American Seed Trade Association.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., President;
Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa., First
Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Millford, Conn., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. Atlee Burpee expects to leave for California this week.

NEW YORK.—Manager Scott of the Yokohama Nursery Co. is fishing in Texas.

A. W. ANNANDALE, of the Steele, Briggs Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont., and wife, will sail for Europe via Montreal early in June.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade May 28 for grass seed were noted as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—C. C. Massie of Northrup, King & Co., is making a trip to the Pacific Coast. J. E. Northrup's condition is reported as showing improvement.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—C. C. Morse & Co. say their retail business the past season was fair only. Their wholesale business was affected very much by the continued drought which they claim is one of the most disastrous the central part of the state has ever known.

NEW YORK.—The protest of Henry & Lee et al. that importation of calla "bulbs" should be made free of duty, as they are not bulbs but corms, has been overruled. The government holds that while, strictly speaking, the so-called "solid bulb" is a corm, there is no exact line of demarcation between the two, and the cases at issue were provided for specifically by law, which refers to the commodity as "calla bulbs."

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, reports: "In general, we may say that as far as gross trade is concerned, the year's business has run considerably behind last year, mainly due, of course, to the lower prices which prevail all through the list which we carry. In general, too, the original costs are higher than last season, so while we consider the year very satisfactory, in view of the conditions we hardly look for it to be up to 1912, though 1913 business thus far shows considerable gain over 1911."

California Seed Trade Association.

The California Seed Trade Association called a special meeting at Los Angeles May 20 at which an unusually large number of members were present. Renewed interest in the trade was aroused. The association was formed a couple of years ago as a local organization at Los Angeles, but has grown until practically all the growers and dealers in the state have found it to their advantage to become members. The officers of the association are: A. E. Aggeler, president; Theo. Payne, vice-president; M. L. Germain, treasurer; D. F. Reichard, secretary.

W. ATLEE BURPEE says this year's business has resulted in more orders, but the orders have averaged less in amount than a year ago. This reduced value of orders is due to two things, lower prices and less demand for large quantities of several important seeds for market gardens, notably cabbage and onion.

French Bulbs.

Regarding the French bulb situation an inspired publication says May 8: "At the close of the general meeting, which took place Tuesday, May 6, to fix the price of Roman hyacinths, the growers decided that in view of the poor crop and that offers of 110 francs have been made to the union, they would fix the price at 115 francs per 1,000 for the 12-centimeter and up, and 80 francs for the 11-centimeter. A certain number of members have sold.

"The union of growers urged their colleagues who are growers of this article but who do not belong to any syndicate to rally to their union, as the union always obtains the highest prices and is able to render important services in the future."

American Seed Trade Association.

The thirty-first annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held in Cleveland, O., June 24-26, 1913, with headquarters at the new Hotel Statler, the convention to begin at 10 o'clock Tuesday, June 24, as shown in the program which follows. If engaged in advance accommodations will be reserved at the Statler at the following rates: European plan, sixty rooms at $2 a day for one person, $3.50 for two; fifty rooms at $2.50 a day for one, $4.50 for two; one hundred rooms at $4, $4.50 and $5 a day for one person, with $1.50 a day additional for second person in room.

As the Statler is Cleveland's newest hotel it is nearly always full and for this reason it is urged that rooms

Parcel Post and the Seed Trade.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

We are enclosing herewith an extract from a letter sent us by one of our customers. We are receiving many such letters each day, and we think that perhaps it would be well to publish this in your paper previous to the time of the seedsmen's convention. It is likely that some discussion of the parcel post matter will come up at the convention, as many of the members feel that the present arrangements of the parcel post system in regard to the seed trade are not satisfactory. The extract from the letter we received is as follows:

"Incidentally it seems to us that the seed and florist trade should protest against the unjust discrimination of the parcel post under present rulings. For instance, a customer wrote for seed sweet potatoes by parcel post. Had he applied to the grocery across the street from us, they could have been delivered by the rural carrier right to his door for 29 cents. But they were "seeds, roots, bulbs or tubers for planting," and would require 71 or 72 cents to go by parcel post. The express company carried them for 25 cents. Should one of our customers require eleven pounds of alfalfa to feed to his canary, it could go to any point reached by our carrier for 15 cents, or any point within 50 miles for 35 cents. But if this customer intends to plant the seed instead of feeding his "bird" it would cost him 88 cents to send either to any one on a route from this office or to the remotest corner of the United States. It is certainly a great system, but who can call it just, fair or right?"

Chicago. LEONARD SEED CO.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., who recently returned from California, says: "The prospect for seed crops in California this season is the worst on record. With very few exceptions everything will be exceedingly short and many items a total failure. The harvest of sweet peas in particular will be very small indeed."

Florists' Fertilizers

Conducted by F. W. Muncie, Department of Floriculture, University of Illinois.

Fertilizers and Manures.

At this time of the year, information in regard to fertilizers and manures is especially helpful, and inquiries in regard to them are solicited. Queries should be signed by the persons or firms requesting the information (whose initials will be published) as a sign of good faith and in case a personal answer is desired, a stamped, addressed envelope should be enclosed. No inquiries in regard to specific commercial brands can be answered, however. All inquiries should be addressed to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Some of the subjects to be treated in this department at an early date are "Soil Types," "Acid Soils," "The Use of Lime," "Loss from Manure by Leaching," "Composting of Manure and Phosphates," "Liquid Manure," etc.

The Fragrant Shield Fern.

I had another gala day this season, when with the help of a friend I found the last of our New England ferns—Dryopteris fragrans. I have spent a good many hours among our cliffs during these ten years past, hunting for this little fellow, and had given up expecting to find it. Several times I had thought it found but it would prove to be only the Woodsia ilvensis. There could be no possible question this time as to its identity. It was away up on the bare dry face of a cliff, far out of reach except by some sort of a ladder. But it was so unlike any other species, with its dry, curling snuff-colored fronds of last year that I knew it was the one I wanted. We found more of it later that was accessible. I think that the professors who have written our descriptions of it have never found it for themselves. Its chief characteristics are: First, that peculiar appearance of the old fronds; you could not curl them more gracefully than they appear, drooping over the edge of rocks. Second, the glutinous fronds; they cannot be taken from the paper until they are dry and grass and leaves adhere to them. Third, its peculiar fragrance. Gray says "aromatic"; that doesn't half tell the story. I gathered a clump of it on the cliffs and dropped it down in my handkerchief and the perfume lasted for days. I think it is like new mown hay composed largely of sweet briar rose leaves. It grows on the driest cliff sides, where everything else would be scorched by the sun's heat; not "especially near waterfalls" as Gray's Manual says. Look for a place where there is a bare cliff, overhanging a little, perhaps, so that the rain cannot reach it and up above all the trees so that it can have no shade at all and if you find a fern there, test it by its perfume, its stickiness and its beautiful brown curls.—James A. Bates, in Linnean Fern Bulletin.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

Toward the close of last week market conditions improved greatly. The supply, owing to several days of more or less cloudy weather, decreased somewhat, while the demand for stock increased. Saturday proved to be the best day of the week. Prices, however, were, at the best, only fair. The rose supply, somewhat shorter than a week ago, is still large and easily sufficient for ordinary market requirements. The list includes choice offerings of all seasonable lines. Carnations are no longer in the crowded condition they were a week ago. The cut has diminished considerably. On Monday the offerings were short of the call for them. Lilies are again in good crop and are meeting with a fair call. Lily of the valley is not moving any too well. Sweet peas are in only a very ordinary supply. The peony offerings are large. Many Cape jasmines are coming in from Texas. The buyers were at first slow to take hold of them, but by the time Memorial day is over they will probably have used many.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell was the first to offer Shasta daisies this year.

A. C. Heckman of the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange spent a few days in Indianapolis, Ind., last week.

It is said that H. E. Klunder of the Hill-Heller Co. has resigned to accept a position as manager with an Atlanta concern.

Peter Herb of Mt. Healthy was in town and was a heavy buyer of flowers on Monday.

P. J. Olinger went to New Castle, Ind., on a business trip Monday.

Visitors: R. Newcomb, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; and — Donaldson, Sparta, Ky. H.

H. F. Hall, Moorestown, N. J., President; C. West, Irondequoit, N. Y., Vice-President; E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., Secretary; M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O., Treasurer

THE Idaho agricultural experiment station has issued an exhaustive bulletin entitled "Tomato Culture in Idaho," the result of three years' work in tomato culture. The state is covered thoroughly as to soil and climate and the best varieties for each locality are noted, together with some pertinent points on their proper culture.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, May 26.—Mushrooms, 20 cents to 65 cents per pound; lettuce, 15 cents to 17½ cents, small cases; radishes, $1.50 per 100 bunches; pie-plant, 40 cents per box; cucumbers, 40 cents to $1.25 per box of two dozen; asparagus, $1.25 to $1.50 for 24 bunches.

New York, May 24.—Cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, 75 cents to $1.25 per 100 bunches; rhubarb, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; lettuce, 50 cents to $3.00 per basket, crate or barrel.

Celery Culture in Michigan.

The horticultural department of the Michigan Agricultural College experiment station has issued an exhaustive bulletin on celery culture by C. P. Halligan. The combination of climate and soil, much of which is rich muck land, has put the state far in the lead in this industry, and the station's views are consequently to be accepted as authoritative. The necessity for proper drainage is pointed out first, for the ground, though rich, must be comparatively dry. Dampness causes diseased plants. Open ditches which drain the soil to a depth of two or three feet are generally relied upon. Black ash or elm muck lands, with at least three or four feet of good top soil, are the best, but, to quote the bulletin, "celery may be grown on any good garden soil that has been previously well enriched with stable manure or organic matter, but for commercial growing the muck lands are to be preferred in this state." A soil of loose texture that does not pack hard around the plants is required. The soil must be free from acid. Any muck that will redden blue litmus paper will not grow celery and is in urgent need of a treatment of ashes or lime to eliminate the acidity. Often better drainage is required where the soil has become sour.

Corn, potatoes or other vegetables are usually grown on new land the first year before it is ready for celery. Careful cultivation to eliminate all weeds is called for. If several crops have been raised it is advisable to build up the soil with stable manure, applied while the other crop is still being raised, and a year or two before celery planting starts. Plowing should begin as soon as the ground is dry enough in the spring, and should be deeper than for many crops. Ten inches is not too deep. The soil must be put in a very fine condition by means of a harrow or drag, and should be kept that way until planting time. Heavy feeding is necessary even though the ground is already rich. Stable manure is the best fertilizer. Horse manure from which the straw has been removed is preferred in the Kalamazoo district. Commercial fertilizer will not do alone, but may be used at less cost to supplement the natural kinds. Muriate of potash with about half the usual amount of stable manure has been found to give good results. Nitrate of soda is often spread as a dressing over the soil a week or two after the plants have been set. This acts as a stimulant and makes the crop earlier. Near Kalamazoo (and occasionally at Muskegon) salting the land is a common practice. It is claimed that this makes the plants more brittle and tender, but growers in other parts of the state do not place much value on this method.

The vital importance of seed is emphasized in the bulletin. Many failures are directly traceable to seed of inferior quality. The seedlings must be strong and vigorous if the crop is to pay, and only the best of seed will produce this. The greater part of the seed of the self-blanching varieties is grown abroad. Excellent seed of the green kinds is grown in California. Fresh seed is necessary every year as it soon loses its vitality. Seed may be stored by placing it in a Mason jar, which should be sealed and kept in a moderate, uniform temperature. The last part of February or the first of March is the best time to sow for an early crop. The soil should be very fine and of such a nature that it will not pack. A covering of about an eighth of an inch of soil is sufficient. For the second crop seed for which is sown the last week in March, a holed or greenhouse should be used. Where the celery is to be marketed after the first part of September the seed is usually sown outdoors as early as weather conditions permit. After the plants are up they should be kept constantly growing, being watered only on bright days so they will dry before sunset.

Michigan celery plants are seldom transplanted before setting in the field. A cloudy, humid day, preferably just before a shower, is the best time to set the plants. If such weather does not obtain, they should be set late in the afternoon. The seed bed should be watered before digging. Care must be exercised when lifting in order that the plants may retain a large root system. A good planter will set as fast as another person can drop the plants. A dibble or other tool is never used. The setter straddles the row on his knees, and makes a hole with the forefinger of one hand while taking the plant up with the other. The plant is set with the crown slightly below the surface, and the soil pressed firmly about it. Where the blanching is done by means of boards the rows are 18 to 36 inches apart, and where earth is used from four to six feet. Wide rows and interplanting for the second crop is often practiced. Three plants to a foot is the usual order.

The plant has a very shallow root system, although an excessive feeder, and must be cultivated constantly to be kept growing without check. Hand hoeing between plants is often necessary. Blanching by boards and banking with soil are the two methods pursued in Michigan. Boards are preferable with the self-blanching kinds sown for summer use, as the soil causes rust. In the cooler fall weather, however, the banking method is employed, as this gives an excellent flavor and protects the plants from light freezes. Where it is to be stored for winter it should not be blanched too much in the field, as this process will go on in storage. The marketing of celery begins in Michigan about July 1 and lasts until October. The plants should be cut and carried to the harvesting shed in the early morning if shipped any distance in summer, the boards being removed only as fast as the celery is cut. Many careful packers of summer celery wrap each bunch separately with heavy brown paper. Light crates are used for shipping. Celery that is to be stored for winter is usually trenched. Storing has not proved very successful in Michigan, however. Among the celery diseases to be guarded against, damping-off disease and blight are noted by the bulletin. The first attacks the plants in the seed bed. Ventilation, plenty of light, and not too much water are prescribed. Bordeaux mixture is recommended for blight. Insects also must be destroyed by means of sprays or by hand picking. The varieties of celery recommended for Michigan are White Plume, very early, Golden Self-Blanching, Giant Pascal, Winter Queen and Kalamazoo.

 Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

AMHERST, MASS.—The state nursery is sending out thousands of pine and spruce seedlings this season to be planted on waste lands in all parts of the state.

STOVALL, VA.—The Howard Nursery Co. has incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are S. C. Howard, this city; I. N. Howard, Oxford; C. H. Howard, Greensboro, and C. L. Howard, Columbia, S. C.

THE American Peony Society's annual convention and exhibition will be held this year in connection with the Ohio Horticultural Society at the Grays Armory, Cleveland, June 12-14. Copies of the premium list can be had on application to Secretary John N. Stockwell, room 218, City Hall, Cleveland, O.

Gipsy and Brown-Tail Moth Hearing.

The Secretary of Agriculture deems it necessary, in order to prevent the distribution of the gipsy moth and the brown-tail moth into sections of the United States outside of the New England states, to extend the present quarantine lines in New England beyond those indicated in notice of quarantine No. 4, to cover the extension, during the year, of the known range of these two insects. In compliance with section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912, a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., at 10 o'clock a. m., June 12, 1913, in order that all persons interested in the extension of these quarantine lines may be heard.

American Association of Nurserymen.

THE PORTLAND CONVENTION.

A letter from Secretary John Hall regarding the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen to be held in Portland, Ore., June 18, 19, 20, contains the following reference: "The great question that is being considered by some nurserymen concerning the coming thirty-eight annual meeting is, 'Shall I go?' Well, every man knows just how he would answer it if the convention were going to his own state. With sleeves rolled up, he would be working might and main for its success. Yes, Portland is a long way off for a large proportion of our membership, and yet we are advised by our eastern excursion agent, Marsden B. Fox, that if the territory west of New York state does as well as he expects the latter to do, it will be almost possible to have a nurserymen's special out of Chicago or St. Paul. A personal letter says it is the ambition of every Pacific Coast member that there shall be a good attendance of the American Association and that they shall be entertained in such a way as will make them feel repaid for their trip and will want to go again. As we write we can almost hear the bells of Portland pealing out their welcome, under the direction of Brother Pilkington.

"The spirit of fraternalism will be fully demonstrated in the fact that it has been officially decided that it is to be a joint convention. Officials of both the American Association and the Pacific Coast Association, at a recent conference in Portland, decided to make a four days' session, Tuesday, June 17, to be the business day for the Pacific Coast Association; Wednesday and Thursday will have joint sessions, and Friday shall be business day for the American Association. The programme and the arrangements generally are progressing finely, the entertainment features not being forgotten. As already announced the hotel rates at Oregon hotel are reasonable, and members should communicate with the hotel management concerning reservations.

"As to railroad fares. The exact summer tourist fares have not yet been published for all points, but we can here name a few. The fare out of Chicago and return by any direct routes, will be $72.50. The approximate fares from the following places will be: From New York, via New York Central, $111.20; from New York, via West Shore R. R., $106.70; from Boston, via New York Central Lines, $113.30; from Philadelphia, Pa., via Pennsylvania R. R., $108.05; from Philadelphia, via Philadelphia & Reading R. R., $105.80; from Rochester, via New York Central R. R., $96.30.

"It will greatly help if members will advise the secretary of their intention to go to the convention."

Surplus of Aschmann's Choice Plants, Better Than Ever

Unequaled Money Maker.

After Decoration day all florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not, no prosperous florist thinks of such a thing. Don't have your money in the bank idle. Nothing in the world will pay you better than to invest in growing asters of the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows; the Genuine Crego Aster, with leaves and an abundance of large trusses and big flowers, suitable to cut. Used at banquets (when cut flowers are scarce), table decorations, funeral designs, etc. It is also an excellent aster for pot culture. We have it in separate colors, pink, white, shell pink, cardinal, blue and lavender. We are well provided for and can meet the rush. 50,000 strong, heavy plants, 2½ in. pots are ready for immediate shipment now $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

Take the hint and consider what a big profit you can make by growing this aster, the Crego, for the latter part of July and in August your asters are ready to cut and bring a good price. Then what? Empty benches again, and you can raise another crop to replace the asters; this time for fall and Christmas trade, such as Nephrolepis Ferns of all varieties, Poinsettias, Cyclamens, Rubbers, Chinese or Obconica, Primrose, Jerusalem Cherries, Begonia Gloride de Lorraine or other winter blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solamuns etc. This is what we call a live florist, a hustler utilizing every foot of your bench room to good advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower you must be wide-awake, and consider that you have to realize $2.00 to $3.00 for every square foot of space in your greenhouse.

Our improved dark red Begonia Vernon and our improved Begonia Erfordii, beautiful pink, has no equal. A bed of these begonias, pink, the Erfordii, or the bright red improved Vernon, is a joy forever. Constant bloomers, stay always short and bushy, the hot rays of the sun have no bad effect on them. They can be grown in a sunny or shady place. We can sell you large 4 inch pot plants, either of the improved Erfordii, the beautiful pink, or the dark bright red improved Vernon, at $7.00 per 100; 3 inch, $5.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100; 5½-inch plants, 25c each; big plants, 25 at 100 rate.

Is Not That a Sight.

A Sight, yes! "the greatest sight we ever saw," explained one tourist to another, gazing from the other side and pointing at an old-fashioned house, on Boulevard No. 10 north, exposing in the moonlight a heap of waxy, large, white, fragrant flowers. "What kind of a vine is that?" they asked one another? It is that so well reputed, white flowering moon-flower. A gentleman hearing the conversation of the two, remarked that Godfrey Aschmann of Philadelphia was the man that raised them and shipped them all over the entire country.

It is a rapid grower and a constant bloomer, grows fifty feet high in one summer. Nothing better for quick shade; grows everywhere; on the garden walls on the roof garden, the barns and all over the house in a remarkable short time; thrives well in any soil. The botanical name is Ipomea Noctiflora.

We raise them by the 100,000 and it is one of our great specialties—35 years on the market. It bears an abundance of sweet, pure white, waxy flower as big as a saucer; nothing is more amusing than watching them in the evening when they open. 2½ in. pots, $5.00 per 100; 4 in. pots, $12.00 per 100. Now is the best time to plant; danger of frost is now over.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Mrs. George Shawyer

THE growers who are claiming that Mrs. Shawyer cannot be grown without mildew are welcome to call at this establishment and see for themselves whether or not this is the case. We have not seen mildew on Shawyer since Thanksgiving and any grower who has it is simply growing it too hot. A night temperature of 56 to 58 will suit Shawyer to perfection. We can still quote Shawyer and Milady first-class own root, 3-inch stock at $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000. Also:

Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, Taft, My Maryland, and American Beauty, 3-inch own root stock at $10.00 per 100.

Did you see this?

The new greenhouses are of iron frame construction and are thoroughly modern in every respect. They impressed me as being good business propositions from the standpoint of the commercial grower. The cost of construction was not materially greater than for semi-iron houses and they should prove decidedly more durable. Prospective builders of greenhouses should make a thorough investigation of iron frame construction as it is now handled by leading builders. There is reason to believe that in the future iron construction will rapidly take the place of semi-iron construction.

IT is taken from Prof. Watts' article concerning a visit to the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station at New Brunswick. It appeared in a recent issue of Market Growers' Journal.

Those of you who know Prof. Watts, appreciate the value of his statement, especially as he has not until recently become so complete a convert to the Iron Frame Construction.

Those of you who are not familiar with Prof. Watts' highly instructive writings, will be glad to know that he is a member of the faculty of Pennsylvania Agricultural College.

He possesses that rare combination of learning which not only knows things—but knows how things should be done, and the practical way to do them.

The first Iron Frame houses erected at New Brunswick Agricultural Experiment Station, were Lord & Burnham's. We have since built other houses for them.

We heard a statement made the other day, that "fully 75 per cent of the greenhouses at the various Experiment Stations and Agricultural Colleges, are Lord & Burnham's Construction."

Send for our new Iron Frame Catalog supplement. It shows some of our new Jumbo Iron Frame Houses.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Canterbury Bells.

There is always a demand in the spring for something different than the flowers which the buyers have seen all through the winter and many growers have a call for some of the force perennials. Canterbury bells are grown for this purpose and if well grown find a ready sale. Seeds sown now and grown on in pots, being shifted into larger sizes as may be required, will bloom next spring and help furnish the grower with a variety of stock. They should be grown cool during the early winter, a violet house or one of a similar temperature being about right, and then brought into a warmer house with a temperature of 50° in late winter where they will produce fine blooms for early spring. By bringing a few at a time into the warmer house a succession of bloom may be had.

Dracaena Indivisa.

The seedlings of Dracaena indivisa should now be taken from the flats and potted in small pots and placed in a good moist location that they may make a good growth before the fall.
A palm or fern house or one with similar temperature is the best for the small stock. The 4-inch stock that was not disposed of during the spring sales can be either plunged outside or planted in a frame, where they will not demand the close attention necessary in the greenhouse. If planted out they should be potted up early, at least by September 1, when the roots are active and will quickly obtain a foothold in the new soil. They should be heavily shaded for a few days after potting or some loss of the plants may result.
Any old plants that have outgrown their usefulness may be propagated, the stems cut up into small pieces and laid in a propagating bed with bottom heat where the eyes will open and young plants quickly form.

Ardisia Crenulata.

The seeds of ardisia may be sown at any time during spring and as it will take until another year to grow plants that will fruit it is not material at which particular time they are sown.
The seeds are a little slow in germinat-ing and it is better to sow them in the manner of sowing cyclamen, about half an inch apart. In early summer they should be potted in 2½-inch pots and are better grown in a frame than in the greenhouse. In the fall when brought into the houses they should be again potted in three or four inch pots and grown in a temperature of 50°. The plants are of a woody nature and grow slowly and should not be potted into too large pots, for it is far better to allow the roots to fill the pots before shifting. The following spring they will bloom, and should then be potted in 6-inch pots and given a cool location in the houses. After the fruit has formed and grown to good size the plants should be given a good sunny position that they may take on a bright color by Christmas. If the plants are grown too warm the foliage will be thin and lack the substance and lustre which makes them so much admired in the cooler grown plants, and the warmer grown stock gets chilled very easily, when the berries will drop off.

The only insect which infects this plant is the brown scale, which, if not destroyed, will cover the plant stem completely. These should be carefully removed and continually guarded against. If there are any old plants that have dropped their lower leaves the top of these can be rooted in a similar manner to rooting rubbers, that is, by cutting into the stem and mossing the cut after the roots have appeared in the moss, the top cut off below the moss and potted.

Gloxinias.

The gloxinias that were started in late winter should now be beginning to flower. After the flower beds have set they can be placed in a little shadier location and the danger of burning the foliage be obviated to a great degree.
The plants should be spaced far enough apart that they do not touch and a proper circulation of air procured around the plant. If the flowers are to be used in floral work they should be cut as soon as fully open and placed in water away from draughts and they will keep very well; these flowers are very fragile and should be handled carefully. If there are any particularly beautiful flowers that it is desired to propagate, the leaves can be rooted in the propagating bench by placing the base of the leaf in the sand to the depth of about an inch. The seedlings should be potted along for later blooming.

Cleaning Up.

The bedding season is over, the year's work is practically finished, the young stock for another year in preparation, and now is the time to clean house. Don't leave a lot of worthless stock scattered around the houses that takes a man's time to water, but what it is desired to save block all up together where it can be watered in a short time, and above all things throw out anything that has passed its usefulness. How often have we seen plants that would never have been of any value left standing in the greenhouses until fall planting; neglected, yet taking more or less room, to be thrown out at last and the houses never thoroughly made ready for the coming crop. Get the plants that need care and attention all together and clean up the other houses. If the stock is grown in benches these will need repairing, and if badly decayed take them down and rebuild. Those that have cement benches are fortunate for they will only need repairs. Throw out all the old soil and clean up under the benches and in all the corners, and throw out any old rotting boards or pieces of crocks, and thus get rid of the vermin that invariably infest greenhouses. After the benches are cleaned out, give them a good, thick coat of whitewash in which sulphur was mixed when the lime was slacking. The advantage of this is too little appreciated by many growers. It costs but little and the prevention from fungus will often amount to a great deal. After the whitewash has died throw a few ashes or a mulch of some kind on the wooden benches to protect them from the hot rays of the sun. Give the inside of the house a good coat of white paint; this should be done at least every other year, for the difference in the amount of light in a clean white house and a dirty one during the dark short days is material, and the increased quality and quantity of stock will more than repay for the expense and labor. Any repairs that the heating system needs should be done at once and the boilers cleaned up ready for fall. Too often the boiler is never thoroughly cleaned out after the last firing and ashes and clinkers left lying around in a moist condition, rusting the boilers. The steam boilers should either be emptied or filled, for if the water is left standing rust will form inside just above the water line and rapidly eat into the iron. These are all necessary details to be looked after at the earliest possible moment.

Fancy Leaved Caladiums.

It will soon be found difficult to obtain the quality of flowers necessary to maintain a fine window display, so attractive plants will be required, and the show houses leading from the store or office will need something with bright color to attract attention. The fancy leaved caladiums are beautiful plants for this purpose, and should now be nice plants in four or five-inch pots. Nice plants can be grown in these sizes and they are easily arranged in a bed of green sheet moss and are very attractive. For the young stock now coming on a very light house is an absolute necessity to obtain the highly colored leaves, and almost a full exposure to the rays of the sun. While the plants delight in a moist atmosphere, this must not be obtained by heavy shading, but by frequent syringing and damping down the walks and under the benches. The temperature should be kept warm and close, never dropping below 60 degrees at night, even if a little fire heat is required. They will require copious watering to keep the beautiful leaves in good condition, and considerable feeding to bring the high colors and large, full leaves. Should flower buds form they should be immediately removed, for they will check the growth of the leaves.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE hundred and thirty-fourth anniversary of Thomas Moore was celebrated at the Corcoran Art Gallery, Washington, D. C., May 28, by a number of the Irish poet's congressional and other admirers, and a beautiful wreath of Killarney roses was placed at the base of his statue, which is included in this great collection.

Outdoor Wedding Decorations.

Suspend from tree to tree garlands of white flowers to mark an aisle, using more and more white until within a few yards of the place of the ceremony, which should be marked with two white satin cushions at the foot of a tree or a bower of blossoms. If there is a gate at the entrance of the garden decorate it with sweet peas and place an arch over it strung with asparagus vines interspersed with sweet peas. A pink and white effect is always the most pleasing. For the ceremony stand two poles can be placed and covered with greens and asparagus vines hung to form a sort of curtain screen at the back and in the center of this suspend a loose spreading, down-hanging bunch of pink and white sweet peas. A large bunch of Pink Killarney roses can be prettily attached to the top of each pole, allowing them to hang downward at each side. This should harmonize with the central bunch, that is, flowers hanging with heads downward as does also the sash ribbon.

On each end of the sash ribbon tie a goodly bunch of orange blossoms. If trees are not available tree stumps can be utilized for aisles and arranged in ferns, moss and roses. The roses can be tied in large bunches at top with white and pink ribbon, using ropes of white sweet peas as connecting links. Or pink hydrangea plants can be utilized on the stumps for a tall effect and these connected below the pot with garlands of white field daisies. Or the roping of flowers can be made of pink hydrangea blossoms, which will give it a rich and massive effect. Tall palms should be arranged in a circle at the back of the poles, using the tallest in the center and gradually grouping them to smaller sizes well around to the sides. White matting should be stretched along the pathway. If a dancing platform is to be made have poles arranged around it and decorated in the same manner as the wedding bower. Palms should be placed around the sand on the outside so as to cover the structure. The poles can be prettily covered with ordinary moss. Then string garlands of roses around them.

Flower girls can scatter white rose leaves in the pathway of the bride. For the bridal table use crystal glass retainers in which arrange lily of the valley and pink sweet peas. Mark the individual places at the bridal table with garlands of lily of the valley. At the left of each garland tie a cluster of pink sweet peas with white soft satin ribbon. The bridal bouquet to harmonize with the decoration should be of lily of the valley and orange blossoms with a shower of white sweet peas used singly. The bridesmaids' bouquets may be of pink sweet peas. If a more elaborate decoration is desired, the dancing platform may be covered with a canopy of asparagus and garlands of roses stretched underneath from the different corners, using the small electric lights in the foliage. The musicians may be screened off with palms.

"The Genus Iris."

Lovers of irises owe a huge debt of gratitude to William Rickatson Dykes, who after years of labor has produced a magnificent work on these plants entitled "The Genus Iris," just issued. Those interested in the garden irises have long felt the need of such a guide in deciding many tangles of nomenclature and habitat. But this is no mere botanist's reference book, Mr. Dykes combining the scientist's analytical skill with all the grower's enthusiasm. All important herbaria and living collections of these plants have been thoroughly searched for information, including those at Kew, British Museum, Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Berlin, Vienna, Jardin des Plantes, Harvard, Washington Museum and the collections of M. Leveille and Prof. Terracciano. This has been supplemented by the cultivation in Mr. Dykes' own garden of all available species and the co-operation of a small army of horticultural and botanical specialists. Referring to the identification of certain species, Mr. Dykes says: "It is a curious fact that at least among the beardless irises each species has characteristic seeds by which it can readily be recognized, and we therefore seem justified in grouping together under one specific name the various local forms of this iris that undoubtedly exist." Elsewhere, however, it is stated that "little weight need be given to such contentions as that the mere size of the seeds is enough to distinguish I. Caroliniana Watson as a species from I. versicolor L. Different conditions of soil and moisture are quite enough to account for the differences in size given by Watson and he does not seem to have insisted on any other real difference."

While the cultural observations and experiences of Mr. Dykes have been mainly confined to Surrey, England, his treatment of this branch of the subject will be found exceedingly valuable and interesting to iris growers everywhere. The iris specialist will find much valuable cultural data under the various groups and species, but in a general discussion of this subject Mr. Dykes gives a vast amount of excellent advice in small compass as follows: "Perhaps the most important point of all is that irises are sun-loving plants. There are some few, such as I. foetidissima and certain Evansia species, that will thrive in half shady positions and others, such as the common so-called German irises, which will continue to live where they are overshadowed and get little sun. But these latter will produce few flowers and probably dwindle gradually away. It should be remembered that, even though a species may thrive in partial shade in its native home, yet our summers in England are seldom sufficiently hot to ripen rhizomes growing in such a position here. With regard to soil, the general rule seems to hold good that the apogon species thrive best in a moist alluvial soil that is rich in humus, while the pogoniris group do best in heavy limestone soil, provided that the drainage is good and sunshine abundant. Few irises enjoy wet conditions in winter, for growth is then inactive, but all appreciate moisture in spring when the flower stems and foliage are developing rapidly. When the flowers are over, most irises appreciate a period of rest, which is perhaps best provided by withholding the water supply. This does not apply to some apogon irises, and the Sibirica group especially is an exception to the rule. Other irises that do not require a dry resting period are Kaempferi, laevigata, setosa, versicolor, pseudacorus, and although the large spuria group is able to dispense with it there is little doubt that the marshy ground, in which they grow in the wild state, is baked dry by the sun long before the summer is over.

"In several cases irises, which in their native homes are bog plants, will not flower under these conditions in England and must be given comparatively dry positions. Thus I. fulva and I. hexagona come from the swamps of southeastern United States, but they will only flower here when grown in warm and comparatively dry positions. Nature has provided us with one infallible sign, which will show us whether an iris is a native of a dry or a wet soil. This will be seen if leaves of I. pseudacorus or I. versicolor are held up to the light side by side with a leaf of pogoniris, for instance, of I. Germanica. The latter will appear of a uniform green but the former will show a number of minute blackish spots, which on microscopical examination prove to be due to the fact that at these points the vertical channels in the tissue of the leaves are blocked by growths of apparently the same structure as that which surrounds the passages. The increased thickness of the structure at these points produces the appearance of the black spots. In dealing with new plants this character is often of great use and gives us a guide as to the choice of soil and position, for the presence of these minute black spots always denotes a plant that is a native of marshy ground.

"Two mistakes are very commonly made in the cultivation of irises; they are transplanted in late autumn and they are allowed to become overgrown from the height of summer onwards by carpeting or straggling plants. When either of these mistakes is made the flowers will be few in the following year. In the first place, autumnal transplantation is harmful to the plant because by that time the main roots have sent out their lateral branchlets which are broken and maimed when torn up and never afterwards take any firm hold of the ground. A little observation will show that the main root-fibres grow down into the ground to their full length unbranched. If, therefore, a rhizome is lifted when the primary roots are not more than an inch or two in length, no harm will be done if it is planted again carefully. It is obviously, however, even better to transplant before the new roots emerge at all from the rhizome and, in order to find them in this stage, the operation must be carried out immediately the flowers are over. The new growths will then develop and mature for the next year without the fatal disturbance of autumnal transplantation. In the second place, the fact that iris rhizomes grow on the surface of the ground seems to show that sunshine is necessary to their welfare. Whatever the precise effect of the sun may be, the fact remains that rhizomes that are smothered under the growth of other plants are apt to remain flowerless in the following year. Another common garden practice that is detrimental to irises is that of trimming off the leaves in late summer and autumn. No plant can assimilate the sap that rises through its roots until it has passed through the leaves, and it is therefore obvious that robust, sound rhizomes will not be formed, if the leaves are trimmed off while they are still green. It is only when they turn brown and come away easily at the base that their removal is a benefit to the plant, for they then only serve to harbor moisture and slugs."

In addition the volume covers exhaustively "The Literature of the Iris," Bibliography, "The Structure, Distribution and Cultivation of the Iris," "Iris Diseases and their Remedies," and there is an analytical key to the classification, followed by elaborate descriptions of the various groups and species, making a handsome demi-folia (pages 11x17 $\frac{1}{4}$  inches) book of 254 pages with 47 life-size colored plates by F. H. Round, one colored plate of seeds by Miss R. M. Gardew and 30 line drawings by C. W. Johnson, the whole substantially bound in half morocco. The book is published in the United States by the University of Chicago Press, Chicago, by whom copies can be supplied at \$38.36, postpaid, or they may be ordered through the American Florist Co., 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

June.

Come, with thine old-time witcheries of life,
Oh, thou full-breasted mother, hasten thee,
Lest on some winter-weary sense there fall
Too late thy rose, and humming of thy bee!

So late thou art! Through many pulsing days
We heard thy tread in heart of earth and tree,
And felt thy breath until each leafing vine
Yearned for thy sensuous touch to make it free.

Through barren months, all bleak and cold and gray,
We watched, like children through the muffled pane,
A tender signal from a beckoning hand,
But only saw frost-flowers through the rain.

Come, coax the shyest blossoms of the year!
Bless us, sweet mother! Make the palest smile,
And, with our storm-toughened cheeks against thy breast, Give us thy beauty for a little while.

No changelings call thee, for our hearts are thine;
Thou holdest that which keeps all things in tune,—
Rose-leaves and kisses, love and life's red wine,—

THE CARNATION.

Outside Cultivation.

The young stock in the field is a most important part of the routine work of the season, it being taken for granted that all such stock will be planted out before this period. The time of planting naturally depends on the latitude of the grower, and the condition of the season, it being poor practice to plant out before the soil is in proper condition to work, but at the same time one has to remember that the season is a short one, and that the plants are needed for planting-in by August 1 or even earlier if possible. With this in view most growers in the latitude of New York try to get the young plants in the field during the latter part of April or the first week in

S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa.

May, the plants being spaced rather closely in the ground on account of the shortness of the season of outdoor growth.

For convenience of cultivating, most of the work is done with hoes; it is customary to plant in beds of five rows each, with a narrow walk between the beds. This method is also convenient for topping, as the operator may readily reach the center row of a bed without any necessity for stepping among the plants. The frequency of cultivation depends very largely upon the weather, but it should be done often enough to keep the beds entirely free from weeds, and also to keep a shallow covering of loose soil on the surface.

Deep hoeing is objectionable for two reasons, one being that it is liable to disturb the roots, and the other that it is a waste of valuable labor. If the hoeing is done while the weeds are small it is much easier to dispose of these pests than when they are well established. In other words, the culture of carnations in the field is not especially different from the culture of many other crops in requiring freedom from weeds and a thin stratum of fine soil on the surface of the ground in order to conserve the moisture during a dry period. The first two or three weeks after the plants are put out in the field there should not be much topping required, provided that this operation has been properly attended to while the young stock was in the houses. But after that time in an ordinary good growing season it will be necessary to look them over once in a week or ten days, topping the shoots as soon as the growth gets long enough to handle, thus inducing a compact growth of well-balanced plants that will not only lift better when the time comes for that operation, but will also produce more flowering shoots for the coming season.

A warm and dry season in the carnation field means slow growth and a possible "crop" of red spider to contend with after the plants are housed, but these short-jointed and hard-wooded plants will scarcely feel the shock of lifting and replanting, while the larger and more sappy plants that are produced in a wet season will take much longer to re-establish in the houses, and are also much more liable to succumb to stem-rot and other fungoid diseases. In so variable a season as the present one, it needs extra attention to keep the flowering stock in good producing condition for Memorial day and the various school commencements, these being the chief centers of interest in the floral world at this latter part of the season.

Two or three days with a temperature of 90 degrees in the shade does great injury to the quality of the crop, and fireheat is a burden in the houses. Then come two or three nights with the mercury fluttering near the frost line, and some artificial heat at night gives a more genial atmosphere to the houses. Watering and syringing also needs much attention and occupies much time, for a combination of bright sunshine and strong wind, such as is not uncommon in May, evaporates great quantities of moisture from the houses, and without frequent attention with the hose some portions of the beds are liable to become over-dry. Light shading sprinkled on the glass helps much at this season in keeping the temperature lower, and also in keeping the color in most varieties, to say nothing of the advantage in size of flowers gained by the slower development. ### The Square Deal.

Paper by S. S. Skidelsky, Read Before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, June 3, 1913.

It is a rare week indeed that the news columns of our trade papers do not record some progress or other made in horticulture. I question if there is a man present tonight who will not concede that our march of progress along all lines in which we are engaged has been steady and uninterrupted, and that it will compare with that of any other body of progressive business men in this country. I need hardly dwell on details or draw comparisons between the men and their business methods of a generation ago and those of today. It is within the range of memory. I venture to say, of the youngest man present here, how the florist of the late eighties or the early nineties conducted his affairs, how he struggled along in his antiquated greenhouse, growing everything in general and nothing well in particular, how he worked and slaved and deprived himself, often of the barest necessities, in order to make ends meet, and how often he failed to accomplish even this simple object. But things have changed since—and for the better, of course.

The Society of American Florists, be it said to the credit of the leading spirits in that body, has done much to bring order out of chaos. Its annual conventions, extending over a period of three decades, are unquestionably and to a large extent responsible for the very progress achieved in horticulture. Who will question the tremendous advance made by the American carnation? May we not assert without a moment's hesitation that the American Carnation Society, composed as it is for the most part, of earnest, conscientious, hardworking and painstaking members, is directly responsible for the improvement and popularization of this truly magnificent American product? The Rose Society, although much younger in point of years of its existence, has already accomplished enough to win the applause and admiration of every rose lover everywhere, both amateur and professional. The Chrysanthemum Society may well point with pride to its own record. The Sweet Pea Society is doing its share, and is doing it most admirably, towards the sum total of the general good in floriculture. I may mention in brief the Gladiolus, the Dahlia, the Peony Societies, all of which are engaged in splendid work, well worthy of our financial and moral support.

The recent National Flower Show held in New York city, conceded by all those present to have surpassed the most sanguine expectations of its most ardent promoters and supporters, is but another proof that the American horticulturist has not only not stood still, but, on the contrary, has kept his pace well to the front in the general procession of progressive business men. If the National Flower Show, held two months ago in New York city, has surpassed that of Boston, held two years previously, it is but a matter of simple logic to deduce that we have advanced during the intervening two years to the extent at least of the improvement in the latter affair over the former one. And may we not, basing our calculations, hopes and expectations on the self same principle—may we not, I ask, reasonably expect, that two years hence Philadelphia may show even more wonderful results? On the whole, I think, we may well congratulate ourselves upon our success and point with pardonable pride to our advance along all lines in horticulture.

If I have digressed considerably from the subject proper I have chosen, namely, "Are We Giving Each Other the Square Deal?" it is my object primarily to present the subject to you, not from the standpoint of the fault-finder or muck-raker, but rather in the light of absolute impartiality, touching upon the good and the objectionable features in our inner circles, in the hope that some public spirited men in our midst may find a means and a way of adjusting matters for the benefit and welfare of every man in the trade. I must confess at the outset, however, that it is with a feeling of trepidation, although by no means akin to that of a guilty conscience, that I am approaching a subject, which may touch many a sore spot and, for aught I know, bring me into disfavor with some of my friends in the trade. Nevertheless, I will undertake the task.

It is high time, it seems to me, that we pause for a moment—long enough to take a general survey of ourselves, to look into our own shortcomings, to scrutinize our business integrity and our business methods with relation to each other, to take account of things that require improvement and adjustment. It may prove something of a jolt to many of us, when we discover that, much as we have progressed in our business, much as we have mod-erized our business methods with regard to the flower-buying public, much as we have improved things about our stores and our greenhouses, we have made but little, if any, progress in so far as we ourselves with relation to each other are concerned. My observations during a period of years, among all sorts and conditions of men engaged in the trade, have led me to but one conclusion; and that is, that "each for himself and the devil take the hindmost" is the prevailing sentiment. It is a fact beyond question, that often men, possessing unbounded energy, perseverance and business acumen—all the qualifications necessary to insure one's own success—are at the same time exceedingly selfish and narrow-minded. Carried away by the current of their own sordid interests, they either fail or do not wish to recognize the fundamental principle of "live and let live," forming the corner stone, the very foundation of true prosperity.

Let us take a casual glance at the business relations existing today between the average grower and the average storekeeper, retailing his product. What do we see? Are they working hand in hand for their mutual benefit? Do we find them in true brotherly accord, each considering the interest of the other and both striving to advance the general good of all? Hardly. When the much dreaded glut is on and stock of all sorts becomes plentiful—a veritable eyesore to the commission men—what is the result? The average retail man buys no more than he actually needs to supply his immediate demand. The fact that he pays but one cent for a carnation well worth three does not in the least disturb his conscience. On the contrary, he seems rather glad to get bargains. Nor does he concern himself with the economic law of supply and demand. If he can get seventy-five cents or a dollar for a dozen carnations costing him twelve cents, why, so much the better. It seldom occurs to him that in times of an oversupply it might be good business policy to take a "flyer" at a thousand instead of a hundred carnations, to reduce the price, in order to insure quick sales and thereby relieve an overcrowded market and benefit himself in the end.

To be sure, there are exceptions. There are men in the trade, be it said to their credit, who have long since recognized the expediency of facing circumstances and making the best of business conditions as they arise. I know several prominent retail men who are not at all averse to the idea of the bargain counter policy in times of an oversupply. These men reason thus: "When stock has accumulated and business is dull, it is the policy of department stores and progressive business houses in general to move staple commodities at reduced prices, rather than suffer business stagnation and financial loss. Applying the same principle to our own business, it is most desirable, that we florists, with an accumulation of perishable stock in our ice boxes and on our counters adopt the same policy. Let the rank and file, the working man and the working woman, buy flowers when flowers are plentiful, rather than stock our waste barrels with them. Both the growers and the retail men would be sure to benefit by such business methods in the end."

Unfortunately such men still constitute the exception and are in the small minority. In the majority of cases the grower is still looked upon as a source to be exploited, as a means to a selfish end. And when the grower finally rebels and his agent, the commission man, is forced to enter into a business transaction with the street merchant, or fakir, in order to unload his surplus—Oh, what a wail is raised! "The fakir is a detriment to the business," we hear on all sides. "He is a nuisance, he is no good; he should be swept off the street along with other rubbish." It seems to be the unqualified opinion of some retail men that it is the duty of the grower to protect the interests of what they call "the legitimate trade" regardless of all other considerations. If the stock, which he, the retail man, refused to buy finds an outlet on the street, the grower, in his opinion, has committed an unpardonable sin and should be tabooed. Granted that the street fakir is a nuisance, granted that it is a detriment to the business and that the less we see of him the better for the "legitimate trade," granted all this and much more, if you please, the question arises: who is responsible for such a condition of affairs? Has not the retailer the first chance to take up the surplus? Is it not up to him to devise means and ways of moving stock when stock is plentiful? We hear so much of publicity these days. What does publicity mean anyway? Is it an academic question to be discussed and debated upon in our club rooms or does it mean advertising, pure and simple, in the manner in which any other business man advertises merchandise?

There are some retail men, and these among the leaders in the business—who seem to be under the erroneous impression that their very dignity and their standing in the community would become jeopardized if they were to make special sales in times of an overproduction. "Why," these men reason, "Madam So and So, of the exclusive smart set, could not bear to mingle with the common herd who might be attracted to our stores by a plentiful display of cut flowers in our windows at special prices. It might harm our standing with our best trade." Would it? As well may a John Wanamaker or a Marshall Field dispense with their sales of the $1.99 woman's headgear during a dull season lest their $50.00 bonnets suffer in consequence in the right season. What holds true of bonnets and other merchandise holds equally true of cut flowers and plants. There is nothing gained by disregarding the law of supply and demand; nor is it possible to create and maintain inflated values on merchandise, the supply of which exceeds the demand, or at a time when business conditions in general fully warrant reductions in prices. The successful business man, we all know, is he who creates the demand and keeps things moving in and out of season, and not he who simply waits for better times without bestirring himself to hasten them.

There is, however, another side to the story. The grower in his turn is not at all slow to reciprocate or to retaliate when his opportunity presents itself. The holiday seasons invariably offer these opportunities to hit back, to hit hard and often in a way that makes the retailer wince with pain and wish that he were engaged in some other line. At such times not only do prices rise to inordinate proportions, making flowers a sort of prohibitive luxury which the very rich only dare indulge in, but the average quality of the stock thrown on the market is often of an inferior grade, by no means worth the price asked for it. Need I mention about pickled stock or flowers kept too long on the plants in order to bring them in just in the "nick of time" and thus make them yield better returns? How often do we hear about ordinary Beacon carnations bringing as high as $15.00 a hundred at Christmas time? What sort of a margin can the retailer make on such stock, especially when a lot happens to go to the bad and when his customer absolutely refuses to pay for such flowers at the time of settlement? Nor need I add that under such circumstances the retail man in general, and the small fellows in particular, have not the ghost of a chance to make their salt. Thus we see that an atmosphere of antagonism, and an undercurrent of enmity, as it were, exists between two progressive bodies of men, to the detriment of the interests of both. Instead of working side by side with the sole aim and object of giving each other the square deal at all times and under all circumstances, we find that the contrary is the case. Instead of regarding the splendid work that each one is doing as a contribution to the general good, we hear on the one side that if it were not for the retailer who educated the public and created the demand for all that is best in floriculture, there would be no growers, such as we see to-day, and on the other side, that if it were not for the grower who is enterprising enough to risk his capital and all, the retailer of to-day could not possibly exist. I am reminded of an argument between two boys. Said one to the other, "If it were not for the cow, we would have no milk." "If it were not for the milk we would have no use for the cow," replied the other youngster.

To be sure, both are doing splendid work. The retailer who educates the public and creates the demand for all that is best in flowers and plants helps the grower as well as himself. On the other hand, the grower who is enterprising enough to invest his capital and to assume tremendous responsibilities in order to meet that demand helps the retailer. One merely supplements the good work of the other. It seems to me that the time is ripe when retailer and grower should get together and organize a true protective association, an association that would concern itself with things pertaining to the general good of the trade; one that would aim to promote the interests of both. There is no need for a retail men's protective association and a growers' protective association, as separate and distinct organizations. Various irregularities and abuses practiced to-day as a matter of course could be then easily corrected and overcome. The man, for example, who rushes an advertisement into a trade paper offering all sorts of stock, "the best ever," away below the market price on condition of "cash with order, please," and sends a lot of rubbish instead, would soon cease such practices if a strong protective association took him to task. However, this is another phase of the subject, worthy perhaps of special consideration. What we need is an honest and well defined business policy, one that would insure the square deal to each and every man in the trade, be he grower or retailer. Let us ever remember the trite, but gospel true, injunction, "A house divided against itself cannot endure," and that "in union there is strength."

American Peony Society.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Peony Society will be held in Grays Armory, Cleveland, on June 12-11, in conjunction with the Ohio Horticultural Society. There will be no separate premium list offered by the Peony Society. Copies of the Horticultural Society's premium list have been sent to all members of the Peony Society. Further copies may be had by writing to John N. Stockwell, room 218, City Hall, Cleveland, O. All entries should be addressed to Mr. Stockwell as above. PRICES ARE FAIR.

Stocks of all kinds are still bringing a fair price. The best roses bring eight to ten cents, while other grades you can get for two to six. White carnations are not good. The price is very good for this time of the year. The local florists all claim to have done a good business on Memorial day both in cut flowers and plants. The demand for peonies was larger this year than ever, but the supply was short, for after 12 o'clock there was not a peony to be had from any of the wholesale houses.

TRADE EXCEEDS PREVIOUS YEARS.

The Memorial day business exceeded that of any previous year. There are those who say that it was better than Christmas or Easter. Although a large amount of stock came in from New York and other distant points, there was yet, in some quarters, a scarcity. Carnations sold at wholesale as high, in some instances, as $8 a hundred. The market is now quiet. The weather is much warmer and stock arrivals are heavier, excepting peonies, which are still light. In addition to the wholesalers the retailers express general satisfaction with the Memorial day business. A. F. F.

PEONIES DISAPPOINTING.

During the past week business was very slow, but it brightened up considerably towards the end of the week. The reports from Memorial day were fine from most people, the only fault being found in the peonies, which fell off very easily, causing many disappointments among the retailers. Some very fine Festiva Maxima were in, and cleaned up nicely as high as eight cents. The best quality in peonies was found in those which came from the Virginia fields. Carnations found very good sale also, the very best grade bringing five cents. A heavier cut was made on these than expected, and there were just enough to go around nicely. Sweet peas were also good, the majority being outside stock, which is much better than the inside eastern peas, which are coming in. Roses did not cut much of a figure, as the demand was mostly for hardier flowers. There have been quite a number of lilies on the local market, and prices have been cut somewhat in order to move them out. Callas are hardly ever seen any more but are not missed to any extent. Some early gladioli are coming in. They are fine and clean up readily. The outside roses are now commencing to bloom, and peonies in the local gardens are also out. German iris has also been prominent in the flower beds. Cattleyas are in very good supply but sell very poorly. Gardenias have not been seen for some time, but an abundant substitute will be found in cape jasmine, which will be in soon. An oversupply of green goods is prevalent, but ferns have not been so good as before, the new crops not yet having arrived. Green galax is very hard to get and the quality is not good.

GOOD MEMORIAL DAY BUSINESS

The day before Memorial day the florists were all very busy. The wholesalers disposed of large quantities of flowers. Carnations and peonies sold well. A great many pink Killarney roses were shipped to this market and arrived wide open and unsalable. Sweet peas did not figure much in the trade as the public desired as big a show as possible for the money for this day. A large quantity of cape jasmine were disposed of. Sweet peas from the outside are now in also. Outdoor daisies and roses influence the market greatly.

NOTES.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Anna Mullery, mother of George H. Angermueller and Fred Alves. Mrs. Mullery died Monday, May 26. The funeral took place at Bellefontaine cemetery Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. Many beautiful floral offerings were sent by the wholesalers and also by many friends among the retailers.

Mrs. Pelletier reported her Memorial day business as very good. She was so busy she said she hoped orders would stop coming in as she needed a rest.

Joe Ent of the Union Avenue Flower Shop had a special peony decoration in his show window for Memorial day. He reports big sales of peonies and daisies.

C. A. Kuehn was very well pleased with his Memorial day trade. He is getting a great supply of corn flowers, peonies and other outdoor stock.

The Alexander Floral Co. is shipping some choice Harrisii lilies to this market. They are handled by the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has several hundred peonies in cold storage, also a fair supply of fancy ferns.

The Meinhart Floral Co. reported trade as very good Memorial day. Elaborate grave decorations at the cemeteries were numerous.

MEMORIAL DAY CLEANS UP.

Everything in the cut flower line that was offered for Memorial day cleaned up at fair prices. The supply, while large, was hardly as large as was expected a fortnight before. With ideal weather and the usual good demand for flowers at this time clearances were a comparatively easy matter. Shipping business was good. Roses are in adequate supply. The almost strictly summer rose, such as My Maryland and Taft, are crowding the Killarney and the like very hard as far as popularity with the buyer is concerned. The American Beauty supply is good. All during last week carnations cleaned up very readily. Most of the offerings are of good quality but some are badly affected by red spider. Fortunately these are in a small minority. The lily supply is large and includes some excellent offerings of giganteum. These sold very well for Memorial day. A few candidum and rubrum lilies are offered. Both sell readily. Lily of the valley proves good property. Peonies are coming in strong. The offerings include many excellent blooms. The chances are, however, that the demand will not be very large from the present time until the end of their season. The green goods trade, especially in ferns, is very good.

NOTES.

Word has been received in this city of the death of the father of E. A. Potter, the leucothoe man of Shell Creek, Tenn.

C. E. Critchell shipped a large number of peonies for Memorial day.

Speed S. Kelly of Lexington, Ky., was in the city last week.

Columbus, O.

CARNATION SUPPLY SHORT.

Funeral work has been very heavy, using all the surplus stock. Memorial day dawned bright and clear with enough stock on hand for everyone. Owing to the weather conditions, the carnation cut had diminished greatly from the week previous and by the first of the week the supply was not equal to the demand. Stock is in excellent condition and keeping quality is good. Roses came in for their share and a varied assortment was in hand. Lilies are very scarce, while lily of the valley is moving well and commanding a fair price. Snapdragons and gladioli are selling well. Local peonies were scarce, the late frost and dark weather being responsible.

NOTES.

Since the Ohio Floral Co. has been under the direct control of Miss Alice Gill, business has again increased and reports are favorable.

Wm. Brust, whose store was washed away in the flood, is now associated with his father. His Memorial day business was large.

The Columbus Floral Co. disposed of a nice lot of imported French hybrid hydrangeas and Tausendschon roses for Memorial day.

A visit to the J. R. Hellenthal plant finds everything in first-class shape. Outdoor stock is in a thriving condition.

Ben Flynn and Mrs. Graff, wife of the late Wm. Graff, were married last week and spent a few days at Buckeye lake.

Sam Graff, manager of the Art Floral Co., had his store heavily stocked as usual. The way it went out was good to see.

F. C. Viereck will move July 15 into his new quarters on the ground floor in the Green-Joyce store.

The Riverside Floral Co. reports trade getting better with each succeeding holiday.

Sherman Stephens reports business very satisfactory.

Wilson's Seed Store did a fine business. L. S. B.

Omaha, Neb.

PEONY CROP LATE.

Memorial day week was one of the best weeks we had for a good many years. Stock was good and plentiful, except peonies which were too late. However, they came at the eleventh hour but not soon enough to do much good. They are plentiful now. Bedding plants this season sold fine; in fact, most of the florists are sold out of good stock. The hot weather soon will tell on the roses and carnations and the indoor sweet peas soon will be played out. The last three days the thermometer went up to 96° to 98°—pretty warm for May.

NOTES.

F. Martin, the pioneer nurseryman, opened a store and reports excellent business in his line. Mr. Martin has a good location near the big department stores.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., is rebuilding the J. F. Wilcox greenhouses, ruined by the tornado Easter Sunday.

The city gave the contract to J. C. Moninger Co. of Chicago to build two new greenhouses and rebuild three old ones.

H. Jensen, whose greenhouses were ruined by the tornado, has two houses up and is doing business at the old stand.

Hardin of Indianapolis, with Hill-Heller Co., called on us, visiting some friends of his in this city.

S. Murray and Miss Heyden of Kansas City, Mo., were visitors two weeks ago.

This city is very busy rebuilding old houses damaged by the tornado.

LOCAL PEONIES TOO LATE.

This city and vicinity has had a very wet and cold spring this year. In fact, for several years the seasons have been so late as to put local peonies out of the running altogether for Memorial day. Maryland, Missouri and Kentucky peonies are here in quantity and the quality averaged up pretty well. Carnations were quite plentiful and the best of them brought a fair price. Roses of all kinds were in sufficient supply to meet the demand, and stock gave entire satisfaction. Sweet peas were plentiful and in good demand, as were all spring flowers, such as daisies, calendulas, snapdragons, columbines, etc. Snowball was also on the market, but the wet weather caused it to fall off, which made it almost unsalable. Lilac has long since been done for. Iris in all colors was a good seller. Easter lilies had a good call. Callas are nearly over their time. American Beauty roses are beginning to arrive again with long stems and large blooms; in fact, they are a vast improvement over the last crop, and the month of June will see them in fine shape. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Kaiserin roses are showing better form as the weather gets warmer.

Casper Aull, retired florist, is again on his feet after having been laid up in St. Alexis hospital with a broken leg.

Long Island Notes.

Henry Weston, of Hempstead, who, we are glad to report, has rapidly recovered from his recent illness, is an extensive grower of carnations and general stock. He is president of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. of New York, and wholesales much stock, but has also a large local trade in his home town. He is not only a grower of carnations but an originator as well. A noteworthy feature of his range at present is a new variegated carnation which he has named Majestic, a very appropriate name, for the flowers are large and beautiful, on long and graceful stems. If Majestic is not the last, we venture to say it is the latest word in variegated carnations.

Marius Matheson grew carnations for the Cottage Gardens Co., of Queens, N. Y., for 13 years. Note the number 13 and then observe that this talk about its being unlucky is a relic of the dark ages. About three years ago Mr. Matheson started in business for himself by erecting carnation houses at Baldwin, or Hempstead, as his mail is delivered at the latter place. He has now 30,000 square feet of glass and has but recently finished planting, for the first time, a new carnation house 40x250 feet. A cleaner and more productive stock of carnations can nowhere be found. His stock is sold by W. P. Ford, of W. Twenty-Eighth street, New York.

Geo. Peters & Sons, of Hempstead, have practically doubled their glass area in the past three years, having now about 65,000 square feet, practically all in carnations. All the standard varieties are grown and their cut throughout the season has been very heavy. Even now, when carnations are supposed to be failing, their stock is clean and productive. The greenhouses are managed by George Peters and his son, C. J. Peters, while another son, C. W. Peters, sells the stock in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., New York City.

At Bayside we found a very interesting colony of florists, the ranges visited being more noteworthy for neatness and good stock than for large glass area. Bayside is a beautiful place, the streets being shaded with splendid maple trees, many of which were planted by the late Frank Millang, father of Frank, Charles, Joseph and August Millang, all well known in the trade of New York. Charles and Joseph Millang yet retain homes at Bayside. The elder Mr. Millang was a pioneer florist of Bayside.

Many improvements have been made within the past few years at what was formerly the A. L. Thorne range at Flushing. The glass area has been greatly increased and a large stock of roses in variety is grown. The place is now known as the Flushing Rose Gardens and is, we have been informed, owned by a corporation composed of New York men. Robert G. Caldwell is the resident representative of the company. The stock is sold by Henshaw & Fenrich of West Twenty-Eighth street, New York.

H. D. Darlington, of the Knight & Struck Co., has just recovered from a severe attack of erysipelas and is now busy superintending the repainting and glazing of their range as well as looking after the immense stock of ericas, or heather, a specialty with this firm. Their exhibit at the third National Flower Show was a most interesting feature. Mr. and Mrs. Darlington intend to take a southern trip in a short time.

The genial Joseph J. Bechamps, Chestnut street, Flushing, has a neat range with good stock and a fine local trade. He has, within the past few weeks, been considerably annoyed by cut worms in his carnations. If any reader knows of a safe destroyer of these pests he will confer a favor by having it published in this paper. We write "safe" because some remedies we have seen tried were worse than the cure.

Charles Lenker, of Freeport, was so unfortunate as to have a fire at his range last December, which caused him considerable loss and great inconvenience. He is now getting the business running smoothly again and we found a good general stock of flowers and flowering plants. He also has a nursery which contains a great variety of deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs.

August Kratt, who a few years ago started in business for himself near the Flushing Cemetery, now has a neat and well kept range and is growing a good quality of carnations, which he ships to the New York wholesale district.

What was once known as the Bell range at Bayside is now conducted by O. J. Mertt. He has 12,000 square feet of glass and has good carnations and various other stocks. His place is well cared for.

August Millang has recently opened a fine retail store at Madison avenue and Main street, Flushing. He already had stores in Brooklyn and Long Island City.

John A. Harth, Seventh street, Bayside, is another energetic young florist who is pushing to the front by growing good stock.

Charles Thienel, of Bayside, grows good stock and sells it himself in the Cut Flower Exchange, New York.

A. F. F.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—The fourteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Horticultural Society was held here May 15-16.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Three children were rescued from a fire which attacked the home of Pasquale Del Vecchio, florist, 505 Christian street, May 10.

DENISON, TEX.—The catalogue of the fall flower festival, to be held November 12-14, will soon be ready for distribution. Some attractive cash prizes are offered.

BOSTON, MASS.—Geo. H. Pieper was fined $5 for selling a potted plant to a special police officer on Sunday. Mr. Pieper said his store was open at the time because he was making up bouquets for children participating in a church parade.

ATLANTA, GA.—Irving Gresham, who is connected with the G. A. Dahl Floral Co., has leased the store and greenhouses of the West View Floral Co. He still retains his connection with the Dahl firm.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The Milady Floral Co., a new concern, has opened for business at 600 Albany avenue. The members of the firm are Arthur Calverley and Harry Mercer, both experienced and competent florists.

CLEVELAND, O.—Arrangements are nearly completed for the second exhibition of the Ohio Horticultural Society to be held June 12-14 at the Grays Armory. Peonies and hardy roses will be the principal features.

OBITUARY.

Lord Avebury—Sir John Lubbock.

Lord Avebury died in London, England, of heart disease on May 28, aged 79 years. Great and varied as were the abilities of Sir John Lubbock, it was by his family name that he was known to the reading world for his world-wide fame rests largely on his nature studies and writings. Many men engaged in originating and propagating plants have read his books, or some of them, and derived pleasure and profit therefrom. Of his works along these lines, "The Origins and Metamorphoses of Insects;" "British Wild Flowers Considered in Relation to Insects," and "Ants, Bees and Wasps," are the most notable. It may be added that he was also a great financier, statesman and philanthropist and it has been truly said of him that his life was rich in prosperity, usefulness and honor.

Thomas Wilde.

Thomas Wilde, one of the pioneers of western Michigan, died at the home of a daughter in Ottawa county, May 17, aged 79 years. Mr. Wilde was known as the originator of the flush strawberry and was one of the first to practice cross fertilization of plants in this county. He was also known as a raiser of fine apples. He was born in England and came to America when 14. Mr. Wilde was a life member of the Michigan State Horticultural Society and a charter member of the Grand River Valley Horticultural Society. He is survived by seven children.

He was well known in the wholesale district of New York, where he had many friends. He was 47 years old.

Rufus Abbott.

Rufus Abbott, a florist of Manassquan, N. J., committed suicide May 28. Mr. Abbott was well known in New York, where in past years he worked for several responsible firms. By all of them he is said to have been a sober, industrious and hard-working man. The only plausible explanation of his rash act is that his mind was temporarily deranged.

Thos. J. O'Hara.

Thomas J. O'Hara, general manager of the Huntsville Wholesale Nurseries, at Huntsville, Ala., died May 22 at his home. Death came as a result of Bright's disease. ### Elaborate Table Decoration.

Henri Duernberg, with Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo., was called on for a table decoration of unusual interest, the affair being a birthday celebration of a cotton broker. Thirty guests were seated around a table, fifteen by thirty feet. Practically the entire table was used for decorations, allowing only 18 inches around for service. The centerpiece was a reproduction of a southern cotton field. Every detail was carried out, from the cotton field to the banjo on the steps of the cabin. The plantation was enclosed with a country fence on which were entwined rambler roses.

Beginning at one end of the table was the usual old fashioned flower beds. The walk from the gate to the cabin was edged with more small beds, and on each side of the yard were colored children at play, guarded by the usual country dog. The log cabin, with the chimney on the side was be decked with a small coon skin. At the left of the cabin was the farm bell used to call the "help," and close by was a negro woman at a wash tub filled with clothes. In front of the washwoman was a half-strung line of bright colored clothes. There was also a small negro flying a small kite, the old rustic well, the cows, pigs and trees. On the back steps of the cabin could be seen a negro feeding the chickens. At the extreme left there appeared a bridge over a stream of water. Alligators and ducks were to be seen in the pond. Continuing from the bridge was a wagon road.

At the back end of the table was a cotton field. One hundred small bushes of cotton were used. In between them were negroes picking the cotton, with half-filled sacks, and on the road was a wagon filled with cotton. The usual water jug was found among the cotton bushes, and the usual hay stack was at the extreme left side of the table. All the articles on the table were made by Mr. Duernberg except the toys and dolls. There were more than two hundred articles in all. The entire room was beautifully decorated. Red beech sprays were used to represent trees. Around the lower edge of a trellise green beech sprays were used to represent cotton bushes on which more than two hundred artificial cotton balls were wired. Mr. Duernberg was remembered with a handsome gift for his efforts.

Rose Notes.

At this season mildew is one of the worst enemies of the rose, and special precautions are necessary to prevent its getting a foothold. The houses have to be left open so much and the sudden fluctuations of temperature are just the conditions suited for the germination of the spores, which are always present, and as the weather is usually too warm to require firing it is no easy matter to keep clear of it. Careful ventilation and a dusting of sulphur twice a week will act as a preventive and help to keep it in check.

During rainy weather if the temperature falls below 60° it is safer to fire up for a time than to take risks. Now that planting is in full swing, those houses which were planted early must not be neglected. Where root action has well started the surface should be cultivated once a week, stirring the soil to the depth of an inch. By keeping the surface in good condition the plants can use more water as evaporation will be perfect and, consequently, growth more rapid. Without this encouragement during hot weather the plants will come almost to a standstill, which is the preliminary to going back.

Staking and training should be attended to as soon as possible so that the air can circulate freely among the leaves, thus giving them a chance to become firm and of good texture. If allowed to scramble over the bench the wood becomes thin, the eyes break weak and produce a thicket of blind-wood which makes a safe shelter for red spider, as it will be next to impossible to reach them with the syringe under such conditions.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE VERY GOOD.

The Memorial day trade was very good this year and much better than the dealers at first expected. Nearly all the wholesalers filled all their advance shipping orders in full with the exception of carnations, which were very scarce, and in some instances of such poor quality that no attempt was made to ship them. The warm weather, however, worked wonders with the crops, and the stock began to arrive in large quantities on Friday morning when prices in certain lines began to drop considerably. Carnations were then obtainable at reasonable prices, and roses also could be had at greatly reduced figures. The peony market was firm until Thursday when prices began to ease up a little, due to the fact that some of the larger dealers began to move some of their inferior stock before the home grown flowers arrived. On Friday morning several large shipments of local grown peonies were received, and were quickly disposed of at good prices, but even then some of the houses could have taken care of several more orders. Good peonies held up well and there was plenty of this stock obtainable if the purchaser was willing to pay the price. White roses had a good call and sold at good figures. American Beauty were in good supply and there was plenty of good stock obtainable. There was a large supply of orchids on the market, but there was practically no demand whatever for them. Sweet peas were also very plentiful, and did not bring the prices that they should have. Double white narcissi were in great demand and sold well. Cape jasmine were to be had in large quantities, but did not move any too well. Easter lilies moved freely, but there was very little call for miscellaneous stock. Ferns were scarce toward the close of the Memorial day business, and the prices went up to $2.50 and $3.00 per 1,000. Taken all in all the wholesalers and retailers alike were both satisfied with their Memorial day trade, and in most cases agree that business during the month of May was very satisfactory. Trade Saturday was very quiet, and although it was a trifle better on Sunday, it was nothing great to speak of and reminded one of the usual lull after a big holiday trade. Stock at present is arriving in tremendous quantities, and there is now the biggest glut that this market has experienced for sometime. Prices are very low on everything, and no shortage whatever is reported. Orchids especially are seen in large quantities and the retailer has a splendid opportunity to make a magnificent display now at practically no cost whatever. American Beauty roses are quoted very low, and roses in general are being offered in large quantities at remarkably low prices. Peonies are increasing in quantity and are meeting the same fate as the roses. Sweet peas are very cheap, and the street fakirs who manage to escape the watchful eyes of the police are again reaping the harvest. The ice boxes in some instances are not large enough now to hold all the stock that is being received, consequently the dealers are taking advantage of whatever opportunity presents itself in disposing of their stock, which means that the buyer can obtain the stock he needs now in quantity at extremely low prices.

NOTES.

Vaughan's Seed Store employes held their outing at Western Springs, June 1. It was largely attended. A feature of the day was a baseball contest between Vaughan's Cubs and Vaughan's

White Sox. For five innings Pitcher and Captain Bernier of the White Sox held the slugging Cubs without a hit. In the fifth inning he passed two men, when the star of the Cubs, Neil, made a home run which cleaned the bases. The Cub catcher, O'Brien, with his strong wing flagged a good many men at second base. The pitcher, J. Tomzak, struck out ten men. The most noted feature of the game was the brilliant fielding of A. Littlejohn and Edward Goldenstein, star second basemen. Captain Bernier of the White Sox struck out four times, once with the bases loaded, which was very disappointing. The final score was three to two in favor of Vaughan's Cubs. All those who attended enjoyed themselves very much and hoped that before the summer was over another such gathering would take place with a return game. J. C. Vaughan, Carl Cropp, Mrs. Cropp, Leonard H. Vaughan and Carl Cropp, Jr., were in attendance and helped in many ways to make the occasion enjoyable to every one participating.

Wm. Gear of Cincinnati, O., returning from the Pacific coast, dropped in to see his old friend, A. C. Kohlbrand of the E. C. Amling Co., May 31. Mr. Gear was favorably impressed with the western country, particularly Idaho, and it would not be at all surprising if he would return there in the near future. He was royally entertained by Mr. Kipp of the Spokane Floral Co. while he was in Washington and his visit there was the most enjoyable one of his entire trip.

The Batavia Greenhouse Co. cut its first peonies May 31, which is one week later than last year, according to O. Johnson's records. This firm had a good Memorial day trade which was due chiefly to its magnificent cut of carnations.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. did a large business Memorial day and filled all advance orders in full. This firm had a tremendous crop of carnations as well as roses and all other seasonable stock, and it was a sight to see how well the force handled the trade. The stock at present is arriving in large quantities, including orchids and American Beauty roses. Otto W. Frese says that this firm filled one order on June 3 for 35,000 carnations and 10,000 roses.

D. E. Freres expects to move this week in the new store that Zech & Mann formerly occupied and which has been fixed up in fine shape since they vacated it. Mr. Freres enjoys a good trade and handles a fine line of stock, principally roses and carnations.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses at Joliet, was in the city this week on business pertaining to the new addition that his firm will make this season to its already large plant.

The People's Florist Co. has sold its store at 1736 West Forty-seventh street to Ernest Szontagh, a newcomer in the trade. Mat Kosta, one of the former proprietors, has just bought a new house in Morton Park.

Joseph Ziska, the well known wire manufacturer, is having a big run on hanging baskets and his force is obliged to hustle some to keep up with all the orders.

Fred Strail says that business was very lively at the Williams Flower Shop last week, especially on Memorial day, when a large number of orders were filled.

Mangel, the Palmer House florist, is having some fine window displays nowadays and there is no question but that this kind of advertising pays.

The North Shore Floral Co. had a fine Memorial day trade and is rapidly building up a good paying business.

A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s Memorial day trade showed a great increase over last year, both the local and shipping trade being much better than was at first expected. Mr. Vaughan says that the only thing to mar the day's business was that some of the peonies which were in storage had a tendency to drop their petals which was discovered fortunately before many shipments had been made. He thinks this was because the flowers were affected by the heat while in transit before being stored.

A. T. Pyfer has been performing the Chicago Carnation Co.'s office duties for several days during the absence of Miss Parker, who has been suffering from a severe attack of diphtheria. Joe Burns is now employed in this firm's shipping department.

E. E. Pieser says that Kennicott Bros. Co.'s Memorial day trade exceeded all expectation and that this was the best week his firm has had for some time. Peonies of course were the principal offering and this stock all cleaned up well.

H. E. Philpott of Winnipeg, Canada, was in the city on business May 31, leaving the same evening for Minneapolis, Minn., on convention matters pertaining to his committee.

Chas. Brown has been calling on the trade in the interests of the American Importing Co. since Ray Parker has severed his connection with that firm.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association cleaned up well in all lines of stock for Memorial day, when trade was exceptionally good. Local grown peonies from the Wellworth Farm Greenhouses and the Riverbank Greenhouses are now being featured at this store. J. F. Kidwell visited one of the peony farms owned by a stockholder of his firm last week and says that the recent frost in this particular place did a great deal of damage to the stock and that the owner, who usually cuts 150,000 flowers, would do well if he cut 25,000 this season.

Wietor Bros. had a large supply of stock for their Memorial day trade, which N. J. Wietor says was one of the best ever. This firm was very fortunate throughout the past year by having stock at all holidays and this time it was no exception even on carnations, for there were plenty to fill all orders. American Beauty as well as all other stock is in oversupply at their store now.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting heavily in yellow roses and home grown peonies. The supply of other stock is very large and the firm would probably welcome the orders now that it was obliged to cancel for Memorial day. C. L. Washburn is looking forward with pleasure to his trip to California and it is needless to add that he is entitled to a well-earned rest.

At Peter Reinberg's store young American Beauty roses in short and medium lengths seem to be the principal offering, although the supply of roses and carnations in general is unusually large. The Memorial day trade at this store was as good as in former years, with the shipping trade better than ever.

Percy Jones filled a large number of Memorial day orders, and trade was so brisk in F. J. Simon's cut flower department on the shipping days that the boys were obliged to work overtime so late that they had to carry the packages over to the express companies themselves in order to make the trains.

Zech & Mann moved into their new quarters just in time, otherwise they would have been greatly handicapped in taking care of their Memorial day trade. Business was much better than last year and all lines of stock were in brisk demand.

At Chas. W. McKellar's store Cattleya gigas are now seen in large supply as well as home grown peonies which are now the principal offerings. This firm was well satisfied with the Memorial day trade.

Gust Economopolus, a brother of George Economopolus, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Co., is now conducting the new flower stand in the Michigan avenue entrance of the People's Gas Building.

The Chicago Great Western has been named the Official Route of the Chicago Florists' Club to the Minneapolis Convention, August 19th to 22nd.

The peony show of the Horticultural Society of Chicago has been set for June 12-13 at the Art Institute, date subject to change as the condition of the crop warrants. The premium list is now ready and includes medals and cash prizes. Special prizes are offered by E. E. Pieser, W. W. Barnard Co., Peterson's Nursery, Vaughan's Seed Store and Kennicott Bros. Co. The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Union Restaurant, West Randolph street, on Thursday, June 5. Chairman T. E. Waters of the good of the club committee has made arrangements to have Madame Peony present, and in honor of her the president has called it "Peony Night." There will be quite an exhibit and an interesting meeting is looked for. A copy of the new by-laws has been mailed to all members.

The J. B. Deamud Co. had a good call for Double White narcissus on Memorial day, and disposed of all its stock very easily, but made a mistake by selling the stock too cheaply. Mr. Deamud said that the flowers which were in storage came out as fresh as daisies, but he feared that the market would slump as in former years, consequently he sold it at what he thought was a fair figure.

John Kruchten and his force had their hands full to take care of the Memorial day trade, which was the best ever, and exceeded all expectations. The fine peonies that this firm offered were quickly bought up by the trade.

Erne & Klingel cleaned up practically in everything on Memorial day, and enjoyed one of the best holiday trades that they have yet had. Peonies and Killarney roses of fine quality are now features at this store.

CHICAGO, ILL.

The North Shore Florists' and Nurserymen's Association held a meeting at Winona hall June 2, when the society decided to broaden out and invite all the local florists to join for the purpose of promoting and protecting the retail business. A circular pertaining to this will soon be mailed to all the florists, and it is expected that a meeting will be held soon somewhere in the loop.

John Carney, representing Buchbinder Bros., manufacturers of florists' refrigerators, with headquarters at 713 Milwaukee avenue, has returned from a business trip to Texas. The Buchbinder Bros. are so busy at present that Sidney Buchbinder, the sales manager, has been obliged to postpone a vacation trip to the Pacific Coast.

Ed Wild of Sarcoxie, Mo., was in the city last week looking after the peony interests of Gilbert H. Wild and the Frank H. Wild Floral Co. He says that this was the best year that either of the firms had, and that Gilbert Wild shipped 1,750 cases, Frank H. Wild 30 cases and Wild Bros. Nurseries 600 cases.

Phil Schupp was more than pleased with the Memorial day trade at J. A. Budlong's store, and reports a clean-up in almost all lines. His firm is now strong on lily of the valley as well as all other seasonable stock.

BIGGEST MEMORIAL DAY YET.

Memorial day did all that was expected of it and more, as the trade, both local and out of town, was larger in volume than ever before. Peonies were the feature and the demand was great. Toward the last the supply shortened up and thousands of buds went out that the dealers would have a great time opening up in time. The early part of the week was wet and very cool, which held them back. A couple of hot days, usual at this time of year, would have made a great difference. All kinds of stock was in demand, roses and carnations particularly selling up to the limit. Carnations are handled more easily now that the fires are out and gas is turned out of many of the buildings. Snapdragon is still fine. The larger varieties of gladioli are coming in and will soon be a factor in the market. Sweet peas have been in great demand. The coming week or two will see the market flooded with the outside stock, which should be fine, as the heavy rains of the past week was favorable to them. Some very choice Easter lily stock is seen. There is also a good supply of lily of the valley.

CLUB MEETING.

S. S. Skidelsky's paper on "The Square Deal" was the feature of the June meeting of the Florists' Club. He took up the relations between growers and retailers, taking the position that all should unite and pull together for mutual benefit. The national flower for Philadelphia in 1915 is to be the topic of the July meeting. Efforts will be made to obtain an entire floor of the Wanamaker store for the display. This contains about 125,000 square feet. The club outing is to be held June 19 at Washington park. The steamer will leave Arch street wharf at 1:30 p. m. Tickets, including dinner and boat ride, $2.00 each person. There will be lots of prizes for games and races for both ladies and gentlemen. Everybody come. Edward Reid, on behalf of the flood committee for the western sufferers, reported the collection so far to be about $500, and said the list was still open for more contributions.

NOTES.

John Welsh Young, one of the large growers of this city, is sending out signals of distress on behalf of his brother growers. He claims that average prices are so low that profits are not at all what they should be for the risks and trouble taken to produce the stock. Perhaps it would be well before taking this matter seriously to ask Brother Young to look around and see how much glass is going up the present season, and who creates the inspiration that induces the growers to thus get deeper in the hole.

An effort is being made to bring about a general decoration of graves on Memorial day and secure a business such as is enjoyed by the Boston florists. It can be done, or at least the demand can be made much greater and gradually worked up until the custom becomes firmly fixed and perhaps grow into a floral day of great importance.

The M. Rice Co. has inaugurated an early closing movement so as to give their employes more time at home during the summer months. Closing hours will be 5 p. m. on all days except Saturday, when the hour will be 1 p. m.

The Leo Niessen Co. is proud of its Memorial day business, it being the largest in the firm's experience. American beauty roses, peonies, lily of the valley and sweet peas are leaders at this time.

Berger Bros. had a fine demand for Memorial day, their shipping trade being much ahead of last season. Peonies and sweet peas are features here.

Orchids have been a factor with Edw. Reid, much of his stock grading high. Memorial day business was fine, a cleanup in all lines.

George Cook of Chester has opened a retail store in that city and is much pleased with his first month's business.

GRAYS ARMORY CLEVELAND JUNE 12-13-14-1913

JOHN N. STOCKWELL, Sec'y, - Room 218, City Hall, CLEVELAND, OHIO

New York.

The Memorial day business was good for the wholesale district. Except in carnations, which advanced sharply, there was no great rise in prices, but stock cleaned up very well. Most of the business was transacted on May 28 and 29, May 30 being a half holiday. There was considerable demand for carnations for the Boston market and the prices reached $4 and $5 a 100 for special stock. In roses there was no advance worthy of note. Peonies have been arriving in great quantities during the past week, and it is extra fine stock that will wholesale for $1 or more a dozen, 60 and 75 cents being the ruling prices. There is no great surplus of any stock, cool and dark weather having held it back. There are plenty of orchids to supply the demand, which is light. As previously mentioned in these columns, the leading retail stores of this city do but little Memorial day business. For the dedication of the monument to the memory of those who perished in the battleship Maine there were a number of fine floral designs. The Colonial Florists, Broadway and 157th street, arranged a fine piece reproducing the coat of arms of the State of Maine.

NOTES.

The great event of Memorial day was the unveiling of the monument to the heroes of the Maine, at Columbus Circle and Fifty-ninth street. The floral tributes were notable for their merit as well as for distinguished donors. President Wilson sent a wreath which was placed at the base of the monument by Father Chidwick, chaplain of the Maine at the time of the disaster. There were wreaths from the republic of Cuba, the state of New York, the city of New York, the secretary of the navy, the Association of Spanish War Nurses, Rear Admiral Sigsbee, and others. The tribute of the state of Maine was in the form of an immense plaque, 7x10 feet, with the state coat of arms worked in immortelles in the center. The ground work was of laurel and magnolia leaves. Among the local florists whose work was noted in their designs were Chas. Morley, Fifth avenue and Forty-sixth street; the Colonial Florists, Broadway and One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street; Drakos & Co., 2053 Broadway, and the Riverside Florists, 200 West Ninety-sixth street. For the purpose of making the monument site one of the most beautiful as well as interesting in New York's greatest park, Park Commissioner Stover has caused to be planted near the monument site what he has named the grove of fleets. This is just back of the monument, and Mr. Stover searched scores of the great nurseries to get scarlet oaks to represent the ships that fought under Dewey at Manila, while for the ships that fought the battle of Santiago under Sampson the Commissioner has planted red oaks, one for each ship. Finally, to complete his idea, he has planted the finest specimens of pin oaks, each representing one of the great battleships of the present day navy.

We learn that Governor Sulzer has vetoed the bill appropriating $60,000 for greenhouses for experimental work in horticulture and agriculture at Ithaca. Far be it from us to discuss politics or criticise Mr. Sulzer in these columns. We will, however, state a few facts about how money is saved and wasted—principally wasted—in this great state. Some years ago it was decided to build a prison, or as we understand it, an annex to Sing Sing. After $200,000 had been spent it was found that the site was not available and that the money was wasted. Another instance was an attempt to establish a rifle range near Nyack. After thousands of dollars had been expended on buildings for officers and men, somebody thought it would be worth while to get some men on the ground with rifles to do some shooting. They came and went into practice and the bullets flew over into the town of Nyack. The rifle range was abandoned and that money was as good as wasted. The greenhouses at Ithaca were needed. They were intended for a useful purpose, but the governor in his inscrutable wisdom has vetoed the bill.

MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

The number of beautiful and extensive cemeteries that are located within the limits of this borough are a source of business for many florists, particularly at the near approach of memorial day. The name of Greenwood cemetery is known throughout the length and breadth of this land and sacred memories of it linger in the hearts of many who to-day are dwellers in other countries. The Memorial day business of the florists located near Greenwood was greater this year than ever before. In addition to wreaths and bunches there was a strong demand for plants. Well flowered geraniums were not plentiful and sold readily at $1.50 and in some instances $1.75 a dozen. Prominent among the Greenwood florists who had heavy business were John Condon, James Weir, Jr.'s, Sons and H. Weber, Jr. The cemetery business of Brooklyn drew heavily on the wholesale district of New York for cut flowers.

NOTES.

Evergreen cemetery, or the "Cemetery of the Evergreens," is in the eastern part of the city, and near its main entrance we found several prosperous florists, the business of all, we believe, being almost altogether one or another branch of cemetery trade, such as caring for lots, planting, making up and covering graves with holly and evergreens at Christmas. All these florists have glass, growing a variety of stock, but they buy largely in the wholesale markets. K. Rodman, 41-43 Conway street, has a good store and was found very busy with Memorial day preparations. In the same block, 45 Conway street, Frank Albrecht, Jr., has also a good store and greenhouses. At 35 Conway street there is a similar establishment conducted as the Estate of Wm. H. Huil. Although these last named stores were visited early in the week business was even then very active.

Woodhaven and Richmond Hill are prosperous suburbs and several florists are located there. Charles F. Douglas, who over a year ago located at 11-49 Jamaica avenue, Woodhaven, has a good store and greenhouse, and in addition to cut flowers and plants is handling seeds, gold fish and aquariums.

S. Petersen has a store at 2913 Jamaica avenue, Richmond Hill, with greenhouses at Maple Grove cemetery. Frank Fluhr is an enterprising young man who now has the store at 327 Park street, Richmond Hill, once conducted by Charles Weiss.

Joseph Trepel, a brother of Charles C. Trepel, who sells the flowers in department stores of Bloomingdale Bros., Gimbel Bros. and Simpson & Crawford, Manhattan, has four stores in this borough, one being at Broadway and Decatur street.

Jacobs, and has a good store at 1392-94 Broadway, carries a good stock and is doing a good business.

New Rochelle, N. Y.

Business was good during Memorial day week, though the florists of this place do not seem to have any reason for complaint throughout the season. At the store of W. S. Hitchcock, Inc., we found business good. This firm is also in the seed business.

The Bassi Brothers, 202 Main street, have a good store with a neat conservatory attached, and we found them very busy. A specialty of this store is the following of the French styles in designs and decorations.

Mrs. Mary J. Patterson is yet active in business, having a well stocked store at 235 Main street, and greenhouses in another section of the city. She is one of the pioneer florists.

Thos. J. Wade, 295 Main street, is now turning his attention largely to nursery, forestry and landscape work. He takes contracts for repairing and spraying trees.

M. Chamoice has taken the greenhouses formerly conducted by W. S. Hitchcock. He seems to be an industrious young man and should be successful.

The nurserymen of this city are no inconsiderable factor in the trade. The Fifth avenue nurseries of Anton S. Peterson are well worthy a visit.

TRADE SATISFACTORY TO ALL.

Memorial day trade was highly satisfactory to growers and retailers alike. The former was fortunate in having fair, and in some cases, heavy crops of cut flowers nicely timed to meet the special call. Flowering plants, too, of all kinds in great quantities were available and all disposed of. The retailers were happy because of the availability of plenty of stock of all kinds, and this favorable condition was augmented by fine weather and the good supply of wreaths made of artificial flowers and magnolia leaves of which many were sold. The fast developing popularity of these effects in artificial flowers was never before so apparent in this city—and nearly every dealer is now awake to the possibilities in this line of stock and making the most of it. J. F. S.

WAUKESHA, WIS. — The Weaver greenhouses, which were purchased three years ago by the Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Co., have been sold to A. M. Model. Mr. Model is an experienced florist and will no doubt make a success of the business.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The California Flower Market has leased for a period of 15 years a new building being erected on Bush street; The building has a frontage of 58 feet 9 inches and a depth of 207 feet. Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Milford,
Conn., Second Vice-President; C.E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

THE onion set stand at Chicago up to date is generally good, with increased acreage.

THE Western Seed & Irrigation Co. reports that liberal acreages of Nebraska vine seeds have been planted this season.

ADVICES from Bermuda at the end of May indicate a possible shortage of the larger sizes of Lillium Harrisii owing to dry weather.

VISITED CHICAGO: Howard M. Earl, Philadelphia, Pa., enroute to the Pacific Coast; H. W. and John T. Buckbee, Rockford.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade June 4 for grass seed was noted as follows: Timothy, $3.50 to $4.50 per 100 pounds.—Peter Hollenbach is traveling in Europe.

J. C. VAUGHAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, accompanied by Mrs. Vaughan, is making a European trip, taking the S. S. Victorian June 5 from Montreal to Liverpool.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. Atlee Burpee did not go to California as expected, Howard M. Earl making the trip alone, leaving Chicago June 2. Mr. Burpee attended the exercises this week at the Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., where his sons graduated.

WM. HENRY MAULE, Philadelphia, Pa., writes as follows under date of June 2: "In response to your inquiry of May 27 would say that while the season the past year has been disappointing compared with 1912, in looking from the standpoint of 1911 it might be called very satisfactory. As 1912 was such a phenomenal year, it looks to me as though it will be some years to come before we can hope to equal it."

BLUE GRASS.—The blue grass experts predict lower prices the coming season on this article. It is stated that some 700,000 bushels have been carried over. The drought in early May has caused some of the plants to head out short, which may mean the loss of some seed. Weather conditions since the middle of May have been satisfactory and the prospects are for a crop between 500,000 and 600,000 bushels, which is considered an average yield.

NEW YORK.—The erection of the new Woolworth building on Broadway, Barclay street, Park place and Church street, has caused changes in the numbers of several trade firms located in that vicinity. J. M. Thorburn & Co.'s numbers now are 53 Barclay street and 54 Park place; Vaughan's Seed Store, 43 Barclay street; Yokohama Nursery Co., 51 Barclay street, and August Rolker & Sons, 51 Barclay street.—Chas. Schwake and J. S. Wilks are reported to have graduated from the salesmen's class to that of bulb merchants. Soon, no doubt, the home contingent of bulb dealers will be sufficiently large to challenge the foreign forces which invade our shores annually.

GUADALOUPE, CALIF.—Seedsmen visiting the Pacific Coast during June and July are cordially invited to call and inspect the sweet pea crops on the L. D. Waller Seed Co.'s ranch. Guadalupe is situated on the southern Pacific Coast line between Arroyo Grande and Lompoc, and the ranch is right at the depot.

BALTIMORE, MD.—An inventory of the personal estate of the late Joseph Ault Bolgiano, filed May 23, shows that at the time of his death, March 1 last, he owned securities worth $630,803 and $47,452 cash, a total of $678,255. This inventory does not include real estate which is valued at over $50,000. The business of J. Bolgiano & Son is now owned and conducted by the son of the deceased, Charles J. Bolgiano.

Peas and Beans.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 2.—It is well known that we can not expect many peas from California this year on account of the extreme dry weather that has prevailed throughout the state. To make it worse, we have recently received reports that frost during the month of May did great damage to the crop, even to the extent of ruining them in some sections. As California seems to have played a prominent part in supplying peas the last two years, we would hardly think that the reported large acreage this season will yield a surplus.

In the states of Idaho and Montana it has been altogether too cold and dry, and peas that ought to be a foot high are only above the ground. The crop in these states depends entirely upon the weather conditions from now on. Should another cool summer prevail in the west, many crops would be apt to be caught by early frosts. On the whole, the outlook for a big crop of peas is not at all promising.

As regards beans, planting has not commenced, as it has been entirely too cold. A. N. J. B.

California Conditions.

San Francisco, May 20.—Seed crops in California have now reached the critical stage, and with very little prospect for more rain, the growers are face to face with one of the worst problems for making a crop that has ever been known. Only in a few instances in the past has it been necessary to irrigate, and then only in certain localities, but this season has been an exception to the rule, and irrigation has been resorted to generally, as the only means of saving the crops. Another very bad feature is the lack of water in the ground, due to two years of light rainfall, and with little snow in the mountains. Certain sections of the Santa Clara Valley, however, from their peculiar location always receive a greater amount of rainfall and we are very fortunate to be excellently situated from this standpoint, having benefited by over two inches more rain than fell in most places, which has been of inestimable value. We are working both of the wells on the ranch, night and day, irrigating the whole ranch as far as possible, and although some varieties are several weeks behind in growth, from present indications we expect to have fairly good crops in general, excepting a few varieties of sweet peas, which were replanted after the killing frosts in January. The weather during the past few weeks has been ideal for growing, and all crops are looking much better as a result. Carrot and beet are looking much worse than at the same season a year ago, and all of the crops of these items we have seen are very badly spotted, quite a large percentage of the roots having died soon after setting out, as a result of the dryness of the ground. The principal crops with us, however, are lettuce, onion and sweet peas, all of which look fairly good for this season of the year, but while we believe we can get sufficient yields of lettuce and onion for contract orders, can only hope for a par-

R. C. M.

DENVER, COLO.—The Western Seed Co. says the sale of alfalfa, red clover, alsike, in fact all grasses and clover seeds have greatly increased this year, and mangel and sugar beets have increased 100 per cent. The market garden business has shown an increase over last season, but this was due to the fact that a larger territory was covered. This firm finds the market gardeners much discouraged and many short of funds, caused by the extremely low prices secured for their crops last season. It is said a great many have lost money and some were compelled to quit, especially the beginners, who anticipated the high prices paid for market garden products the previous year. In general all the seedsmen here selling seed in quantity have experienced a fairly good business.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The most notable event in the seed trade of this city is the removal, very recently, of W. E. Barrett & Co. to a handsome new store where they occupy five floors and about 40,000 square feet of floor room for their immense seed and implement business. But their friends will not have to hunt for them as they are still on Canal street very near to the old location. It was in 1848, 65 years ago, that W. E. Barrett, who founded this business, established himself in the unpretentious brick structure from which the firm has just moved. For ought we know it may have been at that time one of the best buildings in this city. It is substantial looking yet, but the march of improvement will probably soon sweep it away. One of the notable features of the new store is its excellent light, the front and one side being largely plate glass. The offices of the first floor are large and well lighted. The business of this firm is large and features of this season's trade have been very large sales of seed potatoes and peas.

ALTHOUGH horse-radish is known botanically as a vegetable, it is admitted free of duty because it is used as a condiment instead of a food.

SNAILS, usually regarded as pests, outside of France, where they are relished as food, are gaining a foothold in England. In Bristol this garden worm is becoming so popular it is carefully preserved and disposed of to the restaurant keeper instead of being destroyed.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 2.—Mushrooms, 15 cents to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 20 cents to 65 cents, small cases; radishes, $1.25 to $2.00 per 100 bunches; pieplant, 40 cents per box; cucumbers, 50 cents to $1.40 per box of two dozen; asparagus, 50 cents to $1.00 for 24 bunches.

New York, May 31.—Cucumbers, 30 cents to 90 cents per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 10 cents to 15 cents per pound; radishes, 75 cents to $1.25 per 100 bunches; rhubarb, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; lettuce, 50 cents to $3.00 per basket, crate or barrel.

Soil Fertility in Germany.

Fertilizers are used in Germany in growing measure and already to a far greater extent than in the United States. There are, indeed, few countries in which the per acre expenditure for fertilizers is as high as in Germany. The German Agricultural Society (Deutsche Landwirtschafts-Gesellschaft), an officially recognized association of German agriculturists, states that existing laws contain no provision looking to the maintenance of the fertility of farm land. The old Prussian code or "Landrecht" provided that a farmer who was unreasonably negligent might be compelled to abandon his land; but there is no record of the provision having ever been enforced, and it was omitted from the existing civil code. The theory of the old law was that the farmer held his land as a trust.

In earlier times very stringent clauses were regularly inserted in leases with a view to the preservation of the fertility of the land. They dealt with the rotation of crops and other methods of cultivation, including manuring, and usually contained an absolute prohibition of the sale of straw, hay, natural manure, etc. It is the present custom, brought about by the introduction of artificial fertilizers and a better scientific appreciation of agricultural methods, to leave all such stipulations out of leases as far as possible and to prescribe merely that when hay, straw, natural manure, etc., are sold, artificial manure in corresponding quantity shall be purchased and added to the ground.

Red Peppers.

Red peppers form the subject of bulletin 163, by L. M. Tolman and L. C. Mitchell, issued by the bureau of chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. In it all varieties of red pepper used in the United States are described and analyzed. The same variety of red peppers, grown under different climatic and cultural conditions, yields products adapted to different uses. We import wild chillies from Mombasa and Zanzibar, gathered by a semi-civilized population and dried on the ground, so that they come to us covered with dirt and sand and must be cleaned before grinding. They are ground and used principally as spices. On the other hand, the cultivated Japanese chillies are used unground in the preparation of chilli sauce. Similarly the Hungarian paprika is prized as a spice, while the Spanish paprika has a distinct commercial use as a coloring for such products as sausage and tomato ketchup.

The investigators of the bureau sought to determine the normal composition of the various red peppers, with special reference to the deviations in amounts of ash, sand, ether extract and crude fiber, and also to study the distinctive odor, flavor, and taste, that the part of the fruit to which the characteristic properties are due may be known. Another object has been to investigate the effect on the composition of ground pepper of including or excluding seeds or stems, for the purpose of detecting their presence or absence.

An interesting point noted is that the pungent principle occurs almost exclusively in the placenta, a thin membranous partition inside the shell. In some cases, however, a better result is obtained by grinding the seed with the rest of the fruit, as the oil freed in this way dissolves the color of the product and apparently develops the flavor and aroma.

Pollinating Tomatoes.

Beginners do not realize the importance of properly pollinating tomato blossoms. Without proper pollination perfect fruit is impossible early in the season. Too often only part of the pistil is covered, which results in one-sided fruit and these are either unsalable or bring a low price. The object of fruit setting being seed-bearing, and seed bearing being again dependent upon pollination or fecundation, one can readily see the importance upon a little reflection. Later in the season, under high temperature, low moisture and ample wind currents natural pollination is easy and ample but up to about June 15 some help is beneficial. We need not go to the trouble of winter work, such as a camel's hair brush or small spoon. Generally a smart snap with the finger or even a good jar to the plant is ample. Where tied to overhead vines a smart rap on the wires often does the trick rapidly. The proper time is in the late forenoon, say from 10 to 12 o'clock. The writer has in mind a large place where no pollination was done. He was there several months and carrying his lunch, he spent the spare noon minutes snapping tomato blossoms in one section. Soon the fine fruit cluster attracted attention, and it was amusing to see every one have an explanation save the right one. Thus the soil, the variety, the aspect of the house, the watering, etc., each was in turn accountable, when in fact all these had nothing to do with the result.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Thomas B. Meehan, Dresher, Pa., President; J. B. Filkington, Portland, Ore., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-eighth annual convention to be held at Portland, Ore., June 18-20, 1913.

NURSERYMEN and importers of plants should write to the United States department of agriculture for circular No. 44, containing the latest rules and regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act, issued May 26, 1913.

THE American Peony Society's annual convention and exhibition will be held this year in connection with the Ohio Horticultural Society at Grays Armory, Cleveland, June 12-14. Copies of the premium list can be had on application to Secretary John N. Stockwell, room 218, City Hall, Cleveland, O.

The Harmony Nurseries.

The Harmony Nurseries, a new industry for the town, have recently located at Harmony Junction, Pa. H. L. Blind is in charge. Twenty-three acres of land have been acquired and it is the intention to develop an extensive greenhouse, gardening and nursery plant.

Australian Timber Resources.

A recently issued report of the New South Wales Department of Forestry deals comprehensively with the forest growths of the Bellingen river, which is one of the chief timber-producing districts of that Australian state. Originally, it is stated, the Bellingen river watershed was entirely forested. Exploitation began about 1850, and since that date it is estimated 300,000,000 feet of timber have been utilized and 500,000,000 feet destroyed by settlers' clearing operations. As in all countries, the report says, settlement has taken place at the cost of the forests, and vast quantities of useful material have been more or less unavoidably wasted. The alluvial flats of the main river were the first to go, and with them went the bulk of the softwood wealth of the Bellingen. Today the timber industry is maintained wholly by the hardwood forests.

White Pine Blister Rust.

NOTICE OF QUARANTINE NO. 7.

The fact has been determined by the Secretary of Agriculture that a tree disease known as white pine blister rust (Peridermium strobi Kleb.), new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in Europe and Asia.

Now, therefore, I, David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, under authority conferred by section 7 of the act approved August 20, 1912, known as "The Plant Quarantine Act," do hereby declare that it is necessary, in order to prevent the introduction into the United States of the white pine blister rust, to forbid the importation into the United States from each and every country of Europe and Asia of all five-leaved pines.

Hereafter and until further notice, by virtue of said section 7 of the act of Congress approved August 20, 1912, the importation for all purposes of all five-leaved pines from the countries named is prohibited.

This notice of quarantine amends and supersedes notice of quarantine No. 1 promulgated September 16, 1912, and shall be effective until otherwise ordered.

D. F. HOUSTON,

Secretary of Agriculture.

CHAIRMAN MARLATT'S EXPLANATION.

Chairman C. L. Marlatt of the Federal Horticultural Board in referring to the brief notice given of public hearing on the white pine blister rust quarantine, regrets that so little time was given in the matter. "It is the custom and general practice, where possible, to give a month's notice for these hearings. In this particular instance the regulations governing the importation of nursery stock were going through the press, having already been submitted to the committee of nurserymen for inspection, and it became necessary to make some modification of quarantine No. 1, in relation to the white pine blister rust. This modification had to be made promptly, so as to incorporate it in the regulations and new forms—permits, etc. As demands are piling up for these permits for the new year, there was no time for delay, hence the lack of lengthy notice.

"The change in the quarantine in the case of the white pine blister rust is not very material, and probably will not affect ordinary importations of nursery stock. It amounts to making the quarantine apply to five-leaved pines rather than to certain pines named specifically, and to European and Asiatic countries rather than to an enumeration of such countries. The original quarantine enumerated most of the important countries of Europe and Asia, but left out some less important ones without reason. The species scientifically named in the original quarantine included practically all of the five-leaved pines. The omitted five-leaved pines, however, should also have been included as, perhaps, equally dangerous. The designation, therefore, 'five-leaved pines' is a better one and, furthermore, calls attention to an easy means of determination of pines by inspectors."

Unequaled Money Maker.

After Decoration day all florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not, no prosperous florist thinks of such a thing. Don't have your money in the bank idle. Nothing in the world will pay you better than to invest in growing asters of the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows: the Genuine Crego Aster, with leaves and an abundance of large trusses and big flowers, suitable to cut. Used at banquets (when cut flowers are scarce), table decorations, funeral designs, etc. It is also an excellent aster for pot culture. We have it in separate colors, pink, white, shell pink, cardinal, blue and lavender. We are well provided for and can meet the rush. 50,000 strong, heavy plants, 2½-in. pots are ready for immediate shipment now $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

Take the hint and consider what a big profit you can make by growing this aster, the Crego, for the latter part of July and in August your asters are ready to cut and bring a good price. Then what? Empty benches again, and you can raise another crop to replace the asters; this time for fall and Christmas trade, such as Nephrolepis Ferns of all varieties, Poinsettias, Cyclamens, Rubbers, Chinese or Obconica, Primrose, Jerusalem Cherries, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine or other winter blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solanums, etc. This is what we call a live florist, a hustler utilizing every foot of your bench room to good advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower you must be wide-awake, and consider that you have to realize $2.00 to $3.00 for every square foot of space in your greenhouse.

Our improved dark red Begonia Vernon and our improved Begonia Erfordii, beautiful pink, has no equal. A bed of these begonias, pink, the Erfordii, or the bright red improved Vernon, is a joy forever. Constant bloomers, stay always short and bushy, the hot rays of the sun have no bad effect on them. They can be grown in a sunny or shady place. We can sell you large 4-inch pot plants, either of the improved Erfordii, the beautiful pink, or the dark bright red improved Vernon, at $7.00 per 100; 3-inch, $5.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100; 5½-inch, plants, 25c each; big plants, 25 at 100 rate.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Concerning Certain Somewhat Misleading Curved Eave Claims

WE want to give you the real facts on certain patent claims concerning curved eave construction.

The curved eave itself is no more patentable than is a round or a square column.

The manner of reinforcing or constructing curved eaves may be—the courts have never decided that.

We built curved eave houses ten years ago, long before any patent was issued on the flat rafter type. Our method of constructing them now is the same as then.

No one constructs curved eaves the way we do.

When it comes to the possibility of buyers of our houses being sued for infringement—such a thing need be given absolutely no consideration.

THE ALLIED TRADES

NIKOTIANA is a new nicotine preparation recently put on the market by the Aphine Manufacturing Co., Madison, N. J., manufacturers of Aphine and other preparations for use on plants. This new preparation is said to contain 12 per cent of free nicotine, and the manufacturers claim to have a large supply of the raw material from which it is made.

Chicago Notes.

The Pulverized Manure Co., 32 Union Stock Yards, is now situated so that it can again take care of all orders. This firm has been in business about seven years and controls the output of the Union Stock Yards as well as a large yard in St. Louis, Mo. It also has large storage plants at both of its places and had some 3,000 tons of finished products on hand on January 1, 1913. Business continues to be so good that Dwight L. Harris, a member of the firm, does not agree with those less fortunate who think that this grand old country is not in a very prosperous condition.

The John C. Moninger Co. has secured the contract to furnish the materials for the new Chicago University conservatory and also for the new addition to the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s plant at Joliet. Otto Hirschfeld, its agent at Cincinnati, O., has secured the contract to build a new

The Adam Schillo Lumber Co., Hawthorne and Weed streets, reports a shortage in pecky cypress and bench lumber but expects conditions to change soon and to again be in a position to fill all orders. The Schillo company is known near and far as cypress specialists and commands a good trade in this territory.

The Illinois Metals Co., 2440 West Twenty-second street, now has a new nozzle for the Anti-Klog sprayer that it manufactures and which Manager J. B. Burke says is a great improvement over the old one.

What the Users Say

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down.

I have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

G. M. THOST,
De Soto, Mo.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron.

The Kroeschell boiler is indeed a dandy and beats any cast iron boiler we have had any experience with.

Respectfully,
A. M. BECKRINK,
Jamestown, N. Y.

Try the Kroeschell First—It's Ahead of Them All.

I have had eight or ten other types of boilers. The Kroeschell is the best I have ever used. Your boiler heats the water very quickly—almost as fast as steam.

Yours very truly,
H. K. LEWIS,
Dorothy, N. J.

HAS THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF HEATING VALUES.

Immense Self-Cleaning Heating Surface—Long Fire Travel—Perfect Combustion—Free Circulation—Thin Waterways—Guaranteed Working Capacities—Safety—Durability—Efficiency and Economy.

What the Users Say

Cast Iron Boilers Crack.

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13th. I had a breakdown; one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same; so I got you on telephone at 8:30 a. m. January 13th and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15th, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of the same glass as the two cast iron boilers had done, easier and better in every way. (Signed) ANDREW BATHRR,
Clinton, Iowa.

Kroeschell Boiler Half the Coal and Half the Work.

Your No. 13 boiler is carrying 25,000 sq. ft. of glass and I can keep it at 60° in the coldest weather without any trouble. I have three cast iron boilers also heating a range of 25,000 sq. ft. of glass, but the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler only takes half the coal and half the work to get the same results. J. G. FRISZ, Vincennes, Ind.

Kroeschell Better Than Cast Iron.

I bought a No. 6 boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass and we could add 3,000 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill. M. C. WARD, Quincy, Mass.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Calceolarias.

A plant that always attracts attention and is as decorative as a cineraria or other plants of that kind, and yet but little grown, is the calceolaria.
The culture is very similar to that of the cineraria and is fully as easy. The seeds should be sown at once and shaded until they have produced one or two leaves when the shade should be made lighter. As soon as large enough they should be potted into small pots and shifted along into larger sizes as fast as is required.
They should, as soon as well established, be given a light, airy location not shady enough for them to become drawn, but if in the full sunlight will have to be watched closely that they do not get dry. They will require cool quarters during the winter, if nice stocky plants are desired, and under this treatment fine 6-inch pot plants may be had in bloom in early spring that will surely attract attention. For the last potting a good rich soil will be required and when they begin to bloom watering with liquid manure will be beneficial. Like the cineraria they are quickly ruined by aphid and constant fumigation will be necessary. Many growers stand the plants on tobacco stems which are renewed as the strength is lost.

Bougainvilleas.

The plants of bougainvilleas that are through blooming should be cut back into shape and potted in preparation for the next season's growth. Much depends upon the summer care of all hard-wooded stock if nice specimens are to be grown. They should be plunged outside in a frame or placed in full sun in a light airy house. Outside culture is far preferable for all this class of stock in order that a good strong growth, well furnished with foliage, may be assured. Be sure that they never get too dry. The great danger of all hard-wooded stock is letting it dry out, for it does not show it as quickly as the softer growing plants but the check is more severe and the plants seldom fully recover from it.
The young stock rooted earlier should be placed in a similar location, and kept well pinched back into shape, until enough shoots have been obtained to insure a good shapely plant, when they can be allowed to grow freely, but any extra strong leaders are better cut back during the season. Any chance flowers that show should be picked off at once, that a good strong stocky plant may be obtained and the strength all retained for that purpose.

Freesias.

A crop of freesias, or a few plants in pots in bloom, at Christmas is a valuable asset on that holiday. In order to have them in bloom at that time the bulbs should be planted by July 1. Select the large strong bulbs, and by careful inspection many will be found on which the root eyes are beginning to swell. These will make the earliest blooming plants, and this selecting will produce plants that will all bloom at the same time. The bulbs should be planted in a good soil enriched with well rotted manure, but no fresh manure; it is a well understood principle that bulbs of all kinds do not grow well in soil full of fresh manure. Eight to ten large bulbs in a 6-inch pot will give the best results.
The pots should be well watered and placed in a dark, cool place until the shoots appear above the ground, when they should be given a light location.
As soon as the growths get tall enough they should be staked and tied. By continual early selection of the bulbs, and keeping the earliest separate, an early strain can be assured.

Oleanders.

A plant that does not receive the attention that it should is the oleander. While there probably would not be a large demand for this plant, yet it is an old time favorite, and well grown specimens in bloom are a valuable addition to a porch or lawn. They are too often so sadly neglected that they get unshapely and far from being an ornament, but a little attention to trimming them into shape after they get through blooming will keep them in good condition. They can be wintered in any cool quarters, and if brought into the heat and light in early spring will be full of bloom in June and July and a valuable decorative plant. The cuttings root easily and at any time when the plant is in growth, and grow very rapidly for a hard-wooded plant. Any florist carrying a line of assorted stock should include a few of these in the variety which he cultivates. The only insect which troubles them is the mealy bug, but a good frequent hard syringing will soon dislodge them.

Poinsettias.

The propagation of poinsettias should be pushed to the utmost at this time, for it is the plants that are rooted early in July that make the best single specimens at Christmas. Those that are rooted later in July and during August will make fine plants for pans, placing four to eight plants in a 6-inch or 8-inch pan, for they will be much shorter than those rooted early in July. The plants that were rooted earlier should now be growing nicely and should be shifted into larger pots as soon as they require it; under no circumstances allow them to become pot-bound until the bracts begin to set in November. They should be placed in the bright sun as soon as strong enough to endure it, that the growth may be short and sturdy and the leaves as close together as is possible. A long, drawn plant grown in the shade, with the leaves far apart, is not the typical plant for the holidays and does not meet with approval.

Nephrolepis.

Probably no plant that the florist grows gives more return for the labor spent in its culture or the space that it occupies than the Boston fern and its various sports. The old Boston is still, however, the easiest to handle and grow. The plants should be re-potted every year, and with good treatment are sure of making nice plants. Any plants that are in poor condition can be divided and with the young stock planted in a bench of good rich soil. The house should be shaded enough to assure of good color on the foliage but not heavy enough to prevent the house being maintained at a good high temperature. During the day the house should stand at about 80 degrees with a little ventilation which should be closed down before the sun leaves the houses. The plants can be set six inches apart and the soil should be two parts loam, one part leaf mold, and one part rotted manure. The house should be frequently syringed to keep a moist atmosphere. Under these conditions fine plants can be produced from young stock in three months. In September they should be lifted and placed in 6-inch pots, if single specimens are desired, or three or four plants can be placed in a 9-inch or 10-inch pot if larger plants are wanted. In lifting the plants they can be cut around about two inches from the crown, and lifted with a trowel leaving the runners in the bench, if the place they occupy is not wanted at once. The runners will immediately break into small plants which can be placed in flats for young stock for the next season. The finer varieties of this fern such as Whitmani do not submit to the lifting and potting as well as the old Boston and better plants can be obtained by potting along into larger pots as may be required. The only insects that trouble these ferns are the brown scale, and the plants should be kept clean from these either by washing, or spraying with aphine, or a weak nicotine solution.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Flowers for the Steamers.

It is quite the usual thing at this time of the year for an Atlantic liner to go to sea with a great quantity of cut flowers on board as parting gifts. Of course these gifts have to be disposed of after the vessel gets past Sandy Hook. They have to be removed from the saloon before the first meal. An elaborate piece is taken to the music room for exhibition, but the majority of flowers are sent to the cabin of the person or persons for whom they were intended. Flowers for passengers are not taken to the cabins when they reach the vessel unless specially marked. Most of them are intended as surprises to the recipients who know nothing about them until they see them in the general display in the saloon. It sometimes happens that some special bunch of flowers of sentimental significance has been sent to the cabin so that the recipient will see it after the last good-byes have been said. Most of the flowers, however, are taken to the saloon.

Baskets fitted with water retainers offer the best opportunity for keeping cut flowers sent to steamers. All of our best florists are now using this method instead of mossing. Even for the flowers on the handles small phials of glass are filled with water and deftly hidden by ribbon bows and streamers are used. A card is usually attached stating that the basket contains water and should be handled with care and also a suggestion that the retainers be refilled when delivered at the home. The florist messenger informs the butler or maid of the water. This is the very newest thought in flower arrangement and is a very practical one. This was particularly noticeable at a recent wedding reception where a great number of fancy handle baskets were arranged around the different rooms, for those containing water held their crisp freshness to the very last while those arranged in moss showed a withering effect. This new idea is not at all common among our florists but should be followed generally, for it gives an added value in lasting quality and also enables the florist to arrange and prepare these baskets ahead of time without having to worry as to the basket keeping its freshness. Of course it is necessary that ferns and greens be profusely used to cover the water retainers, in some of which small tubes of tin are used or rather attached to the center for tall spiral flowers. While these tube effects in the retainers are not so very common or generally used it is only a matter of time when our florists will fall in line with the new thought in floral arrangement of baskets.

The Colonial effect in basket arrangement is pretty and novel, for with the central tube the regulation circle can be made, using a handsome flower for the center and grouping the different rows around it, or bouquets of individual character can be made and arranged into the basket where flowers are to be sent to steamers and where more than one member of the party is to receive a token from the sender. This will add attractiveness to the saloon display and when sent to the cabin will furnish a surprise, as each spray composing the basket will have a cord attached. A card could be attached with the different names for whom intended and all placed in one envelope calling attention to the fact that the basket is arranged in sectional bouquets. A card should also be hidden in each bouquet and this will not only create an interest but will be something "different." This will be especially appreciated by those wishing to send the flowers as a surprise.

Notes of the Arnold Arboretum.

For the decoration of northern gardens there are no more beautiful or desirable shrubs than the azaleas of eastern North America. There are seven species of these plants and they are now all called rhododendrons by botanists, and in the Arboretum all azaleas are labeled rhododendrons. The first species to bloom, R. Vaseyi, begins to flower the beginning of May and the flowers of the last, R. viscosum, can be found here as late as the middle of July, so that the azalea season is a long one. R. Vaseyi is a tall shrub, with slender stems and an open irregular habit. In its home in the sheltered valleys of the Blue Ridge in South Carolina it sometimes grows to the height of from fifteen to eighteen feet. The flowers are produced before the leaves appear in small compact clusters and are pure pink in color, but occasionally plants are found with nearly white flowers. Although this plant was not discovered until comparatively a few years ago, it has been much planted in gardens near Boston and it is fast becoming here one of the most popular of the early-flowering spring shrubs. With R. Vaseyi the rhodora (R. canadense) flowers. This well known dwarf shrub often covers, especially in the north, large areas of moist or swampy land with a sheet of bloom. The small flowers, however, are of a rather unattractive rose-purple color, and the fame of the rhodora is perhaps due more to Emerson's poem than to its intrinsic beauty. Naturally the rhodora grows from Newfoundland to Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The next to bloom are the two pink-flowered species, R. canescens and R. nudiflorum; the former is a northern and the latter a more southern plant and is especially common in the Gulf States from Florida to eastern Texas. The flowers of these plants open before or with the unfolding of the leaves and in early spring fill the woods with beauty and fragrance. Both species can now be seen in flower on Azalea path, and there is a large mass of Azalea canescens on the right-hand side of the Meadow road in front of the linden group. The flame-colored azalea, R. calendulaceum, is the next species to flower and is already beginning to open its orange, yellow, or reddish flowers which are not fragrant. This shrub is an inhabitant of the Appalachian mountain region from southern New York to Georgia, and is extremely abundant on the lower slopes of the high mountains of North Carolina and Tennessee. In flower it is the most showy of our azaleas and one of the most beautiful of all flowering shrubs.

A large mass of this azalea has been planted on the slope below Azalea path and occasional large specimens can be seen in the border plantations along some of the roads.

The next species to flower, R. arborescens, is also a native of the Appalachian mountains on which it grows from Pennsylvania to Georgia and where in sheltered valleys it sometimes attains the height of fifteen feet or more. The flowers, which appear after the leaves are nearly fully grown, are white or faintly tinged with rose color and are made conspicuous by the long bright red filaments of the stamens. The flowers are very fragrant and the young leaves have the odor of new mown grass. Less showy in flower than the flame-colored azalea, it is one of the most beautiful of all hardy azaleas.

The last species to flower, the clammy azalea or swamp honeysuckle, is a common inhabitant of the swamps of the eastern states, especially of those in the neighborhood of the coast. The rather small flowers are pure white and covered with clammy hairs, and the leaves are often of a pale bluish color, especially on their lower surface. This plant is valuable for the lateness of its flowers which do not open until the flowers of most hardy shrubs have passed, and for their fragrance.

These shrubs are all perfectly hardy in eastern Massachusetts and flourish in all exposures and in good garden soil, although like all rhododendrons they cannot be made to live in soil strongly impregnated with lime. They are not often cultivated because it is not easy to find these plants in nurseries, for few nurserymen, especially in the United States, care to take the trouble to raise such plants from seeds. The only satisfactory way in which they can be propagated. In beauty, constitution and hardiness they are superior to the so-called Ghent azaleas which are hybrids between the species from the Caucasus, which is not hardy here, and some of the American species. The Ghent azaleas are favorites with European nurserymen who propagate them by grafting and they are imported in large numbers into this country. Here they grow slowly; many of the varieties are not at all hardy and others are liable to lose large branches in severe winters. The American species are better garden plants here, too, than the yellow-flowered Asiatic species, R. japonicum, usually called Azalea mollis in gardens, a common Japanese and Korean plant, and the Chinese R. sinense or the hybrids of these two species. Azalea mollis is hardy and free-flowering but the plants are short-lived in this country. The little known R. sinense with its beautiful yellow flowers is hardy but the flower-buds have usually been killed in each of the two or three winters this plant has been exposed here in the open ground.

The Japanese and Chinese Viburnum tomentosum is now in flower. This is a large shrub with wide-spreading horizontal branches along the upper side of which the flat flower-clusters are thickly placed and are surrounded by a ring of pure white sterile or ray flowers which make the conspicuous part of the inflorescence. The flowers are followed in the late autumn by brilliant fruits which, scarlet at first, become black when fully ripe. The leaves turn orange and scarlet in the autumn. There is an interesting narrow-leaved form of this plant (var. lanceolatum), discovered in Japan by Professor Sargent, now flowering in the Arboretum. There are also two "snowball" forms of this plant developed in Japanese gardens and much cultivated here and in Europe under the name of Viburnum plicatum. The correct name of the more common of these two plants is V. tomentosum, var. dilatatum. This is the Japanese snowball usually cultivated in this country and it will not be in its best condition for another week or ten days. The other form (V. tomentosum, var. dilatatum, f. rotundifolium), which appears to be a dwarfier plant, has been in flower for the last ten days. These forms of viburnum can be seen growing together in the large collection of viburnums recently arranged on Bussey Hill road just before it turns into the Valley road near the Centre street gate.

Viburnum tomentosum and the Co-rean V. Carlesii are ornamental plants of great beauty and value but, with the exception of these two plants, none of the eastern Asiatic species compare in value as decorative plants with the viburnums of North America. To these much of the late spring and early summer beauty of the Arboretum shrubberies is due, and the successful cultivation here of these plants is at last making their value known and appreciated. Thirty years ago it was practically impossible to buy an American viburnum in any nursery, but now several of the species are largely propagated in many North American nurseries and have been used in considerable quantities in many American parks.

About a dozen of the American viburnums are thoroughly established in the Arboretum, the different species flowering through a period of two months. The earliest to flower and the most difficult to establish here satisfactorily, V. alnifolium, often called V. lantanoides, the hobble bush or moosewood of northern woods, has been out of flower for several weeks and now the only species in flower is the black haw, V. prunifolium. This is a small shapely tree of the middle states where it is often extremely common. The flowers are in convex clusters and are followed by sweet blue-black fruits. These and the leaves, which late in the season turn deep wine color, make this a particularly attractive plant in the autumn. Several other species will be in flower in a few days and will be mentioned in later issues of these bulletins.

Three species of Enkianthus, an Asiatic genus of the heath family, are unusually full of flowers and flower-buds this year. The largest of the Japanese species, E. campanulatus, is now in flower and the flowers of the other species will open in a few days. E. campanulatus is a tall shrub with bell-shaped flowers hanging gracefully in long clusters which are partly hidden by the leaves. There are two forms in the collection, one with pale yellow flowers striped with red, and the other with rather smaller red flowers. The leaves of all these plants turn brilliant scarlet in the autumn and for its autumn colors E. campanulatus is much cultivated in Japanese gardens. The three species are in the shrub collection, and there is a large group of them on the lower side of Azalea path where E. campanulatus can now be seen in its greatest spring beauty.

Of Chinese plants flowering here for the first time attention is called to Lonicera Koehneana, a large hardy and vigorous shrub with dark red-purple branchlets, thick yellow-green leaves with conspicuous veins and pale yellow flowers slightly tinged with red on the outer surface of the corolla, and to Neillia sinensis, an interesting plant related to the spiraeas. The former is in the bed of Chinese shrubs on the southern slope of Bussey hill, in which a number of the new cotoneasters are also in flower, and the neillia is on Hickory path near Centre street.—A. NAZARETH, PA.—Johnson & Garland have filed suit asking that the Electric Street Railway Co. be compelled to carry freight. It is claimed that the defendant company has an agreement with the Lackawanna Railroad not to compete in the freight business.

DULUTH, MINN.—Louis Visias was awarded damages of $1,500 in his suit against his lessors, John A. Stephenson and the Gregory Co., as a result of a drop in the temperature of his greenhouse. Many plants were hurt by the cold and Mr. Visias sued for $5,000, charging that the defendants had not kept the heat at the temperature agreed upon in the contract.

THE ROSE.

Rambler Roses in Fairmount.

Philadelphia, Pa.—When the speedway was built a straightaway track, a mile and a quarter in length and one hundred feet wide, was laid out in Fairmount Park, so that the owners of fast trotters could try them out without regarding the time limit of the regular park courses. There was also constructed a wide walk of asphalt to be used by the spectators. On the track side of a fence dividing the course from this walk was planted a hedge of privet and on the other facing east, Oglesby Paul, the Landscape Architect of the park, set out several hundred Rambler Roses, many of which have grown vigorously and produced flowers abundantly, the showing this spring after four years' planting being very fine. The roses are in the center between pin oaks, set about forty feet apart, and in some cases have grown so vigorously as almost to cover the entire fence for this distance.

To the lover of roses a walk along this enchanting avenue of flowers with its wealth of many-hued colors so gracefully arranged and backed with glossy green foliage from which spring graceful, strong shoots which add greatest pleasure. All the varieties variety and vigor, is a source of the popular at this time of planting are seen here. One of the most frequent and apparently the most vigorous is the beautiful gardenia, with its yellow buds and white flowers tasseled with large clusters of yellow stamens, one as best. Several plants of this variety extend from tree to tree, a distance of forty feet, and are perfect specimens of the class. Among them are Manda's Triumph, Evergreen Gem, Hiawatha, Dorothy, Perkins, Universal Favorite, South Orange Perfection, Crimson Rambler. Several single white, and a number of single pink and red ones that are not familiar but nevertheless beautiful, are seen interspersed and alternating in color, each section or combination of several colors seeming more beautiful as they come into view. The time of bloom is about three weeks from June 1, some varieties being earlier than others but visitors will find a bountiful supply of flowers at any time during the first three weeks of June.

What has been done here while admirable and worthy of emulation in all public parks, is but a beginning or experiment. A section of several acres should be laid out as a rose garden, the approaches, drives, etc., being marked with the best of the rambler, trained to cedar posts set back from the drives. Arches, pergolas and arbors as they are to be found in private estates, could be worked out on a larger scale. Large beds planted with the ever increasing list of hybrid teas which provide a display of blooms the season through, would form the center of this beauty spot. This may seem a bit "rosy" but it is worth working for. It is partially realized, and small sections are seen in every suburban community. If the trade would get together in every large city, and advocate the planting of such gardens, it would soon be the feature of every city's pleasure ground.

ROBERT KIFT.

hyde, known also as formal, methanal and methyl aldehyde, and identical in properties with formalin, most nearly meets these requirements; it is a solution of formic aldehyde, and is sold of a strength of about 40 per cent. It loosened, and moistened if necessary, would be ideal. A windy day and a state of the soil so dry that the formaldehyde would be rapidly evaporated, and the vapor never have a chance of getting down into the interstices, would be quite unsuitable; so also would be soaking wet weather.

Formaldehyde can be safely applied to any rose foliage when diluted to a strength of one-eighth per cent., i. e., one tablespoonful of the commercial formaldehyde of 40 per cent, to a gallon of soft water. Double this strength, viz., two tablespoonfuls to the gallon, may be used in the winter. In carrying out my experiments with formaldehyde, I took certain roses which had been infested with black spot the season before. These I divided into two groups, one for experiment, the other to be left untreated to serve as a control. In the case of the latter there was no mistaking the return of the disease early in the season, followed by the usual defoliation, while in the case of those treated the result surpassed all my expectations. For where previously black spot was early in evidence, to be followed in the usual course by the blanching and dropping of leaves, the plants treated retained all their outward health and vigor, and no sign of mischief showed itself so long as I kept up the formaldehyde applications. I discontinued them in August, and it was not till the end of September that I began to notice here and there, but not universally as had previously been the case, some signs of the pest, and it was not till the end of October that any defoliation was in evidence. Meantime, in the control groups, the lower stems of every plant had been bare for months. There could be no mistaking the good effected by the formaldehyde.

As roses are always liable to attack during the growing season, it is desirable, if the best results are to be attained, that the treatment be kept up as continuously as possible. The procedure which I am adopting is as follows: Starting, say, as soon as the buds begin to open, I make sure that the soil is friable, and moist (if need be, watering it previously) and then thoroughly spray every part of the plant and the ground around it with

Black Spot Treatment.

Black spot is such an enemy of the rose that any contribution towards its repression must be welcome. I therefore beg to lay before the National Rose Society the results of a series of experiments which I have carried out in this direction, and which have yielded most promising results. It must be understood, however, that black spot is a fungus disease, propagated by spores so freely produced and so widely distributed that it is quite impossible to say with any certainty that the disease can ever be totally eradicated, even from the most carefully watched gardens. But we may hope, at least, to keep it within such bounds that it will cease to cause any special anxiety, says Dr. Arthur R. Waddell in current annual of the National Rose Society of England.

Here let me briefly recapitulate what has been so ably said by G. Masee and F. B. Theobald in "The Enemies of the Rose," published by the society. The organism of black spot invades the living tissues of the plant, and there reproduces itself by means of spores on the leaves. It produces these spores in two cycles. The first, the early summer reproduction, yields a spore not adapted to remain dormant for any length of time, but capable of immediately bursting into action or growth the moment it finds a suitable host. The second cycle is that of late summer or autumn, and the spore then produced is quite different from the earlier one; it can remain dormant for months, thus securing the continuance of the species from one season to another.

Clearly what is wanted in order to combat this parasite is something which, on the one hand, can be absorbed into the tissues of the plant and on the other, will kill or weaken the spores outside the plant. And that remedy must be easy of application and within the reach of everybody. My experiments have shown me that commercial formalde-mixes freely with water; sufficiently diluted, it is harmless to foliage and is non-poisonous; it is quite inexpensive. It readily vaporises if distributed in the form of a fine spray or heated, and is then, as well as in the solution, a powerful germicide and preventer of decomposition and fermentation. It is this property of volatilizing which makes it unlike anything else yet known to us, and which enables the formaldehyde to act in the interstices of the soil as well as in the air around the plants. We must bear this in mind when we use it, and consequently must endeavor to take advantage of those conditions of atmosphere and soil which will most facilitate its action. The former will be best when still and cool, and the latter when it is friable and moist, but not sodden with wet. The cool of a calm evening in summer when the soil had been previously one-eighth* per cent. solution (one tablespoonful of the 40 per cent. formaldehyde in a gallon of water). This I repeat, if I can, next day, and continue at intervals of a week or ten days all through the growing season. After the normal fall of the leaf in autumn, again in mid-winter and again in February, I spray with a solution double this strength, viz., one-fourth per cent. (two tablespoonfuls of the 40 per cent. formaldehyde to the gallon of water).

To obtain the best results the spraying must be carried out thoroughly, every part of the plant must get its douche, the underside of every leaf, every portion of the bark, and the surrounding soil. It is not necessary nor desirable to drench the latter, but merely to bedew the surface till it looks moist, for the formaldehyde will then best work its way into all the interstices. But if it be impossible for some people to carry out such a systematic course of treatment as I have described, let me cheer them on by saying that every single application will be of some substantial benefit, and, if spores potential for evil be within reach, they will be either killed or at any rate weakened. In the hot summer of 1911 I obtained what appeared to be most excellent results from simply administering two isolated sprayings to a variety which is exceedingly prone to black spot.

A good spraying apparatus is essential; it must produce a vapor and not a shower; the drops of a shower may run together or not, but the coarser they are the greater chance there is of patches being left untouched, whereas a gentle and continuous vapor will reach every spot. The apparatus must have a bent nozzle, or be so adapted that the entire undersurface of every leaf will be thoroughly searched, for no perfunctory spraying is worth the expenditure of energy or material. Benton & Stone's "Pneumatic Sprayer" figured at page 99 in "The Enemies of the Rose" is excellent. There are numerous makes of hand spray, but of those which I have tried, and they are many, the only one I can recommend as fully meeting the requirements of the case is Cooper's Spray Diffuser, Pattern A, sent out by Wm. Cooper and Nephews, of Berkhamsted.

And let me add here that all that I have said of formaldehyde in the treatment of black spot applies equally to rose mildew and rose black mildew. These, like black spot, are fungus diseases, and while differing in some details of their manifestations, move on parallel lines and are amenable to the same principles of treatment. A plant of Crimson Rambler was attacked by rose black mildew last summer; Kew made an exact microscopic diagnosis for me, so that there was no mistake, and they prescribed a drastic remedy. I preferred to experiment and risk the plant, so I dosed it with  $\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. solution of formaldehyde and gave it altogether four dressings. The progress of the disease was apparently instantly checked, and from the moment of the first thorough doing not another leaf drooped. I have put this plant away in quarantine; I shall watch its future development, and some day shall report. If the treatment fails (but I do not think that is likely) I shall report all the same, for failures are as educative as successes.

As for rose mildew, I waited till a bed of twenty-four plants of one of the newer roses which had previously shown itself prone to mildew had whitened with the disease before I treated it with the formaldehyde as previously described. The first application checked the trouble; the damage already done to the leaves was irremediable, but the plants quickly threw off the influence of the fungus and resumed their healthy growth, while the white powdering left the leaves and was not seen again. But the most noticeable result was shown by a fine shoot of Bardou Job, which when 6 feet high, whitened with mildew. I thereupon started applying formaldehyde. As the new shoot grew on the new part remained absolutely unblemished, not a scintilla of mildew was visible on the new leaves, but instead there was the spectacle of the shoot, as far up as the point to which it had attained when I commenced treatment, blemished with mildew, and the part above perfect.

At this moment I am about to receive some additions to my rosarium, and I propose to make sure that none of the new-comers shall bring with them any more spores of black spot than I can help. Accordingly it is my intention to treat them thoroughly with formaldehyde. Just exactly how I shall proceed I have not yet determined. I shall be guided by circumstances; but at all events, I shall attain my object equally well either by fumigating them in a close chamber with the vapor of formaldehyde, or simply watering them with a one-eighth per cent solution and shutting out the outer air, or by laying them for a day or two under straw moistened with the solution, or by burying them in a trench and watering them with it before turning in the soil.

Hitherto, when referring to formaldehyde, I have been speaking of it simply in a solution for spraying, and that at a strength which cannot hurt the most tender leaflet. But it is possible also by means of heat to vaporize it entirely, so that it can be made to charge the air of a glass house. I do not recommend that this should be done at present, until we have arrived at the necessary data for safety. That is a matter which requires further experimenting. In conclusion, I recommend that everybody interested in this paper should carefully study, if they have not already done so, the most excellent article by George Massee on diseases caused by fungi in "The Enemies of the Rose," and headed "General Remarks," and also the article by Dr. A. H. Williams entitled "Sprays and Sprayers" in the Annual for 1910.

OBITUARY.

Henry Guillaume.

Henry Guillaume, for the last 31 years a prominent florist of La Crosse, Wis., died May 28, after an illness of six months from a complication of diseases. He was born in Luxemburg 66 years ago and came to America in 1872. He leaves a widow and three children.

August Kressinger.

August Kressinger, for 25 years a florist of Jersey City, N. J., died of heart failure recently at the home of his mother. He is survived by his mother and two sisters. Mr. Kressinger was well known in the trade and will be missed by a wide circle of friends.

George McMillan.

George McMillan, a florist employed at the Wilcox greenhouses in Council Bluffs, Ia., died May 31 in Omaha, Neb., of apoplexy, brought on, it is thought, by the heat. He had suffered a slight stroke of paralysis a few months before.

Minneapolis Florists' Club.

The Minneapolis Florists' Club held a meeting at Rice Bros.' store, President Desmond in the chair. Twenty-five members were in attendance and all officers were present. After general business had been transacted the following committees made reports:

Theo. Wirth, chairman of the convention association, reported everything proceeding very favorably. Outdoor garden space was being taken up rapidly and the trade who were not taking advantage of this opportunity were missing a good advertising medium. The program was now completed and had been forwarded to Secretary Young. The souvenir album was making exceedingly good headway, and would be a little out of the old plan of a large, unhandy album, being instead of a convenient carrying size. A special concert had been arranged at Lake Harriet for Friday evening with special privileges for the visitors. The executive committee was holding regular meetings and he wished to thank the members for their prompt and active assistance.

John Rovik, baseball committee chairman, made report of the team selected for the convention and the club authorized him to secure suits, get busy and practice, showing the all star team of the S. A. F. that they were going up against the real thing.

The Mother's day committee, Carl Lindskoog, chairman, reported the cost of the advertising to be $130.00, contributed by the trade, both wholesale and retail, a big success. The large amount of editorial space the papers gave in connection with the advertisement made it very conspicuous and discussion showed that the demand far exceeded the supply from these efforts.

Henry Will presented the club a box of cigars in honor of a 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ -pound boy born June 1. The following motion was made and carried: "Moved and seconded that a vote of thanks be extended Henry Will for his treat and that the junior Will be made an honorary member of the baseball and bowling teams." On motion duly made and seconded the July meeting was dropped and special meetings will be subject to call of the chair.

C. F. RICE, Sec'y.

HOLLAND, MICH.—Alfred Mitting, a local nursery man, has been adjudged bankrupt; liabilities $10,000; no assets except those which are exempt.

*A Word of Caution.—When the above was proofed, a printer's error, making "an eighth per cent." read "an-eight per cent." solution, has shown me that it is better for ordinary users not to trouble about percentages, lest they be confused, but to keep to spoonfuls in measuring instead. That is to say, one tablespoonful per gallon for the summer strength and two tablespoonfuls per gallon for the winter strength. As those quantities are calculated so as to allow a wide margin of safety, a few drops more or less, one way or another, do not make any material difference.—A. R. W.

THE Department of Agriculture has issued an interesting bulletin on organization and instruction in boy's corn clubs, a form of agricultural extension work which promises well for the future.

Trucking Record.

Cleveland, O.—J. W. Wilson of the Wilson Florist Co. believes he has broken the record for hauling plants, having hauled 4,725 plants in 2-inch to 7-inch pots from Storrs & Harrison's nursery, Painesville, to this city, a distance of 30 miles, in five hours with a modern truck.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

During the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held at Minneapolis, Minn., a meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be held Wednesday, August 20, at 2:00 p. m.

ALBERT POCHELON, Sec'y.

Personal.

L. Merton Gage, secretary of the American Gladiolus Society, says he will not be a candidate for that office this year.

Yearbook of Agriculture.

We have just received the yearbook of the Department of Agriculture for 1912, containing the usual reports and a number of special articles by the experts of the department. Among the latter we note the following as likely to interest our readers: "Promising New Fruits," by William A. Taylor and H. P. Gould; "Crop Safety on Mountain Slopes," by J. Cecil Alter; "Insects Injurious to the Onion Crop," by F. H. Chittenden; "A Successful Method of Marketing Vegetable Products," by L. C. Corbett; "The Chestnut Bark Disease," by Haven Metcalf; "Some Useful Weather Proverbs," by W. J. Humphreys; "Truck Soils of the Atlantic Coast Region," by Jay H. Bonsteel; "Seed Collection on a Large Scale," by Henry H. Farquhar; "Agriculture in Public High Schools," by Dick J. Crosby; "Some New Grasses for the South," by R. A. Oakley; "Raisins, Figs, and Other Dried Fruits and Their Use," by C. F. Langworthy.

American Sweet Pea Society.

At a meeting of the executive committee Saturday, May 31, the date for the annual summer exhibition and convention decided upon was July 5-6. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has graciously accorded us the privilege of using its hall, and will also hold its annual exhibition in conjunction with ours. They have arranged a specially attractive schedule amounting to nearly $500, and the outlook for a fine exhibition is assured. Our society is now completing the schedule. The cash prizes arranged for will amount to $500 apart from the special prizes in cash, cups, medals, etc., given by individuals.

As no admission is charged at any of our exhibitions, and as our only source of income is from the membership dues, we have to rely upon the generosity of the trade and a few members to subscribe to and guarantee the prize list. The society is doing good work. The Cornell bulletins issued yearly under our auspices contain valuable information and are free to members of the society.

The sweet pea is growing in popularity and is now a source of revenue to the florist practically all the year round. With increased membership we hope to do more and better work. The annual dues are $2.00 a year; life membership $25.00. We also specially appeal to the trade for subscriptions toward the exhibition fund, as you all benefit indirectly by these exhibitions, whether in the interest of the sweet pea or other specialized flowers. For further information write to the secretary, Harry A. Bunyard, 342 West Fourteenth street, New York city.

HARRY A. BUNYARD, Sec'y.

New York Spring Flower Show.

MARCH 21-28, 1914.

By request of the joint committees of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, the announcement is made that a Spring Flower Show, international in character, will be held by the organizations mentioned, in the New Grand Central Palace, New York, March 21-28, 1914. A meeting of the committees will be held within a few days, at which organization will be effected and a preliminary schedule drafted, copies of which will be distributed within a week or two. A guarantee fund has been started locally and already amounts to $2,300, and several special prizes have been offered. A horticultural trade exhibition will be held in connection with the show. The undersigned has been appointed manager of the trade exhibition, and will be pleased to make reservations of space and furnish any information required. He has also been entrusted with the preparation and publication of the official program of the show, and will be pleased to quote advertising rates and book contracts for advertisements at any time. Meeting the wishes of the exhibitors at the recent show, the display will be confined to two floors, and all music, entertainment and business features will at the next show be relegated to the second floor.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Minneapolis Sports.

The final programme for the twentieth annual convention of the Society of American Florists has been worked out and will soon be in the hands of the members of the society. It has been decided that the convention sports shall be so arranged as not to interfere with the main purpose of the annual meetings, convention business. To make this possible one day has been added to the convention and it is our aim to make this, the fifth day of our gathering, a day of genuine pleasure to all of our guests. This outing will be held at one of the most picturesque spots of Lake Minnetonka and the programme will be such as to meet the tastes, desires and ambitions of all.

The programme has been approved by Chairman C. E. Critchell, of the national sports committee, and with his consent our committee has been authorized and requested to secure the necessary prizes for the different contests. All those that are favorably inclined towards these games and sports are cordially invited to assist in carrying out the programme, both in furnishing and winning the prizes offered. It has been customary to ask interested firms and individuals in all parts of the country to donate such prizes or contribute to the funds for their purchase. Your co-operation would be greatly appreciated, but you will be heartily welcome to our city and outing whether you aid us or not.

C. N. RUEDLINGER, Chairman.

MARKET IN BAD SHAPE.

Although the weather has turned much cooler the market is still glutted. The sales on flowers of all kinds are very poor, and the June weddings are all that keep business alive. Street fakirs are out in full force and always clean up the left-overs on Saturdays. Carnations, roses and lilies are the most plentiful, while peonies are about normal. The quality of most of these flowers has been fine and they sell very readily. Lily of the valley has been very scarce of late. American Beauty roses are here in quantity and the quality is fine, but tea roses have not been so good of late. Lilies are not moving at all. Some cultivated water lilies are coming in, but such stock does not take well when other flowers are so cheap. Gladiolus America and other varieties are proving more popular every day, and take very well. Sweet peas are getting worse every day and it is hard to get good stock any more. Yellow and white daisies are also getting poor, and are thrown away by the thousands. The supply of green goods is overloading the market. All the early outside flowers are in, such as mountain laurel, cornflower, etc.

CLUB MEETING.

The last meeting of the Pittsburg Florists & Gardeners' Club was held in the Fort Pitt hotel, Tuesday, June 3. John James gave a talk on bedding plants in use by the public gardeners of this city, naming some of the plants which were most suitable. James Wiseman spoke of some of the plants used by the private gardeners. "Bedding plants most salable in Pittsburg" was Paul Randolph's subject. Robert Lilley talked on hardy garden plants. C. H. Semple spoke on hardy plants used by the landscape gardeners. The big attraction of the evening was the lecture and lantern slides given by a florist of the Kew gardens, showing the many flower gardens of Berlin and views of the wild flower regions in the Alps Mountains. Among the exhibitions were some fine hydrangeas and cut sweet peas from P. S. Randolph & Sons, Verona. John Jones brought out some fine novelty coleus. Neil McCallum and C. H. Semple brought nice collections of outside novelties and roses, which attracted much attention, being well displayed by the exhibitors. It was moved that a committee be appointed to encourage more public gardens in Pittsburg, as our showing is so small compared with other cities of the same size. There were about 45 present, and all were well pleased with the evening.

NOTES.

Jas. Kroell, the designer for A. W. Smith & Co., has left that firm and now is with Fred Reigelmier of the south side. Mr. Reigelmier has recently taken over the business of the American Floral Co.

Galaher & Franks, the Arcade Florists, have made a few improvements since they have been in their new place, adding a fine new display case.

Randolph & McClements of East Liberty are showing some very nice mixed baskets, featuring yellow calceolarias.

The death of a prominent citizen of Washington, Pa., kept many of our leading florists busy with large orders.

E. P. Hostetter of Manheim is consigning some fine inside gladioli to the McCallum Co.

Mrs. E. A. Williams is cutting some fine late iris at the greenhouses in Knoxville.

Wm. Q. Potter and wife of Cleveland, O., are visiting in this city this week.

Cincinnati.

HEAVY DEMAND OVER.

Last week was the last week for an extraordinary seasonable demand. All of the larger commencement exercises are now over and all that remains are the usual number of June weddings and a few smaller commencements. The call was principally for choice stock. The smaller stock was used only to help out and that at buyers' prices. The better stock yielded only a fair return because the supply was abnormally large for the particular time of the year. In roses the varieties that have been the standard for the season since the cool weather set in are rapidly taking second place. The summer roses, such as My Maryland, Taft and Kaiserin, are the leaders. Very good Killarney and Richmond are, however, coming into the wholesale houses. The American Beauty supply is good and easily sufficient. Carnations are coming in so strong that the demand does not nearly take them up except at loss or sacrifice prices. Lilies are in good supply but are moving slowly. More sweet peas might have been used. Gladioli are in limited supply and enjoy only a fair market. It seems to be a little early for them and the buyers are not taking to them as a novelty. The call for lily of the valley is very changeable. On some days it is so large that the supply runs short, while on others it hardly sells at all. Peonies can be had at strictly buyers' prices. The green goods supply is more than sufficient for the demand.

CLUB MEETING.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting on Monday night, Chas. Hoffmeister, A. C. Heckman, Jr., and R. C. Witterstaetter were appointed an outgoing committee by President Gus Adrian. The committee was instructed to arrange for the outing at Coney Island on the usual day in July. The following were nominated as candidates for the election to be held at the next meeting: For president—A. C. Heckman, Jr., and Jas. Allan; for vice-president—Ed. Schumann and J. Chas. Murphy; for secretary—Alex Ostendarp and Otto Hoffmeister; for treasurer—Albert Sunderbruch and Chas. H. Hoffmeister; for trustee—Gus Adrian and Henry Schwartz. The candidates for secretary and treasurer are actively campaigning in each other's behalf.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell has received notice of his appointment to the vice-presidency of the S. A. F. for south Ohio.

P. J. Olinger and wife are entertaining Mr. Olinger's home folks from Aurora, Ill.

Visitors: Norval Kiger and wife, Marietta; A. W. Brandt, Indianapolis, Ind.; Chas. Dudley, Parkersburg, W. Va.; G. A. Beekman and wife, Middleton; — Leedle, Springfield; Fred Lemon, Richmond, Ind.; H. Staley, Vanceburg, Ky.; H. H. Harris, St. Louis, Mo. H.

Cleveland.

OVERSUPPLY OF STOCK.

The first glut of the year, both in carnations and roses, is now on. Regular channels of outlet are inadequate to move the enormous quantities now arriving, and stock sold in quantity is going at very low figures. The street fakir is reaping his harvest. Local peonies also are now in good supply, including Festiva Maxima, Rubra Superba and the other varieties, all of which can be seen to the best advantage at the peony show at Gray's Armory, June 12-14. Lily of the valley has been short of the demand, but at present writing is again in good supply. Orchids (Cattleya Mossiae) of enormous size, are arriving. Easter lilies are very plentiful with only a fair demand. All stock is moving nicely, but prices have dropped to a very low figure, especially on the cheaper and shorter stock. Good long stemmed roses, American Beauty and Killarney My Maryland and Richmond are bringing fair prices, as are the best grades of sweet peas, etc.

NOTES.

The Clifton Club has worn many gala dresses, but none more becoming than Monday evening when Miss Katherine Bartels was wedded to James Winton. The Presbyterian service was impressive. The decorations consisted of Easter lilies, roses, rambler roses, and southern smilax. Many who are well known to the florists' trade were present, including: Mrs. J. M. Gasser, who is an aunt of the bride, J. C. Pettee and wife, F. C. Bartels and wife, parents of the bride. Miss Bartels carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley and white orchids. Mr. Bartels has a range of greenhouses at North Olmstead and is very well known as a carnation grower. The groom is the son of Alexander Winton of the Winton Motor Co. of this city.

Henry Taylor, whose range of houses is on East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, nearly burned out his place Monday, June 2, when painters at work in the house became careless and in burning off the paint, held the torch through a hole in the shingles and set fire to the place. Firemen extinguished the flames which had gained considerable headway, owing to the nature of the fire.

Commencement exercises at the different high and academic schools the past week used up large quantities of the best there was in roses and peonies.

Tom Stevens, formerly with Carl Gerdum of Lakewood, is now working for the J. M. Gasser Co., at Rocky River. C. F. B.

St. Louis.

OUTDOOR STOCK SCARCE.

During the past week weddings and graduating exercises, together with a large number of funerals, have kept the florists busy. At the wholesale houses flowers have been quite plentiful. Sweet peas have been abundant and in many cases of poor quality. Outdoor flowers in many instances are scarce on account of the dry weather. This is especially true of field daisies. Ferns are scarce. Hardy ferns on account of the dry weather are not as plentiful as in former years. Some extra fine jasmines are still on the market. Carnations and roses are in fair supply.

NOTES.

Several large orders for flowers were given to the Mullanphy Flower Co. and the Bentzen Floral Co. for the funeral of Chris Von der Ahe, former president of the local American League baseball team.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has increased its business wonderfully. Not a year in business and their trade reaches everywhere. Frank Windler and Al Gumz, the proprietors, are hustlers.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. had a big supply of everything the past week. Their automobile delivery service has been running at all times during the day.

C. A. Kuehn has his counters well filled with corn flower, lily of the valley and some extra fancy carnations at reasonable prices.

& Gorly, is now with O'Leary, the Florist. This firm is very busy with wedding orders.

Ostertag Bros. report business during the past week as good. A fine stock of general retail supplies are always seen here.

The next meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club will take place Thursday, June 12, at Shaw's Garden.

TRADE SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

There is still plenty of stock of all kinds on the market but trade is a trifle better since the last writing although the prices in general remain practically unchanged. American Beauty roses are moving more freely at advanced prices but there is still plenty of good flowers to go around. The supply of other roses is very large with the exception of Sunburst which are in good demand. Good white roses have been moving well but in some instances are being sold in large lots like the other colored varieties at bargain prices. Carnations are in oversupply everywhere, and like the roses are being sold at extremely low prices in large quantities. Many of the large department stores are featuring carnations in their windows this week, and placards bearing the words special sale on roses and carnations are seen prominently displayed in the windows of the more progressive retail stores. Peonies are arriving in quantity but the better grades still command good prices although much inferior stock is being sold very cheap. Good lily of the valley is none too plentiful and some of the dealers are experiencing trouble in filling their orders. Sweet peas are obtainable at cheap prices and the same can be said of almost all the other miscellaneous stock. Ferns have taken a drop since the new stock has arrived and prices are now considerably lower. Trade was a little better the past several days, more so than was expected considering the changeable weather and the prevailing glut. The market on Wednesday noon was practically unchanged, there being the usual supply of the past week seen everywhere.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has been disposing of a large quantity of stock the past week and has had a good run on American Beauty roses. Otto W. Frese says that medium and long white roses were also in great demand this week at this store. John Poehlmann escorted his friend, Paul M. Palez of Little Rock, Ark., through his firm's large range at Morton Grove on June 10.

Miss K. N. Cooper of the Auburndale Goldfish Co. has returned from a pleasant fishing trip in Michigan. She succeeded in landing a four pound bass but was disappointed because she had to throw it back in the lake owing to the closed season. Her firm has just received a shipment of medium sized fish and expects another to follow soon.

Peter Reinberg had a good run on American Beauty roses this week which cleaned the stock up pretty well. Tim Matchen entertained the store force at his home on June 8, after which they all enjoyed a ride in Mr. Reinberg's automobile. As usual, the boys were shown a good time by Mr. Matchen.

W. H. Beaumont, of the O. J. Friedman force, has been on the sick list for some time but is expected back to work soon. Thos. Fogarty and Wm. Graff have been obliged to work over time on account of the large amount of funeral work that they had during Mr. Beaumont's absence.

The North Shore Floral Co. is giving a free ticket to the "movies" with every sale that it makes. B. J. Schmierer, one of the proprietor, says that he was surprised to find how well this plan increased his sales.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, arranged the decorations for several large weddings at the Blackstone hotel the past week, which called for a large supply of flowers. Mr. Mangel also has a store in this hotel, where J. G. Lambrose presides.

Wm. F. Schofield, the North State street florist, says that last Saturday was the best day that he has had for some time and attributes this to an unusually large number of funeral orders.

Miss E. Heskett of Vaughan's Seed Store and Miss Helen Rudd will sail for Paris on the Hamburg-American Line S. S. Graf Waldersee, from Philadelphia, June 11.

The Cook County Florists' Association will meet at the Tavern, West Washington street, next Thursday, June 19, when a supper will be served and the bowling prizes distributed.

Zech & Mann, Weiland & Risch and the Batavia Greenhouse Co. have had their firm names painted in the hallway of their Randolph street entrances.

F. F. Scheel of Shermerville is adding two new houses to his carnation range. The John C. Moninger Co. is furnishing the materials.

The remainder of the E. H. Hunt stock of supplies is now being disposed of in large lots to the ready buyers.

Chas. W. McKellar placed a large number of peonies in cold storage this week.

John Lenik, an employe of Poehlmann Bros. & Co., at Morton Grove, was killed by his own invention on June 5. Mr. Lenik had invented an electric soil mixing machine which would do the work of ten gardeners. Last Thursday he charged it and with five laborers began to move it across a field. Forgetting for a moment that the machine was "loaded" Mr. Lenik placed his hand on it and was instantly electrocuted.

Bedding stock in this vicinity has suffered severely from the recent cold weather especially begonias, coleus and alternantheras. The development of cannas, peonies and other hardier plants has been retarded considerably while tomatoes and other tender vegetables look quite sick.

WEDDINGS KEEP FLORISTS BUSY.

Large wedding decorations were the feature of the past week, the first three days finding most of the larger stores with about all the work they could handle. Peonies were used by the thousand and there was a good demand for all first class stock. American Beauty roses were handled in quantity, cleaning up at good prices. The native laurel was at its best and large quantities were used in church and other decorations. Outside stock is now very plentiful, there being an abundance of rambler roses, gallardia, coreopsis, larkspur, etc. The larkspur spikes are very fine, their various shades of blue working up well with pink roses in basket work. Carnations are falling off perceptibly in quality. Snapdragon is still presentable and good gladioli are daily offered. Lily of the valley has had a great run as it is essentially a bride's flower. In addition to the local demand there were large out-of-town orders which kept the market cleaned up every day. In fact last week's business was the best since Easter, harring Memorial day. Peonies are still a factor. Great quantities were thrown on the market the latter part of the week and prices fell off in consequence. Very fine outdoor peas are coming to the market in quantity and meet with a ready sale, being largely used in bunches and baskets for commencements which are now on.

NOTE.

The H. A. Dreer rose beds at River-ton are now at their best and every lover of the rose in this neighborhood, should, if he can make it convenient, spend a couple of hours some morning looking them over. Just before, or as the sun is rising is the best time. All the new hybrid teas, many of them still under number, are to be seen as are all the other older varieties of merit. There are also beds of hybrids, together with others of baby rambler types. A row of ramblers of all the popular sorts is a feature. Loaded with bloom as they are, they present a strikingly beautiful appearance. Such a display as this arranged in the park on a larger scale with the added attractiveness of pergolas, arches, summer houses, and the massing of colors that would be possible with a garden of this magnitude and with the great number of meritorious productions of the past few years would be a most attractive spot and the mecca of all lovers of flowers during the month of June. An immense business has been done in pot roses at Riverton the past spring, a stock of over three hundred thousand roses in six-inch pots has been handled; shipments being made to all parts of the United States.

Much was said of the next National Flower Show at the last meeting of the club. Arthur Niessen's idea that one of the upper floors of the Wanamaker store would be the ideal place, if it could be had, appears to meet with much favor. It would likely insure a good attendance, being most central and sure to be well advertised. The next most available place is the new Convention hall, which, while some distance from the center of the city, would not be as far away as the circus that makes its annual visit and always draws record crowds. The outing of the club, to be held June 19 at Washington park on the Delaware, will be a "hummer," says Chairman Graey. There will be a chance for every one to win a prize, ladies as well as gentlemen. Next to the dinner the baseball game and the tug of war will be the features.

One of the best roses seen at the exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society last week was My Maryland from out of doors. The blooms were very fine. It is said to winter as well as any of the hybrids.

Berger Bros.' store is strong on peonies and Richmond roses. Louis Berger is recovering from an operation for appendicitis and expects to be about soon.

MARKET BADLY GLUTTED.

The glut in cut flowers, which was somewhat delayed by cool and dark spring weather, settled down like a black cloud on the wholesale district during the past week. There was an oversupply of everything with light buying, the buyers getting everything at their own prices. Orchids, roses, carnations, lilies, peonies and minor stocks were practically in the same boat. "There was a time," said one wholesaler, "when by offering stock by the thousand at a very low rate, we could move it, but it can't be done now." The carnations, many of them, are very poor and their finish would seem to be near at hand. Fifty cents, 75 cents or $1.00 a hundred were fortunate prices. Lilies did not seem to be wanted, at least not in any quantity to appreciably reduce the stock on hand. There was excellent stock of peonies on the market but the surplus was great, and thus it was all along the line. There is one satisfaction—it does not seem that conditions can grow any worse, and with the peonies out of the way and a diminishing supply of carnations there may soon be a chance to move around without stumbling over boxes of stale stock.

Monday, June 9.—While we give quotations, as a matter of fact they do not adequately describe the condition of the market, which is badly overloaded. Prices are not a consideration, it is merely a wild scramble to unload. One reliable wholesaler advises us that he has about 20,000 lilies on hand that do not seem to be wanted. One heavy shipper of peonies has stopped shipping. He says that he has too much other work on hand to cut and ship peonies. The optimist says "It will be better next week." We hope so, as it cannot be any worse.

NOTES.

Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., secretary of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, advises us that the annual summer outing of the association will be held June 24 and 25 at Delaware Water Gap. The party will leave the D. L. & W. station, Hoboken, N. J., at 10:15 a. m., June 24 on the Lackawanna limited. Anton Schultheis and Julius Roehrs, Jr., are in charge of all the arrangements. There will be boating on the Delaware river, bowling by both ladies and gentlemen for prizes, a trip to Stroudsburg, dancing and other recreations and sports. Tickets are $8.50 each, which covers railroad fare and all other expenses. Tickets can be had of Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Queens Plaza Court Building, Long Island City, N. Y.

It seems settled that a flower show will be held in the spring of 1914 in the Grand Central Palace, Lexington avenue and Forty-sixth street. The date fixed upon is March 21-28. The show will be held under the auspices of the International Exhibition Co., the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club. Further details will be published from time to time. It is stated that, though

The Chicago Great Western has been named the Official Route of the Chicago Florists' Club to the Minneapolis Convention, August 19th to 22nd.

The Chicago Florists' Club will leave Chicago by Special Train at 6.15 p. m., August 18th, an invitation is extended to all eastern Florists and their friends and families to join them at Chicago and go to the convention in a body.

Special train will be "up-to-the-minute" throughout—including compartment and drawing room and standard sleepers, Buffet Club car, dining cars, Observation parlor, etc., etc.

We learn that a movement is being considered by a number of retail florists in regard to closing their stores on Sunday afternoons. Men who are not prompted by religious scruples agree that constant Sunday work is a grind and that they and their employes need the day for rest. There is some reason for a flower store keeping open on Sunday morning, but none that we can see for keeping open in the afternoon. We hope that this movement will gain strength and that the new plan will be adopted. From both the moral and business viewpoint Sunday closing is right and petty jealousies should not be allowed to interfere with it.

Mrs. Paul Meconi will sail for Europe June 17 for a three-months' visit with friends in Germany. Though she and Mr. Meconi were married last Christmas they had no honeymoon, but went right on working. She had been his bookkeeper and stuck to the job. Paul says that though he cannot have a honeymoon himself, he wants her to have one, and many friends will wish the genial little woman a happy vacation and a safe return.

H. E. Froment is serving on the jury but gets into the business district on Saturdays. In the meantime Phil. Dittzenberger and the boys are kept busy with the big stock of roses arriving from the L. E. Coddington range.

The Salford Flower Shop, Poughkeepsie, secured several designers from this city to help out on their Vassar commencement orders June 9. N. C. Schreiner was one of the men who filled the bill.

Some of the finest pink and white peonies reaching this market are being handled by Geo. C. Siebrecht.

New York Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the club, the last until September, was held in the Grand Opera House building on the night of June 9, President Siebrecht in the chair. There was a good attendance and good feeling prevailed, the meeting being in a certain sense a fraternal farewell. Chairman Kessler of the outing committee reported good progress and said that indications point to a very successful outing. The market committee reported progress.

Chairman Harry Bunyard of the transportation committee to the Minneapolis Convention reported progress. The route has not yet been decided upon but indications point to the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railway as the official route. The committee was given time to make a selection. One hundred dollars was voted to the committee for necessary expenses.

The club committee that acted in connection with the Third National Flower Show, was re-appointed to serve next year. A strong resolution was adopted, to be forwarded to Governor Sulzer, protesting against his veto of the bill appropriating $6,000 for greenhouses at the experiment station, Utica, N. Y.

A. Farenwald of Philadelphia spoke at length on the affiliation of clubs with the Society of American Florists. Mr. Farenwald's views were practically the same as previously outlined before the Philadelphia Florists' Club. W. F. Kasting of Buffalo was present and made an extended address, which was well received. He, also, went into the question of affiliation and suggested that the amount paid by club members over and above their regular dues to go toward the support of the S. A. F., be at least $2.00.

Charles H. Totty made a very satisfactory report relating to the projected flower show, to be held in the Grand Central Palace March 21-28, 1914. About $4,000 has already been subscribed as a guarantee fund and this with but little effort on the part of the committee. Mr. Totty pledged himself to take the same space that he occupied at the last show. Wallace R. Pierson, of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., who was present, made a similar proposition for his firm.

Harry Bunyard read a resolution on the recent death of A. L. Don. The Thomas A. Edison Co. had a representative present with one of their music machines. Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., exhibited a seedling fern, very fine and compact, for which they were awarded a vote of thanks. A. N. Pierson, Inc., exhibited the rose Milady, which also received a vote of thanks.

Baltimore.
 WEDDINGS AND COMMENCEMENTS.
 The latter part of June will result in a lull in the flower business. Just now, however, June weddings galore and commencements are many. Roses reign supreme at these occasions, though some use carnations, sweet peas, lily of the valley, etc. The social world is planning for seashore or mountain or perhaps a trip abroad, so except for a few dinners or a garden party, flowers are not in great demand for social functions. Prices have kept up very well all spring. Memorial day held its own with former seasons. Outdoor flowers were in great demand on that day, especially peonies. We noted in passing through Washington, D. C., on our way to Mt. Vernon, what a display that city makes on Memorial day. Flags and bunting draped the public buildings, wreaths were placed at the foot of monuments and the city seemed to have put on gala dress. The tombs of Washington and his wife were fittingly decorated and all men on approaching the last resting place of the "Father of His Country" bared their heads in respectful homage to his memory.
 Baltimore is in the hands of the advertisers this week, and an elaborate programme is being carried out.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Chas. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia., President;
Harry L. Holmes, Harrisburg, Pa., First
Vice-President; Arthur B. Clark, Milford, Conn., Second Vice-President; C.E. Kendel,
Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer;
J. M. Ford, Ravenna, O., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
June 24-26, 1913.

AT the recent Omaha meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association all the officers were re-elected.

TORONTO, ONT.—Thomas and James Rennie sailed June 5 on the S. S. Victorian for a two months' European tour.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—W. Atlee Burpee expects to make a European trip this season, sailing next month. —George C. Watson has made a "flitting," the first in many years, and lovely Lansdowne shall greet him no more. It surely taxed George hard to leave the old home.

PEAS AND BEANS.—The John H. Allan Seed Co. reports a good deal of rain in all their growing sections, Michigan, Wisconsin and the Rocky Mountains, with cool weather. Under these conditions this firm anticipates only moderate crops but says much will depend on the weather yet to come.

GAY, SPEARS & WILLIAMS have filed suit against N. Fred Brent at Winchester, Ky., claiming that they bought a carload of grass seed from the defendant in July, 1906, at $1.30 per bushel, to be delivered the following September, but at that time the price had advanced to $1.68 and Brent declined to deliver. He maintains that the plaintiffs are a trust and that a contract with them is, therefore, illegal.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The J. Steckler Seed Co., Ltd., says its business is about on the same basis or perhaps slightly increased over 1912 at this time. While it was expected to be considerably more, trade has been somewhat curtailed on account of flood conditions, but there is every reason to believe that the remaining seven months of the year, 1913, will bring the business average up to, if not above, that of 1912.

Implied Warranty of Corn.

Where a seller of corn knows that it is purchased for seed, the supreme court of South Dakota holds, in Totten vs. Stevenson (135 Northwestern Reporter, 715) that, in the absence of an express contract to the contrary, the law implies a warranty of the fitness of the corn sold for the purpose for which it is bought; and the party seeking to recover damages for a breach of the contract in refusing to accept the corn has the burden of showing that the corn tendered in fulfillment of the contract filled the requirements of the implied warranty created by law. That is, he must show that the corn was reasonably fit for such purpose, unless it appeared that there was a contract wholly excluding the implied warranty.

IN the territory tributary to Lake Michigan beans, tomatoes and other tender crops have suffered seriously from cold weather the past week.

VISITED CHICAGO: Wm Rehm, representing L. Daehnfeldt, Odense, Denmark; Einar Knutsson, representing Hjalmar & Co., Copenhagen, Denmark.

CLEVELAND, O.—At A. C. Kendel's Seed Store there is much activity in spring plant business, which is steadily assuming large proportions. The bare floors in the seed departments give the proprietors a very comfortable feeling.

Nebraska and Colorado Seed Crop.

Waterloo, Neb., June 4.—The J. C. Robinson Seed Co. reports a wet, cold spring. Corn planting was delayed fully 10 days but the seed was good and little replanting has been necessary. If the rains would cease so cultivation could be done corn would make rapid headway and would soon overcome the late planting. The acreage of sweet corn and special varieties is about on an average with the last four years. Vine seed crops at Rocky Ford, Colo., are also backward and not so promising as a year ago at this time. At Waterloo the plantings are only well up and the prospects, barring wet weather, are good.

JACKSON, MICH., June 7.—S. M. Isbell & Co. say beans have not been planted yet, but will probably go into the ground in the next 10 days. Sweet corn is coming up in good shape, soil a little wet in some localities. Vine crops being planted, soil in fair condition. Radish crops look fair, although a little late. Maggots are doing some damage. Tomato plants had a poor start on account of cold, backward weather in May. Cut worms are doing some damage.

Connecticut Seed Crop.

Milford, June 2.—"It is rather early to give a reliable crop report," says the Everett B. Clark Seed Co. "Beans are only just going into the ground. Peas are, in the principal sections, just well started. While in some sections there are unfavorable conditions, we would say that peas, as a general rule, have a fair average start. However, during all the short crop years peas have promised well up to June 20, and it is always after that date that the deterioration occurs. Root crops and sweet corn here in Connecticut are starting off under fairly favorable conditions. It was dry for a time, but drouth has now been relieved, and we see no reason to apprehend other than normal returns, although there is a great deal of time between now and maturity of crop. It is fair to say at this early date that there are no adverse conditions apparent."

Orange, June 3.—S. D. Woodruff & Sons say they have experienced an abnormally cold, dry spring, except the very early part of April, which was excessively wet. There was no rain in May until the last week, when a heavy shower occurred. Kale, with a greatly reduced acreage, is looking exceptionally fine and should produce a full crop. The turnip acreage is very light and the crop is light as well. Beet started unusually late and crops look only fair; the acreage is greatly increased. Onion shows a somewhat increased acreage and the crop looks exceptionally well. The sweet corn acreage is about as usual and germination, the result of a timely rain, unusually good. The crop starts off under most favorable conditions.

WATERLOO, IA.—The Galloway Bros.-Bowman Seed Co. has moved its greenhouses from the Prospect Hills addition to land just south of their seed house. The houses will be enlarged to about twice their present capacity.

Established 1810.

Yonkers, N. Y.

The florists and nurserymen of the city seem prosperous and no branch of the trade is more noteworthy than the nurseries, much of their stock being sold to supply local trade. The Yonkers Nursery Co., of which F. W. Smythe of Wadley & Smythe, New York, is proprietor, has about 100 acres of its own and 40 acres of leased land. There is about 40,000 square feet of glass, much of which shelters their large stock of palms, though there is a variety of other stock. Bay trees, boxwood and English ivy are very noticeable. A striking feature of the nursery at present is an immense number of rhododendrons in bloom.

One of the very interesting men in the trade is Charles Ammann, who has a record as a florist and nurseryman, in New York city and here, dating back over fifty years. He can remember New York city when its florists numbered less than half a dozen and he says it was hard for them to make a living. He retired from the retail business in New York several years ago and has since devoted his attention to his large nursery. This nursery is 120 acres in extent and contains a fine variety of stock, noteworthy being 10,000 Norway maples. There are several greenhouses filled with a variety of stock.

Henry L. Buntleman is another New York florist who has erected greenhouses, established a nursery and now makes his home here, though he yet has a retail store in New York which does a large business.

At Peter Macdonald's store, No. 2 Main street, we found business very active, particularly in plants. A good seed business is also carried on at this store.

The Milliot store, 18 North Broadway, is prosperous and a considerable glass area has recently been added to the greenhouses.

J. R. Raymaster, formerly a retailer, has retired to engage in other business.

J. P. Shelley, who has greenhouses at Tuckahoe, now has a retail store at 229 South Broadway.

Taunton, Mass.

The Taunton Greenhouses had a fine Memorial day business, both in plants and cut flowers. Taunton is one of the old and patriotic cities of the state and its citizens are among the foremost in honoring the memories of their dead. At the store of E. F. Rose it was said that business was excellent. Mr. Rose, in addition to his store at 100 Bay street, has a considerable glass area in another part of the city.

Near Taunton we noticed what seemed a curiosity in the shape of a large spruce tree around which a wistaria had twined itself to the topmost branches, both seeming strong and healthy.

Florists' Fertilizers

Conducted by F. W. Muncie,
Dept. of Floriculture, University of Illinois.
Inquiries regarding fertilizers and manures are solicited for this department. Address all inquiries to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Soil Types.

The Agronomy Department of the University of Illinois under the direction of Dr. C. G. Hopkins has carried on an extensive survey of the soil types of Illinois and determined by analysis the average plant food content of each. The names of the more important types and their approximate content of nitrogen and phosphorus are given because they have a bearing upon floricultural problems*. The gray silt loam soil covering the greater part of Illinois south of Edgar, Coles and Moultrie counties and south and east of the Kaskaskia river to the Ozark hills contains an average of 1,440 pounds of nitrogen and 420 pounds of phosphorus per million pounds of soil. The brown silt loam (the common corn belt land) of central and northern Illinois contains from 2,200 to 3,400 pounds of nitrogen and 600 to 700 pounds of phosphorus per million. The black clay loam composing the flat prairie lands of central and northern Illinois run from 2,700 to 4,500 pounds of nitrogen and 700 to 1,000 pounds of phosphorus per million. The yellow fine sandy loam (the lowest deposits along the Mississippi, Illinois and Kaskaskia rivers) average 1,100 pounds of nitrogen and 480 pounds of phosphorus per million.

Of bottom lands the gray silt loam of old bottoms averages 1,800 pounds of nitrogen and 700 pounds of phosphorus as compared with an average of 2,400 pounds of nitrogen and 800 pounds of phosphorus per million in the late bottom lands. Deep peat from swamps contains as high as 17,500 pounds of nitrogen and 980 pounds of phosphorus in a volume equal to 1,000,000 pounds of other soils, and sand averages about 720 pounds of nitrogen and 400 pounds of phosphorus in the same volume. These figures are arranged for reference in the table below:

Type.	Approximate Content Nitrogen	Phosphorus
Gray silt loam (on light clay)	1440	420
Brown silt loam	2200 to 3400	600 to 700
Black clay loam	2700 to 4500	700 to 1000
Yellow fine sandy loam.	1100	480
Old bottom lands.	1800	700
Late bottom lands	2400	800
Deep peat	17500	980
Sand	720	400

The amount of nitrogen may be estimated roughly by the color, the content increasing as the other darkens. Sandy soils with a certain content of nitrogen are darker in color than clay soils of the same content. The type of soil which the florist is using may be determined by sending a sample to the Floricultural Department of the University of Illinois, together with an exact statement of the location of the land from which it was obtained, as well as its average composition established from the large number of samples of the type which have been analyzed. With these figures in mind, the amounts of nitrogenous fertilizer recommended by the Floriculture Department of the University of Illinois and based on experiments carried out on brown silt loam may be varied to conform with the varying nitrogen content in the types of soil. On a light colored one the application may be safely increased by one-half, while care should be used not to increase the application if the florist is using a black clay loam (having a higher nitrogen content than the brown silt loam) for fear of overfeeding.

Sedalia, Mo.

The Archias Floral Co. of this city last week purchased of the Jackson estate the entire block between Fifth and Sixth streets and Carr and Sneed avenues. This is one of the most desirable blocks in the west end and lies just across the street from the company's carnation range, and on which a range of greenhouses will be erected for the growing of roses exclusively. This firm is also having plans drawn for a modern stone and terra cotta office building, two stories with basement, equipped with refrigerators and every modern convenience, to be erected at once on the site of the present office with conservatory in the rear. The above and other needed improvements, when completed, will more than double the present capacity. An uptown store will also be erected as soon as the present tenant's lease expires. The capital stock will be increased and has been spoken for by the following well-known citizens: Dr. E. F. Yancey, C. C. Kelly, E. G. Cassidy and Dr. W. J. Ferguson.

CALDWELL, N. J.—The Aubry Floral Co. of this place has incorporated; capital stock, $25,000. The incorporators are W. A. Aubry, P. J. Schreder and S. F. Aubry.

After Decoration day all florists and growers have empty benches. What shall we do with them? Have them empty? Sure not, no prosperous florist thinks of such a thing. Don't have your money in the bank idle. Nothing in the world will pay you better than to invest in growing asters of the right kind, such as Godfrey Aschmann grows: the Genuine Crego Aster, with leaves and an abundance of large trusses and big flowers, suitable to cut. Used at banquets (when cut flowers are scarce), table decorations, funeral designs, etc. It is also an excellent aster for pot culture. We have it in separate colors, pink, white, shell pink, cardinal, blue and lavender. We are well provided for and can meet the rush. 50,000 strong, heavy plants, 2½ in. pots are ready for immediate shipment now $3.00 per 100; $25.00 per 1000.

Take the hint and consider what a big profit you can make by growing this aster, the Crego, for the latter part of July and in August your asters are ready to cut and bring a good price. Then what? Empty benches again, and you can raise another crop to replace the asters; this time for fall and Christmas trade, such as Nephrolepis Ferns of all varieties, Poinsettias, Cyclamens, Rubbers, Chinese or Obconica, Primrose, Jerusalem Cherries, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine or other winter blooming Begonias, Rubbers, Solamuns, etc. This is what we call a live florist, a hustler utilizing every foot of your bench room to good advantage. If you want to be successful as a grower you must be wide-awake, and consider that you have to realize $2.00 to $3.00 for every square foot of space in your greenhouse.

Our improved dark red Begonia Vernon and our improved Begonia Erfordii, beautiful pink, has no equal. A bed of these begonias, pink, the Erfordii, or the bright red improved Vernon, is a joy forever. Constant bloomers, stay always short and bushy, the hot rays of the sun have no bad effect on them. They can be grown in a sunny or shady place. We can sell you large 4-inch pot plants, either of the improved Erfordii, the beautiful pink, or the dark bright red improved Vernon, at $7.00 per 100; 3-inch, $5.00 per 100; 2½-inch, $3.00 per 100; 5½-inch, plants, 25c each; big plants, 25 at 100 rate.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Steel Tubular Boilers are Costly and Difficult to Install. Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boilers are Easy to Handle and Inexpensive to Erect.

Steel tubular boilers require expensive chimneys. The foundation work, building of a fire box or bricking-in is also a big expense. The moving of a tubular boiler from the cars to your cellar is an engineering problem of no small size. Then there is the frequent expense of retubing that's always hanging over your head.

Burnham Cast Iron Boilers have no tubes to replace—resist destructive rusting—require no expensive chimney or masonry work—the sections are so easy to handle that two or three men with a monkey wrench and a screw driver can set them up. These are boiled down facts: Small ranges cannot be economically heated by steel tubular boilers. Owing to the number of boilers required to heat a large range of greenhouses, cast iron boilers are not economical.

We will advise you frankly which you should have and sell you either kind you want. Write us.

THE AMERICAN PEONY SOCIETY.

The Cleveland Show.

The eleventh annual meeting of the American Peony Society and the second exhibition of the Ohio Horticultural Society were held jointly in Grays Armory at Cleveland, O., June 12-14. The show was a great success as far as the exhibits were concerned and both of the societies were well pleased with the magnificent showing that was made. The American Peony Society particularly was very enthusiastic over the peony exhibition, which was the best in the history of the society as far as the entries were concerned, but the quality of the flowers was far below the standard of former years owing to the unfavorable season. The show was officially opened at 8 p. m. Thursday, June 12, when Mayor Baker addressed the large assembly after being introduced by J. N. Stockwell, secretary and treasurer of the Ohio Horticultural Society. The exhibition hall was a palace of beauty when the show opened, and the splendid arrangement of the various exhibits was a credit to John Boddy, chairman of the committee of prizes and exhibits, and it was mainly through his untiring efforts that the exhibition was a success. The rose showing was not as large as was at first expected, but the exhibits of the local florists and the private gardeners in the vicinity were very large, and when these were staged nearly every foot of floor space was occupied. The attendance the first evening was very large and on Friday even better, and the last day's attendance also exceeded all expectations.

The peony exhibit was staged on the right of the hall, facing south, and occupied three large tables extending the full length of the room. E. A. Reeves was the largest exhibitor, he having 3,000 blooms in his collection. His collection of one hundred named varieties, one of each, was easily the feature of his exhibit and the judges did not hesitate when they awarded him the American Peony Society's gold medal. His other exhibits also proved very interesting, but the collection was so large that many good varieties were overlooked. C. Merkel & Sons' vase of 25 Couronne d'Or was the feature of their exhibit and attracted much attention, as did their vase of Albert Crousse, which was one of the best vases of pinks in the hall. C. Betscher exhibited 100 standard varieties, but was greatly disappointed with his exhibit although he took first prize in the 25-pink class. A. P. Saunders also had a large exhibit, and won several medals in the amateur class, and his exhibits as usual showed the result of high cultural skill. He also exhibited his two best seedlings, Jean Baneroff and Edith Grant. Both are white varieties and won a certificate last year at the society show. The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., had a fine collection of elegant blooms of twenty varieties in the fifty class that was unusually good, and was entitled to the prize. Martin Kohankie secured first prize with his vase of 25 M. Jules Elie, which were unusually large and well grown blooms. B. H. Farr had a very interesting exhibit, but the flowers were affected in transit and did not arrive in the best of condition. Among his collection was noted particularly Solange, one of Lemoine's latest and best varieties, and Mrs. Geo. Bunyard, one of Kelway's latest, a very pleasing pink with cup-shaped petals. The Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, exhibited 20 varieties but not for competition, and these were not staged until Friday morning.

There were several entries of roses in the hybrid perpetual class, but the J. M. Gasser Co. was the only exhibitor of hybrid tea roses. In hardy herbaceous flowers the Cleveland Forestry department and Woodside Farm were the principal exhibitors, and the latter's collection of sprays and flowering and ornamental shrubs made a grand display. There was a large exhibit of flowering and decorative plants, especially begonias, gloxinias, hydrangeas and palms and ferns. Hart Bros.' two groups of Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Bostoniensis Harrisii were the features of this class, and the second group was so unusually fine that it received the society's gold medal. Hart Bros. also won first prize in gloxinias and firsts on the best specimen plant of Hydrangea Otaksa and fuchsias.

The collection of spireas exhibited by the Cleveland Forestry Department was grand and was set off to good advantage in front of the stage. There were various other exhibits and some exceptionally fine displays were made by the private gardeners in this vicinity, the most noteworthy being the exhibit of orchids by Robt. Weekes. Jones & Russell and the J. M. Gasser Co. were the only retailers that exhibited, and their displays were principally baskets of cut flowers arranged for effect. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., exhibited three vases of their new carnation Princess Dagmar, and it was surprising how well the flowers kept up. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., sent a bunch of their new rose, Milady, to the Jones-Russell Co. to be staged. The flowers were in fine condition when they were first placed on the exhibition table. Taking all in all the show was a success and the society feels that it was a magnificent showing for its second attempt. Frank Smith of Cleveland, John Merkel of Mentor, and Chas. J. Maloy of Rochester, N. Y., acted as judges.

Business Meeting.

The business meeting of the society was held in the Hotel Statler, June 12, President Farr presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Saunders, after which the president delivered his address, in which he stated that the most important work of the past year was the disposal of the large plantings of peonies at Cornell University. The treasurer's report was read, showing the society to be in good financial condition, with $1,500 in the treasury. The meeting was not largely attended, but all the members present were more than satisfied with this year's show, especially in regard to the number of entries. The society accepted the invitation of the Chicago Florists' Club and the Chicago Horticultural Society to hold its show in Chicago in 1914. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, B. H. Farr, Reading, Pa.; vice-president, E. B. George, Painesville, O.; secretary, A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.; treasurer, J. H. Humphrey, Germantown, Pa.; director for a term of three years, Geo. C. Thurlow, West Newbury, Mass. The society visited E. A. Reeves' peony farm on June 13 and were favorably impressed with several new seedlings that he is now growing.

Chicago Peony Show.

The peony growers in this vicinity had a hard time getting together sufficient material to make a peony show for the Horticultural Society of Chicago, held at the Art Institute June 12-13, but after a great deal of effort in going over their plantations made a fair showing. Frosts early in the season damaged a heavy percentage of the flower buds and the later cool weather retarded those remaining to such an extent that there was small room for selection. President B. H. Farr of the American Peony Society wrote from Reading, Pa., regretting his inability to make an exhibit on account of frost injury to his plants. Under these unfavorable conditions the Peterson Nursery made a highly creditable display and very good exhibits were staged by Vaughan's Seed Store, W. W. Barnard & Co., Rose Hill Cemetery, Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association and that sturdy old friend of the society, John Reardon of the State College, Ames, Ia. Vaughan's Seed Store made a good display of hardy herbaceous perennials and E. Bollinger of Byron L. Smith's place, Lake Forest, sent in a fine vase of oriental poppies which attracted much attention. The bay trees and other evergreens contributed by Vaughan's Seed Store and Winterson's Seed Store greatly helped to make the exhibition attractive and we must not forget to mention the interesting displays of F. V. Balling, Blue Island and C. O. Youngstrand, Glenview. This is the first regular peony show of the society and the general interest manifest, with more genial weather, will urge the society to make the peony show an annual event. The American Peony Society, it is understood, will co-operate with the local organization in next year's exhibition.

Vaughan's Seed Store exhibited the new canna Firebird in fine form, and this firm's display of hardy herbaceous perennials included Dianthus plumarius, Valeriana officinalis, Linaria dalmatica, Digitalis gloxinoides, Lychnis viscaria splendens, Leucanthemum præcox Perfection, Gypsophila repens monstrosa, Armeria formosa, and irises, hemerocallis and delphiniums in variety.

The Peterson Nursery exhibit of peonies included Alexandria, Virginie, Triumph de l'Exposition de Lillie, Festiva Maxima, Madame De Verneville, Eugene Bigot, M. Martin Chahazac, Duchesse de Nemours, Golden Harvest, Purpurea Superba, Modeste Guerin, Octavie Demay, Marguerite Gerard, M. Jules Elie, Eugenie Verdier, and Augustin D'Hour.

Judges: Thos. Wallis and E. O. Orpet.

Lake Geneva Peony Show.

The gardeners at the beautiful Wisconsin summer resort are famed for their skill, and their annual peony exhibition in the new horticultural hall June 14 was a great success. The quantity and quality of the blooms displayed was a revelation to all. Great credit is due the officers of the society for the manner in which all was arranged and staged. All the large classes of peonies were set in the center of the hall on the floor, making it possible to examine every bloom and make comparisons. Exhibits were sent from most of the large country homes, and the great interest shown by the owners in the exhibits promises well for the sale of peony roots in the future.

BARNARD EXHIBIT AT THE CHICAGO PEONY SHOW.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE EXHIBIT AT THE CHICAGO PEONY SHOW.

One large collection of single peonies attracted much attention. There were some magnificent blooms of a semi-double pure white, the name of which could not be learned. This has a great future, owing to the purity of color contrasted with the yellow stamens in the center. There was also a fine vase of lilium myriophyllum, one spike bearing six blooms. It was a new plant from China and was awarded a first class certificate. A quantity of high class fruit and vegetables were shown, including melons, peaches, strawberries, cucumbers, tomatoes, and not the least, pecks of fully matured early potatoes. The judges, who from a recent experience at a metropolitan peony show, expected an easy task at Lake Geneva in comparison, found it a long and difficult proceeding to recognize superior merit where all were so well shown.

PLANT NOTES.

Mignonette.

To be able to cut fine spikes of mignonette in early winter will require an early start and although it demands care and attention to germinate small seeds during hot weather, yet it will be necessary to sow seed early in July in order to have a cut in by the holiday season. A north propagating house is one of the best locations for the sowing of seeds in summer. Mignonette does not transplant from the seed flats successfully, so it is better to sow it in 2½-inch pots, five or six seeds to a pot, which can be thinned out to one or two plants as soon as they are large enough to select the strongest. Some growers prefer to sow the seed in hills in the bench, but to grow the large spikes of this flower requires a soil very heavily manured, and the constant watering often sours the soil before the plants have pushed out roots enough to absorb the water. As soon as the plants have attained a height of two or more inches the tip should be pinched or rubbed out, that the plant will branch, and again later these branches will have to be pinched off, until there are six or eight good, strong shoots. The plants will grow in most any kind of good soil, but to get the best the compost should be about one-half partly decayed manure well mixed in the soil and this will produce splendid spikes of bloom. After the plants begin to form their leaves a careful watch must be kept for the cabbage worm; these worms are very fond of mignonette and are voracious eaters, and soon denude the plant. They are a little difficult to find, being of the same color as the leaf, but are generally found along the midrib of the leaf or on the stem. Growers who cultivate large quantities of this crop screen their ventilation with mosquito netting to keep out the moth which lays the eggs. The plants should be set about one foot apart in the bench and staked or tied in some suitable manner to keep the stems straight and erect.

Asparagus Plumosus and Sprengeri.

It is a good time now to plant, reset or renew the soil of asparagus beds, either plumosus or Sprengeri. If the beds are to be set out with young stock preparation should be started at once. Asparagus plumosus does better in solid beds, well drained, with a good rich compost about two feet deep. The plants should be set 12 to 15 inches apart and the shoots be given strings upon which to climb as soon as they begin to grow. But little cutting should be done the first year as it is necessary that the plants become well established. The old beds should be given a good mulch of half-decayed manure, and if possible, without injury to the roots, removing the top soil. Asparagus Sprengeri can be successfully grown in the bench, but also requires a good rich soil. The young stock the first year should be planted 10 to 12 inches apart, and will produce many stems that can be cut. The beds that have produced this year will require a renewal of the soil. It is better to replant than to try to renew the soil in the bench. The plants are great feeders and the bench is generally full of roots after a year's growth and it will be found difficult to keep the bench watered during the spring of the second year. If the plants are too close together they can be given more space in resetting. Good large plants will do better if set about 15 inches apart. If a mulch is attempted, care should be taken to use no fresh manure but manure that is well rotted. The ammonia that arises from fresh manure will affect the plants, turning the foliage light, and in severe cases the foliage will become nearly white, making it worthless.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen should now be growing rapidly, especially those which were grown from seed sown last fall. These plants should now be in four or five-inch pots and the foliage growing full and strong. If the plants are plunged in a frame, they should be lifted out of the soil occasionally to see that the drainage is not stopped up. There is nothing that will ruin a young growing cyclamen any quicker than to have the drainage get closed and have the soil become sodden with water. Angle worms will often cause this and if they are detected should be removed. It is very easy to find whether they are in the pots. If the soil on the top of the pot is rolled into small lumps it is a sure sign that there are worms in the soil. If there are but a few the plants can be knocked out of the pots and the worms removed; if there are many a watering of lime water will soon rid the soil of the worms. The plants that are in small pots should be potted up as fast as they require it that they may be as large as possible for the holiday season, but do not go the other extreme and pot in too large pots. As soon as the roots get around the side of the pot shift them into the next size larger. If the plants are in the greenhouse a close watch for thrips must be kept during the summer. If the foliage is twisted when the leaf begins to unfold it is sure to be caused by insects and the plants should be sprayed with a nicotine solution. To have good plants for the holidays in full bloom they must be constantly watched and well grown.

Compost Pile.

The extra help that is so often employed during the spring trade can be utilized for a few days before they are let go, in getting together a good compost pile, and there is no better time of the year than the present to do this. The sod can be taken off now after the mowing with no great amount of grass upon it, and if stacked at this time the warm summer days will soon rot the sod and make the pile fine and mellow. So many growers will spend their money for coal and labor and skimp on that most necessary thing for good product, the soil upon which the plant depends for its culture, and again put the matter off until the fall when the days are cold, the soil too often full of moisture, and the hauling poor, which makes the work more expensive and in the end not having as good an article for the succeeding year. It is not necessary to stack the manure with the pile at this time, but if ground bone is to be used it is better to sprinkle it into the pile now. Bone dissolves slowly and the earlier it is incorporated in the soil the better, and it also helps the rotting of the sod. Take advantage of the slack time with both the men and teams and get the compost pile up at once.

Pot Grown Roses.

The hybrid perpetual or rambler roses after blooming if desired to force another year, in order to bloom them early should be grown in pots during the summer. They can be pruned back after blooming and lifted, or if in pots should be repotted. This will require a good, strong soil, composed of two-thirds loam and one-third manure. When potting be sure to give good drainage and pot firmly, ramming the soil down hard. It is impossible to grow roses successfully in a loose soil. The plants should be plunged to rim of the pot outside where they can be freely watered. Avoid, if possible, placing them against the greenhouse or other building or against a fence, but plant them where they will have a free circulation of air and can be sprayed from either side. If planted against a building or in close quarters they frequently become infected with red spider during the hot weather and it is nearly impossible to get rid of them.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Early Planting.

This month is the season for the planting of the chrysanthemums to be grown for commercial cut flower purposes, particularly those of the early and midseason varieties. Any delay in attending to this important work from this time on will begin to tell on the plants, as it will also do on the crop. The early sorts should be given immediate attention, and should be planted as soon as possible. To have early flowers early planting is essential. Growers who are generally first on the market with their early varieties usually do their planting in May, thus gaining considerable time on the man who has to hold off until getting rid of his Memorial day stock before being able to plant.

When mapping out the plan of planting, figure on giving the early varieties space to themselves and the same with the midseason and later sorts. It pays to study up and follow out every little detail at the time of planting just as much as it does at any other time. The condition of the plants for planting is one of our first considerations. They should be hardened off a week or so before the time of planting. By keeping them a little on the dry side you will find that they will take hold of the new soil more quickly than plants that have been subjected to heavy waterings at the roots just previous to planting.

Combating Flies.

With the widespread realization of the fact that flies spread disease as well as cause almost intolerable annoyance, there has developed a demand for efficient means of abating or controlling the nuisance.

The use of formaldehyde (or formalin) seems to offer one such means. R. I. Smith, of the North Carolina experiment station, found that one ounce (two tablespoonfuls) of formalin (40 per cent formaldehyde) in 16 ounces (one pint) of a mixture of equal parts of milk and water in shallow dishes with a piece of bread in the center for the flies to light on, proves very attractive and destructive to the flies, especially when placed on the front and back porches of houses. It is less effective when used inside of the house, although the method was used with good results in ridding dairies of flies.

The question frequently comes up as to which is the best grade of stock to plant. Plants that have been potted along and are now in 4-inch pots, or smaller stock now in 2½-inch pots are both good, provided they are in a healthy growing condition and have not become hard through neglect of potting at the right time. The larger stock may seem to some growers to have become too tall, but not so if the wood is still green, for they will produce the largest and earliest blooms and of an exhibition and fancy grade. For general commercial cut flower purposes good strong plants from 2½-inch pots are the most desirable.

Chrysanthemums are great feeders and during their growing season can use up a large quantity of manure, but it should be given to them gradually so as not to overload the soil at the time of planting. The best soil is that which is inclined to a heavy nature rather than too light, because a heavy soil will cause the plants to grow short jointed and sturdy, whereas a light soil has the tendency to cause them to make a long jointed growth. Firm planting is also one of the essential points connected with good culture of the chrysanthemum, therefore be sure that the soil is well firmed around the plant.

The distance apart to plant must be governed by the variety under consideration. Varieties which have light growth similar to Ivory can be planted 7x7 inches apart, or a little closer, while those of heavy foliage must be given distance enough between the plants for their proper development, say 8 x 9 inches. Another very important point to be taken into consideration when mapping out the planting is to put all the tall growers in a place by themselves and the same with the dwarfier growing kinds.

The plants should be watered directly at the roots at the time of planting, then allowed to dry out a little before again watering, but syringe them two or three times a day until they have become established. Attention should be given to the late varieties that are not yet ready for planting. Be sure they do not dry out too much while in the pots, but encourage them to make growth by keeping a moist atmosphere at all times. The stock intended for pot culture should also receive attention. Work them along as they need it, and pay close attention to topping back the shoots to keep them dwarf and to encourage them to break freely.

European Horticulture.

FROM THE ENGLISH TRADE PRESS.

The Gardens of Skibo Castle—The Sutherland residence of Andrew Carnegie, are remarkable for their roses, for these fragrant flowers have been planted in prodigal profusion, and thrive amazingly under the conditions that obtain in the northern part of Scotland. Rambling and dwarf roses are both grown in large numbers, and with an equal amount of success. Of great beauty is the effect produced by the roses that fill the eight large beds which encircle the fountain that forms so conspicuous a feature of the gardens. Each bed contains about 450 plants, and conspicuous among the varieties are Madame Abel Chatenay, Madame Ravary, Frau Karl Druschki, Juliet, Lady Battersea, Mrs. John Laing, and Richmond. There are rustic posts rising to a height of eight feet, clothed with Dorothy Perkins, Blush Rambler, Ilawatha, and other varieties of the same class, a hedge composed of the richly-colored Gruss an Teplitz, and a pergola some 600 feet in length, on which the various climbing and rambling roses are displayed to the greatest advantage. Most delightful also is the effect produced by the roses that clothe the balustrades which support the terrace.—Gardener's Magazine.

Golden-leaved Caladiums.—The first of the golden-leaved caladiums were raised at Chiswick somewhere about forty years ago, and at once aroused attention by reason of their distinctness from any of the other varieties then in cultivation. They are particularly bright and attractive in the spring just as the young leaves unfold themselves. In constitution these golden-leaved varieties are less vigorous than most of the others, and, though most of them are old kinds, they cannot be regarded as common. Among the earlier varieties are Princess of Wales, Princess of Teck, and Princess Royal; while more recent varieties are Golden King and Golden Queen.—Gardener's Magazine.

Potatoes as a Cure for Headache.—Those who have hitherto regarded the humble potato solely as a wholesome and useful vegetable will be interested to learn that it possesses other virtues. According to a short article in the Lancet the small doses of poisonous solanine contained in a healthy potato "are stated by some authorities to be an excellent sedative, and more efficacious in long-standing neuralgia than either antipyrine or antifebrin. We have little doubt that oftentimes a judicious diet of potatoes would be of greater benefit to a good many self-physicking people than a dose of some antipyretic substance which they regard as adapted to relieve all headaches, whatever their origin."

Totty's Message of Thanks.

Members of the Society of American Florists and the National Association of Gardeners:

I wish to thank each and every one of you individually for the magnificent gift which I was presented with last week in recognition of my work as chairman of the International Flower Show. This present is all the more appreciated because it was entirely unexpected. I feel the success of the show was due, not so much to my hard work, as to your earnest co-operation with me in every way. I only regret I am unable to share this beautiful gift with my fellow-committeemen, who worked hard and have been faithful and without whose assistance the show would have been an impossible undertaking. Trusting I may have the pleasure of reciprocating in some way in the near future, I remain,

C. H. TOTTY.

Chicago to Minneapolis.

The Chicago Florists' Club has selected the Chicago Great Western railroad as the official route to Minneapolis, Minn., for the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, August 19-22. ### The Smith Memorial.

The committee appointed by the Society of American Florists at Chicago last year to solicit funds for the erection of a suitable memorial to the late Wm. R. Smith at the national capitol has about completed all the preliminary work, and is now ready to start an active campaign to see what can be done. The committee is sending out letters to the secretaries of all florists' clubs, etc., asking them to bring the matter before their organizations and assist in securing this fund. Any suggestions that may occur to readers would be welcomed by the chairman of the committee, Wm. F. Gude, 1214 F street, Washington, D. C.

Plant Quarantine Decision No. 3.

The Federal Horticultural Board recommends that regulation S of the rules and regulations for carrying out the Plant Quarantine Act (37 Stat., 315), published in circular No. 41, revised, office of the secretary, issued December 20, 1912, be amended, to take effect as amended on and after May 1, 1913, so as to read as follows:

NOTICE OF SHIPMENT BY PERMITTEE.

Immediately upon the entry and before removal from the port of entry of nursery stock, for each separate shipment or consignment thereof, the permittee shall notify the Secretary of Agriculture, through the collector of customs where entry is made, on forms provided for that purpose, stating the number of permit, the date of entry, the general nature and quantity of the nursery stock, the country and locality where grown, and the name and address of the consignee to whom it is proposed to forward the nursery stock, together with the probable date of delivery for transportation.

At the same time a copy of the notice to the Secretary of Agriculture shall be sent by the permittee to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory, or district to which the nursery stock is to be shipped. Lists of such inspectors and officers may be obtained on application to the collector of customs or the Federal Horticultural Board, Washington, D. C.

Permits may be canceled and further permits refused if a permittee fails to give either of said notices, or gives a false notice, or knowingly mislabels any nursery stock with intent to evade any provision of the Plant Quarantine Act or of any regulation thereunder.

Should a consignee named in such a notice ship or deliver for shipment to any other state, territory, or district such nursery stock before it has been inspected by a duly authorized state, territorial, or district inspector or officer, he shall prior to such shipment give like notice to the Secretary of Agriculture and to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory, or district to which the nursery stock is to be reshipped.

Imported nursery stock which has been once inspected will be allowed to move interstate without restrictions other than those imposed on the interstate movement of domestic nursery stock.

PRICES MUCH LOWER.

Although the Memorial day business was exceptionally good the reaction that is usually expected after a great holiday trade has arrived. By June 4 stock was very hard to move. The falling off in demand or the heavier shipments, or both, put the wholesale price of carnations down to from $1.00 to $2.00 a hundred, which from $7.00 and $8.00, the Memorial day prices, was a heavy falling off. Previous to May 30 the weather had been dark and cool, but since then it has been clear and warm, which has greatly increased the supply. A large supply of roses is arriving and though first-class stock commands a fair price, the inferior grades are very cheap. Killarney Queen and double white Killarney seem to be the two varieties that are most in demand. Both red and yellow roses are slow, though in red, Cardinal seems to be the favorite in this market. Sweet peas are plentiful and there is good stock on the market. In what might be called the side lines, such as gladioli stocks, feverfew, pansies and bachelor's buttons, there is a plentiful supply. The old-fashioned bachelor's buttons seem to go well here, as they are prominent in nearly all the retail stores. The school commencements are now bringing in some business, but it is acknowledged that they are not what they formerly were in that respect. Peonies have not, at this writing, appeared in great quantities.

NOTES.

Thomas Roland of Nahant, having made a great success as a plantsman, is now fairly embarked as a grower of cut flowers. At Revere, Mass., he has erected two very fine houses, one 50 x 600 feet, the other 60 x 525. The latter house, which was erected last fall, is now planted with the leading varieties of roses. The larger house is now in tomatoes. Both houses were erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. and seem to be about the last word in commercial greenhouses. There is a large and commodious boiler house of iron and concrete. The heating is by two large Cunningham boilers.

W. A. Bridgeman of Thos. F. Galvin's staff, will go to New York to open and manage the new store which Mr. Galvin is erecting there. Mr. Bridgeman has had previous experience in the retail trade of New York.

Penn, the Florist, reports a great Memorial day business. Mr. Penn is now so well advertised that some of his correspondents do not take the trouble to write his name on the envelope; they just make a sketch of a pen and stick on a two-cent stamp and he gets the letter.

Andrew Christensen of Stoneham is another grower who has made a success with carnations. Some time ago Mr. Christensen visited Panama and saw the canal as well as much of the adjacent territory. He was much interested in the botanical features and in the diversity of climate and products, ranging from growths similar to our own field vegetables, on the uplands, to palms and other tropical plants on the lower levels. He agrees with many other visitors that the canal is a wonder.

The directors and stockholders of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., are much pleased with their new home, Winthrop square and Otis street, as indeed they should be. That section of the city, which already is a great wholesale center for various lines of business, will soon have increased transportation facilities, a new subway being under construction under Winthrop square.

STOCK OF POOR QUALITY.

Business is slow with plenty of stock on the market, but it is of poor quality. The roses are wide open when they arrive. Local carnations are very poor and the good ones are all from the north.

NOTES.

J. H. Small & Son have had a very good week with some large dinner and luncheon orders for the Brazilian envoys who are visiting Washington. John Barrett gave a large luncheon in their honor. The decorations consisted of Hillingdon roses, yellow daisies and yellow snapdragon, making a very pretty combination. Z. D. Blackistone had the decorations for the reception and dinner given in honor of the special ambassador from Brazil. The table was a large hollow square filled in with large American Beauty roses, cibotium ferns, crotons and hydrangeas, making a very attractive and artistic decoration. Mr. Blackistone also had a very pretty luncheon for the ambassador. We note that he is getting to be an expert on the game they call golf.

C. L. Jenkins & Son have incorporated for $10,000 and intend to build a couple of large houses in the near future. Here is one firm that has made a success in the last few years by growing a few novelties that the other man would not think of growing.

Chas. Meehan and W. McKissick spent one day up the river trying to get some of the large fish we hear so much about but up to date we have not heard what luck they had.

Gude Bros. report business fair for this time of the year. They are cutting some very fine sweet peas.

Mrs. Fowler, "the water lily lady," is cutting some very nice lilies and finds a ready sale for all.

Geo. H. Cooke is taking advantage of the good weather to go fishing.

HOTTEST JUNE WEATHER IN HISTORY.

The continued hot spells followed by cooler weather keeps the market in a very unsettled condition for on excessively hot days there is hardly any business transacted and the buying consequently is very light. During the early part of this week the city experienced the warmest June day ever recorded by the weather bureau, the thermometer registering 98.4° in the shade. A general dullness seems to pervade all branches of the trade except the bedding line, and that is nearing its end. The falling off in the demand has caused some growers to start planting their roses, for they feel that it is far better to get the young stock well established, than to grow the old plants on and throw the cut away. There is an oversupply of stock of all kinds at present and prices are extremely low. American Beauty is seen in large supply at nearly all the stores that handle them and some of the blooms are of good quality, especially those that are being cut off the young stock which was planted early. Killarney is beginning to show the effects of the summer weather and in many cases are light in color and open very quickly. Richmond also opens out very rapidly and in order to have them close have to be cut very small. White Killarney and all the other white roses have been in good demand all week and there is no great surplus of them. Carnations are approaching the end of the season and many of the blooms show it. There are still some blooms of good quality, but the majority are small and lack substance and sell at very low prices. There are plenty of peonies of all kinds to be had and the prices on them like all the other stock are very low. Orchids are again very plentiful and are being sold in large quantities at unusually low prices, which allows the retailer to make a splendid showing in his windows at practically no cost whatever. Sweet peas are still seen in large supply and keep up well considering the unusually warm weather. Lily of the valley is plentiful and the same can be said of gladioli which are now particularly good, especially America, Augusta, Shakespeare and Mrs. Francis King. The early summer flowers are now adding a great variety to the supply. Delphiniums and bachelor's buttons make the blue, coreopsis and gaillardia the yellow. Field daisies are arriving in exceptionally large quantities and one dealer expects a shipment of pond lilies this week. Ferns have taken another drop in price and there is now plenty of good new stock as well as some very good storage stock to be had. Taken all in all, there is no shortage of anything and an oversupply of almost everything and an extremely dull market.

NOTES.

Miss Nettie Parker, the Chicago Carnation Co.'s popular bookkeeper, is again attending to her duties at the store after a severe siege of diphtheria. Miss Parker wishes to thank her many friends in the local market for the many offerings of flowers that she received while she was sick.

Mrs. Theo. Callos is doing very nicely in her new store at 117 South Dearborn street, and which will hereafter be known as the Dearborn Flower Shop. Mrs. Callos is ably assisted at the store by her brother, Gus. Pedersen, who is in active charge.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting heavily in orchids at present and some magnificent blooms are to be seen daily at the store. The new lath house, 27x200 feet, which is now being erected at Morton Grove, is nearly completed and resembles a summer garden somewhat in appearance. August Poehlmann seems to be well satisfied with the firm's venture into the plant business, and is inclined to think that the Boston fern is the most profitable plant to grow. Twelve benches, some 375 feet long, will be devoted to ferns at their establishment next season.

The next regular meeting of the Cook County Florists' Association will be held at the Tavern, West Washington street, on Thursday, June 19, when a supper will be served and the league bowling prizes for the season just closed distributed. The association is now organizing a baseball nine which was out for practice for the first time on June 15. As soon as the team has a little more practice it is going down to Joliet to trim Peter Olsem's crack aggregation, but in a little better style than the local team did last year.

Wietor Bros. have finished planting their Killarney, White Killarney and American Beauty plants and are busy getting things in shape for the remainder of the stock which is yet to be planted. N. J. Wietor is well pleased with the past year's business in general and thinks that the summer's business on the whole will still be very satisfactory.

John Kruchten visited the Deerfield Nurseries on June 16 and found that the houses which were damaged by the recent cyclone are nearly repaired and ready for glazing. Mr. Kruchten handles the entire gardening output of the Deerfield Nurseries as well as the other miscellaneous stock which it grows.

F. J. Simons, who is employed in Percy Jones' cut flower department and H. Van Gelder's right hand man, is enjoying a well-earned vacation with relatives at Lincoln. Mr. Van Gelder was well pleased with the results of his ribbon sale last week when he booked a great many new orders.

E. E. Pieser, president of Kennicott Bros. Co., says that he will give $25 as a prize to the exhibitor making the largest display of blooms of any one color of peonies at the next annual meeting of the American Peony Society which will be held in this city in 1914.

Phil. Schupp, with J. A. Budlong, is away on business but is expected back this week. His firm is cutting a fine grade of American Beauty roses now but the stock has not moved as it ought to according to Wm. Hornberg, who is Mr. Schupp's right hand man.

At A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store trade is as good as can be expected considering the present market conditions and the best of everything seasonable is now obtainable here. Smilax has been in unusually good demand at this house all week.

Peter Reinberg is supplying his trade with a fine grade of American Beauty roses from young plants, in addition to his usual good line of other stock. The store employes are now making arrangements to take their vacations.

Chas. Klehm reports that Klehm's Nurseries only had half a crop of peonies this year. His firm recently purchased a farm in Arlington Heights which will be used as an addition to the peony plantation.

J. F. Kidwell says that the stock-

Bassett & Washburn are cutting a good line of stock, principally American Beauty roses and Easter lilies. Mr. Washburn will leave next week for a visit with relatives at Pasadena, Calif.

T. E. Waters, Edgar Winterson and Frank Potocka will go to Michigan City this week to secure grounds and make other arrangements for the Florists' Club picnic.

A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., attended the joint meeting of the American Peony Society and the Ohio Horticultural Society at Cleveland last week.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is showing a full line of all seasonable stock in quantity and is featuring a fine grade of peonies.

Max Awizzus, the E. C. Amling Co.'s "Killarney Kid," succeeded in catching 40 fish at Lake Waconda on June 15.

BUSY WEEK FOR RETAILERS.

The past week was a very busy one for the retailers. The downtown as well as the West End florists were well supplied with orders for weddings and graduating exercises. Stock in all the wholesale houses was very plentiful, especially in the poorer grades. Carnations the latter part of the week slackened up some. There was a good demand everywhere for fancy stock and this was considered scarce.

CLUB MEETING.

The St. Louis Florists' Club held a very enthusiastic meeting at Shaw's Garden, being especially invited by Superintendent Moore. Sixty-five members were present. In the absence of President F. H. Weber, Charles Young took the chair. Secretary J. J. Beneke, before the meeting was over, was called home by phone, the message being to the effect that his wife had taken ill suddenly. Treasurer Will Smith took Mr. Beneke's place at the meeting. Ramona Park was selected as the place where the annual picnic will be held July 17. H. C. Irish, chairman, Fred Ammann of Edwardsville, Ill., Fred Bruenig, W. C. Smith and R. J. Windler were appointed a committee to confer with Coliseum officials in regard to holding a flower show this fall. After the meeting cigars were passed around and the members were shown over the newly erected greenhouses. Later about 35 visited the Jules Bourdet greenhouses in the near vicinity where the members were royally entertained. Frank Fox and Hugo Schaffer were elected members of the club.

NOTES.

One of the largest wedding decorations was put up Saturday by Grimm & Gorly at the Buckingham hotel. More than 9,000 pink roses and other varieties were used.

It is rumored that this city will make a bid for the S. A. F. conventions for 1914. It is nine years since one was held here.

All the West End florists were kept busy the past week with orders for graduating exercises.

Alex Siegel will leave for his summer cottage in northern Michigan in about two weeks.

Some extra fancy American Beauty roses were seen at H. G. Berning's.

Early closings by the wholesale houses started this week.

SUMMER CONDITIONS PREVAIL.

In a way the market presents very much of a summer aspect. There are not so many strictly summer flowers as yet, unless you count summer roses. The resemblance comes rather from the condition of the market than the kinds of stock. The offerings far exceed the call. About half of them are of the best quality while the other half are not so good. The first realizes hardly a fair return while the other brings in just about what it deserves and that is much less than the first. Combined with this for several days we have had a hot spell that vied with any weather mid-July or August could offer. Roses are in very large supply and the stock of the wholesalers contains quite a number of blooms of real merit, but outside of American Beauty none of the varieties are enjoying the call their quality merits. The offerings of giganteum lilies are large and fine. Candidum lilies sell well. Lighter colors in gladioli, too, find ready sales. The darker ones do not sell as well as the lighter colored ones. Lily of the valley meets with a fair call. Sweet peas have been selling well. Pond lilies, while very pretty, find only an ordinary market. The first of the hardy hydrangeas have come into the wholesale houses. Other offerings include corn flower, coreopsis, feverfew and the like.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell has leased one floor above his present quarters. He will use the new space for the office and display rooms for supplies, while the present quarters will be utilized exclusively for handling cut flowers. Increase of business has necessitated more space.

MARKET GLUTTED.

The market is about the same as the week previous in so far as stock is concerned. There is a glut of all kinds of stock and prices have dropped to the lowest figure ever known here. Large quantities are moved, but the stock arrives faster than it can go out in the regular channels. Funeral work is not overplentiful, and large church decorations are a little scarce for June, although there are a few good jobs scheduled for the next week. The grammar school and high school commencement this week ought to help move considerable stock, as it always does and after that the summer dullness will be here. Fancy and dagger ferns are a little short of the demand this week. Other greens are plentiful. Orchids and lily of the valley are in good supply now and stock is as good as midwinter quality. Peonies are now the most popular flower and there are millions of them. Water lilies are in, but not in heavy supply.

NOTES.

Let us hope the time will soon be here when all florists will keep as good business hours as the Taylor Flower Shop in the Taylor arcade. They begin the day's work at 8:30 a. m. and close at 5:30 p. m. and at noon every Saturday during the summer. Each employe has a good, long vacation with full pay in the bargain. The store never opens on a holiday, such as Christmas, Easter or Thanksgiving day.

The opening of the new store of Kinney & Levan on Euclid avenue Wednesday and Thursday of the past week was the occasion of a grand display of flowers. American Beauty roses, peonies, gladioli, baskets and vases of roses and carnations filled the aisles, counters, stairways and balconies.

Miss Katherine O'Connor, whose store is at the corner of E. Ninetieth street and Superior avenue, showed her skill in decorating at the Monaghan-Mahon wedding, which took place Wednesday, June 11. White peonies and pink Killarney roses were used, both at the church and the home.

Frank Britton of Rhoadsville, Va., committed suicide by hanging some time either June 4 or 5. He was employed at the time of his death by Frank Brendell, 2515 Lorain avenue. He formerly worked for a number of years for the Ehrbar Floral Co., 3033 Lorain avenue.

Fred Witthuhn left for Europe Sunday evening, June 15, for a four months' vacation. He will travel through France and Germany principally and is taking his youngest son, Frank, with him.

The first water lilies of the season arrived Monday, June 9. C. F. B.

SPRING TRADE BRISK.

May, 1913, is on record as the hottest and windiest May since the weather observation station was established here. Also it was one of the driest, all of which made it interesting if not encouraging to the local florists. In spite of this handicap, the spring season's trade just closing has been brisk and up to all reasonable expectation as to volume. In fact, there was a nice increase in the demand for general bedding stock, and most lines are now sold reasonably close. Much of this demand has come from territory tributary to this city, as a trade center, and is a favorable indication of the development of this comparatively new territory from the pioneer class into the community of substantial progress, where the importance and satisfaction of the development of the attractive and aesthetic receive serious attention. Individuals and communities are willing to spend more freely and with better directed effort to beautify and make attractive a land which first built its strength upon its natural advantages as a productive agricultural territory. Mother's day here, as almost everywhere, it seems, was the best yet since the day was started. Practically everything that was fit and much that was not fit was sold clean, and still the demand was unsatisfied. There was practically no advance in prices, and the buying was usually in small orders, although as many bulk orders were to be had as the florist wished to take, in view of the certain demand by the larger numbers whose trade at such a time means the successful continuation of the custom. A slightly increased demand was noted for gift boxes or a "nice plant for mother." It all helps, and only the most awkward or greedy handling of the situation can spoil one of the best days for the florist and for the public as well. Memorial day compared favorably with previous years. Prices were about as usual for that day, and but slightly advanced on a few items over the usual everyday prices for this time of the year. Peonies, jasmine, carnations, roses and lilies were in good demand in about the order named, so far as could be noted. There was ample supply except in carnations, which are usually hard to get in quantity and dependable quality at this season. Peonies were excellent and a large part of the supply was locally grown. Jasmine was the best for years, and large quantities were used. A heavy bedding plant trade was enjoyed by all the florists, and it is doubtful if a dozen first-class blooming geraniums of one color in good flower could have been found for sale in the city on the afternoon of May 30.

NOTES.

F. Kuechenmeister, since discontinuing his store more than a year ago, has had little trouble in disposing of his stock at his greenhouses, and says trade has been good all spring. The Kuechenmeister children (they are all boys) have equipped an amateur wireless station and no doubt will soon be planning to handle their own special service in telegraph delivery.

It is reported that the business arrangement between Bixby and Dugan will probably terminate by mutual consent at the expiration of the time period of the agreement. Mr. Bixby, the owner of the property, continuing the business.

Chas. P. Mueller did an unusually heavy trade in cemetery planting this season, and supplied very excellent stock. His nearness to the cemeteries is a great convenience in this trade.

C. A. Rose has handled an increased quantity of vegetable plants in flats this season, but says that the continued dry weather shortened up the final demand. W. H. C.

CONDITIONS VERY POOR.

With much warmer weather with us again, business all around is very poor, flowers being bought in most instances at the buyers' prices, which will make many poor sales reports for the growers. Roses are in in large quantities. Sweet peas are also very plentiful, but the quality of them is so bad everybody refuses to have them. Lily of the valley, irises and daisies are plentiful and very good. The carnation crop has been rather short for the past few days. Many more could have been used. Peonies seem to be at their last stages and probably will be over very soon. Some fine gladioli, which clean up at sight, are still coming in. Among the outside flowers delphiniums and crocus are very prominent. The many commencements and weddings of this month are keeping such stock as American Beauty roses, lily of the valley and fancy roses "on the jump." Good cattleyas are still scarce in Pittsburg, most of the good ones having to be purchased out of town. Greens are plentiful with the exception of smilax, which is hardly seen and is bringing good prices. The plumosus which comes from the south has been arriving in very poor condition for some time, leaving a shower of green dust wherever it is placed.

TO BOOST MEMORIAL DAY TRADE.

Outside of shipping orders, Memorial day in the past has caused but little activity for the local shops, counter sales being increased hardly 10 per cent. This was not due to a lack of observance but that the people objected to the annoyance of carrying wreaths or cut flowers for 10 or 12 miles in loaded cars and arriving at the cemeteries with rumped flowers and ruffled tempers. Peddlers of all kinds become flower merchants for the day and, swarming the entrances to the cemeteries, dispose of great quantities of cheap wreaths and flowers of all descriptions. Shipping orders this week were unusually heavy and local orders far more numerous. The market toned up and Thursday morning saw the retailers buying up stock before it was unloaded. A visit to a number of shops on Friday night showed them very nearly depleted. While the greater part of the stock was shipped to the interior the local public is evidently tiring of the wilted, cheap trash of the peddlers and our retailers should take advantage of the trend and secure the trade they have been losing. A number or all of the local florists might cooperate to maintain a covered van at each of the large cemeteries on Memorial day and the day preceding. A florist receiving an order or making a sale could deliver the order to the wagon assigned to the cemetery where the order was to be used; the purchaser on leaving the car would receive the order on presenting a tag received at the time of purchasing. The cost of this service could be apportioned according to the value of the business done by each florist, this being determined by placing the sale price on each tag given to the customer to reclaim the order. With a year's time to work out the details the necessary publicity could be given this plan to keep trade in its proper channels. Florists' stock of all kinds with the exception of callas was plentiful all week and notwithstanding the heavy demand the market was steady at prices fair to all.

NOTES.

A pretty feature of the Mayflower shop (Frank Bradford, proprietor) is a profusion of wild azaleas from the Santa Cruz mountains. These dainty blossoms are making a bid for public favor.

M. A. Hofinghoff, the genial secretary of the P. C. H. S., has gone for a month's vacation. His many friends wish him an enjoyable outing.

Newport, R. I.

An interesting event for June 25-26, will be the exhibition of the Newport Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society, at Harbour Court, the estate of Mrs. John Nicholas Brown. The Garden Association is not composed of gardeners but of wealthy ladies who are interested in gardening and horticulture in general. A good prize list is offered and doubtless the exhibition will be worth while. It will be superintended by Joseph Manda of West Orange, N. J., and New York, who is as well qualified for the position as any one in the country.

The New York Florists who make an annual pilgrimage to this city for the "season" are already here and active in opening shop. Wadley & Smythe have already opened their store, which is in charge of Henry Mollers, who though he is yet a young man, has been coming to Newport for the past 16 years. In the business of the store he is assisted by William Kohler, another of the good salesmen whom Fred W. Smythe has the faculty of gathering on his staff.

Oscar Schultz, one of the progressive florists of this city, now conducts the old Hodgson range and has in addition a considerable glass area on Thames street and a retail store at 18 Broadway. At his Thames street range we noted very fine orchids and many window boxes filled in a very artistic manner. In the latter line of work he shows fine taste.

At the range of Carl Jurgens we noted a few excellent stocks of roses, American Beauty being very prominent. This range, the largest in Newport, is also noted for the fine lily of the valley it produces. The most of the stock is sold in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., New York, by Carl Scheerer.

William Jurgens has practically given up rose growing and is now devoting his attention to lily of the valley, lilies, and other bulbous stock and sweet peas of the Spencer type. With the latter he is having remarkable success. He is erecting a fine fire-proof residence.

On the Thomas Galvin estate we found stock in fine condition. Since the death of the elder Mr. Galvin, the estate has been managed by his son, a very capable and agreeable man.

The Newport Nursery Co. of which F. W. Smythe is proprietor and his brother, A. J. Smythe, is manager, is in a very flourishing condition.

A. T. Bunyard and Kammann & Crowley have opened their summer stores here.

CLUB MEETING.

At the June meeting of the Albany Florists' Club the committee on constitution and by-laws reported on seven minor changes which were unanimously adopted and ordered printed in a new edition. The changes are to go into effect with the installation of new officers in January. Louis H. Schaefer of the publicity committee reported on advertisements inserted in the local newspapers to stimulate business on St. Valentine's day, Easter, Mothers' day, and Memorial day. He said that for St. Valentine's day $25 was collected and $21 spent with the papers; on Easter the committee had a fund of $47 of which $44.80 was expended; reports on the two other days were held over until the next meeting. As to the good results F. A. Danker, a former president of the club, said that there could be no doubt. The notices called the attention of the public to the fact that on Mothers' day colored flowers might be worn for mothers who are living and the knowledge greatly stimulated the sale of colored carnations. On the whole the retailers were well pleased with the publicity campaign and expect to keep it up during the wedding and commencement seasons. The advertisements were about nine inches long and three columns wide with special designs, borders, and wording. Communications were read from John Young, secretary of the State Federation of Floral Clubs, and William F. Kasting of the Buffalo Florists' Club, calling the attention of the members to Governor Sulzer's veto of the bill to appropriate $60,000 for a range of experimental greenhouses for floriculture and vegetable culture at Cornell university. The florists will protest to the governor. Upon invitation of Frederick Goldring the next meeting will be held at his place, Font Grove, on the evening of July 10. R. D.

Fall River, Mass.

The Memorial day business was good, though some complaint has been heard among retailers relative to the high price of stock. At the store of C. Warburton there was a heavy trade and they are now busy with landscape work. At their greenhouses much stock is grown but not enough to supply the demands of their large retail trade. Mr. Warburton has now a sport of the My Maryland rose with which he is greatly pleased, particularly with the length of stem. He is working up a stock and says that though he has had other sports of My Maryland, this is the first one that has interested him.

Paul de Nave, formerly located at Madison, N. J., has a neat range devoted entirely to orchids, of which he has a fine stock. He is making improvements in his houses. Much of his cut stock goes to the local trade. John W. Meads, though interested in other lines of business, devotes much time to his greenhouses where he has been successful with carnations, stocks and various other lines.

F. Buffington, one of the oldest florists of this city, is still active and doing a good business. A. F. F.

Philadelphia.

HOT WEATHER, DULL TRADE.

The first really hot weather was experienced the past week, the glass showing a temperature of over 90°. Summer is surely here, this being shown as well in the volume of business, which is falling off rapidly. The transient trade is very light, indeed. The supply of flowers now coming in is hard to handle. Much of the rose stock is badly mildewed, this condition being due to the cool days of the week before. There has been quite a demand for American Beauty roses for the steamer trade. Taft and Hillingdon have sold well, being preferred to Killarney, which is growing less popular. Carnations are in fair shape but are not selling, being dumped to the street men who buy them by the wagon load on Saturday at their own price, something like a nickel a bunch of 25. Sweet peas have been the feature. The outside stock has been very fine and is largely used in wedding and commencement work. Peonies from cold storage are still in good shape and are used in the decorations with good effect. Lily of the valley has been in fair demand at the usual price. Very fine larkspur has been a feature and is much used in the window displays. Gladioli are seen in many of the stocks of extra fine quality. Water lilies are now a feature of the summer window decorations.

NOTES.

One of the Myers & Samtman force at Chestnut Hill met with a painful accident last week. In cutting American Beauty roses a thorn from one of the stems caught in one of his eye lids and tore it so that it required several stitches to sew it together. The eyeball was injured but not seriously.

Building still goes on, old houses being torn down, modern ones of more capacity being erected to take their place. Chas. Zimmer of Collingswood, is building one 40x100 feet and two 25x100 feet. Wm. Monroe of Lansdowne is erecting a rose house 35x200.

Berger Bros. had large shipping orders for wedding and commencement work from their out-of-town trade. Peonies, sweet peas and Easter lilies are leading features with them.

The strong card at Edward Reid's store are superb blooms of Cattleya gigas. American Beauty roses are also a feature. Mr. Reid says business is all right for the season.

Newport.

John Gibson of Gibson Bros. is a native New Yorker and was once in business there. He has pleasant recollections of many of the older New York florists. Though on the shady side of fifty he is active and in good health. The Gibson Brothers have a good store at Washington square with greenhouses on Malbone avenue and enjoy a steady trade.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND.—Joseph Molck, a well-known local florist, has been awarded a medal by the government of France for services rendered in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71. He is a native of Alsace and came to this city in 1890.

MAQUOKETA, IA.—H. L. Hill and wife are the proud parents of a new boy, who arrived June 12 and whom they have named Dickson Porter Hill. Mr. Hill was formerly in the cut-flower business at Geneseo, Ill., but recently opened a first class store in this city.

THROWING OUT STOCK.

The cut flower trade of this city is in the midst of the summer dullness. The rumbling of express wagons, bringing in great loads of flowers is heard early in the day, but the rumbling of the "dead cart," hauling away the pitiful remains of what were once passably good flowers is heard later on. The past week was probably no worse than the preceding one, but it was certainly no better in some lines. Great quantities of roses and carnations went to the dump, with a fair sprinkling of other stocks. There was some good stock that brought a fair summer price, but little can be said of prices for common stock. Peonies were not so plentiful, but 75 cents a dozen was a good price, grading down to 25 cents per dozen, and there is good stock of them on the market. We should say that anybody that is getting $2.00 a hundred for lilies is doing well, for the market is smothered with them. There is an abundance of sweet peas and the common kinds are as low as 25 cents a dozen bunches, but peas come about as near to moving, though prices are low, as any stock. The side lines of gladioli, irises, larkspur, coreopsis and various other outdoor flowers are in abundance, but add more color than cash to the wholesale stores. While, as has been stated, peonies were not so plentiful, it is predicted that the "cold storage" crop is yet to be reckoned with.

Monday, June 16.—The week opens with hot weather, a surplus of stock and a very slow market. Sweet peas in enormous quantities are arriving, many of them very fine, but they are too plentiful. With continued hot weather it would seem that the carnation supply will soon diminish, but there are more than enough at present to supply all demands. This is true of all other stocks.

NOTES.

The space vacated by Moore, Hentz & Nash will hereafter be occupied by Louis A. Noe, of which Matthew Sampson, Jr., is manager. Other interests on the third floor will thus secure more space, which they have greatly needed for some time.

M. J. Nicholas, who manages the new store in the Grand Central Station, recently opened by his father, John S. Nicholas, reports excellent business in flowers and fruit. While the flower section is admirable for its good stock, the fruit department is just as notable. Mr. Nicholas is a young man of fine business qualifications and address. As a recreation he is fond of athletic sports, being a member of the New York Athletic Club and other athletic organizations.

The park board, which is composed of the park commissioners of the five boroughs of the city, met June 12 and appointed Carl F. Pilat landscape gardener for the parks. The office has been vacant for more than a month, since the resignation of Chas. D. Lay. Mr. Pilat has offices as a landscape architect at 52 Broadway. He is believed to be well qualified for the position.

The weather of June 14 was very hot. The official report gave 85 degrees at noon, but in the streets in the afternoon it was 90 degrees. This put the Saturday business, usually good, about on a level with the preceding days.

The process of widening Twenty-eighth street by cutting down projecting windows, etc., goes merrily on. Young & Nugent have just got their show window in a shape acceptable to the city fathers and attractive to the public.

Herman Weiss will, on July 1, locate his wholesale business at 103 West Twenty-eighth street.

TRADE VERY GOOD.

Trade conditions have been very good since Memorial day. With stock equal to all demands several weddings large and small, have kept the florists very busy, and from now until the end of the month will be school commencements, which will call for a great many flowers. American Beauty roses are plentiful and good. Killarney seems to show the effects of a few warm days. Carnot are good. Carnations are becoming of poor quality. Sweet peas are extra fine, both as to flower and stem. Peonies are good and selling fast. Gladioli, daisies and snapdragon have their usual call.

NOTES.

It is very unfortunate that the governor of this state could not see the necessity of signing the bill appropriating $60,000 to Cornell University for the projected department of floriculture. It is needless to say that those interested will not stop until an appropriation is made.

San Francisco Notes.

At the coming meeting of the San Francisco Florists' Association, President Fred Jaeger, of the Fairmont Floral Co., will introduce a proposition to list in all florist shops such persons who, having exhausted their credit at one shop, transfer their undesirable patronage to another. Mr. Jaeger also believes that the florists should unite in requiring satisfactory reference from all persons desiring to open an account. It is generally conceded that these reforms, if carried out, would be of great value to the florist and should afford some concession to the honest customer also, as, in the long run, it is the paying customer who also pays for the "dead beats."

The fall exhibition committee of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society organized and elected the following officers: William Munro, manager; H. Plath, assistant manager; T. F. Taylor, secretary; Donald McLaren, treasurer.

Chicago News Notes.

Peter Reinberg, the well known local wholesale florist and president of the board of education, was indignant over a published report in one of the daily papers on June 16 that he had resigned from the board of education. Mr. Reinberg has not resigned, but says he has asked the mayor not to reappoint him when his term expires on July 1. Mr. Reinberg is in perfect harmony with every member of the board, but desires to devote more of his time to his rapidly extending business.

B. E. Gage and E. G. Chapman, with the Peterson Nursery, attended the Lake Geneva Peony Show on June 14 and were surprised at the splendid exhibit which the gardeners in that vicinity made. They returned the following Monday and are now busy booking orders for peony roots for September delivery.

Zech & Mann are doing a good business in their new store and are well pleased with their present quarters. The new ice-box will soon be installed and when it is in they will be in splendid shape to handle next season's trade.

R. J. Tussing and wife of Canal Winchester, Ohio, have been visiting here for several days and during their stay placed an order for a No. 6 Kroeschell greenhouse boiler.

J. Aldous, of J. Aldous & Sons, Iowa City, Ia., was in the city on business on June 16.

Visitors: R. J. Tussing and wife, Canal Winchester, O.; A. Aldous, Iowa City, Ia.; A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

 Next annual convention, at Cleveland, O.,
 June 24-26, 1913.

ANNUAL convention of the American Seed Trade Association, Cleveland, O., next week, June 24-26, headquarters at new Hotel Statler.

THE yearbook of agriculture for 1912 contains an excellent paper on "Insects Injurious to the Onion Crop," by F. H. Chittenden.

CHICAGO.—Prices on the Board of Trade June 18 for grass seed was noted as follows: Timothy, $3.75 to $4.75 per 100 pounds.

SEATTLE, WASH., June 3.—The Chas. H. Lilly Co. reports cabbage seed crop conditions as favorable thus far with a normal crop in anticipation.

KEIZERSKROON and Chrysolora tulips and Von Sion narcissus will be higher. Darwin tulips are in good demand at about last year's prices.

VISITED CHICAGO: H. A. Johns of the Sioux City Seed and Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.; B. E. Brotherton of the Peninsula Seed Co., Port Huron, Mich.

TORONTO, ONT., June 4.—Hogg & Lytle report their pea crop at least two weeks late and say it is hard to make predictions as to crop at this time. Most of the crops are just through the ground but look healthy and with good growing weather from now on should improve rapidly.

ALPENA, MICH., June 6.—The weather has been favorable for bean planting, according to Rogers Bros. It is too early to make any prediction as to the crop as the planting time is hardly past. Prospects for peas are fair as the spring has been favorable. Conditions in Idaho, where the most of this firm's pea stocks are planted, have been all that could be expected. There have been several good showers recently and most of the peas are looking good at this time.

NEW YORK.—In common with other lines of business the seed trade district has been very quiet during the past week. At some of the stores peony roots and various tubers and bulbs are being pushed. Peter Henderson & Co. have had a fine window display of peony flowers, all named, with an invitation to order roots, "now."—J. M. Thorburn & Co., among other novelties, are offering bulbs of Liliun davuricum, the flowers of which somewhat resemble the old tiger lily, also L. tenafolium or Siberian coal lily.—Walter J. Barnwell, for many years with Peter Henderson & Co., is now with Burnett Bros.—The plant auction houses are doing considerable business in bedding plants.—It has been stated that about September 1, the Stump & Walter Co. will remove to 30-32 Barclay street, directly opposite J. M. Thorburn & Co.

California Seed Crops.

Palo Alto, June 4.—There has been some recent slight improvement in the crop outlook owing to late showers. However, the amount of moisture was not sufficient to do any very perceptible amount of good, and outside of irrigated crops all are very poor. Some sweet peas will be ready to cut inside of two weeks when in a normal season the plants are usually in full bloom. The crop in the central part of the state will average under 25 per cent.

Chas. N. Page.
 President American Seed Trade Association.

Lettuce has also been slightly improved by the shower of May 27. Under the most favorable conditions we may get 40 per cent of a crop. Salsify promises not over 25 per cent. Radish is especially poor with nearly all the growers and we cannot figure on more than about 25 per cent of a crop for this. Carrot has improved somewhat also and if favorable conditions prevail from now on we may get 50 per cent or possibly a little more. Parsley and parsnip are both very light crops, not above 20 per cent.

Onion seed, the most important crop, is, owing to persistent irrigation, on the average the best California seed crop of this very poor year. Taking an average of all sections, we think there will be slightly over 50 per cent of a crop, a great deal depending on the weather from now, which is the critical time for onion. There was quite a quantity of this item carried over from the excellent crop of 1912 and this seed, being of first class quality, will help out this year. We think most of the growers will be able to deliver onion nearly in full. Of course all will be short on some kinds but there will be enough, we think, to supply the trade with their wants. Those who have not contracted will have to pay an advance in price of probably 25 per cent.

Seed Used Per Acre.

FROM UNITED STATES CROP REPORTER, JUNE, 1913.
 In consideration of supplies and distributions of crops, as well as for other purposes, the average quantity per acre, used for seed is frequently a question of interest. Year ago county crop correspondents of the Bureau of Statistics were requested to report the quantity of various seeds usually sown or planted per acre, the returns were tabulated and show the following averages for the United States, more or less variation from the average prevail in different States, and, therefore, in addition to the average of returns, an estimate of the range of the bulk of the seedlings (not the extreme range) is also given.
 Seed used per acre, approximate average for the United States.

HOOD RIVER, ORE.—J. H. Koberg, a local vegetable and flower grower, suffered the loss of several thousand plants recently when the Columbia river overflowed, flooding his gardens and greenhouses.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 16.—Mushrooms, 40 cents to 85 cents per pound; lettuce, 18 cents to 20 cents, small cases; radishes, $1.00 to $1.50 per 100 bunches; cucumbers, 40 cents to 65 cents per box of two dozen; asparagus, $1.00 to $2.25 for 24 bunches.

New York, June 14.—Cucumbers, 30 cents to 75 cents per dozen; mushrooms, $2.00 to $4.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 5 cents to 10 cents per pound; radishes, $1.50 to $2 per barrel; rhubarb, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; lettuce, 50 cents to $2.00 per basket, crate or barrel.

Indoor Cucumbers and Tomatoes.

Mulching of cucumbers and tomatoes is almost a universal practice with greenhouse men, as it improves the moisture conditions besides feeding the crop. It also requires enormous amounts of water to carry a heavy growth of cucumbers and a good mulch not only reduces evaporation but prevents wasting and puddling if watered with a hose. Often the mulch applied proves too thin after several waterings, in which case more should be applied without delay. Perfectly fresh horse manure having a fair proportion of bedding is excellent material.

There can be no question about a light shading being a favorable practice after steady hot weather sets in, say from June 20 on. This can be sprayed on with a pump and should not be a continuous coat but just enough to provide some relief. We have often referred to the necessity of examining the beds instead of depending upon guesswork. Take a spade or trowel and dig down a foot into a cucumber bed and see how much water you have applied. A dressing of fertilizer can be used as late as this; it should have nitrate of soda, sulphate of potash and bone meal in about such proportions as to insure 4 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent potash and 10 per cent phosphate.

CHANDLER, ARIZ.—Fred Arnold, a local landscape gardener, and Mrs. M. Roedder, a nursery owner, of Shorb, Calif., were married recently after a three weeks' courtship by mail.

PEORIA, ILL.—Chas. Speck was successful in defending a suit brought against him by a purchaser of nursery stock who claimed some of the young trees died. Evidence showed that the trees had been delivered in good condition and that the nurseryman was therefore not responsible for their loss.

The society made special arrangements to hold a big show on or about August 15 in connection with the Ohio Horticultural Society's next exhibition. The meeting was largely attended, nearly all the members being present, and a very good show is expected to take place. Those present were W. A. Christy, Warren; Joe Coleman, Lexington; A. H. Austin and wife, Wayland; H. J. Alyors and wife, Garrettsville; P. H. Huntington and wife, Painesville; S. Huth, Cuyahoga Falls; G. L. Richardson, Lordstown, and C. Betscher, Canal Dover.

Plant Quarantine Act.

FOREIGN INSPECTION REQUIREMENTS.

The Federal Horticultural Board has issued a circular of information in relation to foreign inspection requirements to be in force July 1, 1913. It calls attention to the exact requirements as to foreign inspection and certification and gives the proper forms of certificates to accompany nursery stock imported, as well as indicating the proper marking or labeling of each package or container. Importers of nursery stock and others interested should have a copy of the circular on file, and thus provide against any misunderstanding of the regulations. Those interested should write to the Federal Horticultural Board, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for circular of information No. 3.

The regulations provide that the certificate of inspection showing the stock to be free from disease and pests must be signed by the proper official of the country from which the importation is made. From countries where no official nursery stock inspection is maintained importation will be permitted only for experimental purposes and in limited quantities, and only through such ports as the Secretary of Agriculture shall designate in the special permit issued for such importations. Thus it will be seen that importation on a commercial scale will be practically prohibited from countries which provide for no official inspection. Two forms of certificate are required. One is an "original certificate," to accompany the invoice of such shipment, and the other is a "copy certificate," which must be attached to each package or container.

IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH.—A new flower store has been opened at 215 East Hughitt street by Burbank Bros.

Florists' Fertilizers

Conducted by F. W. Muncie, Dept. of Horticulture, University of Illinois.
Inquiries regarding fertilizers and manures are solicited for this department. Address all inquiries to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Asparagus Plumosus and Smilax.

Kindly let us know the best fertilizer for Asparagus plumosus and smilax.
R. A. C.

Asparagus plumosus and smilax are heavy feeders and will do well on a compost made of heavy loam with one-third partly rotted cow manure. After the roots have filled the bench, a heavy mulch of cow manure (partly rotted) will be found beneficial. An application of sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda in solution at the rate of 1 pound of chemical to 50 gallons of water even daily will not harm plants six inches high, and the effect is noticeable in the darker color of the foliage. These should not be applied, however, within a couple of weeks after mulching, for fear of overfeeding.

Acid Soils.

Organic matter in the soil breaks down into ammonia, nitrates and other compounds containing nitrogen and into a number of acids. The presence of these acids is the cause of the "sour" condition of soil. Hence the soils which have least organic matter present (that is, are lighter in color) are most apt to be "sour." The flat lands of prairie origin are also usually more "sour" than the undulating or hilly lands, particularly those which were once covered with timber. In Illinois the gray and drab silt soils of the southern part (especially those of prairie origin) are quite acid, the brown silt loam soils of central Illinois slightly acid, while the average black clay loam of northern Illinois is somewhat the reverse, that is, alkaline. However, the "sourness" of any individual patch of soil may vary regardless of the average condition of the type of soil to which it belongs. Poor drainage usually will cause this condition. On account of this, peaty soils and swampy spots in any field are usually acid.

A soil may easily be tested in order to determine whether or not it is "sour." For this purpose get a sheet of blue litmus paper and one of red (costing about 10 cents in all) from a drug store. Be sure to purchase the best quality. Make two balls of moist soil, each as large as a baseball, and into one of them press a strip of blue litmus paper (2 inches long by 1/2 inch wide) and into the other press the red litmus. Allow them to stand for two hours and then examine that portion of the strip previously covered by the soil. In case the red strip has remained red and the blue has changed to red, the soil is acid; if the blue strip has remained unchanged, while the red one has turned blue, the soil is alkaline and needs no treatment for "sourness." In case each strip retains its original color, the soil is neutral and needs no treatment. This simple test will furnish information of great value to the grower.

Some fertilizers are slightly acid or alkaline themselves, and when applied cause the soil to become so; others are not acid nor alkaline when applied but after standing in the soil, and being subject to the action of bacteria and plant roots, become slightly acid or alkaline. A careful record has been kept at the floricultural greenhouses of the University of Illinois of the reaction of soils when treated with dried blood. For about a week the soil was alkaline. At the end of that time it became acid, the degree of acidity depending upon the amount of dried blood originally applied. Where acid phosphate was applied the reaction was acid while in those sections where manure alone had been used or where potassium sulphate had been added, the soil remained neutral.

While, as a rule, greenhouse soils are better if not "sour," it should be pointed out that not every plant grows better upon a soil plentifully supplied with lime than upon a "sour" soil. Indeed, some plants will not grow upon any soil except a "sour" one. Very little experimenting has been done to determine the "likes" or "dislikes" of floricultural plants for "sour" soils. Among those which are known to grow better upon these soils, however, are the azaleas, rhododendron, begonia, common heather, broom (Cytisus scoparius), Genista anglica, several vetches, the foxglove (Digitalis purpurea), the sundew (Drosera sp.), among floricultural plants; blackberries and dewberries; red top, bent, millet, soft grass, sweet vernal and other grasses; the chestnut (Spanish), the birch, the holly and many conifers. Sweet peas, poppies and the comet aster are known to be benefited by lime, as well as lettuce, asparagus, beets, spinach, cucumbers, watermelons, leeks, onions, celery, carrots and muskmelons; also grapes and the elm, peach and quince trees.

The "sourness" of soils is often shown by the vegetation that grows upon it; on swampy spots rushes and sedges, and (on better drained lands) the sorrel (Rumex acetosella) and the foxglove are characteristic. When the soil in the greenhouse is found covered with a green coating of algae, it is a positive indication of acidity of the soil. Methods for correcting sourness in soils will be taken up in a later paper.

SUPPLY SHORTENS.

It has been very hot and dry in this locality for the past week and as a consequence the flower supply has fallen off considerably. Carnations will soon be a thing of the past, as most of the growers are throwing them out to make way for the next season's crop. Roses are doing fairly well and there are still some good American Beauty and enough of other varieties to supply the demand. There are still some good lilies and these are no little help in all kinds of funeral work. Plenty of wedding orders are received but social affairs are about done for the season. The funeral work has been very good. Two young daughters of R. M. Dudley and wife were killed by a railroad train in Iowa while touring the country in their automobile. The remains of the two young ladies were brought to this city and the largest demand for flowers ever known here was the result, taxing all the florists to the limit. M. C. D.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The June meeting of this society was held at Glen Cove, L. I., Wednesday, June 11. President Brown presided. Mrs. W. E. Kimball was elected an honorary member. G. Owen and W. Noonin were elected to active membership. The exhibition of cut flowers was very fine. The first prize for best vase of tea or hybrid tea roses was won by J. Adler; for best basket of fruit A. Fournier was first. H. Boettcher showed some wonderful sweet peas for this early date and received a certificate of culture. Three vases of antirrhinums shown by H. Gaut were very fine, winning a certificate of culture. A vase of Aaron Ward roses by H. Jones received honorable mention. At the next meeting, July 9, prizes will be offered for the best three vases of sweet peas, pink, white and red, 25 sprays in a vase. J. MACDONALD, Sec'y.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Cheap hose is poor economy for use around a greenhouse

It takes mighty strong, durable hose to stand dragging over cement floors and all the other severe tests of florists' service. Ordinary garden hose isn't tough or heavy enough. You'll save a lot of money in the end by buying

GOODRICH HOSE For Florists' Use

AKRON—Braided fabric, non-kink construction, supplied in lengths up to 500 feet. A well balanced hose in every particular. Excellent grade of rubber stock is used in the tube, cover and friction, and particular attention is paid to the grade, weight and mesh of the cotton fabric. Built in every way for just the sort of service it is likely to be put up against in greenhouse use.

FLORISTS—Wrapped duck construction. Practically in a class by itself, with its extra heavy cover, strong duck and superior friction. It is a popular hose and as its name indicates, particularly adapted for the use of Florists.

Glad to send you a sample of either or both of these brands with full particulars.!

It will be recalled that this boiler was exhibited and attracted considerable attention at the National Flower Show in New York last April.

Chicago Notes.

One of the boilers went to the Atlantic sea coast, the other one to the Pacific coast, and the third one to Milwaukee. The first shipment of the day was a No. 14 Kroeschell boiler to Mueller Greenhouse Co., Brown Deer, Wis.; the second a No. 14 to Carl Ruef, Salem, Ore., and the third

What Boiler?

Water

OF COURSE, if your range is of a size economical for heating with cast iron boilers, you won't consider for a minute putting in an unwieldy, short lived wrought iron tubular boiler.

If it is to be a water boiler, this Sectional one of ours has a rather enviable reputation for greenhouse economy that puts a stop to your considering anything but this greenhouse boiler made especially for greenhouse work

Knowing how essential a prompt, strong circulation is in greenhouse heating, we designed this boiler to do just that thing. And it does it.

Steam

If you install water, and also want an auxiliary system of steam, or if you prefer steam, our steam boiler will surely suit you. A system of this kind is invaluable for sulphuring a rose-house.

One thing many growers tell us about our steam boiler, is its quick steaming power and the fact that after steam is down, a vapor heat continues for some time.

You will instantly recognize the advantage of a continued "gentle heat."

Let us talk it over—you and I.

Primulas.

In growing primulas one should always keep in mind that they are cool growing plants and do not require any forcing with heat, but revel in good cool ventilation. The early sown seed should now be fine plants in 3-inch pots and making good growth if given right culture. A shaded frame is the best location for them, but if this is not to be had, the cool, airy end of the greenhouse lightly shaded will grow them very well. Water the plants carefully; if they are growing nicely they will require frequent watering, and if they were potted rightly will be benefited by a light spraying, but this must be done with caution or the plants will be knocked over and become broken if the force of water is too strong. Keep the plants potted up as fast as they need it, so as to get all the growth possible before the buds set when cooler weather comes on. Any flowering shoots that show themselves should be immediately pinched out.

Genistas.

Keep the genistas trimmed into the shape it is desired to have them grow, by continually pinching off all long, strong shoots that grow away from the desired form. The plants can be grown in almost any shape, either globular or pyramidal, by constant pruning. They can also be trained to fancy forms, such as fans or pillars, or even to the shape of baskets with handles, which make very effective pot plants for the Easter trade. These plants, although expensive, always attract attention at that season of the year. A wire frame the form of the handle basket is fastened over the pot and as the plant grows it is tied down to the frame in such a manner that when the side shoots break they will entirely cover the frame. Two strong leaders are selected and tied over the handles. When the shoots reach the edge of the frame they are stopped and the side shoots immediately break all along the length of the growth. These side shoots are kept pinched back to hold the form until mid-winter, when the flower shoots form, and if any of these are too long and stray away from the desired shape, they can be tied in closely so that the form is retained. Keep the plants either plunged in a frame outside or in a cool, airy house and syringe frequently to prevent them from becoming infested with red spider. Keep the plants in a cool temperature throughout the winter, about 45° at night, until March, when they can be given a little more heat.

Violets.

The violet plants in the field will need constant cultivation not only for the purpose of keeping the weeds down but also to keep the ground in a fine growing condition and to conserve all the moisture in the lower soil that is possible. The plants will now be sending forth numberless runners and these should be removed, continually keeping the plants to the crowns. The plants often will make three or four crown growths. These should be left upon the plants and only the long runners removed. These runners can be taken off with a knife but should be cut clear back to the point where they branch from the plant. If any joints are left on the running shoots a crop of small weak runners will immediately sprout, taking the strength of the plant. A careful grower can much more quickly and better remove the runners by pulling them out, but care must be taken not to disturb the roots of the plant.
The best way to do this is to grasp the base of the plant with one hand, holding it firmly in its position as growing; take hold of the runner close to the plant with the other hand, and with a sharp pull remove the runner.
The pot grown plants of the double varieties can be now planted in the beds inside, provided the house can be given plenty of ventilation both on the sides and at the top, but if this is not possible it is preferable to keep the plants outside until the very hot weather has passed. Use plenty of old leaf mould or half rotted leaves in the soil, which should be well spaded in.
It is far too early yet to plant any of the single violets inside; in fact, it is better to wait until frosty weather before removing these to their winter quarters. If planted too early they make large quantities of foliage and will not produce either as many or as large flowers as plants that are not so heavily furnished with foliage.

Decorative Stock.

This is the season of the year for those that have a demand during the winter for decorative stock to carefully look over the sales for the past season and the stock on hand and make preparations for the coming year. Stock can now be purchased at lower prices than in the fall and much more safely packed and shipped than after the cool weather has begun. There is also still time to root and get up a stock of small plants that will be of great use in basket work or in fern dishes. The dracenas all root very quickly at this season and a few lengths of cane cut up and inserted in the propagating beds will produce fine small stock for the center of fern dishes. Many of the fancy leaved begonias, such as metallica, argenteo-guttata, maculata and others of the fibrous rooted section of this species, root easily at this season and make fine small plants with which to fill up arrangements and give a good assortment for this work. Any of the older decorative plants that have not received attention should be looked over at once. The plants that are used for rental can surely be given an overhauling and there is yet two good months to obtain a good growth and to get them into condition for another season. We have never been in favor of an outdoor treatment for this class of stock, but believe advantage should be taken of the summer months to get all the growth possible and the plants in suitable shape for the winter rentals. After the growth has been made and the cooler nights have come, they can be gradually cooled down and hardened off so that they will be in condition for the fall and winter decorations.

Lilium Harrisii.

The bulbs of Lilium Harrisii for early winter blooming will soon arrive and preparations should be made to handle them as soon as they are received. They should be potted as soon as they arrive and then placed in a cold frame. They can then be brought forward as they are wanted. The bulbs can be planted either in pots or boxes and later if it is desired set out in the benches to bloom. While it takes a little longer to plant them in pots they transplant much more successfully than when disturbed in moving from the boxes. Place the bulbs for the early flowering in a four-inch pot and dig out a frame, place the pots side by side in the frame and give them a good watering, then sprinkle on the top a thin layer of sand or ashes and cover with three or four inches of soil. Place shutters on the frame to keep them dark and cool until the bulbs have made roots. They can then be brought into the houses during the fall and early winter as they are wanted.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Although cut flowers are usually regarded as perishable, they are not included in this classification in the recent state law forbidding the employment of women more than 10 hours except where such perishable articles must be cared for immediately. For this reason Henry Smith and Alfred Hanna, local florists, were fined $10 each. They claim that in reality their employes did not work more than the legal number of hours as they were often out for an hour or two during the day, but the court disregarded this plea.

WITH THE GROWERS

A. N. Pierson, Inc.

Although much has been said and written about A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., there is always something more that might be said, because they are always doing some new thing, or doing some of the old things in a new and better way. We have not asked them about their watchword, or if they have one, but "progress" would seem very appropriate. Even in these days of large achievements in horticulture, as well as every other line of human endeavor, 1,000,000 square feet of glass makes a greenhouse range to be proud of. We will not say that this is their exact glass area, but we are certain it runs very near to those figures. Then when you visit them and are impressed with the extent of their work, and re-visit them in a year or so, you are almost sure to notice a new house or a large addition here and there throughout the range.

It is not a mere figure of speech to say that A. N. Pierson put Cromwell on the commercial map of the United States. Before his time it was simply one of many towns in the state of Connecticut. The Pierson industries comprise two large ranges, but it is only a few minutes' walk from one to the other, and is an interesting walk, for nature has been kind to Cromwell in bringing forward a great number of noble trees, maples being very notable. Many of these trees, judged by their size, are quite old, though yet flourishing. There are many others that are looking fine that were planted by Mr. Pierson. We would not call the Piersons "specialists" in the sense that the word is often used. It is enough to say that they grow everything that is in general demand in the cut flower and plant trade, grow it well, and have reduced packing and shipping almost to a science, which, as all good florists know, is a most desirable feature of the business.

It would be a large undertaking to enumerate all their activities so we will be content to mention a few of the things that were most noticeable at the time of our visit, June 25. As the home of the noted new rose Milady we expected to find it in a flourishing condition, and were not disappointed.

There are 19,000 plants of this variety being grown for cut flowers and a great number of young plants have been shipped to the trade throughout the country. All who attended the Third National Flower Show at New York will recall the magnificent display of Killarney Queen made by this firm. They had there, it is true, many other good roses, but their Killarney Queen, so to speak, took the visitors by storm. At the greenhouses there are 12,000 or 15,000 Killarney Queen roses being grown for cut flowers and much good stock is being cut.

When we visited the place the propagation of chrysanthemums for this reason had just been discontinued. Altogether they have propagated half a million plants. Of this stock 175,000 will be grown in their own greenhouses for cut flowers, the balance sold as young plants. Grafting roses is an active industry at this range, the figures being about 700,000 in a season. In the field we noted 400,000 manettis and many others are bought from other firms. In the field, in addition, there is a very large planting of other stocks, 125,000 carnations, 30,000 asters and 50,000 gladioli are but a part of the figures. Two timely features that we noted were houses of fine Adiantum Farleyense, and also finely flowered hydrangeas. We particularly noticed the hydrangeas because of late we had heard complaint of the difficulty in securing well flowered stock. What has here been enumerated is but a small part of what may be seen at this great establishment. Though it is now drawing near the end of the carnation season for cut flowers, we found plenty of good stock here. Orchids, lilies, lily of the valley—everything, in brief, that the market demands is here. Visitors to this place are sure of a genial welcome from A. N. Pierson and his son, Wallace R. Pierson, the men who direct and manage this great enterprise. We may add that including the various occupations so great a business calls for, 400 men are employed.

Rose Show at Hartford, Conn.

The exhibition at the Rose Gardens, Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., June 21, was a most enjoyable affair and we believe that every visitor went away much impressed with the solid worth of the men who managed the show. The award for the trial roses planted in Elizabeth park will be found in another column. The judges were: Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; John F. Huss, Hartford, Conn., and Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass.

The visitors were welcomed by Thomas S. Weaver, president of the park commission; Park Superintendent Parker; Alex. Cumming, Jr., head gardener of Elizabeth park; W. C. Ball, foreman at Pope park, and G. H. Hollister, foreman at Keney park. Other park employes were on hand to assist in the entertainment of the visitors. The original rose garden of Elizabeth park was planned by Theodore Wirth, now of the Minneapolis, Minn., parks. For its development, after the departure of Mr. Wirth from Hartford, much credit is due Alexander Cumming, Jr., the head gardener, though it must be understood that he has had the hearty support of the superintendent of parks and the park commissioners.

RAMBLER ROSES IN FAIRMOUNT.

The rose garden covers an area, we should judge, of from 5 to 10 acres. This includes borders and beds of other stock. In the center of the garden on an elevation there is a commodious summer house covered with woodbine and climbing roses, which greatly enhances the effect. The garden is rich in arbors and trellises of climbing roses and the selection of varieties and their arrangement is admirable. Crimson and pink ramblers have been much used in the arbors, but there is a wealth of other varieties. Dorothy Perkins, Lady Gay, Seven Sisters, Universal Favorite, Hiawatha, Triumph, Philadelphia Rambler, Bridal Wreath, White Dawson, Pink Pearl, J. B. Clark, Wm. Eagan and Queen of the Prairies are all seen to advantage.

A noteworthy single rose in the above class is Leuchtfeuer (H. polyanthe), which at this time makes a fine display. Tausendschon, interspersed with other varieties, makes a fine display at the entrance to the garden. We had previously formed a good opinion of this rose, as it is seen in the retail stores, and our opinion as to its merit is confirmed by seeing it in full bloom, in the open ground. Christine Wright, another pink rose grown to stakes, showed good features. We might give a long list of single roses that are grown on the trellises of this garden if space permitted. The collection of hybrid perpetuals is very fine and includes all the best known varieties. Prominent are: Margaret Dickson, Hyppolyte Jamain, Miss Annie Wood, Helen Keller, Magna Charta, Jules Margottin, Duke of Teck, Hugh Dickson, Salamander, Fisher Holmes, La Reine, Baroness Rothschild, Lady Helen Stewart and many other varieties.

The plan of the garden seems to be to represent the rose family in its many branches and to show just what may be done with the many different varieties of roses. As an instance, we find a number of well known varieties that had been grown as standard or tree plants. These included Mrs. John Long, Bernard Paul, Baby Rambler, Captain Christy and Jules Margottin. In tea and hybrid tea roses, we find practically all of the varieties that are popular in commercial floriculture.

The garden of old-fashioned flowers, in close proximity to the rose garden, is a feature worthy of note. Here we found all the flowers our mothers and grandmothers used to grow in their gardens. The Rock Garden, which we believe was started by Mr. Cumming, is another noteworthy feature. There are 540 varieties of plants, all suitable for the rockery, and it must have taken some thinking to assemble and arrange them. In this group is the Edelweiss.

While the judges and visitors were viewing the garden, Superintendent Parker passed around the word that everybody was expected to be at the mansion at the park entrance at 1:30 p. m. Arriving there, we found a bounteous repast. Park Commissioner Weaver sat at the head of the table, with Adolph Farenwald at his right and Benjamin Hammond at his left. After full justice had been done the viands, Mr. Farenwald and Mr. Hammond were in turn called upon for speeches and both expressed themselves in felicitous terms.

After the luncheon, automobiles were in waiting and the party was taken through the entire park system of the city. Of the other parks, all of which are interesting and well cared for, the most extensive is Keney park, which in size is only exceeded by one other park in New England. Its beautiful landscape and forest scenery will be long remembered by those who visited it.

Among those who enjoyed this pleasurable outing were: Benj. Hammond, Fishkill, N. Y.; A. Farenwald, Philadelphia, Pa.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; A. T. De La Mare, New York; Leonard Barron, New York; J. H. Pepper, Hempstead, L. I.; M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.; Eber Holmes, Montrose, Mass.; R. T. Brown, Cottage Gardens, Queens, N. Y.; F. L. Mulford, Washington, D. C.; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.; A. F. Faulkner, New York; M. R. Jacobus, Ridgefield, N. J.; Prof. A. C. Beal, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; Wm. E. Ball, Hartford; G. H. Hollister, Hartford; J. P. Kemneas, Hartford. The last three named are Hartford park foremen.

Garden Sweet Peas.

The Department of Agriculture's bulletin on experiment station work includes the following article on sweet peas:

The sweet pea can adapt itself to a variety of locations, but a position which provides for plenty of light and air at all times with a little shade from the midday suns of July and August is to be preferred. Plants grown in too much shade are usually weak and spindling with but few flowers. The drying summer suns tend to shorten the blooming period and also cause certain colors to fade. The effects of drought can be largely overcome, however, by early planting and by deep and thorough preparation of the soil. In seasons when the conditions are especially favorable sweet peas can be grown with fairly good results with no more preparation than is given ordinary vegetable ground, but as Prof. A. C. Beal writes in a recent bulletin of the Cornell station, "uniformly, year after year, the sweet peas with the strongest root systems will produce the finest flowers during the longest period." Vigorous root development can best be secured by planting just as early in the spring as the soil is dry enough to work, while the atmospheric conditions are such as to retard or even to prevent top growth for several weeks.

Any ordinary garden soil is suitable for sweet peas, providing it is well drained. Since sowing should be done at the earliest possible date, the soil should preferably be prepared in the autumn.

The soil should be broken up to a depth of 15 inches to two feet, and on some soils even deeper. Unless the soil is very uniform in composition, it is disastrous to bring the bottom soil to the surface; but this should be turned over in the trench, mixing with it, if heavy and compact, rather coarse stable manure or litter. Sometimes leaves are available for placing in the bottom of the trench. The use of these materials in subsoil promotes drainage, as well as improves the soil.

If a good layer (four inches) of half-rotted stable or cow manure is placed between the top and bottom spadefuls, and the top soil, if heavy, made light with old manure, an excellent preparation has been made. The office of the manure is not only to increase the store of plant food, but also to increase the water-holding power.

An application of bone meal at the rate of 1 ounce per yard of trench, as well as a good dusting of air-slaked lime applied while working the soil in the autumn will both prove beneficial. The lime will not only correct any acid condition existing in the soil, but it will also aid in releasing the residual plant food of the soil.

Certain white-flowered sweet peas have light-colored seeds, while others have black seeds. The white seeds frequently split in the pod before harvesting and are likely soon to lose their vitality if planted early when the soil is cold. Hence the white seeds should be sown rather thicker than, or not so deep as, the black seed. In the sweet-pea plantings at Cornell it has been found that an ounce of seed will plant 50 to 60 feet of row, and if the seed is good it should plant still more. This allows for one seed to every two inches.

In some seasons sweet-pea seeds are slow in germinating. It is well to examine such seeds in order to ascertain their condition. If the seeds are found dormant but still fresh and plump, the seed coats should be cut with a sharp knife and replanted, when they will germinate well. This difficulty is not confined to the sweet pea, but some of the other Lathyrus behave similarly. The trouble usually follows a very hot, dry season, when the seed becomes so excessively ripened as to render the seed coat impervious to water. Sometimes, in order to expedite germination, the seeds are soaked; a better method for the amateur is that recommended by — Hutchins, the most prolific writer on sweet peas in America, who places the seed packets in moist earth for seven or eight days, then takes them out and examines them. The swollen seeds are planted, and the others cut with a knife.

In a test conducted at Cornell in 1909-10 the best results were secured from fall-planted seed. When to sow the seed in the fall will depend largely upon seasonal conditions in the locality. The ideal to be attained is to sow the seed long enough before freezing weather sets in to permit the roots to develop, without at the same time starting the leaves into active growth.

FALL PLANTING.

In the season under discussion the finest and the earliest flowers were secured from plantings made in the fall. The preparation of the soil is the same as that already described, except that the soil is firmed and the trench filled level. On this a trench, or furrow, two inches deep is made, and the peas are planted at least as close as one seed every two inches. The row should be slightly ridged up so as to prevent water from standing and, as stated in the beginning, it is essential that the location be on a well-drained site. When the ground freezes a mulch of manure is placed over the row. In the spring when the bright weather comes the plants should be examined in order to see whether they are growing or whether the soil is soggy and cold. In either case the mulch should be removed from over the row, and should be left in the center so that, in case any weather should come when the safety of the plants is at all endangered, the old mulch may easily be applied to protect them.

The seed of the standard varieties of sweet peas is cheap, and the advantage gained in obtaining early flow-

SPRING PLANTING.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground and the soil in workable condition in the spring, a heavy application of superphosphate of lime should be made and raked in. Care should be exercised not to get the soil too loose, and for this reason it is best to confine all stirring of the soil to smoothing the surface. Especially is this true with light soils, which, if stirred deeply in the spring, must be well firmed. Heavy soils that are likely to bake may be improved by working in a light dressing of old, thoroughly rotted manure. * * *

One method recommended is to hollow out a broad trench, 24 to 30 inches wide and two inches deep, and then sow the seed one inch deep in single or double rows. The trench should be kept open for six weeks in order to retain the water. This system is very good in a garden where all cultivation is given by hand; but where many rows are grown and cultivation is done with a horse and cultivator, it is manifestly impossible to make or to maintain such a trench. Furthermore, when horse cultivation is to be used there would be difficulty in keeping the young plants, if planted below the surface, from being covered during the early cultivations. Therefore, planting on the level is necessary in field culture. It is advisable, however, in garden culture, to plant so that when covered the row will be two inches below the ordinary level.

Shall the planting be in single drills, broad drills, or double rows or drills? It matters little, provided sufficient room is allowed for the growing plants. Another method of securing early blooms out of doors, which is practiced by many English growers and is especially valuable for exhibition purposes is to sow the seed in pots under glass, after which the plants are hardened in cold frames and planted out. Pot-grown plants should be started in February or March, the time depending somewhat on the latitude and seasonal conditions.

In order to secure suitable plants six seeds should be sown in 4-inch pots, using light, rich soil. * * *

When the plants are two or three inches high they should be given supports of short twigs and placed in a cold frame. Here they should be given plenty of air at every opportunity in order to secure a short, sturdy growth. If the plants do not catch hold firmly, they may be tied with raffia. When spring begins and the soil is in good condition the pots may be planted in the open one foot apart in a single row or two feet apart in a double row. In the latter case the plants alternate.

Sweet peas should be given some support from the time they begin to make tendrils. A variety of supports may be used, but, as Prof. Beal says:

In this country, where good, twiggy boughs can be obtained, such boughs unquestionably form the best support to use, since they are the most natural. In many places birches can be obtained in lengths of 12 to 14 feet. These may be prepared in the lengths desired. * * *

If the soil has been prepared properly and the plants look strong, and if the grower sees that the plants are watered and given every care, then the support should be six feet high. If the soil is only moderately fertile or has not been deeply prepared, or if the grower does not intend to keep all seed pods picked off or can not water the plants in order to overcome drought, the support should be kept down to four feet. The variety has something to do with the height of the support, whatever the care bestowed, some varieties being naturally dwarfer growers.

The sticks should be cut in late winter or very early spring, so that they are still rather green and tough enough to bear the load until the end of the season. They should be inserted in the soil at least a foot, because when clothed with vines to a height of six feet a strong windstorm exerts a tremendous leverage on them. Unless the sticks have been inserted deeply, or if they have become too dead and brittle, the row will go down under the force of the wind and the great weight of the wet vines. In order to guard against disaster, strong stakes are sometimes placed every ten feet and wire is run lengthwise through the sticks and fastened to the stakes. It is desirable to have the sticks bushy at the top, so that they spread out more than at the base; if not naturally so, leaning the stick alternately outward will produce this result. This gives greater freedom for the vines when in flower.

NETTING.

When other systems of supporting are to be employed it is quite imperative to provide a support of small, short twigs as soon as the seedlings begin to produce tendrils. This method prevents the rain from beating the small plants down and enables them to get up to the other support. In city gardens, owing to the difficulty in procuring suitable sticks, wire netting makes a very satisfactory support. The peas do not cling to it so well, but it is cleaner and neater in appearance, which is a compensating advantage.

The large 4-inch mesh is preferable, but in many places this is not procurable, and the ordinary chicken netting or fence is used instead. Strong stakes at intervals not to exceed ten feet are used to support the netting. One advantage of wire netting is that if stakes six feet high are used a 42 or 48 inch strip of netting may be placed in position, and if the season or soil is favorable and the peas grow above this, a narrow strip of netting may be added or a string or wire stretched from stake to stake over the row. A well-galvanized netting can be used repeatedly for several years, and will last longer if taken off in the fall and stored.

Frequent but extremely shallow cultivation should be the rule in growing sweet peas. They should not be allowed to suffer for lack of water, but watering should not be done until it is absolutely necessary, since if the soil has been deeply prepared the roots will go down after both moisture and plant food. When water is needed it should be applied thoroughly and at least two or three times a week in very dry periods. When it becomes necessary to water the plants a mulch of thoroughly rotted manure around the plants will be of great assistance in preventing too rapid evaporation.

ding. In order to have fine flowers and a long succession of bloom, it is infinitely more necessary to keep the seed pods rigorously picked off than it is to cultivate, mulch, or water. The latter operations go for naught unless the pods are picked off. The writer thoroughly believes that the importance of watering has been overemphasized and that too many amateurs prefer to use the hose rather than to pick pods; then they assert that the sweet pea is not what it used to be—that it has lost constitution and the like. Of course the more highly developed the variety the less certain it is to bear up under neglect. There were on the trial grounds at this station in 1910 some of the oldest varieties, introduced from 1865 to 1890, then the latest hooded and grandifloras, and finally the waved type. Although no pods were picked from the first two types after July 20, there was a noticeable difference in the flowering habit. The old varieties were continuously blooming profusely, while the second class were sometimes completely destitute of flowers. The same holds true with regard to length of stem. Some plants of Countess Spencer were treated likewise in order to note the effect, and for them the season was over early in August.

The lesson is that if the grower does not intend to comply with the requirements of the improved types, it is better to grow Butterfly, Captain Clarke, Peach Blossom, and other small-flowered, precocious varieties.

FERTILIZERS.

After sweet peas are in full flower fertilizers may be applied. The best and safest fertilizer to use is liquid manure, diluted to the color of weak tea and applied once a week. It is often advantageous to alternate this with sulphate of ammonia or nitrate of soda at the rate of one ounce to six gallons of water. The plant usually responds better to phosphorus than to nitrogen, and even potash is often beneficial. Nitrate of potash and phosphate of potash dissolved at the same rate as the above-named fertilizers is of the proper strength to apply.

The most troublesome insects that attack sweet peas in the United States are the red spider and the pea aphid. The most serious fungus disease attacking the sweet peas in this country is the powdery mildew, which is often found late in the season when the plants are almost through blooming. The stems, leaves, and other parts of the plant become covered with the white, powdery coating. The disease may appear after a rain followed by very cold nights and hot days. The plants should be sprayed with potassium sulphid or dusted with sulphur or with a mixture of lime and sulphur, two parts of the former and one of the latter.

American Peony Society.

PRESIDENT FARR'S ADDRESS.

It gives me great pleasure to welcome you here again at our annual meeting and exhibition in Cleveland. It gives me added pleasure in the fact that I see again the same faces that I have become accustomed to meeting each year, and so it has become a habit with me to look forward to this meeting as a sort of reunion. It is one of the most encouraging features of the membership of this society that the same members, year after year, are willing to go to the expense and spend the time to travel long distances to attend these meetings, and it is largely due to this loyalty of these members that the society has been able to carry on its work so successfully.

It is extremely gratifying to me this year to meet the members again, as I am able to report such substantial progress in the work that has been going on throughout the country. Reports from all parts are that this has been a very unfavorable season for peony blooms, the mild winter and exceedingly warm weather in March and April having forced the plants into premature growth, which was checked by sudden freezing throughout the country during May, and with the result that the buds were, in many cases, destroyed entirely and blooms have been less than fifty per cent of what they are in normal years. Again, during the blooming season, the country has been visited by heavy frosts, which have affected the development of the late blooming varieties, so that in many ways it has been a most unsatisfactory season, more so than we have had for some years. In view of this fact, I consider it remarkable that we can truly say that the exhibit given here in Cleveland is the finest and most comprehensive that the society has ever shown, and speaks well for the efforts made by the exhibitors under such adverse circumstances. It is very gratifying to note that the attendance here in Cleveland of the general public has been large and that they have shown a great deal of interest in the exhibition, and the unusual number of invitations extended to us for our meeting of next year shows that the interest in the society and its work and the exhibition of peonies in general is increasing. This is also further attested by the fact that we have gained a larger number of new members during the past year than any year in our history.

Briefly reviewing the work of the society during the last year, I would state that the most important work was the disposal of the large plantings of peonies at Cornell University. All of the old collection in the test plot was sold to Doubleday, Page & Co., and the private collections were sold to various individuals, with the result that the society shows a net increase in its treasury balance, after covering all expenses, of over $700.00. This amount, added to our previous balance, gives the society at the present time a net worth of approximately $1,500, a showing which we believe no other society of so small a membership has ever been able to make in so short a time, in spite of the fact that our disbursements for premiums and contributions toward the publication of the bulletins and work at Cornell have been quite heavy each year. The digging and shipping of the Peonies from Cornell was accomplished under great difficulties, as during the week that the committee in charge of this was in Ithaca we had continuous rains for four days. It was almost impossible to employ help at any price, and help was only finally secured by offering double the wages that were prevailing, and no one who was not actually on the ground can in any way comprehend the difficulty that attended this task. The committee visited Doubleday, Page & Co., at Garden City, just previous to this meeting, and were surprised to find the peonies doing so well the first year after their removal. Doubleday, Page & Co. really have a splendid show of peonies this year. They are planted in a very advantageous situation and they expressed themselves as highly pleased with the result of their purchase.

The next and most important work of the society during the year was to arrange with Doubleday, Page & Co., subject to the ratification of the society, for the publishing of a complete peony manual, comprising all of the material in the present bulletins, after they have been edited, revised and corrected, together with such added material as can be gotten together as will make the book valuable for everyone interested in peonies, and to the public in general. It is the expectation that this work will be ready for publication during the coming autumn.

While the greater part of this work has naturally devolved upon the committee appointed for this purpose by the society, the committee feels that every peony grower and every member of the society should form a committee as a whole, to assist in every way possible toward making this final work as complete and as free from errors as it can possibly be made. All bulletins previously published will be revised, and all the members are requested to make a special study of the bulletins, making comparisons with their own experience and their plants in the field, and are earnestly requested to assist the committee by sending in any suggestions which may make the work more valuable, or their criticisms of any of the descriptions to be found in the present bulletins.

Information is especially desired along the following lines:

(1) A list of all varieties that are authentic that are not yet included in the bulletins which it would be desirable to include.

(2) Any information which will be of permanent value in the bulletins concerning the diseases of the peony and remedies for the same.

(3) Methods of propagation and cultivation.

(4) Information regarding the methods of handling the cut blooms for commercial purposes, including cold-storage, etc.

(5) A list of the best one hundred varieties in the writer's opinion, for all purposes.

(6) A list of the best fifty varieties for landscape or ornamental work.

Arrangements have already been made with Doubleday, Page & Co. for the publication of this work this coming autumn. All correspondence on this subject should be forwarded to Professor A. P. Saunders, Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., secretary of the society, and also a member of the committee on nomenclature. The publication of this work brings to close the first epoch in the history of the society. It is not expected that the first edition of this work can be made absolutely free from errors, or that it will be complete in every detail, as there are still many varieties to be passed upon, but to delay the publication of the work until such time as it would be complete would be merely to deprive the members of the results of our work for a number of years to come, and would, in the long run, hinder rather than aid the progress in the work of nomenclature.

While the old planting at Cornell has been abandoned, it must be borne in mind that the final permanent planting of all of the varieties that have been passed upon by the various bulletins has been carried out, and samples, consisting of three plants of each variety, have been planted in a permanent position, where they will remain at all times open to the inspection of members and others interested who shall visit this collection and study it. At the last meeting of the society the desirability of establishing other similar selections in different parts of the country, where the blooming season, owing to latitude, occurs at a different period, and where it would be more accessible to the general public, was discussed. The desirability of establishing such a collection at Arlington farms, under the protection of the United States government, was discussed, and it was voted unanimously by the society that the establishment of such a collection would be desirable and that steps should be taken to bring about such a planting, which should be known as representing the work of the American Peony Society, and which should, at the same time, be accessible to the large number of people that constantly visit Arlington. Those in charge of the Arlington farms and the Bureau of Plant Industry, at Washington, have assured us of their hearty cooperation in this matter, and that such a planting would have the greatest care and that it would be under the protection of the government, and should, under no circumstances, be distributed to private parties; but the suggestion has been made that when the time arrives for the division of the plants at Arlington that the increase should be sent to various other experimental farms under the care of the government, in different parts of the country, notably such as the one at Bellingham, Wash. In this way the society would finally have typical collections established in various parts of the country under the protection of the government, where they would be easily accessible to almost every one. The suggestion has been made that in order to bring this about in a proper manner a proposition should be made by the society to the Department of Agriculture, with the assurance that when such proposition is received it will be taken up at once and acted upon favorably.

It is with deep regret that I have to record the loss to the society of the services of Professor John Craig, through whose influence the University at Cornell was originally induced to take up this work, and without which the success which has been achieved would have been impossible. I am glad to state to the members, however, that Professor Beal, who now has charge of this work at Cornell, is enthusiastic about the peony, and is very anxious to maintain the collection at Cornell and continue the peonies, and to assist the society in every way. The department is now carrying on an active study of the fungus disease which, in various localities, has attacked the peony. My own opinion of this disease is that it is transient and due largely to conditions prevalent during certain seasons, notably during the season just passed. It is a question whether the blight of the buds, that is sometimes noticed, is caused by the fungus, or whether the blight is caused by weather conditions, such as freezing, etc., which weakens the plant to such an extent that the fungus follows the injury. At any rate, it is the opinion among a large number of growers that while the disease should be stopped, and a remedy found to combat it, that it is not of sufficient importance to warrant any public agitation on the subject.

I want to repeat what I said last year, to the effect that the future success of the society is largely in the hands of the amateur growers, and it is the amateur class that will be our best contributors to the exhibitions, and it is through the exhibitions that the society will retain its influence and hold upon its members. For this reason, every effort possible should be made to raise the standard of our exhibitions and make them of such interest that members will feel well repaid for the time and effort spent in making exhibits, and that the contests in the various classes shall be so keen that the award of the society's medals and premiums shall be considered a real honor. It is interesting to note that during the last year over one-half of the new membership has come from amateur growers. I again want to congratulate you on the success of this present exhibition and the gratifying attendance, and to thank you, the committee who have had the details and arrangement of this meeting in charge and the officials of the Ohio Horticultural Society for their generous hospitality.

OBITUARY.

Frederick William Brookes.

With the death of Frederick William Brookes, Sunday, June 22, the man most intimately connected with the early flower trade of Chicago, passed away. Mr. Brookes died at his home in Morton Grove at the ripe age of 86 years. He had been a resident of Chicago and vicinity since 1833. He was born in England in 1827 and came to New York in 1832. A year later, when he was seven, he made the trip to Chicago with his parents by ox team, the trip consuming a period of 35 days. For a time in his early manhood he worked as a printer and was also in the cattle business, later entering the feed and flour trade.

His father was the late Samuel Brookes, who had been an old-time English gardener, and who owned an extensive place in London before coming to America. The elder Mr. Brookes expected to settle in Canada, but soon after landing came to the United States. About 1845 Samuel Brookes built Chicago's first commercial greenhouse, a lean-to structure, 14x50 feet, located at 100 Adams street. It had an outside door but was also entered through a window from the house with which it was connected. It was considered a big house at the time and was used principally for the growing of azaleas, camellias and other pot plants. Later the elder Mr. Brookes moved to Thirty-ninth street and Lake avenue. Frederick W. Brookes was associated with his father in this venture after 1859 and after 1875, when the parent died, he managed the business himself until 1893, when he retired.

Mr. Brookes remembered the early days of Chicago and liked to recall the past. He knew Edgar Sanders, John Goode, J. T. Anthony, W. G. Newill, Geo. Wittbold, Dr. John Kennicott and other pioneer florists. In 1860 he moved to 4525 Lake avenue into "Old Tibbits orchard," where he remained until his retirement. After giving up business he moved to Morton Grove, where he took a horticulturist's keen delight in his private garden. Mr. Brookes is survived by three sons. The funeral was held Monday afternoon, June 23, from the residence, interment at Oakwoods cemetery.

John H. Newhall.

John Howard Newhall, head of the Aurora Greenhouse Co., of Aurora, Ill., died June 14 as a result of heart trouble. He had been ill for a long time. Mr. Newhall was born in Sturgis, Mich., in 1850, but had been a resident of Aurora since 1887. He established the company of which he was the head about 10 years ago. He was a prominent Knight Templar, and highly respected by all who knew him. He is survived by his wife and two grown children, a son and daughter.

John Sline.

John Sline, a retired nurseryman of Geneva, N. Y., died June 13 after a ten days' illness of pneumonia. He had been a resident of Geneva for nearly half a century but had not engaged actively in the nursery business for almost 15 years. He leaves three sons and two daughters.

MADISON, WIS.—Mallory & Brown have disposed of their business here to L. L. May & Co. (Inc.), of St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Mallory will leave shortly for Western Canada.

THE Chicago Association of Commerce is now experimenting with flower boxes in the adornment of the city trolley poles. The boxes already in place are about 20 feet above the sidewalk. We now use flowers in decorating interstate trains, and it is hardly unreasonable to expect their trial on street cars and taxicabs in the near future. It seems to us, however, that a better direction of these efforts would be toward the improvement of garden lots and porch and window embellishment.

Personal.

The Maryland Agricultural College, at its commencement exercises June 18, conferred on Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., ex-president of the Society of American Florists, honorary degree for his achievements in horticulture and floriculture.

Independence Flowers.

President French of the Chicago Florists' Club made an excellent suggestion in writing to the Sane Fourth Association of that city recently as follows:

"The Sane Fourth Association deserves great praise for the wonderful good it has accomplished by getting so many people away from their former methods of celebrating the Fourth, which always caused such an awful loss of life and limb, saying nothing of the immense property losses. Thousands of people appreciate these efforts—everyone should appreciate them, and doubtless will in the near future. I believe that this good work could be greatly facilitated by appealing to the sentiment of the people, asking them to show their patriotism, to show the love they have for their country by wearing a flower on their nation's birthday, and boost for a sane Fourth of July celebration.

"Every holiday, I believe, with the exception of Labor day and the Fourth of July, is more or less closely associated with the use of flowers or plants. The Fourth of July is one of the greatest of our holidays, and one when all Americans with a drop of liberty-loving blood in their veins should show their patriotism by wearing a flower in honor of their nation's birthday.

"At this season of the year flowers are most abundant and the prices are the lowest, this enabling everyone who so desires to wear a posy."

Now let the rosarians give us a summer blooming red rose worthy of the occasion and call it America, and the carnationists can follow with one of their favorites, red and white, variegated or otherwise, named Independence, to be at its best for this holiday. The ideal flower perhaps for Independence day is the sweet pea, which comes nearest affording the national colors of red, white and blue in its blooms, and is usually to be had in abundance in a large section of the country at this date.

He Deserves the Best.

It is grateful to know that the florists of the country are to raise a fund for a monument in memory of the late William Robertson Smith, who for upward of half a century was the superintendent of the Government's botanical gardens in Washington. The only regrettable thing is that this fine old gardener and botanist did not leave a suggestion as to the form a memorial for him should take. In his modesty it is probable that he never thought that those who lived after him might wish to do his life and his work honor.

There never was a gardener, if Adam be excepted, who was not a gentleman. Fine instincts flourish with the flowers. William Robertson Smith once told the Congress of the United States that a tree was a finer monument to any man, no matter what his achievement, than anything which could be builded of bronze or stone. He made a loyal, consistent fight for the principle in which he believed and, an underling of the Government, he was unafraid in the face of power.

At the east end of the botanical garden in Washington there is a partly completed monument to General Ulysses S. Grant. The work upon it has been going along slowly and no one knows when it will be finished. The site for the memorial was chosen by Congress against the earnest protest of William Robertson Smith, who succeeded in winning many of the members to his view of the case. He lost his cause eventually, but his protest has had its effect in Washington, and when the Fine Arts Commission authorizes the erection of other monuments it will take due care that no natural beauty is sacrificed.

There were too great elm trees of a century's growth standing where the half-completed Grant monument stands today. The botanical gardens site was chosen for the memorial to the great soldier, and its erection there necessitated the sacrifice of the beautiful commanding trees. The gardener fought to save the trees, saying that they were finer than anything which man could construct. He was overruled and the trees were destroyed, but the lesson of his struggle lasts.—Chicago Post.

National Association of Gardeners.

Owing to the change of date of the annual show of the American Sweet Pea Society, which will be held in Boston, Mass., on July 12-13, the summer meeting of the National Association of Gardeners has been postponed from July 5 to July 12, and will be held in Horticultural Hall on that day at 2 o'clock. A meeting of trustees and directors of the association will take place at 1:30 o'clock.

Members attending the meeting going by way of New York, will leave over the outside line of the Metropolitan Steamship Company, Pier 19, North river, at five o'clock on Friday, July 11. This is the all water route direct to Boston. M. C. EBEL, Sec'y.

Philippine Experiment Stations.

The Bureau of Agriculture has fully developed its plans to establish experiment farm stations throughout the provinces of the Philippines. Carrying out this plan on a larger scale was made possible by an appropriation of $75,000 by the last legislature. The bureau has cabled to the United States for 12 inspectors, who will be put in charge of the demonstration stations.

Chicago.

TRADE A TRIFLE BETTER.

Trade has shown a slight improvement this week but there is still a great oversupply of stock. The receipts of American Beauty roses are much smaller and prices consequently have advanced a little. The flowers from the young plants are also bringing better prices and clean up well. Carnations are still seen in large quantities everywhere but the good stock has advanced slightly in price. The quality at this season is better than it has ever been before and some very choice stock is obtainable. White roses are very scarce and some of the dealers are experiencing trouble in filling all their orders. The supply of other roses is very large, especially Killarney and Richmond which are to be had in nearly all the stores in large quantities. Good peonies are selling at good figures, but there is a great oversupply of inferior stock that is being sacrificed at low prices. Orchids are also very plentiful and can be seen featured in the windows of nearly all the downtown stores. Lily of the valley is in good supply and the same can be said of gladioli, of which some fine flowers are now arriving. The indoor sweet peas have seen their best days but some good outdoor flowers are now to be had. Lilies are as plentiful as ever and field daisies and other outdoor flowers are as plentiful as in former years. Pond lilies are now offered freely and the supply of home grown gardenias is equal to the demand. In another week the market is very likely to be in a different condition when roses and carnations will probably not be as plentiful as they are now. Employees are now leaving on their vacation and everyone seems to be well pleased that the stores will close at 5 p. m. during the next three months.

NOTES.

Louis Wittbold says that the Geo. Wittbold Co. has had an unusually good season in the wholesale department and has sold out pretty well in all lines with the exception of a few odd lots of stock here and there. Mr. Wittbold and C. B. Knickman visited the Dundee Nurseries one day last week, making the trip by automobile. They lost their way on the return trip and it was nearly 11 p. m. before they finally reached Buckingham place.

H. A. Fischer, of Kalamazoo, Mich., was here on business this week. Mr. Fischer will turn over his store next Saturday, June 28, to the women of that city who sell carnations on that day for the benefit of a worthy cause. Ex-Senator Burrow's wife is at the head of the movement and will be assisted by 300 other ladies who will endeavor to dispose of the 35,000 carnations that the H. A. Fischer Co. has secured for them.

Mangel, the Palmer House florist, has received the contract to arrange the decorations for the fiftieth anniversary of the First National Bank on South Dearborn street for July 4. It is understood that the decorations on both the interior and exterior of the building will be very elaborate, and is one of the largest orders that Mangel has ever been called upon to fill.

The Williams Flower Shop, under the able management of Fred Strail, is enjoying a fine season, trade being very good with a big run on funeral work.

Zech & Mann have added another rose grower to their already large list of consignors.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg is now receiving regular shipments of choice peonies.

The greatly extended use of bay and box trees, also window boxes, in the downtown district this season has improved the appearance of the city considerably and caused much favorable comment. The trade will do well to help in this movement where possible and lead the way by the tasteful embellishment of their own establishments.

F. Simons, manager of Percy Jones' cut flower department, is sending in a number of supply orders while he is supposed to be enjoying his vacation, and judging from the number of boxes that are being shipped out, one would be inclined to think that he is devoting all of his time to business instead of pleasure.

Al. Fischer and Lillian M. Ellis were married in Kretlow's hall on June 25, the Reverend John officiating. Mr. Fischer is one of the most popular florists on the north side and is the bowler that carried off nearly all the big honors in the C. C. F. league this season.

A. L. Vaughan of A. L. Vaughan & Co. believes that if some of the growers would throw out about one-third of their carnations about April 1 and plant early asters they would better the market considerably and find it much more profitable besides.

O. Johnson of the Batavia Greenhouse Co. says that peonies were a nuisance this year and that if he made enough money from the sale of his crop to pay expenses for the care of the plants etc., he would be well satisfied.

H. C. Blewitt, the well known sweet pea specialist of Des Plaines, says that this was the best season that he has ever had and that the new house which he built last year has proved to be very suitable for growing these flowers.

L. Leveson, proprietor of the Palace Floral Co., has booked a large wedding order for June 29. His store is one of the oldest stands in the city and is the same place where one of the largest retailers who is now located in the loop got his start.

John Michelsen of the E. C. Amling Co. says that he has never seen the market in such an unsatisfactory condition as it was last week and that he has never before known the carnations to do so well at this season.

D. E. Freres is recovering from a serious case of blood-poisoning which has been bothering him considerably of late. Dick Rolston has been helping him out at the store for several weeks.

Robt. Northam, George Reinberg's efficient storeman, will leave next week to accompany his niece to Iron River, Mich., and to catch trout in the streams of the Wolverine country.

Joseph Ziska sold his large refrigerator which he used when he was in the wholesale cut-flower business to the Geo. Wittbold Co. for use at their Edgebrook establishment.

The Misses Walker and Nagel, of the Geo. Wittbold Co., accompanied by O. Strobeck, who acted as chaperon, have returned from a delightful visit at South Haven, Mich.

The obituary of the late Frederick William Brookes, who died recently at his home in Morton Grove at the ripe age of 86, will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Wm. Graff, with O. J. Friedman and Aug. Dressell, with Sam Pearce, left June 22 for a few weeks' fishing trip on the Grand river near Grand Haven, Mich.

Frank Ayres, Chas. W. McKellar's popular storeman, and wife, will leave next week on an extended boat trip on the northern lakes.

A Vacation for Everybody.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is receiving a large supply of water lilies in addition to its usual good line of other seasonal stock.

John Poehlmann, Jr., who is attending the Culver Military Academy at Culver, Ind., has returned home on his summer vacation.

Mrs. W. S. Deamud of Bay City, Mich., visited friends and relatives here for several days this week, returning home on June 21.

A. Currie and wife of Milwaukee, Wis., visited Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouse at Morton Grove on June 19.

Adam Zender says that his business this season has shown a great increase over the past five years.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is repainting the interior of its wholesale cut-flower department.

Miss Helen Zender is visiting with her sister, Mrs. Robt. Windler, at St. Louis, Mo.

Al. Lehman, of the E. C. Amling Co., leaves on June 28 for a two weeks' vacation.

Kohlbrand called on all the local wholesale florists this week in the interests of the employes on the market asking them to sign a petition favoring 5 o'clock closing during the months of July, August and September. Those who signed are: Bassett & Washburn, Percy Jones, Pochlmann Bros. Co., Wieter Bros., Peter Reinberg, A. L. Vaughan & Co., The Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Erne & Klingel, J. A. Budlong, Chicago Carnation Co., Weiland & Risch, Dominick E. Freres, J. B. Deamud Co., A. L. Randall Co., Chas. W. McKellar, Kennicott Bros. Co., John Kruchten, Hoerber Bros., Kyle & Foerster, Zech & Mann, Batavia Greenhouse Co., E. C. Amling Co., H. Wittbold, Joseph Ziska, M. C. Gunterberg, Sinner Bros. and the E. F. Winterson Co.

H. H. Wilkerson, of the H. Wittbold Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his mother, whose death occurred at Roodhouse Friday, June 20. The funeral was held the following Sunday at the First Methodist church of that city under the auspices of the Rebeccas, Rev. Cross officiating. Wm. Wadsworth, of the H. Wittbold Co., decorated the church and those who attended the services say that it was one of the most beautiful arrangements that they had ever seen. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and showed the esteem in which the late Mrs. Wilkerson was held.

N. J. Wieter, of Wieter Bros., said the other day at the store that he thought the Tribune building, where the Union Trust Co. is located, was the prettiest sight he has seen in the loop with its neatly arranged window boxes that appear on both sides of the building, on Dearborn and Madison streets. It looked so refreshing and beautiful he said that he was almost tempted to withdraw his account from the bank where he is now dealing and place it in the institution mentioned above.

Hoerber Bros. have completed the work on their large concrete stack which replaces the old one that was destroyed by the cyclone last March. Fred. Hoerber says the stack, like the greenhouse, was also insured, and that Florian D. Wallace, who carried the risk, settled everything very satisfactorily. Mr. Wallace is located in the Insurance Exchange building, and would be pleased to hear from all the growers in this vicinity who are interested in windstorm insurance.

C. G. Anderson, foreman of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s plant department, says that his firm will have a large exhibit of plants at the next S. A. F. convention in Minneapolis, and that practically everything grown in this department will be shown. Guy French says that the average daily cut of carnations at this range so far during the month of June has been some 20,000 blooms.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving a fine grade of outdoor sweet peas from C. V. Wolff, of Downers Grove. J. F. Kidwell, the manager of this association, has finally succeeded in gaining the C., B. & Q. railroad company's consent to put in a 600-foot switch for him at his firm's Downers Grove establishment at a cost of about $1,400.

Jack Byers, A. T. Pyfer's right-hand man, at the Chicago Carnation Co.'s store, will leave next week for a visit at Saugatuck, Mich. He will meet R. L. Bohannon a little later at Muskegon, and then both of them will spend another week fishing in the Michigan waters.

Phil, Schupp, with J. A. Budlong, has returned from a business and pleasure trip in the south. He spent June 19 and 20 in Dayton, O., and the two following days in Louisville, Ky. Mr. Schupp reports having had a delightful visit in both places.

Miss K. N. Cooper of the Auburn-dale Goldfish Co., 1449 Madison street, reports the arrival of a large shipment of goldfish of all sizes. This shipment includes a good number of small fish which have been somewhat scarce for a long time.

Tim Matchen says that Peter Reinberg is all through with his rose planting, and that he will soon be cutting from the young plants. He also reports a good demand for American Beauty from the young stock.

C. L. Washburn will leave next Sunday, June 22, for a visit with friends and relatives in California. Miss Horton, his efficient assistant, will have charge of the Bassett & Washburn store during his absence.

J. A. Mendel narrowly escaped death when the large terra cotta eagle fell from the Columbian Memorial building this week, and nearly crashed in the car in which he was riding at the time.

Mrs. Luke Collins will leave next week for Sidney, Nova Scotia, to visit her son, who is an electrical engineer for one of the large steel companies there.

Erne & Klingel report a good demand for "Elastic-Lyke" putty, which they handle as a side line to their wholesale cut flower business.

Mrs. A. T. Pyfer of Joliet is visiting with J. E. Matthewson and family at Sheboygan, Wis., this week.

Visitors: A. Currie and wife, Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. W. S. Deamud, Bay City, Mich.; H. A. Fischer, Kalamazoo, Mich.; W. W. Coles, Kokomo, Ind.; Charles Steidel, Olivette, Mo.

MARKET CONDITIONS BETTER.

The worst of the glut is now over. Peonies are no longer in the running, only those from storage being available, as all outdoor stock was about burned up by the intense heat, which made the red peonies especially scarce for graduation week. Roses are a little off crop just at present, both Kaiserin and Pink Killarney. American Beauty, however, are in good supply and the stock shows good form. The heat has left its mark on Killarney roses, many being affected with the mildew. The blooms also are much smaller. Carnations are still quite plentiful, but in a short time will be almost entirely off crop. Water lilies are arriving in quantity in all colors, red, pink, yellow and white. Outdoor sweet peas are arriving in good supply and are of excellent quality. Larkspur and Shasta daisies are used quite extensively for decorative purposes. Easter lilies are quite plentiful with only a fair demand. Some very fine lily of the valley is now on the market. Orchids are plentiful and the quality is good. They meet with a good demand. Coreopsis, larkspur, mignonette, bachelor's buttons, daisies, iris, canterbury bells, gladioli, digitalis (fox-glove), lupins, etc., are a part of the daily supply at the local wholesale houses. Candidum lilies are arriving daily, but nearly all are going into cold storage, to be used later.

NOTES.

Chris. B. Wilhelmy left for Detroit, Mich., Tuesday to superintend the floral decorations on the new steamer "Seandbee" when she made her maiden trip to Cleveland. About noon Thursday a wireless message was received from Mr. Wilhelmy, who was a passenger, ordering some special stock which was to be used when the boat left Cleveland for Buffalo.

Miss Getz of Westman & Getz, 5923 Euclid avenue, left Tuesday, June 24, for a month's vacation in the west. Seattle, Wash., will be her destination, and all points of interest enroute will be visited.

An error in the report of the Cleveland peony show gave the name of Frank Smith as one of the judges. Instead it should have read Geo. W. Smith of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange.

J. A. Cowgill, Canton, and his brother, V. A. Cowgill, Salem, attended the F. A. M. convention, held here June 20-22.

Jos. Stern, the east side florist, is in Europe on business and also visiting friends. C. F. B.

BUSINESS SATISFACTORY.

Business the past week has been quite satisfactory for this time of the year. Several large weddings and many small ones, with numerous funerals, have kept most of the florists busy. Besides this they have been getting out stock plants, planting chrysanthemums, etc. Carnations, roses and other indoor stock are of poor quality owing to the extreme heat of the past two weeks. Outdoor roses, sweet peas, peonies and other flowers have been very fine this spring, and have found a ready sale. Everything considered, this has been a very satisfactory spring.

CLUB MEETING.

Theodore Ewoldt entertained the Tri-City Florists' Club at the June meeting, Thursday evening, June 19. Nearly every member was present. A supper was served early in the evening and the guests were entertained with music and singing, after which the meeting was held on the green. President John Staack presiding. Mr. Ewoldt gave a talk on publicity and was followed by a general discussion. The picnic committee reported everything in readiness for the ninth annual picnic, to be held July 17 at the summer home of Wm. Knees on the beautiful Rock River. Indications are that a larger crowd than ever will attend. C. O. E. Boehm's committee on weather reported rain for that day and came near being mobbed. Rain or no rain there will be something doing when the day comes. Henry Gaethje, Sr., was added to the picnic committee.

NOTES.

Ludwig Stapp is adding two 300-foot houses, Moninger type, to his large range, and will be better equipped than ever this fall for a big wholesale business.

Wm. Knees is enjoying these hot days in his new auto and out at his summer home.

R. Rohlfis took in the peony show at Chicago and was much disappointed in the showing.

Ewoldt Bros. are getting ready to add another Moninger house, 30x100 feet. T. E.

PLENTY OF STOCK.

With warm weather still here there have been plenty of flowers of all kinds, including some fine Spanish iris, candytuft, coreopsis, galardias, delphiniums and the other various outside stocks. Carnations are very plentiful, but the quality is going downward, and it is also true of most of the roses. The five and ten cent stores are running such stock out at six or more for five cents. Lilies are very plentiful and are being advertised at very low figures, which move them out very well considering the quan-

ties of other flowers on the market. American Beauty roses have been very plentiful and the quality has taken a little change for the good. Outside daisies and elderberries are taking the places of greenhouse flowers in many church decorations.

NOTES.

The Washington Floral Co. reports that its cut of carnations will steadily increase instead of decrease, and that the quality will be very good for so late in the season.

H. Meuschke, with the Ludwig Floral Co., left Monday morning for a trip to his old home in Germany.

The McCallum Co. has been leading in some nice long delphiniums and very fine lily of the valley.

J. H. Umpleby of Derby, N. Y., is consigning some good outside flowers to this market.

GOOD BEDDING SEASON.

The bedding season is over and all are well satisfied. This has been one of the best seasons known here. The number of plants sold was the largest yet, but the prices remain the same and with the cost of labor and everything else the profit has been small. Geraniums did not sell exclusively as in former years, but sold along with other plants, which is to be preferred. Aster plants were eagerly sought. They were sold out early. Last year there was a glut of them. Cannas also sold well and large vines for windows, box and rustic stand work, were in demand. Peonies, hollyhocks, foxglove, Canterbury bells and the like sold well, the last winter being particularly severe on them.

NOTES.

There are many vegetable houses which formerly remained empty during the summer devoted to chrysanthemum growing. Most of them were planted some time ago and are looking well. The same growers also have started to grow asters in large quantities. On one place, A. C. Legare's, three acres have been planted and Victor Cardinal has 30,000 planted in his field, some of which are showing bloom.

The apple crop has practically been destroyed by the caterpillars, except where orchards have been properly sprayed. These look green and the foliage healthy while all around them trees are bare. The Davy Tree Expert Co. has done some good work by demonstrating that the pest can be checked by the right pumps and the proper sprays.

The Canadian Horticultural Association has completed all their arrangements for a successful convention, August 5-7, at Peterboro, Ont. All those who had papers assigned to them have answered favorably. The Armory is being secured and judging by the number of new exhibitors the trade exhibit will be worth going to see.

The retail stores down-town have entered their early closing season. The Hartford, Conn.

Visitors to this city who have an eye for landscape effects cannot fail to be impressed with the many fine views of its parks, public buildings and grounds, and the well kept lawns and shrubbery about its many homes. In street parking, Hartford is second to no city in the country, its thousands of large and beautiful trees being a token of age and refinement. With civic pride thus developed, it follows that the retail florists are well patronized.

I. Larensen & Son, 221 Park street, have recently executed a number of excellently arranged funeral designs in which class of work their trade is large. Much of the cut stock used here comes from the Pierson range at Cromwell.

As a compliment, doubtless, to the new and popular rose, the latest retail flower store to be opened here is called the Milady Flower Shop.

J. S. Coombs advised us that this had been his best season since going into business and we found him very busy.

G. W. De Fong has a good store in the Linden hotel, 431 Main street, and seems prosperous.

We found G. W. McClunie busy and optimistic over the business outlook.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held in Greenwich, Conn., June 13, President Robert Williamson in the chair. The second annual summer show will be held in Greenwich Town Hall June 20-21. The society is hoping for a large entry for the valuable prizes offered in the various classes named in the schedule. After a hot discussion it was decided to hold the third annual outing at Rye Beach early in August, date to be announced later. The exhibits at this meeting were of excellent culture, again proving that the members of this society know how to produce the goods. The judges' awards were as follows:

Thomas Ryan, honorable mention for vase of sweet peas, named varieties.

James Tierney, honorable mention for collection of sweet peas.

SUPPLY TOO LARGE.

The supply of flowers is much greater than the demand and general average prices are very low. The best sellers are American Beauty roses and sweet peas. There is also a fair demand for lily of the valley. All other stock is to be had at buyers' prices. The local roses are retrograding and eastern stock, particularly American Beauty, has the call. Some very fine flowers are seen. Easter lilies are now a factor. The quality is excellent and they are much used in funeral work. Gladioli and water lilies are plentiful and are popular for window decorations. There are still a few peonies and it is astonishing to see how well they look after their long sleep.

CLUB HOLDS PICNIC.

The feature of the week was the picnic at Washington Park. About 200 attended and enjoyed every minute of the time. The sail down the river was delightful. The weather was all that could be desired. Arriving at the park the interest centered in the ball game between a team from the seedsmen and another selected from the cut flower men, both wholesale and retail. The game was well played, being close and exciting. Ben Gibbs of the Bernheimer force was umpire. The seedsmen made a gallant try but the florists' nine was too much for them, the latter winning by the score of 6 to 3, and winning the Retail Florists' Association prize, a stickpin for each player. Robby Shock won the fat man's race from scratch. The handicap men hunched to hold him back but he broke through and won handily. There were a number of other races for the ladies. The results of the contests were as follows:

Ladies' 50-yard race—Miss Heacock, first; Mrs. Robertson, second; Miss Connor, third.

Men's sack race—Francis Stokes, first; Elmer Gaehring, second; Robert Shock, third.

Girls' 75-yard race—Ethel Robertson, first; Mildred Adelberger, second.

Ladies' wheelbarrow race—Mrs. Rust, first; Mrs. Thilow, second; Mrs. Miller, third.

Ladies' potato race—Miss Heacock, first; Mrs. Miller, second; Mrs. E. Aschman, third.

NOTES.

The annual spring opening of the Waretown club house of Commodore Westcott on Friday last was a gala event, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Washington being well represented. The following gentlemen were present: President J. K. M. L. Farquhar, W. J. Stewart and Col. Castle, of Boston; Robert Halliday, R. F. Graham, Baltimore, Md.; John N. May, Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Walter Sheridan, James Dean, Patrick O'Mara, New York; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; John Barton, Chas. Elnerman, George Craig, Jos. Meehan, Otto Thilow, P. H. Love, George Anderson, George C. Watson, S. S. Pennock, R. McKenny, Robert Craig, David Rust, Wm. Westcott, Robt. Klft, Philadelphia. Letters were received from many unable to be present, Edwin Lonsdale of California sending a telegram. A Victrola with a number of records was presented to the commodore, who was much pleased with the gift, but more with the thought that prompted it. The feature of the first night was a splendid story related by Mr. Totty. His ability in this line is quite up to his reputation as a master of things in the world of horticulture. The two days, full every minute with all sorts of enjoyable features, including sailing on the beautiful Barnegat bay, were much enjoyed. The company reluctantly departed, wishing long life to the much loved and popular commodore.

Snapdragon, sweet peas and lily of the valley were the features at the Leo Niessen store the past week. American Beauty roses were also seen in quantity. Notwithstanding the lateness of the season, quite large shipments are made daily to out of town points.

Edward Reid is featuring eastern American Beauty roses, receiving large shipments daily. Lily of the valley is also handled in quantity.

Berger Bros. are pushing sweet peas. Roses are also leaders, some very good stock being offered.

STOCK GOING TO WASTE.

There is practically no change in the condition of the market from that of the past two weeks. While a certain amount of good stock has been moving at low prices, a comparison with market reports for the month of June for the past five years shows that there is but little variance in quotations. It has been said, however, that while figures do not lie, there are liars who write figures. This year is exceptional in this respect, as more stock is going to waste in this month of June than in any previous year since the flower business became a factor in trade. There may have been years when much stock was lost because it was held for higher prices, but of late it has gone to waste for the simple reason that it could not be sold at any price. We acknowledge that this is a dark picture, but it does not adequately portray the actual conditions as seen on the field. While, as previously stated, there is good stock on the market, there is also an immense amount of rubbish which can bring no returns to anybody but the express companies. The greater part of the stock of American Beauty roses arriving is poor. Early in the week American Beauty specials were wholesaling for $10.00 a hundred. On June 19 the price advanced to $20.00 a hundred. Careful buyers stated that even at that price they could not secure 25 per cent of the stock they wanted. It will thus be noted that the market is suffering from a surplus of mediocre stock. In tea roses, double white, double pink, Killarney, Killarney Queen and Taft are the best sellers, reaching $8.00 a hundred. There is much Richmond stock arriving that is practically worthless, being too open. The supply of good carnations is diminishing and there are indications of a sharp advance, while they last, which will be but for a short time. The market is overloaded with sweet peas, many of the Spencer type being very fine, and it seems a pity to see such good stock sacrificed. The cold storage peonies are now arriving in quantity.

The Chicago Great Western has been named the Official Route of the Chicago Florists' Club to the Minneapolis Convention, August 19th to 22nd.

The Chicago Florists' Club will leave Chicago by Special Train at 6.15 p. m., August 18th, an invitation is extended to all eastern Florists and their friends and families to join them at Chicago and go to the convention in a body.

June 23.—Business is very light and there is not much good stock. Poor stock is abundant and there is very small demand for it.

NOTES.

The century plant at the Central park greenhouses has been the subject of quite a number of newspaper and some trade paper notices of late, most of them erroneous. Head Gardener Olson has it plucked on the lawn in front of the greenhouses and the flower stalk has shot up to a height of four or five feet and shows indications of blooming in a short time. Mr. Olson has his bedding plants out and the grounds around the greenhouses look very beautiful. Many hardy roses are also in bloom, which are an added attraction. In the greenhouses there are many specimens of merit and the stock is well cared for. A feature just now at the entrance to one of the large greenhouses is a fine specimen of Clerodendron Balfourii blooming profusely. It is a climbing shrub and covers large wall space. The many panicles of white and reddish flowers make a pleasing picture.

G. Myer, Madison avenue and Fifty-eighth street, has this month arranged a number of very fine dinner decorations. On June 9 he decorated for a dinner at which over 1,500 persons were seated. On Memorial day he decorated for the dinner given by the city of New York to the guests attending the unveiling of the Maine monument. Another of his recent noteworthy decorations were for a luncheon given in honor of the Brazilian envoys.

A. Whitley, buyer for Max Schling, will sail July 1 for an extended visit to Germany. He will be accompanied by his wife, who also works in the Schling store. They are expected to return about the last of August. Speaking of Max Schling reminds us that he seems to have been well repaid for his exhibit at the Third National Flower Show. He advises us that since the show he has received many orders from the florists of other cities.

Among the passengers on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, outward bound, June 17, was Mrs. Paul Meconi, sailing for Germany for a three months' visit. An unassuming young woman, she has made many friends in the trade, as was evinced by a merry party that assembled to wish her bon voyage and to present her with beautiful floral tributes.

Among the New York florists who fill many steamer orders are W. A. Blaidel's Sons, 402 West Twenty-third street. They have a fine store, are well equipped for business, and being near to the docks have made good use of their opportunities. They advise us that their steamer business has been better this season than ever before.

The veteran L. W. Kervan, who taught the other fellows how to deal in florists' greens, is now rapidly recovering from a recent surgical operation. Mr. Kervan is 70 years old, but a little matter like that does not bother a man who faced the charge of Pickett's division at Gettysburg.

One of the large and well arranged retail stores of this city is that of C. E. Zervakos, Madison avenue and Ninety-second street. Mr. Zervakos has been located there a number of years and caters to a good class of trade.

CHILDREN'S GARDEN EXHIBITION.

Arrangements have been completed for an exhibition of work done by children in the local schools in gardening to be held September 12 in the lake house, Washington park. The prizes will be awarded at 3 p. m. on the croquet grounds. For the best school gardens one local newspaper has offered four prizes: one of $15, one of $10 and two of $5. Schools that have no yards for planting may compete with window boxes. Another newspaper offers $10 for the best community garden, which includes gardens planted and cared for by the Boy Scouts, Albany Girls' Club and the Albany Orphan Asylum. A large list of prizes amounting to from $1 to $10 each is offered by eleven of the prominent women of the city. F. A. Danker, the Maiden Lane florist, offers $5 in gold for the best bouquet grown by a child and brought to the exhibit. William C. Gloeckner, another florist, offers $2.50 for the largest variety of cut flowers. More than 2,000 packages of seed have been bought by the children for the competition. Mrs. John T. D. Blackburn, chairman of the garden committee of the Woman's Club, and more than twenty assistants have started the work and will keep a general supervision of the gardens during the summer.

NOTES.

The month of June finds the local florists very busy with weddings, dinners and commencements. The season to date has been exceptionally good.

Holmes Bros. have opened a retail store at 20 Steuben street. The location is downtown in the business district, where business is booming.

BENCHES EMPTY.

Empty benches in practically every establishment tells the story of good business along the lines of pot and bedding plants. Spring sales have been ahead of any previous year in quantities sold. The call for cut flowers continues very good with most kinds in good supply. Carnations seem to be somewhat off color with abundance of "splits" in every lot brought in. At the present time the city is well supplied with outdoor grown roses in probably 200 varieties that are practically perfectly grown. The season has been very favorable for these flowers. Prices have been kept up on cut flowers better this spring than last year as department stores have not been active as they were then. Dormant rose plants to bed out were sold in many places. This year we notice many more window boxes put up in the downtown business section than ever before.

NOTES.

J. B. Pilkington, proprietor of the Northwestern Floral Co., reports a very good season in all lines, but rather slow collections. He will put several thousand peony blooms in cold storage, an experiment with his firm.

S. L. Harper has a specific for killing the white fly and other insects as well as fungus, mildew, etc. The preparation is harmless to foliage. A trial test on 250 acres of fruit trees proved it a success.

F. C. Smith, on C. street, has been somewhat annoyed by dust and dirt from remodeling of store rooms next to him, but the business up to date has been good.

John Watson talks of a change this season as soon as the lease runs out on the greenhouses he operates. He probably will build on a more convenient place.

The California Florists are very busy these days. They have many orders for out of town shipments.

Mrs. Watson reports better business than ever at both stores.

Thirty-First Annual Convention
Cleveland, O., June 25-26.

The Cleveland Convention.

The thirty-first annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association opened auspiciously at Cleveland, O., June 24, with a good attendance, some 125 members being present when President Page called the meeting to order at 10:30. Mayor Baker gave the visitors a cordial welcome and his address was followed by that of the president. Papers were then presented as follows: "Are Standards of Purity Practicable in State Seed Laws?" by George S. Green (Illinois Seed Co.), Chicago; "Intensified Farming," by James J. Hill (formerly president Great Northern Ry.), St. Paul, Minn.; discussion, "Seed Grown Under Irrigation," led by J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.

The morning session was open and the afternoon session executive, when reports were presented by Attorney Smith and the auditing committee. The reception in the evening proved very enjoyable. After the morning session Wednesday the members will be given a sight seeing automobile trip.

President's Address.

President Page in making his annual address thanked the various officers and committees for the good results secured. He congratulated the seed trade on the past season's business which has proven fairly prosperous to most of the members. President Page also stated that the seed trade business is one of which every person may be proud. There is no other that can be compared with it in the amount of good accomplished for the benefit of the entire country. The seedsmen were the pioneers in searching the world over for new and improved varieties of grains and vegetables, and the farmers of the United States have had millions of dollars annually added to their crops through the advice of their seedsmen. He then spoke about legislation, and mentioned "The Seed Import Bill," which had already passed the house, but some very objectionable amendments have been added to it by the senate. This matter was looked after by the association's attorney, Curtis Nye Smith. He stated in brief that this bill was evidently prepared by one who was totally ignorant of trade conditions, and that it will require watching by the Seed Trade Association. He next explained Senator Bourne's parcel post bill, which increased the postage on catalogues in many cases to three or four times the amount now being paid. Every mail order advertiser in America, about seven thousand in all, received protests to this objectionable bill and the senators from every quarter were notified to oppose it. The president then reported on the state legislation, stating that 128 bills had been introduced in the various state legislatures which would affect the seed trade, and through the assistance of Attorney Curtis Nye Smith most of the objectionable bills were killed. He stated that death had removed from their ranks in the past year, Alexander L. Don, of New York, who was for many years a highly efficient secretary of the association; Jos. A. Bolgiano, of Baltimore, Md.; F. A. Kendel, of Cleveland; Francis Brill, the veteran Long Island cabbage seed grower; Frank T. Emerson and William Ewing, of Montreal, Can. The president then closed his address with a number of recommendations for the benefit of the seed trade. He asked that during this convention everyone present take an active part in the discussions, and that each do whatever he could to further the interest in the meetings, so that when the meeting adjourns it may be agreed that they all had a pleasant and instructive convention.

Good Seed and Good Farming.

We present herewith a brief abstract of paper under the above title prepared by James J. Hill and read by one of the members of the association, Mr. Hill being unable to attend.

The total value of all farm production in the United States in 1912 is estimated by the federal Department of Agriculture to have been in excess of $9,500,000,000. He then compared the average yield per acre of wheat, rye, oats, barley and potatoes of the United States with that of Germany, and stated that the average production per acre in Germany is about double that in the United States. He then spoke about seed grain and advised that it was best for the farmer to get the best seed that he can raise or buy, and every dollar which the farmer may find it necessary to spend in order to get the best will come back to him ten fold. The points the farmer should watch in selecting the seed grain are those, that it may be defective in quality, or it may be dirty. He then explained how to secure clean seed and when that is done the farmer ought to establish with equal care its germinating power. Iowa, under the lead of one of our most successful experts in corn-growing, has progressed remarkably along this line. As a result the yield per acre in that state in the ten years 1896-1905 was 32 4-10 bushels. It was 37 bushels in the census year, 1909, and jumped to 43 bushels in 1912. In conclusion, he stated that large and successful enterprises are conducted today on the theory that the best way to get and keep customers is to show them how to make money by dealing with you; that the more money you can help them to make, the more they will be willing and able to share with you. Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association.

The annual meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association was held at the Hotel Statler, Cleveland, O., June 23, President Reynolds in the chair. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: A. E. Reynolds of Crabb, Reynolds & Taylor Co., Crawfordsville, Ind., president; C. C. Massie of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., vice-president; John A. Smith of S. W. Flower & Co., Toledo, O., secretary.

Los Angeles, June 16.—From a recent inspection trip of the California sweet pea districts I figure the crop in the central part of the state, Santa Clara Valley and tributaries, as less than 25 per cent of a crop, Lompoc district not above 40 per cent, Los Angeles under 25 per cent. Taking acreage and stand all into consideration the California sweet pea crop looks like about one-third of a crop.

The Late Alexander E. Don.

AN APPRECIATION.

It is with a deep sense of personal loss in the death of an esteemed friend that I write these few words of appreciation of the life and character of the late Mr. Don. A man of sterling worth, of quiet and unassuming ways, firm on all points of honor and correct dealing in business, open and frank in his own conduct and requiring the same from others, Mr. Don held the confidence of his many friends in the seed trade. My acquaintance with him goes back to about 1888, after he had left the position which he held with Peter Henderson & Co. I have often heard William Meggat speak of the esteem in which the late Peter Henderson held Mr. Don. He became a member of the American Seed Trade Association in 1888, was elected secretary and treasurer in 1891, and continued in that office for seven years, declining re-election because of failing strength. His faithful work as secretary during those years was of great value to the trade, as that period was important in the life of the association. As a seed merchant he was a prudent and careful buyer, knowing stocks and sources of supply as but few knew them, always seeking and obtaining the best. His success in business gives ample proof of his ability and good judgment. During the later years his failing health made it necessary for others to take the immediate oversight of the business, which he had so closely guarded, and it was for him a constant joy that he was permitted to see his sons established and carrying forward the business which had been his life work.

S. F. WILLARD.

Kentia Seed Industry.

The agent-general for New South Wales advises us that he is now in receipt of a communication from the government of New South Wales, acquainting him, at the instance of the Lord Howe Island board, of the arrangements which have been made for the management and control both of the affairs of the island and of the Kentia seed industry. The board desires that publicity may be given to the fact that the industry in question is now under government management and control, and free from monopoly on the part of any person or persons who formerly controlled the trade.

The government has appointed the following gentlemen as a board of management and control: F. A. Coghlan, J. P., under secretary, chief secretary's department, Sydney (chairman); A. Salwey, assistant under secretary, department of agriculture, Sydney, member; and H. V. Jackson of the department of Agriculture, Sydney, member. The board takes charge, under the terms of the authorities given it, of the island and the trade thereof. Palm seeds and other products of the island may be collected and sold only with the authority and by direction of the board.

The board has now successfully entered into the palm seed trade, and a number of orders for seed have already been executed by the board, with satisfactory results both to the islanders and to seedsmen. The fact that seedsmen are placing large orders with the board and that the residents of the island are unanimously supporting the policy adopted by the board, is sufficient warrant for the board being optimistic as to the regularity of the supply of island products in the future, and the general success of the palm seed industry. As a considerable quantity of the seeds and palms are exported to Great Britain and the continent of Europe, it is desirable that the future prospects of the industry should be generally made known, especially so by reason of the fact that the unsettled conditions of the industry prior to the inception of the board were calculated to deter English and continental nurserymen and others from sending orders to their Sydney agents.

The operations of the board have been confined to the execution of orders in Sydney, and in the fulfilment of those Sydney orders all seedsmen receive equal consideration, no monopoly is granted, and orders are received from any reputable firm which accepts the conditions of sale, payment being cash. Moreover, it has been determined by the board that the prices charged by it for the island products shall remain firm until the end of the present year, and the prices for next year shall be announced in October of the present year. This should enable seedsmen to place orders with some feeling of security. Any further inquiries in regard to this matter should be addressed to "The Lord Howe Island Board, Chief Secretary's Office, Sydney, New South Wales."—Hort. Trade Jour. (British).

California Conditions.

San Jose, June 4.—Roughly estimated, a yield of 50 per cent of normal on all crops is expected from the present outlook. While irrigation where possible has in some instances improved individual varieties and should increase their yields, an average of 50 per cent on all crops will probably prove correct, owing to the almost complete failures of other individual varieties. All crops must still be subject to our usual hot weather yet to come. Hot winds at that time would necessarily make the already weakened plants suffer severely and might still further reduce this estimate. E. V. P.

ADVICES from Teneriffe are to the effect that the Canary Islands' onion crop is unusually large this season.

Chicago, June 23.—Mushrooms, 30 cents to 50 cents per pound; lettuce, 17½ cents to 20 cents, small cases; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; cucumbers, 70 cents to 85 cents per box of two dozen; asparagus, 75 cents to $2.25 for 24 bunches.

Asparagus Notes.

An old rule with market gardeners is to stop cutting asparagus when peas come into market. This is a very good rule, as the time is right. The labor can be shifted from one to the other, and the one also take the place of the other at the table. At any rate we should cut no longer than July 1, as the increasing heat will soon exhaust the roots. Up to this time we should have cut clean everything, and just after stopping is a grand time for a clean up. There is nothing better than a cut away disc harrow lengthways and cross-ways, followed by a spike tooth-harrow.

Before these go on we should add our fertilizer, if any. There is no question that fertilizers are more desirable than manure in many places, as they contain no weed seeds. Probably the most important requisite is potash; it can be used in the cheaper forms, such as muriate and kainit as a little salt will not hurt the asparagus. Some growers use kainit only and heavily, say 1,000 pounds to the acre. A complete potato fertilizer of about 4-8-10 make-up would suit more cases than potash only. Asparagus is a gross feeder and the results next year depend on our present treatment. There is no danger of overfeeding an old patch.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Cleveland, O., Selected as Place of Next Meeting, 1914.
J. B. Pilkington Elected President.

The Portland Convention.

The American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen met jointly in annual convention at Portland, Ore., June 18-20. The visitors were welcomed by Joseph N. Teal, representing Governor West, and by Tom Richardson, on behalf of Mayor Rushlight. John B. Morey of Dansville, N. Y., responded for the American Association of Nurserymen in a few felicitous words and P. A. Dix of Roy, Utah, acknowledged the compliment extended to the Pacific Coast Nurserymen. This was the first time the American Association had ever met west of the Rockies and also the first time the meeting was held in conjunction with the Pacific Coast Association. About 350 members and friends were in attendance. The annual address of President Thomas Meehan of the American Association and President Albert Brownell of the Pacific Coast Association, followed the welcoming ceremonies, after which routine business was attended to.

The Pacific Coast Nurserymen elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing year: Richard Layritz, Victoria, B. C., president; John Valance, Oakland, Calif., C. F. Lansing, Salem, Ore., D. J. Tighe, Billings, Mont., F. A. Wiggins, Toppenish, Wash., Chas. L. Trotter, Vancouver, B. C., Byron Smith, Safford, Ariz., and Carl E. Wright, Kimberly, Idaho, vice-presidents, each to represent his own state; C. A. Tonneson, secretary and treasurer (re-elected). The next meeting of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen will be held at Vancouver, B. C. New members of the executive committee are Chas. L. Trotter, A. R. McDougal, New Westminster, B. C., F. R. E. De Hart, Kelowna, B. C.

President Meehan spoke of the need of proper federal and state laws on the regulation of the growth and distribution of nursery products. "We are successfully rid of the government free seed distribution," said Mr. Meehan, "but we still have the activities of the national nurseries to consider and contend with. These nurseries advertise to ship for cost. This is a detriment to our business and it seems that there should be no more reason for such competition in our lines than in any other business or industry."

J. McHutchinson, chairman of the American Association of Nurserymen membership committee, reported an increase of 100 members within the past year, and said that later additions would swell the entire membership to 500. He was voted the thanks of the association for his work.

Both the federal forestry service and the Board of Horticulture were severely censured in the first two days' meetings. J. McHutchinson in his paper on the "Workings and Results of the Federal Horticultural Law," pointed out some of the law's shortcomings. Too much power was complained of. Mr. McHutchinson told of the fight the nurserymen made and of the resultant modification in the act, but said that many features were yet bad. He declared that the drastic quarantine provisions increased the cost of imported nursery stock to the ultimate consumer.

Geo. C. Roeding of Fresno, Calif., in his able paper on "Horticultural Laws," advocated a universal inspection law that would be a benefit to all and not a detriment. Other interesting talks of the first two days were made by M. L. Dean, state horticulturist of Montana, W. H. Stark, Nevada, Mo., and W. K. Newell, Gaston, Ore.

The last day of the meeting, Friday, June 20, the election of officers was held and the place of the 1914 meeting selected by the American Association. J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., already vice-president, was elected president without opposition. John Hall was continued as secretary for another year. The committee's recommendation that the next year's convention be held in Cleveland, O., was adopted viva voce. The selection of Mr. Pilkington was a most appropriate one and was made by a rising vote of the convention assembly and upon the unanimous indorsement of the nominating committee, representing 19 states. The popularity of this choice was attested by the prolonged applause which followed the announcement of the vote.

John Hall.

Secretary American Association of Nurserymen.

Mr. Pilkington tried to avoid making a formal speech and was slipping out of the door of the convention hall when President Thomas B. Meehan appointed George C. Roedding sergeant-at-arms, and Mr. Roedding grabbed the future president and escorted him to the stage. Mr. Pilkington's speech of acceptance and acknowledgment of the high compliment was a clever one and pleased the audience. His selection was certainly due him as a man who has the best interests of the association at heart and one who is willing to work unselfishly to further those interests and to the good of the nursery trade in general. The Portland Evening Telegram contains the following in reference to the American Association's president-elect:

"This high compliment paid to Mr. Pilkington is merely a recognition of the great influence he has had in the deliberations not only of the Pacific Coast Association, but also in the parent or national body. It was he who went back to Boston last year and literally dragged the 1913 convention clear across the continent to the Rose City, the first time in the 38 years of its history that it had even gone west of the Rockies. Later he went down to Salt Lake and hypnotized the Pacific Coast Association and got it to select Portland as the 1913 meeting place. He further pulled the strings so that the two big organizations would meet jointly—something that has never been done before."

The re-election of John Hall, Rochester, N. Y., as secretary of the association needs no comment, just as Mr. Hall needs no introduction to the nurserymen of America. Mr. Hall has already served in this position, and his re-election was an appropriate recognition of his fitness for the position. Chas. J. Maloy, Rochester, N. Y., was again elected treasurer, another compliment which was well deserved. Mr. Maloy's period in office has demonstrated his choice to be an excellent one. The reports of the secretary and the treasurer were made Friday morning and showed the association to be in a remarkably flourishing condition.

The members of the two associations and their friends were the guests Friday of the Oregon Nursery Co. on a trolley trip to their nurseries at Oreneo, where lunch was served at 1 p. m. The nurseries were later inspected and the visitors then returned to Portland. An excursion and banquet on the Columbia river was given by local nurserymen to their visitors Saturday. The trip and the scenery were much enjoyed.

RUTHERFORD, N. J.

Secretary Hall's Report.

We have approached this convention with considerable anxiety from the fact that a peculiar combination of circumstances has prevented very many of our members from attending this anniversary. One of the main explanations for this condition is that the meetings of the association, it is claimed, are held at an inopportune time. The spring packing season has barely closed by the time for which this annual gathering is scheduled, and the work which follows the packing season demands such close attention that members cannot leave home without incurring loss. Besides, they have no intelligent idea at that early date of what stock they have on hand and what their future wants will be. Quite a number of members have expressed themselves as favoring a later date, suggestions varying from two weeks to two months later than the constitutional date.

Then, too, the Panama-Pacific International Exposition of 1915 in San Francisco is claiming the attention of many members to the extent of their letting this convention pass. There are still others who have planned to be present who are prevented from doing so by sickness, either of themselves or members of their families. There is also a strong feeling that the annual convention should be held at some more central point or points which will be reasonably easy of access to members from all directions.

Never, in the history of the association, have the receipts of the secretary been so large as this year. We report a total income of over $3,300, and we hope to receive at this convention a number of new members. Another feature which gives us pleasure to mention is the large addition which has been made to the membership through the earnest efforts of James McHutchison, who was appointed a committee for this purpose by President Meehan.

The grim reaper has again been busy among us, and in the latter half of the year 1912 the losses sustained were very severe.

June 17—George S. Josselyn died at his home in Fredonia, N. Y., aged 70 years. "Papa Josselyn" will live in the memory of members not alone as an enterprising nurseryman, but also for his excellent personal qualities.

July 26—Michael H. Golden, president of the Genesee Valley Nurseries, died in Rochester, N. Y.

August 10—Prof. John Craig, who was at the head of the Department of Horticulture in Cornell University, died at Siasconset, Mass., in his forty-eighth year. We were able to make record of this in the 1912 annual report.

September 14—Charles L. Yates, died somewhat suddenly at his home in Rochester, N. Y., aged 65 years. Mr. Yates was for many years the treasurer of this association. He was also business manager of the "National Nurseryman," the official organ of this association, and Prof. Craig was editor of the same publication. It was a singular coincidence that the deaths of these two men should have come so near together.

September 27—John Chase, Derry Village, New Hampshire, died, aged 80 years. He first became a member of this association in 1895.

The Use of Lime.

For the purpose of correcting the sourness of the soils provided they give the test with litmus papers, lime of some sort should be applied. There are two kinds of limestone, the ordinary limestone composed of carbonate of calcium and dolomitic limestone, which is a mixture of calcium and magnesium carbonates. The quarries at Chester and other places in the south half of Illinois contain calcium limestone, while Kankakee limestone and in general all limestones from the northern part of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio are dolomitic. Dolomitic limestone is much less soluble in soil water than calcium limestone, and for that reason its effects will not be seen so quickly as those from the latter. To secure immediate results, therefore, calcium limestone is preferred, but for correcting acidity in the field dolomitic is not so liable to be lost by leaching of rains and it has about 10 per cent more efficiency in correcting sourness than calcium limestone.

The question of freight rate is an important one in this connection and in case dolomite can be secured much cheaper than the other form no harmful results will follow from using it. In either case, in order to secure quick results, limestone should be applied in the form of a fine powder, the larger part passing through a 100-mesh sieve. In addition to limestones, quicklime and quicklime slaked in the air (air-slaked) or with water (water slaked) may be used for the purpose of correcting sourness. Fifty-six pounds of quicklime or 74 pounds of water-slaked lime have the same efficiency in correcting sourness as 100 pounds of limestone. This means that about one-third to one-half is saved in transportation charges, for only two-thirds or one-half as much need be applied to get the same results, and this fact, in case the amount bought is large, would argue in favor of its use.

Quicklime has a marked caustic action on organic matter, decomposing it and making the nitrogen-containing materials soluble in water. For this reason, more nutriment can be secured from organic matter in a short time by its use than by the use of limestone. For this reason, also, lime should never be mixed with manure or any organic fertilizer that is not to be used at once (such as guano, tankage and dried blood), because it will be decomposed and lost. Quicklime made from dolomite has a marked toxic action on plant growth if used in very large amounts, and should, if used, be applied cautiously. Lime and limestones supply calcium which is needed by the plant, and also cause the liberation of potassium from the soil, making it soluble in soil water and so usable by the plant. No harmful effects follow the use of limestones up to 50 or 100 tons an acre (corresponding to 200 and 400 pounds each 100 square feet of bench space), but it seems unnecessary to apply such large quantities. About 25 pounds a 100 square feet of bench space (corresponding to a fairly light sprinkling) of ground limestone has been found satisfactory at the University of Illinois greenhouses. Quicklime must be used more cautiously but no harmful effects will be seen from a light sprinkling.

The following precautions should be observed in the use of lime:

- (1) It should never be mixed with manures or fertilizers containing organic residues (such as manure, guano, dried blood) nor with ammonium sulphate, unless the mixture is to be used immediately. In the latter case lime will hasten the fertilizing action.
- (2) It should not be mixed with acid fertilizers (such as acid phosphate, super-phosphate), in any case.
- (3) Potash salts and kainit cake when mixed with lime should not be allowed to stand long after mixing.
- (4) Lime may safely be mixed at any time with Thomas or basic slag phosphate, lime nitrogen, nitrate of soda or lime nitrate.

Lime is best applied as a sprinkling on the surface of the benches (rather than worked into the soil), and washed in during watering. A light sprinkling three or four times a year is preferable to a single large application.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

THE QUICKEST WATER HEATER IN THE WORLD

Establishment of Christ, Winterich, Defiance, Ohio. A No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler heats entire plant, including hotbeds.

Kroeschell Boilers Give Satisfaction

Your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler is taking care of 18,000 sq. ft. of glass, and it will carry 24,000 sq. ft. of glass, and maybe 30,000 sq. ft. of glass. Have no trouble keeping temperature at 50° to 60° in the coldest weather. Fire boiler in fall and spring late in evening and again early in morning; during the winter season I have a night man. Boiler has given entire satisfaction.

I had three cast iron boilers, but the Kroeschell is the quickest heater, and I can safely say that it saves 20% of fuel, at least, compared to the cast iron boilers I had.

The Kroeschell Boiler for me.

Steel Tubular Boilers are Costly and Difficult to Install. Burnham Cast Iron Sectional Boilers are Easy to Handle and Inexpensive to Erect.

Steel tubular boilers require expensive chimneys. The foundation work, building of a fire box or bricking-in is also a big expense. The moving of a tubular boiler from the cars to your cellar is an engineering problem of no small size. Then there is the frequent expense of retubing that's always hanging over your head.

Burnham Cast Iron Boilers have no tubes to replace—resist destructive rusting—require no expensive chimney or masonry work—the sections are so easy to handle that two or three men with a monkey wrench and a screw driver can set them up. These are boiled down facts: Small ranges cannot be economically heated by steel tubular boilers. Owing to the number of boilers required to heat a large range of greenhouses, cast iron boilers are not economical.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Poinsettias.

The time for propagating poinsettias is approaching the end, but cuttings struck at this time will make the best plants for the low pans, and all the cuttings possible should be placed in the propagating bench or frame, at once. Stock rooted after September 1 will not prove satisfactory at the holiday season. As soon as rooted they should be potted in 2½-inch pots in a compost composed of three-fourths soil and one-fourth rotted manure. As soon as the night temperature drops below 60 degrees the plants should be removed to the houses and given a light position. As they grow space them out so that they will not become crowded and drawn, a short jointed growth being desirable. While poinsettias can be grown in a cooler temperature, at about 50 degrees, the bracts will not be as large and they will not be in bloom at Christmas. The cause of most failures with these plants is a variable temperature—60 degrees at night gives the best results, and do not allow the temperature to fluctuate, or a loss of leaves will result.

Pelargoniums.

The great improvement in the varieties of the zonal geraniums during the last fifteen years has gradually pushed the show pelargoniums into the background, but there is no handsomer conservatory or house plant for late spring and early summer than these old time favorites, and the plant grower should always have a few of these every season. If there is no stock wait until September and buy from those who have, and purchase the large flowering varieties and a good assortment of colors. Those who have some good stock plants that are nearly through blooming can begin to dry them off, but do not go to extremes, do not dry them enough to turn the foliage yellow. About the middle of August the plant may be cut down and pruned back very severely, leaving only two or three eyes on each shoot. The wood that is cut off should be made into cuttings and every piece will root, if cut into two or three eyes. Insert the cuttings in the propagating bed and keep them well shaded, and not too wet, but keep the sand moist. They will root in about three weeks and then should be potted and as soon as they require it a shift made into 4-inch pots. Encourage them to make all the growth possible until November, when they should be placed in a cool house, with a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees, and preferably on a shelf near the glass.

At the end of February or early in March they should be potted in 6-inch pots, when they will make rapid growth and flower the following May and June.

Pruing Shrubs.

The spring blooming shrubs are now nearly all done and the safest rule for pruning is to cut back into shape after the flowers have passed, when the shrubs begin their growth for the next season's crop of flowers.
All the small weak growths should be cut out and the plants trimmed into proper shape. Unless this is attended to, shrubs rapidly become a tangle of weak growths, bearing but few flowers, and grow into ungainly specimens. Too often this important work is left until too late and the blooming growth for next season is cut off, with the result that there are no flowers the succeeding year. Privet hedges should be constantly pruned into shape so as to have a nice appearance, and they will stand any amount of cutting, as they grow very rapidly.
August is the best time to trim ber-beris, and they will need no further cutting back for the balance of the year.

Callas.

The bulbs of callas will be arriving shortly and everything should be in readiness to start them if it is desired to have blooms in the fall. They can be grown either in benches or in pots.
Many prefer pot culture, claiming that the bulbs produce more flowers when grown in this manner than when in benches, but the larger flowers are grown in the latter. But whichever way they are to be grown through the winter, the culture at the outset will be the same. The soil should be one-third rotted cow manure and two-thirds good soil, and if the soil is of a clayey texture the mixture will stand a liberal addition of sharp sand to keep it open. Pot the bulb in a pot just large enough to hold it and be sure and have good drainage. While the calla is a moisture loving plant and absorbs lots of water it will quickly take on a sickly look if the drainage becomes blocked and the soil becomes soaked with stagnant water. After potting, the plants should be plunged outside, preferably in a cold frame, and if standing in the direct rays of the sun a mulch of short grass, such as lawn mowings or old straw, will prevent the pots from drying out too rapidly and consequently less frequent watering will be required until the roots begin to grow in the soil. As soon as the growths appear the mulch should be removed. The plants can be left out in frames until the middle of September, when they should be removed to the houses and potted into larger sizes or planted in the benches. The old bulbs that bloomed last year can be shaken out and treated in a similar manner. Be sure before potting these to remove all the small bulbets from the old bulbs. If it is desired to increase the stock these can be planted in a flat and they will grow into flowering roots for the succeeding year.

Greenhouse Over a Hot Spring.

The old expression that "there is nothing new under the sun" has been given a rude shakeup by the achievement of the caretaker of Old Faithful Inn in Yellowstone Park. Last winter his ingenious brain devised the scheme of building a hothouse over one of the many boiling springs in the vicinity of the hotel. Realizing that there was a lot of good heat going to waste which might be corralled and used to advantage, he bethought himself of constructing a glass house over the source of this heat for the development of plant life.

The upper part of the wooden framework was filled in with old windows that were discarded when the new Grand Canyon hotel was built two years ago. Upon completion of his improvised hothouse, he immediately planted lettuce, radishes, cucumbers, tomatoes and mushrooms, bringing fertile soil from back in the hills and constructing boxes in which to plant his seed. There was no soil where he built this greenhouse for the reason that it was located on the hot springs formation, where the crust is lava and volcanic rock. Things grew in the hothouse like wild fire, while the outside temperature ranged anywhere from 20° to 50° below zero. The only difficulty experienced was in keeping the temperature inside the hothouse down to the proper point for the welfare of the plants. The heat from the hot spring was so intense that the problem of moderating the temperature proved a serious one. H. W. Child, president of the Yellowstone Park Hotel Company, has visions of serving mushrooms at Old Faithful inn this summer—the product of this unique and original hothouse where the crisp and frosty nights, so attractive to the tourists, will have no terrors for the tender plants. — Mississippi Valley Lumberman.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

Apropos the interesting talks of Adolph Farenwald and W. F. Kasting before the New York Florists' Club, it might well be stated that the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be very much interested in seeing a modification of the dues for the S. A. F. in relation to the various other organizations. It is an essential requirement of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery that each member of that organization be represented in the S. A. F. There are about 115 members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery now represented in the S. A. F. A reduction of rates for the parent body, say $3.00 for the first fee and $1.50 or $2.00 per year thereafter would be the solving of a welcome problem. There are hundreds of retailers in the country who would doubtless be willing to join the Telegraph Delivery if it were possible to aid them in that way. No doubt this will hold true with the Carnation, Rose and other societies and increase the membership much above the fifteen hundred now identified with the S. A. F. The interested members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery might do well to bear this topic in mind so as to gauge the matter properly at the coming meeting in Minneapolis.

IRWIN BERTERMANN, President.

Flowers in Sickness.

The influence of flowers in lightening sorrow and suffering has always been recognized, but their employment as an actual remedy in cases of sickness is recent. Laymen as well as physicians know the power of mental attitudes in helping invalids to health and the blooms so bountifully provided by nature are an obvious means of drawing the sufferer's attention from his or her condition to more cheerful thoughts. Perhaps nowhere, however, has this idea been so strongly adopted as in Battle Creek, Mich., famous as "the health food city." At the Battle Creek Sanitarium physicians prescribe flowers for patients just as they would order massage or an application of electricity.

Many chronic sufferers have disorders of the stomach and nerves, which oftentimes cause severe depression of spirits. Modern medicine does not content itself with drugs, but lays stress on a pleasing diet, entertainment and exercise suited to the case, and, in general, conditions which make life agreeable. When a patient here is feeling particularly in the dumps, the physician orders a blooming plant or a vase of flowers, and the effect is often pronounced. Of course, women are more susceptible to this influence than men, but some of the male invalids take a surprising lot of comfort from this "medicine." When a person is confined to his bed for a long period it often diverts his mind to have a plant near the bed which he can watch as the buds grow into flowers. A rich man who had had an operation and was preparing to go home asked the florist of the sanitarium whether he might take with him a common plant of Asparagus plumosus which was in his room.

"Of course you are welcome to it," was the answer, "but it will be a bother to carry it so far. You can buy one like it at home for a few cents."

"It isn't a question of money," said the patient. "I want to have it properly packed and shipped by express. I have watched that plant for eight long weeks that I lay in bed, before and after my operation, and I have come to love it."

This man is one of the keenest and most successful business men in his state. Probably few of his associates would think of him as being sentimental. Yet a simple plant was thus able to twine itself around his affections. It is doubtful whether any other big institution in the country pursues such a liberal and intelligent course regarding flowers as the Battle Creek Sanitarium, and a similar policy on the part of hotels, hospitals and sanitariums generally would be an enormous boon to the florists' trade. Everything is supplied free. A patient will come to the greenhouse and say:

"I'd like to buy one of those hyacinths."

"We don't sell anything here," is the reply. "Everything is given away. Just pick out the plant you want and I'll send it to your room. When that is through blooming, telephone to me and I'll send you another."

All potted plants are supplied on a mere request. Of course, cut flowers are more in demand and it would be impracticable to grow enough to supply 700 or 800 patients with all they asked for. Some would be unreasonable and get more than their share. The distribution is arranged through the physician. Surgical cases are regarded as most entitled to being cheered, and the rule is always to have cut flowers in their rooms. For the medical patients, the flowers are sent to the medical office four or five times a week. Each woman physician is asked for the names of the women on her list who are most in need of some brightening influence, and to each of these a bouquet is sent. Persons arriving at a sanitarium are likely to be tired from their journey, and despondent at being in strange surroundings, and a nosegay of roses or carnations has a marked effect in making life look less dreary.

Flowers are displayed in offices and in the dining room, while a big palm garden affords a delightful lounging place in winter. The exotic plants here are a great source of interest to guests. Roses and carnations are the favorite flowers, but a large variety is grown in the greenhouses, including sweet peas, tulips, hyacinths, lilies, stocks, bouvardias, stevias, geraniums, pansies, violets, lily of the valley, and chrysanthemums. In the summer months, the building fairly overflows with flowers, as the gardens yield their succession of blooms. Every year about 10,000 asters are planted. Supposing they yield a dozen flowers each, you have a huge mass of loveliness. Sweet peas there are, too, by the bushel basket, snapdragons, poppies, Sweet William, golden glow, sunflowers, bachelor's buttons, stock, gailardia, cosmos, pinks, iris in many varieties, peonies, bleeding hearts, calliopsis, coreopsis, dimorphotheca, nigella, chrysanthemums, Shasta daisies, roses, gladioli, dahlias, snow-on-the-mountain, phlox, pansies, nasturtiums and others too numerous to mention.

The blooms are displayed in the numerous offices and on the dining tables, besides being supplied to patients in their rooms. As part of this liberal policy, the sanitarium pays a great deal of attention to the beautification of its grounds. People who are away from their usual occupations and surroundings take an uncommon interest in everything they see and the flower beds, shrubs and trees are a source of pleasure and entertainment to guests and patients. To stimulate this attention, the landscape gardener has set out a great variety of plants, so that the place is almost a botanical garden. That people take notice of such things is proved by the fact that every man who is at work on the lawn or flower beds is besieged with questions of all kinds. The head florist is frequently asked for information and advice by guests who wish to reproduce at their homes the effects they admire at the sanitarium.

In a recent lecture Dr. J. H. Kellogg, superintendent of the sanitarium, said: "Flowers are of great value to sick people as well as to well people. Flowers help to make the environment about us pleasant. There is no question that the environment about a man has a great deal to do with his physical condition as well as his mental state. If one gets up in the morning, looks out and sees everything dark and gloomy it has rather a discouraging effect upon him. He looks out of the window, sees the sunshine and a beautiful landscape, and it is inspiring, and so flowers in the sick room are really messengers of health and healing, and when they come from friends represent the giver and are really messages of love and sympathy as well. We aim to have flowers all about the sanitarium at all seasons of the year. We have large greenhouses which we maintain at considerable expense so as to keep the place supplied with flowers. If any of you want flowers or pot plants in your room all you have to do is to call for them and you can get them."

This plan of spending a lot of money on flowers has been found profitable in Battle Creek. Business men and the heads of corporations are learning that cheerful and beautiful surroundings are a paying investment. The spreading of this gospel means a great deal to the florist interests of the country.

Newport, R. I., Exhibition.

The joint exhibition of the Newport Garden Association and the Newport Horticultural Society was opened at Harbour Court, the estate of Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, June 25, under very favorable conditions. If outdoor exhibitions are to be held, no more favorable location than Harbour Court could be found. The place on the estate selected for the exhibition was a level space of tree-shaded lawn separated from the sea wall by only a narrow driveway. As an added landscape feature, so to speak, a large number of tall bay trees in tubs were placed along the sea wall about 10 feet apart. Inside the drive, as a border, were the beds of roses, hydrangeas, geraniums, schizanthus, sweet williams, Canterbury bells and other hardy and bedding plants. There were also many tubs of tall sweet peas interspersed with ivy, bay and box trees as a background.

It may here be said that preparing for an outdoor show is not as easy as it may seem to the casual reader. Although the location was very favorable, much work was necessary in preparation. For the reception of the cut flowers, two semi-circular booths were prepared, one on each side of what may be called the plaza or court. If extended they would have encircled it, but ample space was left open for colors, of features on the Auchincloss estate. The Henry A. Dreer, Inc., exhibit of water lilies and iris had a good position in the center of the court and attracted attention. In planted stock, nothing looked prettier than the schizanthus and Canterbury bells from the estate of Mrs. H. M. Brooks (James Bond, gardener), which took first prizes. Another noteworthy exhibit which took first prize was the collection of outdoor roses, named varieties, from the W. W. Astor estate.

Hugh Williamson, gardener, President Melkle and Secretary Coughlin of the Horticultural Society, as well as Superintendent Manda, deserve much credit for their tireless efforts to make the show a success.

The versatile Thomas Knight of the Knight & Struck Co., Flushing, N. Y., exhibited his orchids on two trees growing on the lawn. Both the trees and the orchids looked well.

Among the visitors at the opening was President Farquhar of the Society of American Florists. The show was well patronized on the opening day by the society people.

A very interesting feature was the exhibit of Jackson Dawson of the Arnold arboretum, Boston, Mass. It consisted of new hybrid roses. There were Baby Duncan, William Egan, Rosa Arnold, Sargent Rose, Minnie Dawson and several suitable for greensward bedding.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., had the only carnation exhibit. Their rose Milady showed fine and kept well. The exhibit was in charge of R. T. Beers.

The judges were as follows: For the Newport Garden Association: Mrs. Arnold Hague, Newport; F. R. Newbold, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass. For the Newport Horticultural Society: Wm. Grey, Fred Carter, Colin Robertson.

The weather for the second and last day of the exhibition was exceedingly favorable for an outdoor show, being cloudy and cool, without rain. Consequently the most of the cut stock held out well. The baskets and cen-gress and egress. The skeleton of these booths was a framework of galvanized iron pipe to which was fastened strong wire netting. Against this skeleton there was a close set hedge of red cedar which served the double purpose of protection and a good background for the flowers. Overhead were wide curtained awnings. While there were tables for the cut stock in vases, the small trees were utilized by the orchid exhibitors with good effect. In the center of the court there was an aquatic display. Palms and specimen bay trees and boxwoods were arranged to give the whole a touch of formal gardening.

Prominent among commercial exhibitors were:

Boblink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., bay trees, boxwoods and large English ivies, also plant tubs.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., orchids, roses Milday, My Maryland and Mrs. Aaron Ward, and carnations.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., orchids.

Paul de Nave, Fall River, Mass., orchids.

Oscar Schultz, Newport, bedding plants.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, water lilies and irises.

Wm. Tricker, Arlington, N. J., water lilies.

Knight & Struck Co., Flushing, N. Y., orchids.

Nearly all the private gardeners' exhibits were from Newport estates. Of these there was stock from the estate of Mrs. H. D. Auchincloss, Miss Fanny Foster, Mrs. E. J. Berwind, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. L. M. Davies, Mrs. W. W. Sherman, Mrs. H. M. Buck, Mrs. T. J. Emery, Mrs. Wm. B. Leeds, Vincent Astor, W. W. Astor, Mrs. W. G. Weld, Mrs. H. A. C. Taylor, Mrs. French-Vanderbilt and August

The palms and bay trees from Boblink & Atkins were features of the grounds.

An exhibit much admired was that from the estate of Mrs. H. D. Auchincloss (J. Mahan, gardener). It was three standard rhododendrons ranging from seven to 12 feet in height, two of which were in full bloom, the third just opening. It is but seldom that such plants are seen anywhere.

Dana Fitz Dow, a landscape architect of Reading, Mass., exhibited a number of photographs on glass, in terpieces were staged and judged and awards were made on special exhibits.

William Tricker of Arlington, N. J., who did not receive his stock in time for exhibition June 25, had his exhibit well arranged. Notable among his nymphs were Eugenia de Land, Gloriosa, W. B. Shaw, Jas. Brydon, Helen Fowler, Mrs. Roach and Hessel's Yellow. For the last named he was awarded a first class certificate; for the general exhibit he won a certificate of merit and $5.00.

Cornell University.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 30.—At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees of Cornell University, the work of the Department of Horticulture was divided between the two Departments of Floriculture and Vegetable Culture. Dr. A. C. Beal was appointed professor of floriculture, and Mr. Paul Work will be in charge of the work in vegetable gardening.

Prof. Whetzel's Exhibit.

In addition to the programme of the meeting of S. A. F. & O. H. which appears elsewhere in this issue, Prof. H. H. Whetzel of Cornell University, Official Pathologist, will have on exhibition an extensive collection of specimens and descriptive material covering plant diseases. The educational value of this exhibit was clearly demonstrated at the Chicago convention. The exhibit will be in charge of Roy C. Faulwetter, who will be pleased to give visitors any information regarding the same.

Independence Flowers.

Marquis Eaton of the Sane Fourth Association, in thanking President French of the Chicago Florists' Club for his excellent suggestion as to the use of flowers on Independence day, which appeared in THE AMERICAN FLORIST June 28, page 1258, added: "I know of no good occasion which is not made better by the use of flowers."

American Gladiolus Society.

We are in receipt of schedule of prizes offered by the American Gladiolus Society at its fourth exhibition of gladiolus blooms, to be held in connection with the annual meeting of the society and the Society of American Florists at Minneapolis, Minn., August 19-22. Copies of the schedule may be had on application to Secretary L. Merton Gage, South Natick, Mass.

Convention Sports Prizes.

C. N. Ruedlinger, local chairman of the Society of American Florists' convention sports committee, advises that he is now ready for such prizes as members of the trade wish to donate for the sporting events to take place at Minneapolis, Minn., during convention week, August 19-23. All contributions and donations for this purpose should be addressed to C. N. Ruedlinger, Minneapolis, Minn.

Penn's Advertising.

Penn's well known Boston retail house has done considerable attractive advertising in the daily newspapers of that city, and this concern has started the reproduction of a series of these advertisements in this week's issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, having in view the broadening of its acquaintance in the trade as well as the extension of its business. We can commend these reproductions as excellent examples of good local advertising.

Chicago to Minneapolis.

The Chicago Florists' Club has selected the Chicago Great Western railroad as the official route to Minneapolis, Minn., for the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, August 19-22. The Florists' Special will leave the Grand Central Station, Fifth avenue and Harrison street, at 6:15 p. m., August 18, arriving in Minneapolis August 19 at 7 a. m. The rate from Chicago to the convention city and return is $16.00. Florists and their friends, whether members of the club or not, who start from or pass through Chicago, are cordially invited to join the crowd for the trip. The train will be one of the best appointed in the country, and will include buffet-library cars, compartment-drawing room sleeping cars, observation and dining cars. The sleeping car rates are $1.60 for upper berth and $2.00 for lower berth. Compartments are $5.00 and drawing rooms $7.00. A table d'hote dinner will be served for $1.00. Music on the train will be a feature of the trip. Full information may be had by addressing J. B. Deamud, Chairman Transportation Committee, Chicago Florists' Club, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

The KENILWORTH Giant Pansy

Seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, magogany and many others too numerous to mention.

KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, its large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

ORCHID FLOWERED, Mixed—A dwarf free bloomer with a range of delicate colors that do not exist in any other pansies, a remarkable combination of light rose, shell pink, blush mauve, fawn, light brown, orange and chamois.

Tornado Insurance.

Florian D. Wallace, the tornado insurance expert who carried the risk on Hoerber Bros.' greenhouses at Des Plaines, Ill., which were partially destroyed last March by a cyclone, is now catering to the trade on a larger scale. He has prevailed upon a syndicate of old and well known stock fire and tornado insurance companies, with combined assets of over $25,000,000, to write Greenhouse Windstorm Insurance. This is an entirely new and rather hazardous field for insurance companies, and they will proceed very cautiously for the present, covering only well built ranges in good repair, and only those in northern Illinois. Later in the year, however, when a better knowledge of conditions and requirements is obtained, the territory will be extended to cover other states. The policies will cover broadly greenhouses, boiler houses, dwellings, barns, live stock and all other property of the assured, fixed and movable, on his premises, except windmills, metal stacks, hot beds and growing plants, shrubs and trees. There are no troublesome conditions in the policy, and no warranties except an agreement to insure for at least fifty (50%) per cent. of the value of the plant. The rates are surprisingly low for the hazard, and it will be only with the most careful inspections and selection that the insurance can be written at present prices. Mr. Wallace is personally visiting the various greenhouse centers near Chicago for the purpose of making these inspections, quoting rates and explaining the proposition generally. Interested growers are urged to advise him at once, so that he will not miss them when again in their district. Mr. Wallace says that, in addition to tornado in-

Leon S. Hines, formerly with Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill., has accepted a position with the Archias Floral Co. of this city, and is now in charge of the growing department for the local company.

Plans for the new office building to be erected by the Archias Floral Co. have been completed by the architect, and bids for the structure will probably be opened early this week, and the material for the new greenhouse is on the way.

L. A. Kipping of this firm was in Chicago during the last week of June assisting in the selection and shipping of the new greenhouse material which Foley supplied.

MONTCLAIR, N. J.—At the annual Rose Show held at the Art Museum, June 21-22, several beautiful collections were shown by prominent exhibitors.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Probably the most magnificent exhibits in the history of rose shows here, were displayed at the Mount Baker Park Improvement Club's annual floral event, June 21-22. More than 50,000 people visited the show, which was held in a tent set up in the center of the park.

RECORD HEAT AFFECTS TRADE.

The record heat of the past week has affected trade a great deal and there is but a very little demand for stock. Fifteen deaths were reported from the heat on June 30, when the temperature had reached the 98 degree mark at noon. In some parts of the city thermometers reached the 105 degree mark on the streets. Prostrations were reported from homes, street cars, department stores, and in the busy loop streets, and the people, most of the time, were trying to keep cool instead of even thinking of buying flowers. Stock of all kinds are overplentiful and plainly show the effects of the extreme hot weather. First-class stock, of which there is very little, finds a very good sale, but there is a large quantity of inferior grade that does not find a purchaser. American Beauty roses have been in unusually large supply the past week and have been sacrificed at exceedingly low prices. Some good Kaisers, My Marylands, and Rhea Reids are arriving and are selling well. Killarney is of fairly good color, but the flowers lack substance and open quickly, and White Killarney has the same fault, and the color of these flowers is not nearly as white as Kaiserin. The planting of the young stock has shortened up the cut considerably, but there is still plenty of stock around. It is almost impossible to ship the stock safely any great distance, for it opens almost before it reaches the store. While there are very good carnations, they are not numerous, and there are many that are small. The quantity received is growing smaller as preparations for planting the young stock proceeds. There are plenty of Lilium giganteum and L. candidum to be had. Nymphaeas are seen everywhere and many of the retailers are featuring them in their window displays. Gladioli are of good quality and have been bringing fairly good prices, especially the best America. Orchids are in oversupply and some fine blooms are obtainable, which enables the buyers to make a grand showing at very little expense. Peonies are still a factor on the market and the first shipments of northern-grown stock arrived this week. Gaillardias, coreopsis, rudbeckias, daisies and delphiniums all add to variety to be seen and make a fine show. Ferns are now arriving, of good quality, and prices are down to normal figures.

NOTES.

N. T. Barrett, of Hutchison, Kans., spent a few days in this city on his way via the S. S. Northland to Buffalo, thence down the St. Lawrence river through the Thousand Isles, thence via Hudson river to New York, thence via Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore to the Atlantic coast, where he and Mrs. Barrett will spend some pleasant weeks celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. While here Mr. Barrett placed an order with the Foley Mfg. Co. for four greenhouses, each 14 ft. 9 ins. x 156 ft. 6 ins., being duplicate of an order placed with the same firm just a year ago. We wish the happy couple many pleasant anniversaries.

Guy French, Richard Salms, C. G. Anderson and Harry Browder, with Poehlmann Bros. Co. of Morton Grove, made a trip to Milwaukee, Wis., last Sunday, June 29, returning home the following morning. They had occasion to witness the terrible automobile accident on their return, which happened on this side of Libertyville, when one of the occupants of the oth-

Foley Awarded Heavy Damages.

A jury in Judge Pomery's section of the circuit court of Cook County at Chicago, rendered a verdict in favor of the Foley Mfg. Co. against the City of Chicago, with damages of $22,500, June 27, 1913. This suit was brought by the plaintiff to recover for damage to its plant at Western avenue, Artesian avenue, Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets, caused by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad in the elevation of its tracks pursuant to an ordinance of the city council compelling all the railroads to elevate their tracks. The elevation of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy's tracks at the above location deprived the plaintiff of the use of its switch track, which, previous to elevation of the road bed, permitted the placing at one time for loading or unloading of as many as 10 cars, compelling plaintiff to load and unload its cars elsewhere at great loss and inconvenience, and further, reducing the value of its lumber yards for drying purposes, the railroad constructing an embankment and concrete walls 14 feet high for a distance of about 700 feet to the west and southwest of Foley's lumber yards, thereby cutting off the usual southwest winds of summer so favorable to the air drying of that famous air-dried cypress that made Foley so familiar a word in greenhouse circles.

UNION, Mo.—Attention is called to the new inspection law passed last winter by the legislature, which becomes effective this summer, and which is interesting to growers, shippers, planters of fruit trees, vines, shrubs, and other nursery stock, is now ready and can be had by addressing the chief inspector of nurseries and orchards, Columbia, Mo.

The Chicago Great Western has been named the Official Route of the Chicago Florists' Club to the Minneapolis Convention, August 19th to 22nd.

The Chicago Florists' Club will leave Chicago by Special Train at 6.15 p. m., August 18th, an invitation is extended to all eastern Florists and their friends and families to join them at Chicago and go to the convention in a body.

Special train will be "up-to-the-minute" throughout—including compartment and drawing room and standard sleepers, Buffet Club car, dining cars, Observation parlor, etc., etc.

STOCK SCARCE.

We have experienced the hottest weather of the year and business is practically at a standstill. The market has shown a great scarcity of good stock. White roses are very scarce and all the good stock sells at sight. Many carnations are worthless. A few asters are arriving. Indoor gladioli are about over and the outdoor stock has not yet made its appearance. Good lilies are seen. American Beauties are plentiful in all lengths, but the quality is none too good.

NOTES.

V. J. Gorly and wife will leave shortly for Mobile and the Gulf. Mr. Gorly, a prominent business man, states that 75 per cent of the florists are asleep on the question of birthday gifts. He believes the birthday gift should be pushed and made as much a fad as a floral emblem at the bier of a loved one, thus increasing a steady demand and materially assisting the retail business in general. He claims that every florist should do his part in advertising and creating this undeveloped field, now only partly covered.

Arthur Meyer, George Schriever, Frank Windler, A. Gunz and D. Geddes motored to the National base ball park Saturday afternoon and watched the game between the pirates and cardinals.

The Strohmeier Floral Co. will have a nice store when completed. The proprietor has a good knowledge of general store work and was for years in the employ of F. C. Weber.

At the next meeting of the Growers' Association F. C. Weber will furnish statistics as to the number of carnations grown, average blooms per plant and amount of profit.

Ostertag Bros. furnished the flowers and plants at the Kraill wedding. The canopy was built of lily of the valley and roses. About 200 palms were used.

Alex Waldbart & Sons have had a very successful season. Planting out and landscape work was late, but everything is now completed.

Oscar May is building one house 140 x 40 ft. Anton Bros., three houses 125 x 22 ft., and N. A. Rowe, two houses 140 x 27 ft.

The picnic committee has dodgers out advertising the picnic. Will Ossiges is very busy with the program of events.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. are still shipping some good carnations to the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., Inc.

Some very good roses, especially Richmond, were seen at the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

H. G. Berning has a fine lot of white carnations and a good supply of beauties.

Fifteen employes of Ostertag Bros. will give a picnic Sunday.

Harry Baldsley of Detroit, Mich., was with us this week.

Vincent J. Gorly.

G. H. Angermueller had a good supply of roses.

There is a growing demand all over for plants.

BUSINESS FAIR.

Fiction writers and writers generally may write of the burning tropical sun, but that sun can't have anything upon the sample that is being handed out to us suffering mortals in this vicinity these days. The month of June presented two extremes in temperature. We had some of the coolest days and nights we have had in June in years, as well as some of the hottest. The cool weather came the early part of the month and was succeeded almost immediately by the torrid kind, which has lasted into July. It is wonderful that with sweltering weather like this and its effect on people and flowers that business is as good as it is.

The supply of both roses and carnations is shortening rapidly. The good and choice blooms of each generally find a fair demand. The supply of pink roses exceeds that of white. Lilies are very plentiful and the offerings include some very choice stock. Fine pond lilies and Rubrums, too, are offered. Sweet peas enjoy a good call but the receipts are as a whole of a very poor quality. Shipments into town from nearby cities arrive absolutely spoiled while the local growers are cutting only a limited number of good ones. This week will probably see the last of them. Some fine extra long Shasta daisies have been coming in during the past fortnight. Most of the gladioli offerings are fine and they are selling well.

NOTES.

Don't forget Florist Outing at Coney Island on Thursday, July 17. Get tickets from Messrs. A. C. Heckman, Jr., R. C. Witterstaetter and Chas. H. Hoffmeister of the Committee, and at the various wholesale houses.

Mrs. P. J. Olinger and family intend to go to Evanston, Ill., this week on a visit to her folks. Mr. and Mrs. Weiland. The visit will last until almost school time in the fall of the year.

Geo. E. Fern had the decorations for the opening of the new quarters of the Chamber of Commerce in the Union Central Life Insurance Co. skyscraper.

Geo. Klotter has been cutting some of the finest Shasta daisies that have been seen in this market in a long time. The stems are easily three feet long.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCullough made a trip to Cleveland last week, in their auto, to attend the convention there.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving many good Mrs. Ward and Sunburst from South Floral Co., New Castle, Ind.

R. Strong and B. Delaney of the J. Chas. McCullough seed concern, returned from Cleveland on Saturday.

The W. R. Miller estate is sending some very fine gladioli into the market.

B. P. Critchell has been very sick for more than the past month.

Visitors: Mr. and Mrs. Martin Weber, Brookville, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Humphries, Zanesville, O.; C. H. Remagen, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga.; J. Bubach of Schloss Bros., New York; Ellis Woodworth, of the Sefton Co., Chicago; Mr. Winters, Charleston, W. Va., and Mr. Thomas, Augusta, Ky.

STOCK CLEANED UP.

The business of the past week was very fair for the summer season. While, excepting the special grades of fresh and white roses, there were no high prices, stock cleaned up fairly well. Good white roses were on some days so scarce that representatives of retail stores made pilgrimages to greenhouses 10 or 12 miles from the city trying to secure them, which is sufficient proof that they have been scarce. Although the carnation season is fast waning, a fair supply of very good stock was on the market. W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, brought in 5,000 blooms on the morning of June 23, and was sold out early in the day. On the same morning, the Budlong Rose Co., Auburn, R. I., put 6,000 roses in variety on the market and they were cleaned up by the morning of the 24th.

NOTES.

Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., has been very busy with wedding decorations, bouquets for graduating exercises and landscape work. Recently he had two very notable out of town wedding decorations. For one of these, at Westfield, Mass., it was necessary to hire a large freight car to transport the necessary palms. The counter trade and funeral work of the store has also been heavy.

Martin Wax, of Wax Brothers, who was married on June 17 to Mrs. Florence Dowling, has returned from his first honeymoon, and is receiving congratulations from his many friends. On August 5 the happy couple will sail for Europe. They will visit Berlin and Paris and be entertained by relatives of Mr. Wax, who are noted people in musical circles.

The meeting and exhibition of the Sweet Pea Society is being looked forward to with (July 12-13) much interest, and it is expected to be a banner exhibition. Doubtless there will be a large delegation of out of town visitors.

Penn, the Bromfield street florist, reports a large number of wedding orders.

At Newman's we found business active and everybody cheerful.

A. F. F.

Cleveland.

PLENTY OF STOCK.

There has been a slight shortage of white roses, especially in the better grades, lately, otherwise there is still plenty of stock to meet the demand. The last week in June was a busy one with the retailers, many good sized wedding decorations and the funeral of a multimillionaire, Mr. S. L. Severance, using large quantities of better grades of flowers. Lily of the valley and orchids were in good demand, and the last of the storage peonies are out. Carnations are getting smaller every day.

NOTES.

A new retail store will soon be opened by A. Schoen, formerly of Gasser Retail Store, and Mr. Frank Friedly, grower at Gasser's greenhouses at Rocky River. They have bought out the Jos. Eadie Co., both store and greenhouses, and will continue business under the old firm name for some time. As both are known to be men of experience in their respective lines, there is no doubt of their success, and a larger and better Jos. Eadie Co. will be the result.

The Jones-Russell Co. report a very busy week, with a wedding decoration every day, and double headers on some of them.

Mrs. Lincoln Brown reports she had five weddings on June 18, and one booked for every day the last week in June.

Knoble Bros.' new auto delivery wagon is the talk of the town, being the most up-to-date in style and finish.

Bramley & Son florists' baseball team was one of the features in the C. A. B. A. parade here on Saturday.

Edwin A. Reeves and wife left for a three weeks' vacation in the Adirondack Mountains in their automobile.

Geo. Berghouse was out for the first time in two weeks on Tuesday, June 24. He was laid up with lumbago.

MARKET AT A STANDSTILL.

The market is at a standstill with very little good stock to be had, but business is the same, so there is no shortage and no complaints from the stores.

NOTES.

Geo. Ernest, with Jacob Minder, is laid up with blood poison from scratching his hand on a rusty nail, but the latest report is that all danger is past, and we hope to see him around again soon.

O. A. Oehlmer is making a special sale every Saturday of dollar baskets and says he is well pleased with them and will continue to have them all through the summer.

The Bowling Club has started holding their weekly meetings, but some of the scores made would not look good in print so will omit them this week.

After July 1 all stores in this city will be closed at one o'clock on Sundays during July, August and September.

J. H. Small & Sons were very busy on June 26 with a very nice order for funeral work.

Pittsburg.

BUSINESS VERY POOR.

Pittsburgh has had in the past week some of the hottest weather handed us this year. It is not uncommon these days to see the mercury up between 90 and 95 degrees F., consequently most of our garden flowers are pretty well dried up and a few rains would greatly improve growing conditions. Hollyhocks, the old favorites, are now in the height of their glory and prove very popular among the garden beds. Coreopsis is not quite so good as it has been and many outside sweet peas are coming in, but are not much good, being small and very much dried up by the continuous droughts. Delphinium is about over with and took very well while it was here. Candidum lilies are on sale at the local markets, but do not sell very well. In the greenhouse line of stock, carnations are getting very poor and a few good roses are seen occasionally, but most of them are short-stemmed and of poor quality. Lilies are very plentiful and are being quoted as low as four cents. American Beauties are not overplentiful, but the condition of them on arriving in Pittsburgh is very bad, being wide open. Water lilies from Lake Erie have been coming in, but do not cut much of a figure with the buyers. Some very fine gladioli are being shipped from the Virginia fields. The new teas, Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, Lady Alice and L. A. Stanley, have all been introduced and were commented upon favorably. The new crops of fancy and dagger ferns are arriving and now are quoted at $1.50 per thousand. Among the retailers, trade has been very poor, and the usual amount of funeral work and the late June weddings are about all that keep business going, as transient trade does not amount to much at this season of the year. The street fakirs are all smiling, being found on nearly every corner of the city crying their roses out at 10 cents a dozen. The plantsmen are all cleaning up their houses now, after passing through a very good season.

NOTES.

It is well worth the time to drop in at the A. W. Smith Co. and see the fine roses which they are cutting, among them being some fine Killarney Queen. Earl Tipton of the above firm has left for his vacation, and thereafter will move direct to the farm at Canfield where he will spend the summer.

The wholesale houses are now closing at 5 p. m. and will do so until September 15. Many of the clerks are now observing Saturday as a half-holiday, so we hope to encourage the retailers to do their buying early in the day.

John Sisley and John Martin, of The McCallum Co., are working hard to launch their 30 foot motor boat, the "Sismar," for the Fourth.

Mr. James Hutchison, aged 84, a retired landscape gardener of the North side, died at the home of his son June 26.

R. J. Daschbach had a busy time last week, having one of the largest weddings in some time.

TRADE 'QUIET.

Trade is quiet and stock is very plentiful. Last week was commencement week but there was a considerable falling off in trade compared with former years, and it is plainly noticeable that the use of flowers at these exercises is becoming less and less each year. Carnations are showing the effects of the weather, and roses also are arriving in poor condition. Asters have made their appearance.

NOTES.

The Florists' Club picnic is now the principal topic of conversation on the market, and while no arrangements have yet been made it promises to be a big affair.

C. C. Pollworth and a party of friends made an auto trip to Chicago on June 28, returning the following day.

Nic. Zweifel is cutting some fine Gloriosa carnations, which are now commanding good prices.

Harry Main, with Gust Rusch & Co., is spending his vacation at Little Cedar Lake.

Currie Bros. Co. is doing some extensive advertising in the street cars.

WEDDINGS AND COMMENCEMENTS.

The past two weeks have been very busy for the florist in the retail trade. Weddings of all sizes have kept all working, and in addition all the schools were having their commencements, which called forth a bunch from $1.00 to $10.00. The usual amount of funeral work helped to use up the short-stemmed stock. But from now until about Sept. 1st it will be vacations, when all from the proprietor down to the errand boy will enjoy a much needed rest. Stock has been equal to all demands and of good quality. Store improvements are contemplated by several, such as painting and redecorating.

There will be a meeting of the Florists' Club on Tuesday evening, when important business will be transacted and a committee appointed for the picnic.

J. B. Wiese now has one of the prettiest Stewart delivery cars to be seen on our streets, demonstrating beyond question that there is money in a stand on the market.

Wholesale Florist. ST. LOUIS, MO.

Philadelphia.
BUSINESS DULL.

The summer dullness is fast setting in, there have been a few weddings the past week, which helped a little, but not enough to keep the machinery going at half speed. There are quantities of flowers of average and poor quality, far more than the demand, these are hard to move, and the returns must be very small. Good eastern rose stock, particularly Beauties, is in demand and these clean up at very fair prices. Valley moves very well. Easter lilies are much used for funeral work and bring fair prices. Carnations are going back rapidly. There are a few fair white but the colored stock is much below par. Sweet peas have been excellent, but are getting shorter stemmed and will soon be out of it. Gladioli are now a standard flower and will be a factor for the next two months. There is a fair demand for cattleyas. These and Valley have the preference for choice funeral work.

Rambler roses from outside generally in demand at this time, were not so good this season, many of them being badly mildewed by the very cool nights of early June, and some were said to have even suffered from frost.

NOTES.

The sweet pea exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was interesting. W. Atlee Burpee staged a fine lot, among them a number of new ones, that received certificates of merit. The staging of this exhibit was fine. There were quite a number of smaller entries, and several tables of cut flowers from the herbaceous gardens which made a great showing.

The bedding plant men all say their business was very good, nearly all sold out clean. The Robt. Craig Co., who had an immense stock, have scarcely anything left, say it was the best season they have ever had.

The Leo Niessen Co. say they were well satisfied with the business of June as they moved a large quantity of stock. Prices, however, averaged a trifle lower than for the same period of last season.

Ed. Reid's force having gotten the stiffness out of their limbs from their work at the picnic, are hustling to keep the decks clear. Easter Beauties and Kaiserin are features here.

Easter lilies and sweet peas are leaders at Berger Bros.' Central Market. Asters are expected soon.

BUSINESS IS BETTER.

During the first few days of the past week business was somewhat improved but dropped back again before June 28th. As a whole, the business of the week was better than that of the preceding one. While most of the stock sold at the usual low prices which have prevailed throughout June, there was something nearer a clean up than in any previous week of that month. During the fall and winter months, Saturday is usually the best day of the week, but that is not so during the summer. Many places of business close on Saturday afternoons and there is a general exodus of all who can get away to the fields, the woods and the beaches.

Beginning July 6 practically all the wholesale stores will be closed on Sunday throughout the summer. Notices to that effect are very prominent in the windows of the wholesale stores of 28th street. Such a movement has been consistently advocated in these columns and we here congratulate the men who have brought it about, and feel certain but few, if any of them, will ever wish to return to the "open" Sunday.

June 30.—The market is very quiet, and stock is moving slowly.

NOTES.

Mrs. Newell, wife of John Newell, a well-known retail florist of 322 West 125th street, was run down by an automobile on the street near her home and mortally hurt, on the evening of June 26. She died soon after. Her funeral took place on June 28. Mrs. Newell was well known and highly esteemed by many patrons of the store and there is much sympathy for the bereaved husband and son, a lad about 14 years old. Mrs. Newell was about 43 years old.

Hon. W. J. Gaynor, mayor of this city, knows almost everything; he himself will tell you that, but there are a few things that seem to have escaped his notice. Our parks, particularly on a Monday morning, are a disgrace to the city and a disgrace to any civilized community, and this condition has been largely brought about by the action of the mayor.

The sailing of the steamship Impiator, June 25, was the occasion for the delivery of more flowers than was ever before seen on board an outgoing steamship. The leading local florists had many large orders and in addition many flowers were delivered from Philadelphia, Boston and other cities. Charles Thorly filled many of the city orders.

Herman Mamitch, well known as a grower of fine species of sweet peas, has leased the Lydecher range at Englewood, N. J., where his glass area will be about 35,000 square feet. He has previously been growing at Ridgefield, N. J. His stock is sold in the cut flower exchange.

There are several thousand policemen in this city who are possessed of common sense. They have tried to rid the parks of abusive hoodlums who make themselves a nuisance to all decent citizens, but the mayor upholds the hoodlums, and what can the policemen do?

While there were several warm days the latter part of last week, June 29 and 30 were not oppressively hot. No such torrid condition had existed as have been reported from other parts of the country.

There is rejoicing in the home of Gerard Dreyer, the Elmhurst plantsman, over the arrival of baby No. 1, a boy.

Wm. P. Ford has just been released from two weeks' service on the jury.

The Seventh Annual Outing of the Association was held on June 24 and 25, 1913, at the Hotel Kittatinny, Delaware Water Gap, Pa.

A party of fifty-five boarded the special cars on the Lackawanna Limited, leaving Hoboken at 10:15 a. m., June 24, and arriving at the Gap at 12:05. After a hearty lunch, the afternoon was spent in roaming through the woods and over the various promontories, from which beautiful views were had, and visiting the various lakes and waterfalls.

In the evening the prize bowling took place on four very good alleys. The ladies bowled four frames and the four highest scores were as follows: Mrs. Baumann, 58, prize $5; Mrs. Schoelzel, 56, prize $3; Mrs. Schultheis, 48; Mrs. P. Wagner, 42. The men scored as follows: Anton Schultheis, Jr., 150, prize $5; Anton Schultheis, Sr., 44, prize $3; William Schultheis, 127; William H. Siebrecht, Jr., 124.

A dance took place immediately after the bowling and continued until after 1 a. m.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Cleveland, O., June 25-26.

The Closing Sessions.

The thirty-first annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association at Cleveland, O., June 24-26, as indicated in our last issue, was a most successful one. The meetings were well attended, there being 125 members present when the convention was called to order at 10:30 the first day. Following the welcoming address by Mayor Baker, and President Page's address, were a number of interesting papers by well known seedsmen. Also there was a paper by James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, which was read by a member in Mr. Hill's absence. The afternoon session was executive. Reports by the auditing committee and by Attorney Smith were heard.

After the reports of the secretary and treasurer came the election of members, the reports of the committees, reading of communications, etc. Among the papers discussed were: "Are Standards of Purity Practicable in State Seed Laws?" by Geo. S. Green (Illinois Seed Co.), Chicago; "Seeds Grown under Irrigation," discussion led by J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Ia.; "What the American Seed Trade Has Accomplished," by Albert McCullough (J. M. McCullough Sons Co.), Cincinnati, O.; "Cost and Overhead Expenses," by L. B. McCausland (Ross Bros.), Wichita, Kans.; "Intensive Farming," by J. J. Hill. On Wednesday evening Miss Louise Klein Miller, curator of the Cleveland school gardens, gave an illustrated lecture.

Officers Elected.

CHARLES C. MASSIE, PRESIDENT.

The new president of the American Seed Trade Association, Charles C. Massie, was born in 1872 in Aberdeenshire, Scotland. His father was a farmer and miller and educated his children in the public schools. Later on Charles C. Massie attended Gordon's College at Aldreen, near his home. When 16 years old he entered the seed store at Aldreen where he remained for several years. When 19 years of age he came to America, locating at Minneapolis. Four years later he became secretary of Northrup, King & Co. On Mr. Northrup's retirement last year he became general manager. Mr. Massie was married in 1896 and has one daughter 14 years and a son 12 years of age.

J. M. LUPTON, FIRST VICE-PRESIDENT.

J. M. Lupton, the newly elected first vice-president, was born at Mattituck, Long Island, N. Y., where he still lives. He received his education in public schools and at Franklinville Academy. His occupation was that of a farmer until 1882. He organized a seed growing business at that time, making a specialty of producing cabbage seed and giving attention to the improvement of the varieties by selection. In 1910 his son Robert was admitted to partnership. The firm is now J. M. Lupton & Son.

W. F. Thurkelson, the second vice-president, is well known through his connection with the Storrs & Harrison Co., Painesville, O.

C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, was re-elected secretary.

S. F. Willard was elected assistant secretary.

Social Features

More than two hundred members, representatives and guests, including the wives and daughters of many, were present at the convention and all seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly. The weather was rather warm a part of the time, but the heat was never oppressive. Cleveland is located on the lake, where cool, refreshing breezes constantly blow, and this made the members' visit very pleasant. It was refreshing, too, to see the hearty good fellowship and good feeling that existed among the various members and representatives present. The committee in charge planned many good things for those in attendance, and gave a most excellent opportunity to visit the various points of interest in the "Sixth City" and to become acquainted with one another.

On Tuesday evening a reception was held in honor of President Page in the beautiful ball room of the Statler hotel, where refreshments were generously served, and where those present later engaged in dancing until near the midnight hour. This reception was well attended and all cares were forgotten for the evening.

An automobile ride was arranged for Wednesday afternoon. For a while it looked as though this could not be carried out, as rain fell in torrents for about half an hour just as the party was ready to start, but the clouds cleared away, and left conditions most delightful for the trip, which was begun about 3:30. More than two hundred, carried in some fifty automobiles, made the trip. The party proceeded from the Statler hotel to the residence of Secretary Kendel, where Mrs. Kendel entertained the ladies who visited the convention; there the ladies joined the party and all proceeded by way of Euclid avenue to Forest Hill, the Cleveland home of John D. Rockefeller, some seven miles distant from the heart of the city.

Established 1810.

M. W. WILLIAMS, Secretary

Forest Hill is one big private park of some seven hundred acres in all, made up of cultivated fields where crops of various kinds, including vegetables for table use, berries, etc., are raised; large expanses of woodland with no underbrush, where the sod is strong and well clipped with the lawn mower; hills and slopes where the virgin forest seems to have been untouched by the hand of man, with dense underbrush and such a riot of wild flowers and native herbs as to make it a veritable botanist's paradise. Small but neat and comfortable houses are here and there, used by the attendants and laborers; and winding about, hither and thither, through this maze of hundreds of acres are miles and miles of carefully graveled roads and foot paths, passing by beautiful flower gardens, vegetable gardens, hay fields and lawns, and then dashing for long distances into the densest forests, winding up and down babbling brooks and crossing them here and there by stone bridges.

The party stopped near the residence of Mr. Rockefeller and had their group picture taken with a few mighty oak trees as a background. Then they strolled down across the grass to the home of the richest man in the world. They walked all around it. They got within a few feet of it. They tramped the grass with reckless abandon. They looked the house over from top to bottom. It is a four-story frame structure with inclosed porches all about, painted white without trimming, with the roof painted red. Here and there a small flower bed adorns the lawn surrounding it, but for the most part it is a grass lawn. Everything is well kept. There is here and there an electric light on the grounds about the house, which serves to make some light at night when the moon is not shining.

When the visitors walked down to the house a conveyance stood at the front door ready to go. Not a move was made, but when the party had passed the house and had gotten to the other side, the rig was taken to a side door. Mr. Rockefeller quietly came out, got in and drove away. You will no doubt suppose that this was a magnificent touring car. Not at all. It was a neat two-seated trap with a canopy top, to which was hitched an ordinary bay horse. The high cost of living must be met by Mr. Rockefeller as well as by others, and so he uses a motor power that can be fed and maintained by the products growing on his farm. Mr. Rockefeller's home is situated in the midst of Forest Hill and on a point sufficiently high for a splendid view of

The party next proceeded on a further tour of the grounds, and it will give but a faint idea of the area of the estate and of the miles of roads on it to say that in a trip of some seven or eight miles we never traveled the same road twice except to cross it at an intersection, and the entire party agreed that had they been abandoned in the heart of the grounds they might have followed the roads until morning without finding their way out. Here the Oil King lives in simple style, amidst all the beauties of nature and observing all the laws of health. When we entered the grounds an attendant bowed us in and when we left he smiled and bowed us out as though it had been as pleasing to him as to us. Truly it was a delightful visit and thoroughly enjoyed. From Forest Hill the party drove to Rockefeller Park and through it to Gordon park on the lake and thence by one of the main thoroughfares back to the starting point.

Wednesday evening the convention held the annual banquet in the ball room of the Statler, when a good time was again enjoyed. Several good after dinner speeches were made by members and guests. AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION ON THE JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER GROUNDS, CLEVELAND, O., JUNE 26.

At Storrs & Harrison's.

On Thursday morning at 11:55 o'clock the entire party took a trolley ride out to Storrs & Harrison Nurseries at Painesville, Ohio, which was one of the most enjoyable features of the convention.

The guests arrived about 1:30 p. m. and were met at the station with automobiles and were escorted to the Nurseries where there was a big delicious lunch waiting for them.

After lunch the entire party, about 150 in number, left the nurseries and again entered the autos and took a trip around the grounds, containing over 1,500 acres. The hour of five came along much too soon and all were sorry that that was the appointed hour, for they were enjoying themselves to such an extent that they would like to have remained longer.

The party arrived in the city shortly after six o'clock and then departed for their respective homes in the various parts of the United States and Canada.

School Garden Work.

EDUCATIVE AND CIVIC INFLUENCE.

Synopsis of Paper Read by Miss Luise Klein Miller at the Annual Convention of the American Seed Trade Association, Cleveland, O., June 24-26, 1913.

It is said that the test of a great general is to be able to change his tactics on the field of battle, and I shall change some of the things I expected to say this evening in order that I may answer some questions that have been put to me since I came in the room.

We have done some good things, I think, in Cleveland in the School Garden Work, and I hope what I have to say tonight will be instrumental in having this work carried on elsewhere.

The whole movement was started a number of years ago because a few flowers were stolen from the window boxes at the Goodrich house. The residents there planted some things in the flower boxes and they were stolen. Mr. Haynes was interested in the Goodrich house at that time and he thought that if people loved flowers well enough to steal them, then they should have flowers of their own. He organized the Home Garden Club. Each member was to pay 10 cents per year. In return for this 10 cents each member was to receive ten penny packages of seeds. They were put up in penny packages by members of the club and it was found by doing this way the club could make money and Mr. Haynes thought what was good for one neighborhood was good for another. He secured the privilege of selling these penny packages in the public schools. In the first year 40 packages were sold. Now nearly a million.

This has been tried in other cities and I have heard that the seedsmen stamped it out because they interfered with their business. Mr. C. E. Kendel, who has always been interested in the home garden work, realizes that was a good thing and instead of trying to stamp it out he has encouraged it every way possible, because the home gardening association only puts up a limited amount of seed—the ordinary kind that children can take care of. It isn't a money making scheme in any way. All the money that is made from the sale of these seeds is put directly back in the educational work. One-half was given back to the Board of Education because they allowed the packages to be sold through the schools. The school gardens work was supported largely from this money. They spent their part in carrying on vacant lot work and training garden work and other splendid work.

In 1904 I came here to give a course of lectures and after that course was given I asked them why they did not start school garden work and they asked me to introduce it. The first year we had four small ones. The Board of Education provided for the soil, the gardening association bought the tools and employed the supervisor. That was carried on the first year. In the following year the Board of Education asked of the expense and established a department of school gardens, and at the head of this department was a Curator, and I was appointed Curator and have held that position ever since. The duties of this curator of school gardens is to supervise the school gardens. The first year we had four. Now we have twenty-four. I also have charge of the up-keep of all the school yards in the city. We have 109.

In the school garden work I work in conjunction and confer with the medical director because this work is really in line with the physical development of the children. It has taken a long time to carry this up to the state where we have it now. I can make it clearer to you by the use of the slides which I will show you now.

I have given over 400 lectures in the public schools in Cleveland and over 100 lectures outside. The first lecture I ever gave in Cleveland was down at the Bournelle School, and I was to show slides I never saw before. There were 600 men and children in the audience and just as soon as the pictures went on the screen there was a conversation all over the room. I became puzzled and discouraged, but I was told not to let that disturb me, because they were of different nationalities and the children were interpreting to the parents what I said.

(The rest of the lecture was given in the dark, and no stenographic report was made, but Miss Miller's conclusion was that the school garden work keeps the children out of mischief, and good gardens and flowers makes them happy and makes them good boys and girls, evidently saving lots of the costs of the Juvenile court.)

A rising vote of thanks was given Miss Miller for her lecture.

A RECENT bulletin of the Department of Agriculture treats of "Sites, Soils, and Varieties for Citrus Groves in the Gulf States." While rich, alluvial soils produce trees of rank growth the finest and highest priced fruits grow on nearly sterile soils. The land must be located so as to be naturally protected from frost.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, June 23.—Mushrooms, 35 cents to 65 cents per pound; lettuce, 15 cents to 25 cents, small cases; radishes, 75 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; cucumbers, 45 cents to 50 cents per dozen; asparagus, 75 cents to $2.00 for 24 bunches.

New York, June 21.—Cucumbers, 20 cents to 50 cents per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 5 cents to 10 cents per pound; radishes, 50 cents to 75 cents per 100 bunches; rhubarb, 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 bunches; lettuce, 50 cents to 90 cents per basket, crate or barrel.

Greenhouse Soils.

It is none too soon to make arrangements for the soil used the coming winter. While the florist depends on a new supply each season, the vegetable grower generally continues using the same earth for years. This practice, while convenient, carries with it grave dangers, as many a grower can testify. For there is no safer way of spreading and breeding diseases and bacteria than by continually planting the same thing either indoors or out. If we had a proper rotation under glass it would be much better. We have never sterilized our beds, having always succeeded without, but we have been careful in many ways, such as cleaning up, introducing some new soil each year, starting all plants in new beds, always; using lime freely and by natural culture.

At this time we wish to call attention to the desirability of using some new soil each season, discarding part of the old, if necessary. To this end we select a piece of land suitable, add to it such permanent fertilizers as potash and phosphate, also lime, if needed, and whatever sand or manure is desirable, and this we incorporate with horse tools, using the plow and disc freely, for weeks, until it is in the best of condition. When the time comes, such a supply is invaluable.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., President-elect; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-ninth annual convention to be held at Cleveland, O., 1914.

WILLOWS, CAL.—The plant of the Glenn County Nursery in Carlenberg tract, was damaged by fire June 11, to the extent of $6,000, insurance $1,100.

HOUSTON, TEXAS.—A floral and nursery company under the name of The Henk Dirken Floral and Nursery Company, Importers, recently incorporated by E. P. Daviss, Henk Dirken, E. P. Daviss, Jr., J. L. Russell and A. E. Keisling, and capitalized at $20,000, are open for business.

ROSE HILL, N. Y.—The F. W. Brow Nursery Co. has incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The firm has 140 acres of land. Mr. Brow has had charge of the W. & T. Smith Co. of Geneva for nearly 6 years. The directors are: F. W. Brow, Frank B. Mills of the Mills Seed Co. and C. Albert Weeks.

Echoes of Nurserymen's Convention.

The visit of the members of the three nurserymen's associations, the American, Pacific Coast and Oregon-Washington, to the Oregon Nursery Co., Orenco, Ore., June 20, was a most enjoyable one, every preparation having been made for their reception and entertainment. One corner of the large packing shed had been converted into a diminutive Oregon forest. Large maple boughs formed a bower under which the guests were seated at the banquet table. Fir trees and large ferns formed the sides, while white peonies were used to brighten the green background. Baskets trimmed with strawberries and cherries were arranged on the tables. Red apples, with the "Orenco" tree label, did duty as place "cards." After the banquet and the toasts the guests, numbering 350, were shown through the company's 1,200 acres of nurseries.

Because some of Portland's young hopefuls took the "help yourself" sign at the side of each crate a little too literally, the eastern visitors feared for a time that they would miss the treat of luscious cherries which had long been promised them. The cherries, said to contain two bites each, were left in the convention hall and the aforementioned signs were placed where all could see. The trouble was the signs were too indefinite. They failed to state who should have the privilege of helping themselves. Taking it for granted that there were no restrictions as to who should benefit, a number of boys "helped themselves" with such abandon that there were soon no cherries left. This took place while the convention was deliberating over affairs of state. The loss was discovered in time, however, and another supply took the place of those that had vanished. The "help yourself" signs remained as before, but this time a number of attendants saw that only the proper persons took advantage of the invitation.

Improvement Fund Committee.

We, the members of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, realizing that the multiplicity of state laws governing the control of injurious insects and diseases on all classes of horticultural products are often a menace, and realizing that these laws govern particular areas of the country which have a diverse horticultural production, and differing conditions of soils and climates; and inasmuch as it is a well settled fact that depleted soils invite enemies, such as insects and diseases, fungus and bacterial elements (which is in accordance with natural laws provided for the elimination of all unfit plant life); and realizing that the growing of horticultural products and their free exchange between one section of the country and another is often retarded, hampered, and in many cases made unprofitable and prohibitive under much of the legislation now in force in the several states; and realizing that it is of the utmost importance that all horticultural products should be as free as possible from injurious insects and diseases, which have at times resulted in diverse, drastic and in some cases in unjust conditions or the free and equitable exchange of horticultural products of all kinds; therefore,

It is recommended by this joint committee, representing in its personnel the American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, that both organizations proceed to provide moneys (to be known as the "Horticultural Improvement Fund"), by a voluntary contribution not to exceed $25 from the firms in both associations, or others interested in horticulture; said contributions to be made within 90 days from the date of this notice, and payments to be made to the treasurer of the American Association, for the express purpose of providing ways and means to secure uniform horticultural laws, as between one state and another, which in our judgment is only feasible by the appointment of a committee whose duties shall be to secure copies of all horticultural laws now in force in all the states and territories of the United States; and to make a digest of the same, to the end that there shall be evolved and created out of this investigation and study a law that shall develop, foster, conserve and protect all the interests of horticulture in all its several divisions, and which shall have the support and indorsement of horticultural offices and all the horticultural industries of the several states. And we further recommend that this convention adopt this report and proceed to carry out its provisions by the appointment of a committee of three, which shall consist of one member from the Atlantic coast, one from the Mississippi valley region, and one from the Pacific coast, with full power to utilize this fund as in their judgment shall be deemed necessary. And it is further recommended that this report be placed upon the records of both organizations.

All of which is respectively submitted.

COMMITTEE.

Florists' Fertilizers

Conducted by F. W. Muncie,
Dept. of Floriculture, University of Illinois.

Inquiries regarding fertilizers and manures are solicited for this department. Address all inquiries to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Care of Manure.

Manure varies so much in its strength (that is, its content of fertilizing elements), that particular care should be paid to its protection between the time it is made and used. A larger portion of the fertilizing elements, except phosphorus, is contained in the liquid part, as is shown by the following analysis of cow manure:

	Nitro-	Phos-	Potas-
	gen	phorus	sium
Solid . . . .	.86	.44	.12
Liquid . . . .	.915	1.05	trace
			1.36

Not only does the liquid portion contain more of these elements, but the nitrogen in the solid portion has passed through the alimentary tract unacted upon by the digestive juices, and is therefore not readily broken down and made available for the use of the plants. The importance of preserving as much of the liquid portion as possible is apparent and where it is possible to oversee the bedding of the animals furnishing the manure, it is a paying proposition to see to it that enough bedding is used to absorb the liquid portion of the manure, and that the floor be made hard enough to prevent much loss by leaching.

How serious the loss by leaching is may be seen from an experiment conducted by the Maryland experiment station. A pile of 80 tons of manure allowed to lie uncovered and exposed to the weather for a year contained only 27 tons at the end of that time. How to prevent the loss by leaching and to the air in form of ammonia is a problem of importance. With the very best care, it does not seem possible to prevent some 15 to 20 per cent of the manure being lost. This loss represents the most active compounds containing nitrogen and the potassium salts and in addition the easily decomposed portions of the straw. In old manure an analysis will often show as high a content of nitrogen and potassium and usually a higher phosphorus content, but because the materials left are those most resistant to decay, the manure has lost its greatest value as a plant food.

Four things should be kept in mind in the care of manure. First, it should be kept compact. Manure which has been tramped under the feet of the animals till ready for use loses least strength, but since this is not practicable, in most cases, it is a good plan to stack it in a compact rick. Secondly, plenty of moisture should be kept in the manure. This to prevent the access of air and to absorb ammonia that in a dry pile would be lost to the air. "Fire fanged" manure is of poor value as a fertilizer. The presence of plenty of water also has a tendency to keep down the temperature in piles of "hot" manures (horse and sheep manures) and prevent them "firing." On the other hand, if too much water is added, beyond that the manure can absorb, leaching occurs and the soluble constituents are lost in this manner. For this reason, where it is practicable to do so, manure should be stacked under cover. If this cannot be done, then rick it with slightly sloping smooth sides so that most of the rain will be shed.

An interesting fact is that manure stacked on an old manure bed, say a foot thick, will lose less than that stacked on new ground. The scientific explanation for this is that carbon dioxide coming off from the old pile as bacteria act on it, unites with water and ammonia and prevents its loss into the air. Regardless of this, however, it is a point that should be considered in locating a rick. There are a number of chemicals which may be added to manure as it is stacked, to prevent loss. Gypsum has been recommended for this purpose, as has kainit. Acid phosphate contains about 50 per cent gypsum and is acidic as well, and is especially to be recommended for this purpose. It not only aids in retaining the ammonia but supplies phosphorus, the element in which manures and soils as a rule are most deficient.

New Bedford, Mass.

The annual rose show of the New Bedford, Mass., Horticultural Society was held June 24 in the lower corridors of the Public Library. The exhibition was larger than ever this year, and the profusion of flowers reach from the long table stretching across the east end of the building from entrance to entrance which the exhibition of the H. H. Rogers estate completely fills, down the center aisle with a great display from the rose gardens of Miss Sarah B. Fay of Woods Hole and Harry E. Converse of Marion, to the west end of the hall where John A. Ruggles, Jr., and Miss Alice Stackpole of Mattapoisett have their exhibitions and fill the air with their fragrance. And then there are many other smaller exhibitors.

The prize of thirty dollars' worth of the finest rose bushes from the Walsh gardens at Woods Hole given by Mrs. Fay has done a great deal to bring out the amateur exhibitions.

An offer of fifteen roses has been made for every new member joining the horticultural society.

The object of the society is to stimulate the interest of the people of New Bedford toward the beautifying of their homes by the culture of shrubbery and plants, etc. To this end they give both the rose show and the peony show free each year.

The crush was so large that a squad of ten of the Boy Scouts had to be procured to keep the corridors clear.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—The present greenhouses in East Lake park have long outgrown their usefulness. These will be demolished and replaced by modern structures at an early date.

TOLEDO, O.—Mrs. J. B. Freeman, well known successor to Geo. A. Heintz, and Walter H. Crause of Cincinnati, formerly of this place, were married June 30, at the Unitarian church, this city. The church was beautifully decorated with shasta daisies, American beauty roses, plumosa and asparagus. Mr. Crause will join the bride in business but the firm name will remain as heretofore.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

How the Greenhouse Won.

A True Fact Story.

DR. TUTTLE owned several hundred acres in New Jersey. He liked the country best. His wife had a leaning toward the city for the winter months. She cheerfully agreed to live at their country place the year round, provided a thoroughly up-to-date greenhouse was added to the "hand-made" one they already had.

Here are the two greenhouses. Everybody is happy. No place these days is complete without its greenhouse; that's a sure thing. Your place ought to be complete. Send for catalog.

New Glass Cutter.

The Red Devil Tools Factory, manufacturers of Red Devil Glaziers' Tools, have brought out a new and improved self-oiling glass cutter with turret head, as per figure herewith. The oiling device shown in this little tool is behind the six wheels. Unlike other glass cutters of this type a very hard tempered pinion is used in the making of this new cutter which can be adjusted to use either one, two, three, four, five, six thereby getting the full benefit of the service of all wheels. The frame is so designed that it protects the wheels and prevents them from coming in contact with moisture. The manufacturers have adopted the scientific handle, which is universally used in their glass cutters.

Kroeschell's New Boiler.

The Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, has placed on the market something new and efficient in the form of a high pressure combination water tube and fire tube boiler for greenhouses. The construction of this boiler combines the best features of the horizontal tubular boiler and great efficiency of the water tube boiler, and with this combination the manufacturers have secured the highest possible boiler efficiency known today in boiler construction. It is a return tubular boiler to which are attached two headers or water legs with three or four rows of water tubes according to size. Hollow stay bolts and individual hand hole plates make inspection easy and keeps clean automatically. The construction of the front connection causing the water to flow with high velocity over and under a flume near the bottom of the shell, and extending two-thirds the length of the boiler, prevents deposit of scale forming material on the shell and tubes, causing it to be carried back into a sediment chamber, where it can be blown out through a blowoff cock, this giving positive circulation and efficiency equal to any water tube boiler and high overload capacity. The furnace baffling is so arranged that the hot gases of combustion pass around the water tubes and under the shell of the boiler, and returning through the fire tubes, pass out of the smoke box at rear, removing the lower half of the shell

Cast Iron Boilers Crack

I want to thank you for your promptness in shipping the boiler I ordered of you on January 13th. I had a breakdown; one of a battery of two cast iron boilers cracked so it was impossible to use same, so I got you on the telephone at 8:30 a. m., January 13th, and ordered one of your hot water boilers. Same was put in my boiler room in the afternoon of January 15th, after which we built foundation and connected up. Since that time the boiler has taken care of same glass as the two cast iron boilers had done, easier and better in every way.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

June 19 was perennial flower day with the club, and the exhibition table was filled with flowers.

H. D. Rohrer exhibited in their usual high quality the following stock: hydrangeas, delphiniums, campanulas and four of the Rambler roses.

A. M. Herr—a vase of assorted Japanese iris.

B. F. Barr—delphinium, gaillardia and tamarix.

Fred. Spinner—a vase of mixed perennials.

J. P. Siebold—a vase of silver pink snapdragon of exceptional quality for outdoor-grown stock.

Rudolph Nagle exhibited pot plants of Scarlet Bedder, S. A. Nutt, Poitevine and Ricard geraniums.

The H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, exhibited a fine lot of their new geranium Helen Michell, which was well received, and their representative was given the floor to expound its merits, which he did to perfection.

The Voltax Paint Co., of Chestnut Hill, through their representative, Thomas Langan, gave a very interesting and instructive talk on paints and painting. These talks are good things for the club, as there is always something to be learned from them, and knowledge never comes amiss.

Our treasurer, Harry Rohrer, then gave a talk on "Hardy Flowers for Memorial Day," giving peonies first place, naming the best for this date as follows: Officinalis, Rubra Superba, Festiva Maxima, Edula Superba, Rubra Triumphant and Agida. In German iris, which are good Memorial day flowers, he named Pallida Dalmatica, Heavenly Blue and Silver King. Poppies and columbines were named, and if cut and handled at the proper time they make excellent stock. Pyrethrums and delphiniums, dianthus barbatus and gaillardia all make fine stock for Memorial day if properly grown. Campanula potted in the fall into 6-inch pots, kept in a cold frame and brought along slowly, can be had in full crop for Memorial day and make a very profitable flower. This was followed by a general discussion on hardy perennials.

Under the head of "good of the club" the appeal for funds for the Smith Memorial was brought up and a unanimous vote in favor of a small assessment from each member for this purpose was carried.

The club picnic will be held at Hershey, Pa., Tuesday, July 15, leaving Lancaster about 7:30 a. m., getting back about 9 p. m. Any florist who

Delphiniums.

This perennial has become quite a popular cut flower for summer use and is very decorative and showy. Those that have a stock can increase the plants of the better varieties by propagation at this time. When the plants bloom those that produce the best spikes and are of the best colors should be marked. After the blooms are cut the small growths that break from the stem are very easily rooted. Prepare a bed in a shaded frame and insert the cuttings, watering heavily when first put in. They will need frequent syringing during the hot weather and will root in three to four weeks, when they can be either potted or planted in a frame where they can be given attention. As soon as well established they can be planted in their permanent location, but should be given a little protection during the first winter by throwing a little old straw or some such material over them.

Pansies.

For winter blooming the seed of pansies should be sown early. Procure a strain of seed that will produce large flowers, and unless they are to be grown in considerable quantities mixed colors are to be preferred. To obtain plants enough for winter blooming it will be better to plant the seed in flats and place them in a cool shady location in the house, where they are much more easily cared for than out in the open. If such a location is not to be had they can be sown in a cold frame and a sash that is quite heavily shaded placed over them until the plants begin to grow. As soon as large enough they should be planted in a cold frame until the bench is made ready, about the middle of September, in the house. The soil for winter growing should be good, and of the richest, in order to obtain large flowers, and the house in which they are planted should be maintained at a cool temperature, about 45 degrees at night after settled fall and winter weather commences. Pansies are not, as a rule, troubled much with insect pests, but sometimes in the fall in the houses they are attacked by green fly and they are quickly checked in their growth if the aphid gets a good hold upon them. A careful watch should be maintained and if they are found to be infested with aphid constant spraying with nicotine solutions will keep the insects down.

Roman Hyacinths.

The first bulbs to arrive will be the Roman hyacinths, and everything should be in readiness to properly care for them as soon as received. When the cases arrive the bulbs should be placed in a cool, dry place; if packed in bags they should be spread out either in flats or shallow boxes and placed where they will neither be too moist or yet in too dry and warm a location. While it is too early to plant for the winter blooming, still a succession of plantings may be made every week until cool weather, when the balance can be planted up. Almost any soil will grow bulbs successfully, but fine results are obtained with soil that has been thrown out from the carnation or rose benches and has laid out over winter to allow it to sweeten a little. When a fall pot plant is wanted a few of the hyacinth bulbs can be planted in bulb pots, but in growing for cut flowers flats are to be preferred, for they are much more economically handled and do not require as much care. In planting the bulbs cover the bottom of the flats with about an inch of soil, placing the bulbs on this quite closely together, yet not touching, as can be done with other bulbs. The flat should then be filled with soil, which should be packed between the bulbs with the ends of the fingers. They should then be given a good watering, enough to wet the soil all the way through and settle it around the bulb. The flats should be placed outside and covered to the depth of about three inches with sand or coal ashes or something that will lie close enough to prevent drying out. A label should be placed at the end with the date of planting, so that the several plantings will be kept separate and can be readily moved into the houses. In four to six weeks they should be well enough rooted to bring them into the house, where they can be placed under a bench until they begin to throw up their flowering spikes.

Office Housecleaning.

Nearly all growing establishments at the present day have what is termed the office, and during the busy season, in many places, but little attention is given to keep it in a tidy condition. Now is the time, after the carnations are housed and before the fall work commences, to have a thorough cleaning up of the office and workroom and get them in readiness for the coming season. Get all the papers filed away in proper shape and fix up all accounts as far as possible, and thereby get rid of much of the worry and trouble. Clean up the workroom and give it a clean coat of paint, and straighten out the supplies. If the stock of baskets has grown dirty get a little gold paint and give them a coat of this, which will certainly make them more attractive than the dingy supplies too often seen hanging on the walls or standing around. The florist too seldom appreciates how the customer likes to trade in a clean, up-to-date place, and often endeavors to excuse the dirty appearance by remarking: "It is impossible where so much dirt is handled to keep the place clean." Such a one is only fooling himself. The present-day customers, of whom many are ladies, know better; they see other places that are kept neat and clean, and they cannot be imposed upon with such tales. Now is the time to get everything ship-shape for the fall and winter trade.

Asparagus Baskets.

There is always a good call for hanging baskets of Asparagus Sprengeri and there is nothing more decorative in a store or greenhouse than these beautiful baskets when well put up and when they are growing nicely. The young 3-inch stock will make nice basket work. The wire basket frame should be of good size, eight inches in diameter at least. Line the outside with green sheet moss, which makes a much better appearance than sphagnum, and then fill with good rich soil and plant the young plants in this. The basket, after planting, should be placed in a warm, moist house to encourage rapid growth; a house with a temperature such as palms are grown in is about right. They should be frequently syringed, and as soon as the long fronds have made a good growth they can be removed to lighter and cooler quarters.

Anemone Japonica.

One of the most useful perennials for the fall is the Anemone Japonica. It blooms at a time when flowers are very scarce, and if planted where it can be protected from the early frosts will produce quantities of bloom that can be made of use in all classes of floral work. The successful blooming of this plant depends much upon its summer culture. If the season is dry it will require constant watering, in fact, a good soaking. It is a good plan to place the hose in a bed of this and let the water run until the ground is thoroughly wet, and do this as often as may be required. It will amply repay in the long, strong shoots that will be produced in the fall full of blooms. The florist not possessing a good stock of this beautiful perennial should procure some of it and plant a bed for fall cutting.

Early Closing.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I notice occasionally in the trade papers items or comments on closing hours for the florists' stores, and note that most of these handle the subject as if its possibility were still an unsettled and debatable question. Of course, when it comes to a vacation for the individual florist, that question must be settled by each one individually and would be governed by individual conditions. But when it comes to closing the place of business at reasonable hours, there, I think, the individual has a duty to his fellow florists which should not be settled altogether by personal inclination. The question of closing the flower shops in any given town or community would be naturally one of harmonious action among those concerned. Generally speaking there is little reason why the florists' shops may not observe the usual closing hours of the majority of the other business houses of the town. In our town of 65,000 most of the stores close at 6 o'clock or 6:30 p. m. The florists aim to close at 6 o'clock, although the straggling "going home" trade often holds one open until 6:30 o'clock before the store can be closed. Other business houses, except refreshment stands, drug stores, etc., being closed, the people cannot call us unreasonable for closing at reasonable hours. Saturday nights all the stores remain open till 10:30 p. m.

I think that if the florists will assume the dignity of a real mercantile and business house, following rules similar to those of other business houses in their town, they will have the respect of the community, and will do as much business, and with less expense. I also believe it will give their business an added dignity and standing in the community. The impression will certainly be for the good, when the trade adopts the rules governing other successful business houses, putting on a dignified business front toward the public, thereby proclaiming that it is conducted along business lines and expects to win in that way, and that the public can expect businesslike treatment.

How long has it been since the florist grew all he sold, and sold whatever he grew at the greenhouses? There seemed to be no market values and the price paid by the customer was often a matter of bargaining, and often finally rested with how little the florist would take, or how badly he needed the money or how much the buyer was willing to give. Under those conditions it was any day, any time of day was a good time to get the money if you had a possible buyer. Under such a system few florists were more than growers, and few made more than barely a living from their long hours and hard work. Nowadays it is different. The manager of a florist's business must be a business man, and, of course, should know the florist's business, but he can hire his grower, and if need be, his store clerks. He, therefore, is justified in conducting his business along lines recognized and accepted as reasonable, by other mercantile establishments in the same community. We hear of progressive florists, yet, in how many communities does the old system still prevail, with no reason in the world except that the flower business always has been heretofore at the beckon and call of anybody at any time?

The florists' profession, or business, I guess it is a mixture of both, is a respectable one, dealing with the best class of people in a community, and certainly is entitled to all the dignity it is likely to put on, for a while at least, until it can be gotten out of the class with the fruit stands, peanut stands, and similar joints, which are open seven days in the week and late into the night, in the apparent frantic effort to catch the very last penny possible, and without which penny the impression is thereby given that their very existence would be threatened.

As to Sunday closing, the same points will apply. In our town, Sunday funerals are a rare exception, and this simplifies the question very much. If we have unavoidable funeral work, either shipping or local, to do, it is done behind closed doors, and about the only way the public can get us is by phone, and they have to have a pretty good case or the order goes over until Monday morning, positively nothing but funeral work will get attention at all. If the florists, who have been at the beck and call of their trade day and night and Sunday, will try this for a while, they will find as much money, more time, better tempered employes, and so much better enjoyment of life, that they will stand for the kicks of the dear unthinking public until it gets used to it, and then the worst will be over. Try it.

Maggots Destroying Geraniums.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Enclosed find samples of geranium cuttings eaten through by some pest, apparently the maggot worm. Please let us know what remedy to use, as the soil is full of these pests. E.
Long Island.

The trouble is caused by a maggot working up through the stems. The same insect is sometimes found on tomatoes and chrysanthemums. Its manner of working makes it hard to get at, and the only remedy I know of is to cut off the affected branches, use fresh soil, and fumigate with tobacco extracts regularly and at the most favorable opportunities to keep down the moths.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Exhibition Stock.

The stock being grown for exhibition cut blooms should be given close attention from this time on. Now that the summer season has set in, the trying period for this class of plants is before us. Stock to be grown in 7- or 8-inch pots ought now to be in their final pots. If this has not already been attended to it should be given attention right away. These plants are greatly benefited by a period of six weeks to two months outdoors, but do not put them out until the roots are well hold of the soil, so that they will stand the heavy thunder showers.

They should be properly staked before going out, to guard against damage by winds. There is one great drawback against putting chrysanthemum plants outdoors in many sections and that is the thrips and tarnish bug will attack the shoots and check the growth unless a persistent fight is kept up by continued spraying with nicotine preparations to keep them down. Another important feature in the care of these plants during the time they are outside is that of watering. They should never be allowed to suffer for want of water, but on the other hand, it is equally detrimental for them to be over-watered. To allow for the fullest development of chrysanthemum plants the soil must be kept fresh and sweet at all times. When the foliage begins to turn yellow some of the roots as is advised for the plants growing outdoors. There is one thing that is very important in growing this fancy stock and that is to get the soil in the benches well firmed down, because if it is light and spongy the plants will draw out too much and make more rapid growth than is good for them. The specimen bush and standard the watering directly after potting or the soil will become sour before the roots can get hold of it.

The topping back of the shoots is a very important item with these plants. The more breaks that can be induced to push out the larger will be the specimen. It is also time to begin to support any of the branches that are getting large. Pay close attention to the spraying for insects to keep them in check. The pompon and single varieties for pot culture also claim our attention at present. The pompons can be grown in pots outdoors. They should be potted along as they require it, then set out in frames, and the same close attention should be given as is advised for the exhibition cut bloom stock.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Blue Hydrangeas.

If we may judge from the number of inquiries which we receive on the subject, the production of blue flowers in rose-pink races of hortensia (Hydrangea hortensis) exercises a peculiar fascination on the minds of gardeners. Scientifically also the subject is one of great interest, albeit that our knowledge of the cause of the production of the blue color is slender in the extreme. On the practical side also not much more certainty exists, says the London Gardeners' Chronicle. For though it is generally known that by watering plants with solutions of iron salts, such, for example, as iron alum, the pink races may be induced to bear blue flowers, many people who have tried the experiment have done so without success. The most they have achieved perhaps is the production of a drab violet, which is far from satisfying their hopeful expectation.

It may be useful, therefore, to set down such facts as we know, some from our own experience and some from the experience of others, on the means to be employed for the conversion of pink into blue shades. In the have "gone bad," and though they may be brought around again and no serious damage result, yet at the same time the plants have received a check. Keep the surface of the soil open by frequent scratching, but do not go deep enough to cut the roots.

The pinching out of the side shoots is another part of the work connected with these plants that keeps the grower busy right along. It is also necessary to use caution in doing this, as many varieties will continually throw a bud shoot which if left will develop a bud instead of a growth. The safest plan is to allow two shoots to remain for a few days to see which is the most promising for growth. The other one can then be removed. Another thing that we have to contend with when the plants are given a season outdoors is the earthworm, which will work up through the hole in the bottom of the pots, especially if the pots are plunged. It used to be our custom to plunge the pots when setting them out with the object of keeping the roots cool but we have found of late years that better results can be obtained if the pots are not plunged but are set on a firm foundation.

The plants growing on the benches inside for exhibition cut blooms will also need continued attention right along now. The surface of the beds should be scratched over every few days and see to it that the plants are properly supported before the stems become crooked, and the same attention should be given these plants as regards pinching out the side shoots plants will also claim the grower's time and attention very much at this time. This class of plants ought now to be in shape to receive their final potting, using a live rich soil and potting firmly. Be very cautious with first place we may lay down the proposition that any treatment to be effective must be begun long before the flowering period; for the change of color is the result of no mere chemical action, such, for example, as that which occurs when red litmus paper, dipped into an alkaline solution, turns blue. It is probable that—for the change of color to occur—the cellular rudiments of the flower must be bathed in and hence be able to absorb traces of iron salts. Therefore, the gardener who yearns for blue hortensias must set about the work of obtaining them at least a year in advance. In the second place, if the soil be chalky or rich in lime no mere watering with iron salts will suffice, and the gardener must proceed first to make up a suitable compost and to see that the roots of the plant are confined to that compost. For, as is pointed out by Henri Bliss in Le Petit Jardin (May 10, 1913), hortensias are always rosy on calcareous soil, whereas they became blue readily and naturally when grown in non-calcareous soils derived from the older formations.

Hardy Flowers Exhibited by Harkness & Sons, Bedale.

The author just cited recommends the following compost: peat to which is added 2-5th leaf mould and 1-5th sand. To this should be added 10 per cent. of powdered slates, 3 per cent. of sulphate of iron—we ourselves are inclined to recommend a rather larger quantity of iron alum—and 10 per cent. of ammonium sulphate. As stated already, the plants must be prepared and planted properly a year in advance. They should be removed from ordinary soil, their roots well washed, and planted in pots or beds of the compost. If pots are used they must be plunged in the compost so that any roots which grow out from the bottom or top are confined to the compost, and do not find their way into ordinary soil. If they do dirty violet-colored flowers may be produced. Mr. Bliss insists that for the best results the compost should be very rich in humus and organic matter, well supplied with nitrogen and phosphoric acid and poor in lime and potash. If the compost be of the kind which has been described, these conditions will be well on the way to fulfillment. When watering is necessary, rain water should be given—of course, hard water, rich in lime, will not do—and manure water should be supplied liberally. The plants should be watered twice a week during the growing period with water containing about  $\frac{1}{4}$  oz. of sulphate of iron to the gallon. A few old nails or a handful of iron filings may be added with advantage to the compost, though, as need scarcely be pointed out, these sources of iron are useless by themselves. Any gardener who realizes the conditions necessary for this magic will be able to advise for himself yet simpler measures whereby it may be wrought.

[In England it is said the blue hydrangeas sell 25 per cent. higher than others.—ED. A. F.]

Hartford Rose Garden.

VISITED AND ADMIRRED BY MANY.

Could committees of the various florists' clubs of the country have seen the rose garden at Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., as it was the last two weeks in June, and marked also how much it was appreciated by the people of the city out of whose population of 100,000 fully 25,000 visited this beauty spot on each of the last two Sundays of June, not to speak of the thousands who admired its beautiful flowers during the week, they would go home filled with such enthusiasm that they would not rest until a rose garden in their own city would be one of its chief points of interest. Hartford is a beautiful city, having many attractions. There are other parks well kept and well worth visiting, monuments that have cost many thousands of dollars, and the elaborate Morgan memorial, but as attractions at this season, when compared to this beautiful display of roses the cost of which, by comparison, is insignificant, they fall far behind, and all eyes are for the garden.

Elizabeth Park contains a trifle over 105 acres. The rose garden proper, although surrounded with a five-acre lawn, occupies but one acre. It is laid out alongside of one of the principal drives, and is square, being about 300 feet each way. The side next to the drive is open. About 100 feet of space in front is decorated with low carpet bedding, the dividing line being designated with a low border of white Polyantha roses. The other three sides are lined with climbing roses tied to a light wire trellis or fence about four feet in height. An irregular border quite extensively filled with a great variety of herbaceous plants separates the garden from the large lawn, which surrounds it on three sides, relieving the square-like effect that would be apparent without it. In the center of the garden is a raised mound six feet in height and about 30 feet in diameter on which stands a rustic summer house or pavilion. Lady Gay and Penzance hybrid roses decorate the lower part of the structure, while the roof is covered with Virginia creeper. From this center, extending to each corner of the plot, is a line of arches about ten feet in width and the same in height, and placed about four feet apart. From the center of each side is also a shorter line of similar arches to the pavilion. All these are planted with Rambler roses, each line a separate color. Dorothy Perkins, white Dorothy Perkins, Crimson Rambler, Pink Rambler, Setigera, and one other out of flower, are the varieties used. The mound around the pavilion is planted with Perkins and other rambles, a circle at the foot, about two feet in width, is filled with everblooming polyanthas.

A series of beds, four feet in width and ten in length, make another circle, while the balance of the space is plotted in long straight beds, four by ten feet. The spaces or walks between the beds are eight feet.

One of the features of the garden is the green background. There are no gravel walks. All the beds are cut out of the green sod, which has been rolled hard and is kept cut close and, although visited daily at this time by garden, the varieties being planted in blocks of six, well separated with abundance of light and air. In the planting of this garden, bringing together so many varieties of roses and arranging them with such decorative effects, Theodore Wirth took a great step in advancing the cause of floriculture with the masses. They are attracted by the great wealth of bloom, roses were known to them from childhood, but here they are awakened to but easy as it appears to be, and with its many years of success, it is the only one in the country. Why are they not found in every large city? It is because the people have not asked for them. Let a few live men, who really are interested and want to see such a garden present the matter to the proper authorities, and help out with some stock, if necessary, and they will soon have something to which they can point with pride.

The visitors to Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., on June 21, in common with many Hartford citizens, learned with a sense of regret of the resignation of Alex. Cumming, Jr., as head gardener at the park. About September 1 he will go to A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., to take charge of their retail plant department. While Mr. Cumming is very highly esteemed by his fellow workers in the park department, who will miss him greatly, it is understood that his new position brings a considerable increase in salary. Mr. Cumming is a native of Scotland and when quite young came to this country, but as to that, he is yet a young man. He went to work at Elizabeth park about seven years ago, when Theodore Wirth was park superintendent. With the exception of one year spent in Seattle, Wash., he has been at the park since and for the past three years has been the head gardener. His work in developing the now famous rose garden has been highly praised by the best men in the trade and has given him deserved popularity with the people of Hartford. Less than two years ago he married a very amiable young lady of Hartford and they have a bright baby boy two months old. In removing to Cromwell they will not be too far from their old home to renew old acquaintances frequently. In the new connection there is room to congratulate both parties to the contract, as the high standing of the Piersons is well known.

thousands, shows but little, if any, wear. The sod path is the only one for a garden. It adds wonderfully to its beauty. One of the border fences was covered entirely with Crimson Rambler which made a great showing, as did the arches of this variety. The Dorothy Perkins arches were also most beautiful. Several plants of Tausendschon were loaded with blossoms; nothing could be more attractive. A separate plant of American Pillar was exceptionally striking, its great heads of single blooms with their white centers attracted great attention, and its name invariably went down on the list, which many of the visitors made. Hiawatha was another favorite, a plant on the border being in splendid shape. The hybrids were gorgeous in their great masses of blooms. They filled all the beds between the sides and the center circles. A favorite was a bed of the old Malmaison. This was a mass of bloom. A bed of Radiance had wintered splendidly and made a great showing. And so I might describe them all, did space permit. A feature was several blocks of standards. These had stood the rigors of winter and were full of flowers.

Alexander Cummings, Jr., the superintendent, spoke of the severe winter weather, saying that the roses have all to be protected, those in the arches being taken down and covered with leaves and tree boughs. An interesting feature was the test gardens. All new varieties sent to be tried out are judged by the committee of the American Rose Society, after one or two years' planting. A certificate secured here should be of great advantage. The test grounds are separate from the possibilities of the flower. They see roses as they never saw them before. A new feeling is created, a desire to plant some of these beautiful varieties on their lawns and over their own porches and doorways. The planting of such a garden as this at Elizabeth Park is a very simple matter.

THE CARNATION.

New Outdoor Stock.

The principal work with the carnations just at this time is the attention to the new stock in the field. Every encouragement should be given the plants to make strong, sturdy growth. During hot, dry weather keep the cultivator going continually, not so deep that it will cut the roots or throw soil up around the plant, but so that the surface is loosened up to form a dust mulch, to act as a protection for the roots from the hot, piercing rays of the sun. Also when the cultivating is thoroughly attended to, the plants receive benefits from the lightest showers and it is also a guard against standing pools after heavy rains, because the loose surface allows the water to soak down into the soil quickly.

Up close around the plants and between them, where the cultivator cannot be used, the hoe should be brought into play so that all weeds are kept down and also draw the soil a little away from the plants. During a dry spell the question is brought home to us whether to water the plants or not. When we get out in the field during a hot day and find how hot and parched everything is we are inclined to think that the first thing that ought to be done is to start in and do some watering, but experience has taught us that with thorough cultivation of the soil, watering of the plants while out in the field is not such a necessity as we used to think it to be and that if the plants can be carried safely along without it so much the better. However, location and climatic conditions should govern one's actions in this respect. In our section we as a rule get plenty of heavy rains during the month of May, which is directly after setting the plants out in the field, consequently the plants are thoroughly established by the time the hot weather sets in. This, together with the short season they are in the field, (planting into the houses commencing about July 20) they are able to withstand the dry periods and are better for it.

Topping back the shoots is another very important part of the work for the next two months because a regular pinching of the shoots as they need it during this time means so many more growths to the plant to start the new season with. The work of the old plants is nearly finished and a few weeks will see them beyond their usefulness. Such plants as are still profitable should be given the proper care; they need close watching as regards watering and regular syringings every other day or so according to the weather. The old plants that are past their usefulness should be cleaned out and not allowed to remain to harbor insects of all kinds. A word or two can be said at this time in regard to the compost pile. If it has been turned this spring, then in that respect it is ready for taking into the houses, but do not allow big weeds to grow upon it to draw out its strength.

NEWS FROM THE

Some Natural Attractions.

Members of the S. A. F. who come to Minneapolis in August to attend the national convention and flower show of their association will find sightseeing opportunities in abundance. Both Minneapolis and St. Paul are famous tourist cities. Together they have natural beauties in sufficient number to warrant a visitor's spending a week in sightseeing. There are some points of historic interest in both cities, but the chief claim of the Twin Cities lies in their lakes and parks. Minneapolis has twenty distinct bodies of water within its limits. There are more than one hundred lakes within a radius of 25 miles of the Twin Cities. Most of them are well stocked with fish and most of them are easily reached by automobile.

The principal lakes in Minneapolis are connected and circled by a boulevard, approximately 35 miles in length. Every visitor to the city should arrange to spend the two hours required to make the circuit of this boulevard in an automobile. Starting from his hotel, he will be taken past Loring park, a beautiful tract of 36 acres only a few blocks from the business center of the city, thence past the Parade, a playground of 68 acres lying close to Loring park. The parkway passes the National Guard Armory and Coliseum which faces the Parade, and then winds through the Kenwood residence district to the Lake of the Isles. At the right may be seen Cedar lake, one of the four large bodies of water in that part of the city. The boulevard follows the irregular shore line of Lake of the Isles to Calhoun and takes its course along the east shore of that large body of water. At the right is the famous Calhoun bath house and the "finest inland bathing beach in America." Sail boats, launches, row boats and canoes dot Lake Calhoun. Visitors who desire to explore that lake or to fish there may more cash grain is sold than in any other place in the world. Visitors are admitted to the gallery in the trading room. Passage may be obtained from the flour companies admitting visitors to the flour mills. The court house and city hall in Minneapolis, built of Minnesota granite, at a cost of three million five hundred thousand dollars, is one of the famous public buildings of the country. The old round tower at Fort Snelling, erected in 1820, has been maintained in its original condition and should be inspected by visitors to the army post. Within a few blocks of the leading hotel is the Walker art gallery, which contains a of the most modern penitentiaries of the country, also is reached by street car from St. Paul. South St. Paul, which is a ride of 30 minutes from St. Paul proper, is the center of the meat packing industry of the Northwest. Both of the Twin Cities are filled with incidental attractions for the sight-seer. In Minneapolis there are mile after mile of streets, lined with hardy elm trees which were planted under the direction of the Minneapolis park board and maintained by it. The city has no single prominent resident district. There are beautiful homes in every part of the city and in whatever direction the visitor may go he will find things to please the eye.

Arnold Arboretum Notes.

No other North American tree is so familiar to the people of so many different parts of the world as the false acacia or yellow locust of the Appalachian Mountain forests, Robinia pseudacacia, and it is now naturalized in many regions far removed from its native home. No other exotic tree has been so generally planted in northern and central Europe since its introduction into the garden of the Paris Museum in 1636 by the king's gardener. Robin, whose labors it commemorates; and no other American tree has given rise to such a voluminous literature. The cheerful light green foliage and hanging clusters of fragrant white flowers are known to everyone who has ever looked at trees. The value of the timber which it produces, the rapidity of its growth, its power to adapt itself to different soils and to reproduce itself rapidly by seeds which germinate readily and by stump and root shoots, would make it a most valuable subject for forest and coppice planting in this country, if it could be protected from insects, but the value of the locust is practically destroyed in nearly all parts of the United States beyond the mountain forests which are its home, by the borers which riddle the trunk and branches. Owing to the difficulty of keeping the locust in a presentable condition here, no serious effort has ever been made to bring together the interesting varieties or "sports" of this tree which have appeared from time to time in European gardens and are largely planted in European collections of trees. At least thirty of these varieties are now known; the one most often seen in Germany, especially in suburban gardens, is the so-called parasol acacia (var. umbraculifera). The short branches of this plant form a com-obtain the use of boats, tackle and bate for a nominal sum. Leaving Lake Calhoun the boulevard continues through the wooded Interlachen district, separating Lake Calhoun from Lake Harriet; it completely encircles the latter body of water which is one of the most beautiful lakes in the country. Like Lake Calhoun it also invites the fisherman and boats and tackle may be obtained there.

The Minneapolis park board maintains a band and concerts are given each evening at the pavilion. There are hundreds of canoes at this lake. Leaving Lake Harriet the boulevard skirts the winding course of Minnehaha creek, passes between Lake Nakomis and Rice Lake to Minnehaha park. In that park are the Falls of Minnehaha, immortalized by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in the poem "Hiawatha." Joining Minnehaha park are the grounds of Fort Snelling, the historic armory region of the frontier days and the Minnesota Soldiers' Home, which occupies a magnificent site across the Mississippi river from the fort. Here the boulevard follows the gorge of the Mississippi river to the campus of the University of Minnesota, which is one of the famous seats of learning of the continent and well worth a visit. Returning from the university one sees the flour mills of Minneapolis, which have a daily capacity of eighty-four thousand barrels. They occupy sites on both sides of the Mississippi river at St. Anthony Falls, the "Cradle of Minneapolis."

Nearly all the points of interest in Minneapolis and St. Paul may be reached by street car. Lakes Calhoun and Harriet, Minnehaha Falls, the university, the fort and Soldiers' Home are all within a ride of 30 minutes from the center of the city. Among other "things to see" in Minneapolis is the Chamber of Commerce, where number of world famous paintings. Admission to this gallery is free. The Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts maintains a permanent exhibition in the Central Public Library building, two blocks from the Walker gallery.

Between Minneapolis and St. Paul are the grounds of the Minnesota State Fair, the largest state exposition in the country. On the same car line inside the limits of St. Paul is the Capital City's famous Como park, one of the most beautiful public gardens in the United States. Another famous St. Paul park is the Mounds. It was an Indian burial ground in the day when the red men held undisputed sway in Minnesota and takes its name from the large number of mounds which cover the skeletons of the braves of early days. White Bear lake is reached by street car from St. Paul. Wildwood, on the shores of this lake, is the principal summer park of the Twin Cities. Stillwater, in which is located the Minnesota state prison, one compact spherical head which is usually grafted on a tall stem of the common Robinia, as in this country a dwarf form of the catalpa is made into a "standard" by grafting it on a tall stem of the tree form. The only abnormal form of the Robinia thoroughly established in the Arboretum, is one of the most remarkable of them all; var. monophylla, in which the leaves are reduced to a single broad leaflet.

The two pink-flowered arborescent Robinias, R. viscosa and R. neomexicana, are also subject to attacks by the borer. R. viscosa, the clammy locust, is not yet in flower but its near relative, the Rocky Mountain species, R. neo-mexicana, is now covered with its short clusters of pale rose-colored flowers. More beautiful perhaps than either of these trees is a hybrid of the Rocky Mountain species with R. pseudoacacia, R. Holdtii, named for the Colorado nurseryman in whose establishment it appeared a few years ago. This tree is very hardy; it appears to suffer less than its parents from borers, it grows rapidly and plants only a few feet high cover themselves with pale pink flowers. This tree, which is not yet often seen in eastern collections, is an interesting and valuable addition to the rather short list of trees which flower here in early summer. The Robinias are planted with the other trees of the pea family on the right-hand side of the Meadow road beyond the piece of natural woods.

The latest of the American magnolias are now in flower, M. macrophylla and M. glauca. The former is a medium-sized tree with wide-spreading branches and is distinguished by the fact that of all trees which grow beyond the tropics it has the largest leaves and the largest flowers. The leaves of this remarkable tree are silvery white on the lower surface, from twenty to thirty inches long and from eight to nine inches wide, and the cup-shaped, creamy white, fragrant flowers are sometimes a foot in diameter. Although an inhabitant of the south, M. macrophylla is perfectly hardy in New England, but unless it is planted in sheltered positions the trees often become disfigured by the wind which tears the large delicate leaves. Less showy M. glauca is a more valuable plant for general cultivation. Often a large tree in the extreme south, at the north M. glauca is never more than a small tree, or more often a large shrub. The leaves are dark green and very lustrous on the upper surface and silvery white on the lower surface; the small, cup-shaped flowers are creamy white and delightfully fragrant, and they continue to open in succession from the middle of June until August. In all North America there is not a more delightful shrub to plant in the garden, or one that will give larger returns in beauty and fragrance; and yet it is difficult to find it in American nurseries, and it is unknown to most American planters of this generation. A hybrid, M. Thompsoniana, between M. glauca and M. tripetala, another American species, is a handsome plant with the general appearance of M. glauca but with larger leaves and large, equally fragrant flowers. This plant is with the American magnolias on the right-hand side of the Jamaica Plain gate and is now in flower. Unfortunately it is much less hardy than either of its parents.

On Hickory path near Centre street there is a group of large plants of Styrax japonica now covered with their pure white, cup-shaped flowers, hanging gracefully down from the branches on long, slender stems; this is one of the handsome flowering shrubs of Japan, but unless a sheltered position can be provided for it, it is not perfectly hardy in the neighborhood of Boston. That it is perfectly at home, where it is now planted in the Arboretum, is shown by the great crops of seedlings which spring up every year under the old plants.

Near this group of Styrax japonica are two species of Indigofera, I. Kirilowii and I. amblyantha, now in flower. The former is a native of Korea and is a low leafy plant which spreads into a broad mass and continues to produce its racemes of large, pure pink flowers during several weeks. It was introduced a few years ago into the Arboretum by — Jack, and is an exceedingly valuable garden plant. There is a specimen also of this species in the shrub collection. I. amblyantha is of entirely different habit, with slender, erect stems, small leaves, and erect axillary clusters of small, rose-colored flowers which continue to appear during two or three months. An inhabitant of river cliffs in Hupeh at altitudes up to six thousand feet, it sometimes grows there to the height of six feet. This plant flowered in the Arboretum last year for the first time. It appears to be perfectly hardy, and it is one of the most beautiful of the small shrubs introduced by Wilson from western China. Two other species of this genus are established on Azalea Path, near its entrance from the Bussey Hill Road, I. Gerandiana, a native of the Himalayas, and I. decora from southern China. These two plants, although they are killed back to the ground every winter, send up new stems and flower profusely every year. I. decora, with its large white flowers, is a beautiful little plant well worth knowing; it is just coming into bloom.

In the shrub collection one of the roses discovered by Wilson on the mountains of Hupeh, Rosa setipoda, is now in flower; it is a large vigorous shrub with broad, many-flowered clusters of long-stalked, dark pink flowers. This rose proves to be very hardy and promises to be a decorative plant of much value.

Attention is called to another Chinese plant, Spiraea Henryi, now flowering in the shrub collection and perhaps the handsomest of recent additions to the large number of spiraeas now cultivated in gardens. S. Henryi is a tall, hardy, vigorous shrub with wide-spreading arching branches which on the upper side are covered with large, flat clusters of white flowers. Among the Chinese shrubs in the collection of these plants on the south side of Bussey hill, hydrangea zanthoneura and its varieties are in flower; these with H. Bretschneideri, from northern China, are the earliest to flower of all hydrangeas which are hardy in this climate.

In the shrub collection, two of the latest of the bush honeysuckles are in flower and are beautiful now and later in the season when the fruit is ripe. These plants are Lonicera Ledebourii from the Pacific coast region, and L. involucrata, var. serotina from the mountains of the interior of the continent. The long, slender flowers of these two plants are bright yellow, more or less tinged with red, and they are surrounded by large, leaf-like dark red cups, which remain under the large, black, lustrous fruit. This particular group of honeysuckles contains some of the hardiest and most beautiful garden shrubs which have been brought into the Arboretum from western North America, a region which has produced few plants which are hardy in this climate.

One of the decorative objects in the shrub collection, is the large plant of Halimodendron argenteum, called salt-tree because it inhabits the saline steppes near the river Irtysh in Siberia. The pale, rose-colored, pea-shaped, fragrant flowers, which are produced in great abundance, are borne in short clusters, and their delicate beauty is heightened by the color of the leaves which are covered with a pale, silky down. The plant remains in flower during several weeks.

Among vines of recent introduction, Periploca sepium, a native of Korea, is worth consideration. This is a plant with slender stems, small, pointed, dark green and very lustrous leaves, and axillary clusters of long-stalked flowers in which the strongly reflexed, dark brown sepals are the conspicuous feature. It can now be seen, covered with flowers, on the eastern side of the shrub collection.

The Himalayan Lilac, Syringa Emodi, or as it is sometimes considered a variety of the Chinese S. villosa, is now covered with flowers. This is not an occurrence of every year for this species is not perfectly hardy, and the ends of the branches and the flower-buds are often killed in severe winters. It is a large, broad shrub with large leaves, light yellow green above and silvery gray and covered with soft white hairs below, and long narrow clusters of small, white, fragrant flowers. It is the last of the true lilacs to bloom and from all other lilacs it differs in its light yellow foliage.

Conspicuous plants now in flower in the roadside plantations are the North American Viburnum dentatum and V. cassinoides and the Japanese V. dilatatum, a species with very large, slightly convex clusters of creamy white flowers which are followed in the autumn by small bright red fruits. Other conspicuous plants are the North American Cornus rugosa and C. racemosa, the European C. alba, and two native Roses, Rosa lucida and R. humilis. The flame-colored Rhododendron (azalea) calendulaceum now makes a brilliant show and the laurels (kalmia) are in full bloom. The laurels can most easily be reached from the South street or from the Water street entrances, and should be visited within a few days.—

ANENT the use of hydrocyanic-acid gas as an insect destroyer, a recent circular of the Department of Agriculture says: "Hydrocyanic-acid gas is one of the most effective remedies known against various classes of insects. For more than 20 years it has been the principal means of controlling scale insects on citrus trees in California and is now in general use for the disinfection of all deciduous nursery stock and other plant material for shipment, and is one of the most effective methods of ridding greenhouses and cold frames of plant-lice, thrips, white flies, and various scale pests which infest plants grown under glass."

A SANE FOURTH.

The Fourth of July passed very quietly this year, and the death rate due to accidents was much smaller than former years. The weather on that day was extremely hot, as were the remaining days of the week, consequently trade was very quiet and the stock suffered considerably. It was almost impossible to ship roses any great distance for the flowers opened very quickly and in some instances no attempt was made to ship them at all. There is a large quantity of roses from young stock now arriving, and some good Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Mrs. Aaron Ward are now offered. American Beauty roses are very plentiful at some of the stores, but they do not command very high prices. Carnations are arriving in very poor condition, and are being sold in large lots at low prices. Lilies are very plentiful, but there is no great demand for them. Northern grown peonies have made their appearance and gladioli of good quality are obtainable. Orchids are still plentiful and some magnificent blooms are now obtainable at very reasonable prices. Asparagus plumosus nanus of good quality is to be had in quantity at some stores. The usual supply of summer flowers is seen and nymphæas are seen featured at almost all the down town stores in their window displays. The weather the present week has been a little cooler and a heavy rain visited this vicinity on July 8. The growers have needed rain for a long time for their field grown carnation plants have been affected by the dry weather and have been set back considerably. The shipping trade has shown a slight improvement this week and has been better than it was for several weeks past.

NOTES.

Mrs. Horton of the Bassett & Washburn force received a letter this week from Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Washburn from Albuquerque, New Mexico, stating that the weather was cool and that they were having a delightful time and that they expected to reach Pasadena on July 5. Trade has been very good at the Bassett & Washburn store and their July business so far is much ahead of last year.

Harry Nicholson, who is now employed at Excelsior, Minn., was in the city a few days last week previous to his departure for Boston, where he will visit his father, Wm. Nicholson, the well-known carnation specialist. Harry was formerly employed at the Joliet greenhouses of the Chicago Carnation Co.

H. Van Gelder says that Percy Jones has had a very good season and that the firm's profits for the past six months have shown a great increase over the same period of any previous year. Louis Finneman, of the cut flower department, is back from his vacation.

Adam Zender is cutting some fine Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Mrs. Aaron Ward roses from his young plants now. He consigns nearly all his stock to Dominick E. Freres, a local wholesaler, who has handled his output satisfactorily for several years.

Frank Schleiden of the Chas. W. McKellar force, and a member of the Whyndott Athletic Club, won a gold medal on July 4 for finishing twelfth in the 15-mile marathon race, held under the auspices of the Portage Park Celebration Association.

Albert T. Hey, who has been unable to attend to business for a prolonged period on account of nervous prostration, is out and about again we are glad to see.

Julius Wolff and Ed. Seibrecht, of the Geo. Wittbold Co., are now enjoying their vacations. O. Strobach, of the same firm, will leave on July 12 to visit friends at Toronto, Can.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held at the Hotel La Salle, July 10, at 8 p. m. An interesting meeting is expected and a full attendance is desired.

John Kruchten is now visiting his growers in a 35 h. p. Studebaker, and it is needless to add that he is having a delightful time with his new machine.

Miss Nettie Parker of the Chicago Carnation Co. spent a few days visiting with Miss Frieda Gebhardt at Lake Geneva, Wis., returning July 7.

Bert Phillips, of the J. A. Budlong force, will leave next week for Magician lake, Mich., where he will enjoy his vacation.

Erne & Klingel are having a good call for Asparagus plumosus nanus, of which they are now receiving a large supply.

Dwight L. Harris of the Pulverized Manure Co. has returned from a business trip to Kansas City, Mo.

Michael F. Freres is now assisting his brother, Dominick E. Freres, with his wholesale business.

Philip L. McKee, with the John C. Moninger Co., celebrated July 4 at Milwaukee, Wis.

Robert Lange and wife left July 5 for San Francisco, Calif., to spend the summer.

Harald Sylvan has moved from Rogers Park to new quarters at 866 Aldine avenue.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg has returned from a few days' rest in Wisconsin.

E. F. Kurowski of the John C. Moninger Co., attended the annual meeting of the jobbers of pipe, valves, fittings and plumbing material at St. Paul, Minn., last week. While there he attended the silver wedding celebration given by Henry J. Puvogel, in one of the large halls, and which some 200 people attended. Mr. Kurowski says it was an occasion long to be remembered, and that Mr. Puvogel certainly out-did himself for there were plenty of presents and everybody was happy.

The third annual meeting of the board of directors and stockholders of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, was held at their store on North Michigan avenue, on July 7, when much important business was transacted. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: J. F. Kidwell, president; E. Meuret, vice-president; A. Then, treasurer; G. C. Weiland, secretary, and C. McCauley, Fred Schramm, Fred Stielow and O. Schrieber, directors.

Chas. W. McKellar and wife have returned from a delightful visit in Michigan. They took the boat to Benton Harbor and autoed in their car, which they took along, to Black Lake near Ottawa Beach and spent July 4, 5 and 6 there bathing and fishing, returning by boat on Sunday evening. Mr. McKellar was terribly sunburned even the top of his head showing the effects of the terrific heat, but he reports having had a most enjoyable time.

Tim Matchen says that the shipping trade was much better at Peter Reinberg's store this week, which is likely due to the cooler weather. Mr. Matchen and wife will leave soon for an extended visit in the south, stopping at St. Louis, Mo., Memphis, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., Cleveland and Cincinnati, O., and other large cut flower centers.

Miss Agnes Ryan and Jack Page were quietly married last week, and have now gone housekeeping on the north side. Mr. Page is a son of a well known grower in England, and was formerly employed in the carnation range of Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, but is at present with Peter Reinberg.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. supply department is now getting out a new catalog which will be ready for mailing soon. T. E. Waters is busy arranging an exhibit of supplies on the fourth floor of the building his firm occupies, and cordially invites all visitors as well as the local trade to inspect same.

J. F. Kidwell of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, left July 8, on a business trip to New York, Washington and Baltimore and expects to be gone about a week. John Walsh, the shipping clerk, is back from his vacation, and is again attending to his duties at this store.

A little visitor, Miss Alice Elizabeth Frese, gladdened the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Frese on Sunday, July 6. No wonder papa Frese was so happy at his desk at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store all week.

John Sinner is spending his vacation with relatives in Iowa. He expects to spend most of his time fishing on the Turkey river, so his friends can look for some good fish stories upon his return.

Hoerber Bros. have had a good demand for stock, considering the present market conditions and this especially holds good in My Maryland roses which are now in fair demand.

Chas. Grabig has closed his store in Irving Park boulevard for the summer, and will leave soon with his family to enjoy a well earned rest on a farm in Iowa.

St. Louis.

SUMMER DULLNESS HAS SET IN.

The weather has been very warm and sultry during the past week and summer dullness has fully set in. The wholesale houses have had a fair demand on account of large funeral orders. Roses open up quickly. Gladioli are arriving, America bringing 10 cents, others 6 to 8 cents. A few single tubes are also seen. Ferns are plentiful, selling cheap in 5,000 lots. Pink asters are bringing a fair price. Carnations are getting smaller, although a few good white can yet be seen.

NOTES.

A very interesting meeting of the St. Louis County Growers, took place last Wednesday, July 2. Frank Weber, of Weber's Nursery, gave a report on white and pink Enchantress. Sixty-one thousand carnations were consigned to the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., which netted 2 1/4 cents, 22 blooms to a plant being the average. The question as to the taxing of parties has done good work, and the trees are looking much better than last year.

OLD-FASHIONED FLOWERS IN DEMAND.

Commencements and June weddings have kept the florists very busy the past month. Peonies, roses and lily of the valley were the flowers that seemed to lead, although there has been an unusual demand for the old-fashioned garden flowers for which the Pine Tree State is famous.

NOTES.

June 25 occurred the Thaxter-Schuyler wedding, the groom being a son of Mrs. Sidney W. Thaxter, one of the prominent families of the city, and the bride a daughter of Canon Schuyler of the Cathedral church of St. Luke, where the wedding took place. The interior of the church, with its dignified yet simple architecture, was never more beautiful than on this occasion. Giant white peonies tinted a pale pink lent their fragrance to the atmosphere, and made an effective decoration against a background of palms. Great boxes of iris and Shasta daisies were placed at the windows, and masses of the daisies were tied at the ends of the pews with white gauze, making an aisle of daisies through which the bridal party passed. All the decorations, both at the home and the church and the bouquets were in charge of Miss Bertha F. Lougee of the Portland Flower Store, and they were in the best of taste, showing an artistic appreciation of color effect and background. At the home giant peonies, sweet peas and daisies were used, masses of these flowers being placed at different points of vantage. On Monday preceding the wedding Mrs. Sidney Thaxter entertained at dinner for 36 guests. Many favorable comments were heard concerning the decorations in water glasses of white iris, roses and adiantum. The floral decorations of the church were great masses of peonies, hydrangeas and palms were banked about the altar, the combined effect of peonies and hydrangeas with the green was particularly beautiful, the faintest touch of pink showing in the peonies against the background of green and white. Miss Lougee of the Portland Flower Store had charge of the bouquets, and they were exquisitely beautiful, being of lavender stock, Queen roses, spirea and the old English founce, the whole festooned with loops of chiffon ribbon. The bouquets carried by the brides were of valley lilies and maiden hair ferns, with orchids, and the gowns were of white ivory satin, the long veils being thrown back and caught with valley lilies.

June 25 occurred the wedding of Miss Mary Phelps and Harold Gerrish, the marriage taking place at the new home of the young couple at Lovett's Field. Mountain laurel made a most effective decoration and pink gladioli, roses and peonies were used to advantage. The bride carried a shower of valley lilies and white sweet peas and the bridesmaid an arm bouquet of pink sweet peas and forget-me-nots.

Albert Dyer, one of the popular florists and decorators, has been confined to the house by illness for several weeks past, but is able to be about once more and friends and brother florists hope for a speedy recovery. Mr. Dyer has made a business change, locating directly across the street from his old stand, thus ensuring larger and more commodious quarters for his patrons.

June 12 at the First Parish Church, Miss Marion Fletcher became the wife of Clifton Foss, and her sister, Miss Mary Fletcher, became the wife of Simmons Brown. The bouquets of the brides were showers of valley lilies, orchids and adiantum. The bridal procession was a most attractive one, the four flower girls wearing quaint, old-fashioned flowered gowns and bonnets.

The market at present is flooded with the White and Painted Lady variety of sweet peas. Some of the Spencers will be here for which there is always a great demand both by tourists and natives. Pinks going slowly. Roses still in demand. New shades in the double peonies also selling well.

Commencing July 1 all the larger retail florists will close their stores at 6 each evening, thus taking advantage of the cool summer evenings here for recreation which cannot be enjoyed during the strenuous winter evenings.

The Saco Flower Co., of Saco, has just completed a new office where the old one formerly stood, which adds a great deal to the attractiveness of this popular greenhouse.

Mrs. M. W. Smith, manager for the J. W. Minott Co., has been enjoying a well deserved vacation of two weeks, spent at her former home in Kingfield.

Chas. L. Howe and wife, of Garrison Hill Greenhouses, Dover, N. H., accompanied by his head gardener and wife, were recent visitors in town.

Roland Barrows of Gorham has built another small greenhouse and expects to do an even larger business this fall.

Miss Lougee, manager of the Portland Flower Store, has been very busy the past month decorating for the various weddings.

Frank Minott, of the J. W. Minott Co., broke his arm a few weeks ago while cranking his automobile.

Mr. Strout, the enterprising pink grower of Biddeford, has completed a new up-to-date greenhouse.

Miss Lougee, of the Portland Flower Store Co., is spending a few days with friends at Wilton Lake.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dennett has returned from a few days' auto trip about Massachusetts.

PLENTY OF STOCK.

So far July has been a pretty busy month, with enough stock on hand at all times of one thing or another to meet all demands. While roses of all varieties "open while you wait," there are other equally good flowers to take their place. Water lilies for instance make a very beautiful spray, or can be used in a set piece to advantage, as flowers are usually large and perfect in color. Candidum lilies, good clean storage stock, is in excellent demand. Kaiserin, the only good white rose for summer, is at its best during July and August. Some very good American Beauties are on the market. Sweet peas arrive in unlimited quantities and stock is generally good. Delphinia is in good demand. Easter lilies are again very plentiful, and can be bought at very reasonable prices. Gypsophila or Baby Breath is more plentiful this year than it was last year. Fancy ferns have dropped in price and quality is better than ever. My Maryland rose is in good demand for the warm weather. A few very good carnations are still arriving and these clean up daily. Coreopsis, white and yellow, daisies and snapdragon are a part of the daily stock.

NOTES.

In the presence of a few intimate friends of the bride and groom, Chas. E. Russell, of the Jones-Russell Company, was married to Miss Mayme McGorray, on Monday morning, June 30, at 9 o'clock, at St. Patrick's church. The church was beautifully decorated with daisies. Following a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Russell left in a private car on a wedding trip to the White Mountains. After August they will be at home, 15102 Clifton boulevard.

Mr. Schoen, of the Gasser Retail Store, reports he had three large blankets as a part of his funeral work last week, one entirely of pansies was perhaps the most beautiful; another of valley, orchids and lavender peas, while still another consisted of white roses and lavender peas.

Mr. Shearer, of the Jones-Russell Co., had the misfortune to break the bones in one of his feet, when taking down the decorations at the Garretson wedding, which will lay him up for a matter of nearly six or seven weeks.

The Statler hotel spent nearly $1,200 with the Gasser Co. for bay trees, dracænas, etc., which they will use in beautifying the hotel. The Gasser Co. also had a wedding decoration at this hotel on July 4.

Harry Robbins, of Gasser's Retail Store, left July 2 for a two weeks' trip through the west. He will stop at St. Louis on his way out.

Geo. W. Smith, of the Cleveland Florists' Exchange, and Mrs. Smith spent the week at the St. Clair flats, Detroit, and other points nearby.

Emil Meyers, of the Penn Square Floral Co., left Tuesday, July 1, for a three weeks' fishing trip in the Canadian wilds.

BOSTON, MASS.—A committee of the city council, headed by W. L. Collins, chairman, voted to recommend to the council the expenditure of $3,000 for a new horticultural building in which flower shows can be held, and which will be erected in the Fens.

STOCK SHOWS A SHORTAGE.

Trade in Pittsburg has been nothing to brag about the past week, most of the florists taking the opportunity and enjoyed themselves, while the time was at hand. There has been a marked shortage of all kinds of good roses, especially white, which is very scarce. The majority of roses coming in are culls and short stemmed. In the other lines of stock most everything is plentiful. Carnations are still holding out but will not last much longer. The shades of pink are so faded by now that the dealers have a hard time to distinguish the different varieties from one another. Among the retail trade there are no startling reports of briskness and the usual amount of funeral work is all that is keeping the forces busy. Most of our growers report being sold out of most of all kinds of potted stock and seem glad to give such a report, being anxious for a well deserved rest.

NOTES.

A few of our downtown florists were badly stunned Monday when notified that two of our largest banks had failed in which they held accounts. It is the general belief that most of the money will be made good, however. Fourth of July brought out several of our water sport enthusiasts and they could be found in the hot sun anywhere that there was room to paddle a canoe.

The South Hills Flo. Co. are cutting carnations equal to midseason stock and expect to continue doing so all through the coming summer.

Frank Farney of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, and Ross Adgate, of The McCallum Co., were in town a few days last week.

Fred Reigelmier had a large decoration last week for the Schlott cafe, on Diamond street, using green oak sprays profusely.

The Tarentum Floral Co. report trade as being very well and are cutting a heavy crop of various green goods.

The father of B. W. Spragg is reported in a dying condition at his home in Waynesburg, Pa.

The Zieger Co. has discontinued operating their branch store in Penn ave.

STOCK IN GOOD DEMAND.

Last week's business was fair, there was plenty of stock, and the buyer could and did discriminate, as to quality. This week, however, if the market keeps up as it did on Monday, there will be little chance for discrimination. It will be a case of grabbing whatever there is in sight, for this week started with a very limited supply of stock and a very good demand. The demand for lilies, which are among the best blooms of any kind that are being offered has increased while the supply has shortened somewhat. Many times at the close last week the wholesalers were unable to take care of all calls for this flower. Pond lilies find a pretty fair call.

The gladioli supply has increased and sells nicely. The good and choice roses are limited to Maryland, Taft, Kaiserin, a few Killarney (pink and white), and Beauties. The others offered are not of any too good quality. The offerings of American Beauties are rather limited. Other offerings include hardy hydrangeas, feverfew, coreopsis and other outdoor stock. The supply of smilax is at the time of this writing very short. The ice strike in this city, while at times it has inconvenienced the florists, still has never caused them to be without necessary ice, when they wanted it.

NOTES.

The Grim Reaper has been at work again, this time he took R. C. Witterstaetter's wife, who had been ill for some time. Mr. Witterstaetter has the sympathy of his many friends.

Miss Christine Bossmeyer, of C. E. Critchell's, is on her vacation. She spent the first few days at Connersville, Ind., and will spend the balance of the time at Batavia, Ohio.

C. E. Critchell is the first wholesaler to receive asters this season. Mr. Critchell, too, recently put in a large stock of bronze magnolia.

Other visitors, B. H. Klus, Anderson, Ind., Wm. Lodder, Hamilton, Ohio, Fred Rupp, Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

Miss Ada Kresken was ill during the larger part of last week. It was a case of too much hot weather.

The annual meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held at the club room on July 14.

Don't forget the florists' picnic and outing at Coney Island, next Thursday, July 17.

P. J. Olinger was under the weather for several days last week.

Ed. Fries and wife left this week for a trip to California.

Geo. Tromeys is spending ten days at Martinsville, Ind.

Wm. Gerlach Jr., of Piqua, was in the city, on Monday.

HEAT AFFECTS FLOWER SUPPLY.

The florists have been having a rather hard time of it owing to the extreme dry weather and the prolonged drought which has materially affected the flower supply, and it has been hard to grow anything. Trade has been very good, especially in funeral work and in bridal flowers, which seem to have no let up, even though the thermometer is ranging above the nineties. Considering all things, the quality of the flowers has been very good. There are still some good roses, Maryland, Kaiserin and Killarney, Valley and Bermuda lilies are still quite plentiful, and serve to make other flowers go well. Sweet peas are about gone, and in a very short time now asters will take their place. All the growers have candytuft and such like to fill in with and it helps a little.

NOTES.

McIntyre Bros. have had a wonderful success, since moving into their city store, upon the fashionable West End avenue, and have expanded considerably in other ways. Their new plant on the Murfreesboro road is already in operation, and presents quite an imposing appearance. They are continually adding to their capacity, and to further facilitate their business have taken out articles of incorporation under the name of the McIntyre Floral Company, asking for an authorized capital stock of $37,000. Last year the company added to their real estate and buildings some $25,000, and propose to spend a similar amount this year or in the near future, doubling their present capacity, and in every way increasing their facilities. The incorporators are Dan, William and Thomas McIntyre and their sister, Miss Nellie McIntyre. The latter is an expert designer, and is head saleslady in the store.

Tom Joy, of the Joy Floral Company, is the happy father of a beautiful baby boy, and has had the four generations photographed, all named Thomas Joy. Mr. Joy has recently enjoyed an outing and fishing trip to the mountains, his efficient clerical force running the store during his absence.

Geny Bros. are planting for next season's crop, largely from their own propagation. Roses and carnations are being bedded. They have added one new house, 40x200 feet in size, and have built another lean-to.

INDOOR FLOWERS IN DEMAND.

Extreme heat has prevailed over this locality for two weeks or more. No rainfall to speak of with the result—parched up lawns, stunted fields of corn and gardens are damaged beyond the help of rain, if it comes now. With fruit scarce and a shortage of vegetables, the coming season means a pretty hard one, for prices always soar, when there is a scarcity and also a demand. The dry season has put an end to out of door flowers. The demand for indoor flowers has been excellent. June has been a very profitable month, quite a demand for flowers and fair prices kept up—by that I mean, the good flowers brought fair prices for this season of the year. Except for a wedding now and then or a funeral, the season is practically over for the next two months. Now is the time the florists think about their recreation and outings.

NOTES.

The Gardeners' Club will go to Ocean City, the latter part of July, for a few days and will be entertained by Messrs. Harrison at their home in Berlin, on the trip down. The Messrs. Harrison have extensive nurseries at Berlin. The cultivation of peaches is a specialty and grown to great perfection there. The florists look forward with much pleasure to this trip, as they remember a similar outing there about four years ago and the pleasant time enjoyed there then.

Wm. Johnston and family, well known florists of Baltimore, sailed Wednesday, on the "Mauretania," from New York, for the other side, to be away until September.

Miss Alexia Anderson, daughter of Andrew Anderson, florist, is at home for the summer. Miss Anderson is a teacher of Domestic Science in Philadelphia, Pa. B.

The Horticultural Society of New York.

An exhibition was held on Saturday and Sunday, July 5-6, in cooperation with the New York Botanical Garden, in the Museum building, of that institution. Prizes were offered for sweet peas, herbaceous plants, Japanese irises, shrubs and trees, and vegetables. The following were the awards: Six vases sweet peas, 6 varieties, 25 of each. Miss M. T. Cockcroft, Saugatuck, Ct., Adam Paterson, gardener, first; Miss B. Potter, Ossining, N. Y., Geo. Wittlinger, gardener, second. Vase of sweet peas, 100 sprays, 1 or more varieties: John I. Downey, Portchester, N. Y., Thos. Ryan, gardener, first; Miss M. T. Cockcroft, second. Collection of herbaceous plants: Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., Jas. Stuart, gardener, first; G. D. Barrow, Rye, N. Y., James Linane, gardener, second. Collection of shrubs and trees: T. A. Havemeyer, Glen Head, N. Y., A. Lahodny, gardener, first; G. D. Barron, second. Twelve different vegetables: Miss B. Potter, first. Six different vegetables: T. A. Havemeyer, first. Special prizes: Miss M. T. Cockcroft, for a vase of Gardenias; Max Schling, for a basket of flowers, diploma.

Some time ago an announcement was made of three special prizes for vegetables for the exhibition next November. One of these was offered by M. C. Ebel. It was suggested to Mr. Ebel that in view of the two other vegetable prizes he should transfer his prize to something else. He has consented to do this, and will offer the same amount divided as follows: For a collection of hot-house fruit, $35.00; for two bunches of hot-house grapes, one black and one white, $15.00. The Horticultural Society will offer a second prize of $20.00 for the collection of fruit and a second prize of $10.00 for the grapes.

Remember the date of the next show is October 31 to November 4, and it is hoped that the local societies will so arrange their dates as not to conflict with this, for the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners takes

JULY MEETING.

John Rovik, chairman of the baseball committee for S. A. F. and O. H., reported suits prepared for his team bearing the inscription of the "Minneapolis Florist Club," and the boys were practicing every Thursday evening, assuring the club that they would be in readiness for the great event and give the "All Star" team a real taste of baseball.

The July meeting of the Minneapolis Florist Club was held July 1, at Rice Brothers' store, 218 N. 5th St., the attendance was very large and shows the spirit the boys are taking here in their organization. Five new members were voted in, and a report of committees was read.

Theo. Wirth, chairman of the convention association, made report of progress of convention matters, all committees were making exceedingly good headway on their work and everything was practically at completion now.

William Desmond, president of the club, left on a two weeks' vacation to International Falls, Minn., taking the eleven o'clock train immediately after the meeting, and the members gave him a sendoff for a good time.

A letter was read by the secretary from Wm. F. Gude, chairman of the Wm. R. Smith Memorial Committee, and a subscription was voted and immediately forwarded to Mr. Gude.

An adjournment was taken until the first Tuesday in August.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

CUT FLOWER EXHIBITION.

The Florists and Gardeners' Club of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, which is composed largely of members of the floricultural classes, held an exhibition of cut flowers during Monday and Tuesday of commencement week, June 16-17. This exhibition was largely attended by local people and commencement visitors and proved an attractive feature of the week. A large number of named varieties of peonies were on exhibition from the trial plots at the college, also many of the herbaceous perennials which are in flower at this season. The college also exhibited varieties of carnations, roses and sweet peas. This exhibit was supplemented through the generosity of many of the commercial and private growers of the vicinity.

The A. N. Pierson Company of Cromwell, Conn., sent splendid vases of Dark Pink Killarney, White Killarney and Lady Hillingdon roses. W. H. Elliott of Madbury, N. H., and Brighton, Mass., sent vases of American Beauty, Christine Miller, Mrs. Taft and Lady Hillingdon roses. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, sent a vase of Princess Dagmar carnations. O. D. Allyn, a rose enthusiast of Holyoke, showed 36 varieties of hybrid perpetual and hybrid tea roses. S. A. Wilde of Taunton sent 40 varieties of indoor roses and 60 types and varieties were received from Elizabeth park at Hartford, Conn.

The past year has been a progressive one for the department of floriculture. There were eight members in the graduating class and all of these have secured desirable positions.

This excursion is for the bowling club, and we hope every florist will close part of the day so as he can take his wife and family or his sweetheart down and enjoy themselves.

BUSINESS AT A LOW EBB.

The feature of the week was its holiday aspect; the week of the Fourth never does amount to much in a business way and this year very many of the large stores closed on Thursday night not to reopen until Monday following. A general exodus to out of town resorts was the result and business dropped to the lowest ebb of the year. The extremely hot weather has had a bad effect on the stock, but there was an abundance of fair quality for the light demand. "Eastern Beauties," many of them from the Hudson river district, are now the choice of the market and clean up well. My Maryland is the best pink and local Kaiserin is the best white for home consumption, but do not ship well. Carnations are failing fast and move slowly. Asters are coming and are a welcome addition. There is plenty of good valley and Easter lilies are carried by all the houses. Gladiolas, splendid flowers, are a feature. Sweet peas are on the wane, the extreme heat hastened their exit, heavy thunder showers on Friday and Saturday will save them for awhile.

NOTES.

The July meeting of the club was largely taken up with the National Flower Show, which may come here, three years hence. Much opposition has developed to the proposition to use one of the floors of the Wannamaker department stores for the purpose. A committee was appointed to look over all likely buildings and report next meeting, as to secure reservations in a building for two weeks two years is not too far to look ahead. Discussion of convention matters show that not very many have as yet made up their minds.

The Washington brethren are having trouble with the Sunday trade. They want to close for half a day. What is the matter with the capital? Take a leaf out of our book. No saloons open, no barbers open, no flower shops open. Orders taken for Sunday delivery are attended to by the men "on" for the day, whose only duty is to see to their delivery. No one stocks up for Sunday, no growers peddle their stock. One commission house is open from 9 to 11, then everything is closed and all put in a day of rest as each desires.

The Jos. Heacock Co. at Roelefs have added to their highly efficient plant a ## BUSINESS VERY SLOW.

Business was very slow during the past week, as will be readily understood. While the heat has not been "killing," it has been warm enough to turn the thoughts of the multitude to beaches and other resorts, and to cool drinks, rather than to flowers. Necessarily, in a great city like this, funeral work, steamer orders and a limited counter trade keep something doing, but taking account of July 4 falling on Friday and the large number of people who left the city for that day and the remainder of the week, business was very lean.

JULY 7.—Business is almost at a standstill this morning. There was a great exodus from the city for July 4th and as many of the leading business houses closed for both Friday and Saturday, all lines are somewhat upset and forgetful of flowers, are working hard to regain lost ground. Weather partly cloudy and delightfully cool.

NOTES.

All the leading firms in the wholesale district closed their stores on Sunday, July 6, and kept them closed. There were one or two that claimed they had to keep open for a short time to receive shipments. There were one or two others who kept open for the apparent reason that they think it "smart" to try and defeat this movement, which is for the good of all branches of the trade. The pioneers, the men of brains and enterprise in the wholesale business, are to a man for Sunday closing, and we are satisfied that they will not be deterred in their resolution to put it in force by the stubbornness of a few dense minds.

A violent electric storm, with rain, broke over this city between 1 and 2 p. m. July 5, lasting for half an hour. Many buildings were struck by lightning. At Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn, Charles Haynes, Stanley Yonkers and Philip Sullivan, gardeners employed by James Weir, the florist of Fifth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, were at work, and took refuge under a tree. They were struck by lightning and Haynes, 53 years old, was instantly killed, and Yonkers seriously injured.

Mrs. L. A. Hauser, wife of L. A. Hauser, a well-known dealer in asparagus and smilax, returned on July 1, from an eight weeks' trip, which included Havana, Cuba, and other southern points. She first visited her son, Lieut. J. N. Hauser, of the 5th U. S. Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., going from there to Havana. The trip was principally for her health, and she returned greatly improved.

Harry Bunyard, secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, who recently returned from Boston, where he went to arrange the preliminaries for the exhibition to be held July 12-13, is enthusiastic relating to the prospects for a fine show. He expects 5,000 vases of sweet peas will be staged.

W. Atlee Burpee, wife and family sailed for Europe July 5 on the liner Minnetonka. On the dock they were waved adieu and bon voyage by Harry Bunyard and other friends. Mr. Burpee had previously sent a check for $145.00 for prizes and guarantee for sweet pea show.

The "Big Father" of 28th street is in excellent health and never looked better. He hopes to see his many friends at Minneapolis.

The outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association will take place on Wednesday, July 9, and a good time is expected.

Newport, R. I.

FLOWERS AND FASHIONS.

The flower show seems to have opened the fashionable season, and well it might, for it was well attended by the beauty and fashion of the summer colony. In visiting Newport one may well wonder why as a summer resort it should be deserted for less desirable places where the chief industry is "skinning" visitors. Nature and art, largely landscape art, have combined forces and made Newport an ideal summer resort. Its picturesque capes and headlands have been adorned with fine mansions surrounded by the finest efforts of the gardeners. The sea, the sky, the earth are all propitious to health and the enjoyment of life. Add to all this the "bonhomie" of all classes of citizens and there seems little more to be desired.

NOTES.

The visitor to Newport who patronizes horticultural activities and everybody seems to be doing it now, should not fail to call on James McLeish, 39 Roseneath avenue. Mr. McLeish established himself in Newport in 1872. He came from Roseneath, Scotland, and in his honor the city fathers created Roseneath avenue.

At present, and in the past, his principal business is growing hot house grapes, peaches and nectarines, and each season he grows them by the ton. He has now both grapes and nectarines that will be ready for market in a very short time. Mr. McLeish is a fine example of a man who knows his business and attends to it.

H. J. Haas is very active in growing both flowers and vegetables. He has a very neat retail flower store on Thames street which is cared for by his sons, he devoting most of his time to his garden and greenhouses.

William Jurgens is pushing work on his new dwelling house, and at the same time cutting large quantities of lily of the valley and sweet peas.

Mamaroneck, N. Y.

It is a pleasure to visit growers who are equipped for doing business and know how to do it. Calling recently on G. E. Baldwin & Co., orchid growers and importers, Mamaroneck, N. Y. we found a range admirably adapted to their purpose and one that, we may add, has been erected with an eye single to results. In one large lean-to house 50x125 feet we found thousands of orchid plants, all in fine condition. There are other smaller houses filled with orchids of all varieties and all showing evidence of the most intelligent care in growing and handling. This firm, of which G. E. Baldwin, a very clever and capable young man, is the head, will just as cheerfully sell plants as flowers. We believe that the importation and sale of plants is the leading feature in their business, but there are always flowers to be disposed of. They are handled by James McManus of Twenty-eighth street, New York city.

The Baldwin greenhouses, which were erected by the Lord & Burnham Co., are as fine and as substantial as we have ever seen. The walks throughout the range are of concrete and where it is necessary there are adjustable lattice shades for the glass. The office is a large and finely equipped and furnished room, better than that of many a metropolitan business house of great pretensions. This firm ships orchid plants to all parts of the country and is constantly extending its business. The range can be reached from Larchmont Manor station on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad or by trolley line from New Rochelle, N. Y., or Stamford, Conn.

TOLEDO, O.—C. W. Mordoff, E. D. Moore, A. J. Sperber and others have incorporated the Maumee Greenhouse of this city, with a capitalization of $15,000.

BOZEMAN, MONT.—More sweet peas are being grown in this vicinity this season than ever before. It is estimated that the acreage is close to 20,000.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Charles C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I. N. Y., First Vice-President; W. F. Thurlkerson, Painesville, O., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendal, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, June 1914.

VISITED CHICAGO: S. A. Wilson of the L. L. Olds Seed Co., Clinton, Wis.

GOSHEN, IND.—The Harper Seed Co. will move from the Mummert building to West Lincoln avenue.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade July 9 were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $5.00 per 100 pounds.

FRENCH BULBS.—Prices are stiffening on Roman hyacinths while paper white narcissi are lower, that is, the 13-centimeter and up.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—The Door County Seed Co. has asked permission of the city council to erect a two-story elevator on their premises adjoining the railroad track, also to have a track built into the elevator.

WATERLOO, IA.—The Galloway Bros.-Bowman Seed Co. has raised its capitalization from $300,000 to $500,000 and will carry out extensive improvements to the plant at a cost of $45,000. A new seed house and two new greenhouses are planned.

WICHITA, KANS.—F. M. Borders, who bought the Central Seed Co. last December, reports a great increase in the volume of business. The firm is now in a flourishing condition. Mr. Borders attributes a good share of his trade to judicious advertising.

BAY CITY, MICH.—The Gregory Farm Seed Co., which was organized last November with a capital stock of $30,000, reports excellent business. Dr. Virgil Tupper is president; E. J. Schriber, treasurer; Frank Gregory, secretary and manager, and Charles M. Baumgarten, assistant secretary.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Harnden Seed Co. says the trade this season is 30 days late and very satisfactory, although in dollars and cents not any larger than last year's business, prices on most staples being considerably lower. The retail business at both this firm's uptown and downtown stores has been exceptionally good, especially the bulb and plant trade. The cut flower and plant department recently added to the uptown store has given good results thus far.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Walter P. Stokes, in referring to the seed business of the present year, says: "We have had a very substantial increase in orders during the months of January, February and March. April did not show up so well, and I imagine that owing to weather conditions some of the March increase came from business that ordinarily would have come to us in April. The slump in the price of seed potatoes also cut a considerable figure in reducing gross sales in April and May. Business has shown up very well as compared with previous seasons."

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—The Lake Shore Seed Co. will build a modern fireproof building to take the place of the one destroyed by fire June 17.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—Dean and Julius Funk, of this city, and associates plan to buy La Branche plantation of 10,000 acres from the Suburban Realty Co. and establish the biggest seed farm in the world. If the deal is made, they will plant the entire acreage in seed corn. It is said that they expect to buy another tract of 10,000 acres of reclaimed land bordering Lake Pontchartrain and owned by the same company.

DENVER, COLO.—The Colorado Seed & Nursery Co. say that the seed trade here has been exceptionally good all this season. There has been an unusual amount of precipitation which has encouraged farmers, gardeners and all planters to put in greater acreage. The grass and grain trade has not drawn on the seedsmen as much as formerly since many of the farmers had their own supply. The garden seed trade has been better than anticipated. The lateness of the season has prolonged business very satisfactorily, making good prospects here this season.

New Jersey Seed Crops.

Pedricktown.—The usual seed crops of this locality went into the ground under normal conditions, with increased acreages of tomatoes and peppers. Egg-plant, squash and other vine seed crops about the usual acreages. Throughout the early part of the season crops were affected considerably by excessive rains, late frosts and beetles, which retarded growth as well as causing extra replanting. Some of the early set fields of peppers and tomatoes were cut down by the frost in May. Fortunately most farmers had sufficient plants for re-setting. With the passing of the cool nights that have prevailed for the last two weeks and a return of seasonable weather, from now on seed crops should produce fair yields.

Edgar Hurff is building a tomato pulp factory at Swedesboro, N. J., to utilize tomatoes as by-product after removing the seeds. The necessary buildings are well under way and machinery is being installed. Canning and seeding operations will start early in August.

George R. Pedrick & Son report an unusually heavy trade in seed corn and other seasonable seeds this spring, as well as in plants and roots.

Danish Seed Crops.

Odense, June 11.—Prospects for 1913 harvest of summer vegetables, says L. Daehnfeldt, are yet good. The mild winter did not do much damage, although a severe drought in spring threatened the crops and did some damage, as it was accompanied by insect attacks. We have since had plenty of rain but, of course, the harvest depends on the coming months.

Cabbage (early) suffered severely from frost and the crop will be rather short. Late cabbage passed uninjured through the winter but the late frosts in spring killed many of the young sprouts. The present status of the crop is fairly good.

Radish suffered severely during the dry period and the earth flies have destroyed large areas, so that even if the summer should be favorable the harvest surely will be below the average.

Turnip prospects are very disappointing, plants suffering from the rain last fall, also from the spring frosts. Very short crops are almost certain.

Cauliflower suffered a good deal during the dry weather, but if the may yet be about medium.

summer proves favorable the harvest Rutabagas are very disappointing, suffering so much from insects that a short crop is certain with high prices.

Beets promise less than a medium yield, frosts doing much damage to the early planted fields.

Brussel sprouts promise to give medium harvest, some acreage being destroyed by insects.

Spinach and peas look well and the harvest should be good under normal conditions.

Carrots passed uninjured through the winter and promise a good yield.

Kale has been attacked by insects and the crop will be under medium.

Mangels promise well with favorable weather conditions.

Kentucky Blue-Grass Seed In Germany.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:—

Referring to the last sentence in the above article in your issue of May 10, page 912, which says: "The seed is usually bought by samples which are thoroughly tested by the buyer as to purity and fertility," I wish to mention something of my experience which may be of interest to the readers of your valued paper. I think you know that I am importing very large quantities of the various American grasses, some 20 carloads every season, and I have found in regard to Kentucky bluegrass that some Kentucky dealers are very reliable and have their seed tested by government testing stations so as to be able to state the purity and growth when offering it for sale. In this way I bought a few carloads and was well satisfied with the deliveries, which turned out excellently. I used to buy 21 pounds bushel weight and on an average got seed of at least $3 to $6 seeds are all grown by myself and are offered in the following mixtures and separate colors:

KENILWORTH STRAIN—The flowers are of perfect form and substance; many of the immense flowers are from 3½ to 4 inches; it is a striking collection of beautiful colors and markings, rich with shades of red, brown, bronze, mahogany and many others too numerous to mention.

KENILWORTH SHOW—An extra fine strain of large flowers; the immense flowers are of circular form and great substance; a beautiful collection of colors and markings.

KENILWORTH CUT FLOWER MIXTURE—Is a distinct class by itself, surpassing all other strains as a cut flower or for exhibition purposes, for inside or outside growing; the large flowers are carried erect above the foliage on heavy stems, 7 or 8 inches long, in the most graceful manner, and stand the hot, dry weather well.

MASTERPIECE—A remarkable type; the curled, wavy petals giving the flower a double appearance, its large flowers of great substance, on long, strong stems.

per cent purity and 82 to 87 per cent growth, which results are very satisfactory for this species.

However, I have at various times had reason to complain about some less careful Kentucky blue-grass dealers supplying seed of low quality with a growth of sometimes less than 50 per cent. Only last season I bought some from a Paris firm with only 51 per cent germinative power, which caused me much inconvenience and a heavy loss as I have to give a strict guarantee of a certain high percentage of growth and was compelled to give an allowance for the lower values. I should think, therefore, that it would be to the interest of all honest dealers to induce the Kentucky firms to furnish percentages of purity and growth on a basis of tests by a government station.

I may frankly say that I am using more Kentucky blue-grass than any other dealer in Europe, and as I supply all my seeds with a guarantee of the analysis, I must look for absolutely correct and reliable growers and exporters in Kentucky. I understand large quantities of the 1912 crop have to be carried over and the next few months is the most suitable time for the owners to have their stocks carefully sorted and tested. If you will kindly bring this subject to the attention of your readers you will certainly earn the thanks of the European importers of American grasses.

Montrose, Mass.

The visitor to Boston who appreciates good rose growing will find a few hours profitably spent in visiting the Montrose Greenhouses, at Montrose, Mass., a short distance from the city. There is a range of about 75,000 square feet of glass. The property includes a farm of more than 100 acres, on which about 30 cows are kept. The place is owned by N. F. McCarthy of Boston, and is very ably superintended by Eber Holmes, who has achieved great success as a rose grower. Under the guidance of Mr. Holmes we were recently shown over the place and have never seen a cleaner stock of roses.

One rose house is 32 x 500 and two others are 50 x 300 feet. Another, 60 x 500 feet will soon be erected. There is a fine stock of Killarney Queen, Double White Killarney, Richmond, Lady Hillingdon and other varieties. Twelve hundred plants of Milady and 1,000 of Mrs. Chas. Russell have been planted this season. The houses are well built and fitted up with every convenience. One noteworthy feature is a subway or tunnel connecting the houses that stand some distance apart, thus affording protection in passing back and forth in bad weather. The greenhouses have their own water supply, which is pumped from a nearby stream to a reservoir on a hill from whence it reaches the greenhouses by gravity pressure.

The cow stable furnishes ample manure and the manure water from the stable, which is on higher land than the greenhouses, is carried through a conduit to a large tank at the greenhouses. At the present time wooden benches that have grown old are being taken out and replaced by concrete protected beds, though this work has been going on in the range for several years. As a plant auctioneer and dealer in cut flowers, Mr. McCarthy has long been known to the trade but all may not know how deeply he is interested in growing. Mr. Holmes is also well known. He has been in charge of the range since it was erected and, as previously stated, has had great success. He owns a house near the scene of his labors, is married and has an interesting family. It may be added that he is well known as the author of a book on rose growing.

Trees and Shrubs for Nebraska.

The Nebraska experiment station has issued a bulletin in which is contained an interesting article on shrubs and ornamentals suitable for that state. The importance of irrigation is pointed out as is the fact that the list should be confined principally to native species. The exceptions noted include the honey locust and the Russian olive for ornamental purposes, and evergreens for both ornament and wind breaks. The cottonwood and box elder are recommended for quick growth, and for more permanent trees the choice is the American elm, honey locust, hackberry and black walnut. Black Hills spruce, Western yellow pine and Jack pine are preferred among the evergreens. It is pointed out that the red cedar should not be planted near an apple orchard as it is the host of the "cedar apple," which is injurious to certain varieties of apple trees. Among the shrubs mentioned are the tamarisk, Spirea Van Houttei, several kinds of honeysuckles, snowballs, common and Persian lilac, mock orange, golden elder, cut leaf sumac, flowering almond, Siberian pea tree, the native flowering currant and Thunberg berberry. The pansy, tulip, peony, dahlia, phlox and gladiolus are all found to do well.

LANSING, MICH.—City weed cutters may have to take a course in horticulture, according to Supt. Ward Hill. They mistook a row of beautiful popples growing along the sidewalk of William Campbell, and cut them off as weeds. Mr. Campbell will try again next spring.

DENVER, COLO.—Thomas W. Hannah, the manager of the Denver Wholesale Florist Co., who disappeared June 4, has not been heard from as yet. Mrs. Hannah has succeeded in tracing him to the Pacific coast, where he sailed five days after leaving Denver. His disappearance still remains a mystery.

TULSA, OKLA.—Messrs. Scharfenberg & Giddings, proprietors of the Tulsa Greenhouses, enjoy the distinction of being one of the largest growers of plants and cut flowers in the state. ### Phosphates.

It is a question of some importance to determine what form of phosphate to apply to a greenhouse or garden soil. In greenhouses where the soil is changed after each season it seems reasonable to expect that an almost insoluble and so slowly available form as rock phosphate would not give the results that a form readily soluble, like acid phosphate, would.

Carnations were raised at the Illinois Experiment Station in the three years 1909-1912 in sections of the same size and treatment, excepting that in one section acid phosphate was used and in the other, rock phosphate. Three varieties, Beacon, Enchantress and White Perfection, were grown, 24 plants of each being used. The average production per section for the three varieties is given below:

Acid phosphate treatment—Ave. all varieties 1909-1912, 367.8 flowers; Ave. per plant, 15.3 flowers. Rock phosphate treatment—Ave. all varieties 1909-12, 342.7 flowers; Ave. per plant, 14.3 flowers. These results were obtained when 1 lb. of acid phosphate per 100 sq. ft. and 4 times as much rock phosphate had been applied. With larger amounts (4 lbs. of acid phosphate and 16 lbs. of rock phosphate) about the same results were secured in each case: Acid phosphate 4 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.—Ave. all varieties 1909-12, 368.3 flowers; Ave. per plant, 15.3 flowers. Rock phosphate 16 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.—Ave. all varieties 1909-12, 363.2 flowers; Ave. per plant, 15.1 flowers. The difference in the first case is 25 flowers per 24 plants, or 1,000 flowers per 1,000 plants. When figured this way the extra profit from using acid phosphate is seen to be considerable.

In this case, of course, very little manure was used with the phosphate (about 125 lbs. per 100 sq. ft.) and the conditions that would tend to make the rock phosphate available were not obtained. If more manure had been applied with it, or heavy mulches subsequently applied, as is usual with roses, it is possible that as many flowers would have been obtained. The rock phosphate used in this experiment, although only one-half as expensive per ton as the acid phosphate, really cost twice as much, since four times the quantity of the acid phosphate used, was applied. So it seems best to use a more readily available form on soil which is renewed yearly. I believe that for application to a field where large amounts of manure are being added also, for use in ground benches where the soil will not be removed for several years, as an addition to manure in filling up the bench below the soil, in any case where the phosphate can work for several years, and where plenty of decomposing organic matter is present, it is economical to use rock phosphate.

Contrary to what would be predicted from certain theoretical considerations limestone does not hinder the availability of acid phosphate, but rather aids in making it available. This is especially true in clayey soils and those containing much iron. Bone, especially steamed bone, although the same chemically as rock phosphate, is much more readily available than ground rock. This is due to the fact that throughout the structure of the bone are minute particles of organic matter, blood vessels, and the like, which decay readily and in doing so act upon the particles of bone about them and make them more soluble. Fatty substances also are present in the raw bone. These do not readily decay and for this reason steamed bone (steaming removes the fats) is much superior to raw bone if immediate results are expected. The more finely ground bone is, the more easily can the soil water and putrefying bacteria act on it, hence the importance of securing finely ground bone for immediate results.

There is not the danger of overfeeding with rock and acid phosphates that there is with nitrogenous compounds and potash salts. In the experimental work at the Illinois Experiment Station, twenty pounds of potassium sulphate, or the same of dried blood, applied in portions approximately once a fortnight to sections of 40 sq. ft. were sufficient to ruin the flowers in the latter part of the season, while during the past year, 35 lbs. of acid phosphate have been applied in weekly portions to carnations with no sign of injury.

FROM THE BRITISH TRADE PRESS.

A Good Plant for Shade.—Hypericum calycinum, commonly known as Rose of Sharon or St. John's Wort, will be found useful for planting in shady places, such as under trees, providing these are not exceptionally dense, where it is sometimes difficult to get grass to become established, says a writer in the Garden. The plants are easily increased by division, and pieces with roots, planted now, will soon furnish ground which would otherwise remain bare. It is advisable to plant thickly to get the ground covered in a short time, and apart from cutting off the old growths in the spring, when the new ones appear, the plants will need little attention.

The Best Bedding Pelargonium.—At the trial of bedding Pelargoniums held by the Royal Horticultural Society at Wisley last year, it was proved that there was no advance on some of the older and well-known varieties. Paul Crampel was considered to be much the finest scarlet-flowered bedding variety in the whole trial, which included ninety-eight stocks.—The Garden.

Effects of Poisonous Substances on Plants.—This is being investigated at the Rothamsted Experiment Station, and the investigations that have already been made suggest that the

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Nic. Krier's New Greenhouse Boiler

The Biggest Money Saver There Is For the Grower

You can burn the cheapest grade of soft coal and burn all the smoke. This Boiler heats quicker than all others. You always have a steady heat. The magazine always works perfect. Your coal always comes down and you save 25% to 35% on your coal bill. The magazine on the top of the self-feeding boiler only has to be filled once in every 24 hours. Fire-door can be kept closed all night. The night fireman has only six minutes of actual work to do and that is to shake the grates three times a night and this holds good even in the coldest of weather, far below zero. This boiler was used and tested for three months in extreme cold weather and found to be perfect in every respect. You should have one, the price is very reasonable.

We Have Built Greenhouse Boilers for the Last 16 Years (always at the same place, 2725-2727 N. Marshfield Avenue, Chicago.

We also build the Square Hot Water Self-Feeding Smoke Burner Boilers to heat at least from 8,000 sq. ft. to 30,000 sq. ft. of glass. We build 11 sizes of Square Boilers, water space all around front, sides and back. Boilers are made of the best fire-box and flange steel and charcoal iron tubes.

The Fire Box Self-Feeding Smoke Burner Hot Water Boilers heat quicker than the Firebox return tube boilers. The fire goes to the top and bottom tubes at the same time, heats the water quicker and gives you a steady heat. The coal comes down always the same and burns the smoke. We build these boilers in 12 sizes to heat from 4,000 sq. ft. to 30,000 sq. ft. of glass. These boilers are also made of the best fire-box and flange steel and charcoal iron tubes.

Steam Boilers We build Fire-Box Self-Feeding Smoke Burner Steam Boilers in all sizes made of the best fire-box and flange steel and charcoal iron tubes.

Moninger Co.'s New Planer.

The John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, is now installing a large new planer of the latest type, which is fitted with six feed rolls. The capacity runs from 1/2 inch thickness, up to 8 inch thickness, and 40 to 60 h. p. is required to operate the machine depending of course on the speed. The new device is arranged so that very accurate dressing can be done and without the hilly appearance so often seen on lumber dressed by ordinary planes. The total cost of installing this machine will be approximately $2,500. It is a great improvement in the Moninger factory, and will place the firm in a position to handle a much larger quantity of lumber.

Krier's New Greenhouse Boiler.

The Nic Krier Boiler Works, 2725-2727 N. Marshfield ave., Chicago, is now manufacturing a new self-feeding smoke burner, hot water boiler. Mr. Krier says that the boiler is so constructed that it is a great money saver for the grower because he can burn the cheapest grade of coal and all the smoke. The magazine, which is on top of the boiler, needs only to be filled once in every 24 hours, and all that the night fireman has to do is to shake the grates about three times a night. He says that the boiler was used and tested for over three months in extreme cold weather and was found to be perfect in every respect. This firm has built greenhouse boilers for the past 16 years, but the new style, self-feeding, smoke burner, hot water boiler that it is now placing in the market, is, according to Mr. Krier and his son, A. M. Krier, the best that their shop has ever yet turned out.

Cast Iron Boilers Waste Fuel

I had a cast iron 8 section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I only had 2050 sq. ft. of glass heated with the 8 section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have another boiler than a Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

The judges were: Thos. Roland,

Madison, N. J.; Edward Kirk, Bar Harbor, Me.; Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.; A. H. Wingett, Lenox,

T. Hutchins, Millbury, Mass.; Arthur
Griffin, Woburn, Mass.; W. H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y., and Wm. Kleinheintz, Ogontz, Pa.

The exhibition was the finest ever held by the society and as a special show was equal to any ever held in this country. Though essentially and specifically a sweet pea show much other good stock was seen, including orchids, outdoor flowers, fruits and vegetables. The exhibition occupied the three large rooms of the building.
Prominent on the lower main floor were the exhibits of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., W. Attee Burpee & Co., and A. T. Boddington, as well as many smaller collections. The Farquhar exhibit was very finely staged, there being many accessories in arches and evergreens. In the quality of stock the Burpee exhibit seemed to excel and in our opinion was well worthy the gold medal awarded it.

In the large upper room, in addition to many vases, there was quite an array of mantels and table decorations, baskets and bridal bouquets. All were interesting. We will here, however, take issue with some of our good friends, the designers, in regard to their manner of constructing a bridal bouquet. The exhibitors at this show are not the first who have erred along this line, for in all the late shows the tendency has been to construct a bridal bouquet along the lines of a cabbage head. The poor bride has enough to think about without lugging along one of those monstrosities. The exhibit of vegetables and small fruits, such as raspberries, gooseberries, currants, cherries, etc., was very fine.

At the meeting it was reported by Secretary Bunyard that the society was in a very prosperous condition.
In response to an invitation from the Horticultural Society of New York, it was voted to hold the exhibition of 1914 in that city. An invitation was read from the Panama Exhibition committee of San Francisco, asking the society to hold its 1915 exhibition in that city. Prof. Beal detailed the progress of the work on the trial grounds at Cornell and G. W. Kerr read an interesting paper on sweet peas.

Sweet Pea Trials of 1913.

At this time it may be desirable to note the progress made in the sweet pea trials. This work was undertaken in the Autumn of 1909, when plantings were made for the purpose of determining whether it is feasible to plant sweet peas in the fall. The results of this work were reported in bulletin No. 301. The testing of varieties has covered four seasons. During this period a large number of varieties have been grown each year.
These have not all been distinct, for a number of varieties have been grown every year for the purposes of comparison. The number of varieties grown each year is as follows: 1910, 469; 1911, 435; 1912, 370; 1913, 200.

When we began our studies of sweet peas, it was decided to make a thorough study of the evolution of the sweet pea, and for this purpose a large number of the older varieties were grown. These have now been dropped from the trials, which explains in large measure the smaller number of varieties grown during the last season. Each year careful and complete notes have been taken of all the varieties, which give us, in the case of those varieties grown for comparative purposes, a record of the behavior of varieties in different seasons. In the case of the novelties, however, most of them have only been grown one season.

Three publications have been issued, and the writer is rapidly putting into final form all the descriptive notes on varieties. This material will be ready for publication at the close of the present season. The publications which we have already issued have had a gratifying reception, not only in this country, but in England.

This year the seeds which were received for trial were sown singly in 3-inch pots during the last week in March. Each pot was carefully labeled so that no mixing of varieties in handling could possibly happen. The pots were placed in the greenhouse until germination occurred, and then were transferred to coldframes, where they remained until they were planted in the field. The preparation of the land was similar to that which we have practiced heretofore. There was no rain for three weeks after transplanting, and for a time we thought the chances of success very unfavorable. However, the plants grew well after the rains and began to bloom about June 20. This year we have abandoned the use of string as a support, and have employed wire netting. This serves the purpose very well, except in the case of some varieties which required tying to the netting. In addition to the 150 varieties sown in pots, about 100 varieties were planted in the open ground. Owing to the late, cold season these were not planted until April 18, and at the present time only the Blanche Ferry and its near relatives are in bloom in this part of the trial ground. On the other hand, the plants from seed sown in pots are now blooming freely and are making a splendid show. This affords an excellent illustration of the relative earliness of the same varieties grown by the two systems.

Among the varieties of recent introduction now growing on the trial grounds are: Barbara, Bertie Usher, Betty, Blue Jacket, Captivation Spencer, Chastity, Coronation, Cyril Unwin, Dobbie's Cream, Edith Taylor, Irish Belle, John Ridd, Lady Evelyn Eyre, Lady Knox, Leslie Imber, Margaret Madison, Loyalty, Mauve Queen, May Campbell, Melba, Millie Maslin Spencer, Mrs. Cuthbertson, Mrs. Hestlington, Mrs. T. W. Warren, Orion, Pearl Gray Spencer, Primrose Beauty, Princess May, Red Star, Rosabelle, Scarlet Empress, Scarlet Emperor, Vermilion Brilliant, Winifred Unwin, Zarina Spencer, Andrew Aitken, April, Brunette, Bolton's Scarlet, Charm, Clematis, Dobbie's Scarlet and Dobbie's True Lavender, Earl of Lovelace, Ella Kelway, Felicity, Gustav Hamel, Grace Darling, Helen Pierce Spencer, Inspector, Lillian, Laura Wyatt, Lila, Lord Nelson Spencer, Lady Miller, May Perrett Spencer, Mrs. E. Cowdy, Mrs. Reginald Hill and Southcote Blue.

At the present time, so far as we have studied the varieties, it appears that those of merit are: May Campbell, marbled carmine on cream ground; Charm (Fordhook Fairy), white, suffused with delicate bluish lilac; Orchid, rich, deep lavender suffused with pink; Dobbie's Scarlet, brilliant scarlet; Lady Evelyn Eyre, a very large bluish variety; Lila, a distinct variety, standards faint lilac, deeper at midrib, wings very light primrose; Orion, crimson; Mrs. Cuthbertson, rose pink standard and white flushed pale rose wings; Walter P. Wright, bluish lavender.

At the present date we would report that Inspector is better than Melba, and that both are better than Earl Spencer. The former shows a good percentage of doubles. Dobbie's Scarlet appears to be the best of the bright scarlets, although Red Star is good. Margaret Madison is doubtless better than Flora Norton Spencer. Leslie Imber and Southcote Blue are no better than the latter. Helen Pierce Spencer, May Farquhar, Lord Nelson Spencer and Millie Maslin Spencer are good, but we will report on them later. Loyalty, Bertie Usher and Blue Jacket are blue striped varieties. Cyril Unwin resembles Arthur Green.

Wm. Sim.

There are several cream pink, white, orange, maroon and mauve varieties, but nothing which at this date is superior to the standard varieties. These brief notes are subject to possible revision after further study, and the members of the society are referred to our forthcoming report for complete descriptions and comparisons of varieties. The recently organized Department of Floriculture proposes to continue to test new varieties of sweet peas each season, and hopes that the work which has been carried on may justify a continuance of the excellent support which the American Sweet Pea Society has given the work hitherto carried on at Cornell.

PLANT NOTES.

Pyrethrums.

An early summer flower that is very showy and beautiful, ranging in colors from white to the deepest scarlet with all the intermediate shades, is the Pyrethrum roseum, and it is being much more grown every year for cut-flower purposes. The best flowers are to be obtained by buying named varieties, but good selected seed will give fair satisfaction and many handsome flowers. The greatest trouble in growing these plants in the north is the danger of winter killing and crown rot during extremely wet spells in hot weather. Seed sown during July and August and wintered in houses or cold frames will produce plants that will flower next summer. Obtain the best seed possible and sow in flats and as soon as large enough pot in 2½-inch pots. These can be grown on in a frame until cold weather comes on, when they can be securely covered or carried into a cool house and wintered under a bench, started in March and planted out as soon as secure from frost, and will flower in June and July.

Paper White Narcissi.

The Paper White narcissi are now being received and as soon as delivered should be unpacked and spread out in flats or on shelves in a cool, dry place. If they remain in the original cases, they are apt to become moist or heated when packed closely. They should be handled carefully and not thrown around so that they become bruised or the outer covering torn off. This covering is a great protection for the bulb, preventing it from drying. Plan how the bulbs are to be flowered, that is, how many are to be brought forward each week, and start at once to box up the first lot and then continue the plantings at the desired intervals. The flats or boxes should be prepared at once, not only for these, but for the other bulbs. It is the general custom to use any old box that can be obtained, and they are, therefore, of different sizes and different depths. They do not pack closely when placed outside, neither do they seem to fit on the bench in an economical manner. Our experience has been rather than to buy a mixed lot of boxes or different sizes, it is better and cheaper to purchase stock at the lumber mill and saw it into the proper length. Get one-half-inch stock, three inches wide, for the sides and bottom and one-inch stock the same width for the ends. Saw the ends 12 inches long and the sides 24 inches. This will make a flat 13x24 inches by using four pieces for the bottom and will allow proper drainage. A flat of these dimension will hold about 50 Paper White narcissi or 60 to 70 tulips, and will cost but little more in the price of the box and can be made with much less labor, and when the boxes are all of one size they can be placed upon the benches with much saving of room. As soon as the bulbs are planted in the flats they should be placed in a dark, cool place and covered with soil or ashes until rooted, when they can be brought into the houses. The early planted bulbs will require good heat to bloom them successfully, much warmer temperature than the later planted bulbs.

Sweet Scented Geraniums.

The grower who has a stock of rose or other sweet scented geraniums can turn them into good account by planting them in a bench in the greenhouse and can obtain some fine sprays for winter cutting. The green is very much appreciated by the best trade and there is always a demand in the stores catering to that class for more of this than can be obtained. The sprays are cut 12 to 14 inches long and are used in the boxes of cut flowers. There is also a demand for the leaves, to be placed in the finger-bowls at luncheons. It is easily grown in a cool house and very rapidly makes long sprays fit to cut. The plants can be set about eight inches apart, which will give them plenty of room, provided the sprays are cut as soon as they are long enough for use.

Hydrangeas.

The young stock that was propagated this spring can be grown either for Easter blooming with a single stem or for summer blooming with three or four heads. The plants should be now potted in 4-inch pots and plunged in a frame, where they will receive attention. They should have a good rich soil and a strong, sturdy growth encouraged. For those that are to be bloomed early, as soon as the pot becomes full of roots a little liquid manure will help the formation of a good strong bud. Those that are wanted for summer blooming, the tip can be rubbed out and branches will form. Leave the plants outside until the first light frost, which will harden off the wood, and they can then be stored in a cool house or pit where they will not freeze. Those wanted for Easter will have to be placed in heat by the first of the year.

Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

The early rooted Begonia Gloire de Lorraine will now need shifting into 3½-inch pots, and should be given a little stronger soil than the young stock was potted in, but the manure used should be well rotted, and, where obtainable, a generous addition of leaf-mold. As the plants grow, space them out so that they will not become drawn and so that there is a good circulation of air around each plant. They will need a little shade on the glass for a few weeks, yet, but it should not be too heavy. As the nights become cool it is well to close the frames down if they are outside, or if in the greenhouse, close the ventilators, leaving a small crack of air on, or the house will sweat, which is not at all beneficial to begonias, as it is very apt to cause spot on the leaf. If this occurs remove the leaf at once. Care should be taken in the watering not to wet the foliage any more than possible. The later rooted stock will not need plotting up until later, but all the growth possible should be obtained by giving them the best of attention. If the grower has not stock enough on hand, now is the time to purchase before the plants are shifted into large pots, when the price will be higher and the transportation charges increased.

Tacoma Rose Show.

The third annual rose show of the Tacoma Rose Society, recently held in the Armory, was beyond a doubt, one of beauty and success. Large crowds were constantly in attendance, and the unanimous expression was that it was the best yet, and with no possible chance for any locality to produce more beautiful and perfect roses. Hundreds of varieties were shown, including every type, and the number reached nearly 100,000 fine flowers. An idea may be had of quality when we say they were selected from millions.

The judges selected as the 12 most perfect roses of any one variety a collection of Madam Caroline Testout, grown in the Thornhurst gardens and exhibited by Mrs. Chester Thorne.

The broad blue ribbon, signifying the grand prize, was attached to the jar in which the dozen regal pink blossoms stood, and the Rose Society cup was presented to Mrs. Thorne. The best three Hugh Dickson roses, for which the Rotary Club offered a cup, and for which also Hugh Dickson of Belfast, Ireland, specified his intention of making a handsome award, were shown by Mrs. J. F. Garrow. This trophy will have to be won three times in become established in these frames, thus utilizing the space that has been occupied with bedding stock in the spring, and allowing the greenhouse space to be put to other uses during the summer, and also to be repaired and painted where the latter may be needed. The potting of seedling ferns is a somewhat tedious operation, but may be done to better advantage if the work can be divided among several hands, for example, one to lift like very minor details to those familiar with the work, but these details all count for success, and the beginner at the business does not always remember them at the right time.

Potting soil for these small plants should be sifted rather fine for convenience in handling, and a light loam will answer the purpose very well, avoiding the use of fresh manure in the soil on account of the possible excess of ammonia in such material. Insects do not trouble the young ferns to any great extent in the frames, unless the weather should continue very hot and dry for a long period, when an outbreak of thrips may be looked for, and in order to avoid this trouble it is good practice to spray the young plants at intervals of a week or so with one of the nicotine solutions, no spraying of this character being needed until the plants have been established for some time. There is more danger from thrips if grass or weeds are allowed to grow near the frames, such plants being natural hosts for these pests. The spraying should, of course, be done toward night, when it will be much more effective than during the sunny hours of the day. Those growing Boston ferns, and there are few retail growers who do not handle more or less of these useful plants, will find that the stock plants that were planted out in the bench early in the season are now producing runners freely, and the young plants should be taken off as soon as they develop some roots, and potted into small pots.

It is surprising how rapidly these nephrolepis grow, and one way in which to assist nature in forming salable stock quickly is to plant three young plants together from 2-inch pots into a 5-inch pot, thus forming a shapely plant in a short time, at a comparatively small outlay. The original Boston fern, and also the dwarf varieties of it, for example, Nephrolepis Scottii and N. Glatrisii, will stand quite free syringing overhead during warm and bright weather, and be benefited by it, but the cut-leaved and crested Nephrolepis do not enjoy syringing to the same extent, succession by the same grower before it becomes permanent property. The displays made by Tacoma florists were beautiful. The Metropolitan Park board put in a display of especially fine out-door hardy blooms and plants. Mrs. Watson received the cups as awards for the finest display by any professional florist. Tacoma is literally and truly a city of beautiful roses and homes, and all people who visited our show expressed themselves surprised with delight. Receipts were larger than expenses, which insures a good show next year. The rose "Hugh Dickson" has been selected as the Tacoma Official Rose.

and separate the clumps of seedlings, another to do the potting, and others to carry away and set the plants, not forgetting the necessity of watering in the young plants as fast as they are in position to receive it, for a little neglect in this particular may result in a serious check to the plants. Both roots and foliage of these young ferns are delicate and it is therefore best to have the potting bench in a shaded position, and one that is not too much exposed to the wind, and also to have the work so timed that there will not be too many loose plants lying about on the potting bench exposed to the air. Some of these things may seem

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Potting Ferns.

The month of July usually provides plenty of work for the fern grower, from the fact that about this time much of the young stock is ready for potting off from flats or pans. Those of rapid growth, among which are various members of the Pteris family, are likely to get too large for convenient use in fern pans when potted off early in the summer, but when placed outdoors in shaded frames with abundant ventilation, these plants will keep shorter in growth and make more serviceable stock for autumn use than those that have been kept in the greenhouses. The frames should have an inch or two of fine ashes or sand on which to set the pots, and the sashes should be raised on a light framework above the walls, in order to allow a free circulation of air at all times.

When properly cared for in regard to watering the young plants will soon such treatment tending to bend down the fronds, and sometimes inducing damping off in the center of the plants. Any old plants of these ferns that may have been left over from the spring sales should be carefully looked over for scale insects, for they are very liable to become infested with that troublesome brown scale that soon makes yellow spots on the foliage. It is better to throw away such stock than to try to clean it and at the same time to take the risk of infesting young stock with the same insect.

Cibotium Schiedel is a fern that grows into money quite rapidly during the summer months, but not every small florist can handle this fern to advantage, from the fact that his customers may not appreciate it to its full value, and in some small towns Boston ferns at 75 cents to $1.00 each may be sold very much more rapidly than Cibotiums at $2.00 and upwards, and for that matter this does not apply to small towns only. But where it may be sold, and that area is doubtless increasing every year, the Cibotium is a most satisfactory fern, extremely graceful and beautiful, and what is even more to the point, a very reliable house plant. Young plants of this fern from 3-inch or 4-inch pots still have time to reach a useful size before winter, provided they are potted on as they require it, and given a moderately shaded house, plenty of water after they are established, and an abundance of fresh air.

W. H. TAPLIN.

THE CARNATION.

Seasonable Notes.

At this season, the old plants are rapidly approaching the close of their term of usefulness, and tearing out the plants, emptying and repairing the benches, refilling with fresh soil, and thoroughly cleansing the houses, are the order of the day, and of many days in most carnation establishments. While some growers have adopted concrete benches for their carnation houses, the majority still use wooden benches for this purpose, and this signifies that more or less rotten wood may be encountered each season at the time of emptying. Cypress benches, with a liberal coating of whitewash, last a long time, in some cases more than ten years, but yet there may be some sappy pieces among the lumber, and consequently some repairs. It is also the best time to repaint the interior of the houses, while the plants are out, though it is not always convenient to do this work at such a time. A good fumigation with sulphur is also beneficial to the empty houses, in killing various insects, and a thorough cleaning of all rubbish from beneath the benches will also help to provide better conditions for plant-growing. All these operations are likely to occur during the hottest period of the year, unless it may be an exceptional season, like that of 1912, and some shading on the houses will make the work much more bearable, and will do no harm to the new stock, when it is planted in from the field, unless the shading is made too heavy or allowed to stay on the glass too long. In the meantime, the young stock in the field must not be overlooked, for on their welfare depends most of the success of the coming season. Keeping the surface of the soil open and free from weeds, and hand-weeding around the plants if necessary, so that the plants get all the benefit possible from their temporary sojourn in the open air, are simply details of the weekly routine at this time, but they are all necessary in order to produce the best results. Topping will require attention each week, unless the weather proves very dry and unfavorable, for the shoots run up very quickly, and the more breaks one can get before lifting the more flowering shoots the plants will carry later in the season, and planting time is coming on rapidly, with its additional work, and this, also, brings with it some details, among which may be found the admonition to balance the work so that the plants will not be kept out of the ground long enough to do them serious injury. Dig fast enough to keep the planters supplied, but do not have a lot of plants lying around in the sun, for it takes some time for them to recover from such treatment, and some of them may never recover. Then water in thoroughly, so that the water will reach all the roots of the plants, repeating the watering two or three times, if that be required to thoroughly permeate the ground. Such a watering as this may keep the plants in condition for several days after planting, if they are regularly sprayed overhead, three or four times per day for the first few days. A good hard plant from the field will take up much moisture after planting in the greenhouse, but such a plant will recover much quicker than one with a soft and sappy growth, such as has been produced in a wet season. Then get staking and tying attended to just as soon as possible after planting, for when the plants are spread all over the ground they are likely to get broken, besides the dirt that gets washed over the foliage in watering. In short, "keep everlastingly at it" is a good motto for the carnation grower as well as for the advertising man.

VISITORS to Cap d'Antibes, France, have been much impressed by the dainty flowers of the new freesias.

SUBSCRIBERS should renew promptly to insure regular delivery of the paper. The yellow address label on the paper shows date of expiration.

THIS season Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, and other hybrids and varieties of that type, appear to be affected by what James Sproule called "growth depression."

In a recent circular the department of horticulture of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition calls attention to its $1,000 cup to be awarded for the finest unnamed new rose never before exhibited. Competition is open to all. The exposition opens February 20, 1915, and because of the mild climate the management expects to have the outdoor exhibits growing in the ground at least seven months in advance of that date.

THE Argentine Touring Club has decided to award a special gold medal annually to the landowner in the province of Buenos Aires who plants the most trees at the sides of the public highways. The trees may be fruit or forestal, and instructions and advice concerning planting may be had from the Touring Club.

Convention Sports Prizes.

C. N. Ruedlinger, local chairman of the Society of American Florists' convention sports committee, advises that he is now ready for such prizes as members of the trade wish to donate for the sporting events to take place at Minneapolis, Minn., during convention week, August 19-23. All contributions and donations for this purpose should be addressed to C. N. Ruedlinger, 2924 Aldrich avenue south, Minneapolis, Minn.

Minneapolis Trade Exhibition.

John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists and superintendent of the trade exhibition, is now located on the ground at Minneapolis, where intending exhibitors should address him, care of the Andrews hotel. Mr. Young reports that everything in connection with the forthcoming convention and exhibition has been attended to splendidly by the local trade. The outdoor plant exhibit, under the able supervision of Vice-President Wirth, is in a most satisfactory condition and should be just right for inspection during convention week. This outdoor display will be a pleasant surprise to many of the visitors.

Chicago to Minneapolis.

The Chicago Florists' Club has selected the Chicago Great Western railroad as the official route to Minneapolis, Minn., for the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, August 19-22. The Florists' Special will leave the Grand Central Station, Fifth avenue and Harrison street, at 6:15 p. m., August 18, arriving in Minneapolis August 19 at 7 a. m. The rate from Chicago to the convention city and return is $16.00. Florists and their friends, whether members of the club or not, who start from or pass through Chicago, are cordially invited to join the crowd for the trip. The train will be one of the best appointed in the country, and will include buffet-library cars, compartment-drawing room sleeping cars, observation and dining cars. The sleeping car rates are $1.60 for upper berth and $2.00 for lower berth. Compartments are $5.00 and drawing rooms $7.00. A table d'hôte dinner on the train will be a feature of the trip. Full information may be had by addressing J. B. Deamud, Chairman Transportation Committee, Chicago Florists' Club, 160 North Wabash avenue, Chicago.

Hail at Columbus, O.

What was probably the most disastrous hail and wind storm of its history, visited Columbus, O., July 9, and resulted in damage to buildings and crops to the extent of $150,000. Hailstones from 2 to 3¼ inches in diameter accompanied by a 45-mile-an-hour wind landed with such irresistible force that the stones bounded six feet in the air, when striking hard surface. Garden truck and corn crops south of the city suffered almost a total loss. The heaviest sufferers from the hail and wind were the greenhouse and nurserymen. The largest single loss was sustained by the Columbus Floral Co., the loss to its seven greenhouses on Groveport Pike, being reported about $20,000, in spite of the double strength glass. In the greenhouses of U. G. Swingle, a half mile south of the Columbus Floral Co., not a single glass was broken. Other florists and nurserymen who suffered loss from the hail are reported as follows: H. W. Kropp, $3,000; Peter Fornoff, $8,000; Emil Metzmaier, $2,000; the Hellenthal plant, $3,000; C. A. Roth, $5,000; Theodore Olpp, $2,000 and Sherman Stephens, $200. Mr. Kropp had just finished putting glass in four new greenhouses and not a whole pane remained after the storm. At the Livingston Seed Company farm, four miles west and north, there was not enough rain to drive persons to shelter and their crops were not damaged. About one-third of the glass in the greenhouse at Schiller Park was broken, and scarcely a house on east High street and south Deshler avenue escaped broken windows. The storm lasted about eight minutes, and afterwards the hailstones were picked up with shovels to clear the flower beds.

The Late John Faber.

John Faber, the first florist to start in business at Kankakee, Ill., died July 9 at the age of 90. He was of German parentage and was one of the founders of St. Mary's German Catholic church. Mr. Faber established a greenhouse and cut flower store in 1869 and continued in business until 20 years ago, when he retired, turning the business over to his sons, who now operate under the name of Faber Bros. The late Mr. Faber is survived by five children: Tracey, John, Jr., and George Faber of Kankakee; Sister Celesta of Joliet and Barthol Faber of Hammond, La.

July.

Spires of swinging bell-flow'rs, drifts of rosy phlox, Plunks in spice-sweet clusters, softly-color'd stocks,
Blue-flam'd larkspur torches splendid 'galust the sky—
Ah! that's Summer's pageant, ah! that's sweet July.
Magic beds of poppies, roses rich and rare,
Roses darkly damask, roses ev'rywhere,
Roses tossing gold-cups with the wind on high—Ah! that's pomp of Summer—ah! that's sweet July.
Hollyhocks most stately, silken-bloom'd and sweet,
Freakish palsy-faces smiling at their feet,
Sweet peas pois'd like fairies, forth at dusk to fly—
Ah! that's Summer's wonder—ah! that's sweet July.
Lilies of Our Lady, pale and cool as snow,
Lavender all blue mists, herbs in order'd row, Soogs at dusk and dawning, soft airs stealing by—

A SCARCITY OF STOCK.

Stock on the local market was scarce on Saturday, July 12, but this was not due altogether to the increased demand, although trade was a little better than it has been, but to the general shortening up of stock. Carnations are about done and what few really good blooms are arriving are disposed of quickly at fair prices. Roses especially are much scarcer and have advanced considerably in price. White roses are in good demand and clean up quickly. American Beauty roses are moving better than for some time and now command better prices. Some good northern grown peonies are arriving but these also sell well and no great surplus is to be seen. Orchids have advanced in price also and the best blooms are now selling at $5.00 a dozen. Gladioli are bringing good prices, especially the best Augusta, of which some fine stock is now arriving. Asters have made their appearance but in no great quantities and move quickly, cut blooms of hydrangeas and phlox are obtainable and there is still a large surplus of gaillardia, schillea, feverfew, daisies, gypsophila, larkspur and marigolds. Silver Pink snapdragons are to be seen at some of the stores and pond lilies are still offered in large quantities. Greens of all kinds are plentiful with the exception of galax. Business was much quieter the opening of this week but trade last week was very satisfactory and much better than was expected. July so far has been a very good month compared with last year according to some of the wholesale houses and while trade could be better, the majority of the dealers seem to be pretty well satisfied with the amount of business that they are doing.

NOTES.

It has just been called to our attention that John Kruchten's name was omitted from the list of the young men on the market who presented Pitcher Brown of the Cincinnati team with 200 American Beauty roses in the afternoon of July 4 in an item which appeared in our last week's issue. Mr. Kruchten is a warm admirer of the star twirler and is always on deck when it comes to presenting the well-known player with any bouquets.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fogarty entertained a number of their friends at their home, last Thursday, July 10, and among those in the trade who were present were: A. T. Pyfer and wife, Dominick E. Freres and wife and the Misses Nettie Parker and Olga Tonner. Everyone had a delightful time and report that the "eats" were splendid.

Mrs. Frank Williams, of the Atlas Floral Co., is spending her vacation at Mount Clemens, Mich. Miss Hirshberg reports business at the store as good, and says that one of the many orders that were filled the past week was a beautiful casket cover of Killarney and White Killarney roses and orchids.

John G. Lambros has filed a petition in bankruptcy and the first meeting of the creditors, when a trustee will be appointed, will be held on July 22, at 10 a. m., in Room 907, Monadnock building, 53 West Jackson boulevard.

A. T. Pyfer of the Chicago Carnation Co., left on July 14 to enjoy a vacation at Dixon. Jack Byers, this firm's obliging young salesman, is back from a delightful outing at Saugatuck and Fremont, Mich.

Harry Nicholson, who has been visiting his folks at Framingham, Mass., stopped off here, on July 12, to visit friends, leaving the day following for Excelsior, Minn., where he has charge of a commercial place.

Percy Jones received a large shipment of six inch netting, this week. Judging from the way this shipment is disappearing one would say it is good property, for it is moving rapidly at the prices offered.

Fred Ottenbacher, of the Zech & Mann force, says that his wife was discharged from the Chicago Union Hospital, last week and that she is slowly recovering from the effects of her recent operation.

Adam Schutz, who recently purchased the Max Klippin store, at 3118 West North avenue, is well pleased with his present location and is steadily building up a good trade.

Chas. Drissler, of the Wietor Bros.' store force, is enjoying his vacation and it is rumored that he left with his family to take in the sights at Yellowstone Park.

Erne & Klingel are receiving a large supply of outdoor flowers and are featuring a fine grade of Silver Pink snapdragons and northern grown peonies.

George Propps, head salesman at George Perdikas' Dearborn street store, has returned from St. Paul, Minn.

P. J. Foley has returned from Lake Geneva, Wis., where he spent several days fishing, his favorite pastime.

Richard Rolson is now in the employ of Wieland & Risch, at their city salesrooms.

Emil Jehlik and family are visiting relatives at Muscoda, Wis.

Louis Wittbold is spending a few days at Wheeling this week.

Mrs. W. Vik is enjoying a well-earned rest in Wisconsin.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is offering some tuberoses which are grown by Michael Pink, their head salesman, and will have a good supply for several days yet. J. F. Kidwell has returned from a business trip to the east and is again attending to his duties at the store.

Kyle & Foerster are still offering peonies in quantity and expect to have a good supply for several weeks yet. It is rumored that Archie Spencer will be one of the popular baseball fans that will make the trip to the world series as the guest of one of the leading sporting journals.

At J. A. Budlong's store lily of the valley is arriving in quantity and the quality of the stock is as good as can be expected at this season. Trade was very lively at this store last week and while the supply of roses was quite large it was almost impossible to fill all the orders.

Wietor Bros. have finished planting their chrysanthemum plants and the stock in general throughout the houses is looking fine. This firm is now cutting a good supply of American Beauty roses from the young plants and their stock has been in very good demand the past week.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report two very good days, July 11-12, both the local and shipping trade showing a great improvement. Asters have made their appearance at this store and are having a good call.

Kennicott Bros. Co., is supplying its customers with some of the finest gladiol of the season in addition to northern grown peonies.

L. E. Partridge, of Sharp, Partridge & Co., is spending a week visiting with his family at Lake Geneva, Wis.

M. J. Haley of Glencoe is building two new violet houses.

Greek successes against Bulgaria have aroused the patriotism of the local Greeks to the point of raising additional funds to help meet the expenses involved in the renewal of hostilities. Among the first organizations to rise to the situation was the Greek Florists' Association, which on July 13 placed in the hands of O. S. Lambros of the Greek Star, $1,505, to be sent to the Greek government. The association has only 25 members and one of the largest contributors to the fund was Nick Korson of the Chicago Florist Co., 120 North State street, who gave $500.

Florian D. Wallace, the tornado insurance expert, is calling on the growers every day and is meeting with a great deal of encouragement on all sides, nearly everyone thinking well of his proposition. Mr. Wallace will give a short talk on greenhouse insurance before the Cook County Florists' Association at its regular monthly meeting at the Tavern July 17.

The Garland Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. will succeed the George M. Garland Co. at Des Plaines, operations to begin at once. George M. Garland is chief of the new concern and will be assisted by G. E. Whitney and H. S. Garland. There is plenty of material on hand and a number of good orders have been secured.

Theodore Kirchen, Oscar Leistner's city salesman, is enjoying his vacation in the mountains of Colorado and will be away for several weeks yet. He will call on the jobbing trade in the west on his way back, returning some time before the convention. Mr. Leistner will make a business trip east as soon as he returns.

W. S. Burling with the Martin Grate Co., is again seen at his office in the Fisher building, after having been laid up for some time with a broken shoulder. Mr. Burling was injured several months ago, when his auto overturned, but he is feeling much better now and is glad that he can be at work regularly once more.

A. C. Kohlbrand, of the E. C. Ameling Co., left on a fishing trip to Torch Lake, Mich., on July 12. Bert Cole of the same firm left on that day also, for the Wolverine state and John Michelsen has returned from a visit with his folks at McHenry.

O. Johnson says that the Batavia Greenhouse Co. is not cutting very heavily in American Beauty roses at present, but expects that it will have a nice supply in a week or two. The gladioli that this firm is offering are deserving of immediate sale.

Guy Reyburn, with A. Henderson & Co., has returned from a delightful visit with relatives in Pennsylvania. A. Miller is entertaining his brother Ben, who came up from the Lone Star state to see the sights of the Windy City.

Zech & Mann's new home is a great improvement over their old location and when the finishing touches are completed they will have one of the best equipped wholesale stores in this city.

Joseph Ziska, Jr. expects to leave next week for Iowa to visit relatives. It is rumored that he is going on his honeymoon but the writer has been unable to verify this.

Mrs. V. F. Kramer of Evansville, Ind., has charge of the new florist department at Hillman's large store, which was open to the public for the first time on July 14.

Frank Ayer of the Chas. W. McKellar force is away on his vacation. Frank Schleiden, McKellar's crack marathon runner, has returned from his vacation.

The J. B. Deamud Co. is still featuring a large supply of pond lilies and many of these flowers are now to be seen featured in a great many of the retail stores.

Dominick E. Freres says that the roses he is receiving from the Adam Zender greenhouses now are helping to make the July rose sales a record breaker.

Otto W. Frese says that the supply of orchids has shortened up considerably and that the best blooms are now selling at much better prices.

Hoerber Bros. are having no trouble in disposing of their choice stock and the flowers are disposed of almost as quickly as they reach the store.

At George Reinberg's store My Maryland and American Beauty roses are arriving in good condition and selling quickly.

Ed. Boulter of Wilmette and Fred Hicks of Hubbards Woods will sail on the S. S. Mauretania for Europe July 24.

The Cook County Florists' Association will meet at the Tavern, West Washington street, Thursday, July 17.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the La Salle Hotel July 10, President French in the chair. There was a very good attendance, considering the hot weather, and a large amount of business was transacted. The tables in the meeting room were handsomely decorated with excellent carnations contributed by the Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Chairman Deamud of the transportation committee read a number of letters from various sections of the country, indicating that there will be a big out-of-town crowd for the convention special Aug. 18, and he is desirous that reservations be made early. The price of the round trip is $16, upper berth $1.60 and lower berth $2. Mr. Deamud's address is 160 N. Wabash avenue and his phone number Central 3155.

Chairman Waters of the good-of-the-club committee reported that the lake trip proposed for the club's outing had been abandoned, and a picnic at Erhardt's grove, Park Ridge, to take place Sunday, August 31, was then decided upon. Prices of round trip tickets for the picnic were fixed at 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children, subject to railroad fare.

Oscar J. Friedman invited the club to hold the August meeting at San Souci park and the invitation was accepted. J. B. Deamud being appointed to make all necessary arrangements for this gathering. To reach San Souci park take the south side elevated to Sixty-third street, or the Cottage Grove street car to the park.

Many letters were received from victims of the flood and wind storms thanking the club for its efforts in their behalf, and the thanks of the club were extended to the numerous donors of stock and supplies for this purpose.

Two new members were proposed: F. J. Rose, 1322 Nelson street, and Ben Grupe, Park Ridge.

St. Louis.

GOOD STOCK IN DEMAND.

Very warm weather continues. Stock of good quality is much in demand. Pink asters have arrived and we can expect lavender and white in a week or so. Killarney roses open up quickly. Gladioli from outside are starting to come in, but they are small owing to dry weather. Smilax was scarce the latter part of the week. American Beauty roses are coming in, but they lack the substance and their keeping qualities are poor. Here and there a few bunches of sweet peas are seen, but they are practically over. Galax and asparagus are selling fairly well. Stock was scarce Saturday and Sunday. Such a scarcity has not been seen in a year.

CLUB MEETING.

Last Thursday, July 10, the St. Louis Florists' Club, about 50 strong, met at Eads' bridge at noon and took the cars to Edwardsville, Ill., to hold their regular monthly meeting and receive the hospitality of F. C. Ammann, who received the boys with open arms and furnished them with automobiles so they could see the town. The meeting was an important one. The nomination of officers for the ensuing year, discussion of convention matters and picnic, etc., took up the time. Frank Robinson of the Colliseum Company talked on behalf of the fall flower show to be given by his firm. Mr. Robinson managed a very successful show at Kansas City. He desired the florists through the St. Louis Florists' Club to canvas and collect from the retailers $2,000 to be given in prizes for window decorations by the merchants during flower show week. A visit to F. C. Ammann's greenhouses was made and then came the automobile ride through the city. Two applications for membership were received. The applicants are Frank Robinson and Wm. Bouche. The following were nominated for office: W. J. Pileher, C. C. Young, Edwin Denker, president; Henry Blixen, Adolph Jan-eicke, vice-president; J. J. Beneke, secretary; W. C. Smith, treasurer. Trustees for three years, Frank Windler of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., Martin Monn of the St. Louis Seed Co., and C. Bergsterman. A committee of 25 was appointed to raise the $2,000.

NOTES.

Everything is in readiness for the annual picnic to be given Thursday, July 17. The wholesalers as usual expect to win the baseball game. Al Gumz, Frank Windler and Fred Alves have been showing the umpires a good time all week. George Schriever of C. A. Kuehn's staff has been practicing with his famous fadeaway drop ball.

Nathaniel Kingsley of the Mullanphy Flower Co. says his partner, Wm. Seeger, needed a rest, so Mr. Seeger has taken a short vacation. The month of June was a busy one with this firm.

Mrs. Dugart of East St. Louis is doing a nice trade. She is a visitor almost every day to this market.

Gullett & Sons of Lincoln, Ill., are shipping some good American Beauty roses to this market.

David Geddes has been helping C. E. DeWever of Olivette during the latter's visit to Chicago.

A. C. Canfield of Springfield, Ill., is shipping quite a number of pink asters to this market.

Ernest Strehle, park superintendent, is very busy at Fairground park, preparing for the opening on July 15 of the new swimming beaches. He will attend the convention of park superintendents later at Denver, Colo.

C. A. Kuehn has the sale agency for the Perfection decorating stands and attachments, manufactured by H. G. Dryer & Son, Cleveland, O.; also the Revero garden hose. He says both lines are good sellers.

The committee of 25 appointed by the Florists' Club to get together the $2,000 for window decoration during flower show week will meet picnic day, July 17, in the afternoon at Ramona park.

George Berner, chief salesman at Alex Siegel's, returned from Chicago, where he has been spending his vacation. Mr. Siegel has left for the northern summer resorts.

John Barnard is doing a nice trade. Miss Vida Key, formerly with Grimm & Gorly, will be employed at the Barnard establishment after she has taken a vacation.

Henry Ostertag of Ostertag Bros. is very busy fixing a large concrete basement and giving the store a general overhauling.

W. W. Coles and wife of Kokomo, Ind., visited St. Louis on their return from Michigan.

Herman Mehans, of H. G. Berning's staff has returned from his vacation.

Cleveland.

Gladioli are beginning to arrive in limited quantities and will soon be a big factor on the market. Stock looks very promising. The first of the local aster crop arrived this week, and will be welcome for a change. The demand for Easter lilies and water lilies has been good. Carnations have cleaned up daily, and roses, too, have sold well. Lily of the valley and orchids have been a little scarce. Sweet peas are in good supply, but the quality is rather poor. Phlox, all colors, has been in good demand.

NOTES.

Everybody is cordially invited and earnestly requested to attend the Cleveland Florists' Club picnic, which will be held at the same place as last year, Puritas Springs park, Wednesday, July 23. Come and bring your friends and family; get acquainted and have a jolly good time. Baseball, races and the usual sports will be on the programme.

D. Charlesworth & Sons' greenhouses at Ansel road and East One Hundred and Fifth street are being torn down. The land will probably be sold or used for residence purposes, as it is located in a very desirable place. The retail store on Euclid avenue, near East One Hundred and Fifth street, will be run the same as before.

Fred Burger, 7214 Connecticut avenue, left for Europe Saturday, July 12, to visit old friends. He will be gone about two months.

G. W. Mercer is at Lakeside hospital for a week under the doctor's care. He expects to be home soon.

A. M. Coe, North Olmstead, is in the German hospital here, having been operated on for appendicitis.

STOCK OF POOR QUALITY.

This city has had a few heavy rains during the past week, but it doesn't seem to affect the heat, which is as bad as ever. Stock of all kinds is somewhat affected and it is very seldom that good flowers are seen. Roses and carnations still remain very poor, and it will be a great relief when the local aster season starts, which, by the way, is rather late in beginning, although a few are seen around the market stands. Gladioli have ceased to be a novelty, and can now be had at the wholesale houses in any quantity. America is fine, and such good stock in this variety is not seen every summer. Lilies are rather scarce, and are not missed greatly. Some good sweet peas and cornflowers have been coming in from the northern fields and find good sale, especially the large centurias, with their modest shades which catch anyone's sight. Small outside stock simply refuses to sell at all, and nearly all is thrown away, which is about the only way the wholesale man can get rid of it. In the green goods line, Sprengeri is very plentiful and has a close second in adiantum, which does not move any more, probably on account of the slow corsage bouquet business.

NOTES.

An important deal took place recently when the Colonial Floral Co. of Wilksburg bought the greenhouses at Centre and Aiken avenues, formerly operated by the Blind Floral Co., which firm still conducts a retail store at Liberty avenue and Fifth street. Chas. C. Wesley is manager and took possession at once. Men are now at work remodeling the houses which have lain idle for two years. They are rated as the finest in town, with a value of about $50,000.

A. C. Miller of Duquesne has bought the business conducted by his father-in-law, J. Elicker, located at Homestead, and takes charge July 14. Mrs. Miller will manage the Homestead store, while Mr. Miller will take charge of the Duquesne business.

President Neil McCallum of the Florists' Club reports that the picnic will be held at Ludwig Station on the Butler Short Line, some time in August, the exact date to be announced later.

The marriage of Mrs. E. A. Williams, one of our most popular florists, to Herman Junker, which was performed two months ago, has just been announced.

Wm. Q. Potter, manager of the McCallum Co.'s Cleveland store, rode to this city in his new Krit car Friday, visiting relatives in Waynesburg and friends in Pittsburg before returning.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of this society was held at Pembroke Hall, Glen Cove, L. I., Wednesday, July 9, with a fair attendance. President E. J. Brown presided and after calling the meeting to order spoke feelingly of the death of Thos. Harrison, who was the society's first president. The president also appointed a committee to draw up resolutions of condolence. Jas. Gladson, Glen Cove, was elected to active membership and two applications were received. Special prizes for the fall show were offered by the Stump & Walter Co., New York, and the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J. H. Boettcher, gardener to W. Hesler, Glen Cove, exhibited some very fine sweet peas, being awarded a certificate of culture for a collection of eight varieties and first prize for varieties of pink, white and red. It was decided to hold the dahlia show October 8. All classes will be open. Several good special prizes are offered for dahlias, vegetables and outdoor flowers, and anyone interested can secure a schedule by applying to the secretary. Prizes will be offered at the next meeting, August 13, for two cucumbers, 12 asters and 12 gladioli.

RAINS HELP STOCK.

Much cooler weather and abundant showers helped the situation wonderfully the past week. Sweet peas were almost too far gone to be benefited, but all other outside stock should show improvement. American Beauty roses have the call for anything choice in the shipping line. Taft and Maryland are also in demand, while Hillingdon shows that it is a good summer rose. Carnations are out of the running at present, the stock coming in very poor. Sweet peas of the local cuttings are no longer a factor. Eastern stock is much better. Easter lilies play an important part, selling well for funeral work. The choicer varieties of gladioli find a good market, being in demand for store decoration. They were never better than are offered this season. Lily of the valley is equal to the demand, as are cattleyas, superb flowers of which are offered daily. Asters are coming, but nothing of much account in the advance guard. Better stock is expected in another week.

NOTES.

John Burton retires from active business after 30 or more years of intelligent effort. He wants time to devote to other matters and turns the management of his 100,000 feet of glass over to his son George, whose adjoining place also contains about 90,000 feet. Nearly all this space is given up to the cultivation of American Beauty roses. 60,000 plants being required to fill the combined places. The stock from the old place has always been handled by Mr. Burton direct to the retail stores, but will now be sold along with that of George Burton's by the Leo Niessen Co. Shipping, which has been by train, will now be made by auto, a new car being purchased for this purpose which will get the stock down early in the day.

At the recent flower show of the Newport Horticultural Society, Newport, R. I., Henry A. At the Leo Niessen market business is said to be good for the season. Easter lilies and gladioli are leaders. Hardy ferns are also a feature. Quite a number of the force are now on their vacations.

Louis Berger has just returned from a business trip of three days among the growers. He reports that everybody is busy getting ready for the coming season and the outlook is good.

The M. Rice Co. is busy getting in its importations from abroad. The past week this firm received the largest consignments ever received in the same period of time.

CONDITIONS VERY POOR.

A Frenchman, who once visited London, was asked on his return what he thought of the climate. His reply was: "Climate? There's no climate. It's only a yellow fog." We may appropriately adapt his remarks to the present condition of the wholesale cut flower market of this city, and say that there is no market. The cheerful souls who keep their stores open and persuade themselves that they are doing business deserve much credit for their optimism. Conditions may not be much worse than they have been in former years, with the exception that each succeeding summer seems to bring in a larger supply of stock, while the increasing facilities for travel takes more people away from the city. Further, Wall Street has always been considered a good barometer for the flower market and Wall Street is now peevish. While there is some fair stock on the market a great amount of it is very poor, which adds to the congestion. Good American Beauty roses are almost a novelty and the same may be said of many of the tea roses. While much has been said about poor carnations, it is a fact that there are many arriving that are of better quality than could reasonably be expected at this season. In orchids there is an abundant supply of good stock, selling at about 40 cents a flower. Asters have been arriving for the past two weeks, but it is only recently that any passable stock has been seen. In gladioli, snapdragons and various minor flowers there is more than can be disposed of.

NOTES.

Mrs. Grulich, wife of J. Grulich, head of the firm of J. Grulich & Sons, which has two stores in Hoboken and buys in the New York market, died on July 9, after an illness of ten weeks. She was 62 years old. Like her husband, she was a native of Hungary, they having come to this country 20 years ago, since which time they had established a good business and won the respect of all who knew them. Mrs. Grulich is survived by her husband and four sons.

Miss Mabel Conkling, bookkeeper for H. E. Froment, has been heard from at Sackett's Lake, N. Y., where she is enjoying her vacation and is much pleased with her surroundings.

Long & Nugent had a large amount of funeral work on July 12 for the funeral of the mother-in-law of the Rev. Dr. Eaton, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., left for Minneapolis, Minn., July 12, to remain till after the convention.

Eddie Ankers, of Traendley & Schenck's staff, has gone to the mountains for a two weeks' vacation.

Greek-American Outing.

The outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association of New York was held at Witzel's Point View Grove on July 9, and was a most enjoyable affair. The attendance was not as large as it has been in former years, but the reason was that many of the patriotic young Greeks who had come here to seek their fortunes had returned home to fight for their Fatherland. The outing, throughout, was conducted in the most orderly manner. Among those who deserve much credit for its success are the officers of the association—James G. Carlafes, president; George Cotsonas, vice-president; John J. Fellouris, secretary; P. Theopine, treasurer. George D. Nicholas, former president of the association, was also present. The trip to the grove was most enjoyable and the various games and recreations were all interesting and closely contested. The awards were as follows:

Girls' race—Miss Manos, first; Miss Pullman, second.

Young ladies' race—Miss Nicholas, first; Miss Habon, second.

Married ladies' race—Mrs. Brevery, first; Mrs. Tellman, second.

Stone throwing—L. Anageros, first; Demotropolos, second.

Fat men's race—Jones, first; Loumis, second.

Plain jumping—Theo. Chirosos, first; Demotropolos, second.

In the baseball game between "Greek" and American teams, Sam Ernest, who acted as umpire, said that all the "Greeks" were Irishmen. As Sam is a man of character we will not dispute his word. Here is the line-up:

Greeks—Foley, Mitres, Ankers (pitcher), Bush, Bradley, Frank, Murphy, Angetos, Lownds.

Americans—Sullivan, Georges, O'Rourke, Rigo, Hoffman, Callahan, Devine, Toronso, Rock.

The score was 1 to 0 in favor of the Greeks.

Bowling—Geo. Roudires, first; F. Murphy, second; Hopwood, third.

Men's race—Theo. Chirosos, first; Jones, second.

The Marathon race of three miles was most interesting. Theodore Chirosos, being rated a good runner, gave the other contestants half a lap. Al Rigo put up a good race, but lost out for first. Chirosos was first; Rigo, second; Caramel, third.

CLUB MEETING.

It was an enthusiastic company that journeyed out to the station of Font Grove, about eight miles from Albany, to hold the July meeting of the Albany Florists' Club at the home of Frederick Goldring, formerly president of the organization. In the early evening an inspection of the grounds and greenhouses was made, after which President Frederick Henkes called the meeting to order in the large shipping shed of the Goldring establishment. Louis H. Schaefer of the publicity committee reported that advertisements in the local papers on Mothers' day and Decoration day had been paid for and that one had been inserted to help the trade in the June wedding season. The committee and the retailers expressed themselves as satisfied with the publicity campaign and more of it will be undertaken in the fall and winter. The secretary read a communication from W. F. Gude of Washington, D. C., calling attention to the efforts of the S. A. F. to erect a memorial to the late William R. Smith and asked the local club to co-operate. President Henkes appointed F. Goldring, E. P. Tracey, L. H. Schaefer, James H. Snyder, Robert Davidson, F. Henkes and Samuel Goldring a committee to solicit funds and to report at the next meeting. The subject of holding an outing and clam bake this year was brought up by Louis H. Schaefer of the entertainment committee. It was voted to hold it at Henkes Bros' grove, near Newtonville, Saturday afternoon, August 16. The price of tickets was fixed at $1.50 each. The members were urged by the entertainment committee to work unitedly for the success of the affair and the outlook is that the bake will be worth while. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of President Henkes Thursday evening, August 7.

NOTES

Meany & Tracey, proprietors of The Rosery, 23 Steuben street, have ordered a Chalmers motor delivery car which they expect to receive about August 1. It will be painted white, with gold letters. In explaining the reason for the automobile, E. P. Tracey said that the firm is receiving many orders from Troy, Watervliet, Green Island, Loudonville, and other places within a radius of eight miles and that delivery by horse has become difficult. The new automobile will be the first regular delivery of the kind by any florist in the city.

Among the recent visitors was Walter Mott, whose name is a familiar one to the trade in all sections of the country. He is now in the employ of Hammond's Slug Shot Works, Fishkill-on-the-Hudson.

UNUSUAL JULY SCARCITY.

The market presents a rather unusual condition for the month of July, inasmuch as flowers are actually scarce. With the exception of American Beauty roses and greens there is not really enough of anything to go around. Owing to the drought, the supply of outdoor flowers is very short. This makes the lack of roses and carnations more acutely felt. Lilies are very good property, selling readily at $1.75 a dozen. The first outdoor gladioli have made their appearance and sell at from three to six cents, according to quality. A few asters are coming in, but not enough of them to make any impression.

NOTES.

Carl Sonnenschmidt and Herman Junge are planning a fishing trip to a northern Indiana lake. They are going to try a new fish bait, the recipe for which was given to Mr. Sonnenschmidt years ago by a Capuchin monk in Switzerland. They anticipate great results from this concoction, for Mr. Sonnenschmidt says when he was preparing it the other day a large bass head, the trophy of a former fishing trip, happened to be hanging near by and he noticed that as soon as the alluring fumes of the bait began to arise the countenance of the bass took on an air of anticipation.

Frank Rieman, returning from a week's camping at Blue Bluffs, reports unusual luck in bagging big game, chief among which were a 37-pound catfish, an 11-foot snake and a turtle weighing 48 pounds. Our world-renowned inspector of weights and measures is going to pay Frank a visit in the near future.

Irwin Bertermann has just finished a garage of his own design. Irwin always did hold that the artistic possibilities of pecky cypress were neglected and he has shown in a very striking way what can be done with so humble a material in the hands of an artist.

According to reports, this city is going to be blessed with two additional Greek flower merchants. One intends to locate in the Severin hotel on South Illinois street, while the other will have his stand in the immediate vicinity of the Washington hotel.

Chris. Schwomeyer, successor to Herman Shilling, is kept hustling by a large circle of customers, while Mr. Shilling is taking it easy. Both gentlemen are enjoying their respective lots immensely.

The State Florists' Association and the Association of Northern Indiana Florists will hold a joint two-days' meeting beginning July 16 at Winona Lake. A very well attended meeting is anticipated.

GOOD DEMAND, SHORT SUPPLY.

The supply of stock of all kinds is very short. As a result it is quite a task for buyers at times to get what they want when they need it in a hurry. The demand is an unusually good one for summer and keeps the market cleaned up of all stock that is fit to use. The only flowers that are not selling are those that should have gone straight to the ash barrel as soon as they were cut. Shipping business continues fairly good. The gladioli that are coming in are, as a rule, very fine. Large numbers are arriving from out of town just at a time when the supply from local growers was letting down a little and was hardly sufficient to meet the strong request for this flower. Asters, when in good condition, have been selling nicely. The wholesalers are expecting a good supply of them before very long. The cut of roses is none too large. The offerings include some excellent American Beauty. The receipts of giganteum lilies are rather limited. All of them are selling as fast as they come into the wholesale houses. Rubrum lilies are also offered in limited quantities. Miscellaneous stock, such as snapdragon, feverfew and the like has been selling well because the supply of other desirable flowers has been short.

NOTES.

At the annual meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society Monday night, Jas. Allen was elected president; Ed. Schumann, vice-president; Chas. H. Hoffmeister, treasurer; Alex. Ostendarp, secretary, and Gus. Adrian, trustee. A special race has been arranged between A. C. Heckman, Jr., and Ray Murphy to be run at the outing next Thursday.

Thomas Windram, C. C. Murphy and Wm. Murphy leave on Thursday of this week on an extended trip to the Pacific coast and Canada. They will finally wind up at the Cheneaux islands.

Geo. Corbett and daughter are spending 10 days at Niagara Falls and other lake points.

L. H. Kyrk and wife leave Saturday for a two weeks' trip to the northern part of the state.

E. G. Gillett and his wife and daughter plan to leave for Traverse City July 26.

C. E. Critchell has just received another car load of sphagnum moss.

BUSINESS VERY GOOD.

Everything considered business is not at all bad. Nobody expects Christmas or Easter prices in the middle of July, but considering all conditions, good stock is selling very well. The best tea roses are selling at from $10.00 to $15.00 a hundred. It must not be understood that large lots go at these prices, but such figures have been reached within the past week. We do not note a heavy demand for special American Beauty roses, but what come in bring $3.00 a dozen wholesale. There is much short tea rose stock on the market that can be bought for from 75 cents to $1.00 a hundred. The supply of carnations keeps up surprisingly well, and the quality is even better than might be expected at this season. The supply of sweet peas is not as heavy as it was a few weeks ago, but there are enough to meet the demand. In orchids, lilies and the various minor stocks there is a plentiful supply.

NOTES.

After 25 years on one Tremont street corner, Thomas F. Galvin has removed, but only one door from his former street number. Repairs and changes are in progress on the building, which caused the removal.

Andrew Christensen of Stoneham brought to the Boston Flower Exchange on July 14, 6,000 carnations which were sold out by 9 a. m.

At W. H. Elliott's salesrooms on Park street we recently noticed fine roses in variety from his Madbury, N. H., range.

Edward Bingham of Dedham is bringing into the Exchange fine sweet peas, which sell for more than the average price.

Mann Brothers, Randolph, are bringing in fine stock of Liliun rubrum as well as a good variety of other flowers.

Mrs. Zinn's Flower Shop, 34 West street, seems very prosperous and the work it turns out is noteworthy.

J. T. Butterworth, South Framingham, had good orchids on the market July 14. A. F. F.

The Seed Trade.

American Seed Trade Association.

Charles C. Massie, Minneapolis, Minn., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I. N. Y., First Vice-President; W. F. Thurkelson, Painesville, O., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendal, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn., Assistant Secretary.
Next annual convention, June 1914.

FORMOSA lily bulbs are due early next month.

J. C. VAUGHAN and party celebrated the Fourth in Paris.

SWEET CORN in all sections is reported to be coming along nicely.

EARLY potato prospects in the Red River Valley are reported excellent.

DUTCH hyacinths are reported a smaller crop than last year, while narcissi are showing a fair yield.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade July 16 were as follows: Timothy, $4.25 to $5.00 per 100 pounds.

THERE is much complaint from bean growers and seedsmen regarding the loss of germination in the 1912 bean crop being carried over the summer. Michigan bean fields are a thin stand.

THE rainy weather in the vicinity of Chicago the past few days it is feared will cause the production of many over-sized onion sets. Many fields are very thin and a dry season was needed to prevent over run sets.

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—The Lake Shore Seed Co. has purchased the entire plant of the Lux Light Co., on West Third street, and will use the place for their seed warehouse. Plans for rebuilding the warehouse on Second street, which was burned, have been abandoned.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—The Henry Field Seed Co., Inc., did a much greater business this year than last, a total of nearly 8,000 more orders being received. The total orders for the season were 60,805. At the annual meeting, held recently the old officers were continued in office and a dividend of 6 per cent was declared.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—Jno. B. Davis left on July 10 for St. Anthony, Idaho, where his company has a considerable acreage of contract peas planted. He will be absent until the first of October, returning here after the crop has been harvested. The peas will be brought here to be picked over, as has been the custom. The company expects a good yield this season.

A REPORT from an American consul in England states that a British firm will shortly publish a book on the cultivation of soya bean and wishes the names of manufacturers of reapers and threshers. The main purpose of the firm is to increase the area of cultivation of soya bean and to furnish the African growers, for whom the books are published, the addresses of the manufacturers of the machinery required.

MANY jobbing garden seed houses are complaining of short future bulb business, due to a much larger carry-over by the small local bulb dealer, attributed to poor sales on account of the late season this spring.

Burpee's New Sweet Peas.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have issued their advance announcement of new sweet peas for 1914, which will be of great interest to growers of these popular flowers. The four important novelties mentioned are: Illuminator, Empress Eugenie, King White and Wedgewood. The illustrations show the flowers to be superb productions, well worthy the commendations they are receiving from sweet pea experts in this country and abroad.

King White—The producers call King White "the most valuable novelty in sweet peas it has yet been our good fortune to introduce," and Edwin Lonsdale declares it is "not only the best white sweet pea in existence, but it is a leader among all sweet peas; its purity, large size, wavy standard and coming generally four flowers on a stem, placed just right, appeal to everyone, whether amateur or professional." Disinterested persons everywhere have only good words for the variety. Lester L. Morse of San Francisco declares it is the best sweet pea novelty of recent times. Hugh Dickson of Belfast, Ireland, from whom praise is praise indeed, says: "King White is well and truly named. This certainly is the 'King' of all white sweet peas. In strength of vine, size of flower, frilled form and finish no other white sweet pea can compare with it. The texture, too, of the flower is greater than that of any other white." This variety is commended in glowing terms by the Garden and the Nurseryman and Seedsman, both London publications.

Illuminator—This flower, according to Frank G. Cuthbertson, is "the most glorious sweet pea I have ever seen. The color is exquisite, being a deep, bright cerise-salmon on cream ground. The base of wings and standard is deep cream and this lights up the color well. Would say it is much richer than Edith Taylor." Hugh Dickson has warm words of praise for this variety also.

Empress Eugenie—The color is a delicate tone of light gray flaked with light lavender. The flowers are of large size, beautifully waved and crimped. A vigorous grower and very free flower. This novelty was awarded a certificate of merit by the American Sweet Pea Society June 29, 1911, but it was not introduced before the season, owing to its shy seeding character.

Wedgewood—In color a shade of the Wedgewood blue, which makes this style of chinaware so popular. It is free from the harsh purple shading found in Flora Norton Spencer and others of the same type. It is also much larger. The flowers are borne on long stems and almost uniformly in four-flowered sprays. The standard and wings are waved.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The Funk Bros. Seed Co. has purchased a large tract of land in St. Charles parish, Louisiana, to be used as a seed farm.

CONCORDIA, KANS.—Harry L. Hunt, who has been with the Davidson Floral Co. of Holdrege, Neb., has taken over the greenhouse of C. J. Lampe, who, with his wife, will take a much needed rest in Oregon and California.

Seed Used Per Acre.

FROM UNITED STATES CROP REPORTER, JUNE, 1913.
 In consideration of supplies and distribution of crops, as well as for other purposes, the average quantity per acre used for seed is frequently a question of interest. A year ago county crop correspondents of the Bureau of Statistics were requested to report the quantity of various seeds usually sown or planted per acre. The returns were tabulated and show the following averages for the United States; more or less variation from the average prevails in different States, and, therefore, in addition to the averages of returns, an estimate of the range of the bulk of the seedings (not the extreme range) is also given;

Celery Found to Contain Copper.

The Department of Agriculture, acting on the complaint of Dr. W. C. Woodward, Health Officer of the District of Columbia, and the health officers of other states, has found by careful analysis that a great deal of table celery, which came to market during the last season, contained slight amounts of copper in the form of dried Bordeaux mixture (lime and copper sulphate), which farmers have to use to spray celery plants, to prevent the destruction of the crop by blight. Celery not sprayed with Bordeaux mixture during its growth is liable to reach the market in a state of partial decay, and housewives should be particularly careful in washing all celery before use.

The use of salts of copper in food products was decided by the Referee Board to be deleterious to health, and canned vegetables greened with copper has been stopped. This is parallel to the laws of France, where the use of copper vessels is forbidden in packing food products.

Analysis of four different samples of celery showed that before washing the edible part of the outside stalks contained from 9.1 to 29.2 parts of copper per million, or less than 1/6th to 1/2 grain of copper per 2 1/4 lbs. of celery. The copper in the inside or heart of stalks was much smaller in amount, and ranged from 3.3 to 10.3 parts per million. In the leaves of the celery, however, which are the parts of the plant especially sprayed with Bordeaux mixture, there were found from 157.6 to 288.4 parts of copper, per million parts. Leaves should not be eaten. After washing by hand or with a brush, there was only from 3.9 to 9 parts per million in the outside stalks, and from 1.4 to 3 parts per million in the inside stalks or heart. These quantities are infinitesimal, and mean that a person would have to eat from 9 to 18 lbs. of celery daily to reach the amount of copper which, if daily consumed, would, according to the experts, have any direct effect on the health.

The copper, it was found upon investigation, resulted from improper methods of using Bordeaux mixture on the part of celery growers. At the same time, it was found that the use of Bordeaux mixture is absolutely essential to the growing of celery in many sections of the country, especially in Florida. The Department, however, found that the spraying apparatus used by many celery growers does not operate at a sufficiently high pressure to make a fine spray or mist. As a result of this faulty apparatus, the Bordeaux mixture is applied in a number of fine streams instead of a mist, and these instead of merely settling on the leaves and killing the insects, run down between the stalks. As a result, the mixture accumulates at the base of the plant, and is not washed out by the rain. This sometimes gives a green appearance to celery, which causes many people to think the color results from Paris green, whereas the green tint is simply a copper-stained lime.

The Department of Agriculture has issued a circular requesting that all spraying of celery plants with Bordeaux mixture be done with efficient apparatus working under high pressure,—one hundred pounds or more. Also a warning to consumers to break bunches of celery open and wash and scrub the stalks thoroughly before they are eaten. According to the chemical experts who made the analysis, a careful washing of celery would remove practically all of the copper resulting from dried Bordeaux mixture, or reduce the amount present to such a small quantity as to be entirely negligible.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the society was held in Doran's Hall, Greenwich, Conn., July 11, President Robt. Williamson in the chair. Open discussion took place on the schedule for the fall show. With a few corrections made, the final schedule will soon be out. Mrs. L. C. Bruce of Greenwich was unanimously elected a life member of the society. Four new members were elected. Adrian Iselin, Jr., of New Rochelle, N. Y., has kindly donated a prize of $50.00 for the fall show.

The few choice exhibits at the meeting were judged as follows:

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. B. Pilkington, Portland, Ore., President-elect; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Sec'y.

Thirty-ninth annual convention to be held at Cleveland, O., 1914.

AMES, IA.—The state horticulturist reports the prevalence of apple blight or twig blight throughout the state and it is feared fruit growers will suffer much damage to their orchards unless prompt steps are taken to stamp out the disease.

THE United States treasury decisions, published July 10, contain the following: Evergreen seedlings classified as nursery stock were held entitled to free entry under paragraph 668, tariff act of 1909. Protests (of Maltus & Ware, New York) sustained in part. Protests (of F. B. Vandegrift & Co. et al., New York) sustained as to evergreen seedlings claimed to be free of duty under paragraph 668, tariff act of 1909. Protests (of A. H. Ringk & Co. et al., New York) overruled as to natural flowers, artificially colored, classified under paragraph 438, tariff act of 1909.

Windbreak Commandments.

Washington, July 12.—The forest service has devised a decalogue for the use of farmers in the plains regions. These ten commandments are to be displayed as part of the exhibit which the forest service is preparing for an exposition to be held during October at Tulsa, Okla., in connection with the eighth international dry farming congress. The commandments for owners of windbreaks are as follows:

- 1—Place the windbreak at right angles to the direction of injurious prevailing winds.
- 2—Devote from one-eighth to one-fifth of the farm to timber. Its protective value more than pays for the ground it occupies, to say nothing of the timber yield.
- 3—Plant only species suited to windbreak use, to the region and to the locality.
- 4—Plant rapid growers for quick results; but underplant with slower growing species, which are usually longer lived and more valuable.
- 5—Supplement a deciduous windbreak with evergreens to afford protection in winter.
- 6—Separate trees by the spacing proper to the species used. The trees should be close enough to produce a dense windbreak and to yield good poles, but should not be so crowded as to produce spindling growth.
- 7—Make the windbreak thick from the bottom up, especially on the side toward the wind. This may be done by using species which branch near the ground, by planting outside rows of low-growing trees, by encouraging natural reproduction and by underplanting.
- 8—Cultivate the plantation thoroughly while it is young.
- 9—Do not allow excessive grazing where reproduction is desired.
- 10—Do not thin your woodlot too heavily or take out the best trees for minor uses. Remember that a timber tract should be improved by use and that each clearing should leave it in better condition than before.

Other exhibits will show the proper locations for windbreaks, suitable species for planting, and the direction of harmful prevailing winds in various regions.

Florists' Fertilizers

Conducted by F. W. Muncie,
Dept. of Floriculture, University of Illinois.

Inquiries regarding fertilizers and manures are solicited for this department. Address all inquiries to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Nitrogenous Fertilizers for Carnations.

It is reasonable to believe that any substance containing nitrogen may serve as a fertilizer to supply this element. This is undoubtedly true, provided its value is not overcome by the presence of other substances present with it, which exert a poisonous effect upon the plant. There have been fertilizers which were good examples of this trouble. For instance, the ammonium sulphate, put on the market some years ago, contained small amounts of ammonium thiocyanate, a sulphur compound, derived from the sulphur in coal in the process of coke making (ammonia is a by-product of this industry), which was exceedingly toxic to vegetation. Lime nitrate, also, some years ago, contained traces of perchlorates, which often caused the fertilizer to do more harm than good. By improved methods, the impurities are removed in the manufacture of these fertilizers today. The character of a nitrogenous fertilizer is determined (1) by the total amount of nitrogen present and (2) by the ease with which the form of nitrogen present is made soluble in soil water by the action of acids and salts in the soil of bacteria, and so capable of being used by the plant.

It has been experimentally determined that nitrate of soda and lime nitrate are entirely and immediately available for plant use. Somewhat more slowly available are sulphate of ammonia and calcium cyanid or lime nitrogen, as it is often called. Following these are a group of waste products, used as fertilizer, but of comparatively high grade, such as dried blood, cottonseed meal, ground fish and tankage (which varies quite widely). All of these substances named are of high nitrogen content and ready availability compared with such materials as hair, wool and leather waste, muck and peat. It may be safely said, that of materials of animal or vegetable origin, those which contain the highest content of nitrogen, contain also the largest percentage that would become fit for use by the plant during a single season. It usually pays then to use a high grade product in smaller amounts, rather than one with a small content. It necessarily follows that the more readily available a fertilizer is, the smaller the amount that may be used at a time and the more frequently it need be applied. Experiments at Illinois have shown no harmful effects from using nitrate of soda, dried blood or sulphate of ammonia in four applications, six weeks apart, at the rate of 2 lbs. per 100 sq. ft. of bench space each time. The following set of figures, giving the average number of flowers produced by 24 carnation plants during the seven winter months of three years' experimental work, illustrates the relative efficiency of dried blood and sulphate of ammonia:

Dried Blood—4 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 354.7; 8 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 368.8; 16 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 372.3;

Sulphate of ammonia—3 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 360.4; 6 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 361.6; 12 lbs. per 100 sq. ft., 374.8. The results are in very near agreement, showing that each is equally efficient.

Sulphate of ammonia is made by passing ammonia gas into sulphuric acid. When the ammonia is absorbed by the plant (or changed into nitrates by bacteria) the sulphuric acid remains. Consequently the litmus paper test for acids (described in my article of June 21) will show its presence after its use for a short time. Dried blood also produces acids upon its decomposition, the soil often reacting acid, while the air immediately above the bench is alkaline (probably from the ammonia given off). So if either of these be used, limestone or slaked lime should be generously supplied. Twenty lbs. (per 100 sq. ft. of bench space) of limestone or air-slaked lime, sprinkled on the surface is a satisfactory quantity.

F. W. MUNCIE.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use; how and when to plant; fertilizers and how to apply; and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes the old and new as well as plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateurs simply as a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure." We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of the booklets. Our catalog of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

The Glass Market.

The glass market is very firm and the prices are not likely to decline any during the remainder of the season for it is well known that the factories are nearly all sold out and it is impossible to import any for the prices abroad are as high as they are in America at present and already have a tendency to advance. Several of the dealers, and these include all the glass firms which advertise in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, are fortunate in having a good supply in stock, otherwise they would have to cancel many orders. The growers throughout the country evidently realize that the market will be firm for the balance of the year, for they are now placing their orders and the inquiries during the past few weeks, according to a large dealer, have been more numerous than at any other time during the past six months.

tically all iron and glass. To obtain the greatest possible durability, all the lower parts of the houses, including the heating pipes, are to be of cast iron. The steel work used for supporting the glass is to be zinc plated. What little wood is used will be air-dried California redwood. There was keen competition among the leading greenhouse builders for this work, and the King Construction Company is receiving congratulations for its success in landing the prize.

Chicago Notes.

The Superior Machine and Boiler Works, 846-848 West Superior street, report an unusually busy season and have already delivered several greenhouse boilers to growers in their vicinity. This firm is now making concrete post molds for greenhouse benches and the proprietors state that three men who used their molds made 337 posts in six hours.

Kroeschell Bros. Co. report that the boiler season still continues to be very brisk and among the many orders that it has booked are a No. 16 Kroeschell boiler for Peter Fornof of South Columbus, O., and a No. 9 Kroeschell boiler for the new range of the Ft. Wayne Park Department of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and a No. 8 for the Monticello Floral Co. of Monticello, Ind.

The Nic. Krier Boiler Works, 2725-2727 North Marshfield avenue has just sold Mike Reding of Evanston, one of their new style self-feeding, smoke burner, hot water boilers. N. K. Welter, another Evanston grower, was one of the first ones to buy one of these boilers and it is now being installed in his carnation range.

The John C. Moninger Co. broke all its records for sales on July 7, when it booked 16 orders on that day for as many new ranges. This firm has been obliged to make several changes in its office due to increasing business which consisted of enlarging its office room and employing two more stenographers.

LINCOLN, NEB.—J. K. Hiltner has taken out a permit to build a new greenhouse.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Robert Walthers has purchased from the J. Kennedy Irwin estate, the Woodville Floral Company's holdings at Woodville, Pa., consisting of three acres, nine large greenhouses and a large frame dwelling; consideration, $15,000. Mr. Walthers will make some improvements.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—The former H. L. Blind & Bros. greenhouses and floral conservatory at 5424 Center avenue, which for two years have been without a tenant, have been leased for a term of years to the Colonial Floral Company, for Phillip Goettman, of the Diamond Produce Co. Charles C. Wesley, manager of the Colonial Floral Co., took immediate possession. These greenhouses are among the finest in the city, costing about $50,000.

Boiled Down Boiler Facts.

IN spite of the fact that we are one of the largest makers of cast iron greenhouse boilers, we are not so narrow-minded, we can't see that wrought iron boilers have their merits and their uses.

But for the uses that our cast iron boiler is intended, we do know there's not a boiler made that can beat it.

Cast iron boilers have many undebatable advantages—such as easy erection, easy enlarging, easy to care for, easy on coal, easy on the pocket-book for repairs, because they are slow to rust and require no retubing.

The fact that we were absolutely the first concern in the country to make a special business of greenhouse heating, (that was along in the seventies) is a pretty strong guarantee that any boiler we sell for greenhouses is the best of boilers for the purpose. Hitchings' boiler is a full blooded greenhouse boiler; not a mongrel residence and greenhouse boiler combined. Being economical for greenhouse heating; it is doubly so for residence work.

Our Full Bloods will heat from 300 to 18000 square feet of glass.

Peter Henderson last Fall put in three of them in preference to one of the big tubular kind.

Now is the time to talk heating with us. Be ready before Jack Frost gets ready. He does not put his work off.

Kroeschell Better than Cast Iron

"I bought a No. 6 Boiler in 1903. It has now 10,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 33,000 more. This is ahead of five or six cast iron boilers which I have used. I saved $50 per season on the coal bill."
 M. C. WARD, Quincy, Mass.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron

"I have one of your new 1910 model Kroeschell Boilers, and same has proven very satisfactory. We have no trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. We fire once or twice during the day and once at night, and have had the best satisfaction I have ever experienced in a boiler. Formerly I had two cast iron boilers; one cracked and I took both of these boilers out. My coal bill with the cast iron boilers ran from $195 to $207 per season during the past seven years. This year, with your boiler and soft coal, my coal bill was only $103, and I still have some coal left. Your boiler is the best and cheapest on the market, not alone for the price, but also in fuel saving. I am very glad that you are so well known in Buffalo, N. Y. I have never heard anything but praise, in which I join heartily. Wishing you every success, I remain, MAX BUEHLER, Forks, N. Y.

Cost of Heating One-Half Less Than With Cast Iron Boilers

"I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire box boiler and a sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of the heating with your boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 3 Boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its capacity."
 WM. GEENEN, Kimberly, Wis.

Has enlarged place and installed another No. 6 Kroeschell.

Kroeschell Boiler Durable.

Have 20,000 sq. ft. of glass. Can keep 60° in coldest weather. Have one boiler 15 years, only expense, one set of flues. Kroeschell Boiler is so satisfactory that I do not care to try any other.
 JACOB PHILLIPS, Rogers Park, Chicago.

the stock growing out-doors. Hot, dry, windy days produce conditions that are almost past the power of artificial watering to surmount. Carnations in the field are looking fair, even under these conditions. Sweet peas are about all in. Asters and gladioli are having a fight for it, the hot, dry winds preventing proper development of the flowers, even if plenty of water is supplied to the soil.

NOTES.

A Fourth of July window in the store of W. H. Culp & Co. attracted considerable attention. It was executed by Ralph Culp and showed the usual Fourth of July private picnic, with lunch baskets, children and fire-crackers. Also the usual man in a hammock, with a newspaper over his face, trying to get a nap, and a small boy in the act of lighting a large cracker on the ground beneath. The window showed careful attention to detail and was very natural.

A handsome new touring car provides C. P. Mueller with transportation to and from his store and himself and family with means for many pleasant hours of recreation. W. H. Culp has also acquired the auto habit and is not always as easy to reach by phone of evenings as formerly. Both Mr. Mueller and Mr. Culp have used auto delivery for some months past and consider it a necessity in a city under modern conditions.

"Sprinkle-proof Sam" Seligman was a recent visitor. He still wears the smile that won't come off.

Nic. Krier's New Greenhouse Boiler

(Pat. Pending.)

THE BIGGEST MONEY SAVER THERE IS FOR THE GROWER

You can burn the cheapest grade of soft coal and burn all the smoke. This Boiler heats quicker than all others. You always have a steady heat. The magazine always works perfectly. Your coal always comes down and you save 25% to 35% on your coal bill. The magazine on the top of the self-feeding boiler only has to be filled once every 24 hours. Fire-doors can be kept closed all night. The night fireman has only six minutes of actual work to do and that is to shake the grates three times a night and this holds good even in the coldest of weather, far below zero. This boiler was used and tested for three months in extreme cold weather and found to be perfect in every respect. You should have one; the price is very reasonable.

The Fire Box Self-Feeding Smoke Burner Hot Water Boilers heat quicker than the Fire-box return tube boilers. The fire goes to the top and bottom tubes at the same time, heats the water quicker and gives you a steady heat. The coal comes down always the same and burns the smoke. We build these boilers in 12 sizes to heat from 4,000 sq. ft. to 30,000 sq. ft. of glass. These boilers are also made of the best fire-box and flange steel and charcoal iron tubes. Write for further particulars.
