The Lost Inheritance.

The train from Paris to Lyons stopped The train from Paris to Lyons stopped at the station of Joigny, a town upon the route, and after leaving a few passengers, again went on. The station, for a moment crowded with railway porters and lookers on, was soon deserted by all but two individuals. One of them was an old man, dressed in the garb of a well-to -do farmer; the other a youth of five-and-twenty, who seemed to be waiting for some one to come and meet him. To this individual the old man presently ad-

"May I presume, sir," said he, "to inquire if you are Clement B.?"

"Yes, my good man," replied the youth, with a haughtiness of manner, and I have no doubt you are Mr. Martin. "At your service, sir," replied the

"Well, Mr. Martin," continued Clement, in the same tone, "I began to imagine that you intended to keep me waiting .-That would not have been the best man ner to insinuate yourself into my good graces."

The old man instead of replying, let his head fall on his breast as if in a deep affliction, and conducted the new-comer towards a large old fashioned carriage, to which a very rough looking horse was

"Here is your carriage, sir," said Martin. "If you will be good enough to get in I will have the honor of conducting you to the Hermitage."

"That my cattiage, sir!" cried Clement. "Why, I shall be taken for a traveling peddler."

But a few days before Mr. Clement B. who now put on so many fine airs, was a simple clerk in a crockery warehouse in Paris, and possessed the reputation of being a quiet, unpretending little fellow.—
What, then, had brought about this sudden and radical transformation? He had become, since the previous day, a rich man and it may well be understood that the possessor of an income of twenty thousand francs a year finds it difficult to retain the modest demeanor of a poor clerk. On the previous day, while dusting the large piles of crockery ware under his charge, a letter arrived for him by the rest by the post, conveying to him the start-ling intelligence that one of his uncles, of whom he had often heard as an eccentric and wealthy old man, but whom he had never seen, had just died at his residence in Burgundy, leaving his nephew, Clement, sole heir to his estates, to the exclusion of many other heirs.

The letter was from a notary in the province, who desired him to leave immediately for Joigny, the town near which this uncle had resided, where he would be met by Mr. Martin, an old confidential servant of the deceased, and conducted from the railroad to the "Hermitage," the name which the deceased had given to the estate.

Almost driven out of his senses by such an expected stroke of fortune, Clement hastened to obey the notary's instructions, and on his arrival at Joigny was joined by Martin, as was seen.

On jolted the queer vehicle in which our hero had so contemptously taken a place, until, after a ride of several miles, the occupants arrived at their destina-

Martin offered the honors of the Hermitage to the new proprietor, called all the servants and introduced them to their future master, and then conducted the latter to his apartments.

"This was the sleeping-chamber of your nncle," said Martin, as they entered a large apartment, furnished in old-fashioned style. "It was in this room that he died, ten days ago."

But the nephew, instead of evincing any emotion upon being shown the chamber of his benefactor, cast upon all around him a look of scorn, and cried:

"Upon my word, I can't say I think much of the old boy's taste! I never saw anything so very ugly in all my life."
"Notwithstanding, sir," replied Martin,
"it is the best we have, and if you cannot content yourself, I really don't know where you will find other lodgings."

"I live here!" exclaimed the young man. "You don't think I am such a donkey, I hope? For us young fellows, do you see, Paris is the only place; so I shall sell this old crazy rookery at once, and then be off.'

"Sell the Hermitage!" exclaimed Martin, "our uncle's favorite place of residence! Impossible! And we servants, who hoped to end our days under this roof, what is to become of us?"

"Mr. Martin," retorted the young man, "let me have none of your complaints, I beg. Get me some dinner, and afterwards you will drive me to the

And, having eaten a hearty meal, notwithstanding he found the meats incipid and the wines sour, the legatee, still accompanied by Martin re-entered the carriage and the two started off.
"If I am not mistaken," observed Mr.
Clement, after an hour's ride, "we passed this spot this morning; and that," point-ing to a building, "is the railroad station. Do we take the train there?"

"You alone will do so," responded his companion, speaking verry very gravely, and in a manner which caused the young man to tremble in spite of himself. "I, sir, am your uncle, and, happily, I am not dead! Having heard good accounts of your conduct, I had resolved to make you heir of all I possess; but before doing so, I wished to ascertain if you were really deserving of my generosity, and I had recourse to stratagem, which has thoroughly exposed your true character to me.—Good-bye, Mr. Clement; return to your business, and remember that your arrogance and ingratitude have lost you that, which will never again be placed within your reach.'

The old man then gave his foolish nephew sufficient to idemnify him for the expenses of his trip, took leave of him at the station and returned home. The feelings of the young man may be imagined, but, as the yellow-covered novels say, "they cannot be described"

This is a true story, and an apt illustration of the maxim: "Never halloo until you are out of the woods."

REMARKABLE SCENE IN A NEW OR-LEANS THEATER-A REAL INSTEAD OF A MOCK TRAGEDY !- On the evening of the 29th ult about 10 o'clock, in New Orleans, a tragedy was enacted more serious than expected, on the stage of the German Theater, or Concert Hall, on Poydras street, between St. Charles and Carondelet. The drama of the Wolf was being enacted, at that scene in which is represented a gambling house where a a young man is victimized of his last dollar, and when he charges the gambler with cheating, is stabbed and killed.— John Kruger was playing the part of the gambler, and Emile Steiner that of the victimized young man. Kruger had not been furnished with a stage dagger by the property man, and borrowed a real one from officer Berwin, the special policeman in Concert Hall. In acting such scenes with real daggers, on the stage, the person who strikes the blow keeps his elbow out further than the point of the weapon, and the person who pretends to receive the fatal thrust leans backward, so that the striker's elbow, coming against his breast, stopping the Steiner was unhapily somewhat intoxicated and when he should have thrown himself backward he suddenly stooped forward, and before Kruger could check the impetus of his arm, the dagger had gone into the right side of Steiner's neck, opening a gash to the backbone. The unfortunate actor was instantly carried off the stage and sent to the Charity Hospital, mortally wounded, while Kruger was taken to the lock up by officers Dalton and Berwin. The curtain was down but a short time, the pool of blood was washed up, and then it was an nounced to the audience that the drama could not be concluded, but a farce would be substituted! Here's a subject for a moralist. The audience applauded, up went the curtain, and for a whole hour the actors and audience enjoyed themselves. Verily, is this not either ignorance of the event, or an indifference of it on the part of the managers or the audience.

To LADIES WHO DANCED WITH THE PRINCE.-What an event among crinolinedom-to have danced with the Prince of Wales! We are afraid we will have of Wales! We are afraid we will have much to answer for. Young men who were formerly considered paragons of perfection by these same young ladies, will doubtless be snubbed incontinently. A hand that was grasped by a live Prince, will not be bestowed on every chance comer, depend upon it. Have a care, girls! Don't carry your heads too high; or, at least, not so high that you may not have the pleasure of telling your children. have the pleasure of telling your children "all about the Prince." In short, don't be so puffed up, that, one of these days, somebody will point out a withered up, old maid, and somebody else will exclaim incredulously, in your hearing: "What! the Prince dance with her! Well, truly there's no accounting for taste!" Not the consolatory, "Oh, but she was very pretty once!" will take a sting from the rejoinder. "Is it possible?"—FANNY FERN

A HAPPY FATHER .- We see it stated in an exchange paper, that Elder Kimball, one of the leading Mormon Saints, recently had born to him in one night, no less than fourteen children. What would Tupper—who describes a babe in a house as "a fountain of joy and a well spring of pleasure"—say to this?

We rather think he would be inclined to call it "quite a flood."

WHAT'S in a name? More than some people think. Don't open a suasage shop in Cateaton street.

DISCOVERY OF A MISTARE.—A good story is told of a Washington country man, who on his way to Cincinnati, became somewhat elevated by sundry "drinks," but as good luck would have it, found a boat at the wharf, and was quickly on his way.

Soon after leaving the wharf, a man came around for his fare. Horrall handed out a five dollar bill, and received four dollars and ninety-five cents in change. He rammed it into a pocketbook with great eagerness, supposing the clerk had made a mistake. That done, he leaned back in a chair and fell asleep. A little while, a and he was plucked away by the same man, who again demanded fare. "Discovered the mistake," thought he, holding out a handful of change. The man, as before, took only live cents, and Horrall again went into a dose. The had set find the description of the had set find the had set find the description of the had set find the description of the had set find the last find the dose. Ere he had got fairly to dreaming of home and friends far away, around came the collector again, and thus it went on for a long time.

At last Horral thought it very inconvenient, and concluded to vote the collector a nuisance, and give him a bit of advice besides—so he said:

"Is (hic) this a danger-(hic)-ous bo-

"Cincinnatti," said the polite conductor, "why, you must be sadly out of your reckoning. This is the ferry-boat, and all this afternoon you have been riding to and fro between New Albany and Portland."

That night Horrall staid in Louisville.

STRANGE STORY .- The Schenectady News vouches for the truth of the following: "Mr. W——, who resides in Schenectady county, in the town of Niskayuna, about three weeks ago, was awakened from his sleep by an unusual noise, which he thought proceeded from the adjoining room. More surprised than alarmed, he lighted a candle and went into the apartment, which was used as a spare bedroom. As he opened the door his light went out with the current of air, and he was in total darkness. Presently, however, as he turned to grope his way back, the room grew light as a cellar on a rainy afternoon, through a ground glass overhead, and Mr. W—dimly saw his eldest son on the bed, clad in the habiliments of death, and the coffin beside him, resting in two chairs ocross the foot end. In a moment the illusion vanished, and Mr. Wturned to his own room and struck another match, and again entered the spare as usual. Little was thought of the optical delusion, but last week the eldest son of Mr. W-- was taken ill, and he died last Friday. He was a bright boy of some ten summers. We think the case worthy of a place in Robert Dale Owen's 'Footfalls on the Boundary of Another World."

A NEW PLOWING MACHINE .- R. F. Hudson and H. A. Pomeroy, of New York, have just patented a new plowing machine, the principle of which is entirely different from any of its predecessors. We may suppose two cart wheels with gearing upon the inner face of the spokes which drives three shafts hung on an oscillated frame, and lying back at the rear of the axle, by which three furrows, each a foot wide and a foot deep, are not only to be turned over, but thoroughly stirred up and pulverised; the operation being something like worming a screw through the soil in so rapid a manner that it keeps the earth flying around in a circle, and that of the three diggers mixing through each other.

CENSUS OF WASHOE .- The Census marshal for Virginia district visited 2,-041 houses, in which he found a popula-tion of 6,870. In addition to this number he took the names, but did not include as citizens, of 1,091 persons, who gave their names in California. In his travels he met with 200 deserted cabins; he found 180 farms, containing 77,076 acres, or about 4054 acres to each farm ; 14.860 acres of this land is under fence He reports 6,856 head of oxen, sows and calves; 600 head of horses and mules; 300 sheep; and 350 hogs; 12 saw mills in operation. The population of our dif-ferent towns is, according to his report, Virginia, 2,244, and 525 additional tak-en in California; Gold Hill, 600; Silver City, 594; Carson City, 700, and 200 taken in California; Genoa, 225. The population of Honey Lake and Long Valley, and the entire Walker River mining district, was not taken.

THE ALLEGED SECRET GOLD MINE BELONGING TO FRANCE—THE PARISH CLAIM.—The claim of Mr. Parish on the CLAIM.—The claim of Mr. Parish on the Emperor, personally, for the sum of £600,000 has been the cause of much controversy in Paris during the week. By most people Mr. Robert Parish is deemed a sufferer from excitement of the brain on a subject which, from its very magnitude, was calculated to create a loss of equilibrium. That the gold mines do exist, and that the Americans have evidently had a knowledge of them for some time, there can be no doubt either, nor dently had a knowledge of them for some time, there can be no doubt either, nor that M. Fould is accustomed to do business in the way mentioned in Mr. Parrishs memorial; but great doubt does exist that all this has really happened.—The mine is that of Bamboulk, situated on the Faleme which empties itself into the Senegal river. This latter river is preserved by treaty entirely under the control of French arms, and no ships of any other nation are allowed to enter the harbor of St. Louis, lest their crews harbor of St. Louis, lest their crews should penetrate into the interior. The fabulous wealth of these Bamboulk mines fabulous wealth of these Bamboulk mines has long been known, as no fewer than four different sovereigns of France have been on the point of fitting out expeditions to visit them. A traveler who returned thence in 1846, said he had met there two Russian geologists who had been dispatched by the Emperor of Russia ostensibly to compare the quality of the gold with that of the mines of Siberia, but in reality to make a treaty with the King. He declared that the wealth of the country was beyond description, inhabited by Moors of industrious habits and well inclined to civilization.

In 1852 there was a great talk amongst

In 1852 there was a great talk amongst the English here of an expedition to be fitted out by Masterman for a visit to the mines. The plan of the exact spot in mines. The plan of the exact spot in which they are situated, and the route by which they are to be gained without raising suspicion in the French authorities, were submitted to a company of English engineers, and the arrangements agreed upon, when the death of the principal agent in the affair put an end to the speculation. There is still something to be done by English enterprise. The secret of the manner of approach has been well preserved, and Liverpool might still secure the prize with a little exertion. The papers relating to the various expeditions fitted out by the French government are easy of access at the library of the Marine, and there exists two persons in Paris who have beheld with their own eyes the wonders therein mentioned—

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.—As a judge, Bushe was merciful, and owing to an incident in his early career as a lawyer, he was somewhat slow to convict on cir-cumstantial evidence. A short time af-ter he was called to the bar, he was bedroom, but everything seemed natural retained at the Wexford assizes, to defend tim's name was Walter Meyler, and it was supposed that he had been killed by a party of rebels of whom one became an approver, and was the chief witness for the crown. Like most approvers, the witness was correct and careful in all his details. He stated that the body of Meyler had been buried close to the shore. wrapped in a coat of the same texture and color as that stated to have been worn by the deceased. Bushe neither cross-examined the witness, nor called evidence upon the part of his client; and before the judge commenced his charge, the jury stated that they were prepared with their verdict. Bushe said, "Wait a moment gentlemen—did any of you know Walter Meyler, the deceased?" The reply was, that all the jury knew him well—and immediately Bushe shouted, to the dismay of the auditors, "Wal-ter Meyler, come into court." The supposed deceased rushed upon the table, and, pointing to him, Bushe exclaimed: There, gentlemen, is my defense!"

THE STATIONERY HOUSE OF A. L. BANCROFT & CO., SAN FRANCISCO.—It matters little what occupation one hasso there be an occupation-but it matters everything how it is prosecuted. Take some one thing, put forth all your energies upon that, and elevate yourself by elevating your calling. We care not, whether it is blacking boots or keeping a bank, when we see a man steadily pursuing some one laudible object, surmounting all obstacles, never deviating from the strictest principles of integrity, regardless of the contemptable tricks of his enemies in their vain endeavors to pull him down -in whatsoever sphere in life we find that man, we take him by the hand, call him brother, and bid him God speed.

The customers of a well conducted mercantile house, reap a direct benefi from the good conduct of that house. If the house have capital, credit and standing, all are employed for the advantage of the

A. L. Bancroft & Co. certainly did not aspire above their ability to perform, when they collected Paper, Envelopes, Blank Books, Pens, Ink, Pencils, &c., embodying all under the term STATION-ERY, and lying their foundation broad and deep, entered upon this as the great business of their lives.

Possessing, in an eminent degree, all the advantages enumerated above, added to which, a thorough knowledge of their business, and a determination to give those who patronize them entire satisfaction, the principles upon which they build are sure, success is certain-and as we can never remain indifferent to the calls of true merit, perseverance and obliging manners, we earnestly recommend the House of A. L. Bancroft & Co., to the attention of our community.

London, says the Registrar-General, now covers 121 square miles—a square of eleven miles to a side. It is equal to three Londons of 1800. It increases at the rate of 1000 a week, half by births (their excess over deaths,) and half by immigration (its excess over emigration)
It is remarkable that in London one in six of those who leave the world dies in one of the public institutions—a work-house, hospital, asylum, or prison. Nearly one in eleven of the deaths is in a work-house. The Law.

During the coming terms of the Court of Sessions, commencing next Monday, and the District Court, commencing on the 17th inst., our citizens will find themselves more than usually interested in the legal "remedies" against every grade of crime, ranging from the petty scoundrelism which induces the theft of a horse, to the graver passion which results in murder.

We are advancing in civilization and its accompanying barbarities, and for the sake of the one must needs endure the

There is undoubtedly a moral suggested by the increase of "law" in our hitherto peaceful little county; but ignoving it for the present, we prefer attracting the attention of our citizens to that doubtful convenience, the Grand Jury system. Is not this system a remnant of barbarism? Does it save or guard any man's rights? Is it not too often an ex parte means of injury to citizens who can have no means of parrying inquisitorial stabs at reputation, dealt in the cowardly safety of secresy?

There are grave objections embodied in these questions; but there is a consideration, working among the people, which may result in the abolishment of Grand Juries and the re-organization of our criminal code: we mean the cost of the present cumberous system. It is be
A. S. Hughes, sworn and examined.—Seen him first Tuesday evening; was drinking during the few days I seen him; saw Sellers and the present cumberous system. It is begining to be generally understood by the interested public, that the item of Grand Juries costs each county too great a proportion of its expenditure; and it is more than suspected that there is no compensating gain connected with the use of this "fifth wheel" to the car of State.

We trust the incoming Legislature will look into this matter and take the preliminary steps necessary to amend the Constitution in this particular. From all appearances the "People" have voted against a Constitutional Convention, and the only method left is for the Legislature to take these objectionable clauses up and act on them separately, and by this means only, this cumberous. Grand Jury system can be abolished.

A some not very distant day we propose to furnish, for the edification of our tax payers, the actual cost of Grand Juries, in this County, and compare it with the other current expenses; and, in the meantime, being open to conviction, the meantime, being open to conviction, the meantime, being open to conviction, we invite any of our readers favorable to the Grand Jury system to give some reasons for their faith.

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOSHUA P. HAVEN. -The Bultetin, of November 26th, gives the following particulars in connection with the death of Joshua P. Haven:

Very suddenly on Saturuay evening, about half-past eight o'clock, Joshua P. Haven died of malignant erysipelas. The day before, being in his usual health, he took charge of the obsequies of Major Scott, and in the performance of that duty walked much of the way to Lone ntain Cemetery; but l with severe pain in the groin, he left the procession and by advice hastened to his home on Powell street. His physician, Dr. Gray, prescribed for him, and a recovery was anticipated until Saturday evening, when the symptons became suddenly worse. The nervous system seemed prostrated, the stomach became exceedingly irritable, and the extremeties grew cold. He died, as was said, at half-past eight that evening, aged forty-three years. General Haven came to California from Philadelphia, his native place, in 1849, and had resided here ever since. He was a member of the Society of Pioneers, a Knight Templer, a Mason, and an honorary member both of No. 5 and of No. 12 Fire Engine Companies. He was Major General of the Second Division of California Malitia, and, in the absence of Gen. Kibbe, acting Quartermaster General.-His connection with the millitia and the societies of which we have spoken, kept him neccessarily much before the public. He was the first choice of all manner of as Coroner for the county of Yolo. public meetings, to serve on Committees, and probably no citizen of San Francisco had a wider circle of accquaintances .-Everybody knew him, and his genial, hearty disposition led all who knew him to esteem him.

When Sellers appologized, the deceased took it all in good part, and I supposed all was set-deceased have a difficulty. Deceased came to my saloon last night; said he and Sellers had a fight last night and Sellers whipped him. Sellers struck him and asked a friend why he did not take his part, Sellers came last night and said he was told he had a fight last night, but did not know of it; had appologized.— This morning was behind my house and saw deceased and John Hunt, and one or two others talking; Sellers came up to them and talked with deceased; others went off; deceased seemed to be talking and arguing and Sellers knocked his hand away; deceased Sellers knocked his hand away; deceased stepped back and made a demonstration; Sellers struck him and knocked him down; he got half way up; Sellers kicked him and rolled him over, he then got up again; Sellers then struck with his right hand on his side, as ideal of his neak, deceased then fell. Sellers or side of his neck; deceased then fell; Sellers seemed to prosecute the demonstrations like he was going to kick him, but did not do it, and then left cursing him, and walked to his house; don't think he had anything in his hand, unless it was small. I picked him up and Sellers came back and helped me.

Daniel Wente, sworn, says—Not acquainted with deceased; never seen him; was at the back door of my house; saw Sellers and deceased; heard some talk; Sellers knocked him down and kicked him; deceased got up and Sellers knocked him and kicked him vicinity at the time of the difficulty; rode up and saw Sellers holding deceased's head; asked who hit him? What did you hit him with? Said with his fist; asked if a doctor could be got; some one said the doctor was out of town, or was asleep; he said, by God I can get him to Mr. Beels'—hold his head; took place on the 28th, at Knight's Landing, at about 8 o'clock, about 75 yards from this place; never saw the deceased before till I saw him lying on the work bench

Woodson Besley, sworn-Says he has been acquainted with the deceased about two months; know him to be an honest upright man; only fault, will drink; he is from New York; seen him about one hour before he was killed; he has told me he was 38 years old; know nothing more; his name was Henry H.

Louis Provost, sworn, says-Deceased came e house and asked me to treat the man (naming Sellers) he had a fight with, as they had a difficulty, and now it was all right, the had made it up; I told him it was against the rules of the house; Sellers then started for his house; deceased then left by himself and I saw him passing Sellers' house; it was about o'clock; do not know certainly.

Joseph T Rice, sworn, says-Deceased has told me he was 28 years old, should judge by his appearance to be so.

S. F. Rodolph and G. W. Read, Physicians and Surgeons, being duly sworn, says: We, the undersigned physicians, after hav-

Body of McLaughlin Found.—Cor-ONER'S INQUEST.—Our readers will remember that about the 8th of the present month, a man named James McLaughlin disappeared from the St. Charles Hotel, under circumstances which justified the belief that he had been foully dealt with. Coroner Taylor, of Yolo county, held an iuquest yesterday on the body of a man found on the opposite side of the river, some twelve miles south of Washington, the circumstances all indicating that the body was that of McLaughlin, and that he had been murdered and thrown in the river. He had when he left the Hotel, about $50 in his pocket. When the body was found the pockets contained three bits. The following are the main points elicited by the testimony before the Coroner's jury: "The deceased appeared to have been about twentyfive or thirty years of age. The body was found by a Portugeese named Joseph Silva, on the 26th instant, lying on the bank of the river, opposite Miller's ranch, twelve miles below Washington; it had evidently floated down the river from some point above, as it was lodged against a log. The deceased had on a check shirt, blue undershirt, brown or grey pants, dark coat, heavy boots, black silk handkerchief around his neek, and two pairs of gloves, one buckskin, and the other pair cotton, in his pocket. The deceased is about five feet, eight inches high, heavy set, black hair, no whiskers. A package of letters addressed to John H. Burk, and one to Melvin B. Gordon. Sacramento, also, a bill of goods made out to Mr. Carrigan by Huntington & Hopkins, were found on the person of the deceased. The forehead over the right eye and the orbit of the eye, have marks of violence, apparently having been crushed with a club or similar instrument. The skull appeared to be fractured. The body had probably been in the water two or three weeks." The Jury found in their verdict that the deceased came to his death by violence at the hands of some person or persons nuknown. After the inquest was held, the body was brought to the city by J. W. Reeves, and placed in the receiving vault at the New Helvetia Cemetery .- Union.

A SAFE REMRDY .- After the excitement of the week, the anxiety and disappointment of the defeated, and the rejoicings of the suc-cessful, there comes with to-morrow a day of rest, when the turbulent waves of political zeal should be stilled, and angry passions be zeal should be stilled, and angry passions be calmed down. Lay aside partizan feelings with your week-day garments, and appear with heart and mind as fresh and new as the Sunday costumes of Quincy Hall. There is much in the matter of dress to divert one's thoughts. The Day and its duties are brought to mind by the new reiment in which it is ento mind by the new raiment in which it is en-joyed; the strife of the week is apt to be for-gotten, and the annoyances of the six days with their train of petty cares sink into insignificance. Take our word for it, that a hand-some suit of clothes (from Quincy Hall, of course) is a good remedy for the chill of dis-appointment and the fever of defeat.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—At the late fire in San Francisco a serious accident occurred to Alfred F. Barbier, a brother of the agent of Tucker's Academy of Music. Barbier, though not a fireman, has al-ways taken an active part in the duties of the Department He was ordered to step out upon the iron roofed balcony of the theater and remove a piece of burning matting which had fallen there. While doing this, the slight material broke through, letting him fall a distance of some twenty feet upon the sidewalk, where he struck heavily, head downwards. He was taken at once to Keith's drug store, and thence to the truck house of St. Francis Hook and Ladder Company, where he was attended by Dr. Gray. The full extent of his injuries cannot yet be ascertained; but it is found that the spinal column is seriously injured, as the whole body is paralyzed—the unfortunate man being utterly unable to move a limb, and experiencing great pain in the neck and back. This is the third accident he has met with within two years, in the discharge of a fireman's duty.

Since the above was put in type, we learn from the Union that Alfred F. Barbier died en Wednesday morning last .-The young lady, to whom he was engaged to be married on the first of January, attempted suicide by poison immediately upon hearing of his death.

and. Her name was Laura-which when breathed softly by a very soft lover, is a very sweet name—and her clear ringing laugh fell around you like a shower of silver bells. Moreover, she wore a dark wine-colored dress, trimmed with lilac-colored velvet and black fringe, with a neat little white collar of fine lace, which is the prettiest of dresses, and has the effect to make a very plain girl look absolutely charming. She never perforated her ear to hang thereby a pendulum of glass or brass, and the only ornament on the little white hand, which needed none, was a plain gold ring, sacred to the memory of a maiden promise. Well, one evening—it was moonlight in the summer time—we sat alone in the porch, by the cottage door, holding that little, white hand in a gentle pressure, but one arm had inadvertently stolen from her waist, and a silent song of joy, "like the music of the night," was in her soul. Our suppressed rage:

"What! marry an editor?—you get out!" We slid.

A DEAR EXPERIMENT.—A Belgian journal has the following story: "A huissier of a small town in Holland recently took a young man in his service as copying clerk, but the latter's writing was so bad that he could not be employed to draw up legal documents. So the huissier brought him Telemaque, and marking out a considerable portion, said - Copy all for me, and then your writing will, without doubt, improve enough to warrant me in confiding to you regular work to do.' The clerk set to work, and when after some days' labor, he had completed his task, he took his copy to the huissier. The latter was astonished, for the young man had taken the fiirst paper he met with, and the whole of the copy was on stamped paper, worth nearly 120fr." SILKWORMS.—The Phare, of yesterday, states that a Monsieur Maynard, of the department of Vancluse, in France, is in this city awaiting the arrival of a shipment of 1,800 pounds of silkworm eggs, now on the way from China Every pound contains about 500,000 eggs, so, if every egg in his whole shipment were to hatch., he would have about 900,000 000 worms. They cost $4 a pound in China, and are worth, in good condition, now in France $15, or more. These 1,-800 pounds of eggs, if well hatched, will produce 2,880,000 pounds of cocoons, worth 35 cents per pound. The enterprise suggests to us the question, whether these eggs could not be grown here to advantage. We may not be able to work up the silk, but could we not produce the eggs. Let the matter be considered seriously.—S. F. Alta TRY IT ON OLD SAM .- Once upon a time on a plantation in Kentucky, while a little nigger baby was snoozing in its cradle, a streak of lightning came down the capacious chimney of the cabin and killed it. Old Sam, an aged negro, came rushing in from the storm, and after seeing what had occurred, he let himself out as follows, gazing intently at the de-

"Now, Lord, you tink you hab done

funct small darkey:

great tings—jest gone an' killed a poor little nigger baby what ain't worf two dollars and a-half." And then jumping upon his feet, almost bursting with indignation, and with a defiant tone, he yelled out, "spose you try it on old Sam!" THE Marquis de Favieres, a great borrower, and a notoriously bad paymaster, called on Samuel Bernard, the great financier, one morning, and said: "Sir, I am going to astonish you; I am the Marquis de Favieres; I do not know you, and I came to borrow five hundred louis of you." "Sir," replied Bernard, " I am going to astonish you yet more; I know you, and yet I am going to lend them to you." A Hoggish Remark .- A countryman applied to John Hogg, Esq., to sell him some corn. "I don't want any," replied Hogg. "Well," said the countryman, "your the first hog I ever saw that didn't want corn!"

Many a poor woman thinks she can do nothing without a husband, and when she gets one, finds she can do nothing An Arkansas darkey had such long heels that he was ten years old before deciding which way to go.

Ir you are not statisfied with the necessaries of life. see whether you can sat-isfy yourself with repining after luxuries.

AN EDITOR'S LOVE STORY. - An editor of a Southern paper relates as fol-lows, how he cace fell in love:

lows, how he cace fell in love:

We were never, kind reader, "desperate in love," but once, and that was with a red—no, auburn-haired girl, with a freckled cemplexion, who had but a few pretensions to beauty; but then she had such really beautifully eyes, deep liquid orbs; through which her soul, in moments of tenderness, looking out in passionate fervor, and in joyous mirth dashing and sparkled with the light of a thousand dew-drops—diamonds, we were about to say—but we never saw a thousand. Her name was Laura—which when posed. In a moment she tore her hand from ours, and with a look of ineffable scorn, she said, in a voice trembling with lips met in a sweet delicious kiss, and

bending softly to her ear, we whispered

the tale of passionate devotion-we pro-
