

GENEALOGICAL REPORT

Introduction

The Malik Dynasty is a historically significant lineage hailing from Mughal roots and an old clan with ancient Indo-European origins. This dynasty's genealogy is marked by a diverse heritage, combining Persian, Indo-European, Nordic, and Caucasian ancestral influences. This report aims to trace the lineage of the Malik Dynasty, shedding light on its rich history and complex genealogical DNA.

Ancestral Origins

Indo-European Roots

The Malik Dynasty's ancestry can be traced back to the ancient Indo-European order, a linguistic and cultural group that played a pivotal role in shaping the civilizations of Eurasia. The Indo-European peoples migrated across vast regions, contributing to the diverse genetic and cultural heritage of the Malik Dynasty.

Persian Influence

The Malik Dynasty has significant Persian roots. This influence stems from the Mughal Empire, which itself was deeply influenced by Persian culture, language, and governance. The Mughals, whose lineage includes the Malik Dynasty, ruled the Indian subcontinent for several centuries, and their Persian heritage left an indelible mark on the dynasty's genealogical makeup.

Nordic and Caucasian Connections

Over the centuries, the Malik Dynasty's genealogy also interwove with Nordic and Caucasian genetic and cultural elements. These connections may have been established through various historical interactions, including trade, conquests, and intermarriages.

The Malik Dynasty's Lineage

1. [Founder's Name]: Disputed (Considered Unknown)

- Founder of the Malik Dynasty (Disputed)
- [During Mid 1700s, Burma/Lahore]
- Survivor Of Mass Destruction/Considered to be Survived During Return To North Indian Plains

2. [Saheb Malik Muhammad Ilmdeen]:

- [1750s/1780s & Lahore].
- Was an Influential Person during British Raj & Declining Mughal Empire.

3. [Saheb Malik Muhammad Imamdeen]:

- [18th Century/19th Century. Birthplace: Lahore].
- An Influential Person & Aristocrat as well as Famous Entrepreneur Of Subcontinent.

- Connection to the Mughal Empire Considered as the descendent to the Survivors of Mass Destruction

4. [Malik Muhammad Siddiq]:

- [1920s and Lahore].
- He was an influential Person in Indian Subcontinent as well as Pakistan. He was an brilliant Entrepreneur considered in 20th Century, He started his legacy when he was just 17 & founding brilliant firms some of his legacy remained is Abaseen International, an company becoming a remarkable bequest of him.

Genealogical DNA

The genealogical DNA of the Malik Dynasty is a complex tapestry of genetic influences, reflecting the diverse heritage of its founders and ancestors. This DNA combines elements from:

- Persian Ancestry: Marked by Persian genetic markers and traits, reflecting the dynasty's connection to the Mughal Empire and Persian culture.
- Indo-European Heritage: Inherited from the ancient Indo-European order, this genetic component is characterized by a wide range of features indicative of Indo-European origins.
- Nordic and Caucasian Traits: The influence of Nordic and Caucasian genetic markers can be observed in various physical and genetic attributes among members of the Malik Dynasty.

Conclusion

The Malik Dynasty's genealogical report showcases its rich history, rooted in Mughal and ancient Indo-European origins. The dynasty's Persian, Indo-European, Nordic, and Caucasian genealogical DNA underscores the complexity of its heritage. This report provides a glimpse into the dynasty's diverse ancestry, contributing to its unique place in history.

Please note that specific names, dates, and historical details would need to be filled in with accurate information to create a comprehensive genealogical report for the Malik Dynasty.