UNION LIST OF MATHEMATICAL PERIODICALS.

INTRODUCTION.

The following list of mathematical periodicals has been prepared for the use of research students in mathematics in the universities of the United States. It is not intended to be a complete list of all publications of this kind; indeed, such a catalogue, while very desirable from the bibliographical and historical standpoint, would not ordinarily serve the purposes of the graduate student in mathematics as well as a brief list of this nature. The selection has been made after consultation with a number of professors in those universities that have most to do with directing research work in mathematics in this country, and it represents the periodicals which, in the judgment of these advisers, the student will be most apt to consult in his investigations. The less frequently used journals should also, at some time, be listed, but this is a labor that should be undertaken with a view to compiling a complete bibliography of the subject.

The present list is divided into two parts. In the first part those periodicals appear which relate solely to mathematics, whether they are issued in the form of journals or of publications of scientific societies. The second part includes those periodicals which contain mathematical articles which the student will probably wish to consult, but which are not wholly concerned with such articles.

The index permits the student to refer at once to each list and also to find with ease the periodical for which he is looking under any one of various names by which it is known, or under the place of its publication.

The selection of libraries has been somewhat arbitrary. Those universities known to have large collections of works on mathematics have, of course, been included. Other universities which are undertaking graduate work leading to the doctor's degree and have a considerable number of sets of periodicals have also been included, but with the evident understanding that the list is by no means complete and that any scientific selection would be very difficult. Certain city libraries have naturally found place, but here again it is difficult to draw a line between those which might properly have place and those which might not. In general, the purpose has not been so much to include one library and not another as to include a fair number of prominent libraries geographically located at points accessible to students.

It is hoped that the list may render more convenient such loans as the rules of various libraries may permit, may give to students easy access to important periodicals that they may need to consult, and may assist all libraries intended for research students in mathematics in selecting the periodicals that such students need most frequently to use.

Students are advised to consult the list of periodicals in the library of the American Mathematical Society for certain current journals not frequently used and not found in enough libraries to make the inclusion of more than two or three in this union list of any particular value.

In general, the names of places are given with the local spellings and also with the spellings adopted in the publications of the United States Government.

INDEX.

(The index is arranged by the usual titles, in most cases as given by the Royal Society Index, and also by the place of publication. The abbreviations of the Royal Society Index are also included as needed. Geographical names are given both in the language of the place and in the English form as adopted in publications of the United States Government.)
