ATHLETICS.

THE athletic season of 1896 has been a gratifying success. The meetings have not been numerous enough to warrant comparison with the halcyon days of a decade ago—a period which “old timers” love to recall—but if the opportunities have been fewer in number, there has been no deterioration in the merits of the men whose names ornament and adorn the pages of athletic history. The most industrious campaigners have added largely to their collections of substantial rewards, while a select few have earned the exceptional honor of a place on the roll of fame represented by the official list of champions and record-makers.

Several novel features helped to make the season memorable. Few could be induced at first to believe that the revival of the historic Olympic games at Athens meant anything to them, but, as the date of the meeting approached, Princeton and Boston organized teams, and, better still, swept practically everything before them when they got there. Still they were hardly satisfied, as they counted on having to confront a representative English team and fight the Manhattan Field battle of September, 1895, over again. But the Britishers, with one or two exceptions, fought shy of the fixture, and American enterprise was enabled to score another triumph.

In addition to the laurels our athletes brought back they imported some classic ideas from Athens, the most notable being the throwing of the discus, hitherto unknown in this country. Athletic America was immediately interested, as Captain Garrett, of the Princeton team, had beaten the Greeks at their own game with a preparation of scarcely a day.

Record performances were numerous, and the standard of improvement may readily be seen by reference to the classified lists in the following pages. The most remarkable features of the season involve Bernard J. Wefers, the great Georgetown University sprinter. He is the only man who has an undisputed record of 9 3-5 seconds for 100 yards. He is twenty-two years of age and lacks but a quarter of an inch from being six feet tall. His weight in condition is 167 pounds. His style of running is declared by experts to be almost ideal. As he is not an especially fast starter, it follows that some portions of the 100 yards must be covered at a faster rate than the time for the whole distance indicates.

His victories are almost countless. In 1894 he won the New England Association Intercollegiate 100 yards; in 1896 he won the 100-yard and the 220-yard championships. The International matches at 100 and 200 in 1895, and the 100, 220 and 440 Canadian championships in 1896.

Americans were not alone in the onward march. Britishers made a few records which are entitled to honorable mention. At the English championships in July Godfrey Shaw, the veteran hurdler, who will be remembered as captain of the London team here last year, won his favorite event. The race was presumably over stiff obstacles fixed in the turf of the infield, as is the usual custom abroad, but despite this Shaw received credit with covering the 120 yards in 15 3-5 sec., which, if officially accepted, will supplant the British record of 15 4-5 sec. made by himself the previous year. It is also faster than any of the Americans showed during the season.

By its recent affiliations the Amateur Athletic Union has been strengthened materially. It is now allied not only with the Intercollegiate Athletic Association and North American Gymnastic Union, but with the Interscholastic Association and all the Young Men's Christian Associations of America as well. With practically all of the athletes in the country under its control, it will be seen that the A. A. U. is a pretty strong organization. There are more athletic clubs under the jurisdiction of the A. A. U. and its various branch associations to-day and a wider scope of country is represented than ever before. And it seems to be a good thing, for as the A. A. U. grows and extends its power the quantity and quality of the athletic output increases.

Picked up a dumb-bell weighing 258¾ lbs with the left hand from the floor to the shoulder, then with steady push until the arm was at full length above the head and the body erect.

Picked up a dumb-bell from the floor with right hand, of 131¼ lbs., to the shoulder, then straightened out at right angles with his body, and held it out in this position for five seconds, and bringing the dumb-bell back to the shoulder.

Holding out separately, and at the same time, with both hands at right angles with the body, 97½ lbs. with right hand and 88 lbs with the left.

Picking up with one hand from the floor to the shoulder a dumb-bell of 162¼ lbs., then pushing it up at full arm's length above the head 36 times in succession.

Shouldering, with the right hand only, on the right shoulder, without the help of the knees, by taking hold of the chime of a barrel filled with sand and water, weighing 433 lbs.

Pulling against four draft horses, well shod, 1,200 lbs. each, aggregating, therefore, 4,800 lbs., two of said horses hitched to each arm, while holding the arms folded, with one strap passed around each arm at the elbow, and holding them 55 seconds.

347 lb. bar-bell lifted with both hands from floor to shoulder, without touching any part of the body, then pressed to full arm's length above the head.

Lifting 18 men on a platform, aggregate weight 4,300 lbs. Cyr placed his back firm against the under side of the platform and settled himself for a grand effort. FOOTBALL.

THE football season of 1896 ended in a glorious victory for Princeton over Yale in the Intercollegiate Championship Series. The season was by long odds the most exciting in the history of the game, despite the fact that there has been fewer casualties, less squabbling and rough play. A friendly desire to emulate each other's successes took the place of the intense feeling of hostility among the teams which has characterized the game in former years, and was responsible for the unsportsmanlike manner in which many of the contests were decided.

Princeton, both from the individual qualification of her players and her team work, deserves the title of champion. In both of her large contests she demonstrated her superiority and gave an exhibition of scientific football that will be long remembered and talked of in football circles. Playing on her rival's grounds, she encountered a surprise in Harvard's stubborn resistance that might well have broken up any team's efficiency, but this did not happen to the Nassau contingent. They appeared for the second half as cool and determined as ever, and forced the Crimson to acknowledge defeat by the score of 12 to 0. It has been a feature peculiar to every game that Princeton has played that her men played better ball the last half than the first, and every minute added saw an improvement.

In the Yale game the Tigers gave the prettiest exhibition of football seen in many a day. Not knowing the utter weakness of Yale's defense, they relied upon Baird's kicking to win the day. Yale's rushers were too expert in blocking kicks to permit of this, and Princeton was forced to adopt the running game. The complete change of their plans caused not a semblance of a rattle, and Baird himself, his main usefulness spoiled, was the coolest man on the field. It certainly showed great generalship, and this ability of being able to adapt themselves to any kind of play was the prime factor in their success. They played good, open football and deserved to win.

Judging from the actual games played, the season of 1896 must be considered most remarkable. Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania have all been scored against, and in some cases barely escaped defeat at the hands of the smaller colleges, the Indians or West Point. In fact, one might say that scoring by smaller colleges against the larger universities was the rule and not the exception as a few short years ago. This is an encouraging feature in the development of the great game of brawn and brain, and shows its widespread and enduring popularity.

Legislation is afoot now to restore athletic relations between Yale and Harvard, which if brought about, will serve to enhance interest in the College championship for '97. The strained condition of things as they existed during the past season served to cause one of the most important football events of the season to be abandoned. A disposition to bring about a renewal of the friendly rivalry has already manifested itself in the nature of a preliminary conference which bids fair to be followed by a satisfactory mutual arrangement by which the representatives of those two celebrated seats of learning will meet together on track, field and river as of yore.

AQUATICS.

SPLENDID in her defeat, Yale's showing at Henley and Jake Gaudaur's victory over James Stanbury in a race for international supremacy on the Thames were the two notable aquatic events of 1896. It was expected that Yale would distinguish herself against the pick of England's racing crews for the reason that no more formidable aggregation of college rowing men ever sat in a boat than the crew selected to represent America in the struggle. But a series of unfortunate happenings, involving the illness of the men, internal dissensions growing out of differing opinions between the oarsmen and their coach, lack of familiarity with the changed water conditions, etc., etc., culminated in defeat, although it must be said to the credit of the eight men comprising the crew that they made a game struggle against superior odds, and the prediction was freely advanced that in another race, with equal conditions, they would win.

The aquatic authorities at Yale were sufficiently satisfied with the showing made by the crew to venture the belief that another race would be arranged for 1897, providing, of course, that the result of the inter-collegiate races here justified it. Harvard will again be a factor in the struggle, and a very determined factor. The English stroke has been adopted, and Mr. Lehman, an English coach, imported to teach it to the men, suggests the idea that Harvard, too, has in mind a probable trip abroad for the purpose of having a try at the Henley championship. It will all depend, however, upon the outcome of the local struggle, but the indications are that one or the other of the crews will be in the Thames struggle.

There was a revival of interest in professional rowing, due mainly to Jake Gaudaur's victory over Stanbury, the Australian champion, on the Thames. Nothing has happened in the rowing world since Searle and O'Connor crossed blades for the blue ribbon on England's historical river in 1889 to cause more excitement. Professional rowing had languished lamentably during the previous six or seven years. There was a time in Australia when crackajacks kept cropping up with such rapidity that it was difficult to keep track of them; but, looking back, it seems as if the rowing spirit died in young Australia when ill-fated Harry Searle succumbed to typhoid fever shortly after his memorable race with O'Connor. Stanbury, who was an acknowledged rival of Searle in the latter's best days, soon established his right to wear the champion's shoes, and for many years he has been left in undisputed possession of them. There was a flicker of interest when Tom Sullivan, the New Zealander, blossomed out as a championship candidate, but Sullivan proved only a flash in the pan. He was defeated in England, and the talk of a match between him and Stanbury ceased suddenly, the champion being compelled to rest on his oars and wait vainly for challengers.

For a number of years the only interest that rowing held for Englishmen grew out of the fact that the big races were rowed on the Thames. The old country could not turn out material fit to cope with the Beaches, the Hanlans, the Searles and O'Connors that Australia and Canada produced, and all that London could do on red-letter rowing days was to furnish the river and the spectators. But when little Wag Harding came to town—he weighed but 140 pounds and was regarded as the best bit of British stuff seen in half a score of years—the Londoners held their heads aloft and congratulated one another on the prospect of England regaining her old-time rowing supremacy. They backed "Wag" against big, lumbering, easy-going Stanbury, and the Australian simply rowed rings around his diminutive rival. Gaudaur then tried to induce the antipodean sculler to come to America for a race, but he refused, and the only alternative left to the Orillia champion, who had just beaten Hanlan, Bubear and Barry at Halifax, was to go to England. The race was simply no race at all after the preliminary spurt. Gaudaur won handily, upsetting the calculations of the Solons of the aquatic world, who predicted a hollow victory for Stanbury.

BASEBALL.

THE National League campaign of 1896 passed into history as one of the most successful in the history of that organization. Successful from a financial standpoint, but, comparatively speaking, the struggle could hardly compare with the strife of former years. The fact that eight of the twelve clubs finished with almost the same percentage that closed their work in 1895 showed beyond doubt that the relative values of those clubs have reached a fixed standard, and that a general shake-up of some kind will be the only possible way of giving excitement or variety to the race, or of materially changing the order of procession. Unless the unexpected happens, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston, Chicago and Pittsburg should finish this year almost as they did last season, while St. Louis and Louisville will continue to ornament the tail end.

The playing of the season was, as a rule, first class, and of a uniform quality that became rather tiresome before the summer was over. There was not so much batting as in 1894 and 1895. The pitchers are beginning to overcome the handicaps placed upon them, and the fielders have learned where to play for the long drives.

Baltimore won the pennant, duplicating her success of '94 and '95, for the reason that the team had everything in its favor. The aggregation that Ned Hanlon worked so hard to get together is exceptionally strong, both individually and collectively. There is not a fault to be found at any point of the whole nine. To be sure, there is no Rusie with his thunderbolt curves to shine as Baltimore's star pitcher, but the very fact that not one of the Baltimore pitchers would be far above mediocrity with any other team makes the Oriole fielders work all the harder. Fielding is really a wonderful point of strength with Baltimore. The batting of the team is of the quick, snappy kind—there is not one ponderous slugger on the nine. The base-running is fast, sprightly, and yet neither too daring nor lacking in judgment and hard work.

Cleveland finished second because the nine had better pitchers than Baltimore, could hit as hard, but lacked the tricky speed upon the bases. Baltimore stole more than twice as many bases as Cleveland, and there lies the secret of the Orioles' success. Cincinnati has very good pitchers, is strong at the bat, excellent in the field and well stocked with base-runners. Sand and grit alone are lacking in the Reds, and the scarcity of these qualities put the Reds third instead of a tie with Baltimore for first. Boston has elements of batting strength, can field well, and, with Nichols as chief pitcher, is so strong in the box that the nine cannot help finishing high up, even though the ex-champions play in a manner that indicates a lack of interest and a careless disregard for winning principles. Anson's men have talked much of ill-luck, but the team seems to be really just as high as it deserves.

Pittsburg needs another good winning pitcher. There is something the matter with the nine, which is strong and well balanced. The players hit well, field finely, and the pitchers are good, yet the Gas-pipes cannot win more than a bare majority of their games. New York, after being an eyesore and a disappointment, braced up and came down the homestretch in good form. All the team needs, as Capt. Joyce says, is Rusie and a catcher, although a hard-hitting outfielder would help on wonderfully. Brooklyn's men, a trifle light at the bat, seemed also to have elements of internal dissension in the ranks, and their present position is just about what might be expected. Philadelphia was the disappointment of the year. The once mighty batting strength of the team departed when Billy Hamilton was traded, and the nine has been light with the stick and none too strong in the field, while the pitching has been but mediocre. Washington started strong, but fell down hard. The Washington team lacks ginger and aggressiveness and needs a couple of good batters. St. Louis, a hive of mechanical players, light hitters and not too good in the field, was lucky to keep out of twelfth position. Louisville was again a city of experiments and frosts.

CYCLING.

CYCLE racing is unquestionably the leading amateur and professional sport of to-day. This fact has been demonstrated by the enthusiasm which attended every event of importance held in this country, by the patronage accorded every race meet and the general condition of prosperity which prevails. Whether all this is justified or not can be determined by a careful perusal of the following pages. The record tables indicate the merits of the men who have been foremost in upholding America's claim to supremacy in the 'cycle racing world. From sprinting to distance riding our riders have been in the van, and competition for honors was never so keen. In the championship class there are many claimants, but only three should have a say in the final disposition of the championship plum. These three men are Eddie Cannon Bald, of Buffalo, the champion of '95; Tommy Cooper, of Detroit, who at all times in '95 was an important factor after his coming out in July, and Tommy Butler, the Boston schoolboy, who has repeated in '96 the performances of Tom Cooper in '95, and has been the surprise of the year.

The percentage table was designed to secure a fair rating of the men. It was designed as a percentage on the finals of scratch events on the National circuit. It credits each man with defeating every man beaten to the tape and with being beaten by each man that beats him to the tape.

In the percentage tables, the men have taken the liveliest interest, and when at the close of the season, the Cannon Bald gained a percentage of .789, Butler .786 and Cooper .774, Bald was the champion.

It is a matter of regret that distance racing has been so long neglected by race meet projectors and the great success which attended the hour contest on Manhattan Beach track under the auspices of the Quill Club wheelmen, should be proof sufficient to warrant a long-distance event being placed on every National circuit program next season. This event was the greatest contest for supremacy ever seen on an American race track since the introduction of the racing wheel, and while it was necessarily defective in points, it was, judged moderately and not too critically, the best contested, and the most original race of the year.

For the first time, individual pacing was tried in this country, and while it was not as perfect as that by pacing experts of Europe, owing to the unfamiliarity of the men with this new system, it was enough to set the grandstand and bleachers wild with enthusiasm—an object sought after by all race meets—and showed, also, that the American pace-makers, with a little practice in the art, could easily rank with the best of Europe, and thus add a new interest to all long-distance contests.

Those who witnessed this particular race had an excellent chance to compare the merits of the American and the European racers. In Michael, Europe had one of her very best long-distance men—probably the best, if Linton, the countryman of Michael, is barred—and in the Jallu brothers she had her crack pacing team. Comparing Michael with Starbuck, the American, it can be safely said that the American showed as much ease, if not so much grace, as the European in following pace, while the American pacing teams, who are picked up without any training together—so necessary for a good team—equaled in every point the Frenchmen, and excelled them in many respects. It was noticeable that the American machines carried the contestants the easiest and most even miles of the race, while the foreigners were erratic.

Starbuck is every bit as good a long-distance rider as "Jimmy" Michael, which is saying a great deal, and if the American can get together a set of pacemakers drilled in the art as the foreigners are, he will equal any performance put up by either Michael or any other foreigner of note. It is simply a question of following pace, and Starbuck has demonstrated his ability to follow the hottest pace that could be cut out for him, for while the fastest mile ridden by Michael was 2.01, three of Starbuck's miles were cut out at an average speed of 1.55.

A RECORD OF ALL RECORDS!

6,936 MILES IN 5 SECONDS!!

In October, 1894, a communication was sent from New York to London over the Commercial Cable Company's new third cable, and an answer received in FIVE SECONDS!!

In transmitting the result of the most important international sporting events, the service of the Commercial Cable Company has never been equalled.

In great racing, rowing, boxing, and international chess matches, results were known almost simultaneously on both sides of the Atlantic.

The result of the contest in London between Slavin and McAuliffe was announced in San Francisco THREE MINUTES after the referee gave his decision.

SPORT OF ALL SORTS.

PROBABLY the most notable feature in connection with all around sport is the growing interest which is being taken in events of international importance. During the past season we had an unusually large number of American bred horses entered in racing and trotting fixtures in England and on the Continent. The Yale crew, although beaten, rowed a creditable race at Henley. American cyclists wheeled against their contemporaries in Europe. Princeton and Boston sent their best athletes to Athens, where a revival of the Olympian games was in progress. A trio of our tennis champions went over to England to face the British experts, and Gaudaur, who, while a Canadian by birth, is affectionately regarded as an American champion, journeyed to England and wrested the title for international rowing supremacy from Australia's rowing champion, James Stanbury.

This competition for honors in foreign fields gives an impetus here to sports of all kinds. The trotting races at Nice, for instance, have awakened the liveliest home interest among the admirers and breeders of the American trotting horse. There is not only a national pride in the success abroad of our home bred horses, but the purely business view of the situation shows that it is opening up a valuable foreign market for our stock.

The practice of sending our best athletes and oarsmen abroad is an excellent stimulus to good work at home. While numerous opportunities are to be had here for races on the water or on the cinder path, nothing so keys men up to the highest pitch as the knowledge that they are to compete against the cracks of other countries. Yale's crew have always worked hard to get ready for Harvard, but probably they never were so dead in earnest, so anxious to get the best men in the boat, so ready to strain every muscle, as they were when they knew they were to meet the flower of England's oarsmen at Henley. Columbia's victory on the Thames gave a "boom" to rowing all over America, and if Yale wins next summer she will do a marked service to aquatics from one end of the country to the other.

American cyclists have already won high honors in Europe, and they have not only made good names and good records there, but have made a great market abroad for American made machines, which were exported last year in quadrupled quantities.

There is every indication that the coming summer will be made memorable by a return visit of the English athletes who were with us in 1895. We had things pretty much our own way at the meeting here, and it would have been only fair to play a return match last year, as it were. There are greater difficulties here, however, than exist abroad in sending a team across the water. Our young men, as a rule, have not the leisure or the means that many of the English cracks enjoy, and it is hard for the average young American to get away for a trip to England. Still, if it could have been managed, it would have created added interest in our field athletics. Let us hope that the opportunity will not be lost during the forthcoming season.

The tennis experts from England have given us an unpleasant taste of their quality, and it requires considerable nerve on the part of our players to face a net in England with such cracks on the other side of it. But it is said that our amateurs are going abroad to see what can be done.

Everybody will wish good luck to all the Americans who are going abroad this season to enter the foreign championship meetings. They will put up a good contest certainly; they will be first at the finish, we all devoutly hope.

FISTIANA.

STANDING upon the threshold of a new year rich in promise of increased activity, it is only natural to glance retrospectively across the page of '96—a period punctuated by some of the most sensational events recorded in the history of "the ring." One little solitary year—merely a blot upon the tablet of life, yet prolific of great things; and, still better, leaving a track of the brightest possibilities in its wake.

The most conspicuous of the many eventful things have happened since September 1, when the Horton law went into effect in New York State, bringing with it a revival of interest in boxing throughout the entire country. The existence of the law created a demand for increased facilities; the organization of clubs to promote boxing has been largely occasioned by public demand; increased patronage has likewise occasioned an increased demand for professional services and opened up an avenue of financial promise to those God-gifted individuals who are willing to utilize their brawn and muscle in catering to what fastidious observers are prone to regard as "man's baser instinct," but which less conservative and, I think, more intelligent people regard as the appreciation of those heroic attributes which have given to the world leaders in every walk of life.

The championship problem is as much of an enigma now as it was at the beginning of the year just past, although at the time of writing this there is a more healthy indication of a solution being effected than at any previous time since James J. Corbett and Robert Fitzsimmons—who are universally admitted to be the contenders for the title—began their interminable and wearisome controversy. A match is pending, and there is now no reason—barring unforeseen happenings—why the long-mooted question of supremacy should not be settled.

The pages of "Fistiana" are replete with dark doings in connection with pugilism. Conspiracies involving the purity of the game and the honor of its patrons may be recalled with but little difficulty; dishonest methods have been resorted to to attain desired ends, and the sport has been made an avenue for the perpetration of every known kind of fraud, but it remained for Mr. Wyatt Earp to distinguish himself as the medium through which one of the most unsportsmanlike acts ever recorded in the history of sport was exploited. It was Earp who deprived Fitzsimmons of an honestly won victory over Tom Sharkey, by giving a decision in favor of the latter while yet he lay senseless from the effects of the beating he had received. Subsequent legal proceedings brought to light the details of a conspiracy without a parallel in sporting history. Corroborative evidence proved the existence of a plot to prevent Fitzsimmons winning, through the aid of the unscrupulous individual who officiated as the referee; but the redress for which Fitzsimmons applied was denied him, on the ground that the proceedings grew out of an illegal act, and could not, therefore, be judicially considered.

The conspirators were successful beyond their fondest expectations, for, had the case been decided upon an equity of rights, Earp's decision would have been overthrown and judgment given to the man who was entitled to it.

They do things differently now to what they did at the beginning of the century, a period referred to by Dr. Conan Doyle in "Rodney Stone," but his caustic utterances regarding the ring and the scoundrels who have brought the noble sport into disrepute seem to apply with distinct significance to the Fitzsimmons-Sharkey affair.

"If the ring has fallen low it is not in the main the fault of the men who have done the fighting, but it lies at the door of the ring-side parasites and ruffians, who are as far below the honest pugilist as the welsher and the blackleg are below the noble race horse which serves them as a protest for their villainies."

RULE 2—Each man shall be attended to the ring by two seconds and a bottle-holder. RULE 6—The spikes in the fighting boots shall be confined to three in number, which shall not exceed three-eighths of an inch from the sole of the boot, and shall not be less than one-eighth of an inch broad at the point; two to be placed in the broadest part of the sole and one in the heel; and in the event of a man wearing any other spikes, either in toes or elsewhere, he shall be compelled either to remove them or provide other boots properly spiked, the penalty for refusal to be a loss of the stakes.

RULE 7—Both men being ready, each shall be conducted to that side of the scratch next his corner previously chosen; and the second on the one side and the men on the other, having shaken hands the former shall immediately leave the ring, and there remain until the round be finished, on no pretense whatever approaching their principals during the round, without permission from the referee. The penalty to be the loss of the battle to the offending parties.

RULE 8—At the conclusion of the round when one or both of the men shall be down, the second shall step into the ring and carry or conduct their principal to his corner there affording him the necessary assistance, and no person whatever be permitted to interfere in his duty.

RULE 9—On the expiration of thirty seconds the referee appointed shall cry "Time," upon which each man shall rise from the knee of his second and walk to his own side of the scratch unaided; the seconds immediately leaving the ring. A man with one knee and one hand on the ground, or with both knees on the ground, shall be deemed down; and a blow given in either of these positions shall be considered foul, providing always that, when in such position, the man so down shall not himself strike, or attempt to strike.

RULE 22—In the event of magisterial or other interference, or in case of darkness coming on, the referee (or stakeholder in case no referee has been chosen) shall have the power to name the time and place for the next meeting, if possible on the same day, or as soon after as may be. In naming the second or third place the nearest spot shall be selected to the original place of fighting where there is a chance of its being fought out.

RULE 23—Should the fight not be decided on the day all bets shall be drawn, unless the fight shall be resumed the same week, between Sunday and Sunday, in which case the referee's duties shall continue and the bets shall stand and be decided by the event. The battle money shall remain in the hands of the stakeholder until fairly won or lost by a fight, unless a draw be mutually agreed upon, or, in case of a postponement, one of the principals shall be absent, when the man in the ring shall be awarded the stakes.

RULE 24—Any pugilist voluntarily quitting the ring previous to the deliberate judgment of the referee being obtained shall be deemed to have lost the fight.

RULE 25—On an objection being made by the seconds or umpire the men shall retire to their corners, and there remain until the decision of the appointed authorities shall be obtained: if pronounced "foul" the battle shall be at an end, but if "fair," "time" shall be called by the party appointed, and the man absent from the scratch in eight seconds after shall be deemed to have lost the fight. The decision in all cases to be given promptly and irrevocably, for which purpose the umpires and the referee should be invariably close together.

RULE 26—If a man leaves the ring, either to escape punishment or for any other purpose without the permission of the referee, unless he is involuntarily forced out, shall forfeit the battle.

A man held by the neck against the stakes or upon or against the ropes shall be considered down, and all interference with him in that position shall be foul. If a man in any way makes use of the ropes or stakes to aid him in squeezing his adversary he shall be deemed the loser of the battle, and if a man in a close reaches the ground with his knees, his adversary shall immediately loose him or lose the battle.

RULE 29—All glove or room fights be as nearly as possible in conformity with the foregoing rules.

RULE 7—A contestant hanging on the ropes in a helpless state, with his toes off the ground, shall be considered down. No seconds, or any other person but the referee, to be allowed in the ring.

RULE 11—The referee shall have power to give his casting vote when the judges disagree to caution or disqualify a competitor for infringing rules, or to stop a round in the event of either man being knocked down, providing that the stopping of either of the first two rounds shall not disqualify any competitor from competing in the final round to decide the competition in the event of either man showing so marked a superiority over the other that a continuation of the contest would serve only to show the loser's ability to take punishment. And the referee can order a further round, limited to two minutes, in the event of the judges disagreeing.

TROTTING.

A CONSPICUOUS feature of the speed performances for 1896 among the artificially gaited equines shows a marked distinction in favor of the pacer as a racing animal. The once despised side-wheeler has done all the great work the past year, and not only outnumbers the trotters in the 2:10 list by 139 to 52, but has done all the record-breaking, supreme in which stands John R. Gentry's 2:00 1-2. His mile at Portland, Me., where he clipped a full second from the world's pacing record, was the most sensational event of the year, and gives the handsome bay stallion an unquestioned claim to the pacing crown, which up to that time was owned jointly by Gentry and the grand old champion, Robert J.

In the meantime the trotters have failed to come anywhere near the records, Fantasy's 2.06 being the best trotting mile in harness. The most enthusiastic admirer of the diagonal-gaited racers has ceased to hope that the trotter will be the first to enter the 2:00 list, which is only one short half second away from the pacer, the record having been reduced an even second in the year.

The list of winning trotters contains three which have won $5,000 and upward; nine horses have won $3,000 and upward, while thirteen have won $2,000 and upward; forty $1,000 and upward, and seventy-five $500 and upward. Mainly through her victory in the M. & M. stake at Detroit Emma Offutt stands at the head of this year's large winners. She is credited with $8,717.50. She has won four races and two second moneys out of six starts on the Grand Circuit, and considering the fact that she is but a four-year-old, and was green in the Spring, she must be counted one of the best performers of the season.

Village Farm's chestnut mare, Valence, was not considered a first-class trotter when her measure was taken in her first race on the Grand Circuit at Saginaw. She has proved herself one of the wear-and-tear kind, however, and the fact that she stands second in the list of winners shows that she has been underestimated. Valence has won money in five races out of six starts. She has been second in three races, was third in the M. & M. stake at Detroit, while her one victory was earned at New York the closing meeting of the circuit.

The pacing brigade is led by George Starr's smart colt, Planet, by Bonnie McGregor. Like the largest winning trotter, Planet is a four-year-old and he won $4,250 out of three races. In his only other start on the circuit he was disqualified. Village Farm also stands second in the list of winning pacers. The chestnut stallion Mocking Boy came out green in the spring. He won $3,650, earned mainly by one winning race and four second moneys. Frank Bogash won $3,625, having been first four times and second twice.

Frank Agan won $3,750. He paced more good and hard races than any other free-for-aller out this season. His Grand Circuit record shows two victories, three second moneys and one third money. Lottie Loraine stands the queen of the pacing turf. At Columbus she equalled the new record for pacing mares of 2:06 1-4, made by Pearl C. in the previous heat, and her subsequent victory over that mare and her record of five victories out of five starts on the circuit make her the best pacing mare ever campaigned.

Robert J. won less money this year than any previous season on the turf. His total winnings in races reach only $3,000. Fairview leads the three-year-olds, with a total of $1,400. This year's list of winners does not contain the name of any two-year-old pacer. None of the associations offered events for these performers. THOROUGHBRED RACING

IT is a fact generally acknowledged by the best men of the turf that the racing season of 1896 was one of the most disastrous in the history of the sport. Many causes contributed to this result, conspicuous among which were a lack of public confidence, deterioration in the quality of the sport, adverse legislation which was responsible for the closing of many of the leading tracks and an unusual amount of publicity given to turf scandal. We echo the sentiments of one well-known turf critic, who says that adverse legislation both in the East and West has had much to do with the present state of affairs, for the closing of many of the big tracks has served to make the racing gain much less profitable than it was in the good old days when $10,000 and $20,000 Derbys were not uncommon, when big handicaps were the rule and not the exception, and when $600 and $700 purses "grew on bushes," so to speak.

But even allowing this to be the case, the fact remains that the racing men themselves—and by racing men we mean not only the managers of the various racing tracks, but the owners of thoroughbred stock—have themselves to blame that racing is not as popular now as it was in the halcyon days.

While the year has not shown us many high-class animals, and no great horses, barring Requitall and Henry of Navarre, the racing, as a whole, has been thoroughly interesting, and exciting finishes and well-fought contests have been as a result more numerous than in former years. The animals which were expected at the beginning of the season to win the lion's share of the laurels of the turf, and considered as world-beaters, were retired early in the season, and this robbed the sport of an interest that would otherwise have greatly benefited it.

The Jockey Club has most carefully guarded the interests of the sport, and too much praise cannot be given that body for its untiring vigilance. The action of the Jockey Club in meting out severe discipline to offenders proves that that body is very much in earnest, and, as far as it is able, it will purify and advance the sport. Those who have the welfare of the sport most at heart thoroughly appreciate the situation and will accord the Jockey Club their hearty support.

Some needful changes in scale of weights is now contemplated, particularly in reference to colts' weight for age in races and handicaps. In the weight-for-age races the scale is to be raised four pounds all around. This means that in contests confined to two-year-olds the youngsters will have to shoulder 122 pounds instead of 118, and in races confined to three-year-olds or four-year-olds the contestants will have to carry 126 pounds. Sex allowances, when permissible by the conditions, remain the same. A still more sweeping change is proposed in the treatment of handicaps. It reads: "In all handicaps the top weight shall not be less than 126 pounds. If in a handicap for which there is a minor forfeit declared for a fixed time the highest weight accepting was originally less than 126 pounds, it shall be raised to that weight, and the other acceptances equally. No horse shall carry less than 84 pounds in any race. To take effect January 1, 1897."

Similar rules have long governed in handicaps in England, but hitherto all governing powers in this country have shrunk from grappling with the question. The Jockey Club, however, has stepped manfully to the front, and its fearless action in sweeping aside all precedent has met with nothing but applause from all quarters.

Marcus Daly, chiefly through the winnings of Ogden, heads the list of winning owners for the turf season of 1896. The Blemton Stable, owned by August Belmont, comes second, while J. J. McCafferty, M. F. Dwyer, Brookdale Stable and A. H. and D. H. Morris follow in the order named.

The amounts won on the several metropolitan tracks this season show a decided falling off, as compared with past years. This is easily accounted for in the reduction of money added to stakes and purses by each of the racing associations.
