MEMORANDUM TO: Mr. D. N. Sutton
FROM: Mr. Yale Maxon
SUBJECT: Relation of TOKUGAWA, Yoshichika to Rightist Groups

1. As requested, I have referred the TOKUGAWA Diary excerpts to Language Division for checking and have given them a deadline of Wednesday, 5 November for this work.

2. An hour's interview with General TANAKA, Ryukichi has disclosed that TOKUGAWA was in active contact with representatives of most of the Rightist Societies in Japan. A few of these individuals and the particular Rightist Societies which they represented are listed below:

MATSUI, Iwane	DAI ASIA KYOKAI (Greater Asia League).
HASHIMOTO, Kingoro	President of DAI NIPPON SEINEN TO (Japanese Young Men's Party).
NAKANO, Seigo	President TOHO KAI (Oriental Society).
OKAWA, Shumei	President of the JIMMU KAI (JIMMU /Legendary first Emperor/ Society).
ISHIHARA, Koichiro	Head of a Rightist Society, the name of which was not recalled by TANAKA.
KOBAYASHI (f.n.u.) (Admiral)	Leader of the young Naval Officers.
SHIMIZU, Konosuke	An individual who has apparently made a fortune by his Army contacts, who owned mines abroad and a munitions factory in Japan and who was paid by the Army for his part in the Manchurian Incident.
FUJITA, Isamu	A wealthy opium man.
TSUDA, Shingo	Representative of KANEGAFUCHI BOSEKI KAISHA, (KANERO, the wealthiest textile company in Japan).

3. According to TANAKA, TOKUGAWA was influential chiefly because of his wealth and ambition to become premier. TANAKA states that TOKUGAWA may have headed a small Rightist Society, but he believes that the contacts between the various Rightist Societies were of an informal nature. However, there was organization called JIKYOKU KYOGI KAI which operated as a correlating body. He thinks that there was no president but that HASHIMOTO, KOBAYASHI or NAKANO, Seigo managed it. The modus operandi of all of these societies was, of course, to decide on the line to be taken and then to present their demands to the Government and back them up when strongly enough opposed by organized assassinations.

4. All of these societies and men were very anti-English during the days when Britain was having her troubles with Hitler on the continent, and in particular, the first three mentioned above.

5. TANAKA states that either MATSUI or TOKUGAWA would be able to give testimony regarding these groups and suggests the following approach.

Q Do you know about the DAI ASIA KYOKAI?

A Yes.

Q What were its aims?

A To drive Britain out of Asia.

Q Do you know MATSUI, Iwane?

A Yes.

Q What was his relation?

A He was President.

It is believed that this method could be used with all or most of the organizations listed in paragraph 2 above in order to bring out the character and aims of the Rightist forces with which MATSUI, HASHIMOTO, OKAWA and KOISO and TOKUGAWA himself were associated.
