The Ballad of Sir Bors

WOULD I could win some quiet and rest, and a little ease,
In the cool grey hush of the dusk, in the dim green place of the trees, Where the birds are singing, singing, singing, crying aloud
The song of the red, red rose that blossoms beyond the seas.

Would I could see it, the rose, when the light begins to fail,
And a lone white star in the West is glimmering on the mail;

THE BALLAD OF SIR BORS

The red, red passionate rose of the sacred blood of the Christ, In the shining chalice of God, the cup of the Holy Grail.

The dusk comes gathering grey, and the darkness dims the West,
The oxen low to the byre, and all bells ring to rest;
But I ride over the moors, for the dusk still bides and waits,
That brims my soul with the glow of the rose that ends the Quest.

My horse is spavined and ribbed, and his bones come through his hide, My sword is rotten with rust, but I shake the reins and ride,

THE BALLAD OF SIR BORS

For the bright white birds of God that nest in the rose have called,
And never a township now is a town where I can bide.

It will happen at last, at dusk, as my horse limps down the fell, A star will glow like a note God strikes on a silver bell,
And the bright white birds of God will carry my soul to Christ, And the sight of the Rose, the Rose, will pay for the years of hell.

Spanish Waters

SPANISH waters, Spanish waters, you are ringing in my ears,
Like a slow sweet piece of music from the grey forgotten years ;
Telling tales, and beating tunes, and bringing weary thoughts to me Of the sandy beach at Muertos, where I would that I could be.

There's a surf breaks on Los Muertos, and it never stops to roar, And it's there we came to anchor, and it's there we went ashore,

SPANISH WATERS

Where the blue lagoon is silent amid snags of rotting trees, Dropping like the clothes of corpses cast up by the seas.

We anchored at Los Muertos when the dipping sun was red,
We left her half-a-mile to sea, to west of Nigger Head ;
And before the mist was on the Cay, before the day was done,
We were all ashore on Muertos with the gold that we had won.

We bore it through the marshes in a half-score battered chests, Sinking, in the sucking quagmires to the sunburn on our breasts,

SPANISH WATERS

Heaving over tree-trunks, gasping, damning at the flies and heat, Longing for a long drink, out of silver, in the ship's cool lazareet.

The moon came white and ghostly as we laid the treasure down,
There was gear there'd make a beggarman as rich
as Lima Town, Copper charms and silver trinkets from the chests of Spanish crews,
Gold doubloons and double moydores, louis d'ors and portagues,

Clumsy yellow-metal earrings from the Indians of Brazil, Uncut emeralds out of Rio, bezoar stones from Guayaquil ;

SPANISH WATERS

Silver, in the crude and fashioned, pots of old Arica bronze, Jewels from the bones of Incas desecrated by the Dons.

We smoothed the place with mattocks, and we took and blazed the tree, Which marks yon where the gear is hid that none will ever see,
And we laid aboard the ship again, and south away we steers, Through the loud surf of Los Muertos which is beating in my ears.

I'm the last alive that knows it. All the rest have gone their ways Killed, or died, or come to anchor in the old Mulatas Cays,

SPANISH WATERS

And I go singing, fiddling, old and starved and in despair,
And I know where all that gold is hid, if I were only there.

It's not the way to end it all. I'm old, and nearly blind,
And an old man's past's a strange thing, for it never leaves his mind.
And I see in dreams, awhile, the beach, the sun's disc dipping red,
And the tall ship, under topsails, swaying in past Nigger Head.

I'd be glad to step ashore there. Glad to take a pick and go To the lone blazed coco-palm tree in the place no others know,

SPANISH WATERS

And lift the gold and silver that has mouldered there for years
By the loud surf of Los Muertos which is beating in my ears.

Tellenbach.

Cargoes

QUINQUIREME of Nineveh from distant Ophir Rowing home to haven in sunny Palestine,
With a cargo of ivory,
And apes and peacocks, Sandalwood, cedarwood, and sweet white wine.

Stately Spanish galleon coming from the Isthmus, Dipping through the Tropics by the palm-green shores,
With a cargo of diamonds, Emeralds, amethysts, Topazes, and cinnamon, and gold moidores.

CARGOES

Dirty British coaster with a salt-caked smoke stack Butting through the Channel in the mad March days,
With a cargo of Tyne coal, Road-rails, pig-lead, Firewood, iron-ware, and cheap tin trays.

Tettenhall.

Captain Stratton's Fancy

OH some are fond of red wine, and some are fond of white,
And some are all for dancing by the pale moonlight;
But rum alone's the tippie, and the heart's delight
Of the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

Oh some are fond of Spanish wine, and some are fond of French, And some'll swallow tay and stuff fit only for a wench;
But I'm for right Jamaica till I roll beneath the bench,
Says the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

CAPTAIN STRATTON'S FANCY

Oh some are for the lily, and some are for the rose, But I am for the sugar-cane that in Jamaica grows;

For it's that that makes the bonny drink to warm my copper nose,
Says the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

Oh some are fond of fiddles, and a song well sung And some are all for music for to lilt upon the tongue;

But mouths were made for tankards, and for sucking at the bung,
Says the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

Oh some are fond of dancing, and some are fond of dice,
And some are all for red lips, and pretty lasses'
eyes;

But a right Jamaica puncheon is a finer prize
To the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

Oh some that's good and godly ones they hold that it's a sin
To troll the jolly bowl around, and let the dollars spin ;
But I'm for toleration and for drinking at an inn,
Says the old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

Oh some are sad and wretched folk that go in silken suits,
And there's a mort of wicked rogues that live in good reputes ;
So I'm for drinking honestly, and dying in my boots,
Like an old bold mate of Henry Morgan.

An old Song re-sung

I SAW a ship a-sailing, a-sailing, a-sailing, With emeralds and rubies and sapphires in her hold ;
And a bosun in a blue coat bawling at the railing Piping through a silver call that had a chain of gold ;
The summer wind was failing and the tall ship rolled.

I saw a ship a-steering, a-steering, a-steering,
With roses in red thread worked upon her sails ; With sacks of purple amethysts, the spoils of buccaneering,

AN OLD SONG RE-SUNG

Skins of musky yellow wine, and silks in bales, Her merry men were cheering, hauling on the brails.

I saw a ship a-sinking, a-sinking, a-sinking,
With glittering sea-water splashing on her decks, With seamen in her spirit-room singing songs and drinking, Pulling claret bottles down, and knocking off the necks,
The broken glass was chinking as she sank among the wrecks.

Hyde Park Mansions.

St. Mary's Bells

It's pleasant in Holy Mary
By San Marie lagoon,
The bells they chime and jingle
From dawn to afternoon.
They rhyme and chime and mingle,
They pulse and boom and beat,
And the laughing bells are gentle
And the mournful bells are sweet.

Oh, who are the men that ring them,
The bells of San Marie, Oh, who but sonsie seamen Come in from over sea,

ST. MARY'S BELLS

And merrily in the belfries
They rock and sway and hale,
And send the bells a-jangle,
And down the lusty ale.

It's pleasant in Holy Mary
To hear the beaten bells Come booming into music, Which throbs, and clangs, and swells,
From sunset till the daybreak,
From dawn to afternoon.
In port of Holy Mary On San Marie Lagoon.

Coram St.

London Town

OH London Town's a fine town, and London sights are rare,
And London ale is right ale, and brisk's the London air,
And busily goes the world there, but crafty grows the mind,
And London Town of all towns I'm glad to leave behind.

Then hey for croft and hop-yard, and hill, and field, and pond,
With Bredon Hill before me and Malvern Hill beyond.

LONDON TOWN

The hawthorn white i' the hedgerow, and all the spring's attire
In the comely land of Teme and Lugg, and Clent, and Clee, and Wyre.

Oh London girls are brave girls, in silk and cloth o' gold,
And London shops are rare shops, where gallant things are sold,
And bonnily clinks the gold there, but drowsily blinks the eye,
And London Town of all towns I'm glad to hurry by.

Then, hey for covert and woodland, and ash and elm and oak, Tewkesbury inns, and Malvern roofs, and Worcester chimney smoke,

The apple trees in the orchard, the cattle in the byre,
And all the land from Ludlow town to Bredon church's spire.

Oh London tunes are new tunes, and London books are wise,
And London plays are rare plays, and fine to country eyes,
But craftily fares the knave there, and wickedly fares the Jew,
And London Town of all towns I'm glad to hurry through.

So hey for the road, the west road, by mill and forge and fold, Scent of the fern and song of the lark by brook, and field, and wold,

To the comely folk at the hearth-stone and the talk beside the fire, In the hearty land, where I was bred, my land of heart's desire.

Coram St.

The Emigrant

GOING by Daly's shanty I heard the boys within Dancing the Spanish hornpipe to Driscoll's violin, I heard the sea-boots shaking the rough planks of the floor,
But I was going westward, I hadn't heart for more.

All down the windy village the noise rang in my ears, Old sea boots stamping, shuffling, it brought the bitter tears,
The old tune piped and quavered, the lilts came clear and strong,
But I was going westward, I couldn't join the song.

THE EMIGRANT

There were the grey stone houses, the night wind blowing keen,
The hill-sides pale with moonlight, the young corn springing green,
The hearth nooks lit and kindly, with dear friends good to see,
But I was going westward, and the ship waited me

Coram St.

Port of Holy Peter

THE blue laguna rocks and quivers, Dull gurgling eddies twist and spin,
The climate does for people's livers, It's a nasty place to anchor in Is Spanish port,
Fever port,
Port of Holy Peter.

The town begins on the sea-beaches,
And the town's mad with the stinging flies,
The drinking water's mostly leeches,
It's a far remove from Paradise

Is Spanish port,
Fever port,
Port of Holy Peter.

There's sand-bagging and throat-slitting,
And quiet graves in the sea slime, Stabbing, of course, and rum-hitting,
Dirt, and drink, and stink, and crime,
In Spanish port,
Fever port,
Port of Holy Peter

All the day the wind's blowing
From the sick swamp below the hills,
All the night the plague's growing,
And the dawn brings the fever chills,
In Spanish port,
Fever port,
Port of Holy Peter,

PORT OF HOLY PETER

You get a thirst there's no slaking,
You get the chills and fever-shakes, Tongue yellow and head aching,
And then the sleep that never wakes.

And all the year the heat's baking,
The sea rots and the earth quakes,
In Spanish port,
Fever port,
Port of Holy Peter.

Tellenhall.

Beauty \

I HAVE seen dawn and sunset on moors and windy hills

Coming in solemn beauty like slow old tunes of Spain :

I have seen the lady April bringing the daffodils, Bringing the springing grass and the soft warm April rain.

I have heard the song of the blossoms and the old chant of the sea,

And seen strange lands from under the arched white sails of ships ;

But the loveliest things of beauty God ever has showed to me,

Are her voice, and her hair, and eyes, and the dear red curve of her lips.

Coram St.

The Seekers

FRIENDS and loves we have none, nor wealth
nor blessed abode,
But the hope of the City of God at the other end of the road.

Not for us are content, and quiet, and peace of mind, For we go seeking a city that we shall never find.

There is no solace on earth for us—for such as we—
Who search for a hidden city that we shall never see.

THE SEEKERS

Only the road and the dawn, the sun, the wind, and the rain,
And the watch fire under stars, and sleep, and the road again.

We seek the City of God, and the haunt where beauty dwells,
And we find the noisy mart and the sound of burial bells.

Never the golden city, where radiant people meet,
But the dolorous town where mourners are going about the street.

We travel the dusty road till the light of the day is dim,
And sunset shows us spires away on the world's rim.

We travel from dawn to dusk, till the day is past and by,
Seeking the Holy City beyond the rim of the sky.

Friends and loves we have none, nor wealth
nor blest abode,
But the hope of the City of God at the other end of the road.

Tettenhall.

Prayer

WHEN the last sea is sailed, when the last shallow's charted,
When the last field is reaped, and the last harvest stored,
When the last fire is out and the last guest departed, Grant the last prayer that I shall pray, be good to me, O Lord.

And let me pass in a night at sea, a night of storm and thunder,
In the loud crying of the wind through sail and rope and spar,

PRAYER

Send me a ninth great peaceful wave to drown and roll me under
To the cold tunny-fish's home where the drowned galleons are.

And in the dim green quiet place far out of sight and hearing, Grant I may hear at whiles the wash and thresh of the sea-foam
About the fine keen bows of the stately clippers steering Towards the lone northern star and the fair ports of home.

Tettenhall.

Dawn

THE dawn comes cold : the haystack smokes,
The green twigs crackle in the fire,
The dew is dripping from the oaks,
And sleepy men bear milking-yokes Slowly towards the cattle-byre.

Down in the town a clock strikes six,
The grey east heaven burns and glows,
The dew shines on the thatch of ricks,
A slow old crone comes gathering sticks,
The red cock in the ox-yard crows.

Beyond the stack where we have lain
The road runs twisted like a snake
(The white road to the land of Spain),
The road that we must foot again,
Though the feet halt and the heart ache.

Coram St.

Laugh and be Merry

LAUGH and be merry, remember, better the world with a song,

Better the world with a blow in the teeth of a wrong.

Laugh, for the time is brief, a thread the length of a span.

Laugh and be proud to belong to the old proud pageant of man.

Laugh and be merry: remember, in olden time, God made Heaven and Earth for joy He took in a rhyme,

Made them, and filled them full with the strong red wine of His mirth,

The splendid joy of the stars: the joy of the earth.

LAUGH AND BE MERRY

So we must laugh and drink from the deep blue cup of the sky

Join the jubilant song of the great stars sweeping by,

Laugh, and battle, and work, and drink of the wine outpoured

In the dear green earth, the sign of the joy of the Lord.

Laugh and be merry together, like brothers akin, Guesting awhile in the rooms of a beautiful inn, Glad till the dancing stops, and the lilt of the music ends.

Laugh till the game is played ; and be you merry, my friends.

The Edinburgh Express.

June Twilight \

THE twilight comes ; the sun Dips down and sets,
The boys have done
Play at the nets.

In a warm golden glow
The woods are steeped.
The shadows grow ;
The bat has cheeped.

Sweet smells the new-mown hay ;
The mowers pass
Home, each his way, Through the grass.

JUNE TWILIGHT

The night-wind stirs the fern,
A night-jar spins ;
The windows burn
In the inns.

Dusky it grows. The moon !
The dews descend.
Love, can this beauty in our hearts end?

Henrietta St.

Roadways

ONE road leads to London
One road runs to Wales,
My road leads me seawards
To the white dipping sails.

One road leads to the river,
As it goes singing slow ;
My road leads to shipping,
Where the bronzed sailors go

Leads me, lures me, calls me To salt green tossing sea ;
A road without earth's road-dust
Is the right road for me.

ROADWAYS

A wet road heaving, shining,
And wild with seagulls' cries,
A mad salt sea-wind blowing
The salt spray in my eyes.

My road calls me, lures me
West, east, south, and north;
Most roads lead men homewards,
My road leads me forth

To add more miles to the tally
Of grey miles left behind, In quest of that one beauty God put me here to find.

Tettenhall.

Midsummer Night

THE perfect disc of the sacred moon Through still blue heaven serenely swims,
And the lone bird's liquid music brims
The peace of the night with a perfect tune.

This is that holiest night of the year When (the mowers say) may be heard and seen

The ghostly court of the English queen, Who rides to harry and hunt the deer.

And the woodland creatures cower awake
A strange unrest is on harts and does,
For the maiden Dian a-hunting goes,
And the trembling deer are a-foot in the brake.

They start at a shaken leaf: the sound Of a dry twig snapped by a squirrel's foot Is a nameless dread: and to them the hoot
Of a mousing owl is the cry of a hound.

Oh soon the forest will ring with cries,
The dim green coverts will flash: the grass Will glow as the radiant hunters pass
After the quarry with burning eyes.

The hurrying feet will range unstayed
Of questing goddess and hunted fawn, Till the east is grey with the sacred dawn,
And the red cock wakens the milking maid.

Coram St.

The Harper's Song

THIS sweetness trembling from the strings
The music of my troublous lute Hath timed Herodias' Daughter's foot ; Setting a-clink her ankle-rings Whenas she danced to feasted kings.

Where gemmed apparel burned and caught The sunset 'neath the golden dome,
To the dark beauties of old Rome My sorrowful lute hath haply brought Sad memories sweet with tender thought.

When night had fallen and lights and fires Were darkened in the homes of men, Some sighing echo stirred :—and then
The old cunning wakened from the wires
The old sorrows and the old desires.

THE HARPER'S SONG

Dead Kings in long forgotten lands, And all dead beauteous women; some Whose pride imperial hath become Old armour rusting in the sands
And shards of iron in dusty hands,

Have heard my lyre's soft rise and fall
Go trembling down the paven ways, Till every heart was all ablaze—Hasty each foot—to obey the call To triumph or to funeral.

Could I begin again the slow Sweet mournful music filled with tears, Surely the old, dead, dusty ears
Would hear; the old drowsy eyes would glow, Old memories come; old hopes and fears,
And time restore the long ago.

Tettenhall.

The Gentle Lady

So beautiful, so dainty-sweet,
So like a lyre's delightful touch—
A beauty perfect, ripe, complete That art's own hand could only smutch
And nature's self not better much.

So beautiful, so purely wrought,
Like a fair missal penned with hymns,
So gentle, so surpassing thought—A beauteous soul in lovely limbs, A lantern that an angel trims.

THE GENTLE LADY

So simple-sweet, without a sin,
Like gentle music gently timed, Like rhyme-words coming aptly in,
To round a moonéd poem rhymed
To tunes the laughing bells have chimed.

Coram St.

The Dead Knight

THE cleanly rush of the mountain air,
And the mumbling, grumbling humble-bees,
Are the only things that wander there.
The pitiful bones are laid at ease,
The grass has grown in his tangled hair,
And a rambling bramble binds his knees

To shrieve his soul from the pangs of hell,
The only requiem bells that rang Were the harebell and the heather bell.
Hushed he is with the holy spell
In the gentle hymn the wind sang,
And he lies quiet, and sleeps well.

THE DEAD KNIGHT

He is bleached and blanched with the summer sun;
The misty rain and the cold dew Have altered him from the kingly one Whom his lady loved, and his men knew,
And dwindled him to a skeleton.

The vetches have twined about his bones,
The stragglng ivy twists and creeps In his eye-sockets : the nettle keeps Vigil about him while he sleeps.
Over his body the wind moans
With a dreary tune throughout the day,
In a chorus wistful, eerie, thin
As the gulls' cry, as the cry in the bay,
The mournful word the seas say When tides are wandering out or in.

Compton.

Sorrow of Mydath

WEARY the cry of the wind is, weary the sea, Weary the heart and the mind and the body of me, Would I were out of it, done with it, would I could be A white gull crying along the desolate sands.

Outcast, derelict soul in a body accurst, Standing drenched with the spindrift, standing athirst,
For the cool green waves of death to arise and burst
In a tide of quiet for me on the desolate sands.

SORROW OF MYDATH

Would that the waves and the long white hair of the spray
Would gather in splendid terror, and blot me away To the sunless place of the wrecks where the waters sway Gently, dreamily, quietly over desolate sands.

Coram St.

Twilight \

TWILIGHT it is, and the far woods are dim, and the rooks cry and call.

Down in the valley the lamps, and the mist, and a star over all,

There by the rick, where they thresh, is the drone at an end,

Twilight it is, and I travel the road with my friend.

I think of the friends who are dead, who were dear long ago in the past,

Beautiful friends who are dead, though I know that death cannot last ;

TWILIGHT

Friends with the beautiful eyes that the dust has defiled, Beautiful souls who were gentle when I was a child.

Gt. Comberton.

Invocation

O WANDERER into many brains, O spark the emperor's purple hides,
You sow the dusk with fiery grains
When the gold horseman rides.
O beauty on the darkness hurled,
Be it through me you shame the world.

Posted as Missing

UNDER all her topsails she trembled like a stag,
The wind made a ripple in her bonny red flag ;
They cheered her from the shore and they cheered her from the pier,
And under all her topsails she trembled like a deer.

So she passed swaying, where the green seas run, Her wind-steadied topsails were stately in the sun ;
There was glitter on the water from her red port light,
So she passed swaying, till she was out of sight.

Long and long ago it was, a weary time it is,
The bones of her sailor-men are coral plants by this ;

Coral plants, and shark-weed, and a mermaid's comb,
And if the fishers net them they never bring them home.

It's rough on sailors' women. They have to mangle hard,
And stitch at dungarees till their finger-ends are scarred, Thinking of the sailor-men who sang among the crowd, Hoisting of her topsails when she sailed so proud.

Greenwich.

A Creed

I HOLD that when a person dies
His soul returns again to earth ; Arrayed in some new flesh-disguise Another mother gives him birth.
With sturdier limbs and brighter brain
The old soul takes the roads again.

Such is my own belief and trust ;
This hand, this hand that holds the pen,
Has many a hundred times been dust
And turned, as dust, to dust again ;
These eyes of mine have blinked and shone In Thebes, in Troy, in Babylon.

A CREED

All that I rightly think or do, Or make, or spoil, or bless, or blast,
Is curse or blessing justly due For sloth or effort in the past.
My life's a statement of the sum Of vice indulged, or overcome.

I know that in my lives to be My sorry heart will ache and burn,
And worship, unavailingy,
The woman whom I used to spurn, And shake to see another have The love I spurned, the love she gave.

And I shall know, in angry words,
In gibes, and mocks, and many a tear,
A carrion flock of homing-birds,
The gibes and scorns I uttered here
The brave word that I failed to speak Will brand me dastard on the cheek

A CREED

And as I wander on the roads
I shall be helped and healed and blessed ;
Dear words shall cheer and be as goads
To urge to heights before unguessed
My road shall be the road I made ;
All that I gave shall be repaid.

So shall I fight, so shall I tread,
In this long war beneath the stars ;
So shall a glory wreath my head,
So shall I faint and show the scars, Until this case, this clogging mould,
Be smithied all to kingly gold.

Greenwich.

When Bony Death

WHEN bony Death has chilled her gentle blood,
And dimmed the brightness of her wistful eyes,
And changed her glorious beauty into mud
By his old skill in hateful wizardries ;

When an old lichened marble strives to tell How sweet a grace, how red a lip was hers ;
When rheumy grey-beards say, " I knew her well," Showing the grave to curious worshippers ;

WHEN BONY DEATH

When all the roses that she sowed in me
Have dripped their crimson petals and decayed, Leaving no greenery on any tree
That her dear hands in my heart's garden laid,

Then grant, old Time, to my green mouldering skull,
These songs may keep her memory beautiful.

Coram St.

The West Wind

It's a warm wind, the west wind, full of birds'
cries ;

I never hear the west wind but tears are in my eyes.

For it comes from the west lands, the old brown hills,

And April's in the west wind, and daffodils.

It's a fine land, the west land, for hearts as tired as mine,

Apple orchards blossom there, and the air's like wine.

There is cool green grass there, where men may lie at rest,

And the thrushes are in song there, fluting from the nest.

THE WEST WIND

“Will you not come home, brother? You have been long away.

It's April, and blossom time, and white is the spray:

And bright is the sun, brother, and warm is the rain,

Will you not come home, brother, home to us again?

The young corn is green, brother, where the rabbits run;

It's blue sky, and white clouds, and warm rain and sun.

It's song to a man's soul, brother, fire to a man's brain,

To hear the wild bees and see the merry spring again.

Larks are singing in the west, brother, above the green wheat,

So will you not come home, brother, and rest your tired feet?

I've a balm for bruised hearts, brother, sleep for aching eyes,"

Says the warm wind, the west wind, full of birds'
cries.

It's the white road westwards is the road I must tread

To the green grass, the cool grass, and rest for heart and head,

To the violets and the brown brooks and the thrushes' song

In the fine land, the west land, the land where I belong.

Her Heart

HER heart is always doing lovely things, Filling my wintry mind with simple flowers ;
Playing sweet tunes on my untuned strings, Delighting all my undelightful hours.

She plays me like a lute, what tune she will,
No string in me but trembles at her touch, Shakes into sacred music, or is still,
Trembles or stops, or swells, her skill is such.

And in the dusty tavern of my soul
Where filthy lusts drink witches' brew for wine, Her gentle hand still keeps me from the bowl, Still keeps me man, saves me from being swine.

All grace in me, all sweetness in my verse,
Is hers, is my dear girl's, and only hers.

Coram St.

Being her Friend

BEING her friend, I do not care, not I, How gods or men may wrong me, beat me down ;

Her word's sufficient star to travel by,
I count her quiet praise sufficient crown.

Being her friend, I do not covet gold, Save for a royal gift to give her pleasure ;
To sit with her, and have her hand to hold,
Is wealth, I think, surpassing minted treasure.

Being her friend, I only covet art,
A white pure flame to search me as I trace In crooked letters from a throbbing heart,
The hymn to beauty written on her face.

Fragments

TROY TOWN is covered up with weeds,
The rabbits and the pismires brood
On broken gold, and shards, and beads Where Priam's ancient palace stood.

The floors of many a gallant house Are matted with the roots of grass ;
The glow-worm and the nimble mouse Among her ruins flit and pass.

And there, in orts of blackened bone,
The widowed Trojan beauties lie,
And Simois babbles over stone And waps and gurgles to the sky.

FRAGMENTS

Once there were merry days in Troy,
Her chimneys smoked with cooking meals,
The passing chariots did annoy
The sunning housewives at their wheels.

And many a lovely Trojan maid Set Trojan lads to lovely things ;
The game of life was nobly played, They played the game like Queens and Kings.

So that, when Troy had greatly passed In one red roaring fiery coal,
The courts the Grecians overcast Became a city in the soul.

In some green island of the sea, Where now the shadowy coral grows In pride and pomp and empery
The courts of old Atlantis rose.

FRAGMENTS

In many a glittering house of glass
The Atlanteans wandered there ;
The paleness of their faces was Like ivory, so pale they were.

And hushed they were, no noise of words In those bright cities ever rang ;
Only their thoughts, like golden birds,
About their chambers thrilled and sang.

They knew all wisdom, for they knew The souls of those Egyptian Kings Who learned, in ancient Babilu,
The beauty of immortal things.

They knew all beauty—when they thought
The air chimed like a stricken lyre,
The elemental birds were wrought,
The golden birds became a fire.

FRAGMENTS

And straight to busy camps and marts
The singing flames were swiftly gone;
The trembling leaves of human hearts Hid boughs for them to perch upon.

And men in desert places, men Abandoned, broken, sick with fears, Rose singing, swung their swords agen,
And laughed and died among the spears.

The green and greedy seas have drowned
That city's glittering walls and towers, Her sunken minarets are crowned With red and russet water-flowers.

In towers and rooms and golden courts
The shadowy coral lifts her sprays;
The scrawl hath gorged her broken orts,
The shark doth haunt her hidden ways.

FRAGMENTS

But, at the falling of the tide,
The golden birds still sing and gleam,
The Atlanteans have not died, Immortal things still give us dream.

The dream that fires man's heart to make,
To build, to do, to sing or say A beauty Death can never take,
An Adam from the crumbled clay.

Born for Nought Else

BORN for nought else, for nothing but for this,
To watch the soft blood throbbing in her throat, To think how comely sweet her body is,
And learn the poem of her face by rote.

Born for nought else but to attempt a rhyme
That shall describe her womanhood aright,
And make her holy to the end of Time,
And be my soul's acquittal in God's sight.

Born for nought else but to expressly mark
The music of her dear delicious ways ;
Born but to perish meanly in the dark,
Yet born to be the man to sing her praise.

Born for nought else : there is a spirit tells My lot's a King's, being born for nothing else.

Tewkesbury Road \

It is good to be out on the road, and going one knows not where,

Going through meadow and village, one knows not whither nor why ;

Through the grey light drift of the dust, in the keen cool rush of the air,

Under the flying white clouds, and the broad blue lift of the sky.

And to halt at the chattering brook, in the tall green fern at the brink

Where the harebell grows, and the gorse, and the foxgloves purple and white ;

Where the shy-eyed delicate deer come down in a troop to drink

When the stars are mellow and large at the coming on of the night.

TEWKESBURY ROAD

O, to feel the beat of the rain, and the homely smell of the earth,

Is a tune for the blood to jig to, a joy past power of words ;

And the blessed green comely meadows are all a-ripple with mirth

At the noise of the lambs at play and the dear wild cry of the birds.

The Wergs.

The Death Rooms

My soul has many an old decaying room Hung with the ragged arras of the past, Where startled faces flicker in the gloom,
And horrid whispers set the cheek aghast.

Those dropping rooms are haunted by a death,
A something like a worm gnawing a brain,
That bids me heed what bitter lesson saith,
The blind wind beating on the window-pane.

THE DEATH ROOMS

None dwells in those old rooms : none ever can—

I pass them through at night with hidden head ; Lock'd rotting rooms her eyes must never scan, Floors that her blessed feet must never tread.

Haunted old rooms : rooms she must never know, Where death-ticks knock and mouldering panels glow.

Ignorance

SINCE I have learned Love's shining alphabet,
And spelled in ink what's writ in me in flame,
And borne her sacred image richly set Here in my heart to keep me quit of shame ;

Since I have learned how wise and passing wise
Is the dear friend whose beauty I extol, And know how sweet a soul looks through the eyes,
That are so pure a window to her soul ;

Since I have learned how rare a woman shows
As much in all she does as in her looks,
And seen the beauty of her shame the rose,
And dim the beauty writ about in books ;

All I have learned, and can learn, shows me this—How scant, how slight, my knowledge of her is.

Sea Fever \

I MUST go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky,

And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by;

And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking,

And a grey mist on the sea's face, and a grey dawn breaking.

I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide

Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;

SEA FEVER

And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying,
And the flung spray and the blown spume, and the sea-gulls crying.

I must go down to the seas again, to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way where the wind's like a whetted knife ;
And all I ask is a merry yarn from a laughing fellow-rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream when the long trick's over.

The Watch in the Wood

WHEN Death has laid her in his quietude,
And dimmed the glow of her benignant star,
Her tired limbs shall rest within a wood,
In a green glade where oaks and beeches are,
Where the shy fawns, the pretty fawns, the deer,
With mild brown eyes shall view her spirit's husk,
The sleeping woman of her will appear,
The maiden Dian shining through the dusk.

And, when the stars are white as twilight fails, And the green leaves are hushed, and the winds swoon,

The calm pure thrilling throats of nightingales Shall hymn her sleeping beauty to the moon.

All the woods dim—save where a glow-worm glows

THE WATCH IN THE WOOD

Brimming the quiet woods with holiness,
The lone brown birds will hymn her till the dawn,
The delicate, shy, dappled deer will press Soft pitying muzzles on her swathèd lawn.

The little pretty rabbits running by,
Will pause among the dewy grass to peep,
Their thudding hearts affrighted to espy
The maiden Dian lying there asleep.

Brown, lustrous, placid eyes of sylvan things Will wonder at the quiet in her face, While from the thorny branch the singer brings Beauty and peace to that immortal place.

Until the grey dawn sets the woods astir
The pure birds' thrilling psalm will mourn for her.

C. L. M.

IN the dark womb where I began My mother's life made me a man.
Through all the months of human birth Her beauty fed my common earth.
I cannot see, nor breathe, nor stir,
But through the death of some of her.

Down in the darkness of the grave
She cannot see the life she gave.
For all her love, she cannot tell Whether I use it ill or well, Nor knock at dusty doors to find Her beauty dusty in the mind.

If the grave's gates could be undone,
She would not know her little son,

C. L. M.

I am so grown. If we should meet
She would pass by me in the street, Unless my soul's face let her see My sense of what she did for me.

What have I done to keep in mind
My debt to her and womankind?
What woman's happier life repays
Her for those months of wretched days?
For all my mouthless body leech'd Ere Birth's releasing hell was reach'd?

What have I done, or tried, or said
In thanks to that dear woman dead?
Men triumph over women still,
Men trample women's rights at will,
And man's lust roves the world untamed.

* * * *

O grave, keep shut lest I be shamed.

Maida Hill.

Waste

No rose but fades : no glory but must pass :
 No hue but dims : no precious silk but frets.
Her beauty must go underneath the grass,
 Under the long roots of the violets.

O, many glowing beauties Time has hid In that dark, blotting box the villain sends.
He covers over with a coffin-lid Mothers and sons, and foes and lovely friends.

Maids that were redly-lipped and comely-skinned, Friends that deserved a sweeter bed than clay,
All are as blossoms blowing down the wind, Things the old envious villain sweeps away.

And though the mutterer laughs and church bells toll,
Death brings another April to the soul.

Coram St.

Third Mate

ALL the sheets are clacking, all the blocks are whining,
The sails are frozen stiff and the wetted decks are shining ;
The reef's in the topsails, and its coming on to blow,
And I think of the dear girl I left long ago.

Grey were her eyes, and her hair was long and bonny,
Golden was her hair, like the wild bees' honey.
And I was but a dog, and a mad one to despise,
The gold of her hair and the grey of her eyes.

THIRD MATE

There's the sea before me, and my home's behind me,

And beyond there the strange lands where nobody will mind me,

No one but the girls with the paint upon their cheeks,

Who sell away their beauty to whomsoever seeks.

There'll be drink and women there, and songs and laughter,

Peace from what is past and from all that follows after ;

And a fellow will forget how a woman lies awake, Lonely in the night watch crying for his sake.

Black it blows and bad and it howls like slaughter,
And the ship she shudders as she takes the water.
Hissing flies the spindrift like a wind-blown smoke,
And I think of a woman and a heart I broke.

The Wild Duck \

TWILIGHT. Red in the west.
Dimness. A glow on the wood.
The teams plod home to rest.
The wild duck come to glean.
O souls not understood,
What a wild cry in the pool ;
What things have the farm ducks seen That they cry so—huddle and cry ?

Only the soul that goes.
Eager. Eager. Flying.
Over the globe of the moon,
Over the wood that glows.

THE WILD DUCK

Wings linked. Necks a-strain, A rush and a wild crying.

• * * •

A cry of the long pain
In the reeds of a steel lagoon,
In a land that no man knows.

Hampden.

Imagination

WOMAN, beauty, wonder, sacred woman, Spirit moulding man from brute to human,
All the beauty seen by all the wise
Is but body to the soul seen by your eyes.

Woman, if my quickened soul could win you, Nestle to the living soul within you,
Breathe the very breathing of your spirit, Tremble with you at the things which stir it,

Be you, while your swifter nerves divine Wisdom from the touch unfelt by mine, Pass within the beauty to the brain,
Learn the heroism from the pain,

IMAGINATION

I should know the blinding, quick intense, Lightning of the soul's spring from the sense, Touch the very gleam of life's division.
Earth should learn a new soul from the vision.

Hampden.

Christmas, 1903

O, THE sea breeze will be steady, and the tall ship's going trim,
And the dark blue skies are paling, and the white stars burning dim ;
The long night watch is over, and the long searoving done,
And yonder light is the Start Point light, and yonder comes the sun.

O, we have been with the Spaniards, and far and long on the sea ;
But there are the twisted chimneys, and the gnarled old inns on the quay.
The wind blows keen as the day breaks, the roofs are white with the rime,
And the church-bells ring as the sun comes up to call men in to Prime.

CHRISTMAS, 1903

The church-bells rock and jangle, and there is peace on the earth.

Peace and good will and plenty and Christmas games and mirth.

O, the gold glints bright on the wind-vane as it shifts above the squire's house, And the water of the bar of Salcombe is muttering about the bows.

O, the salt sea tide of Salcombe, it wrinkles into wisps of foam,
And the church-bells ring in Salcombe to ring poor sailors home.

The belfry rocks as the bells ring, the chimes are merry as a song, They ring home wandering sailors who have been homeless long.

Cashlauna Shelmiddy.

The Word

My friend, my bonny friend, when we are old,
And hand in hand go tottering down the hill,
May we be rich in love's refined gold,
May love's gold coin be current with us still.

May love be sweeter for the vanished days,
And your most perfect beauty still as dear
As when your troubled singer stood at gaze
In the dear March of a most sacred year.

May what we are be all we might have been,
And that potential, perfect, O my friend,
And may there still be many sheafs to glean In our love's acre, comrade, till the end.

And may we find when ended is the page Death but a tavern on our pilgrimage.

"John Masefield is the man of the hour, and the man of to-morrow too, in poetry and the play-writing craft."—JOHN GALSWORTHY.

JOHN MASEFIELD'S SEA CHANTIES AND YARNS.

Uniform Edition. Three Volumes, in "blue dungaree." Crown 8vo., 6s. net each.

SALT-WATER BALLADS.
A Chiswick Press verbatim Reprint of this rare book. 128 pages. [Seventh Thousand.]

"Just what Mr. Kipling did for the barrack-room Mr. Masefield has done for the fo'c'sle of the tramp steamer, which is the Empire-weaving shuttle really and truly. . . . It is good to have a new edition of this book."—Morning Post.

"Full of that grimness of adventure that comes nowadays to save romance from mere ethereal dissipations. The sea has its labours and terrors, and the greatness of the adventure is not confounded with some poor kind of inspiration and its saving ecstasies. It is Mr. Masefield's distinction that of these labours and terrors he can make his song."—Manchester Guardian.

BALLADS AND POEMS. 104 pp [Thirteenth Thousand.]

"All that Mr. Masefield writes comes clear and true, simply and intensely from his own mind and heart. He, too, can lavish gold and rubies, cora and ivory, but with a kind of indifference to the things in themselves, akin to nature's. The beauty of his poetry is the beauty of the living, not of the embalmed."—Westminster Review.

A MAINSAIL HAUL. A revised and greatly enlarged Edition of these famous Sea Yarns. Finely printed at the Chiswick Press, with a Frontispiece by Jack B. Yeats. 204 pages. [Fifth Thousand.]

"The stories show alike beauty of vision, beauty of interpretation, and beauty of craftsmanship . . . will bring great joy to old and young."—Daily Chronicle.

"Mr. Masefield has the true spirit of the ancient childhood of the earth. He has the real spirit of the poets, and he has it precisely in that particular in which the poets and the tellers of fairy tales most seriously and most decisively differ from the realists of our own day. Mr. Masefield tells a story that is in itself strange, or splendid, or even supernatural, but tells it in the common, graphic language of life."—G. K. CHESTERTON in the Daily News.

"They are fellows of substance, quaint and companionable and humorous without a tangle, these three books in blue dungaree. Come into the circle and hear what they have to tell."—Morning Post.

THE ISLAND RACE.

"There is no other book, perhaps, which utters to-day a call so insistent. To-day very many of us are thinking that which we cannot utter, and hoping for we do not quite know what. To Sir Henry Newbolt are given the spirit of interpretation and the art of consummate expression."—Morning Post.

Includes "ADMIRALS ALL" (now in its 31st edition)—"That booklet of 1897 is a sort of microcosm of Mr. Newbolt. It represents all he has done since. It contains, for instance, 'Admirals All' and 'Vitali Lampada'; in other words, it has the Nelson touch and the Public School note, both of which Mr. Newbolt has made his own in verse."—Mr. GEORGE SAMPSON in November Booksman.

THE WINNOWING-FAN : Poems on the Great War. [Fourth Thousand.]

By LAURENCE BINYON. Demy 12mo. Wrapper, 1s. 6d. net ; Cloth (fine paper ed.) 2s. 6d. net.

"It may seem strange, at the moment, that by a monstrous brutality spirits should be finely touched and to fine issues; yet it has proved true of war in the past, and may prove true in the near future. On the poetry of Mr. Binyon, for one, the war appears to have had an enriching effect. . . . He has never before written with so much passion and so large an utterance as in these twelve poems on various aspects of the war."—Times Literary Supplement.

"In 'For the Fallen,' this studious poet, lifting his eyes to the stars from the Oriental prints he knows so well, has achieved the noblest war poem that has yet appeared in English."—Morning Post.

SONGS AND CHANTIES. 1914-1916.

By C. FOX SMITH.

Now first collected. With a Frontispiece and a Vignette.

"It is not likely that many lovers of sea-songs have missed the voice of Miss Fox-Smith, but if they do not know her 'Songs in Sail and other Chanties' let them read 'Sailor Town'—the dancing colours and fresh scents of the harbour, the rush of sea and wind, the cheery pathos of the outward-bound, the sailor's homesickness—all this is carried on the rhythm of her verses with a vividness hardly equalled by any other verse-writer of the day."—Times Literary Supplement.
