Fragment of an ancient manuscript in a cursive script, likely from the 15th or 16th century. The text is written on aged, yellowed parchment with irregular, torn edges. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the fragmentary state of the document. The text appears to be organized into several lines, with some characters that resemble Cyrillic or a similar Slavic alphabet. The fragment is positioned in the upper left quadrant of the page.

Handwritten text in Church Slavonic script on a fragment of aged, stained paper. The text is arranged in approximately 25 horizontal lines, with some lines starting with large, decorative initial letters. The script is a form of Cyrillic used in the Eastern Orthodox Church. The paper is heavily damaged, with irregular, jagged edges and significant discoloration and staining, particularly towards the bottom and right sides. The ink is dark brown or black, and the overall appearance is that of an ancient manuscript fragment.
