THE JWELEDED HAIRPIN

(Original)

We were a happy family, two boys and three girls from sixteen to twenty-six years of age. Our summer cottage was large enough to accommodate the chums of all, and in July and August we usually kept it full.

One night, returning late from the city and being tired, I went to my room and threw myself on a divan. The boys and girls were skyraking in the hall, and some one put out the light. I dropped asleep, and when I awoke all was still save the serenade of a night which failed to ignite in my room. By its light I caught sight of the dim figure of a girl near the gas bracket, though I could not see who it was. There was a suppressed shriek, as though she had discovered that she was in the wrong room, and she made for the door.

She jumped and caught her about the waist. There was a struggle during which I kissed her and in order to identify her scratched her cheek with my right edge on my seat ring, then I let her go.

What was my surprise at going into the breakfast room the next morning to see every girl in the house, except my six, besides my sisters—each with a piece of cotterpin on her cheek. "Hi!" I muttered to myself. "A pretty, comely girl, with a high forehead. However, keeping my cotterpins, I sat down, pretending not to notice the beauty spots, but just before rising I put my hand in my pocket, grasped an object, and something placed my closed fist on the table and said:

"Which of you girls lost a hairpin last night?"

Up flew half a dozen hands to my eyes, heads, then were quickly lowered, none of the girls admitting a loss. But a red flush in the cheeks of the one seated next to me had been successful.

"Why do you ask?" inquired one of the girls. "Have you found one?"

"No," I replied, "I have not found one, but I have a suspicion that one of you girls has it."

"I am not sure," I said, "but I am sure that one of you girls has it."

"I am not sure," I said, "but I am sure that one of you girls has it."

Headaches and Dizzy Spells, Weak, Nervous, Wretched, Tired, Until Dr. Miles' Nervine Cured Me.

Are you in a "dazed condition"? Are you unable to give up from exhaustion, nervousness, headaches, backaches, dizzy spells? No need to mention the details of a run down or "poor condition" to those who are suffering. Letter to tell you of Nervine, the remedy sold on a guarantee to help you, and restore your poor weakened nerves to life, strength and health.

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine has done a great deal for me. In the fall of 1923 my health was in a very poor condition. I trembled, nervousness, dizzy spells and back headaches made me most miserable. I had been under the care of my local physician for some time, but got no better. I was on the verge of nervous prostration. Had no appetite, and could not sleep. I grew worse as the days sped, continued and lost flesh and strength. Oh, those awful days! A lady friend who had taken Restorative Nervine advised me to try it. I bought a bottle and to my great relief it did me some good. I feel that my present health is all due to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I am grateful to the Nervine which on its merits as a nerve tonic and restorative."—Mrs. W. H. Hutchinson, Dalton, Mass.

Easy and Quick! Soap-Making with BANNER LYE

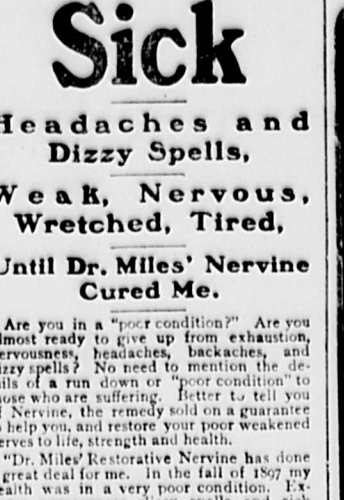

To make the very best soap, simply dissolve a can of Banner Lye in cold water, mix it as well done as possible in the interests of the living. Otherwise a pluglike start which would prove more destructive than bullets and shells. How trying this thing must be on the man who is detailed to perform it is not difficult to imagine. It requires nerve greater than that which takes a man foot into conflict. Then he is satisfied

Prevalent Opinion.

American Thrift Expensive.—Millions Paid Every Year for Beverages of Little Nourishment.

(From the New York Commercial)

During the year which ended June 30, 1923, the average American used 46.72 gallons of distilled spirits, 577.28 gallons of malt liquor and 15.36 gallons of wine, making a total of 659.36 gallons or 175 quarts for each day of that year. Really, that does not seem to show that it is altogether given over to quizzing alcoholic beverages, but certainly do not drink all of the spirits he uses.

Nor does he seem to be using so much strong liquor now as he used years ago. In the year 1871 he spent away with 51.84 gallons of distilled spirits, and in the year 1903 he used 46.72 gallons more of it. In 1871 he used 2.2 gallons more in the year than he used 2 1/2 years ago. But the influence of the German has been strong with the American population. The quantity of wine drunk in the year 1903 than he used in 1871; and it would be difficult to convince folk that he used much of it in mechanical works, however, much of it may have gone into mechanics. A third of a century ago he used only 21 of a gallon of 104 quarts a day and all the increase of 194 quarts a day is beer.

Further back, in the year 1830, the average American used 47.68 ounces of coffee, valued at 40 cents. That was enough to make forty good cups of coffee for each three days of that year, which seems to warrant the thought that he was not then a hard drinker of coffee. During the banner year, which ended June 30, 1922—all these years ended with the month of June—he used each day of the bean 1.05, 541,687 pounds for the aggregate amount, and they were valued by his Uncle Sam at $63,114,778; and no doubt five times that sum paid for that coffee before it went into the coffee pot. It is fair to add that in no other year has the American used so much coffee as in 1922.

Perhaps a fairer showing as to his coffee habit may be made by the record of coffee drinking in that year, which was during which 7,622,745,588 pounds were consumed. This was valued at $63,033,798.89, or 91 cents for each of those years for the average American. He used 10.3 pounds per annum for the ten years in which he used only one cent as to the price of coffee for each day.

As to tea, he was not so immoderate, for in the decade which closed with the last day of June, 1923, the aggregate American kept for his own use only 855,731,558 pounds for the aggregate amount, and that for a valuation for purposes of taxation only of $11,922,136. But the average American no doubt fully 62 cents for that tea for each of those ten years.

And for all those hundreds of millions of dollars he got almost no real benefit. He got a quantity of nutrition, an appreciable quantity of nutrition. Coffee is best of all, and at best it can give no more than 12.5 cents worth of nutrition for each 81.75 cents of dry, roasted coffee. All the other 73.25 cents of that dollar go for tickling the palate and for an agreeable and harmless stimulation.

One gets something for his money when he buys cocoa, chocolate or other preparations of cocoa, for it gives more nutrition than is furnished by any other food in common use. Despite the fact, however, while he was paying no doubt close to $52,263,095.00 for drinks which could give a considerable trace of nutrition, he used chocolate valued at only $1,770,056. cocoa valued at $8,956,216, and crude cocoa of a value of only $4,500,723.

That supply of cocoa and preparations of cocoa probably cost the consumer $115,553,000 when he was ready to put it into the cup; but he paid 200 times as much in the same food value worthy of consideration.

Reflections of a Spinster.

Faith is a thing that makes a woman believe her husband is just lovely when she wouldn't dare set a detective on his track.

The masculine money-saver retrenches on his wife's allowance and on the house-keeping expenses, but would not impair her health by smoking cheap cigars.

A heretic is a person who has doubts as to the naturalness of a woman's complexion.

All the world may love a lover, but as soon as he marries they cease to take interest in him.

Wickedness is often attractive, even though goodness may be admirable.

Personal magnetism is quite often produced by gold and silver money.

When a man asks a divorcee to marry him he protests that he will make her happy; after he gets her he lets her down.

Women may not be able to keep a secret, but there are few men who can keep their own secrets to some woman.

Plenty of money may not make a man happy, but it certainly prevents a lot of misery.

Matrimony for a woman is quite often the exchange of her independence for a man's dependence; for instance, she always has to tell him where her put his favorite necktie.

It's a very selfish woman who objects to her husband putting his shoes on the best chairs.

Women always like to make themselves believe that they have the best of everything, which is very fortunate for the men, as they have no decision to render in the household.

It is very difficult for a woman to understand how a man can so easily forget his own wedding anniversary when he can always remember the date of some great football match.

It isn't half so difficult for a girl to be the most important person at her wedding as it is for her to retain that position afterwards.

It's fortunate that the restrictions of polite society prevent us hearing about our dearest friends' think about us.

Tremont Theatre.

Honorable Crossman, who opened last Monday in the Tremont, has arisen, through the medium of the new Belasco play, "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," to a greater height than she has yet achieved, until now it cannot be doubted that she is the queen of all American comedies. In "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," Mr. Belasco has penned a piece that almost defies classification. It is old comedy of the richest and rarest kind, full of sparkle, wit and drama of the most vigorous, telling kind. It is, all in all, a deliciously captivating work, that has secured the emphatic triumph of the past season, and is destined to hold favor for itself and its brilliant and matches star throughout many a month to come. Reflections of a Bachelor. The way to keep a friend is to be careful not to get friendly with him.

Reflections of a Bachelor. Women's clothes would be awful queer if women weren't so awful queer themselves.

Reflections of a Bachelor. A woman can pick up a good many years without suspecting other people suspect it.

Reflections of a Bachelor. It makes a girl indignant at a stranger who stares at her, and wonders at him if he doesn't.

Reflections of a Bachelor. Women wear hats to have her husband waste his health on cigarettes and his money on cigars.

Reflections of a Bachelor. When a woman wishes she were a duchess it has something to do with a pearl necklace.

Reflections of a Bachelor. Married men are very selfish not to think how many useless things their wives could buy with the money they spend for cigars.

Reflections of a Bachelor. A girl is pretty sure she can read a man's thoughts when he hasn't any.

Reflections of a Bachelor. What puzzles a man is how a woman reads the thermometer to wear a low-neck gown in winter and a top of stuff in her bathing suit in summer.

Reflections of a Bachelor. When a distant relative dies and doesn't leave her children anything a woman feels the way she does when she finds the clerk has been supporting her relatives out of her pocket.

Reflections of a Spinster. Possibly the reason women have the reputation of having no sense of humor is because they are always so careful to be polite and laugh at any old joke a man cares to tell.

Reflections of a Spinster. Men are smart creatures, and they are just too clever for anything when there's a strange, pretty woman on whom they want to make an impression in the vicinity.

Reflections of a Spinster. One advantage about being an old maid is not having to tell a husband how much the new millinery cost.

Reflections of a Spinster. The man who thinks he is the boss of the house because he is the bread-winner should be taught that he has not half the dough of the bread baker.

Reflections of a Spinster. It makes a man awfully mad when he sees that the woman he is in love with is a lady and not because he's a gentleman.

Reflections of a Spinster. Society is the mother of convention, and quite often it deserts its child.

Reflections of a Spinster. The first man who told a woman he would die for her was an artist. He knew he was getting a romantic poetic hint that women would love so much they never would walk.

Reflections of a Spinster. You can almost make a fellow man steadfastly love you by making him believe that you think him the truest of his kind.

Reflections of a Spinster. Love is not blind, but judging from some of the pranks he plays he certainly is cross-eyed.

Reflections of a Spinster. A girl with a sense of humor never contests a man's opinion of himself.

Reflections of a Spinster. There are few men whose devotion to their home will allow them to see the justice of it when their wives object to their seeing a little impatient, he asked if from their pipes and discoloring the lace curtains with tobacco smoke.

Reflections of a Spinster. Honesty is a very good policy, but some men act as if it was a light that they preferred to hide under a bushel of bluntness how deucedly wicked they are.

Reflections of a Spinster. Marriage is a lottery, and like every lottery everybody thinks he will draw a prize; it's only the dead game sports who take their losses philosophically.

Reflections of a Spinster. It's only natural for a man to be fickle; it's only reprehensible for a woman to be so.

Reflections of a Spinster. The man who insists upon holding a grudge against the man he has just done his duty afterward when he supplies her with goods.

Reflections of a Spinster. Possibly the reason men are not religious is because the coal bill and the bill for the winter millinery fall due at the same time.

Reflections of a Spinster. Very young fellows and very old ones rush into flirtations where the more sensible ones fear to tread.

Reflections of a Spinster. Men are as feely set in their opinions, but the strongest of them can't withstand as an argument a woman's tears.—Baltimore American.

CHIT-CHAT.
Anent my squib relative to advertising last week. One of my readers was telling me Sunday while going in town on the train that he had read my squib. The article was very much liked by a great many ministers; that he did not practice what he preached. Now I disagree with him in every particular. I honestly believe that every minister endeavors to practice what he preaches. I do not think for a single instant that our ministers stand up and sermonize week after week and call upon their parishioners year after year dropping a word here and a word there, without feeling that they really believe what they are saying. Leave all religious creeds out of the question. The very fact of their environment is such that they must practice what they preach. Now, to get back to the starting point, I am acting in no way in practicing what I preach. My explanation is, and will be for some time to come, that in order to advertise with success it is necessary to advertise much and then advertise more and after you have done this, follow up the hints that are given to come to your store. If you make an attractive window display in your store and you see anyone who seems to be much interested in it, drop them a special letter or circular and tell them you are glad to see that they are interested. Invite them to call upon you and to allow you to show them your stock, and keep after them until they have to buy. In other words, concentrate all your purposes into the fact that the more you talk your business (in a business way) the more good you are doing. Look out for one thing and that is, not to run down the other man. If you must speak about him, say as little as possible.
ELECTION.
The election is all over. It remains to be seen whether we are going to the dogs or to some other place. According to the ante-election predictions of both sides if the other side was victorious we would suffer dire calamities. But let us remember that the good old United States will still remain at the head of the procession in everything that she undertakes.
FLOWERS.
The month of October was, so far as the month of November has been, very generous. In many shady nooks we can find flowers that remain untouched by the frost. It is not often that we are able to see the middle of November pass by without more cold weather than we have had this year. In fact, some of my neighbors have not started their furnaces, having been able to keep comfortable merely by keeping their open fireplaces in commission.
MUSICALS.
According to my way of thinking, musicals form excellent modes of entertainment. Not alone because they bring friends together, but because at most of them, selections are rendered that are out of the everyday rut. Somehow or other at a musical, so termed, we do not expect to hear tramping and rattling music. We expect and have our minds made up to hear something that will hit us just a little bit higher than our ordinary everyday life. Now who could hear a stringed orchestra play Handel's Largo and then immediately after think of ordinary business? After hearing such a selection one must feel as though something better had entered his life. Or who could hear Wagner's Tannhauser overture and not have his ambition stirred? The two numbers I have just mentioned are entirely different one from the other and offer two extremes, yet they go well on the same program and they point out just what I am

NEW OFFICE CREATED.
R. H. Derrah has been appointed Passenger and Advertising Agent of Boston and Northern and Old Colony Street Railway Companies.
R. H. Derrah has been appointed Passenger and Advertising Agent of the Boston and Northern and the Old Colony street railways, the first office of his kind in the country.
Mr. Derrah is well known to the street railway fraternity on account of his efficient work throughout New England in creating pleasure travel on the trolley lines. He has been a street railway man for fifteen years, starting as clerk in the president's office of the Boston Elevated railway, now the Boston Elevated railway, acting as private secretary to the Hon. Samuel Little, when the latter was president of the former company.
Here Mr. Derrah made the first map of any state of the Union showing the existing and proposed street railway lines, and later he completed similar maps of the states of Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York.
He was the originator of the trolley trip from Boston to New York, a novelty which took immediately.
The two companies which he represents operate some thousand miles of street railways north and south of Boston, extending to the West and covering a total population of over two millions.
For years Mr. Derrah has been an enthusiast in the matter of trolley trips, especially to seashore resorts, and his new position will afford him ample opportunities to study out the perplexities of his hobby.

Reflections of a Bachelor.
 When you hear a girl has aspirations to be a great actress it is a sign she may get in the chorus if she is built that way.
 A woman calls her youngster cute when he goes out with your eye with his finger, and expects you to be tickled to death over it.
 It makes a man feel awful funny to have a girl's mother come into the room and act as if she thought the long hair on his coat was his own.
 The reason women can't believe men have souls is that they don't get any more excited over baby's new tooth than over a stock market panic.
 A woman can guess at the amount of flour she ought to put in the biscuit and hit it off every time, but you can never make her see the same rule won't work with catching trains.
 A woman has a passion for all anniversaries except birthdays.
 A woman hates not to rent a house she knows some other woman wants.
 Generally it's the girl who can look the most innocent who knows the most.
 Some men have such will power they can go walking with a girl without getting engaged to her.
 It takes an awfully stormy day to make men realize what a comfortable place their home is.
 A man starts at a woman's feet she gets very nervous over whether her hat is on straight.
 It never seems half so bad to lose ten dollars on a horse race as to lose ten cents by dropping it down a lottery slot.
 A man is dissatisfied with his married life, the sensible thing to do is to tell his wife how much he missed waiting so long.
 No woman would be surprised to pick up the newspaper any day and read a great scandal about every other woman's husband.
 You can make a girl believe she has curly hair by saying so.
 Either a woman carries her money in her stocking or on her back.
 A man need never have too much spare cash for his own good if he will only get engaged.
 One good thing about being married is you will not have any more trouble that a kind girl will do it again.
 A fine way to revise your opinion of your popularity is to run for office.
 The chief trouble with good whisky is the way it gets drunk up so fast.
 A married man always looks at a bachelor's watch as if it were a six-shooter.
 A girl calls it almost a proposal when a man rides down town in the same street car with her.
 There is hardly anything more useful to a woman than a telephone when she has a secret to keep.
 A wife is a powerful reason for never having a good time.
 When a woman's photograph doesn't look like her it is a sign it is her favorite one.
 What puzzles a woman is whether angels put a towel on their head when they do their dusting.
 It's awful hard for a woman to see that there is any difference between playing whist and croquet more faith in a four-leaf clover than in a man does in a box full of Government bonds.—N. Y. Press.

PREVALENT OPINION.
 Seasons and Diseases.
 (From the Youths' Companion.)
 It is a common belief, popular as well as medical, that there is a relation between the seasons and diseases. Some affections prevail especially in the summer, others in the winter, and others again in the spring or the autumn, when sudden and great changes in the temperature are common. In many cases this belief is justified by the facts. Scrophulous, for example, is especially a disease of the winter; typhoid fever of the autumn, and pneumonia of the winter and spring. All catarrhal inflammations of the respiratory organs are also most common during the winter and early spring.
 It is not always easy to explain the preference of certain maladies for certain seasons. There is no apparent reason why typhoid fever should be concentrated in the same time, but you can never make her see the same rule won't work with catching trains.
 A woman has a passion for all anniversaries except birthdays.
 A woman hates not to rent a house she knows some other woman wants.

Political on the Billboards.
 (From the Boston Courier.)
 One of the features of the recent political campaign, which seems an innovation upon customary practice, was the extensive use of pictorial posters. This has been done before, but never to such a degree as to form a distinctive and ultimate method of electorology. Indeed, it may even be called offensive. The likenesses of candidates for one office and another crowded the liniments of quack doctors on the billboards. The portraits of politicians matched the idealized delineation of the heroes of Greek mythology, side by side. Some confusion was thus created. It was difficult, for instance, to distinguish between the Democratic candidate for governor and the proprietor of a certain delicatessen and very sanitary brand of chewing gum so close to the fact as the resemblance. And as for lesser luminaries of politics and trade, the jumble was simply inextinguishable. The voter was wise who could, at a passing glance, determine whether the appeal of the glaring colored sides by the candidate or the proprietor of a certain delicatessen and very sanitary brand of chewing gum so close to the fact as the resemblance. WEYMOUTH GAZETTE. PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY BY THE GAZETTE PUBLISHING COMPANY, (INCORPORATED) WEYMOUTH, - MASS. CHARLES H. WILBOY, Manager and Editor.

FRIDAY, NOV. 25, 1904.

As a writer, Thomas W. Lawson is certainly making a hit. Charitable Judge Emmons! He talks so much because of two reasons—a desire to educate the people in the ways and characteristics of the criminal, so that they can protect themselves from him, and to all the newspaper men in earning a living.

The St. Louis Exposition proves that the inventions and discoveries which are doing most to change the world are coming from the West. It is in the West, the sub-marine boat, the wireless telegraph, the aeroplane, the automobile and the gas producer, a single machine to replace coal for manufacturing uses.

American capital continues to be invested in large amounts in the Dominion. A good developed water power, two miles from Ayer's Cliff, on the Merrimack river, is being considered for electric development in the near future. A prominent American firm is prospecting for a branch site at Stanstead, just over the line.

A New Jersey matron who feared that the love of her lord and master was on the wane, consulted an expert in regard to the love charm. The expert gave her a quantity of beechwood to administer in her husband's food, assuring her that it would make his love stick. The charm excited the husband, but to anger rather than love, and the expert will now have his opportunity to experiment with his charms on jolly bodies.

The report comes from the St. Louis Exposition where Prince Fushimi is doing some sightseeing, that Japan is adopting the "English" alphabet in the near future, and that even now a Japanese mission is investigating the matter. The "English" alphabet is hardly to be estimated. It would greatly simplify all commercial relations and would give the world a more complete understanding of the Japanese.

Canadian immigration agencies have been arousing the Spaniards, and according to Madrid reports, a large emigration movement is starting in that place. Thus far, however, the movement is headed toward the United States rather than Canada, and the trend of the tide has become so evident, that the American consul at Madrid has felt obliged to notify the Spanish authorities of the stringent nature of our immigration laws.

One week from next Tuesday, Congress will recess for its brief session, which according to law, expires March 5, 1905. It will be the third session of the 58th Congress, the first having been the extra session called last year by President Cuban reciprocity legislation. The Hon. W. Murray Crane will then enter upon his duties as successor to the late Hon. George F. Hoar, in the United States Senate.

Commissioner Richards of the general land office, in his annual report recommends the exercise of more deliberate consideration of proposals looking to the establishment of forest reserves than has heretofore been exercised. The report says: "The government can well afford to delay action in establishing additional reserves until the force of forest experts now engaged upon the work can by practical field examinations and the necessary scientific research, establish beyond reasonable doubt what localities and to what extent further areas should be set apart for such purpose." During the last fiscal year, forest reserves were created, increasing the aggregate area of forest reservations to 62,763,494 acres. The patents issued for the year numbered 56,380 and exceeded those for any other similar period in the history of the department. The receipts were $9,285,941, and the land dispensed of aggregated 16,406,821 acres.

MONDAY CLUB. Interesting Educational Meeting. This week's meeting of the Monday club was one of the most interesting and instructive in the history of the club. Mrs. Kate Pierce Thayer, chairman of the educational committee of the club was in charge of the meeting and the topic was "Educational Needs."

Miss Beattie Cross of the Washington school corps of teachers told of her experience in reaction to her work and exhibited a number of specimens of work by lower grade children. Miss Hackett, drawing teacher in the Weymouth and Braintree schools also addressed the meeting and exhibited specimens of work by grammar grade pupils. Mr. Moore of the manual training class at the Pratt school contributed an interesting paper relating to the work.

Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Mrs. T. H. Tyndale and Mrs. Mary E. Holbrook also addressed the meeting. Music was furnished by Charles Leavitt, violinist, with Miss Blanche Niles, accompanist. Refreshments were served by the hospitality committee.

FOURTH ANNUAL Reunion of the Immaculate Conception and St. Jerome Churches—Odd Fellows Opera House, Thanksgiving Eve.

The fourth annual reunion of the Immaculate Conception and St. Jerome churches was observed on Thanksgiving eve, in Odd Fellows opera house, East Weymouth. At eight o'clock Deslauriers' orchestra gave a short concert with selections by a male quartette composed of John Roman, 1st tenor; Patrick J. Mahoney, 2d tenor; Joseph H. Deslauriers, 1st bass, and Joseph McCourt, 2d bass; Contralto solo, Miss Margaret Mahoney; and a tenor solo, D. J. Stewart McCurdy. This was followed by the one-act farce, "My Turn Next," which was presented by the following cast: Taraxium Twitters, a village apothecary, William J. Fitzsimmons; Tim Holms, his professional assistant, Michael Kilroy; Tom Trap, a commercial traveler, John Kelly; Farmer Wheaton, from Banbury, Bartlett Connell; Lydia, Twitters' wife, Nellie Bell; Cicely, her niece, Margaret D. North; Peggy, Twitters' mother, Annie J. McGee. The parts were all well taken and provoked much laughter among the audience.

The floor was then cleared for dancing under the direction of Bernard Mitchell, floor director; William J. Conville, assistant floor director, and an efficient corps of aids. In one corner of the hall a large booth, decorated with red and white crepe paper and chrysanthemums, had been erected for the refreshments, which consisted of ice cream, cake and punch, and during the intermission were served by Miss Annie J. White, assisted by Miss Katherine McCue, Margaret Dillworth, Margaret McErose and Margaret McCue.

The affair was most successful, and the committee in charge were highly commended.

A Household Name. "Royal Baking Powder" is a household word pretty much the civilized world over, and the article itself has become a necessity in thousands upon thousands of families in nearly every civilized country. The success of this splendid preparation is due to the fact that it is exactly what is represented to be—a pure cream of tartar baking powder. One of its great recommendations is its high leavening power. That, of course, appeals to every housewife. It secures a light baking with the least amount of attention and trouble. It can be counted upon. But it has a virtue beyond that—it is "absolutely pure." Royal Baking Powder contains nothing deleterious. It can be used with perfect confidence, and with the certainty that so far as it is concerned, the baking will be thoroughly wholesome.

A NEW TIMBER SEASONING PROCESS.

The Bureau of Forestry Will Soak Poles in Water and Then Investigate Their Rate of Seasoning.

The Bureau of Forestry, at its new experimental station in Wisconsin and Michigan, has made seasoning tests of cedar and tamarack timbers and telegraph poles which have been submerged in water for varying lengths of time. This is an entirely new line of experiment. That immersion in water tends to affect the rate of seasoning has often been noticed. Hauling is said by many lumbermen to improve timber, and logs which have lain for a long time in swamps are in some places eagerly sought for their superiority for certain uses. But what practice can be made of the fact in question generally, are matters which have never been thoroughly ascertained.

It is known that the sap of green wood contains certain soluble substances—albumen, tannin, etc., which are doubtfully leached out of the timber immersed in water to a greater or less extent. In ordinary seasoning these substances are left behind as the water evaporates and are deposited on the cell walls. As seasoning begins, the cells outside the cambium must act as a diaphragm which virtually bottle up to a certain degree the water in the interior. It is possible also that chemical or physical changes in the wood cells are produced by soaking.

Timber seasoning is at best tedious and slow work. It can be done fairly well in ten or twelve months, but thorough seasoning requires from eighteen to twenty-four months, the time varying with the different kinds of wood. If the Bureau of Forestry realizes its expectations from these new experiments, the time required for seasoning poles will be reduced one third, and possibly much more. This would prove an exceedingly valuable economy. If, in addition, the durability of the poles can be increased in this way, the saving both to users of poles and to the cause of forest preservation will be enormous. For every year added to the service of poles cut off a proportionate demand upon the forests for their renewal.

In these new tests the poles will be submerged in water for different periods, from one week up, to decide what length of time will give the best results. They will then be placed on skids about 2 feet above the ground and left to dry. They will be weighed each other, but will be laid only one layer deep. At the expiration of every thirty days each pole will be weighed, and also measured to ascertain any shrinkage of its circumference. Unsaturated poles have furnished a circumference of one-sixteenth to one-eighth inch in thirty days, and of one-fourth inch in six months.

An important matter in seasoning is the loss in weight. Past experiments with white cedar poles have shown a loss in weight of about one-third after sixty days of drying. In the case of chestnut poles the same length of time showed a 10 per cent loss. These poles are long and very heavy, and such a large weight reduction means a decided saving in freight charges, and increased ease in handling. But this advantage, though important, is small in comparison with the gain in lengthened service. Further, with greater resistance to decay it will be possible to lower the present bolt diameter requirement, which is now based on the certainty that rot will soon weaken the power of the pole to withstand strain at the surface of the ground. Altogether, if the soaking process fulfills what is seems to promise, it will have a notable saving in consumption, as a moment's thought of the number of poles in use in the entire country will show.

Why he was fired. Because doll times came and it was necessary to cut down expenses and—He was too fond of looking at the clock. Chose his friends from his inferiors. Always grumbled at any extra task. Could not concentrate his mind to any one thing long enough to master it. Out late at night and came to work looking just as he felt—dull and tired. Could not resist temptation and his bad habits caused him to care nothing for his personal appearance and he was slovenly. Thought it clever to use profane language.

LOOKING FOR POSITIONS. Do you know that there is an art about looking for a situation. There are some people, we all know them, who fill several positions to your one. I am not speaking about their ability to keep their positions, merely their ability to find them when they are looking. They seem to possess a personality that wins with a stranger. They look neat and from all outward appearance should make excellent workers. I have often wondered how they do it, but must give up wondering for unless it is some one of the things I have already mentioned, I do not know what it is.

TRANSFERRING. It is nice to have your family gathered about you on Thanksgiving Day if not on any other. And then again, no matter how high in price turkeys and all their fixings may be, we seem to manage to secure one even if business has been rather bad. I have lost of sympathy for those who follow who have such that they cannot get home on that day at all. And all of this reminds me of an experience. I was many miles away from home "stone broke." It was in my palmy days. That is at that time of my life when I was either flush or broke. It was in a section of the country close to Newfoundland and my man and I, all we could rake up between us was about twenty cents. Thanksgiving morning dawned and the landlord of our hostelry refused to give us anything to eat unless we had some of his color of our money. Both of us had written home for money but it had not arrived. We went out to the village, that part of it where the stores were, and entered one of them and bought some bread and cheese and pickled herring. You have no idea how savory those herrings were. Just as tasty, even more so than the turkey my family were eating at home.

AN OLD LETTER HEARD. I ran across an old letter of the other day. It was from a lawyer out in Belle Plaine, Ia. (No, I do not owe him money, but I don't want to get back to this letter here). It gave the lawyer's name and business address and then underneath the following: "I am the red-headed, smooth-faced, freckle-shouldered Legal Napoleon of the Midwest, and always in the stirrups. Practice in every court of east except that of Judge Lyons, and Quick as a hippopotamus and as gentle as a sunstroke. To my friends and likewise to my enemies." For originality this is the best I have seen for a long, long time.

WISKEY. Of course my friends in the W. C. T. U. will be shocked to hear it, but I honestly cannot refrain from mentioning that statistics show that more whiskey is being brought over from the British Isles today than ever before. I was looking over the manifests of one of the steamers out from London at New York today and saw that this one vessel had brought over some four thousand cases and a hundred heads of English, Scotch and Irish whiskeys. Now a case will average twelve quarts and the barrels or kegs will average from fifty to seventy gallons. Probably this particular vessel was out of the ordinary and was making a special whiskey trip but I thought that the W. C. T. U. should have hired a man to scuttle the boat out in mid-ocean and then have presented the landing of so much liquor.

ADULTERATION. Dr. Wiley of the United States government is conducting tests of various imported foods just now. He is telling the good public how that pretty green color that we see on French peas is obtained. By using arsenic and copper. The importers claim that the treatment removes all of the poison from the copper and that the peas are not harmful. Nevertheless I suppose it is still safe to eat French green peas whenever I can get anyone to pay for them.

TAKING CARE OF BUSINESS. We have said a lot about getting business, but then there is something even beyond that and that is the taking care of business after you get it. If a man calls into your store and tries to buy something of you as cheap as he says someone else will let him have it, you are apt to let him have it and at his price. Now all of this is for nothing, for if you do not pay attention to all that you are told in such instances for the fact that you have cut down your legitimate profit in this instance means that the same man will try to repeat his performance. Now after you have purchased an article and you have got business on no profit, and you have got all times—Agree to pick and choose your clerks as carefully as you would a wife, even more so for a wife will generally have your interests at heart and a clerk is apt not to. Again, if a clerk has lots of trade and is able to keep it and you know that it is profitable trade it does not beg

THE RETURN OF "PARAFIN" IN ENGLISH. Boston and vicinity is to have another opportunity to witness the splendid performances in English of "Parafin" which Henry W. Savage's specially selected company gave at the Tremont theatre during the last two weeks of October. The company will return to the Tremont theatre on Wednesday evening, November 25th, when eight performances will be given, six in the evenings with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. As was the plan during the last engagement, the evening performances will begin at 8:30 o'clock, and the afternoon with 11:15 and 2:15. The performances are now working so smoothly that the final curtain will surely fall at 10:45 o'clock. The matinee performance will begin at 11 in the morning with the following schedule: Act I, 11 a. m. to 12:45 p. m.; Act II, 1:45 to 2:50 p. m.; Act III from 3:05 to 4. The company is exactly the same as that which met with such enthusiastic approval during the former engagement. No changes whatever have been made in the personnel, although a new Kennedy will be heard in Miss Florence Wickham, a young American, who made her debut in the role last week in New York, and achieved a really extraordinary success. Miss Kennedy will be seen in the role of the other principal soprano and Mr. Pennington, Mr. Maclean and Mr. DeVoss the tenors. The other singers are Messrs. Bischoff and Ezenoff, who sing Amfortas; Messrs. Grijold and Craven, who sing Gurnemann; Messrs. Lind and Cooke, who sing Klinsinger; and Mr. Parker who sings Titurel. The conductors, of course are Messrs. Rothwell and Grimm. The box office sale began at the Tremont theatre at eight o'clock on Monday morning, October 21st. The prices are practically the same as those which prevailed during the former engagement. The entire lower floor, except the last three rows will be $3, the last three rows of the orchestra and the entire first balcony $1, with rush seats in the family circle at fifty cents.
