INTRODUCTORY.

The following exercises are intended to be used in a practical application of the several rules of Eclectic Shorthand and are arranged in the same order in which these rules are given in the text-book. A large number of short sentences embracing various words illustrating the application of each rule are given. Throughout the book the words are spelled as they are to be written, and in Part I they are also so hyphenated as to indicate what letters of a word are to be represented by each written Shorthand character; e. g. the word deafen is spelled de-fn, indicating that de is to be written by one character, viz: d on e position to express de, and fn also by one character; viz: f lengthened to express fn. Thus the student has the greatest possible simplification of the work before him.

Having thoroughly studied a rule of the text-book, and practiced its lists of illustrative words, the student may very profitably practice the sentences herein given in illustration of the same rule.

The object of the book is two-fold: first, to aid in acquiring a thorough knowledge of the art of Eclectic Shorthand, by supplying, for careful practice, copious sentences illustrative of the various rules; and, second, to furnish exercises to be used as a speed drill in securing rapidity in writing. To accomplish these results the sentences should be repeatedly and rapidly written. They are generally short and the pupil will easily retain them in mind, whether practicing alone or from dictation in classes.

The necessity of presenting in each sentence as many illustrative words as possible, is such, that in Part I no attempt is made at literary character or merit. In Part II the sentences each comprise merely an illustrative word or two, and are mostly gems of thought. Part III comprises a few pages of choice literature, divided into sections of one hundred words each, to facilitate the speed drill exercise.

The students' work should be carefully criticised and corrected, not only by himself with the aid of the Text-book, but also by some competent teacher or advanced student of the system.

A thorough use of this book, either in classes or in private study, will prove a great aid to the student, and will be found to greatly accelerate his thorough and rapid acquisition of the art.

July, 1891.

PART III.

SEWING ON A BUTTON.

It iz bad enf to se a bachlr so on a butn, but he iz the embdmt ov gras alngsd ov a mard man. Ness-t haz compld xperns in the cas ov the formr, but the latr haz alwz depndd upn sum-o els for this servs, and fortntly, for the sac ov sosi-t, it iz rarly he iz obljd to rezrt to the nedl himsl. Sumtms the pasht wif scaldz her rit hand, or runz a slivr undr the nal ov the indx fingr ov that hand, and it iz then the man cluchz the (100) nedl arnd the neck, and, by forgting to tie a not in the thred, comensz to put on the butn. It iz alwz in the morning, and from fiv to twen-t mints aftr he iz xpectd to be down stret. He laz the butn xactly on the sit ov its predssr, and pushz the nedl thru on i, and carfly drawz the thred aftr, leving about thre inchz ov it sticing up for lewa. He sez to himsl, "Well, if wimn don't hav the ezst tim I evr se." Then he cumz bac the othr wa, and getz the nedl (200) thru the cloth wel enf, and laz himsl out to find the i, but in spit ov a grat del ov pasht jabing, the nedl point perzsts in bucing agnst the solid parts ov that butn, and finly, when he loozz pashns, hiz fingrz each the thred, and that thre inchz he had left to hold the butn slips thru the i in a twinkling, and the butn rolz lezhrlly (sh) acrs the flor. He pics it up wiout a singl remrc, out ov respect to hiz childrn, and macs anthr atmt to fasn it. This tim, when coming bac with (300) the nedl, he ceps both the thred and the butn from slipping by covring them with hiz thum, and it iz out ov regard for that part ov him that he felz arnd for the i in a very carfl and judshs manr; but evntly loozing hiz filsfy, az the serch becmz mor and mor hopls, he falz to jabing abt in a loos and savj manr, and it iz jus then the nedl findz the opning, and cumz up thru the butn and part wa thru hiz thum with a selr-t that no humn injn-t can gard agnst. Then he (400) laz down the thingz, with a few famlr quo-t, and presz the injrd hand twen hiz nez, and then holdz it undr the othr arm, and finly jamz it int hiz mouth, and al the whil he pranz abt the flor and calz upn hev'n and urth to witns that thar haz nevr bin enthing lic it sins the world waz creatd, and howlz, and whislz, and monz, and sobz, and siz. Aftr awhl he cumz down, and puts on hiz pants, and fasnz them togthr with a stic, and goz down to hiz bizns a chanjd and reflcting man. (500)
