In Search of an Answer

A Pharmacist writes:

"Today, at 2:10 p.m., I lost a patient to cancer; the widow stayed with her husband throughout his terrible illness for almost 2 years, doing a magnificent job of caring for him and making him as comfortable as possible to the end. That she called upon me frequently during the night during her trial is of no importance, except perhaps to her when I came with the morphine to ease his pain. I only pray the morphine did its job to keep him out of too much pain. And I hope I did my job well enough to help his wife through her trial of uncertainty, by being available whenever she called upon me.

"Today, at 5:00 p.m., I read through the Sunday paper; included in the blaring ads of commerce were the usual ads for drugs and pharmaceuticals—extolling the virtue of cheap, cheap, cheap, cheap drugs—cheap purveyors of gimmicks—cheapness painted all over the image of pharmaceutical service. I wondered who is right and who is wrong in all this mess. I wondered about my late father who practiced pharmacy as well as he knew how—and how he so often, with a sad, beaten note, advised me not to get excited—not to let it get me down, because there was so little I could do against the great tide of commercialism he had seen grow through the years.

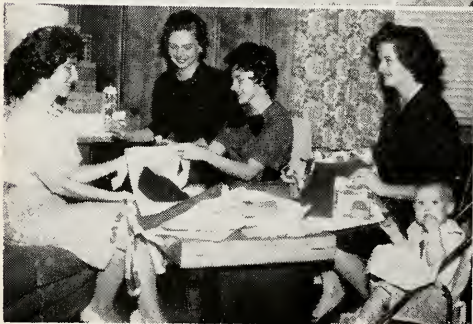

"But I thought again about the widowed woman earlier today—and how she called me and asked me to try to get a doctor to attend her husband in his last hour—why me? I thought also of the children, whose illness, when the fever finally broke and began to return to normal, was beaten by the drugs I helped supply—and how glad I am when I see them romp past my pharmacy on the way home from school a few days later. How can one compromise these feelings? How can one lose track of one's need to serve so quickly? And why does it happen? And just where—precisely where do the pharmacists forget what they know—what they must do—to sell their soul to the highest bidder? There must be a specific point in their careers at which they forsake their calling. If we could only ascertain that point and correct it! In the colleges? After they are out in the field? Or have they never known why they chose pharmacy? Perhaps they should have been told what their jobs would be—somewhere along the line.

"It is for men wiser than me to find the answer—if there is an answer."

Auxiliary's Bedside Bag Project Outstanding Success—Favorable Editorial Comment

Women who participated in the Christmas Bedside Bag project of the N.C.P.A. Woman's Auxiliary earned the warm glow around their hearts, for more than 1700 shut-in patients were remembered during the holidays because of their efforts. Under the guidance of Mrs. George Markham, general projects chairman, and her efficient committee, the months of October, November, and December found sewing groups working busily, creating beautiful fabric bags with decorations ranging from sequins to ribbon bows to rickrack. The Institute of Pharmacy was at the same time busily sorting merchandise which had been contributed by interested wholesale drug houses and manufacturers. This was being

No, not for Brege the man, but for Brege the salesman.

It worked this way: While the entourage of beauties talked "Radar" to Brege, they bought for themselves hair curlers, hair spray, bobbie pins and combs. That day, as things turned out for Brege, it paid to listen.

In addition to Raleigh, the Miss Universe girls visited Durham, Winston-Salem, and Greensboro. The North Carolina market areas are among three test markets in the nation for "Radar."

As well as visiting Brege and his staff, Mrs. June West and Mrs. Jean Provo, the Miss Universe girls appeared on a number of television programs, and in newspaper interviews in the cities visited. They also met Secretary of State Thad Eure.

The Miss Universe girls, known as the "Radar Patrol," are Miss Sweden, Gunilla Knutson, 21; Miss Lebanon, Nouhad Cabbabe, 23; and Miss Scotland, Susan Jones, 21.

Mrs. George Markham of Fayetteville, Chairman of The Woman's Auxiliary bedside bag project, is shown presenting one of the filled bags to Henry H. Hall of the Ideal Rest Home. The nurse is Mrs. Fletcher.

The project—the most extensive undertaken by the Auxiliary in recent years—has created much favorable comment. Participation (see pictorial coverage in this issue) on the part of many of the local auxiliaries was outstanding.

prepared for distribution to the participating groups who were filling the bags with cosmetics, toiletries, writing needs, etc.

As a result of this state-wide activity the NCPA office has received newspaper clippings and photographs from all over the state; these attest to the interest this project has stimulated among the general public, as well as the Auxiliary members.

In addition to this newspaper coverage, reports, letters from rest homes and sanitariums, as well as telephoned messages have come into the NCPA office. The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy regrets that not all the groups submitted glossy photographs of their activities in this connection.

While there is not space to carry all the gratifying reports received, we are listing below the groups and individuals who participated. This list has been prepared from the best information we have been able to secure, and anyone inadvertently omitted is asked to write us:

Alamance Auxiliary—This group, under the guidance of Mrs. Sandy Griffin, distributed bags to 70 patients.

Asheville—The Western N. C. Auxiliary made up 76 bags which they distributed to shut-ins of the Asheville area.

Benson—Mrs. Charles Stevens reported that rest homes of her area were being remembered.

Chadbourn—Mrs. Sam Koonce reported that, with the help of Pharmacy women in her area, the rest homes of Whiteville with 21 patients, were being remembered.

Chapel Hill—Both the Pharmacy Wives and the Chapel Hill Auxiliary worked diligently on this project, resulting in approximately 225 bedside bags being made. The members also assisted with the handling of the "filler" merchandise. Surplus bags, after the Orange County patients had been taken care of, were sent to McCain Sanitarium.

Concord—Members of the Cabarrus County Auxiliary, working in groups, provided 50 bags to their shut-ins.

Durham—This project provided the incentive for the Durham pharmacy ladies getting together. They made up 102 bags for the Durham rest homes, and they report they will meet in January to consider forming a permanent pharmacy auxiliary.

Elizabeth City—Under the guidance of the state Auxiliary president, Mrs. John T. Stevenson, pharmacy women of Elizabeth City and Hertford made up 140 bags for distribution to shut-ins in their area.

Fayetteville—This is another area where the Pharmacy women united to participate in this project, and then expect to go into a permanent organization. Under Mrs. Markham's guidance, they prepared and distributed 180 bags.

Gastonia—The Gaston County Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. W. G. Forrest, made 120 bags for their nursing and rest home patients.

High Point—This Auxiliary remembered 30 patients through their cooperative efforts.

Johnston County—Mrs. Grover Creech reported that a meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Creech of Smithfield, at which time it was decided to make up 24 bags for distribution to Johnston County patients.

Pinehurst—Mrs. Wesley Viall, a good Auxiliary member for many years, made up 35 bags for the rest homes there. Mrs. Graham Culbreth of Southern Pines assisted in their distribution.

Raleigh—The Raleigh Woman's Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. L. D. Morse, made up 100 bags for distribution in that vicinity.

Richmond County—Supervised by Mrs. L. L. Holland of Hamlet and Mrs. Jimmy Williams of Rockingham, the nursing homes of Richmond County, with 76 patients, were remembered with beautifully decorated bags.

Rowan-Davie—This Auxiliary, under the direction of Mrs. John Brown, made up 185 bags and distributed them throughout the areas of the two counties.

Washington—Mrs. W. B. Welch, Jr., led the activity for her area of the state,

MEET YOUR NEW EFFICIENCY EXPERT

- Here's the man who brings more efficiency and lower operating costs to your pharmacy. Your Wyeth Territory Manager.

He can show you how the WYETH INVENTORY CONTROL PROGRAM helps avoid tying up cash in excess inventory. How it eliminates that expensive return goods problem. Why there's less work for you plus better operating efficiency. Why you're always sure of having adequate stock of fresh, clean Wyeth merchandise.

How does the WYETH PROGRAM accomplish all this? First, your Wyeth inventory is keyed to your sales rate by routine checks on stock movement. Second, check-ups of subsequent stock movement provide the basis for maintaining the most efficient Wyeth inventory of Wyeth products. Once it's started, the inventory program works almost automatically. And, of course, it's always under your direct control.

Pharmacists across the country endorse the WYETH INVENTORY CONTROL PROGRAM as a cost-saving efficiency operation. Interested? Why not see your local Wyeth Territory Manager for details.

with the result that 109 patients were remembered.

Wilmington—The Wilmington Auxiliary had been inactive for a year or so—but they rallied around and made up sixty beautiful bags which they distributed in their area. Mrs. W. A. Morton led the group's activity.

Winston-Salem—The Apothecary Club, ever cooperative, made up fifty bags for their nursing homes.

Creedmoor—Mrs. C. C. Wheeler, Jr. distributed bags to a special ward at Murdoch Training School, Butner, N. C.

Sanford—The Pharmacy women of Sanford combined their efforts to provide for 40 shut-in patients of Lee County.

In addition to those listed, Mrs. George Markham, projects chairman, 2208 Westhaven, Fayetteville, would appreciate hearing from anyone participating in the program, but omitted from the above listing.

The N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, in praising the efforts of the Woman's Auxiliary, pointed out some of the many advantages gained from the project: (1) Re-

ONLY A FEW DAYS BETWEEN SODAS

You see it happening to youngsters time after time—one day ill with fever, sore throat, chest pains... a short time later back at your store working on ice cream sodas. And almost always it is an antibiotic that turns the trick—Terramycin Syrup, for example.

For you, of course, these triumphs of modern drug therapy are nothing new. You know that the rapid recovery of these children, with less worry and economic strain for parents, follows a pattern that has become almost commonplace with the availability of modern antibiotics. You can remember when recovery itself was more uncertain, convalescence more extended, cost and care more burdensome. Do all of your customers appreciate the significance of these advances?

LABEL REGULATION

By N. O. McDOWELL, JR.

Since July 1, 1962, the effective date of the new labeling requirement for prescriptions, inspections have shown that many pharmacies, while attempting to comply with the regulation, have by various means left themselves liable to a penalty for violation as provided by this regulation (Article LV, Section 1 of the Rules and Regulations of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy.).

The majority of these violations consist of one or more of the following:

a. Using the name of pharmacist only, not the words, "This prescription filled by ....." or "Filled by ....." and followed by the name of the pharmacist as required.

b. The words as stated in the regulation and as outlined in (a) above are hidden or partially hidden in various items on the label so that only the pharmacist's name is clearly discernible.

c. The Pharmacist's last name only appears on the label with no first name or initials.

d. No date appears on the label.

e. Wordings other than that which is stipulated in the regulation being used in connection with the pharmacist's name.

f. Auxiliary labels bearing portions of the required information not being affixed properly so as to remain on the container.

LABEL REGULATIONS

Pharmacists are reminded that violations of this regulation can render a store permit null and void as it stated in G. S. 90-65, and therefore such permit will have to be considered to cease to exist and such outlets can no longer render pharmaceutical service.

Also of great importance and considered to be a gross violation is the use of the wordings as required and/or auxiliary labels by persons not authorized by law to use same. No pharmacist can delegate authority for such to be used in any manner other than that which is prescribed by law.

The Board requests the cooperation of all permitted outlets in making the needed corrections in any of the areas where violations may be occurring. It is the full intention of the Board to more fully enforce this labeling regulation.

Paregoric Sales

Recent publicity regarding abuses of Paregoric has brought about speculation that the protection of the public health might be better served if the sale of Paregoric were to be restricted to prescriptions.

The Board has taken the position that proper and sufficient safeguards now surround the sale of this medicine and that if sales are made in accordance with existing laws and regulations, the supposed menace of Paregoric use can be controlled. At the same time the availability of a useful medicine will not be unduly hampered.

The Board would like to point out some important points in the distribution of exempt narcotics:

1. All exempted narcotic preparations MUST NOT be self-serviced, or promoted by mass displays to the public.
2. Require that each purchaser furnish positive identification including address. If you do not know the purchaser, OR HAVE ANY DOUBT WHATSOEVER, DO NOT MAKE THE SALE. No pharmacist is under compulsion to sell drugs to anyone, if in his professional judgment, the sale should not be made.

3. Record all information in your Exempt Register, which you are required to keep under State Law. Board inspectors will insist that this be complete, and we expect to follow through on this requirement.
4. No CLERK should be given authority to sell exempt narcotics. It is the PHARMACIST'S responsibility under law. This is greatly abused and must cease.

Often it is the pharmacist's responsibility NOT to make a sale rather than to make a sale. The RIGHT to make proper sales of Exempt Narcotic preparations can be preserved if all pharmacist's make every effort to stop any and all present abuses they may find to exist. Remember that the pharmacist is empowered by law to make sales of exempt narcotics ONLY when, in his judgment, such item is to be used for a legitimate medical purpose. Sale under any other conditions is ILLEGAL according to G. S. 90-97, Uniform Narcotic Drug Act.

Leased Drug Departments

A new and rapidly spreading type of operation for the sale and distribution of prescriptions drugs and other medicines is the leased drug department. This operation utilizes a supermarket, department store or other such outlet within which to set up and operate a "pharmacy," usually renting or leasing a small amount of floor space. In all cases that this Board knows of pharmacists are always on duty to fill all prescriptions. In some operations discount prices prevail and in others there is no evidence of discounting.

Inquires have been received by the N. C. Board of Pharmacy relating to the requirements necessary for issuance of a permit to establish leased drug departments in this state. At this time the Board feels its answer is contained in G. S. 90-71, which, in part, states:

"... unlawful for any person not licensed as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist . . . to conduct or manage any pharmacy, drug or chemical store, apothecary shop or OTHER place of business for the retailing, compounding, or dispensing of any drugs, chemicals, or poisons, or for the compounding of physician's prescriptions, or to keep exposed for sale at retail any drugs, chemicals, or poison, . . ." The North Carolina Board of Pharmacy interprets this to indicate that it is the intent of this law to restrict the sale, compounding, etc. as described in the law, to outlets which are Wholly or Totally conducted or managed by a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist—not partially as would be the case of a leased or rented department.

It is felt that in no manner can the necessary and proper safeguards be applied to such a department when the pharmacist has no control over those in the same outlet with him who may operate completely different departments and who are totally separate entities insofar as any connection with the distribution of drugs and medicines is concerned.

In the outlets which this Board issues permits to at this time it is felt the entire operation of such outlets are being conducted and managed by the pharmacist or assistant pharmacist. Under the conditions that these permits are issued the Board can assume that, although many outlets have various departments, all departments are under the overall jurisdiction of the pharmacist and he may exercise control over all departments since they are an integral part of the outlet for which the permit is issued.

Therefore, the North Carolina Board takes the position that unless the entire operation or the complete outlet is either conducted or managed by a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, NOT JUST THE LEASED PRESCRIPTION DEPARTMENT, the Board has no authority to issue such an operation a permit.

Restricted Sale

Information has come to the attention of the Board that over-the-counter sales of COLOCYNTH PULP (Bitter Apple) are being made in some parts of the state. Pharmacists are reminded that this drug carries the Federal Caution and sales are restricted as it is labeled.

Notice to Pharmacists

Why would anyone pay 10¢ more for this children's aspirin?

Aspirin is aspirin—to anyone but a youngster. To him, the little things—flavor, color, sweetness, aftertaste—seem very important indeed. Especially if he isn't feeling well.

This new children's aspirin from Abbott is just a little more pleasant for him to take.

The difference can be expressed in one word: Aluminum. Most aspirins are formulated as an acid. The Abbott aspirin is presented as the neutral aluminum salt. Result: (1) Stability is enhanced (2) The cherry flavor is protected (3) There is little or none of the acid stomach upset often caused by ordinary aspirin.

This flavor advantage was very clearly pointed up in a series of tests at a major children's hospital. The new, cherry-flavored tablets were preferred 3 to 1 over the other leading children's aspirins.

Finally, there's the safety cap—probably the best one in your store. Difficult for children to remove, the snap-action cap is easily opened and closed by adults once they know the secret.

Suggested price for this new product: 49¢ for 50—about a dime more than other well-known brands. But see if a parent ever switches back—once you've sold the one with aluminum.

"Recourse Clause" Protested

Some pharmaceutical firms bidding on North Carolina's drug needs for 1963 protested a new "recourse clause" inserted in the bid forms.

North Carolina is believed to be the first state to adopt such a clause for its drug contracts. The clause reads: "It is understood that the successful bidders shall be held liable for any and all adverse or harmful effects which may be experienced in the proper administration of drugs sold under this contract."

About 60 bids were received for the 350 different drug and medical items the state anticipates making available to state hospitals, prisons and TB institutions beginning February 1.

Yesterday's Knowledge... Today's Result

The so-called modern home convenience that we have come to accept as everyday necessities are the result of engineering progress. Likewise, in the field of pharmaceuticals, economical present-day therapeutic agents are the result of many years of scientific research, clinical study, and mass-production facilities. V-Cillin K<sup>(R)</sup> (penicillin V potassium, Lilly), one example of this achievement, is a tremendous improvement over the initial form of penicillin which was discovered over twenty years ago.

For quick, competent service, send your orders for V-Cillin K and other high-quality Lilly products to us.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

The first Open House at the School of Pharmacy on December 8 was a satisfying success. It was attended by 204 registrants including 15 pharmacists, 1 physician, a few General College students, and a great majority of high school students interested in pharmacy as a career.

Exhibits and demonstrations were arranged throughout the building by the faculty and graduate and undergraduate students. Undergraduate students also acted as guides. Miss Alice Noble had charge of the museum exhibits and Miss Kathryn Freeman acted as hostess in the library. The secretaries served hot chocolate and cookies in the Student Center. It took about two hours for a full tour of the building, and warm compliments were paid by the visitors. It is planned that Open House will be repeated next year but at a better time of the year, either early in November or during the spring.

Rho Chi, the national honorary society, sponsored four simultaneous seminars on research and graduate studies for the undergraduate students of all five classes on December 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade A. Gilliam of Winston-Salem were guests of the University on November 24 for a luncheon at the Morehead Planetarium and the football game with Duke University. In the morning Mr. Gilliam as president and Dean E. A. Brecht as secretary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation attended the annual meeting on development programs which included all of the foundations connected with the University of North Carolina.

Dr. Claude Piantadosi, Associate Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry, attended a seminar at Oak Ridge, Tennessee, on November 30. He has been appointed a Research Participant in medical research which is a position as a consultant with the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

The School of Pharmacy was happy to loan its Seminar Room on December 3 for a postgraduate seminar of the School of Dentistry which attracted 40 practicing dentists of the state.

Dean Brecht attended the annual luncheon meeting of the North Carolina Dental Foundation at the Carolina Inn on December 5.

Miss Alice Noble, research historian, attended the annual meeting of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Society in Raleigh on December 6.

Volume I, No. 1, of the U.N.C. Pharmacy Student Newspaper was issued on Dec. 7. Miss Anne Kelly, third-year student from Fayetteville, was editor and Dr. J. L. Brannon, Assistant Professor of Pharmacy, was faculty adviser. The five page mimeographed newspaper was the third issue No. 1 published within recent years. Better success is wished for its continuation in a recognition of the real work of maintaining any regular publication.

The annual program on accident prevention was presented by Dean E. A. Brecht on WUNC-TV in the Science and Nature program on December 12.

The annual Industrial Trip for graduating students is scheduled for the last week in February with visits to Eli Lilly and Company in Indianapolis and The Upjohn Company in Kalamazoo.

Historical Note

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

In Franke's Pharmacy in the Confederacy (1962) there is a letter that Walker Meares, of Wilmington, wrote to Schiefelin and Co., of New York, shortly after the beginning of the War Between the States in 1861. It shows that even at that early date it was difficult for the South to obtain supplies from the North—that getting through the Yankee lines was fast approaching an impossible undertaking. The letter says: "I am in need of some goods and make this proposition—You are to ship them to some safe point on the Tennessee line; where I will meet you, take up the first two notes specified and pay for the goods in New York Exchange . . ."

The letter not only gave information about drug supplies, but it furnished proof that Walker Meares was a druggist in the "sixties," something that I had never known or imagined. He was a well known figure (before my time) in Wilmington and all over Eastern North Carolina as a cotton buyer for the well-known firm of James Sprunt, cotton exporters. (Walker Meares K. Bender, originally of Pollocksville, but now of Fayetteville, is named for him and his son bears the name also.) When I went to Wilmington a few days later, principally for the purpose of seeing the battleship and the excavations at Brunswick, I tried to find out at the Library and elsewhere something about Mr. Meares as a pharmacist. No luck! Then I learned that a daughter still lived in Wilmington. I went to see her at once. Before I had hardly mentioned her father she told me that he WAS a druggist and that his store was located on the north side of Market Street between Front and Second, that later he was County Superintendent of Public Instruction; and then for the rest of his life was a partner in Mr. Sprunt's firm. AND SO another name and biographical data is added to our roster of pharmacists Before-the-War. It all goes to prove that constant alertness is necessary to locate pharmaceutical historical data of long ago.

Continuing with our tributes to pharmacists who fought for the South during the War Between the States, praise is given this month to the following:

D. N. Bogart, of Washington, enlisted in the Confederate Army when he was barely sixteen years of age. He was assigned to the Fifteenth Alabama Battalion, served in Western North Carolina and Tennessee with Johnston, and was captured in Rowan County. He maintained interest in military life after the War and was Lieutenant-Colonel of the First North Carolina State Troops. He opened a drug store in Washington in 1868 which he operated successfully the rest of his life.

Jonathan Chauncey Gidney: Born in Cleveland Co., Oct. 19, 1835; died in Shelby, October 2nd, 1889. He read medicine under John F. Miller, M.D., and graduated from Jefferson Medical College in 1861. Soon thereafter he enlisted in the Confederate Army and served throughout the War, the greater part of the time in the Hospital Corps. When the War ended, he settled in Shelby where he practiced medicine and also operated a drug store until his death. "As a physician, druggist and citizen, he enjoyed the full esteem of his community."

John T. Lewter: Born in Northampton Co., died in Murfreesboro, May 11, 1887. He was first a merchant and then studied medicine, obtaining his M.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1849. He practiced his profession at his home until 1885, when he moved to Murfreesboro. He served as militia colonel for Hertford county during the War. He established a drug store in 1869. "As a citizen, physician and druggist, Dr. Lewter merited and enjoyed wherever known universal and differential respect."

Bond English Sedberry, of Fayetteville: Born, October 22, 1840; died March 14, 1901. He was among the earliest volunteers in the Confederate service, having enlisted with the Fayetteville Light Infantry Co., which afterwards became a part of the First North Carolina (Bethel) Regiment. After the disbandment of this regiment, he re-entered the service as a member of Starr's Battery. "His conduct as a soldier was marked by the same unostentatious fidelity to duty which characterized him as a civilian. Prior to the opening of his own drug store in 1861, he was connected with the pharmacy of Jas. N. Smith for eleven years and then for the following fourteen years was employed by S. J. Hinsdale. "He was a thoroughly practical and industrious pharmacist, and his popularity and tact as a salesman were phenomenal."

Radford Named Fine Products Advertising, Sales Promotion Manager

Joseph T. Radford, Jr. has been named advertising and sales promotion director of Fine Products Corporation, Augusta, Ga., according to Sam O. Maguire, president. He will co-ordinate the firm's advertising, sales promotion and merchandising programs for Nunnally's, Hollingsworth and Sweetly Yours candy lines.

In announcing the appointment, Mr. Maguire stated that "Mr. Radford has been selected to fill the position because of his extensive and well-rounded merchandising and advertising experience."

Radford, a native of Augusta, entered merchandising in 1946 as an assistant manager at a local department store. He formerly served as an Account Executive with an advertising agency in Augusta. Joining the agency in 1947, Radford worked in copy, production and media departments before his promotion to Account Executive.

In 1955, Radford was appointed advertising director of Tri-State Tractor Company, Atlanta, one of the South's largest distributors of International Harvester construction equipment.

After the Culbreth's sold their pharmacy, Mrs. Culbreth accepted employment with Broad Street Pharmacy.

Signing of Consent Degree A Blueprint for the Future

Three years ago the U. S. Department of Justice filed charges alleging the Arizona and two local pharmaceutical associations of that state had committed certain criminal acts involving uniform prices on prescription drugs. After a grand jury failed to bring in an indictment, the Department filed a civil complaint charging the associations and their officers with violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Of primary interest to all pharmacists and pharmaceutical associations is the consent degree agreed upon by the Department and the three associations "without admission by any party in respect to any issue herein." The three associations are restrained from:

(a) Combining or conspiring to establish and maintain uniform consumer prices for legend drugs in the State of Arizona;

(b) Entering into, adhering to, maintaining or furthering any agreement, understanding, plan, or conspiracy (1) to fix, determine, maintain or suggest prices, terms or conditions for the sale of legend drugs, or (2) to formulate, adopt, issue, distribute, recommend or suggest the use by any pharmacist or any other person of any prescription pricing schedule or other list, formula, guide, schedule, or method for pricing legend drugs.

(c) Advocating, suggesting, urging, inducing, compelling, or in any other manner influencing or attempting to influence any person to use or adhere to any prescription pricing schedule or schedules, or any other lists, formula, guide, schedule or method for pricing legend drugs.

(d) Policing or making individual contact with any pharmacist or other person or devising or putting into effect any procedure to ascertain, determine, fix, influence or suggest the price at which any legend drug is or may be sold by any pharmacist.

It was made clear in the degree that any pharmacist, acting solely within his pharmacy, could establish his own Rx price schedule. As far as organized activity is concerned, the NARD suggests: "Avoid any association activities concerning prices or professional fees charged."

The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy is published monthly by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, Box 151, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription rate: $3.00 a year; single copy, 25 cents. Entered as second class matter July 5, 1922 at the post office at Chapel Hill, North Carolina under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Drug Symposium Underway

The second of a series of "Drug Symposiums" under sponsorship of the UNC School of Pharmacy got underway on February 13 at Chapel Hill. The emphasis of this Symposium is on drugs which act on the gastrointestinal and genito-urinary tracts.

Successive Wednesday night classes will be held on February 20 and 27; March 6, 13 and 20.

The teaching staff includes four UNC doctors—Paul L. Bunce, Charles W. Hooker, John T. Sessions, Jr. and Thomas F. Williams and Dr. Ralph W. Rundles of Duke University.

Details of this and future "Drug Symposiums" may be obtained by writing Dr. M. A. Chambers, School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

New Name for Fair Trade Bureau

The Bureau of Education on Fair Trade has a new name: Bureau for the Advancement of Independent Retailing.

While the aims and purpose of the newly named Bureau are extensive, the basic purpose will be to foster Federal legislation which will encourage fair competition in the market place.

In this connection, a revised Quality Stabilization Bill is expected to be introduced in Congress shortly after the legislative body is organized.

Pharmacist-Mayor Mitchener Elected

John A. Mitchener, Jr., pharmacist-mayor of Edenton, has been elected a district director of the North Carolina League of Municipalities. At a recent meeting of the League, Mr. Mitchener was presiding officer at a session held expressly for officials of towns of 9,000 and under.

Attend Rexall Meeting

A large delegation of pharmacists, pharmacy employees and their wives attended a Diamond Jubilee Convention of the Rexall Drug Company in Atlanta the latter part of January. One of the guest speakers was Dr. Norman Vincent Peele.

Now on the Mend

Visits to the hospital, twice within the space of several months, has prevented Walter D. Druen, Tilden Company MSR, from visiting his accounts in North Carolina and Virginia. A card, letter or order will be appreciated by one of Pharmacy's most loyal supporters. His address is P. O. Box 165, Lynchburg, Virginia.

Opens in Nashville

Thomas F. Kostic (UNC Pharmacy '53) has established the Village Pharmacy, Murfreesboro Road just beyond Bell Road, Nashville, Tennessee. After leaving Chapel Hill, Tom was employed by a Greensboro pharmacy.

Cover Page

North Carolina's two pharmacist-legislators are pictured on our cover this month.

On the left is Earl Tate of Lenoir, serving his first term in The General Assembly from Caldwell County. Mr. Tate is no stranger to the political scene. He was mayor of Lenoir for 24 years and has held numerous positions with various governmental bodies.

Mr. John Henley (right) of Hope Mills returns to the General Assembly for his fourth term as one of Cumberland County's three representatives. He, like Mr. Tate, is an ex-mayor and works closely with Governor Sanford, the two coming from same county.

During the current session of the Assembly, Mr. Henley had the honor of introducing the first bill in the House (HB1). It relates to establishing senatorial districts in the State. Mr. Tate also was one of the first legislators to co-introduce a bill (it relates to minimum wages).

The emblem in the center is a hand-hooked rug made by and presented to the NCPA by Pharmacist E. L. Ray of Ashboro. Mr. Ray took up the hobby of rug making following his semi-retirement from pharmacy.

Johnny Bennick Observes 50-Year Mark with Scott Drug

By HARRY SNOOK

Staff Writer, Charlotte Observer

When Johnnie Bennick was 14 years old, he quit school in the middle of the seventh grade and went to work for the Scott Drug Co. here.

"I started as a delivery boy," said Bennick, who now is vice president, chief buyer and sales manager for the wholesale drug firm.

"I got my education in the school of hard knocks. As I see it, you've got to work to get ahead," he said. "I've always liked my work—if I didn't I would've got got another job."

Bennick's jobs with Scott have been as buyer, pricer, salesman and even billing clerk.

The Scott Drug Co., founded here in 1891

by two brothers, Walter and John Scott, made many of the medicines it sold to apothecaries around the turn of the century. In addition to Scott products such as Soda Foam, used in fountain syrups, and Ner-O-Sol, to quiet the nerves, the firm wholesaled items like terpin hydrate with heroin—a cough medicine.

"Heroin is outlawed now, of course," Bennick said. "We sell narcotics, but not heroin."

Narcotics are kept in a special vault at the company's 52,000 square foot quarters on South Tryon Street. A burglar alarm is wired to a gong at the city police department.

Greensboro—Following 13 years of service with McDuffie-Eubanks Drug Company, Robert L. Lane has transferred to the Lane Rexall Drug Store in the Golden Gate Shopping Center. He is a pharmacy graduate of the University of Georgia.

VA Pharmacy Advisory Committee

Three Winston-Salem pharmacists will serve as a "VA Pharmacy Advisory Committee" to work with the VA Regional Office Outpatient Clinic on professional matters:

James M. Darlington (wholesale)
Roger H. Sloop (retail)
Gilbert C. Hartis (medical service rep.)

Effective January 1, the operation of the VA Pharmacy Service Program was transferred from the NCPA Office in Chapel Hill to the VA Regional Office in Winston-Salem. A consideration of the problem is involved in the transfer indicated that the pharmaceutical association could best be of assistance to the VA Regional Office by providing experienced aid within the immediate area of the Office, hence the setting up of the Advisory Committee.

If you desire contract forms (about 300 pharmacists presently participating) write to: Mr. Hayward V. Lewis, Chief, Medical Administration Division, Outpatient Clinic, VA Regional Office, 310 West Fourth Street, Winston-Salem.

Career Exhibits in Use

The NCPA Pharmacy Exhibit #1 was in Burlington in late January and early February for a "Health Careers Days" under sponsorship of professional groups of Alamance and Caswell counties. Jack Watts, Lilly MSR, was in charge of the exhibit.

Exhibit #2 was in Durham on February 8-9 for North Carolina's Second Annual Health Careers Congress. About 400 high school students interested in health careers attended the Congress.

Directly in charge of the exhibit on the first day were Pharmacists B. W. Bullock and Miss Carol B. Wilson. Claxton Harris, President of the Durham-Orange Drug Club, and Frank Ferguson, were present to answer questions and to distribute pharmacy career literature on the second day of the Congress.

A part of the program included visits to the UNC School of Pharmacy by students interested in pharmacy as a career.

Markham-Reaves Open New Pharmacies

Two new pharmacies have opened in Fayetteville within recent months:

George Markham has moved his Markham Drug Company to a new building at 114 Rowan Street. It is a professional operation, with MD's having office facilities in same building.

For the present, Mr. Markham is continuing the business in old pharmacy location as a soda-sundry operation.

Grand opening of L. E. Reaves' new store—Reaves Rexall Drugs—in the Tallywood Shopping Center was observed from January 31st through February 2nd.

A new landmark in Fayetteville is the 50 foot Tallywood Shopping Center sign, which is composed of 30 plexiglass boxes, comprising 450 square feet of plastic. The sign supports are imbedded in a quarter million pounds of concrete to withstand 300 miles per hour wind velocity.

Mr. Reaves will continue to operate his original store, which is located in the Eutaw Shopping Center on the Fort Bragg Blvd.

Award Goes to Brooks

Frank G. Brooks, Jr., Siler City pharmacist, was picked by members of the Siler City Junior Chamber of Commerce to receive the organization's "Distinguished Service Award for 1962." The award ceremony was held on January 29.

Mr. Brooks is general manager of the Siler City Drug Company; an immediate past president of the Siler City Rotary Club and current president of the Parent-Teachers Association. Recently he was named a director of the First Union National Bank of Siler City.

Thomas Honored

In recognition of the outstanding job he did as president of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce, a special plaque has been presented to Pharmacist J. I. Thomas of Dunn.

Coin Collector

Louis Holland, Hamlet pharmacist, has a collection of coins including one of each coin minted by the United States, with exception of gold coins. The collection includes a 1799 silver dollar.

Contributes $1,000

The NCPA Consolidated Pharmacy Fund received a $1,000 contribution through the efforts of NCPA President John T. Stevenson of Elizabeth City. The money has been specifically earmarked for pharmacy student aid, with two loans having already been allocated from the fund.

While contributions are coming in steadily, this one is unusual in that it came from a person not associated with Pharmacy in any capacity. As a matter of fact, the donor lives in Texas, although he is a native Tar Heel.

President Stevenson knew of the individual's interest in helping young men and women secure an education; mentioned the objectives of the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund, whereby the Texan pulled a thousand dollar bill from his wallet and presented it to President Stevenson. ($1,000 bills may be common in Texas but not in North Carolina).

We have purposely omitted the name of the donor, not because of any specific request but we know his primary interest is in being of assistance to students who need a bit of financial help. Two such students have already been aided and there will be others as the year progresses.

Form of Bequest

Since 1880 the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association has directed its efforts towards enhancing the service and prestige of Pharmacy and pharmacists. It was instrumental in establishing the N. C. Board of Pharmacy in 1881; the School of Pharmacy at Chapel Hill in 1897; The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy in 1915. It has and continues to work in behalf of the profession and public health. More needs to be done but cannot be done without adequate funds. You can establish a permanent memorial by leaving something for future generations of pharmacy workers. This form is suggested:

To the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, a non-profit corporation organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina with its principal office at The Institute of Pharmacy Building, Chapel Hill, North Carolina, I give and bequeath the sum of $.....

This bequest is unrestricted, and the Executive Committee or other governing body of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association may use and expend the same for the benefit of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association in any manner it deems appropriate.

Davis Buys Hood Drug

A 90-year-old pharmacy, Hood Brothers Drug Store of Smithfield, has been purchased and is now under the management of McDonald Davis, Jr.

The Hood pharmacy was established in 1873 when the late J. C. Hood and a son-in-law, Dr. L. E. Kirkman, bought a stock of drugs from a Dr. Telfair. In 1878 a son, T. R. Hood, joined the firm and still later two other sons, B. R. and John, became associated with the pharmacy. John left the pharmacy for Kinston; B. R. withdrew and established another store in Smithfield.

W. D. Hood, a son of T. R. Hood, joined the pharmacy in 1903. His brother, Hal C., later became associated with the pharmacy. The sale of the pharmacy to Mr. Davis closes an era of Hood-operated pharmacies in Smithfield that few families can match in the state.

Mr. Davis, a graduate of Clinton High School and the UNC School of Pharmacy, has closed the Davis Pharmacy of Roseboro, where he has been located for more than 20 years.

Welch #2 Open

Dorsey Welch reports satisfaction over progress of his new pharmacy (Welch's Drug Store #2) opened in late January in the Medical Center near the Beaufort County Hospital, Washington.

Everette Crosby, formerly of Southern Pines, and Mrs. Jane W. Page, both pharmacists, will assist Mr. Welch in the operation of the new pharmacy.

Pharmacy College Professors to Hold National Meeting at UNC in July

Preliminary plans have been prepared for a national meeting of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy, to be held at the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy, July 21-26.

Dean E. A. Brecht, of the UNC Pharmacy School, a co-chairman of the AACP's 1963 Teacher's Seminar Committee, announced that the committee has made up a list of prospective speakers and outlined the program for the national gathering, which will draw over 300 pharmacy teachers from 80 colleges of pharmacy in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Philippines and Canada. The committee met in Chapel Hill on the 8th and 9th of January.

The American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy meets once every three years on a college campus, holding its off-year meetings in connection with the American Pharmaceutical Association. The principal feature of the campus-held meeting is the Teacher's Seminar in Pharmaceutical Education, which cover all five professional teaching specialties of the pharmacy curriculum: Pharmacy, Pharmaceutical Chemistry, Pharmacognosy, Pharmacology, and Pharmacy Administration.

This year the annual meeting of the AACP will begin on Sunday afternoon, July 21, and run through Tuesday morning following. Tuesday afternoon, the Teacher's Seminar will begin and will continue through Friday, the 26th.

This year's Seminar will be concerned with a re-evaluation of the objectives of pharmaceutical education, an exploration of the ways in which the profession's services may be extended, and studies of the application of teaching methods in professional instruction.

The meeting at UNC will mark the first time that the AACP has met on a south-eastern college campus.

Prior to the AACP meeting, the American Society of Pharmacognosy will hold its annual meeting at UNC, July 18-20.

Pharmacognosy is an applied science concerned with the biological, chemical, biochemical and economic aspects of natural drugs. The Society draws about half of its membership from industry and government. Dr. Jack K. Wier, UNC Professor of Pharmacognosy, is in charge of local arrangements for the Society's meeting.

Plan Now to Observe Poison Prevention Week March 17-23; Supplies Available from APhA

Poison Prevention Quiz

1. Where is your nearest Poison Control Center?
2. For whom is this specialized service intended?
3. What is the most difficult requirement for Poison Control Centers?
4. What advice can be given to an alarmed mother whose child has swallowed something that may be poisonous?
5. What is the poisonous ingredient in airplane glues and bubbling Christmas tree ornaments?
6. The dose of Castor Oil is fairly large, 1 tablespoonful; why are castor beans so poisonous?
7. What is the estimated minimum lethal dose for phenobarbital?
8. When is National Poison Prevention Week observed?

Answers

1. Your answer is one of the following. The national directory, dated April of 1961, lists 5 in North Carolina:

Charlotte, Mercy Hospital,

Durham, Duke University Hospital, DURham 9011, Extension 3951 or 3806;
night: Extension 2413

Jacksonville, Onslow Memorial Hospital,
7242

Mount Airy, Northern Hospital of Surry County, STate 6-4151, Ext. 211
Wilmington, James Walker Memorial Hospital, ROger 2-9611, Extension 240; night: Extension 247 or 248

It is also known that this service is given at:

Concord, Cabarrus Memorial Hospital
Elkin, Bridge Street Pharmacy, T. R.
Burgiss

2. It is intended for physicians because it is technical in the identification, from references, of poisonous ingredients and for specific antidotal treatment, and it is too advanced for use by non-medical personnel.

This Quiz was Compiled by Dean E. A. Brecht of Chapel Hill, a Member of the Poison Prevention Week Committee of the NCPA.

3. Service must be available every hour of the day and night.
4. Call a physician, and in the meantime advise "Dilute, Remove, and Repeat." This means that the victim should swallow 4 glassfuls of water or other aqueous liquid such as milk, soft drinks, etc. Vomiting should be induced by pressing firmly at the back of the victim's tongue. This treatment should be repeated. But, this should not be done if the poison was a caustic acid or alkali, or kerosene, or if the victim is unconscious. Every care should be taken when the victim is vomiting to prevent any of the vomitus from being forced into the lungs. It is this reason that vomiting after swallowing kerosene is contraindicated due to the danger of causing infection in the lungs.
5. Halogenated hydrocarbons. These cause liver destruction if inhaled too much and often or swallowed.
6. Castor Beans contain one of the most toxic substances known. It is ricin, a toxalbumin, which causes hemolysis of red blood cells in a concentration as dilute as 1 in 1,000,000.
7. Phenobarbital is listed at 1 gram. Other barbiturates are in proportion to therapeutic doses. For example Secobarbital is listed at 2 grams (30 grains).
8. The third week in March according to the law passed by Congress in 1961.

TV Program

A special 30 minute program on poison prevention will be "taped" by WUNC-TV on March 6. Participants will be Tom Burgiss, Chairman of the NCPA Poison Prevention Week Committee; Dean E. A. Brecht, a member of the committee; Dr. Arena of the Duke Poison Control Center and others.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

The T. M. Stanback Loan Fund was established at the University of North Carolina by the thoughtful gift of $5,000 from the Salisbury Community Foundation through the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association. The fund will be administered in the Office of Student Aid for the benefit of pharmacy students.

A handsome oak stand has been placed in the lobby of Beard Hall to facilitate the distribution of free publications to pharmacy students. It was received as a gift from the Charlotte Woman's Druggist Auxiliary and was built by the Buildings Dept. of the University.

M. C. S. Noble, Jr., brother of Miss Alice Noble, died at the Veterans Hospital in Boston on December 22 after a long illness. He was a member of the faculty of the University of Rhode Island.

The students enjoyed hot chocolate on the last day of class before the Christmas recreation served in the Student Center by the secretaries as a courtesy from the School of Pharmacy.

Jeong Hyok Im, graduate student in biochemistry from Korea, became the custodian for the School of Pharmacy in late December. He replaced Daniel Stein, pharmacy major from Philadelphia who was married on December 23 to Miss Janice Tesnick of the home city.

The planning committee for the Teachers' Seminar to be held at the University of North Carolina next summer met at the School of Pharmacy on January 8 and 9. An idea of the planning involved may be gathered from the length of the meeting, 14 hours on the first day and ½ hour beyond the pre-set adjournment time on the second day forcing some rush to meet air schedules. Further details are carried elsewhere in this issue of the CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY.

The Justice Drug Company distributed copies of the new Physician's Desk Reference to graduating students and members of the faculty in mid-January. This valuable reference is particularly useful in several of the senior courses.

Jack Watts, Medical Service Representative for Eli Lilly and Company, called at the School of Pharmacy on January 18 to pick up literature for the Alamance Pharmaceutical Society to be used in Health Careers programs to be held in the county on two Saturdays, January 26 and February 9.

The second issue of the new pharmacy student newspaper was issued on January 18. Pharmacists of North Carolina may wish to respond to the invitation to submit a name for the publication. Suggestions should be sent to Dr. J. L. Brannon, Assistant Professor of Pharmacy, who is acting as faculty adviser for this project.

Pharmacy Senate

"Professionalism" was the subject discussed by Curtis Holleman, third-year student from Fuquay Springs, at the meeting on December 18.

Historical Note

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

Do you ever have the impulse to think out loud? Well, this month I am satisfying such a desire by jotting down some of the things that have interested me in the past few weeks.

The death of Harvie Ward, of Tarboro, on December 31, made me realize that one of the oldest drug stores in North Carolina—the second oldest, I think owned continuously by one family, will pass now into other hands, since Harvie's only son, the famous golf champion, is engaged in other business and lives in California. The pharmacy was established in 1877 by Dr. E. V. Zoeller (he having purchased the store from Dr. A. H. McNair). Since then it has been operated most of the time under the name of E. V. Zoeller and Co. When the old gentleman died in 1944 his nephew (Harvie) became the owner. In all the press notices of the nephew's death mention was made that he "was a long-time observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau." This recalled to my mind the meticulous care and pride with which the Doctor had kept these weather statistics ever since he became a pharmacist. He often talked about his hobby and his accurate records were commented upon frequently in news stories. I am glad that the nephew carried on his uncle's pastime. I hope too that the old store under new ownership will continue the practice of recording the weather daily. This information is important historical material and will become increasingly valuable as the years go by.

One of the very nicest presents I have received recently was from Kelly E. Bennett, of Bryson City—a long time friend. It was a perfectly splendid picture of the late Dean E. V. Howell. It is a full-face photograph and the Dean is slightly smiling at something he held in his hand. I have tried without success to find out what it was that amused "Uncle Vernon" so much. Kelly comments as follows: "In going through my files this week I found a picture of the 'Man of the Pharmacy Department of North Carolina,' Dr. Vernon Howell. He was my guest on a fishing trip on the head waters of Deep Creek in the Great Smokies above Bryson City. It was after the meetings of the N.C.P.A. and State Board in Waynesville in 1912. Knowing your love and appreciation of Dr. Howell, I hasten to mail you this print." I was delighted with the gift and shall cherish it greatly.

Usually everybody remembers something very special that happened to him or her during the Christmas season that added joy to the occasion. I cherish an incident that occurred at my home late in the afternoon just before this Christmas. Bill Taylor came in with his usually cheery greeting. Behind him in single file marched his three handsome sons, each bearing a gift for me. I thought at once of the three kings of the Orient who brought gifts that first Christmas—the Gifts of the Magi. It was wonderful to have the three young wise men bring me gifts this holiday-time and to present them in such a charming manner.

William H. Belk always has something interesting to say in his column in the Greensboro Daily News. In the issue of January 5th there appeared the following under the caption, "Where are Leeches?"

"The leech was once as popular with the medical men as are antibiotics today. That was a long time ago. But leeches were used to bleed people in a controlled manner. Boys who went swimming in the Round Hole south of Monroe had a personal acquaintance with the tiny blood suckers. Leeches from the creek found a soft spot on the boys and started sucking blood. When you finished your swim and were dressing to go home you examined carefully to find and destroy any leech which had found you. Maybe boys swimming in creeks today are acquainted personally with leeches. But we wouldn't know. Today's swimming is done in man made pools where they are no leeches."

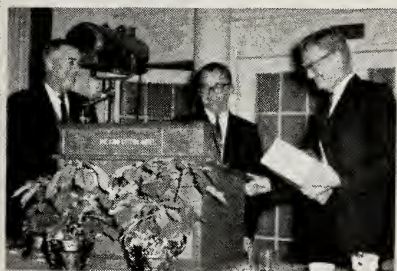

In the December issue there was an error in the Historical Note about soda fountains. It was stated that Colonel George Matthews was the grandson of the "Father of the Soda Fountain Industry," whereas he is the great-grandson. (Incidentally, I am delighted to have received letters from Journal readers stating they enjoyed the soda fountain story.)

Record Rx Sales?

A recent prescription customer of Horne's of Fayetteville probably had to dip deep into his pockets to take care of the cost of six prescriptions and five supplementary items, such as vitamins and yeast tablets. The total was $173.30 for one sale.

Ruffin Horne, the pharmacist-owner, wonders if this isn't a record.

Rough for the Hollands

The last week in January was a rough one for the Louis Hollands of Hamlet.

#1. A prescription bottle burst, imbedding glass in Mr. Holland's face.

#2. Mrs. Holland fell down the stairs at the Holland residence, injuring her shoulder.

Mrs. Harold Kenerly, secretary, read a note of appreciation from one of the rest homes which received bedside bags from the Auxiliary, as their Christmas service project.

Plans were discussed for a joint meeting of the Auxiliary and the Rowan-Davie Drug Association. The group was reminded of the state convention to be held at Pinehurst May 12-14, and also that Mrs. John T. Stevenson, Auxiliary President, would visit the club in February.

JOHNNIE BENNICK

Pharmaceuticals, meaning drugs used in making up prescriptions, are biggest in sales, with patent medicines and sundries next in order.

Sundries? These are everything from hand lotions and band-aids to flash bulbs and baby diapers.

The company no longer makes medicines, and doesn't manufacture anything else. "We're strictly a wholesaler," Bennick said. "All major lines, no off-brands."

Bennick said the firm's sales to more than 450 drug stores and hospitals in the Carolinas last year topped $6 million, and represented an increase of 10 per cent over the preceding year.

Scott Drug Co. employs about 80 people, plus 15 salesmen on commission, who handle from 275 to 400 separate orders a day.

"The secret of our success," said Bennick, "is keeping our inventories up. When a customer wants something, he wants it now."

Overnight shipments to most points in the Carolinas are made via The Observer Transportation Co.

One of the three shipping days is reserved for the company's own delivery trucks. The other two are used in unloading merchandise from manufactures, and for loading shipments to customers in both states.

"In a rush, we can get an order off the line every minute and a half," Bennick said. He pointed to more than 250 feet of multiple conveyors. "Orders as the customer's basket moves along from section to section. We're very well organized."

Bennick said the company maintained a $750,000 inventory of about 50,000 different items.

The company, headed now by Walter Scott, Jr., is—as it has been—the big thing in Bennick's life. Frequently, however, he spends weekends at his 200-acre farm near Boone, at Valle Crucis. "I raise a little hay," Bennick said.

To help him with his farming chores, and in celebration of his half century of service, associates gave Bennick a tractor at a surprise party at the Stork Restaurant in Freedom Village Shopping Center Friday night.

Bennick has a son, James, who is a druggist with the Lenoir Drug Co. at Lenoir.

Bennick himself has no retirement plans. "Why should I?" he asked "I'm in good shape and I like to work."

Why would anyone pay 10¢ more for this children's aspirin?

Aspirin is aspirin—to anyone but a youngster. To him, the little things—flavor, color, sweetness, aftertaste—seem very important indeed. Especially if he isn't feeling well.

This new children's aspirin from Abbott is just a little more pleasant for him to take.

The difference can be expressed in one word: Aluminum. Most aspirins are formulated as an acid. The Abbott aspirin is presented as the neutral aluminum salt. Result: (1) Stability is enhanced (2) The cherry flavor is protected (3) There is little or none of the acid stomach upset often caused by ordinary aspirin.

This flavor advantage was very clearly pointed up in a series of tests at a major children's hospital. The new, cherry-flavored tablets were preferred 3 to 1 over the other leading children's aspirins.

Finally, there's the safety cap—probably the best one in your store. Difficult for children to remove, the snap-action cap is easily opened and closed by adults once they know the secret.

Suggested price for this new product: 49¢ for 50—about a dime more than other well-known brands. But see if a parent ever switches back—once you've sold the one with aluminum.

The Welfare State—Utopia?

Congress is being asked to approve legislation which will further socialize the practice of medicine and the activities of associated medical groups. We are asked to support a Federal financed and controlled welfare state. Not wholly at first, just by degrees until the take-over is complete.

In this connection, the following comments by a pharmacist who has just returned from a visit to the Scandinavia Countries, where the welfare system is in operation, will be enlightening:

"Don't believe all the guides tell you about how wonderful it is to live in a country that is a complete or near-complete welfare state. I talked to several guides who extolled their free medicine, free hospitals and medical care. They confided in me that their only ambition was to leave and get to America.

"Check into the procedure necessary to own a pharmacy. You have to get permission from the King. I talked with one woman who said she had tried for 20 years to get a pharmacy of her own. Finally, she got to the top of the list. She had to buy a pharmacy that had been losing 20,000 Krone (a Krone is 20¢) a year.

"Why have men deserted the practice of pharmacy? Fifty percent of the students are women; most of the men go into industry.

"They feed Americans with propaganda about everything being 'free'. We paid a minimum of 89¢ for a pack of cigarettes—up to $1.09. Gasoline was 90¢ a gallon. This is because of the built-in tax system to support the welfare state.

"When they show you the new apartments, ask how long a young married couple would have to wait to rent one. Our guide said about 7 years.

"Investigate what the average pharmacist thinks about government controls on licensing of pharmacies (limited as to number and location), where you buy, what you pay, what you charge, how you promote (you can't), what you must manufacture, salaries you must pay, etc."

Does this sound like Utopia? Is this our Pharmacy of the future? The American system of free enterprise—is it being sold down the river? Is private initiative and family responsibility out of tune with the times? Give a thought to these questions; more important, express yourself on these issues to your Congressional Representatives.

The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy is published monthly by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, Box 151, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription rate: $3.00 a year; single copy, 25 cents. Entered as second class matter July 5, 1922 at the post office at Chapel Hill, North Carolina under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Andrews to Retire as Postmaster

R. Homer Andrews, pharmacist-postmaster of Burlington for the past 28 years, will retire on May 31. He is a brother of Charles M. Andrews, assistant secretary-treasurer of the NCPA.

When Mr. Andrews began work with the Burlington Post Office, there were 25 employees. Today, there are 115 persons. Receipts were $72,000 in 1934; now around a million dollars a year.

Mr. Andrews has established a record—he has served longer as postmaster at Burlington than any of his predecessors.

For many years, he and his brother, Charles, operated the Andrews Drug Company of Burlington. It was sold several years ago.

Following retirement, Mr. Andrews plans to do some relief work in the Burlington area for his pharmacist friends.

Hayes Scholarship Established

The Greensboro Drug Auxiliary has voted unanimously to name its scholarship fund the "Virginia Townsend Hayes Scholarship" in honor of Mrs. P. A. Hayes and in recognition of the contribution Mr. and Mrs. Hayes have made to the cause of pharmacy in North Carolina and the nation.

The scholarship, which pays full tuition, goes each year to a pharmacy student at the UNC School of Pharmacy, with preference going to Greensboro applicants.

Mrs. Hayes was an organizer and charter member of the Greensboro Drug Auxiliary. She is a member of The Woman's Auxiliary of the NCPA and served as president of the state organization in 1937-'38.

In this connection, her two daughters, Mrs. William P. Brewer and Mrs. Stephen Forrest, have served as presidents of the state pharmaceutical auxiliary, and her two sons-in-law have headed the TMA (Mr. Brewer is the current president of The Traveling Men's Auxiliary).

Mr. Hayes is a veteran member of the TMA. He served as president of the TMA in 1934 and, until ill health forced his retirement some years ago, was among the most active supporters of Pharmacy in North Carolina.

Three Smithfield Pharmacists Honored for 178 Years of Service

Three Smithfield pharmacists, with a total of 178 years of service, were honored by their hometown pharmacists at a banquet in Smithfield on February 15.

Plaques inscribed "For faithful professional and community service from the Smithfield Pharmacists" were presented to A. S. Johnston, Will D. Hood and Hal C. Hood, by John Marshall Sasser, Bill Upchurch and Oliver Fleming.

The banquet was jointly sponsored by Creech's Pharmacy, Upchurch Pharmacy, Fleming Pharmacy and Smithfield Pharmacy. Decorations, featuring a pharmacy theme, were arranged by Mesdames James L. Creech, George Cooley and M. T. Upchurch.

The banquet programs, in the shape of a mortar & pestle with wording "178 years of service" on cover, were designed and prepared by Mr. & Mrs. Sasser. Corsages for the wives of the guests were presented by the Johnston County Medical Society.

Guest speakers for the occasion were the Rev. Charles M. Mercer, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church, and NCPA Secretary W. J. Smith. McDonald Davis, new owner of Hood Bros. Drug Store, and Mrs. Davis were formally introduced to their co-workers at the banquet.

James L. Creech was toastmaster and general chairman of arrangements. An out-of-town guest was heard to remark of how impressed he was with the laudable, cooperative spirit existing among the Smithfield pharmacists and of the desire of the younger pharmacists to honor those who have made Pharmacy such a respected profession in Johnston County.

Legislative Developments

Action by The General Assembly has gained momentum following appointment of the committees. By official action, The Assembly's new home has been designated "State Legislative Building."

With a $100 million surplus, veteran legislators are predicting a short session of The Assembly, with adjournment coming in late May. In the past, action and reaction within the Committee on Finance frequently resulted in short tempers and long sessions of the legislative body.

It is anticipated state income tax exemptions will be raised and some sales tax exemptions lowered or abolished. Of special interest to Pharmacy is the proposal to lift the sales tax on compounded medicines. Although reaction from some pharmacists has been negative (too much record keeping involved), the bills introduced so far cannot be considered as final.

One of the first bills to be introduced during the present session was one relating to implementation of the Kerr-Mills Bill (medical aid to the aged) in North Carolina. It is now generally conceded that the bill has serious omissions, hence a new bill is expected under sponsorship on the special committee recently set up by Governor Hodges to develop a practical plan for this state.

Drugs will play an important part in the setup. It is anticipated a Kerr-Mills prescription program will be functioning in North Carolina by July 1. Suggested finances are $750,000 state funds, $750,000 county funds and $4½ million federal funds.

Robert B. Hall of Mocksville has been endorsed for membership on the Board of Trustees of The Greater University by the Association's Executive Committee. Since the final selection of the Trustees is by vote of The General Assembly, an organized effort is now underway to secure Mr. Hall's selection to the Board. In the past, the Association has not been successful in its effort to have a pharmacist named to the Board. But certain favorable factors now indicate that perhaps Mr. Hall will be able to break the line of past failures.

The two pharmacists serving in The Assembly—Mr. John Henley and Mr. Earl Tate—have been appointed members of numerous committees and both are authors of several bills currently under consideration by the legislative body.

MEET YOUR NEW EFFICIENCY EXPERT

- Here's the man who brings more efficiency and lower operating costs to your pharmacy. Your Wyeth Territory Manager.

He can show you how the WYETH INVENTORY CONTROL PROGRAM helps avoid tying up cash in excess inventory. How it eliminates that expensive return goods problem. Why there's less work for you plus better operating efficiency. Why you're always sure of having adequate stock of fresh, clean Wyeth merchandise.

How does the WYETH PROGRAM accomplish all this? First, your Wyeth inventory is keyed to your sales rate by routine checks on stock movement. Second, check-ups of subsequent stock movement provide the basis for maintaining the most efficient Wyeth inventory of Wyeth products. Once it's started, the inventory program works almost automatically. And, of course, it's always under your direct control.

Pharmacists across the country endorse the WYETH INVENTORY CONTROL PROGRAM as a cost-saving efficiency operation. Interested? Why not see your local Wyeth Territory Manager for details.

PHARMACY—part of your health team

It is not surprising that your pharmacist has the job of drug ready for just when your physician prescribes it. To an extent people today enjoy a level of health far higher than ever before, and a large part of it may be attributed to the dramatic advance made for the "health team" pharmacist, physician and prescription drug manufacturer.

We outline the complex process by which a drug leaves from manufacturer to get out "the minute it's drug distribution." The two varied of prescription drug manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assure that you will receive the medicine you need. The intricate of drug distribution the fact that the medicine you need is in your community pharmacy when you need it—this is the reason why prescriptions are today's best bargain.

3 A.M. in a pharmacy... >

3 A.M. in a community pharmacy. The street is in darkness, as light comes on in the pharmacy. Why? Because the pharmacist is faced with an emergency.

He receives an urgent telephone call at 2:30 A.M. Mrs. Smith, a patient from another area, has the severe difficulty in breathing. Her husband took the pharmacist who had her out of the medicine prescribed by her physician.

The pharmacist checked quickly, ready to administer the most vital prescription on file, prescribed by Mrs. Smith's physician. He prepared an inhaler for the patient at once. Mrs. Smith was conditionally improved again and a possible tragedy had been averted.

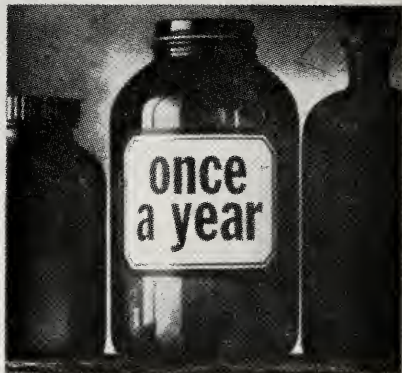

Such emergencies are frequent, yet your pharmacist knows them with speed and confidence as part of his complete professional duties. For this is a profession gone to labor for 24 hours a day, every day, hundreds of hours in appropriate, and most cases a response state examination before he is licensed. He must stock thousands of dollars worth of health products you need every day—as well as those you may need only once in a lifetime.

It was not by chance that the pharmacist had the proper drug ready, but Mrs. Smith, again she needed it. We call this emergency service for which a drug comes from manufacturer to patient "the miracle of drug distribution."

The cooperation of manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assure that you—as well as Mrs. Smith—will always receive the medicine you need. This miracle of drug distribution—the fact that the medicine you need is ready when you need it—is just the reason why prescriptions are today's best bargain.

NAME OF YOUR PHARMACY

A pharmacist does reach for a bottle of mefloquine just like only once a year, yet he always has the best mefloquine on hand in case an emergency arises.

Approximately 200 pharmaceutical activities for 10% of all prescriptions. Nevertheless, the average pharmacist stocks more than 1,000 drug bottles so that he will be able to fill immediately even the less common prescriptions. In addition, your neighborhood pharmacist must be prepared to answer questions from doctors about drug dosage, strength and available forms and uses. To require this knowledge he spends long hours keeping abreast of the latest pharmaceutical developments.

Because the pharmacist stocks more than 1,000 pharmaceuticals in stock and because he is well informed about them, you can be sure that the prescription your doctor writes will be filled accurately and when you need it. Your pharmacist—the doctor, pharmacist, drug manufacturer and drug wholesaler—is a vital member of the team that makes today's life-saving medicines available to you.

A panel discussion—"Professional Fee—Pros and Cons"—closed the meeting. Participating were Wyndham Dukes, Arnold Cherson, Claude U. Paoloni (moderator) and Joe Chandler, who has used the professional fee system since December, 1961.

Changes Made in Tax on Toilet Preparations

Revised regulations covering retail excise taxes on toilet preparations went into effect on January 1.

Specifically exempted from the 10% tax are "medications," defined as follows by the tax department:

Those relieving, remedying or curing of diseased or injured conditions of the skin, such as those caused by acne, athlete's foot, dandruff, burns.

Those relieving, remedying or curing of irritated conditions of the lips, such as cold sores, fever blisters and other irritations of the lips caused by the sun, wind, or other elements.

Those with other medicinal purposes, such as for the relief of muscular aches.

With regard to toilet preparations, the new regulations state that "the tax attaches to the sale by the retailer of any substance, article, or preparation which is used or applied, or intended to be used or applied, for toilet purposes or used in connection with the bath or care of the body, or applied to the clothing. Factors which shall be taken into account in determining the purpose of a product include the advertising and promotional claims made for the product, its packaging, labeling and display, and the class of consumers to which the composition of the advertising and promotional material is directed."

Delayed Charity Lacks Magic

A friend with a huge income isn't going to leave much of a fortune when he dies. He wants to enjoy the fun of giving right now. He says it will give him no thrills to have his money distributed after his death.

A modern fable by some unknown author helped him to form his present philosophy of giving.

A rich man said to a friend: "Why is it everybody is always criticizing me for being miserly when everyone knows I have made provisions to leave everything I possess to charity when I die?"

"Well," said the friend, "let me tell you about the pig and the cow. The pig was lamenting to the cow about how unpopular he was. Said the pig, "People are always talking about your gentleness and your kind eyes. Sure you give milk and cream, but I give even more. I give bacon and ham—I give bristles, and they even pickle my feet. But nobody likes me. Why is that?"

The cow thought a minute and said: "Well, maybe it's because I give while I'm still living."

Bennett's first assignment was in Greenville, where he remained until 1944, when he went on military leave for service with the United States Navy. He was located in Charlotte, North Carolina, from 1945 to 1950.

Free Management Counseling Service

The Lilly Analysis Service is now being offered for the thirty-first year. Pharmacy owners who utilize this management counseling service will obtain a personalized analysis of their operations. A factual, impartial, comprehensive, and confidential report is invaluable, yet it is available without charge or obligation.

In order to enable owners and managers to make better-informed managerial decisions for more efficient operations, the analysis includes facts concerning (1) the store's present position, (2) its previous position, and (3) a comparison with similar-type pharmacies.

For a free and confidential analysis of your retail pharmacy operations, all proprietors are invited to send their financial statements and prescription records to the Lilly Retail Pharmacy Operations clinic, Eli Lilly and Company, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

Top—North Carolina clubwomen who are affiliated with the N. C. Council of Women's Organizations were recognized for their contributions to traffic accident prevention during 1962 at the annual meeting of the N. C. Traffic Safety Council in Raleigh on January 30th.

Mrs. Graham V. Lawrence of Charlotte (who is a member of the Women's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association) accepted the Council's Governor's Award from Governor Terry Sanford. Mrs. Lawrence is serving her second term as president of the CWO.

"This award was won by the thirty-three affiliated organizations with a big boost provided by Mrs. Peggie Sharpe of Thomasville who served as coordinator of women's affairs for the Citizens Committee for Improved Courts," Mrs. Lawrence said.

The CWO's executive committee voted in May, 1962, to support the program of the Traffic Safety Council in general and the court improvement amendment in particular.

Mrs. Lawrence recently announced the appointment of Mrs. Sharpe by the CWO executive committee to receive and distribute to CWO affiliates information concerning North Carolina's accident prevention efforts.

The organizational meeting was held on February 18 at the home of Mrs. James Casteel of Durham. A constitution and by-laws was adopted after presentation by Mrs. Casteel, chairman of the committee.

The following were appointed to serve with the new officers as committee chairmen: Mrs. Gerald Stahl, project; Mrs. Bob Workman, membership; Mrs. Rogers, hospitality; Mrs. C. C. Cannon, devotional; and Mrs. Floyd Goodrich, publicity.

At the conclusion of the installation service, Mrs. Stevenson presented a gavel to Mrs. Bullock for the use of the club.

Bottom—Officers and members of the recently organized Woman's Auxiliary of the Northeastern North Carolina Pharmaceutical Society are shown as they assembled in Williamston at the Roanoke County Club for their officer-installation meeting.

The Administration in Washington will have to reduce taxes by two billion just to be even. The Social Security increase will remove about this amount from the pockets of employees and employers.

"SCRIPTS" THAT END HAPPILY FOR ALL CONCERNED

The first time you meet some of your customers, they are tense, irritable, barely pleasant. You are not surprised when the prescription calls for a calming agent—VISTARIL 50 mg. capsules #50. When the patients are sent back for refills, they are relaxed, calm, pleasant.

Of course, all this is a familiar story to you. You have seen so many people helped—and their long-suffering families and friends helped, too—by modern drug discoveries like VISTARIL that relax tension, reduce anxiety, and permit a more tranquil reaction. Are your customers aware of the way drug research—as in this case—responds to the demands of modern life?

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

For the first time in recollection the number of students in the School of Pharmacy increased for the spring semester with a net gain of 8 for a total of 272 students, including 11 graduate students.

One of the pleasures of the early months of each year comes from the visit by pharmacists to the School of Pharmacy who bring high school students for interviews toward admission to the University of North Carolina for the study of pharmacy.

Three annual gifts to the School of Pharmacy Library were received at the beginning of the year from regular donors: Mr. I. T. Reamer, chief pharmacist at Duke Hospital for hospital subscriptions and the Kappa Psi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities for two journal subscriptions.

Dr. Claude Piantadosi, Associate Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry, received a grant valued at $1,000.00 from the American Cancer Society. The grant will support animal screening being done in the Department of Biochemistry of promising anti-metabolites synthesized in the School of Pharmacy.

The Drug Symposium with 36 pharmacists registered as students held its first class meeting at Beard Hall on Wednesday, February 13. The class will meet on six consecutive Wednesday nights. This year the postgraduate refresher course is concerned with drugs affecting the gastrointestinal and genito-urinary systems with a faculty from the Schools of Medicine of the University of North Carolina and Duke University. The course was arranged by Dr. M. A. Chambers, Assistant Dean, as Director of Pharmacy Extension.

Health Careers Day was held in Burlington on January 26 and February 2 under sponsorship by the Alamance-Caswell Medical Auxiliaries. Lilly Medical Sales Representative Jack Watts and pharmacists represented pharmacy for the high school students interested in the profession.

Dean E. A. Brecht addressed the members of the Charlotte Women's Druggist Auxiliary on February 12.

"Spotlight on Women," an extension conference sponsored by the North Carolina Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, brought 150 guests to Beard Hall on the afternoon of Saturday, February 16, and Sunday morning, February 17.

The facilities of the School of Pharmacy were used by the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy for its semi-annual practical examination on February 19.

"Transacetalation: The Reaction Pathway" was the title of a paper written by Dr. Claude Piantadosi and three colleagues in the Journal of Organic Chemistry, January issue of this year.

This item may have interest to pharmacists who are growing plants with artificial light. The inside greenhouse at the School of Pharmacy is now lighted with Sylvania Gro-Lux Fluorescent Lamps. The reddish light is scientifically selected to give predominating light bands most utilized by growing plants.

There seems to be a paucity of information about old mortars and pestles. A reference on the wooden variety has been found in "Early American Wooden Ware" by Mary Earle Gould, published by the Pond-Ekberg Company, Springfield, Massachusetts.

Historical Note

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

When I learned a few days ago, that the Department of Archives and History had acquired an "Apothecary Journal" I went to Raleigh immediately to examine the treasure. The volume turned out not to be a journal in the strictest sense of the word but a recording of the prescriptions written by an Edenton physician during the period 1765-67. Prices are not a part of the data nor is the physician's name signed to any of them. He undoubtedly filled the prescriptions himself. (Many physicians way back yonder had an office-apothecary shop conveniently located on their premises.) Nowhere in the book is there the signature of the physician-apothecary. This was a disappointment because I had hoped to add to our records the name of another apothecary who practiced his profession prior to the American Revolution.

The volume, remarkably well preserved, is about four inches by fifteen inches, with almost an inch expansion. Its contents provide valuable historical information. The prescriptions are written on both sides of thin paper, in purplish-black ink. The heavy penmanship is not too legible, particularly since Latin is used throughout the record. Although I could decipher many of the formulas after a fashion, I realized that accurate transcriptions would be impossible for this column. Liniments and vermifuges are called for often and paregoric, ipecac and cinnamon are frequent ingredients. If the prescription was for the head of the household his name appeared in the customary position heading the formula, but if it was for any of his dependents the designations used were "Mrs. Hall's daughter," "Mr. Huss for his mother, Mrs. Davy," "Mr. Anderson's negro boys," "Mrs. Lutons negro girl," etc. It was a source of great satisfaction to me to find the large number—sometimes two or three to a page—of prescriptions for negro slaves—additional evidence that North Carolina owners of slaves took care of them. Many of the prescriptions were for sea captains. Edenton being a busy seaport. There were many refills. Colonel Thomas

Nash was charged, but no price indicated, "for a visit and attendance." Names of persons prominent in North Carolina history appear often—Samuel Johnston, Thomas Jones (numerous refills), Colonel Francis Corbin, the Pollocks—both Cullen and Thomas—the Halls, Mrs. Hornblow, etc.—and most exciting of all there is a refill for Joseph Hewes, a North Carolina signer of the American Declaration of Independence, of a "prescription he had given him in Philadelphia."

John Lawson's History of Carolina (1714) is a wonderful source of information to the historian, containing as it does an "exact description and natural history of the country, "which the Gent. Surveyor of North Carolina, obtained during his 1,000 miles journey through several nations of the Indians." In the section devoted to the "Vegetables of Carolina," I found the following information about Indian drugs.

"The virtues of sassafras are well known in Europe. This wood sometimes grows to be above two feet over, and is very durable and lasting, used for bowls, timbers, posts for houses, and other things that require standing in the ground. 'Tis very light. It bears a white flower, which is very cleansing to the blood, being eaten in the spring with other sallating. The berry, when ripe, is black; 'tis very oily, carminative and extremely prevalent in clysters for the colic. The bark of the root is a specific to those afflicted with the gripes. The same in powder, and a lotion made thereof, is much used by the savages to mundify old ulcers, and for several other uses, being highly esteemed among them.

"Dogwood is plentiful on our light land, inclining to a rich soil. It flowers first in the woods; its white blossom making the forest very beautiful. It has a fine grain, and serves for several uses within doors, but is not durable. The bark of this root infused, is held an infallible remedy against the worms."

To Expand

Lexington's oldest drug store—Lexington Drug Company—will be expanded from its present 1300 square feet to about 2600 square feet. The additional space will come from law offices, now being vacated, which have been located at the rear of the pharmacy for many years.

Lexington Drug Company was established in 1889 and has been operated by the Welborn family since 1898. John A. and W. F. Welborn, Jr. operate the pharmacy as well as a second and newer pharmacy in Park Center on East Center Street.

YOU CAN BE A JACK-OF-ALL TRADES OR...

You can rely on your wholesaler specialist

This is the age of the specialist. The heart surgeon limits himself to operations on the heart; the engineer picks his field and sticks with it.

The same, to a great extent, goes for you as a retail pharmacist. You concentrate on fulfilling the health and beauty needs of your community. You specialize in a field that requires highly perfected skills.

We are specialists, too. We are specialists in ordering and expediting large quantities of drug and proprietary items . . . Specialists in warehousing . . . Specialists in selling and delivery.

We know you are tops in your specialty. We think, based on our years of experience, that we are pretty fair in ours.

Why not let us do your buying and warehousing? We can save you money, worry and time.

We plan for the items you will need and buy them at the best price . . . store them simply and economically . . . deliver what you need when you need it.

We extend you credit. This way, you are billed only once — so you pay with only one check and without complicated paperwork.

We are not "just another" wholesale house. We exist to help and serve you.

We want to earn the right to more of your business. We think the specialist arrangement makes sense — for you and for us.

It happens all the time. A customer sees your Sealtest sign. Comes in. Buys a pint or half-gallon of Sealtest Ice Cream — then, notices and buys all sorts of other things.

This happens because people look for Sealtest. They prefer the quality. They remember local and national advertising. And, they just have to try the latest special flavor.

Filing Prescriptions for Class X Narcotic Preparations

From time to time the question is asked, "What is the proper procedure for filing prescriptions for narcotic drugs in Classes X and M?" Many persons seem surprised when they learn that prescriptions for Class X preparations may not be filed on the "regular" prescription file unless additional records are kept.

Sec. 151.426 (d) of Regulations No. 5 states:

"As to records required in the case of registrants supplying exempt preparations to consumers pursuant to prescriptions issued by registered physicians, the requirement of this section as to records of dispositions to consumers shall be deemed to be complied with if each such prescription shows the name and address of the recipient, the name and quantity of the preparation, and the date of filling, and the prescriptions are kept on the narcotic prescription file."

From an inquiry to the District Supervisor of the Bureau of Narcotics, it is learned that an alternate system of filing prescriptions for Class X preparations might be used. Under the alternate plan, these prescriptions may be filed on the regular file but in addition the pharmacist must enter in the Exempt Narcotic Register the date, name of patient, address, name of preparation, and quantity dispensed as noted on the prescription. Simply entering the prescription number in the Exempt Narcotic Register is not adequate.

For the busy pharmacist, it would seem that the procedure of filing prescriptions for Class X preparations on the narcotic file as outlined in the Regulations quoted above would be the most acceptable manner of keeping the required records.

Class M preparations may be filed on the regular prescription file without further record. Prescriptions for all Class A and Class B narcotic drugs must, of course, be filed on the narcotic file, and under no circumstance may they be filed on the regular prescription file.

In connection with filing narcotic prescriptions, the pharmacist's attention is called to the fact that under the law he is required to cancel all Class A and B narcotic prescriptions with his signature and must date the prescription on the date of filling. The initials of the pharmacist are not adequate to meet this requirement.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

It is expected that 70 students will graduate with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy this year. Pharmacists wishing to employ them may write directly on the basis of information published in last month's issue of the Carolina Journal of Pharmacy. Appointments may be arranged in advance through Dean E. A. Brecht. It is suggested that 4:00 p.m. on afternoons Monday through Thursday work out best for this purpose.

A unique project of outstanding success materialized in connection with National Poison Prevention Week when a special program on the prevention of poisoning in children was telecast and tape recorded on March 6 at WUNC-TV. The program was scheduled by six of the commercial stations in North Carolina with two additional stations scheduling the program for later broadcast. The professional personnel on the program included Dean E. A. Brecht, Dr. Jay M. Arena, pediatrician at Duke University Medical Center, and Tom Burgiss, pharmacist at Elkin. Both of the latter two men are directors of Poison Control Centers and both have made crusades of preventing poisoning in children.

Pharmacists Allen A. Lloyd and Mrs. Pauline O. Lloyd now have a third attractive publication to the credit of their authorship: "History of the Churches of Hillsborough, N. C.—ca, 1766-1962." The publication of 151 pages includes dozens of interesting illustrations.

Miss Alice Noble, research historian, was the author of four weekly historical columns published in the New Bern Mirror concerning a gift, made in 1803, to the University of North Carolina. The columns include sketches of the 16 wives who made the gift of a quadrant to Dr. Caldwell, president of the University at that time, and their husbands.

An attractive gift has been received and is displayed in the Retail Laboratory consisting of three alchemical symbols, potash, aqua vita, and sulphur of the philosophers. It was received from the Robert Wood Johnson Company, Division of Johnson & Johnson. The professional decorations are available commercially and the source can be obtained by request to the School of Pharmacy.

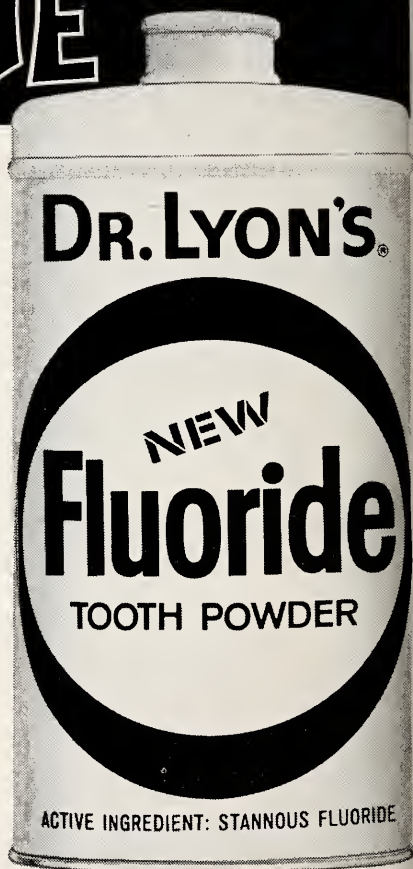

On February 25 and 26 Dean Brecht attended a meeting of pharmacy school deans at the Southern Regional Educational Board Office in Atlanta to discuss graduate programs in pharmacy in the South, particularly for gaining increased support.

The annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation was held in Chapel Hill on March 13. Mr. D. R. Davis of Williamston and Mr. T. M. Stanback of Salisbury were new directors beginning four-year terms. Mr. F. J. Andrews of Chapel Hill was elected president to succeed Mr. Wade A. Gilliam of Winston-Salem. Highlights of the meeting included a report on the success of the annual solicitations by county chairmen, acceptance of the Myra Kinlaw Memorial Fund established by the Class of '62 in memory of their classmate who lost her life in an automobile accident on May 19, and approval of a tentative budget for pharmaceutical education and research at the School of Pharmacy to amount $23,650.

business women, held its preferential tea for new pledges of the Chapel Hill area in the Student Center of Beard Hall on Sunday, March 17. About 40 women attended the meeting which was arranged by Mrs. Barbara Cameron, records and registration secretary in the school.

On March 18 Dean E. A. Brecht, Instructor-Trainer, began the course in American Red Cross First Aid. In addition to pharmacy students a Chapel Hill police captain and a fireman were enrolled in the course.

The students in Dr. Brannon's pharmaceutical preparations course visited the B. C. Remedy Company in Durham on March 19 and 21 to observe large scale manufacture of tablets and folded powders.

Many pharmacists bring prospective students to the School of Pharmacy but an unusual form of transportation was used by C. W. Bynum of New Bern when he brought a prospective student and his father to Chapel Hill on March 20 using his personal air plane.

Student Branches—N.C.P.A and A.Ph.A.

Mr. John T. Stevenson, president of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, was the speaker at the monthly meeting held on March 18. William Foster was named delegate to the Student Chapter meeting in Miami Beach with L. H. Storks, III as alternate.

Rho Chi

Four new members for the national pharmaceutical honorary society were elected at the meeting on February 21: Irving Vestal Boyles, Pilot Mountain; Daniel Guilford Bracey, Red Springs; Carol Elizabeth Clayton, Charlotte; and Robert Michael Brown, Rocky Mount.

Kappa Epsilon

Rebecca Proffitt, third-year student from Burnsville, has been elected president of the local chapter. Twelve students received bids to membership: Elizabeth Clark of Pinetops, Margaret Clayton of Charlotte, Laura Gaitheer of Asheville, Saragene Glass of Norton, Va., Sandra Gilbert of Maxton, Nancy Habrat of Charlotte, Vicky Leggett of Williamston, Elizabeth Paterson of Matthews, Judy Patton of Swannanoa, Mary Sentelle of Asheville, Marsha Taylor of Sneeds Ferry, and Sandra Wood of Graham.

Phi Delta Chi

The Alpha Gamma Chapter held its PDC Weekend on March 15 and 16 with a party at Maultsby's Cabin on Friday night and a banquet and dance at the Holiday Inn in Durham on Saturday night. Lynn McCaskill, second-year student from Ellerbe was honored with the "Best Pledge" award.

Kappa Psi

Reported by FRANK FREEMAN,
Public Relations Chm.

Beta Xi Chapter of Kappa Psi is proud to announce the initiation of the following men: John W. Bailey, Hendersonville; George J. Brooks, Siler City; William S. Cameron, Lillington; Delbert Cranford, Denton; Walter Eason, Rocky Mount; Terry Heatherington, Bessemer City; Charles W. Hite, Jr., Gastonia; J. Winston Hollingsworth, Garland; and James S. Matthews, Clinton.

Beta Xi celebrated its pledge weekend on March 15 and 16. The formal supper and dance took place at Schrafft's restaurant in Durham. The speaker for the evening was Dr. Earl Wallace, assistant professor of Political Science. Dr. Wallace's talk concerned the average man's role in politics. Following this interesting talk everyone adjourned to the dance floor and the music of the Duke Ambassadors. On Saturday afternoon a cocktail party was held. Following the cocktail party another dance was held at the American Legion Hut. The music was provided by The Jammers.

Beta Xi is planning a luncheon for all of its brothers to be held during the upcoming N.C.P.A. convention to be held at Pinehurst from May 12 to 17. The luncheon will be held on Monday, May 13, at 12 o'clock in the Crystal Room of the Carolina Hotel. All alumni present at the convention are urged to attend.

Beta Xi was very fortunate to have visit us on February 24 and 25 Dr. Herman Forsland, Grand Regent of Kappa Psi. A dinner was held at The Pines Restaurant, after which Dr. Forsland gave a short talk to all brothers and pledges. Dr. Forsland informed us that Beta Xi was one of the top chapters in the fraternity.

HISTORICAL NOTES

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

(Editor's note: At Dean Brecht's request, the following report by Miss Noble is published here. It gives an interesting summary of her activities as research historian, a position in the School of Pharmacy supported by the Foundation.)

Report of The Research Historian to The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation—1963

The work of the year has been most interesting and rewarding. Two major accomplishments should be reported.

Soda Fountains

A delightful article in the August, 1962 issue of American Heritage, entitled, "Soda Fountains," and profusely illustrated with colored pictures, precipitated extensive research on "Soda Fountains." The elegant old-time soda fountains of marble and flamboyant art have been relegated to the past, but they should be given a chapter in the history of pharmacy.

An impetus to the research was furnished by the information in American Heritage that the great-grandson of the father of the industry, John Matthews, lived in Chapel Hill and owned one of the earliest surviving "Matthews" fountains. This descendant, Colonel George Matthews, was most helpful with the project, making available to me his valuable files and correspondence about the industry. With this assistance, plus considerable data previously accumulated, the research progressed. As a result, voluminous data has been compiled in permanent form, which includes photographs of men prominent in the soda fountain industry as well as the apparatus they manufactured. I wish to express appreciation to Dean Brecht for making possible photostat copies of important data.

Colonial Pharmacy

The importance of preserving records of pharmacy during the colonial period is manifest. I am completing a "preliminary study" of about forty pages about the era. Authentic data is difficult to find, but the results of searching are rewarding. Much additional study should be made as numerous likely sources of information have not been explored, including the Gentleman's Magazine, of London, a very old publication containing a mine of colonial historical data. The University Library has an almost complete run of the serial, beginning long before the colonization of this country.

Travel

I wish to express my appreciation to the members of the Foundation for providing a travel allowance for my work and to add my profound regret that urgent demands here have denied me the opportunity, except occasionally, to seek elsewhere pharmacy historical data of importance. Therefore, I have not felt justified in asking for travel reimbursement. I enjoyed a most rewarding day in Wilmington studying in the public library and in interviewing historically minded older citizens. I also spent profitable hours in the Department of Archives and History in Raleigh. I attended the annual meeting in December of the North Carolina Society for the Preservation of Antiquities, and I am planning to be present in April for the meeting of the eastern division of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association in Greenville when there is to be an address on "Life in Colonial North Carolina."

General

In editing my monthly "Historical Note" in the CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY, I have tried to make the material not only interesting and informative, but varied in scope. I welcome suggestions not only for this column, but for any historical projects that should be undertaken.

I am indebted to Dean Brecht for the opportunity to talk to his class, designated as Pharmacy 21, on the "History of the School of Pharmacy." I have endeavored to be as helpful as possible to Dean Brecht and to participate to the best of my ability in the activities of the School.

The members of the Foundation are familiar with my continuing projects. These activities have increased in scope and an enormous amount of time is required to maintain and file materials. A great deal more information about pharmacy and pharmacists is carried in the state and national press than formerly. Consequently, intelligent disposition of data has become complicated greatly. Much of my reading and research has to be done at home. For instance, I have gone over carefully the more than 2,000 pages of the recently published North Carolina Lives, and made appropriate notations in the biographical files of the sketches and photographs of pharmacists listed therein—there were quite a few!

I am quite excited that the State Woman's Auxiliary has made possible the acquisition of twelve handsome binders, matching several already on hand. Today (March 13) an anonymous donor provided twelve additional and identical binders. These generous gifts, totaling $100, have made possible the preservation of important records in permanent and dignified files. (Heretofore these records were filed in 39¢ binders.)

millionth prescription was filled during March.

Return to Downtown

What is believed to be the first pharmacy in the state to shift from a downtown location to a suburban shopping center, then return to approximately its same former location is the Standard Drug Company of Winston-Salem.

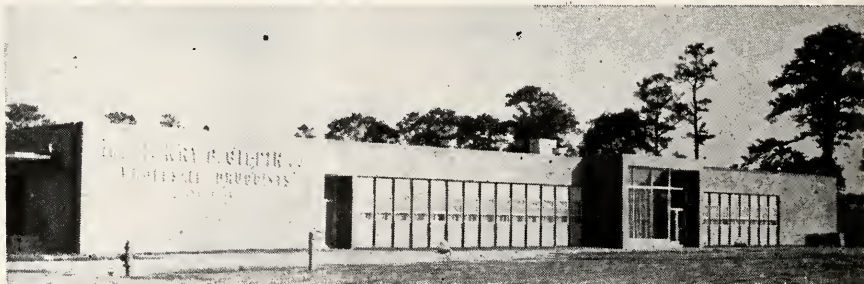

After operating at 504 N. Trade Street, Winston-Salem, for 30 years, Standard moved to the Northwest Shopping Center in the Oldtown section of Winston-Salem in 1961. Now, after two years, the pharmacy has returned to 524 N. Trade Street, only four doors from location it first occupied in 1931.

A major reason cited for return of the pharmacy was the upgrading of businesses that has and is taking place on N. Trade Street. The pharmacy is owned and operated by Andrew J. Strum and Gray Sowers.

Doth the Bell Toll for Thee?

By Edward Wimmer, Vice President
National Federation of Independent Business

James Hoffa stated in a speech, that there will be no place for the small union, small farm or small business, in the foreseeable future. And E. V. Weiss, merchandising expert, predicted that 50 retail giants will account for 50 per cent of the total retail business in the next 20 years. He also stated that during this period, wholesale businesses will disappear almost completely.

The Bell is Tolling for those who believe such a future for the United States will terminate our American way of Life.

The Bell is also Tolling for the American small business and professional man who believes in the Jefferson adage, that it is not to the advantage of a Republic for a few to control the many, when nature has scattered so much talent through all the conditions of men.

John Bunzel, Professor at Stanford University, asserts: "The American small business and professional man claims to be the cornerstone of democracy. There is nothing on the horizon, however, that would indicate he is ready to assume the responsibility of leadership in the preservation of democracy."

Yes, the Bell Tolls, today, for those independents who are ready to assume such a responsibility; the big question: will they be able to hear it—over the din of their television sets, traffic jams, and the sound of their cash registers.

The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy is published monthly by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, Box 151, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription rate: $3.00 a year; single copy, 25 cents. Entered as second class matter July 5, 1922 at the post office at Chapel Hill, North Carolina under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Eckerd Leases Liggett Corner

Liggett's Independence Square operation in Charlotte has been taken over by Eckerd Drugs Inc. The pharmacy has been closed and following extensive remodeling will be reopened by Eckerd.

An official of Eckerd has announced two near-by Eckerd stores located on North and South Tryon Streets probably will be closed. All personnel of the stores will be retained by Eckerd.

The new Eckerd Independence Square store will have 8,500 square feet of space. The two Tryon Streets stores being closed have a combined area of 6,000 square feet.

Liggett opened its Charlotte store in the early 20's. Eckerd's first Charlotte operation was established in 1921. Today the Eckerd chain in the Carolinas-Tennessee includes seven units in Charlotte.

Walker Assumes New Post with Lilly

Emory J. Walker, Jr., manager of the Charlotte district for Eli Lilly and Company since last October, has moved to the company's Indianapolis headquarters to assume a new post as staff assistant to the executive director of pharmaceutical production and production services.

Walker began his career with the company as a salesman in Houston in 1955 and in 1959 moved to Lubbock, Texas, to manage that district.

A native of Woodville, Texas, Walker was graduated from Kirby High School there in 1943. In 1953 he received a Bachelor of Science degree in pharmacy from the University of Houston and became a registered pharmacist in Texas. Before joining Eli Lilly and Company he had been associated with Mading's Drug Stores in Houston for four and one-half years.

Walker is a charter member of the Alpha Tau chapter of Phi Delta Chi, professional pharmacy fraternity.

In Winston-Salem Race

Roger H. Sloop of Bobbitt's College Pharmacy, Winston-Salem, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for alderman in the West First Ward.

Mr. Sloop is a member of the Forsyth County Board of Health and has been active in governmental and civic affairs of Winston-Salem. He is a past president of the Forsyth Pharmaceutical Society.

Drug Costs

The Guilford County Board of Health is seeking additional funds for drugs for indigent patients.

The total appropriation for drugs for the budget year—last July 1 through this June 31—is $31,000. Thus far a total of $26,804 has been spent leaving a balance of slightly over $4,000 for the remainder of the budget year.

Cover Page

The Materia Medica Cabinet pictured on cover page is on loan to the UNC School of Pharmacy by William Bicknell, fourth-year medical student from Boston at Duke University. He and Mrs. Bicknell found it last summer in an antique shop in the New England states and bought it for $50. It came from an attic and is in a remarkable state of preservation.

The handsome cabinet of solid oak has four drawers and measures 28 $\frac{1}{4}$  inches long, 18 $\frac{3}{4}$  inches wide, and 14 $\frac{7}{8}$  inches high. It contains 288 different crude drugs of botanical and animal origin. Each sample is contained in a metal box with hinged cover and glass window in the cover.

This cabinet was made by Parke, Davis and Company of Detroit. Mr. Bicknell learned that the original price was $25. It is the only one of its kind ever seen or heard about by Dean E. A. Brecht of the School of Pharmacy. A more compact type available at a lower price made by Eli Lilly and Company of Indianapolis was more common.

The designation of official status in the United States Pharmacopoeia indicates that this cabinet is about 60 years old, coinciding with the U.S.P. of 1890 which was official from 1893 to 1905. This can be determined by the fact that Aspidosperma is marked U.S.P. and was official only in the 1890 revision, whereas Thuja is not marked U.S.P. because it was official only in the Pharmacopoeia of 1880.

At the turn of the century it was not necessary to attend a School of Pharmacy to become a licensed pharmacist. Many apprentices learned their pharmacy exclusively by experience and study in local pharmacies.

Dispensing Drugs by Machine Poses Many Problems

By GILBERT COLINA*

The dispensing of drugs by means of a machine in our hospitals presents many problems and perhaps a threat to the entire profession of Pharmacy. This by no means indicates that automation is not a progressive step towards efficiency, economy, and the ever important factor "Time Saving." But I personally believe that automation of drug dispensing is not ready to replace the knowledge and skill of our pharmacists, any more than diagnosing an illness for the skilled and learned physician by means of punching a button on a machine, or replacing bedside care of our patients with a robot or some other mechanical device. This may be possible in years to come, but it seems unlikely. Automation definitely has its place and advantages, but not in medicine, nursing, or pharmacy.

It would be most wise for the hospital administrator and the pharmacist in a hospital to explore, evaluate, and properly analyze these angles: Its economical value, its time saving factor, its efficiency in performance, and last, but not least, its legality. It is always possible that these factors appear good "on paper" but prove unsound when put into practice.

As pharmacists who are morally obligated to our profession and to the welfare of our patients, I strongly feel that no mechanical device can perform the duties of a person who has had four or five years of intense schooling in the arts and sciences of Pharmacy. We would not be giving our patients the service they deserve and pay for. Who is to prevent this system from being employed by nursing homes, welfare department clinics, doctor's clinics, etc.? Certainly if it is going to be permitted to be used in the hospitals by the State Board of Pharmacy, how are we going to stop them from using the system in these other places. Then, if it is good for the hospital patients, it should be good enough for those on the outside.

Also there is the possibility of hospitals without the service of a pharmacist employing this system. There is a certain claim that there are not enough pharmacists to go around. My contention is a definite one, that hospital administrators, until just a few years ago, were satisfied with the so-called "Drug Room" and have hesitated to make the position attractive enough for young pharmacists to become interested in practicing in our hospitals. Automation will not alleviate this problem for the hospital but will probably make it worse.

Machine Maintenance

It is rather hard to believe that in an institution having a large number of beds and having to equip the entire institution with the necessary number of machines, that such machines will pay for themselves in a short period of time. Something else to be considered is that after this system is instituted, the boxes, the labels for the boxes, tapes, etc., can only be bought from one company, making it necessary to pay one price with no opportunity to bid or obtain lower prices. The wear and tear of these machines—How will these units be serviced in case of an emergency? How long will it take before they can be repaired?

As for the time saving factor, I would like to quote from the February issue of Hospital Management, page 42: "Another advantage that is claimed for the machine is the reduction of paper work which has to be done by the registered nurse. It is not claimed that the machine will save any nursing hours. All that it claimed is that there will be more bedside hours available to the registered nurse who does not have to spend a great deal of time doing paper work on drugs. There may also be more loafing hours available."

It is then evident that the only time saved by the nurse is that of making out drug requisitions. I must point out that there are many hospitals employing and training ward secretaries to do this type of work, and since the machine does not completely eliminate drug requisitions to the pharmacy during the day or night, requisition then must be written either by the nurse or the ward secretary; certainly these machines will not be able to fulfill this assignment.

As for the Pharmacy Department, where the service begins, there are numerous things to consider. The pharmacist having to assume the responsibility of filling these units will no doubt require a great number of hours, thereby making it necessary to employ additional professional help, simply because one person, the chief or director of pharmacy cannot do justice to his institution, his administrator, and to himself, should he have to do administrative work, teach, continue to have personal contact with the members of the medical and nursing staffs, besides helping his colleagues with the pharmacy's workload, and also have time to see the numerous pharmaceutical representatives during the week.

Will Need Help

I assume that the Chief Pharmacist or Pharmacy Director in a hospital, should such a system be employed, will have to employ at least one or two other pharmacists in order to carry out his work properly and efficiently.

A most important factor that cannot be overlooked is that, with the influx of new pharmaceutical preparations being introduced to our physicians today, hospitals with an open staff and without the services of the Formulary System or a strong Pharmacy Therapeutics Committee, the effectiveness and economy of this system is doubtful. Charles U. Letourneau, M.D., and Kathleen T. McGee make this comment in February issue of Hospital Management, page 42: "It must be noted, however, that the machine cannot operate economically unless the drug formulary is strictly controlled in the hospital." On page 43: "The greatest single factor that makes the system work is the imposition of a strict selected drug directory in the hospital. Without this co-operation from the hospital staff, the system would not work economically."

With this in mind, will the number of daily requisitions from the pharmacy for items not stocked in the machine warrant such an expensive system? Although each unit will accommodate approximately 96 pharmaceutical items, what will happen when the physician prescribes a medication that necessitates compounding or is not stocked in the unit? No doubt the pharmacist on call will have to come to the pharmacy and prepare this medication or have to obtain it from his stock in the pharmacy.

The margin of errors is greatly emphasized by the system, but this can be just as great or even greater with the use of this system of dispensing drugs as with systems generally employed now. Phone orders still will have to be written by the nurse or the ward secretary, the similarity of names of drugs today presents a great problem. Illegible hand-writing still will have to be deciphered by the pharmacist in many instances, or the nurse will have to consult the physician.

There are some of these errors that can be of grave nature, for example, Dicumerol for Demerol, Dolophine for Dolomine, Daricon for Decadron, etc. The margin of error using the addressograph plate is very significant if the nurse using it proves negligent or is in too big a hurry. In regard to the transactions with the business office, if there is a well planned policy and a mutual understanding between the Business Office and the Department of Pharmacy, and with the co-operation of the nursing personnel, the possibility of late charges, credits, etc., will not be a burden on any of the departments.

As for pilferage of drugs, this system like any other is only as good as the persons working with it. If, unfortunately, you have someone employed who is going to resort to this type of thing, this or any other system will be of much help. In a questionnaire of a hospital using the Brewer System, this question was asked. "Is pilferage of drugs controlled or greatly reduced? . . . the answer was, "We never had this problem under the older system. However, with the individual patient drawer and locker carts, control is excellent." Copy of questionnaire St. Ann's Hospital, Anaconda, Montana, Aug. 1, 1962.

The same goes for "Borrowing" of medications from one patient to the other, this takes more than safely locked drawers or a machine. Education plus good supervision will prove to be a better method.

If it is true that we are experiencing a shortage of nurses, this system will not alleviate this trend in any way, for it will be necessary for one nurse on each shift to be available at all times to provide medications to the patients, since she will be the only one having access to the key that opens the medicine drawers. If she has to administer the medications herself, how will the patients receive their medication at the specified time?

Legality of System

In reference to the legality of the system of dispensing drugs by means of mechanical devices, some states have already legalized this system, other have not. The State of North Carolina in a letter received by the writer from the State Board of Pharmacy indicates, that the Board does not find this system to meet the requirements.

It has always been my understanding that any person other than a licensed pharmacist, who is permitted to attach labels with the name of the medication and instructions as to how the medication is to be taken on a bottle or any container will be considered practicing Pharmacy.

It seems to me that a hospital pharmacy that employs a courier service to the floors for delivering the drugs, has an adequate stock available for emergency and routine use in the nursing units, maintains a well-stocked, properly labeled Emergency Night Closet for orders after the Pharmacy closes, and above all, has a pharmacist on 24-hour call, has no need for automation by mechanical devices.

Trends in Pharmacy Operations

A Preliminary Lilly Digest Report for 1962

Both favorable and unfavorable trends have been revealed in a preliminary Lilly Digest tabulation of 1,064 pharmacies.

On the favorable side, sales continued to grow and reached a record $144,727 for 1962. The gain was $5,551, or 4 percent. Prescription revenue rose $1,575 (3.2 percent); all other sales increased $3,976 (4.4 percent).

There was also a growth in the number of prescription orders dispensed. Although the number of new prescriptions filled remained virtually the same, prescription renewals increased 2.4 percent and now account for 51.7 percent of all prescriptions filled. The average prescription charge rose from $3.25 to $3.31.

The year 1962 was not without its problems. Store expenses again rose and now average 31.1 percent of sales. The gross margin remained at 36 percent; therefore, net profit (before taxes) dropped to 4.9 percent. The proprietor's total income (salary plus net profit, before taxes) also declined from 13.5 to 13.1 percent. However, the record sales volume contributed to a rise in the owner's dollar income.

The preliminary figures for 1962 indicate that the inventory rose nearly $1,500—to $25,850. Since its rate of growth was faster than that for sales, total inventory increased from 17.5 to 17.9 percent of total sales. The growth in inventory was also responsible for the decline in the annual turnover rate from 3.7 to 3.6 times.

Good control was maintained over the prescription department investment; it declined slightly. With a rise in revenue, prescription inventory dropped from 17.1 to 16.6 percent of prescription sales. Non-prescription inventory accounted for the entire inventory increase and now averages 18.6 percent of nonprescription sales.

Board Retains Former Hospital Administrator as Consultant

Mr. Sample Forbus, former administrator of Watts Hospital, Durham, has been retained as a consultant by the State Board of Pharmacy.

Mr. Forbus will make a special study of pharmaceutical services in hospitals with particular attention to those hospitals not presently with a pharmacist on the staff. Later, it is anticipated Mr. Forbus will make recommendations for upgrading the quality of hospital pharmaceutical service in North Carolina.

As a member of the N. C. Medical Care Commission, Mr. Forbus has visited and inspected more than 150 hospitals in this state. He is a former secretary-treasurer of the N. C. Hospital Association: is thoroughly qualified for the work which he has agreed to undertake.

Clean up or Lose Permit

A North Carolina pharmacist has been given 30 days to clean up his prescription department, otherwise his permit to operate the pharmacy will be revoked by the Board.

At a recent meeting of the Board, evidence was presented indicating prescriptions were being filled in the pharmacy with total disregard for minimum sanitary conditions.

Another pharmacy, on previous notice, was reported to have remodeled and brought its laboratory up to acceptable standards.

Attend Board Session

A new program suggested by the State Board of Pharmacy and implemented by the NCPA got underway with the April 16 meeting of the Board. Hereafter, representatives of the NCPA and local pharmaceutical groups will attend meetings of the Board in order to familiarize themselves with Board problems and objectives.

J. D. Mitchell, President of the Cabarrus Pharmaceutical Society, and Jesse Pike of Concord attended the April 16 Board meeting. NCPA President Hoy A. Moose of Mount Pleasant and representatives of the Alamance Pharmaceutical Society have been invited to attend the May 21 meeting.

What Goes Into the Price of Your Prescription?

Most people will agree that the price paid for any product rightly includes the cost of materials and the cost of labor.

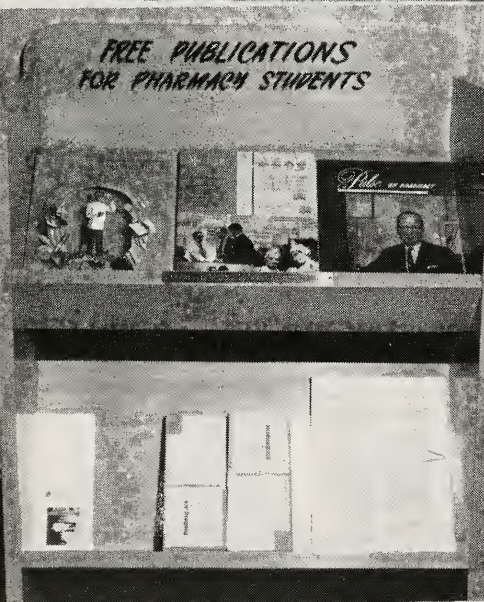

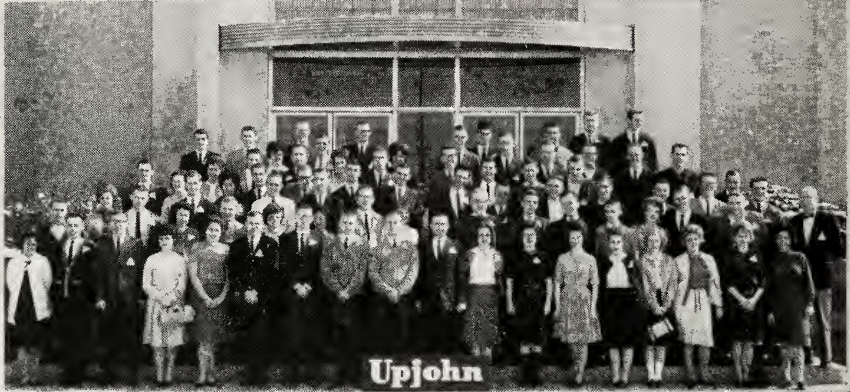

This is true of prescriptions. The price you pay for your medicine includes the cost of the "materials" (the drugs) and the cost of "labor" (the pharmacist's service). The latter reflects the fact that the pharmacist's expert knowledge and professional training are essential in transforming your physician's prescription into a health-giving medicine.

Today, a pharmacist attends pharmacy college for a minimum of 5 years. It has been estimated that he spends more than 10,000 hours receiving his professional training, not to mention a long period of apprenticeship following graduation. Finally, he must pass a rigorous state examination before he is licensed. With this superior professional background, the modern pharmacist is uniquely qualified to protect your health through his professional knowledge.

Your prescription means much more to the pharmacist than a piece of paper. He has studied many years to provide you with the best pharmaceutical service, and you can be certain that, when you hand him a prescription, he focuses all his professional knowledge on it.

Cape Fear Survey

The results of a state-wide survey conducted by the Cape Fear Pharmaceutical Society (a 10-county organization in the Fayetteville area) indicates the services of several hundred additional pharmacists are needed in the state at the present time.

A total of 529 questionnaires out of a possible 1400 were returned. 71 by members of the Cape Fear group; 458 from outside the organization's 10-county area. Since not all questions were answered, the totals in every case do not add up to 529.

Mr. Hubert Rogers of Lumberton and Mr. Cade Brooks of Fayetteville, president and secretary-treasurer of the Society, discussed results of the survey with the Association's executive Committee on April 22. Special sections of the survey have or are being discussed with the Board of Pharmacy, the School of Pharmacy and other interested parties.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

"Reminiscences" has been the continuing title of a series of historical sketches published in each Sunday edition of the Chapel Hill Weekly beginning early last fall and written by Professor emeritus Robert B. House, former chancellor of the University of North Carolina. These sketches constitute a valuable and highly interesting record on the basis of both a personal recollection beginning in 1912 and a fine natural literary style but most of all for capturing and placing for understanding and appreciation of the spirit and talents of men who account for the most substantial part of the greatness of the University and its reputation. Of special interest were the columns of March 30 devoted to doctors Mangum, Manning, Howell, and Beard, each pair of men standing as the guiding spirits responsible for the early successes of the School of Medicine and the School of Pharmacy as the forerunners of the Division of Health Affairs, and on April 7 a whole column devoted to E. V. Howell as the first dean of the School of Pharmacy. Of particular note in the latter column was the recognition of the warm personal cooperation between the School and the whole profession of the state.

The Women's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association has been responsible for valued gifts now received at the School of Pharmacy in the form of two fine linen table cloths with lace edges for use in student and faculty receptions and 12 handsome red binders to display and preserve valued historical records developed and assembled by Alice Noble, research historian.

A rare relic of former pharmacy has been displayed in the form of a Materia Medica collection made and sold by Parke, Davis & Company in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The cabinet is owned by Mr. William J. Bicknell, forth-year medical student at Duke University. A picture and further details will be given elsewhere in this journal. It would be interesting to learn further details from pharmacists who remember using such an aid in preparing for state board examinations.

The registration of 36 pharmacists guaranteed the success of a postgraduate refresher course which met for the first of six weekly classes in Winston-Salem on April 4. The class was organized by Dr. M. A. Chambers as Director of Pharmacy Extension. The faculty was obtained from the Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

The subject for the Symposium is the pharmacology and therapeutics of hypnotics and sedatives, tranquilizers and psychomotor stimulants.

On April 4 E. A. Brecht, M. A. Chambers, and Alice Noble journeyed to Tarboro at the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Havens for the estate of E. H. Ward to receive any and all items of interest for the museum of the School in the closing of the pharmacy, E. V. Zoeller and Company. Further details are given in this month's Historical Notes and a record of the carload of valuable museum pieces will be given later after classification and records can be completed.

The Chapel Hill Pharmaceutical Auxiliary and Pharmacy Wives held a joint meeting in the Student Center of Beard Hall on March 26 in the form of a kitchen shower to provide much needed equipment for the kitchen of the center and a white elephant sale to raise funds. The auctioneer for the sale was Mr. James Heavner, announcer for local radio station WCHL.

Thirty high school students with three teachers from Orrum, North Carolina, were interested visitors on a tour through the School of Pharmacy on March 29.

Dr. George Cocolas attended the meeting of the Division of Medicinal Chemistry of the American Chemical Society at Los Angeles on March 31 to April 3. He presented a paper, "The Synthesis of 3-Alkylglutamic Acids," at the Walter H. Hartung Memorial Symposium, based on research with Yoon Kim, former graduate student now at Michigan State University. Among many papers in this special program, others were presented by former graduate students majoring in pharmaceutical chemistry at the University of North Carolina: Dr. John Andrako, Medical College of Virginia; Dr. Dominick A. Coviello, University of Illinois; and Dr. J. P. LaRocca, University of Georgia.

Dudley Taw, Vice-president of Revlon and Director of the Sales Department, addressed the pharmacy management class on April 5.

Jack Watts, a representative for Eli Lilly & Company in the Burlington area, continued his personal recruitment effort for more students in the School of Pharmacy by discussing careers at Western High School, Elon College, North Carolina.

Dr. Claude Piantadosi and graduate students Vilhjalmur Skulason and Michael Frosolono attended the annual meetings of the Federated Societies at Atlantic Beach during the week of April 16. It is impressive that there were 17,000 registrants at this meeting composed of teachers and research scientists in the biological fields including biochemistry, bacteriology, physiology, pharmacology, etc.

The ladies of the Mortar & Pestle Club, the auxiliary newly reorganized in Durham, toured through Beard Hall on April 17. After a greeting from Dean Brecht and signing the guest register, Dr. Bryant Fitzgerald acted as guide for the group.

Student Branches of the A.Ph.A and N.C.P.A.

Dr. William S. Apple, Executive Director of the American Pharmaceutical Association, was the distinguished speaker for the meeting on April 22. After a prepared address emphasizing the urgency for first emphasis on professional pharmacy, Dr. Apple participated in a lively question and answer period for 40 minutes which was impressive in showing his understanding of current problems. The audience included a number of pharmacists from central North Carolina. The address was sponsored by the Student Branches and the Rho Chi Society.

The graduating class attended a dinner at the Carolina Inn as guests of the Durham-Orange Drug Club, Wake County Pharmaceutical Society, and North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association earlier in the evening. This joint sponsorship was intended to introduce the members of the class to a first meeting of a local drug club and show the value of such membership in completing total professional activities.

Rho Chi

The initiation dinner was held at the Carolina Inn on March 26. Four new members were initiated into the Xi Chapter of the national honorary pharmaceutical society: Vestal Irving Boyles, Pilot Mountain; Daniel Guilford Bracey, Red Springs; Robert Michael Brown, Rocky Mount; and Carol Elizabeth Clayton, Charlotte.

Phi Delta Chi

The Alpha Gamma Chapter acted as host for the regional meeting of the southeastern area in Chapel Hill on April 12 and 13. There were 50 delegates in attendance representing 7 chapters, the two most distant being located at Weatherly, Oklahoma, and Austin, Texas.

Of special note in the regional meeting was the presence of Dr. William J. Sheffield, former student at the University of North Carolina for the degrees of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy, Master of Science, and Doctor of Philosophy, as the national representative for the fraternity. He is vice-president for the national organization and a professor at the University of Texas.

Historical Note

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

I felt very sad when I heard that the Tarboro drug store, operated for many years under the name of E. V. Zoeller and Co., was closing its doors. The pharmacy was a landmark in the Edgecombe town for a long time and one in which North Carolina pharmacy took pride. There has been a drug store on the site (403 E. Main St.—formerly St. George St.) since before the War Between the States. It was owned then by Dr. Augustus H. McNair. From its threshold in May, 1865 Tarboro citizens watched the Northern forces take possession of the town following the surrender of General Robert E. Lee. In 1877, shortly after graduating from the New York College of Pharmacy with the degree of Ph.D., young E. V. Zoeller returned to his home in Tarboro and took over the management of the McNair pharmacy, which his father had just purchased from Dr. McNair. A few weeks later he formed a partnership with Dr. L. L. Staton under the firm name of Staton and Zoeller. The firm continued operation under this name until Dr. Staton's death in 1921. On January 1, 1922 E. Harvie Ward, a graduate of the State University and a nephew of Dr. Zoeller, became an active partner in the business and the store was designated thereafter as E. V. Zoeller and Co. After Dr. Zoeller died on October 29, 1944, his nephew continued the operation of the drug store until his death on December 31, 1962. Then came the announcement that the pharmacy would discontinue operation.

The School of Pharmacy never had stauncher friends than Pharmacists Zoeller and Ward. Their many gifts to the library and museum of invaluable historical worth are evidences of their loyalty and interest. Mr. Ward's three children inherited this affection for the School. Shortly after their father's death they presented to the School the entire rich collection of historical material in the pharmacy. Immediately thereafter Dean Brecht and Assistant Dean Chambers made arrangements to go to Tarboro to accept the generous gift—and I asked that I be allowed to go with them.

It was a sentimental journey for me—I just had to visit the old store once more and in some sort of way pay my respects to two pharmacists whose friendship I treasure greatly. The day was a memorable and interesting one, although the visit had its emotional side for me. The pharmacy was a modern one in every respect, but it almost seemed like a museum too—there were so many historical treasures. We came back with the car loaded with priceless items—but that is a story for Dean Brecht to relate—my purpose in writing this historical note is simply to pay tribute to two long-time friends and to a highly regarded pharmacy that now passes into history. (Some day I hope to write biographical sketches of Pharmacists Zoeller and Ward which will include enumerations of their achievements and their contributions to their profession.)

Once upon a time I compiled a list of the ten oldest drug stores in the State—that is the pharmacies that were still operating under the management of descendants of the original owners. Only three of these drug stores are still in existence—Horne's Drug Store (1860, 1865), of Fayetteville; Robinson's Drug Store (1870), of Goldsboro; and Hall's Drug Store (1879), of Oxford. There are a few drug stores located on sites "where there have always been drug stores" but the original ownerships have passed into the hands of "non-descendants." Among these are the Goldsboro Drug Co., of Goldsboro—long owned by the "Millers," Hood's Drug Store, of Smithfield, now operated by McDonald Davis, and McDowell's Drug Store, of Scotland Neck, formerly the E. T. Whitehead Co. There may be others. If there are such omissions, please correct me!

Even Hugh Sconyers of Hollingsworth is not this well informed: Candymaking goes back before the 20th Century. Egyptian hieroglyphics show that in 1566 BC, confections of honey, flour, almonds and figs were being sold in the market places. In 1911 the candy bar was introduced for the first time in major league ball parks (chocolate-coated marshmallows and peanuts).

Why would anyone pay 10¢ more for this children's aspirin?

Aspirin is aspirin—to anyone but a youngster. To him, the little things—flavor, color, sweetness, aftertaste—seem very important indeed. Especially if he isn't feeling well.

This new children's aspirin from Abbott is just a little more pleasant for him to take.

The difference can be expressed in one word: Aluminum. Most aspirins are formulated as an acid. The Abbott aspirin is presented as the neutral aluminum salt. Result: (1) Stability is enhanced (2) The cherry flavor is protected (3) There is little or none of the acid stomach upset often caused by ordinary aspirin.

This flavor advantage was very clearly pointed up in a series of tests at a major children's hospital. The new, cherry-flavored tablets were preferred 3 to 1 over the other leading children's aspirins.

Finally, there's the safety cap—probably the best one in your store. Difficult for children to remove, the snap-action cap is easily opened and closed by adults once they know the secret.

Suggested price for this new product: 49¢ for 50—about a dime more than other well-known brands. But see if a parent ever switches back—once you've sold the one with aluminum.

Prescription Prepayment

"One of the most dramatic developments in the near future will be the spread of prescription prepayment." So stated William S. Apple, executive director of the American Pharmaceutical Association, at the 110th annual meeting of the professional organization, Miami Beach.

He went on, "The public wants it and the public will get it regardless of the obstacles placed in the way by the government or anyone else."

Dr. Apple commented on press reports which indicate the Justice Department's antitrust division "looks with a jaundiced eye on a prescription prepayment program developed by a carrier after prior consultation or discussion with people or groups in pharmacy." He further pointed out that even "the most innocent type of discussion on a vital public program can be somehow woven into the web of events when the finger is pointed at you."

Dr. Apple continued, "Physicians have been talking and acting in this area for the past two decades" and he noted recent reports in the press which said physicians were meeting to discuss the new fee schedule on the Blue Shield plan.

"I am aware," he added, "of the differences between the position accorded medicine and pharmacy by many people in the government and, unfortunately, too many people in the public generally . . . The physician who hires a technician to handle his x-rays and who limits himself to the professional service of reading them, apparently can meet with other physicians who do the same thing to discuss fees based on 100 percent of costs . . . There must be something wrong with the way we practice pharmacy and the way we talk about our profession which makes it possible for judges to find that we are engaged only in a business of handling and selling commodities."

Challenging the pharmacists to face up to their professional standing, he concluded, "We are bombarded with advice that any change—except in the direction away from our profession—represents day-dreaming. Who can assure us that our goals are attainable or unattainable until many more among us have the courage of their professional convictions to give them a real chance. There are going to be changes in our area of the health field at a time when we are facing unparalleled problems. Is it possible that we are missing the boat by our desperate efforts to swim against the tide of change?"

W. S. Wolfe Named Pharmacist of the Year

W. S. WOLFE

W. S. Wolfe, named Pharmacist of the Year, will be honored at a testimonial dinner in Mount Airy on Thursday night, June 27.

As Pharmacist of the Year, Mr. Wolfe will receive the NCPA's Mortar and Pestle Award. The dinner and award ceremony is scheduled for the private dining room of Reeves Y.M.C.A., beginning at 7 P.M.

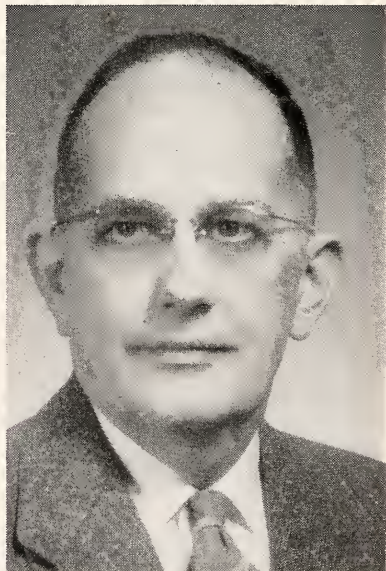

A number of Mount Airy citizens will appear on the program. His pharmacy record will be cited by Roger McDuffie. NCPA President Hoy A. Moose will preside.

Dinner tickets ($3) may be obtained from the NCPA or locally from either the Mount Airy Chamber of Commerce or Merchants Association.

The American Pharmaceutical Association came south for its two nominees for president of the Association, 1964-'65: H. C. McAllister, Secretary-Treasurer of the N. C. Board of Pharmacy, Chapel Hill, and J. Curtis Nottingham, former managing director of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association, now owner-manager of two pharmacies in Williamsburg, Virginia.

Both nominees have been closely identified with A.Ph.A. activities in recent years. Mr. McAllister served as chairman of the A.Ph.A.'s House of Delegates at the just-completed Miami meeting. Mr. Nottingham has headed a number of A.Ph.A.'s more important committees and is a member of its Council.

Both pharmacists are well known throughout the state. At one time, Mr. Nottingham was the N. C. representative for Owens and Minor, with headquarters in Rocky Mount. Hence, the winner of the election is bound to be N. C. orientated.

A Brief Look at the Pinehurst Convention

The 3-day Pinehurst Convention, May 12-14, brought together more than 600 persons, including pharmacists, members of the Association's two affiliated auxiliaries, their wives and special guests. Class reunions, award, business and entertainment sessions with time out here and there for a number of special events kept the delegates busy surveying past and future developments in the field of Pharmacy.

The convention got a break from the weatherman. The meeting opened with the thermometer in the low 70s. Contrast this with the Bankers, who immediately preceded the NCPA Convention when a heat wave was of more concern than a past due note.

Pinehurst is billed as the "Playground of the South." At times it lived up to its billing as some of the business sessions came off second best when in competition with the section's five golf courses. Still, business was transacted, officers nominated and installed, which is the primary reason for the annual sessions.

A number of the Convention events (awards, resolutions, officer nominees and installation as well as President Stevenson's address) appear in this issue of The Journal. Later, in successive Journals and the Yearbook, the entire Pinehurst meeting will be presented in detail.

the independent retailer started to die

The last wholesaler went out of business April 9, 1962. Over one year ago the greatest distribution vehicle ever developed made his last shipment. Yes, the era of the wholesaler was through—the magic pipeline was dead.

During the past year every retail druggist in America went big league—became a direct buyer. By now, over 50,000 retailers have learned the Myth of Direct Buying—have learned that it's a "Helluva Long Way to Kokomo."

Here's a rundown on what's happened:

The telephone call that used to bring instant service from your wholesaler has been changed to long distance calls (at your expense, of course—what else can you do)—or long delays in letter writing and longer waits for merchandise.

The extra discount for buying direct is no longer an advantage—one week after the last wholesaler gasped his last breath, direct selling manufacturers were forced to cut their discounts—their cost of doing business skyrocketed. Thousands of invoices—and thousands of smaller shipments.

There's a new system now—in order to get that big discount you've got to buy more than ever. You can't pay bills with merchandise and your credit problem is mounting daily.

Despite the biggest inventory you've ever had—you're losing more sales than ever—you run out of a size—you run out of a style—you don't have (and can't get quickly) that slow-moving number for that big-buying favorite customer.

Your big competitor is getting bigger by the day—he can afford the inventory you can't. And day by day you are losing more and more of the regular customers that kept you alive.

Yes, the last wholesaler went out of business and the independent retailer died.

(Aren't you glad that everything here is just fantasy and that you can keep it that way? Let the manufacturer manufacture—but buy everything you can from the expert in your business. Buy direct from your wholesaler! The business you save may be your own!)

PHARMACY—part of your health team

It is not by chance that your pharmacist has the proper drug ready for you when your physician prescribes it. The American people today enjoy a level of health far, higher than ever before, and a large part of it may be attributed to the dramatic advances made by the "health team": pharmacist, physician and prescription drug manufacturer.

We call the complex process by which a drug moves from manufacturer to patient "the miracle of drug distribution." The teamwork of prescription drug manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assures that you will receive the medicine you need. This miracle of drug distribution—the fact that the medicine you need is in your community pharmacy when you need it—is a fact one reason why pharmacies are today's best bargains.

PROMOTE YOUR PHARMACY

Use these advertising mats from SK&F

We'll send you, free of charge, 5½" x 8½" mats with ample space for your pharmacy's name and address.

From the mats, you can make inexpensive reprints to be given away as handouts (enclose them with prescriptions or use them as bill stuffers). You can also run the mats in your local newspaper as advertisements for your pharmacy.

If you would like to receive any or all of these mats, simply drop a postcard to Smith Kline & French Laboratories, Philadelphia 1, Pennsylvania. Promote your pharmacy—promote your profession.

3 A.M. in a pharmacy...

It is 3 A.M. in a community pharmacy. The street is dark, the night air is in the pharmacy. Why? Because the pharmacist is faced with an emergency.

He receives an urgent telephone call at 2:50 A.M. Mrs. Baker, a neighbor from across the block, telephoned to Mrs. Kavan's physician, reporting that he's "gone" and that she had no one else to call for the medicine prescribed by her physician.

The pharmacist himself quickly reached for the... located the original prescription, the files, telephoned to Mrs. Kavan's physician, prepared and delivered the medicine. Soon, Mrs. Kavan was breathing normally again, and a restless night had been averted.

Next, you are faced with your patients at 3:00 A.M. with colds and influenza as part of the common seasonal flues. The day, a pharmacist goes to college for the year, spends many hundreds of hours at approximately, and must have a rigorous state examination before he is licensed. He must know thousands of dollars worth of health products you need every day—as well as those you may need only once or a lifetime.

It was not by chance that the pharmacist had the proper drug ready for Mrs. Baker when she needed it. We call this miracle process by which a drug moves from manufacturer to patient "the miracle of drug distribution."

The teamwork of manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assures that you—as well as Mrs. Kavan—will always receive the medicine you need. This miracle of drug distribution—the fact that the medicine you need is ready when you need it—is a fact one reason why pharmacies are today's best bargains.

NAME OF YOUR PHARMACY

A pharmacist may reach for a bottle of salicylic acid powder only once a year, yet he always has this heart medicine on hand to treat an emergency case.

Approximately 300 pharmaceuticals account for 75% of all prescriptions. Nevertheless, the average pharmacist stocks more than 1,000 drug items so that he will be able to fill the majority of the less common prescriptions.

In addition, your neighborhood pharmacist can be prepared to answer questions from doctors about drug dosage, strengths and available forms and uses. To acquire this knowledge, he spends long hours supplementing his professional education by keeping abreast of the latest pharmaceutical developments.

Because the pharmacist keeps more than 3,000 pharmaceuticals on stock and because he is well informed about them, you can be sure that the prescription your doctor writes will be filled accurately and when you need it. Your pharmacist—like doctors, government drug manufacturers and drug wholesalers—is a vital member of the team that makes today's life-saving medicines available to you.

The APhA Public Education Awards

recognizing the best individual and organizational efforts to tell pharmacy's story to the public

Each year, the American Pharmaceutical Association recognizes the individual pharmacist and organization whose public education programs are judged most effective in demonstrating the direct relationship between the pharmacist and better community health. The awards consist of a cash prize of $500 and an expense-paid trip to the Annual Meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association, where the presentation is made.

This year's entries (17 individual, 9 organizational) were judged by William L. Blockstein, chairman of APhA's public relations committee, and a panel of four experts in the fields of pharmacy and public relations: Edward J. Doherty, John T. Fay, Frank Pinchak and Ward B. Stevenson.

Sponsored by Pfizer Laboratories, the American Pharmaceutical Association Public Education Awards are America's highest recognition of achievement in pharmaceutical public relations.

A brochure outlining the rules for prospective entries in 1963 is available on request from: American Pharmaceutical Association, Division of Communications, 2215 Constitution Ave., N.W., Washington 37, D.C.

ORGANIZATION: Northern California Pharmaceutical Association

The Northern California Pharmaceutical Association used radio programs and public-service spot announcements, and an hour-long television documentary. Editorials, news stories and weekly articles on pharmacy were placed in newspapers. A speakers bureau was also used to good effect.

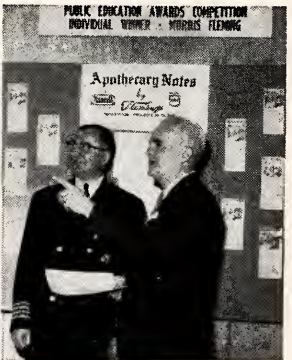

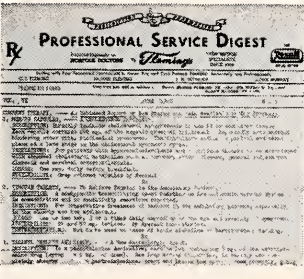

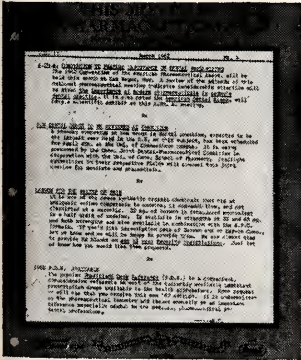

In their joint statement the judges stated, "The winning entry was comprehensive, well-planned, and capable of producing measurable results. Of great importance is the dual nature of the program, being first directed to the members of the organization in an attempt to motivate and inform them properly."

Exhibits were displayed at the 1963 Annual Meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association, May 12-17, Bal Harbour, Florida.

INDIVIDUAL: Pharmacist Morris Fleming, Norfolk, Nebraska

Mr. Fleming's program included weekly newspaper advertisements—Apothecary Notes—covering such topics as diabetes, oral polio vaccine, tuberculosis, poison prevention, drug cost and research. In addition, he published a Professional Service Digest for the physician, and This Month in Pharmaceuticals for the dentist.

Of this entry, the judges said, "The winning entry offered a single and direct approach with measured impact to well-defined publics. Applying individuality to established techniques, this program for a community pharmacy achieved clear results with economy of effort."

Current Problems Discussed by President Stevenson in Pinehurst Convention Address

To stand before you today as president of the N.C.P.A. is indeed one of the greatest honors and privileges that has ever been afforded me, and I shall cherish this honor and privilege the remainder of my life. It has been an education and a great pleasure. I also realize the many things I have not accomplished, especially when I look back over the road traveled by many of the past presidents.

I would like at this time to express my deep appreciation to all the committee chairmen and their committees for their wonderful cooperation and the excellent job they have done in fulfilling their assignments. It is unity and teamwork such as this which has made this organization one of the finest of its kind in this great land of ours; and I could not pass on without recognizing the great work and efficiency of our most dedicated Secretary W. J. Smith and his wife and co-worker, Vivian. There is no doubt in my mind that they are the two great cogs in the wheels of the N.C.P.A., which enables it to stand out in all the state associations as one of the greatest and most efficient.

I would also like to express my thanks and gratitude to the Woman's Auxiliary, and the most wonderful and efficient group that any association could ever be blessed with. It is the hard work and understanding which this Auxiliary has shown through the years that has helped to make the N.C.P.A. the strong organization which it is today—May God bless them and may we never be without them.

Let us also be mindful of another organization which means much to the NCPA. That organization is the TMA, a group that we have come to love as we work along with them. They have been so very generous for many years in furnishing entertainment and fellowship at our conventions.

I would like to speak briefly as to our profession and please never underestimate the fact that we are professionals. Though we are attacked on every side and our professional banner sometimes looks a little bedraggled, and though at the retail level we sometimes find ourselves in an unhappy state of upheaval where there is price-cutting and a revolution in distribution, (and our public relations are not the best or what we would have them be), let us remember to act as professionals, think as professionals, and talk as professionals, so that the pharmacist-patient relationship can be measured in increased prestige. I do not know of a better example of this than the article in the January CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY titled "In Search Of An Answer." If you did not read this article, I recommend that you do so. Acts of this nature show the humanitarian and professional phase of our vocation.

It is my firm belief that the greater percentage of the public can and have learned that there is more to a prescription than the price charged, especially when it concerns the health of a loved one. Pharmacists must have an appreciation of this fact. This could be expressed in additional services which a dedicated pharmacist can and should

Attorney General Rules RE Office Dispensing

An opinion, with far-reaching implications, has just been issued by the Attorney General of North Carolina. On May 20, 1963 the Attorney General ruled that a physician could not legally delegate to a nurse or office attendant the task of compounding and dispensing or selling at retail drugs or medicines.

Here is the opinion in detail:

Dear Mr. McAllister:

In a letter dated May 3, 1963, you write as follows:

"G. S. 90-71, among other things, makes it unlawful for any person not licensed as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist to compound, dispense or sell at retail any drug, medicine, or pharmaceutical preparation either upon the prescription of a physician or otherwise. This section exempts the legally registered practitioner of medicine in the 'compounding of his own prescriptions.' Under this section, may a physician delegate to an office attendant, nurse or other person not a licensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist, the authority to 'compound or dispense or sell at retail' medications either under the physician's supervision or in his absence?"

"An earlier opinion from the office of the Attorney General (copy enclosed), the principle of which was confirmed by the Supreme Court (248 N. C. 134) spoke to this subject, but it appears that this opinion was not based on a specific set of circumstances such as those posed above.

"In administering this law, the Board has considered the acts of 'compounding' and 'dispensing' as referring to the pharmaceutical procedures of compounding and dispensing and to be different from the nursing act of administering. According to our understanding, compounding means the taking of two or more measured ingredients and, by simple or complicated means, depending on the nature of the ingredients, fabricating them into a single preparation. Dispensing, while including compounding, also includes the act of making proper identification of the drug as to its specifications (e.g. name, strength, modifications, and dosage form) as ordered by the physician, packaging it, either from a bulk container or as a result of compounding, in a proper container so as to adequately protect light, heat and moisture liable substances, and labeling the container with all required information. 'Administering,' on the other hand, means the taking of a dose of a drug from a properly identified and labeled container and giving it to the patient by the route of application as prescribed by the physician. This is a nursing act and is not covered by this section of the statute.

"The question has now arisen concerning practices involving the furnishing of medications to patients in certain doctors' offices and clinics which requires a more definitive answer as to what is meant by the exemption in the statute 'Nothing in this section shall be construed to interfere with any legally registered practitioner of medicine in the compounding of his own prescriptions . . .'"

The Attorney General's opinion referred to by you, which is hereby reaffirmed, reads as follows:

"I think that G. S. 6667 [now G. S. 90-71], relating to the above subject, is very plain upon its face. The law was intended to protect the public against ignorance, inexperience, or a want of scientific knowledge on the part of those who compound prescriptions, many of which might have a fatal result except for the exercise of the requisite knowledge and skill on the part of those who compound them.

"My interpretation of the law is that it means to have such prescriptions compounded by a licensed pharmacist or, in his absence, only by a licensed assistant pharmacist, who may conduct or have charge of the drug store in which the prescription is filled. It is true that the section provides that a prescription may be filled under the immediate supervision of a person licensed as a pharmacist or assistant pharmacist. It is thought that this provides the necessary protection inasmuch as the compounding, in so far as the person so compounding is concerned, is purely a mechanical matter under the immediate eye and direction of the pharmacist.

"In the case that you put, the physician attempts in his absence and in the absence of any licensed pharmacist or licensed assistant pharmacist, to delegate this delicate task to a person who has not exhibited the necessary experience and skill to a competent examining board and obtained his license to compound prescriptions. As I have stated, the danger of injurious consequences to the public is obvious, and it is this that the statute is meant to guard against.

"I answer your inquiry, therefore, that no physician can, in this manner, give any unlicensed pharmacist or assistant pharmacist any such power."

To answer your specific question, the exemption in the Statute, "Nothing in this section shall be construed to interfere with any legally registered practitioner of medicine in the compounding of his own prescriptions. . .," permits the physician to dispense drugs to his own patients to meet the immediate need of that patient in the absence of usual pharmacy facilities (or in areas where pharmaceutical facilities do not exist) or in emergencies where drugs or medicines can not be acquired from the usual traditional sources. In my opinion, the exemption in the Statute applies only to physicians. I can find no exemption to the Statute which would permit the office nurse or attendant to compound, dispense, or to sell at retail drugs or medicines as an aid to the physician under his supervision or otherwise. Under such circumstances, consistent with the opinion of the late Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell, hereinbefore referred to, and which is supported by the Supreme Court in North Carolina Board of Pharmacy v. Lane, et al., 248 N. C. 134, the physician could not legally delegate to a nurse or office attendant the task of compounding and (dispensing or selling at retail drugs or medicines. This, of course, should not be construed to mean that the Statute would in any way interfere with the nurse or attendant administering drugs to the physician's patient or in carrying out such other treatment procedures as the physician might legally delegate to such nurse or attendant.

"PHARMACY AND THE NEW FRONTIER"

I feel that the Seminar held in Chapel Hill October 10th was indeed a success. With excellent speakers it was a day of activity, with much accomplished in new ideas for the betterment of Pharmacy and its allied fields. The NCPA Extension Committee, under the direction of its chairman, M. A. Chambers, is to be commended on the success of their planning.

On October 9th, the day preceding the Seminar, there was held a joint meeting of the NCPA Executive Committee, the Board of Pharmacy, and some of the faculty members from the School of Pharmacy. These meetings were most enlightening and provided a better understanding of the problems which confront these three bodies. I should like to see such a meeting as this held every year.

Under the guidance and supervision of Dean Chambers, a series of symposiums have been completed, and one is underway now in Winston-Salem. Another is planned for Charlotte in the Fall. The symposium sponsored by the Northeastern Pharmaceutical Society and held in Williamston last October is the one with which I am most familiar since I am a member of that organization. It was most successful, and since I feel that there is much which can come out of these symposiums that will benefit professional pharmacy, I hope these will be held in all areas of the state.

CONSOLIDATED PHARMACY FUND

I would like to bring to your attention the importance and the potential of the Consolidated Pharmacy Student Loan Fund. This fund can mean very much to pharmacy students who find themselves in financial difficulty; and with the need for pharmacists today we cannot afford to lose even one student due to lack of funds. I would like to see every drug club in the state make this fund one of their projects for 1963. Just $100 placed in this fund would make them a sponsor. I do not know of a more worthy pharmacy cause, and one which can be accomplished with so little investment on the part of each group. Robert B. Hall, chairman of the Consolidated Fund, will explain this project more fully during his report later in the sessions.

PRESCRIPTION CHARGES

One of the most sensitive areas of public relations we have to face is the prescription charge. As you are well aware, Senator Kefauver and the anti-trust cases have focused the public's attention on this all-important phase of our professional operation.

First, a definition: A prescription order plus the prescription medication and the professional activities connected therewith, result in a charge for professional services and not a prescription "price." We have been so wedded to "price" that it may be difficult for us to adjust to "charge" for professional services but it is best to avoid terms such as "prescription pricing" and various other uses of the term "price" in combination with or in reference to the word "prescription."

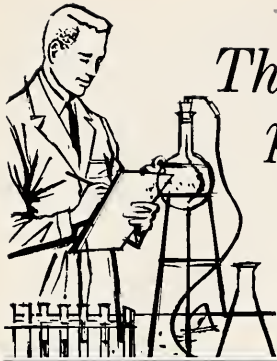

Public sympathy or opposition will largely be determined by your thinking and talking on prescription charges. If you do not have and desire suitable copy, write the NCPA. It is available without cost.

Increasingly the prescription fee concept of handling prescription charges is gaining momentum in this and other states. In the recent survey conducted by the Cape Fear Pharmaceutical Society, three out of every four pharmacists participating in the survey favored the prescription fee method of computing prescription charges, although few of these pharmacists have the method in use at this time.

Perhaps no other single factor in the operation of a pharmacy evokes more comment than the professional charge for prescription service. This is understandable, especially in view of the headlines generated by publicity-seeking legislators. Then, too, we all have our quota of the one-a-year prescription customers who complain, if for no other reason than to exercise their American rights to express themselves.

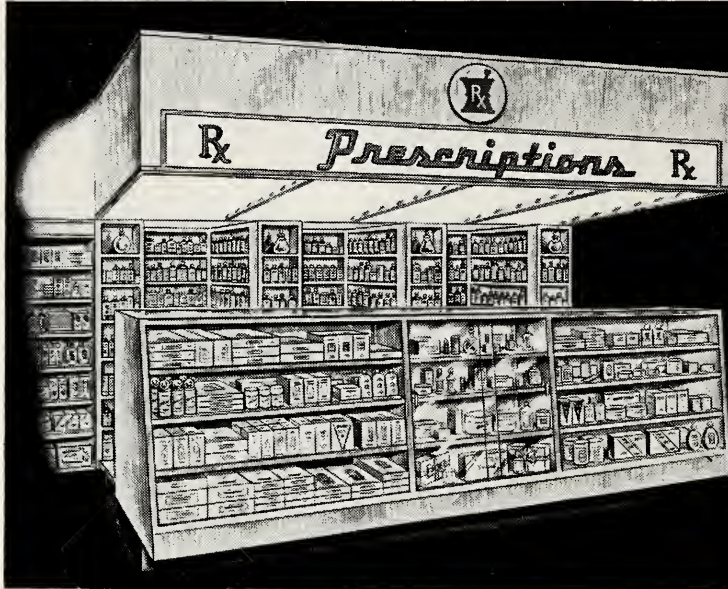

This reminds me of the recent instance when a man was rushed to a physician's home, gagging from a fishbone stuck in his throat. The physician deftly removed the bone, whereupon the patient asked, "How much do I owe you, Doc?" The physician replied, "I'll gladly settle for one-half of what you were willing to pay before the fishbone came out."

PROFESSIONAL SKILL

Another area of public relations to which we need to devote greater attention is the comment we hear, that the pharmacist "only pours and counts." Admittedly, the percentage of compounding required today is far less than it was ten and twenty years ago, but modern day medication does require greater skill and far more intensive knowledge of therapy than ever before. As someone has so ably put it, "Pharmacy today requires less hand work but more head work.

As medication becomes more potent and more specific, and the area between effective dose and lethal dose narrows, the professional responsibility of the pharmacist gains in importance.

There is no question but what more well-informed pharmacists must speak up and out, otherwise others will do this for us. As a sample, this paragraph lifted from the April 8, 1963 issue of Advertising Age, which appeared as part of a 2-page article headed "Is the Traditional Pharmacist as Dead as the Dodo?" written by E. B. Weiss. I quote: "Clearly, the drug outlet never rates so low in public esteem as it does today—and those silly campaigns run by some groups of druggists, in which they put halos around their heads, are hardly calculated to impress intelligent people. Nor can the drug outlet any longer run freely to state legislatures to freeze out competition. Politicians keep a closely-attuned ear to the public mood and they know that today it just isn't politically wise to kowtow to the druggist."

We cannot lose sight of the fact that Pharmacy is essentially a professional service. It will remain at that high standard so long as we continue to recognize it as such. No special discount can take the place of our personal interest and attention; this personal service and attention will long be remembered when the price tag will have soon been forgotten.

If we are not prepared and willing to work for the welfare and liberation of our profession from exploiters, dispensing doctors, department stores and super markets, then we should abdicate before all of our ideas and ideals have been shattered.

Pharmacy needs and wants only those who are prepared and willing to pull their weight and energies for the good of Pharmacy and the image for which it stands. At this point I would like to extend my congratulations to the State of North Dakota, to its Governor and its state pharmaceutical association, for its being the first state in the Union to enact legislation requiring that the majority of the stock of a retail pharmacy be held (owned) by a registered pharmacist or pharmacists. This is a courageous and magnificent step forward to improve the image of professional pharmacy, and I hope that many more states will have the courage and foresight to enact such legislation. I hope it will not be too far in the future that we will have the opportunity to congratulate and thank this great state of North Carolina for such a law. It is not too late; it can be done, and it must be done. Let us be ever mindful of the fact that people do not fail; they simply stop trying. For the sake of Pharmacy let us not be guilty of this.

FEDICARE VS. KERR-MILLS

Our best solution and the most effective answer from an economic standpoint to adequate medical care for our aging population is the Kerr-Mills implementing legislation now under consideration by the General Assembly of North Carolina. Our two able pharmacist-legislators will discuss this in greater detail this morning.

Assuredly, Medicare is not the answer. The National Health Service Act became effective in Great Britain 17 years ago, providing that country with a completely socialized medicine system. As a basis of comparison, we have some questions: Why is it that children born today in the United States have a longer life expectancy than English children? And why is the average stay in American hospitals one-half that in English hospitals? The answer is simple—we do the right things, not the wrong things, under the free competitive enterprise system.

LEASED DEPARTMENTS

We commend the Board of Pharmacy for its action in insisting that leased drug departments be conducted in accordance with the provisions of the State Pharmacy Act. We also concur in the stand the Board has taken in regard to physical separation of professional operations from operations totally unrelated to Pharmacy. Certainly the Board is discharging its function to the public when it establishes procedures which protect the public from careless handling of potent medication.

Aggressive action by the Board of Pharmacy has met with success, particularly since the regulation by the Board is a sane and sensible approach to the distribution of drugs through outlets normally classified as non-pharmacy.

The new competitive element which has been and is being introduced is not without its pitfalls. Note these headlines taken from the press within the past 90 days:

Masters Discount Chain Files Bankruptcy Petition. This is the same outfit which opposed Fair Trade and which placed itself on record as being in favor of the American system of "going broke" on below-cost selling.

Sidney Hillman Union Clinic Pharmacy Shuts Down.

Largest Rack Jobber in Philadelphia Fails.

And this letter which may be sign of the times. I quote: "During the past several years we have operated a drug department in one of our ladies ready-to-wear stores. We are now aware that these two distinctly different operations are not compatible and we believe it to be in our best interests to close this department. Please forward the necessary credit return authorization forms."

QUALITY STABILIZATION

It is encouraging to note the current Quality Stabilization Bill is making progress in Washington. Hearings now underway will place the legislation in position for a favorable vote, both at the committee level and later, by both the Senate and the House.

The proposed legislation now has a total of 26 Congressional sponsors—11 Senators and 15 Representatives.

A personal letter to your Congressman is indicated at this point. A brief message in support of the bill, on your letterhead, will be far more effective than "canned" messages, group telegrams and the like, which are pretty well ignored by most legislators.

One of the major supporters of the Bill says this is the ninth inning for this type of legislation. If it fails of passage this time, little hope is held for passage of similar type legislation in the future. Hence, we face a challenge—an all-out effort now in support of the Quality Stabilization Bill.

PRICE VARIATION

One of the Association's major objectives—a one-price-to-all policy—is beginning to be adopted by some of our major pharmaceutical manufacturers. Recently the Ciba Pharmaceutical Company announced it had established a single price schedule for retail pharmacy and hospitals, based on list prices.

Due to price differentials extended to non-profit and tax-supported institutions, increasingly we have seen the diversion of certain medication from such institutions into retail channels. This has been and will continue to take place so long as special price treatment is accorded any major segment of the distribution system.

Price variations for the same package and quantity purchase also create problems for retail pharmacy, particularly from welfare officials who cannot understand why the prescription charge of the practicing pharmacist in a retail pharmacy has to be at its customary level. And this is understandable when viewed in the pricing policies of some manufacturers. We can see little justification for the 100%, 200%, and up to 1000% variation in manufacturers' prices of identical products to different customers.

Faintly, on the horizon, we see a solution to this problem of price variation. Let us hope other manufacturers join the parade that has been initiated by Smith, Kline & French, Ciba, and others.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

ASSOCIATION FINANCES

On Wednesday morning, after the close of this convention, your NCPA Executive Committee will meet to discuss business transacted at this convention, and to plan for the new Association year.

A major matter for discussion this year will be the revised financial status of this and other state pharmaceutical associations. Through the income derived from servicing Veterans Administration prescriptions, state pharmaceutical associations have been able to carry on their programs in the face of increasing costs of materials, labor, etc. With this loss in revenue, however, all of us are having to take a good look at our finances. In North Carolina, our annual V. A. income has been approximately $12,000 in recent years.

In anticipation of this loss, retrenchment had already been started in Chapel Hill. Our staff at the Association offices has been reduced to 3, all of whom receive less salary remuneration than they could command elsewhere. Recently, however, printing costs for the CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY, as well as miscellaneous printing, have gone up—and of course, you know what has happened to postage rates.

Therefore, your Executive Committee is faced with finding increased revenue if the Association is to continue to function. One source is the enrollment of new members, but there we have a limit—for there are only so many pharmacists registered in North Carolina—and we already enjoy one of the highest percentages of membership among state associations.

So, later in our session, Mr. Edwin R. Fuller, By-Laws Revision Chairman, will be asking of you whether you are willing to undertake a revision of dues. Currently, the pharmacist-employee is paying $10 a year—less than $1 per month. The pharmacy-owner is paying $25 a year—just a few cents over $2 per month. Mr. Fuller will be asking whether or not you are willing to make a little larger investment in your profession.

A BRIEF LOOK INTO THE FUTURE

We have no crystal ball but an analysis of where we have been and the successes and failures along the way may be sign posts for the future. While we have a tendency to over-emphasize our failures, Pharmacy has many things in its favor. It still has the confidence of the public. It still fulfills its mission as a vital cog between the physician and the patient. Here in North Carolina we can take pride in the fact that one out of every 30 prescriptions filled in the United States is a prescription filled by a North Carolina pharmacist.

We can expect a continued decrease in the number of new drug products being marketed, due to the 1963 Drug Law Amendments. From an inventory standpoint this appears desirable, but we should keep in mind the increase in prescription volume during the past 20 years did not result from the drugs that had not been introduced by the pharmaceutical manufacturers. The future well-being of Pharmacy is directly related to the scientific advances in our laboratories and the translation of these advances into products which eventually are utilized by the medical team for the control and cure of disease.

Further encroachment of the Federal Government in the practice of Pharmacy and the distribution of drugs is anticipated. The details are beginning to be spelled out in bills now pending in Congress. If we fail to do a satisfactory job at the state level, most assuredly the job will be done at the Federal level.

Payment for prescription charges will be altered. Already we see third party, such as insurance firms, union groups, and the like entering the picture. Several prepaid prescription plans are on test and if the success of the Blue Cross hospital-surgery coverage can be taken as any criterion, then the pharmacist of the future will be dealing with a numbered, card-carrying customer.

Slowly but surely the marginal pharmacy with low prescription volume and gross sales will disappear from the scene. The trend has been underway for some years and will accelerate in the years ahead. During the past decade, pharmacies in the $50,000-$75,000 volume decreased by 10% but those in the $100,000-$300,000 category increased by 85%.

Is there a simple blueprint for action to meet these challenges? None that we know of, but here are a few reminders that we need to keep constantly in mind:

- Do everything you can to enhance your professional image.
- Maintain customer loyalty. Do this through service. We advertise "service to the sick"—let us make the slogan more meaningful.
- Be a part of your community, not only as a professional but as a community-minded citizen. Share your experience and your time with your fellow citizens.
- Project a positive public relations image. Someone has defined the term—"do good and tell others about it."
- Support your local, state, and national pharmaceutical associations. If you don't agree with their policies, your views will be heard and your active participation will be welcome.
- Finally, don't be too concerned with competitive forces, new or old. Keep your house in order, treat your customers as you would have them treat you, and get set for a future that will be rewarding in terms of ability to serve and recognition for a job well done.

As a parting thought—the future of Pharmacy rests in the hands of the individual pharmacist, and that is exactly where it should be. May we be ever faithful to our obligation.

Editorial from Goldsboro News-Argus

And did you notice the medical tinge of the winner for aldermen? The high man (Tom R. Robinson) is a pharmacist. The fifth man is a pharmacist (W. S. Gibson, Sr.) and one physician was a winner. This points, wouldn't you say, to the fact that Goldsboro likes the medical and medicine men highly?

How to Create a Positive Image

As you survey the packing boxes in your new home, and wonder where to put your belongings, also consider where to put yourself in the community. For in order to become a happy citizen as well as an asset to your professional husband, you will need to make an effort to become established in the city of your choice. The day of moving into a new town, getting your house in beautiful order and then sitting in the parlor awaiting callers, is over and done with—for which we should offer praise.

The key word in settling into a new community is JOIN. Your church is a wonderful place to get acquainted. Choose your church and participate in its activities. Many civic and social organizations are open to all "interested women." Become an "interested woman," at least for your first year or two in town. Join these groups and you'll learn to know your neighbors much more quickly. After the settling-in period you may want to disassociate yourself from some of the organizations which interest you least, and concentrate on those which hold a special appeal for you.

Of course, you can find many reasons for staying home and not "joining"—you won't have a baby-sitter, and you won't have time with all the moving chores, etc. But your very happiness and peace of mind depend on your making special efforts to get acquainted.

Really, your lack of a baby sitter can be an opening wedge toward getting acquainted. Ask the lady next door, after introducing yourself in a friendly manner, if she can suggest names of baby sitters. Or call the minister's office, tell him you're new in town and ask for help in obtaining someone to stay with Johnny. Of course, the church doesn't offer this service, but usually the minister is a source of good information, and you have, by contacting him, made known your presence in town.

For some it is extremely difficult to overcome the shyness of putting in the first appearance at any meeting. Many times we hear, "But I don't know how to start a conversation with a stranger"—and this can be a real problem. As a new person in town, it is perfectly proper to ask "Where do you live?" Upon getting an answer you can easily lead the way into further conversation by commenting, "I understand that is a beautiful section of town" or "the homes and gardens are most attractive in that area." This gives you stature for you are then considered to be a discerning person. Or—when you learn if there are children or grandchildren, this opens many doors of conversation. Resist the desire, however, to talk about your children; at these early meetings talk more about the other person's children. You'll be appreciated.

Another "get acquainted idea" is to ask for information about shopping. Almost every woman likes to talk about her favorite stores and shops. (If you're feeling a little lonesome when John leaves for work, this can provide a good reason for telephoning a new acquaintance.) You can also phone to ask for cooking information even though you might have umpteen cookbooks on your shelf. This is flattering to the person asked, since it presumes that you know she has a reputation as an unusually good cook.

As a pharmacist's wife, you will have to honor his confidences by never relating any "news" from the pharmacy. He builds his reputation day by day through his professional demeanor. Be an extension of this; conduct yourself as a professional man's wife.

In Chapel Hill informal dress is the order of the day. Many towns are much more conservative. Until you know your new community, take extra special care with your grooming. Even for a dash to the grocery, wear a dress, and take a minute before leaving home to check the mirror for needed lipstick, hair rearrangements, etc. You'll be making an impression, good or bad, in all your early contacts. So make this extra effort; you won't regret it.

But all of these suggestions lead to the one goal of becoming a part of your community, and they can be easily summed up:

1. Identify yourself with your community through church affiliation and civic organization membership.
2. Be friendly and interested in new acquaintances.
3. Respect confidences.
4. Give the community an image of you as the wife of a professional man—and SMILE! Even a sourpuss usually smiles back. Good luck.

Historical Notes

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

I could be present for only the Sunday sessions of the Pinehurst convention, but every minute that I was on hand was a delightful experience—seeing friends, listening to the citations for pharmacists, and looking at the well executed exhibits were all pleasant. The high spot of the trip, however, was the Twenty-Fifth Reunion of the Class of 1938 of the U. N. C. School of Pharmacy. I had been looking forward to the occasion ever since I was invited to be an honor guest last February. I have kept in close touch with these boys and girls ever since they graduated on that thunderstorm June afternoon in 1938. Celebrating a silver anniversary is real history and so I am devoting my column this month to recording my reflections on the 1938 celebration.

The principal event was a delightful luncheon at The Carolina. It was hard to believe that twenty-five years had elapsed since the class left Chapel Hill. Time has dealt kindly with each of them and they were as interesting and delightful as they were when they were young and gay and had so much fun dancing to the inspiring music of Freddy Johnson's orchestra. Freddy himself was there, arriving by plane from his home in Atlanta almost at the zero hour having been delayed by weather conditions. He was full of a trip he and his wife had had to Miami the week before, his four children, and golf.

It was quite thrilling to realize that all of the twenty-two 1938 graduates have continued the practice of pharmacy through the years with the exception of Joe Hal Cameron, who is a physician in Gastonia. All have been associated with N. C. pharmacy except E. C. Sutphin, who has been at his original home in Galax, Va. since graduation. The above statement includes the four girls, all of whom were on hand at Pinehurst. Blanche Bullock Wyatt (Mrs. Archie), who is with the Wilson Drug Co., of Wilson, was accompanied to the reunion by her three handsome sons and husband. Ernestine Barber Lynch and Husband Herman W. came up from Dunn, where they operate the successful Hood Drug Store. Jean Bush Provo (Mrs. J. W.) was largely responsible for the success of the reunion. She is associated with the Prescription Shop on the Wake Forest Road in Raleigh, and has a son at State College, who will transfer to Oklahoma in the fall to study veterinary medicine. June Bush West (Mrs. Stanford) is with the Professional Pharmacy in Raleigh. The "Bush twins" are most active in civic and professional affairs and have been awarded memberships in the North Carolina Academy of Pharmacy.

Robert Neal Watson, of Sanford, "super ladiesman," is making an enviable record as a member of the Board of Pharmacy. At the business session of the N.C.P.A., following the reunion luncheon, he presented the citation honoring Roger A. McDuffie upon his retirement from the pharmacy board after thirty years of service. He then rushed to the Durham-Raleigh airport just in time to board a plane for the A.Ph.A. convention in Miami, where he was scheduled to appear on the program. H. G. ("Pop") Price, Chief Pharmacist of Rex Hospital, Raleigh, attended the A.Ph.A. convention also and consequently missed the reunion.

Phil Link, of Reidsville, is just as full of pep as in days of yore. He not only operates one of the State's top-notch drug stores, but finds time to devote to his hobby—art—winning many prizes. He was given a citation at the convention for his artistic window displays. The Barney Woodards, operating the successful Woodard Drug Store, of Princeton, received congratulations on the fact that their son is a second-year student of pharmacy at the University. During the luncheon Earl Uel Capps, of Ahsokie (owner of two drug stores), told us that his son and namesake was entering the U.N.C. pre-pharmacy course this fall. The C. E. Pages (Page Drug Co.), of Henderson, are quite excited that they are grandparents. Their daughter, "Pat" Butler, has a son, named for his father, Thomas Lee. Patricia graduated in pharmacy from the University in 1962 and is now living in Spartanburg, S. C. where her husband is engaged in business. The Jimmy Creeches (Creech's Pharmacy), of Smithfield, added much to the occasion. Jimmy is most active in Smithfield's civic affairs and is making quite a name for himself. It was the first time I had seen W. F. Lynch in years, though he lives in Durham where he is associated with Eckerd's Drug Stores on W. University Drive.

There was a note of sadness to the occasion due to the death in the past few months of three members of the class: Tom Bruce, of Hot Springs, Tom Linn, of Landis, and I. C. Whiteley, of Morganton.

In addition to those previously mentioned the following could not be on hand in Pinehurst: J. W. Allen, of Charlotte, who had written he would be present; C. C. Oates, of Hendersonville, who sent a letter of regret, W. C. Simmons, of Winston-Salem, and J. M. Russell, of Asheville.

There is much we would like to include in this story about the children of the "thirty-eighters." The proud parents brought pictures of these future pharmacists which were admired greatly. There was much reminiscing, many pictures were taken—mostly by the Pages and Creeches—and everybody had a grand time, which they will remember for many a day!

Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Bostic announce the birth of a daughter, Laura Dawn, on April 9, 1963. The Bostics are living in Beulaville, North Carolina where Russell is owner-manager of Bostic Drug Co.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Lazarus of 501 Wisconsin St., Spindale, N. C. are announcing the birth of a son, Joseph Leon Lazarus, May 9, 1963 at Spartanburg General Hospital, Spartanburg, S. C. Larry is with Spindale Drug Company.

Marriages

Historic St. Thomas Episcopal Church of Bath, North Carolina, was the setting Sunday, May 12th, for the marriage of Miss Sylvia Meade Bonner and Lt.(jg) Macon Theodore Jordan, USCG.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shaw Bonner, Jr. of Greenville. Upon graduation from the UNC School of Pharmacy she served her pharmacy internship at Duke University Medical Center and served as a staff member there for two years. The couple will make their home at Miami Beach, Florida.

TOMORROW IS NOW—TODAY

George F. Archambault, the immediate past president of the American Pharmaceutical Association, predicts unlimited opportunities as health practitioners for the pharmacists of tomorrow "if our educational system properly prepares them."

Dr. Archambault points out "if our practitioners are to be of maximum service as drug consultants, they must have a first hand opportunity to study the dramatic effects—good and bad—of modern drugs on human beings. The pharmacists of today can pioneer these new opportunities and our Association and its state and specialty affiliates will help them."

Dr. Archambault urges pharmacists to provide adequate quality pharmaceutical services for nursing homes, small hospitals, homes for the aged and chronically ill and military personnel.

"Pharmaceutical service in these institutions," Dr. Archambault explains, "is a responsibility we can no longer ignore. Dual standards of pharmacy service in these United States cannot be tolerated. We do have quality service from our community pharmacies for those injured and ill who are attended at home and for those in the large hospitals. But, in over half of the hospitals of the nation (over 3,500), in many geriatric and chronic-disease institutions and, yes, too, for many of our military—officers, enlisted men and dependents—American medicine and pharmacy cannot be proud of the service. In these places, openly, we note individuals practicing pharmacy, handling potent medications, who are not licensed graduate pharmacists. Let us put a stop to this dangerous double standard of patient care in the area of medication usage."

The ex-A.Ph.A. head emphasizes: "tomorrow is now—today—and this new tomorrow rings with promise, for it heralds pharmacy's decade of decision."

ASP Meets in North Carolina

The annual meeting of the American Society of Pharmacognosy will be held on the campus of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, July 18, 19, and 20. This meeting will precede the meetings on that campus of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy and the Teachers' Seminar sponsored by the AACP and the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education.

Dr. Jack Wier of the UNC School of Pharmacy is in charge of local arrangements for the ASP meeting.

Tax Tip for the Month

When you enter into an installment loan, because you accept a customer's note or you borrow from the bank, you can designate in the note which payment will include the interest. If your profit fluctuates, you can have the interest expense or income applied to the year that gives you the best tax advantage, depending whether you are debtor or creditor.

This and hundreds of other tax tips are fully explained in SMALL BUSINESS TAX CONTROL. Send $9.00 to the Association for a year's subscription to this monthly bulletin of tax saving ideas.

Heads Two Groups

Forrest Matthews of Raleigh was installed as president of the Traveling Men's Auxiliary of the NCPA at the recent Pinehurst Convention.

A few weeks later, he assumed the presidency of the Wake County Pharmaceutical Association, of which he has been an active member for a number of years.

Mr. Matthews is a pharmacist, a graduate of the UNC School of Pharmacy and a medical service representative for the William S. Merrell Company.

Other officers of the Wake group are Pete Barbrey, president-elect; Bill Jordan, vice-president; Jerry Price, secretary; and Bill Brannau, treasurer.

Dayvault Passes 500,000 Rx Point

June 10 was a red letter day for Dayvault's Drug Store, Lenoir.

On June 10th, Dayvault's filled Prescription #500,000. No special publicity was given to the occasion but Frank Dayvault gave the lucky Rx customer a $50 bond.

Dayvault's has on file more than a million prescriptions but Mr. Dayvault counts only the half million which are Dayvault prescriptions. The others came through merger (Crawford's or fire (Ballow)).

A WHOLESALER'S VIEWPOINT

H. H. MONTGOMERY, Manager, Bellamy Drug Co., Wilmington

The topic assigned to this panel for discussion affords tremendous areas to be developed. When first requested to participate in this discussion, I was most eager to accept. However, after considering it, I felt like the fellow waiting for the hotel bar to open. The hotel phone operator received a call one morning about three A.M. and the voice on the other end said, "Lady, what time does the bar open?" She replied, "The bar opens at noon tomorrow," and hung up. About every hour thereafter the same voice, getting more thick and impatient each time said, "Lady, what time does the bar open?" After a time the operator became quite irritated. At about eight o'clock upon hearing the same voice again, the operator said, "Sir, I've told you time and time again the bar opens at noon. You cannot get into the bar until noon."

He replied, "Lady, I'm not trying to get in. I'm trying to get out."

Currently, the drug industry is beset with numerous problems. Manufacturers, Wholesalers, and Retailers are all trying to find individual as well as collective answers. Just a few weeks ago the oldest wholesale drug house in America discontinued its wholesaling phase of its business. Kefauver inspired disruption of the drug industry has caused some peculiar maneuvering by some manufacturers. The public image of pharmacy has been impaired. Under counter kickbacks, price-cutting, pooled buying, and diversion have become far too prevalent. Controversial issues include quality stabilization legislation, physician owned pharmacies, and mail order prescriptions. Discount operations muddy the water, and confusion exists over co-op advertising. Each one of these issues alone could be discussed for hours.

Comments by Mr. Montgomery at the Pinehurst Convention during panel discussion—Current Practices, Problems and Suggested Solutions.

Despite some confusion and a limited amount of chaos in our industry, I'm no prophet of gloom. I'm an optimist, and I foresee progress, continued expansion, and further prosperity for the independent drug retailer and wholesaler. The wholesale drug business depends primarily for success on the independent retail drug store. Therefore, we're vitally interested in the success of independent retail pharmacies.

In a recent address, E. B. Weiss, vice-president of Doyle, Dane, and Bernbach said (quote) "Within the next 5 to 10 years, 90% of the total retail drug volume will be divided between corporate chains, and various types of Independent drug chains, with the true independents handling only 10% of the sales." (unquote) with this statement I heartily disagree. Though food retailers have gone in this direction, drug retailers need not follow.

Here are some facts to support my views. In 1939, almost twenty-five years ago, total drug sales totaled $1,505,000,000. Drug

The APhA Public Education Awards

recognizing the best individual and organizational efforts to tell pharmacy's story to the public

Each year, the American Pharmaceutical Association recognizes the individual pharmacist and organization whose public education programs are judged most effective in demonstrating the direct relationship between the pharmacist and better community health. The awards consist of a cash prize of $500 and an expense-paid trip to the Annual Meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association, where the presentation is made.

This year's entries (17 individual, 9 organizational) were judged by William L. Blockstein, chairman of APhA's public relations committee, and a panel of four experts in the fields of pharmacy and public relations: Edward J. Doherty, John T. Fay, Frank Pinchak and Ward B. Stevenson.

Sponsored by Pfizer Laboratories, the American Pharmaceutical Association Public Education Awards are America's highest recognition of achievement in pharmaceutical public relations.

the 1962 winners!

ORGANIZATION: Northern California Pharmaceutical Association

The Northern California Pharmaceutical Association used radio programs and public-service spot announcements, and an hour-long television documentary. Editorials, news stories and weekly articles on pharmacy were placed in newspapers. A speakers bureau was also used to good effect.

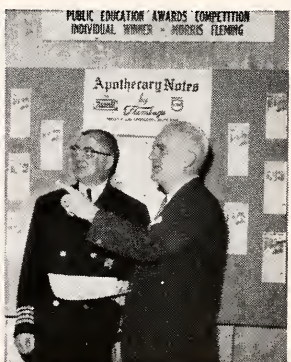

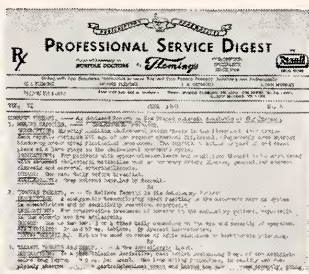

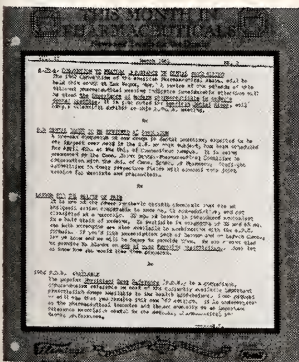

In their joint statement the judges stated, "The winning entry was comprehensive, well-planned, and capable of producing measurable results. Of great importance is the dual nature of the program, being first directed to the members of the organization in an attempt to motivate and inform them properly."

Exhibits were displayed at the 1963 Annual Meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association, May 12-17, Bal Harbour, Florida.

INDIVIDUAL: Pharmacist Morris Fleming, Norfolk, Nebraska

Mr. Fleming's program included weekly newspaper advertisements—Apothecary Notes—covering such topics as diabetes, oral polio vaccine, tuberculosis, poison prevention, drug cost and research. In addition, he published a Professional Service Digest for the physician, and This Month in Pharmaceuticals for the dentist.

Of this entry, the judges said, "The winning entry offered a single and direct approach with measured impact to well-defined publics. Applying individuality to established techniques, this program for a community pharmacy achieved clear results with economy of effort."

The Board in Action

Harry Barringer of Concord, vice president of the NCPA, represented the NCPA executive committee at the June 19 meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy.

During the one-day business session, which was held during the regular June examination period, members of the Board took action on an extensive agenda.

A previous case (unauthorized person filling prescriptions) was to be settled on basis of a consent judgment. It was reported the non-pharmacist involved had given his legal firm a bad check.

Another case involved a reported refilling of more than 100 Rx Legend prescriptions without the prescriber's knowledge. The SBI is investigating.

A pharmacist on probation put in his semi-annual appearance. Three members of the Board arranged to personally inspect a pharmacy listed as being sub-standard.

Definitions of "compounding" and "dispensing" were discussed by the Board. It was decided some further work was needed before adoption.

A pharmacy intern appeared before the Board in connection with experience in Conn. Final decision deferred subject to further information from that state.

SBI report on practical nurse alleged to have stolen drugs from a hospital.

Report that more than 200 prescriptions had been filled in absence of a pharmacist. Restraining order will be sought.

Investigation of a hospital with prescriptions on file and no pharmacist reported. Nurses apparently filling prescriptions. Evidence to be obtained.

Joint Meeting Held

Members of the Executive Committee of the NCPA met with Dean E. A. Brecht of the UNC School of Pharmacy and President Robert Neal Watson of the State Board of Pharmacy on June 12.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss some mutual problems. The Association's executive committee will schedule a similar meeting in the early fall at which time the entire Board of Pharmacy will be invited to attend.

It was agreed that some of pharmacy's most pressing problems could best be solved through mutual understanding and cooperation.

REPORT OF EXTENSION COMMITTEE

The question is sometimes asked as to what is meant by the term 'Extension'? At the University of North Carolina this term has been defined as follows: "In the Division of Health Affairs the Extension activity includes all those efforts on the part of the faculty on or off campus which conserves or improves the health of people through influencing the patient, the health practitioner or their common environment." If this definition is accepted, it gives considerable latitude in which the Extension Committee can function. Of the three components to the definition—the patient, the health practitioner, the common environment—the Extension Committee has restricted itself to those activities which relate to the health practitioner. These activities have consisted of programs designed to stimulate the intellectual growth of the practitioner by reviewing basic principles and by introducing new developments which will enhance his professional, social and economic strength. With the passage of time, additional experience on the part of the committee, and with greater interest manifested by the pharmacist, it is hoped the committee activities will be expanded to include the other two components of this definition.

The committee met shortly after its appointment to outline plans for the year and is happy to report a year of progress in which we have met with both success and disappointment. We have been primarily concerned with providing postgraduate type information to the greatest number of pharmacists in the most convenient manner. Two methods, radio and regional seminars, seemed to be available to us. Radio offers the better way to reach the greatest number of pharmacists on a regular basis in the easier manner. A weekly educational program could be taped and broadcast over the University FM Radio station. Each program would be broadcast twice weekly for participants within the listening area. This would give the pharmacist an opportunity to arrange his schedule so that he could hear each program at least once. The tape would be used at other institutional radio stations so that a state network would be established; practically all pharmacists could take advantage of these postgraduate programs. Advanced information concerning each program would be sent to the participant so he would be able to follow the lectures. A series of 28 lectures on drugs and their actions was outlined but unfortunately the idea had to be abandoned this year as we could not locate instructors for the course.

As an alternative we decided to have seminars on a geographically regional basis even though we knew difficulty would be encountered in securing teachers. A survey of Western North Carolina indicated insufficient support at the time for a refresher course. A similar survey in Eastern North Carolina indicated interest and support but the summer was the wrong time of year.

A seminar for hospital pharmacists was held in Chapel Hill in early September. This program had a two-fold purpose: to familiarize the pharmacist with the tests for commonly used drugs and to develop his ability for the evaluation of quality control. Regional interest was created as we had Pharmacists not only from North Carolina but also from Virginia and South Carolina. The faculty at the School of Pharmacy gave instruction in the course.

In October, a meeting entitled "The Pharmacy and The New Frontier" was held in Chapel Hill. This was intended to give pharmacists an opportunity to obtain a better understanding of historical national events leading to current developments in government, particularly those effecting pharmacy, and to place in better perspective pharmacy's relative position in a changing world of medical care. The role of the government in health care, the effect of government regulations on drug trade, public opinion toward health care, medical service and pharmacy practice in England, the image of pharmacy, the effect on pharmacy of the changing pattern of medical care and sociological studies in the professions were examined and discussed. Our speakers were obtained from other departments in the University and from the Drug Trade press.

In October and November, a symposium on drugs affecting the central nervous system was held in Williamston, North Carolina. 23 pharmacists attended these five Wednesday night sessions which were given by instructors from Duke University.

We had a registration of 36 for the six Wednesday night sessions which were held in Chapel Hill in February and March. This symposium was based on drugs affecting the gastrointestinal and genitourinary systems. Instructors were obtained from the University of North Carolina Medical School.

Last week we completed a series of five Thursday night sessions for which we had a registration of 36. This was held in Winston-Salem and concerned drugs affecting the central nervous system. The symposium was co-sponsored with the Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

The committee has expressed an interest in helping the pharmacy student comply with the Board of Pharmacy regulations in meeting his practical experience obligation. Recognition is given to the difficulty which a student encounters in obtaining good experience during the summer months. The committee recommends a controlled pilot study be conducted by an appropriate committee with a selected group of pharmacists to determine ways and means of improving the quality of the student's experience. As the practicing pharmacist can be of great help to the student in helping him to apply his theoretical knowledge to practical problems, it is hoped the student might in turn bring to the practicing pharmacist a theoretical knowledge and thus provide continuing education for the pharmacist.

YOU CAN
LONG
OR...

You can rely on your nearby wholesaler

Buying direct from the manufacturer sounds real good. After all, you get the "best price" — and you get it straight from the manufacturer himself. So, why not?

It isn't that simple. Ask yourself:

Do I really get the best price?

Do I always get what I ordered? Am I ever shorted or penalized for freight?

Do I get the order when I need it? Or must I make a half-dozen long-distance calls?

Do I become over-stocked by buying large quantities? Do you know that it is a fact that as the ratio of direct purchases goes up, the net profit goes down?

Looking it over, you may find that buying by long-distance is more expensive than you thought.

Dealing with us is dealing locally. This has obvious advantages — so obvious, in fact, that you may take them for granted.

We are full-line, full-service drug wholesalers. When you buy from us, you get a number of extras — at no extra cost.

We stock locally — deliver quickly — back up what we sell. We are as near as your local phone. And we have the emergency items when you need them.

Our salesman calls on you personally and regularly. Selling over 25,000 items, he knows them and can help you select the right ones.

We have been in business for many years and hope to be in business years more. We offer you — with pride — full local stocks and full local service.

CONVENTION POTPOURRI

JAMES W. HARRISON, North Wilkesboro

Tom Boone with a faith in his profession that would stir a god and shame a devil. . . . Bob Hall, far from blasé at being chosen a Trustee of the University; humble almost to the point of being indifferent to the sweet scent of laurels won. How can he let his heart sleep when it strides like a lion through his body. . . . Roger McDuffie eyeing a comely miss with appreciative mien. When the boy perishes, the man dies.

Bank Kerr executing a dance like a dancing master showing a fine point to a pupil. She was an apt learner, too. . . . Clive and Lyons reminiscing over a sandwich and Coke. . . . Red Worley waiting on the next course, pandering his itchy feet with a walk from table to table, spilling susurrant tones into receptive ears. . . . The quiet, subdued pride of the 50-plus men as they received their citations. There is nothing wrong with pride as long as you have it on a halter. . . . 38 years of Convention attendance for Charlie Andrews, starting at Blowing Rock in '24; a record to shoot at. . . .

The quartet between the elevator and 182 singing Sweet Adeline becoming a trio as an irate mate grabbed the tenor and hauled him into the elevator before the last tremulous note faded away. . . . The happenstance of drawing Ruby for every meal except one, and that was Irene. . . . Irene Barringer in the foyer busily culling ideas from the Yearbooks of the Auxiliaries and noting them in a notebook. . . . The plenitude of cummerbunds swathing the athletic embonpoints of well groomed men. . . .

The delegates playing billiards while a business session was in progress. The age-old policy of "let George do it." Quite a difference in these two and the delegate who used his after hours idle time to come from behind the eight-ball. . . . Willie Wolfe remembering that he gave Andy Griffith his first job; how Andy told him in his post fame era how he would use some of "all his money" to "buy Pa a watch." . . . The genuine surprise of Roger McDuffie as he received a portfolio of messages from his friends. At a later more leisurely reading he only wet two dry handkerchiefs. . . . The piano player with more avoidupois than a young steer and the paradox of his light touch on the keyboard.

Ed Wimmer, his mind working with a formidable coherence; he told us that when our hides are nailed to the wall, we would furnish the hides—and probably the hammer and nails too—unless we do something about it. We wrung out his thoughts to the last drop. . . . The delegate taking tea with the ladies like a lotus eater in a land where it was always afternoon. . . . The diner spilling a juicy strawberry on her party frock, looking as if a blemish on one spot condones the casting of the rest on the trash heap.

Adjusting the microphone, moths beat-ign their wings in my stomach. . . . At the Hospitality Hour, like a garden party where convivial cordial washes down the alum of truth. . . . Some of the oldsters viewing the youth around them, feeling like jumping the pasture fence for a gambol with the trotting horses. . . . The order givers, sending a fleet of waitresses shuttling between the dining room and the kitchen, then forgetting who ordered what. What matter, it was all ambrosia and nectar then. . . . The pleasant abstraction of Tom Holland, like a poet thinking a rhyme. . . . The sleepy, hollow eyed fast breakers, surveying the world through a tunnel of drowsiness.

Shearen Elebash who "dahneed" all night in London and "daansed" all night in Selma, Alabama. . . . Lillian Hartis, a little sad when thinking of her son; Juanita Thomas, looking ahead eight years when her son might be a bonus baby with the Orioles. . . . Listening to Norris through a haze of drowsiness, only to come alert when the questions broke.

CONVENTION POTPOURRI

The eight new members of the Academy of Pharmacy; by their works you shall know them. . . . John Henley and his comprehensive report and his brief for a strong sustained recruitment project for Pharmacy. . . . Fairy cakes, syrup and butter, all as light as vanity, and piping hot coffee with caffeine, the elite of the pharmacopoeia. . . . Evidence of leadership: NCPA has 1544 members, a representation of 75%, and there are 75 pharmacists on boards of health throughout the state. . . . Tom Ham determined to keep the cash coming in for the Institute.

Glenna Snider's hat; one thought of a chic Paris salon, a Cossack on the steppes, a Vogue cover. . . . Earl Tate drawing a new image of pharmacy without an inward clash.

Debonair Ed Fuller; courtly C. H. Smith; gentle W. S. Wolfe; happy-go-lucky John Alexander; meticulous Jesse Pike; intense Tom Burgiss; solid Cliff Daniel; affable A. G. Cox; sartorial Banks Kerr; good fellow Floyd Goodrich; diffident Rob Roy Copeland; tranquil Bill Gurley; pensive John Stevenson; Galenesque D. R. Davis; obliging Hoy Moose; fluent Jim Morgan; gentlemen all, unafraid of the morrow.

The smooth flowing thought utterance of Dave Claytor as he gave a lengthy report in erudite poesy. The young scion, attending his first convention, his roving eyes tracked a persuasive skirt. . . . Jimmy Costello, almost an anachronism, playing a piece his audience almost dreaded to hear because it tore them to bits. . . . Walter Cousins, taking issue with the man of cloth who accused the pharmacist of robbery, becoming flushed with anger.

Ed Wimmer and his word mastery; you are actually knocked endways or left cold, or in that in-between where you feel that creeping of the spine and a sort of inner glow when you know you are in thrall. Great art is really an enchantment and he is a great artist. . . . Elebash, casting aside for the nonce his mantle of slapstick and rendering a classic with verve and erudition. . . . The meager crowds at some of the sessions that when a speaker finished, the applause sounded like a pep meeting in a morgue and cheering from a row of ghosts. . . . Joe Montesanti wishing he could be any place else than where he was at the moment. (My feelings hastened to merge and disappear.—Whitman).

Buddy Bair, only infrequently unfolding into a personal verve, but wielding a mythical baton with the air of a master who settles for no less than perfection. . . . Cliff Daniel, his face took on a look of wonderment, touched with wistfulness, as he watched the nimble dancer gyrating in joyous abandon. Looking in for a moment on a room full of bridge players. ('Tis pleasant, through the loopholes of retreat, to peep at such a world, to see the stir of Babel; and not feel the crowd.—Cowper).

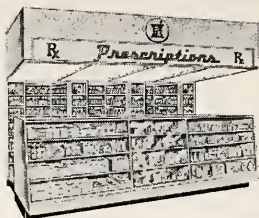

The Executive Committee's beau geste in making Paul Gamble a life member of the Association. . . . The eerie half light of the auditorium when the flare of a match pierced the darkness like a meteor lighting the sky; pretty, pretty, the dancing flame. . . . The 'out-of-order' elevator; when I inquired when it would be fixed, the look I got in reply reminded me of the first time I tasted asafetida. . . . Chit-chat over a coke: one delegate as contemptuous of another's opinion as a Baptist minister's opinions of Bob Ingersoll. . . . Charlie Andrews at the end of a day, weariness climbing higher up the stairs of his tired brain. . . . Sarah, lips parted like poppy petals, moving in Luke's arms as light as a cloud, the both as graceful as a colonial minuet. . . . Roger Sloop managing to get in a morning of golf before time for his afternoon report.

The remarkable achievement of the Woman's Auxiliary in making 1714 bedside bags for inmates of nursing homes. Dapper Phil Link, perennial winner of the National Pharmacy Week Award. . . . The devout supplications of Ed Fuller, Tom Boone and Wade Gilliam as they invoked blessings on the gathering at openings of the sessions. . . . The poetic paeans rhapsodized by Robert Neal Watson as he lauded Roger McDuffie. . . . June and Jean, the one as swift in repartee as the flash of a sunbeam, the other as provocative as the hint of a wink.

Tom Glover, surveying his subjects with the plaintive look of a small town minister. . . . The Academy of Pharmacy inductees, clutching their certificates much as Moses held the Ten Commandments. . . . The sad singer trilling arpeggios from an oil smooth throat. . . . Gregarious Charles Blanton, as much at home in the Coffee Hour as in a diplomatic conference. . . . Bill and Ann Brewer dancing to a lilting tune andante then lento like life running in silken skeins. . . . J. C. Jackson and his tax problem, never admitting defeat, fighting on like an army that would not surrender until the last pone of bread had been issued. . . . Johnny Bennick, looking at life straight in the face with all the gravity of a wise prophet.

Ed Fuller, pinioning a thought, holding it, polishing it, then uttering it. . . . The parties at the tables, sipping their libations like sacramental wine, as if they were heirs to paradise. . . . Hoy Moose looking a bit bashful as he presided, even his voice blushed when he used it. . . . Hubert Rogers welcoming the delegates in the tones of a man who could spare his soul five minutes. . . . Paul Gamble, in absentia, counting agony around the clock. . . . The ax juggler, like Ajax tossing a spear at the dawn. . . . Rob Roy seeing his memories as warm friends and in his mind nodding to them. . . . The oddity of the cool weather, when one almost needed a body-stove at night.

John Stevenson making his play for more professionalism. . . . Tom Boone, moderating his panel and asking for questions from the floor and getting none, could not help thinking his audience was teasing the ocean without getting its feet wet. . . . At midnight, feeling like a burnt out light bulb, everything was there except the light. . . . All these haphazard impressions flashing through my mind as two week later I catch a few minutes here and there to set them down.

See you in Charlotte next year.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

Sixty-five students graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy on June 3. A traditional highlight for pharmacy students was the Convocation in the Assembly Room at which the students read in unison "The Pharmacist's Oath" composed by Dr. J. Hampton Hoch of the Medical College of South Carolina School of Pharmacy. Members of the faculty and staff of the School of Pharmacy were introduced by Dean Brecht and members of the class by Class President L. H. Stocks. The Convocation was followed by a picnic dinner served in the Student Center by Broadway Foods, Inc.

Three gifts were received recently for the School of Pharmacy. An anonymous alumnus provided funds for 12 additional handsome looseleaf binders for the Historical Records compiled by Alice Noble, Research Historian. An undesignated gift of $50 was received from the Charlotte Woman's Druggist Auxiliary, and it has been used to provide the new Third Edition of Webster's International Dictionary, Unabridged for the Pharmacy Library. An undesignated gift of $25 was received from the Greensboro Drug Club Auxiliary and it was combined with a similar gift from the preceding year to provide five framed Alchemist prints in full color for the Pharmaceutical Organic Chemistry Laboratory.

Miss Noble's book on the History of the School of Pharmacy has received another excellent review, this time by Glenn Soume-decker, Director of the American Institute of the History of Pharmacy in the current issue of its publication, Pharmacy in History. The last paragraph is quoted: "Any school of pharmacy is fortunate to be represented by a handsome volume of this substance, for which a prerequisite is a knowledgeable and dedicated writer in a hospitable work-place. A Tarheel born, the author learned her subject from the inside out, as Librarian and in other capacities during years at the School. The North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation is to be congratulated for making possible the appointment of Miss Noble as Research Historian at the School, of which the present book is only one important fruit. It is suggestive of what could be done by other schools likewise."

Dr. Claude Piantadosi has received a renewal value at $10,500 for the second year from the National Institutes of Health for research on potential anti-cancer agents. He also received a grant of $1,000 from the University Research Council for irreversible enzyme inhibitors.

Unfinished space in the northwest corner of the basement of Beard Hall was finished by the University of North Carolina to provide office and laboratory space for the Radiation Safety Officer required to provide monitoring service for the whole campus in connection with the use of radioactive materials and research.

The thirty minute tape television program on preventing poisoning in children was given its tenth showing in North Carolina over WUNC-TV on June 6.

On May 24 graduate students Allen Hirsch and Vilhjalmur Skulason were initiated as members of Sigma Xi, the national honorary research society.

Graduate students Robert Morris and Edvard Sumner were guests at the S. E.

Massengill Company in Bristol, Tennessee on May 27-29 for a two and one-half day laboratory seminar in commercial production working mostly with a spray film coater and the preparation of parenteral solutions.

On June 8 Robert Morris took his family to Indianapolis for three months of manufacturing experience at Eli Lilly & Company on the summer employment plan. He was most pleased to be assigned to the Pilot Plant for tablet production.

Dr. Jack K. Wier, Assistant Professor of Pharmacognosy was elected secretary-treasurer of the Durham-Orange Drug Club at its meeting on May 30.

Miss Kathryn Freeman, Pharmacy Librarian, attended the International Congress of Medical Librarians on June 16-22 in Washington, D. C. She participated in all the meetings pertaining to pharmacy librarianship.

On June 12 Dean E. A. Brecht of the School of Pharmacy along with Robert Neal Watson as president of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy met with the Executive Committee of the NCPA for a discussion of problems of mutual interest.

HISTORICAL NOTES

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

I enjoyed immensely reading on June 2nd the two-page printed AP story about the twenty-fifth reunion of the Class of 1938 at the University. I was pleased that recognition was accorded to several alumni of the School and gratified especially that honor was paid to Raymond Harrell Wilkins, of Columbia, who was a member of the class its first year. Early in 1936 he enlisted in the U. S. Army Air Force and in due course by aptitude and ability won his wings as a pilot. In 1940 he was assigned to duty in the Philippines under General MacArthur. As a member of the aerial convoy he accompanied the General in his epic escape to Australia with the PT-boats. On November 2, 1943 Raymond was killed in action over Rabaul, New Britain, while leading his squadron in an attack against a section of the Japanese fleet. His promotion to the rank of Major came several weeks before his death. His last act was to dive the plane he was piloting straight at a Japanese gun boat in an attempt to silence it and save the lives of his comrades. For his bravery he was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor. He had been awarded previously the Silver Star for his noteworthy deeds and also the Distinguished Service Flying Cross.

During his military career I heard from Raymond every once in awhile and I wish that I had saved these communications. In each he mentioned his determination to come back to the University some day and complete his studies. It is remarkable that during his fighting days he found time to take correspondence courses. Every now and then he would write he had completed another subject. It is good to have an opportunity to pay tribute to this brave soldier of the Class of 1938 for his devoted service to his country.

Captain Richard Benbury Saunders was certainly a prominent figure in the State in the middle of the nineteenth century. More than once I have carried interesting stories about him in this column. I have just come across additional information in Peter Mitchel Wilson's delightful reminiscences entitled, Southern Exposure (1927): which I am quoting below:

"It is very pleasant to see grow out of the air just in front of me, full size—and that was pretty large—the semblance of Captain Dick Saunders, the business manager of the (Raleigh) Observer. I had known Captain R. B. Saunders when he kept one of the finest drug stores in the state at Chapel Hill. No amount of evidence, written or oral, could shake my belief that nobody ever made exactly such peach ice soda as he made, and this will be vouched for by all the belles, and they were belles, on the Hill. His receipt for smoking tobacco would make the Kings of the royal weed rich beyond the dreams of a millionaire's avarice. Tests: Classes of '65, '66, '67, and '68. But when the University closed, the drug store went down with it; and Captain Saunders, with his good wife, a daughter of Governor Brandon, of Mississippi, set to work to bring up their little ones near Raleigh.

"Captain Saunders was at heart an optimist, but in speech a radical pessimist and the comfort I got from him when I was a 'cub' on the paper is not worth the lead in writing it. But it did not take a mallet to get into my head that his writings on a subject were of the first importance to a million of our people,—how to enrich their land (he was a good practical chemist)—and his stories of our country fairs made him a most valuable man in a newspaper office . . ."

The North Carolina Board of Pharmacy held its semi-annual Practical Examination at the School of Pharmacy on June 18.

Two Materia Medica Collections of Crude Drugs are now on display in the Retail Laboratory of Beard Hall. The first was the Parke Davis collection featured as a cover on the May issue of THE CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY. Now "Lilly's Collection of Crude Drugs" is also on display. It was purchased from Eli Lilly and Company by the mother of Dean Brecht and used for study to prepare for the Pharmacy License Examination taken by her in 1912. (see the next page for Historical Notes by Miss Alice Noble)

Kappa Epsilon

Founders Day was celebrated on May 5 with a banquet at The Pines Restaurant. Associate members attending the banquet were Miss Alice Noble, Mrs. I. W. Rose, and Mrs. W. J. Smith. Special guests were Mrs. M. L. Jacobs and Miss Kathryn Freeman, the Pharmacy Librarian. Following the banquet Miss Freeman was initiated as an associate member.

The annual awards of the Beta Xi Chapter were announced and presented at the banquet held during the Pharmacy Weekend at Schrafft's Country Inn. Hal Reaves of Asheboro received the Reginald Farrell Award for outstanding contributions to the fraternity. Larry Denning, Coats, received the Asklepios Key for excellence in scholarship. James Matthews, Clinton, received the Best Pledge Award. The award for the highest scholarship average in a pledge class was presented to Terry Heatherington, Bessemer City.

Phi Delta Chi

L. H. Stocks, III, Kinston, received the Outstanding Senior Award at the Awards Night program on May 16.

The Alpha Gamma Chapter was honored to receive two awards announced at the Phi Delta Chi breakfast in Miami Beach: the Prescott Scholarship Award Cup and the Achievement Award Cup for the southeastern region.

J.; Vice president William Foster, Mocksville; Secretary James Owen, Roseboro; Social Chairmen Revis Eller of Purlcar and John E. Kennedy, Shelby; Treasurer Hugh Myers, Clayton; Corresponding Secretary Lynn McCaskill, Ellerbe; Pledge Master William Burch, Chapel Hill; Master at Arms Randolph Rhyne, Valdese; Inner Guard Hug Smith, Albertson; Prelate Larry Warren, Newton Grove; Intermural Manager John Cameron, Kinston; Assistant Treasurer Roy Smith, Durham; and Assistant Correspondent Curtis Holleman, Fuquay Springs.

Henley-Tate Address Club

Representatives John T. Henley of Hope Mills and Earl H. Tate were guest speakers at the May 30 meeting of the Durham-Orange Drug Club, held at Schrafft's Country Inn near Durham.

The two pharmacist-legislators discussed recent legislative developments with emphasis on legislation of special significance to pharmacists.

Albert Clay, Durham pharmacist, was elected and installed as president of the Durham-Orange Drug Club for the coming club year. He succeeds Claxton Harris.

Bill Wells was elected vice-president; Dr. Jack K. Wier, secretary-treasurer.

store sales in 1962 zoomed to a new top—$8,495,000,000. Prescription volume jumped from $165,700,000 to $2,389,660,000. Average sales per store in 1939 were $28,130. In 1962 they were $157,668. Now here's the punch line. During these many years, the number of independent retail drug stores increased. Likewise, during these years, the independent drug stores share of the market has remained somewhere between 74% to 78% with chains varying between 22% to 26%.

Another point, last year 7 out of 8 new prescriptions were brought to independent drug stores to be filled. Many of you here share my optimism. One fellow told me business was so good it reminded him of a girl he knew. He said, "She's built like a million dollars and walks like it's all in loose change."

There's an old saying "Let's talk turkey." That I wish to discuss about a subject of particular concern to all of us. Before getting into the subject, I believe I should ease the seriousness by explaining where the expression "Let's talk turkey" came from.

A settler and an Indian went hunting. They agreed to share the game equally. Three crows and two turkeys were shot. The settler gave the Indian the first bird, a crow. He took a turkey for himself. Then a crow for the Indian, the second turkey for himself. The Indian received the last bird—a crow. The Indian protested, but the settler pointed out that the Indian had three birds to the settler's two. Where upon the Indian replied, "We stop talk birds—now we talk Turkey."

The "turkey" I wish to discuss is "net pricing." Those manufacturers who are resorting to net pricing are hastening the demise of the independent pharmacy. It appears that some manufacturers have designed net pricing to lower the price of prescriptions only at the expense of the retailer and wholesaler alone. Net pricing can well reduce the pharmacist's return on his investment because it inevitably increases his inventory.

Likewise, it can very well reduce his margins and dollars and cents profit for prescriptions if he is not very careful to price his prescriptions on a wholesale or list cost basis rather than the net cost of a direct purchase.

Some retailer friends have said to me, "You wholesalers are really catching it from net pricing manufacturers." Actually, the average independent retail druggist is the one being placed at a competitive disadvantage. Retailers are being forced, by net pricing, to assume the wholesale function in behalf of the manufacturer, without compensation. Retailers are being forced to buy direct in order to compete price wise with chains, discounters, and others basing Rx prices incorrectly on net cost.

Pricing prescriptions according to tradition methods of wholesale costs are complicated.

Detailment can quote prices to doctors based on net direct cost. These quotes are based on largest sizes rather than on smallest. The doctor and patient then think the retailer is gouging when pharmacist correctly bases his price on the list or wholesale cost.

This system of pricing causes detail men to spend less time in doctors' offices—more time in pharmacy back rooms creating inventory increases.

Blue book and red book prices become meaningless.

All future refills, regardless of demand, would have to be bought direct or retailer would suffer loss or reduced margin.

Thus, it is evident your Rx department is entangled with direct buying without regard for your personal choice, loyalty, locality, volume, capital, or return on investment.

Those employing these bilateral pricing policies gain favor with the discount image giants, disregard the consequences to the average independent retailer.

Net priced competitive items are made to appear cheaper than those of another manufacturer who has "Best price for all" or publishes list prices.

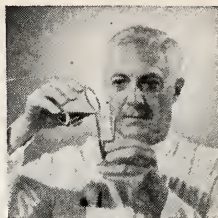

The practice facilitates OTC loading as a device to stay on direct.

Direct buying requirements can be increased without provocation, and net prices can be manipulated more easily and less noticeably than traditional function discounts from list prices.

Recently, a pharmaceutical manufacturer who primarily sells direct lowered the price of its infant feeding formula to the direct purchasing retailer by 2%, and raised the wholesaler's cost by almost 15%. The retail selling price was not changed. If the wholesaler is to add anything like an equitable return for his services, the retailer must pay almost the suggested retail price.

In summary, net pricing policies as established by some manufacturers, are discriminatory. These manufacturers don't propose that they, themselves, earn less. It looks like they want prescription prices lowered only at the expense of the wholesaler and retailer.

We feel it is our duty to bring these facts to you. You should, on an individual basis, make your reaction known to the manufacturers whose policies are either, in your consideration, to your best interests, or harmful to you.

Now, let's talk about how the wholesaler can help you.

This is the age of the specialist. You, the retail pharmacist, are a specialist. You concentrate on keeping those in your community well and happy. You specialize in a field that requires highly perfected skills.

The full line—full service drug wholesaler is a specialist, too. We are specialists in ordering and expediting storage and delivery of large quantities of drugs and proprietaries. We carry 20,000 to 30,000 items in order to fully service your needs, and to supply the services necessary to help you survive the ever changing pressures of the competitive market place. We are specialists in warehousing, specialists in selling and delivery. We know you are tops in your specialty. We think, we too, are pretty fair in ours.

By letting us do your buying and warehousing, we can save you money, worry, and time.

To fully utilize the services of the full line—full service wholesaler—consider the following sound reasons.

1. We are your warehouse. A wide variety of items are available to you when and as you need them.
2. Daily deliveries are provided that manufacturers cannot match. Rapid deliveries to meet emergencies, and frequent regular deliveries avoid loss of sales due to out of stock conditions.
3. A centralized source for all drug and proprietary needs, is afforded.
4. Lower inventories are made possible, cutting your capital investment, and storage costs.
5. Our knowledge of various sources of supply helps find hard to get items quickly.
6. Trial orders or emergency orders are not subject to minimum order requirements.

7. Adjustments and returns are handled quickly and efficiently.

8. Extensive credit facilities are available.

9. We are your insurance against the possibility of becoming over-burdened with obsolete stock.

10. Modernization service and advice is offered. We assist in arranging financing of improvements and expansion.

11. We provide new techniques, new products, and new ways to cut costs.

12. The days of the wholesaler salesman as a "loader of deals" is gone. Today's wholesaler salesman is dedicated to assist in moving merchandise and selling you only merchandise you need.

13. The reputation of full line—full service wholesalers guarantees your protection.

To get maximum service from your wholesaler you are urged to

1. Request wholesaler's advice on buying and merchandising.

2. Reduce direct buying of legend drugs. They cannot be stockpiled. They cannot be mass displayed. They can't be put on special sale. Only doctor's prescription will move them. Certainly no sane wholesaler can be expected to finance direct purchases of retailers or to credit returns for items bought direct.

3. Take advantage of monthly credit terms and cut handling costs by anticipating purchases of fast turnover items early in the month.

4. Let wholesaler salesmen check your stock and maintain inventory control on fast movers.

5. Use wholesaler in screening deals offered. Many unsound offers are rejected by wholesalers.

6. Take advantage of wholesaler promotions to build profits and keep the drug business in drug stores.

7. Do not abuse return goods privilege. Returns should not exceed 2% of total purchases.

8. Remember, your wholesaler stocks and supplies almost all the items you really need.

9. Bring us your problems. It probably isn't new. The wholesaler probably has had previous experience in a similar solution.

Those in the full line—full service wholesale drug business are not just another wholesaler—we're not "jobbers." We exist to help and serve you.

We want to earn the right to more of your business. We think the specialist arrangement makes sense—for you and for us—don't you?

DEATHS

MRS. W. A. WARD

Mrs. Waits Artemus Ward of Swannanoa, a past-president of The Woman's Auxiliary of the NCPA, died June 16 in an Asheville hospital where she had been a patient for several weeks.

Both Mrs. Ward and her husband, who headed the NCPA in 1953-'54, were closely identified with organized pharmacy in North Carolina since 1924, the year Mr. Ward graduated from UNC and was licensed as a pharmacist.

A former president of the Swannanoa Woman's Club, Mrs. Ward was active in many of her community's programs for progress. She was a PTA member, grade mother at school, did Red Cross work, was a Gray Lady at Moore General Hospital and served as secretary of the Women of the Swannanoa Presbyterian Church.

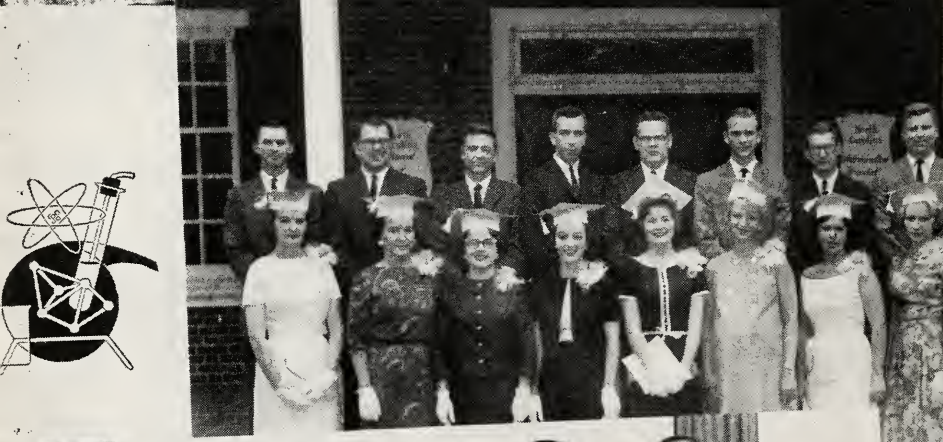

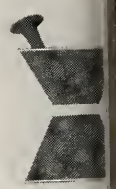

Among the survivors are her husband and three children, Wilbur, a pharmacist now owner-operator of two pharmacies in the Swannanoa-Black Mountain area; Waites, in military service at Fort Bragg; and Barbara (Mrs. Theodore Horner of Bethesda, Maryland).

ARTHUR L. FISHEL

Funeral services for Arthur L. Fishel, Winston-Salem pharmacist, were held in Winston-Salem on June 22. Mr. Fishel had been in ill health since May, 1949.

Licensed as a pharmacist in 1915, Mr. Fishel was identified with various Winston-Salem pharmacies for a 40 year period.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lyda Riggsbee of Chapel Hill; one son, Dr. John L. Fishel of Panama City, Florida; and several grandchildren, nieces and nephews.

OF THE AUXILIARIES

Pharmacy Wives 1962-63

The Student Pharmacy Wives have had 18 meetings this year. In September last year we began with a bon fire and weiner roast at the home of the W. J. Smiths as a welcoming party for all the new families.

Our participation in the State Auxiliary Bedside Bag Project went over the top as the girls made 96 bags. And at Easter we had another service project, 300 favors for the trays at Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill.

In January the Pharmacy Wives were invited to the William Friday home on campus as their guests and met with 3 other groups of campus wives—History Wives, Education Wives and Business Administration Wives. For our program, President Friday told of a luncheon he attended at the White House in Washington, D. C. as guest of President Kennedy.

The other meetings held throughout the year were:

Mr. Clyde Ball from the Institute of Government, giving us a speech on Parliamentary Procedure; Mr. George Coxhead talking with us on Life Insurance; an interior decorator from Style Craft Interiors; cake decorating from Thell's Bakery; out door cooking at Duke Power; and a most delightful visit from our state auxiliary president, Mrs. John Stevenson.

At Christmas time 2 parties were given, one for the adults and the other for the children of the students and faculty.

One interesting meeting for the girls was held at the school of pharmacy with the Chapel Hill Auxiliary. On that night a shower was given the Pharmacy School Kitchen and the girls had an opportunity to get acquainted with the building that takes so much of their husbands' time.

Four of our members attended the State convention as pages: Hope McSwain, Bobbie Alexander, Annice Davis and Evelyn Miller. Our informal climax was held at the home of the W. J. Smiths with a covered dish supper, and the most formal affair of the year was the Senior Tea and graduation, held at the Institute of Pharmacy, for the following girls: Mrs. Clyde Alexander, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Briggs Cook, Stokesdale; Mrs. Joe Davis, Warrenton; Mrs. Omnie O. Grabs, Jr., King; Mrs. Bruce Honeycutt, Franklinton; Mrs. J. A. Hurt, Morganton; Mrs. Arnold Kaiser, London England; Mrs. Tom Lever III, Charlotte; Mrs. Haynie Miller, Honea Path, S. C.; Mrs. Jerry Moser, High Point; Mrs. John Schofield, Salisbury; Mrs. Doug Sprinkle, Winston-Salem; Mrs. Gary Stamey, Asheville; Mrs. Hoyt Todd, Aulander; Mrs. Richard Wilder, Chadbourn. Dean Brecht from the School of Pharmacy was guest speaker for the occasion.

On the same program the following officers for 1963-64 were installed:

President—Hope McSwain, Shelby

Vice President—Sarah Sheaffer,

Fayetteville

Secretary—Joanne Keith, Asheboro

Treasurer—Rose Tripp, Greenville

Charlotte

New officers of the Charlotte Woman's Druggist Auxiliary were installed at the May 22nd meeting. The theme of the installation service was "The Key To Success."

Mrs. D. Clyde Lisk, Jr., a past-president, installed the new officers. They are Mrs. Worth Blackmon, President; Mrs. Ernest Porter, Jr., first vice-president; Mrs. W. K. Gardner, second vice-president; Mrs. John Morton, recording secretary; Mrs. Julian Helms, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. Bruce Wingate, treasurer. Mrs. Ross L. Cooper, retiring president, will serve as advisor. Mrs. Cooper was presented a gift from the Auxiliary upon her retiring.

Mrs. W. R. Dixon, one of the Auxiliary's charter members, is seriously ill in Memorial Hospital.

Winston-Salem

The Winston-Salem Apothecary Club held a dinner meeting May 2 at the Woman's Club. Twenty-Five members attended.

New officers for the year were installed.

Mrs. William Simmons, the new president, announced the committee chairmen for the year:

Telephone—Phyllis Ferguson; Ways and Means—Beverly Sizemore; Publicity—Jane Ballus; Hostess—Janet Lowder; Social—Mildred Ball; Scrapbook—Kat Sloop; Sunshine—Pat Benton; and Membership—Mary Darlington and Agnes Rollins.

The club voted to continue using Yearbooks at the expense of the treasury.

Chapel Hill

The Chapel Hill Woman's Auxiliary held its closing meeting of the season at 8 p.m., May 22, at the Institute of Pharmacy.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Melvin Chambers was presented with a mortar and pestle, also a pharmacy pin, in appreciation of her leadership as president for the past two years. Mrs. W. J. Smith was presented a gift of money to use for anything she felt the Institute of Pharmacy needed.

Officers for the 1963-64 year are: Mrs. W. L. Sloan, president; Mrs. Jack Wier, vice-president; Mrs. George Harris, secretary; Mrs. Ben Courts, treasurer; Mrs. Fred Semeniuk, historian.

Mrs. Melvin Chambers and Mrs. W. J. Smith were hostesses for the social hour which followed adjournment of the business meeting.

Durham

The Mortar and Pestle Club held its May 25 meeting in the form of a family picnic at Duke Park.

Mrs. Benjamin W. Bullock, president, welcomed the members, their families and special guests.

The picnic was the last meeting of the club for the current year. The next meeting will be in September.

Greensboro

Mrs. D. D. Claytor, recently installed President of the State Auxiliary, installed the officers of her local auxiliary on May 28, 1963 when the Greensboro Drug Club Auxiliary met at the Mayfair Cafeteria for its final meeting of the year.

The meeting was opened with the Invocation by Mrs. D. W. Montgomery.

Mrs. R. L. Lane reported a present balance of $340 in the treasury, with the $250 Virginia T. Hayes Scholarship to be mailed in June. She also read a letter from Mr. W. J. Smith expressing his appreciation to the Auxiliary for the $25 gift to the Institute of Pharmacy.

Mrs. W. P. Brewer and Mrs. D. D. Claytor reported on the state convention held in Pinehurst, May 12-14.

Mrs. Ben F. Collins, Jr. extended an invitation from the Drug Club for a family picnic in June, with details to be worked out later.

Mrs. Claytor reminded members of the Leadership Workshop to be held in Chapel Hill during the summer. The Auxiliary approved the motion that the $6.00 fee for the Workshop be paid by the Auxiliary for a delegate from the Executive Board.

Mrs. J. F. Pickard presented retiring President Mrs. Lon D. Russell a Revere bowl as a token of appreciation from the Auxiliary for her excellent guidance during the past year.

Mrs. Claytor installed the following officers for 1963-1964:

President, Mrs. A. H. Mebane III; Vice-President, Mrs. J. F. Pickard; Secretary, Mrs. D. W. Montgomery; Treasurer, Mrs. D. C. Dowdy; Chaplain, Mrs. W. M. Payne, Jr.; Historian, Mrs. E. S. White.

Mrs. Mebane then announced the committee chairmen for the new year as follows:

Program, Mrs. J. F. Pickard; Ways and Means, Mrs. R. G. Mitchell; Scholarship, Mrs. C. U. Paoloni; Hostess, Mrs. W. S. Stang; Sunshine, Mrs. K. N. Fulbright; Telephone, Mrs. E. F. Crissinger; Publicity, Mrs. M. B. McCurdy; Membership, Mrs. D. C. Bracker; Yearbook, Mrs. C. C. Graham.

Following a discussion period, a motion was made and seconded that every effort be made during the new year to vary the programs of our meetings each month, as well as the meeting places, with the understanding that the Mayfair Cafeteria will remain our so-called "home base" until other conditions prove successful.

Hostesses were Mrs. W. S. Stang, Mrs. David Stang, Mrs. D. C. Bracker, and Mrs. J. A. Razenhofer.

Door prize was won by Mrs. R. L. Lane.

Why would anyone pay 10¢ more for this children's aspirin?

Aspirin is aspirin—to anyone but a youngster. To him, the little things—flavor, color, sweetness, aftertaste—seem very important indeed. Especially if he isn't feeling well.

This new children's aspirin from Abbott is just a little more pleasant for him to take.

The difference can be expressed in one word: Aluminum. Most aspirins are formulated as an acid. The Abbott aspirin is presented as the neutral aluminum salt. Result: (1) Stability is enhanced (2) The cherry flavor is protected (3) There is little or none of the acid stomach upset often caused by ordinary aspirin.

This flavor advantage was very clearly pointed up in a series of tests at a major children's hospital. The new, cherry-flavored tablets were preferred 3 to 1 over the other leading children's aspirins.

Finally, there's the safety cap—probably the best one in your store. Difficult for children to remove, the snap-action cap is easily opened and closed by adults once they know the secret.

Suggested price for this new product: 49¢ for 50—about a dime more than other well-known brands. But see if a parent ever switches back—once you've sold the one with aluminum.

SALES RESTRICTIONS

Action by the World Health Organization in recommending that the sale of all drugs and pharmaceutical preparations be restricted to pharmacists is especially significant since WHO's group classification is one that has been favored by a number of North Carolina pharmacists for several years.

Perhaps WHO's endorsement of the four sales categories will spur general acceptance of the recommendation in this country. It is a step in the right direction.

The "meeting" referred to below was attended by representatives from 15 countries, including France, Italy, USSR, Sweden, Denmark, etc.

"The Meeting considered it desirable that the sale of all drugs and pharmaceutical preparations should be restricted to pharmacists, but this principle conflicts with the tradition of some countries and its universal acceptance is impossible for the present. On the other hand, many modern pharmaceutical preparations that cannot be classified as poisons in the usually accepted sense could nevertheless be dangerous if taken without expert advice and supervision. The Meeting therefore proposed that pharmaceutical preparations should be classified in four groups: available on prescription only (Group R); sale restricted to pharmacists (Group P; narcotics subject to international restrictions (Group N); sale unrestricted (Group U). Preparations in Group R might be subdivided into those to be dispensed once only unless the prescription specifically calls for repeats (Group R) and those to be repeated without specific instructions from the prescriber (Group R), although opinion was divided on the question of whether the latter practice should ever be regarded as permissible. Group U would include only those drugs that by long experience had proved to be safe when widely sold to the public; all new drugs other than narcotics would automatically be included in Group P, if not in Group R."

P-D Throws the Spotlight on John Mitchener

Parke-Davis, in its May-June issue of REVIEW, opened a well-written, profusely illustrated story with this wording: "Whether he's selling his community or Parke-Davis products, when John Mitchener's around things really move."

As so many Tar Heel pharmacists know, P-D was referring to Edenton's pharmacist-mayor John A. Mitchener. Mitchener's Pharmacy, which John now operates with the assistance of his wife, Nancy, also a pharmacist, was established by his father in 1905.

As P-D points out, John is not only mayor of Edenton, he is Police Commissioner, Fire Commissioner, a trustee of the local hospital and a member of the Executive Committee of the N. C. League of Municipalities.

The article concludes with "John Mitchener is many things to many people. He's a live wire who seldom plays a spectator's role." P-D is so right. There's no grass growing under this pharmacist's feet.

AMA Action on MD-Ownership

At the recent Atlantic City meeting of the American Medical Association, the AMA House of Delegates approved the Judicial Council's recommendation that:

(1) It is not unethical for a physician to own or operate a pharmacy provided there is no exploitation of his patient.

(2) It is unethical for a physician to have a financial interest in a drug repackaging company.

(3) It is unethical for a physician to own stock in a pharmaceutical company which he can control or does control while actively engaged in the practice of medicine.

National Meeting Brings Member Wives to Institute

In connection with the July meeting in Chapel Hill of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy and the American Society of Pharmacognosy, two special events, both for the wives of members of the two organizations, were scheduled in the Institute of Pharmacy.

A tea and a card party—one on July 18 and the other on July 23—were arranged by Mrs. J. K. Wier and Mrs. George Cocolas, wives of faculty members of the UNC School of Pharmacy.

During the national meeting of the pharmacy educators, many took advantage of an opportunity to visit the Institute of Pharmacy. Several requests have been received for details of the Institute program and financing.

Suspended Sentence

For selling barbituates and stimulant drugs to a former Raleigh police officer, William Robert Nowell, Jr. of Wendell won a suspended sentence after a tearful plea for another chance.

The sentence: a fine of $500 plus court costs, sign his consent to being placed on probation for three years and to be supervised by the North Carolina Probation Commission.

In sentencing Nowell, a Wendell pharmacy operator, the judge said: "There never shall be another suspended sentence in this court for this crime as long as I am judge."

RUPERT JERNIGAN RETIRES

Fate is dealing Chapel Hill at this week-end one of the cruelest blows it has suffered in a long time: Rupert Watson Jernigan is quitting his job as chief pharmacist at the Eubanks drug store. His last day of work there was yesterday, Saturday, June 29. He and Mrs. Jernigan are going to live in a new apartment attached to the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Rose, on a farm seven miles from Fayetteville north toward Raleigh.

This genial, soft-mannered gentleman made a deep impression upon Chapel Hill by his expertness and kindness in two periods as Clyde Eubanks's trusted assistant, first for five years before the First World War and then for 25 years from 1938 till now. He came the second time to succeed Carl Durham when Mr. Durham was elected to Congress.

(I will pause here to comment upon the important mission of pharmacists and upon the remarkable good fortune of Chapel Hill in this profession through the years. Of course I don't mean to say that other communities are not just as fortunate, but this is the only one in which I happen to have had a long acquaintance with the personnel of drugstores. There is certainly no more alert and helpful company in our town than the pharmacists or one more deserving our admiration and gratitude. If another one of ours goes away and I am still around—which is not apt to be the case, since they are all a lot younger than I am—I will be celebrating the event in mournful type.)

Rupert Jernigan was born 73½ years ago on a farm in Duplin County, attended the Grove Academy in the county seat, Kenansville, and then came to the University to study pharmacy under Vernon Howell and Grover Beard. In those days one had to have three years of practice before standing the State Board examination. Young Jernigan took a part-time job with Clyde Eubanks when Mr. Eubanks was where Foister's is now and moved with him to the present store in 1912.

He passed the Board in 1914, was in Greensboro a while, and when the U. S. entered the war in 1917 went into an army ambulance corps.

He and I were interested to find that our Army careers were parallel a good part of the time. We went to Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, in the summer of 1917, to Camp Jackson at Columbia, S. C., in the fall, and to France, by way of Liverpool and Southampton in 1917. We were both in the 81st Division but didn't meet until 1938 in Chapel Hill. A poignant joint reminiscence is that of the wooden barrack walls that came to an end about five feet below the roof. The purpose of this opening was to allow the soldiers to keep cool in a hot climate. That winter was the coldest the country, north and south, has known in half a century. Snow and sleet and cold rain fell again and again at Camp Jackson. The soldiers suffered frightfully.

Mr. Jernigan attended Toulouse University in France during the Armistice and took a special degree in Pharmacy there.

He married Grace Bright, daughter of the well-known clothing merchant in Durham, when he was with a drugstore there, and they were then in Fayetteville for ten years before coming to Chapel Hill. Their son, a former West Pointer, a gas system engineer in Texas, has three girls and a boy, and their daughter near Fayetteville, Mrs. Rose, has three sons. Their son, John, recently married, is with the Douglas Aircraft Company in Charlotte.

Mr. and Mrs. Jernigan will be packing up for a while and will probably get off about the first of August. He will be in the drugstore, though not for duty, every now and then during July.

To The Editor

Dear Mr. Smith:

I am a Cuban citizen, pharmacist, graduated from Tulane University in 1933 and from the Universidad de la Habana in 1934. I owned my pharmacy in Cuba in the city of Camaguey, which was founded by my father in 1907.

I worked with my father until his retirement in 1950 at which time I took over the pharmacy. In 1962 I had to leave my country. Since that time I have been employed as a pharmacist by the Hialeah Hospital Pharmacy and the Saint Francis Hospital Pharmacy.

I am married. Wife and two daughters, age 14 and 20.

Prior to the N. C. pharmacy examinations, I desire employment in the state. If you know of a position now open in North Carolina for an individual with my qualifications, please have him write.

The Philosophy of the Professional Fee

By DR. HARRY A. SMITH,

Associate Professor of Pharmacy, University of Kentucky College of Pharmacy

Before one can really appreciate and understand or use the professional fee concept one must examine the two basic tenets of its philosophy. They are:

1. A prescription drug is not an ordinary article of trade that the public may buy or sell at their pleasure. Prescription drugs are developed and produced to alleviate human suffering. They are potent compounds and subject to misuse and abuse in unskilled hands. Therefore, laymen may possess these drugs only through competent professional people, including the pharmacist, after diagnosis of the patient and prescribing and proper dispensing of the designated drug.

2. Neither the dispensing cost, the professional and legal responsibility, nor the time incurred in dispensing a prescription, nor yet the benefit derived from such prescription is a function of the cost of the ingredients that go to make a prescription.

Having accepted these two tenets, we can proceed to examine the factors used in determining the fee and to compare it with the markup concept.

Computing the Professional Fee

There are three basic factors that must be considered in determining the prescription charge regardless of the method used. These are:

1. The cost of the ingredient or ingredients and container.
2. The cost incurred in dispensing the prescription.
3. The profit necessary to sustain the enterprise and to permit its growth.

The first of these is computed in the same manner regardless of the pricing method used. The second and third factors are combined and an average value per prescription is computed to arrive at a professional fee value.

The markup method is based upon the idea that the sum of factors two and three is a function or per cent of factor one. Since this is not true (tenet two), the mark-up is not a necessity, nor is it logical. However, the difficulty lies in how much should the professional fee or per cent markup be in order to satisfy factors two and three.

Several methods of determining the professional fee have been proposed. Prof. Fuller offered the following formula:

Prof. Abrams recommends the following formula:

$$(b) \text{ Proprietor's salary} + (\% \text{ Rx sales} \times \text{total expenses less prop. salary}) \div \text{Number of prescriptions/year} + \text{desired net profit} = \text{professional fee; } $1.50 + $.50 \text{ N.P.} = $2.00 \text{ based upon 1961 Lilly Digest data.}$$

Jacoff and Evanson developed a very scientific but somewhat complicated method based upon cost accounting and statistical principles. They arrived at an average "burden rate" of $1.39 per prescription based upon data in the 1960 Lilly Digest. To this figure a net profit must be added.

The cost analysis of twelve pharmacies conducted by Burley, Fisher and Cox was perhaps the most scientific and detailed study made of pharmacy operations. Application of their statistics to 1961 Lilly Digest average prescription price gave an average "burden rate" of approximately $1.10 and a professional fee of $1.70, rounded to the nearest $.05. These values are very close to those computed independently by the author using 1961 Lilly Digest data.

The simplest and most direct method is to divide the gross margin for the prescription department by the number of prescriptions filled. All that is needed for this calculation is to know the beginning and ending inventories, sales and purchases for the prescription department, and the number of prescriptions filled.

THE PROFESSIONAL FEEPros and Cons of Professional Fee*

First, let us consider the economic advantages of the fee.

1. The fee concept will tend to stabilize prescription prices, protecting the pharmacist from a profit squeeze due to the prescribing of less expensive brands or generic drugs and protecting the public from very high prescription charges resulting from a markup on expensive new drugs.

2. You are able to recover all expense and a fair return on each prescription dispensed on a fee basis.

3. The professional fee permits a competitive charge for expensive maintenance-prescriptions.

4. The fee, being fixed, saves time and prevents miscalculations and errors.

Some of the economic problems encountered with the fee are:

1. How do you price refills of prescriptions on file already? The answer to this question is that you do not raise the price on any refill, but adjust downwardly the price of the expensive refills.

2. What do you do about requests for refills of double and triple the amounts, or for one-half or one-fourth amounts? The fee remains the same unless a certain defined upper limit is exceeded. This will discourage refills for one-half or one-fourth amounts, which are seldom economical in the first place. Exceptions are made in the cases where only a few doses are needed until the next appointment. The fee is retained for all large quantities up to twice the regular stock bottle. One-half of the fee is added for the second and each additional stock bottle quantity dispensed. This rule is designed solely to protect the pharmacist from someone deliberately taking undue advantage of the fee.

3. What about new prescriptions for very large quantities? The answer is the same as in two above.

4. How do you compute the fee for a compounded prescription? You simply add ten cents for each minute over ten minutes. This only occurs about 5% of the time or less.

5. How does the fixed fee cover the cost plus a return on the investment in inventory? The answer is that only about 3% of total prescription overhead can be related directly to inventory investment and only about 20% of prescription overhead is in any way variable. Most costs are fixed on a year's basis at least. Average return on investment can be calculated.

6. Isn't the fee unrealistic for prescription ingredients costing over $4.00? The answer is that only 8.5% of the prescriptions sell for more than $6.00 and only 1.5% of them sell for more than $10.00. This is adequately compensated for with the increased revenue for the less expensive prescriptions. Some of the other advantages of the professional fee are:

1. The fee may be used to improve professional relations. The physicians have been enthusiastic about it.

2. It will, when properly used, promote good public relations.

3. It could have definite legal advantages in that it more nearly defines the professional services of the pharmacist when compared with the markup methods.

W. S. Wolfe: Pharmacist of the Year

More than 150 pharmacists and their wives, relatives and friends attended the June 27 testimonial dinner in Mount Airy at which time William Samuel Wolfe was honored as "Pharmacist of the Year." Requests for dinner tickets were so numerous that their sale had to be suspended in the early afternoon prior to the dinner.

Following an invocation by The Reverend Frank C. Smathers of the Central Methodist Church and the dinner, an official welcome was extended by The Honorable E. T. Clark, Mayor of the Town of Mount Airy.

W. Frank Carter, Jr., former mayor of the Town of Mount Airy, and Dr. Roger A. McDuffie of Greensboro, covered the highlights of Mr. Wolfe's career, which extends over a 50-year period (see July issue CAROLINA JOURNAL OF PHARMACY, page 19).

Presiding officer at the dinner, held in Mount Airy's beautiful Reeves YMCA Building, was Hoy A. Moose, President of the NCPA. Mr. Moose presented the Mortar & Pestle Award to Mr. Wolfe.

In an editorial tribute to Mr. Wolfe, the Mount Airy Times had this to say, in part:

"Mount Airy and Wolfe Drug Company without the genial "Mr. Willie" Wolfe would be hard to imagine. His smile and pleasant greeting are as much a part of the Main Street business life here as is the regard with which Mr. Wolfe is accorded by his profession.

"Such a testimonial dinner is only fitting for a man who has worked so diligently for his city, church and chosen field of work. And the "Mortar & Pestle Award" is decidedly appropriate, too."

At the conclusion of the dinner, a poem especially written for the occasion by Gilmer Buchanan of Greensboro was read by Dr. McDuffie. The theme was "Here is one 'Wolfe' you don't want to keep from the door."

Board Action on July 16

1. A program for licensing hospital pharmacies, as recommended by Mr. Forbus, was approved. Preliminary plans for start of the program are underway.

2. Examination procedure amended as follows: "A general average of 75% with not less than 60% on any branch, except practical pharmacy, wherein not less than 75% is required, shall be necessary for a candidate to pass the examination. Applicants making a general average of 75% in the written examination but failing to make 75% in the practical examination must re-take and pass the latter before license will be granted. Applicants making an average of 75% or more on the practical examination but failing to make a general average of 75% on the written examination must re-take and pass the entire examination."

3. Due to sub-standard condition of a pharmacy, action will be initiated to close the prescription department.

4. License of a pharmacist revoked due to illegal sale of Rx Legend drugs. Pharmacy permit revoked due to fraudulent statements contained in application.

5. Action deferred, subject to correction of existing conditions, on complaint of manner in which a pharmacy was being operated.

6. Pharmacist's license revoked due to continued excessive use of alcohol. If no pharmacist employed, pharmacy permit will have to be surrendered.

7. Dispensing of counterfeit drugs. Federal action deemed sufficient punishment.

8. Endorsed proposal by a hospital pharmacist that a rotation hospital pharmacist apprentice program be developed.

9. Approved revision of pharmacy permit application and set up a working arrangement with the Medical Care Commission.

Robert B. Hall of Mocksville officially represented the NCPA executive committee at the meeting.

Three Particularly Important Phases of Problem Areas in the Industry

By C. B. HOWELL,
General Sales Manager, A. H. Robins Company, Inc.

1. Food and Drug Administration

New Food and Drug Administration regulations are showing a definite tendency to slow down progress in the pharmaceutical industry. The requirements, both from the standpoint of laboratory and clinical work, as well as the paper work required for a New Drug Application, are so involved that we are going to experience a slowdown in the release of new products. New regulations require that New Drug Applications on all experimental drugs should be filed by June 7. In lieu of this it is possible for the manufacturer to request an extension, and in the event that neither of these opportunities are accepted, the experimental drug must then be dropped from further consideration.

There are two possible worthwhile results from the above requirements; first of all, older products will assume a position of greater importance in the sales promotional efforts of all pharmaceutical firms in the future. A second result which will be pleasing to pharmacy owners will be a tendency for prescription room inventories to level off. Since there will be fewer new products, the additions to the inventory in this department will obviously be lessened.

One of the unfortunate circumstances resulting from the drug hearings, as well as new Food and Drug regulations, is the high cost of conforming. Label changes, changes in labeling as presented in literature, and the addition of carton and package inserts present a measurable increase in the cost of producing a product for the market. This will necessarily reflect itself in price increases before too long.

2. Public Relations

The continuing necessity for selling the profession and the industry to the lay public becomes more apparent every day. The need to present facts rather than sensational, unreliable statements to the lay person is vital. This is a big task and requires a share of the responsibility by all segments of the health team.

There is a great need for pharmacists and representatives of pharmaceutical manufacturers to accept every opportunity to speak before groups on the contribution of the health team to the population as a whole. They need to be advised as to the expense incurred in the development of a new product, the high cost of good research and the fine benefits, including a longer life expectancy, which result from the invention of lifesaving drugs. One other important opportunity is open to the pharmacist through the "selling" of a prescription to the customer. A brief explanation about the contents, why the price is what it is and how the patient may benefit through a quicker recovery, avoidance of hospitalization, etc., is most important.

Senate Sub-Committees, under the direction of both Senators Kefauver and Humphrey, have blackened the reputation of the industry and frightened the Food and Drug Administration until this important Department of Health Administration has become confused. Even the youth of the nation have been influenced by this publicity and now require even greater encouragement to induce them to consider the Profession of Pharmacy as their life's work.

3. National Economy

A look ahead at the projected figures in the national economy dictates the necessity for more and more graduate pharmacists. The gross national profit, which is estimated for 1965 to be in the neighborhood of six hundred fifteen billion dollars, will rise to over nine hundred billion dollars in 1975, according to economists. We can, therefore, anticipate an increase of 50% in the monies available for drugs and other merchandise sold in retail pharmacies.

The next decade will see:

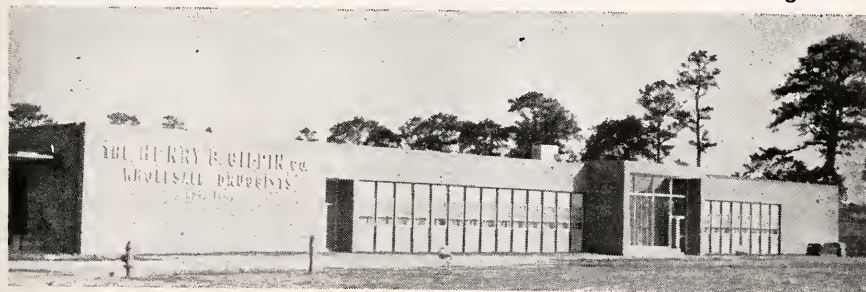

- (1) Big improvement in living standards
- (2) No major recessions
- (3) Many new and better products
- (4) An expanded world business in which research becomes a competitive necessity rather than an adjunctive phase of that business.

The future of Pharmacy is bright, but it needs the help of everyone associated with the profession in all sections of the industry to make it what it can be. We in the manufacturing end look ahead to great improvements in products and methods of marketing, and we will be depending on the retailer for his continued support.

To the End of the Line

Federal drug regulations now require manufacturers to record the lot number on all products placed into marketing channels.

Wholesalers who have been diverting pharmaceuticals into non-pharmacy channels will no longer be able to cover up their deeds as they have done in the past by altering shipping labels.

Pharmaceutical manufacturers who attempt a pharmacy-only distribution policy now have a new potent weapon at their disposal. From here on out, the spotlight will be on the diverters.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

Six members of the pharmacy faculty received promotions in academic rank effective July 1: Drs. M. A. Chambers and Claude Piantadosi to Full Professorships, Drs. James L. Brannon, George H. Cocolas, and A. W. Jowdy to Associate Professorships; and Dr. W. W. Taylor to Assistant Professorship.

The three national meetings held in Chapel Hill reached new attendance records and were highly successful in gaining active participation and enthusiasm and also enjoyment of the facilities and surroundings of the University of North Carolina.

The American Society of Pharmacognosy held its fourth annual convention on July 18-20 with headquarters at the Carolina Inn and meetings in the auditorium of the School of Public Health. There were 103 registrants with about half of them teachers in colleges of pharmacy and the other half from industry. Reservations also included 28 wives and 22 children. Dr. Jack K. Wier, Assistant Professor of Pharmacognosy was local chairman for the meeting. Dr. H. R. Totten, Professor of Botany and Pharmacognosy, emeritus, was leader for a field trip on Saturday afternoon.

The Sixty-Fourth Annual Meeting of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy was held from Sunday noon, July 21 to Tuesday noon, July 23 and was followed immediately by the Fifteenth Pharmacy Teachers' Seminar which ended on Friday afternoon, July 26. There were 246 registrants who brought 88 wives, 88 children and 8 guests. The meetings were held in Peabody Hall, School of Education, and the majority of seminarians were housed in Ehringhaus Dormitory. The themes of the seminar were The Perspectives and Objectives of Pharmacy and Pharmaceutical Education followed by The Application of the Psychology and Methodology of Education in the Pharmaceutical Disciplines of Pharmaceutics, Pharmaceutical Chemistry, Pharmacognosy, Pharmacology, and Pharmacy Administration. While the meetings could not be held in Beard Hall because it does not have air conditioning, nearly all of the visitors toured through the new facilities of the School of Pharmacy and were highly complimentary about the quality and arrangement of its facilities.

Dr. M. A. Chambers, Assistant Dean, and Dr. J. K. Brannon and a crew of workmen from the Buildings Department of the University spent all day on July 18 at Tarboro preparing all of the fixtures from E. V. Zoeller & Co., Druggists for transportation to the School of Pharmacy. These fixtures are now stored in the basement until an area can be prepared for a pharmacy museum. When funds can be found for the preparation of finished space the school will have the basic facilities for an outstanding museum showing pharmacy of the past.

Two grants in the School of Pharmacy have been renewed. Dr. George H. Cocolas has received approval for the renewal at $4,800 for a third year from the National Institutes of Health to continue research on glucamic acid analogs. Dr. J. C. Kellett Jr. has received a renewal for a second year from The National Science Foundation at $4,200 for the undergraduate research participation grant.

An interesting and valuable gift has been received for the pharmacy museum from Mrs. Lillian Wright of Chapel Hill who presented ten bottles collected on the beach near their cottage (Dr. John J. Wright is Professor of Public Health Administration) at Mann's Harbor. The bottles were washed up, one or two at a time, and were collected between 1951 and 1960. Particularly rare in the collection are five bottles of three different types for Turlington's Balsam. It is a curiosity why three different types of bottles were found in one place.

There were 56 pharmacy students registered during the first summer term at the University of North Carolina.

On June 27 E. A. Brecht, M. A. Chambers, and Jack K. Wier represented the School of Pharmacy at the Pharmacist of the Year Award Dinner honoring Mr. W. S. Wolfe at Mt. Airy.

Historical Notes

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

Recently I have run across several "bits" of historical information concerning medicine and pharmacy that were of such interest to me that I am recording them here.

First of all, I hope that everybody will visit the "Mobile Museum of History," traveling across the State this summer, setting forth to North Carolinians the first one hundred years of their history. The museum is part of the commemorative program of the tercentenary of the Carolina Charter. Displays portray highlights in the development of the State during the pre-Revolutionary War era. One of the exhibits calls attention to the Culpepper Rebellion and should be of interest to pharmacists as it depicts the trial of the tyrannical Thomas Miller, an apothecary and a "person of some consideration," who was sent from England to this State as an official of the Crown, and whose excesses were one of the direct causes of the Rebellion.

An interesting narrative, authored by Colonel Fred Olds and entitled "Our North Carolina Indians," was published in the North Carolina Booklet, xvii (1917) on p. 39. One sentence concerning the Tuscarora tribe of Indians caught our eye immediately. It reads: "The Indian tribe 'Tuscarora,' (really Sharuren or Hemp-gatherers) are so called, because they gathered the Cannabis Indica, or wild hemp for various uses."

The deportation of a party of about 100 Swiss 'undesirables' to North Carolina in 1710 was carried out in part as a commercial venture by George Ritter and Company, a colonizing and silver-prospecting group. (These Swiss joined between 300 and 400 Germans from the war-ravaged Palatinate, under the leadership of the Bernese nobleman, Christoph von Graffenried, and founded the City of New Bern in this State.) In the documents in the State Archives of the Canton of Bern, George Ritter is designated as "an apothecary."

During the American Revolution the embargo placed by Great Britain on imported drugs and the scarcity of native ones created a serious situation in taking care of the health problems of both the Continental forces and civilians. Slowly thereafter this country realized the importance of producing its own medicinals. At a meeting of the North Carolina Medical Society, held in Raleigh, on December 1, 1800—less than a year after its founding—prizes in money were established by the organization for "certain quantities of plants and medicinal articles produced in North Carolina as follows: fox-glove, opium, rhubarb, castor oil and senna." It is unfortunate that apparently there is no record of entries for the prizes or the winners. At the following meeting of the Society, held in the Capital on December 1, 1801, "A committee was appointed to take steps towards establishing a botanical garden, for the cultivation of medicinal plants, and it was also resolved to found a medical library." (Extracts taken from Haywood: "The North Carolina Medical Society of 1799-1804." North Carolina Booklet, xvi, 3, January, 1917.

Report

President of the Woman's Auxiliary to the

North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association

Mr. President, members of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, members of the Traveling Men's Association, and Guests.

I bring greetings to you from the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, and it is my pleasure to give a report of the year's activities.

We hope that you do not mind our being "Copy Cats" for as you will see we have purchased a pin similar to yours for our President to wear during her term of office. It has a diamond in it too!!

As President of the Woman's Auxiliary I have traveled several thousand miles around the state by car and by plane. It has been a most rewarding and happy privilege, getting acquainted with all of the fine people associated with the profession of Pharmacy.

In May I represented our Auxiliary at a Testimonial dinner given for Mr. J. E. F. Hicks, in Goldsboro, and in July the dinner honoring the "Pharmacist of the Year," Mr. T. J. Ham at Yanceyville. Later on in the year I was present at a Convention Planning Session held at Pinchurst, and attended "Ladies Night" of the Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society and that of the Wilson Club. The School of Pharmacy was visited and the Institute of Pharmacy numerous times.

Being eligible because our Auxiliary is a member of the North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations, four of our members attended the three day Workshop held in Chapel Hill in July, and three members attended the Public Affairs Conference in Greensboro. The main address of this Conference was given by the Hon. Christian A. Herter. During the year I attended three Executive Board meetings of the Council, as a representative from our Auxiliary.

In October our own Workshop was attended by seventy of our members. We call this "Officer's Day" but every interested member is invited. On our program were two men, highly rated in their fields, who conducted classes in Public Speaking and Parliamentary Procedure. Another very important feature of the day was that of launching our Service Project—Bedside Bags.

During the week before Christmas our members distributed 1742 attractively filled Bedside Bags to the chronically ill patients of the state. This was a most rewarding experience. We are indebted to our wholesale friends for many of the articles used in the bags.

THIS REPORT BY MRS. JOHN T. STEVENSON OF ELIZABETH CITY BRIEFLY SUMMARIZES THE WORK OF THE AUXILIARY FOR THE PAST YEAR. IT WAS PRESENTED AT THE 1963 PINEHURST CONVENTION.

By March 15th, officers had been installed in THREE newly organized Local Clubs. They are:

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society
The Mortar and Pestle Club of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association
Cumberland County Pharmaceutical Auxiliary

Now, these are the names by which they were christened, so to speak, put just as we shorten our children's names I expect they will soon be known as Northeastern, Mortar and Pestle and Cumberland County. We now have 16 Local Clubs.

Our fall and spring official publication—DOINGS, reports in the Journal of Pharmacy, much correspondence and even occasional messages slipped into the Tar Heel Digest have kept our members up to date on what was going on and in touch with one another.

From September through March, twelve of the thirteen Local Clubs and two of the new ones were visited by me, in an official capacity. The history of our organization which dates back to 1920, current activities on the state and local levels and our aims and plans for the future were some of the subjects discussed on these visits.

An Educational Grant of $125.00 was given this year to a worthy student of Pharmacy whose needs were brought to our attention.

The Student Emergency Loan Fund stands at $1,671.25.

The Reserve Fund has a balance of $545.43.

The Endowment Principal of the Vivian Spradlin Smith Scholarship is $6,500.00. This scholarship was awarded to a boy in the Senior class who was recommended (due to his excellent record) by Dean Brecht of the School of Pharmacy.

The Lucile Swarigen Rogers Scholarship Fund now totals $3,978.81.

Total receipts reported at our business session were $925.00. Four Scholarships were given for students in the School of Pharmacy and extra assistance made available for 134 additional students.

This report would not be complete without giving special thanks to Vivian and W. J. Smith who have cordially welcomed us on each visit to the Institute, and given so generously of their time and talents to the work of our Auxiliary.

Historical Notes

Finally, we enjoyed reading in the June, 1963 issue of American Heritage, a biographical article about Dr. J. H. McLean, of St. Louis—"the medicine-man turned peace-maker—who in the 19th century turned from the manufacture of proprietaries to the developing of such terribly destructive weapons of warfare that would compel nations to keep peace toward each other." During his earlier career as a "medicine man" he was in partnership with Dr. Addison G. Bragg—"known far and wide for his Mexican Mustang Liniment, his Volcanic Oil Liniment and his Indian Queen Vegetable Anti-bilious Tonic Pills." The partnership was soon dissolved and "Dr." McLean struck out on his own, opened a store, and sent agents traveling through the country-side to peddle such products as McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment and McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier."

MD Guest Speaker at Greensboro Meeting

Guest speaker at the June 28 meeting of The Greensboro Society of Pharmacists was Dr. Norman H. Garrett, Jr., whose subject was "Selected Subjects in Prescription Writing."

Dr. Garrett presented his views on refills, interpretation of the refill intent, policy on crediting drugs, some of the pet peeves of physicians, problems associated with narcotics, telephoned prescriptions and the purposes of "label" on prescription.

Dave Montgomery, Chairman of the New Products and Development Committee, presented a report on 10 newly named pharmaceutical products introduced during June. Also, he presented a list of 21 products introduced 6 months ago as reminders to pharmacists who may wish to check the turnover status of their products.

Monthly reports of the New Products and Development Committee will be mimeographed and distributed to members of the Society. The group also voted to renew its subscription to the A.Ph.A. Public Relations Service.

Research literally means to "investigate exhaustively" or to "search again and again." V-Cillin K® (potassium phenoxymethyl penicillin, Lilly) is a good example of the results of continuing research. Subtle changes in the penicillin molecule account for the product's outstanding clinical advantages and prescription demand.

Children preferred them to all leading brands of Chewable Vitamins in Independent Taste Studies*

In recent taste studies, new cherry-flavored Vi-Daylin Chewable was compared with the five leading brands of chewable vitamins. 858 children participated. No child knew which brands he was taking. And the order of tasting was switched throughout for absolute fairness. Result: Children preferred the new Vi-Daylin to any of the brands tested by margins ranging from 1½ to 1 (the lowest) to nearly 3 to 1.

Dual Coating Makes the Difference. Our dual-coating process provides a key to the superior taste characteristics of this new product. This process civilizes raw vitamin tastes and odors and protects volatile flavoring agents until use. Also, the tablets are sweetened with sugar-free Sucaryl®.

Needed—A Strong Quality Stabilization Act

BY EDWARD WIMMER

National Federation of Independent Business

If there were no laws protecting the buffalo, deer, pheasant, bear or any other species of wild life, the predatory hunters would kill and kill until none should be left.

Consider the frightening days when the predatory loggers and lumber mill operators were destroying the great Redwoods and Sycamores. The legislative bodies of Oregon and California called a halt.

We also protect the fish in the lakes and streams. We prevent the bullies from smashing the ribs and heads of weaker players in basketball and football . . . leaving the contest hard, but fair and free. I was talking to a race horse owner the other day and he was telling me about the tough measures being taken to protect the decent element in horse racing, and the people, who wager their money.

Why, with all this protection of fish, buffalo, beavers, trees, horses, gamblers and football players, do we not protect the young men entering the American market place from murderous, predatory competition? Are not the flesh and blood proprietors and prospective proprietors as important to the future, as a fish or a race track gambler?

While you have been reading this editorial, thousands of small businesses moved a step closer to turning the key in their doors for the last time, because Congress has failed to establish "Rules of Fair Play"—of honorable conduct in the market place as represented in the aims of the Quality Stabilization Act.

With each delay, the skeleton of free enterprise rattles louder in our closets, warning us that someday the youth of our nation will find it and bury it—forever. A strong Q S A would come as a great boon to our economy—and lend new hope to the future.

A Backward Glance at the Cure-All Medicine Men

Allison James, a former president of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association and at one time manufacturer of Yerkes Palatable Preparation (a forerunner of Hadaeol), was the subject of an interesting feature story in the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel (August 4).

Entitled "Hucksters of Old: The Patent Medicine Men" the article carried a 3-col. cut of Mr. James shown holding a bottle of Yerkes Preparation. Included in the story are comments about some old and some not so old familiars, such as Hamlin's Wizard Oil, Pikes Peak Liver, Stomach and Kidney Remedy (The Saline Laxative with the Iron Bracer), Wampole's Cod Liver Extract, Scott's Emulsion (the man with the fish) and, of course, the preparations manufactured by Allison under the Yerkes label.

The start of an old time medicine show is pictured by James: "After throwing money in the streets to attract a crowd, the 'doctor' would start his lecture by calling out 'Glad to see you, mayor. And you, too, sheriff.'" No one bothered to see if the mayor and sheriff were present. "It gave a certain tone to the gathering," James recalled.

Holland Named President

Thomas M. Holland of Mount Holly was installed as president of the Mount Holly Lions Club on July 1.

Mr. Holland and his father, W. F., operate the Holland Drug Company.

Sloop Heads Health Board

Roger H. Sloop, UNC Pharmacy '56, has been elected chairman of the Forsyth County Board of Health. A member of the Board for the past two and one-half years, Sloop took over as head of the Board on July 1.

Another Winston-Salem pharmacist, Wade A. Gilliam, served in a similar capacity several years ago.

W. Ronald Lane of Wilmington has purchased the Mentho-Mulsion Company of Atlanta. Later this year, the firm's operation will be moved to Wilmington, where the company's principal products—cough medicines and salves—will be manufactured.

Kerr to Open in Rocky Mount

The ninth of the Kerr drug stores, under ownership of Banks D. Kerr of Raleigh, will be opened in November in Rocky Mount's new shopping center—Tarrytown—at the junction of Highways 301 and 64.

Pharmacist Now Church Pastor

Jonathan A. Don Hill (UNC Pharmacy School graduate and 1955 pharmacist) is now pastor of the Caroleen Baptist Church. Caroleen is a small community 5 miles south of Forest City.

Rev. Hill has 487 resident church members, a budget of a little over $40,000 of which about 25% goes to missions. In recent months, about $50,000 has been spent on church improvements.

While in seminary at Wake Forest, Rev. Hill worked as a relief pharmacist for T. E. Holding and Company. He plans to maintain active membership in the NCPA.

Net Pricing and Economics of Drug Distribution

By EARL W. KINTNER

Washington Counsel, National Wholesale Druggists' Assn.

A change to net pricing practices reflects an effort by the drug manufacturer to place the burden of reducing consumer drug prices on others in the chain of distribution. Assuming the desirability of providing consumers with the best possible drugs at the lowest possible prices, we turn to the issue of how the burden of providing reduced drug costs should be shared. We know that the principal burden is now on the shoulders of the full-time drug wholesaler, and the independent retail druggist.

The immediate consequences of net pricing require the manufacturer to assume some of the drug wholesaling function, while the bulk of the remaining wholesaling function is pushed onto the retail druggists.

The drug wholesaler suffers. Although disciplined to providing an array of services to retail druggists on a narrow profit margin, nevertheless the wholesaler must have some margin of profit. The drug wholesaler cannot continue to perform his vital role in drug distribution if relegated to stocking slow moving drugs, plus filling occasional orders for drug when the retail druggist finds a particular supply unexpectedly depleted.

The independent retail druggist suffers. More capital must be tied up in inventory, and additional storage space will be required. No longer will the retail druggist be able to turn to his drug wholesaler for credit, for guidance and advice, for inventory control, for prompt delivery and the host of services essential for competitive survival. The drug wholesaler no longer would be able to afford to perform these full line services and, parenthetically, the retail druggist would be unable to compensate by zealous promotional activity, because it is the physician, not the pharmacist, who "promotes" the sale of prescription drugs.

Finally, let us turn to some of the long-range implications of net pricing on an industry-wide level.

Net pricing creates a void in the channels of distribution. The net-pricing manufacturer, as discussed, has in effect volunteered to perform some wholesaling functions. I submit that the manufacturer who utilizes net pricing will be pressured into assuming more wholesaler responsibilities to fill this void. The ability of a manufacturer to fill this void is in no small measure affected by economic and business cycles. This forward integration in the market place may lead to chaotic conditions, for no drug manufacturer will be able to provide all of the full-line services of a drug wholesaler.

In order to maintain some order in drug distribution, therefore, the retail druggists will of necessity be forced to expand to a degree sufficient to justify, economically, direct purchasing on a large volume basis with its attendant wholesaling function. The drug manufacturers will be encouraging "bigness" in the retail drug field. I submit that thoughtful drug manufacturers do not want to encourage the formation of countervailing power which will dilute its position in the American economy. While,

A CAUTIONARY NOTICE FROM HENRY L. GIORDANO, COMMISSIONER OF NARCOTICS

This is to remind all pharmacists that any person dealing in exempt narcotic drug preparations is required to determine whether the drug he sells comes within the permissive features of the law. Exempt narcotic preparations may be sold only in good faith as a medicine and not for the purpose of gratifying addiction. The Federal and the State laws provide that preparations are not considered exempt when sold with the intent and purpose of evading the general prohibitions of the laws. Also, accurate records must be maintained of all sales of Class X exempt narcotic preparations.

Tax Tip for the Month

Most business owners are familiar with accelerated depreciation, but they are not aware that they can use "decelerated" depreciation, which gives an opposite result. Decelerated depreciation gives low depreciation deductions in the early life of an asset and high deductions in the asset's later life. This is a good method to use when current income is low and you expect higher income in future years. In future years the larger deductions offset higher income which gives a greater tax saving.

This and hundreds of other tax tips are fully explained in SMALL BUSINESS TAX CONTROL. Send $9.00 to the Association for a year's subscription to this monthly bulletin of tax saving ideas.

Ahern Named Officer of McKesson and Robbins

Donald H. Ahern has been named vice president of the Northeast Drug District of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., according to an announcement by Henry H. Henley, president. Mr. Ahern succeeds James W. Seibert, deceased.

Mr. Ahern, who had been manager of the firm's North Hollywood, Calif., drug division, since September 1961, first joined McKesson in 1950 as a sales trainee at its Columbia, S. C., drug division. He served there as a salesman and assistant division sales manager until 1956 when he was transferred to the Company's New York home office as assistant to the national sales manager.

In 1957, Mr. Ahern was appointed sales manager of McKesson's Charlotte, N. C., drug division, and in 1958 became manager of the Roanoke, Va., drug division.

A native of Charlotte, N. C., Mr. Ahern received his bachelor's degree from the University of North Carolina and his master's degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Business. He served with the U. S. Marine Corps for four years, attaining the rank of Captain.

Morris Honored by Greensboro Society of Pharmacist

In recognition of his devoted service to Pharmacy, M. G. Morris was honored by members of the Greensboro Society of Pharmacists when a recent meeting of the Society was devoted largely to him.

G. Gilmer Buchanan recounted Mr. Morris's long association with Greensboro pharmacy. A verse penned in his honor was read by Al Mebane. Wyndham Dukes, acting on behalf of the Society, presented him with a gift—a dozen golf balls. And a suitably inscribed certificate was turned over to Mr. Morris by Claude U. Paoloni.

Mr. Morris is retiring as medical service representative for E. R. Squibb and Sons. He is a past president of the Traveling Men's Auxiliary of the NCPA.

Welton Laboratories and Garde Drug Company Division Acquire New Laboratory, Production and Warehouse Facilities

Through their parent company, Old Empire, Inc., new facilities at Clifton, N. J., will be occupied by Garde and Welton about September 3. Erected in 1961 at a cost in excess of $1,000,000, specifically for the manufacturing of pharmaceutical products, the building is located on 11½ acres of land. It provides 120,000 square feet of plant and office space on one floor with land available to double this space. Included is ultra-modern production and packaging equipment installed in late 1961 at a cost of $695,000.

Welton produces OTC proprietary products and the Garde Division prescription products. Retail pharmacies are supplied through service wholesale druggists.

LETTERS

To The Editor

Dear W. J.:

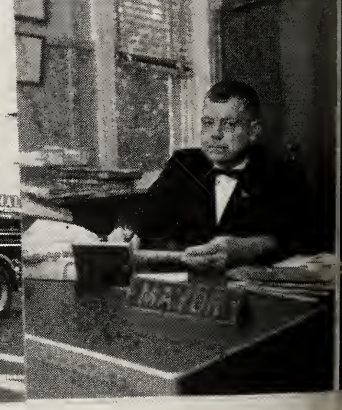

I have now been using the professional fee system for pricing prescriptions for 5 months and it has become a matter of routine. The word "markup" left the scene some time ago. I still feel this is the fairest, most ethical and fool-proof system of pricing ever devised. It gives the pharmacy owner a guaranteed profit in his prescription department, taking all guess work out of prescription pricing. In time, if it becomes a universal practice, it will provide a means whereby pharmacists will be paid a salary fitting the profession and will raise the public image of the profession to a degree that we may erase the shortage of pharmacists in North Carolina.

In accordance with your instructions, I added the prices of 500 prescriptions filled last year in June and got a total of $1,355.65. 500 prescriptions filled this June and priced by the professional fee method totaled $1,432.50. This gives the pharmacy an extra margin of $76.85, or a 5.6% increase in net profit. We should take into consideration that practically all vitamins, oral contraceptives, steroids and antibiotics have been reduced in price during the 12-months period. Taking this into consideration, I don't think it unreasonable to increase this 5.6% to 8 or 9%.

Our fee is based upon a sliding scale with about 5% exemptions. We use our own judgment when it comes to pricing 6 Seconal Capsules, etc. We exempt all copies from other pharmacies and most OTC products.

Our fee is $0.00 to $2.00 (cost of ingredients)—$1.30; $2.00 to $3.50—$1.75; and $3.50 up—$2.00.

This, according to my calculations, gives us a guaranteed gross profit of approximately $1.37 per prescription and a net of $0.20. This does not take into consideration discounts and quantity buying. Profit figures are based upon last years' cost of operation.

(11) Meanwhile, back at the Pharmacy Mrs. Mitchener takes care of a customer. Here is the answer to "How does John find time to do all these things?"—an understanding wife who is also a pharmacist.

(12) After the register has been checked and the pharmacy closed for the night, a review of the day's activities is in order. Here one of the Mitchener's younger sons is given a glimpse of father's and mother's problems and triumphs. This one, like most days, was a plus one for The Mitcheners.

A Hospital Pharmacist Discusses Some Mutual Problems

By FRANK LOWDER

City Memorial Hospital Pharmacy, Winston-Salem

One of the main problems in North Carolina with which both hospital and retail pharmacists should be concerned is that of hospitals without the services of a registered pharmacist. According to a report from the Minimum Standards Committee of the North Carolina Society of Hospital Pharmacists, in 1961 there were 173 classified hospitals in North Carolina. Of this total only 30 had established pharmacies employing 54 pharmacists registered with the N. C. Board of Pharmacy.

The pharmacy profession does not sanction uncontrolled and unrestricted distribution of drugs, either as individual pharmacists or as organized professional groups. As it is today, the ambulant patient who procures a prescription from his physician has all the legal and moral benefits and protection he deserves when he takes his prescription to the community or retail pharmacist; but what happens to this benefit and protection when he becomes a hospital patient and is even more deserving of these safeguards?

A vast percentage of total drugs employed in medical practice is being used in the hospitals, and, as medical treatment facilities begin to centralize around the hospitals it is to be expected that an even greater increase in out-patient dispensing will be demanded by the public. I would like to emphasize at this point that it is becoming a public demand that the hospital furnish a one-stop medical treatment facility, including prescription service, even though this is not necessarily a choice of the hospital whose primary concern is treatment of the in-patient. This trend will most certainly affect the retail drug field but I do not believe the impact will be as great as one might first expect.

The out-patient clinics established at hospital facilities will primarily treat patients on an ambulatory basis which, before the establishment of the clinics, would have required hospitalization. Consequently drugs dispensed at the clinics would ordinarily have been used in the hospital prior to the establishment of the clinics; so there will be little drain from the retail market. Secondly, the public will not readily accept the assembly line, impersonal type of attention rendered at the hospital pharmacies; this too greatly resembles socialized medicine. The patient may obtain his first prescription at the hospital clinic during his appointment with the physician, but he will quickly return to his neighborhood pharmacy for its convenience and greater services offered. The exception to this will, of course, be the welfare patient.

The shortage of pharmacists practicing in hospitals and the anticipated increase in demands of the hospital facilities leads us to a basic question: Is automation by vending type machinery a solution? I say NO! Drug distribution in the hospital alone is not sufficient. We still must require control, and I believe this can be achieved only by a well organized pharmacy department utilizing modern-day efficient means. Hospitals have long been criticized for lacking in efficiency and the pharmacy department is no exception. The age old concept of dispensing has not changed since pharmacy was born as a profession. The most modern piece of equipment used in the mechanical act of dispensing a drug is the typewriter.

I am convinced that the only effective manner in which drug control may be obtained in the hospital is by dispensing all drugs in single doses directly from the pharmacy to the patient. Automation would enter here, but only as an aid to the pharmacist and not as a replacement. Some form of electronic data processing equipment would be required to program such an operation, and automatic packaging machinery such as is used on sample drugs would be required. I might add that enough interest has been exhibited in this form of hospital in-patient dispensing that some major pharmaceutical companies have already made their products available in strip package form.

The vending type dispensing machines do not offer adequate control so far as patient safety is concerned. Their main danger point is that they remove from the pharmacist the opportunity to check a physician's drug order for errors before the patient receives the drug.

This new concept of dispensing does not solve the problem of a shortage of pharmacists in our hospitals, but I do hope that it will form a basis for rejection of the vending type machinery. I feel that I have dwelled too long on this subject which is primarily of interest only to hospital pharmacists; but I might add that if vending machines gain a foothold in the hospitals, then it would be feasible that they could also be used in other areas of drug distribution outside the hospital, e.g., doctor's office, clinic, industrial infirmary, etc. It is at this point that it becomes a mutual problem for hospitals and retail pharmacists.

Time seems to be the best solution in providing pharmacy service to hospitals not now employing pharmacists. Each year more interest is being displayed in the field of hospital pharmacy by graduating pharmacy students, and as each year passes the smaller hospitals grow larger and soon discover their need for supervised drug distribution by qualified personnel. Eventually the day will come when all drugs will be dispensed by legally qualified pharmacists. This is the goal for which we should all strive.

A Continuing Need for Medication Control

Pharmacists and physicians alike tend to "fall into a routine" with regard to supplying medication to patients who are undergoing long term treatment. The management of epilepsy is a good example of the type of case in which this occurs. In the vast majority of these cases satisfactory results are obtained with a minimum of inconvenience and expense to the patient. Occasionally something occurs that points up the necessity for continuing vigilance in all cases of long term medication.

Recently one of our major pharmaceutical manufacturers forwarded a letter to all physicians in the United States concerning two instances of untoward results encountered with the administration of ethosuximide, which, incidentally is used in the treatment of epilepsy. This letter states in part as follows:

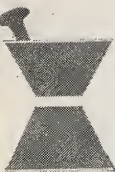

"Several cases of agranulocytosis and severe pancytopenia have been reported. Recently two cases (one fatal) of bone marrow depression have been received. These reports came from Europe; and even though many details are not known, the following information was supplied to our representatives.

Case I. Patient was a 15-year-old female with a history of having received Zarontin for four years in a dosage range from 7 to 10 capsules daily. The diagnosis was agranulocytosis and marrow transplants were not successful.

Case II. Patient was a 15-year-old male who developed increasing pallor and bleeding from the nose during the autumn of 1961 while receiving Zarontin and phenobarbital. A severe anemia (hemoglobin 5.1 Gm.), leukopenia found. Zarontin was discontinued. The patient received a blood transfusion, and a bone marrow aspiration on October 20, showed hyperplasia with increased erythropoiesis and many immature red cells. During the next two months he received seven blood transfusions and 25 mg. of prednisone daily and penicillin prophylactically. The thrombocytopenia and granulocytopenia persisted and on February 2, 1962, a splenectomy was performed. During the following four months transfusions were not necessary, but the platelets and granulocytes remained low. After two transfusions the hemoglobin began to increase, reticulocytosis developed, and there was a steady increase in the number of platelets and granulocytes. On February 11, 1963, the hemoglobin was 84 per cent, white blood cell count—5800 with 30 per cent granulocytes, platelets count—208,000 and reticulocytes—5 per cent. He is still receiving steroid therapy and phenobarbital."

While the evidence found in these two cases does not warrant the withdrawal of this drug for use in other cases, it does place us on notice that continued use in any case should be watched closely. This is the point we desire to make. All persons taking any medication should be observed closely during the course of treatment—both short and long term. All effective medications are poisons to some degree. If this were not the case, they would be useless except for their psychological effect. The two cases of untoward effects with ethosuximide are a good reminder to pharmacists that they must continue to work closely with physicians in effecting adequate medication control—even with Aunt Minnie who has been getting her heart pills for years. Constant vigil and adequate reappraisals are among the most important factors in any safe medication program.

Dr. T. C. Smith Company's New 40,000 Square Foot Building Dedicated in West Asheville

Formal dedication of the new 40,000 square foot building now housing the Dr. T. C. Smith Drug Company, 280 North Hanover Street, West Asheville, took place on Sunday afternoon, August 11.

Hundreds of pharmacists and friends of this the oldest wholesale drug house in the state took the opportunity on Dedication Sunday to get a guided tour through the building, which is designed for rapid handling of drug and sundry merchandise. To expedite order filling, several new ideas have been incorporated into the operation by F. Stacy Smith, president of the firm.

The statistics are impressive: 32,000 masonry blocks and 46,000 brick; 95 tons of structural steel, 51,000 cubic yards of earth moved for construction, etc. The office and warehouse are protected by an automatic sprinkler system. Merchandise is classified by manufacturers lines, with Lilly heading the list, on 40,000 square feet of all metal storage shelving.

The original Dr. T. C. Smith Company was established in 1869 in Charlotte. The Asheville operation got its start in 1887, when Dr. Smith disposed of his Charlotte holdings and moved to the mountains. Two sons, Thomas C. and Frank S., operated the firm during the WWI and WWII periods, with the present president, F. Stacy, a grandson of the founder, identified closely with the operation for the past thirty years.

Dr. T. C. Smith's new business home is some distance from its former down-town Asheville location on Lexington Asheville. The move has been a wise one. There is ample space for everything—movement of incoming and outgoing merchandise, a 1-floor operation, parking area for 60 cars, etc. In short, Smith has an ultra modern plant which is a credit to Western North Carolina. The house is nearing its 100th birthday but in terms of planning for the future expansion of Pharmacy in Western North Carolina, the Dr. T. C. Smith Company is several paces ahead of the space age.

SBI Steps Up Training

SBI Director Walter Anderson has announced plans for intensive training of all 30 SBI agents in special techniques of narcotics investigation. According to Anderson, "the use of barbiturates and amphetamines by teen-agers is getting out-of-hand."

Assisting in the training program are representatives of pharmaceutical houses and the State Board of Pharmacy.

It is not by chance that your pharmacist has the proper drug ready for you when your physician prescribes it. The American people today enjoy a level of health far higher than ever before, and a large part of it may be attributed to the dramatic advances made by the "health team": pharmacist, physician and prescription drug manufacturer.

We call the complex process by which a drug moves from manufacturer to patient "the miracle of drug distribution." The teamwork of prescription drug manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assures that you will receive the medicine you need. The miracle of drug distribution is the fact that the medicine you need is at your community pharmacy when you need it—as just one more who prescribes and our job's best guarantee.

3 A.M. in a pharmacy...

It was 3 A.M. in a community pharmacy. The street is in darkness, yet lights are on in the pharmacy. Why? Because the pharmacist is faced with an emergency.

He received an urgent telephone call at 2:50 A.M. Mrs. Nelson, a sufferer from asthma, was having severe difficulty in breathing. Her husband told the pharmacist that she had put out one of the medicine prescribed by her physician.

The pharmacist checked quickly, rather his eyes, located the original prescription... the drug, (relieved by Mrs. Nelson's physician preparation) and delivered the medicine. Now, Mrs. Nelson was coughing normally again, and a possible tragedy had been averted.

Such an emergency can give pharmacist needs that a shop and manufacturer as part of his complete professional outfit. Today, a pharmacist goes to college for his degree, spends many months of intense study, apprenticeship, and must pass a rigorous state examination before he is licensed. He must store thousands of dollars worth of health products you used every day—as well as those you may need only once in a lifetime.

It was not by chance that the pharmacist had the proper drug ready for Mrs. Nelson when she needed it. We call this complex process by which a drug moves from manufacturer to patient "the miracle of drug distribution."

The teamwork of manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assures that you—as well as Mrs. Nelson—will always receive the medicine you need. This miracle of drug distribution—the fact that the medicine you need is ready when you need it—is just one more of why pharmacists are today's best guarantee.

NAME OF YOUR PHARMACY

A pharmacist may reach for a bottle of amphotericin powder only once a year, yet he always has the least medicine on hand to care an emergency case.

Approximately 500 pharmaceuticals account for 70% of all prescriptions. Nevertheless, the average pharmacist stocks more than 2,000 drug items so that he will be able to fill immediately even the less common prescriptions.

In addition, your neighborhood pharmacist must be prepared to answer questions from doctors about drug dosage, strengths and available forms and uses. To acquire this knowledge, he spends long hours studying his professional education by keeping abreast of the latest pharmaceutical developments.

Because the pharmacist keeps more than 2,000 pharmaceuticals in stock and because he is well informed about them, you can be sure that the prescription your doctor writes will be filled accurately and when you need it. Your pharmacist—the doctor, prescriber, drug wholesaler and drug manufacturer—is a vital member of the team that makes today's life-saving medicines available to you.

Drugs and Medical Supplies Needed by Cuban Patriots

Urbano Soler, a 1924 graduate of the UNC School of Pharmacy, now employed by Arthur's Pharmacy, High Point, seeks medical assistance for patriots who remain in Cuba in their drive to expel communism from the country. According to Mr. Soler, medicines and medical supplies are desperately needed by his countrymen who are trying to establish a democratic government in Cuba.

Mr. Soler, who owned and operated a pharmacy, orange and lemon groves and a coffee plantation in Cuba, had all his property "taken over" by Fidel Castro's government. Soler left Cuba with $5.00, all the Castro government would permit him to leave the country with.

These are the drugs and medical supplies needed, as listed by Mr. Soler. (1) Signamynein, Achromycin, Terramycin and Chloromyectin; (2) Penicillin, Streptomycin—Solution and ampoules; (3) Sulfa drugs—tablets, plain and triple; (4) Adhesive Tape—all sizes; (5) Gauze Bandage—all sizes; (6) Cotton; (7) Tr. Committee Report of
The Consolidated Pharmacy Fund

By ROBERT B. HALL, Chairman

The need of financial assistance by many of our UNC Pharmacy School students has been apparent for several years. In fact, our Executive Secretary made mention of this fact in his report at last year's Convention. The recognition of this need resulted in the N. C. P. A. establishing the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund. President Stevenson honored me by naming me chairman of the Fund Committee its initial year.

Since this is a new fund, it is impossible for us to say to what degree the year has been successful. If the Fund, however, has enabled just one student to remain in school, who might otherwise have had to drop out, then it has been a successful year. And we have been able to help.

Contributions to the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund as of April 19, 1963 totaled $9,202.61. Of this total one contribution by Mr. T. M. Stanbaek of Salisbury was for $5,000. Due to certain requests made at the time of the contribution, it was deemed advisable by Dean Brecht, W. J. Smith, Mr. Stanbaek, and me that this amount be handled through the University and the School of Pharmacy. For this reason this amount, although included in our report of $9,202.61, will not be included in the figures of the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund in the future.

There were two other contributions I want to bring to your attention. One in the amount of $1,000 by Mr. W. I. Davis of Texas and a native of Elizabeth City, was secured through the efforts of President Stevenson. Although Mr. Davis has no connection with Pharmacy, he recognized the merit of our Fund and wished to help. The other contribution I wish to announce was made by the estate of Mrs. Wayne Frank Rhyne to establish a memorial in Mr. Rhyne's name. This amount was $500.

There were many other contributions made. Each contribution of $100 or more enabled the contributor to establish a Fund in any name he wished. Several of the local drug clubs have funds in their names. While it is impractical to name each fund at this time, a full report will appear in the Journal in the near future. This report will name each fund, the amount received, and the amount loaned from each fund.

As of April 19, there have been 20 loans made totaling $2,704. During the year there were bank charges of $1.18. $4,202.61 less the total of these two amounts leaves a balance of $1,497.43 in the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund. I might say here, that each time a student borrows money, Mr. Smith informs him of the name of the Fund from which he is borrowing. He also impresses on him that without the generosity of the donor the money would not be available.

The W. J. Dean Pharmacy Student Loan Fund

The W. J. Dean Pharmacy Student Loan Fund, although used for student loans, is entirely separate from the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund. From October 1960 through February 1963, contributions from the Dean Company to this Fund totaled $4,000. There have been 63 loans made totaling $3,910. Repayments of $350 on loans have been received. No doubt this seems like a rather low amount in repayments, but you must bear in mind that most of the first loans are just coming due. There have been a few small costs for administering the Dean Fund, so that as of February 18th there remained $387.58 available for loans. It is with mixed emotions that I announce that as of June 1, 1963, there will be no additional contributions to the Dean Fund. It will continue to be a part of our loan setup, but will operate on the money available through repayment of loans.

The Committee recognizes the value of the various scholarships available to our students, the value of the work of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation, as well as the value of the N.C.P.A. Endowment Fund. However, the Committee is very cognizant of the need for our Consolidated Pharmacy Fund. Its need will increase each year due to the additional academic year required of our students. If there is any doubt in your minds in regard to this need, our Executive Secretary, in only a few minutes of conversation, can enlighten you by citing various student situations he has encountered.

I want to thank you for your help this year, and I urge you to continue your very generous support for the 1963-1964 year.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

Deans E. A. Brecht and M. A. Chambers were kept busy during August with the extra work of editing the Proceedings of the Pharmacy Teachers' Seminar of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy held in Chapel Hill on July 21-26. The contract for the printing was let to the Colonial Press, Chapel Hill.

Two graduate students completed all requirements for the Doctor of Philosophy degree. Allen F. Hirsch passed his final oral examination on August 12. The title of his dissertation was "The Synthesis of Thio-sulfonates and Related Derivatives as Potential Anticancer Agents." Dr. Hirsch has accepted a research position at the Sloan-Kettering Institute. Viljalmur G. Skulason passed his final oral examination on August 22 with the title of his dissertation, "The Synthesis of Pyrimidine Aldehydes and Related Derivatives as Potential Anticancer Agents." Dr. Skulason will return with his family to their home in Iceland.

The School of Pharmacy was represented by Dean Brecht and Professor Herman O. Thompson at the annual meeting of District #3 of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy and the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy at Daytona Beach on August 25-27. Dean Brecht presented a paper in a panel discussion on "The Pharmacists' Professional Functions." Dean Brecht's paper was concerned with the professional functions to the public while two other speakers discussed the pharmacists' functions to the manufacturer and to his fellow pharmacists. Dr. Thompson reported as chairman of the committee to develop assay procedures for the practical section of State Board Examinations. Mrs. Brecht was a guest at the meeting.

Dr. Claude Piantadosi, Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry presented a paper on his research on plasmalogens and alkenyl ethers, of interest in atherosclerosis, before the Medical Division for Nuclear Studies at Oak Ridge, Tennessee on August 28 and 29.

HISTORICAL NOTE

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

The 1878 catalogue of the University of North Carolina lists as "spots of peculiar interest that can be reached by a pleasant walk:" Piney Prospect, Iron Mountain, Otey's Retreat, Bed of an Arm of the Sea, Roaring Fountain, and Glenburnie. I wonder how many of these lovely places are known to present-day students and if any of them in this "ride everywhere" age have taken the time and the trouble to visit these haunts of long ago.

In the March-April issue of Spectrum, official organ of Pfizer Laboratories, there is a delightful article entitled, "The Pill Tile Wore a Coat of Arms." Two illustrations, with explanatory paragraphs, gave me a genuine thrill as they depicted items exactly like two treasures we have in the School of Pharmacy Museum. The first, introduced in the early 19th century, is a Wedgwood pill tile, decorated with an American eagle design, a graduated scale, and the inscription, "Real Warranted Wedgwood." In 1933 the late C. N. Herndon, of Greensboro, presented to our Museum an identical tile. The second illustration is a 19th century pill-cutting machine. We have two—one was the gift of the late R. K. Blair, of Charlotte, and the other was donated by the late E. V. Zoeller, of Tarboro.

I have made unsuccessful efforts to locate information about the charges for drugs made by North Carolina physician-pharmacists in the early days of the colony. However, the following paragraph in Blanton's Medicine in Virginia in the Seventeenth Century (p. 242), furnishes a clue regarding prices demanded in this State since the figures in the two adjoining commonwealths were probably the same. Drugs (all of) which were scarce and expensive, were usually dispensed by the physician and charged for separately from his fees for visiting the sick. (Payment was made usually "in pounds of tobacco"; ready money was scarcer than "hen's teeth.") "Favorite prescriptions were billed as follows: a laxative bolus, 20-50 pounds of tobacco; and astringent, 20-35; opiate pills, 30-100; a cordial, 30-50; a 'very rich one,' 80; an electuary, 30-40; juleps, 50-120; defensives, 20; ointments, 30-40."

"Down South, 1920's—When I was a Boy—the Dreams Days" is the eye-arresting title of a delightful article in the July 14 issue of the Greensboro Daily News. I quote the paragraphs written under the heading, "The Drug Store."

"Your father owned a drug store. Could any boy want more? Stopping by after school on late spring afternoons you would enter through a front completely opened to natural air conditioning (no doors to open or shut). Large fans droned slowly overhead homogenizing the outside airs of spring with the airs of camphor, ammonia, rubbing alcohols and sweet syrups. Strange as it may seem the odor was delightful. Perhaps it was the alcohol. Perhaps it was your youth.

"In the rear of the store behind the prescription counter your father and others, attired in cream colored pharmacist's jackets, were busy 'filling' scribbled Latin prescriptions that always seemed to end up—pink calomel or castor oil 'before bedtime.'

"But your chief thoughts were not back with the Black 'Draft' and the Peruna stacked shelves. Your attention was toward the marble topped tables and the black wrought iron ice cream chairs.

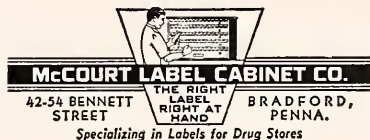

"Having a certain amount of privilege, you'd go behind the fountain and mix up your own special concoctions.

"'Dishpan Treat:' Take a large bowl (a 'dish-pan' would do), slice a banana. Select five scoops of different ice creams. Douse with chocolate, cherry and strawberry syrups. Dip out walnuts in almond syrup and spread evenly. Place a layer of whipped cream. Decorate with cherries and fresh peaches. Of course, you couldn't eat it all. But it was fun to try."

Newton as President, at the Interim Meeting of the House of Delegates in Washington, made particular reference to Mr. Durham's leadership and "abiding interest in the advancement of science . . . and pharmacy and the position of pharmacists in government circles, both military and civilian; your active promotion of legislation regulating commerce in foods and drugs for the prevention of fraud and for the protection of the health of the consumers."

$100,000 Government Grant Awarded APhA for Pharmacy Health Education Center Project

The U. S. Public Health Service has announced the awarding of a $100,800.00 Community Health Project Grant to the American Pharmaceutical Association for a national survey to evaluate the community pharmacy as a Health Education Center.

National Analysts, Inc. of Philadelphia, a nationally known research organization, will participate in the evaluation program, including the random selection of 360 community pharmacies drawn from a National Probability Sample, and the evaluation of the program to determine changes in attitudes and opinions of patrons of pharmacies that are selected to participate in the program, to evaluate attitudes, opinions and suggestions of the pharmacists with regard to further implementation of the basic objectives of the project, and particularly to determine whether the pharmacy can be a source of health information for the community.

The American Pharmaceutical Association will distribute display units and monthly shipments of health information material from various national voluntary health agencies, professional health societies, departments of health, and the U. S. Public Health Services, to the pharmacies which are randomly selected by National Analysts. Health information material to be utilized in the project will be screened by the Association's Committee on Public Health, with the assistance of a Board of Advisors to evaluate the accuracy of technical and scientific data in the brochures.

The grant commenced officially July 1st, with the actual pharmacy participation expected to cover the six month period from November, 1963 through April, 1964. Final evaluation will be completed by June 30, 1964.

ACA Rx Operating Survey Now Available

The American College of Apothecaries announced the availability of "Facts on the Operation of Prescription Pharmacies—1962." The 1962 edition is the eleventh annual survey of operating figures of prescription pharmacies produced by the College. The book contains tabulations derived from operating reports submitted to A.C.A.

by its Fellows. It shows statistics on volume, expenses, profits, prescriptions, services, salary levels and inventory.

Some 166 pharmacies which had been included in the 1961 survey are also included in the 1962 survey. This has allowed for a direct comparison of all figures for two successive years in these pharmacies. The continuity of these reports enables the survey to indicate changes and trends. In these 166 pharmacies in 1962:

*Total volume increased 3% to an average of $174,856.

*Net profit decreased slightly from 3.0% to 2.9% and the combined net profit plus owner's salary decreased slightly to a total of 9.5% from the 1961 figure of 9.7%.

*Average inventory was held virtually steady at slightly over $29,000.

*The number of prescriptions increased 3.3% to an average of 33,827.

*Turnover rate increased by about 4% to a rate of 3.3 times annually.

1961-62 reporting pharmacies expense picture showed an over-all decrease from 41.9% to 41.3% in expenses, resulting from decreases in owner's salary, non-professional salaries, advertising and unclassified expenses. The survey did indicate an increase of 1.5% in pharmacists' salaries over the previous year.

The average prescription charge, in these same 166 pharmacies, was $3.63, virtually unchanged from the 1961 figure of $3.62.

The book contains correspondingly complete statistics for the entire group of 196 pharmacies included in the 1962 survey.

The average cost of dispensing a prescription—in addition to the cost of medication—was determined to be $1.63. This reflects a ten-cent increase in dispensing cost which stood at $1.53 in the survey one year earlier.

The American College of Apothecaries distributes single copies of the publication to pharmacists free of charge and copies can be obtained by writing to the American College of Apothecaries, Hamilton Court Hotel, 39th & Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia 4, Penna.

Stanback Fund Aids Students

During the first year of its existence, the $5,000 T. M. Stanback Loan Fund was allocated to seven pharmacy students. This is a partial indication of the great need for financial assistance at UNC.

The fund was established this year at the University of North Carolina through the generous support of Mr. T. M. Stanback of Salisbury. It is to aid needy-deserving pharmacy students. The principal and minimum interest charges are repayable to the Fund after the student graduates and is employed.

While the Fund has been temporarily depleted, details concerning its availability in future years may be obtained by writing Dean Edward A. Brecht, UNC School of Pharmacy, Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Pharmacist of the Month

Tom Burgiss of Elkin has been named "Pharmacist of the Month" by the South-eastern Drug Journal. A nearby pharmacist neighbor of Tom's—Jim Harrison of North Wilkesboro—wrote the feature story.

Mr. Burgiss is a part of a real pharmaceutical family. His father, Roy, a past president of the NCPA, operates a pharmacy in Sparta. His sister, also a pharmacist, and his brother-in-law, a pharmacist, are the owners-operators of a pharmacy in Granite Quarry, North Carolina.

Net Pricing

at first blush, the sales volume of truly large direct-purchasing chains may appear attractive to drug manufacturers, the attraction is illusory. Truly large drug chains, the hypothetical "A & P" of the retail drug field, can have only one effect on the drug manufacturers—dilution of economic strength. The threat of private brands, integration backwards into manufacturing, and a host of other economic implications will serve to weaken the position of pre-eminence which the drug manufactures enjoys today. Based on historical patterns in other industries and the dynamics of our private enterprise system, the drug manufacturer should do his level best to preserve tested channels of distribution and avoid chaotic changes in distribution patterns which may ultimately injure the manufacturer.

The drug manufacturer has a duty to share the burden of reducing consumer costs with drug wholesalers and retailers. The guise of net pricing will not work. The whole burden cannot be shifted to wholesalers and retailers.

I submit that prudent drug manufacturers should reevaluate the importance of existing drug distribution channels in maintaining and enhancing the health of manufacturers. In the long run, manufacturers preserve their own interests by preserving the interests of their proven friends.

A North Carolina pharmacist and member of the NCPA registers his approval of the professional fee system following five months of operation in his pharmacy.

If other pharmacists using a similar system will send us before and after comparison records (500 or 1000 prescriptions), we will be glad to publish the results for the general information of Journal readers.

We, at O, M & B salute

Cover Page

Numerous symbols have been employed by pharmacists since the Middle Ages. The Mortar and Pestle (upper left quarter of shield) has undoubtedly been the most common and universally accepted symbol of pharmacy and recently has been combined with the prescription symbol (upper right). The Bowl of Hygeia (lower left) has rapidly gained international recognition as a symbol of pharmacy corresponding to the caduceus of the physician. Many pharmaceutical associations and most pharmaceutical journals in Europe and South America now employ the Bowl of Hygeia in their respective letterheads, journal mastheads, seals and other symbols. Alchemical symbols are often incorporated into various pharmaceutical crests and coats of arms. The symbol in the lower right quarter of the shield is one of these and signifies "to compound."

The helmet is used to denote wisdom and surety in defense. The position and its form are significant. The side view with the vizor closed would mark the person a gentlemen, esquire or one of importance. Thus the side view is used here with the vizor closed. The scarf was used by the knights to keep the sun off their helmets and its significance is primarily decorative through association. The unicorns supporting the quartered shield are incorporated because of the attributed medicinal effect of the unicorn's horn. The motto in the banner, Secundum Artem, was once commonly used on the prescription meaning, "according to (the) art."

This modern coat of arms for pharmacists represents a stylized version of some of the traditional symbols of the past and it is hoped that it will be of interest to contemporary pharmacists.

THE CAROLINA

Pinehurst, North Carolina

May 12-14, 1963

OPENING SESSION

MAIN DINING ROOMS

The Carolina, Pinehurst

May 12, 7 P.M.

The 83rd annual meeting of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association was called to order by President John T. Stevenson.

Sessions of The Woman's Auxiliary and The Traveling Men's Auxiliary of the NCPA were opened by Mrs. John T. Stevenson of Elizabeth City and Mr. William P. Brewer of Greensboro.

Following an invocation by Edwin R. Fuller of Salisbury and a dinner, Hubert N. Rogers, Jr., President of the Cape Fear Pharmaceutical Society, welcomed the delegates and guests to "The Sandhills."

In responding, President Stevenson said:

"We are very happy to be with you in this beautiful Sandhills section of this wonderful state. It must be great living here, and when I speak of living it reminds me of Mose and Rastus, two colored youths who had been separated several years, during which time each had married.

"Upon meeting one day, they were discussing their wives. "Mose," asked Rastus, "what kind of wife did you marry?" Whereupon Rastus replied, "She's an angel, dat's what she is. She's an angel." Mose hung his head and said, "Youse sure is lucky; mine's still living." Now, we sure are glad that we are still living and will have the pleasure of being with you for the next few days in this garden spot of North Carolina."

Departing from its customary procedure, in that the 1963 "Pharmacist of the Year" was announced at the dinner. President Stevenson said, in part: "The gentleman chosen has been a consistent supporter of Pharmacy projects and aims, as well as an ardent worker in his home town. But we will further explore his many attributes when we journey to Mount Airy, at a date to be announced, to honor

Mr. William Samuel Wolfe

At this point, Mr. Wolfe was recognized as North Carolina's 1963 Pharmacist of the Year.

The assembly then adjourned to the ball-room for entertainment by Shearen D. Elebash, sponsored by nine wholesale druggists of North Carolina. Prior to adjournment, President Stevenson said:

"Mr. Elebash's appearance here this evening was made possible by some of our North Carolina wholesale drug houses. On behalf of the N.C.P.A., I would like to express our deep appreciation to them for making this entertainment possible.

"There will always be a place and need for these wholesalers, just as there will always be a place and need for retail pharmacy. They go hand-in-hand, and may the future of both be bright and fruitful."

Note: The first official session was preceded by (1) a Reunion of the UNC Pharmacy Classes of 1938 and 1953 and (2) a 1-hour recognition event during which time awards-citations-honors were bestowed upon a number of pharmacists in various areas of activity. Details of this event have been published in the June, July, August and September issues of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

SECOND SESSION

Ballroom, May 13, 9 A.M.

The session was opened with an invocation by Wade A. Gilliam. James L. Creech of Smithfield conducted the "Rite of the Roses"—a memorial tribute to deceased members—with John Mitchener, Jr. of Edenton assisting (as the name of each deceased member was read, Mr. Mitchener placed a red rose in a vase on the head table).

Rite of the Roses

JAMES L. CREECH, Smithfield

A most fitting beginning to this annual session, as we at this time pay our profound respects and tribute to the members of our association who have passed away since we last convened.

Those whom we honor today were close personal friends of yours and mine; some were your schoolmates—and some were mine. We have many fond memories of our associations with them and look back upon many happy occasions in their presence. As we come to honor their memory we ourselves are honored by these associations. Their radiant impressions upon us cannot be measured.

We comment from time to time that we pass this way but once, or that our life here at the most is very short—most of the time in jest, but there is also a vein of seriousness as we realize it now as we remember those who were present at our last meeting but not with us today.

They are not here today themselves, but because of their many contributions to their profession, and to their communities, and to their country; and because of their devotion to their loved ones and to their work, we will always be indebted to them for the many admirable influences exerted on us.

Perhaps these influences and memories will make our lives more successful and cause us to be more devoted to our profession, to our families, and to our communities.

To the immediate relatives we pay our most sincere respects and deepest sympathies. We are thankful for the lives of those we honor and the wonderful way in which they lived.

As we honor those who have passed from us, to those who have learned forever the beauty and truth of these words of Thomas Wolfe: "To lose the earth you know for greater knowing; to lose the life you have for greater life; to leave the friends you loved for greater loving; to find a land more kind than home, more large than earth—whereon the pillars of this earth are founded, toward which the conscience of this world is tending—a wind is rising and the rivers flow."

May I at this time read the names of our deceased members as Mr. John Mitchener, Jr. recognizes each name with a red rose:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

JOHN T. STEVENSON, Elizabeth City

President-Elect Hoy A. Moose presided while the Annual Report of the President of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association was presented by Mr. Stevenson. The Report was published in the June issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy beginning on page 19.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Moose appointed the following Committee on The President's Address, which reported during the final session of the NCPA: James W. Harrison, Chairman; B. Cade Brooks and W. H. Houser.

Committee on the President's Address

JAMES W. HARRISON, Chairman

Mr. President-Elect, Officers, Fellow Members:

I am honored to have been chosen as a member of the Committee to survey President Stevenson's report to the Association delivered yesterday morning and to make this report to you.

It is somewhat flattering to have been chosen to this committee by four or five other presidents-elect, two of them naming me chairman. It is a pleasure to again serve on this committee with Bill Houser for the second time. It has been a pleasure also to serve with Cade Brooks, the other member.

We three recognize that we are, in effect, spokesmen for all the members of the Association in rendering this report. The measure of our humility in approaching this somewhat awesome responsibility is balanced only by our attempt to do as creditable a job as we are able. But we do not want you to lose sight of the fact that it is the privilege of the members to accept or reject this report wholly or in part.

The Committee heartily approves the president's tribute to the various committees, the secretary and his able and efficient co-workers, and his tribute to the Womens Auxiliary and to the TMA.

Listening to his report with a critical ear and then reading it with a critical eye, we still do not find aught to criticize. Rather do we find that he has a keen perception of the professional aspects of pharmacy. This is apparent in the staccato phrases marching through portions of his report. His belief in pharmacy as a profession and his adjuration to us to embrace it as such marches through his report with professionalism as a leit motif.

His approval of the fee concept in seeking remuneration for prescription service does not regard this concept as an empty dream. Reports from over the country indicate increasing adoption of this method.

His hope that the several Seminars and Symposiums may continue is unequivocally endorsed as is his commendation of the Board of Pharmacy for the progressive action in many matters by that body.

In an effort to stimulate us to "speak up for pharmacy," the president quotes a portion of an article in a recent issue of Advertising Age by E. B. Weiss, which writer gives an arbitrarily piercing opinion, cynically expressed, that "the traditional pharmacist is as dead as the dodo."

The president made no implications, he left us to draw our own inferences on the expressions in the article. Certainly, he delivered no polemic against Mr. Weiss. It is inconceivable that John Stevenson would rant a tirade against anyone. Such would be foreign to his character and this characteristic inhibition is an admirable one that this Committee seeks to emulate because it realizes that taking issue with Mr. Weiss would serve no useful purpose.

But we can turn this jeremiad to our own ends. We can sense if this condition exists and we can do something about it. We can speak up for pharmacy in our actions of service to the public. We can use all our talent to create a favorable image of pharmacy in the senses of the public. We can regain lost prestige by our actions. And in creating a favorable image of pharmacy we may yet confound critics such as Mr. Weiss.

As one member of this committee so aptly opines, "One part of president Stevenson's address, 'Professional Skill' and following were particularly interesting to me. It is true that pharmacists need to spend more time and effort in building and promoting a more ethical attitude toward pharmacy, between themselves and in the eyes of the public. Too many pharmacists seem to be more concerned with the idea that discount prices and the accompanying ballyhoo will build a better business than will the professional services a pharmacist can render. Our business can be built on this service idea which is the answer to discount houses and other super operations. To quote the president, 'No special discount can take the place of personal interest and attention.'

Mr. Stevenson continues, 'if we are not prepared and willing to work for the welfare and the liberation of our profession from exploiters, then we should abdicate before all our ideas and ideals have been shattered.' Nothing truer has ever been spoken.

Some of us have been telling ourselves we do not have the time to promote the true image of pharmacy, or are willing to let someone else do it. If we wait too long, then the someone else will paint the image of pharmacy and the picture will be distorted. Mr. Stevenson seems to sense this and is trying to arouse us from our lethargy. On the whole, this report of the president is one of the most thorough and complete reports presented." The other members of this Committee concur.

We join the president in his appeal that you make the Consolidated Pharmacy Fund a potent means of aiding worthy students to finish their education. There is a crying need for the finished professionals.

We are agreed that the Kerr-Mills implementing legislation will solve the problem of medical care for our ageing population infinitely better than could Medicare or any other socialistic ideology.

We are agreed that is the last inning for Quality Stabilization legislation. This Committee adds its exhortation to you that you now contact your Congressmen and beseech them to enact into law HR 3669.

To make this less arduous for you and to help you turn this task into a pleasure, you will be provided with an aid giving pointers on "How To Write To Legislators." At the same time you may have a list of your Congressional Delegation. This Committee adds to the hope of the president that you will use this means now. There will probably never again be such an opportunity to get this needed legislation, if you act now, or as soon as you return home tomorrow.

We approve the president's report on the progress made in striving for the policy of one price to all by manufacturers, and we are proud of the progress made so far. We join him in commending those manufacturers who have already adopted this policy.

We share the concern of the president over the curtailment of the finances of the Association, a condition over which we had no control. This Committee believes that members of this Association will not countenance a deterioration of the splendid service being rendered to the members, because of a lack of the necessary income to continue this service.

We concur in the president's conclusions as to the future of pharmacy and we also urge you to prepare for the inevitable changes almost sure to occur. We may expect continued and added intervention by the Federal Government in pharmacy practice and drug distribution.

We must prove that we can handle these problems by individuals working together in unison at the state level. We must prove that we can handle drug distribution better than it can be done by socialistic means if we hope to hold our privileges as service suppliers to the public.

This Committee endorses president Stevenson's blueprint for action to meet the challenges of the present and the future. If we follow his six-point program of action, we will be faithful to our obligations and the future of pharmacy will remain in the hands of individuals where it should be.

Respectfully submitted,

LEGISLATIVE REPORT

The Honorable John T. Henley, Member of the General Assembly of North Carolina, presented a legislative report which included references to The Kerr-Mills Bill (Medical Assistance to the Aged), the Sunday "Blue Law," the campaign which resulted in Mr. Robert B. Hall of Mocksville being named a Trustee of the Consolidated University of North Carolina; Minimum Wage Act, and proposed bills (restriction of paregoric to sale on prescription, name of drug on Rx label and amendment of Pharmacy Law to permit non-pharmacists to fill prescriptions).

PENSION & PROFIT SHARING PLANS

Topic was presented by J. M. Singley, Consulting Actuary for J. M. Singley & Associates, one of the leading firms of consulting actuaries in the country and specialists in deferred profit-sharing plans. The highlights of this address will be published in a future issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

John Miteheuer introduced Walter Cousins, Jr., Assistant to the Publisher of McCall's Magazine. Mr. Cousins, a former editor of the sectional drug publication and at one time, secretary of the Texas Board of Pharmacy, outlined methods for building a favorable image of pharmacy.

THIRD SESSION

Ballroom, May 13, 2 P.M.

President Stevenson opened the session by stating: "The reports which we are about to receive are very pertinent to our vocation. There has been a tremendous amount of work, thought, and time put into these reports which will enable Pharmacy to maintain its high prestige."

UNC SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

Dean E. A. Brecht summarized activities of the School for the past twelve months, including enrollment, student body programs and projects, special activities, seminars and symposiums sponsored by the School's Extension Division and plans for the future. An excellent, complete coverage of this report may be gained by reading the UNC Pharmacy School Notes section of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

REPORT ON THE SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

E. A. BRECHT, Dean

President Hall, Members of the Association, and guests: This opportunity for a personal report on the School of Pharmacy is appreciated, and I always look forward to it as a highlight of the annual convention of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association. This report can be brief because a column of news from the School of Pharmacy is printed in the Carolina Journal of Pharmacy each month and because a detailed written "Report to the Chancellor" is prepared each year of which there are sufficient copies to meet all requests.

Current enrollment in the School of Pharmacy was 254 undergraduate and 10 graduate for the fall semester. This registration was five undergraduate students more and six graduate students less than for the preceding year. While these changes are small, the registration was very disappointing because substantial increases were desired to meet the need for pharmacists in North Carolina and to continue a gradual increase in the student body to fill the facilities now afforded in the new pharmacy building. For the first time in the history of the school there were more students registered for the spring semester than the fall. There were increases in the totals of eight undergraduate and one graduate students.

Recruitment of more and better students continues to be the most urgent problem for the school. This same problem exists at the national level and is receiving considerable attention. Dr. M. A. Chambers, Assistant Dean has charge of recruitment in which he has taken advantage of every opportunity. At the same time we need your help and are agreed that a major role has been played and will continue to be played by pharmacists and pharmacy students who encourage prospects at the local level for the School of Pharmacy and the practice of the profession.

The House of Friendly Service

Scott Drug Company

Service Wholesalers Since 1891

Changes in the faculty consisted of the resignation of Dr. Earl T. Brown who is now teaching at Haile Selassie I University in Ethiopia and Dr. Paul Wurdack who has returned to his home school at the University of Pittsburgh. Dr. Bryant W. Fitzgerald was appointed to the faculty as Assistant Professor of Pharmacy and brings a special interest in physical pharmacy with experience in radioactive research.

Very satisfying success has been continued in the program of Pharmacy Extension under the direction of Dean Chambers. Successful refresher courses were conducted at the School of Pharmacy for hospital pharmacists in September and community pharmacists in October. Professional symposia courses have been completed at Williamston and Chapel Hill, and a course is in progress at Winston-Salem. The value and importance, if not necessity, of postgraduate education are apparent on the basis of the appearance of new drugs and the discovery of new medicinal actions and toxicities.

Open House at the School of Pharmacy was held for the first time in early December, primarily as a recruitment aid. All of the prospective students received personal invitations and posters were sent for display in every pharmacy and junior college of the state. Excellent displays and demonstrations were arranged throughout the building by the faculty members and students. The response was most favorable, and it is expected that this function will become an annual event. A continuing successful function of the same kind was the School of Pharmacy display in a choice area at the North Carolina State Fair. This display has been effective not only as a recruitment aid but also as a public relations activity for the profession. It was very noticeable that many of the 14,000 counted visitors commented very favorably on their family pharmacist showing that the image of the profession remains very high.

It is appropriate to express extreme pleasure that Robert B. Hall, President of the Association, has been elected to the Board of Trustees at the University of North Carolina. It has been thought for a long time that a pharmacist should be a member of this important body. There is a committee on health affairs which has had in its membership for a number of years two physicians and one dentist. It will be an advantage for pharmacy as another health profession to be represented on this committee which is concerned specifically with the schools of the health professions at the University of North Carolina.

I am most pleased to announce that the School of Pharmacy will have the privilege and honor this summer of acting as host for three important national meetings: The American Society of Pharmacognosy on July 18-20, The Annual Meeting of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy on July 21-23, and The Pharmacy Teachers' Seminar on July 23-26. Preliminary information shows that we can expect more than 250 visiting specialists in pharmaceutical education and research, and we look forward to the opportunity for having them gain a better understanding of North Carolina in general and its total pharmacy in particular.

Finally, each year at this meeting there is interest by some pharmacy owners in discussing employment with members of the graduating class. As usual, I and other members of the faculty have lists of the students who have not accepted definite positions, and these lists will be available to those interested along with an offer to introduce prospective employers to future pharmacists.

Thank you.

present this annual report of the foundation when I have been president for less than two months following the election at the annual meeting of the Board of Directors on March 13, I would be inclined to agree. I can explain only that I have yielded to the invitation to present this report which I am happy to do as a duty of the office. While there might be a question of my ability I can assure you that there is no limit to my interest in the welfare of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation in its purpose to foster and promote pharmaceutical education and research at the School of Pharmacy. If you will pardon this personal reference I am proud of my association with the foundation as a director beginning in 1953.

As the third president of the Board of Directors I must pay my warmest tribute to the able leadership of my predecessors: Roger A. McDuffie who served as president for 11 years and Wade A. Gilliam for 5 years. We count heavily on their continued interest as continuing directors.

Sixteen years of operation by the foundation can be summarized very briefly: The total income amounts to $375,000.00 consisting of $300,000.00 in contributions and $75,000.00 from income on investments. During this period $96,000.00 has been dispersed primarily to the University of North Carolina for pharmaceutical education and research, while operating expenses have been $15,500.00. The current net worth is $222,000.00 in endowment funds and $41,500.00 in expendable funds for a total exceeding, for the first time, the quarter million dollar mark, $263,500.00.

As you know, this foundation was organized by the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, and a controlling interest is maintained in the foundation by the election of 2/3 of the directors, who must be members of the association, in the annual ballot. Therefore, it is appropriate for this annual report to be presented so that there may be full understanding of every operation.

One new memorial endowment fund was accepted at the annual meeting. It was established spontaneously by the graduating class of 1962 at the School of Pharmacy to perpetuate the memory of a classmate who lost her life in an automobile accident just before graduation. Each student paid immediately $2.00 for a bronze plaque to be placed in the Student Center of Beard Hall. This has been received and has the following legend: "Myra Kinlaw Memorial Fund—Established to endow an undergraduate scholarship in memory of our classmate who lost her life in an auto accident on May 19—Class of '62." Each member of the class pledged $50.00 to the permanent endowment fund with the income to be used annually as a scholarship to be awarded to a girl in the graduating class. It is pleasing that pharmacists and friends of the family in the area of Miss Kinshaw's home town, Lumberton, have also supported this fund.

At the annual meeting approval was given to a budget for 1963-1964 to an amount of $23,650. Two new items added to the budget at the request of the Board of Grants consisting of the faculty in the school: An amount of $3,000.00 to support faculty summer research and $500.00 for a Dean's Discretionary Fund to enable support for small and unexpected expenditures not provided in state budgets. Continuing items in the budget include support for the research historianship fulfilled so ably by Miss Alice Noble, graduate fellowships, undergraduate scholarships, faculty professional grants, special library materials, etc. The support from the foundation has attained an excellent pattern which has provided a model for adoption in other pharmacy schools.

The past year has been the most successful in the history of the foundation in terms of support from the pharmacists of the state. This can be attributed directly to the enthusiastic service of 72 pharmacists acting as chairmen for counties throughout the state. Their work began at mid-summer and continued at their convenience in very busy schedules to the end of the year. As a result, the largest number of contributions in any one year were obtained, 433 for a total of $6,060.00. In addition, other contributions were received to make the grand totals of 479 contributions and $12,616.05.

While this record is the best in the history of the foundation it leaves definite

Student Branch, NCPA-APhA

JOHN H. MYHRE, President

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I am happy that I am able to report to you about the Student Branch. We need your interest and your support and are proud to be a junior part of you.

This has been a year of change for the Branch. As you may or may not know, fraternity competition is a part of all activities in the School of Pharmacy. This year's officers represented both fraternities and also the independent students.

This year of change has been a transition period for the School and for the Branch with the five year curriculum replacing the four year. The Branch has been revised, too. The constitution and by-laws were reworked and brought up to date and the entire scope of the organization broadened.

It was thought that the pre-pharmacy students might be looking for some physical contact with the School that is now lacking because of their academic isolation from the building. A strong attempt was made to interest these students in the activities of the Branch and at the same time act as a kind of big brother toward these people and provide an indoctrination into Pharmacy itself. While the response was disappointing, it is hoped that this goal can be achieved in the future.

The Branch has been called the School's largest organization, and, indeed, it is with a paid membership of approximately 180. But I do not like that designation. The Branch is striving to make itself as much a part of the School as any course is. In some schools the student branch is a required course. Yes, our goal is 100% membership, but on a voluntary basis. We want the thoughts of the pharmacy curriculum and the pharmacy service organization to be synonymous.

All through the year the Branch has tried to supplement and vary the student's contact with various phases of Pharmacy through a variety of interesting speakers. We tried to educate as well as entertain.

One highlight of the year was a visit and address by Dr. William S. Apple, Executive Director of the American Pharmaceutical Association. He emphasized the importance of a person being active on a national as well as on a state and local level.

On the subject of emphasis of activity in pharmacy organizations, I would like to make a suggestion. Those of you who employ pharmacy students in the summer, I would like to ask that you take time to emphasize to these students the importance of helping to serve Pharmacy by working in local and state organizations. Now is the time to preach Pharmacy. Let the student learn the techniques of serving Pharmacy along with the techniques of practicing Pharmacy. The interest you build now will carry on throughout the person's years in Pharmacy.

Thank you for allowing me to address this convention. The Branch asks for your continued support and will look to you for guidance. Speaking for myself, I hope that I will have the chance to work with many of you in various activities in my years ahead in Pharmacy. Thank you.

Though small in area, the laboratory consists of the following departments: The heart of our operation, the prescription department is elevated approximately 5 inches and is covered by a brilliantly illuminated canopy which bears on its front side the term PRESCRIPTIONS in bold brass letters. Other departments include a diabetic department, vitamin and tonic section, cough and cold section, baby department, oral and dental hygiene department, men's toiletries department, women's toiletries, and a cosmetic department with emphasis on hypo allergenic cosmetics.

The prescription department is utilized by the instructor of Dispensing as an aid in the teaching of the proper filling of prescriptions which call for ethical pharmaceuticals. The entire area is utilized by the instructor of Pharmacy Management as an aid in the teaching of pharmacy layout and design, departmentizing, inventory and inventory control and other important related subjects. The laboratory will be utilized to a greater extent in the future when regularly scheduled laboratory periods will be required for students registered in the Pharmacy Management courses.

The stock in the laboratory was donated by various manufacturers too numerous to mention individually. Mr. Ted Johnson of the Charlotte branch of McKesson-Robbins was the design engineer. It is interesting to note that all fixtures in the front area (display cases, gondolas, etc.) are on casters for ease of mobility and flexibility. In fact, flexibility and the projection of a professional atmosphere were two guidelines in the design phase of this project.

Report: Poison Prevention Week Committee

THOMAS BURGESS, Chairman

Mr. President, special guests, fellow pharmacists:

I greet you as chairman of The Poison Prevention Week. This committee is a special project committee set up by our President, Mr. Stevenson.

In March of this past year we observed the second National Poison Prevention Week and for the first time on an organized scale in North Carolina. A committee meeting was held in Chapel Hill with a majority of the members present. We planned the following program: (1) To arouse interest within our own profession. This was done by publicizing a series of questions and answers on poisons in articles appearing in the Carolina Journal of Pharmacy. (2) To appoint county chairman throughout the state with the responsibility of coordinating this project on a local level. (3) To supply the county chairman with pertinent information in regard to publicity. (4) To gather results of this project for future use in succeeding years.

In regard to the results found as to what was done or not done the committee requested each chairman to submit a report. Briefly, the results were: 54% of the counties reported to our committee. We hope there was more positive action taken in reports we failed to receive. Newspaper coverage was widely used including editorials, personal articles written by pharmacists, store co-op ads, pictures and proclamations. Radio programs were conducted throughout the state with spots and live interviews. Individual store displays and counter-dose charts were handed out. Talks were given to schools, civic clubs, and our own School of Pharmacy seniors. A live television program was given on WUNC TV and a taped program was carried by six commercial stations. The NCPA office supplied over 15,000 copies of Poison Prevention, First aid, and Home Safety guides to pharmacists of the state.

An award was presented by the NCPA to the outstanding club participating in Poison Prevention Week. This year the award was won by the Mecklenburg Club.

The committee wishes to express its appreciation for all the hard work done by so many. The committee realizes that good pharmacy relations begin in the home community. The best way to enjoy good pharmacy relations is to deserve them. It is imperative that we elevate our profession by developing a more positive approach toward good pharmacy relations. One of the best ways to begin is to observe Poison

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

RALPH P. ROGERS, JR., Chairman

Mr. Rogers outlined the procedure followed by the committee in building NCPA membership. Invitations go to all pharmacists licensed in the state by examination or by reciprocity. Also, graduates of the UNC School of Pharmacy are placed on the Association's mailing list (on request) with the understanding they will become dues paying members when eligible to do so.

Since approximately 100 pharmacists are licensed in North Carolina each year, the Association's new member goal is 100 annually. In recent years, the goal has been achieved to this extent: 1958—118; 1959—127; 1960—85; 1961—96; 1962—95; and 1963—73 thru September 15.

CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS

EDWIN R. FULLER, Chairman

Mr. Fuller stated a complete rewrite of the Association's Constitution and By-Laws is underway for presentation at the 1964 annual meeting. In the meantime, he recommended the following revision, subject to mail ballot approval by a majority of NCPA members:

Sec. 4 to read: "Every member shall pay in advance into the hands of the Secretary-Treasurer the sum of thirty-five dollars as his yearly contribution, except that those not financially interested in the drug business shall pay fifteen dollars, and except that members of a Student Branch shall pay one dollar. In case a drug store or pharmacy is owned by a partnership or corporation, the first partner or owner shall pay $35; each additional partner or owner shall pay $15."

In accordance with a By-Law requirement, the proposal was carried over until the final NCPA business session where it was approved by majority vote of the members present. The secretary-treasurer, working with the chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee, was instructed to prepare and mail a ballot pertaining to the proposed dues revision to all NCPA members. Note: This was done the latter part of August with voting to take place during the month of September.

PUBLIC HEALTH & WELFARE

J. C. JACKSON, Chairman

Mr. Jackson, a member of the State Board of Health, commented on recent laws and regulations in the health field with special reference to problems encountered by the State Board of Health. He suggested that a special meeting to be called to discuss the distribution of drugs by state and county agencies, which in recent years has shown a steady increase.

Fair Trade—Quality Stabilization Report

HARRY BARRINGER, Chairman

Fair Trade in North Carolina has reached a confused and chaotic state due to lack of vigilance on the part of its supporters. It is natural to suppose a law will be enforced, if enacted.

However, for one reason or another, the enforcement of Fair Trade has broken down. Stores that openly advertise products at less than Fair Trade minimum prices state they do so because shopped stores have been found to do likewise. Apparently, manufacturers are concerned only with open advertising.

Today, more than half of our pharmacies are probably violating Fair Trade agreements. This situation poses a real problem for enforcement.

What can this Association do for Fair Trade? This committee feels it is not enough to ask brand owners to enforce their rights when so many are involved in violations. It is reasonable to presume that most violators are doing it in self defense.

It is suggested county or district groups seek agreements of compliance. In the meantime, this committee believes enactment of the Quality Stabilization Bill, now pending in Congress, offers the best opportunity for bringing fair play into the market place.

The Quality Stabilization is designed to protect trademarks against loss leader selling through an amendment to the Robinson-Patman Act. Enactment of this bill will replace Fair Trade legislation, which has been declared unconstitutional in many states.

This committee recommends that the membership be polled on its present attitude about Fair Trade, its enforcement, its future. A test case at the Supreme Court level would be helpful in determining if we do have an enforceable state fair trade act.

N. C. DENTAL FORMULARY

ROGER H. SLOOP, Chairman

Mr. Sloop discussed the methods being used to secure greater utilization of the Second Edition of the North Carolina Formulary. These included special mailings to NCPA members offering free fillers to purchasers of the First Edition and the complete second edition at $3 a copy.

The publication is in wide use in this and other states. While no exact figures are available, it is believed publication of The Formulary has resulted in a significant increase in the number of dental prescriptions being written.

Permission was granted the South Carolina Pharmaceutical Association to reprint parts of The Formulary.

N. C. STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY

In the absence of H. C. McAllister, who was unable to be present on account of official duties in connection with the A.Ph.A. meeting in Miami, the Report of the N. C. Board of Pharmacy was presented by David D. Claytor of Greensboro. Mr. Claytor is the newest member of the Board, having been commissioned on April 28.

The Board's report appears on page 73.

The meeting was adjourned following an announcement that the evening entertainment would be sponsored by nine North Carolina wholesale druggists.

NCPA SECRETARY-TREASURER

Report of W. J. Smith

Secretary-Treasurer

Mr. President, Members of the Association, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Again, it is my privilege to report to you in my capacity as Secretary-Treasurer of the Association. The current report is the 23rd which I have had the pleasure of compiling for the NCPA.

Listed in the "duties" of the secretary-treasurer, as outlined in the Association's by-laws, is this: "he shall at each annual meeting render a report of the duties performed by him since the last annual meeting." To fully comply with this directive would consume more time than is available to us during the brief session. The directive, we assume, refers to major works undertaken during the year and this we will attempt to do, keeping in mind that much of the Association's programs and projects will be reported in detail by committee chairmen.

For the first time, total Association membership has crossed the 1500 mark. While our immediate goal of 1500 pharmacists affiliated with the NCPA has not been reached, each passing month brings us closer to this figure.

goal of 100 new members each calendar year is one which, if achieved, will assure the continued growth of the Association.

FINANCIAL

Total revenue for 1962 was $54,328.35; total disbursements was $49,866.16. After accounting for depreciation of $3,959.21, the net operating profit for the year was $502.98.

The significant increase in assets during the year came from the special funds, such as Endowment and Consolidated Pharmacy Fund, which totaled more than $7,000.

Net worth of the Association during 1962 increased from $123,000 to $131,000.

HEADQUARTERS

Recently, Dr. William Apple, Executive Director of the American Pharmaceutical Association, was in Chapel Hill for a speaking engagement.

While it was a hurried trip, he did manage to visit the Institute of Pharmacy. Later, he was heard to remark the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association was the best housed of any of the state pharmaceutical associations.

The Association's auditor has depreciated the building to $58,000 but it could not be replaced today for $100,000. The Institute lot, purchased for $12,000, is easily worth four times this figure. Recently, a lot adjoining the Institute sold for $85,000.

DUES REVISION

Since Mr. Fuller, Chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee, has already discussed with you the necessity of an upward revision in the dues setup of the Association, we will not go into this in detail other than to say favorable action in this area will be necessary to maintain essential NCPA services.

North Carolina is not alone in this respect. We predict most, if not all, of the state pharmaceutical associations will have to adjust their dues setup this year. A few have already done so. New Jersey, for example, has established a new dues schedule of $18 and $40.

SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY AND TO THE STATE

North Carolina is proud of its pharmacists and their record of community service. Yearly, the "Bowl of Hygeia Award" goes to a pharmacist for outstanding community service, but there are hundreds who daily perform without recognition other than the personal knowledge of having contributed something worthwhile to the communities in which they live.

We are particularly impressed with the number of pharmacists who serve their county, district or state boards of health. North Carolina, with more than 75 pharmacists serving in this capacity, leads the nation.

A pharmacist on every major policy-making health board or commission in the state is our goal. A bit ambitious, perhaps, but not impractical if we are willing to make the necessary effort.

A milestone was passed recently when Mr. Robert B. Hall was named a trustee of the Consolidated University by vote of The General Assembly of North Carolina. We are confident Mr. Hall will serve his state and his profession with distinction.

QUALITY STABILIZATION

Increasing, the Quality Stabilization Bill is picking up support in Congress. It stands a fair chance of passing the 88th Congress but time is running out.

At this point, none of our North Carolina Congressional representatives are on committees to which the bill has been referred. When the bill does reach a point where action from North Carolina is indicated, you can be certain we will notify you.

EQUAL TREATMENT

Of special significance is a recent interpretation of the Robinson-Patman Act by the Federal Trade Commission, in which the Commission held that suppliers who grant promotional allowances to direct buying chains must also make those allowances "proportionally equal" and available to their wholesaler and retailer customers who compete with the retail chains.

Already, the NARD and the NWDA are at work to see that their member's interests are protected in case court action results

NEW PROGRAM

For the Association to continue to grow and to merit the support of its membership, it must be constantly alert to opportunities for service.

As an example, this month we will announce a new "Small Business Tax Control" system, which will be a 4-page monthly bulletin of tax saving ideas and suggestions.

Also, we plan to embark on an extensive program which we hope will result in the repeal of the Federal retail excise tax on toiletries. This will be a nation-wide effort spearheaded by the Excise Tax Information Committee of Washington, D. C.

Repeal of the tax would deprive our government of only 2/10th of one percent of the total U. S. taxes.

We are confident of Pharmacy's future. At every hand we see evidence of progress, of pharmacists assuming a still greater role in health affairs at all levels. This does not mean we are unaware of forces which have little or no regard for Pharmacy or those who support its causes.

More, well trained pharmacists with assurance of fair play, such as spelled out by the Quality Stabilization Bill, will be helpful as problem-solvers. Individually, the best positive program with professional knowledge dispensed with professional skill, with major emphasis on "you" and "your needs."

In case your problems appear to be unsurmountable, perhaps these rules may help to lighten your load:

Dear Sir:

We have examined the Balance Sheet of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association as of December 31, 1962 and the related Statement of Revenue and Expenses for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, the accompanying Balance Sheet and the related Statement of Revenue and Expenses present fairly the financial position of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association at December 31, 1962 and the results of its operations for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Respectfully submitted,

HOW TO PLAN A MODERNIZATION THAT WILL PAY FOR ITSELF

A 2-hour presentation, with charts, graphs and a pharmacy floor layout, was handled by guest speakers, Ted Johnson of McKesson & Robbins, Charlotte, and C. C. Goss of the C.I.T. Corporation, New York City.

Mr. Johnson presented these design standards for a traditional drug store:

1. All merchandising areas of the store are activated by the skillful location of clerk-activated centers, demand departments, and "self-shopping" departments or customer services.
2. All displays are departmentalized.
3. The wrapping counter is placed along the longest clear wall of the store.
4. The prescription department is located in the rear and adjacent to the wrapping counter.
5. The high-volume and high-gross profit proprietaries and toiletries are displayed on the long wrapping counter.
6. The fountain (if any) with its related low-gross departments is placed across the store from the wrapping counter.
7. The prescription department is dramatized and elevated if possible.
8. All clerk stations in the store are self-supporting with departments which will produce more than ten times the clerk hire.
9. High volume toiletry items such as hair care, deodorants, and lotions and creams are placed on open display adjacent to the cosmetic department.
10. Special skill departments such as costume jewelry, or fine gifts, are given special treatment and dramatized.
11. The store is well styled in color and in special design features so that it is a restful, pleasant place to shop and reflects the pride of the owner.
12. It is properly lighted with a minimum of 100-foot-candles throughout the store and with 150-200 foot-candles in the prescription department and on special display areas.

Mr. Goss, in commenting on the Tax Credit Finance Plan, said, in part:

"The Revenue Act of 1962 provides that a business taxpayer may deduct 7% of the cost of capital equipment with a depreciable life of eight or more years from his tax bill for the year the equipment is put into use. Since drug store fixtures and most other equipment fall into this category, this new credit will serve as a real incentive to drug store expansion and modernization.

"The 7% credit is applied as an actual reduction of taxes and not as a reduction of taxable income (as in the case of depreciation, for instance). Thus a pharmacist who installs $10,000 worth of fixtures will actually reduce his tax bill by $700. (Of course, at the same time he must reduce the amount of the depreciation he takes in the future by a like amount.) If the actual tax due is less than the investment credit the pharmacist may carry over the credit into subsequent years (up to five years).

"In many cases this new credit will very nearly offset the down payment for modernization."

Albert K. Norris, representing the Greensboro Division of the Internal Revenue Service, discussed the Federal Retailers Excise Tax, with particular reference as to procedures followed by IRS in auditing records and determining tax payable. A long question and answer period followed indicating members keen interest in the subject. (The NCPA is seeking repeal of the tax.)

DOTH THE BELL TOLL FOR THEE?

Under this interesting title, Edward Wimmer, Vice President of the National Federation of Independent Business, said, in part:

"You are the Men of Main Street. You are the flesh and blood proprietors of your own business. You and your association and your national organizations, and the Federation I represent, stand as a mighty force against the drive to make every retail business in America the link of a big chain. Upon you and your kind must rest the responsibility of breathing hope and ambition into the hearts of our youth, so that tomorrow they will become the first line of defense against communism and socialism."

Mr. Wimmer's complete address will be published in a future issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

period, Past Presidents of the NCPA and members of the N. C. Academy of Pharmacy attended a luncheon in the Crystal Room of The Carolina. Special guest for the occasion was Carl T. Durham, former 6th District Congressional Representative.

FIFTH SESSION

Ballroom, May 14, 2 P.M.

The fifth and final NCPA business session was opened by a report presented by Thomas J. Ham, Jr. of Yanceyville.

Report of the Endowment Fund

T. J. HAM, JR., Chairman

Mr. President,
Members of the Association
Ladies and Gentlemen:

Again it is my pleasure to report on the progress of the Endowment Fund.

As of May 1 of this year, the Fund totaled $18,049.00. This represents more than a thousand dollars increase over the previous year. Commendable, yes, but not representative of what members of this Association can do.

It has been my hope for some years to put this Fund on an all-member participation basis. With this thought in mind, I discussed the matter with the Association's executive committee in January.

The committee was favorable to the proposal that some sort of plan be worked out which would encourage more members to have an active part in building the Fund to the $50,000 we are working to establish. We have the assurance of the committee that it will assist in this mutual effort.

In the meantime, your support, whether it be a dollar or a thousand dollars, will be welcome. Remember—The Endowment Fund is the NCPA's rainy day fund; to help us weather periods when perhaps conditions will not be as favorable as today.

CONSOLIDATED PHARMACY FUND

ROBERT B. HALL, Chairman

The report of this committee was published in the September issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy, pages 24-25.

A panel discussion covered a variety of subjects of current interest to pharmacists. W. T. Boone was moderator. Panelists were drawn from four major fields of interest: Wholesale—H. H. Montgomery; Manufacturing—C. B. Howell; Hospital—J. Frank Lowder; and Retail—Roger A. McDuffie.

Formal papers prepared and used during the program have already been published in various issues of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy.

The Report of the Committee on the President's Address was presented at this time by James W. Harrison, Chairman. See page 13.

TIME & PLACE

Charles D. Blanton, Jr., Chairman, recommended Charlotte as place of 1964 meeting. The time to be left to decision of the NCPA Executive Committee. Note: The Convention will be held in Charlotte, April 12-14, 1964. Headquarters will be at The Queen Charlotte Hotel.

OFFICER INSTALLATION

At this point, the regular NCPA business session was recessed and immediately reconvened as a Joint Installation Service. Seated at the speakers' table, in addition to President Stevenson, was Mrs. Stevenson, President of The Woman's Auxiliary; Mr. William P. Brewer, President of the TMA, and Secretary Smith.

A summary of Mrs. Stevenson's Report, as presented at the Joint Installation Service, was published in the August issue of The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy, pages 28-29.

President Brewer referred to the close working relationship between the NCPA and its two auxiliaries and extended an invitation on behalf of the TMA membership to the floor show and dance, scheduled later in the evening.

The TMA organization, with a membership of more than 350, is the largest such organization affiliated with a state pharmaceutical association in the United States.

To complete the officer installation ceremony, Mrs. David D. Claytor of The Woman's Auxiliary, Hoy A. Moose of the NCPA and Forrest Matthews, Jr. of the TMA, were escorted to the speakers' table. Prior to the installation, President Stevenson said, in part:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The combined membership of the NCPA and its two affiliated auxiliaries represent a total of more than 2500 persons who have and are working together to advance the mutual interests of all organized Pharmacy, with the ultimate aim of bringing health and happiness to our citizens.

We commend each of you for your support, not only for that which is directed specifically to the organization of which you are a member, but to the general cause of advancing North Carolina Pharmacy at all levels. The reports which you have just heard bear out our contention that North Carolina Pharmacy is on the move—moving ahead with a positive, progressive program.

Time is not available to fully cover even the more generally known NCPA programs which the Association is now sponsoring. We would like to mention briefly the recently established Consolidated Pharmacy Fund, which enables the NCPA to aid needy, deserving pharmacy students at the University. For as little as $100 you can have a loan fund named in your honor; some individuals and organizations have already taken advantage of this opportunity to aid our future pharmacists.

As has been announced, Mr. W. S. Wolfe of Mt. Airy has been named 1963 Pharmacist-of-the-Year. When the testimonial dinner is held in Mt. Airy, we hope many of you will join us in honoring this distinguished pharmacist.

North Carolina Pharmacy and pharmacists enjoy an enviable reputation nationwide. You have, and are creating, this favorable image, for which I express my profound gratitude. As we prepared to embark upon a new Association year, my wish for you is “May the road rise to meet you;

May the wind be always at your back;
May the sun shine warm upon your face
And the rains fall soft upon your fields
And, until we meet again,
May God hold you in the palm of his hand.”

The meeting was concluded by the presidents of the three organizations reading their slate of officers and by acceptance of these officers of the duties of the offices.

Officers installed at the session were

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

MRS. JOHN STEVENSON, President

Mrs. Stevenson, gave her report.

At Christmas time Vivian and W. J. Smith sent us a toy airplane, "Wilma" painted on one side, "John" on the other and "NCPA" across the nose. The card read "This is what you need," and there is no doubt but that we have needed one quite often.

As President of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association I have traveled several thousand miles around the state. It has been a most rewarding and happy privilege, getting acquainted with all of the fine people associated with the profession of Pharmacy. I have decided that "we" are about the grandest people in the world!"

Last spring in Raleigh, to start off this administration, there was a brief Executive Board meeting held in the luncheon hall immediately following the Business Session. I was one of the last to leave the room and as I was doing so one of the older colored women who was clearing up (at the same time eyeing that wild hat I was wearing) stuck our her hand and said, "Lady, I would just like to shake your hand. You were de sensation of dis affair."

As to whether or not I was de sensation of dat affair, I am not so sure, but I am sure that since that day I have had a very wonderful sensation—that of being President of this organization of which we can all be proud. I appreciate your giving me the opportunity to serve as its President. I am proud to be its President, and I shall be equally as proud to be its Past-President.

In May I attended a testimonial dinner given in Goldsboro for Mr. J. E. F. Hicks, and in July, the dinner honoring the "Pharmacist of the Year," Mr. T. J. Ham at Yanceyville. Later on in the year I was present at a Convention Planning Session, held at Pinehurst and I attended "Ladies Night" of the Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society and that of the Wilson Club. I visited the School of Pharmacy, and the Institute of Pharmacy many times.

Representing this Auxiliary I attended three Executive Board meetings of the North Carolina Council of Women's Organizations, of which we are a member. I also attended the Public Affairs Conference, sponsored by them. This was held in Greensboro and the highlight of the occasion was an address by Christian A. Herter.

MRS. JOHN T. STEVENSON

The 11th Annual Leadership Training Workshop conducted by the NCCWO was held July 16-19 in Chapel Hill and two officers and two other members of the Auxiliary attended. As a member of the NCPA State Auxiliary you are eligible to attend the one to be held this year, July 15 through the 18th.

During the year I have visited twelve of the thirteen Local Clubs, and two of the new ones. It has been such fun and wonderfully interesting. To see the enthusiasm which each group showed in their numerous activities was a challenge to me. It would be impossible to tell you all of the high spots of these grand visits, but I shall long remember them with pleasure.

Four Executive Board meetings have been held during the year and Officers' Day or the Fall Workshop, when seventy members were in attendance. On this day there were classes in Public Speaking and Parliamentary Procedure, conducted by men who are considered the best in their fields in North Carolina. Also at this meeting our Service Project—Bedside Bags—was launched.

The week before Christmas when over 1700 Bedside Bags were distributed to the chronically ill patients in the state, I think we felt most proud of ourselves, and yet the most humble.

By March when the officers of THREE new clubs were installed we felt proud of our development. These clubs are The Woman's Auxiliary of the Northeastern Carolina Pharmaceutical Society, The Mortar and Pestle Club of the Woman's Auxiliary of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association, and the Cumberland County Pharmaceutical Auxiliary.

Although there have been over seven hundred letters or notes written in connection with the office of president, one of the most effective ways in which we have been able to keep everyone up to date on what was happening and in touch with one another this year has been through the fall and spring issues of "Doings," the newsletter so efficiently edited by our crew in Chapel Hill.

A President's pin similar to the one worn by the NCPA President was purchased by the Auxiliary this year, to be worn by its President during her term of office.

The Endowment Principal of the Vivian Spradlin Smith Scholarship is $6,500.00.

The Lucile Swaringen Rogers Scholarship Fund now totals $3,978.81.

The Student Emergency Loan Fund is $1,671.25.

Our Reserve Fund has a balance of $545.43.

In the relay race, each runner is expected to do his best and then pass the torch to his successor. I have done my best so I pass the torch to my successor. I leave no recommendations. Our new President will have new and fresh ideas of her own. I leave only my blessing and love to her, and to each of you.

I sincerely thank this year's officers, members of appointive Committees and the entire membership for their loyal support.

It is impossible for me to adequately thank Mrs. W. J. Smith for the invaluable assistance she has rendered during the year. She is the most!

Thanks also go to Mrs. Smith as State Convention Chairman and to her assistants, Mrs. James Casteel and Mrs. Wesley Viall, for the success of this Convention.

Mrs. Robert Milton, acting on behalf of the Auxiliary, presented Mrs. Stevenson with a token gift of appreciation for her work during the year.

The President in closing the session, acknowledged the hospitality of the luncheon hosts, and the work of others in connection with the convention.

Following announcements and a prize drawing, the session was adjourned.

EIGHTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT OF THE NORTH CAROLINA BOARD OF PHARMACY

MEMBERSHIP

There has been one change in the membership of the Board since the last report. Dr. Roger A. McDuffie, of Greensboro, who has served the people of the state so well for more than twenty-nine years as a member of the Board, decided not to run for reelection. It was with much regret that we learned of his decision in this matter. His untiring efforts and wise counsel will be greatly missed by the other members of the Board. At the April meeting the following resolution was passed:

Whereas Dr. Roger Atkinson McDuffie is voluntarily retiring today after twenty-nine consecutive years of distinguished and significant service as a member and as a president of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy, and whereas his career as a practicing pharmacist, and as a holder of many other important posts in Pharmacy, has been characterized by ability, devotion, and accomplishment seldom, if ever, equaled by another pharmacist, and whereas his constant effort to improve the public image of Pharmacy by his own personal life and conduct is clearly recognized by us all, and whereas we will surely miss his wise counsel, his untiring patience, his profound humility, and his inimitable fellowship,

Be it resolved that the members, the secretary, the attorney and the inspector of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy go on record as expressing grateful acknowledgment of the numerous contributions our beloved president has made to the Board of Pharmacy and to the profession which he has supported so extraordinarily, and wishing for him immeasurable happiness and good health in what we trust will be countless days ahead.

Mr. David D. Claytor, of Greensboro, was elected to succeed Dr. McDuffie. He assumed office on April 28th preceding the expiration of the period covered by this report, which is April 30th. From the past interest which Mr. Claytor has demonstrated in the profession, it is deemed that he is a worthy candidate to fill the position made vacant by Dr. McDuffie's retirement.

Since the regular election of officers of the Board occurs at the June meeting, a special election was held to fill the office of president. Mr. R. N. Watson was elected president, and Mr. F. W. Dayvault was elected vice-president to succeed Mr. Watson in that office. The officers and members of the Board are as follows:

Robert Neal Watson, Sauford, President
Frank W. Dayvault, Lenoir, Vice-President

H. C. McAllister, Chapel Hill, Secretary-Treasurer

N. O. McDowell, Jr., Scotland Neck

Harold V. Day, Spruce Pine

David D. Claytor, Greensboro

On January 1st Mr. John B. Balas resigned as inspector for the Board, having served in that capacity since November 1956. The Board regrets the loss of the effective service of Mr. Balas. On January 1st Mr. Lloyd E. Davis was appointed inspector for the Board. Mr. Davis attended the School of Pharmacy at the University of North Carolina following his retirement as Lieutenant Colonel from the U. S. Army Medical Corps. During Mr. Davis's army career he had considerable experience in hospital administration. This coupled with his education in pharmacy admirably equips him for the duties of inspector.

WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE?

The bottle on the left is relatively safe in doses of 300 milligrams, while the bottle on the right is highly toxic in doses of a single milligram. The wrong drug could mean instant death. Yet your pharmacist makes such decisions every hour of every day to save lives and maintain health.

ADMINISTRATION

The office of the Board remains at the Institute of Pharmacy, 109 Church Street, Chapel Hill. The Board occupies the same offices in the Institute Building as it has in the past and continues to share in the use of other space in the building.

During the year the Board has continued its liaison with other State and Federal law enforcement agencies. The assistance given and received through this cooperative effort has materially enhanced the effectiveness of the Board's enforcement program.

The Board has investigated all complaints brought to its attention and has continued to attempt to adjust as far as possible unsatisfactory findings through administrative action. During the year the Board has held twenty-one hearings on disciplinary matters. These are summarized as follows:

Offense	Number of Cases
Unlicensed personnel filling prescriptions without supervision .....	7
Substitution .....	6
Illegal sale of prescription legend drugs .....	3
FDA Conviction .....	5
Actions taken in these cases were:
Revocation of pharmacist license ....	5
Revocation of drug store permit ....	4
Affidavits of Compliance .....	5
Letters of Censure .....	1
Action held in abeyance .....	6

The law enforcement work of the Board continues to suffer due to inadequate personnel and finances. This matter has been brought to the attention of the pharmacists of the state repeatedly. For the sake of the record, it is being entered again in this report. The longer this situation is permitted to exist, the more complicated the problems associated with it become. Already there has occurred considerable encroachment in the area of drug regulation by certain State agencies and particularly by the Federal government. Much of the right of self-regulation in pharmacy has already been lost by default. If we are to maintain the regulatory procedures which we have had in the past and not abdicate this responsibility to the Federal government, it is imperative that resolute action be taken without delay to remedy this situation. To this end, it is requested that the president of the N. C. P. A. appoint a special committee whose duty it will be to make a study of the things that need to be done in order to regain and expand our traditional right of self-regulation and professional control. It is further suggested that this committee make a detailed report to the Association at the next convention. If we should fail to make searching inquiry and to take vigorous action as dictated by our findings, we will soon, and we are afraid once and for all, find that as in other great causes, too little came too late. We feel that it is hardly necessary for you to be reminded that if we fail to do these things the victor in this cause will be an all-powerful Federal bureaucracy.

PHARMACISTS

On April 30th there were 2,107 pharmacists on the active roster. Comparing this figure with the 2,061 on the active roster at the same time last year, it is found that there was a net gain of 46 pharmacists during the year. The increase in those engaged in pharmaceutical pursuits was 55. This would indicate that nine pharmacists who were either residing out of state or had retired returned to active pharmaceutical pursuits. This appears to be the case, since the largest gain was in the number who are engaged in community practice on a part-time basis. The number engaged in practice on a full-time basis, both community and hospital, showed little change with a net increase of 7 for the combined areas. The accompanying table gives detailed information about the placement of our pharmacists according to age groups.

PHARMACIES

On May 1st there were 1,018 pharmacy permits outstanding from the Board. Thirty-two of these were for pharmacies operated in hospitals, and 986 were for community pharmacies. This is a net increase of eleven over the same period last year. When comparing the number of pharmacists to the number of outlets, it is found that the ratio of pharmacist to outlet remains about the same with a slight downward trend. Excluding part-time pharmacists, the ratio stands at 1.515 pharmacists per outlet. This decline has been in evidence for several years, having reached a high point of 1.54 two years ago. Any decline in this figure is contrary to the objectives of the Board. It is felt that the best interest of the public can be served by finding suitable means whereby this trend can be reversed.

PRESCRIPTIONS

Eight hundred forty-five pharmacies reported filling an average of 21,142 prescriptions each during the year. This compares with 19,739 for a corresponding period last year. If this average is projected to the total number of stores in the state, it is found that there were 21,500,000 prescriptions filled in North Carolina during the last year. This number is 1½ million greater than it was last year.

INSPECTION AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

The program of inspection and law enforcement has been continued along the same lines as in the past. As was observed earlier, the Board desires to improve this aspect of its work when funds are made available for this purpose. During the year the Board has employed one full-time inspector. The following reports will outline the details of our inspection and law enforcement program.

Mr. John B. Balas acted in the capacity of Board inspector from May 1, 1962 through November 30, 1962, at which time he was succeeded by Mr. Lloyd E. Davis.

During this period Mr. Balas made approximately 699 inspections. These were as follows:

Hospitals .....	5
Class 5 (Narcotic) .....	6
Sundry Stores .....	2
Manufacturers .....	111
Special Investigations .....	25

The remainder consisted of routine drug store inspections.

In addition to his inspection work, Mr. Balas attended all regular meetings of the Board and one examination held during this time.

In re: Annual Report

Gentlemen:

It is my pleasure to submit this report of activities covering the period January 1, 1963 to May 3, 1963.

Inspections of the following types of establishments:

Drug Stores .....	305
Hospital Pharmacies .....	10
Dispensing Physicians .....	3
Grocery Stores .....	13
Miscellaneous .....	11
Investigation of Complaints .....	6
Total .....	348

During the brief period of time I have been employed by the Board I have come to realize that the extent of my effectiveness in fulfilling the responsibilities of Inspector is, and will be, directly related to the support and assistance provided me by the pharmacists of the state. This support and assistance has been excellent thus far. Further, it is my hope that the pharmacists and non-registered drug store owners will feel free to call upon me at any time that I may be of service to them.

I have attended all regular meetings of the Board and also assisted in one board examination.

Respectfully submitted,
 Lloyd E. Davis

To The Officers & Members of the

Gentlemen:

Pursuant to engagement, we have made an audit of the financial records of Mr. H. C. McAllister, Secretary & Treasurer of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy, for the period from May 1, 1962 to April 30, 1963, and the attached statement of Cash Receipts & Disbursements presents a summary of Operations for the fiscal year.

All Receipts entered on the Cash Book were in agreement with duplicate receipts on file and were properly deposited in the bank. Disbursements for the fiscal year were made for apparently proper purposes and are supported by signed, paid checks, receipted bills, etc.

The Balance On Hand at April 30, 1963 consists of the following:

Cash in Banks:

The Bank of Chapel Hill.....	$24,255.90
The University Nat'l. Bank of Chapel Hill (Savings).....	10,817.43	$35,073.33

Investments:

U. S. Treasury Bonds (2½%).....		5,000.00
Total Balance April 30, 1963 .....		$40,073.33

The Cash in Banks was reconciled and verified. The five U. S. Treasury Bonds of $1,000.00 each, were inspected.

The fidelity bond for the Secretary & Treasurer, in the amount of $5,000.00, has been continued to October 1, 1963. Two fire insurance policies of $2,500.00 each, or a total of $5,000.00 on office equipment, were examined.

The records as heretofore, are in excellent condition and no difficulty was experienced in the verification thereof. We acknowledge the assistance rendered and courtesies extended during the progress of the examination.

Respectfully submitted,

A pharmacist may reach for a bottle of aminophylline powder only once a year, yet he always has this heart medicine on hand in case an emergency arises.

Approximately 300 pharmaceuticals account for 75% of all prescriptions. Nevertheless, the average pharmacist stocks more than 3,000 drug items so that he will be able to fill immediately even the less common prescriptions.

In addition, your neighborhood pharmacist must be prepared to answer questions from doctors about drug dosage, strengths and available forms and sizes. To acquire this knowledge, he spends long hours supplementing his professional education by keeping abreast of the latest pharmaceutical developments.

Because the pharmacist keeps more than 3,000 pharmaceuticals in stock and because he is well informed about them, you can be sure that the prescription your doctor writes will be filled accurately and when you need it. Your pharmacist—like doctors, prescription drug manufacturers and drug wholesalers—is a vital member of the team that makes today's life-giving medicines available to you.

Red Tape Is Not the Answer

Guest Editorial by KSL Broadcast House

No doubt the writers of the new drug-control legislation passed in the wake of last year's thalidomide tragedy were sincerely trying to protect the public. But after months of operating under the new law, one wonders whether it isn't having largely the opposite effect.

The drug manufacturers believe it is. The president of their national organization recently reported that the mass of paper work required under the new law threatens to greatly reduce the flow of life-saving new drugs to the public.

One major company, he reported, has stopped clinical research on 50 of its 67 projects. Another company stopped investigation of 90 drugs, when work was virtually finished on 20 of them. Several drug makers have closed their research departments; others report they are moving their research activities abroad.

Why? Because the cost of red tape is strangling their operations. For example, the reports filed on a single drug by one company to meet the regulations, filled 8,000 pages—each page written by a highly-trained clinical expert whose time could be used to better advantage.

Another problem reported is that many physicians who used to test new drugs now refuse to do so because of the paper work involved.

The new regulations are not only onerous, drug makers say, but in some cases are downright silly. One section requires that the placebo or "dummy" drug used on some patients to furnish a "control" or comparison with patients getting the real drug must be labelled as such. That, obviously, makes valid comparisons impossible.

Americans demand the best in medical attention. They demand and should have steady progress in developing new drugs to reduce illnesses and lengthen life. They also demand careful control to be sure new drugs are safe. Surely some middle ground can be established to meet both demands. But of one thing we're sure—simply multiplying "red tape" is not the answer.

The Carolina Journal of Pharmacy is published monthly by the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, Box 151, Chapel Hill, N. C. Subscription rate: $3.00 a year; single copy, 25 cents. Entered as second class matter July 5, 1922 at the post office at Chapel Hill, North Carolina under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Drug Symposium Ends

A 5-class drug symposium, with special emphasis on drugs acting on the autonomic nervous system, ended on October 31. The weekly sessions, starting on October 3, were held in the Liberal Arts Building of Charlotte College.

Instructors were Dr. James C. Kellett, Jr., of Chapel Hill and Doctors John D. Dorsett, Jr., Banks R. Cates, Jr., Richard L. Kendrick and William T. Raby, all of Charlotte.

The symposium, under sponsorship of the UNC School of Pharmacy, was attended by 24 registrants, mainly pharmacists from the Charlotte area.

Other areas of the state interested in sponsoring similar symposiums may obtain the details by writing to Dr. M. A. Chambers, School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

Returns to Sanford

Larry Lazarus, who has been with the Spindale Drug Company, Spindale, is now associated with the Lee Drug Store, Sanford, of which his father, Joe Lazarus, is the owner.

Larry, his wife and son, Joseph, are now making their home at Sutphin Drive, Caribton Heights, Sanford.

Moose Retires from Vick

W. Lee Moose, pharmaceutical chemist with the Vick Manufacturing Division of Richardson-Merrell Inc. since 1942, retired on November 1. His entire career with Vick was in their Greensboro plant.

A graduate in pharmacy of the University of Maryland, Mr. Moose operated a retail pharmacy in Albemarle at one time. He served as a member of the State Board of Pharmacy and immediately prior to WWII, headed up the NCPA's extension program throughout the state. His brother, Hoy, is president of the NCPA.

Receives Degree

Morris E. Hedgepeth, having completed requirements for the B.S. degree in Pharmacy, was graduated from the School of Pharmacy, University of North Carolina, at the end of the summer term.

Prior to entering UNC, Mr. Hedgepeth attended Elon College for one year. He is employed by Southside Drug Company, Henderson.

25 Attend NARD Meet

NCPA President and Mrs. Hoy A. Moose of Mount Pleasant headed a 25-member delegation of pharmacists to the October 6-10 NARD Convention, held in Chicago.

Alfred N. Martin of Roanoke Rapids and Charles Blanton of Kings Mountain were the official voting delegates. Jesse Pike of Concord served on the resolutions committee; Bob Hall of Mocksville was selected as a member of the committee on nominations.

Major interest of the convention centered on the Quality Stabilization Bill. Other subjects covered included pharmacy ownership, net pricing and welfare prescriptions, co-op advertising and "third class" limitation of drugs.

Next meeting of NARD will be in San Francisco. As a follow-up to the meeting, the Hawaii Pharmaceutical Association will offer a special 6-day, $333 all-expense tour to the Islands, including transportation, housing, food and special entertainment events.

Cover Page

Display racks, complete with literature, of the general design as pictured on this month's cover, are now in use in 360 community pharmacies throughout the nation. The American Pharmaceutical Association, with the cooperation of the U. S. Public Health Service, is conducting a national survey to evaluate the community pharmacy as a source of family health information.

While not a part of the 360 pharmacy sampling program, McDowell's Pharmacy of Scotland Neck is one of 35 pharmacies in the U. S. participating in the survey on a supplementary basis.

The survey concludes April 30, 1964.

The Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan

The word "profit-sharing" is most often associated with incentive plans established by large corporations to encourage greater efficiency, reduce turnover, and attract key personnel. This has been its traditional job, one in which it has had a proven record of success. However, to the relatively small, closely held corporation, where the stockholder-employees' biggest tax problem is that of recovering corporate profits, the idea of sharing profits with employees as well as the Internal Revenue Service has, in the past, seemed to be too large an investment for possible future increases in productivity.

What has been missed in this traditional viewpoint, but which is now being realized by an ever growing number of corporations and their accountants is that the tax advantages created under Section 401 of the Internal Revenue Code to encourage Deferred Profit-Sharing Plans will in most closely held corporations not only pay for any profits shared with employees but will ultimately result in substantially more money in the pockets of stockholder-employees and in the corporate treasury. In short, rather than aggravating the problem of profit recovery, a deferred profit-sharing plan can be of considerable assistance. Let us see why.

The three principal tax advantages of a Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan are as follows:

Contributions to the Plan are tax deductible.

Contributions are held in a tax exempt trust with almost unrestricted powers of investment.

Capital gains tax treatment is available upon distribution from the Trust.

Under the first tax advantage, if less money is allocated from a contribution to non-stockholder employees than would have been paid as taxes had the plan not existed and the contribution was simply retained as profit, there will be an immediate gain to stockholder-employees.

Without Plan		With Plan
Contribution taken as Profit	$10,000	Contribution	$10,000
Taxes on Profit	5,200	Allocation to non-stockholder-employees	4,000
Net for stockholders	$ 4,800	Allocation to Stockholder-employees	$ 6,000

Under the second tax advantage, the tax exempt trust will accumulate interest, dividends, capital growth, etc., entirely free of tax. The return on investment without the trust will be taxable at ordinary income tax rates. Therefore, assuming under the above example that the after tax net for stockholders is retained in the corporation with an average return on invested capital of 6% per year, the after tax net return will be slightly less than 3% per year. The trust investment at the same interest return will more than double the "without plan" return because it is tax exempt.

Without Plan

Income on capital invested for 20 years at a 6% taxable interest return	$ 3,869
<hr/>
Total value at end of period	$ 8,669

With Plan

Income on capital invested for 20 years at 6% non taxable interest return	$13,242
Total value at end of period	$19,242

Under a Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan, when an employee retires and withdraws his account under the plan in a lump sum, that distribution is taxable at capital gains rates. For the stockholder-employee withdrawing from the corporation his equivalent interest in the contribution taken as profit without the plan, short of liquidating that interest in the corporation, normal tax rates will apply.

Without Plan

With Plan

Tax upon Distribution (Capital Gains rate 25%)	$ 4,811
Net after tax	$14,431

The above example shows an overall gain of $8,796 with just one year's contribution to the plan. Emphasis here was on personal benefits for stockholder-employees. The corporation also derives considerable benefit.

The Internal Revenue Service will permit portions of the assets of the plan to be invested back into the sponsoring corporation. Under the first example, a profit of $10,000 was worth only $4,800 after taxes. If the contribution to the plan was invested back into the corporation, there would be an increase in working capital of $5,200. The money belongs to the Trust but it can be used by the corporation.

Contributions to a Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan are made only when profits are sufficient, and when the Board of Directors resolve to contribute. There is never any fixed obligation to contribute to the plan. Accordingly, in years of high profits, a large contribution can be made to reduce the corporation's heavy tax burden. In years of low or non-existent profit, no contribution would be made because the tax deduction would not be needed.

These tax advantages are not granted to corporations by the Internal Revenue Service without restrictions. There are definite requirements covering how much can be claimed as a tax deduction; who must participate in the plan; what vested interest they may be given; how distributions may be made; how assets can be invested back into the sponsoring corporation, etc.

J. M. Singley & Associates, one of the leading firms of consulting actuaries in the country and specialists in Deferred Profit-Sharing Plans, will prepare for your corporation a report illustrating potential tax savings, projecting future benefits and describing plan provisions. The report will be prepared from our employee data with a plan specifically tailored to your corporate objectives. An experienced consultant will explain the Internal Revenue Service requirements in relation to their proposal and answer any technical questions that may arise. These preliminary services are offered free of any charge or obligation.

A Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan is not a cure all to all tax problems. However, for a closely held corporation, it is rapidly becoming a vital necessity if profits are to be retained under present tax laws. We suggest that you investigate the tax savings potential of a Deferred Profit-Sharing Plan in your corporation.

Fire Destroys Edwards Pharmacy, Ayden

Edwards Pharmacy, Ayden, was destroyed by fire on October 5. Fire equipment from four nearby towns battled the fire for several hours before bringing the blaze under control.

The pharmacy, one of the most modern in Eastern North Carolina, was completely remodeled several years ago. An unofficial estimate placed the loss at more than $100,000.

Edwards Pharmacy was established in 1917. In 1924, Snowdie Edwards became the sole owner. Mr. Edwards son, McDonald, joined the firm in 1945 after graduation from the UNC School of Pharmacy.

Lynch Pharmacy Opened

Formal opening of Lynch Pharmacy, located in Wayne Avenue Shopping Center, Dunn, was observed October 3-5.

Herman and Ernestine Lynch, both pharmacists, are the owners-operators of the new pharmacy. In recent years, The Lynches have operated Hood's Drug Store in Dunn.

Children preferred them to all leading brands of Chewable Vitamins in Independent Taste Studies*

In recent taste studies, new cherry-flavored Vi-Daylin Chewable was compared with the five leading brands of chewable vitamins. 858 children participated. No child knew which brands he was taking. And the order of tasting was switched throughout for absolute fairness. Result: Children preferred the new Vi-Daylin to any of the brands tested by margins ranging from 1½ to 1 (the lowest) to nearly 3 to 1.

MINIMUM DEVELOPMENTS ESSENTIAL TO THE PRESERVATION OF THE SELF-REGULATION OF PHARMACY AS A PROFESSION

1. Formalize a mechanism for the regulation of professional (ethical) practice and conduct of Pharmacy Practitioners, both individually and collectively. Identify available sanctions, create new sanctions where possible. Set up machinery for effecting discipline by the use of these—
  - A—Local (municipal, county or district)
  - B—State
  - C—National
2. Orient the policy making body (s) of the profession to long range planning and develop programs designed to improve and protect the interests of the profession, thus relieving us of expending our energies solely on defensive projects.
3. Revise and bring up-to-date the State Food, Drug & Cosmetic Act and place primary responsibility for the administration of the drug phase of the Act (currently with Department of Agriculture) with the Board of Pharmacy.
4. Modernize the State Pharmacy Act along lines previously agreed upon.
5. Adequately finance all programs through substantial dues and fees payment.

TIME SCHEDULE TO CARRY OUT THIS PROGRAM: 5 YEARS

SOME OF THE MOST URGENT PROBLEMS FACING THE NORTH CAROLINA BOARD OF PHARMACY:

1. Distribution of drugs in hospitals, nursing homes, industrial health facilities, etc. Including use of mechanical devices.
2. Development of proper basis for limitation of pharmacy permits. Basic standards for physical facilities, pharmacist personnel, hours of operation vs. personnel, etc.
3. More suitable means for handling disciplinary cases. Wider latitude in proceeding against drug store permits and pharmacists' licenses.
4. The prevention of further Federal and non-pharmacy state agency preemption in the area of control of professional practice.—FDA, State Dept. of Agriculture, SBI.
5. Necessary personnel, office space and funds.

6. Full and effective support of pharmacists for their regulatory mechanism (the Board) as opposed to passive resistance or deliberate antagonism to Board programs.

THE BOARD OF PHARMACY NEEDS:

In addition to the present staff

- 1—Administrative Assistant—Inspector
- 2—Two Inspectors
- 3—One office secretary
- 4—Double office space

Hurricane Protection

A picture of Al Rachide appearing in a recent issue of the Daily News, Jacksonville, is a vivid reminder that Eastern North Carolina pharmacists have to always be on alert to possible hurricane damage.

Al is shown mounting protective boarding to the glass windows of New River Pharmacy. Fortunately, the hurricane risk did not materialize but no one knows when another "Hazel" will decide to visit the state.

Nottingham APhA President-Elect

J. Curtis Nottingham, practicing pharmacist and a leader in Virginia pharmacy, was declared president-elect of the American Pharmaceutical Association by the Board of Canvassers in a heavy mail ballot.

The position of first vice president-elect goes to Thomas J. Macek, immediate past-chairman of the APhA Scientific Section and Director of Pharmaceutical Research and Development for Merck, Sharp and Dohme Research Laboratories. Practicing pharmacist James W. Alexander of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and president of the Northwest Minnesota APhA Chapter, was elected second vice president-elect.

Councilors-elect include Seattle, Washington, practicing pharmacist Robert E. Lee; NABP secretary, Fred T. Mahaffey; and Ohio State University College of Pharmacy Dean, Lloyd M. Parks.

These officers were elected in a mail ballot by active APhA members in good standing, and the votes, tabulated for the first time by the IBM Service Center, were verified by the Board of Canvassers consisting of R. David Allen of Arlington, Virginia, chairman; Alvin N. Geser of Trenton, New Jersey; and Nathan I. Gruz of Baltimore, Maryland. The Canvassers met at APhA headquarters today, Monday, October 14, 1963.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the conclusion of the APhA Annual Meeting in New York City, the week of August 2, 1964. The present officers who will continue to serve through the 1964 annual meeting are Robert J. Gillespie, president; John Stadnik, first vice-president; and Mike Harris, second vice president.

The Honorary President of the APhA is elected by the House of Delegates annually, and the Executive Director and Treasurer are elected triennially by the House of Delegates. Thomas A. Foster, of Washington, D. C., currently serves as Honorary President, while William S. Apple of Washington, D. C., was elected Executive Director and Hugo H. Schaefer of Yonkers, New York, was elected Treasurer for a three-year term at the 1962 annual meeting.

The president-elect of the APhA was born in 1912, and is a graduate of the Medical College of Virginia School of Pharmacy. He established a community pharmacy in Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1955, and opened a second pharmacy there in 1958. He was the first full-time Executive Secretary of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Association and is past president of the National Conference of State Pharmaceutical Association Secretaries. He is immediate past First Vice President of the APhA, and when he receives the presidential gavel from Robert Gillespie next year, will be the second consecutive pharmacist to come from a state which has affiliated with the American Pharmaceutical Association.

Amend Article IV, titled Licenses and Permits, of the Rules and Regulations of the North Carolina Board of Pharmacy, by adding a new subsection to Section I, said subsection being (f) The Board shall not consider any application for an original drugstore or pharmacy permit unless such application is filed with the Secretary of the Board at least fifteen days prior to a regular meeting of the Board.

Must Stop Practicing Pharmacy for a 5-Year Period

For selling barbiturates over-the-counter and a gallon of paregoric to an SBI agent, Pharmacist William Lyman Mayson of Hendersonville received this sentence in Superior Court:

- (1) 18 to 24-month prison term (suspended)
- (2) Probation for 5 years
- (3) A fine of $750.
- (4) Must sell pharmacy by March, 1964
- (5) Must stop practicing pharmacy for 5-year period beginning December 15, 1963.

Lax Record Keeping

Agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are concentrating on the illegal distribution of drugs in the state. Six agents have been assigned to the narcotic division with the support of twenty-five additional SBI personnel.

Preliminary reports indicate some pharmacists are exceedingly lax in maintaining proper records of exempt sales. If pharmacy is unable or unwilling to exercise proper control over these drugs, outside agencies will assume this responsibility. The sale of a gallon of paregoric to an SBI agent, as reported above, is a poor way for Pharmacy to demonstrate its continued right to handle exempts in the usual manner.

Guests at Board Meeting

Bill Morris of the Cleveland County Drug Association and Don Carter and Truman Hudson of the Gaston County Drug Society were guests at the October 15 meeting of the N. C. Board of Pharmacy.

Their attendance at the Board meeting continues a policy of the NCPA of inviting pharmacists to attend the Board sessions, to observe, to comment, and to report to their local pharmaceutical organizations, where this is practical.

A Central Electronic Computer Speeds Patient Information.—anon.

Hospital Management 96:82 (Sept.) 1963.

Next spring several departments in an Akron, Ohio hospital will be linked to a central computer for control of hospital information. It is estimated that nurses now spend about forty percent of their time on clerical duties which this system should alleviate. This control system will process doctors' orders concerning medications, diets, laboratory tests, and x-ray examinations. In addition, it will streamline accounting, budgeting and hospital management techniques. Communication terminals to get information to and from the computer will be located at nursing stations, the pharmacy, laboratory, and x-ray services, and in the business and accounting offices. At the nursing station, the nurse will set the dials to enter the doctor's instructions. An automatic entry will be made in the patient's record which is stored in the computer. The pharmacy receives the order and sends the medication to the nursing unit. Charges are automatically sent to the computer and billed to the patient's account. Once the original order is given a schedule will automatically be produced by the computer at set intervals advising the nurse that medication is to be given at a certain time. In addition, a patient profile showing all orders, tests, drugs, and other treatments given the patient is automatically available to the physician at any time.

Do Nurses Spend Too Much Time Counting Narcotics.—Andrew R. McKillop

Hospitals, J.A.H.A. 37:138 (Sept. 16) 1963.

A study was made of the routine nursing task of auditing and recording narcotic and barbiturate drugs to determine if there is an improper utilization of time on the ward by nursing personnel. Facilities and the forms used were also studied to determine if these wasted time. In each hospital studied the oncoming and offgoing nurses count the remaining quantity of narcotics and compare this quantity to the amount shown on the floor control sheet. In most hospitals the medication nurse counted, but in others the charge nurse did the counting. Rarely did a student nurse function as a medication nurse and make the audit. There were only two major methods in which the audit was recorded: 1) Either an over-all one-signature record sheet was signed or, 2) the reverse side of each floor narcotic record sheet was signed. Only one-third of the hospitals studied required the nurse to sign the individual floor narcotic record sheet. In 90% of the hospitals, the barbiturates were counted along with the narcotics during the eight-hour audit. Two variables affected the time required to count and record the drugs. One, obviously, was the total number of barbiturates and narcotics stocked at the station. The other was whether or not narcotic counters were used in the hospital. The use of counters significantly reduced the total amount of time spent in counting. In summary, better utilization would be made of the nurses' time by omitting unnecessary counting of barbiturates, and utilizing an overall sheet that has to be signed only once. It was observed that usually the narcotic locker has to be emptied of all drugs, thus indicating study should be given to designing more functional storage compartments at nurses' stations.

Pharmacy Week in North Carolina

Statement by Governor Terry Sanford

The pharmacists of the State of North Carolina are indispensable members of the health profession which safeguards the well-being of our citizens.

These pharmacists give unselfishly of their time and talents in this specialized professional service to the public, making the finest medication available to all on a moment's notice.

National Pharmacy Week, under the auspices of the American Pharmaceutical Association, will be observed nationally the week of October 6-12, 1963 to focus public attention on the importance of pharmacy in our lives.

The pharmacists of our State are participating in this annual observance.

Therefore, I am happy to designate the week of October 6-12, 1963 as NATIONAL PHARMACY WEEK IN NORTH CAROLINA and urge all citizens to observe during this week the vital role of the pharmacist, upon whose skill and training the health and well-being of us all so largely depend.

Governor Terry Sanford proclaims week of October 6-12 as National Pharmacy Week in North Carolina. Pharmacists present for signing of the proclamation are, left to right: W. T. Boone, Ahoskie, Vice-President of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association; Mrs. James W. Provo, Raleigh, representing the women pharmacists of the State; Forrest Matthews, Raleigh, President of The Traveling Men's Auxiliary of the NCPA; Governor Sanford; Robert B. Hall, Mocksville; Past President of the NCPA and W. J. Smith, Chapel Hill, Executive Secretary of the NCPA.

Salute to Pharmacists

The Albemarle area is blessed with a large number of dedicated pharmacists who provide outstanding service. During the past week National Pharmacy Week paid tribute to the many pharmacists in the area, it was just another seven days in the busy life of the men who depend 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and 52 weeks a year in offering his professional services for the continued better health of the community.

The role of the pharmacist is not confined to the dispensing of drugs and sale of sundry items. Very often the pharmacist acts as consultant to physicians on new drugs, communicates to the public about the progress of new drugs, and provides friendly counsel on a score of related topics.

The practicing community pharmacist is a key member of the health team. But we need to remember that he never stops working around the clock for our health and safety. We frequently complain about the high price of drugs, about the waste of money when medicines are constantly changed by the physician in his search for the right combination, but we should never lose sight of the fact that our pharmacist is always ready to carry out the instructions given to him, on our behalf, by our personal physicians. He merits a big salute every week!—The Daily Advance, Elizabeth City.

Week Widely Observed

North Carolina pharmacists took full advantage of the extensive materials made available by the Public Relations Division of the American Pharmaceutical Association during National Pharmacy Week—October 6-10. Included was APHA's new Family Health Forum radio series as well as the supplementary ad mats.

Since the Week ended, numerous newspaper clippings and personal reports have been received from NCPA members. These will be used as a basis of a state-wide report to the national committee.

As usual, Link Brothers Pharmacy of Reidsville has submitted an excellent entry in the window display contest. If you desire to compete in the state/national contest, mail two 8 x 10 glossy pictures of your display to the NCPA by November 30.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

The enrollment for the Fall Semester was 247 students, 17 less than last year. The senior class had thirty-seven students. It was the small class caused by the transition from a 4-Year to a 5-Year curriculum in 1960. The outlook for a larger student body next year is good because there were 121 students in General College studying pre-pharmacy compared to 93 last year.

The School of Pharmacy maintained an exhibit at the North Carolina State Fair during the week of October 14 in a choice spot in the Dorton Arena. The exhibit was improved by a new background and desks of walnut-faced plywood obtained through support from the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation. The exhibit was manned by two professors or graduate students throughout the week and attracted continued interest.

Pharmacists who speak locally at career programs render one of the best recruitment services for the School of Pharmacy. Attractive printed materials have always been supplied as requested. This year sets of three self-standing panels have been obtained through support from the N. C. Pharmaceutical Research Foundation. Requests should be directed to Assistant Dean M. A. Chambers who has charge of recruitment.

The panels are designed for career displays both in schools and pharmacy windows.

Dr. Claude Piantadosi, Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry attended meetings at Oak Ridge, Tennessee on October 28 and 29.

A collection of 45 old prescription products, mostly fluidextracts and four references were given to the Pharmacy Museum by John Mitchener, Jr., Edenton, North Carolina.

The NCPA Pharmaceutical Education and Standards Committee met at the School of Pharmacy on September 5. More effective recruitment of pharmacy students was the primary topic for consideration.

The American Chemical Society Meeting during the week of September 9 in New York City was attended by Professors Claude Piantadosi and George Cocolas, Dr. Shu-Sing Cheng, Research Associate, and Miss Kim, Graduate Student.

Edward Sumner, Instructor of Pharmacy, passed the final examination for the degree of Master of Science on September 16. The title of his thesis was "Influence of Selected Surface Active Agents on Sedimentation Behavior of Insoluble Powders."

Dean E. A. Brecht attended the joint meeting of the NCPA Executive Committee and N. C. Board of Pharmacy held at the Institute of Pharmacy in Chapel Hill on September 17.

Dean Brecht was a guest of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association Woman's Auxiliary luncheon held at the Carolina Inn on October 3.

Twenty-four pharmacists attended the first of five weekly meetings of the Drug Symposium on the Pharmacology and Therapeutics of Drugs Acting on the Autonomic Nervous System on October 3 at Charlotte. Dr. J. C. Kellett, Assistant Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry served as the instructor for the first meeting and physicians of Charlotte served as instructors for subsequent classes. The post-graduate refresher course was organized and conducted

Two Pharmacy Week window displays were installed in the School of Pharmacy by Student Branches officers Leonard Edward Coats, Dunn; George Jackson Brooks, Jr., Siler City; and Evelyn Lloyd, Hillsboro.

Paul Bissette, Jr. of Wilson took part in the Health Careers Day on October 12 and found so much interest in pharmacy that additional pamphlets had to be obtained from the School of Pharmacy.

Fifty science students from Belmont Abbey College were shown through the laboratories and other facilities of the School of Pharmacy on October 19. Later in the day, at the State Fair, they made a special point of visiting the School of Pharmacy Exhibit.

HISTORICAL NOTES

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

My vacation was perfect. It was spent in New England and my activities were varied and exciting. The crowded schedule provided little time to "acquire knowledge" about pharmacy affairs, but I did enjoy several interesting pharmacy contacts.

Most of the time was spent in Kingston, Rhode Island, and while there, of course, I paid my respects to the College of Pharmacy of the University of Rhode Island where I was welcomed warmly by members of the pharmacy faculty. I had an informative chat with Dr. George E. Osborne, professor of pharmacy and historian, who is as interested in pharmacy history as I am and who has made noteworthy contributions toward preserving records of American pharmacy. The Len Worthens entertained for me one evening at their charming home in Wakefield. (I saw a good deal of them when they were in Chapel Hill in July attending the national meeting of the American Society of Pharmacognosy. Mrs. Worthen's ancestors lived in North Carolina until after the War Between the States—the ante-bellum is still standing on Durant's Neck, and the Worthens made a pilgrimage to the locale while they were in this State.) I had the pleasure also of seeing the handsome building under construction which will shortly be the home of the College of Pharmacy.

I was disappointed to find out that I had missed by a day, "Pharmacy Day at Mystic Seaport," commemorating the Tenth Anniversary of the Seaport's restored Apothecary Shop. The event took place on August 14—the day I arrived in Kingston—and was attended by about 500 persons. Had I known the celebration was to take place I would have left Chapel Hill earlier. (New England pharmacy friends were kind enough to say I would have been included in the guest list had it been possible for me to be present.) I have wanted for a long time to visit this shop and I did make the trip the day after my arrival in New England. My sister-in-law and I spent the day thrilling over the invaluable pharmaceutical equipment employed in the days of long ago. The shop houses two collections, both acquired and presented to Mystic Seaport by Smith Kline and French Laboratories, of Philadelphia—the Dr. Joseph Bringhurst Collection, dating from 1793, and the Karsh Collection, assembled by Abram P. Karsh, a Philadelphia pharmacist. (Everything in the historic village of Mystic is of intense interest to a student of American History—particularly the maritime exhibits of ships and their equipment and, most exciting of all, the wonderful collection of figureheads that once proudly adorned the prows of ships.)

There was a perfect day also at Newport where my hostess and I wandered over the old section of the town and then went on a two-and-a-half hour tour over "The Breakers," the fabulous home Cornelius Vanderbilt built in the "gilded age." Of pharmaceutical interest is a marble mortar in the kitchen about ten inches in diameter, which was employed to crush the herbs used to season the tasty dishes of the millionaires. It was placed on a pedestal stand, about 30" high, designed especially for the mortar.

I did a little shopping too for small items needed for our silver collection, etc.

Tax Tip for the Month

When you replace business equipment, consider whether you should trade it in for new equipment or make separate buy and sell deals. This latter way may result in some immediate tax liability, but the larger depreciation deductions may give you a greater amount of tax saving in future years, particularly if your future income will be higher than your current income.

This and hundreds of other tax tips are fully explained in SMALL BUSINESS TAX CONTROL. Send $9.00 to the Association for a year's subscription to this monthly bulletin of tax saving ideas.

Carolina," there was carried recently an appropriate illustration about madstones with the following comment: "The 'mad-stone' was once a familiar object with many North Carolinians, and great faith was put in its curative powers. An early day Tar Heel hunter wrote as follows: 'The mad-stone' is found in deer. People believe it will cure snake bite and hydrophobia. The stone, red in color and about the size of a man's thumb, is found in the paunch of the animal. A deer with a stone is hard to kill. Several shots are required to down it.'"

Another item we came across in a current press story was about "Fidget Stones." Take the information for what it is worth! "A New York jeweler is advertising a genuine jade 'fidget stone.' Price: $10, tax included. "Just fiddle with our fidget stone and feel euphoria set in," advises the ad copy. 'Prettier than pills, soothing as a lullaby.... Give it to your nervous friends. Cost less than most prescriptions.'"

North Carolina Pharmacy Participates in National Drug Display Study

One of the 30 pharmacies participating in the NARD-Proprietary Association $146,000 drug display study is a North Carolina pharmacy. Supporting the study are Nielsen, McKesson & Gilpin.

The study seeks to prove that proper display of properly chosen items at the heaviest traffic point in a drug store can increase sales of those items 30% or more.

Phase one of the study—records of sales on 1500 separate items—has now been completed as a "control." About January 1, McKesson & Gilpin will install in each of the 30 test stores a newly designed set of fixtures. Sales from the fixtures for January-April will be compared with 1963 records of the control stores carried on during September-October. Ultimate aim of the project is to help the pharmacist better merchandise proprietary products.

The names of the participating stores are known only to the cooperating wholesalers and Nielsen. Results of the survey will be a highlight of the 1964 convention of the NARD, set for San Francisco in late September.

Lincolnton—Officers of Lincoln Drugs, Inc. (successor to Lincoln Cut Rate Drug Store) are Claude Warren, Jr., president and manager; C. B. Lawing, Jr., vice president; and John Cromer, secretary.

Rural Hall—Four Surry County men have been charged with the robbery of B. G. Warren, Rural Hall pharmacist. Warren was seized as he left his pharmacy with a bank deposit of $1,656 in cash and about $400 in checks. None of the money has been recovered.

Kinston—A $40,100 bid on the old City Hall property has been raised by Henry C. Suddreth, operator of a chain of drug stores.

Ahoskie—Ahoskie pharmacists, meeting with members of the Good Neighbor Committee, have voted to continue serving everyone at their lunch counters regardless of race.

Durham—Approximately $800 in cash was stolen from the Broad Street Drug Company in a break-in at the pharmacy.

Buying direct from the manufacturer sounds real good. After all, you get the "best price" — and you get it straight from the manufacturer himself. So, why not?

It isn't that simple. Ask yourself:

Do I really get the best price?

Do I always get what I ordered? Am I ever shorted or penalized for freight?

Do I get the order when I need it? Or must I make a half-dozen long-distance calls?

Do I become over-stocked by buying large quantities? Do you know that it is a fact that as the ratio of direct purchases goes up, the net profit goes down?

Looking it over, you may find that buying by long-distance is more expensive than you thought.

Dealing with us is dealing locally. This has obvious advantages — so obvious, in fact, that you may take them for granted.

We are full-line, full-service drug wholesalers. When you buy from us, you get a number of extras — at no extra cost.

We stock locally — deliver quickly — back up what we sell. We are as near as your local phone. And we have the emergency items when you need them.

Our salesman calls on you personally and regularly. Selling over 25,000 items, he knows them and can help you select the right ones.

"Have This Filled by a Pharmacist of Your Choice"

JAMES W. HARRISON
North Wilkesboro, N. C.

The concept of standard ethical prescription blanks furnished to physicians, dentists, veterinarians by a group of pharmacists in a small town may be realized as well or better than it may in populous urban centers.

Standard ethical blanks means those not showing the name of any pharmacy and bearing the legend, "Have this filled by a pharmacist of your choice." All blanks are of one size and show the doctor's name, address, registry number, phone numbers, refill instructions. This idea, as well as can be determined, started in Greensboro, was adopted in Asheville, spread to Kentucky and the middle Atlantic states, then to Charlotte and is still gathering momentum throughout the United States.

Here is how the project was started in the Wilkesboros. North Wilkesboro and Wilkesboro are very like a single town as medicine and pharmacy are practiced. The combined population is 5866. There are seventeen physicians and eight dentists. Of the seventeen physicians, there are three surgeons, one EENT specialist, one Roentgenologist, one gynecologist, two pediatricians, eight GPs, and a staff physician at the general hospital. In addition there is a physician who holds a bi-weekly clinic and a podiatrist who also holds a more or less frequent clinic. The latter two bring their own prescription blanks.

The metropolitan area of the Wilkesboros has an estimated population of 14,000. Of the seventeen physicians, eight are prolific prescription writers, five slightly less so and three, even less. Of the eight dentists, only four write a substantial number of prescriptions.

To be specific, there are five pharmacies in the Wilkesboros and it was necessary that all participate. It was also necessary that there be a person or persons who would give impetus to the project. After getting all to agree to cooperate and divide the cost and to get the doctors to use the blanks, the project was halfway home. Then a choice of printer was made by the simple act of explaining the project and what was expected, and inviting bids.

Working with each printer who was interested in getting the business resulted in: one size, 16 lb. sulphite paper, one typeface (a Gothic that allowed 4 sizes to be cast from one matrix), padded 100's, printed one side only, the printer to shelve the surplus inventory, insure against fire, deliver the blanks on call. In addition to top sheet of each pad gripped the doctor with this reminder, "These standard ethical prescription blanks are furnished to you by the pharmacists of North Wilkesboro and Wilkesboro who are working with you for better community health. When you need more, please call (name of printer) or any North Wilkesboro or Wilkesboro pharmacy and they will be furnished promptly."

The bids received were interesting. To give each a fair chance, there was a delay of one week in an attempt to contact one without success. One bid was slightly more than the successful one but had so many restrictions as to preclude consideration; another was two and one-fourth times the price of the successful bidder. It is also interesting to note that the successful bidder, used letterpress while the unsuccessful ones would have used offset.

Another session with the printer revealed that the blanks would be run on a Miehle Vertical, six up, and again a little extra consideration for the printer had much to do with the lower price. For example: having the message to the doctor on the top of each pad eliminated extra makeready for him and would save a separate run than had the message been printed on the pad board. Also the choice of a four-size type eliminated work at the Linotype. Offer of cash for the initial order also helped. No round-cornering, no frills that would serve any useful purpose, but no neglect of good craftsmanship.

Decision was made to run 10,000 for each of one group, 5,000 for each of another,

3,000 for each of another and 1,000 for each of four dentists. No veterinarians here write prescriptions, but 10,000 were printed for Wilkes General Hospital since all physicians frequently write prescriptions in the emergency and treatment rooms. Indeed, the specialists sometimes do general practice and the GPs and the specialists sometimes do surgery. 10,000 were also printed for the five pharmacies to be used in giving copies, for telephoned prescriptions and other use. The format differed somewhat in that registry number was left blank, but space was left for physician's address, pharmacy's address. But it still bore the legend, "Have this filled by a pharmacist of your choice." No pharmacy's name appeared but space was left for "Filled at....."

At this writing we are still on the initial order but the response has been gratifying and somewhat flattering. Certainly each pharmacy is enthusiastic over the substantial saving on printing bills. It is estimated the initial cost of $44.34 to each pharmacy for printing that may very well be approximately an annual cost for blanks to all the doctors represents the former cost of blanks furnished to only one doctor by one pharmacy. Projecting this amount to 21 doctors would mean 20 years of printing costs obtained for one year's cost.

CONCLUSIONS

If the 200 a day prescription pharmacy in a populous urban center can cut its printing bill by $800 to $1,000 a year, pharmacies in a small town can effect a proportionate saving by participating in such a project.

Much of the printing specifications may be left to the printer; a knowledge of the graphic arts is not a requisite to the inaugurator of the project, but it helps, especially in being specific in what you need and want of the printer.

Dentists need to be sold on the concept of more prescription writing. Witness the 50% of the writing dentists here. Pharmacists should exploit this field more.

The writer will welcome any requests for more information on this subject than contained in this article. If he may be of further help in aiding any group in such a project, simply contact him.

Founder of Cornwell Drug Honored by Employees

To mark the 31st anniversary of the founding of Cornwell Drug Stores, Inc., employees of the firm recently presented George Thomas Cornwell with a carved wooden plaque. The presentation took place in Shelby at a dinner scheduled to honor employees of the Cornwell pharmacies.

G. T. Cornwell reviewed the history of the Cornwell pharmacies from the first unit established in Shelby in 1932, in the depths of the depression and shortly before a bank holiday closing down all the nation's banks.

He recalled changes which have taken place in Pharmacy, one being the 90 hour a week schedule maintained by many pharmacies prior to WWII.

There are six units in the organization. The managers are: R. C. Braswell, Morganton; J. C. Bowers, Lincolnton; George Coble, Stanley; Robert Kiger, Shelby; Paul Walker, Newton; and Ronald Austell, Shelby #2 pharmacy.

With the plaque went a resolution signed by all the Corwell employees. It read as follows:

"Whereas, George T. Cornwell of Morganton, North Carolina, founded Cornwell Drug Stores, Incorporated, in 1932, with one drug store in the city of Shelby, North Carolina, and through his devotion, diligence, and hard work, honesty and an abiding faith in the success of Cornwell Drug Stores, Incorporated, directed the affairs of the corporation throughout the depression and during the past thirty-one years; and

"Whereas, few men have been as liberal with their time and no one has devoted more time and energy to promoting the objectives and improving the quality of the various drug stores of the corporation, than the founder George T. Cornwell; and

(Concluded on page 36)

G. T. Cornwell is shown with carved wooden plaque presented to him by employees as founder of the 31 year-old Cornwell Drug Organization. The plaque was carved in Lincolnton by a master wood craftsman. Notice inclusion of Belladonna Leaves.

DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

UNC—Headache Capital of the U.S.?

By PETE IVEY
in The Chapel Hill Weekly

One reason why the world beats a path to the door of Chapel Hill is because Carolina alumni do a distinguished job of making headache remedies.

The University of North Carolina could legitimately be called the Headache Cure Capital of the United States, according to estimates figured by local authorities such as Spike Saunders of the Alumni Office and by professional and unprofessional pharmaceutical efforts.

People who have gone out from Chapel Hill to make potions or pills to cure headaches include these:

The late Commodore C. T. Council who made the B. C. formula which is so well promoted by the advertising firm C. Knox Massey and Associates.

The late Isaac Emerson, donor of Emerson Stadium, who was the founder of Bromo-Seltzer. Mr. Emerson was a native of Chapel Hill. Now living in retirement in Chapel Hill is a former president of Bromo-Seltzer, F. Jackson Andrews, who is also president of the UNC Pharmaceutical Foundation.

The late Thad Lewallen of Winston-Salem who compounded Goody's Headache Powders. The Lewallen family remains in charge of Goody's.

William Stanbaek of Salisbury who heads the Stanbaek Company—"Snap Back With Stanbaek."

Vonnie Hicks of Raleigh who made Capudine a conspicuous symbol for those seeking headache relief.

What is the reason for that phenomenon—so many Carolina alumni turning their hands to headache medicines?

So far as can be observed, Carolina students and alumni have no more headaches than those at other colleges and universities, proportionately. But it seems a fact that Carolina alumni have been resourceful in identifying the suffering that often afflicts mankind. Benefitting from humanities studies at Chapel Hill, perhaps they are more than usually sympathetic towards their fellow men and want to help them.

Statesville Meeting

Pharmacists from throughout the North-western area of the state met in Statesville on November 13 for a 3-hour dinner-business session.

Hoy A. Moose, president of the NCPA, presided and discussed briefly some of the major NCPA activities during the past six months.

Earl H. Tate of Lenoir gave a detailed explanation of the Medical aid to the aged (Kerr-Mills) program and its potential effect on prescription practice in North Carolina.

The current net pricing survey now underway in the state was explained by Charles Blanton of Kings Mountain. Members were encouraged to complete and return the surveys.

An open forum, moderated by W. J. Smith, included comments about a pharmaceutical credit bureau, group drug programs, 3rd class of drugs, name on prescription label, public relations, standard ethical Rx blanks, quality stabilization, paregoric on Rx and other matters.

Pharmacists from more than a dozen towns in the area attended the meeting.

Cape Fear

David D. Claytor, member of the State Board of Pharmacy, was guest speaker at the November 20 meeting of the Cape Fear Pharmaceutical Society. The meeting was held in Fayetteville.

Mr. Claytor said most Board problems centered on ethics vs. economics. Unlicensed personnel practicing pharmacy not under the immediate supervision of the pharmacist was the Board's major problem.

J. I. Thomas of Dunn is president of the Society. John Terrell of Sanford is vice-president and Cade Brooks of Fayetteville, secretary-treasurer.

Durham-Orange

Major changes in the operation of the Durham-Orange Pharmaceutical Society were considered by members of the organization at a meeting held in Durham on November 18.

A 20 point program was outlined by a committee consisting of James A. Smith, Jr., chairman; Hunter Kelly and Harvey Whitney. Implementation of the program will get underway at the January meeting.

Julian Upchurch reported on a survey to determine interest among the membership for establishment of a pharmaceutical credit bureau. Due to an existing service, to which a number of members already subscribe, plus other factors, the proposal was dropped for the time being.

Special discounts on prescription service to nursing homes was discussed by Claxton Harris. One complaint in this area is being referred to the Judicial Council of the NCPA.

Harvey Whitney was appointed Chairman of the Constitution and By-Laws Committee. Jack Weir, secretary, announced DOPA had 64 paid members.

Greensboro Drug Club

Members of the Greensboro Drug Club, at their November 21 meeting, voted to establish a P. A. Hayes Memorial Fund as a part of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Research Foundation.

Mr. Hayes was a charter member, an officer and director of the Foundation for more than ten years.

Gaston County

The second meeting of the year for the Gaston County Pharmaceutical Society was held in Gastonia on October 24.

Truman Hudson and Don Carter reported on their visit to Chapel Hill as guest observers at the October 15 meeting of the State Board of Pharmacy.

Two new members—N. A. Smith and Bill James—were introduced.

Wake County

The annual Physician-Pharmacist Dinner under sponsorship of the Wake County Pharmaceutical Association was held at the Shrine Club near Raleigh on November 12. 137 persons attended the party.

The December meeting of the Association was held at the Neusoca Club with the wives of members present as guests. Forty persons were present.

Prescription Copies

by N. O. McDowell, Jr.

In recent weeks many pharmacies in North Carolina have been receiving requests to fill "copies" of prescriptions. There is much misinformation in the minds of many pharmacists regarding the legal status of these "copies." The following is a quote by the Federal Food and Drug Administration on this:

"You can give a copy of a prescription. It should be clearly marked as a copy, AND IT HAS NO LEGAL STATUS AS A VALID PRESCRIPTION that can be filled or refilled by a pharmacist. We recognize that a copy of a prescription may be useful information purposes. From a strictly legal point of view, we think that is the only purpose a copy of a prescription can serve."

This quote, from the booklet entitled, THE RX LEGEND, published by the FDA as a manual for pharmacists, continues, "The difficulty faced by a pharmacist who wishes to refill a prescription on the basis of a copy is that no matter what kind of refill instructions are marked on the prescription, the pharmacist who receives the copy has no way of knowing of his own knowledge whether or to what extent that prescription has been refilled by the pharmacy where it was originally filled. Indeed he cannot ascertain of his own knowledge whether copies have been given to other pharmacies also. His only entirely safe course is to phone the prescribing physician; and then, in practical effect, he is getting a new prescription."

There is evidence to support the fact that in many cases copies of prescriptions have been forged and quantities of drugs such as barbiturates, amphetamines, antibiotics and many others get into illegal channels in just this manner.

The Board urges that all pharmacists use the utmost caution in giving copies and reminds all pharmacists that under N. C. law only the prescriber and the person for whom a prescription is written has to be given a copy of a prescription on demand. If copies are marked as follows it is felt that the law as interpreted above by the FDA will be satisfied: "Copy of Prescription No..... ABC Pharmacy, Anytown, N. C., For Information Purposes only." In all cases the name of the prescriber should be typed rather than written by hand.

For further information to important questions such as this write Food and Drug Administration, Washington 25, D. C. and ask for FDA Leaflet No. 12.

Permit Certificates Changed

by H. C. McAllister

To better implement the legislative intent behind the pharmacy laws of the state, the Board of Pharmacy will change, somewhat, the form of the 1964 Pharmacy Permit certificates. In making this change the Board is attempting to more clearly identify the pharmacist with the professional responsibilities that are inherent in the holding of a pharmacy permit. This responsibility is spelled out in G. S. 90-71 which states "It shall be unlawful for any person not licensed as a pharmacist to conduct or manage any pharmacy, drug or chemical store, apothecary shop or other place of business for the retailing, compounding or dispensing of drugs and prescriptions."

Under the new arrangement the permit is issued to the pharmacist manager as certified in the renewal application. The permit does not become valid until it is countersigned by the pharmacist manager and remains valid only so long as this person retains this position. In the event the pharmacist manager of any given pharmacy should change, the pharmacist to whom the permit was issued must return it to the Board for reissuance over the certification of his replacement. A form for this purpose is printed on the back of the permit. No charge will be made for reissuing permits due to changes in pharmacist managers.

Attend Board Session

Hugh Clark and Thel Smith, representing the Wayne County Pharmaceutical Association, were guests at the November 19 meeting of the N. C. Board of Pharmacy.

FIRE

CAN YOUR PHARMACY SURVIVE?

Sirens wail . . . black smoke envelops the business district. Another office fire! Property damage in the millions! Desks will be replaced; office redecorated. But company records, other important documents will be lost forever.

Destruction of property averages almost three million dollars a day—a fire every two minutes! Actually, losses are three times heavier when company records go up in smoke.

Vital records are irreplaceable! Without them, no business can reopen . . . hope to function smoothly again. 43% of firms whose records were lost in fires were out-of-business six months later! 31% suffered drastic credit cut-backs.

When fire strikes, a company is worth no more than the paper it's written on. Insurance won't cover every eventuality. To collect, firms must show full proof of loss. Records are the only proof.

Company records—ledgers, account books—may be partially restored after considerable time—an expense. They will never replace the original records and all their vital business information.

Conventional steel equipment will endure temperatures up to 1000 degrees Fahrenheit. But, paper begins to char at 350 degrees. Unless properly protected, company records will be reduced to charcoal long before the blaze is brought under control.

Conventional steel files offer protection for five minutes. Then, fire literally bakes the contents!

To fully protect company documents and papers, equipment must withstand both fire and excessive heat.

Insulated office equipment provides heat insulation sufficient to keep interior temperatures below the 350 degree danger mark. Fire resisting files add strength, prevent collapse up to 2500-3000 degrees.

For years, industry sought the solution. Then, one company, Remington Rand, opened the world's first laboratory to research fire insulated office equipment. Findings led to the development of "torture tests." . . . helped perfect a new line of Safe-Record cabinets.

Here's how the test work: Papers are placed inside each test cabinet or safe; then, wheeled in to a 1000 cubic foot furnace. Sixteen gas burners engulf the sample in flames from six sides while self-recording thermocouples register interior heat intensity.

Readings are taken at five minute intervals. Tests last from thirty minutes to two hours. At no time does the heat inside the cabinet exceed 350 degrees. The papers must pass the test intact—uncharred, undamaged.

Another test guards against explosions from rapidly accumulating gases during sudden fires. Inside pressures must not rupture the safe . . . allow heat to enter.

A third stimulates the severest ordeal to which a safe can be subjected—the equivalent of being dropped from a burned out upper floor into the basement, remaining there for the duration of the fires. After the fall, the specimen "sweats" in the hot furnace until temperatures drop considerably. Paper content must survive in usable condition.

Fire-resistive equipment is just one way of lessening damage. Since 50% of all office fires erupt during business hours, secretaries, other employees must be trained to safeguard files and records.

Here are a few tips: "Organized fire-priority files, keeping vital, important, other records separate.

Schedule regular fire drills; show employees how to operate extinguishers; close files after using; make individually tabbed folders with typed labels for ready reference or removal.

Keep all files up to date, in proper alphabetical sequence. Maintain permanent cross-references—the back half of the folder showing where the file is located.

Fire can strike anywhere—day or night. Common sense security and proper filing equipment will save your records . . . mean the difference between costly fire—and bankruptcy.

"Some Do's and Don't's of Filing"

DON'T . . .

- Use pins, paper clips or rubber bands on file papers. File folders usually have fasteners.
- File papers loose in a drawer.
- Allow your miscellaneous folders to become cluttered or over crowded.
- Confuse your files with two or more subjects in the same folder.
- Let your filing pile up.
- Lend papers and depend upon your memory to tell you who took them.
- Pull out more than one file drawer at a time.

DO . . .

- File in date order, keeping the latest date on top.
- Make individual folders when you have much material on one subject or customer.
- File material in one folder, with cross-reference sheets for any other subject or customer included in the material.
- Make permanent cross references on the back of folders, showing where the file is located.
- File in back of guides. After all, "guide" is what the name implies—a guide indicating the proper place to locate a folder.
- Keep material "rough sorted" if you can't file immediately.
- Change out papers removed and place the "OUT" card in the file.

Who Would Be The Losers?

Editorial, Forest City Courier

The tragic thalidomide matter (thalidomide being the European-produced drug which, in certain instances, produced terrible deformities in newborn infants) could be the precursor of a very different kind of tragedy, on an infinitely greater scale.

This tragedy would lie in the passage of excessively restrictive laws, which would inhibit drug research and experimentation. Understandably enough, the thalidomide revelations caused a demand for stricter regulation, and steps in that direction have been taken and more are in prospect. The urgent need is to keep these within the bounds of reason—in the interests of the health and well-being of all people.

The substance of the story has been well and briefly told by Dr. Hugh H. Hussey, director of the American Medical Association's division of scientific activities: "There are few men and few organizations with the talent, experience, resources, knowledge and courage to carry out drug research from the initial step to the point where the drug is available to save the lives and health of our citizens. The manner in which these men and organizations operate is highly individualistic. It is, therefore, important to insure protection of the creativity of such persons which could be harmed by standardization of their procedure through unnecessary and overly burdensome governmental regulation and supervision."

The importance of what drug research means can be highlighted by one fact: 70 per cent of the prescriptions written in 1960 could not have been written 10 years earlier—the drugs didn't exist. Oppressive regulation, no matter how well meant, would mean the ringing of a slow bell in the pharmaceutical laboratories. The losers would be the millions, alive and yet to be born, who may suffer from the manifold ills the flesh is heir to.

Woman of the Week

Mrs. Robert C. Sisk, wife of the owner of Sisk Drug Store, Biltmore, was recently named "Woman of the Week" by The Asheville Citizen.

Mrs. Sisk's record, as cited by the paper, was preceded by this statement: "Inez Sisk is one of the hardest-working women in town."

She is president of the Rhododendron Club, a past president of the WNC Drug Club Auxiliary, takes an active part in many fund raising projects (United Fund, Heart Fund, March of Dimes) and recently helped with a religious census sponsored by the Buncombe County Ministerial Association.

Her eighteen years of sales experience with Bon Marche and Matthews Motor Sales is now being put to good advantage—she assists her pharmacist husband in managing the family-owned drug store.

Editorial Response

By J. A. DON HILL, Pastor,
Caroleen Baptist Church

To The Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your editorial, "Who Would Be The Losers?" of Monday, September 23, 1963, p. 2-A. Before entering the gospel of ministry I was a pharmacist and I still hold a license as a registered pharmacist.

It is my opinion that the tragic thalidomide matter emphasizes the fact that too often we run blind before that which we fear and we fail to use our God-given intelligence to make a rational evaluation of fearsome developments. I personally appreciate your editorial which pointed out that the overwhelming result of drug research has been the preservation of life, increased good health, and even the reduction of such tragedies as deformities. At the same time, you did not lessen the terrible-ness of the thalidomide instance. Would that our government agencies, other editors, and the people of our United States could as sanely evaluate this and all other of life's hard decisions between the lesser of two evils.

Sincerely,
J. A. Don Hill

A Note on Names. (Editorial)—Windsor Cutting, M.D.

Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics 4:569 (Sept.-Oct.) 1963.

A nonproprietary (generic or public) name is important to the pharmaceutical industry since it is necessary to protect the trade name. From the standpoint of the physician, a nonproprietary name is also a necessity. To be of greatest use to the physician, a nonproprietary name should first, be short, and second, be informative. A syllable or stem should name the family to which the drug belongs.

Criteria for selection of either trade or public name by a physician may be determined by: 1) Price. Nonproprietary name drugs are often less expensive. 2) Reliability. Trade name may be used if physician has more confidence in the quality of a certain preparation. 3) Special preparation, coating, and the like. This is seldom a matter of great importance, but in case of doubt the use of the trade name should assure characteristic familiarity to the physician.

There are still other reasons for the provision of nonproprietary names. Books such as the U.S.P., N.F., and N.N.D. must use principally public names. It not only relieves them of any favoritism that might be read into a trademark, but also it removes the dilemma presented by multiple trade names for a single drug. Teachers and writers of textbooks and editors of the better journals may similarly choose to avoid bias by using the public names. Another value in United States Adopted Names (U.S.A.N.), the public names, is that they will be recognized and used internationally.

III. Pentobarbital Sodium in Prolonged-Action Form Compared with Conventional Capsules: Serum Levels of Drug and Clinical Effects Following Acute Doses.—Leo E. Hollister, M.D., et al.

Clinical Pharmacology and Therapeutics 4: 612 (Sept.-Oct.) 1963.

One type of prolonged-action medication, called Gradumet, exists as a water-soluble drug embedded in an inert, insoluble matrix, and the drug is leached from the matrix so long as it remains in an aqueous medium. Release of drug is controlled by the proportion of soluble drug, its solubility rate, the degree to which it is embedded in the matrix, the relative particle size of drug and matrix, and the surface area of the tablet. Comparisons have been made of the effects of a single dose of 100 mg. of pentobarbital sodium in prolonged-action form with three doses of 30 mg. capsules given at three or four hour intervals. Since a large dose of any drug will have a longer span of action than a smaller dose, this is not a valid comparison. In the method used for this study twelve subjects received four doses of 200 mg. each of pentobarbital sodium, two in the prolonged-action form and two as conventional capsules. Intervals of one week separated each dose.

Results of this study provided no data that pentobarbital sodium in prolonged-action form provides much more prolonged or sustained action over that of the drug administered in conventional capsules. Actually, total availability of the drug appeared to be somewhat better from the latter form. Although the Gradumet form undoubtedly delayed absorption of the drug, one is hard put to imagine this as any great clinical advantage. When drugs have such intrinsically prolonged-action, the use of prolonged-action formulations seems to be fruitless.

UNC PHARMACY SCHOOL NOTES

Two pharmacists came to Beard Hall to interview students in the graduating class for positions next June on or before November 19 this year. This is at least three months earlier than usual and is probably due to the small number (37) of students in the off year between the four and five year curricula.

The Proceedings of the Pharmacy Teachers' Seminar held on campus last July was completed with E. A. Brecht and M. A. Chambers as co-editors and mailed to 246 seminarians and 82 Colleges of Pharmacy on October 31. The volume of 152 pages is an interesting record of a very successful seminar. Copies are available for loan to pharmacists who may be interested in finding out what teachers are thinking.

The Alamance Drug Circle has adopted a policy giving permanent value to memorials for deceased members and loved ones. Three contributions have been received to the memory of Mrs. Charles Andrews, Mr. E. L. Rigsbee, and Mrs. James S. White. The contributions were made to the Lee A. Wharton Memorial Fund of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation. The fund was established by pharmacists of Alamance County and, and its income is designated to support undergraduate scholarships for worthy pharmacy students.

Nineteen students in the School of Pharmacy this year have heritages in the profession by being sons, daughters, brothers, or sisters of North Carolina pharmacists.

The student newspaper, published monthly in mimeographed form, has established a record of continuous publication by reaching Volume II, No. 2 in November. A contest is going on for a striking name for the publication. Suggestions are invited from the readers of this column.

Dr. Piantadosi's research on Plasmalogens, implicated in the blood clotting mechanism, multiple sclerosis, fat metabolism, and as a starting point for the growth of the living cell and biological oxidation was included in the "Genesis of Knowledge," which has been published in handsome, illustrated form as a report on research at the Consolidated University of North Carolina.

Dr. J. C. Kellett, Jr., Assistant Professor of Pharmaceutical Chemistry was the author of an article, "A Diels-Alder Student Preparation," in the Journal of Chemical Education for October. The interesting experiment was developed for Dr. Kellett's class last year in organic pharmaceutical chemistry.

Mrs. Irene M. Strieby who was librarian for Eli Lilly and Company for 25 years visited the School and the Library on October 4. She is a graduate of the School of Library Science of the University of North Carolina. While in Chapel Hill she lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Jacobs.

The Annual Modernization Seminar of McKesson and Robbins was held at the School of Pharmacy on October 25. The seminar was followed by a dinner at the Carolina Inn for the graduating students, their wives, and the faculty and staff.

Deans Brecht and Chambers attended the meeting of the Association of Academic Deans of North Carolina Colleges held in Durham on November 6. The evening address was given by Dr. A. R. Keppel, formerly President of Catawba College and now Executive Director of the Piedmont University Center of North Carolina, Inc. concerned with the exciting program of cooperation between sixteen central Carolina colleges to gain strength by cooperative action in such activities as a visiting scholar program, research, shared library resources, etc.

The program on Weights and Measures given by Dean Brecht on Station WUNC-TV, November 15th featured the Standards of weights and liquid and dry measures for Orange County obtained from England under George III in 1760. The display of the weights and measures was made possible through the cooperation of pharmacist A. A. Lloyd of Hillsborough and were considered so valuable that they were delivered at the station in time for the program by a personal body guard and returned immediately after to their places in the Museum of Orange County.

President F. J. Andrews and Secretary E. A. Brecht represented the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Research Foundation at the annual meeting of the University Foundations held at the Morehead Planetarium on November 16.

This year more than sixty catalogs on materials and on chemical engineering were received at the School of Pharmacy through the courtesy of North Carolina chemical firms and branches. An idea of the size of the larger catalogs can be obtained from the postage required for each which was 81c. They were distributed on a first come basis to the students and the supply was exhausted promptly.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Faust on November 20. Mrs. Faust has served as a part-time instructor in the School of Pharmacy while she continued graduate studies.

Student Branches

Mr. Hoy Moose of Mount Pleasant, President of the North Carolina Pharmaceutical Association addressed the student body and faculty on the favorable outlook for pharmacy at the meeting on November 5. He was introduced as the member of one of the family dynasties in pharmacy of the state in which three consecutive generations have held licenses.

Mary Jamison gave a brief report of the Kappa Epsilon national convention held at Columbus, Ohio in September. It was noted with pride that North Carolina had the largest delegation at the meeting.

The November meeting was followed by refreshments in the Student Lounge.

Kappa Epsilon

Ten members were initiated on November 6: Betsy Clark, Pinetops; Peggy Clayton, Charlotte; Laura Gaither, Asheville; Sandra Gilbert, Maxton; Saragene Glass, Norton, Virginia; Nancy Habrat, Charlotte; Vicki Leggett, Williamston; Liz Paterson, Matthews; Judy Patton, Swannanoa; and Mary Sentelle, Asheville.

Pharmacy Senate

Three new members were welcomed at the meeting on November 5: Barbara Akers of Roanoke Rapids, Roy Rabb of Marion, and Larry Baber, Rutherfordton. Vacancies in two offices were filled. Amanda Horsley was elected Secretary-Treasurer and Hugh Myers Parliamentarian. The program for the meeting was given by Judy Patton, Jean Farmer, and Amanda Horsley who spoke on "The History of the Senate," "The Highlights of the Old Minutes," and "The Constitution of the Senate." Dr. J. L. Brannon was an invited guest from the faculty and spoke briefly on the annual Senior Industrial Trip.

Kappa Psi

Kappa Psi is most proud to announce the initiation of the following into the brotherhood: Bob Boyd, Sanford; Johnny King, Greensboro; Tom Lilly, Durham; Neill Musselwhite, Carolina Beach; Neil Pharr, Harrisburg; and Lynn Williams, Zebulon.

Open House was held before and after each home football game of the season. With the end of football season comes the end of the first half of the fall semester. In the past three months Beta Xi chapter has accomplished a great deal in the way of strengthening the relationship between the active brothers and alumni throughout the state. The alumni week-end held Homecoming was a big success and plans are underway for an even better week-end next year with a larger number of alumni attending. The welcome mat is always out for any alumnus to drop in when he comes to Chapel Hill, and anyone who didn't receive an invitation is urged to send us his correct address since some of the addresses were not up to date.

With pride the brothers living at the brick home on Rosemary Street say that it looks the best that it has looked in years. The newly painted rooms with their matching draperies add a lot of color to the first floor of the house, and the bedrooms could not be much brighter than they are due to the artistic touches of their occupants.

Phi Delta Chi

The brothers have completed a home decorating project at the House. A wall to wall carpet, a new TV, couch, end tables, lamps, and an old chair reupholstered were added to beautify the Chapter room.

Open House was held before and after each of the home football games and a new record was established with the large number of alumni visiting the house after the Homecoming game with Clemson on November 9. Enthusiastic approval was expressed on the appearance of the Chapter House as remodeled.

HISTORICAL NOTE

By ALICE NOBLE, Research Historian

During the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy Teachers' Seminar held in Chapel Hill last July 1 had the pleasure of meeting a number of educators concerned with the history of pharmacy. It was a delightful experience, especially so because it was the first time I had had the opportunity of talking to pharmacy historians about their endeavors. A few days ago one of these teachers, Dr. J. Hampton Hoch, of the School of Pharmacy of the Medical College of the State of South Carolina, thoughtfully sent me a number of reprints of papers he had written on subjects pertinent to historical pharmacy. They are treasured additions to our archives. I am quoting from the pamphlet on botany, since the information is as applicable to North Carolina as it is to the State south of our border.

"Ever since the early days of exploration and colonization of our state both laymen and physicians have been interested in native plants which might become useful to the materia medica. Prior to the middle of the eighteenth century the only significant contribution to the botany of South Carolina was Mark Catesby's investigations of our flora during the years 1722-1725. His Natural History of Carolina Florida and Bahama Islands, published in London (1731-1748), contained observations on South Carolina plants (Note: This rare volume, containing facts about North Carolina as well as South Carolina, is a collector's item nowadays and when procurable sells for a fabulous sum.) Dr. Alexander Garden, who emigrated from Scotland in 1752, became actively interested in botany after his arrival in the Province (of S.C.). It was his 'eager desire to learn something of the Nature of the herbs and their Names which the Ethiopians and Africans use for poison and the common method of cure.' He states that the negro slaves had a considerable knowledge of vegetable poisons which they used 'to take away the Lives of their Masters who they think use them ill, or indeed the life of any person, for whom they Conceive any hatred or by whom they imagine themselves injured.' This unhappy situation had led to the passage of a law (May 17, 1751) 'to prevent all slaves from attaining the knowledge of any mineral or vegetable poison,' making it unlawful 'for

Hunter Gammon, Reidsville pharmacist, never anticipated this when the "Filled By" regulation was promulgated by the State Board of Pharmacy. A customer in her early stage of pregnancy was asked by her physician to bring a specimen for examination. At the bottom of the bottle was a small label which read

So far the record indicates 100% in favor of some other system, such as a new prescription from the doctor, to obtain the needed medication.

Sentenced

For a $2,000 robbery of Rural Hall pharmacist B. G. Warren, two Mount Airy men have been sentenced to three to five years in the penitentiary.

Center for Teen Agers

An illustrated story appearing in the October 30 issue of the Gastonia Gazette throws the spotlight on Truman Hudson and the Akers Center Pharmacy. In a 3-col. photo, Truman is shown with a group of youthful customers who find a warm welcome waiting them at the Akers Center Pharmacy.

The pharmacy is pictured as being something akin to the old corner drug store—not a strictly professional operation nor a super, super store—but a place where the personal touch still predominates.

New Additions to Room of Memories

New additions to the Institute of Pharmacy museum (Room of Memories) include four items donated by Ralph Holmes of Statesville:

1. A 1903 Board of Pharmacy certificate issued to Polk Cleburne Gray of Statesville. Mr. Gray operated the pharmacy which was later bought by Mr. Holmes.
2. A membership certificate issued to Mr. Gray by the NCPA on July 14, 1904 in Asheville (25th annual meeting of the NCPA).
3. An English product—Langdale's Concentrated Medicinal Essence of Cinnamon—manufactured in New Addington, Surrey. Recommended as one of the finest remedies for influenza.
4. A bundle of vanilla beans. Although more than 40 years old, the beans still retain their characteristic odor. Mr. Holmes says at one time Vanilla Extract was manufactured in the pharmacy.

Two donations have been received from Mr. J. H. Best of Greensboro: A bottle of Hagan's Magnolia Balm and a small bottle of Perry Davis Liniment. Both items are believed to have come from a Danville, Virginia drug store which Mr. Best purchased and moved to Greensboro many years ago.

A daughter, Laurie Ann, was born November 14th to Mr. and Mrs. Jim O'Daniel, Jr. Mr. O'Daniel is currently establishing the Professional Drive Pharmacy of New Bern.

Mr. and Mrs. George Edmonds are announcing the birth of a son, Jeffrey Heston, October 22. Mr. Edmonds is associated with his brother in the Edmonds pharmacies of Greensboro.

DEATHS

HORACE BAKER

Jesse Horace Baker, native of Winfall, N. C., born April 25, 1928, died October 29.

Mr. Baker, a UNC Pharmacy graduate of 1949, was licensed as a pharmacist, February, 1950. For a number of years he made his home in Mount Airy as part owner of the Square Pharmacy.

At the time of his death, Mr. Baker was associated with a pharmacy in Four Oaks.

P. A. HAYES

Pearly Arthur Hayes, 80, Chairman of the Board of Directors of Justice Drug Company, Greensboro, died November 20. He had been in declining health for several years.

Mr. Hayes career in pharmacy extended over a 60 year period. He started as an order clerk with the L. Richardson Drug Company which later became The Justice Drug Company. He became president of Justice in 1921 and continued in this capacity until five years ago when ill health forced him into retirement. At the time, his son-in-law, Stephen Forrest was elevated to the presidency of the wholesale drug firm.

"P.A." as he was known to hundreds of loyal friends in this and other states not only built Justice into one of the leading wholesale drug houses of the Southeast but he found the time and had the interest to work with and support many fields of endeavor.

Pharmacy long ago recognized his record by bringing him into North Carolina's Hall of Fame in Pharmacy. He served as president of the TMA, chairman of the South Atlantic Drug Club and president of the NWDA in 1940. He was a director and vice president of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Research Foundation for more than ten years.

His service in Greensboro was extensive—mayor pro tem, member of draft board during WWII, president of the Greensboro Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, director of the Guilford National Bank.

A regular attendant at meetings of the N. C. Pharmaceutical Association, PA got to know and was known by everyone associated with organized pharmacy in North Carolina. Up until the time ill health forced curtailment of his usual schedule, he probably held the record for continuous attendance at conventions of the NCPA.

He has left behind him a fine heritage in family and loyal friends. We will never be without him because his spirit is incorporated in all who knew this kindly, thoughtful man.

He is survived by his wife, the former Virginia Townsend of Greensboro; two daughters, Mrs. Stephen T. Forrest and Mrs. W. P. Brewer, both of Greensboro; and six grandchildren.

any physician, apothecary or druggist to employ any slave in the shops or places where they keep their medicines or drugs.' But poisonings and the fear of poisoning seems not to have abated for some years.'

The School of Pharmacy is very proud of its Museum. The collection is invaluable. A few old-time drug store items, however, are still wanting including a leech jar. Diligent efforts to acquire one have so far been unsuccessful. Do you know where one of these rarities can be found? This is on SOS. Please help us if you can.

The Annual Register (London) for October, 1764 provides a record of First Aid as practiced in England in the eighteenth century: "A boy of about six years fell into the river from which his body was taken before it sunk, but without any appearances of life. A lady of quality hearing thereof, sent her maid with directions for rubbing the body (lying before the fire) well with salt; in about two hours there appeared symptoms of life and much water came out of the ears and nostrils; they continued to rub the body. Soon after the child spoke and had the use of its limbs and is now as well as ever."

3 A.M. in a pharmacy...

It is 3 A.M. in a community pharmacy. The street is in darkness, yet lights are on in the pharmacy. Why? Because the pharmacist is faced with an emergency.

He received an urgent telephone call at 2:50 A.M. Mrs. Saxon, a sufferer from asthma, was having severe difficulty in breathing. Her husband told the pharmacist that she had run out of the medicine prescribed by her physician.

The pharmacist dressed quickly, rushed to his store, located the original prescription in his files, telephoned to Mrs. Saxon's physician, prepared and delivered the medication. Soon, Mrs. Saxon was breathing normally again, and a possible tragedy had been averted.

Such crises are frequent, yet your pharmacist meets them with speed and confidence as part of his complex professional duties. Today, a pharmacist goes to college for five years, spends many hundreds of hours in apprenticeship, and must pass a rigorous state examination before he is licensed. He must stock thousands of dollars worth of health products you need every day—as well as those you may need only once in a lifetime.

It was not by chance that the pharmacist had the proper drug ready for Mrs. Saxon when she needed it. We call the complex process by which a drug moves from manufacturer to patient “the miracle of drug distribution.”

The teamwork of manufacturer, drug wholesaler and pharmacist assures that you—as well as Mrs. Saxon—will always receive the medicine you need. This miracle of drug distribution—the fact that the medicine you need is ready when you need it—is just one reason why prescriptions are today's best bargains.
