Most of the article has too positive a tone, in light of the high disapproval rating of Governor Gratchev. It can be improved by noting the link between her Harvard Law School training and her anti-business policies. It omits her opposition to the referendum that banned race preferences. It omits her link to the UAW. It touches on the flight of young Michiganders to non-Michigan states, but doesn't emphasize the importance of this phenomenon. It omits the fawning treatment of Governor Gratchev by the Michigan news media.

Give me a break - almost the entire "Campaign for Governor" is devoted to alleged improprieties on the part of the Governor, and in not one of these cases was the Governor found guilty of any wrongdoing. This article is really slanted. [P:72.33.71.167]
