PRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 18, 1836. On Wednesday, Thompson of the Mexican armed schooner Correo, was lodged in July but we learn he was Intersted yesterday in consequence of his appealing to the Mexican emissed berre, and showing his orders from the Mexican government to critise on the coast of Texas to prevent contraband traft. He is still however to be tried in the district court of the United States, before Judge Marper, and is comporately free on giving bail.

We would feel extremely abliged to the editors of the country papers in this state, if they give us occasionally some notices of the internal improvements in progress or contemplisted, with accounts of the crops and agricultural and mineral products; also of the population in their districes. The navigation of the Red river is not open a all times to Natchitoches. It is then suggested that the route should be towards Nacogdoches in Texas, where a respects his town will shortly exist; and a newspaper is already con two in your Journal templated. Thence it could be continued onward to the gorge of the mountains and continued to any approved point on the gulf-of California: and then for China and the East Indies! What shall stop American enterprize?

THE MARLE.-The Pensacola Gazette states that it is contemplation to carry the mail between that city and New Orleans: and that proposals have been made for the purpose to the postmaster general. We earnestly hope that Mr Kendall will accept the proposals: for the distance between Pensacola and New Orleans is but about 20 miles longe, than that between Mobile and this city. Besides many of transit overland between Augusta and Blakely—which would will, yet before presning judgment, would it not be t assuredly be obviated by having a direct communication with Pensacola. This is particularly to be desired as the road across the peninsula of Florida will connect Savannah with Pensa-Mobile in their voyage hither. Our ettizens could then have intelligence from Charleston in 4 or 5 days materal of 7 or 8. and greater certainty of conveyance.

Caldwell's new theatre is likely to exceed our entiripations on account of the buildings attached to it. He will not on v have erected the most splendid, spacious and commodious staurat, a bath house, and (we believe) a orger divan, similar to those of London and Paris. He will have excellent boucors attached to his dress circle in the theatre, with fine saloons-his baths will be about 40, of marble and tin-hie till midnight-his hotel will contain about 100 separate rooms for single gentlemen-and his cigar-divan will contain all the boards, liqueurs, coffee and cigars; and afford an excellent rendezvoue for merchants, loungers and travelers.

THE CARTIGATOR is the title of an excellent little newspaper published twice a week in New York, for 3 cents; and designed to frustrate the attempts of the abolitionists. We have received two numbers of it neatly printed; and containing much good reading matter.

THE SUNDAY MORNING NEWS IS published every Sunday in New York, and edited by Samuel Jenks Smith, Esq. We have always we'comed the arrival of this journal among ou. exchange papers: for we have found much in it to instruct and improve. The editor is a veteran in periodical literature; and can electably cater for the taste of the public.

The balture question esems tacitly to have received it quictus; as regards the compromise between the corporation and the heirs of Deslondes. So much the better for general justice and the public interests.

But the failure of that project for bringing the lands on the batture in front of the new leves, into immediate use for the construction of wharves and a port opposite to faubourg St Mary as tar as the new cotton press, should not deter more reasonable and feasible attempts. The many, that the northern governments were preparing to right of the public use of whatever property existed in scknowledge Don Carlos as King of Spain, and that front of New Lieves street was conceded to the corporation by the compromise effected with the heirs of Gravier. But the terms. It was supposed that the defeat of Don this concession evidently gives also the manorial rights to the corporation of all the alluvial lands, as far as low water mark in the river : that is in short, all the land that might be redeemed from inundation at any period subsequent to the compromise. of June, and the flower etem has been growing at the rate of about four inches a day; it is calculated by gardners that i will reach to the height of from 24 to 28 feet, that the num-ber of flower-hids will be from three to four thousand, and that it will continue flowering nearly ex-weeks -The period at which the agave atrives at majurity varies according to circumstances; in hist, or otherwise favorable climates, it grows rapidly, but in milder regions, or under the care of the gardener, it requires the longest period that has been assigned to it, which has given rate to the popular error, that the flowering occurs only once at the end of a hundred years. Agriculture.—In France, a new species of wheat, which grows and ripens in 70 days, has been introduced in the Department du Nord-the farmers state it will afford three harvests annually, and will grow equally well in all seasons.

APPLICATION OF GAR TO ECONOMICAL AND DOMESTIC Punposes-It generally happens that as the progress of discovery is slow, we are long in developing the full advantages arising from improvements in accience or its application to useful purposes. We are led to remark this from the very useful purposes. We are led to remark this from the very successful appreciation of gas to a variety of purposes for which it has not lather to been employed, in heating buildings, and packerning every variety of coloury operation, and which, by very ingentious plans adopted by Mr Ricketts, has been brought into full and successful practice. The great heat equalitated in the combustion of the common street gas is a matter of every day notice, and it appears that Frederick Winger, its first involves. Winsor, its first introducer, was aware of its availability for all the purposes of heat, as in his first prospectus he issued proposals for a gas light and heat company; but with the exception of the cooking apparatus recently patented by Mr Hicks, and exhibited at the National Gallery of Practical Science, is rome piour attempt-by Mr Mallett of Dublin, this we believe, and the first time that in addition to its purposes of illumination, its applica for to other useful purposes has been shown on any commensurate scale. The plan of heating huldings, patented by Mr. Ricketts, is perfectly novel, and from the most curvery description of its principles, it will be very easy to understand its full ments and ad-flame and the supply of gas being proportioned to the dis-meter of the stove. An orifice at the bottom admits a supply of air for the support of combustion, and one at the top in form of a chimney carries of the gaseous products of combustion. By this simple and equally efficacious arrange, ment a great quantity of heat is produced and radiated, an ordered, that a meeting of the creditors of the pottitioner do not chamber blegwise near the surface of the lime distribute take the office of W. Y. Lewis, Esq. not put, judging a large quantity of heated air. In confiduation of the 30th of September, then and there to take in considvantages of this plan, we can refer to the church of Si Michael's at Burleigh street, in the Strand, where a stove of twenty two inchessed distincter is found temply sufficient to produce, a temporature of fifty seven degrees in all parts of the building. Objections on the score of danger are readily obvinted, by the apertures being made nearly air tight, the escaped gas, it such should occur, readily finding a vent through the chimney. In the case we have instanced the total concumption of manis but at the rate of fifteen to twen ty cubic feet, or an expense of policer five and six shilling per diem, whilst the attention is confined simply to lighting the gas over night, when in the morning the chirch throout is found to be warmed to the most genial temperature.

The arrangement for culmary purposes is on a plan equal.

ly simple and ingenious, different compartments being ar ranged in a neatly constructed chamber for peforming the different operations of boiling, baking, stowing, roasting, de, by different jetwof gas being placed on an adapting and transferring axis: 'It is sufficient to state that whitet, by this transferring axis. 11-16 sufficient to state that whilet, by this plan, the heat is more uniform than by any other mode of procuring it, when any substance, as in reasting, is exposed to the direct action of the flame, instead of any injurious effect, being produced the meat may be better cooked by it, being negligible and instant and insta being subjected to a well regulated and uniform heat.

Amongst the various inventions and decoveries of the day this cannot be chissidered, the least important. In many mees it is desirable to obtain and employ heat without subecting to the formation and consequent noxions influence of smoke; and we perceive the ingenious inventor has suggested the employment of his sloves, within the arches under the visduct of the Greenwich railroad, and thus render
