REAL SLAYER OF HERMIT HAS ADMITTED ACT

Odd Case Comes Up Upon Granting New Trial Today

MAN IS SERVING LIFE Witness Against Him Finally Admits He Helped

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 17.—Geo. Stillwell, aged witness who gave important testimony in the trial of A. J. Weston for the alleged murder of Robert Krug, aged recluse, has confessed that he and not Weston was the murderer, it was announced here today. The confession was said to have been made last night.

Mrs. A. J. Weston, wife of the man who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the deed, but who last week returned to Bend, Ore., for a new trial, the woman who aided in wringing his alleged confession from Stillwell.

A. J. Weston was convicted of murdering the old man. In November, 1920, he was sentenced to life imprisonment. Stillwell gave evidence which fastened the crime upon Weston.

The two of them, with Joe Wilson, were working as moonshiners in the mountains near Sisters, not far from Krug's ranch. Stillwell testified at Weston's trial. Weston thought the old man had money and declared he would not rest until he got it. One morning, Stillwell testified at the trial, he found Krug's hut burned down and the old man's whitehead bones in the ruins. Weston secretly confessed the crime to him and later served on the coroner's jury which found Krug's death to have resulted from accidental causes, he said.

But Stillwell, according to his testimony at Weston's trial, could not endure the conscience-tearing strain of hearing the knowledge of his guilt and gave evidence which resulted in Weston's drawing a life sentence for the fatal murder.

Weston's friends appealed and a new trial was granted. It was while evidence was being gathered for this new trial that Mrs. Weston entered the lists and pointing the finger of accusation at Stillwell, insisted upon his arrest. He was found early this week in Portland.

"Yes, I was there," Stillwell was quoted as saying last night, breaking down under the relentless cross-examination of three cold faced officers. And then he was alleged to have related how it was done.

Wilson was away, according to the alleged confession and he and Weston went to the old man's home slugged him as he came from his barn, and taking him into his cabin tortured him to discover his cache of hidden wealth. Getting nothing but $16, they killed Krug and burned the cabin over his body, he was said to have admitted.

CONSTANCE SAYS IT IS CASE OF ART COMING FIRST

Denies She Has Intention of Asking Divorce From John

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—Returning from Avalon Island, commonly known as Catalina, where she has been on location for the past two weeks, Constance Talmadge, noted screen star, issued a statement indignantly denying reports from New York that she is about to file suit for divorce from her wealthy husband, John Piaglou. Says Constance: "Can't I make the public understand that our separation is the friendliest kind of one? I have absolutely no thought of divorce and I don't know how these rumors start. Mr. Piaglou doesn't want me to continue my screen career. My career is almost the most vital thing in my life. There is where the matter stands. I am giving more happiness to people by continuing my career than continuing as Mrs. John Piaglou. But don't take that as an indication that I am about to sue for divorce. Because I am not I think my husband will see the light soon."

A wealthy young Greek tobacco merchant whom she married during the war and until recently half of the district court here, dropped dead this morning while attending a divorce trial. Heart disease was given as the cause.

FOUND SLAIN
PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 17.—The body of John Arthur O'Connor, 35, "friend of hoboes," was found this morning with the head almost severed, crammed into a potato bin in his little whitewashed cabin on Hayden Island when deputy sheriffs went to the island to investigate a report of O'Connor's mysterious disappearance.

Says Insanity Plea Is Undermining the Law Administration

"Somebody," says Henry James in his comments on the news of the day, "has made the charge that the insanity plea is undermining the administration of American law."

With this as a text Mr. James speaks in clearly understandable language what is on his mind and he says that probably not one case in a hundred where the plea of insanity is advanced is there any basis in fact for it. Mr. James has no patience with dishonesty and methods that smack of dishonesty and it is because the reader senses this in his comments that Mr. James holds the respect and esteem of his readers.

Mr. Foley in "The Listening Post" tonight discusses the words used by men in moments of achievement and defends them even if they were not said. "It was the thing they should have said," asserts Mr. Foley and his remarks are interesting.

Dr. Frank Crane asks the question, "Is man a game rooster?" His answer is worth reading. Editorials full of thought and features that command attention will be found on the editorial page this evening.

Sister Cities Must Work Together For Big Future

Glendale and Los Angeles are sister cities. Their future is bound up together. The greater becomes Los Angeles the greater assured is Glendale.

Under these circumstances the two should work together in harmony. The better the transportation between the two the better for both. Already a large proportion of property owners in this city earn their money in Los Angeles and spend much of it in Glendale. This is good for both. It helps relieve the congested living districts of the larger city and it helps build up the smaller city.

As Los Angeles advances toward a million population Glendale as surely marches toward 50,000 population. Los Angeles is the advertised magnet of Southern California. Every tourist and every home-seeker makes that wonder city his or her objective. And then, when here, they spread out over the entire sunshine belt. They see Glendale among other attractive spots and those to whom this valley city particularly appeals will come again or will buy home sites and remain here.

Similarly the prosperity of Los Angeles overflows into Glendale. The more business done in Los Angeles the larger the pay rolls that will find their way into this valley. And the larger the pay rolls the better for business in Glendale. The sister cities must work and advance together for the natural development and enrichment of both.

Arrest in Bombing Outrage In Wall Street Made In Warsaw

Wolf Lindenfeld, Watched for Long Time by Government Agent Is Arrested by Operative and Confesses, Involving Many Others in Bombing

(Copyright 1921 by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Additional arrests in the Wall street bomb explosion case are expected to be made within the next 48 hours by Burns detectives and agents of the department of justice, as a result of the confession obtained from Wolf Lindenfeld in Warsaw by a Burns detective operating for the United States government.

"The Burns detective agency has been working steadily on this case since the day of the explosion," Sherman Burns, secretary-treasurer of the agency, told the United Press today.

"We accumulated a mass of evidence. Much of it concerns Wolf Lindenfeld. We have been in touch with Lindenfeld, or Linde, as he was known in New York, for a long time. When William J. Burns was appointed director of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, we turned over to the government all of the evidence the Burns agency had collected in this case, including what we had on Lindenfeld. The department immediately took up the trail. Silvester Cosgrove, who arrested Lindenfeld in Warsaw, worked on the case for us and was transferred to the government when the department secured the evidence we had.

"In June, prior to the Wall street explosion, we had a direct tip that an effort was going to be made to explode a bomb in the financial district. I went personally to the leading bankers in Wall street and told them of the warning we had received."

It has been established that

Lindenfeld was related to Rosa Luxemburg, the well-known German anarchist, who was killed in Berlin in 1919.

In New York Lindenfeld was presumably associated with a Slavic news agency and is alleged to have used this connection to cover up his real activities in connection with anarchistic propaganda work. He lived in New York and cities in the East for over three years, to the definite knowledge of the Burns agency.

"Lindenfeld asserted that he directly represented the Third International in the United States," it was said today by a detective assigned to the case.

"At one time it was known that in an effort to ascertain what the government and certain private agencies were doing to combat anarchistic activity in this country, he 'planted' himself as an employee of a nationally known detective agency. This agency ascertained his purpose almost at once and for a long period used Lindenfeld as a decoy on his own 'Red' associates. It was through this connection that some very valuable information was secured."

Most of the men named by Lindenfeld in his statement to the department of justice operatives in Warsaw as being associated with the Wall street bomb explosion plot are now in Europe, it is said. Only two are believed to be still in the United States.

New York's "bomb squad," which has been working on the case for a year, today discredited the alleged confession of Lindenfeld.

PRETTY GIRLS TAG PEOPLE FOR FUND

Officers and Members of Women's Organization Have Drive

TAG PRICE IS 25 CENTS Girls Asking Every One to Buy Tag for Float Fund

"Will you please buy a tag for the Pasadena tournament of roses float?" This is the salutation of a group of sweet young women stationed at all of the business corners and in most of the stores of Glendale today.

DR. LAURA BROWN

The Glendale Business and Professional Women's Club is today cooperating with the chamber of commerce to raise funds for the float and the first effort to raise funds is the tag day sale. Tags are being sold for 25 cents each, the proceeds to be turned over to James M. Rhoades, secretary of the chamber of commerce and treasurer of the float fund committee, to be used by L. W. Chobe in the work of decoration.

Another plan to raise funds for the float to be worked out by the Business and Professional Women's Club, is a benefit matinee to be given at a later date at the Glendale theater. Manager Howe has agreed to donate a percentage of the proceeds of one afternoon performance to the float fund.

People who have not contributed should buy a tag and wear it as evidence of having done something toward boosting Glendale at the tournament of roses.

"Glendale has never fallen down in any civic proposition, so let us all work together and show the world that the people of Glendale have sufficient civic pride to dig down and give toward decorating a float to make it a prize winner for the third time," said a business man today.

The Glendale float has won first prize at the Pasadena tournament of roses for the past two years. A third win is the only thing that will satisfy the people of Glendale. Send your contributions to J. M. Rhoades at the chamber of commerce and have a part in the Glendale float, the third-time winner.

The drive today in the tag sale is being conducted by members of the Glendale Business and Professional Women's Club, of which Mrs. Margaret Biggs is president. Dr. Laura Brown is chairman of the work and general in command.

Excited guests of the hotel rushed into the room and found Miss Smith, revolver in hand and a bullet wound in her side, muttering over the dead form of the man, whom she says fooled her. According to the story told to attorneys, Christensen and Miss Smith had lived together 18 months beginning April 20 of last year as man and wife, after an alleged marriage had been performed at El Paso, Tex.

STOCKINGS ARE COMING IN RAPIDLY

Plea of Glendale Press Is Being Answered By Many

OPEN 'TIL 8 TONIGHT Will Be Given to Poor Children of Glendale for Christmas

Glendale people have hearts as big as mountains. The appeal of the Glendale Daily Press for a filled stocking for some poor child in this city has been answered generously. Yesterday morning, there were seven stockings in the office of the Glendale Daily Press. This morning, there were twenty. Before the day ends there will probably be a dozen more and by the middle of next week, it is believed there will be at least 50 filled stockings for the poor children of Glendale, with the mate to the stocking tied to the one filled with gifts.

One little girl came in yesterday with a pair of white stockings, one of which is filled full, there isn't room for an argument inside it, or anything else. Then there is a pair of brown stockings and eighteen pairs of black stockings, all good ones, too.

The office of the Glendale Daily Press will remain open until eight o'clock tonight to receive stockings for the children. One feature of the giving of the stockings has been the request of the giver to withhold their names. Practically all of the givers have requested that their names be withheld.

There are dozens of little ones in Glendale who know about the Christmas stockings and they are going to bed every night with the thought that one of the pairs of stockings will greet them Christmas morning. There is nothing more pathetic in life than a disappointed child. There is not a man or woman in Glendale who will allow a Glendale child to be disappointed Christmas morning.

More stockings are needed, for names are being given to the Press every day, where stockings will be welcome. They will be given to children who are worthy and needy, and whose outlook for a happy Christmas seems anything but one that inspires joy.

Will you fall those kiddies? We know you will not.

HARRIS SAID TO FORGED NAME

W. E. Cleveland's Signature on Check for $25 Turned Up Today

Still they come. Evidence that E. Harris, painter and alleged swindler, worked on a wholesale basis is still showing up. Yesterday afternoon another check, said to have been forged by Harris, was turned over to the police department.

The check was for $25. W. E. Cleveland's name was forged to the check, which was drawn in favor of E. Harris on the First National bank of this city. So far, the police have been unable to get a trace of the badly wanted Harris.

Word of the new bomb plot was conveyed to representatives of the department of justice, which is engaged in rounding up the perpetrators of the Wall Street bomb explosion of September, 1920.

FRANCE GIVEN WARNING ON HOLDING OUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The French delegation has been told by the other naval powers France must bear before the world the blame for any failure of the naval limitation plans. The huge responsibility was slung to French shoulders because of the French demand for a greater navy than Japan's. The belief prevailed that France, in the committee of 15, meeting today, would start to back down.

About Carbohydrates
The little girl who was just old enough to resent being called "little" ran her fingers through her hair and appealed to her father...

"Daddy, can you tell me, please, what carbohydrates are?" "I'm all mixed up on this food lesson. And what are non-nitrogenous foods?" Her father put down his paper and regarded her thoughtfully...

"Now, you are teasing me," said Alice. "and I am dreadfully in earnest. Mother knows, only she is out. Billy knows, only he won't tell me, and if you tease me I shall have everything wrong and get black marks tomorrow, and be very miserable..."

"Almost all carbohydrates come from the vegetable kingdom. Milk sugar is an exception. All grains, tubers, and roots store up carbohydrates..."

"Why They Are Important"
"But why are they so important?" asked Alice. "Because they are burned up in the body to produce energy and heat," explained her father...

M'ADOO DENIES LEADING FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—William G. McAdoo today wired the United Press that statements made here by some democratic senators to the effect that he was organizing opposition to the quadruple Pacific treaty among democrats in the senate were without foundation...

"I have had no opportunity to examine the agreement and therefore have formed no judgment as to its merits," McAdoo said. "When I do I shall not hesitate to express my opinion..."

OPOSE GIVING AWAY $20,000,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Unexpected opposition to sending $20,000,000 of seed grain and staple foods to the famine areas of Russia, flared up in the house late today when the relief bill drafted at the request of President Harding was taken up...

JURY DEADLOCKED. ADRIAN, Mich., Dec. 17.—The jury deliberating the fate of Mrs. Mattie Kirby, on trial for the death of the illegitimate baby of Alice Kirby, her daughter, was still deadlocked today...

the liver. When the capacity to store glycogen is exhausted, the carbohydrates are stored in the body as fat. The fuel value of fat is two and a quarter times that of starches and sugars...

"And what are the most important carbohydrates?" began Alice. Her father tapped her wrist with his pencil. "You tell me," he said. "Then I shall know if you understand..."

"They Get the Facts Together" Alice hesitated. Then: "Potatoes?" she said, questioning. "And honey?"

"Exactly. And sago and tapioca and sugar and fats," said her father. "And if one classifies carbohydrates?" said Alice, uncertainly. "They fall into three groups," explained her father. "Monosaccharides, as grape sugar; disaccharides, as cane sugar, beet, maple, milk and malt sugars; and polysaccharides, which include starch, dextrin, gums and cellulose..."

And Alice, with wrinkling forehead, murmured something about such big names for such little things, and her father, returning to his paper, decided that he would do a little serious reading upon the matter of carbohydrates before his young daughter inveigled him again into discussing them...

"Almost all carbohydrates come from the vegetable kingdom. Milk sugar is an exception. All grains, tubers, and roots store up carbohydrates..."

Truths in Epigram

Rome was not built in a day.—Cervantes (1547-1616). Nothing is given so profusely as advice.—La Rochefoucauld (1613-1680). Treason does never prosper: What's the reason? Why, if it prosper none dare call it treason.—Harrington (1561-1619).

VIEWING THE OPPOSITION

There is plenty of evidence that the pact determined upon at the disarmament conference is to have opposition in Washington.

Borah is likely to be against it. Thus he will be following an impulse similar to some already displayed by him. His tendency to be literally the big noise of the opposition has settled into habit, and seems likely to crystallize into obsession.

La Follette has declared his hostility. Hostility is part of the La Follette equipment. He will be remembered as the senator who in the early days of the war made pro-German speeches. If these speeches had been edited in Berlin, the most arrogant Junker could have felt no impulse to add a line or to erase a word.

Then there is Watson. He is a senator from Georgia. The statement was made at the time of his election that he would prove himself a disgrace to that commonwealth. He seems to have done so. His attacks upon the American army, made on his unsupported word, were so scurrilous as to defeat themselves. He never has made in any field of endeavor a record that entitled him to an office of dignity and power.

It is not surprising that a group of democrats should be arrayed with this trio. The democrats have a bone to pick with the administration. Republicans are in large part to blame for it. They furnished the bone.

Whatever may have been the real opinion of republican leaders concerning the League of Nations, many of them fought it bitterly for no other reason than that it was being advocated by a democratic President. That is the truth about the matter, and it stands out so plainly that energy devoted to denying it would be sheer waste.

Now the swinging of the pendulum has given democrats a chance to play even. Some of them will fight ratification of the pact quite regardless of the spirit or purpose of the agreement, or the effect of its defeat.

It might be wished that politicians on both sides were capable in the emergency, of rising to the plane of statesmanship.

MUZZLING THE PRESS

It is to be hoped that Wilbur Crafts and his active forces will fail in their campaign to muzzle the press. There is not a wide confidence in the judgment of Crafts. He has won a living for many years, however, by laying down rules for the government of individual morals.

Crafts desires to suppress certain kinds of news. Not all papers carry the information that is objectionable to him. Papers of the type that would not come under the immediate ban are just as heartily opposed to his purposes and his tactics. They are aware that the professional reformer, turning from one field to another as the prospects seem to invite, is not necessarily wise, and often is not sincere.

One trouble with the mentor of morals is that he never is satisfied. To shut news of a certain character out of print could appear to him only as a temporary and partial triumph. It would indicate to him that he might go farther and farther, until the coming of a blessed day when the only news deemed fit to print would be that concerning his own benign activities.

Most papers desire to be clean. They seek the patronage of men and women of the highest class. They are designed to enter the homes of the land, not at all to the corrupting of such homes. It is not part of their policy to cater to evil influences. They strive to correct abuses. Their success in this respect is not dwarfed when compared with the success achieved by generations of Crafts. Indeed, the reformer who has not a good cause, and the backing of the press to demonstrate this goodness, might as well quit reforming (others) and accept the bitter alternative of work.

OPTIMISM RETURNS

Charles H. Grasty, a correspondent of high standing, sends interesting news from Europe. He says that the general situation there is marked by a returning confidence.

Normal business and political conditions are expected. The visible signs are many. The optimism he discerns, he says, reminds him of the change that occurred when the people of Europe first realized that Germany was beaten.

The world has been awaiting the assurance that there shall be no more war. Now the world has this assurance so far as it may be given by four great nations acting in concert. This is equal to the lifting of a measureless burden of fear.

In the United States the spirit of optimism has been strong. The general feeling was that out of seeming chaos order would arise. The great mass of citizens never have yielded to the feeling of hopelessness, but have held that their own strong government would act as a stabilizer for governments in Europe. But over there a reign of despair has held sway. It is cheering to learn that even in Europe the light has begun to dawn. On this side the light never had faded from the skies.

THE DELIRIUM OF HATE

Many distinguished writers have begun to seek to spread the gospel of love. They have witnessed the results of hate, of fear and of distrust.

This is not new gospel. It is old as the written creed of man. It is embodied in the Golden Rule. It has represented the ideal of generations yearning for a higher, a fairer, a happier life.

The agreement of four nations to be honest with one another, to treat each of the others even as any nation would desire to be treated, is most significant of the prevailing thought.

To the agreement has been set a limit of ten years, but a vaster possibility is indicated. If for ten years, why not then a new agreement for fifty years? for an indefinite span?

There had been apprehension of war on the Pacific. No use to deny this now that the danger has passed. It does not seem likely that after a decade of tranquility, the parties to this compact, or any single party to it, will elect to go back to the basis of brute force.

The world has had its delirium of fear and hate. In some lands the clouds it raised still darken the sun of contentment and remain to threaten. But perhaps even these clouds will vanish soon. There is much in the force of example, and there is even more potency in the bitterness of recent memory.

PEACE IN IRELAND

Despite murmurs as yet unstill, the world hopes fondly that the agreement entered into between Great Britain and Ireland means the beginning of an era of tranquility. Many years has it been since the Emerald Isle has known the benison of complete peace. Now that the opportunity has come, to reject it would seem to be madness.

In this country the Hearst papers took the side of Ireland. This was not the general rule. Many other papers were as openly for England. Others refrained from committing themselves. All hoped that a settlement might be reached satisfactory to the people of both sections.

Upon announcement that a treaty had been signed, Mr. Hearst frankly advised the Irish whom he had been defending, to accept the conditions, cease war, and devote themselves to the activities of peace.

This paper has had frequent occasion to censure Mr. Hearst. It takes pleasure in commending his course in relation to the treaty.

A singular fact has developed, or at least has been brought to light, that some of the residents of the United States most loudly fighting for the Irish cause, are aggrieved at the outcome. The incentive to battle has been removed. The excuse for passing the hat has vanished. It is a very uncomfortable position for these professional friends of Ireland, but comfortable for Ireland, satisfactory to England, and that is something.

The authorities have a new problem to tackle in Kansas. An army of Amazons, breathing fire and throwing pepper, is something seldom encountered on this side of the water. Probably if a hose could be brought into play it would clear the atmosphere, and put the ladies out effectually.

Several reporters indulged in a fistfight at the Burch trial. The participants modestly refrained from printing personal accounts of the affair and courteously refused to be interviewed. Nobody is inclined to blame them for the outbreak. Weeks in the atmosphere of that trial would entitle anyone to blow off steam.

IS MAN A GAME ROOSTER?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A recent editorial in the Chicago Tribune says: "Illusions regarding universal peace begin with the conviction that human beings have an affection for each other and that the plain people of one nation would love the plain people of another if mischievous governments would stop making trouble artificially."

The editorial then goes on to say that the common people are belligerent, prejudiced, proud, and intolerant. The mass of the common people instinctively have a contempt or dislike to the mass of people composing another nation. They are enemies of anything alien and scornful of other customs and habits.

The editorial indicates that mankind naturally runs to war, that it is their governments and statesmen that hold them back. It is refreshing once in a while to see a frank statement even of their most abominable nonsense.

It does us good to hear the infidel clearly express his ideas. And this sort of talk which the Tribune gives is the only real and dangerous kind of infidelity.

It is the credo of unfaith in the people. And it is simply because the world has gone on believing that so long that it has walloped so long in the slough of contention.

He that Believesth not shall be damned. This does not refer to unbelief in some theological credo, but exactly to the kind of mischief-making unbelief expressed in the article quoted. That is to say, Unbelief in Human Nature.

It is this Unbelief that alls the individual, the nation, and the world at large.

It is this Unbelief that has made our penitentiaries schools of crime instead of reformatory institutions.

There never has been an advance made in human welfare that has not been due to Faith in the people. And there never has been a slump into perversion, violence, foul living, and twisted thinking that has not been due to Unfaith in the people.

There are two persistent delusions in the world. One is that mankind is essentially bad. And the other is that he can be cured by force.

Neither of these delusions has ever worked. And yet the people who call themselves shrewd and sophisticated go on believing them.

The queer part of it is that the pessimist perks himself up as being practical. He is the most impractical of mischief-makers. If you would read history and consult facts you would see that men, neither individually nor in groups, have ever been helped by doubting them, cursing them, or hurting them. But that they have always been helped by believing in them and helping them.

After all, the eternal war is between the believer and the infidel, if we strip these words of their theological connotations.

For it is a war between those who believe in the human race and its incurable goodness and who are willing to trust men and who are even ready to base their business and their politics upon such belief and trust; and, on the other hand, those who consider every man a rascal, every nation an enemy, and the men of the world nothing but lustful goats, vicious serpents, and contentious game roosters.

THE LISTENING POST

The other day we had a Listening Post about Marshal Foch. Who was in these parts. And something was said about the Marne.

And it was said that the Marshal declared: "My right is wavering. My left is broken. I shall attack with my center."

A fine thing to have said, to be sure. But some exact person claims he never said it. That no such report was made. And that exact person takes delight in shattering a belief. As exact persons always do.

Possibly there is such a thing as being too exact. In the matter of sayings such as this. Just as Whistler once said. When he had painted a sunset.

And someone said: "I never saw a sunset like that." And Whistler is said to have replied: "No, but don't you wish you had?" And probably Whistler never said that either.

For Whistler is open to suspicion. Too many clever things are credited to him. He never opened his mouth but a lot of pearls of humor and satire fell out. According to the stories told of him.

But of Marshal Foch: Whether he said or not what was credited, it is of course such a thing as he would have said. Had he said anything. So it is just as important as if he had said it.

A mariner once sailed the trackless seas. For many days. Food was getting low and water scarce and the storm was rough. And the crew was for turning back.

It became a mutinous crew almost. For it feared for its own safety. And was filled with dread. All except the captain. Who was determined.

And so, according to a poet of these modern days, the captain said only two words: "Sail on!" And they sailed. And eventually discovered a new world. And of course the modern poet does not know whether Columbus said that or not.

But looking at the situation as it was, and knowing the spirit of Columbus as he must have been, it seemed that that was the thing Columbus would say.

It is entirely possible, of course, that he berated the crew roundly in good or bad Genoese or Spanish.

Whatever he may have said, the crew sailed on. And achieved its destiny. And whatever Marshal Foch may have said, he attacked. And achieved his destiny.

So we still insist that whatever the Marshal may or may not have said, that thing was in his mind. That however his lines were broken and shattered, he would attack. For he did.

Just as, whatever Columbus may or may not have said, he determined to sail on. And he did.

The exact people to the contrary notwithstanding.

JAMES W. FOLEY.

SONGS OF THE POETS

She Walks in Beauty—By Lord Byron (1788-1824)

She walks in beauty, like the night Of cloudless climes and starry skies; And all that's best of dark and bright Meet in her aspect and her eyes: Thus mellow'd to that tender light Which heaven to gaudy day denies.

One shade the more, one ray the less, Had half impair'd the nameless grace Which waves in every raven tress,

Or softly lightens o'er her face: Where thoughts serenely sweet express How pure, how dear their dwelling-place.

And on that cheek, and o'er that brow, So soft, so calm, yet eloquent, The smiles that win, the tints that glow, But tell of days in goodness spent, A mind at peace with all below, A heart whose love is innocent!

RATES MUST BE LOWERED

[Country Gentleman]

Railroads complain that materials and supplies cost them 65 per cent more. Surely, and partly because of high freight rates. High transportation costs also high wages of railway workers. Conversely, high wages pull rates up. It is an endless process. High rates make less freight and less freight suggests still higher rates, and so on ad infinitum. Thus raising raising freight rates is about as nourishing as sucking your thumb.

The farmer, particularly, suffers from excessive transportation costs, for he pays the freight both ways—on what he sells and on what he buys. And because he is the big shipper of the country and because he has been giving more attention to broad economic phases than other classes, he wants to see a constructive move in the direction of lower rail rates.

The initiative in the matter of reform should come from the railroads. It is up to them. Excuses and defenses are negative. The best interests of the country demand something positive. Possibly the railroads have something constructive in mind. If so they will find farmers organized and ready to put their shoulders to any forward-moving wheels. Never have farmers been so broad-minded, so thoughtful and so sanely progressive as they are

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Some of us want very much to order the lives of others when we haven't learned to control our own. We shrink from the thought of self-control. It's gloomy, stern—fribbiding, we say. It would take the joy out of our days.

But it wouldn't. It's great to feel that we ourselves are bigger and stronger than any temptation that comes. The weak will is a sign of inferiority. The one who declares "I just couldn't help it," is confessing lack of character, or else is establishing a dishonest moral alibi. It is so natural to "want" others to think that we are blameless. The urge to this is sometimes much stronger than the urge to be blameless!

And yet, it's so futile! We can't long deceive others as to our real selves. What we are speaks so much louder than what we say. And the eyes of others are so keen!

So there rally doesn't seem to be much use in trying the alibi stunt. It costs us more trouble and suspense and continued effort than real being would. Strange that we can't see that it does!

Self-control is such a satisfactory strength! It contributes to the speedy settling of difficulties, the straightening out of troublesome questions. It holds friendships and smoothes family relations. It fosters self-respect and commands the respect of others, even those who differ.

Self-control is real freedom. And in freedom lies happiness. Why not gain it?

today. They understand that the interests of the railroads and the interests of the farms are largely identical, and they can be of splendid service to the railroads in this national crisis. But the co-operation of the railroads must be equally broad-minded. The failure of the roads to pass along to shippers the benefit of the wage cut of last summer did not leave a good taste.

GOOD TIME TO START

[Detroit Free Press]

In an address to a gathering of business men in Atlantic City the other day Charles M. Schwab declared that if he had his life to live over he would choose the present day for the beginning of a career. Mr. Schwab is a person of sanguine temperament but he is no Pollyanna. He has reason for the joy that is in him.

It is not an easy time just now to make a start, but every one knows, though many forget, that business runs like a small boat at sea, always going up toward the crest of a wave or down into the trough. Any period of depression means that a rise is coming and Mr. Schwab doubtless had in mind the fact that any property or position that a young man gains now will automatically become better as years pass by simply because this year is in the trough.

For the young man also the schooling of these difficult times will be invaluable. Two or three years ago making money was easy and the fever for spending was epidemic. The young man who started then made more money than he is likely to make again for years to come and, as a consequence, also of his own services. He also imbibed the notion that this life is much easier and much gayer than it really is. He is getting a new start now on a bad education and he will be unlearning old lessons while the beginner learns the truth.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

A doctor writes a newspaper article touching the subject of insanity and its use as a defense of criminals. It is interesting enough, but not particularly convincing.

HENRY JAMES

Before the layman is ready to waive his own judgment and accept that of an alienist, he must know whether the alienist is of the type that is equally ready to give testimony for either side. The professional opinion that is swayed in accordance with the source of the retaining fee, is not highly prized.

Somebody had made the charge that the insanity plea was undermining the administration of American law.

The contention of the doctor is that insanity is increasing so fast that possibly most of the criminals really are insane.

His implication is that the person proved insane by a lawyer is endowed with the sacred right to follow the dictates of a mind gone astray.

He seems to think that all responsibility vanishes when one charged with crime is able to demonstrate possession of a mental quirk.

Here is the spectacle of science reaching a conclusion in conflict with common sense—a spectacle not exceedingly rare.

Everybody knows that an individual shrewd enough to plan a crime, and to plan an escape, even to the particular of declaring himself crazy, is wholly responsible for his acts.

Probably not in one case in a hundred where the plea of insanity is advanced is there any basis in fact for it. It is advanced as buncombe and bluff. It is the last resort, the sign of the ultimate desperation. It combines confession of guilt with a defiance to society.

When a murderer, or other gross offender, is able to prove himself insane, the restraint imposed upon him ought to be as absolute as though he were sane and dangerous only by reason of a mean disposition.

With the deepest sympathy for the genuine lunatic, it does not follow that he or his spurious imitator should be allowed to go about destroying the lives of useful people.

Natural precaution seems to clash with the impulse of charity sometimes.

Another of the instances in which a man who offered the courtesy of a ride to weary wayfarers, and who was beaten, robbed and thrown from his machine by his guests, has just been reported.

A delegation from the Far Eastern republic of Chita says there is not the slightest occasion there for the presence of Japanese troops. This ought to cheer Japan. To be rid of the supposed obligation of maintaining a force in Chita must be a relief.

The thought that Japan has been keeping soldiers abroad for any purpose of its own save the preservation of order and promotion of safety, is dismissed as unworthy.

Congress will put through a bonus bill. Much as some of the statesmen hate to undergo the test of voting on the measure, they have side-stepped about as long as permissible.

If this country were forced into another war it would raise billions and expend the money with furious zeal. The richest nation in the world may not consistently put up the plea of economy in relation to the men who served it in time of stress.

Fannie Hurst writes readable stories grammatical throughout. She has developed a decided artistry in construction, and usually has been happy in selection of a theme.

Recently Miss Hurst sold the film rights to one of her tales, and went to see a pre-view of the resulting picture. Having seen it, she arose in her place and bawled out the producer.

She implored her friends not to hold her responsible for a tawdry story that had been dragged across the screen as hers. She repudiated it utterly.

The author had offered to superintend the screening of her work, but was not permitted to do so. Doubtless her presence would have hampered the operation of mutilation and butchery.

Miss Hurst appears to be wholly in the right. She can't help the matter much now, but her impromptu protest was a model.

The Burton Holmes travel films have been procured for other than theatrical use. They will be available for schools, churches and clubs.

These films constitute a fine educational influence. They are interesting to everybody, and to children, are highly instructive.

Suicide of a musician is ascribed to despondency occasioned by the prevalence of jazz.

Not alone were his artistic senses distressed, but he feared that the public had lost its taste for real music and that his vocation was gone.

Divorce proceedings recently revealed the fact that the couple had agreed to be financially independent of each other.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

You'll remember the old yarn about the cat that died, and how the family tried to dispose of the carcass, and how each time it came back? And how father finally put it in a shoe box and left it on the street car, and how some one recognized him and picked up the parcel and sent it to him, messenger charges collect? And how the dead cat was not finally ended until it had ceased to be a really pleasing member of society?

All this makes me think of Harry Carr. One of the very finest men in town, Harry is. He is always doing favors for some one. There isn't a man of his acquaintance who has not been favored by Harry in some way. He will get up in the middle of the rainiest night that ever blew, or stay up night after night, or walk unwearyedly down rear streets, or do errands for any one he knows. He loves to be helpful. His face shines with contentment when he has done some one a good turn. By comparison a Boy Scout trying to earn a good conduct medal seems a nasty, snarling little fish.

"I want to propose you for our society," he said the other day.

I do not want to join his society. I regard that society as made up entirely of he-old-hens. Any one of them bores me to extinction and what I should do in the presence of the assembled henery I tremble to think. I do not want my friends to know that I have been proposed for membership in that sorority of elderly stags. It is an honor that is just as welcome as a crown of thorns. But I cannot tell all this to Harry Carr. It would break his heart. Likewise, he has been so helpful to me during the last forty years that I owe him some return. Unless some doddering elderly blackballs me I've elected to the cackling companionship. I am beginning to hate my helpful friend.

I never occurred to me before, but it is a fact that for years I have been vaguely resenting his helpfulness. He has helped me lots of times when I did not want to be helped. He was so good and shining-merit and kind hearted and rejoicing that I have never dared tell him what I think, but in my inner mind I accuse him of butting into my business and wish he'd take his helpful but unasked nose out.

But it isn't possible to tell Harry that he's an accursed nuisance. Even a brute like me cannot kick an elderly child in the face or tell him to stay on his own side of the back fence. I'll just have to put up with Harry's helpfulness. Anyhow, it looks like a hard winter is coming and his chest is weak.

Beautiful Brand Boulevard Busy Business Thoroughfare

By JOHN H. GERRIE

Prosperity Editor Glendale Daily Press

There is no West Glendale, no East Glendale, no South Glendale, no North Glendale. It's a mistaken idea to make any such division. It's ALL Glendale, and a wonderful Glendale, too.

Through the center of this wonderful Glendale is a wonderful thoroughfare. It is Brand boulevard and it seems destined to be one of the finest business streets in America. From the San Fernando road to the Verdugo wash channel it will present on either side solid fronts of beautiful shops and magnificent business blocks.

This is not the opinion solely of the writer. It is the opinion of a hundred property owners along the boulevard who have backed their judgment with substantial investments. It no doubt is the opinion of thousands of property owners in other parts of the city who see in the boulevard the beginnings of another Fifth avenue, New York.

This is said in no disparagement to Broadway or to Glendale avenue, both of which are certain to play large parts in the development of this city to a mountain-locked metropolis commanding the entrance of the surpassingly fertile San Fernando valley. It is simply presented here as a reflection of public opinion, gathered in a fortnight of mingling with local business men, property owners and representative citizens:

With these the belief amounts almost to conviction that nothing now can prevent the boulevard becoming one of the finest, if not in time the very finest, business thoroughfares in the entire Los Angeles district. If you think this is overdrawn ask some of the property owners and business men at the lower end of the boulevard, near the San Fernando road, at the upper end, above Wilson street and at intermediate points, what they think of the future of the avenue, particularly in the vicinities in which they may be interested. From each you will obtain almost the same answer: "Brand boulevard will be a business street from end to end and my block will be as much of it as any."

Down in the lower end near San Fernando road, mistakenly referred to as South Glendale, property owners are as enthusiastic about it as are owners at Brand and Broadway. On the triangle formed by Brand, Glendale and Forest avenues Harry E. White Inc. have built a colonial Spanish palace as show rooms and sales headquarters for Los Angeles and Kern counties of the Cletrac tractor, because President White believes that location to be not only the strategic corner of the boulevard but also the strategic gateway to the San Fernando valley.

"My firm conviction is that eventually Brand boulevard will be built up as a solid business district," said Mr. White this morning. "And you'll find that the lower end of Glendale will be much in favor for home sites because of its proximity to Los Angeles."

A little higher up are the fine banking offices of the Glendale National Bank of which Dan Campbell, a resident of Glendale for nineteen years, is president.

"I am as certain now as when this location for the bank was selected that Brand boulevard will be lined with business buildings for most of its entire length," said President Campbell. "I think you will see big developments before long in this end of the city. I would not be surprised to see a new Southern Pacific station at the point where the tracks cross Brand boulevard and the Pacific Electric line."

WIDOW AND DAUGHTER WHO MUST SHARE ESTATE WITH BISPHAM'S WOMAN FRIEND

David S. Bispham, famous baritone, left one quarter of his large estate to Mrs. Henrietta Muller Ten Eyck, of New York City, whom he described in his will as "my friend... Bispham had been separated from his wife for a long time. Mrs. Bispham, who lives in Stamford, Conn.

Hal Davenport, who owns the Davenport block of stores and other property in the vicinity, thought it a mistake to talk about the north and south ends of Glendale but proved to be a good booster for his end of the city. He favored keeping the S. P. station exactly where it is, he argued that it was right that the Pacific Electric feeder stage lines deliver their passengers at Cypress street and incidentally he saw a fine future for his part of the boulevard.

As a basis for this belief in the future of the lower end of the town is the presence of several of Glendale's most important industries. One of these is the Russell-Pierce Furniture Manufacturing company, just incorporated for $50,000 and turning out a general line of household furniture which it sells to dealers and consumers in Los Angeles, Pasadena, Hollywood, Glendale and neighboring communities. In the new year this company will enlarge its present plant and begin an active selling campaign direct to the people all over Southern California.

In the same neighborhood is Glendale's star industry, Tropico Potteries Inc., making a specialty of vitrified clay sewer pipe, architectural terra cotta and mantle tile. It employs 175 skilled workmen, has a monthly pay roll of $20,000 and sales of $70,000. Practically all of the pay roll is spent in Glendale. The raw clay is brought by train from Riverside county and the finished product is sold throughout Southern California and as far as into Texas. Just at present the terra cotta trimmings and embellishments for the new Long Beach city hall are being given their finishing touches. The company is capitalized at $1,000,000, B. M. Wotkins is president, F. B. Ortman vice president and E. M. Davids, secretary-treasurer.

All of which would indicate that there is good basis for the belief in a fine future for the lower end of Glendale and in the business development of Brand boulevard from end to end.

BORROWED FROM WIFE TO MARRY

Jean Riley, Movie Actress
Said Hubby Is "a Bigamist"

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—William S. Mooney, husband of Jean Riley, motion picture actress, made her pay the expenses of his marriage to wife No. 2, according to the story told by Jean when she obtained a warrant for Mooney's arrest on a charge of bigamy today.

The warrant for Mooney's arrest was issued after his wife swore that yesterday he procured a license and was married to Verma Drokes, 17 years old. She charged that Mooney married the girl to escape prosecution on a charge of contributing to her delinquency. Jean charged that Mooney took her jewelry, worth several hundred dollars, from her and then forced her to give him the money to marry wife No. 2. Mooney married Jean at Riverside in April, 1921. Since that time, she charges, he has spent several thousand dollars of her money on "wild parties."

Jean Riley is the 19-year-old actress who mysteriously disappeared from her home in Hollywood several months ago. It was feared she had been abducted. After a long search by friends and police she was finally found unconscious in the hills back of Hollywood. The circumstances were shrouded in mystery which was never cleared up.

DEFENSE WILL BE READY MONDAY

Burch Impatient for His Side of Story to Be Presented

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 17.—With the prosecution content that it has woven a net of circumstantial evidence around Arthur C. Burch that he cannot break, and the defense attorneys equally sure that they can produce facts that will smash the state's case and save their client from the noose, the "smiling defendant," alleged slayer of J. Belton Kennedy, expressed himself as lower in spirits than at any time during the trial. "When the state's case was finished, I wish we had gone right on with ours," he said at the county jail, where he retired into seclusion. "These intermissions are like waiting out on a motion picture lot to be called. You lose your nerve stalling around."

Defense attorneys Kittrelle and Schenck stated today that the insanity defense which they have announced they will put up for Burch will be augmented by an alibi and the impeachment of at least four of the state's witnesses.

FINE WEEK-END BILL AT GLENDALE

The vaudeville attractions at the Glendale theatre is a show of snap and pep. Bryers and Bryers, the harmony singers and banjo stringers, have an offering that is a musical hit. To enjoy this act one does not need to be a musician, for their jazzy tunes will put them over with any auditor. Frank Morrill, "The California boy," gives a series of comedy stories and song lyrics which prove an entertaining gem. The White Sisters, in their original musical cycle of the latest and greatest musical hits from Broadway, add materially to the quality of the bill. Christopher and Walton in their own comedy playlet, which is crammed with action and funny situations, have no trouble in gathering laughs. Chas. Fortune rounds out the vaudeville with his comedy juggling novelty.

What has proved to be one of the most interesting and entertaining screen comedies of the year will be presented at the Glendale theatre tonight in Owen Moore's newest Selznick picture, "A Divorce of Convenience." "Our Mutual Friend," Charles Dickens' last complete novel, comes to the Glendale theatre Sunday. It is hailed as "the perfect picture."

TWO PREMIERS TO PUT FRANCE OVER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Lloyd George and Briand may have to take a hand in settling the startling situation stirred up by France's demand for a navy larger than Japan's. This was indicated by well-informed conferees today while the naval sub-committee labored to get France in line.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

WILLIAM W. LANE
William W. Lane, 1229 South Glendale avenue, passed away at his home Thursday night. Mr. Lane was 32 years old and apparently in good health. About 10 o'clock the night of his death, he was talking with friends in the Park Avenue pharmacy, later went home and was sitting at the dining table talking to Mrs. Lane. He suddenly complained of a sharp pain and before they could call assistance he passed away. Deceased leaves a widow, Mrs. Margaret Lane, a baby girl and an aunt and uncle, Mrs. Ellen Craught and James P. Scott. Funeral services are being held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Little Church of the Flowers with interment at Forest Lawn cemetery.

A SONG ON MILO WHEAT by T. W. McConnell
You ask me, friends; why really, now,
I haven't much to say;
But I am sure that Milo Wheat is for the best today.
Now, some things let me speak about
That you may plainly see
When folks once taste of MILO WHEAT
You'll need no other plea,
For folks who eat this food,
I'm sure you will hear say:
"For strength, health and every ill,

It's best, we know today;
We're living now on MILO WHEAT.
Our bank account will grow,
For we can have a good square meal.
For three cents now, you know,
You know our days are perilous times
When all will have a test,
And they will surely want to eat
The cheapest and the best.
It will not be so very long
Till you will hear the call
For MILO WHEAT from every class,
Both rich, poor, large and small.

SUPPLY STATION HAS MANY FRIENDS

"Six years in business in Glendale and not a dissatisfied customer." This is the record made by F. H. Evarts, proprietor of the Central Supply Station at the southeast corner of Broadway and Central avenue. Mr. Evarts is known to practically every motorist in Glendale. He has lived in Glendale for the past twelve years. When he started his oil station at its present location six years ago, there were not many oil stations in Glendale. He is what might be termed a "pioneer." He has seen Glendale grow from a hamlet to a full-sized city. He now claims that there is no place like this little "burg." The folks here are treating him more than square, and he figures on keeping his hat on the peg and remaining here indefinitely.

The Central Supply Station is right up to the minute in every particular. The big pulling feature is Hercules gasoline, which is the "quick starting" gas. This station also carries the best brands of lubricating oils, both in bulk and sealed cans, greases of the best makes, tires and accessories. Velvo, the very latest thing in lubricating oils, is kept in stock at this station. This oil is proving to be a sensation among motorists who have used it.

CIZEK REPORTS BUSINESS BRISK

The Cizek Autoelectric company reports business unusually brisk for this time of the year, and a good force of men are required to look after the increasing trade of this popular firm.

There is no wonder that their business is on the increase when one takes into consideration the kind of battery sold by this firm. Every day instances are hobbling up which shows the Willard battery to be even more than is claimed for it. A Willard battery was brought into the shop a few days ago which had seen five years' continuous service in one car, and another had four years' run in the original car. Both of these batteries were threaded rubber insulation type, which has proven most satisfactory. The threaded rubber insulation is an exclusive feature of the Willard. A large shipment of the threaded rubber Willard batteries made especially for Ford cars, has just been received by the Cizek Autoelectric company. These are the hard rubber insulation type, and every Ford should have one, says Mr. Kuhn, of the local firm. The rapid growth of this concern attests its ability to look after the every need of the autoist in the battery line. "Try the Willard once," says Mr. Cizek, "and you will always use it." Willard batteries enjoy an astonishing sale throughout the country.

HOLLISTER SENDS OUT FINE APPEAL

Following is the rousing message dispatched by officers of the Glendale chamber of commerce to its members. It speaks for itself: "Dear Member:—Our fighting chamber of commerce won't be licked. We received a knockout blow Thursday, but refuse to take the count, in the matter of our grand opening, scheduled for Thursday evening, December 15. "We will be in the ring on next Tuesday evening, December 20, at 7:30 sharp, with the same excellent program which you received. This program will be rendered in the north room of the Citizens' building, 150 South Brand, on the ground floor, with ample accommodations for comfortably taking care of more than 1,000 people. "We trust you will show the "never-give-up" spirit prevalent in Glendale by being present at this dedication and reception service, and bring your family. "New members, received since September 30, will please take seats at east end of the room. "Don't forget the date—Tuesday evening, December 20, 1921, at 7:30 sharp. Yours for victory, "GLENDALE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. "V. M. HOLLISTER, "President."

HEAL INSTALLED YEARLY CONTRACTS

William P. Heal, proprietor of the Heal Repair Shop, located near the rear of the T. D. & L. theater, has installed a new plan in connection with the care and repair of automobiles. This plan consists of taking complete care of automobiles on a year contract. By this plan the car owner is required to pay for only the parts needed in his car, the mechanic doing the work under the one contract price. Mr. Heal is the first mechanic in Glendale to install this system. He has been in business in Glendale for several months, during which time the patronage afforded him has grown rapidly.

CHEVROLET FIRM BE OPEN NIGHTS

For the convenience of its patrons the firm of Fish & Tarr, agents for the Chevrolet automobile with offices and show rooms, on East Broadway, have decided to remain open at night from now until Christmas. There are many residents of Glendale who are employed in Los Angeles and who are wanting to look around the Glendale shops during the quiet hours of the evening.

"In remaining open each week day evening from now until Christmas," said Mr. Tarr this morning, "we do so to accommodate the demand for evening service during the few days preceding Christmas. That this service is being appreciated by a large number of Glendale people we are being assured each evening. There are a surprisingly large number of Chevrolet cars being ordered this year for Christmas delivery, and it is keeping us hustling every minute to keep up with the demand."

HILL KEPT BUSY DURING HOLIDAY

F. S. Hill, whose advertisement appears on this page, is one of the very busy just now, and he can see no let-up in his work. There is a reason for this, and the prime reason is Mr. Hill knows the automobile and when he turns out a job it never comes back to be re-fixed in a few days. His work gives satisfaction and autoists have long since learned this and are seeing to it that he is kept busy. Mr. Hill has one of the best equipped shops in Glendale and handles nearly any kind of work, and he takes pride in satisfying his customers both in price and quality of work turned out.

NON-PARTISANS ORGANIZE HERE

BERKELEY, Dec. 17.—Plans for launching a state-wide Non-Partisan League movement with a prospective membership of 100,000 and a treasury of $1,000,000, designed to gain control of California politics, were made public today by Thomas Walter Mills of Berkeley. Mills issued a call for a meeting to be held in Modesto, January 13, when an organization committee will be formed.

"Until we have a membership of 100,000 we will devote all of our efforts to organization and will not indulge in any other active campaign," Mills said. A membership fee of $10 will be charged each member, making up the million-dollar war chest.

"Already the movement has met with general response, not only from farmers and workers, but also from numerous business and professional men," Mills said.

The number of used cars for sale these days and the low prices enables most anyone to be the possessor of a machine. Local garages are overstocked with used cars and are selling them at very low figures.

NEW SYSTEM OF WAGE PAYMENTS

Jesse E. Smith, the Glendale Ford dealer, announces the installation of a new system of wage payments to the mechanics in his shop. In regard to repair charges for repair work, all Ford dealers use what is known as the "guaranteed repair contract charge," that is a schedule of prices made up after various tests and experiments have been performed. A contract price is based on practical experience and actual work performed and because the Ford Motor Company permits the dealer to use this contract price, it is recognized by everyone who understands this work as a manifestly fair price for the dealer, the customer and the mechanic.

Mr. Smith put into effect recently a plan whereby the customer will be efficiently and satisfactorily served and his work will be completed on time. On all repair work the mechanic is given one-half of the repair contract price which means that every mechanic must know his business, because under the plan he guarantees every job that he does. Of course, his guarantee is to the house, the house guarantees the job to the customer and is responsible to the customer for satisfactory workmanship. It is obvious that this plan will mold the interests of the customer, the mechanic and the dealer as one. The customer expects first class service, demands it, is entitled to it, should get it and under this plan, will get it. The mechanic must satisfy his customer by delivering him a complete job, skillfully and satisfactorily completed, otherwise he loses a customer for himself and he injures himself just as much as he injures the dealer.

The idea of changing so the workmen in the mechanical department share in the profits in this manner is neither original nor new. It has been working successfully for two years in some parts of California and three to six months by some of the dealers in close proximity to Los Angeles.

PUENTE GAS GETS MANY CALLS HERE

The Mission Supply Station is a busy place. There's a reason, or, rather, a number of reasons. One of these is that this station is the only place near the Brand boulevard and Broadway business center where the celebrated Puente gasoline may be purchased. There are hundreds of motorists in Glendale who realize that Puente gas is one of the best to use these cold mornings. It is known for its easy starting qualities, and especially is this feature valuable after a very cold night.

This firm also carries what is termed "incubator coal-oil." This is one brand of coal-oil that positively will not smoke when burned. So nearly smokeless is it that it is being used almost exclusively by the poultry men in the surrounding country, for use in incubators. This is where it received its name "incubator coal-oil."

Accessories of all kinds, tires, the very best of Eastern and Western oils and greases, are carried by this station, and there is a washing and greasing rack in connection. This station makes a specialty of courteous treatment and prompt service.

BATTERY SERVICE KEPT VERY BUSY

There are many busy places in Glendale these days. The Westinghouse Battery Service, 233-35 South Brand boulevard, is one of them. The boys in this place are working night and day to keep up with the volume of work that is coming their way. In order that this work may be carefully and efficiently taken care of, Ray Fallet, formerly of the Automotive Service of Los Angeles, has been engaged and has fallen right in line with the rest of the busy folks at this establishment. Mr. Fallet has been doing automobile electrical work for a number of years and is one of the most efficient men in his line in this section of the country.

"The Westinghouse battery," says the proprietor of this establishment, "has made an enviable reputation for itself in Glendale and in every instance it is living up to this reputation. We know of no battery that 'stands up' as does the Westinghouse, and we stand back of this battery from the word 'go.'"

In addition to handling the Westinghouse battery this firm does all kinds of automobile battery repairing and ignition work.

HONORARY ESCORT FOR ELSTON TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—An honorary escort of 18 members of the house and eight senators will accompany the remains of Representative J. A. Elston to his home in Berkeley, Calif. The funeral party of the California representative, whose body was found in the Potomac river Thursday night, will leave here this afternoon and will arrive in Berkeley Wednesday night, where the funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Senators Johnson and Shortridge of California; Lenroot, Wisconsin; Nicholson, Colorado; Stanfield, Oregon; Harris, Mississippi; Walsh, Montana; Pittman, Nevada and most of the California delegation in the house will be in the party.

INCREASE SIZE OF THEIR PLANT

A rapidly-increasing business has made it necessary for the firm of McGrath & Hunter, 312 South Brand boulevard, to increase the size of its establishment. The addition that is being made to the front of this establishment will give this firm an additional floor space of 2500 square feet. This extra floor space will enable the members of this firm to handle their business in a manner that will be even more efficient and satisfactorily than ever before.

A feature that has just been added by this company and which will surely be appreciated by the motorists of Glendale is a 24-hour service. Emergency and towing cases are now being taken care of by this firm in the best manner possible.

While the addition to this company's establishment is being made the firm will do business at 107 East Colorado boulevard. The "new home" will be ready for occupancy about January 1st.

VELIE GLENDALE MOTORS VERY BUSY

Business has been brisk in the used car department of the Velie Glendale Motors. During the past week a number of cars have been sold by this concern.

Santa Claus will bring used cars to a lot of Glendale people," said Mr. Anders of this company this morning. "During the past few days we have closed a number of deals with people who want to take the cars a day or so before Christmas. From this it would seem that these cars have been purchased as Christmas gifts. All of the cars have been thoroughly gone over and are in excellent condition. A good used car is one of the most acceptable gifts that anyone can make. From the number of good used cars we are selling it would seem that we are not the only ones who believe this."

MAUDE MOORE TO GO INTO MOVIES

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 17.—Maude Moore, wife of Will H. Stubbs, Tacoma, Wash., hotel man, will go into the movies, she announced today before departing to join her husband. The movie, she said, will be a moral one, designed to save other young women from the fate she suffered by going out "unchaperoned at night with unscrupulous men." Mrs. Moore was acquitted last week after a sensational trial, for the murder of Leroy Harth, wealthy Knoxville automobile man.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

WHEN A FELLOW'S IN TROUBLE
When a fellow's in trouble—when he's been hard hit In the battle of life, that's no time we should quit Who claimed to be friends when the weather was fair; For trouble's a thing that the friends ought to share. When a fellow's in trouble, that's no time to rail Of the things that he did that have caused him to fail. There's one thing to do, if we claim the name friend, That's to cheer him and help him and stick to the end.

When a fellow's in trouble—that's reason enough: That's the time we should show just the kind of the stuff Our friendship is made of; that kind of a pull Shows whether it's shoddy or whether it's wool. When a fellow's in trouble, there's one thing to do, That's to bid him have courage and see the thing through. And play square, and help him with counsel and deed, The time friendship counts is the time we're in need.

When a fellow's in trouble—when he's gone astray, That's the time that real friendship goes out of its way To help him and cheer him and bid him be square, And know stormy weather will sometime be fair, And the fault may be his and the anger be hot, But the duty is ours, if we help him or not, So show if you're made of the right kind of stuff, The fellow's in trouble—that's reason enough.

Peru Wants United States To Umpire Chilean Dispute

President Leguia Tells United Press He Regards This Nation Fully Qualified to Act as Mediator in Tacna-Arica Matter

(Copyright, 1921, by United Press)
LIMA, Peru, Dec. 17.—President Leguia today declared that Peru regarded the United States as the one power fully qualified to act as mediator in the dispute with Chile over the territory of Tacna-Arica, President Augusto Leguia declared today in an exclusive interview given to the United Press.

At the same time President Leguia stated in effect that the Chilean proposal for settlement of the dispute would be refused. The reply to the Chilean proposal is being drafted and probably will be forwarded to Santiago within a few hours.

The president, however, stated Peru is wholly in agreement with Chile on at least one definite point and that is the desire for an early settlement of the long standing controversy.

"Settlement of the Irish controversy and the amazing achievements of the Washington conference have determined to the world the seemingly impossible can often be accomplished," said President Leguia.

"A plebiscite proposal, however, we cannot consider for it is obviously impossible to accept settlement according to the terms of a contract which should have been executed 20 years ago. The values and conditions in the last generation have changed, not only materially but also morally and in any adjustment of this unfulfilled contract now we must lay the matter before a competent court of arbitration openly and freely, concealing nothing."

"Only in this manner can 40 years of accumulated hatreds, passions, suspicions and wrongs be finally liquidated and a new and brighter chapter opened in the history of western South America."

"Peru has long regarded the United States as the one power fully qualified to act in this matter and recent achievements render Washington's position of leadership in great movements of international accord and amity even more secure."

"Peru is prepared to lay its cards face up on the table and I trust Chile is prepared to do likewise. If a settlement could be arrived at on fair and open grounds, I would regard it as one of the greatest achievements of my administration, opening wide the doors so long closed to a new era of commercial and social intercourse among the republic of the west coast."

There were many other entertaining features of a program so good that at its close the audience tendered a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Harry Ogden Ryan, the principal, her staff of teachers and the children for the treat they had provided. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Martinez, chairman of the social committee and assisting ladies.

DEPORT WOMEN IN KANSAS MINES

PITTSBURG, Kan., Dec. 17.—Deportation of alien women leaders of the "Amazon army" and other radicals and "undesirables" in the Kansas coal fields will be attempted by the federal government. Several federal investigators and Alfred F. Williams, United States attorney, arrived to begin a probe that will result in deportation proceedings against many foreigners.

BRITISH WAITING.
LONDON, Dec. 17.—The vote on ratification of the peace treaty with Ireland will be taken Monday in both houses of parliament. The only obstacle to ratification now is the possibility that the Daily Express may defeat the treaty. If it does that the British parliament never would ratify it.

Accidents in Winter

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

It is, of course, important to guard one's self at all times of year against preventable accidents. It is particularly important to do so during the winter months. For statistics go to show that more accidents occur then than in any other season.

Certain kinds of accidents, to be sure, occur with comparative infrequency in winter. There are, for example, far fewer accidental deaths from drowning in winter than in summer.

But the general accident toll rises as winter comes. And especially is this true of street car accidents, automobile accidents and accidental fallings.

Which, after all, is what one would naturally expect. For in winter there is a predominance of dark and foggy days, and pavements tend to be slippery. All of which is conducive to accidents unless extra vigilance is shown.

In addition the factor of lowered vitality has to be taken into account—an accident-causing factor too little appreciated. With the advent of winter many people adopt living habits of an unhygienic sort. Their lives become more sedentary and shut-in than during the summer, they deprive themselves of fresh air, and, besides under-exercising, they perhaps over-eat.

THREE GLENDALE MEN AT MEETING

County Y. M. C. A. Met at Alhambra for Dinner and Discussion

Glendale was represented at a dinner and meeting of the Los Angeles County Y. M. C. A. at the Alhambra on Thursday evening, by C. W. Ingledue, David Black and Secretary Rex Kelley.

It was the annual meeting of the committee, and at the session following the dinner, which was served at 6:30, an organization change was made which converted the Glendale district into a new and independent county unit functioning direct with the state committee Y. M. C. A. work organization, with Glendale city as its headquarters. It was felt that the Glendale organization, which is beginning its third year, is now strong enough to stand on its own feet and finance its own affairs.

The Glendale unit will now be called upon to elect a board of directors and Messrs. Ingledue, Black and Kirk, who have been members of the Los Angeles county committee, will probably call an organization meeting in the near future. The change will in no way alter the Y. M. C. A. program plans for Glendale the coming year, however.

Secretary Kelley gave his report for the first quarter, which was received with appreciative applause. It showed six Hi-Y groups for the district, five in Glendale high and one in Burbank, with an enrollment of 70 in Glendale and 25 in Burbank. Sixteen grammar school groups were reported. He stated that the leaders of these groups had a training conference in November and another is scheduled for Saturday night at the home of W. G. Boyd, leader of one of the grammar school groups.

The speakers who have appeared before the boys during the past three months have included one lawyer, three doctors, one mission-ary, two bankers, two artists, one college president, one college coach and three college athletes.

The high school boys, he stated, have assisted in hikes and play periods for the grammar school groups, and have a deputation team which has conducted services in several of the churches, and will lead a service in the Glendale Baptist church next Sunday evening.

One deep sea fishing trip has been taken; four boys and one leader attended the state Hi-Y training camp; 26 boys were at the Hi-Y state convention for older boys at Santa Barbara. The Hi-Y's successfully handled the financial side of Harry Rimmer's visit to our district, and have had four monthly banquets. The first of these functions was a get-together of prospective members; at the second, the high school cabinet was entertained; the third was for the Glendale high football team, and the fourth a banquet for Harry Rimmer. There have been one swimming party and four social evenings.

Activities of the grammar school groups have included one overnight camp at the San Gabriel canyon, one three-day camp at the cabin, and one Saturday afternoon hike. Four educational trips have been made and there have been three group picnics. One inter-group football game has been played.

Mr. Kelley also gave the encouraging information that Y. M. C. A. finances are in such shape that 1922 will open free of debt. Many of the boys have been encouraged to make "the great decision" of accepting the Lord as their "head coach," and a number have been encouraged to join churches.

ARABIAN NIGHT AT T.D.&L. SUNDAY

Vaudeville Bill Tonight One of Best Thus Far This Winter

It was midnight in Bagdad—that ancient city of the Orient famed for its stories of romance and intrigue. The myriads of minarets were shrouded in soft moonlight, and there was deep, unbroken quiet—for Bagdad slept.

Suddenly there was commotion in the streets. The figure of a girl, running with the speed of a gazelle, appeared. She was garbed in the costume of a dancer of the desert. Immediately behind her, and panting from the exertion of the pursuit, came a figure clad in royal raiment. It was the prince of the realm, the son of the mighty sheik. And as they disappeared down the winding lanes a third came into view, haltingly and outdistanced. It was Achmet, the slave dealer.

This is one of the numerous exciting episodes of "One Arabian Night," a fascinating story of Oriental passions and strife starring the inimitable Pola Negri, which will be the feature of the T. D. and L. theater, Sunday.

Mlle. Negri plays the role of a dancer with a troupe which travels over the desert from town to town. Reaching Bagdad, she catches the eye of the prince, and both experience "love at first sight."

The slave dealer, who, planning to sell the girl into the harem, has watched the tableaux from his place of concealment, follows. The dancer escapes the prince by dashing into a house, and there she falls into the clutches of the slave dealer.

The next day, after an extensive toilet, she is heavily perfumed, garbed in a magnificent gown of silk, and carried in a litter to the palace of the sheik. The mighty ruler sets eyes on her—and immediately installs her in the harem as his favorite.

The picturesque cow puncher is gone and the modern cattle breeder is going to follow him, George W. Armstrong, a stock man of Fort Worth, Texas, told the senate finance committee today. The cattle men are all broke and the cattle yard is a thing of the past, declared Armstrong.

"The cattlemen are at the mercy of the packers, who control all the packing plants in the world," Armstrong urged. "Every part of the steer," he said, he was not sure that even a high tariff would restore the cattle business.

Armstrong urged a tariff protection on "every part of the steer," he said, he was not sure that even a high tariff would restore the cattle business.

ARTICLE TEN NOW ARTICLE TWO SAYS BRYAN

Same Moral Obligation in Pacific Pact as in League

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN (Copyright, 1921, by United Press)
The senate of the United States seems disposed to rest upon its dignity and take time to deliberate upon the four-power treaty. Indications are that it will go through, but the reason for its popularity among the democrats will not give the republicans very much satisfaction. The democrats who favored the covenant of the league of nations will take great pleasure in helping to commit the republicans to article two because of its similarity in principle to article ten. They see in it a moral obligation which they will not be slow to remind the republicans that it was the moral obligation that they so solemnly inveighed against in the fight against the league of nations. But as consistency is less important than the support of the administration, the republicans are not likely to obstruct the passage of the resolution ratifying the treaty. It is quite certain, however, that in the next campaign the democrats will not overlook the acceptance of this moral obligation by the republicans.

It is fortunate that the conference is held at Washington, where the peace sentiment is strongest and where the influence of the professional man of arms is at a minimum. What could have been hoped for had the delegates gathered in some other capital where the attitude by the factories that fashion implements of war would have drowned the voice of those who favored disarmament!

ARBUCKLE TRIAL NOT SALACIOUS

City Housewives Advised to Attend Trials of That Kind

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—There was nothing salacious about the trial of Roscoe Arbuckle, according to a report submitted to a San Francisco Housewives League by Mrs. Robert A. Dean.

Mrs. Dean attended all sessions of the comedian's trial on charges of taking Virginia Rappé's life as representative of the Women's Gigant committee.

"I think it is an excellent thing for women to attend trials, especially those in which sex is involved," her report said.
