Burden of proof is on defendant to show withdrawal of offer before acceptance. American Case, etc. Co. v. Wetzler, 148 Wis. 168, 134 N. W. 489.

The fact that the plaintiff and defendant differed in their testimony as to the terms of the contract is not sufficient to show their minds had never met, but simply raised a conflict in the evidence as to what was the contract between the parties. Fincher v. Redman, 12 Ga. App. 241, 76 S. E. 1077.

Communication of acceptance of option to purchase given in lease; efforts to notify held equivalent to "actual knowledge." Rockland, etc. Lime Co.

v. Leary, 203 N. Y. 469, 97 N. E. 43.

A party seeking to avoid a contract by reason of incapacity has the burden of proof. Richardson v. Ins. Co., 109 Me. 117, 82 A. 1005.

"While one who seeks to avoid a contract on the ground of insanity has the burden of proving his position, when it is established that the contract has been made with a person mentally incapable of making a contract, the burden is so far shifted that the agreement will be set aside unless the same party, by proper proof, brings his case within the rule, as stated to wit, that he acted in ignorance of conditions; that no unfair advantage was taken; that the insane person is not able to restore the consideration or make adequate compensation therefor." Quantum of evidence to show parol. Contract need not be shown to reasonable certainty; to reasonable satisfaction of jury is enough. Eagle I. Co. v. Baugh, 147 Ala. 613, 41 S. 663. Oral contract to convey land must be clearly shown. Watson v. Watson, 225 Ill. 412, 80 N. E. 332; Russell v. Sharp, 192 Mo. 270, 91 S. W. 134. Burden of showing parol contract as collateral to written one is heavy. Chaplin v. Gerald, 104 Me. 187, 71 A. 712.

Contract with decedent.—Clearest and most convincing evidence is essential to establish parol contract with deceased person. Rosseau v. Rouss, 180 N. Y. 116, 72 N. E. 916; Hamlin v. Stevens, 177 N. Y. 39, 69 N. E. 118; Mahaney v. Carr, 175 N. Y. 451, 67 N. E. 903; Ide v. Brown, 178 N. Y. 26, 70 N. E. 101; Edson v. Parsons, 155 N. Y. 555, 50 N. E. 267.

Contract over telephone is not proved by evidence of one of the parties to the conversation unless it shows recognition of voice of the other, it not being otherwise shown contract was made. Planters' Co. v. Co., 126 Ga. 621, 55 S. E. 495. See Young v. Co., 33 Wash. 225, 74 P. 375.

Evidence as to need of doing what is alleged to have been contracted for, immaterial. Morris v. Co., 150 Ala. 150, 43 S. 483.

Violation of Sunday law.—If a contract for advertising in a Sunday paper can be performed without violation of law, there is no legal presumption that it will not be so performed. Sheffield v. Balmer, 52 Mo. 474, 14 Am. Rep. 430.

Evidence of parties need not be corroborated. In re Strauch, 208 Fed. 842 (C. C. A.).

Where the contention of the defendants is that the entire contract between them and the plaintiff was in parol, and that the order given for the car of wire, which was shipped, was in part execution of the contract, while the plaintiff contends that there was no agreement outside of the written order, it was competent for both parties to introduce evidence in support of their contentions, and the rule excluding parol evidence, which adds to or varies a written contract, has no application. Am. Steel & Wire Co. v. Copeland, 159 N. C. 556, 75 S. E. 1002.

La. Civ. Code, art. 2227 requires that a contract for the payment of money above $500 must be proved by at least one credible witness and corroborating circumstances. Williams v. Congregation, etc., 128 La. 355, 54 S. 877.

520-31 Brookfield v. College, 139 Mo. App. 339, 123 S. W. 86.

Undisclosed thought of party, not competent. Valley P. Co. v. Wise, 93 Ark. 1, 123 S. W. 768.

520-32 Ivey v. Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613.

Previous disagreement, no tendency to show terms of subsequent contract. McIntosh v. McNair, 53 Or. 87, 99 P. 74.

520-33 Details of negotiations by agent.—Avery & Co. v. Turner, 3 Ala. App. 627, 57 S. 255.

521-35 Providence M. Co. v. Browning, 72 S. C. 424, 52 S. E. 117.

Incomplete contract between two of the parties and record entries showing confession of judgment and proceedings thereunder, admissible. Moore v. Bk., 139 Ala. 595, 609, 36 S. 777.

521-36 Batcheller v. Whittier, 12 Cal. App. 262, 107 P. 141 (rule applies to subsequent declaration of one party in absence of the other); Anderson v. Arpin, 131 Wis. 34, 110 N. W. 788. See Colonial S. Co. v. Larson, 47 Colo. 25, 105 P. 861.

Rule as stated in text does not apply to contract for continuous employment; in such case declarations of managing agent during course of employment may be proved to show terms of contract. Brown v. Co., 150 Cal. 376, 89 P. 86.

522-39 Contra, Black v. Rinn, 226 Pa. 377, 75 A. 592.

Letters confirmatory of verbal contract, admissible. Putnam I. Co. v. King, 82 Kan. 216, 107 P. 559. But correspondence subsequent to contract, though containing statements of parties' understanding, is competent only as explainable admissions. Mahon v. Rankin, 54 Or. 328, 102 P. 608, 103 P. 53.

523-40 Memorandum not admissible unless it is clear it was intended to make such contract as it indicates, except to illustrate testimony and show negotiations. Tonopah L. Co. v. Riley, 30 Nev. 312, 95 P. 1001.

Printed matter examined by parties, not admissible if it was not a representation of work contracted for. Haydel v. Gould, 136 App. Div. 594, 121 N. Y. S. 194; Asbestolith Mfg. Co. v. Howland, 120 N. Y. S. 93.

Character and extent of employer's business may be shown on issue as to salary stipulated to be paid for services. McCowan v. Co., 41 Wash. 675, 84 P. 614.

For services rendered one's mother "no presumption of a promise to pay will arise from the mere performance and acceptance of the service as it would in case of a stranger. There must be evidence of a promise in order to rebut the presumption of a gratuity. But such promise need not necessarily be evidence by a writing, or have been heard by witness. It may be inferred from other facts that there was an agreement." Cupp v. McCallister, 144 Mo. App. 111, 129 S. W. 435.

524-43 Financial ability of defendant, immaterial. Hall v. Parry, 55 Tex. Civ. 10, 118 S. W. 561. And so value of services to which contract related and terms on which others offered to perform them. Kelly v. Malone, 5 Ga. App. 618, 63 S. E. 639.

524-44 Dayton L. Co. v. Stockdale, 54 Tex. Civ. 611, 118 S. W. 805.

Evidence of usual price competent as to terms.—Evidence as to custom of paying commissions on goods sold to parties brought to a store, admissible, if uniform, notorious and reasonable. Heistand v. Bateman, 41 Colo. 20, 91 P. 1111. There being a controversy as to agreed compensation, evidence is competent to show what is usually paid for like services. Standard P. E. Co. v. Brumley, 149 Fed. 184, 79 C. C. A. 132.

In Wisconsin such evidence is inadmissible unless difference in price is so great reasonable value thereof, from standpoint of parties when contract made, may reasonably discredit the evidence on the one side and corroborate that on the other. Anderson v. Arpin, 131 Wis. 34, 110 N. W. 788. In that state and some others evidence of the value of services or property, subject of contract, is admissible if disparity in contentions of parties is large. Short v. Cure, 100 Mich. 418, 59 N. W. 173; Swain v. Cheney, 41 N. H. 232; Kidder v. Smith, 34 Vt. 294; Anderson v. Arpin, supra; Valley L. Co. v. Smith, 71 Wis. 264, 37 N. W. 412, 5 Am. St. 216; Ball v. Radford, 72 Wis. 462, 39 N. W. 882; Mygatt v. Tarbell, 85 Wis. 477, 55 N. W. 1031. Value of chattels mortgaged is relevant as to sum agreed to be paid as commission for loan. Leasure v. Boie, 142 Ia. 284, 120 N. W. 643. Evidence of value of corporate assets is competent to show value of stock and probability of price agreed to be paid for it. But testimony as to value of book accounts generally is not admissible to show value of those in question. McIntosh v. McNair, 53 Or. 87, 99 P. 74.

Silence of contract as to time for payments may be aided by proof of time usually fixed therefor in contracts for like services. Standard P. E. Co. v. Brumley, 149 Fed. 184, 79 C. C. A. 132. Admissibility of such evidence is largely within discretion of trial court, which will not be interfered with unless clearly wrong. Anderson v. Arpin, 131 Wis. 34, 110 N. W. 788.

Custom not pleaded cannot be shown in action on express contract. Johnson v. Buchanan, 54 Tex. Civ. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

524-46 Featherstone, etc. Co. v. Criswell, 36 Ind. App. 681, 75 N. E. 30; Provencher v. Moore, 105 Me. 87, 72 A. 880; Gillespie v. Bk., 20 Okla. 768, 95 P. 220; Cox v. Co., 38 Pa. Super. 515.

Custom of employer may be shown on issue as to term of contract for service. Arkadelphia L. Co. v. Asman, 85 Ark. 568, 107 S. W. 1171.

Exception.—See Bono v. Hayes, 154 Cal. 759, 99 P. 172; Moody v. Peirano, 4 Cal. App. 411, 88 P. 380.

525-47 Evidence of custom, inadmissible. Peyser v. Co., 53 Wash. 633, 102 P. 750.

525-49 See New York, etc. Co. v. Dist., 33 App. Cas. (D. C.) 377.

Not unilateral.—"The proof shows the writing was executed in duplicate copies, each of which was in the precise language of the other. One copy of the contract was signed by defendant and delivered to plaintiff. The other copy was signed at the same time by plaintiff, and delivered to defendant. In instituting the suit, plaintiff, of course, filed that copy of the contract of sale with her petition which was in her possession and that is the one signed by defendant. But, be this as it may, as the two papers were identical in all respects as to the terms of the contract and executed at the same time as above set forth, they evidenced but one contract, all of which was in writing, and this, too, signed and executed by both parties." Ochler v. Conrad Schopp Fruit Co., 162 Mo. App. 446, 142 S. W. 811.

Burden of proof.—If contract is set out in complaint and there is no plea of non est factum, plaintiff is relieved of burden of proving its execution. Garrison v. Glass, 139 Ala. 512, 36 S. 725; Cutten v. Pearsall, 146 Cal. 690, 81 P. 25.

Presumption as to knowledge.—"Facts of public notoriety relating to the subject of a contract must be presumed to have been known to the parties at the time of making" it. Anse La Butte O. & M. Co. v. Babb, 122 La. 415, 47 S. 754.

Presumed contract of agency executed in which principal resided. Washington L. Ins. Co. v. Scott, 57 Misc. 492, 110 N. Y. S. 49.

Previous writing not admissible if it referred to contract subsequently executed. Pammel v. Ins. Co., 157 Mich. 204, 121 N. W. 760.

Contract admissible to disprove contention of party to it. Johnson v. Buchanan, 54 Tex. Civ. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

Failure to produce contract justifies resolving of doubt respecting it against party who claims its existence. Galveston, etc. R. Co. v. Jones (Tex. Civ.), 123 S. W. 737.

525-50 Party who introduces contract is bound by its terms. Burke v. R. Co., 134 App. Div. 413, 119 N. Y. S. 309.

Burden of proof.—Kopczynski v. Logging Co., 71 Wash. 93, 127 P. 601.

Breach of a written contract to furnish board and food to plaintiff for the rest of her life. Evidence that she had been in need of food and that she had left the defendant's house because she was afraid of him is competent to show plaintiff had not furnished such food and she was justified in leaving the house. Soderlund v. Helman, 215 Mass. 542, 102 N. E. 899.

A contractor suing for extras has the burden of showing the work was extra and defendant executed thereto. Leaf grower v. Yablonsky, 178 Ill. App. 19.

Contra, San Antonio v. Army (Tex. Civ.), 127 S. W. 860.

Demurrer lies if it is affirmatively shown foreign corporation has unauthorizedly done business. C. v. Hayden, 60 Neb. 636, 83 N. W. 922, 83 Am. St. 545.

Payment of tax in New York, a condition subsequent and non-compliance matter of defense. Parmele Co. v. Haas, 171 N. Y. 579, 64 N. E. 440; Wood v. Ball, 190 N. Y. 217, 83 N. E. 21; Halsey v. Jewett, 190 N. Y. 231, 83 N. E. 25.

Compliance need not be shown if it appears prima facie corporation engaged in interstate commerce. Zion Assn. v. Mayo, 22 Mont. 100, 55 P. 915.

Burden of showing corporation has done business locally is on party so alleging. Thomas v. Co., 67 Kan. 599, 73 P. 909; Praffine P. Co. v. Tarbox, 114 N. Y. S. 54 (forbidden business).

In action against agent of foreign corporation for embezzlement proof need not be made it had complied with local law. S. v. Tumey, 81 Ind. 559; S. v. Blakemore, 226 Mo. 560, 126 S. W. 429; C. v. Shober, 3 Pa. Super. 554; S. v. O'Brien, 94 Tenn. 79, 28 S. W. 311. Contra in action on agent's bond; but such neglect is not a defense to action for money had and received. Express Co. v. Lucas, 36 Ind. 361; Thorne v. Ins. Co., 80 Pa. 15. It seems to have been assumed proof of corporate existence was necessary in case of embezzlement. See S. v. Pittam, 32 Wash. 127, 72 P. 1042.

In New York there are differing statutes applying to separate classes of corporations (see Portland Co. v. Hall, 121 App. Div. 779, 106 N. Y. S. 649)

In action against foreign insurer, if substituted service made, it must be shown statute requiring appointment of agent has been complied with. McKeever v. Court, 106 N. Y. S. 1041.

Presumption.—Allegation plaintiff is a foreign corporation raises presumption it is of class which requires it to obtain license before doing business. Portland Co. v. Hall, supra.

597-42 Graefe v. Co., 224 Mo. 232, 123 S. W. 835.

If date of incorporation not shown, presumption is corporation organized under existing constitution. San Antonio T. Co. v. Altgelt (Tex. Civ.), 81 S. W. 106 598-46 It is conclusively presumed, where law provides for changing a voluntary association into a corporation, every person on becoming a member of former impliedly assented change might be made. Spiritual & P. T. v. Vincent, 127 Wis. 93, 105 N. W. 1026.

599-50 Payment of fee presumed where articles recorded. S. v. Court, 42 Wash. 675, 85 P. 669.

599-52 Borrero v. Luz Electrica, 1 P. R. Fed. 142.

Presumption is articles and certificate were regular as to contents. Avon Springs Co. v. Weed, 104 N. Y. S. 58. And facts stated in required affidavit were true. Cherry v. Co. (Tex. Civ. 115 S. W. 81

599-53 Anglo-Cal. Bk. v. Field, 146 Cal. 644, 80 P. 1080; Cribb v. Waycross, 82 Ga. 597, 9 S. E. 426; Mattox v. S., 115 Ga. 212, 41 S. E. 709; Van Winkle v. Mathews, 2 Ga. App. 249, 58 S. E. 396; Holcomb v. Co., 119 Ga. 466, 46 S. E. 671; Turner's Chapel v. Co., 121 Ga. 376, 49 S. E. 272; Georgia

It is sufficient for the plaintiff to prove the subscription and assignment to him, and the burden does not rest upon him to prove that the stockholder has not paid the subscription. Hargadine-McKittrick, etc. Co. v. Breedlove, 36 Okla. 768, 130 P. 267.

In the case of a stockholder's liability, under statute, for corporate debts to the amount unpaid on stock, the creditor's right is merely to pursue the indebtedness of the stockholder to the corporation and the creditor claims through the corporation. If the evidence of the debt is binding on the corporation, it is competent in an action to recover against the stockholder. Stephens v. Fox, 83 N. Y. 313, shows further that the controlling feature of such a case and of Hastings v. Drew, 76 N. Y. 9, is that the defendant is pursued as a debtor of the corporation. On the other hand, Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137, and McMahon v. Macy 51 N. Y. 155, establish that if a defendant is not pursued as a debtor of the corporation or for any pre-existing liability of his own, but upon an original liability, or, in other words, if he is not a debtor to the corporation or is not liable for its assets, a prior judgment against the corporation is not admissible against him. Schenck Chem. Co. v. Co., 66 Misc. 597, 121 N. Y. S. 838.

Stock cancelled.—Decree in a previous case held to be an adjudication that defendant here was not a stockholder, and record in that case (in which this plaintiff brought suit against stockholder) held to show that plaintiff did not regard defendant here as stockholder. Hamilton v. Titus, 185 Fed. 140.

Presumed action in issuing stock for services was fair. Turner v. Co., 2 Cal. App. 122, 83 P. 62.

A strong presumption of fraud arises where property of well known or easily ascertained value is taken at exaggerated value. That presumption will be conclusive unless rebutted by satisfactory explanatory evidence. Coleman v. Howe, 154 Ill. 458, 469, 39 N. E. 725, 45 Am. St. 133; Rumsey Mfg. Co. v. Kaime, 173 Mo. 551, 73 S. W. 470; National T. v. Gilfillan, 124 N. Y. 302, 26 N. E. 538; Macbeth v. Banfield, 45 Or. 553, 78 P. 693, 697. On the other hand, if nature of property and extent of over-valuation may have been possibly due to error in judgment, actual fraud must be shown, and regard may be had to nature of property, purposes for which it was accepted, and all conditions and circumstances attending the transaction. The sufficiency of the proof depends largely upon the character of the individual case. P. v. Hales (Cal. App.), 139 P. 667.

The court in Mills v. S., 11 Ga. App. 383, 75 S. E. 266, thus states evidence held sufficient to establish corpus delicti in arson: It appears that the barn described in the indictment was destroyed by fire about 3 o'clock in the morning, that no fire had been left in or near the building on the night before it was burned, that while the fire was in progress an odor of kerosene oil emanated from the building, and an empty can which had contained such oil was found near by, and that tracks of a human being, leading to and from the barn were found, and the circumstances were such as to indicate that they were made after the barn was closed on the night before the burning.

See the title "Circumstantial Evidence."

"The criminal agency of another as the means is satisfactorily established by the crushed skull, the bloody club, the bloody ground and weeds, and the crushed grass, showing where the body had been dragged." Smith v. Co., 148 Ky. 60, 146 S. W. 4.

There is no merit in the suggestion that there was an absence of evidence tending to prove the corpus delicti. The evidence tending to show that a hole such as would be made by a bullet from a No. 41 pistol cartridge was found in the glass of a window of a passenger car forming part of a train of the Southern Railway Company, where there was no hole before, shortly after a report was heard similar to that of a pistol, furnished some basis for an inference that some one with a gun or pistol shot into or at a passenger car forming part of a train of that company, as alleged in the indictment. P. v. Robertson, 88 App. Div. 198, 84 N. Y. S. 401.

Birth of child, not corroborative. S. v. Coffman, 112 Ia. 8, 83 N. W. 721; S. v. Blackburn, 136 Ia. 743, 114 N. W. 531; P. v. Robertson, 88 App. Div. 198, 84 N. Y. S. 401. It is given little weight if it occurred much before lapse of usual time unless shown to have been premature. Livinghouse v. S., 76 Neb. 491, 107 N. W. 854. Miscarriage may be proved. S. v. Fetterly, 33 Wash. 599, 74 P. 810.

Error to charge the jury that they may take into consideration, on the question of corroboration of the testimony of the prosecutrix (a girl of seven) whether she made a prompt complaint. S. v. Rodesky (N. J.), 90 A. 1099.

Not corroborative within Penal Law §2013 P. v. Shaw, 158 App. Div. 146, 142 N. Y. S. 782.

709-94 S. v. Haugh, 156 Ia. 639, 137 N. W. 917; S. v. Sells, 145 Ia. 675, 124 N. W. 776; Loar v. S., 76 Neb. 148, 107 N. W. 229; Powers v. S., 138 Ga. 624, 75 S. E. 651.

Not sufficient.—S. v. Stewart, 52 Wash. 61, 100 P. 153.

710-95 Admissions not corroborative unless they relate to acts on date alleged or prior thereto. P. v. Robertson, 88 App. Div. 198, 84 N. Y. S. 401.

710-96 Burk v. S., 79 Neb. 241, 112 N. W. 573.

710-97 Result of medical examination immediately had is competent. Brown v. S., 52 Tex. Cr. 267, 106 S. W. 368. And so of examination six months later. P. v. Ah Lung, 2 Cal. App. 278, 83 P. 296.

Discoloration of garments may be shown. S. v. Norris, 127 Ia. 683, 104 N. W. 282.

710-98 S. v. Sells, 145 Ia. 675, 124 N. W. 776 (its significance depends upon circumstances); Mott v. S., 83 Neb. 226, 119 N. W. 461; S. v. Gibson, 64 Wash. 131, 116 P. 872; S. v. McCool, 53 Wash. 487, 102 P. 422. See infra, "Rape," 601-48.

Constant association of parties may be given weight. S. v. Norris, 122 Ia. 154, 97 N. W. 999.

711-99 Opportunity is not sufficient corroboration unless it was exclusive (S. v. Stevens, 133 Ia. 684, 110 N. W. 1037), or the result of defendant's proposed act and connected with other acts. S. v. Norris, supra.

Not required in civil action.—Beans v. Denny, 141 Ia. 52, 117 N. W. 1091. Nor in prosecution for having carnal knowledge of female under eighteen. S. v. Day, 188 Mo. 359, 87 S. W. 465.

The statutory allegation of the indictment that she was "of previous chaste character," and that the carnal knowledge was obtained "by virtue of a false or feigned promise of marriage," cannot be maintained on the testimony of the prosecutrix alone. The prosecutrix must be corroborated by evidence upon these two points. Such is the burden, so to speak, placed upon the state in cases of this character. Carter v. S., 99 Miss. 206, 54 S. 805.

712-5 Sufficiency.—Holland v. S. (Ala. App.), 66 S. 126.

712-6 S. v. Sublett, 191 Mo. 163, 90 S. W. 374.

712-10 It is sufficient if prosecutrix's testimony as to promise is corroborated by defendant's admissions, or facts and circumstances such as usually attend an engagement of marriage. S. v. Sublett, supra; S. v. Phillips, 185 Mo. 185, 83 S. W. 1080.

Corroboration as to promise not essential if prosecutrix corroborated so as to establish credibility. Weaver v. S., 142 Ala. 33, 39 S. 341; Rex v. Daun, 12 Ont. L. R. (Can.) 227.

Testimony not insufficient because it tends to prove act of intercourse subsequent to first of such acts if it was at time of, or subsequent to, promise. Rucker v. S., 77 Ark. 23, 90 S. W. 151.

In a prosecution for abandonment after seduction the prosecutrix need not be corroborated both as to the act of intercourse and the promise of marriage. James v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 167 S. W. 727.

714-16 Rex v. Burr, 13 Ont. L. R. (Can.) 485; S. v. Bruton, 253 Mo. 361, 161 S. W. 751; S. v. Kincaid, 142 N. C. 657, 55 S. E. 647; Gillespie v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 166 S. W. 135.

Need not be corroborated specifically as to promise of marriage or intercourse. De Rossett v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 168 S. W. 531.

It is impossible to lay down any rule as to the degree of corroboration required, the statute only requiring some corroborating evidence. It must be sufficient when considered with other evidence in the case. De Cloedt v. De Cloedt, 24 Ida. 277, 133 P. 664.

727-92 See infra, "Divorce," 794-39, 795-42.

729-4 Admissions by decedent satisfy statute requiring corroborating testimony as to transactions with him. Batzold v. Upper, 4 Ont. L. R. (Can.) 116. Otherwise as to another note signed by deceased and witnessed only by plaintiff; his testimony was not sufficient. But a mortgage executed by deceased and identified by plaintiff and endorsed as registered was sufficient under a statute making registration prima facie evidence of execution. Thompson v. Thompson, 4 Ont. L. R. (Can.) 442.

730-7 A resulting trust in favor of a wife cannot be established by her own and husband's uncorroborated testimony as against his creditors. Burnett v. Co., 1 Tenn. Ch. App. 18.

Testimony need not go to the details; if it meets some important points it will be sufficient. Burnett v. Co., supra.

730-8 Receipt given by third party to grantor of a party, competent to sustain latter's testimony. Powers v. Hatter, 152 Ala. 636, 44 S. 859.

Exception to rule against distinguishing part of evidence.—It is proper to say if the jury, upon all the evidence, believe the testimony as to the good character of certain witnesses and that it is sufficient to overcome the impeaching testimony, their testimony should be weighed in the light of proof of their character in connection with all the other evidence. Hammond v. S., 147 Ala. 79, 41 S. 761.

Effect of affidavit.—It is proper for court to inform jury affidavit in evidence, not required by law. Isaac v. U. S., 7 Ind. Ty. 196, 104 S. W. 588.

The jury may reject as untrue the exculpatory parts of the defendant's evidence, and to have given full credence to those parts of his testimony tending to show his guilt. Jackson v. S., 4 Ala. App. 199, 59 S. 231.

It is only when the facts are undisputed and when different minds cannot draw different conclusions therefrom that it becomes the court's duty to direct the verdict. Brigham v. R. Co., 104 Ark. 267, 149 S. W. 90.

Verdict will not be disturbed, unless demonstrably without any support in the testimony. Anderson v. Pub. Service Corp., 83 N. J. L. 19, 83 A. 769. Kentucky.—"It was formerly held that this court, where there was any evidence to sustain the conviction, was without power to reverse a judgment of conviction in a criminal case upon the absence of sufficient evidence, if there were any evidence. Pingston v. Commonwealth, 127 S. W. 493, and cases cited. Section 281 of the Criminal Code was so amended in 1910 (Laws 1910, c. 92) as that the court has now such right of reversal; but in construing the amended section we said: 'The credibility of the witness is for the jury, and this court will not disturb a verdict because the jury believed one set of witnesses rather than another. The verdict must be palpably against the evidence, or it cannot be disturbed.' Wilson v. Commonwealth, 140 Ky. 1, 130 S. W. 794."

"The jury may go upon excursions of discovery for truth within the field of evidence to the uttermost boundaries of reason, not boundaries set by any particular persons, or persons generally, but such as rational men of common sense might set without passing beyond the dividing line between the field of probabilities into that of mere guessing or conjecture." Samulski v. Co., 147 Wis. 285, 133 N. W. 142, quoted in Miekuczauski v. Co., 148 Wis. 153, 134 N. W. 369.

Court should not set aside verdict founded upon conflicting testimony provided there is sufficient evidence to support it, and it be not contrary to the overwhelming weight thereof. Whelan v. R. Co., 70 W. Va. 442, 74 S. E. 410.

The appellate court "cannot take the conflicting evidence introduced and the evidence that should have been admitted and now pass on the whole as jurors. That course would be virtually a denial of trial by jury." Painter v. Long, 69 W. Va. 765, 72 S. E. 1092.

"It must take all the evidence tending to establish the facts against the appellant and all reasonable and correct inferences from such facts as are proven, and, if from all this the verdict of the jury can be sustained, this court is bound thereby, and cannot on that ground reverse a judgment of conviction." Trimble v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 145 S. W. 929.

In a suit upon an indorsement of a note where defendant claimed procurement by fraud, and the burden of proving good faith was therefore upon plaintiff, who offered its cashier to testify the court directed verdict for plaintiff. "In directing a verdict for the plaintiff, the court, in effect, instructed the jury that they must believe that witness, and evidently, as we gather from the opinion refusing a new trial, relied as authority for this instruction upon Lonzer v. Lehigh Valley R. R. Co., 196 Pa. 610, 46 Atl. 937. We have many times said that, when the establishment of a question of fact depends upon oral testimony, the credibility of the witness or witnesses is for the jury alone, and it is their exclusive province to determine whether from such testimony the fact in dispute has been established. Grambs v. Lynch, 20 Wkly. Notes Cas. 376; Harlow v. Borough of Homestead, 194 Pa. 57, 45 Atl. 87; Bartlett v. Rothschild, 214 Pa. 421, 63 Atl. 1030; Fry v. National Glass Co., 219 Pa. 514, 69 Atl. 56. There is nothing in the case before us to take it out of the foregoing rule. What was said in Lonzer v. R. R. Co. seems, and especially of late, to be misunderstood. All that was there decided was that when testimony not in itself improbable is not at variance with any proved or admitted facts, or with ordinary experience, and comes from a witness whose candor there is no apparent ground for doubting, a jury will not be permitted to indulge in a capricious disbelief of such testimony. By 'candor' the learned justice who wrote the opinion unquestionably meant 'credibility,' and the credibility of a witness is always more or less affected by his interest in the matter in controversy. In the present case a fair inference to have been drawn by the jury was that the cashier of the bank was very much interested in the result of the suit." Second Nat. A party.—"Generally, the credibility of a witness, who is a party to the action, and therefore interested in its result, is for the jury; but this rule, being founded in reason, is not an absolute and inflexible one. . . Where, however, the evidence of a party to the action is not contradicted by direct evidence, nor by any legitimate inferences from the evidence, and it is not opposed to the probabilities, nor, in its nature, surprising or suspicious, there is no reason for denying to it conclusiveness." On a trial for abortion, the prosecuting witness had testified that she had been married for about a month, and it appeared that she had been pregnant for about three months. The defendant on cross-examination asked her who was the father of the child, and also to state whether or not any other man than her husband was the father of the child. The court sustained an objection to these questions, and we think rightly. The relevant issue in respect of her pregnancy was the fact of her being with child, and it was immaterial who was the father. If the questions were asked to degrade her, they would be equally inadmissible. P. v. Wah Iling, 15 Cal. App. 195, 114 P. 416.

Though that a witness is an habitual drunkard may be shown by way of impeachment (S. v. Grant, 79 Mo. 113, 49 Am. Rep. 218), it is not error to refuse an instruction calling the jury's attention to that fact when they have been instructed as to the credibility of any witness and told that they could take his character into consideration. S. v. Sauer, 42 Minn. 258, 44 N. W. 115. In Mississippi statute covers misdemeanors as well as infamous crimes. Lewis v. S., 85 Miss. 35, 37 S. 497. Witness may be asked if he had been convicted, but not whether he had been imprisoned for cutting a white man's throat. Statute limits questions. Dodds v. S. (Miss.), 45 S. 863. In Missouri inquiry may be made as to convictions for like misdemeanors in another state. S. v. Oliphant, 128 Mo. App. 252, 107 S. W. 32. In Nevada evidence must be confined to convictions which affect veracity of witness—one for assault and battery cannot be shown. S. v. Huff, 11 Nev. 17. In New York conviction of any crime may be proved. P. v. Burns, 33 Hun (N. Y.) 296. But not conviction under ordinance. Arhart v. Stark, 27 N. Y. S. 301. In North Carolina conviction for forcible trespassing may be shown; but not for drunkenness. Coleman v. R. Co., 138 N. C. 351, 50 S. E. 690. In Ohio in civil cases witness may not be attacked except by showing reputation for want of veracity; the trial court may exclude cross-examination as to his record. Smith v. Johnson, 3 O. N. P. (N. S.) 8. In Oregon conviction for misdemeanor may be shown. S. v. Bacon, 13 Or. 143, 9 P. 393, 57 Am. Rep. 8. Fact cannot be proved on cross-examination. S. v. Bartmess, 33 Or. 110, 54 P. 167. In South Carolina questions should be limited to testing witness' character for accuracy, veracity or credibility. Kennington v. Catoe, 68 S. C. 470, 47 S. E. 719. In Texas proof must not go beyond charges of felonies and such misdemeanors as impute moral turpitude. Missouri, etc. R. Co. v. Dumas (Tex. Civ.), 93 S. W. 493; Hays v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 149, 82 S. Rule not applicable to cross-examination to show previous inconsistent statements as to principal question. Robinson v. R. Co., 189 Mass. 594, 76 N. E. 190.

"The trial court ruled that plaintiff's husband should answer the following question upon his cross-examination: "Q. How much did you pay for it (referring to the marker for his mother's grave)?" An examination of the record shows that an attempt was made by defendant to show by the witness that money had come into his hands to purchase a marker for his mother's grave, and that he had used it for other purposes. It was being used to affect his credibility as a witness. We think it was one of those questions that is so far within the discretion of the trial court that we cannot say that he was in error in directing it to be answered." The ease with which their memories fail them when called by the opposite side for cross-examination. Nelson v. Halvorson, 117 Minn. 255, 135 N. W. 818. "Caution in giving testimony, it is true, often indicates that weight should be given to the testimony; but, where a witness deeply interested institutes an inquiry as to the one particular matter vital to his own interest —that is, whether a name has been indorsed on a paper, and examines the paper to find out—his testimony that to the best of his recollection the indorsement is not there, but that he has no independent recollection on the subject is not evidence but mere conjecture." Lowry Nat. Bk. v. Seymour, 91 S. C. 305, 74 S. E. 648.

The want of accurate recollection may discredit their testimony and justify a jury in disregarding it altogether. Lautner v. Kann, 181 Pa. 334, 39 A. 55. The testimony of a witness, when read, may induce belief; but the manner and conduct of the witness on the stand may so discredit him as to justify the jury in excluding the testimony in the consideration of the case. It is the testimony impelling belief in the minds of the jury, and not the number of witnesses, which should control the decision of the disputed facts in the case. Kelley v. Lehigh Valley R. Accused.—In P. v. Arnold, 248 Ill. 169, 93 N. E. 786, the court after instructing that the credibility of the defendant was a matter for the jury, and that they might consider, among other things, his interest, said: "You are not required to receive blindly the testimony of such accused person as true, but you are to consider whether it is true and made in good faith or false and made only for the purpose of avoiding a conviction." Disapproving, the Supreme Court said: "When a person accused of crime becomes a witness, he is in the same position as any other witness, and any witness may be either disinterested or have an interest, near or remote. The interest of the defendant is of a different character from that of any other, and it is therefore proper to point him out in an instruction and to direct the jury to take into account his interest as affecting his credibility, but the court has no more right to disparage or discredit his testimony than that of any other witness. Such an instruction as this, concerning any other witness having an interest in the result of a case, would not be regarded as proper, and the instruction falls under the condemnation of Hellyer v. People, 186 Ill. 550, 58 N. E. 245. The words quoted were the ground for a reversal of the judgment in Donner v. State, 72 Neb. 263, 100 N. W. 305, 117 Am. St. Rep. 789."

Rule applies if witness indirectly answers question as to former statement. Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Matthieson, 212 Ill. 292, 72 N. E. 443. And if he does not directly deny making it. Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547.

Weight of statements as compared with party's evidence. Severson v. Gremm, 124 Ia. 729, 100 N. W. 862.

Order of proof.—Contradictory written statement should be read when party offering it presents rebuttal evidence; but presenting it during witness' cross-examination is not serious error. Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Matthieson, 212 Ill. 292, 72 N. E. 443. It must be introduced before witness questioned concerning it. Villineuve v. R. Co., 73 N. H. 250, 60 A. 748. Error in excluding writing harmless if contents shown by parol. Chicago, etc. R. Co. v. Crose, 113 Ill. App. 547. Oral statements may be proved without asking witness whether he made them; he may explain later. Villineuve v. R. Co., supra.

Fact witness did not deny a statement made in his presence as to his opinion may be shown to affect testimony inconsistent with such opinion. Denver, etc. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 42 Colo. 43, 94 P. 289.

Tax statement made by property owner not admissible to contradict his testimony as to value of property described in it. Williams v. Brown, 137 Mich. 569, 100 N. W. 786, statute.

Inconsistent conduct in bringing action.—One may comply with conditions of a policy by giving notice of loss and bringing suit thereon without affecting credibility of his testimony as to cause of loss; he being without personal knowledge thereof. Blickley v. Luce, 148 Mich. 233, 111 N. W. 752. Contra in action for personal injuries. Fact suit brought may be shown by witness. Ruemer v. Clark, 121 App Div. 231, 105 N. Y. S. 659.

Statements as to opinions or estimates not competent to contradict. Southern R. Co. v. McNeill, 155 Fed. 756, 781; Van Houser v. S., 52 Tex. Cr. 572, 108 S. W. 386; Kirk v. S., 48 Tex. Cr. 624, 89 S. W. 1067. Comp. Atlanta, etc. R. Co. v. McManus, 1 Ga. App. 302, 58 S. E. 258, and S. v. Hogan, 117 La. 863, 42 S. 352 (non-expert witness as to sanity may be contradicted by proof of previous statements). Varying opinions expressed at different times, not necessarily inconsistent. Myers v. Manlove, 164 Ind. 128, 71 N. E. 893; Parker v. S., 46 Tex. Cr. 461, 80 S. W. 1008. Affidavit by party stating what he believed absent witness would swear to, not admissible. Baker v. S., 85 Ark. 300, 107 S. W. 983.

Witness must first be interrogated as to person, time and place. Keyes v. R. Co., 152 Cal. 437, 93 P. 88 (code); P. v. Pembroke, 6 Cal. App. 588, 92 P. 668; Bradley v. Gorham, 77 Conn. 211, 58 A. 698; Clinton v. S., 53 Fla. 98, 43 S. 312 (statute); Stancliff v. U. S., 5 Ind. Ty. 486, 82 S. W. 882; Lerum v. Geving, 97 Minn. 269, 105 N. W. 967; P. v. Mallon, 116 App. Div. 425, 101 N. Y. S. 814; McCulloch v. Dobson, 133 N. Y. 114, 30 N. E. 641 (doubted, Goss v. Goss, 102 Minn. 346, 113 N. W. 690); Loughlin v. Brassil, 187 N. Y. 128, 79 N. E. 854. Otherwise if witness a party Ruemer v. Clark, 121 App. Div. 231, 105 N. Y. S. 659.

Silence not contradiction if witness not called upon to speak. O'Connor v. Hogan, 140 Mich. 613, 104 N. W. 29.

Only such contradictory extra-judicial statements can be shown as are relevant.—Dillard v. U. S., 141 Fed. 303, 72 C. C. A. 451; Yelton v. Black, 26 Ky. L. R. 885, 82 S. W. 634; Brackett v. Co., 127 Ga. 672, 56 S. E. 762; Loranger v. Carpenter, 148 Mich. 549, 112 N. W. 125; Tucker v. Ty., 17 Okla. 56, 87 P. 307; Barton v. Bruley, 119 Wis. 326, 96 N. W. 815. Declarations may be proved though incompetent for other purposes. Keyes v. R. Co., 152 Cal. 437, 93 P. 88; S. v. Mitchell, 119 La. 374, 44 S. 132. Contradictory testimony in another case as to a matter peculiarly within knowledge of witness cannot be proved if it has no relevancy. Western C., etc. Co. v. Anderson, 45 Tex. Civ. 513, 101 S. W. 1061.

Precautionary measures after suit brought may be shown to affect credibility of testimony they were unnecessary. Frierson v. Frazier, 142 Ala. 232, 37 S. 825; Schloemer v. Co., 204 Mo. 99, 102 S. W. 565. But not to contradict witness. Loughlin v. Brassil, 187 N. Y. 128, 79 N. E. 854.

Statements of others in witness' presence cannot be shown unless he authorized them. Tucker v. Ty., 17 Okla. 56, 87 P. 307.

Variance between pleading and testimony of party does not per se affect weight of latter. Sheldon v. Crane, 146 Ia. 461, 125 N. W. 238.

Release executed by minor son, inadmissible. Hollinger v. R. Co., 225 Pa. 419, 74 A. 344.

Such evidence should be carefully scrutinized. Husted v. Mead, 58 Conn. 55, 19 A. 233; Bradley v. Gorham, 77 Conn. 211, 58 A. 698.

Unsworn interpreter.—Immaterial ex parte affidavit made through unsworn interpreter. Davis v. Bk., 6 Ind. Ty. 124, 89 S. W. 1015.

Party who called witness may show inconsistent extrajudicial statements. Whitt v. C., 27 Ky. L. R. 50, 84 S. W. 340. State may show them by witness it brought before grand jury. S. v. Brown, 128 Ia. 24, 102 N. W. 799; S. v. Waldrop, 73 S. C. 60, 52 S. E. 793.

Formerly, in Alabama, it was proper to instruct that if any witness had made contradictory statements as to material facts jury might consider them as raising reasonable doubt of truth of testimony. Gregg v. S., 106 Ala. 44, 17 S. 321; Williams v. S., 114 Ala. 19, 21 S. 993. But these cases have been overruled. Brown v. S., 142 Ala. 287, 38 S. 268; Snyder v. S., 145 Ala. 33, 40 S. 978, qualifying Washington v. S., 58 Ala. 355.

A change of testimony which meets necessities of case as declared by reviewing court is a most suspicious circumstance. Czermak v. Wetzel, 109 N. Y. S. 698; Barry v. Co., 119 N. Y. S. 237.

Witness may explain seeming contradictions. Brown v. McBride, 129 Ga. 92, 58 S. E. 702; Spearman v. Sanders, 121 Ga. 468, 49 S. E. 296; Long v. Davis, 136 Ia. 734, 114 N. And show former statement made under duress. Skeen v. S., 51 Tex. Cr. 39, 100 S. W. 770.

Explanation of instrument.—Parol evidence is competent to show what transpired at time witness signed a paper, introduced to impeach his credibility, to explain alleged inconsistency between it and his testimony. Joyce v. Joyce, 80 Conn. 88, 67 A. 374; Idaho P. Mo. v. Green, 14 Ida. 249, 93 P. 954; Villeneuve v. R. Co., 73 N. H. 250, 60 A. 748; Shreve v. Crosby, 72 N. J. L. 491, 63 A. 333; Reynolds v. R. Co., 38 Tex. Civ. 273, 85 S. W. 323. If fraud is alleged all that was said and done when paper signed may be shown. National E. & S. Co. v. Fagan, 115 Ill. App. 590.

Conduct inconsistent with testimony may be shown. Wefel v. Stillman, 151 Ala. 249, 44 S. 203; Philadelphia v. Dobbins, 24 Pa. Super. 136.

Judge's notes not admissible to show contradiction in testimony. Richards v. C., 107 Va. 881, 59 S. E. 1104.

Testimony formerly given not admissible if witness admits having given it. Dean v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 243, 83 S. W. 816. But comp. Stinson v. C., 29 Ky. L. R. 733, 96 S. W. 463 (affidavit admissible after its making admitted and witness examined as to contents). See Beier v. Co., 197 Mo. 215, 233, 94 S. W. 876. If part of such testimony is read to contradict, witness may offer other part. Casey v. S., 50 Tex. Cr. 392, 97 S. W. 496.

Pleadings in former suits, admissible. Ackerman v. Larner, 116 La. 101, 40 S. 581; Texas, etc. R. Co. v. Moers (Tex. Civ.), 97 S. W. 1064. If verified and not withdrawn. Lexington R. Co. v. Woodward, 32 Ky. L. R. 653, 106 S. W. 953.

Proof of contradictions of facts only affects testimony of witnesses contradicted. Korter v. R. Co., 87 Miss. 482, 40 S. 258. Such proof may be rebutted by evidence of reputation for truth and veracity. Swain v. S., 48 Tex. Cr. 98, 86 S. W. 335.

In S. v. Codington, 80 N. J. L. 496, 78 A. 743, the court instructed: "You have a right to consider the defendant's lack of corroboration wherever he could have been corroborated. That does not prove that what he said is not so by any means; but you have a right to consider the fact that others who might have helped him to establish these things by corroboration were not called." The supreme court said: "This instruction we think is entirely justified by the opinion of this court in State v. Callahan, 76 N. J. Law 426, 69 Atl. 957. In that case it was held that the nonproduction of a witness who is presumptively able to explain the circumstances which constitute a prima facie case against the defendant may be considered by the jury in weighing the effect of evidence applicable to the matter in dispute, but that it does not raise any presumption of guilt or innocence. The principle upon which this rule rests is equally applicable to the conditions dealt with in the instruction complained of."

Self-corroboration not permitted. Southern P. Co. v. Schuyler, 135 Fed. 1015, 68 C. C. A. 409.

"While it is true that, when the jury is satisfied that a witness has corruptly sworn falsely to one material fact, his entire testimony may be rejected, there is nothing in the law saying that the entire testimony of such a witness must be rejected by the jury. The jury may accept as true a part of the testimony of such a witness, and reject the remainder. This case furnishes an apt illustration of this rule, and of the unquestioned power of the jury under such rule. The jury in returning a verdict for the appellee conclusively established the fact that they accepted as true the statement made by the mortgagor, on his direct examination, that he owned the horse, and rejected as untrue substantially all that he testified to with reference to the ownership of the horse on his cross-examination." Pilches v. Smith, 4 Ala. App. 444, 58 S. 672.

779-87 Sanders v. S., 54 Tex. Cr. 101, 112 S. W. 68.

On cross-examination counsel is not required to state what he expects to prove by the witness. S. v. Bobbitt, 242 Mo. 273, 146 S. W. 799.
Erroneous exclusion of evidence on cross-examination is cured by the admission of evidence on direct examination tending to prove the same facts. Langford v. Issenhuth, 28 S. D. 451, 134 N. W. 889.
Constitutional right.—Right of accused to be confronted by witnesses against him imports right to cross-examine. Wray v. S., 154 Ala. 36, 45 S. 697, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 493. Right is as broad as the issue. Walton v. S., 87 Miss. 689, 39 S. 689. Exceptions exist as to dying declarations and to reception of testimony given on former trial by witness who has died, left the jurisdiction or become incapable of testifying, defendant having had the right to cross-examine on such trial. Wray v. S., 154 Ala. 36, 45 S. 697, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 493.
Right not limited by statute authorizing examination of party as if under cross-examination, if he offers himself as witness in his own behalf. Purse v. Purcell, 43 Colo. 50, 95 P. 291.
Pendency of another action arising out of same contract does not affect right to cross-examine a party. Walter v. Bradley, 64 Misc. 79, 117 N. Y. S. 977.
It is presumed prejudice resulted from denial or unjustifiable restriction of cross-examination, though party may call witness or others to prove desired facts. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Co., 129 Fed. 668, 64 C. C. A. 180.
Cross-examination not to be denied because witness cannot be contradicted as to what occurred between her and her husband. Neace v. C., 23 Ky. L. R. 125, 62 S. W. 733.
Right to cross-examine a party to a proceeding in patent office is not lost by his securing consent of the other to adjournment beyond such time as will permit service of subpoena on him. Lobel v. Cossey, 157 Fed. 664, 85 C. C. A. 142.

Unnecessary witness may be cross-examined. Nickelson v. Dial, 77 Kan. 8, 93 P. 606.

Maker of an affidavit for introduction of certified copy of a deed, which is positive in its terms and in conformity with statute, cannot be cross-examined as to truth of affidavit, though he testified generally. Glos v. Garrett, 219 Ill. 208, 76 N. E. 373.

807-3 Harris v. R. Co., 115 Mo. App. 527, 91 S. W. 1010.

Unconditional.—Right to cross-examine cannot be conditioned upon counsel's informing court and parties as to its object. Brown v. S., 88 Miss. 166, 40 S. 737.

Right limited to taking original evidence; does not extend to summary of it filed at close of complainant's evidence before a master. Goss P. P. Co. v. Scott, 148 Fed. 394.

808-4 Affiants whose depositions have been read may be cross-examined on coming into court thereafter. Elkins v. Coal Co. (Ky.), 115 S. W. 203.

808-5 Rule which prohibits proof of affirmative defenses on cross-examination extends only to such as are pleaded by party adverse to him who calls witness. It never applies to a cross-examination by which adverse party simply seeks to disprove, weaken or modify case against him made by witness. Resurrection G. M. Co. v. Co., 129 Fed. 668, 64 C. C. A. 180; Wendt v. R. Co., 4 S. D. 476, 57 N. W. 226.

808-8 Accused is not bound to cross-examine witness whose health is such that to do so may imperil his life. Direct testimony given by such witness, whom accused declined to cross-examine, stricken out. Wray v. S., 154 Ala. 36, 45 S. 697, 15 L. R. A. (N. S.) 193.

808-9 Watts v. S., 8 Ala. App. 115, 63 S. 15. Accused, whose testimony on former trial has been read, may cross-examine official reporter as to other statements therein which tended to explain, qualify, correct or enlighten concerning matters covered by testimony read. Miller v. P., 216 Ill. 309, 74 N. E. 743.

After actions consolidated and a party has testified in his own behalf and been cross-examined by plaintiff, it is competent to allow another party to cross-examine defendant in its interest. Sullivan v. Fugazzi, 193 Mass. 518, 79 N. E. 775.

A co-defendant whose purpose to abido its motion for direction of a verdict has been stated may cross-examine the other defendant's witnesses. Postal Tel.-C. Co. v. Likes, 225 Ill. 249, 80 N. E. 136.

"On cross-examination of the defendant, touching a license being refused him by the city council, in reply to the question whether there was more than one reason, he said, 'I don't think I will have any trouble, Mr. B., getting my license after today.' To this the prosecuting attorney replied: 'No; I don't think you will have any chance.' Objection was made and exception taken to this remark, and the court at once ruled that it was objectionable. The witness' irresponsive answer, volunteering the opinion that he was about to be acquitted, naturally suggested the retaliatory retort. It was improper and objectionable, and the court so ruled. We think that the ruling cured any prejudicial effect which might be inferred from such ill-advised exchange of views between witness and counsel." P. v. Hock, 169 Mich. 87, 134 N. W. 1031.

In C. v. Richmond, 207 Mass. 240, 93 N. E. 816, "one Clifford, a witness called by the commonwealth, having testified at length concerning the people in the house where the deceased met his death, and their actions and some of their conversation, and that one Drohan had said in reply to his question a short time before the lifeless body of the deceased was discovered that MacTavish was in the house, was asked on cross-examination: 'When was MacTavish again mentioned by any of you?' This question was properly excluded. It was indefinite as to persons, and appears to bear no relation to any issue in the case."

Question unnecesasrily complex in form and involved in meaning may be disallowed. Washington v. S., 155 Ala. 2, 46 S. 778; Todd v. Crete, 79 Neb. 677, 115 N. W. 307.

Equity rule requiring all testimony to be recorded, regardless of objection, does not enlarge scope of rule in text. Young v. Welch Mfg. Co., 201 Fed. 563.

Party calling witness vouches for credibility, and so it would be unfair not to confine him to the subjects of the direct examination. "If it is desired to examine the witness as to other matters, the proper practice is to make him his own witness. The only exception to this rule is to show bias or prejudice and to lay the foundation to admit evidence of prior contradictory statements." Ferry-Hallock Co. v. Orange, etc. Co., 185 Fed. 816, per Rellstab, D. J., quoting Aeolian Co. v. Standard, etc. C., 176 Fed. 811.

"It is very difficult for the trial judge to carry all of the testimony in a case in his head, and frequently he is in doubt as to what is strictly in reply, and valuable time would be consumed in ascertaining what has been testified to when that is the case. I see no reason why the judge should not allow the testimony to be introduced and the other side allowed to reply to it. This certainly would cure any objection to it and render the admission to it harmless, as to it being in reply." S. v. Wooten, 92 S. C. 61, 75 S. E. 213, as to a former conviction.

"Where a plaintiff charging fraud, to prove some fact material to his side of the cause, calls to the witness stand one of the alleged perpetrators of such alleged fraud, although not a party to the suit, but makes no inquiry of the witness as to the intention with which an act testified to was done, such plaintiff does not open the way for the defendant, who is also charged as a participator in such fraud to cross-examine his alleged confederate in alleged fraud under this rule permitting broad latitude on cross-examination. If there actually was any fraud in the alleged transaction, the secrets and circumstances thereof were within the knowledge of the participators therein, and they were not in need of this broad latitude on cross-examination to discover their own fraud. Under such circumstances, the plaintiff should not be bound by the statements of such a witness on cross-examination, when plaintiff had not opened the way therefor. The permissibility of such broad latitude on cross-examination is very largely within the discretion of the trial court. Kerr v. Melum, 27 S. D. 208, 130 N. W. 83.

See Johnson v. Co., 169 Mich. 651, 135 N. W. 1069.

South Dakota has a statute identical with that of Minnesota, as to which it has been ruled that the object of the statute was to permit a party to call his adversary at the trial without making him his own witness, and elicit from him, if possible, material facts within his knowledge by a cross-examination precisely as if he had already been examined on his own behalf in chief. Suter v. Page, 64 Minn. 444, 67 N. W. 67; In re Brown, 38 Minn. 112, 35 N. W. 726. The act was not designed to affect the competency of witnesses (Wolford v. Farnham, 44 Minn. 159, 46 N. In California, etc. Assn. v. Lilly, 184 Fed. 570, 106 C. C. A. 550, plaintiff "was introduced as a witness to testify as to his own acts. He was sworn to testify to the whole truth. He produced in evidence the statement of account which he had sent to the defendant, together with the answer of the defendant thereto, which, on its face, was an assent to the statement and an acknowledgment of the debt. He testified that no payment had been made on the account or on the items of storage therein specified. In presenting those papers he vouched for their truth, and he thereby asserted that the goods had been sold and delivered as represented in the statement. He was examined in such a way as to have him avoid testifying to the important facts which went to the merit of the controversy, facts which were peculiarly within his own knowledge. In such a case why should the defendant be required to make the plaintiff a witness for the defense and be compelled to give credit to the plaintiff's testimony as to the very existence of his own cause of action?''

"If the state's witness had testified truthfully on his direct examination, the defendant was undoubtedly guilty, and the defense necessarily must rest upon discrediting or showing the falsity of the testimony of this witness. Under such circumstances the range of cross-examination should not be restricted within bounds so narrow as not to embrace questions affording the defendant a reasonable opportunity to test the accuracy, and show, if he can, the falsity of the statements of the witness as to his whereabouts, etc., just prior to or immediately after the transaction in question. The defense depended upon showing that the testimony of the state's witness was a fabrication, and the defendant's right of cross-examination, if so abridged and confined to such limits as to be useless to him, amounts to a denial of an absolute and valuable right; for, while the court has a large discretion as to the range and extent to be permitted on cross-examination, the discretion does not extend to the denial of cross-examination going to substantial matters within legitimate bounds. The power of cross-examination should not be curtailed to an extent that it would not serve its purpose of being an 'efficacious means available for the exposure of artful fabrications of falsehood by witnesses in our courts of justice.' "It is always the privilege of a party on cross-examination to test the accuracy of the statements of the witness, by asking him if he has not on a particular occasion made a certain statement contradictory to his present testimony. The fact that the previous testimony was in writing does not change the rule, nor is it necessary to introduce the writing in the first instance. If the witness requests to see the writing, it would have to be shown to him; but the defendant could not introduce it for any purpose." Grasselli Chem. Co. v. Davis, 166 Ala. 471, 52 S. 35.

Matter of substantive proof.—S. v. Johnson (Ia.), 144 N. W. 303.

" 'The test of whether a fact inquired of in cross-examination is collateral is this: Would the cross-examining party be entitled to prove it as a part of his case, tending to establish his plea?' In the case of McArthur v. State, 59 Ark. 431, 27 S. W. 628; Mr. Justice Riddick, speaking for the court, said: 'The general rule is that, when a witness is cross-examined on a matter collateral to the issue, his answer cannot be subsequently contradicted by the party putting the question; but this limitation only applies to answers on the cross-examination.' This rule has been uniformly followed by this court.'' Peters v. S., 103 Ark. 119, 146 S. W. 491, quot. from 1 Whart. Ev. §599, and cit. Butler v. S., 34 Ark. 480; Denver City T. Prosecution for assault.—"The prosecuting attorney was permitted to ask defendant on cross-examination, over the objection of his counsel, if he had not been engaged in the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors at Leslie, and if he had not paid the federal tax on the sale of liquors. Defendant denied that he had been engaged in the unlawful sale of liquors, but said that he had been selling "near beer," and had paid the federal tax, as he explained, to protect himself in case some of the liquor he sold did not stand the test. It was competent for the state to interrogate the defendant, on cross-examination, as to his conduct in engaging in the illegal sale of liquor. This was competent for the purpose of affecting his credibility as a witness. Hollingsworth v. S., 53 Ark. 390, 14 S. W. 41. As a part of the examination, it was proper for him to be asked whether he held a federal tax receipt. We think all this testimony had some legitimate tendency affecting his credibility, and that there was no error in permitting it." Haukins v. S., 103 Ark. 28, 145 S. W. 524.

But where the evidence offered is respecting a new and distinct fact, although it tends to establish the same general result sought to be established by evidence given at the trial, such new evidence is not cumulative, and if otherwise competent, should be received. 929-34 On trial of a civil case for damages from negligent fire the substance of the complaint was the petitioner's inability to have certain evidence which a continuance would enable him to procure, and the question has been argued as one of newly discovered evidence. The petitioner contends that the new evidence is merely corroborative of that given on the trial by the petitioner in describing an examination he made soon after the fire, and that it does not appear but that the same facts might have been shown by some of those who fought or watched the fire at different stages of its progress. It is evident that an accurate plan, showing completely and in detail the course and spreading of the several fires, produced in connection with the testimony of witnesses who had made a particular examination of the premises for the purpose of testifying fully as to the source and extent of the injury, would be something quite different from any evidence which the petitioner could possibly produce in the circumstances in which the case was tried. Distinguished from corroborative evidence.—"Cumulative evidence is evidence of the same kind as that already given to the same point. Evidence of any disputed fact having been offered by showing particular circumstances, any evidence which only shows the same circumstances is purely cumulative. Evidence which would tend to establish the disputed fact by other circumstances is not cumulative, but corroborative. * * * All cumulative evidence is necessarily corroborative, but all corroborative evidence may not be cumulative." It is error to submit the issue of punitive damages to the jury in the absence of testimony which would warrant a verdict therefor. Hunter v. R. Co., 90 S. C. 507, 73 S. E. 1017.

In Givens v. Co., 91 S. C. 417, 74 S. E. 1067, "evidence was admitted over defendant's objection to prove remote and speculative damages, the court holding that the complaint alleged a wilful and wanton violation of the contract which, if proved, would entitle plaintiff to punitive damages. This was error. Punitive damages are not recoverable for breach of contract except where the breach is accompanied by an intent to defraud the other party to the contract. Welborn v. Dixon, 70 S. C. 108, 49 S. E. 232, 3 Ann. Cas. 407. There is no allegation of fraud in this case. Therefore punitive damages are not recoverable, notwithstanding the allegation of a willful and wanton violation of the contract by the defendant."

When one sues for the breach of a contract, the measure of his recovery is prima facie full payment at the contract rate; but the defendant may mitigate damages by showing that the plaintiff, by the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, could have rendered his net loss less than that amount; the burden being upon the defendant to allege and prove this defensive matter. The ultimate measure of damage, after all the facts have been heard, is the net loss incurred by the plaintiff by reason of the defendant's refusal to permit continued performance of the contract. Facts provable as between vendor and vendee.—As against one who has broken a contract to supply springs to an established manufacturer of vehicles for use the latter may show even a general knowledge by former of manner of conducting the business; custom of operating the factory and extent to which default interfered therewith; effect of default; ordinary and usual capacity of factory; supply of material on hand and of available labor; sales in excess of ability to supply in consequence of default; inability to procure such springs; vendor's promises to supply them, thereby inducing suspension of efforts to obtain them elsewhere, and expenses incurred in efforts made for that purpose. On the other hand, it was not proper for manufacturer to show money value of time lost by employes; profits on vehicles ordered but not sold, nor wilfulness on vendor's part in non-fulfilling his contract. Kelley v. Co., 120 Wis. 84, 97 N. W. 674. Comp. Connersville W. Co. v. Co., 166 Ind. 123, 76 N. E. 294.

Testimony of sureties as to nature of damages they understood a supersedeas bond would cover, irrelevant. Wayeross A. L. R. Co. v. R. Co., supra.

On breach of contract to locate depot on land it may be shown what similar lands contiguous to that of plaintiff's and situated along defendant's road sold for and advantages of land in question for business and suburban uses, and also value location of depot as agreed would have given such land. Iowa-M. L. Co. v. Conner, 136 Ia. 674, 112 N. W. 820 (breach of contract to build store); Louisville, etc. R. Co. v. Whipps, 118 Ky. 121, 80 S. W. 507; Paducah v. Allen, 111 Ky. 361, 63 S. "It was not improper to permit the plaintiff to prove that her two little children were still in the buggy, from which she and her husband had just alighted, when the mule was caused to run away. This fact was part of the situation properly to be taken into account in considering the effect upon the plaintiff of such an occurrence." Spearman v. McCrary, 4 Ala. App. 473, 58 S. 927.

"There are many elements of damage not susceptible of mathematical reduction to terms of money. In such cases the amount of the resulting damage is to a greater or less extent, a matter of opinion, founded upon the facts in evidence, and such inferences as may be legitimately drawn therefrom. Whether or not the fact tends to support the inference is in proper circumstances a question of law; and it is upon some such ground that appellate courts have reserved to themselves the power to judicially declare in such cases that the jury has exceeded its limit, however dim and shadowy it may be, and to refuse to sustain its action." Campbell v. R. Co., 243 Mo. 141, 147 N. W. 788.

"In tort the plaintiff must recover i a single action all of his damage. The consequences of an injury cannot be definitely predicted. The plaintiff should be permitted to prove those results which are likely to happen, that is, those which are reasonably probable, for that is but establishing results which under like circumstances generally come to pass." Y. 391, 396, where the plaintiff, a dealer in teas, which was a business requiring expert knowledge and skill, was permitted to prove his profits from year to year. There the rule was thus stated: "The plaintiff had the right to prove the business in which he was engaged, its extent, and the particular part transacted by him, and, if he could, the compensation usually paid to persons doing such business for others. These are circumstances the jury have a right to consider in fixing the value of his time. But they ought not to be permitted to speculate as to the uncertain profits of commercial ventures, in which the plaintiff, if uninjured, would have been engaged."

Amount for which sub-contractors undertook to do the work plaintiff prevented from doing is not proof of his loss. Brodie v. Fost, 108 N. Y. S. 414.

Business profits cannot be shown if facts disclose such a preponderance of business element over personal equation or such admixture of the two that question of personal earnings cannot be safely or properly segregated from returns upon capital invested. Kronold v. New York, 186 N. Y. 40, 78 N. E. 572; Weir v. R. Co., 188 N. Y. 416, 81 N. E. 168. See Masterton v. Mt. Vernon, 58 N. Y. 391. In the first case cited and in Fraser v. Buffalo, 123 App. Div. 159, 108 N. Y. S. 127, personal earnings so predominated over other factors as to permit proof of lost profits.

Contract for long time.—The profits realized on a contract for two years do not afford a safe criterion on which to base profits for the next three years. Des Allemands L. Co. v. Co., 117 La. 1, 41 S. 332.

On breach of contract to convey land evidence of its fair market value for subdivision into building lots is competent, expectation of demand therefor having affected price. It is also competent to show sales of like property in the vicinity, though some of them not for cash and not consummated. Dady v. Condit, 209 Ill. 488, 70 N. E. 1088, 104 Ill. App. 507.

A vendee who desires to recoup damages because of delay in supplying property whereby he was unable to secure rent for the premises in which it was to be used must show a contract for their lease; not enough to show arrangement with lessees. American T. Co. v. Siegel, 221 Ill. 145, 77 N. E. 588.

Rule does not apply to person not in business when injury done. Fisher v. Jansen, 128 Ill. 549, 21 N. E. 598.

On breach of contract of partnership profits made may be shown, as may prosperity and growth of community during term of partnership, and plaintiff's skill and ability. Ramsay v. Meade, 37 Colo. 465, 86 P. 1018.

On partial breach of contract granting concessions it was competent to show profits made thereon in previous years and during time instant contract in effect; kind of people plaintiffs were, their ability to do business, nature of business and other circumstances. Nash v. Co., 123 App. Div. 148, 108 N. Y. S. 336; Wakeman v. Co., 101 N. Y. 205, 4 N. E. 264, 54 Am. Rep. 676.

Extent of injury done business by breach of contract not to compete therein may be shown by proof of amount of business done; evidence may cover period since action begun. Galucha v. Naso, 147 Ia. 309, 126 N. W. 146.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Testimony of party, coupled with record of cash register, receipts during corresponding months of previous years and proof of approximate cost of what was sold, are a sufficient basis for recovery of lost profits. Hendler v. Quigley, 38 Pa. Super. 39. Average earnings of established business prior to interruption, a safe standard by which to measure loss of profits. Morrow v. R. Co., 140 Mo. App. 200, 123 S. W. 1034. Parol evidence showing loss in lump sum resulting to a business in which books of account presumably kept and in possession of plaintiffs is insufficient to show extent of loss. Morrow v. R. Co., 140 Mo. App. 200, 123 S. W. 1034.

Agent's earnings under contract may be proved, as may his prospects. Richey v. Ins. Co., 140 Wis. 486, 122 N. W. 1030.

Outstanding contracts may be shown if their fulfillment prevented. McCausey v. Hoek, 159 Mich. 570, 124 N. W. 570; Cope v. Co., 39 Pa. Super. 134 (though informal).

Opinions as to rental value may not be based upon profit to be made nor rest upon hearsay knowledge as to capacity of property. Munson v. Co., 118 App. Div. 398, 103 N. Y. S. 502. Opinion without data, not convincing. Morgan v. Sutlive, 148 Ia. 318, 126 N. W. 175.

Quantum of proof.—If loss of profits shown with reasonable certainty, such proof will not be neutralized by evidence of remote or doubtful contingencies. Barrett v. Co., 55 W. Va. 395, 47 S. E. 154; Smith v. Co., 66 W. Va. 599, 66 S. E. 746.

Contractor may testify what his profits on a contract would have been. Texas & W. T. Co. v. Mackenzie, 36 Tex. Civ. 178, 81 S. W. 581.

Field of inquiry on breach of contract for services in sale of securities covers all surrounding circumstances. Church v. Co., 58 Wash. 262, 108 P. 596.

Subsequent circumstances.—Where it has been shown weather was favorable for use of threshing outfit during time it was delayed in transportation and, but for delay, extensive use could have been made of it, subsequent state of weather may be shown to disclose extent of profits lost. St. Louis, etc. R. Co. v. Brown, 56 Tex. Civ. 74, 120 S. W. 213.

Expense of maintaining mine and cost of mining as affected by breach of contract to furnish cars for shipment of product may be shown to establish lost profits. Midland Valley R. Co. v. Co., 91 Ark. 180, 120 S. W. 380.

Evidence that the defendant in an action for negligence is insured in a casualty company is incompetent and its admission justifies an order for a new trial of the action. Simpson v. Foundation Co., 201 N. Y. 479, 490, 95 N. E. 10. Such evidence almost always is quite unnecessary to the plaintiff's case, and its effect cannot but be highly dangerous to the defendant's; for it conveys the insidious suggestion to the jurors that the amount of their verdict for the plaintiff is immaterial to the defendant. It was a highly improper attempt on the plaintiff's part to inject a foreign element of fact into his case, which might affect the jurors' minds, if in doubt upon the merits, by the consideration that the judgment would be paid by an insurance company. Akin v. Lee, 206 N. Y. 20, 99 N. E. 85.

Death shown three years after disappearance. In re Matthews, 67 L. J. P. 11, 77 L. T. (N. S.) 630.

"Formerly the character of evidence necessary to establish death short of the seven years period was that the person claimed to be dead must have been exposed to some peril or afflicted with some serious disease. But other character of evidence will now answer the purpose, as that the person was of good habits, comfortably and happily situated in life, of cheerful temperament, pleasantly and happily associated with friends and family, and other facts incompatible with his desertion and remaining away from family and friends without communicating with them. In such way a case may be built up of such convincing strength as to overcome the usual presumption of the continuance of life." Johnson v. Woodmen (Mo.), 147 S. W. 510.

"The rule seems to be well established in this country that where one, steady in his habits, successful in his profession or business, contented and respected, having a fixed residence and pleasant domestic relations, suddenly disappears, and no tidings of him are received, such circumstances, if satisfactory to the jury, may warrant them in finding his death at or about the time of his disappearance." Circumstantial evidence is sufficient. Duff v. Duff, 156 Mo. App. 247, 137 S. W. 909.

"That the absentee was exposed to some specific peril; that he sailed in a vessel which had never been heard from, though many months overdue; that he was last seen as a passenger on an ocean steamer in mid-ocean, at night, and was never seen or heard of afterward, though diligent search was made the next morning; that he made threats to commit suicide prior to his disappearance; that the condition of his health was desperate; that he was afflicted with some disease likely to undermine his constitution—these are circumstances which may be considered as tending to raise a just inference of death. The health, age, habits, disposition, manner of life, pecuniary circumstances, and family relations of a person who has disappeared are all proper for consideration in determining whether he probably died before the expiration of seven years. Here no circumstances are shown from which a legitimate inference of death can be drawn. A vigorous, large, healthy, fifteen year old boy, of a cheerful disposition and fond of sight-seeing, about the beginning of the World's Fair in Chicago, left his home suddenly and without warning, and did not come back. Such an act would, of course, give his family occasion for apprehension, but not necessarily of death. Of itself, it could create at the time no presumption of his death, and it could not grow into a presumption, unless aided by proof of other circumstances, none of which appear in this case. Privity of deceased with parties does not affect admissibility of declarations. Smith v. Hanson, supra.

The rule has to be applied with caution.—"The fact of the declaration having been against interest ought clearly to appear. In the present case, we are very doubtful whether there was such opposition of interest. True the acknowledgment of owing a debt is, in general, against the interest of the speaker; but the motive of pecuniary interest may in particular cases yield to some stronger motive. In the present case, the deceased, at the time he is said to have made the statement in question, had just been cursed and abused by the accused in the presence of a crowd because of the non-payment of the debt, and may well have made the statement by way of assertion, or vindication, of his own manhood, in order to show that he had not been intimidated into paying the debt." Deed not recorded until after his death. "From the time of the death of his wife he continued to occupy, pay taxes on, assert ownership of and retain control over the premises up to the time of his death, making final disposition of it in his last will. When his wife died, their two children were of age, married, and had homes of their own. It is claimed that he was unfriendly with them, which is denied. His will indicates a very unkindly feeling. This was a pure question of fact. We think that whether he occupied the premises in recognition of, or hostile to, the title of his children, was for the jury to decide from the conflicting testimony, under proper instructions." Clothing worn by person assaulted on the night of the alleged assault was offered solely "for the purpose of showing the amount of loss of blood and the condition of his clothing after the commission of the act." "The nature of the wounds and the location of the wounds being undisputed, it would hardly be admissible to permit the clothing to be introduced solely for the purpose of showing the amount of the loss of blood, as this would not aid the jury in determining whether he was guilty of assault to murder or aggravated assault." "A shirt, or other garment, is not admissible unless it serves some useful purpose in depicting to the jury the location of the wound, or the attitude of the parties at the time of the difficulty, but if the shirt served the purpose of enabling the jury to better pass on the question of whether the state's or appellant's contention as to the attitude of deceased at the time he was killed was correct, there was no error in admitting it, if it was admitted in evidence. In the case of Milo v. State, 59 Tex. Cr. R. 196, 127 S. W. 1028, this court held that it is permissible to introduce bloody clothing when its introduction serves to illustrate some point or solve some question, or throw light upon the matter connected with the proper solution of the case, and when the clothing, in the light of the whole case, would aid the jury in arriving at the very truth of the matter, the court should not hesitate to admit its production. 286-1 Defendant in open court admitted that he (defendant) had shot the complainant three times in the back with a pistol, and that each of said shots produced serious and dangerous wounds. "The witness was testifying with reference to the nature and character of the wounds received by the injured party, and the injured party, who was in the courtroom, stood up by the doctor, and the doctor raised his shirt and pointed out the place of entrance of each bullet and the direction each bullet took. The court further says that there was no explanation of any operation performed by Dr. Faulk, and nothing said or done, except to point out the place of entrance of each bullet, and explain the direction it took and the seriousness of the injury, etc. This testimony was inadmissible. For a case in point, see Graves v. State, 58 Tex. Cr. R. 42, 124 S. W. 676; and for cases deciding practically the same question on the exhibition of clothes, see Cole v. State, 45 Tex. Cr. "Over objection the court allowed the rifle and the cartridges to be introduced in evidence, but stated that, unless it was afterwards connected, he would exclude the evidence. Said Fletcher Powers afterwards testified that he was within two or three feet of Brown Horton when he was killed; that it was dark, and he saw Horton call, 'Hands up!' and Horton and the man in front of him fired about the same time; that the other party whirled and ran off, that, just after daylight, he and the posse continued their pusuit of the defendant, in the direction the man had gone; that, after crossing over the bridge, and not far therefrom, they found an empty 44 shell which had been freshly fired, and this shell was picked up and delivered to Sheriff Palmer. This was enough to justify the court in overruling the motion of the defendant, after the state had closed, to exclude the rifle. The jury had a right to examine it, compare its caliber with the empty shell found, and from these and other circumstances determine whether the rifle and cartridge were the defendant's, and whether the shot which killed Horton came from the rifle in the hands of defendant." Affidavits as depositions.—"The court admonished the jury that they should receive the testimony, and give it the same weight and effect as though the witnesses were present and testified in person. We have in a number of cases upheld the constitutionality of the statute. It provides among other things as follows: 'The court may, when, from the nature of the case, it shall be of opinion that the ends of justice require it, grant a continuance, unless the attorney for the Commonwealth will admit the truth of the matter which it is alleged in the affidavit such absent witness or witnesses would testify to.' Crim. Code, §189. We cannot say that the court abused a sound discretion in refusing to so rule, or in ruling that the affidavit might be read as the deposition of the absent witnesses. No facts were shown warranting the conclusion that the just effect of the testimony of the witnesses could not be had without their presence in court. This was essential. To hold that the court without such facts being shown should have required the affidavit to be admitted as true would be practically to nullify the amendment of the statute which was designed to enable the commonwealth to secure a trial of cases of this sort by admitting the affidavit to be read as the testimony of the absent witnesses, unless the presence of the witnesses is necessary to a fair trial." 363-93 Interrogatory not necessarily leading unless it suggests desired answer. Missouri, etc. R. Co. v. Baker 35 Tex. Civ. 542, 81 S. W. 67. Although question contains words "whether or not," it may be leading. S. v. Taylor, supra.

363-97 Gulf, etc. R. Co. v. Hall, 34 Tex. Civ. 535, 80 S. W. 133.

Greater liberality as to form of interrogatories should be allowed than where witness testifies orally. Phinazee v. Bunn, 123 Ga. 230, 51 S. E. 300.

363-98 General and final interrogatory, such as "state fully how this contract arose, giving all the details of the transaction," is not permissible where neither it nor preceding questions indicate character of testimony to be elicited so that cross interrogatories may be framed. Taylor v. Co., 127 Ga. 138, 56 S. E. 292.

364-99 Walker v. Warner, 31 App. Cas. (D. C.) 76.

364-2 Extent of cross-examination. Where deposition taken pursuant to statute requiring merely notice of time and place and permitting adverse party to put interrogatories, examination by latter is not governed by strict rules of cross-examination. Crosby v. Wells, 73 N. J. L. 790, 67 A. 295.

Effect of agreement to use in other actions.—Where it is agreed that deposition taken by oral examination at instance of one party may be used in other actions, such deposition when introduced by the adverse party becomes his evidence in chief and his cross-examination is not objectionable because it violates strict rule confining cross-examination to matters brought out in examination in chief. Crosby v. Wells, supra.

All objections to interrogatories except pertinency should be reserved until the trial. In re Smith, 80 Misc. 628, 142 N. Y. S. 151.

All objection to deposition is waived by party introducing it and making it his own. Freeman v. Grashel (Tex. Civ.), 145 S. W. 695.

A motion to suppress part of a deposition was filed on the day of trial. "If it should be treated as a motion to suppress the deposition on account of its form or the manner of its taking, it was filed too late. Rev. Civ. St., art. 2289; Ellis v. Lewis, 45 Tex. Civ. 248, 100 S. W. 189, and cases there cited. If the motion was intended as an objection to the admissibility of the deposition as testimony, the objection was premature and otherwise insufficient. The court cannot be called upon at that stage of the trial to pass upon the admissibility of testimony, but should wait till it is offered in evidence. When offered, no objection, except such as attacks the admissibility, can be considered. In sustaining the objection to such testimony at the proper time, the court does not suppress the deposition, but merely excludes that portion to which the objection relates. When the deposition referred to in the motion was later offered in evidence upon this trial, no objection was made. It therefore appears in the record as having been admitted without objection on the part of the appellant. The assignment is without merit." Marshall, etc. R. Co. v. Petty (Tex. Civ.), 145 S. W. 1195.

And to enable the plaintiff to testify more intelligibly and the jury to better understand the subject-matter about which the witness was testifying. Cubbage v. Estate of Conrad Youngerman, 155 Ia. 39, 134 N. W. 1074.

A physician "called to give medical attention immediately after the shooting, illustrated his testimony with a diagram which he had made of the man's body and the location of the wounds, and at the end of the testimony this diagram was introduced in evidence over defendant's objection. We can see no well-founded objection to this, as the diagram was a part of Dr. Russell's testimony, and was authenticated by him. It was not introduced as independent testimony, but merely as a part of the testimony of the witness, and it was competent for the purpose of showing the precise location of the wounds." DISORDERLY HOUSE

In 7 STANDARD PROC. the following matters are treated under this title; Definition; remedies for suppressing; jurisdiction and summary punishment; indictment, information and complaint; bill of particulars; consolidation of cases; questions of law and fact; variance; instructions.

724 Burden of proof is on state to show the inmates were prostitutes plying their vocation in such house or resorting thereto for that purpose (Bowman v. S. [Tex. Cr.], 164 S. W. 846), or that the defendant was the keeper thereof. Patterson v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 132 P. 693.

724-1 Mossman v. Ft. Collins, 40 Colo. 270, 90 P. 605; Wilder v. S., 3 Ga. App. 443, 60 S. E. 112; Arenz v. C., 31 Ky. L. R. 321, 102 S. W. 238; Mosher v. S., 62 Tex. Cr. 42, 136 S. W. 467.

Bawdy house and house of ill fame are synonymous. Patterson v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 132 P. 693.

Unlawfully selling liquors is not, by itself, the keeping of a disorderly house. S. v. Goff, 74 N. J. L. 247, 65 A. 854.

A place where practices contrary to statute are habitually carried on is a disorderly house, regardless of whether they contain an element of criminality or of moral turpitude. S. v. Martin, 77 N. J. L. 652, 73 A. 548.

Place maintained for taking usurious interest, a disorderly house. S. v. Diamant, 73 N. J. L. 131, 62 A. 286.

Lack of disturbance of neighbors, no defense. S. r. Porter, 130 Ia. 690, 107 N. W. 923 (keeping for gain not necessary); Walker r. C., 117 Ky. 727, 79 S. W. 191; S. v. Ireton, 89 Minn. 340, 94 N. W. 1078. See also Walt r. P., 46 Colo. 136, 104 P. 89.

725-2 Coleman r. S., 5 Ga. App. 766, 64 S. E. 828; S. r. Gill, 150 Ia. 210, 129 N. W. 821; P. r. Pasquale, 206 N. Y. 598, 100 N. E. 413; Hogue r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 151 S. W. 805.

Insufficient evidence.—P. r. Drum, 127 App. Div. 241, 110 N. Y. S. 1096.

726-3 Ramsey r. Smith, 138 Ala. 333, 35 S. 325; Lismore r. S., 94 Ark. 207, 126 S. W. 853 (insufficient to convict); S. r. Anderson, 82 Conn. 111, 72 A. 648 (such evidence may establish a prima facie case, but is of no value if the reputation is unfounded in fact); Jones r. S. (Ga. App.), 82 S. E. 470; Ward r. S. (Ga. App.), 80 S. E. 295; Coleman r. S., 5 Ga. App. 766, 64 S. E. 828; Jones r. S., 2 Ga. App. 433, 58 S. E. 559; Mimbs r. S., 2 Ga. App. 387, 58 S. E. 499; S. r. Burns, 145 Ia. 588, 124 N. W. 600 (in a prosecution for resorting to, occupying and resorting to a house of ill fame); S. r. Shaw, 125 Ia. 422, 101 N. W. 109; S. r. Steen, 125 Ia. 307, 101 N. W. 96; King r. C., 154 Ky. 829, 159 S. W. 593; S. r. Hoelcher, 163 Mo. App. 352, 143 S. W. 850; Ty. r. McGrath, 16 N. M. 202, 114 P. 364; S. r. Harris, 14 N. D. 501, 105 N. W. 621; S. r. Thomas, 56 Or. 170, 108 P. 135; C. r. Murr, 7 Pa. Super. 391; C. r. Sarves, 17 Pa. Super. 407; C. r. Bunnell, 20 Pa. Super. 51; Jones r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 162 S. W. 1142; Golden r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 160 S. W. 957; Johnson r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 153 S. W. 875; Tacchini r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 126 S. W. 1139; Owens r. S., 53 Tex. Cr. 1, 108 S. W. 379; Wimberly v. S., 53 Tex. Cr. 11, 108 S. W. 384; Gordon v. S., 60 Tex. Cr. 570, 133 S. W. 255.

Reputation alone is not sufficient. Putman r. S. (Okla. Cr.), 132 P. 916, 46 L. R. A. (N. S.) 593, cit. and quot. Encyclopædia of Evidence.

The statutory offense is not keeping a house reputed to be a bawdy house, but one which is so in fact; the gist being keeping the house irrespective of its fame. Patterson v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 132 P. 963.

By statute such evidence is made competent.—P. r. Pasquale, 206 N. Y. 598, 100 N. E. 413.

Reputation may be proved by witnesses cognizant of the fact (Hitchings r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 143 S. W. 1164); but is not sufficient to convict. Watson r. S., 10 Ga. App. 794, 74 S. E. 89.

Common fame not sufficient proof of character of house. Botts r. U. S., 155 Fed. 50, 83 C. C. A. 646; Hall r. U. S., 155 Fed. 52, 84 C. C. A. 215; McConnell r. S., 2 Ga. App. 445, 58 S. E. 546; Jones r. S., 2 Ga. App. 443, 58 S. E. 559. But admissible to prove ownership under statute expressing that "common fame" is admissible to show reputation of house. S. v. McGinnis, 56 Or. 163, 108 P. 132.

Reputation prior to time pleaded admissible if connected with time laid. P. r. Wheeler, 142 Mich. 212, 105 N. W. 607; Frazier v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 24, 81 S. W. 532.

Statute allowing proof of reputation constitutional. S. r. Wilson, 124 Ia. 264, 99 N. W. 1060. Is not exclusive of other modes of proof. S. r. Cambron, 20 S. D. 282, 105 N. W. 241.

727-4 Ward r. S. (Ga. App.), 80 S. E. 295; Coleman r. S., 5 Ga. App. 766, 64 S. E. 828; McConnell r. S., 2 Ga. App. 445, 58 S. E. 546; Winslow r. S., 5 Ind. App. 306, 32 N. E. 98; S. r. Burns, 145 Ia. 588, 124 N. W. 600, cit. the text; Walker r. C., 117 Ky. 727, 79 S. W. 191; S. r. Keithley, 142 Mo. App. 417, 127 S. W. 406; S. r. Price, 115 Mo. App. 656, 92 S. W. 174; S. r. Kelly, 76 N. J. L. 576, 70 A. 342 (conversations in absence of proprietor and reputation of women who visited house); P. r. Pasquale, 206 N. Y. 598, 100 N. E. 413; P. r. Jones, 129 App. Div. 772, 113 N. Y. S. 1097 (though after date pleaded); C. r. Murr, 5 Pa. Super. 391; C. r. Sarves, 17 Pa. Super. 407; C. r. Bunnell, 20 Pa. Super. 51; C. r. Brink, 49 Pa. Super. 620; S. r. Cambron, 20 S. D. 282, 105 N. W. 241; Smith r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 162 S. W. 835; Key r. S. (Tex. Cr.), 160 S. W. 354; Hickman r. S., 59 Tex. Cr. 88, 126 S. W. 1149; Stone

v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 575, 85 S. W. 808; Wimberly v. S., 53 Tex. Cr. 11, 108 S. W. 384; Wilson v. S., 61 Tex. Cr. 628, 136 S. W. 447.

Evidence that previous to time when prosecutrix was taken to house it had not been used as a disorderly house is relevant in a trial for pandering. Boyle v. S. (Ark.), 161 S. W. 1049.

Evidence that defendant admitted she ran the house and had five girls and the reputation of the girls and the house was bad was sufficient to sustain a conviction. City of Columbia v. Stout (Mo. App.), 167 S. W. 1153.

Conduct and conversation not in presence of accused is inadmissible. P. v. Newbold, 260 Ill. 196, 103 N. E. 69.

That policeman arrested twelve prostitutes in the house and they all pleaded guilty is admissible. Dimitri v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 155 S. W. 535.

Lewd character of defendant's daughter who lived in the house admissible. Jones r. S. (Okla. Cr.), 133 P. 1134.

"Evidence to establish the character of a bawdy house must in most cases be inferential from the nature of the case. State v. Dudley, 56 Mo. App. 450. Evidence that the inmates of the house were prostitutes strongly conduces to show that it was a bawdy house. State v. Barnard, 64 Mo. App. 260; State v. Horn, 83 Mo. App. 47; State v. Price, 115 Mo. App. 656, 92 S. W. 174. And with evidence of slight additional circumstances it will be sufficient to sustain a conviction. State v. Horn, 83 Mo. App. 47; Ramey v. State, 39 Tex. Cr. R. 200, 45 S. W. 489." S. v. Hoelcher, 163 Mo. App. 352, 143 S. W. 850.

Circumstantial evidence may establish the character of house. Botts v. U. S., 155 Fed. 50, 83 C. C. A. 646; S. v. Porter, 130 Ia. 690, 107 N. W. 923. And see last preceding paragraph.

Sufficiency.—S. v. Gill, 150 Ia. 210, 129 N. W. 821; City of Anderson v. Gist, 88 S. C. 543, 71 S. E. 50; Sullivan v. S., 61 Tex. Cr. 657, 136 S. W. 456; Wilson v. S., 61 Tex. Cr. 628, 136 S. W. 447; Layton v. S., 61 Tex. Cr. 507, 135 S. W. 557.

Specific acts not provable. S. v. Baans, 77 N. J. L. 123, 71 A. 111.

729-5 Boyle v. S. (Ark.), 161 S. W. 1049; Owens v. S., 53 Tex. Cr. 1, 108 S. W. 379. Contra, Mimbs v. S., 2 Ga. App. 387, 58 S. E. 499; S. v. Price, 115 Mo. App. 656, 92 S. W. 174.

Reputation of accused is admissible, but not opinion as to character of house. P. v. Newbold, 260 Ill. 196, 103 N. E. 69.

729-6 Rosencranz v. U. S., 155 Fed. 38, 83 C. C. A. 634; Jones v. S., 2 Ga. App. 433, 58 S. E. 559; Mash v. P., 220 Ill. 86, 77 N. E. 92; S. v. Cambron, 20 S. D. 282, 105 N. W. 241; Frazer v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 24, 81 S. W. 532; Stone v. S., 47 Tex. Cr. 575, 85 S. W. 808. See Bates v. S., 45 Tex. Cr. 420, 76 S. W. 462; Wimberly v. S., 53 Tex. Cr. 11, 108 S. W. 384.

Where husband and wife lived together on property belonging to her it is no defense that the title was in the wife. Key v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 160 S. W. 354.

Harboring prostitutes.—S. v. Wilson, 124 Ia. 264, 99 N. W. 1060.

Declaration of conspirator.—Raymond v. P., 226 Ill. 433, 80 N. E. 996.

Admission by a defendant that his co-defendant was his housekeeper makes competent latter's offers to secure women for visitors, though made in defendant's absence. Hickman v. S., 59 Tex. Cr. 88, 126 S. W. 1149.

Payment of taxes on certain fixtures in building. Sweeney v. S., 59 Tex. Cr. 370, 128 S. W. 390.

730-7 S. v. Olds, 217 Mo. 305, 116 S. W. 1080; Key v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 160 S. W. 354. See S. v. Emblem, 66 W. Va. 360, 66 S. E. 499.

Conversation of a detective with two girls in the house which accused did not hear, was inadmissible to prove accused permitted acts of character referred to in conversation P. v. Newbold, 260 Ill. 196, 103 N. E. 69.

Evidence of two men that they met two girls on the street and the latter told them to go to accused's house and engage rooms for Mary and Ethel; that they did so and that accused took them to the rooms and later the girls came there, is admissible as part of the res gestae. Hearne v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 165 S. W. 596.

That a prostitute plied her vocation in the house and paid $1.50 rent a day is competent in a prosecution for knowingly permitting property to be used as a house of prostitution. Clyman v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 155 S. W. 231.

Arrest and conviction of a person for frequenting defendant's house is admissible as showing his knowledge of the character of the inmates. Jones v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 133 P. 1134.

Proof of actual knowledge essential to conviction. S. v. Mausert (N. J.), 89 A. 1011.

Where the evidence not only tends to show the lewd character of the women who visited and stayed at the house boat and the frequent visits of men, but that the defendant had avowed to the marshal her purpose to run the place as a bawdy house and later practically confessed to the police officer that she was doing so and asserted she would continue to do so, this was held sufficient to establish not only the character of the house as a bawdy house, but that she was the keeper of it. S. v. Hoelcher, 163 Mo. App. 352, 143 S. W. 850.

Reputation of house.—S. v. Homaki, 40 Wash. 629, 82 P. 873.

730-8 S. v. Steen, 125 Ia. 307, 101 N. W. 96; Jones v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 133 P. 1134; S. v. Emblem, 56 W. Va. 678, 49 S. E. 554.

Transcripts of record of municipal court showing five men and women were convicted of patronizing a disorderly house of defendant is incompetent, as it was a proceeding under city ordinance and different from the present proceeding under the revised statutes. P. v. Newbold, 260 Ill. 196, 103 N. E. 69.

Leasing house for immoral purpose. Contract for sale of premises leased as a house of ill-fame may be shown by parol circumstances to be a sham. S. v. Emblem, 56 W. Va. 678, 49 S. E. 554.

DISTURBING OF PUBLIC ASSEMBLAGES

See the title "Disturbing Public Assembly" in 7 STANDARD PROC., for a treatment of the following matters: Former jeopardy; misjoinder of defendants; indictment, information and complaint; variance; questions for jury; instructions.

731 Whether a congregation of persons constitutes a religious meeting is a question of fact. Cline v. S. (Okla. Cr.), 130 P. 510.

731-1 Disturbance of school. See S. v. Packenham, 40 Wash. 403, 82 P. 597.

732-5 Taylor v. S., 1 Ga. App. 539, 57 S. E. 1049; S. v. Dahlstrom, 90 Minn. 72, 95 N. W. 580.

Misconduct by party abandoned subsequent to abandonment is irrelevant on issue of justification. Garcia v. Garcia, 60 Misc. 198, 111 N. Y. S. 1017.

Evidence insufficient.—"If it be assumed that ordinarily such occurrences as those to which the wife has testified would be sufficient in themselves to justify her in living apart from her husband, we have here to consider the important fact that the defendant, with full knowledge in advance of the marriage that her prospective husband would not give up his daughters as she had proposed, and with thorough appreciation of their sensitiveness to her presence in the place their deceased mother had so lately filled, voluntarily assumed whatever possibilities of discord the situation offered, and then contributed by her own attitude in the home to the domestic difficulties of which she complains. In view of these conditions, we do not think that the acts of discourtesy to which she refers were sufficiently serious to entitle her to demand the separation of the father from his daughters as an absolute and peremptory condition of the performance of her marital obligations.'' In Carnes v. Carnes, 138 Ga. 1, 74 S. E. 785, the plaintiff charged abandonment by her husband. There was no charge of adultery. He alleged exemplary conduct on his part, and that she went to her father's home, and after a time refused to answer his letters. She testified that she found in his pocket certain letters. They were from another woman, and were of a very affectionate character. They were not inadmissible on the ground that they were licentious in character and intended to show that the defendant was guilty of adultery, and that they could not be admitted in evidence on the affidavit of the wife as to the finding of them.

Letters of Railroad Commission.—Printed copies of letters were sought to be introduced in evidence, presumably under Texas Rev. St., art. 4573, which provides that, "upon application of any person, the commission shall furnish certified copies of any classification, rates, rules, regulation, or orders, and such certified copies or printed copies published by authority of the commission shall be admissible in evidence in any suit and sufficient to establish the fact that any charge, rate, rule, order, or classification therein contained, and which may be in issue in the trial, is the official act of the commission. This article of the statute is a rule of evidence and, according to our construction of it, none of the letters sought to be introduced were admissible in evidence. The railroad commission, like a commissioners' court, board of trustees, or any other official body, cannot act through its individual members but must act as a body. Jackson-Foxworth Lumber Co. v. Hutchinson County, 88 S. W. 412. The letters sought to be introduced were certainly not certified copies of any rules or orders, and if admissible at all must come under that part of the act providing for printed copies published by authority of the commission. In our opinion they were not admissible as printed copies of any orders made by the commission because they did not purport to be the official act of the commission, but merely letters signed by one of the commissioners." Copy certified by collector of internal revenue.—"It is said that this certificate was incompetent for the reason that there was no showing that the record itself could not have been produced; it being located in Detroit and within the jurisdiction of the court. The record which was certified by the internal revenue collector was one which he is required to keep by the laws of the United States. He is also required to furnish certified copies of the same to the prosecuting officers of any state, county, or municipality making application therefor. Section 3240, Rev. Stat. U. S., as amended by act of June 21, 1906, c. 3509, 34 Stat. 387 (U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1911, p. 942). The record itself would have been admissible on the question of the respondent's guilt (People v. Moore, 155 Mich. 107, 118 N. From Friday morning until the following Wednesday evening. "In the interval, deceased, according to the state's witness Weatherly, repeatedly stated his belief that he would never get up, that he would never get well, and finally that he would die. He made no response to the efforts of his kinsmen and friends to encourage him, and at no time, so far as appears, did he express a hope of recovery. In the evening of the day before his death, deceased made a statement to the witness Weatherly of the circumstances under which defendant had shot him, and this statement repeated by the witness, was received as a dying declaration over defendant's objection. In this we do not find error. It was not necessary, say our cases, that the declaration should have been made in articulo mortis; nor that the deceased should have said, in so many words, that he was in extremis, that death impended, or that he had no hope of recovery. It is necessary, however, that the court should be clearly satisfied, upon a close and cautious scrutiny of the facts upon which admissibility depends, that the declarant was impressed with the conviction that he could not recover." Where deceased prefaced her dying declaration as to whether she thought she would get better by the remark "I don't know," it was held that her later answers showed she had given up all hopes of recovery. S. v. Mueller, 122 Minn. 91, 141 N. W. 1113.

Mixed question of law and fact for trial judge. Bennett v. S., 66 Fla. 369, 63 S. 842.

Must refer to the statement offered. Coatney v. S., 61 Fla. 19, 55 S. 285.

"The court must ascertain the primary facts relative to their admissibility and become satisfied that the requisite predicate has been established. When, from the testimony, the court is satisfied that the statements made by the deceased were dying declarations, it becomes its duty to admit them in evidence. It is then the province of the jury to determine the circumstances under which they were made and the weight and credit that should be given to them." Rhea v. S., 104 Ark. 162, 147 S. W. 463.

"Having once decided that it is competent, that the party was of the frame of mind required by the law to authorize the admission of his dying declarations, the power of the court over that question is at an end." Gurley v. S., 101 Miss. 190, 57 S. 565.

Prima facie case is all that is necessary to make statement admissible. Gibbons v. S., 137 Ga. 786, 74 S. E. 549.

Held admissible.—Deceased stated to the nurse that they "had killed him." He asked if he was in any danger of dying, and said that if he was not he did not wish his people to know his condition. The doctor told that he was suffering from a severe internal hemorrhage; that he did not have "more than one chance in a hundred of living;" that they would have to cut open his abdomen, and were not willing to do so without his consent; and that he had better communicate with his people. Thereupon he asked Dr. Hilliard to send a telegram to them. The deceased, who had been quiet, then opened his eyes and said, "Who shot me?" Dr. Landress answered, "The officer at Black Mountain shot you," to which the deceased replied: "Why did he shoot me? I have done nothing to be shot for." Dr. Fletcher also testified as to the critical condition of the deceased at that moment, who "knew his condition" and was about to be put upon the operating table, and who died that night. "Whether deceased had a warrant or capias for the defendant, and whether, under the deputy sheriff's appointment, he had authority of law for his arrest of the defendant, were material questions in the case. The argument for appellant proceeds at several points upon the idea that the evidence showed without conflict that deceased had no warrant. As we read the record, deceased, in his dying declaration, testified that he had a writ for defendant. This, as we have said, was competent evidence of the fact. There was, then, no error in that ruling of the court which permitted the state to show that the sheriff of the county had delivered the capias for defendant to Springle, the deputy on whose request the deceased was attempting to arrest the defendant." Unless plaintiffs connect themselves, by proper evidence, with such common source, showing superior title thereto, they have failed to make out a prima facie case, and are not entitled to recover. Hirschfield v. Ater (Tex. Civ.), 149 S. W. 202.

In such event, irregularities in conveyances anterior to the common source become immaterial because they are common in both litigants and affect the common stem of the title only. The question is no longer, Has plaintiff a good legal title against the whole world? it is rather, Has he a better title than defendant beginning with the common source and coming down to the time of the suit? Howell v. Sherwood, 242 Mo. 513, 147 S. W. 810.

Common grantor in general. Brinkley v. Bell, 126 Ga. 480, 55 S. E. 187; Gaulbaugh v. Rouse, 31 Ky. L. R. 1195, 104 S. W. 959; Carter v. Wood, 103 Va. 68, 48 S. E. 553; Marbach v. Holmes, 105 Va. 178, 52 S. E. 828.

A prima facie case is made by introducing deed describing the land and a plat thereof, identifying property and proving possession under deed. Cottrell v. Pickering, 32 Utah 62, 88 P. 696.

Presumption deed produced on notice from custody of one grantee of a common grantor is the one under which such grantor claims title. Brinkley v. Bell, 126 Ga. 480, 55 S. E. 187.

In Indiana, "the policy of the election law subsequent to the act of 1881 and prior to 1909 was clearly to render the return of the election board and the canvassing boards conclusive except for fraud, and except as to the protested, disputed, and uncounted ballots, and prima facie evidence of the result of an election, and this has been the view of the courts." "By reason of the claim that there was no statute in force authorizing a recount, and that the handling and use of the ballots and papers since the election, their being carried from Dunkirk to Portland on the occasion of the recount, and the packages had been opened by unauthorized persons, and the possibility that the ballots might have been handled or tampered with, appellant contends that the papers and ballots have not been preserved with such care that the ballots could have any force as evidence, and that their value as evidence is thereby destroyed, and objection to their introduction is made on this ground, as to most of them, which will be hereafter designated as the general objection to avoid repetition. The objections seem to us to go rather to their weight than to their admissibility. What are claimed to be the original ballots are before us. In the absence of any specific evidence as to their having been tampered with, we are bound to presume that they have been honestly preserved, as they came from the hands of the inspectors." "The danger to which live stock upon the farm will be exposed, and the danger from fire to buildings, fences, crops or grass, in so far as it affects the market value of the farm, may properly be considered, but such dangers cannot be considered by the jury as elements of damage aside from the effect they may have upon the market value of the land. It is to be borne in mind that compensation is not to be given for increased exposure to fire nor for increased insurance rates, nor for probable losses by fire in the future for which no recovery can be had, but simply for depreciation in the market value of the property by reason of the danger from fire. The evidence should therefore be limited to showing all the facts in regard to the situation of the property and improvements, relatively to the railroad." Wichita Falls, etc. R. Expediting trial.—"As a practice, it is, of course, unwise for the trial judge to interfere with the examination of witnesses, but, on the other hand, he has a perfect right to do so if he can thereby expedite the trial or assist the witness in giving his testimony and elicit the facts. It does not appear that the rulings of the court complained of in this connection were erroneous; and an examination of the record satisfies us that the trial judge did not do anything calculated to prejudice the jury as against the appellant." Cedar Rapids Nat. Bank v. Carlson, 156 Ia. 343, 136 N. W. 659.

Making Testimony Clear.—"If a witness, expert or ordinary, ecclesiastical or lay, makes use of language that does not convey a distinct and clear meaning to the mind of the court, it is fair to presume that ordinarily it will not have a clearer meaning in the minds of the jurors. It is not only the right, but it is the duty, of the judge presiding in the trial of a case to lend his aid in the elicitation of the truth from witnesses, and to see that the same is not concealed, obscured, or buried in a mass of unintelligible verbiage, or in technical expressions, meaningless to a layman, when the same can be reduced to the simple terms of everyday language without detriment, and he may always inquire of an expert or other witness what he means by a certain expression he has used for the purpose of allowing the witness to clarify his meaning by the selection and use of other words." Beebe v. Greene, 34 R. I. 171, 82 A. 796.

Detrimental effect of testimony elicited by judge does not render action error. Johnson v. Leffler, 122 Ga. 670, 50 S. E. 488.

Improper for court in a criminal case to catechise witness at length as to whether he was sure of facts testified to positively and suggest he might be mistaken and could correct his testimony if he were. Glover v. U. S., 147 Fed. 426, 77 C. C. A. 450.

E. 957, the prosecutor announced during the trial that there was a witness who should be examined, but that the state did not feel that it should call him, and asked the court to call him that both sides might cross-examine. The supreme court said that ordinarily it is not good practice for the trial judge in a criminal case to examine witness, under some circumstances it is his duty to do so. "If the will discloses that it was the intention of the testator to reward the executor for his services by the legacy, it is conclusive on the executor; and if he accept the position and administer the estate by virtue of his appointment as executor he must accept the reward for his services named in the will. Of course this does not apply to administrators with the will annexed. They are entitled to reasonable compensation for their services, regardless of any declaration made by the testator in his will fixing commissions for administering the estate. They hold the office by virtue of the law; while an executor is appointed by the will.'' In re Fox's Est., 235 Pa. 105, 83 A. 613.

Testimony proffered by the defendant from several witnesses as to the number of cars which in their opinion the plaintiff would have sold in 1903. "Under some circumstances perhaps evidence of this sort might be admissible. But here there was evidence as to the number of cars of several makes actually sold during 1903 and divers other facts from which an inference could be fairly drawn by the jury. It was a case where expert evidence might well be excluded in the discretion of the trial court." Randall v. Car Co., 212 Mass. 352, 99 N. E. 221.

Witness "was permitted to state that he had observed the plaintiff for five hours while the latter was on the witness stand, and that from such observation he had discovered nothing to indicate any loss of memory or lack of concentration of ideas on the part of plaintiff, and that plaintiff's capacity in this regard, as indicated by his appearance and demeanor on the witness stand, was free of defects and about the same as that of any other average man. So it is seen that defendant was allowed to prove everything by this witness that he attempted to prove except the description of the plaintiff's demeanor and appearance while on the witness stand. This, of course, was not competent, for the jurors observed this as clearly as the doctor did The latter as an expert could, at most, be permitted to give his opinion as to what the conduct indicated." Testimony was objected to upon the ground that it did not appear that witness had had any experience in mining iron pyrites or sulphur ore. The court said: "It appeared that he was a scientific and practical engineer of long experience, and though he did not claim to be a mining engineer, he had been for many years a member of the American Society of Mining Engineers; that while he had no experience in filtering or purifying water from mines, he had been a city engineer and had experience in filtering and cleansing water for drinking purposes. He may not have been very highly qualified to speak as an expert upon the question as to which he was permitted to testify, yet we cannot say that it clearly appears that he was not a competent witness, and unless we can so declare, under the well-settled rule of this court permitting him to testify as an expert would furnish no sufficient ground for reversal." Cause of pain at point of fracture. Bird v. Hart-Parr Co. (Ia.), 146 N. W. 74.

A physician was asked: "What percentage of eyes are saved, affected like this eye was, provided you get to them, say within 10 or 12 hours after you feel the sharp pain that occurs?" The court said: "If based upon the experience of the witness as an expert, it would be admissible for that reason. If it was based upon the concensus of opinion of specialists, we think it would be admissible for that reason. The evidence is similar in character to that presented by statistics gathered by learned and experienced men, such as the average of life contained in mortality tables, and other kindred subjects." 575-94 Impeachment by use of books. See infra, 650-55.

"Of course, medical books, however celebrated their authors, are not admissible in evidence, because the author is not under oath, and not subject to cross-examination. But, for the purpose of testing the qualifications, as well as the credibility, of an expert, it is generally held, as in Wittenberg v. Onsgard, 78 Minn. 342, 87 N. W. 14, 47 L. R. A. 141, that when the witness has testified that the authorities support his view, he may be asked on cross-examination whether a medical work, admitted by him to be a standard authority, does not express a contrary view. And it is no objection to such cross-examination that incidentally the opinions of the author are thus brought before the jury." Landro v. R. Co., 117 Minn. 306, 135 N. W. 991.

In Roark v. R. Co., 163 Mo. App. 705, 147 S. W. 499, the questions asked were whether or not, in your opinion, the low temperature in the car "would account for the relapse and recurrence of her former ailment." The court said: "It is well known that in investigations it is frequently the case that many different things will account for a certain condition. In this case, plaintiff's condition was being accounted for. It could, of course, have been brought about by one of many different things as a cause, or by several things combining to the one result. So the question was not, did the trip in the cold car cause plaintiff's condition, but, would it account for such condition? That is to say, could the condition have been caused by the trip? The question was, not whether the cold car caused the condition, but, was the cold car a way in which it could be accounted for? In other words, could it have resulted from the trip in the cold car?"

A physician was allowed to state what the person's general health was, the ground of the objection being that, while he saw him socially very frequently, he rarely attended him professionally. "We think there was sufficient opportunity for observation upon which to found the opinion expressed. An analogous case is found in Jones v. Collins, 94 Md. 413, 51 Atl. 398, where a physician who knew a testator well, but had never attended him, was allowed to give his opinion upon his mental capacity, without stating the facts on which his opinion was formed." The question should call for the opinion of the witness at the time he is testifying. Costello v. S., 176 Ala. 1, 58 S. 202.

A lengthy hypothesis concluded with this question: "Q. Doctor, state whether or not, in your opinion, there might, could or would have been any connection between the blows that she received upon her body, as I have described them to you, and the pain that she suffered at the base of the brain and along the spinal column and at the tail of the spinal column, the sleeplessness of nights, the nervousness; the question is whether or not there would be any connection, might, could or would be any connection, between those things? A. Yes, sir." "The objection made in this court is to the word 'would' in the question; it being claimed that that word called for a conclusion of fact from the witness, the determination of which should have been left to the jury. . . . The form of question, including the word 'would,' was stated with approval in Taylor v. Railway Co., 185 Mo. 239, 84 S. W. 873, and that part of the case thus stating a form of question was afterwards quoted with approval by the Supreme Court in State v. Hyde, 234 Mo. 200, 136 S. W. 316. We have had occasion to say, in Holtzen v. Railroad, 159 Mo. App. 370, 140 S. Improper question.—Action for killing a mule. "An expert veterinarian, who found, after the mule's skin had been removed, that his body was badly bruised, and his internal organs were in a state of congestion and decomposition. He was asked, substantially, the following question by plaintiff's counsel: 'State your opinion as to the cause of the mule's death, if you have one, based upon your knowledge and experience and your post mortem examination of him?' He answered: 'My opinion is that the mule was jammed up in the car.' This evidence was improperly admitted. The question required him to testify, not only as to the condition of the mule when he examined him, which was proper, but to go further and give his opinion as to the existence of a fact, which was almost, if not quite, the equivalent of the one directly involved in the issue." In Taylor v. R. Co., 166 Mo. App. 131, 148 S. W. 470, the court said: "Objection, we think too critical, is made to the hypothetical question as to the distance in which a car could have been stopped, going at the rate of ten miles an hour, as the one in controversy was. We do not think there was any valid objection pointed out, when the matter is viewed from a practical standpoint. The witness was familiar with the grade, and he was asked in what distance the cars which were run on that line, running at the rate of ten miles an hour, could be stopped. We judge from the objection that the question should have been made to apply only to the particular car which struck the wagon. If so, it would be rare that evidence of this nature could be produced for a plaintiff in cases of collision with cars. If there was any peculiarity about this car from those in general use on that line, defendant could have made it the basis for cross-examination, or evidence in its own behalf."

Evidence of market value is opinion evidence. F. W. Brockman Com. Co. v. Aaron, 145 Mo. App. 307, 130 S. W. 116.

While one was testifying as a witness, the district attorney asked him, "State whether or not that some of the tracks that you discovered there were made by the boot heel of the boot that you made for the defendant?" to which the witness answered, "Yes, sir." "Defendant objected to this testimony on the ground that it called for the opinion and conclusion of the witness. The testimony of this witness goes into minute particulars as to the way he knew the tracks he saw at the place from which the cotton was taken were made by boots he had made for this defendant, in that he had repaired them, and he could tell by the tracks the repair work he had done. This is not a conclusion or opinion, but a statement of a fact that he knew the track was made by boots made by him for defendant. Counsel for appellant may not see how the witness could so testify; but the fact is he did so testify. The argument of counsel might go to its weight, but not to its admissibility." Newton v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 143 S. W. 638.

Discretion of court properly exercised. The following question was put by defendant to certain witnesses: "In traveling over that walk as you have stated, did you ever notice any defects in the walk?" Also: "In passing over, did you ever notice any holes or defects in the walk?" Objection was made to each of these questions, on the ground, among others, that it called for the opinion of the witnesses as to "what constitutes a defect in the walk." The objection in each case was sustained. Robertson v. City of Waukon, 155 Ia. 260, 135 N. W. 1093.

"To allow the witness to state whether the train was running fast, or too fast, is fully authorized by the rule laid down in Jones v. Fuller, 19 S. C. 70, 45 Am. Rep. 761, where the court says: 'While it is necessary that the witness should first state the facts upon which he bases his opinion, where the facts are such as are capable of being reproduced in language, it is not necessary to do so, where the facts are not capable of reproduction in such a way as to bring before the minds of the jury the condition of things upon which the witness bases his opinion.'" Whether a certain station was a regular stopping place. Birmingham R., L & P. Co. v. Saxon (Ala.), 59 S. 584.

What relation the assessed valuation bore to the actual value of the property assessed. "The witness was asked upon cross-examination upon what he formed his opinion, and he said on actual sales of property made by him and the relation between the selling price and the assessed valuation; and, although he held in his hand a list of those sales, containing the prices at which they were made and the assessed value, neither side asked him to produce it. I am inclined to let the evidence stand as a resume of these specific instances upon which it was based, chiefly because neither side called for the evidence of the instances, a tabulation of which the witness held in his hand, and to give the defendant an exception, if it so desires." 791-35 "The plaintiff, if in possession of the building, was not dispossessed. She could not therefore pursue a complaint for forcible entry and detainer or for forcible detainer under the statute, to restore her to possession. The forcing of the door was not to dispossess her, but, as found by the court, to obtain certain goods, not belonging to her, which were stored in the building. It does not appear that the defendant or his mother knew of the plaintiff's presence in the building, or that she claimed to be in possession of it until the door was forced. An owner whose house has been entered during his temporary absence by a thief or other trespasser, and the door barred against him, is not bound to leave the trespasser in possession and to proceed against him in ejectment to regain possession. Such possession is not the actual possession which the statute against forcible entry and detainer protects." Carrier v. Carrier, 85 Conn. 203, 82 A. 187.

Fraud upon prospective spouse.—"The law in Illinois is well settled that a voluntary conveyance by either party to a marriage contract of his or her real property, made without the knowledge of the other and on the eve of marriage, is a fraud upon the marital rights of such other, and may be set aside as fraudulent and void as against the party whose rights are injuriously affected by such conveyance. Daniher v. Daniher, 201 Ill. 489, 66 N. E. 239, and cases there cited. Under the law of this state a conveyance made after a contract of marriage has been entered into, even though it is voluntary, is not conclusively presumed to be fraudulent, although in other jurisdictions the rule seems to be otherwise. Ward v. Ward, 63 Ohio St. 125, 57 N. E. 1095, 51 L. R. A. 858, 81 Am. St. Rep. 621; Arnegaard v. Arnegaard, 7 N. D. 475, 75 N. W. 797, 41 L. R. A. 258. Following the rule laid down in Champlin v. Champlin, 16 R. I. 314, 15 Atl. 85; Hamilton v. Smith, 57 Iowa 15, 10 N. W. 276, 42 Am. Rep. 39, and Fennessey v. Fennessey, 84 Ky. 519, 2 S. W. 158, 4 Am. St. Rep. 210, this court, in Daniher v. Daniher, supra, 201 Ill. on page 494, 66 N. E. on page 240, laid down the rule as follows: 'But we think the better rule is that, where any such voluntary conveyance is made without the knowledge of the other of such contracting parties, it presents a prima facie case of fraud, subject to be explained by the parties interested, and the burden is on the grantee to establish the validity of the deed.'" Dunbar v. Dunbar, 254 Ill. 281, 98 N. E. 563.

New York.—"It has long been the rule of law in this state that where an insolvent debtor transfers his property to one of his creditors as security for an antecedent debt, and the creditor taking the property advances nothing at the time, does not relinquish the security then held, or suspend any remedy upon it, such grantee is not a purchaser for a valuable consideration. Cary v. White, 52 N. Y. 138; Ten Eyck v. Witbeck, 135 N. Y. 40, 31 N. E. 994, 31 Am. St. Rep. 809. Every element required to establish consideration is lacking in the case at bar, with the exception of an alleged agreement to extend the time of payment of Bonnell's existing indebtedness at the time of the giving of the mortgage, followed by actual forbearance. Upon this issue the oral evidence is conflicting, and confined to Bonnell upon the one side and the vice president of the bank upon the other. Bonnell testified that there was no agreement to extend, either verbal or otherwise. The vice president admits that the mortgage consummated the prior oral agreement. By the terms of the mortgage, the amount secured thereby is payable upon demand, and from the very moment of its delivery the money it secured was presently due. The voluntary transfer by an insolvent debtor of his property is more than mere evidence of fraud. It is a fact from which a fraudulent intent may be inferred." Lehrenkrauss v. Bonnell, 122 N. Y. S. 866.

"We hold that the rule stated in Smith v. Reid, 134 N. Y. 568, 31 N. E. 1082, that a voluntary conveyance by one indebted at the time is presumptively fraudulent as against existing creditors, is the law of this state, rather than the rule laid down in Kain v. Larkin, 131 N. Y. 300, 30 N. E. 105." Kerker v. Levy, 206 N. Y. 109, 99 N. E. 181.

In a case where a husband, engaged in business and involved in debt, resulting in insolvency, made a voluntary transfer of property to his wife, it was said that, as against existing creditors, such transfer was fraudulent, no matter how pure the motive which induced it, because from the testimony the result of such transfer was to reduce the assets of the husband to such an extent as to delay and hinder his creditors in the collection of their debt. It was not shown "the manager of the hotel, or any officer, director, or employe of the hotel, was ever present when the gaming was going on; and the mere fact that a number of persons, in going to and from the room where the gaming was conducted, passed through the lobby of the hotel was claimed not sufficient to justify the inference of knowledge on the part of those in charge of the hotel, because the evidence shows that many persons also passed through the lobby of the hotel for the purpose of visiting the toilet room, and patronizing the soft drink establishment and the pool room. The rule is that the word 'suffer' or 'permit' means that the defendants must have suffered or permitted the game with the knowledge that money was being bet, won, or lost thereby; or the evidence must show some facts or circumstances by which the jury might infer such knowledge. And the court so instructed the jury. While it is true that no actual knowledge on the part of appellants was shown, it is true that the crap games continued in the storage room for a period of several months. It is also true that at times it was frequented by as many as

25 or 30 persons. Taking into consideration the length of time the game continued, and the frequency with which it took place, together with the number of people who attended the games, these facts were sufficient to justify the inference of knowledge on the part of those in charge of the hotel." 209-19 "It is not necessary that any eyewitness should be produced as to the fact of delivery. Words of the donor indicating that he had renounced ownership are sufficient. Judge Penrose puts this clearly in Malone's Estate, 8 Wkly. Notes Cas. 179, 182, where he says: 'With regard to the proof of actual delivery, it is not necessary that the witnesses shall have seen it take place. The bonds, or the notes, or the policy may have been at the time already in the custody of the donee, and in such case words indicating that the donor renounces all ownership would undoubtedly be sufficient.' He further says that: 'The delivery may be proved by the declarations of the donor, just as the gift itself may be; and when the donor declares that he had given at a previous time, and that the donee had then become the owner, it is implied that delivery, and indeed every other formality necessary to create a gift, had taken place. The law always presumes knowledge of its requirements.'" Leitch v. Nat. Bk., 234 Pa. 557, 83 A. 416.
