Washburn to a committee to cause the schoolroom to be fitted up in a proper manner, and a door cut into the ante-room the expense to be defrayed from the $1,000 raised for the high school.

We find the Weymouth High School, therefore, opened upon the first Wednesday of May, 1853, in the room over the vestibule of the new town hall, under the charge of Joseph Dow. The salary was $600 per year which was afterwards increased by allowing him one dollar per week for the care of the schoolroom. Though his motto in possession of absolute proof, I believe this Joseph Dow was a native of Hampton, N. H., a graduate of Dartmouth, of the class of 1833, and the salutatorian of his class.

At that meeting it was voted to choose a committee of one from each school district to take into consideration the whole subject of high and common schools and report at a future meeting. This committee consisted of eleven persons, viz: Elias B. Beal, Joshua Emery, Jr., Josiah E. Pike, Atherton N. Hunt, B. F. White, E. H. Parker, John W. Lord, Thomas Francis and Dr. Appleton Howe. It was a strong committee (as those of us who can remember the men will not hesitate to affirm), and their report was made at a meeting held on April 21 of the same year.

The November meeting was held on the 10th of the month in the Old South meeting house; was adjourned to the 11th and on that day it was voted "To lay the report of the committee on the subject of high schools on the table."

The school at South Weymouth was held in J. G. Rogers' hall, then standing on the south side of Columbian square, nearly opposite where the gas-factory is now located, and the school, when at the Landing, was in the upper south-west room of the Tuttle schoolhouse, then a new building.

Severe Nervous Trouble and Dyspepsia.

After weeks of suffering from nervous trouble and dyspepsia, I was cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is a powerful purgative and it gives the bowels a healthy action. I feel like a new man now. I am able to do my work and I am well pleased with my health.

NITRATE OF SODA.

Use It on Market Garden Crops.

The question of the proper use of nitrate of soda is of special importance because (1) It is an expensive fertilizer, (2) it furnishes only one element of plant food—namely, nitrogen—and (3) it furnishes nitrogen in a form which is highly soluble and consequently is not only quickly absorbed by the plant roots, but is also readily washed out of the soil and lost. In order, then, to be economical and probably employed it is necessary not only to use it in proper amounts, but to apply it in such a way that the nitrogen is used by the plant to the fullest possible extent.

Experiments with cabbage, celery, tomatoes, turnips and peppers at the Weymouth station have shown that the nitrate used in two or three applications throughout the growing season, depending on the nature of the crop, the character of the soil and the growth of the crop.

With the cabbage crop there was a yield of 910 prime heads per acre when no nitrate of soda was used. When 500 pounds of the nitrate were applied per acre in two equal dressings the number of prime heads obtained was 3,200. When the same amount was applied in three dressings the yield was 4,100 prime heads per acre and when this same amount was applied in three equal dressings 7,500 prime heads were obtained per acre.

Applying the nitrate in three dressings proved more effective in increasing the yield than increasing the amount 100 pounds. Not only was the yield much greater than on any other case, but the quality of the cabbage was much improved, the heads selling for 50 per cent more than those from any other plot.

WHAT TO DO.

When Help is High in Price and Almost Unobtainable.

Adapt your farming operations to the circumstances. If you cannot get competent help at such wages as you are obliged to pay for your operations, reduce staff enough to live on first of all. Grow such crops as require the least amount of manual work, but which can be handled as much as possible by machinery.

Some farmers are changing their operations very much because of the scarcity of help. In other cases they are putting in forage crops with a view to winter dairying, because they can take care of the cows themselves and use their own hands for the winter's work on the farm. In other cases these crops are being produced as feed for beef cattle next fall and winter. In still other cases they who have been in the habit of cultivating large areas are planning this spring to put in just enough to keep their business from going under with a small amount of live stock.

The reasoning of these men has much to commend it. They say, "What is the use of working hard and sweating for a lot of hired help when the receipts of what we raise will not afford sufficient profit over and above the wages paid to make it worth our while to do it? Another advantage of this policy which has not yet been mentioned is that its adoption by any considerable number of farmers will tend to enhance prices. This thing is bound to even itself up sooner or later."—American Agriculturist.

The Farm Women

"Why is it that farm women are nearly always successful?" This is a question we have come in contact with more than once. The answer is simply that a woman who has energy and determination enough to undertake the tasks which are set before her will succeed in anything she undertakes. We know some striking examples of the successful management of large farms by the widows of the former owners. In these cases the farms lost nothing by the change of management.

Girls make better berry pickers than boys. We have tried it in several places in Wisconsin and fully indorse what a Wisconsin grower says on the subject: "We prefer girls for picking because they do the work better than boys and are not so full of mischief and play." Also they give better heed to instruction and are much more easily kept in order."—Farm and Ranch.

The much-talked of and much-advertised display of fireworks of the Young Men's Association was given Friday evening on the church lot in Jackson square by Ernest Smith, assisted by Will Hodges, Will Colby, Newman Page and Walter L. Raymond. The display was one of the best seen in this part of the town for some time and contained some very pretty pieces. A large crowd gathered in the yard, which was prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns, and listened to a concert by a hardy group. During the evening, ice cream was for sale by a committee consisting of Harry Bates, Ralph Randall, Melvin Blanchard and Eddie Austin, while Sumner Shaw and Herman Spaulding sold lemonade and candy. A neat sum was realized which will go to help swell the church building fund.

—Miss Solomon—A woman was walking in a palm grove when a man saw her and hastened after her. When she asked him why he followed her, he replied:—"Because I am in love with you."

—"And why are you in love with me?" she asked. "My sister who comes after me, is far more beautiful than I, go and fall in love with her instead."

The man complied and went back, but only to look upon a woman as ugly as "me." He was vexed and returned to the first woman and asked to her:—"Why did you 'deceive me' and she made answer:—"Did I not tell you I was in love with you? If you were really in love with me why did you turn back to the other woman?"—New York Sun.

A Weak Stomach

Indigestion is often caused by over-eating, but a weak stomach is not cured by the same means that are given for the excessive use of alcohol. For the proper cure, get Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. A weak stomach may refuse to digest what you eat. This is a good sign that you need the stomach's aid. The food and the waste refuse to go down. Local constipation, a bad headache, aching in the back, aching in the joints, are all signs of a weak stomach. Get Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will cure you. Absolutely safe and reliable.

Slow Payment.

Although the "White Church" was burned last and the organ totally destroyed more than six months ago, the Fireman's Fund Insurance Company of San Francisco which had given a policy for $100,000 on the organ, has persistently refused to pay the full amount. Yesterday the referees who were to decide the amount to be paid in case of dispute, awarded the sum of $150 to the Congregational Society. The action of the insurance Co. is not reasonable, and so successful for that the agent, H. A. Tirrell, on receiving the offer of a smaller sum than the total, immediately sent in his resignation as agent for the company.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Weymouth, Mass., August 10, 1933.

The column under this title will be given to the people for a free discussion of any and all subjects, provided they are within the scope of this column.

Weymouth, Mass., August 10, 1933.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

My dear Sir:—A business friend sent me the following article from Syracuse, New York. I will interest many of your readers, particularly the Hunts of direct descent, as well as those of indirect descent. I have always thought the Hunts pretty good blood, but never dreamed the like of this. The writer of the English school of water-color painters. Buskin says he was the first painter of still life that ever existed.

PREVALENT OPINION.

CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

STOP EDITION!

It is interesting to note that the prevailing opinion among the public is that the currency legislation is a necessary step towards the stabilization of the country's financial affairs. The current exchange rate is so low that it has become necessary to take drastic measures to prevent a further decline. The government's policy is to issue more currency, but this has not yet been successful in raising the exchange rate.

THE REFUNDING PROCESS.

Here, in a nutshell, is what the Secretary Shaw accomplished by his bond sale. He exchanged $1,000,000 of 2 per cent bonds for 3 and 4 per cent bonds which would not have matured for several years. By which operation the government will save $500,000 per annum in future interest payments and he encouraged the taking out of new circulation by national banks to the amount of $1,000,000, thus making an important contribution to the relief of the money market. If there is not plenty of money to meet the crops this fall, it will not be the fault of Secretary Shaw or of the Treasury. It is the fault of the speculators who have been showing up the rates on money and employing it in doubtful ventures.

Little Interest in Campaign.

[From Practical Politics]

Eight or nine, every body in Washington has assumed that the only interest in the campaign of next year. Some good patriot is to be selected for the vice-presidential service, and there is a mild curiosity as to who will be picked as the runner-up. It is assumed that William P. Frye of Maine would not exchange his real honor as president pro tempore of the Senate for the milk and water position of the vice-president, a position that even the Senate would not touch with its feet. It would be the logical choice by wisdom in the selection in behalf of the business of the nation.

They are even talking about the man who will be selected to succeed the present holder of the office. There is one man who is being talked about in connection with the office. He is a man of ability and has had some success in business. He is a man of ability and has had some success in business.

WESWOOD GROVE. Weymouth's Inland Summer Resort of Which Little is Known.--Cottagers and Cottages.

It is "dollars to doughnuts" that the average Weymouthite is not aware of the fact that there is a prosperous summer colony at Westwood Grove, and many people do not even know where the place is.

Westwood Grove is often confounded with Lake View Park, which is located at the head of Weymouth's Pond, but the owners and residents of the charming summer homes along the west shore of the pond, are very emphatic in their desire to have the place known by its proper name--Westwood Grove.

The grove is composed of pine and oak trees which give a cool shade for the score of more cottages. Each cottage is entirely enclosed because there is an excellent place to spend the entire summer. Heat and health are in the very air. There are no paved streets, no noisy heavy teams, and the ground is covered in many places with pine needles, which in themselves, are a source of health, and also a source of pleasure, making the place practically ideal.

The people, most of whom own their own cottages, are congenial souls from Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Charlestown, and other sections of Boston. They are all good looking, and as such, their reputation as ideal entertainers, has preceded them, and their homes are nearly always filled with friends they have made in previous summers here, or with their sister lodge members from the home city.

While there has been a semblance of order in laying out the streets, one can find a cottage hidden away among the trees in the most unexpected places. The cottages are well built, roomy, and fitted with all the conveniences that comfort can suggest.

In speaking of the attractions of the place, one of the residents said: "I have placed one of my cottages here and I guess, by George, it will take two to get me away." Among the people met by the reporter, were friends from the Boston and Cambridge sections, including the well known theatrical people with wide reputation as public entertainers, veteran Grand Army men, and several ladies from the various clubs and societies of Greater Boston.

The cottage directly at the entrance are Martin Cottages, Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, Frank, William and Annie of Weymouth, and Miss Marion Dempsey of Boston; Hunt Cottages, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hunt, and Miss Emma Reed of Dorchester; Toomey Cottages, Mrs. Captain Toomey of Boston, Wagon Cottages, Mrs. S. C. Clark and Miss Laura Whitney of Somerville; Clark Cottages, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Clark and Miss Edith Clark of Charlestown.

The Eight O'Clock Club Cottage is occupied by a party of Rosary Society, among whom are Charles Matley, Patrick and John Lamb, William Keller, Daniel McCarty, Edward Fenney, and Bert Oswald. Passing further into the grove is found the Center Cottage, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wruck and daughter, Elsie, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hammerich, Henry Galloch whom the government must agree in order to get through transportation for the mails, should be as reasonable as possible in this respect. It is in their interest to do so because all that helps the country benefits the railroads, and a good mail service certainly does this. It will be important that good schedules be made and maintained.

The Havana Post says it has information to the effect that the Cuban government has not given up the idea of establishing a daily mail service with the United States, but that if such a mail is established, Cuba must have to receive all mail from the United States direct through the United States and carry it beyond the limits of the island. For instance, mail from the United States addressed to Kingston, Jamaica, would have to be received and transported direct through to Kingston, and then to Kingston. From Kingston, mail directed to other countries would then be taken charge of by the English government and carried on. Before the Cuban government can proceed with its project, it must come to an understanding with the different railroads of the island over which the mail must be carried and the matter has been with the railroad commission for some time.

CHIT-CHAT.

No, dear critic, there is nothing wrong with this column that is intended to hurt any one's feelings.

I read every week in your issue an article which seems strange, that with all the beach facilities we have in Weymouth some people find it necessary to spend large sums of money in travel and hotel expenses to go to other seaside summer resorts. But then, a "prophet" in its own country, etc.

Did you ever send all your family away for a week to some place where they would not have any work to do, and you would just stay at home? I would not have been so slow to think of it if I had not seen it in your issue. I am sure you have probably noticed how slowly the time passes and how lonely things seem to be, especially on a Sunday. Books seem to be tiresome; if you write, his fingers get stiff, or if one smokes, the favored one is bound to be the same, and one wishes for his family to return.

As I read the local exchanges that come to me each week, I cannot help but feel as though the Weymouth Gazette was the best weekly newspaper published on the South Shore. It retains the old fashioned form of all conservative people like, while at the same time it contains a lot of news, it is being read. Its columns are always open to Weymouthites, and no person with a grievance can ever say that it did not receive a hearing. Yet we hear of people who never send a home newspaper to their homes who have the welfare of their home town at heart.

One cannot compare a local newspaper with a big city daily. The fields they occupy are vastly different. You seldom, if ever, unless one fills some large political, social or otherwise, see there anything regarding your neighbors, their lives or their doings. Yet what is there that escapes the eye of the local newspaper? It does not know a word or a letter in its small papers on account of some of the items. But then, because a certain item seems small and does not interest you to any great extent, is no reason why it does not have a word in it. We cannot all be big guns, dear as we might like to be.

As a section of old English rail that was rolled in Liverpool, England, in 1834, and laid down on the roadbed of the Boston & Lowell railroad in 1835, has been presented to the railroad commissioners. In 1837, the section in question was taken down to the coast and recently recast to a cost of black paint and varnish, and an inscription in gold, giving its history. In addition to the rail, there are three chairs, also of English manufacture, which were used by the company.

The death of Mary Ellen (Cook) Sterling, wife of Auburn H. Sterling, which occurred at her late home on Summer street, Weymouth, on Saturday, August 15, calls for more than a passing notice. Born October 11, 1849, she lived in Weymouth for most of her life. She was a devoted wife and mother, and was well known to many of our citizens.

Somehow I feel as though I wish there could be some way of enjoying canoeing on our river, the way we used to enjoy it. But with the tide and the wind and various other impediments, canoeing there would be dangerous.

Because we see men going to and returning from work in grimy clothes, we must not judge them harshly, especially in winter.

The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock by the rector, Rev. William Hyde, in the presence of a few relatives and friends of the bride and groom.
—Save the Children.
Ninety-one of every one hundred children die each year from disease of the stomach and intestines. All children should be given Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, as it is good for children as well as for adults. Children thrive on it. It keeps their little stomachs sweet and restores their growth and development.
Mrs. Henry Carter, 705 Central St., Nashville, Tenn., says: "My little boy is now three years old and has been suffering from indigestion ever since he was born. I have had the best doctors in Nashville, but failed to do him any good. After using one bottle of Koolid he is a well baby. I recommend it to all sufferers." Koolid digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet. Sold by F. W. Brown, Cohasset.
—TO ISSUE AN ANNUAL.
Class of '99, W. H. B. Entire the Field of Journalism.
The semi-annual reunion of the Class of '99, W. H. B., was held at the Anderson House, Fort Point, last Saturday evening. After partaking of an excellent supper, the members of the class adjourned to the parlor, where a brief business meeting was held. At this meeting, it was voted to issue a paper, the first edition of which will appear at the next meeting to be held during Christmas week. This paper will contain matter wholly original with the members of the class, as well as biographical sketches of each individual covering the last five years. Miss Anna B. Bates of East Weymouth was chosen as editor, and she will have as associates, Miss Annie L. McGorry of South Weymouth and Miss Josephine A. Guaville of North Weymouth. On account of the small number present, the annual election of officers which should have occurred at this meeting, was postponed until the December meeting.

The marriage of Miss Sadie Kravalline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic McLaughlin of high street, to Mr. Charles Quinn, son of Edward Quinn of East Braintree, occurred at the parsonial residence on last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Father Lynch of the Church of the Immaculate Conception was the officiating clergyman. The bride was dressed in pearl grey and wore a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary McLaughlin, a sister of the bride, wore steel grey and carried a bouquet of pink. Miss William Quinn of East Braintree, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. A reception was held from eight until twelve, at the home of the bride's parents and invited guests. Mr. and Mrs. Quinn were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents and Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson. The couple left later for a short wedding trip.
—Control Labor Union.
A movement is on foot looking to the establishment of a central hall for the Boot and Shoe Workers Union of North Weymouth, South Braintree and East Weymouth. Such a body would have a regularly paid business agent, whose duties it would be to attend to the collection of the weekly dues and the settling of union grievances that are constantly arising between manufacturers and the help.
Such an interest in the formation of such an union, claim that the moral effect of it would be far less on the relations between the two opposing factions.
—Letter to Lorenzo Southur, East Weymouth, Mass.
Dear Sir: You naturally want to make your own and your customer's money go as far as possible. So, in the general interest, we tell you why fewer gallons of Devos Lead and Zinc will paint a house than mixed paints.
Let's suppose you are using lead and oil. Instead of lead and oil you put in four-fifths of whitening, lime, water, and other stuff that doesn't paint at all. Put that against a gallon of lead and oil, and what will it do? One-fifth as much.
How much of your labor is wasted? Four-fifths. How good a job will it make? No comparison. How much good will it do you in your business to turn out such a job?
And so on.
Devos Lead and Zinc paints a house with fewer gallons than mixed paints, and wears away as long as lead and oil. Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOS & CO., New York.

TOWN JOKER.
WEYMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 29, 1903.
MR. EDITOR:
"That person still survives and the aggregation hangs away as of yore."
Good joke, isn't it? More especially for one that likes a "dram musical" as the joker calls it. I haven't the least doubt that drumming would be appreciated, and perhaps enjoyed as a musical entertainment by the joker, and as a martial music by most everybody—as much better than nothing. Not to have a dozen drummers, with a large band drum with double thick heads and a man selected for his strength to try a drum the like of the neighbors head (just because he can, for a joke), with a blow that would easily put in the shade a seventy-two pounder, and cause every window in the homes within five hundred feet to rattle as they rattle down to (because they like the music, I suppose), and all this located within from twenty-five to one hundred feet of one's home. This, remember, is not only one night a week, but from four to six nights (a.m.'s and p.m.'s sandwiched in) for six months on a stretch. This is no joke to the neighbors who have to stand it or get out—but may be a grand joke to the joker.
From one of the queer ones who makes queer requests of the "Town Joker."

The Old Office Towel.
"When I think of the towel, I don't think of the towel, I think of the printing house door. I know that nobody could hammer out a towel as it were. The towel is made of steady. The tramp who got it when these two were gone, 'The mop-up' was it. The edging was made in a mill. Each rubber some time or other he put a hoop on. In, over and under. 'I was harder than poverty, rougher than sin, from a roller suspended. And snapped on the wall like a banner of tin. And then the towel. And it was made of steady. And it was made of steady. Without any warning, it fell to the floor and was broken in two."
The above poem may have been appropriate in its day, but that was before the day of the South Weymouth Custom Laundry.
