Drafts and the Artist Template

When you're ready to create a draft, you can use our Artist article template. You can use this template to start the draft in your sandbox.

In order to publish your draft, you'll need to be a confirmed user (which means your account is over 3 days old and you've made at least 10 edits).

This is the user sandbox of Artfemguides. A user sandbox is a subpage of the user's user page. It serves as a testing spot and page development space for the user and is not an encyclopedia article. Create or edit your own sandbox here.

Article Drafts on Wikipedia

Anyone can view drafts on Wikipedia (although they are a bit hidden). This allows users to find and collaborate on each other's articles before they're published.

To find drafts, you'll want to go first to the search page, which you can do by clicking the magnifying glass / search icon on any Wikipedia page.

Searching for Drafts

Once you're at the search page, click Advanced and then check off Drafts to search for drafts on a topic you might want to write about or collaborate on.

The screenshot shows the Wikipedia search interface. At the top right, there are navigation links: Artfemguides, a notification bell, a mobile icon, Talk, Sandbox, Preferences, Beta, and Wa. Below this is a 'Special page' dropdown and a 'Search Wikiped' search bar. The main heading is 'Search'. Below the heading is a search input field with a magnifying glass icon and a blue 'Search' button. Underneath the search bar are four tabs: 'Content pages', 'Multimedia', 'Everything', and 'Advanced'. The 'Advanced' tab is highlighted with a red box, and a red arrow points from the text in the yellow callout to it. Below the tabs is the 'Search in namespaces:' section, which contains a grid of checkboxes for various namespaces. The 'Draft' checkbox is checked and highlighted with a red box, with a red arrow pointing from the text in the yellow callout to it. Other namespaces include (Article), Talk, MediaWiki, MediaWiki talk, User, User talk, Template, Template talk, Wikipedia, Wikipedia talk, Help, Help talk, File, File talk, Category, Category talk, Portal, Portal talk, TimedText, TimedText talk, Book, Book talk, Module, Module talk, Education Program, Education Program talk, Gadget, Gadget talk, Gadget definition, and Gadget definition talk. At the bottom of the namespace list is a checkbox for 'Remember selection for future searches'.

Make sure the article you are creating doesn't already exist (as a draft or article) by searching Wikipedia for its subject.

The Draft namespace

To create a new article, you can click here to get to Wikipedia's draft namespace. Type your article title and click "Create Draft."

namespace, newly created drafts, visit a random draft, or see Wikipedia:WikiProject Articles for creation/tables.

Creating and editing drafts

Anyone, including users who are not logged in, may create and edit drafts. Drafts in the namespace have "Draft:" before their normal title, and also have an associated draft talk page. Users who have VisualEditor enabled will be able to use VisualEditor just like on articles. WP:Autoconfirmed users are required for moving drafts to article mainspace page but you may request a page move at Wikipedia:Requested moves. If there is a technical barrier to the move like the target is create protected, seek an Admin's assistance.

Create a new draft

Preparing drafts

(Optionally) add the template `{{Draft article}}` at the top of the draft (not the talk page), along with the template's parameters `|name` and `|subject=`. A list of appropriate subject fields can be found here.

Disable any categories by inserting a colon before the word "Category". Example: change `[[Category:Living people]]` to `[:Category:Living people]]`

Non-free content cannot be included in draft articles per Wikipedia's policy on where non-free media is allowed. Any desired non-free content should be added to the article once it has been moved to the mainspace.

Publishing a draft

Publishing a draft requires an editor to use the page move function to move it in the Main (article) namespace. This means that anonymous editors and registered editors not autoconfirmed, will need to request publication by inserting into their drafts the relevant template for requesting a page move. Editors may also optionally submit drafts for review via the articles for creation process.

Edit your draft

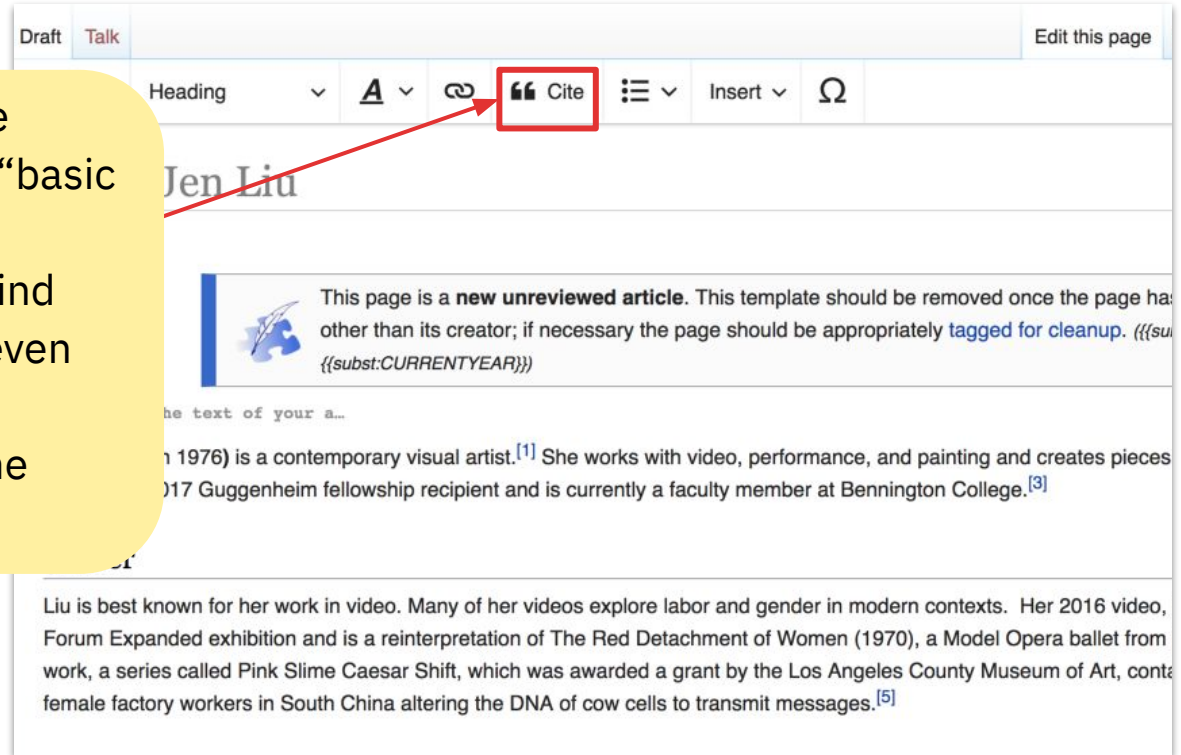

The screenshot shows a draft article page in a visual editor. At the top is a toolbar with icons for undo, redo, heading selection, text color, link, cite, list, insert, and a search icon. A blue button labeled "Publish page..." is on the right. The main content area has a title "Draft:Jen Liu" and a warning box with a blue icon and text: "This page is a new unreviewed article. This template should be removed once the page has been reviewed by someone other than its creator; if necessary the page should be appropriately tagged for cleanup. {{{subst:CURRENTMONTHNAME}}} {{{subst:CURRENTYEAR}}}". Below the warning is a prompt "Write the text of your a...". The article text begins with "Jen Liu (born 1976) is a contemporary visual artist.^[1] She works with video, performance, and painting and creates pieces about labor, economy and national identity.^[2] She was a 2017 Guggenheim fellowship recipient and is currently a faculty member at Bennington College.^[3]". A section header "Career" is followed by text: "Liu is best known for her work in video. Many of her videos explore labor and gender in modern contexts. Her 2016 video, The Pink Detachment, premiered at the Berlinale Forum Expanded exhibition and is a reinterpretation of The Red Detachment of Women (1970), a Model Opera ballet from China's Cultural Revolution.^[4] Her most recent work, a series called Pink Slime Caesar Shift, which was awarded a grant by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, contains videos and animations that tell a story of

Now you can use the Visual Editor tools in your toolbar to edit your new draft. You can also copy and paste content from your sandbox!

Don't forget to CITE

Don't forget to add those citations. Review those “basic rules of editing” for a refresher, and keep in mind that providing sources, even just a small number, is valuable in preventing the article's deletion.

The screenshot shows the top portion of a Wikipedia article editor. At the top right, there is a tab labeled 'Draft' and a link 'Talk', followed by 'Edit this page'. Below this is a toolbar with various icons: a heading dropdown, a text color dropdown, a link icon, a 'Cite' button (highlighted with a red box), a list icon, an 'Insert' dropdown, and a link icon. A red arrow points from the 'Cite' button to the text area below. The text area contains the name 'Jen Liu' and a blue banner that reads: 'This page is a new unreviewed article. This template should be removed once the page has other than its creator; if necessary the page should be appropriately tagged for cleanup. {{{subst:CURRENTYEAR}}}'. Below the banner, there is a line of text: 'he text of your a...'. Further down, there is a paragraph: 'n 1976) is a contemporary visual artist.^[1] She works with video, performance, and painting and creates pieces 017 Guggenheim fellowship recipient and is currently a faculty member at Bennington College.^[3]'. At the bottom, there is another paragraph: 'Liu is best known for her work in video. Many of her videos explore labor and gender in modern contexts. Her 2016 video, Forum Expanded exhibition and is a reinterpretation of The Red Detachment of Women (1970), a Model Opera ballet from work, a series called Pink Slime Caesar Shift, which was awarded a grant by the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, conte female factory workers in South China altering the DNA of cow cells to transmit messages.^[5]'

Ask yourself: Is this a stub?
