and organist as well as a singer. For several years she was organist and soloist at St. James church, Boston. She was one of the soprano! soloists at the Centennial exercises in Boston in 1875. She was at one time a member of the Union Musical Society of Weymouth and Braintree, and served as organist of the St. Francis Xavier church, South Weymouth.

In 1872 she married the late Major | || John W. Hart, a prominent shoe manufacturer of Weymouth. Surviving her are two sons, John W. Hart of Washington, D. C., and Leo J. Hart of Braintree; one grandson, Leo J. Hart Jr., and three step-children, Louis J. Hart of Quincy, Daniel F. Hart of New York city and Mrs. Hugh J. Molloy of Lowell, also a sister, Mrs. John Cronin of California. The funeral took place from the church of the Sacred Heart Monday morning. Solemn high mass

TOWN HALL SITE

The chief reason why Weymouth voters were lukewarm to the new Town House recommended a few years ago was the proposed location. The Gazette has already showed conclusively that East Weymouth is the logical location for a Town House; that it is the business centre of the town. That being the case, the Town House should be located near the business houses, and not far from the present location of the town offices. A site that may be conveniently reached by electric cars or busses from Weymouth, North Weymouth and South Weymouth.

The best location on Broad street would be the combined estates of Dr. Fraser and Dr. Libby, fronting the Church of the Immaculate Conception, but these might be difficult to obtain, and are in too close proximity to the tenement block and factory. No other desirable lot seems to be available between Jackson square and Central square. That is a lot that is high and dry and large enough for the purpose. Why not on Commercial street, somewhere between Jackson square side? Not one estate, but two or three estates with ten acres or more in the rear for a recreation park and parking place for automobiles. There is in the rear today, a natural park, a beautiy spot of many acres, when viewed from Station street, which would rival Merrymount Park in Quincy or the Hollis Field in Brain-A place where band concerts might be held, or carnivals, or even baseball games and football. But it should be something more than an athletic field. First of all a recreation park and a supervised playground with comfort station, etc.

The Gazette-Transcript knows that there are several desirable locations on this street, but thinks that the ideal site would be at the corner of Commercial street and Station street, at the head of Cottage street. By taking both the Hobson estate of 36,200 square feet, and the Thurston (or Young) estate of 20,400 square feet where the large barn is located a lot of sufficient size would be obtained, and to this could be added 10 or 20 or 30 acres in the rear, with entrances at the head of Cottage street and also from Station street, and possibly from Jackson square and Commercial square.

Give us a Memorial Town Hall dedicated to the veterans of the Civil War, the Spanish War and the World War, or dedicated to World Peace. Perhaps when the needs of a new Town House are emphasized some philanthropic person will come forward and give the town such a building, or a recreation field. The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has promised the East Weymouth committee a new depot. Let us continue the good work with improvements be signed by the writer's name, as at Jackson square, also a new Town they will have more weight, but in Hall and recreation field in the same

Dramatic Night of Catholic Club

The annual dramatic night of the Weymouth Catholic club, always eagerly anticipated by members and guests, sustained its high standard of excellence. The production re-flected much credit on the club dramatic committee; Miss Alice Dwyer chairman, and Miss Helen Corridan

The play, "Neighbors," a one-act comedy by Zona Gale, was presented in Sacred Heart hall Monday evening. The parts were taken by Mrs. Mary B. Thomas, Mrs. Harriet Berry, Mrs. Alice Garrity, Mrs. Elizabeth Dowd, and the Misses Lucretia Dalton, Mildred Erwin, Marie Galvin and Helen Lyons. The acting throughout the performance was unusually well done and merited the enthusiastic response of an appreciative audience.

The brief business meeting which preceded the entertainment was conducted by the president, Mrs. Alice Wallace. During the intermission an opportunity was given to obtain confections from the hospitality committee, Mrs. Teresa Kelley, Mrs. Margaret Riley and Mrs. Grace Lonergan. Musical selections were rendered by Miss Bernadine McCusker, pianist, and Mr. Harry McCusker, violinist.

Following is the winning composition, written by Miss Evelyn Price, which has also been sent to National headquarters, New York:

The Soan-ge-ta-ha Camp Fire Girls began their weekly meetings for the year in September, after a long and happy summer. They held their meetings Saturday afternoons on "Wohelo

The first week they blue-printed leaves and flowers. Then they took up out-of-door cooking. They learned how to build different kinds of fires, and made cocoa, corn-chowder, both baked and glazed apples; cooked steak and bacon and eggs on hot stones, baked potatoes in hot ashes, and fried delicious pancakes, learning the art of "flipping" them as well. One week they had a treasure hunt inviting the "Le-wa Group" to join them. They divided into two groups with "Ketch-a-nena" and "Waw-wawtay-see" as captains. They were each given a trail map to follow, one starting north and the other south from "Soan-ge-ta-ha lodge." following the trail through the woods they met on "Wohelo Hill" where the treasure was hidden. After a long search they found a large box of popcorn balls which they enjoyed after cooking their supper.

On the night of the "Leaf-falling" full moon, they held a Council-Fire on Wohelo Hill, after they had cooked their supper. Their Camp-Fire Dad and some of the parents were guests. The moon, making a silvery path across the pond made a beautiful setting, as the girls when the call of 'Wohelo" was heard formed a circle around their council fire, robed in their ceremonial gowns, and lit the fire while singing their songs.

The girls received many honors and Killooleet, their assistant guardian, told why she chose her name and was made Wood-Gatherer by Alahi, their guardian. After singing their camp songs and relating their experiences at Camp Kiwanis last summer, they sang "Mammy Moon" and their good-night song and went home; with happiness and joy in their hearts and a thought that would lead them to a finer woman-hood. It was a beautiful and memorable Council-Fire. On Halloween eve they held a masquerade party and barn dance in their Camp Dad's barn. Many friends were there and all enjoyed a good time. The girls are now busy practicing Xmas carols, making Xmas gifts for friends and sick children, and working to become Fire-Makers—the second rank in Camp-Fire. "WAW-WAW-TAY-SEE"

WHEN CUTTING GRASS WAS A REAL HAZARD

This armored car is used for cutting the grass on the crowded municipal links at Lincoln park, near San Francisco, Cal. The car had to be screened since it became necessary to cut the grass while the links were in use and no driver would risk the job without this protection. With the heavy screen the car is the target many times for the players.

Refilling Pressure Type

of Grease Gun Is Easy Refilling the pressure type of grease gun, such as is used in conjunction with modern lubrication systems on automobiles, is a slow and tedious procedure as well as disagreeable because of the amount of grease that is deposited on the hands during the process. An improved method of filling, which was devised by a Washington (D. C.) motorist, is illustrated. It is simple enough to warrant adoption by any motorist who objects to having to fill the gun with his fingers or a stick, and is also a quicker method.

The filler is simple, a flat strip of sheet metal, fitted with a wooden han-

In operation the filler is inserted in the can of grease and turned continuously while it is being pulled out. The grease in the shape of a cylinder adheres to the sides of the strip. The filler then is placed in the grease gun, the cap is pushed down over the barrel, and the blade is slipped out, thus leaving the contents inside the gun .-Popular Science Monthly.

Use Homemade Jacks for Lifting Up End of Car

When working on the rear end of an automobile, or under it, it is usually necessary to jack up one end of the car to provide more space to work. The illustration shows a pair of simple homemade jacks for this purpose. They are made of 2 by 6-inch unplaned lumber, and constructed as shown in the upper figure, each consisting of a 2 by 6-inch base, two support blocks, and a top board of the same material. The top board is pivoted on one of the support blocks by means of a piece of 1/2-inch iron pipe, loosely held in place by large staples; it must be about twice as long as the

To Prevent "Hot Box"

Watch Wheel Bearings

A cracking sound coming from the hub indicates something wrong in the wheel bearings. Unless this is promptly attended to a burnt-up wheel bearing may result and there is danger of what drivers call a "hot box," which is likely to lock the wheel on to the axle or burn the axle in half, permitting the wheel to roll off. Imagine what would happen if this should occur on a down grade with a heavily loaded truck. When this cracking sound from the hub becomes audible the driver should put his hand on the hub and if he finds it hot he should carefully examine the bearings. Probably he will find a couple of the rollers cracked or broken. If this is so he should drive slowly and carefully Dangers of Carbon Monoxide to the nearest place where they can be replaced.

Retard Spark to a Low Point Before Starting

"Every owner operating a car bearing battery ignition should always retard the spark to a low point before attempting to operate the starting motor," says the director of a motor service station. "Otherwise, a backfire is liable to occur, resulting in either a broken engine arm or a damaged starting motor bracket. Drivers of cars of this type should also throw out the clutch before connecting the starting motor switch. ### Lose at Abington

The Weymouth F. A. football team was unable to score on Saturday in its last game of the season, being defeated at Abington by the Oldtown team 6-0. Luck seemed to be against the Weymouth boys. In the first period Abington blocked a punt and received the ball on Weymouth's 1-yard line, Olson making the touchdown. In the last two minutes of play Weymouth had the ball on Abington's onefoot line but fumbled. Weymouth made 12 first downs and Abington none. Of 11 games played this season Weymouth won 6, lost 4 and tied 1. The summary:

SOUTH SHORE SCHOOL MEN Tuesday night at the first meeting of the South Shore School Men's Association Weymouth led all towns for of our educators sat down with sixty other men to a plentiful supper served to the association at the Bridgewater state normal school.

After the meal the company retired to the reception room for a short sing before President Turner of Plymouth called the meeting to order. The Association accepted an invitation to hold its next meeting at Abington toward the end of January.

Superintendent Boyden, the host, was then introduced as the first speaker. He explained the type of training and courses offered by the state Normal schools and urged all present to bend every effort to give the best possible preparation and encouragement to students who intended to enter state normal schools.

Frank W. Wright of the state department of education, deputy commissioner in charge of elementary, secondary and normal schools, made the next address. He brought out the fact that in the nine normal schools in Massachusetts there are still places for sixty more students, so that there is no reason for students not proceeding with their normal training just because the nearest school may be filled. Next he demonstrated how the state was now in a position to supply itself with plenty of fully trained teachers for all teaching vacancies within the state. He explained a proposed law which after 1927 would compel all towns to hire only fully trained teachers if they expected to receive state compensation for such teachers. This bill all but passed the legislature last year and it is expected and hoped that this bill will go thru at the next session.

In closing, Commissioner Wright read off a series of questions by which to judge of the effectiveness and efficiency of course curricula in public schools.

CUT FOR SHOE WORKERS

A Brockton dispatch sayys: The State Board handed down on Saturday its first decision in the series of cases raised by the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers Association asking for wholesale wage reductions in all branches of the shoe trade. Today's decision relates to the various crafts of the sole fastener's departments and grants. wage reductions of from 6 per cent. to. 18 per cent. and averaging about 10 per cent. This is about one-half or what the manufacturers asked for.

The reductions are heavier on the cheaper grades of shoes and on the rougher classes of work than on the high grades and more technical operations. It is now 'expected that further decisions will follow this first one, and that wages will be reduced in general about 10 per cent. overthe entire shoe industry of the Old Colony district.

After a walk around the town, with its strange mixture of primative and modern, we walked out three or four miles to another little town of fishermen and farmer folk, where the wedding was to be. The couple were really married at the civil offices, as there was a great deal of red tape, and consequently were late. There was prayer at the home, and then Mr. Opei and another Englishman preached little sermons in Portuguese which they told me, were repeated insistances that the bride be subject to her husband, and after much oral and silent prayer, and scripture reading, our group had to hurry to take tea, test the wedding cake, have a group picture taken, and then rush had suffered much from eye trou- back in a two-wheeled donkey cart finish off this novelty in shades.

We went to the church service, but he air was stale, and it was hard work to keep awake listening to a ermon that we could only catch an ccasional word of.

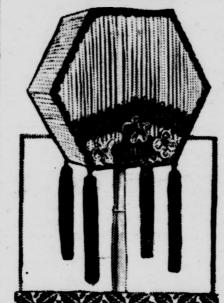

There was a big bull fight this aftrnoon in the town, but we were not much tempted to stay for it. The water, however, did look tempting, but cold.

As we sit this morning in the balcony looking out across the valley we can see on the hills beyond the big prison on the left and the many oldiers' quarters. Every building hat you see is made of stone. The rees, flowers, etc., resemble Southrn California. It is not as beautiful s Pasadena, but might be if the people had money here Off on the orizon are rice fields in a river bed,

Christmas Lampshades

Happy is the home-maker who receives pretty lamp or candle shades at Christmas time-nothing helps more to deck out the house and make it cheerful. Here is a new shade made of thin silk, or fine crepe paper, in two colors, rose and light blue. A wire frame is first covered with the rose color, put in plain, and over this the light blue is plaited. Gold lace, silk or paper roses and four tassels

Gift for the Baby

When Mister Baby takes his place at the table a bib of some kind becomes a necessity. Here is one that will please him. It may be made of unbleached cotton, white oilcloth or linen, cut in the semblance of a rabbit. Oilcloth may be painted, but usually cotton floss is used to outline the features and the edges of the figure.

Silver Head-bands

The most fashionable of pretty headbands, for evening wear, are those made of narrow silver ribbons, adorned with rosettes or tiny roses of the

New Ribbon Girdles

Vivid shades of red, yellow, blue and green appear with brown or other dark colors in fashionable new ribbons, and often the glint of gold is added. These ribbons are liked for girdles and rosettes to brighten up the quiet and simple frocks that good taste approves. They are worked up in many ingenious ways and women are enthusiastic about them for Christmas' girts; a girdle and a corsage ornament are shown here. Short lengths with bias ends and braided strands are used.

Christmas Pillows

Handsome and comfort-giving cushions are among the Christmas gifts that always delight either men or women. These cushions are very practical when made of black satin or sateen and decorated with a band of wide figured ribbon in brilliant patterns.

These black cushions are decorated on one side, sometimes with bow knots or other motifs made of narrow gold ribbon and small silk flowers, stitched down at the edges.

Crocheted Fan

A novelty in small fans makes a pretty gift, and this year brings one covered with plaques, crocheted with silk floss in bright colors. A little palm leaf, or Japanese, fan will provide a foundation. Edges of the plaques are sewed together and the handle may be wound with narrow ribbon and finished with a bow.

Among Gifts for Men

As welcome as the Christmas tree, the perennial shoe tree and coat hanger make their annual appearance. They have arrived in sets to match this year, some of them neatly covered with corduroy, in cheerful colors, and others with gay ribbons and decked with ribbon flowers. The corduroy sets make nice gifts for men.

Could Fiction Writers Find Anything Funnier?

The story of the British civil servant who, after ten years' absence from his office, returned to it to find that he had risen in salary and seniority while away, and was now a principal clerk, has its parallel in real life.

A certain young man became a member of the French civil service in 1922, and from that time a hat, a coat, and a pair of gloves at his desk bore mute testimony to his existence. This evidence was confirmed by his regularity in collecting his salary. But, otherwise, he was never seen or heard of at' his office.

He was transferred to another office, and his hat, coat and gloves changed their quarters. But otherwise there was no change. Eventually it was discovered that he was a professional dancer, and was too busy to attend the office.

The authorities were shocked, and resolved that the young man must be punished. But the only two possible duction in grade. The first seemed too punishments were dismissal and resevere; as for the second, the young | man was already in the lowest grade. Finally, the Gordian knot was cutthe young man was promoted, and then immediately reduced to his former status.

Famous Roman Baths

Have Been Overrated

We go to the movies and see scenes arranged to impress us with the luxury of the old Roman baths in use 2,000 years ago; and very few of us realize how superior the up-to-date bathroom is to those costly ancient edifices. So says a well-known maker of up-to-date bathrooms.

The Roman baths, he continues, were built, as a rule, by the emperors, their cost being too great for a private individual. Crude and clumsy was the method by which the water was heated and carried from one pool to another. Although it was changed continually, every one bathed in the same water, and soap was unknown. The baths were open only at certain hours of the day, an admission price was charged and their use was limited to nobles and freemen of the city.

In Greece marble slabs were hollowed out and filled with water, which was splashed or poured from urns over the head or body of the bather. Down through the Middle ages plumbing fixtures, as we understand the term, were

Live in Fear of "Devils"

In practically all parts of New Guinea the natives believe that the "tamarangs" or evil spirits come out as soon as it is dark and are constantly on the watch for stray negroes. says the Detroit News. Fortunately, however, the devils are quite unable to pass fire at night, so a village is protected by a ring of small fires about it. Sometimes the fires are placed in a circle around the settlement and sometimes just four are made, one at each corner of the place. Inside this protective belt the negro has no fear whatever of the "tamarangs," but in the case of the bush natives especially all the tinned meat and jew's-harps in New Guinea would not tempt him outside it before dawn in districts known to be afflicted with devils.

Mother's face wore an exasperated look as she rapped her little sor smartly on the knuckles.

Johnny would persist in putting the food into his mouth with his knife instead of his fork, and time and again mother had told him about it.

"Sonny," she. said angrily, "how many times have I told you that you must not eat with your knife. Use your fork." "Yes; but mamma," objected the little boy, "I must use my knife, 'cos

my fork leaks."

Stories about clowns are in vogue One concerning Bill Buck a famous clown of half a lifetime ago, would have delighted that artist of the flour paste countenance.

Two old ladies, standing in a queue for the pit of a theater, fell to discussing the merits of the various clowns they had seen.

Said one, summing up her impressions: "But I think I like Mr. Buck best of them all-such a nice clown! There's nothing vulgar about him-he never makes you laugh."

Belief Seems Justified A Greenville (Me.) newspaper says that it is a very old Indian tradition that all the bull moose of eastern and northern Maine make journeys to the west shores of Moosehead lake at the close of the year for the purpose of casting their antlers. "Though the story has passed for fiction among the residents, there are not a few old hunters and woodsmen who believe it, and relate tales about the abundance of moose antlers among the maple woods 25 miles north of this village."

Tempered Criticism

He was only twelve, but he contrived to throw the apple of discord into the boarding-house to which he had been sent for convalescence after influenza.

It came about because they all read Sand-Gravel-Loom the postcard he had left on the hall He had written: "There are three extraordinary old geesers stopping here, but one of them is rather a decent old geeser as geesers go."

-Rev. Everett E. Bachelder, for seven years pastor at the Congregational church at Rockland resigned on Sunday to accept a call from Utah.

Farmer Benson yelled, curving his mittened hands to his mouth so the words would reach the mail carrier, five or six feet on the other side of the fence. At the same time he nodded significantly toward the road farther on, where the snow had drifted entirely across, covering the fence on either side. "Five foot deep an' still driftin', an' plenty more places on ahead jest like it. Don't see how you got this fur. Well, we'll shovel out the gate, an' then you can drive in under my shed. It's three miles back to town, an' you can't return any more than you can go ahead. I never see snow fly so fast. Mebbe it'll ease up by tomorrow so we can start to plow the roads out, but 't ain't likely you'll get the mail round under two or three days, or perhaps a week. You'll drive

It was trying, for this was the last day of rural free delivery No. 3. The route had been started as an experiment, but now was thought to hardly be worth while, and was to be dropped. John Holden had been one of the strongest advocates for it, and had obtained the route, leaving his oldest boy to look after the farm. The salary was not large, but in a year or so would enable him to stock the farm as he had wanted to stock it all his life.

At length the snow was cleared from sufficient space for the gate to be opened and swung back. Holden led his horse through the shed, then unharnessed and took him to the stable, where he fed him generously with the hay which Benson threw down from the mow. Then the two men feturned to the wagon, and Holden quickly arranged his mail into a compact package.

"We'll take it right into the house," said Benson. "It'll be safe there till you're able.to go on."

Holden smiled and shook his head. "I shall go right on now," he said. "Mail mustn't be delayed, you know. Besides, a lot of this is Christmas

"But, man alive, you can't do it!" expostulated Benson, incredulously, "It's half a mile to the next house, and that drift right ahead is up to your armpits, an' too soft to stand on an' too deep to push through. You're

"Mebbe," laconically, "but it's got to be done."

All this time he had been fastening the package securely upon his shoulders. Now he straightened up, taking the broken half of a rake handle he saw near.

"Look Here, Holden, Don't Try It," He Said.

"If you don't mind, I'll take this along," he said. "It will help steady some."

Benson placed his hand upon his shoulder.

"Look here, Holden," he said, earnestly, "don't you try it. The thing's nothing more nor less than suicide, and you know it."

Holden met his neighbor's look squarely and smiled. "I don't think so," he answered. "I shall try to creep along the fences where it's bad, and stick mostly to the high, windy ground across lots, where the snow will be less deep. I wouldn't wonder if I could make it all right. It's only a half mile to the next house, an' not more than that between any two places, an' only fourteen miles round the whole route. Then there's another thing, the main one," his face becoming grave; "you forget the folks who are waitin' for their mail, especially a Christmas one. The ones away are writin' to their folks then. What will it mean to them if I don't get 'round? Of course I don't know much about what's in the mail, but there's the Widow Cross, livin' alone, an' her son workin' up country in a mill. I've got a little for mornin'. Mebbe the one, but I wouldn't be surprised if she was without wood or coal to keep her warm an' a scrap to eat, an' that this letter will fix her up all right. Then there's Johnson an' his wife, who have a sick son off in China. They're out to the box every mornin' waitin' for me. I've got a letter for them, an' it's from China. An' there's Almy Rose, whose husband is off to sea, an' little Nina Clark, whose fellow is up to the mines workin' hard to earn enough to start housekeepin'. I've got letters for both of them. An' 't ain't all the mail, either. I do errands for a good many. You know the Watts', whose boy is so awful sick. They ain't nobody to send for a doctor. What mightn't it mean if I didn't get there in two or three days? No, no, Benson, I wouldn't dare to stay if I wanted to. I'm only one, an' they're a good many. Good-by."

Usually it required less than five minutes to drive between the houses, but it was two hours later when Holden struggled up on the piazza and knocked on the door, looking more like a crudely made snowman than any-

"For the land sake!" cried the woman who opened the door, "if it isn't Mr. Holden! How'd you ever manage to get through? But come right in. You can't go on any more today. My folks are almost scared to go to the barn.

It Was Still Snowing and the Drifts Much Deeper.

Come," throwing wide the door, "don't stand there in the cold. Take your wraps right off and set right up to the fire and warm."

"I haven't time now, thank you," Holden replied, as soon as he could interpose a word. "I must get on to Watts'. I have some medicine for the sick boy, an' he may need it. Here's your mail. Merry Christmas, speaking ahead." And once more he went out into the storm, disappearing in its blinding whirl almost instantly.

It was scarcely half a mile to Watts but it took him twice the time to reach breath before he could summon strength to knock.

"M-merry Christmas, an' here's your mail, an' medicine," he gasped, as the door was opened. "No, I can't stop. I'm a good deal behind time, an' must reach the widow's tonight, an' Johnson's, an' Rose's an' others. They all ain't much over a quarter of a mile. The storm's something terrible. Good-

When he reached the Widow Cross' it was she who heard him fumbling about the door, and opened it, thinking it was a cat or dog wanting shelter. At first he could not speak, but held out her letter. "If it's the right one," he whispered presently, "I'll take it down to the store an' get your supplies in a few minutes, soon as I'm rested. It's only a few rods. An'-I hope you'll have a Merry Christmas."

"You'll stay all night, of course," she said, anxiously. "You're completely used up an' it won't be safe to attempt going any farther."

"Only to Johnson's an' Rose's an' one or two more, just beyond the store," he answered. "I have letters for them, which I want to deliver tonight." The next day it was still snowing, and the drifts much deeper. Although he started early and struggled through the snow until after dark, he made little more than a mile. It was Christmas day, when mail was not supposed to be delivered, but Holden did not even think of that. He had letters to leave, and anxious people were waiting for them. So Christmas went by. The third day the weather turned colder and the moist snow crusted enough to bear one's weight. The snow changed to a bitter, driving sleet. It was much harder traveling, but the crust enabled one to go more swiftly. This day Holden completed his delivery, and returned to the post office with the mail he had collected on

Three days later the roads were open so he could go for his wagon. In the afternoon he went back to his Rural free delivery No. 3, however, was discontinued only a month. Then a letter came to the post office and was sent out to John Holden. It read.

"Owing to more definite information in regard to route No. 3 and to the prospect of its betterment, and more especially to the manner of the last day's delivery, the department has rebe continued for one year, with the probability of being made permanent. John Holden is appointed carrier."

er trees, hopelessly bare and cold, shivered in the wind and crackled their icy branches. The beautiful Lady of the Snow with all her Snowflake Imps in attendance flitted about the village street, sliding gayly down the shop windows and flirting with the passers-The Man and the Child made their way through the drifts toward the group of houses. The Child ran and danced about, now in front, now behind the Man, shouting and laughing. She loved the white old Winter and in return Winter had commanded all his subjects to be kind to her. So the Snow Lady kissed and caressed her and the Snowflakes played about her merrily, touching her cheeks softly and making them rosy. But the Man hated Winter and now he hurried along, giving no heed to the beauties about him, wishing only for the warm fire in his cottage. The Snow Lady tried all her charms on him, but he only pulled his muffler tighter about his throat and his cap more firmly upon his head and went on. Then the Snowflake Imps flew at him furiously. They stung his face and buried themselves inside his muffler. The North Wind tormented him, too, blowing up his sleeves and twisting his great coat about his knees until he stumbled and muttered under his breath. When the Child laughed at him and would have thrown snow in his face, he reproved her gruffly.

The Man was threshing over in his mind a question he had discussed with had decided to have no Christmas this year. It was foolish, very foolish to wear one's self out thinking and planning presents for all one's relatives and friends for months before, and then perhaps not be ready when Christmas came. They would not allow their child to keep her belief in the foolish Santa Clause myth which they had told her so long ago.

This was the hardest part, for both the Man and the Woman dreaded to tell the Child, and they put off the task as long as possible. Now it was Christmas Eve and the Man had promised to tell the Child as they visited the shops. But she had been so delighted with the array of toys heaped in windows and on counters, so happy in thinking Santa would bring her some of these wonderful playthings, that he could not oring himself to tell her Santa would never visit her again. And yet he must. She would soon get over the disappointment and be happier than ever, he told himself. Yes, it was the sensible thing to do, but he would wait and let the Woman tell her.

As they neared the cottages the Child threw out her arms joyously as though she would embrace the whole world of Snowflakes before she left them. And they, wild with delight, fought for a place upon her little hood and shoulders that she might carry them away with her.

"Oh, Mother, Mother, the Snowflakes have played with me and have told me the prettiest stories," cried the Child as she drew the Woman's hand across her cold, damp cheek. "And I have seen Santa Claus. He is visiting the shops now but he promised to come here tonight." She stood on her toes and clapped her hands in her excitement, and the words tumbled over one another as she tried to tell of all the beautiful toys she had seen. The Woman sighed and looked reproachfully at the Man. So he had put it off and leave it for her to do? The long discussions on the subject, the dread of spoiling the Child's happiness and the arguments as to which should tell her, had unsettled the Woman, usually so gentle and even tempered. She was vexed. She turned to the Child wearily, a little impatiently. She would tell her now. "Dear, haven't you learned yet that there is no Santa Claus? You will not hang up your stockings tonight, for he isn't coming to fill them."

Then as the Child stood looking at her with wild, wondering eyes, she exclaimed, "Why do you stare at me so? Don't you see we have been playing make-believe with you all these years? There is no Santa Claus, and you are old enough now to forget such foolish stories. It is expensive and tiresome to keep up this farce and we have decided never to have Christmas again." To the Child it was all a strange ternoon at the shops." Wrought up as she was, the Woman's voice sounded cold and unfeeling. "Go to bed now. You will understand better in the morning."

The Child obeyed silently. All her joyousness was gone. The laughter had died out of her eyes and in its place there was wonder and hurt. But she could not talk about it now.

Had Never Heard Christmas!"

When the Woman left her in the white bed by the window, she cautiously opened it so the Snowflakes could come in. And then, with a great sob, she told them her troubles.

In the big room with the bay window, the Man paced restlessly back and forth and the Woman sat by the table with workbasket and mending. But her hands lay listlessly in her lap and she gazed into the fire.

Once her-face brightened and she murmured aloud, "But Father and Mother never forgot us, and of course they will send something for the Child-"

The Man wheeled about with a scowl. "We won't receive anything from them. Do you think we would accept presents, when we are not sending any? I have written them that we are not to have any more Christmas celebrations."

"Oh," gasped the Woman. "You do not mean we must send back everything we get?"

The Man hesitated. Then, as though he were sick of the subject, "I don't know. It is all your doing. It is you who has nervous prostration at Christmas after worrying about presents." "I do not," she denied hotly. "And you suggested this anyway. I wish we had never heard of Christmas!" Their Christmas Eve was spent in quarreling, and that night they dreamed of horrible plots that Santa was planning against them.

A pale moon with icicles on his whiskers watched over the little village. The Snow Lady was asleep and the Snowflake Imps had settled down to rest. One cottage gleamed colder and whiter than the others and seemed to stand apart as though not of them. The Spirit of Christmas tried the door

"Why, it is barred against me!" he murmured sadly, "This will never do." So he walked about looking for a place to get in until he came to the window where the Child slept. Tenderly he sprinkled happiness and joy upon her until her lips parted in a smile. Then he flew past her to where the Man and the Woman slept. To them he gave of all his essences. The Woman wakened first, and with strange new feelings, she called the Man. They gazed long at each other. "Merry Christmas," whispered the

. And with wonder and joy, peace and good will all mingled together, the Man took her in his arms.

"We must have Christmas, after all," he said. And the Woman nodded, her eyes beaming with happiness. "I must go to the shops and bring Santa Claus for the Child before she wakes."

"Wait," cried the Woman, and laughing, she brought from their hiding place an assortment of beautiful toys. "Mother and Father sent them and I just couldn't send them back."

With shining faces and happy hearts, the Man and the Woman hung stockings by the fireplace and heaped them with playthings. "We will tell her she had a bad dream," said the Man. "No," said the Woman softly. "We will tell her that Santa is the good Christmas fairy, who will always be

not told the Child. Why did he always Straight Lines in New Winter Coats

Upper Part of Garment Is Tight; Severely Gored From Knees Down.

The winter styles are now definitely decided and for the greater part they are charming and wearable, observes a Paris fashion writer in the Boston Globe. The straight outline prevails, notwithstanding the strenuous efforts made by one or two Paris dress designers to change it. Women have come to realize that straight lines make for a youthful appearance; the same applies to moderately short walking skirts. We find straight lines especially notable in the new winter coats. Of course, it is true that there are many models, in fur as well as cloth, muddle. Something dreadful had hapthat flare considerably at the hem; coats cut on redingote lines, the upper part tight and the lower-from knees down-generously gored.

This style of coat is having a good deal of success, but it is not nearly so popular as the severely straight coat. A recent model of Redfern represents the latest ideas of one of the most notable tailors in Paris. The material used for this model was a heavy silk tricot, stitched all over with bands of mulberry-colored silk chenille. At the hem there was a border of fur dyed a rich mulberry tint, cuffs and collar to

This type of coat looks beautiful in velvet-black, brown or dark bluewith handsome trimmings of sable, mink, kolinsky, squirrel and so on. A long, straight coat of this order is not alone flattering to the average figure, it is also practical and eminently smart if-and the "if" is vitally important-it is worn over a skirt that looks short and narrow at the hem.

It need not be actually tight or short, but it is essential that it should convey that impression. Several leading dressmakers are using the heavy silk tricot above described for their best winter models-dresses as well as

Sometimes the supple material is elaborately embroidered with colored silks or chenille. Sometimes it is braided with soutache in several different widths. This handsome material looks well in creamy white, embroidered in black or dark blue and

The new fox single-skin scarf is mounted in the old way, like a small, Ellis J. Pitcher flat rug, with an invisible hook and eye in two of the pats to hold the scarf in place.

Smartest of New Bags Simple Envelope Type

The smartest among the new styles in bags are as severely plain as those in vogue for several seasons have been ornate. The purse now carried by the well-dressed woman is a simple envelope of patent leather, kid. satin, suede, preferably with no elaborating detail other than a clasp of gold, or one-jewel set, or the monogram of the wearer serving as a clasp. Smaller pursebags of some fine fabric are much liked, especially when one of leather would seem to be an inappropriate detail of the costume. But even these have only an inset of needlework or a motif of some sort tinguished styles in purses are shown with the menogram or coat of arms wrought of gold. All of these new ideas emphasize the passing of the fussy, barbaric, frivolous type of purse.

Gives Ease and Grace The corselet of brocade is being duplicated in the pure and the silk rubber now so much in favor. The new corset is to have a sufficient amount of boning to support the figure, but not enough to make this combination of corset and brassiere anything but easy and flexible.

HOW HE AVOIDED A FORTUNE

By GORTON CARRUTH

(C. Doubleday, Page & Co.) Y DEAR friend," drawled Adams, lazily puffing his cigarette, "Suppose you tell me in simple English what it's all about?"

Opdycke, his attorney, quizzically regarded the young idler. "All right," he replied, "I'll put it as simply as I can. Your principal's gone; wiped out. Hence your income has disappeared. Is that plain?" 'Quite, thank you. Ah! You have given me good advice sometimes. What would you suggest that I do now?"

The lawyer laughed. "It seems obvious. You can, to put it bluntly, starve or go to work. Personally, I think that I should go to work."

Go to work! Long after Opdycke had gone the young man sat chewing over this bitter phrase. Work! The Adamses had never worked. To be sure, some of them had made money. There had been, at favorable timesespecially war times-certain judicious investments made on the basis of in--Use clean straw for banking formation imparted by good friends in places. A providence that watches over the elect had prospered these investments. Hence there had always been money and no need of work.

Work! That meant living in mean quarters and riding to and fro on the elevated or subway during the jam hours. It meant eating in armchair restaurants. It meant saying "Yes, sir," and "No, sir," to some vulgar fellow who was your boss. It meant . . . well, what did it mean in the way of money? Mighty little. For what could be do? He had not been trained to work. Perhaps he would be a . . a shoe clerk or something like that, and earn a mere nothing . . . fifteen dollars a week, maybe . . . tobacco money.

The door opened and his valet entered. "A letter, sir," he said.

It bore no stamp and had evidently been delivered by special messenger. Adams tore it open. It was from Opdycke.

"By a curious and, it seems to me, happy coincidence," it read, "I had not been half an hour away from your house when I ran into a friend of mine who can give you a job. Not that I mentioned your name to him. But he said that he wants an insurance solicitor who can interview 'our best people' and at once I thought of you. I said I knew just the man and asked him to hold the job until he heard from me. What do you say? It seems to me a good opening for you."

Oh, Lord! Insurance! Adams shuddered. Fancy going about intruding on nice people-some of them one's friends-and trying to bulldoze them into buying insurance. Oh, unspeak-able! He rose and wantlered about the li brary, hung with the portraits of past Adamses. Half unconsciously he came to a pause before the picture of his grandfather, Abel. His grandfather had been different from the rest of the male Adamses. They had been comfortable stay-at-home folks, content to wax sleek and fat on their fortunate investments. Abel had been a rover, a voyager into strange lands, a hunter, an adventurer. A fighter, too! The musket he had carried in that South American filibustering expedition of his youth hung below his portrait. Moved by a sudden impulse, young Adams took the gun from its hook and went and sat down, with the musket in his lap, facing the portrait of his Grandfather Abel. Abel, now: what would he have done in this situation? The young Three blows on the alarm calls the man looked at the portrait's piercing gray eyes and firm chin. There was no room for doubt about it. He would bave gone vigorously to werk. And not uncheerfully, either. He had been For grass or woods fire call nearest a good sport, Abel had. He would have treated it all as a fine adven-NO SCHOOL-2-2-2 sounded twice ture; he would have plunged into It will be sounded at 7.30 A. M. for trade with a zest and would have made

Well, after all, that was the only way to face it. The Adams stock wasn't played out. He could do as well as his grandfather, whom he had often been told be resembled. There was a fight ahead; he could put it through. Perhaps he would even like it. Certainly he could not say that his life so far had been intensely interesting. On the contrary, he had lived in Are you tortured with stabbing a decorated boredom. There would be the zest of battle in the new life and a sense of genuine unity with his fellowmen. Yes, he would put it throughsuccessfully.

The young man experienced a thrill of resolution and high purpose. Unconsciously his fingers tightened on the butt of the old musket. There was a crack, and his fingers broke through thin wood. At the same time somestreet, Weymouth, says: "I was suf- thing slipped across his palm and fell wood and removed from the cavity eleven stones similar to the one that had fallen out. A dozen in all. He leaned back in his chair and stared at them as they lay on the table . . . his Grandfather Abel's treasure cache, stored in the musket, no doubt, as a reserve to have by him in his adventurous wanderings.

Adams knew diamonds. There was a small fortune there. Enough, if put at interest, to provide him with a living income for the rest of his life. He sat and stared, his mind in a curtous maze. His fortune was changing suddenly this afternoon.

The door opened and Jenkins came in again. "A gentleman to see you, sir," he said. "From the board of directors of the Goodrich Memorial hospital."

"Show him in," said Adams, dully. He opened a drawer and dropped the stones into it. "Ah, Wesson, how do you do?"

Wesson was dapper, cheerful, deferential. Mr. Adams had no doubt heard of the million-dollar drive that the hospital was undertaking? Of course; had not the hospital always been the chief charity of the Adams family? His respected father had been so generous! And so had he. Hence Mr. Wesson had come to him first of all, confident that he would start the drive with a subscription that would command respect and invite emulation.

Wesson ceased talking largely because he saw that Adams was not listening to him. That gentleman was staring fixedly at the wall on the opposite side of the room, and he stared so long that Wesson became uneasy. 12.45 There was really nothing there to look at except an old oil painting of a former Adams. A glitter came into the eyes of young Adams; his jaw muscles tightened. Wesson looked about and marked the door.

"Ah . . . I beg your pardon, Wesson . . . I was just thinking . . . you see, I'm a little short of money. . . . Temporarily. . . . " His eyes again sought those of the picture and again he was silent. A penholder snapped between his fingers.

"But here, here," he opened the drawer convulsively, "here are twelve diamonds, Wesson . . . No, eleven. I'll keep one to remember my Grandfather Abel by. Take those for your fund. No! No! Take them, I tell you! I don't want them. Take them and . . thanks for coming to me! Good-day! Good-day!"

Wesson backed out. Adams picked were again riveted on those of the por- M., 4.44, 6.55, 10.16 "Ah! Opdycke? Adams. Just want-

Famous Mysteries Had Good and Bad Points

The famous "Eleusinian mysteries" were secret religious rites and ceremonies in honor of Demeter or Ceres, annually celebrated at Eleusis, near Athens. These ceremonies symbolized the idea of death and resurrection, and are-believed to have consisted, of certain spectacles, sometimes brilliant and sometimes frightful, the Detroit News informs.

Their institution is attributed to Cadmus, to Erectheus, or to Eumolpos. The "Eleusinian mysteries" were introduced into Rome, and were Great in 389 A. D. Initiated persons estate of only were permitted to witness them, and were strictly forbidden to divulge what they saw. Those who broke the vow of secrecy were accounted execrable. The laws were: First, to honor one's parents; second, to honor the gods with the fruits of the earth; third, to treat brutes with kindness. Cicero says that the "Eleusinian

Selectmen Praise High Football Team

The Selectmen at their meeting on Monday afternoon gave a hearing on permon or residents of Ramblers way, Idlewell, also Chandler street and Pleasant View avenue, for the acceptance of those streets. There was a large attendance, particularly from the Idlewell section. The board voted to recommend to the town to accept and work the streets. It was also voted to instruct the superintendent of streets to cut the brush and bushes from Idlewell street from Commercial street to the railroad bridge.

Invitations were received and accepted to attend the Fire Prevention meeting at Pond Plain Community Building Thursday evening, and the tenth anniversary of lodge G. Verdi, Sons of Italy, at Odd Fellows hall,

Dec. 5. The Knights of Columbus were granted permission to sing carols in the streets of the town Christmas eve. Cote Bros of Summer street were granted a second-class dealer's license The board adopted the following resolutions:

To the Principal of the Weymouth High school-

Whereas the Weymouth High school foot ball team made such a creditable showing during the season, we feel that such a record should not pass without some form of recognition. So be it resolved, that we the Board of Selectmen of the Town of Weymouth do hereby take this form of making known our appreciation of the spirit of loyalty, sportsmanship and selfsacrifice displayed, not alone by the players, but by coaches and student body combined

We further resolve, that it is not individualistic spirit that brought about a success, but one of combined effort making for the one cause. This is all a true manifestation of what we hope will prevail in the future, and to all concerned, that brought about such commendation to the Town of Weymouth, we extend our

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed:

At the vegetable counter, cabbage, 6 c. lb. Onions 6 lbs. 25 c. Parsnips 10 c, lb. Hubbard squash 5 c. lb. Spinach 29—35 c. 3 lbs. Kale 10 c. lb. Chicory 15 c. lb. Turnips 5 c. lb. New on the market-Southern peas 30 c. lb.

At the fruit counter-Baldwin apples, Cape Cod cranberries, oranges and bananas.

At the meat counter-Fresh northern turkeys 50c lb. Fresh western turkeys 40 c. lb. Capons 60 c. lb. Fresh ducks 40 c. lb. Fresh Jersey geese 35 c. lb. Leg of lamb 33—35 e. lb. Forequarters 20 c. lb. Chuck steak 20 c. lb.

At the fish counter-Haddock and cod 9-10 c. lb. Fresh large mackerel 25 c. lb. Fresh salmon 45 c. lb. Fresh spawn 25 c. lb. Salt cod middles 30 c. lb. Since our population is about 90 per cent urban, the problem today is mainly one of feeding our city population. It is of great importance to us to know of the sources of supply and the probability of its constancy. We must assure ourselves of the security of our channels of trade with these producing regions. It takes a tremendous quantity of farm products to meet the needs of our industrial population, at the present time amounting to over 50,000 carloads of fruits and vegetables to supply Boston and its distributing area for one year. Of this amount New England contributes 18,000 carloads, or about 35 per cent. If we consider only the crops that can be grown in Massachusetts, we find that this state supplies but 25 per cent of the Boston market requirements.

An economical meat menu, chuck steak with onions, buttered rice, spinach, celery and apple salad, steamed chocolate pudding.

Pudding recipe-one half c. milk: one half c. sugar; 2 tsp. melted butter; 1 egg; one and one half squares, melted chocolate, 1 tsp. baking powder; 1 c. flour. Mix baking powder and flour together; add other ingredients and steam for 1 and onehalf hour. Serve with hard sauce.

THREE SELECTMEN The question is asked,-Why does Weymouth elect FIVE Selectmen, while Braintree, Milton and other towns elect only THREE? Reference to the Town By-Laws shows nothing which governs the number of Selectmen to be elected in Weymouth. Section 334 of the Revised Laws (Chapter 11 relative to Elections) reads in part: "Every town at its annual meeting shall in every year, except as is otherwise provided in the following section and in sections 339 and 341, choose from the inhabitants thereof the following named town officers, who shall serve during the year. "Three, five, seven or nine Selectmen;" "Inree or more Assessors; and if the town so votes, three or more Assistant Assessors;

"Three or more Overseers of the Section 340 of the same chapter reads: "A town which votes at an annual meeting to increase or DIMINISH the number of its Selectmen, Assessors or Overseers of the Poor, may at that meeting or at any annual meeting thereafter, elect one or more such additional officers, for omit to elect one or more of such officers, so as to bring the number to the limit fixed by the vote of the town, with terms of office expiring in the manner provided in the preceding section; but one Selectman, Assessor and Overseer of the Poor shall be elected annually. A town which has voted to elect said officers as provided in the preceding section, may at any annual meeting rescind such action; but such recission shall not attach the term of office of any such officer." The "previous section" referred to in Section 340, provides for a continuous board of Selectmen, only a part of the board being elected each year, the number depending on the mmbership of the board. Section 339

"A town may, at any annual meeting or at a meeting held at least 30 days before the annual meeting at which such change is to become operative, vote to elect its Selectmen, Assessors or Overseers of the Poor in the following manner: "If the number fixed by the town is THREE, it shall at the annual meeting when such vote is passed or at the next annual meeting, elect one for the term of one year one for the term of two years and one for the term of three years; "If the number is FIVE, it shall elect one for the term of one year, two for the term of two years, and two for the term of three years;

"If the number is SEVEN, it shall elect two for the term of one year, two for terms of two years, and three for three years.

"If the number is NINE, it shall elect three for the terms of one year, three for the terms of two years and three for the terms of three years;

"And at each annual meeting thereafter, it shall elect one, two or three for the term of three years as the term of office of one, two or three

Black and Red Material for Co-Ed's School Dress

This charming school dress is made up of soft black and red material, and should appeal to the young miss attending school.

Simplicity Important in Clothes for Women

Simplicity, as every woman who makes a study of fashion knows, is the fundamental of true chic, and that simplicity is not to be confused with uninteresting plainness is proved by the surprisingly large number of simple little frocks that have been

The garconne modes of the season just past are to a certain extent reflected in the newer fashions, but subtly modified and disguised so that there is no possibility of mistaking one of the new models for a gown of last year's vintage.

Both one and two-piece models are shown and in the two-piece affairs there is a tendency to exploit the longer tunic. However, for those who find a shorter length more becoming there are a number of interesting models. Kasha is one of the best liked materials, especially in a shade of beige, while black with touches of red or bright blue is a favorite with college and business girls.

Navy blue kasha is chosen for a model which has a collar of white kasha bound with Chinese blue. A similar color combination trims the cuffs and forms bands around the skirt. The button-holes are bound with white.

At the moment the new shade of bols de rose (rosewood) is most conspicuously displayed and is chosen for tailored suits, for sports clothes and for evening frocks. It is a particularly becoming shade and quite distinctive.

Picturesque Gowns Are Featured by Designers

Some of the most picturesque gowns conceived in Paris ateliers are interesting because of their novelty in detail. They are built of a heavy crepe meteor and have an all-over scheme of decoration in figures-nosegays, sprays and other quaint designs cut from chintz and appliqued with an outline of gilt thread.

Other models illustrate this same idea with hand embroidery of different sorts-Russian, Czech, Bulgarian; all of the folk patterns in gay colors; and in more modern motifs in silk and beads, gilt, crystal or jeweled. embroidery is unlimited in variety and in costly detail. Much of the elaborate dress trimming-the brilliant ornaments, bands and fringes that have been displayed in increasing assortment since the earliest days of the autumn seasonhave now a raison d'etre in the smartest evening gowns, when they are so combined as to give the effect of a heavily embellished gown without evidence of separate trimming.

Gowns of silver or gold tissue are softened with fur or ostrich in hem bands, and fringe is seen even on these, painting the lily in the most extravagant sense of the term.

Tailored Lingerie Is an Interesting Fashion

A very interesting fashion trend in lingerie is the introduction of tailored and semitailored garments despite the seemingly overwhelming popularity of fancifully trimmed sets and single

One of the most pleasing modes in tailored lingerie, says the Philadelphia Ledger, is the nightgown with tailored collar and sleeve caps cut in one with the body of the gown, that is a decidedly definite adaptation of the semitailored daytime frocks that were in vogue all summer. Other examples of the tailored mode in lingerie are seen in silk bloomer and chemisette sets trimmed with bound edges done in contrasting color or with set-on sections and bands that are simply hemstitched.

Auto Registry

The council says some of the branches are too expensive, but Quincy, Weymouth, and South Shore motorists have found the registry at Quincy a great convenience and the business has been surprisingly large. Interesting data with reference to the cost of doing business at the Quincy office has been compiled which showed operating charges at so low a basis it surprised those who make a practice of keeping down the over-

On the total of 38,584 customers served, it is shown the accommodation was extended at .038 cents apiece and that for every dollar of revenue received, considerably more than $228,000, it has cost 8-10's of 1 per cent to do business.

The table further shows that at least 30,000 trips would be made to Boston by persons who now patronize the Quincy office, a distance of 9 miles. No machine, it is stated, can be operated for less than 10 cents a mile. The amount accordingly that has been saved to the people of the South Shore on this basis reaches $54,000, not figuring the time, two hours, for the trip, which on the basis of $2 an hour would swell the saving another $60,000 so that in all the actual saving to owners is $114.000.

Representative Alfred N. La Brecque of Quincy has been active in securing a continuance of the Quincy registry, and finds auto dealers and garage men of Weymouth and the South Shore are unanimous to have it continued. They secured a hearing with Gov Cox on Tuesday.

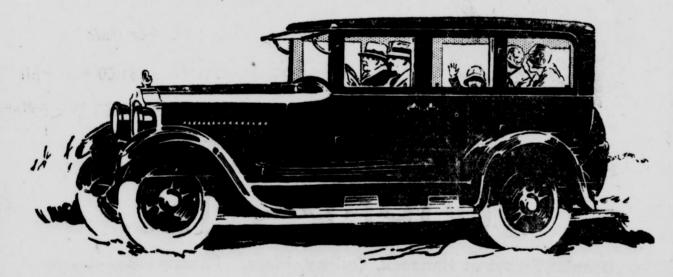

-An entire city block has been purchased on Washington Heights, New York city, the loftiest section of the metropolis and a 24 story Romanesque cathedral known as Broadway Temple will be erected by the Methodist Episcopal church. This will be a modern apartment house capable of housing 500 persons with playgrounds on the roof. The money derived from rentals will be put toward the cost of the building and to help other churches.

Sudebaker's October sales exceeded in value those of any other automobile manufacturer in the world, except the Ford Motor Co. The corporation also broke all of its own October sales records, beating October, 1923, by 68 per cent and October, 1922, by 110 per cent.

Moreover, while exact figures are not yet available, it is known that November sales are far ahead of those of any other November in the corporation's history. The reason for these exceptional records, point out Studebaker folks, is the quality and value built into the new cars at the prices at which they are sold. The quality of materials and workmanship, they add, is made possible by two outstanding features of the corporation's manufacturing. The $60,000,000 Studebaker plants, manufacturing these cars complete in five Duplex and ten closed body models, on three separate chasses, eliminate middlemen's profits and thereby lower costs. Through Studebaker's large volume of production, the overhead cost per car is reduced to the minimum, because it is spread over so many thousands of cars. This permits the use of higher quality of materials and workmanship at prices that would be impossible if ! the cars were built in smaller quanti-

WEST HISSEL

Broad Ideas Prevail In Live Towns

Editor Gazette-Transcript: Abundant commendation should, and may be, extended regards your articles appearing in recent issues of the Gazette aiming to open up and stimulate Weymouth's general affairs. Those of us who were born here of fathers who were born here, especially appreciate your excellent effort. Weymouth recently celebrated with great pomp its 300th anniversary. The last state census 1920, shows that such towns as Greenfield and Westfield (two fields) have passed Weymouth in population. Many miles away from the ocean and its advantages and from Greater Boston's magnetic appeal, these new towns which were huckleberry pastures when our town was fairly well grown, are bigger than Weymouth which is now eighth in population in Massachusetts towns.

The fact that one's name was thus and so keeping continually supplying judgment for any town has its inevitable effect. Numerical strength alone, like the nigger in Mississippi, is not always a real asset to the healthy growth of a community. Facts, of course, prove that.

Ability, farsightedness and openminded consideration for all deep things wherever found, really essential to a community's development cause industry, towns, cities and states to experience pleasing growth.

It is evident then that numerical strength of some kinds develops some places and hinders others. Is Weymouth in the latter class? That big people and broad ideas prevail in such live towns as Greenfield and Westfield and the other newer towns larger than Weymouth, is proven by their history, JOHN HENRY MORAN

The dining room and recreational rooms on the top floor were especially mag- High Records for nificent, representing perhaps the fin est club appointments in the city.

The company sat down to the tables at 6.30. Each place was decorated with appropriate favors-miniature footballs fastened with ribbon to a Weymouth pin and tiny American flags A radio program on the loud speaker was another feature of the Athen dinner. But the dinner itself in quality and service was inferior to none. The menu included:

Soup, Bisque of Tomato

Nuts Olives Celery Broiled Live Lobster French Fried Potatoes Vegetables Heart of Lettuce Salad French Dressing

Ice Cream and Cake Pie Crackers and Cheese Souvenirs

This business over, the tables were cleared and Frederick W. Hilton, principal, as toastmaster, introduced the guests of the evening. Dr. Charles Whelan '96 expressed his hope that each man before him would endeavor to go on with his education and with amateur athletics through college if possible Superintendent Parker T. ### Clever Laundry Bag

A pretty lady that will make herself useful is just what most men are looking for. Here is one who is sure of success with them, for her head is of painted wood and her brightly flowered, cretonne skirt makes a capacious laundry bag. She may be scroll-sawed out of thin board or cut from paper wall board, and painted -or found ready-made in novelty shops.

Curious Beliefs Held by Trinidad Natives

"Port of Spain is the principal city of the island of Trinidad in the West Indies and is the most colorful and cosmopolitan city in the world," says an American citizen, who has returned to his native land for a visit after an absence of two years, according to the Detroit News. "The streets of Port of Spain," he says, "present the appearance of a strange pageantry, so varied are the people. Strangest of all are the native black people. Here you will see nose rings and all sorts of weird styles in hairdressing. They are so fond of bracelets that their forearms, from wrist to elbow, are completely covered with all sorts of metal circlets. Nor is it unusual to see their lower limbs adorned in the same fashion.

"All our servants are these black people. They are excellent servants, but their many taboos and superstitions are very trying, unless you have a good sense of humor. They go by the moon and stars in everything. They refuse any sort of an undertaking unless the aspect of the moon is propitious. They also have special taboos pertaining to things hot and cold. None of them will, under any circumstances, put their hands into both hot and cold water on the same day. They believe that if they do this they will die in three days. By the moon they reckon time and forecast the future. By the moon they hold their pagan ceremonies, and one might say that by the moon they live and by the moon they die."

North Pole Receives Full Share of Heat

The North pole, it is said, receives more heat than the equator. Of course, each hour of sunlight brings more heat to the equator, but the hours of sunlight each day increase in number the farther one goes north. Therefore, while the sun is shining the arctic receives more hours of sunlight a day than does the equator and altogether it gets more heat, says the Detroit News. As one goes north the length of day increases more rapidly than the amount of heat per hour decreases. Consequently, although the heat per hour received at Winnipeg, Canada, is less than at New Orleans, the amount of heat received per day is greater. That is one reason why in July Winnipeg is frequently hotter than New Orleans. For about five weeks every summer more heat per day is received from the sun on a square mile in the arctic than at the equator. However, the winters at the North pole would be as hot as the equator. However, the winters at the pole are long and a great deal of neutralizes the downpour of heat from the summer sun.

Storks in Great Britain

A Welsh lad was recently attacked by a large stork which was believed to have been blown from Holland by storms. It is a somewhat strange fact that storks have refused to breed in the British isles except in Kew gardens. There a pair started housekeeping in the year of King Edward's coronation, and clearly copied the design for their grotesque nest between the two elm trees from a Coronation bonfire. They met with a multitude of misfortunes. One year a storklet fell from the nest and broke its neck; in another year a nestling was slain by a barnacle goose. A culminating disaster was the drowning of an entire family by a thunderstorm. When the "storks' mound" becomes a congested district, superfluous storklets are exported to populate other dis-Oysters Sold on Boughs The traveler in the West Indies has the opportunity of viewing the novel sight of gathering oysters from trees. Around the harbors and lagoons the mangrove trees grow down to the water's edge. Their branches droop until a part of them is submerged. Oysters will cling to any surface in the water to which they can fasten themselves, and as there are few shelves or stones along the shores the bivalves attach themselves to the branches. When the natives go oyster gathering they lean over the side of the boat, find a branch to which oysters are clinging. and cut it off, and the bivaives are sold on the tree.

Boy Knew His Business

Mr. Peters brought a piece of cloth home to have a suit made. The family, examining the goods spread out on the table, remarked upon the fine quality and pattern. Even little Ronald was called upon to give his opinion of father's new suit. He turned the stuff on the wrong side and began to examine it. "Ronald," said old Peters, "that is the wrong side. How stupid you are!" "Why stupid?" answered the boy. "You bet it won't come to me until it's turned on the wrong side."-Exchange.

Dates From Pagan Times

Halloween is a relic of pagan times. In England the influence of Druidical ceremonies is evidenced in the ancient Halloween fires. Certain of the customs which used to prevail in England were survivals of Pomona, the goddess of fruit. Halloween is called by this name because the festival falls on the evening of October 31, which is the eve or vigil of All Hallows, the festival of All Saints, which falls on November 1.

Basketball Squad

Reports at High Weymouth High, after the most successful football season, is about to start its basketball schedule for the year. More than twenty candidates reported to Coach Whittle for the opening practice; unfortunately, how-ever, practice will have to be suspended until next Monday because of the improvements that are being made to the gymnasium. . The team has remained, with one exception, intact from last year. It has five letter men to depend on. Capt. Craig, who is one of the best offensive players on the South Shore; Dorey, the football star; Madigan, who held his own with the best of them last year; Kelly and Mauro, two fine defensive players, are the veterans. Besides these men there are a number of substitutes who will make the regulars hustle for their positions.

Last year the team did not lose a game on their home floor; but were handicapped when they played away from home on a larger floor. Manager Whittle promises one of the hardest schedules that a Weymouth basketball team has ever had. Already games have been booked with such teams as Boston College High, Norwood and Medford.

All home games this year are being played in the new High school gymnasium. This floor is much larger than the one at the C. M. A. building where the home games were played last year. In order to get the players thoroughly accustomed to the larger floor Coach Whittle intends to give his boys the hardest kind of practice in the remaining weeks before the opening game with Mansfield, which will be played at the High school gymnasium on Tuesday, Jan. 6.

Good Season for The Wanderers

The Weymouth Wanderers successfully concluded the season Sunday, Dec. 7, by defeating the Quincy Manets. Both teams were evenly matched and the game was very doubtful for both teams until the third quarter when Dugan of the Wanderers snatched up a fumble and ran fifty yards for a touchdown.

The Wanderers have had a very successful season, winning all their games but one which ended in a tie. They have defeated the following teams: East Boston A. A., East Weymouth A. A., Dudley A. C., Scituate T. T. Boston Suburbans, Rockland Whittlers, Quincy Manets and tied the Dorchester Steamrollers. The Wanderers have scored 106 points to their opponents 15.

The Wanderers have had a wonderful team and they have all co-operated and shown their teamwork. Dugan, quarterback for the Wanderers, has run the team with good judgment. He has made many 40 and 50 yards runs, gaining much ground. Bill White shone well as a fullback. He can certainly hit the line and go thru center. DeLorey, Cleary and Coyle have excelled in the backfield. They all are hard line plungers and steady runners.

In the line Smith and Fitzgerald have played well at ends. Smith and Fitz excelled in punting. Clapp has proven himself worthy of the left end position although light weight. Esterbrook and Boudreau, Sweeney, Husband and McCarthy have shone in the line. They have opened up the way for the backfield runners to perfection Freddy Coyle has filled the center position well, both on the offensive and defensive.

A Fourth of July Santa Claus

By Eleanor E. King (6. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

WAS the great day of the Fourth of July, and Tommy, like all the other seven children of the busy Allster family was out bright and early. Tommy had a great friend in the lady next door. So, Tommy had learned, and, by the way, kept it a safe secret from the rest of the troop, that when his stomach growled too loudly, if he were to go to next door he most always could get a piece of the best bread and jam, and perhaps run an errand or two for her to ease

Tommy, bright and early, had found his way over to Mrs. Askins', as he called her. She was busy getting ready to go to a picnic.

"You see, Tommy," she explained in answer to his questions, "this man who is coming with his car to take us out to his house where we are to have our picnic, is an old chum of Mr. Has-

As they loaded the things into the car Tommy trooped along and was introduced to Mr. Miller. While they stood there Tommy spied a balloon man coming down the street. As the noise of the horn grew nearer, Tommy's eyes enlarged.

"Aren't those whoppers, though," Tommy sighed. "Gee!"

"Wouldn't you like one, Tommy?" suggested Mr. Miller, digging into his pocket. "Now, I'll tell you, Tommy, if you know my name next year when I come after these folks on the Fourth, I'll buy you another balloon.

It was almost Christmas now, and Tommy was once more in the Haskins kitchen, watching preparations for another feast, but of a different sort. The most wonderful pies, cakes and puddings were being evolved. Suddenly, Tommy burst forth:

"Say, Mrs. 'Askins, do you remember what that man said?"

"No. Tommy; what are you think-

"Do you suppose he will come back? You know he bought me a balloon, and said if I remembered his name he would buy me another when he came

"Of course he will," said Mrs. Has-

"Oh, I am so glad. My mother she just says I am silly when I ask her and says, 'I am too busy to be bothcred with that. Run along, now!' And you know," Tommy hastened to add, "I haven't forgotten his name either. It's | ing more than my thirst." Mr. Miller."

That night Mr. Miller dropped in for a minute at the Haskins'. Before his departure Mrs. Haskins had a moment of conversation with him alone. He said, "All right," leaving with the merriest kind of a twinkle in his eyes.

Christmas Eve came. Daddy and Mother Allister were doing their best to keep from looking sorrowful. They knew only too well that they could never begin to give the children the number of things each wanted. The children had all gone to bed. Just Daddy and Mother Allister were in the parlor fixing up a little, scraggly tree when a knock, ever so gentle on the front door, attracted their attention.

"I am sorry to bother you at this hour, but I wanted to wait until I was sure Tommy would be in bed. Perhaps you would feel better to know my name-Miller," he said, shaking hands with Mr. Allister after depositing his load on the table. "I've a tree outside here," and he hurried out to

The next morning was never equaled in all the annals of the Allister family. Such excitement, such happiness. Tommy, after his recovery from surprise and rapture over his toys, ran to his happy mother as she was trying to get breakfast. Tugging at her skirts, he said, "You see, mother, that man I met on Fourth of July was Santa Claus, and his name is Mr.

The Christmas Message

Christmas represents a great historic event and spiritual truth-the most important of all events, the most precious of all truths-no less than the coming of God to earth, in human nature, in the person of a child, to save us from our sins .. That makes the wonder and the glory and the blessing, in the birth of Jesus. He came to express the divine love, and by His sacrificial death, to make that love effective unto the salvation of all who should believe on him. The cross on Calvary marks the tragedy in the life of the child born at Bethlehem. It also makes its glory .--Presbyterian Banner.

"BLEST BE THE TIE THAT BINDS"

By E. V. COOKE

(C. Doubleday, Page & Co.)

TE WORE an imitation Stetson of the southwestern style, a soft white shirt, without a tie, a gravish, brownish suit, (which had never been pressed since it left the pile on the counter at Simmons' Mercantile Emporium), and tan shoes. Although no one appeared to pay him the slightest deference, it was easy to see that he was the center of the group and dominated it.

The Lyceum lecturer threw a look of inquiry at the editor of the Juniper Signal, who answered, "That's our preacher. Preaches here every other week. Lives at Redbone. Folks here some sore about it, 'cause he only gets here Saturdays and leaves Mondays. Here, Charley! shake hands with our lecturer for tonight. Reckon if you go to hear him, he'll listen in on you tomorrow."

Reverend Charley Hawkins grabbed the extended hand cordially and looked straight into the face of its owner with his clear brown eyes. "Mougaty glad to meet you, sir." It was just what had been said by 50 other people to the Lyceum lecturer that day, by the "leading merchants" who kept the straggly string of unkempt stores which ran from the station of the 'Santyfee" to the Palace hotel, by the "professor" who taught the 'nigh school, by the town's two doctors, the ice man, and the man who kept the "Hiawatha Joint"-but when Charley Hawkins said it, it had a different

The Lyceum lecturer recognized the difference at once. It was the voice of a man who was used to speaking so that people understood what he meant. Almost unconsciously the two detached themselves from the group and wandered up Main street together, past the dusty window of the Juniper Signal, past the Palace hotel, against the doorstep of which snuggled a oncewhite sow dining four little piggies. They wandered on toward the Company sawmill which dominated the town. But between the Palace hotel and the sawmill stood the "Hiawatha Joint." "Come in and have a drink." said Charley Hawkins. "I can't afford it, but I need to have a word with Zeke."

The visible interior of the "Hiawatha" salesroom was as dreary a place as one could wish to see. The transverse partition crowded the short counter against the window.

Presently appeared behind the ter a sandy-featured little man. "'Mornin', Zeke.' Let me introduce the lecturer. Make up a couple of cold limeades, will you?"

"Met him before," said Zeke uninterestedly. "Nothin' but pop and Hiawatha, parson."

"I'll try the Hiawatha," said the lecturer, "as my curiosity needs quench-

"Foams like beer, tastes like beer, but hain't beer. Court says so," said Zeke setting out an amber bottle and with a touch of defiance in his usually colorless voice. "Salt?" and he added a salt shaker.

Hawkins made a show of critically selecting a cigar, saying, "Zeke, why don't you brighten your place up a mite? Put in a cigar lighter and a few fresh Signals on your shelves. Put a couple of tables in back and sell ice cream. You ought to open up that partition, too. There's nothing invitin' about it. Looks like a man folding his arms and frowning instead of holding out his hands and saying 'Howdy.' 'Course I don't know a thing in the world about store keepin', but I bet I'm right on the psychology of it. Mornin', Zeke. Think it over. You know I'm your friend." He started away, but at the door he turned back. "And, Oh, Zeke, wouldn't you just as soon quit sellin' that Hiawatha stuff to young Provine? 'Course it cain't intoxicate his stomach. Court says so. But somehow it gets into young Provine's head. It humilates his father, Zeke, that's the worst of it-his poor old fatner."

The little timber town, rich in sand, sunshine and sawed pine, was even quieter than usual next morning, for the "leading merchants" had closed their stores and even the Palace hotel had acquired a Sabbatical aura, partly because the sidewalk was swept and the sucking pigs had pursued their dinner to the back door, partly because the splint-bottomed chairs outside were strewn with the gaudily-colored sections of the Sunday Post-Dispatch which had reached town the evening before. Even Reverend Charley Hawkins in his pulpit had a semblance of the Sabbatical air, for he wore a stiff-bosomed shirt and collar, protruding cuffs and a string tie, together with the same gray-green suit.

"My friends, my brothers and my sisters, 'Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things which are God's.' I am sometimes led to believe that many of you think that any coin bearing the stamp of Caesar is unfit to be rendered to the service of God. Some of you are bad citizens and as bad citizens you may justify yourselves. You dodge your taxes and your tithes equally well. Some of you are 'good' citizens. You pay your taxes, but you do not pay your tithes. To the bad citizens I have nothing to say. None of them are supposed to come to church anyway. But to you 'good' citizens I have a line of plain talk. Caesar's money is government money. Government money is genuine money and genuine money is good enough for God. You seem to think that make-believe money is good enough for your pastor and so you attempt to pay him in donation parties, in second-hand merchandise, in worthless checks and in paper pledges which are never fulfilled. You cheat your church and your God!

"So much I tell you as a minister of the Gospel, but now let me throw away the Gospel and speak to you man to man. You, and by you I mean you people in the pews down there, you have not done me right. You promised me six hundred dollars a year to he'p me save your souls. I think I could save 'em. You-all owe me three hundred and fifteen dollars out of my six hundred. My wife and children ain't got clothes fit to go to church. I ain't got a black coat to wear to conference and I cain't get one, not because Brotner Simmons won't trust me to pay for it, but because he won't trust you-all.

"A contrac' is a contrac', even when you make it with God. You hired me to do the work of God. I done done it and you-all ain't done me right.

"You know I ain't been satisfied just to preach at you, to hymn at you and to pray at you. I've done that, but where else have I failed you? I've gone into the homes and up and down the streets of this town he'pin' the best I knew Low. 'I've tended the sick, I've sat up with the dead, I've put my arms around erring men and sinful sisters and-" an awful moment's pause and then-"no, not around the sisters!"

Poor Charley Hawkins! If only he had been quick-witted enough not to correct his slip it would have passed unnoticed. His indictment of his people, begun in the language of the pulpit, and continued in the vernacular, may have been crude, but it had been effective. There is a dignity about the fearless, unashamed truth which all men must respect, even while they bitterly resent it. But the very height of the dignity made the descent into the ridiculous fatal. The little church rocked with laughter. Poor Charley Hawkins! His round face flushed, but his eyes flashed and he did not give an inch. Drawing himself to his full height and folding his arms across his chest, he cried. "Laugh, d-n you, laugh. I tell you truths which ought to blister your brows with shame and you laugh. Father in Heaven and in Juniper, Texas, they laugh. I turn from them to Thee. Let us pray."

But before the prayer could be uttered, up tottered a malicious little figure, wearing the rusty black coat and the yellowed white ties of a superannuated minister. "Stop! Let us not pray. The altar of the Lord has been profaned by an oath. In all my many years as a faithful minister of His holy church, never did I-"

Charley Hawkins raised his hand calmly. "I am the pastor of this church. I invite Brother Provine to come forward. It has been some time since the congregation has heard its old pastor's voice in the pulpit."

Brother Provine did not need to be urged, nor was his malevolence abated. It was plain that he was the mouthpiece of those recalcitrants in the church who had made Charley Hawkins' clerical path so thorny.

"Brethren and sisters," chortled the ex-minister, "this is indeed a painful moment. In all my fifty years of service in the church, never did I hear such blasphemy uttered as we have heard at this altar of the Lord upon this blessed Sabbath morning. I praise God that in my ministry in His name I did not serve for the loaves and fishes, but with a humble and a contrite heart."

There was a great deal more of this language not necessary to repeat here. In the midst of it, a young man entered the courch, his head held very erect, but his weak, loose face appearing to sag into his collar. His glassy eyes blinked rather frequently, but he walked with preternatural straightness down to the pew directly in front of the pulpit. The man in the pulpit writhed and reddened, faltered but recovered and resumed with an added acridity, "It is with no bitterness of heart that I am led to denounce the servant of God who has defamed God's temple. It is a duty I must perform. The ark of the covenant has been polluted. A leader of God's pepole attired in the garments of sin instead of sanctity (here Brother Simmons cleared his throat disapprovingly) ascends the holy of holies and casts his broken rod of faith into the face of Jehovah. Then do I, as the elder brother of this church, pick up the broken rod and denounce the-athe-a-"

Good Brother Provine had lashed himself into a fine fury and fancied that he had carried his hearers with him as perhaps he had. But as he paused for a fitting epithet, the newcomer in the congregation steadied himself against a pew and said stolidly, "Call him a d-n sneak, whash you allus call him, dad. He's got old Zeke to shtop my beer."

In another moment there was an unusual picture in the pulpit. Brother Provine's purple distorted face was turned by a hand upon his shoulder and Charley Hawkins' voice rose clear and calm, "Let us join in singing 'Blest be the tie that binds.'"

As the congregation's voice swelled into the hymn Brother Simmons looked across at the editor of the Juniper Signal. Stirred by a common impulse they moved up the aisle and for the second time that morning passed the baskets. As the Lyceum lecturer slipped his mite, he noticed a gratifying number of bills and silver dollars, together with a few hastily scribbled I-O-U's and as his eyes wandered back to the pulpit, he imagined the honest little gray-green figure clad in a new black suit attending the coming con-

THEY ALL ADVERTISE

By Ellis Hayes

A hen is not supposed to have Much common sense or tact,

Yet every time she lays an egg She cackles forth the fact,

A rooster hasn't got a lot Of intellect to show,

But none the less most roosters have Enough good sense to crow.

The mule, the most despised of beasts, Has a persistent way

Of letting folks know he's around By his insistent bray.

The busy little bees they buzz,

Bulls bellow and cows moo. The watchdogs bark, the ganders quack. And doves and pigeons coo.

The peacock spreads his tail and squawks,

Pigs squeal, and robins sing, And even serpents know enough To hiss before they sting.

But man, the greatest masterpiece That nature could devise,

Will often stop and hesitate Before he'll advertise.

THOSE CHRISTMAS CAROLS

By MARION R. REAGAN

(C), 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

ERYL SANDS stood outside the dingy little restaurant. looking in at the heavily steamed windows with the absent, vacant stare of one whose mind is preoccupied with melancholy thoughts. People walking along the sidewalks crunched the fresh, dry snow under their heels. Most of them were talking and laughing with the light ease of those who feel at rights with the world. But their gay chatter only made Beryl more and more conscious of her loneliness. There was not a soul in this whole city she could call her friend, not one. And as for a lover-Beryl winced. Twenty-eight and never a lover! Think of spending all of one's life alone, "Old Maid Sands" it would be. Oh, how terrible life was; how unutterably hard on girls like her. Of course there had been Jack Boulton. He had always rather liked her; taken her home from church parties and so on in the old days when they lived in Allantown. He might have fallen In love with her if she had encouraged him. He was the only man who had ever understood her at all. Wonder where he was now?

With slow, listless steps, Beryl entered the little restaurant. She chose the cleanest looking table in the room. A man was already seated there. She sat down opposite him and began to read the menu card.

"Beryl, by George, if it isn't!" She looked up quickly and recognized with amazement the large, astonished blue eyes.

"Jack Boulton! Why, Jack, what on earth are you doing here?" He laughed that half-amused, halfcynical laugh she knew so well.

"I'm down on luck, Beryl-broke, I came up here to Chicago three years ago to put across a deal but things didn't go so well, and I've been a little on the rough ever since."

Beryl was sympathetic "I know. Jack, I think we're pretty much in the same boat. I haven't quite won fame and fortune here myself." They both laughed.

Jack looked at her a long time. She dropped her eyes under his steady

"You know, Beryl, I like that sad look in your eyes. I don't like to think that you've been sad, of course; but the look-it's appealing. It's the same expression that came into your eyes when you used to play those Christmas carols at the church. Heavens, how you could play them!" His face lit up with the happy memory of it.

"Do you still play?" "Occasionally. The piano at my hate it, but if you care to, we'll go Patriarch W. T. French down there after dinner, and I'll play you all those old Christmas songs. You have no other engagement?" "None," he said promptly, "And if I did, I'd cancel it."

When Beryl had finished, she rose from the piano and faced him. He was looking at her intently, longingly.

"You are very fond of music, aren't you, Jack?"

"Yes, when you play it I am." came very close to her and took her hands. "Beryl, I was just thinking what harmony you could make out of my discordant life, if you would. Could you-could you ever-" he broke off. His voice thick with surging emotion.

"Yes, Jack, L could," and as he held her tightly in his arms, Beryl was ex- an invalid; presented a purse ultantly happy, and felt for the first time in her life, secure.

Christmas in British Isles

Christmas was introduced in what are now the British Isles under the Saxon rulers and was continued, in the winter solstice when the people had little to do, by the Anglo-Saxon kings and the succeeding monarchs of Norman blood. The celebrations begraduating down to the poorest fami- concert by Prof. R. F. Raymond lies were frequently uproarious. In the reign of Elizabeth the Puritans attacked the Yuletide festivities, but the celebrations continued to flourish until the rule of Queen Mary. The Puritans, aided by the conditions growing out of civil war, finally succeeded by 1647 in abolishing the holiday.-George Newell Moran.

Toys for Small Children

A little tot from one to two enjoys little games that can be played with the fingers and simple toys such as dolls, animals and balls made of rubber, wood, knitted or rag materials and plain blocks.

Eighth of a series of advertisements regarding telephone situation in New England

CREDIT

The Greatest Problem

New England demands every year more and more telephone service. It also demands that the quality of its existing service shall be maintained.

> This can be accomplished only by building millions of dollars' worth of new telephone plant for additional service, and by rebuilding millions of dollars' worth of plant, as it becomes unserviceable, at prices greatly in excess of its first cost. The service of every subscriber is involved.

To build more plant requires more money. We must get a hundred million dollars in the next five years if this demand is to be met.

> The greatest single problem of this Company is how to get this money. '

It ought also to be of the greatest concern to New England, because, if this new money is not obtained, the telephone business will cease to advance as New England advances.

New money cannot be obtained unless our credit is good.

> For good credit, we must earn dividends sufficiently large, and a margin that will insure the payment of these dividends at all times, to make our securities an attractive investment for the savings of New England people.

We cannot do this at present telephone rates. The problem cannot be solved unless we get higher rates.

Postal Clerk Rockwood Fatally Shoots Himself

East Weymouth was shocked .yesterday morning to learn of the suicide His accounts at the postoffice are church, and the American Legion.

For a year or more he had been a clerk at the East Weymouth postoffice. Thursday morning it was his duty to open the office and get the first mail ready to dispatch. Many were disappointed, however, because after 7 A. M.

Supt. Rice arrived about that time and was surprised that no one was on duty. He tried to get Mr. Rockwood's house by telephone, but was unsuccessful. However, he summoned other clerks.

It was nearly 8 o'clock when one of the clerks discovered a note, which read, "Everything of mine, goes to Supt Rice and others that Mr. Rock- Pythias, in 1914.

THE BIG BANQUET

Did you ever serve on a banquet committee and provide for about one hundred persons, and then have 150 or more come without notice and expect to be served? Such a committee might anticipate 110 or 120, but that is not always safe, and might prove unprofitable. A caterer always requires a guarantee. Would you censure a committee that did not provide for 150?

Last week, after 12 pages of the Gazette-Transcript were printed, and the limited time would permit us to print only FOUR more pages, we were "swamped" with Christmas advertisements, enough with the news to fill SIX pages. They came late Thursday afternoon and some Friday morning-too late to be put into type and printed. It takes time for the composition of "Ads" and where a paper prints a large edition like the Gazette-Transcript it takes three or four hours to get out additional pages.

Under the circumstances we did the best we could, but feel that an apology is due to our readers because several columns of local news were unavoidably omitted, and to those advertisers whose Christmas announce ments were omitted-but we were

Many people do not realize that it requires a full week of 48 hours, and often extra time, to print a weekly newspaper. Necessarily, the crew is limited and there are no substitutes or extra men to be called in when needed.

Ideal conditions would exist if a publisher received every Monday morning copy for ALL NEW advertisements to be inserted that week. Each advertisement could then receive better attention, errors would be avodied, and the publisher would know how many pages to print.

On the Gazette press, only four pages can be printed at one time, and it is not profitable to print less than four. Occasionally when necessity four. Occasionally, when necessity arises, two extra pages (12 columns) are printed to accommodate four or five columns of news and advertise-

During 1924, the Gazette has averaged over 1000 inches of advertising per issue, and oftentimes the total went to 1100 and 1200, and sometimes more. Last week the total number of inches printed was 1384 and enough omitted to swell the total to 1450 or more inches. The capacity of the plant was severely taxed on Wedness day, Thursday and Friday, but more might have been accomplished on Monday and Tuesday if advertisements had come in earlier. Please. This week we are printing an edition of 20 pages, and several columns of illustrated Christmas stories.

OLD COLONY CIRCUIT

The Old Colony Circuit held its winter meeting with the East Braintree chapter Monday evening. The service was in charge of Roland M. Smith, president, who opened the meeting with a song service. The was offered by Rev. Allen E. Claxton, pastor of the church. The address of the evening was by Rev. W. T. Lowstutar of Boston University. At the rollcall the banner for highest percentage in attendance was awarded to Hingham league. At the close of the meeting the circuit was entertained royally by the East Braintree chapter.

prevailed throughout the two rooms which constituted the home of Mrs. Pourrez, and her three children. namely Raoul, the eldest, Henrietta, the middle, and Louise the youngest. "Tonight," mused Mrs. Pourrez, "is the anniversary of our coming to Amerique. Three years have passed, and we still have not found Andre. I have tried every way to locate him. The lady at the settlement house told me to be sure and come to the Christmas party because many people come to that who never come throughout the year. She said I might meet him."

"Oui, ma mere, do go," said Raoul, "I do wish we could find father. We would have the happiest Christmas we could imagine."

Mrs. Pourrez' work kept her quite late in the evening. Her tasks were heavy. She was endeavoring to send her three children to school and support their little home.

Mrs. Pourrez's husband, Andre, had left his wife and family to come to America to try and better himself. He left with a promise to find a cozy home and to save money for their passage. Three and a half years ago word had come that, by saving and good, hard work, the house had been secured and awaited their arrival. But no Mr. Pourrez was there to meet them, as planned, on their arrival into this country. The poor mother, broken hearted, had had to start out and earn a living to keep her family. And so each Christmas, the anniversary of their arrival, she looked to meet her

Now she hurriedly made her way toward the settlement bouse, arrayed in her best attire. Her hopes were running high. The games had already begun. The settlement house was a babel of voices. The faces in that rather mixed crowd were all beaming with delight as they forgot their many worries in the games they were playing. But one face in that picture lost its gayety as the crowd was carefully scanned. She saw no Andre. Her hopes were shattered.

The games continued. Finally some one proposed that the different nationalities get together in groups and give one of their respective country's dances. The Italians started the fun, the French were to be next. The dance to be given was decided upon and the music commenced. A door opened at the back of the hall. A man appeared. A settlement house worker ushered him in, saying:

"You are just in time to join the French dance, Mr. -" A woman came bounding forth. "Andre!" she cried, and she was lost in the two huge

Use of Car Far Above Normal. If the continuous use to which the car is put is far above normal, the battery may be likened to a man who eats heartily but gets little exercise. Illness follows, and if the condition continues, battery apoplexy is sure to ging had its inception in the west result. An overcharged battery heats up rapidly and if the driver does not unlawfully among the Indians, car- give it sufficient use to balance the rying the liquid fire in the leg of charging he must compensate sometheir boots to conceal it from the how, either by decreasing the charge or by increasing the battery's work. If the battery is being overcharged, the remedy is to exercise it by turning on the lights when driving. This will increase the battery's work.

One of the most harmful conditions to guard against in summer is overheating. This condition always is due to one or more of the following causes: Lack of Water Harmful.

Neglect to keep the battery filled with pure distilled water is one of the greatest evils and will shorten its life quicker than anything else.

If the level of the water is permitted to reach a point below the top of the plates, the upper portion is left exposed and useless. If only half of the surface of the plates is covered by the solution, a normal charging rate is equivalent to twice the volume of current which should go through the covered portion. This causes rapid overheating and damage not seen at the time, but which results in considerable expense later.

Batteries are so constructed that age itself plays an important part in their destruction. Therefore it is not advisable to spend much money on repairing an old battery. Buy a new one and have a fresh start.

Some conditions might justify purchasing a good reliable second-hand battery, if such a thing is possible. Second-hand batteries usually are appropriate for the "wise guy." Generally it is a good plan to pass them up.

Hints Worth Remembering in Care of Motor Cars

Most engine ills are caused by dirt and improper lubrication. Good oil should be purchased from a reliable concern and used regularly. If the engine is kept clean any leak in the lubricating system can be detected at once. This is but one of the many reasons why an engine should be kept scrupulously clean.

Allow the rain curtains to dry unfastened. This will enable them to shrink a little, thus assuring a better fit when they are fastened on again. Undoing the lower fasteners will

A car that is very frequently washed requires considerable attention to the matter of spring lubrication. The springs will sometimes receive more water during a washing than during a run in the rain. There hould be sufficient lighting in every private garage to enable the driver to see whether the ammeter registers neither charge nor discharge when the car's lights are switched off and the engine stopped. Use a flash light if necessary. Should the generator cut-out points stick together .current from the buttery would discharge back into the generator with consequent damage to both units. You can't be sure about this if you always leave the car in total darkness after switching off its own lights.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS The Soan-ge-ta-ha Camp Fire Girls

now what's underneath the paint before you buy

VOU wouldn't think of buying a house burlap, upholstery cotton and curled hair. I without first knowing how it is built and the quality of materials used. In selecting a piece of furniture you are sure to find out whether it is solid wood or veneer.

Yet marry people who exercise care in most purchases buy automobiles without even lifting the hood or knowing about the hidden qualities of body and chassis construction that really determine one's satisfaction with a closed car.

We want you to know about the unseen qualities of the new Studebaker Standard Six Down underneath its superb body finish is a sturdy framework of carefully selected ash, glued together and fastened in place by screws -not nailed. Ash is scarce and expensive, but Studebaker uses it because it best combines proper weight and strength.

Upholstery is genuine mohair of high quality. Various grades of mohair look much alikethe big difference is in the quality.

Beneath this mohair covering are many nests of cushion springs, padded with heavy

Almost any car seems comfortable on the showroom floor, but it's quality such as this that makes the Studebaker Standard Six remain comfortable after years of service.

The same standards of excellence are maintained throughout the body and chassis. In the engine, for example, the crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces, a practice that results in the smooth, quiet, vibrationless performance that characterizes all Studebaker cars.

Judged solely on what your eye can see—in beauty of line and finish and exterior refinements-the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan will command your instant approval.

But go deeper than that. Compare its hidden, vital qualities-its design, materials and workmanship-with cars selling for hundreds of dollars more.

Studebaker never compromises—never uses a substitute for genuine quality. Studebaker has been building quality vehicles for 72 years.

Come in and let us tell you the "inside story" of the Studebaker Standard Six Sedan.

A THOUGHT

The eye cannot say unto the hand. I have no need of thee; nor again the head to the feet I have no need of you.-1 Cor. 12:21.

Other Sites for New Town Hall

Editor Gazette-Transcript: I was talking with a friend a few days ago, and speaking of the fact that our taxes were lower this year and the friend laughed and said: "Oh, there will be something else come up; make up your mind there will be something come, so you will have to pay about so much." And so it is now,-a new Town Hall. If we do have one, why can't it be a Memorial Hall, such as are being built in many places? And why should it be in EAST Weymouth. Couldn't the Gem theatre, which seats 900 be used for our town meetings? There is room above the theatre for Town Officers. With jitneys and autos, North Weymouth could come and the rest of the town would be easily accommodated. If it must be at East Weymouth, if I remember correctly, there is the site of the unused car barn nearly opposite Masonic Temple. Perhaps that might be utilized. Think it over carefully. It did really seem good not to pay quite as much tax as usual -still the writer is in favor of any changes and improvements that are to prove a benefit to our town. TAXPAYER

HEALTH

Faithfully a little brown tablet, another little ditto, still another ditto, then (relieves the monotony!) a white he are swallowed at hourly in rvals as the tiresome clock wearily creeps around. A wooden stake about an inch, in diameter-it is wood because it doesn't feel cold like metal and more than an inch wouldn't suit the sensations-piercing my throbbing head, holds it to the hot pillov. Each hair has a pain at its roots. Fore head and one side of the face seems scalded Nose sore, so sore it aches A little lecture is read off by friend Doc on the dangers of getting p too soon. Seems rather superflucia, for are we not a ton of lead held down by a ton of bed clothes on an iron bed. There comes flashes of fellowfeeling for the Hindoo devotee on his bed of spikes.

Suddenly we demand eggs on toast, later a juicy griddled steak as the durance vile done in dungeon dark leaves our shattered frame. The bug is conquered.

O boy! Isn't it a grand and glorious feelin' to be well again! What a wonderful world we live in! How glad to unfold our napkin and greet the family at the breakfast table. "Good morning, isn't this one fine "Raining?" "Why I hadn't noticed, it is such a great day!" Health!-more wonderful than Alladin's lamp. Health!-more precious than piled up bags of gold.

Health!-one feels like saying "Grace" at his meals and meaning every word of it: "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

One-minute essay from Caleb.

WOMEN OF MOOSEHEART LEGION Chapter 123, W. O. M. L., held their regular meeting in C. A. R. hall on Wednesday, Dec. 10. At the annual installation the following officers were inducted into office: Past regent, Bertha Maynard Senior regent, Georgie Reidy Junior regent, Mary Bumpus Chaplain, Nelly Olsen Recorder, Alice Menchin Treasurer, Rose Holbrooke Sentinel, Agnes Abbott Argus, Almina Robinson Guide, Jennie Bernhart

Associate guide, Nellie Phelan Katherine Peers acted as installing officer. The retiring regent was presented with a pin and a string of pearl beads

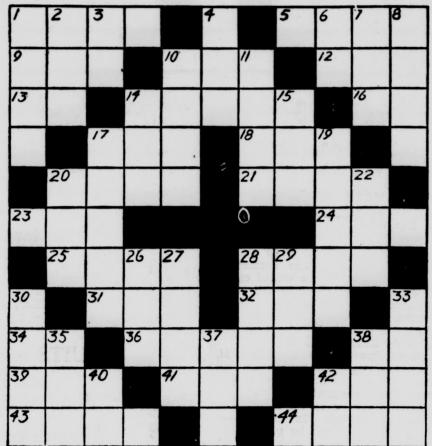

The installing officers and guides also were given tokens of regard. Several new members were admitted session the ladies were invited to prepared by Mrs. Robinson. A tree, with an exchange of gifts, concluded the afternoon's entertainment.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this pussle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horisontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLE No. 1 "STEPPING STONES"

If you like them easy this one will suit you, for the interlock helps you over the stickers. If you're in the expert class you can find an unusual word or two. This puzzle contains every letter in the alphabet except "k".

CHRISTMAS SEALS

The Christmas Seal Sale is now under way. This year solicitations for contributions is made almost entirely by mail. You are not asked merely to donate your money, but an adequate equivalent is given, inasmuch as your town receives back a good percentage of the money collected. One year a fine set of scales were placed in three of the schools by your town's share of the proceeds of the seal sale. These scales have been of great benefit in finding out and helping underweight children to normal health. Last year two boys were taken and given eight weeks of health training and happiness in the fine camp established by the Norfolk county association. So you who contribute your dimes and dollars for this cause have reason to feel you are actually helping to stamp out the great white plague of tuberculosis.

Should you not receive a mail envelope containing the Christmas seal, you can obtain as many as you wish from the Weymouth chairman of the sale, Mrs. Frank Hanson, 70 Pleasant street, South Weymouth. Telephone Weymouth 0733M.

Artaban, Fourth Wise Man of the East

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.) ALTHAZAR, Melchior, Kaspar, who followed that bright

Here is the tale of Artaban, the Fourth Wise Man of the East, Who saw not the Babe in the manger, but not of the four was the least!

the hungry he fed, And ever he clothed the naked wherever his wanderings led. after another vanished the gifts he had brought for the King-

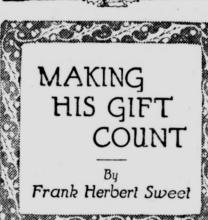

To save a slave girl from torment he cast down his last precious ring. At last a tile struck his temple; Arta-Lying there, stricken and helpless, his ears heard a Voice from on High Commending his deeds and service

"Not so, Lord!" he cried in amaze, Long have I sought Thee to serve Thee, but sought Thee in vain When have I clothed Thee when naked?

And when wert Thou hungered When gave I drink to Thee thirsty? Or homeless, gave Thee a bed?' Voice replied to his mourning: "As thou hast done it unto one Of the least of these, my brethren, so unto me it has been done."

This is the tale of Artaban, its lesson as strong now as then: To God ve do only service as ye may called Bob to the shabby girl-"or if you're in a hurry I'll end this meaningless talk at once.

"No-no, sir. I've got plenty of time," faltered the girl.

"Thank you. Now, Miss Bristow," turning back and speaking crisply. "Last year I gave you a hundred dollars for some charity that wasn't charity, it seems. The trade of your set was welcome; but more, I was young and-easy. This year my trade has been better, and I really can afford $500 for charity-"

"Fine!" she interrupted, though wincing at the word "charity." "Pay it now, or shall I mark it 'promise'?" "Sorry, but I've been learning things since last year-about charity. Only this forenoon I went to the department store across the street for something, and stood watching the Christmas shoppers for a while, and-but you wouldn't understand a thing like this, Miss Bristow. Only it determined my growing resolution to make what I give count. Helping to feed and imuse a supposedly wealthy card club is not charity; it is foolishness."

"Absolutely. Miss Bristow swung toward the

"You-beast. You refuse anything?"

"Better that than my self-respect." Bob answered quietly. "And the trade of your set, while welcome is not essential. Good-by."

He went to the girl and began to unroll the pretty, gray piece of goods she had pushed back.

"About ten yards, I suppose?" he inquired. "I heard you mention that, casually, when you first looked at the goods. For your mother, perhaps, for Christmas."

"I've-changed my mind. I will look at something cheaper."

"Considering quality, this is the cheapest goods I have. But I have a little story to tell first: Then I want you to help me. And you mustn't think me impertinent if I say things you won't like. You heard us talking just now?"

"Yes," wondering what was coming, "and I'll listen."

"Then you know my trade has been good enough to allow of a $500 Christmas offering. I want to make it worth while, and I don't know how. You are familiar with the struggles of shop girls, and with the pathetic side of Christmas buyers, Alice." The girl looked startled. "I never saw you before," she exclaimed. "How do you know my name?"

"I don't, all of it-just Alice. That is why I used no other. Listen! I went over to the department store this morning, as you heard. watched the shoppers. I saw children and women look at inexpensive things wistfully, then turn away. I heard a tiredlooking shop girl tell another that she wanted to get a crippled sister to a doctor, but couldn't afford it. Five hundred dollars would do

real good there." The girl's face lighted. "Indeed, it would, Mr. Henderson. 1 know that girl with a crippled sister. She supports her invalid mother and her small brothers and sisters, and sends some of them to school. And I know others. What wouldn't $500 do!"

"I feel so, too, Alice. And you're just the one to do it."

"Me?" incredulously. "Why, you don't know me."

"Yes, I do. I was standing near the room manager when he called you up and we want to and discharged you. After you went outdo all previous out I heard him say to some one, in a

RADIO AT LAST

heard it in music. In her eagerness she stepped to the parlor doorway, which was almost hidden in greenery. Suddenly two pairs of arms were inclosing her neck, and one pair belonged to Rose. Other arms were reaching for her; and beyond, hesitating Sam, who was too big to kiss anybody, lifted his arms. "Why-why, my dears," murmured Grandma, looking bewildered.

'Look up," laughed Sue. Grandma did, and there was a huge bunch of mistletoe over the door. "Lead the queen to her throne and render homage," ordered Kate. There was a raised chair decorated with holly and mistletoe, near one side of the fireplace. Grandma was conducted to it deferentially, then the ushers sank to their knees with grave faces but snapping eyes.

"Hail to the queen of love and the kitchen," they chanted, and Jenny added, "including crisp doughnuts." "Oh, my dears-my dears," softly.

"Now for the distribution of presents," cried May, springing up. Grandma had noticed rotund stockings along the fireplace, with an extra large one near her end, and sundry packages on the floor underneath.

The big stocking was laid on her lap, and packages began to follow. She recognized things she had wished, and books she had mentioned a desire to read. For Grandma, in spite of her perfect housekeeping, loved to read. "I-I thought it was for a dance," she faltered, her hands caressing the gifts.

"O-o-oh, Grandma!" The idea! On this day! It's for all of us, but most-

WHY A CREDIT BUREAU?

A credit bureau is a co-operative clearing house of credit information. It seeks to elevate the credit character of a community by establishing proper ratings for people who meet their obligations promptly. It also protects its members against poor credit risks.

A credit bureau educates a community in the meaning of credit. It translates thrift, sobriety, prompt meeting of obligations, right living, into concrete terms for each individual.

A credit record may be established which will insure accommodation during a period of misfortune, or when most needed. A reputation may also be acquired which will cut off every avenue of credit.

The elimination of bad bills and slow accounts lessen business costs and decrease living expense for consumers. People who know these things are given incentive to make their actions measure up to the credit standard.

A credit bureau quickens and invigorates the ethics of business relations in every community. This is good for the business man-for the citizen-and for his city.

-The habit of touching wood when we have boasted of our good luck is a throwback to the ancient tree worshipers. The primitive belief was that spirits resided in trees a nd wood was touched to call the attention of the tree spirit to the fact that his influence was recognized and that he hight not feel slighted and change good fortune into bad.

Regular Meeting Of the Selectmen

The Selectmen held an early session Monday afternoon and adjourned at 1.30 to attend the unveiling of the tablet at the State House to Ralph Talbot of this town, one of four World War heroes voted Congressional medals.

The board gave a hearing on petition of the Weymouth Light and Power Co, for location for a pole on Broad street, in front of the residence of H. A. Tirrell. The petition was granted with the proviso that the pole be high enough so that the wires would not interfere with a tree near the location.

John W. Thorp of 720 Washington street was granted an automobile dealer's license, and Charles H. Burgess a fish, fruit, and vegetable license.

The following jurors were drawn for the civil term of the Superior court at Dedham: Charles L. Churchill, 42 Bates avenue; John S. Vining, 133 Union street; and Charles A. Vinal, 913 Front street.

It was voted to request permission from the state for removal of a tree from in front of the property of George R. Hatton, 441 Washington street, and also request the town engineer for street line for Daniel Clancy, 100 Washington street.

The board is renewing its request to individuals and societies, for articles to be placed on the Christmas tree for the eight men and women at the town home. Articles may be left with the members of the board and they will be forwarded to the Town Home.

Mrs. Guy C. Fletcher gave a dinner party at her home on Front street Wednesday afternoon in honor of the birthday of her sister, Mrs. George Gough of Cohasset.

Church and Radio

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

There are very few thinking people who wish to live in a community without a church. Now, a church is not a building; the building presupposes an organization maintaining it with a minister serving there and also serving the community. There are several things exp cted of the church in the community; it shail provide for public worship; inspire men and women to lead clean, moral helpful lives and instruct especiallythe children and youth of the community along moral and religious lines. Its success is dependent upon the loyalty and support of the com-

Along comes the ragio with its ability to bring one in contact with the greatest preachers in America and to a limited extent, to make one a part of the large congregation of some city church. My home town minister cannot preach like these leading preachers of the country and I had rather hear them than him. I can hear the Lig choirs and the great soloists which are much better than the home-town product. I can take my ease and not bother about dressing to go to church and will not have to exert myself to walk to church." These are the thoughts which flash thru the minds of many and they succumb to the temptation. Such action does several things; it separates the one who does from his community. It saps his loyalty and weakens his interest in and his support of his home-town institutions. Now, this will naturally lead to disastrous consequences. The hometown church can only do its best work as it receives the support of the community both in service and finances. Catering to one's ease destroys one's spirit of service. The withdrawal of one's interest destroys his desire to contribute financially. The resultinability to provide Sunday school teachers, church officers and community service. You radio listeners, if your home town church goes under, will Drs. Massee, Conrad and Cadman, provide you with Sunday school teachers for your children? christen them? marry you? comfort you in sickness? console you in sorrow? bury your dead? bring the personal contact of a spiritual friend? Dr. Massee said recently that the churches around about Boston could close before long; Tremont Temple would supply the needs of their communities. After Tremont Temple has wrecked your home-town church, driven your spiritual advisers from your communities, will Tremont Temple meet all your spiritual needs? Perhaps you say, "Give us as great a preacher in our home-town pulpit and as splendid music and we will attend our home-town church." Not if you still have that spirit, for it will be easier to stay at home and listen in than to make the exertion to GO to church. Furthermore, if your community could get a man equal to these $10,000 men you would not have him long because a $10,000 place will snap him up as soon as it knows about The home-town cannot compete with the city because the city can outbid the home-town every day in the week. The question which faces you is this, the question that is implied in Jesus' words, "If a man would be my disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow after me," is your ease and pleasure, your personal enjoyment more important than the development of your character which comes from duty faced and done, the influence of church and minister and your community, a religious training and environment for your children? Twenty years from now your community and your country will witness to your answer.

GIRL SCOUTS

The moving pictures conducted by the Girl Scouts last week Wednesday surely added merit to their score. The major film was one that the most fastidious might endorse. The halfhour film picturing the work and development of scout teachings was distinctly to the advantage of the movement here. People were interested to know what the movement is all about and this film was the able and convincing reply.

"Train your daughters to be Scouts and they become proficient in all branches that confront the ordinary life of women as well as many out of doors activities that strengthen their bodies and steady their nerves, gives them poise and the ability to think and act wisely in times of emergency."

Thanks to the partrons who helped to make the undertaking a success. The money realized thru the moving picture undertaking is to be devoted to giving Christmas joys to some of the less fortunate children of our community. Good dinners, clothing and toys are to be distributed to the extent of the funds raised. A Christmas tree to one' family of little ones is arranged.

The Girl Scouts are now practicing Christmas carols and hope cars the entire troop on a tour of South Weymouth streets, while they sing their carols to all the shut-ins in the locality on Christmas Eve.

Troop Four is a set of busy girls interested in promoting and spreading the Scout spirit in the vicinity.

Captain Metcalf is devoting her entire time to the same worthy cause. Why are not all good citizens enlisted in this cause of higher girlhood and better, more efficient womanhood.

AT THE TOWN HOME A feature of the observance of Christmas was certainly a big day three of the women and one man were entertained at the theatre and when they left for home were presented gifts by Mr. Rogers. Charles J. Hollis furnished them transportation to and fro mthe theatre. In the evening there was a Christmas tree at the home and it was loaded down with gifts. The members of the board of Selectmen attended and Selectman Fred E. Waite officiated as Santa Claus. The people of the town responded very generously to the appeal of the Selectmen for gifts and each one of the men and women received a large number of gifts. Superintendent and Mrs. Wheeler were not forgotten by the selectmen who made them a gift of a gold coin. The weather was very unfavorable all day Wednesday for the community Christmas trees, yet in Weymouth, in mouth the programs were carried out on Christmas Eve.

WHY A CREDIT BUREAU?

A credit bureau is a co-operative clearing house of credit information. It seeks to elevate the credit character of a community by establishing proper ratings for people who meet their obligations promptly. It also protects its members against poor credit risks.

A credit bureau educates a community in the meaning of credit. It translates thrift, sobriety, prompt meeting of obligation, right living, into concrete terms for each individual.

A credit record may be established which will insure accommodation during a period of misfortune, or when most needed. A reputation may also be acquired which will cut off every avenue of credit.

The elimination of bad bills and slow accounts lessen business costs and decrease living expense for consumers. People who know these things are given incentive to make their actions measure up to the credit

A credit bureau quickens and invigorates the ethics of business relations in every community. This is good for the business man-for the citizen-and for his city.

A THOUGHT

He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance with increase; this is also vanity. When goods increase, they are increased that eat them; and what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes?-Ecclesiastes 5:10, 11

BENTON ADDRESS

Lack of space in last week's issue Tel. 0019 prevented the full account of the interesting address of Attorney General Benton before the Union Men's club of East Weymouth. Feeling his message would be of interest to most of the Gazette readers we are using it at the agency, went to the store. Nathis week, for oftentimes between than Yale, a government employee, processing the contract of elections, little attention is paid to hailed him with, "Hi, Eagle Eye, meet public officials, and many forget that hese officers are faithfully working for you and I every day of their tenure of office. Here's one officer who because of the many investigations and commissions to report to, could not take or have a vacation the past year. The public official's life is a busy one and the pay is not great, the Christmas program and you are He went over the history of the to be my interpreter." office, its beginning under Anthony Chapman in 1860, spoke of Salem witch cases in 1692, the creation in 1780 of the office by the state constitution, appointments by governor up to 1855, and since then having been elected, of how there was a movement now on foot to go back to the appointment by the governor. In 1918 there were over 9000 cases and now nearly 11,000 cases in some ciding of three or four cases a day. Besides this, conferences with the different district attorneys in the state, conferring with some 15 boards or commissions, taking over of capital a pile of logs in front of the lodge was criminal cases, and protecting public for warmth and to light up the tree. charities and moneys, over 172 opinions were rendered in 1923, advising legislative committees, checking up annual returns by all corporations. going over all new town bylaws (some very interesting ones were read by the speaker), inheritance tax matters, instruments of conveyance of property to state, extradition cases, corrupt practices act, disbarment of attorneys, and abolishment of grades—all passed thru this office.

Even students who telephoned or wrote for well prepared briefs to use in debates or quizz, had to be denied as were many citizens whose questions should go to the local town or city solicitors. His office was kept too busy with all state officers, boards and commissions, to go outside its

He spoke on the new clearing house for court opinions. How the court reports had been reduced in size of volumes and price.

He hastily touched on many of the commissions and investigations in which the office had been consulted. It cost nearly $102,000 to run the office in 1923. His assistants were chosen because of ability rather than from pull or influence of political leaders behind them. He spoke of a recent able assistant named Kimball, who is now a leading barrister of London, Eng.

The closest attention of those present was held by several exhibits which the attorney general brought, crude tools made in state prison by inmates who used them in a recent noted escape of three, who were later captured. To be able to make these when under strict guard, hide them, and then get away was some feat.

ALL OUT OF SORTS? So Was This Weymouth Woman Who Tells Her Experience

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that backache, those headaches, dizzy spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills -a stimulant diuretic. This Weymouth case is one of many:

Mrs. Llewelyn Thomas, 1 Granite street, says: "I was troubled with my kidneys and had sharp, cutting pains in the small of my back which seemed to be worse in the morning. My kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Pills which I got at Kempl's Drug Store rid me of the attack. I have since used Doan's as a kidney tonic with great relief."

Proving That Hasty Criticism Is Unwise

In "My Book of Memory," Youth's Companion tells us, Mr. Silas Hocking. the English novelist, repeats an amusing story concerning Dr. W. B. Pope, once a famous Wesleyan professor of theology, and of his son Sam.

The son was preparing for the bar. Occasionally he tried his 'prentice hand at preaching the gospel in village chapels. One Sunday morning his father said to him: "Sam, I'm not feeling at all well today. You will have to preach for me this morning." Sam demurred. The father insisted and suggested that he had two hours to make a sermon, and if he could not do it in that time he was not fit to be a barrister. Sam went away to the study. Then he went off to chapel. Unknown to him, his father followed and found a seat hidden behind the pulpit. He heard the sermon and then hastened home again.

"Well, Sam," said he on his son's return, "I've heard you preach, and a poor thing you made of it. I thought you co.ld have done better than that." "You think the sermon was not very good?" the son inquired.

"Good?" the old man replied. "I think it was one of the worst sermons I have listened to!" "Well, father," said Sam, "I thought it was a poor thing myself, but I

Small Boy to Mother A Dutch salvage firm is scouring the bottom of the Caribbean sea looking for a part of the treasure that went to the bottom in the Seventeenth century when Piet Hein, admiral of the Dutch fleet captured eight Spanish galleons loaded with silver and sank five others.

When Piet Hein captured the Spanish "silver fleet," the power of the Dutch republic had already started on its decline, Pierre Van Paassen tells us, in the Atlanta Constitution. The news of the admiral's victory therefore sent the country into frenzies of enthusiasm. When he arrived at Rotterdam, members of the government were on hand to greet him and the aristocracy of Amsterdam and Haarlem in lace and cloth cheered itself hoarse at the sight of the popular young admiral. All Holland was in gala. But when the admiral approached the little cottage in Delftshaven where his mother lived and he rapped on the door there was a voice: "Is that you, Piet?" "Yes, mother."

Beavers in Real Wilds

Few places now exist where beavers may be seen living wild, in natural surroundings in Europe. Forty years Office material cost $1650 additional. ago the last one disappeared from Scandinavia, where they lingered longest near Arendal, in southern Norway. A correspondent of the Field reports that a small, but thriving and increasing colony of these animals now exists in the same region (at Niel Elve), in a very inaccessible part of the country, no human dwellings anywhere near, and the ground covered with thick undergrowth and trees of birch, aspen and pine. No indication of their origin is given, and it seems possible that a small remainder of the old stock has been hidden here all

Gull Beautiful Bird

Many feathered scavengers are uncouth, repulsive and awkward in flight, but the herring gull is a thing of beauty and exceedingly graceful Every 28 minutes in the day and under wing, a master of the air currents, gliding with perfection. He soars over the city, follows the river craft, perches upon the channel buoys, and may often be found in flocks resting upon the waters of inland ponds and reservoirs. Unlike other water birds, he is not shy; on the contrary, he is very friendly, perhaps because he has few enemies and is protected breeding rookeries.

Its Origin Uncertain

The phrase "Lynch law" has been variously traced to a Virginia soldier and to a Virginia farmer of that name, -Mohammedans will eat no meat to one Lynch, who was sent out from and to a mayor of Galway, in Ireland; while yet another tradition refers it to Lynch creek, in North Carolina, where the forms of a court-martial and execution were gone through over the lifeless body of a Tory, who had already been precipitately hanged to prevent a rescue.-Chamber's Ency clopedia.

Clock in Sidewalk

Thousands walk over the northeast corner of Maiden lane and Broadway in New York and never know that they are stepping on the face of a clock. This clock, measuring about two feet across, is covered with glass an inch thick. The hour and minute hands are painted jet black. Because of the dust and dirt the clock is scarcely discernible during the daylight hours, but at night it is illuminated and is a useful teller of time.

OLD SOUTH UNION CHURCH Christmas Sunday in the Old South Union church was a notable one. There were four services including ance in spite of the intense cold was uniformly large. Nearly 200 gathered for the Christmas service of the church school at 10.30. With the orchestra to accompany, each department sang a Christmas carol; there were recitations by the members of the primary department. Presentation of Bibles to the tor told a story entitled, "A Christmas in South America."

At the 4.15 P. M. church service the rendering of Dudley Buck's cantata, "The coming of the King" was an exceedingly creditable piece of work. The choirs of the East Weymouth Methodist and the Old South Union churches united in giving this cantata, in East Weymouth in the morning and at South Weymouth in the afternoon. Many and enthusiastic were the congratulations they received on the success of their efforts. Solos and choruses were rendered with rare expression.

The pastor spoke briefly of the Christmas message delivered in poetry and song. The large congregation which braved the cold to attend was abundantly repaid.

MENCHIN-GLOVER

At the East Weymouth M. E. church on Saturday evening Miss Esther Glover and Charles A. Menchin were united in marriage by Rev. Earl E. First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Story, the pastor. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Glover of Chard street, East Weymouth, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Menchin of North Weymouth.

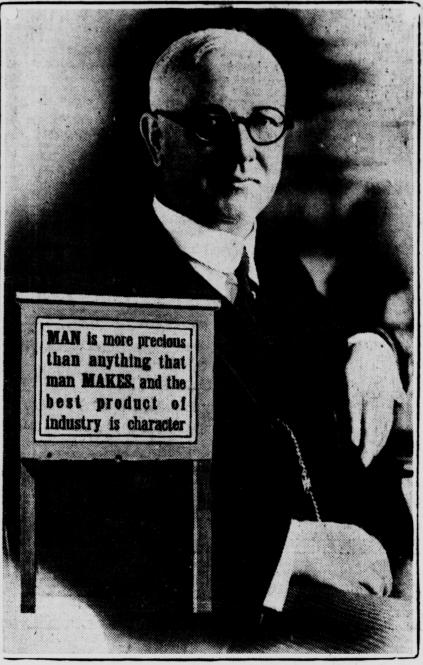

The double ring service was used. Miss Gertrude Kennedy of East Weymouth was bridesmaid, and Theodore Dinsmore of Natick was best man. The flower girls were Roberta Higgins and Arlene Pratt, and the ushers, Leon Thomas of South Weymouth, George Rand of North Weymouth, Leslie Knowles of East Weymouth, and James McCullagh of North Weymouth Miss Hazel Cann played the wedding

The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine trimmed with ribbons. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid wore light green crepe de chine and carried pink roses. The flower girls were dressed in pink and orchid organdie. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the vestry, Mr. and Mrs. Menchin being assisted in receiving by their parents and attendants. On their return from a brief wedding trip the couple will reside at 29 Chard street, East Weymouth.

******************** A Christmas Greeting

By W. E. GILROY

******************* THERE'S not a memory of home, or friend.

Be they so far remote, however lowly; No place where new affections richly blend That does not grow more beautiful, more holy.

There is no laughter of a little child, No fiery passion of Youth's rosy morning. No treasure-house of Age, benign and morrow. In which the Christ has not a larger At Christmas.

We share the memory of Him who came;

Each fervent wish is hallowed in His name At Christmas.

By ETHEL COOK ELIOT (C. 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

OING home for Christmas?"

"Yes. All of us fun seeing each nose into the pantry door. other again and farm."

your mother gets in extra help, and you all help, too."

It was not impertinent, because it was my best friend speaking. She is just frank and sincere. She had dropped into my office after hours, not to buy insurance from me (yes, I am a female insurance agent and not a failure at it either!) but to say "goodby" before herself leaving the city for the holidays.

"No, there's no extra help to be gotten these days in the country any more than here. Not any that's worth while. So mother does it all herself. But she likes it. Christmas only comes once a year."

We said no more about that, but after my friend had gone I remembered her clear, frank eyes and the way they had received my reply. They had been slightly skeptical. I couldn't get that skepticism out of my mind.

The result was that, after much thought, I suddenly closed office a whole week before Christmas, practically kidnaped my youngest sister away from her home in a nearby city-that comfortable home with its full nursery, cook and nurse girl-and whisked her away to the country to give mother a little surprise.

At first I thought the surprise was to turn out an unpleasant one. Ve arrived in the early afternoon without warning. There was mother in a huge apron, her hair tied up in a towel, the front hall full of brooms and mops, housecleaning. She could not conceal her chagrin from us, we had so suddenly appeared. It certainly was lifferent from our customary homecoming. Then, she met us at the front door, her arm linked in father's, dressed in her best silk, her white hair freshly curled, behind them the house shining in spotlessness. And then the pantry filled with pies, cakes, roast ham with its cloves, and mother's wonderful jelly tarts! Such an inviting, homelike, hospitable house! Such a sparklingly clean pantry full of good things!

How different today, six days before we were expected! Father had banished himself to the barn, and we found him disconsolately smoking by old Jim's stall. The house was chaos. All the rugs seemed to be up and the furniture out of place. Mother was cleaning! "Oh, dear!" she greeted us. "I didn't expect you till Christmas Eve! Nothing's ready! I've just this hour | second secon started to fix for you."

We put down our suitcases in wonderment at this unheard-of welcome from mother, our mother!

"That's just it, mother, dear," I said. "We didn't want you to do all this 'fixing' alone. We've come to fix for ourselves, and the horde that follows on Christmas Eve."

Well, at first mother simply wouldn't hear of it. We were to be company and just wait till she got the rooms we were to occupy aired and made up. Since we were all there, well we must stay. But we shouldn't drudge. She guessed we worked hard enough, each riage at our own particular kind of work, all the year, not to have to work when we came home.

We wouldn't listen. We had come for one thing. We laughingly overbore her in all her objections.

More than that, we called father There is no depth of love, no pang of in from the barn and got him to bundle mother up and take her off for a sleigh ride. "A sleigh ride! the parlor furniture in the hall waiting for the parlor to be cleaned!" Well, mother heard of a sleigh ride. and under just those conditions now. So, as we send our greeting of affection. She heard of it from her two strongminded daughters, her youngest and her oldest. Father caught our spirit at once and bustled her away. How merrily the bells jingled as they whirled away through the snow!

Now for it! Marge and I tucked up our skirts, draped ourselves in blg aprons and wound towels about our heads, and fell to. It was hard work. but what a lark we made of it. And we had a good supper waiting for mother and father when they got back.

And every day that week we did finance the same. Father whisked mother off in the sleigh to visit old friends in nearby towns, or just for the ride. And while they were gone we-

By Christmas Eve the house was as shining and tidy as it would have been had mother been left to herself with it. And Marge had proved herself a marvelous cook, too. There were pies and ony club cakes, and even tarts, and the ham with cloves. The turkey was dressed, too, and the stuffing made. And always go. Great mother had not so much as put her

Then the family arrived. tucked in father's, her hair freshly curled, her black silk rustling.

"My," cried Brother-in-law Jim. Nell's husband, "but you've lost ten years, mother! Such bright eyes and pink cheeks I've never seen."

Marge and I, in the darker background, nudged each other and giggled. All the others cried the same thing. It was true enough, too. This was a different mother from the rather Stowell, Mrs. F. H. Torrey, Mr. F. weary old woman we were accustomed H. Torrey and A. W. Bartlett to meeting at holidays here in the open door.

Father spoke up: "You're dead right, children." he said. "Your mother looks like this all the year except at holiday time. Then she just slaves getting ready for you and sort of gets worn out. This year was different. This year she went honeymooning with me instead."

Marge and I came forth from hiding. "Yes, and hereafter is always to be different," we promised.

And how it paid! We'd gotten into the way of thinking mother was an old woman. Now we saw her as her neighbors and father saw her-hearty, bright-eyed, carefree.

"My, it seems good to be eating other's cooking," escaped her that night, over Marge's apple tarts. "But you are naughty children just the same. Marge and you shouldn't boss me so! Right in my own house, too!" The reproach in her eyes, though mild caught it, and quicker than I, got up & Co. and ran around to mother at her place. There she leaned above her and gave her one of her old, impulsive, childish hugs. "Yes, mother dear, it's your own house. But you're our own mother. So 'twas fair!"

And everybody agreed that Marge had justified our highhandedness. However that may be, from Christmas to Christmas mother seems to be growing younger.

Well, another Christmas is here, and this insurance agent must get out her aprons. The other girls have offered to take their turns, of course, but 1 am too selfish to let them. I look forward to the annual cleaning spree with my jolly little sister, Marge, as to a jollification. And the best part of it all is the sound of those jingling sleighbells as mother and father go whisking out of the yard. Heigh ho! Merry Christmas!

South Weymouth Tree Rev. William Dawes Veazie is to be congratulated for his interest and tireless efforts in bringing about the observance of Christmas by the entire community as was evident Christmas Eve.

A. V. Coleman of the Weymouth Light and Power Co. and his company were responsible for the lighting of the tree. Mr. McNamee, the electrician, also contributed his services and equipment in lighting the tree, as did William Stacpole. Supt. Irving Johnson made it possible for the securing of the tree through the kindness of Mr. Dowd of Elm street, and the planting of the tree on the green

There is yet a sum of money needed 6 P. M. to defray the gift expenses, and the community is offered the opportunity of giving to this fund. If there is a balance remaining after all subscriptions are presented and expenses paid it is planned to create a fund for the community Christmas tree of 1925. There will be a meeting of the repesentatives from the various community associations, churches, etc., at an early date when these arrangements will be concluded.

The community Christmas tree of 1924 at South Weymouth was a great

POST OFFICES BUSY

Some idea of what the Weymouth postoffices were up against at the Christmas season may be realized when it is known that the East Weymouth office alone dispatched nearly 300 mail sacks during the first three days of this week-Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The parcel post required most of the bags. One mail dispatch Tuesday evening required 85

*The incoming mail was almost as large and there was an unusually large number of Christmas greeting

At the Weymouth office an unusually large mail was handled without extra help. The incoming mail was fully as large as the outgoing.

-Several water pipes were frozen during the zero weather of Sunday Monday. With the rain of Wednesday the cold wave was dispelled, but during the night there was a light fall of snow, bringing us a white Christmas morning. The first of the week there was good skating on the ponds and some autos were skating in the streets.

-The Old Colony Circuit Institute will hold its first session next Monday evening, Dec. 29, at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Following the supper there will be classes for all departments. The speaker of the evening will be M. E. Barrett of all over the state as very nearly the best in the commonwealth. While there are no great and imposing estates here, our middle class homes are models of comfort and neat architecture. But to make the town a leader we must make it noted for its stores. No town really leads where in a business way it is dependent upon another city.

The business men of Weymouth stand ready to make this a town of fine stores. All they want is the backing of the people of the community. They cannot give us the sort of stores we ought to have unless they have some assurance of the sort of local patrona ge they ought to have.

To give this patronage does not cost anything. Often, the business men say, it will mean a saving not only in actual money but in time, strength and nervous energy. What the merchants of the town want is a fair show.

Therefore, this holiday time, meet them halfway. All they ask you to do is to come and see what they have, and to do it before you go to the city. That isn't very much to do. Think of the help it may be to your own community. Think what it may mean to you in time and strength during this crowded holiday season and what it may do for your pocketbook.

The popular slogan for all Americans is "See America First." We want to paraphrase it for the town with "SEE WEYMOUTH STORES FIRST."

NORFOLK COUNTY SCHOOL

County Commissioner E. W. Hunt and Representative-elect Newland H. Holmes attended the conference at he Norfolk County Agricultural school Dec. 18, relative to the budget for 1925.

Charles Kemp, who is in charge of the school, was formerly a teacher at the Weymouth High. He told the visitors that the school was controlled by seven trustees, four appointed by the governor and the county commissioners by virtue of their office He said that 123 boys were enrolled.

Twenty-three of the boys studied at the branch now operated in the Weymouth High school.

The boys are given four years training. The program included the courses taught at the public High schools in addition to the agricultural training. Boys in Norfolk county paid no tuition. If boarded at the school the cost for room and board is one dollar a day and the boys are given an opportunity of earning this money by extra work on the farm. Special courses of one year in any of the forms of training could be secured by any of the pupils. Director Kemp cited a number of boys who had graduated and were now making splendid incomes in the dairy and poultry business. Any of the boys attending the school, he stated, had completed their grammar courses and if they did not have the opportunity offered by the agricultural school would not continue in school.

While the per capita cost of instructing boys was somewhat higher than in the public High schools, the boys who graduated from the Walpole school were in a great majority producers. The talk was instructive and to many of the legislators present, illuminating, and many questions were asked. Other officials spoke.

RADIO AT LAST

which we could take to a man's residence and give a stration that was satisfactory to ourselves. We have on exhibition in our showroom, a five-tube set which will do anything a man may reasonably expect from a receiver. We are installing these sets and leaving them in satisfactory operation for $150. Many would-be ex perts have paid more and bought

ODD FELLOWS PARTY

Members of Crescent lodge, I. O. O. F., entertained nearly one hundred children Sunday afternoon at a Christmas tree party at Odd Fellows Opera House. Santa Claus was impersonated by Charles Phillips, who had gifts for all. The exercises included readings by Miss Mary Lonergan, vocal numbers by Miss Alice Langley and Miss Margaret Willis, accompanied by Mrs. Mabel Maynard. Ice cream and cake, candy and fruit were served. The committee included: Harry Belcher, N. G., Gerald Kelso, V. G., Charles Phillips, Gideon Murray, P. G., and George H. Draper, P. G.
