Fine Bulbs for Fall Planting

It is a pleasure to present this list of bulbs for the season of 1935.

The splendid growing conditions on Puget Sound during the past two years makes it possible to reduce prices to such an extent that many very fine varieties are now offered at prices within the reach of everyone.

No garden is complete without Daffodils as they occupy a place all their own in the seasonable galaxy of flowers. Their adaptability to almost any condition of soil or climate insures a profusion of bloom without much effort, and may be extended over nearly two months by a selection of the earlier, medium and late varieties.

All varieties of Daffodils, Narcissus and Dutch Iris listed herein are very hardy and will withstand the severe winters of the northern states if reasonable attention is given to cultural directions.

We make every effort and spare neither time nor expense to maintain clean, disease free cultures and ship only the highest grade of bulbs. Their vigor has not been depleted by promiscuous cutting of flowers as we offer no flowers for sale.

Prices quoted herein are for FIRST SIZE, DOUBLE NOSE BULBS: I ship no other grade.

GUARANTEED:—I guarantee all bulbs true to name, free from disease or pests and to arrive in good condition, and will gladly replace same if they do not give complete satisfaction. Naturally I expect customers to follow directions and give the bulbs reasonable care.

In case of mistakes or complaints of any kind please advise me immediately on receipt of shipment.

The New Dutch Iris (Bulbous)

This very distinctive group is of recent origin. The flowers are superior in substance, color and brilliancy to the old Spanish types, and are much earlier. The following list contains a wide range of colors, mostly in pastel shades and as delicate in appearance as orchids, but much more lasting, as they keep for over a week as cut flowers, and have a range of over six weeks in the garden. Although they need some protection in extreme climates, they seem to do very well as far norths as New York. (Figures shown after name indicate average length of stem.)

Cultural Directions

(Read Carefully)

All narcissii should be planted in September or early October for best results. Early planting makes good root growth and stores up food energy to produce fine flowers. Many failures are due to late planting.

Most soils are adaptable to garden culture of daffodils and bulbous iris if well drained and not too heavy, in which case the addition of a little sand and leaf mold or ground peat is very beneficial.

The soil should be prepared by very deep spading and should be moist and kept moist, but not wet, in the fall and spring.

Avoid manure; bone meal is the best fertilizer and should be mixed freely in the soil below bulbs when planting.

Plant NARCISSII 6 to 8 inches apart and deep enough so that the tips of bulbs are at least 5 inches below the surface. Very large bulbs may be planted deeper and will do better.

In the colder climates a good mulch of straw, leaves or ground peat is helpful; the straw or leaves should be removed or spread apart in the spring when foliage appears. Peat may be left undisturbed and is a very beneficial addition to any soil.

In the warmer climates they are very grateful for a partially shaded cool peaty soil where they will grow happily for years, and the blossoms will hold their color and texture much longer.

The above directions also apply to bulbous Iris except that it is well to with-hold planting until late October as they grow very rapidly in the fall and the foliage would then freeze down in winter. They also should be well mulched in cold climates.

Most of these bulbs do well if left two or three years without lifting. The proper time to dig is when foliage has turned yellow but not completely dried up. Store bulbs in a cool, well ventilated place for two or three weeks at which time the mature, well developed slabs may be carefully removed. Never break off slabs that adhere tightly to the mother bulb.

Never plant a bulb that is diseased or even partly decayed as they are of no value and a menace to your sound bulbs.

If you get quality bulbs to start with and follow the above directions carefully you will be bountifully rewarded.

ORDERS should reach me not later than September 1st, and will be shipped at once in the order received. Therefor ORDER EARLY. preferably in July or August as most stocks are limited. I cannot ship after October 1st, except on orders held for future delivery, and then at purchaser's risk.
