THE REPUBLIC. Since the withdrawal of Mears. BULLITT and SARGENT from the Republic, and the transfer of that journal to Mr. Allan A. Hall, nothing of a strictly editorial character has a dained by a card of the new proprietor, asking days Mr. Hall will be at his post, pre-

TAR! SARGENT, to acknowledge that while ruce, it was eminent for the spirit and vio origina!, quaint and attractive in style, in patriotism, teeming with wit and humor, not unfrequently imbued with eloquence, and at times glittering with repartee, surcasm ivocating. The Republic struck its blows rely and then paused; the Union maintaind an untiring contest of skirmishing, displaling skill in fence, rather than strength pos-escid, more coolly malignant, more indeta-tigable in its hostility, more sophistical in its ar-gumente. It used out and wore down opnosisand persisted in slander until incredulity itself was staggered. This policy-natural to evidences of the annoyance occasioned b verbial for his excellent and vigorous common sense; his ample knowledge; his keen dis crimination, and his terrible long memora portrait starids revealed as one of the greatest triumphs of the painter's skill. We think to one can look upon this painting with any other emotion than that of admiration. There is an inspiration of genius in it that cannot fail to strike into the mised of the beholder, and nestle itself among the fonders memories of the heart. And we can assure those who look upon this portrait admiringly, that, if they should be fortunate enough to make the personal acquaintance of the arrist, they will find their esteem and affection increased.

artists, and gave her an order for three por-traits.

Another of the beautiful creations of Miss Gengembre's artishcal skill, in the Cincinnati Art Union, is an oil painting, depicting Grief.
There is not in the rooms anything that can compare with the hand in this painting. The whole work is creditable to the artist—the hand is more than creditable. In the same rooms are three studies in crayon, from the same artist— They have been very property called, by our friend Gallagher, "The Lauder of Love," and are indeed, beautiful.

We have reserved to these works of art for the purpose of informing the lowers of genius that there is a painting of Miss Gengembre's at the rooms of Mr. Standilf, the dagnerrossphir, on Main street, between Third and Fourth, in this city, which will well reward any examina-tion that may be made of it. It is a portrait of the mother of the artist, and the gifted daughter seems to have thrown her whole soul into the work, in order to portray the mother not only as others see here, but as she is impressed upon the hearts and intellect of a devoted daughter.
