THE LOUISIANA ADVERTISER.

Under the auspices of the individual who, for many years contributed to the celebrity of the Argus, the Louisiann Adverticer, latterly to devoid of interest, will blaze out in all its original splendor. Already has the new purchaser made great changes; the name of Edward D. White figures at the head of his columns in the place of another important personage, for whose success as an aspirant, if we mistake not he manifested the greatest devotion. The sentiments and o p nions, however, of Mr. Gibson have suddenly been changed When he edited the Argus he pretended to think that neither of the other candidates could stand the slightest comparison with Mr. Prieur, for whom he claimed the possession of talonts of the highest order. The acquaintance of Mr. Prieur. we were told, with public affairs were of a kind to cast the pretresiens of his rivals in the shade. The pompous panegyrc made then in favor of Mr. P. was altogether at the expense of Mr. White, who was unceremoniously thrust uside and treated with the most insulting contempt. It seems to us to be difficult now, with a regard to delicacy and to the respect due one's self, to reconcile the discrepancy which is so manifestly apparent in such a dereliction of principle. To show grounds for so suspicious a change it must be proved that since November Mr. Prieur has altogether lost the c' sims he then presented for the post, or that Mr. White has talents which were overlooked. Without such a ple well anhatantiated, no confidence can be reposed in the good figh a him who aspires to influence the public opinion. As for ourselves, en attendant, while Mr. Gibson is called ton to make known the reasons that induced him to a-inclosionaly stricken, and that we shall continue with the z al worthy of the good cause in which we have eal sied, to support General Dawson, believing that in securing his election we contribute to the best interests of our State. We certainly respect the boundars of others when they are anestly expressed; but when one changes his sentiments of men and measures as often as he does his cluthes, and vers round to every point of the political compass, with a rapidly characteristic of one of the elements, we cannot but call into question the rectitude of his motives, and caution the Public against his efforts to influence them.

andon Mr. Prieur's claims, for which he appeared to be so

The editor of the Louisiana Advertiser announces in number of yesterday, that it is his intention to render his surnal the first in the State; that it shall be printed on paper of the first quality, and that he contemplates sending on to the North for new type, dec. dec. dec. de short, that nothing rence of the Schate in a resolution "to procure an apwill be neglected to render it worthy of the public support.-He might, we think, have saved himself the trouble of such promises, as none can doubt for a moment that the Louisiena, under the direction of a person so ingenious, so independent, and above all, so consistent as he is, will not only become (as he has the modesty to say) the first paper in the State, but likewise the first in the United States. Further, to those who dare to doubt such a favorable opinion, we refor them to the Argus while under his control.
