

WORK OF LIBRARIES

AMERICAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION MEETS IN FRISCO TO DISCUSS METHODS

The thirty-seventh annual meeting of the American Library association convened at Berkeley June 3 to 9. The meetings were held in the various university buildings, which are ideally situated for a meeting of this nature. The meeting, which consisted of three sessions a day, was presided over by Hiller G. Wellman, librarian of Springfield, Mass.

The address of welcome was made by Livingston Jenks, president of the Mechanics Institute, San Francisco, after which a reception was held with the object of becoming acquainted.

All the leading libraries of the United States and Canada were represented, which meant, of course, the cream of the library world.

Some of the most interesting numbers were: "The Changing Literary Taste and Growing Appeal of Poetry," by May Masse, editor of the American Library association book list; an address by John M. Eshleman, lieutenant-governor of California; an afternoon with Herbert Putnam of the library of congress, Washington, D. C., and another with Richard R. Bowked, editor of the Library Journal. One talk on the "Inspirational Influence of Books in the Life of the Child" was most pleasing and helpful. An illustrated lecture, showing the improvement of library architecture was also very enjoyable.

One of the objects of the convention was to acquaint the librarians with the latest library methods. Different phases of library work, technical and inspirational, were discussed.

On Saturday afternoon the association attended the exposition in a body and were met by two officials, who conducted them to the Liberal Arts building, where addresses were made and a bronze medal presented to the president of the association in honor of the profession. In the evening the California Library association gave a reception to the American Library association at the California building.

The Glendale library was represented by its librarian at each of the three sessions daily, except two of the evening meetings, which were of interest to librarians of technical libraries only. Great instructional and broadening influence was gained, not only from the meetings, but in the exchange of ideas in private conversation with co-workers. Mrs. Danford was the choice of the sixth district as a delegate to the convention, a decided compliment to her standing in the library world.

ALICE BRADY IN "AS YE SOW" AT PALACE GRAND SUNDAY

The five-part feature, "As Ye Sow," with Alice Brady in the title role, will be shown matinee and night at the Palace Grand Sunday.

The plot of the picture has an intense interest and the acting is superb. The story, in short, is as follows:

Mrs. St. John lives with her two sons, Frank and John, and her daughter, Dolly, in a small town on the Cape Cod coast. John has been studying for the ministry and is appointed to take a place in the little church, Frank, the black sheep of the family, goes to New York to seek his fortune.

He gets a position in the sales office of an automobile company. Dora Mason, daughter of a millionaire, persuades her father to buy her a new automobile. They go to the salesrooms where Frank is working. She is attracted to Frank immediately.

Frank persuades Dora to run away and get married. The night that Dora leaves her father dies of heart disease. Frank takes to drink and becomes very abusive. A little baby girl is born and Frank becomes jealous and devotes more of his time to his friends. Dora asserts herself and says that unless he reforms he need not come back.

The nurse has the baby out in the park. Frank steals her. He goes to the little Cape Cod town and leaves the baby on the doorstep of his mother's home. He runs away and ships on board a fishing schooner. When Mrs. St. John finds the little baby she thinks it is a gift from heaven to take the place of her lost boy, Frank.

After mourning three years for her child, Dora thinks a trip to the sea shore would brighten her up and gets off (see the completed story at the Palace Grand Sunday).

A delightful comedy, "Housekeeping Under Cover," is also on the bill, making an exceptionally well balanced program.

This country never lacks tall presidential timber.

CROWDS HEAR BAND

FIRST OF A SERIES OF STREET CONCERTS WAS GIVEN FRIDAY NIGHT

How much interest Glendale takes in music, when it gets the opportunity to hear a good concert under favorable circumstances, was manifested Friday night when the Glendale municipal band gave its first concert for the season on the steps of the city hall. All down the length of Broadway from Glendale avenue to Louise street, automobiles of every make were lined up and their owners and friends stood in the vast crowd from all parts of the city that came to listen to the strains of Verdi, Boissvert and other noted composers.

The municipal band gave a good account of itself and as the season progresses may be expected to attract even greater crowds by its masterly performances. All credit must be given to Mr. T. J. McDermott of Los Angeles, the director, and also to Mr. C. D. Furst, the able and skillful leader, for having brought the band to such a pitch of perfection. There was a smoothness and certainty about the execution of the men that was astonishing at a first performance.

Glendale will look forward with interest to the next concert, which it is hoped may be next week. Already the fame of the band has gone forth to other quarters and Mr. Furst is at present in negotiation with the management of the San Diego exposition to take his men there on July 3, 4 and 5. If the negotiations are successful, Mr. Furst will take thirty-five men with him.

The members of the band are: T. J. McDermott, director.
C. D. Furst, leader, tuba.
Walter M. Ross, solo cornet.
E. H. Kerri, solo cornet.
M. Burke, first cornet.
G. W. Schaffer, solo clarinet.
Dwight Warren, solo clarinet.
E. Eustad, first clarinet.
W. J. McIntyre, first clarinet.
E. R. Naudain, second clarinet.
Ralph Carmichael, second clarinet.
L. B. Case, first horn.
George H. Blythe, second horn.
H. S. Cahoon, third horn.
P. T. McIntyre, first trombone.
J. F. Brown, second trombone.
E. Buckley, third trombone.
P. M. Hicks, baritone.
C. Aston, baritone.
J. E. Church, double B bass.
T. M. Furst, bass drum.
L. D. Good, snare drum.

TROPICO

Every family and every member of each family from the oldest to the youngest is interested in the great street carnival that Visor lodge, Knights of Pythias of Tropic, is to hold in this city Thursday afternoon and evening. Not only are the members and all of the citizens bubbling over with enthusiasm, but this carnival spirit is infecting Glendale. The Knights of Pythias of our sister city are aiding the local knights. Then, to be not outdone by the Knights of Pythias of Glendale, the Elks of that city are preparing to come down and infuse some of their enthusiasm and good cheer and just to help with this great enterprise are to bring their White Squadron Patrol to give one of their noted exhibition drills. This carnival spirit has extended throughout this great San Fernando valley and then into Los Angeles, resulting in the announcement that thousands of visitors will throng the streets and thoroughfares of Tropic Thursday, June 24. The carnival committee consists of Geo. Toax, chairman, who is a well-known booster, but no more so than the secretary, Frank H. Davis, whose boosting qualities are so well known that he is styled the prince of boosters. Other well-known men who always make a success of their undertakings are C. C. Ritzenhouse, Robert Danner, Harry Shaffer and C. C. Hapgood.

Mrs. Victor Peterson of Denver, Colo., and Miss Johanna Lind of Glasgow, Mont., who are the house guests of Mrs. Allen Ellsworth Boyce of South Brand boulevard, were the guests of Mrs. Boyce at the club luncheon Thursday in G. A. R. hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl E. Hollingsworth of Virginia place have returned from a most pleasant visit in San Diego and at the exposition.

J. B. Hickman and T. C. Gillett left for Big Tejonca canyon today, where they will spend a week fishing and camping.

Miss Eva M. Dutton of Virginia place is enjoying a portion of her vacation visiting in San Diego and attending the exposition.

There is something out of gear with the person who, at this season, doesn't begin to incubate dreams of vacations.

THEIR SEASON ENDS

MUSIC SECTION LADIES OF T. A. CLUB HOLD SEMI-SURPRISE MEETING

There was much mystery apparent to the initiated at the last meeting of the music section of the Tuesday Afternoon club, which was held at the home of Mrs. P. A. Kranz, North Brand boulevard, Friday afternoon. Truth to tell, there was not much business to transact of a regular nature, but the ladies had some business of their own which was a secret to only one of their number—the curator, Mrs. Freeman Kelly. Mrs. Kelley has won the affections of the whole section by her tact and ability in managing the musical affairs of the club and the ladies resolved to mark the last session of the season by surprising her with a suitable token of their appreciation.

After the usual final business had been dispatched, very much to the satisfaction of all, many tributes were paid the dearly loved curator and the work done by the section during the past year. A beautiful letter of praise was read from Mrs. Martha Morris which brought tears to the eyes of many.

Mrs. Kranz was assisted in receiving by her son, Mr. Julius Kranz, who honored the members of the music section by playing some of his own compositions on the violin, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. LeRoy Bosserman. Mr. Kranz is studying composition under Mr. H. Schoenfeld and expects to have a group of his compositions published in the near future.

At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served and Mrs. Freeman Kelly, the curator, was presented with a silver sandwich plate and a cut glass vase in an informal way by the members of the music section. The presentation came as a surprise to Mrs. Kelly. After she had recovered from the surprise she thanked the ladies in a most charming manner for their gift and also for their loyalty to the club and their appreciation of her efforts to make the music section stand for all that is highest in us.

GET THE GREAT IDEA

HAVE THE IDEA OF WINNING A $850 MAXWELL UPPERMOST IN YOUR MIND

This week a number of people have had just one great idea in their minds—to get votes in The News' great popularity contest—and thereby win an auto, a piano, a trip to the exposition, a scholarship to the Isaacs-Woodbury Business college, a bank deposit, etc.

However, the contest is only six days old, and a number should announce themselves in the next day or two.

If you have not yet been nominated, you had better see that your name appears when the list is published, which will be in the near future. Contestants and their friends are invited to telephone the Evening News office or call at the office, where any points not fully understood will be clarified.

The News' second grand prize, the $400 Schiller piano, purchased from the Platt Music company of Los Angeles, is now on display at The News office. Come in and see this instrument for yourself; see the beautiful mahogany finish; try out its clear, pure tone, and examine it thoroughly.

The Maxwell auto can be seen at the Maxwell-King avenue, corner of Colorado and Brand boulevards. It is a make of known value, as every Maxwell owner can testify, and has a cash value that is practically equal to its selling price.

Even the minor prizes are most attractive, including as they do a trip with expenses to the exposition, three $75 scholarships to the Isaacs-Woodbury Business college, a $50 deposit at the First National bank of Glendale, and other prizes to be announced later.

$50 prizes, including a $50 deposit at the First National bank of Glendale, and three $25 prizes.

There is still ample time for anyone to enter this interesting subscription campaign.

Take a little time, plan your campaign thoroughly, and you can win easily.

Energy, stick-to-it-iveness and organization are great factors in a contest of this kind, but of the three organization is the greatest. Get your friends to help you, not only with their subscriptions, but in interesting others in your campaign. You could ask for nothing better as a business proposition than this contest, if you are not regularly employed or have a little spare time, for you have nothing to lose, many valuable prizes to gain, and a commission of ten per cent on all new subscriptions turned in, even if you don't win a prize.

Don't put the matter off longer. Send the Evening News your nomination tonight.

SENIOR DANCE

GRADUATES ARE GAY IN FAREWELL PARTY AT THE MASONIC TEMPLE

Did the "amari aliquid"—the something bitter of which Persius sings, rise up in the midst of the "fountain of delights" Friday evening as the departing seniors of the Glendale Union high school swung in the circles of the voluptuous waltz or daintily tiptoed and counter-swung in the figures of the one-step, two-step and tango? Hearts were light, spirits were buoyant and the gay laugh resounded through the mystic Masonic temple, but it goes without saying that there was the note of sorrow, the undertone of regret, as the old class contemplated the receding footsteps of the days that will never return.

It was there—the century-old feeling. One phase of life was over—the joyous hour of first youth, the undimmed eye, the unbroken heart, the withers that are unwrung. The world opened for the laughing crowd its long vista over which hangs the mist of unknown things and there were many there who felt the dim sense of its coming.

Amidst a blaze of blue and white, that shone out from flowers and streamers, shasta daisies and banks of other flowers and shrubs, the farewell dance of the class of 1915 from the first tap of the snare drum to the last long note of "Home, Sweet Home," swung on unconfinced. Youth and beauty met and chased the glowing hours to their hearts' content. The dance will leave many tender memories in its wake.

Led by that handsome couple of graceful dancers, Esther Sinclair and Douglas Balthis, the grand march twined its mazes through the hall and then the merriment began. If there was an undertone of parting sorrow throughout the night, it was successfully glossed over and youth had its way. Life looked out from clear, young eyes, "the blood was lava and the pulse a blaze."

Thirty-five couples enjoyed the dance. They were chaperoned by Prof. and Mrs. A. L. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. John Hobbs. Imes' orchestra infused something of attractive rhythm into the music of the night and rounded out the evening with appropriate accent and tone.

At the heads of a bevy of fair sophomore girls, who also took the part of attendants at the dinner table on Thursday evening, the punch was served. Their names are Evangeline Hunchberger, Ernestine Lyon, Esther Schremp, Waunita Emery, Joyce Dominay and Margaret Boucher.

PACIFIC AVENUE PLAYGROUND

The playground at the Pacific avenue school will open at noon Monday and will be open every afternoon except Sunday thereafter. Miss Maybelle Douglas, a well-known teacher of the West Glendale school, will have charge of the grounds. Her ability as a playground instructor is well known and parents need feel no hesitancy in sending their children to the playground. Boys are requested to come about noon Monday and bring their lunches with them and also a hoe. Free lemonade will be furnished and there will be a match game of playground ball in the afternoon.

The opening of this playground is due to the efforts of the Parent-Teacher association of the school.

It is hoped that this is just a beginning and in fact, according to certain plans now being formulated by a committee of the Parent-Teacher federation, there will probably be two supervised playgrounds in operation in Glendale and one in Casa Verdugo about July 1.

The ladies of the Pacific avenue association will appreciate any volunteer assistance in the form of either money or work in improving the grounds that the men of the community can give.

BETTER LIGHTING IN SCHOOLS

This is an age of efficiency. If efficiency should be found anywhere, it should be in the public schools. That quality should run through everything in connection with a school and should begin to be applied from the moment the ground is broken for the foundation to the moment the building is inaugurated.

Not only must the school light service be ample in quantity, but it must also be of the proper quality. The eye of the student must not be subjected to uneven and glaring lights. All glare must be eliminated. The light must be uniform so that the pupil of the eye can open to its normal size and operate without fatigue.

In these days, however, the schoolhouse is becoming more and more a gathering place for parents as well as pupils. Almost every California school of any pretensions has an auditorium and a well-appointed stage. Just think for a moment how much of the evening life of Glendale centers around the Union high school or round the Intermediate.

Under those circumstances parents as well as pupils will be brought into direct contact with the effects of lighting. Evening classes so common in these days and evening entertainments equally common are to become more common as time goes on. It therefore behooves school trustees and, failing them, the parents and children themselves, to see that every school is equipped with good lighting, either indirect or direct, no matter what may be the cost.

The saving of dollars is not the chief end of school management. The children of the nation are part of the national wealth. They are the men and women of tomorrow. They ought to be carefully nurtured and their energies, mental and physical, developed and conserved for the benefit of the nation.

JAPAN ASPIRES TO LEADERSHIP

Japan, with all the courtesy that is the inheritance of the Orient, is gradually assuming a more assured tone in her utterances regarding the present position of affairs in the Far East. The Japanese government has at present an unexampled opportunity to adjust international matters in the Pacific according to its own ideas and without interference from outside powers.

Germany has been eliminated from China, and Japan can now afford to talk magnanimously of the Teuton, seeing that she has taken his place in the counsels of the Celestial Kingdom and is even now holding the finely organized German territory at Kiaochau, with its vineyards and grain fields, its railways and its mines.

By the time Europe gets over its war fever and exhaustion Japan will in all probability be so strongly entrenched in China that nothing short of a miracle will suffice to dislodge her. The consciousness of this runs through all Japan's dealings and conferences with Europeans and Americans.

Japan now has intimated to the European powers and to the United States, informally, that she considers herself trustee for the peace and prosperity of the Far East. She is also determined to assume the status and power commensurate with this important office.

If we are to believe the statesmen of Japan, the ideals and necessities of that wonderful empire are in exact consonance with the Far Eastern interests of the other powers. What the other powers would have to say to that, if they were capable of any articulate utterance at present, would be very interesting, though it might not be very pleasing to Japan.

Japan believes, or professes to believe, that the principles by which it guides its national and international policy are something higher than the Monroe Doctrine or any other international doctrine that has been enunciated by Europe or America.

WILLINGNESS OF SERVICE

There is a vast difference between the spirit that gives freely and the spirit that gives with a grudge. There is also a wide gulf betwixt the giver who bestows in ostentation and the kind heart that ministers to necessity with sympathy and understanding. Horace, the Latin satirist, gives an amusing description of a visit he paid, on one occasion, to the country villa of a vulgar, rich man. The clever poet tells how his host, boasted of his possessions and waxed grossly eloquent over the prices he had paid for various articles; and how at last in a fit of ignorant generosity, seeing his guest exhibited a favor for certain fine table pears, said: "Take them with you; put them in your toga."

That is a method of being generous and of serving others that is only too common. "Put that aside," says one, "it will do for some poor person." In this way certain modern charities serve as a clearing house for old clothes and a popular storehouse for merit. Many people acquire the only merit they can ever hope to possess in this way.

True service is very different from this. There is in it not the least trace of selfishness. It acts at once graciously, freely, and without stint. Like the fountain of life, it flows freely for all and makes no distinction between rich and poor. This willingness to serve is one of the finest traits in humanity. There are many unselfish souls in the world who are ready to offer their service freely to humanity.

That, it must be supposed, is where the shoe pinches with so many. They expect to get something out of everything they handle. Nothing for nothing is their motto. That is the motto of a person, who is essentially a boor, an underbred and wholly objectionable person. Society and the public demand of the young a great deal of service that offers no monetary remuneration.

That is work for young people. There are many of the older generation who will be glad to lay down the burden of these necessary works and thrice blessed is he or she who has the native grace, generosity, kindness and willingness to take up the burden and carry it along a little farther. For those who do this work there may be no financial remuneration forthcoming; but there are secret crowns and garlands of reward that will beam brightly from their brows as the stars forever and ever.

LIBERTY BELL

In view of the fact that the entire country is more than usually interested in our Liberty Bell on account of its proposed journey across the continent, when many hope to see this most prized possession of the nation, the following poem written by Miss Ida Moore of Proctor, West Virginia, and a sister of Mr. Clem Moore of our city, is very timely and of much interest.

Liberty Bell

Hail! dear old bell of liberty, A strange, sweet story you tell, And though you're cracked and scarred and old, Yet still we love thee well.

Far and near were thy glad tones Heard ringing sweet and clear, When independence you proclaimed For all that man holds dear.

Other bright bells with a mission grand May speak for something, too, But none will gain the great renown That now belongs to you.

Old England's noted curfew bell Rang when the day was done; But you rang for a glorious day With radiance just begun.

You hid beneath the Delaware When enemies bold were near, But traveled since your country o'er Without the slightest fear.

Now, dear old bell, we, too, grow old, From active life retire, But may our lives like thine be such That love we will inspire.

SAVING THE TREES

To the tree has been given individual majesty. There is nothing more stately than the oak! It is more than merely ornate, for it adds dignity as well as beauty to the landscape. It is human to have a personal regard for the tree, and a sentiment almost of affection for forest and grove.

estation is a useful and laudable science, its effects lasting and benign, but the grief at seeing a splendid oak destroyed hardly is lessened by the thought that there will be other oaks for other generations to see.

LYRIC CLUB CONCERT

Quite a number of Glendale ladies belong to the Woman's Lyric club of Los Angeles, one of the famous singing organizations on the Pacific coast. Quite a party of these ladies and their friends went to Los Angeles Friday night, both to take part in the service of song and to listen to the sweet harmony of the well-trained voices.

Among those who sang in the choir were Mrs. and Miss Landmann, Miss Payroe, Mrs. Cowen of Burbank, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Keltz. Mr. J. B. Poulin is the conductor of the club and Mrs. M. Hennon Robinson the accompanist.

When the curtain rose on the staging of the third concert of the eleventh season of the club in Trinity auditorium, it showed an unique band of well-trained ladies, who moved as one at the wave of the conductor's baton. It is a characteristic of the Woman's Lyric club that precision shall characterize every movement, and the wonderful oneness of those minor movements runs throughout the whole of the performance.

Ladies of the Lyric club on concert nights are dressed completely in white—white stockings, white shoes, white dresses. They wear no hair ornaments and no gloves. All this attention to minor detail is but one part of the minute system of training that has resulted in producing one of the most remarkable and efficient women's singing organizations in the whole country.

The concert given Friday night was listened to breathlessly by a most discriminating and appreciative audience. The club was assisted by Mr. Cecil Fanning, baritone, one of the most skilled and naturally gifted singers ever heard on the Pacific coast. Accompanied by Mr. Turpin, Mr. Fanning sang a whole repertoire of songs such as Schubert's "Der Wanderer" and "Wohin?", Wolf's "Verborgenheit" and Loewe's setting of Goethe's "Der Erlkonig," "Le Petit Bois d'Amour," "Le Cycle du Vin," "The Low-Back Car" and "Oh! no, John."

Those who know the marvelous quality of Mr. Fanning's voice and his extraordinary capacity for interpretation will understand just how great a treat was given his audience Friday night.

Mr. Bassett, the tenor, was equally good in his own composition, "Capri." Frieda Peycke, a member of the Lyric club, had the honor of having her own excellent composition, "Come, Dance and Sing," sung by the club. It was a charming composition and was rendered with great daintiness by the organization.

The club sang with much taste and feeling Henry Hadley's "The Golden Prince," which is adapted from a prose story by Oscar Wilde. This was the longest and most pretentious presentation of the evening and it displayed the wonderful attention to detail that has been noted of the club before.

Inasmuch as Americans are an outspoken people, their exemplary practice of neutrality toward the warring nations in Europe stands out in relief as a notable achievement.

Once in awhile we Americans scratch our heads at mention of Wall street and wonder when and where we have heard the name and what it means.

The law of nations should be revised so as to conform more nearly to the Golden Rule.

The policy of the Evening News proprietor is to keep the columns of the paper free from personal attacks and accounts of happenings that tend to reflect unfairly on the character of any citizen.

So careful is the proprietor of the Evening News on the question of not giving publicity to matters of a sensational nature that he would prefer not to mention certain incidents rather than publish an account that will hurt the feelings of innocent relatives and friends.

In the past few weeks on account of not always being in a position to pass upon the manuscript prepared for publication, the proprietor of The News regrets to say that several mentions were made in a manner that is contrary to the policy of The News.

Hoping there will not be reoccurrences of the same, I remain

NATURAL GAS FOR LOS ANGELES

Having obtained a definite source of supply in the Salt Lake field adjoining the western city limits, the Economic Gas company will commence to distribute natural gas to Los Angeles consumers about the first of July.

A deal has been consummated whereby the Economic Gas company is to tap 166 oil-producing wells on the Hancock estate near Sherman and pipe the natural gas obtained therefrom through a line to be purchased from the Union Oil company.

At present, the wells to supply the Economic show a daily output of ten million cubic feet of natural gas, enough to supply the demands of a large portion of the city. It is believed though by G. Allan Hancock, manager of the estate, that this output could be considerably increased, possibly to 100,000,000 cubic feet, daily, from the oil wells now developed.

There are 166 producing oil wells on the property, each of which shows more or less natural gas. The entire estate, though, comprises 2000 acres, while only about 300 acres have been developed so far, indicating that the room for future drilling will be sufficient for years to come.

Seed Notes

The place of woman in the divine plan of redemption has always been the most tender and delicate; necessarily so because she herself is of such composition. Where she touches that plan in the O. T. times, coming into notice with purity and her wondrous wealth of sympathy and loveableness, she is exalted in the richness of her character. But where sordid and unlovely, in thought and ambition, she becomes a mere thing of abject pity and shame. The very same can be said of her in the New Testament times, and on down to the present. For our human nature cannot possibly reach its most exalted altitude, or its most debasing, violent and befouling condition, outside of womankind. God has concentrated in her mind and heart all the loveliest things as well as the ugliest of which humanity is capable.

Hence, when the Lord calls her from the low levels of sin to walk the high plains of unselfish endeavor to interest herself in his kingdom, he heaps upon her the highest honor possible. For with her are qualities that go mightily toward the elevation of the whole race.

The wise choice of Mary in that Bethany home was typical of the choice of all women, as it ought to be, "being the better part." For in that act Mary shifted her heart from self over to Christ and that made her the model for all men and women of today. She destroyed with one stroke the idol of self and that master stroke was her hardest personal fight against all the inclinations of nature toward self.

"Woman's work is never done" is heard on every hand because today her call to enter every avenue of trade, ministry and profession, in which she finds an opening, is wonderful. With keen insight, tactfulness and diligence she has forged ahead and in many cases led all her male competitors. And to her glory and honor her influence and presence have elevated that calling, profession or station.

God's divine call to woman because of her peculiar fitness in the church and all religious work is a call to leadership in everything that lifts humanity into higher, purer and better living. There is much truth in the saying, "No nation rises higher than its women." And because of the many calls she has to Christian service, her tremendous influence for good, her opportunities in this country, the Braham was right when he said, "It is a shame for a woman in America not to be a Christian woman." So say all of us.

The truest friends of the master and to the church of today, to the home and the nation, are the women. There is no discount in her love; none in her fidelity; none in her interest; she remains true to the bitter end, though all else forsake and flee.

There may be some doubt about her entering all parts of the world's work, but this is sure, she can answer no higher call than in the establishing and the conduct of a Christian home. And when she conducts such with queenly grace, dignity, kindness and wealth of love, she is walking in her God-destined sphere.

THE HALL OF FAME

A May copy of Portrait, a magazine devoted to art in portraiture, has a cut of our local camera portrait artist, Mr. Edward Henry Weston on the cover and contains the following writup of this internationally famous artist in connection with a reproduction of one of his studies, a portrait of little Miss Marjorie Green of Tropicco:

To establish a studio in a little city of less than two thousand inhabitants seems foolish; when that place is only a twenty minutes' ride from Los Angeles the idea becomes ridiculous, but when one learns that the studio for four years did not even have the convenience of a street in front of it, the limit seems to have been reached.

Four years ago Edward Henry Weston started the studio just described, in Tropicco, California, his first venture as a professional portrait photographer.

Today he takes great satisfaction in knowing that people have found him, despite his seemingly obscure location, a large portion of his patronage coming from Los Angeles, Pasadena and neighboring cities, a fact which proves that his work must possess an individuality and quality out of the ordinary.

During the year 1914 Mr. Weston was awarded salon honors at the national convention of the Photographers' Association of America, and the grand prize at the Northwestern Photographers' Association convention. His exhibit at the London salon received high praise in the London papers. Mr. Bertram Park, the secretary, choosing his group of pictures as being the best in the entire salon.

GOSSIP AND MALICE

Possibly there is gossip devoid of malice, but it must be rare. Certainly malice is the inspiration and content of adverse gossip concerning the two expositions. Statements have been made that they were close, that they were being conducted at great loss; that admittedly, they were failures. Such statements may be met and overcome by statistics, but the impulse is to hurl the only single word that covers the case and let it go at that.

California is proud of its two expositions, and glad that they are succeeding. The one at San Francisco is the most magnificent in scope and detail ever assembled. Despite the many descriptions of it sent out, every visitor is amazed by its extent and dazzling splendor. Not for many years, if ever, will there be a show on similar scale. Until the world has developed inventions not yet dreamed, industries still unknown, and beauties that have not caught the eye of man, will there be possibility of surpassing it.

San Diego's exposition also is wonderful. What it lacked in magnitude, the promoters sought to make up for in perfection, and in presentation of the unique. It is not so stupendous as to overwhelm the senses, and there is possibility of inspecting it fully. This is not to imply that it is small, for save for the friendly rival at the north it would be considered vast. No one in California, resident or visitor, should miss either of the expositions. The dual opportunity is never to come again. There they may study history in condensed form, read the story of the ages, observe the progress of science, the development of resources, the attainment of art, and all lines of human endeavor. And passing between the two "big tents" they must traverse a section replete with scenic glory, traditional interest, the destined home of happy millions, and already the playground of the nation.

The political bridges of 1916 let us cross when we get to them.

New York suffragists watched the naturalization of a lot of aliens, doubtless meanwhile wondering where these aliens had acquired a fitness of which some people deem the suffragist incapable.

INTERESTING FILMS AT PALACE GRAND TONIGHT

The variety of the pictures at the Palace Grand tonight are sure to please any "movie fan." The feature picture is "The Bomb Boy," an American comedy-drama in three parts.

The story is thrilling to say the least.

Larry, the telegraph messenger boy, loves little Mame and his attentions meet with favor from the girl until Terry Turk, the light-weight pugilistic champion of Jersey City, steps in. Dazzled by the attentions of this great man, Mame cannot see Larry at all, and accepts the present of a bracelet from the pugilistic. Unable to compete with such great wealth, the messenger can only hope for something to turn up which will put a few dollars into his pockets.

The Grand Duke Sergius visits the United States and is followed by Anna Karensky, a nihilist, who is plotting his death. The secret service being warned of her presence aboard a certain steamship, the police wait for her arrival in order to arrest her. Her confederates in America learn of her danger and a warning is sent to her at the pier to get rid of the bomb at all hazards. The messenger chosen to deliver the message is our friend Larry. The nihilist manages to secrete the bomb in a hat box to thus get it by the customs officials. She then gives the dangerous bundle to Larry with orders to deliver it to her confederates.

See what happens to the bomb at the Palace Grand tonight.

In addition to "The Bomb Boy," the pictures include "Japanese Artisans," an educational film; "Colonel Heeza Liar Signs the Pledge," a Brey cartoon comedy, and the Pathe News, No. 45, which will feature the recent Indianapolis races.
