Reprinted incorrectly. Harwood's View of the various Editions of the Greek and Roman Classics. The third edition. London 1782. 12. p. 175. — Qui praefationem operi praemisit, Adamus Littleton, S. T. P. dicit: Londinensem isthanc Editionem, quae Exemplar Hamburgense, utpote correctissimum repraesentat, tam longe antecellere ei, quam Londinum Urbs Hamburgo. Nam praeterquam, quod summa diligentia in Typothetis, exactissima in Correctoribus cura non defuerit, characterum formam, typorum nitorem, et chartae praestantiam, istam quam Frobenius adornavit impressionem, multis exsuperare parasangis — Arrogans et fastuosa nimis est Littletoni censura.

M. T. C. Opera quae supersunt omnia, ad fidem optimarum editionum diligenter expressa. Glasguae, in aedibus academicis, excudebant R. et And. Foulis, Academiae typographi, 1749. 20 Voll. in 12. 2 L. 10 sh.

The text of this very beautiful Edition of Cicero,

4 MARCVS TULLIVS CICERO.

published at Glasgow, is taken from Olivet, and is very correctly printed. Harwood. p. 176.

M. T. C. Opera, cum Indicibus et variis Lectionibus. Oxonii e Typographeo Clarendoniano. 1783. 10 Voll. 4. 5 L. 5 sh.

This work is splendid but not ostentatious, and does credit to the liberality of the Clarendon delegates, by whom the expence was supported, and to the diligence of the editors, by whom the press was corrected. While, however, we commend the execution, we do not approve, indiscriminately and entirely, of the plan. The text is professedly regulated by that of Olivet's edition. We are not among the admirers of the model, which the Oxford editors have condescended to follow, but we readily admit the exactness of the copy. The various Readings are annexed to the end of each volume. Those readings are taken from twenty-nine manuscripts, which Thomas Hearne had formerly collated; and from twenty-four manuscripts in the various libraries of Oxford; and from two in the library of York, which have lately been collated by the present editors. — Upon the whole, the work before us may, perhaps, with greater propriety be ranked in the class of ornamental, than of useful publications; but it is certainly a new instance, added to the many which the Clarendon delegates have already given, of their liberality in the application of their revenues to the purposes of polite literature. Critical Review for June 1785. p. 432 — 435.

RHETORICA.

MARCI TULLII CICERONIS Rhetorica.
Oxon. 1718. 3 Voll. 8.

A very correct Edition. Harwood p. 182.

DE ORATORE.

MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO de Oratore ad Q. Fratrem. Ex MSS. recensuit Tho. Cockman, e coll. Vniv. A. B. Oxoniae, e theatro Sheldoniano, 1696. 8. — Editio secunda. Ibid. 1706. 8.

M. T. C. ad Q. Fratrem Dialogi tres de Oratore. Ex MSS. emendavit, notisque illustravit Zacharias Pearce, A. B. Trin. Coll. Cantab. Cantabrigiae, typis acad. apud Corn. Crownfield, 1716. 8. repetita est hæc editio præstans notis et emendationibus multo auctior, ibid. 1732. 8. — Londini 1745, 1771, 1778. 8.

I have carefully read two of these Editions of Cicero de Oratore, published by Bishop Pearce, that of Cambridge 1732, and that of London 1745; and they are both very correct, but the London Edition is better printed. Harwood p. 178.

M. T. C. de Oratore translated into English by G. P. London 1723. 8.

CICERO'S Brutus, or the History of the famous Orators: also his Orator, or accomplished Speaker. Now first translated into English, by E. Jones. London, White, 1776. 8. 6 sh.

— We have met with translations which prove the possibility of uniting the different qualities of fidelity and elegance. Among these we venture to place the present work, in which we have an accurate and faithful, and at the same time sufficiently elegant translation of two pieces of Cicero, which have never before appeared in English. Monthly Review for February 1777. p. 88 — 91. This excellent translation, as far as we have examined it, appears to be executed with great fidelity. The language is clear and perspicuous, smooth, nervous and elegant. — Critical Review for October 1776. p. 257 — 265.

ORATIONES. 9

A Translation of Cicero's four Orations against Catilina, by Thomas Gordon, in his Translation of the Works of Sallust. London 1744, 1769. 4.

CICERO'S Oration for M. Marcellus, in Lat. and Engl. London 1745. 8.

The history of Catiline's conspiracy, and the Jugurthine war. By C. C. Sallust. With a new translation of Cicero's four Orations against Catiline. To which is prefixed the life of Sallust. (By William Rose) London, Griffiths, 1751. 8. 3 sh. — London 1757. 12.

Monthly Review for August 1751. p. 204 — 213.

CICERO'S Select Orations translated into English, with the Original Latin, from the best editions, in the opposite page, and notes historical, critical and explanatory. Designed for the use of schools, as well as of private gentlemen. (By Mr. Duncan) London, Keith, 1755. 8. 6 sh. — London 1771. 8.

— The text is much more correct than that of most authors published for the use of schools, which, in a work of this kind, is, of itself, no inconsiderable recommendation. Monthly Review for December 1755. p. 414 — 419.

Select Orations of M. TULLIUS CICERO, translated by Professor Duncan, and interspersed with a variety of Notes, explanatory of the Persons, Manners and Customs of the Romans: adapted to the English reader, by Sir Charles Whitworth. London, Keith, 1777. 2 Vols. 8. 10 sh.

As the merit of Duncan's translation of Cicero's select Orations is well known, we need add nothing to recommend the work now before us to public notice. Monthly Review for November 1777. p. 406.

The principal Orations of CICERO translated, with Notes Classical and Original. By Captain John Rutherford. (With a fine Head of Cicero by Cipriani and Bartolozzi) London, Cadell, 1781. 4. Royal Paper. 1 L. 4 sh.

We have carefully compared the fourth edition of the translation of all the Orations of Cicero by Mr. Guthrie in three volumes 8vo, with Rutherford's translation of Cicero's orations, and though it is not without many faults, must, upon the whole, prefer to Mr. Rutherford's. Critical Review for January 1781. p. 11.

The Orations of MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO against Caius Cornelius Verres, translated from the Original, by James White, Esq.; with Annotations. London, Cadell, 1787. 4. 18 sh.

— On the whole, this translation has merit, being generally faithful without languor; and in many passages, especially of the fifth and sixth orations, both elegant and animated. — Monthly Review for November 1788. p. 434 — 440. — We can pronounce this version to be not only spirited but generally correct. — Critical Review for June 1789. p. 427.

A Dissertation, in which the Defence of P. Sulla ascribed to M. Tullius Cicero is clearly proved to be Spurious, after the Manner of Mr. Markland, with some Introductory Remarks on other writings of the Antients never before suspected. London. 8. without date.

EPISTOLAE AD FAMILIARES.

M. T. CICERONIS Epistolae familiares cum notis D. Lambini. Londini 1590. 8.

This is a very valuable Edition of Cicero's, Epistles, and the Notes display a rich fund of judicious criticism with regard to Cicero's correspondence, and the history and situation of himself and his friends. Harwood p. 80.

CICERO'S Familiar Epistles into English,

12 MARCI TULLII CICERONIS

A Panoplie of Epistles out of Cicero, Socratts, Pliny etc. London 1576. 4.

The letters of MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO to several of his friends: with remarks by William Melmoth, Esq.; In three volumes. London, printed for R. Dodsley in Pall-mall. 1753.
8. 15 sh. — London 1778. 8. 3 Vols.

With regard to the translation of these letters now before us, we shall only say, that it is such as might be expected from the truly ingenious and elegant translator of Pliny's letters. The principal design of it, as Mr. Melmoth himself informs us, is to trace the conduct, and enquire into the character of Cicero; with this view there are many judicious and curious remarks annexed: the letters are placed according to their supposed dates, and at the end of each volume is an index referring to the order in which they stand in the common editions. Monthly Review for May 1753.

and Country Magazine, for the year 1773. p.

Crownfield, 1728, 1741. 8.

The last of these Editions is the best printed, and is very correct. Dr. Davies was a very learned and judicious Editor, and did not deserve to be contemptuously called Juuenis, as Dr. Bentley affects to style him in his Emendationes ad Ciceronis Tusculanas Quæstiones. Harwood p. 182.

Only the Editions of 1709, and 1738, contain Dr. Bentley's emendations in Cicero's Tusculanas Questions. Some illiberal and contemptuous reflections of Dr. Bentley caused Davies, I suppose, not to subjoin them in the second and third Editions. Harwood. p. 183.

When I had enprynted the boke of old age, which the said Tullius made, me seem'd it according, that this said boke of friendship shold follow, because there cannot be annexed to old age a better thing than good and very friendship. A Declamation, which laboureth to shew, wherein honour shold rest. The Orations of Cornelius Scipio and Gaius Flaminius before the senate to obtain Lucesse the daughter of Fulgeus and Claudia.

We are here presented with one of the finest remains of classical antiquity, in the most elegant form of the English language; and the copious remarks annexed to the Essay, discover learning combined with taste, and sentiment with liberality. Translations are, in general, the bane of every language; but such translations as this, bring both our language and our learning in their debt. — The notes, or remarks, as they are called, annexed to this work, make the most valuable part of it. They contain just sketches of the principal characters mentioned in the course of the essay, and a variety of judicious observations on the manners and interests of men. Monthly Review for August 1773, p. 109 — 115. — The translation is executed by a masterly hand. The language is pure and classical, and expresses the sense of the original with fidelity and spirit. The notes, which are extensive, consist of curious and useful disquisitions. We shall venture to recommend this performance very warmly to the notice of the public; and shall place it, without hesitation, in the same respectable class with the elegant translations of Mr. Melmoth. Critical Review for June 1773. p. 455 — 458.

M. T. CICERO'S Cato Maior, or Discourse on Old Age. With explanatory Notes. By Benjamin Franklin, LL. D. Philadelphia printed. London re-printed, for Fielding and Walker. 1778. 8. 2 sh.

This is a new edition of Mr. Logan's translation of Cicero de Senectute, first printed at Philadelphia, in the year 1744. The book is well known, two editions of it having, formerly, if we mistake not, been printed. — We have also seen a Glasgow edition, in 12mo by Urie, in 1751. But in none of these (to the best of our memory) was the name of Benjamin Franklin mentioned, as the translator of the work, though he might, for aught we know, have been the printer of the first impression. What authority the present Editor hath for the omission of Mr. Logan's name, which stood, at length, in the preface to the original 4to edition, and for substituting of Dr. F. we know not. — As to the merit of the translation, it certainly will not bear to stand in any degree of competition with that elegant version, which has lately been given us by the very ingenious Mr. Melmoth, the translator of Pliny's and Cicero's Letters, and the Writer of those admirable epistles, published under the assumed name of Sir Thomas Fitzosborne. — The numerous and ample notes however, which accompany Mr. Logan's translation, may, probably, render that work peculiarly acceptable to those who have not a very extensive acquaintance with the Roman history, or who are not intimately conversant with the Latin language. Monthly Review for December 1778. p. 467.

The literary character of this ingenious translator is so well known and established, that it would be unnecessary for us to say any thing in his praise. We shall only observe in general, that the work before us is executed with that accuracy, elegance and spirit, which distinguish his former productions in this departement of literature. The mere English reader may be assured, that the sentiments of Cicero are represented in their full sense and beauty; and even the man of learning, if he can only lay aside that enthusiasm and partiality in favour of a classical composition, which education is apt to inspire, may read the Essays on Old Age and on Friendship with as much pleasure in the language of Mr.

Dickson, front of the Exchange, Edinburgh; and for T. Cadell in the Strand, London 1767. 8. 5 sh.

In regard to the piece, which is published among the Works of Cicero, under the title of consolation, it is well known, that the generality of critics have questioned the authenticity of it. Dr. Middleton, in his life of Cicero, says, it is undoubtedly spurious: Dr. Blacklock endeavours to prove its authenticity; but what he advances in support of his opinion, however ingenious, appears by no means satisfactory. Be this, however, as it may, the translation is an excellent one, both faithful and elegant: the Doctor's chief care, he tells us, was, not to preserve the phraseology and idioms of the original, but to transfuse into English, as naturally and easily as he could, the spirit and sentiments of his author; — and in this, indeed, he has succeeded admirably. Monthly Review for June 1768. p. 426.
