PROLOGUE.

ME need not, noble Gentlemen, to invite Attention, pre-instruct you who did write This worthy Story, being confident The Mirth joyn'd with grave Matter, and Intent To yield the Hearers Profit, with Delight, Will speak the Maker: And to do him right, Wou'd ask a Genius like to his; the Age Mourning his Loss, and our now widow'd Stage In vain lamenting. I cou'd add, so far Behind him the most modern Writers are, That when they wou'd commend him, their best Praise Ruins the Buildings which they strive to raife To his best Memory. So much a Friend Presumes to write, secure 'twill not offend The living that are modest; with the rest That may repine he cares not to contest. This Debt to Fletcher paid; it is profess'd By us the Actors, we will do our best To fend fuch favouring Friends, as hither come To grace the Scene, pleas'd and contented home.

ACTI. SCENEI.

Enter Theodore, and Putskie.

Aptain, your Friend's prefer'd, the Princels has her, The. Who, I affure my felf, will use her nobly; A pretty fweet one 'tis indeed. Put. Well bred, Sir, I do deliver that upon my Credit, And of an honeft Stock. The. It feems fo, Captain, And no doubt will do well. Put. Thanks to your Care, Sir; But tell me, noble Colonel, why this Habit Of discontent is put on through the Army, And why your valiant Father, our great General, The Hand that taught to ftrike, the Love that led all; Why he, that was the Father of the War, He that begot, and bred the Soldier, Why he fits shaking of his Arms, like Autumn, His Colours folded, and his Drums cas'd up, The Tongue of War for ever ty'd within us? The. It must be so: Captain you are a Stranger, But of a small time here a Soldier, Yet that time shews ye a right good and great one, Elfe I cou'd tell ye Hours are ftrangely alter'd : The young Duke has too many Eyes upon him, Too many Fears 'tis thought too, and to nourish those, Maintains too many Instruments. Put. Turn their Hearts, Or turn their Heels up, Heav'n: 'Tis strange it should be ::

The old Duke lov'd him dearly. The. He deferv'd it ; And were he not my Father, I durft tell ye The memorable Hazards he has run through Defery'd .

Deferv'd of this Man too; highly deferv'd too; Had they been lefs, thoy had been fafe, Putskie, And fooner reach'd Regard. Put. There you ftruck fure, Sir.

6

7 be. Did I never tell thee of a Vow he made, Some Years before the old Duke dy'd? Put. I have heard ye Speak often of that Vow; but how it was, Or to what end, I never underflood yet.

The. I'll tell thee then: And then thou'lt find the Reafon. The last great Muster, 'twas before ye ferv'd here, Before the last Duke's death, (whose honour'd Bones Now reft in Peace) this young Prince had the ordering (To Crown his Father's Hopes) of all the Army: Who, to be fhort, put all his Pow'r in Practice; Fashien'd, and drew 'em up: But alas, so poorly, So raggedly and loofely, fo unfoldier'd, The good Duke blush'd, and call'd unto my Father, Who then was General: Go, Archas, speedily, And chide the Boy, before the Soldiers find him, Stand thou between his Ignorance and them, Fashion their Bodies new to thy Direction; Then draw thou up, and thew the Prince his Errors. My Sire obey'd, and did fo; with all Duty Inform'd the Prince, and read him all Directions: This bred Distaste, Distaste grew up to Anger, And Anger into wild Words broke out thus. Well, Archas, if I live but to command here, To be but Duke once, I shall then remember. I shall remember truly, trust me, I shall, And by my Father's Hand-the reft his Eyes spoke. To which my Father answer'd (fomewhat mov'd too) And with a Vow he feal'd it : Royal Sir, Since for my Faith and Fights, your Scorn and Anger Only purfue me; if I live to that Day, That Day fo long expected to Reward me. By his fo ever noble Hand you fwore by, And by the Hand of Justice, never Arms more Shall rib this Body in, nor Sword hang here, Sir. The Conflicts I will do you fervice then in, Shall be repentant Prayers. So they parted. The time is come; and now ye know the Wonder.

Put. I find a Fear too, which begins to tell me, The Duke will have but poor and flight Defences, If this hot Humour reign, and not his Honour: How fland you with him, Sir? The. A perdue Captain, Full of my Father's Danger.

Put. He has rais'd a young Man,

They fay a flight young Man, I know him not, For what Defert? The. Believe it, a brave Gentleman, Worthy the Duke's refpect, a clear fweet Gentleman, And of a noble Soul: Come let's retire us, And wait upon my Father, who within this hour You will find an alter'd Man. Put. I am forry for't, Sir. [Ex

SCENE II.

Enter Olympia, and two Gentlewomen.

Olym. Is't not a handfome Wench? 2 Wom. She is well enough, Madam: I have feen a better Face and a straighter Body; And yet the is a pretty Gentlewoman. Olym. What think'ft thou, Petesca? Pet. Alas, Madam, I have no skill, the has a black Eye; Which is of the leaft too, and the dulleft Water: And when her Mouth was made, for certain, Madam, Nature intended her a right good Stomach. Olym. She has a good Hand. 2 Wom. 'Tis good enough to hold fast, And firong enough to strangle the Neck of a Lute. Olym. What think ye of her Colour? Pet. If it be her own 'Tis good black Blood : Right Weather-proof I warrant it. 2 Wom. What a strange Pace she has got? Ohm. That's but her Breeding. Pet. And what a manly Body? methinks the looks As though the wou'd pitch the Bar, or go to Buffets. 2 Wom. Yet her Behaviour's utterly against it, For methinks the is too bathful. Olym. Is that hurtful? 2 Wom. Even equal to too bold : Either of 'em, Madam, May do her Injury when time shall ferve her. Olym. You difcourse learnedly; call in the Wench. [Exit Gent. What envious Fools are you? Is the Rule general, That Women can speak handsomely of none, But those they are bred withal? Pet. Scarce well of those, Madam, If they believe they may outfhine 'em any way: Our Natures are like Oyl, compound us with any thing, Yet fill we ftrive to fwim o' th' top: Suppose there were here now,

Now in this Court of Mosco, a Stranger Princes, Of Blood and Beauty equal to your Excellence, As many Eyes and Services fluck on her; What wou'd you think? Olym. I wou'd think fhe might deferve it. Pet. Your Grace shall give me leave not to believe ye; I know you are a Woman, and fo humour'd: I'll tell ye, Madam, I cou'd then get more Gowns on ye, More Caps and Feathers, more Scarfs, and more Silk-flockings With rocking you afleep with nightly Railings Upon that Woman, than if I had nine Lives I cou'd wear out. By this Hand ye would fcratch her Eyes out. Olym. Thouart deceiv'd, Fool; now let your own Eye mock ye. Enter Gentlewoman, and Alinda. Come hither Girl: Hang me and she be not a handsome one. Pet. I fear it will prove indeed fo. Olym. Did you ever ferve yet In any place of Worth? Alin. No, Royal Lady. Pet. Hold up your Head; fie. Olym. Let her alone, stand from her. Alin. It shall be now, Of all the Bleffings my poor Youth has pray'd for, The greatest and the happiest to ferve you; And might my Promise carry but that Credit To be believ'd, because I am yet a Stranger, Excellent Lady, when I fall from Duty, From all the Service that my Life can lend me, May everlafting Mifery then find me. Olym. What think ye now? I do believe, and thank ye; And fure I shall not be fo far forgetful, To fee that honeft Faith die unrewarded: What must I call your Name? Alin. Alinda, Madam. Olym. Can ye fing? Alin. A little, when my Grief will give me leave, Lady. Olym. What Grief canit thou have, Wench? Thou art not in Love? Alin. If I be Madam, 'tis only with your Goodness; For yet I never faw that Man I fighed for. Olym. Of what Years are you? Alin. My Mother oft has told me, That very Day and Hour this Land was bleft With your most happy Birth, I first faluted This World's fair Light. Nature was then so busie, And all the Graces to adorn your Goodness; I stole into the World poor and neglected. Olym. Something there was, when I first lookt upon thee, Made me both like and love thee: now I know it; And you shall find that knowledge shall not hurt you: I hope ye are a Maid? Alin. I hope fo too, Madam; I

8

I am fure for any Man. And were I otherwife, Of all the Services my Hopes could point at, I durst not touch at yours.

Flourish. Enter Duke, Burris, and Gentlemen. Pet. The great Duke, Madam. Duke. Good morrow, Sifter. Olym. A good Day to your Highness.

Duke. I am come to pray you use no more Persuasions For this old stubborn Man: Nay to command ye: His Sail is fwell'd too full: He is grown too infolent, Too felf-affected, proud: Those poor flight Services He has done my Father, and my felf, have blown him To fuch a Pitch, he flyes to ftoop our Favours.

Olym. Iam forry, Sir: I ever thought those Services Both Great and Noble. Bur. However, may it please ye But to confider 'em a true heart's Servants, Done out of Faith to ferve you, and not felt-fame. Do but confider, Royal Sir, the Dangers, When you have flept fecure, the Mid-night Tempests, That, as he marcht, fung through his aged Locks; When you have fed at full, the Wants and Famines; The Fires of Heav'n, when you have found all temperate, Death with his thousand Doors ____ Duke. I have confider'd; No more: And that I will have, shall be. Olym. For the best, I hope all still. Duke What handsome Wench is that there? Olym. My Servant, Sir. Duke. Prethee observe her Burris,

Is the not wondrous handfom? fpeak thy Freedom.

Bur. She appears no less to me, Sir. Duke. Of whence is she? Olym. Her Father I am told is a good Gentleman, But far off dwelling: Her defire to ferve me

Brought her to th' Court, and here her Friends have left her.

Duke. She may find better Friends: Ye are welcome, fair one, I have not seen a sweeter : By your Lady's leave : Nay stand up, Sweet; we'll have no Superstition: You have got a Servant; you may use him kindly, And he may honour ye: [Exe. Duke, and Burris.

Good Morrow, Sifter.

Ohm. Good Morrow to your Grace. How the Wench blufhes? How like an Angel now the looks? I Wom. At first Jump, Jump into the Duke's Arms? We must look to you, Indeed we must, the next Jump we are Journeymen.

Pet. I fee the Ruin of our Hopes already;

Wou'd fhe were at home again, milking her Father's Cows."

I Wom. I fear the'll milk all the great Courtiers first.

Olym. This has not made ye proud? Alin. No certain, Madam. Chm. It was the Duke that kift ye. Alin. 'Twas your Brother, And therefore nothing can be meant but Honour.

Gly 773'

Olym. But fay he love ye? Alin. That he may with fafety: A Prince's Love extends to all his Subjects.

Olym. But fay in more particular? Alin. Pray fear not: For Virtues fake deliver me from Doubts, Lady. 'Tis not the name of King, nor all his Promifes, His Glories, and his Greatnefs, fluck about me, Can make me prove a Traitor to your Service. You are my Miftrefs, and my noble Mafter, Your Virtues my Ambition, and your Favour The end of all my Love, and all my Fortune: And when I fail in that Faith Olym. I believe thee, Come wipe your Eyes; I do: Take you Example Pet. 1 wou'd her Eyes were out.

1 Wom. If the Wind ftand in this Door, We fhall have but cold Cuftom: Some trick or other, And speedily. Per. Let me alone to think on't.

Olym. Come, be you near me still. Alin. With all my Duty. [Exeunt.

SCENE III.

Enter Archas, Theodore, Putskie, Ancient, and Soldiers, carrying his Armour piece-meal, his Colours wound up, and his Drums in Cafes.

The. This is the heaviest March we e'er trod, Captain. Put. This was not wont to be: These honour'd Pieces The fiery God of War himself would finile at, Buckl'd upon that Body, were not wont thus, Like Relicks to be offer'd to long Rust, And heavy-ey'd Oblivion brood upon 'em.

Arch. There fet 'em down: And glorious War farewel': Thou Child of Honour and ambitious Thoughts, Begot in Blood, and nurs'd with Kingdoms Ruins; "Thou golden Danger, courted by thy Followers Through Fires and Famines, for one Title from thee-Prodigal Mankind spending all his Fortunes; A long Farewel I give thee. Noble Arms, You Ribs for mighty Minds, you Iron Houfes. Made to defie the I hunder-claps of Fortune, Ruft and confuming Time muft now dwell with ye: And thou good Sword that knew'ft the way to Conquest, Upon whole fatal Edge Despair and Death dwelt. "That when I shook thee thus, fore-shew'd Destruction, Sleep now from Blood, and grace my Monument. Farewell my Eagle; when thou flew'ft, whole Armies Have ftoopt below thee: At Passage I have feen thee, Ruffle the Tartars, as they fled thy Fury;

And

1 I

Arsh.

And bang 'em up together, as a Taffel, Upon the stretch, a Flock of fearful Pigeons, I yet remember when the Volga curl'd, The aged Volga, when he heav'd his Head up. And rais'd his Waters high, to fee the Ruins, The Ruins our Swords made, the bloody Ruins, Then flew this Bird of Honour bravely, Gentlemen. But these must be forgotten: So must these too. And all that tend to Arms, by me for ever. Take 'em you holy Men; my Vow take with 'em, Never to wear 'em more: Trophies I give 'em, And facred Rites of War to adorn the Temple : There let 'em hang, to tell the World their Master Is now Devotion's Soldier, fit for Pray'r. Why do ye hang your Heads? Why look you fad, Friends? I am not dying yet. The. Ye are indeed to us, Sir. Put. Dead to our Fortunes, General. Arch. You'll find a better, A greater and a ftronger Man to lead ye, And to a stronger Fortune. I am old, Friends, Time and the Wars together make me ftoop, Gentlemen, Stoop to my Grave: My Mind unfurnish'd too. Empty and weak as I am: My poor Body, Able for nothing now but Contemplation,

And that will be a task too to a Soldier: Yet had they but encourag'd me, or thought well Of what I have done, I think I should have ventur'd For one knock more, I should have made a shift yet To have broke one staff more handsomely, and have died Like a good Fellow, and an honest Soldier, In the head of ye all, with my Sword in my Hand, And so have made an end of all with Credit.

The. Well, there will come an hour, when all these Injuries, These fecure Slights — Arch. Ha! No more of that Sirrah, Not one word more of that, I charge ye. The. I must speak, Sir. And may that Tongue forget to found your Service, That's dumb to your Abuses. Arch. Understand, Fool, That voluntary I fit down. The. You are forc'd, Sr, Forc'd for your Safety: I too well remember The Time and Cause, and I may live to curse 'em: You made this Vow, and whole Unnoblenes, Indeed forgetfulness of good — Arch. No more, As thou art mine, no more. The. Whose Doubt and Envices — But the Devil will have his due.

Put. Good gentle Colonel.

The. And though Difgraces, and contempt of Honour Reign now, the Wheel must turn again.

B 2

Arch. Peace, Sirrah,

Your Tongue's too faucy: Do you ftare upon me? Down with that Heart, down fuddenly, down with it, Down with that Difobedience; tie that Tongue up.

The. Tongue?

Arch. Do not provoke me to forget my Vow, Sirrah, And draw that fatal Sword again in Anger.

Pet. For Heav'ns fake, Colonel. Arch. Do not let me doubt Whole Son thou art, because thou canst not fuffer: Do not play with mine Anger; if thou dost,

By all the Loyalty my Heart holds _____

The. I have done, Sir,

Pray pardon me. Arch. I pray be worthy of it. Beshrew your Heart, you have vext me. The. I am forry, Sir.

Arch. Go to, no more of this: Be true and honeft, I know ye are Man enough, mould it to just Ends, And let not my Difgraces. then I am miserable, When I have nothing left me but thy Angers.

Flourish. Enter Duke, Burris, Boroskie, Attend. and Gent. Put. And't please ye, Sir, the Duke.

Duke. Now, what's all this?

The meaning of this ceremonious Emblem?

Duke. I do, and shall remember still that Injury, That at the Muster, where it pleas'd your Greatness To laugh at my poor Soldiership, to form it; And more to make me seem ridiculous, Took from my Hands my Charge. Bur. O think not so, Sir.

Dake. And in my Father's fight. Arch. Heav'n be my Witnefs. I did no more, (and that with Modefty, With Love and Faith to you) than was my Warrant, And from your Father feal'd, nor durft that Rudenefs, And Impudence of Scorn fall from my 'haviour; I ever yet knew Duty. Duke. We thail teach ye; I well remember too, upon fome Words I told ye, Then at that time, fome angry Words ye anfwer'd; If ever I were Duke, you were no Soldier. You have kept your word, and fo it thall be to you, From henceforth I difmifs you; take your eafe, Sir.

Arch. I humbly thank your Grace; this wasted Body, Beaten and bruis'd with Arms, dry'd up with Troubles, Is good for nothing elfe but Quiet now, Sir, And holy Pray'rs; in which, when I forget 'To thank Heav'n for all your bounteous Favours, May that be Deaf, and my Petitions perifh.

Bor. What a fmooth humble Cloak he has cas'd his Pride in? And how he has pull'd his Claws in? There's no trufting-

Bur. Speak for the beft Bor. Believe I shall do for ever. Duke. To make ye understand, we feel not yet Such Dearth of Valour, and Experience, Such a declining Age of doing Spirits, That all should be confin'd within your Excellence, And you, or none be honour'd: Take, Boroskie, The place he has commanded, lead the Soldier; A little time will bring thee to his Honour, Which has been nothing but the World's Opinion, The Soldiers Fondness, and a little Fortune, Which I believe his Sword had the leaft fhare in.

The. O that I durft but answer now. Put. Good Colonel.

The. My Heart will break elfe. Royal Sir, I know not What you effeem Mens Lives, whole hourly Labours, And lois of Blood, Confumptions in your Service, Whofe Bodies are acquainted with more Mileries, And all to keep you fafe, than Dogs or Slaves are. His Sword the leaft fhare gain'd?

Duke: You will not fight with me? The. No Sir, I dare not, You are my Prince, but I dare speak to ye, And dare speak Truth, which none of their Ambitions That be Informers to you, dare once think of; Yet Truth will now but anger ye; I am forry for't, And fo I take my leave.

Duke. Ev'n when you pleafe, Sir.

Arch. Sirrah, see me no more. Duke. And so may you too: You have a House i'th' Country, keep you there, Sir, And when you have rul'd your felf, teach your Son Manners, For this time I forgive him. Arch. Heav'n forgive all; And to your Grace a happy and long Rule here. And you, Lord General, may your Fights be prosperous. In all your Courfe may Fame and Fortune court you. Fight for your Country, and your Prince's Safety; Boldly, and bravely face your Enemy, And when you ftrike, ftrike with that killing Virtue, As if a general Plague had feiz'd before ye; And then come home an old and noble Story.

Bur. A little Comfort, Sir. Duke. As little as may be: Farewel, you know your Limit. [Ex. Duke, Stc. 1

Bur. Alas, brave Gentleman.

Arch. I do, and will observe it suddenly. My Grave; ay, that's my Limit; 'tis no new thing, Nor can that make me ftart, or tremble at it, To buckle with that old grim Soldier now:

I have feen him in his fowreft fhapes, and dreadfull'ft; Ay, and I thank my Honefty, have ftood him: Th at Audit's caft; farewel my honeft Soldiers, Give me your Hands; farewel, farewel good Ancient, A ftout Man, and a true, thou art come in Sorrow. Bleffings upon your Swords, may they ne'er fail ye; You do but change a Man; your Fortune's conftant; That by your ancient Valours is ty'd faft ftill; Be valiant ftill, and good: And when ye fight next, When Flame and Fury make but one Face of Horror, When the great reft of all your Honour's up, When you wou'd think a Spell to fhake the Enemy, Remember me, my Prayers thall be with ye: So once again farewel. Put. Let's wait upon ye.

Arch. No, no, it muft not be; I have now left me A fingle Fortune to my felf, no more, Which needs no Train, nor Compliment; good Captain, You are an honeft and a fober Gentleman, And one I think has lov'd me. Put. I am fure on't.

Arch. Look to my Boy, he's grown too headftrong for me. And if they think him fit to carry Arms ftill, His Life is theirs; I have a House i'th' Country, And when your better hours will give you Liberty, See me: You thall be welcome. Fortune to ye.

Anc. I'll cry no more, that will do him no good, And 'twill but make me dry, and I have no Mony. I'll fight no more, and that will do them harm ; And if I can do that, I care not for Mony. I cou'd have curft reafonable well, and I have had the luck too To have 'em fit fometimes. Whofoever thou art, That like a Devil didit poffers the Duke With thefe malicious Thoughts; mark what I fay to thee, A Plague upon thee, that's but the Preamble.

Evit.

And

Sol. O take the Pox too. Anc. They'll cure one another; I must have none but kills, and those kill stinking. Or look ye, let the fingle Pox posses them, Or Pox upon Pox. Put. That's but ill i' th' Arms, Sir.

Anc. 'Tis worfe i' th Legs, I wou'd not wifh it elfe: And may those grow to Scabs as big as Mole-hills, And twice a Day, the Devil with a Curricomb Scratch 'em, and fcrub 'em: I warrant him he has 'em.

Sol. May he be ever Lowzy. Anc. That's a Pleasure, The Beggar's Lechery; fometimes the Soldier's: May he be ever lazy, flink where he flands, And Maggors breed in's Brains. 2 Sol. Ay, marry Sir, May he fall mad in Love with his Grand mother,

And kisling her, may her Teeth drop into his Mouth, And one fall crofs his Throat, then let him gargle.

Enter a Post.

Put. Now what's the matter?

Poft. Where's the Duke, pray Gentlemen?

Put. Keep on your way, you cannot mis.

Post. I thank yc.

Anc. If he be married, may he dream he's Cuckol'd, And when he wakes believe, and fwear he faw it, Sue a Divorce, and after find her honeft: Then in a pleafant Pigfty, with his own Garters, And a fine running knot, ride to the Devil.

Put. If these wou'd do-

Anc. I'll never truft my Mind more, If all these fail. I Sol. What shall we do now, Captain? For by this honeft Hand I'll be torn in pieces, Unless my old General go, or some that love him, And love us equal too, before I fight more. I can make a Shoo yet, and draw it on too, If I like the Leg well. Anc. Fight? 'Tis likely! No, there will be the Sport Boys, when there's need on's They think the other Crown will do, will carry us. And the brave golden Coat of Captain Cankro Boroskie. What a noife his very Name carries? 'Tis Gun enough to fright a Nation, He needs no Soldiers; if he do, for my part, I promife ye he's like to feek 'era; fo I think you think too, And all the Army; No, honeft, brave old Archas, We cannot fo foon leave thy Memory, So foon forget thy Goodness: He that does, The scandal and the scum of Arms be counted.

Put. You much rejoyce me now you have hit my meaning. I durft not prefs ye till I found your Spirits: Continue thus. Anc. I'll go and tell the Duke on't. Enter fecond Post.

Put. No, no, he'll find it foon enough, and fear it, When once occasion comes. Another Packet! From whence, Friend, come you?

2 Post. From the Borders, Sir.

Put. What news, Sir, I befeech you?
2 Post. Fire and Sword; Gentlemen;
The Tartar's up, and with a mighty force
Comes forward, like a Tempest, all before him
Burning and killing. Anc. Brave Boys, brave News, Boys.
2 Post. Either we must have present help _____ Anc. Still braver.

Post. Where lies the Duke ? Sol. He's there.

2 Post. 'Save ye Gentlemen.

Anc. We are lafe enough, I warrant thee. Now the time's come.

Put. Ay, now 'tis come indeed, and now stand firm, Boys, And let 'em burn on merrily.

Anc. This City would make a fine marvellous Bonefire: 'Tis old dry Timber, and fuch Wood has no Fellow.

2 Sol. Here will be trim piping anon and whining, Like fo many Pigs in a Storm,

When they hear the news once.

Enter Boroskie, and a Servant. Put. Here's one has heard it already; Room for the General.

Bor. Say I am fall'n exceeding fick o' th' fudden, And am not like to live. Put. If ye go on, Sir, For they will kill ye certainly; they look for ye.

Anc. I fee your Lordship's bound, take a Suppository, 'Tis I Sir; a poor cast Flag of yours. The foolish Tartars They burn and kill, and't like your Honour, kill us, Kill with Guns, with Guns my Lord, with Guns, Sir. What fays your Lordship to a Chick in forrel Sops?

Put. Go, go thy ways old True-penny; Thou haft but one fault: Thou art even too valiant. Come, t'th' Army Gentlemen, and let's make them acquainted. Sol. Away, we are for ye.

SCENE IV.

Enter Alinda, and two Gentlewomen.

Alin. Why, whither run ye Fools; will ye leave my Lady? Pet. The Tartar comes, the Tartar comes. Alin. Why, let him, I thought you had fear'd no Men: Upon my Confeience You have try'd their Strengths already; flay for fhame.

Pet. Shift for thy felf, Alinda.

Alin Beauty bleis ye :

Into what Groom's Feather-Bed will you creep now, And there miltake the Enemy? fweet Youths ye are, And of a conftant Courage; are you affraid of foining? Enter Olympia.

Olym. O my good Wench, what fhall become of us? The Pofts come hourly in, and bring new Danger; The Enemy is paft the Volga, and bears hither Verte all the Blood and Cruelty he carries. My Brother now will find his Fault. Alia. I doubt me, to fast too late, a dam. But pray fear not, All will be well, I hope. Sweet Madam, fnake not.

Olym. How cam's thou by this Spirit? our Sex trembles. Alin. I am not unacquainted with these Dangers; And you shall know my Truth; for e'cr you perish, A hundred Swords shall pass through me: 'Tis but dying, . And Madam we must do it : The manner's all : You have a Princely Birth, take Princely Thoughts to you, And take my Counfel too; go prefently, With all the hafte ye have, (I will attend ye) With all the possible speed, to old Lord Archas, He honours ye; with all your Art perswade him, ('Twill be a difmal Time else) woo him hither, But hither Madam, make him fee the Danger; For your new General looks like an Afs; There's nothing in his Face but Lofs. Olym. I'll do it. And thank thee, fweet Alinda: O my Jewel, How much I'm bound to love thee! by this Hand, Wench, If thou wert a Man ____ Alin. I wou'd I were to fight for you. But haste, dear Madam. Olym. 1 need no Spurs, Alinda.

SCENE V.

Enter Duke, 2. Posts, Attendants, and Gentlemen.

Duke. The Lord General fick now? is this a time For Men to creep into their Beds? What's become, Post, Of my Lieutenant? Post. Beaten, and't please your Grace, And all his Forces sparkled.

Enter a Gentleman.

Duke. That's but cold News. How now, what good News? are the Soldiers ready?

Gen. Yes, Sir, but fight they will not, nor ftir from that Place They ftand in now, unlefs they have Lord Archas Tolead 'em out; they rail upon this General, And fing Songs of him, fcurvy Songs, to worfe Tunes: And much they fpare not you, Sir: Here they fwear They'll ftand and fee the City burnt, and dance about it, Unlefs Lord Archas come, before they fight for't: It muft be fo, Sir. Duke. I cou'd wifh it fo too; And to that end I have fent Lord Burris to him; But all I fear will fail; we muft die, Gentlemen, And one ftroke we'll have for't.

Enter Burris.

What bring'st thou, Burris?

Bur. That I am loth to tell; he will not come, Sir; I found him at his Prayers, there he tells me, The Enemy shall take him, fit for Heav'n: I urg'd to him all our Dangers, his own Worths,

The Country's Ruin; nay I kneel'd and pray'd him; He fhook his Head, let fall a Tear, and pointed Thus with his Finger to the Ground; a Grave I think he meant; and this was all he anfwer'd. You Grace was much to blame: Where's the new General? Duke. He's fick, poor Man.

Bur. He's a poor Man indeed, Sir: Your Grace must needs go to the Soldier.

Enter Archas, Olympia, and Alinda. Olym. I have brought him, Sir, At length I have woo'd him thus far.

Duke. Happy Sifter,

O bleffed Woman!

Olym. Ufe him nobly, Brother; You never had more need: And Gentlemen, All the beft Powers ye have to Tongues: turn prefently. To winning and perfwading Tongues: All my Art, Only to bring him hither, I have utter'd; Let it be yours to Arm him; And, good my Lord, Though I exceed the Limit you allow'd me, Which was the happiness to bring ye hither, And not to urge ye farther; yet, se your Country, Out of your own sweet Spirit now behold it: Turn round, and look upon the Miseries, On every fide the Fears; O fee the Dangers; We find 'em soness, therefore hear me first, Sir.

Duke. Next hear your Prince: You have faid youlov'd him, Archas, And thought your Life too little for his Service; Think not your Vow too great now, now the Time is, And now you are brought to th' Teft, touch right now Soldier, Now fhew the manly purenefs of thy Mettle; Now if thou beeft that valued Man, that Virtue, That great Obedience teaching all, now fland it. What have I faid forget, my Youth was hafty, And what you faid your felf forgive, you were angry. If Men could live without their Faults, they were Gods, Archas. He weeps, and holds his Hands up: To him, Burris. Bur. You have flew'd the Prince his Faults; And like a good Surgeon you have laid

That to 'em makes 'em smart; he feels it, Let 'em not fester now, Sir; your own Honour, Shout within.

The Bounty of that Mind, and your Allegiance, 'Gainst which, I take it, Heav'n gives no Command, Sir, Nor feals no Vow, can better teach ye now What ye have to do, than I, or this necessity; Only this little's left; wou'd ye do nobly, And in the Eye of Honour truly triumph? Conquer that Mind first, and then Men are nothing.

Alin. Last, a poor Virgin kneels; for Loves sake, General, If I ever you have lov'd ; for her fake, Sir, For your own Honefty, which is a Virgin, Look up, and pity us, be bold and fortunate, You are a Knight, a good and noble Soldier, And when your Spurs were giv'n ye, your Sword buckl'd, Then were you sworn for Virtue's Cause, for Beauty's, For Chaftity to strike; strike now, they fuffer; Now draw your Sword, or else you are Recreant, Only a Knight i' th' Heels, i' th' Heart a Coward;

Your first Vow Honour made, your last but Anger. Arch. How like my virtuous Wife this thing looks, speaks too? So wou'd she chide my Dulness. Fair one, I thank ye. My gracious Sir, your Pardon, next your Hand: Madam, your Favour, and your Prayers; Gentlemen, Your Wifhes, and your Loves; and pretty fweet one, A favour for your Soldier. Olym. Give him this, Wench.

Alin. Thus do I tye on Victory. Arch. My Armour, My Horfe, my Sword, my touch Staff, and my Fortune, And Olin now I come to fhake thy Glory.

Duke. Go, Brave and Prosperous, our Loves go with thee. Olym. Full of thy Virtue, and our Pray'rs attend thee. Bur. &c. Lode with Victory, and we to honour thee. Alin. Come home the Son of Honour,-And I'll ferve ye.

Exeunt.

ACTII. SCENEI.

Enter Duke, Burris, and two Gentlemen.

Duke. NO News of Archas yet? Bur. But now, and't please ye, A Post came in, Letters he brought none with him, But this deliver'd. He faw the Armies join, The Game of Blood begun, and by our General, Who never was acquainted but with Conquest, So bravely fought, he faw the Tartars shaken, And there he faid he left 'em. Duke. Where's Boroskie? I Gent.

C 2

I Gent. He's up again, and't pleafe ye. Bur. Sir, methinks This News should make ye lightsome, bring Joy to ye, It strikes our Hearts with general Comfort. [Exit Duke. Gone? What shou'd this mean, so suddenly? He's well? 2 Gent. We see no other.

I Gent. Wou'd the reft were' well too, That put these Starts into him. Bur. I'll go after him.

2 Gent. 'Twill not be fit, Sir: H'as fome Secret in him He would not be diffurb'd in. Know you any thing Has croft him fince the General went? Bur. Not any: If there had been, I am fure I fhould have found it: Only I have heard him oft complain for Mony: Mony he fays he wants. I Gent. It may be that then.

Bur. To him that has fo many ways to raife it, And those fo honest, it cannot be.

Enter Duke, and Boroskie.

I Gent. He comes back,

And Lord Boroskie with him. Bur. There the Game goes, I fear fome new thing hatching. Duke. Come hither, Burris. Go fee my Sifter, and commend me to her, And to my little Miftrefs give this Token; Tell her I'll fee her fhortly.

Bur. Yes, I shall, Sir.

FEME. Bur. and Gent.

Duke. Wait you without. I wou'd yet try him further.

Bor. 'Twill not be much amifs. Has your Grace heard yet Of what he has done i'th' Field? Duke. A Post but now Came in, who faw 'em join, and has deliver'd, The Enemy gave Ground before he parted: Bor. 'Tis well.

Duke. Come, fpeak thy Mind Man. 'Tis not for fighting, A Noife of War, I keep thee in my Bofom; Thy Ends are nearer to me; from my Childhood Thou brought'ft me up: And like another Nature, Made good all my Neceffities. Speak boldly.

Bor. Sir, what I utter, will be thought but Envy, Though I intend, high Heav'n knows, but your Honour, When vain and empty People shall proclaim me Good Sir, excuse me. Duke. Do you fear me for your Enemy? Speak on your Duty. Bor. Then I must, and dare, Sir. When he comes home, take heed the Court receive him not, Take heed he meet not with their Loves and Praises, That Glass will shew him ten times greater, Sir, (And make him strive to make good that Proportion) Than e'er his Fortune bred him; he is honourable, At least I strive to understand him so, And of a Nature, if not this way Poyson'd, Perfect enough, casie, and sweet, but those are foon feduc'd, Sir; He's

He's a great Man, and what that Pill may work, Prepar'd by general Voices of the People, Is the end of all my Counfel, only this, Sir, Let him retire a while, there's more hangs by it Than you know yet: There if he ftand a while well, But till the Soldier cool, whom, for their Service You mult pay now most liberally, most freely, And fhow'r your felf into 'em; 'tis the Bounty They follow with their Loves, and not the Bravery. Enter two Gentlemen.

Duke. But where's the Mony? how now? 2 Gent' Sir, the Colonel,

Son to the Lord Archas, with most happy News Of the Tartars Overthrow, without here Attends your Grace's Pleasure. Bor. Be not seen, Sir, He's a bold Fellow, let me stand his Thunders, To th' Court he must not come. No Blessing here, Sir,

No Face of Favour, if you love your Honour Enter Theodore.

Duke. Do what you think is meeteft; I'll retire, Sir. [Exit. Bor. Conduct him in, Sir— Welcome, noble Colonel. The. That's much from your Lordship: Pray where's the Duke? Bor. We hear you have beat the Tartar. The. Is he busie, Sir? Bor. Have ye taken Olin yet? The. I wou'd fain speak with him. Bor. How many Men have ye lost? The. Does he lye this way? Bor. I am sure you fought it bravely. The. I must see him. Ber. You cannot yet, ye must not, what's your Commission? The. No Gentleman o' th' Chamber here? Bor. Why, pray ye, Am not I fit to entertain your busines? (Sir,

The. I think you are not, Sir; I am fure ye fhall not. I bring no Tales, nor Flatterics: In my Tongue, Sir,

I carry no fork'd Stings. Bor. You keep your Bluntnefs. The. You are deceiv'd: It keeps me : I had felt elfe Some of your Plagues e'er this: But, good Sir, trifle not, I have business to the Duke. Bor. He's not well, Sir, And cannot now be spoken withal. The. Not well, Sir? How wou'd he ha' been, if we had loft? Not well, Sir? I bring him News to make him well: His Enemy That wou'd have his City burnt here, and your House too, Your brave gilt-house, my Lord, your Honours hangings, Where all your Anceftors, and all their Battels, Their Silk and golden Battels are decipher'd: That would not only have abus'd your Buildings, Your goodly Buildings. Sir, and have drunk your Butteries, Purloin'd your Lordfnip's Plate, the Duke bestow'd on you, For turning h ndfomely o' th' Toe, and trim'd your Virgins, Trim'd 'em of a new cut, and't like your Lordihip,

Tis

"Tis ten to one, your Wife too, and the Curfe is You had had no Remedy against these Rascals, No Law, and't like your Honour; wou'd have kill'd you too, And roatted ye, and caten ye, e'er this Time: Notable Knaves my Lord, unruly Rascals: These Youths have we ty'd up, put Muzzels on 'em, And par'd their Nails, that honest civil Gentlemen, And fuch most noble Persons at your self is, May live in Peace, and rule the Land with a twine of Thread. These News I bring. Bor. And were they thus deliver'd ye?

The. My Lord, I am no Pen-man, nor no Orator, My Tongue was never Oyl'd with Here and't like yc, There I befeech ye; weigh, I am a Soldier, And Truth I covet only, no fine Terms, Sir; I come not to fland treating here; my bufinefs Is with the Duke, and of fuch a general Bleffing_____

Bor. You have overthrown the Enemy, we know it, And we rejoyce in't; ye have done like honeft Subjects, You have done handfomely and well. The. But well, Sir? But handfomely and well? what, are we Juglers? Fill do all that in cutting up a Capon.

But handfomely and well? Does your Lordship take us For the Duke's Tumblers? we have done bravely, Sir, Ventur'd our Lives like Men. Bor. Then bravely be it.

The. And for as brave Rewards we look, and Graces, We have Sweat and bled for't, Sir. Bor. And ye may have it, If you will flay the giving. Men that thank themfelves firft For any good they do, take off the Luftre, And blot the Benefit. The. Are thefe the Welcomes, The Bells that ring out our Rewards? pray heartily, Early and late, there may be no more Enemics: Do my good Lord, pray ferioufly, and figh too, For if there be—_____ Bor. They muft be met, and fought with.

The. By whom? by you? they must be met and flatter'd. Why, what a Devil ail'd ye to do these things: With what assume that a ge mock Men thus? You have but single Lives, and those I take it A Sword may find too: Why do ye dam the Duke up? And choak that course of Love, that like a River Should fill our empty Veins again with Comforts? But if you use these knick knacks, This fast and loose, with faithful Men and honess, You'll be the first will find it.

Enter Archas, Soldiers, Putskey, Ancient, and others. Bor. You are too Untemperate.

Pray

The. Better be so, and Thief too, than unthankful:

Pray use this old Man so, and then we are paid all. The Duke thanks ye for your Service, and the Court thanks yes And wonderful defirous they are to fee ye; Pray Heav'n we have room enough to march for May-games, Pageants, and Bonefires for your welcome home, Sir. Here your most noble Friend the Lord Boroskie, A Gentleman too tender of your Credit, And ever in the Duke's Ear, for your good, Sir, Crazy and Sickly, yet to be your Servant, Has leapt into the open Air to meet ye. (home, Sir; Bor. The beft is, your Words wound not; You are welcome Heartily welcome home, and for your Service, The noble Overthrow you gave the Enemy, The Duke falutes ye too with all his Thanks, Sir. Anc." Sure they will now regard us. Put. There's a Reafon: But by the changing of the Colonel's Countenance, The rolling of his Eyes like angry Billows, I fear the Wind's not down yet, Ancient. Arch. Is the Duke well, Sir? Bor. Not much unhealthy, Only a little grudging of an Ague, Which cannot last. He has heard, which makes him fearful, And loth as yet to give your Worth due welcome, The Sickness hath been somewhat hot i'th' Army, Which happily may prove more Doubt than Danger, And more his Fear than Fate; yet howfoever, An honeft Care Arch. Ye fay right, and it shall be 3: For though upon my Life'tis but a Rumor, A meer Opinion, without Faith or Fear in't; For, Sir, I thank Heav'n, we never flood more healthy, Never more high and lufty; yet to fatisfie, We cannot be too curious, or too careful Of what concerns his State, we'll draw away, Sir, And lodge at further Diftance, and less Danger. Bor. It will be well. Anc. It will be very fcurvy : I finell it out, it flinks abominably, Stir it no more. Bor. The Duke, Sir. wou'd have you too, For a short Day or two, retire to your own House, Whither himfelf will come to visit ye, And give ye thanks. Arch. I shall attend his Pleasure. Anc. A Trick, a lousie Trick : So ho, a Trick Boys. Arch, How now, what's that?" Anc. I thought I had found a Hare, Sir, But 'tis a Fox, an old Fox, shall we hunt him? (lawcy,

Arch. No more fuch Words. Bor. The Soldier's grown tor You must tie him straighter up. Arch. I do my best, Sir; But Men of free-born Minds sometimes will flie out.

Ling .

Anc. May not we see the Duke? Bor. Not at this time, Gentlemen, Your General knows the Caufe. Anc. We have no Plague, Sir, Unless it be in our Pay, nor no Pox, neither; Or if we had, I hope that good old Courtier Will not deny us place there. Put. Certain my Lord, Confidering what we are, and what we have done; If not, what need ye may have, 'twou'd be better, A great deal nobler, and tafte honefter To us with more Swetness; Men that dig And lash away their Lives at the Carts tail, Double our Comforts; Meat, and their Masters Thanks too, When they work well, they have; Men of our Quality, When they do well, and venture for't with Valour, Fight hard, lye hard, feed hard, when they come home, Sir, And know these are deferving things, things worthy, Can you blame 'em if their Minds a little Be ftir'd with Glory? 'tis a Pride becomes 'em, A little feafon'd with Ambition, To be respected, reckon'd well, and honour'd For what they have done: When to come home thus poorly, And meet with fuch unjoynted Joy, folooked on, As if we had done no more but dreft a Horfe well; So entertain'd, as if, I thank ye Gentlemen, Take that to drink, had pow'r to pleafe a Soldier? Where be the Shouts, the Bells rung out, the People? The Prince himfelf? Arch. Peace: I perceive your Eye, Sir, Is fixt upon this Captain for his Freedom, And happily you find his Tongue too forward; As I am Mafter of the Place I carry, 'Tis fie I think fo too; but were I this Man, No stronger tie upon me, than the Truth And Tongue to tell it, I shou'd speak as he do's, And think with Modesty enough, such Saints That daily thrust their Loves and Lives through Hazards, And fearless for their Country's Peace, march hourly Through the Doors of Death, and know the darkeft, Shou'd be better canoniz'd for their Service : What Labour wou'd these Men neglect, what Danger Where Honour is, though feated in a Billow, Rifing as high as Heav'n, wou'd not these Soldiers, Like to fo many Sea-Gods charge up to it? Do you feee thefe Swords? Time's Sythe was ne'er fo fharp, Sir; Nor ever at one Harvest mow'd such handfuls: Thoughts ne'er fo sudden, nor Belief fo fure When they are drawn; and were it not fometimes

I fwim upon their Angers to allay 'em,

And like a Calm depress their full Intentions; They are so deadly fure, nature wou'd fuffer-And whofe are all these Glories? why, their Prince's, Their Country's, and their Friends? Alas, of all theie, And all the happy ends they bring, the Bleffings, They only share the Labours: A little Joy then, And outfide of a welcome, at an upfhot Would not have done amils, Sir; But howfoever. Between me and my Duty, no crack, Sir, Shall dare appear: I hope by my Example No Discontent in them : Without doubt, Gentlemen, The Duke will both look fuddenly and truly On our Deferts: Methinks 'twere good they were paid, Sir. Bor. They shall be immediately; I stay for Mony; And any Favour elfe-----Arch. We are all bound to ye; And fo I take my leave, Sir; when the Duke pleafes To make me worthy of his Eyes- Bor. Which will be fuddenly, I know his good Thoughts to ye. Arch. With all Duty, And all Humility, I shall attend, Sir. Bor. Once more you are welcome home: These shall be fatisfied. The. Be fure we be, and handfomely. Arch. Wait you on me, Sir. The. And honeftly: No juggling. Arch. Will ye come, Sir? Exit. Bor. Pray do not doubt. The. We are no Boys. Exit. Enter a Gentleman, and two or three with Mony. Bor. Well, Sir. Gent. Here's Mony from the Duke, and't pleafe your Lordship. Bor. 'Tis well. Gent. How fowre the Soldiers look? Bor. Is't told? Gent. Yes, and for every Company a double Pay, And the Duke's Love to all. Anc. That's worth a Duckat. Bor. You that be Officers, see it discharg'd then. Why do not you take it up? Anc. 'Tis too heavy: 'Body o'me, I have ftrain'd mine Arm. Bor. Do you fcorn it? (men, Anc. Has your Lordship any Dice about ye? fit round Gentle-And come on feven for my thare. Put. Do you think, Sir, This is the end we fight? can this Dirt draw us To fuch a flupid Tamenefs, that our Service Neglected and look'd lamely on, and skew'd at, whether with With a few honourable Words, and this, is righted? Have we not Eyes and Ears, to hear and fee, Sir, And Minds to understand the flights we carry? I come home old, and full of Hurts; Men look ou me, As if I had got 'em from a Whore, and fhun me ; I

I tell my Griefs, and fear my Wants, I am answer'd, Alas 'tis pity ! pray dine with me on Sunday. These are the Sores we fick of, the Minds Maladies, And can this cure 'em? You shou'd have us'd us nobly. And for our doing well, as well proclaim'd us To the World's Eye, have fhew'd and fainted us, Then ye had paid us bravely: Then we had thin'd, Sir, Not in this gilded ftuff, but in our Glory: You may take back your Mony. Gent. This I fear'd still. Bor. Confider better, Gentlemen. Anc. Thank your Lordship And now I'll put on my confidering Cap: My Lord, that I am no Courtier, you may guels it By having no fute to you for this Mony: For though I want, I want not this, nor shall not, While you want that Civility to rank it With those Rights we expected; Mony grows, Sir, And Men must gather it, all is not put in one Purse. And that I am no Carter, I cou'd never whiftle yet: But that I am a Soldier, and a Gentleman, And a fine Gentleman, and't like your Honour, And a most pleasant Companion : All you that are witty, Come lift to my Ditty; Come fet in Boys, With your Lordships Patience. [Song. How do you like my Song, my Lord? Bor. Ev'n as I like your felf, but 'twould be a great deal better,

You would prove a great deal wifer, and take this Mony, In your own Phrafe I fpeak now, Sir, and 'tis very well You have learn'd to fing; for fince you prove fo liberal, To refule fuch means as this, maintain your Voice ftill, 'Twill prove your beft Friend. Anc. 'Tis a finging Age, Sir, A merry Moon here now: I'll follow it: Fidling, and fooling now, gains more than fighting.

Bor. What is't you blench at? What would you ask? Speak freely.

Sol. And fo we dare. A Triumph for the General.

Put. And then an Honour special to his Virtue.

Anc. That we may be prefer'd that have ferv'd for it, And cram'd up into favour like the worfhipful, At leaft upon the City's Charge made drunk For one whole Ycar; we have done 'em ten Years Service; That we may enjoy our Lechery without grudging, And mine, or thine be nothing, all things equal, And catch as catch may, be proclaim'd: That when we berrow, And have no will to pay again, no Law Lay hold upon us, nor no Court controul us.

Bor. Some of these may come to pass; the Duke may do 'em,

And

The Loyal Subject. And no doubt will: The General will find too, And fo will you, if you but ftay with Patience: I have no Pow'r. Put. Nor Will. Come, Fellow-Soldiers. Bor. Pray be not distructful. Put. There are ways yet, And honeft ways; we are not brought up Statues. Anc. If your Lordship Have any filk Stockings, that have holes i' th' Heels, Or ever an Honourable Caffock that wants Buttons, I could have cur'd fuch Maladies: Your Lordship's custom And my good Lady's, if the Bones want fetting In her old Bodice_____ Bor. This is Disobedience. Ane. Eight Pence a Day, and hard Eggs. Put. Troop off, Gentlemen, Some Coin we have, whilft this lasts, or our Credits, We'll never sell our General's worth for fix Pence. Ye are beholding to us. Anc. Fare ye well, Sir, And buy a Pipe with that: Do ye fee this Scarf, Sir? By this Hand I'll cry Brooms in't, birchen Brooms, Sir, Before I cat one bit from your Benevolence. Now to our old Occupations again. By your leave, Lord. Exeunt. Bor. You will bite when ye are fharper; take up the Mony. This Love I must remove, this Fondness to him, This tenderness of Heart; I have lost my way else. There is no fending, Man, they will not take it, They are yet too full of Pillage, They'll dance for't ere't be long: Come bring it after. Enter Duke. Duke. How now, refus'd their Mony? Bor. Very bravely, And ftand upon fuch terms 'tis terrible. Duke. Where's Archas? Bor. He's retir'd, Sir, to his Houfe, According to your Pleasure, full of Duty To outward shew: But what within _____ Duke. Refuse it? Bor. Most confidently : 'Tis not your Revenues Can feed them, Sir, and yet they have found a General That knows no Ebb of Bounty: There they eat, Sir, And loath your Invitations. Duke. 'Tis not poffible, He's poor as they. Bor. You'll find it otherwife. Pray make your Journey thither prefently, And as ye go I'll open ye a wonder. Good Sir, this Morning. Duke. Follow me, I'll do it. Exe.

SCENE II.

Enter Olympia, Alinda, Burris, and Gentlewomen: Olym. But do you think my Brother loves her?

Est

Bur. Certain, Madam He speaks much of her, and sometimes with wonder, Oft withes the were nobler born. Olym. Do you think him honeft? Bur. Your Grace is nearer to his Heart, than I am; Upon my Life I hold him to. Olym. 'Tis a poor Wench, I wou'd not have her wrong'd : Methinks my Brother-But I must not give Rules to his Affections; Yet if he weigh her worth-----Bur. You need not fear, Madam. Olym. I hope I shall not. Lord Burris, I love her well; I know not, there is fomething Makes me beftow more than a care upon her: I mean to Women of her way; fuch Tokens Rather appear as Bairs, than Royal Bounties: I wou'd not have it fo. Bur. You will not find it, Upon my Troth I think his most Ambition Is but to let the World know ha's a handfome Miftres. Will your Grace command me any Service to him? Olym. Remember all my Duty. Bur. Bleffings crown ye: What's your will, Lady? Alin. Any thing that's honeft; And if you think it fit, fo poor a Service, Clad in a ragged Virtue, may reach him, I do beseech your Lordship speak it humbly. Bur. Fair one I will: In the best Phrase I have too, And fo I kils your Hand. Exit. Alin. Your Lordship's Servant. (Ring? Olym. Come hither Wench, what art thou doing with that Alin. I am looking on the Posie, Madam. Olym. What is't? Alin. The Jewel's fet within. Olym. But where's the Joy, Wench, When that invisible Jewel's lost? Why dost thou fmile fo? What unhappy Meaning haft thou? Alin. Nothing, Madam, But only thinking what ftrange fpells these Rings have, And how they work with fome. Pet. I fear with you too. Alin. This cou'd not coft above a Crown. Pet. 'I will coft you The fhaving of your Crown, if not the washing. Olym. But he that fent it, makes the Virtue greater. Alin. Ay, and the Vice too, Madam. Goodness bless me: How fit 'tis for my Finger! 2 Wom. No doubt you'll find too A Finger fit for you. Alin. Sirrah, Petesca,

What wilt thou give me for the good that follows this? But thou haft Rings enough, thou art provided:

Heigh ho, what must I do now?

Pet. You'll be taught that, The cafieft part that e'er you learnt, I warrant you.

Alin.

Alin: Ay me, ay me. Pet. You will divide too, fhortly, Your Voice comes finely forward. Olym. Come hither, Wan-Thou art not furely as thou fay'ft. Alin. I wou'd not: (ton, But fure there is a Witchcraft in this Ring, Lady, Lord how my Heart leaps! Pet. 'Twill go pit a pat fhortly.

Alin. And now methinks a thousand of the Duke's Shapes. 2 Wom. Will no lefs ferve ye? Alin. In ten thousand Smiles. Olym. Heav'n blefs the Wench.

Alin. With Eyes that will not be deny'd to enter; And fuch foft fweet Embraces; take it from me, I am undone elfe, Madam. I'm loft elfe.

Olym. What ails the Girl? Alin. How fuddenly I'm alter'd! And grown my felf again! do not you feel it?

Olym. Wear that, and I'llywear this:

VII try the Strength on't.

Alin. How cold my Blood grows now! Here's facred Virtue. When I leave to honour this, Every hour to pay a Kifs,

When each Morning I arife,

Or I forget a Sacrifice:

When this Figure in my Faith,

And the pureness that it hath,

I purfue not with my Will,

Nearer to arrive at still:

When I lofe, or change this Jewel,

Fly me Faith, and Heav'n be cruel.

Olym. You have half confirm'd me, Keep but that way fure, And what this Charm can do, let me endure.

SCENE III.

Enter Archas, Theodore, Honora, and Viola,

Arch. Carry your felf difcreetly, it concerns me, The Duke's come in, none of your froward Paflions, Nor no diftafts to any. Prithce Theodore, By my Life, Boy, 'twill ruin me. The. I have done, Sir, So there be no foul Play he brings along with him. Arch What's, that to you? Let him bring what pleafe him, And whom, and how. The. So they mean well ______ Arch Is't fit you be a Judge, Sirrah? The. 'Tis fit I feel, Sir. Arch. Get a Banquet ready,

And trim your felf up handfomely. 7be. To what end? Do you mean to make 'em Whores? Hang up a Sign then.

And [Exeuni.

And fet 'em out to Livery. Arch. Whofe Son art thou? The. Yours, Sir, I hope: But not of your Difgraces. Arch. Full twenty thousand Men I have commanded, And all their Minds, with this calm'd all their Angers; And shall a Boy, of mine own Breed too, of mine own Blood, One crooked flick- The. Pray take your way, and thrive in't, I'll quit your Houle; if Taint or black Dishonour Light on ye, 'tis your own, I have no share in't. Yet if it do fall out so, as I fear it, And partly find it too_____ Arch. Haft thou no Reverence? No Duty in thee? The. This shall shew I obey ye: I dare not flay: I would have fhew'd ye my Love too, And that you ask as Duty, with my Life, Sir, Had you but thought me worthy of your Hazards, Which Heav'n preferve ye from, and keep the Duke too: And there's an end of my wifnes, God be with ye. [Exit. Arch. Stubborn, yet full of, that we all love, Honefty. Enter Burris. Lord Burris, where's the Duke? Bur. In the great Chamber, Sir, And there flays till he see you. Ye have a fine House here. Arch. A poor contented Lodge, unfit for his Presence, Yet all the joy it hath.

Bur. I hope a great one, and for your good, brave Sir. Arch. 1 thank ye, Lord:

And now my Service to the Duke.

Bur. I'll wait on ye.

Enter Duke, Boroskie, Gentlemen and Attendants. Duke. May this be credited ? Bor. Difgrace me elfe, And never more with Favour look upon me.

Duke. It feems impoffible. Bor. It cannot chufe, Sir, 'Till your own Eyes behold it; but that it is fo, And that by this means the too haughty Soldier Has been fo cram'd and fed, he cares not for ye; Believe, or let me perifh: Let your Eyes As you observe the House, but where I point it, Make stay, and take a view, and then you have found it.

Make ftay, and take a view, and then you have found it. Enter Archas, Burris, Honora, Viola, and Servant. Duke. I'll follow your Direction. Welcome Archas,
You are welcome home, brave Lord, we are come to vifit ye, And thank ye for your Service. Arch. 'Twas fo poor, Sir, In true respect of what I owe your Highness, It merits nothing.

Duke. Are these fair ones yours, Lord?

Arch. Their Mother made me think fo, Sir.

Duke. Stand up Ladies.

Befarew my Heart they are fair ones; methinks fitter

Exeunt.

The Lustre of the Court, than thus live darken'd. I wou'd see your House, Lord Archas, it appears to me A handsome Pile. Arch. 'Tis neat, but no great Structure; I'll be your Grace's Guide, give me the Keys there.

Duke. Lead on, we'll follow ye: Begin with the Gallery, I think that's one. 'Arch. ' I's fo, and't please ye, Sir, The reft above are Lodgings all. Duke. Go on, Sir. [Exeans,

SCENE IV.

Enter Theodore, Putskie, and Ancient.

Put/. The Duke gone thither, do you fay? The. Yes marry do I,

And all the Ducklings too; but what they'll do there-

Putf. I hope they'll crown his Service. The. With a Cuftard ; This is no Weather for Rewards : They crown his Service? Rather they go to shave his Crown: I was rated As if I had been a Dog had worried Sheep, out of Doorz, For making but a Doubt. Putf. They must now grace him:

The. Mark but the end.

Anc. I am fure they shou'd Reward him, they cannot want him. The. They that want Honefly, want any thing.

Putf. The Duke is to noble in his own thoughts.

The. That I grant ye,

If those might only sway him: But 'tis' most certain, So many new born Flies his light gave life to, Buzze in his Beams, Flesh-flies, and Butterflies, Hornets, and humming Scarabs, that not one honey Bee That's loaden with true Labour, and brings home Encreafe and Credit, can scape rifling, And what the fucks for fweet, they turn to bitternefs.

Anc. Shall we go fee what they do, and talk our mind to 'em?" Put/. That we have done too much, and to no purpofe. Anc. Shall we be hang'd for him?

I have a great mind to be hang'd now For doing fome brave thing for him; a worfe end will take me, And for an action of no worth; not honour him? Upon my Confcience, ev'n the Devil, the very Devil (Not to bely him) thinks him an honeft Man; I am fore he has fent him Souls any time these twenty years, Able to furnish all his Fish-Markets. The. Leave thy talking, And come, lec's go to Dinner and drink to him; We shall hear more e'er Supper time. If he be honour'd, He has deferv'd it well, and we shall fight for't. If he be ruin'd, fo, we know the worft then, And for my felf, I'll meet it. Exeunt:

Puts. I ne'er fear it.

SCENE V.

Enter Duke, Archas, Boroskie, Burris, Gentlemen and Attendants-

Duke. They are handsome Rooms all, well contriv'd and fitted, Full of convenience, the Prospect's excellent. (nour

Arch. Now will your Grace pass down, and do me but the ho-To tafte a Country Banquet? Duke. What Room's that? I wou'd fee all now; what Conveyance has it?

I fee you have kept the best part yet; pray open it. Arch. Ha! I misdoubted this: 'Tis of no receipt, Sir, For your Eyes most unsit _____ Duke. I long to fee it, (ting, Because I wou'd judge of the whole piece: Some excellent Pain-Or fome rare Spoils you would keep to entertain me Another time, I know. Arch. In troth there is not, Nor any thing worth your fight; below I have Some Fountains, and some Ponds. Duke. I wou'd see this now.

Arch. Boraskie, thou art a Knave. It contains nothing But Rubbih from the other Rooms and Unneceffaries : Will't pleafe you fee a ftrange Clock? Dake. This or nothing: Why fhou'd you bar it up thus with Defences Above the reft, unlefs it contain'd fomething More excellent, and curious of keeping? Open't, for I will fee it. Arch. The Keys are loft, Sir : Does your Grace think, if it were fit for you, I cou'd be fo unmannerly?

Duke I mill for in and either

Duke. I will fee it, and either fhew it-

Duke. Thank ye, Archas, you fhew your Love abundantly, Do I use to intreat thus? Force it open.

Bur. That were unhospitable; you are his Guest, Sir, And with his greatest loy to entertain ve.

And with his greateft Joy to entertain ye. Duke. Hold thy Peace, Fool; will ye open it? Arch. Sir, I cannot. I must not, if I could.

Dake. Go, break it open.

Arch. I must withstand that force. Be not too rash, Gentlemen. Duke. Unarm him first, then if he be not obstinate

Preferve his Life. Arch. I thank your Grace, I take it; And now take you the Keys, go in and fee, Sir;

There feed your Eyes with wonder, and thank that Traitor, That thing that fells his Paith for Favour.

Bur. Sir, what moves ye?

Arch. I have kept mine pure. Lord Burris, there's a Judas, That for a Smile will fell' ye all. A Gentleman? The Devil has more Truth, and has maintain'd it; A Whore's Heart more belief in't.

Enter Duke. Duke. What's all this, Archas? I cannot blame you to conceal it fo, This most inestimable Treasure. Arch. Yours, Sir.

Duke. Nor do I wonder now the Soldier flights me. Arch. Be not deceiv'd; he has had no favour here, Si Nor had you known this now, but for that Pick-thank, The loft Man in his Faith, he has reveal'd it, To fuck a little Honey from ye has betray'd it. I fwear he smiles upon me, and forsworn too, Thou crackt, uncurrant Lord. I'll tell ye all, Sir: Your Sire, before his Death, knowing your Temper To be as bounteous as the Air, and open, As flowing as the Sea to all that follow'd ye, Your great Mind fit for War and Glory, thriftily Like a great Husband to preferve your Actions, Collected all this Treasure; to our Trufts, To mine I mean, and to that long tongu'd Lord's there, He gave the Knowledge and the Charge of all this, Upon his Death-bed too: And on the Sacrament He fwore us thus, never to let this Treasure Part from our fecret keepings, 'till no hope Of Subject could relieve ye, all your own wasted, No help of those that lov'd ye cou'd supply ye, And then fome great Exploit afoot: My Honefty I wou'd have kept 'till I had made this useful; I shew'd it, and I stood it to the Tempest, And useful to the end 'twas left: I am cozen'd, And fo are you too, if you fpend this vainly; This Worm that crept into ye has abus'd ye, Abus'd your Father's care, abus'd his Faith too: Nor can this mass of Mony make him Man more, A fica'd Dog has more Soul, an Ape more Honefty; All mine ye have amongst it, farewel that, I cannot part with't nobler; my Heart's clear, My Confcience fmooth as that, no rub upon't. But O thy Hell! Bor. I feek no Heav'n from you, Sir.

Arch. Thy gnawing Hell, Boroskie, it will find thee: Wou'd ye heap Coals upon his Head has wrong'd ye, Has ruin'd your Effate? Give him this Mony, Melt it into his Mouth. Duke. What little Trunk's that? That there o'th' top, that's lockt?

Bor. You'll find it rich, Sir, richer I think than all. Arch. You were not covetous,

Nor wont to weave your Thoughts with fuch a coursenes; Pray rack not Honesty.

Bor. Be sure-you see it. Duke. Bring out the Trunk. E.

Enter with the Trunk.

Arch. You'll find that Treasure too, all I have left me now: Duke. What's this, a poor Gown? And this a piece of Seneca? Arch. Yes fure, Sir, More worth than all your Gold, yet ye have enough on't, And of a Mine far purer, and more precious; This fells no Friends, nor fearches into Counfels, And yet all Counfel, and all Friends live here, Sir; Betrays no Faith, yet handles all that's trufty : Will't please you leave me this? Duke. With all my Heart, Sir. Arch. What fays your Lordship to't? Bor I dare not rob ye. Arch. Poor miserable Men, you have robb'd your felves both ; This Gown, and this unvalu'd Treasure, your brave Father Found me a Child at School with, in his Progress. Where such a love he took to some few answers, Unhappy Boyish Toys hit in my Head then, That fuddenly I made him, thus as I was, (For here was all the Wealth I brought his Highnefs,) He carried me to Court, there bred me up, Bestow'd his Favours on me, taught me the Arms first, With those an honeft Mind; I ferv'd him truly, Ard where he gave me truft, I think I fail'd not; Let the World speak: I humbly thank your Highness, You have done more, and nobler, eas'd mine Age, Sir; And to this care a fair Quietus giv'n. Now to my Book again. Duke. You have your with, Sir, -Let some bring off the Treasure. Bor. Some is hi, Sir. Arch. None, none, a poor unworthy Reaper, The Haryest is his Grace's. Duke. Thank you, Archas. Arch. But will not you repent, Lord? when this is gone, Where will your Lordship-Bor. Pray take you no care, Sir. Arch. Does your Grace like my House? Duke. Wondrous well, Archas, You have made me richly welcome. Arch. I did my beft, Sir. Is there any thing elte may pleafe your Grace? Duke. Your Daughters I had forgot, fend them to Court. Arch. How's that, Sir? Duke. I said your Daughters; see it done: I'll have 'em Attend my Sifter, Archas. Arch. Thank your Highnels. Duke. And fuddenly. Exit. Arch. Through all the ways I dare I'll ferve your Temper, though you try me far. Exit. ACT

ACT III. SCENE I.

Enter Theodorc, Putskey, Ancient, and Servant: The: Wonder we hear no News.

Puts. Here's your Father's Servant,

He comes in hafte too, now we shall know all, Sir? The. How now?

Ser. I am glad I have met you, Sir; your Father Intreats you prefently make hafte unto him. The. What News?

Ser. None of the beft, Sir, I am afham'd to tell it, Pray ask no more. The. Did I not tell ye, Gentlemen? Did not I Prophecy? He's undone then.

Ser. Not fo, Sir, but as near it— Putf. There's no help now;

The Army's fcatter'd all, through Difcontent,

Not to be rallied up in hafte to help this.

Anc. Plague of the Devil; have ye watch'd your Seafons? We shall watch you e'er long.

The. Farewel, there's no cure,

We must endure all now: I know what I'll do. [Exe. The. and Ser. Puts. Nay, there's no striving, they have a hand upon us.

A heavy and a hard one Anc. Now I have it, We have yet fome Gentlemen, fome Boys of mettle, (What, are we bob'd thus ftill, colted, and carted?) And one mad trick we'll have to fhame these Vipers; Shall I bles 'em?

Put/. Farewel; I have thought my way too.

Anc. Were never fuch rare Cries in Christendom, As Mosco fhall afford: We'll live by fooling Now fighting's gone, and they shall find and feel it.

SCENE II.

Enter Archas, Honora, and Viola.

Arch. No more, it must be so; do you think I wou'd send ye, Your Father and your Friend

Viol. Pray Sir, be good to us; Alas, we know no Court, nor feek that Knowledge; We are content with harmlefs things at home, Children of your Content, bred up in quiet, Only to know our felves, to feek a Widom From that we underftand, eastie and honeft; To make our Actions worthy of your Honour, Th eir ends as innocent as we begot 'em;

E 2

What shall we look for, Sir, what shall we learn there, That this more private Sweetness cannot teach us? Virtue was never built upon Ambition, Nor the Sculs Beauties bred out of Bravery: What a terrible Father wou'd you feem to us, Now you have moulded us, and wrought our Tempers. To easie and odedient Ways, uncrooked, Where the fair Mind can never lose nor loiter. Now to divert our Natures, now to ftem us Roughly against the tide of all this Treasure? Wou'd ye have us proud? 'Tis fooner bred than buried; Wickedly proud? For fuch things dwell at Court, Sir. Hon. Wou'd ye have your Children learn to forget their Father? And when he dies dance on his Monument? Shall we feek Virtue in a Satin Gown; Embroider'd Virtue? Faith in a well-curl'd Feather? And fet our Credits to the tune of Green-fleeves? This may be done; and if you like, it shall be. You shou'd have fent us thither when we were younger, Our Maiden-heads at a higher rate; our Innocence Able to make Mart indeed: We are now too old, Sir. Perhaps they'll think too cunning too, and flight us; Befides, we are altogether unprovided, Unfurnisht utterly of the Rules should guide us: This Lord comes, licks his Hand, and protefts to me; Compares my Beauty to a thousand fine things; Mountains, and Fountains, Trees, and Stars, and Goblins; Now have not I the Faith for to believe him; He offers me the honourable Courtesie, To lye with me all Night; what a milery is this? I am bred up fo foolishly, alas, I dare not, And how madly these things will shew there. Arch. I fend ye not,

Like parts infected, to draw more Corruption; Like Spiders to grow great, with growing Evil: With your own Virtues feafon'd, and my Prayers, The Card of Goodnefs in your Minds, that fhows ye When ye fail falfe; the Needle toucht with Honour, That through the blackeft Storms ftill points at Happinefs; Your Bodies the tall Barks, rib'd round with Goodnefs, Your Heav'nly Souls the Pilots thus I fend you; Thus I prepare your Voyage; found before ye, And ever as you fail through this World's Vanity, Difcover Sholes, Rocks, Quickfands, cry out to ye, Like a good Mafter, Tack about for Honour. The Court is Virtue's School, at leaft it fhould be;

Nearer

Nearer the Sun the Mine lies, the Metal's purer : Be it granted, if the Spring be once infected, Those Branches that flow from him must run muddy; Say you find fome Sins there, and those no fmall ones, And they like lazy Fits begin to thake ye: Say they affect your Strengths, my happy Children; Great things through greatest hazards are atchiev'd still, And then they shine, then Goodness has his Glory, His Crown fast rivetted, then time moves under, Where, through the midft of Errors, like the Sun, Through thick and pitchy Clouds, he breaks out nobly. Hon. I thank you Sir, you have made me half a Soldier, I will to Court most willingly, most fondly. And if there be fuch ftirring things amongst 'em, Such Travellers into Virginia As Fame reports, if they can win me, take me. I think I have a close Word, and a fure one; An honest Mind I hope, 'tis Petticoat-proof, Chain-proof, and Jewel-proof; I know 'tis Gold-proof, A Coach and four Horfes cannot draw me from it : As for your handsome Faces, and filed Tongues, Curl'd Millers Heads, 1 have another word for them, And yet I'll flatter too, as fast as they do, And lye, but not as Lewdly. Come, be valiant, Sifter, She that dares not fland the pufh'o'th' Court dares nothing, And yet come off ungrac'd: Sir, like you, We both affect great dangers now, and the World shall see All Glory lies not in Man's Victory. Arch. Mine own Honora. Vio. I am very fearful,

Wou'd I were ftronger built. You would have me honeft? Arch. Or not at all my Viola. Vio. I'll think on't,

For 'tis no eafie Promife, and live there. Do you think we fhall do well?

Hon. Why, what shou'd ail us?

Vio. Certain they'll tempt us ftrongly; besides the glory Which Women may affect, they are handsome Gentlemen, Every part speaks: Nor is it one denial,

Nor two, nor ten; from every look we give 'em They'll frame a hope; ev'n trom our Pray'rs, and Promifes.

Hon. Let 'em feed fo, and be fat; there is no fear, Wench, If thou be'ft faft to thy felf. Vio. I hope I shall be; And your example will work more.

Enter Theodore.

Hon. Thou shalt not want it.

The. How do you, Sir? Can you lend a Man an Angel? I hear you let out Mony. Arch. Very well, Sir, You are pleafantly difpos'd: I am glad to fee it.

Can

8

Can you lend me your Patience, and be rul'd by me? The. Is't come to Patience now? Arch. Is't not a Virtue? The. I know not: I ne'er found it fo. Arch. That's because Thy Anger ever knows, and not thy Judgemenr. The. I know you have been rifl'd. Arch. Nothing lefs, Boy; Lord, what opinions these vain People publish! Riff'd of what? The. Study your Virtue, Patience, It may get Muftard to your Meat. Why in fuch hafte, Sir, Sent ye for me? Arch. For this end only, Theodore, To wait upon your Sifters to the Court; I amcommanded they live there. The. To th' Court, Sir? Arch. To th' Court, I fay. The. And must I wait upon 'em? Arch. Yes 'tis most fit you shou'd, you are their Brother. The. Is this the business? I had thought your Mind, Sir; Had been set forward on some noble Action, Something had truly ftir'd ye. To th' Court with thefe? Why, they are your Daughters, Sir. Arch. All this I know, Sir. The. The good old Woman on a Bed he threw. To th' Court? Arch. Thou art mad. The. Nor Drunk as you are: Drunk with your Duty, Sir: Do you call it Duty?. A pox of Duty, what can these do there? What should they do? Can ye look Babies, Sisters, In the young Gallants Eyes, and twirl their Band-ftrings? Can ye ride out to air your felves? Pray Sir, Be ferious with me, do you speak this truly? Arch. Why, didst thou never hear of Women Yet at Court, Boy? . The. Yes, and Women too, very good Women, Excellent honeft Women: But are ye fure, Sir, That thefe will prove fo? Hon. There's the Danger, Brother. The. God-a-mercy Wench, thou hast a grudging of it. Arch. Now be you ferious, Sir, and observe what I lay, Do it, and do it handfomely; go with 'em. The. With all my Heart, Sir; I am in no fault now; If they be thought Whores for being in my Company, Pray write upon their Backs, they are my Sifters, And where I shall deliver 'em. Arch. Yeare wondrous jocund, But prithee tell me, art thou fo lewd a Fellow? I never knew thee' fail a Truth. The. I am a Soldier, And fpell you what that means. Arch. A Soldier? What doit thou make of me? The. Your Palat's down, Sir.

Arch. I thank ye, Sir. The. Come, shall we to this matter? You will to Court? Hon. If you will please to honour us.

The.

The. I'll honour ye, I warrant ye; I'll fet ye off With fuch a luftre, Wenches. Alas poor Viola, Thou art a Fool, thou crieft for éating white Bread: Be a good Hufwife of thy Tears, and fave 'em, Thou wilt have time enough to fhed 'em, Sifter. Do you weep too? Nay, then I'll fool no more. Come worthy Sifters, fince it must be fo, And fince he thinks it fit to try your Virtues, Be you as ftrong to Truth, as I to guard ye, And this old Gentleman fhall have joy of ye.

SCENE III.

Enter Duke, and Burris,

Duké. Burris take you ten thouland of those Crowns, And those two Chains of Pearl they hold the richest, I give 'em ye, Bur. I humbly thank your Grace; And may your great Example work in me That noble Charity to Men more worthy, And of more wants. Dake. You bear a good Mind, Burris; Take twenty thouland now : Be not fo modest, It shall be fo, I give 'em : Go, there's my Ring for't. Bur. Heaven blefs-your Highness ever.

Duke. You are honeft.

Enter Alinda, and Putskie at the Door. Put. They're coming now to the Courr, as fair as Virtue: Two brighter Stars ne'r rofe here.

Alin. Peace, I have it,

And what my Art can do; the Duke-

Putf. 1 am gone; remember.

Alin. I am counfell'd to the full, Sir.

Duke. My pretty Mittrefs, whither lies your bulinefs? How kindly I thou'd take this, were it to me now?

Alin. I must confets immediately to your Grace, At this time.

Duke. You have no addrefs, I do believe ye, I wou'd ye had Alin. 'Twere too much boldnefs, Sir, Upon fo little Knowledge, lefs deferving.

Duke. You'll mike a perfect Courtier Alin. A very poor one. Duke. A very fair one, Sweet; come hither to me. What killing Eyes this Wench has? In his Glory Not the bright Sun, when the Sirian Star reigns, Shines half to fiery.

Alia. Why does your Grace fo view me? Nothing but common handfomeness dwells here, Sir, Scarce that: Your Grace is pleas'd to more my meanness. 53-

Exeunt.

Dake. Thou flialt not go: I do not lie unto thee, In my Eye thou appear'st _____ Alin. Bim not the fight, Sir, I'am too dull an Object. Dake. Canft thou love me? - Casif thou love him will honour thee? Alin. I can love, And love as you do too: But 'twill not fhew well: Or if it do shew here where all Light luftres, Tinfel affections make a glorious glift'ring, 'I wilt halt i'th' handfom way. Duke. Are ye fo cunnin g? Doft think I love not truly? Alin. No, ye cannot, You never travell'd that way yet: Pray pardon me, I prate fo boldly to you. Duke. There's no harm done: But what's your reason, Sweet? Alin. I wou'd tell your Grace, But happily ____ Duke. It shall be pleasing to me. Alin. I shou'd love you again, and then you wou'd hate me. With all my fervice I shou'd follow ye, And through all dangers. Duke. This wou'd more provoke me, More make me fee thy Worths, More make me meet 'em. Alin. You shou'd do so, if ye did well and truly : But though ye be a Prince, and have pow'r in ye, Pow'r of Example too, ye have fail'd and falter'd. Duke. Give me Example where? Alin. You had a Mistrefs, Oh Heav'n, so bright, so brave a Dame, so lovely, In all her Life so true! Duke. A Mistres? Alin. That ferv'd you with that Conftancy, that Care, That lov'd your Will, and woo'd it too. Duke. What Miftres? Alin. That nurs'd your Honour up, held fast your Virtue, And when the kift encreas'd your Goodnets. Duke. And I neglected her? Alin. Loft her, forlook her, wantonly flung her off. Duke. What was her Name? Alin. Her Name as lovely as her felf, as noble, And in it all that's excellent. Duke. What was it? Alin. Her Name was Beau-defert : Do you know her now, Sir? Duke. Beau-desert? I do not remember-Alin. I know you do not, Yet the has a plainer Name; Lord Archas fervice; Do you yet remember her? There was a Miftress Fairer than Woman, far fonder to you, Sir, Than Mothers to their first-born Joys: Can you Love? Dare you profess that truth to me a Stranger, A thing of no regard, no Name, no Lustre, When your most noble Love you have neglected, A Beauty all the World wou'd woo and honour? Wou'd you have me credit this? Think you can love me, And

And hold ye conftant, when I have read this Story? Is't poffible you fhould ever favour me, To a flight Pleafure prove a Friend, and faft too, When, where you were most ty'd, most bound to benefit, Bound by the Chains of Honesty and Henour, You have broke, and boldly too? I am a weak one, Arm'd only with my Fears: I befeech your Grace Tempt me no further. Duke. Who taught you this Lesson?

Alm. Woful Experience, Sir: If you feek a fair one, Worthy your Love, if yet you have that perfect, Two Daughters of his ruin'd Virtue now Arrive at Court, excellent fair indeed, Sir, But this will be the Plague on't, they're excellent honeft.

Enter Olympia and Petesca privately.

Duke. I love thy Face. Alin. Upon my Life ye canna I do not love it my felf, Sir, 'tis a lewd one, So truly ill Art cannot mend it; but if 'twere handfome, At leaft if I thought fo, you fhou'd hear me talk, Sir, In a new ftrain; and though ye are a Prince, Make ye Petition to me too, and wait my Anfwers; Yet o' my Confeience I fhou'd pity ye, After fome ten years Siege. Duke. Prethee do now.

Alin. What wou'd ye do? Duke. Why I wou'd lye with ye Alin. I do not think ye wou'd. Duke. Introth I wou'd Wench. Here, take this Jewel. Alin. Out upon't, that's fcurvy. Nay, if we do, fure we'll do for good Fellowship, For pure Love, or nothing: Thus you shall be fure, Sir, You shall not pay too dear for't. Duke. Sure I cannot.

Alin. By'r Lady but ye may: When ye have found me able To do your work well, ye may pay my Wages.

Pet. Why does your Grace ftart back?

Olym. I ha' feen that fhakes me:

Chills all my Blood: O where is Faith or Goodnels? Alinda thou art falle, falle, falle thou fair one, Wickednels falle; and, wo is me, I fee it. For ever falle. Pet. I am glad't has taken thus right.

Alin. I'll go ask my Lady, Sir. Duke. What?

Alin. Whether I shall lye with ye, or no: If I find her willing—-For look ye Sir, I have sworn, while I am in her service ('Twas a rash Oath I must confess.) Duke. Thou mock'st me.

Exeunt,

Alin. Why, wou'd ye lye with me, if I were willing? Wou'd you abufe my weaknefs? Duke. I would piece it, And make it ftronger. Alin. I humbly thank your Highnefs. When you piece me, you must piece me to my Coffin : When you have got my-Maiden-head, I take it, 'Tis not an Inch of an Apes Tail will reftore it.

F

I love ye, and I Honour ye, but this way
I'll neither love nor ferve ye.
Heav'n change your Mind, Sir.
Duke. And thine too:
For it must be chang'd, it shall be.

SCENE IV.

Enter Boroskie, Burris, Theodore, Viola, and Honora. Bor. They are goodly Gentlewomen. Bur. They are, Wondrous fweet Women both. The. Does your Lordship like 'em?

They are my Sisters, Sir; good lusty Lass,

They'll do their Labour well, I warrant ye,

You'll find no Bed-straw here, Sir.

Hon. Thank ye, Brother.

The. This is not fo ftrongly built: But the is good mettle, Of a good ftirring ftrain too: She goes tith, Sir. Enter two Gentlemen.

Here they be, Gentlemen, must make ye merry, The toys you wot of. Do you like their Complexions? They be no Moors: What think ye of this Hand, Gentlemen? Here's a white Altar for your Sacrifice? A thousand Kisseshere. Nay, keep off yet, Gentlemen, Let's flart first, and have fair play: What wou'd ye give now To turn the Globe up, and find the rich Moluccas? To pass the Straits? Here (do ye itch) by St. Nicholas Here's that will make ye foratch and claw, Claw, my fine Gentlemen, move ye in divers forts: Pray ye let me request ye, to forget To fay your Prayers, whilft these are Courtiers; Or if ye needs will think of Heav'n, let it be no higher Than their Eyes. Bor. How will ye have 'em bestow'd Sir! The. Ev'n how your Lordship please, So you do not bake 'em. Bor. Bake 'em?'

The. They are too high a Meat that way, they run to gelly. But if you'll have 'em for your own Diet, take my Counfel, Stew 'em between two Feather-Beds. Bur. Pleafe you, Colonel, To let 'em wait upon the Princefs? The. Yes, Sir, And thank your Honour too: But then happily, Thefe noble Gentlemen fhall have no accefs to 'em; And to have 'em buy new Cloaths, fludy new Faces, And keep a flinking flir with themfelves for nothing, 'Twill not be well 1' faith: They have kept their Bodies, And been at charge for Baths: Do you fee that Shirt there?

Weigh but the moral meaning, 'twill be grievous: Alas, I brought 'em to delight these Gentlemen, I weigh their wants by mine: I brought 'em wholesome, Wholesome, and young, my Lord, and two such Blessings They will not light upon again in ten Years. Bor. 'Tis fit they wait upon her. The, They are fit for any thing They'll wait upon a Man, they are not Bassiful, Carry his Cloak, or unty his Points, or any thing, Drink drunk, and take Tobacco; the familiar's Fools This Wench will leap over Stools too, and found a Trumpet, Wrastle, and pitch the Bar; they are finely brought up. Bor. Ladies, ye are bound to your Brother, And have much cause to thank him:

I'll ease ye of this Charge, and to the Princes, So please you, I'll attend 'em:

The. Thank your Lordship . -

If there be e'er a private Corner as ye go, Sir, A foolifh Lobby out o' th' way, make Danger,

Try what they are, try

Bor. Ye are a merry Gentleman.

The. I wou'd fain be your Honour's Kinsman.

Bor. Ye are too curst, Sir.

The. Farewel Wenches, keep close your Ports, y' are washt else.

Hon. Brother, bestow your Fears where they are needful.

[Exe. Borof. Hon. Vio.

[Excunt Gent.

Bur. You have frighted off these Flesh-flies.

The. Flesh-flies indeed, my Lord.

Enter Servant.

And it must be very stinking Flesh they will not feize on.

Ser. Your Lordship bid me bring this Casket.

Bur. Yes: Good Colonel,

Commend me to your worthy Father, and as a pledge He ever holds my Love, and Service to him, Deliver him this poor, but hearty Token, And where I may be his_____ The. Ye are too Noble;

F 2

A Wonder here my Lord, that dare be honeft, When all Men hold it vitious : I fhall deliver it, And with it your most noble Love. Your Servant. [Ex. Bur. Were there but two more such at Court, 'twere Sainted; This will buy Brawn this Christmas yet, and Muscadine: [Exit.

SCENE V.

En ter Ancient, crying Brooms, and after him feverally, four Soldiers, crying other Things. Boroskie and Gentlemen over the Stage, obferving them.

I. SONG.

Anc. Broom, Broom, the bonny Broom, Come buy my Birchen Broom, I' th' Wars we have no more room, Buy all my bonny Broom. For a Kifs take two; If thofe will not do, For a little, little Pleafure, Take all my whole Treafure: If all thefe will net do't, Take the Broom-man to boot. Broom, Broom, the bonny Broom.

II. SONG.

1 Sol. The Wars are done and gine, And Soldiers now neglected, Pedlers are, Come Maidens, come along, For I can show you handsome, handsome Ware; Powders for, for the Head, And drinks for your Bed, To make ye Blithe and Bonny. As well in the Night we Soldiers can fight, And please a young Wench as any. 2, Sol. I have fine Potato's, Ripe Potato's.

III. SONG.

3 Sol. Will ye buy any Henefty, come away, I fell it openly by Day, I bring no forced Light, nor no Candle. To cozen ye; come buy and handle: I bis will shew the great Man good, The Tradesinan where he swears and lyes,

Each

Each Lady of a noble Blood, The City Dame to rule her Eyes: Ie are rich Men now : come buy, and then I'll make ye richer, honest Men.

IV. SONG.

4 Sol. Have ye any crackt Maiden-heads, to new Leach or Mend? Have ye any old Maiden-heads, to fell or to change? Bring 'cm to me, with a little pretty gin, I'll clout 'em, I'll mend 'em, I'll knock in a Pin, Shall make 'em as good Maids again, As ever they have been.

3 Sol. Will your Lordship buy any Honesty? 'twill be worth your Bor. How is this? (Mony.

3 Sol. Honefty my Lord; 'tis here in a quill. Anc. Take heed you open is not, for 'tis fo fubtile, The leaft puff of Wind will blow it out o'th' Kingdom.
2 Sol. Will your Lordship please to taste a fine Potato? 'Twill advance your wither'd State.

Anc. Fill your Honour full of noble Itches, And make Jack dance in your Lordship's Breeches.

1 Sol. If your Daughters on their Beds, Have bow'd, or crackt their Maiden heads; If in a Coach with too much Tumbling, They chance to cry, fie, fo, what Fumbling; If her Foot flip, and down fall fhe, And break her Leg above the Knee, The one and thirtieth of February let this be ta'en, And they fhall be arrant Maids again.

Bor. Ye are brave Soldiers; keep your wantonnels, A Winter will come on to fhake this wilfulnels. Difport your felves, and when you want your Mony—[Exit. Anc. Broom, Broom, &c. [Execut finging.

SCENE VI.

Enter Alinda, Honora, and Viola.

Alin. You must not be so fearful, little one, Nor Lady you so sad, you will ne'er make Courtiers 45

With

With these dull fullen Thoughts; this Place is Pleasure, Preferv'd to that use, so inhabited; And those that live here, live delightful, joyful: These are the Gardens of Adonis, Ladies, Where all Sweets to their free and noble ules. Grow ever young and courted. Hon. Blefs me Heav'n, Can things of her Years arrive at these Rudiments? By your leave fair Gentlewoman, how long have you been here?

Alin

Alin. Faith much about a Week.

Hon. You have fludied hard,

And by my Faith arriv'd at a great Knowledge. Vio. Were not you bashful at first?

Alin. Ay, ay, for an hour or two: But when I faw People laugh'd at me for it, And thought it a dull Breeding Mart 10 , Mart

Hon. You are govern'd here then

Much after the Mens Opinions. Alin: Ever, Lady. Hon. And what they think is honourable ----Alin. Most precisely.

We follow with all Faith.

Hon. A goodly Catechifm.

Vio. But bashful for an Hour or two? -

Alin. Faith to fay true,

I do not think I was fo long: For look ye, 'Tis to no end here, put on what shape ye will, And four your felf with ne'er fo much Aufterity, You shall be courted in the same, and won too, 'Tis but fome two hours more; and fo much time loft, Which we hold precious here: In fo much time now As I have told you this, you may lose a Servant, Your Age, nor all your Art, can e'er recover:" Catch me Occasion as the comes, hold fast there, Till what you do affect is ripen'd to ye. Has the Duke feen ye yet? Hon. What if he have not?

Alin. Yo do your Beauties too much wrong, appearing So full of Sweetnes, Newness; set fo richly, As if a Counfel beyond Nature fram'd ye.

Hon. If we were thus, fay Heav'n had giv'n these Bleffings, Must we turn these to fin Oblations?

Alin. How foolifhly this Country way shews in ye? How full of flegm? Do you come here to pray, Ladies? You had best cry, Stand away, let me alone Gentlemen, I'll tell my Father elfe. Vio. This Woman's naught fure, A very naughty Woman. Hon. Come, fay on Friend, 1'll be instructed by ye. Alin. You'll thank me for't. Hon. Either I or the Devil shall: The Duke you were speaking of Alin. 'Tis well remembred: Yes let him first see you, Appear not openly till he has view'd ye.

Hon. He's a very noble Prince, they fay.

Alin. O wondrous Gracious;

And as you may deliver your felf at the first Viewing. For look ye, you must bear your felf; but take heed It be fo feafon'd with a fweet Humility, And grac'd with fuch a Bounty in your Beauty

Hon. But I hope he will offer me no ill? Alin. No, no:-'Tis like he will kifs ye, and play with ye.

Hon. Play with me, how?

Alin. Why, good Lord, that you are fuch a Fool now! No harm affure your felf. Vio. Will he play with me too? Alin. Look Babies in your Eyes, my pretty fweet one: There's a fine (port: Do you know your Lodgings yet?

Hon. I hear of none. Alin. I do then, they are handlome. Convenient for Access. Vio. Access?

Alin. Yes, little one,

For Vifitation of those Friends and Servants, Your Beauties shall make choice of: Friends and Visits: Do not you know those uses? Alas poor Novice? There's a close Couch or two, handsomely plac'd too.

Vio. What are those for, I pray you? (to lie upon, Alin. Who would be troubled with such raw things? They are And your Love by ye; and discourse, and toy in.

Vio. Alas I have no Love. Alin. You must by any means: You'll have a hundred, fear not. Vio. Honesty keep me.: What shall I do with all those? Alin. You'll find uses: Ye are ignorant yet, let time work; you must learn too, To lye handsomely in your Bed a Mornings, nearly drest In a most curious Wastcoat, to set ye off well, Play with your Bracelets, sing: You must learn to rhime too, And riddle nearly; study the hardest Language, And 'tis no matter whether it be fense, or no, So it go seemly off. Be fure ye profit In kissing fweetly: There lies a main Point; A Key that opens to all practick Pleasure; I'll help ye to a Friend of mine shall teach ye, And fuddenly: Your Country way is fulfome.

How. Have ye Schools for all these Mysteries? Alin. O yes, And feveral hours prefix'd to study in: Ye may have Kalenders to know the good hour, And when to take a Jewel: For the ill too, When to refuse, with Observations on 'em; Under what Sign 'tis belt meeting in an Arbor, And in what Bow'r, and hour it works; a thousand,

When

When in a Coach, when in a private Lodging, With all their Virtues. Hon. Have ye ftudied thefe? How beaftly they become your Youth? how bawdily? A Woman of your Tendernels, a Teacher, Teacher of these lewd Arts? of your full Beauty? A Man made up in Lust wou'd loath this in ye: The rankest Leacher, hate such Impudence. They fay the Devil can assume Heav'ns Brightnels, And so appear to tempt us: Sure thou art no Woman.

Alin. I Joy to find ye thus. Hon. Thou hast no tenderness, No reluctation in thy Heart: 'Tis mischief.

Alin. All's one for that; read these and then be fatisfied, A few more private Rules I have gather'd for ye, Read 'em, and well observe 'em : fo I leave ye.

Vio. A wondrous wicked Woman: Shame go with thee. Hon. What new Pandora's Box is this? I'll fee it, Though prefently I tear it. Read thine, Viola, Tis in our own Wills to believe and follow.

> Worthy Honora, as you have begun In Virtue's spotless School, so forward run: Pursue that Nobleness, and chaste Desire You ever had, burn in that holy Fire; And a white Martyr to fair Memory Give up your Name, unsoil'd of Infamy.

How's this? Read yours out Sifter : this amazes me.

Vio. Fear not, thou yet unblasted Violet, Nor let my wanton Words a Doubt beget, Live in that Peace and Sweetness of thy Bud, Remember whose thou art, and grow still good: Remember what thou art, and stand a Story Fit for thy noble Sex, and thine own Glory.

Hon. I know not what to think. Vio. Sure a good Woman, An excellent Woman, Sifter. Hon. It confounds me; Let 'em use all their Arts, if these be their Ends, The Court I fay breeds the best Foes and Friends. Come let's be honest Wench, and do our best Service. Vio. A most excellent Woman, I will love her.

ACT

ACTIV. SCENEI.

Enter Olympia with a Casket, and Alinda.

Alin. MAdam, the Duke has fent for the two Ladies. (him. Olym. I prethee go: I know thy Thoughts are with Go, go Alinda, do not mock me more.

I have found thy Heatt, Wench, do not wrong thy Mistres, Thy too much loving Mistres: Do not abuse her.

Alin. By your own fair Hands I understand ye not.

Olym. By thy own fair Eyes I understand thee too much, Too far, and built a Faith there thou hast ruin'd. Go, and enjoy thy Wish, thy Youth, thy Pleasure, Enjoy the Greatness no doubt he has promis'd, Enjoy the Service of all Eyes that see thee, The Glory thou hast aim'd at, and the Triumph: Only this last Love I ask, forget thy Mistress.

Alin. Oh, who has wrong'd me? who has ruin'd me? Poor wretched Girl, what Poylon is flung on thee? Excellent Virtue, from whence flows this Anger?

Olym. Go, ask my Brother, ask the Faith thou gav'ft me, Ask all my Favours to thee, ask my Love, Last, thy forgetfulness of good : Then flye me, For we must part, Alinda. Alin. You are weary of me; I must confess, I was never worth your Service, Your bounteous Favours less; but that my Duty, My ready Will, and all I had to ferve ye-O Heav'n thou know'ft my Honesty. Olym. No more: Take heed, Heav'n has a Justice: Take this Ring with ye, This doting Spell you gave me : Too well, Alinda, Thou knew'st the Virtue in't; too well I feel it: Nay keep that too, it may fometimes remember ye, When you are willing to forget who gave it, And to what virtuous end. Alin. Must I go from ye? Of all the Sorrows Sorrow has-must I part with ye? Part with my noble Mistres? Olym. Or I with thee, Wench.

Alin. And part flain'd with Opinion? Farewel Lady, Happy and bleffed Lady, Goodnefs keep ye. Thus your poor Servant, full of Grief, turns from ye, For ever full of Grief, for ever from ye. I have no Being now, no Friends, no Country, I wander Heav'n knows whither, Heav'n knows how, No Life, now you are loft: Only mine Innocence, That little left me of my felf, goes with me,

That's all my Bread and Comfort. I confels, Madam, I be Duke has often courted me.

10

Olym. And pour'd his Soul into thee, won thee. Alin. Do you think fo? Well, Time that told this Tale, will tell my Truth too, And fay ye had a faithful, honeft Servant: The buliness of my Life is now to pray for ye,-Pray for your virtuous Loves; Pray for your Children, When Heav'n shall make ye happy Olym. How she wounds me! Either I am undone, or fhe must go: Take these with ye, Some Toys may do you Service; and this Mony; -And when ye want, I love ye not fo poorly, Not yet Alinda, that I wou'd fee ye perifh .-Prithee be good, and let me hear: Look on me, I love these Eyes yet dearly; I have kis'd thee, And now I'll do't again: Farewel Alinda, I am too full to speak more, and too wretched. Exit.

Aline You have my Faith, and all the World my Fortune. [Ex.

SCENE II.

Enter Theodore.

Enter Gentleman, with a Gentlewoman, paffing over the Stage. He has her, but 'tis none of them: Hold fast Thief: An excellent touzing Knave. Mistrefs You are to suffer your Penance some half hour hence now. How far a fine Court Custard with Plums in it Will prevail with one of these waiting Gentlewomen, They are taken with these soluble things exceedingly; This is some Yeoman o' th' Bottles now that has sent for her, That she calls Father: Now wo to this Ale Incence. By your leave Sir.

Enter a Servant:

Se4.

Ser. Well Sir; what's your pleafure with me? The. You do not know the way to the Maids Lodgings? Ser. Yes indeed do I Sir. The. But you will not tell me? Ser. No indeed will not I, because you doubt it. Enter Second Servant.

The. These are fine Gim-cracks: Hey, here comes another. A Flagon full of Wine in's Hand, I take it. Well met my Friend, is that Wine?

2. Ser. Yes indeed is it. The. Faith I'll Drink on't then. 2 Ser. Ye may, because ye have sworn, Sir. The. 'Tis very good, I'll drink a great deal now, Sir.

2 Ser. I cannot help it, Sir: The. I'll drink more yet

2 Ser. 'Tis in your Hands.

The There's your Pot, I thank ye.

Pray let me drink again.

2 Ser. Faith but ye shall not.

Now have I fworn, I take it. Fare ye well, Sir.

Exit.

51

Exit.

Enter Lady. The. This is the finest place to live in I e'er enter'd. Here comes a Gentlewoman, and alone; I'll to her.

Madam, my Lord my Master: Lady. Who's your Lord, Sir? The. The Lord Boreskie, Lady. Lady. Pray excuse me: Here's fomething for your pains: Within this hour, Sir, One of these choice young Ladies shall attend him : Pray let it be in that Chamber juts out to the Water; 'Tis private and covenient: Do my humble Service To my honourable good Lord, I befeech ye Sir; If it please you to visit a poor Lady-You carry the 'haviour of a noble Gentleman.

The. I shall be bold. Lady. 'Tis a good aptness in ye. I lie here in the Wood-yard, the blue Lodgings, Sir; They call me merrily the Lady of the _____ Sir; A little I know what belongs to a Gentleman, And if you pleafe take the pains.

The. Dear Lady, take the pains? Why a Horfe wou'd not take the pains that thou requir's now, To cleave old Crab-tree. One of the choice young Ladies? I wou'd I had let this Bawd go, the has frighted me; I am cruelly affraid of one of my Tribe now; But if they will do, the Devil cannot ftop 'em. Why shou'd he have a young Lady? Are Women now O' th' Nature of Bottles, to be ftopt with Corks? O the thousand little furies that fly here now? How now Captain?

Enter Putskie.

Putf. I come to feek you out, Sir, And all the Town I have travell'd.

The. What's the News, Man?

Putf. That that concerns us all, and very nearly,

Exit.

The Duke this Night holds a Feast at Court, To which he bids for Guests all his old Counfellors, And all his Favourites: Your Father's fent for.

The. Why he is neither in Council, nor in Favour.

Putf. That's it: Have an Eye now, or never, and a quick one, An Eye that must not wink from good Intelligence.

I heard a Bird fing, they mean him no good Office. Enter Ancient.

The. Art fure he fups here? Putf. Sure as 'tis Day. The. 'Tis like then.

How now, where hast thou been, Ancient? Anc. Measuring the City:

1 have left my Brooms at Gate here;

By this time the Porter has stole 'em to sweep out Rascals. The. Brooms?

Anc. I have been crying Brooms all the Town over, And fuch a Mart I have made, there's no Trade near it. O the young handfome Wenches, how they twitter'd, When they but faw me fhake my ware, and fing too; Come hither Mafter Broom-man I befeech ye: Good Mafter Broom-man hither, cries another.

The. Thou art a mad Fellow.

Anc. They are all as mad as I: They all have Trades now, And roar about the Streets like Bull-Beggars.

The. What Company of Soldiers are they?

Anc. By this means I have gather'd

Above a thousand tall and hardy Soldiers,

If need be, Colonel. The. That need's come, Ancient, And 'twas differently done. Go, draw 'em prefently, But without fuspicion: This Night we shall need 'em; Let 'em be near the Court, let Putskie guide 'em; And wait me for occasion: Here I'll stay still.

Putf. If it fall out, we are ready; if not, we are scatter'd: I'll wait ye at an Inch. The. Do, Farewel. [Exeum:

SCENE III.

Enter Duke, and Boroskie.

Dake. Are the Soldiers fill fo mutinous? Bor. More than ever; No Law nor Juffice frights 'em: All the Town over 'They play new Pranks and Gambols: No Man's Perfon, Of what degree foever, free from Abufes: And durft they do this, (let your Grace confider) These monstrous, most offensive things, these Villanies, If not fet on, and fed? If not by one

They

They honour more than you? And more aw'd by him? Duke. Happily their own Wants. Bor. I offer to supply 'em, And every hour make tender of their Monies. They fcorn it, laugh at me that offer it: I fear the next Device will be my Life, Sir; And willingly I'll give it, fo they flay there. Duke. Do you think Lord Archas privy? Bor. More than Thought, I know it Sir, I know they durft not do These violent rude things, abuse the State thus, But that they have a hope by his Ambitions-Duke. Go more: He's fent for? Bor. Yes, and will be here fure. Duke. Let me talk further with you anon. Bor. I'll wait, Sir. Duke. Did you speak to the Ladies? Bor. They'll attend your Grace prefently. Duke. How do you like 'cm? Bor. My Eyes are too dull Judges. They wait here, Sir. Exit, Enter Honora, and Viola. Duke. Be you gone then. Come in, Ladies, Welcome toth' Court fweet Beauties; now the Court fhines, When fuch true Beams of Beauty ftrike amongit us: Welcome, welcome, ev'n as your own Joys welcome. How do you like the Court? How feems it to you? Is't not a Place created for all Sweetness? Why were you made fuch Strangers to this Happinels? Barr'd the Delights this holds? The richeft Jewels Set ne'er fo well, if then not worn to wonder, By judging Eyes not fet off, lose their Lustre: Your Country Shades are faint; blafters of Beauty: The Manners, like the Place, obscure and heavy; The Rofe-buds of the Beauties turn to Cankers, Eaten with inward Thoughts; while there ye wander, Here Ladies, here, you were not made for Cloifters, Here is the Sphere you move in: Here fhine nobly, And by your powerful Influence command all. What a fweet Modesty dwells round about 'em, And like a nipping Morn pulls their Bloffoms?

Hon. Your Grace speaks cunningly; you do not this, Ihope, Sir, to betray us; we are poor Triumphs; Nor can our Loss of Honour add to you, Sir: Great Men, and great Thoughts, feek things great and worthy, Subjects to make 'em live, and not to lose 'em; Conquests fo nobly won. can never perish; We are two simple Maids, untutor'd here, Sir; Two koneft Maids, is that a fin at Court, Sir?

Our

Our breeding is Ob dience, but to good things, To virtuous and to fair: What wou'd you win on us? W hy do I ask that Queffion, when I have found ye? Your Preamble has pour'd your Heart out to us; You would difhonour us; which in your Translation Here at the Court reads thus, your Grace wou'd love us, Most dearly love us: Stick us up for Mistreffes: Most certain, there are thousands of our Sex, Sir, That wou'd be glad of this, and handsome Women, And crowd into this favour, fair young Women, Excellent Beauties, Sir: When ye have enjoy'd 'em, And suckt those Sweets they have, what Saints are these then? What worship have they won? what Name? you guess, Sir; What Story added to their Time, a fweet one?

Duke. A brave fpirited Wench. Hon. I'll tell your Grace, And tell ye true: Ye are deceiv'd in us two, Extremely cozen'd, Sir: And yet in my Eye Yeu are the handfom'ft Man I ever look'd on, The goodlieft Gentleman; take that hope with ye; And were I fit to be your Wife (fo much I honour ye) Truft me I would foratch for ye but I wou'd have ye. w ou'd woo you then.

Duke. She amazes-me: But how I am deceiv'd? Hon. O we are too honeft,

Believe it, Sir, too honeft, far too honeft, The way that you propound too ignorant, And there's no medling with us; for we are Fools too, Obflinate, pecvifh Fools: If I would be ill, And had a Wanton's itch, to kick my Heels up, I wou'd not leap into th' Sun, and do't there, That all the World might fee me: An obfcure Shade, Sir, Dark as the Deed, there is no truffing Light with it, Nor that that's lighter far, vain-glorious Greatnefs.

Duke. You will love me as your. Friend?

Hen. I will honour ye,

As, your poor humble Handmaid ferve, and pray for ye. Duke. What fays my little one; you are not fo obstinate?

Lord how the bluthes: Here are truly fair Souls.

Come, vou will be my Love? Vio. Good Sir be good to me, Indeed I'll do the best I can to please ye;

1 do befeech your Grace: Alas I fear ye.

Duke. What shoud'st theu fear? Hon. Fie Sir, this is not noble. Duke. Why do I stand intreating, where my Pow'r----

Duke.

Hon. You have no Pow'r, at leaft you ought to have none In bad and beaftly things: Arm'd thus, I'll dye here, Before the fuffer wrong. Duke. Another Archas? Hon. His Child, Sir, and his Spirit.

Duke. I'll deal with you then, For here's the Honour to be won: Sit down, Sweet, Prithee Honora fit. Hon. Now ye intreat, I will, Sir. Duke. I do, and will deferve it. Hon. That's too much Kindnefs. Duke. Prethee look on me. Hon. Yes: I love to fee ye, And cou'd look on an Age thus, and admire ye: While ye are good and temperate I dare touch ye, Kils your white Hand. Duke. Why not my Lips? Hon. I dare, Sir. Duke. I do not think ye dare: Hon I am no Coward: Do you believe me now? or now? or now, Sir? You make me blufh: But fure I mean no ill, Sire It had been fitter you had kiss'd me. Duke. That I'll do too. What haft thou wrought into me? Hon. I hope all Goodnefs: While ye are thus, thus honeft, I dare do any thing; Thus hang about your Neck, and thus doat on ye; Bless those fair Lights: Hell take me if I durst not-But good Sir pardon-me. Sifter come hither, Come hither, fear not, Wench: Come hither, blush not, Come kifs the Prince, the virtuous Prince, the good Prince: Certain he is excellent honeft. Duke. Thou wilt make me-Hon. Sit down, and hug him fofely. Duke. Fie, Honora, Wanton Honora; is this the Modesty, The noble Chastity your Onset shew'd me, At first Charge beaten back? Away. Hon. Thank ye: Upon my Knees I pray, Heav'n too may thank ye; Ye have deceiv'd me cunningly, yet nobly; A Scene of greater Honour you ne'er acted : I knew Fame was a Liar, too long, and loud Tongu'd, And now I have found it. O my, virtuous Master. Vio. My virtuous Master too. Hon. Now you are thus, What shall become of me let Fortune cast for't. Enter Alinda. Duke. I'll be that Fortune, if I live, Honora, Thou hast done a Cure upon me, Counsel cou'd not. Alin. Here take your Ring, Sir, and whom ye mean to ruin, Give it to her next; I have paid for't dearly. Hon: A Ring to her? Duke. Why frowns my fair Alinda? I have forgot both these again. Alin. Stand still, Sir, Ye have that violent killing fire upon ye, Confumes all Honour, Credit, Faith. Hon. How's this? Alin. My Royal Mistress favour towards me, Woe-worth ye, Sir, ye have poyfon'd, blafted. Duke. I, Sweet? Alin. You have taken that unmanly liberty,

Which.

Which in a worle Man is vain-glorious feigning, And kill'd my Truth.

Duke. Upon my Life 'tis falle, Wench. Alin. Ladies, take heed, ye have a cunning Gamester,' A handsome, and a high; come stor'd with Antidotes, He has Infections else will fire your Bloods.

Duke. Prethee Alinda hear me. Alin. Words fteept in Honey, That will fo melt into your Minds, buy Chaffity, A thousand ways, a thousand knots to tye ye; And when he has bound ye his, a thousand Ruins. A poor loft Woman ye have made me.

Duke. I'll maintain thee, and nobly too. Alin. That Gin's too weak to take me.

Take heed, take heed, young Ladies: Still take heed, Take heed of Promifes, take heed of Gifts, Of forced, feigned Sorrows, Sighs, take heed.

Duke. By all that's mine, Alinda-

Alin. Swear by your milchiefs.

O whither shall I go? Duke. Go back again,

I'll force her to take thee, love thee.

Alin. Fare ye well, Sir,

I will not curfe ye; only this dwell with ye;

Whenever ye love, a falle Belief light on ye.

Hon. We'll take our leaves too, Sir.

Duke. Part all the World now,

Duke. I am vext, and some shall find it,

SCENE'IV.

Enter Archas, and a Servant.

Arch. 'Tis ftrange To me to fee the Court, and welcome. O Royal Place, how have I lov'd and ferv'd thee? Who lies on this fide, know'ft thou?

Ser. The Lord Burris.

Arch! Thou haft nam'd a Gentleman I ftand much bound to: I think he fent the Casket, Sir? Ser. The fame, Sir.

Arch. An honeft-minded Man, a noble Courtier :

The Duke made perfect choice when he took him.

Go you home, I shall hit the way

Without a Guide now.

Ser. You may want fomething, Sir. Arch. Only my Herfes, Which after Supper let the Groom wait with: I'll have no more attendance here. Ser. Your will, Sir. [Exit.

TExit.

Exit.

55

Enter Theodore.

The. You are well met here, Sir. Arch. How now, Boy, How doft thou? The. I shou'd ask You that Question: How do you, Sir? How do you feel your self? Arch. Why well, and lusty. The. What do you here then? Arch. Why I am sent for a

To Supper with the Duke. The. Have you no Meat at home? Or do you long to feed as hunted Deer do, In doubt and fear? Arch. I have an excellent Stomach, And can I use it better than among my Friends, Boy? How do the Wenches? The. They do well enough, Sir, They know the worst by this time: Pray be rul'd, Sir, Go home again, and if ye have a Supper, Eat it in quiet there: This is no place for ye, Especially at this time, take my word for't.

Arch. May be they'll drink hard; I could have drunk my fhare, Boy. Though I am old, I will not out.

7 he. I hope you will.

Hark in your Ear: The Court's too quick of hearing.

Arch. Not mean me well? Thou art abus'd and cozen'd. Away, away. The. To that end, Sir, I tell ye. Away, if you love your felf. Arch. Who dare do these things, That ever heard of Honesty? The. Old Gentleman, Take a Fool's Counfel. Arch. 'Tis a Fool's indeed : A very Fool's: Thou haft more of these flams in thee. These musty doubts: Is't fit the Duke send for me. And honour me to eat within his Presence, And I, like a tall Fellow, play at bo-peep With his Pleafure?. The. Take heed Of bo-peep with your Pate, your Pate, Sir, I speak plain Language now. Arch. If'twere not here, Where Reverence bids me hold, I wou'd fo fwinge thee, Thou rude unmanner'd Knave. Take from his Bounty, His Honour that he gives me, to beget Sawcy, and fullen Fears? The. You are not mad fure: By this fair Light, I speak but what is whisper'd, And whilper'd for a Truth. Arch. A Dog: Drunken I cople, That in their Pot fee Visions, and turn States, Mad-men and Children: prithee do not follow me; I tell thee I am angry: Do not follow me.

The. I am as angry as you for your Heart, Ay and as wilful too: Go, like a Woodcock, And thruft your Neck i'th' Noofe. Arch. I'll kill thee, And thou speak'ft but three words more. Do not follow me.

i Exit.

100.

The. A strange old foolish Fellow: I shall hear yet, and if I do not my part, his at me.

SCENE V.

Enter two Servants, preparing a Banquet.

1 Ser. Believe me, Fellow, here will be lufty drinking. Many a washt Pate in Wine I warrant thee.

2 Ser. I am glad the old General's come: Upon my Conscience That joy will make half the Court drunk. Hark the Trumpets, They are coming on; away. 2 Ser. We'll have a rowfe too. [Exe. Enter Duke, Archas, Burris, Boroskie, Attendants and Gentlemen. Duke. Come feat your felves: Lord Archas fit you there. Arch. 'Tis far above my Worth. Duke. I'll have it for Arch. 'Tis far above my Worth. Duke. I'll have it fo: Are all things ready? Bor. All the Guards are fet, The Court Gates are shut. Duke. Then do as I prescrib'd ye. Be fure no further. Bor. I shall well observe ye. Duke. Come bring some Wine; here's to my Sister, Gentlemen. A Health, and Mirth all. Arch. Pray fill it full, Sir. Tis a high Health to Virtue: Here Lord Burris Maiden Health: You are most fit to pledge it, You have a Maiden Soul, and much I honour it. Paffion o' me, ye are fad, Man. Duke. How now, Burris? Go to, no more of this. Arch. Take the rowfe freely, Twill warm your Blood, and make ye fit for Jollity. Your Grace's Pardon : When we get a Cup, Sir, We old Men prate apace. Duke. Mirth makes a Banquet; As you love me no more. Bur. I thank your Graçe. Give me it; Lord Boroskie. Bor. I have ill Brains, Sir. Bur. Damnable ill, I know it. Bor. But I'll pledge, Sir, This virtuous Health. Bur. The more unfit for thy Mouth. Enter 1700 Servants with Cloaks. Duke. Come, bring out Robes, and let my Guefts look nobly,... Fit for my Love and Prefence. Begin downward. Off with your Cloaks, take new. Arch. Your Grace deals truly Like a munificent Prince, with your poor Subjects. Who would not fight for you? What cold dull Coward. Durst seek to fave his Life when you would ask it? Begin a new Health in your new Adornments,

The Duke's, the royal Duke's: Ha! what have I got,

Sir? ha! the Robe of Death? Duke. You have deferv'd it: Arch. The Liv'ry of the Grave? Do you ftart all from me? Do I fmell of Earth already? Sir, look on me, And like a Man; is this your Entertainment?

Do you bid your worthiest Guests to bloody Banquets?

Enter-

Exis.

Enter a Guard.

A Guard upon me too? This is too foul Play Boy to thy good, thine Honour; thou wretched Ruler, Thou Son of Fools and Flatterers, Heir of Hypocrites, Am I ferv'd in a Hearfe, that fav'd ye all? Are ye Men or Devils? Do ye gape upon me, Wider, and fwallow all my Services? Entomb them first, my Faith next, then my Integrity, And let these ftruggle with your mangy Minds, Your fear'd, and feal'd up Confciences, till they burst.

Bor. These words are Death.

Arch. No, those Deeds that want Rewards, Sirrah, Those Battels I have fought, those horrid Dangers, Leaner than Death, and wilder than Destruction, I have march'd upon, these honour'd Wounds, times Story, The Blood I have lost, the Youth, the Sorrows suffer'd, These are my Death, these that can ne'er be recompene'd, These are ye fit brooding on like Toads, Sucking from my deserts the Sweets and Savours, And render me no pay again but Poysons.

Bor. The proud vain Soldier thou haft fet- Arch. Thou lieft, Now by my little time of Life liest basely, Malicioufly, and loudly: How I fcorn thee! If I had fwell'd the Soldier, or intended An act in Perfon, leaning to Difhonour, As ye wou'd fain have forc'd me, witness Heav'n, Where clearest understanding of all Truth is, (For these are spightful Men, and know no Piety) When Olin came, grim Olin, when his Marches, His last Incursions, made the City sweat, And drove before him, as a Storm drives Hail, Such Showers of frosted Fears, shook all your Heart-strings; Then, when the Volga trembled at his Terrour, And hid his feven curl'd Heads, afraid of bruifing, By his arm'd Horses Hooss, had I been false then, Or blown a treacherous fire into the Soldiers, Had but one spark of Villany liv'd within me, Ye'ad had fome shadow for this black about me. Where was your Soldiership? Why went not you out? And all your right honourable Valour with ye? Why met ye not the Tartar, and defy'd him? Drew your dead-doing Sword, and buckl'd with him? Shot through his Squadrons like a fiery Meteor? And as we fee a dreadful clap of Thunder Rend the stiff hearted Oaks, and tofs their Roots up : Why did not you to charge him? You were fick then,

You that dare taint my Credit flipt to Bed then, Stewing and fainting with the Fears ye had, A Whorfon fhaki g fit-oppreft your Lordthip. Blufh Coward, Knave, and all the World hifs at thee.

Duke. Exceed not my Command.

Bor. I shall observe it.

Arch. Arc you gone too? Come, weep not, honeft Burris, Good loving Lord, no more Tears: 'Tis not his Malice, This Fellow's Malice, nor the Duke's Difpleafure, By bold bad Men crouded into his Nature, Can ftartle me. Fortune ne'er raz'd this Fort yet. I am the fame, the fame Man, living, dying; The fame Mind to 'em both, I poize thus equal; Only the Jugling way that toll'd me to it, The Judas way, to kifs me, bid me welcome, And cut my Throat, a little flicks upon me. Farewel, commend me to his Grace, and tell him, The World is full of Servants, he may have many: And fome I with him honeft: He's undone elfe: But fuch another doating Archas never, So try'd and touch'd a Faith: Farewel for ever.

Bur. Be ftrong my Lord: You must not go thus lightly. Arch. Now what's to do? What fays the Law unto me? Give me my great Offence that speaks me Guilty.

Bor. Laying afide a thousand petty matters, As Scorns, and Infolencies both from your felf and Follow'rs, Which you put first fire to, and these are deadly, I come to one main Cause, which though it carries A strangeness in the Circumstance, it earries Death too, Not to be pardon'd neither. Ye have done a Sacrilege.

Arch. High Heav'n defend me Man: How, how Boroskie? Bor. Ye have took from the Temple thole vow'd Arms, The holy Ornaments you hung up there, No abfolution of your Vow, no Order From holy Church to give 'em back unto you, After they were purified from War, and refted From Blood, made clean by Ceremony: From the Altar-You fnatch'd 'em up again, again ye wore 'em, Again you flain'd 'em, flain'd your Vow, the Church too, And rob'd it of that Right was none of yours, Sir, For which the Law requires your Head, ye know it.

Arch. Those Arms I fought in last?

Bor. The fame. Arch. God-a-mercy, Thou haft hunted out a notable caufe to kill me: A fubtile one: I die, for faving all you; Good Sir, remember, if you can, the neceffity,

-----

The fuddennels of time, the State all flood in; I was intreated to, kneel'd to, and pray'd to, The Duke himfelf, the Princes, all the Nobles, The cries of Infants, Bed-rid Fathers, Virgins; Prethee find out a better Caufe, a handfomer, This will undo thee too: People will ipit at thee, The Devil himfelf wou'd be afham'd of this Caufe; Becaufe my hafte made me forget the Ceremony, The prefent Danger ev'ry where, muft my Life fatisfie?

Bor. It mutt, and shall. Arch. O base ungrateful People, Have ye no other Swords to cut my Throat with But mine own Noblenefs? I confeis, I took 'em, The Vow not yet abfolv'd I hung 'em up with : Wore 'em, fought in 'em, gilded 'em again In the fierce Tartars Bloods; for you I took 'em, For your peculiar Safety, Lord, for all, I wore 'em for my Country's health, that groan'd then: Took from the Temple, to preferve the Temple; That holy Place, and all the facred Monuments, The reverend Shrines of Saints, ador'd and honour'd, Had been confum'd to Ashes, their own Sacrifice; Had I been flack, or flaid that Abfolution, No Priest had liv'd to give it. My own Honour, Cure of my Country, murder me? Bor. No, no, Sir, I shall force that from ye, will make this Caufe light too. Away with him: I shall pluck down that Heart, Sir.

Arch. Break it thou may'st; but if it bend for Pity, Dogs and Kites eat it. Come, I am Honour's Martyr.

SCENE VI.

Enter Duke, and Burris.

Duke. Exceed my Warrant? Bur. You know he loves him not. Duke. He dares as well eat Death, as do it, eat Wildfire.
Through a few Fears I mean to try his Goodnels,
That I may find him fit to wear here, Burris;
I know Boroskie hates him, to Death hates him,
I know he's a Serpent too, a fwoln one, [Noife-within.
But I have pull'd his Sting out. What Noife is that? (Gates. The. within. Down with 'em, down with 'em, down with the Sol. within. Stand, fland, fland. Putf. within. Fire the Palace before ye.

Bur. Upon my Life the Soldier, Sir, the Soldier, A miferable time is come.

Enter Gentleman,

Gent. Oh fave him,

Upon

OT

Upon my Knees, my Heart's Knees, fave Lord Archas, We are undone elfe. Duke. Dares he touch his Body?

Gent. He racks him fearfully, most fearfully. Duke. Away Burris, Take Men and take him from him, clap him up, And if I live, I'll find a strange Death for him.

And if I live, I'll find a strange Death for him. [Ex. Bur Are the Soldiers broke in? Gent. By this time fure they are, Sir, They beat the Gates extreamly, beat the People.

Duke. Get me a Guard about me; make fure the Lodgings, And speak the Soldiers fair. Gent. Pray Heav'n that take, Sir. [Exe.

Enter Putskic, Ancient, and Soldiers, with Torches.

Putf. Give us the General, we'll fire the Court elfe, Render him fafe and well. Anc. Do not fire the Cellar, '(ther, There's excellent Wine in't, Captain, and though it be cold Wea-I do not love it mull'd; bring out the General,

We'll light ye fuch a Bone-fire elfe: Where are ye? Speak, or we'll tofs your Turrets; peep out of your Hives, We'll finoke ye elfe: Is not that a Nofe there? Put out that Nofe again, and if thou dar'lt But blow it before us: Now he creeps out on's Burrough.

Enter Gentleman.

Putf. Give us the General.

Gent. Yes, Gentlemen; or any thing ye can defire. Anc. You Musk-cat.

Cordevant-skin, we will not take your Answer.

Putf. Where is the Duke? Speak fuddenly, and fend him hither. Anc. Or we'll fo fry your Buttocks.

Gent. Good sweet Gentlemen-

Anc. We are neither good nor fweet, we are Soldiers, And you Mifcreants that abufe the General.

Give fire my Boys, 'tis a dark Evening,

Let's light 'em to their Lodgings.

Enter Olympia, Honora, Viola, Theodore, and Women: Hon. Good Brother be not fierce.

The. I will not hurt her; fear not, fweet Lady.

Olym. Nay, do what you pleafe, Sir, I have a Sorrow that exceeds all yours,

And more contemns all Dauger.

Enter Duke, above.

The. Where is the Duke?

Duke. He's here; what wou'd ye Soldiers? Wherefore troop ye Like mutinous Mad-men thus? The. Give me my Father.

Puts? Anc. Give us our General. The. Set him here before us, Ye fee the Pledge we have got; ye fee the Torches;

All shall to Ashes, as I live, immediately, .

A thousand Lives for one. Duke. But hear me?

Puts. No, we come not to Dispute.

Enter

Enter Archas, and Burris. The. By Heav'n I fwear he's rackt and whipt. Hon. Oh my poor Father! Putf. Burn, kill and burn. Arch Hold, hold, I fay: Hold Soldiers, On your Allegiance hold. The. We must-not. Arch. Hold: I fwear by Heav'n he is a barbarous Traitor firs firft, A Villain, and a Stranger to Obedience, Never my Soldier more, nor Friend to Honour. Why did you use your old Man thus? Thus cruelly Torture his poor weak Body? I ever lov'd ye. Duke. Forget in me these wrongs, most noble Archas. Arch. I have balm enough for all my hurts: Weep no more; Sir, A satisfaction for a thousand Sorrows. I do believe you innocent, a good Man, And Heav'n forgive that naughty thing that wrong'd me. Why look ye wild, my Friends? Why ftare ye on me? I charge ye, as ye are Men, my Men, my Lovers, As ye are honeft faithful Men, fair Soldiers, Let down your Anger: Is not this our Soveraign? The Head of Mercy, and of Law? Who dares then But Rebels, fcorning Law, appear thus violent? Is this a place for Swords? For threatning Fires? The Reverence of this House dares any touch, But with obedient Knees, and pious Duties? Are we not all his Subjects? All fworn to him? Has not he pow'r to punish our Offences? And do we not daily fall into them? Affure your felves-I did offend, and highly, grievouily, This good, fweet Prince I offended, my Life forfeited. Which yet his Mercy, and his old Love met with, And only let me feel his light Rod this way : Ye are to thank him for your General, Pray for his Life and Fortune; fwear your Bloods for him. Ye are Offenders too, daily Offenders, Proud Infolencies dwell in your Hearts, and ye do 'em, Do 'em against his Peace, his Law, his Person; Ye fee he only Sorrows for your Sins, And where his Pow'r might persecute, forgives ye: For shame put up your Swords, for Honesty, For Orders fake, and whofe ye are, my Soldiers Be not so rude. The: They have drawn Blood from you, Sir. Arch. That was the Blood rebell'd, the naughty Blood,

The proud provoking Blood; 'tis well 'tis out, Boy; Give you Example first, draw out, and orderly.

Arch. Honeft and high Example, As thou wilt have my Bleffing follow thee, Inherit all mine Honours: Thank ye Theodore, My worthy Son.

The. If harm come, thank your felf, Sir, I must obey ye.

Arch. Captain, you know the way now : A good Man, and a Valiant, you were ever, Inclin'd to honeft things; I thank ye, Captain Soldiers, I thank ye all: And love me still, But do not love me lo you lose Allegiance, Love that above your Lives: Once more I thank ye.

Duke. Bring him to Reft, and let our Cares wait on him; Thou excellent old Man, thou top of Honour, Where Juffice and Obedience only build, Thou flock of Virtue, how am I bound to love thee! In all thy noble ways to follow thee!

Bur. Remember him that vext him, Sir. Duke. Remember? When I forget that Villain, and to pay him For all his Mifchiefs, may all good Thoughts forget me.

Arch. I am very fore. Duke. Bring him to Bed with eafe; Gentlemen,

For every Stripe I'll drop a Tear to wash 'em, And in my fad Repentance _____ Arch. 'Tis too much, I have a Life yet left to gain that Love, Sir. Excunt.

ACT V. SCENE I.

Enter Duke, Burris, and Gentlemen.

Duke. HOW does Lord Archas? Bur. But weak, and't pleafe ye; Yet all the helps that Art can, are applied to him; His Heart's untoucht, and whole yet; and no doubt, Sir, His Mind being found, his Body foon will follow.

Duke. O that bale Knave that wrong'd him, without leave too; But I shall find an hour to give him Thanks for't; He's fast, I hope.

Bur. As fast as Irons can keep him: But the most fearful Wretch ----

Duke. He has a Confcience,

A cruel flinging one I warrant him,

A loaden one: But what news of the Soldier?

I did not like their parting, 'twas too fullen.

Bur. That they keep still, and I fear a worse Clap; They are drawn out of the Town, and stand in Counsels, Hatching unquiet Thoughts, and cruel Purposes: I went my felf unto 'em, talkt with the Captains, Whom I found fraught with nothing but loud Murmurs, And desperate Curses, sounding these Words often, Like Trumpets to their Angers. We are ruin'd, Our Services turn'd to Disgraces, Mischiefs; Our brave old General, like one had pilfer'd, Tortur'd, and whipt: The Colonel's Eyes, like Torches, Blaze every where, and fright fair Peace. Gent. Yet worse, Sir;

The News is currant now, they mean to leave ye, Leave their Allegiance; and under Olin's Charge, The Bloody Enemy, march ftraight against ye.

Bur. I have heard this too, Sir.

Duke. This must be prevented, And fuddenly, and warily.

Bur. 'Tis time, Sir; But what to minister, or how? Duke. Go in with me,

And there we'll think upon't : Such Blows as these Equal Defences ask, else they displease.

SCENE II.

Enter Petesca, and Gentlewoman.

Pet. Lord, what a coil has here been with these Soldiers! They are cruel Fellows.

Wom. And yet methought we found 'em Handfome enough; I'll tell thee true, Petefca, I lookt for other manner of dealings from 'em. And had prepar'd my felf: But where's my Lady? Pet. In her old Dumps within: Monstrous melancholy; Sure the was mad of this Wench. Wom. And the had been a Man, She wou'd have been a great deal madder, I am glad the is fhifted, Pet. 'Twas a wicked thing for me to betray her, And yet I must confess the flood in our Lights. Enter Alinda. What young thing's this? Alin. Good Morrow beauteous Gentlewomen : 'Pray ye is the Princess ftirring yet? Wom. He has her Face. Pet. Her very Tongue, and Tone too: Her Youth upon him.

Two filver drops of Dew were never liker.

Alin. Gracious Lady-

Olym. That pleasant Pipe he has too.

Alin. Being my Happiness to pass by this way,...

And having, as I understand by Letters,

A Sister in your virtuous Service, Madam-Olym. O now my Heart, my Heart akes. Alin. All the Comfort

My poor Youth has, all that my hopes have built me, I thought it my first Duty, my best Service, Here to arrive first, humbly to thank your Grace For my poor Sifter, humbly to thank your Noblenefs, A DESCRIPTION OF That bounteous Goodness in ye. AN LOAD THE REAL PROPERTY.

Olym. 'Tis he certainly.

Alin. That fpring of favour to her; with my Life, Madam, If any fuch most happy means might meet me, To shew my Thankfulness. And you I woll conclude the time

Olym. What have I done, Fool!

Alin. She came a Stranger to your Grace, no Courtier; Nor of that curious Breed befits your Service, Yet one, I dare affure my Soul, that lov'd ye Before the faw ye; doted on your Virtues; Before the knew those fair Eyes, long'd to read 'cm You only had her Prayers, you her Wishes;

And that one hope to be yours once, preferv'd her. Olym. I have done wickedly. Alin. A little Beauty, Such as a Cottage breeds, the brought along with her : And yet our Country-eyes esteem'd it much too: But for her beauteous Mind, forget great Lady, I am her Brother, and let me speak a Stranger, Since the was able to beget a Thought, 'twas honeft. The daily fludy how to fit your Services, Truly to tread that virtuous Path you walk in, So fir'd her honeft Soul, we thought her Sainted; I presume she is still the same : I wou'd fain see her, For, Madam, 'tis no little Love I owe her. Olym. Sir, fuch a Maid there was, I had-Alin. There was, Madam? Olym. O my poor Wench: Eyes, I will ever curfe ye For your Credulity. Alinda. Alin. That's her Name, Madam. Olym. Give me a little leave, Sir, to lament her. Alin. Is the dead, Lady? Olym. Dead, Sir, to my Service. She is gone, pray ye ask no further: Alin. I obey, Madam: Gone? Now must I lament too: Said ye gone, Madam? Olym. Gone, gone, for ever. Alin. That's a cruel faying: Her Honour too? Olym. Prithee look angry on me, And if thou ever lov'ft her, spit upon me: Do something like a Brother, like a Friend, And do not only fay thou lov'ft her-Alin. Ye amaze me. Olym. I ruin'd her, I wrong'd her, I abus'd her; Poor innocent Soul, I flung her; fweet Alinda, Thou virtuous Maid. My Soul now calls thee Virtuous. Why do ye not rail now at me? Alin. For what, Lady? Olym. Call me base treach'rous Woman. Alin. Heav'n defend me. Olym. Rashly I thought her false, and put her from me. Rashly, and madly I betray'd her Modesty, Put her to wander, Heav'n knows where: Nay, more Sir, Stuck a black Brand upon her. Alin. 'Twas not well, Lady. Olym. ? I'was damnable : She loving me fo dearly, Never poor Wench lov'd fo: Sir, believe,

Duke. Have ye been with 'em? Gent. Yes, and't please your Grace, But no Persuasion serves 'em, nor no Promise, They are fearful angry, and by this time, Sir, Upon their March to the Enemy.

Duke. They must be stopt.

Enter Burris.

Gent. Ay, but what force is able? And what Leader Duke. How now, have you been with Archas? Bur. Yes, and't pleafe ye,

And told him all: He frets like a chaf'd Lion, And calls for his Arms, and all those honest Courtiers. That dare draw Swords.

Duke. Is he able to do any thing? Bur. His Mind is well enough; and where his Charge is, Let him be ne'er so sore, 'tis a full Army. Duke. Who commands the Rebels? Bur. The young Colonel, That makes the old Man almost mad. He fwears, Sir, He will not spare his Son's Head for the Dukedom. Duke. Is the Court in Arms? Bur. As fast as they can bustle, Every Man mad to go now: Inspir'd strangely, As if they were to force the Enemy: I besech your Grace to give me leave. Duke. Pray go Sir, And look to the old Man well; take up all fairly. And let no Blood be spilt; take general Pardons, And quench this fury with fair Peace. Bur: I shall Sir, Or feakit with my Service; they are Villains: The Court is up: Good Sir, go strengthen 'em, Your Royal Sight will make 'cm fcorn all Dangers; The General needs no Proof.

Duke. Come let's go view 'cm.

Enter Burris.

Gent. Ay, but what force is able? And what Leader Duke. How now, have you been with Archas? Bur. Yes, and't please ye,

And told him all: He frets like a chaf'd Lion, And calls for his Arms, and all those honest Courtiers That dare draw Swords.

Duke. Is he able to do any thing? Bur. His Mind is well enough; and where his Charge is, Let him be ne'er so fore, 'tis a full Army. Duke. Who commands the Rebels? Bur. The young Colonel, That makes the old Man almost mad. He swears, Sir, He will not spare his Son's Head for the Dukedom. Duke. Is the Court in Arms? Bur. As fast as they can bustle, Every Man mad to go now: Infpir'd ftrangely, As if they were to force the Enemy: I besech your Grace to give me leave. Duke. Pray go Sir, And look to the old Man well; take up all fairly. And let no Blood be spilt; take general Pardons, And quench this fury with fair Peace. Bur: I shall Sir, Or feakit with my Service; they are Villains: The Court is up: Good Sir, go ftrengthen 'em, Your Royal Sight will make 'em fcorn all Dangers; The General needs no Proof.

Duke. Come let's go view 'cm.

SCENE IV.

Enter Theodore, Putskie, Ancient, Soldiers, Drums, and Colours.

The. 'Tis known we are up, and marching; no Submiffion, No promife of bafe Peace can cure our Maladies, We have fuffer'd beyond all repair of Honour: Your valiant old Man's whipt; whipt, Gentlemen, Whipt like a Slave: That Flefh that never trembled, Nor fhrunk one Sinew at a thousand Charges, That noble Body rib'd in Arms, the Enemy So often shook at, and then shun'd like Thunder, That Body's torn with Lashes.

Anc. Let's turn Head.

Putf. Turn nothing Gentlemen, let's march on fairly, Unless they charge us.

The. Think still of his Abuses, and keep your Angers. Anc. He was whipt like a Top,

I never faw a Whore fo lac'd: Court School-butter? Is this their Diet? I'll drefs 'em one running Banquet: What Oracle can alter us? Did not we fee him? See him we loy'd?

'T was the most dutcous Wench, the best Companion, When I was pleas'd, the happiest, and the gladdest, 'The modestest sweet Nature dwelt within her: I faw all this, I knew all this, I lov'd it, I doated on it too, and yet I kill'd it: O what have I forsaken? What have I lost?

Alin. Madam, I'll take my leave, fince the is wandring, "Tis fit I know no relt.

Olym. Will you go too, Sir: I have not wrong'd you yet, if you dare truft me, For yet I love Alinda there, I honour her, I love to look upon those Eyes that speak her, To read the Face again, (Modesty keep me,) Alinda, in that Shape. But why shou'd you truft me, 'Twas I betray'd your Sister, I undid her; And, believe me, gentle Youth, 'tis I weep for her: Appoint what Penance you please: But stay then, And see me perform it: Ask what Honour this Place Is able to heap on ye, or what Wealth: In following me will like ye, my care of ye, Which for your Sister's fake, for your own Goodness

Alin. Not all the Honour Earth has, now fhe's gone, Lady, Not all the Favour; yet if I fought Preferment, Under your bounteous Grace I wou'd only take it. Peace reft upon ye: One fad Tear every Day, For poor Alinda's fake, 'tis fit ye pay.

Olym. A thouland, noble Youth, and when I fleep, Even in my filver Slumbers still I'll weep.

Duker.

Enter Duke, and Gentlemen.

Duke. Have ye been with 'em? Gent. Yes, and't please your Grace, But no Persuasion serves 'em, nor no Promise, They are fearful angry, and by this time, Sir, Upon their March to the Enemy,

Duke. They must be stopt.

Enter Burris.

Gent. Ay, but what force is able? And what Leader Duke. How now, have you been with Archas? Bur. Yes, and't pleafe ye,

And told him all: He frets like a chaf'd Lion, And calls for his Arms, and all those honest Courtiers That dare draw Swords.

Duke. Is he able to do any thing? Bur. His Mind is well enough; and where his Charge is, Let him be ne'er so sore, 'tis a full Army. Duke. Who commands the Rebels? Bur. The young Colonel, That makes the old Man almost mad. He swears, Sir, He will not spare his Son's Head for the Dukedom. Duke. Is the Court in Arms? Bur. As fast as they can bustle, Every Man mad to go now: Inspir'd strangely, As if they were to force the Enemy: I besech your Grace to give me leave. Duke. Pray go Sir, And look to the old Man well; take up all fairly. And let no Blood be spilt; take general Pardons, And quench this fury with fair Peace. Bur: I shall Sir, Or feakit with my Service; they are Villains: The Court is up: Good Sir, go strengthen 'em, Your Royal Sight will make 'em fcorn all Dangers; The General needs no Proof.

SCENE IV.

Enter Theodore, Putskie, Ancient, Soldiers, Drums, and Colours.

The. 'Tis known we are up, and marching; no Submiffion, No promife of bafe Peace can cure our Maladies, We have fuffer'd beyond all repair of Honour: Your valiant old Man's whipt; whipt, Gentlemen, Whipt like a Slave: That Flefh that never trembled, Nor fhrunk one Sinew at a thousand Charges, That noble Body rib'd in Arms, the Enemy So often shook at, and then shun'd like Thunder, That Body's torn with Lashes.

Anc. Let's turn Head.

Putf. Turn nothing Gentlemen, let's march on fairly, Unless they charge us.

The. Think still of his Abuses, and keep your Angers. Anc. He was whipt like a Top,

I never faw a Whore fo lac'd: Court School-butter? Is this their Diet? I'll drefs 'em one running Banquet: What Oracle can alter us? Did not we fee him? See him we loy'd?

The. And though we did obey him, THE IS WHEN Forc'd by his Reverence for that time; is't fit, Gentlemen, My noble Friends, is't fit we Men, and Soldiers, Live to endure this, and look on too?

Putf. Forward: They may call back the Sun as foon, flay Tir, Prescribe a Law to, Death, as we endure this.

The. They will make ye all fair Promises. Caster in a lot of the lot of the Anc. We care not.

The. Use all their Arts upon ye.

Anc. Hang all their Arts. Putf. And happily they'll bring him with 'em.

Anc. March apace then, he is old and cannot overtake us. Putf. Say he do.

Anc. We'll run away with him : They shall never fee him more : The Truth is, we'll hear nothing, ftop at nothing, Confider nothing but our way; believe nothing, Not though they fay their Prayers: Be content with nothing, But the knocking out their Brains: And last, do nothing But ban 'em and curse 'em, till we come to kill 'em.

The. Remove then forwards bravely; keep your Minds whole, And the next time we face 'em, shall be fatal. [Exeunt.

SCENE V.

Enter Archas, Duke, Eurris, Gentlemen, and Soldiers.

Arch. Peace to your Grace; take rest Sir, they are before us. Gent. They are Sir, and upon the March. Exit Duke.

Arch. Lord Burris, Take you those Horse and coast 'em :. Upon the first advantage, If they will not flack their March, Charge 'em up roundly, By that time I'll come in. Exit.

Bur. I'll do it truly.

Gent. How do you feel your felf, Sir?

Arch. Well, I thank ye; A little weak, but Anger shall supply that; the Let's mail in the You will all fand bravely to it? All. While we have Lives, Sir.

Arch. Ye speak like Gentlemen: I'll make the Knaves know, The proudest, and the strongest hearted Rebel, They have a Law to live in, and they shall have; Beat up apace, by this time he is upon 'em, [Drum within. And Sword, but hold me now, thou shalt play ever. [Exeunt. Enter Drums beating, Theodore, Putskie, Ancient, and their Soldiers. The. Stand, Itand, ftand close, and fure; THE TWO DON'S

Ane.

Enter Burris, and one or two Soldiers. The Horse will charge us.

Anc. Let 'em come on, we have Provender fit for 'em. Putf. Here comes Lord Burris, Sir, I think to Parly. 7 he., You are welcome, noble Sir, I hope to our part. Bur. No, valiant Colonel, I am come to chide ye, To pity ye; to kill ye, if these fail me; Fie, what Difhonour feek ye! What black Infamy! Why do ye draw out thus? Draw all Shame with ye?. Are these fit Cares in Subjects? I command yc Lay down your Arms again, move in that Peace, That fair Obedience you were bred in. Putf. Charge us. We come not here to argue. The. Charge up bravely, And hotly too, we have hot Splcens to meet ye, Hot as the Shames are offer'd us. Enter Archas, Gentlemen and Soldiers. Bur. Look behind ye. Do you fee that old Man? do you know him, Soldiers? Puts. Your Father, Sir, believe me-Bur. You know his Marches, (ou have feen his Executions: Is it yet Peace? The. We'll die here first. Bur. Farewel: You'll hear on's prefently. Arch. Stay, Burris: This is too poor, too beggarly a Body to bear the Honour of a Charge from me, fort of tatter'd Rebels; go provide Gallowfes; e are troubled with hot Heads, I'll cool ye prefently: hefe look like Men that were my Soldiers low I behold 'em nearly, and more narrowly, ly honeft Friends: Where got they these fair Figures? Vhere did they steal these Shapes? Bur. They are ftruck already. Arch. Do you fee that Fellow there, that goodly Rebel? le looks as like a Captain I lov'd tenderly: Fellow of a Faith indeed. Bur. He has sham'd him. Arch. And that that bears the Colours there, most certain o like an'Ancient of mine own, a brave Fellow, loving and obedient, that believe me, Burris, am amaz'd and troubled: And were it not know the genral Goodness of my People, he Duty, and the Truth, the stedfast Honesty, nd am affur'd they would as foon turn Devils s Rebels to Allegiance, for mine Honour. Bur. Here needs no Wars. Put/. I pray forgive us, Sir. Anc. Good General forgive us, or ule your Sword, our Words are double Death. All. Good noble General. 71

Bur.

Bur. Pray, Sir, be merciful.

Arch. Weep out your Shames firft, Yc.make me Fool for Company: Fie Soldiers, My Soldiers too, and play these Tricks? What's he th re? Sure I have seen his Face too; yes, most certain I have a Son, but I hope he is not here now, Wou'd much refemble this Man, wondrous near him, Just of his height and making too; you seem a Leader.

The. Good Sir, do not fhame me more : I know your Anger, And less than Death I look not for.

Arch. You shall be my Charge, Sir, it feems you want Foes, When, you would make your Friends your Enemies.

A running Blood ye have, but I shall cure ye. Bur. Good Sir-

Anc. No more, Good Lord : Beat forward Soldiers : And you, march in the Rear, you have loft your Places.

The Later

And

Enter Duke, Olympia, Honora, and Viola.

Duke. You shall not be thus fullen still with me, Sister, You do the most unnobly to be angry, For as I have a Soul I never touch'd her, I never yet knew one unchaft Thought in her: I must confess, I lov'd her; as who would not? I must confess I doated on her strangely, I offer'd all, yet fo ftrong was her Honour, So fortify'd as fair, no Hope could reach her, And while the World beheld this, and confirm'd it, Why would you be so jealous? Olym. Good Sir, pardon me, I feel sufficiently my Folly's Penance, And am asham'd, that Shame a thousand Sorrows Feed on continually; wou'd I had never feen her, Or with a clearer Judgement look'd upon her: She was too good for me, fo"Heav'nly good, Sir, Nothing but Heav'n can love that Soul sufficiently, Where I shall fee her once again.

Enter Burris.

Duke. No more Tears, If the be within the Dukedom, we'll recover her: Welcome Lord Burris, fair News I hope.

Bur. Most fair, Sir, Without one drop of Blood these Wars are ended, The Soldier cool'd again, indeed asham'd, Sir, 73 And all his Anger ended. Duke. Where's Lord Archas? Bur. Not far off, Sir; with him his valiant Son, Head of this Fire, but now a Prisoner, And if by your fweet Mercy not prevented, I fear some fatal stroke. [Drums. Enter Archas, Theodore, Gentlemen, and Soldiers. Duke. I hear the Drums beat, Welcome my worthy Friend. Arch. Stand where ye are, Sir, Even as you love your Country, move not forward, Nor plead for Peace till I have done a Juffice, A Justice on this Villain, none of mine now, A Justice on this Rebel. Hon. O my Brother! Ach. This fatal' Firebrand Duke. Forget not, old Man, He is thy Son, of thine own Blood. Arch. In these Veins No Treachery e'er harbour'd yet, no Mutiny, I ne'er gave Life to lewd and headftrong Rebels. Duke. 'Tis his first Fault. Arch. Not of thousand, Sir; Or were it so, it is a Fault to mighty, So ftrong against the nature of all Mercy, His Mother, were the living, wou'd not weep for him, He dare not fay he wou'd live. The. I must not, Sir, While you fay 'tis not fit: Your Grace's Mercy, Not to my Life apply'd, but to my Fault, Sir; The World's forgiveness next; last, on my Knees, Sir, I humbly beg, Do not take from me yet the Name of Father, Strike me a thousand Blows; but let me die yours. Arch. He moves my Heart: 1 must be sudden with him. I shall grow faint elfe in my Execution, Come, come Sir, you have feen Death; now meet him bravely. Duke. Hold, hold I fay, a little hold, confider Thou hast no more Sons, Archas, to inherit thee. Arch. Yes, Sir, I have another, and a Nobler: No Treason shall inherit me: Young Archas, A Boy as fweet as young, my Brother breeds him, My noble Brother Briskie breeds him nobly, Him let your Favour find : Give him your Honour. Enter Putskie (alias Briskie) and Alinda, (alias Archas.) Putf. Thou haft no Child left, Archas, none to inherit thee, If thou firik'ft that firoke now. Behold young Archas; Behold thy Brother here, thou bloody Brother, As bloody to this Sacrifice as thou art.

Heave up thy Sword, and mine's heav'd up : Strike, Archas,

K

And

74 And I'll strike too as fuddenly, as deadly : Have Mercy, and I'll have Mercy: The Duke gives it. Look upon all thefe, how they weep it from thee, Chuse quickly, and begin. Duke. On your Obedience, On your Allegiance fave him. Arch. Take him to ye, Soldiers (bout And Sirrah, be an honeft Man, ye have reafon: I thank ye, worthy Brother: Welcome, Child, Mine own sweet Child. Duke. Why was this Boy conceal'd thus?" Puts. Your Grace's Pardon. Fearing the Vow you made against my Brother, And that your Anger wou'd not only light On him, but find out all his Family, This young Boy, to preferve from after Danger; Like a young Wench, hither I brought; my felf In the habit of an ordinary Captain Disguis'd, got Entertainment, and ferv'd here, That I might still be ready to all Fortunes: That Boy your Grace took, nobly entertain'd him, But thought a Girl. Alinda, Madam: Olym. Stand away, And let me look upon him. Duke. My young Mistrefs? This is a ftrange Metamorphofis, Alinda? Alin. Your Grace's humble Servant. Duke. Come hither, Sifter. I dare yet fcarce believe mine Eyes: How they view one another Doft thou not love this Boy well? Olym. I should lye elfe, trust me, extremely lye, Sir. Duke. Didst thou never wish, Olympia, It might be thus? Olym. A thousand times: Duke. Here take him: Nay, do not blush: I do not jeft; kiss sweetly: Boy, ye kils faintly, Boy; Heav'n give ye comfort; Teach him, he'll quickly learn: There's two Hearts eas'd now: Arch. You do me too much Honour, Sir. Duke. No, Archas, But all I can, I will. Can you love me? Speak truly. Hon: Yes, Sir, dearly. Duke. Come hither, Viola, can you love this Man? Vio. I'll do the best I can, Sir. Duke. Seal it, Burris, We'll all to Church together inftantly: And then a vie for Boys. Stay, bring Boroskie. Enter Bososkie. I had almost forgot that lump of mischief. There Archas, take the Enemy to Honour, The

The Knave to worth: Do with him what thou wilt. Arch. Then to my Sword again; you to your Prayers; Wash off your Villanies, you feel the Burthen. Bor. Forgive me e're I die, most honest Archas; 'Tis too much Honour that I perish thus; O strike my Faults to kill them, that no Memory, No black and blafted Infamy hereafter-Arch. Come, are ye ready? Bor. Yes. Arch. And truly Penitent, to make your way ftraight? Bor. Thus I wash off my Sins. Arch. Stand up, and live then, And live an honeft Man; I fcorn Men's Ruins:-Take him again, Sir, try him: And believe This thing will be a perfect Man. Duke. I take him. Bor. And when I fail those hopes, Heav'ns hopes fail me. Duke. You are old: No more Wars, Father: Theodore take you the Charge, be-General. The. All good blefs ye. Duke. And my good Father, you dwell in my Bolom, From you rife all my good Thoughts: When I would think And examine Time for one that's fairly noble, And the fame Man through all the ftreights of Virtue, Upon this filver Book I'll look, and read him.

Now forward merrily to Hymen's Rites, To Joys, and Revels, Sports, and he that can Most honour Archas, is the noblest Man.
