THE RANDOLPH COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

AN IMPROVED COUNTY UNIT SYSTEM.

The public schools of Randolph County are operated under a "County Unit of Support and Administration," without any independent local systems, but with several local districts (municipalities) exercising the privilege, under special Acts or otherwise, of further supplementing the State and county funds by local tax levies.

Randolph County voted county-wide local tax in 1906: but after contributing to and participating in the county-wide local tax under the McMichael law the towns of Cuthbert and Shellman, authorized by special and separate Acts, levy locally supplemental amounts for the better support of their respective schools, and the town of Coleman voluntarily and without special authorization makes an annual appropriation to its local school.

This, in effect, is a near approach to the new Alabama School Law, which is attracting nation-wide attention and commendation. Georgia legislators would do well to give the plan careful consideration.

Several years' experience here under this plan does not appear to have hindered in any degree the progress of the town schools, as some feared it might. (See detailed reports herein of Cuthbert, Shellman, Coleman.) The plan, however, does seem to bring into a closer and more sympathetic relationship all of the educational interests and efforts of the entire county. Other plans have sometimes had the opposite effect in some of the counties.

The county-wide local tax has undoubtedly helped the rural schools, while the three towns mentioned have been enabled to still greater progress by levying upon themselves additional taxation for the purpose. There is no element of selfishness here, and the plan does not hold back any progressively inclined districts, but does pull forward slow and unprogressive sections. Herein lies a strong argument in its favor.

THE SCHOOLS.

It will be noted that the county employs a considerable amount of transportation which reduces the number of schools. Still further consolidations might be effected with profit to the cause, as may easily be seen by reference to this report. A few schools are still maintained apparently in the supposed interest of the community or to satisfy individual prejudices rather than in the educational interests of the children.

The general absence of organized self-activities in the schools is a reflection upon the teachers. The day is far past when a teacher's sole duty is "just teaching." Club work has an important place in progressive schools. Organized community school improvement clubs would also go far towards vitalizing the school interests. (See Benevolence, Shellman, Coleman, etc.)

The school grounds, play grounds, and school gardens, etc., should have more attention than is generally given to them. Visible evidences usually reveal fairly well what a school is. (See Shellman school.) The school plant has much to do with what the school is. The teacher has much to do with what the school plant is. The superintendent has much to do with what the teacher is.

MAINTENANCE.

Under the "county-wide" local tax the County Board of Education levies two mills school tax. This yields $6,354.68. The county receives from the State $19,298.96; making a total of $25,653.64. So it is seen that the county contributes less than one-fourth of its total school funds annually. Coleman, Shellman and Cuthbert do considerably better by their children through their additional tax levies. So will the county as it comes to a higher appreciation of its children.

The total amount of taxes paid by Randolph County to the State is $18,441.88. But the county receives from the State for schools, $19,298.96, which is more than all it pays in by $857.08. The State also pays back to Randolph County in pensions $6.270.00, which added to the school funds it pays into the county, makes a total of $25,568.96. This is more than the entire State taxes paid by the county and the 'local school tax' paid to its own children.

Who in the county is "endowed with undoubted bravery" enough to say that Randolph County is too poor to do more than she is doing for her own children?

NEGRO SCHOOLS.

There are 28 negro schools in the county, and these are operated from five to six months. The "Howard Normal School," at Cuthbert, is operated through supplemental help for nine months. Their school houses are usually connected with or adjacent to lodges or churches. As will be seen from the photographs very much more attention has been given to building and beautifying their churches than their school houses.

ANDREW COLLEGE.

J. W. Malone, A. M., D. D., President.

This college located at the county seat of Randolph County has had a long and useful career. It was founded in 1854, and is under the supervision and control of the South Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The grounds comprise twelve acres, well located upon one of the highest points in the town of Cuthbert. The campus has been beautified in many ways, and athletic grounds provided and improved. Large gardens provide vegetables for the dormitory tables.

There are several good brick buildings. The main building, shown herewith, contains the president's office, the dining rooms, the chapel, the music rooms, the gymnasium, etc. The other buildings contain class rooms, laboratories, libraries, literary society halls, dormitory rooms, etc.

The president's family and other members of the faculty reside in the dormitories.

The equipment is the accumulation of many years and measures fully up to the requirements for thorough modern educational work. The student activities consist of the literary societies, athletic association, Y. W. C. A., etc. The patronage has kept up nearly to the limit of accommodations, usually about 150 students.

The faculty consists of the president and about fifteen college and university trained teachers.

This institution has been a valuable source of supply for teachers for the schools of the county and State and in this respect, as well as others, has added considerably to the educational strength of Randolph County.

This is a well-established and very efficient negro school that has earned a good reputation. It is located upon a two-acre lot in the town of Cuthbert, Ga., and trains most of the teachers for the negro schools of the county, as well as to serve the local interests.

The building is a one-story, frame building, with several class rooms and a large auditorium used as class room. The school is equipped with good patent desks, blackboards, globes, maps, reference dictionaries, and a small library. Water is kept in eovered coolers, and individual drinking cups are used.

There are six teachers, ten grades, 300 pupils. A literary society meets weekly, and there is a well-organized Civic School Improvement Club in the community.

The present principal has served here for more than thirty years, and appears to have the full confidence of both races.

The school is maintained by help from the county board of education, the American Missionary Association, and tuition fees.
