers of the Widdicomb phonographs, instruments which have won considerable success as a result of the attractiveness of their case designs, which is the result of long experience in the production of fine cabinet work.

The Widdicomb Furniture Co. is one of the very largest manufacturers of art furniture, and their entrance into the phonograph field naturally aroused great interest among those familiar with the artistic achievements of the company. The line, which has been gradually augmented since the start, now consists of eleven beautiful art models, including six console type and five uprights, the designs covering the prevailing styles in fine furniture, such as Chippendale, Queen Anne, Sheraton, Adam and Early American. The line ranges in retail prices from $110 to $275 and as a result of the rapid development in demand for their products arrangements have been made to greatly increase their phonograph output this year. J. G. Griswold, the vice-president and sales manager of the company, and M. A. Guest, the secretary, give their personal attention to the phonograph division and are extremely gratified with the class of dealers who have taken on the line and the progress they have made with it.

GENUINE ECONOMY IN SIGNS

W. C. Meinhardt, of Independence, Kan., Mixes Ingenuity, Paint and Old Packing Cases Together With Excellent Effect

W. C. Meinhardt, Edison dealer of Independence, Kan., is one of those enterprising gentlemen who do things different from "the other fellow." He has worked out a plan of economy in signs, which utilizes material that usually either goes to waste or is sold by the dealer for little or nothing. Mr. Meinhardt's completed sign is manufactured out of the packing case in which the New Edison is delivered. Mr. Meinhardt is always careful in unpacking an Edison that he does not destroy the packing case. He has found that the ends and sides of these cases can be turned to very good use in the form of signs. He has over 150 of these signs prominently placed at cross-roads, and other places in his neighborhood on the country roads leading to Independence, and they have brought him many a sale. The body of the sign he gives three coats of pure white lead paint, and around the edges, or "frame," he coats with three coats of the best carriage gloss black paint. After this is thoroughly dry he stencils the wording with the same black paint, which wording stands out in bold relief, and can easily be seen a good distance away. The stencils he made himself, with the exception of the word "Edison," which he had a tinner cut for him at a very slight cost. In order to exclude the weather, as far as possible, he coats the back of the signs with common red barn paint. He paints these signs at odd times when not pressed with other matters. He finds that they cost him about 22 cents apiece. In large batches he can bring the cost down to 20 cents each. In other words, he painted 129 of these signs, seventy-six large ones (sides of cases) and fifty-three small ones, at a total cost of $22 35.

H. C. NAILL VISITING THE TRADE

H. C. Naill, secretary of the George A. Long Cabinet Co., Hanover, Pa., was a recent visitor to New York, and from there journeyed southward to Baltimore and Washington, where he called upon a number of talking machine dealers and others interested in his line. Mr. Naill reports great activity in his plant, and is quite optimistic regarding the trade outlook.

A UTAH DEALER WHO CAN SELL

A visitor this week at the offices of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, was J. Auerbach, Columbia dealer at Richfield, Utah, who handles this line exclusively. Mr. Auerbach, although established in a city whose total population is only 4,000, has achieved remarkable results in developing Columbia business, and his energy and aggressiveness have enabled him to close a business that compares very favorably with the sales totals of dealers in "first-class" cities.

In one small town adjoining Richfield, where the population comprises seventy-five families, Mr. Auerbach has sold Grafonolas to thirty-three families, and the majority of these sales called for the higher-priced instruments. He is planning to sell the remaining forty-two families upon his return from the East, and in line with other Columbia dealers throughout the country his only complaint is a shortage of merchandise.

FROM OUR EUROPEAN HEADQUARTERS

2 GRESHAM BUILDING, BASINGHALL STREET E. C., LONDON, W. LIONEL STURDY, MANAGER.

Return of British Industries to a Peace Basis Depends Largely Upon Progress of Demobilization Plans, the Effect of Which Is of Necessity Slow—Withdrawal of Restrictions Encourages the Trade—Efforts of Engineers Devoted to Improvement of British-Made Gramophone Parts—General Items of Interest That Denote Trade Progress—New Year Message From the Association President—"Bachelor of Commerce" a University Degree

LONDON, E. C., ENGLAND, January 31.—Since the Christmas rush musical instrument and gramophone trade has eased up somewhat. It is, however, thought to be but a passing phase due to the general disorganization of our industries consequent upon the many difficulties to be overcome in connection with the by no means light task of diverting output from war to peace articles. The change over is being accomplished fairly well, at least as rapidly as circumstances permit. It must be remembered that technically the Allies are still at war with the Central European powers, and until the peace is actually ratified the British Government is proceeding cautiously in the demobilization of official and controlled establishments, of which there are close upon 6,000, and of the services. To impose the Allies' terms at the Peace Conference, and for the purpose of carrying out those terms in their entirety a big army is necessary, especially in view of the conditions prevalent in Germany. These facts appear to be partly overlooked or greatly minimized by those who so light-heartedly advocate immediate and total demobilization of the engine of war. Within the bounds of reason, the foregoing facts considered, officialdom is acting fairly, with a full realization of the urgent need for rebuilding the destroyed social and industrial fabric. Such a gigantic undertaking is of course open to criticism in more directions than one, and although there is plenty of it, constructive and useful criticism is sadly lacking. For the general view, however, it must be said that some dissatisfaction exists over the slow manner in which factory and labor demobilization is proceeding, the argument being that even given the possibility of a resumption of hostilities, a much reduced war output and army would be all-sufficient to cope with the demoralized enemy. For that opinion there is of course much to be said. Various explanations put forward by the Government, some good, some bad, fail to altogether appease commercial institutions anxious to resuscitate their fast disappearing trade. As a result of strong representations, it looks as though a speeding-up process will be operative shortly. The exercise of patience for a little while yet is the best advice that one can give, especially in view of the huge aggregate of problems which demand official solution.

In other directions, matters which closely affect the musical as well as other industries are making a welcome move. I refer particularly to the withdrawal of restrictions in regard to the use of metals, advertising literature, etc., which, in the case of metals, for the most part automatically abolishes the need for rationing. True, it does not greatly help us in the supplies of gramophones, of which there has been such a shortage during the war period. Until British production is au fait accompli, and the immediate prospects are not over bright, by the way, we shall remain dependent upon Swiss and American imports, at least, of motors. That in turn, as we know to our cost, is regulated by the availability of shipping space, of which there will be no increased amount to spare for some months to come, having regard to the urgent need of replenishing the depleted food stocks of all the European nations.

Anent the Gramophone Mechanism Output

In regard to the prospects of British gramophone mechanism output, my inquiries go to show that while a certain amount has been marketed over the last few months or so, it has met with considerable dissatisfaction mainly as a result of imperfect manufacture or assembling. This of course is very much to be regretted. Every patience should be exercised, and at such a difficult time as the present I cannot help saying that every encouragement, short of financial loss, should be given to engineering firms grappling with a serious attempt to produce an all-British motor. Even to an experienced engineering firm the initial difficulties of motor construction consequent upon the need for extremely limited work call for much experimental industry in the tool room, and only through the hard school of practical experience of the precise nature of the work can success be assured. These are perhaps elementary points, I know, but they are often lost sight of by gramophone firms accustomed to the highly skilled products of men who have been at the job for a score of years. Broadly speaking, there is no finer workmanship in the world than British, and I have every confidence that with the freer availability of metal supplies British firms can produce satisfactorily as many motors as the market can handle. At the same time there is room for greater enterprise than has so far been displayed by our factory officials, whose attitude towards the production of a new article is so often hedged with impossible conditions. On this point I hope to say a few words in my next report.

Notes of General Interest

In announcing that a January supplement will not be issued, the "His Master's Voice" company draw the attention of dealers to the many good records of popular items previously published, and listed in the main catalogue, which are often overlooked when twenty to thirty new records are issued each month. It is a welcome and timely reminder.

The Winner Record Co., Ltd., is now prepared to reconsider the recording of suitable songs or musical items suggested by gramophonists, who are invited to submit a list of their special favorites on a postcard. A special program of old songs and ballads is contemplated for issue in due course.

I have received an inquiry from a firm well known in the trade, who are desirous of handling for exclusive sale a disc record of the phono-cut type. The sale of this class of disc offers a good scope in Great Britain. Anyone interested should address offers to the London office of this journal; they will be placed in the right quarter.

Louis Young, who claims to have seen longer service in the trade than any present member thereof, tells me that his business has been registered as a public company under the style of The Louis Young Manufacturing Co., Ltd. According to arrangements already made, the prospects of the new concern are particularly good. More anon.

Official advice has been received of the abolition of the permit system for dispatch abroad of mail matter, photographs, etc. Certain postal matter is still subject to censorship.

Apropos the "flu" or pneumonia epidemic, I learn that so many of the staff were involved at the "Guardman" record factory that output was for a time very seriously restricted. Four employes succumbed, unfortunately, and I regret to say that Mr. Simmonds, of the executive staff at headquarters, is still on the sick list. He is, however, on the mend and will doubtless be able to resume his duty within a few weeks.

Trading Restrictions Removed—Official Notices

It is announced that for the Indian mail dispatched from London every Thursday the overland route has been resumed, the period of transit to Bombay now being twenty-one days.

It is now permissible to register and use abbreviated addresses for foreign telegrams.

The Minister of Blockade advises that bankers are now relieved of the formalities previously required before financing exports from England to neutral European countries.

No permits are now required for dealing in timber in the United Kingdom, and the restrictions are removed in the buying and selling of hard woods (as distinct from soft woods) from other countries.

A new list of firms of enemy nationality or association with whom we must not trade is available at the British Stationery Office.

While the rationing of paper must continue until more shipping space becomes available for imports of this necessary commodity, a revival of mail order and other business enterprise in the use of lists and circulars is anticipated as a result of the removal of some of the many regulations under the Paper Restrictions Order.

It is no longer necessary to obtain permits to purchase musical instrument parts from America.

The British Gramophone Association announces that facilities have now been granted to those importers from U. S. A. who came under the original allotment to ship musical instrument component parts. A certain amount of space has been placed at the disposal of the steamship lines in which to carry commercial cargo, and those members and any others entitled to do so should approach the shipping companies at the port from which shipment is desired.

A certain amount of shipping space is now free for private consignees of goods to Italy. Applications for shipment should be made through the usual channels.

Firms wishing to extend their factory plants will be glad to hear that with the withdrawal of permits for the purchase and sale of machinery a general license has been issued, valid until March 1 next, permitting the importation of machine tools.

Records may now be exported to European neutral countries, free of all conditions as to license or re-export.

Association President's New Year Message

The Secretary of the Association of Gramophone and Musical Instrument Manufacturers and Wholesale Dealers writes:

"The officers and general committee desire to convey to every member of the association their cordial wishes for happiness and prosperity in the New Year. Trade prospects are exceedingly bright and propitious, and it is hoped by means of this association and with the cooperation of all its members to maintain and extend the spirit of mutual help and friendship engendered by the difficult times through which we have recently passed, so that the branches of the music industry represented may never again be threatened by the state of egoism and unpreparedness revealed on the outbreak of the great war.

"Reconstruction"—a New Year's message from your president: We have all, many times, spoken this word and thought of the time when the war would be over—when we should be called upon to deal with reconstruction. The actual signing of the armistice has brought us face to face with the necessity for action.

"I am not quite certain that I like the word. It means so little in itself—to construct again. Well, we could construct again to the pre-war plan, but that is not nearly enough. Our plain duty is to construct a commercial edifice that will be a glory to Britain forever—something that future generations will be hard put to to beat and something that will cause them to look upon the work of the business men of Britain to-day with the same veneration as they will look back upon the gigantic and glorious victory of our Navy and Army.

"The country called upon the men of the Navy and Army to lay down their lives so that Britain might live, and to-day she calls upon the business men and women to plan and work to build such a property, the like of which the world has never seen. It must be done; we must find employment for all our brave defenders, plus the women who so nobly entered the arena and attained to a skill that nearly approximates to that of the 'skilled man.' It can be done, but not by the old methods. We must scrap all these and work only on a scientific basis in every phase, and then, and only then, will our merchandise command the home and the overseas markets; and because our products will be the best and the cheapest, quality for quality, competition will be at the top mark. It will not do for us to rely on sentiment for support; we have got to make such good goods at such a price that buyers will have to purchase.

"And in this new era every workman, workwoman, shopkeeper, clerk, salesperson, manager, director, will have to put every ounce of their brains and energy into working on the most scientific lines possible: it is now a case of making £3 of sales where we made £1 in pre-war days.

"When we have achieved this, we shall have the right to call Britain ours.—M. E. Ricketts."

Good News for "Popular" Record Buyers

As announced in my last report the "Popular" record people have planned to double the output for 1919 as against last year, and there should be ample supplies for oversea buyers requiring to carry good stocks of the latest hits from London town. Excellent progress is being made in the direction indicated, and I learn that it will not be long before a full output of these competitive priced records is assured. It is mainly now a matter of securing additional labor, and that is but a matter of time now that the war, to all intents and purposes, is over. This latter fact, by the way, will early react beneficially as regards shipments.

Getting "The Boys" Back Again

Our service men have been backwards and forward, some of them several times, from the various battlefields, but all are now looking eagerly towards the great day when they will return for good. In that heartfelt wish all employers of labor will subscribe. Though it be a few months yet before final demobilization can take place, application should be made as early as possible by giving effect to the official procedure requiring employers to furnish full particulars of their old employes—name, battalion, regimental number, etc., with a view to insuring for them a position to which they can return when discharged.

To those men not already communicated with the Gramophone Co., by public advertising, request them to send in such particulars as will enable the company to apply for their early discharge.

Artistic Testimony to Winner Record Value

The Winner Record Co. is in receipt of a number of opinions concerning the recording quality of their records from leading artistes. Stanley Kirkby vows that of all the hundreds of records he has made for other companies none have given him greater satisfaction than the Winner! Fine tribute is also paid to Winner recording by Ivor Foster, Charles Tree, Ernie Mayne, Rita Squire and Harry Hudson, all of whom are represented in recent Winner programs.

Special attention is drawn by the company to some 1919 favorites, records of music and songs mostly of the very latest class, by the Band of H. M., First Life Guards, the Irish Guards, Royal Court Orchestra, John Ansell and His Band, Miss Lee White and Clay Smith, Charles Tree, Stanley Kirkby, Billy Merson, the Two Bobs, the Elliots and Herbert Cave. Most of these instrumentalists and vocalists record only for the Winner Co. and their eminence in the world of music speaks volumes for the great popularity which the Winner record enjoys among all gramophonists.

There is some difficulty in keeping the supply up to the demand line, but as a result of special efforts and the expected return to something like peace conditions within the near future, the company avow they will be in a position to meet all home and export demands upon their output at no very distant date.

ning and Fortune, in addition to the Band of H. M. Scots Guards, J. H. Squire's Orchestra, etc. The class of selection presented is, broadly speaking, of the up-to-date order, but I observe that due attention is given to the inclusion of a few evergreen acceptables, as, for instance, "Bells of St. Malo," "Weymouth Chimes," "Dream of Delight Waltz" and "Nights of Romance Waltz." Two of the best "As You Were" hits—"If You Would Only Care" and "I'm the Great Big Pot of Potsdam," as sung by Robert Carr, baritone—will find a hearty welcome awaiting them, this musical play being a general favorite. An all round good list!

"Master of Commerce"

It is a sign of the times that among the degrees which may be granted by the London University are those of Bachelor and Master of Commerce. This university's direct association with trade is welcomed as a move in the right direction.

The Performing Rights Society

It is stated in connection with a dispute over performing rights between the Amalgamated Musicians' Union and the Performing Rights Society that the latter has issued a writ against the dance committee which arranges the dances at the Grafton Galleries. The complaint alleged is that the band at these dances has been playing, without a license, music of which the society holds the performing rights. This question of performing rights has again been the subject recently of considerable acrimonious correspondence in the London press.

VICTROLA AND RECORDS BOUGHT FOR PRESIDENT'S SHIP

Naval Officer Buys Nearly $200 Worth of Victor Products From Landay Bros. for Use on the U. S. S. George Washington, Which Carried President Wilson to France

Just before the U. S. S. George Washington sailed for France bearing President Wilson to the Peace Conference, a naval supply officer went to the store of Landay Bros., Inc., on West Forty-second street, New York, and, evidently fully informed as to what he was to purchase, placed an order for a Victrola XI, over forty records of various kinds, and a liberal supply of needles, amounting in all to nearly $200, with instruction that the machine and records be delivered to the George Washington and placed in the lounging-room of the ship for the entertainment of the President and other members of his party during the voyage.

A particularly interesting feature of the transaction was the fact that Underwood & Underwood secured a picture of the Victrola in the lounging-room of the ship and featured it in their Photo News Service. The regular bulletin attached to the photograph read: "President Wilson Entertained by the Victrola In Voyage to France on George Washington" "While the executive mind busied with affairs

URGES DRUGGISTS TO GET IN LINE

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., February 6.—The Minneapolis Drug Co., of this city, distributors of Sonora phonographs, received recently the following letter from a Minnesota druggist:

"Just a few words about the Sonora as a business proposition in the drug store, and it is not an easy task to say the helpful thing for the other fellow, but here goes: First—let me say that the Sonora phonograph is all that is claimed for it. This I have amply demonstrated in my store, after taking on some of the other

'best sellers.' Secondly—my success with the Sonora was so far ahead of my wildest dreams that I cannot boost it too high to the other fellow who wants to get into the game. Finally, I find that it is only necessary to put in a stock, give the ordinary selling talk and the Sonoras do the rest. My advice to any druggist who is considering going into the phonograph business is—'Don't be afraid to try the Sonora out. It will not fail.'"

Among the callers at the Columbia offices last week was Fred E. Yahn, successful Columbia dealer, who conducts retail establishments in Springfield, Fall River and New Bedford, Mass. Mr. Yahn was very optimistic in discussing the business situation in New England, and stated that his Columbia sales totals were large.

LATEST PATENTS RELATING TO TALKING MACHINES AND RECORDS

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 8.—TALKING MACHINE.—Shular Baum, Utica, N. Y., assignor to the Century Cabinet Co., same place. Patent No. 1,284,988.

This invention relates to appliances for talking machines and refers particularly to the tone arm and means for allowing the movement thereof.

One object of the invention is a device in which the tone arm has a free vertical and horizontal movement.

Another object is a device in which the moving parts of the tone arm are subjected to a minimum of frictional wear.

Another object is a device in which the stylus may be removed from, and introduced into, the sound groove of a record with a minimum danger of injuring the undulations therein.

Another object is a device in which the horizontal and vertical movements of the tone arm are limited.

In the operation of talking machines, it is essential that the tone arm carrying the sound box and the stylus have free and unrestricted horizontal and vertical movements in order that the stylus may correctly follow the sound undulations in the sound groove. This can be obtained only by reducing the frictional movement to a minimum and by obviating the inherent weight of this portion of the machine.

As experience has shown that the least injurious effect is produced upon the sound undulations by removing, or inserting, the stylus during the revolution of the record, it is essential that the stylus be removed, or inserted, in such a direction and in such a manner that the point of the stylus will not mar or scratch the undulations at their point of contact with the stylus during this operation.

It is further essential in machines of this character that it be possible to remove the stylus from the sound groove and then swing it away from the record in order to remove or replace the record upon the turntable, and to maintain the tone arm from descending too far and injuring the stylus and sound box by the contact of the stylus with some part of the machine.

a cross-section similar to Fig. 5, the tone arm being in the revolved position indicated by the dotted lines in Fig. 2. Fig. 7 is a cross-section through the line 7—7 of Fig. 3. Fig. 8 is a cross-section through the line 8—8 of Fig. 7. Fig. 9 is a broken development of the ball cage.

SOUND AMPLIFIER FOR PHONOGRAPHS.—William C. Freeman, Nashville, Tenn. Patent No. 1,285,668.

This invention relates to sound amplifiers for phonographs and the like, and more particularly to phonographs of that kind commonly known as the cabinet type and wherein the sound chamber or amplifier is inclosed within the cabinet and is located below the turntable for a record of the flat disc type.

In carrying out the objects of this invention there is provided in general a hollow sound chamber or amplifier of the tapered type, and provided within such chamber, adjacent the end communicating with the conduit of the tone arm, a plurality of oppositely disposed plates of glass or like sound-conducting material, so as to increase the strength of the tone of the sound conveyed to such chamber through the tone arm. In order to present the greatest possible amount of resonance and volume to the sound there are provided several metallic plates arranged opposite each other and located one on each side of said glass plates, and, furthermore, surround each of such plates with resilient material, such as rubber, which material serves to deflect the sound waves within the sound box and neutralize the abrasive, nasal, and other foreign sounds likely to be produced in the playing of a record, to such an extent as to make the same not audible and thus completely eliminate the same.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a vertical sectional view taken through the cabinet of a phonograph and showing therein, in elevation, a hollow sound chamber or amplifier constructed in accordance with the invention; Fig. 2 is a view looking into said sound chamber or amplifier from the outer or larger end thereof, the cabinet and other parts of the phonographs, being omitted for the sake of clearness of illustration; Fig. 3 is a vertical sectional view taken on line 3—3 of Fig. 2; Fig. 4 is a horizontal sectional view taken on line 4—4 of Fig. 1; Figs. 5 and 6 are longitudinal sectional views taken on lines 5—5 and 6—6, respectively, of Fig. 10; Figs. 7 and 8 are like views taken on lines 7—7 and 8—8, respectively, of Fig. 9; Fig. 9 is a top plan view of one of the walls of the sound amplifier; Fig. 10 is a like view of another of such walls; and Fig. 11 is a vertical sectional view taken on line 11—11 of Fig. 3.

PHONOGRAPH HORN.—Frank J. W. Weiser, Elmhurst, Ill. Patent No. 1,286,459.

This invention relates to phonograph horns, and its object is to provide a sound-control to eliminate the metallic character of the tone of the sound-waves issuing from the throat of the phonograph and to control the volume of sound of the waves.

In the accompanying drawings Figure 1 is a side view of a phonograph with the horn in vertical section to better illustrate the features of the invention; Fig. 2 is a top view in longitudinal section on the line 2—2 of Fig. 1 through the horn and showing the closed and opened positions of the shutters in full and dotted lines respectively, Fig. 3 is a sectional view on the line 3—3 of Fig. 2, and Fig. 4 is modification.

STYLUS HOLDER.—Raymond Paul, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Gainer & Koehler, same place. Patent No. 1,286,759.

This invention relates to talking machines and has for its object the provision of means on the sound box or reproducer whereby the stylus may be readily inserted and removed without the necessity of manipulating screws or other fastening means.

A further object of the invention is the provision of means whereby the improved stylus holder is readily adaptable to sound boxes of usual construction without interfering with or modifying the structure thereof.

STYLUS HOLDER.—Walker Booth, Collingswood, N. J. Patent No. 1,287,199.

The invention as used in connection with talking machines has for an object to provide a holder for the stylus of the sound box. It comprehends, among other features, the provision of a simple holder for securing the free end of the stylus arm with relation to the sound box proper, the invention being of a form which will enable the same to be made very cheaply, and readily applied, and also permit of securing the stylus arm to the desired degree of rigidity, so that the most effective sound results can be obtained, and whereby further adjustment of the connection can be obtained.

Fig. 3 is a bottom plan view, and Fig. 4 is a fragmentary bottom plan sectional view.

TALKING MACHINE.—Mark Jay Samuels, New York, assignor to the Lyraphone Co. of America, Washington, D. C. Patent No. 1,287,763.

This invention relates to talking machines and particularly to the means for connecting the reproducer or sound box to the sound amplifier or horn. Some of the objects are to eliminate the false and impure sounds sometimes experienced in phonographs of ordinary construction; to provide a simple means for attaching and detaching the tone arm from the amplifier, to permit easy motion thereof in all directions, and to effect a more perfect contact of the needle and record.

this talking machine; and Fig. 3 is a fragmentary sectional view, showing the means for attaching the tone arm to the amplifier.

SOUND REPRODUCING MACHINE.—Forest Cheney, Chicago, Ill., assignor to the Cheney Talking Machine Co., same place. Patent No. 1,287,881.

This invention is concerned with certain improvements in sound reproducing machines that are designed to make the adjustment of the needle easier than is possible with these devices as they are now constructed.

This improved machine includes a breech-loading needle-holder, together with a gage by which the needles can be accurately adjusted without any expert knowledge of how the adjustment should be effected. Referring to the drawing:

side elevation of the sound box resting upon the needle-adjusting gage; Fig. 3 is a detail in section on the line A—A of Fig. 1.

SOUND REPRODUCING OR TALKING MACHINE.—Adolph P. Gustafson, Chicago, Ill., assignor to the M. Schulz Co., same place. Patent No. 1,287,585.

The invention relates to sound reproducing or talking machines and seeks to provide an improved arrangement of the sound amplifying and modifying devices.

In the drawings Figure 1 is a vertical section from front to rear of the preferred embodiment of the invention. Fig. 2 is a cross section on line 2—2 of Fig. 1 with the turntable, actuating motor and sound box omitted. Fig. 3 is a view similar to Fig. 1, illustrating a modification. Fig. 4 is a front view, with parts broken away, of the form shown in Fig. 3. Fig.

5 is a section on the line 5—5 of Fig. 3 with the turntable, actuating motor and sound box omitted.

MOUNTING FOR TONE ARMS OF TALKING MACHINES.—James J. Phillips, Rochester, N. Y. Patent No. 1,288,168.

The present invention relates to mountings for tone arms of talking machines, and an object thereof is to provide a simple and inexpensive construction which will permit the tone arm to swing across the record and, at the same time, have a movement toward and from the record.

the reproducer at one end and with the horn or amplifier of the talking machine at the other end, the reproducer being adjusted for operating upon talking machines of the hill and valley type; Fig. 2 is a detail view showing the reproducer adjusted for operating upon records of the lateral wave type; and Fig. 3 is a sectional view on the line a—a, Fig. 1.

SOUND CONTROLLER.—William A. Sommerhof, Erie, Pa. Patent No. 1,288,726.

This invention relates to sound controllers for phonographs, one of its objects being to provide a novel form of shutter designed normally to close the outlet of the sound chamber but which can be shifted readily to bring the various members thereof into parallel planes one back of the other, thereby to provide outlets for the sound waves.

Another object is to provide a sound controller which, when open, will not project forwardly where it is likely to be hit against and broken, and which will conceal the interior of the sound chamber without, however, interfering with the escape of the sound waves.

A further object is to provide a device which can be partly closed to modulate the sound without, however, concentrating the sound waves in a restricted throat, but by reducing the area, simultaneously, of a series of homocentric outlets. Another object is to provide a modulating or sound controlling device which, when closed, will serve effectively to exclude dust from the sound chamber of the instrument.

TALKING MACHINE RECORD.—Alva D. Jones (deceased), Philadelphia, Pa., assignor of part to Frank Lyster, same place. Patent No. 1,288,610. This invention consists of a record for talking machines having a reinforcing support for the record material supporting and confining the same. It further consists of a duplex record in which two record surfaces are provided, so that one disc will carry two records which may each be reproduced by reversing the disc. It also consists of a reinforced record having a central hub or bushing adapted to engage the central stud of the turntable; a reinforced record having means for protecting the edges of the compound disc against injury, and also a record with means for insuring its true and uniform rotation with the turntable.

In the annexed drawings Figure 1 represents a perspective view of one-half of the reinforcing foundation forming a part of the improved record. Fig. 2 represents an edge view of a turntable of a talking machine and a diametrical section of the record. Fig. 3 represents a perspective view of a broken-away piece of the record. Fig. 4 represents a perspective view of a record embodying the invention in a slightly different form. Fig. 5 represents an edge view of the foundation disc used in the form of Fig. 4, but on a larger scale. Fig. 6 represents a sectional detail view of a portion of a disc embodying another form of the invention. Fig. 7 represents a perspective detail view of a portion of a foundation disc embodying still another form of the invention. Fig. 8 represents a sectional detail view of the complete record embodying such form. Similar numerals of reference indicate corresponding parts in the figures.

This invention relates to amplifying devices for talking machines, and more particularly to that class of amplifying devices as are concealed within the talking machine cabinet. The object of the invention is to make the sound boards used in connection with the sound amplifying device resonant by placing the boards constituting the walls of the amplifying device under tension in order to cause the same to readily vibrate in sympathy with the air inclosed between the same.

Another object of the invention is to provide improvements in apparatus for reproducing sound; by means of which the quality and naturalness of the recorded sounds are reproduced with greater faithfulness, and to impart resonance to the reproduced sounds. Other objects of the invention are to so improve and construct the amplifying device that the resonance and quality of the reproduced sound will be increased, and intensified to provide means whereby the tension of the amplifier may be varied as desired.

S. R. Christophersen has resigned as manager of the Tri-City Piano Co., Davenport, Ia., to become salesman for the Sonora Phonograph Corp., in the Iowa territory.

TALKING MACHINE AND THE DANCE

Popularity in That Connection Due to the Fact That It Enables the Dance Enthusiast to Have the Music He Wants When He Wants It

Some one has said that the modern dance craze is the result of the talking machine. This may be a trifle exaggerated, but there is much truth behind the idea. If it had not been possible to bring music—dance music—into every home by means of the talking machine, the dance craze would probably have been confined to a certain class of people who frequent public places where music is always to be had.

It is in the home, at the club, cottage, seashore, wherever young people gather for a good time, that the talking machine furnishes the brightening touch. We dance when we are happy, when the spirit moves. We want to dance when we want to, but if we are obliged to wait until an orchestra plays our music, our enthusiasm soon wanes. Of course, an orchestra has certain advantages, but that is in another sort of environment. We ordinary mortals cannot have a five-piece orchestra always at our elbow waiting for us. We depend on our talking machine, and keep up with the times by getting the latest song hits as they appear.

We may want a fox-trot, "jazz," or just the "blues," and with a turn of the hand the music comes forth. It is all so utterly convenient that there is no getting away from it. Not that we want to be lazy—but a labor- and time-saving device that never fails is something we cannot afford to do without. If we like to dance we can do so when and where we please if we have our talking machine. Whether it really is responsible for the dance craze or not is of very little interest to us. All we are interested in is the fact that it is ever ready to serve us well, and we wouldn't want to get along without it.

THE TALKING MACHINE AS A MONEY TESTER—MY WORD!

From England We Learn of Money That Speaks for Itself—Picture the Possibilities in This Connection—What a Field It Opens Up to Enterprising Talking Machine Men

Money-making schemes are as numerous as the leaves of the forest, and most of them last just about as long. Many have tried to make money and have spent the fruits of their labor looking at the world from between iron bars, all because they thought they could counterfeit that little slip of paper and have all the money they wanted for the rest of their lives. From England comes the story of a man who has invented a new kind of bank note that has something in common with a talking machine record.

The secret of this new bank note consists of having, along the edge of the paper, certain lines similar to the grooves in a record, which, when placed in a machine, will produce words or sounds proving the note to be genuine. The human imagination certainly does outdo itself occasionally.

Picture to yourself the possibilities of such a bank note. How the sale of talking machines would increase! Every man would have to have a machine on which he could test his money on Saturday night; our banks would be turned into music halls, and new slogans, such as "New Songs for New Money," would appear everywhere. Our dollar bill, being the standard, would have to have some classical melody befitting its dignity, testifying to the fact that it was born in the Treasury Department at Washington. The two-dollar currency, being a little more unusual, would necessitate a type of music a trifle out of the ordinary, and for the dear old "V" we would need something companionable and intimate, something suitable for an old and steady friend, and perhaps something with a touch of home in it, so that he might be induced to stay with us a little longer.

TALKING MACHINE EXPORTS GROW

Exports, Including Records, for Seven Months Ending January 31, 1919, Total $2,320,393

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6.—In the summary of exports and imports of the commerce of the United States for the month of January, 1919 (the latest period for which it has been compiled), which has just been issued, the following figures on talking machines and records are presented:

Talking machines to the number of 3,904, valued at $114,331, were exported in January, 1919, as compared with 5,731 talking machines, valued at $150,649, sent abroad in the same period of 1918. The seven months' total showed that we exported 26,391 talking machines, valued at $779,606, as against 54,796 talking machines, valued at $1,520,738 in 1918, and 44,943 talking machines, valued at $1,111,761 in 1917.

The total exports of records and supplies for January, 1919, were valued at $330,829, as compared with $164,074 in January, 1918. For the seven months ending January, 1919, records and accessories were exported valued at $1,540,787, as compared with $1,171,138 in 1918, and $877,283 in 1917.

The Rorolo Talking Machine Co. has been incorporated in Brooklyn, with a capital of $20,000, by J. Monteleone and S. and C. J. Rotolo, 774 Hart street.

KNOW PEOPLE IN YOUR TERRITORY

Being Able to Cater to the Particular Tastes of Your Prospects at the Right Time Means Business Development of the Right Kind

There is a great deal in knowing the kind of people in your own particular section, especially in the "talker" trade. Different nationalities favor different musical instruments and different types of music. In addition to the regular line of popular music, which is almost universal in its appeal, there is the music of special nationalities, dear to those who, although at present in this country, have yet the fondness for the things of their native lands. There are the Irish ballads loved by every son and daughter of the Emerald Isle, and the love songs of Scotland, with their memories of heather and fen and the strains of the martial bagpipe.

These records really sell themselves to the particular class who cares for them. Dealers in various parts of the country say that they do not need to advertise these records beyond an occasional window card showing new arrivals, for the people themselves are on the watch for them. Although we believe the trade in these records could be greatly increased by proper publicity in windows and newspapers, business flows along on the same even level, at least for some time past, equal to the obtainable supply. As people become more accustomed to having music in their homes their tastes become more discriminating, and they stick to that class of music which brings them the greatest amount of real enjoyment. Each to his own taste, especially in the line of music.

WHY RECORDING SINGERS GO CRAZY

Werrenrath Sets Forth Some of the Questions That He Has Been Called Upon to Answer

Reinald Werrenrath, popular baritone, has supplied the Victor Talking Machine Co. with a touching little article entitled "Why Recording Singers Go Crazy; Being a Few of the Questions Put to One Reinald Werrenrath During His Fourteen Years in the Talking Machine Game." The questions follow, but it is only fair to say that the last time we saw Werrenrath he was still quite sane:

1. How much does Caruso make a year? (Sometimes McCormack is used in recent years.)
2. How do you make a record?
3. I'd like to make some records for the Victor Co.—how do I go about it?
4. When you make records how far do you stand from the recording apparatus?
5. How does it feel to hear your own voice on the Victrola?
6. Of course, you are a Victor artist, but don't you admit that the Dingbat people get out a much better machine?
7. I have just written a song that the publishers say is better than "Little Grey Home in the West." Won't you make a record of it?
8. (And my favorite, actually occurring but once.) Won't it be a comfort for your family to hear your voice on the Victor after you are dead?

TO INTRODUCE SONORA ABROAD

A. F. Bramley Leaves for Paris—Will Visit Many European Points in Sonora Interests

A. F. Bramley, head of the Sonora export department, left New York recently bound for Paris. Mr. Bramley took with him a number of Sonora phonographs and is preparing to introduce this instrument to the French people. After exhibiting the Sonora at important fairs in France, Mr. Bramley will visit Italy, England, South Africa and South America, returning to New York late in 1920.

Small Payment Plan in Talking Machine Selling Should Be Strongly Opposed :: By Warfield Webb

There are two evils that should be ever bitterly opposed in the talking machine industry. These are: Price cutting and small payments. Either of these can do a great deal of harm, not only to the individual who adopts such a plan, but to the general trade. The evil is done on account of the effect that it has on the public. Let one man inaugurate a cut price or small payment method, and it does not take long for the public to become aware of it, and what follows? Why, the average customer feels that he is entitled to better terms than he otherwise might hope to obtain.

There are many notable reasons in these times for strict adherence to good prices, and the obtaining of cash or as large payments as can be obtained. It is a serious mistake to advertise that on given days a payment of $1.00 down and $1.00 per week will be accepted in payment of a phonograph or talking machine. It is a mistake to give this idea publicity and a very serious mistake to make it a habit or to even encourage it. If a customer can purchase a talking machine at all—that is, a machine that is above the commonplace—then he should be able and willing to make a cash payment for it, and if not able to do this he should make a down payment of at least 10 or 15 per cent. of the retail price. This will be a fair down payment, and if it is followed up with substantial weekly or monthly payments it will be a good plan.

In ordinary times, with a large stock of high-grade machines to offer the trade, there is less strenuous care demanded as to the amount of the down and monthly payments, when the factor of competition to make sales is calculated to urge the dealers to adopt methods that, while inadvisable, might be looked upon with a little consideration.

But when conditions obtain such as have been in vogue for some months, and which will be sure to continue for a considerable period to come, what is the use of urging sales on long-time terms when the demands and the stock supply do not necessitate it? There is and has been a scarcity of talking machines in the market. The manufacturers are and will be handicapped for a time as yet. There is no help for this, and the part that the dealer wants to do now is to co-operate with the manufacturer and see that he is not placed in a position that makes his lot even more difficult than it is now.

It is not any great trouble now to sell talking machines. No, the trouble lies in being unable to secure the stock that most of the dealers are so eager to obtain. For a long time there has been a limited number of machines on the market. The demands are still very active. The sales come readily enough now. Why not then obtain the best class of customers for the stock that you have to offer the trade? The customers who are able to buy talking machines at this time—not merely to purchase them without due consideration as to the obligation of paying for

*With Customers as Plentiful as at Present
Cash Should Be Insisted Upon*

them—should be able and glad to make a cash payment that will make it worth the dealer's time to close the sale.

He can readily enough sell his machines to good customers, and why is there a need for urging sales by inducements that are of no possible value to him and of injury to the customer who is given a false idea of the value of the purchase made? Customers are coming rapidly enough to the stores to-day. There is no reason for urging purchases when the payments cannot be in keeping with the nature of the sale. It is an unwise plan to advertise low terms and to seek to bring about an obligation on the part of the customers that will be hard for them to fulfil, and that will decrease your stock supply and tie you up in a way that is not agreeable.

When it is just as easy to get a good price and good terms for the sale of a talking machine, why not do so? This is sure to be a help to your customer in being able to get a machine that is worth the sale—of course, in this case you are selling a make that is of a high order—and he can also more quickly reduce his obligation. The latter feature is something that should not be passed by as a mere trifle. It is so much easier to be content with a purchase that is paid for in a short time than were it dragged out for months. Thus it becomes a burden, and the longer it is carried the heavier it becomes until there arises in the mind a feeling of repugnance to the article.

If you are making sales to parties who are becoming imbued with this idea on account of the long time that payments extend, then we can readily enough see a reason why there will be many unsatisfactory sales. These can be made just the opposite by our regard for the higher payment plan.

Therefore let the payments be as large as possible. Let the cash payment be at least not less than 10 or 15 per cent. of the sale price and the other payments based on this same idea. Then keep up the price that is asked for the machine, and encourage all cash sales. There is always a gain in profit to the dealer when he gets the cash. The delays and annoyances that often accompany the long-time payment plan can be obviated, and this is a big help.

This brings up another matter in this connection. The cost, annoyance, delays, worries and losses, repossessions and other experiences make sales often so unsatisfactory to the dealer when the payments cover an unusual long time that the profit is really eaten up before the machine is paid for, if it is paid for at all. Are these things not sufficient in themselves to make the dealer hesitate a long time before he seeks to gain trade in this way?

There is a special reason now for making the best effort possible to make the word "sale" all that it implies. Make it a profit-making event, and not merely another reason for increasing your worries and adding its bit to your expenses, and in this way making your business anything but a pleasure.

Keep before you the idea that the business can be had to-day by an effort in the right direction, and this consists of making your place attractive, your treatment courteous, your prices right and your eagerness to give good service to your trade. If you can give these in return for sales, the sales will come, and they will be of the better kind, too, and that is what you are certainly seeking.

MUSIC'S MESSAGE FOR DAVENPORT

George W. Pound, General Counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, to Address the Dealers in That City on May 7

DAVENPORT, IA., April 5.—Music dealers, including talking machine men, in this city and neighboring territory are much interested in the coming visit of George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, who will be in Davenport on May 7 and 8 for the purpose of informing the retailers of what has been done and what is being done in the way of furthering musical interest in the United States.

E. A. Schmidt, head of Schmidt's Music House, is chairman in charge of the local arrangements, and L. A. Murray, of L. A. Murray & Co., is looking after the publicity. Both men are working hard.

In speaking of Mr. Pound's coming visit Mr. Murray said:

"We have heard music dealers refer to Mr. Pound as a 'war-time bacon saver,' and we will all agree that the signing of the armistice has in no way slackened his pace. The general tone of his correspondence gives us the impression that Mr. Pound is in no mood to lay down his tools, but, on the contrary, he sets about his work with new enthusiasm, and the success he meets with depends almost entirely upon the support accorded by the music trade.

"Mr. Pound's visit to Davenport is his only stop between Omaha and Chicago, and local dealers are naturally very enthusiastic over his coming, and are planning a fine reception. We would like to guarantee Mr. Pound that every dealer, wholesaler, jobber or manufacturer who deals in anything pertaining to music within the boundary lines of Iowa and western Illinois will be present at the banquet on the night of May 7."

Cave-man methods may have produced a sale, but they never yet produced a repeat order.

NEW STORE IN LONG BEACH, CAL.

The Long Beach Music Co. has opened a new store at 221 East First street, Long Beach, Cal., H. N. Elliot, well known in the business of that city, will be the manager. This company is exclusive agent for the Columbia Grafonola, and will carry in addition a large stock of sheet music.

The psychology of salesmanship is nothing less than the application of the psychology of human nature. This is a fact which some people apparently overlook.

NEW YORK, APRIL 15, 1919

WE are face to face with extraordinary developments in every phase of business in America to-day. Manufacturers in the talking machine and record fields whose business was seriously disrupted through their patriotic efforts to help Uncle Sam win the war are now rapidly increasing their output and within a few months normal pre-war conditions will be attained. This is a situation which will bring joy to an army of dealers. Meanwhile all branches of business continue to be extremely active, with the demand exceeding the supply.

This development does not mean that there will not be problems to meet and handle and that our path will be as flowery as we now anticipate. It means, however, that the nation's foundation is solid and sound despite the fact that there are some factors in the industrial situation which are irritating. We have a handful of extremists who have got to be taken in hand and made to realize that this is the United States and not Europe, and on the other hand we must watch those who would take advantage of public susceptibility to preach reaction and an impossible return to outworn ways.

There is no time or room to-day for people of this type. American business cannot be reactionary. Prosperity must not only exist, it must be distributed. The future of the talking machine and the music industry as a whole rests on the growing capacity of the individual consumer. The one hundred richest men will buy only one or perhaps two talking machines for each of their houses, but a million prosperous, middle-class Americans will buy a million talking machines and a great many million records.

Despite the croakers business since the war closed has been rapidly readjusting itself. The masses of the American people are earning good money, and have some to spend. They are ordering talking machines and other musical instruments far in excess of the ability of the manufacturers to provide. Dealers realize these facts and find themselves able to demand prices and terms that are in accordance with sound business principles. It is the time to continue this policy of large cash and short-term sales. The public will recognize the justice and wisdom of this policy and will subscribe to it willingly.

We are entering a new era in the history not only of this nation, but of the world. The League of Nations is born, and this is indicative of international stability—in time. To-day the United States is a large creditor nation and in a condition of financial health that is unparalleled. The banks are filled to bursting with money, savings deposits have increased immensely, and the approach of the Victory Loan only emphasizes confidence in the ability of the people to support it and thus continue the saving habit.

The demand for talking machines demonstrates that the people to-day, as never before, appreciate the value and importance of music in the home, and find an investment in Government Bonds and talking machines along lines of essential savings, hence it can be said that the economic condition of the country is on the best possible basis, and that the present prosperity will continue for an indefinite period.

It is certainly not a time to view the future through indigued glasses; it is not a time for doubtful forebodings or misgivings. It is true that some men will always worry when times are good, less perchance they cease to be so some day. This is a case of borrowing trouble, and is a mighty illogical and unsound form of reasoning. Conditions to-day are fundamentally safe and sound. The people of the nation realize the importance of a policy of progress and are going to choke reactionism when once they recognize its real danger. We must have courageous thinking and bold speaking if we are to maintain the happiness and increasing prosperity which we to-day so thankfully recognize is ours.

AS a great many members of the talking machine trade are already aware, George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, is now on a two months' tour of the United States, and before returning to his offices in New York he will have addressed music dealers in over thirty cities, and delivered to them the message of trade unity primarily for the purpose of building up the future of the industry and developing a more general interest in music itself. Mr. Pound started his tour in Pittsburgh on March 18, and will end it in Buffalo on May 18.

It is significant to note that in the cities wherein he has already stopped the talking machine dealers have been prominent among those gathered to hear him, for the work he is engaged in doing is, for the most part, of distinct interest to the talking machine man, as well as to the piano dealer. Anything that tends to develop musical interest, to advance the cause of music and to place the entire industry on a higher plane naturally reacts to the benefit of everyone engaged in any branch of that industry.

Talking machine interests have not taken an active interest in the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce so far as becoming members of that organization is concerned, but that fact should not interfere with the members of this trade joining with piano men and other factors in the industry in any promotion work that will forward the cause of music, and which has for its object the developing of new demands for musical instruments. The National Association of Piano Merchants has broadened its scope, and has readjusted its by-laws to make talking machine dealers, sheet music dealers and others eligible to membership. Whether or not talking machine men take advantage of the opportunity, the fact remains that they can at least join with piano men in local and national campaigns that are calculated to benefit the music industry as a whole. That they are helping in no small measure to make Mr. Pound's trip a success shows that this fact is genuinely appreciated.

THE move now under way to bring together the retail talking machine interests in Ohio, Michigan and neighboring States into one general organization is most interesting and should receive encouragement as one of the initial moves along this line. It is true that The Talking Machine Men, Inc., in New York City took in dealers from the neighboring States of Connecticut and New Jersey, but these members are for the most part located within the immediate vicinity of the metropolis, and those in the further reaches of the State are left out. The move in Ohio and neighboring States is the first to bring together all the dealers in several States into one organization, and it is not going too far to foresee in the success of such an organization the formation of a nucleus for a national association either complete in itself or made up of smaller State bodies.

THE co-operative idea in advertising—that is between manufacturer and jobber—has been one of the gratifying trends in modern publicity. The talking machine industry has been no exception, for every issue of The World witnesses a broader spirit in this combined appeal to the dealer. Such advertising is forceful and direct, because the manufacturer's announcements are supplemented by those of the jobber who makes known to the dealers in his territory that he is handling the special lines which the manufacturer has introduced to the trade. To use a war phrase, it is a case of using heavy guns—155 howitzers, as compared with rifles. This advertising artillery breaks down all kinds of Hindenburg walls of ignorance, and brings to the attention of the trade the aims set forth they are manufacturers, jobbers or dealers.

Advertising properly conceived and placed is to-day the greatest constructive force in business. It is impossible to think of one succeeding without a proper appreciation of this most essential factor to success. It will be noted that the concerns which believe in publicity are those that make their mark, and this is true whether they are manufacturers, jobbers or dealers.

THE talking machine industry has attained such an eminence in the industrial field that every manufacturer and dealer should be imbued with the desire to maintain business on a quality basis—to produce and sell talking machines and records that will do them credit and add to the prestige of the industry. Never before in history were people so thoroughly cognizant of the essentiality of music as an educational and uplifting factor in the home, and the part played by the talking machine in bringing the best in music to the masses of the people is too well known to need reiteration. This policy can best continue by keeping the trade on that high plane to which it has been developed by the individual efforts of our great manufacturers, who have spent millions of dollars in winning public recognition of the status of the talking machine and records in the domain of music.

Manufacturers and dealers alike should be alert to maintain and develop a high quality standard—one that will dignify the industry and help emphasize the especial place which the talking machine has won as a potent factor in the dissemination of musical knowledge and appreciation. If this is maintained purchasers of talking machines and records will feel that their possession is worth while, and they will consider them with a more complete appreciation of their merits.

INDICATIONS are that those members of the industry who are perhaps going somewhat slow in their buying and their arrangement for producing, in expectation of a lowering of prices in the trade, are going to be mistaken, for there is a combination of circumstances that seems to be against any reduction either in raw materials or finished products.

It may be that the market reports will show a decline in steel prices, and that there may be some downward readjustment in lumber quotations, but the factor that is keeping prices up and promises to keep them up indefinitely is labor. The cost of labor has reached a high level, and may be expected to remain at that level for at least some years to come. In fact, the tendency seems to be to continue to increase wages either by direct advances or shortening of working hours.

Even in the modern talking machine factory where machinery accomplishes so much, the labor factor is a tremendous one, and it must be remembered that before the raw materials arrive at the factory there has entered into them considerable labor cost, for, as has been frequently explained, the labor cost starts from the time the crude ore is removed from the mine, or the tree felled in the forest, until the finished steel spring or casting, or the finished lumber, is made available for the manufacturer's use.

There are certain business factors regarding the future of which even the most enlightened may be in some doubt, but the labor factor is not one of them, and it is going to prove the dominating element in maintaining high prices for a long period.

THERE are many and varied opinions as to what will happen when this country undergoes the major operation on July 1, and has its booze cut out. There are, of course, those who talk of prohibition being unconstitutional and an infringement of personal liberty. There are others who base their arguments on the fact that some hundreds of thousands of brewery and distillery workers and barkeepers are going to lose their jobs, that some millions of dollars worth of property will be rendered valueless, and that an extra burden will be placed on the ordinary citizen in making up for the revenue lost from the income from liquor taxes and saloon licenses.

What the business man in what is now termed "wet" territory wants to know, however, is to what extent the prohibition move is going to affect his business. Insofar as can be determined from the experiences of talking machine dealers in States that have already been dry for some time, the retailer has nothing to worry about. In fact both talking machine and piano dealers in districts where prohibition already rules declare that they are perfectly willing to forego their daily toddy forever in view of the improved business conditions prohibition has brought, especially in dealing with certain classes of people. It has been found by experience that where the head of the house, be he mechanic, teamster, or laborer, cannot stop at the corner gin mill for a few rounds of drinks on pay night, he has more money to bring home and this money quite frequently finds its way into the coffers of the dealer in musical instruments, either for instalments due, or instalments on new purchases.

It is certain that the 10 or 20 per cent. of his wages that the average drinking man frequently used for decorating the mahogany on pay night, or for the few nights following, will find its way into other channels of trade, and while talking machine dealers will, of course, not get all of this money, they stand an excellent chance of getting a good proportion of it and will certainly not lose out. In fact, if the predictions of the optimist come true, the shortage of machines and records during the holiday season will be as nothing to the dearth of goods to meet the after-July rush.

INSTALL NEW CONCERT HALL

The P. J. Mann Co., of Worcester, Mass., Appreciate the Value of a Recital Hall as a Means of Cultivating High Class Trade

The New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, recently received from the P. J. Mann Co., Victor dealer at Worcester, Mass., a photograph showing a new concert hall which was lately constructed at Mr. Mann's establishment. Notwithstanding the tremendous shortage of Victor products, Mr. Mann has sufficient confidence in the future of this business to make a considerable investment, and rented a store adjoining his establishment, wherein he erected the attractive concert hall shown herewith.

In other words, this Victor dealer has real vision, and his keen business judgment will undoubtedly yield profitable dividends in the very near future.

Commenting upon his new concert hall, Mr. Mann stated that the concerts are well attended and that he is getting excellent results. In addition to playing Victor records, he also employs local artists to give a greater variety to his program. No records whatever are sold and no orders are taken at these concerts.

It is interesting to know that the P. J. Mann Co. has built up a large clientele for Victor Red

Seal records, and the aggressive business methods utilized by this dealer, combined with his confidence in the future of the Victor business, have contributed materially to the success he has achieved.

ASSOCIATION FOR RHODE ISLAND

Talking Machine Men in That State Working to Establish a New Trade Organization

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 31.—Talking machine men are busy discussing the possibilities and advantages of a dealers' association for Rhode Island. Piano men of this state have made the announcement that in the near future they expect to have such an association, but the talking machine men have as yet come to no definite conclusion as to what should be done. The prevailing opinion seems to be in favor of a talking machine dealers' association, but no one is willing to undertake the task of organizing one. It is said that Rhode Island is the only state in the country without an association of the kind proposed. A suggestion has been made that it might be possible to form an association of both piano and talking machine dealers if the latter were willing. Nothing has yet been done to solve the difficulty, but early and favorable action is hoped for.

THE BEAUTIFUL VOCALION STUDIO

IN this beautiful building, situated on West Forty-third Street, in New York, opposite Aeolian Hall, is faithfully portrayed the spirit of Aeolian—the blending of art, of science, and of skill.

No concern in the music industry today—no concern in any industry has a clearer perception of the value of ideals in their practical application to the uses of commerce and of manufacturing.

The Vocalion Studio, where come the artists who make Vocalion Records, welcomes them with an atmosphere that inspires them to their best. The very exterior of the building, the Reception Room, the Lounge—are redolent of Art. Science and skill are also here. The wonderful new system under which Vocalion Records are produced is the last word in the world's knowledge of sound—its production and its reproduction. The full beauty of the artist's voice—all the overtones, too subtle, too delicate for older systems to record—are caught by the new Vocalion method. The records made under this new system are as superior to all other records as the Vocalion itself surpasses all other phonographs.

FOR THE FIRST TIME COMPLETE ON ONE RECORD

That Masterpiece of Music

THE OVERTURE FROM WILLIAM TELL

(Rossini)

Played by the Vocalion Concert Band

VOCALION RECORDS accommodating one-third more music than other records, through their improved system of recording, make possible the complete presentation on one record of the famous Overture from William Tell. The reproduction of this noted composition—rich in dramatic contrasts by the Vocalion Concert Band—is both masterful and impressive.

SCIENTIFIC SUPERIORITY

As is generally known, all musical tones are composite in character—that is, every tone of voice or instrument is really composed of a number of individual tones.

These components are commonly called overtones, and it is the number and relative strength of these overtones which decides the character and quality of any given tone.

When sounded or sung, every musical note creates a definite number of sound-waves, one for each partial, as overtones are scientifically called. No sooner are these distinct waves formed, however, than they all merge into one wave which owes its regularity of outline to the number and strength of the partial waves.

Many of these waves, particularly where there are a large number in a series, are exceedingly delicate. Their presence can hardly be detected by the finest instruments. And yet the natural timbre of any individual voice, or distinctive instrument like the violin or flute, is not apparent unless a sufficient number of partial waves can be recorded and reproduced.

Briefly:—the superiority of the Vocalion system lies in its greater sensitiveness. It is able to record far more delicate partial waves than older systems and also to reproduce them.

Hence, a Vocalion violin record, played upon the Aeolian-Vocalion, sounds appreciably more like a true violin than has hitherto been possible. And the same is true of all other musical instruments and individual artists.

Moreover, the tones themselves are fuller, richer, and possess more body and carrying quality. Also, these records contain one-third more music than other records; 10-inch Vocalion records playing as long as ordinary 12-inch records, and 12-inch Vocalion records playing correspondingly longer.

Better Grade Machines the Logical Products Under the Existing Market Conditions

Although it is generally recognized that the bulk of the talking machine demand at the present time is for machines retailing at from $75 to $125, with a tendency towards still more expensive models where finances permit, there are still manufacturers of cheap machines, or would-be manufacturers, and assemblers of talking machines, who persist in believing that cheapness is, or is likely to be, the chief sales argument, and are, therefore, devoting their efforts to the production of machines to sell at very low prices.

Some years ago, before the prices of supplies began soaring, a flood of "cheap" machines appeared on the market, cheap particularly in construction, but mighty few of these machines have survived. The fact of the matter is that the public has been educated to demand machines of the better grade—machines that, although they represent a more or less substantial investment, possess the mechanical and tonal qualities that are calculated to make that investment one of permanent value. Increasing manufacturing costs have put even the cheaper models of standard machines on a higher level, and it is doubtful if the price of these cheaper machines will ever be reduced to any appreciable degree, unless there is a wondrous and unexpected drop in material and labor costs.

Machines can still be assembled or manufactured at a low cost, but anyone at all acquainted with trade conditions must realize that such machines are cheap all through, cannot stand up in use, and are not calculated to build up a permanent trade for the manufacturer. Those who buy such machines and the dealers who handle them both come back to the manufacturer when the cheap motors and other materials give out. The dealer begins to look around for another line selling at a price that will make it possible to give a half decent product, and the ultimate consumer is so disgusted with the cheap machine that he either loses all faith in talking machines as a whole or makes up his mind to buy a new machine of recognized quality and at a price that will give him something for his money.

The talking machine has been developed up to the present time along high-grade lines, and has been offered to the public as an instrument of distinct value. The appeal has been made chiefly on the basis of the tremendous musical possibilities of the machine and the accompanying records, rather than upon the price. It has been offered not simply as a fad, but as something of intrinsic and permanent value worth any price asked for it within reason.

Whatever possible excuse that might be found under ordinary conditions for making a low-priced machine for the public, it is without standing just now, when it is not possible for the majority of factories to turn out sufficient machines of the $100 value, or better, to meet the demand that exists at present. If the public

Public Has Been Educated to Appreciate the Higher Class of Machines and Trade Should Profit by Fact is crying for machines of that type why kill the goose that lays the golden egg by endeavoring to go after business on a small change basis?

Keep the trade on the high plane to which it has been developed by a tremendous amount of individual effort and millions of dollars of advertising expenditure. It means the retaining of public respect for the instrument, the inculcation and maintenance in the minds of worthwhile prospects of the desire to own a talking machine as something worth possessing, and means a satisfactory income from machines for both dealer and manufacturer, a return that enables the former to conduct his business along high-grade lines, and enables the latter to put into his product materials of a quality that will insure satisfactory durability.

If the talking machine is lowered to the level of a common merchandising proposition, then much of the results of the effort and money devoted to the development of the industry will have been lost.

Progress means going ahead and not backward, and the term progress can never be accepted as indicating a lowered quality standard. The opportunity exists, right now for developing for the future—for producing machines and records that make their possession worth while. So long as it is kept upon a high quality standard, just so long will the talking machine business be such a desirable one, and continue to outrank the majority of other lines of business.

PHONOGRAPH IN A NEW LIGHT

Senator Baker, of Michigan, Compares Good Roads Building to Phonograph Buying

State Senator Herbert F. Baker, of Michigan, who has long been a staunch friend of the farmer in the West, and whose activities in fighting their battles have brought upon him the name of "The Untamed Bear Cat From Cheboygan," in discussing the proposed good roads amendment draws a striking analogy between that proposition and the purchase of a phonograph. He says in part:

"The proponents of the good roads amendment argue that our trunk line roads should be built now and built by the State and nation and paid for on the instalment plan, thus placing the State, in the matter of the expenditure necessary to rapid highway development, in the same position as the family unable to buy a phonograph for cash. The instalment plan relieves the situation and in each case it is possible for those interested to enjoy the use of the desired object while raising the fund with which to pay for it."

The Dudley Phonograph Co., Elkhart, Ind., has been incorporated with a capital of $200,000. The directors of the new corporation are Francis N. Harris, Reno H. Sales, Samuel W. Dudley, Roy T. Newland and James F. Boyer.

Sings for money. Went to see a famous teacher. Studied Grand Opera and became a star. Made her debut in November, 1918. Now the greatest living dramatic soprano. Lazaro

At the age of 20, Hipolito Lazaro joined the Spanish Army for the war in Morocco. One night his captain heard a glorious voice soaring out above the silent bivouac—the next day Lazaro was on his way home to study under the great masters. Thus began the career of this wonder-tenor of the generation.

To help you sell these symphony records we have prepared individual mailing inserts in color, telling striking stories of these artists' careers.

Barrie

Once a year, Maria Barrientos goes back to Barcelona, the romantic old Spanish town that gave her birth, and sings at a performance whose like is to be found nowhere else on earth. The King of Spain is there—and the lowliest peasant. It is the annual concert for the Barrientos Free Scholarship Fund—established by the great soprano for the inspiration and help of all young Spanish vocal aspirants.

Stracciari

Cardo Stracciari has been decorated with two kings—but could never in the world guess it. The great baritone is like a boy—a big, happy boy—happiest when ladies and courts and conductors are far away, and he can don old togs, fish to his heart's content and tramp home with a hearty appetite for his favorite dish.

Lucy Gates

Miss Gates has been called "the Maude Adams of Grand Opera." The term is apt—the vocal charm of this dainty little Westerner who has sung her way into the heart of America is indeed comparable only to the charm of manner of America's best-loved actress. It is of interest that Miss Adams and Miss Gates both claim Salt Lake City as a birthplace.

Toscha Seidel

Toscha Seidel's uncle, himself a violinist of no mean repute, tells how the little Toscha would stamp his feet and cry with rage whenever he detected a false note (struck purposely) in his uncle's playing.

So true an ear for harmony; or so marvelous a hand for technique have rarely been associated in the person of a violinist.

Oscar Seagle

A young man studying law in a small Southern College—the discovery of a golden baritone voice that no campus glee club could do without—the decision to give up a profession for an art—such are the steps in Oscar Seagle's notable musical development. It also explains his wonderfully sympathetic rendering of southern folk-songs and negro spirituals.

A day with Hulda Lashanska begins with a 10-mile gallop "cross country." Follows 18 holes of golf; a glorious swim in Lake Placid; a spin in the Lashanska motor—and then, best of all, home to the dearest, golden-haired little girl-child in all the world. Yes—the very same small person to whom the prima donna sings those wonderful, lulling lullabies that have so often held you spell-bound.

With each fifteen 10-inch or 12-inch single or double disc symphony records we will send you a total of 100 inserts about the artist or artists whose records you choose. Try them out. You'll find that they pull.

This is a good time to feature Foreign-Language Records. Why not put in a line? The cost is small—profits big. Write for particulars.

Some New and Interesting Angles on Record Publicity and Salesmanship

By Laszlo Schwartz
Advertising Mgr., OkeH Records

Notwithstanding the fact that outside of the automobile no other new invention with universal marketing possibilities ever received the publicity that has been applied to the phonograph and the record, nevertheless, the marketing methods of these products are still in need of considerable improvement.

One could not possibly form a fair opinion of the merits and shortcomings of phonograph and record selling methods judging same by the efficient ad campaigns waged by the leading manufacturers and the successful retailers in the field. After all, the modern methods resulting from their progressive spirit form but a minor numerical part of the legions of retailers small and large.

Every progressive dealer owes it to his business to study this subject from various angles. Let us hope that these humble efforts may be instrumental in scattering genuine constructive enlightenment on this fascinating subject.

Path of Errors

1. It is a grave error for a dealer to be misled by the idea that a good piano salesman is necessarily just as good a phonograph and record seller. No. Not quite. When the piano is sold the piano salesman considers the deal closed for good.

In that respect the phonograph salesman's psychology is vastly different from that of a piano seller. It must be different so as to adhere to the thing most vital to the existence and growth of the entire phonograph industry. Namely, unlike in piano salesmanship, the phonograph sales folk must consider the sale of the instrument merely as the introduction to a serial story with endless instalments.

He must prepare the customer for this long-lived partnership. He must begin to enlighten the buyer to the keenest understanding of the educational and entertaining powers of the records which he will sell him from time to time. This cannot be accomplished by any record salesman or saleswoman unless they themselves become thoroughly enlightened and genuinely interested in the record industry and in many phases of our musical life.

Inasmuch as piano salesmen are trained to possess somewhat different selling qualifications, record dealers will do well not to expect wonders from ex-piano salesfolk when they first enter the record field.

Warning No. 2

Wherever we find dealers selling records under adverse conditions we usually find a dealer who does not fully realize that the phonograph and record industries have created a new art in salesmanship. Yes, an entirely new art, one which has set upon itself, making contented bedfellows of commercialism and musical art. The mere fact that this problem of making peace between art and commercialism has proven the riddle of ages gone by should make this new art worthy of every dealer's close study. There's no doubt but what the success of the phonograph and record industries has grown to such immense dimensions because for the first time in the history of the world art and commercialism found it possible to get along side by side on a world-wide scale and thrive without detriment to one another.

Let us outline the workings of this new art in salesmanship.

1. Record dealers aiming for 100 per cent. sell-

How Best to Help the Music Lover to Form the Habit of Buying Records

ing efficiency must first of all create an atmosphere in the record department which will be conducive to successful record selling. This means (a) Make it possible that the buyer's entire attention is monopolized by the record on the instrument. (b) The booth must be made as soundproof as possible. No effort should be left untried toward that end. (c) The furnishings and pictures in that booth must be selected with an eye to artistic effects which will create an atmosphere of homey coziness. (d) If possible, booths should be built so that Mrs. Brown sitting in Booth No. 1 should by no means have her attention distracted from listening to the record through the act of scrutinizing Mrs. Green's new bonnet or dress in Booth No. 2.

There are other fine points worthy of mention, each and everyone showing the workings of this new art in salesmanship, but the above are sufficient to set any progressive dealer athinking in the right direction.

The Good Musical Mixer

In diagnosing the cases of some less successful record dealers we also find that most of them have never made a genuine systematized attempt to mix with local musical folk.

This is a grave error. The good will of the musical leaders of the community is not so much needed in marketing popular records, but their influence and boosting is a mighty strong factor in a dealers' propaganda trying to sell classic and operatic records.

The smaller the city the more dependent is the dealer upon the co-operation of the flag-bearers of the musical cause in his community. Unfortunately in small cities the great recording artists are rarely heard, hence their fame cannot be exploited through the personal appeal which they make from the concert stage. With the absence of this potential power in record selling the next best substitute is the recommendation of a professional local musician whose word is accepted as that of an authority on matters musical.

Let Prof. Rosinowitch, the local violin instructor, speak of the wonderful new violin solos he heard on such and such records by such and such artist and it will not be difficult for Mr. Dealer to trace his increase of that particular number to the source pointed out above.

Now, then, it will not take a wide stretch of imagination to see that if Prof. Rosinowitch, the local violin teacher, Mme. Bawford, the local vocal teacher, and Mr. Banger, the piano teacher, will be systematically enlightened by Mr. Local Dealer about the new events in Phonoland, it will soon stimulate the sale of his standard records.

Nowadays no progressive music teacher can do without a phonograph in his studio and the local dealer who is a good mixer with musical folks will soon find his friendship bringing him record sales undreamed of in the past.

Following this path a live wire local dealer will eventually succeed in making his store a pleasant "drop in" place for all musical folk of his town.

Buying records will become as much of a habit with these musical folk as the very habit they formed of dropping in "to hear the latest records."

It's all in helping the music-lover to form the habit of buying records—it can be done.

HOW were we to know that the Brilliantone Peace Baby was going to make such a hit with the trade. They swooped down upon us for these Counter Displays with such a rush, that there are still some dealers who have not been supplied.

Spring Publicity Campaigns Started for Talking Machines and Records

By W. B. Stoddard

Love of music should be fostered in every home, and the talking machine dealer should see to it that every parent is made aware of the advantage of having a first-class music instrument to make that home more attractive for the young people. That was the idea of the Starr Piano Co. in some of their recent advertising.

The same idea was expressed by the Gibson Co., Washington, D. C., who recently ran a distinctive two-column ad.:

KEEP THE YOUNG FOLKS AT HOME

How to keep the children at home evenings: that's the question that faces many parents. Too old to be disciplined; too young to select desirable environment; just how to handle children in their teens is a problem. Why not make the home so attractive that they'll want to stay there? Ever think about it in that way?

THE NEW EDISON DIAMOND DISC PHONOGRAPH

will help to keep the young folks at home. It will make your house a centre for your children's friends. And you can feel safe about their surroundings.

What rollicking good times the New Edison assures! The young people can dance to it; sing with it; and then, as their mood becomes more quiet, can slip in some of the beautiful grand opera arias and listen to the world's greatest artists.

THE GIBSON CO., INC.

Such advertisements as the above are sure to set parents to thinking, and if a talking machine is not already installed publicity of this kind will result in many new sales.

Children make excellent boosters for any firm once their interest is aroused, and they have a spirit of loyalty and an appreciation of team work that surpasses their elders. Give them the proper incentive and they will pull together with a will for their school, or club, or church. This spirit of co-operation was recognized recently by Lansburgh & Bros., Washington, D. C., who offered a handsome Grafonola to the room in the public schools of the city whose purchases amounted to the most during the month of April. Anyone making a purchase could have it credited to any room he desired, and the way those children did "pull" for their own particular class room was good to see. In order to be assured that every room in every school was entering the contest they inserted a little box ad. in the middle of their large ad.:

NEW ARRIVALS

Don't forget that every boy or girl entering his or her room in our Grafonola contest will receive 100 votes FREE toward winning a $200.00 de luxe Grafonola. Come on, boys and girls, a long pull, and a strong pull, and a pull together, for the honor of your room.

LANSBURGH & BROS.

Of course every house that handles Victrolas or player-pianos also handles rolls and music, and in order to bring them to the attention of the public there is nothing so effective as a good window display. One of the most popular of this season's records is the catchy one-step "Me-ow." The universality of its appeal is proven from the fact that a couple of music stores on opposite sides of the continent featured it at practically the same time in their show window. The Chalmers Co., Newark, N. J., had the floor of their window covered with linoleum in large blocks of black and orange. In either corner were placed Victrolas, and forming a procession from one to the other was a line of black cats, life size, cut from cardboard, with big green eyes and red tongues. The walls were of black, with panels of orange, the cloth being laid in pleats. On the orange panels were a series of black cat heads, one above the other, the bottom one larger than life size, growing gradually smaller towards the top, until the apex showed a head about the size of a dollar. Pasted to the window in large black letters was the word "Me-ow." Records of this piece were scattered all through the window, both in racks and on the floor.

The Southern California Music Co., Los Angeles, Cal., likewise featured this popular selection. In the center of the display was a pedestal covered with green velvet, on which was a cardboard cat of gray, about three feet high. A mechanical contrivance in the rear caused this Tom to open his mouth to the fullest extent, at the same time closing his eyes. The long red tongue hung out, in a manner which almost made one hear him say "Me-ow." The floor of the window was covered with green velvet, and on it were laid talking machine records and player rolls of the selection, while in the background on the wall were ukuleles, banjos, guitars and violins.

THE TALKER AS AN EDUCATOR

J. A. Fairfield, with the Mandel Mfg. Co., Calls the Talking Machine the Greatest Developer of Musical Taste in the Nation's History

OMAHA, NEB., April 2.—J. A. Fairfield, who travels for the Mandel Mfg. Co., of Chicago, gives the following reasons for his belief that there should be a talking machine in every home worthy of the name: "Some people still think," said Mr. Fairfield, "that the talking machine is nothing more or less than a mechanical toy and that it interferes with their children's musical education. This is a great mistake, as the talking machine is the greatest educator in music that we know of. Take two young girls who are to study singing. Teach one with and the other without the aid of the talking machine and then note which one knows the most in a year or two. You will find the talking machine pupil is far ahead of her sister who never had a chance to hear the great singers through this medium.

"The young girl who has studied with the aid of a talking machine had a chance to cultivate her musical taste by playing over the records at intervals. Listening to the masterpieces developed her musical inclinations and assisted her in her musical education and studies. In every case it is the means of advancing the standard of musical taste.

"It makes children truly musical to listen to the works of the great composers, and singers cultivate their taste for a better class of music.

"The talking machine is the greatest teacher of music. Leading musicians are using it in their studies, as well as in public schools, and give daily recitals in order that their pupils may grasp the right ideas of music and how it should be played and sung. The phonograph gives a person a general mental development in music. Just watch those who have these instruments in their homes. At first they will play all kinds of ragtime and light popular records, but in less than six months those same people have discarded these records for a higher class of music, showing conclusively that their musical taste has advanced.

"The talking machine is here to stay. It is the greatest teacher and developer of music that the world has ever had."

INCREASE THEIR FACTORY SPACE

The Faultless Caster Co. Compelled to Enlarge Manufacturing Quarters to Meet Increased Demand for Its Products

EVANSVILLE, IND., April 5.—The Faultless Caster Co., of this city, manufacturer of the well-known line of "Faultless" casters, has been obliged to materially increase its factory space during the past few weeks in order to handle the demands of its clients. The company is endeavoring to give satisfactory service to the users of "Faultless" casters, and the only way it can accomplish this is by the erection of new buildings and the installation of additional machinery. This caster has been particularly successful in the talking machine industry and is now being used exclusively by many of the best-known manufacturers.

MUSIC FOR SICK SOLDIERS

Half a million records have been distributed in camps, ships and hospitals by the Phonographic Records Recruiting Corps since the organization was created in August last. This statement was made recently at a meeting held in the home of Mrs. Charles H. Ditson, No. 19 East Thirty-seventh street, to discuss means of continuing the work of providing musical instruments, phonographs and records for the sick and wounded. The organization has 400 branches.

CONTAINS MANY NEWSY ITEMS

Latest Issue of "Sonora Bell" Contains Many Articles of Interest That Tend to Wider Knowledge of Conditions in the Trade

The most recent issue of the "Sonora Bell," the house organ published monthly by the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., contains a number of practical and valuable items that will undoubtedly be of keen interest to Sonora representatives. On the first page of this issue is reproduced a graphical chart which shows the phenomenal increase of Sonora sales during 1918. According to this chart, the sales of 1913 may be considered as one unit, and on this basis the sales of 1914 are represented as two units, 1915 as 14 units, 1916 as 42 units, 1917 as 100 units, and 1918 as 150 units; the sales of 1918 being about 150 per cent. of those of the big year preceding.

There are several general articles relative to the subject of music, and a few semi-technical discussions that will give Sonora representatives an excellent idea of the true musical import of the phonograph. There is introduced in this issue a page of news about Sonora dealers and this page will undoubtedly become one of the most popular sections in this successful house organ. The center spread of this issue reproduces some of the advertising that will be used in national magazines in behalf of the Sonora phonograph and Sonora semi-permanent silvered needles.

WORCESTER, MASS., April 4.—C. T. Sherer & Co., of this city, who handle Columbia Grafonolas and Columbia records, recently prepared a very attractive window display featuring the "Mickey" records issued by the Columbia Co. This display, which was prepared under the

C. T. Sherer & Co. Feature "Mickey" Records direction of Mrs. R. M. Galbraith, manager of the Grafonola department, was presented while the film of "Mickey" was being shown in Worcester. As a result of this display this department sold a large number of "Mickey" records, and needless to say this attractive and timely window was the center of attraction during the running of this film.

SIG. CARUSO CELEBRATES HIS SILVER JUBILEE IN OPERA

Famous Victor Recording Artist Showered With Honors by the Municipal Authorities of New York, His Associates and Friends—Interesting Addresses Made—Performance Realizes $25,000

Sig. Caruso, the famous Victor artist, who has been singing fifteen years in New York alone, and twenty-five since his Italian opera debut, was honored with a special silver jubilee performance, prepared by General Manager Gatti-Casazza at the Metropolitan Opera House on the night of March 22. The program for the Caruso gala performance included selections from a number of leading operas, engaging many of the notable artists of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

After the operatic feature the curtain was raised and disclosed the entire Metropolitan organization, from directors down, grouped about a table loaded with gifts that were to be given to Caruso. Otto H. Kahn, as chairman of the Metropolitan Opera Co., was the first speaker and told of how much Caruso was admired not only for his voice, for his art, and as a man. He spoke of his high artistic striving, his splendid purpose, his generosity, his kindness and simplicity.

The speaker was followed by a deputation of city authorities headed by the Mayor, and the City Chamberlain, who through Police Commissioner Enright, presented Caruso with a magnificent flag of the City of New York in recognition of his services in war benefits and in singing for the Liberty Loans, services that exceeded in cold cash over $100,000.

General Manager Gatti-Casazza also delivered an address, felicitously couched, in which he extolled Caruso's great art, remarking: "Today on his silver jubilee he can celebrate not only the completion of twenty-five years of his career, but also the arrival at the zenith of his art and his physical powers. He is an artist who ever has in reserve for the public many varied and delightful surprises. We can await them with faith assured."

Caruso seldom makes an extended speech, but with much feeling he replied:

"My heart is beating so hard with the emotion that I feel that I am afraid I cannot even put a few words together. I am sure you will forgive me if I do not make a long speech. I can only thank you and beg you to accept my sincerest and most heartfelt gratitude for tonight and for all the very many kindnesses which you have showered upon me. I assure you that I will never forget this occasion, and will ever cherish in my heart of hearts my affection for my dear American friends. Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!"

The gifts to the tenor included a gold medal from the Metropolitan management, and another from the chiefs of departments on the stage; an eighteen-inch silver loving-cup from the chorus, and from the orchestra men an ornate silver vase, as well as a great Italian vase of silver, two feet high, from the Opera Directors' Board, and a silver fruit dish from the directors of the Victor Talking Machine Co.

His fellow artists in the world-famous company gave Caruso a platinum watch, having seventy-eight little diamonds set around the rim, and ornamented on the back with 140 small stones in three circles about the monogram "E. C.," made up of sixty-one square-cut sapphires. It was presented in a silver box on which were engraved the names of all the members of the Metropolitan's company of stars.

From the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Co. stockholders, the owners of the theatre, there was an illuminated parchment signed on behalf of all the thirty-five families holding boxes in the $7,000,000 Golden Horseshoe by their president, A. D. Juilliard. An engrossed parchment from the Philadelphia Opera Directors was signed by Edward T. Stotesbury as president, and an illuminated scroll from the Brooklyn Academy Directors by President Thomas L. Leeming.

At the close of the proceedings Geraldine

Farrar took hold of the municipal flag presented to Caruso and walking to the front of the stage summed up the situation for the entire assembly by kissing Caruso on the cheek, while she called for "Three cheers for Caruso," to which the tenor responded with "Three cheers for America."

At six-and-forty the famous tenor of Metropolitan opera destinies during two administrations is without a successor, not alone a rival. He has borne his honors and emoluments with boyish bonhomie—a good fellow among companions great and small. His voice is probably unique in the history of the lyric stage. It is not extravagant to say that through his Victor records Caruso has, during his career, sung to greater audiences than have ever gathered within the opera house, for no record collection is ever complete without this artist.

The receipts of the Caruso Silver Jubilee opera evening amounted to $25,000 and were donated to the Opera Pension Fund.

Modern Ideas in Window Display and Store Equipment Pay Big Profits

By Elbert Parsons

"Variety is the spice of life" is an old saw which was never so true as when applied to window and interior arrangement of talking machine stores. Now I am going to put some pointed questions to you. First of all, is that window of yours going to present the same familiar appearance this coming spring and summer that it has for the past six months?

It's a pertinent question, isn't it, particularly when you bear in mind that the leading talking machine companies are spending thousands of dollars in preparing special window displays that are well worth the consideration of dealers who desire to get "out of the rut"—to interest the public in the fact that they are alive and up-to-date—for in presenting something original and striking the men who conduct a store are advertised to the public as progressive.

It is true that talking machine dealers in larger cities and in the principal streets are believers in oft-changed windows and attractively arranged stores, but take some of the smaller towns and the less frequented sections of the cities, and there are dealers who seem to be absolutely indifferent to the value of their windows and to the fact that they have at their disposal displays that might afford evidence of their enterprise if they were disposed to take advantage of them.

You can pass these small stores for months at a time and window displays are unchanged; machines and records are dusty and poorly placed, and there is a general air of indifference to one of the most profitable means of interesting the public in the store.

The time is then ripe for action—for change. You are, unless your attention is called to it, very apt to become "accustomed to things," and it is "bad business"—this "becoming accustomed." The public's taste runs to variety—that is a pretty well established truism by this time. It is your business to increase your business by catering to the tastes of the public. You owe it to yourself and to your business. In fact, you can never hope to be successful beyond a small degree unless you have sufficient psychology in your make-up to realize that the man is judged by his store, and that the infrequently changed, ill-kept window is the most positive proof of a store being run by a man who has poor business tact and ability.

People in your community do not care to deal with such a store; they are apt to go elsewhere—to the man who believes that "the window oft proclaims the man" and spend their money for talking machines and records in pleasing environment.

Change, individuality, variety—call it what you will—always appeal, and the dealer who will succeed is he who realizes this fact not only as applied to his window, but to the entire interior arrangement of his store.

In many cases it might be well to create a general upheaval of store traditions and install modern ideas of equipment throughout—ideas that will make the store a more attractive place for people to trade in; a place where they will visit more frequently, and where they will feel at home.

The war is now over, and we can prepare for a good long stretch of prosperous times, hence hustle things around right away. Let no moss-grown policy prevail.

Fix up your window and your store so that it will stand out as a model—as an example that will be talked about in the neighborhood. Be individual and progressive—particularly so if you are living in a community where merchants are indifferent to the value of window and store arrangement. Remember that it is not the locality that counts as much as the store. The attractive talking machine store can dominate the locality, and every penny spent for frequent window displays and artistic interior arrangements will pay a big profit. It may be said this is an old topic, but the subject is one that is well worthy of being reiterated and emphasized.

TALKER AN AID TO PHOTOGRAPHY

Western Photographer Makes Subject Look Pleasant With Selected Music

A photographer has been discovered in the State of Michigan who is a musician and also a bit of a psychologist. He has found the talking machine a great help in his business of making portraits of his subjects. When a person enters his shop and expresses a desire to have a picture made this enterprising photographer makes a study of this person, trying to read from the facial expression and actions his disposition and characteristics. Then he studies the face and decides just which features should be emphasized in order to get the best results, from an artistic point of view.

But he found it a difficult matter to make these features stand out so that they would make a life-like impression on the plate. At last he hit upon the talking machine as the solution, and now uses music suited to the particular type of individual. To make his subject register joy or animation he plays some lively tune, and if he thinks his subject should appear sad or thoughtful he depends upon such old Southern melodies as "My Old Kentucky Home" to produce the desired result.

He has found this plan very successful, for there is music to express every shade of human emotion and feeling, and with the aid of the talking machine this music is always at hand, ready to do its work.

CAUSES NO DAMAGE BY FIRE

L. M. Huntington, vice-president of Phonographs, Ltd., 861 Broad street, Newark, N. J., advises The World that the fire which visited the building in which they are located last month actually caused no damage by fire, the only loss being by water and smoke which amounted to not more than $1,500. There was no interruption to their business, and everything is running in first-class shape.

POPULARITY OF ALL STAR TRIO

Victor Records Made by This Organization Have Won a Large Measure of Popularity Throughout the Country

Very few organizations introduced to the public during recent years have made such an impressive and immediate success as the All Star Trio, whose Victor records are proving among the most popular numbers in the recent supplements.

This trio consists of J. V. Arden, W. Wadsworth, and G. H. Green. Mr. Arden has been recording music rolls for some time past; Mr. Wadsworth has been on the vaudeville stage for quite a few years, and Mr. Green is recognized as one of our leading xylophone players.

The All Star Trio

These artists with keen perception recognize the value of spending money on their own publicity instead of asking other people to do it. Accordingly, they have arranged to distribute 500 photographs, similar to the one shown herewith, measuring seven by nine inches, and Mr. Arden has personally visited many of the Victor dealers in metropolitan territory and presented them with an autographed picture.

The sale of the Victor records recorded by the All Star Trio has been little short of phenomenal, and their future records will undoubtedly meet with equal success. Incidentally, these artists have also composed several popular selections. Wadsworth and Arden are the composers of two lovely fox-trots, "Lucille" and "Just Blue," and George Green is the composer of "Frivoly," a very successful one-step.

APPROVES THE TRADE ACCEPTANCE

Mandel Mfg. Co., of Chicago, Find an Increasing Interest in This Means of Settling Accounts—How Dealers Would Benefit by Use

In the talking machine as in other industries there is evident an increasing interest in trade acceptances as a means of providing a method of settlement that is deemed most modern and most satisfactory by students of credits and accounts. The Mandel Mfg. Co., of Chicago, in a recent letter states that it has been trying hard the past six months to secure trade acceptances from customers, and is meeting with splendid success. "It is simply," writes J. H. Hupp, of that concern, "a case of thoroughly explaining the advantages of the trade acceptance to the dealers and in most cases they are found to be heartily in accord with the plan."

One dealer located in Washington, D. C., in returning to Mr. Hupp an acceptance closing his account, wrote: "I am glad you adopted this method of doing business. If all wholesalers would insist on prompt settlement of their accounts, the retailer would be made to push his collections and cut out the bad customers and do business with those who pay, and thus make more money. The acceptance is best for the wholesaler, best for the retailer and best for the customer!"

All good awaits the man whose desire to serve is the dominant passion of his life.

The Application of Period Decoration to Talking Machine Cabinets—French Renaissance

To the ordinary mortal, unless he is a close student of history, the Middle French Renaissance period in decorative arts means little or nothing, but to the decorator who has made a close study of this art the phrase indicates the period that marked the final rejection of the Gothic influence in the art and the adoption of the real Italian style and its later developments. This period includes four reigns in France, those of Henri II, Francois II, Charles IX and Henri III, embracing a period of approximately 40 years.

The decorative art in these early days was confined largely to church purposes, and the courts of the period, being closely associated with the churches, naturally followed the same bent in the decoration of castles and palaces. At this period the church was absolutely dominant, and its influence was felt far beyond the confines of the church buildings and the cloisters proper. The Gothic style was accepted as the style of the church, and it required radical action to get away from it and to launch into the real development of decorative art.

Renaissance means, colloquially speaking, "revival," or "renewal," but in the case of the French decorative arts it represented more a genuine advance and a departure from accepted terms—revolutionary in a large measure. It was during the reign of Henri II, from 1549 to 1555, that the departure from the Gothic became first pronounced, although the style was still retained for church purposes. Henri married Catherine de Medici, and the close connection thus made with one of the Florentine families aided materially in the spread of the Italian art principles in France. Italian furniture was imported in great quantities, and the French artists and artisans, taking their cue quickly, soon began following the Italian style, as is evident in the decorations and furnishings of the Louvre, which for the most part belongs to this reign. The tendency of the period, which perhaps gave to it the name of the Renaissance, was toward the increased use of the Greek orders, Doric, Ionic and Corinthian; heavy paneling, rich carvings, the use of marquetry and rich colorings were much in evidence.

decorative period from which present-day designers may copy, it nevertheless possesses numerous virtues and can be adapted for use in talking machine cabinet work most acceptably, giving the cabinets the appearance of stability and a solid richness that is most impressive. The French artists did much to improve the style in their efforts to create something that was neither French, German nor Flemish. They brought the use of the scroll to a high point of development, and it is these scrolls that offer to the modern designer an unusual opportunity for decorating his cabinets acceptably.

In homes where heavy furniture predominates, even though it be of the modern craftsman school, cabinets showing just a touch of the French Renaissance influence should find a ready place. The style will never be as popular as the styles of some of the later French periods, but that fact alone should make for its exclusiveness, and consequently for its desirability. For the cabinet designer who is seeking something new there is nothing that can occupy his

Middle French Renaissance Period Ideas for Cabinets

The Middle French Renaissance was noted for the close adherence to various accepted details. While not perhaps exceedingly popular as a time better than an earnest study of the French Renaissance style and how it might be applied successfully to modern talking machine cabinets.

GREAT FOREIGN DEMAND FOR TALKING MACHINE PRODUCTS

R. C. Ackerman, Manager of Export Department of Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., Tells of Important Trade Connections Made Throughout World—Impressive Evidence of Progress

The peace treaty is not yet signed, but already the export department of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., reports indications of unprecedented activity through its foreign representation in South America, Asia, Australia, England, Scandinavia, etc.

It is to the credit of the talking machine industry that though it was one of the first to place its tremendous plants at the service of Uncle Sam when the call came for co-operation, the moment the opening of the door of peace was in sight the entire industry lost not a moment to get back to pre-war footing. Since the ending of the war the demand for talking machine supplies—motors, needles, and OkeH records—has strained to the limit the producing capacity of the numerous Heineman plants and it was only through the addition of new factories that it could keep pace with the demand.

R. C. Ackerman, manager of the export department, has established connections in the farthest corners of the world and has placed Heineman products upon the catalogs of the largest foreign jobbers. "It will not be long before, in every land where the sun sets, there will be Heineman products to herald their tale of universal success," he remarked.

To-day Richardson, Orr & Co. are covering Australia and New Zealand from their offices in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane and Wellington, showing excellent results in creating new markets for the Heineman products.

On account of the high freight rates, and because the enterprising people of the Antipodean Commonwealths of Australia and New Zealand are very ready to recognize a good idea, the building of phonographs locally is a subject of much interest, and the demands for Heineman literature have come by mail and cable, so that it is only a question of a very short time when "Made in Australia" and "Made in New Zealand" talking machines equipped with Heineman and Meisselbach motors, tone arms and sound boxes will be well known in those countries.

The Asiatic territory is thoroughly canvassed by Muller, Maclean & Co., whose numerous traveling men are constantly on the road reaching out into every nook and corner of the vast Asiatic territories.

From the Heineman agent in Kristiania, Th. Bjerke Gruner, comes the news that this progressive concern has just rented a large building in Kristiania which will be devoted to the display of Heineman products. In addition to this they are also building a modern plant for the manufacture of phonographs.

The Cuban field is thoroughly covered by the Texidor Commercial Co., of Havana, who have sub-agents in thirty-one cities of the Island Republic. Attractive showrooms are being arranged for and already most gratifying results have been attained for OkeH products.

The extensive English interests of the Heineman Co. will be looked after by A. J. Balcombe, of London, whose fast growing clientele is one of the most promising signs in the speedy recuperation of even those countries which had to bear the brunt of the long war's burdens.

Mr. Ackerman, on account of his long experience in export work and familiarity with foreign fields, is particularly qualified to make a big success of Heineman products in the immense markets outside of the United States,—especially in South America, with the language and characteristics of whose peoples he is conversant. "Optimism is the keynote of all of our export correspondence," he remarked upon being questioned about conditions of the world's talking machine and record trade. "And if optimism means anything at all it signals the greatest tide of prosperity. It will swamp the American phonograph industry for it's on its way from all parts of the world."

NEW STORE IN MIAMI, FLA.

MIAMI, FLA., March 20.—A new talking machine store is to be established in this city by the Wolfe Bros. Phonograph Co., which will handle the Pathé line exclusively. Members of the firm R. B. Wolfe and William F. Wolfe, who are joined by John A. Futch, of the John A. Futch Co., are the distributors for the Pathé phonographs.

FEATURING THE ACTUELLE

The Herbert & Huesgen Co., 18 East Forty-second street, New York, is at present concentrating on the sale of the Pathé Actuelle. Charles H. Huesgen, founder of the Photographic Association of America, is enthusiastic over the instrument, and is planning to construct a camouflaged booth in his retail department. The idea of this novel booth is to make the customer unaware that a talking machine is being played for his benefit.

ENLARGING PRESENT QUARTERS

The Piper-McIntire Co., Manchester, N. H., is enlarging its present quarters and is adding five soundproof demonstration rooms in the rear of the store. These rooms will be well fitted up for the comfort of patrons and the display of Victor, Edison and Columbia machines. A complete line of musical instruments and sheet music is also carried.

If you see your customer come in with a smile on his face be sure to play a record which will broaden that smile. It will pay you well.

INTRODUCE WOODEN TONE ARM

Sonora Dealers Furnished With Wooden Tone Arm to Fit All Cabinet Models—Provides An All Wooden Tone Passage

The Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., New York, has just issued an interesting folder featuring an all wooden tone arm that can be used to replace the metal tone arm on any cabinet model Sonora phonograph.

Playing Lateral Cut Records

When the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. introduced its Sonora Invincible II., listing at $500, Playing Hill and Dale Cut Records

it equipped this instrument with a wooden tone arm in order to determine how it would be received by the public. During the past few months the company has been in receipt of letters from Sonora dealers and owners in all parts of the country heartily commending the wooden tone arm. It therefore decided to produce a tone arm of this character which can be used on any of the standard cabinet models. By its use there is provided in Sonora phonographs an all wooden tone passage, that the company believes "is the ideal medium for producing the highest possible degree of tone quality."

SOLDIER BOYS WELCOME ARTISTS

Famous 27th Division Enthusiastic Over Visit of a Number of Artists of the Emerson Co. to Camp Merritt, N. J.—Cheer for the Boys

The boys of the famous 27th Division gave a royal welcome to a number of artists who recently visited Camp Merritt, N. J., under the auspices of the Emerson Phonograph Co. The entertainment lasted three hours and the boys enjoyed every minute of it.

The program opened up with ragtime playing by Miss Bess Ancele. She was followed by one of the best-known baritones in local circles, Irving Kaufmann, formerly a member of the "Avon Comedy Four," who was received with applause that necessitated encore after encore.

Bigio de Luca, popular accordionist, gave several tuneful dances and marches, and he was followed by one of the leading Russian pianists, Alex. Makoffka. The next number on the program was Mme. Maria Grever-Marcell, popular dramatic Spanish soprano, and the boys appreciated her efforts to such an extent that she was obliged to sing six selections.

The next artist to entertain the "boys" was Fred Duff, lyric tenor, and Mr. Duff's talented little niece, Martha Duff, popular juvenile contralto, concluded the program with the singing of parodies and popular songs.

Every member of the 27th in the audience was then treated to a package of cigarettes donated by the Emerson Phonograph Co. and presented by L. D. Rosenfeld, who, as on previous occasions, managed this affair.

TYPEWRITING TO TALKER MUSIC

Commercial Clubs Find That Music Proves Better Aid Than Chewing Gum in Training Typists to Develop Speed in Operation

And now music with your letters! In some schools teaching commercial subjects, and especially typewriting, the talking machine has become a pleasant necessity. Our erstwhile typists sit before their machines and learn the art of the keyboard to the music of the latest one-step. It has been found that music is a great help in learning to typewrite. Regularity and precision are necessary for beginners in typewriting, for each finger must do its work at the proper time in relation to each other finger. It was hard to instil this principle into the minds and fingers of the students in the days when the eternal chewing gum was their only consolation. But at last some one realized that the same music which makes our feet dance so irresistibly would also guide the halting fingers of the pupils, and the new system was introduced which has found much favor among teachers of typewriting.

There seems to be an inherent tendency in our fingers to drum out a tune and keep time with music we like. The talking machine is well suited to make use of this tendency, for the speed of the music may be regulated to the requirements of the moment, and above all it furnishes that unvarying regularity which teachers says is the secret of good typewriting. With the addition of the talking machine in teaching, this subject becomes a pleasure rather than a drudge, a great deal of time is saved because the students learn faster and the work is more thoroughly done because it is done unconsciously. The necessary precision becomes a matter of habit.

REACH PEACE-TIME PRODUCTION

Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. Increase Output—Introducing New Spear Pointed Needle

B. R. Forster, president, and H. W. Acton, secretary of the Brilliantone Steel Needle Co., were recently in the New England territory. They reported increased sales of the Brilliantone steel needle, and general good conditions existing throughout the trade in that section of the country.

The Brilliantone Steel Needle Co. have once more returned to their full peace-time production, and are again producing light tone needles in quantities. Within the past month a new spear pointed needle has been produced by this company for which they are already receiving a strong demand.

Inspiration has value. It's worth a good deal, but it costs something.

WOULD BREAK THE MONOTONY

C. T. Hubbard Tells in System How He Impresses His Statements on Customers

In that interesting department of System entitled "What I Would Do," Clarence T. Hubbard contributes some pointers on what he would do if we were a credit manager which may be of interest to talking machine men. He says:

"I would send out my statements on paper of different color for each month. The change would impress itself upon my customers' attention and would help the bookkeepers in checking up. I would even vary the size, although I would maintain a uniform ruling.

"Snappy little phrases like these would enliven the statements: 'Live wires know where to charge their accounts. That's why we maintain a credit department. Live wires know when to pay their accounts, too. That's why we have you rated in Class 1A. It means you are reckoned a prompt payer.'

"For my long-standing customers I might have statement forms prepared which would show a picture of the credit department, or the pile of statements just before mailing, or other interesting yet practical views with the credit end of my business.

"There is so much sameness about statements that these odd little touches would surely make mine stand out from any pile of mail. The additional expense would undoubtedly be more than offset by the reduction in the list of delinquents, and by the later expense of follow-ups, collector's visits and occasional lawsuits."

Davega Co., who will add this stock to their other sporting goods and Victrola stores in the metropolis.

I. Davega, Jr., Inc., as was previously announced, will confine their activities entirely to the wholesaling of Victor merchandise, and on May 1 will change their name to the Knickerbocker Talking Machine Co.

Work is rapidly being completed on their new quarters at 138 to 140 West One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, which will probably be ready for occupancy by May 1. This new company has planned to institute a number of departments rendering special services to the Victor retailer.

TO MARKET NEW PHONOGRAPH

W. H. Bennington, of Cleveland, Ohio, is organizing a company which will immediately embark in the manufacture of a new line of talking machines. This product will have two distinguishing features, one a special record holder making for convenience in filing records, and a system for changing records on the turntable without opening or closing the lid.

OCCUPY LARGER QUARTERS

The Electric Phonograph Corporation, formerly at 29 West Thirty-fourth street, have acquired an entire floor at 235-237-239 West Twenty-third street and have moved their offices to that address. In addition to the offices they will open well-equipped recording laboratories at that address in New York.

MICA IN GUATEMALA

The existence of mica, obtainable in very large sheets, has been known in Guatemala for several years, and efforts will be made to exploit the deposits, according to an official report from that country.

HOW LACEY MAKES GOOD

Energy and Originality Bring Deserved Reward to Edison Dealer in Peoria

William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., had occasion to write to Jimmy Lacey, Edison dealer of Peoria, recently, and in his letter he suggested that Mr. Lacey give some of the reasons why he has been so successful. In reply Mr. Lacey wrote: "Recently the executive secretary of our Association of Commerce—a man known for his aggressiveness—was sitting in the store waiting for his wife, who was attending a lecture on art in our recital hall. 'Jimmy,' he said, 'I've watched with unusual in-

That dealer was no more surprised at the new viewpoints I brought him than was I at his lack of originality in store methods.

"Belief in your product, in the gospel of music,

One of Mr. Lacey's Stunts Is to Give Phonograph Concerts for School Children

terest the building up of your business in Peoria, and while I'm in the dark as to your sales methods, I am aware of one big fact: You have made this store the most popular shop in town. Were I in the market to-day for a phonograph I'd just naturally come right over here and buy.'

"An Edison dealer, who is reasonably successful, came to visit us the other day. I got out my 'bag of tricks' and began to work on him. There followed such exclamations as, 'Where did you get that idea?' 'Who told you that?' 'I never thought to say it that way.'

an overwhelming desire to serve, imagination, a willingness to work, these are some of the reasons why. Also, to my mind, you are an unworthy representative of the New Edison if you insist upon making your establishment a phonograph sandwich—losing sight of the meat midst so many crusts. You must specialize.

"Since our business in 1918 doubled the 1917 business with less than $1,000 additional expense and since the sales of December, 1918, exceeded the entire first year's sales, we must be employing safe and sane methods, don't you think?"

ON THE BOWERY: THE BOWERY!

Famous New York Street Now Proves Center For Talking Machine Shops

The Bowery, renowned of old for many things, is now attracting notice in the trade for its increased business in talking machines. The music stores are full of machines of different models and makes, not the small machines, but the more pretentious ones selling for $100 and up. Dealers say that many people whom they never thought would be prospects are buying talking machines and records on a large scale. The percentage of cash sales is unusually large, for the people have the money and want to spend it for music—good music. They look upon their purchase of a talking machine as an investment, dividends to be paid in enjoyment, and want the best there is to be had. They feel now that they can afford to put some money into things that make life more agreeable, for the period of enforced saving and self-denial is over.

Doubtless the return of the soldier boys has much to do with the increased demand for talking machines and records, for a noticeable number of soldiers are to be found in the shops listening to different pieces, and they always go out with a bundle under their arm. In one store three soldiers were grouped around a machine which was playing a well-known popular song, and so intently were they listening to the words that they forgot to stop the machine at the end. Luckily the automatic stop prevented any mishap. Each of these boys left the store with that record in his proud possession.

Amid the rattle and roar of the "L" trains, the clatter of wagons and carts, the babble of voices and hucksters' cries, came from open doorways and windows here and there the music of the talking machine. Evidently everyone was getting the maximum amount of enjoyment out of life.

F. L. Favor has opened a Pathé shop at 426 Bleecker street, Utica, N. Y. Good sales of the Pathé machine and records are reported from that city.

NEW POST FOR J. A. SIEBER

Joins Dealer Service Department of Columbia Co. Following Discharge From Navy

H. L. Tuers, manager of the dealer service department of the Columbia Graphophone Co., New York, announced recently the appointment of Jack A. Sieber as a member of this department's staff. Mr. Sieber, who has just been discharged from the U. S. Navy, has been identified with the Columbia association for several years, having previously been associated with the local wholesale branch. His experience has also included several years of retail selling, and he is therefore well qualified to assist Mr. Tuers in the dealer service department.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Tuers and his staff, which includes Courtland Shaw and Mr. Sieber, have all had practical retail selling experience, and are therefore fully conversant with the problems that confront the Columbia dealer. This experience has been a very important factor in the signal success achieved by the Columbia dealer service department.

DOING BUDDIES A FAVOR BY SELLING THEM GOOD MUSIC

Talking Machine Man Who Helped Lick the Kaiser Has the Right Dope When It Comes to Doing Business With the Members of His Former Outfit—They Need Music

Jim Blake, who had left his talking machine store in charge of his wife in order to join Uncle Sam's army and show the Kaiser and Hindenburg that they had added to their troubles by causing him to go after their scalps, came back with his division, was mustered out, carried home his tin hat and his gas mask, sent friend wife back to the kitchen and started out to make up for the time he had lost. It took a little time to get a line on things, but Jim went to it and thought hard. Finally one day as he sat just inside the store door waiting for some new customers and singing softly to himself the battle hymn of the doughboy:

"Mademoiselle from Armentières
Parlez vous
Mademoiselle from Armentières
Parlez vous
Mademoiselle from Armentières
Hasn't been kissed in forty years,
Pinky, Pinky, Parlez vous."

He saw passing the store one of his buddies who had been with the same regiment and who had been mustered out at the same time. "Where do we go from here?" yells Jim. "Going home to my new wife," says buddy. "Going to play those new records on the new talking machine to-night?" says Jim. "Ain't got no new records, because I ain't got no new talking machine," says buddy. "Got to fix that up right away," says Jim. "Come here till I sell you one."

Buddy stalled, but Jim used a little of the push that busted the Hindenburg line, got his friend into the store and said: "Listen, buddy, you have got to have one of these for the wife. You ought to buy one from sentiment if from nothing else. Remember the nights in the Y. M. C. A. and K. of C. huts in Frogland, with Heinie spreading shrapnel and gas all over the place and us whiling away the hours of 'rest' listening to the old reliable talking machine grinding out time and time again music on records that had seen better days? Maybe the reason we are not with the shell-shocked is because that much-abused music took our minds off our troubles. You came all the way through without a scar, buddy. Isn't it worth a few bucks just to show you appreciate one of the reasons?" Buddy surrenders and finally falls for the talk, a machine is delivered at so much down and some more to come.

"It's easy," says Jim to himself, after he rang up the first payment, "and I'm doing the boys a favor when I am making them see things in the right light." He scouts around till he gets a look at the old regimental lists and then goes around the neighborhood renewing acquaintances. About 50 per cent. of the boys had got so tired of the French dames that they tied up with their own girls about as soon as the boat had touched the dock. They had homes of their own, and just about found out that even talks about the war won't serve to pass every evening pleasantly when Jim blew in with his talking machine proposition. On the level it was so easy that it was almost a crime, and in 90 per cent. of the cases they didn't have to touch the $60 bonus from the Government to buy the machine, either. "I didn't even have to show them a Croix de Guerre to make them come across," said Jim. "Just gave them the straight-from-the-shoulder stuff, and when they found out I was doing business at the old stand any friend who has gone any place else since for a machine or some records has been flirting with the hospital so desperately that it was painful.

"I'm not doing business for patriotism," says Jim, "but when I can do my buddies a favor and at the same time make a few bucks on the side for myself I'm doing a little something for my country. The music of these machines is going to stop many a family squabble before it starts. If friend wife wants to get gabby 'Over There' played with the loud needle is not only going to drown her voice, but make her think the second time before she crowns friend husband with the skillet. It was a sweet little war, but to get back to real business I'm sorry the army was not larger."

ESTABLISHING NEW DISTRIBUTORS

C. E. Ward Co. Feel That New System Will Insure Better Service for Dealers

The C. E. Ward Co., New London, O., well known as manufacturers of khaki moving covers for talking machines, are rapidly establishing a chain of distributors throughout the country for their products with a view of providing better delivery and service for the dealers. The jobbers will be in a position to fill dealers' orders from local stocks promptly and thus do away with the waiting for shipments from the factory.

NEW JONES-MOTROLA JOBBERS

Harry E. Merriam, general mechanic and salesman connected with Jones-Motrola, Inc., recently spent some time in the South convalescing from an attack of mastoiditis. While there he called on several members of the trade and succeeded in adding the Florida Talking Machine Co. to the list of those firms distributing the Jones-Motrola. Other distributors added during the last month included the National Piano Co., of Baltimore, and the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., of Minneapolis, Minn. Expansion is the order of the day with this concern.

THE
OF THE SEMI-PERMANENT NEEDLE QUESTION

Not alone content with mere leadership in the field of Semi-Permanent Needles for Playing Lateral Cut Records, the founders of the Vallorbes Semi-Permanent Needle in their strife for final and complete Perfection—Perfection that is unassailable—have virtually re-created the Vallorbes Semi-Permanent Needle, have placed it so far above the two-piece (point insert) type of Needle as to render comparison as ridiculous as it would be to compare a wagon with an automobile. Parts marked A, B, and C show clearly the improved Points of superiority.

“A”

Correctly rounded or chamfered Point corners, most others are sheared off square, with resultant sharp and burred corners that damage Record Groves.

“B”

Point Length increased nearly double, insuring longer playing Life, eliminating buzzy vibrations.

“C”

Vallorbes Semi-Permanent Needles are made of alloy Metals that are so tough as to render all attempts to turn the Metal on Lathes quite futile, the delicate Points must therefore be ground. This one piece type of construction throughout, from Point extending to fillet and thence into the shank of Needle, provides the required strength and minimizes breakage and bending of Points, so common to other types.

These improvements being accomplished only at the expense of production with its corresponding increase in cost—Vallorbes Semi-Permanent Needles for playing Lateral Cut or Steel Needle Type of Records are now priced to sell for 25 cents per Card of Five. They are supplied in Loud, Medium and Soft Tone, in cartons containing 100 Cards. Usual dealers discounts.

THE TRADE IN BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

JOHN H. WILSON, MANAGER, 324 WASHINGTON STREET, BOSTON, MASS.

BOSTON, MASS., April 1.—There has been a rapid development of healthy business this past month, and there is a better feeling among the dealers, who now are able to see farther ahead than was possible a few months ago, when the clouds of war only allowed them to see through a glass darkly. Goods are coming along with greater regularity and in larger consignment, and it is no longer necessary for jobbers to make trips over to the factories in order to try and pacify the trade; nor does one hear so much of the wires urging haste in the shipment of goods. In the New England field there is evidence on every hand of good business, and the best evidence as testifying to the genuine faith that the trade possesses in the future is seen in the many extensive preparations that are being made to take care of the business.

The Boston field has witnessed a number of important changes this past month; not the least are two removals, which are mentioned more in detail further along in this letter. In brief, the trade has furnished some good news in several departments of the phonograph business.

Plans are maturing locally to meet the requirements of the fifth Liberty Loan scheduled for the latter part of the month. The trade did itself proud in all of the previous loans, and it is confidently expected to make as good a showing this time. Probably the same energetic members of the business who pushed the other loans to success, insofar as the phonograph end is concerned, will take hold this time. May success attend their efforts.

Eastern Co. Moves Wholesale Quarters

The Eastern Talking Machine Co., with the energetic George Dodge as the motive power behind the local business, has moved its wholesale headquarters from Oxford street to a more central location, 85 Essex street, where it occupies practically the entire third floor. Mr. Dodge at the same time has moved his own private offices from the Tremont street quarters to Essex street. As the large area is practically on three streets there is no scarcity of good light. Mr. Dodge has his desk in one corner, and close by are the desks of Messrs. Fitzgerald and Shoemaker, the new associate whose advent in the city is referred to in more detail under a separate head. Along the front are the executive offices, while most of the rear portion of the floor is given over to stock purposes. The space will all be used to advantage, as it is Mr. Dodge's purpose to keep the largest stock always on hand, so that there shall be no delay in supplying all demands for Victor goods which the trade may make.

Billy Fitzgerald Back at Desk

Everybody has been glad to welcome back Billy Fitzgerald after a several weeks' illness from which he had a surprising recovery. Mr. Fitzgerald had an attack of the influenza, which subsequently developed into bronchitis, and to look at him one can believe he lost more than twelve pounds. While confined to his home he received all sorts of kindly expressions of sympathy from his many friends, for there is no one in the talking machine trade who is better liked than he. "A white man" is one of the familiar phrases that one hears when "Fitzzy's" name is mentioned. In the new quarters of the Eastern Talking Machine Co., in Essex street, Mr. Fitzgerald is now sales manager, and as such is not confining himself to the office, but is traveling about through the local field.

Brunswick Phonograph Progress

The Brunswick proposition continues to push ahead under the able guidance of Kraft, Bates & Spencer, in Boylston street. Harry L. Spencer is giving much of his personal attention to the proposition, while Fred H. Walter, who associated himself with Mr. Spencer upon getting out of service, is spending his time among the out-of-town dealers.

Edison in Unique Window Display

An eighteenth century English model Edison machine has an unusual setting in the window of the C. C. Harvey Co., which house is both Edison and Victor headquarters. The display surrounding this handsome instrument is suggestive of a spring garden, with all kinds of early flowers springing from the ground, clinging to the walls and depending from the ceiling. In the center is a little fountain. The Harvey Co. is making a big reputation for its attractive window displays.

Takes on the Pathé Line

One of the latest concerns to take on the Pathé line is the store of M. L. Howard, in Massachusetts avenue, near Central square, Cambridge, scarcely more than a ten minutes' ride from Tremont street through the Cambridge tunnel. Mr. Howard has a handsome window display of the Pathé goods.

Emerson New England in New Home

The Emerson New England, of which Oscar W. Ray is the guiding hand, has made a radical departure in moving away from the Little Building to 68 Essex street, where it is now occupying an area in excess of 3,000 square feet on the third floor. As the location is at the corner of Chauncy street, there are windows on two sides, thus insuring plenty of daylight. Despite the fact that additional rooms were about to be occupied in the Little Building, Manager Ray found that with the rapid growth of his interests there still was to be a cramped condition, and the new location proved to be exactly what he needed. The large floor area has been divided off into suitable quarters for the sales department, the accounting department, the shipping department, and there is ample space for supplies and all the other various needs of the business. There is adequate and convenient elevator service for goods on the Chauncy street side. The move was made prior to the first of the month, and it is taking only a few days to get things into complete running order. Business in the Emerson line and the other allied activities is moving along at a rapid rate.

Iver Johnson Co. as Steger Jobbers

Roy R. Hinman, sales manager of the Steger phonograph, was in town the latter part of March, having come here to perfect the plans for placing the Steger line with the Iver Johnson Co., whose phonograph department is ably managed by A. W. Chamberlain. Henceforth the Iver Johnson Co. will be jobbers for New England for this machine, which is being pushed in this territory by R. H. Monroe. The Iver Johnson house has been handling phonographs for a number of years, and its department on an upper floor of its large building at the corner of Washington street and Cornhill has had to be enlarged a number of times to meet the demands of the growing business.

The Iver Johnson Co. has been carefully studying the merits of the Steger for some time, and the fact that at the factory in Chicago all the parts are manufactured, so that the company does not have to go outside for any of them, has been a great factor in commending this line. As soon as the house decided to handle the Steger line it wired a large order, perhaps one of the largest initial orders ever placed in this city for any line of machines. A part of this order is now on the way East, and should reach here in a few days.

Attend Columbia Managers' Meeting

Fred E. Mann, manager of the Columbia, and J. F. Carr and Roy F. Ott, both of Mr. Mann's staff, were all over at the managers' meeting in New York Friday, March 14. Mr. Carr stopped off at the factory at Bridgeport, Conn., on the way home, and he says he was greatly impressed with the intense degree of human interest he found among the workers in all departments. Mr. Carr's visit proved a highly instructive one to him.

Robert E. Rae a Visitor

Robert E. Rae, of the general sales department of the Columbia Co. in New York, was a Boston visitor toward the latter part of the month. He spent several days here at the local Columbia quarters.

Symphony Talking Machine Shop Opens

The Symphony Talking Machine Shop at 54 Bromfield street was opened for business the middle of March. This is a very central location, and the store is handsomely fitted up with booths, all done in white. The president of the company is Charles Soddeck, who, through a long association with another phonograph house, is thoroughly familiar with the business. Associated with him is Harry Sperber, a merchant, located in School street. The Symphony Talking Machine Shop carries an exclusive line of Columbia goods. On the opening day the patrons of the store were presented with souvenirs.

Sonora Sales Manager in Town

Frank J. Coupe, manager of sales and advertising for the Sonora Co., was a Boston visitor the latter part of the month, and made his headquarters while here at the offices of the Electric and Supply Equipment Co. Manager Richard Nelson was away a good part of the month assisting his brother in the management of

"Come Along," which played three performances each in Hartford, Conn., and Albany, N. Y., the last week of the month. This is the musical comedy the music for which was written by J. C. Nelson, Manager Nelson's brother, of which mention was made last month. Another local caller was J. O. Morris, president of the Electric and Supply Equipment Co. The business of this company here, by the bye, has been very good.

Jerome Proctor Opens New Shop

Jerome Proctor, of Dorchester, is one of the latest ones to enter the talking machine business and has opened an exclusively Columbia shop at 894 Dorchester avenue, where he will keep a full line of goods.

Fred Silliman Plans Vacation

Manager Fred H. Silliman, of the Pardee-Ellenberger Co., Inc., says he is finding it difficult to meet the demands for machines; that all through the New England field orders are coming in from dealers very fast. He reports that the Edison factory is way behind in shipping consignments. Manager Silliman is looking forward eagerly to the approach of summer, for he says that not having had a real vacation for several years he proposes giving himself a good one this year.

Arthur H. Cushman Visits the Hub

Arthur H. Cushman, president of the Emerson New England, was over in Boston the latter part of the month, and for three days he was entertained by Oscar Ray, of the local quarters.

Join Vocalion Forces

Two additional salesmen are now in the employ of the Vocalion at its Boylston street headquarters. They are J. J. Hart, who lately was with the phonograph department of the Magrane Houston Co., and R. M. Alden, lately returned from service, where he was in the navy engaged in convoy work. Manager Hindley spent the last week of the month in New York trying to get a supply of goods. The Vocalion staff is interested in the forthcoming recital in Symphony Hall of Rosa Raisa, the dramatic soprano, member of the Chicago Opera Co., who makes records for the Vocalion. Since it was announced that Miss Raisa was coming to Boston there has been quite a call for her reproductions by those who own Vocalions.

Utilizes Window as Trade Developer

Mrs. Grace Drysdale is making quite a reputation in the development of the children's work as a factor in the Columbia business. She has lately arranged a most attractive window in the Columbia shop of H. W. Berry Co., Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge. The department at this house is in charge of Mrs. Alice Graves.

SHOEMAKER NOW GENERAL MANAGER

New Member of Eastern Talking Machine Co.
Staff Long Associated With Victor Interests

BOSTON, MASS., April 1.—Herbert Shoemaker, referred to briefly last month as having become associated with the Eastern Talking Machine Co., holds the post of general manager, and through close attention for a long time to the

Herbert Shoemaker

Victor interests is especially well qualified to fill so responsible a position. Lately, that is within the past year or more, Mr. Shoemaker was in the service of his country, but before that he was manager of the wholesale department of Sherman, Clay & Co., at Portland, Ore. He entered the service at the outbreak of the war as a second-class seaman and was stationed at Seattle, Wash., for three weeks. He then came East, and was at the Radio School in Cambridge. He was made an ensign, and went to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he was fortunate enough to get a commission in the regular navy. He was assigned to the battleship "Georgia," on which he was signal officer for six months. From this branch of the service he was detached December 10, after making two conveying trips across the Atlantic.

Mr. Shoemaker received his discharge December 26 and returned to the employ of the Victor Co. A few days later he rejoined the traveling staff and was assigned to the Ohio territory, but retired from this field a few weeks ago to join Manager George Dodge's staff at the Eastern Talking Machine Co. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

only now he is at the wholesale department in Essex street. McGuire, while in the service, from which he is now honorably discharged, was with the United States Coast Guard No. 25, and for fifteen months was stationed in Boston Harbor.

R. T. Sylvester Is Buying

Roy T. Sylvester, manager of the Edison and Victor departments of Chickering & Sons, is the happy father of a seven-pound boy, who came into the world at Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester's home in Everett the middle of March. The young man has been named Royal Harwood Sylvester.

Record Artists Visit Columbia Dealers

Mme. Petrova and the vaudeville team of Van and Schenck, who were appearing at Keith's Theatre the latter week of March, visited around among the Columbia dealers, as they all make records for this company. They were escorted around by J. F. Carr, of the Columbia wholesale quarters.

Still Complain of Stock Shortage

Manager Winkelman, of the Victor department of the Oliver Ditson Co., is experiencing the same trouble that confronts many other Victor distributors, a scarcity of goods. A glance at the handsome warerooms shows fewer machines than the writer recalls ever before having seen there. Letters continue to be received by Manager Winkelman and his associates from Joseph Carlson, who is now at St. Mihiel, France, and longing to get back home.

John Alsen Back From the Front

John Alsen, manager of the Edison department of the George Lincoln Parker establishment, has arrived in this country after his long experience with the One Hundred and First Engineers in France. He reached New York a few days ago on the "Seattle," and is now at Camp Devens, Ayer, where he expects to receive his honorable discharge in a few days.

Install Many Demonstration Booths

Frank B. Curry, of 19 Wareham street, has become quite a big factor in the trade within the last few months by reason of the excellence of his workmanship in the construction of demonstration booths which he has installed in a number of local phonograph establishments.

Timothy Hayes Back With Kahn

Timothy Hayes, formerly with the Columbia wholesale department and later with Henry Kahn's Columbia graphophone shop at 564 Washington street, has returned from the service of his country, having been with the aviation unit. He is again with the Kahn interests.

Ainslie After Pathé Goods

Manager R. O. Ainslie was over in New York for a few days toward the middle of March in an endeavor to get a large supply of Pathé goods. He reports that many dealers are becoming interested in this line. During the automobile week in Boston the window of the Hallet & Davis Co. made a most catchy display of Pathé machines and records.

George W. Lyle, of the Pathé, came over to Boston the latter part of March to look over the local field and to confer with Manager Ainslie. His visit here was a short one.

Represents Peerless Album Co.

L. W. Hough, who represents the Geo. A. Long Cabinet Co. in this territory, has been appointed New England representative for the Peerless Album Co. He has built up a very large following for the products of the Geo. A. Long Co., and he states that he is now enjoying the largest cabinet trade in history. He has opened up many new accounts for this company, and expects to be equally successful with the products of the Peerless Album Co. Mr. Hough is well known in the local trade, and he is giving his cabinet clientele excellent service in filling their requirements.

Meeting With Much Success

Both R. Silverman and George Rosen, operating under the name of the Phonograph Supply Co. of New England, are meeting with marked success at their headquarters, 28 School street. They make a specialty of motor renovation, and they are getting a large share of repair work.

DEALERS PLAN FOR GREAT EXPANSION IN INDIANAPOLIS

Stores Expanding Departments or Installing New Equipment—Taylor Carpet Co.'s New Record System—Columbia Dealers Meet—Demand for Machines and Records Still Exceeds Supply

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 4.—The need for more space is causing several of the local talking machine shops and departments to be considering plans for expansion. The Pearson Piano Co. has under way plans for enlarging the space devoted to its talking machine department which will probably occupy the entire first floor of the store under the proposed arrangement. Mrs. J. Ellison Fish has been in charge of the department since H. E. Whitman resigned to take over the new Indianapolis talking machine store, The Circle Talking Machine Shop.

The talking machine department of the Baldwin Piano Co., C. P. Herdman manager, has developed such a volume of business that plans are being made to devote more space to it.

The Grafonola Shops, Inc., which recently took over the Columbia retail store, and of which W. G. Wilson is manager, will likely make changes in the near future. Mr. Wilson proposes to make his shop more attractive to men. He believes that there is no reason why the men should not be buying as many, and even more, records than the women.

The Circle Talking Machine Shop, which handles Victor machines and records exclusively, is one of the best arranged and equipped shops in the city. The woodwork is finished in gray and the entire color scheme is particularly attractive. H. E. Whitman, proprietor of the shop, has taken advantage of his floor space effectively. The large display window shows off the front of the store to advantage. Near the front is a counter for the record customers, back of which stands the drawer cases containing the records which are easily accessible and are kept in clean, perfect condition.

Three of the five booths are used for demonstrating records. These are large enough to comfortably seat two persons. Mr. Whitman says that his experience in handling records has taught him that large booths in which five or six women can get in are not conducive to sales, as the women often become more interested in their own conversation than they do in the records, and that he purposely designed the small type of booth. There are two larger booths for the demonstrations of machines.

The opening of the shop was marked by a large number of visitors and customers. Mr. Whitman says that the shop in its first week did the amount of business he had figured on doing the first month.

In the talking machine department of the Taylor Carpet Co., of which Miss Minnie Springer is manager, a seal system for Victor records has been adopted. As the records are received in the store they are tested and the envelope container is sealed with a paper seal which must be broken to remove the record. Miss Springer says that the customers have displayed great interest in this system and it is a powerful argument against sending records out on approval. Taylor's department does not do this. Printed leaflets explaining the reason for the sealed records are given to the record customers. They explain that Taylor's keep two distinct stocks of records—one for sale and the other for demonstrations.

The local wholesale office of the Columbia Co. was visited by a number of prominent Columbia men during the last few weeks. George W. Hopkins, general sales manager, paid his first visit to the new quarters of the wholesale office. He told Ben Brown, manager, that he was very much pleased with the new location.

F. K. Pennington, assistant sales manager, visited Indianapolis and made trips to Columbia stores near here. C. K. Woodbridge, Dictaphone sales manager; Marion Dorian, chief auditor, and O. F. Benz were the other visitors.

The monthly meeting of Columbia dealers was held at the Lincoln Hotel Tuesday night following a luncheon. W. G. Wilson, manager of the Grafonola Shops store, and George L. Schuetz, of the Columbia Co., spoke on Columbia business. Frank Kellar, manager of the Wayne-Leeson store of Tipton, Ind., started a round table discussion on the best methods of selling Columbia machines and records, in which all the dealers participated. There were a number of out-of-town dealers present.

Mr. Brown announced this district's quota of "The Lure of Music" had been sold to the dealers and several dealers reported their customers had shown an interest in the book. The Carlin Music Co., of Indianapolis, has made a strong showing in the sale of the book.

The E. L. Lennox Piano Co. has increased its Columbia machine and record business in its new location.

Business at the Edison Shop, of which A. H. Snyder is manager, continues to keep up the good record. H. G. Parker, who was with the marines, has returned as a salesman to the Edison shop. J. Elliott, who was in the army, has also taken a position as salesman there.

James Stewart, of the Stewart Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, reports the demand for Victor machines and records continues to increase and he expects to see the Victor dealers, in spite of the present shortage, round out the biggest year they ever had.

R. B. Goldsberry, manager of the talking machine department of the Mooney-Mueller-Ward Co., Pathé distributors, is now on the road looking after the Pathé dealers in this territory. A. M. Dorsey has been added to the department as an assistant to Mr. Goldsberry and Miss Black has charge of the demonstrations. The company has been waging a vigorous newspaper advertising campaign and is going after the Pathé business.

The Pathé Shop, E. R. Eskew manager, is doing a nice business and Mr. Eskew is working to put the Pathé record business up to the point where his shop will be known as one of the leading record headquarters in the State.

The Kipp Phonograph Co., Walter E. Kipp president, reports a great business in sight for the Edison machines and records.

The Brunswick talking machine business was never better. George Standke, manager of the Brunswick Shop, says he is selling the Brunswick machines as fast as he gets them.

SPRING OUTLOOK PROPITIOUS IN SAN FRANCISCO TRADE

Both City and Country Dealers Make Cheerful Reports—Betterment in Shipments—Death of A. R. Pommer Regretted—Talking Machine Departments Being Enlarged—Many New Agencies

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., March 28.—Business in machines and records has held up well during March, and most firms report plentiful supplies on hand, with the exception of Victor goods. The spring outlook is propitious, both in the cities and in the country districts. Agencies in remote sections seem to be doing unusually well in proportion to the population. The talking machine business is expanding steadily on the Pacific Coast, and it sometimes seems that the field must be overworked, yet failures reported in the trade are very rare. Talking machines and records are largely handled as side lines in small places, and it is interesting to note that not a few concerns which now deal exclusively in talking machine goods began by carrying them as a side line.

Enlarge Talking Machine Department

The Wiley B. Allen Co., of San Francisco, is to greatly enlarge its talking machine department in the near future. The rear of the main floor piano salesroom will be segregated and remodeled to conform with the main talking machine room, which it adjoins. The record department will be moved from the basement to the main floor, and numerous other changes made to facilitate the handling of business in a more convenient manner than at present. Mr. Corcoran, manager of the talking machine department, in commenting on business tendencies of the day, remarked: "There is more need than ever to be able to give prompt service in the talking machine department; people want quick service, as a rule, and there are not nearly so many customers as formerly who care to hear a record before buying. They have heard the music somewhere, and, knowing how satisfactory the standard records are from previous experience, they buy without waiting for a demonstration. Some listen to only a few bars of the music and then buy. There remain, of course, the leisurely buyers, mostly women, who expect a free concert of the latest productions as a bonus for buying one or two records. We must please all classes of customers."

Record Albums Proving Popular

Walter S. Gray has again had to take more space in the Chronicle Building in order to accommodate his steadily growing business in needles and other talking machine accessories. Two new rooms for stock and the delivery department have been added, and shortly a loft will be needed, as Mr. Gray is to carry supplies in much larger quantities than heretofore in order to be able to afford the most prompt service to the trade. A new addition to Mr. Gray's business is the Multiplex fixture line. In reference to record albums Mr. Gray says: "The album is the logical thing for a record library, and I am glad to report that the people are coming around to this view. The latest record albums leave nothing to be desired in the way of convenience and serviceability. With the vogue for expensive classical records it is certainly very foolish to risk damage to the records by not having a proper place to keep them. Also many private record libraries have grown so large that albums are necessary in order that they may be adequately indexed."

Remick Takes Columbia Agency

One of the liveliest musical concerns on Market street is the song shop of Jerome H. Remick & Co., and so it is not surprising to hear that the concern has outgrown its present quarters. A lease has been signed for space in the rear of the present store in order that the shop may be extended through to Eddy street. With entrances on both Market and Eddy streets, in one of the busiest sections of the downtown district, the company certainly will have a real chance to grow. But what is of special interest is the fact that the Remick Co. is going into the talking machine business on a life-sized scale. They have taken the Columbia agency and will carry the full library of records and a big line of machines. Ben Adkins, the manager of the shop, has included six record demonstration rooms in the plans for remodeling the enlarged store, and he says they are going after the talking machine trade with a hop, skip and a jump. The store will be finished in silver oak and arranged for effective display of stock and convenience in merchandising.

Attractive Home for Schmidt Music Co.

The new home of the Schmidt Music Co. at Anaheim is a model of tasteful attractiveness and business efficiency. The store is modern in every respect, and the company is better prepared than ever to live up to the house slogan: "Everything in Music, Nothing But Music." An assortment of 3,500 records is carried in the racks at all times.

Death of A. R. Pommer a Great Loss

The death of A. R. Pommer, one of the best known talking machine men on the Coast, comes as a shock to the trade. Mr. Pommer died on March 1 after an operation for appendicitis. For years he held the California jobbing agencies for Edison goods, which business was conducted under the name of the Pacific Phonograph Co. This concern dropped out of the field a few years ago, but Mr. Pommer had since maintained offices for his export business. He started in the music business with his father, who was at one time the Steinway representative at Sacramento. Mr. Pommer left an estate of over half a million dollars. He is survived by a widow and young son.

Three New Agencies

Omer N. Kruschke, manager of the Western Phonograph Co., has returned from a successful business trip in the southern part of the State. He established a new Pathé agency in Fresno, Cal.

New Columbia agencies reported are C. Lanza-fane, of Pittsburgh, Cal., and the Kimball-Upson Co., a well-known sporting goods house of Sacramento.

Florin Reports Fine Prospects

Mr. Florin, one of the firm of Florin Bros., Fall River, Cal., was in San Francisco on a buying trip this month. He reports fine prospects for the talking machine business in Shasta County. What the residents lack in numbers they make up in enthusiasm.

Personal News of Interest

The record department of the John Breuner Co., of Oakland, is now in charge of Miss Carroll, formerly with the Jennings Co., of Portland, Ore.

One of the Easterners to call on the trade in the past month is Mr. Patterson, of Harper & Bros., who is showing the "Bubble Book."

A change has taken place in the management of the Byron Mauzy talking machine department. G. S. McManus now has charge of the records section. His assistants are Misses Nonnemann and House. Mr. McManus has given the library a thorough overhauling and effected several decided improvements which will insure more convenient service.

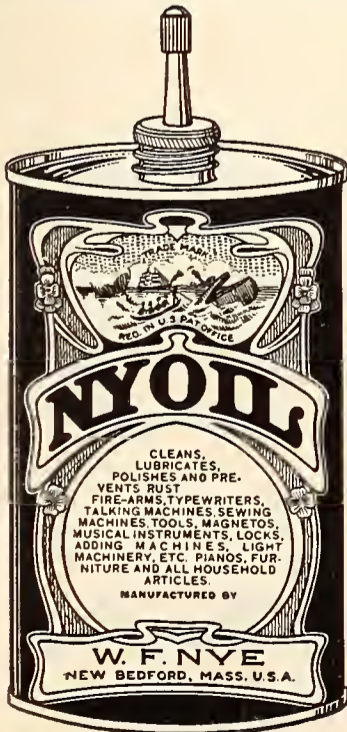

Andrew G. McCarthy, of Sherman, Clay & Co., has left for Los Angeles on a business trip in connection with the wholesale Victor business in the Southland.

SOUTH BEND STORE ENLARGED

The C. W. Copp Music Store, South Bend, Ind., is making extensive alterations and improvements in its present quarters, and new rooms for exhibition and demonstration of talking machines and records are being added.

One of the progressive enterprises in the Arcade in Webster, Mass., is the exclusive Columbia shop operated by John C. Burns. It is a most convenient center, is most artistically furnished and carries a large line of both machines and records.

TUNING THE TALKING MACHINE

Pointers of Interest and Value to Talking Machine Dealer Propounded by O. Klein, of Chicago, Who Submits Them to The World

Many valuable minutes are being wasted daily by repair men in testing the speed of talking machines by the old method of placing a paper underneath the record and counting the revolutions per minute. This is naturally a weary task, especially where a repair man has to go over the entire stock of a talking machine store.

It is of the utmost importance that the speed of the talking machine be correct in order to properly reproduce the music on the record, as a slight variation in pitch often causes the reproduction to become unnatural. In fact, in ten cases out of fifteen where you hear a talking machine that produces "canned music" it is due to the fact that the machine is running too fast.

The only absolutely authentic way of testing the speed of a talking machine is to "tune" it. This may be accomplished very easily by using a pitch pipe, piano or other musical instrument.

When the selection on a record is known to be played in a certain key, the position of the first note on that record can easily be determined. Whatever this note is, it should correspond in tone with the same note on the piano or instrument used. For instance, take Victor Record No. 74336, Cavatine, violin solo, the first note on which is A.

Put this record on your talking machine and play the first note only. Then compare that tone with the A on the piano. If the first tone of the record corresponds with the A on the piano, the speed of the talking machine is correct. If they differ, the speed of the machine must be adjusted until the right pitch is obtained.

Those who may not be able to determine the key in which certain pieces are written or played will find the following Victor records well suitable for "tuning" purposes. These records, by the way, are very fine violin selections:

No. 74336, first note of which is A.
No. 74186, first note of which is E.
No. 64390, first note of which is E.

Mr. Horning has been four years in the employ of the Victor Co., and has been making his headquarters in Boston for about six months, in which time he has made many friends. He is a native of Pennsylvania, and was educated at

SAUL BIRNS ENJOYS BIG TRADE

Carries Four Lines of Talking Machines in His Three New York Stores and Finds Strongest Demand for the High Class Models

The firm of Saul Birns, Inc., 211 Second avenue, is doing a large business in the talking machine field, and has a large stock on hand in preparation for the spring trade. Victrolas, Grafonolas, Sonoras and Vocalions in all styles and designs may be seen at this store, and one floor is devoted to the display of period designs. There is a special collection of records best adapted to bring out the good quality of these higher priced machines.

In the rear of the building there is a repair shop which is able to make all necessary repairs and in the basement is the finishing room in which every machine is given a special overhauling before going out to the customer. There is also a piano department, which is undergoing alterations and which will be greatly improved to take care of the expected increased trade.

The same line of talking machines, with the exception of the Victor, is carried in the two other stores of Saul Birns, The Palace Talking Machine Shop, 88 Lenox avenue, and The Strand Talking Machine Co., 813 Westchester avenue, New York.

WM. A. MAYERS BACK FROM FRANCE

William A. Mayers, son of A. H. Mayers, the well-known Victor dealer, recently returned from France after seeing many months of active service over there. Mr. Mayers was a member of the Fifty-seventh Pioneers, a regiment that was in action at St. Mihiel, followed by the grueling engagements in the Argonne Forest. Prior to his entry into the army he was associated with his father in New York City.

Master workers in wood brought fame to the House of Brunswick long before the day of the phonograph. And to their skill is due a share of the credit for the triumph of The Brunswick.

Their art has produced a series of cabinets, unmatched for beauty of design. They are a worthy shrine for the wonderful tone of this instrument. They command unqualified admiration before ever The Brunswick is heard.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction
Its Revolutionizing Features

Just as the spinnet and clavichord were rendered obsolete by the piano, so old standards of tone reproduction gave way before the Brunswick method. It brought new conceptions.

The Brunswick was the first to popularize in a big way the all-record idea. The Ultona made it possible to play any record without regard to make, or recording principle. The music-loving public hailed it with enthusiasm.

Another improvement of fundamental importance was the Brunswick Amplifier. This vibrant tone-chamber is constructed entirely of moulded holly-wood. No metal is used. It provides just the needed resiliency to build up and project the true tone. Like the sound board of a violin or piano it complies with the proved laws of acoustics. It brought new beauty to all records.

No finer phonograph is on the market. No better tone is to be found in any instrument.

The Brunswick continues to win friends. Sales are increasing enormously the country over.

ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

The House of Brunswick has achieved success in many lines of production. It has never been content to take second place. It has kept one ideal constantly before its staff—to build better, regardless of cost.

Before the first Brunswick phonograph was sold, a nationwide distributing organization was already established. At once an immense saving was effected. And this saving in distributing cost made possible the many improvements and added features of The Brunswick.

Initial and Permanent Success

The House of Brunswick is proud of the reception accorded this master phonograph. A single hearing is enough to convince the most doubtful customer. It has won millions of friends.

The sale of The Brunswick has continued to increase steadily and consistently. The logical and convincing story told by advertising in leading publications created universal interest. The Brunswick Method of Reproduction, by its obvious superiority, proved the truth of these statements in print.

Brunswick nation-wide service helps its dealers in every possible way. This co-operation in the past has achieved a remarkable triumph for The Brunswick.

It will continue to win ever increasing sales.

As announced recently in The World, the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co. has arranged to

NEW MUSIC STORE IN GREENSBORO

Piedmont Piano Co. Will Handle Large Stock of Grafonolas and Records—Baby Popularity Contest Starts and Attracts Much Interest

GREENSBORO, N. C., April 7.—The Piedmont Piano Co. has opened a new store and will engage in a general musical instrument business, handling the Columbia Grafonola and Columbia Records, as well as the Lester Piano. As an inducement to get everyone in the city to visit the store a prize of a piano is offered for the winner of the baby popularity contest. Every customer coming to the store is asked to deposit his vote for the baby of his choice, and the winner will be rewarded by an instrument from the company's warerooms.

The new concern has been incorporated under the laws of Michigan, and the officers are: H. S. Leete, president; J. F. Moore, vice-president and local manager; L. R. Rich, secretary, and W. W. Crocker, treasurer.

PLACES BIG ORDER FOR GRAFONOLAS

What is said to be one of the largest orders of its kind in the Southwest has been placed by the Culp Bros. Piano Co., Fort Smith, Ark., for Columbia Grafonolas and records. The aggregate value of the order is $30,000. The Culp Bros. Piano Co. has been very active in the music trade of this section, and just recently increased its capital stock of $50,000. The large order for Grafonolas placed by this company shows that there is a great opportunity for the sale of talking machines in Arkansas.

-WHY-
Do You Use
Tone Arms

“off the shelf”? You spend time and money freely on the design of a cabinet, why compromise on the tone arm? Why don't you put the same thought into the tone arm? Make it at least as distinctive as the cabinet.

We have experts who are specialists in designing tone arms that will blend with your cabinet in quality and appearance—that will continue quality unbroken from sound chamber connection to stylus groove. These men are ready to serve and prove to you by sketches and figures that “INDIANA” made tone arms will increase the value of your machine and make it a better selling proposition.

Bear in mind that acceptance of this service does not obligate you in any way and anything developed for you is for you exclusively, and is not sold or sampled to your competitors.

MILWAUKEE RETAILERS TO MEET

First State Convention of Talking Machine and Piano Merchants Will Meet May 12 in Conjunction With Visit of Geo. W. Pound

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 8.—The first State convention of talking machine, phonograph and piano dealers, and music merchants in general, which was to have been held in Milwaukee on April 15, has been postponed until May 12, in accordance with the change in the dates of the transcontinental tour of George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. The Milwaukee Association of Music Industries is sponsoring the movement to effect a permanent organization of the Wisconsin trade as the result of the success of this procedure in Milwaukee a year and a half ago. Dealers in reproducing machines are being urged to attend the convention as much as piano men, as the new association, like the Milwaukee society, is to be composed of all elements of the trade, and the National Association is perfecting plans for being a general music trade organization in scope and name rather than merely a piano merchants' society. President Richard H. Zinke, of the Milwaukee Association, is working hard to make the convention a big success. He has compiled a list of 765 music dealers of Wisconsin, who will be invited by him personally and on behalf of the Milwaukee Association to come here to form an organization at the same time that they will have opportunity to hear Mr. Pound expatiate on "The Message of Music."

BROOKLYN STORE ENLARGED

C. A. Hanssen & Bro., 4711 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, Victor and Columbia dealers, are making improvements in their present quarters, and when completed the store will be one of the largest talking machine agencies in that section of the city. The adjoining building has been secured and will be added to the present store.

A BELIEVER IN GOOD MUSIC

J. M. Bryant Features Red Seal Records in Demonstrations and Finds That a Thorough Knowledge of Music Helps Business.

J. M. Bryant, head of the Bryant Music House, 915 Eighth avenue, New York, is a lover of music and believes that a good knowledge of music is a requisite for any kind of musical instrument business. He carries Victor machines and records, and makes a point of playing the better kind of selections for his customers to make them realize their need for real music. If some one comes into the store with a question about the way they do certain things with a machine he does not take the nearest record to use by way of demonstration, but selects a Red Seal record or some other of an equally high quality, thus at the same time explaining the question of the customer and emphasizing musical values.

He is a firm believer in the value of the Victor language courses, and is always eager to demonstrate the method by which it is possible to learn a foreign language in your own home with the aid of the talking machine, which enables one to hear the spoken word in addition to seeing the printed word on the page.

TO MANUFACTURE THE PARLEPHONE

E. E. Trower, of St. Joseph, Mo., is planning to introduce a new make of talking machine known as the "Parlephone," the name being suggested by the French word "parler," to talk. Plans for a building have been approved by the Commerce Club directors, who will assist in the matter of finding a suitable location. Mr. Trower was formerly in the music business in St. Joseph.

The Regina Co., manufacturers of Regina-phones and musical specialties, has moved its Chicago office from 209 South Wabash avenue to 209 South State street.

C. T. ROBERTS CHIEF ENGINEER

Appointed to This Important Post With the Columbia Graphophone Co. Recently

Francis S. Whitten, president of the Columbia Graphophone Co., announced recently the appointment of C. T. Roberts as chief engineer and assistant to the president. Mr. Roberts will divide his time between the factory at Bridgeport, Conn., and the executive offices in New York.

C. T. Roberts

Mr. Roberts has spent many years in the engineering field and is particularly well qualified to take charge of the problems. Under his direction research and development work will have added impetus, and the tremendous growth of the Columbia manufacturing organization will give Mr. Roberts unlimited opportunities to utilize his wide engineering experience.

DEMAND FOR BETTER MACHINES

Joseph H. Mayers, the "live" talking machine dealer of 196 East Houston street, New York, is having an excellent trade in the better class of instruments. He carries the Victor, Sonora and Columbia machines, and has sold many models retailing from $130 up. The number of cash sales in his district has greatly increased, and the long term instalments are decreasing, although higher-priced machines are bought.

The Concertophone Co. has been incorporated in Philadelphia with a capital of $50,000.

"I am very much pleased with the Stradivara No. 145 just received. Your motto 'Known for tone' is very appropriate. I have never heard a better toned machine."

"I sold the No. 120 Saturday night. The best of it is that the customer had a—ordered, but when he saw the 'Strad' he went right over and cancelled the order. Please ship three more at once. Everyone that saw and heard the Stradivara thinks it the best ever."

"I am much pleased with the Stradivara. I have sold other makes but there is no comparison; yours is so much superior. I am well repaid for waiting on this shipment."

NEW PACKING CASE MERGER

Atlas Sales Corporation Organized to Take Over Output of Four Leading Packing Case Manufacturers Who Have Catered to Requirements of Talking Machine Trade

Announcement was made early this month of the formation of the Atlas Sales Corp., which will take over the packing case output of the Nelson & Hall Co., Montgomery Center, Vt.; Richford Mfg. Co., Richford, Vt.; Blair Veneer Co., North Troy, Vt., and the Veneer Products Co., Greenville, Me.

All the products of the above firms will be distributed through the new organization, which was formed for the purpose of giving better service to the talking machine manufacturers. The factories are well distributed, and their locations place them in good position both in regard to raw materials and shipping facilities.

These firms, which for a number of years have concentrated their efforts in supplying the demands of talking machine manufacturers for quality packing cases, have a number of experts in their organization who have given much study and time to the matter of expert and efficient packing.

The manufacturing facilities of these organizations have been increased steadily during the past few years, and plans for an even further increase are under way. At the present time the combined capacity of the plants is 10,000 cases a day, over 3,000,000 a year. The new organization will make an effort to increase the interest in the two-color printing which they do on their cases. This printing is done by a specially designed machine in one operation.

Ralph M. Buck, treasurer of the Nelson & Hall Co. and general manager of the Richford Mfg. Co., has been appointed general manager of the Atlas Sales Corp., the headquarters of which will be in Richford, Vt. Mr. Buck is well known in the talking machine trade, and the above announcement of the formation of this new organization in which he is interested will be received by his friends with pleasure.

Evansville Dealer Finds It Proves Strong Attraction for Children

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 4.—Ben Brown, manager of the Columbia wholesale branch office, has received a letter from J. E. Mr. McGinniss is superintendent of the school and he keeps a Grafonola there and each Sunday takes three or four new records to play for the kiddies. Needless to say, the Grafonola is popular with the children—so popular, in fact, that parents must get them in their homes.

Close Collections An Absolute Necessity to Insure Real Business Health

By J. H. Moorehouse

Talking machine dealers doing an instalment business should never forget that close collections are an absolute necessity if the business is to be kept on a healthy financial basis. Collections should be closely and unceasingly watched if it is desired to have the figures on the right side of the ledger at the close of the fiscal year. Some suggestions which I have found of practical value are submitted herewith:

In desiring to get a slow customer to settle his bill it is advisable to enclose a self-addressed envelope. Any good but slow customer in seeing this will not overlook to forward some reply.

Another which should also prove successful is this: At the end of the month send a bill reading something like this: "Amount of bill to date $10,000. I have enlarged my stock and your inspections are desired. Hoping to receive an early call." etc.

Instances are on record where dealers have lost not only their customers, but their accounts by being overpersistent. The slow man fully intends to pay his bills; he is honest but likes to pay in small lots, and above all likes to be considered a good customer, and will advertise your place by relating to his friends what a good customer of yours he is.

In making collections by mail treat customers just as when collecting personally. Care must be taken in writing that no offense be given. Experience has proven that one friendly note has more effect than three threatening letters. Do not present a bill for payment before it is due, but be prompt in presenting it when it is due. Impress your customer with the fact that when a bill is due you expect your money, and do not show too great a willingness to extend the time on a bill.

Don't worry the debtor's life out with bills, notes, etc., for that does not hasten a settlement; in fact, it puts you further than ever from it, for nothing tends to make the slow man more angry than a persistent bill, and a "please remit" is a torch to gun powder. Approach him occasionally in a friendly manner and suggest quietly that a little "on account" would be a great accommodation, not that you would like to press him, but that you are always glad to see him come into the store, and trust you are not asking too much, and if it is not convenient, not to trouble himself.

While I do not advise abuse or ungentlemanly recriminations toward the slow and hard payers, there is a fine, dignified bearing which must be maintained that will be effective—a sort of quiet way of saying you must be paid, and if the party cannot pay as they agreed, they must pay something regularly. If, for instance, the bill is $10.00 or $20.00 and it is due, or overdue, ask the party to pay 50 cents or $1.00 each day until the amount is paid. Let them know that it will cause you trouble, but you may rest assured that the money will be paid rather than see you after them more than twenty times. Then send or go for it, and insist on getting it, for any one can pay 50 or 100 cents a day, unless they are worthless, in which case give it up for a bad debt.

Accounts usually get more worthless with time, and it is a good plan to get them off the books in any way that it can be done. My experience has been that the accepting of small payments (so small that any one would be ashamed to say they could not do it) is the best plan. I think the question embraces a class who are known to be responsible, like farmers, but who are slow pay. They are generally good-natured people, who hardly realize the injury they cause a creditor, and yet they can be reached by plain dealing, like a refusal to continue their credits until the old amount is settled.

There are few men so hardened that they do not care what their fellows may think of them. If your debtor is unprepared to make a settlement when the time has come, when he had promised to do so, do not get angry, but rather convince him of your friendliness toward him, but that friendship must not stand in the way of business. All this failing of the desired effect, then see him again and state plainly that if he does not make satisfactory arrangement for the debt by a certain stated time you will have to sue, much as you dislike to do it. If arrangement has not been made when time given him has expired, then sue. There is one class to which above would not apply—those who for some reason are temporarily embarrassed. In dealing with these, settle account by note due at earliest date your debtor thinks he can meet it. Deal promptly with notes when due same as with accounts.

Politeness and social manners will do the most effective work with honest debtors when collecting accounts, and when these fail I would select occasionally one of the worst cases and sue for payment, in the hope that others would learn by it that there was a limit where it paid them to pay their debts.

In collecting two things are necessary to succeed, promptness and perseverance. Have your terms of sale printed plainly on all your bills and statements and send bills or statements promptly on first of each month. As soon as they are completed mail all those you cannot see personally, but deliver personally as many as possible.

However, if a bill is not paid when presented and your debtor does not state a time when he will pay it, then suggest a date in the near future when you would like to have it paid, and ask him to be prepared. In either case make it a point to call on him promptly at time stated. This will make two impressions on him, that you need the money and that you intend to keep after him until you get it. When you have received a promise to pay at a certain time do not again dun him until that time is up, showing him that you have faith in his promise and will cause him to make special effort to make his agreement good.

This is not an "ad"

It is a call for a referendum vote on a matter of very vital concern to talking machine dealers everywhere

STANDARDIZATION, CO-OPERATION and ELIMINATION OF DUPLICATION were preached and practiced after we entered the war. Now that we have learned to do all these things under pressure, why should we not continue to seek the same advantages under normal conditions?

Dealers in talking machines—customers of ours—many of whom hold agency contracts for more than one of the standard makes of machines—have asked us to take up with manufacturers of machines the matter of establishing a definite and exact standard of base dimensions and finishes for the several portable models, so that a cabinet purchased for a Victrola VI could also be used for a Columbia 25 (Model B), and so on down the line, and would exactly fit the cabinet and match the finish in each case. This condition does not now prevail.

We hesitated about broaching this subject, but after giving the matter considerable thought we realized that standardization along these lines would be an invaluable boon to the dealer, and decided to go ahead and take it up.

We know full well that no results will be attained unless it can be shown in very conclusive fashion that there is a popular demand for the thing on the part of the dealers.

We shall be able to reach all of our customers by using the mails, and this announcement will reach a great many other dealers, but there are many others who still will not know about this movement, consequently it is very essential that those dealers who are interested should fill out the coupon on this page. Be sure to answer all of the questions, and mail it to us. We shall then tabulate the data and perform our part of the service.

From a manufacturing standpoint the changing of the base dimensions of machines is rather serious; it involves many changes which the non-manufacturer cannot understand; but the adoption of standard and uniform finishes for portable models of the different manufacturers sold at approximately the same prices is a thing that can easily be brought about.

All dealers interested in these changes are requested to answer the several questions on the attached coupon and mail it to us. Don't delay!

NEW PROOFS OF EXPANSION OF TALKING MACHINE TRADE RECORDS BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT

That Dealers Appreciate the Importance of Artistic Interior Equipment Is Evident From the Army of Merchants Who Have Placed Orders With the Unit Construction Co.

The general spirit of expansion prevalent throughout the talking machine industry is showing itself in many marked ways. One manner that is visualized strongly is the "spreading out" of the talking machine dealer—by moving to larger quarters or by rearranging his present quarters to better advantage.

This expansion can be proven in no clearer way than by the records of the Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., who have installed booths, record files, etc., in the leading dealers' and jobbers' warerooms throughout the country. During the period of the war this company devoted almost their entire resources to "win the war" work. Since their return to peace production the demand for the "Unico" system of booths and fixtures has been phenomenal. Since the first of the year sixty-eight installations have been made.

The demands for "Unico" fixtures have come from every section of the country, showing that this progressive spirit is not alone limited to any one locality.

Among recent complete installations by the Unit Construction Co. is Kraft, Bates & Spencer, Boston, Mass., who were completely equipped in the Adam period; Ahrlinger & Raynor, Youngstown, O., who are said to have installed the largest talking machine department between Pittsburgh and Chicago, consisting of twenty-five rooms; D. S. Marsch, New London, Conn.; Gregory's Music House, Saginaw, Mich.; Alfred Gallup, Hartford, Conn.; Wilcockson Music Co., Hammond, Ind.; W. J. Killea, Albany, N. Y.; W. J. Keller & Sons, Easton, Pa.; Lehman Music House; Henry M. Curtis, Lynn, Mass.; Rothschild & Co., Chicago, Ill.; Noble Piano Co., Detroit, Mich.; Taylor, Moorehouse Co., Duluth, Minn.; Hyman Kahansky, Brooklyn, N. Y.; American Talking Machine Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.; J. F. Miller & Co., Fall River, Mass.; Orton Bros., Butte, Mont.; Starr Piano Co., Nashville, Tenn.; M. F. Shea, Nashville, Tenn.; John Meckes Son, Cleveland, O.; G. H. Kelly, Gainesville, Fla.; Thos. C. Watkins, Hamilton, Canada; Hickerson Murphy, Alexandria, La.

Work will shortly begin on extensive and attractive installations for R. H. Macy & Co., New York, and the Eastern Talking Machine Co., of Boston.

The foregoing list is indicative of the general expansion, as it may be seen not only in this country but Canada as well.

The Unit Construction Co. have greatly increased their selling organization and have divided the country into sales districts. The selling staff now consists of fourteen men. In addition to the New York office recently opened announcement has been made of the opening of a Chicago office in the Lyon & Healy Building, that city. New and interesting literature is now being prepared and a sales campaign will be conducted along generous lines.

Rayburn Clark Smith, president of the company, is exceedingly optimistic over the future and reports that many new installations will shortly be started.

A NEW YORK INCORPORATION

ST. LOUIS SALESMEN GETTING TIRED OF EXPLANATIONS

Continued Scarcity of Stock Even With Improved Shipments Serves to Multiply the Sales Problems—Talking Machine Figures Largely at Meeting of National Association of Musical Supervisors—Monthly Luncheons for Columbia Dealers—Geo. W. Pound's Address

St. Louis, Mo., April 4.—Local talking machine dealers are beginning to wonder if the present situation is ever going to end. They have been told many times of larger supplies of merchandise, and yet they see no reserve stock accumulating. In placing orders now they receive no promises as to when they will get the goods. Certainly they are not getting them at once. Perhaps, most likely, the factories have increased their output, but the retail trade keeps depleting the available stock.

"Our present trade is the surprise of my life," said one dealer. "Each month the totals go to figures I had not dreamed of, and my orders that looked big when I placed them look foolish when I receive them."

The jobbers have no machines in stock, and in many cases they do not even bring the machines to the warerooms from the railroad. They just divide them as evenly as possible and send them direct to waiting customers.

The record trade goes ahead apace, and almost anything in the way of records can be sold. The present receipts of new records are much better, but there is an urgent demand for old records, the standards, and these are not coming through as yet in quantities that put any on the shelves. Some of the dealers are getting somewhat worried over the effect the strain of explanations is having on their sales forces. A casual visitor can see that some sales forces are more or less disorganized. Other dealers are watching closely, and some are giving occasional vacations or using other means of diverting their helpers.

This is not in the way of news, but of comment. A woman who has been buying records for a long time recently told the writer of her experience in looking for some of the older records. She was buying them with a gift fund and wanted a dozen or more. She said: "Every place I went they were busy. Most places I had to wait for a demonstration. One place we were received with a half-hysterical: 'What did you come up here for, to wait? We're all full.' This same girl a moment later told some customers they did not have a certain record, and the customers had hardly gotten out of the door when that record was put on in the next booth. I asked for an old record, and the girl answered: 'We haven't that, nor none like that.'"

"This was the worst experience I had, but in several places the girls looked at me as though they thought I had escaped from an asylum or that they felt sorry that I should ask for such records."

There was much local dealer interest in the fact that the talking machine figured so largely in the twelfth annual meeting of the National Association of Musical Supervisors, which met at the Hotel Statler, in this city, the first of the month. The Columbia party attending was in charge of W. A. Willson, of the Educational Department. The Victor party was under the leadership of John Gregg Payne, of the Copyright Department, and Mrs. Clark, of the Educational Department. The talking machines had an afternoon to themselves in one section, with the following program:

Subject: "Educational Use of Reproducing Instruments in the School Curriculum." (Ten minutes were allowed each speaker, fifteen minutes for each general discussion).

1. Elementary Grades:

A. Primary. 1—Miss Catherine M. Zisgen, Music Supervisor, Trenton, N. J. 2—Miss Grazella Puliver, Victor Talking Machine Co. 3—Miss Stella Windhorst, Columbia Graphophone Co.

B. Intermediate: Miss Lucy K. Cole, Columbia Graphophone Co.

C. Grammar: Mrs. Frances E. Clark, Victor Talking Machine Co., "Geography and History," Miss Edith Rhett, Victor Talking Machine Co., "Form."

2. High Schools: A—Miss Lucy M. Haywood, Assistant Music Supervisor, Lincoln, Neb., "Methods in Presenting Lessons." B—Ernest Hesser, Music Director State Normal School, Bowling Green, Ohio, "Opera and Oratorio." C—J. Milnor Dorey, Columbia Graphophone Co., "Literature."

The remaining topic was "The Community," but no talking machine representatives were assigned to that subject.

Manager Roos, of the Columbia Co., has begun a series of monthly luncheons. The March meeting was quite a success, and drew a larger number of dealers than was expected. Mr. Roos talked over the coming list of records, the plans for "The Lure of Music," and other plans of the company. Ed Lebens, of the advertising staff of the Post-Dispatch, talked on advertising from a newspaper standpoint. The dealers asked some questions and talked of anything that they cared to bring up. The affair, which was enjoyed by all, was held at the Hotel Statler. The indications are that the attendance will increase from month to month.

The talking machine dealers were much in evidence at the meeting held here for George W. Pound, general counsel of the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce. They also became members of the National Association of Music Merchants. Through Val Reis, president of the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association, who was a member of the Pound reception committee, and was one of the speakers, they asked that the Piano Merchants' Association be changed so that the talking machine dealers might be recognized. President Conroy, of the Association, who was presiding at the meeting, gravely informed them that this would be done at once, and then added that the change was suggested at a recent meeting of the National Association, and was favorably acted upon.

The Victor dealers here are energetically advertising two concerts to be given in the near future. They are by Mme. Homer and Caruso.

There was a bargain sale of records here a few days ago in a department store that does not ordinarily sell them. An innocent-looking elderly woman had found a Burr and a Burr and Campbell record, and had the girl waiting on the counter looking through the entire lot in search of a Burr-McClaskey duet. They did not find it.

Distinctive Features

- The Reproducer pivots on its axis (as illustrated above), taking the correct angle for all makes of records, and the needle retains same center in both positions.
- Surface noise is less than with any other reproducer—surface scratchings being reduced to a minimum through perfect proportioning of the stylus construction, and placing the needle in the center of the groove at the correct angle.
- The split construction of the frame and face ring of the Reproducer, together with the method of pivoting the stylus bar, and perfect insulation—effect a sensitive and free vibration—and prevent a pinched tone resulting at any time from natural contraction or expansion of the metal parts.
- The reproduction is the mellow, natural quality of tone—absolutely getting away from the usual sharpness and metallic effect so noticeable in most reproducers.
- Sound waves act upon the same principle as light waves—they travel in a straight line until they meet some obstruction, from which they are deflected at right angles. The right angle turn at the back of the Scotford Tonearm causes less breaking up and confusion of the sound waves than occurs in the curved arm.
- The connection between the Reproducer and Tonearm is perfectly insulated with a hard rubber bushing. Inside diameter of the Tonearm is correct to accommodate the volume obtained from the latest records.
- The right-side turn for changing needle is handier than the old style turn-back, and when in position for the Hill-and-Dale records there is no interference with lowering the cabinet cover.
- The lateral movement at the base is simple, free and permanently satisfactory. Inside there is no obstruction to interfere with passage of the sound waves. There are no loose balls in the bearings, therefore no buzzing noise can occur from the great vibration on high notes.

RECENT CHANGES AMONG THE MANAGERS IN KANSAS CITY

Miss Edna Moss Heads Victrola Department of Peck Dry Goods Co.—C. E. Matchette Succeeds E. M. Guise at Jones Store—Edison Artists Appear in Tone Tests—Mrs. Shaw Successful

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 4.—There is still more of a demand for the standard talking machines than ever before at this period of the year. Spring, which is, as a rule, considered the most quiet season for the music business, is too lively for the supply of merchandise in many instances. This condition especially applies to talking machines. Though the situation has been relieved during the past two or three months, there is still a shortage in many makes.

The Starr Piano Co., which for several months did practically 100 per cent. Government work, is now putting out 50 per cent. more machines than ever before in an effort to alleviate partially the shortage among its dealers. Many dealers have been waiting for eight or ten months for shipments and since that time have placed additional orders. It is therefore a hard proposition to get back to a pre-war basis, where the supply exceeds the demand.

C. R. Hunt, who for a number of years has been with the Starr talking machine factory at Richmond, Ind., has recently come to Kansas City to take charge of the wholesale end of the talking machine business at the Kansas City branch of the Starr Piano Co.

Russell Comer, son of E. T. Comer, retail manager of the Starr Piano Co., has resumed his former position with that concern.

Miss Edna Moss has succeeded Joseph Donlan as manager of the Victrola department at the Geo. B. Peck Dry Goods Co. Though only a young woman, she is thoroughly familiar with the talking machine game and is displaying a great deal of executive ability in the management of the department. Miss Moss was with the Metropolitan Music Co., of Minneapolis, for more than a year, and for five years was in the Victrola department of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co. She reports business in fine condition and with a few machines being received occasionally the shortage is somewhat relieved. Plenty of records, however, are available and this end of the business is keeping up wonderfully. The most popular Victrola record of the month has been the dance record of "Till We Meet Again" and "Beautiful Ohio."

E. M. Guise, manager of the music department of the Jones Store Co., recently resigned his position to go into the brokerage business. His resignation became effective March 10, when C. E. Matchette, manager of the music department of the Shillito store in Cincinnati, came to succeed Mr. Guise temporarily.

During the twenty months in which Mr. Guise was manager of the department it became one of the liveliest departments in the store. His credit and instalment system has created a great deal of worthy comment from many sources, and it was only after a great effort had been made to retain Mr. Guise that his resignation was accepted. His associations with the music trade for many years have been the most pleasant and he leaves it with a feeling of regret. Before coming to Kansas City Mr. Guise spent six years with the Aeolian Co. and four years with the Baldwin Co. in the East.

Miss Mary Johnston, who had been employed for several months in the Victrola department of the Geo. B. Peck Dry Goods Co., was struck by a speeding motor car one night recently and died an hour later without regaining consciousness.

W. L. Hightower, formerly of the Edison Retail Shop, is now with the wholesale end, covering Kansas territory.

Word has been received from Sergeant Clarence L. Smith, of the intelligence department, formerly salesman in Missouri and Kansas territory for the Edison, that he is anxious to be back in the phonograph game, but has no chance for an early return. The letter received recently was written from Griscourt, France.

Mme. Shank and the Fleming Trio appeared at the Grand Avenue Temple recently in recital, assisted by the Edison Diamond Disc phonograph. Cards of admission were sent out to all Edison owners and prospects as well as to any one who was interested in the Edison. The artists were well received and welcomed by a crowd much too large for the seating capacity of the Temple. Reports have come from all dealers in the Kansas and Missouri territory that they have received a royal welcome every place.

Marie Morrissey and Jacques Glockner have also been making a tour of the Edison centers of Kansas and Missouri.

M. M. Blackman, manager of Edison wholesale, reports a great demand for machines, more than can be supplied at the present time. An unusual number of dealers have been coming to Kansas City from all parts of the territory to place orders and become acquainted with general conditions.

When one is referred to Mrs. Shaw for talking machine news at the Smith, Barnes & Strohber Piano Co. it is a happy surprise to find that she is just a pretty little woman, whose husband has not yet returned from service in France. Last October she was employed in the talking machine department without any previous experience in the music business, except that she was a real lover of music, and in her estimation that is one of the most essential qualities of a salesman in any line of musical instruments. The Smith, Barnes & Strohber Co. has recently taken the agency for the Victrola, in addition to the Columbia, and Mrs. Shaw has charge of the buying and selling of both the Victor and Columbia records, besides also selling machines. She likewise selects, orders and sells Q R S and Universal player rolls. Two new record demonstration rooms have been fitted up, making four in all, and new record shelves have been installed.

STOCK SITUATION SHOWS IMPROVEMENT IN CINCINNATI

Demand Still Keeps Ahead of Supply of Both Machines and Records However—Local Manufacturers Increasing Output—Edison Dealers to Convene Next Month—General News

CINCINNATI, O., April 4.—Plenty of cash and lack of the finished product tells the story of the condition in the talking machine industry in the Middle West just at this moment. While the past thirty days saw a slight improvement in the matter of new machines yet the manufacturer and jobber found it impossible to keep up with the demands of the trade.

George H. Link, 1711 Vine street, might be said to be an illustration of the talking machine conditions in this part of the country. Mr. Link, by profession a jeweler and who carried the Victrola as a side line, has absolutely discarded the tinker's end of the game and has put the machine and record in the parlor, so to speak. Mr. Link, who was a pioneer in the matter of handling talking machines in the Cincinnati district, recently completely altered the storeroom and installed the Unit System for handling records.

The Crystola Co. this month will double the capacity of its plant, for it has taken over the fifth floor of the building, 314 and 316 Elm street, the corporation being located on the top floor. Some attention just now is being given to a style A cabinet, retailing at $100, which ought to be on the market in another month or so.

The Fritsch Phonograph Co., since moving to the new home, northwest corner of Canal and Main streets, has been indulging in some real motion picture advertising. The film is along educational lines, the intention being to bring out the feature of this make of phonograph. It is a distinctly up-to-date form of publicity.

C. L. Byars, of the local Aeolian store, reports a remarkable Vocalion month for March. In spite of the fact that several thousand dollars' worth of business was lost because of the shortage of goods, the business for the month exceeded all previous Marches by several thousand dollars. From the 15th of March until the end of the month there was practically no stock to be had excepting the Art Style Vocalions. Mr. Byars reports that this is the first time in his fourteen years' experience that he had to actually turn customers away from the store without even having an opportunity of making a demonstration to them, because there were not even demonstrating machines on hand.

The various salesmen in the department have dozens of people waiting for Vocalion stock, and Mr. Byars estimates that at least fifty Vocalions are already sold for April to people who have pledged themselves to take an instrument as soon as stock is received. He said further:

"The home office, however, has assured us of a substantial stock of Vocalions for April, and if we are not disappointed we expect to put over a ripping big Vocalion business in the new month.

"The Vocalion record sales are increasing each month, and our record department reports that there are a number of customers now who will not use anything at all except Vocalion records where it is at all possible to get what they want in them."

Chas. Spence, who for several years was in the Vocalion repair department, and in the last year was in a battalion of machine gunners in the army, is now back on the job, and has been given charge of the record department.

A convention of Edison dealers in the Cincinnati zone, comprising Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and northern Tennessee, will take place in this city either May 12 or May 19 according to Manager Oelman. Real business is to have the right of way, but there will be enough play and plenty of eats as a side line for those in attendance.

George W. Hopkins, general sales manager, of the Columbia Co., visited the local branch during the past week. He was on a tour of all of the branches in this section, and as he arrived here on Sunday his stay was brief. He has promised to return within the next month, and give the Cincinnati dealers the long-looked-for opportunity of hearing him deliver one of his inspiring sales talks.

O. F. Benz, also of the New York office, who is in charge of record sales, was another visitor to the local branch last week. Mr. Benz came to Cincinnati for the express purpose of pushing record sales, but found that the local branch was lacking in stock rather than lacking in orders. Mr. Benz stated that shipments to this branch were far ahead of shipments during the same period last year, so this will indicate the enormous business being done.

March just ended was the largest month the Cincinnati branch ever had, that is, the largest month in volume of sales.

S. R. Lemberg, special representative of the international record department of New York, has been here spending his time with dealers who cater to the foreign trade. The Cincinnati branch stands about eleventh in the Columbia list of branches, based on sales of foreign records.

Plans are under way to have Madame Hulda Lashanska, who will be the soloist at the Symphony Orchestra April 25 and 26, meet all of the Columbia dealers in and around Cincinnati. If possible arrangements will be made for Madame Lashanska to sing, April 26, in one of the downtown stores.

Among the callers at the Columbia branch during the last week or two were Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Green, of Paintsville, Ky., who were unfortunate in losing their entire stock in the large fire recently at Paintsville. They placed a large order. Other visitors were L. S. Adams, Vevay, Ind.; E. R. Huber, North Lewisburg, O.; Mrs. Elmer Woodhead, Falmouth, Ky.; H. S. Staples, Storm, Ky.; L. S. Crutcher, Holden, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, of the Johnson & Beverage Co., Logan, W. Va.; N. P. Kerns, Chillicothe, O.; H. G. Stevenson, Circleville, O.; A. G. Polasky, Georgetown, O.; W. O. Kirk, Winchester, O.

The "Avon Comedy Four" headliners at Keith's Theatre, week of March 31, have visited many Columbia dealers in downtown Cincinnati during this week.

Arthur F. Greenwood, formerly assistant manager of the Kresge store, has joined the local Columbia force and has been assigned the territory of greater Cincinnati. He took up his new duties April 1.

Manager T. Sigman, of the Victor department of the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., says: "The month of March witnessed one of the best record months so far this year, and from present indications the demand is increasing. In the retail department the higher-priced records were advertised with excellent results. This was especially true of the $7 Lucia Sextet record, the sale of which doubled any previous month.

"Many out-of-town dealers visited our store and all reported good business in records. The sale of Victrolas was naturally handicapped because of the fact that the shortage continues. Many patient customers, however, are waiting for the arrival of the instrument they purchased around the holidays.

"Dealers are not overlooking their chance of increasing their sales and are purchasing record display stands, and their expenditure in advertising space has increased considerably. This preparation will help them materially to take care of the future business that is bound to come when goods are more plentiful."

Her first Vocalion record has won the enthusiastic approbation of visitors to the Vocalion recording laboratories and Vocalion dealers will undoubtedly be glad to learn that this famous soprano will record for this library.

ORIGIN OF EDISON TRADE-MARK

Term "Music's Re-Creation" the Result of Inspiration—Has Become Very Valuable

In his book, "If I Were Twenty-one," William Maxwell, vice-president of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has the following interesting information to give covering the origin of the Edison trade-mark, "Music's Re-Creation," which has won such wide recognition in a comparatively brief period. In telling of the origin of trade-marks Mr. Maxwell says:

"Within the past year I have been concerned in the development of a trade-mark which is already worth a large sum of money. For months my associates and I had been searching for a phrase which would differentiate a certain new sound-reproducing instrument from all other phonographic devices. Dozens of words and phrases had been submitted. Each new one seemed more stupid than those which previously had been considered and discarded. One day at a luncheon of department heads—a day when I felt particularly out of sorts with myself and everybody else—I bitterly observed to my companions: 'We're a fine lot of boobs. Here we have an instrument which gives literally a laboratory Re-Creation of music and we can't think of a name to describe what it does.' I stopped with my mouth open. 'The Laboratory Re-Creation of Music'; wasn't that just what we wanted? I had never heard the phrase before, and used it then half-consciously, in an irrational effort to find words sufficiently out of the ordinary to put proper emphasis on my irritation—a good deal as a profane man invents unusual curses in moments of exceptional emotion.

"Just what did Re-Creation mean? Was it a secular word? We sent for a dictionary and found that Re-Creation means precisely what we wanted it to mean.

"We immediately began to use the phrase, 'The Laboratory Re-Creation of Music,' but it was not long before a newspaper man, in writing of our instrument, brought forth the more graceful expression—'Music's Re-Creation.' In this way, virtually by accident one might say, we developed a trade-mark which, in the expert opinion of an editor of the Dry Goods Economist, has impressed itself upon the public's mind in a shorter space of time than any other trade-mark on record."

APPOINTED EMERSON JOBBER

Rountree-Cherry Corp., of Richmond, Va., Becomes Jobber for Nine Southern States

The general sales department of the Emerson Phonograph Co., New York, announced this week the appointment of the Rountree-Cherry Corp., Richmond, Va., as Emerson jobber in the States of Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

This company is one of the best-known talking machine houses in the South, and according to its present plans it will inaugurate shortly an intensive campaign in behalf of Emerson records. In fact, the company's original territory did not include all of the States mentioned above, but it achieved such signal success from the very start that its territory was enlarged in order to give it an opportunity to develop Emerson business in all of these Southern States.

WURLITZER CO. ENLARGING

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., Milwaukee, has recently added a talking machine and record department, which will be in full swing during Style Week. The retail department is being enlarged, and a complete stock of musical merchandise will be carried, together with pianos, organs and band instruments.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

Chance for Expansion in the Countries of Europe Now Passing Through Critical Period of National Reconstruction

The talking machine is strictly the child of American ingenuity and is one of our many products which is gaining high favor in every part of the world. The countries of Europe which have brought forth so many musical masterpieces and have had more opportunity to develop the musical genius than our newer land are coming to realize the value of the talking machine in making it possible for every man, rich or poor, to have the best music in his own home.

In the larger countries, which are firmly established and enjoy the security of a well-founded government, the introduction of the talking machine has been followed by a steadily growing demand. In the other countries, especially those in which the peoples are undergoing the upheavals incident to the struggle for democratic ideals, there is a good field for the enterprising manufacturer who is progressive enough to do and dare in the present instead of holding back and waiting for the millennium.

To primitive peoples music is necessary in helping the soul to find its true level, as is evidenced by the great songs which have come from races fighting for their very existence. The power of music can sway the multitude, and it takes but little imagination to glimpse the possibilities of the talking machine in such a country.

Today the talking machine ranks with any other musical instrument, and is well able to compete for final honors. In these days of commercial expansion eyes are turned toward foreign trade, and no manufacturer can afford to neglect the opportunities which lie before him. A product of true worth will win a place for itself, and this position will never be lost when conditions resume their natural course, but, on the contrary, it will benefit and profit by the confidence won during the critical period.

EQUIPPED WITH AUTOMATIC STOP

Fritzsch Phonograph Co. Announces That Its New Products Will Have an Automatic Stop Invented by Charles Fritzsch—Moves to New and Larger Quarters in the Queen City

CINCINNATI, O., April 5.—The Fritzsch Phonograph Co., of this city, manufacturer of the Phon d'Amour, announced recently that in the future its product will be equipped with a new automatic stop that was invented by Charles Fritzsch. This automatic stop has a number of distinctive merits, one of which is the fact that it is fastened to the tone arm and all mechanical parts are concealed underneath the turntable. This stop, which is operated from the front of the turntable, has proven so successful that arrangements will be completed shortly to manufacture it in large quantities for the general use of the trade.

The Fritzsch Phonograph Co. has moved into its new quarters, in the building located at the northwest corner of Main and Canal streets, and in its new home the company has ample facilities to take care of its fast-growing trade. Bernard Fritzsch, president of the company and inventor of the Phon d'Amour, has received many letters from the company's dealers stating that this instrument is meeting with a ready sale in their territories.

AN AURORA TALKING MACHINE

According to reports from Aurora, Neb., an Aurora talking machine has been manufactured at the shop of O'Brien & Sons, of that city. The new machine is on exhibition, and it is said that many offers to purchase the instrument have been refused by the makers.

NEW INCORPORATION

The United States Musical Sales, Inc., has been incorporated in Albany by O. H. Acciola, H. Herman and N. M. Van Wagner, New York. The active capital is $60,000.

WHY C. R. STEVENS IS OPTIMISTIC

Well-Known Music House at Marietta, Ohio, Establishing New Dealers for OkeH Records

MARIETTA, O., April 7.—This city is proving one of the strongholds for OkeH records, for the sales organization of the Stevens Organ & Piano Co. is establishing many new dealers for this record line and building up a most gratifying business. The Stevens salesman present these records as a combination proposition with the phonographs manufactured by the company, and this combination is proving a winner.

C. R. Stevens

In a recent interview C. R. Stevens, general manager of the company, spoke very encouragingly of the results being secured by his sales staff, and also paid the following tribute to OkeH records:

"It's all very well we have some excellent talkers among our selling force. But let's be frank. They could talk their heads off in vain if the OkeH records would not make good on their own account as one of the most popular of all popular records. All the rhetoric in the world could not make our record business a permanent and ever-growing success without the convincing fine qualities of this record.

"I don't want to be hard on my boys—but believe me, one hearing of that record makes surer of a big sample order and a still larger re-order than all the persuasion and boosting our salesmen could ever let loose."

"When we can make work as interesting, as thrilling as life, we shall translate business to the highest plane of happy human endeavor," says G. E. Whitehouse. "It is no impossible dream; every day we are moving toward its consummation—toward the welding of human toil and human interest."

CLEVELAND ADVERTISING CENSOR AFTER TRADE FAKERS

Official of Cleveland Music Trades' Association Starts Campaign Against False Advertising in Music Trade—Has Assistance of Police—General Trade Well Above Par

CLEVELAND, O., April 1.—A relentless warfare on fakers who falsely represent the value of talking machines and indulge in price-cutting is to be waged by A. L. Maresh, recently appointed official "advertising censor" for the Cleveland Music Trades Association, whose membership includes several talking machine dealers.

This week Mr. Maresh and M. O. Mattlin, president of the Home Piano Co., started on a tour of investigation, with the aid of a deputy police court prosecutor, and began quizzing dealers who are suspected of "faking" in their advertising. These so-called dealers, Mr. Maresh said, do not have any store, but use the classified advertising columns of daily newspapers to bait prospective customers, who are deceived into buying machines at outrageous prices.

"I have just received a letter from one talking machine manufacturing concern which informs me that a Cleveland dealer who has been unethical in his selling methods will not be shipped any more stock," said Mr. Maresh. "This method of cutting off the fellows who are predatory in their methods is a most effective one, and I approve of it." Price-cutters are also to be gone after by Mr. Maresh.

The Wolfe Music Co., whose head, Herman Wolfe, is the president of the Talking Machine Dealers' Association of Northern Ohio, has one of the finest window displays of any music concern in Cleveland. Mr. Wolfe believes in publicity and effective window displays. He is still riding his hobby—plans to carry forward the movement to organize Ohio talking machine dealers into a Statewide association.

The Collister & Sayle Co., Victor retailers, are preparing for an unusually interesting Easter show window exhibit of machines and records.

The Cheney Sales Co., 440 Euclid avenue, which handles the Cheney talking machines in this city, reports an ever-increasing demand for stock as the various qualities of the Cheney instrument are more widely recognized. The firm anticipates a big increase in the number of dealers in this section during the spring and summer.

The return of about 4,000 northern Ohio soldiers this week means that several salesmen and other former employes of talking machine retail concerns will be free to return to civil life. Whether or not all the boys will get back their former positions is problematical. Such has not been the case with many Ohio soldiers who went to Europe, and much complaint has been made by disgruntled soldiers who returned home "broke" and have been unable to find satisfactory employment.

Henry Dreher, head of the B. Dreher's Sons Co., has returned from a Southern trip via New York, where he was entertained by piano and talking machine dealers, and reports splendid prospects for spring business in phonographs.

Charles K. Bennett, general manager of the Eclipse Musical Co., reports that the movement to organize Ohio's Victor dealers is making headway. "We have not decided just when the dealers favoring the organization will meet in Columbus," Mr. Bennett said. "We propose to meet there because the city is the most central of any and conveniently located. I have no doubt about the project being put over."

Discussing the action of the Victor Talking Machine Co. in agreeing to carry the 5 per cent. war tax imposed on the manufacturers' selling price of talking machines Mr. Bennett said that the action will save dealers in Ohio from $40,000 to $50,000 a year.

"The sale of Victor talking machines in Ohio, based on the manufacturers' prices," Mr. Bennett said, "will run up to $1,500,000 a year in this State. The attitude of the Victor Co. is certainly appreciated by the dealers to whom our company distributes machines and records. The relief is a big one, in view of the strenuous pull dealers had during the war period to get across with a small quantity of stock and carry war burdens."

Cleveland talking machine dealers are lining up to help put across the Fifth Liberty or Victory Loan. Practically all the dealers will get behind the movement, not as an organization but individually and in team work. Cleveland heretofore has gone way over the top in bond and war stamp campaigns and everybody is anxious to repeat the performance when the next loan drive gets under headway.

The Cleveland News is featuring music in a page every Wednesday evening, much space being given to it. The page also carries display matter and other advertising of the leading talking machine dealers of the city. Dealers are using more newspaper space than they did a few months ago, owing to the fact that the newspapers have more columns to sell since the war period ended.

The Fischer Co., Pathé talking machine jobber, 940 Chestnut avenue, this city, reports an exceptionally "live business" since February 1. The retail store of this firm in one of the most popular arcades is a mecca for music-lovers and some very effective window displays attract attention.

The manager of the Cleveland branch of the Columbia Co. is "campaigning" for more business. The store's stock display is one of the best of the kind in this section of the country. Sales are almost unprecedented and are increasing.

The May Co.'s piano and talking machine department, managed by Harlan H. Hart, is largely responsible for the splendid orchestra organized by employes of the big firm, claiming to be "Ohio's largest department store." The music department is probably the most complete in Ohio, much space being devoted to talking machines of various makes and records. The volume of business recorded for the first three months of 1919 is reported to be a record-breaker.

A curious aftermath of the world war is the demand for cradle songs and lullabies reproduced by talking machine records. These songs and lullabies may well be called "after-the-war" hits. Dealers believe that some of the popular reproductions will live for more than a brief period and take their place along with some of the "old tunes and songs." The return of Cleveland's contingent of soldiers in the Thirty-seventh Division this week stimulated a demand for patriotic music and record dealers reported unusually large sales.

The Cleveland branch of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. has added a large number of the firm's latest models in phonographs to the Huron road store, managed by W. F. Young.

The Starr Piano Co., which operates four stores in Cleveland and others in northern Ohio cities and a long chain of agencies in Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania, reports a brisk "picking up" in the demand for phonographs.

Frank Johnson, salesman for a Cincinnati firm, was a visitor to Cleveland Monday.

The move to exempt pianos, talking machines and other musical instruments from taxes will probably fail during the present session of the Ohio Legislature. This move followed one to increase the exemption on household goods. Officials favoring the exemption of musical instruments contend that they are educational factors, hence should be like school houses, free of tax burdens.

REMODELING NEW BUILDING

W. D. & C. N. Andrews Prepare for Big Wholesale Victor Business

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 5.—W. D. & C. N. Andrews, exclusive Victor wholesalers located in this city, are rapidly going ahead with the remodeling of their new building, which is said to involve a sum of almost $25,000. The entire first two floors will be remodeled to meet the needs of efficient Victor wholesaling. It is expected things will be completed in time to hold an opening by the first of June.

This organization is not only evincing great enterprise in the matter of a new home, but has also inaugurated a plan of sending to its dealers from time to time a complete list of all records in stock. This information placed in the hands of the dealers has proved of great value to them in placing orders, and the results have been accordingly good from the W. D. & C. N. Andrews standpoint. The last statement of the records carried was mailed on March 15, and a new revised list has just been made up for the dealers.

The company also is encouraging its dealers along very constructive lines to push the sale of those selections which are at present obtainable, instead of wasting time regretting the lack of those particular selections which are not available, in keeping with the immediate demand.

In a recent letter to its dealers an inkling of the company's foresight is shown in the following paragraph: "We have for two years or more realized that the jobber in talking machines should be a jobber exclusively, and have been planning all this time with that object in view." The progressive steps recently taken by the company confirm this statement, as certainly many of the recent moves could not be other than the product of long preliminary study and development.

BUSINESS ACTIVE IN ATLANTA, GA.

Scoville Mercantile Co., Jobbers for OkeH Records, Optimistic Over Outlook

ATLANTA, GA., April 7.—The Scoville Mercantile Co., of this city, which was recently appointed a jobber for OkeH records, manufactured by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., New York, reports the closing of an excellent business with this line, and states that new dealers are being created daily. One of the gratifying factors of the demand for OkeH records in this territory is the fact that repeat orders are being received from dealers with a regularity that indicates a high degree of popularity for these records.

The sales organization of the Scoville Mercantile Co. is enthusiastic regarding the future possibilities for OkeH records, and to date the only difficulty encountered by the company is in securing records fast enough to handle its orders.

ENTIRE PLANT PRODUCING CABINETS

Udell Works Compelled to Cut Out Making General Line of Furniture to Take Care of Record and Music Roll Cabinet Demands

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., April 7.—Convincing proof of the growing demand for both talking machine records and music roll cabinets is indicated in the report of the Udell Works, of this city, to the effect that during the past six months they have been compelled to use the entire capacity of their plant to produce cabinets to take care of a fair proportion of the orders in hand, and have practically discontinued, for the time at least, the production of a general line of furniture.

The Udell plant is a big one, and the fact, therefore, that it is devoted entirely to cabinet production is significant. Incidentally, it is stated that shipments for March were the biggest in the company's history.

The new store is opening in a town of about 18,000 inhabitants, and as the new proprietors are to feature the Columbia and Edison machines, they feel the prospects are bright.

SMYTHE'S LIBERTY LOAN SLOGANS

Talking Machine Man Now in France With Red Cross Gains Prominence by Originating Slogans to Stimulate Liberty Bond Sales

J. Henry Smythe, Jr., well known to members of the talking machine trade, particularly the jobbers and manufacturers, and who is now serving in France with the Red Cross as a lieutenant, has gained considerable prominence by evolving catchy slogans for use in connection with the various Liberty Loan and War Savings Stamps campaigns. Among the slogans originated by Mr. Smythe which have been used during Liberty Loan drives are: "Buy Bonds to Arm Armies" and "Buy Bonds to Feed Fighters." He has drafted a number of new slogans for the Fifth Loan, which were published recently in the Paris edition of the New York Herald. Mr. Smythe has been in Europe with the Red Cross for some time, having joined that service when poor eyesight barred him from active military work.

THE TRADE IN PHILADELPHIA AND LOCALITY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 3.—The talking machine situation is clearing rapidly in Philadelphia and in consequence April is opening with an era of good feeling. It is the belief that the hard days will soon be forgotten, and the dealers expect conditions to improve rapidly from now on. It is apparent that the Victor Co. is doing everything possible to meet the demand for machines, and dealers are willing to be patient a little longer, knowing that the Camden talking machine makers have already been able to make good their promises.

Buehn Looks for Big Trade

Local dealers without exception report that they have closed a very satisfactory month in March. Louis Buehn, of the Louis Buehn Co., Inc., told me this was the condition with his firm. The shipments from the Victor factory are considerably better, both in machines and records, than they have been for a long time. "If March can be taken as a criterion," Mr. Buehn states, "this will be one of the best years in the history of the Victor business. It looks most encouraging."

Prepare for a Very Busy Season

Frank Toland, a large Victor dealer at Chester, Pa., has nearly finished a fine talking machine store, which can compare with any in Philadelphia.

William F. Lamb, a Pottstown Victor dealer, has now constructed for himself a very fine talking machine department, and will have his formal opening on April 11 and 12. He has spent a great deal of money in the arranging of his department, and will have a dozen booths.

Purchase Riggins Bros. Store

Carl Gaskill and Ralph Riggins have purchased the Riggins Brothers store at Bridgeton, N. J., and will incorporate a new company, which will handle, in addition to pianos, a full line of Victor machines and records. They expect to have one of the finest stores in South Jersey.

Rejoins Buehn Co. Forces

The Buehn Co. have just received back into the fold E. P. Bliss, Jr., who has been released from the service and who is also married. L. D. Callahan, a former salesman, has also been released from the navy service and is back on the job in his old territory. A peculiar thing about these two men is that they enlisted on the same day and were discharged on the same day. Bliss had been in France for a considerable time.

Penn Phonograph Co. Pleased With Outlook

The Penn Phonograph Co. note that they have received far better shipments in both Victor machines and records in March, and with such satisfactory service from the factory the prospects for the future look very bright. Great success is reported in the sale of Lundstrom cabinets, and the demand for these cabinets has far exceeded the supply. A new model of the Victor dog, "His Master's Voice," is being featured by the Penn Co., and it is believed that dealers will find this a very popular advertising novelty for all kinds of display. They have also stocked up with the Jones-Motrola and expect to do an excellent business with this attachment to the Victor, it being a device which electrically winds the spring, and keeps the machine wound up at all times.

Conditions Considerably Improved

Harry Weymann, of H. A. Weymann & Son, says that the Victor conditions the past two weeks were considerably improved, and that the prospects for April are very promising both in Victrolas and records. This will give them the opportunity to fill a number of back orders that have been placed with them.

Pathé Business Expands

The Pathé Shop—expressing the energy and optimism of Walter L. Eckhardt—is a beehive of industry these days. He says their March business was very much ahead of last year. Mr. Eckhardt has just been appointed a delegate from this city to the seventh annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce to meet in St. Louis the end of April and the first of May.

Mr. Eckhardt states that, although the Pathé machines and records are coming through much better, they have not been able to keep up with their orders by any means. He is laying plans to put through one of the biggest deals that has ever been transacted in the talking machine business in this city.

Among the out-of-town men who have taken on the Pathé during the month of March are Jones Brothers, of Slatington, Pa.; Parson Brothers, of Bangor, Pa.; Fink & Corbett, Pottstown, Pa.; R. Guinan, of Mahanoy City, Pa., and a number of smaller dealers.

E. A. Widmann a Visitor

The Pathé Shop was favored during the month by a visit from President E. A. Widmann, of the Pathé Co.; Russell Hunting, the recording expert; William A. Penn, manager of the recording department, and Mr. Savino, the musical director. The occasion of their visit was to check up on Europe's famous jazz band, with whom the Pathé Co. has recently made a contract for exclusive service. The entire Eckhardt organization was invited to dinner by President Widmann, and the result was amusing. The last time Mr. Widmann was in Philadelphia Mr. Eckhardt had eleven employes, so when the president of the Pathé took up the receiver upon his arrival here and invited the local Pathé organization to take dinner with him and attend the concert of the Europe band, specifying that they should be sure to bring with them the "two lady employes" he had met upon his last visit, Mr. Eckhardt asked him if he meant what he said. Mr. Widmann replied that he did, and the local manager of the Pathé, taking the president at his word, produced forty-two employes—instead of eleven as before.

Brunswick Ambassador Busy

C. B. Chew, the Philadelphia representative of the Brunswick talking machine, is spending the week among the trade in this State. The Brunswick Co. has not been able to take on any new accounts in March, owing to the scarcity of goods, but advices from the factory are most encouraging as to the future.

Big Call for Dictaphones

C. K. Woodbridge, the sales manager of the Dictaphone, was in Philadelphia on Thursday of this week. Manager C. E. Malliet states that March with his firm was 25 per cent. ahead of the same month last year, and was the second largest month they have ever had in volume of sales. He says that things look very good for the future. Lieutenant Freed, recently in the army, has joined the sales force.

Ediphone Display at Wilmington Fair

Manager Austen, of the Ediphone dictating machine, notes that business in March was much better than January and February, and April looks better to him than any month they have ever had. They have never started a month with such an encouraging outlook. Mr.

Austen had a very attractive Edison dictating machine display at the recent Wilmington Business Show and is very well satisfied with the results.

Interstate Phonograph Co. Formed

Since April 1 the local Pathé shop has been operated under the corporate name "The Interstate Phonograph Co.," consisting of Mr. Eckhardt as president; C. S. Tay, as treasurer, and H. A. Pope, as secretary. Both Mr. Tay and Mr. Pope have been with Mr. Eckhardt for a number of years. It is their intention to ultimately broaden their field. S. G. Flood, who has been with the firm since they started, has been assigned to a territory up State. They have secured a new warehouse located at 1814 and 1816 Market street. Mr. Eckhardt has just received another patent from the Government on a device for the recording arm.

A Novelty That Will Be in Demand

The listening dog of the Victor Co. has the reputation of being the best-known trade-mark in the world. A new small plaster of paris replica of this dog has been produced by the Penn Phonograph Co. It is a perfect reproduction, and is cast from an original model made by an eminent Philadelphia sculptor. The Penn Phonograph Co. report a remarkable demand for this novelty from Victor dealers throughout the country. It is particularly adapted for use as either a souvenir or for window display. We will print a photographic presentment of this dog next month.

Blake Opens New Store

Herbert Blake, the proprietor of the big Edison store at Eleventh and Walnut streets, has still further branched out in the business by taking a lease on the vacant storeroom at 204 South Eleventh street, where he has fitted up exceedingly fine warerooms and where he will handle the Columbia exclusively. The Columbia business and the Edison business will be entirely separated, and will be under two separate roofs.

Mr. Blake says his business in March was fine, and they more than doubled their business of March a year ago. They have been getting Edison machines and records through with fine regularity. Within the month they will add two men to their sales force to take care of the increased trade.

Edison Dealers to Meet

There will be a meeting of all the Edison dealers at the Bingham House on Tuesday evening next, which will be followed by an annual banquet.

Closed a Great Business Month

March was the greatest month in the history of the Columbia Graphophone Co. in Philadelphia. This result is as much due to the fine co-operation of the New York factory as to the admirable force that Manager Heath has under his control here. Machines and records were sent through in a surprising volume, and almost all of the demands on the Philadelphia office were met. Mr. Heath has been suffering with a severe cold for a week past. Among the visitors to the Philadelphia offices was O. F. Benz, a member of the Columbia general sales department.

NEW CONCERNS FLIT IN AND OUT IN TWIN CITY FIELD

Roster of Local Manufacturers and Dealers Constantly Changing—Aeolian-Vocalion to Invade Minneapolis on Elaborate Scale—Concerns at Present in "Talking Machine Row"—Liberal Use of Advertising Space—General Trade Conditions During the Past Month Reviewed

ST. PAUL and MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., April 4.—Minneapolis and St. Paul seem to be the twin Mecca for talking machine and phonograph exploiters. Some come in big style and some come in little style, but all appear to be coming. Archie Matheis, the dean of the talking machine dealers, avers that virtually all of the various instruments made in the United States have either sought entrance to the twin towns or are on the way. It is impossible to keep track of all of the numerous bidders for the attention of the talking machine devotees, because there are so many of them and their stay is so brief, in some cases.

Some day a typewriting store will place a talking machine in its window, stick some placards about offering a marvelous bargain, and in a week or two the device and the placards are gone. Then will come along in a more pretentious manner a concern and rent a downtown store and do some advertising in the newspapers. Such concerns last two months or so and disappear. Usually they leave no mourners behind them.

Then there are a number of local concerns who are smitten with the bug, and they start to manufacture. They appeal to local pride and the public spirit, but often fall by the wayside. At least two concerns which set out to get a share of the big profits of the Victor, Edison and Columbia companies have gone to the wall. Others remain and announce their intention of sticking to the game. They announce plans to spend considerable money and conduct an aggressive advertising and selling campaign.

While the standard makers have failed to keep the retail dealers supplied with sufficient machines, the distress is not as keen as it was some months ago, though floors that should be filled still stand bare, and houses that would like to carry exclusive lines are compelled to carry four and even five lines in order that their customers shall not be deprived of the pleasure of having a talking machine in their homes.

Extensive preparations are being made for the entrance of the Aeolian-Vocalion into Minneapolis on a somewhat elaborate scale. The Stone Piano Co., of Fargo, has leased the fine Metzger corner, at Nicollet avenue and Ninth street, and is fitting it for just about the classiest phonograph shop in the Twin Cities. Some day, it is rumored, piano lines will be added, but this may not be for a year or so. Aeolian-Vocalion will be the aim of the first big plunge. The new store with a plate glass frontage of about 120 feet on Ninth street and 30 feet on Nicollet avenue is very well located for the high-class talking machine trade. A half block north are the houses of Foster & Waldo, and Howard, Farwell & Co., and a half block south is the Talking Machine Co. of Archie Matheis. The two latter are Victor houses, while Foster & Waldo carry Victor, Edison, Columbia and Sonora lines. Then further down Nicollet is the Cable Piano Co., another Victor house, and two blocks away is the fine Edison shop conducted by the Minnesota Phonograph Co., while a little further away are the Metropolitan Music Co. and the L. S. Donaldson Co. department store, both with big Victor departments. Then there are two Columbia stores just around the corner, those of the J. E. Frank Music Co. and the Gustafson-Taylor Piano Co. If the newcomers are seeking active competition they surely selected the right place.

The Twin City newspapers and billboards are almost reeking with talking machine advertising. The game is fiercer than it was just before the late holidays, and it then was thought to have reached the limit. The way the Victor, Edison, Columbia and Sonora dealers and makers are using up newspaper space would petrify an old-timer if he could see it.

Casting up their accounts and comparing the showings with 1918, the Minnesota Phonograph Co. finds that the sales for the first two months of 1919 equaled the totals for the first seven months of 1918. President Laurence H. Lucker, who was very wobbly for some months after a long grapple with influenza, pronounces the outlook as highly satisfactory, and already has stamped the present year as the greatest in phonographdom in the Northwest.

Recent receipts of records have helped materially in filling the ranks and supplying the country dealers. The Jacobean, a new Edison model, is being shown and is making a real hit among lovers of period styles.

On the word of William L. Sprague, manager of the Minneapolis branch of the Columbia Graphophone Co., it will be stated that the March business for the branch was greater by $30,000 than the best monthly record previously placed on the books. Just what that means may not be so easy to ascertain, but a monthly increase of $30,000 is hardly a trivial matter, for twelve like that would make a third of a million for a year. General Sales Manager George W. Hopkins was up for two days to talk to the big "Better Business" congress, where he scored a distinct hit, and to look over the Columbia distributing plant for the Northwest. He was followed by F. S. Binger, formerly assistant manager in the Minneapolis district, but now a valuable road man.

George Mairs, head of W. J. Dyer & Bro.'s talking machine department, and E. F. O'Neill, of the Beckwith-O'Neill Co., desire to be remembered to the big moguls of the Victor Talking Machine Co., with a reminder that the gentle folks of Minnesota and the Dakotas could use a great many more Victor machines and records than they are able to obtain, either through prayer or the use of money. At the same time machines and records are filtering into this territory somewhat more plentifully, and the distributors are mustering more hope.

Jay H. Wheeler, manager of the Pathé phonograph department of G. Sommers & Co., spent considerable time at the Chicago headquarters a fortnight ago. He has some extensive plans for enlarging the Pathé field in this section of the United States, and is hopeful that his plans will work out the right way.

Manager E. L. Jern, who distributes the Brunswick machines over several States, is well occupied with the continued onrush of new business. Of late he has been unable to open any new accounts, as the goods were not available, but the chances are that the famine is about ended.

STEINWAY & SONS WIN SUIT OVER "STEINOLA" TRADEMARK

Steinola Co., of Kansas City, Restrained From Using the Name "Steinola" on Talking Machines—
Decision Rendered by Examiner of Interferences, U. S. Patent Office

An interesting decision was handed down recently by J. Carnes, Examiner of Interferences, U. S. Patent Office, whereby the Steinola Co., of Kansas City, Mo., is restrained from using the word "Steinola" on its talking machines. Steinway & Sons, New York, asked that the application of the Steinola Co. for registration of the mark "Steinola" be refused and the Examiner of Interferences has sustained this opposition. C. P. Goepel appeared for Steinway & Sons in this application.

This decision, which is of considerable interest to the talking machine and piano industries, reads as follows:

"In this opposition Steinway & Sons are asking that the application of the Steinola Co. for registration of the mark 'Steinola' for use on phonographs or talking machines be refused. Both parties have taken testimony.

"The opposer has shown use of the words 'Steinway & Sons' on pianos for a period long prior to any date claimed by the applicant for the making and selling of phonographs.

"The opposer contends that the public seeing the word 'Steinola' on phonographs or talking machines would be led to believe that it is the product of Steinway & Sons to the damage of the latter. The opposer also alleges that the manufacture and sale of phonographs and talking machines is now recognized as a natural field of expansion for those engaged in the manufacture of pianos and other musical instruments, and that great confusion would result in case the opposer began manufacturing and selling phonographs and talking machines under the name 'Steinway' if the same goods were being marketed by the applicant company under the name 'Steinola.'

"Evidence has been submitted on behalf of Steinway & Sons as to the high character of its product, care in manufacture, wide distribution, extensive advertising, and the favorable reputation which it has gained. Several witnesses produced on behalf of the opposer testified that, in their opinion, phonographs or talking machines are goods of the same descriptive properties as pianos, the principal reason advanced for this conclusion being that pianos and phonographs are both musical instruments and can be employed for purposes of pleasure and entertainment.

"The witnesses De Wesse and Gist, who are respectively the president and the secretary-treasurer of the applicant company, testify as to the adoption of the name 'Steinola' after a conference with a friend of theirs, a painter by the name of Stein. This was corroborated by Stein, who says that he received a share of stock in the company in return for the permission to use his name. This was the first venture of Gist and De Wesse in the manufacturing of musical instruments and the former testifies that before the name 'Steinola' was adopted or was used he made an investigation to ascertain if possible whether any other manufacturer was putting out phonographs or talking machines under a mark similar to 'Steinola.' Gist says that he did not learn of any phonograph that was being marketed with a name similar to 'Steinola.' This witness, however, states that he sought to find out if Steinway & Sons were making and selling phonographs. On cross-examination he testifies as follows (No. 7, p. 43):

"What made you make inquiries at that time, namely, when you incorporated, or before, as to whether or not the Steinway Co. was making phonographs?"

"A. As I stated before, we wanted a name that was as distinctive and individual as possible, and I thought if anyone was manufacturing a phonograph under a similar name it would most likely be the Steinway people.

"Testimony has been introduced to show that several piano manufacturers are also marketing phonographs (Opposer's Rec., p. 24, Q. 16). The great demand for phonographs and the expiration of certain patents relating thereto are given as reasons by some of the witnesses for the probable future production of phonographs by other piano manufacturers (Opposer's Rec., p. 82, Q. 27; p. 62, Q. 10).

"The applicant contends that pianos and phonographs are goods of different descriptive properties, and that no confusion would arise as between the use of the word 'Steinway' on pianos and the word 'Steinola' on phonographs. No evidence is of record to show that purchasers have been led to buy applicant's goods in the belief that they were obtaining instruments made by the opposer company. However, the increasing popularity and sales of phonographs and talking machines has been referred to by the witnesses and it has been pointed out that this fact together with the expiration of certain patents relating to phonographs has brought many new concerns into this field, amongst which are several piano manufacturers. In the recent case of The Thomas Manufacturing Co. v. The Aeolian Co. (249 O. G., 505), decided by the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, February 4, 1918, the Court said in part:

"This court has frequently held that because the field of selection is so very wide, practically unlimited, there is no good reason why a person should be permitted to select a trademark similar to one already in use by another engaged in a business of the same general nature where the likely effect would be to lead to confusion concerning the goods themselves or their origin (Wayne County Preserving Co. v. Burt Olney Canning Co., 32 App. D. C., 279; 140 O. G. 1003; Phoenix Paint and Varnish Co. v. John T. Lewis & Bros. Co., 32 App. D. C. 285; 139 O. G., 990; Kaut-Reith Shoe Co. v. International Shoe Co., 45 App. D. C., 545; 239 O. G. 939; Goodrich Drug Co. v. Casseda Mfg. Co., 46 App. D. C., 146; 237 O. G. 918). In the Goodrich case it was held that 'Velvetina' applied to the same character of goods as 'Velvete' would be likely to cause perplexity in trade and therefore was not registrable. Assume that a person who had a good opinion derived from use or otherwise of an automatically-operated organ produced by the Aeolian Company and marked "Orchestrelle" desires to purchase a phonograph (The Aeolian Co., as we have seen, now produces phonographs) and is shown one marked "Orchestrola," would he not be likely to think it was produced by the same company as produced the organ and buy it on that account?"

"As to the question of the similarity of the words 'Steinway' and 'Steinola,' consideration will be given to the fact that manufacturers of self-playing musical instruments such as talking machines and self-playing pianos often coin or adopt names or marks ending with the syllable 'ola.' Reference is made in the record to such words as 'Victrola,' 'Pianola,' 'Grafonola' and 'Carola.'

"From the evidence submitted, and in view of the ruling in The Thomas Manufacturing Co. v. The Aeolian Co., supra, it is believed that in the trade phonographs or talking machines and pianos possess properties and uses so similar that the use of the marks 'Steinola' and 'Steinway,' respectively, thereon, would damage the opposer within the meaning of Section 7 of the Trade Mark Act of February 20, 1905.

"The opposition is, therefore, sustained, and it is adjudged that the applicant, The Steinola Co., is not entitled to the registration for which it has made application.

"Limit of appeal: April 11, 1919. J. Carnes, Examiner of Interferences."

WILL REMOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

The Bliss Reproducer Co., successor to the D. M. Bliss Co., and the Wilson-Laird Phonograph Co., has advised the trade that it will move its executive and sales offices on May 1 from 29 West Thirty-fourth street to 80 Fifth avenue, New York. The factory and manufacturing offices will also be located at this address, and H. F. Thornell, sales manager of the company, will conduct this important branch of the business from the company's new home. The present offices at 29 West Thirty-fourth street will be maintained as general retail offices and manufacturers' display rooms.

Which of the two powers can raise man to the most sublime heights, love or music? once asked Hector Berlioz, who thus replied: It is a great problem. Yet, meseems, we should say this: Love can give no idea of music; music can give an idea of love. . . . Why separate the two? They are the two wings of the soul. —Hector Berlioz, Memoires.

KNOWLEDGE OF RECORD CATALOG ESSENTIAL TO SALESMEN

Thorough Familiarity With All the Music Offered in Record Form Serves to Add Greatly to the Value of Salesman's Services—Knowledge That Is Easily Acquired

Some interesting and valuable comments on the value to the talking machine salesman of a thorough knowledge of the record catalog are offered in the following article taken from "The Voice of the Victor" for March:

During a recent conversation with the star salesman of a large retail grocery concern we asked to what single factor he attributed his success. "To my thorough knowledge of my Catalog," he said. He then told us that the other salesmen in his store had as much selling ability as he and were just as industrious, but had never taken the trouble to attain a thorough knowledge of the Catalog, and for that reason none of them had the following he had or drew as fat an envelope at the end of the week. Since then we have been doing a little investigating, and find that the Victor record salesmen who have the best knowledge of the Victor Record Catalog are the best and highest-paid salesmen. On several occasions, when we noticed customers waiting for a particular clerk, we asked why they preferred that salesman to any other in the store. They invariably answered that he knew just what records to suggest without referring to the Catalog, and could give an interesting description of the music of most any Victor record.

The question then naturally arose as to what constituted a good working knowledge of the Victor Record Catalog. After questioning several successful salesmen on this point we decided that a salesman should know at least fifteen records of each big Red Seal artist, fifteen violin selections of a diversified character, ten standard songs, ten quartets, ten band selections, ten orchestra selections, ten dance records, five monologues, five 'cello solos and at least three or four records of every instrument, combination of instruments, voices, etc., not mentioned above and contained in the Victor Catalog. And that in each instance the salesman should be able to give the Catalog number, title of selection, name and biography of both the composer and artist, and a short description of the music—pointing out its unique and interesting features. This may seem like rather a large program, but would, after all, be only a working knowledge of a very small part of the Catalog.

Such a knowledge could easily be acquired during spare moments by following the method generally employed by an opera singer in memorizing a role. This he does by singing the first phrase over and over until absolutely fixed in mind and then learning the second phrase in the same way. Before going on to the third phrase he repeats the first and second phrases together many times, and after the third phrase is memorized repeats all three phrases several times before attempting to learn the fourth. Thus when the last phrase of his rôle is learned in this way he is able to start at the beginning and sing through the entire rôle from memory. He must then rehearse the rôle musically and dramatically many times before he is ready to appear before the public.

The record salesman should first select fifteen records of some artist which he wishes to have in his sales repertoire. Suppose that artist is Caruso, and the first three records on the list are 88054, 88208 and 88458. Play them over, one by one, on Monday, writing down the unique and interesting features of each in a notebook. Read the biography of the artist and the composer in the Catalog, and, as they are all operatic records, read the story of the operas in the "Victrola Book of the Opera." Play the records as often as possible during the day, always trying to get them from stock without referring to a Catalog. Tuesday morning select these records from stock without referring to a Catalog or to your notebook for the numbers, and proceed to sell them to an imaginary customer—calling attention to all the features of the records which made them interesting to you, giving a verbal description of the scene in the opera in which the arias occur, etc. Then select the next three records on your list and familiarize yourself with them. Wednesday morning take all six records from stock and sell them to an imaginary customer before playing over the next three on your list. Thursday you will review nine records in this way and learn three new ones, and Friday you will review twelve and learn the last three on the list. On Saturday review all fifteen, and on Monday of the next week start in on a list of some other artist's records, etc., through the Catalog. The salesman who can weave a little story about a record has it half sold before the turntable starts to revolve, and customers soon have confidence in such a man and rely on his suggestions when selecting new records. One saleslady, who has acquired a most extensive knowledge of the Victor Catalog and who entered the business absolutely green a little less than a year ago, drew a commission check for $300 for records sold by her during December, 1918.

WANT TO GET BACK LOST RELIGION

The experience of the majority of phonograph dealers is that customers who are compelled to wait any length of time for certain records become hard to placate. The Wilmot Drug Co., of Wilmot, S. D., however, had a unique and interesting experience along this line in the receipt of a letter which read as follows:

"Just before Xmas we sent you an order and money for 24 records. We received 16 and are patiently waiting for the remainder. If you haven't got what we sent for, pick out 8 good hymns, and we will try to get back the religion we have lost while waiting for those records." Can you beat it?

CHAS. J. WETZEL WITH EMERSON CO.

Prominent Talking Machine Man Appointed Manager of Production of the Emerson Phonograph Co.—Well Known in the Trade

Charles J. Wetzel has just joined the forces of Emerson Phonograph Co. to take complete charge as manager of production. He was for fifteen years connected with, and for a great many years production manager of, various departments of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Orange, N. J., and subsequently production manager of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., Brooklyn, N. Y. He left his position with Pathé to take service under the Government in the Aviation Corps of the army.

Mr. Wetzel is one of the most experienced men on production in the phonograph business in the United States, and the Emerson Phonograph Co. feels that in securing his services it has taken a big step forward.

In announcing Mr. Wetzel's appointment an officer of the Emerson Phonograph Co. said:

"In maintaining the policy of getting out 'hits' before anyone else it is necessary to have a man in command who understands every element necessary to produce Speed (spelling it with a capital 'S') and as well an expert in all things that go for excellence in quality in the manufacturing end of the business. We have secured such a man in Mr. Wetzel."

"The Voice," a monthly magazine issued by the Gramophone, Ltd., of London, England, recently carried a late portrait of T. Edens Osborne, the prominent factor of Belfast, Ireland, who is credited with being the first to introduce "His Master's Voice" machines into Ireland in 1898. Since that time Mr. Osborne has built up a business that has won him international recognition.

Judging from the splendid business reports received at the Columbia executive offices during the past few weeks, Mr. Pennington will be obliged to listen to one unanimous demand for merchandise in order to meet the call for Columbia merchandise throughout the country.

TO ACCEPT LIBERTY BONDS AT PAR

Members of Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association Believe Such a Move to Be a Patriotic Duty in View of Coming Drive

St. Louis, Mo., April 5.—"Sacrifice the discount on Liberty Bonds to help put over the Victory Loan" is the view taken by members of the Tri-State Victor Dealers' Association. Following a special meeting on April 3 at which sixty persons were present, the Association sent out an appeal to its members to allow face values on Liberty Bonds until the Victory Loan campaign. It was emphasized that this was "patriotism, not business."

The Tri-State Association was one of the first talking machine organizations to suggest to its members that Liberty Bonds be accepted only at market value. This advice apparently has been consistently followed. Now the change is suggested to "help the Government and the war." The members present said that they would sacrifice such of their profits as this change required for the good of the cause.

MILWAUKEE TRADE CONTINUES ACTIVE

New Selling Records Being Broken by Both Jobbers and Dealers—Increased Supplies of Goods Quickly Absorbed—New Concerns Entering Talking Machine Field—Other News

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 12.—The active condition of talking machine and phonograph business in the local retail trade during the last half of March and thus far in April, and, in fact, since January 1, continues to be one of the principal topics of interest. It is safe to say that in no past year, has business been so good as during the last three and one-half months. At the same time a persistent shortage of merchandise has been the only limiting factor.

The continued shortage of instruments, records and accessories probably would not be so apparent if the demand were not so active. But the fact remains that in general the supply has not been equal to the demand for more than a year's time, and dealers can only live in hopes that the output must soon grow to be more commensurate with requirements.

Just how long the sold-up condition will last is conjectural, but local dealers can discern nothing on the horizon that would lead them to believe that business will be anything but good for a long time to come. Only a part of the demand of the last six months or a year has been filled, and it will take a long time to satisfy the requirements of those who daily are disappointed in their effort to get immediate delivery of instruments.

The local jobbers, who as a rule work the territory embraced by the State of Wisconsin and northern Peninsula of Michigan, have not been able to catch up with orders; in fact, back orders on hand to-day are nearly as heavy as a month ago. Usually at the middle of April the jobbing trade has been able to accumulate a reasonable quantity of stock to carry it over the spring and summer period, but this year the wareroom floors have practically been bare since long before the holidays. While receipts since the beginning of the year have shown a gradual increase, as the factories are better able to handle business, goods have been moving out to the retail trade so rapidly that the bulk of machines have not touched the wareroom floors, being remarked and reshipped upon arrival.

The shortage of goods is probably more pronounced in the Victor line than others. Harry A. Goldsmith, secretary of the Badger Talking Machine Co., 135 Second street, Victor jobber, says that while the Victor factory production has been expanded daily since the reversion of the industry to a peace basis, the demands of dealers in the Badger Co.'s territory have grown even more rapidly. This condition has lasted so long that it has become difficult to even hope for relief.

The Phonograph Co., Edison jobber in Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, reports unusually active business, especially considering the season. The supply is somewhat improved, but it is not yet equal to requirements. The company has recently moved into its new quarters at 51 Oneida street, this city, where it has larger office and stockroom space to accommodate its rapidly growing trade. Several months ago the Edison Shop, which was the retail end of the business, was discontinued in line with the general policy of divorcement of jobbing and retail business and to enable the company to concentrate on the wholesale trade exclusively. William A. Schmidt is general manager of the company.

The Yahr & Lange Drug Co., 207-215 East Water street, Sonora distributor in Wisconsin and northern Michigan, finds that the enlargement of factory output is relieving the shortage to some extent, but its business has been expanding so fast that each improvement in the supply is quickly absorbed by the volume of demand from the retail trade.

One of the busiest jobbing houses in Milwaukee is the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., 275-279 West Water street, of which Thomas I. Kidd is manager. The Brunswick has become one of the most popular instruments in the field, and in spite of the careful selection of dealers requirements of the territory are much broader than ever before. Milwaukee retailers of the Brunswick report that their volume of business has never been better than this year.

Manufacturers at Milwaukee are constantly enlarging their capacities, but do not seem to make a satisfactory impression upon back orders. The Milwaukee Talking Machine Co., despite enlargement of its plant in recent weeks, is still compelled to decline some business. The General Mfg. Corp., the latest to enter the industry, is fairly swamped with business from all parts of the country. Other factories are kept operating at the utmost limit of capacity, yet they cannot meet all demands.

One of the finest Sonora shops in the United States is embraced in the project undertaken by the C. W. Fischer Furniture Co., 217-223 Second street, this city, which has been retailing this line with much success for the past year or more. Ground has been broken for an addition which will duplicate the original nine-story building, fifty by one hundred and fifty feet in size, giving a frontage of 100 feet, from 213 to 223 Second street. With the development of the Sonora department particularly in view, the Fischer Co. some time ago acquired the services of Miss Helen Gunnis as manager, with a commission to completely reorganize the department on a much larger and broader basis. Miss Gunnis, who is one of the ablest and best known women in the phonograph trade, is progressing rapidly with the plan, which will be carried out in full as soon as the large store addition is ready for occupancy. Miss Gunnis is widely known as a singer and has done much recording work for the Columbia and Aeolian-Vocalion laboratories. She formerly was manager of the Music Shop, 312 Grand avenue, re-

The Gether Piano Co., 625 Grand avenue, and the A. J. Bruett Piano Co., 553 Mitchell street, both retailing the Pathé line, recently effected a consolidation. For the present the two stores will be operated under their present individual names, although the ownership is the same. The Gether Co. has increased its capital to $200,000 and eventually will be the holding or financing corporation. The Bruett Co. has increased its capital to $25,000 and will be the retailing company. In addition to the Pathé the two concerns handle two private brands. A. J. Bruett is president and general manager.

The Milwaukee store of the Rudolph Wur-litzer Co. at 525 Grand avenue, in the Palace Theatre Building, recently added a complete Victrola department, the nucleus of which was formed by the purchase of the business of the Gensch-Smith Co., 730 Grand avenue, one of the oldest Victor shops in the city.

Art. B. Meyers, Edison dealer and jeweler, 460 Eleventh avenue, sustained a considerable fire loss on March 16, forcing him to take temporary quarters at 453 Eleventh avenue, across the street. H. L. Meyer, Victor and piano dealer, occupying a store in the same building, also sustained damage, mainly from smoke and water.

Richard H. Zinke, president of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., has returned from a three weeks' stay at Excelsior Springs, Mo., and has resumed a national trade promotion campaign on the Record-Lite and Record needles and other accessories and supplies. Mr. Zinke retired March 1 as manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, following the acquirement of the business by Leslie C. Parker, until then manager of the Victor department at Gimbel Bros. Mr. Zinke then assumed the general management of the Record Needle & Mfg. Co., in which he had been a large stockholder since its organization. Under his direction the general offices and the factory on the fourth floor of the Manhattan Building have been materially enlarged and the output greatly increased. Mr. Zinke is president of the Milwaukee Association of Music Industries.

The only exclusive Edison store in Milwaukee will open May 1 at 1216 Walnut street, under the management of Frank Preuss, who was for six years a member of the George H. Eichholz Co., 542 Twelfth street, Edison and Victor dealer. Mr. Preuss retired from the company on January 1, when Mrs. Eichholz became sole owner and active manager of the business. The Frank Preuss Co., capital stock $10,000, has been incorporated to establish the new Edison store.

Edmund Gram, Aeolian-Vocalion distributor and dealer and Steinway representative, left March 27 for a two or three weeks' recreation trip. He suffered an attack of influenza early in March and hopes to return thoroughly recuperated.

Leslie C. Parker, president and general manager of the Badger Talking Machine Shop, Victor dealer, took a leading part in the campaign to raise $35,000 to complete the 1919 budget of the Milwaukee Y. M. C. A., which was held from March 25 to April 5.

The Winslow-Butler Co. succeeds George M. Winslow, piano and phonograph dealer, Ovitt Block, Waukesha, Wis. George H. Butler, of Waukesha, has purchased a half interest in the business.

Capitalizing Customer's Friendship as an Aid to Securing Future Business :: By Courtenay Harrison

The matter of keeping in touch with the parties to whom you have sold talking machines in order that you may secure future business on records and accessories from them is an important one, and a discussion of ways and means of perpetuating this contact is always of interest.

Of course it is understood that no wide-awake dealer these days overlooks entirely the opportunity to do business right along with the people who are already upon his books. At the same time, however, when the sale of a machine is consummated for cash and is delivered at the customer's home a good many stores consider that a nice cash sale has been put across, and let it go at that, figuring that the customer will not be a purchaser of a talking machine again at any early date, and if he or she wants any records they will naturally drift back to the store which supplied them with their machine; truth to tell, this is more often than not the very thing that does happen, because it is human nature to come back to the same hotel, the same store or the same town, as the case may be.

Some stores do, however, go considerably farther in stirring up business with old customers. They send out the record booklets, occasional form letters, or some other form of literature to "keep in touch"—to sell records principally.

There is a way, though, in which dealers can capitalize the friendship of old customers to bring new and big sales not only of records, but machines also. And this means not only the customer who is kept in mind because he is paying for his machine "on time," but also the customer who buys for cash. Neither of these classes of purchasers should be lost track of for a minute. Instead the name of each customer and date machine was purchased should be carefully set down in a "follow-up" book. If possible a card index really should be used. A phonograph dealer in Indiana uses the latter system, and here is how he makes it produce sales:

Say that Mrs. Smith comes in on the 15th of March and buys a talking machine. Her name and the day she purchased her instrument is placed upon a card, and it is filed under the date ten days ahead, viz., the 25th of March. On that day one of the salesmen whose duty it is to do this either calls her up or if business permits he drops into the home in person. Chances are, of course, that he has a lot of similar "prospects" to see the same day. But we will take Mrs. Smith as a specific instance of showing how he goes about his work. First, he asks her if she likes the machine and if it is giving entire satisfaction, and after a little more such chat he inquires if any friends have been in to hear it play. Often this gets valuable tips as to possible customers, because people are naturally proud of a machine, especially the first few weeks after its purchase, and they are inclined to wish to show it off to neighbors. If the merchant who sold them is "on the job" in the way I have outlined there is a world of information he can get in this way. It is perfectly true, of course, that everyone who is reported to the dealer as having admired Mrs. Smith's new talking machine is not a possible customer, but they are worth following up, for a certain percentage of them are bound to be good prospects to work on.

But to return to our card index. The date on which Mrs. Smith was visited is set down on the card which contains her record, and also the names of the prospects she gave are typed on it. Literature is sent to all of them. In fact, a salesman calls if this can be arranged. Supposing that one of these prospects is sold a machine. Mrs. Smith immediately receives a letter asking her to call and select a couple of nice records, "as we are glad to report that one of the prospective customers you referred us to has made a purchase of us, and we wish to show our appreciation of your courtesy." Naturally this seals the friendship of Mrs. Smith, and she begins to spread propaganda for the store now in earnest. This method, as stated, has worked up almost an endless chain of boosters and business.

Still another plan of getting tips from old customers is in use. Whenever a machine is being sent out the "follow-up" book is consulted, and the delivery man is given the names of one or two old customers in the same neighborhood where he is to deliver an instrument. He calls on these old customers, oils up their machine, explaining that he was in the neighborhood and wanted to drop in and see how it was doing. If the machine does not need oiling he has a jar of furniture polish along and brightens it up a bit—does anything just to get a chance to show the old customer that she is not forgotten and that the store appreciates her business. Incidentally she is "pumped" for information about prospects, and in nine out of ten cases is able to give at least a couple of tips that prove valuable for following up.

Incidentally she is "pumped" for information about prospects, and in nine out of ten cases is able to give at least a couple of tips that prove valuable for following up.

I asked the dealer who told me of these plans, which may not be entirely new but which I believe are a bit more methodically followed out than some, if he was not "looking for trouble" when he pays later visits to the home asking if the machine is "doing all right."

Here was his answer: "I should say not. It is entirely true that often there is some kick about the machine, but these things are just what we want, because it gives us a chance to make a friend and a booster. Do you know that a great many people will have something go wrong with a machine, maybe some minor ailment, but they figure there is no use trying to get anything done from the store, as they have paid for the machine and the transaction is closed. The result is they stay away from your store and become knockers. And, as everyone knows, one knocker will go out of her way to 'run down' your store, while your boosters, for the most part, will only praise you when some 'lead' is given to draw it out. So we hunt down the knocks and straighten them out. Often when we stop at an old customer's while in her neighborhood and make inquiries about her machine there is one little thing wrong that we can straighten in a jiffy, and we have made a friend for life. Even if there is something badly wrong we can fix it and make whatever charge is necessary. The customer appreciates the service and attention to her as an individual so much she is willing to pay whatever is right.

"Yes, we consider every name of an old customer a valuable asset toward getting new business, not only for records, but machines as well, and we take care of this list of names for that reason."

The C. C. Beedle Piano Co., Keene, N. H., has made some extensive changes in its store and has installed four sound-proof booths for the demonstration of Victrolas and records.

RECORD ARTISTS CONCERTIZE IN PITTSBURGH DISTRICT

Headed by Henry Burr They Draw Capacity Audiences at Nine Concerts Held Under Auspices of Talking Machine Jobbers and Dealers—Expansion the Rule With Pittsburgh Dealers

PITTSBURGH, PA., April 7.—One of the most important events in talking machine circles in Pittsburgh and adjacent territory the past month was the appearance of the Peerless Talking Machine Artists, headed by Henry Burr, in a series of their inimitable entertainments. They were in western Pennsylvania for ten days and gave nine concerts, which were liberally patronized. Hundreds of persons who had records made by one or more of the artists turned out to give the entertainers a hearty welcome. In every town in which the Peerless entertainers appeared the hall in which they held forth was taxed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the crowds that thronged to see and hear them. In Pittsburgh the concert was held in Syria Mosque Saturday evening, March 22, and over 2,800 persons attended the performance. The audience seemingly never tired of hearing the songs, music and recitations and insisted by vociferous applause in demanding the return time and time again of every one of the men on the program. The Pittsburgh Dispatch, one of the leading daily newspapers of the State, spoke in flattering terms of the Peerless aggregation.

Much credit is due P. W. Simon, the well-known talking machine Victrola dealer of Uniontown, Pa., for his efforts and work in making the appearance of the Peerless artists in this section a success. Mr. Simon gave personal attention to the arrangements and bookings and had the satisfaction of seeing his plans work out to his entire satisfaction. He was the recipient of hearty congratulations by the talking machine dealers of Pittsburgh and the other cities and towns in which the Peerless entertainers appeared. Two extra performances were given, one each at East Liverpool, O., and Tarentum, Pa. The sales of records, especially those made by the Peerless artists, were phenomenal. It is safe to say that on a return engagement the Peerless party will be received with open arms.

The Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, through their service department, aided in a very material manner in providing publicity matter, etc., to Victor dealers in the various towns that were visited by the Peerless artists. This service was gratuitous and was highly appreciated by the Victor dealers.

The close approach of Easter is being utilized by the various talking machine dealers of the city to direct the attention of the public and their record patrons in particular to the very excellent series of records that have been provided by the Victor, Columbia, Edison, Pathé and Starr companies for Easter. These records, while all of a religious nature, are in keeping with the great festival of Christendom and have an especial appeal to those who observe it.

S. H. Nichols, manager of the Pittsburgh Columbia offices, was quite enthusiastic over the March business in Columbia Grafonolas and records, stating that the sales of March, 1918, had been far excelled. Mr. Nichols anticipates one of the most prosperous spring seasons in the history of the Pittsburgh office.

A. B. Smith, assistant manager of the local Columbia offices, is receiving congratulations on the advent of a baby girl into his home, who has been named Nancy Johanna Smith. She, too, has the best wishes of the Columbia force for a long and happy life.

J. J. Murray, the efficient and progressive manager of the Victrola department of Spear & Co., stated to The World representative that trade conditions in Victor records and Victrolas were in keeping with the amount of merchandise that his department was receiving, and said that for some time past Victrolas were sold about as fast as they were received. Mr. Murray has under his supervision a very well-arranged showroom and demonstration department, which is located on the second floor of the Spear Building. There are seventeen booths and three Victrola exhibition rooms, which are occupied practically all the time by patrons.

J. H. Phillips, the well-known North Side Victrola dealer, has introduced a new method for the purpose of acquainting his customers and others with the new Victor records. On receipt of the monthly list Mr. Phillips sends out invitations asking the recipient to attend a Victor recital at his demonstration rooms. At these concerts all of the new records are played, and also any other Victor records that are asked for by the audience. Mr. Phillips is a very enterprising dealer, and has one of the most up-to-date Victor shops in this section.

The need of larger quarters in order to take care of their increasing business in Starr phonographs and Gennett records has caused the Starr Phonograph Co., of Pennsylvania, to announce that on and after May 1 the new offices and showrooms of the company will be located at 811 Liberty avenue. At the new location the Starr Co. will occupy the second and third floors. H. C. Niles, secretary and treasurer, stated that the Starr phonographs and Gennett records were enjoying large sales, and that new clients were eager to join the list of Starr dealers.

"Sales of Pathé machines and Pathé records have been very large during the past month," said H. J. Brennan, manager of the Pittsburgh Pathéphone Co., "and I anticipate that the demand will keep up for some time, due to the popularity of the Pathé machines and the liberal advertising campaign that is being carried on to show the public the merits and advantages of the Pathé Pathéphones and Pathé records." Mr. Brennan the past week made a trip through central and western Pennsylvania and West Virginia calling on the Pathé dealers.

THE LIBERTY PHONOGRAPH COMPANY

Like fine painting or jewelry does not come in bulk

AS in masterpieces of art, the superiority of this record is the result of infinite pains and faith in the inherent desire of men and women to have the best that human minds and hands can make.

It is not a record for people who like the cheap, the tawdry, the commonplace,—but for those who appreciate and cherish the fine and beautiful things in life.

The output of this record, like the output of the Rolls-Royce car, is limited because master work can not be done in quantity.

We recommend that distributors write us, planning six months in advance to handle The New Lateral Record.

exclusive Sonora jobbers, is cozily installed in a handsome and attractive office in the Jenkins Arcade. The office is well adapted to the showing of the Sonora phonograph, and Mr. Miller has a fine assortment of Sonoras in the display windows. He stated that trade was in keeping with the amount of Sonora machines that he could secure, and that dealers were eagerly clamoring for Sonora wares. Frank J. Coupe, director of sales and advertising of the Sonora Phonograph Sales Co., Inc., of New York, was a caller at the Pittsburgh offices. He reported the prospects for Sonora sales as excellent, stating that the demand exceeds expectations.

Immediately opposite the Sonora jobbing office Gray & Martin, well-known Sonora retail dealers, have their handsomely appointed offices and display rooms. The firm are staunch believers in advertising, and ascribe in no small manner their success with the Sonora in the newspaper advertising that they have done. A feature that is causing hundreds of persons to hear the sweet strains of the Sonora and one that is attracting a great deal of attention and favorable comment is the noonday concert that this firm gives the public six days a week. Promptly at noon the large Sonora phonograph that stands on the balcony adjoining the Gray & Martin office is started, and the music is heard by the large throngs of persons who, at the noon hour, are constantly passing to and fro through the main floor of the arcade. Many tarry a few minutes to listen, others ascertain where the music comes from and make a trip up the elevator to see what make of instrument is furnishing the free entertainment. Quite a few sales of Sonora phonographs have been made in this way.

That the Cheney phonograph is making itself felt as a factor in the music life of the city was evidenced at the Cheney showrooms of the Dauler-Close Furniture Co. The company report sales of Cheney as quite brisk, the only handicap being the lack of sufficient instruments to meet immediate requirements. The firm have well-arranged showrooms on the seventh floor of their large building, and these are constantly crowded with prospective patrons.

The Kaufmann & Baer Co., exclusive Aeolian-Vocalion dealers, are having notable sales of Aeolian-Vocalions. Manager Hornberger, who is in charge of the department, stated that the phonograph's many exclusive features are selling points that are speedily recognized by customers. The Kaufmann & Baer Aeolian-Vocalion show and demonstration rooms are attractively fitted up, and a brisk season is looked for by Mr. Hornberger.

Newton B. Heims, manager of the local offices of the Brooks Mfg. Co., is the proud father of a new son, Newton B. Heims, Jr., and is receiving the congratulations of his many friends.

A. A. Buehn, of the Buehn Phonograph Co., Edison distributors, returned from a visit to the Edison plant at Orange, N. J. He stated that the company was making every effort to fill the many orders that were piling up. Mr. Buehn, in speaking for the trade in the Pittsburgh district, stated that the Edison dealers all reported a brisk trade, and that their business was only limited by the number of Edison phonographs and Edison records they could secure. The Buehn Co. is located in the heart of the downtown business section, and their retail department is one of the most attractive in the city.

J. A. Endres, sales manager in this district of the Brunswick phonograph, is spending several days in Chicago at the Brunswick headquarters for the purpose of securing more deliveries. Trade conditions have been very good, Mr. Endres stated, and would have been intensified had the local distributing office been able to furnish all of the phonographs that dealers asked for. Mr. Endres stated that he was very hopeful that a change for the better would be on by the late spring. He anticipates a big demand for the Brunswick in his territory, basing this on the many repeat orders sent in by local dealers.

Jacob Hirsh, manager of the Emerson record sales offices in the Jenkins Arcade, was in New York on a business trip. He stated that the demand for Emerson records was quite active.

J. C. Roush, president of the Standard Talking Machine Co., Victor distributors, is still sojourning in Florida with his family.

A new and enlarged music department has been opened by the Woodrum Home Outfitting Co., 602 Virginia street, Charleston, W. Va.

Shortage of Edison Machines Due in Large Measure to Patriotic Activities of Plant During the War—Getting Back to Normal

In the current issue of Edison Diamond Points, the house organ of the New Edison and Edison Re-creations, appears an article headed "Our War Record," which reads in part:

"It is not the intention of the Edison manufacturing laboratories to lay great emphasis on the war work which was done here. The work which we did represented no more than our duty. We are now making every effort to restore our manufacture of phonographs to a pre-war basis and it will not be long before we attain full momentum.

"We know that every dealer has lost some business because of the shortage of Edison phonographs. We appreciate the patience and consideration you have shown and we intend to make every effort to supply you this year with all the goods you need, provided you anticipate your requirements in timely season."

Featuring the Musical Possibilities of the Talking Machine

By William Braid White

[NOTE.—This is the twenty-fifth of a series of articles on the general subject of the musical possibilities of the talking machine. The aim of the series is to develop these possibilities from all angles, thus opening up fields for sales expansion oftentimes neglected wholly or in part.—Editor.]

THE FIELD OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

The function of the library is to educate, to contribute in every legitimate way to the furtherance of all cultural activities for the people. The mere amassment of books does not in itself make a library a useful institution, for books unread are in effect no books at all. Just so, the function of a library as an institution which not only collects books but also helps the community to use its collections rightly is one which, more and more, is coming to the front. But the talking machine dealer or salesman who reads these words may ask himself what a library, as such, has to do with talking machines or discussions of library purposes with a talking machine paper. Let us see.

Records and Books

What is a talking machine record, if not a book? Or, to put the matter in a better way, what is the book but one form of that record of language or expression of which the book is another form? What reason then can be found for objecting to the idea of associating the talking machine with the public library? In point of fact, we shall soon see that we have simply brought into view a very fruitful and in every way novel field for the expansion of the talking machine business.

The possibilities for the expansion of the talking machine industry are but imperfectly envisaged, I think it fair to say, even by those who rank as the most far-seeing. The industry has expanded so marvelously during recent years that the relative narrowness of its lines of direction has not always been perceived. Yet the fact is that the uses of the sound record and the possibilities of expanding the existing uses are almost unlimited. Along with the record must necessarily go the talking machine. Here the library and the talking machine dealer are brought close together.

At the present moment the sound record exists chiefly for the purpose of preserving the vocal and instrumental arts in music. To a much smaller extent it preserves speeches or dialogue, while to a still smaller extent it has been utilized for preserving the voices of eminent persons. It is obvious that even to-day there is room in the public library, and indeed a special place for the sound record in all these branches of its existing activity. As the leaders in the industry become better and better aware of the manifold possibilities of their product they will more and more find ways of expanding its use, and new commercial methods for making such uses practical.

Previous Steps

Now public libraries already possess stocks of bound printed music. Some libraries, such as the New York Public Library, are very rich in printed and manuscript musical scores. These are treated as books and like them are available for reference or circulation. There has never been, so far as I know, any disposition to regard the printed score as not the equivalent of a book. In one sense, of course, it is an imperfect equivalent because there is needed a musical instrument to translate the pointed scores into living music. Yet even this need has been met, and we find already in some libraries musical departments where sheet music may be borrowed and even tried out or studied by the aid of a piano, placed in a special room and available for use under proper safeguards.

Rolls

Still further progress has been made elsewhere. The public library at Gary, Ind., has a large collection of music rolls and in addition possesses a player-piano which is open to the public under certain necessary restrictions. In this institution school children are encouraged to use the reading rooms set apart for them, and the city schools work in closest harmony with the librarians, using the library building systematically and persistently. The music rolls come in here with significant and genuine force.

Doubtless there are public libraries in certain parts of the country which have taken up the sound record and the talking machine, but this article embodies a plea for work along these lines much more systematic and aggressive than has ever yet been thought necessary or possible.

It may be a bold statement, but in the light of what has already been accomplished in bringing music and the public library together, what is there wrong about saying that "Every public library should have a collection of the best talking machine records, and a good talking machine with them, for the use of the library—using public and as a legitimate development.

Doing the Work

Here, one ventures to say, is a job for the aggressive talking machine dealer. The procedure to be carried through is not at all unlike that which would be worked in the case of the schools. Not a public library exists in any town, large or small, which does not constitute a prospect for the installation of a musical department devoted to the use of the public, and fitted with a talking machine and a thoroughly complete list of the best records.

This is a fair statement. The public library is not only fair game for the aggressive dealer, but the influence of one machine and a collection of records will be greater even in the library than in the school.

Educating Them

Librarians have to be educated on this subject just as much as school boards sometimes. Most libraries are controlled as to finances by a board appointed in much the same way as a school board. The men and women who sit on these boards—and there are always women—are not usually very musical, and often have no more money than they need for library purposes. But women are learning the use and value of the talking machine more and more clearly all the time, so that it is quite fair to suppose that the dealer will have less difficulty in converting them than he would have with a bunch of politicians. Of course, the basis for all work of this kind is demonstration. The library officials are often prejudiced, but the prejudice is always the result of ignorance. No man or woman who owns a talking machine and buys records steadily would ever object to the use of records in a library for circulation, or to the purchase of a talking machine for use with them. Demonstration of what the library can do with a collection of records and a talking machine is the one thing needed to convert most library boards. It is only a question of money.

Details

Of course, the mere sale of a talking machine and a lot of records is only the beginning of things. No library with self-respect would waste its time on less than 500 records for a start, but even 500 records is only a small lot. There must be constant additions to the collection, and here the advice of the dealer must be given carefully and with an understanding of the needs of the library rather than of his own profits. The technical points involved in the choice of one or another make of record must be considered. In these days of universal sound boxes records may be either hill and dale or lateral cut without causing much difficulty, but the library will naturally think more of the artists and of the music itself than of such matters. Therefore the dealer will do well to avoid any stressing of his own special ideas in this respect, but will see to it that the ideas of the librarian as to choice of records are carried out as far as possible.

A Question

Has any one dealer a right to go to the library people and introduce this subject as if he were alone the representative of the talking machine in his community? Assuredly! For this is a subject which has to be brought up and worked into the consciousness of the prospective buyers until they understand for themselves the nature of the proposition so thoroughly that they will "sell themselves." The man who starts and carries through such an idea is entitled to his modest profit.

But it would be even better if all the dealers in a community could in such a case combine their forces and pool the results. Why not? Because it has not been done yet is no reason why it should not be done. Moreover, so rapidly do things move these days that it might have been done already between the writing of these words and their appearance in print.

H. E. Young, formerly with H. Batterman Co., Brooklyn, is now located in Worcester, Mass. He has had a wide experience in the talking machine field.

The Springfield Music Co., which recently opened a store at 317 Walnut street, Springfield, Mo., will carry a line of talking machines in addition to pianos.

TRI-STATE ASSOCIATION MEETS

Organization Holds Interesting Session in St. Louis and Enjoys Address by Mrs. Clark—New Schedule of Terms Drafted

St. Louis, Mo., April 5.—The Tri-State Victrola Dealers' Association met here the evening of April 3 because on that date John Gregg Payne, of the Victor copyright department, and Mrs. Clark, of the Victor educational department, were in the city. Late on that date Mr. Payne, however, was called to Washington, and Mrs. Clark was the only speaker. But the sixty members present expressed themselves as satisfied with what they had heard for one evening. Mrs. Clark told them the history of the educational department work and outlined what had been done in the eight years since it was undertaken. She told them of the progress made and of the help this movement was now getting from the school teachers. She said that the Victor Co. now regarded the situation as favorable for aggressive action on the part of the dealers and that she hoped they would get a complete understanding of this work, its special records and the general scope so that they might push it for the benefit of what would be accomplished of educational value and also for the profit to themselves and to the factory.

As a special message from the factory Mrs. Clark told the dealers that the last month made a new record for the output of records from the Victor factory and April was expected to reach a record in the number of machines. It was expected, she said, that the factory could place the dealers on a satisfactory stock basis by September, if the amount of back orders had been properly judged.

The association reviewed the suggestions for monthly payments on machines and a new scale was drawn as expressing the ideas of the members of the association. This scale runs from twelve to sixteen months. It does not consider machines of more than $350 value.

It was also decided that a card should be drafted to be placed on machines when prepared for delivery. This card shall state the guarantee. Especial note will be made that claims for "case damage" must be made within three days. Also there will be a list of fair price for standard repairs. The exact text of this card will be drafted within a few days along the lines outlined. Because of the approaching Victory Loan, all merchants agreed to accept Liberty Bonds at face value until that campaign ends.

The dealers present decided that it would be advisable to accept Liberty Bonds at face value until after the campaign for the Fifth Liberty Loan ends. This move, it was explained, was suggested to all dealers as a matter of patriotism, not from a business basis. What recommendation will be made after the Victory Loan campaign ends is not indicated at present.

President Val Reis presided at this meeting. Among the out-of-town dealers present were: E. A. Parks, Hannibal, Mo.; W. Rhein and T. J. Price, of Belleville; Pat Boverre, St. Genevieve, Mo., and Mr. Ferrand, of Granite City, Ill.

NOT TO REBUILD FACTORY

F. A. Knight, of the Knight-Brinkerhoff Amphiphone Talking Machine Co., Brazil, Ind., has announced that his firm will not go ahead with its plans to rebuild that section of the plant which was destroyed by fire last winter. The sales office has been moved to Chicago, and a contract for the manufacture of cabinets has been let to a Charlotte (Mich.) concern.

MUSIC FOR THE HEROES IN BUFFALO

Full Advantage Taken of Return of Troops
From France by Local Talking Machine Dealers—F. E. Russell Heads Adam & Co. Department—Other Changes of Interest

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 5.—"Welcome the boys with cheerful music in the home." This is the keynote of the trade campaigns being conducted by Buffalo's talking machine stores this month. This drive for new business in talking machines and records was especially effective on April 1, when the 108th Infantry and the 106th Field Artillery, formerly the old Seventy-fourth and Sixty-fifth Regiments of this city, arrived here from France. A civic holiday was declared on that date and the talking machine dealers joined with all the other concerns in giving the Buffalo boys, who had seen active service in France, a royal welcome, the talking machine stores being especially decorated for the event. Besides the patriotic banners various signs, such as "Records for Our Soldiers," were displayed in the show windows.

F. E. Russell has been appointed manager of the Victrola department of J. N. Adam & Co. He succeeds William Gardner, who has gone into another line of business. Mr. Russell was formerly manager of the Victrola department of Denholm & McKay, of Worcester, Mass. In Worcester he made a special feature of Victrola concerts and will probably introduce them here. He is co-operating with other local Victrola dealers in the exchange of records, he making out his special list of Victor records every month and some of the other dealers doing the same. This "swapping" of records spells quick service and good profits for dealers using this plan.

F. M. Anderson has taken charge of the repair work of this department.

C. E. Siegesmund, of 632 Main street, reports that he has a representative stock of Victrolas and records. The improvements at his store are progressing rapidly. He will have twelve sound-proof, nicely furnished booths and various other modern equipment. Mr. Siegesmund is making a special feature of service. In circular letters, which he recently sent to his customers, he said in part: "If any record is procurable it will be found at this shop for Victrolas."

L. M. Cole, manager of the talking machine department of the Hoffman Piano Co., distributors of OkeH records in the Buffalo territory, is booming the sale of this stock. He is using a large map that shows scores of tacks representing the location of dealers who have taken on this line. He reports that deliveries are very satisfactory.

Bing & Nathan, furniture dealers, who handle talking machines, have just celebrated their twentieth anniversary.

Adam, Meldrum & Anderson Co., Pathé dealers, recently celebrated their fifty-second anniversary. This firm has one of the largest department stores in the country.

William Turner, who handles the Columbia and Pathé lines, will increase his floor space.

W. Hissler has joined the sales force of Goid Bros., Victrola and Sonora dealers. T. A. Goid recently visited the New York market.

Buffalo newspapers recently played up the report that the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co. would erect a $2,000,000 building in New York City.

Denton, Cottier & Daniels are making a special feature of period Vocalions. This firm was recently visited by John W. Jenkins, of the J. W. Jenkins' Sons Music Co., Kansas City.

George Moessinger, treasurer of C. Kurtzmann & Co., was recently attacked while he was about to enter the factory and robbed of $3,970. Mr. Moessinger was felled with a billy and robbed of the money, the payroll of the Kurtzmann plant. The company has offered a reward of $500 for the capture of the robber.

Columbia records are always given special window space in the jewelry store of Lewin Bros. Co., located in Ellicott Square.

The Evanston Talking Machine Shop has been opened at 922 Chicago avenue, Evanston, Ill., by Vincent Johnson, of that city.

methods that are followed in the Edison enterprises.

"Mr. Edison has always contended," he said, "that there is more science in the selling than in the inventing or making of any article." That fact is reflected in the Edison Co.'s policy in which the sales department has great authority and responsibility.

"It is the business of our phonograph manufacturing department simply to keep the sales department busy. Only on the authority of the sales department is any change in the Edison phonograph ever made. We are obliged to schedule our requirements eight months ahead and we have a staff of what we call dopesters at work relating past performances as racetrack dopesters do. They are right about as often as a racetrack dopester also," he said with a humorous twinkle.

"A department is in constant communication with owners and dealers who sell the instrument. They get about 300 letters a day on which to base their figures and suggestions. Thank heaven—all of them are not complaints!

Co-ordination of Departments

"It is our program to co-ordinate all departments, the designing, manufacturing and the selling departments. Since that policy has been in effect its success has been shown by the fact that not a single change has been made in the phonograph by any of our competitors the nature and effects of which were not known to us before it appeared. It is a fine tribute to the men in our research department.

"Mr. Edison is also a great believer in the importance of careful inspection. He holds that the best of tools, material and workmanship may easily be wasted if the inspection is faulty or careless.

"The campaign of a selling engineer cannot be reduced to blueprints. It must be so elastic. The sales engineer must prepare for the worst when he hopes for the best and be prepared to shift his course to a second or even to a third program if the first goes wrong.

"The responsibility resting on sales departments and advertising men is at least comparable to the responsibility resting on the soldiers in time of war. It is up to you to provide business sufficient to give work to the returning soldiers and to all other worthy people in this time of reconstruction."

Mr. Maxwell's address was heartily applauded and the responsibility apparently accepted with gracious eagerness to serve their country by the assembled sales experts.

NEWHARD GETS EDISON AGENCY

Harry R. Newhard, of Northampton, Pa., has received the sub-agency to handle the Diamond Disc talking machine. The agency will be a branch of the Yeager Furniture Co., Allentown. A large assortment of Edison machines and records will be carried.

PART OF SELLING AND ADVERTISING IN RECONSTRUCTION

Wm. Maxwell, Vice-President of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Makes Stirring Address on This Important Question Before Advertising Convention in Buffalo, N. Y.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 4.—The importance of the selling departments and advertising men during the reconstruction period was emphasized at the Advertising Affiliation convention recently held in Buffalo. This point was driven home by William Maxwell, vice-president of the Thomas A. Edison Co. Mr. Maxwell spoke on "Engineering a Sales Campaign."

"The word engineer is much misused in this country," said Mr. Maxwell, who has charge of the immense sales engineering department of the various Edison enterprises. "First let us have some understanding and agreement as to what we mean by an engineer. My conception of an advertising engineer is somewhat different from the man pictured in the advertisements of the correspondence schools, who casually looks at a blueprint, announces a pronouncement out of the vastness of his catalogued and tabulated wisdom which shall be as precise and as definite as a chemist's formula. My conception is a man of learning, training and modesty, who is not so sure of anything but established fact—and for the most part when fact becomes so well established that it can be announced with cocksure certainty it is no longer of much use to us. Yet he should be sure that nothing is impossible.

"A man who is around Mr. Edison very much is bound to absorb some of his ideas and I claim no exemption. Mr. Edison is looked upon by the average person as a genius. Mr. Edison himself, however, doesn't believe in genius in the popular conception of the word. He believes that genius is composed of one-tenth inspiration and nine-tenths perspiration. The less a doctor, a lawyer or an engineer knows the more likely to be cocksure he is.

"Now, if mechanical engineers cannot be cocksure of their program, how much less can an engineer in salesmanship?

Describes Methods of Edison Plants

"There are two chief classes of enterprises with which the selling engineer has to do. First the class where the sales department sells whatever the factory can make, and, second, the class which determines what can be sold and then has the factory make it."

After describing an experience with a factory of the first class in which he had launched what he called a campaign of impudence in which the prospective buyers were pompously invited to a hotel to inspect the new article to be sold and which it developed that only the merchants bought and which they never resold, Mr. Maxwell described something of the

SALES ARE IMPOSING IN ATLANTA

Dealers Report Real Holiday Business, Judging From the Present Demand—This Is the Status With Dealers Handling All Lines—Business and Prospects Never Better in the South

ATLANTA, GA., April 7.—The Haverly Furniture Co., Columbia dealers and who also sell the Pathé, are quoted through R. L. Davis, store manager, as having sold in March everything in the way of stock that they could purchase. On one special Saturday they sold the largest number of instruments and the largest amount in money since the opening of their Columbia department a number of years since. Indications and reports from their stores in Memphis, Birmingham, Savannah, Dallas, Houston, Charleston and Columbia all show that the talking machine departments are not in any way lagging behind the records of previous months.

The Cable Piano Co., one of the largest and most progressive Victor stores in the South, enjoyed a most excellent business in March. Their big store is crowded at all times with interested purchasers and, as usual, under the efficient and experienced management of Mr. Salter, manager of the Victrola department, they are taking care of all buyers most satisfactorily.

Phonographs, Inc., Edison jobbers, and who also have one of the most attractive retail stores to be found anywhere, sold in March one of the largest bookings of business they have ever placed, and their jobbing department continues to prosper and progress. The New Edison is fully appreciated by those who want high-class product and fine music.

The Phillips & Crew Piano Co., the oldest Victor dealers in Georgia, have found the public during the past month quite as eager for Victrolas as they have been in the past and they are selling all they can get. Their sales of Red Seal and Victor popular music are still very large, and Harvey Phillips, president of the company, anticipates that business will grow larger and larger notwithstanding some handicaps under which all talking machine dealers are working.

The Atlanta Talking Machine Co., the oldest Columbia dealers in the city, who also carry the Aeolian-Vocalions, sold in March to the limit of their ability to get stock. Miss Hood, their specialist on Columbia records and Grafonolas, was unfortunately seriously ill during most of the month, but with this exception there was no let-up or slackening in their business.

The Kenny Furniture Co., Columbia exclusively, say through Mr. Kenny that their Columbia record business is phenomenal, this branch being at least three times larger than ever before. They are exceedingly pleased with their profits on Columbia the first year they have been in business and find it a most satisfactory adjunct to their regular furniture business.

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Victor and Sonora, say that their business in March was quite satisfactory. They look for a continued fine volume of sales for the future.

Reports from Savannah, Ga.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Birmingham, Ala., and Charleston, S. C., all indicate fine business in all lines.

MOVE TO LARGER QUARTERS

The Jaquith Machinery Bureau, formerly at 100 Purchase street, Boston, have moved their plant to 77-79 North Washington street. The Jaquith Machinery Bureau have been in business many years as designers, builders and dealers in special machinery. During the last few years they have given special attention to the talking machine trade with most satisfactory results to all concerned.

Well-Known Victor Dealers Take on Columbia —Activity With Bond's Shop—Southern Dealers All Optimistic Over Trade Outlook

NASHVILLE, TENN., April 7.—Bond's Graphophone Shop, Columbia exclusively, report through E. E. Hyde, manager, that their sales continue in large volume and that cash payments on lease contracts, cash sales, and cash record business are as good or better than ever before. Mr. Hyde installed two new booths during the month, and completely rearranged his record racks for the more convenient handling of business. He also says that he has placed in stock a large number of Columbia foreign records.

Castner-Knott Co., at the present time Victor exclusively, announce through Forrest Traylor, manager of the music department, that they have qualified as Columbia dealers and installed a large and complete stock of Grafonolas and records. Castner-Knott's big store is one of the most representative and progressive in the department store business in Tennessee.

Travelers in the territory adjacent to Nashville say that business is good with all talking machine dealers in twenty or thirty nearby towns, and in every town there are persons waiting to secure some representative line.

LIEUT. JAMES H. GILES RETURNS

Lieut. James H. Giles, formerly a member of the traveling staff of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler, returned to New York recently as a member of the famous Twenty-seventh Division. Lieut. Giles was a member of the One Hundred and Fourth Field Artillery abroad, and saw active service in many of the important and decisive conflicts on the western front. Lieut. Giles, who is well known in the talking machine trade, is not yet ready to announce his plans for the future.

ITS ability to get the best out of all makes of records; its design, elegant cabinet work and finish, its clear and natural tone, made possible only by the scientifically constructed tone chamber (an absolute essential to perfect sound reproduction)—these are some of the features which make the Belcantola the "Master Key" of the record.

Exclusive local territory may now be secured by progressive dealers for the handling of this high-class phonograph.

TRADE EXPANDING IN PORTLAND, ORE.

Taylor C. White Enters Jobbing Field on Own Account—G. W. Sanborn Goes to Los Angeles—Some Successful Recitals—Shipments of Machines Coming Faster—News of Month

PORTLAND, ORE., April 4.—Taylor C. White, one of the best known and most efficient talking machine men in Portland, has resigned his position with Sherman, Clay & Co. and will enter the jobbing business. Mr. White has been with Sherman, Clay & Co. for several years as manager of the talking machine department and has many friends who will regret his withdrawal from that branch of the business. Mr. White will go into the jobbing business for the Liberty-Stylus semi-permanent needle, and will have the exclusive jobbing rights of seven States—Oregon, Washington, California, Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Utah. He will have offices in Portland and San Francisco, and will visit dealers in all the larger cities of that territory. His Portland headquarters will be at 310 Stock Exchange Building.

W. N. LeVanway, Jr., who was with the Graves Music House, in Portland, in charge of the talking machine department, has returned from France with the Eighth Division, Field Artillery. Mr. LeVanway has accepted a position in the talking machine department of Sherman, Clay & Co.

George W. Sanborn, who has been in the talking machine business, left for Los Angeles early in March. Mr. Sanborn will reside in Santa Monica, but will have a manufacturing plant at Los Angeles, where he will manufacture the Cecilian Metrophone. He will use the Dayton motor and expects to put on the market a first-class machine.

Frank McGallaird, who represents the Victor Talking Machine Co., gave an interesting and instructive talk to the members of the talking machine department of the Bush & Lane Co.

PHILADELPHIA

A general discussion of selling talking machine goods was held and a great deal of valuable and important information concerning Victor machines and the selling of records was given by Mr. McGallaird, who is well acquainted with his subject and able to communicate what he knows in a convincing and entertaining manner.

An Anna Case recital was given in the auditorium of the Meier & Frank Co. on Monday and Tuesday afternoons, March 17 and 18. Miss Case appeared in Portland at the Heilig Theatre on Wednesday evening, March 19, under the management of Steers & Coman and the recital, which featured her Re-creations on the New Edison prior to the concert, was largely attended.

Another recital was given in the auditorium on Tuesday afternoon, March 25, featuring the Maude Powell records. Miss Powell appeared in concert at the Heilig Theatre on Wednesday evening, March 26, under the auspices of the Ellison-White Musical Bureau.

"The situation is tightening up again," said L. D. Heater, of the Columbia Graphophone Co. "Dealers' orders were so heavy that what was considered surplus stock was entirely disposed of. We expect a shipment in sixty days, but that will only partially help us out."

A shipment of forty Cheney talking machines has just been received by the G. F. Johnson Piano Co. Goods are coming in again and orders are being filled as rapidly as possible.

Glen Ellison, of the Edison Co., was a Portland visitor this month and gave a tone test for Edison dealers at Oregon City.

Business has grown to such an extent at the talking machine department of Edwards Furniture Store that the old quarters became too small to accommodate the trade. The department has been enlarged and remodeled and they now have handsome exhibit and demonstration rooms for Brunswick machines. M. W. Davis, in charge of the department, reports a good business for the past month. The $175 model Brunswick machine he finds the most popular.

Big business is being done in the talking machine department of the Reed-French Co. and the Wakefield Music House.

S. J. McCormick, manager of the Columbia Grafonola Shop, says they are having a fine trade, everything satisfactory with the exception of the lack of machines. The record department was never busier, and it is quite impossible to fill orders for foreign records.

Miss Deborah Stonebrook has taken charge of the record department at Schwann's Piano House.

Miss Leita Hayes, in charge of the G. F. Johnson talking machine department, is showing pictures of machines to customers who are desirous of buying and is taking orders in that way, on account of scarcity of machines.

R. C. Callahan, formerly in charge of the talking machine department of the G. F. Johnson Piano Co., is recovering from a very severe attack of influenza.

The Remick Song Shop of Portland, Ore., is being enlarged and remodeled and will have a Columbia Grafonola department. There will be seven demonstration rooms and a complete line of machines and records will be carried. F. E. Belcher, of New York, vice-president of the Remick Co., was in Portland and after consulting with H. E. L'Anglaise, manager of the Portland house, decided to add the talking machine department.

The movement of goods from Seattle to Portland is beginning to come through nicely and dealers are placing orders farther in advance in order to allow for the extra few days it takes to get goods from Seattle.

Olga B. Moreland, one of the best-known women in the talking machine business in Portland, and formerly with the Columbia Graphophone Co., is now with Foley & Van Dyke.

Emil Gehring, Columbia dealer and former salesman, had a grand opening on the 1st of March at his place of business, 720 Multnomah street.

There is an increasing demand for the Edison Amberola records at the store of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co. This demand has grown so rapidly that Mr. Hyatt is contemplating adding several demonstration rooms. Mr. Hyatt attributes the increased interest and activity in this direction to the advertising campaign conducted by the Edison Co.

Wm. A. Bartlett, of the Hyatt Talking Machine Co., is the proud and happy father of a bouncing boy.

The Stradivara Co. is moving into larger offices, the business having outgrown the present location. Their new place of business will be in the Blake McFall Building at Fourth and Ankeny streets.

Talking machine sales are exceptionally good at the Wiley B. Allen Co. store, although stock is still very short. Paul B. Norris, manager of the talking machine department, has sold several $400 Brunswicks and says that sales are running specially to high-priced instruments. They are now carrying a very complete line of the Victor, Edison, Brunswick, Cowan Claspique and Columbia machines.

There are probably no more beautiful exhibit rooms on the Coast than the ones of the Bush & Lane Co., in which the Sonora instruments are shown.

Manager Thomas Wilkinson has completely changed the appearance of the building, and his excellent taste is shown in every department.

New Permanent "Standard" Plant

burgh, recently purchased for en-tor service for the Pittsburgh area.

54½ ft. front by 135 ft. deep.
Possession about July 1.

Getting Ready in Pittsburgh

This recent purchase provides "Standard" with a fine permanent home for the Big Victor Development Just Around the Corner.

The new four-story plant illustrated above, right in the heart of Pittsburgh's commercial district, with nearly three times our present floor space and its own freight siding, expresses, as well as we know how, "Standard's" confidence in the future of the Victor line. It proves the soundness of our long-established "exclusively wholesale" policy and represents what we expect in greater factory shipments and what we plan in better dealer's service.

We have been proud of the finely appointed, well equipped building we now occupy, which appears ample for present requirements. Yet looking into the near future we see very urgent need for an even more comprehensive wholesale service, bigger stocks, speedier shipping and handling facilities, far beyond our present equipment.

So in providing for the future we have acquired this property, a commodious four-story department store building. We will remodel it into a permanent home for "Standard," which we expect to be the best appointed, most efficient Victor distributing plant in the country.

Providing for Quick Service—Big Stocks

Hair-trigger jobber service and large stocks are going to mean more and more to the alert retailer and the following details of our new building indicate the provisions we are making for such service:

A Speed-up Arrangement—General offices, record stocks, packing and shipping rooms and indoor truck loading platform, all on the first floor. No delays, no double handling.

Unlimited Floor Space—Nearly 30,000 sq. ft.

floor space exclusive of basement. When the goods come we'll be ready.

Quick Unloading—Our own freight siding delivers goods directly into storage rooms with a single handling. Delivery trucks load and unload right inside shipping room.

CHICAGO, ILL., April 10.—In our columns last month we spoke of the greatly increased demand for talking machines and musical instruments of all kinds and tried to analyze this on the basis of the great music education program which is being carried out in our national army camps, with consequent increased appreciation of music in the homes of the people from whose masses our soldiers have been mainly drawn.

This month it will be well to consider what quality of talking machine satisfies this demand and how long the latter will last. Most of the retailers in the talking machine business to-day will tell you without hesitation that the public is demanding a "quality" instrument. A person walks into a store to-day with cash in his pockets and realizes a purchasing independence such as he has never known before. He is not asking for easy terms, but is out to get the best that money can buy. He wants to see the inside of a talking machine as well as the outside. Here it is that those piano manufacturers who have turned a portion of their production into talking machines are making good with the customer. Their long experience in producing cabinet work of the most finished kind well qualifies them for meeting this insistence upon a talking machine not only of good design, but of fine workmanship also.

As to whether this demand for high-grade instruments will continue, the best answer is to be found in the latest bank statements on savings deposits. The State Comptroller's report for savings deposits on December 31 shows that the aggregate deposits for the twenty-three national banks in Chicago, together with the State banks, amounted to $294,620,422. These figures indicate the amount of savings deposits on hand during the holiday season. The same report for the period ending March 4 showed savings deposits to an aggregate of $309,509,427. Therefore, during the period of a little over two months savings deposits increased $14,899,005. Basing Chicago's population at a total of two million, for the sake of round numbers, the per capita saving in December would be in the neighborhood of $147. By March the per capita average of savings deposit had therefore increased to $154.25. This steady rise in savings deposits would indicate that the demand for the pleasure-giving things of life will continue for quite some time. Therefore, it would seem that those who are expanding their facilities for increased production, and who also are building a quality instrument, are making their plans on a broad and sound knowledge of the present market.

Dealers Must Figure Their Needs

The Mandel Mfg. Co. are trying to convince their dealers of the importance of anticipating their needs on account of the extremely heavy influx of orders. In this connection M. B. Silverman remarked: "Overconservatism in buying is just as bad—in fact, worse, than over-speculation. The overconservative buyer finds himself without stock when the demand comes, and as a consequence loses out to his competitor.

"It is a daily occurrence for dealers to send telegraphic orders for one or a few machines with the plea that the factory make shipment on the same day that order is received because customers are waiting for them. Dealers evidently do not realize that a factory could not afford to run its plant if it depended upon orders that come in by wire for shipment on the same day.

"Now is the time for dealers to figure out their possible needs for as far ahead as they can anticipate and place orders accordingly, so as to be sure of having instruments on hand when they conduct their sales or when they make any special effort by advertisements or otherwise to stimulate phonograph business.

"It is better to have a few extra machines on hand for more than one reason, because, in addition to making it possible for the dealer to give demonstrations to prospective buyers, the possession of stock stimulates his own advertising department towards pushing the sale a little more strenuously than he is apt to do with no stock on hand. Hundreds of dealers of the Mandel Mfg. Co. have taken heed of the repeated requests and suggestions made to them and are now looking ahead to the time when they will need machines and are placing orders accordingly."

Remodeling Baldwin Salesrooms

On the first floor of the Baldwin Piano Co.'s Building on Wabash avenue extensive remodeling is going on to accommodate the large displays of talking machines and records. W. B. Harrison, in charge of the talking machine department, hopes to have the rearranged first floor ready for occupation very shortly and says that even now, before they have got a retail business well under way, they are doing a very satisfactory business. Besides a number of artistically furnished piano demonstrating rooms which will be converted for the use of talking machines, four new record demonstration rooms are being built. Record racks and counter are also in process of construction, and Miss Hague, formerly employed by Adam Schaaf and later with the Manahan Shop on Sixty-third street, will be placed in charge of this department. A complete line of Columbia records will be carried.

Prints Instruction Booklet

A very complete booklet of instructions for the guidance of Empire talking machine users has been printed by the Empire Talking Machine Co. and issued to their dealers. It describes the operation and care of the machine and contains twenty-eight pages of material which owners of any instrument may study to their advantage.

Dealer's Daughter Dances

Helen Marie Spayd, daughter of H. A. Spayd, Victor dealer in Decatur, Ill., with Alice Virginia, entertained Chicago visitors to the Lyon & Healy concert hall early in March by their talented dancing. The afternoons when these young ladies were scheduled to appear were marked by unusually large attendance, which indicates that Chicago was well pleased with its Decatur visitors.

New York Album Man Here

N. J. Potomack, vice-president of the New York Album and Card Co., Inc., was in Chicago for a little more than a week last month introducing the New York record album to Chicago manufacturers and distributors of talking machine supplies. While in the city he stopped at the Atlantic Hotel.

of traveling representative for the Columbia Graphophone Co. in the State of Iowa. Mr. Walley is well known to Chicago talking machine men through his highly successful promotion of Columbia advertising in the city. It was this gentleman who induced many theatrical stars of different shows to appear before the talking machine customers of local dealers. His last "stunt" was the bringing of the Overseas Revue Co. with Elizabeth Brice as star performer to the recital hall of Adam Schaff.

We feel sure that Mr. Walley's previous selling experience, together with his keen sense of advertising values, will make him a success in his new post and prove of great help to the dealers he calls upon.

One of the most important trade happenings this week was the announcement by the Chicago office of the Emerson Phonograph Co. that in the future all business of the Central West States would be handled by that office exclusively. Heretofore this office has attended to small wants only, such as receiving orders and making stock shipments. All billing was handled by the home office and shipments made from the factory. The Chicago Emerson branch will now broaden out its influence, and will take care of its own shipping, including monthly standing orders.

When Manager F. W. Clement, of the Chicago office, introduced the Emerson in Chicago three years ago the office merely handled the territory of Chicago, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin. He was assisted at that time by one or two travelers. Now his territory in addition to the four above-mentioned States takes in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Kentucky. The growing business of this office made necessary a reorganization of the business methods of the office. Mr. Clement now has a large crew of traveling men constantly at work and by carrying a complete stock of Emerson goods, making complete shipments regardless of quantity, and looking after his own billing, etc., he will be able to give better service to Emerson customers. As a further impetus to Emerson record sales a series of newspaper advertisements will be run in Chicago newspapers. Starting with April 18 at least one Emerson advertisement will appear in the newspapers every other day. He will alternate half-page displays, full length single-column and smaller single-column inserts. On Sundays in the newspapers which have a large out-of-town circulation he will have the largest space, believing that in this manner he will help Emerson dealers in nearby towns.

A preliminary announcement to dealers telling of the big advertising campaign Mr. Clement is about to embark in is contained in a folder reproducing twelve full-size copies of advertisements to be run starting April 18. The advertisements contain attractive illustrations and the copy throughout is snappy and readable. A half-page spread starts out "Just shut your eyes—and listen! Ah-h-h! That syncopated jazz! That dreamy Southern melody! That—but why go on? Listen to these Emerson hits, etc." The smaller ads limit their appeal to one record, but the reader cannot fail to see and be impressed by the record advertised.

Take More Space

Cole & Dunas, jobbers of records, supplies, accessories and machines, have contracted for additional floor space in their present location at Dearborn and Lake streets. The new space will be used principally for stockroom purposes, and when occupied will give them three times their present available space. This concern has just taken over the Chicago jobbing agency of the new Gennett line of lateral cut records.

New Victor Dealer

L. E. Noble, of the Wurlitzer Co., tells of a new Victor dealer established in Indianapolis. Ind. H. E. Whitman, of the Circle Talking Machine Shop, had his formal opening last month and bids fair to become one of the principal Victor men of northern Indiana. He handles Victor exclusively.

Three New Models

T. V. Garvin, of the Gartrolean Mfg. Co., announces that they have developed three new models which they are introducing to the trade at the present time.

Six Best Sellers

The six best Victor sellers are: "On the Wings of Song," "Ja-Da" and "Alcoholic Blues"; "I'll Say She Does" and "You're Some Pretty Doll"; "Mammy's Lullaby" and "Sweet Hawaiian Moonlight"; "Kisses" and "Mickey"; "Come on, Papa," "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm?" and "Tears."

Columbia announce the six best as follows: "Out of the East" and "Singapore"; "Kentucky Dreams" and "The Girl Behind the Gun"; "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm?" and "When Yankee Doodle Sails Upon the Good Ship Home, Sweet Home"; "Your Boy Is on the Coal Pile Now" and "Look What My Boy Got in France"; "Come on, Papa" and "Oh, What a Time for the Girlies When the Boys Come Marching Home"; "Baby's Prayer Will Soon Be Answered" and "I'm Glad I Can Make You Cry."

Chicago the Center of Attraction

Chicago is a great talking machine center and dealers know it. The past month has witnessed an influx of music dealers from all parts of the country, who are all here for the same object: talking machines and yet more talking machines. The other day an old gentleman from Ohio walked into The World office in the Republic Building and with a quaver in his voice timidly asked if anyone knew where he could purchase a few machines. His face wore the look of one who fears he has provoked an insult, in fact, he looked as though he rather expected to be thrown out of the office. He explained that his customers were growing impatient at his continued excuses and that he simply must place instruments of some sort or other on his floor immediately. Looking over the field he thought of Chicago, and, forthwith, came here. He wasn't disappointed.

The next day he was back in the office smiling to say that, although he hadn't obtained just the particular make he had desired, he had succeeded in getting machines of a type and quality equally good, and that was the big thing so far as he was concerned.

This dealer is only one of many who have gone through similar experiences. Retailers throughout the country who have discovered their regular manufacturers to be greatly oversold have gone forth in search of machines to supplement their regular lines with results much to their advantage. Not in any way to advise the curtailment of orders with regular manufacturers, of course [for if the regular sources of supply are oversold there is always a good reason, which is good machines], but the business of selling talking machines is bread and butter to the talking machine dealer, and how is he to sell more machines if he is unable to get more? Moral: take the next train to Chicago.

New Concern Manufacturing Arwalls

The Arwall factories located in Minneapolis, Minn., have taken over the talking machine business of the Central Wood Turning Co., who have been manufacturing the Arwall machines, and will continue to make these instruments on

Its appearance alone, when attached to your phonograph, will greatly enhance the selling value of your machines, both to the trade as well as to the ultimate purchaser, and when it has been demonstrated on all of the different types and brands of records, the tonal quality of its reproduction will appeal to the most critical musician.

"Designed by an artist and manufactured by a master mechanic," is the apt verdict of a veteran in the phonograph industry. We are in position to supply the needs of a few more high-class phonograph manufacturers, and to guarantee prompt shipments.

a larger scale. At the head of the Arwall factories are J. Earle Moore, H. M. Farland and E. E. Merrill. The latter is a member of the well-known firm of Stacy Bros. & Merrill, wholesale fruit dealers.

Shipping Cases in Demand

The enormous sales of talking machines throughout the country are having their effect on subsidiary lines at the present time. Shipping cases seem to be in immediate demand everywhere, and concerns making these are working overtime in an attempt to supply the incessant demands of manufacturers. President A. J. Fitzsimmons and Sales Manager Jacob Frankel, of the Western Veneer Products Co., passed through Chicago the first of the month, and tell of how their concern is working day and night in order to take care immediately of the orders in hand. They have a large plant in St. Louis, at which they are turning out on an average of two carloads of veneer shipping cases per day and are employing at the present time 250 men and women. The Western Veneer Products Co. obtains its wood from mills in Parma, Mo., and Nobel, Ark. They have contracts running as high as 60,000 boxes per concern per year, says Mr. Frankel. As a tribute to the Talking Machine World he states that over 75 per cent. of the concern's business has been the result of advertising in this publication.

A New Service for Edison Dealers

The Edison Information Bureau is a new service department of the Phonograph Co., organized for the purpose of serving its dealers by direct-to-customer advertising. All the trouble of sending out lists of records, announcements, etc., is taken from the hands of Edison dealers. The Phonograph Co. have compiled a customer list from all of their dealers and as a first step have announced the establishment of the new bureau in cards addressed to all of these customers. In these cards they make the following request, "Do not send any orders to this bureau, for it does not carry any stock”; this last for the protection of dealers.

The new bureau will come as a great boon to Edison dealers and will doubtless have the effect of speeding up the business of any who are not fully alive to their opportunities.

The Phonograph Co. has been sponsoring a number of Edison tone tests in Chicago and vicinity during the past few weeks. H. L. Lyman, flutist, and Ida Gardner, contralto, have been appearing in these tests. The dealers under whose auspices they appeared have expressed great enthusiasm over the concerts and believe that they have been distinct aids to business.

Meet Tax With Increased Output

H. L. Coombs, of the New York Recording Laboratories, passed through Chicago during the last week of March. At The Talking Machine World's Chicago office he expressed great confidence in a continuance of the present boom in record business. “Pursuant to our policy in the past of absorbing the additional taxes put upon records,” he announced, “we have absorbed this last tax of 5 per cent. In order to mitigate this additional burden we have installed twenty-five new record presses and within a very short time we shall have more than tripled our present output. Our increased sales will be made to take care of the new war tax, and our dealers and customers will not be asked to absorb it.”

Eastern Sonora Men in Chicago

Frank J. Coupe, director of sales and advertising of the Sonora Phonograph Corp., spent a week in Middle Western territory, getting in touch with Sonora dealers and conditions generally. C. M. Van Dusen, service man from the Sonora factory, was in the city about the same time. The latter spent two weeks with Mr. Golder's Middle Western dealers. L. Golder, who is at the head of the Chicago Sonora offices, said that business was very good, too good, in fact, and predicted that it would continue in its present state of great prosperity for eighteen months or more. M. Kiel, of the Ohio Sales Co., Sonora jobbers in Ohio, visited Chicago during the month and reported similar optimistic conditions in his State.

A New Universal Cut Record

John A. Steinmetz, president of the Empire Talking Machine Co., announces that his laboratories have perfected a new universal cut record which will be ready for the trade some time in April. The new records, as their name indicates, can be used on any make of machine, whether it be fitted for playing lateral or vertical cut records. Preliminary announcements of the new records have met with such hearty

Why The Mandel Phonograph?

Dealer and consumer have a right to ask "Why the MANDEL?"

We make the MANDEL—every inch of it. Skilled artisans in cabinet construction are well paid to put their best selves into their work. "Quality First," is the slogan in our Benton Harbor cabinet factory. Our men take pride in their work as reflected in the lasting qualities of the beautiful cabinets we turn out.

And in our Chicago factory we make the motors, tone arms, reproducers, and all of the other metal parts that go into the MANDEL talking machines.

Visitors marvel at the rigid inspection through which we put every motor before it is finally approved.

So the finished product leaves our factory ready to perform its mission in every home that claims a MANDEL, because it embodies the highest points of perfection known to phonograph making.

When the dealer asks, "Why the MANDEL," we say—because it is made by one manufacturer who assumes the entire responsibility for the proper performance of the instrument.

When the consumer asks, "Why the MANDEL," we say—because he gets greater value for the price paid than he could get in any other phonograph.

Yes,—the MANDEL is indeed the logical phonograph.

approval from Empire dealers that Mr. Steinmetz has decided to make forthcoming supplements to the Empire catalog entirely of the universal type. The vertical cut records, however, will not be discontinued altogether; those now listed will still be carried in stock. It is claimed for the new Empire dance records that they will run for approximately six minutes. The first supplement of the records will be called the "May" issue, but will probably be on the market about the 15th of the month.

Karl Baackes Returns From Service

Karl Baackes has received his discharge from military service and has returned to his duties with the World Phonograph Co., of this city, as assistant secretary and treasurer. Mr. Baackes attended the Third Officers' Training Camp at Camp Lee and was duly commissioned second lieutenant of infantry. He was then sent to the Tenth Regular Army Division at Camp Funston, Kan. He was for a short time regimental intelligence officer and then was appointed aide-de-camp to Brigadier-General Hickok, of the Nineteenth Infantry Brigade, and promoted first lieutenant.

W. H. Reed Heads Eastern Office World Co.

W. H. Reed, Jr., has been elected president and general manager of the World Phonograph Sales Co., of Pittsburgh, Eastern distributors for the World Phonograph Co., Chicago. The company has opened attractive quarters at 237 Fifth avenue, where a full line of World phonographs is carried. The growing demand for machines in the Eastern field led to the decision to establish a strong Eastern representation. Mr. Reed was selected as head of the company because of his long and successful experience in the music industry.

Believes in Good Working Environment

A few years ago a movement was set on foot to investigate more carefully the health of workers employed in factories. The argument is that better light, air and sanitation tend to increase the efficiency of a worker from 25 to 50 per cent. When this argument was first set forth there was more or less debate as to its possibilities. Many factory owners were approached on this subject, but few of them gave it immediate consideration. Most of them were slow in getting there and still others have even up to this time paid little attention to it. One company, however, which has believed in a sanitary factory from the day of its origin is the Hiawatha Talking Machine Co.

When the Hiawatha Co. started in business it was known as the Ottawa Pianophone Co. Located at Ottawa, Ill., the factory was in many respects not perfect so far as sanitation was considered and was therefore entirely remodeled. The Hiawatha Co. had made wonderful improvements in this old plant up to the time of its destruction by fire a year ago in March. The company then acquired their present big plant at Geneva, Ill., and proceeded to change their name from the Ottawa Pianophone Co. to the Hiawatha Talking Machine Co. Manager Moynahan is a strict believer in good air, plenty of sunshine and sanitation, and before opening the new plant he saw to it that all three requirements were met. The new plant, according to Mr. Moynahan, is responsible for a marked increase in the men's efficiency. He has kept close watch on a number of the old employes who worked at the Ottawa plant and has seen his theory proved by carefully prepared tally sheets and by monthly comparisons regarding their work.

Output Keeps Pace With Sales

Ernest C. Cook, secretary and general manager of the World Phonograph Co., of this city, finds that the sales of World phonographs have jumped 100 per cent., but he keeps on smiling because his production has kept pace with demand. The secret lies in the fact that, from the milling room in the basement of the factory to the drying room on the fifth floor, each step in the construction involves the use of parts made entirely within the same factory. Dependence upon possibly unreliable outside contractors is thus reduced to the minimum. The horn, tone arm and the motor are all built on World patents, and are exclusive World products. Mr. Cook states that his automatic drying room houses one hundred machines at the close of each working day and is cleared on the day following for one hundred more. At the present time the company is specializing on the new World design No. 175, an exclusive and handsome type of phonograph on which application has been made for letters patent.

Place New Motor on Market

The Security Tool Works, a concern which has been devoting all its time and energies to Government war contracts, now finds its large manufacturing facilities partly unoccupied and has entered the talking machine business for the manufacture of motors. Previous to the war this concern was doing business as a partnership, but the enormous increase in its activities during 1918 forced it to expand and a corporation was formed with greatly increased capital. W. L. Lindgren, president and treasurer, was one of the original founders of the business. He is of Swedish descent and has a profound knowledge of mechanics springing from his early training across the water and his many years of executive experience in this country. H. B. Chandler is secretary and general manager of the corporation and has had valuable experience as an executive employed by two of the foremost metal manufacturers of the Middle West. A. Abrahamson is vice-president of the company, and is also well versed in mechanics.

The principal point of difference between the new motors of this company and others familiar to the trade is the use of upright governors. L. Abelson, connected with a well-known sales organization of the country, has formed a separate corporation to market the Security motors to the trade.

Minn., has established a manufacturing plant at 1622 Fulton street, this city, under the name of the Acme Engineering & Mfg. Co. Among other work of an engineering nature Mr. Brandstetter is taking up the construction of talking machine specialties, both in the experimental and finished stages, and in view of a successful past record in the design of some well-known sound boxes, motors and tone arms, he brings a wealth of experience to his latest endeavor. Just at present the company is putting on the market a new and scientifically constructed speed indicator for setting and adjusting talking machine motors.

Combination Attachment Co. Reorganize

The Combination Attachment Co. announce this week that they have reorganized for the purpose of increasing their business. The new officers are I. K. Scotford, president; Peter Ness, vice-president; Wm. Tures, secretary, and Leigh Hunt, treasurer. This company was originally organized July, 1915, by Mr. Tures, H. P. Brace and Peter Ness.

Secretary Tures has been associated with the talking machine industry for some twenty-two years, and since the organization of the Combination Attachment Co. he has devoted his entire time to the business. His work has been to make improvements in equipment and tone quality, and that he has been successful is evidenced by the popularity of his Orotund reproducer. He is said to be not only the first to bring out a reproducer with the stylus bar behind the diaphragm, but also one of the pioneers in developing the composition diaphragm.

President Scotford is also a close student of talking machine equipment, and has had one hundred and fifty patents granted him. Besides being the founder and president of the Superior Type Co., of Chicago, the largest concern of its kind in the country, he is also vice-president of the Hill-Independent Mfg. nction with talking machines. They have succeeded in working out a series of artistic designs in both cabinet and console styles that seem to attract a very high class of trade, and at the same time are priced retail at most moderate figures.

Johnson Experimental Laboratory

An interesting phase of the Johnson Motor Co.'s work in producing and developing an electric motor adapted to talking machines is that of the Johnson Experimental Laboratories at their office building on West Lake street. Here they have thoroughly investigated every motor trouble which has turned up throughout their long years of experience. The use of better material in one place, or the application of some ingenious invention to the motor in another, has invariably succeeded in overcoming every weakness. However, the activities of the experimental department are not confined to perfecting the Johnson motor. Much time is devoted to other possible inventions, especially accessories and attachments which might prove desirable purchases for owners or prospective owners of expensive machines. This laboratory employs ten men and is equipped with machinery specially adapted for experimental research. It has brought great results in the matter of giving dealer and customer alike better service. J. M. Johnson, president, is extremely enthusiastic over future conditions. It is his belief that prosperity in the talking machine business will last, not only for another year, but for another four or five years. As regards the electric talking machine business in particular, he is even more enthusiastic, founding his beliefs upon the idea that the public is always wanting something better and that the machine with the electric motor is the one they will eventually buy. Although Mr. Johnson is receiving foreign orders every day he states that he is taking care of home trade first, and intends immediately increasing his factory space to handle a larger volume of business.

The Value of a Good Slogan

The Western News Co. believes that after perfecting a talking machine and making it a musical instrument the next thing to do is find a suitable slogan which correctly impresses customers with the ideals embodied in their product. They attribute much of the success of the Tel-o-Tone models to their insistent repetition of the slogan, "The Soul of Music Dwells Within." When it is remembered that certain well-known slogans are household words throughout the country it will be agreed upon that a good slogan is a great asset. They believe, also, that the class of trade a manufacturer wishes to attract can be influenced through the kind of slogan used. The men who are managing the Tel-o-Tone are confident that the present conditions of good business will continue for a long period, and, practicing as they preach, they are preparing for greatly increased output. They seem to be receiving a great many foreign inquiries at the present time, especially from Ireland. The main reason for the big business with the "Emerald Isle" is to be found in the dislocation of manufacturing throughout Great Britain during the war, which is not yet completely stabilized.

Manufacture New Motor

Previous to the war the Universal Stamping & Mfg. Co., of Chicago, were well known to the trade as talking machine motor manufacturers. When the war broke out they discontinued the manufacture of motors to devote the plant entirely to war work. They now announce that they have completed all war contracts and have again taken up the manufacture of motors.

They intend to devote their entire building, which has forty thousand square feet of floor space, to the manufacture of high-grade talking machine motors, which will be known to the trade as "A5 two-spring" and "A6 three-spring." They state that they have set a standard for themselves in the manufacture of these new motors which will require the use of the highest grade material obtainable. They are also manufacturing a complete line of phonograph accessories and are devoting much time to a patented automatic stop, known to the trade as the Universal automatic stop, the Universal sure stop and the Star stop. The return of the Universal Stamping & Mfg. Co. to the trade brings back a number of men long experienced in the manufacture of talking machine motors and parts. A. W. Monson is president of the concern, John Kucki vice-president, and E. S. Gillespie sales manager.

L. C. Wiswell Goes to Camden

Leslie C. Wiswell, of Lyon & Healy, Victor distributors, left early in the month for a week's visit to the Victor factory at Camden, N. J. He says that both retail and wholesale Lyon & Healy have enjoyed an exceptionally good trade during the last thirty days.

Hiawatha in New Quarters

The Hiawatha Phonograph Co., who were formerly located on the eighth floor of the Republic Building, have removed to 1200 in the same building. They now have three rooms, one of which will be used for the display of sample models, while the others will be a general office and a private office. Plans are also being drawn up for the construction of an addition

Unit Construction Co. Open Local Office

The Unit Construction Co., of Philadelphia, has recently opened up branch offices in the Lyon & Healy Building, this city. The purpose of this move is to insure efficient service in connection with the installation of Unico demonstration booths, record racks, etc., in the retail talking machine establishments located throughout the Middle West. The fact is Unico installations have been increasing so rapidly since the armistice was signed that it was felt to be imperative to open a Chicago office in order to keep up properly with the current demand from this section of the country.

New Brunswick Man in Cleveland

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. announce that they have secured a new traveling representative for Brunswick talking machines in the city of Cleveland and vicinity. Jack Kennedy is the man, a well-known talking machine traveler, who has been acquainted with the northern Ohio trade for a number of years past. He was formerly a traveler in the interests of Victor machines and was connected with the Eclipse Music Co. in Cleveland. Mr. Kennedy visited in Chicago for a few days previous to his first trip as a representative for Brunswick.

EXPORT DEPARTMENT IN NEW YORK

R. C. Wade Co., Makers of the "Tonofone" Needle, Are Taking Advantage of the Opportunities for Foreign Trade

The R. C. Wade Co., of Chicago, makers of the "Tonofone" needle, are making extensive preparations for the introduction of this needle in foreign countries. An export department has been opened at 160 Broadway, New York, and agencies are being established in the principal cities of Europe and countries of Asia, Africa, South America and Australia.

At the present time the R. C. Wade Co. is directly represented in England, France, Italy, Spain, Japan, China and in Cuba, Mexico and South America. In introducing the Tonofone needle into foreign countries the display cartons will be printed in the language of that country, and the people will be circularized extensively.

J. Kent Wheten recently sailed on the "Mauretania," carrying with him samples by which twenty-one new agencies will be opened in various parts of Europe, and it is believed that the sale of "Tonofone" needles will be enormous in all foreign countries. This new needle has won great favor in the United States in the short time it has been on the market and the domestic demand, together with the rapidly-growing foreign trade, will keep the manufacturers busy for some time to come.

BECOME STARR CO. DISTRIBUTORS

OMAHA, NEB., April 10.—The Carpenter Paper Co., wholesalers, located in this city, have just added to their line the Starr phonograph and the Gennett record. They will job these products in the States of Iowa, Nebraska and Colorado. According to the opinion of P. G. Spitz the outlook is exceedingly fine, and as far as the Starr phonograph and Gennett records are concerned believes business will be limited only by the amount of stock that can be secured from the factory.

The Olympic Talking Machine Co. has been incorporated in Delaware by M. M. Lucey, C. P. Eilig and Ferris Giles, of Wilmington. The capital is $100,000.

Rae & Maxwell is the title of a new talking machine concern at 711 Jefferson avenue, Toledo, O. Both L. T. Rae and A. G. Maxwell of the company are veterans of the trade.

GENERAL ACTIVITY STILL APPARENT IN TORONTO TRADE

Old Concerns Enlarge Quarters and New Dealers Enter Field—James P. Bradt Enthusiastic Over Conditions in the West—Pathé Co. Prophecies Bumper Year—Trade Happenings

TORONTO, CAN., April 3.—James P. Bradt, general manager of the Columbia Graphophone Co. in Canada, has returned to headquarters in this city from a flying trip to the Coast. He made the return journey to Victoria and Seattle, visiting Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver, in sixteen days. Four nights of the time were spent in hotel beds, the remaining nights in transit.

If possible Mr. Bradt is more enthusiastic than ever over the music trade possibilities in general in the West, and those of Columbia Grafonola in particular. Because of the greatly increased demand and assurances of the greatest trade in their history, the Columbia Co. are co-operating with their Western distributors, Cassidy's Ltd., to carry complete stocks at Winnipeg and Calgary.

The Western farmers, Mr. Bradt found, are pronouncedly optimistic, and because of their successes of the past few years are readily purchasing such home necessities as musical instruments, and are developing a strong taste for the best record reproductions.

At Calgary, Mr. Bradt visited the only exclusive Grafonola shop in the West, and was greatly pleased with the monthly sales. It is expected that other exclusive Columbia shops will soon be opened in the West. In Calgary the Hudson's Bay Co.'s music department, under the able management of J. F. Fisher, formerly of Toronto, is doing excellent Columbia business.

At Vancouver the Kent Piano Co., who some months ago added the Columbia, gave the cheeriest of reports and are planning to take care of a material increase in business.

Altogether, Mr. Bradt expressed himself very well pleased with conditions as he saw them and the prospects for this being the greatest year in the history of the Columbia in Canada.

Mr. Bradt just returned in time for the annual meeting of the Canadian Bureau for the Advancement of Music, the banquet of which he attended, although suffering from a severe cold contracted on his journey.

In a letter to the dealers the general manager of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., said: "The year 1919 is bound to be a 'bumper' year for talking machines, and we are filled with determination to do everything we possibly can to assist our dealers to realize to the greatest extent the wonderful possibilities by having large stocks of both machines and records available and getting an organization together to give service, but to get the maximum efficiency, both for the dealer and for us, it is necessary that the dealer help by anticipating as much as possible his requirements and carrying as much stock as he can. If you will do your share you will be amazed when you look at your bank balance at the end of the year."

The "International" motor, made in Canada, is about to make its debut to the talking machine trade. This new motor is the product of the International Machine and Mfg. Co., Ltd., which on the completion of the munition contracts to which it was devoted during the war was promptly turned over to the production of peace products in the shape of phonograph motors.

The new branch recently opened up at Brantford, Ont., by Heintzman & Co., Ltd., under the management of W. M. Hardy, is equipped with three sound-proof rooms for the Victrola department. The interior finish of the store is in cream.

The Edison Co.'s list of new Amberola dealers contains these names of Canadians: H. W. Davidson & Co., La Fleche, Sask.; Cameron & Cameron, Beaverton, Ont.; James Schmelke, Mayton, Alta.; T. B. Dynes, Fleming, Sask.; Geo. H. Powles, Lestock, Sask.; Henry Ritz, Gretna, Man.; Rhein Hardware Co., Rhein, Sask.; G. W. Saddler & Co., Juniata, Sask.; Thos. Lawrence, Lyleton, Man.; Robert J. Eley, Kelliker, Sask.; A. E. Everest, Robsart, Sask.; James M. Olstead, Oberon, Man.; Dennis & Wright, Preston, Ont.; A. E. Shantz, Plattsville; Philias Piche, St. Lin des Laurentides, Que.; Hamilton Piano and Music Co., Hamilton, and C. Z. N. Dahlgren, Benito, Man.

T. Lyle Blogg is to be congratulated on his appointment to the position of advertising manager of the Pathé Frères Phonograph Sales Co., where he will direct the publicity of the Pathophone and keep the famous Pathe rooster in the public eye.

The Stewart Phonograph Corporation, Limited, capital $40,000, with head office in Toronto, plans to manufacture and deal in talking machines.

Dorothy Patricia, a bouncing 17th of March girl, has come to live with Mr. and Mrs. S. O'Donnell, of this city. Mr. O'Donnell is the traveler for Brunswick phonographs in Northern and Eastern Ontario.

The International Music House are new representatives for the sale of Pathé records in Ottawa.

NEW $300,000 COMPANY TO MAKE RECORDS IN MONTREAL

Paramount Phonograph Co. Organized in That City—Many Concert Demonstrations Throughout Province—How World Ad Closes a Sale—Many New Local Distributors Appointed

MONTREAL, QUE., April 3.—The Paramount Phonograph Record Co., of Canada, Ltd., has been incorporated with a capitalization of $300,000, with headquarters in this city. We are given to understand that a factory has been located and it is the intention of the company to manufacture a complete line of phonographs and Paramount records on a large scale. A full report of their future plans will appear in a later issue.

The writer has come across recently in more than one instance where a copy of The Talking Machine World has been brought into acquisition in the closing of a sale, the advertisement of certain manufacturers being brought to the attention of the prospective buyer. Also complimentary remarks relative to their product being shown the purchaser.

The Pathé Frères Phonograph Sales Co. distributed to all Pathé agents a photogravure of Rudolph Ganz, the exclusive Pathé artist, who appeared in Montreal recently.

The McCaw-Bissell Furniture Co., Sherbrooke, Que., have been appointed sole agents for the sale of the Aeolian-Vocalion phonographs and records in that city.

New Pathé representatives in Quebec City include Fiset & Co., 10 St. Joseph street.

N. H. Phinney, Ltd., Halifax, N. S., with branches throughout Nova Scotia, announce the addition of the Columbia line, and have just unpacked and put on their shelves about 18,000 records.

Lawrence Sky, the talented Canadian violinist, recently demonstrated the fidelity of the New Edison by playing in direct comparison with the re-creations of violin solos. This took place in the show windows of the Layton Bros. and drew such a crowd that it blocked the street corners. Besides the crowd outside, over four hundred people gained admittance to the store.

S. H. Brown, until recently retail sales manager of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., has severed his connection with that firm and will shortly open talking machine parlors of his own at 521 Phillips Square, where he will handle His Master's Voice products.

The Edison Tone-Test put on in Sherbrooke, Que., by A. C. Skinner with Glen Ellison and Miss Pauline Lawrence drew a capacity house at His Majesty's Theater.

The interior of the Phonograph Shop of Montreal, Regd, has been rearranged and redecorated. They have also remodeled their demonstration parlors, which gives them an additional two rooms and a private office for Manager Geo. S. Pequegnat.

Talking machine sales have been heavy the past thirty days with C. W. Lindsay, Ltd., and Columbia and Sonora machines have been in great demand.

The Canadian Graphophone Co. state that the demand among old and new Columbia representatives seems to be for the better class of merchandise.

Miss Vezina, of Almy's Limited, with her usual characteristic energy, has succeeded in garnishing a raft of orders for Columbia machines and records.

An appreciative call for Pathé machines and records is observable at the Pathé parlors of Miss Didier at Dupuis Frères.

Charles Culross reports Aeolian-Vocalion and Sonora volume of sales as great as ever, the past month being an unusually successful one.

Rudolph Ganz, the exclusive Pathé artist, was heralded by a large-sized newspaper copy by N. G. Valiquette, Ltd., previous to his appearance in Montreal. A large sale of his recordings is reported.

The Cosmopolitan Graphophone & Piano Co. are specializing in Grafonolas and Columbia records. The business is under the management of L. Theo. Foisy, ex-partner of Foisy Frères.

H. P. Labelle, Ltd., have the selling rights of Paramount records, and H. C. Foisy, the manager, is jubilant over prospects for spring business.

New local Pathé dealers include The Amherst Furniture Co., 183 Amherst, and Jos. Fyfe, 766 Papineau avenue.

THE TRADE SITUATION IN MONTREAL

Frères, Inc., for over four years as manager, has succeeded S. H. Brown as retail sales manager of the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., whilst Mr. O. Paquette takes over Mr. Dumouchel's duties as manager of Foisy Frères, Inc.

The Edison tone test recital put on by Layton Bros. at the Ritz Carlton on March 27, with Glen Ellison and Pauline Lawrence, was most successful in every way.

Wilder's Music Supply Co. will shortly occupy a ten-story building of their own on Bleury street, near St. Catherine.

"We are doing unusually well and are well satisfied with the business growth of the present year in Brunswick machines," said Tom Cowan, of the Cowan Piano Music Co.

J. W. Shaw & Co. are highly optimistic over disposals of Columbia Grafonolas and records.

"The present demand for Victor goods is unprecedented and every month sees a gain over the previous one with sales to date away ahead of the corresponding months of last year," said the Berliner Gramophone Co., Ltd., retail stores.

No small factor in the rapidly growing business of J. Donat Langelier is His Master's Voice department, where sales of machines and records are increasing at a most rapid rate.

Layton Bros. will take over the store directly west of their own, which is owned by them, and convert it into talking machine parlors de luxe, which will give them additional ten demonstration rooms for Edison and Columbia display.

The Brunswick Shop report a nice following the past month, with a brisk demand for the Lacquer Brunswick Model. OkeH records are finding a ready sale.

The Berlind Phonograph, Ltd., are most enthusiastic over business, and state that the past month gave evidence that the Brunswick line is more in demand than ever before, whilst OkeH records are going out at a rapid rate.

All Columbia dealers indulged freely in space devoted to Josef Hofmann's records, this exclusive Columbia artist appearing in a concert recital locally quite recently.

The National Phonograph Co., St. Hyachinte, Que., and the Imperial Piano & Phonograph Co. have registered.

J. G. Harrison, of W. H. Thorne & Co., St. John, N. B., is on this year's executive committee of the Edison Diamond Disc Jobbers' Association.

The Pathé phonograph department of the Nova Scotia Furnishing Co., Halifax, N. S., recently gave a Pathé recital at the Old Ladies' Home of that city.

Semi-monthly recitals open to the public in the large demonstration room of the Phonograph Shop, 323 Portage avenue, are being planned by A. G. Joy, manager of this well-known music firm. The first of these informal musical soirees took place recently, with Miss Lillian Durkin as one of the entertainers, and Mr. F. C. Dallman, 'cellist, who played 'cello obligatos to Miss Durkin's vocal solos as well as giving individual solos himself. A feature of the concert was the use of phonograph records of the five better known makes, to which Miss Durkin sang and Mr. Dallman played accompaniments. Mr. Dallman also played in duet with a phonographic record of 'cello solo. The artists were accompanied by the Brunswick phonograph.

At the New Edison tone test recital recently held under the auspices of the Winnipeg Piano Co., Ltd., over two thousand witnesses applauded the wonderful demonstration given by Glen Ellison and Miss Pauline Lawrence.

A NEW CONCERN IN WINNIPEG

Pathé Distributors, Ltd., Organized to Handle the Pathé Line in That Territory—Quick Service for Dealers Planned

WINNIPEG, MAN., April 2.—Significant of the enthusiastic faith in the West of the men who manufacture Pathé lines in Canada and the men who have done the distributing in the Western provinces is the organization of Pathé Distributors, Ltd. This firm is the logical outcome of the success with which R. J. Whitla & Co., Ltd., have met as wholesalers of the Pathé lines during the past two years.

Appreciating the necessity of greater stocks in Winnipeg to give quick service to their Western dealers and the desirability of an organization with an undivided interest in serving Pathé dealers, James Malcolm, respectively of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., of Canada, Ltd., Toronto, visited Winnipeg some weeks ago, and while there effected the organization of Pathé Distributors, Ltd.

C. B. Moore has been engaged as manager of the Pathé department of R. J. Whitla, Ltd.

Twelve thousand square feet of floor space have been secured in the John Deere Building, and to assure the quantity of records essential for immediate service always being in stock, the factory capacity at Toronto has been greatly enlarged by the addition of new pressing equipment and the addition of a plant whereby the Pathé firm will make their own matrices instead of importing them as formerly.

Five carloads of Pathéphones are either already on the way or in course of preparation.

A. S. Binns is president of the newly organized company, Mr. J. Clark is secretary-treasurer and managing director, both active in the conduct of the Whitla firm. Associated with them are James Malcolm, president, Pathé Frères Co. of Canada, Ltd.; R. Driscoll, vice-president, R. J. Whitla & Co.; D. S. Elliott, son of Mr. D. K. Elliott, president of R. J. Whitla & Co., Ltd., and O. C. Dorian, general manager, Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd.

The new firm therefore is a combination of the strength of Pathé Frères Phonograph Co. of Canada, Ltd., and R. J. Whitla & Co., Ltd., a pioneer wholesale house in the West.

The plans of the new firm include the placing of representatives in each province.

SHORTAGE STILL IN CHATTANOOGA

Business Very Active in This Section of the South—Dealers Most Optimistic, Owing to Business Demands—Anxious to Get Stock

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., April 8.—Business in the talking machine field in this city is continuing in fine shape. There is still a great shortage of goods in all lines, but the dealers and manufacturers are making extreme efforts to keep supplied and are hoping that every week will bring some improvement. We give below individual reports from local dealers:

Sterchi Bros. Furniture Co., Columbia and Edison dealers, are quoted through Mr. Johnson, manager of the talking machine department, as having done an excellent business in March and have had an especially fine business on Columbia records, this branch of their business possibly running double what it was in 1918. The talking machine sales also were larger than ever before, but this concern in common with others is awaiting eagerly the time when they can procure more abundant stock, in which event it is not impossible that they could sell three to five times as much as ever before.

Mr. Johnson is particularly enthusiastic over the new Rosa Ponselle records, which have taken great with the public. Additional interest in all symphony records has also been created by the fact that the Metropolitan Opera Co. will be in Atlanta, Ga., the third week in this month and many persons from this city will be in attendance.

Templeman Piano Co., Columbia exclusively, have just finished a most satisfactory month. Their record business in February was largely increased over previous months, owing to the fact that they put forth splendid publicity in the local papers, tying up with the Columbia stock advertisements in every instance to their considerable benefit.

The Rhodes-Mahoney Co., Victor dealers, and who also sell the Brunswick, are continuing a very satisfactory volume of business. They featured in their big show windows on Market street all records made by the Victor Co., covering the list of operas sung here by Creator's company recently and boosted their sales in proportion. They continue to sell many Brunswicks.

Stulce-Yarnell Furniture Co., Columbia exclusively, are quoted through Mr. Stulce, senior member of the firm, as having sold the largest number of Columbia records in March in the history of their business. He also says that as fast as a Columbia comes in his door it goes out to a waiting customer. This concern is planning additions to their store to take care of their increasing business.

Clemons Bros., Victor dealers, continue a most substantial volume of business. They look for good business all the spring and summer, and with the return of Chattanooga's war heroes and the entire resumption of normal life there seems to be no cloud on the horizon.

Gleanings From the World of Music

RECORD SALES DO NOT HURT SHEET MUSIC BUSINESS

Popular Hits Keep Right on Selling Despite Heavy Record Demand—Some Typical Instances—Music Publishers Not Ignoring Substantial Incomes From Mechanical Royalties

It was not so many years ago that there was a number of opinions extant as to whether or not the mechanical reproduction of a song injured its sheet music sale. Theories were advanced pro and con, and good cases were made out by the adherents of both sides. But it must be admitted that those who at that time put forward the theory that the talking machine record and music roll cut into the sales of sheet music appeared to make out the better case.

Consideration must be given, however, to the fact that most of those holding that opinion

MEN WHO MAKE POPULAR SONGS

No. 1—Lee S. Roberts

Lee S. Roberts is probably best known as the author of "Smiles," one of the biggest song and instrumental hits we have had in years. But his popularity as a song writer is not based on the success of this song alone, for he has a happy faculty of writing songs which have an appealing charm to the vast majority of people.

During the past few years he has written several numbers of the "hit variety," most of these having a long continued sale. An example of this is the success that "A Little Birch Canoe" and "Lonesome, That's All," have had and are still having.

Generally speaking, song writers are not usually successful in the business world. Here again Mr. Roberts shows his versatility. He is vice-president of the Q R S Co., one of the largest and most progressive music roll companies in the world. His firm is constantly growing, and Lee S. Roberts must be credited with no small a part in its success.

Besides the numbers mentioned above, other songs from his pen that are having large sales are: "After All," "You Don't Know," "Cheerio," "There's a Little Home in My Land," and his latest instrumental success "Cleo," an Oriental fox-trot. Other numbers by this excellent writer are "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," "Mammy's Lullaby," "Ching Chong," "Valse Parisienne," "Harlequin," "Hawaiian Moonlight" and the series "Italian Nights," "Northern Nights," "Southern Nights," "Hawaiian Nights" and "California Nights."

were music publishers, or closely allied thereto, and they seemed at that time in no mood to entertain arguments relative to the merits of a new creation, one, which though not a direct competitor, certainly, in their mind, would make some inroads on the sale of their songs and instrumental selections.

All of the music publishers, of course, did not hold the opinion, as the entry of a number of them as active stockholders in record manufacturing companies shows. As the talking machine business grew, and with the development and the success of the player-piano and music roll, followed by the impetus this latter industry received with the addition of the word roll to its field, the feelings of the most antagonistic music publisher changed from one of antipathy toward these royalty-producing products to one of earnest co-operation for and with them in their aims.

The talking machine industry with its rapid growth and development from a novelty product to one of the greatest musical and artistic instruments of all time practically forced this change of mental attitude toward their product on the part of the few publishers who attempted to ignore not only the possibilities but the actual advancement and accomplishments that the talking machine and record had made.

While there is still a difference of opinion as to just what effect, if any, mechanical reproduction of a number has on its sheet music sale, there are many other things that are actually known to be facts, and regardless of all theories to the contrary that seemed basically sound these facts are accepted as the realities, and the only ones at present worth considering.

Among these is the fact that sheet music to-day is being sold in larger quantities than ever before. An instance of this greatly increased demand was recently given when the house of Leo Feist, Inc., announced that the sales of "Rose of No Man's Land" were the largest of any one song they had ever published. Now this same song had a tremendous sale on the records, so much so that the factories were unable to keep the trade supplied. In addition to this, thousands of music rolls, both word and instrumental, were also produced, and yet the sheet music sales broke some records.

Another instance is given by one of the recent additions to the popular catalog of M. Witmark & Sons, "Have a Smile," the first 600,000 copies of which were sold faster than their printers could turn out the number. Its record sale is also quite large, and, as the song promises to go over the million mark in point of sales, its demand in record form will also undoubtedly increase.

Both songs and instrumental numbers have bigger sales than ever before, and in addition to this the talking machine record sales are constantly being added to and the music roll production enlarged. During the last eighteen months it has been a question just how many records of a given popular song hit could have been sold, for the biggest sellers were during that time, always oversold for a period far beyond the duration of original popularity as songs.

This then is the known situation, and one that leaves small room for quibbling as to whether sheet music sales are hurt by mechanical reproductions.

Of course, it is not to be taken for granted that because the publishers to-day look with favor upon the mechanical reproduction of their works that they are satisfied with the arrangements and the amount of the royalties they now receive from that source. As a matter of fact, there is much sentiment for an increased royalty for mechanical reproductions. But the arguments used when the Copyright Law of 1909 was being prepared are probably passé. The arguments for an increase probably will be based on the foundation that the publisher holding the copyright has something to sell which is more valuable and merits a larger royalty than is received through the workings of the existing Copyright Law.

It is not thought that any changes in regard to the Copyright Laws are possible or probable during the coming two years, so in the meantime the publishers are endeavoring to get the most out of these royalty sources as they now stand, and they realize that the best method of doing this is by giving the various recording companies their most earnest co-operation. This, with very few exceptions, they are doing.

A RECORDER'S VIEW OF SONG PROBLEM

Geo. C. Jell, General Manager of Columbia Recording Laboratories, Tells of the Sort of Songs That Proves Most Successful When Reproduced on Talking Machine Records

Of all angles of our business, one of the most interesting is that which relates to songs suitable for recording and the attitude of the artists and the public toward them. In referring to this subject I have in mind compositions of substantial merit and of at least some permanent value, classed generally under the heading of standard songs as contrasted with the strictly popular song which ordinarily dies after a few months of more or less feverish life (not, however, before it has poured into the coffers of the company—if it is anything approaching a real "hit"—a goodly stream of dollars).

It is plain that while the popular hit of the day is always with us and will be always a tremendous money-making factor, it is a question whether or not the real bone and sinew of the business is the song to which the people turn after they have tired of the frivolity almost always found in current popular music. It is the factor which, perhaps, more than anything else keeps the Grafonola a living and active force in the musical development of the country by reason of the fact that it keeps it active in the home where otherwise it might lapse into neglect. It educates the people gradually and insensibly—and he is a mighty foolhardy man who tries to educate them any other way—to an appreciation and purchasing of things in music still better and more substantial.

Though many things may enter into the make-up of a song to render it a profitable commercial recording proposition, these three are of chief importance: First, melody; second, sentiment or "heart" interest; third, familiarity. It is on this account that folk songs such as "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Last Rose of Summer" (Irish), "Within a Mile of Edinboro Town" and "Annie Laurie" (Scotch); "Sally in Our Alley" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me" (English), and "Old Folks at Home" and "The Old Oaken Bucket" (American), offer a practically ideal combination. With one or two exceptions these are songs which, like Topsy, "just growed"—and they are for the most part traditional and their origin practically unknown. The outline of their melody is simple, facile and readily remembered. The emotions they express are elementary, and felt more or less at one time or another by every one possessed of ordinary human impulses. They have been played and sung around the piano in the back parlor on Sunday evenings by successive generations of young people who have grown old and still love them. They are a spontaneous expression of the musical life of the people, and are, as far as we can tell, immortal.

Unfortunately the songs in this category that have survived all ravages of time and fickle public taste are limited, and the record catalog is large. There still remains a list of famous and long-known songs by standard composers typified by such numbers as Schubert's "Serenade," Tosti's "Goodbye," Braga's "Angel's Serenade," D'Hardelot's "Because," Bartlett's "A Dream," and so on. Also in the past few years there has sprung up a type of standard and semi-standard song, new to the public, familiarity with which has been created by the use of almost the same intensive methods of publicity and propaganda as those pursued by the publishers of current popular hits. Eminent examples of this are "I Hear You Calling Me," "A Perfect Day," "Until," "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "Just a Wearyin' for You," and, still lower in the scale, from the musician's point of view, "There's a Long, Long Trail," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning." Then again there are the real old-fashioned heart songs, of which "Silver Threads Among the Gold" may be accepted as typical.

Extremely significant also is the change of attitude on the part of prominent artists toward songs that can be profitably marketed on records. Singers, no matter how highly placed and however abstruse and "high-brow" they may consider it necessary to make their concert and recital programs, are rapidly coming to realize that they must record what pleases the people, whether they may be pleased with it themselves or not, and that to try to impose their own highly sophisticated musical tastes upon the American public is the best way to receive no royalty check. The days when (as has actually happened) such songs as Cowen's "Mission of a Rose" and Denza's "May Morning" have been flung back at us—literally—by a temperamental soprano are over, in all probability forever.

Yet with all such circumstances in our favor and with the really familiar songs of the past and present to draw upon there are not enough of the standard songs that sell themselves to go round, year in and year out. The catalog, as noted before, is large; it must be maintained at least at normal strength; there are many artists to satisfy, both financially and artistically, and many record buyers, actual and potential, to please. Shall we duplicate and multiply the well-known titles in our catalog—a policy pursued more or less in the past by every large company—or shall we tap the vast resources of song literature not yet touched by any recording organization? Assuming the latter, will the dealers and their sales forces co-operate with us in familiarizing themselves and in turn making an intelligent, thorough and patient effort to familiarize their patrons with the new issues (for in selling music, familiarity is four-fifths of the battle)? It is one of the most vital problems confronting the business at this time.

PROFITING BY INTEREST IN MUSIC

Increased Demand for Music of All Sorts During and Since the War Offers Great Possibilities for Those in the Industry

The increased demand for music during the war period, and which has even grown since the signing of the armistice, has led the thoughtful minds of the music industry to give the matter much consideration in an effort to discover the reason therefor so that they will be better able to take advantage of this demand for music of all sorts. A number of reasons have been advanced for this great new interest in music and musical affairs, and among these no doubt much of the credit must be given to the song leaders of our Army and Navy.

The progress that has been made in developing community sings must also be recognized as a factor in the increased interest. Many of the sheet music publishers have gotten out special material for the use of those interested in community sings, and one large publishing house has issued a series of booklets for that special purpose. With summer again close at hand many of the music publishing houses are making preparations to again give their support and encouragement to this sort of music propaganda.

It is realized that the possibilities of creating enthusiasm in behalf of music have hardly been touched, and as the interest along these lines increases more and more advantage must be taken of it, so that this momentum shall not be lost. This work, however, at present has its reward both esthetically and materially, so in all likelihood every interest that has for its object the advancement of music will lend its support.

MAKING PUBLICITY WORK DOUBLE

Advertising of Music Now Prepared by Publishers in a Form to Make it Adaptable to Use of Talking Machine Dealers

From time to time a number of the larger music publishers have had reasons to comment unfavorably on the requests made by talking machine jobbers and dealers for special display material for their windows or hangers for their stores, featuring records in which the publishers have an interest. The publishers have contended that no matter how good the display or how conspicuous or well located the window, it does not pay them to go to the expense of getting out special material on request.

In recent months some of the publishing houses have found a method of satisfying these requests, and at the same time involving only a small additional expense. This is done by getting out all their display advertising material in a form that will make it equally applicable for advertising sheet music, talking machine records or player-piano rolls. The title of the number under this method is featured, underneath which the reader is told to "Get it inside" or "Now on sale." In this way the material can be used by any interested branch of the music industry.

Inasmuch as large quantities of this sort of publicity material are issued by the music publishing firms they are only too glad to place it in the hands of the dealers and jobbers, not only in the talking machine industry, but also in the player-roll field.

No doubt more and more publishers will profit by the advantage given them by this method of getting out their publicity, because in the past they have felt that the requests referred to above were a problem, and indeed they are or were.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Overwinding Causes Trouble

New York, March 30, 1919.

Talking Machine World:

Dear Sir—We are having quite some trouble with the V. V. 6 Type A machines. We have had any number of these machines for repair where the end of the main spring has been broken just enough to let it slip off of the spring cage rivet. Is there anything we can do to prevent this, as we have had one machine in particular returned to us three times with the same trouble? We will appreciate your early reply to the above. Very truly yours,

S. T. Mac. Co.

ANSWER.—The cause of this breakage of main springs is simply a matter of overwinding the machine. The arrangement of the winding gears and spring shaft allows the motor to be wound up without any effort on the part of the user, and it is very hard to tell when the springs have been wound up in full, consequently many springs are pulled off the rivet by giving the winding key another little turn.

My remedy for this trouble has been to take the two main springs, draw the temper from the ends and drill new rivet holes about an inch or an inch and a quarter from the ends and replace in cage. Placing of the rivet hole in this position adds just enough strength to the end of the spring to warn the person using the machine that the springs are wound up in full.

A Puzzling Question

Loveland, Colo., April 1, 1919.

A. H. Dodin, Talking Machine World:

Dear Sir—Being a subscriber to The World and a reader of your department, I take the liberty of inquiring of you where I can get a main spring for a double-spring motor for a Colonial talking machine.

A. V. S.

ANSWER.—If you read the advertisements in The Talking Machine World every month you will note that there are possibly five new talking machines in each issue. In not one of these new machine advertisements is the name of the motor given.

How difficult it is for yours truly to tell the width or length of a main spring in an unknown quantity you can easily imagine.

Although I have written to you personally, I am answering your letter in this column for the edification of the many other dealers who have written and undoubtedly will write again to ask the same question.

Give the width and length of the main spring, and it is a very much easier problem for me to answer.

BLACKMAN TALKING MACHINE CO. TO QUIT RETAIL TRADE

Will Dispose of Retail Department to Louis Kay on May 1, and Devote Efforts to Wholesale Victor Business Exclusively After that Date—An Important Move for All Concerned

J. Newcomb Blackman, president of the Blackman Talking Machine Co., New York, advised the trade this week that arrangements have been completed whereby the company will dispose of its retail department on May 1, and will start its fiscal year on that date as Victor distributors, doing business “wholesale exclusively.”

This retail department, which has been operated by the company since May 1, 1902, when the Blackman Talking Machine Co. began business, has been purchased by Louis Kay, one of the pioneers in the talking machine business. Mr. Kay is widely and favorably known to the trade through his many years’ connection with the present time he is president of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers, and he is generally recognized throughout the trade as one of the best posted Victor men in the country. Mr. Blackman has worked indefatigably in the interests of the association, and has also been an important factor in many civic and industrial movements. He is a keen, analytical student of Victor merchandising, and has developed an organization that has always aimed to give the dealer service and co-operation.

J. Newcomb Blackman

In a chat with The World Mr. Blackman commented briefly upon his announcement to the trade, stating as follows:

“I do not believe that at the present time any Victor dealer will or should give his business to any jobber because this jobber is wholesaling exclusively. The dealer’s patronage should continue to be given to the jobber on the basis of the service that he is being given by that particular distributor. It is my opinion that any jobber who has a retail department and takes care of any particular dealer in a satisfactory manner will and should be supported by that particular dealer.

“Sooner or later, however (we hope sooner), as production increases and dealers become salesmen rather than order takers, I believe that the question as to a jobber being a wholesaler exclusively or otherwise will be a deciding factor in the support given by the dealer. It will probably result in the dealer gravitating to perhaps one or two jobbers for his service, as compared with the present system, whereby he endeavors to secure service from any jobber who can give him merchandise.”

It is interesting to note that in 1898 Mr. Kay sold Mr. Blackman his first bill of goods. At that time Mr. Blackman was an Edison jobber, and Mr. Kay received the first order he placed. Mr. Blackman states that he is happy to pay Mr. Kay the compliment of selling him his first bill of goods when he opens his new business.

Louis Kay

the S. B. Davega Co., and more recently with the New York Talking Machine Co. He will continue the Blackman Talking Machine Co.’s former retail department at 97 Chambers street, under the name of the Kay Talking Machine Co., Inc. Miss L. Peters, who was formerly head of the Blackman Talking Machine Co.’s retail department, will join Mr. Kay’s organization.

The wholesale business of the Blackman Talking Machine Co. will be moved to 81 Reade street, New York, where all Victor wholesale business will be transacted hereafter.

In making this important announcement Mr. Blackman pointed out to his clientele that “with every indication of increased factory production we are convinced that the year 1919 will bring to ‘Blackman’ dealers a year of prosperity, and we hope mutually satisfactory business relations.”

The fact that the Blackman Talking Machine Co. has sold its retail department will undoubtedly interest the talking machine trade, for Mr. Blackman has for many years been recognized as one of the leaders in the Victor industry. At

GEO. KELLY CELEBRATES 20TH ANNIVERSARY IN TRADE

Manager of the Record Ordering, Stock and Traffic Department of the New York Talking Machine Co. a Real Veteran of the Industry—Silver Service From A. D. Geissler

Members of the local trade will be interested to know that George Kelly, one of the veterans of the Victor industry, celebrated on April 9 his twentieth anniversary with the New York Talking Machine Co., Victor wholesaler. Mr. Kelly occupies the important post of manager of the record ordering, stock and traffic departments for this company, and he has filled this responsible position with signal success. His executive ability, his tact, his intensive knowledge of the business and his inherent sense of loyalty to all things Victor have made him invaluable to the industry and respected and esteemed by all the dealers in the East.

As an evidence of the high regard in which he is held by the New York Talking Machine Co., Arthur D. Geissler, president of this company, presented to Mr. Kelly last Wednesday a very handsome solid silver service. The employes of Mr. Kelly's own particular division presented him with a beautiful cut glass smoking set, as a mark of the affection and admiration they have for their "chief."

George Kelly came up from the ranks and the large measure of success that he has achieved in the Victor industry can be attributed to his conscientious work, unflinching ambition, zeal and loyalty. As he has progressed in the Victor industry, so has he progressed in the hearts of his friends, for year after year George Kelly has gained new friends until to-day he can proudly point to a legion of true friends in all walks of life.

On April 9, 1899, Mr. Kelly went to work for Maguire Bacaus, the first distributor of Victor products in New York City. Afterwards the firm's name was changed to the Victor Distributing Export Co., which has since become the New York Talking Machine Co.

His twenty years in the Victor business dating since that time are replete with unusual experiences. For the beginner to-day the business is easy compared to the olden times. Kelly had no one to teach him. No one solved his problems nor pointed out the easy way of doing things. He was his own teacher—and he did a wonderful job of it.

While working as a packer he studied constantly to fit himself for a bigger field. He never was a dreamer. He is too practical for that. But he is a thinker. Often, while nailing up packing boxes, he "rapped" himself on the fingers with the hammer because he had suddenly thought of a new method of stocking records or a more efficient system of filling orders promptly.

This continual concentration on ideas which made for the betterment of the business eventually won for him the position of shipping clerk and superintendent of the stockrooms. In addition to being a conscientious, hard working "boss" of the shipping room, Mr. Kelly developed a keen sense of appreciation of music, and a phenomenal knowledge of the Victor record catalog.

By appreciation of music is meant that he formed the happy faculty of being able to judge in what proportion any particular selections would be welcomed by the public. Perhaps he has no musical ability. We don't know if he plays a ukulele or a bass drum—or neither—or both. If he has any harmony in him it is still there, because no one has ever heard it come out—but, when he discusses records, sales methods, or anything pertaining to the betterment of the Victor business, the dealers listen to him as eagerly as if he were the greatest artist under contract.

In conclusion, we may add that West Concord, Vt., can well be proud of George Kelly, for it was in that city on August 26, 1878, that he arrived at the home of George Alfred Kelly.

COMPLETING ARRANGEMENTS FOR CONVENTION OF JOBBERS

Much Serious Business to Be Discussed at General Meeting of Association to Be Held at Atlantic City on June 30 and July 1—President Blackman's Views

Within the short space of six weeks there will be in session at the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, in general convention the members of the National Association of Talking Machine Jobbers. It will be the first general convention of the organization held since 1917, and although there have been several meetings of the executive committee in the meantime, attended by many of the members at large, there will be numerous and important problems to be brought up for the consideration of the association as a whole.

Although the arrangements for the convention have not yet been completed, it is stated that business sessions will be held during the afternoon of Monday, June 30, and Tuesday, July 1, with Wednesday probably left open for such plans as the Victor Co. may make for the jobbers.

The arrangements committee, of which Louis Buehn is chairman, has not yet decided upon a definite program of entertainment, it being hinted that inasmuch as June 30 promises to be the last day of the "wet" regime, quite a number of convention delegates will be able to celebrate the occasion to the greatest advantage without any fixed program to guide them. It is likewise hinted that the business session on July 1 will be held in the afternoon in order that those who might perchance become fatigued while attending the obsequies of Al. K. Hall and John Barleycorn may have an opportunity of regaining their normal poise before being called upon to consider serious business matters. The preliminary plans call for the holding of the annual banquet on Tuesday evening, July 1, with water on the side.

In view of the fact that the convention time will mark the end of the moist period, a number of the jobbers and their friends have made arrangements to reach Atlantic City two or three days before the meeting, and it is probable that the annual golf tournament of the association will be held on June 28 in order to provide the trade golfers with matrimonial and other strings a workable alibi for getting away from home a little earlier.

To get back to the serious business of the convention, and there will be much serious business, President J. Newcomb Blackman has outlined for The World some of the questions that will come up for a hearing. "The reconstruction period has brought up developments of direct interest to both talking machine jobbers and dealers," declared Mr. Blackman, "and these developments will have to be considered at the convention, which will be the first general meeting since the signing of the armistice. There will be a good many things to be acted upon and studied. The trade generally has shown its confidence in the Victor factory organization, and by June the factory will have time to demonstrate just what it can do in the matter of after-war production.

"If production continues in any way limited we will be faced with the problem, as wholesalers, of taking care of a more limited number of dealers, and will naturally look after the best dealers. The factory, on the other hand, may probably have to take the same attitude in meeting the demands of the wholesalers, for it would seem better to have a fewer number of satisfied members than a large number of dissatisfied members.

"Increased volume of production is absolutely necessary to keep things going, for with the present standard of discounts and tremendous increase in overhead expenses both wholesalers and dealers must of necessity depend upon an actual volume of business considerably beyond normal to allow for a sufficient margin of net profits."

Other questions that will come up at the convention will be that of the obtaining of a standard wholesale price for goods throughout the country through an equalization of freight charges.

The question of list prices will also come up for discussion at the convention, but it is considered doubtful if any recommendation for the reduction of list prices in the near future will come from the jobbers at that time.

The record situation will likewise be given considerable attention in the meeting in an endeavor to formulate some plans that will prove of advantage both to the company and the distributing agencies. There are also a number of important legislative matters regarding which it is probable the jobbers will take some action.

DISPLAYING REAL ORIGINALITY IN WINDOW DISPLAYS

Some of the Opportunities for Providing Window Arrangements That Are Unusual and Effective—Getting Out of the Beaten Track—Some Examples

There are so many different opportunities for creating original window displays that it is a matter for wonder that more retailers in talking machines do not take advantage of the various occasions to get out of the rut and to create something that is not only out of the beaten track, but is calculated by its very timeliness to attract an unusual amount of attention. The stock advertising matter issued by the manufacturers, jobbers and music publishers covering the songs on the records all helps to make the window attractive, but it frequently happens that several dealers in one town will display the same matter, without showing originality.

Delightful Chinese Effect

A song title, a particular model of machine, a new type of record, all afford an excuse for an exclusive window setting, an excuse of which advantage should be taken. A particular instance of originality in introducing new machine models through the medium of a window display recently came from Portland, Ore., where the Wiley B. Allen Co. featured a Brunswick phonograph in a cabinet of Chinese design. The instrument was not just put in the window with a card attached, but the window decorations and the signs all showed distinctly the Chinese influence. The display aroused wide attention.

Another particularly effective and original window treatment was found in Los Angeles recently, when the Southern California Music Co. turned over a window for advertising the record of the new instrumental number "Me-Ow," published by the Sam Fox Publishing Co., but, although of cardboard, the display had animation. The animal's eyes moved about and, as its tail wagged at intervals, its mouth opened, and it did not require a wide stretch of the imagination to see a feline "meow" roll out.

Featuring a Popular Song

The Southern California Music Co., which also conducts a sheet music department, took occasion to display copies of "Me-Ow," as well as the records in the window, and the result was that two departments benefited by the demand created by the window display. The "Me-Ow" display was the work of F. E. Bailey.

CONDON & CO.'S STEEL NEEDLE LINE

Torrington Co. Appoints New York Firm Sole Agents for "Uniform" Steel Talking Machine Needles—Chat With Wm. A. Condon

The Torrington Co., Torrington, Conn., one of the country's leading manufacturers of steel needles of all description, has appointed Condon & Co., Inc., as the sole agent for its line of "Uniform" talking machine steel needles. Condon & Co., Inc., which will maintain its offices in the Fifth Avenue Building, expects to shortly announce an extensive merchandising and publicity campaign in behalf of these needles.

Wm. A. Condon

The president of Condon & Co., Inc., is William A. Condon, who has been associated with the talking machine industry for many years, and numbers among his personal friends talking machine dealers and jobbers from coast to coast. Mr. Condon is thoroughly familiar with every phase of the talking machine industry, and is prepared to give the jobbers and dealers handling "Uniform" needles maximum service and co-operation.

In a chat with The World Mr. Condon referred enthusiastically to the possibilities for developing an extensive market for "Uniform" needles, commenting as follows:

"There is one factor back of 'Uniform' product which insures to complete finalization the remarkable quality of 'Uniform' needles, and that one factor is the record and reputation the Torrington Co. holds. It has been a leader in the needle business for over fifty years, and is and has been the largest and oldest needle manufacturer in the world. The company has retained its position of supremacy for such a long time by keeping to the highest ideals in merchandising. The officers of the company point with pride to the fact that they have never sacrificed quality for production.

"Their product was produced through the trying war period (when so many believed that anything was acceptable) with the same regard for quality as before or since. And that is really the view of Torrington. Bigness in view as well as bigness in organization is apparent in all their work, and one cannot fail to be impressed by observing their mammoth factories. In the Excelsior needle branch, one of the group the company operates at Torrington, they have nearly 3,000 employees.

"Our selling plans have been carefully formulated, and we are binding ourselves to adhere to merchandising and marketing which will safeguard the trade in every particular. We would be remiss were we not to take advantage of this opportunity to acknowledge the kindly advice and help so many of our good friends in the trade have given us. The trade is in a 'show me' attitude to-day more than ever before, and it could not be otherwise after the experiences which it has encountered during the past year. We are planning to satisfy this attitude of the trade with 'Uniform' product, which is most aptly named, and perhaps not the least pleasant considerations are the initial orders which we have already received—an acknowledgment of quality of the most gratifying sort."

COLUMBIA MEN MEET IN ATLANTA

Travelers, Owners and Managers of Columbia Stores Enjoy Dinner at Hotel Ansley and Enjoy Playing of Advance Records—Business Very Active in This Territory

ATLANTA, GA., April 7.—Manager Terhune, of the Columbia Graphophone Co.'s Southeastern distributing headquarters, says that the business of the company continues to grow and broaden. The Columbia travelers are selling more symphony records than ever before and the local dealers are calling each day for more of the better class of records, Rosa Ponselle's records already having "taken" fine. The branch is booking the largest business in every line of Grafonolas, records, supplies and dealer service department that they have ever sold.

An innovation was introduced by Mr. Terhune in March by calling together all the Columbia travelers and the owners and managers of the local Columbia stores. At a dinner at the Hotel Ansley on the evening of March 28 the sample records for May were played after dinner and the dealers given first-hand and advance information as to the merits of each and every record. Everybody got acquainted and the whole evening was a big occasion and will no doubt be very helpful to all parties concerned. It is planned to repeat these occasions from time to time.

Manager of Victor Department of Loeser & Co. Entertained by Staff and Friends

E. Paul Hamilton, manager of the Victrola, piano and music departments of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., who are Victor wholesalers, was tendered an elaborate banquet by the members of his staff and business associates at the Hotel Astor, New York, on Saturday evening, April 5. After enjoying an excellent menu, the party was entertained with an ambitious musical program by members of the Loeser staff and listened to a number of addresses, all of a complimentary nature. A feature of the entertainment was the playing of eight pianos in unison. Among the members of the talking machine trade present at the dinner were Thomas F. Green, of the Silas E. Pearssall Co., and E. H. Lansing, of Boston.

BOGUS TAX COLLECTOR AT WORK

Talking Machine Owners Should Be on the Watch for This Fake Collector—The Federal Tax Does Not Concern Owners

The latest fraud inflicted on the good people of Brooklyn, N. Y., is in the form of a fake tax collector who has been reaping a fat harvest by means of a tax on pianos. Many an owner of an instrument has been swindled out of a five-dollar bill on the strength of this man's tin badge. Dealers and owners of talking machines and other musical instruments should be on the watch to see that they are not imposed upon in the future.

The New War Revenue bill, which became effective on February 25, applies only to the manufacturer's selling price, the taxes being paid by the manufacturer himself and then being included in the gross price of the instrument. Attempts to have a State tax placed on pianos and other musical instruments in the home have not yet been successful.

Do not be impressed by any swindler who displays a tin badge inscribed "U. S. Tax Collector" and asks to look at your talking machine. Show him the door in a hurry.

Compton-Price Co. Soon to Be in New Addition to Stradivara Factory—Representatives All Over Country Having Phenomenal Business

The new addition, the erection of which was announced in last month's World, to the factory of the Compton-Price Co., Coshocton, Ohio, manufacturers of Stradivara phonographs, is practically completed. Within a short time the company will have these additional facilities at their command, which will greatly aid in han-

Reports from J. N. England, Healy Building, Atlanta, Ga., who has for the past year been acting as Southern representative of the line, show a splendid volume of business, which is continually increasing, a large number of new Stradivara dealers having been established in his territory since the first of the year.

In the accompanying illustration is shown the plant of the company as it appeared before the

Besides taking great care with the mechanical development of this machine, the company have been placing at the disposal of the dealers instruments of superior cabinet work, which they are well able to produce on account of their long experience in this line of endeavor and the facilities which they have at their command.

L. C. Penn, F. J. Kelly and Mr. Taugher are now visiting the trade in the Central States, and new addition was built. As may be seen, it is thoroughly modern in every respect, a two-story structure, the interior of which is so arranged that a most progressive method of manufacture is conducted at all times.

MME. LASHANSKA IN CONCERT

Famous Soprano Scores in Appearance in Cleveland Recently

CLEVELAND, O., April 3.—Mme. Hulda Lashanska, the famous concert soprano who records exclusively for the Columbia record library, appeared last night at a concert given for Columbia dealers and their families in the Lattice Room of the Statler Hotel. J. L. DuBreuil, manager of the Columbia Co.'s branch in this city, invited the company's dealers in this territory to attend this concert, and a capacity audience was present to hear this well-known artist.

Mme. Hulda Lashanska

On Tuesday evening, April 1, Mme. Lashanska appeared at Gray's Armory, in this city, as the soloist with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, and her performance won the enthusiastic praise of the local critics. She has been appearing as a soloist with a number of the country's leading orchestras, and each concert serves to add to her prestige and popularity.

The Columbia records made by Mme. Lashanska are meeting with great favor everywhere, and Columbia dealers state that their patrons heartily commend these records. She received an ovation from the Columbia dealers at Wednesday night's concert at the Hotel Statler, and was obliged to render many encores in order to satisfy her audience.

KENT CO. INCREASING OUTPUT

Demand for Master Adapter Makes Increased Production Necessary

The F. C. Kent Co., Newark, N. J., who some months ago introduced the Kent Master Adapter, an attachment which makes any disc record playable on the New Edison phonograph, have found the demand for this product to be greatly on the increase during the past two months. The F. C. Kent Co. have since the starting of the business specialized in the manufacture of attachments for Edison machines, and in the new Kent Master Adapter they have incorporated all the improvements that years of experience and knowledge have shown them are feasible. The new adapter is simple but durable in its construction and quite attractive in appearance. Jobbers are with the Kent Co. in placing the product before the trade and many of them have placed orders for deliveries over a period of months anticipating a heavy demand.

The F. C. Kent Co. are now running at full capacity in order to meet the demands of the trade, and plans for a further increase in output are well under way.

EDWARD LYMAN BILL RETURNS

Edward Lyman Bill docked in New York the early part of last week. For nearly two full years he has been overseas, where he served the first year in the field ambulance service and for the last year as an officer of French field artillery. He has completely recovered from the very severe gassing he underwent at Verdun, and has already taken up active duties as a member of The Talking Machine World staff.

NEW DOMESTIC MODELS

Several New Styles Now Being Introduced Win Favor—President Truitt's Interesting Views

LATROBE, PA., April 7.—The Domestic Talking Machine Corp. of this city, through its president, Joseph Truitt, announces the advent of several new models of the Domestic talking machine. Mr. Truitt, when taking charge of the Domestic organization, which at that time was located at Philadelphia, issued the following statement: "We shall not offer our new models until they are of quality and value that cannot be resisted." The plant was moved last July from Philadelphia to Latrobe and a considerable amount was invested in placing it upon an efficient basis that would allow for increased manufacturing facilities. E. Bauer, well known to the talking machine industry, and who is in charge of the sales end of the organization, is enthusiastic over the line now offered and predicts a strong popularity for it when shown to the trade.

SPECIAL WINDOWS FOR HEMPEL

LYNCHBURG, VA., April 5.—J. P. Ogden, Inc., the Edison dealers in this city, gave Frieda Hempel a stunning window for her St. Patrick's Day concert there, using the Hempel three-sheet and the "Daughter of the Regiment" cut-outs as a background for the Edison announcements and personal pictures of the prima donna.

Mr. Allen, Jr.—or is it Lieutenant Allen—secretary and treasurer of the company, is still in the service in France, but hopes to return in time for the Edison convention this June.

The J. P. Bell Co. and the Adkins Furniture Co., Victor dealers, also gave Miss Hempel good windows.

WHY HARPONOLA Talking Machines are Better

"The whole is equal to the sum of its parts," and since every detail and feature of the Harponola is as fine as it can be made, the Harponola is a decidedly superior instrument.

The Mechanical Equipment

The motor is the best we can buy—a motor that has stood the test of service successfully.

The tone arm contributes wonderfully to the fine, mellow, musical quality of the tone,—can be readily regulated to any needle pressure.

The tone arm and sound box are arranged to play any make of record without fussy adjustment.

The sound box, itself, is fitted with the highest grade India Ruby mica diaphragm.

A thoroughly reliable automatic stop is attached, when desired.

In nicety of finish, this Harponola mechanical equipment is also noteworthy.

NEW NEWARK PLANT GOING UP FOR OTTO HEINEMAN CO.

Ground Broken on March 27 for Erection of Great Manufacturing Plant to Meet Requirements of Growing Business of Heineman Institution—Will Be of Modern Type

When on March 27 A. F. Meisselbach and Adolph Heineman, vice-presidents of the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co., Inc., dug up the first two shovels of dirt in the midst

A. F. Meisselbach and Adolph Heineman of the two Newark city blocks just opposite Pennsylvania South Street Station, Newark, bought by the Otto Heineman Phonograph Sup-pliment of this very successful business institution. The new plant will be added to the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co.'s numerous other factories, owing to the increase in the demand for Heineman and Meisselbach products.

Following on the heels of the recent announcement giving the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. control of the great Garford plant in Elyria, Ohio, this news about the new Newark factory is a most eloquent proof of growth.

The present Newark home of the Meisselbach motor is 35 years old, and while it is running full force and turning out a tremendous quantity of phonograph products, yet it was found necessary for the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. to erect a new plant of its own so as to keep step with the rapid growth of the business and in order that the high standard of quality for which the Otto Heineman Phonograph Supply Co. has always stood should not be sacrificed for quantity.

The new Heineman plant will be of the most modern type, and will be completed and running full force during the latter part of the fall.

VALUE OF WINDOW DISPLAYS

One of Many Interesting Features of Current Issue of Columbia Record

The April issue of the "Columbia Record," the

Messrs. Meisselbach, A. Heineman and Architect Corey With Meisselbach Factory Heads Breaking Ground for New Plant

house organ issued by the Columbia Graphophone Co., features on its front page an interesting article devoted to the proper method of preparing window displays. This article is accompanied by practical illustrations that will aid the Columbia dealer in making his window displays effective and productive.

There are several articles in the April "Columbia Record" devoted to the educational department, and, judging from the reports received from Columbia dealers throughout the country, this department is becoming more important day by day. There are unlimited possibilities for developing the sale of Columbia records produced under the direction of the educational department, and these opportunities are being utilized to advantage by aggressive Columbia dealers.

There are several interesting items regarding Columbia artists that give a personal touch to the records made by these artists, and the dealer service department of the Columbia Co. contributes its usual quota of timely and valuable sales helps that will act as an impetus in developing a strong and increasing demand for Columbia product.

GOOD TRADE IN LOS ANGELES

Local Dealers Did Good Business During Past Month, Despite Shortage of Machines and Records—Columbia Dealers Meet—"Madame Butterfly" Records Have Good Sale

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 5.—Notwithstanding the depleted stocks and the inability of local talking machine merchants to obtain goods, business was fine during March. Scarcity of records is still the "thorn in the flesh," and all the dealers have their hands full explaining the shortage to customers. Los Angeles jobbers have no definite information as to when things will strike the normal mark again.

Los Angeles is thronged with tourists, and it is almost impossible to find a house unoccupied, all of which spells prosperity for southern California. Many dealers are looking forward to a banner year in spite of the alarming shortage in both machines and records.

Harold Jackson, manager of the talking machine department of the Wiley B. Allen Co., says the Brunswick line is selling nicely, but he is experiencing the same trouble in getting them as he is Victors and Edisons. Mr. Jackson has just received a Brunswick model style 1500 in brown mahogany. This exclusive Italian renaissance model is one of the handsomest period models ever exhibited in Los Angeles.

The Columbia Graphophone Co. held their monthly meeting for Los Angeles and southern California and Arizona dealers at the Alexandria Hotel on Monday morning, March 17. There was a good attendance. The Columbia May records, on sale April 10 and 20, were played and an address was given by Local Manager W. F. Stidham. The next meeting takes place on April 15 at the Alexandria Hotel at 9:30 a. m.

A crowded house listened to the performance of "Madame Butterfly" at the Mason Opera House, the superb singing and acting of dainty Madame Tamaka Miura being enthusiastically applauded. The part of Cho-Cho-San's child was taken by a granddaughter of L. E. Behymer, the famous manager, who was exquisitely charming. The little actress performed her part perfectly, and is an exceptionally beautiful child. Madame Tamaka Miura's Columbia records are enjoying a very large sale locally as a result of her appearance here.

Andrew G. McCarthy, treasurer and general manager of the talking machine department for Sherman, Clay & Co., has been in this city for the last week visiting the local branch. Mr. McCarthy is very much pleased with the new quarters, which now occupy the entire fifth floor of the Parmalee-Dohrmann Building. C. S. Ruggles, local manager, expects Victor goods to come in more rapidly in the future.

The Bartlett Music Co., Columbia dealers, are adding four new record demonstration rooms to their Grafonola department.

P. H. Beck, in charge of the talking machine department for the George J. Birkel Co., exclusive Victor dealers, says he has a hard time to get enough machines to use as record demonstrators.

J. A. Frye, California representative of the Victor Co., is in Los Angeles visiting the various dealers.

L. E. Creedon has purchased the Foot Hill Drug Store, at Azusa, Cal. Mr. Creedon handles the Victor line and expects to enlarge the department shortly.

CLARENCE G. CAMPBELL RETURNS

Well-Known President of Knight-Campbell Music Co. Back at the Helm Once More

DENVER, COLO., April 4.—After eighteen months spent with the United States Army in France, Lieutenant Clarence G. Campbell, president of the Knight-Campbell Music Co., has received his discharge and is hard at work again. He was among the first to enlist in the service and started his military career at Camp Funston in the fall of 1917. He was later sent to the artillery school at Camp Taylor and there received his commission as a lieutenant in the field artillery.

He sailed for France in June, 1918, and was stationed at an artillery training camp near Paris. His course of training was completed and he was ready to go to the front when the armistice was signed. He was very much disappointed in not getting a chance to try his hand at the Huns and thinks the worst thing that can happen to any soldier is to be a year and a half in the service without getting a chance to fight.

WILL MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

HIGH POINT, N. C., April 4.—The Amos Furniture Co. of this city will shortly take possession of their new building, now in the course of erection. It will contain one of the largest and best equipped talking machine departments in the South. Ten booths will be erected for demonstration purposes. The Dixie and Columbia lines are carried by this firm.

NEW STORE OPENED

The Classy Phonograph Shop has been opened at 909 Vine street, Cincinnati, O., by I. J. Klug, and A. W. Sandmann. The new shop will handle several lines of talking machines. Both members of the company were formerly in the piano field.

VICTROLA VETERAN OF THE WAR

Instrument Loaned to Old Fifteenth Infantry of Albany, N. Y., Is Back at the Capital With Notable Victory to its Credit

ALBANY, N. Y., April 5.—After traveling around the world for more than a year and seven months, the Victrola loaned to the old Fifteenth Infantry is back in Albany.

On August 21 W. J. Killea, a local Victor and the first of the two trips it took across the Atlantic Ocean.

It seems little short of a miracle that a Victrola could last through such a journey, but it certainly was in good company, for every member of the regiment received a French War Cross for bravery under fire.

Mr. Killea returned from Camp Upton this morning with the pieces of the machine. Springs were broken several times, and one ingenious trooper had kept on using one spring again and again by heating the ends of the spring and boring new holes to hitch the spring until it was so short that it would play only half a record. The tone arm looks as though it had been in the very center of a box barrage. The sound box needle screw was lost, and the soldiers held the needle in place by stuffing paper in the needle socket. At St. Nazaire, Mr. Killea was told, the boys planned to salvage the remains of the Victrola, but decided to return it to America as they had agreed. The machine has been on exhibition in Mr. Killea's show window and the public has taken a keen interest in the Victrola that delighted and comforted these brave colored boys while they were "beating the Hun."

Victrola That Went Through the War

dealer, loaned to Company C of the old Fifteenth Infantry, now the Three Hundred and Sixty-ninth Regiment, a Victrola to be returned when they were discharged from the army. Shortly afterward these soldiers, who were to prove themselves among the most wonderful fighters in the world's war, were moved to an embarkation point and sent oversea. This was the first leg of the journey of more than 10,000 miles

"GIVE US GOODS," CRY DETROIT JOBBERS AND RETAILERS

Demand in This Territory Exceeds All Expectations and an Enormous Business Can Be Done if Machines and Records Can Be Secured—Phonograph Company Increases Capital—Recent Visitors

DETROIT, MICH., April 6.—"Give us goods" is the cry of all jobbers and retailers in this neck of the woods, and all we want to say is this—unless the manufacturers increase their output very considerably within the next six months the talking machine situation promises to be a critical one next fall when the big rush comes. Right now—think of it—dealers are doing more business than during previous holiday seasons—it is amazing where the business all comes from. One dealer said the other day "the country has gone talking machine mad," and we certainly believe it from the way dealers are complaining of shortages. Of course, the larger jobbers and dealers are the loudest "yellers," but the shortage is affecting every dealer no matter whose goods he handles. He may be able to get some goods, but the very models that he finds the most popular are, as in the past, the hardest to get.

No matter on what jobber you call you get the same story—"business is fine, it would be much better if we could get the goods." The various jobbers are not one bit too anxious to start new dealers just now, preferring to take care of their old dealers first, and knowing it would be fruitless to put on new dealers so far as supplying them with goods is concerned.

Wallace Brown, the Brunswick dealer, says he was never as low on merchandise as he is to-day. He is doing 300 per cent. more business than a year ago.

George W. Pound, general counsel for the Music Industries Chamber of Commerce, comes here May 15 and 16 and will be given a banquet at the Statler Hotel the first night. The various talking machine dealers will attend the banquet, which will be followed by a meeting.

The Phonograph Co. of Detroit has increased its capital stock to $200,000. R. B.

Alling, manager of the Phonograph Co. of Detroit, says this will be the biggest and best year.

Mr. Keyes, general supervisor for the Pathé Frères Phonograph Co., was a Detroit visitor recently, conferring with Manager Chambers, of the Pathé phonograph department of Williams, Davis, Brooks & Hinchman Sons, Detroit jobbers, and calling on the different Pathé dealers. Mr. Chambers is in the same boat as the other jobbers, and he states it is merely a question of getting goods, as the demand is there and dealers are clamoring both for Pathé records and Pathé phonographs.

C. H. Grinnell, manager of the Victor wholesale department of Grinnell Bros., is yelling loudly that he was never so short on records and machines, and it "almost makes his heart ache" to see the orders come in and remain unfilled week in and week out.

"CO-OPERATING WITH FAILURE"

Some Pertinent Topics Discussed in Bulletins Sent Out by General Manager Moody, of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 7.—During the past few months V. W. Moody, general manager of the Buffalo Talking Machine Co., this city, has been sending out a series of bulletins which discuss topics of keen interest to the Victor trade and which have won the enthusiastic commendation of the dealers.

In a recent bulletin, entitled "Co-operating With Failure," Mr. Moody gave his idea of an "ideal" store for the Victor dealer who is courting stagnation. As one of the veterans of the Victor industry, Mr. Moody has acquired an intimate knowledge of the problems that confront Victor dealers, and in this recent bulletin he called attention to many of the factors that retard the growth of a Victor establishment. This bulletin, which is essentially constructive in its purpose, reads in part as follows:

"A customer approaches the store (over a dirty sidewalk). He glances at the show window (through dirty glass); he looks at the display (of dingy, dusty Victrolas and faded printed matter); he grasps the doorknob (which almost falls out in his hand), opens the (creaking, poorly-hung) door and enters.

"Then he steps into the store onto a (knotty, bare, dirty) floor; glances at the display space of the walls (giving due attention to cracks, scaling paint, loose wall-paper, cobwebs and the display of dusty bulletins, unframed pictures, etc.).

"The salesman (neatly dressed, of course) was in the back of the store, smoking and working, and didn't wait to lay aside his nice, sweet-smelling smoke, but went right up to the customer and asked him if there was something he wanted (assuming, naturally, that he came in merely to look around).

"Meanwhile the customer did look around, and saw that desk or table over in the corner (a disorderly pile of catalogs, record envelopes and things of the kind littered this piece of furniture).

"The customer now admits that he does want something—a Victor record. He is taken into a hooth and given a chair (the most uncomfortable one in the place) and is permitted to rest his eyes on the unattractiveness of the hooth—no nice, clean glass; dust, dirt, knotholes, unattractive display matter; ceiling, walls and floor in poor condition.

"We get the record for the customer, and to play it stand or pass between the Victrola and the customer, affording him every opportunity to form an uncomplimentary opinion of our hack and our brain.
