EXPLANATORY NOTE

Matter not covered by the original is placed under the page and note number nearest to which it would logically have fallen.

Italic lines at the head of an article herein form an index to new matter contained therein.

In examining a proposition in any one of the volumes the investigator should always be sure to turn to the Supplement to ascertain what, if any, decisions directly in point have been made since the original article was written. To illustrate: Suppose you are examining authorities bearing on the rule stated in the articles on "Sales," Volume 11, page 603, note 59, as to evidence of the difference between the contract price and the market price at the time and place of delivery. Run through this Supplement until you see the guiding terms "Vol. 11" at the top of the page in the margin; turn until you come to the running title "Sales;" then glance down the columns and turn until you see, at the left of the column, the black figures "603-59." Following this will be found the authorities supplementing the original work on this point.

This volume includes all cases in the reports and advance sheets, decided since the original matter was prepared, down to October 1, 1914.

In trials before court testimony of accomplices should be received with caution and carefully weighed. U. S. v. Quiamson, 5 Phil. Isl. 444. If it is contradictory no weight will be given it. U. S. v. Padlan, 7 Phil. Isl. 517.

Was common law rule binding.—If the practice of cautioning jury is a rule of law (court inclined to regard it as a rule of practice), it was not of force in England May 14, 1776, and therefore not within the terms of our adopting act. And as a rule of practice it ceased to have any validity when legislature prohibited judges from advising jury as to what had or had not been proved, or expressing any opinion as to the evidence or weight to be given it. Pennsylvania.—"There is no rule of law in this state that forbids a conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. Ettinger v. Commonwealth, 98 Pa. 338; Cox v. Commonwealth, 125 Pa. 94, 17 Atl. 227. The duty to examine such testimony with care, and to accept and act upon it only when convinced of its truthfulness, was pointed out in the charge.'' C. v. De Masi, 234 Pa. 570, 83 A. 430.

Sufficiency of caution.—Uncorroborated testimony may be relied upon if it produces most positive conviction of its truth. U. S. v. Richards, 149 Fed. 443. Direct and positive testimony will support a conviction though not corroborated. S. v. Conlin, 45 Wash. 478, 88 P. 932. It is enough to say jury should be cautious in convicting upon unsupported testimony. S. v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21. Or if court directs attention of jury to conduct of accomplice, and says it is for their consideration (Borck v. S. (Ala.), 39 S. 580); or instructs that courts regard testimony of accomplices with considerable suspicion, and it should be carefully scrutinized. Hanley v. U. S., 123 Fed. 849, 59 C. C. A. 153.

It is character and interest of witness, as shown on trial, and not mere fact of his being an accomplice that determines discretion of judge in commenting on his credibility. S. v. Carey, 76 Conn. 342, 56 A. 632. Giving cautionary instructions is rather a rule of practice than of law. Corroboration as to time, place and circumstances insufficient if prisoner connected only by accomplice testimony. Smith v. S., 7 Ga. App. 781, 68 S. E. 335.

It is sufficient if evidence "tends to connect defendant with the commission of the offense" (P. v. Balkwell, 143 Cal. 259, 76 P. 1017); but an instruction which adds to the quoted words of the Code the words "in any way," is erroneous. P. v. Compton, 123 Cal. 403, 56 P. 44.

The fact that the defendant, who, at the time of the commission of the alleged offense, lived at Ensley, some distance from Jacksonville, where the residence which was burned was situated, was, only two or three days before it was destroyed by fire, driving about near Jacksonville with his alleged accomplice; that on that particular occasion he called upon and obtained from the agent of the insurance company a permit to allow the residence to remain vacant; the fact that the residence was vacant, and was therefore producing no income; and the fact that, shortly after his arrest, he asked the officer making the arrest if the alleged accomplice had made an affidavit against him connecting him with the alleged offense—were all matters corroborative of the testimony of the alleged accomplice, and they possessed some tendency to connect the defendant with the commission of the corpus delicti. If a plea to a suit on account merely denies account, it is proper to exclude testimony of defendant "that the account sued on by the plaintiff had been fully paid, and that in the last settlement he had with the plaintiff that plaintiff was indebted to him about $1.80, and that defendant derived his knowledge from his book of account, which he kept himself." Payment of balance is not enough. Harrison v. Henderson, 67 Kan. 194, 72 P. 875.

"Ordinarily the acceptance by a creditor of a check for a part of a disputed claim will not constitute an accord and satisfaction, although the check agrees in amount with the balance due as claimed by the debtor. In order to make it so, the check must recite, in effect, that it is in full payment of the claim, or be so declared, expressly or by necessary implication, when the check is tendered." Hillestad v. Lee, 91 Minn. 335, 97 N. W. 1055.

Retention of check.—If creditor retains debtor's check for unreasonable time, pending discussion of whether it should be received in full or not, it is for jury to find whether it was so accepted. Fredonia G. Co. v. Elwood, 71 Kan. 464, 80 P. 969.

Notice of objection.—If debtor is notified immediately on receipt of check, suit will be brought to recover what is claimed to be due, there is no accord and satisfaction. Harby v. Henes, 45 Misc. 366, 90 N. Y. S. 461.

Question of fact.—Whether or not there has been such a giving and acceptance as to amount to an accord and satisfaction is for jury. Perin v. Cathcart, 115 Ia. 553, 89 N. W. 12.

Knowledge of custom of county. One who receives county warrants with knowledge, or its equivalent, that amounts allowed were on express condition they must be taken in full payment, and that balance of his claims had been disallowed cannot recover any other amount in absence of a protest then made, though he had previously protested. Qualified receipt.—A receipt "in full," with addition that sum named is accepted under protest, is not an accord and satisfaction. Mitterwallner v. Lodge, 109 App. Div. 70, 95 N. Y. S. 1090.

Parol evidence is competent to show receipt was signed upon unexpressed understanding. Komp v. Raymond, 175 N. Y. 102, 67 N. E. 113. And to explain receipt. Ramapo F. & W. Wks. v. Carey, 113 N. Y. S. 10.

Not affected by promise of third party. A receipt in full, standing alone and unimpeached, is not inconclusive because, in addition thereto and in connection with sum paid, receiptor had promise of something from another party, distinct from him who made payment. Or duress.—If the debtor should take the occasion to represent to his creditor his financial condition as being such that, at the end of the lawsuit there would be nothing to satisfy the judgment, he would thereby introduce an element of coercion in his offer. The offer then, instead of being, "Take this, or take what the law will adjudge to be your due," will be equivalent to "Take this, or you will never get anything." Scott v. Imp. Co., 241 Mo. 112, 145 S. W. 48.

Under our statute (section 2820, R. S. 1909), and the case law of this state, the certificate of acknowledgment is not conclusive proof of the facts recited therein. Albright v. Stevenson, 227 Mo. 333, 340, 126 S. W. 1027, and cases cited therein. The certificate can be rebutted by evidence showing a different state of facts from those recited in the certificate. The case law only differs upon the quantum of proof required. In this state some of the cases require the proof to be "clear, cogent and convincing," and others say that it must be made by "a clear and decided preponderance of evidence," and still others say that such proof should be "clear and satisfactory." In some other states the proof must be such as to remove all reasonable doubt as to the falsity of the officer's certificate. Suffice it to say that our rule is not so broad. We have to consider the statute in fixing the rule as to the quantum and character of proof. In other words, before we will hold for naught the certificate of acknowledgment, the proof must be clear, cogent and convincing. Fifer v. McCarty, 243 Mo. 42, 147 S. W. 833.

A. 647.

246-75 Amendment converting action from a proceeding in rem to one in personam not allowed in absence of a general appearance or service of a monition. The Lowlands, 147 Fed. 986.

247-83 A new defense cannot be set up by amendment after evidence is all in, facts sought to be pleaded having been known to party when he answered (Brennan v. Hagan, 147 Fed. 290); nor can a special defense be set up after its merits have been thrice passed upon and case remanded for trial on another issue. Burrill v. Crossman, 111 Fed. 192.

247-90 Verified pleadings may discredit testimony of party responsible for them, and will be considered in ascertaining facts in a collision case. The Richmond, 143 Fed. 996.

248-99 If a libel states a cause of action and issue is raised thereon, it is not proper, under admiralty rule fifty-one, to grant a summary motion on the pleadings to vacate an attachment because there is no replication. The Celtic Monarch, 138 Fed. 711, 71 C. C. A. 127.

249-3 Answer admitting an allegation in a libel suit does not preclude libelant from proving fact was otherwise, admission not being sustained by evidence. The Volunteer, 149 Fed. 723, 79 C. C. A. 429.

249-6 Bock v. Co., 124 Fed. 711. See 1 STANDARD PROC., 465, et seq.

Interrogatories may be attached to a libel against a corporation for answer by officer thereof who is named; they may not only call for information as to his personal knowledge but for answers according to his information—that received in his official capacity. Bock v. Co., 124 Fed. 711.

A verification which contains all that is essential will be sustained though not strictly in the usual form. In re Knickerbocker S. Co., 139 Fed. 713.

Unanswered interrogatories. — Judgment should not be given plaintiff on the pleadings if they raise an issue and interrogatories in answer are not responded to. The Oregon, 116 Fed. 482, 53 C. C. A. 650.

Refusal to answer.—A party may refuse to answer interrogatories which will expose him to punishment or forfeiture; but his objection must be explicit. In re Knickerbocker S. Co., 139 Fed. 713.

249-8 Answers as evidence for both parties. See discussion in Bock v. Co., 124 Fed. 711.

252-41 A charterer who has broken his contract must show vessel could, with reasonable diligence, have reduced or prevented damage sustained thereby. Cornwall v. Moore, 132 Fed. 868.

256-86 Ely v. Murray & T. Co., 200 Fed. 368, 118 C. C. A. 520; The Wyandotte, 145 Fed. 321, 75 C. C. A. 117.

The general presumption in favor of the master's authority prevails though vessel chartered, whether this was known to persons who furnished supplies or not. The Surprise, 129 Fed. 873, 64 C. C. A. 309. But if supplies are furnished charterer at his residence, it is presumed credit was given him. The Valencia, 165 U. S. 264; Alaska, etc. Co. v. Chamberlain, 116 Fed. 600, 54 C. C. A. 56; The Wm. P. Donnelly, 156 Fed. 302.

Evidence to rebut presumption.—Such presumption may be rebutted only by proof that credit was in fact given the vessel. But in order to establish that fact it is necessary to show such was the intention of both parties. Cuddy v. Clement, 115 Fed. 301, 53 C. C. A. 94. It is not sufficient to show vendor so understood, or that he charged supplies to vessel, and so entered them upon his books. The Kalorama, 10 Wall. (U. S.) 204; The James Guy, 1 Ben. 112, 13 Fed. Cas. No. 7,195; The Union Express, 1 Bro. Adm. 537, 24 Fed. Cas. 14,364; Stephenson v. The Francis, 21 Fed. 715; The St. John, 74 Fed. 842, 21 C. C. A. 141; The Columbus, 67 Fed. 553, 14 C. C. A. 522. It is not necessary that intent so to bind vessel be expressed in words or in the form of an agreement. It may be established by proof of circumstances from which it may be deduced, but it is essential the evidence shows a purpose on part of seller to sell on credit of vessel, and on part of purchaser to pledge her. Alaska, etc. Co. v. Chamberlain, 116 Fed. 600, 54 C. C. A. 56.

256-87 Ely v. Murray & T. Co., 200 Fed. 368, 118 C. C. A. 520.

257 Collision.—See the title "Collision," 5 STANDARD PROC.

257-94 They who set up defense to a bottomry bond that supplies might have been obtained on personal credit of owners have burden of showing they had credit or funds at the port where master obtained supplies. The Wyandotte, 145 Fed. 321, 75 C. C. A. 117.

If the evidence is hopelessly conflicting as to the fault for a collision and there is no doubt of the incompetency of a helmsman on one of the vessels, the fault will be attributed to her. The Senator Sullivan, 117 Fed. 176.

258-5 The Eagle Wing, 135 Fed. 826. See The Gertrude, 118 Fed. 130, 55 C. C. A. 80, for evidence which failed to show contributory negligence because schooner not properly manned.

No lookout.—Where a ship navigating a narrow channel has no proper lookout and neglects to signal her course at a reasonable distance, thus perplexing and misleading a meeting ship, former is alone responsible for damages caused by collision even if, in the agony of collision, a different maneuvre by the other ship might have avoided the accident. The S. S. Cape Breton v. Co., 36 Can. Sup. 564.

Failure to have a proper lookout is not excused by alleging navigation according to rule, the proof showing that boat failed to so navigate because in extremis. The James A. Lawrence, 117 Fed. 228, 54 C. C. A. 260.

Proof of defective lookout.—Unexplained failure of officers of a boat to see what they ought to have seen or hear what they ought to have heard is conclusive. The New York, 175 U. S. 187.

Absence of a trustworthy lookout, besides the helmsman, is prima facie evidence collision was fault of steamer, which has burden of showing it could not have been guarded against by a lookout. The Pilot Boy, 115 Fed. 873, 53 C. C. A. 329.

Location of a lookout.—A lookout should be placed in the bow of a ship, and it will not avail to show her deck was so overcrowded proper room could not be reserved for a lookout. The Vedamore, 137 Fed. 844, 70 C. C. A. 342; The Patria, 92 Fed. 411; Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 Fed. 322.

The fact that other vessels, both before and after collision, passed an anchored vessel in safety does not show she was properly anchored and did not obstruct navigation. The Caldy, 153 Fed. 837. See the Banan, 116 Fed. 900.

Place of moored vessel.—Irrespective of whether or not a vessel anchors or moors in a proper and safe place, moving vessel must avoid her when, with reasonable practicability, she can do so, having regard for her own safety. Rebstock v. Co., 132 Fed. 174.

Duty of sailing vessel.—The rule requiring that where one of two vessels is to keep out of the way the other shall keep her course and speed, requires a sailing vessel in the near presence of a steamer to beat out of its track if there are not emergencies to prevent it. Sheer of steamer.—To say that the erratic course of a vessel in "bounding backward and forward across the channel was due to a sheer is no defense, unless she can show that the sheer was unavoidable, that is, that the cause which started the sheer and maintained it was a force which she could not resist or guard against by that reasonable degree of skill required from a navigator in the waters where this sheer occurred." The Australia, 120 Fed. 220, 56 C. C. A. 568.

Evidence to overcome presumption. Presumption favored vessel kept on her course may be overcome by evidence, notwithstanding the improbability of her not having done so, in which case liability for collision can only be avoided by proving fault of the other vessel by a clear preponderance of evidence. The Eagle Wing, 135 Fed. 826.

264-62 A moored vessel which breaks away must show affirmatively she drifted because of inevitable accident or a vis major which could not have been prevented (The Wm. E. Reis, 152 Fed. 673, 143 Fed. 1013; The Tarpon, 132 Fed. 277; The Andrew Welch, 122 Fed. 557); and if placed in exposed position must show negligence on the part of a moving steamer. 264-64 If the sheering of a barge beyond the middle of a channel injures a barge in tow there, burden is on former to show reasonable diligence or skill could not have avoided collision. The Australia, 120 Fed. 220, 56 C. C. A. 568.

265-69 The Britannia, 148 Fed. 495.

Negligence presumed if an accident which should have been anticipated and guarded against happens, no means having been taken to guard against it. The Genessee, 139 Fed. 549, 70 C. C. A. 673.

Presumption as to signal.—Where a light placed above a sunken wreck was burning brightly about two hours before collision of a tug with the wreck, and it is shown it was capable of burning for some hours after wreck occurred, it is presumed to have been burning then, and burden is on tug which collided with wreck at night to show the contrary. A. 492); that she kept her tow at a safe distance from an anchored dredge (The Wyomissing, 149 Fed. 241; The Overbrook, 149 Fed. 785); prove a contract whereby a vessel was to be towed at risk of owners (The Somers N. Smith, 120 Fed. 569); and to show she had the right to expect the aid of steam from a vessel too heavy for tug to move. The J. S. T. Stranahan, 151 Fed. 364.

267-95 The Southwark, 191 U. S. 1; The Rappahannock, 173 Fed. 829.

Seaworthiness; implied contract.—The implied contract is seaworthiness for the special cargo (Neilson v. Co., 122 Fed. 617, 60 C. C. A. 175; The C. W. Elphicke, 122 Fed. 439, 58 C. C. Warranty extends to a charterer who has no knowledge of unseaworthiness (The Presque Isle, 140 Fed. 202); but does not include vessels carrying passengers. The Oregon, 133 Fed. 609, 68 C. C. A. 603.

Under the Harter act shipowner must show vessel was seaworthy at inception of voyage, or that due diligence had been used to make her so (The Wildcroft, 201 U. S. 378; International N. Co. v. Co., 181 U. S. 218; The Southwark, 191 U. S. 1); regardless of whether there is conflicting testimony concerning seaworthiness. The Wildcroft, supra.

"The question of seaworthiness is to be determined with reference to the custom and usages of the port from which the vessel sails, the existing state of knowledge and experience, and the judgment of prudent and competent persons versed in such matters." The Tjomo, 115 Fed. 919; The Titania, 19 Fed. 101.

267-1 Presumption of seaworthiness is not overcome by proof that vessel sank near her wharf, because injured by pounding against another boat on the pier. National Board v. Bowring, 148 Fed. 1010.

267-2 Shipowner cannot limit liability under the Harter act unless he shows affirmatively he has properly officered and equipped his vessel for the contemplated service; it is not sufficient to show he had no knowledge or reason to believe in the incompetency of her master. Failure to close port holes.—See International N. Co. v. Co., 181 U. S. 218.

Sudden breaking down of refrigerating apparatus of a vessel within three hours of sailing raises presumption of unseaworthiness when she left port. The Southwark, 191 U. S. 1.

Failure to take the testimony of a ship's carpenter, named in its commission for examination, on being informed by libelant of his whereabouts, raises presumption his testimony as to the vessel's seaworthiness would have been unfavorable. The Manitou, 116 Fed. 60, 127 Fed. 554, 63 C. C. A. 109.

268-10 The Oneida, 128 Fed. 687, 63 C. C. A. 239.

268-18 In determining what is proper stowage the customs and usages of place of shipment are to be considered, and, if these are followed, and none of the known and usual precautions for safe stowage are omitted, no breach of duty or negligence can be imputed to the ship. The Tjomo, 115 Fed. 919.

269-20 Corsar v. Co., 141 Fed. 260, 72 C. C. A. 378; Harloff v. Barber, 150 Fed. 185; Dene S. S. Co. v. Co., 133 Fed. 589, 143 Fed. 854, 74 C. C. A. 606.

It cannot be said a vessel is seaworthy which has, at inception of her voyage, little, if any, positive metacentric height, a list of eight or nine degrees, and her cargo so distributed instability must increase as she proceeds. The Oneida, 128 Fed. 687, 63 C. C. A. 239.

269-23 Cau v. R. Co., 194 U. S. 427; Lazarus v. Barber, 136 Fed. 534, 69 C. C. A. 310.

If implied warranty of seaworthiness has been varied shipper must show negligence. The Tjomo, 115 Fed. 919; The Southwark, 104 Fed. 103. Hirer must show damage resulted from a defect in the outfit as specified in the charter party. Hills v. Leeds, 149 Fed. 878.

If notice of claim is made a condition precedent to liability shipper must show it has been given if contrary is alleged. The Westminister, 127 Fed. 680, 62 C. C. A. 406.

Distinctions as to burden of proof. "When the damage is manifestly of the sort excepted the ship is under no obligation to show the promoting cause. To illustrate, if the exception is 'damage caused by peril of the sea,' and the cargo is landed drenched with salt water, it will be for the ship to show that the salt water found access to the cargo through a peril of the sea; but if the exception is 'damage by breakage,' and the article arrives broken, the ship is not required to show how it got broken—although the libelant may show that negligence of those on the ship, or of those who stowed her or discharged her, caused the break, and showing that, may recover." The Patria, 125 Fed. 425, 132 Fed. 971, 68 C. C. A. 397.

271-33 The Manitou, 116 Fed. 60, 127 Fed. 554, 63 C. C. A. 109.

Relation of burden of proof to presumption.—"The casting of the burden of proof on one party or the other in a given case, does not destroy the presumptions in favor of a party, which exist under the general law of evidence. Presumptions are a sort of proof and a substitute in certain stages of a case for affirmative testimony. A disputable presumption may operate as a prima facie case upon a particular point." The Wilderoft, 139 Fed. 521, 65 C. C. A. 145.

Effect of Harter act.—A vessel owner cannot take advantage of §3 of the Harter act unless he shows affirmatively vessel was seaworthy at commencement of voyage, or due diligence had been used to make her so. The C. W. Elphicke, 117 Fed. 279, 122 Fed. 439, 58 C. C. A. 421, and cases cited in next note. Such proof cannot be supplied by inferences or presumptions. The Wilderoft, 201 U. S. 378; Bradley v. R. Co., 153 Fed. 350. If circumstances are such opportunity for giving testimony is solely with the owner, burden upon him is thereby increased. The Manitou, supra. If a bill of lading is issued after goods are loaded and have passed from owner's control carrier has burden of showing his assent to terms of the bill. Pacific C. Co. v. Co., 155 Fed. 29, 83 C. C. A. 625.

Injury by escaping steam.—See The Manitou, 116 Fed. 60, 127 Fed. 554, 63 C. C. A. 109.

272-37 Liability is established by showing baggage was in good condition when put on board, and was wet at end of voyage. Weinberger v. C. G. T., 146 Fed. 516.

272-38 Under that clause of the Harter act which releases vessel owners from liability provided they exercised due diligence to make their vessel in all respects seaworthy and properly manned, they must show master was competent, was selected with due diligence (which must be particularly specified), was habitually diligent, or they rightly believed him to be so. The Fri, 140 Fed. 123; The Cygnet, 126 Fed. 742, 61 C. C. A. 348.

272-40 Evidence to show deficiency of freight.—Where it is claimed that less freight than was due was delivered, it is competent to show that other consignees who shipped like freight at the same time in the same vessels received much more than they had bought and more than their bills of lading called for. Dana v. Co., 131 Fed. 158.

Shipper must prove delivery of goods to vessel.—The prima facie case made by a bill of lading is overthrown by proof it was delivered before goods put aboard or consigned to care of master, and before vessel was in port. Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley, 115 Fed. 678, 53 C. C. A. 310; Kelley v. Co., 120 Fed. 536.

Execution of bill of lading by carrier's agent must be shown by shipper. Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley, 115 Fed. 678, 53 C. C. A. 310.

275-60 Burden of explaining accident to passenger and relieving itself from imputation of negligence is upon carrier. Walker v. S. S. Co., 117 Fed. 784; Pouppirt v. Co., 122 Fed. 983. A prima facie case is shown by proof of breaking of chain used in unloading heavy articles. Lewers Co. v. Kekauoha, 114 Fed. 849, 52 C. C. A. 483.

275-65 The H. B. Rawson, 162 Fed. 312, 89 C. C. A. 20.

Inspectors' rules will be considered though not received in evidence if in the record, referred to in testimony and discussed in briefs. The H. B. Rawson, 162 Fed. 312, 89 C. C. A. 20.

275-66 Admiralty court may notice a statute of Canada regulating navigation in Canadian waters, and also the revised international rules and regulations concerning navigation. The New York, 175 U. S. 187. The Liverpool S. Co. v. Ins. Co., 129 U. S. 397, is distinguished because it did not involve a question of general maritime law, but a statutory exemption from consequences of negligence in navigation given by act of parliament.

275-67 Sufficient certificate. Where a statute was used in the district court by consent and treated as part of the record, though not made such, and was certified in obedience to a certiorari to the court of appeals by clerk of district court as a true copy of the original act as published, it was properly before the appellate court though not certified to be a part of the record. The New York, 175 U. S. 187.

State statutes creating liens are noticed. The Alligator, 161 Fed. 37, 88 C. C. A. 201.

276-68 Notorious facts. — Judicial notice will be taken of the intimate commercial relations existing between the ports of Puget Sound and Alaskan ports, and in the absence of contrary proof it will be inferred the highest rate of seamen's wages at Nome was not less than the usual rate of wages at Tacoma. The Elihu Thompson, 139 Fed. 89.

Sack rafts.—In the absence of a statute defining or describing a sack raft or testimony disclosing that it is commonly known, it cannot be judicially known what constitutes such a raft. The Mary, 123 Fed. 609.

279-1 Nielson v. Co., 122 Fed. 617, 60 C. C. A. 175.

282-27 Unsealed deposition not personally delivered into court is not admissible. The Saranac, 132 Fed. 936.

282-32 One case may be submitted upon the testimony taken in another involving the same facts. The Oregon, 133 Fed. 609, 68 C. C. A. 603. Relevant testimony taken under examinations by counsel for three separate interests is properly before the court on the final hearing, regardless of whom it was offered by, though there were separate answers and separate issues. The Bayonne, 128 Fed. 288.

Scope of interrogatories under rule 32. See The Baker Palmer, 172 Fed. 154.

284-46 A carrier cannot object to an interrogatory concerning amount of freight delivered to other consignees than libelant, on the ground that to do so would disclose their business to him. Such testimony has a bearing on the issue as to whether all freight due libelant had been delivered. Dana v. Co., 131 Fed. 158.

284-50 Findings should be made in numbered paragraphs. The Itasca, 117 Fed. 885.

284-53 A general objection that the evidence does not warrant the finding is sufficient if all the evidence is attached to the report. The Paqueto Habana, 189 U. S. 453; Merritt, etc. v. Co., 132 Fed. 154. Exceptions must refer to the pertinent evidence. The Waiontha, 122 Fed. 719; The John H. Starin, 116 Fed. 433. If not urged they are waived. The Eliza Lines, 114 Fed. 307, 52 C. C. A. 195. Objection to hearsay testimony may be made when exceptions filed. The Anson M. Bangs, 129 Fed. 103, 62 C. C. A. 605. A plain error in computation may be corrected in absence of a formal exception. The Eliza Lines, 132 Fed. 242, 65 C. C. A. 538.

If but little testimony was taken by commissioner, the weight accorded his findings will be lessened. The Sovereign of the Seas, 139 Fed. 812.

A finding as to cost of preparing a vessel, based upon account of party who did the work and proof of payment of bill, sustained. Thompson v. Winslow, 130 Fed. 1001.

285-61 If the parties refuse to stipulate that stenographer may be employed in a proper case court will authorize employment of one, whose fees shall be taxed as costs. Rogers v. Brown, 136 Fed. 813. If testimony was taken before tender made and money paid into court, the cost thereof may be taxed if it was not used until time of the trial and was one of the grounds on which action defeated. The Claverburn, 148 Fed. 139.

287-73 In absence of a charter party bill of lading delivered to shipper is best evidence of the contract or as a substitute for a regularly drawn charter party. The Eva D. Rose, 151 Fed. 704.

287-74 Log book not usually evidence.—Worrall v. Co., 113 Fed. 549 (under the circumstances court looked in it).

Evidence of some purposes.—A log book is competent evidence to show speed of a vessel between designated points, entries having been made before litigation begun. The New York, 109 Fed. 909. It may be called for and used by party who did not make it for purpose of cross-examining witnesses if testimony so adduced is more intelligible by a reference to it. The Kentucky, 148 Fed. 500.

Silence of log book.—The failure of log book or protest made immediately after collision to mention absence of lights on sailing vessel collided with is a significant fact to show that her lights were burning. The Richmond, 114 Fed. 208; Pennell v. U. S., 162 Fed. 64.

287-75 Pennell v. U. S., 162 Fed. 64. Is better evidence than testimony of officer who made entries though he testified after reading them. Bacon v. Conroy, 172 Fed. 532, 97 C. C. A. 158.

293-8 Bills of lading do not prove themselves, and shipper has the burden of showing their execution by carrier. Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley, 115 Fed. 678, 53 C. C. A. 310. They are sufficient evidence of receipt of goods (The Titania, 131 Fed. 229, 65 C. C. A. 215, 124 Fed. 975), unless executed before goods delivered or before vessel reached port. Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley, supra; Kelley v. Co., 120 Fed. 536.

299-33 A charter party which contains a stipulation fixing rate of demurrage is admissible to make a prima facie case for assessment of damages in case of delay of vessel. The Columbia, 109 Fed. 660, 48 C. C. A. 596; Orhanovich v. The American, 4 Fed. 337; The Silica v. The Lord Warden, 30 Fed. 845. Contra. The Jas. A. Dumont, 34 Fed. 428. Correspondence preceding making of charter party, which presents facts and circumstances surrounding and pertinent to it, and out of which it grew, is admissible to explain contract. Sewall v. Wood, 135 Fed. 12, 67 C. C. A. 580. But if correspondence is merged in contract it may be excluded. U. S. v. Conkling, 135 Fed. 508, 68 C. C. A. 220.

300-41 Entries in ship's tally book and mate's receipt book are not calculated to show what bales of goods were covered or uncovered, nor the character of the goods, such entries being based on declarations of shipper. They are evidence of the number of bales and of their dimensions. Cunard S. S. Co. v. Kelley, 126 Fed. 610, 61 C. C. A. 532. See Kelley v. Co., 120 Fed. 536.

302-56 Registry of a ship is slight prima facie evidence of ownership. Post v. Schooner, 1 Haw. 286.

315-7 Ocean S. S. Co. v. Ins. Co., 121 Fed. 882.

316-13 Evidence of conversations between the parties prior to issuance of bill of lading is admissible to show intent and aid in construing bill with reference thereto; and if it was issued after goods were put on board and had passed from control of shipper, parol evidence may be competent to modify it. Pacific Coast Co. v. Co., 155 Fed. 29, 83 C. C. A. 625. Circumstances under which contract for towage made may be proved. Daly v. Bacon, 149 Fed. 401, 79 C. C. A. 221.

326-62 The Maurice, 135 Fed. 516, 68 C. C. A. 228.

326-64 Mate's declaration made ten minutes after accident is not part of the res gestae. The Saranac, 132 Fed. 936.

327-71 After insurer has taken usual steps to ascertain extent of injury to a vessel and amount of damage and paid sum fixed upon by appraisement a very strong presumption arises that damage equaled sum paid. Fairgrieve v. Ins. Co., 112 Fed. 364, 50 C. C. A. 286.

328-77 The Umbria, 148 Fed. 283; The Mobila, 147 Fed. 882 (value of a lost vessel); La Bourgogne, 144 Fed. 781, 75 C. C. A. 647 (value of lost property without market value).

331-96 Negligence cannot be shown by opinions, no facts being stated. Manila v. Rodriguez, 7 Phil. Isl. 292.

331-97 The proper course for the district court in collision cases is to receive testimony tendered, subject to objection, unless it be so utterly irrelevant or immaterial there could not possibly be any doubt about it. The position of a sunken vessel may be material in fixing fault for a collision. Minnesota S. S. Co. v. Co., 129 Fed. 22, 63 C. C. A. 672. As to a party not bound by stipulations in charter party concerning demurrage, evidence of the net yearly earnings of the vessel will be considered in connection with such stipulations for purpose of assessing damages for detention. Keyser v. Jurvelius, 122 Fed. 218, 58 C. C. A. 661.

Weight of goods at interior plantations prior to shipment establishes, prima facie, amount lost. The Rose Innes, 122 Fed. 750. Refusal to insure a vessel may be some evidence of unseaworthiness. Mooro v. Cornwall, 144 Fed. 22, 75 C. C. A. 180.

333-13 More weight will be given the testimony of witnesses who have had experience as to the carrying capacity of a vessel than to the estimates of a witness based upon her plan. Hreglich v. Coal, 128 Fed. 464. Positive testimony of witnesses identifying a vessel is not overcome by entries in her log book showing she may not have been at place in question, or that under ordinary conditions she probably was not there at time testified of. Ross R. Co., 146 Fed. 608. If there is irreconcilable conflict in the testimony that of witnesses who had best opportunity of knowing the facts to which they testify and least inducement to testify falsely should be believed. The Itasca, 117 Fed. 885. Refusal to insure a vessel is not conclusive as to her seaworthiness. Mooro v. Cornwall, 144 Fed. 22, 75 C. C. A. 180.

334-14 Uncorroborated testimony of a dealer concerning credit given a vessel in her home port for supplies is not controlling; nor is the fact she was charged therewith on his books. The Wm. P. Donnelly, 156 Fed. 302.

334-15 The Geo. W. Peavey, 173 Fed. 715 (as against opinions of witnesses on the other vessel as to what they observed); The Erandio, 163 Fed. 435; The Dorchester, 163 Fed. 779; Pennell v. U. S., 162 Fed. 64; The Dorchester, 121 Fed. 889; The Captain Sam, 115 Fed. 1000; Minnesota S. S. Co. v. Co., 129 Fed. 22, 63 C. C. A. 672; The Georgetown, 135 Fed. 854; The Martha E. Wallace, 148 Fed. 94. Rule has less force where question concerns lights on the other vessel. The Roman, 14 Fed. 61; The Monmouthshire, 44 Fed. 697.

Opportunity of witnesses on another vessel to see movements of the one in question is to be regarded in weighing their testimony. The J. G. Gilchrist, 173 Fed. 666.

Probability and improbability; lights on opposite vessel.—See The Richmond, 114 Fed. 208; Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 Fed. 322. The positive testimony of witnesses whose duty it was to see lights on a vessel (there being nothing to intercept their vision) that there were no lights is not overcome by evidence showing such vessel had a light twenty or thirty minutes before collision occurred, it not being shown to have been burning thereafter. The John H. Starin, 122 Fed. 236, 58 C. C. A. 600; The Maggie Ellen, 120 Fed. 662, 57 C. C. A. 124.

State of weather.—The pleadings and the observations of witnesses, taken on the water, are better evidence of the velocity of the wind and condition of sea than the record of the weather bureau as to the wind, the observations being made several miles away and at a considerable elevation. The Winnie, 137 Fed. 166.

Delay in making a claim for damages may be very persuasive as to non-existence of negligence on part of libeled vessel. The New York, 109 Fed. 909.

Fact a vessel was struck by a vessel moving from behind against her goes far to create a preponderance of evidence and to solve the difficulty raised by conflicting testimony. The Rebecca, 122 Fed. 619, 60 C. C. A. 251.

Testimony as to what a man has seen in the performance of duty will outweigh that of a witness who was not chargeable with any duty in the premises. Brigham v. Luckenbach, 140 Fed. 322; The Maggie Ellen, 120 Fed. 662, 57 C. C. A. 124.

337-30 Great weight may fairly be given to the improbability that vessel, whose master knows she was being overtaken by a vessel, in such a position that she cannot help but know she is herself overtaking, should improperly change his course when, under the plain text of the rule, no new navigation on her part was called for, and all she had to do was to keep her course and let all overtaking vessels keep out of her way. The Nathan Hale, 113 Fed. 865, 51 C. C. A. 489. If all the evidence cannot be true that will be rejected which was most liable to error and the elimination of which will make the harmonizing of the remainder most easy. The Helen G. Moseley, 128 Fed. 402, 63 C. C. A. 144.

338-38 When the testimony is in conflict failure of vessel, against which the weight of evidence exists, to produce all its officers and crew informed of the circumstances weakens its case. The Georgetown, 135 Fed. 854; The Gladys, 135 Fed. 601; The New York, 175 U. S. 187.

338-39 Testimony as to the result of experiments conducted without notice to the opposing party and under conditions different from those existing when collision occurred, will be received with greatest caution, if at all. The Richmond, 114 Fed. 208.

The cost of repairs is proved by prima facie testimony they were rendered necessary by reason of the collision, were made, and at the lowest price, and testimony of ship's agent they had paid the bills. The Bratsberg, 127 Fed. 1005.

338-45 Circumstantial evidence of seaworthiness, if strong and sufficient when considered in connection with the other testimony, will sustain a finding in favor of the vessel. The Wildcroft, 130 Fed. 521, 65 C. C. A. 145.

341-64 The Eagle Wing, 162 Fed. 882, 89 C. C. A. 572; Baton Rouge P. Co. v. George, 128 Fed. 914, 63 C. C. A. 640.

342-71 Rule stated in text for note 71 applies though some of the parties do not join in the appeal (The San Rafael, 141 Fed. 270, 72 C. C. A. 388), and where finding below rests upon alleged preponderance of evidence. The Fin Mac Cool, 147 Fed. 123, 77 C. C. A. 349.

342-77 Only such evidence as is made a part of the bill of exceptions will be considered. The Wyandotte, 145 Fed. 321, 75 C. C. A. 117.

343-79 New evidence may be taken in a personal injury case growing out of a collision. The Homer, 109 Fed. 572, 48 C. C. A. 465.

When a writing ceases to be a pleading its cogency varies according to many collateral circumstances, such as the deliberation and care with which made, clearness of comprehension, of either maker or reporter of statement, or, especially when emanating from an agent, fullness of consultation with and disclosure from principal. Hence, it may be shown it was made without consultation with, or information from, the client, but upon information obtained from others. Ranken v. Probey, 136 App. Div. 134, 120 N. Y. S. 413; Schultz v. Culbertson, 125 Wis. 169, 103 N. W. 234.

Admission in original pleading not binding.—Plaintiff may show declaration in original pleading was not his. Presumptively it was his, although signed only by his attorney. By a railroad conductor.—"These exceptions complain of error in allowing the testimony as to what the conductor said the next day. The testimony tended to show that the conductor, who certainly was the agent of the company, was still engaged in the business of the wreck, and went to the plaintiff for the purpose of getting a statement from him as a part of his official duties in connection with the wreck. An agent is rarely, if ever, commissioned expressly to make admissions of responsibility; but it would be monstrous to hold that an agent to get admissions could make none." Nelson v. R. Co., 92 S. Illustrations. — Where plaintiff, after applying for leave to enter defendant's premises and examine hoops which had come from a broken vat, was shown the hoops by a person having authority to exhibit them, his remark, "those are the hoops," was admissible as part of the res gestae; but if such person had also said, "those hoops were in the same decayed condition prior to the accident," or "I knew their condition then," such declaration would have been inadmissible to prove such past fact, even if it might have been received as characterizing the act of exhibiting to plaintiff. Declaration by defendant's superintendent, before accident, and while unfit employee was in service, to the effect latter was given to intoxication, was competent as res gestae to the act then being done by the superintendent on behalf of his principal, to show the knowledge he had while transacting the business; but, it was said, admission afterward would stand upon a different footing. "The witness testified that Johnson, the local freight agent of the Southern Pacific Company, spoke of the justness of the claim and the readiness of the company to pay it, and explained why it had not been paid. As the record discloses, Johnson was merely the local freight agent of the company. It is not shown that he had the authority to pay, settle, or even admit the payment of a claim owing by the company, or that he was permitted by the company to hold himself out as an agent having such authority; in fact, Johnson subsequently testified that he did not have such authority. We therefore think this testimony was inadmissible." N. Y. & B. Transp. Line v. Lewis Baer & Co., 118 Md. 73, 84 A. 251.

Statement of purpose.—In what manner can it be said to have advanced or to have tended to advance the design, if any, of the accused parties of carrying the girls away, and inducing them to lead lives of prostitution and the like? An admission or confession of what is proposed to be done is not to be misconstrued into or confused with declarations in aid or promotion of the design talked about. The statement of Black was of what he and Pearson and defendant were going to do; i. e., going to Chicago and allow the girls to support them by prostitution. This was a clear admission of the connection with the alleged conspiracy, but as such did not in any way tend to further the same, and for this reason was not admissible against the defendant, who was not shown to have been present. Contingent offer.—Admissions made in contemplation of effort to compromise in a contingency which might or might not arise are provable. Upson v. Campbell (Tex. Civ.), 99 S. W. 1129. Castner v. R. Co., 126 Ia. 581, 102 N. W. 499. "A party cannot render an admission incompetent by testifying he intended it to bring about a compromise, unless there was in fact an honest controversy between the parties and a treaty, pending or proposed, to settle it without resort to litigation." Steeg v. Walls, 4 Ind. App. 18, 30 N. E. 312; St. Louis S. R. Co. v. Smith, 33 Tex. Civ. 520, 77 S. W. 28.

Belief of party.—If a party believes he has a good cause of action, though litigation may show he has not, his Conflict in Texas.—"The rule in this state was that former acts of intercourse could be proved, not only in incest and adultery, but in rape, in order to shed light on the offense charged. Burnett v. S., 32 Tex. Cr. 86, 22 S. W. 47; Funderburg v. S., 23 Tex. App. 392, 5 S. W. 244. But this doctrine as to rape has been overruled. Smith v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 73 S. W. 401, 74 S. W. 556. It has also been overruled as to incest. Clifton v. S., 46 Tex. Cr. 18, 79 S. W. 824. We can see no distinction as to incest and adultery. the possession of all. This rule has its exceptions. Character of grantor's possession.—It may be shown in rebuttal of testimony tending to show notice to co-owners that grantor of claimant lived with her on the land, returned it for taxation and paid taxes on it as part of the estate he was administering, and after death of his grantee, held himself out as being in possession in his representative capacity. Must act in good faith.—Jasperson v. Scharnikow, 150 Fed. 571, 80 C. C. A. 373.

Good faith, to support the prescription of ten years acquirendi causa, is based on the honest and positive belief of the possessor, founded on just reasons, that he is purchasing from the real owner. Doubt as to the title of the vendor as to his right to alienate is fatal to a claim of good faith. A doubt sufficient to induce the possessor to make an investigation of the title of his vendor is presumed to have continued down to the sale, in the absence of evidence tending to show its removal by adequate information derived from the records or other trustworthy sources. Knight v. Berwick L. Co., 130 La. 233, 57 S. 900. The good faith required is belief of purchaser he is buying land from owner, and, in establishing his good faith, he is not required to show his grantor's grantor had title. Bennett v. Calmes, 116 La. 598, 40 S. 911.

Scope of proof.—If offense consists of a single act, alleged to have been done at a stated hour, proof need only cover time alleged. P. v. Morris, 3 Cal. App. 1, 84 P. 463. This is not inconsistent with rule that evidence must cover whole time of transaction. Barr v. P., 30 Colo. 522, 71 P. 392. Evidence need go no further than to show accused was not at place when event occurred. Fortson v. S., 125 Ga. 16, 53 S. E. 767. To entitle defense of alibi to consideration evidence must show that at very time in question accused was so far away, or circumstances were such he could not, with ordinary exertion, have reached place of crime so as to have been concerned in it. The measure of proof, when the sufficiency of evidence offered to establish an alibi is the question, is simply that it shall be satisfactory—"such as flows fairly from a preponderance of the evidence. It need not be beyond doubt. Where the evidence raises a balancing question, and the mind is brought to determine its preponderance, there may be a doubt still existing in the mind, yet the actual weight may be with the prisoner; and this proof should be considered satisfactory." "An alibi is the instinctive and favorite resort of conscious guilt as well as the natural defense of innocence; but an unsuccessful attempt to establish it is necessarily highly prejudicial to the accused, for the obvious reason that such a defense implies an admission of the truth of the facts alleged against him, and the correctness of the inference drawn from them if they remain uncontradicted." Alterations may be explained by instrument itself or extrinsic evidence. Gage v. Chicago, 225 Ill. 218, 80 N. E. 127.

Distinction as to admissibility of altered executory or executed writings. There is a distinction as to admissibility of instruments evidencing executory contracts and those which evidence executed contracts, and that distinction extends to those parts of an instrument which are executory, though other parts of it are executed. The distinction is well illustrated by an altered conveyance of land containing covenants. The alteration does not divest title, but it destroys all the grantees' rights and the covenants and the paper as evidence of the covenants. And the mooted distinction turns upon the inquiry whether, in such case, the altered deed may still be adduced in evidence of the title which passed by it in its original form. The negative view is favored by Chelsey v. Frost, 1 N. H. 145; Babb v. Clemson, 10 Serg. & R. Understanding of parties to unambiguous contract cannot be shown under statute providing that when terms of agreement have been intended in a different sense by parties to it, that sense is to prevail against either party in which he had reason to suppose the other understood it; neither can such understanding be shown because one of the parties resided in another state and contract was made in yet another, in which it would have been construed otherwise than in state of its performance. 852-60 Extrinsic evidence concerning will.—A will which is certain in terms is not ambiguous because it does not dispose of all testator's lands. Taylor v. Horst, 23 Wash. 446, 63 P. 231. The meaning of local words or phrases used in a will executed abroad, which have a different meaning from same words or phrases in jurisdiction in which will is being construed, with which it may be presumed testator was familiar, may be shown by parol. "Evidence of such extrinsic circumstances as the testator's relations to persons, or the amount, character and condition of his estate, is sometimes admissible to explain ambiguities of description in his will, but never to determine the construction or the extent of the devises therein contained." Brand is not prima facie evidence of ownership. Cuerth v. Arbogast (Mont.), 136 P. 383.

"It does not take a statute to make brands and marks on animals admissible in evidence—they are so by virtue of the rules governing evidence, and it has been held that cattle branded with the brand of the prosecuting witness is some evidence of his ownership. Underhill on Crim. Ev. 297; State v. Wolfley, 75 Kan. 406, 89 P. 1046, 93 P. 337, 11 L. R. A. (N. S.) 87, 12 Am. Cas. 412; People v. Romero, 12 Cal. App. 466, 107 P. 709. And it has also been held that the state may prove that an unrecorded brand was used for years by the party claiming ownership. Underhill, §297; Territory v. Meredith, 14 N. M. 288, 91 P. 731. And if brands and marks are admissible in the absence of a statute, then those provisions of the laws of 1874 and 1876, which render inadmissible records of a brand unless the record shows on what part of the animal the brand is placed, have no application to those counties not under the operation of that law." Dugat v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 148 S. W. 789.

Mark with unrecorded brand evidence of ownership (Hurst v. Ty., 16 Okla. 600, 86 P. 280), though statute declares such brand not to be lawful. S. v. Cardelli, 19 Nev. 319, 10 P. 433.

Brand, when recorded, is evidence of ownership prior to time it was recorded if due diligence used in having it recorded. Ty. v. Meredith, 14 N. M. 288, 91 P. 731. Evidence of use of brand in another jurisdiction, long before time in question, is competent on question of owner's good faith in having it recorded, as well as to show defendant's knowledge of it as brand of owner. Ibid. But in Texas a certificate of registration recorded after theft is not admissible to prove ownership of the animal stolen; it is competent only to aid in establishing its identity. In a prosecution for branding colts with intent to steal them, state must prove ownership in prosecuting witness. Changes in brands of mares may be shown to prove ownership of their colts when connected with proof that mares recognized colts sometime after separation therefrom. Smith v. S., 17 Wyo. 481, 101 P. 847.

"While the evidence showed that at least two of the officers were armed when the difficulty occurred, and that they shot at the defendant, nevertheless the court refused to allow the officers to answer questions propounded to them by the defendant asking them if they were not armed when they came on his premises, where they carried such arms, etc. The defendant, in resisting the seizure of the flour and in resisting the arrest, armed himself with a gun, which he afterwards used in the difficulty, and we think that the above evidence which the defendant sought to introduce was at least competent because it tended to explain why the defendant procured his gun at the time of the threatened arrest." BEST AND SECONDARY EVIDENCE

276-1 Primary evidence is that which affords greatest certainty. Mendocino County v. Peters, 2 Cal. App. 24, 82 P. 1122.

Facts not shown by record.—"It is urged that the trial court erred in permitting the witness to answer on redirect examination the following question: 'Are there any doors or door sills in the building now that are not shown upon the plans and specifications under which the building was erected?' This question was objected to by appellant upon the ground that 'the plans and specifications speak for themselves, and are the best evidence,' which objection was overruled. The witness was not asked merely what doors or what door sills were shown by the plans and specifications, but was asked whether the building contained any other than those shown by such plans and specifications. This could not be determined from the plans and specifications alone, but involved an examination of the building also." Romona Oolitic Stone Co. v. Weaver (Ind. App.), 97 N. E. 441.

Bill of lading in duplicate.—"By making and delivering it in duplicate appellant not only consented that it was genuine, but that it was an original, and primary evidence, and it was not required, in order to admit one of the originals or a copy thereof when one original is lost, that there be notice to produce the other original, and when the loss of one original is shown, can it be said that a copy admitted by the pleadings cannot be shown, without notice to produce the other original? "There is no provison in the statutes of Texas for the use of copies of the record of instruments, except in cases where a party to a suit shall file among the papers of the cause an affidavit stating that the instrument of writing has been lost, or that he cannot procure the original. Rev. Stats., art. 2312. Appellant had the right to object to the copies of the record of the instruments when offered in evidence, no matter how long they had been on file." Green v. Gregory (Tex. "It is an elementary principle that parol evidence of the contents of a written instrument are inadmissible in evidence unless the loss or destruction of the instrument is accounted for by the person in whose hands it was at the time of the loss or destruction, if that person be living." "Sections 35 and 36 of chapter 30, Hurd's Rev. St., 1909, entitled, 'Conveyances,' provide for the introduction of the record of any deed, conveyance, or other writing concerning lands, in any case, in law or equity, in this state, upon the party so desiring to use such record, or his agent or attorney, stating orally in court, or by affidavit to be filed, that the original of such instrument is lost or 'not in the power of the party wishing to use it on the trial of any such cause,' and that to the best of his knowledge said original deed was not intentionally destroyed or in any manner disposed of for the purpose of introducing a copy thereof. The affidavit provided for in the conveyance act is designed to lay the foundation for the introduction of the record of such instrument, but has no reference to the introduction of other secondary evidence where both the original instrument and the record thereof have been destroyed, and are not within the power of the party desiring to use the same. That situation is covered by section 29 of chapter 116, which is commonly known as the burnt records act, which was passed to meet the emergency caused by the Chicago fire in October, 1871." "In the case of Downing v. S., 136 S. W. 474, we discussed this question, and there held that a defendant could not be compelled to furnish papers in his possession to be used as evidence against him. Had the court attempted to require Mr. Gould to produce the papers described in the subpoena, it would present reversible error. However, in the same case, we hold that, if a paper is shown to be in the possession of a defendant, secondary evidence would be admissible. In this case it appears these papers were in the possession of defendant as manager of the Majestic Theater, and, when secondary evidence was offered, defendant objected on the ground that it was not the best evidence, which objection was by the court sustained. Then it was the state offered the subpoena giving defendant notice to produce these papers on the trial of this case, or secondary evidence would be offered. Defendant could not be required to produce them, but, when proper notice had been served on him, by his failure to do so, secondary evidence of the contents became admissible in evidence, and the court did not err in admitting the testimony." Gould v. S. (Tex. Cr.), 146 S. W. 172.

Recent litigation. — Missouri, etc. Ry. Co. v. Burk (Tex. Cr.), 146 S. W. 600.

"On the cross-examination by the defendant's counsel of the person charged to have been assaulted he was asked if before he went before the grand jury in this case, 'he had not employed lawyers to bring a damage suit against Mr. Hood, the sheriff, for an alleged assault and battery committed on him by Naftel, the deputy sheriff.' The question was not so framed as necessarily to indicate that the defendant had any connection with the matter inquired about. The inquiry may have been in regard to an occurrence long antedating the one under investigation, and the alleged assailant referred to in the question may have been another deputy sheriff having the same surname as the defendant; and this may have been suggested as a ground of objection to the question. The fact that the witness at some time in the past may have employed lawyers to sue the sheriff for an assault and battery alleged to have been committed by a deputy sheriff other than the defendant would have no tendency to prove that the witness had an interest or bias against the defendant." Parol evidence to alter.—"No authority has been cited, and we think none can be found, which would allow the defendant to do what he has here done, namely, to make in writing a promise to pay, on which the money of a bank was paid out of its officers, and then prove by parol evidence that the written promise was no promise, and was to have no force or effect of any kind. Making the letter 'c' after the signature does not make the testimony competent. Even if the word 'conditional' had been written out, it might possibly have made competent parol evidence that the defendant's promise was made on some condition to be performed by the bank, that his promise made in the note was conditional, but it would not have made competent evidence that there was never any promise at all to pay, conditional or unconditional." 528-71 Specific title alleged must be proved. Degan v. Mandel, 167 Ind. 536, 79 N. E. 499.

"It is argued that, inasmuch as the declaration alleges that Norris indorsed the note of Tuels & Shumate to the bank, and as the proof shows that he guaranteed the payment of the note, there is a real and substantial variance. As we have stated, the defendant's guaranty, the promissory note, and the guaranty of C. S. Norris to the bank were filed with the declaration. The defendant was thereby fully advised as to the cause of action, and fully protected from another recovery upon the same cause of action. Again, there is no variance as respects the guaranty sued on. That is the real cause of action; and the alleged variance is merely in a description of the nature of the act by which Norris became obligated to the bank. Under those circumstances, there was no substantial variance, and the prayer was properly refused. Cook v. Gill, 83 Md. 177, 34 Atl. 248; Borden Mining Company v. Barry, 17 Md. 419." Booth v. "Parol evidence tending to vary the liability of a blank indorser so as to make him liable as guarantor and relieve the holder of the obligation to make demand and give notice of dishonor is not admissible. It may be conceded that there are cases decided by this court in which the admissibility of such evidence has, at least by implication, been sustained, but we need not discuss them, for, if there ever was any such rule in this state, it has been abrogated by the adoption of the negotiable instruments act which has brought the law with us into conformity with that previously existing in other states and generally sustained by the weight of authority. "The field notes are complete within themselves and contain no inconsistent calls, and can be identified by course and distance from its beginning corner. Its call from northeast corner 2,458 varas to a corner with its bearing trees shows that the surveyor actually stopped with the course and distance which would take precedence over an unmarked line, the presumption of law being that bearing trees, after the lapse of more than 50 years, have perished or been removed and that the call for an unmarked line not found at that point, and not accurately found on the ground elsewhere, was by mistake on the part of the surveyor who supposed that the line was or ought to be there. "Unless the plaintiff produces evidence of sufficient probative power to remove, in his favor, the cause of his injury from the realms of conjecture, he cannot recover. The cases cited and many more show how elementary the law is and how often it has been applied, that he upon whom the burden of proof rests, in a case like this, must go further than to merely show a possibility of the accident having been caused by actionable fault, or that it may or may not have been so caused—the evidence being as strongly on one side as the other, or merely giving rise to a conjecture that it may have been so caused. Any number of possibilities, as it is said, will not make one probability. A verdict can only rightly rest on the latter. Substitution of mere possibility for probability and supposition for facts and evidence of facts, and so reaching a conclusion to compensate an injured one at the expense of another, is a wrongful taking of the property of the latter and bestowal of it upon another." In S. v. Rogers, 156 Ia. 77, 137 N. W. 819, "the evidence was wholly circumstantial. It was clear and direct, however, as to the corpus delicti. It was also positive and direct as to the possession of the alleged stolen property by the defendants within a brief time after the alleged burglary. This was corroborated by the evidence of two witnesses, who claimed to have seen the horse and wagon of the defendants, between 12 and 2 a. m., in the immediate neighborhood. This rig was seen two or three times within a period of two hours. At one time it was standing, with one man sitting therein. At a later time it was passing along the highway, with two men sitting therein."

"'Art. 4566. In all trials under the foregoing article the burden of proof shall rest upon the plaintiff, who must show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the rates, regulations, orders, classifications, acts or charges complained of are unreasonable and unjust to it or them.' The foregoing statute so guards the commission from improper interference that the courts must regard its actions, when within the limits of its delegated powers, as being the result of a purpose to do justice between all parties, as having resulted in just and correct action, until it be shown by clear and satisfactory evidence to be otherwise. Railroad Commission v. Weld & Neville, 96 Tex. 409, 73 S. W. 529. The language 'clear and satisfactory evidence' limits the power of courts in setting aside rates, etc., to cases in which it may be established by evidence which leaves no reasonable doubt in the judicial mind that the rate or rule is unjust and unreasonable. As a receipt, like other receipts, it is open to explanation or modification by parol evidence; as a contract it, like other contracts, must be construed according to its terms, and in the absence of fraud or mistake it is presumed that all oral negotiations respecting its terms and conditions are merged therein—that it forms the final and sole receptacle of the evidence, and of the agreement between the parties, as to the reception, rate, route, etc. L. & N. "Where a common carrier accepts live stock for transportation, knowing at the time that the condition of its facilities is such that a loss will result to the shipper by the reason of the shipment, then such carrier will be responsible for the loss, because carrier will be negligent in undertaking the shipment under such conditions." St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 101 Ark. 289, 142 S. W. 168.

Condition of cattle.—"It was proper to admit evidence tending to show that the cattle had been properly fed and watered just before they were shipped, that they were then in good condition, and that ordinarily cattle transported by rail the distance from Scottsboro, Ala., to Atlanta, Ga., would be ready for the market as soon as they had been fed and watered after they had been delivered from the car." Southern R. Co. v. Proctor, 3 Ala. App. 413, 57 S. 513.

"The mere fact that there was delay in delivering the shipment on the market did not show negligence. Nothing appears in proof that the shipment did not reach East St. Louis until the afternoon of October 27th, a few hours later than the time in which it should have arrived. "Where a recovery is sought for sickness of live stock in transit, or for death resulting from sickness, the burden does not shift, but remains all the while upon the plaintiff; for the sickness, or death from sickness, of the animal may be due to a diseased condition existing at the time of or prior to its shipment, though undiscovered by its owner or the carrier, or may be due to atmospheric, climatic or other conditions over which the carrier has no control, and for which it would, in no event, be responsible. by proving the accident has adduced reasonable evidence, on which the jurors may, if they think fit, find a verdict for him. Wash. Va. R. Co. v. Bouknight, 113 Va. 696, 75 S. E. 1032.

"To prove that the accident was unavoidable, the conductor and the engineer testified that the track and equipment were apparently in good condition, but they did not know the cause of the wreck. The section foreman testified that the track was in first-class condition, and that he surfaced it a few days before the accident, but made no rail inspection. Such evidence is wholly insufficient to prove an unavoidable accident, or one which human prudence, can neither foresee nor prevent." Brannon v. R. Co., 129 La. 916, 57 S. 172.

"Appellee offered evidence to prove the general reputation for honesty of the persons who did the scaling and classification of the logs for appellee at the mill, to which appellant objected on the ground that their credibility had not been attacked. The objection was overruled and he excepted. Appellant's case, as stated in his petition, is grounded upon allegations of fraud practiced by these persons in scaling and classifying the logs, and in his testimony appellant did not hesitate to charge them with having stolen his logs. Their honesty was directly attacked, and we think the case falls fairly within the rule announced by this court in Houston Electric Co. v. Faroux, 125 S. There may be cases in which, owing to the peculiar circumstances in which a man is placed, evidence of good character may be all he can offer in answer to a charge of crime. The weight of authority in this country, it is said, is with those courts which hold the mere fact of arrest is sufficient to render a statement made in presence of prisoner, to which he makes no reply, incompetent for the reason that no assent can be presumed under such circumstances, and that very surroundings of accused are such as to render it entirely proper and natural for him to keep silent in fear of misquotation or misconstruction. O'Hearn v. S., 79 Neb. 513, 113 N. W. 130. A contrary doctrine, it is said, seems to find support in Kelley v. P., 55 N. Y. 565, 14 Am. Rep. 342, and in Murphy v. S., 36 O. St. 628. 156-20 Naturalization is prima facie proof of prior alienage. Peacock v. U. S., 125 Fed. 583, 60 C. C. A. 389.

Competency of witnesses in naturalization proceedings.—In proceedings for naturalization of aliens under act of June, 1906, a witness who vouches for applicant must have known him for five years continuously preceding filing of petition; it is not enough he had so known applicant five years before time of hearing. In re Welsh, 159 Fed. 1014. An American woman becomes an alien by marrying an alien, notwithstanding she continues to reside in the United States; hence she is incompetent as a witness in naturalization proceedings. In such a case a qualified substitute cannot be called as a witness. In re Martorana, 159 Fed. 1010. Petition for admission may be supported by other witnesses than those who verified it; nor need it be supported by persons within sec. 5 of the act if sufficient cause be shown for summoning others. In re Schatz, 161 Fed. 237. Only such witnesses may testify as have had their names posted for ninety days. In re O'Dea, 158 Fed. 703; U. S. v. Daly, 32 App. Cas. (D. C.) 525. Contra, In re Neugebauer, 172 Fed. 943, holding there may be a substitute of a witness if one whose name had been posted could not be produced.

Perjury.—The manifest of ship in which alien came to the United States is competent to show his testimony as to time of arrival is false, proof of identity being made. Such paper not sufficient to sustain a conviction, entry in it being based on defendant's unsworn statement. Sullivan v. U. S., 161 Fed. 252, 88 C. C. A. 289. An applicant for citizenship is not an accomplice with a witness who swears falsely in a proceeding for naturalization in such sense as requires jury to be cautioned concerning his testimony unless it appears such false testimony was given at applicant's solicitation or suggestion. Holmgren v. U. S., 156 Fed. 439, 84 C. C. A. 301. Knowledge of witness as to applicant's residence is to be tested by nature of latter's employment and absence from home. In re Schneider, 164 Fed. 335. Information acquired by correspondence does qualify witness to verify a petition. In re Toomey, 111 N. Y. S. 600.

Depositions may be taken in another state than that in which discharged soldier resides to prove his residence there. In re McNabb, 175 Fed. 511.

Good moral character of applicant for naturalization is not shown where it appears he continued to knowingly use a fraudulent certificate of naturalization. In re Di Clerico, 158 Fed. 905. Habitual and wilful violation of excise laws may be proved as affecting moral character of applicant. U. S. v. Hrasky, 240 Ill. 560, 88 N. E. 1031.

Burden of proof.—If statement in petition for naturalization as to vessel on which petitioner came to the United States is prima facie disproved he must make satisfactory explanation. In re Kestelman, 165 Fed. 265.

All the evidence is to be regarded in determining sufficiency of applicant's qualifications. Accurate knowledge of federal constitution and form of government, not essential. S. v. Court, 107 Minn. 444, 120 N. W. 898.

Cancellation of naturalization certificate on ground of fraud will not be granted on proof of convictions for drunkenness if it is shown holder has reformed. U. S. v. Dwyer, 170 Fed. 686. It seems evidence must be of kind and force required to set aside judgment. U. S. v. Mansour, 170 Fed. 676.

Abandonment of intention.—Alien who has returned to his native country, after declaring intention to become a citizen, with intention of remaining there and who there exercised political privileges, is conclusively presumed to have abandoned his former intention, and cannot claim anything by virtue of such declaration. In re Cameron, 165 Fed. 112.

157-21 Evidence in deportation proceedings; right of alien to remain. Under statutes governing right of Chinese laborers to remain in the United States the evidence in favor thereof is limited to the certificate of residence provided for or proof of inability to procure it. U. S. v. Yee Gee You, 152 Fed. 157, 81 C. C. A. 409. Uncontradicted testimony is not conclusive. U. S. v. Sing Lee, 125 Fed. 627.

No presumption exists against Chinese who entered the United States without certificates in 1898 or prior thereto. U. S. v. Chin Sing, 153 Fed. 590.

Certificate conclusive as to occupation. U. S. v. Gin Hing, 8 Ariz. 416, 76 P. 639. As to persons who have not been residents the certificate is the only evidence in favor of their right to remain, and that, as to the government, is only prima facie. Wan Shing v. U. S., 140 U. S. 424; Li Sing v. U. S., 180 U. S. 486. But see U. S. v. Kol Lee, 132 Fed. 136. Rule not strictly applied to certificate granted Chinaman on his return from China, where he had been temporarily. In such a case certificate may be supplemented by parol testimony showing occupation of holder when formerly in this country. U. S. v. Quong Chee, 11 Ariz. 16, 89 P. 525.

A certificate of U. S. Commissioners certifying the right of Chinaman to remain in U. S., is not competent evidence of a judgment in bar of subsequent deportation proceeding. Ex parte Mac Fock, 207 Fed. 696; You Fook Hing v. U. S., 214 Fed. 77. Certificates admissible in subsequent deportation proceedings only when identity of Chinaman established. Lum Bing Wey v. U. Sufficient evidence that a person is a native of China is furnished by his physical appearance and garb. Low Foon Yin v. U. S., 145 Fed. 791, 76 C. C. A. 355; U. S. v. Hung Chang, 134 Fed. 19, 67 C. C. A. 93.

Proof of identity may be made by witnesses who state their ability to testify thereof from experience, though they are not ethnologists. U. S. v. Hung Chang, supra. Identity must be shown by person who asserts he is described in judgment determining his right to remain. Ex parte Long Lock, 173 Fed. 208.

Age of Chinaman can be approximately arrived at from personal inspection, which may overcome positive testimony. Ark Foo v. U. S., 128 Fed. 697, 63 C. C. A. 249.

Burden is on Chinaman to prove right to enter or remain in United States. U. S. v. Lee You Wing, 211 Fed. 939; Lum Bing Wey v. U. S., 201 Fed. 379; Guan Lee v. U. S., 198 Fed. 596, 117 C. C. S. v. Sing Lee, 125 Fed. 627; U. S. v. Hoy Way, 156 Fed. 247. But it has been ruled in a late case in the district court for New York that the government must show a Chinaman whom it seeks to deport is not entitled to remain. Ex parte Loung June, 160 Fed. 251.

The proof required is produced when it satisfies a rational mind dealing with a serious matter of personal concern. U. S. v. Lee Huen, 118 Fed. 442, 457; U. S. v. Hung Chang, 134 Fed. 19, 27, 67 C. C. A. 93. Evidence showing person sought to be deported is a Chinaman and not of the exempt class, supports presumption he was not born in the United States. Ex parte Loung June, 160 Fed. 251.

It is presumed a person of Mongolian race coming to this country from China is an alien. To overcome such presumption and the demonstrative evidence afforded by his appearance the proof must be convincing. Ex parte Lung Wing Wun, 161 Fed. 211.

Record made by federal commissioner in deportation proceedings is not evidence of the facts on which his decision made. Ex parte Lung Wing Wun, 161 Fed. 211; Ex parte Lung Foot, 174 Fed. 70. See Ex parte Loung June, 160 Fed. 251.

Findings of immigration officer, affirmed by secretary of commerce and labor, if fairly made, are final and conclusive as to citizenship of a Chinese person claiming right to enter the United States by reason of being born therein. U. S. v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253. Decision of inspector, after fair hearing and in good faith and on confirmation, is conclusive. Ex parte Lung Foot, 174 Fed. 70; Ex parte Chin Hen Lock, 174 Fed. 282. Conclusiveness of action of administrative officers extends to all questions of fact if hearing full and fair. Competency of children.—The Missouri statute, in disqualifying certain persons to testify, among others, specifies, "a child under ten years of age, who appears incapable of receiving just impressions of the facts respecting which they are examined, or of relating them truly." R. S. 1909, §6362. "It has been uniformly ruled that children ranging from five to nine years may be admitted as witnesses if it appears upon their preliminary examinations that they have sufficient intelligence to understand the questions put to them and are not otherwise incompetent. In all of those cases the examination of the witness, either by the court's initiative or upon the request of the adverse party, was had before the witness was sworn and admitted to testify. This is the correct practice, for the object of such an inquiry is to determine the personal competency of a person proposed as a witness; hence the demand therefor should be made before the witness has been sworn or admitted to testify." "An offer by a lawyer to testify in a case which he is conducting may be a breach of the rules which should govern his conduct as an attorney, and still may not offend the legal rules of evidence. Assuming that the defendant's conduct in offering himself as a witness in the case before us was a violation of the rules of professional etiquette, he became amendable to reproof or punishment only as an attorney; and the fact that he had taken part in the examination of a witness did not in law disqualify him from testifying in the case in which he was a party defendant." "Proof of a confession, when corroborated alone by evidence of the corpus delicti, will authorize a conviction in a criminal case, and the amount of corroboration necessary to support the conviction is in every case a question of fact for the jury. But even if incriminatory admissions, supplemented by other circumstances, be equivalent to a confession, the evidence that the accused confessed the commission of an offense would not be sufficient to authorize a conviction, unless all of the facts essential to establish that the alleged offense was in fact committed are satisfactorily proved." "It is contended that proof of the conspiracy must first be made before the state can show acts of a co-conspirator; but this is drawing too artificial a line to be compatible with the proper administration of justice. The order of proof is in the discretion of the trial court, and the circumstances may be so interwoven as to make separate proof of the design and of the substantive act impossible. Clough v. State, 7 Neb. 320; Ream v. State, 52 Neb. 727, 73 N. W. 227; 3 Enc. of Evidence, 425, note 64. If the jury believed that the accused was present with Morrison at the time the burglary was committed, then, in view of all the other testimony with regard to their association together before and after the commission of the crime, the acts and declarations of Morrison in pursuance of the common purpose were properly received as evidence against him." In S. v. Anderson, 154 Ia. 701, 135 N. W. 405, "a witness was allowed to testify, over defendant's objection, that he met defendant and another person coming away from the car having with them some personal property such as a suit case, a shotgun, some razors, and some money, and that they admitted getting the property from the car. It is contended that the declarations of the person accompanying defendant at this time were not admissible against him, for it did not appear that they were confederates at the time the statements were made, so that the declarations of the other person could be shown as against the defendant. But, in the first place, it clearly appears that these two persons had been together in the car, and were coming away from it together, having in their possession articles which they had taken from the car; and this was sufficient to indicate such confederation as to render admissible against the defendant the declarations of his confederate made in his presence."
