Steam pipes are hotter than hot water pipes as ordinarily used, and therefore houses heated with steam require less radiating surface than those heated with hot water. Steam is usually carried at about 2 pounds pressure and at that pressure has a temperature of about 218 degrees. In condensing to water this steam gives up its latent heat (approximately 1,000 B. T. U.'s a pound). One square foot of radiating surface will condense a little more than ¼ of a pound of steam each hour, assuming that the conditions are the same as above, namely, that the temperature in the house is to be maintained at 60 degrees with an outside temperature of —10 degrees. In other words, one square foot of steam radiating surface will give off about 260 B. T. U.'s per hour. Placing this in the formula used above we have 260 square feet of steam radiation required, or 2,306 linear feet of 1½-inch pipe, or 25 lengths of 1½-inch pipe extending across the length of the house, which would be equal to about 30 lengths of 1¼-inch pipe, which is the size generally used in steam heating for coils 150 feet or less in length. In practice much less steam radiation is usually provided, with the understanding that a higher pressure and consequently a higher temperature will be maintained in severe weather.

$$60-( -10) \times 4285 = 1153$$

STEAM VERSUS HOT WATER.

While our inquiries showed that eighty-six per cent of the larger growers preferred steam for heating, it is true that many of the more modern large ranges are being equipped with hot water. This is done for the reason that crops are supposed to grow better under hot water than under steam heat. It is probably true that plants do not do as well in the super-heated air near a hot steam pipe as they do near an old-fashioned 3½-inch hot water pipe at 150 degrees. On the other hand, the modern tendency is to place all or part of the pipes overhead and far enough away from the plants so that the heat is evenly distributed. It is also true that in many of these hot water systems which are being installed a "pressure" system is being used which makes possible the raising of the temperature of the water to 240 degrees, which is equal to 10 pounds of steam. This is a higher pressure and consequently a higher temperature than is usually carried by the ordinary steam heating plant. During the spring and fall the hot water has some advantage because it can be kept at a low temperature, while steam must always be at 212 degrees or more.

GENERATOR OR PRESSURE SYSTEM.

The so-called generators or pressure systems depend for their action upon a column of mercury which must be forced up out of the way before the heated water can find its way to the expansion tank. They usually exert about 10 pounds pressure. These generators are automatic in their action and are claimed by the manufacturers to produce a more rapid flow of water in the heating pipes. The same effect may be secured by elevating the expansion tank or by having a closed expansion tank fitted with a safety valve set at a certain pressure. In long houses it is necessary to supplement gravity circulation by pumping. This may be also done under pressure.

WROUGHT OR CAST BOILERS.

The cast iron boiler has a size limit above which it is impracticable to go. Moreover, there is evidence that with its thick water ways it is less economical of fuel than are the thinner shelled wrought iron boilers. On the other hand, cast iron boilers do not rust as badly as wrought iron ones when not in use and have no flues to be burned out by the sulphurous gases and to cause annoyance and expense in replacing. But they do sometimes crack and they have a disgusting way of doing it at the most inopportune moment. When fuel is cheap and abundant, and especially in a small range where the heating system is likely to be neglected during the summer, cast iron boilers usually give the best satisfaction. Where coal is expensive, and especially if it is of good grade and free from sulphur, wrought iron boilers are probably best. No matter what kind of heat or kind of boiler is used, it is always best to use two small boilers, both of which may be connected with the main system, than one large one. One of the small boilers will take care of the house during the spring and fall more economically than a large one and in case one goes wrong during winter weather the other may be "forced" for a few days and save the crop, when if one large boiler was depended on the crop would be ruined.

HOME OR FACTORY ERECTION.

Greenhouse builders make small profits in erecting commercial houses compared with those made in erecting houses and conservatories for parks, institutions, and private estates. In fact, some firms build commercial houses only to fill in between other jobs. As a usual thing, however, the vegetable grower by using his own help at odd times and with the assistance of a skilled mechanic can easily put up a house from material now to be obtained from dealers in greenhouse supplies at a substantial saving over prices charged by erecting firms. It should be borne in mind, however, that greenhouses cost money and even at the present low price of glass and pipe, which is now advancing, a fully equipped, substantial house of medium size can hardly be built for less than sixty to seventy cents a square foot of surface covered.

FROM THE FRENCH AND BELGIAN PRESS.

New Ferns.—The year 1912 has been particularly fruitful in novelties in the fern family, many interesting plants having been shown in England. One of the most remarkable is Lastrea patens Mayl, novelty of H. B. May & Son, of Edmonton. Result of a cross between L. patens and L. lepida, the plant is much more elegant than its parents and exceeds them considerably in size. It received honors at two exhibitions. Polypodium Mandaianum, a large and beautiful fern shown by W. A. Manda, Orange, N. J., belongs to the same section as P. aureum, but has large arching, deep green, finely cut fronds. Among other new ferns are: Polypodium Vidgeni, of H. B. May & Son; Pteris Parkeri, large and beautiful form of P. cretica; Nephrolepis exaltata Rochfordi, pale green variety of the group with feathery fronds; N. exaltata Wilmottae, resembling N. Marshalli, but even more finely divided and plume-like; N. Millsi, very distinct, much less dense than the others, and with stiffer stems; pinules small, finely dented; Adiantum cuneatum micropinnulum, variety with extremely small pinules, of a pretty red color in the young state; Asplenium divaricatum elegans, variety with fronds divided mostly in long linear segments; petiolas very dark, almost black; Scopolopodium vulgare crispum nobile, very beautiful hardy fern; large fronds 24 inches long and 6 inches wide, curled and wavy.—M. Garnier in Revue Horticole.

Pruning of Orchard Trees.—All orchard trees need a certain training in their youth to induce regularity of shape. This should be accomplished by removing here and there such of the secondary branches as might too much thicken the head, or cause it to spread too much; also by cutting the ends of the young branches that none may dominate the others. In growing them with low heads, it is better to give the young trees a pyramidal form, much broadened at the base. In pruning neglected older trees, remove first all dead wood, then the small interior branches which are sterile for lack of light and air, then irregular branches; most of all, such limbs as touch each other and cause injury by rubbing and mutilating the bark, especially in apples. All wounds of any size should be covered with a mastic or dissolved tar to prevent decay, after which the tree should be treated with a disinfectant, to destroy fungus and larvæ in crevices of the bark. Cultivate around the foot of the tree, and spread manure in a circle equal to the diameter of the head. This treatment should greatly increase vigor, bearing and quality of fruit.—V. Enfer in Revue Horticole.

Gypsophila repens or Prostata.—Though this is little known, it should not be forgotten as a most charming little perennial. It is a bushy little plant, growing about 6 inches high; flowers white or pale pink and produced in succession all summer. Two varieties, G. repens monstrosa, the largest-flowering sort, pure white, and G. repens rosea, pink, are especially desirable. For any sunny border, slope, wall or rockery, all sorts are adapted, and for small bouquets and table decoration the monstrosa is highly recommended. It is easily propagated by division in March and April and perfectly hardy.—Jules Rudolph in Le Jardin.

New Gladiolus Gandavensis "Schwaben."—Originated by — Pfitzer, this new yellow gladiolus surpasses everything yet seen in its color. Its stiff strong stems carry up to 20 flowers, of which six to eight are open at a time. The buds are of a pure canary yellow color, the open flower a light sulphur, the throat deep yellow, with two crimson blotches, which show very little. Strong bulbs carry two to three such stalks, which often branch at the tip, giving a long period of bloom. This variety is exceptional among yellows, in that it is a vigorous grower and slightly throughout the season.

Tricentenary of French Landscape Architect.—The tricentenary of the French landscape architect Le Notre will be celebrated by an exposition at the Bagatelle, in Paris, in May. An interesting exhibition of artistic garden accessories, fountains, vases, seats, well curbs, sun dials, in all sorts of materials, is a feature that will command attention. Imitations will be excluded, and the entire competition under the direction of the society of garden lovers is expected to be a step toward making accessible at moderate prices really artistic garden furnishings.—Le Jardin.

Another Yellow Peony, La Lorraine.—An entirely double variety has been obtained and is offered for sale this year. It is a hybrid of P. lutea and a double P. montan; it has strong woody stems, good foliage; flowers large, double, with rounded wavy petals; color light sulphur yellow tinted rosy, becoming lighter as it fades. It is offered by the Lemoines at the price of forty dollars each for strong young pot-grown plants.—Le Jardin.

Nicotiana Sanderae Hybrida.—This is so pretty with its abundance of flowers which run the whole gamut from white to deep red. It has the disadvantage of closing in the day time when planted out of doors. Sown in September, however, in frames, and flowered in a temperate house these plants may be enjoyed in winter in all their beauty, and are very decorative.—Revue de l'Hort. Belge.

Large-flowering Nemesias.—The large-flowering nemesias in all their beautiful shades and markings of yellow, brown, red, lilac, rose, and their constantly improved habit and size are prime favorites in England. Cultivated like any annual and watered freely during hot weather, they give a magnificent show and great variety of color.—Le Jardin.

HEMET, CALIF.—The Howard Rose Co. has been organized here and incorporated to deal in nursery stock, seeds and flowers. The incorporators and directors are Charles Howard, Earnest Linquist and Gertrude Howard. The capital is $20,000.

National Gardeners and Florists'

BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

A meeting of the bowling committee of the National Association of Gardeners in charge of the National Gardeners and Florists' Bowling Tournament was held at the Murray Hill Hotel, New York city, Tuesday afternoon, February 25. The following members were present: John Dodds, Wynecote, Pa.; William Robertson, Jenkintown, Pa.; James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; John Everett, Glen Cove, N. Y.; A. Bauer, Deal, N. J. President William H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y., of the National Association of Gardeners and Secretary M. C. Ebel of Madison, N. J., were also present.

All arrangements were completed to hold the bowling tournament at Thumm's bowling alleys, Broadway and Thirty-first street, New York, Wednesday, April 9. One entire floor, consisting of twelve alleys, has been engaged and additional alleys reserved on the next floor if they are required. The entire day will be given over to the tournament. As has already been reported, the bowling will be open to members of the Society of American Florists and members of the National Association of Gardeners. Teams of three men, members of any local florists' or gardeners' society or club, and members either of the N. A. G. or S. A. F. will be eligible in the team tournament. Some of the members of the committee reported that they have had advice from several southern and western cities that local club teams are practicing to enter, and it is the hope of the association that every local society, or club, will be represented by a team.

President Waite, of the N. A. G., offers a piece of silver, valued at $50, as a sweepstake prize, to be competed for by the three members of the S. A. F. and three members of the N. A. G. making the highest scores of the tournament.

Ex-President Logan offers a silver cup for the greatest number of strikes made in the tournament in three games, the sweepstake contest excluded.

Secretary Ebel offers a silver cup for the highest score made in the tournament, the sweepstake contest excluded.

Treasurer James Stuart offers three prizes of the value of $30 for the winning team of three men members from a local gardening or florists' club, and members of either the N. A. G. or S. A. F.

A silver cup is offered for the highest number of spares in the tournament in three games, the sweepstake contest excluded.

A long list of prizes is offered for the individual tournament to which the committee expects to add considerable before the event.

Everything indicates that the tournament, which will be held during the week of the International Flower Show in New York, will be an interesting affair. It will probably bring together a greater number of the bowlers among the gardeners and florists than were ever before gathered together in a like contest. Further information, if desired, can be obtained by addressing M. C. Ebel, secretary of the N. A. G., Madison, N. J.

WEATHER HURTS BUSINESS.

We are having a spell of real winter weather at this writing, after about a week of rain and slush, which had a bad effect on the flower business, funeral work being about the only outlet for cut flowers in any quantity, although style show week used large quantities of southern smilax for decorating the downtown store windows. There is an abundance of cut flowers in all grades, and local wholesale houses are pretty well stocked.

NOTES.

About ninety firemen at greenhouses in and around this city successfully passed the examinations for a license the past two weeks. Many of these who passed the last examinations failed at the previous examination when written answers were demanded. At the last examination everything was oral, both questions and answers. It also proves that when the florists get together and appoint an intelligent committee to work for the interest of all the growers, much can be accomplished, and the next important thing to do would be to get together and devise some means whereby the taxes on greenhouses and growing stock can be reduced, as many of the growers claim the taxes on their greenhouses are outrageously high. It is a sad fact, however, that many who benefit by the acts of these committees, give them no support, either financially or otherwise, but are content to set back, let the other fellow do the work, and spend his money, and then reap the benefits for themselves.

The Ohio Horticultural Society has the premium list for the show to be held in June at Gray's Armory ready for distribution. All florists and growers who are interested may have a copy by writing John A. Body, secretary, 218 City Hall.

Judd H. Tilton died at his home at 2230 East Sixty-eighth street Saturday morning, March 1, at the age of 34 years. He was one of the firm of Tilton & Son, owners of a seed store on Woodland avenue.

A new flower store called the "Rosary" was opened at 8021 Euclid avenue, opposite St. Agnes' Church, on Tuesday, March 4. J. McDonough is manager.

Albert Hart is the proud father of a baby boy which arrived this week. Both mother and baby are getting along nicely. Hearty congratulations.

Carl Gerdman has leased the greenhouses at Berea formerly run by Gus Schneider of Springfield. He intends to grow a miscellaneous stock.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange handled a full carload of smilax, which was used in the different retail stores at their spring openings.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The first annual supper of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Germania hall, New Rochelle, N. Y., February 18. As was expected keen but friendly rivalry existed among those taking part in the bowling, which took place in the afternoon. Great excitement prevailed in the games, "trade versus private," honors being about even at the finish. Competitive games were also arranged among the members, the championship prize going to E. McKenzie. In the clash that took place for county supremacy Westchester came out on top, the scores being: Westchester, 2,486, Fairfield, 2,347.

About 7:30 p. m. 80 members and invited guests took their seats at the tables in the spacious hall, to partake of the good things provided. A fine feature of the supper was the very artistic manner in which the table decorations were carried out, finely flowered plants of Cattleya Trianae being used extensively, these being kindly lent by the Geo. E. Baldwin Co., orchid growers, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Boutonnieres of lilies of the valley were provided by ex-President J. Stuart, and miniature "Stars and Stripes" were the favors kindly donated by Chas. McTaggart.

Among the invited guests representing the horticultural trade were H. A. Bunyard, W. E. Marshall, Thomas B. Collie, P. Hamilton Goodsell, W. E. Maynard, Andrew Wilson, A. Richards, Chas. McTaggart, Andrew Kennedy, all of New York; Robert Renison, Louis F. Milliot of Yonkers, N. Y.; Wm. Scott of Elmsford, N. Y.; Edward Neubrand of Tarrytown, N. Y.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Wade, New Rochelle, N. Y. President Robt. Williamson, after extending a hearty welcome to members and guests, introduced as toastmaster for the evening John M. Brown of Stamford. After a few brief remarks on the great strides made by the society since its inauguration he told of the good work being done towards encouraging a better horticultural spirit, among the public of this section. He was also glad to hear that the society intended to hold its fall show in Stamford, and assured them that the support they would receive, will fully justify the step taken by the society in that direction.

Responding to the request of the toastmaster short addresses were made by the different representatives of the horticultural trade and President M. C. Ebel spoke for the International Flower Show, R. Renison for the Yonkers Horticultural Society, H. A. Bunyard for the National Sweet Pea Society. Speeches were also made of a congratulatory and humorous nature by P. H. Goodsell, F. E. Conine, Chas. McTaggart, W. E. Maynard, Joseph H. Sperry, Edward Neubrand, A. Richards, W. E. Marshall, Geo. E. Baldwin, Wm. Scott, President Robt. Williamson, ex-President J. Stuart, Secretary J. B. McArdle, which were received with rounds of applause by all present. Proceedings were enlivened considerably during the evening with songs by H. Wild, O. A. Hunwick, J. M. Brown and A. Rickards. Before closing a most successful and pleasant event, cheers were called for by President R. Williamson, ex-President J. Stuart, Secretary J. B. McArdle and the toastmaster, and hands were joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

OWEN A. HUNWICK, Sec'y.

DEMAND STEADY.

Bright favorable weather and the absence of rain have materially assisted in maintaining the even tone of business. The demand is quiet but steady. There is no marked surplus or scarcity, the increasing shipments to the interior having a steadying effect on the local market. Counter sales in the shops are light, but funeral work is plentiful and keeps the florists more or less busy. Fruit blossoms, principally almond, are the main feature at this writing and with a liberal showing of acacia, hyacinth, narcissus and other spring bulbs lend a charming air of spring not indicated by the calendar. That the trade is quick to take up a novelty having merit is shown by the ready sale of a small shipment received of sprays of Cydonia japonica. This beautiful shrub has been overlooked in the past and is a welcome and valuable addition to our early spring blossoms. Prices have declined with a few exceptions during the past week. American Beauty roses are good, a little scarce in the better grades. Liberty, Killarney and Kaiserin roses are the best in their respective colors. There is practically no yellow offered, a few Wards bringing $4 a hundred, the short stems cutting the price. Cecil Bruner is very scarce. Cattleyas are only fair. Phalaenopsis amabilis is excellent, but P. schilleriana is very poor. Lilies are quoted at only $2.50.

NOTES.

The California State Floral Society, composed largely of amateur flower cultivators and admirers of flowers and plants, will hold a spring show at the Fairmont hotel sometime in March under the active management of Miss Charlotte A. Williams. An artist in floral arrangement, Miss Williams' experience as a professional decorator and a successful exhibitor at the large shows warrants the show to be a success. The trade should give the affair an active and substantial support.

The downtown stores are displaying in their windows arrangements of azaleas, rhododendrons and cyclamen. The latter are very good, the whites particularly so, many of the plants being up to the exhibition mark. Birch boxes and rustic baskets filled with tulips or hyacinths are much in favor.

Ed. Scherwin of the Visitation Valley Nurseries is going much more into the growing of flowering plants. This season he has devoted much space to the growing of azaleas, genistas and bulbous stock in pots.

Anticipating a good Easter trade, many of the shopkeepers are making the rounds of the plant growers' ranges, selecting and reserving stock in advance.

The MacRorie & McLaren Co. is making a specialty of rhododendrons; one fine lot consists of 1,000 Pink Pearl. T.

VALENTINE DAY GOOD.

Not many words are required to record the history of the trade in this vicinity since the middle of January. January business gave a little larger total than the same month for last year with milder weather and a consequently lessened coal bill. McKinley day showed little extra demand. As a special flower day it seems to have run out. The Valentine day trade was considerably better. Violets, sweet peas, American Beauty roses, red roses and carnations cleaned up nicely. There was a good sale of nice blooming plants. Also of made-up plant arrangements in baskets. The experience of this year points to another good flower day if the florists will advertise judiciously and avoid boosting prices. Washington's Birthday gave little extra business, although a few scattering social events took place. Generally speaking the weather has been moderate and has helped the transient sales, although some real winter weather for a few days at a time has accounted for some dull days.

NOTES.

About a foot of snow on unfrozen ground at this date, February 24, is causing the farmers and incidentally the tradespeople, to feel discouraged with crop prospects. Orchardists state that peach prospects are poor, but that other fruits are safe so far, and that only a calamitous spring freeze will spoil things now.

W. H. Culp & Co. are cutting some very fine carnations, also some good violets, both Wales and Herriek, with Herriek in the lead for quality. Owing to advances in the price of fuel oil the Culp greenhouses have returned to coal for fuel for the rest of the season.

The lettuce growers of this vicinity are complaining of a poor market, and of no market at all part of the time. It is reported that considerable stock was pulled up and dumped to make room for the next planting.

F. Kuechenmeister has been getting a heavy crop of carnations and sweet peas. It is rumored that Mr. Kuechenmeister plans the building of a new range of glass on his suburban property near Urbandale.

Clifford Pruner, representing Pochlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, was a visitor Friday and Saturday. He reports good business in the line of seasonable Easter stock.

The florists are lining up for Easter with prospects of most stock being on time, although giganteum lilies are likely to be rather short of stem.

Chas. P. Mueller is in with a heavy cut of roses which have come in handy for a good run of funeral work the past week.

The Bixby greenhouses do a large business in the line of vegetable plants.

Minneapolis.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Business during the past week has been good. Funeral work was plentiful. Other than a scarcity of roses the market is normal. Roses are bringing from $4 to $12 a dozen; carnations, $2.50 to $3.00 a hundred.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club was held March 4 at the L. S. Donaldson & Co. greenhouses, President Desmond presiding. Forty members were present. Vice-President Theodore Wirth of the Society of American Florists outlined the work for the coming convention. The dance committee reported that the annual dance had paid for itself and the club's guarantee was returned. Much spirited discussion was engendered about cooperative newspaper advertising for Mother's day. This matter was left in the hands of the publicity committee.

NOTES.

Morrell & Nichols, landscape architects of Minneapolis, have submitted tentative plans for a beautification scheme to the city of Edmonton. It is for 50 years ahead and will mean the ultimate expenditure of $20,000,000. The plan, which has been copyrighted by the municipality, covers the proposed extension of the city into the rural districts, and the addition of a large residential district.

John Monson, proprietor of the Minneapolis Floral Co., is serving for three weeks on the jury in the district court. Service of this sort during cold weather and just before Easter is far from agreeable to any grower.

L. F. Nordine, representing the Andrews Heating Co., is making an extended trip through Chicago territory studying greenhouse heating problems.

Mrs. R. Will, the venerable mother of Will Bros., is reported to be seriously ill at her home in this city.

R. A. Latham is enjoying a week's vacation in the country. S. A. J.

Libertyville, Ill.

A visit to the establishment of the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co. will readily illustrate the advantage of business methods in conjunction with a practical knowledge of the growing end of the business. Only two years ago this company was incorporated and capitalized for $35,000 and under the able management of President J. E. Meredith and Secretary C. W. Stout the business has grown to such proportions that papers are now being filed to increase the amount of incorporation to $100,000, and owing to the growing demand it has been necessary to enlarge the glass area from $2,000 feet to 100,000 feet. The present houses are under the direct management of R. K. Schultz, formerly of Bassett & Washburn's, Hinsdale. Mr. Schultz has a good crop of the leading commercial carnations, the pink and white Enchantress being especially fine. Here also we found a high grade of roses, including Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney. Sweet peas are well grown in the leading shades, the flowers having long stiff stems. The greenhouses adjoin the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul tracks, where transportation facilities are excellent. Although this is known as a firm of vegetable growers, the work thus far has been confined to decorative plant stock and cut flowers but the growing of vegetables under glass will be taken up as soon as the conditions warrant this course.

Shuman & Kohout, who make a specialty of growing roses, are showing very good American Beauty, Killarney, Richmond, White Killarney and My Maryland. They are making preparations to build two greenhouses to adjoin their present plant.

Philadelphia Notes

A wedding of general interest took place on Washington's birthday when Miss Malyon Faulkner was married to Robert Q. Shoch. Miss Faulkner is a sister of George Faulkner and Mrs. H. H. Battles. "Bobbie" Shoch, as he is familiarly known in the trade, has been in the business from his youth up. He has been grower, salesman, spent several years in a commission house, and is now one of the valued workers of the N. Rice Co. The happy couple have the best wishes of the trade for a long and happy life together.

Paul Berkowitz says that artificial flowers such as crepe roses and chrysanthemums can be and are being used by many retail florists to good advantage and with much profit. These and the dried maidenhair fern in connection with them are used to embellish magnolia wreaths which are largely used for grave decoration. They are also indispensable in large decorations, as at a distance they cannot be distinguished from the real flowers they represent.

Freeport, Ill.

John Bauscher celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his birth March 1. Some idea of Mr. Bauscher's popularity may be had from the numerous and beautiful tokens of esteem he received, included in which were over 300 congratulatory letters, telegrams and postcards. Aside from his prominence in the flower business, Mr. Bauscher enjoys the distinction of being a county supervisor, a member of nearly fifty clubs, associations, fraternal orders, etc., including the Anchor Club, of which he is the founder.

The Late Thomas Gilmore.

Thomas Gilmore, who for the past 25 years has been head gardener on the estate of August Belmont, the well-known banker and capitalist, at Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y., died there on February 21, aged 76 years. He was highly esteemed by Mr. Belmont, who being at Cape Cod, Mass., immediately wired to Hempstead, on learning of Mr. Gilmore's death, to postpone funeral arrangements until his return. Mr. Gilmore was a Scotchman, a tall, gray-bearded and striking figure of military carriage and appearance. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him. A. F. F.

MEETING OF OFFICERS.

The officers and board of directors of the Society of American Florists met in executive session at the Radisson hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., February 25-26. The meeting was called to order by President Farquhar promptly at 10 a. m. the first day, and by adhering strictly and faithfully to its work the board was able to complete its duty by the evening of the second day. All members of the board were present, with the exception of Secretary John Young, who was detained in New York through illness, Geo. Asmus of Chicago acting as secretary pro tem. Every member seemed to be well pleased with the facilities offered in the convention hall, the grounds, hotel accommodations and other local conditions and advantages.

At 7 p. m. of the second day the Twin City florists tendered their welcome visitors a banquet at the Radisson hotel, which was a very enjoyable affair. Short talks full of useful suggestions, fine humor and good fellowship kept all together until nearly midnight, when it became necessary for members of the board to leave to make midnight train connections for the East. All participants felt sure of a successful convention, and everybody is going to work to bring that result about.

The following were present at the banquet: Officers of the S. A. F.—President John K. M. L. Farquhar, Vice-President Theodore Wirth, Treasurer William Kasting. Also Geo. Asmus, acting for Secretary John Young. Directors—E. Allan Pierce, Harry A. Bunyard, C. H. Totty, John A. Evans, August Poehlmann, Thomas Roland, Richard Vincent, Jr. Twin City florists—Wm. N. Steel, H. Nicholson, C. H. Ruedlinger, C. A. Bossen, Louis Boeglin, S. D. Dysinger, O. J. Olson, E. F. Holm, L. L. May, Hugh Will, A. S. Rice, Henry Will, O. C. Swanson, G. A. Will, C. F. Rice, Fred Busch, A. Blinkemberry, J. A. Ridgway, T. Commandros, Louis Danck, L. C. Boughner, L. F. Nordsen, Mack Martin, John Revik, Thomas Hall, Walter Pier, Hans Rosacker, S. A. Jamieson, O. H. Carlson, W. D. Desmond, R. A. Latham, J. C. Taylor, A. Lauritsen, C. E. Schaffer, Max Kaiser, LeRoy Cady, A. F. Longren, Wm. H. Bofferding.

Third International Flower Show.

GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, NEW YORK.

With the opening of the International Flower show only one month away, the management and the various committees are, naturally, most active in their work of preparation for the big event. Wm. Duckham, Madison, N. J., has been appointed manager of the competitive section of the show, and his appointment meets with the hearty approval of the trade. He is a man of wide acquaintance in all branches of the florist industry, as well as in private estate circles, and as manager of this most important section of the exhibition he is very acceptable to both commercial and private interests. He has had considerable experience in staging exhibits, his work in this direction during the past fifteen years at the shows of the Morris Co. (N. J.) Gardeners and Florists' Society being particularly commendable.

Some changes have been made in the dates of staging exhibits in certain sections of the show. Exhibits in Division E, which covers retail florists' rose displays, will be staged on Saturday, April 5, instead of Monday, April 7. Division G, covering collections of roses and open to private gardeners and amateurs only, will also be staged on April 5, instead of April 7. Division B, covering cut roses, will be staged on April 7, instead of April 5. These divisions form part of the section allotted to the American Rose Society. A supplementary schedule has been published and sent out, in which these changes are noted, as well as many new prize offers.

The judging of all the exhibits staged on the opening day will be completed prior to the formal opening of the show. Seventy judges will pass on the exhibits during the afternoon, the judging to commence promptly at 3 o'clock, and by 6 o'clock, when the doors open, cards will be found on all the exhibits. The corps of judges will include representative men from all sections of this country, and twelve or more from England and Holland.

An enormous attendance is expected on the opening night, and it can be relied upon that the exhibition will be entirely in order and in readiness for the public. Those in the trade who intend making exhibits in the trade exhibition, a feature of the show, should lose no time in arranging for space. Secretary John Young can still provide some excellent locations and will be pleased to furnish any information regarding accommodation on application to him at 54 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

J. H. PEPPER,
Chairman Publicity Committee.

Our Supplements.

Subscribers should see that they get copies of the fine supplementary illustrations showing high grade design and decorative work. These fine supplements should be carefully preserved as they mean much to the retail florists in dealing with their customers, illustrating as they do the various kinds of work that the everyday florist is called upon to perform.

The papers in which the supplements appear should be likewise preserved, as they contain much valuable data with regard to these special illustrations. Subscribers should see that they get every issue, as otherwise they may miss some of this high-grade work.

Chicago Spring Show

Preparations for the annual spring show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, to be held at the Art Institute April 1-5, are nearly completed with every indication that this will be one of the most attractive spring displays ever made in this country. The plans include many novel features, one being a piscatorial exhibit of considerable magnitude and rare interest to lovers of aquaria plants, etc. The final premium list has been mailed to prospective exhibitors, but additional copies may be had on application to Secretary R. J. Haight, Monon building, Chicago.

Important to Subscribers.

The date on the yellow address label on your copy of THE AMERICAN FLORIST will show when your subscription expires. Please renew subscription promptly on expiration to make certain of receiving your copy of each issue.

The Genuine CREGO Aster

DIRECT FROM THE ORIGINATOR

With its enormous blossoms, long stems and vigorous, healthy plants, this Aster is becoming more valuable to the florist from year to year, and its remarkable success is due to the fact that it has had the benefit of fourteen years of the most rigid and painstaking selection, every effort having been directed toward developing its commercial qualities—toward making it a money-maker for every florist who handles it. Growing no other seed of any kind, I am able to give this the closest possible attention.

One of the largest growers at Irondequoit, the great Aster center of New York state, says: "Our best Crego blooms usually sell at about $1.00 a dozen, retail, about twice as much as can be got here for any other variety." Both wholesale and retail, when properly handled, the Crego Aster has always maintained its position at the top of the market.

BUY YOUR SEED DIRECT FROM THE ORIGINATOR.

I am offering the Crego Aster in four colors: white, shell pink, rose pink and violet, all fully up to Crego grade, with immense fluffy blooms 4 to 6 inches in diameter and of splendid color.

NOTE THE PRICES:—1/4-ounce.....50c; 1/2-ounce.....$1.00; ounce.....$2.00. Send cash with your order.

G. S. CREGO. 1036 Vancouver Avenue, PORTLAND, ORE.

MARKET STILL POOR.

There is no improvement in the market here. Bulbous stock is being hit hard. If the grower gets the price of the bulbs in many cases he is lucky. His other expenses are lost. Sweet peas, like the cannon at the Charge of the Light Brigade, are everywhere, and of good, bad and indifferent quality. Asparagus sprengeri and plumosus are scarce and are about the only bright spots on the horizon at present. From the aristocratic orchid to the plebian violet, there is abundance. All are looking forward to Easter, to give a clearance to the accumulation, and an incentive to spring business.

NOTES.

We noticed some particularly fine cattleyas at Welch Bros. In quantity and quality they exceeded anything we have seen for some time. P. Welch has been confined to his home with the grippe for the past two weeks.

March came in like the proverbial lamb, with rain, mist and quietness, and the lion will probably have his innings before the month is out.

Morris County Gardeners and Florists.

The annual carnation night of the Morris County Gardeners and Florists' Society will be held in the meeting room, Madison, N. J., on the evening of March 12. This night has been a fixed feature of our society for the past 10 years and we will have it better than ever this year. Our members are going to put up the standard varieties and we are appealing to the introducers to send in the candidates of 1913. They are a grand lot all through and it would seem a shame if we could not see them, flower and stem, set upon our tables. The public will be admitted. A good show will arouse much interest. Everybody loves a carnation and a good variety costs no more to grow than a poor one, so let us see them. Please let all consignments come in care of C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and a dozen of us will see that they get all the care and proper staging that we can give them.

TRADE BETTER.

Trade has improved considerably within the past week and it is the general opinion of nearly all the wholesalers that business was better on March 1 than it has been on any other day since the first of the year. Both the local and shipping trade were good and it was a pleasure to note that all the good stock on that day was fairly well cleaned up before the stores closed at night. Long stemmed American Beauty roses are and have been scarce for some time and even the better grades of medium and short are none too plentiful. To give the reader a little idea of how scarce good American Beauties really are it might not do any harm to mention that a florist from out-of-town endeavored to purchase 2,500 on February 27 but only succeeded in obtaining about one-fourth of that amount after a thorough canvass of the entire local market. Many dealers have been unable to fill all their regular orders in full and those few who have been fortunate in having any kind of a crop easily got from $5.00 to $6.00 per dozen for the extra fancy flowers. Roses in general, especially Killarney and White Killarney, are more plentiful and it is very noticeable that the short stemmed flowers are not as scarce as they have been. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Melody and Sunburst are more plentiful and clean up well, but Richmond are still somewhat scarce. Carnations continue to arrive in large shipments, and although there are large quantities sold, yet it is difficult at times to dispose of the stock as fast as it comes in, and some very low quotations on large lots are reported. The best stock easily brings $2.00 and $3.00 per 100 but the large supply of splits of course materially keeps the prices down. An advance in price on white carnations may be expected at any time, for St. Patrick's day is drawing near and there is usually a good demand for this flower on that day. Lilies and callas are more plentiful but the supply will not be as large for Easter as it was last year when these flowers were very plentiful. Lily of the valley is more plentiful than it has been and the quality is also much better. Bulbous stock is very plentiful yet, although the supply has shortened considerably during the past week. Violets are not moving very fast and can still be had in large lots at bargain prices. Sweet peas are in good supply and have advanced a little in price, but some of the stock is of such high quality that it is cheap at the prices obtained. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and some dealers are offering ferns at greatly reduced prices now. The plantmen are sending in some very fine specimens, the retailers having beautiful azaleas, primulas and bulbous stock. The supply houses are very busy with orders for Easter, which are reported very large. Judging from the many inquiries that are being received for stock and the large amount of business that is being done in the supply line, the Easter trade ought to be very good this year.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fine grade of stock of all kinds, with roses the principal offering. This firm will have a large supply of lilies for their Easter trade, both cut blooms and plants, and is already booking orders for them. The supply department is busy, and is prepared for the Easter business with a full line of goods.

Zech & Mann are strong on bulbous stock with lilies the principal offering. Mr. Zech called on his growers this week and while he will have a good supply of lilies for his trade he does not look for any surplus at Easter in this line.

Kennicott Bros. Co. will have a special sale on ferns for four days next week and the proprietors expect to move a large quantity during that time. Bulbous stock of all kinds is now seen in large supply at this store.

Hoerber Bros. are in heavier crop with roses and will strike Easter right again this year. Killarney and White Killarney especially are in large supply and a few Mrs. Aaron Wards are included in the shipments.

J. F. Kidwell, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, says that the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses will grow roses exclusively next year, including American Beauties, which is a new venture for this firm.

At John Kruchten's store a fancy grade of lily of the valley and carnations are now the leaders. Gardenias, this firm's specialty, are always disposed of quickly at good prices.

Erne & Klingel have a fine line of all seasonable stock, principally roses and carnations. Bulbous stock is having a good call here, especially tulips and daffodils.

The A. L. Randall Co. is rapidly getting things in shape at its store and everything will soon be in tiptop condition to handle the large Easter trade.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, on Thursday, March 6.

Paul M. Palez, with Vestal's, Little Rock, Ark., was here for a few days this week. The alderman is feeling fine and certainly looks the part.

Chas. W. McKellar says Cattleya Schroderae is arriving now and is having a good sale.

Peter Reinberg is coming in crop with Richmond roses and the stock that is now received at the store is of its usual good quality. A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s leader is a fine grade of American Beauty roses, but the supply of stock in general is steadily increasing. Business was very good at this store on March 1, when

STOCK SUFFERS FROM BAD WEATHER.

Weather conditions influenced greatly the market during the past week. Violets and sweet peas suffered; sweet peas, especially, are coming in short stemmed and these, to be moved, must be sold at very low prices. Bulbous stock is a glut and this is augmented by the arrival of southern jonquills. Carnations and roses are increasing. There are large quantities of greens in the market; calla and Harrisii lilies are seen everywhere. The outlook for Easter lilies is that there will be a full supply.

NOTES.

Dr. George T. Moore, general director of Shaw's Garden, was notified by the trustees of their acceptance of his plan for the laying out of the new greenhouses. Work will be rushed so they can soon be completed and thrown open to the public. The trustees also announced the appointment of Dr. Jesse Moore Greenman as curator of the herbarium and offered a prize of $500.00 in money for a new plant.

Ostertag Bros. had a very big job on hand last week. They had the decorations at the Coliseum for the automobile show. Thousands of yards of laurel, grey moss, artificial flower beds and trees filled the hall. At the Ostertag store preparations for Easter are seen. Last week the firm received a large shipment of palms badly frozen.

C. A. Kuehn has been sick, at home, during the past week. We hope his absence from the store will be of short duration. He is getting a splendid variety of flowers. His lily of the valley are some of the best seen in the market and he has also a fine assortment of fancy grown sweet peas.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is doing an immense business and carries a fine stock. Their stock of roses is very fancy and commands top prices. The inclement weather during the past week kept them very busy unloading their immense supply of violets and sweet peas.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co., although the youngest in the wholesale district, is daily increasing their trade. Frank Windler and Al Gumz, are the proprietors.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

The market has eased up considerably with plenty of carnations, which move fairly well. Roses are coming in more plentifully and at a more moderate price, but bulb stock, which is coming in in large quantities, is selling quickly but at such low prices that the grower realizes little from the sales. Fine sweet peas are making their appearances and find a ready sale. Lilies, both Harrisii and callas, are a scarcity and those that do come in are of a poor quality. Greens have been scarce for the past week, but at the present are coming more plentifully.

NOTES.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. reports business good, having plenty of stock to fill all orders. This firm has a fine line of plants for Easter and is making a strong bid for trade in the northwest. H. V. Hunkel made a business trip to Chicago on March 2.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. says business has been good for the past week with large amounts of stock which moved well. This firm has an exceptionally fine crop of lilies coming on for Easter.

Aug. Kellner has received his material from the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for his new range, which will be erected in the near future. Mr. Kellner will grow stock for the local market.

Currie Bros. Co. are busy in their seed department preparing for their spring business. This firm reports business good in the flower line.

Gust Rusch & Co. report business good for the past week. This firm is receiving some exceptionally fine butterfly sweet peas.

BUSINESS INCREASING.

Last week started rather quietly. It followed in the footsteps of the market of previous weeks. As the week passed business improved until at the close nearly everything was going splendidly. The opening of this week was even better than the close of last, for the wholesalers managed to maintain a very substantial advance in prices in some lines. The supply of roses is large and they clean up nicely. The supply of American Beauty roses is adequate. Carnations seem to be going off and on Monday the wholesalers boosted the price and with the large demand for this bloom they were able to maintain it throughout the day. According to indications the price will probably be at this figure for some time. Bulbous stock is selling better than it did since the opening of the season. The calla and gigantium lilies are both still more than adequate for needs. The good sweet peas continue to sell well. This is true of home grown single violets also. The call for lily of the valley is only ordinary.

NOTES.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES VERY SCARCE.

The feature of the past week has been the inactivity of the flower business. There is an abundance of stock, and considering the light demand prices hold very well. American Beauty roses may be called an exception, as they are still scarce. One quite important grower after trying for a week to get together a dozen with twenty-four-inch stems was obliged to give it up. All other varieties are in good supply, with Killarney's particularly coming in too fast. The white, however, on account of the demand for funeral work, sell up closely and are good stock. Carnations are fine and move fairly well. Violets hang fire as well as Easter and calla lilies, which are abundant. Snapdragon will be an important factor from now on, as it is becoming much more plentiful and is of excellent quality. Excellent gardenias are offered daily. The supply of cattleyas is quite equal to the demand.

NOTES.

Leo Niessen says that the best results are obtained with green dye for coloring flowers, when it is dissolved in boiling hot water. One package of the powdered dye dissolved in a quart of hot water makes a stock solution and is of sufficient strength to color several quarts of water ready for use. Roses, carnations and violets in quantity lots are the feature of the Leo Niessen store. Every encouragement is given to buyers to boost their trade by making large displays at small cost. Mr. Niessen says that those who go about it the right way are making good.

The M. Rice Co.'s factory is again working at night. B. Eschner says they have never made as many baskets in their history as they have since last August, there being only three weeks' lull in their night work since that time.

The out-of-town florists are the salvation of the market at this time, say the commission men, large shipments being made every day, which would indicate that trade must be more regular in the smaller communities.

Sweet peas, daffodils and tulips are leaders at Berger Brothers'. An excellent Easter business is expected, as good orders are already coming in for lilies, carnations and violets.

Edw. Reid's leader the past week has been an excellent assortment of sweet peas. Carnations are also a feature.

Pennock Brothers' window decoration the past week was made with the Baby Tausendschon rose and its stronger growing namesake. A lattice of bamboo rods formed a background. The effect was beautiful and attractive. The Baby Tausendschon rose is the coming basket sort. It is a grand variety, a true baby rambler, keeping dwarf and carrying a wealth of beautiful buds and blossoms of a light shade of pink that is simply irresistible.

Henry Penn of Boston, who, with his family, has been spending some time at Atlantic City, was in the city looking up basket stock for his Easter trade.

GOOD ROSES SCARCE.

The situation in the wholesale cut flower district seems rather cloudy. On March 1 it was hard to secure good special American Beauty roses for $1.00 each. In Killarneys and other tea roses, there was also a scarcity of special stock. Of the inferior grades there were thousands and they were hard to move. Practically every other stock was in surplus. We have no desire to exaggerate, but in carnations, narcissi, tulips, sweet peas and violets there seems to be more stock in sight than can be used. In orchids and gardenias there was an abundant supply. Much fine plant stock is now on the market and it would appear that there will be a good supply for the Easter trade.

Monday, March 3.—The market is quiet with a surplus of nearly all stocks. The notable exceptions are American Beauty roses, specials being very scarce and selling for $1 each. A fierce gale raged throughout the city March 2, doing considerable damage. Great crowds are leaving for Washington, D. C., to attend the inauguration. Florists who have gone are: Edward J. Dorval of Woodside, Peter Beauertin and his son-in-law, Daniel J. Dailey of Elmhurst.

NOTES.

General Manager Joseph Millang of the New York Cut Flower Co., has returned from his European trip, improved in health and looking well. He was well pleased with what he saw of the flower trade in London and Paris. Some of the "boys" in the trade were so glad to see him back that they presented him with a "poetical" address. To be absolutely correct the poetry was not quite equal to some of that written by Longfellow and Whittier, but it expressed the good feeling of the "boys."

It is said that C. C. Trepel, who already has the concession for the sale of cut flowers in the department stores of Gimbel Bros., Bloomingdale Bros. and Frederick Losier's, Brooklyn, has secured a similar concession from the Simpson, Crawford Co., another large department store at 307 Sixth avenue.

The display at the plant store of William Kessler, 113 West Twenty-eighth street, is now particularly fine. With an ample conservatory in the rear, and by tasteful arrangement of most excellent stock, he has produced effects that are very pleasing and attractive.

Among the interesting visitors early in the past week, was Harry Quint of Boston, Mass. He recently opened a retail store at 164 Tremont street, Boston. His leading designer is Al. Bock, formerly with Geo. M. Stumpp of this city.

Percy B. Rigby of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has been confined to his home for several days with an attack of grippe. During his absence from the store William Moore, his assistant, has been kept very busy.

It is hard to believe that business can be dull with dealers in green. At the store of the Kervan Co., 119 West Twenty-eighth street, it is a daily occurrence to see great cases of various green goods being unloaded.

Notable among many fine flowers now seen in the retail stores are the orchids at Thomas Young, Jr.'s. Mr. Young has made a great success with both orchids and gardenias at his Bound Brook, N. J., range.

Already there are heralds of St. Patrick's day in the stores. In the wholesale store of H. E. Froment we recently noted a conspicuous placard inviting customers to place their orders for green violets.

At the Broadway store of J. H. Small & Sons on March 1 we noticed a remarkably fine display of acacias in pots which had been grown at their Washington, D. C., greenhouses.

Edward M. Murray has been acting as buyer for J. H. Small & Sons since the confinement of W. K. Trumppore in the French Hospital. Mr. Trumppore is said to be slowly improving.

Walter J. Barnwell, vice-president of the Macniff Horticultural Co., 56 Vesey street, has taken hold of the seed department with vigor and is selling lots of stock.

Though there is much complaint in the wholesale district about dull times, M. C. Ford is cheerful. The high grade of stock he handles will sell if anything sells.

The old veterans in the wholesale business say that the past week brought about the dulllest business they have ever seen.

Friends who recently visited John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., in Roosevelt Hospital, say that he is doing well.

LILIES AND ROSES SCARCE.

With spring-like weather here again, we feel sure that stock will be coming in much stronger than in the past few weeks. Carnations and sweet peas are here by the thousands, and the inferior grades of the latter do not get much of a chance at this time. The quality of carnations is still excellent, and we must say that this has been the very best season for these flowers we have had for a long time. Roses are still very scarce and lilies are also. The gardenia market is rather poor at present, many going to waste. Lilacs also are poor, and prices have gone down. Daisies in white and yellow are fine, and find ready sale on the wholesale markets. Some good myosotis has made its appearance and is cleaned up at sight. Bulb stock of all kinds is here in quantity and very poor prices prevail on this kind of stock. Violets have been moving very poorly, and the street fakirs can be seen nearly every night with them. They also thrive on lily of the valley, for which there is not much demand. Greens of all kinds continue to be scarce, and we wish the growers would send us more.

NOTES.

Ross Adgate has returned from his home in Niles, O., and reports his father as being very much improved. Ross will now resume his road duties for the McCallum Co.

The death of a prominent citizen of Braddock kept Drews & Buehler, that town's florists, very busy Mon-

Stuart L. McLean of Youngstown, O., has left the firm of his father and is now in business for himself.

H. D. Rohrer is consigning some very fine carnations to the McCallum Co. which find ready sale.

BUSINESS GOOD.

Business continues very good in spite of the fact that it is the Lenten season and there is a liberal demand for flowers every day. The flower supply is excellent and of fine quality. Carnations are very good and roses too are in fine condition. There seems to be an endless variety of potted plants, beautiful azaleas, cinerarias and all kinds of bulbous stock. The Von Sion narcissi are especially beautiful and much sought after. There will be an abundant supply of everything needed for the Easter trade. M. C. D.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., President;
Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa., First
Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Milford,
Conn., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

LITCHFIELD, MICH.—Herring Bros.' seed store was destroyed by fire February 15.

MIAMI, FLA.—Capt. B. Landreth and daughter Frances were visitors here March 3, making a tour of the state.

NEW YORK—J. M. Thorburn & Co. are exceedingly busy and believe the season as a whole will be a successful one.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—John Lewis Childs says: "Our catalogue business has been somewhat better during January and February than for the same period last year. All conditions point to a very good season."

RICHMOND, VA.—T. W. Wood & Sons report business, both for January and February, ahead of last year. This, they say, is due to a certain extent to the open weather experienced and the trade outlook here is good.

TOULON, FRANCE, February 10. The flowering of narcissi is already six weeks late and it is impossible to predict what the harvest will be. The continued absence of rain, however, indicates a considerable shortage in all bulbs.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade March 5 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3 to $4 per 100 pounds.—There has been a sharp advance in onion set prices, the latest quotations being yellows $1.60, whites $1.60, red $1.40, in carlots.

PRESIDENT FARQUHAR of the Society of American Florists says that buyers are placing light orders with New England manufacturers this season in anticipation of tariff changes, adding that this means small dividends and smaller purchases of bulbs in the fall.

VISITED CHICAGO: W. P. Stubbs, of Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, Mass.; A. E. McKenzie, of the A. E. McKenzie Co., Ltd., Brandon, Man.; E. H. Henry, of Henry & Lee, New York; E. M. Parmelee, Sheboygan, Wis.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. Atlee Burpee & Co. report that, "owing to the mild, open winter, retail business in January and early in February ran behind last year. It was surprising, however, to note the very considerable increase in the wholesale charge accounts for the month of January. The last few days mail orders have come in much better and each day is now showing a gain over the corresponding day last year, so we are inclined to think the total volume of business will not show a loss, although of course, prices on several important lines, such as garden peas, are considerably lower than last year."

THE onion supply in the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and New York is said to be greater than can be commercially disposed of at any price, sales now being made at 30 cents to 60 cents per 100 pounds. Besides this, the new Texas crop is coming in from four to five weeks earlier than ever before known. Old timers never saw the market in such a weak condition.

SEEDSMEN should write their representatives in congress today requesting them to use their influence in stopping the bribery of voters by free seeds. Every state legislature should be requested not only to follow South Dakota and Kansas in fighting against the iniquitous traffic but to go further and shut out free seeds and all other free commodities of the spoilsmen in politics.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. say: "Our business during January up to the present time has been in advance of last year, especially our mail order business. This has been very good indeed. We suppose a great deal of this, however, is on account of the very pleasant weather which we have been having during this month. We anticipate considerable trade over that which we have had in previous years."

ATLANTA, GA.—McMillan Bros. Seed Co., Archie H. McMillan, president and manager, Robt. McMillan, vice-president and L. D. White, secretary and treasurer, is a new seed house here, an offshoot of the A. H. McMillan Co. They are located at 12 South Broad street in an attractive store, well arranged.—The Everett Seed Co. are enlarging their place at Alabama and Forsyth streets.—Otto Katzenstein, the tree seed dealer, is also busy with landscape work.

South Dakota Against Free Seed.

Pierre, S. Dak., February 19.—If the congress of the United States hearkens to the voice of the South Dakota senate the custom of distributing garden seeds will go into disfavor along with other "pork barrel" perquisites. The joint resolution on this subject was introduced by Senator Dailey, a democrat, and received the votes of nearly all the members.—Sioux City Tribune.

Montana Seed Laboratory.

Bozeman, Mont.—The bill before the legislature for a seed laboratory at the Montana State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts has been indorsed by the Montana Seed Growers' Association. The laboratory would provide equipment for milling and baking tests, for a test of the germinating qualities of seeds and for the study of the weed seed content of samples of Montana grains.

Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

The programme for the ninth annual convention of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association, held at Ottawa, Ont., March 6-7, included the following important papers: "Thickness of seeding in cereal grains," by Prof. C. A. Zavitz, Guelph, Ont.; "Statistics on the Production, Selection and Clearing of Seed on Canadian Farms," by C. F. Nunnick, Ottawa, Ont.; "Results of two years' work in testing Field Root Seeds of Commerce to prove genuineness of stock," by B. D. Eddy, Ottawa, Ont.; "Methods of improving the Seed supply of Field Roots and Vegetable crops in Canada," by G. H. Clark, Ottawa, Ont.; "The Production of Garden Vegetable Seeds in Canada," by W. T. Macoun, Ottawa, Ont.

BOISE, IDAHO—J. N. McPherson, state inspector of horticulture, has returned from California, where he conferred with the state authorities relative to the lifting of the quarantine against Idaho alfalfa. He believes the ban will be lifted in the near future.

The "Spencer" Type of Sweet Peas

Burpee's Unequaled List for 1913.—Arranged Alphabetically. Choicest Re-selected Stocks Grown on "Floradale Farm."

Spencer Sweet Peas are a great Specialty with us! We were the first to grow the seed in America—the stock having been entrusted to us before introduction, even in England, of the original Countess Spencer. We have grown "the original Beauty" and its many "sportive" children with painstaking care each season since. There are but few other growers, either in England or America,—who can supply an equal assortment of the True RE-SELECTED "SPENCERS" that are uniformly of such choice quality. Seedsmen and planters generally can see how superior our stocks now are by trials at FORDHOOK FARMS next June or July, while those who may be in California are invited also to inspect the growing crops at our FLORADALE FARM in the beautiful Lompoc Valley. Every planter's garden, however, is really a trial ground and we shall be quite content if any "Doubting Thomas" will send us only a portion of his order and note the difference in character of flowers produced!

Burpee's Blue List for 1913.

THE most complete catalog published for MARKET GARDENERS, TRUCKERS and FLORISTS. For the planter who "knows" it contains complete lists of all that is best in vegetables and flowers, while the grower who is uncertain as to the best varieties suited for his purpose may be guided by the bull's-eye placed after what is known to be best. In addition full descriptions are given many new and most valuable varieties.

BURPEE'S BLUE LIST FOR 1913 contains 148 pages with hundreds of half-tone and engraved illustrations. Within the pages of this catalog we have condensed an experience of thirty-five years both in handling and the actual growing of seeds.

If you garden for profit (that is, sell your products in the market) you are entitled to a copy of this complete and easily understood catalog, but if you are a private planter please do not ask for a copy, as we must protect the Market Gardener, Trucker and Florist.

New York, March 1.—Cucumbers, $1.25 to $1.75 per doz., and $4 to $6 per box; mushrooms, 80 cents to $2 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 bunches; mint, 75 cents to $1 per dozen bunches; rhubarb, 20 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; lettuce, 10 cents to 40 cents per dozen; beet tops, 60 cents to 75 cents per box.

Tomato Plants.

With the increased interest shown on all sides in all gardening operations there is a correspondingly widening field for the plant grower. Amateur gardeners prefer to buy plants much rather than to grow them and this tendency can be turned to profit by the florist and market gardener. This is especially true in regard to tomato plants. There are thousands of people who plant tomatoes only—nothing else. They have learned the value of ripe tomatoes in their back yard and to get these a little expense is no consideration.

This class of buyers is eager for earliness. They are willing to run a risk and the first warm day in the spring brings calls for tomato plants, although it may be a month too early for the professional gardener. These city people can cover a dozen or two of plants and even if they should lose them the damage is small. We have in some backward seasons sold to the same parties three times. There is no use to argue with them—if we don't furnish the plants someone else will. And many city lots are so protected that early planting is possible. Therefore the plant grower should aim to get the early trade, as it is the most profitable.

We have before in these columns called attention to berry boxes as a fine receptacle for plants. These quart baskets or boxes are easily obtained, are cheap, clean and satisfactory to the buyer. They contain all the earth and all the roots and if the purchaser is unable to plant at once he can hold the plants a few days to suit his case.

To put up nice box plants we must use rich earth. A good part of spent hot bed manure is excellent. Use water sparingly to get firm plants and avoid chills on cold nights. We screen the earth, and set a greenhouse bench or hot bed full of empty boxes, then fill with a scoop shovel and level off. The seedlings are dibbled in evenly to present a nice basket. We use six plants in some and 12 in others to suit different people. The seedlings should have a nice character leaf and be sturdy; such will develop into nice stock in from three to four weeks; more than that is risky as the plants get yellow if held too long.

The three best varieties of tomatoes are Detroit, Beauty and Ponderosa.

People want a purple tomato of excellent quality for table use. While the dwarfs, such as Dwarf Champion and Dwarf Stone make excellent plants, they are not desirable from a fruiting standpoint. We make shallow crates to hold six baskets and market in this shape for convenient handling.

Among our customers is a large department store. They sell them on small commission. Being centrally located, on all car lines, and open all day, they are excellent distributors and the arrangement has proved a success for all parties—the seller, buyer and distributor. Often when the weather is favorable we are unable to deliver them fast enough. Each basket receives a paper label neatly printed so that each buyer is sure to get what is wanted. We allow six weeks from date of sowing to date of sale and sow several lots a week apart for succession.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

WYOMISSING, PA.—Bertrand H. Farr has just acquired 70 acres additional for nursery purposes within 10 minutes' walk of his present propagating plant.

BOSKOOP, HOLLAND—The firm of Van Balen & Co. has been merged with that of Felix & Dykhuis. J. Dykhuis will now devote all his time to the American trade, Alb. van Balen to the European trade, while B. E. C. Felix will give his attention to the nursery work.

Meneray Nursery Ordered Sold.

The nursery owned by F. W. Meneray, Council Bluffs, Ia., and which has been in the hands of a receiver for several months, has been ordered sold to satisfy a judgment of nearly $60,000 against the company in favor of the First National Bank of that city. The judgment is based on promissory notes given by the nursery company for loans made by the bank from December 27, 1911, to August 15, 1912. The stock and real estate will be sold as a unit. The property includes 46 city lots on which the offices and a part of the nursery are located, nearly 50 acres of growing stock and 500,000 apple grafts being grown on contract by a Missouri firm.

Reed Wins Nursery Suit.

As a result of a decision of a jury in the United States circuit court, state inspectors who are in the habit of condemning nursery stock on the ground of alleged communicable disease will hereafter in all probability be sure of their grounds before taking drastic action. The case in question was that of W. C. Reed, owner of the Vincennes Nurseries, Vincennes, Ind., against F. L. Rounsevell, formerly deputy state entomologist of Colorado. The suit was brought in Denver and the plaintiff was awarded damages in the sum of $152.

Mr. Reed charged that the inspector had willfully destroyed approximately 10,000 apple trees shipped to Arapahoe county. Mr. Rounsevell alleged that they were affected with crown gall and other dangerous diseases. The suit was filed nearly three years ago. The American Association of Nurserymen and the Western Association of Nurserymen took an interest in the case and helped to push it to a successful conclusion.

Nurserymen generally have awaited the outcome with a great deal of anxiety as it was felt that if Mr. Reed lost his case inspectors might condemn trees at will and entail a loss of thousands of dollars. The suit was for $6,500, but the verdict and not the amount of damages was the principal thing at stake. Judge Lewis in instructing the jury, stated that the plaintiff's witnesses had given evidence to prove that root knot on the apple was not a disease and was neither injurious nor contagious. If the jury found this to be the case it should find for Mr. Reed. The jury was out two days before reaching a decision.

TAKE THE HINT.

The successful man in business keeps cool. Don't cry, don't worry about hard times, don't lose your head. Just keep calm and think of your old friend in Philadelphia. His name, Godfrey Aschmann, is not forgotten and is a name in the mind of every florist who dealt with him last Easter. He is more active than ever. He will take care of you this Easter, 1913. His big stock of fine plants and his low prices will pull you through at all times.

Therefore Prepare for Easter And Come Direct to the Factory. A Great Factory of Live Stock That Never Ceases.

Twenty-five years' experience in shipping Easter plants—well-known, popular from the Atlantic to Pacific Oceans. Our shipments of Easter plants reach every city and state of the United States, Mexico, Canada, and as far as Cuba.

Azalea Indica.

Is another specialty of ours, inspected personally by myself on my yearly trip to Europe at our grower's establishment in Belgium, who is a specialist in cultivating Azaleas over there. Only the best American sorts are raised and imported for me.

What is the name of the Best Pink Azalea? Mme. Van der Cruyssen is the name.

Originated by the well-known Azalea specialist, Mr. Van der Cruyssen, of Ghent, Belgium. Millions are raised every year of this so world-wide known popular pink Azalea and are shipped out to every portion of the globe from Belgium. On account of scarcity in Belgium of this variety, we were only able to obtain a limited quantity of the smaller sizes; therefore big sizes must accompany the order for Van der Cruyssen. Have 3000 Van der Cruyssen.

Azaleas will be scarce this Easter so secure your order early.

In connection with Lilies and Azaleas, kindly try to buy a few other plants.

Enchantress Supreme

THE Best Sport from Enchantress up-to-date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguishes its parent.

Color a light salmon pink — a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.

A good all around Carnation that retains its color at all seasons.

Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster.

The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

Dorner's Novelties For Spring of 1914

We Offer Three Tried and True Commercial Varieties:
Champion, Scarlet, Yellowstone and Yellow Prince, Yellow

Champion—Bright scarlet, large size, good form, bright color and strong stems. An extraordinary early free habit that will never fail to give a heavy Christmas cut. Champion was only one of eight good scarlet varieties in a test; its superior qualities over the others made it an easy winner.

Price: $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000; $237.50 per 2500; $450.00 per 5000.

Yellowstone and Yellow Prince—The only two yellow carnations that we have found profitable, commercial varieties in their color.—Size, stem, color, growth, earliness and freedom of bloom is all of the commercial standard. The want of good yellow carnations will cause a big demand for this stock and with the orders already booked, we expect to be sold up long before the close of the 1914 season.

Price: $6.00 per 50; $10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000; $187.50 per 2500; $350.00 per 5000.

We have booked quantities of Champion, Yellowstone and Yellow Prince for Spring 1914 delivery and to secure early stock, we advise you not to wait, but to place your order now.

GET INTERESTED, MR. FLORIST, THIS IS FOR YOU!

If you contemplate painting your house this year, it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The Lutton reputation for high class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. Some of the largest growers in the country will testify to this fact.

PAYING HOUSES

ARE after all what you are looking for. There is little satisfaction in the fact that you are trying out some new schemes when the returns in hard cash do not justify the outlay. OUR HOUSES ARE PAYING HOUSES. Besides they are modern, convenient and lasting. The owners of the above range, which was built as per our plans and with our material, increased their glass area within a few years to five times the original size, and there are others just like them.

WEATHER DISCOURAGING.

Severe weather of the last week has been discouraging to the grower and is making the retailer hustle to secure enough stock to supply the brisk demand. Funerals have been numerous and considering the fact that the Lenten season is here, the demand for other flowers is active. American Beauty roses are very scarce and go at $8 to $10 a dozen. Other roses are $2 to $2.50. Sweet peas are excellent.

NOTES.

We are pleased to know that Harry Miller, who has until recently been with an eastern greenhouse construction company, is looking for a location near Kansas City. We hope he will soon have a few thousand feet of glass. We need the product of many more places.

Harry Smith has completed his new house, 24x150 feet, at Englewood. Two more the same size will be rushed through. Mr. Smith is one of the younger florists and is a hustler. His products in the cut flower line are first class.

The florists' supply traveling representatives are here in bunches. It is a game of tag when five happen in on the same day.

The Sawvil plant is sure of a heavy carnation crop for Easter. They seem to have a "corner" on green goods in this section.

Wm. Bartien is taking an extended rest in care of a physician. We hope he will regain his former good health soon.

J. H. Boyd has completed a water-works system at his Spring Branch place.

What's in a name? Abraham Lincoln is on the pay roll at The Rosery. K. C. M.

AUBURN, NEB.—The work of rebuilding the burned portions of the Burlington View Greenhouses, C. G. Milam, proprietor, is practically completed.

The Way We Frame Our Gables.

A Greenhouse Construction Co.—not L. & B. Co.—last Fall built for a Providence Grower what he called “a sample house.”

It was supposed to be something very fine. I saw the owner last week. He was far from enthusiastic. He said some very forcible things about that sample house—the kind of things we would feel very badly to have said about one of ours.

Among other things that “irritated” him was the falling out of one gable, and smashing all the glass. He now has it propped up and braced so it looks like a scaffolding for a concrete wall.

Our gables are thoroughly iron framed to start with—then they are securely bolted to the purlins in such a way that the gable strain is distributed over the entire framework of the house.

There is a terrific suction pull on big gables that must be taken care of, beyond all doubt.

The secure way we frame gables is “a sample” of the way we frame our entire house.

Mary E. ## SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A sowing of sweet peas made in pots late in March which can be transplanted outside as soon as all danger from late frosts is passed will give a crop of these flowers two or three weeks earlier than the seed sown in the ground. There is generally a time in late June and early July that the sweet peas in the greenhouses come very poor, owing to the excessive heat under glass and the infection of red spider and the early sowings outside are not yet in flower. Five or six seeds sown in a 3-inch pot and these placed on the sill or window ledge or on a hanging shelf will make nice stock for planting out after the middle of April and the advantage of those started in the greenhouse over the ones sown in the cold ground will be quickly seen upon trial. They can be grown so that they will take but little valuable room under glass and the extra expense of this and the labor in transplanting them will be more than compensated by having fine flowers at a time when most of the stock is in poor condition.

The plants that are growing inside will require considerable attention as the sun increases in power, the growth is very rapid and the vines must be kept erect or crooked flower stems will be the result. They should be gone over every day, and where the growing shoots are getting away from the supports they should be fastened to them.

Tuberous Begonias.

For certain shady locations there is no plant that makes a better showing than tuberous begonias, and for the florist that has a greenhouse leading from the office they make a most beautiful plant to have during the summer months to attract the attention of the customer at a time when greenhouses are not at their best. The bulbs should be started in 3-inch pots in a good fibrous soil with little manure, but a generous proportion of leaf mold if obtainable, the top of the bulb just even with the soil. Place them in a warm location and do not water too heavily until leaf growth starts; as soon as the leaves cover the pot transplant to 4-inch pots and the soil can then have a good amount of rotted manure incorporated in it. For bedding out purposes the 4-inch plants will be all right, but for inside growing they will have to be again shifted into 6-inch pots, being sure to give good drainage. An inch or more of broken crocks and charcoal is the practice of the best growers. Careful watering and shade during summer is all that is required.

Bedding Plants.

The plants for bedding out in the spring will take not only much of the plantsman's time, but will keep demanding more room, for the growth from now on will be rapid and unless constantly watched and cared for the plants will quickly get crowded and much of the stock injured. The final shift of the geraniums in the northern section of the country may be delayed until the first of April, but the plants should not be allowed to get badly potbound, and they should be given plenty of growing room. The propagating bed should be full of cuttings of the more rapid growing plants and the seedlings will have to be potted as soon as of proper size. The cannas and other bulbs that have been started should be potted and given good location for growing on. Now is the time to take account of stock and see of what kinds there is going to be a shortage and of what there will probably be an over supply and obtain the first and dispose of the second. This is the time to buy, for the stocks are large and shipments can be guaranteed, and the prices are low compared to what they will be a month hence. The amount of stock that annually goes to waste is large and a little foresight will prevent much of it. Every summer some growers throw away thousands of plants that have cost much in labor and should have made returns. Auction sales in some sections are the means of disposing of much of this stock, but this is generally at low prices. This stock can most all of it be disposed of by a little judicious advertising and letting the other fellows know where it can be obtained. An attendant at any plant sale in early spring will find many growers looking for all kinds of stock. It is often quite difficult to know just how much of each kind of bedding stock is wanted, but as soon as an over supply is noted let the other growers know where they can obtain it, and place a price on it that will guarantee a sale. It is much better to move it at some price than to throw it away. The wide-awake, up-to-date growers clean up their stock every year.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen grown from seed sown last fall will now be nice, stocky little plants if properly grown and should be large enough to transplant to 2½ or 3-inch pots. The soil should be live fibrous loam with about one-third leaf mold, and in mixing a liberal sprinkling of sand should be included. In potting, the small bulb should be so placed that the soil just covers it; many leave the bulb out of the soil, but best results are obtained with the young stock to leave the bulb in the soil. Later after the bulb has grown large and mature, this is not so necessary. The plants should be placed in a cool house and if possible near the glass and where they can have all the ventilation possible. Just as soon as safe they should be removed to frames outside and plunged in the soil even with the rim of the pot. The cyclamen will not tolerate poor drainage and if anything happens to block the drainage the plant quickly sickens. This sometimes happens where the pots are sunk in the soil and is often caused by angle worms. Where these are seen or the appearance of lumps on the top of the soil denotes their presence, they should be removed at once. In the final potting, be sure and place plenty of crocks in the bottom of the pot.

Salvias.

There are few more popular plants for bedding purposes than the salvia and when properly grown they are a great ornament to a garden either as bed by themselves or as an edging for cannas or other tall plants, the dwarf varieties being especially adapted for this purpose. To make a showing in mid-summer the plants should be started early either by cuttings or seeds so that the plants at this time should be large enough for a 3-inch pot and should have been pinched back at least once and beginning to branch. These can be potted into 4-inch pots in April and will be showing bud by the time for planting them outside in June. Such plants of course cannot be sold as cheaply as the late sown seedlings that are grown closely together, and allowed to run up to a single stem, but it will not take so many of the former plants to fill the same space and the bed will be in flower through the summer and fall while with the latter too often there is no bloom until just before frost, and when the first frosts are early the plants are not in bloom but a few weeks. The early plants are much more satisfactory to the customer and will cost but little more owing to the larger space which they will cover during the season.

The Easter Window.

Place on a raised platform in about the center at the back of your show window an immense Easter egg made of white carnations. Ornament the tapering end with a cluster of lily of the valley in a small circle at top and place in the circle a little duck; have about six or eight larger ducks arranged in front of it in tandem style, to which narrow white satin ribbons are attached at the head; or tied around the neck of each duck with long streamers extending up to the little duckling nestling on the egg in the circle of lily of the valley. Attach the streamers to the beak of the small duck. At the back arrange clusters of Easter lilies in garden effect. Two small wheels can also be made and placed at either side of the egg to give it still more the appearance of an Easter chariot drawn by the ducklings. These wheels will look pretty made of the lily of the valley. Use green moss as an under setting, or better still, the gray moss under the design and green moss around it to give the garden effect. Group pink and white tulips at one side of the window, using small ferns as a finish.

As selling novelties arrange a few Dresden china vases with lily of the valley, using a little boxwood for a green finish, nestling a little duckling in the middle of the flowers. The ducklings in this case can be attached to a long stiff wire which can be wound around each foot of the duckling and long enough to thrust in the soil. The small round baskets of pink or yellow straw—if you have none of this shade you can easily tint them yourself—look pretty planted with a single pink tulip in the center surrounded with white tulips; and vice versa; that is, a pink tulip in the center surrounded with white hyacinths. If a still further embellishment is desired a small pink satin nest of ribbon can be made by twisting the ribbon in strands to imitate a bird's nest and arranged with a little duckling in one corner of the basket, using strands of pink ribbon from the nest to gather around the basket and finish with a rosette on the opposite side of basket.

riety of different colors of yellow tulips using some of the double deep orange specimens and some of the single yellows and a few variegated with a boxwood finish. Those brown Japanese wastebaskets will look well planted with a fine blue hydrangea, using a blue ribbon the color of the hydrangeas as a finish. The rhododendrons are also effectively arranged in tubs of dark brown or copper combined with hydrangeas of the pink variety. The old fashion window boxes are always good sellers. That is, the small basket designs with cut flowers, using a few tulips, hyacinths, freesia and narcissus with a border of violets, using the violet foliage as a finish.

A word about the Easter nosegay. The corsage bouquets are of good size and made flat and round, using as a rule two kinds of flowers. One recently seen had a deep yellow marigold in the center surrounded with Prince de Bulgarie roses. A gold flower holder was used and gold cord with tassels finished this pretty arrangement. Another had a red rose in the center surrounded with red butterfly sweet peas; the holder in this instance was also of gold, but one of silver would have looked equally well tied with silver cord. Still another had a gardenia in the center surrounded with pale lavender sweet peas with an outer circle of lily of the valley. Another pretty arrangement was of lily of the valley, stevia and stephanotis in a sectional effect surrounded with maidenhair encased in a white lace paper holder. One made of cattleya orchids was surrounded with lavender sweet peas. The popular fancy for violet corsage bouquets is always in combinations with some other choice flower, either an orchid, a specimen rose or lily of the valley. One seen recently had a cluster of pansies in the center and a circle of pansies surrounded the outer edge. It was finished with a lace tissue of lavender gauze.

White Fly.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Is there any possible way to exterminate the white fly without using hydrocyanic acid gas?

J. H. T.

The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture recommends hydrocyanic-acid gas, but where the use of this is impossible or for some reason undesirable, sprays are recommended as follows: "Among the sprays, the best brands of whale-oil soap, used in the proportion of one to one and one-half ounces per gallon of water, have been found to destroy all of the white flies except the eggs, a small percentage of the nearly mature pupæ, and from 25 to 50 per cent of the adults which escape the spray by flying from the plants. It is not advisable to syringe tomato plants in greenhouses at any time, when avoidable, as syringing interferes with pollination and produces a damp atmosphere which promotes rot, but the injury by syringing may be as nothing compared with that which is caused daily by the insects. When the use of hydrocyanic-acid gas is impractical, an all-night fumigation with a tobacco extract is recommended, followed during the next day by a syringing with a solution of whale-oil soap or its equivalent."

The Gladiolus and Its Culture.

Paper read by B. Hammond Tracy before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, March 8, 1913.

When I received the invitation to address you on the subject of "The Gladiolus and Its Culture," I was very glad to accept, as it affords me just one more opportunity to interest the flower-loving public in this magnificent flower. During recent years much has been said and written in regard to its history and development, but I shall confine myself in my talk this afternoon to its culture and uses. The gladiolus commends itself to every one, because of its easy culture and its long period of bloom. No flower should be planted and neglected. Even though the weeds are not cleaned from the bed, they are bound to find a way to the surface, and with a spike strong enough to be found amongst the weeds. So for this reason, many a gardener who has at times to neglect his garden, or at least parts of it, finds the gladiolus will survive and come forth with an abundance of bloom.

In order to have a long season, it is well to plant the bulbs very close together in flats or boxes of loam, or better yet, in cocoanut loam. You can gain at least a month in this way. They transplant very easily and all that is needed is moisture to induce the bulb to start roots. It is better to keep the boxes in a partially shaded position, and not too warm, so as to start root growth rather than the spike. When the spike starts, as it always does on some varieties, in the early spring, it is well, when planting, to clean off all the husk, as it starts roots much quicker than when planted with the husk on. In fact it is always better to clean off the husk when planting after May 1, but before this I should advise leaving the "jacket" on, as the ground is cold and the bulb seems to do better if not entirely exposed to the cold soil. Bulbs can be planted in the open as soon as the frost is out of the ground, without danger, for by the time the spike reaches the top of the ground all danger of frosts will be past. The bulbs which you have started in the boxes should not be planted out until all danger of frost is past. You will find it quite an advantage to have some ready to plant in spots where some seed has failed to germinate, or in some corner in front of shrubbery.

By continuous planting at intervals of two weeks, up to June 15 or even as late as July 1, one can have a continuous succession of bloom from early July until frosts. A better way for a bed of continuous bloom is to plant all at one time, but different sized bulbs. I mean by this, say for instance, if you were planting America, have some bulbs that do not quite measure one inch in diameter, and then running up to the very large bulbs. By so doing you would have perpetual bloom, for the large bulbs would bloom first and the smaller ones follow along as fast as they mature. This does away with making several plantings at different times, which is not nearly so convenient, especially if you want to have something planted in amongst the gladioli.

It is not necessary to buy the most expensive varieties, especially when one wants them for cut flowers or for garden decoration. In order to have a large named collection, one must buy the more expensive varieties, as new and rare kinds must be expensive. A good mixture gives splendid results, but if one cares to carry out a color scheme it is much better to buy named varieties of a certain color, but in this case also, it is not necessary to produce the effect with the most expensive varieties. One of the most essential things to know is the habit of growth of the different varieties, so that you may select something which will give the desired effect. If cut bloom is wanted as well as garden decoration, the varieties with slender and more or less twisted and crooked stems will give the best results for vase arrangement. The flowers will answer a double purpose when grown in the garden if, after two or three flowers have opened, you cut the spike and take it into the house for further development. In this way you have the garden effect for a time and the pleasure in the house as well, at the same time keeping your garden in a neat and tidy condition. When any flower is left in the garden to bloom to its limit, it gives a ragged and unkempt appearance.

When color alone is wanted in the garden, the best varieties for this purpose are those with a strong, vigorous growth of spike, as these will stand up without staking and will bloom almost to the end before it has a ragged appearance. A few of the varieties for this purpose are Independence, Mrs. Francis King, Dawn and America in the pink section, while lighter varieties giving splendid effects are Jean Dieulafoy, I. S. Hendrickson and Augusta. In yellows, Sunrise, Canary Bird, and Madam Lemoinier or Golden Queen. In purples, Baron Hulot, Royale and Scarsdale for mauve. Harvard and Cracker Jack for rich dark reds, and Brencleyensis and Mrs. Beecher, also Princeps, for brilliant reds. For a color combination, you will find nothing better than a planting of America, Sunrise and Baron Hulot; another good one is a bed of Cracker Jack, Isaac Buchanan and Augusta. These same combinations make most effective bouquets. There are many other combinations that are good for massing, but I have mentioned those which I consider superior and yet at a moderate price. I am much in favor of large plantings, and for this reason advocate the more reasonable priced ones. Too much cannot be said of the sterling qualities of Independence. It is such a remarkably strong variety, and the color holds so well in sun and storm, as well as the flowers. The foliage is always a deep rich green, in perfect contrast with the brilliant rose pink of the flowers.

GLADIOLUS ROCHESTER WHITE

But few people plant their bulbs close enough together. It is much better to do so, as they help support each other, and when in bloom you have a wealth of color and the foliage covers up the bare ground. This effect cannot be produced when they are planted too far apart and give a straggly appearance. Let me repeat again—that to get the best results, whether your bulbs are mixtures or named varieties, you must plant bulbs of considerably different size, some large, some small. You will get better results and you will get a longer period of bloom. Yet I am afraid if your seedsman should make you such a shipment, without explanation, he would receive word from you that some of the bulbs sent were too small. Whenever it is possible for me to explain this to my customers I do so, but otherwise it would be impractical for us to make a shipment without grading the bulbs as to size. The essential thing is that the bulbs are of blooming age rather than size.

Splendid effects may be produced by planting a bed of snapdragons and gladioli, setting out the plants at the same time you plant the bulbs, with due regard for the combination of color when in bloom. The bulbs will soon come up, the snapdragons will cover the ground so that a few bulbs will cover a greater space. It is not well to plant bulbs among flowers which give too much shade to the bulb in the early stages of growth; that is to say, in peony beds or in thick rose beds. If the rose bushes are scattered in a bed there is no better flower to grow among them than the gladiolus. They will do well planted among almost any annual and much better garden effects can be derived by planting in this manner. But you must bear in mind that the bulb must have the advantage of being started before the other flowers shade the ground.

When the gladiolus blooms are wanted purely for cut flowers the best place for planting is in the vegetable garden, planting them two or three inches apart in the row, rows far enough apart to permit of thorough cultivation, and at least five or six inches deep, according to the size of the bulb. To get the best results you must plant deep, for the new bulb forms on top of the one you plant before it blooms, and in order to get the ground support for the roots as well as for the flower spike it must be planted deep. I plant a great many of my bulbs eight inches deep, especially when I want exhibition blooms. When planted shallow, the first wind storm blows over the spike, naturally loosening the bulb and breaking off some of the roots, thereby losing vitality and giving inferior bloom, if it blooms at all. When planted deep it takes a longer time for the spike to reach the top of the ground and the soil should be worked over and kept loose. I do not know that this is any more essential for the gladiolus than it is for any flower. I have said nothing about the preparation of the soil, as they will do well in any garden, in any soil, prepared as any garden should be. I wish that the gladiolus might be grown this year in every garden, and I also wish that my suggestions as to planting and cutting might be followed, for I feel sure that the results would guarantee satisfaction.

The Gardens of Bulgaria.

The Bulgarians are really the Americans of Europe. They have our system of universal education; they resemble us in their mercantile pursuits, while they are far in advance of us in gardening. Readers know that I believe that one of the greatest opportunities which we Americans have to reduce our cost of living, is the "back yard." I therefore urge on all occasions the planting of back-yard gardens. If I could only take you to Bulgaria and show you some real back-yard gardens! These people are simply to-day fighting for their back-yard gardens. The men who have been directing the affairs of Bulgaria for the past thirty years are practically all graduates of Roberts College which was established and has long been maintained by Americans. Most all of the teachers in this college have been Americans and our ways and ideas have permeated Bulgaria from one end to the other.—Roger W. Babson in New York Times.

THE CARNATION.

The Young Stock.

The young stock for the coming season is the most important item to the grower at this time of the year, for an abundant stock of healthy young plants will be required in order to keep up the standard, and there is a much more comfortable feeling on the part of the grower if there is likely to be some surplus in the field at lifting time than where there is a shortage. There is much difference between varieties in the matter of producing cuttings, some sorts giving an abundant supply without regard to the soil in which they are planted, while others will give few cuttings at any time, and less than usual when they are grown on light soil. Where space can be spared for the purpose it doubtless pays to cut back some plants for cuttings only, thus insuring some strong stock from those varieties that do not otherwise produce many cuttings, the cut-back plants devoting their entire strength to producing cuttings and giving the latter at the time they are most needed.

The end of February is quite late enough to put in cuttings, for that does not give much time for the plants to grow before they are put out in the field, and if one could arrange it so, it would be better if the last lot of cuttings were not put in the sand later than February 1. Clean sand, sufficient moisture, protection from sun and wind, and a temperature as near to 50° as possible at all times are the essentials in propagating carnations; and, given some short jointed and sturdy cuttings that are not too hard at the bottom, there should be little difficulty in rooting them in about three weeks. Referring to the difficulty of getting a sufficient supply of cuttings from certain varieties, it may be noted that Pink Delight is one of the varieties that makes very few cuttings on the flower stems, and indeed some growers find some difficulty in rooting those they do get, perhaps from the fact that this variety frequently makes a rather hard heel at the base of the young shoots. If this hard heel is cut away, there is much less trouble in rooting the cuttings.

White Wonder is another of those wiry growers that make few cuttings and anyone requiring much stock of this fine white would do well to cut back some plants for the purpose. White Wonder has proved to be a very satisfactory variety in many places this season, and seems to be a better grower than its forebear, White Perfection, though not quite so symmetrical a flower as the latter variety. Gloriosa is the finest exhibition pink up to this time, having a lovely color and a magnificent stem, but in most places there is found some difficulty in making a good plant of this variety, with the result that it has not proved to be a remunerative carnation for the average grower. There are doubtless some soils that will give better results with Gloriosa than has been had in this section, and there are also some growers that may make it pay, but the average establishment has not made much money from this remarkable carnation. Rosette seems to be gaining friends as it becomes better known and is a striking cerise color. It is a good grower, healthy and strong, and although there are some off-colored and imperfect flowers to be found on this variety at times, yet it is practically a non-bursting variety, the flowers having few petals in the center.

Rosette is of fair size, stiff stem and lights up well at night, and on the whole there are several reasons for found in the discard in numerous establishments. Delhi is another scarlet that does not quite reach up, for while it is free enough in growth, in fact, rather grassy, yet the color is not bright enough for a discriminating market. There is still room for a good scarlet, except in those localities where Beacon does its best, and where that happy condition exists there is not much room for scarlets for commercial purposes, outside of that variety.

Society of American Florists.

MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION

Minneapolis, Minn., is making most elaborate preparations for the 1913 convention of the Society of American Florists which is to take place August 19-22. An efficient local organization has been formed to take charge of the arrangements for the meetings and all its various committees are hard at work upon the details. These committees have enlisted the co-operation of the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association, the chief civic and commercial body of the city. Everything will be in readiness for the most successful convention in the history of the trade when the first delegates arrive. Officers and directors of the national society met in Minneapolis in February, and in company with the local committee, visited the National Guard armory and coliseum, which will be the scene of the exhibition and the sessions of the convention. The national officials approved the arrangements being made by the local committee, including a number of surprises being prepared for the visitors. At the time of these conferences, it was estimated that fully two thousand persons would be attracted to Minneapolis by the gathering of the florists.

Minneapolis is famous as a year-around convention city, but its unparalleled natural beauties are at their best in August, when the florists will be the city's guests. All of the famous show spots of the city are easily available from the business center and a most attractive visit is promised to those persons who come for the sessions of the florists. The city is located at the geographical center of North America. Its excellent transportation facilities make it easily accessible from all parts of the United States. The trains on the lines running between Minneapolis and Chicago surpass in equipment any steam trains to be found anywhere in the world. Minneapolis always has been a magnet for conventions and for tourists. Its accommodations for visitors are ample for the largest delegation. Its hotels have kept pace with the growth of traffic and today the city is better prepared than ever before comfortably to accommodate visitors. Hotels of other years have been enlarged and improved generally, while five splendid new hostleries, costing about five million dollars have been erected in the past five years. One of these new hotels cost more to build and equip in proportion to its size, than any hotel in the United States.

Seldom is a city endowed with such natural beauties as those boasted by Minneapolis, and able to attain the prominence achieved by Minneapolis as a business center. It is the commercial capital of the great American Northwest, a region exceeding in extent the combined area of Great Brit-growing it, though it must be remembered that cerise is not so popular a color as pink. Among the variegated varieties Benora takes the first place at present, having good form, good size, fine stem and attractive coloring, though like all variegated varieties is in limited demand in most markets. St. Nicholas has given some fine flowers, a really beautiful scarlet when good, but seems a little shy on constitution and for this reason will be ain, France and Germany. Fifty years ago, the site of Minneapolis was an Indian reservation; today, it is a great progressive American city, with a population of three hundred and twenty thousand. In the beginning, Minneapolis was a grain and lumber center; today, it is the greatest grain market in the world and the largest producer of flour. Its mills turn out annually sixteen million barrels of flour. Its pre-eminence as a milling city has given it the name "Flour City." Of late years with its development of vacant lot gardens and with its introduction of hanging gardens in the down-town district, it also has won honest claim to the title of "Flower City."

The city owes its existence to the presence of the famous St. Anthony Falls. Power furnished from this source made it a great manufacturing city. Its trade in grain and lumber naturally made it a center for the business of the vast region it served, and it has developed into a city of diversified manufactures with a large wholesale business. The volume of the city's jobbing trade is three hundred million dollars per annum. Recognized, "Minneapolis territory" extends from Lake Michigan to the Pacific Coast, as well as far into Canada and into the American Southwest. Minneapolis has in Nicollet avenue one of the most famous retail streets in the world. It is one of the few main shopping arteries not traversed by a street car line. All the streets of the city are wide and excellently kept. Its retail trade runs far into the millions and its shops are equipped and stocked as excellently as those of the largest cities in the world. But Minneapolis has not sacrificed its natural beauties in its development of commercial strength.

It has been called the city of lakes and gardens. There are twenty lakes within the city limits and over a hundred within a radius of twenty-five miles. Over three thousand six hundred acres or over one-ninth of the entire area of the city is embraced in the park system. It has fifty miles of continuous boulevard, which skirts the shores of four of the famous in-town-lakes continuing to Minnehaha Falls, thence along the shores of the beautiful Mississippi Gorge to the campus of the famous University of Minnesota.

Four interurban car lines connect Minneapolis with St. Paul, forming the Twin Cities with a population of six hundred thousand. These car lines take the visitors to Fort Snelling, the historic army post, to the state capitol, to the famed Como Park and to the Minnesota state fair grounds, home of the "greatest state fair in the world." Minneapolis also has interurban car lines which extend to various points on the shores of Lake Minnetonka, which with its beautiful islands, bays, and wooded heights, and its more than one hundred miles of irregular shore line, is one of the most picturesque lakes in America. All these attractions and scores more await the summer visitor to Minneapolis, which is generally considered to be one of the most beautiful cities in the entire world.

Third International Flower Show.

NEW GRAND CENTRAL PALACE, NEW YORK.

The management has made the following dates for meetings of the cooperating societies: April 8, American Rose Society; April 17, Society of American Florists; April 9, American Carnation Society; April 10, National Association of Gardeners; April 11, American Sweet Pea Society; April 12, American Gladiolus Society. The meetings will be held at 10:30 a. m. each day. Each afternoon and evening during the show the lecture room will be reserved for public lectures on horticultural subjects. In addition to the lecturers already announced, Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., will lecture on "The Gladiolus;" Arthur Herrington, of Madison, N. J., on "The Why and Wherefores of Tree Planting;" and L. W. C. Tutthill, of New York, on "Greenhouses and Frames for Amateurs."

Members in good standing of the Rose, Carnation, Sweet Pea and Gladiolus Societies and of the S. A. F. will be furnished with tickets or badges admitting them to the show at all times. The show will be opened at 6 p. m. on Saturday, April 5, with an appropriate ceremony, and on other days will be open from 10 a. m. until 10 p. m. Posters and hangers, in colors, are now in course of distribution. The advertising forms for the official program will close on March 15, so that anyone who has not already taken space in the same and intends doing so should lose no time in making his wants known to John Young, secretary, 54 West Twenty-Eighth Street, New York, who also is still able to furnish a few excellent locations for exhibits in the trade exhibition.

Boston.*GENERAL CONDITIONS POOR.

There have been a few "spurts" in the market this week, but the general tendency has been a lagging market, with plenty of material. Sweet peas and violets are the hardest hit. Carnations have advanced somewhat from last week. Roses are more plentiful, but the quality is downward from what it was. Friday morning it was three degrees above zero and it is now sixty degrees, which shows what New England can do in the weather line.

NOTES.

We were seated in a train leaving Boston one day, when we overheard a remark passed by one of two ladies, who mentioning a certain retail flower store in New England, said: "The roses I got from Blank's in my home town surpassed anything I have had given me on my travels. They keep longer. Those presented to me on various occasions are wilted the next morning, while Mr. Blank's are fresh for almost a week." Here is a woman high up in the social world, known from Maine to California, a member of the various woman's clubs, making this statement. Something is wrong some where. This will cause trouble and hurt our pocketbooks some day. Some wise man should take it up and make some suggestions.

The Co-operative Flower Market, Park street, will hold a flower show April 12. There was a good deal of enthusiasm shown upon the subject Saturday last. There were two cups offered and of a good standard value. A number of the retail men have offered prizes and have signified their willingness to compete in classes offered for them. It is to be held under the auspices of the market, but two of the salesmen of the market are doing some hustling already. They are B. McGinty and J. Cohen. The latter has the promise of many entries.

The Gardeners and Florists' Club visited the greenhouses of the W. W. Egan Co., Waverly, March 8. Quite an array of Easter stock is grown here. Genistas, lilies and rambler roses are fine. Herman Bertsch is among the top notchers in the line of pot plants. Anything with the Edgar Co. mark on it means quality, and this year is no exception.

We met in the market Saturday W. Robertson, Melrose, Mass. Mr. Robertson is a practical boiler maker and he enjoys the confidence of a great many in the trade in a large part of New England, having installed both power and heating boilers in many greenhouse plants and he tells us he has yet to hear a complaint.

Robins, spring poems and pussy willows have appeared.

MAC.

Buffalo.*TRADE NORMAL.

Weather conditions the past week have been what this city is accustomed to—from 8 below zero to almost summer heat. Trade is normal. Bulb stock is plentiful. All thoughts are on Easter.

CLUB ELECTION.

The event of last week was the annual election and banquet of the Buffalo Florists' Club. With the exception of the flower show, the administration of President Grever had been rather quiet. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: William Legg, president; F. C. W. Brown, vice-president; E. C. Brueckner, treasurer; E. Douglas Savage, secretary; Wallace Eiss, financial secretary; J. F. Cowell, Jos. Streit, W. A. Adams, trustees. After the election, the meeting adjourned to the banquet room of the Bismarck, where a fine banquet had been prepared. L. H. Neubeck was toastmaster. Toasts were responded to by: W. F. Kastling; Prof. Cowell; F. C. W. Brown; W. H. Grever; Wm. Legg, president elect; Jos. Streit; Robert Scott; Wm. Sievers; Wm. Brooks; W. A. Adams and J. F. Von Fiebelkorn. It was one of the most enjoyable banquets the club has had and all went home enthusiastic and much pleased with the activity of the club.

NOTES.

David Scott of Corfu has taken the greenhouses of the Wm. Scott Co, at the same place. He will devote all his time to the growing for the wholesale trade. Good wishes are extended to him by all.

S. A. Anderson will have a public inspection of his Easter stock at his Elmwood avenue greenhouse, Palm Sunday.

St. Louis.*EASTER OUTLOOK PROMISING.

The past week we have had cold, dark and stormy weather. Saturday was a welcome change to something like spring. There has been an increase in the supply of roses and carnations. Sweet peas, especially short stems, are still plentiful but long stem and fancy grades are selling well. Owing to the recent dark weather the supply of violets has somewhat shortened up and prices stiffened somewhat Saturday. Spring store openings helped considerably. The Easter outlook is promising, the supply of blooming plants is expected to be equal to the demand. Asparagus sprengeri and plumosus and smilax are selling well; also leucothoe leaves and Mexican ivy.

NOTES.

C. A. Kuehn, we are happy to announce, is in harness again and everyone is pleased to see him restored to health. His stock of flowers are among the best and his reputation for good stock and fair dealing is known everywhere. A new automobile has been added.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has increased its business to such an extent that they have improved their delivery system. Their immense stock has been unloaded very satisfactorily, bad weather, however, curtailing the sales of violets and sweet peas.

Geo. H. Angermueller always seems hard at work. His stock of flowers is fine and buyers are always anxious to get a line on his immense supply stock, which is among the best seen anywhere.

Frank Windler is a very busy man these days taking advance orders. This firm has a system of cleaning out daily. Their well filled counters are pretty nearly always cleaned out by noon.

Joseph Wors, son of C. N. Wors, is now in the employ of Alexander Siegel. It is rumored Joe is thinking of taking a life partner, as he is seen carrying carnations very frequently.

William P. Stark, former manager of the Stark Bros.' Nurseries, is asking a receiver for the firm. Edgar N. Stark, Lloyd C. Stark and Eugene Duncan are named defendants.

Joseph Zunz, one of the able staff of the Wm. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., is looking very cheery. It's an eight-pound girl.

John Schreiber, representing the Foley Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, spent the past week visiting the local greenhouses.

The florists' club will meet this week and a carnation exhibition will be staged at Smith's after the club meeting.

H. G. Berning has a splendid supply of roses and especially fine carnations. Henry unloads at all times.

The Bentzen Floral Co. is out with a new machine. Just in time for St. Patrick parade.

Otto G. Koenig has been nominated on the republican ticket for the city council.

Al. Gumz, we are happy to state, has returned to work.

Cincinnati.*MARKET CONDITIONS GOOD.

As a whole, last week's market was a very good one. The first few days almost everything sold nicely at good stiff prices. Thursday and Friday showed a decided falling off, but Saturday came back strong and good clearances were effected at fair prices. The receipts, contrary to expectations, are again on the increase and are coming in so strongly that unless the active demand keeps up there may be a break in prices. Shipping business is very good. The rose receipts are large and include some splendid offerings in Pink and White Killarney and Richmond. The American Beauty rose supply has let up considerably and as a result good stock is selling at sight. The carnation cut is larger than predicted a fortnight ago. The good stock of quality finds a waiting market. The supply of gigantium and callas is somewhat larger than requirements, and as a result the market is easy. Smaller bulbous stock, such as tulips, daffodils and the like are of very good quality and have been having a fairly nice market. The call for lily of the valley is just fair. Double violets are hardly selling at any price. Single violets still have a pretty good call. The orchid offerings are elegant but the call for them is very light. The green goods market is well supplied with an elegant line of stock.

NOTES.

Ed. Fries is very fortunate in having quite a large stock of geraniums blooming at this early date. The stock is good and large, and is selling well.

J. A. Peterson has a very large number of tulips, daffodils, jonquils and Easter lilies that will be in just right for Easter.

C. E. Critchell has been having a very strong call for wire hanging baskets.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting fine Killarney and Richmond roses from the Bloomhurst Floral Co.

Visitors: AL Newman, representing the Weller Pottery, Zanesville; Sidney Wertheimer and Sam Seligman of Wertheimer Bros., New York; Geo. J. Ball, Glen Elm, Ill.; Mrs. Norval Kiger, Marietta, O.; A. #### SUPPLY AND DEMAND GOOD

With the temperature at 45° and some pleasant weather, the supply and demand are very good. Stock of all kinds is coming in much stronger, lilies, carnations and roses being the principal factors. The quality of the carnations coming in at present is certainly excellent and it is a great pleasure to work with this kind of stock. The roses are very much in evidence also, and the quality and color are coming back again. It is discouraging how American Beauties have been acting. Every day the cut is several hundred short stems. Lilies are very plentiful at present, but the quality is rather poor. Indications are that the supply will be just right for Easter. The market is very bad as regards white lilac at present and the season will soon be over. Violets are finding very few sales this season, which seems very strange, as this winter has been very mild. There is no reason why they should not sell better than last year, but they do not. A very fine quality of snapdragon has appeared and finds quick sales. Pansies and daisies are also prime factors. Very few yellow roses are coming in at present and many could be used to good advantage.

CLUB MEETING.

The last meeting of the Florists and Gardeners' Club, which was Tuesday, March 5, was one of the most successful and interesting held for sometime. We had as attractions the inauguration of Neil McCallum as president, the lantern slide lecture of Otto E. Jennings, an exhibition of the new carnations, and a lunch served in the Dutch room of the Fort Pitt hotel, after the meeting was adjourned. Mr. Jennings had every one's attention, as he told of the peculiar habits of the plants and flowers along the north shore of Lake Superior. He took the trip early in June and then went back to his starting point and retraced his route in the fall, thereby observing the same plants in the spring and fall. He also had some fine views of wild animals in that region. Among the new carnations, Wm. Eccles and Northport were the best. Both showed up magnificently and many of the old growers present expressed a desire to try them. The Chicago Carnation Co. sent The Herald, but it arrived late, and had been on the road so long that it did not do itself justice. The new carnation Comfort had been promised us, but did not show up. The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. showed nearly all the commercial varieties and all were very well done. The Dixmont Greenhouses brought some red seedlings that were well taken. The Schenley Park conservatories had a fine array of bulb stock, chenelle plants and primulas. The judges appointed awarded the following prizes: Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. J., first class certificate for carnation Wm. Eccles; Jas. D. Cockroft, Northport, N. Y., first class certificate for carnation Northport; Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, first class certificate for carnation The Herald; Dixmont Greenhouses, certificate of merit for seedling carnation. Schenley Park, cultural certificate for tulips. Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., cultural certificate for carnations. Fred Burki gave an impromptu talk on carnations in general and especially those on exhibition. He prefers White Enchantress, White Perfection, and White Wonder in white; Mrs. Ward and Gloriosa in pink. He also thinks well of Benora, a variegated carnation, which he grows at Bakerstown. Visitors were: O. Crissman, Punxsutawney, Pa.; Wm. G. Jones, Du Bois, Pa.; Thos. Fitzgerald, Beaver, Pa.

NOTES.

Oliver Scheick, of Fischer & Scheick, the Sharon Florists, was in town Saturday, buying Easter plants and calling on some of his friends in the trade. Mr. Scheick reported that Mr. Fischer is in very poor health.

Harry Gibson and H. E. Graves of the Zieger Co., are in New York, Baltimore and Philadelphia this week, purchasing Easter and spring stock.

A. J. Riegelmeir has opened a new flower store at 1810 Carson street. He was at one time with the A. W. Smith Co.

I. H. Landis of Lancaster, Pa., is consigning pansies and daisies to The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

North Shore Horticultural Society.

The annual merry making gathering of the North Shore Horticultural Society was held at Werner's Hall, North Chicago, Saturday evening, March 8, and for pure fun stands out boldly as the most joyful occasion in the annals of this thriving organization. About fifty members attended and the tables were gay with well grown bulbous stock, daffodils, tulips, etc., although crowded too much with the lavish array of refreshments. There was music in abounding variety with song in many languages; there was dancing and story telling, gaiety and harmony. Phil Foley of Chicago rejuvenated his old-time fish stories to such an extent that they beguiled the oldest son of Izaak Walton and surely the "Struggles and Triumphs of President John Tiplady," as told by himself, will go down in history as an incomparable classic of the garden craft. Time may and surely does play some grim pranks with the memory of man, but reason itself must quit this scribe before the recollection of those happy, smiling faces passes beyond him.

E. O. Orpet was toastmaster and Secretary Bollinger distributed copies of the new by-laws to the members in attendance.

VARIÉ AGATA.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Union restaurant March 6, President French in the chair. Routine business was transacted and John Tiplady, Lake Forest, and George Ball, Glen Ellyn, were elected to membership. Transportation to the National Flower Show at New York next month and to the Minneapolis convention of the Society of American Florists in August was discussed. Andrew McAdams was made an honorary member. Vaughan's Seed Store exhibited a fine new canna under number, also a new rambler rose, Carl Cropp says the former, while excellent, is by no means the best of his firm's novelties in cannas.

CLEARFIELD, PA.—William Blacker, a local florist, dropped dead of heart trouble at his home February 22.

OBITUARY.

Joseph A. Bolgiano.

Joseph A. Bolgiano, retired head of J. Bolgiano & Son, seedsmen, of Baltimore, Md., died suddenly at the home of his only daughter, Mrs. J. Burch Joyce, March 1. Mr. Bolgiano was 77 years old and had been in poor health for a year, but the end was unexpected up to a short time before his death. Mr. Bolgiano had retired from active participation in business about 15 years ago, after 50 years' service in the firm that bore his name. He was born in Baltimore, December 6, 1835. After leaving school he entered his father's seed store and a few years later was taken into the firm. In his early manhood he married Mary Elizabeth Walton, of Annapolis, Md. Mrs. Bolgiano died in 1893. Mr. Bolgiano was well known in financial circles, being a director of several trust companies. He was at one time interested in street railway affairs. He was prominent in the American Seed Trade Association, of which he was at one time president, and always a leader in the interests of the trade. Despite his business cares Mr. Bolgiano was active in church and Y. M. C. A. work, being one of the most prominent Methodists of the South. He at one time studied for the ministry and was admitted as a local preacher. Mr. Bolgiano is survived by six children. Besides Mrs. Joyce, they are: John, Frank W., Dr. Walton, Roland and Charles J. Bolgiano. The funeral was held Tuesday, March 4.

John A. Payne.

John A. Payne, a well-known greenhouse builder and heating engineer of Jersey City and Bayonne, N. J., died suddenly March 3. He was 49 years old. Mr. Payne began his career as a builder and heating engineer about 18 years ago with the Lord & Burnham Co. at their factory, Irvington, N. Y. He was also for a time with the Pierson & Sefton Co. For a number of years he had a factory of his own near the West Side avenue station, Jersey City. Of late he had been representing the Foley Manufacturing Co., Chicago. His residence was at Bayonne, N. J., where his funeral was held March 5.

Publicity.

C. N. Ruedlinger, chairman of the publicity committee of the Minneapolis Florists' Club, sends a copy of an attractive advertisement about eight and one-half inches square used by the trade in the daily papers of that city in exploiting St. Valentine's day. Mr. Ruedlinger says, "The advertisement was paid for by subscriptions of the local florists. The amount thus collected was about $130 and a similar amount was used in exploiting Mothers' day last year and will be repeated this year."

[This is the right kind of publicity and the Minneapolis brand of co-operation is worthy of greatly extended use.—Ed.]

National Council of Horticulture.

The first installment of articles for 1913, issued by the National Council of Horticulture, contains the following: "Lawns," "For Indoor Planting," "Preparing Soil for a Garden," "Substitutes for Manure," "Points About Sowing Seed," and "Fertilizers." These timely and practical articles are issued to nurserymen, seedsmen, florists and the editors of local papers, and can be obtained upon application to the secretary, James H. Burdett, 1620 West 104th place, Chicago.

Mexico.

Tampico, March 5.—I wish to say at the present that from personal investigation and travel, I am more than satisfied that this is a grand country and one in which there are great opportunities for the experienced horticulturist, gardener and florist, and I do not hesitate to recommend that any young man of the trade who wishes to make a start look to Mexico for his location.

There have been several scares over a supposed war here and people in the north think they know more about it than the actual residents of the country. In the whole republic, during the last three months, there has been about as much trouble as there was in Chicago during the recent strike of the printers.

Boskoop Rose Show.

We have received the following communication regarding the great Rose Show which will be held in Boskoop, Holland, July, 1913. The government again has shown its interest in this enterprise, as the exposition will be held under the patronage of the minister of agriculture, industry and commerce.

The committee has been obliged to greatly extend the grounds of the exposition, this proving to be necessary to meet the needs of the very large number of exhibitors. Around the rosarium, which will cover about an acre, will be built a pergola 600 feet long. This pergola alone will require 3,000 climbing roses, which have already been grown in pots for this purpose. In the rosarium will be placed thousands of roses, bush and standard form. To keep the grounds in good condition during the time the exposition will be held there will be a surplus of 50,000 bush roses and 6,000 standard roses in 300 varieties, all grown in pots. In the background of the rosarium will be erected an Italian flora temple with side wings, 120 feet wide and 15 feet high, which promises to make a brilliant effect.

The schedule for cut roses is ready and will be mailed in a few days. The competition for No. 1 of the programme (new roses not yet in commerce) will be open also for growers outside of Boskoop. The committee therefore advises those who have good novelties to apply for a copy of the programme. Several gold medals will be awarded in this class. The best known rose growers of Holland and other countries will be invited to act as members of the jury of awards.

PRESIDENT FARQUHAR of the Society of American Florists is greatly pleased with the outlook for the annual convention to be held at Minneapolis next August, saying the various local committees are working splendidly to make this the banner meeting of the society. Meeting and exhibition quarters arranged for are excellent and promising new features have been projected by Vice-President Wirth in his scheme for exhibits of growing stock planted outdoors for effect.

BUSINESS EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD.

Business has been exceptionally good the past week. While there was nothing very large in the decorative line, there were many of the smaller jobs and numerous orders for funeral work from all parts of the city. Asparagus plumosus seems scarcer now than at any time during the winter, and smilax strings too are not over-plentiful, while all other greens can be had in quantity. Sweet peas are arriving in quantity, and some exceptionally long stemmed stock with good flowers can be had. Easter lilies were short of the demand. Callas are plentiful. Roses of all grades and varieties are plentiful, except long Richmonds, and long stemmed American Beauties. Carnations keep up in supply to meet the demand. Bulb stock is still in full crop. Almost anything desired in that line can be had from the local houses. Lily of the valley and orchids are in good supply, and stock is good.

NOTES.

Orders for white carnations for St. Patrick's day are beginning to come in to be delivered Saturday and Sunday, March 15 and 16, although the Hibernian Society of this city will not celebrate the day officially until March 26.

The Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, O., has sold one entire house of two-year-old rose plants to the People's Home Journal Publishing Co., to be used by that concern as an inducement to gain subscribers.

Will Merkel, of Merkel & Son, says that his firm is sold out of plants for Easter and he is now going back to the greenhouses, and help to get ready the stock for shipment.

ROSES MORE PLENTIFUL.

Business has been rather quiet the past week and stock of all kinds, with the exception of American Beauty roses, is more plentiful. Roses in general, are in larger supply and have had a tendency to drop somewhat in price. Killarney and White Killarney of exceptionally fine quality, especially are in much larger supply and some of the stock that is now arriving is fit for the exhibition table. Killarney is showing fine color now and the better grades are moving freely. Richmond are none too plentiful yet, but some fine Rhea Reid roses are to be had. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Sunburst, Prince De Bulgarie, Melody and Lady Hillingdon are arriving in fine condition and are having a good call. American Beauty roses are still very scarce and the extra fancy flowers are bringing $5.00 and $6.00 per dozen. Carnations are plentiful yet, but are improving considerably in quality, although there is still a large quantity of splits. White has advanced a little in price and it would not be at all surprising if the other varieties would also. Lilies are in large supply and are having a good call. Orchids are also in good supply, but home-grown gardenias are none too plentiful. Lily of the valley is in oversupply and the same can be said of sweet peas. Violets are to be had in large quantities at bargain prices and are seen displayed in nearly all the stores at remarkably low prices. The supply of bulbous stock is quite large, with tulips, daffodils and jonquils the principal offering. Some fine single and double stocks are obtainable, as well as pansies and other miscellaneous flowers. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and some dealers are now offering ferns at very low figures. Easter orders are arriving in every mail and the prospects are very bright for a good Easter business. Some of the growers are inclined to think that lilies will be none too plentiful for Easter, as far as the crops in this locality are concerned, so the reader would probably do well to place his orders in advance. None of the dealers seem to be pushing American Beauty roses very strongly for Easter for a shortage in this line is expected. With St. Patrick's day, Palm Sunday and Easter coming soon, things promise to be pretty lively in this market.

NOTES.

Allie Zech says that the Cook County Florists' Association bowling league will roll for honors with the Milwaukee Florists' Club bowlers in the Wisconsin city on March 30. The trip will be made in a special car over the C. & M. electric line, leaving here a little before noon and returning late the same evening. It is expected that quite a crowd will accompany the bowlers, for the Milwaukee boys have a reputation for being a bunch of "good fellows" and it is just like a month's vacation to be with them a few hours. Let us hope that J. E. Matthewson of Sheboygan will also be present.

August Poehlmann and wife, W. N. Rudd and wife, Geo. Asmus and others bound for the National Flower Show, New York, will leave on the Lake Shore Limited (La Salle Street Station), Saturday, April 5, at 5:30 p. m. Berths should be reserved well in advance by notifying G. K. Thompson, General Passenger Agent, 100 North Clark street, telephone Randolph 5300.

The Kennicott Bros. Co. and E. C. Amling Co.'s stores were both robbed this week but in each instance the intruders only succeeded in getting a small amount of cash and stamps. The robberies were evidently committed by Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in roses and carnations now and will have a fine assortment of stock for their Easter trade. The orders at this house are coming in nicely and according to one of the proprietors, Rhea Reid roses are being substituted for American Beauties.

Miss K. N. Cooper, proprietress of the Auburndale Goldfish Co., is at New Orleans, La., enjoying a well earned rest but expects to return about April 1. Her many friends in the trade are pleased to hear that she is recovering from her accident of last December and that she expects to return soon.

M. B. Hirsch, "The Willard Florist," is rapidly recuperating from the effects of his recent operation at the Michael Reese hospital.

Miss Olga Tonner is supplying her customers with a fine grade of single and double stocks.

A. C. Brown, of Springfield, was in the city on business this week and, as usual, dropped in to see his old friend, C. L. Washburn. Mr. Brown was right on the job all the time at the meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Peoria last week, but mysteriously disappeared when he was asked to respond to a toast at the banquet.

Wieter Bros. have had a good steady cut of roses and carnations right along but the crops for Easter, especially Killarney, White Killarney, My Maryland and Richmond, are going to be very large. This firm is also in good crop with carnations, and some very fancy stock is to be seen at the store.

Professor Folds of the Sheldon School gave an illustrated business talk at the E. C. Amling Co. store on March 11 which was largely attended by the young men employed in the local market.

H. Wittbold is now very busy with decorations, principally store openings. Baby Wilkerson, the firm's new mascot, is doing nicely and of course is the finest baby that "ever was."

W. J. Smyth has recovered sufficiently from his recent accident to again assume charge of his store.

The Chicago Floral Co., East Randolph street, has doubled its business during the past year.

At Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store roses are arriving in very large quantities, with the exception of American Beauties, which are in short supply all over the market. This firm is filling a large number of orders for lilies, both cut and in pots, as well as other Easter plants and decorative stock. The cut flower department is now making shipments of stock to New Orleans, La., in corrugated boxes and, according to Mr. Frese, the first complaint is yet to be received.

Daniel Branch is busy with several decorative jobs and is preparing for a busy Easter season, expecting a heavy demand for lilies, which he has grown to perfection and is somewhat overstocked on.

F. O. Franzen has started his Easter street car advertising campaign and for original ideas we would suggest he would be a valuable asset to any of our local advertising agencies.

Mrs. T. J. Johnson, who has the distinction of being the only successful colored florist in Chicago, is enjoying a busy season with cut flowers and funeral work.

J. F. Kidwell says that the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses have sold a strip of land to the C., B. & Q. R. R. Co. at a good figure and that in return he will also have a switch put in which he is in great need of and which he has been trying to secure for the past five years. He will also have the top dressing of the land which he sold to the railway company. This firm is now shipping some fine Killarney and White Killarney roses to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association's store, where they are having a good call.

A. T. Pyfer says that the carnation exhibits at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Peoria last week were exceptionally fine. He believes that if ribbons were offered as first, second and third prizes the competition would be still larger.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is strong on bulbous stock of all kinds as well as carnations and a fine line of greens. Mr. Deamud has just returned from a Michigan business trip.

H. Van Gelder says Percy Jones broke the record for sales last Saturday, and that the total receipts for the day were the second best in the firm's history.

Mrs. A. Steinman, 2843 Lincoln avenue, slipped off the platform of a North avenue car one day last week, fracturing two ribs and suffering internal injuries.

Miss Marie Zurn, formerly with the Phoenix Nursery Co., Bloomington, Ill., has accepted the position of manager for John Steinmetz.

AMERICAN BEAUTY SCARCITY CONTINUES.

The weather while cold, is for the most part bright, the past week proving excellent for the growers of Easter stock. These favorable conditions did not seem to affect the store trade to any great extent, however, and business was reported light by the retailers. The stock coming in is more than ample for the light demand, with the exception of American Beauty roses, which are as scarce as they have ever been. Florists with a half dozen go gunning around, trying to get one here or there, to help make up the dozen. Dealers get the retail men to call up other dealers in their efforts to get enough for a favored customer out of town. Specials, and they don't have to be "gilt edge," readily bring $9.00 a dozen. Why does not some grower try a house, as they grow hybrids? One good crop at these figures would certainly pay. All other roses are in good shape. The Irish Fire Flame has made quite a hit as a fancy, it is not being sent to the market, except on order. All spare wood is going into the cutting bed to supply the great demand for young plants, orders for which are coming in fast, the variety selling on its merits without exploitation. Carnations are plentiful and of excellent quality. Among the new ones, gloriosa, the Dorners' new pink, is a great favorite and sells at sight. Gardenias are much too plentiful. The quality is extra fine, but they do not bring the price, there being far too many for the limited demand. Violets are ahead of the demand. Lily of the valley is about even. Easter and calla lilies are piling up. Snapdragon is seen in quantity and sells fairly well. Sweet peas are used in large quantities, selling as well if not better than almost anything else.

NOTES.

The M. Rice Co. is having a great business on all things that pertain to Easter. Plant baskets, potcovers, mats and crepe paper are in great demand. They are working nights to get their orders out.

Extra fine snapdragon is a feature at the Leo Niessen establishment. Large quantities of sweet peas are handled daily. Great preparations are being made here for the Easter trade.

Berger Bros.' central market is full of spring flowers, Easter lilies being a feature. The prospects for this holiday are good, many orders being booked.

The March meeting of the Florists' Club, was called "President's Night," in honor of President Thilow, who gave the members a great treat in his illustrated lecture on the flowers of the Canadian Rockies. Mr. Thilow is quite the equal as a lecturer of any of those who make it a profession, his delivery being better than that of most of them. His pictures, taken by himself, were very fine, particularly those of the flowers. A lunch was served in the foyer after the lecture. There was an exhibition of roses. Robert Scott and son staged Irish Fire Flame, Killarney Brilliant, a rose that is soon to make a sensation, and double Killarney. A. N. Pierson's Milady was seen in good shape. Mrs. Chas. Russell was staged by Pennock-Meehan Co., while Rohrer Brothers of Lancaster, staged their new red seedling carnation, a fine flower.

The efforts of a church in Cincinnati to curtail the use of flowers at funerals is receiving the attention of the publicity department of the Retailers' Association, who intend to combat the idea in every way they can. It appears that this is not a new thing, as it has been tried in New York for some time, but meets with little success. Relatives and friends of deceased persons, feel they are in duty bound to show their sympathy by means of floral tributes.

Paul Berkowitz, of the Bayersdorfer Co., says they can hardly get their orders out, they are having such a run on Easter baskets. They never had such a variety as is offered this season.

The city is full of florists from neighboring cities and towns, who are looking over the stocks of Easter plants, great quantities of which will be shipped out in the next ten days.

Edward Reid handles sweet peas by the thousands at this time. The quality is excellent. Choice carnations are also a leader.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET.

There is little change in the condition of the cut flower market from that of a week ago. During the latter part of the past week, American Beauty roses were more plentiful and by Saturday, March 8, the price for specials had dropped to about $6.00 and $7.00 a dozen. In Killarney and White Killarney roses some exceptionally good stock has arrived, but the demand has not been heavy. Of cut lilies, narcissus, tulips and hyacinths, there is an abundant supply, moving slowly. The large retail stores, with a surplus of spring flowers in evidence, are using them with fine effect for window decorations and other display purposes. Carnations and sweet peas are also very plentiful and of fine quality. In the retail stores many baskets of sweet peas, tastefully arranged with other small flowers, give a pleasing effect. In orchids, the cattleyas and oncidiums are sufficiently plentiful to be used for display purposes. In flowering shrubs, the forsythias, almonds, cherries and other blossoms are being much used, so it may truly be said that there is a wealth of bloom. Easter being at this writing just about two weeks ahead, it is quite natural that great interest is being manifested in plant stock. There are people who seem to think that trade this Easter will run more to cut flowers than it has during the past few years. However, we have heard no good reasons to sustain this supposition. We hope and believe that both cut flowers and plants will sell well. So far as we are able to judge there will be enough of both to supply all demands. We do not look for any great surplus in roses, lilies and carnations, but in the smaller bulbous stocks there is likely to be a heavy supply. Practically all the Long Island lily growers who supply this market will have fine Easter stock, but from some other sections reports are not so favorable. There are now lily growers who bring in cut stock throughout the year and they are factors and large ones in the trade. In Crimson Ramblers, Dorothy Perkins, Baby Ramblers and other pot roses, the supply and quality seems to be all that could be desired. Azaleas, hydrangeas, ericas, spireas and many other plants are also promising, therefore, we expect a good Easter trade.

Monday, March 10—The market is quiet today with declining prices. American Beauty roses are much more plentiful and good specials have dropped to $6.00 and $7.00 a dozen wholesale. In the roses No. 1 and 2 are very hard to move.

NOTES.

A feature at Geo. M. Stumpp's store, Fifty-eighth street and Fifth avenue, is a St. Patrick's Day show window. There are miniature donkeys hitched to miniature jaunting cars, in which shamrock decorations are very prominent. There are neat little green boxes, just large enough to hold a thumb-pot of shamrock and miniature "Blarney Castles," and a statue of St. Patrick.

Walter Klein, of J. H. Small & Sons' staff, of this city, was in Washington, D. C., for several days preceding and during the inauguration of President Wilson, helping out in their Washington store. This firm has decorated for nearly all the inaugural balls that have ever been held. There was no ball this year, but just the same, they had a good inaugural business.

We have been informed at the store of Geo. M. Stumpp, Fifty-eighth street and Fifth avenue, that they have made several shipments by parcel post, all of which have proved satisfactory. With every shipment, they send a card, asking the consignee to notify them immediately if the flowers arrived in good condition.

At Alex. McConnell's store, Forty-ninth street and Fifth avenue, we recently noted very fine window decorations. In one large window there was a tasteful arrangement of forsythias, narcissi and other yellow flowers. In the Fifth avenue window, flowering almonds, cherries and other blooming shrubs made a fine display.

James H. Blauvelt, a former New Yorker, is spending a few days at his old home. For several years he has been with H. F. Littlefield, 552 Main street, Worcester, Mass. His mission here at the present time is to introduce the Tremper violet, which is exclusively handled by Mr. Littlefield.

The Horticultural Society of New York will have an exhibition of plants and cut flowers in the American Museum of Natural History, Saturday, March 15. A lecture will be delivered in the east assembly room in the afternoon by Edwin Jenkins, on "Roses, Outside and Under Glass."

Notable among a great variety of stock reaching this market, are the lilies from the range of C. W. Scott, Whitestone, L. I. This range, formerly known as the Hinode Floral Co., under the management of Mr. Scott, has made great advances in the production of fine stock.

Harry Bunyard is back at his desk in A. T. Boddington's store, after attending the meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F., at Minneapolis. He was very favorably impressed with the hospitality of the Twin Cities and looks forward to a great convention.

Oliver B. Coomes, Jr., who has greenhouses and a retail store at Jamaica, L. I., is also a buyer in New York. In honor of St. Patrick's day, Mr. Coomes is passing around neat green cards with a shamrock and a miniature clay pipe attached to each card.

The Macniff Horticultural Co., 56 Vesey street, is now holding auctions every Tuesday and Friday. They are very well supplied with roses, climbing, standard and dwarf, as well as a great variety of other plants, and their rooms are well worth a visit.

At Thorley's House of Flowers, there are always very attractive features. With an eye single to pleasing effects, Mr. Thorley has gathered about him a staff that can do the work. Nothing but the best stock is used and it is used to the best advantage.

Alexander Dutcher of the New York Cut Flower Co., who was in a hospital for a time and was sick for about two months, has so far recovered as to be able to return to business, which is pleasing news to his many friends.

Lambros Mullinos, well known in the flower trade of this city, has opened a handsome flower shop at Broadway and Thirty-third street. He has interests in two other retail stores.

Patrick Welch of Boston, Mass., spent several days in this city during the past week. When Mr. Welch comes around, it is a sure sign that business is yet moving.

E. L. Lang has taken the retail store at 974 Lexington avenue, corner of Seventy-first street, formerly occupied by N. C. Schreiner.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., is out of the hospital and hard at work at his desk.

S. M. Baker, a retail florist of Binghampton, N. Y., was in the city March 8.

MONTHLY MEETING.

The New York Florists' Club held its monthly meeting on the night of March 10 in the Grand Opera House building. President Siebrecht in the chair. Secretary John Young, who recently underwent an operation, was able to be present. President Siebrecht spoke of his visit to the recent meeting at Ithaca, N. Y., and stated that the exhibits there were very creditable. He spoke of a bill now before the New York legislature to appropriate $60,000 for greenhouses at the agricultural college. It is the aim of the framers of the bill to have 60 per cent of this sum used for floricultural improvements and 40 per cent for vegetable work. Patrick O'Mara also spoke at length on this subject and urged florists and their representatives throughout the state to use their influence for the passage of the bill. He also suggested that the trade press give the matter their sympathy and support, that all florists throughout the state may be impressed with the importance of having the bill passed.

John B. Nugent reported for the dinner committee. The annual dinner will be held on April 10 at the Hotel Astor. There will be accommodations for 800 persons, each table seating ten. Tickets will be $4.00 each. Harry Bunyard, who recently returned from the meeting of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists at Minneapolis, Minn., spoke at length relating to the armory where the August convention will be held, and gave details of the convention arrangements. He stated that the armory was as large as the Chicago Coliseum and that the interests of exhibitors will be well taken care of. The business session of the convention will continue four days, the fifth to be the day of entertainment.

The following committee on transportation to the convention was appointed: Harry Bunyard, Thos. B. DeForest, A. L. Miller and Frank Traendly. A special meeting of the club will be held, on the call of the president, some time before or during the show. Harry Bunyard suggested that the Plant Growers' Association and allied organizations be requested to attend that meeting. J. Austin Shaw, a member of the club, who has been seriously ill, was reported improving. M. C. Ebel spoke of a bowling contest to be held at Thumm's Alleys March 9 by the National Association of Gardeners, which will also be open to members of the Society of American Florists. Many prizes have been offered for competition. A number of new members were admitted and others proposed. Chas. H. Totty spoke of the coming Third International Flower Show.

The following exhibits were staged and passed upon by the exhibition committee:

Rose Killarney Brilliant, by S. S. Pennock—Meehan Co. (Robert Scott, Sharon Hill, Pa., grower), 88 points. Rose Irish Fire Flame, same exhibitors and grower, 85 points.

Rose White Baby Rambler, by A. L. Miller, Brooklyn, N. Y., vote of thanks.

Carnation Red Spring, by Valentine Cleres, Glen Cove, N. Y., vote of thanks.

Carnation Laura Weber, new seedling, Enchantress shade, by Chas. Weber, Lyndbrook, N. Y., 86 points.

Carnation, white seedling, Prosperity X. Winco, by Frank Dinda, Farmingdale, N. Y., 86 points.

Sweet Peas, Chas. Zvolanek, Bound Brook, N. J., vote of thanks. A. F. F.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—Horticulturists of this state will meet here March 19. Illustrated lectures will be a feature of the meeting.

Brooklyn Notes.

Geo. I. Laird has recently made improvements in the conservatory connected with his retail store, 3014-3018 Fulton street, and will be well prepared to make a fine Easter display. He grows a considerable stock of plants, buying his cut flowers from the Greater New York Florists' Association, of which he is one of the directors.

A. L. Miller is now busy with preparations for Easter. At his Jamaica avenue range much good bulb stock is coming on, and another noteworthy feature is a good supply of sham-rocks. His lilies and much other fine stock are grown at his more extensive range, Jamaica, L. I., to which he makes daily trips.

Miss Mac B. Golden, formerly with R. G. Wilson, has opened an attractive flower shop at 59 Lafayette avenue. She had been with Mr. Wilson for eight years. John Ross, for a number of years in charge of the table decorations of Sherry's noted New York restaurant, has been engaged as manager.

One of the very attractive retail stores of Brooklyn is that of C. Huber, 1257 Bedford avenue. His store, not only in floral arrangement but in other details, shows fine taste and judgment. He has a fine collection of artistic pottery, and manufactures his own rustic designs in variety.

The irrepresible John Weir is seen daily in the wholesale cut flower district of New York. Age does not wither him and he does not grow stale with custom. On calling at his store, 324 Fulton street, we found him busy and happy as usual.

Fred Muchmore's store at 1164 Fulton street is attractive and he was found busy. He is becoming interested in the approaching Third International Flower Show.

Fitzsimmons & Rooney, 161 Court street, have a good store and are doing a good business. The senior member of this firm has been in business many years and is now an aged man, but he is yet active about the store, only complaining of a little rheumatism.

Charles Quenzer, who now has the store at 252 Court street, once conducted by Hyatt & Co., carries in addition to cut flowers a good line of seeds.

Wm. H. Kuebler, 28 Willoughby street, ably assisted by his brothers, Charles and Louis, is prospering finely in the wholesale business.

N. Scoffes has two stores, one at 501, the other at 656 Nostrand avenue. He carries a good stock and does a good business.

At Robert G. Wilson's we found business good and Easter preparations there too were in evidence.

C. E. Applegate's store is always attractive and shows evidence of business prosperity.

George H. Blake, of Bonnet & Blake, has been doing jury duty for the past two weeks. A. F. F.

Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. P. Coy, of Waterloo, Neb.

JESSE E. NORTHRUP, Minneapolis, Minn., is reported seriously ill in Florida.

VENTURA, CALIF., Feb. 26.—Seven inches of rain fell here and all went into the ground. G.

A. H. GOODWIN, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, sailed from Genoa, Italy, March 6, homeward bound.

BOSTON, MASS.—R. & J. Farquhar & Co. report business in January and February ahead of that of last year.

CUBA has established a quarantine against the Canary Islands because five deaths from bubonic plague occurred there.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade March 12 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3 to $4 per 100 pounds.

J. M. THORBURN & Co., New York, are distributing a neatly framed colored picture of the hybrid African daisies (dimorphotheas) in variety.

ST. PAUL, MINN. — Unseasonable weather up to March 3 is no doubt responsible for the slow business to date in the seed trade. There is still time, however, for snowy zero conditions to pass away and a lively trade to set in.

Onion Sets in Indiana.

A. J. Brown, Grand Rapids, Mich., reports Globe onion sets in the onion section of Indiana are down to ten cents and fifteen cents. It is reported that there will be a great decrease in acreage of large onions the coming spring, due, not so much to the fear of low prices another season, as to the fact that labor costs have advanced so that there is very little money in raising onions, even at a fair market. The result of the low prices on onions has been a great reduction in the market on Globe onion sets, which promised to be extremely high the beginning of the season. The fear that all of the Ohio and Indiana farmers will put out their almost valueless onions for seed, has caused the jobbers of onion seed considerable worry, and future business on Globe onion seed is very light.

Secretary of Buckwheat Cakes.

The effort has been made of late years to have the Government take care of all our affairs, domestic or otherwise. But the proposition just introduced in Congress goes beyond anything so far introduced into that body. It proposes to regulate the internal economy of the hotels and other houses of entertainment in the city of Washington. Has it come to this, that Congress assumes the right to dictate what we shall pay for buckwheat cakes?—New York Sun.

Southern California Rains.

Los Angeles.—The sweet pea outlook and all crop conditions are more promising in Southern California than they were last year at this time. The situation has been brought about through the rainstorm we had here February 23-24, which in 24 hours changed the entire outlook for crops

The Late J. A. Bolgiano.

here this year. The storm seemed to take Pasadena and Los Angeles for a center, precipitation ranging from 7 to 9 inches. All districts within a radius of a hundred miles felt the beneficial effects, the storm not traveling any further north than Santa Barbara. In his recent trip down the coast the writer was struck with the contrast between the looks of the country in the north and here in the south. Up around San Francisco and down to the central part they are still waiting for rain, while around Los Angeles grain raisers, beet growers and seed farmers are all busily at work getting crops planted. However, three or four inches of rain within the next few weeks would change the looks of things up north and do much to equalize conditions.

H. W. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill., arrived March 6 and is calling upon the trade here.

Chinese Narcissus Bulbs.

The variety of narcissus bulb grown in the Amoy district of southern China is the Narcissus tazetta. It is stated, but not believed, that these bulbs were first brought to the East by Marco Polo about the close of the thirteenth century (1271-1288). The more probable explanation seems to be that they were brought here by the Dutch who came to South China in 1622 and, after a number of unsuccessful attempts to gain possession of mainland territory, settled in the Pescadores. They were driven out from these islands by the Chinese and compelled to retreat to Formosa, where they erected two forts, one at Tamsui and the other, called Fort Zeelandia, at Anping.

The great bulb fields are in the vicinity of Changchow, a city with an estimated population of 100,000, located 30 miles up the Hailing River from Amoy. There seems to be something in the soil of that district peculiarly adapted for the growing of these bulbs, for when the bulbs of Changchow went on the European market about 30 years ago they were of such excellence that they were at first taken for a new variety.

Gloxinia Erecta Superbissima

Having during the past season been requested to secure some specially fine Gloxinias for exhibition purposes, we have made arrangements with a noted Gloxinia specialist in England to reserve for us some of the most distinct types. The bulbs are not so large as the Named Varieties, but this is a characteristic of most Erecta superbissima varieties.

BODDINGTON'S IDEAL PRIZE GIANT MIXED. Great variety of superb colors.

CYCLOPS. Velvety carmine, shading to a broad white border, throat dotted with dark red.

DUCHESS OF YORK. Flowers of a rich dark blue, each petal being edged with a broad band of white. A most striking and lovely variety.

SPOTTED HYBRIDS. Whenever exhibited, they create intense interest. The delicate markings, in an infinite variety of forms, add a special charm to the flowers.

SUTTON'S WHITE. A giant white flowered variety. DUKE OF YORK. Large scarlet Gloxinia with deep white edge to each petal. A magnificent flower.

HER MAJESTY. This exquisite Gloxinia is still unsurpassed by any other white variety. The flowers are as pure as newly fallen snow, and are borne on short stems, just clear of the elegantly recurved foliage.

READING SCARLET. In color this is the most brilliant Gloxinia in existence, being an intense glowing scarlet variety of the true Crassifolia habit. An admirable companion to Her Majesty.

GOLIATH. Violet and white, fine variety. Per doz. $1.50; per 100, $10.00.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

When in Philadelphia be sure to look us up.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½ inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

TOMATOES were shipped to the United States from Los Mochis, in the state of Sinaloa, Mexico, by the American colony there, in November, or several weeks earlier than hitherto. This industry is rapidly growing and becoming of importance. Expectations for this season call for exportation of some 400 carloads of tomatoes and at least 20 carloads of cantaloupes.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 10.—Mushrooms, 20 cents to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 10 cents to 15 cents, small cases; radishes, 10 cents to 35 cents per dozen bunches; pieplant, 35 cents to 45 cents per bunch; cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.25 per box of two dozen; asparagus, $2 to $2.75 for 24 bunches.

New York, March 8.—Cucumbers, $1.25 to $1.75 per dozen, and $4 to $6 per box; mushrooms, 80 cents to $2.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, $1.50 to $2 per 100 bunches; mint, 25 to 50 cents per dozen bunches; rhubarb, 20 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; lettuce, 10 cents to 30 cents per dozen; beet tops, 75 cents to $1.25 per box.

Cheese Cloth Gardening.

Each year we find an increasing use for the common cheese cloth. It fits admirably between the glass and the outdoor operations and in many cases is a protection against frost and insect enemies. We have used it in the spring and in the fall with good success. Growers of head lettuce in the fall will realize the detriment of brown edges to Big Boston. We find that in cool weather such a covering will be a prompt remedy. However, our main operations are in the spring. We use it on cold frames and cover manure heated frames, both for plants and market crops. We find it excludes the maggot fly from radishes, also cabbage and cauliflower plants; it will gain a few days in coolness on radishes and lettuce, it will retain moisture on celery beds and its shade is sufficient to start off transplanted seedlings. If fairly well above crops it acts as a frost protection on such subjects as tomato plants. We generally drive small finishing nails or brads, into the frame boards, sew two strips of cloth together in any lengths and thus push the cloth right on the nails so it can be easily removed any time without damage. If cared for it will last several years. All our frames are six feet wide to take either sash or cloth.

MARKETMAN.

Seasonable Greenhouse Notes.

At this time of the year fertility is often exhausted in greenhouse soils and the grower is likely to blame bad weather or bad luck for poor results. The fact is there is generally enough light from now on provided other conditions are right. When cutting heavy crops of lettuce it is a good practice to spade under a coat of manure, old preferable. Some of the best crops we ever produced received a coat of freshly heated horse manure such as we prepare for mushroom beds.

In the absence of this, a dressing of complete fertilizer should be used. An experienced man should be able to tell what is needed by closely watching the growth made. If lettuce comes papery and tough it is surely a sign of lack of food. No amount of cultural attention will correct this trouble if food is withheld.

Where cucumbers follow lettuce and lettuce is the only winter crop, it often is a difficult matter to start cucumber plants on account of lack of heat. In such a case there is nothing better than a hotbed with sash inside the greenhouse. The glass can be off the bed in warm days and replaced at night. In such a hotbed with brisk heat fine cucumber plants can be produced in 30 days. It is generally best to wait with cucumbers until the lettuce is all cut and then raise the temperature as lettuce and cucumbers do not thrive together.

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

THE sixteenth annual convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association will be held at Peterboro, Ont., in August, 1913.

WE are in receipt of the transactions and proceedings of the second annual meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen held at Oakland, November 7-9, 1912, a carefully prepared and well printed report.

THE buchu is a South African shrub whose leaves are dotted with oil glands. It is used largely for medicinal purposes. The United States imported 181,121 pounds of these leaves in the fiscal year 1912, valued at $160,608, and 106,345 pounds in 1911, valued at $81,658.

ACCORDING to lately published reports on the forest lands of Chiloe Island, situated off the coast of Chile, between 41° and 43° south latitude, many kinds of valuable trees and shrubs are found awaiting capital and labor to open up important industries in that part of the country. This island contains 2,450 square miles and is covered with dense forests, except for a narrow strip along the west coast.

World's Great Forests.

There is an immense and continuous tract of forest lying north of the St. Lawrence River, in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, extending northward to Hudson Bay and Labrador, a region measuring about 1,700 miles in length from east to west and 1,000 miles in width north and south. By some it is held that a much larger continuous area of timber lands exists in the state of Washington and northward through British Columbia and Alaska. But this contention is limited to North America, for it has been pointed out, there lies a forest in the valley of the Amazon embracing much of northern Brazil, eastern Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, Colombia and Guiana, a region at least 2,100 miles in length by 1,300 in breadth.

New England Nurserymen.

The annual convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association was held in Horticultural Hall, Worcester, Mass., Wednesday, February 26. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Harlan P. Kelsey, Salem, Mass., president; John R. Barnes, Yalesville, Conn., vice-president; Charles Adams, Springfield, Mass., secretary; V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I., secretary; W. W. Hunt, Hartford, Conn., C. H. Graton, Providence, R. I., A. P. Horne, Manchester, N. H., executive committee. Charles R. Forest Tree Insects.

In a bulletin issued recently by the Department of Agriculture, it is pointed out that many of the injurious forest beetles prefer to attack the matured and healthy trees. Among the insects mentioned in this particular, are the southern pine beetle, the eastern spruce beetle, the Englemann spruce beetle, the Black Hills beetle, the mountain pine and western pine beetle, the Douglas fir beetle, the hickory bark beetle and the larch worm.

The bark beetles attack the bark on the trunk and extend their mines throughout the living bark, resulting in the death of the tree. The government has undertaken to control these pests in forests under its control. Where the beetles already have been at work it is found best to cut the affected timber and bark it. In this way the material may be used for commercial purposes and the depredations of the insects are confined to the area already attacked.

Enchantress Supreme

THE Best Sport from Enchantress up-to-date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguishes its parent.

Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.

A good all around Carotatioo that retains its color at all seasons.

Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster.

The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

If you contemplate painting your house this year, it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The Lutton reputation for high class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. PEONIES.

"Peonies for Pleasure." This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history; soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable Peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and the new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the Peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the Rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink Peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of Peonies for Fall Sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Last Chance On the Special Sash Offer

THE offer was good for 30 days—not a day longer. Nine days are left

If you haven't ordered—better step lively. It's probably the only Special Sash Offer we will make this year.

We have tried to mail to every grower in the country circulars, stating exactly what the offer is on both Single and Double Lite.

If your circular never came—write us at once, and we will reply same day, so you can surely get your order in before the time limit expires—on the 24th.

Test No. 1.

After you get our sash, test them out. Try jamming them down on the corners. If the joints open up—you are stuck and better send the sash back.

Test No. 2.

Glaze one up—give the putty three days to harden up—then hold up one end and have your man press down on the center with all his might. It shows up the strength and importance of our steel rod center bracing.

Test No. 3.

You grip one end of the same glazed sash, and have a couple of your men grip it at the other end, and try twisting it to break the glass. After a couple of tries you will give it up.

DEMAND GOOD.

There are more flowers of some kinds than sold, but this only applies to bulbous stock. Roses, carnations, violets and lilies of the valley are always in demand and there is no noticeable oversupply, even these later days of Lent, when as a rule the flower trade is not very active. Easter lilies, with the continued favorable weather, will be in on time and should be also of sufficient quantity. Other plants like pot grown roses, lilacs, spireas and azaleas look splendid and no trouble is expected. Some anxiety prevails in regard to lilies for Easter.

NOTES

At the meeting of the Montreal Gardeners and Florists' Club, last Monday night, Archie Walker of Macdonald College was down with his paper on ferns from spores and their culture. If there is still the usual shortage of small ferns, it is not Prof. Walker's fault, but the grower's. It was the most thorough essay of its kind ever read before the club. Jas. Kean, of the Mt. St. Bruno Floral Co., brought an exhibit of Alma Ward

Sweet Pea Houses

NOW that sweet peas are being grown so profitably there are a lot of growers who have ceased to throw stones at a house with a moderate number of columns.

They find them mighty handy to wire on.

In George Schuman's 30-foot, half iron frame houses at Baldwin, L. I., there are 4 columns. The illustrations show what a glorious crop he grows. He told me on January 22nd, the day we took the photos, that they were planted in July and he began cutting in September. The 12 foot vines were still blooming freely.

If you should ask us, we would advise your building a house with high enough sides and enough columns so you could grow anything you wanted to at any time.

It always seemed to me like "monkeying with destiny" to build a big expensive house along lines adapted for growing limited things.

A change in market conditions or the fickleness of fashion may make the paying flower of this season "a dead one" next.

So why don't we get together and talk over our ideas of what an-all-around - practical - growing - house would be for you.

It may be that our New Cantilever Construction is "the-all-around-house."

If so, you ought to know why it's so. Glad to hear from you.

THE PULVERIZED MANURE COMPANY
32 UNION STOCK YARDS, CHICAGO

Albany, N. Y.
CLUB MEETING.

At the March meeting of the Albany Florists' club a letter was read from W. R. Pierson, chairman of the publicity committee of the New York Florist club, calling attention to the advisability of advertising in the local papers the use of flowers for holidays and special occasions. A second letter setting forth the idea in more detail was read also from a daily newspaper association in New York with which the New York club is co-operating. Both letters were ordered referred to the publicity committee. It is likely that the committee will take up the matter for Easter and conduct a campaign in some of the local papers. Fred A. Danker said that the club should go on record in favor of the bills of Senator S. J. Rampsberger and Assemblyman E. D. Jackson to appropriate $60,000 for a range of experimental greenhouses at the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca. A similar bill was introduced in the legislature last year but failed to pass. As an argument in favor of the bill it was shown that in 1909 the value of plants and flowers sold in the state was $5,149,000, an increase of $2,281,000 over 1899, or 79 per cent. New York exceeded its nearest rival, Pennsylvania, in 1909, in the value of its plants and flowers by $1,300,000, and Illinois, third on the list, by $1,500,000. The bill was endorsed and the club voted to appoint a committee to call upon Governor Sulzer and to co-operate in favor of the bill. W. C. Gloeckner presented a resolution that the club endorse the movement to re-establish Albany as a port of entry. President Taft at the close of his administration signed a bill reducing the number of customs districts in the state to four, and abolished Albany as a port of entry. Many of the growers in this section found the port a means of great convenience in the importation of stock and the club endorsed the movement for restoration. In connection with the meeting an exhibition of a number of interesting varieties of roses, carnations, and other flowers was held. President Frederick Henkes showed several seedlings of carnations of his own growing that made a good impression. The colors ranged from light to a very dark red. F. A. Danker showed Red and White Killarney and President Carnot roses. Velie Bros., Cedarcliff, Enchantress Supreme; Frank Velie, Rhinebeck, double violets; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., sent a vase of his new rose Milady. The Albany Cut Flower Exchange showed President Taft roses, also

An Easter Lily.

It lay beneath cold winter's snowy cloak,
In dormant state, a bulb, a senseless thing;
But when it heard the voice of Spring, it woke
To pay its annual tributes to the King.

Up through the earth its emerald leaves it sent,
Its glossy leaves, all pointing towards the sky;

And modestly its fair young head it bent,
While tears of dew were glist'ning in its eye.

And when the glorious Easter-tide had come—
The morn when Christ ascended from the dead—

It scattered wide and far its sweet perfume,
And raised towards Heaven's dome its bowed-down head.

Almighty Father! Hear the humble prayer
Of this weak mortal, this glad Easter-day:
Let me live like the lily, pure and fair,
And blossom 'neath Thy feet, for aye and

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Hotbeds.

Available bench space is always a serious question with the grower at this time, for the stock is growing rapidly and soon crowds, and if not given room will grow out of shape and not make good stock. In order to meet this condition there is nothing better than a good hotbed, for here can be grown quantities of the young stock and they can easily be cared for and will make better plants than can be grown in the houses. These hotbeds can be heated either by running steam pipes through them or by making them of hot manure. Three lines of inch steam pipe, one in the center and the other two about eight inches from the sides, will provide a bottom tempera- of 70 to 75 degrees. These should be laid in trenches about 10 inches deep and covered with light soil and the whole bed spaded so that the heat can penetrate it. Steam should be turned into the pipes two or three days before using and the sash put on so that the soil may be thoroughly heated. After the soil has become warm it will take but a little steam occasionally to keep it so and this can be done when the pipes in the houses are being shut off in the morning, and when the fires are started in the evening. In using manure it should be damp enough so that it will not burn and be packed solid before covering with soil.

Shading Plants in Flower.

As the early spring stock and the plants that bloom later come into flower they will often need a shade to keep them in the best condition, for at this time when the sun in the houses is so strong nothing so quickly fades the high colors in azaleas, roses and bulbous stock as the brilliant sunshine. While white-washing the glass will give the necessary shade yet in many cases the plants are placed where no shade is wanted for some little time, and a much better plan is to purchase a piece of cheese cloth and stretch it over the bench on wires. This is inexpensive and easily arranged and it also protects the flowers from soot and dust that enters the open ventilators and blemishes any light colored flower. Where lilies are fully advanced and are being run cool this makes the best shade, and a strip can also be run along on the south side of the bench to protect them from the direct rays of the sun. A piece of cloth of this kind can be used in many ways throughout the spring to furnish shade to certain plants when it is not advisable to shade the entire house, and with proper care can be used for many years.

Gloxinias.

For the grower who has a retail business connected with his green- house there is no better flower that can be grown than the gloxinia, for they make a nice plant for summer blooming and a select cut flower for work during the months of July and August. They are one of the best house plants that can be grown at that season and when in full bloom are very ornamental in any window. The bulbs should be started the latter part of March to have them in bloom in July and August. The bulbs should be started in 3-inch or 4-inch pots, according to the size of the bulb, the soil should be two-thirds light loam and one-third manure (well rotted), with some sand added, or if leaf mould is obtainable this is preferable to the manure. In potting fill the pot about one-third full of crocks and lumps of charcoal and cover with a thin layer of moss. Set the bulb so that the top is even with the soil and then place them in a house with a temperature of 60 degrees. Give them a thorough watering and after that but little water until the leaves begin to form. As soon as the roots begin to grow they should be shifted to larger pots in the same kind of soil, always giving plenty of drainage. Never allow them to get pot bound until the buds begin to form but shift them to a size larger pot. Be careful in watering, never syringe them, and can watering is to be preferred, for water on the leaves ruins the beautiful foliage. As the warmer summer days come on they should be given a light shade.

Violets.

As the sun grows brighter and the days grow warmer the violet flowers unless shaded will grow lighter in color and much smaller, but there is always demand for violets as long as flowers of good quality can be picked, so heavy shading can be resorted to in order to prolong the season. The low sash houses are very easily shaded, but it is more difficult to carry violets along into the warm weather in the large houses. We have often prolonged the picking of good violets into May by removing the sashes off of a sash house as soon as the nights become warm enough to do this safely and place wooden shutters on the frame in place of the sashes. This will keep the house shaded and cool and yet permit enough light to enter to allow the plants to produce good flowers. This can also be done with cold frames which are really preferable to sash houses, for the shutters can be lifted at the back and propped up with short sticks and this will provide good ventilation. We have kept violets blooming with splendid flowers until May by this method.

The young stock if it is to be planted in the field should be set out at the earliest possible time, just as soon as the ground can be ploughed and harrowed. The young plants take hold much quicker when the soil is moist and before the warm days come on, and very often there will be a dry spell in May, at which time it is almost impossible to get the young plants started unless they were planted early enough to have rooted into the soil. The young stock in flats and pots for planting inside are much better in a cold frame now than in the houses.

Gardenias

The best time for propagating gardenias is in February and March, for it is easy to maintain the high temperature that is required and good cuttings are obtainable. The best medium for the propagating bench is a mixture of fine chopped sphagnum, peat and sand in equal parts, and it is very important to have sufficient heat—75 to 80 degrees bottom heat and 70 to 75 degrees on top. Be sure and select the cuttings from strong growing healthy plants. The cuttings should be syringed two or three times a day and protected from the sun, and no draughts should be allowed to blow across them. A propagated bench with a sash over it makes a very suitable place. With such treatment the cuttings will root in three to four weeks, when they should be potted in 2½-inch pots in a soil composed of half peat and half rotted compost. They should then be placed in a house with a temperature of about 70 degrees at night and 75 to 80 degrees by day for a week or so until the roots have grown into the soil, when the temperature can be reduced to 65 degrees at night and 70 to 75 degrees during the day. In three weeks they can be shifted to 3-inch pots and after this shifted as required, for they should never become pot bound. All the buds should be removed as they form to secure a strong, healthy growth.

The Standing Cross.

SEE SUPPLEMENT WITH THIS ISSUE.

As is only natural to suppose, the cross is one of the most popular of floral designs for funerals and it may be made one of the most beautiful as well if the designer is in sympathy with his work. It should not be forgotten that artistic beauty rather than expense should be striven for at all times. All of the three styles of floral crosses—the kind made to lie flat, the reclining cross and the standing cross—are capable of being made very beautiful, but the standing cross with its base may be made in large sizes and should well repay the florist for the time and trouble.

Chicago Flower Show Poster.

Above all crowded or too compact work should be avoided in designing this offering. The wire frame should be adhered to closely enough to show the form of the cross with good advantage, but the longer stemmed flowers should be used, making fewer of them necessary and giving the design a looser effect than where they are crowded in for the sake of using up all the material possible. The cross may be made of any of the bright colored flowers in season, and several kinds or but one variety may be used. Orchids and lily of the valley may be used with good effect as may roses and carnations, adiantum or other greens, as well as galax, ivy, etc., which are good to finish the design with. Garlands of flowers hanging from the arms or sprays across the face of the cross add greatly to its beauty. Much latitude is afforded the designer in the base of the cross as no special form must be adhered to here. This is well illustrated in the supplement which accompanies this issue, as much of the piece's beauty is due to the handsome effect of the base. In this design white carnations are used for the solid part and the spray of roses and lily of the valley add much to its beauty.

Publicity.

Paper read by W. J. Vesey, Jr., at the March meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association at Ft. Wayne.

Mr. President and fellow-members, the subject for the remarks I am going to make has been the absorbing topic among the allied trades for the last year, and no doubt most of those present have given a good deal of thought to this topic, namely publicity. This association was organized for the same reason that other clubs and associations were organized, which was the advancement of the members' interests. We have secured the advancement in that we know how to grow stock better, keep down disease and many other things of note. But the times are changing and so must we. Millions of feet of new glass have been erected in the last year, which means a far greater supply of flowers than ever before. As yet nothing has been done toward creating a demand to counteract the increased supply. Well, why not now? I might say we are a fraternity, and a fraternity is only strong when they pull together. We want to plan our business interests together, or in other words, we want co-operation. We want to especially study what interests the public. The road to success lies in serving the public and this can only be done by us all taking a common interest in the forward movement.

This association cannot hope to accomplish all that we would wish. Our strongest hope lies with the national society. It is to the S. A. F. that we should lend our help and attention, as it is mainly through this body that we can hope to draw the attention of the public to our wares. Let us consider what the S. A. F. means to the average florist. It means a vacation, a picnic and a general good time. But those of you who have attended the last two conventions have found a different atmosphere prevalent. Questions of exceeding importance have come before the convention to be passed and acted upon. The florists that attend these present day conventions are thinkers. They have come to realize that the business is not as easy as it used to be. At the last convention, which was held in Chicago, a publicity committee was appointed. Through some mistake or oversight, this committee was given no power to act, inasmuch as there was no sum of money set aside for this purpose. I believe that a fair sum will be forthcoming this year. The purpose of this committee was to get out such advertisements and reading matter which would attract public attention in the desired direction. To send copy to representative cities for all leading flower days, such as Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving. To send copy which would eventually make national flower days of Lincoln's birthday, McKinley's birthday, St. Valentine's day and Mother's day. There are unlimited possibilities for this committee. They could suggest to the political parties of this country they should have a special flower emblem. Just stop and think what this one item would mean to our business. They could reach the women of this country through such mediums as House and Garden, Country Life, Ladies' Home Journal, Woman's Home Companion and numerous other magazines. They could teach the women how to care for plants in the house and garden, when to sow seeds, the varieties, how to water, and numerous other cultural notes. Do you not think this would awaken a widespread interest in our trade?

One of our big opportunities is the awakening of so many cities to civic improvement. This item alone is of prime importance to us, in that it arouses public interest to the beautiful things we grow which could probably be aroused in no other manner. Civic Improvement I spell with four letters—h-o-p-e. Another item of recent date and of vast importance to us is parcel post. Parcel post has opened up unlimited territory for us to work in. Seedsmen can now quote prices in their catalogues on goods delivered to the door. This is an attractive issue to the average catalogue buyer. If the people learn to buy from the seedsmen through parcel post, why not from the cut-flower man?

You have all noticed the lack of attendance at flower shows. Why is this? You all know the answer. The shows have not been advertised in the manner and places that attract public attention. The public have not been made to realize what they have missed by passing by a flower show. We must surely realize that a flower show is one of our fortes. Why go to the trouble of getting up a flower show with all of the provoking problems and not properly advertise it? I attended the national show in Boston, and from the size of the crowds each day anyone could tell that a great deal of thought and attention had been given to advertising. The building was exceedingly large, the crowds so large one could hardly force a way through. Did it pay? Well, rather.

Gentlemen, a big opportunity is coming to bring the trade under public notice. That opportunity will be April 5 to 12 down at New York. A wise selection was made when the National Flower Show committee was chosen. Every member is an energetic one, and doing all in his power to make it a success. And I think it will be. It has been largely advertised all through the East. The entries are large but they should be larger, and would be if the florists realized what an excellent chance they have to impress the public. All of you gentlemen should attend this show if it is possible to do so, for you will receive value for value.

A small way to advertise which is overlooked by nearly every florist is the buttonhole bouquet. Perhaps you do not realize the value of this small item. How easy it is to stop at the refrigerator and select a nice carnation or rose and put it in the buttonhole before going downtown. We all do it at a florists' meeting, but why not at home? I am like the rest of you. I hate to wear a flower, simply because no one else does. Nevertheless we are overlooking one item of advertising. I think I'll advertise from now on.

The florists' papers have taken up the matters of publicity in this way. In a February issue they went to a great deal of trouble and expense to show the trade how to advertise properly. They went still further, they printed numerous photographs regarding new modes in the arrangement of boxes and decorations for St. Valentine's day. That issue no doubt helped a great many florists along this particular line. They have made a start in the right direction and I hope they keep it up. The New York Florists' Club has taken up the question of publicity, and from all reports, the proposition seems to be moving along nicely. That is what all the florists' clubs in the country should do. And this will be the final outcome, as the florists are awakening to the fact that something should be done toward creating a demand.

Speaking of creating a demand, brings to my mind Mr. Wrigley, the chewing gum man. He had to create a demand and he did it solely by advertising. You used to read in the street cars and public places his advertisement, "Buy a package." You read his advertisement today and it is "buy it by the box." I was talking to an advertising man the other day about the wonderful advance of this chewing gum. He told me Mr. Wrigley had closed a contract with the McBee Co. for $5,000,000. The McBee Co. to my knowledge advertises in electric cars only. Another good example is W. K. Kellogg and his breakfast foods. You all know how his products have come to the front in the last five years. In conclusion I would say, let every florists' club the country over fall in line with the New York club, and be together in a universal movement to create a demand.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—Hild Bros., of this place, have an unusually meritorious strain of stocks which they claim has been selected and developed by themselves.

PITTSBURG, PA.—A charter has been issued to J. M. Phillips Sons, Inc., this city, to handle florists' tools and supplies. The incorporators are F. Heckman, Glenwood; E. H. Phillips, E. V. Phillips, M. W. Rigdon, Pittsburg, and F. J. Tyrell, Homestead; capital, $10,000.

BANQUET GIVEN BY THE BUFFALO FLORISTS' CLUB, MARCH 3, 1913.

THE CARNATION.

Carnation Five Inches Across.

Many years ago the late John Thorpe predicted that we would have, as we recall it, carnations producing blooms 4 inches in diameter. Not a few well informed workers among carnations laughed at Uncle John when he issued this statement, saying such a thing was impossible. We believe, however, the prophet lived to see his far seen hopes fully realized, and now H. Roth of LaFayette, Ind., goes him an inch better with his wonderful flower exhibited at C. W. McKellar's store, Chicago, March 14. This is a flower of very desirable red shade, good in form and substance and quite fragrant. Both stem and calyx are all that can be desired as seen in the eight flowers exhibited.

New Carnations.

Paper read by Elmer Weaver before the Lancaster County Florists' Club.

"Starting with Benora, it looks like an ideal variegated, exceedingly free bloomer, stem of sufficient length and strong enough to hold flower erect. The color is good, although carrying a slightly yellow cast. Growth is healthy and vigorous and cuttings root about as easily as Beacon, which means you may get them rooted if you are careful, very careful not to allow any chance for them to get too wet, too dry, too hot or too cold. Don't let any wind blow over them and a few other 'don'ts.' In transplanting from the field plants take hold easily and in a few weeks blooming shoots are forming in abundance. On the whole, it is a variety worthy of trial, though its color would preclude the growing of it universally in large quantities.

"Delhi is an improved Victory, and as I personally could never muster much enthusiasm over Victory, I do not know whether or not I think much of Delhi. With us it has somewhat the habit of a sweet potato vine, the stems showing a tendency to grow horizontal instead of vertical. Even though it formed such undesirable habits here it certainly makes enough flowers and will make as many during the season as anything in sight. I have seen it growing in Chester County this season and can say it was a fine sight, far ahead of Beacon in the same house, as good a stem, better color, freer bloomer and not the cropper Beacon is, though the flower looks as though a trip to the laundry would improve it greatly. Victory looks like a wilted collar and Delhi the same.

"Comfort has had the advantage of two seasons' experience in our place and when you visit us next season you will find 10,000 plants growing on the place. I know a number of you gentlemen are afraid of Comfort because it looks sleepy under certain conditions. The grower who thinks Comfort sleepy and discriminates against it on that score is nearer asleep than the carnation. He had better take a nap and when he wakes up and feels fit try Comfort. It is not so high in quality as Mr. Rohrer's seedling, but will produce more money per square foot of bench surface than any red we now have.

last season's novelties with which we "Rosette is the fourth variety of are experimenting and from the ultimate dollars and cents point of view I feel sure the best; first, from what it is showing itself to be and, second, because it is one of Dorner's seedlings, all of which have made good here except Scarlet Glow. It differs from their other recent introductions in that its growth is heavier and that it makes plenty of good cuttings that root easily. When lifted and planted indoors it was ready for business long before Mrs. Ward, White Perfection and some others had decided whether they wanted to move or not. The stem is very stiff, of good length, the flower larger than either Gloriosa or Pink Delight, deeply serrated, center well filled and of unusual depth. In color it is perfectly clear and very nearly a Lawson shade, having none of the streaks or faded edges sometimes found in Mrs. Ward. My commission man pronounces it a very desirable shade and an excellent keeper.

"One year's trial is not sufficient to determine the merits of a variety unless it shows characteristics so bad and so universal that the condemnation is general, as quite frequently, indeed, too frequently occurs. Any variety showing many good points and a few defects is worthy of care and further trial, as something in our treatment individually may accentuate the good points and minimize the bad so that in the end we are the gainers. Even though we unfortunately are handed many gold bricks, I feel it pays to try at least a few of the new ones as introduced, but not so few that they do not seem worthy of our care. Then do not throw them out until you are sure there is no money in them for you, or that they are not better than the variety they are intended to replace.

"This constant adding and discarding of new varieties is expensive, but if you do not do it, you will soon, very soon, be comparing the market reports in the trade journals with the returns from your commission firm, with the result that you will decide that the reporter for the trade journals should be in the Ananias Club or the commission merchant in jail, while the cause usually is to be attributed to our own lack of business acumen in keeping up with these progressive times. Some years back we experienced something like this. Mrs. Lawson was given a trial in a small way and in a careless manner, with the result that we discarded it the first season as no good, and you all know that we did not know anything about it at that time when we said Mrs. Lawson was no good and that we lost good money by our hasty action. Later on, when everybody was doing it well, we bought stock again, but we lost several seasons when the flowers were bringing big money.

"A present-day parallel is Gloriosa, about the grandest we have had up to the present time. I have made many inquiries regarding this variety and have had a great variety of replies, never realizing before how many people are affected by various degrees of indecision. Several are propagating and buying all they can get of it; others say frankly they are going to discard it, while still others are up in the air and don't know yet what they want to do. The chief objections to this variety are its lack of desire to reproduce itself by a cutting and its lack of growth in the field. These faults should not deter us from experimenting until we overcome them. This tendency to run to a flowering shoot in a short space of time can be partly overcome by topping part of the shoots back when bringing them in from the field. If we can get the results Mr. Brinton has at his place we would certainly be foolish to discard it."

In addition to Mr. Weaver's paper we had on exhibition blooms from C. Akehurst & Son, White Marsh, Md., of a very fine pink seedling carnation; the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., exhibited Matchless, a superb white; the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., Commodore, in fine form and a good red. There was also a very handsome vase of Northport, which promises to be a leading pink. Henry Rohrer of Lancaster, Pa., had another fine vase of his new red, which he has named "Scarlet Wonder," and very aptly, as it certainly is a wonder among the scarlets. He is selling a limited amount of it this season. Visitors were Walter Mott, representing Benjamin Hammond, of Fishkill, N. Y.; C. U. Liggit, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., and L. I. Bolton of Holtwood, Pa.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Shading, Insects, Potting.

After the middle of February the sun gets powerful enough to require some shading on the palm houses, at least on the south side of those houses that run east and west, and soon after March 1, shading will also be needed on the north side. This does not mean that a heavy coat of shading should be given now, but that enough shade to keep the plants in color and to protect the foliage from burning, is a proper precaution. Of course the frosts at night and not infrequently snow during March and the early part of April are hard on the shading material, and frequently necessitate its renewal, but this is one of the things that requires attention if one wishes to produce stock of good salable character.

Insects too are waking up as the spring approaches, and there is often to be seen aphids of two or three kinds on the young growth of the palms, these pests tucking themselves away in such places as are not easily reached by the water in syringing. The small yellow thrips and also red spiders are likely to appear with the bright days and higher temperature of the season, and this means an active campaign of examination, for small as these insects are, they possess good healthy appetites, and the result of their feeding is seen in discolored and crippled foliage. A strong force of water is the best weapon with which to fight red spider, and this should be directed to both, the upper and the lower sides of the leaves in syringing, for on palms the red spider does not confine its attacks to the underside of the foliage only, but also gets busy on the upper surface too, these attacks being usually indicated by the concaving of the leaflets, due to the contraction of the leaf from the insect punctures.

Thrips may be dislodged by syringing, but it requires some nicotine solution to destroy them entirely, the spraying with nicotine usually giving the best results for the money invested, though a combination treatment consisting of spraying in the afternoon and fumigating at night, is a good method to pursue in severe cases. For scale insects, sulpho-tobacco soap seems to be one of the effective remedies, and is much used as a dip on small stock, and as a preventive treatment is sprayed on the larger plants. It is easy to say that a good grower should not have these insect pests to contend with, but in some instances scale insects are found on the palm seeds when they arrive from their native country, and the insects consequently may appear on the first leaf the seedling throws up, thus getting established on the plant before their presence is noted.

One of the small brown scales is thus found at times on seedling kentias, and in its early stages is not easy to see with the ordinary eye, and this particular pest is not readily dislodged, for it clings very closely to the stem and midribs of the plant. Nor is it quickly affected by the ordinary insecticides. Mealy bug does not give so much trouble in the palm house ordinarily, though once it secures a foothold on Cocos Weddelliana or Areca lutescens, there is likely to be a stiff fight before it is eradicated, for this insect is most prolific in a warm and moist atmosphere.

The spring potting of young stock will now be in order, for the root action becomes more rapid as the days lengthen, and firm potting, some care in drainage, and careful and thorough watering, are among the essential details to be observed, for one cannot get these plants to start away with full vigor and rapid growth unless the soil is thoroughly moistened through after potting. The making up of bushy kentias is one of the most popular ways of handling these useful palms, some growers using a tall center plant with three or more small plants around the base, while others simply group three or four plants together in a pot or tub and trust to nature to do the rest. But however they may be grouped, the plants should all be kept at one level as far as the base of the stem is concerned. A palm should never have the stem buried in the soil any lower than is absolutely necessary to hold it firmly in place, for not only does it retard the growth, but there is also some risk of fungus developing and rotting off the stem.

Columbines.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise as to the best methods of propagating and growing columbines.

California.

G. M. C.

There is no other way to increase Aquilegias—apart from an occasional possibility of division of the roots—than by seeds, which are produced abundantly and, if sown at once, germinate well. If a particular variety is to be perpetuated, the plant must be protected from the bees while in flower, or isolated a distance from others. Columbines too must be regarded somewhat as biennials. It often happens that after flowering freely the plant dies, though nominally of perennial duration. It may be probable that in California, where severe winter stress would not be experienced by the plants, that they will prove of greater longevity. Seeds sown in spring will produce plants that will bloom the following year.

E. O. ORPET.

Growing Asters in Benches.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Which are the best asters for growing inside on benches? At what time should the tops be pinched out? How many branches should be allowed to grow on for bloom?

J. H. T.

Pennsylvania.

Some of the best varieties of asters for indoor work are: Semple's Branching, Truffant's Prize, the Daybreak type, Vick's Branching, Vick's White King and many others which do well. Pinching should be practiced when the plants have attained seven or eight full leaves. The quantity of branches will depend very much on the variety, but if extra large blooms are required the branches can be limited to six or eight or even less.

Twin City Florists.

Credit for having had the first Florists' Club in the Twin Cities belongs to St. Paul. About twenty-five years ago the Ramsey County Florists and Gardeners' Association held a flower show and made money. For some strange reason, which even the members of the organization cannot explain, the club dissolved. Its dissolution could not have been due to lack of funds, because at the time it disbanded it had a balance of about $800. Some years after the dissolution of the St. Paul club the Association of Minnesota Florists was organized with E. Nagel (now deceased) as president. This association had members in both cities and for a number of years progressed successfully and accomplished a great deal for the benefit of florists in general. Finally, however, due to lack of interest, it followed the St. Paul club into dissolution.

Upon the completion of the first greenhouse built by the Park Board of Minneapolis in 1907, Theodore Wirth, Superintendent of Parks, tendered an invitation to the florists of the Twin Cities to inspect the new plant and to get acquainted. From this informal meeting there developed in December of the same year the Twin City Florists' Club, which is now a vigorous, healthy organization, growing in numbers and influence every year. The officers elected at the initial meeting were: Theodore Wirth, president; O. J. Olson, St. Paul, vice-president; S. D. Dysinger, St. Paul, secretary; and R. A. Latham, Minneapolis, treasurer.

The monthly meetings of this club held alternately in the two cities were well attended. Exhibits and papers kept the interest high. An annual winter dance and a summer picnic always drew large crowds and were helpful in promoting closer friendship between the florists and their employes. To place the association on a business basis and to give it prestige, articles of incorporation under the Minnesota State Laws were adopted in June, 1908, and the organization given the name of the Minnesota State Florists' Association. Mr. Wirth remained as president until 1911, when he resigned. Hugh Will was elected to succeed him. Mr. Dysinger has been secretary from the beginning with the exception of about one year. Among other achievements the Association has been instrumental in obtaining an increase of $500 in premiums at the Minnesota State Fair, which is the largest state fair in the country. Last year the premiums for floriculture exhibits amounted to $1,853.

In 1910 Minneapolis held its first flower show under the auspices of the Minnesota State Florists' Association. The judges pronounced it the best exhibition of its kind they had ever attended, both in regard to exhibits and artistic layout. Pretty landscape effects were a feature, and won the highest praise. Particular credit for the success achieved by the show from a professional standpoint was accorded Mr. Wirth. The show was not a financial success, but it accomplished an important result in the interest it engendered and in the influence it gave for floriculture in the Twin Cities. A second Flower Show was held in November, 1912, in St. Paul. While it made a better showing in a financial way, lack of space made it impossible to give it the setting that was desired. The present officers of the Minnesota State Florists' Association are: Hugh Will, Minneapolis, president; O. J. Olson, St. Paul, vice-president; S. D. Dysinger, St. Paul, secretary; E. P. Holm, St. Paul, treasurer. Theodore Wirth, C. N. Ruedlinger, Minneapolis, and L. L. May, St. Paul, and LeRoy Cady, St. Anthony Park, form the executive committee. There are 53 members.

In October, 1911, several Minneapolis florists formed the Minneapolis Florists' Club. W. Desmond was elected president and has held that office since. The club is in a prosperous condition. While floriculture receives its first attention, evidence of its strength is found in the fact that it has a good baseball team as well as a bowling team. The club has a publicity committee which is vigorously conducting a propaganda to advance the business of the florist and has succeeded in commanding the interest and the support of the public as no other movement has. Articles of information with regard to flowers and plants are written and published in the daily newspapers. These articles have been stripped of technical verbiage and have proved interesting to young and old alike.

One of the committee's first acts was the preparation of a general florist advertisement for Mothers' day in May, 1912. On St. Valentine's day the committee collected about $130 which it expended for advertising with the result that sales of flowers were increased tremendously. The present membership of the club is 52. The officers are: W. D. Desmond, president; R. A. Latham, vice-president; C. F. Rice, secretary; A. E. Rice, treasurer; W. H. Bofferding, C. N. Ruedlinger and Chas. Hauk, executive committee. The Minneapolis club and the St. Paul association are co-operating actively in every effort which has for its object the improvement of conditions in the business they are interested in. Every member of both organizations has experienced substantial results from their propaganda sufficient to justify every step they have taken.

For the purpose of conducting the arrangements for the coming convention of the S. A. F. a special convention association has been formed, embracing all the members of both associations. The conventions and publicity committee of the Civic and Commerce Association has pronounced this organization of florists to be the most complete and most efficient local convention body ever organized in Minneapolis. The details of the convention arrangements have been divided among 14 committees. All these sub-committees have entered into their various tasks with a spirit and enthusiasm that promise good results and a most successful convention. The chairmen of the different committees form the executive committee.

Following are the names of the chairmen of the various subdivisions of the general committee: Executive, Theodore Wirth, chairman; C. F. Rice, secretary; finance, J. S. Mitchell; entertainment, Hugh Will; reception, W. H. Bofferding; information, Gust. Malmquist; souvenir album, J. A. Ridgway; press, J. F. Rice; sports, C. N. Ruedlinger; transportation, J. G. Taylor; hotel and depot, W. S. Desmond; badges and tickets, H. Rosacker; decoration, R. A. Latham; ladies' reception, Mrs. Theo. Wirth; St. Paul reception, O. J. Olson; University, Prof. L. R. Cady.

OBITUARY.

Philip Einsman.

Philip Einsman, a well known florist of Astoria, N. Y., died at his home March 13. Bright's disease was the cause of his death. He had been in poor health for two years but was not confined to his home until about the first of this year. He was 42 years old. Mr. Einsman was born in Germany and came to this country when 18 years old. His first work here was for Wm. H. Siebrecht, now president of the New York Florists' Club, who then, as now, owned a range at Astoria. Later he worked for the firm of Pitcher & Manda, Short Hills, N. J., and also for H. D. Darlington, Flushing, N. Y. Eighteen years ago he started in business for himself at Astoria within a few blocks of the Siebrecht range, and had during these years been successful as a grower, making a specialty of bulbous stock and Easter plants. His cut stock was sold in the New York Cut Flower Exchange, of which he was an active member and officer. A year before he went into business for himself he was married to Miss Mary Fennessy, who with nine children, survives him. In the family are seven boys and two girls, the oldest girl being eighteen, the youngest child two years old. He was a member of the Society of American Florists and of the New York Florists' Club, of which he served as vice-president in 1912. He was also a member of the Astoria Florists' Bowling Club. Philip Einsman was a genial and kindly man and popular with all his acquaintances and business associates. During his long and painful illness he had the sympathy of many friends, which is now extended to his sadly stricken family. A. F. F.

O wondrous resurrection
Of flower from out the clod,

To bear the peace of God!

OUR SUPPLEMENTS should renew promptly to insure regular delivery of the paper. The yellow address label on the paper shows date of expiration.

Our Supplements.

Subscribers should see that they get copies of the fine supplementary illustrations showing high grade design and decorative work. These fine supplements should be carefully preserved as they mean much to the retail florists in dealing with their customers, illustrating as they do the various kinds of work that the everyday florist is called upon to perform.

The papers in which the supplements appear should be likewise preserved, as they contain much valuable data with regard to these special illustrations. Subscribers should see that they get every issue, as otherwise they may miss some of this high-grade work.

American Rose Society.

NEW ROSE REGISTERED.

The Florex Gardens, incorporated, North Wales, Pa., file for registration the new rose "Mavourneen," described as follows: Sport of the Pink Killarney, very large bud averaging 30 petals; color deep pink, reverse side of petal almost as dark as the inside petal. Very fragrant; good foliage. This rose has been under observation several years.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

The Easter Parade.

There will be real beauty and the best embodiments of fashion in the Easter parade next Sunday. But the beauty will be that of milliners' models and the "fashion" will adorn the wives and daughters of our leading brewers.

Every year the "parade" becomes larger—and, frankly, one must say it becomes more beautiful. But it will soon be a sort of New Year's Eve riot. The real people of society have abandoned it utterly in so far as the dress display is concerned. They are part of it only as necessary (and bleakly gowned) pilgrims to the Sunday service and back home again.

There is something subtly sad about the passing of this honored and once famous institution. But I suppose it is all for the best. I suppose Sadie from the Bowery has as much right to display her dreadful costly finery on Fifth avenue as the leader of society has to display her cheap and tasteful things. Democracy wins in the long run and democracy is all right—if you don't have to meet it personally.—New York American.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Rocklin & Lehman of Sioux City, Ia., had the following strange experience, through which their brother florists may benefit: Early in December they sent in an order to the firm of Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, Scotland, stating that they wished to have flowers sent to a certain patron in time for Christmas. The letter head of Dobbie & Co. is styled as follows: "The Seedsmen & Florists." Sometime later Rocklin & Lehman received the following letter:

"Gentlemen:

"We duly received your letter with enclosure. We are sorry that we do not grow cut flowers for sale, and have none to supply at the present time.

"We have sent the letter to Mrs. — and advised her accordingly.

"Regretting we are unable to be of service to you on this occasion, we are

"Yours faithfully,
"DOBBIE & Co."

Investigation by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery revealed the fact that it is a common thing for foreign firms to style themselves florists, even though they only grow a few garden flowers in season. It is well for the American firms to be sure that the European brethren are prepared to furnish flowers at this season of the year.

Chas. Dards of New York has volunteered to advertise the Florists' Telegraph Delivery in the International Flower Show program. A. Pochelon, secretary, thought very highly of the results which might be obtained when approached for an advertisement, and is more than pleased with the enterprising spirit shown by Mr. Dards, who is generally found to be a leader in such matters.

The most instructive paper rendered by Wallace Pearson recently on "The Florist and His Market" is certainly interesting reading for members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. There is much in it which ought to be profitably adopted by an organization of retailers for the general furtherance of the flower business. The paper is ahead of the times in thought and gives the many retailers an inspiration for making greater strides in the future.

IRWIN BERTERMANN, President.

MARKET OVERCROWDED.

The local market is still overcrowded with stock of nearly all kinds. Carnations are not over-plentiful, but the rose market has been poor all week. The fakers are seen every day with a lot of them, and naturally this cuts the prices down to the retailers. Business is poor in general, and everybody is cleaning up and making preparations for the big rush for Easter. The plant men are about the only ones that are rushing just now, and the advance shows in the windows around town surely are attractive. Sweet peas and violets are still the jokes of the wholesale markets and always take a back seat with the buyers. Some candidum lilies have appeared and do not take very well. Some fine single violets have appeared also. The lilies which are arriving are anything but good, but the growers report that they will be much better for Easter. We hear, though, that sweet peas will be a little scarcer than usual. Carnations will be here in quantities enough to supply all. We expect some nice mild weather for Easter, which will be quite the opposite from last year, when extra precautions had to be taken to insure the stock against freezing. We had quite a sleet storm Sunday, but it has all passed over and the thermometer shows a temperature of about 50°. The gardenia market is very poor and these flowers are being offered at very low prices, but nevertheless they do not seem to move. We are hoping and think that Easter will clean up quite a lot of them. The white lilac crop is also poor and before long it will be out of sight altogether.

NOTES.

T. M. Fitzgerald, the Beaver florist, had a very fine showing of Easter plants at his greenhouses last Sunday. He had a fine lot of carnations, lilies and tulips on exhibition and the show was the talk of the town. Mr. Fitzgerald has five good-sized houses, all equipped with concrete benches. He thinks well of the carnation Princess and is growing it extensively.

E. G. Hill of Richmond, Ind., was in town last Wednesday. He brought along a sample of his new red carnation Commodore, which is a seedling from Beacon and Victory. It was much admired here.

The Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., is cutting much heavier on roses and their stock is excellent. The White Killarneys are sold at sight. The McCallum Co. are Pittsburg agents for their stock.

The green carnation for St. Patrick's day did not take so well as in other years. Many of the florists were over-expectant of sales on this flower and came out at the short end.

Miss Jane McDowell and Miss Agnes Wells of Steubenville, O., were in Pittsburg buying Easter stock Wednesday.

Chas. Puhlman, the Carnegie florist, is passing out the cigars. It is his first and a boy. We congratulate him.

Fred Reigelmeir reports business as being very satisfactory for his first week in the Carson Street store.

Nick Harris of Harris Bros., is a happy man at present. A boy arrived Sunday. Congratulations.

H. C. Frew of Rochester contemplates moving to a new location in Rochester in the near future.

A large fire on Federal street, North-side, gave the seed store of W. C. Beckert a scarce recently.

A report comes from Clearfield that Wm. Blacker, leading florist of that town, has dropped dead.

Crall's Flower Shop of Monessen, Pa., reports business as being exceedingly good of late.

Geo. Wehrheim, who is now a father, reports the new arrival, a boy, in the best of health.

Visitors: I. J. Dowdell with T. M. Fitzgerald, Beaver, Pa.; S. T. Sheaffer, of Indiana, Pa.; Jos. Thomas, Greensburg, Pa.; Geo. Huscroft, Greensburg, Pa.

Minnesota Florists' Association.

The regular monthly meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association was held at Holm & Olson's store, St. Paul, Tuesday evening, March 11. President Will called the meeting to order at 8:45. Twenty-eight were present. O. J. Olson of the dance committee, reported that several halls were available, but that in the opinion of the committee, the Junior Pioneer hall was the best suited and he mentioned several open dates that could be had during April. Remarks in regard to the dance, were made by C. F. Vogt, W. D. Desmond and N. C. Hansen. The general opinion was that the dance should be held shortly after Easter. It was moved and carried that the committee be given full power to make all arrangements for the party to be given April 17.

The secretary read a communication from J. C. Nelson, president of the Men's Garden Club, St. Paul, asking that a committee of fifteen be appointed to attend the mass meeting to be held at the St. Paul Auditorium, March 29. It was moved and carried that the St. Paul members of the association be requested to attend the meeting in a body and that the secretary so instruct the president of the Men's Garden Club. The secretary reported a telephone communication from Gust Malmquist, relative to meeting — Bailey of the State Fair board at Holm & Olson's store, March 15, to confer regarding exhibits at the coming State Fair. The president appointed a committee, consisting of Gust Malmquist, O. J. Olson, Theo. Wirth, John Monson and Max Kaiser, to meet with Mr. Bailey.

The following applications for membership were read: Phillip Lunkenhaimer, 261 West Third street, St. Paul; Frank McCabe, A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Chas. G. Nordine, Jewell Nursery Co., Lake City, Minn.; Chris. Bussjaeger, 533 Dale street, St. Paul; Chas. Houck, Lakewood Cemetery Greenhouses, Minneapolis; Wm. Clinkberry, Minneapolis; A. Miller, A. Henderson & Co., Chicago and D. L. MacIntosh, 1251 Seminary avenue, St. Paul. Upon motion, the by-laws were suspended and the above applicants were accepted as members. The president appointed Louis Vogelien, Wm. Desmond and A. J. Smith, judges of the exhibits. The report of the judges was as follows: Cut mignonette, exhibited by Holm & Olson, 93 points; tulips, Prince of Austria, exhibited by Holm & Olson, 86 points; carnations, Princess Charming, exhibited by C. G. Nordine of the Jewell Nursery Co., Lake City, Minn., 71 points; Tausend-schon rose plant, 72 points and Baby Rambler rose plant scored 67 points, both exhibited by Holm & Olson. C. G. Nordine gave a short talk on the carnation which he exhibited. A vote of thanks was extended the exhibitors. It was moved and carried that the association endorse Gus. Malmquist for the position of superintendent of floriculture at the State Fair.

Theo. Wirth addressed the meeting relative to the S. A. F. convention, outlining the work that had been done, the plants that had been decided upon by the executive committee and asked for the co-operation and assistance of florists of the state. L. H. Nordine of Minneapolis, gave a very instructive talk on "Greenhouse Heating." His talk was re-enforced with lantern slides of charts, showing fuel records and boiler construction. A standing vote of thanks was extended Mr. Nordine and the secretary was instructed to call upon him some time during the fall or winter for another talk along the same lines. The meeting adjourned to meet at the Park Greenhouses, Minneapolis, the third Tuesday in April. S. A. J.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

The recent spring-like weather has forced everything in cut flowers and plants. Bulbous stock in particular has been more plentiful than ever. Carnations, too, are arriving in large quantities, and prices in large lots have been much lower. Short-stemmed and smaller flowers for general work have sold for mid-summer prices. Roses are more plentiful and will be from now on, with the exception of American Beauties. Sweet peas are in good demand and the supply is good. Stock generally is of first class quality. Lily of the valley is in large supply and much in demand. Asparagus has been a little short of the demand. String smilax will be plentiful for the church holidays. Easter lilies in pots seem a little scarce, but cut lilies promise to be in good supply. Pansies, stocks, calandulas, freesias, snapdragon, mignonette, etc., are part of the daily stock. Boxwood is in good demand. Southern smilax and prepared beach sprays are being used freely in store decorations. Orders for sheet or log moss and wire hanging baskets are coming in early.

NOTES.

Harry Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., had a narrow escape from death Thursday night, March 11, when an auto struck him and a Mrs. Geo. W. Collister as they were alighting from a car. Mrs. Collister was killed instantly and Mr. Jones was seriously bruised and cut. At last accounts he is much improved.

Social night at the Florists' Club rooms Monday evening, March 10, was a grand success. Lunch and music were enjoyed by all present. The committee on boiler operators' licenses made its final report.

Sauers, who formerly managed the Lorain street store of Wilhelm Bros., has bought the place and will continue the business under his own name.

Congratulations are the order at F. W. Griffin's store. Mrs. Griffin presented him with a fine baby girl Saturday evening, March 8. C. F. B.

TRADE BETTER.

There has been a slight improvement in trade since the last writing but the week's business on the whole has been rather disappointing. The St. Patrick's day trade did not amount to very much and the wearing of the green as far as carnations is concerned seems to be a thing of the past. The Easter orders however are arriving in every mail and trade on this day promises to be very brisk. The demand for lilies, both cut blooms and plants, is very large and a shortage in these is expected. Nearly all the local growers have already disposed of their plants and are obliged to refuse orders which are continually arriving. A shortage is also looked for in American Beauty roses for the supply at present is far too short, and the orders that have already been booked will easily clean up the cut. Richmond roses are in better supply but are having a good call and it would not be at all surprising if there was a shortage in this line also. Rhea Reid and Radiance are in good supply and Killarney and White Killarney are very plentiful. Prince de Bulgarie, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Sunburst, Killarney Queen and Lady Hillingdon are arriving in fine condition and are in brisk demand. My Maryland and Bride are among the offerings in roses and a few Mrs. Jardine are to be had. Carnations are very plentiful yet, with a large number of splits still arriving. Lily of the valley is in good supply. Orchids are none too plentiful and have advanced a little in price. Gardenias are in larger supply but the home-grown stock is quickly disposed of. Sweet peas are not so plentiful as they have been and there is a shortage of white. Violets are in oversupply and bulbous stock of all kinds is plentiful. Southern jonquils are now arriving in quantity. Ferns are plentiful but the supply of smilax, asparagus and wild smilax has shortened up considerably within the past few days. The wholesale plantmen report an unusually brisk season and are pretty well sold out on blooming stock for Easter. With lily plants and other Easter blooming stock all sold there ought to be a good demand for cut flowers of all kinds.

NOTES.

The Williams Flower Shop, a new store, opened for business in an old location this week at 102 South Wabash avenue, with Fred Strail, the well known local expert designer in charge. This corner, Monroe street and Wabash avenue, has been long known as a flower centre, for the late Jim Farrell opened his first store here over 40 years ago. The Farrell store later passed into the hands of Mike Gallagher and later to John C. Schubert. John Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, also had the store for a long time but gave up his lease when the building was torn down to make room for a modern establishment. The new store is the property of Mrs. Frank Williams who is also proprietor of the Atlas Floral Co.'s store on East Randolph street. The store although located in the basement of the new building, is one of the finest equipped retail establishments in the city. All the fixtures, including the ice-box, which is itself a beauty, are made of Circassian walnut with the marble top effects throughout. A large number of people in the trade visited the store on March 15, the day of the grand opening and were greatly surprised when they entered to find such a beautiful store.

Wm. H. Kidwell nearly captured a robber this week, but —? To start with the beginning, it happened this way:

Just as he was leaving the store one night he saw a robber snatch a purse from an acquaintance of his and immediately gave chase which ended in a vacant lot a few blocks from the scene. Just as Mr. Kidwell was ready to seize the thief he pulled out a revolver and kindly asked him to go about his business. Of course, Mr. Kidwell, after much thought decided it was the best course to pursue for he felt that it would be folly to play the "Old King Brady" act when his services were so badly needed at the store during the Easter rush. His friends are congratulating him over his narrow escape and jokingly tell one another that they are mighty glad that such a fine fellow as "Billy" decided not to pass in his checks over such a small theft as a purse. Chas Drissler, one of Wietor Bros' popular young store men, is responsible for this item so if Mr. Kidwell has any kick coming—he can settle with that young man in particular.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is practically sold out of everything in blooming plants for Easter and judging from the orders that are now coming in at the store it would not be at all surprising if the cut flower department would again break all records. The demand for this firm's lilies this year, especially pot plants, was exceptionally large and one order alone from a large western retail florist called for nearly a carload of stock. C. G. Anderson, foreman of the plant department, expects to have the men busy potting cyclamen seedlings before the week is over.

Frank Hall, Jr., who has been employed in Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department was taken suddenly ill the first part of last week with scarlet fever and died on March 13. The young man was 19 years of age and was a newcomer in the trade, having recently joined the force of Poehlmann Bros. Co. The remains were taken to Mount Clemens, Mich., where his parents reside, on the following Saturday, March 15.

Tim Matchen and Emil Reichling, Peter Reinberg's storeman and foreman, and a few of the greenhouse employes visited Bassett & Washburn's new range and were favorably impressed with the way stock is grown by the B. & W. firm. The visitors were caught in the snow storm between the new range and Hinsdale and were pretty well tired out by the time they reached the station.

E. W. McLellan, of the E. W. McLellan Co., San Francisco, Calif., has just returned from a trip to the principal cities in the east and will spend a few days here before returning home. His firm expects to build a new range consisting of about 150,000 to 200,000 feet of glass in the near future and his visit here is mainly to look over the various plants in this vicinity.

Kyle & Foerster are having their share of business and the Easter trade at this house promises to be very good. Frank Benthley, one of the oldest florists in this city, is still on the job at this store and although he is 63 years old, he can make the younger men hustle some when it comes right down to real work.

Chas. Erne had the misfortune of spraining his left foot when he fell from the balcony of Erne & Klingel's store last week and for a time was obliged to hobble around on crutches. He is on the job however as usual, for the Easter trade is too brisk for Fred Klingel to handle alone.

Bassett & Washburn are coming in crop with American Beauty roses and the flowers that are now seen at their store are of fine quality. This firm is having a very brisk Easter trade and the demand for stock in certain lines has been so large, that a number of orders have been refused.

John Kruchten has had an unusually brisk demand for lily plants all this week and experienced no trouble whatever in disposing of his grower's stock. Blooms however, are plentiful at this house, but even these will, no doubt, be well cleaned up before the rush is over.

Chas. W. McKellar is receiving regular shipments of bulbous stock from the Hulbert Bulb Co. of Portsmouth, Va. Mr. McKellar's store was quite crowded at times last week when H. Roth, of Lafayette, Ind., exhibited a new red seedling carnation of enormous size.

ROSES AND CARNATIONS INCREASING.

We have experienced all kinds of weather during the past week. The first part of the week was balmy and sunshiny. The end was below the freezing point. There has been a large increase in the supply of roses and carnations. White carnations stiffened in price for dyeing for St. Patrick's day. Many florists used pale Enchantress in place of white, owing to the high prices. The Easter outlook on plants is good with perhaps lily plants a little scarce. Quite a number of spring openings have helped the sales of the cheaper grades of flowers. Greens of all kinds are selling well. Southern jonquils are plentiful and are selling at lower prices. Some fancy tulips are seen.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club meeting took place Thursday at 2 p. m., fifty members were present, President Young in the chair. The feature of the meeting was the carnation exhibit which was staged at the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.'s store on Pine street. Alex Waldbart, A. S. Wells, M. B. Garden were elected members. The following florists showed flowers: Fred Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., carnations; A. N. Rowe, Kirkwood, lily of the valley; Werner Bros., a fine display of Pink Killarney roses; Hugo & Gus Gop, sweet peas and violets; Adolph Ahner, carnations, White Wonder; Vennemann Bros., carnations and sweet peas; Weber's Nursery, carnations; Alton Floral Co., white carnations and Beacon; C. C. May, vase of carnations.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Wagoner, mother of Geo. Wagoner, designer at Grimm & Gorly's store, last Wednesday, March 12. The funeral took place Sunday and was largely attended. Many floral offerings were sent.

Sturdy two-year-old plants, all New York State grown worth 10 to 25 cents each are offered this week by a leading department store for five cents. What are the retail florists' associations going to do about this?

Kalish Bros. have a splendid display of Easter plants. Their store can be seen from the street cars on all sides, being located on a very prominent corner.

Alex Siegel continues special sales of violets, sweet peas and carnations. This store is always busy and Alex is one of our heaviest buyers in the market.

F. H. Weber's show windows are wearing an Easter aspect. Easter novelties are in abundance and his designers are kept busy at all times.

C. Young & Sons, as usual, are out with beautiful Easter decorations.

Their down-town store as well as their West End branch are kept busy.

Fred Bruenig has a splendid display of Easter plants. His business is at all times in a healthy condition and keeps all his employes at work.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. and the Bentzen Floral Co. have specially beautiful displays at their stores on North Grand avenue.

A. Jablonsky of Olivette, Mo., is growing some very fancy carnations, which are exclusively handled by H. G. Berning.

The Riessen Floral Co. is busy decorating their show windows for Easter. They have always a very artistic floral display.

F. C. Weber's windows are always very tastefully decorated with the latest novelties in design work.

Grimm & Gorly will use their new store which is not yet complete as an annex for Easter week.

John Barnard is building up a good trade. His business has increased considerably.

Max Rotter has a very pretty store on Fourteenth Street and has a good trade.

Henry Daurenburgh is again in the employ of Grimm & Gorly.

STOCK IN GOOD CONDITION.

Stock is arriving in good condition. There are plenty of roses, but not an over-supply and some are of fine color. American Beauties are very scarce and few are seen on the local market. Carnations are coming in more plentiful in all varieties and sell readily, especially the white, which were in great demand for last week. There is plenty of bulb stock, such as daffodils, tulips and narcissi. Violets and sweet peas are of excellent quality and move well, bringing a good price. Sprengerii and Asparagus plumosus are scarce, but there are enough other greens to fill all orders.

NOTES.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports business very good, having a heavy demand for white carnations last week. This firm is busy making plant shipments for Easter and is looking forward to a fine trade.

Gust. Rusch & Co. report business very good for the past week. This firm will have an exceptionally fine cut of lilies for Easter as well as other stock. Mr. Rusch spent Thursday, March 13, in Chicago.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is cutting a fine grade of roses. This firm has an exceptionally fine crop of lilies at their Brown Deer plant.

TRADE KEEPS UP WELL.

Business kept up rather nicely last week. The active demand of the preceding week held out pretty well. The supply, however, continued to increase. As a result, present indications are that there will be a sufficient supply for Easter. Bulbous stock, including principally tulips, jonquils and daffodils, is as a whole in a most excellent condition. It may be safely said that the quality of the offering at a time this close to a holiday is far better than for some years past. The Easter lily blooms are fine but the relative size of the receipts of this flower can not at the time of this writing be determined. Many good callas are coming in. Considering the large receipts in roses these have brought a very fair price. Naturally Pink and White Killarney are the leaders. The American Beauty rose receipts are hardly adequate. Smaller flowers adapted mainly for corsage bouquets and the like have been finding a very meager market. The best seller of the lot is sweet peas. Single violets have only been moving fairly well, while the market for doubles is not that good. Lily of the valley has been exceptionally fine but has not sold so very well. The supply of orchids and gardenias is more than sufficient.

NOTES.

The J. M. McCullough Sons Co., has been getting in some excellent Dutch hyacinths, jonquils and daffodils from Albert McCullough's place at Pleasant Ridge.

H. D. Crowell of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., stopped in the city to call on his firm's trade last week.

Wm. Schumann has been sending some lily of the valley of the very highest quality into the market.

L. H. Bragg, of Hinsdale, Mass., called on his trade in town last week.

Worcester County Hort. Society.

The Worcester County Horticultural Society held the first flower show of the season at Horticultural Hall, Worcester, Thursday, March 6. The feature of the show was a remarkable display of plants by H. F. A. Lange, which occupied the center of the hall. It consisted of rambler roses, rhododendrons, azaleas, lilacs, tulips and hyacinths. An acacia and a genista bush were also displayed. A semi-circle of attractive blossoms and greenery was shown by Denholm & McKay Co. The orchid display of George M. Whistin, raised by George McWilliam, received much praise, as such a display is rarely found at this time of the year. The awards were:

TRADE EXTREMELY DULL.

Very dull business was the rule the past week as with the exception of a run of funeral work on Monday and a fair trade on Saturday, the demand was very light indeed. There was an abundance of stock and yet prices did not sag to any extent. The weather is very mild and flowers are showing the effects of it. The Killarney roses are often quite light in color. The fancy roses, such as Hillingdon, Sunburst, Taft, etc., are in fairly good demand. Irish Fire Flame appears in a class by itself, it having a form and color all its own. When in the hands of an artist in combinations with other roses, some very fine work is turned out. Carnations are quite equal to the demand and while an attempt has been made to stiffen the price, the light demand of the week held matters about even. Violets are beginning to show the effects of the waning winter season, although they will last in fairly good shape until after Easter. There are plenty of good sweet peas, lots of lily of the valley, gardenias far too plentiful, and orchids about normal. Everybody offers Easter lilies in quantity. There has been no trouble to get them in this season. The outlook for next week is that there will be no scarcity of anything, as with the possible exception of American Beauty roses, the stock all along the line shows up in quantity. There will be little increase in price, except in carnations, which are likely to stiffen a bit as usual.

NOTES.

The spring business has already commenced with the H. A. Dreer Co., the large packing sheds being full of orders, many of them at this season coming from the south. Pot roses are one of their specialties, 250,000 having been potted for this season's demand. These were potted last fall and have been kept dormant in a large range of glass piled as many as five and six layers together to save room. They are well rooted and are now being placed outside in open frames where they will come along with the season. There are certainly very few stocks in the world any larger than this. The outdoor herbaceous stock is enormous. This is for the most part grown in small pots. This treatment insures a perfect plant which takes up little room in shipping, and not having been injured in the moving it gives perfect satisfaction. The spring importations of boxwood are just in, and a fine lot they are. It is certainly good policy to have them wintered on the other side, as they are quite the equal of any that are seen in the fall. A half acre of cocons in one of the large ranges is a feature of the place. They are a premium lot of plants. How to grow cocons is no longer a secret here, the only trouble being how to produce enough stock for the wonderful demand the firm worked up by offering such perfect plants. The new Glory fern is seen by the houseful and the repeat orders, most of them larger than the original, seem to forecast a great future for this variety. The Bird's-nest fern is also a feature here. A splendid lot is coming on, but will not last the season out, as it will all be sold before the time for delivery comes around. Seven hundred and fifty varieties of dahlias arranged in bins in a large shed which they have to themselves, is a great sight. In the center of this shed are ranged small shipping bins with varieties arranged alphabetically so that orders are easily gathered together.

The Leo Niessen Co. predicts a great Easter and is preparing for it, having almost doubled the delivery force by the addition of autos. Horses will soon be conspicuous by their absence here and the firm will soon own a garage of its own. After Easter lilies, American Beauty roses, carnations, lilacs and snapdragon are leaders for the week.

One would think that Edward Reid was a Southerner, he has such a large Southern trade. As a matter of fact, he was born among the shamrocks and is quite proud that he came from the "ould sod." Sweet peas and high grade carnations are a feature with him.

The M. Rice Co. is having a breathing spell after the large shipping trade, although the past week found the firm hard put to it for the local trade, which kept the force hard at it until the last day.

At Berger Bros' store Easter lilies are a feature. The flowers are large and not many to a stem. K.

BUSINESS VERY DULL.

Business was very dull during the past week, the main reason being that the buying at the retail stores was light. The last three days of the week were dark and gloomy with much rain, which also contributed to the dullness. It was what is often termed "warm and muggy" weather, and was at all times disagreeable. Saturday, March 15, was somewhat better for business but was not particularly good. On account of an increased demand for white carnations on that day to dye green for St. Patrick's day, some of the wholesalers put up the price to six cents each, but it did not stay there very long, four cents being the price generally paid. American Beauty roses are now much more plentiful and it takes good special stock to bring $5 a dozen. The prices of Killarney and other tea roses are about the same as our quotations of March 12. In anticipation of Palm Sunday the market was well supplied with cut lilies on March 15, but no very unusual demand was noted, prices being from eight to 10 cents per flower. There does not seem to be a possibility of a scarcity of Easter lilies, or, for that matter, of any other flowers or plants. Violets have been particularly slow during the past week and were much in evidence on the street corners.

Monday, March 17—There is a better tone to the market this morning, the weather is more favorable, being clear and bracing. There is an upward tendency in the prices of white stock, white carnations wholesaling for 4 cents. Cattleyas and gardenias are plentiful and cheap compared with former years. Although the weather of the past week was dark, a good supply of stock continues to arrive. There are plenty of American Beauty roses and though the best specials bring $5.00 to $7.00 a dozen wholesale, there is stock selling as low as $4.50.

NOTES.

The funeral of Philip Einsman was held from the residence, Astoria, N. Y., on the afternoon of March 16. The pallbearers were William H. Siebrecht, president of the New York Florists' Club; John Donaldson, vice-president of the same organization; John Niessen, one of the trustees; and Victor Darval and Peter Jacobson, also members of the club. Messrs Siebrecht, Donaldson and Niessen, are also members of the Society of American Florists and all the pallbearers were formerly associated with Mr. Einsman in the New York Cut Flower Exchange. That organization sent a large standing wreath. The Astoria Bowling Club sent a large floral cross and the New York Florists' Club a wreath. There were many other floral tokens from relatives and friends. Interment was at Short Hills, N. J., of which place Mr. Einsman was formerly a resident.

At the store of John S. Nicholas, Forty-second street, near the Grand Central Station, a great stock of fine lilies and other choice plants are already exhibited in anticipation of the Easter trade. These, in connection with his fine stock of cut flowers, make his store very attractive. His show windows are rich in orchids. American Beauty roses and other fine stocks. His son, Minor J. Nicholas, is now actively interested with him in the business. In a few weeks they will open another store in the Grand Central Station, which promises to be the finest retail store ever seen in a railway station in this country.

Charles Pinto, who gave his address as No. 43 Park Row, was held for trial before Magistrate McQuade March 15, charged with larceny. The complainant was Helen Togaris, who with her sister, keeps a flower stand at the approach to the Brooklyn Bridge. According to Miss Togaris, Pinto came to her stand and asked for $7.00 worth of flowers to be delivered at an address in Brooklyn, telling her he was "Alderman Connolly," and that he was to be married that night. She said he gave her a check for $10.00 and she gave him $3.00 in change. When the flowers were sent to the Brooklyn address the messenger found that it was fictitious. Miss Togaris continued to watch the crowds coming from Brooklyn, and eventually saw Pinto and had him arrested.

The Marche aux Fleurs, to be held at Sherry's on the afternoon and evening of March 27, promises to be a very interesting event. It is stated that flowers will be the principal articles sold at the fete and that many of the society people who have greenhouses on their country estates will contribute blooms in great variety. The originators of the idea had the flower markets of Paris in mind and a reproduction of the facade of the Madeleine of that city will be seen in the ballroom. There will also be booths for the sale of vegetables, at which young society women, in Dutch costumes, will preside.

Speaking of St. Patrick's day and the dyeing of flowers, we believe it would pay some of the dyers to go West and learn from the Indians. The first lunch basket we ever carried to school was made by an Indian woman from thin narrow strips of ash. They called the material "clush." These strips were beautifully dyed in different colors, and it is in a spirit of philanthropy that we offer this suggestion to the dyers of flowers.

Members of the firm of Fleuti & Reck of Highwood, N. J., who frequently visit this city have adopted a novel form of advertising. They send picture postal cards to their customers each month. The picture is supposed to represent the most popular form of sport for that month; on the reverse side is a stanza of poetry in which the popular or prevailing flower for the month is named.

J. K. Allen, in addition to a good stock of cut flowers, is now handling very fine geraniums and pots of candytuft from the range of Charles Hunt, Port Richmond, Staten Island. On a recent visit to the Hunt range we noted a large and very excellent stock of geraniums many of which were in bloom.

At the Astoria range of Wm. H. Siebrecht, we recently noted very fine purple and white lilacs, lilies and other bulbous stock, which is shipped daily to the store of his son, Geo. O. Siebrecht, on Twenty-eighth street, and to his stand in the New York Cut Flower Exchange.

Arthur Pritchard, a well known designer, formerly with Christatos & Kostas on Madison avenue, is now with Malandre Bros. at their main store, Broadway and One Hundred and Third street.

Some of the retail stores have already stocked up with plants. At the store of G. N. Malterzas, 2424 Eighth avenue, we have noted a fine stock of lilies, azaleas and other Easter plants.

Horace E. Froment continues to receive daily shipments of fine American Beauty, Richmond, Killarney and other roses from the L. B. Coddington range, Murray Hill, N. J.

At Thomas Young's, Jr., on March 15, we found the designers busy on a large harp which was to be prominent in one of the social events of St. Patrick's day.

The show window of Young & Nugent was gay Monday with shamrock and other suitable arrangements.

Philip F. Kessler is now handling very fine stock in lilies, tulips, narcissus and sweet peas.

Among many fine roses reaching this market none are finer than the pink and white Killarneys that are being handled by Wm. P. Ford, 107 West Twenty-eighth street.

A fine cross sent by the Astoria Bowling Club to the funeral of Philip Einsmann was made up by Chas. Arnold, a designer of Long Island City.

SOME VARIETIES AT SHOW.

The nearness of press day rendered it impossible to make extended comment on the exhibits at the New York Florists' Club meeting of March 10, and this opportunity is taken to review some of the more commendable varieties a little more fully.

Rose Killarney Brilliant—This new rose is appropriately named, for a more brilliant pink could not be found. We have never heard any fault found with the color of the original Killarney when at its best, but there are times, and it happened during a part of the past winter, that Killarney came to market looking somewhat pale. Killarney Brilliant is such a bright color that it could very well afford to lose some and yet be equal to the average pink rose. In stem and foliage, it seems to possess the desired qualities and we shall note with interest its future history.

Rose Irish Fire Flame—When we first saw this rose some six months ago, we confess that it did not greatly impress us. We are now pleased to note a great improvement, which is but natural to expect at this season. It has made better stems and after seeing it in various stages of openness, it has proved more attractive. The color is rather hard to describe and as we have not the grower's description at hand, we would call it pink with a shade of bronze, at any rate the color is attractive and we shall be interested in its future success.

Carnation Laura Weber—This seedling looks good to us. It has well formed flowers on good stems and the color is the desirable Enchantress shade, though better than that of Enchantress we have seen.

White Seedling Carnation—A good white carnation is always desirable and we may add, it is a pity to see so many of them spoiled for St. Patrick's day. This seedling of Frank Dienda's looks very promising and we hope to see more of it.

BUSINESS PICKS UP.

We are glad to report that trade is brighter than last week. The double violet, we are told, has had a rocky road this winter. Lilies are coming in crates to the wholesalers. The plants we have seen are very good. The flowers generally are large. Roses and carnations seem to have taken on new life again. Trade in these flowers has brightened somewhat, and there are orders already in for large quantities for Easter. There were abundance of shamrock plants everywhere. Prices ruled lower than in former years.

THE SPRING SHOW.

The spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society opened Friday, March 14, and continued until Sunday night. It was the best show we have seen in the hall for many years. Everything was of high order and well grown and fit to please the most exacting. Had M. H. Walsh of Woods Hole, and Thomas Roland of Nahant exhibited, it would have seemed like an old-time show, but those gentlemen are going to the Third International Show and what Boston has lost, will be New England's gain in New York. Never have we seen anywhere anything to surpass the carnation, rose and violet sections. Wm. Sim's violets and sweet peas were grand. The violets won a silver medal. The private gardener with foliage and spring flowers certainly woke up. Duncan Finlayson should be highly commended. He had a large block of foliage and flowering plants in the lower hall. Among them was a fine acacia pubescens, the biggest plant we have ever seen, and the honor of taking first prize for table decoration with six retail dealers as his opponents speaks well for Mr. Finlayson. The table was simplicity itself, a vase of pink sweet peas arranged loosely completed the center piece and the entire arrangement was simply and neatly done. Mr. Finlayson feels that he can take his friends to some swelt hotel in the near future and stand a dinner on his successes. Mrs. J. L. Gardner received first and second prizes for groups of spring plants. R. J. Farquhar staged an elegant table of cyclamens. The Hittinger Fruit Co. and C. H. Stone & Co., showed splendid rhubarb, lettuce, mushrooms and artichokes. In the carnations, Peter Fisher, Ellis, received a silver medal for Georgous. —Pembroke was the largest exhibitor of these flowers. Others were S. J. Goddard, M. A. Patten & Co., Wheeler & Co., H. Stevens, Scott Bros. and Strout's. The Cottage Gardens had Matchless and The Herald, the Chicago Carnation Co.'s fine scarlet was shown in good shape. In roses, the Waban Rose Co. and M. Elliot were the only exhibitors, but their exhibits were something out of the ordinary. Mrs. Chas. Russell, by the Waban Co., received a silver medal. Pink Killarney, by Wm. Elliot, first prize. This vase of Killarneys we never saw equalled at any show. Wm. Elliot's Richmond, Christy Miller and Lady Hillingdon, were simply wonderful. We never have seen Hillingdon in such good shape as he had it and his Christy Miller is a wonderful rose. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited his rose Milady, and F. R. Pierson showed ferns. F. J. Dolansky, Lynn, Mass., orchids and gardenias. Prof. Sargent sent a good variety of seedling azaleas, some very unusual and pleasing colors. These were one of the attractions of the show for the private gardeners. A good show of apples of all varieties, in the small hall, had many fine exhibits. We are pleased to report an unusual interest awakened in the spring shows. The society offers good prizes and there is no reason why the old time interest and rivalry cannot be revived. Visitors included: W. A. Manda, Orange, N. J.; and R. Frothingham. The latter says if he stays in Boston much longer, he may get acclimated and make it his home. This speaks well for this city, from this globe trotter.

Philadelphia Notes.

Gus Doemling of Lansdowne is also making a large addition. He has taken up the parcel post delivery system, advertising through the daily press that he will sell at retail and deliver in that manner. Here is a plan by which a grower may become a retailer over night. No experience necessary except that which may come after.

John Stephenson's Sons of Oak Lane are about to add to their large house another of the same length, making a total of over 57,000 square feet under one roof. The Lord & Burnham Co. has the contract.

A meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be held April 9th at 10 A. M., National Flower Show, to which all Retailers interested in Telegraph business, whether members of F. T. D. or not, are cordially invited to attend.

Washington.

The last meeting of the Florists' Club was one of the largest they have had in some time on account of the annual election of officers. It was the first time that the club has ever had so many candidates. The election resulted as follows: Otto Bauer, president; Geo. H. Cooke, vice-president; Elmer Maybury, secretary; Wm. H. Gude, treasurer; David Bissett and Wm. Ernest, directors.

Mrs. Freeman sent a very handsome vase of Pink Enchantress and White Perfection carnations for the club members to enjoy, none of the flowers measuring less than four inches. — Burns of the Agricultural Department also sent some very fine flowers which were greatly admired for their size.

The local florists will be well supplied with Easter stock, such as azaleas, rambler roses and Pink Pearl rhododendrons of which there are plenty of home grown.

Mrs. Geo. H. Cooke was taken very suddenly ill, March 13, but according to later reports was resting very nicely and out of all danger.

A. and W. Gude are looking over the Easter stock of plants at Philadelphia and New York.

Visitors: Wm. Craig, Jos. Goudy and Sidney Bayersdorfer of Philadelphia, Pa.

St. Patrick's day called for the usual amount of green decoration.

Arthur Elliott has accepted a position with Geo. H. Cooke.

Syracuse, N. Y.

Two recently erected greenhouses belonging to Bannister Bros., Syracuse, N. Y., were demolished by a severe windstorm Saturday afternoon, March 15, and Harry Bannister, a member of the firm, who was in one of the buildings at the time, narrowly escaped death. The loss is placed at $10,000. roses, carnations, and Easter plants being destroyed along with the buildings. One of the houses was 30x200 feet and the other 30x100. The following account of the storm is reprinted from the Syracuse Herald:

The greenhouses of Bannister Brothers on the Genesee turnpike was the scene of the greatest damage in the immediate vicinity of Syracuse. The two largest of the five greenhouses were left but a mass of broken glass and twisted supports. These houses were filled with hundreds of rose and carnation plants, just starting to bloom. Every plant was destroyed. Pieces of iron pipe, glass and a number of flower pots were hurled through the panes in the other greenhouses. Many Easter lilies and other tender plants were killed by the inrush of cold air. For a hundred feet around the greenhouses, the ground is covered with broken glass. Harry Bannister, 40 years old, one of the members of the firm, was watering the roses in one of the collapsed buildings at the time. Without an instant's warning the crash came and he was buried in the ruins. In some miraculous manner he escaped from being seriously injured or being instantly killed by the tons of falling glass and iron roof supports. Mr. Bannister was fortunate to escape with a few cuts about the face and body.

Morris County Gardeners and Florists.

"Carnation night," in Madison, N. J., was a great success. We never had better blooms, and the novelties were as fine a lot as we ever had in one year. Matchless, from the Cottage Gardens, would set you wondering. Enchantress Supreme, from Daille-douze Bros., Brooklyn, N. Y., would make you wonder what Enchantress will do next. Northport, from James D. Cockcroft, Northport, R. I., was also very fine. Dimple Widener, from Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., was another excellent flower shown. Wm. Eccles, from Scott Bros., Elmsford, stood up in beautiful contrast to its lighter colored competitors on the stage. Salmon Beauty, from Traendly & Schenck, New York, won great admiration. All the above were awarded certificates of merit where they had not previously won the same honor.

Among the standard varieties, Wm. H. Duckham had Mrs. C. W. Ward and Wodenethe, very fine flowers. Robert Tyson had Wodenethe, which did him great credit. Percy D. Whitney had Mrs. C. W. Ward and Wodenethe, a very creditable display. Ernest Wild, gardener to Chas. W. Harkness, had some splendid plants of Schizanthus Westoniensis. The committee awarded him a $5.00 gold piece in addition to his cultural certificates. C. J. W. Ottolander gave a talk on shrubs and trees, as seen by him at the Arnold Arboretum. Wm. H. Duckham and C. H. Totty, appealed to all to do what they could to help make the Third International Flower Show a success. Z. R.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Milford,
Conn., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, has returned from Florida.

DAKOTA grown seed potatoes are in good demand.

A. H. GOODWIN, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, arrived in New York from Europe March 19.

IN that Indiana onion item last week, a stenographic error made us say sets where seed was intended.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., March 17.—There was heavy rain today all over the valley, with good prospects for more.

NEW YORK.—H. A. Naldrett, representing Kelway & Son, Langport, Eng., arrived on the S. S. Philadelphia last week.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade March 19 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3 to $4 per 100 pounds.

COMPLAINT of slow mail order trade among the seedsmen is general. Orders should come with a rush during the next ten days.

WE are without any further advice regarding J. E. Northrup's condition. His many friends are anxiously hoping for his early improvement.

VISITED CHICAGO: Ralph M. Ward and J. Halsey Reock, New York; Geo. C. Thompson, representing Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.

ONION SET prices have taken a quick jump at Chicago during the past ten days. Yellows are very scarce and selling at $1.65 to $1.75, whites a trifle less; dark reds about $1.40.

THE promotion of old employes in the Department of Agriculture under the new Secretary would indicate on the face of it that the Jas. Wilson policies are to be continued in that branch of the government.

ONE Tom Pankey, a seed broker at Atlanta, Ga., is said to have practiced methods in his bean contract operations which should entitle him to serious consideration by the Credit Bureau of the Seedsmen's League.

JAPANESE Lily Bulb growers are said to have made planting of gigartems in the Lake Biwa District in the southern part of Japan with results unsatisfactory to forcers of these bulbs. It seems while that soil and climate produced bulbs quickly, the same were soft and made poor bulbs for ice storage, lacking solidity and long keeping quality.

THOMAS J. GREY, founder, and manager of the Thomas J. Grey Co., for the past twenty-three years, has severed his connection with this concern and is now associated with Joseph Breck & Sons, Corp., 51-52 North Market St., Boston, Mass., where he will be pleased to meet his old friends and patrons. Mr. Grey's long and honorable record merits every success with this well known concern.

Free Seeds.

Our congressman, who dies and bleeds, to guard our sacred banner, sent me a bunch of garden seeds, all in the oldtime manner. Oh, there are seeds of beets and peas, and early June tomatoes, and there are seeds of Sweitzer cheese and German fried potatoes. And I may have an onion bed, in greens I'll take a flyer; and I may raise a cabbage head to smoke in my old briar. And yet it seems this bunch of seed a hopeless grist of bosh is; there are so many things I need much more than peas or squashes! Our congressman, who bleeds and dies, to keep the flag a-flaunting, should make an effort to get wise to what we're really wanting. I'd like to have a chug-chug cart, to ease my corns and bunions, and O, it breaks my world-worn heart, to get a pack of onions! I'd like to have a widespread frame, like that of Taft or Perkins, and so it seems a seedy game to load me down with gherkins. I'd like to see my daughters wear swell lids and silken dresses, and here I get, to my despair, some wilted watercresses! Our congressman, who sheds his blood when perils brood and grumble, has got a headpiece full of mud—he ought to take a tumble.—Walt Mason

FLORISTS AND GARDENERS' CLUB.

One of the best meetings of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists and Gardeners' Club was held at the greenhouses of H. W. Field. E. J. Canning called the meeting to order at 8 o'clock. After the reading of minutes, etc., the president called on Prof. F. A. Waugh of Amherst Agricultural College, for his promised lecture on civic improvement. The lecturer had brought along a fine lantern and a large number of slides, showing buildings and landscape effects. The pictures were made from photographs taken in Germany, England and the United States. The society gave Prof. Waugh a hearty vote of thanks for his interesting talk. G. H. Sinclair and Frank Barnard were appointed a committee to consider the advisability of allowing amateurs to join the society as associate members. H. W. Field exhibited a vase of his new carnation Gloria, which was awarded a first class certificate. A small group of cyclamens were also shown from the Smith College con-

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 17.—Mushrooms, 20 cents to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 10 cents to 15 cents, small cases; radishes, 10 cents to 35 cents per dozen bunches; pieplant, 40 cents to 50 cents per bunch; cucumbers, $1.50 to $3.50 per box of two dozen; asparagus, $3 for 24 bunches.

New York, March 15.—Cucumbers, $1.75 per dozen, and $4 to $6 per box; mushrooms, 80 cents to $2.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 bunches; mint, 25 to 65 cents per dozen bunches; rhubarb, 20 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; lettuce, 10 cents to 30 cents per dozen; beet tops, 75 cents to $1.00 per box.

Chicory Forcing.

When we realize that each year more of this popular salad is imported from Belgium, it is a wonder that we do not grow more of it at home. In 1911 the Red Star line alone carried 26,527 twenty-pound baskets to New York. This Whitloof or Brussels chicory is very easily grown and forced. Sow in May, harvest the long, parsnip-like roots in October, cut off the foliage quite short, trim the roots, and they are ready for forcing. The old method was to put in a shallow trench, standing erect, and cover with 8 or 10 inches of fine soil, letting it sift in between the roots. When ready to force, this bed was covered with fresh manure, the heat of which soon started growth. The modern method is to put into frames with bottom heat, which gives surer and quicker results; the covering of finely sifted soil allows the soft shoots to penetrate easily, and blanches it pure white at the same time.

Tomato Notes.

Where tomatoes follow lettuce, it is customary and good practice to plant the tomato plants right among the last crop of lettuce. This may be done at the time of planting the lettuce, or later on one or two half-grown lettuce plants are cut out and a tomato plant put in. Tomatoes are hardier than cucumbers and will do fairly well in a lettuce temperature. They may not develop fast, but they surely make the roots which means business later on.

If the tomato plants are pot-grown and strong, it is a good plan to remove some of the lower leaves so as to relieve the lettuce from crowding. After the lettuce is all cut, the supporting strings can be tied directly to the tomato plants doing away with all stakes, screw wires or ground wires. We have done that for years indoors and outside and find it practicable. Under glass tomatoes are generally grown to one stem which is best. Still some operators prefer two stems.

Whatever system is used suckering must be strictly attended to for best results. As soon as the lettuce is all cut, moisture should be reduced to insure solid growth, as good fruiting is not the rule on soft watery growth. Tomatoes dislike syringing, therefore, keep the foliage dry. A top dressing of bonemeal and wood ashes is generally beneficial. After the lettuce is out of the way increase the temperature to 60° at night.

Potato Seed Improvement.

The value of the "tuber-unit" system of potato planting is pointed out in a recent circular issued by the Bureau of Plant Industry. The bureau advises that only the best and most shapely tubers be selected, those ranging from six to eight ounces in weight being preferred. They should be immersed for two hours in a solution of one pint of formalin to 30 gallons of water before being cut. They should then be quartered by splitting the bud-eye cluster in four parts from stem to stern. This system of seed selection is believed to play a very important part in the large average yields in Europe, although hardly accounting entirely for the great difference in yield here and there. The average per acre in Germany is 200.8 bushels and 200.7 in England, while the United States average is but 92.7.

Planting Time For Evergreens.

What is the best time to plant evergreens such as conifers, rhododendrons, kalmias, etc., late spring, early autumn or winter?

OLD SUBSCRIBER.

Long Island,

For the New England and North Eastern states, I have come to the conclusion that for coniferous evergreens, about the middle part of spring or about the time when the buds commence to swell perceptibly, is the best time to plant. 'On former occasions I have recommended the planting of coniferous evergreens at the end of August and first part of September if rains are abundant and the ground is well soaked.

Planting at this time of the year is all right if there is plenty of moisture in the ground and rains are abundant, and close attention is paid to mulching; so that under no conditions are they allowed to enter and pass the winter with dry roots. I have however, seen so many losses of late

Enchantress Supreme

THE Best Sport from Enchantress up-to-date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguishes its parent. Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching. A good all around Carnation that retains its color at all seasons. Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster. The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

ROSES OFF CROP.

The first week of March was ushered in in the proverbial manner of the lamb and the bright sunshine that prevailed all last month still continues, causing dire apprehension to the growers of cereals or field crops depending on the seasonal rainfall. This means to the grower of nursery stock that this season he will have far more irrigating than in years of normal rainfall. However, the next month may bring a change more favorable than the present time would indicate. Trade continues quiet, but steady and is as good as the season warrants, the retailers complaining only of the quality of some of the stock offered. Roses are decidedly off crop. American Beauties are scarce and bring $2.50 to $4.00 a dozen for rather mediocre stock. Killarney and Richmond show up the best. Cecil Bruner roses are still scarce and are missed very much, as this little gem is a fine seller at the flower stands in the department stores or in florists' shops doing much transient trade. Bulbons stock of all kinds is good and moves well. Much improvement is noticed this season in the quality and variety of tulips offered. Cattleya trianae are only fair. The few C. mendellii offered are better, and while few of either are offered, there are sufficient for the demand. The price of lilies has raised and they are selling at $4.00 a dozen, with prospects of a sharp advance as the stock is short and grown by a few firms only. Carnations are not up to the mark of other years. There has been continuous complaint from the retailers that the blooms do not keep well this season. At this writing blooms are scarce, the inferior quality cutting the price to $2 a hundred. An unregistered seedling raised and grown by a Japanese, is the best carnation coming to this market and brings fifty per cent better price than the others. The blooms are large, of good substance, a pleasing rose cerise color, and stand up well on good stems. Primula obconicas are coming in and with the azaleas and cyclamens, the shop windows are quite gay, vases of fruit blossoms being substituted for the usual cut flowers.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society was well attended and the reports showed the finances and membership to be in a healthy condition. Thirty new members have been introduced during the last two months. The society has subscribed for a full cover page of the program of the International Flower Show, to be devoted to presenting a few facts in favor of San Francisco as a convention city in 1915. Through the medium of a seal attached to all trade mail our brethren east of the Rockies are to be reminded that we expect them here on that eventful date. The MacRorie-McLaren Co. exhibited a finely flowered Dendrobium nobile, which was awarded ninety-five points. E. W. McLellan also received ninety-five points for a vase of Bridesmaid. This old favorite was shown on 28-inch stems, well clothed and blooms of exquisite form and color. Angelo J. Rossi promptly took the five dozen at triple the best market price.

Work on the exposition grounds is progressing. Sewers and water pipes are being laid preparatory to the plac-

Inquiry among the local florists shows that they are rather chary about the parcel post delivery and are un-anxious in using the express company when they want to "get there." The Boland Co. reports a number of deliveries by the parcel post by requests of customers, actuated probably by the novelty of the system.

"Peonies for Pleasure." This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history; soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable Peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and the new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the Peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the Rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink Peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of Peonies for Fall Sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held at Glen Cove, N. Y., on Wednesday, March 12, with a good attendance. President Brown was in the chair. Mrs. A. Fletcher, Glen Cove, was elected an honorary member and S. Bracket, Locust Valley, an active member. The exhibits of plants and cut flowers were especially good. James Duthie, Oyster Bay, exhibited three varieties of Freesia Thunbergii. The colors in this freesia are very pleasing and they are sure to become favorites for conservatory and house decorations. The varieties were Dainty, La Phare, and Sweet Lavender. The society's prizes for cineraria, cauliflower and stock were won by A. Mackenzie, P. Charbonnié and J. MacDonald. A certificate of culture was awarded to J. W. Everatt for a basket of fine mushrooms. Honorable mention to J. Duthie for vase of carnations and honorable mention to J. Ingram for narcissus. A. Wilson, representing the plant oil firm of that name, was present and offered a substantial cash prize to be put up at our next fall show. It was decided to hold our next meeting April 16 at 7 p. m., and prizes are offered for 12 roses, 12 darwin tulips and one calceolaria.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Doran's Hall, Greenwich, Conn., March 14, President Robt. Williamson in the chair. The splendid enthusiasm displayed by the members is noticeable for the attendance maintained at our meetings is excellent, especially considering the long journey some of our members have to make. Feelings of regret were felt by all present, in the resignation of our vice-president, Oscar Addor. By the unanimous vote of the members H. Wild, Greenwich, was elected vice-president for the ensuing year. The best wishes of the society were extended to James Aitchison who is about to leave this locality to take up his residence elsewhere.

The speaker for the evening was Wm. Scott of Elmsford, N. J., who delivered a very practical address on the growing of carnations. This meeting being chosen as carnation night, brought out a large number of fine exhibits, the three prizes given by the society being awarded as follows: James Aitchison, first; A. L. Marshall, second; E. Johnson, third. Excellent culture was noted in the following exhibits: A. L. Marshall, honorable mention for Nephrolepis magnifica; James Aitchison, cultural certificate for cyclamen and Primula malacoides; A. Wynne, honorable mention for Schizanthus Westoniensis; Alex. Geddes, honorable mention for carnation seedling; Thos. Aitchison, cultural certificate for vase of calla lilies; Geo. E. Baldwin Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., highly commended for finely flowered plant of Cattleya Lawrenceana; P. W. Popp, honorable mention for carnation California Giant and lily of the valley; Thos. Aitchison honorable mention for seedling amaryllis; Louis Wittman, honorable mention for roses Madison and My Maryland; Thos. Ryan, vote of thanks for shamrock from County Cork stock (the genuine article). Professor Jarvis of Yale has promised to deliver an illustrated lecture at our next meeting on "the Diseases of Fruit Trees." We hope every member will make an effort to be present, for this lecture should prove of vital interest to all.

TRADE VERY GOOD.

Business the past two weeks has been very satisfactory with plenty of all stock to meet the demands. Funeral work the past week has been exceptionally heavy. Lent has not affected business this year as in years past. Easter is looming up ahead of us and we expect to do a big business, with enough stock to fill all orders. Lilies are in just right, and nearly every one has enough to supply his trade with enough over to help the other fellow out should he run short.

CLUB MEETING.

The meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club, which was to have been held at the home of Wm. Knees, was transferred to the home of John Staack. Nearly every member of the club met in the early afternoon and were escorted by Mr. Staack to his new range at Watertown, Ill., a suburb of Moline. Here the boys found a fine luncheon prepared for them on their arrival. Mr. Staack's range of houses—400 feet long—is all planted to carnations and sweet peas and they were a pleasing sight. All were in full crop and well grown, just right for the Easter cut. The range includes a fine brick boiler shed with two large boilers and ample room for several more, and with plenty of room for the storage of coal and soil. A work shop is also included with everything up-to-date—electric lights, telephones, etc., etc. An electric driven pump supplies them with plenty of water with 80-pound pressure if wanted. A reservoir built on a hill nearby and holding several thousand barrels of water, is kept filled for emergencies. Mr. Staack says they will probably build several more houses at this place late next fall. After a thorough inspection of the establishment, the boys boarded the cars in waiting and were taken to the old range in Moline. This range is old in name only, however, as this city establishment has all been rebuilt in the past few years and is as up-to-date a retail place as can be found anywhere. After inspecting this range, the members were called to order and the regular business of the club attended to. The following officers were elected for the coming term: John Staack, Moline, Ill.,

Knees, Moline, Ill., treasurer; Julius Staack, Ludwig Stapp, R. Rohlf, trustees. "Lawns" furnished the topic for the evening. Fertilizing, destroying dandelions and other weeds, etc., were fully discussed by nearly all the members present. The hostess then announced supper and the guests adjourned to meet in the spacious dining room, where a fine hot supper was spread. To say the boys enjoyed themselves is putting it mildly. H. M. Bills, of Davenport, will entertain the boys at the next meeting.

NOTES.

The Davenport Nursery, of forty years standing, has been sold to Wm. M. Mast, a graduate of Ames Agricultural College, Ames, Ia., and the forestry department of Yale University, and W. J. Duppert, graduate of the forestry course at Ann Arbor, Mich. Both gentlemen have been connected with the United States forestry department the past few years and Mr. Duppert is also a professional landscape gardener.

Miss Waltman is suffering with a very sore finger, blood poison having set in as a result of being pricked with a rose thorn.

R. M. C. Rohlf, the Alta Vista nurseryman, is building a concrete storage cellar, 24x36 feet and 12 feet deep.

Ludwig Stapp contemplates adding two more houses to his range this summer.

Bedding Stock.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratums, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good, light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month which should produce fine shapely plants. The celcus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is, at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked a good plant is an impossibility.

Potting Young Stock.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem that any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil around the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of those plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot, for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant which should be firmed down, then a little more soil which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer, but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Hardy Roses.

The rose bed should be pruned and then spaded as early as possible after the ground has opened and if the canes have been buried the covering removed and the canes cut back. To properly prune a bed of hybrid perpetual roses is a careful, painstaking piece of work. This work is too often done in a careless, haphazard manner, and by many every variety is cut back alike. To get the best results a study of the varieties is necessary, for instance, strong growing varieties like General Jacqueminot and Magna Charta can be cut back and the small wood cut out much more severely than Prince Camille de Rohan or Mme. Gabriel Luizet. When pruning it is first necessary to determine whether quantity or quality is the most to be desired. If quantity is wanted more wood can be left and six to eight eyes left on the canes. If quality is the main object this must be obtained at the expense of quantity, and the strong canes only retained and these cut to two or three eyes, depending on how the eyes are located. The top eye that is left should be pointed out from main stem so that when the growths start they will not crowd toward the center. This will allow of plenty of room for development and a good circulation of air through the plant. After bushes are pruned the soil should be spaded good and deep and leveled off.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the peony beds should be forked over and the manure mulch that was placed on them last fall should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender so it is best not to fork too close to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants were not mulched with manure in the fall it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in.

Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet, if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off, the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made, so as not to disturb the roots more than possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

Flowers.

Your voiceless lips, O flowers! are living preachers.

Each cup a pulpit, every leaf a book,
Supplying to my fancy numerous teachers
From loveliest nook.

Floral apostles! that, in dewy splendor,
"Weep without woe, and blush without a crime."

Oh! that I deeply learn, and ne'er surrender
Your lore sublime!

In the sweet-scented pictures, heavenly artist!
With which thou paintest nature's widespread hall,

What a delightful lesson thou impartest
Of love to all!

Not useless are ye, flowers! though made for pleasure,

Blooming o'er field and wave, by day and night,
From every source your sanction bids me treasure, Harmless delight.

Posthumous glories! angel-like collection!
Upraised from seed or bulb interred in earth,
Ye are to me a type of resurrection,
And second birth.

Were I, O God! in chureless lands remaining,
Far from all voice of teachers and divines,
My soul would find, in flowers of thy ordaining, Priests, sermons, shrines!

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Easter in New York Stores.

With a wealth of fine stock to choose from, the designers and decorators produced beautiful and artistic effects in show windows and stores. However, before going into details of the work of the decorators, something may appropriately be said of the work of the growers. It is unnecessary to state that the quality of stock improves from year to year and it would be surprising if it were not so. Pains-taking endeavors and ripe experience in horticulture, as in many other lines of human endeavor, have borne much good fruit. We have sometimes seen well grown stock, well grown so far as the needs of the plant were concerned, lose a considerable percentage of its value by careless and indifferent training and arrangement for market. In this respect the growers are making great advances. The art of cutting, pruning or shearing certain plants into fantastic shapes and figures, is an old one that has grown obsolete, but the art of growing a plant into an attractive shape is progressing. While we have much the same varieties of plants that were seen last Easter, there seems to be improvement all along the line in the manner of preparing them for market and much of this has been done by intelligent growing.

The pot roses were a very striking feature in the plant and retail stores, regarding numbers and quality. In fact, they were so plentiful in some stores that they almost overshadowed the other stocks. Dorothy Perkins, American Pillar, Lady Gay, Hiawanature and an indifferent one at that. Aside from the question of a blue rose ever becoming popular, this one is not true blue; it is about as good a blue as most of the St. Patrick's day carnations are green.

While there were very creditable pot lilies to be seen, the exhibit is not all that could be desired. It is estimated that thirty or forty per cent of the crop intended for Easter did not come in, but considering the early date, there is no particular cause for complaint. The acacias were a notable feature of many stores. There were truly magnificent specimens of acacia pubescens and many of the others were also very fine. In several stores we noticed a large acacia pubescens used as a centerpiece for the show window, and tastefully decorated with yellow ribbon to match the flowers, they were noble specimens. Orchid plants were leading features and the leading varieties are seen in fine bloom and more will be said of them before we close.

The genistas were very prominent and very finely shaped and beautifully flowered. We cannot recall an Easter when so many good genistas were to be seen. Another stock that makes a beautiful exhibit, is the bougainvilleas. They are in practically all sizes, from large plants that have been trained to an arch, down to the five or six inch pots of lower growth, but all covered with bloom. The fine old azalea family had an Easter re-union and unlike some other "first families," showed no deterioration in numbers or good blood, if that term is allowable. Many of the azaleas are very large and well flowered and they make a grand display. The varieties of ericas or heathers, were not as a rule, very tha, the Baby Ramblers, Crimson Ramblers and Tausendschon, are all seen. Of the climbing roses, Tausendschon, Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay are particularly attractive. Grown well and exhibited as a single plant Tausendschon, as we have seen it, is superior to any other rose. This does not detract from the beauty of the others, which are also seen in good form. Lady Gay we consider well adapted for combination baskets. There is a blue, or violet, rose to be seen, but we would call it a freak of notable, yet there is some very creditable stock which is used with good effect in combination baskets and hampers. Small bougainvilleas, azaleas, primroses and tulips are also much used in combination. In the cheaper lines of trade pans of hyacinths, tulips, narcissi and pink mountain moss, may be noted. They found ready sale. There is also a fair supply of geraniums on the market.

In hydrangeas, there were some very fair stock, but it showed the effects of hard forcing. The white vaeties are reasonable and should be popular Easter plants. There seemed to be more of a tendency to good single plants and less to large combination baskets, which we think is right. Nevertheless, there is always stock that can be effectually used in combinations. That left to itself would appear tame. It would appear that the ribbon men have said about the last word in suitable shades. There seems to be a shade to match every flower and the decorators are using them with fine effect. There have been times when some of the decorators dulled the beauty of the flowers by a garish display of ribbon, but happily, that is passing. On some plants chiffons are now used with good effect.

Daisy plants of very large size and covered with flowers were seen in a number of stores. While brighter colored stocks have to a considerable extent overshadowed the daisies they yet have admirers. Rhododendrons of fine quality were not infrequently seen. There was also a considerable stock of lily of the valley in pots and pans.

At Charles Thorley's House of Flowers, Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street, there was an unusual and remarkable exhibit of orchid plants in full bloom. The large show window fronting Fifth avenue was filled with orchid plants in variety and we doubt if any such exhibit was ever before seen in a retail store in this or any other city. In addition to those exhibited in the window there were hundreds in other parts of the store. At the close of the Easter business we were informed by Mr. Thorley that his stock of orchids was nearly sold out. Not alone in orchids was this store notable. It was filled with the choicest productions from the best plant growers and sales were very heavy.

George M. Stumpp, Fifty-eighth street and Fifth avenue, had a remarkably fine stock of climbing roses. Tausendschon and Dorothy Perkins being especially fine. Orchid plants were also prominent at this store. There were many fine baskets, and readers of THE AMERICAN FLORIST are well aware of the high quality of work in that line that is turned out by Mr. Stumpp.

At the store of Charles A. Dards, Madison avenue and Forty-fourth street, there was a splendid exhibition of first class plant stock, notably roses, acacias, rhododendrons, azaleas and genistas.

At Wadley & Smythe's, Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, the show window was a great feature, being rearranged from day to day. When we saw it, a grand specimen of Acacia pubescens was the centerpiece and it was flanked by many other fine plants. The color scheme was yellow and just enough yellow ribbon and chiffon was used to carry out the scheme.

Max Schling's store, Central Park and Fifty-ninth street, was filled with fine plants and a large force was kept busy.

Alexander McConnell's store was brilliant with fine plants. In front of the store a pleasing effect was produced by a bountiful exhibit of forsthyia in tubs.

A. Van Praeg, Fortieth street, opposite Bryant Park, had a fine assortment of plants and cut flowers. At this store we noted a novel jardiniere, a stock of which had been imported from Germany. It was supported by two very natural looking rabbits, one on each side. It is a novelty that we feel sure will become popular.

David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and Seventy-sixth street, had a very large stock of fine plants. This firm has very large floor space and caters to an exceptionally fine family trade.

Malandre Bros., who have two fine stores on Broadway, had fine stock and were well sold out.

Charles Brown's attractive store was even more attractive than usual, and he and his staff were very busy.

At Herman Warendorf's, in the Ansonia hotel, there was an excellent display of plant stock and fine carnations were seen.

J. H. Small & Sons, Broadway near Twenty-sixth street, had at the beginning of the Easter business a store full of fine plants which were well thinned out by Saturday night.

At the stores of Charles C. Trepel, in Bloomingdale's, Gimbel Bros. and Simpson & Crawford's, an immense amount of plant stock was exhibited and sold. Many wagon loads of cut flowers were also sold at these stores. We have to give Mr. Trepel credit for boosting the publicity movement, as our idea of publicity is to get the people and the flowers together, then sell the flowers.

It is impossible in this article to name all the stores where good stock was seen. We have mentioned a few to give an idea of the leading features. All the stores had as good stocks of lilies as could be secured and they sold well, but we have now such a variety of color that the lilies seem to be almost overshadowed. In cut flowers, Cattleya Trianae, C. gigas, C. Schroederi, gardenias, roses, lily of the valley, lilies and sweet peas were prominent factors and sold well. Many carnations and violets were also called for, though it is evident that the violet's popularity has sadly waned. It may here be noted that good single violets were more popular than the double varieties. There was an immense amount of poor violet stock on the market. Strictly first class stock of pink roses was not plentiful, but there was an immense amount of the inferior grades. Both red and yellow roses were slow and the price of American Beauties fell down on Saturday.

Easter Notes of the Chicago Stores.

The writer is not prepared to say what the profits might be this Easter, but, judging from the displays, both in richness and variety, 1913 seems to have been a banner year. The stock grown, the manner of selling, and the economy of management being so varied, there were naturally varying degrees of success with the Easter stock. But, although Easter comes very early, the profits of the florist this year should compare favorably with their best seasons of previous years. One fact, very flattering to the florists in this vicinity, was the unusually fine display of blooming plants of uniform growth, fine foliage and rich coloring.

The E. Wienhoeber Co. display room was a perfect bower from fairyland. The ceiling was a lace work of smilax intermingled with the daintiest of hanging baskets—daffodils and jonquils vieing with each other for supremacy. The little electric lights were covered with yellow shades made to represent large roses. Symbolical of Easter, a tall wreath in the shape of an egg about five feet in height was made of gilded magnolia leaves with a festooning of small oak branches and leaves which were also gilded. Stretched across the center was a suitable card of bluish tint on which the words "Easter, 1915" were written in gold. Gold ribbon rosettes and streamers served as a finish. Tall ivies were used as a background to offset its artistic beauty. Mr. Wienhoeber stated that the fancy plant baskets were very popular among his trade. Among the many beautiful ones shown may be mentioned the following: An Egyptian urn shaped basket with a Japanese maple in the center, an Easter lily on either side with two deep pink azaleas to give it a touch of color with Boston and maidenhair ferns as a finish. A window basket with handles at the ends of about two feet in length was filled with the deep pink dwarf azaleas, with two small Easter lilies in the center—maidenhair and other small ferns interspersed—and a trailing vine used to cover the handles. The vine used was the ampelopsis. An urn hanging basket suspended with bronze chains, the basket being a bronze green, was arranged with Easter lilies and Alpine violets with the ampelopsis as a finish. A very fine specimen of an acacia was also displayed. Also some very fine specimens of the Lady Gay baby rambler rose trained on sticks to represent an arbor or trellis. Many fine blooming plants were displayed. To admire a plant for its beauty is one thing; to understand its life is another. To this end Mr. Wienhoeber has shown his appreciation of service to his customers for he has each plant labeled: "Please water this plant every day."

The Fleischmann Floral Co.'s windows were most artistic. Particularly so was the one arranged with oncidium orchids, among which were arranged a fine display of basket Easter hats in very harmonious colorings. It was a window unequalled for originality and style composition. Many choice spring flowers were also shown. A fine specimen of a red pyramid azalea was displayed. Also an unusual basket of immense proportions made of bird's nest straw, and which looked as if each little strand had been gathered by some bird and put together into a basket and just fastened here and there. This was planted with a wealth of fancy pink rose bushes with an immense Lady Gay rosebush in the center. A dainty gauze ribbon was woven around the tall handle and was a stunning novelty for the buyer with unlimited purse.

Canger & Bergman, among other novelties, displayed a fine bottle brush plant set in a tall soft green hand-made Italian basket, a fine combination for the brilliant crown of orange and red blossoms surrounded with a wealth of beautiful foliage. The Japanese maple tree was most daintily displayed in one of these Italian baskets. They also had a fine window display of fancy plant baskets in which the most artistic effects were produced by associating contrasting plants, such as a lily, baby rambler, cinerarias, genistas, hyacinths and tulips. Curious little pussy willows appeared in and among the blossoms and the little ducklings shared in the honors, for in the ribbon ornamentation of each basket one of these little ducklings was perched. Among other novelties, a very handsome gold basket was prominent in its simplicity, for it was planted with lily of the valley surrounded with a hedge of pussy willows. One tall pussy willow had a beautiful butterfly perched on its utmost branch, the butterfly being of pronounced yellow with large extended wings. Tub baskets with just a small group of tulips in the center surrounded with green moss, showing the basket very distinctly, were noticeable for their simplicity.

Chas. A. Samuelson's windows suggested an original and artistic Colonial garden effect. In the background was the old fashioned Colonial fence and garden gate in an immaculate coat of white enamel. It was of an original and attractive design, care being taken to have the lines artistic. Baby rambler were trained over trellises at the sides and reached well up to the ceiling of the window. A garden bank effect was used at the foot for a finish, ferns and palms being used further to enhance the pink and white effect of the rambler and the garden gate. In the center of the window was displayed an unusual wistaria tree. The beauty of its pale purple flowers and wealth of rich foliage can hardly be described in words. It was finished around the tub with sheets of green moss. Its majestic grandeur and simplicity of surroundings made it wonderfully attractive.

John T. Muir is fortunate in having an extensive space in which to make a fine display of large fancy potted baskets. Simplicity was the keynote of his arrangement. Among his novelties may be mentioned some fine specimen purple bougainvilleas. These were sturdy, rich looking plants, with a wealth of blooms. Purple ticking with an artistic bow was used as a finish for this novelty. His baskets were the embodiment of grace and dignity. Ferns in general were symphonies in green and an occasional color scheme was given by a shading in of a variegated dracena or a silver ivy. In some of the flat baskets pussy willow served as improvised handles on which little ducklings perched. Mr. Muir also displayed some fine spirea plants, which with their graceful spring surroundings held their own with the galaxy of other spring blooms.

J. Mangel displayed some very fine deep red rhododendrons dressed in mats of tea ticking of the wide raffia variety and tied with a ribbon of the same deep hue. They were very striking in appearance. There was also displayed a very happy combination of a baby rambler rose, lily of the valley, and maidenhair ferns in a fancy basket design. A large artistic pink carnation wreath had for a head-piece an immense cluster of the butterfly sweet peas tied with a ribbon of the same hue. In this connection Mr. Mangel again showed his appreciation of the little things that make for beauty and originality, for he had fastened to the ends of the streamers a few rich colored pansies very appropriate for the sentiment they convey. Some of his Regent street nosegays seen this week were especially attractive. A combination of Prince de Bulgarie rose buds with one small one in the center, surrounded with a row of forgetmenots and these in turn with a row of the rosebuds, and then another row of forgetmenots with a rose foliage for a finish, was very fine. The difference between the French nosegay and the Regent street design is that the French scatter the flowers throughout in uneven petite sprays, while the English make them up in a Colonial fashion, keeping each flower separately in circles or clusters as the case may be and giving more of flat effect.

The Bohannon Floral Co. windows were resplendent with fine specimens of the dwarf Scotch heather arranged in vases of ancient Roman design and some of the Dresden effect. Some very fine specimen planted basket effects were also shown. The new store "From Grower to Consumer" has some very prettily arranged baby rambler rose bushes trained in fancy baskets with loops for outer handles on which the branches of the roses were trailed, leaving an opening in the center from which a small canary cage was suspended in which was a real live canary singing his merry lay as if summer were really here. Here was also displayed the new "Radium" rose, a perfectly-shaped flower of a rich imperial pink color, shading a little lighter towards the edge as the flower expands. It is of a splendid color and entirely distinct, strikingly different from the silvery-flesh color which deepens to the center of the beautiful double form of Prince de Bulgarie.

Wm. J. Smyth showed potted plants in great variety and in the pink of perfection. Among his fancy planted baskets one struck the writer as being particularly novel and attractive in its arrangement. A white baby rambler was surrounded with Easter lilies of the dwarf variety, in the center and towards the side a taller genista was arranged with ferns of the Boston variety tapering down to the opposite side with a fine cluster of primula. The basket was a sort of tub effect with a handle on each side. On each handle a deep pink satin rosette was placed. On some of his designs were artistic ornaments of the embroidered gauze ribbons in two-tone effects. These were especially appropriate and dainty with the delicate simplicity of the primulas. Some rambler hybrids of the rich crimson variety were also shown dressed in ticking of the same rich red with a ribbon ornamentation of the same color. Such was also the finish of a prettily decorated deep red rhododendron plant.

LANCASTER COUNTY FLORISTS' CLUB BANQUET.

H. C. Rowe's store on Monroe street had a most attractive window displaying in the center an immense white and gold basket in which a beautiful specimen of the Lady Gay rambler was planted surrounded with an excellent green setting of ferns. His English Hawthorne trees were an original novelty not shown elsewhere, and looked stunning among his fancy baskets. They were suitably garnished with the wide satiny ticking of a deep red and a handsome sash ribbon.

A. Lange's window was resplendent with every variety of spring blooms. The hanging baskets suspended from the ceiling in among green smilax made it look more like a conservatory than a show window. Some fancy vases of the window shape with tulip ornamentations were filled with specimen blooms of the same flower and finished with a border of boxwood and made a most fetching present for Easter. Lily of the valley in fancy vases surrounded with boxwood and the dainty primulas in Japanese designs made a very attractive showing. The violet baskets filled with violets and tied with a violet cord were dainty and well selected.

The Alpha Floral Co. window showed careful planning, for the different blooms were gracefully arranged and the color scheme was very noticeable. The fine crowns of azaleas were prettily decorated with ribbon bows and so placed that only the crowns showed. The ceilings of the different windows were curtained with smilax and the window pillars covered with the same. On these were attached glass floral tubes filled with sweet peas, orchids, forgetme-nots, lily of the valley and so forth.

O. J. Friedman's window and Easter display of cut flowers was particularly fine in choice specimens of the double lilac bushes, a comparatively new feature, and they looked so perfect that one would imagine that each flower had been molded instead of grown to nature. The Easter lilies and baby rambler roses were artistically placed in fancy baskets and pottery. In spite of a blizzard on Friday, Saturday was a fine day for the Chicago florists and every store visited was filled with eager customers and each and every assistant was taxed to the utmost.

Chicago Spring Show.

Preparations for the annual spring show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, to be held at the Art Institute April 1-5, are nearly completed with every indication that this will be one of the most attractive spring displays ever made in this country. The plans include many novel features, one being a piscatorial exhibit of considerable magnitude and rare interest to lovers of aquaria plants, etc. The final premium list has been mailed to prospective exhibitors, but additional copies may be had on application to Secretary R. J. Haight, Monon building, Chicago.

THE ROSE.

Care of Young Stock.

The care of young stock will now be one of the principal duties of the grower. When it is remembered that any neglect or carelessness in this matter will be sure to affect the after life of the plant, it will be patent that they should at this season have the very best of care. Any grower who allows his stock to get stunted for want of a shift is handicapping himself for the whole season. Plants of this description are hard to get started in the bench and never do make that free, vigorous growth so essential to long stemmed high grade blooms.

From now on to planting time, plants will require copious supplies of water and almost daily syringing. It is well to see to having them placed on a bench where the drainage is perfect and the light unobscured, so that the soil may not become sodden and sour. To keep the young stock in a vigorous growing condition, free from mildew and spot, great care must be exercised in ventilation. As this is essential to success and as the art of ventilation is frequently misapplied or carelessly performed, it may be well to describe the proper method of admitting air to the stock without causing injury.

As soon as the temperature begins to rise the ventilators should be raised but not far enough to affect the temperature of the house. This must be attended to very frequently as the days get warmer, never allowing the house to get near the maximum till the ventilators are fully open and reducing in the afternoon with the same care. By using this system young stock can be raised with foliage of such texture that it is almost immune from spot and mildew.

Those who intend planting for early summer cutting should now have their stock in three-inch pots. By planting in April the stock gets the full advantage of the best growing season of the year and will make plants fit to bear a good crop of flowers by June when the other houses are cleared for planting or getting a rest. The soil should be got into a healthy condition before being brought into the house. If wet when brought in it should be allowed to lie on the bench for some days and be turned over occasionally until it gets into proper condition. Nothing is lost by this delay. C.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Treating New and Rare Sorts.

As soon as the novelties and scarce sorts are received it is important they have proper care, to avert any chance of their being checked. Continuous growth so that the largest number of cuttings may be taken and established prior to planting time is the aim. To this end prepare a bench in a light house where the temperature of 60 degrees can be maintained and plant them into 3 inches of good compost that is moderately light.

Light composts permit the roots to ramble quickly, which results in immediate and active growth. Three inches apart in the rows and four inches between rows is ample space for plants out of 2¼-inch pots. Give a copious watering and then let the supply be governed by the appearance of the foliage, which is an index to the activity and condition of the roots. Should they become yellow the supply should be lessened and if they remain green and active it is safe to say the conditions are normal. In a short time it will be noticed the foliage and stems begin to expand, which indicates the roots are developing freely and finding what they require.

When four inches high the ends may be taken out and used as cuttings. It is well not to take these cuttings too long, but leave some leaves on each plant to act as "lungs," and thus keep up a continuous and healthy growth. In a short time it will be noticed new breaks are being put forth, which in the course of a few weeks will be long enough for cuttings. Where the planting does not take place until June, all the successive batches of cuttings may be planted in a like manner to furnish other cuttings. It is difficult to estimate how many plants can be made from one, but this process of progression is often far-reaching, resulting in an increase of ten to twenty fold.

Packing Plants for Express.

For shipments not requiring more than five or six days to reach destination, pack in wooden boxes that have been previously lined with paper or other material to keep out the frost. The plants should be thoroughly watered, turned out of the pots and wrapped tight in some sort of pliable paper to keep the earth intact. With a light coat of excelsior on the bottom of the box, the plants are then placed close together on their sides, with the ball of earth next to the side of the box. This is followed by another row in which the ball is placed next to that in the first row, the operation being repeated until the bottom of the box is covered.

In putting in the next tier, reverse them, beginning at the other side, and so continue until finished. The main object is to pack securely, preventing them from shifting, even though roughly handled. Any intervening spaces between the plants and side or top of the box should be filled with excelsior, sawdust or some other material, so that if the package is turned upside down they cannot move about. Inexperienced packers invariably fail in this respect, and often when the plants reach their destination they have so shifted in the box as to be entirely destitute of soil, as well as badly broken. See to it that they can not move.

Each variety must be labeled and some means provided so that the recipient can unpack without danger of getting them mixed. A system many have adopted is to wrap one, two, three or four plants of a kind into a bundle, each bundle being provided with a label, and they are thus packed. Where five or more of a kind are ordered they are separated by a sheet of paper. In very severe weather it is sometimes necessary to wrap the boxes with several thicknesses of paper as a safeguard against frost. In very warm weather the foregoing method is impracticable, as they are likely to heat and thus be ruined. From May to October the plants are generally wrapped and set upright in shallow boxes, which have been provided with a post in each corner, to which cleats are nailed. Then slats are placed an inch apart to form the cover, thus assuring a free circulation of air.

The Young Man in Flower Trade.

Paper read by H. Kleinstark, Jr., before the Kentucky Society of Florists.

As there are so many advantages in the flower business, I will not try to tell all of them, but will mention the main ones of the trade, from my standpoint. To begin with, the greatest advantage, to my mind, is that through the florists' labor they bring happiness and beauty to many homes. They see the fruits of their labor daily in the gardens and homes of the people, rich and poor alike. Another advantage is, that working among and surrounded by flowers, tends to give a greater influence for good than any other vocation which we could have chosen. Besides we all know that we are in one of the most healthful and agreeable of trades, as it is not confining in any sense of the word. An old proverb says, that "variety is the spice of life," so if we go by this, we have by far the largest variety of any business, as Nature provides us with innumerable subjects to work with and improve upon.

Now as to the disadvantages of the trade—there are a great many, but it is more difficult to define them. The risks are greater in our business, as we can never count on the elements, such as wind, hail, and very cold weather. Of course the above relates only to the grower, and not to the store-keeper. One great disadvantage is the uncertain hours, which has never, and never will be overcome. One enemy of the grower, with which he has always to contend, is the thousands of insects that infest the plants under artificial culture. Another disadvantage is the constant fumigating and spraying of different preparations to keep the pests under control. There are a great many more that could be mentioned, but I will leave my more worthy successor to give his opinions. After all is said, the advantages overcome the disadvantages, so here's to the trade, from a young florist.

OUTDOOR SHOW AT MINNEAPOLIS.

At the executive meeting of the board of directors of the S. A. F., held in Minneapolis, Minn., February 25-26, Vice-President Theodore Wirth submitted a plan for an outdoor plant exhibit, which met with the approval of the board. Mr. Wirth was authorized to solicit information as to what extent growers would be willing to make use of the opportunities offered. The accompanying diagram shows the proposed garden, which is to be adjacent to the Minnesota National Guard Armory, where the meetings and the exhibition are to be held. The shaded beds could be used for shrubs, evergreens, etc., there being 17,000 feet of available space. The flower beds, intended for bedding plants of all descriptions, will have 13,000 square feet.

Mr. Wirth thinks that outside exhibits have been too long neglected at S. A. F. conventions and hopes to set a high mark at this exhibition. Growers of all kinds of hardy and tender plants are invited to send exhibits of plants in spring planting time, each exhibit to fill properly an allotted space. The plants will be properly planted in the exhibition garden and property cultivated and protected, so they will be in good condition at the time of the convention. Each exhibitor will be allowed to display his name and the name of the plants, the name and labels to conform to a uniform scale as to size and character. The plants will remain in the garden for the rest of the season and will be returned to the exhibitor or their purchaser in the fall.

The board of park commissioners offers the use of the land free of charge and will put the grounds in serviceable condition. Some arrangement will be made whereby the S. A. F. will sell the space to exhibitors at a low figure, the price to be just large enough to pay expenses of planting, maintenance and reshipment of plants, the exhibitor to bear all cost of shipment to and from Minneapolis.

The location of the proposed garden is a good one and proper care of plants is assured. Novelties especially are desired and enough of them to make a bed or at least a good display. Intending exhibitors are requested to inform Mr. Wirth of the number and size of plants to be shown before April 1 in order that a fair distribution of space may be made. Besides the shrubs, all kinds of bedding and ornamental plants are desired.

TRINIDAD, COLO. J. H. Cain, manager of the Central Park Greenhouses, expects to double the size of his plant next year. The firm is a new one, but already is in a flourishing condition. About half the space is devoted to lettuce and radishes.

A. E. Thatcher and Edward Kirk, of Bar Harbor, Me., have been added to the board of jurors.

The management has been able to secure for exhibition at the show the collection of 39 pictures, in oil and pastel, by Mary Helen Carlisle, covering famous English gardens. This very fine collection was recently on exhibition at one of the leading art galleries in New York and was greatly admired. It should prove especially interesting to the horticultural profession.

The supplementary prize schedule is ready for distribution. Copies may be had on application to John Young, secretary, 54 W. 28th street, New York.

It has been decided that the show shall close at 11 p. m. each day instead of 10 p. m., as previously announced.

considerably, one house 127x200 feet, being down completely and about 50 to 100 feet of four other houses are also down. The first house blew over the second and third houses, smashing the purlins and twirling the ventilating machinery as if it were ordinary wire. The wind tore loose about 100 feet of a large shed which had been built as a sort of a windbreak and blew it directly into the fourth and fifth houses, badly damaging them. The houses that were destroyed contained a magnificent Park Ridge—August Friebe's two houses were completely blown down and are almost a total loss. Several other ranges in this locality suffered heavily from broken glass.

Rogers Park—John Muno's greenhouses were considerably damaged when his chimney was blown over. The loss is estimated at over $2,000.

Chicago Greenhouses Damaged.

The terrific gale which swept Chicago and suburbs early Monday morning, March 24, was the heaviest storm that this district has experienced for many years. Several people were killed, scores were dangerously injured and at least 50 buildings were wrecked and the roofs of as many more blown off. Several greenhouse establishments were partially destroyed with Hoerber Bros., of Des Plaines and the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses the principal losers. The following is a list of the ranges in this vicinity that were damaged by the storm:

Des Plaines—Hoerber Bros.' large range was severely damaged and several houses were almost completely destroyed. Two of the houses in the south end were blown down entirely and the house adjoining was almost down also. About eight houses in the other end where roses and carnations are grown are also badly damaged but repairs are rapidly being made and it is expected that nearly the entire crop with the exception of the three houses that are down, will be saved. Considerable glass was broken in the balance of the range and to cap the climax, the large chimney blew over just as a train was passing and killed two men in the caboose. It is impossible to estimate the loss at present, but it is considerable and a severe setback to the firm. A temporary stack has been erected and all efforts are being made to save the plants should severe cold weather set in. The Des Plaines Violet Co.'s stack was also blown down but the houses were not damaged.

Downers Grove—The Wellworth Farm Greenhouses were also damaged crop of Killarney roses and every effort is being made to save the plants. It will cost several thousand dollars to repair the greenhouses but it is expected that the greater part of the plants will be saved.

Deerfield—The Deerfield Nurseries, Kottrach Bros., proprietors, suffered several thousand dollars loss when one of their houses, 34x150 feet, was blown down completely and the other two were partially damaged by flying glass. Fortunately almost all the young gar-

GREENHOUSES DAMAGED BY STORM.

Omaha florists suffered heavy damages in the terrible storm of Sunday night, although the cyclone missed P. B. Floth's place two blocks and Chas. Ederer the same distance. Mr. Floth is located south of the storm path and Mr. Ederer north of it. Hans Jensen's place, containing about 5,000 feet of glass and the home on Leavenworth and 45th street, according to rumor, is all gone. Telephone communication being stopped, the rumor could not be confirmed. J. F. Wilcox's new greenhouses are badly damaged, in fact, they will have to be rebuilt. The stock will suffer on account of the cold weather. Sunday afternoon the temperature was 70 above zero. At 6:30 it was like summer and was beginning to get dark. It also commenced to get very stormy and about 7 o'clock the cyclone passed the city from the southwest through the residence district and demolished some 600 homes. Monday morning when the writer went down town and passed through the damaged part of the city he could hardly believe his eyes. More than 145 dead bodies were found and scores of people were badly crippled. All the phones were out of order. Street cars did not run until Monday morning about 9 o'clock, when one line began operation again. All the lights were out Sunday night. Easter business was as good as expected. The cold weather last week hurt it very much and Saturday it was so immense that lots of people could not be waited on. Sunday was about the same so it turned out to be one of the best two days we have had for a long time. Plants in bloom from $1 to $5 sold well. Above $10 baskets went slowly, nevertheless it pays to show fine work.

HEAVY STORM DAMAGES.

A very disastrous cyclone passed through the southern part of Terre Haute at 10 p. m. Sunday, doing damage to the amount of a million dollars, killing 20 people and injuring 500, besides destroying 300 houses. The storm came directly through Gardentown, where there are located about 35 vegetable growing establishments of from one to 10 houses. It is reported all are almost wholly destroyed. It is hard to get more than meager reports as the territory is guarded by the state troops. The work of rescue is still in progress, but up to this time no fatalities are reported among greenhouse men. Many had narrow escapes, however, and many are injured. L. H. Mahan is one of the heavy losers. He had about 2,500 feet of glass which was partially destroyed. A grove of beautiful maple trees 40 years old in front of his residence, was almost all blown down.

The earliness of Easter did not seem to have any effect upon the business as it was some better than other years, though possibly the gain was a trifle less. The weather on Saturday was ideal but Sunday it was showery, which made delivery very unpleasant. There was very little difference in the prices compared with former years. Violets and roses were advanced a little.

N. B. Stover was run over by an automobile about two weeks ago. No limbs were broken, but the machine made some very painful wounds.

Tom Stevenson brought in six loads of bulb stock for N. B. & C. E. Stover. He reports some hail Sunday night but only a little glass broken.

The Park Commission has taken steps to purchase the historical Fort Harrison with an addition of 40 acres for a city park.

The Terre Haute Rose and Carnation Co. was missed by the cyclone about 600 feet.

John G. Heintl and wife have gone on a trip to Panama and for a month's cruise.

Harry Richmond has closed his store. He reports a good Easter trade.

Fred Heintl had some very fine Baby Rambler roses for Easter.

Henry Graham reports a good Easter trade.

MIDDLETOWN, CONN.—George C. Van Slyke has completed a new vegetable greenhouse.

ATLANTIC, IA.—The Atlantic Greenhouses will build a new rosehouse 30x135 feet this spring.

MANCHESTER, CONN.—John G. Pentland will open a flower and confectionery store here soon.

HARTFORD, CONN.—James Peters will remodel his greenhouses and remove them from their present location.

HAYWARD, CALIF.—A "blossom festival" to last seven days is planned for this town for some time in April.

FARGO, N. D.—Frank Myers, formerly with the Hiawatha Garden Co., Minneapolis, Minn., is now foreman at the greenhouses of the Shotwell Floral Co.

EASTER TRADE EXCELLENT.

Easter business is universally pronounced satisfactory. Six of the leading florists estimated that their Easter returns will surpass last year, notwithstanding the fact of a continuous downpour all day Sunday. Had it not been for the untimely storm it would be safe to say that this Easter would have been a record breaker. In addition to the florists that were in the field last year not less than four Greeks and one grower had opened up stores in this city, and in spite of these four flower stands the other florists were able to do a record breaking Easter business, it seems safe to assume that the Greek flower dealer with his characteristic way of doing business, does very little harm if any, to the high-grade flower shop. Generally speaking, the plant trade was far ahead of cut flowers, and the stock of blooming pot plants was certainly the finest ever seen here. Lilies were offered in immense quantities but were cleaned up at satisfactory prices. Next to these azaleas and hydrangeas were the most satisfactory plants. The various rambler roses also sold well and in spite of the early date were shown in excellent shape. Cut flowers also cleaned up well. American Beauty roses of course, were in the lead. The supply was not equal to the demand. All other roses were in good demand and wholesaled at satisfactory prices, bringing twelve dollars a hundred for the best long stemmed stock. Carnations did not sell quite so well as roses and while there were none left over, only the very choicest commanded five dollars a hundred. The sale of violets was immense and good singles seemed to be in better demand than the doubles. There seems to be room in this vicinity for a violet specialist with sufficient plantings to be able to take care of orders in thousands and ten thousands.

On the morning of March 21 a wind storm of record breaking velocity swept this territory. The storm did considerable damage in the vicinity of Indianapolis, but we are glad to state that the damage done to greenhouses was nominal. The only serious damage nearby reported so far was from Franklin, where D. B. Kelly's greenhouses were according to the daily papers, "unroofed." Another gale swept over this state during the night of March 23.

EASTER BUSINESS GOOD.

With a very good Easter business reported from all parts of the city, everybody is satisfied. A general cleanup took place Saturday evening. The one complaint all over the city was the extremely poor quality of the violets which arrived Friday and Saturday. The majority of them were held back too long and when they arrived were already soft and brown. The very warm weather we had on Friday was probably the main cause. Lilies were not generally as good as in other years, and the street fakers were out in full force with plenty of goods to offer. Other bulb stock, such as daffodils, lily of the valley and tulips were rather scarce, and the one plentiful article was carnations. There were also a good many roses to offer, but the majority, were shorter stems. Yellow daisies slumped somewhat, too. It is next to impossible to sell baby primroses any more and nearly all of these flowers are thrown away. White lilac is also here in abundance and is being sold cheaply to make window displays. A hard rain fell Sunday afternoon and the corsage bouquet buyers were naturally disappointed. There were a good many such bouquets sold too, and there was a continuous demand for good violets and sweet peas. American Beauties are coming in much better than before, and the quality of them is real good. A lot of myosotis came in last week but the appearance was so sudden that they were not even thought of.

NOTES.

J. M. Jones, foreman of the Schenley Park Conservatories, reports this year's show having been the best ever, which was confirmed by the vast number of visitors who came Easter morning. Quality and also quantity prevailed and there were shown many new and novel features.

Mrs. E. A. Williams' place was a grand spectacle Friday and Saturday, with a very large mass of plants filling their show window, most of which were orders ready to be delivered.

The Harry Davis Enterprise Co., not contented with the vast amount of business it is doing in the amusement line on Fifth avenue, added a large line of palms and plants for Easter sale.

C. K. Hoffmeyer of Carnegie has a splendid crop of lilies which came on at exactly the right time. He is still cutting a fine quality of carnations, which are handled by the McCallum Co.

F. Mueschke of Castle Shannon came in with his usual fine lot of pot giganteums. He also cut heavily on some fine Killarney roses.

The A. W. Smith Co. had some of the finest pot lilies ever this Easter with stems a yard long.

Ross E. Adgate of the McCallum Co., who came home to lend a hand, is back on the road again.

I. V. Kinder of Charleroi expects to open a retail store to handle the output of his greenhouses.

H. Holland of Washington, Pa., consigned some nice daffodils for Easter.

G. P. Weaklen reports a heavy run on special corsage bouquets.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

The florists in this city have every reason to be satisfied with the Easter trade. In the first place the weather was ideal and the four days previous to Sunday brought out many buyers. There was an abundant supply of lilies. The churches used a great many but by far the greater lot went to decorate the private homes. Hyacinths and tulips and other bulbous stock were also in great abundance. Baby rambler roses were especially beautiful and correspondingly popular. Azaleas and rhododendrons were not so plentiful but were among the most handsome plants on sale. There were plenty of cut flowers, all home grown, for the florists, having had a good season, had their roses and carnations come on just at the right time. Pink and white roses, Killarney, Richmond, Kaiserin and Golden Gate were all plentiful but American Beauties alone were rather scarce. However, there was such a profusion of everything else that they were not missed. The decorated baskets were very popular. There were many violets, though it is a little late for them and the quality was not up to standard. Carnations were splendid in size and color and very popular. Lily of the valley, mingled with other flowers, was used largely for corsage bouquets.

THE EASTER TRADE

Business Shows Increase.

Easter sales for 1913 show a substantial increase generally over those of a year ago. Two factors militated against a record-breaking business, the early date of the holiday and in many places the extremely bad weather. Nevertheless, in no case has a decrease in business been reported thus far, and while in one or two instances the trade was about the same as in 1912, an increase generally of from five to 25 per cent is noted. In some places stock had not quite reached the salable stage, but the bad weather was doubtless the worst factor the florists had to contend with. In the middle west, generally, nearly the entire week preceding Easter was far from ideal, keeping many prospective customers indoors. The severe storm which demolished much property in Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and elsewhere, came Sunday evening and too late to hurt the trade for the day. Florists generally are very optimistic over the showing made against heavy odds and say that with an even break of weather the record would have been much better.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—The increase in Easter sales over last season is estimated at 10 per cent by John Reck & Son. Prices were the same, there being an ample supply of plants and cut flowers. Bulbous plants generally did not sell readily. Lily plants and fancy plant baskets were very popular. Violets, lily of the valley and orchids for corsage bouquets, went well. Business was very much hampered by poor weather conditions, but Wednesday was ideal and was the best Wednesday before Easter we have ever had, fully twice as much business being done as on the corresponding day of former years.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—Business was about five per cent greater this Easter than in 1912, according to A. Washburn & Sons. Prices were the same. The supply was equal to the demand, both in cut stock and plants. The call for azaleas was not so great as formerly. Lily plants were the most in demand. Roses and carnations sold best of the cut flowers. Stock of all kinds was above the average. Friday and Sunday were stormy, with the temperature not much above freezing. Saturday was cold, but the people seemed to be filled with the Easter spirit.

NORWALK, CONN.—Easter sales were satisfactory, being about the same as in former years, reports R. G. Hanford. Prices for fancy carnations were slightly better. The supply of plants was fully equal to the demand. Cut flowers were sufficient in number also, except carnations, which were off crop. Acacias and rhododendrons were least in demand of the plants. Lilies and spring flowers sold best in the cut stock. Lilies were not quite so plentiful as usual, owing to the early date.

ATLANTIC, IA.—Easter business was about the same this year as in 1912, according to the estimate of the Atlantic Greenhouses. Prices were no better. The supply of cut flowers and plants was equal to the demand. Lilies and hyacinths sold best of the plants. In the cut flowers, hyacinths, tulips, lilies and narcissi sold best. There was little call for carnations. Rain and snow hurt trade a great deal. A bad storm struck this place Sunday night and did much damage.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—An increase of about 10 per cent is noted in this year's trade for Easter by the Alpha Floral Co. Prices were practically the same. The supply of plants and cut flowers was equal to the demand. Cyclamens and hyacinths were the best selling plants and California violets, red roses and sweet peas went best of the cut stocks. The delivery system is becoming more complicated each Easter, both on account of more purchases and of smaller purchases.

BANGOR, ME.—An increase of 20 per cent in the amount of Easter business with better prices than last year, is reported by Adam Sekinger. There were not enough lilies to supply the demand. Cut flowers were in sufficient supply. Primulas in large pans sold poorly. Carnations did not take well, but there was a good call for violets and roses. Bulbous stock sold well. The weather was fine and everybody sold out. The cash trade was much greater than hitherto.

FARGO, N. D.—Trade was about the same this year as for the Easter of a year ago, with prices of cut flowers perhaps a little better, according to the Shotwell Floral Co. Some shortage of lily plants is reported, but other stock was in sufficient supply. American Beauty roses were of poor quality. Spireas did not sell well, but other plants were taken readily. Carnations, bulbous flowers, violets, sweet peas, and lilies, were much in demand.

MERIDIAN, MISS.—The Easter trade was much better—25 per cent or more than a year ago, according to Mrs. N. G. McKinney. Prices were perhaps a little better also. More plants and cut flowers could have been sold if the supply had been ample. Easter lilies, lily of the valley and all well grown plants sold without trouble. Lilies and carnations were the most popular cut flowers. There is a yearly increase in the demand for good stock.

KOKOMO, IND.—Business for Easter was 10 per cent greater than in 1912, says W. W. Coles. Prices remained as before. The supply of plants was sufficient. Carnations were in short supply but there were plenty of other cut flowers. Easter lilies and azaleas were the most popular plants and carnations, roses and violets sold best of the cut flowers. There was very little call for bulb stock.

PETERSBURG, VA.—Wm. S. Young says this year's Easter trade was fully 25 per cent greater than that of a year ago. Prices were better and the supplies of neither cut flowers nor plants were equal to the demand. Lily and azalea plants were most in demand, but bulb stock did not sell so well. Violets, lily of the valley and sweet peas, were the most popular flowers.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—Easter sales were 20 per cent larger than last year according to N. B. & C. E. Stover. Prices were about the same. More azaleas, tulips and hyacinths could have been sold if the supply had been larger. The cut flower supply was ample but everything was cleaned up. Cinerarias, lilies, rambler roses and hyacinths in large pans sold well.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—Stock, trade and weather the "best ever," says the Salford flower shop in commenting on the Easter business. Early Easters are popular here, as plants can be handled in better condition. One of the best selling novelties were dwarfed Murillo tulips about three inches high, disposed of in fancy fern dishes and flat Japanese trays.

BRAMPTON, ONT.—An increase of five per cent is noted by the estate of H. Dale in this year's Easter sales. Prices were about as usual for the occasion. There were plenty of Easter lily plants and cut flowers of all kinds. Easter lilies, lily of the valley and violets sold the best of all the cut flowers.

The Wilcox Loss.

J. F. Wilcox and Sons, Council Bluffs, Ia., telegraph March 26, as follows: "Thousand-foot house crushed and destroyed. Brick service building crumbled, tearing off boiler house roof, concrete chimney 150 feet still standing. American Beauty and Killarney roses, and carnations in full crop are entirely lost. On account of broken glass two houses are destroyed, containing 60,000 carnations, 25,000 Killarney roses, and 12,000 American Beauty. Night watchman was the only one hurt. Work has been abandoned at Manawa greenhouses, but business will continue in fine shape on account of full crop of American Beauty and other roses, carnations, etc., at the Pierce street greenhouses."

OBITUARY.

Archibald Robbie.

Archibald Robbie, for the past eight years superintendent of Lyndhurst, the estate of Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, Tarrytown, N. Y., died in the Tarrytown Hospital March 12. At the time of the marriage of Miss Gould to Finley J. Shepard he took a cold which developed into pneumonia. Later the attending physicians decided that he was suffering from appendicitis. An operation was performed March 8, but he gradually failed. Mrs. Shepard, who with her husband is now in Egypt, knew of Mr. Robbie's illness and was much concerned about him. News of his death was cabled to her. Archibald Robbie was born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, forty-five years ago. He had been in this country several years before taking a position with Miss Gould. He was very well known and highly esteemed among the gardeners and florists in and around New York city. He was a Mason and was a member of the board of water commissioners of Tarrytown. He is survived by a wife and one child. The funeral was held March 15. Alex. McConnell had charge of the floral arrangements.

He was employed as a young man by Alfred Bridgeman, son of Thomas Bridgeman, at the old Bridgeman seed store in New York. He remembered well the old days of Peter Henderson, Grant Thorburn and other pioneers. Mr. Brill started in business for himself as a seed grower in 1859, at Newark, N. J. From there, he located, about 1870, in Suffolk county, on the eastern point of Long Island. He moved to Hempstead in 1887.

Nathan D. Pierce.

Nathan D. Pierce of Norwood, R. I., died of tuberculosis March 7, after an illness of more than a year. He was 62 years old and had been an active nurseryman and florist for 40 years. He was prominent in the republican political life of his community and had been a member of the general assembly. He was a leading member of the Florists and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and the Rhode Island Horticultural Society. He is survived by a widow and three children.

HOLY WEEK VERY BUSY.

Holy week was the busiest week since Christmas and the best Easter for growers and florists that we have had for years. The weather for the first half of the week was fine. On Friday a big rain storm which was general throughout the country did much damage to greenhouse glass. Saturday was an ideal day, which was a big factor in the tremendous amount of business done. The flower stands in the market houses were well patronized, and owners kept their wagons going all day bringing in stock. There was an abundance of all kinds of stock and mostly good stock, with the exception of violets, lily of the valley and sweet peas. Carnations, although plentiful and of excellent quality, cleaned up early. Pink and White Killarney roses were in good supply and stock was exceptionally fine. American Beauty roses and Richmond roses were very scarce, only a few short stemmed flowers arriving. Most of the violets this Easter looked as if they had been held too long, with the result that thousands were useless, which was a great loss all around; this made the demand for sweet peas much heavier. Lily of the valley, too, was far short of the demand. String smilax was plentiful and of good size, and the demand for it for Holy Thursday was very good. Callas and Easter lilies, one and two on a stem, for children to carry in the churches were in good demand. Bulb stock was a drug on the market. Tulips, daffodils, etc., were shipped in the latter part of the week in large quantities, but did not move. High water in the South delayed similar southern shipments just long enough to have them late for Easter. Pansies, lilacs, snapdragon, calendula, mignonette, etc., all cleaned up nicely.

NOTES.

The Easter window made up by Clarence Meyers of the Smith & Fettes Co. fairly breathed the spirit of Easter. It attracted everyone who passed and much credit must be given to the decorator.

Frank Williams of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. was nearly knocked out by the excessive strain during the Easter rush. On Easter Sunday he fell in the store and had to be carried to the office.

The J. M. Gasser Co.'s retail window was beautiful, as was the display at the Jones & Russell Co., the Wagner store, the Jas. Eadie Co. and the other downtown stores.

Miss Kathleen O'Connor was home most of Saturday owing to the strain of overwork, and her sister had to do most of the work at their Superior avenue store.

F. C. Bartels says he was so busy putting in glass Friday, owing to the heavy windstorms, he barely had time to pick his carnations for shipment.

The Taylor Floral Co. had an annex besides the use of the Taylor Arcade, which looked like a greenhouse.

Buffalo.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

Easter has come and gone. The florists as a whole are or should be pleased with the results. Never in the recollection of the writer has a finer week been allotted to the trade. Palm Sunday had some snow flurries but Monday and every day until Friday was good. Friday brought windstorms in the afternoon of 86 miles an hour for a time and Saturday brought clear weather and about four degrees of frost, necessitating some wrapping of plants. It gradually changed until Sunday when the weather was ideal until about three p. m., when a heavy rain set in. Fortunately all trade was over then. Lilies were all sold by Saturday noon, the trade in general depending mostly upon S. A. Anderson and W. J. Palmer & Son. Other growers were late with their plants. Baby ramblers were full and sold well, as did azaleas, lilacs, genistas, hyacinths, tulips and spireas, which were in great demand. As in past years, prettily trimmed plants and baskets were favorites. Killarney, Ward and Bon Silene were the roses called for most. American Beauties were scarce and very small. Carnations were plentiful, of good quality and sold at $1.00 a dozen, some at $1.50, this being the first time in years that an arbitrary price was not asked for them. Daffodils and tulips sold well. The greatest demand was for violets which were in unlimited supply.

NOTES.

S. A. Anderson had his Easter stock on display for the public at his Elmwood avenue greenhouses Palm Sunday. About 3,000 went through the place and were welcomed by Mr. Anderson. His novelties for Easter were leghorn hats with baby azaleas, heather and ferns in them. Each was different and dainty. Bows of ribbon or tulle added to their beauty.

W. J. Clemens has purchased the Flower store of G. J. Sauer on Main street. Miss Lillian Burns will be in charge.

THE EASTER TRADE.

The Easter trade was rather disappointing but this was to be expected considering the stormy weather of the past week. The early shipping trade was very brisk and for a time it appeared as if the market would clean up completely in most lines, but early Friday morning there was a heavy rain which afterwards turned into sleet. About 4 o'clock in the morning it hailed and shortly after daylight the hail changed to snow driven by a gale at forty miles an hour which tore up hundreds of trees, and swept away miles of trolley, electric light and telegraph wires. Telephone poles in all directions were broken off and this city for nearly a day was completely cut off from wire communications with the outside world. At 10 o'clock the sun came out for a few hours but the remainder of the day was very cloudy which of course kept the local trade from buying very heavily. Nearly all the trains were from a few minutes to several hours late and many telegrams were delayed so long on account of the wires being down that it was impossible to make the shipments so that stock would reach the customer in time for the Easter trade. The weather was a little more pleasant on Saturday but on Sunday it rained all day and the buying was very light. Soon after the storm started on Friday the prices began to drop a little, but even this did not seem to be much of an inducement to the local buyers, because the weather was always anything but pleasant, and they did not believe in stocking up too much. The plant growers had no trouble in disposing of their blooming stock and were sold out completely, especially in lily plants, long before the Easter business really began. Cut lilies were also in great demand and advanced considerably in price early in the week. Good stock of all kinds cleaned up fairly well in roses notwithstanding the storm, but on Monday there was a surplus in nearly all lines. American Beauty roses were very scarce and in some instances the best flowers sold as high as $8.00 per dozen. Red roses were scarce and Rhea Reid and Richmond cleaned up early at good prices. Killarney and White Killarney were very plentiful but moved readily until the storm broke. The other varieties were also in good supply. Orchids were scarce and sold at prices ranging from $6.00 to $9.00 per dozen. Lily of the valley was in good supply. Violets were never seen here in such large quantities at Easter before and the quality was never so bad. Most of the stock was in such poor condition that it was sold at $1.00 per box to realize express charges. Good violets sold at much better prices but the large supply of inferior stock kept the price of the better grades down. Single violets sold quickly the latter part of the week at good figures owing to the scarcity of good Eastern stock. Sweet peas were fine and brought good prices. Carnations were in oversupply but the better grades cleaned up well at good prices. Bulbous stock of all kinds was seen at nearly all the stores in large supply but did not move any too well. Greens with one or two exceptions were plentiful. The Easter trade on the whole was as good as could be expected, all things considered, but before the bad weather set in it looked as if it might be a record breaker. This city was visited by a second storm on March 23 which was more severe than the first. A wind which reached a velocity of 56 miles an hour destroyed much property, including several greenhouses, in this vicinity. The weather has been very unpleasant and trade consequently has suffered considerably. The market is now very quiet. American Beauty roses are now plentiful.

NOTES.

Peter Reinberg sold out completely in Richmond roses at Easter which is doing pretty well considering the large cut that he had. His storeman, Tim Matchen, was laid up for several days this week as a result of too much Easter work.

Wieter Bros. had their share of the Easter trade which was very good considering the unfavorable weather conditions. This firm is now cutting a fine supply of Mrs. Jardine roses, many of which can be seen prominently displayed in the loop stores.

W. E. Lynch says that A. L. Vaughan & Co. had a good Easter regardless of the storm and sold out well in nearly all lines. Wm. Abrahamson helped out in the shipping department for several days.

Vaughan's Seed Store had on exhibition last week some fine trusses of the new Canna Firebird, a glowing scarlet with unusually large flowers of good substance, certainly the best new variety of recent years.

J. A. Budlong is now cutting American Beauty roses of fine quality in quantity. This firm just missed Easter with this crop by a few days, but at that their flowers are bringing good prices.

Erne & Klingel report that their first Easter trade was much better than they expected, both the local and shipping trade being good.

Miss Olga Tonner was ably assisted at the store last week by her sisters, L. A. Tonner and Mrs. Thos. Fogarty.

Sam Pearce celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday on March 20.

The Cook County Florists' Association bowling league which plays the Milwaukee florists in the Wisconsin city next Sunday, March 30, has chartered a special car on the Chicago and Milwaukee electric line, which will leave Central street in Evanston at 12 noon, sharp. The committee extends a cordial invitation to everyone in the trade to accompany the bowlers. All persons intending to make the trip should notify Allie Zech, as early as possible, so that the proper arrangements for all can be made. Return trip tickets can be purchased at $2 each.

W. J. Niessen, the Chicago Flower Growers Association's bookkeeper's home at 3105 North Sawyer avenue was partly destroyed by fire on the morning of the big storm, when the house adjoining was blown over on to his and caught fire shortly after. A little boy in the neighboring home was crushed to death but his brother, who was sleeping in the same bed escaped injury altogether. Fortunately, no one in the Niessen family was hurt.

John Ziska has a substitute for the old cloth clock dial which costs about one-half less and gives as good satisfaction. It is made of cementine and is on exhibit at Joseph Ziska's store. When he is not otherwise employed, Mr. Ziska is always figuring out how he can save money for his firm's customers and this one item alone will be a big saving in supplies to the retail florist. Samples of the new clock face from this firm will be disposed of at a small cost.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. cleaned up completely in blooming plants for Easter and would have done the same in cut flowers if the telegrams that their customers sent had arrived in time. Otto W. Frese says that only four were received on March 21, which amounted to practically nothing considering that 40 or 50 are usually received on an ordinary Friday. Many of the telegrams containing Easter orders arrived as late as Tuesday.

August Poehlmann and wife, W. N. Rudd and wife, Geo. Asmus and others bound for the National Flower Show, New York, will leave on the Lake Shore Limited (La Salle Street Station), Friday, April 4, at 5:30 p. m. Berths should be reserved well in advance by notifying G. K. Thompson, General Passenger Agent, 100 South Clark street, telephone Randolph 5300.

The George Wittbold Co., according to Louis Wittbold, did a good Easter business in both the retail and wholesale departments. The store was a beautiful sight shortly before Easter when it was stocked completely with a fine line of seasonable plants and cut flowers artistically arranged.

Bassett & Washburn received 22 telegrams last Saturday that should have arrived the day before. The delay of course hurt their shipping trade considerably. Trade at this store however was good, and as brisk as could be expected under the circumstances.

F. A. Parkmore, proprietor of the Lake Shore Greenhouses, 1429 Morse avenue, opened his establishment March 20 and enjoyed a very busy Easter trade. He has completed two greenhouses and is now erecting another.

Percy Jones' Easter trade was very good, both the cut flowers and supply department doing a good business. All but four of last year's customers were served in addition to the new ones that were recently added to the list.

E. E. Pieser, the Peony King, has sold out his interests in the peony farm at Villa Ridge to Spalding Bros. who are now the sole proprietors. Kennicott Bros. will handle the crops or a portion of them as heretofore.

Frank Oechslin had such a big demand for blooming plants for Easter that he was obliged to refuse orders. His lily plants were fine and attracted much attention at Chas. W. McKellar's store, where they were on sale.

The J. B. Deamud Co., is showing some fine daisies and tulips besides a fine line of all other seasonable stock. Mr. Deamud had better watch his help carefully or he will miss one of his "Daisies" one of these days.

The next regular meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association will be held at the Tavern, West Washington street, on Thursday, March 27, when the officers elected at the last meeting will be installed.

Joe Beaver is an expert when it comes to the distributing of advertising matter. His work for the spring show was well done and the posters were prominently displayed.

John Michelsen says that the E. C. Anling Co.'s Easter trade was good but that the receipts would have been much larger if the violets had been better in quality.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, on Thursday, April 10.

Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president of the Society of American Florists, was a visitor this week.

E. F. Winterson says that his firm disposed of nearly three carloads of blooming plants at Easter.

Weiland & Risch had a good Easter trade and succeeded in disposing of all their stock at good prices.

O. P. Bassett, who is now located at Pasadena, Calif., will celebrate his seventy-eighth birthday on April 2.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., made a business trip to New York this week.

The Kidwell establishment on Wentworth avenue, was slightly damaged by the recent storm. The Wellworth Farm Greenhouses at Downer's Grove, in which J. F. Kidwell is interested was partly destroyed, a report of which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

John Kruchten's garden growers at Deerfield, had the misfortune of having one of their houses entirely blown down and the glass in two others badly broken. Mr. Kruchten says that the loss will total several thousand dollars.

The Chicago Carnation Co. cleaned up completely on white carnations for Easter, but the storm affected the market considerably on the other varieties, a slump in prices occurring the last few days.

John Zech says Zech & Mann disposed of about all their stock with the exception of carnations. The early shipping trade at this house was very good.

Clifford Pruner and A. F. Longren, Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s traveling representatives, are making preparation to start out on new trips.

Anton Then sold 11,000 lily plants Easter week. The stock was exceptionally fine and was in great demand.

BEST EASTER YET.

With ideal weather conditions as the leading feature, the local florists were enabled to do the best Easter business in several years. The clean-up on plants was complete, nothing like it being known to the oldest inhabitant. Lilies at $1 to $2, hyacinths at 75 cents to $2, daffodils and tulips at 75 cents, $1 and $2, lily of the valley at $1 and $1.50, all potted stock, were sold out early Saturday evening. The demand for nice clean azaleas at $3 to $5, was very encouraging and the quality was fine. Very few bougainvilleas, hydrangeas, rambler roses, spiraeas, pansies, cinerarias, double daffodils, or novelty plants were sold. The demand for fancy basket arrangements was limited. Carnations were scarce at $1 a dozen retail, but the demand is gradually falling off 'at Easter; in fact, roses moved less briskly than last year. Violets were as active as ever and shared with sweet peas in receiving the public's favor for corsage bouquet flowers. The prices obtained on all flowers were sat-

BEST EASTER YET.

Never in the history of this city were more flowers shipped out Good Friday. All five wholesale houses had heavy shipping orders, the bulk coming from Texas and the South. The weather was clear and cold and early morning plant deliveries on Saturday had to be well wrapped up. It warmed up at noon however. All the retailers say this was the biggest Easter on record. Lilies, which were expected to be plentiful, were scarce. Violets and sweet peas cleaned up at advanced prices and more could have been sold. Bulbous stock sold fairly well.

NOTES.

We regret to announce the death of Fred Ostertag, brother of Henry Ostertag. The end came last Tuesday evening after a lingering illness of many months. He was associated with his brother for many years in the business but of late years, owing to illness, took little active part in the work. The funeral took place Thursday, March 20. Mr. Ostertag was a member of the Odd Fellows and the Modern Woodmen. Floral offerings were many and very beautiful. He was 43 years of age.

A visit to the store of M. M. Ayres was worth the time spent. A finer display of blooming plants was never seen. Azaleas, spireas, lilies of all varieties, crimson rambler roses, blue hydrangeas, especially imported, were among the novelties. The display of cut flowers was very beautiful. Sweet peas with 15 to 18 inch stems and gorgeous flowers as well as violets and roses of the finest quality were to be seen.

H. G. Berning had an immense supply of everything. Hundreds of lilies, jonquils, roses, violets and sweet peas filled the counters.

EASTER WEEK GOOD.

Last week was a busy one for both the retailer and the wholesaler from early morning until late at night. There were plenty of carnations and they moved readily and brought good prices. Roses were plentiful with the exception of American Beauties and Richmond. Sweet peas and violets were in great demand, hence a scarcity. Harris lilies were scarce in both the plants and the cut and this condition prevailed in the surrounding markets and what did come in sold readily and brought good prices. There were plenty of bulb stocks which moved well as did mostly all stock arriving on the market. There were plenty of greens to supply the demand.

NOTES.

INCREASED EASTER TRADE.

Everybody appears to be pleased with the Easter trade, the volume of business done being greater than that of last season. With few exceptions, the growers sold out clean. Important factors in this demand were the large department stores. Wanamaker's opened on Monday with eight large vanloads from one grower. Gimbel Bros. and other large stores were also large purchasers. Lilies were the chief drawing card, being advertised at fifteen cents a flower and bud. The Easter stock is always given the best positions in the store on or adjoining the main aisles. While the lilies are sold so close to cost, the other stock is for the most part marked up at double the purchase price. In most of the retail stores twenty-five cents a bud or flower was the price, although some offered their stock at twenty cents. The wholesale figure was for the most part twelve cents per bud and flower, although some of the smaller growers sold out for ten cents. By Friday, the plant and lily market was entirely cleaned up of salable stock. There were some few lots here and there which did not make it but at least ninety per cent of the lilies were on time, a very good record considering the early date. Azaleas were in great demand and every grower sold out clean. Rambler roses were great favorites and all well flowered stock found ready sale. Tausendschon was the favorite. Well flowered plants of this variety are simply irresistible. Baby Tausendschon, of which there were a few plants offered this season, looks to have a great future as an Easter plant. It will be especially useful in basket work. Hydrangeas were disappointing. A few growers managed to get a part of their stock in fairly good shape, but most of the plants offered were too green, lacking the color that is so essential. Great things are predicted of the new French varieties for next season. Cut Easter lilies were in great demand, the market being cleaned up to the last flower on Saturday night. One hundred dollars a thousand was the price, or twelve cents each in smaller quantities. Roses were about equal to the demand, except American Beauties, the supply of this variety being away behind. A good house of Cecil Bruners would have paid well this season. There were carnations enough and of excellent quality. Snapdragons were in good supply and sold well. Violets were disappointing; the weather, the growers say has been too warm, much of the stock was poor and did not keep at all well. Gardenias were plentiful and were offered on the street very low on Sunday morning. Daffodils were a feature. The Emperor was offered in quantity. The quality was fine. Cattleyas were scarce and while there appeared enough for the demand, they brought high figures. The feature of the week was the weather, which was ideal, only one wet day and this not serious. The auto trucks and cars were a great factor in the delivery. More than half the stock was delivered in this way and the horse and wagon will soon be a thing of the past.

NOTES.

EASTER TRADE GOOD.

Easter business was good, the retail florists being well patronized by both the wealthy and the great middle classes. Saturday, March 22, and Easter Sunday were clear and bracing, high winds being the only weather drawback. March 21 was uncomfortably warm and March 20 brought a continuous downpour of rain. These two days of bad weather were probably, to some extent, the cause of much poor cut flower stock being on the market. Several of the oldest wholesalers have told us that in all their years of experience they never received so much soft and mushy stock in so short a time. This, coupled with an immense supply, made business rather unsatisfactory to the wholesalers. There was also an immense stock of plants in the retail stores and it was but natural that they should be pushed. It seems useless to write about the futility of holding back stock for Easter, or any other day for that matter, for it seems that some growers can never be broken of that habit. From the long spell of warm and dark weather we have had the stock was too soft at the best, and holding it back was merely piling on the agony. We would not try to guess how many thousands or hundreds of thousands of violets that were worthless there were in the wholesale district on Easter morning, but the sum total would make large figures. To be reasonable, we will not say that this was altogether caused by holding back, for the weather had been very unfavorable for violets. There were also quantities of poor roses and carnations. For good stock of all kinds we would say that the prices realized were very fair, considering the great amount of various kinds on the market. Nearly everything fell down in wholesale prices by Saturday afternoon but orchids, gardenias, cut lilies and lily of the valley kept up very well, there being a good demand for all these stocks. Cattleya gigas wholesaled for $1.00 each, C. trianae 75 cents each and C. Schroederi for 40 cents each. Good lily of the valley brought $4.00 a hundred, cut lilies from 10 to 15 cents a flower, gardenias $2.00 to $4.00 a dozen, there being a great variance in quality. There may have been a few white carnations sold at the rate of $8.00 a hundred but $6.00 for white, $5.00 for Enchantress and $4.00 for reds were the prevailing prices while the demand continued. These prices are quoted on good stock. There were carnations that sold as low as $1.00 a hundred. But little rose stock went above $12.00 a hundred and an immense quantity went for much less, the inferior grades of roses being in surplus. Some good single violets wholesaled for $1.00 and $1.25 a hundred but 75 cents was a good price for double stock. American Beauty roses that started at 70 and 75 cents each could be bought on Saturday for 40 cents. All that has been recited is something for which the buying public is not responsible; the people bought freely but nobody can be compelled to buy cut flowers if they prefer a plant, and there was a surplus of cut flowers.

Monday, March 24.—The market is very quiet this morning as usually occurs after a great holiday. Although it was expected that arrivals would be light there is sufficient stock to supply all demands. Roses and carnations move slowly and the market is glutted with worthless violets. The day opens warm which, if continued, will bring in a surplus of stock.

NOTES.

Misfortune has fallen heavily on Lyndhurst, the estate of Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, since her marriage. A week ago we recorded the death of Superintendent Robbie. On March 19 Martin Connelly, who on the previous day had celebrated his forty-second year on the estate, fell from a ladder while pruning a wistaria vine, and died from his neck being broken. Mr. Connelly was first hired by Jay Gould, Mrs. Shepard's father. He was 65 years old.

Woodrow & Markatos, 41 West Twenty-eighth street, had a large stock of fine plants and sold out well. As is customary at Easter, the Department of Parks gave permission for the sale of plants in Union Square and many availed themselves of the opportunity. It is expected that in about a week the north side of Union Square will be opened as a permanent plant and flower market during the season when outdoor business can be done.

Aside from the great plant trade in the retail stores, many plants were sold at other points in the city. There are two plant stores in the wholesale district and both had good business. William Kessler, 113 West 28th street had a fine stock of plants and was practically sold out. His stock of Crimson Rambler roses was particularly fine. Elsewhere, good Crimson Ramblers were not leading features.

Again we have President Pierson. At the town election, March 18, F. R. Pierson was elected president of Tarrytown, N. Y. Fifteen thousand dollars was also voted for a public park and dock. It is stated that the women of Tarrytown were much in favor of this appropriation and that more than 150 of them voted. We surmise that they were also in favor of President Pierson.

Among the visitors of the past week were Paul Berkowitz, Sidney Bayersdorfer, and Martin Reunke, all of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Their mission here was to engage space for the show. Other visitors were President Farquhar of the S. A. F., from Boston, Mass., Ed. Kirk and A. E. Hatcher of Bar Harbor, Maine; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.

A feature of the Easter trade in the Cut Flower Exchange were fine Cecil Bruner roses from the range of Mrs. Chas. Schneider, Woodside, L. I. Philip F. Kessler of the Exchange had a fine stock of lilies, tulips and sweet peas and sold out well.

J. H. Small & Sons will decorate for the wedding of Miss Ethel C. Roosevelt, daughter of ex-President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who will be married on April 4 in the Episcopal church of Oyster Bay, to Dr. Richard Derby of this city.

C. B. Knickman of McHutchison & Co. returned during the past week from an extended southern trip. He just took time to look around a little then repacked his grip and was off again.

G. Myer, Madison Avenue and Fifty-eighth street, reports a fine Easter trade. He was well stocked with plants, having taken additional space in a large vacant store near at hand.

Frank D. Hunter, formerly in the flower business in this city, is now conducting a seed store for J. F. Noll & Co. of Newark, N. J., in the Hudson Terminal Building, this city.

Many of the retail florists secured vacant stores wherever one could be had within reasonable distance. Alexander McConnell had another large store filled with fine plants.

Charles A. Dards, who owns the building in which his store is located, used several rooms on the upper floors for wrapping and storing plants.

Mrs. James Hart, wife of James Hart, Jr., died on March 14, aged 22 years.

TRADE HURT BY STORM.

Easter trade this year will long be remembered by the growers and dealers alike because of the trying conditions that surrounded it. The early date of the event alarmed the growers, who feared for the proper development of Easter lilies, azaleas and other stock and started early to push it along, but before the end of the Lenten season unusually warm weather prevailed to such an extent that much of the Easter stock was prematurely prepared, rendering it difficult to market and less attractive to buyers. To add to the troubled situation a violent gale visited the city Thursday night before Easter and continued until Saturday morning, causing the greenhouse men much alarm and emergency work replacing glass destroyed and blown out and to a considerable extent curtailing the cut of some items in the cut-flower list. Unfortunately the sweet pea crop was hard hit. Many big cuts were sold in advance and the storm added disappointment to the retailers as well as loss to the growers. The weather deterred buyers from visiting the stores the whole of Friday, making the sales on that important day fall far below the normal. Saturday, however, brought an army of buyers and taxed the dealers' facilities to the extreme. Much of the loss of previous days could have been made up if it had been at all possible to handle it. The weather that day was clear and crisp and not cold enough to require heated delivery wagons and machines and the call for all varieties of plants and flowers continued until nearly midnight. Lilies were plainly the most popular of the plants and cut azaleas had a great call. Bulbous flowers of all kinds in the lower priced items sold well. Spireas too were very popular and many rhododendrons were disposed of to those seeking the more expensive articles. Baby ramblers were fine in most of the stores and met with a good demand, while ferns and palms moved slowly. Made up plant baskets did not seem to be the factor they sometimes are on similar occasions, though some nice effects were seen in some of the stores and sold very well. In cut flowers the market was well supplied with everything seasonable except sweet peas, of which many more could have been sold. Violets sold well and were quite as popular as a year ago, when all the local dealers sold out and ran far short of the call. American Beauty roses were little called for and but few were on the market. Other roses were fine and a fairly good call was made for them, but high prices were not popular on these. Carnations sold well and much good stock was on the market. There was a greater quantity of poorer stock, however, that moved slowly and some of it not at all. This was particularly true of the light shade of pink, the white selling far better, while the darker colored varieties seemed the most popular. Lily of the valley was used in great quantities and the stock was good. The more expensive corsage bouquets used many gardenias and orchids. Notwithstanding some of the disadvantages of the early Easter, many think it will prolong the spring plant-buying season to the benefit of both grower and retailer.

NOTES.

Eugene Dailedouze, Brooklyn, N. Y., visited here last week for the special purpose of seeing the new pink carnation Philadelphia growing at the establishment of the originator, Thos. Browne, Greenfield, Mich., and being pleased with the superior qualities of the variety left a large order with the disseminators, S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Browne brought two thousand blooms of this variety to the market for Easter Saturday and all were readily sold at fancy prices.

John Carey, Mt. Clemens, who is now supplying this market with the finest sweet peas of the season, suffered considerable loss by the storm of Friday, March 21, which made the picking of the flowers in the houses with broken glass falling, a hazardous job which had to be abandoned.

Norman Sullivan of the Woodward Flower Shop, is enthusiastic over the highly successful Easter trade he enjoyed. His greenhouse, 20x85 feet, connected with his store, afforded him a splendid opportunity to display a large and attractive stock.

A. Pochelon, the indefatigable secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, is exultant over the development of the system and received a great many Easter orders through it.

Michael Bloy, who now has such a big retail business that he has little to offer to the trade, reports having a great rush that used up all Easter stock.

Gust H. Taepke was another who reported a heavy loss by broken glass, but was fortunate in saving his Easter stock without much injury.

Chas. Plumb did a big plant business at wholesale but lost much trade because of his telephone being out of order for two days.

A. J. Stahelin's moveable houses stood the storm in good shape and his crop of carnations was heavy.

John Krumholz was another victim of the storm's rage, having the entire roof of one house blown off.

Fred Breitmeyer had a heavy cut of roses for Easter and his carnations, too, were fine.

Robt. Klage sent 30,000 lilies of the valley to the market, all of which sold readily.

Leo, Mallast, Mt. Clemens, had a big cut of white snapdragon that sold well.

FINE EASTER TRADE.

With a rainy day, Friday, many of the growers and retailers feared for Easter. Friday night saw a change to lower temperature, and Saturday morning a bracing west wind with clear skies, which indicated a beautiful day Sunday. Trade in everything was good. The wholesalers' long distance orders were out Friday morning and some even Thursday night. They did a great business. Both markets did a fine trade. Everything that came to our notice was good fresh stock—a decided improvement over some of the stock of previous seasons. Everyone with whom we came in contact was pleased with the trade. There was a good out of town call for Easter lilies.

NOTES.

The types mixed our notes of last week. They gave Wm. Elliot first on Killarney roses. That honor should be changed to the Waban Rose Conservatories. We always like to see everyone get what they have a right to, and that vase in particular was well worth it. From remarks we heard at the show by prominent men the roses ought to have received a special prize. Taking the stems, foliage, size and color of blooms, we never saw their equal, but the judges did not have it in their power to award anything higher. Mr. Elliot received second prize. Jake Cohen tells me he has a list of 20 good prizes for the coming show of the Boston Cooperative Flower Market, April 12.

H. A. Robinson & Co. have leased the basement under the new flower market on Otis street. This brings all the wholesalers except the Boston Rose Co. in what might be termed the flower district. Mr. Robinson's lease was signed Friday, March 21.

Thos. F. Galvin had some well grown bougainvilleas in his Tremont street store.

ROSES IN GOOD CROP.

After a week of changeable weather the conditions are much better. Carnations are in good crop, although many more might be cut. For the past two weeks funeral work has been heavy, using up all surplus stock. Roses were in good crop for Easter, the heaviest cutting being made from the White Killarneys. Mrs. Aaron Wards, which have been dormant since Christmas, are coming in fine shape. Some very fine sweet peas are seen on the market and sell readily. Lily of the valley is moving briskly. Bulbous stock for Easter came in large quantities and was of high quality. The only shortage seemed to be in lilies. Snapdragons are still seen, but paper white narcissi are gone.

NOTES.

One night last week some one entered the store of the Wilson Seed Co. and worked the combination of the safe, securing nearly $200. A bag of change lying hidden on a shelf nearby was also taken.

The Columbus Floral Co., which had been selling its stock from the greenhouse has leased a store at 173 East Town street and wholesale orders will be filled from that place.

The Art Floral Co. had its usual big run of orders. Mr. Graff says it was hard to keep up the display on account of stock selling so rapidly.

Wm. Brust was busy with Easter orders. He introduced some novelties.

C. E. Stone says Easter was a rush day for him, his business being double that of last year. L. S. B.

The Seed Trade.

Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

PACIFIC COAST dealers complain of dull business.

ONION SET prices at Chicago are a littler firmer, Reds and Yellows scarcer.

BEANS of kinds used in the south will be very scarce and dear for September delivery.

TUBEROSE growers are asking and in most cases, for reliable stock, are securing marked advances over last season's prices.

VISITED CHICAGO: Albert McCullough, Cincinnati, O.; Ant. C. Zvolanek, Lompoc, Calif., enroute to the National Flower Show at New York.

THE Department of Agriculture usual seed appropriation bill was approved March 4 and preliminary contracts already made will stand.

SWEET CORN prices have declined materially since December. Some seedsmen seem to be offering the same in some varieties at nearly contract cost.

California seed growers are despondent over lack of rain. The present outlook is for only about eight inches this season while a normal season requires 12 inches to make a reasonable crop. The outlook for sweet pea, radish and onion seed is not good.

NEWARK, N. J.—J. F. Noll & Co. report good business. Alexander Forbes, formerly with the Peter Henderson Co., New York, now controls this business. This firm has opened another store in the Hudson Terminal building, Cortlandt and Church streets, New York.

Seed and Weight Bills Pending.

The legislative committee of the American Seed Trade Association calls attention to the following very important bills pending in different states and urges that seedsmen for their own interests in all of these states secure copies of the bills, give special attention to the same and report progress to Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress street, Boston, Mass.:

French Bulbs.

As the time approaches for the meeting of the French bulb growers in April for fixing the selling price of their crops, the interest of the jobbing trade increases. The meagre reports so far received have been bearish, at first on the basis of small sized planting stock and later because of continued drought. Taken all in all most dealers are coming to the expectation of pretty stiff prices on the large sizes and some advance on Roman hyacinths.

Having during the past season been requested to secure some specially fine Gloxinias for exhibition purposes, we have made arrangements with a noted Gloxinia specialist in England to reserve for us some of the most distinct types. CYCLOPS. Velvety carmine, shading to a broad white border, throat dotted with dark red.

DUCHESS OF YORK. Flowers of a rich dark blue, each petal being edged with a broad band of white. A most striking and lovely variety.

SPOTTED HYBRIDS. Whenever exhibited, they create intense interest. The delicate markings, in an infinite variety of forms, add a special charm to the flowers.

SUTTON'S WHITE. A giant white flowered variety. DUKE OF YORK. Large scarlet Gloxinia with deep white edge to each petal. A magnificent flower.

HER MAJESTY. This exquisite Gloxinia is still unsurpassed by any other white variety. The flowers are as pure as newly fallen snow, and are borne on short stems, just clear of the elegantly recurved foliage.

READING SCARLET. In color this is the most brilliant Gloxinia in existence, being an intense glowing scarlet variety of the true Crassifolia habit. An admirable companion to Her Majesty.

GOLIATH. Violet and white, fine variety. Per doz. $1.50; per 100, $10.00.

DANIELSON, CONN.—Franklin & Crosby have completed the erection of another large greenhouse.

WHILE the Mexican tomato crop suffered some damage from the big western freeze in January, the Mexican Herald states that the output in northern Sinaloa is about 500 carloads, or treble what it was a year ago. Shipments practically all go to the United States.

Potato Crop of Ireland

The area of the potato crop for all Ireland in 1912 was 595,184 acres, as against 591,259 acres in 1911, and the total production of the crop in 1912 is estimated at 2,546,710 tons, compared with 3,694,856 tons in 1911. The average yield of the crop in 1912 is estimated at 4.3 tons per statute acre, as against 6.2 tons in 1911 and 4.8 tons for the 10-year period 1902-1911. The province of Ulster produced 1,087,896 tons in 1912 and 1,787,136 tons in 1911, the average rate per statute acre being 4.4 tons in 1912 and 7.3 tons in 1911.

Wisconsin Potato Growers.

We are in receipt of the first annual report of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' Association, which was organized in Waupaca, November 14, 1910. The report contains the association's constitution and by-laws as well as a number of valuable articles on the potato, its production, diseases, seed, etc. The officers are: John Hess, Rhineland, president; A. J. Pinkerton, Waupaca, vice-president; Ben F. Faast, Eau Claire, treasurer; J. G. Milward, Madison, secretary.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 24.—Mushrooms, 20 cents to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 10 cents to 15 cents, small cases; radishes, 15 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; pieplant, 25 cents to 50 cents per bunch; cucumbers, $1.25 to $2.75 per box of two dozen; asparagus, $2.50 for 24 bunches.

New York, March 22.—Cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen, and $4 to $5 per box; mushrooms, $1 to $2.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, $1.50 to $2.50 per 100 bunches; mint, 25 to 65 cents per dozen bunches; rhubarb, 30 cents to 60 cents per dozen bunches; lettuce, 25 cents to 50 cents per dozen; beet tops, 75 cents to $1.00 per box.

Horseradish Webworm.

The horseradish webworm, a new and hitherto unrecorded truck crop pest, is made the subject of an article by H. O. Marsh, issued by the Department of Agriculture. It was first discovered at Rocky Ford, Colo. It is a beautiful, slender moth, the wings being cream-colored with a brownish tinge and having an expanse of about  $\frac{5}{8}$  of an inch. The eggs are scale-like and are usually deposited singly on the upper or lower sides of the leaves. The newly hatched larvæ are pale yellow. The mature larvæ are yellowish green. Almost immediately after hatching they spin webs, under which they feed until mature.

They prefer the tender young plants to feed on and their worst feature is the check which they give to the plant's first growth. There are four generations of the pest each year, activity beginning in March and lasting until October. In twenty-seven days in May the female has been known to lay 331 eggs. Only one natural enemy of the horseradish webworm is known. That is a small wasp-like insect which has been found to check the increase of the larvæ. No artificial insecticides have proved successful, but as the pest is believed to be limited to a few plants in one garden at Rocky Ford it is thought the natural enemy will prove sufficient.

Newark, N. J.

The business district of Newark, which will creditably compare with that of any city in this country, has quite a number of enterprising and up-to-date retail florists and they were all well prepared for Easter. The Broad street store of Phillips Brothers was found to be a very busy place on March 19. Wagon loads of plants were being delivered and the whole force was busy getting them ready for display. This firm has a fine business and its trade calls for good stock.

Fred. Wolfinger, assisted by the genial William Strahan, was busy with Easter preparations. At this store we noted fine plant combinations very tastefully arranged and decorated with suitable chiffons.

E. J. Reynolds, who spent some time in the West and was also for a time in Washington, D. C., is back again with his former employer, Henry A. Strobell.

Percy Dickman, better known as "Dick," formerly with Henry A. Strobell, but later a soldier, has served his four years of enlistment and is back with his former employer. We found a good Easter stock at this store. There are now two stores in Newark conducted by members of the Strobell family but we do not know that they are connected in a business way. The firm of H. C. Strobell & Co. has a store at 783 Broad street, Henry A. Strobell being at 931 Broad street.

George Penck has a nursery and greenhouses at West Arlington, N. J., but also does considerable buying in the New York market for his store at 185 Market street. Pete Penck has a store at 6 Academy street and Chris. Penck is at 173 Market street.

A. C. Begerow's, 946 Broad street, is another good store that may well be called metropolitan, being conducted in a thoroughly modern manner.

John Crossley, 37 Bellville avenue, is a very practical florist and careful buyer. He is prospering rapidly.

We are growing all our Kentias above 6-inch size in neat Cedar Tubs, made especially for us, with electric wire hoops, and painted green. These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

We are easily reached—only 25 minutes from Reading Terminal, 12th and Market Streets, Philadelphia. We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. Then you will see our Palms of all sizes, from 2½-inch pots to 12-inch tubs. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. All our Palms are home-grown (not an imported plant on the place), and well established in the tubs. They are strong and healthy.

With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

Enchantress Supreme

THE Best Sport from Enchantress up-to-date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguishes its parent.
Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.
A good all around Carnation that retains its color at all seasons.
Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster.
The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—A. M. Brand of Faribault talked on peonies at the March meeting of the Minnesota Garden Flower Society.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The campaign being conducted by the order of Royal Rosarians for funds for the rose festival is meeting with success and leaders in the work are much encouraged.

DANVILLE, N. Y.—The committee of nurserymen from this city and other centers of the trade has succeeded in having the bill imposing a fine of $5 on every tree mislabeled withdrawn from further consideration by the legislature.

Lilacs.

We are just getting ready to graft a lot of lilacs, which reminds me that it is not too late to take up stocks for that purpose if you can get into the ground. Seedling stocks, suckers or even pieces of roots will answer, or if you do not wish to have them on their own roots, privet is the thing to use. Any style of graft will answer but we usually use a side or veneer graft.

The demand for lilacs seems to be greater than ever before and a good stock of the better and more distinct varieties should be provided. The varieties are legion, and if one looks over some of the large collections, of three or four hundred varieties, one is somewhat at a loss to know which to select. However, we have the satisfaction of knowing that "they are all good, only some are better than others." But one can cover the range of season of bloom, form and color with a comparatively small number. For a short list I would suggest the following: Syringa Josikaea, pale pinkish violet, late; S. villosa, pink in the bud, turning creamy white as it grows old; S. oblata, lilac-purple, the earliest to bloom; S. Chnensis or Rothomagensis, bright reddish lilac, very floriferous; S. vulgaris, in the following named varieties—Marie Legraye and Fran Daman, single white; Mme. Lemoine, double white; Lovanensis, single pinkish lilac; Dr. Maillot and Mme. Jules Finger, double pinkish lilac; Ludwig Spaeth and Congo, single red; Chas. Joly, double red; Coerulea superba and Bleautre, single blue; Comtesse Horace de Choiseul, double blue.

There is a great saving of time in propagating lilacs by graftage, as we make a flowering plant in three years, whereas by any other method it would take six. I did not include in the above list Syringa japonica, the Japanese tree lilac, the largest and latest of the genus. This is sometimes grafted but I believe the general practice is to raise them from seed. C.

GET INTERESTED, MR. FLORIST, THIS IS FOR YOU!

If you contemplate painting your house this year, it will be well for you to investigate the merits of which I use exclusively in the erection of the large ranges of glass that I erect on private estates and public parks. I have increased my plant to take care of the demands made upon me for this paint by florists in all parts of the country. The Lutton reputation for high class material is back of this product. Send for a sample free of cost and then you will send your order. We also furnish materials for the complete erection of modern Iron Frame Greenhouses. Some of the largest growers in the country will testify to this fact.

Fewer Rafters Fewer Columns Fewer Purlins

Are Used in Our Cantilever Construction

ALL of which, of course, means more light and greater freedom in working the house.

☞ Just to give you a rough idea how it works out, let's take a house 200 feet long and 70 feet wide. In the standard Flat Rafter construction, you must have 25 rafters, no matter whose construction it is. In the Cantilever construction you need but 17. 16 purlins are required with Flat rafter, only 12 with the Cantilever. 4 columns with the Flat rafter, 2 only with the Cantilever. Admittedly the rafter is of necessity deeper, but this being open lattice constructed, it casts no more shade than shallower rafters of solid iron.

☞ As to price—when you get right down to sharpening your lead pencil, it costs no more than the flat rafter house.

☞ This being so, you better look into it pretty thoroughly, point by point, before putting your money into anything else.

☞ Send for full descriptive circular.

SATURDAY'S TRADE HEAVY.

Easter has come and gone. Owing to the weather, it has been a very strenuous time. Thursday night the glass went down near zero. Good Friday saw a snow storm in progress with the wind blowing a gale. These conditions kept people indoors. Saturday was fair and warmer and in consequence the business of three or more days was all crowded into one. There certainly was a grand rush. There was nearly enough stock of all kinds to meet all the demands. Very little was shipped in. Lilies were the choice and went like hot cakes. One retail firm sold more than eight hundred in pots alone. Many thought there would be plenty left over, but Easter morning saw every salable lily with a tag on. In bulb stock daffodils seem to have been the most called for. Violets and sweet peas went well. In fact everything on hand was sold. Taken all in all, florists in this city are more than pleased. Easter Sunday opened up with the rain coming down in sheets, making delivery very unpleasant, but this was much better than zero weather. Increase in business over last year was about 15 per cent. Prices were the same.

T. E.

FISHKILL-ON-HUDSON, N. Y.—Benjamin Hammond was elected president of the Village Board for the fifth term March 18.

PASADENA, CALIF.—As a result of the recent rains the flower show of April 10-12 is expected to be the best yet given by the Pasadena Horticultural Society.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—The report published in the daily press and elsewhere that John Salmon of Baltimore, Md., had purchased the Carolina Floral Store is erroneous. The store is now the property of Mrs. F. L. Aichele and her son, F. J. Aichele.

ferns being used at the base. Scattered throughout the room were other baskets of note, one a Baby Rambler very finely trained in arch shape. Under the arch a small bed of lily of the valley was planted, which in turn was finished with a hedge effect of the same roses. An artistic gauze and pink satin ribbon rosette combination finished a very handsome basket. Another basket of gray straw filled with primulas and spireas offset with a grey gauze ribbon was distinctive.

C. A. Samuelson in the next art room showed his conception of the beauty of a colonial garden effect. One corner of the room was arranged in a mass of Baby Rambler roses, finished with small ferns, sheet moss being used as a finish to the crescent design. In the opposite corner, the same idea was carried out in genistas with a finish of funkias. On the central divan stood a majestic Roman urn filled with a bevy of Lady Gay roses which was surrounded with a number of artistically designed small French baskets, expressive of the large possibilities of the flower art.

In the Hutchinson room, Wienhoeber's exhibit was a stately representation of a wedding decoration. Tall palms in a graceful pyramid group were used for a background of a handsome prie-dieu of white enamel cushioned daintily and finished with a handsome white sash ribbon. On either side of this stood an immense white basket filled with Easter lilies. Three handsome Dresden wedding columns, posts of white enamel with the Dresden designs in colors and finished with sash ribbons of white, represented the aisles on either side and lent a note of distinction to the tout ensemble. His daintily arranged centerpieces for the table were filled with spring flowers, the purple and yellow iris being with the ixia and Sunburst roses used to still further enhance their individuality. His display of French and gold dinner baskets was interesting. A basket arranged with stocks and double yellow tulips, gave an added tone to his artistic settings.

The Wittbold decoration in the Ryerson room was truly a conception of the highest floral art in the arrangement of a group of specimen palms, ferns and other foliage plants. The majestic beauty and simplicity of arrangement was most noticeable. Tall vases filled with Killarney roses of great beauty finished this central group. At each entrance of the room stood an immense Roman garden urn beautifully arranged with Tausendschon roses. It is surely difficult to describe in words the artistic splendor and individuality displayed in each and every decoration. Each was strikingly distinctive and showed careful planning as well as a note of artistic harmony.

Royal Horticultural Society of England.

With reference to his impending resignation of the presidency of the Royal Horticultural Society, Sir Trevor Lawrence, Bart., writes: "In 1884, when I became president, the society had fallen into serious difficulties, pecuniary and other. But the surrender of the gardens at South Kensington laid the foundations of a new era. Since that time the society's progress has been uninterrupted, until it reached its present position of unprecedented prosperity and affluence. My reasons for writing this letter are the desire to emphasize the fact, fully recognized by my colleagues and myself, that the society's success has been due to the remarkable spread of a love of gardens and gardening among all classes of our people, rich and poor alike, and the fact that even this would not have sufficed to ensure prosperity had it not been decided to devote the society's energies wholly to the promotion and direction of scientific and practical horticulture, a decision which has been strictly adhered to. I cannot, however, resign a post, which has meant so much to me for so many years, without asking leave to express publicly my deep obligations to the colleagues with whom it has been my good fortune to work for so long. The society's council and committees are filled by men who know their work thoroughly, and are the heads of their special departments. They give gratuitously time, knowledge, and energy, without stint, to all they undertake. In this they have the hearty support of their employers, both amateur and professional, from whom, indeed, the society received a large measure of support even in its darkest days. The result may be summed up in a few words. The society, founded in 1804, has now upwards of 13,000 fellows, a subscription income of over £19,000 a year, a hall which cost £45,000, a celebrated garden, with a horticultural school and laboratory, upon which £10,000 has been spent, an extensive and valuable library, a reserve fund approaching £70,000, and no debts. ### Trinity Church and Churchyard, New York.

SEE COVER OF NEXT ISSUE.

The first Trinity church was erected in 1696 and the first service was held in it February 6, 1697. During a great fire which destroyed that part of the city on September 21, 1776, Trinity was laid in ruins. In following the early history of New York we find many names that have been preserved for coming generations through the naming of streets. Thus we read that the first service held in Trinity was by the Rev. Mr. Vesey, and Vesey is a well known downtown street. Another Trinity structure was erected in 1788 and consecrated in 1791 by Bishop Provost.

In these times we hear much of the high cost of living, but judging from the old records, the cost of being buried is, in proportion, much greater. The land on which Trinity was built was ceded to the vestry by the city without compensation, the only conditions being that it should always be enclosed with a fence, and that burials in it be granted to the citizens forever for three shillings and sixpence for a grown person and one shilling and sixpence for children under twelve years of age. Supposing this to have been "sterling money" as the English coinage was termed in the colonies, it would be 87½ and 37½ cents, respectively. It is stated that the first record of a burial, that of a Holland girl, in the ground of Trinity Churchyard was 1639, more than fifty years before the first Trinity Church was erected. Looking backward through that vista of years we find many prominent names. Among those buried there were Francis Lewis, a signer of the Declaration of Independence; Col. Marius Willett, active in the Revolution; Robert Fulton, inventor of the steamboat; Captain Lawrence, whose dying words were: "Don't give up the ship;" and Alexander Hamilton. There were many burials in Trinity churchyard of Union soldiers during the Civil War.

The present church, completed in 1846, is the third Trinity church, the second one having been torn down because it had become unsafe. Trinity has long been considered the finest specimen of architecture in the old or lower part of the city. It is constructed of brown stone as are many other old New York buildings. It has been said that the bronze doors to its entrance cost $40,000. The panels depict Bible scenes. The church fronts on Broadway, just opposite the entrance to Wall street. The block with the church and churchyard and the Trinity building, owned by Trinity Corporation, is bounded by Broadway, Church street and Rector and Thames streets. There is a remarkable chime of bells in the belfry and many people go there on New Year's eve to hear them. Noonday services are held in the church and we were recently surprised on attending one of these services to find the church full. There are many other interesting features connected with Trinity that space does not permit us to relate.

Standing Wreath.

SEE SUPPLEMENT WITH THIS ISSUE.

In making the standing wreath as well as the ordinary kind, or indeed as well as almost any floral design that may be mentioned, it will pay the florist to remember that an artistic arrangement is usually actually cheaper in cost than many an unsightly affair which has come from the hands of a poor designer. The well designed wreath will not be a solid mass of flowers. Less stock is used and a much better effect produced where the flowers are farther apart. The standing wreath of hard outline and stiff, erect "stem" must be avoided above all else. It is unnecessary to say, of course, that all the colors must be in harmony, those of the base matching those of the wreath itself or contrasting in an artistic way.

Wm. Duckham.

Manager National Flower Show,
New York, April 5-12.

Originality should be the aim rather than the following of any set arrangement. The flowers that may be used are numerous, including all the standard sorts for design work. Easter lilies, orchids, roses, carnations, gladioli, lily of the valley with leucothoe, adiantum, caladium leaves are all capable of being worked up into a most artistic wreath. In the supplement with this issue white carnations with lily of the valley and orchids make a wonderfully beautiful design.

Tree Blooms for the Florist.

No flower blooms that has not some beauty which is unveiled only to the minutely observant person, some peculiarity of structure fitting it to its place and purpose. It should be the aim of every florist to detect hidden beauties and discover elements of beauty in the blossoms of our trees. The earliest tree flowers to show themselves are those of the black alder, the graceful tassels of which may be seen hanging from the bare angular black branches of the alder along the borders of our streams. We all know the catkins of the willows—the pussey willows. Of course March is the month of catkins. The catkin flowers are really, in the floral world at least, the "heralds of spring."

Often the maples come into bloom—the first usually being the scarlet maple, with its complete covering of brilliant scarlet flowers. It is a conspicuous and beautiful object and will be a valuable addition to the window display. Of the other maples the sugar maple is the most common—its flowers coming out at the end of pedicels from one and a half to three inches in length, drooping in clusters of a greenish yellow color. The striped maple, as a rule, is a very profusely flowered tree and the rather dark foliage with the lighter yellowish green of the flowers make a most delightful combination for the window. If labeled and made a center of attraction it will be as good an advertisement for the florist as can be imagined. If possible give a little data connected with each variety, giving the display an educational feature.

The oaks with their long loose catkins like ragged tassels or strings loosely strung with beads, the elms with their indeterminately colored flowers; the hazel and hop hornbeam (the catkins closely resemble one another except that the hazel is somewhat the longer); and the hickory with its slender unpretentious catkins are all flowers for April at the disposal of the florist. What could be more appropriate for a change than to devote a little time to the securing of something different for your show window, especially when you can have the opportunity of enhancing its beauty by combinations and effective backgrounds?

What beauty is found in the wild cherry blossoms with their long drooping clusters of small flowers! The June berry blossom with its pure white flowers of five petals stands out, with a delicate star-like beauty that is a delight to behold. This is especially fine for a display with a dark green background. By far the showiest of all our tree blossoms is the large flowered magnolia and not far behind it in the race for first place are the locusts. At about this time blossoms appear on the tulip tree, also known as whitewood or basswood, the flowers of which vie with real tulips in shape at least, if not in color. At this time the horse chestnut with its large pyramidal clusters of white golden hearted flowers also blooms. Can any one look at either of these flowers and say that they are not the equal in beauty of almost all of our best cultivated flowers and that they do not surpass some of them? And yet we almost never see them displayed in our florists' windows nor even used for decorations.

A good many of us see beauty only in that which we have been told is beautiful. It may be interesting to note that the horse chestnut was so named because of the spot where the leaf grows (which will show as you pick it off the branch). It is an exact image of the bottom of a horse's hoof even to the heads of the nails that hold the shoe on. The last tree to blossom in spring is the chestnut, with its long light brown fronds of feathery catkins, its blooms not appearing until late in June.

Lastly, of all the flowering trees, there are none that can equal in collective beauty the fruit trees in full bloom. There can hardly be anything more exquisite for the show window than a mass of pinkish-white blooms of the apple, or peach, or plum tree. There are millions of forsythias, magnollas and dogwood in this beautiful country of ours, but not once in a hundred times are they used effectively. To make them most effective and get the full glory and wonder of them you must give them a background of evergreens or other dark green material—the darker the better. We should all discover the beauty in our tree flowers and become better acquainted with their value to us, making seasonable features of them for our displays and decorations.

A. E. K.

In the best of condition to continue the season in good shape. The greenfly very easily gets the upper hand of the plants now, owing to the warmer weather, and if not kept in check by the regular use of the insecticides your plants will shortly have a number of growth shoots that are twisted and curled at the ends with yellow tips to the foliage. The rapid growth of the plants at this time makes it necessary that a very close attention be paid to keep the shoots in order and the disbudding attended to.

month or five weeks before it will be safe to begin planting out into the field. Young plants that are now well rooted through the soil should be given another shift into larger pots to carry them through to planting out time without receiving any kind of a check. Plenty of ventilation should be given at all times and a gradual hardening off followed out to insure sturdy, hardy plants for planting out when the time comes. Cuttings still in the sand should be potted up as soon as they have made sufficient roots to enable them to grow into good stocky plants for planting out. One very important work with these young plants is that of topping or pinching out the tips of the main shoot to cause them to branch out freely. Care should be exercised in this operation to cause them to break evenly so that the plants will grow uniformly. Another very important item is to keep the weeds cleaned out as fast as they appear which they quickly will do in the fresh soil that the young stock is potted in.

THE CARNATION.

The Young Plants.

Most growers have for the last few weeks been worrying along with lack of space to take care of the young stock in order to hold on to the flowering plants for the Easter business, and now that this is out of the way our thoughts turn to the question of more room for the young carnation plants or other stock as the case may be. The question of what to throw out to make this room should be governed by the condition of the plants and to the demand for the different varieties. We all know that with the passing of Easter the demand for red or the deep cerise colors diminishes to a large extent and the principal call is for the white and true pinks that have color tone enough not to fade quickly. The present condition of the plants we might say should be the most important factor in determining whether to hold on to them or not. Plants that were the first to come into bloom last fall and have been keeping it up continuously ever since are not very likely to show as good prospects for the future production of bloom as those that were later in getting started and consequently have not done so much.

We are now coming to the season when the supply of carnation blooms will be considerably greater than the demand. It is therefore to every grower's interest in figuring out his plans to hold on to such plants as show promise of giving the best returns. There are many details that need particularly close attention at this time to keep the flowering plants

To keep a check on the red spider give the plants a thorough syringing once or twice a week and ventilate all the time that the weather conditions will permit. After April 1 there are very few nights that will not allow some ventilation being carried on in houses all night. Also, in a very short time, it will be necessary to put on the glass a thin shade to protect the plants and flowers from the increased power of the sun.

The young plants for next season's planting should still continue to receive close attention to keep them in active growth; it will be another mens in flower were recently shown in London by James Veitch & Sons, Chelsea, and attracted much attention; so much so, in fact, that a first-class certificate was awarded by the floral committee. The plants were shown as nice bushy specimens in 5-inch pots and were laden with archsprays of pure white, broadly funneland this accounts for the other name of cyaneus under which the plant is also known. E. reticulatus seems to be quite easily grown, and as a cool greenhouse plant it deserves attention. In warm sheltered spots it would no doubt prove quite hardy, and in many parts of the United States it should grow freely in the open air. It flourishes in a compost of loam and peat with a dash of sand, and is readily raised from cuttings of the half-ripened shoots inserted in sandy soil in a gentle bottom heat. It may be also raised from seeds, but these are apparently not so satisfactory for flowering purposes. On the whole this tillaceous shrub with its purplish stems, ornamental leathery leaves and profusion of dainty fringed white flowers is one that deserves attention from the florist's point of view.

A New Loganberry.—When Judge Logan of the United States raised the fruit that bears his name, he probably never thought that he was opening the door to great possibilities that might arise from mixing the blood of raspberries with that of blackberries. In England we now have in addition to the Loganberry proper other fruits called the "Lowberry" and "Laxtonberry"—both obtained from crossing the Loganberry with varieties of raspberry, and both very excellent fruits. Now we have quite a new break under the name of the "Newberry." This is the result of crossing the Superlative raspberry with the pollen of the Loganberry, and a wonderfully fine fruit has been the product of such a marriage. Whitelegge & Page of Chislehurst, Kent, are placing the novelty on the market. From some specimens exhibited in London it was noted that the stems, stout and vigorous, attained a length of about 24 feet, and carried from 200 to 300 fruits on some 50 to 60 sprays. Each fruit when fully developed is a good 2 inches in length, much larger than the best Loganberries I have seen, and of a deep claret purple when ripe. The flavor is excellent and quite

Plant Notes From England.

Elaeocarpus Reticulatus.—The genus Elaeocarpus belongs to the lime tree family but is practically unknown outside botanical collections at present. The species under notice, however, may help to bring the genus into more prominence, as it is really a lovely plant. It is a native of Australia, where it is said to attain a height of 15 feet. Some very charming specishaped flowers. These remind one very forcibly of those of the pretty little Soldanella alpina in shape, owing to the fact that the petals are cut into a pretty fringe for about one-third of their length. In general appearance the plant resembles the tea plant in the foliage, but is not quite so glossy, and is more conspicuously veined. This last characteristic accounts for the specific name reticulatus. The fruits which succeed the blossoms under favorable conditions are of a rich bluish purple when ripe, free from that acidity and tartness that many consider a great drawback to the Loganberry. The core that is such a feature of the latter fruit is conspicuous by its absence from the "Newberry," an important consideration from a dessert and preserving standpoint. As each plant has about seven long fruiting stems each year, and bears about 21 pounds of fruit, it is easy to reckon that 1,000 plants a purplish sheen on the wings; and Rosabelle, a fine deep crimson.

New Larkspurs.—At one of the summer shows of the Royal Horticultural Society in London last season Kelway & Son, of Langport, Somerset, and their neighbors, Blackmore & Langdon, Twerton Hill, Bath, both had a fine show of perennial Larkspurs. These plants are very popular in England, not only among private growers, received an award of merit. It is just the opposite of Drake, being a deep Oxford blue in color. Blackmore & Langdon obtained an award of merit for their fine double flowered deep blue "Harry Smetham," the brilliancy of which was accentuated by a soft purple sheen overspreading the petals, or rather the sepals, to be botanically correct. The spikes were fine and full, and had over 60 flowers open at once on them. Moerheimi is one of the best of the pale delphiniums, the blooms being almost white, just relieved by a very faint shade of blue. Novelty is a good semi-double deep blue; Elsie, a light blue, and Perfection, a fine blend of pale blue on the outer row of sepals, the inner ring being a peculiar shade of rose lavender.

Fine Gaillardias.—The perennial gaillardias always make their appearance with the month of June, and each year they seem to be getting bigger in bloom, purer in color and longer and stronger in the stem. At least this was what struck me when I saw a fine exhibit of these plants at a show held by the Royal Horticultural Society in London last summer. One of the very finest and purest of yellows is Lady Rolleston with a tinge of orange in the center. It has sturdy upright stems from three to four feet high, and is a flower for the cut flower trade, as it lasts so well in water. It seeds with great freedom, but, like many other florist's flowers, it cannot be relied upon coming true to name. In this case, however, this is a blessing rather than a misfortune, for some of the progeny are particularly fine youngsters and superior in many ways to the parent. One of the best seen in W. & J. Brown's exhibit from Stamford, Lincolnshire, was The King. The blooms of this were superb, being of a deep and brilliant crimson for the most part, with bright golden-yellow tips to the ray florets—a contrast in color that could not fail to arrest attention. Another grand seedling from Lady Rolleston was Lady Exeter, with flowers of clear yellow having a distinct crimson center scarcely impinging on the base of the florets. W.

on an acre of ground, if properly cultivated, would produce about nine tons of fruit annually at very little expense. At the rate of only £10 per ton (a shade over 2 cents a pound) a revenue of £90 an acre per annum is not to be despised in these days. As the plants are best grown by training to horizontally stretched wires, it would of course be possible to secure catch crops of vegetables from between the rows, thus raising the gross returns to a much higher figure.

Sweet Peas.—At the Royal Horticultural Society's Show in the summer of 1912 there were several fine exhibits of sweet peas, notably those from Sutton & Sons, Reading, and E. W. King, Coggeshall, Essex. The first named firm had a glorious bank of flowers 60 to 70 feet in length, and containing about 100 different varieties, all from the open air. Apart from the size and beauty of the blossoms, the great length of the stems was a conspicuous feature. In most cases these were from 18 inches to 2 feet long, an advantage that all exhibitors will at once recognize of the greatest importance. Some of the most striking varieties were Dorothy Tennant Spencer, a deep mauve; Prince George, a fine blend of rose and cerise; Coronation, rose and salmon; Southcote Blue, a very distinct shade of blue with a purple sheen, although the individual blooms were somewhat smaller than the general run; Doris Usher, a fine rose color with particularly long stems; Thomas Stevenson, cerise; Earl Spencer, a beautiful bright warm salmon rose color; and Moonstone, one of the sweetest and softest lavender blues. In — King's collection were to be noted the new Anglian Pink, a fine cerise pink; Anglian Light Blue, deep lavender; Anglian Crimson, deep crimson with largely in them in the spring as "roots" but also among the trade who deal and during the summer as cut flowers. Single and double varieties seem to be about equally popular, and the individual blossoms of some varieties are now nearly 3 inches across. One such is "Drake" shown by Kelways, and it received an award of merit. It is a beautiful Cambridge blue with conspicuous small white petals in the center. Another new variety shown by the same firm is "Tagalie" (the name of the Derby winner) which also

Public and Private Grounds.

DESIGN AND CHOICE OF SITE.

Paper read by Arthur A. Shurtleff before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, Mass., February 15, 1913.

A public park or private estate should be accessible readily by road and rail not only to those who are to frequent the land for pleasure purposes, but also to those who are to furnish labor and materials. The pub-is from ten to twenty times that of ordinary earth excavation. Outcrops of ledge which furnish stone for buildings or road foundations, or which add picturesqueness to the landscape are to be highly prized.

Boundary lines should be free from jogs and offsets, and should embrace all land needed for the development of immediate landscapes, and for the control of distant outlooks. Park quality is very precious because it renders possible cheap roads, cheap concrete, dry cellars, and ready sewerage disposal, although on the other hand, grass and trees may suffer for lack of water in such ground. A heavy clay soil may be endured for its economic uses and for the good grass which it generally produces. The top soil or loam should be deep and a liberal supply of yellow loam should lie beneath it. This combination with adequate rainfall, furnishes the mainstay of all vegetation. Light cultivation under such conditions will bring good soil speedily into bearing, but heavy cultivation extending over a period of years is often required to bring a thin soil into a productive condition. A liberal water supply must be obtainable within easy pumping distance of the building sites and the young plantations. For ordinary economic uses, water should be free from hardness to insure ready solution of plant food and saponification. Drinking water should also be free from organic matter.

Land for a public park or private estate should be chosen with consideration of the appearance as well as the condition of its woodlands, meadows, brooks, ponds, and fields. These features are the materials of scenery, and they must compose or be capable of composition into landscapes pleasing to the eye. If the land of your choice fulfills all severely practical requirements, and at the same time possesses fine landscapes, your search has been well rewarded, and you may undertake problems of design and construction with the assurance that no unforeseen topographical difficulties can thwart you. Problems of design are difficult in themselves, and they need for their best solution all the initial assistance which topography, soil exposure, and landscape can provide. Design should aim to render the territory highly convenient and useful for the special purposes of the park or private estate with the least first cost and with the least cost of maintenance. Good design would miss its aim did it not preserve and create appropriate and attractive landscapes—landscapes in which roads, buildings, fields, woodlands, water, bridges, and all other elements enter without affectation to form compositions pleasing to the mind and to the eye.

lie will not visit a park which is inconveniently situated—a half mile walk or a five-cent fare cannot be exceeded without grave danger that, as the novelty of the park wears off, pleasure seekers will forsake its precincts altogether. Although the choice of a private estate is involved to a less degree by considerations of distance from the city, the owner must carefully weigh this factor to determine how many hours of his life and how much of his income he will devote to mere travelling. The transportation and cost of labor and of materials is also to be reckoned with as a large item both in the first period of construction and in the final budgets of up-keep.

Breezy northern slopes are desirable for grounds which are to be used only in summer, but for winter enjoyment, southern slopes and protection from the wind are essential. In cold weather furnaces and artificial light cannot bring cheer to a building placed on a site deficient in sunlight and unduly exposed to the wind. Likewise, electric fans and awnings are poor makeshifts for the breezes and the shade of trees which afford natural relief from summer heat. The slope of the grounds should not be so steep or so wanting in contour as to prevent the construction of roads of moderate gradient between points of strategic importance. These gradients should be tested carefully with an instrument not only to learn their steepness, but to make possible the preparation of a general working plan for pleasure and service roads.

The grounds should be carefully examined to discover the presence of rock. If ledge occurs where roads are to be built or cellars excavated, serious items of expense will be involved. The cost of removing ledge margins should be carefully adjusted to the contour of the ground in order to permit the construction of boundary roads of moderate gradient. Such marginal roads not only assist in policing the park, but they insure the orderly development of adjoining private property by forcing the nearest buildings to face, rather than to back upon the public land.

The nature of the soil should be studied both upon the surface and at a depth (by means of test pits dug for the purpose), to ascertain its water holding capacity and the size of its aggregate. A sandy or gravelly

MARKET ERRATIC.

Trade during the past week was quite erratic, starting with Monday which, notwithstanding the fact that it so closely followed the Easter feast of flowers, was a good day with everyone. This activity of trade alternated with slow days throughout the week. To meet this condition the market was overloaded with great quantities of roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock of all kinds. Some fine flowering plants, too, were seen that failed to move at Easter and had no better success this week. Local growers, as they read the reports of the great destruction to greenhouse property from Sunday morning to Wednesday was 6.97 inches. The assistance of the public has been prompt and liberal, but conditions are still bad. All social entertainments have been called off. Some of the dealers have not sold five cents' worth of stock in the last three days. All florists in the flooded district have the sympathy of the trade and will be helped in every way possible.

The amount of business done by Worcester florists this Easter will go on record as the "best ever," being 25 per cent better than other years. Charles Meehan gave a very interesting talk on the Panama canal, Costa Rica and Jamaica, where he recently spent a month. Since the last report the sunny skies have turned to a black pall overhanging a sorrowing city. The gladness of Easter Sunday was followed by breaking hearts on Monday. With the entire West Side, from the State hospital to the Scioto river, under water that tore at the houses and carried many of them away, business has been completely paralyzed. The loss of life is enormous, and to this can be added the property loss which will run far into the millions. The city is without water, heat or light, and is under martial law. ### Society of American Florists.

SOME CONVENTION CITY HISTORY.

Delegates to the convention of the Society of American Florists will find in Minneapolis and St. Paul, to all practical appearances, a single community of approximately 600,000 inhabitants. The limits of the Twin Cities merge. The majestic Mississippi river flows through both cities. Four interurban car lines connect the two and their centers are only fifty minutes' ride from each other. The passenger on these cars does not know when he has crossed the line of one city and entered into the other, so like are they in appearance and in practically every other feature.

The strategical advantage of the location of these cities was recognized by the United States government as early as 1819, in the establishing of Fort Snelling, under the shelter of which the early trading was carried on. This fort, which looked on the confluence of the Minnesota and Mississippi rivers, in a most beautiful natural setting, has become one of the six great military posts in the country. The commerce established in the early days of the winning of the great Northwest has grown to enormous proportions and has resulted in the building of two of the most progressive large cities in the country.

The first white men known to have visited the site of St. Paul and Minneapolis were Grosseilliers and Radisson. In August 1659, with a company of Indians they passed up the Mississippi river, crossing to Lake Superior. The two most noteworthy explorers connected with the history of the Twin Cities were Hennepin and Nicolet. Louis Hennepin, a Franciscan missionary, was a member of the La Salle expedition of 1682. Hennepin and his companion were captured by Indians, who brought them up the river to the vicinity of the present city of St. Paul, removing them later to a point in Northern Minnesota. They were soon liberated, and on the return voyage Hennepin passed the Falls of St. Anthony, to which he gave this name in honor of his patron saint. Hennepin, therefore, was the real discoverer of Minneapolis, for this city owes its existence to St. Anthony Falls, which were harnessed and made to turn the first factory wheels of this present great manufacturing town.

The question of suzerainty over lands east and west of the Mississippi played an important part in the establishment of Minneapolis and St. Paul. It was in 1837 that Governor Dodge's treaty opened the way for settlement east of the Mississippi, while the country west of the Mississippi was not secured until 1857. Until that year, the site of Minneapolis was a part of the Fort Snelling military reservation, and though it was most advantageous for settlement the whole region about it was retarded in development until practically all the rest of Minnesota had been opened to the immigrant.

This order of events led to the settlement of St. Paul on the east side of the river in 1838. By 1851, when the first settlement was opened on the west side of the river, St. Paul had made such progress that the growth of another great city nearby seemed impossible. Hudson, in his "A Half Century of Minneapolis," declares "that if conditions had made possible the establishment of the first settlement on the logical site between the fort and the Falls of St. Anthony, St. Paul might not have attained its present importance." For many years, the growing American Northwest looked to St. Paul for all of its supplies. In the early days the merchandise was freighted from the east by the way of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The hunters, trappers and pioneer farmers of the state and Northwest, brought their products to St. Paul, which had become a progressive community with promise of a brilliant future as a merchandising and transportation center.

Notwithstanding the retarding influences of the early government of this empire, the rise of Minneapolis to its present position of importance was decreed in the pre-historic glacial days when the Falls of St. Anthony were formed. The city did not come by this prestige through any accidental or artificial means. When a rush of water from the North encountered a rocky ledge 250 miles from its beginning, it marked the site of Minneapolis and determined its destiny. Other cities could have served as distributing centers for supplies, but the presence of the tremendous energy of the Falls of St. Anthony provided for the great manufacturing city that Minneapolis is today.

In the rise of Minneapolis is found one of the most remarkable instances of city building in history. In a little more than half a century, Minneapolis has advanced from an obscure frontier village to a conspicuous place among American cities—the metropolises of the great American Northwest, an empire exceeding in extent the combined areas of France, Germany and Great Britain.

An important industrial district, commonly referred to as Midway, grew up between Minneapolis and St. Paul. St. Paul is the capital of the state of Minnesota; Minneapolis the seat of the state's great university. Between them lie the grounds of the historic Fort Snelling and of the Minnesota State Fair. A system of public parks has been developed, with a combined area of approximately 5,000 acres. Together the park boards of the two cities control both banks of the Mississippi river from the heart of Minneapolis to the fort. This is the only part of this great river where both banks are dedicated to the perpetual enjoyment of all the citizens. In past years there have been outcroppings of city jealousy, but in later years St. Paul and Minneapolis have come to realize that their interests are in common and they do not disagree upon any important problem. Visitors to the Twin Cities find in them much of natural beauty to admire and much of past and modern history to interest.

Nashville Notes.

Thomas Joy of the Joy Floral Co. said that his army of clerks had had all they could do in waiting on the Easter trade. The vast shelving which had been filled with choice plants of all kinds had been thinned out to a mere skeleton and still buyers were numerous. As a novelty they had beautiful blooming white lilac and handsome specimen rhododendrons decorated with exquisite taste. A goodly showing of out-of-town orders helped dispose of the large stock.

McIntyre Bros., in their new West End store, were doing a large business. They too had to bring in extra help to handle the trade. They have a small greenhouse some thirty feet square right on the street and this was filled with beautiful plants and attracted a great deal of attention from the passers by. They have liveried delivery men, which is an innovation here.

Haury & Sons had a magnificent display of potted plants, largely lilies, though they had many other varieties of flowers. Their sales were tremendous and the firm members were smiling and happy.

Geny Bros. declared that with all the increasing competition they did the biggest Easter business in their history. In fact they said they had virtually cleaned up everything.

Omaha Storm Ravages.

The accompanying illustrations show the work of the cyclone Easter night at the greenhouses of Geo. Joslyn and Hans Jensen, Omaha, Neb. Mr. Joslyn's conservatories were called the most beautiful in Omaha and contained many rare and valuable orchids, palms and other tropical plants. He estimated his loss in orchids alone at $15,000. Mr. Jensen's loss was complete, everything being destroyed beyond hope of repair.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—Geo. D. Leedle advises us that all florists' stocks are unharmed by the floods in this vicinity and that mail and express are going forward promptly.

NICOTINE products of all the kinds used for fumigating under glass are scarce and almost unobtainable. Prices have advanced and the federal insecticide law is responsible for part of the advance.

Our Supplements.

Subscribers should see that they get copies of the fine supplementary illustrations showing high grade design and decorative work. These fine supplements should be carefully preserved as they mean much to the retail florists in dealing with their customers, illustrating as they do the various kinds of work that the everyday florist is called upon to perform.

The papers in which the supplements appear should be likewise preserved, as they contain much valuable data with regard to these special illustrations. Subscribers should see that they get every issue, as otherwise they may miss some of this high-grade work.

Society of American Florists.

The adjourned meeting of the society will be held in the lecture room in the new Grand Central Palace at the time of the International Flower Show, as follows: Monday, April 7, at 10:30 a. m.; Thursday, April 10, 10:30 a. m.
JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

National Council of Horticulture.

The second installment of articles for 1913 issued by the National Council of Horticulture, contains the following: "Vegetables for City Backyards," "The Soil Plants Like," "How Not to Sow Seed," "High Living at a Low Cost." These timely and practical articles are issued to nurserymen, seedsmen, florists and the editors of local papers, and can be obtained upon application to the secretary, James H. Burdett, 1620 West 104th place, Chicago.

McFarland Publicity Service.

Jefferson Thomas, vice-president and manager of the McFarland Publicity Service, has resigned his position to take up the broader field of agricultural and general advertising with the Eugene McGuckin Company, Philadelphia, Pa., as manager of the sales promotion department. Fred E. Rowe, who has been chief confidential assistant of the McFarland Publicity Service for the past two years, will succeed Mr. Thomas in this business, J. Horace McFarland giving to its extension his increasing personal attention.

New York State Greenhouses.

FOR EXPERIMENTS IN FLORICULTURE.

I have just been advised by Wm. F. Kasting that a bill authorizing an appropriation of $60,000.00 for greenhouses at Cornell University, to be used in experimental work in flowers and vegetables, is very likely to pass the senate. On behalf of the legislative committee of the New York Florists' Club, I would urge every florist in the state of New York to write to his senator at once urging him to vote for the bill. I would also urge all florists to write to Governor Wm. Sulzer, Executive Mansion, Albany, urging that he sign the bill. Stress should be laid on the fact that the florists want this appropriation, for the better development of horticulture in the state of New York, and that if the Empire state is to hold her prestige as a flower producer in competition with other states, it is essential that this bill be passed and become a law.
PATRICK O'MARA.

National Association of Gardeners.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

Entries to the bowling tournament of the National Association of Gardeners, which will be held on Thum's alleys, Broadway and 31st street, New York, on Wednesday, April 9, must be filed with the secretary of the association not later than nine o'clock on the morning of the tournament. To facilitate completing arrangements, those intending to participate are earnestly requested to file their entries at once, sending them to M. C. Ebel, secretary, Murray Hill hotel, Park avenue and Fortieth street, New York, which will be the headquarters of the association during the show week. The secretary will be found at the hotel daily from 8 o'clock to 10 o'clock in the forenoon, during the show week, except Wednesday, on which day he will be at Thum's alleys. No entries will be accepted after the tournament opens at 9 o'clock on the forenoon of April 9.

Teams of three men, members of a local gardeners' or florists' club, and members in good standing either of the N. A. G. or S. A. F. will be eligible in the team tournament. One team only can be entered from any local club or society. All members in good standing of the N. A. G. or S. A. F. are eligible in the individual bowling tournament. Team bowlers can enter by waiving their team scores from counting in the individual tournament. Rules governing the tournament will be posted at the N. A. G. and S. A. F. headquarters in New York city on April 7 and 8, and on Thum's alleys during the tournament. A long list of prizes has been secured in which are included many valuable trophies.

American Carnation Society.

On account of the flooded condition of a large territory around Indianapolis, Ind., which is making mail deliveries very uncertain and in some directions impossible, it would be well for all those who are entering the competition in the carnation classes at New York to bring a list of their entries along to the show with them. Your entries may reach me at Indianapolis, and if they do I will have your entry cards made out, but should they not reach me it would be a great help if you have a list with you.

Please also note that sections A, B, C, D, G and classes 43 and 45 will stage April 8. Classes 42, 44, 46, 47 and 48 will be staged April 10. Through an error in printing the schedule for the entire show, classes 43 and 45 were included with the April 10 staging. Our classes 43 and 45 appear as classes 44 and 44 in the National Flower Show schedule. Entries in Section E may be staged at any time during the carnation show. We are planning to leave Indianapolis Saturday evening, April 5, and expect to arrive in New York Sunday evening at 5 p. m. Any mail which is not certain to reach Indianapolis by Saturday morning should be addressed in care of Hotel Manhattan, New York.

In the Dormer Memorial Medal class no medal will be awarded this year. Only a preliminary competition will be conducted, for which 50 blooms are required. Bring with you the pink slip, which was sent you along with the receipt for your dues. Without it you will be unable to get your season ticket to the show. A. F. J. BAUR, Sec'y.

These tubs cost several times the price of pots, but we sell the plants at the same price as though grown in pots. The buyer has the advantage of receiving his plants without breakage of pots and in handsome tubs in which they have become well established, and in which they will continue to do better than in pots.

We have fine train service—fifty trains each way every week day—so you can suit your convenience, both going and coming. We are strong on Decorative Palms, in 7-inch, 9-inch and 12-inch tubs (made-up or single plants), which we can supply in any quantity. With increased glass devoted to our Palms, our stock is much larger than ever before and never in better condition.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The cyclone of Easter Sunday, March 23rd, destroyed our new greenhouses at Lake Manawa, but the Large Greenhouse Place on East Pierce Street was unharmed. This place has several very fine crops of American Beauties, Roses, Carnations, Violets, etc., besides a fine collection of Blooming Plants. We are therefore in readiness to promptly fill your orders as heretofore, and will indeed appreciate your patronage.

The destroyed greenhouses (each 60x1000 feet) will be rebuilt at once and we will be especially well prepared for a large additional business this coming fall.

Yours very faithfully,

MARKET WELL SUPPLIED.

The Easter rush is over and the market is moving smoothly. There should be a good opportunity for big business in the immediate future for the market is well stocked in every line. Nothing is lacking, from roses to wild smilax. The supply of roses is good and large, and includes principally Killarney and White Killarney. Some very fine Richmond too, are coming in. American Beauty roses are again coming into crop. The receipts of each color of carnations are large and each one enjoys its proportionate share of the demand. The supply of Easter lilies is still large, but it cannot be ascertained now with any degree of certainty as to what their status in respect to supply and demand will be a few days hence. Smaller bulbous stock includes some excellent jonquils and tulips. With sweet peas, it is the same old story. Those of quality sell well while poorer and shorter stock finds a small market. The offerings of lily of the valley are very large and very fine. Other stock includes orchids, gardenias, Spanish iris and snapdragons. The supply of decorative greens is large.

C. E. Critchell, after considerable difficulty owing to the impeding of transportation in the South by heavy rains, has at last received another car of wild smilax.

The flower market firms did a rushing business on Saturday before Easter. At times the place was so packed that it was almost impossible to move about.

Tom Burnett had some fine schizanthus for Easter. L. H. Kyrk handled them for him.

P. J. Olinger cut the first Spanish iris in this market this season.

The Hill-Heller store had a very large and fine Easter display.

The Big Blow That Did Not Blow Enough To Blow Down Any L and B Big Houses

THE recent far reaching destruction throughout the middle west of all sizes of various constructed green-houses points an object lesson we have been endeavoring to impress on growers for years.

Over and over again we have used these pages to show up the wind resisting strength of our Iron Frame construction.

Some of the "wise ones" have gone so far as to flatly state that our houses "had too much iron in them," or that we "were unnecessarily fussy about the number of columns we placed in a house."

Yes, and we have even been accused of being "behind the times" by not adopting some of the new-fangled framing methods. It now happens that two of the biggest iron frame houses in the west were new-fangled construction and in that blow they went down like a pack of cards. Not a single Lord & Burnham house suffered.

Of course, glass was broken, but the frame work on all sides stands firm and true today as when erected.

It is apparent, then, that many growers have been led to put too much confidence in certain kinds of frame houses.

The recent destruction of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of houses simply backs up what we have been continually claiming; and that is—half the iron frame houses being put up by firms with but a few years experience in this type of construction are nowhere near as safe and sure as our Pipe Frame.

It's not a question of how much iron you use in a house; but how that iron is put to use. Mind we don't claim that our Iron Frame houses will never be blown down, (although none ever has) but we do claim, that if any house will stand a blow, Lord & Burnham's will.

Drop in at our show at the National Flower Show and talk over our blow-proof houses.

If you can't come, let us come to you.

GOODRICH HOSE For Greenhouse Use

QUICKLY EARN THEIR COST. MOST DURABLE OF ALL HOSE.

HERE ARE TWO BRANDS OF HOSE ESPECIALLY FITTED FOR GREENHOUSE USE:

AKRON—Braided fabric, non-kink construction, supplied in lengths up to 500 feet. A well balanced hose in every particular. Excellent grade of rubber stock is used in the tube, cover and friction, and particular attention is paid to the grade, weight and mesh of the cotton fabric. Built in every way for just the sort of service it is likely to be put up against in Greenhouse use.

FLORISTS—Wrapped duck construction. Practically in a class by itself, with its extra heavy cover, strong duck and superior friction. It is a popular hose and as its name indicates, particularly adapted for the use of Florists.

We would like to send you literature and tell you more about both of the brands mentioned above. But if in a hurry for hose you will run no risk in ordering either. "Goodrich made" Hose is never a chance, always an investment.

STOCK IN OVERSUPPLY.

Trade was very quiet up to March 28, but since then the buying has been heavier, yet none too encouraging. Nearly all the wholesalers were more or less handicapped the past week in filling shipping orders, owing to the recent washouts and floods throughout southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Shipping over some lines to certain points in the South and East was also cut off, but the situation is now more encouraging and it is expected that within a few days shipments to nearly all points will be resumed. The damage to greenhouses in the West, especially in the vicinity of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Omaha, Neb., has brought a little trade to this market, due most likely to the fact that the supply there since the storm is far too short. Stock of all kinds is plentiful and can be had in large lots at very reasonable prices. American Beauty roses are now in better supply and can be had at much lower prices. Killarney and White Killarney are arriving in very large quantities and can be had in large lots at bargain prices. Mrs. Aaron Ward roses are also over-plentiful, but Sunburst seems to be holding its own. Richmond roses are arriving in large quantities also, in fact there is hardly any rose that the supply is what may be termed short. Carnations are seen in large quantities everywhere with a large number of splits still arriving. There are plenty of sweet peas to be had, but they are moving well at cheap prices. The quality in some instances is fine and the stock is worth double the price they are sold for. Lily of the valley is in good supply. Tulips are plentiful, orchids are moving fairly well, gardenias are very scarce and violets, well, it is the same old story: Plenty of stock with no demand. They have been hard to move all season and were nearly a "fizzle" as far as this market is concerned. Lilies are in good supply, mignonette is to be had and greens with one or two exceptions are plentiful. Asparagus strings are scarce and wild smilax is being sold as high as $7.00 a case.

NOTES.

Frank Williams, a well-known retail florist of this city, died Monday noon, March 31, at the Kenilworth sanitarium. Mr. Williams was 45 years of age and was engaged in the florist business here for the past 25 years, having at one time a store in the Masonic Temple. He was also one of the proprietors of the Alpha Floral Co.'s store in South Wabash avenue, but sold out about a year ago, since which time he had devoted his time entirely to his other store, known as the Atlas Floral Co., 32 East Randolph street. He recently opened another store in the basement of the new building on the corner of Monroe street and Wabash avenue, which is conducted under the name of the Williams Floral Shop. Mr. Williams had been ill for a long time and had been confined to a sanitarium for the last eight months, during which time his health had failed rapidly. The funeral will be held next Thursday, April 3, at 10 a. m., at the Greek Orthodox church, and interment will be at Oakwood cemetery. His wife survives him. She will continue the business under her own management.

Samuel Freund of the A. A. Arnold Co., reports that since the advent of this concern in the folding flower box business there has been an ever increasing demand for their goods, which will soon necessitate the enlarging of their present plant. Mr. Freund left Chicago for a month's business trip expecting to call on the trade throughout the West, where he will show some very fine grades of moisture-proof stock in all sizes and colors.

John P. Sinner of Sinner Bros. is rapidly recovering from his recent operation, and is now busy looking after the exceptionally good stock of roses and carnations which is being grown under the able supervision of John Nierescher, formerly with the Lamborn Floral Co. of Alliance, O.

Herman Treenint, formerly with Geo. Weiland, is now foreman of the Park Manor Greenhouse, where he reports a good stock of pot-grown 7-inch and 8-inch Boston ferns.

L. Hoeckner, of the Peter Reinberg store force, left this week on a business trip to Memphis, Tenn., New Orleans, La., and some of the principal cities in Texas.

Joseph L. Raske will contribute the entire proceeds of his business April 3 to the United Charities, giving the use of his store, sales force, etc.

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, on Thursday, April 10.

Philip L. McKee, with the John C. Moninger Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred on March 30.

Fred. Lautenschlager left this week for New York to stage Kroeschell Bros. Co.'s boiler exhibit at the National Flower Show.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. had about 50 boxes of glass broken during the recent storm.

Mrs. Peter Olsem, of Joliet, is recovering from a successful operation for appendicitis.

Roy Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, Ia., was in the city on business this week.

Cook County Florists' Association.

The regular meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association was held at the Tavern, West Washington street, March 27. President Kohlbrand in the chair. The principal business of the meeting was the installation of officers who were ushered into office in a body owing to the pressure of other business. Treasurer Zech read his report and announced that $253 had been placed in the savings bank, leaving a balance of $126 for general expenses. The secretary, A. T. Pyfer, was found to be $13.00 over in his accounts, which was generously returned to him by a unanimous vote of the club. There was some talk about changing the meeting place from the present quarters to the Grand Pacific Hotel, but no definite action was taken.

After he read his inaugural address, which was a glowing tribute to the club, President Kohlbrand announced his committees as follows:

Good of the club committee—Walter Scott, chairman; E. C. Amling, H. N. Bruns, A. Henderson and W. J. Keimel.

Publicity was discussed for some time and A. Henderson was selected to represent the club at a meeting of the National Publicity Committee on April 7, to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York. A subscription was started for the relief of the

The week after Easter began with a heavy storm of snow and sleet but the weather has warmed up and we are having a more spring-like temperature. The market has been pretty well crowded all week in all lines, the inclement weather helping to pile up stock. Violets are nearly gone and good ones bring a little better price. Thousands of sweet peas are in and prices on these are lower except for the very fancy grades, which bring a good price. Carnations are sold from 1 cent to 3 cents each. #### Milwaukee.

BUSINESS KEEPS UP.

Considering that usually the week following a holiday is a dull one, local florists are well pleased with the week just passed. Both the wholesaler and retailer were kept very busy for the entire week. Carnations moved well bringing fair prices, but a drop is much in evidence for the coming week. There are plenty of roses of a fine quality. Lily of the valley is moving well and there is enough to supply the demand. The single violets are practically a thing of the past but the double ones are coming in as usual and find ready sale. There are plenty of sweet peas of a fine grade. Easter lilies are not moving very readily and there are enough greens to fill all orders.

NOTES.

The match game arranged between the Chicago and Milwaukee florists took place at Milwaukee March 30 and was well attended. The Milwaukee boys gave their neighbors a better run than in previous years. The first game went to Chicago by 14 pins, then Milwaukee got busy and came back by a lead of 75 pins in the second, but the third session proved our downfall, as usual, with poor scores which spoiled the only chance Milwaukee had of winning a series from Chicago. Nevertheless, we are game losers. The second and third team from Chicago certainly went some, shooting far ahead of their opponents. The attendance was very good and all report a jolly time. There were a number of ladies present, the Chicago boys bringing some rooters with them that certainly helped to make things interesting. After bowling a light lunch was served and everybody left, saying it was a day well spent. The special car in which the Chicago boys arrived left at

R. Letiz had the misfortune of having his auto damaged by fire last week, but he expects to have it in working order shortly. He reports business as very good.

The opening of Lefly's large department store kept most of the local florists busy Tuesday and the demand for flowers was very noticeable.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports business good for the past week and the quality of stock fine, with enough to fill all orders.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. has a heavy cut of lilies on. This firm is also cutting some exceptionally fine roses.

BUSINESS TAKES SLUMP.

Business the past week took a decided slump, but considering the weather no more could be expected. Pink and White Killarney roses are arriving in large supply and stock is generally good. Aaron Ward roses are in good supply, but the demand for corsage bouquets is not very heavy, and violets are little in demand. Sweet peas are good stock and clean up daily. Bulbous stock, except lilies, is on the decline. Most growers do not want to see any more until next year. Easter and calla lilies are plentiful and large lots can be had at reduced prices. Carnations are not so plentiful and all grades clean up daily. Lily of the valley is still short of the demand, as are good orchids. Greens of all kinds are plentiful. Numerous shipments of violets and fancy and dagger ferns, which the express companies could not deliver to points in the southern part of the state, were delivered to local wholesale houses here for disposal. These shipments came mostly from New York and Massachusetts. Shipping facilities were badly hampered by the floods, and many shipments were delayed or did not get away at all, as only one or two roads could get out of the city limits owing to the flood. Southern smilax orders can not be filled in full.

NOTES.

Saywell Bros. have opened a retail flower store at the corner of East One Hundred and Eleventh street and Superior avenue. They have greenhouses on Lake View road, and until recently confined themselves chiefly to vegetables, growing a few outdoor flowers and some potted plants.

Miss Jane Eadie of the Jas. Eadie Co., 927 Euclid avenue, died Saturday evening, March 29, at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Salter, 1511 East One Hundred and Eighth street. Services were held at Wade Memorial church, Tuesday, April 1, at 3 p. m.

Wholesale Florist. ST. LOUIS, MO.

Philadelphia,
BUSINESS QUIET.

The general business of the flower stores has been quiet. With the exception of wedding decorations there is not much doing. The stock of flowers is more than ample and prices have sagged considerably. The feature of the market is the American Beauty rose, which is now coming in in large quantities, which condition the growers say will prevail for the next month. The best stock is offered for $25 a hundred and window displays are seen in several of the stores which are pushing this variety before the new price, which is so far below that of the season, becomes common. All other varieties are to be had in quantity and of fine quality. Killarney roses are seen with three to four-foot stems, and exceptionally fine blooms, the best so far this season. Carnations are in full supply and of very good quality. There are rather more than the market will take, so that the street men get theirs at much their own prices on Saturday. The business done by these people on Saturday last cut quite a figure in the trade. They are barred from the principal streets, but it is astonishing how they take advantage of every opportunity. The alteration of a building gives a chance and an arrangement is made with the contractor, who sets back a little and a full-fledged temporary station is at once established. On Twelfth street, from Market to Filbert, some ten or twelve stands which handle low-grade stock, the accumulation of the week, do a great business on Saturdays in favorable weather. The popular price for carnations is two dozen for a quarter and to one who only handles fresh stock it is surprising to see what truck people will carry away at these figures. Much of the stock handled by the men with regular stands is good and fresh and brings prices that compare favorably with those of the stores. Violets are about gone. There are a few offered but they are not satisfactory. Sweet peas are in good demand, as is snapdragon, both of which flowers are now at their best. Easter and calla lilies are very plentiful and prices rule low.

NOTES.

The clean-up by the growers of Easter stock was very satisfactory. W. K. Harris sold out almost to a plant the immense stock that was offered for Easter. It was the same at the Robert Craig Co. establishment. Everything salable, and the stock here was much the largest they had ever offered, was sold, and the houses are already half filled or more with spring bedding stock which will be ready for sale in another fortnight.

This city will be very well represented at the great New York show, as all those who usually exhibit at the conventions will be there with their choicest products. A general desire to see this display and lectures is heard on all sides and the attendance from this vicinity will equal that of any of the conventions.

The terrible disasters by storm and flood that have fallen on the florists in the central and western states has awakened the sympathy of the trade here, who have many of them contributed to the relief funds and stand ready to help in specific cases where the detailed reports show that such assistance is necessary and will be acceptable.

The M. Rice Co. has cleared its decks after their great Easter business and is getting ready for Memorial day. Porcelain flowered wreaths are a feature. Magnolia leaves are now sold in original case lots—much the best way to buy them, as the price is better and they keep until used.

American Beauty roses are a feature at the Leo. Niessen store, where an immense stock is now coming in daily. The quality is superb. Sweet peas and snapdragon are also much in evidence.

Edward Reid is featuring American Beauty roses. His stock is large and fine. Carnations and sweet peas are also headliners.

Berger Bros.' store offers roses and carnations in bargain lots. Sweet peas of highest grade are handled in quantity.

BUSINESS EXTREMELY POOR.

Gloom hovered over the wholesale district nearly all the past week. Business did not look very favorable on the Monday after Easter, but it was not expected that the bottom would fall out as it did by the middle of the week. Roses took an astounding drop and bulb stock and carnations were little better. Violets were also arriving—and that is about the best that can be said for them. The market is now flooded with yellow narcissi that have been shipped here from Richmond and Portsmouth, Va. It will be surprising if enough is realized on more than half of them to pay the expressage. A contributing feature to the bad business of the past week was the weather, which in the earlier days was unseasonably warm and at times sultry. Much stock arrived in poor condition and nothing would keep for any length of time. There was great slaughter in long stem American Beauty roses, prices going as low as $5.00 to $10.00 a 100. March 28 was decidedly colder and there was a better feeling, but stock continued very low and it looks as though a season of glut in the market has arrived. There was a slight improvement in the cut flower market on Saturday, March 29, but prices were very low.

Monday, March 31.—The market is glutted with stock and conditions could not be much worse. While we quote prices on good stock that sells, much is going at the buyer's own price and all that is being bought seems to make but slight inroads on the stock of the wholesalers. The weather has again turned warm and there is no relief for the market in sight.

NOTES.

The work of fitting up the new store of John S. Nicholas in the Grand Central Terminal is now well advanced, and he will soon take possession. After looking over this store we found that Mr. Nicholas had rather underrated than overrated its possibilities. Its expanse of plate glass fronting on Forty-second street is very large and there will be few stores in the city that can compete with it in opportunities for display.

Robert Clucas, son of Robert W. Clucas, the well known nurseryman of Sparkhill, N. Y., died March 26 of appendicitis. Misfortune has recently fallen heavily on Mr. Clucas. On March 17 his barn and all its contents, including horses and wagons, was destroyed by fire and the stableman who slept there was burned to death.

N. Christatos arranged a fine decoration for the Ladies' day reception at the National Democratic clubrooms March 27. Many white roses and other white flowers were used, the favors being orchids. The work of decorating was done by Charles Bird and Robert Christatos. The latter is a nephew of the proprietor of the store.

Mrs. Henry Gottlieb, mother of Myer Gottlieb, the well known retailer of Madison avenue and Fifty-eighth street, died March 23, aged 63 years. Mrs. Gottlieb was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends. She is survived by a husband, three sons and three daughters.

Visitors to the show will do well to be on the lookout for Reed & Keller's exhibit of florists' supplies. The always original Mr. Reed is believed to have had several new and very useful inventions up his sleeve in anticipation of this show.

At the several retail stores of Herman Warendorff on March 31, the day's receipts were turned over to Mayor Gaynor's fund for the relief of the Ohio flood sufferers.

Harry Philpot arrived here from England March 28 and will remain till after the Flower Show. On his ocean voyage he was accompanied by W. Wells, the well known English chrysanthemum expert.

Among the visitors of the past week was Thomas Roland of Nahant, Mass. Mr. Roland is deeply interested in the flower show and it is expected that his plant display will be a large feature.

The plant auction houses are very active. On March 28 the Elliott Auction Co. sold a great stock of dwarf, tree and climbing roses, rhododendrons and other plants and shrubs.

The Macniff Horticultural Co. held an auction on April 1 and will hold another April 4 to dispose of a large stock of boxwood, evergreens and roses.

Wm. C. Richards, treasurer of the New York Florists' Club, is assisting Secretary Young in preparing for the show.

USUAL AFTER-EASTER SLUMP.

With the usual clock-work regularity after a holiday the market went to pieces Monday. We had a fine Easter week and then an accumulation on the benches. Saturday the weather conditions were good and trade brightened and buying was more noticeable. American Beauty roses and everything else took a tumble. There is plenty of everything and the quality is good in all lines.

NOTES.

We were sorry to see reports that S. J. Reuter of Westerly, R. I., had had a paralytic shock. At present writing we have favorable reports as to his recovery. Mr. Reuter, as we have known him for many years, was a hard working, conscientious man, and built up his present large business by upright methods. We can ill afford to have such men as he drop out, and we sincerely hope Mr. Reuter will regain his health and enjoy many years of well-earned comfort.

We have had all kinds of weather the past week from 65 degrees one afternoon to 30 degrees at night, with thunder and lightning. A severe wind and rain storm hit this vicinity Thursday. While we have heard of no damage to greenhouse property the damage to manufacturing plants close to the rivers has been large, dams, bridges and roads in some places being washed away. Lawrence, Springfield and the adjoining towns are heavy sufferers.

The finest yellow Marguerites in the market come from N. A. Hudson, Natick. Mr. Hudson has been growing them for years, in fact that is his specialty and he tells us that the plants never have had any natural fertilizer. Commercial fertilizer is the only thing used, and by the looks of his plants and flowers he certainly has had wonderful success.

Down in South Natick, beside John Barr and the millionaires, Chamberlain & Gage have located their gladioli farm. Merton Gage is well known to the trade, and especially in the Gladioli Society, of which he is secretary. With his past experience we have no doubt of his future success in his present location.

The best snapdragon we have seen is from Jas. Wheeler, Natick; good flowers and stems four feet long.

Penn, the Florist, gave a banquet to his employees one night last week.

MAC.

AUBURN, IND.—The greenhouses of Ten Eyck & Son were damaged in the recent big wind storm. Glass on one house was badly broken up and the stack was damaged.

Baltimore.

BUSINESS BRISK.

The florists' windows on Charles street were masses of spring flowers for Easter as were the markets and the streets leading to the markets. Pots of hyacinths, lilies, azaleas, violets, etc., and the street men with their baskets of cut roses, violets and carnation, etc., made a charming picture. The early Easter made the out-of-door stock impossible. March has been cold and some of the florists who expected their crops to be on time were disappointed, the bulk being just a week later. Yet, there were fine roses, if not so plentiful, on the market and violets and carnations galore. Business seemed to be brisk.

NOTES.

John Cook of Catonsville, the rose specialist, who spent the winter at Miami, Fla., has returned. Mr. Cook has seven new roses growing which he will enter in competition with the floriculturists and horticulturists of this country and Europe for a prize of $1,000 to be offered by the city of San Diego, Calif., and also a valuable silver cup to be offered in the Panama-Pacific Exposition rose contest in 1915. Mr. Cook is well known as a seedling rose producer. Some of the well known roses he has produced are Radiance, My Maryland, Admiral Schley, Baltimore, Helen Gould, and a number of others which have won great admiration and are still popular.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' Club will be held Monday, March 24, at the club room. The club held its annual banquet March 10.

I. H. Moss has fully recovered from an attack of neuritis and was very busy with the Easter trade.

E. W. and L. C. Stevenson have completed and are living in their new cottages at Aigbarth Park.

A number of local florists expect to go to New York for the International Flower Show, April 5.

Michael Hannigan of Pikesville is shipping some very fine roses to the Florists' Exchange.

Boyd Merritt is preparing to increase his range of glass this spring. B.

Easter Trade in Brooklyn.

At Robert G. Wilson's, Fulton street and Green avenue, it was stated that they had had a great Easter. It is understood that Mr. Wilson will sell flowers in the Grand Central Palace during the flower show.

John Mangan, formerly well known in the wholesale trade of New York as an employe of Frank Millang, now has a good retail store at 413 Yates avenue. He had an exceptionally good Easter trade.

M. Grotewahl, who has a nice store and conservatory on Reid avenue, reports that it was the best Easter trade he ever had and that he was completely sold out.

Mrs. John S. Zscharna, who since the death of her husband has continued the business at 417 Nostrand avenue, was well pleased with the Easter business.

The numerous Brooklyn, N. Y., retailers, so far as heard from, are well satisfied with Easter business. The plant trade was particularly good.

Fred Muchmore, 1164 Fulton street, reports excellent business and everything sold. His stock of plants was very fine.

James Mallon's Sons had a fine business at both their Borough Hall and Smith street stores. A. F. F.

Jersey City.

May F. Kendall, who was with E. Bonnot for seventeen years, has now a nice store of her own at 532 Jersey avenue and is doing a good business.

John F. Madden, who has a very fine retail store at 768 Berger avenue, is very busy and reports having had an excellent Easter business.

Chas. Balling, who has a neat range at 884 Montgomery street and makes a specialty of forcing bulbs, says it has been a poor season.

Since the death of John Pearson his business has been continued by his family and seems prosperous.

Daniel Cole, once a well known retail florist of this city, is no longer in the cut flower trade. A. F. F.

Montreal.

EVERYTHING SELLS OUT.

Judging by reports from the various stores there appears to be no increase in the Easter trade this year over last season, and that is by no means unfavorable for everything was sold out on both occasions. Probably the receipts will be larger than ever. Prices were not higher but the stock was of better quality and naturally more expensive. Plants again were in favor over cut flowers. This even applies to lilies. As long as a lily could be had in a pot it was bought up in preference to the cut flower of which some were seen on Sunday. Roses in pots were very good and sold from one dollar up to five dollars. Some of the very large azaleas were hard to sell while the ordinary sizes sold without trouble. Made-up baskets sold well, except the very large ones. There seemed to be an absence of the best customers. At least everybody was satisfied with something next to the best. However, the quality of the stock was excellent.

NOTES.

W. Cotter has arranged to take a delegation of Montreal florists to the Third International Flower Show in New York next Saturday and hopes to return the following Wednesday. E. J. Hayward, president of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club, has been on the sick list but is getting better and hopes to go to New York with the rest. James McKenna will join the party to New York, but will sail from there to Europe. G. A. Robinson will also be there in the capacity of a judge.

P. McKenna & Son had an enormous stock of all kinds of plants. Their hydrangeas were the best ever seen here. They were mostly of the newer varieties and made a great hit.

Wilshire Bros. had a splendid lot of plants, especially of the bulbous sorts. A. C. Wilshire is a specialist in this line.

S. S. Bain was busy until the last moment, but he always sells out and finishes up before closing.

Maurice Wolf did a large business. He was overstocked with cut lilies, however.

Miss Cairns is well satisfied with her Easter trade. She had a fine line of lilies Hall & Robinson's lilies were superb, as were their roses.

Harris & Hopton had an immense stock in splendid shape.

Campbell's cut flowers were very fine. L.

June 24-26, 1913.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—H. W. Buckbee and wife returned this week from a winter vacation in California.

J. J. VAN WAVEREN of L. Van Waveren & Co., Hillegom, Holland, is again calling on his American customers and was in Chicago, April 1.

* VISITED CHICAGO: Harold Beale and F. A. Gardiner, of James Carter & Co., London, Eng., enroute to the Pacific Coast; Linnaeus Allen, Floral Park, N. Y.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A certificate of business conducted under an assumed name has been filed by J. F. French, A. C. Aspinwall and C. J. Hall of the Northern Seed Co.

CHICAGO onion set prices remain about the same or a trifle easier except that commission dealers have had their outgoing orders blocked by flood troubles along railroad lines. Warm weather keeps the picking gangs busy in the storage houses.

THE French bulb crop outlook remains about the same. Continued drought to March 20 made prospects poor and caused the Growers' syndicate to postpone their meeting for fixing prices to May 4. Only irrigated fields are doing well and these produce but a small part of the crop.

A NUMBER of careful seed dealers have found new crop western peas frequently of unsatisfactory vitality for reasons which they have not as yet been able to decide on. It has been suggested that the drying of the grain by the hot winds while still green, drying same in two to three days when under normal conditions they should take two weeks or more to dry, is having some effect on the vitality of the seed.

Illinois Grower Wants Federal Law.

One firm of seed corn dealers, G. D. Sutton Co., Mason County, Ill., tell their customers they have found too much fraud in the seed business—"Too much seed sold by unscrupulous seedsmen," they say, but they add that they are honest. Read how they knock the seedsmen as a class. They do not say there are any seedsmen afraid of government inspection, but they say "The seedman who is afraid of such inspection should be compelled to get out of business." They seem to be very desirous of having their industry branded as "fraudulent" by Federal law.

FROM G. D. SUTTON CO. CATALOGUE.

"We favor a federal law placing all seed firms under Government inspection. There is too much fraud in the seed business. Seeds should be sold true to name and of germinating powers of 90 per cent or better.

"Too much seed is sold by unscrupulous seedsmen that has no merit. Poor in quality and low in germination. The seedsmen who is afraid to have a Government official inspect his stock and investigate his methods should be compelled to get out of business.

"The seed corn men who get out big catalogs, making all kinds of promises and then fill their orders with any old corn, are on a par with the fellows whom Uncle Sam has been sending to the pen for using the mails to defraud.

"We fill our houses early in the fall with the very best of seed. We dry it, test it, and when it is all sold, we are through for that season, and return the money to our farmer friends who send us orders after we are sold out.

"Many of the seed corn men who get out the biggest catalogs and make the biggest promises, and sometimes steal our pictures of corn, do not do this. They put up a little corn in the fall, depend on buying their stock from farmers' cribs or the elevators, and are never out of (?) seed corn as long as they get an order to fill, and never return any money if they get their fingers on it.

"These are the fellows who ought to be driven out of the seed corn business by Government inspection."

Breck's Club.

BANQUET AND SMOKE TALK.

Breck's Club of Salesmen connected with Joseph Breck & Sons' Corporation, Boston, Mass., held its bi-monthly meeting and dinner at the Quincy House, Saturday evening, March 29, 35 members being present. Robert Montgomery presided. This is the third year of existence of the club and the ninety-first anniversary of the establishment of the corporation, which started business in a small way in part of its present location in 1822. The business has always been conducted by members of the Breck family, the fourth generation starting in at the foot of the ladder within the past two years. Charles H. Breck, president of the corporation, was present and extended the felicitations of the firm with best wishes for the continued success of the club. A. E. Robinson, vice-president and general manager of the Breck-Robinson Nurseries at Lexington, gave an interesting lecture on "Modern Nursery Methods," illustrated by many fine views. Mr. Robinson extended an invitation to the members to visit the nurseries about the middle of April, which was gratefully accepted. Wm. Downs, superintendent of the E. S. Webster estate at Chestnut Hill, well and favorably known by the gardening fraternity and for his many fine exhibits at the shows of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, gave a talk on "Care of Greenhouses," which was well received. The way he treated his subject showed an intimate knowledge of his work. Thos. J. Grey, formerly of the T. J. Grey Co., who lately joined the Breck sales force, was introduced and talked most interestingly of many pleasant relationships enjoyed in the past with members of the concern and older employes. Breck's orchestra, John Russell, leader, assisted by the glee club, gave excellent entertainment. The full orchestra of 14 pieces is to appear before the Boston Florists' Club at an early date.

New York Seed Trade Notes.

The following New York seedsmen have taken space at the Third International Flower Show: W. E. Marshall & Co.; Peter Henderson & Co.; J. M. Thorburn & Co.; Burnett Bros.; A. T. Boddington.

At the store of W. E. Marshall & Co., on March 31, it was said that there was a good general demand for spring seeds and that it had been somewhat hastened by the warm weather.

Counter trade was very brisk at Vaughan's Seed Store during the past week. A. F. F.

This organization will co-operate with the federal and state governments for the advancement of market gardening. proper. Here a lover of bulbous flowers can spend several hours studying the different plants. In one group may be seen six narcissi shown for the first time in America. The best at the present time is Duke of Bedford, one of the largest yellow. Next comes Queen of Spain, with Blazing Star a close second. Here can also be seen fine flowers of Argent, Apricot and Plenipo. All of these are new in this country.

At the far end one finds a bank of about 1,000 plants of narcissi Victory and Emperor. In the middle aisle you find hyacinths of every hue. King of the Blues still holds its place as to color. Ida is one of the best yellow and La Victoire shows up well. In this display over 1,000 bulbs were used, all having come direct from Holland. Flowering tulips have the largest space in the conservatory, covering nearly one-third of the entire space for bulbous plants. Some of the best flowers at the present time are those of Pink Beauty, which are exceptionally fine. One can find fifty plants each of La Remarquable and Gloria Solus, which would be hard to beat. Last but not least is the black tulip Nigro, the blackest of all tulips. This novelty alone would repay one for the time spent in a visit to the garden. As this display will only last for a short time at its best, let us hope that any one that can possibly arrange to give the garden a visit will do so in the near future. W. S. W.

Color a light salmon pink — a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.

Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster.

The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.
Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

THE Secretary of Agriculture has issued a notice of quarantine as a result of discovery of two injurious scale insects, the Parlata scale and the Phoenicococcus scale, affecting date palms. Riverside and Imperial Counties in California; Yuma, Maricopa and Pinal Counties in Arizona, and Webb County in Texas are all affected by the quarantine.

Seedless Grape Fruit Next.

Oroville, Calif., February 14.—James H. Gegett, an orange grower of Oroville, backed by a syndicate, has gained control of two trees which bear navel grape fruit, and will make an effort to make the new citrus product commercially popular. The fruit is a cross between a navel orange and a grape fruit. Steps will be taken to propagate the fruit on a large scale and steel cages will be built around the trees to prevent buds from being stolen.—Newspaper Item.

Evergreen Cover Shrubs.

In looking over the catalogues of our leading nurseries in search of some evergreen cover plants, I was more than ever impressed with our poverty in this direction. In tall growing evergreens we are fairly well supplied, but the really low things may be counted on the fingers of one hand. Among the conifers we find juniper and taxus. The junipers give us nana, prostrata and tamariscifolia. In taxus we really have but one that answers the purpose, namely, Canadensis. In broad leaved evergreens we occasionally find Daphne cneorum listed, and to my mind this is the gem of the collection. It is perfectly hardy here at the eastern end of the Great Lakes, and in addition to its dense mat of foliage it gives us in the spring a wealth of fragrant pink flowers.

With us it forms a dense mat from a foot to a foot and a half high, and a single plant will cover a circle a yard in diameter in the course of a few years. It needs no pruning, is always neat and attractive, and when in flower it is a glory. It is a lover of deep sandy soils and when planted in such, two feet apart, it soon covers the ground completely. Arctostaphyl. Uva-Ursi is occasionally seen in the lists, and it makes a most excellent close cover to use on gravelly and rocky slopes, where little else will thrive. Euonymus radicans and its varieties are well known and most useful, either as a ground cover or as a covering for low walls.

A favorite with us is an old plant that I do not remember to have seen in American catalogues, but which is used frequently in Europe as a low border plant; it is Teucrium chamaedrys. It grows about a foot high, has neat shining evergreen foliage and in late summer it is covered with spikes of bright purplish flowers. It seems perfectly hardy, stands shearing well, and forms a great addition to our borders. It is easily propagated and makes a fine plant in a short time. Farther south this list could be considerably extended, and such plants as Cotoneaster horizontalis and other fine low shrubs will be appreciated. C.

Our Three Kinds of Construction

Flat Iron Frame

FOR houses up to certain width limits this construction has many strong advocates.

It has the same side posts and eave plate used in our regular All Iron Frame.

The purlins are all angle iron with each bar screwed to them. The columns are pipe.

The gables are strongly reinforced with posts and angle irons. For the money it's an exceptional value and a logical step toward the All Iron Frame which most growers eventually build.

All Iron Frame

SOME growers sometime argue that this construction costs too much. Over and over again, we have proven that for houses from 40 feet and up; and in lengths of over 100; it costs but surprisingly little more than the Half Iron Frame.

It's enough sight easier to erect, and what you pay extra in cost of materials, you practically make up in decreased erection expense.

Everyone admits it's the most enduring.

Cantilever

THIS is the newest thing in the field today.

The idea upon which it is based, however, is not new.

It's as old as iron bridge building. Although there are fewer rafters, columns and purlins used, the framework itself is lighter in result than flat rafter constructions. The specially constructed rafters are 12 feet instead of 8 feet apart. The glass is 20 inches instead of 16.

Full particulars are given in our new circular. Send for it. Or better yet, let's talk it over together.

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Portland, Ore.

The unseasonable weather Easter week had much to do with the keeping down of the Easter sales, according to the report of Clarke Bros., but by Sunday it was apparent that there would be some increase in the amount of business done compared with that of last year. There was an abundance of pot plants of all kinds. Easter lilies were left over, but cut flowers cleaned out. Everyday prices ruled, no advance being maintained. Well grown rambler and baby rambler roses found ready buyers. Practically every grower succeeded in getting his lilies in and many were shipped to florists in the smaller cities of Oregon and Washington.

The Amateur Gardener.

Doris wants a garden, now that spring is almost here.
And she will doubtless get it—for Doris is a dear—
A little bed, six feet by eight, with roses and sweetpeas.
She says she's sure that I can work a plot like that with ease.
And I agree, because I find
To argue doesn't change her mind.
With pad and pencil she has planned the little garden out.
Just where the mignonette will go and where the pansies sprout,
What sort of border must we have, and that geraniums
Will hold their bloom until it's time to pick chrysanthemums.
It's fun for Doris * * * As for me
I've naught to do but just agree.
O'er catalogues we pour each night, selecting what we feel
Will grow the best—and what the neighbor's children will not steal—
And every morning we go out into the old back yard
To choose a spot where digging won't be so awful hard;
For Doris says, bless her dear heart!
She knows that I will do my part.

But there's a thought that worries me through all these preparations,
For raising blooms and saving them from youthful depredations;
I'd like to ask her if I may—and yet I do not dare—
Plant something that is good to eat in our garden fair,
Will she permit me one small spot
To raise onions! I fear not.
—Cincinnati Times-Star.

THIRD NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

New York, April 5-12.

Robert Craig's Survey.

The show as a whole is the finest ever held in this country. The Boston show of two years ago excelled in the rose garden arrangement by Thomas Roland and specimen ramblers from M. H. Walsh, but in the quantity and quality of the flowering and foliage plants, this exhibition is away ahead. Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., had the finest exhibit in Boston, and has again excelled all in his large group of acacias, bougainvilleas and heaths, every plant perfect and the arrangement of the group superb. Mr. Roland is an artist as well as one of our cleverest growers. He is the bright particular star of both big exhibitions.

There is a great display of cut blooms of carnations, with several promising novelties, and the best display of cut roses ever shown in this country. I think Killarney Brilliant the finest of the novelties. Good judges from across the sea declare the rose exhibit has never been equalled in Europe, so far as cut flowers are concerned.

Among the notable things shown are Pandanus Beauty of Lindenhurst, which took the two-hundred-dollar prize for the best new foliage plant. An improved variety of Dracaena Godseffiana, called Mme. Pankok, should be valuable commercially. The French Hydrangeas Radiant and Mme. Mollere loom up large from the commercial point of view. Spirea Peach Blossom, dwarf, and S. Geyser, dwarf white, look particularly promising. S. Philadelphia, a deep bright pink also looked good.

Harry Papworth's New Orleans strain of Easter lilies, said to be a cross between Lilium longiflorum and L. harrissi, is very healthy and floriferous, attracting great attention from the lily growers. Farquhar's Lilium myriophyllum is graceful, substantial and valuable.

The attendance is steadily increasing day by day and the show is likely to prove a financial success, in which the large amount received from the trade exhibitors figures a big factor. We can all see now that two years hence with the additional experience gained at this show, the next one can be made still better.

Kift's Narrative.

The Third International Flower Show of the Society of American Florists in co-operation with the International Exposition Co., to which the florists of the country have been looking forward for the past six months, opened in the new Grand Central Palace, New York, Saturday, April 5, promptly at 6 p. m. For such a large collection of exhibits, many of them coming long distances, it was remarkable how little delay there was. There was a little confusion near the finish, but all was soon straightened out and the judges were soon at work and the prizes awarded before the time set for the opening.

It is unquestionably a great show both in the quantity and quality as well as the variety of the exhibits. As compared with the last exhibition in Boston the display is without doubt larger, but it is lacking in some of the decorative effects of the Boston show. The rose garden of Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass., and the great specimen roses of M. H. Walsh, Woods Hole, Mass., both of which added much in their arrangement to the beauty of the Boston show, as well as the picturesqueness of the Dutch garden of the R. & J. Farquhar Co., Boston, Mass., are missing. Some of the displays at this exhibition have the quality but appear to be crowded into too small a space. This is particularly true of some of the rose exhibits and also the lilies and some of the bulbous stock entries, the fine points of which could not be examined as closely as one would have desired.

The staircase at the main entrance was decorated with large arecas, pyramid and standard-shaped bay trees, all very large and handsome plants. When the main floor was reached a beautiful vista opened to the view. In the immediate foreground were spread out as in beds on either side of the main aisle tulips, hyacinths and daffodils. These were in competition, but placed so close together that they had the effect of outside planting. On the right, immediately behind them, rose tall longiflorum lilies in pots in groups of one hundred. There were some five or more entries, which made a great show, but should have had more room properly to display them. At this point on either side of the main aisle, was seen a pyramid of hydrangeas surmounted by a large Scotti fern. One of the hydrangeas was the pink General de Vilraye and the other the blue Bouquet Rose. These were much admired. They were placed by Louis Dupuy, Whitestone, N. Y., not for competition.

Several fine plants of Dr. Van Fleet roses in competition for the Peter Henderson prize were seen further along on the right in the grand court, which rose at this point. Beds of rhododendrons flanked either side. A large group of Cineraria stellata with their masses of color came next, adjoining which were groups of palms at the bases of the large columns arranged for decorative effect. Magnificent groups on both sides of the main aisle by H. C. Steinhoff, West Hoboken, N. J., and Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y., made a very fine showing. They were in competition for the $200 prize and each covered a space of 300 square feet. Another bank of Cineraria stellata occupied a corner of the cross aisle, while the orchestra was placed on the opposite side.

The orchid section was to be seen to the right of the aisle, while on the left was seen two competing groups of rambler roses. The orchid display was superb, although it seemed too crowded, the collections of the Julius Roehrs Co., Lager & Hurrel, W. A. Manda and the John A. Roebing's Sons Co. being so close together that they could be seen only from the outside. The various exhibits were each perfect. The Roehrs orchids were arranged on a round staging raised to a pyramid in the center. The display contained 150 varieties. Dendrobium thyrsoflorum and nobile in fine spikes of bloom were prominent in all the collections. The Roebing entry was raised in the center on arches covered with bark, from which some of the specimens were suspended. Beautiful cypripediums were a feature of this collection. The tables across the aisles in this section were also given over to orchids—entries of smaller collections and for specimen plants, of which there were quite a number.

From England there came plants of Odontoglossum Harryanum and crispum, plants with a magnificent spike of bloom, brown ground, mottled and edged with white. Another odontoglossum was Queen of Galton. There were also O. triumphans and O. pulchellum, a large flower, brown mottled with yellow and golden tips. Odon-tioda Bradshawia, Cochlioda Noetzliana and Odontoglossum crispum, variety Mary Coleman. These three varieties had just been received from Sir Jeremiah Coleman of Galton Park, England. The orchid display was probably the greatest feature of the show.

Across the western end of the building Peter Henderson & Co. had arranged a garden effect before a Dutch cottage, over the door of which was inscribed "From Holland to America." Quantities of bulbs were used in this garden whose brilliant coloring made a fine effect. Evergreen trees were used as a background. Turning east into the next aisle after the orchids, Louis Dupuy's collection of ericas attracted attention. Sixteen varieties well covered with flowers in one group, and across the aisle another of twelve

Wm. Duckham.
Manager National Flower Show,
New York, April 5-12.

plants of Acacia cordata were entries to be proud of. Another group of Cineraria stellata added color, while the other side of the Steinhoff's bank of roses was seen. Another great feature of the show came into view in the exhibit of Thos. Roland, whose acacias, heather, bougainvilleas and metrosideros were arranged in a large grouping extending from this aisle to the next and from the front down a distance of sixty feet or more. It was quite the equal of his display at Boston, although there was not quite the same room to see it. We think it is safe to say that such magnificently flowered plants can be seen nowhere else in this country. His pubescens and longifolia varieties were superb, and there were many others equally meritorious. The large plants of bougainvilleas were exceptionally well flowered and of splendid color. A group of ericas, the largest plants in the hall, were a perfect cloud of blooms. All these, added to many plants of metrosideros full of their showy red brushes or plumes, and his great collection of cyclamen, the very acme of perfection, made this display alone worth a visit to New York. One cannot help being inspired by a study of what this one master of his profession has accomplished. All hats off to Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass.

At the head of this south aisle was a large group of astilbe from white to pink, which was very attractive. Trained ivy was the feature of the adjoining display. It was a Bobbink & Atkins exhibit, showing what could be done with ivy when trained over wire forms of dog, stag, bird, urn, chair, basket, fountain and other like garden ornaments. It attracted considerable attention. H. F. Michell's commercial exhibit adjoining, featured the new geranium Helen Michell, a fine new scarlet of great promise. Evergreens and hardy out-door stock were also in evidence.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., staged a splendid lot of young stock of their specialties, being strong in crotons, ferns, pandanus and other foliage plants. Cyclamen and flowering begonias were also to be seen. F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., showed different form of his Nephrolepis elegantissima, Elegantissima compacta and other sorts. There were also vases of the new dark red carnation Princess Dagmar, raised by M. A. Patten of Tewksbury, Mass., Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., made a fine showing of his new pink rose Mrs. Shawyer in the next space. The carnation Northport and some small chrysanthemums in flower were other novelties. The publications Out-Door World and Recreation made large exhibits of their papers in the next space. Across the aisle were plants of schizanthus, flowered as they had never been done before. So said many good plantmen who saw them. They made a grand showing and the judges had their work cut out to determine which were the best. How ferns grow, a small educational exhibit, was staged by J. F. Nuss of Hartford, Conn. This was very interesting, showing ferns from seed pan to well-established plants. Splendidly flowered gloxinias filled a large table and added variety with their gorgeous coloring. Anton C. Zvolanek staged some twenty-five vases of his new Spencer winter-flowering sweet peas, superb flowers which Mr. Zvolanek says will flower at any time. They are a great improvement over existing sorts of the old types. None of the varieties are as yet named, but he has permission to name the best after President and Mrs. Wilson. Several of the sets are quite double, but he does not think that this adds to their beauty.

To the right of the aisle were seen the palms and other foliage plants in competition for single specimen and collections of three and six, with perfection showing in every detail. Max Schling's exhibit on the left was especially attractive to the visitors, showing made-up baskets of foliage and flowering plants, also baskets of cut flowers and dainty corsage bouquets. The Julius Roehrs Co.'s entry of florists' stock, including all the popular plants and specimen boxwood, occupied the remaining space on this aisle. Going east on the other side of the building, the groups of palms and monumental plants and the rose plant exhibits were seen from the other side. Collections of amaryllis hybrids were seen on the right, several exhibits extending into the cross aisle. Never has there been seen such a display of these gorgeous flowers before in this country. Azaleas and cyclamen plants with great profusion of blooms were in front of a fine group of palms. Rhododendrons and more cyclamen bordered the aisle, near the end of which Louis Dupuy had arranged a pyramid of white hydrangeas and pink spiraeas, surmounted by a choice fern. The hydrangea heads were immense, grown one to a plant. The variety Madame Molliere is destined to be the leading white for a time at least. Two large groups of lilac plants on either side of a bed of the newer hydrangeas, all splendidly flowered, filled the section at the cross aisle.

In the corner and extending along the extreme north aisle was the exhibit of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. Great banks of Farleyense ferns were interspersed with orchids, hydrangeas and rambler roses. A table of Farleyense ferns in the center contained a vase of Milady roses, fine blooms, and in front another vase of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses. This display occupied 600 square feet and was very effective. R. and J. Farquhar & Co.'s new lily myrophyllum, a truly beautiful flower, was next seen, together with a number of varieties of ampelopsis and hardy shrubs, new plants recently collected in China and Japan. Another fine exhibit of cyclamen, in fact several entries, bordered this aisle, each so fine that the judging would be no easy task. R. G. Wilson of Brooklyn displayed filled ferneries and a collection of plants suitable for house decoration. W. A. Manda's collection of evergreens was across the aisle from some magnificent white azaleas which caught the eye of every visitor. These were from the Newbold estate of Philadelphia and carried perfectly. Across the east end, next to the wall, were the entries for evergreens and flowering shrubs. Many handsome specimens were seen here. Miniature landscape gardening effects occupying 300 square feet were seen in several entries, W. A. Manda, Theodore Roehrs and Frank Josifko making interesting exhibits.

The second floor and mezzanine gallery contained many fine exhibits. After passing some fine specimens of that beautiful palm, Phoenix Roebelinii, and turning to the left, the Knight & Struck table of heather and other hard wooded plants was seen. The ericas were very well flowered, as were a number of acacias. Ericas translucens, perspicua erecta, cupressina and E. ventricosa magnifica were features. A number of new Holland plants, all rare but very beautiful, added variety. Baeria rubioides, Aotus gracillimus and Herdenbergia monophylla were conspicuous. Boronia elatior and Acacia cordata, splendidly flowered, together with other like plants, made this a very interesting exhibit. Wm. Tricker of Arlington, N. J., made a display of water lilies and hardy plants which was much admired. Nymphaea daubeniana, which perpetuates itself from the leaf, was a novelty. Andromeda Japonica in full flower was a feature, as were Azalea Hynodigiri and other Japanese sorts. Groups of hydrangeas by Bobbink & Atkins, Louis Dupuy and F. H. Fusser and specimen plants of marguerites, schizanthus, mahernia chorizema and hincospermum followed here. A specimen of imantophyllum, very well flowered, was a feature. Adiantum farleyense gloriosum, a fine specimen, together with Cyrtomium Rochfordianum and a fine piece of Platynerium alcicome made an interesting group. Standard lilacs, large begonias, very full of bloom, and hybrid calceolarias were arranged next the gallery railing. Anthuriums, standard heliotropes, begonias Rex and Gloire de Lorraine were also in this section.

The cross aisle or gallery contained many fine entries. A magnificent Cibotium Schiedei fifteen feet in diameter from the C. B. Newbold estate was conspicuous. A group of very well flowered gardenias and beds of rhododendrons by Anton Schultheis and Bobbink & Atkins were features, as were groups of dracaenas by W. A. Manda and John Wanamaker (John Dodds, gardener). Beds of tulips, hyacinths, and amaryllis hybrids added color to the foliage plants in this section. A feature of the north gallery aisles were the hydrangeas. Exceptionally well-flowered specimens of the newer French varieties were seen bearing great heads of bloom of brilliant coloring. Exhibits of crotons, dracaenas and other foliage plants, together with a showy display of Primulas obovata and malacoides, were very interesting. The groups of crotons and dracaenas of the Robt. Craig Co. and the crotons of F. V. Burton (W. Cordes, gardener) and Wm. Duckham's bed of well-colored plants all showed up fine. In the extreme eastern cross aisle were staged ferns and palms—handsome specimens of pheonix and collections of larger ferns and specimen plants. Wm. Sim's pansies were about the only exhibit of note on the third floor, with the exception of a fine group of anthuriums by W. A. Manda.

The King Alfred daffodil exhibited by Warnaar & Co., Sassenheim, Holland, created a sensation. It is a clear yellow with the center a shade deeper, and of immense size—four inches in diameter. The variety is too valuable as yet for commercial purposes, but is certain to become a popular sort. A few roses were staged on Saturday. The variety Lady Alice Stanley, a large full flower with long stiff stems, attracted attention. It is an English variety, a clear pink and a trifle lighter inside the petals. It is thought by rose experts to be all right if it is prolific. Baskets of roses were staged on Saturday instead of Monday. There were several well arranged pieces. The winner was of Mrs. Ward and Lady Hillingdon roses in a plain willow basket with light handle, wrapped with narrow colored ribbon and with a large bow of same ribbon on the side. The other two were Lady Hillingdon and Richmond roses. One with Farleyense fern and the other with rose foliage. The bride's bouquet had four entries, three of roses alone and one with the addition of lily of the valley. There were several very pretty corsage bouquets, the winner being of Mrs. Ward roses.

The Max Schling exhibit of made-up plant and cut flower baskets contained many fine examples. A large one of yellow calla lilies with spotted foliage, Japanese maple and ferns with tradescantia edging and green and bronze ribbon finish, was very striking. Others with similar plants, added to which were choice heather and other blooming stock, which were very well done. A brown basket of ixias and gerberas and another of ixia and anthuriums were noticeable, as were others in combination with yellow roses and dendrobiums. Very pretty corsage bouquets of Sunset roses and pansies, others of the same roses and Dendrobium nobile were tastefully put together.

Mantel and Table Decorations.

The decorated mantels and table decorations which were exhibited on Monday were very beautiful and fine illustrations of up-to-date work in this line. S. A. Anderson of Buffalo, N. Y., arranged a beautiful piece of work with a wealth of Farleyense ferns. Heavy banks of this fern almost completely covered the mantel and was arranged with flowers at the base. An ivory vase filled with Sunburst roses stood high on one end, while the shelf was covered with Milady roses gracefully falling down at one end to the floor. The whole effect was very rich.

A. T. Bunyard of New York used dark pink Killarney and Sunburst roses with Farleyense fern on his mantel. It was very tastefully arranged, being high at the left hand corner with pink and yellow roses below, through which was placed Japanese maple branches. The shelf was done in the pink roses running off the opposite end in a very graceful spray. At the base were choice plants of Dracaena Godseffiana. Plants of Cibotium Schiedei were also effectively used. The whole effect was light, airy, tasteful and won the judges over to the first prize.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. has a very pretty arrangement of Perkins roses and Farleyense together with palms and two large floor vases of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

Max Schling, New York, arranged his mantel on a background of dark green velvet. The flowers used were Lady Hillingdon roses, which were placed in high and low vases either side the mirror and in graceful sprays along the shelf, falling gracefully down and giving the whole an attractive appearance. The color effect produced and the simplicity of the whole arrangement was very much admired. It received second prize.

There were four decorated tables and they were all beautiful, and as there were only two prizes the judges having to determine the winners, finally selected Alfred T. Bunyard's entry for the first. This had a tall slender silver vase filled with Hillingdon and Firefly roses with a base of the same for center with four small low vases of the same roses at equal distances around the center. Corsage and buttonhole bouquets of the same roses completed the decorations which were artistic to a degree.

S. A. Anderson's table was on much the same lines but the center was larger and heavier and while very beautiful seemed a trifle crowded. It was a handsome table.

The Boston Cut Flower Co.'s table had a center of Taft roses and Farleyense ferns and corsage bouquets of the same. The effect was simple and pretty.

Max Schling's table was very tastefully arranged with Mrs. Ward and Firefly roses. It was very dainty. A low vase in the center, held about 50 roses, with as many more on the cloth around the vase. Eight small vases holding six to eight each were placed in a circle equal distances apart. There were buttonhole and corsage bouquets on the plates. Rare foliage was the only green. The whole effect was very simple but so deftly arranged that it received second prize.

Cut Rose Exhibits.

As was expected, the display of cut roses was a record breaker both in the number and quality of the various varieties shown. They came from all directions, north, east, west and south. The Poehlmann Bros. Co. of Chicago staged a lot of splendid flowers, especially American Beauty, Richmond, White and Pink Killarney and Mrs. Taft.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., had a number of entries of splendid flowers. His vase of 50 Killarney Queen was a fine one. The flowers were borne on stems almost six feet in length, great canes surmounted by magnificent flowers.

The Waban Rose Conservatories' vase of Mrs. Chas. Russell was a great beauty spot of itself. Their vase of fifty, with its four to five foot stems, won first for best new rose not yet disseminated, and the same firm won first place with twenty-five for best pink forcing rose not yet disseminated.

These were close pushed by R. Scott & Son's new Killarney Brilliant, which made a great showing and seemed to strike the fancy of many of the growers.

There was great competition for the one hundred American Beauty roses, there being eight entries, and the judges had a great time in looking them over before giving first to Poehlmann Bros., who also took first prize for the fifty. Although coming so far their roses showed the best substance and color of any exhibited.

There was also a great struggle on the fifty Killarney, there were nine entries. The Waban Rose conservatories won out with the Jos. Heacock Co. second. The White Killarney prize was also well fought for. The Waban Rose Conservatories won this also with A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

The vases of Richmond were very good as were My Maryland. Mrs. Taft was very showy and much admired by the general public. The yellows also attracted attention. Lady Hillingdon was seen on long stiff stems well colored. There were five entries of Sunburst and four of Mrs. Ward. There were five entries for any other disseminated variety of pink. Beatrice and Mrs. Jardine, Golden Gate, Mrs. Wakefield, Christy Miller, Bridesmaid and Pink Moss were entered for this. F. H. Cramer won out with Beatrice. The J. L. Mock rose staged by Robert Simpson looks like a comer and was much admired.

A vase of Bon Silene grown on long stems had to be looked at several times before it was recognized, the long stems being so unusual. The vase of Milady of A. N. Pierson, Inc., which won first as the best new red, attracted considerable attention. The white rose Madison was also a feature. The same firm placed a fine basket made of their best roses in their exhibit. It was arranged by Hoffman of Boston, Mass., in his best style. The vase of Mrs. Wakefield and Christy Miller, staged by W. H. Elliot of Boston, Mass., with its huge double buds, was another noticeable variety. Taking it as a whole, the exhibit marked an epoch in the present movement of commercial rose growing.

The Afternoon Lectures.

There were many expressions of regret heard when a cable was received from R. J. Felton of London, the king's florist, saying that he could not be present owing to sickness in his family. Many of the craft had looked forward to these lectures with interest as showing the English style in the arrangement of cut flowers and their ideas of decorating. A lecture on color photography, as demonstrated by the use of color plates and illustrated with photographs taken from park views of Rochester and other cities, was given by Chas. J. Zoller of Rochester, N. Y. This was very interesting, many beautiful slides as photographed from nature being shown.

The evening lecture of E. H. Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum on China and Chinese plants was a great treat to his audience. It was well illustrated with lantern slides, all of which showed the various plants depicted in their native surroundings, some growing as single specimens and others collectively in great banks of bloom. To those who have not studied the origin of our best known trees and shrubs it was surprising how many of them came from Chinese territory. The climate of this far country Mr. Wilson says is much the same as the United States and nearly everything found growing there would do equally well here.

Chas. J. Zoller lectured again Monday afternoon, showing, by moving pictures, the opening of flowers. This was very interesting. The lecture of J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg, Pa., on the Arnold Arboretum, illustrated with lantern slides showing the wonders of this famous place, was full of inspiration, sending the visitor away with a longing for something of the kind to be added to the parks of his own neighborhood. #### Greenhouse Builders' Exhibits.

While the opening day and the previous one brought rush orders to all exhibitors, none were busier than the greenhouse builders, who were there in force with their model greenhouses completed and filled with flowering plants and adding a very natural and beautiful feature to the show. On the morning of April 5 Superintendent Duckham posted a notice to all exhibitors that their exhibits must be complete at the time set for the jurors to begin work. At that, carpenters, glaziers and painters redoubled their efforts and as a result everything was in good shape for the opening.

Exhibitors in the greenhouse line were the Lord & Burnham Co., New York; Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J.; Pierson U-Bar Co., New York; King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y.; Metropolitan Material Co., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Weathered Co., Jersey City, N. J. Other noteworthy exhibitors in the allied branches were the Johnstone Heating Co., New York, boilers and hot water circulators; Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, boilers; Quaker City Machine Works, Richmond, Ind., Evan's greenhouse fittings; American Auxiliary Heating Co., Boston, Mass., hot water circulator; J. P. Dahlborn, Weehawken Heights, N. J., "Hontsch" boilers; Revere Rubber Co., New York and Boston, greenhouse and garden hose; Reed & Keller, New York, florists' supplies; H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., florists' supplies; Russin & Hanfling, New York, florists' supplies; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J. This firm in addition to their fine exhibit of nursery stock, etc., had a separate space for plant tubs and boxes. J. M. Thorburn Co., New York, a large exhibit, well staged, including seeds, bulbs and flowering bulbs and plants. Peter Henderson & Co., New York, a lifelike representation of a Dutch cottage and garden. Very clever stage business was worked in with scenery representing the cottage and lay figures of children on the veranda. The foreground was a mass of blooming hyacinths, tulips and narcissus with a green lawn from their own lawn seed.

W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, had a handsome exhibit of all the requisites of a first-class seed store. Burnett Bros., New York, had a well arranged exhibit of seeds and bulbs. An exhibit that attracted much attention were the ericas or heather of Knight & Struck, Flushing, N. Y. The Michell Seed Store, Philadelphia, a very striking boxwood exhibit. The exhibit of combination baskets of plants by Max Schling, a New York retailer, was a good one. Schloss Bros., New York, ribbons; Roman J. Irwin, New York, small commercial plants; Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia, Pa., florists' supplies and wax flowers; S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., New York and Philadelphia, ribbons; M. Adler, New York, pearl flower pins; Ralph M. Ward, New York, lily bulbs; Bon-Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J., fertilizers; Means & Thatcher, Boston, Mass., greenhouse paints; P. #### Attendance.

The attendance at the flower show up to the close of business Tuesday, April 8, gave the grand total of 26,000, distributed as follows: Saturday, April 5, opening day, 6,300, Sunday 4,400, Monday 7,300, Tuesday 8,000.

The paid admissions during this period it is estimated will aggregate $8,000.

Notes of the Show.

The roses on Tuesday were placed on pedestals along the aisles and added very much to the decorative effect. The vases of 100 American Beauty and the other long stemmed stock were superb. A rose is not disseminated until it has been long enough in the hands of growers to enable them to produce flowers to compete with one another and the introducer. So says Wallace Pierson.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., has a neat and handsome exhibit showing bulbs and tubers and a number of his well known productions in flowers. Arthur T. Boddington exhibits a variety of flowering plants and has good space for the accommodation of visitors and customers.

A feature that escaped many of the visitors was the Easter lily display of H. Papworth, New Orleans, La. One hundred five and six-inch pots of lilies in flower having from six to twelve flowers each, which carried 2,000 miles, looked as fresh as the local stock. This is a new variety and looks like an ideal sort.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., the noted gladio us specialist, is on hand with a fine exhibit. He lectures on Friday, April 11, on the "Gladiolus." He is strong on Rochester White and Peace. Mr. Cowee's stand is well located and a very interesting place to visit.

An exhibit worthy of mention is the decorative and extension plant stands by H. G. Dreyer & Son, Cleveland, O. We cannot here fully describe this exhibit, but it seems to us to spell progress.

Many expressions of commendation of the show are heard. W. H. Elliot says: "It is a great exhibition, quality ahead of all former shows."

Wm. Eicholtz: "Every one should see this grand show. It is not sufficient to see the photos and read about it in the papers. You cannot get inspiration that way."

Richard Vincent, Jr.: "Taking it all in all it will be a long while before it will be beaten."

Robert Craig: "Best lot of roses ever staged in this country. Never was there such an exhibition of forcing roses."

W. Wells, London, England: "The roses are grand. They overtop all the other exhibits."

A. Farenwald: "The best rose show we ever had by far."

American Rose Society.

The Business Meeting.

The meeting of the American Rose Society was held on Tuesday morning in the Lecture Hall. President Farenwald read his annual address and there followed the reports of the secretary and treasurer. In the election of officers Wallace R. Pierson was made president; R. L. Pyle, vice-president; Secretary Benjamin Hammond and Treasurer H. O. May were re-elected. S. S. Pennock and John Dunlop were elected to the executive committee. The next place of the meeting is to be selected by the officers. The question of a national rose garden at Washington was taken up and a committee appointed to confer with the S. A. F. to push the project. The papers of Eber Holmes on "Commercial Roses" and Alexander Cummings, Jr., on "A Public Rose Garden" were ordered printed in the trade papers. Adjournment followed. The table decorations, mostly with carnations, arranged on Tuesday noon, were very attractive. There were five entries. R. Tyson, gardener to Mrs. M. K. Twombly, received first prize, George R. Cooke, second, and Alfred I. Bunyard, third. S. A. Anderson and the Boston Cut Flower Co. were the other exhibitors.

President Farenwald's Address.

A little over a year ago we met in Detroit, under raw, chilly conditions. Although the weather was so much against us, the American Rose Society can look back to it with only pride. The exhibition was never surpassed in quality and quantity. Our members showed a loyalty and enthusiasm which was highly commendable, to come at such an unfavorable time of the year, and in severe winter weather. It was a great pity that this splendid show was not better patronized by the public.

Our membership is slowly increasing, but not at the rate it should be for such a worthy cause, the advance of the Queen of Flowers, the mainstay of the business, the bread and butter of almost everybody in the trade. Why are so many standing pat, when we need them so badly? Do they think we have reached the high water mark of popularity? I hardly think so. There is lots of room for expansion. So we need you, Mr. Stand Pat. See the hustle and bustle everywhere in our business today, better unite, to come together, to help one another; that is the spirit of the times. Anybody who shuts his eyes to these conditions and refuses his help is not worth his salt. That's my candid opinion.

Regarding our amateur membership agitation, I want to express myself as against that movement, for various reasons. We are a body of commercial men, specialists. We are not in it for pleasure, though most of us derive pleasure from attending to the Queen of Flowers, but pleasure does not pay our coal bills, so with us the financial side of the question is the primary issue. All this does not interest the amateur, and the history of our society will back me up in what I say. The most of you will remember our early struggles with this amateur problem. It was useless to attract the amateur to a body of professional men. It was a waste of effort in every way; it brought our society down to its knees; only the untiring, loyal work of our commercial members saved it from utter collapse.

Let us take a leaf from this past history, and give it up. Let our efforts be directed to the making of a strong commercial society, so that we are not swayed first one way and then the other, vainly trying to accomplish something we are not able to do, as has so long ago been proved. The public is gradually being educated to the value of roses in home decorations, and the most enthusiastic amateurs will finally start their own societies, with a sprinkling of professional men among them, like the horticultural societies are doing today. Those are the true amateur societies which will grow and prosper, but in my estimation, no commercial body of men can interest the amateur.

Affiliation is the watchword of today. Some little while ago, the present president of the S. A. F., J. K. M. L. Farquhar, said to me, "How can the Rose Society and S. A. F. come into closer touch with each other?" I confess, I don't know that we could get closer. We are an offspring of the S. A. F., doing the work which the S. A. F. is not able to do—specializing in a certain line, the growing of roses for cut flowers. I do not think we have a member who is not a member of the S. A. F. as well. To give up our privileges would mean to give up our society, which would be a detriment to the business. I am sure the American Rose Society would always willingly work in conjunction with the national S. A. F. This vital question of affiliation I have outlined in another article, urging the merging of the florists' clubs' membership into a national society, to increase its membership and its usefulness. But let our Rose Society keep up its own good work, nation wide, as we have been doing, creating and stimulating a love for the Queen of Flowers.

Secretary's Report.

The American Rose Society during the past year has tried an experiment for the purpose of gaining a wider membership among admirers and growers of roses than heretofore enjoyed. This was done by the publication of a "Rose Journal," which has been distributed in a limited way, and sent to societies of one sort or other all over the country. Much favorable comment has resulted, but very few new members of any class have been secured thereby. On the other hand, according to observations made, the publications of the country of the higher class have given more than ordinary attention to rose culture.

When the American Rose Society held its first exhibition in the city of New York, its first supporters were largely amateurs. The present show is made up of specimens from some of the largest commercial establishments, small greenhouses and private gardeners. The cost of the journal was guaranteed by five members of the society, namely, Messrs. McKendrick, Good, Pierson, Pyle and Elliott; in addition to this, one of our life members, Samuel Thorne, subscribed an equal amount, which was $50. The advertisements received also increased the income, so that the experiment was no drain otherwise.

The American Rose Society represents growers in various parts of the country, but there is one matter that has seemed of importance for permanent value, and that is the accurate record of the names and origin of roses that have been originated within the United States. There have been invitations sent through the press asking for reports from the originators; few have responded, but such as have been carefully recorded. This matter is an important one for future use. The use of roses for outdoor decoration is certainly increasing year after year.

One of our life members has written me from Boston, especially referring to bargain sales of roses, and that a quantity may be furnished at a low price, but the quality is misleading, consequently this sort of traffic would do much harm in public view. The American Rose Society medals, if we could come in touch more extensively with local horticultural societies, if offered as a prize in the June shows to some extent would perhaps tend largely to interest the amateurs, and as the society gave its first exhibition in the city of New York, this question of membership may at the present time be considered with propriety. The financial and general condition of the society is clearly stated in the president's and treasurer's reports.

Chicago Spring Show.

Last week we gave an account of the opening days of the spring show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, the official dates of which were April 1-5. Owing to the great popularity of the show this period was extended to include Sunday, April 6. Thursday was carnation day and the principal exhibitors of these flowers were: Poehlmann Bros. Co., Wietor Bros., E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Chicago Carnation Co., Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., and A. Anderson, Moline. Lily of the valley was well shown by J. A. Budlong, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and H. N. Bruns. Sweet peas of unusual high quality were exhibited by Loeffler & Benke, Watertown, Wis. Excellent violets came from Loeffler & Benke. Miscellaneous cut flowers showing very superior culture were exhibited by Hunt Bros. and Hild Bros. The E. G. Hill Co. staged an excellent assortment of fine amaryllis. Vaughan's Seed Store made an extensive display of high-grade vegetables in season, which proved to be one of the most attractive features of the show judging from the interest displayed by the public.

Carl Cropp had a fine lecture programme, but unfortunately this did not prove so popular as had been hoped, the public apparently preferring the flowers, pictures and music. The lectures were as follows: "Flowers for the Home Grounds," Prof. H. B. Dorner, Urbana; "Fertilizers," Prof. F. W. Muncie, Urbana; "Flowering Shrubs in Their Order of Blooming," Wm. A. Peterson, Chicago; "Color Harmony in Planting," Prof. C. F. Kelley, Urbana; "How to Care for the Trees," Dr. Frank Johnson, Glen Ellyn.

The total attendance from April 1 to 6 inclusive was 74,738; in this period there were four free days and the attendance on the pay days was: Thursday, 3,206; Friday, 4,367; Saturday and Sunday the attendance was 22,000 each day.

In the gardeners' classes the principal prize winners were: Joseph Krupa, Lake Geneva, Wis.; John Tip-lady, Lake Forest; Paul Dieball, Hubbard Woods; Ed. Boulter, Winnetka, and H. Skjoldager.

The retailers, George Wittbold Co., John Mangel, Schiller the Florist, Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co. and Chas. Samuelson, continued their fine exhibits, changing the displays daily.

Frank Kuehne of Oconomowoc, Wis., who regularly attends the shows in this city, says he always feels well repaid for his visits to these displays.

Patten & Co.'s exhibits of Princess Dagmar carnations arrived in fine condition notwithstanding the long journey and the warm weather.

Much credit is due to C. J. Stromback, Joseph Bieber and G. T. Siegert for constant attendance and excellent work in their departments.

The work of the judges, Emil Buettner, E. O. Orpet and August Koch, gave entire satisfaction to everyone concerned.

E. G. Hill said the show was by far the best spring event he has seen in this city.

Trade visitors noted during the show included O. H. Carlson, Minneapolis, Minn.; Wm. Currie and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; W. D. Desmond, Minneapolis, Minn.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; H. V. Hunkel, Milwaukee, Wis.; Prof. C. F. Kelley, Urbana; J. O. Kemble and W. E. Kemble, Oskaloosa, Ia.; A. Kennedy and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; Frank Kuehne, Oconomowoc, Wis.; Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin; Prof. F. W. Muncie, Urbana; O. J. Olson, St. Paul, Minn.; John Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo., and Theo. Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.

THE RETAILERS EXHIBITS.

The George Wittbold Co.'s dinner table decoration was a symphony in yellow. The centerpiece was a low ivory handle basket in which were Melody and Sunburst roses arranged in a dainty and artistic manner. Among them were yellow iris, yellow daisies, genistas and a scattering of lily of the valley with maidenhair ferns. A pale blue fancy ribbon gauze rosette finished the handle ornamentation.

A table of oblong shape was used by the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co. At each end stood a rich double-decked glass design, in which were flower-holders with spring flowers. Connecting chains of glass with a small glass phial, also filled with spring flowers, at each intersection, were used.

Chas. A. Samuelson showed, among other pretty things, very small round handled baskets with a few forget-me-nots scattered among Tausendschon rambler roses and lily of the valley. A rosette of pink satin knotted loops finished the baskets.

P. Schiller, the florist, also showed a note of originality in his dainty blue basket filled with sweet peas of the deep rich purple variety. Lily of the valley and a pale blue gauze rosette completed the arrangement.

John Mangel showed an artistic French handle basket filled with a beautiful shade of pink tulips. Also an artistic basket of Pink Killarney roses and pink snapdragons.

PLANT NOTES.

Hydrangeas.

There are very few plants that are generally grown that show more variance in their culture or in the returns to the grower than the hydrangeas, especially those that are grown for summer blooming. In looking over the stocks in the several markets one will often see the extremes of these plants grown in the same sized pot; one with eight to ten heads of bloom, short and stock with fine foliage, an ornament on any porch or in any yard; and the other tall and long jointed, with two or three heads of bloom and five or six branches with no flowers and the foliage thin and small; the former bringing the grower $2.00 to $2.50 and the latter hardly averaging 75 cents. Yet these two plants have practically cost the grower the same amount of labor. These plants grow rapidly and must have plenty of room, an abundance of sun and lots of nourishment. It is useless to try to grow a good plant when they are crowded together. Many growers finish these plants by raising the pots over the benches of bedding plants that do not now require the full amount of sun, placing the hydrangeas about four feet apart in the center of the bench and standing the pot on a stand two feet above the other plants. This gives the hydrangeas a fine location. When the plants have set their buds the pots will probably be full of roots and a watering of liquid manure once or twice a week will greatly assist them in finishing up the flower and keep the foliage in good color. To grow good hydrangeas they must have plenty of food, room enough to grow shapely and for the air to circulate all around the plant and a light, well ventilated location. Under these conditions they are easily grown and are remunerative to the grower.

Freecias.

Although the freecias are a cheap bulb they should not be thrown away, for it takes but little attention to ripen them off after they are through blooming and as good bulbs can be procured as those that are purchased. The freesia is a native of southern Africa, so they are blooming at the natural season when flowered in mid-winter in the north. But the bulbs must be allowed to mature their growth and then dried off gradually. The pots or boxes in which they are grown can then be placed in full sunlight and allowed to become very dry. A shelf near the glass makes an admirable place on which to place them after the growth has finished and no more watering is required, but they must not stand where any drip from the roof on a stormy day is liable to keep them moist. They can be shaken out in June and the bulbs sorted as it is comparatively easy to select the flowering bulbs and stored in a dry place until wanted for planting. For Christmas blooming the bulbs should be started early in July and a succession of plantings until September will give the grower flowers until the following spring.

Lilium Lancifolium.

Among the best flowers for greenhouse culture during the summer months is the Lilium lancifolium, of varieties rubrum, roseum album and Melpomene. While these varieties can all be grown outside, yet under those conditions they rarely give perfect flowers and they also tarnish quickly in the direct rays of the sun or under heavy rains and to have flowers that can be used for decorative work or designs it is far better to grow them under glass. Those that are to bloom in July should have been started in March, but for August blooming they can be planted now. One of the easiest ways to grow these bulbs is to plant them in boxes from four to six inches deep, not too large, but of a size that one man can handle when filled with soil. Do not fill the boxes too full when planting the bulbs, for like all lilies they throw out roots at the surface, so it is well to leave room for top dressing later. Grow them in a cool, shady location and after the spikes begin to grow give them plenty of water and keep them tied erect to stakes. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the green fly in check. This is in no way forcing these bulbs and if properly dried off after blooming the bulbs may be grown year after year and a good crop of flowers obtained.

Celosia Plumosa.

The plants of Celosia plumosa or the ostrich plume celosia are of very easy culture and make very showy plants for either the garden or the greenhouse. They form pyramidal bushes and the yellow and red plumes which resemble ostrich feathers stand gracefully above the foliage. While they make showy plants for the garden, finer specimens are grown under glass and they make very showy plants in the late summer and fall. Seed sown in April will make fine plants for culture during the summer, but like all the celosias the young seedlings damp off easily. As soon as large enough they should be potted in good light soil in 2½-inch pots and later shifted to 4-inch and to grow large plants to 6-inch pots. They should be grown in a good, strong light, for if shaded the plants will become drawn and the dwarf compact plants are more desirable. C. plumosa aurea, the orange ostrich plume, and C. plumosa coccinea, the crimson ostrich plume, are the two best of the older varieties and Pride of Castle Gould, a new introduction of the last three years, is the best of all the ostrich plume varieties and can be obtained in many colors.

Gypsophila Paniculata.

There are few summer flowers that are of more use to the florist having a local trade than the gypsophilla, for it lightens up work beautifully and greatly aids in softening the appearance of the summer flowers, many of which have a coarse look in floral work, and in bouquets, sprays and basket work the sprays are particularly useful. The grower not possessing a good bed of this should procure stock at once and plant them in a good, sunny position, and after once becoming established they require no further attention than to keep the bed free from weeds and occasionally cultivated. Seed can be now sown and as soon as large enough transplanted in rows outside where they can remain until another spring, when they can be again transplanted to permanent quarters, but to have plants that will bloom this year it will be necessary to procure older stock. The double form of this plant is even more beautiful than the single for some purposes, and its lasting qualities make it more valuable for a cut flower than the older variety.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Stephen A. Jamieson is now with the Universal Portland Cement Co., this city, with offices at 934 Security Bank Building.

FT. WAYNE, IND.—The W. J. Vesey, Jr., greenhouses, which had already been badly damaged by the high water, suffered a loss of about $20,000 by fire, March 27. An overheated oil stove placed in the building to protect a $12,000 stock of orchids just rescued from the submerged portions of the greenhouse is believed to have started the fire.

Tornado Insurance.

The recent tornados have either totally destroyed or damaged many greenhouses throughout the country. But one firm, so far as we know, Hoerber Bros., of Des Plaines, Ill., was insured against such calamities.

Dayton Flood Sufferer's Story.

The horrors of the floods at Dayton, O., and other cities can never be realized by any one fortunate enough to have escaped them but a letter written by Mrs. Warren G. Matthews, wife of a well known Dayton florist, to a relative in Chicago, gives a better idea of the sufferings endured than any newspaper account possibly could.

"I know you have read of the terrible disaster that visited our fair city, but you will never know the awful sufferings we passed through. I don't know how to begin my description, but whatever you read, not half has been told. Monday after Easter Sunday it rained all day. Mr. Matthews was very sick and we had the doctor twice. It kept raining, and at 4 p. m. the water was up in our yard. We began to get alarmed and took things from the cellar upstairs. I did not go to bed that night and in the morning things looked so serious Mr. Gessler and Walter took the horses to Dayton View highland. The next time I saw Walter he was in a boat with a man trying to land on top of our porch at Mr. M.'s window to get him out, but the current carried them away and across the levee, where their boat was washed from under them and they were lodged in a tree. There they remained for six long hours. Can you imagine our feelings?"

"We barely got into the attic when the water came over the mantels on the second floor. Walter and the man with him were screaming for help; women and children were washed past them down the river; houses were upset; our greenhouses and everything connected tore past like lightning. Walter and his companion were fast becoming exhausted, when by firing revolvers and calling through a graphophone horn we succeeded in getting a boat to brave the current and come to the bathroom window. I got down out of the attic, in water to my waist, and moved the boat from the window around the corner of the house to the south window, and by using one of our greenhouses which was across the trolley wires we managed to reach them. They were utterly exhausted and fell into the boat. I pulled them back to the window and we gave them whiskey.

"My God, such a night! We thought Mr. M. could not live. The city grew dark about 5 p. m. Our electric lights failed and the gas pipes burst, nearly suffocating us. Arline sat at the window all night, crying through the megaphone for help, but who was there to help! Every section of the city was under water. At Third and Main street it was 16 feet deep.

"Everybody has lost everything. We are paupers, but God spared our lives, and yet what a trying night. It rained all night long and we could only huddle together and pray that the house would hold out until daylight and we might escape. Fires broke out in every section of the city. About 10 a. m. some people on a hill heard Arline shouting and started boats to rescue us. When they got Mr. Matthews in the boat he was exhausted and took it two hours to go five blocks. They took him to a church on high ground and sent him in an auto to the doctor's home. Walter and I did not leave the house until 5 p. m. The house was creaking and we thought every minute was our last. When I got to the doctor's I found Mr. M. very bad and he has been that way ever since. I have not closed my eyes since Sunday. We have enough to eat. No light and little water. The doctor thinks tonight Mr. M. is a little better. If the Lord only lets him live we will work and get a home. It is just fifteen years to the day since we were flooded out before."

[From a later letter, written by Mrs. Matthews April 4, we learn that Mr. Matthews is critically ill with pneumonia in an emergency hospital, but is likely to recover.—ED.]

GAINSVILLE, TEX.—Herman Kaden suffered a heavy loss from a hail storm recently. Much glass was broken and plants and flowers were badly damaged.

NEW CASTLE, IND.—There have been no shipments of flowers from here for 15 days owing to flood difficulties with the transportation concerns. Richmond and other nearby cities are similarly situated.

COLUMBUS, O.—Newspaper reports of the flood damage in this city were very much exaggerated and commercial organizations are endeavoring to offset the popular impression with regard to the disaster. The floods, while destructive, were confined to the residence section of the western part of the city and the work of rehabilitation is rapidly going on.

WALTA, O.—W. C. Scovell of this city was a heavy loser by the great floods in the northeastern part of this state. His greenhouses and dwelling were both flooded and he estimates that his loss to plants alone will be in the neighborhood of $600 or $700. Nearly all the public buildings have been destroyed and the railway companies say that it will be another month before the trains will be able to reach here.

TROY, OHIO.—The Skinner Irrigation Co., whose offices and factory are located at this place, has been practically shut out of communication with the outside world for ten days and it is only within the last few days that intercourse has been partially established. The factory is uninjured and was re-opened for business April 7. Freight shipments can now be made with reasonable promptitude and express shipments without delay.

RENEW subscriptions promptly so that no copies of the paper may be missed.

E. G. HILL is contributing an article to the forthcoming issue of the year-book of the National Rose Society of England.

SPACE is said to have been sold at the Third National Flower Show, New York, to the value of $16,000 as compared with $8,000 at the Boston show.

MINISTER PAGE, as the pioneer American distributor of foreign seed catalogs in the United States, should find a warm welcome from England's enterprising horticulturists.

RALPH M. WARD & Co.'s new edition of "Horseshoe Bulbology" is out and will be largely read because of the interesting and valuable matter it contains as well as on account of its originality.

CAPE JESSAMINE.—E. J. Sheffield, of Alvin, Texas, writes April 2 that present indications point to a large crop of these flowers this year and that they will be about right for Memorial Day.

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

Trade has shown a slight increase since the last writing especially locally but it is yet far from satisfactory. It is still impossible to make shipments to a large number of cities, consequently many of the local wholesalers are suffering heavily. One of the large dealers states that his shipping trade was cut practically in two since the recent floods which he estimates is costing the local wholesale trade at least $1,000 a day, all things considered. With New Orleans, Memphis, Pittsburg and other large cities cut off from the shipping list there has consequently been more stock to dispose of locally than before all which has helped to flood the market and force the prices down. Growers at New Castle, Ind., are shipping a large quantity of stock here for their outlet has been cut off also and their only means to dispose of their flowers now is through the local dealers. Everything in cut flowers is in oversupply and most of the stock is being sold in large lots at bargain prices. American Beauty roses are very plentiful but the supply of fancy stock is limited although many seconds are obtainable. The best flowers are bringing $3.00 per dozen in a few instances, but the majority are being sold for much less. All the other roses can be had at bargain prices with the possible exception of Richmond which are in good demand. Carnations are moving very slowly but sweet peas at cheap prices are in good demand. There are quantities of narcissi, the southern grown arriving in large shipments and are sold very low, but the receipts of tulips and hyacinths are very much smaller. Spanish iris is seen in quantity and they are made a feature by some of the retailers. Callas and lilies are to be had in quantity, violets are not quite so plentiful and pansies for corsage bouquets are offered freely. Antirrhinums of excellent quality are shown in large vases, the white and pink being displayed in quantity. Orchids are in good supply; in fact the only items that are scarce are customers and orders. It is hoped that trade will soon resume normal conditions, for everything is against the local dealers, especially the commission man who has a number of growers to satisfy. The growers should have in mind that the market has never been in such an unsatisfactory condition since the expressmen's strike, and allow for the poor returns.

NOTES.

The Meredith Flower and Vegetable Co. extends a cordial invitation to all in the trade to visit its greenhouses on May 1 and take in the third annual spring opening. Ida M. Latslaw, the local manager, promises everyone an enjoyable time. You had better join the crowd and take in the opening. These greenhouses are best reached by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R. R., or via the Chicago, Milwaukee Electric road to Lake Bluff and then to Libertyville.

In speaking of the different losses by florists during the recent storm Otto W. Frese with Poehlmann Bros. Co. says that some immediate action ought to be taken in the Matthews case at Dayton, O., for the family are in a destitute condition and would probably greatly appreciate a little help. It is probable that some action will be taken at the meeting of the Florists' Club tonight, at least it is reported so by good authority.

Oscar Leistner, 17 North Franklin street, has returned from a successful eastern business trip. His firm is now featuring in addition to all of Ove Knatt's fine line of goods a wreath made of natural prepared oak leaves. The cost of the wreath is very small and there is no question but what it will be in great demand for Memorial day.

The Superior Machine & Boiler Works is placing a new flue plug on the market in addition to its concrete post forms. Peter Weiler says that every grower ought to have a set of these flue plugs on hand, for they will eventually save him a great deal of trouble as well as expense.

Percy Jones is building up a good shipping trade in both cut flowers and supplies. The latter department is rapidly forging ahead and one order was so large this week that seven large crates besides several small boxes were needed to properly pack the goods.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in roses and carnations with a fine grade of American Beauty the principal offerings. Bulbous stock can also be had here in quantities.

Zech & Mann are doing a good local business considering the present condition, but they are handicapped with their shipping trade like all the other houses.

J. A. Budlong is pleasing his customers with his prize winning lily of the valley as well as his fancy American Beauty roses.

The M. Winandy Manufacturing Co. is installing its new improved heating system in the Palmer greenhouses at Hubbard Woods.

O. Johnson, with the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says that the better grades of American Beauty roses are selling quickly.

L. Hoeckner, of the Peter Reinberg force, has returned from his sight-seeing tour of the flood districts.

The Paasche Air Brush Co., 9 South Clinton street, is manufacturing an adjustable spraying brush which is now being used by A. Lange in coloring his baskets and other floral supplies. Mrs. Ida M. Latshaw, formerly proprietress of the Pueblo Floral Co. of Pueblo, Colo., has taken over the local management of the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co. Mrs. Latshaw has been in the business for many years and her practical knowledge will undoubtedly be a great asset to this enterprising company.

HOERBER BROS.

162 N. Wabash Ave. L. D. Phone, Randolph 2758, CHICAGO

The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, Thursday, April 10. The business of the evening will be the election of a secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Wilder S. Deamud and to receive the report of the transportation committee. The good of the club committee will have an interesting report on publicity and F. W. Muncie of the State agricultural station will give an interesting talk on soil fertilizers. The club will discuss the ways and means of assisting brother florists who are suffering from losses sustained from the recent storms and floods, and the following applications will be read: Howard Wilter and Herbert Scharenberg, Morton Grove, and W. H. Hilton, 1461 East Fifty-first street.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. made a remarkable showing at the National Flower Show now being held in New York, winning first prize on the best vase of 100 American Beauty roses and first prize on the best vase of 50 American Beauty roses. This firm also won first prize on the best 25 Richmond, 50 Mrs. Taft, 25 Mrs. Taft and several second prizes on Richmond, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Melody roses.

J. F. Kidwell of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association says that the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses, which were damaged by the recent storm, are now all enclosed and that the glaziers completed their work on April 5. A carload of cypress intended for use in the repair work has been tied up somewhere south of the Ohio river by the recent floods.

Peter Pearson, 5732-5752 Gunnison street, is showing an exceptionally high grade of geraniums, principally S. A. Nutt. Mr. Pearson is in position to give a helping hand to the many in the trade who suffered by the recent storm, and says he would be pleased to hear from any deserving grower who might care for some miscellaneous bedding stock.

Hoerber Bros. are easily filling all orders for roses and carnations and their range at Des Plaines, which was partially destroyed during the big blow, has been repaired with the exception of two houses that are a total loss. Fortunately this firm carried tornado insurance which offsets the loss on the structures considerably.

Wietor Bros.' tables are well filled with choice roses and carnations each day but the stock is moving well considering the trouble that is experienced in making certain shipments. N. J. Wietor, whose firm was a large exhibitor at the spring show, remarked that the exhibits especially in the plant line, were unusually fine this year.

The Southern Illinois Coal & Coke Co. are large operators in the Franklin county, Carterville field, producing approximately a million tons annually of this high grade coal. H. G. Weigle, their city salesman, is now paying particular attention to the florist trade and closing many nice contracts with the growers in this vicinity.

The George M. Garland Co. reports business running along very satisfactorily since the appointment of G. W. Whitney as trustee. Harry Garland has just closed a large contract for another range of houses to be delivered to O. C. Barber, of Barber-ton, O.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. received a letter from Mrs. Matthews at Dayton, O., which contained the sad news that her husband had lost everything in the recent flood and that the family was living on what Uncle Sam was distributing among the sufferers.

J. B. Deamud has returned from a visit to Saginaw, Mich., where his son, Wilder S. Deamud, is interested in a retail store. Mr. Deamud was sick for a few days while he was in the Wolverine state but he is again on the job at the store busy as ever.

The body of a man washed ashore at Glen Arbor, Mich., last week, is believed to be that of one of the officers of the Rouse Simmons, the late Capt. Schuneman's Christmas greens schooner which is supposed to have foundered in a lake storm last winter.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. feels rather proud over the fine showing that it made at the spring flower show in the Art Institute last week when they won first prize on both Killarney and White Killarney roses.

Peter Reinberg is having a good run on Richmond roses now of which he is cutting quite heavily. Tim Matchen says trade at the Reinberg establishment is good, all things considered.

A. F. Pyfer is doing double duty for the Chicago Carnation Co. this week during the absence of Peter Olssem, who is attending the national flower show at New York.

A. T. Pyfer is doing double duty to take in the flower show last week. He says that he had a fine Easter trade and that business in his new store is booming.

Joseph Ziska's new cementine clock dial is proving to be a great success for nearly all of his customers are using it in preference to the old cloth ones.

A. Miller is soliciting advertisements for the convention album in this vicinity for the Twin City Florists' Clubs, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Hunt Bros. are cutting some fine snapdragons of the same quality as those which they exhibited at the spring show last week.

A. L. Randall Co.'s traveling men are gradually starting out on their spring trips.

MARKET GLUTTED.

With the big flood past and good business resumed, we can now begin to look on the bright side of trade conditions. All flowers are coming in in quantity, and fully one-quarter of the flowers received by the wholesale houses are either thrown away or sold to the street fakirs, who are coining money as a result of the great glut. As Pittsburg depends mostly on local and eastern growers for its stock this city was not affected by consignments coming late, except violets and some American Beauty roses. Both calla and Easter lilies are very much in prominence. Easter lilies are not moving well. Lilac is very good for being so near the end of the season. Violets will also be over very soon. All kinds of stock for the past week has been offered at ridiculously low prices, and most of the retailers took advantage of it and stocked up heavily. Sweet peas are still coming very nicely and the quality is very good. There is a marked scarcity of smilax and adiantum, lots of this stock having to be bought out of town. Other greens though, such as sprengeri and plumosus is in abundance, much being thrown away. A very fine quality of

NOTES.

At the last meeting of the Pittsburg Florists & Gardeners' Club, Walter Breitenstein, of Randolph & McClements, gave a very interesting talk on color combinations. He had an immense collection of all kinds of plants of nearly all colors. He deplored the "pink and white" habit, which is the usual style of nearly every store and urges everybody to take advantage of and use the many pretty combinations which could easily be put to use. As Mr. Breitenstein says we ridicule the Dutch and the Italian bouquets but in reality we have much to learn from such work. Most all agreed with the speaker, and it is hoped that his good ideas will be carried out to some extent in the future.

This week's bowling schedule will find the McCallum Co. vs. A. W. Smith Co., and the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. vs. J. B. Murdoch Co. The E. C. Ludwig team hasn't ventured across the river since that awful defeat of March 6. But we must say that Mr. Ludwig has a real champion baseball club.

The McCallum Co. has put a new plant stand on the market, which the firm thinks is the best one out. This firm is pushing the wire business also, enjoying a good trade in tree guards, wire fence, trellis, etc.

The A. W. Smith Co. decorated all the windows of Joseph Horne Co., one of Pittsburg's finest department stores, with a heavy hedge of cut boxwood six feet in height recently. It attracted much attention.

Jos. Haube of Charleroi made a trip to Sharon to get his sister who was drowned. He had to use trolley lines, automobiles and steam lines to get there.

All the florists who visited the flower show at Schenley Park Easter Sunday say it far surpasses anything of its kind ever held in this city.

F. H. Westhoff is cutting some very fine Killarney roses at his De Haven plant. They are handled by the McCallum Co.

The Dennison Floral Co., of Uhrichville, is consigning roses and carnations to this market.

Karl Klinke has left the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. for Detroit, where he expects to locate.

The South Hills Floral Co. is cutting heavily on carnations and roses.

All the Wheeling florists were hard hit by the flood, Arthur Langhans being compelled to leave his residence several days. Zane & Son report they lost everything and Miss Forbes had four feet of water in her residence which was one and one-half miles from the river. She pluckily stayed on the second floor all the time and put in her time making hot coffee, which was delivered by boats to her neighbors.

Ross Adgate, road agent for the McCallum Co., was marooned in Niles, O., several days and although he reports no damage to his father's range at Niles, he says his uncle's place at Warren (Adgate & Son) was entirely under water.

SHIPPING CONDITIONS STILL BAD.

The wholesale market in this city is still in a bad way. The railroads as yet are unable to bring shipments in from the north and west on anything like schedule time. The service is, however, getting to be very much better and if present reports are true the railroads should be bringing in stock regularly within a time that is only a matter of days. Business, though very much better than at the time of the last writing, is still not all it should be. The local demand is just picking up again, while shipping business is still very light. The rose supply is still very limited. Supplies from local growers are augmented by a few shipments from the south, principally Tennessee. The offerings comprise Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, Taft, Bride, Bridesmaid and Ivory, and a few of Mrs. Aaron Ward. The supply of carnations is really a little stronger than market needs require. Last Saturday, in order to clean up, many were sold at very low prices. The average quality of the stock is very high. Some very fine Easter lilies are coming in from local growers. Lily of the valley sells well. The supply is, however, very limited. Sweet pea offerings are good, but quite a number of them are short. The supply of greens of all kinds is adequate.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell has been getting roses from the south for the past fortnight. Mrs. C. E. Critchell is in New York, attending the flower show.

BUSINESS SLOW.

The market is overstocked with carnations and roses. Business is slow and the season about over here. Carnations are bringing, the very best, only two dollars a hundred, while you get the very best Richmond, Killarney Radiance and Hillingdon roses for from eight to twelve.

NOTES.

Some of the stores look as though they would like to have Easter over again by the amount of stock they are carrying. Still they all claim they had a very good Easter but could have done a little more business on Sunday.

Washington is well represented at the flower show, as the delegation that left April 7 included every florist in the town who could possibly get away from business.

L. Jenkins & Sons are sending in some of the finest candytuft that has ever come into the local market.

BEST EASTER TRADE YET.

The Easter trade of 1913 was the best ever experienced by the florists in this city. Friday preceding Easter Sunday the weather was threatening and during the evening and until a late hour the rain fell in torrents. The outlook appeared gloomy and the spirits of the shopkeepers fell with the rain. Saturday was bright, however, and the misgivings of the previous evening were dissipated as the customers flocked in. Orders came in so fast many were forced to make hurried calls on the growers for more stock. On Sunday rain fell at intervals all day and while it made little difference to the downtown stores, in the outer districts cut flower sales were lessened thereby; still the district stores did well, the sale of baskets and potted plants on the day previous being much heavier than on other Easters. The feature this season was the remarkable increase in the sales of rhododendrons, fully 75 per cent more of them being sold than last season; a number of calls for Pink Pearl were not filled. Azaleas moved freely, Mme. Van der Cruyssen ruling favorite, despite the high retail price; the growers charged the trade $5 and $7 apiece for average plants. The call for begonias has waned of late and but few of the Lorraine variety were offered. Neither were cyclamen, nor hydrangeas in evidence as formerly. Birch boxes and baskets of tulips, hyacinths and primulas moved well, and flats of lily of the valley nicely dressed with matting and ribbon sold readily at good prices. Rambler roses were in good demand, the best sellers being respectively Dorothy Perkins and Juanita, the latter a new one sent in by the MacRorie & McLaren Co. Ericas were excellent, but the call being light of late, the stores did not stock up on them. Higher prices prevailed for lilies than the scarcity warranted. Nine dollars a dozen for pot plants was the average market price for stock mostly in 5-inch pots on 30-inch stems. The majority of the American growers sold all week at $5 a dozen for cut stems, but the Japanese growers held out their stock until Saturday and forced the price to $7 and got it, thereby raising the retail price. Many would-be purchasers refused to pay the high price, and while some stores cleaned up on lilies the majority had some left. It is generally conceded by the more conservative growers and retailers that even if stock is scarce the advanced price is productive of harm to the trade as prohibiting the popular use of flowers. Taken as a whole, pot plants were excellent and sold remarkably well. Outside of lilies and other white flowers the sale of cut stock in the downtown shops was of secondary importance. In the Mission district and the suburbs cut flower sales always predominate and the wet Easter day lost them some trade, still they complain only of the high price of lilies. During the week, with the exception noted, the price of all stock was uniform. Roses were fairly good, American Beauties bringing $5 a dozen for best, other kinds $3 to $4 a hundred. Carnations were plentiful and moved well at $2 a hundred. Lily of the valley in great quantity cleaned up at $3 a hundred. Cattleyas were scarce, the demand light. Phalaenopsis in abundance and grand blooms sold finely. In general, cut stock was good, plentiful and moved very well.

NOTES.

F. Schlotzhauer, Francis Floral Depot, says: "We had one-third more plants and baskets novelties this year and disposed of them all. Potted lilies are about all we have left."

Chas. Shellgrain, J. B. Boland Co.: "Topnotch. Greatest day we have ever seen. Just got in this load of rhododendrons and azaleas and they won't last the evening."

Angelo J. Rossi, Pelicano & Rossi Co.: "Excellent. The greatest day's trade we've ever had. Does our advertising pay? Our sales seem to prove that it does."

Arthur F. Lunberg opened a new store Easter week at 1725 Polk street.

STOCK VERY PLENTIFUL.

The weather all week was stormy and not very springlike. Stock in general has been very plentiful. Carnations specially have been long and they have sold very cheap. Roses also are plentiful. Many shipments have been discontinued on account of the floods. Violets are fast coming to an end, their keeping qualities now being very poor. Sweet peas are very abundant and special sales on these flowers have been held all week.

NOTES.

Ant. C. Zvolanek will visit W. C. Smith of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., and W. J. Pilcher, the Kirkwood violet specialist, on Mr. Zvolanek's return trip from New York to Lompoc, Calif.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. had an immense display of sweet peas and carnations Saturday. The automobile delivery service was moving all day.

Adolph and Gus Grop are now bringing in sweet peas and carnations. Their violets are about done after finishing a very successful season in this line.

The Diemer Floral Co. has its buyer at the market daily. This firm does an immense trade in artificial and fresh cut flower designs.

The St. Louis Seed Co., with the advent of more seasonable weather, is starting a heavy spring business in bulbs, seeds and shrubs.

The Florists' Club meets next Thursday, April 10. Owing to the busy season at this time the meeting at Shaw's Garden was postponed.

H. Young & Son's displays at both stores are very fine. Their mail order business for Easter and early spring was very heavy.

The Mullanphy Flower Co. and the Bentzen Floral Co. have their show windows filled with fine displays of spring plants.

The Metropolitan Floral Co. has a very pretty show window. It is always artistically arranged by Alex Genereous.

Joe Hauser's violets are still coming in and are of very good quality considering the lateness of the season. Ostertag Bros. received very large consignments of California privet, which they very readily disposed of.

F. C. Weber has always some very prettily arranged windows. His stock of flowers is always of the best.

The Riessen Floral Co.'s windows were crowded with fine flowers and a large trade was done Saturday.

George Windler, Fred Bruenig, Jules Boardet and other plantmen are very busy with advance orders.

C. A. Kuehn has had a splendid display all week of high-grade flowers at reasonable prices.

The Muehler Wholesale Floral Co. seems to have a system of cleaning out each week.

Alex Siegel had a special sale all week—carnations, 15 cents a dozen.

Otto G. Koenig was among the successful candidates on the republican city ticket.

A. M. Augspurger, Peoria, Ill., has been making his brother a visit.

Werner Bros. are now bringing in their flowers by automobile.

Grimm & Gorly were moving this week and last.

Mrs. Richter is cutting some fine sweet peas.

Tacoma, Wash.

BIG EASTER TRADE.

The Easter business, according to all reports, has been better than ever before. If we may judge from the increase in the cut flower business, Tacoma is certainly advancing at a great rate. An abundance of all kinds of cut flowers found a ready sale at prices practically the same as in former years. Easter lilies were demanded in excess of supply and the supply could be classed good, bad and indifferent. The extreme earliness of the day found every one trying every plan to get them in bloom. The flowers told the story—yet they were Easter lilies and they sold. Roses and calla lilies were somewhat scarce. Practically all roses were from California and very good in quality after the long trip. This season found a greater call for pot plants and while every one had a few left, they sold out practically all of them at several places of business. Carnations were demanded above all other cut flowers. The supply was great but the splits were in the majority. The sale of made-up baskets was much better than ever before. Those priced $2 and up to $4 were most called for. All kinds of bulbous flowers were plentiful—some in oversupply because of so many coming in from out doors blooming. Violets from California are still plentiful and had a great call. The day was suitable for the coming out of Easter suits and hats—warm and pleasant, so all flowers could be worn and handled without injury from weather conditions.

NOTES.

Mrs. Watson states that a larger trade was handled at both stores than at Christmas and more and higher priced plants were demanded. The family has the sympathy of the trade in the sad accident that befell the daughter, Marie, who was very seriously burned in a gasoline explosion.

She was in charge of the store at the public market constantly up to the time of the accident.

At the Smith Floral Co., 1116 South C. street, every one was busy and emphasized the fact that Easter trade this year was much better than ever before. Practically all their stock was from their own growing and everything sold out with the exception of the smaller pot plants in bloom.

The California Florists had the largest Easter trade in their history. Many large funeral orders were supplied and some beautiful designs of large size were delivered.

BUSINESS VERY QUIET.

Business the past week has been quiet and very "draggy" and prices have been low. The feature of the week was the American Beauty rose which has come on the market in such quantities that all efforts to get a uniform price have failed and sales are made at buyers' figures. Good long stemmed stock has sold as low as $1.50 a dozen, which, when the price of three weeks ago is remembered, seems ridiculous. The quality of the stock offered is all that could be desired. Roses, carnations, snapdragon are exceptionally fine. Sweet peas are an exception in that for some reason the crops have been off, but they became more plentiful on Friday and Saturday. Easter lilies and Calla lilies have dropped away down, there being so little demand. The street men have been very active and handled quantities of stock. It seems that people will buy flowers if they happen to see them offered at what appears half price or less.

NOTES.

Quite a number of florists visited the show Sunday. Among the visitors were the following: George Craig, Wm. Klinchintz, Paul Heubner, John Kuhns, Alfred M. Campbell, Charles Grakelow, Jos. G. Neidinger, Robert Shock, Philip Freund, Otto Thilow, E. W. Gaehring, S. O. Skidelsky, A. E. Cartledge, Morris Hoffman, Wm. Prevail, Eugene Michell, A. Stroklein. All report it to be a grand exhibition.

The National Flower Show at New York has aroused considerable interest and many exhibits have been made from this city. Wm. Robertson, Wm. Batchelor and John Dodds have taken an immense lot of plants from their various collections, which have been entered in the competitive lists.

The Leo Niessen Co. is a busy place these days, as much stock is coming in. Mr. Niessen, however, appears to know just where a demand is likely to spring up. In fact, he knows the market and keeps the balance even by up-to-date methods.

Edw. Reid is handling American Beauty roses in large quantities. "They come in now in quantities and we move them. We make the price attractive and yet we don't give them away," Mr. Reid says.

The M. Rice Co. is busy with Memorial day business, which is coming to them from all directions.

CONDITIONS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED.

Trade conditions are somewhat improved from last reports, although the volume of business is not up to the standard. Still there is a slight gain. There is plenty of stock and prices are low enough to create a good volume of trade.

NOTES.

A new association has been formed in Boston to be known as the Boston Florists' Club. The purpose of the newly-formed club is to better the conditions of the retail florists in this city. Thirty-five of the leading florists assembled Wednesday night at the City Club and a permanent organization was formed. Officers elected were: Henry Penn, president; Henry R. Comley, vice-president; J. A. Zinn, treasurer; B. H. Green, secretary. A committee of five, consisting of N. Silverman, B. H. Green, Henry R. Comley, M. Wax and W. Penn, was appointed to draft by-laws for the new organization. Henry Penn acted as toastmaster at the banquet which followed. This makes three separate clubs we now have in this city—the Gardeners and Florists' Club, the Horticultural Club and the new Florists' Club. It seems to us that one live club is all that is needed, and such a club could handle things better than having things split into so many units. We welcome the club if it is going to help the flower business. The men appointed are good live wires, and know their business and just what is required to help the trade. They are expected to inject some ginger into the club and we hope it will prove a success.

The show of the Co-operative Flower Market on Park street promises to be a good one and there are some good prizes in cash, cups and other valuable things.

FLOWER SHOW BIG ATTRACTION.

The Flower Show has for the present eclipsed the glories of the wholesale district. The fact that business in cut flowers was very dull during the past week, gave the wholesalers and their assistants more time for the show. The supply of cut flowers during the past week did not seem to be so heavy as on the previous week, but there was a surplus, and prices were very low.

Monday, April 7.—The least said about the condition of the market the better. The flower show overshadows everything else and both wholesalers and retailers are being cheered up by visits from numerous visiting florists. The show opened with very favorable conditions and with a large attendance. An immense number of people visited it Sunday, April 6. This, too, when the weather was very chilly and disagreeable, with occasional flurries of snow. Since Sunday the western people have been pouring in and all indications point to a great attendance. This is Rose Day and fine stock is being staged.

Early New York Florists.

One of the older florists, recently recalling the flower trade of this city in the sixties said that business was better then than now. He cited the prices paid for large decorations in those days as being higher than now. From the difficulty experienced in securing flowers, it would naturally seem to be the case. Men would be started very early in the morning and cross the Hudson to New Jersey, and then in some instances take the stage, until they reached the greenhouses. They were not always fortunate in securing flowers but in any event it was near noon before they got back to New York. Nearly all the New York florists had at that time small greenhouses and gardens of their own. A florist who's advent into the business in this city seems to have been at a date beyond the memory of any one now in the trade, was Isaac Buchanan, who was located on Seventeenth street, west of Broadway. There are men now in the business who worked for him but nobody seems to remember just when he came here. Some think that it was he that erected the first greenhouse in this city. He seems to have been a prosperous florist, as it is said that he owned and lived in a four-story brownstone residence.

David Clarke, whose sons continue the business which he founded, came here in 1849 and immediately started in business for himself, eventually locating on what is now Broadway, but was then called the Bloomingdale road, J. N. Hauser located on what is now Fiftieth street. His sons are yet active in the business. Thomas Bridgeman was both a florist and seedsman on Eighteen street and the name "Bridgeman's Seed Warehouse" has existed for business purposes until a very recent date. John B. Nugent had greenhouses at Fourteenth street and Second avenue. He is the father of John B. Nugent, Jr., the senior member of the firm of Young & Nugent, and is now an aged man.

Others of the old florists were Hautf Bros. This firm still exists, formerly located at Broadway and Third street; D. Wilson, Fourteen street east of Sixth avenue; Klunder & Long, N. E. corner of Broadway and Second street; Wm. Brower, Broadway and Twenty-third street. Other florists of former days of whom little is now remembered were, Buist, Gablesen, "Scotchby" Reed and Riddit. It would indeed be a novelty to find a greenhouse and garden at the present time at the places they were found fifty years ago.

The "wholesale store" of those days was a basket or a box with a strap attached for convenience in carrying. We hear much complaint at present of low prices and poor business, but harking back to the old days we believe that many of our present day florists do not realize how well off they are. If there were no other considerations, the multiplication of facilities for doing business is a great compensation for an occasional surplus. We would say that the actual labor is but as child's play, compared to what it was in the earlier years of the flower industry.

Cleveland.

DEMAND INCREASES.

An increased demand the past week was noticeable, but roses, carnations and lilies are piling up very rapidly despite this. Sweet peas are in good supply, but only about equal to the demand, which is very good. Lily of the valley has been scarce. String smilax arrives in only limited quantities. American Beauty roses with 36-inch and 42-inch stems are beginning to arrive and the outlook is very promising for a good supply all summer.

NOTES.

Never before in its history has the Wilson Floral Co. done the business here in Easter flowers it did this year. Since C. B. Knuth has moved to Euclid, Ohio, and Fred Aull of East 105th street is out of business, there is no store within several miles and the territory around the Wilson store is booming as no other section of the city. Most of Mr. Wilson's stock was handled by A. C. Fox of 672 East 105th street and a local pharmacy. The Wilson firm will no doubt open a retail store in connection with its greenhouses in the near future, as their retail business is growing to such an extent that they are unable to do justice to the work with their present facilities. The Cleveland Florists' Exchange is handling most of their stock, which is grown for the wholesale market.

Is the primrose, favorite flower of poets, to be legislated out of existence in this city because it causes a skin disease like that produced by poison ivy? Health Officer Friedrich was asked by a florist to take some action toward prohibiting the sale of this flower here. The florist exhibited his hand and showed the blotches produced by the handling of the plant. The health officer did not think the plant affected everyone that way, and said employes in greenhouses should protect themselves.

Wm. A. Smith, West Madison avenue, Lakewood, is again cutting Bride and Bridesmaid roses, also some fine forget-me-nots.

John Deveas, who has a flower stand in the Colonial Arcade, has bought part interest in a downtown restaurant. C. F. B.

Albany, N. Y.

Albany was represented this week at the National Flower Show in New York by a fair delegation. Among those who attended were: Harry G. Eyres, who was one of the judges; Fred A. Danker, Frederick Goldring, Fred Henkes, Edward F. Meany, Edward P. Tracey, Thomas F. Tracey, Samuel Hasson, Henry P. Schaefer, Edward Keefe, John J. Haggerty, and Frank R. Bilson.

At the April meeting of the Albany Florists' Club F. Goldring, chairman of the publicity committee, reported that the Easter business was the best the Albany florists had probably ever enjoyed. A part of the gratifying result, the committee believed, was due to the insertion of a joint advertisement early in Easter week in two of the local evening papers, calling attention to the value of flowers for Easter decorations. A committee made up of Edward F. Meany, Fred Goldring, Louis H. Schaefer, Thomas F. Tracey and R. Davidson was named to revise the constitution and by-laws. The same committee was instructed also to look over the list of delinquent members and recommend revision with a view to dropping those who are a year or more behind in their dues.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., President;
Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa., First
Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Milford,
Conn., Second Vice-President; C.E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown of the
A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.

It is reported that hyacinths in Holland were badly injured by frost in early March.

J. E. NORTHRUP of Minneapolis,
Minn., is now in the Presbyterian hospital, Chicago, having arrived this week from Daytona, Fla.

IN Japan heavy snowfalls the past winter have in part compensated for the dry March and the ground is in fair condition to develop the bulb crop.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade April 9 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3 to $4 per 100 pounds.

BOISE, IDAHO.—Governor Haines has issued a proclamation of quarantine against the alfalfa products of Utan and Wyoming to prevent the introduction of the alfalfa weevil into this state.

ONION SETS at Chicago are easier but the qualities are much mixed. Some stocks held on South Water street by commission men who are unable to ship on account of floods are nearly spoiled. Fancy Whites are worth $1.75 and other colors may be bought at from $1.25 to $1.45, according to quality.

ANOTHER batch of notices of Insecticide Act judgments has come in. Judgment No. 10, $10.00 and costs; No. 11, $25.00 and costs; No. 12, $10.00 and costs; No. 13, $5.00; No. 14, the condemned goods to be sold or destroyed;
No. 15, Lee's Insect Destroyer found on the premises of F. J. Trimmal, Rochester, N. Y., goods to be destroyed with costs against F. J. Trimmal, $30.45.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Livingston Seed
Co., says: We have met with comparatively little flood damage. None of the people connected with our business lost their lives and but little money loss was sustained. The flooded district was confined entirely to river and creek bottom lands. Our greenhouses and farm lands are high and dry with no loss. We are rejoicing that it did not come the week before and ruin our Easter business.

French Bulbs.

In the southern France bulb growing districts rains fell March 22-23, greatly benefiting, practically saving, the narcissus crop which was threatened with failure because of drought. White Roman hyacinths are mostly grown under irrigation. All reports agree that because of the small sizes of planting stock used the crop will run more to the smaller grades than usual. A second report mentions the rainfall as a moderate one only.

Beans of Arizona.

The experiment station of the University of Arizona has issued a valuable bulletin on "Southwestern Beans and Teparies." The bulletin summarizes the bean culture of the state as follows:

The peculiar climatic conditions of the semi-arid, sub-tropical Southwest are most favorable, usually, only to the varieties of crop plants which have been long grown in the region, or in similar regions.

Among the Indians of the Southwest may be found varieties of corn, beans, and squashes that have been grown within the present confines of Arizona for hundreds or perhaps thousands of years. Centuries of adaptation have therefore produced types well suited to withstand the extremes of heat and drought to which the climate often exposes them.

Native grown beans are among the most successful of these acclimated crops. Two different types of beans have been collected from the Indians of southern Arizona, recognized by them as distinct and commonly known by the Mexican names, "Frijoles" and "Teparies."

Botanical study has established the fact that these two types are different species. Frijoles belong to the group of common kidney beans (Phaseolus vulgaris, Linn.); while teparies, heretofore unrecognized in horticultural literature and unknown to bontan-ists except as a wild species, belong to that large and variable group described by Gray as Phaseolus acuti-folius.

Frijoles, now grown in the Southwest, are probably descendants of varieties introduced by the early Spanish missionaries. Twenty-three distinct varieties have been tested at this station, among the most promising of which may be mentioned the Pink bean, the Hansen and the Red Indian.

Teparies, also grown by southwestern Indians, were probably not domesticated from the type form of Phaseolus acutifolius A. Gray, but from a larger, more robust, broad leaved variety of the species such as was collected by Wright in a valley of Sonora as early as 1854, and described by Gray as distinct, but left unnamed by him probably on account of lack of material, which is now abundantly available.

The tepary (Phaseolus acutifolius
A. Gray) is therefore added to the list of species of beans used as esculents and it is suggested that this form be called Phaseolus acutifolius var.
latifolius. The tepary was domesticated from wild plants growing in the canyons of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico by prehistoric Indian races. Being variable in the wild state it has responded during domestication by the production of many varieties. Forty-seven distinct types have been isolated and grown at this station. Among the most promising sorts may be mentioned the white tepary, the yellow tepary and the brown speckled tepary.

In the Southwest, by both irrigation and dry-farming methods of culture, these native grown beans yield excellent crops,—from 450-700 pounds per acre by dry-farming to 800-1,500 pounds under irrigation. Under all conditions, however, teparies have outyielded frijoles, and in nine experiments herein reported, where these two crops have been compared, have averaged four times the productiveness of frijole beans.

The tepary is therefore recommended to the attention of southwestern farmers, (1) as the variety of bean best adapted to an exacting climate, and (2) as a probable money crop available both to irrigators and to dry-farmers.

Gloxinia Erecta Superbissima

Having during the past season been requested to secure some specially fine Gloxinias for exhibition purposes, we have made arrangements with a noted Gloxinia specialist in England to reserve for us some of the most distinct types. The bulbs are not so large as the Named Varieties, but this is a characteristic of most Erecta superbissima varieties.

BODDINGTON'S IDEAL PRIZE GIANT MIXED. Great variety of superb colors.

CYCLOPS. Velvety carmine, shading to a broad white border, throat dotted with dark red.

DUCHESS OF YORK. Flowers of a rich dark blue, each petal being edged with a broad band of white. A most striking and lovely variety.

SPOTTED HYBRIDS. Whenever exhibited, they create intense interest. The delicate markings, in an infinite variety of forms, add a special charm to the flowers.

SUTTON'S WHITE. A giant white flowered variety. DUKE OF YORK. Large scarlet Gloxinia with deep white edge to each petal. A magnificent flower.

HER MAJESTY. This exquisite Gloxinia is still unsurpassed by any other white variety. The flowers are as pure as newly fallen snow, and are borne on short stems, just clear of the elegantly recurved foliage.

READING SCARLET. In color this is the most brilliant Gloxinia in existence, being an intense glowing scarlet variety of the true Crassifolia habit. An admirable companion to Her Majesty.

GOLIATH. Violet and white, fine variety.
Per doz. $1.50; per 100, $10.00.

Question.

Where in all the world can you find a good commercial White Gladiolus, from which you can cut a spike of flowers and buds, measuring from three to four feet in length, without appreciable damage to the bulb?

Answer.

The variety "PEACE." Besides possessing all of the other attributes which combined make it the most valuable white variety yet introduced, it also grows such a tall, stately and strong plant, that no other white variety and few varieties of other colors will permit the cutting of such long, perfect spikes without injury to the plant and bulb. This feature alone more than doubles the value of this variety, as will be appreciated by every Grower of Gladioli for the market.

If you are interested in such varieties and wish to know more about them, write me, or better still, try a few bulbs of Peace and see for yourself. Better also try a few bulbs of "WAR," companion of "PEACE." A deeper red, more brilliant or a larger flower you have never seen. I will make no exception to any variety either of Domestic or Foreign origin.

PEACE, large blooming bulbs, $2.00 per dozen; $100.00 per thousand
WAR, large blooming bulbs, - $1.50 each; $15.00 per dozen

You should have my illustrated catalog; write for it.

Cornell Market Gardeners' Train.

A vegetable gardening train was run over the New York Central lines last week. Although farm trains have been run by various railroads in different states, this is the first train ever sent out for the vegetable gardening interests alone. It consisted of two cars, one containing an exhibit of vegetables, greenhouse material and models, seeds, model hotbed, potted plants, implements—cultivators, seed drills—charts, photographs, publications, etc. The train was in charge of F. S. Welch, agricultural representative of the railroad, and Professor A. C. Beal of the Department of Horticulture, Cornell University. Stops were made at Newburg, Kingston, Catskill, Coxsackie, Albany, Schenectady and Troy. The stops were usually for one day, but Catskill and Coxsackie were included. Lectures were given on greenhouse construction, planting home grounds and school gardens, by Professor Beal; on growing early plants, planting and transplanting vegetables, planning gardens, and home gardens, by A. E. Wilkinson; on intensive vegetable growing irrigation, harvesting, packing and marketing, market gardening, and growers' organizations, by Paul Work. There was a large attendance, and great interest was manifested in the exhibits and the discussions.

Greenhouse Cucumbers.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What is the best manner of forcing cucumbers under glass? Is it proper to syringe the foliage?

P. M. K.

Wisconsin.

The spring crop of cucumbers under glass is comparatively easily grown, provided one has good head room. At this time of the year solid beds are best as it is easier to supply the great amounts of water needed during hot weather. It is best to entirely remove all cool crops, such as lettuce or radishes, and transplant the cucumbers, which may be in 4-in. pots up to this time. The temperature should be increased to a minimum of 60° and 65° to 68° is better.

There are two distinct methods of training which must be considered in planting. One is the trellis or A-shaped culture, permitting natural growth. The other is the upright or single-stem culture, which demands close pruning. Which is best depends upon circumstances. If for a long-continued season the trellis is best; if for a short period the upright is to be preferred. The trellis method requires fewer plants, as the rows may be six or eight feet apart, while for the single stem culture, 2½ or 3x4 feet makes a good spacing. In either case the supports must be well strengthened and anchored as there will be an enormous load when in full growth.

For the upright method a binder twine is generally used fastened to overhead wire. As regards moisture syringing is in order, as cucumbers are very subject to red spider. A good rose grower would be a good cucumber man by following much the same course, only carrying temperatures higher. It is important to supply moisture by dampening walks if necessary. When in bloom mulching is needed to feed and hold moisture. Bees must be provided for pollination. Generally they come themselves, through open ventilators; they can be attracted by scattering comb honey about outside in the gutters, and if necessary, hives can be bought and either placed inside or outside near to the houses.

Enchantress Supreme

THE Best Sport from Enchantress up-to-date, possessing all the vigor and freedom that distinguishes its parent.

Color a light salmon pink—a color that is not only very attractive, but also one that endures full exposure to the sun without bleaching.

A good all around Carnation that retains its color at all seasons.

Calyx is longer and narrower than that of the parent variety, and distinct from the latter. Has shown no inclination to be a burster.

The weak points of Enchantress seem to have been lost in this Sport, and a trial of four years duration convinces us of its great value.

We spare no expense to have them in the best possible shape for the planter. Such varieties that move better when pot grown are prepared in this shape. They are not to be compared with so-called field clumps. Try them and be convinced.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

A SHORT season again for the nursery trade is certain in the West. This is the third successive year in which this trade has been so seriously handicapped.

Some Late Flowering Shrubs.

We have so few shrubs that flower in the late summer and early autumn, that no apology is necessary for calling attention to them. For a number of years we have had in cultivation three species of the genus Buddleia, and valued them highly because of their habit of blossoming in late summer. Of the three referred to, viz.: B. Japonica, B. intermedia and B. variabilis, the latter is the most showy and has proved as hardy as the other two. Quite recently two new varieties of variabilis have been sent out and have proved very satisfactory. B. variabilis Veitchiana has long cylindrical racemes, sometimes two feet in length, of a pleasing rosy lilac color. B. variabilis magnifica has slightly larger flowers than the preceding and of more intense coloring. Both have endured the last three winters in the Buffalo Botanic Garden, with no special protection, and have attracted great attention. With slight protection all of the five varieties named above should stand anywhere in the same latitude. If the ends of the branches get killed back, no particular harm will result, as the flowers appear on the ends of the growth of the current season, and a severe pruning is always in order. The genus is a large one, extending over three continents. Those mentioned above, however, are all from eastern Asia. The Asiatic species, so far as I am informed, are either white or of varying shades of lilac or purple, with a more or less pronounced yellow eye. The South American species, some of which are grown as greenhouse subjects, develop some brilliant yellows. B. globosa, from Chile, with orange yellow flowers, is often cultivated and is said to be hardy in the south of England. B. Asiatica and B. officinalis, are being offered this year as desirable forcing plants, their season of bloom being mid-winter. B. Asiatica bears long, dense, narrow racemes of deliciously scented white flowers, B. officinalis, flowering at the same time, is said to have rose-pink flowers in branching racemes. B. Asiaticus has long been in cultivation, but B. officinalis, I have never seen.

All the hardier species are easily propagated, either by green or ripe wood cuttings. Our own practice is to take cuttings, at the time the flowers begin to fade and insert them in sand on an ordinary bench where they root in two or three weeks. They are then potted and placed in a cool house until planting out time. Treated in this way, they will be nice strong plants by August and will bloom the first year. While the usual place for these Buddleias is in the shrub borders, they are very acceptable when planted among herbaceous collections, if cut back severely every spring.

Missoula, Mont.

An increase of more than 100 per cent over Easter sales of a year ago is noted by the R. & S. Flower Store. Prices were better, especially for potted stock. Lily plants sold out and hyacinths and spiraea also sold well. The supply of cut flowers was just sufficient to meet the demand. Tulips and jonquills were the poorest sellers. Lily of the valley and American Beauty roses went begging, an unusual occurrence. Richmond and Killarney roses, violets, sweet peas and carnations were the best selling cut flowers. The stock was all cleaned up in fine shape and everybody reports a better trade than in 1912.

NOTES.

The R. & S. Flower Store reports that its Deer Lodge store cleaned up completely and by 9 p. m. Saturday didn't have anything left. The number of lilies moved by this firm proves the wisdom of buying the best of bulbs. A large number of orders for Montana delivery was received from the East. F. X. Scully spent the week at the Deer Lodge store.

TOWN ESCAPES FLOOD.

Ideal weather up to noon Easter Sunday served to increase the volume of business far ahead of last year. However the rain began at noon and kept it up for three days. Fortunately Canton escaped damage by the flood. Massillon, eight miles distant, suffered a big loss.

As an appreciation of the good work done by the young ladies who sold flowers for the flood victims, they were banqueted April 3 at the Courtland hotel by Mrs. Charles Brown, assisted by Mrs. M. C. Barber, a sister of the late Mrs. Wm. McKinley.

The Brown Floral Co., for the relief of the flood sufferers, on Saturday, March 29, donated its entire two days' cut of carnations to the flower mission. Three hundred dollars was realized from this sale.

DIXON, ILL.—C. H. Fallstrom, proprietor of the Dixon Flower Shop, and Louis Knicl, superintendent of C. L. Baird's greenhouses, have bought the Long Flower business. The two establishments will be consolidated under the name of the Dixon Flower Shop. Mr. Fallstrom will have charge of the store and Mr. Knicl of the greenhouses.

WEATHER A DRAWBACK.

Earliness of date was not the only unique point concerning Easter, 1913. The early date had its advantage in that there was a plentiful supply of good flowers, bulb stock especially, and a decided drawback in the absence of favorable and inspiring spring weather which has so much to do with the buying mood of the public. Weather conditions all week were none too good, with a change for the worse Thursday. Friday was raw and altogether bad. The temperature Saturday was such special wrapping was not necessary, but it lacked much of being a genial spring day. Sunday morning threatened rain and the wind increased in velocity until by mid-afternoon it blew 60 miles an hour for a short time. Under such conditions the fact that the total business for four days was almost as large as that of last year, when weather conditions were much more favorable, is an agreeable surprise to the florists. In cut flowers there was the usual call for roses, carnations, lilies and violets. Bulbous stock sold well, especially single and double daffodils and Murillo tulips. Prices on all lines were about as heretofore. The plant trade was good, lilies leading, of course, and pans of hyacinths, daffodils and tulips moving well. Moderately low-priced made-up baskets of plants sold well. Larger ones were slower. There were some fine azaleas and spireas on the market, but they found a much poorer sale than heretofore. Hydrangeas and rambler roses shared the same fate. Taken altogether it was a strenuous proposition and everybody is glad it is over. There promises to be more spring stock than ever this season. W. H. C.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—Local florists report a record breaking Easter in the sale of plants and cut flowers.

WALTHAM, MASS.—Gov. Eugene N. Foss and Herbert W. Rawson are parties to two suits brought in Suffolk superior court. In one Mr. Rawson, as administrator of the estate of Warren W. Rawson, deceased, is suing Gov. Foss to recover $627.30 for lily bulbs furnished in 1907 and 1908. In the other the governor asks $1,000 damages, alleging the bulbs were of poor quality. Mr. Foss lost the case once by default but appealed. He purchased the estate of Chas. V. Whitten after Mr. Whitten's death and entered the commercial lily field.

How It Looks to a Man Up a Tree

LAST week, I ran up to Rowayton Greenhouses at Rowayton, Conn. Mr. Sefton, our president, sent me up with instructions to get a photo of the entire range of seven Hitchings iron frame houses.

It sounds easy enough; but the only way possible to see it all was to climb up a tree. This is how it looked.

Those five small houses we built several years ago. Then another firm's price was lower for a big house and they got the order. It was not satisfactory. We got the next order. It was for those two big 55 foot ones, 450 feet long. Only two columns, compress truss framing, Z-bar eave plate, our cypress benches.

To a man up a tree, it looks to me as if there in these new houses was about as conclusive a bit of evidence as any man would want that our company builds superior houses and deals squarely and fairly.

It's the opinion of the man who comes back with another order, that counts.

It's the firm that has no comebacks on the work they do, that's worth counting.

You can count on counting on Hitchings & Company.

Our catalog tells all about these big houses.

Semi-Iron or Pipe Frame Greenhouses

A Greenhouse having its framework made up partly of iron is called a Semi-Iron Greenhouse or a pipe Frame Greenhouse or a half iron greenhouse or a pipe post and purlin greenhouse, etc., according to the fancy of the builder. It all means the same thing, and that is just plain Greenhouse, and any kind of a greenhouse that has not a complete iron frame.

The Quality of a Semi-Iron Greenhouse

A Semi-Iron Greenhouse can be designed to have all the stiffness and strength that can possibly be required or it may be very much lacking in these qualities. To make a good Semi-Iron House there must first be provided a sufficient number of purlins to prevent sagging of the sash bars, and these purlins must be supported by an adequate system of posts and braces. In addition the posts and braces must be tied so that the roof will hold its shape when the load is all put on one side, as is the case with wind pressure or sometimes with snow.

The illustrations show plainly a common fault in Semi-Iron Greenhouse construction. A load in the form of wind pressure or snow applied on the A-side of the roof can push this side in and the opposite side out. King Semi-Iron Greenhouses are provided with tie rods and braces which prevent the roof being put out of shape no matter how it is loaded.

The Price of a Semi-Iron Greenhouse

In no other class of greenhouse construction can the same price cover such a wide variation in quality, and unless great care be used you may, in taking the lowest priced house, get the least for your dollar. In buying a King Semi-Iron Greenhouse you get a construction in which every detail is worked out carefully and correctly, and you get material that for quality cannot be surpassed, and in some respects equalled. Our new manufacturing plant is the best arranged in the business, is the best located for assembling material at the lowest price, and is equipped with greater labor-saving machinery than any other. All of this means that you get from us the most for your dollar, even should our price not be the lowest.

The Old-Fashioned Garden.

I want the old-time garden,
The dear sweet-scented flowers,
With yellow bees a-buzzin'
Through all the peaceful hours.

The gate that hung a bit awry
For little feet a-swingin',
The sod beneath the blue bush
With early violets springin'.

Low pinks and bounding-betties,
An' marigolds in rows,
Wee snowy, sweet allysum,
An' dainty button rose.

White phlox like girls in weddin' clothes,
Red poppies swayin' light,
And perky, gay snapdragons
In velvet coats bedight.

The very names are music,
Like elf horns blown in dreams,
They're swayin' now before my eyes
Till each a presence seems.

If God gives me no garden
In answer to my prayer,
But just keeps me a-waitin'
Till I get over there.

The first thing I will ask for—
An' keep on askin', too—
Will be an old-time garden
All shinin' with the dew.

An' hummin' birds and butterflies,
An' I among 'em kneelin';
'Twould even give to heaven, I think,
A kind o' homey feelin'.

THIRD NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

New York, April 5-13.

The Closing Days.

The roses arranged for effect on Wednesday added much to the beauty of the show. Probably nothing attracted so much attention throughout the week as the vase of Killarney Queen entered by A. N. Pierson, Inc., and arranged by David S. Geddes of St. Louis. For such a huge affair it was artistic to a degree. They were placed on a large wicker stand or vase with a zinc lining. There were 200 flowers with stems six to seven feet long. When finished the flowers extended to a circle ten feet in diameter and at least eight feet in height. The effect the next day as the flowers opened out was truly gorgeous and was one of the sensations of the show. The display of assorted varieties of roses arranged for effect was another beautiful entry by the same firm. It covered a space of about 400 square feet and contained vases of about fifty blooms each of all the standard varieties. These were placed on a step platform which rose about ten feet above the floor, with a vase of Killarney Brilliant as a center. The pyramid with the flowers arranged must have stood about fifteen feet in height, being placed in the center of the hall between two aisles. It presented the finest collection of roses ever put together. The Pierson firm was a great factor in the success of the exhibition. Their trade exhibit, showing their specialties, together with their long list of entries in the various competitive cut flower lists, particularly the roses, gave the standard of the commercial rose a distinct move upward.

Thursday was sweet pea day and there was a fine display of these dainty and beautiful blossoms that are so justly popular with the public as last year. Wm. Sim of Boston was the chief exhibitor. His display contained thousands of sprays of the most popular varieties, but which are soon to give way to the newer Spencer type, which Mr. Sim says are much better in every way and will be universally grown as soon as the seed is obtainable in sufficient quantities to go around. The principal varieties in his collection were Christmas pink; Mrs. Smalley, cerise pink; Wallacea, lavender; Orange Bird, orange; Blue Jay, blue; Countess, light pink; Pink Beauty, cerise pink; Sunbeam, yellow; and White Florence Denzer, a fine white. Mr. Sim won all the first prizes in the class in which he competed.

Great credit is due to two indefatigable workers, William Duckham, manager of the show, and Charles H. Totty, chairman of the National Flower Show Committee. They labored hard, yet could always be approached and were never too busy to answer questions or straighten out matters of detail that are always coming up at an affair of this kind.

The Max Schling exhibit was at all times an object of interest to the retailers. Examples were seen of made-up baskets both of cut flowers and plants that were up to date in every respect. Bouquets of cut flowers were also a feature.

The question is often heard: "Why do not the retailers enter more into the competitions at the various flower shows?" There are many reasons. The expense, the want of time, etc., and greatest of all, the lottery of it. The best does not always win out. Floral arrangements should be judged by men whose business it is to create and pass judgment on them every day. A man who devotes his time to the production of cut flowers is not schooled to be an expert in their arrangement, and will likely be influenced by the quality of the flowers rather than the beauty of their arrangement. Rules governing competition should be very explicit. In the matter of table decorations it is difficult to judge between a high and low arrangement. An elevated space above gives more room for elaborate display and there is no fair comparison with the lower decoration, which may be quite effective, but not being on so large a scale, loses by comparison. Art in arrangement and color effect should win out rather than the display made by the larger quantity of flowers used.

While the trade exhibition was very creditable to the various firms occupying space, it was said there was not the business transacted that is usually done at the August meetings of the Society of American Florists. Men are more in the buying humor at the beginning than at the closing of their business year.

In the collection of acacias displayed by Thomas Roland there were several plants each of the following varieties: spiralis, paradoxa, pendula, heterophylla, pubescens, longifolia, longifolia magna and verticillata. Some were magnificent specimens and all were full of bloom, having been timed to be at their best at this time. In the Louis Dupuy collection of roses were several very promising novelties for Easter forcing. They were of the Polyanthe type. There were Baby Ramblers in six-inch pots and a variety called Bordurewad, only twelve inches above the pot, but so covered with blossoms of a bright pink as almost entirely to conceal the foliage. Triumph de Orleans was a beautiful deep pink, almost red, a very promising sort. Yvonne Rabier is a splendid white of the same class, the flowers are of the purest white, of good size and very profusely borne. It should make an ideal Easter plant.

The French hydrangeas exhibited in the mezzanine gallery grown by A. Bieschke, gardener to Wm. Zeigler, Jr., Noroton, Conn., attracted much attention. The varieties were Mde. Emil Mouillier, best white; Radiant, pink; Mde. Gaillard, ivory white; Bouquet Rose, a deep pink, easily made blue; La Lorraine, a blush Enchantress color; Avalanche, a fine white; Mont Rose, a light shade of pink. These plants had been given a month's rest and dried off, but not so much that they shriveled. They were started in January at a temperature of 50°, and required but little forcing to get them ready at this time.

A. Zvolanek staged some thirty vases of his new seedling Spencers. They are grand flowers and mark a distinct epoch in the advance of this garden favorite. For this collection he was awarded a gold medal. The table decorations and bridal bouquets of sweet peas were for the most part very nicely arranged. In judging the bouquets Chas. Henry Fox, who was one of the jurors, conceived the idea of having young ladies hold the bunches. He soon had five of them in line each with a bouquet. In this position their utility and beauty were shown and the choice was soon made.

Friday was Floral Art day. Bridal bouquets, growing baskets of foliage and flowering plants, decorated mantels and table decorations for others than professionals were the features. The bridal bouquets attracted the most attention. There were seven entries, nearly all of which were overdone. The stock used was for the most part lily of the valley and orchids. All had shower effects which were also much too heavy. It would have been impossible for a bride to carry them without stepping on the hanging ribbons. Most of the retail men who looked them over selected the A. T. Bunyard entry. It was of medium size, of lilac sprays, white orchids and small white Polyanthe roses. It had a pretty shower with dainty bows attaching small flowers as used in the body of the bouquet. It was complete in every respect and a very artistic piece of work. The winning bunch was of lily of the valley and white orchids, a loosely arranged shower effect very nicely put together but withal so large that only a bride of great stature could have carried it. This was made by A. Kottmiller. The second prize went to Max Schling for a well arranged bouquet of lily of the valley and white orchids. There were also a few sprays of orange blossoms and quite a heavy shower of lily of the valley trimmed with ribbon was a feature. A round bunch was well liked. It was of lily sprays without foliage, rather closely arranged and finished with a heavy border of Farleyense fern. The shower effect was given with several long narrow strands of satin ribbon with large knots and a broad sash of figured gauze. A spray of white orchids just off the center of the bunch was a feature. All of the entries in this class showed careful preparation, nothing being left undone and no expense spared to make them as near perfect as possible.

A. T. Bunyard won again in the mantel decorations. The feature this time was a tall slender iron rod extending from the floor up one side and curving partially over the mirror. This supported several long-handled gypsy baskets trimmed with bows of light blue ribbon and handles wrapped with the same. These were filled with Gloriosa carnations. Another similar basket was placed below the shelf to one side. Quite a number of large fronds of the Polypodium Mandaianum were placed as if growing from the iron rod and were a conspicuous feature of the decoration. The second prize was handsomely arranged with Gloriosa carnations. A tall vase of these flowers was placed on the left hand side. The shelf, which was concealed with strings of Asparagus plumosus, was also decorated with carnations which drooped in a graceful spray from the end almost to the floor. Extending across the top from the vase was a fine spray of asparagus, giving a very artistic finish.

The table decorations by amateurs were simple and pretty. The first had a Begonia Lorraine in the center and smaller vases around, all silver. The second was arranged in much the same way with cut sprays of the rose Newport Fairy. Wm. Sim's table, which received third, was entirely of pansies and was much admired. It is seldom one sees such flowers.

This was truly a progressive exhibition, gaining in value every day. The roses the second day were placed on pedestals along the aisles. This was to make room for the carnations. These in turn were removed and placed at vantage points about the hall. The additional rose display and sweet peas now became the center of attraction. With these in place, together with the previous exhibits which had kept remarkably well, there was a wealth of floral display the like of which has never been seen before in this country.

Faulkner's Comments.

In reviewing this great show we can say that each day brought additional attractions. The exhibit of cut roses, staged April 9 by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., which covered 200 square feet, and contained most of the commercial forcing roses, was a notable feature. The exhibit was arranged in pyramidal form, a vase of Killarney Queen capping the climax. Grouped around and rising, tier above tier, were other Killarney roses, with Milady, Richmond, Taft and other varieties. It was a fine exhibit and worthy of the first prize awarded. Another feature of the Pierson display was a vase of 200 Killarney Queen arranged by D. Scott Gaddis of St. Louis, Mo. The flowers were fine and the arrangement was a masterpiece. We think this was the finest single exhibit of cut flowers in the entire show.

Sweet Pea day, April 10, brought its pleasures and surprises, though it was not surprising to those who know William Sim that he made a pretty general clean-up of prizes in sweet peas. The table decorations of sweet peas on that day were very interesting. We heard a lively discussion over the judging of the table decorations, but fortunately the judge criticized was good natured and did not commit anybody for contempt. While we call them judges, we note that the term generally used at this show is jurors.

Floral Art day, April 11, brought very clever work in bridal and corsage bouquets and in baskets of flowering and foliage plants. All the exhibits were very creditable. The award of first prize for a bridal bouquet to Alfred Kottmiller of New York was one with which even the most critical could not find fault or charge favoritism, for he is a young man who but recently went into business for himself and consequently is not as well known in the trade as many other retailers. The work of our genial friend, Max Schling, also of New York, loomed large on this day in plant arrangement and bouquets. He is one retailer who has shown a commendable interest in the show and everything seen in his exhibit was excellent and creditable. Other noteworthy exhibitors on this day were John B. Nugent, Jr., New York, Albert Laretz, Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Boston Cut Flower Co., of Boston, Mass.

NEW ROSE MRS. CHARLES RUSSELL EXHIBITED BY THE WABAN ROSE CONSERVATORIES AT THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

EXHIBIT OF A. N. PIERSON, INC., AT THE NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW, PARTIAL VIEW.

Chas. H. Totty has had so much Flower Show on his mind that he has had little time to think about himself, but he had a breathing spell in the closing days and arranged an exhibit of roses and carnations, which was appropriately awarded a gold medal. None deserve more credit for the success of the show than Mr. Totty.

The weather was generally favorable. April 12 was rainy and disagreeable but the attendance was well sustained, in fact we believe that the attendance on each day exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the managers and promoters.

A number of labor organizations asked the International Exposition Company to keep the International Flower Show open on Sunday, April 13, that their members might attend. In accordance with these requests the committee decided to keep open Sunday, from 10 in the morning until 11 at night. To display at a glance the scope of the week's competitions all the high priced orchids, flowers, foliage plants, decorated banquet tables, mantels and baskets, bouquets and vases of cut blooms that had won first prizes were arranged in a grand floral court of honor. This hall of fame was assembled in the most prominent part of the main floor, and formed the grandest spectacle of rare and valuable floricultural and horticultural exhibits ever seen in this country. The special lecturer of that day was Harry A. Bunyard, who took as his theme "Great Flower Shows of the World."

There was no first award in the competition for carnation blooms to cover 100 square feet of floor space, and for which Thomas W. Lawson had offered a silver cup and a cash premium of $100, as the conditions called for a perfect score of 100 points. The second prize of $75 was awarded to A. A. Pembroke, of Beverly, Mass., whose exhibit scored 95 points. The highest award for vases of carnations not to exceed 200 blooms went to the specimens of the Gorgeous carnation exhibited by the Boston Cut Flower Co. Prizes for the best basket of carnations and for the best mantel decoration of the same flower, the latter after a close competition, were both won by A. T. Bunyard of New York.

The prize winning mantel was a superb and artistic combination of the Gloriosa carnation and mimosa, the background being of the new fern Polypodium Mandaianum, the color effects being pink and yellow with the addition of pale blue ribbon.

The special competitions were for members of the American Sweet Pea Society and thousands of the delicately tinted blooms were brought in especially for these events. In the classes for 50 sprays, John M. Barker of Morristown, N. J., won in the pink and white variety; Winkler Bros., Hackensack, N. J., in the white and solid pink varieties; and in eight other colors William Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., swept the board. The class for the best six vases of sweet peas, open to private gardeners only, was won by Thomas Ryan, gardener for John I. Downey of Port Chester, N. Y.

Adolph Lewisohn of Ardsley, N. Y., won the blue for the best decorated banquet table in which sweet peas were the principal flower used; first prizes for the best basket and best bride's bouquet were won by Max Schling of New York. S. A. Anderson of Buffalo, took first honors for the best corsage bouquet of the same flowers. Six special competitions for cut roses had each a large entry. The $200 silver cup was won by A. N. Pierson, Inc. The small grower's prize, a $50 silver cup, was won by Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J. The Philadelphia Rose Growers' first prize of $75 was another of A. N. Pierson's successes, and first prizes of $25 cash for Richmond, Killarney and yellow roses were won respectively by A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa., the United States Cut Flower Company, Elmira, N. Y., and L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J. Theodore Outerbridge placed on view at the Thorburn stand two rare specimens from Bermuda, a giant white lily of which the bulb weighed over 30 pounds and a remarkable cactus known as the Triangularia Enforbia, the first time ever exhibited in this city.

Among the visitors April 10 were Mrs. W. Emlen Roosevelt, Mrs. R. E. McCurdy, Mrs. N. R. Stewart of St. Louis, Mo., Miss J. H. Sands of Ardsley, N. Y., Mrs. H. P. McVicker, W. H. Sands, J. ### Bunches of Botany.

When the Daffodils go daffy
And the Violets grow vile,
When the Hollyhocks are bocking
And the Smilax doesn't smile,
Then the Pansy cannot pan out
And the Rose will never rise,
And Blackberries cannot blacken
Any Black Eyed Susan's eyes.

For the Crocus grows serenely
When the Primroses are prim,
The Daisy dazes all the days
If they dare to dazzle him.

So the Plum espoused the plumber,
And the blatant Bluebell blew,
As the Pear could not beat two pair,
And the Tulip held the two;
Still the Morning Glory glori'd
In the Buttercup's cute cup—

Then the Botanist awakened—
Thought 'twas time for getting up.

American Carnation Society.

The Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the American Carnation Society was held in the Grand Central Palace on April 9. President Breitmeyer's address was well received. It was reported that at the time of the last meeting in Detroit the sum of $437 had been collected for the Fred Dorner Memorial fund. The committee was then instructed to continue its efforts to swell the fund, and a total of $979 was received. Of this, $439 was $1 and $2 subscriptions and $540 in subscriptions ranging from $5 to $25. The committee gratefully acknowledged the receipt of a draft for $10 from the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England. The total fund with accrued interest now amounts to $1,018.71.

At the meeting of the board of directors in Detroit, January, 1912, J. A. Valentine was authorized to secure designs for a medal. At the directors' meeting in Chicago in August, 1912, Mr. Valentine submitted a design from Henning Ryden of New York city which was approved by the board, and it was decided that Mr. Ryden be commissioned to prepare the dies for striking the medal. The Dorner brothers agreed to bear the expense of making the dies. The dies have been made and a 10-carat gold medal has been struck and delivered to the committee. The plan for awarding the medal, devised by Peter Fisher, has been approved and is as follows: A gold medal will be awarded to the best 100 blooms of any undissemminated carnation, sports not admissible; the variety must have been in cultivation not less than three years, and must score not less than 85 points, judged by the American Carnation Society's scale of points, the medal to be awarded to the originator, who need not necessarily be the exhibitor, and can be awarded but once to the same variety. To be eligible to compete for the medal, 50 blooms of the variety must have been shown at a previous exhibition of the American Carnation Society in a preliminary class and scored not less than 80 points. The committee reported its work finished and stated that the fund was deposited with the Lafayette Loan and Trust Co., where it draws 4 per cent interest. The committee extended thanks to all the contributors for their generous response. On suggestion of President Breitmeyer, E. G. Hill moved that the first medal struck be presented to Mrs. Dorner, and it was ordered that such action be taken.

Fred B. Dorner feelingly acknowledged the courtesy of the society.

S. S. Skidelsky and John A. Evans reported that John A. Newby of Logansport, Ind., had suffered greatly from the flood and had been compelled to cancel all orders. President Breitmeyer spoke of the general knowledge of the suffering in the flooded districts and appointed S. S. Skidelsky and John A. Evans a committee to consider the matter of affording assistance to fellow craftsmen who might need it. W. N. Rudd moved that it was the policy of the society not to consider invitations for the next meeting if they were not sustained by the local florists' organizations or prominent men in the trade. The motion was adopted.

Officers were elected as follows:

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., president.

A. J. F. Bauer, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary (re-elected).

F. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill., treasurer (re-elected).

S. J. Goddard, South Framingham, Mass., director.

Eugene Dailledouze, Brooklyn, N. Y., and C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill., judges.

A protest against a decision of the judges by Henry Weston, Hempstead, N. Y., in regard to the largest carnations at this show was referred to the directors.

President Breitmeyer's Address.

The good old spirit to be mutually benefited in advancing the standard flowers, particularly that of the carnation, has again assembled this happy "family." In reviewing the past year, we find new facts presenting themselves which should lead this assembly into very interesting discussions, which in turn should bring forth suggestions and resolutions of great benefit to all. The general prosperity of the country has left its golden traces among the growers of carnations as well as the retailers of them, and many an up-to-date structure has been added to bring about the biggest development of the carnation. Quality has been produced, and the retailer has had the opportunity of the enormous output at a fairly reasonable price.

In spite of these indisputable facts, a question worthy of your most serious consideration and analysis arises. Is the popularity of the carnation on the increase? Or, in other words, has the consumption increased in the same ratio as our population and general advancement of ethics and prosperity? Is the more often occurrence of special sales on carnations a sign of the increased popularity of the carnation, or is it a sign of more or less over-production? In the dissemination of varieties, too much stress seems to have been laid on color and size, the odor in most cases having been lost sight of. In years past, when our population was less and the demand for carnations was, in proportion, larger, we were blessed with, though smaller blooms, yet more fragrant varieties. There is no doubt in my mind that the spicy odor of the carnation was a great factor in the sale of these flowers, and with the present advancement in salesmanship, the term "fragrant carnation" is almost a thing impossible and by virtue of this lack of fragrance, other flowers have become greater competitors.

Further, it seems very necessary to infuse a new strain of blood to overcome the general and quite remarkable falling off of their keeping qualities. It has become a serious problem, especially to the retailer. I believe that unless a remedy is found, there will be a great difference in the sale of carnations. We can all agree that already other good lasting flowers have found their way to the flower shop as a keen competitor. This may not matter much to the retailer, but it is very important to the carnation grower and there should be vigilant care and careful scrutiny given to the many new introductions offered each year which should not be enrolled unless the present defects are eliminated.

I also wish to call your attention to the well known lack of carnation blooms during the summer months. Owing to the failure of the aster, there seems to be a field not yet covered. It is a fact that the breeders of anenomes and pompon chrysanthemums are straining every point to produce summer blooms, and to my notion, a carnation would fill the bill as few other flowers will do. We have everlasting the third week in January, seems yet to be much favored. In fact the holding of our exhibitions at that time seems to be more favorable and practical. This may not agree with my past argument which was to the effect of closer relation with the American Rose Society and other kindred societies, especially for the purpose of holding joint exhibitions such as we enjoyed in Detroit and are now enjoy-in the carnation or any other flowers, will find time and money to attend all such meetings, no matter where they are held. In conclusion, I believe that the Carnation Society, as expressed by many of its most active members, should act for the best interests of its aims and purposes, and if the plans now adopted are not practical, the matter should be brought up for discussion and deliberation. It is to be remembered that our interests lie in the carnation, its development, and the creation of a sale for it, and all that can be done to accomplish this end should have attention. The carnation must be grown the year round, and its blooms must rank in quality with the grandest of all flowers, the rose.

Secretary Baur's Report.

We are able to report progress in all departments this year save one. This one exception being one of the most important departments and of vital interest to the society, we will ask you to carefully consider a number of recommendations which will be submitted at the end of this report. The proceedings of the last convention were distributed to all paid-up members, as is customary. These proceedings did not include any statement from the treasurer of the Detroit Florists' Club, who had charge of the gate receipts at the exhibition in that city in January of last year. This statement was submitted, however, to the board of directors at their meeting in Chicago last August. Their action thereon will be presented at this meeting for approval.

At the directors' meeting there was also drafted a schedule of premiums for the carnation show, which is running at this time. Alterations were made in the rules governing entries for competition, eliminating all restrictions in regard to membership in this society, except in the A. C. S. medal class, which is reserved for our members only. Including premiums from all sources, the schedule carries a larger total than any previous list, which means that there is offered at this exhibition more money, medals and plate than has ever before been offered for carnations at any one exhibition. The National Flower Show committee agreed to pay the first $1,000 cash premiums awarded. A spe-complaints concerning the packing for shipment of carnation blooms, and while it may be out of place to bring it up now, it does seem wise to caution many of our best growers that some thought and study should be given to overcome this ever present criticism.

Owing to the newness of the parcel post, the powers that be are in a receptive mood and it seems timely that suggestions be made. As the situation lies, the government maintains as good and better service between cities than the express companies do. The only difficulty so far is the delay of collections and deliveries in cities. If properly presented, the government, no doubt, would supply proper schedules for the departure and arrival of mail trains. This should lead to a cheaper and safer transmission of our produce than now exists, especially in the plant line.

The past year has been anything but satisfactory in the addition of new members. The root of this cause should be found and a remedy provided. It has been said that there is no inducement for those interested to become members of our society for the reason that they can procure all the information and benefits on the outside. Further, that there is practically no barrier for non-members getting all the benefits, and I believe that is true. This brings to mind the old doctrine, "A Society for its Members," and perhaps it will be necessary to establish such a rule to be adopted and adhered to. There is no doubt that the societies which hew closer to a policy of not spreading its news broadcast, is more attractive to a joiner and I can see reason why a new policy should be well considered and in the end insure the society against disintegration.

The time for holding our meetings, which had been adopted originally as ing in New York. It may not be too soon to discuss this question, but to my idea, it is important to hold the meeting of the Carnation Society when the season is most appropriate.

The policy of free exhibitions properly managed and restricted as was planned originally and met with much success should not be lost sight of, and I hope that a good discussion shall be brought about on this subject. It need not follow that a National Flower Show should interfere with an annual carnation meeting. I am of the opinion that the grower who is interested cial effort was made to interest the retail men in the exhibition by offering liberal premiums in a number of attractive and practical classes.

On account of the flood conditions, which surrounded Indianapolis immediately following Easter, at which time the entries were supposed to be sent in, it was impossible to enforce the time limit on filing entries. All entries which reached the secretary before leaving for New York were accepted without any assessment of fine.

During the past year the Fred Dorner Memorial Fund campaign was brought to a successful conclusion. A detailed report will be submitted at this meeting.

In obedience to instructions given at the Detroit meeting, a public accountant was engaged to check over the books of the secretary and treasurer. This was done on February 20 of last year, and again on February 28 of this year. As is shown by the audit, all funds are properly accounted for. There can be no question of the wisdom of this procedure, and as your secretary, we wish to express our appreciation of the establishment of this custom. The first audit was made in time to be published in the proceedings of last year's convention. This year's audit will accompany the treasurer's report. All bills have been paid promptly on vouchers drawn by the secretary and signed by the president.

Ten new seedling varieties and one sport have been registered with this society since the last annual report appeared. Besides these there have been registered with the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England some 35 seedlings and sports. Duplication of names already used is carefully guarded against. We find among the list a considerable number of names without any record of color, originator or date of dissemination; in fact, nothing whatever to identify the variety. In all such cases we would recommend that the name shall be available for naming new varieties.

During the past year death has claimed two of our members, J. F. Wilcox of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Chas. Knopf of Richmond, Ind. Both of these men were well known to most of us and highly esteemed.

The one department in which we are unable to report progress is that of membership. Ever since the meeting in Boston, two years ago, the membership has decreased in numbers. About the usual number have run delinquent each year, but less than the usual number of new members have been added. During the past year the delinquents were 45, while the accessions were only 20, making a decrease of 25 for the year. There are now 261 annual members in good standing and 12 life members.

We can account for this in only one way and that is the letting down of all barriers to outsiders who are coming in and getting all the benefits which should rightfully be reserved for our members only. This society cannot endure for long if this policy is continued, and we would respectfully submit the following recommendations for your careful consideration: We should hold our conventions regularly each year regardless of national or other exhibitions, and we should hold our conventions and exhibitions alone. Our regular meeting date (the last Wednesday in January) should be strictly adhered to. The idea of alternating the meetings between the east and west is conducive to a growing membership and should be continued. We should allow no admission fee to be charged the public at the door of the exhibition, as the charging of a fee, be it ever so small, tends to reduce the number of visitors. Only members in good standing should be allowed to compete for premiums of any kind, including certificates of merit. Nor should anyone, except members of this society and the local entertaining society, be allowed to attend any of the social functions connected with the convention. Efforts should be continued to interest the retailers in the exhibitions. There should be more decorative work on exhibition than has been seen heretofore. If competitive classes will not bring them, then some other means should be devised. A campaign for new members should be instituted, and we would suggest that a committee be appointed at this meeting to formulate a plan for such a movement. Instead of decreasing, our membership should at least keep pace with the growth of the carnation industry. The thanks of this society are due the trade press

NEWARK, N. J.—Sales for Easter were about as last year and prices were no better, is the report of H. C. Strobell & Co. Plants and cut flowers were both in ample supply. Hydrangeas, rhododendrons and rambler roses did not sell well. Azaleas, spiraeas, lily of the valley, daisies and bulbous stock had a good call. All cut flowers sold readily. There was little demand for large made-up baskets or large plants. Medium priced plants and baskets were the rule.

FINAL REPORT.

At the time of the last meeting in Detroit, the canvass among the members of this society for small contributions to the Fred Dorner Memorial Fund, which had been ordered at the Boston meeting, was completed. A total of some $437 had been collected in contributions of one and two-dollar amounts. Instructions were given to continue the soliciting of contributions and to take advantage of numerous offers of larger amounts which had been made to the committee. These additional contributions swelled the total to $979, of which $439 is in one and two dollar contributions and the remaining $540 in amounts ranging from $5 to $25. We are pleased to state that the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England generously sent in a draft for $10. These funds were deposited by the treasurer to draw interest, which up to date amounts to $39.71, bringing the total in the fund up to $1,018.71.

The board of directors, at its meeting in Detroit, January 12, 1912, delegated J. A. Valentine to secure designs for a medal which is to be bought each year with the interest accruing from this invested fund. Mr. Valentine submitted, at the directors' meeting at Chicago last August, a design from Henning Ryden, an artist of New York city, which the board approved with instructions that Mr. Ryden be commissioned to prepare a set of dies for striking the medals. The Messrs. Dorner having agreed to bear the expense of having these dies made, this matter was turned over to them for final execution. The dies have been made and a 10-karat gold medal delivered to us to be paid for out of this fund.

At the same meeting in Detroit, Peter Fisher was delegated to devise a plan for awarding this medal. Mr. Fisher submitted the following plan at the Chicago meeting and it was approved by the board: A gold medal will be awarded to the best 100 blooms of any undissemated seedling carnation (sports not admissible). The variety must have been in cultivation not less than three years and must score not less than 85 points, judged by the American Carnation Society's scale of points. The medal to be awarded to the originator, who need not necessarily be the exhibitor, and can be awarded to the same variety only once. To be eligible to compete for this medal, 50 blooms of the variety must have been shown at a previous exhibition of the American Carnation Society in a preliminary class and scored not less than 80 points.

With this report the work of the committee is finished. The fund is deposited with the LaFayette Loan and Trust Co., where it draws 4 per cent interest. The committee wishes to thank each and every contributor for the ready response with contributions. A complete list of contributors is on file in the secretary's office.
