LATE NEWS FROM COAST TO COAST

SAN FRANCISCO AREA-Dick Oxtot

Rough days are ahead for local jazz groups, or so it would seem, judging by the large crowds NOT seen at the active spots these nights. If anyone has any spare dough it must be in the old Christmas sock, because nobody is spending very much to hear jazz bands.

Kid Ory was drawing good Friday and Saturday Night crowds, but not enough to counteract the week night losses incurred by the management at the Venus Club.

Bob Scobey's Alexander's Jazz Band across the Bay at the Melody Club was having difficulty cracking a mere three night nut, with both Friday and Sunday crowds falling off and Saturday's barely taking up the slack.

Only Hambone Kelly's, with its long time following and its really fine joint, is managing to support a band six nights a week, but, of course, in this case, Lu Watters' Band is old Hambone Kelly himself.

Hambone's took the wraps off the place on Nov. I, when they hired Eddie Condon for a Sunday afternoon ball. It was a successful venture. At least nobody lost any sheckels. And the Watters boys undoubtedly made new friends—people who came to hear Condon and are now likely to return to hear more of Watters. The band consisted of Eddie, Wild Bill Davison, Warren Smith, Matty Matlock, Al Mack, Morie Feld, and Pat Patton. The Watters band took over at 8 to complete the doubleheader attraction, and as a result of the enthusiastic reception the affair received, Hambone Kelly's is planning to stage similar shindigs once a month.

BOSTON-Bob Parent

Ed Hall's fine quartet at the Savoy Cafe is the highlight in the local jazz offerings this month. Quartet consists of Hall, clarinet; Joe Battaglia and George Wein alternating at the keyboard; John Field, bass; and Joe Corcoran, drums

The Sunday afternoon sessions continue at the Alibi Cocktail Lounge in Lynn and provide the only Dixie to be heard locally.

Other jazz news of interest comes from Dick Mascott of the Boston Music Corp. of America office. Dick is of the opinion that a good jazz band would be suitable to many college social functions. Towards this end, he is suggesting a jazz band to prospective buyers whenever the occasion warrants. The New England college support has helped make many name bands in the past and could do likewise for jazz. However, any readers who are attending school hereabouts could lend considerable support by saying a few good words for jazz to their program committees.

CHICAGO-Walter Wager

Most important news to jazz fans is word that the Paramount reissues are just about ready. They will be on the old Paramount label and reinstated by means of a 14000 series in the catalogue. The long delay in production was occasioned by the long illness of Hugh Davis. We sincerely trust he is feeling better these days.

Baby and Miff are at the Beehive and Bechet is back at Jazz Ltd.

NEW YORK

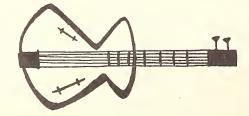

Bob Maltz's jazz band balls on Friday nights have moved from the Stuyvesant Casino to the more spacious Central Plaza on Second Avenue and Sixth Street. A regular band has been signed which will feature Muggsy, Gowans, Nicholas, Sullivan, Traeger, and Freddy Moore. Featured guests will be Alberta Hunter, Omer Simeon, Yank Lawson, and other jazz greats.

The Commodore Music Shop threw a monster jam session at Webster Hall which featured some of the best jazz heard in these parts in ages with every jazzman able to blow being present. Johnny Glasel played great lead cornet to Bobby Hackett's second horn while Brunis, Parenti, Peewee, Wettling, Sutton, Sullivan, Page, Traeger, and dozens of others took turns. No two sets featured the same men and a good time was had by all. They may make these regular sessions.

Art Hodes is playing a single at the Markwell Bar on 49th Street. Drop in to see him. He's better than ever. Fats Wallers sons are expected to make their debut hereabouts shortly. Maurice plays piano, and Ronald the clarinet. Might be interesting.

Maxie is leading a trio at Ryans and Gowans is playing duets with Ralph Sutton at Condon's. He just quit the Jimmy Dorsey crew. Cow Cow Davenport has left these parts for Cleveland.

Just heard that Johnny Hodges is leaving the Ellington fold to form a small combo. Rumors have it that he is taking members of the Duke's band with him. Quentin Jackson formerly with McKinney's Cotton Pickers has joined the Duke and is doing all of tricky Sam's old parts. A good man.

HOLLYWOOD & LOS ANGELES— Albert Otto

From El Serrito we hear the news that Lu Watters now holds down the trumpet chores alone, since the departure of Bob (Alexander) Scobey, who left to form his own combo. Also playing in the Bay Area, Scobey is attracting a number of the old Watters fans. The band is in a solid Dixie groove, with Drummer Bill Dart at last beating out the kind of stuff he is capable of. At Watters insistence, it is alleged, Dart gradually pared his traps down to a state of almost non-existence. A few more nights and nothing would have remained but a cardboard box supporting a set of woodblocks, say some local observers.

Kid Ory's Creole Jazz Band, now holding forth at San Francisco's Venus Cafe; is reported not up to musical par as a result of two substitutes in the lineup. Buster Wilson and Budd Scott, both out due to illness, are sorely missed in the rhythm section. And of all things, we understand the new guitarist uses an electric box!

Vivian Boarman, of Oakland's Yerba Buena Music Shop, is instructing a class in New Orleans Jazz at the University of California at Berkeley.

Ellis Horne, whose clarinet is remembered on the Lu Watters Jazz Man discs, recently sold his entire New Orleans collection to Ray Avery, proprietor of the Record, Roundup in Los Angeles. According to Ray, this collection is one of the best in the country, and will be auctioned in the Changer soon.

Another Norman Granz Jazz Concert was held in Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium on October 22, following a break-in performance in Long Beach two days earlier. Tenormen Coleman Hawkins and Flip Phillips were among the stars, as well as an abundant representation of top-notch soloists on other instruments.

Dave Ward, coast Ellington fan, now conducts a Saturday afternoon record show on KWIK between 2 and 4. Dave serves up a heaping dish of Ellington, including many rare items from his private collection.

At the spots: (Los Angeles)—Hangover, Red Nichols: Palladium, Harry James: Aragon, Ted Weems: Biltmore, Jan Garber: Ambassador, Freddy Martin: Le Papillon, Phil Moore: Eddie's, Pete Daily.

From Seattle comes word of the Rainy City Jazz Band, playing the righteous at Club New Orleans. The band presently plays on week ends only, but has a Friday evening remote on KIRO. Localites are pretty excited about the music, which can be heard in a new Exner album.

lemME take this chorus

All things come to him who waits, or so runs a proverb we believed in our younger, pre-jazz days. If we were still as full of faith and hope as before hearing our first Louis chorus-or even as callow and trusting as before becoming enmeshed in the deadly business of putting out The Record Changer each month—we might really expect the following things to come to pass in the New Year. But even without taking ourselves seriously, we pass these would-be resolutions and wishes for 1949 on to you, our worthy readers, who really deserve them:

No "progressive" critic will go on record as claiming that be-bop is great simply because it is Modern, or that all jazz played before 1941 is decadent.

No decadent critic will go on record as claiming that jazz died in 1884, and that the only proper jazz instrumentation is African tomtom, certified Bawdy-house piano, and cornet.

A motion picture company will release a film about jazz that won't have its grand finale in Symphony Hall with a grand fusion of righteous and classical music into thirdrate Paul Whiteman, and that will otherwise be fit to sit through without agonizing embarrassment.

No record company will gather together a group of studio hacks and produce The Very Greatest American Traditional Jazz Album.

Instead, all companies will pour forth a rash of Jelly-Roll, Oliver, and Bessie reissues

The activities of the startling young French and Australian jazzmen: the Luters, Bollings, and Bells, will inspire some of our tired local talent to more energetic musical production.

A new uniform of the day will be provided for be-boppers: berets and dark glasses will be discarded, chins shaved, and (flies buttoned.)

No musical instruments will ever be referred to by any of the following terms: tubs, doghouse, eighty-eights, licorice sticks, and slush pumps.

Finally, and much more realistically, all collectors and jazz-fans will spend a happy year getting lots of kicks out of whatever kind of music they happen to like best.

Record collectors are advised that Mr. Reuben T. Gee, of Spartanburg, South Carolina, has failed to reply to two letters of inquiry concerning complaints which have been registered against him by collectors with Jacob Schneider.

dixieland Subilee

The largest aggregation of Dixieland jazzmen ever assembled under one roof took over Hollywood's Pan-Pacific Auditorium for a memorable concert a few weeks back. Arranged by local disc jockeys Gene Norman and Frank Bull, the program featured most of "the" names of Dixieland, many of the musicians coming by air from various parts of the country.

Among the unprecedented collection of jazz names on hand were to be found such all-time greats as Edward "Kid" Ory, Louis Armstrong, Zutty Singleton, Jack Teagarden, Red Nichols, Jess Stacy; present-day West Coast favorites Pete Daily, Lou McGarity, Eddie Miller and Wingy Manone; and New York headliners Wild Bill Davison and Eddie Condon.

Although the duration of the program (some four and one-half hours) was entirely too long, the production was well-paced and varied. Red Nichols and his group got things off to a fine start; they tore into an up-tempo rendition of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" which came as a terrific surprise to the majority of the audience, who have lately come to expect from Nichols the subdued swing of a modern small-band dance combo. Outstanding were Red himself, blowing great horn reminiscent of the early days; Lou McGarity, one of the real stars of the evening; Rolly Culver, an unpretentious drummer with a solid beat; and the excellent bass sax work of Joe Rushton.

Next came the local band of Ted Vesely. This group typified the main flaw in the entire concert: too many musicians are unable to distinguish between Dixieland and jamming. To play Dixieland requires more than assembling a few musicians, however accomplished, and stomping off on a standard tune. Pianist Lee Countryman, 18-year-old protégé of Marvin Ash, was a standout not only of this band but of the entire show. It should be only a matter of time until he receives the recognition he deserves.

Following Vesely came Kid Ory and his veteran Creole Jazz Band. The difference was immediately apparent. This was the only band of the evening to keep the feet of the audience continually stomping. Musicians watching from backstage, some of whom had never heard the band before, were enthusiastic in their praise. There was an equally warm response from the crowd, whose applause literally stopped the show.

Ory was followed by an "all-star" group led by Jess Stacy. Good as these musicians are, a band of individual stars suffer greatly in contrast with an integrated, organized Dixieland group. The outfit included Nick Fatool, Heinie Beau, Nate Kazebier, George Van Eps and Artie Shapiro.

Next came the "darling" of the Hollywood "jazz" set, Pete Daily, with his Chicagoans; they had a well-planned program, knew what they wanted to play and how they wanted to play it. (They should have—the scores were right in front of them!)

A book salesman was also on the program. He had, at one time, some repute as a trumpeter. But he will henceforth be remembered as a book salesman. The book is his own story, Trumpet on the Wing (re-

by albert s. otto photos by cecil charles viewed elsewhere in this issue) and he was not the least bit hesitant about making sure that all present were aware of its existence. Wingy Manone apparently believes—mistakenly—that he's a humorist; he jived and mugged incessantly, even through all the solos of his sidemen. His own playing was not up to par, either.

After Wingy came Impressario Eddie Condon—the Stokowski of Dixieland—with Wild Bill Davison, McGarity, Matty Matlock, Stacy, Artie Shapiro and drummer Morey Feld. Condon, wonderful showman that he is, drew great response from the crowd. This is the first time we've ever seen a six-piece band with a conductor! Wild Bill of course was great, ranking with Countryman and McGarity as the outstanding performances of the evening.

Then there were the "Bob Cats," so billed because of the presence of ex-Crosbyites Nappy Lamare, Doc Rando, Matty Matlock, Warren Smith and Eddie Miller. Eddie fronted with his tenor, making fully the hit that was expected, for opinion is near unanimous in these parts that he is top man on Dixie tenor. Surprisingly fine was the trumpet work of studio musician Mannie Klein, who is seldom associated with the Dixieland style. Smith, regular trombonist with Pete Daily, is again playing in the fine tailgate style of his Crosby days while Nappy played and sang in his usual top-flight manner.

Louis Armstrong and his highly-touted outfit finished off the parade of bands, and we do mean finished! When Louis came on, virtually all the musicians who had preceded him waited in the wings to hear the Great One play. Before the end of the first number, King Porter Stomp, the off-stage audience had thinned to the doorman and a few die-hards. For years now we have been hearing that Louis' managers have kept him trom playing the righteous. If Satch had any desire to kick over the traces, here certainly, at a Dixieland Jubilee, was his golden opportunity to do so. Everyone expected it, hungered for it. But no; the Armstrong unit gave the evening's most incongruous performance. Theirs was a vaudeville act. Porter King would have turned over in his grave had he heard the riffs, the screeching high notes, the razzle-dazzle technique. Other numbers included interminable choruse of Body and Soul featuring Barney, and some Uncle Tom stuff by Louis and a buxom female vocalist named Velma Middleton, whose act included doing a split, to the sheer delight of those who were eager to be entertained. Louis should have realized that these patrons wanted the McCoy. Instead he gave them jam, Sid Catlett drum exhibitions, and assorted mugging and convulsions by a "sensational bass discovery" named Arvell Shaw.

The night's big surprise was the finale. Fifty-four jazz musicians, assembled on one stage at one time for the first time in musical history, played "Muskrat Ramble" and "South Rampart Street Parade," and it actually sounded good! A big bouquet goes to Matty Matlock for his splendid job of arranging. Ten trumpets, 12 clarinets, seven drums, 11 trombones, even including comedian Jerry Colonna, who came in for the occasion! There had been no rehearsal. Scores were passed out an hour or so in advance, and little groups of threes and fours formed in various places backstage to quickly run over their parts. Most of these sounded awful. Many of the musicians were unfamiliar with the tunes. From where we were, it looked like a holocaust.

Kid Ory and Wild Bill handed their scores back to Matlock. Pete Daily said to Davison, pointing to the outspread sheet, "You start at this end, I'll start over here, and we'll meet in the middle!" It was with great misgivings that we watched the entire company stream onto the stage and take up their respective positions.

Matty, in front, raised his arms. There was a moment of tense silence. Then he gave the downbeat. Came the first chord of Muskrat, strong and clean. The rhythm sections went into a solid, rocking, steady pace. We couldn't believe our ears. Here was a 54-piece band playing arranged Dixieland jazz, and it was thrilling!

There were few clinkers. Kid Ory practically took over the trombone section. Never have we seen Ed blow like that. Proud that it was his own tune, he gave it everything he had, and he has plenty.

It was a rousing finish to a great, if not entirely satisfying evening. The windup came when Zutty Singleton, equipped with a bright, mile-high drum major's hat and baton, led the entire troupe from the stage, down one long aisle of the auditorium and back on another, to the marching strains of Panama.

Bull and Norman deserve credit. A capacity house of some 8,000 was reportedly on hand, with many more turned away and the promoters plan to make the program an annual event.

There have been a great many books written about jazz. Very few of them have been worthy of more than passing notice, and less than a handful can claim any real importance. This is not too surprising; discussing one art form by means of another is a difficult task, as many a scholar and critic has discovered. Although most of the attempts to interpret jazz by means of the written word have been unimpressive, there have been notable exceptions: books which, despite their shortcomings, have been of great value in the jazz enthusiasts' crusade to understand this music as fully as possible, and to further its appreciation by as wide a public as possible.

Hughes Pannassie's Le Jazz Hot was one such book. A far-from-perfect volume whose concepts have largely failed to stand the test of time, nevertheless it opened up the entire field of written jazz criticism. Jazzmen, despite its limitations and frequent sentimentalizations, pioneered in the important work of exploring the historical and sociological background of the music. These have been great jazz books, not so much for their own merits as for the trails they have blazed. It is our firm belief that Sidney Finklestein's Jazz: A People's Music is to be added to the limited list of important works on jazz.

The Record Changer editors consider this an interesting, highly readable, musically sound book. It is free from the most usual failings of books on the subject, being neither cheap, nor narrowly partisan, nor pedantically unreadable. But it is not only these virtues which have generated our present high enthusiasm for Jazz: A People's Music. It is that we find this book to be the first great step towards achieving for jazz its rightful recognition as a reputable artform, an equal of any other body of music and not a crude, delinquent younger brother.

Finklestein makes much of the falsity of the customary division of music into "classical" and "popular," and this is the key to his book's importance. He is certainly not the first man to say that music can only be divided into "good" and "bad," and that much of jazz is as good as the best of anything else. Most jazz-lovers have believed this from the start. But he is the first to say this in a book that presents its arguments clearly, cogently, convincingly. And much of this conviction stems from the author's unique position among writers on jazz. Sidney Finklestein is not particularly a "jazz authority," but primarily a teacher and writer of note in the entire broad field of aesthetics. His earlier book, Art and Society, dealt with the whole of art; his evaluation of jazz takes on added importance because it stems from an understanding of all music, of all artistic expression.

In an effort to stress its unusual significance, we employed the rather unusual procedure of printing two reviews of this book in last month's Record Changer, one by a traditional jazz authority and one by a modernist. Before that, two half-hour discussions of Jazz: A People's Music had lent an erudite note to disc jockey Fred Robbins' WOV (New York) radio show, with George Avakian, John Hammond, Sidney Bechet, Ross Russell (who wrote one of our reviews) and Changer Managing Editor Orrin Keepnews participating in round-table agreement on the importance of the book.

But the Changer editorial staff feels the need for further stressing of the unusual nature and great value of Finklestein's effort. Here, for probably the first time, is a mature evaluation of jazz as a creative art. It is not only that this author claims for jazz a "legitimate" position in the musical world. He has gone on to analyze the history of jazz in terms of this assumption of legitimacy, and thereby has written a book which proves the validity of his claims.

He explodes the multiple myths that have labelled jazz as African or primitive or subconscious or wholly improvised music, and substitutes for these the proposition that jazz developed from the cultural needs of the American Negro, and that it has progressed from that point to become a constantly changing expression of all those—white and Negro—who play it, hear it, or need it. On the whole point of "what" jazz is, or "where" it may be going, it is best to quote Finklestein:

"Jazz can be defined, but only in terms of a flexible, growing art, which changes as the conditions under which it is performed change, and because thinking individuals . . . responding to new needs, add something new to something old. The "something new" is to be judged not by whether it is simply old or new, but by whether it is a genuine addition to the music. . . . When it is such an addition, it is "real jazz," precisely because it is different, and because experiment and change are in the essence of jazz."

In a discussion with the Record Changer editors, Finklestein pointed out that jazz has followed roughly the same pattern as "classical" music, in developing from an unwritten to a more formalized music. This does not mean that jazz has consciously aped the historical pattern of any other music, and that it will inevitably end in some "concert" form. (That distorted view has only led to attempts at artificial fusions of jazz and "symphony," as in the misguided and essentially barren efforts of the Whiteman-Gershwin-Grofe school.) What it does mean is

howard mcghee

BY ROSS RUSSELL

ast month in an introduction to bebop instrumentation the writer pointed out that the insurgents making up the pioneer bebop group were invariably disillusioned large band sidemen whose creative impulses led them back to small band jazz. It was also emphasized that these revolutionaries gathered at Mintons, during the war period infiltrated 52nd Street and there, during a four year musical boom when every style had the opportunity to be heard in its pure and uncommercial state, emerged as the leaders of a new style.

The general trend of simplification which had rigorously reorganized the jazz rhythm section meanwhile effected the substitution in the front line instruments of the trumpet for the brass section and the alto sax for the reed section. These two instruments, especially as handled by Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Parker, together with the new spare three-piece rhythm section, constituted the first successful bebop band (1942-44). Heard at Mintons, at the Three Deuces on 52nd Street, and later on tour, the Parker-Gillespie quintet set standards for the new way of ensemble playing.

That the trumpet should assume leadership of the new combination was inevitable. From the time of New Orleans jazz the trumpet (or cornet) had been the lead jazz voice. Powerful, forthright and robust, its range corresponded most nearly to that of the male tenor voice which had supplied the lead in pre-instrumental Afro-American music.

Buddy Bolden, King Oliver, Bunk Johnson, Freddie Keppard, Louis Armstrong had all been aggressive personalities, virile musicians who dominated the musical groups with which they associated. By the mid-1920's Armstrong had become the most imitated musician of the day. As a successful young high-pad leader he abandoned the continuation. big-band leader he abandoned the early cornet-ensemble style and, taking up the trumpet, soon expanded its range and flexibility, making it more individual in expression. The Armstrong trumpet style is the foundation style of every trumpet player who has followed him. There are certainly few bebop brass men unfamiliar with Louis' middle-period style.

The "link" musician between Armstrong and the present is Roy Eldridge, a figure of only secondary position in jazz, but one whose importance as a stylist is enormous. Between 1936 and 1942, roughly that period which begins with the eclipse of Louis Armstrong and ends with the ascendancy of Dizzy Gillespie, Roy Eldridge was the most listened to, admired, and imitated trumpet player in jazz. Eldridge's records have only occasionally captured the compelling force of his playing (Heckler's Hop). Heard in person, especially during the 1937–39 period when he headed his own six-piece band, Roy was the most exciting of musicians.

In effect, Eldridge took as his point of departure the fantastic style of the middle Armstrong period. Roy's trumpet went beyond Louis in range and brilliance. It had greater agility. His style was more nervous. His drive was perhaps the most intense jazz has ever known. After junking the small band Eldridge jobbed around as featured trumpet with large bands and was the "King" until that memorable night in 1941 or 42 (Kenny Clarke, who tells the story, is not sure exactly when) that Dizzy Gillespie caught up with him at Mintons.

"Monday night was always a free for all at Mintons," Clarke recalls. "All the young musicians in town would be in the place with their horns, waiting for a chance to get up on the stand and blow. Big name stars used on the stand and blow. Big frame stars used to drop in, especially if they were playing with the band at the Apollo Theatre a few blocks away—Charlie Christian, Lester Young and especially Roy Eldridge. Roy was the king.

"Dizzy Gillespie had started out playing like Roy, but had gotten on the new kick, working out his ideas with Charlie Parker, Thelonious Monk, Nick Fenton and myself. We had the regular band at Mintons starting in 1941. Dizzy could play, man, and his ideas were new, but try as he would Dizzy could never cut Roy. Roy was just too much. Roy had drive and execution and he could keep going chorus after chorus. Every time Dizzy tried Roy gave him a lesson, made him pack. But Dizzy never quit. "Then one night Dizzy came in and started blowing. He got it all together that night. He cut Roy to everyone's satisfaction and that night Roy packed his horn and never came back. Dizzy was the new king and the cats were already beginning to call it bop."

A lthough ten years Roy Eldridge's junior, Dizzy Gillespie could hardly be called an upstart. As a high-note trumpet player in the Eldridge tradition, Gillespie had very early earned himself a reputation with band leaders as one of the most effective section and solo brass men. Happily, the discographical evidence on this musician, about whom so much of recent history has been written, is reasonably full. On his earliest records (King Porter Stomp, Hard Times) it is difficult to say the soloist is not Eldridge himself—Eldridge with perhaps a touch of the early uncommercial Harry James. Hot Mallets with a Hampton pick-up group already showcases a talent of high potential. The two short solo passages are too fleet and graceful for Eldridge. With the prophetic Pickin' The Cabbage which Gillespie composed and arranged, using revolutionary rhythmic ideas, and on which he plays a long solo utilizing whole tone scales, it is plain that a large new talent has arrived. Sometime later Dizzy overtook his teacher at Mintons. Thereafter he was the idol of the younger generation and shortly the prophet of the new style. Once established, Gillespie's talent increased in breadth and depth, and indeed has yet to find its limit, for Dizzy has not only played the role of high priest of bebop, but displayed unusual powers as writer, arranger, band leader, entertainer and popularizer of its new idiom.

Of all the beboppers, Dizzy is perhaps the most solidly entrenched in jazz tradition. Oliver, Armstrong, Eldridge and Gillespie are securely in linear contact with one another. Gillespie's trumpet remains a lead jazz voice, masculine and lusty (Salt Peanuts). It is also capable of brilliant solo flights (I Can't Get Started, Confirmation). His range and agility are greater than those of the earlier masters. His tone deliberately has less vibrato. It is lighter, airier. Its virtuosity is often fabulous. It can sing and it

The technical ability possessed by Gillespie has worked a hardship on his imitators, who are prone to lose sight of the fact that Dizzy was among the two or three ablest trumpet players in jazz as early as ten years ago and that his later innovations are grounded on a thoroughgoing craftsmanship. Gillespie can move with facility through most of three octaves on his horn and his intonation everywhere in the register is controlled. It is reasonable to predict that at least five years must elapse before any considerable body of jazz trumpet players acquire facility in the new style.

There are many Gillespie followers, three of major importance: Howard McGhee, Fats Navarro and Miles Davis. McGhee belongs to the Gillespie generation and is in fact a musician whose first inspiration was Armstrong, and who turned towards Eldridge sometime around 1938. McGhee's early solo with the Andy Kirk band (McGhee Special) evinces a style influenced by both Louis and Roy. A favorite of Coleman Hawkins, McGhee began to listen closely to the new ideas emerging from the bebop experiments and especially to Gillespie. At the beginning of the present decade McGhee's style changed with the times and on his Asch date with Coleman Hawkins we can hear the new ideas incorporated into the solos.

Howard McGhee is a resourceful and disciplined musician whose execution is phenomenal even among the moderns. McGhee has a powerful lip, great endurance and moves in the upper register with ease; he possesses the equipment and intelligence to make good use of the new musical language.

McGhee's solos are of solid construction and tend to follow mathematical patterns based on harmony rather than melody. As an instrumentalist McGhee is Gillespie's peer . . . witness the utter sureness of his solo on Bebop. He seldom has off nights.

McGhee's tone is clear and compressed, less like Dizzy's than Roy's. He plays with great drive and with Dizzy's forcing beat. But he is neither as original nor as impassion.

sioned a musician as the master.
Fats Navarro lacks McGhee's brilliance and Gillespie's stature. He is a quieter and more subtle musician, a very delightful and badly under-rated one. His tone is superb... veiled and haunting, yet light and highly personal. Navarro plays with a more relaxed beat than Gillespie and McGhee. His phrasing is faultless. Much in the manner of Lester Young, Navarro constructs long phrases in which staccato multi-note passages are balanced against shorter statements where the notes are more hoarsely-intoned and dramatically placed.

Unfortunately Fats Navarro has been heard little outside of New York, and his recording performances have seldom done him justice. A native of Key West, of mixed Cuban-Negro-Chinese parentage, Navarro's music presents a fascinating blend of flavors, predominantly those of the jazz and Afro-Cuban tradition.*

Barely twenty-one Miles Davis may be said to belong to the new generation of musicians. There is now a mounting body of evidence that Davis is leading the way to or playing.

Nothing could be further from the Eldridge-Gillespie school than the Miles Davis trumpet. Miles plays a "soft" horn. He has consistently been overlooked by critics because he lacks the virtuosity of his contemporaries. Davis seldom uses the upper register, preferring to play almost wholly "within the staff." His tone is broad and warm.

Davis' sound, and his sense of chord changes and rhythm suspensions are very close to the Charlie Parker alto style—he has played much with Parker in the past three years. As an idea man and influence Miles Davis has just come into his full powers. If his grasp of the instrument still leaves something to be desired, he has shown considerable improvement (Barbados, the hymn) since his first record (Billie's Bounce), and is certainly the trumpet player to watch.

When one leaves the front rank of bebop trumpet players it is impossible to find musicians who are more than gifted or at best promising camp followers. In passing one laments the untimely demise in 1947, at the age of twenty-one, of Sonny Berman, whom many thought a modern Beigan in the

BY PETER DREW

TRUMPET ON THE WING, by Joe "Wingy" Manone and Paul Vandervoort, II; Doubleday; 256 pages, plus discography; $2.95.

The past year has seen a slight boom in the exploiting of the odd living habits and speech mannerisms of jazz personalities. We have been offered the life-stories of such natural subjects as Eddie Condon, who has managed to make his name a household word, and Mezz Mezzrow, who had a sensational tale of jazz and vice to tell—and an almost undecipherable jargon to tell it. Now Wingy Manone, with the collaboration of Paul Vandervoort II, continues the trend by telling us his "racy, uninhibited story," inevitably described by the publisher as "a rich slice of Americana."

In a lot of ways, Wingy's story is a "natural," too. Deprived of his right arm by a childhood accident, Wingy had a tremendous handicap to overcome. Born in New Orleans, his travels took him over most of the country—and apparently, into every two-bit bar with a bandstand from "No People, Idaho, to Pismo Beach." He has known just about every bigname jazzman you could think of. Add to this the appeal of Wingy's rough and swinging trumpet style and his mad scat-singing, and you're sort of entitled to expect Trumpet on the Wing to be a fascinating hunk of jazz history, maybe even "a rich slice of Americana."

So when the Manone story, like so many great expectations in this sad world, doesn't turn out quite as well as hoped for, it's at least a little disappointing. The trouble may well be that we looked for too much of a story from Wingy, but all the blame can't be ours. Much of it is probably Paul Vandervoort's; he has saturated the text with more labored and cute jive-talk than the eye can stomach. While there's no point in totalling the number of times Wingy is made to address the reader as "Man!" it probably averages one "man" per page, which is certainly several too many. Vandervoort seems to have missed the vital point that was so well appreciated by Thomas Sugrue (who wrote Eddie Condon's saga for him): musicians' talk may sound amusing as hell in small oral doses, but in a whole bookful of cold print it can make the reader's skin crawl. Nobody expects Wingy, or any other jazzbo, to write like Proust, but 200-odd pages of deliberately and inconsistently distorted grammar and obscure slang is not exactly readable.

Also on the debit side is the vast quantity of stale and pointless jokes, unrelated to jazz (and likewise unrelated to humor), sprinkled all over the place. Furthermore, a disproportionate amount of space in this rambling book is given over to Manone's activities in the Bing Crosby smart set, and to such things as how Wingy "just rocked the joint, that's all" in some obscure B-movie, while a good many of the celebrated and undoubtedly interesting musicians he jobbed around with are represented by little more than listings of their names.

But this sort of negative criticism can degenerate into a pettiness that ignores a book's good points, and there are more than a few good points to be noted. Despite everything said above, there are some highly entertaining tall tales in Trumpet on the Wing, such as the fabulous story of how the one-armed Manone prepared a fine Italian dish with his feet. Much more importantly, there are—sandwiched in between the stories about people you never heard of and most probably aren't interested in—a goodly amount of rollicking anecdotes about Bix, and Louis, and Sidney Arodin, and playing Texas tank towns with Jack Teagarden. About riding freights, playing at Italian weddings and with an Indian vaudeville act, and thinking up ways of skipping out without paying hotel bills. Wingy has obviously had his share of kicks, and created his share of good music, and I'm willing to admit that anyone even slightly more lenient than myself is quite likely to forgive much of the corn and the bad gags and the pointless little incidents, and focus his attention on being knocked out by the ups and downs of J. Wingston Manone (!), that solid sender who is hip as a dip and always has a reet pleat in his sharp drapes.

And if any of my comments have annoyed the authors, and they think I'm just a square from Delaware, I can only borrow the words of one of the book's incidental characters and say in conclusion: "If I hurt your beat-out feelings I beg your mother-robbin' pardon."

It seems that subversive elements are at work in the land. It was bad enough to have Muggsy make snide remarks a few issues back, but I let it go because Muggsy once said that Be-bop sounded to him like four Chinamen. However, it has been brought to my attention that some upstart in some one of the "little" magazines devoted to popular music (it was Downbeat-ed) has made a nasty attack. While it is true that he has objectively applied this only to a Victor album called American Banjo Album, which on the surface has no relationship to Jazz Bands, on closer study the implications are very clear.

For instance he starts out by saying: "the trouble with the banjo as an instrument is as follows—1. It's so clumsy to get around on that even the experienced banjoist sounds as though he forgot to take his gloves off when a fast passage comes up; 2. You can't sustain a note except by a series of continuous plunks; 3. It's a lousy sounding instrument anyway. "He ends his review by saying that the album "was a nice try but why ruin a perfectly good guitar player?"

Fellow members, this calls for action. I could, of course, put this upstart in his place by some such killing retort as "this review was obviously written with both feet" but what bothers me is that the cad had not even the courage to sign his right name. He masquerades under the palpably false name of "Herrick," when anyone in his right mind knows that Herrick was actually a seventeenth century English poet—and in all probability a great friend of the banjo and other early stringed instruments. One cannot help but realize that this is but the beginning of a plot to undermine the banjo with the American people!!!

What I suggest is a huge demonstration in Madison Square Garden, or possibly Soldiers Field in Chicago. For the moment, since membership seems strongest east of the Rockies, the Coast seems out of the question due to its geographic location. However, it might be possible for members in that region to stage a smaller demonstration, say in the back room of one of the larger saloons in Los Angeles. Remember, in strength there is power!

Will all four members of the society get in touch with me at once? Today it's the banjo, but tomorrow it may be the tuba as well!!!

Veteran of World War II. Minor Hall

Edward Ory at the Yerba Buena Music Shop

Ory rhythm

BY ORRIN KEEPNEWS

Not so many years ago, Kid Ory was just a jazz legend to most people, a New Orleans tailgate trombone who'd played on the early great Armstrong records, drifted out to the West Coast and retired from music to a chicken farm in 1933. Then, eleven years later, he was entited back for appearances on an Orson Welles radio broadcast, and formed a band from among the New Orleans jazzmen who had played with him on the program. The rest is history-the history of what is undoubtedly the greatest jazz band now functioning, playing in the New Orleans tradition as if they had never left the Crescent City.

The Ory outfit plays, of course, in the original tradition of unified band jazz, so that credit for their musical excellence must be pretty evenly distributed. But no small share of that credit must go to three men who have formed the base of the rhythm section for the more than four years of the band's existence, weathering, with Ory, personnel changes in the other positions. All three are New Orleans-born, veteran of other Ory bands and of the great Chicago era. But all have spent so many years in comparative obscurity on the West Coast that their names and colorful pasts are likely to be unknown to many present-day jazz-lovers, which is a good reason for examining the backgrounds of Minor "Ram" Hall, drums; Ed "Montudi" Garland, bass; and guitarist Bud Scott.
Saying that all three were born in New Orleans isn't strictly accurate; Minor Hall began life some fifty-one years ago in a small settlement 18 miles outside that town. "Ram"

was a part of the heyday of New Orleans jazz; one of his first jobs, after learning to play with a pair of sticks "stolen" from his drummer brother, Tubby Hall, was with a trio that incuded young Sidney Bechet. Hall's first full-band job was with Ory, in a band that he recalls as "one of the best," an outfit that played for parades, for dances, and advertised its dances in the traditional manner: "we used to use a wagon, drive around with a couple of horses, a couple of mules," with Ory sitting in back and playing tailgate.

Minor moved on to Chicago, where he took his first drumming lessons, in a reciprocal agreement with Jimmy Bertrand. "He said if I'd teach him the rhythm I played, he'd teach me how to read, and that was how I first learned to read, in Chicago." After a spell in the Army towards the close of World War I, Hall made his first trip to the West Coast. Joe Oliver sent for him in 1921 to play an engagement at the old Pergola ballroom in San Francisco. Ed Garland and Lil Hardin Armstrong were in this band, but Minor lasted for only two months before he had "some sort of fuss" with Oliver and returned to Chicago. Baby Dodds replaced him with Oliver.

There he joined a band headed by the late limmy. None obscient a close than called the collection.

There he joined a band headed by the late Jimmy Noone, playing at a place then called The Nest, later and better known as The Apex. He played and recorded with this outfit—which included Earl Hines, Joe Poston and Johnny St. Cyr—for six months. Then Ory, who had been on the Coast (first at an Oakland ballroom, later on a barnstorming tour) when Minor made his first brief trip, sent a call for Ram to rejoin him. This time he was out West to stay; he wasn't with Ory for long, but played in and around Los Angeles from then on. He played dancehalls and night clubs with Papa Mutt Carey, then worked in a small band headed by Winslow Allen until—to everyone's surprise—the not-so-young Mr. Hall was among the first to be drafted. He played drums in the Army for six months, was let out six months later as over-age, and spent the rest of the war with Douglas Aircraft, until Kid Ory asked Ram to join him at the Jade in San Francisco. And this time he has, of course, remained with the Creole Band to date.

Ed Garland, the bass player known to his colleagues by the odd nickname of "Montudi," is New Orleans born (also at about the turn of the century) and bred. His brother taught him to play, and Garland claims to have started his commercial career at the age of 11. He was part of a violin-guitar-bass trio at a private party, and at about eleven o'clock, Ed recalls, he fell asleep on his bass. At a slightly more advanced age, he began filling in for other bassists around town. This gave him the distinction of appearing with most of the legendary bands of the era; the Imperial, Eagle, Superior, Robechaux's band. When these outfits played parades, Garland played mellophone, and sometimes bass drum. Much later, when basses went out of style on the West Coast for a while about ten years ago, B-flat tuba was added to the playing list of the versatile Montudi.

To clear up this, "Montudi" business before going any further: Garland explains it this way. "They tell me 'the Montudi' means the Duke, the duke of some place, I don't know. The way I got that name—we were playing in a cafe and there was a fellow came in by the name of Montudi, a very nice old man, and he used to give us lots of tips and we played different requests for him. So we began calling each man in the band 'Montudi. Everybody else would laugh it off, but when they'd call me Montudi I'd get angry about it and want to fight the whole group. So they just continued calling me Montudi, Montudi, until I began to answer to it. . . ."

He left New Orleans in 1914, taking a band to Chicago to replace Freddie Keppard's outfit on the Orpheum vaudeville circuit, playing behind a girl named Mabel Lee Lane who, as Ed recalls, had learned something known as "the clock dance." Ed stayed in Chicago for eight years—and the first new addition to his band was a girl piano player, whom he heard first as a salesgirl demonstrating sheet music in a store at State and 34th Street. He asked if he could "use her for the night," thus giving the classicallytrained Lil Hardin her first jazz-band job.

As Garland tells it, he was also responsible for Joe Oliver's coming to Chicago, and for the start of King Oliver's New Orleans Jazz Band. "Yes, I'm the one who sent for Oliver to come to Chicago. I sent for Joe to organize a band to play at the Royal Gardens, when it first opened up. Then Honore Dutrey came through Chicago; he was in the Navy, but told us his time there was going to be short, so we told him to come on back to Chicago anytime he got out of the Navy. And Johnny Dodds came to Chicago with a show and he was playing at the Monogram, and so we got Johnny Dodds for it, too. And finally, when we got all the group together, we went on together as King Oliver's New Orleans Jazz Band."

That band played at the Royal Garden, the Dreamland, the Pekin, and then came out to Frisco, to play at the Pergola in 1920—the engagement for which Ram Hall briefly joined them. The band was in San Francisco for almost a year; during that time Baby Dodds joined them, Lil Hardin left and was replaced by Bertha Gonsoulin. Finally they came down to Los Angeles to play a short engagement with Jelly-Roll Morton. Then Oliver decided to go on to New York, but Montudi had made up his mind that he "wasn't going any further." With the breakup of the Oliver band, Garland joined Baby Dodds, and some others who wanted more of the California climate, in becoming part of the Kid Ory band. Garland remained with Ory until the Kid retired to his chicken farm in 1933. Then he formed his own group, playing in the Los Angeles area until he met Ory again at the memorable Orson Welles broadcast. "Ory was playing again and it seemed like it got good to him again, so we sat down one day and had a little talk. The boy who really wanted to get a band together again was Jimmie Noone, and we all figured to make Ory manager of the band. But Jimmie died, and we had to go on without him."

Third of the New Orleans rhythm men in the Ory band is guitarist Bud Scott, whose career has certainly ranged farther afield than that of most jazzmen. Starting in the traditional pattern, he learned guitar at an early age, studied singing in school, and first played with Joseph Robechaux's band. But when he left New Orleans in 1914, and travelled as far as New York with a musical comedy outfit, Scott's voice was good enough to gain him membership in the "Clef," an organization that included Marian Anderson, Paul Robeson, and Roland Hayes, and was the first Negro group to make concert appearances at Carnegie Hall.

He moved on to Chicago in 1923, joining Joe Oliver, and immediately running to the other extreme. Bud was the one who shouted: "Oh, play that thing" on Oliver's "Dippermouth"—certainly a far cry from the Clef. On a short trip to California in 1923 he played briefly with the Ory band, then re-

(The first of a series on well-known record collectors).

ne of the best-known young men in Southern California Southern California music circles is Dave Dexter, Jr. When approached for this series, Dave remarked that he wasn't "a real collector." Most of his records, he said, were "still back east." After seeing his local assortment of perhaps seven or eight thousand records, I asked him what he thought "a real collector" was. His answer: "For one thing, I never trade records. If I find someone who likes a record of mine better than I, he gets it as a gift. And I never collect for the label. Many of my discs are dubs."

That Dave means what he says was proven to me before I left his home after an evening of playing and discussing recorded music. I left with an armload of platters which he insisted I take along merely because I expressed a desire to own them. (Don't worry, Dave, I won't tell the vultures where you live!)

Those who are acquainted with Dexter through his writings as a former editor of "Down Beat," later as publisher of his own magazine "Note," and more recently as squire of the "Capitol News," or who have listened to his Tuesday night KFWB radio show, know him to be partial to Kansas City jazz. This of course is natural, since he grew up in the environment of Julia Lee, Count Basie, Andy Kirk et al. His liking for Julia Lee goes back to the days when she played and sang in the old George E. Lee Orchestra, which recorded in K.C. for Brunswick.

Dave hauled out Brunswick 4761—Won't You Come Over to My House/He's Tall, Dark and Handsome. Several years ago when Dexter was supervising the Capitol "History of Jazz" series, he asked Julia to cut House, which she did. The side was not a hit, but more recently when Dave was responsible for the Nellie Lutcher version, altered slightly to read, Hurry on Down to My House, it was a sensation, as is well known.

Dexter's "collection," even though he insists it is not one, includes all the Capitols which he was instrumental in having recorded. In addition to the Lutchers and Lees. there are the St. Paul's Baptist Church Choir, Joe Alexander, Jesse Price and others.

Dave also has a fancy for the dance bands of the thirties: Noble, Arnheim, Kemp, etc. In other styles, he is fond of Billie Holiday and Pete Daily. Small group jazz is well represented in a complete assortment of tenand twelve-inch Keynote discs. He believes this to be one of the best all-round jazz labels.

His rarest items, however, are to be found on transcriptions. He is one of those fortunate owners of a number of 16-inch Ellingtons, as well as the Kenton transcriptions which were cut during what he considers to be Stan's "sane" period (circa 1942). This was the exciting new band that first attracted attention at the Rendezvous Ballroom in Balboa.

Any article on collectors should include a word about filing systems. Dexter's might be called the "Good God! It was here a minute ago" system. He claims to know where every record is located, but always seems to have difficulty finding it too quickly. Oh well, we must remember he isn't a "real" collector....

Dexter is a rarity in critics. He doesn't knock other critics nor musicians. He believes music to be a matter of opinion; if the individual enjoys what he listens to, that's the important thing.

A year or so ago Dave's book, "Jazz Cavalcade," was published. If you want to learn more about the taste and opinions of Dave Dexter, Jr., we suggest you read it. Whether or not you agree with all the ideas expressed, you'll find it well worth your time.

With the cessation of hostilities, Germany is slowly returning to such pre-war pleasures as wiener schnitzels and beer gardens, dancing and Music. And as the Sauerkraut Serenaders warm up with their version of I Wish I Could Eat Sausage Like My Sister Skates, backed by It's A Treat To Beat Your Feet On The Blue Danube Mud, jazz once more comes into its own.

From 1939 to 1945 jazz issues were prohibited in this country and so we must reach well into the past to find material of interest to collectors. Jazz records were issued mainly by two firms, The German Brunswick G. m. b. H., which was connected with the Gramophon G. m. b. H. (known by the English label His Master's Voice); and the Electrola B. m. b. H. The first label issued jazz in droves, items by such outfits as Chic Webb, Louis Armstrong, Count Basie, Bob Crosby, Hot Club Quintet, Benny Carter, and other small combinations. At the same time they pressed popular commercial records by Jimmy Dorsey, Andrews Sisters, Mills Brothers, etc.

The Electrola label was more frugal and issued only some single items by Duke Ellington, Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman and Artie Shaw.

Currently Amiga and Imperial labels of Germany are active in jazz recording.

The only information we can obtain concerning Russian recordings comes from a German correspondent who writes: "I doubt very much if you'll really find one human being in Russia engaged in the field of jazz music." According to this correspondent, "If there were interested parties they would not be able to appear in public as any activity aiming at a popularization of jazz music has been prohibited by the Soviet."

Dutch Decca, under pressure from collectors, is once again coming to life by issuing some local Holland jazz. Newest combo. features clary, trumpet, trombone, drums, piano and bass and has just made Apex Blues/Strange Peach for early release to Netherlands collectors.

In Switzerland, an outstanding amateur unit, the New Orleans Stompers, will shortly record on Swiss label. This outfit has won awards at various international competitions with their Dixieland efforts.

Although there are such Danish labels as Tono, Odeon, HMV, Parlofon, Brunswick (Siemens), the discouraging word is that no jazz is being recorded in Denmark. However, Scandinavian collectors want the U. S. to

The All Star Stompers

Shim-me-she-wabble Swinging Down the Lane

Avalon St. Louis Blues

I Never Knew I Could Love Anybody Can't We Be Friends

For this third album from the This Is Jazz show Rudi Blesh has chosen to give us six more sides by the All Star Stompers, which is all right by me for I still have a certain nostalgia for those Saturday afternoons at two thirty. In fact Bob Aurthur's program notes recalled it so vividly that after I read them and stacked the records on the old Magnavox I could almost see (and hear) Colonel Blesh's shirt of many colors, which was often seven degrees hotter than the music, and his chin whiskers quivering in time to Baby Dodds' wood blocks. Actually, with no disrespect to these records, I think that M. Aurthur's prose is the better performance.

By this time all of the pundits have argued out the last nuances of the band that, save for small changes in personnel, was on the show from the opening to the closing session. With much of what has been said I agree. No, the band did not play traditional New Orleans style, but to those who said that it played Dixieland I can only add, thankfully, that this was even further off the mark. There were others who claimed that with Wild Bill in the band it sounded pure Chicago, yet even on it's one or two off days it never could be mistaken for the barefoot boy in the French, Shriner & Urner shoes, in whose saloon Mr. Davison holds forth nightly. Let's leave it at that—this was a band neither for the traditionalists nor the extremists.

Yet I don't think that calling it a hybrid is the answer either, or at least the whole answer. I think the band was striving towards something, namely an attempt to bring jazz up to the present without getting off onto any of the tangents so many other groups have taken. It held to the past but never so rigidly as to be tagged as sounding almost like so-and-so did in 1922 and though it did some things which made a few of us, myself included, chew our fingernails, it was an attempt to assimilate them into a bigger wholeness. I'm not at all sure they were wholly successful always, or even half of the time for that matter, but when it happened something pretty damned good was usually the result.

In this album there seems to me less of this than there was in the first one, though all of the records are good. However, the surprise to me in the whole batch was Can't We Be Friends, which I put on the turntable expecting pretty much a Wild Bill "showcase" treatment. Instead what came out was the kind of thing that seems to me the proof of the pudding, a wonderfully satisfying record and one that shows clearly what can be done with even the most banal pop tune every now and then.

As I have said all the numbers in this album are uniformly good. Some of the other pop tunes here don't get into me the way that the one I just mentioned did, and there are really only three jazz standby's and one of these, Avalon, less so than the others. I have heard numbers on the broadcasts that I thought were better than some of these but the selection here is certainly catholic. And although not inspired, these records won't just sit around on your shelves. I think you'll play the hell out them.

I said in introducing the first album that I doubted that these records would ever be thought of in the same terms of greatness as the early Jelly's, the best of the Louis Hot Fives, The Dodds' or the Oliver's. Having a little time behind me and a lot more playings I'm even more sure of that than ever. Yet it seems to me that the chances are that they may be pioneering in somewhat the same manner; for to me they point the only possible way out of our present dilemma. Whether or not we make it, your guess is as good as mine. (Circle S-15, $3.93) (B. M.)

Turk Murphy's Bay City Stompers

Kansas City Man Blues Shake That Thing

Brother Lowdown Yellow Dog Blues

This gang draws largely from the Lu Watters band, with Burton Bales on piano, Mordecai on banjo, and Scobey, Murphy, and Helm on the front line. Their quality is—not too surprisingly—pretty much that of the Watters band, without as much brassiness and volume. Sounds pretty good, too.

The standout side of the lot is Murphy's original, Brother Lowdown. The Watters gang has always shown a striking ability to come through with fine originals in the traditional vein—something no other jazz band of the last twenty-five years has done nearly so well. Right there is one of the secrets of the Watters band for my dough; the boys have been criticized for playing too loud, too straight, and God knows what-all, but they played stuff that nobody else had the musicianship and guts to tackle, including original material. Yes, I've heard it said many times that Bunk Johnson would complain bitterly that he had to play the same old numbers over and over again because the guys in his band couldn't learn new ones, but I strongly doubt if any band in the jazz field ever could have produced as many consistently excellent originals as the Watters crew has done.

Turk Murphy, beyond doubt, is the most important sideman Lou has had, not only for his fine writing but also for his gutty trombone playing, which set the tone of the band more surely than anyone else's individual sound. On his own here, Turk has produced a record date that stands up well alongside all his previous work, and gives his fans a fine chance to hear him with a smaller group than has heretofore been possible.

The only distressing note is Harry Mordecai's banjo alongside Burt Bales on Shake That Thing and especially Brother Lowdown, in which I must say he's either out of tune, playing wrong chords, or plunking some "gone" inversions. Can someone set me straight?—I just don't get it. But everything else is in the proper groove. Bob Helm's clarinet was never better, and Burt Bales sounds better than ever. I think these are Burt's first commercial records, although he's been heard a good deal around town and on air-shot discs of the wartime Watters band and Bunk Johnson's San Francisco band. I seem to remember him playing a lot like Fats Waller in his living room, but here he's got more of Buster Wilson's equally two-fisted style.

Hearing these records makes me realize that Bob Scobey's horn has been playing lead on more Watters record than I realized. He's even better here than on his trilon sides. As for Turk, he has a near-perfect style for this kind of music, and a tone that can't be beat. He trots out the five-gallon can, too, for some Ike Rodgers stuff. Get with this set. (Jazz Man 31, 32).

Mutt Carey's New Yorkers

Indiana Ostrich Walk

The first group of Careys that came out on Century consisted of three highly embarrassed rags and a happy standard that everybody knew. The impression that the Carey band would do much better on more of the latter is borne out here. Mutt's unexpected passing is especially unfortunate in that he finally produced records under his own name at the age of 56—and they are to be his last. And they are certainly fine examples of his playing, particularly Indiana.

This is an extraordinarily fine side; I'd say the best yet on the Century label. Carey picks up the first chorus in driving fashion, sounding very much like Wild Bill Davison, but with greater force, if you can imagine that. It would be no exaggeration to say that this is the best horn imaginable for the New York style that has grown up in Manhattan during the last decade. It is perfect, that's all.

Mutt adds a solo with mute later on, and in the last chorus socks out the lead again, open. In between, Ed Hall is fine, Danny Barker lays down some grade-A rhythm along with Baby Dodds, and the whole spirit of the performance is downright ideal.

Ostrich Walk is a weak sister by comparison; nothing happens that isn't done better on Indiana. At that, it's still a pretty fair performance. (Century 4013).

Punch Miller

Down by the Riverside Panama

Back when I used to listen to the radio every time the Casa Loma orchestra was on the air, I used to get a great kick out of the confusion of the engineers during things like clarinet solos and Kenny Sargent vocals. Many's the time the solo mike would be closed and you'd hear Sargent singing way off somewhere and the background of the band booming up through your speaker. That's the way it is for quite a while in Down By the Riverside, and you know what? I like it.

Punch, holding back too much, lets Ed Hall and Ralph Sutton have the spotlight in the first chorus of this slow version of Bunk Johnson's theme, and the result is very nice indeed. One of the best things about this date, incidentally, is that there are only two other men on it—Jimmy Crawford on drums and Ernest Hill on bass. The studio Century recorded Punch in seems to have been much too small for a larger group; the first Punch Miller releases sound much poorer technically than this one. Sutton, cutting through all the way (I would say that two mikes have been used, one for Sutton and Hill, another for the horus, and let Crawford fall where he may), gives the record a distinctive flavor and helps make it rhythmically interesting with such pleasant moments as the transition into the last sixteen bars.

Panama is faster, more hectic, and somewhat less distinguished. As with the Mutt Carey release, one side says all there is to be said on the record, and thus Panama is just another side. (Century 4014).

Dick Wellstood

George Zack

Oh Baby, Look Out!

This is the first solo record of Wellstood's piano work. While not typical, it shows off his fast, clean adaptations of the Harlem piano school. There's a lot of Johnson and Waller in this record, and a snatch of Maple Leaf Rag, but also a lot of Wellstood. He has the attack and technique to stand up to a man of the stature of Jimmy Johnson; maybe there isn't as much originality as you'd like, but it would be unfair to say that this is just a copy. Chalk up an excellent performance for Wellstood, and it's good to know that the promise of this year-and-ahalf old recording has been fulfilled. Wellstood has absorbed the Harlem school well, and this record alone is sufficient proof.

Another derivative pianist, but of an older period, is George Zack, whose Oh Baby, Look Out is one of his best efforts on wax. Once again, there's not much that's original here, but it's nicely put together. Zack's tasteful first chorus is followed by a good blues vocal and then out with a little of Tin Roof Blues and a couple of familiar turns of the blues. The heavy rolling followed by the sharply percussive flights of the right hand are all here, and sound as good as George ever played them. There are only four choruses in all on this side, but they're all you need. (Century 4002).

Lord Nelson and His Boppers

Ratio and Proportion

Sonny Stitt's penetrating tone is the first thing that hits you on this record, which sounds as if it were made in a marble hall, and Milt Jackson's vibes are the second. Stitt gets an uncanny sound out of an alto, tremendously sharp and metallic, and he has good ideas to express with it. I can think of easier jobs than rendering Stardust, accompanied by vibes, drums, piano, and a silent trumpet, but Sonny acquits himself with sparkle and grace.

Milt Jackson supplies the audible part of the backing, occasional shimmering chords being all that was necessary.

The reverse brings to light a trumpeter, a pianist and a drummer, Willy Wells, Will Davis, and Dave Heard respectively; none of the three is familiar to me, except that Heard is the celebrated J. C's brother. Wells plays an odd solo, beginning with part of Million Dollar Baby, for no very valid reason, and Davis sounds like a pretty capable piano man. Stitt has an invigorating 24 bars, in that ringing, confident style of his, sounding as if he could cut through the Goldman band, and Jackson taps around with intelligent neatness; Heard doesn't play loudly, he's more in the tradition of his brother, bouncy and slick. The bass is by Jimmy Glover, but he is not well recorded. I forgot to mention that the well recorded. I forgot to mention that the tune itself (at bottom a 12 bar blues) is annoying, to me anyway, but there is enough of interest to nullify that. (King 4235) (P. B.) (Continued on Page 22)

nly by extension of the mirror function which is criticism's first fundament may one take into account such circumstances outside of a given actual performance in preparing a report of the event and its results. The reviewer may be considered entirely true to his trust who confines himself to an account of what took place just as it happened. Having done so, he is entitled to call it a day. Strings may depart from their proper tension in vile weather; sounding boards will perchance warp or hammer felts be affected under extremes in temperature-or pranksters drop niblets of glue between the pages of a score. Consternation follows any such untoward circumstances or misdemeanors and it is beyond the critic's field of concern. But there comes a time when the rules safely, honestly and for simple hospitality's sake may be thrown overboard. The critic, a man among men, can manage to take advantage of his opportunities to behave in a gentlemanly manner. (These opportunities present themselves in almost every one of his working days.)

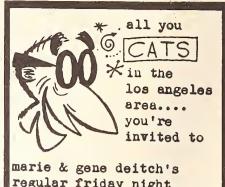

Certainly he must be a carping wretch who would fail to take into consideration the heart-moving situation which caused a shadow to be thrown upon the career of Askel Schiotz. New York's Town Hall was occupied to its full legal capacity on the evening of October 20th to herald the Danish tenor's initial American appearance and the artist was cordially received throughout the execution of a program as taxing as that likely to be undertaken by any singer at the top of his form. Mr. Schiotz's reputation had preceded him by several seasons via a number of splendid recordings, by comparison with which his recital must be reckoned a harrowing disappointment.

But wait! Since the best of those records were made the singer had undergone the ordeal of brain surgery to assuage injuries incurred as a soldier of his King. While his memory is quite unimpaired, he has been afflicted with a marked diminution of technical prowess. The voice, as presently produced, is but a pallid echo of its former self; the co-ordination is there but the sense of climax, although it may be called, will not answer. There is little inkling of the true range in size and texture, almost no definite revelation of coloristic varieties. The organ is, forsooth, etherized. Yet, this gallant gentleman seems determined to carry on with his career and his wish to do so will ever find a companion heart in this reviewer's prayers for his eventual full recovery.

Oratorio arias by Handel and Haydn comprised the opening recital group and were followed by a complete edition of Schumann's great "Dichterliebe" cycle, to which was added that composer's "Die Lotusblume." Four Brahms songs and a group by Danish composers brought the program to a close. Among the three encores, Mr. Schiotz gave a particularly winsome rendition of a dear old friend, "My Lovely Celia."

Make no mistake, the intelligence and refinement of an artist of the first rank were in fulsome evidence at all times. It is the full flower of the emission that needs to be recaptured. Askel Schiotz appears to be about forty years of age. Granted that his misfortune can be entirely repaired, he should be able to grace the platform with his winning presence for a goodly number of seasons to perpetual portrait

There are comparatively few men and women who still live to tell of their ecstasies of acsthetic sensation in the presence of Jean De Reszke, and their recollections are dulled by the passing of almost five decades. Idolatry alone remains untarnished. They will tell you (or you may read) of De Reszke's superb character delineation, of the ineffably lovely chiaroscuro of tone wrought in his throat and of the sublime dignity of the artist whose perfection in every last aural and visual facet of executive technique was of a grace supernal. The narrative, with its key dates, the listing of his roles, and a few far-removed glimpses into his personal nature is all that remains, and the chronicle is as dry as his bones.

The career of Jean De Reszke is finished; there is no living testimony to perpetuate his creative contribution to a world that was, for a time, blest with his presence. There is no encomium to do him justice. He was truly great and he is truly dead, for this Mastersinger chose to suppress publication of the two examples of his work which he recorded and which might have immortalized him long after he had ceased to be a memory and had become only a name. Of the waxes engraved without his knowledge during actual performances at the Metropolitan in 1901 (his last season in America), the less said, the less curiosity aroused—and unfulfilled, for these are blurred, primitive fragments which tantalize but do not reveal to any appreciable degree.

Π

Enrico Caruso was born in Naples in 1873 and died there in 1921, and although a generation has come to maturity since his passing, his voice and more than a little of his personality are as alive today as when he was at the height of his phenomenal renown as First Tenor of the World.

Of all the millions of words written and published upon the subject of Caruso during and after his lifetime, not more than a thimbleful are to be relied upon, and the acres of type set by his publicists, effervescent idolators—and slanderers—make a sorry collection of source material for the much-needed definite biography. His own delightfully adept caricatures of himself and of his contemporaries, published in La Follia, tell more of the man's lovable nature than all of the anecdotes. To listen to one properly chosen record of his voice is to learn more about his artistic being than can be gained through reading all of the critics' reviews in the musty files. Distortion is rife in the prints but the recordings, although made long before the phonograph had emerged from its infancy, tell the story with a fidelity which holds for today and tomorrow all that cannot be conveyed to any but the aural sensibilities

Those who wish to know which thirty-six operatic roles Caruso employed during his tenure at the Metropolitan will have no tribulation in the quest and the dates of his performances are likewise readily accessible. For so-called "human-interest" stories there are the blurb-sheets put out by the old Victor Talking Machine Company to herald its latest record releases, with their plenitude of spot-news photos;—Caruso entering the opera house, Caruso on shipboard bound for La Scala, Caruso playing tennis, Caruso clean-shaven, Caruso with his newest mustaches, three-quarter profile, full-length and (actually!) Caruso with his back to the camera...and...ad nauseam.

But the reverence with which Caruso's name still is spoken owes itself not to the lists nor to the pictures nor to the nonsensical tales nor to any of the thousand material swatches surviving. His corporeal investment skillfully preserved and until recent years on public view attracted only those morbid swine to whom that for which he lived is a blank.

It is the voice of a Mastersinger which endures in perpetuity to recreate for us, at our will, some of the fruits of his task upon the earth.

Caruso and the science of sound perpetuation emerged from prepubescence at almost the same time, with results which scarcely could have been happier had the artist and the inventor been brothers of approximately the same ideals and sympathies. It was in 1897 that Caruso's star cleared the horizon. Shortly afterward one of the "mushroom" companies of the recording industry's beginning years engaged him to make a few cylinders. These, the earliest surviving examples of Caruso's singing, reveal an open and quite naturally Italianate method, a lyric texture not boyish nor to any degree uncertain-yet lacking in those qualities of darkling splendor characteristic of his zenith years. They conclusively give the lie to the persistently reprinted misinformation that Caruso, like his predecessor, De Reszke, had begun his career as a baritone.

Within the next few seasons other companies made other records and these, played in chronological order with the earlier and later recreations, enable us to trace the vocal developments as well as the always increasing authority and stylistic impact. However, none of the pre-American cylinders or discs are of much value to the student of bel canto for re-recording apparatus is incapable of contending with their vagaries of pitch, volume and clarity. The faults are, of course, the faults of the original, crude recording machines and should in no wise be construed as being attributable to artistic shortcomings.

Our fully rewarded interest in Caruso's recordings begins with the series done at Milan in 1902-3 when the tenor's endeavors first bloomed to full advantage and brought understanding recognition by himself and by the impresarii of his true potential worth to the world of music. Some of these matrices were brought to the United States for release as part of the now scarce "5000 Series"—the first (after the short-lived 2000 series) red-seal records issued by Victor. They preceded the tenor to America by several months, his debut here taking place in late November, 1903. Indeed, it was a l'esti la giubba of the 1902 group which brought about Caruso's first Metropolitan contract. The late Montrose J. Moses relates that this disc was played to Heinrich Conried, the Metropolitan's then manager, and that Conried forthwith opened cable negotiations with the tenor's agents. The ultimate results of those enquiries admit of no extended comment here and now. Nor need we dwell at any length upon the peregrinations and vicissitudes attendant upon the pattern of existence which thenceforth was to be Enrico Caruso's life on and off the lyric stage. Let us concern ourselves more properly with the Caruso who lives forever, enshrined within the record grooves.

IV

In February, 1904, about ten weeks after his New York debut, Caruso was taken to Room 826 in Carnegie Hall there to transcribe the first ten in a soon-to-be lengthy catalog of songs and arias. He was paid off in cash, there being no contract in existence. But the advisability of having Caruso's signature on a recording contract very soon became apparent and the formality was duly realized. That contract was in force until 1913 when it was renewed (with revisions) for an additional twenty-five years' duration, thus outliving the tenor by seventeen years and under the terms of which royalties to his estate continued to be forthcoming. (Whether or not Mrs. Caruso continues to receive royalty payments, I have not inquired.)

Not all nor nearly all of Caruso's singing on records which remains accessible is representative of his best work nor of music's best estate, and some of the recordings of which copies arc readily procurable were better placed aside to make way for loftier flights of song which repose within the vaults at Camden. Examples of Caruso's singing at all phases of his career reveal stirring things as well as things less than deservant of unstinted praise. It is for the critically qualified to listen and adjudge the inescapable qualities and inequalities abundantly available in imperishable presence. No excessive laying-on of portamento in the later years eludes recognition; -no carrying through of limpid cantilena in the lyric decade is lost. Those who have had word of his supreme conception of the romanza, "Cielo e mar" will do well to seek the 1905 version, with piano, rather than the one made after the brio had been supplanted by the spreading of the focus resultant from too many adventures with Rhadames and Canio and Samson and Jean de Leyden. There is an Una furtiva lagrima available today which is in no wise comparable to the two-part version done in 1904 and withdrawn from circulation a generation ago, the hearing of which invites destruction of the later matrix.

To be sure, certain of the items made during the latter half of Caruso's career merit the highest praise. Crucifixus from Rossini's Stabat Mater (his very last address to the recording horn) is a lesson in classical singing. So with Lully's Bois Epais sung at the same session. And there are others.

It is to his records that Caruso owed not only a substantial portion of his income but also a fame which, until the advent of radio, was known by actual living example to more people than that enjoyed by any other individual since the world's first musical tone was uttered.

It is to Caruso, through these records, that we owe much of our understanding and appreciation of the heights to which vocal art can rise and, God willing, will rise again. He has bequeathed to a fortunate posterity his Testament of Beauty and it will continue to recreate itself for the benefit of humankind so long as there are those who will listen and receive its message.

A decent respect for the great man's memory requires that his future auditors be exposed only to that work of his which is a just representation of the best he had to give. It therefore behooves a seasoned complement of judges to act, by painstaking process of elimination, for the permanent removal of such items as might be entered as damning evidence against his reputation. and to ensure the preservation and the propagation of some of his glorious moments in our midst turned East. "Then Ory came to Chicago, too. I played with him in Oliver's band." When Oliver went on to New York in 1926, Bud joined the Noone band at The Apex for a while, and then went out to California to stay. Out there he did movie work for a number of years, doing "a little bit of everything—talking parts, singing parts, vocals, playing the guitar or banjo or violin" (He had studied violin during his New York and Chicago days and "played symphony for quite a while").

Then, of course, came that 1944 Orson Welles-broadcasts reunion with Ory and the others, and ever since then, the huge Scott has stood alongside the comparatively tiny Ed Garland in the Ory rhythm section.

The background material and quoted statements in this article are taken from a radio broadcast interview between Ory band members and Vivian Boarman of the Yerba Buena Music Shop, of Oakland, California. Thanks are also due to her for providing the pictures used on this page.

style. They are essentially swing musicians. The trumpet players of the Stan Kenton orchestra are capable and brilliant but seldom play in a personal style. There is greater freedom in the present Woody Herman band, where Al Markowitz and Shorty Rogers contribute excellent solos and Ernie Royal's effortless high-note work is stimulating. It is impossible to overlook Gail Brockman of Chicago; Benny Harris, one of the pioneers of the bebop movement; Kenny Durham, whose tone is unequalled; Tonmy Allison, formerly with Boyd Raeburn and now with Buddy Rich; Ray Linn, ex-Raeburn first trumpet who now plays studio jobs in Hollywood and is a musician of real quality; Benny Bailey, formerly with Jay McShann, Neil Hefti, Shorts McConnell, Doug Metone and Tony Fuselli. But to date none of these men have shown more than interesting potentialities.

Bebop brass men constitute a school as well established as the new form itself. They have further extended the range of the instrument. They have added to its virtuosity, speed of execution and brilliance. They have produced a trumpet tone which is lighter, rounder and more transparent. In the next issue the writer will consider bebop REED instrumentation and style.

that jazz, in common with all forms of creative art, has travelled a natural path from folk-art simplicity towards urban sophistication. Thus jazz now possesses the body of New Orleans music, both the style and the repertoire of beautiful tunes. This remains as a source of continuing listening pleasure, and also as a living, integral part of all of the jazz music that has developed out of the New Orleans foundation and is constantly changing as its environmental conditions change.

It is, incidentally, this theory of the alteration of all art from early folk forms into complex later expressions, which forms the basis of Sidney Finklestein's more general work, Art and Society. But he first developed the idea from his study of jazz-a rather striking example of the uses of an approach that regards all forms of artistic expression as potentially equal.

But in emphasizing that Jazz: A People's Music is significant because it insists that jazz is "equal" to any other musical form, it is important to avoid the impression that is important to avoid the impression that Finklestein is saying anything to the effect that "jazz is just like long-hair, only it sounds different." Jazz evolved in its own individual way, under specific conditions peculiar only to jazz. Finklestein's term is that it is a music of "protest," a word open to some misinterpretation. At least one reviewer (Bucklin Moon in the December viewer (Bucklin Moon, in the December (hanger) has complained of the over-application of this thesis, and it is true that the word carries implication of sullen, angry revolt and smashing of chains—which is hardly what most of jazz sounds like. The word may be unfortunate, but the author's two uses of "protest" are actually quite sound. Jazz is a music created primarily by Negroes, who lived-and still live-under conditions that deny them most other opportunities for expression. Certainly even happy music can be considered as a protest against a world whose regulations are designed to keep a Negro from being happy. And Jazz, says Finklestein, is also a musicians' protest against the stagnating standardization of techniques of playing and composing in con-

Used in this sense, emphasis on the "protest" in jazz is simply a logical extension of the thesis, universally accepted since the time of Jazzmen, that the music is greatly influenced by the specific conditions under which jazz musicians live.

This article has not been meant as another review of Jazz: A People's Music, although it seems, at least in part, to have turned into a book review. Johnny Dodds

South Bound Rag

Young's Creole Jazz Band

Tin Roof Blues

Johnny Dodds' clarinet noodles throughout the first side of this unusual pairing, supported by Blind Blake on guitar and Jimmy Bertrand on xylophone. There isn't much else you can say about it, since it's far from being one of Dodds' more important records, but it does have a curious quality that I have never heard before, thanks to Bertrand's xylophone playing. He is gloriously ordinary on the instrument, but it produces a different sound that makes for a change of pace if nothing

The Young's Creole Band side is patterned after the New Orleans Rhythm Kings record. (Even the label credit is N. O. R. K., and that doesn't mean the Columbia backfield of Nork, Olson, Rossides and Kusserow.) Preston Jackson and Bernie Young are heard in trombone and trumpet solos, while Happy Caldwell confines his clarinet playing to the ensembles. Young, whom I've never heard except on these sides with Jackson, has a pretty solid style and Cassino Simpson supports him nicely at the piano during this

Dobby Bragg

3. 6 and 9

We Can Smell That Thing

This should settle for all time that the name is really Dobby, not Bobby. The guy plays a fair honk piano, but rushes like hell and never does explain the significance of the title 3, 6, and 9. The talking resembles Pine Top Smith more than somewhat: too bad the piano doesn't. Bragg does better on the reverse, although his lack of technique is practically staggering. We Can Smell That Thing is a rather distasteful side on all counts, and you'd be much better off with something like Jimmie Noone's record of It's Tight Like That, which is much better music on the same theme. (Century 3028).

Jimmy Blythe's Ragamuffins

Adam's Apple Messin' Around

There are all too few records of Freddie Keppard's hard cornet playing. This is one of the better ones, although listening to Keppard's horn on any record at all is rather hard work, thanks to the extraordinarily poor studios he was used in. Another thing: stories are one thing and records are another. Keppard may or may not have been a great cornet player, but you can't prove it with his records. He gets lost, fluffs, plays way out of tune on Adam's Apple. (I have often wondered if it's really Keppard on this side.) He's much better on Messin' Around, which is a superior side in all respects except that Trixie Smith intrudes with a typical Paramount vocal. Just stick to this side, and dig Dodds and Keppart, and you'll be getting a pretty fair earful. There's no question that Dodds was a far greater musician, and as I've implied before, I think Keppard may be given rated but this side has covered by the best over-rated, but this side has some of his best moments on wax, not barring the Jazz Cardinals sides. to every record collector's dream. The chart, 17" x 22", will tell you at a glance the approximate recording and issuance date of any record appearing on more than 100 labels issued before 1930.

an example of how the chart works

Let us suppose you pick up a copy of Richard Hitter's Blue Knights on the Gennett Label, Record Number 3149, Master Number 9725, playing "Stomp Off Let's Go." Knowing little about the record and being unable to locate it in any of the standard reference books you can go to your record dating chart and at-a-glance tell that the record was made about June 1925 and released August 1925.

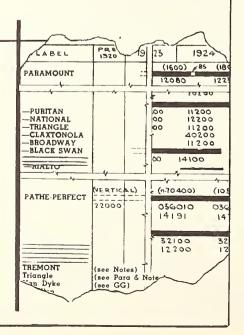

just a few of the labels

there are explanatory notes on most of the labels tracing their inter-relationships and releasing systems.

Δ	 Arnentinan	G	German
Au	 Australian	- I,	Italian
В	 . Brazilian	J	Japanese
C	 . Canadian	M	Mexican
			. Swiss

In the "For Disposition" section the condition of the record is indicated by these abbrevia-

N (New): Surface noise equal to an unplayed record; no visible or audible wear perceptible; original finish intact.

E (Excellent): Surface noise low, smooth, uniform. Not irregular or crackling, Easily disregarded in listening. No perceptible distortion. V (Very Good): Surface noise somewhat more prominent; light foreign noises, but slight distortion, if any; noises not seriously distracting.

slight distortion, it any; noises not seriously distracting.

G (Good): A moderate amount of surface noise; background may be somewhat irregular and crackling; some foreign noises, and a little distortion; on the whole, reasonably satisfactory listening without undue distraction of attention, Foreign noises definitely less prominent than the music.

F.(Fair): Foreign noises, taken together, are about as prominent as the music, and there is considerable distraction of attention, and listening requires some effort and concentration; nevertheless, under these conditions, listening should be fairly satisfactory.

Column 4 of the "For Disposition" section shows the method by which each record is to be dis-

"SAL": The record is for sale at the price indicated.

"AUC": The record is at auction. The highest bid takes the record. Bid only what the record is worth to you.

"TRA": The record is for trade only. If you are not familiar with the wants of the advertiser send for his want list, If you have certain records in which he may be interested mention these in your letter.

The extreme right column in both the "Wanted" and "For Disposition" sections shows the first four letters of the advertiser's name. His address is shown below

NOTE:

All persons using the medium of the Record Changer in the buying, selling or trading of phonograph records, do so subject to these Rules and Regulations:

- A collector or person who solicits and receives advance remittance for a record must send the record within a period of four weeks.
- 2. A collector or person who orders and receives a record prepaid must pay for it within a period of four weeks.
- 3. A collector or person who obtains a record in trade must fulfill his end of the trade within a period of four weeks.
- 4. A collector or person who requests that a record be shipped C.O.D. must accept the shipment unless the shipment is damaged in transit. (A bid on an auction or an order from a sale which states that records will be shipped C.O.D. unless otherwise instructed, is considered a request for C.O.D. shipment.)

The name of the person or collector who violates the above rules will be printed in the Record Changer upon the first violation, and the violation will be described. (Exception: where breakage or over-grading is concerned, the record is to be returned promptly to the shipper. If the parties involved do not arrive at a settlement, the matter is to be referred to the American Record Collectors Board.)

When infractions of these rules occur, contact Jacob S. Schneider, Legal Dept., The Record Changer, 128 West 66th St., New York, N. Y.

CLOSING DATE FOR BIDS On all Records advertised for auction in this issue will be JANUARY 20, 1949

for your jazz library

A splendid selection of jazz literature to heighten your listening enjoyment.

by gene deitch

A collection of the best Cat Cartoons which have appeared in the Record Changer over the past four years, plus many previously unpublished cartoons of the Cat. The book includes forty-six cartoons in thirty-two pages. George Avakian does the amusing commentary.

NEW YORK

Charlie Traeger has opened with a trio at Mona's in Greenwich Village. Bob Pavese, great new piano man is featured with Traeger, who is best known for his appearances at the Stuyvesant and Central Plaza and with the Wilber Wildcats on records. The Jazz Band Balls at both these joints are continuing to bring to Gothamites the best Jazz in town. Josh White and Leadbelly sang duets for half an hour the other night and the crowd ate it up. Latest attraction at the Central has been Big Chief Russell Moore the only full fledged Indian to play jazz. His instrument is trombone and was most recently heard with Louis' big band. Lee Collins is expected in New York this month and should be heard at the Central.

At Ryan's Chippie Hill has been singing duets with stage star Tallulah Bankhead. If you have ever seen and heard Miss Bankhead you'll know why these impromptue vocals are worth catching. Sol Yaged, who plays and looks more like Benny Goodman than any musician we've ever seen, has moved across the street to the newly decorated Three Dueces.

Monette Moore found herself penniless when her hotel room was burned up in a big blaze. Billy Butterfield was fined by 802 for playing a radio date on his night off from Nicks. Brad Gowans. Pee Wee, and Hackett each received a reported $100 for one set at a Trenton bash. Bob Wilber reopens at the Savoy in Boston for an indefinite stay. Bop from the Royal Roost is broadcast nightly over WNEW and Dizzy filled Carnegie to capacity Christmas day. Thousands turned away in the streets. Billy Kyle playing at the Red Wagon. Mezzrow playing again.

CHICAGO—Walter Wager

Chicago met 1949 with a loud bop, starting with a thunderous Lester Young session at the Pershing Ballroom on New Year's night and rolling along madly with a dazzling Dizzy Gillespie concert the next afternoon at the Opera House in an uninterrupted burst of post-holiday whoopee.

The Armstrong All-Stars concluded their successful stay at the Bluenote on January 9, and were followed by Woody Herman and his able crew. Playing intermission piano for the potent Herman pack is Max Miller, a genuine talent overdue for national recognition.

Dixie did very well for itself, with Baby Dodds (drums), Miff Mole (tailgate), Darnell Howard (clarinet), and Fred Greenleaf (trumpet) blowing all over the Beehive. Doc Evans and his dang were striving ably to raise the roof at the Tailspin, while other wise citizens were catching a lot of fine New Orleans from Sid Bechet and company at the rather sedate but comfortable Jazz Ltd. With the persuasive soprano sax maestro in the plush bistro were Munn Ware (trombone), Bill Reinhart (clarinet), Don Ewell (piano), and Johnny Vine (drums). The whole thing was just about the slickest operation in this Windy City, and very well worth looking into. By reservation, only.

Shifting from the suave to the sleazy, the unpredictable joints on North Clark's strip and skid row continued to serve up hot dishes of deriere and Dixie. As a thoroughly exhausted 1948 staggered out and fell into Lake Michigan without even a splash the Parody Club was offering Danny Alvin, Max Miller, and Bud Jacobson. A good deal of heat is radiating from Lee Collins torrid horn at the familiar Victory Club, a rather rare dive which looks like the set of a Warner "B" production. The music is more than competent in the Armstrong tradition, the beer just a dime, and the girls not much more. While not a rough joint, I was glad that I had my spats at the cleaner.

Like the man said, it's still Chicago.

SAN FRANCISCO AREA-Dick Oxtot

As last month's report indicated, the Bay region's jazz fare has been depleted to the extent that only one jazz band is playing regularly. Kid Ory returned to Los Angeles and Bob Scobey's Alexander's Jazz Band wound up its engagement during the same week, leaving Lu Watters' band to uphold the standard alone.

Watters' band still puts over a six night stint each week, although the leader's powerhouse horn has been temporarily stilled. An impending operation has taken Lu from the brass to the rhythm section, where he scrapes a washboard with apparent content. With the fall of his Alexander's Band, Bob Scobey has vaulted back into the Yerba Buena Band, as its one and only trumpet. The personnel these nights: Scobey, (trumpet); Turk Murphy, (trombone); Bob Helm, (clarinet); Johnny Wittwer, (piano); Harry Mordecai, (banjo); Dick Lammi, (tuba); Lu Watters, (washboard).

The remaining jazzmen hereabouts are feeding on whatever casual dances can be promoted. Making fair inroads into the college fraternity circuit is a young band headed by Pete Stanton, which includes Bob Mielke, (trombone); Pete Allen, (clarinet); and Jack Minger, a trumpet find who did a splendid job with Kid Ory during the final three weeks at the Venus Club.

NEW ORLEANS-Don Perry and Fred Hatfield

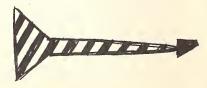

Jazz has returned to New Orleans! Regardless of previous reports on the birthplace of Jazz, our native music is at last finding a precarious foothold in some of the more appreciative clubs. After a state of inactivity, a small flurry of interest has grown to large proportions, instigated by the New Orleans Jazz Club.

George Lewis is still holding his appreciative crowd at Manny's Tavern in Gentilly, with Elmer Talbert, "Slow Drag", Lawrence Marrero, and Joe Watkins. Johnny St. Cyr of Hot Five fame played for several weeks at Smitty's-Bar, a small neighborhood tavern on the outskirts of the Vieux Carre', with Albert Burbank in a fine quartet and Jim Robinson, plays his trombone in occasional street parades and funerals.

Much of the jazz interest in New Orleans to-day is centered around Sharkey Bonano, now playing at the Famous Door in the Vieux Carre', and surprisingly enough, with the only dixieland band on Bourbon Street. His all star lineup includes Santo Pecora (trombone), Lester Bouchon (clarinet), Monk Hazel (drums), Chink Martin (bass), Jeff Riddick (piano). Sharkey also does a fine job of leading the Sunday afternoon concerts at the Parisian Room, with Irving Fazola, "Digger" Laine, Roy Zimmerman, Monk Hazel, and Chink Martin participating.

Surprise find of the season was an outfit headed by pianist Buck Banville carrying on the 'Halfway House" style at an obscure dance hall in Gentilly, and patronized almost exclusively by teenagers. Buck's band has been holding forth for approximately fifteen years in the same spot with the same musicians, and removed almost entirely from the influence of modern trends in music, with the result that they play some very interesting stuff. His program consists of playing two "Pop" numbers (in his own style) alternated with a jazz classic. They play with terrific drive and enthusiasm. A missing trombone is the only trouble. A delightful oddity is the sousaphone in the lineup which is accepted, surprisingly enough, by the bobby soxish-crowd.

Elsewhere in the city you can find Arman Hug playing piano at the Hotel Pontchartrain and Raymond "Slow Blues" Burke, playing fine N.O. clarinet at the French Casino. Playing spot jobs in town are Johnny Wiggs (cornet), Bill Shea (clarinet), Freddie King (drums), and a new addition to the crowd, recently of Atlanta, Bob Matthews (drums).

Of late there has been a disturbing increase in the number of reports of unethical practices in connection with the buying, selling, and trading of records through the pages of this magazine. This troubles the editors of The Record Changer greatly; as the medium through which the exchanges of records are made, we feel a definite responsibility to protect the great majority of collectors against the unethical few.

In order to more effectively protect your interests, we strongly urge that collectors let us know about any and all unsatisfactory transactions they have experienced in recent months. Please be specific: name names; describe in detail the foulen-up transactions; and indicate the present status.

These reports will form the basis for a full-length article, to appear in a forthcoming issue, which will attempt to expose the most frequent and reprehensible malpractices, and discuss means of eliminating them.

Please send all reports, plus any suggestions you may have to offer, to the attorney in charge of these matters:

Another jazzman is dead long before his time; Dave Tough, barely forty years old, died of pneumonia on December 9. Best known as a traditional, Chicago-style drum-mer (he was born in Oak Park, Ill., and was an integral part of the early Chicago era), Tough had also ventured so far to the other extreme as to play with the Woody Herman band for a time. His sudden passing stunned the many jazzmen and collectors who knew him and valued his work.

Military Notes: Tony Janek, top-gun in the V-disc program, informs us that V-discs, surprisingly enough, are still being turned out, with a good deal of jazz included among the recent sides. More than 900 records have been turned out under this program. We also hear that the 54-man grand finale of the monster Dixieland Jamboree, reported on in last month's Changer, was recorded by the Armed Forces Radio Service. Anybody got an extra copy?

A fairly new British jazz publication has come to our attention: Jazz Journal, edited by Sinclair Traill and Tom Cundall. It's a handsome monthly that impresses us chiefly with its freedom from cultism, its attacks on shoddy discography, and its sense of humor.

Charlie Emge informs us that the city censors in Memphis have banned the movie A Song Is Born, ostensibly because it claims A song is Born, ostensibly because it claims jazz was born in New Orleans, while everybody knows it was born in Memphis. Chances are, of course, that it was the film's mixing of white and Negro musicians, rather than obscure cultural-pride motives, that caused the ban. The movie, incidentally, is just one more of those painful Hollywood's eye views of Real Jazz.

Ine evening in the spring of 1938, while at the dinner table, I reached over to the radio and turned it on at random, giving no thought to what program might be on, and got a pleasant surprise. A fine piano solo was coming over the air. After a few moments of listening, I said to my wife: "Listen to that number,—that's the kind of piano the boys in New Orleans used to play," or words to that effect. At the end of the selection the announcer gave the player's name, none other than Bob Zurke. I am pleased to recall the incident, as it reminds me that away back in the early days, New Orleans had considerable fine piano.

One little group of piano players included Joe Verges, Leonard Bysdorfer, Irwin P. Leclerc; those who like to think that good jazz had to come out of honky tonks should have heard these boys having a session on a Sunday afternoon at the Monteleone Hotel. Another good ragtime player should be mentioned with the group-Harry Farrar, who just missed out in a couple of chances for a place in jazz history; in 1915 Harry and a jazz group went to Chicago and played the summer season. About 1916 Harry made a recording of a hot rag on a wax cylinder (probably a Dictaphone recording), and sent it to the Victor firm, but nothing came of it. He could play in any key, but preferred six flats.

Bob Zurke was one of the players that Jelly Roll Morton had kind words for, and contrary to general belief, there were a number of others. I believe it was largely due to his unstinted praise that Tony Jackson began to get some of the credit that he deserves as "the greatest single-handed entertainer."

One day I mentioned Roy Bargy to Jelly, and he agreed unhesitatingly that Bargy was a fine pianist. Bargy wrote some very good rags at the tag end of the ragtime era, and recorded them for Victor in the early 1920's: Knice and Knifty/Pianoflage (Vi. 18969), and others. Bargy made some use of what has been referred to as "secondary rag," which in my humble opinion belongs more to novelty than to ragtime, although it is found in many rags. I don't recall that Scott Joplin ever used it. In his Jazz: Hot and Hybrid, Winthrop Sargeant mentions the Cannon Ball Rag by Northup (1905) as the first published example of secondary rag, but a simpler form of it occurs in Levee Rag (1902) by Charles E. Mullen, one of Northup's contemporay Chicagoans. Mullen was still living in 1930, but I haven't heard of him since. The second part of Levee Rag was used in at least two other rags, Easy Money (1904) and also the Cannon Ball.

If a catchy strain appeared in a number, there were many who didn't hesitate to pick it up and use it, which resulted in its appearance in widely separated parts of the country. Fragmentary bits of tunes, partially learned by folks, and whistled or hummed about the streets, would be picked up and built into rags or songs. A couple of bars from a part of Tiger Rag used to be current around New Orleans and was known by it into a song; I built a rag around it, and didn't know it was in Tiger Rag until years later. A "ratty" tune that used to be heard around New Orleans and was known by some as "If you don't like the way I walk, was later arranged into a pretty good song called Mama's Baby Boy. The impudent and rather personal "Hey, Brownskin, who you for?" of the New Orleans gamins was put into two songs, one published in New Orleans and one in Chicago. . . .

A kidding or catchy remark, if it became current, was almost sure to get into a song. When I worked in Gretna from 1904 to 1906, the office boy used to sing a sort of blues strain, "You may go, but this will bring-a-you back," illustrating with an appropriate gesture. Later I found that several songs had been written with that title, one of them by Ben Harney, who gets some credit for pioneer ragtime activity. Harney's song was published in 1898, and he must have carried the idea, if not the song, to New York from the midwest.

Harrison Smith calls attention to the fact that many Dixieland standbys were Tin Pan Alley tunes, which certainly is a fact. In the article Scott Joplin: Overlooked Genius (Record Changer, 1944), it is stated "...in publicizing the musicians who developed and spread jazz music, there has been a lack of consideration given to . . . the early musical environment of the players, to the popular musical compositions that were current in the early days." However, it is also a fact that many Tin Pan Alley hits have been, consciously or unconsciously, versions of honky tonk strains from the provinces, or have contained large portions of "strains from the alleys." Early examples are May Irwin's Bully Song, and Ta Ra Ra Boom De A, the latter coming out of Babe Conner's dive in St. Louis to make a hit, first in London and then in this country. I don't believe it would be difficult for a good tune detective to identify strains from old tunes in many of the more recent hits. Those who doubt might compare Ta Ra Ra Boom De A

When ragtime was young and very popular, nearly every aspiring writer utilized it in his original compositions, or in ragtime versions of familiar songs, such as Old Black Joe, Annie Laurie, Home Sweet Home, as well as the classics. Felix Mendelssohn wrote a Spring Song; Egbert Van Alstyne wrote Darkies' Spring Song; Joe Jordan write J. J. J. Rag, the first part of which is almost identical with the first part of Darkies' Spring Song. Jordan was the composer of That Teasin' Rag, which went into the Dixieland One-Step, if my memory serves me. Otto Bonnell wrote a rag version of Turkey in the Straw, which is a direct descendant of Old Zip Coon, published in 1843. . . .

I looked up the original of Old Zip Coon, thinking to get at an early manifestation of ragime, but it had none in it. It did, however, furnish an early example of "scat" singing,—"O, zip a duden duden duden, zip a duden dev." In The Ham Fat Man (1863), we find more of it,—"Hoochee, coochee, coochee," which is more likely to have been baby talk than any reference to Little Egypt's hoochee coochee dance. In Stanley Crawford's Show the White of Your Eye, there is "Bo-lo, Bee-dle Em-bo." In the song If That's What You Want Here It Is, by Shepard N. Edmonds, there is "Ba dee-dle lee do-dle lo-dle lo," and more.

As to extemporaneous "scat," my old friend Bill Sommers, a semi-professional singer in New Orleans some forty years ago, told me that he was never at a loss for the words to a song. "If I forget 'em," he said, "I use my own words, or substitute something that sounds like words." So-o-o-o, Louis Armstrong doesn't exactly stand alone. Once in a while there is something new under the sun, but not too often.

NEW FRENCH SENSATION

by rudi blesh

arly in 1948 we began to hear of second-line jazz in France. It was in January, in fact, that sensational reports began filtering back from the International Jazz Festival at Nice of a young band headed by clarinetist Claude Luter. No Hot Club Quintette this, evidently, for soon Louis Armstrong returned from France with accounts of the fidelity with which Luter had captured Johnny Dodds' style and his group that of King Oliver's Creole Band. Luter discs that arrived shortly thereafter largely bore out these reports.

The emergence, at this time, of one such band in France would have been surprising enough, but it would seem that it was an omen, too. For more recently there have come reports from abroad, backed up by records, of another and younger band that is, in certain ways, even more phenomenal than the Luter group.

Eighteen-year-old pianist Claude Bolling leads this new jazz sensation. Before describing the band and its music, however, let us briefly sketch Bolling's own story. Claude was born in Nice in 1930 and by his twelfth year, having mastered the guitar, took up the study of classical piano. About this time he heard an album by Charlie Kunz, a French hot pianist of sorts. As far as he recalls, this was the first time that the young Bolling had ever heard jazz. Overwhelmed by the experience, he forthwith embraced the jazz idea.

Only a scant year later he was able to gain honorable mention for his hot piano improvisations in a Paris festival. By 1945, at the age of fifteen, he had formed an orchestra, based on the New Orleans instrumentation, that played in various Paris night clubs like the Lucky and the Kangoo. Since then the rise of Bolling has been something of a phenomenon. A year ago he opened the Tabou club. By this time Bolling was not only a fine pianist in the Waller vein but a remarkable leader, as well, as was proven by his appearance last December at the Paris Coliseum. His remarkable talent for musical organization, evidenced by the playing of his band on that occasion proved an astounding revelation to French jazz fans.

Various public appearances followed; an outstanding one occurred early this year at the Marigny festival. There, besides pre-senting his Hot Seven, Claude played piano accompaniments for the great traditional blues singer, Chippie Hill. Shortly thereafter, Bolling and the Hot Seven recorded a number of sides for Blue Star of France. At last reports the band is playing at a cabaret called Au Vieux Chouan.

The present front line of the Bolling Hot Seven features Gerard Bayol, who plays a simple but imaginative and driving lead cornet based mainly on early Armstrong; Maxime Saury, whose soprano work is derived, of course, from Bechet and whose fluent, expressive clarinet is preëminently Doddsian; and Jean-Louis Durand, who plays a sound and resounding trombone. Bolling heads the rhythm section, noted for its relaxed solidity at all tempos. His companions in laying down the beat are Guy de Fato on bass, Robert Escuras on guitar and Robert Peguet at the drums.

Claude Bolling's personal style has gone through several rather well-defined periods: from the soon-forgotten Kunz to Waller and Earl Hines, and then to the final formative stamp of Jelly Roll Morton. A steady, brilliant, and creative player, Claude has assimi-lated what he personally needs from the latter three and has amalgamated it all into his own style. As a leader he has used the same intelligent and tasteful eclecticism. Refusing to be bound to the literal imitation of any one style, however hallowed, his band bases its playing on Oliver, Morton, the Hot Five. In some instances, even the mid-1930's work of Ellington has been adapted to the requirements of his seven piece group, although this, in all likelihood, may be regarded as a passing phase in the band's development.

The assurance of the Bolling band is as remarkable as its homogeneity. Each man, despite his youth, is a fundamentally sound musician, able to work in ensemble as well as solo. There is no doubt that the leader has impressed his own personality and aims on the group as a whole. It is known that he has had a strong hand in guiding the musical development of these young players.

The six sides that Bolling recorded last spring for Blue Star are: Georgia Bo Bo, Spring for Bittle Star are: Georgia Bo Bo, Blues in Disguise, Nobody Knows the Way I Feel This Morning, Dippermouth Blues, You Rascal You, and Riverside Blues. There is some fine, relaxed jazz on these sides, (Continued on Page 20) and his guitar are absent from the podium, a not-too-unusual occurrence, but Wild Bill Davison, George Brunis, clarinetist; Peanuts Hucko, Gene Schroeder on piano; Jack Lesberg on bass; and Morey Feld, drums, manage to fill the Greenwich Village air. Ralph Sutton plays fine intermission piano

A DISCOGRAPHY BY ROSS RUSSELL

As a supplement to last month's discussion of the leading exponents of the be-bop trumpet, Ross Russell has prepared a selective discography of 79 records. He recommends them to all who are interested in gaining an understanding of the use of the trumpet in this new style. As might be expected, Dizzie Gillespie records predominate, but there are sides by Miles Davis, Howard McGhee, Fats Navarro, and 15 others.

the c-r-dex system for the filing and indexing of phonograph records

by anthony p. ciardi

Records have been created for the purpose of furnishing "the music you want when you want it." They are meant to be played—not hidden. Any collection of records that doesn't permit the choice of a record immediately when desired defeats its own purpose.

A collection must fulfill two requirements for proper use and enjoyment: it must be housed in a suitable storage space, and it must be indexed.

An index furnishes an overall picture of the collection, and separates it into numerous categories. It keeps the collector constantly aware of the items in the collection, assisting him in the plan of collecting, and in the selection of a program for listening.

Suitable storage space means a cabinet, or cabinets, that will house all the records in the collection, with the records filed in a manner permitting instant removal and replacement. Naturally, the larger the collection, the greater the problem.

Most of you must have already discovered that one or more large cabinets are preferable to many small ones, and that the cabinet should hold single records and albums, 10-inch and 12-inch. But most of you probably have no suitable filing and indexing system.

To clarify at this point two terms to be used quite frequently: filing records will mean placing them in a cabinet in accordance with the system used. Indexing refers to a listing—usually in a loose-leaf book—of artists, titles, and other data pertinent to the collection.

The collector may want a simple yet effective system—so it must be stated at the outset that no such system exists. A certain amount of detail must be endured to make a system truly effective, and a collection enjoyable. Naturally, the more detail, the more work, but what real collector is ever dismayed by a little labor?

My C-R-Dex Filing System is basically a system of filing by artist, in strict alphabetical sequence. The term "artist" refers here to either a single person or a recording group of any size or type. The system covers the filing of both 10- and 12-inch records, single records and albums.

Single Records

First, file all single records by artist, assigning each artist a code number (I have found it much easier to locate and replace records by number than in alphabetical sequence). Each artist is assigned his individual code, a number combined with letters from his name.

The numbers are written on the envelopes, in the upper left-hand corner, and the records then filed so that a flip of the finger will fold over the corners of the envelopes, while in the cabinet, exposing the numbers. Artists and code numbers should first be listed on temporary sheets of paper, as changes are bound to occur during the filing period. When filing is complete, a permanent (type-written, if possible) index is advisable.

All 10-inch single records and albums receive numbers from 001 to 499. All 12-inch single records and albums are numbered from 500 to 999.

The first record of any artist to be filed is assigned the number 100, preceded by the first three letters of the artist's name. This is called the primary number. For example:

ALL-100—All Star Trio CRO-100—Crosby (Bing) OLI-100—Oliver (Joe "King") WHI-100—Whiteman's (Paul) Swinging Strings

All the All Star Trio's records will have the code number ALL-100 and are filed together in one group. Similarly, all Bing Crosby's will have CRO-100, etc.

If there is more than one artist on either, or both sides of the record, the favorite artist receives the primary number. The other artists are listed in the index in their own alphabetical section, but taking the number of the favorite artist. In a record by Bing Crosby and Connie Boswell, with Victor Young and His Orchestra, assuming that Bing Crosby is the "favorite artist," he receives the primary number CRO-100, and at the same time is listed in the "C" section of the index:

CRO-100—Crosby (Bing).

Connie Boswell also receives the number CRO-100, which, in this case, is a secondary number (her primary number would be BOS-100). She is then listed in the "B" section:

CRO-100-Boswell (Connie).

CRO-100—Young (Victor) and His Orchestra.

An artist may have a secondary number, as well as a primary number, as he may be the principal artist on some records, and the secondary artist on others. For records on which Connie Boswell is the favorite artist the code number would be BOS-100 and she would be listed in the "B" section with both primary and secondary numbers:

BOS-100—Boswell (Connie) CRO-100

This indicates immediately that Connie Boswell may be found on records of Bing Crosby, which, by referring to the code number section of the index under CRO-100, will be located by their exact number.

Regardless of how many different artists any one performer appears with, if he is listed with all his secondary numbers, he can easily be located on any of his records, whether alone or with others.

Since the artists are listed alphabetically in the index, the problem of similar letters will arise when coding and filing the records. Consider: Russ Morgan, Ella Mae Morse, Jelly Roll Morton.

If Ella Mae Morse happened to be the first artist coded, her number would be MOR-100. Suppose Russ Morgan came next. We note, from his alphabetical position, that he precedes Ella Mae Morse. So he receives a code number 50 ahead of Ella Mae Morse, or MOR-050. Jelly Roll Morton, following Ella Mae Morse, would receive a number 50 after hers, or MOR-150. If an artist's listing fell alphabetically between Morse and Morton, his number would be MOR-125—halfway between 100 and 150, making the index listing look like this:

MOR-050—Morgan (Russ) MOR-100—Morse (Ella Mae) MOR-125—...... MOR-100—Jelly Roll Morton

This should provide sufficient code numbers for all artists with similar names.

For 12-inch records the starting number is 700, instead of 100, and as has been noted, the numbers run from 500 to 999.

Your collection, of course, contains many records, many titles, by the same artist. In these cases, the code numbers are extended. Take such a group of records, and without regard for titles, number each envelope consecutively, beginning with .001. These decimal numbers are merely added to the code number already assigned. Records of the All Star Trio (ALL-100), would be listed as:

ALL-100.001 You Ain't Heard Nothing Yet/Rose of Washington Square ALL-100.002 I Ain't Nobody's Darling/Yoo-

Filing Albums

To code albums, the procedure is the same as for singles. Whether the albums are the ready-made, 3 or 4-envelope ones put out by record companies, or the large, empty albums to be filled with records of your choice, they are given the same filing treatment.

All albums are assigned a number, plus a letter, beginning with "A." Any number in the index followed by a letter, therefore, will immediately indicate an album.

If an album contains the records of only one artist, it takes the primary number of the artist, followed by the letter "A" for the first album, "B" for the second album of that artist, etc. For instance, if one or more albums contained all records of Bing Crosby, the album numbers would be CRO-100A, CRO-100B, etc.

The numbers on gummed labels are attached to the backs of the albums. Original titles of ready-made albums are ignored in filing and a code number assigned in the same manner as for home-assembled ones.

As an example, consider the 12-inch album, "Metropolitan Revivals," containing a number of operatic artists, including Caruso. If he is the favorite artist, the album number becomes CAR-700A. This is the primary number. All the other artists will be listed in the index alphabetically, with the number CAR-700A as a secondary number for them. The album will be filed in the "C" section of the cabinet.

But if you do not want to file such a varied album under a single artist's name, it can be considered a mixed album; if it is a 10-inch album it acquires the classification MIX-100A. Should the alphabet become exhausted with the number 100, 101 is used for the next series, beginning with 101A. If it is a 12-inch album, the code number becomes MIX-500A, and the same procedure followed as for the 10-inch albums.

Although a mixed album acquires a code number without any reference to artists contained, the artists are listed in the index by name, with the album number as their secondary code number.

In addition, the envelopes in the album should be numbered, and the album listed in the index, giving all the artists and record titles, and also the album envelopes in which the records may be found. A duplicate listing of the album's contents should be made one for the index, the other to be attached to the inside cover of the album itself-to permit even quicker reference to the records.

Indexing

Without an index, the best filing system loses most of its value. I have found that a loose-leaf ring book, about 6 by 9 inches, provides the greatest utility in a permanent index. Although numerous ramifications are possible, the index must contain three basic divisions: (1) the artists' section; (2) the code number section; (3) the title section.

(1) Artists are listed alphabetically, with their code numbers. This section, of course, is constructed at the time the physical filing of the records is done.

(2) In this section, each code number is listed alphabetically; the code number, with its corresponding artist, heads the page. It is followed by other artists having the same code as a secondary number, with the titles pertaining to them. Titles are listed in alphabetical sequence, with their envelope num-

(3) Up to now I have not mentioned the record label, or its original number. The only place they appear is in the title section. In this section all record titles are listed in strict alphabetical order, with their acquired code numbers, artists, labels, and original numbers. In this listing the code number enables you to determine immediately whether a given title is filed singly or in an album whether it is a filed singly or in a album whether it is a filed album, whether it is on a 10 or 12-inch record, and the exact envelope in which it is placed in the cabinet.

work, in my opinion, has not received the attention it merits. Some of the data has been taken from two articles in the old Jazz Information-Forgotten Giants, by George Beall and A Note on Ward Pinkett, by the late Eugene Williams-but much of this material has never before appeared in print. I must thank the musicians "Juice" Wilson and Harry Cooper for much valuable information, and my good friend Charles De-launay for interviewing Cooper on my behalf.-A. J. M.)

William Ward Pinkett was born in New-port News, Virginia, on April 29th, 1906. He was one of four children, and showed an aptitude for music at an early age. His father played cornet in local groups; Ward started to play cornet as a result of tuition from his father, and then played in the band at Hampton Institute, where he was studying architecture. Here he met Harry Cooper, already an accomplished instrumentalist. Cooper taught Ward over quite a long period, and his technique improved rapidly. Shortly afterwards he became a pupil at the Conservatory of Music, Meridian, Mississippi.

Pinkett's first job was with a local group, and then he joined the White Brothers Orchestra of Washington, D. C. He afterwards came to New York with a show, but soon took a job with Charlie Johnson's band at Small's Paradise. He remained with Johnson only a few months before joining Willie Gant's orchestra. He recorded with this group, probably for Columbia. It is uncertain as to exactly how long he played with Gant, but in 1926 he was with James Hogan's group at the Joyland on 4th Avenue and 14th Street. In the same band were Rex Stewart and Cuffee Davidson, and at one time June Clark played with it. For the next ten years or so Pinkett was often in the same bands as Stewart, and it is likely that he was influenced by Rex's playing.

Around 1928 he was to be found with Joe

Steele's orchestra, and made one record with them. One of the titles was Top and Bottom, which curiously enough was Pinkett's favorite drink (gin and port). Later in the year he replaced Jabbo Smith in Lloyd Scott's orchestra at the Savoy. Other members of the band were Bill Coleman, Dicky Wells and Cecil Scott. In 1928 he commenced his recording work with Jelly Roll Morton. A year later he played with Henry Sapiro's orchestra, and with a small com-bination led by Chick Webb at the Black-bottom Club. He remained with Webb when the latter moved into the Renaissance. The other band men were Edwin Swayzee, Robert Horton, Omer Simeon, Hilton Jefferson, Edgar Sampson, Don Kirkpatrick and Webb, and at one period Luis Metcalfe was in the band.

At about this time Pinkett's health showed signs of deteriorating. He was a heavy drinker, and Harry Cooper considers this the reason for his lack of reliability as a player. He was a very enthusiastic musician nevertheless, and used to practice for hours daily in his room. He listened constantly to records, particularly those by the Hot Five. His admiration for Armstrong was fanatical, and he could play the Louis choruses on the Hot Five records by heart. After his night's work he usually went along to clubs to hear other bands, and the lack of any reasonable rest was later to tell.

In appearance he was tall and thin, with a not-very-colored skin. The latter enabled him to "pass" in white bands, with which he occasionally played. He was always well dressed, and his handsome appearance caused him to be known as "John Gilbert" to a good many musicians.

It was in 1930 that Pinkett made the bulk of his recordings, and he remained in New York fairly constantly. In 1931 it seems likely that he played with King Oliver, but no definite record exists of this. The following year found him with Earl Magee's orchestra, once again with Rex Stewart in the band.

I have been unable to trace any record of his movements in 1933, but in 1934 he was back on Broadway, playing with Rex Stewart's orchestra. One night Rex was not feeling too well, and asked Pinkett to take the trumpet choruses. Pinkett played all of Rex's solos note for note, and for some reason this infuriated Rex. After the show they exchanged heated words, and then engaged in a fight. Pinkett did not return to play with the band after this.

The last definite engagement I can trace is with an outfit led by Adrian Rollini, which included Albert Nicholas. He staved with the band for five months in 1935. After this his movements are obscure, but it seems probable that he remained in New York until his death from pneumonia on March 15, 1937. Cooper claims that his resistance had undoubtedly been lowered by his in-temperate habits, and considering his early death, this would appear to be correct. He is buried at Newport News, and is survived by a daughter. His death undoubtedly robbed jazz of an artist who kept within the mainstream of the authentic form in a time when greater names were forsaking it for more commercial, but less worthy manifestations.

"Ward Pinkett was only to be compared with Armstrong and de Paris," said "Juice" Wilson. Without going quite as far as this, I personally consider Pinkett a very great trumpeter. Leaving Armstrong aside, for his greatness has hardly yet been comprehended, I would certainly consider Pinkett worthy of a place in the next half-a-dozen.

n the first Morton records, Pinkett's style is rather reminiscent of Oliver, and at times somewhat similar to the Ladnier of the Lovie Austin period. He uses a mute on all these sides, shading his tone very effectively, and yet never obscuring the melodic line by over-emphasis. Georgia Swing is particularly notable for the swing which he displays in the lead rôle. His work fitted very aptly into the homogenous Morton recordings.

It is somewhat difficult to decide Pinkett's work on the Oliver Trumpet's Prayer/Call of the Freaks. It has been suggested that he plays the open trumpet on both these sides, but the work is so typical of Luis Metcalfe, that I hesitate to consider this as established. On the Jungle Band's Dog Bottom, Pinkett does a remarkable scat vocal, as uninhibited as any I have ever heard.

On the whole, the later sessions with Morton are not as good as the first one. but Pinkett's lead on such sides as That'll Nevah Do is very good. The July 14, 1930, session has some of his finest work. His solo on Blue Blood Blues is remarkable. His

Not very long ago I was at the home of a fellow who had four or five thousand jazz records of varying degrees of rarity. To play these records he had a beat up old box of a phonograph with a tone like a tin can with holes punched in it, and a pick-up arm weighing over two ounces, at a very conservative estimate. He played me some records I have in my own collection. I scarcely recognized them. In fact, my nerves are still a trifle shaky from the experience.

The worst part of it is, this fellow isn't unique at all—I know a great many collectors with really fine collections who worry along with second rate equipment, never really hearing their records, and wearing them out about ten times as fast as is actually necessary. To me, it's a crime. It arouses the missionary instinct in me. I was very glad to see an article on the subject in the November Changer, which had a sound approach. But I'd like to add a few footnotes.

Consumers Union has published several excellent articles on high fidelity sound equipment at low cost. However, their approach to the subject is not necessarily from the point of view of the jazz collector. Also, there have been a couple of very recent developments since the reports which Albert Otto mentioned in his article, and these put quite a different light on the situation. One of these developments in Columbia's new LP (long-playing) records. Another is the increasing availability to the jazz collector of 16-inch radio-type transcriptions.

My opinion is, therefore, that for a jazz collector, a record changer is not a very practical investment, particularly for playing old and valued discs. Of the low priced changers, the Webster 56 is probably the best of the lot, but that isn't saying much. Any single-post changer has a tendency to wear an elliptical hole in the center of the record, with a resulting "wow." The turntable speed is not constant, since the motor is required to pull varying loads as the records pile up. The average 56 changer spins at least two r.p.m. faster than it should on the first record, and slows down as the weight on the table increases. And last, but not least, there is the always present danger of breakage during the changing cycle.

The new Model 256 changer is designed for the LP records as well as standard 78 r.p.m. discs, but it has the same basic drawbacks as the original 156. In addition, this changer uses a crystal cartridge rather than the variable-reluctance type, and consequently limits the quality of its reproduction.

What, then, is the solution? Fortunately, it is much simpler now than it was even six months ago. With the advent of the LP records, General Industries has placed on the market a heavy duty dual-speed motor for less than $12.00 net. Unlike the Model D "Green Flyer" motor which preceded it, the new Model DR is a rim-driven affair, with a considerable decrease in "rumble." It also costs much less than the "Green Flyer" motor. The bearings are also excellent; this is quite important. With a motor of this quality and power, constant speed becomes much nearer to reality.

Next, the pickup. Barber and Howard make an excellent transcription type pickup, playing anything up to and including the 16-inch size, for about $18 net. Livingston puts out a similar pickup, of almost as good a quality, for about $10 net. Both pickups are equipped with variable counter-weights, and have such excellent bearings as to make tracking almost completely frictionless. The use of a 16-inch arm also virtually eliminates tracking error and the excessive record wear which accompanies it.

while any variable-reluctance type cartridge is highly satisfactory, probably the Clarkstan cartridge (about $15 net) has more advantages than any other low priced unit. It has the distinctly superior feature of using a replaceable type stylus, which obviates the necessity of buying an entire new unit each time the stylus wears out. It is also possible to take out the standard stylus and replace it with a one mil stylus for the new LP records, which permits the use of the same arm and cartridge for both types of record. The outfit as described, using the standard type stylus, will also play radio-type transcriptions, which, in the final analysis, are the closest thing to real high-fidelity reproduction yet attained.

Such a rig is extremely versatile, playing every type of record now available commercially. It will track at about ½ ounce on regular records, and (with additional counterweights) about ½ ounce on LP records, cutting record wear down to an absolute minimum.

The amplifier (Bogen PH-10) mentioned by Otto is excellent, as is the G. E. 1201 speaker. However, RCA has come out with a speaker costing about $4.00 more (net) which has even more "presence" and a better diffusion of highs than the G. E. Of course, if you're really interested in high fidelity, there is always Altec Lansing's 15-inch coaxial job, at $63.00 net.

Altec Lansing's A323B amplifier is in a class by itself, also, but at a cost of over $130 net, it is hardly in the low-price field. That's the trouble with this business. You're never satisfied; there's always something better. High fidelity enthusiasts become just as fanatical as jazz collectors, and if you combine the two elements, you might as well be warned that you're never going to have any money. But you'll have a lot of fun.

nalling all musical historians, jazz chroniclers and moldy figs! Save some space in your bibliographies, indexes and sound tracks for a horn-blowing gent who's not going to be denied from here on in. Make way for a sideman of long standing and high repute who is now the proud leader of a band. Make way for R. Alexander Scobey and his Alexander's Jazz Band!

When Bob Scobey left Lu Watters' Yerba Buena Jazz Band late last August to front his own group of weekends at Oakland's Melody Club, there were mixed feelings among the jazz gentry of San Francisco and environs. Faithful followers of New Orleans jazz-Lu Watters' version-were sorry to see the slim trumpeter go. He had been the band's second trumpet man since 1939, and his loss left a hole in the powerhouse brass section that would be all but impossible to fill, they reasoned. On the other hand, most of them were glad Bob was to have an opportunity to display his talents to greater advantage. They wished him luck, and turned out en masse for his opening. Scobey obliged with a five-piece jazz band which played their favorite jazz tunes with a freshness and enthusiasm that was strictly exciting.

Alexander's Jazz Band was originally organized by Scobey as a pick-up band for a few recording sessions just before the re-cording ban took effect. It showed enough promise for Scobey to begin thinking seriously about organizing a dance band. Although he had, year after year, played an integral part in the Watters organization, he had definite ideas of his own which he was never able to put into practice under Lu. So, when the time was ripe, Bob took the leap and was out on his own.
What were his ideas? Well, the main one was not so much an idea as a conviction that the use of dynamics was being ignored by Watters' full-blowing outfit.

"Dynamics," maintains Scobey, "are the most essential elements in music of any kind, and when you play loud all the time, you lose a lot of ability for expression.'

Scobey thus concurs with the observation of the late Jelly Roll Morton who explained, during the course of his Library of Congress interviews:

"You got to be able to come down in order to go up. If a glass of water is full you can't fill it any more but if the glass is half full, you have an opportunity to fill it up. Jazz music is based on the same principle."

A nother point on which Scobey disagreed with Watters was rhythm. Lu restricted his drummers to a 2-beat bass drum and, for the most part, a steady tatoo on the woodblocks; Scobey goes all out for variety in rhythm.

"Other beats have interest and musical value," he declares. "Why not use them?"
Bill Dart, like Scobey a member of the Watters aggregation since 1939, voices his approval of this edict. Bill is now the drummer in Alexander's Jazz Band, and his style has been completely revamped to include a variety of beats off a basic 4/4 and free usage of his large set of drums. Dart feels he was restricted under the Watters setup, and Scobey's edict of "freedom" has made big Bill extremely happy.

In a sense, this is the main reason for the relaxed, carefree sound of the whole band: each member is playing the way he wants to play and they are all playing together. We got a tip-off as to Scobey's "unity" ideal at a rehearsal, early in the band's career. After a particular number had been concluded, one musician remarked that they had "speeded up" during the course of the tune. Scobey's reply was:

"We won't worry too much about things like that, so long as we speed up or slow down together. That's better than pulling in different directions among ourselves.

As to the band's style, Bob declines a definition. "It's what comes out," he says. In other words, it might sound like New Orleans on one number, Chicago on another and something else on a third. Scobey, an ardent believer in flexibility, thinks it a mistake completely to emulate a particular style and refuse to budge from it in any way.

"There's too much to learn all the time," he insists. "I've been playing jazz for 10 years and am just finding out how little I actually know about it."

s for the band's personnel, it seems more A than adequate. Burt Bales, San Francisco's infamous "riverboat pianist," shares the spotlight with Scobey, and is one of the foremost reasons for the band's rollicking buoyancy. Burt is probably California's most flexible jazz artist, having played with Watters, Bunk Johnson, Kid Ory, Jack Teagarden, and the Frisco Jazz Band, among others. The greatest influences on his piano style have been Fats Waller and Jelly Roll Morton. Burt is also one of the band's two vocalists (Scobey being the other), doing the gully low numbers, such as Winin' Boy Blues and Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out.

One of the country's most finished musicians, Squire Girsback, plays tuba or string bass, according to the tune. Girsh is also a Watters and Frisco alumnus, played with Bunk, and has always been in demand with band leaders of all kinds.

a tribute

Kenneth Lloyd Bright is dead. It is hard for me to believe it, even as I write these words, for there was never a guy who was more alive. His name was not widely known and now that he is gone it will probably be forgotten even by those who have a deep interest in Jazz. Yet he knew more about Eastern Seaboard jazz and parlor social piano than all the experts put together, that is if you could ever get them together!

In the house on 131st Street, where he lived with his mother, there was a good-sized alcove, off the living room, which was furnished mostly with phonograph records, several thousands of them. He had, I think, at most two albums, usually with three records to each sleeve, and the rest of his collection was stacked nakedly in files anywhere there happened to be a vacant place. Their only real protection was several layers of dust. An evening of listening was purely catch as catch can, for if you asked for one thing you had heard at the last session you always got seventeen better ones before he could find the one you really wanted. But he always found it in the end, usually with the Record Changer—MLB—PM—2655 9 reminder that why should he catalogue the stuff when he knew where the record was, didn't he?

He was a New Yorker, first, last and always. I remember the post card he once sent me from Memphis: "Handy says: Rather be here than any place I know; Bright says: Dry Me off in Harlem." That was important, because the story of New York jazz has never been told. Kenneth and I were planning to do it in a three-part I were planning to do it, in a three-part article for the Changer, when he was taken ill. He was also under contract to a New York publisher to do a book with Rudi Blesh on the whole Eastern Seaboard jazz picture. Those articles will never be written now, and though Blesh plans to go ahead with the book I think he would be the first to admit it won't be the same book now.

There was a good reason for this: the guy lived through it. He was thrown out of LeRoy's the first night he ever put on long pants; they let him listen to the music, but when the floor show came on they escorted him out the door as being too young for such adult entertainment. He never told me so, but I know damned well he got back in, probably through the window of the men's room! Fats Waller played at Kenneth's high school graduation party and every decent band that ever hit New York practiced in the Lafayette Rehearsal Hall that his father owned. He knew everybody and everybody knew him, by face if not by name.

If you wanted to know where somebody was you called him up and he told you that he only saw the guy last week and he'd get in touch with him right away. I remember the night he took me up to Father Divine's and pointed out old Tommy Morris sitting (Continued on Page 20)

Listening to these three records, after those wonderful Claude Luter sides, may seem like a letdown to some of you, but I wouldn't slough these off merely for that reason. Certainly the Luters are more exciting to listen to and they are better records in every sense of the word, but I have an idea that if the Luter band sticks together they won't sound any better ten years from now. I'm pretty damned sure the Wildcats will, however, if they should keep on as a unit, which is doubtful but possible.

I'm well aware that you can't deal in futures but I merely want to make a distinction here. Luter and his bunch are playing in the Oliver style—first, last and in the middle. The Wildcats, on the other hand, are trying to sound like the Wildcats. If in the process they sound like Oliver on some sides and like somebody else on others, and if Wilber sounds like Pop Bechet all the time, I have an idea that this will not always be so. People who have heard Wilber and Glasel recently tell me both are greatly improved and that Wilber sounds less like Sidney than on these sides, which were made almost a year ago, at the same time as the other Ramparts, which were released earlier.

If you like the earlier Ramparts you'll like those; if you didn't don't look for any miracles. Of the lot I found the Trouble in Mind side the standout; it has a nice relaxed feeling and it's played with the heart rather than the head. These records are not always successful, but what I like about them is that the boys are feeling around for something else besides carbon paper. (Rampart Album 101. $3.95) (B.M.)

Baby Dodds, and Baby Dodds Trio

Buddy Bolden's Blues Drum Improvisations No. 2

That old Jelly favorite, Buddy Bolden's Blues, gets a good ride here. Ewell sounds enough like Jelly to give the whole thing a nice little fillip and Nicholas plays with great depth and feeling, the kind of clarinet that has always been associated with the Crescent City. Baby of course is Baby, which brings me to the other side.

Now I'm perfectly willing to admit that Baby is the World's Greatest Drummer, but I was willing to admit that after hearing him on any old band side. Drum Improvisation No. I was all right, a nice little novelty like maybe when the boys in the band put on their funny hats for one number, or when Jelly beeped that automobile horn in Sidewalk Blues. I guess Lincoln said it better than I can—you can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time. This record tells me more about drums than I want to know about drums. They ain't never going to take the place of the piano, Baby. (Circle J-1039. $1:05) (B.M.)

Mahalia Jackson

Move On Up a Little Higher, Part I and II

I don't know what percentage of collectors have gone in for Gospel Singers, but those who haven't are passing up a good thing. By now it's pretty well established that there is a close connection between some church music and jazz, between the unprettied-up spirituals and the blues. Play your Sam Morgans, or the Original Tuxedo Band record of Original Tuxedo Rag and you'll see what I mean, or put on a Blind Willie Johnson and you'll get it from the other direction. Well, those Blind Willie Johnsons aren't easy to pickup any more but I want to tip you off to something, if you don't already know it.

There's a gal recording today that I'll put up against any of them. Her records may be hard to come by, if only that you may have to go to a store which specializes in race stuff to get them, but it's more than worth it. Listening to them is an emotional experience that I can only compare to that I had when I heard my first Bessie Smith record, and for my money Mahalia Jackson has the greatest untrained voice, next to Bessie, that I have ever heard—any time, anywhere.

I have singled out the one of her records which will prohably have the greatest appeal to Jazz listeners. The accompaniment—piano and organ—is out of this world and hoth sides rock and build up to a climax that is really wonderful. The reason that I have only singled out the one record is that I hope, at a later date, to do a piece on Mahalia Jackson in these pages in which I will go into the others in more detail. They are, for your information, Apollo 110, 145, 178 (the Even Me side on this one is my pick of the lot), 181 and 194. The sides with organ, or organ and piano, are better than those with piano alone; Apollo tells me the reason is probably that the organist is her regular church accompanist.

I'm not fooling about this gal. She can rock a gospel with the drive of a whole choir or she can sing a spiritual with an intensity and depth that makes you want to cry. This is the real McCoy! (Apollo 164. $0.79) (B.M.)

Julia Lee

Living Back Street For You Cold-Hearted Daddy

Willie "Red" (R.I.P.) McKenzie, once the acknowledged balladeering master of the stiff upper lip, furrowed brow, and noble gesture, has a serious competitor in Julia Lee. Living Back Street for You is about as stiff as anybody's u. l. is allowed to get by law, and it's a number that's as dangerous as can be for the singer.

That Julia Lee gets away with it is not too surprising, since she's a masterful vocalist who knows a pitfall when she sees same. This is a terribly, terribly brave and sentimental song. It's really an awful one, too, but Julia Lee gives it just the right touch so that you can enjoy it—especially if you're the sort who likes a sudsy head on his beer. The accompanying group hasn't much to do, except for Vic Dickenson's somewhat startling tromhone—a choked, Harris-like tone full of sentiment. That the accompanying line-up (not a very good one except for Vic and drunnmer Baby Lovett) doesn't do anything is just fine with me, anyway. I canand often do—listen just to Julia's one-at-atime left hand and the thirds in her right. You can't beat thirds in a spot like this.

The reverse is another blues made up by and played by people who use the blues only as a crutch for unoriginality. The blues industry makes millions of dollars a year for those who have the magic formula for reworking the old 3-chord, 12-bar scheme. This Julia Lee is better than most, which is saying nothing. (Capitol 15300) (G.A.)

Solo Art Piano Jazz, Vol. 1

Climbin' and Screamin'
How Long, How Long
Had a Dream
St. Louis Blues
The Fives
South Side Shuffle

It's good to see the Solo Art piano solos back on the market, and once again Circle has gone back to the well and performed a real service to jazz. Recorded by Dan Qualey in 1937 and pressed only in lots of three hundred, these records make up one of the greatest bodies of piano music ever recorded. Since all were recorded in the span of a single year, they give wonderful documentation of differences in style and technique. There is all too little piano music around and if, like me, you're a hog about this kind of thing there will be welcome fare indeed.

Of the lot my own favorite is Yancey's Fives, a record that for my money is one of the truly greats. It seems to me to present Jimmy at his best, which is pretty damn good indeed. I don't know whether boogie came from the gulf coast of Texas, as some claim, or was invented by Pinetop Smith, as Pinetop claimed, but I do know that in Yancey's hands it became something of great beauty. Self taught and limited in technique, he always had perfect taste, a wonderful sense of phrasing, and—above all—an inventiveness which had to be great to vary the little he had at his command. The result is a music of great beauty and depth, and one with a strong emotional impact.

Crippled Clarence Lofton was also a 'folk artist, for lack of a better word, but he is as different from Yancey as anyone could be. Where Jimmy was brooding and delicate, Crippled Clarence was joyous, but with a savage drive that must have been hell on any piano. 'Had a Dream is pretty exciting stuff—rough, tough and hard to cuff—it doesn't lead you by the hand, it hits you over the head.

Of the two Pete Johnson sides, Climbin' and Screamin' is the Johnson of the boogie revival of the late 'thirties, one of those rolling sides that is insidious in the reactions it creates by repetitions, varied only when you feel that if you hear more you'll scream, then back to the basic pattern again to nail you down tight. The other side, How Long, how Long, is a reminder, as is Ammonds' St. Louis Blues, that men known only as boogie woogie artists don't only play boogie. There is a lot of it in each of these two sides, but there is also a lot of regular piano, and the combination is an effective one. More sophisticated than either the Yancey or the Lofton, these two sides show how elastic an instrument the piano can really be, and each player gets the utmost out of it.

be, and each player gets the utmost out of it.
Then there's South Side Shuffle by Art
Hodes. In those days, to my ears at least, Art played a simpler piano and one that was more richly emotional and less cluttered.

I hope that Circle will keep these Solo Arts coming our way. They are a wonderful contribution. (Circle S-16. $3.95) (B.M.)

"Every time you play me that Vaughn Monroe record, I realize how much we have in common."

Lion's Roar Suede Jacket

The King records I've heard so far sound as if they were made in an empty swimming pool, so the sound is unusual, to say the least. On Suede Jacquet, Leo Parker relieves himself of one note which has been topped, in my experience, only by steamships of considerable size. Sonny Stitt's already sharp tone is honed to its keenest, and there's a slight echo over the whole proceedings.

None of the above actually mars the music, though. It's pretty good on both sides, which differ a good deal. Lion's Roar is an interestingly cooler version of a theme well-worn by Jacquet's somewhat notorious brother Illinois and the here-featured Leo Parker. When I call it good I don't infer that anything timeless has been done, only that the record swings. I may as well warn the opposition that I also like Illinois Jacquet's Blues, Part Two; in fact, I consider it to be the best record of its kind I know of. By "its kind" I mean all records which were made for the purpose of giving the listener raw rhythm. For instance, the musical content of the average jug band side is negligible, but they go like mad, and that is their charm. Al Cooper used to have an insane little group called the Savoy Sultans; someone once said they never tuned their instruments for five years, but God, how they went. This may have no bearing in the case, but great slapstick comedians are just as rare as Beatrice Lillie, and, in their own way, just as remarkable.

All persons unmoved by the foregoing will conceive an immediate dislike for Lion's Suede Jacquet is a different matter, as noted, being more on the bop side, and it features Sonny Stitt, a good idea. He plays gracefully, but with real punch and a faintly acid tone. I like this one very much, including Parker's bawdy offering. Jacquet himself is a trumpet man; playing with his brother he has been buried behind the fiery Joe Newman, and I don't think he is likely to emerge, being a capable but unspectacular musician. (King 4242) (P.B.)

Dexter Gordon Quintet-Solo

Mischievous Lady Ghost of a Chance

Dexter, one of the several enfants terrible in the new school, is also one of its better tenor-men. He's assisted here by a lady trombonist named Melba Liston, and a rhythm section (Mischievous Lady), and then a different rhythm section (Ghost of a Chance). I could wish that Dexter had a little less vibrato, or possibly a different kind, and that pianist Jimmy Rowells played a little longer and louder, on Ghost. The tenor inventions are pretty sound, but not startling.

Lady is far more interesting, thanks to the trombone (not in itself wonderful, but helpful all the way) and to the jaunty tune, typical of the many airy numbers the boys like to mess with these days. The break Dexter comes in on is pure hokum, modern variety—one of those semi-clichés which sound sort of daring and are effective entrances: the ensuing solo is nice—he pushes very well, and has a strong style to begin with. A slightly heavy trombone chorus is followed by the only drab spot on the side, a piano and bass interlude; however, they pick up well after that, and the whole thing leaves a pleasant taste in the mind. (Dial 1041) (P.B.)

The old advertiser's slogan that "a business without signs is a sign of no business" may be corny, but it cannot be dismissed as outmoded. Time and again this department's conductor has pointed out the failings of the recording companies in the matter of calling various purchase opportunities to the attention of those for whom their products are ostensibly marketed.

True, the item of obvious sockdolager interest is pushed to an excess far beyond the needs of those who grasp at the obvious -until it seems that those whose duty it is to allocate the promotional budget are determined to devote themselves to the propo-sition that that which sells itself is that which deserves the most strenuous advertisement. Well, I suppose that the results justify the procedure, notwithstanding the fact that those same results would be forthcoming without the procedure. A certain month's release of the Tchaikowsky E Minor may be the third recording of the work within the season: yet the adjectives will fly in pro-fusion, as if to say "You ain't heard nothin' yet!" (Concurrently, a version of unsur-passable merit will have been withdrawn from the catalog.)

And what of those items upon which the prestige of the manufacturer was established and sustained in the mind of the connoisseur? Will so-and-so's what-have-you ever be available again? Do you recall one of your childhood's favorite bits of sass: "That's for me to know and you to find out?" It fits the present, in some measure, for reinstatements are taking place these days-reinstatements of meritorious releases of yesteryear that have been unavailable for a long, long time. You, for whom the reinstatements are effected, may have to remain in ignorance of the re-issues until such time as they are again retired due, of course, to lack of sales. It's a crazy business and profits no one; not the manufacturer-not the dealer-not you. For there is next to no advertising and certainly no fanfare. You need not be told of how niggardly the promotion of the Heritage series has been. If you have discovered some longwanted item, it is because you spotted it on a dealer's shelf or because you obtained knowledge of its availability by word-ofmouth-or from the editorial notice of some ink-stained savant like yours truly whose remuneration is found in the acceptance of your presumed good graces.

Somewhere amongst the back pages of the October, 1948, RCA-Victor Record Review there is a listing of eighteen Tito Schipa couplings, described as "re-issued, thanks to countless requests from coast to coast." The titles embrace material dating from the mid-twenties to the mid-thirties, operatic excerpts and catch-penny ditties. I think you'll find several of these discs worthy additions to your collection. Should you decide to take in but one of them, let me most emphatically urge that your choice be the Cherry Duet from L'Amico Fritz in which Suzel's lines are projected by that engaging soprano, Mafalda Favero. Don't seek any of these Schipa re-issues under their original catalog numbers; they've all been equipped with new 10 dash and 11 dash numbers.

And don't expect Ideale and Marechiare. Those two, previously re-issued as a blacklabel coupling, are among the missing, as is that treasurable little side that came along in the first year of electrical recording, containing both La Farfaletta and Girometta. And what of Plaisir d'amour and O del mio amato ben? Never released at all in America. What a fine first edition that coupling would be!

The notion of devoting all ten sides of a single Heritage release to a single artist is not without merit, for it gives the collector reasonably to understand that (a) he may find something suited to his needs Now and (b) should the repertoire contain nothing he requires, he likely will have to wait quite a while before his favorite's name appears again.

The seventh Heritage release restores some superlatively excellent examples of Enrico Caruso's singing—among them the 1906 M'appari, meltingly, lovingly sung; In terra solo (Don Sebastiano), one of the true indispensables; the exquisite Bianca al par (Huguenots) as sung in 1909 and Marcello's second act air from the Leoncavallo La Boheme.

It is worthy of note that an earlier recording, with piano accompaniment, of the Huguenots aria exists and that it is vocally superior to the one now made available,—but the fact is that it does not play as well on today's equipment. The Boheme excerpt is of interest not only as a superb piece of singing but also because of that opera's place in the tenor's operatic history. Incidentally, Leoncavallo makes Marcello a tenor and develops the role so that Rodolfo is relegated to the position occupied by Marcello in the Puccini opera. The series also includes arias from La Favorita, Samson et Dahla, Macbeth, Nero—and a pair of Italian songs that are delivered with characteristic gusto.

The star of the Eighth Heritage Series is that redoubtable singing actor, Feodor

Chaliapin, and we are exposed to examples of his musico-dramatic craftsmanship over a period of years beginning in 1909 and extending to 1928. Several of the items included are now released in this country for the first time and one, the Slumbering Nuns piece from Robert, the Devil, is released for the first time anywhere. Portions of the Russian basso's interpretations in Lakme, Norma, Mefistofele and Don Carlos are included in this release-and two of the couplings contain scenes from the inevitable Boris Godounoff as taken down during an actual performance in London in 1928. They stand as peculiarly expressive souvenirs of a career whose maker was occasionally a musician but always a personage of markedly original individuality.

I am given to understand that John Mc-Cormack is shortly to be accorded an entire Heritage series, comprising both ten- and twelve-inch records of operatic material. When the titles are announced, I shall report to you, content that no fulsome encomiums will be necessary. I am almost, but never quite, resigned that there may never be an awakening to the need for such nonoperatic McCormack treasures as Come Into the Garden Maud, My Lagen Love, Down in the Forest and ... and ... and ...

Some seasons have passed since the voice of Lotte Lehmann was projected in its best state and it is not at all pleasant to contemplate certain recordings of hers which cannot but detract from her reputation in generations to come. But wait! Have you listened to her most recent, Schubert's Der Erlkönig? Sung for the phonograph by divers immortals since time out of mind, I never heard the song at all until I put on Victor 10-1448. To be sure, Lehmann the vocalist is no more, but the divinity of artistic inspiration cannot be quenched and if, as I have been prone to understand these many years, singing is the interpretation of text by means of tones produced by a human being, then Lotte Lehmann remains a singer par excellence, as ever was.

Oh, by the way, the Gerhard Hüsch discs of Beethoven's An Die Ferne Geliebte are available again. . . I've been seeing Volumes 3, 4, 5, 7 and 8 of the Haydn Quartet Society sets around. If the sixth volume has not been restored, there is cause for much umbrage, as it contains some of Haydn's most ethereally beautiful pages. Volumes 1 and 2 never having been domestically available at all, I refuse to be concerned. What do you think I am, anyway, a music-lover?

attack is far more powerful than on the other sides, and his phrasing more rem-iniscent of Armstrong than in his previous recorded examples. His last session with Morton included Fickle Fay Creep, and here he uses very powerful phrases with a fine broad tone to create an exemplary lead. His domination of the ensemble is impressive.

His sides with Oliver again show him in the rôle of a vocalist. Particularly impressive is his scat outburst on Stop Crying. On this side it appears likely that he takes the second trumpet chorus; there is a phrase toward the end which is very typical, although the tone as a whole is not particularly like Pinkett's other work, being somewhat more of a virtuoso performance than Pinkett usually indulged in.

His last session with the Rollini group was very unsatisfactory—the tunes were commercial, and though there are good spots of Pinkett, his work appears to have been opinion of Albert Nicholas (quoted in Jazz Information Sept. 20, 1940): "There was a great trumpet player," he says, "one of the best men for a small band I ever played with." It is to be hoped that collectors as It would be fitting to conclude with the a whole will pay more attention to the work of this sadly overlooked trumpeter in the coming years.

(A full Ward Pinkett discography, too long for inclusion in this issue, will appear in next month's Changer. In addition to comparatively well-known dates with King Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton, the listing will include all available data on rare Pinkett appearances for which full personnel is still unknown.)

Frisco Jazz Band: Jack Buck, trombone; and Jack Crook, clarinet.

Scobey, himself, has a sound, though not particularly colorful, musical background. An Arizonian by birth and a Californian by choice, Bob took up trumpet at the age of nine and has been playing ever since. He's now 32, but looks younger. Bob has played in all types of bands, but has leaned toward small combos. During the war he played in an Army band and formed his own small group, "just to stay out of their dance band." Except for the war years, Bob has been with the Lu Watters band consistently, outside of a few casuals, including some jobs with Kid Ory. Bob modestly claims that he "stank' when he took Papa Mutt Carey's place a couple of times last year, asserting that Ory's music was too subtle for him.
"I was lost!" says Bob.

He admits it was a different story when he sat in last Fall, however. He proved his versatility and ability to learn, displaying an understanding of Ory's music which earned enthusiastic praise from the Kid.

Despite the variances in their views, Scobey names Lu Watters as a prime factor in his development as a jazz musician. "Lu got me interested in jazz and I learned a lot from him.'

Bob has no regrets about leaving Lu's outfit, however. He enjoys being the leader of Alexander's Jazz Band.

well registered and balanced: the whole effect is of a group of experienced and mature jazzmen that know what they are doing and why. They have the courage to do it their own way, a thing that, with every year that passes, becomes more difficult for a young band to do. Bolling does not hesitate, for example, to alter the traditional routine of Dippermouth—something that even Muggsy Spanier did not do-and he brings it off with a number that really rocks.

You Rascal You comes off with such jazz verity and yet with such a brilliant con-temporaneity that this side, alone, gives some idea of how far this band, headed by a teenage French pianist, is apt to go. These boys have ability, plus the courage to be original in a tradition already sanctified by time. For them, not only is spurious "modernism" completely out of the question, but the New Orleans style, itself, is a pathway—not a stopping place.

Bolling's Blue Star sides (which will be issued in this country on Circle) should be something of a revelation to jazz fans in America. Coming on the heels of the recently published Luters, the solid, swinging rhythms of these new sides, the instrumentalism that is, in the main, so brilliant, and the authentic jazz feeling, will awaken memories of many great jazzmen and jazz bands of the past. But one never forgets that they are something happening today and belonging to today, something of the highest importance. There are more here than echoes, however faithful, of the past. There are overtones of the future: jazz is moving on. It is spreading all over the world and young bands are playing jazz that older musicians might be proud to play. The renaissance of pure, real jazz—only ten short years ago mainly a dream—is today fast becoming a wonderful reality.

there playing with the angels under a heavenly alias, and alongside a trombone who was also somebody, but just who we never could find out, though it didn't matter because it was good enough to just listen to him.

Kenneth always said that Mamie Smith was his girl and Johnny Dunn was the most underrated horn who ever lived, but the truth of the matter was that he always played Bessie instead and every time you put on an Oliver accompaniment he swore it was Johnny Dunn, complete with box coat and three-foot-long horn. But you could never fool him on where a tune was stolen from: he was a better song sleuth than Sigmund Spaeth. And as for Mamie and Johnnny Dunn, I'll tell you a secret about that. They were from Harlem, right off the same block, so to speak, and when that was so you better be for them! Besides, the experts didn't like them and Kenneth always prided himself as being the loyal opposition. As he so often said, the experts were trying to find things in jazz that were never there, and if they couldn't find them they weren't above putting them in anyway.

Those of us who had the privilege of knowing him loved him, for he was that kind of a guy. What more can you say?

more prominent; light foreign noises, but slight distortion, if any; noises not seriously distracting.

G (Good): A moderate amount of surface noise; background may be somewhat irregular and crackling; some foreign noises, and a little distortion; on the whole, reasonably satisfactory listening without undue distraction of attention, Foreign noises definitely less prominent than the music.

F. (Fair): Foreign noises, taken together, are about as prominent as the music, and there is considerable distraction of attention, and listening requires some effort and concentration; nevertheless, under these conditions, listening should be fairly satisfactory.

P. (Poor): Foreign noises, collectively, are louder than the recorded music; continuous concentration in listening.

Column 4 of the "For Disposition" section shows the method by which each record is to be disposed

"SAL": The record is for sale at the price indicated.

"AUC": The record is at auction. The highest bid takes the record. Bid only what the record is worth to you.

"TRA": The record is for trade only, If you are not familiar with the wants of the advertiser send for his want list, If you have certain records in which he may be interested mention these in your letter.

The extreme right column in both the "Wanted" and "For Disposition" sections shows the first four letters of the advertiser's name. His address is shown below.

Instructions

COMPOSING DISPLAY ADS

FOR OUT-OF-PRINT RECORDS

- No forms are required for display ads Type or print your ad just as it is to appear in print.
- Each column holds 78 lines of record listings; two columns, 156 lines; three columns, 234 lines.
- 3. Each recording group must occupy a separate line.
- Try to make your ad come out to an even one, two, or three columns.
- Record lists less than one column must be submitted on our classified ad forms and shown in our "wanted" or "for disposition" section.
- All advertising concerning outof-print records must be accompanied by advance remittance. Advertising not accompanied by advance remittance must be returned.

Closing Date for DISPLAY ADS

10th of Month Preceding Date of Publication

NOTE:

All persons using the medium of the Record Changer in the buying, selling or trading of phonograph records, do so subject to these Rules and Regulations:

- A collector or person who solicits and receives advance remittance for a record must send the record within a period of four weeks.
- 2. A collector or person who orders and receives a record prepaid must pay for it within a period of four weeks.
- A collector or person who obtains a record in trade must fulfill his end of the trade within a period of four weeks.
- 4. A collector or person who requests that a record be shipped C.O.D. must accept the shipment unless the shipment is damaged in transit. (A bid on an auction or an order from a sale which states that records will be shipped C.O.D. unless otherwise instructed, is considered a request for C.O.D. shipment.)

The name of the person or collector who violates the above rules will be printed in the Record Changer upon the first violation, and the violation will be described. (Exception: where breakage or over-grading is concerned, the record is to be returned promptly to the shipper. If the parties involved do not arrive at a settlement, the matter is to be referred to the American Record Collectors Board.)

When infractions of these rules occur, contact Jacob S. Schneider, Legal Dept., The Record Changer, 128 West 66th St., New York, N. Y.

CLOSING DATE FOR BIDS On all Records advertised for auction in this issue will be FEBRUARY 20, 1949

THESE LISTINGS ARE AN INDICATION OF MY GEN-ERAL WANTS. ALL ARE IN THE NEW ORLEANS AND DIXIELAND VEIN. PLEASE SEE MY AD IN THE OECEMBER CHANGER FOR FURTHER LSSTINGS. THESE RECORDS ARE REPLACEMENTS OF ITEMS I HAOBEFORE THE WAR BUT WAS FORCED TO DISPOSE OF DURING THE WAR AND OF MANY THAT ARE TOO BEAT TO ENJOY ANY MORE. THE RECORDS ! WILL RECEIVE THROUGH THESE ADS WILL STAY WITH ME AND WILL NOT BE SOLD OR TRACEO. THIS IS NOT A MDNEY MAKING OEAL. I ASK FOR RECORDS THAT ARE PALYABL AND CLEAN BECAUSE THEY ARE FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. EXCELLENT CONO-ITION IS A MUST. TO THOSE COLLECTORS WHO FIND IT DIFFICULT TO BUY THE COUNTLESS RE-ISSUES AND NEW ITEMS I REMINO THEM THAT I WILL TRADE ANY AVAILABLE RECORDS FOR THE ITEMS I WANT. IF YOU HAVE AN ITEM FOR ME LET ME KNOW HOW MANY RECORDS YOU WANT AND THUS RECEIVE VALUE TO YOU OFTEN HIGHER THAN THE PRICE YOU WOULD ASK IN CASH.

it pays to advertise

in The Record Changer

Here is what just a few of our regular advertisers have to say about the results they have gotten from running ads in The Record Changer.

The last half dozen columns 1 have run have indeed been highly profitable both from receipts and trades which developed out of the correspondence. Keep up the good Harry Crawford.

For the past year or so we have monthly ad. The results from this ad have been very satisfying. ad have been very saissying.

The can think of no other advertising investment a remeanum which orings in some way for so little investment. We are completely sold on the Rec. ord Changer as an outlet. Marin I. Robins, Walnus Music Shop.

After continued success month after month of my ads in your Record Changer, I feel obliged to tell you about it. From the very first ad until the present I have always been pleasantly surprised at the response. Frankly I'd say that one can sell any record through the Changer, due no doubt to its large circulation and the varied tastes of the readers. One doesn't have to advertise collectors' items exclusively. Often obscure numbers will have a sentimental appeal to put them across as well.

Would like to add that the replies on my wants have also been very good. Have worked up many successful trades to say nothing of interesting correspondence both at home and abroad.

Fred Mangelsdorff.

I wish to thank you for the way you have handled my ads. I have received very good response even from places that I didn't think the Changer reached.

. Though I get lots of mimeographed sales lists I think these fellows are overlooking a bet by not advertising in the Changer. If you ever have any complaints refer them to me. I have sold records that I never dreamed possible.

Ed. Crowder.

John J. Argo.

"I find the crassified ad section of the Record Changer an enormous help in disposing of the records in my collection at prices I'd never my collection at the 'wanted' section—amazingly enough, at prices just the opposite than that of the disposition; prices low enough so that the cash laid out for obtaining out-of-print records is not money spent; it's money invested." Jacob Magaril.

DELAUNAY UP TO DATE

T WAS said that fortunes were being made on the green ink concession at 14 Rue Chaptal, where Charles Delaunay was working on his chef-d'oeuvre (NEW HOT DISCOG-RAPHY. Edited by Walter E. Schaap and George Avakian. New York: Criterion Music Corp. 1948. 608 pp. $6). American soldiers back in 1944 who were fortunate enough to visit this address (the Paris cell of the Hot Club du France) in search of a few recorded kicks would notice a rationlean figure at a desk near the window making tiny emerald words fly from his fountain pen. Totally oblivious to the din of GI collectors arguing with their Gallic counterparts, the stridencies of an Armstrong solo, or the hoarse statements of Johnny Dodds, the discographer worked on until the place began to clear out around eleven or twelve o'clock; then he would be able really to concentrate in the quiet, and many mornings found him scribbling away until he fell asleep across the reams of recording data.

Now, hard work alone never made a Now, hard work alone never made a masterpiece, and the fact that this new book is a product of almost superhuman enterprise and diligence on the part of M. Delaunay and Messrs, Schaap and Avakian means nothing unless the result is sound. Happily it is and all participants are to be congratulated on a reference volume of lasting value to anyone even remotely lasting value to anyone even remotely interested in jazz and near-jazz reinterested in jazz and near-jazz reinteres

I have seen in many mode a So far as I know, the idea of a discographie, indeed the coinage of the name itself, originated with Delaunay, with the first of these collaunay, with the first of these Helector's bibles published in 1936. He lector's bibles published in 1936 and is the thirty-seven-year-old son of is the thirty-seven-year-old son of the late Robert Delaunay, avant-garde the late Robert Delaunay, avant-garde the late Robert Delaunay, avant-garde the late and, being a talented artist him-ties and, being a talented artist himself, brings an interesting esthetic self, brings an interesting esthetic sensibility and taste to jazz scholar-sensibility and taste to jazz scholar-sensibility and criticism. In this field there is ample room, God wot.

The great number of sterile jazz offerings among the releases of the past few ban-racked months are enough to wean a body away from the enough to wean a look at this rather phonograph. But a look at this rather phonograph is a look at this rather staggering piece of work, a lasting staggering piece of work, a well as monument to the jazz idiom as well as M. Delaunay himself, makes me proud of the opportunity to listen, makes me realize that the contention between labor and capital will eventually pass, makes me know it. -GILBERT MCKEAN.

NEW YORK

Sidney Bechet is in town awaiting his passport for an engagement in Paris. In the meantime he is whiling away the hours playing great sessions at the Central Plaza and Ryans. At the Ryan Bashes, besides Bechet, such stars as Roy Eldridge, Buck Clayton and Sammy Price have been lending a beat to the quiet of midtown Sunday afternoons.

Nicks has some competition at the Riviera, right across the street, where Art Hodes opened with a trio featuring Herb Ward and Pee Wee Russell. Lips Page is rehearsing a small combo; Josh White opened at the swank Embassy; Albert Nicholas staying in Los Angeles until warmer weather hits New York; Gene Krupa subbed for Benny when the latter took sick at the Paramount with his new band. Biggest rumor of the week has Benny going into the Stork Club with a sextet. If it goes through it will be called Bop at the Stork.

Brad Gowans has been dismanteling Johnny Windhurst's 1920 Rolls Royce and is converting it into a racer. Sounds like the Condon book. Tony Parenti tells us he recorded some great rags in a trio for Circle. Should be good. Watch for the big Jazz Festival February 19 run by WNYC. Looks great from here.

SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA-Dick Oxtot

While local jazzmen continued to land only casual jobs, Billie Holiday took over at Cafe Society on January 14th, packing them in as well as ever. Consensus was that Billie's singing leaves little to be desired, but that the assistance of the accompanying band, led by "Red" Norvo, is rather uninspired, most of the time. At press time she was once again embroiled with the narcotics boys.

Duke Ellington played a concert in San Francisco January 30th and followed up with a dance in Oakland the following evening, but Louis Armstrong, enroute north for some Seattle dates, could find nobody to present him for a one-nighter, Closest thing to jazz by visiting bands is probably the jumpy styles of Joe Liggins and Louis Jordan. Liggins has a two-week engagement at the New Orleans Swing Club beginning February 3, Jordan a couple of one-nighters. Aside from the above, the be-boppers have been taking over. Even Vivian Boarman's popular music course at the U. of California, heretofore emphasizing New Orleans, is devoting time to bop. January 19th found bop bassist Vernon Alley as guest lecturer at the class. When he had finished some class members admitted bop might have something, although they still preferred their Mortons and Bessies.

Holding out alone, Lu Watters' band was still playing New Orleans style. Burt Bales replaced Johnny Wittwer as the band's pianist January 25th.

LOS ANGELES & HOLLYWOOD-

Jack Lewerke

Kid Ory and his Creole Band opened Jan. 15 at the Beverly Tavern in Hollywood for their first long engagement in Southern California since their stay at Billy Bergs over a year ago. Due to the fact that night club business has fallen off in the last year, five-piece bands have been the limit for the smaller clubs. Ory, who has always had a seven-piece band, had numerous offers for long engagements if he would cut his band to five, but turned them down, rather than leave out any of the boys in the band. Recently, when Bud Scott (guitar) and Bus Wilson (piano) were forced to leave the band due to illness, Ory accepted the job for a six-piece band without guitar.

Billy Eckstein and Georgie Auld and his Orchestra opened at the Empire (formerly Tom Brenemans) the early part of January, replacing Woody Herman and the Herd . . . Duke Ellington is due to follow the first part of February.

A new club is opening up the street from the Empire on Vine, the first attraction will be the noted author, Wingston Manone.

Woody Herman and Charlie Barnet are now recording for Capitol. Their first records were released the last part of January. Incidentally, a recent Capitol publicity release stated that Cap. was going all out for bop and had signed the tops in bop(s) to record. I'll bet Dave Dexter had nothing to do with this.

Red Nichols and his six pennies (inflation has hit dixieland) are still at the Hangover. Red, by the way, has the best group he's had in many a lean year.

Local dixie musicians are saying nice things about the newcomer to dixie, Johnny Best, after his latest record with Nappy Lamar on "Come Back Sweet Papa". Johnny was with the old Artie Shaw band during the "Begin the Beguine" days and during the war played with Shaw's Navy group.

NEW ORLEANS-Don Perry and Fred Hatfield

Most exciting news to hit New Orleans in recent months is the scheduled appearance of Louis Armstrong and his all-stars from Chicago. Armstrong is appearing as King of the Zulus this year in the annual Mardis Gras parade. Several possible concerts under the Mancuso Brothers, New Orleans Jazz Club and the Zulus are being eagerly awaited.

Sharkey Bonano and his outfit have withdrawn from the Parisian Room concerts due to Sharkey's illness. New group there features Irving Fazola, Julian Laine, and other prominent New Orleans musicians. Rumor has it that Sharkey is planning some concerts on his own hook.

Plans are also under way for a junior jazz group, sponsored by the Parisian Room, to alternate between the regular band during intermissions. Informal sessions have shown that the band may prove to be worth watching.

Al Burbank and his trio are once again active, this time at Lester's bar in the uptown section of New Orleans. After a period of illness, Big Eye Louis Nelson is still holding forth at Luthjens. Ernie Foster, onetime dixieland band leader in the Vieux Carre, doing a single at the Old Barn with some fine valve trombone. Leon Rappolo doing spot jobs with an interesting outfit. George Lewis is still drawing them in at Manny's Tavern, playing as well as ever.

JAZZ FAN CLUBS

Clubs, clubs everywhere. Jazz must be on the upbeat because of late there has been a flood of groups announcing that they were open for business. In Boston, The Bob Wilber Dixieland Jazz Club at 248 Commonwealth Ave. has dedicated itself to the promotion of good dixie as well as seeing to it that the world knows more about the Wilber groups. Rod Kennedy and Ward Kiddoo are the moving forces. The Denver Jazz Record Club had 40 people in attendance at its first meeting. For further info on this group contact Barbara Coopersmith, 2660 S. Franklin, Denver, Colorado. Jazz Unlimited is the name of the new Philadelphia group meeting at 1118 Walnut St. First meetings found about 36 enthusiasts on hand. Plans of this group call for the issuance of 12 records on their own label showing the evolution of jazz.

let that foul air out

To The Editor:

We have recently organized a "Jazz Appreciation Society" in Ottawa and as I am president I find your magazine a wonderful source of information and news which I use to make the club more interesting. The club started with just an idea of mine after listening to many requests on the radio by people who were Ellington fans, and whose requests could not be filled by the local station. As we were fortunate enough to have about 900 Ellington sides I thought it would be nice to have a place where we could share our records.

I met Mr. and Mrs. Gilleland (he is a prominent Ottawa architect, and she a lecturer in English at Carleton College). They have a wonderful bop or modern music collection so we talked things over. The Y.M.C.A. gave us a room every week and we were off. Now-Ottawa is decidedly not a jazz town so I did not know how it would go; but the results have been amazing. We have a wonderful club with enthusiastic people from all walks of life: lawyers, architect, radio announcers, teachers, newspaper men, etc., and many representatives from the high schools and colleges.

The thing that pleases me most is that many parents are coming to learn about the music their children love and they are becoming the most enthusiastic. Besides having people who love jazz get together, the objective of the club is to be instructive. Each week a member gives a talk on the band or jazzman he specializes in using his own records to illustrate. We have had talks on bop, the history of jazz, the blues, Duke Ellington, and the march of jazz from a musician's point of view. Next week we have Stan Kenton and then . . . we are starting the history of jazz. We are doing it by instruments, starting with the trumpet. We have a member who has a very fine collection of King Oliver and early New Orleans trumpeters, so he starts; then another on Bix, Louis, Berigan, right on up to Dizzy. In that way we'll learn the history of each man and hear the records he made and also each person will hear at some time the kind of music he likes best.

Our motto is tolerance for each other's kind of jazz and the main object is to be loval to jazz and not belittle any phase of it just because we do not happen to like it. It is amazing how it is working out. The bop fans sit and listen patiently to New Orleans or dixieland and vice versa. After the one and one-half hour talk we play records for the opposite likes. That is, if the talk is on bop we play New Orleans, dixieland, Ellington, etc., so that each meeting everyone goes home feeling that they have heard some of the music they like best.

adapted from an article by al q. mc cord

Hangers-on around the Richmond, Indiana, railroad station who happened to notice the New Orleans Rhythm Kings drop off a train there some twenty-six years ago, merely thought that another group of travelling performers was arriving in town. They were a rather bedraggled lot, and they all carried battered instrument cases. Nothing indicated that they were about to write the first page in an unusual musical history.

However, instead of heading for a cheap hotel and the boards of a vaudeville theater, the newcomers disappeared in the direction of a rambling brick plant on the bank of the Whitewater River gorge at the west edge of downtown Richmond. The factory was the home of the Starr Piano Company and tucked away in one corner was the finy phonograph recording studio of what the firm called its Gennett Records division.

Once inside the studio, the band-which included Paul Mares, George Brunies, and Leon Rappolo—unpacked a battered accumulation of horns and sat down to make a series of recordings which shaped jazz history.

The studio, of course, was primitive by present recording standards. For one thing, the room wasn't sound proof, and just outside was a railroad spur where switch en-gines puffed noisily. Every few minutes one of the musicians stuck his head out the window and yelled for quiet. But despite such interruptions, the recording was made. It was Sweet Lovin' Man, and it was to become one of the most sought after of collectors' items.

Al G. McCord's article originally appeared in the Star Magazine of The Indianapolis Star, and this adaptation is published with their permission. All photographs are by Harry Gennett, Jr., except the Wolverines photo, which is from Hoagy Carmichael's Star Dust Road, published by Rinehart and Company. Permissions were arranged by Warren Huddlestone.

In just such fashion did an obscure recording studio in a small Indiana city far from the bright lights of jazzland become the mecca for a history-making parade of musicians. They were to make the name of the Hoosier Gennetts one of the greatest names in recorded music and the gold-lettered Gennett label one never to be forgotten.

Recording had been begun by Gennett in 1916, but it was more or less by accident that Richmond became possibly the most important early home of recorded jazz. The N.O.R.K. session might have been regarded as a single instance of humoring a new musical fad, if it had not been for King Oliver and his band. Only a few weeks later, the Creole Jazz Band descended on Gennett, uninvited. They were probably surprised when the Gennetts allowed them to make a test recording. But the sides that Oliver, Louis Armstrong, Lil Hardin, and Johnny and Baby Dodds went on to make helped to establish Richmond as a jazz musicians' mecca.

In the decade that followed these initial ventures in jazz, countless instrumentalists were to beat a path to the doors of the Starr Piano Company. In those days, however, Richmondites paid little attention to the daily influx of what must have been a curious and somewhat out of place group. For the musicians were mostly unknowns, and the glory they sought was by no means as great as the renown they were about to achieve. Most of them merely wanted to record the fox trots and one-steps of the day so well that royalties would roll in and lucrative show circuit and dance contracts follow. Even the best of them had no idea that they were making musical history and that, some day, collectors would pay fabulous prices for such early-day recordings.

Obscure artists poured in to the Wayne County seat from everywhere. Some came in Model T Fords. A few of the more prosperous rolled into town in flashy Stutz Bearcats, Marmons and big Cole eights. But most arrived by train or interurban from Indianapolis. Their coming sometimes was disturbing, for old-timers still recall how many a happy-go-lucky musician whiled away the time by publicly flouting the Volstead Act.

Employes of the old studio recall now that many of the to-be greats didn't look or sound particularly impressive at the time. For instance, the youngsters who came to give Gennett a sample of their Chicago-style dance music were much more nervous than their bold name—the Wolverines—would imply

The Wolverines frequently came to Richmond on the way to or returning from dance engagements at Indiana University or the old Casino Gardens on the outskirts of Indianapolis. Among them was a cornetist named Bix Beiderbecke who produced much better music than his pale complexion led listeners to expect.

Accompanying the Wolverines to Richmond from Bloomington at times was an Indiana University law student who liked playing the piano better than studying musty legal tomes. Now one of Gennett's distinguished alumni, Hoagy Carmichael remembers the old studio as a "dreary place . . . which didn't soothe me."

Among the other now-famous names who made jazz classics in Richmond were Duke Ellington, Fletcher Henderson, Wingy Manone, Jelly Roll Morton, and Husk O'Hare.

Waried other items of Americana also were waxed at Gennett. William Jennings Bryan's "Cross of Gold" oration; sacred music by Homer Rodeheaver and Gypsy Smith; ditties by Cliff (Ukulele Ike) Edwards; It Ain't Gonna Rain No Mo' No Mo', by red-headed Wendell Hall, and countless other discs that ranged from physical culture exercises to Ku Klux Klan mouthings.

But by the early 1930's, the depression slowed Gennett's recording business to a snail's pace. What little record-making Gennett did in those dreary days was largely for radio. Sound effect records it began making then are the only ones still sold under the Gennett label.

However, even though the Gennett label is seldom seen nowadays, except among collections of rare records, the Hoosier recordmakers are by no means out of business. In the last few years Gennett has pressed about 3,600,000 records annually—as many as the Richmond plant ever turned out anytime in the past. But all are copies of master discs recorded in studios elsewhere. Presently they are sold under the labels of a dozen recording firms.

Harry Gennett, Sr., 72-year-old president of the Starr Company, has no plans to ever resume recording. Manufacturing 300 pianos and pressing some 300,000 records a month is a big task under present conditions, he maintains.

Richmond's staid citizenry probably would have raised a furore over the influx of jazz musicians had not Gennett been such a familiar name thereabouts for so long.

The British-born grandfather of President Gennett, John Lumsden, founded the piano company before the Civil War. It is reputedly the first west of the Alleghenies. Gennett's father, Henry Gennett, had charge of the concern when the firm decided to make talking machines. Success at that led to record-making.

When the Graeme Bell band left England and sailed back to Australia, there were many who thought the sound of good jazz had left the country with them. There were heavy hearts around Leicester Square and Piccadilly Circus on that last wonderful night. The more pessimistic amongst us shook our heads sadly and were heard to murmur: "Ah well, it was wonderful while it lasted, now we will have to return to our record collections and await their next visit to England in 1950—we haven't a band that can hope to keep jazz alive."

A few wiser folk were not so gloomy about the prospect of jazz in Britain. "That fellow Lyttleton," they assured us, "has a very good little combination, and may spring a big surprise on all of you yet. He has a band that shows great promise." We were still doubtful. "Remember how impressed Mezzrow, Sandy Williams and Rex Stewart were when they heard him play at the Nice Jazz Festival?"

That modest praise has turned out to be a great understatement. In a surprisingly short period Humphrey Lyttleton and his band have developed into one of the greatest jazz combinations in Europe and are improving every time they take the stand.

The meteoric rise to fame of Lyttleton makes quite a story. From every angle the history of this young man is unusual; his background is a far cry from the expected Storeyville atmosphere of crime and honky tonks at the turn of the century. There is nothing in the background of the Lyttletons that might have indicated that Humphrey would turn into a great jazz musician. His family is one of the most ancient and distinguished in the country. However, Humphrey does admit to one ancestor with a nickname which could have belonged to a blues singer and which is reminiscent of the old Paramount label: "Naughty Tom" Lyttleton, a celebrated rake of the 18th century. As for the crime and violence associated with the clip joints and barrel houses of jazz fame, Humphrey can boast of little of that in his ancestry, although a Sir Humphrey Littleton was hung, drawn and quartered at Guildford after playing an ignominious part in the Gun Powder Plot.

Unless one may count Humphrey's father, a master at Eton, who used to play the 'cello "very badly," one is forced to the conclusion that Humphrey's talent is not hereditary. He owes none of his musical ability to his family. On the other hand, Lyttleton's fame has helped at least one of his relations. The Honourable Charles Lyttleton, heir to the 9th Viscount Cobham, was once given an "off the ration" meal in a Birmingham hotel, on the strength of being Humphrey Lyttleton's first cousin. The waiter was a jazz fan!

The jazz bug bit him at Eton, but after leaving school Lyttleton obtained a commission in the Grenadier Guards, with whom he served throughout the war, and during those troubled years the opportunities for playing were, of course, strictly limited. Whatever spare time he had was spent in the numerous little clubs, dotted about the West End of London, that featured jazz. If the music was hot and righteous, it was a safe bet that Humphrey would be along to hear it. However, listening to others was not enough. His object was to play with these bands, but it is difficult to persuade a bandleader that one is a jazz musician when one is dressed in the uniform of a Guards officer! It was always amusing to watch the expression on the face of some musician when Humphrey finally persuaded him that he was in earnest about wanting to play. It was even funnier to see the look of amazement and delight when a superb chorus of Sister Kate or Royal Garden Blues hit the

It was not until the end of hostilities that his first real break came. He had the chance of joining George Webb, who was looking for replacements, having decided to revert to the traditional-New Orleans front line of trumpet, clarinet and trombone. The Webb group was then the outstanding jazz band in England. Playing with George at that time were Wally Fawkes, a clarinet with a Bechet-like attack, and the biting, sour tone of a Dodds; and Harry Brown, a young trombonist in the "tailgate" tradition of Ory and Iim Robinson.

With these two young men Lyttleton found the inspiration and support he needed, and it was not long before the name of Webb's new cornet man was being mentioned in the places that mattered. To critics and fans alike, this was the greatest period in the career of the Webb band; but it was not to last. Gradually differences arose over policy, and after some weeks of tension among the players, Webb decided that it was no longer possible to keep the band together. The first week of January, 1948, saw the final concert at the St. Georges Hall, London. It was at this time that Humphrey decided not to let the fine front line break up. Heartened by the success of the Bell band, he formed his own band, taking Fawkes and Brown in with him. The problem was to form a suitable rhythm section. British rhythm sections have never been first class, but from those who had the necessary qualifications, Humphrey chose Nevil Skrimshire, guitar; Pat Hawes, piano; John Robinson, drums, and Les Rawlings, bass; all young and promising musicians with a desire to play the real thing with no pandering to cheap commercialism.

From the start the band was a success, and it was not long before they were sharing dates with Graeme Bell at the Leicester Square Jazz Club and helping to make jazz a paying proposition in England for the first time in this country.

The band was far from perfect at this early point in its career; there was a certain raggedness in the front line and the rhythm section. Still the jazz they made was exciting and the promise of things to come was plain. Humphrey himself became more confident with the passing of time; he began to create his own jazz, and rely less and less on Armstrong solos. The solos he created became better, hotter and more disciplined and all the time his tone and ideas improved.

Lyttleton's fame began to spread, and in quick succession came invitations to represent England at French and Belgian Jazz Festivals. It was at Nice that Humphrey scored his greatest artistic triumph. Lyttleton, in a group of musicians specially chosen to represent Great Britain, was outstanding. He held his own among such distinguished musicians as Louis Armstrong, Mezz Mezzrow, Rex Stewart, Earl Hines, Sandy Williams and Jack Teagarden, Rex Stewart in particular was very impressed with the young Englishman, and Humphrey is justly proud of the Festival program which Rex signed with these words: "I am very sincere when I say I consider you one of the great cornets of all time."

Broadcasts followed, and then came the chance for which the boys had been waiting —The London Jazz Club—formed by two London business men, Stan and Bert Wilcox. Jazz collectors for many years, they had always wanted to bring jazz to a wider public. Encouraged by the success of the Leicester Square Club, they decided to form one of their own. Both the Lyttleton and Bell bands were signed up and every Saturday night the sound of New Orleans music could be heard drifting through the open doors of the London Jazz Club. In less than four months the membership reached 1,500, and is still going up.

Pat Hawes has now been replaced by George Webb on piano and Dave Carey is playing drums in place of John Robinson. Carey is the British drummer who played for a while with Graeme Bell and, in the opinion of many, is the best jazz drummer in England. These two musicians, in the short time they have been with the band, have brought new drive to the rhythm section, which now really swings. The front line, provided with a solid background, is playing better than ever.

In Lyttleton England seems to have a leader with original ideas, who is determined not to stand still; progress within the New Orleans framework is his aim. He believes that development is possible without destroying either the spirit, or the character of the music.

Early in May the band cut a few sides for the Tempo label. Only two titles have been issued so far: Careless Love/When the Saints Go Marching In. Careless Love contains some beautiful clarinet by Wally Fawkes and Saints has typical Lyttleton cornet, but on the whole the sides are not really representative of the band as it is today. Webb and Carey had not joined the band when these records were made.

The future of jazz outside the United States seems bright, with such bands as Claude Luter, Graeme Bell and Humphrey Lyttleton able to hold their own with any group in the world today.

good and rare

Collectors interested in foreign trading should be extremely careful in their choice of friends. Of course, friends with a well-stocked wine cellar are handy, and friends who own many of the rare old records and don't mind sharing them are worth having, but there is another prerequisite. Be sure they can read and write a foreign language.

Letters arrive from many of the South American countries which begin, "Estimada señor y señora," and continue in beautiful, flowering Spanish. The collector with foresight then reaches for the phone and calls in one of his Spanish speaking friends to interpret and respond. Food is rushed out, a bottle of the best bourbon dusted off and the red velvet carpet is unrolled. This goes on for some time while letters rush back and forth between the continents. About six months later, the South American contact ends one of his epistles with: "Incidentally, if you would prefer writing in English, just tell me. Your Spanish is so flawless I never thought to mention it, but either language is agreeable to me." The collector puts his head in his arms and weeps.

ollectors fortunate enough to make a contact in Chile should get copies of the Chile Aces of Jazz on Chile Victor 60-000 series. Rosetta/Copenhagen, and Darktown Strutters Ball/Jazz Me Blues. Some good trumpet work by L. Aranguiz will cause you to pull out a couple of records to make room for these.

Correspondents in Uruguay might run up to the Son d'Or Company and have them press up a copy of the Pasquet Menendez Band. (They do this in Uruguay.) The best tune titles are Bailando en Dixieland/La Bruja en la Escoba.

Of course, a friend in Argentina can find some Sincopa y Ritmo labels for Dixieland, or the bands of Hamilton-Varella, Ahmed Ratip and the Buenos Aires Cotton Pickers, Panchito Cao, Barry Moral, etc.

One of the best to come out of Argentina is Hector Lagna-Fietta and His Dixielanders doing Buddy's Habits on Sincopa y Ritmo No. 2. Lagna-Fietta emulates Larry Shields of the ODJB on O.D. One-Step, Odeon 23054. Pibes Paz, clarinetist, stands out on both of these records.

Argentina also offers the previously unissued Louis with Carrol Dickerson Orchestra doing Symphonic Wraps/Savoyagers Stomp. The latest jazz release from Argentina is Especial para baile, by Varela-Varelita on Vi 60-1645.

Before leaving South America it should be noted that the Chile Jazz Club Dixieland Band is to start shortly waxing on their own label. Just recorded on limited edition were Canal St. Blues/Clarinet Marmalade.

A cross the world in Sweden, Baronet label is currently issuing Doc Evans, Muggsy Spanier, Lennie Tristano, Pee Wee Russell, and several others. Current releases this month consist of a Peanuts Holland on Sonora 672, Put 'em in a Box; Svend Asmussen Sextet on Od. 5381, Woody Woodpecker and a Thor Jederby Sextet on Od. 5373, while the Jederby Quartet does Fine and Dandy, Od. 5374.

We are sorry none of these records have arrived for review, but we feel we can't go wrong in recommending any of Thor Jederby's recordings. His work originally came to our attention when Jederby was recording on the Swedish Scala label and we considered it about the best of Swedish jazz at the time. Sweden has done a lot for jazz since then, but if you can get a copy of Thor Jederby's Sextet doing Blue Lou on Scala it will be well worth the trouble.

in the ranks

ne of the sad aspects of the jazz scene of today, compared to that of a decade ago, is the dissension among its followers. Then, although there were varying tastes and points of view, it seemed as if jazz lovers were a united band of young Davids out to battle the sweet and commercial philistines. Today divisions reign. There are three camps, as if each stage of jazz, that of the 'twenties, the 'thirties, and the 'forties, had created a permanent band of brokenhearted followers. And the first and last, especially, speak a different and mutually antagonistic language. There is as much difference between them as there once was between the followers of hot jazz and sweet.

It may seem as if the two post-war extreme, bebop and the New Orleans revival, are mainly responsible for the division, but actually the cracks in the ice began to appear in the late thirties, almost at the moment when the battle for hot jazz seemed to be won. One of its signs was the break between Gene Williams, who edited Jazz Information, and Steve Smith, who ran HRS. Smith reissued ten rare Bix sides, which Williams denounced as bad music, and then Williams denounced Smith's Spanier-Bechet discs as semi-commercial.

Looking back now, we can see in Williams' stand the beginning of the New Orleans revival. He was absolutely sincere, but sincere with the fanaticism of Carrie Nation wielding an axe in the saloons. And indeed, it was in this spirit that he walked about the living jazz scene of his time. He set himself the task of asserting the values of the old jazz, the great New Orleans jazz which had tended to be weakened in the smooth patterns of Dixieland and forgotten in the rise of the swing bands. His magazine did noble service in establishing the merits of the Jelly-Roll Morton records, the Johnny Dodds records, and others which had been treated lightly by collectors looking only for Armstrong solos. He pointed out the beauties of folk blues records, worthy of attention even though there were no famous names taking trumpet choruses on them. But in fighting for the rediscovery of the grass roots of jazz, he felt that he had to cut down everything that seemed to interfere, so that Ellington, Bix and Tesch had to be "debunked," and Basie sneered at.

We can today be indulgent of his onesidedness, which seems to be almost historically inevitable in its struggle to establish a new critical point of view. What is unfortunate in the present situation, however, is that the admirers of the old jazz have continued his fanaticism. Sometimes they don't even compensate with his discrimination and taste, and feel that every performance of Muskat Ramble must be defended as great and righteous music. It is not the intention of this article to argue for the "new jazz," but only to point out the contradictions that have beset both camps, old and new. And it seems to me that both, in their embattled state, have lost much critical judgment.

It is wrong, and a sign of desperation, for instance, to call every new band that plays King Oliver favorites or Scott Joplin rags a "great band." The history of jazz has given a very definite meaning to a "great band." It is a band which, like King Oliver's, carved out its own music, something that was new, and yet at the same time the voice of the people. There is not only a historical difference between a performance of a number by the band that made it up, and one by a band which affectionately follows the old patterns, but also a musical difference. In the old performances, and sometimes in current performances by bands like Ory's, which draw on a rich heritage of memories, there is a humor, an excitement that comes from the manner in which ideas are thrown out by one instrument, picked up and carried on by another, a constant unexpectedness and surprise, an inner logic. All of this tends to disappear in the later sedate and respectful performances, whether they stick to the old music note for note, or reshuffle it to give the impression that they are "creating." The music can still be very good to hear. But, for instance, where in the Luter band's playing of a King Oliver piece is anything comparable to the wonderful breaks by Oliver, Armstrong, Dodds and Dutrey, which gave the old performances so much fire?

There is no getting away from the fact I that, in the best jazz sense of the words, the contemporary "great bands" are those (like Ellington's, Basie's and Gillespie's) which carve out a music all their own, just as their New Orleans predecessors did. This is entirely apart from the question of whether the old music or the new is better jazz. There is plenty of room for argument along this line, just as one can argue the respective merits of various periods of classical music, or literature. And the preservation of the old music, keeping it alive and remembered, is a most valuable task. It serves as a check upon the new, a measurement of value, which some of the more flighty-minded apostles of the New seem to fear and resent. But this appreciation of the past cannot minimize the special quality of a new music: the sense that the emotions expressed are those which the listener himself may be feeling; the ability to go to a performance never knowing just what one is going to hear, but always hoping that at one point or another jazz history will be made. And sometimes it is.

It is this that accounts for the absence of musicians in the audience at a New Orleans or Dixieland affair, and the presence of musicians at a performance of the new music. The inner spirit of the old King Oliver and Fletcher Henderson days, when both trained musicians and youngsters would gather about the bandstand, drinking in new ideas and hoping to sit in, has certainly passed to the new jazz.

One aspect of the defense of the old jazz is absolutely reprehensible. That is the spreading of the notion that "new jazz" is a product of alcohol and marijuana. It takes little knowledge of the history of jazz to see that this is the same old stereotype that has been applied to jazz at every stage. It has been the old standby whenever someone wanted to take a pot-shot at jazz, from 1917 on. Some day, perhaps, a social history of jazz will be written, describing the conditions under which jazz had to grow up, from Storeyville, the Chicago speakeasies, the life and death of Bix, to the New York night clubs. But the sometime degeneracy of the surrounding atmosphere is not the inner meaning and content of jazz, but only its often harrowing limitations. And it is always the old jazz that is suddenly hailed as "pure," while the stereotyped stigma is shifted to the new.

If the lovers of the old jazz have their troubles and contradictions, so have those of the new. Certainly the utter contempt expressed for the old, the desire to wipe out its memories, is nothing more than a defense. Perhaps it stems from a fear of the high standards of great music set in New Orleans. And the chief danger of the new jazz is the emphasis, among its critics and backers, on technical perfections. The result is that the hot music begins to merge by imperceptible degrees into the commercial, the commercial begins to disguise itself as hot, and the essential character of great jazz, its play of imagination, its human warmth and exploration of feelings, is diluted and lost. It is a fine thing to appreciate technical mastery of the instrument and of music. One can see why musicians like this kind of criticism; it is their shop talk. But to rest criticism entirely on such a basis is too easy. It is furthermore the standby of the academic and commercial musician, who likes to believe that the art of music is something that can be as easily set down as a problem in arithmetic. Too much criticism in modern jazz caters wholly to the musicians, instead of discriminating and encouraging their best work.

Further fouling the picture is the presence of some self-appointed "authorities" on modern jazz, who are engaged at the same time in the wholesale manufacture or sponsorship of records, and the writing of blurbs or publicity for musicians. I am not talking about the enthusiast who puts out a littlecompany label, in order to put some good jazz on records, but about prolific writers. such as Leonard Feather or Dave Dexter. who are also connected in one way or another with quantities of records, more often than not mediocre. It is understandable to want to make a living from records, but to offer oneself at the same time as an impartial theorist, critic and judge is hardly honest, or helpful to the jazz-lover. If what the old jazz needs most is more perspective, tolerance and knowledge, less of a messianic and crusading complex, what the new jazz needs most is a comprehensive and discriminating body of criticism, separating the wheat from the chaff, encouraging the musicians' best work, giving an honest and workable guide to its bewildering quantity of production.

think that this could be a basis for a badly needed peace in the ranks of jazz lovers: the recognition by the lovers of the old music that sweeping theories about "true jazz," "real jazz," the "only jazz," are foolish, and that both musicians and listeners can legitimately want qualities which the old jazz doesn't contain; and the recognition by lovers of the new that jazz has a long and wonderful tradition, which it pays to know. A sensible knowledge of the past would help in providing a more sound point of view and a better perspective from which to appraise the qualities of modern jazz.

We badly need peace and unity. The dissension and hostility in jazz ranks serve only to do harm to both the preservation of the old jazz and the encouragement of the new. Critical writing degenerates into attack and defense, sneer and justification. Devotion to good music is replaced by adherence to a clique.

With unity among jazz fans who have no axe to grind, long overdue tasks could be taken up. One would be the organization of a body of jazz lovers, on a nation-wide basis, willing both to know the traditions and to encourage new musicians. If such an organization can get started now, it can be the force which will persuade the record companies to reissue some several hundred old discs, as a permanently available history of jazz. It can produce from its ranks some first-rate, impartial criticism. It can give musicians who are eager to play their best the backing they need.

The Old and the New:

Louis and the Bird.

an attack on critical jabberwocky

by charles delaunay

In an age that breeds mixed sentiments like hybrid corn, it may not be inappropriate to admit to a mixture of distress and amusement in finding oneself whipped for someone else's sins. Bucklin Moon, for reasons of his own which don't become very clear in the course of his review, decides to slaughter the poor old Discography after some years of humble service to the faithful. What he wants, Mr. Moon says, is a bigger and better jazz index. Well, maybe. If Mr. Moon had joined the many other collectors who helped to make the Discography what it is, he might have made a better book of it. To complain about it after the fact won't be of much help till the next edition comes along.

But Mr. Moon neither distresses nor amuses me very greatly, and there would be no reason to take pen in hand if Rudi Blesh, in the same issue, had not decided to make a fool of Mr. Moon by sneering at the Discography and such friends as it has, including Mr. Moon and myself, by relegating us to the lunatic fringe. . . .

I am not going to play Mr. Blesh's silly game of creating a fancy aura of sincerity and objective criticism around his business of promoting one kind of jazz; if I happen to like Louis Armstrong or Dizzy Gillespie I shall say so. If I don't happen to like Bunk Johnson or Illinois Jacquet, I shall also say so. But to surround one's likes or dislikes with unacknowledged quotations from Bill Russel, Ernest Borneman and Gene Williams, and to vulgarize their arguments as a fight to the death between New Orleans jazz (the shining hero) and bebop (the mustachio'd villain) strikes me as arrogant and dishonest.

Let me quote chapter and verse:

1. Mr. Blesh says: "The modernity of New Orleans music can be—and has been—proven musically beyond the possibility of refutation." The meaning of this sort of jabberwocky escapes me. It is bad enough to have the be-bop apostles talk about their music as "modern" or "progressive" instead of saying simply that it is original; if Mr. Blesh now falls into the same trap, he shows merely that he is the opportunist we have suspected him to be all along. New Orleans jazz was an exciting, vigorous music when it was first produced. But it was no better than the musicians who produced it. Mr. Blesh's myth of New Orleans jazz as some kind of abstract phenomenon has no more reality than the disembodied myth of the all-mighty state, or the "modern" state, or other such dehydrated entities.

2. "The necessity . . . of having to go back to rediscover a music and to discover its modernity, has stamped New Orleans criticism (in the minds of shallow people) as a reactionary process." Here Mr. Blesh is building up a wall in order to run it down. No one ever accused "New Orleans criticism" of any such thing; the accused was Mr. Blesh himself. And what he was accused of was not "the necessity of having to rediscover New Orleans "jazz" but his praise of bad musicians who were his friends and his attack on good ones who wouldn't record for him or play his radio show. Let him not confuse the issue by calling blame on the heads of other critics who have labored more honestly in the New Orleans vineyards.

3. "The cleavage between modernists and adherents of New Orleans jazz . . . is nowhere better illustrated than by the final break of Charles Delaunay from his erstwhile master, Panassié. Only last year when Delaunay was in America, he was still the faithful disciple singing the master's praises." This is rubbish. No one but Panassié himself would maintain that his attempt to wrest control of the French Hot Club movement, the physical premises of the Hot Club de Paris, and the Swing, label away from those who had started it, had anything to do with musical criticism. It was a story of power politics, pure and simple, in which he exploited the faith and the loyalties of the French musicians and the French jazz lovers. There was no master-pupil relationship between us at any time. We started together to promote jazz in France, and we stopped working together when Panassié decided to exchange the cause of music for the pursuit of business. . . .

4. "But there was no place free of Panassié's huge shadow for him to go except to be-bop. And so to be-bop he goes and, to justify his move as well as his own critical shortcomings, he now condemns all criticism and all critics." This reads like comedy in France, where . . . all musicians know that it was I and not Panassié who first "discovered," promoted or recorded Claude Luter, Claude Bolling and Graeme Bell in France while Panassié, in the splendid isolation of his southern castle, ignored them in favor of the second-rate American jazzmen who had been his friends and mentors before the war.

To think of Panassié as a New Orleans advocate and of myself as a be-bop fan is so silly that it would need no refutation in France. But for the sake of bridging the Atlantic, it might do no harm to say a few more words about musical criticism in this country.

Panassié first learned about jazz from Mezzrow and the Chicagoans. His first book was largely an apology for Chicago jazz spiked with special plums of praise for those musicians who were his beloved friends and with special blobs of acid for those who were their enemies. His second book was little more than a reflection of Mezzrow's quarrel with the Chicagoans and Mezzrow's new friendship with Bechet and some of the New Orleans old-timers. The curious contradictions in Panassié's writings. which have always baffled you in America. are nothing more, and nothing less, than an indication of Panassié's succession of friendships with those American musicians who happened to drift over to Paris. He used to ask them for their preferred musicians, and whatever information they gave him would come out the day after as musical criticism over Panassié's signature. If Hugues had made more friends among be-bop musicians, we would long have had a new "courageous correction" of his previous "stand" on Chicago jazz or New Orleans jazz or whatever it was that his current friends happened to believe in. To think of Hugues as a jazz critic therefore seems to us over here like thinking of a weathervane as a critical instrument.

5. The success of the New Orleans jazz revival "can be measured by the number of young bands, devoted to the New Orleans idea, that are springing up all over the world, and by the success with which they are meeting." This reminds me of a phrase which James Agee used in reviewing James Cagney's film version of "The Time of Your Life": "Arrogant determination to tell damnably silly lies in the teeth of the truth." For the truth is that be-bop is what the young musicians are trying to play, in his country as well as in U. S. A., and that bands like Claude Luter, Claude Bolling and Bob Wilber are in a diminutive minority. The fact that Mr. Blesh happens to like Bolling or Wilber as much as I do should not blind us to the fact that our taste does not coincide with that of the overwhelming majority of young jazz musicians the world over. What's more, there appear to be no young Negro musicians among the New Orleans revivalists. To find Mr. Blesh, the old advocate of racism in music, suddenly "joining the liberals" in a great fanfare about "the young bands" (all white) who are just about twenty years late in catching up with the Negro pioneers, is, to say the least of it, a little comic from the spectator's point of view.

6. "The crying need now is to realize that going back is only one step; that learning to play as Oliver and Morton did, and Ory does is only the beginning. . . . Bands today . . . should learn to sound as these giants would sound if alive today, and, above all, as they themselves should." Here Mr. Blesh reveals himself as the doctrinaire again. "Should" is a pretty word; but the fact is that many talented musicians who didn't grow up in New Orleans have tried for twenty-five years and more to imitate the New Orleans musicians and have failed all along the line.

rue, New Orleans jazz was such a magnificent music that even the imitators today may give us great enjoyment. But to expect originality of them is like expecting a work of art from a copyist in a museum corridor. "The solemn pronouncements of the amateur anthropologists about social forces that no longer exist, can be dismissed as so much rubbish," says Mr. Blesh, "Jazz, its players, and those who love it seem never to have heard of anthropology." They may never have heard of it, but they behave as if they had. I am no anthropologist, and I do not wish to make solemn pronouncements, but I have more to do with the working jazz musicians in this country than anyone else, and I can assure Mr. Blesh that he is talking through his hat as far as France is concerned. We have some excellent musicians playing in the New Orleans style, but they are completely outnumbered by those who are trying to play bop. That the same holds true in America is obvious enough to demand no amplification from my side. Tacitly Mr. Blesh admits this himself when he says: "The impasse today is the momentary pause between steps." The "momentary" impasse now has lasted longer than a quarter century and Mr. Blesh's arrogant determination to tell damnably silly lies in the teeth of the truth will make no difference to that painful fact.

To sum up: New Orleans jazz was one of the high spots of American music. Most of what Mr. Blesh has to say in its defense is true. Mr. Blesh may even succeed in finding enough old-timers and youngsters to give a fair imitation of the old glory and earn a good living for himself as concert promoter, radio broadcaster and operator of a recording company. But to pass off his publicity done as honest musical criticism borders on the preposterous, and his attack upon the few critics who have not yet soiled their hands is, to put it mildly, in very poor taste. If I today refuse to act as a critic and prefer to serve as a discographer, it is because I am myself active among musicians; when Mr. Blesh will follow suit and make up his mind whether he wants to be a promoter or a critic, we may once again begin to consider him with the respect he deserved before he began playing both ends against the middle.

"One with a Wide Vibrato Please"

Reverend Kelsey

Little Boy Lord Send the Rain

Tell Me How Long Evening Prayer

> Wow! Sock, bam, zowie!! Wheeeeee!

If this isn't some of the greatest stuff ever put on wax (which is a foolish question if I've ever asked one, and I've asked plenty), I will throw in my towel for once and for all and buy nothing but Decca's 57 R.P.M. cylinders. (This is a rumor that I am starting to get back at all the people who found out about Columbia's 33-speed LP's and Victor's 45-rev. disc before I did.)

Victor's 45-rev. disc before I did.)

Now, look. As soon as you finish this page, or sooner than that if you can tear yourself away, you go out and get yourself the first record at least. Get the other one too, if you have the money or can leave a gold filling with the shopkeeper.

Reverend Kelsey is the greatest, and his congregation is just too much. The stuff was cut in a church in Washington by some outfit called Disc-o, and sold to MGM. I'm told it sells like mad down south, but that doesn't stop it from being marvelous.

Little Boy (referring to the 12-year-old Christ child) breaks into a rash of singing that is easily the finest, swingingest, and most moving ensemble sound I have ever heard recorded by a singing group. Thirty bucks' worth of The Messiah has nothing on the last half of Little Boy. Maybe Handel needed some hand-clapping, an untuned piano, and a trombone player who couldn't do a damn thing but slide from C to F. (Oh, boy! But can that trombone player slide from C to F!)

Tell Me How Long (no relation to the Level Core blood) is girillar to Little Boy.

Let Me How Long (no relation to the Leroy Carr blues) is similar to Little Boy, and is not quite so good. It is only the second best record of its kind that I ever heard. Evening Prayer is almost ordinary.

Graeme Bell and His Australian Jazz Band

Shim-me-sha-wabble South

Big Chief Battle Ax Yama Yama Blues

By now it should be no news to most of you that I'm no lover of Dixieland, but if we must have it I muchly prefer the Australian product to just about everything that is being dished out these nights below Fourteenth Street. The records of Graeme Bell are no longer news but I must admit to liking these as well as any I've heard thus far. From me, pal, that's good. They ain't my dish but they might be yours.

I'll say this for the band: they sound like no one else, or a little more accurately, like everybody else scrambled together. On the South side, for example, they sound not too unlike Mr. Lu Watters and His You Too Can Be a Metronome (Ed.: DON'T USE THAT WORD!) Band and on some others I've heard they sound a little like the short pants version of some of the records put together by the Barefoot Boy in the French Shriner and Urner Shoes, Mr. Eddie Condon. But the point is that they do it in snatches rather than by carbon paper, a not unpleasant way of doing things for my money.

And by the way, it's also nice to find that only one of the four sides has been done to death. Of the lot I like the old Clarence William's standby, Yama Yama Blues, the best, with South pushing it. But I have just acquired from the local a SPCA for $1.00, an eight months old Great Pyrenees which, since she is about the same size, we have named Babar, and she has a passion for Big Chief Battle Ax. So I guess maybe I'll be converted yet. To Bob Weinstock I suggest she merits about four pounds of top round, for her a mere appetizer. (Jazz Corner $1.05 each)

Tadd Dameron Sextet

The Chase Dameronia

There's a funny thing about this record; Tadd is one of the smoothest operatives in the business, personally as well as musically, and he is chiefly preoccupied with the complexities of sound, instrumentation and beat. Hot jazz means little to him; (hot, that is, in the sense that the Chicagoans played hot) so it is interesting that one of the hottest of all the modern records happens to be The Chase. It isn't just a matter of velocity, since there are many sides faster than this. The excitement is the same kind that was generated, for instance, by Red Allen's band on Swing Out. Largely responsible is Fats Navarro, who has rarely played with such impressive ease and power, nor have many other men. This is his best record. I consider myself lucky to have heard him as good as this, once, in person. Fats is the only one who can offer Dizzy real competition, although their conception differs considerably. Fats plays as if he were brought up on Louis Armstrong, and probably was, but there is hardly a trace of anything previous to 1936 in Dizzy's style.

This same group made the recent Squirrel/Our Delight, and the four sides are the best possible reason why I regret that it (the sextet) had to be so fleetingly in existence. As far as I'm concerned, it was one of the best, one of the cleanest and most professional, that ever played bop, without sacrificing a whit of feeling or imagination.

Dameronia is a sprightly number, like many of Tadd's other compositions, and the band is good on it, too. It doesn't attempt to produce the power that The Chase does, but again Fats is a standout with a rich, warm

Fine work is also to be heard, on both sides, by bassist Nelson Boyd (now with Dizzy), alto-man Ernie Henry (ditto) drummer Shadow Wilson (now with Basie) and tenor-man Charlie Rouse (also with somebody, but I can't remember who). Blue Note 541 (P. B.)

James Moody and His Bop Men

Tropicana The Fuller Bop Man

By now, enough has been written about Chano Pozo's death to make any further comment from me unnecessary. He was a strange fellow, and probably the best bongo and Congo drummer of them all, as his few records will testify. He probably contributed as much as anyone else to the permanent inclusion of Afro-Cubano rhythm in modern music, simply by being so good at it that it was almost irresistible. Here he's coupled with my favorite drummer, Art Blakey, and they, with Nelson Boyd's bass and Hen Gates's piano, comprise one of the most dynamic rhythm sections imaginable.

Tropicana is more Cubano than Afro, played at a heavy rhumbaish tempo, with powerful bongo work by Chano, and with an unusual sound being produced by the big band (9 pieces). Walter Fuller did the arranging, and I think it may grate on some ears because it's pretty intense, what I think of as a dark sound, due in part to Cecil Payne's lusty baritone, but mostly to the exceptionally close scoring. Moody, the leader, is one of the most popular tenor men around, right now, due to his work with the Gillespie band. He has a fairly economical style, compared to someone like Charlie Ventura, but everyone likes him because he can blow. This side doesn't let him really take off, but he is plenty effective. I like the flighty, delicate piano by Gates, too, but it is the fine Cubano beat that stands out.

On the other side Blakey is replaced by Teddy Stewart (currently with Dizzy), who has something of the crispness of J. C. Heard and a good beat, and Chano is absent.

This discography is a supplement to last month's biography of this comparatively little known trumpet great. Most of the details on Pinkett's records are taken from the old Jazz Information and the Record Changer. The Willie Gant records were mentioned by Harry Cooper.

Have you ever eaten an Arturo Toscanini Club Special? It is constructed of, among other components, salami, pastrami, spiced beef, corned beef, potato chips, tomato, lettuce and pickles—and the price is one dollar. The nourishment that goes with this or any of the thirty outsize sandwiches on sale at Maurice's, 211 South Quince St., Philadelphia, is accompanied by appropriate recorded music of your own choice. Maurice has thoughtfully worked out an arrangement whereby your favorites are piped directly to your own booth. The fellow in the next section may ingest some of Signor Tamagno's majestic brays along with his sandwich, quite unaware that a third diner is basking in the glory of Vivaldi or Mahler. It might be remarked that you don't have to choose food named for the same composer as the one whose music you favor. Your host will not take it amiss if you eat Paganini and listen to Shostakovitch. Maurice admits to no outright preferences or prejudices; nor does he forbid your right to draw an inference from the fact that he asks $1.50 for a Tschaikowsky sandwich, whereas 75c suffices for a Caruso job.

Josephine Jacoby's demise removes a singer who made minor contributions to some notably successful concerted records of a generation and more ago. While not possessed of a particularly vibrant voice, this contralto's presence was a decided help to the visual picture at the Metropolitan during her engagement there. The critics of the time took note that two excellent reasons existed for her appearances as Siebel. The four excerpted quartets from Marta, in which Mme. Jacoby participated, should be encored via the Heritage Series. They reveal some of the best of Caruso's utterances, as well as those of Frances Alda and Marcel Journet; and the music itself is a joy!

W. W. Norton & Co. have brought out a revised and enlarged edition of Lillian Littlehales' biography of Pablo Casals. The work first appeared in 1929, since when the world's ranking 'cellist has, in truth, lived another life. Devotees of some of music's most enthralling pages will want to acquaint themselves with some of the facts behind this great artist's lives and experiences as musician and humanitarian. Miss Littlehales' part in telling the story is not admirable as to organization of material but the subject is of sufficient interest to warrant perusal and reference. A partial list of Casals' recordings is included as an appendix.

Norton's list also includes "Harold Bauer, His Book," and in it the internationally celebrated pianist manages to keep a constantly engaging narrative of memoir moving right along. Recommended.

Columbia's publicity minions will have exhausted their supply of adjectives in praise of "I Can Hear It Now" long ere this notice meets your eye. Nonetheless, this release's stature as a living document is not to be denied. Available both as a five-disc album set and as a single 12-inch LP record, "I Can Hear It Now" brings to gether, in less than an hour, a series of onthe-spot world news events which have affected your life and mine these past fifteen years; events whose repercussions evidently are destined to remain with us for the remainder of our years. Charles A. Lindbergh tells the America Firsters that we have nothing to fear, President Roosevelt assures us that we need fear only fear tisself—that the hand that held the dagger has employed it treacherously—that we shall gain the inevitable triumph—etc., etc. We writhe with the announcer who describes the explosion of the zeppelin Hindenburg (The Hindenburg scene and the flashes announcing Pearl Harbor and the death of Roosevelt will never lose their quality of abject shock.) Hitler and Mussolini are heard ranting their foul creed, Marshal Stalin turns his coat before your ears. Joe Louis kayos Schmeling and the late Will Rogers emotes with his characteristic bucolic insipidity. Arthur Godfrey's handling of the Roosevelt funeral cortege will strike you with whatever effect Mr. Godfrey happens to inspire within you.

material with you.

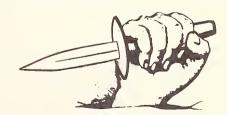

Mechanically these records are not without fault. Air-check transcriptions were dubbed onto tape—the tape was dubbed onto discs—thus we have a record of a record of a record. Some of the material which originated overseas might have been projected with less atmospheric interference, had the BBC air-checks been employed.

A certain amount of trivia has been processed as part of the whole for, besides Will Rogers, there is Edward of England's Abdication Speech, a bit of Huey Long's nonsense and the stentorian yawping of John L. Lewis (the best actor of the cast—one can appreciate his power who hears his delivery).

Possessed of faults of omission and of exceedingly dramatic recreations, this recording stands as one of the phonograph's worthiest adventures and belongs in every school library. It should be required listening at meetings and conventions of Rotarians, Lions, Shriners, Chambers of Commerce and all such gatherings of yokels who are committed to the proposition of organized lovey-dovey, whilst keeping their order-books very damned handy.

They've been around a long time and have given good and faithful service. Despite other and later recordings, they have remained unsurpassed until now, when Dr. Koussevitzky again has committed them to the wax under today's advanced technical conditions. One wonders if these works can ever be heard more resplendently than they are in their newly issued form. Played at a single sitting in either of the two possible sequences these sets add up to an evening of the utmost musical enjoyment. If, how(Continued on Page 20)

The feature of this side is a weird arrangement by Fuller, with insistent dissonant figures. I still haven't made up my mind whether I like it or not. Moody has another rousing bit, which is matched by altoman Ernie Henry, and there's some clean trumpet by Dave Burns, who has been playing under the shadow of Dizzy in the big hand.

All in all, this is a pretty interesting record—I don't think it's great, but it's almost another new direction. The more the merrier. (Blue Note 553) (P.B.)

Kid Ory's Sunshine Orchestra

Ory's Creole Trombone Society Blues

It's a break for most of us when some rare record is re-issued, and doubly so when it happens to be one of the earliest examples of recorded New Orleans Jazz. In 1921 the Spike Brothers of Los Angeles herded a band, Kid Ory and His Brownskinned Band, into the old Nordskog studio and cut two band sides—Ory's Creole Trombone and Society Blues. On the Nordskog label the band was called, I believe, The Seven Pods of Pepper, and the Sunshine label, pasted over the original, read Ory's Sunshine Orchestra. At a later date four other sides were made, but they were vocals by Roberta Dudley and Ruth Lee, and neither singer was any great shakes.

For this reason the band sides have been of the utmost importance. Dink Johnson, whom Bill Russell has recorded on his AM label as a pianist, played clarinet in those days, and Mutt Carey, of course, was on cornet. Of the others, Ed Garland who played bass on the date is still with Ory but I haven't heard of Fred Washington, the pianist, in years. Ben Borders, the drummer, is just another name to me.

I happen to have the Roberta Dudley record, so I had heard snatches of the band before, but it was a real kick to hear them play uncluttered by any singer. Then I played this one alongside the Crescent and Exner sides, as well as Ory's Columbia Album, and considering the differences in electrical and acoustical recording they come out all right. In fact I think that towards the end of the Ory's Creole Trombone side, where they really rock, they are damned good indeed. Actually, they sound not too unlike the King Oliver Creole Band in such places and a couple of times I caught myself wondering where Baby Dodds' wood blocks were. And on the other side Papa Mutt takes a break towards the end that sounds not too different from the breaks that the King used to take. I've been reminded before when playing other, records by New Orleans bands how many of them, in places, sound like Oliver, but this was the most striking likeness in approach of the lot.

by New Orleans bands now many of them, in places, sound like Oliver, but this was the most striking likeness in approach of the lot. For anyone who isn't label happy this record is a real break. I don't know what an original Sunshine in E+ condition would bring at auction, but I know that I've bid plenty on them in the past and never even come close. So if anyone who has one thinks that this re-issue is going to knock the props from under that record's value will he get in touch with me? I'll give him a fair price

Over the years there has been building up a solid library of re-issued records and I hope the trend will continue, for some of the originals are all but impossible to come by these days. Paradox is to be congratulated. (Paradox 3, $1.05) (B.M.)

This new venture plunged Gennett deep in litigation. Victor brought suit for alleged infringement upon the patent on a record-cutting stylus. Gennett won the case in the United States Supreme Court. The victory made the instrument public domain, but the Richmond company gained added stature in the industry.

In post-World War I days, annual production approximated 15,000 pianos, 35,000 spring-driven phonographs, and more than 3,000,000 records—all recorded in its Gennett studios.

Although vines almost obscure the once brightly-painted Gennett trademarks on the sprawling old brick buildings, there's at least one sweet chord there for jazz lovers. It comes from Harry Gennett, Jr., general manager of the records division.

If some of the master discs of the rarer jazz gems can be found in the dusty room over his office, they may be re-pressed. However, Gennett himself doesn't know what's there, for during the depression, he recalls sadly, someone sold many of them for the copper they contained.

The younger Gennett asks that record collectors not besiege the Gennett plant at this stage. If and when the old masters are reset hell cay to cast, he'll say so.

But there's little doubt that, if and when Gennett does drag out its old jazz classics, Richmond will see as strange a procession of collectors and music addicts walking its streets as ever visited there in the days when the town was the mecca of all great jazz musicians.

ever, you are a "full-length, or else" ever, you are a full-length, or else musiker, you might do worse than interpolate the Bostonians' highly adept treatment of the Berlioz "Harold in Italy" with William Primrose's viola magic.

Victor's recent spate of operatic single disc releases includes a few dogs and some of the most artistic things yet to turn up. Joel Berglund's singing of excerpts from Tannhäuser and The Flying Dutchman presents the music definitively, beautifully. Giuseppe di Stefan's work in airs from Mignon will win him many admirers among the scale of the service of the those who relish the open, Italianate type of projection, and he has been recorded splendidly.

Oscar Natzke, once billed as "the singing Anzak" and long a good-seller on his foreign-made records, is represented on the Columbia list by a pair of Zarastro's resonant moments from The Magic Flute which he intones in a solid basso profondo and brings off with convincing authority, albeit the English text jest ain't no good.

Diedrich Buxtehude is the star of Aksel Schiotz's first record of American release. The Cantata: Aperite Mihi Portas Justitiae is performed eloquently, lovingly by Mr. Schiotz and contralto and bass vocal associates, with two violins, 'cello and harpsi-

Schootz and contralto and bass vocal asso-ciates, with two violins, 'cello and harpsi-chord. Everyone is properly a consummate musician and this disc is a worthy item in the repertoire. Its sales-appeal is rather limited, though, I think. The record buyer wants Mr. Schiotz in solo performance and his Messiah seems to be what is wanted most.

The old-time music store is pretty much a thing of the past in New York—that is until you step across the threshold of Henry Mielke's at 242 East 86th Street in New York City. Here there are no chrome and plush fixtures, no perfumed males in attendance of the street are no chrome and plush fixtures. ance, no television nor radio sets, no million dollar highboy catch-alls. Mielke's staff knows and loves records. That's the way it has been for a generation and that's the way it's going to stay. There are records new and old, domestic and imported, common and rare. Tauber and Erna Sack items galore—and some repressings of electrical Polydors by Leo Slezak. Nothing cut-rate, nothing over-priced. Plenty of patience with sincere music-lovers and none at all with types. The manager, Mr. Schlenger, is a jovial soul and seems, by means known only to himself, to be able to tell you what you want before you ask for it; and should you presume to order by catalog number, he will gently massage your scalp with a baseball bat kept on the premises for just such occasions.

Incidental and Unimportant: Emilio de Gogorza's 1905 record of the Toreador Song (Victor 74046, renumbered 88178) employs an aggregation described as The New York Grand Opera Chorus. The antiquarian who really listens to his relics should have no trouble in discovering that on this disc, while Mr. de Gogorza sings his song in the original French, the chorus carries on in Italian. . . This is the sort of thing which makes specialists in years old. of thing which makes specialists in very old records "that way."

E (Excellent): Surface noise low, smooth, uniform. Not irregular or crackling, Easily disregarded in listening. No perceptible distor-

V (Very Good): Surface noise somewhat more prominent; light foreign noises, but slight distortion, if any; noises not seriously distracting.

G (Good): A moderate amount of surface noise; background may be somewhat irregular and crackling; some foreign noises, and a little distortion; on the whole, reasonably distractive distractions.

a little distortion; on the whole, reasonably satisfactory listening without undue distraction of attention. Foreign noises definitely less prominent than the music. F. (Fair): Foreign noises, taken together, are about as prominent as the music and there is considerable distraction of attention, and listening requires some effort and concentration; nevertheless, under these conditions, listening should be fairly satisfactory. P (Poor): Foreign noises, collectively, are louder than the recorded music: continuous concentration is required, and there is little satisfaction in listening.

Column 4 of the "For Disposition" section shows the method by which each record is to be disposed.

"SAL": The record is for sale at the price indicated.

"AUC": The record is at auction. The highest bid takes the record. Bid only what the record is worth to you.

"TRA": The record is for trade only. If you are not familiar with the wants of the advertiser send for his want list. If you have certain records in which he may be interested mention these in your letter.

CLOSING DATE FOR BIDS
On all Records advertised for auction in this issue will be MARCH 20, 1949
UNLESS OTHERWISE STATED

NOTE:

All persons using the medium of the Record Changer in the buying, selling or trading of phonograph records, do so subject to these Rules and Regulations:

1. A collector or person who solicits and receives advance remittance for a record must send the record within a period of four weeks.

 A collector or person who orders and receives a record prepaid must pay for it within a period of four weeks.

3. A collector or person who obtains a record in trade must fulfill his end of the trade within a period of four weeks.

4. A collector or person who requests that a record be shipped C.O.D. must accept the shipment unless the shipment is damaged in transit. (A bid on an auction or an order from a sale which states that records will be shipped C.O.D. unless otherwise instructed, is considered a request for C.O.D. shipment.)

The name of the person or collector who violates the above rules will be printed in the Record Changer upon the first violation, and the violation will be described. (Exception: where breakage or over-grading is concerned, the record is to be returned promptly to the shipper. If the parties involved do not arrive at a settlement, the matter is to be referred to the American Record Collectors Board.)

When infractions of these rules occur, contact Jacoh S. Schneider, Legal Dept., The Record Changer, 128 West 66th St., New York, N. Y.

NEW YORK AND VICINITY

Big news for jazz fans in the New York area is that both Charles Delaunay and Hughes Panassie are in town. Panassie is giving some talks at jazz club meetings, among other business, and Delaunay is working on his first supplement to the New Hot Discography. His greatest work, though, is being carried around in his satchel. It is the jazz Encyclopedia which may prove to be the most complete reference work about jazz and its creators.

The fine new jazz joint in Greenwich Village sector, the "Riviera", is doing a landoffice business by featuring the fine trio work of Art Hodes, Pee Wee Russell, and Herb Ward. Sitting in are such stalwarts as Tony Parenti, George Wettling, Lips Page, and the greatest suitcase player in the world, "Josh" Billings. He will be remembered for his work with the Mound City Blue Blowers.

Bechet has been the big attraction at most of the sessions hereabouts. Billy Butterfield still at Nicks.

Tony Parenti doing the best job of missionary work for jazz in these parts. Playing three days a week at the Rustic Lodge in New Brunswick, N.J. Featured with a local band have been such stars as Joe Sullivan, James P. Johnson, The Lion, Wild Bill, Buck Clayton, and other top names. Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights are when they stomp off. Tony also has been active in the Bridgeport area at the Tip Toe Club where his regular band features Johnny Glasel (from Yale), Freddie Moore, newlywed Charlie Traeger, and other top local boys. Pictured on this page is the band on a recent March of Dimes street parade featuring Ray Diehl's authentic tailgate.

Circle records has just recorded the great Bob Wilber band in Boston and has signed them to a house contract. The growing jazz club in Philadelphia, "Jazz Unlimited", is about to release its first private club reissue: A marching band and a piano rag. For members only, but out-of-towners can join, too. Contact the club at 1118 Walnut St. They have room for about 20 new members. One of our spies tells us that a member of the Watters band was seen at a Gillespie concert the other night and seemed to be having a ball. My, My!

SHORT SHOTS

Davison and Bechet did another date for Blue Note with Hodes, Moore and Page . . . Knocky Parker set to record for Eli Oberstein . . Punch Miller in Florida, heading for New York . . . King Cole added a bongo player to his unit . . . James P. Johnson going to Hollywood to do some picture music . . Fred Robbins has a new TV show . . . Mildred Bailey looking slimmer than ever at the Cafe Society . . Brunis talking about suing True Magaine and George Frazier over the story they ran about him . . . returning to the jazz game. He's on a Noone kick and sounding great at the Friday night sessions Bob Maltz throws at the Central Plaza... The Royal Roost giving up Bop, but its owners opening up a new joint to be called Bop City... Ed Allen, the great trumpet player on most of the old Clarence Williams records, is playing in a taxi dance hall on 14th St., The New Gardens... Alberta Hunter in town, singing better than ever... A new blues piano find from down south is Big Boy Ellis, very fine... Shirley Clay, Jabbo Smith, Reuben Reeves, and June Clark all will appear at the Central Plaza sessions in the very near future... Reeves is playing great horn with Harry Dial's combo in the Bronx... Artie Shaw doing a classical concert at Carnegie.

CHICAGO—Walter Wager

Despite the fact that business was recovering slowly from the anticipated seasonal slump and night club proprietors were weeping into their Alka-Seltzers all over this Windy City, there was plenty of fine music to be had by the more sure-footed jazz fans.

A motorcycle would have helped, however, as it was scattered all over to-hell-and-gone. Red Allen, J. C. Higginbotham, Don Stovall & Co. followed Herbie Fields into the Silhouette on the Evanston frontier, while Miff Mole, Baby Dodds, Darnell Howard and Art Gronwall were off on their usual dandy Dixie tear at the Beehive on 55th Street.

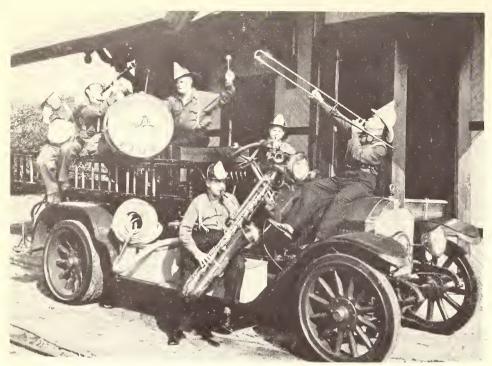

Between these cultural outposts there was a great deal doing. Danny Alvin's inspired drums were leading a talented gang labelled "The Dixielanders" at Isbell's Bryn Mawr menage, with Floyd Bean, piano; Jimmy James, trombone; Jack Ivett, cornet; and Charlie Morrell, clarinet.

Muggsy Spanier's hot horn continued to fill Ruth and Bill Rinehart's highly civilized Jazz Ltd. fairly regularly. The contented management of this relaxing bistro also announced that final disks for its album had been cut. Now on wax are Washington and Lee Swing and A Good Man Is Hard To Find, featuring Muggsy, Egyptian Fantasy, Careless Love and Maryland, My Maryland, starring Sidney Bechet, some splendid Doc Evans trumpet on It's a Long Long Way to Tipperary and Wolverine Blues, and a Don Ewell piano solo of Maple Leaf Rag.

The unfortunate Music Bowl closed up shop temporarily, just as it looked as if good bookings and smart publicity might be getting that big empty room back on its feet. To counterbalance the loss, there was Max Miller's very special trio playing his own kind of pure music at the recently opened Hi-Note at 450 North Clark. With Earl Backus on electric guitar and Buddy Nichols on bass, this piano man is getting some recognition at last and will be recording again.

He'll take a seven piece band into the everpopular Blue Note to back Mel Torme for the fortnight beginning March 27, following two weeks of the Duke of Ellington in that frequently exciting cellar. It is hardly necessary to note that the solid month of Sarah Vaughan and Lester Young which ended March 12 was really solid.

Lee Collins' thundering trio continued to defy the elements at the Victory Club on Clark Street, and the boss horn showed up with the legendary Natty Dominique, Danny Alvin, Jimmy James and the superior house band at a most satisfactory February 20 Dixie concert at the Beehive. Of considerable interest was the young Seattle combo known as the Rainy City Band, a terrifically hard-hitting unit of the old, old school.

For them as likes thrushes, Nellie Lutcher eased her ample frame into the Rag Doll on March 2 and Anita O'Day took her tonsils into the Hi-Note on the 4th. One Jazz-at-the-Phil bash occurs at the Opera House on March 25, and it is hard to say what else may break loose around this area. Like the man said, it's still Chicago.

LOS ANGELES—Jack Lewercke

The picture of the month elsewhere on this page is the Fire House Five Plus Two. This group has for some time been playing for its own amazement but has become so popular around town that they may soon record. The leader is trombonist Ward Kimball. Kimball is also well known for his other great hobby, model railroads. He has a train with four cars, a railroad depot, car barn, and about 300 feet of track in his back yard. Other members of the group are Clarke Mallery, clarinet; Jim MacDonald, drums; Harper Goff, banjo; Ed Penner, bass Johnny Lucas, trumpet; Frank Thomas, the pianist, was unable to get his keyboard onto the old 1914 America La France fire engine. This is without doubt the gonest picture we have ever printed.

SAN FRANCISCO AREA-Dick Oxtot

Albert Nicholas' four piece band livened the San Francisco jazz fare considerably last month. With bopster Dizzy Gillespie just across the street, Nicholas demonstrated that New Orleans oldsters can still pay their way if given the opportunity. Nick entertained International Settlement clientele with a repertoire made up mostly of Dixie tunes, but threw in enough pops and standards (such as How High the Moon) to keep the progressives happy, too. As a result Nick's 2-week option at the Arabian Nights was taken up and his engagement extended.

The Yerba Buena Jazz Band continued to operate without maestro Lu Watters, still convalescing from an operation. The rock-collecting trumpeter is currently compiling a cook book of gargantuan proportions, which will contain all the dishes served at Hambone Kelly's plus other concoctions conjured up by the Watters brain.

BOSTON-Bob Parent

The new year received a resounding start in Boston when the staid residents of Back Bay were treated to a New Orelans style wagon parade on the evening of Jan. 3rd. Following a reception by the Bob Wilber Dixieland Jazz Club at Back Bay RR Station, the Bob Wilber Band boarded a waiting wagon and started off with When The Saints Go Marching In. Wending their way through sections of Back Bay and South End, the parade ended at the Savoy Cafe where both Wilber's Band and Ed Hall's Quartet reopened that night, after a few weeks absence, for an indefinite stand. Besides Wilber, band consists of Jimmy Archey, Henry Goodwin, Pops Foster, Dick Wellstood, and Tommy Benford. With Ed Hall are George Wein and Ev Schwarz alternating at the keyboard; John Field, bass; and Joe Cochrane, drums.

Excellent Dixieland jazz continues to be served to those who attend the Sunday afternoon sessions at Pelletier's (formerly the Alibi) in Lynn. Under the direction of George Poor, trumpet, music is dished out by Paul Watson, trumpet; Howie Gadboys, clarinet; Bob Gay, trombone; Arthur Karle, tenor; Joe Battaglia or Ev Schwarz, piano; John Harbo or John Field, bass; Bill Learoyd, parralute; and Tony Hannon or Charlie Hegarty, drums.

The 'Danceable Jazz' program fostered by Dick Mascott of the Boston MCA office, and mentioned in this column last January, got under way during February when the Edmond Hall Septet played for the Carnival Ball of the Dartmouth College Winter Carnival and the main prom of the Norwich Freshman Week. The band was enthusiastically received at both functions and indications are that the 'Danceable Jazz' program will solidly catch on with the local college students.

Ed Hall and George Wein presented a jazz concert at Jordan Hall on March Ist. Featured stars were Wild Bill Davison, Franki Newton, the Ed Hall Quartet, Al Morgan, Howie Gadboys, Ralph Ferrigno, and Ev

Schwarz.

NEW ORLEANS

It was Mardi Gras time in the Crescent City and biggest kicks for jazz fans was watching Louis Armstrong lead the Zulu parade as king of the Zulus. It was really the King returning to his hometown with great music to keep happy feet marching. Other good news was the group of local cats who won the Horace Heidt amateur show before thousands of people as the Dixieland Jamboree band. Real gone.

OVERSEAS

The Danish Hot Club offers to tell any and all correspondents about Its activities, which have been considerable. Contact Hans Jorgen Pederson, 22 Byagervej, Virum, Denmark. The Belgian cats have been active of late with concerts featuring Bill Coleman and Don Byas. They are planning a jazz festival for next summer and plan to import one of our better groups. Carlos de Radzitzky has been running weekly radio show in Brussels featuring Oliver-to-Bop on records. Biggest demand though seems to be for Bop. The same group which played the Belgian concert traveled across Europe to play a date in Switzerland. They're jumping over there. Just received is a splendid little magazine from Japan published by the Hot Club of Japan. Features articles about Goodman, Bunk, Wilber, Watters, Bop, and Panassie. Real fine book. If you read Japanese, that is. One of the world's finest jazz magazines is being turned out monthly in England by Sinclair Traill and Tom Cundall. The Jazz Journal is a highly superior, largeformat monthly and is a discographer's delight. Sub runs $4.50—through the Changer, of course.

Dear Mr. Delaunay:

Since my one sin, that of an unfavorable review of the revised Hot Discography, seems to have landed me in the middle of a battle royal in which I have very little interest, I shall be more careful in the future. I shall also recommend this course of action to you, Mr. Delaunay, since later explorations into your discography have turned up fully as many errors, omissions, and care-less slips as I turned up in ten or fifteen minutes' spadework for my review.

No, Mr. Delaunay, I made no plea for a bigger and better Index to Jazz. In all sincerity my only hope was for a better, not bigger, Hot Discography. My fan mail, never to be reckoned with in the past, has grown by leaps and bounds since that review (and all on the plus side) so others seem to agree that I was objective in my criticism.

Why did I not aid and abet in the gathering of material? Well, I wasn't asked and as a matter of fact I did not know that such a project was in the making, while it was still in the making. If there is another edition I would welcome that opportunity. But I'm afraid that in the meantime I shall have to keep on using my four battered volumes of the Index, for without a seeing eye dog I can't seem to find my way around in your complex tome.

Editor:

The article on Ward Pinkett in the recent Record Changer was more than usually cent Record Changer was more than usually interesting to me, due to the fact that he was a native of Newport News. I found that his mother and sister were still living here and visited their home. It was rather coincidental that I had used Morton's Ponchatrain, with Pinkett, on my "Dr. Jazz" broadcast the previous Saturday.

His sister mentioned to me that Ward Pinkett "worshipped" Armstrong and Morton; she also mentioned that McCarthy was quite correct when he blamed Pinkett's in-

The sister, Miss Loretta Pinkett, a musician and band leader herself, had several of her brother's records, including Morton's Kansas City Stomps/Boogaboo, I'm Looking for a Little Bluebird/ Mushmouth Shuffle, the Jungle Band (Chick Webb), Dog Bottom/ Jungle Mama, Joe Steele's Top and Bottom/ Coalyard Shuffle, and Oliver's Stop Crying/ Papa De-Da-Da.

This letter should probably be started with, "Mr. Anthony, I have a problem." Or maybe it should read, "Mr. Anthony, all record collectors have a problem." The problem is to get some authority to set a standard practice concerning the receiving of broken records through the mail or by R. R.

Express.

The shipping company isn't always to blame, although they do their share in tossing parcels around. The shipper is more with heavy enough packing or else he neg-lects to place warning stickers on the outer box.

The shadows of three great jazz musicians lie heavily over the contemporary scene. They are Dizzy Gillespie, Lester Young and Charlie Parker. In our recent examination of bebop brass instrumentation it was shown how the modern style had evolved along a line of great trumpet players from Louis Armstrong to Roy Eldridge, emerging in the bebop idiom with the ascendancy of Dizzy Gillespie. In that article certain references were made to Lester Young, whose tone and phrasing, even though on saxophone, were studied and adapted to brass instruments by the earlier boppers.

When we come to examine beloop reed instrumentation we find the influence of Lester Young even more dominant. In fact, modern reed playing stems almost solely from "Pres," the most revered of the swing musicians.

The new individual voices of Swing—Goodman, Wilson, Eldridge—had brought about an improvement of technique, sophistication, refinement and involvement of line. Teddy Wilson had refined the punching orchestral piano of Hines; Eldridge elaborated the fantastic style of the later Armstrong period. Benny Goodman was a clarinetist who phrased in the Chicago tradition of Noone and Tesschmaker, but he went far beyond his models in musicianship.

Great changes had come to be associated with these musicians but they had not actually introduced a new way of playing jazz. The challenge sounded by Lester Young marks a division point in jazz history. Most of the critics and musicians of the past fifteen years fall into two groups: the traditionalists who hold with the old models—the classic jazz of Armstrong, Hawkins and Goodman; and the "moderns" who have followed the path of Lester Young, Dizzy Gillespie and Charlie Parker. An understanding of this schism will simplify the appraisal, not only of music, but jazz criticism since 1935.

Like Wilson and Eldridge, Lester Young represents virtuosity, harmonic maturity, delicacy and complexity. But these qualities are not acquisitions with Young—they are integral in his playing. He is the first to make a clean break with the past and create a style which is actually unique. With Morton, Armstrong and Parker, figures that loom in their respective eras, Lester Young is one of the four chief innovators of jazz. A musician of less stature than Armstrong, Young is none the less comparable to Louis in historical importance.

Lester was the first to junk the machine-gun style of Hawkins, with its reliance on eighth note-dotted sixteenth patterns. This is the phrasing method of Sedric, Berry, Webster, Wilson, and Young's Basic section mate, Hershal Evans. Lester used more notes and less notes than his predecessors, but abundances were balanced against bareness within the structure of his solos.

In his solo on Lady be Good (small band version), Young employs a bare ten notes for the first four-bar section. A classic stylist would have doubled the amount. These ten notes are set with lapidarian skill in the rhythmic and melodic framework. The opening phrase, so succinctly stated, leads to longer and complex improvisations upon the melody, the whole of which is a masterpiece of economy, subtlety and logic.

Lester's musical thought flowed, not within the accepted confines of two or fourbar sections, but more freely. He thought in terms of a new melodic line that submitted only to the harmony of the original as it reworked the melody into something fresh and personal.

Harmonic sense that enables a jazzman to improvise readily is a talent. Melodic vision of Young's quality is a mark of genius. His example and that of the Basie band restored to the jazz language a tool which had been dulled by improper usage.

Lester Young's chord and bar changes are arranged with such adroitness that the listener is frequently not aware of them until after they have fallen. Lester's method is to phrase ahead—to prepare for and gracefully lead to into the next change several beats before its arrival. To be able to move so freely, in and out of the harmonies with an ear so keen and a step so sure, to always come out on the right note and the right beat—this is a mark of genius. Jazz had known nothing like it since the first daring improvisations of Louis Armstrong.

chestral palette of the Debussyians. Lester's spirit was pleased by the sound of the sixth and ninth intervals which lie adjacent the dominant and tonic notes. It was typical of his subtle and inquiring nature to play just off what the ear expected and thereby extend musical structure on a horizontal plane.

Lester added variety to the melodic line, but he knew well how to balance the parts. He is complex, but he is never complicated. Wild crescendoes are contrasted with hammering repetitions, iridescent multi-note passages with sections where notes are massed like blocks. Short statements lead to long flowing sentences. Lester's solos are replete with dips and soaring flights, surprises, twists, hoarse shouts and bubbling laughter. The holes, and like Basie Lester leaves many, are deliberate and meaningful. The dry bite of the attacking notes, the fatness of the slurs and periods—all are parts of the deliberate style of a master virtuoso of the tenor saxophone.

Like all of the giants, Lester possesses a tremendous beat. He is one of those rare musicians who can swing an entire band. The massive swing of the Basie orchestra became even more exciting when Lester soloed. Very often, when he had the first solo, as on Taxi War Dance, Young would divest the opening statements of all but their rhythmic elements. Here Lester underlines the first and third beats, giving greater emphasis to Jo Jones' high hat accents, which fall on two and four. In rhythmic language this solo develops a 4/4, a 2/4 and a 1/3 pattern simultaneously and results in rhythmic complexity that goes beyond that of any contemporary. No one before him, neither Armstrong, nor Morton, nor Hawkins, had created melodic line as rich in rhythmic interest as did Lester Young.

New Orleans bands achieved this rhythmic complexity collectively. The quality deteriorated during the following period when jazz emphasized romantic and individualistic tendencies. Lester Young, the arch-romantic, recreates this quality in an individual style.

Lester's insistence on the rhythmic priorities of jazz came as a tonic to a music which was drifting away from the drive of early New Orleans music. Lester did more than reaffirm these priorities. He replenished the stream polluted by the arrangers and thus made possible the even more complex rhythmic developments of the bebop style.

Lester Young's work falls into two

(1) 1935-40, when he was featured with Basie and recorded with the parent band, and with Teddy Wilson, Benny Goodman and Billy Holiday.

The Lester Young style is essentially romantic. It is uninhibited and relaxed, sensitive, imaginative, deeply subjective. It is the very intimate communication of an artist who was voicing the ideas of the day in a language of the next decade.

Lester always sounds spontaneous. Less disciplined than Hawkins, he is none the

(2) 1940 to the present, during which time he has concentrated mainly on concert and small band work.

During the first period Lester's playing is notable for its freshness and abandon. Lack of inhibition does not mean that Lester was nervous or frenzied. He is the most relaxed of musicians. His notes flowed like water out of a tap and the source showed no signs of depletion.

Lester's detachment was unshakable. He always seemed to be in a world of his own. Heard in person, in the midst of the happy jungle of Basie's orchestral sound, or on record, Lester gave the impression of impassioned absorption. On records his solos glow with a radiance which is like the light from another planet. In the parlance of the times, he was "out of this world."

less a musician whose product is orderly and structural. But these qualities—balance and unity of parts, clarity of concept—lie beneath the surface, under the luminous texture of notes.

When Lester first appeared on the jazz scene he had command of a completely integrated style which has undergone little or no change since 1935. It was as if he had been planning a frontal attack on orthodoxy for years.

The roots of Lester's style extend in many directions. On one side they are indisputably in the reed tradition of the early clarinetists who emphasized the melodic and lyrical qualities of jazz and thought in terms of the blues scale. Indeed, the Kansas City style speaks the language of the New Or

The revival of interest in early Ragtime coincides with the virtual re-discovery of Jelly Roll Morton by what amounts to a whole new generation of record collectors and serious jazz lovers, to say nothing of the musicians themselves. This is a most appropriate occurrence, especially since the influence of Ragtime upon Jelly has never received the attention it clearly merits. Indeed, until this connection is more fully appreciated, Jelly's ultimate contribution to the music of his time cannot be satisfactorily

Jelly's greatest achievement was not that he originated, as so many latter-day admirers would have us believe, what has been so frequently, and erroneously, described as "left-hand" piano. On the contrary, Jelly's significance derives from the far more important fact that the tradition of fine piano was preserved, at times, almost solely by his example. And, in addition to maintaining an already-established tradition, he enriched it substantially, most notably by his compositions, during a period in which some of the best features of early rags and blues were achieving fusion. From this union there followed, of course, the classic jazz of the 1920's.

The tradition of fine piano of which I speak is distinguished by a fundamentally orchestral, ensemble conception of the in-strument. This fact should make it apparent that the "left-handed" description of Jelly's style is precisely that: a flagrant misnomer. Actually, fine piano of the type that Jelly personified was neither left-handed, nor, fortunately, only right-handed. In plain English, stripped of all hep talk, it was strictly two-handed, both in conception and in execution. The confusion that has enveloped the matter has resulted, no doubt, from the fact that development in the left hand, so prominent a feature of Jelly's execution, is noticeable in contemporary pianists chiefly by its absence.

At this point, perhaps I ought to make it clear that, in emphasizing Jelly's unique contribution to his time, I have no intention to detract in any way from Jelly's rightful claim to a special niche in the Jazz Hall of Fame. Jelly did not enjoy in later years the full popular recognition to which his talents entitled him (but he would certainly have rejected any acclaim by the bobby sox fringe among traditionally-minded jazz devotees.)

For a fuller understanding of the piano tradition, of which Jelly was a principal practitioner and our connection with an illustrious and vital past, we must briefly consider the somewhat obscure origins of that tradition. The orchestral conception of piano was a development that accompanied the evolution of Ragtime music, and is not to be found in the early Blues.

Unlike the Blues, the history of Ragtime has been almost wholly neglected in the usual jazz chronicles. The Blues, if anything, have been over-documented, in some phases out of all proportion to their musical worth, certainly from the viewpoint of any-one concerned with the origins of jazz. For the Blues constitute only one of the two main sources of material entering into the total picture and it is quite possible, even likely, that time may prove them to be the lesser of the two.

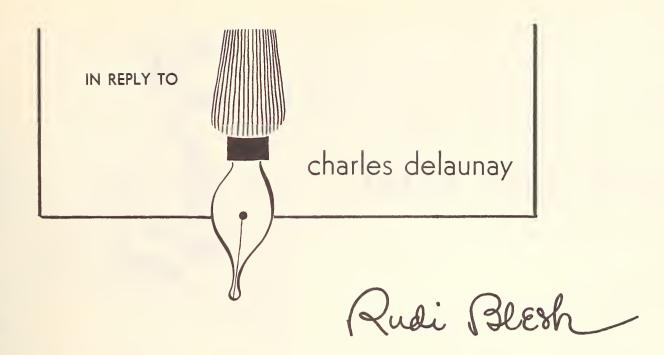

But the fact that little research has been conducted on the origins of early Ragtime does not mean that we cannot draw some obvious conclusions as to the influence of rags upon the style of Jelly Roll. After all, if only incompletely, we have before us the evidence of the music itself, the original sheet music published at the time. From such sources a considerable amount of useful information may be gleaned, by observing the state of notation, the maturity of the musical ideas, and the musical instructionsoften quite specific, as well as any possible prefatory comments indicating the composer's intentions.

Thus, while the library cupboards may be bare, there is sufficient sheet music for our present purposes. From the evidence at hand, it may be stated that the development of Ragtime music, which is to say Ragtime piano, represented nothing more than an ex-tension, or enlargement, of earlier banjo techniques. It was, in fact, the adaptation of several banjo parts, scored for an instrument of larger musical dimensions. The "stride," for example, a term frequently used to denote Jelly's treatment of musical material with the left hand, thus is revealed as—in concept—the employment of two piano parts by the left hand. Under this scheme of things, the left hand carried the rhythmic parts and the right hand one or more melodic parts, in the manner of a trio or quartet, this being the maximum number regarded as feasible. Of necessity, to be ensemble, the right hand was compelled to know what the left hand was doing, and vice-versa, from which it follows that fine piano in the true orchestral tradition calls for a higher order of musicianship than most pianists seem to possess, which may explain why we hear it played so rarely.

Initially, the efforts in an orchestral direction were essentially imitative. This may be detected, at least superficially, in the not unpleasing "plinky" quality, reminiscent of the banjo, surviving in certain passages of ragtime compositions. However, as greater experience was acquired, as the possibilities were more fully explored in terms of other

I read Mr. Charles Delaunay's article in the last Changer, entitled "An Attack on Critical Jabberwocky," with a certain feeling of weariness. For I am a little weary of defending a record of activity on behalf of jazz and its players that, on the very face of it, requires no defense. I am weary of attacks that, although veiled with varying degrees of cleverness, are really personal attacks upon me that spring from petulance, ill will and envy.

The ironic element in Delaunay's outburst is that, offended by Bucklin Moon's adverse criticism of his New Hot Discography, he vented his wrath on me rather than on Mr. Moon, who comes off with only two paragraphs of mild reproof. The irony is this: in the December issue of Music Notes, a periodical of book reviews published by the Library of Congress, I wrote a favorable review of the Discography. This I did because, while aware of the book's shortcomings for use by expert collectors, I felt that it should be available in libraries for the novices.

Nevertheless, for reasons apparent to any unbiased reader, Delaunay chooses to launch a particularly vicious personal attack against me. Aside from a few minor points, the whole dirty matter can be disposed of as briefly as it deserves.

One point concerns my analysis of New Orleans jazz as modern, which contrary to Delaunay's misstatement preceded by several years any similar claims for bebop. Delaunay confesses that this is jabberwocky to him, and thus furnishes, in his own words, a just estimate of his own critical equipment and basic powers of understand-

Delaunay next levels the fantastic charge of racism at me with the taunt that, having espoused the Negro as the greatest exponent of jazz, I must now accept inferior white players since no one else is playing New Orleans. I espouse all sincere players of jazz, regardless of color. Is this racism? In fact, I predicted in 1946, in Shining Trumpets, that white players would reactivate New Orleans jazz. Let me quote: "All of the jazz playing of younger white players . . . is the real 'second line' of jazz . . . Consciously or unconsciously, white men led most of the Negroes into deserting the music that had come from their hearts. . . . However, the white boys kept the jazz spirit alive until, today, some of the faithful Negroes are getting a fair chance to be heard again. None can deny that there is a poetic justice in this."

Delaunay also cites his unsupported claim for the large numbers playing bop against the small number playing New Orleans. I don't know that this is true and, even if it is, mere numbers prove nothing about the relative value of two different kinds of music. Is quantity excellence? If it is, each of the fads in swing, jump and jive that preceded the present bop rage would have been the "ultimate modern music." Were they, Mr. Delaunay? In the whole long history of New Orleans jazz, there have been, in fact, many concurrent musical fads; all of the moment burst is my statement that, before their break, he was Panassie's faithful disciple. For the record, on Delaunay's last trip to America, he sat in my New York apartment and proudly confirmed his allegiance to the famous French critic. Delaunay calls my statement rubbish. I am forced by the facts to call his either a deliberate untruth, or an unaccountable lapse of memory.

The rest of Delaunay's discreditable performance is devoted mainly to an attack on my integrity. Let me say here that all of my activities in behalf of jazz—writing, broadcasting, lecturing and recording—are part of a complete program of activity devoted solely to the furtherance of the cause of good jazz. That each, and all, are uncompromisingly sincere, is clearly evident. Mr. Delaunay, I am both a promoter and critic, though not in the sense that you imply. I promote the interests of jazz and its players, and I write what is generally accepted throughout the world as advanced and constructive criticism. Perhaps, had these qualities, plus a generosity you do not seem to possess, permeated your own work, this whole regrettable incident would never have occurred.

I look on the recording being done by my associates and myself as a permanent artistic achievement that will stand on its own merits long after these personal controversies and the persons who actuate them are gone. And I am quite willing to let any one of our phonograph records stand up for comparison with the ceaseless reams of the musical bookkeeping called discography. the

The tunes were Ostrich Walk and Jazz Band Ball, the date was March 28, 1944, and the place was a fairly unlikely one for such righteous jazz: Portland, Oregon. Four of the men on the record were Monte Ballou, guitar; Bill Pavia, clarinet; Bob Johnson, piano; and Axel Tyle, drums. The record, a private issue of which only 200 copies were pressed, is now a collectors' item. It was the first waxing by the nucleus of what is now one of the most exciting of the handful of bands keeping traditional jazz very much alive in fairly unlikely spots all over the country—the Castle Jazz Band.

None of us needs to be told how tough a job it is to form and maintain a non-commercial band, faithful to the spirit of the original traditions of jazz. The Castle outfit had an even harder-than-usual time of it; born in the war years, it was hard-pressed to gather suitable musicians for even occasional sessions, let alone think in terms of building a unified, consistent band. Undoubtedly the Castle band survives only because it was the idea of a man who wouldn't quit on his ambition. Monte Ballou, guitarist, authority on New Orleans jazz, and a noted collector (he's the owner of an Oliver Zulu Ball, on Gennett, among other things) knew what kind of music he wanted: he had no intention of stopping anywhere short of a band capable of "two-beat" rhythm, good solos, and—above all—an ensemble that rocks.

Anyone who has heard the often-rough, always-exciting Castle records knows that Ballou is getting close to what he wants.

Monte, with Pavia, Johnson and Tyle, had played at Portland night spots, most notably doing a weekly stint at The Castle in 1944, which is when they began to think of themselves as the Castle Jazz Band. It was mostly a matter of jam sessions in those war-dislocated days, and the playing was strictly jam—but always in the New Orleans vein.

After the Castle job, the boys scattered. It wasn't until early 1947 that they got together again. This time Ballou, Tyle and Pavia were joined by Bob Short, who plays slide and valve trombone, and cornet, but who is primarily a master of the tuba. Pianist Larry DuFresne and Don Kincha trumpet who Pavia calls a "re-incarnation of Bix"-were the next additions, and it was at about this time that Ballou made the significant switch from guitar to banjo. Their set-up was still far from perfect; the players held conflicting jobs, still could get together only for sessions. It wasn't until the release of Ory's Creole Trombone/ Georgia Camp Meeting (HF 6, 7), during the recording ban, that they came to the attention of any jazz fans other than a limited following in the Portland area.

On that recording George Bruns made his first appearance with the band. The coincidence is significant; Bruns is reminiscent of George Brunis in the power of his trombone style as well as in his name.

This past summer five of the group, including the present clarinetist, a spirited and driving jazzman named Bob Gilbert, gave Sunday afternoon concerts at Portland's leading amusement center—Jantzen Beach Park. Ballou called this his "Spasm Band," and they played pure Dixieland until the Fall floods prematurely ended the season. At present the band is playing weekly sessions to capacity crowds at Portland's Rathskeller Cafe. Without benefit of backing or promotion they have built up a strong following, and are doing more recording work, coming continually closer to achieving Ballou's constant ambition.

Kinch's Bix-like horn, DuFresne's increasingly barrelhouse piano, and the leader's rock-bottom rhythm and enthusiasm (Ballou is reputed to break more strings per session than any other banjo player in the business) are all serving to keep the fundamentals of jazz alive—and appreciated—two thousand-odd miles and thirty-odd years from New Orleans.

In the years that I have been collecting records, I have continually been confronted with conflicting arguments pertaining to the causes of record wear and the relative merits of various types of equipment, pickups, and needles in minimizing wear. To arrive at a conclusion with which there could be no argument and which, incidentally, would most benefit my own collection, I conducted a little research into the subject, with the following results:

Record wear is caused by the friction generated between the needle and the walls of the grooves in the record. Therefore, a stylus with a hard, highly polished surface is required to reduce this friction to a mini-

Electric, the pressure can sometimes be reduced still farther.

This has been accomplished in this new magnetic pickup (in contrast to the extremely heavy magnetic pickups associated with the early days of electrical reproduction) by making the mechanical parts extremely simple and tiny and then bringing the output-voltage up to the required level through the use of a one-tube pre-amplifier inserted between the pickup arm and the audio-amplifier. I know of one specific instance in which an acetate dub was played over a thousand times with this cartridge and showed no audible evidence of wear. Its frequency response is much wider than making it impossible to remedy the fault without ruining the fidelity of reproduction through the elimination of the higher frequencies. In the case of the G. E. cartridge, there is also no audible response to vertical movements of the stylus. This does a lot to eliminate any surface noise caused by dirt and imperfections in the grooves without any loss of fidelity.

In answer to those who object to the "permanent" type stylus because of replacement problems, it has been brought to my attention that on the newer models of the G. E. product the jewel can be replaced by your radio-phono service man without the necessity of purchasing a new cartridge or

mum. The diamond, since it is the hardest, takes the highest polish, and is the most resistant to chipping, is, naturally, the first choice, but the natural saphire takes the honors as the most popular since the high cost of a diamond takes it out of the reach of most collectors' pocketbooks.

Another point to consider is the resistance of the stylus and cartridge parts to mechanical movement; that is, the amount of pressure against the walls of the grooves that it takes to make the stylus vibrate. The acoustical, as well as the early electrical pickups, offered so much resistance that a pickup weight of several ounces was required to prevent the stylus from climbing the sides of the groove. This resistance to mechanical movement has, on the best of the crystal cartridges, been reduced to a point where barely an ounce of stylus pressure is necessary, and, in the case of the new variable reluctance (magnetic) cartridges now being produced by General that of the average crystal and shows a response beyond ten-thousand cycles per second; this greatly improves the fidelity of reproduction, which is then limited only by the quality of your amplifier and loud speaker.

The "built-in" stylus shows an appreciable advantage over the replaceable needle (whether it be a jewel, precious metal, or steel point) since the former eliminates most of the "needle talk" that is so noticeable if, with the standard needle, the amplifier volume is turned off. Much of this "chatter" is caused by the fact that the shaft of the needle resonates at the same frequency as the higher frequencies of the recording. Since, with the "built-in" point, on the G. E. cartridge at least, the sapphire is suspended on a tiny spring between the two poles of the magnet and has no shaft, this objection is eliminated. This resonating of the shaft is also responsible for much of the surface noise that you hear through your speaker, of sending it to the factory for renewal.

Some record wear is, of course, the result of archaic methods of record manufacture, such as the use of abrasives in the shellac. These abrasives were originally used to wear the points of the early steel needles to fit the grooves of the records, this process taking place during the first few turns so that the point was automatically "tailored" to the grooves for the balance of the record. Abrasives are still used in record manufacture, mainly to accommodate the few remaining die-hards who persist in playing their records with the out-moded single-play steel needles.

All of which brings us to the conclusion that the secret of eliminating record wear lies in finding a pickup with a minimum of mechanical resistance to stylus movement and possessing a "built-in" jewel stylus.

I hope that these findings will help to put collectors on the road to longer record wear.

A small, select group of about a hundred and fifty collectors gathered at our house a few weeks ago. Two of them got a strangle-hold on the double turntable in the den, another used the Meisner recorder, and still a fourth confiscated the kids' phonograph. With the domicile bulging at its seams, a wild-eyed bunch of neighbors forming a posse outside our door, the kids doing picket duty, and four different records playing at the same time, it was only natural that a friendly debate should ensue.

Somebody said it first. In all innocence, we believe, a quiet little gentleman said in a loud voice: "Maybe somebody here can tell me. What is Jazz?"

Of course the question led to various complications and still more various interpretations. It will be a strange day when a group of collectors can meet and agree not only on the meaning of Jazz, but on the worth of a particular disc.

We find this same situation not only in our own home, but in all of the jazz-conscious countries of the world. Many foreign correspondents write us: "Boy, are you in for a treat! After listening to our jazz you'll be crazy if you don't sell your Armstrongs and Olivers." Their records arrive, we drool in anticipation, and with trembling fingers place them gently on the turntable. Then we drink the bitter dregs of disappointment, as we find trouble in recommending even one to your attention.

On the other hand, the Latin Americans usually write: "Our jazz is terrible. Send us some Morton re-issues. You'll know how jazz-starved we are when you receive our records." We haven't sold our Armstrongs or Olivers, but we sure want more of that "terrible" music.

Through his tears and against his better judgment, Juan Grezzi of Uruguay was persuaded to send us Menendez Pasquet's Dixieland Orchestra doing Dixieland Ballad/La Bruia En La Escoba on Son d'Or 5074. If you can, get a copy. We say it's good!

With an ardent apology, as though he were taking pennies from a blind man, Ed Silvestri of Argentina hastily packed up (before we could change our minds) Clarinet Marmalade by Hector Lagna Fietta's Jazz Orch. on Od. 45985. It's a larger group, with different breaks, but it will cause you to sit on the edge of your seat waiting for Larry Shields' clarinet. At least, we felt that the O.D.J.B. might be playing it that way today. We recommend it.

learned the early history of the phonograph

My friend, this outfit sold for $200 back in 1910. You can have it today for one percent of the original cost—it's yours for just two bucks."

The Santa Monica, California, junk dealer was a persistent salesman and Wesley Perry, a local resident, shortly found himself poorer by two dollars and richer (?) by one Edison cabinet model cylinder phonograph.

That was back in 1936. Parting with two dollars involved a considerably more momentous decision in those latter depression days than it does now, though not so much deliberation as the original purchase of the machine must have called for in 1910. But the original purchaser undoubtedly received a tone arm with the set. Perry did not.

Feeling that he should have more than an outdated hunk of furniture in exchange for his sizable cash outlay, Perry set out on a search for the missing part. Systematically he scoured the second-hand stores and swap shops of Southern California. He encountered phonographs, gramophones and record players of every conceivable make and type—except a 1910 Edison cabinet model.

Finally, in desperation, he wrote the Edison Company, but to no avail. Tone arms of that vintage, or for that matter any other ancient parts, were no longer stocked and just weren't to be had.

This was a challenge Perry could not refuse. The search became almost an obsession. But after nearly a year of search, he was on the verge of giving up in despair, when a letter arrived from the Edison Company. Eagerly Perry tore it open and read the almost unbelievable news that a brand new tone arm of the type he was seeking had been discovered in an old warehouse. Needless to say, Perry lost no time in ordering it, and before long was listening to the wax cylinder offerings of the early nineteen hundreds on his own complete Edison.

That was the start of it. His search through countless junkeries had brought Wesley Perry into contact with hundreds of pieces of ancient playing apparatus, and he was beginning to become familiar with many of them. Prices were low in those days, and he soon began to accumulate a varied assortment of "old-timers." The cylinders fascinated him too, and he collected these avidly.

As time went on, Perry began to do research on his hobby. He acquired quite a library of books on the subject, which turned out to have been approached in many different ways by many authors. An interest in records in general also developed, and today he has a collection of about fourteen thousand, of all types. Operatic records were his specialty at first, but he became interested in jazz in 1940 and now has many fine items in that line as well.

Perry's collection of rare old machines now numbers about 25, the most famous of which is the 1895 National Gramophone, forerunner of the Victor Talking Machine. This is the model pictured in the famous "His Master's Voice" label. Perry rented the machine for a tidy sum to a motion picture studio, which used it in numerous scenes in the recent Bing Crosby film, The Emperor Waltz. This was the first disc commercial machine, marketed by Emile Berliner, its inventor, and his partner, Elridge R. Johnson. Berliner had previously experimented with disc machines for several years, producing a hand-cranked test outfit as early as 1887. According to Perry, Berliner is the real inventor or perfecter of the modern phonograph principle, for in addition to being responsible for the change from cylinders to discs, he was the first to develop an adequate microphone. The microphones of the Edison machines which preceded his were extremely crude.

Plridge R. Johnson was an excellent mechanic, and it was his idea to utilize a spring motor, operating on the clockworks principle, in connection with Berliner's disc unit. This was an important forward step, eliminating the necessity of rotating the turntable by hand cranking. In 1895 Johnson became Berliner's partner and the two patented their machine under the firm name of National Gramophone Company. The total output of their first year of operation was less than 25 machines, with a total gross volume of about five hundred dollars.

The following year the partners made another improvement by placing the spring, which had been on the outside of the box, inside, out of sight. Again the gross business ran to only five hundred dollars, and it remained about the same for several years. The company came close to folding up on more than one occasion.

In 1897 a French artist named Francis Barraud saw a dog listening to an Edison Bell machine, and was inspired to paint the renowned picture, "His Master's Voice." When he attempted to sell the painting to the Edison firm, however, he was flatly turned down. But Berliner and Johnson's European representative had the National Gramophone substituted for the Edison machine, and National purchased the trademark for one hundred dollars. Today it is probably the most famous patent label on earth.

Berliner and Johnson apparently had trouble in settling on brand names, for their various records over a period of several years bore the labels: Berliner, Elridge R. Johnson, Monarch, Monarch-Victor and Victor. The last came about 1901, when the firm reorganized as the Victor Talking Machine Company.

The new name apparently was a good luck charm, for business began to increase almost immediately. By 1905 the annual gross had swelled to 12½ million dollars. European sales were primarily responsible, for in America the phonograph was still popularly referred to as "the squeak box."

77 et it had been more than a quarter century since Thomas Edison invented the first practical sound reproducer. Back in 1877 he had placed the immortal verse about Mary and her little lamb on a cylinder. It was 1890, however, before Edison's machine was put into production. The first models were not sold for household usethat idea hadn't even been thought of. Street hawkers set up their outfits on busy thoroughfares, selling a "listen" for a penny or two per selection. The machine was strictly a novelty; no speaker horn had as yet been developed, and it was possible for several persons to listen at the same time only by means of a number of ear tubes.

Within a few years Edison was feeling the competition, not only of National, but of two other companies as well. Between 1895 and 1900 the Columbia Graphophone began to appear in America, while in France, Pathe Freres were pioneering the field. During their period of existence, Pathe recorded more famous artists than any other company. By 1901 Pathe was producing double-sided discs, something which none of their competitors achieved before 1908. These early Pathe records were released in three editions—81/3, 11 and 16-inch discs—for various levels of volume. The playing time of each was identical, but the groove modulations varied in size to produce louder or softer tone. In 1908 this practice was eliminated, and the principle of sound control by cabinet doors adopted.

The year 1908, according to Perry, also witnessed the birth of the first record changer. There are not many data available about this contraption, and it may never have got into production. The original model is now in the possession of a Hollywood studio. It is an extremely complicated but ingenious affair, and it does work! The principle is that of the ferris wheel, with twelve cylinders suspended so that each in turn slips into place and is played. Biggest disadvantage is that each cylinder has its own spring, and winding twelve springs that they are responsible for the use of the term "wax" in connection with the recording field. Many people have wondered how this expression came into use, since wax is not an ingredient of disc pressings. Cylinder recordings, however, were cut in soft wax, and the phrase "putting it on wax" has remained to this day.

Wesley Perry, collector of cylinders, records, and what plays 'em, has a hobby that is surely both unusual and of historical value. It is through the interest and effort of men like him that the story of recorded sound will be preserved.

The other day the publicity department of Apollo Records called and told me that Mahalia Jackson was in town, so I hopped the first thing rolling and got on over to the 65th Street apartment where she was staying with friends. Earlier, I had been trying to work out some way of interviewing Miss Jackson by letter—a series of questions and answers—but I was glad things worked out the way they did. It just isn't possible to get at the real personality of a person unless you can sit down with them and talk things out.

Well, I climbed up the three flights of stairs and rang the bell and Mahalia greeted me warmly. She looks a lot like her pictures, but they give no hint of her wonderful personality. Words like direct, sincere and friendly come to mind, and she put me at ease at once. Earlier she had told Apollo that she didn't feel there was much of a story in her life and at the time I had thought she might prove shy, but on the way over I had picked up an advance copy of the Decca re-issue of one of her earliest records—on Coral, their new low priced label. To break the ice I asked her if she had heard it.

"Heard it?" she said. "I didn't even know they were doing it. They never even told me about it. I don't want that record out. It was made fifteen years ago and it's not very good."

I played the record for her. As her voice came out of the machine she listened critically and I could see her shaking her head.

"You know," she said, "I never got but twenty-five dollars for making that record? And now I guess I won't get anything more when they sell it again. All they are doing is taking advantage of the success of my Apollo records. That sure doesn't seem to be fair."

After both sides had been played once she asked if I would mind playing it again. I ventured to say that I liked the record, that though her voice was slightly higher and not as well recorded there was certainly no mistaking who it was. I tried to pin her down to the year it was made, but she was not certain. Fifteen years would have made it around 1934, but she thought it might have been as late as 1936. Then I put the record away and we got down to business.

Knowing that some negroes look down on jazz, and that some who have gone from jazz into Church work have attempted to deny their past, I was a little hesitant about getting into the subject. But she assured me that she had no feelings against jazz, that it was a music and she liked every kind of music. Then she laughed. "Some people in the Church might not like my saying this, but it's the truth. As a matter of fact I'll tell you something. I learned to sing by listening to Bessie Smith records!"

I told her that I had said, in reviewing her records, that hers was the greatest untrained voice, with the possible exception of Bessie's, that I had ever heard.

"Bessie was great, really great. I listened to a lot of others, Ethel Waters for example, but it was always Bessie that meant the most to me."

We talked about how Ma Rainey had first heard Bessie singing in a church and had taken her into her tent show. I mentioned Thomas Dorsay, so many of whose songs she sings, and she knew of his background, that he had once been Ma Rainey's accompanist. I also pointed out that Bertha Idaho was now singing in the Church exclusively, after being one of the good blue singers of the late 'twenties.

Mahalia Jackson smiled. "When I first came to Chicago from New Orleans, when I was about sixteen, Earl Hines heard me sing and wanted me to appear with his band. He was at the Grand Terrace then."

"Mahalia," I asked, "with that kind of background why did you go into Church work instead of jazz?"

"To tell you that I'd have to start at the very beginning. As I told you, I was born in New Orleans, in 1912. My mother came from a very religious background. Her father was a preacher and all on that side of my family, they had all been Church people a long way back. But my father's family had a theatrical background and from them I got any musical talent I may have. Daddy had a brother and sister and they were both singers. They were in vaudeville. They traveled on the same circuit as Butterbeans and Susie and they knew Bessie well.

"Now, they wanted me to be a singer like they were. But my mother kept me away from them. She wouldn't let me see them if she could help it. She wanted me to be in the Church."

I asked her if she remembered much about jazz in those days when she was growing up in the Crescent City. She told me that her mother would never let her go where it was played. I asked her if she had ever snuck out and listened anyway; smilingly, she said that she hadn't. It was obvious that she had been very fond of her mother.

"I still heard some of it though," she went on. "I remember when Bessie Smith used to come to the Iberville Theatre I always went to hear her. Then a lot of times those people used to perform at the Church."

She told me that often the Church needed money and would get some negro performer with a "name" to give a benefit performance and that she heard a great deal of jazz in that way. I asked her for names.

"I remember Louis, of course, and later when I went North and he heard my voice he told me if ever I wanted to sing with his band I could. I remember King Oliver, too. Those are the two I remember most."

I mentioned Johnnny Dodds, Sam Morgan, Louis Dumaine, Bunk Johnson and a few others, but they were only names to her. It's a shame she had never heard Morgan; I would have liked to have gotten her reaction to his music, which was certainly close to the Church in feeling. Then I asked about Papa Celestin.

"Papa Celestin, sure I remember him. He was very well known in New Orleans. Sure, I heard him play."

Other names I mentioned had little meaning for Mahalia. Some of the singers—the blues singers in particular—she knew from records, but she always came back to the name of Bessie. It was obvious that she had done more than merely listen to her records and then sing. It seemed clear that Bessie had been a great idol of hers.

When she was sixteen, she had left New Orleans and had gone to live with an aunt in Chicago. I asked if the treatment of negroes in the South had caused her to leave and she said that it really hadn't, that she merely felt she could better herself and for this reason had come North. I asked if she still made personal appearances in the South. She said that she did, many of them. She mentioned that everyone always treated her fine, but that she would not like to live in the South. I let it drop at that.

Mahalia told me that she had not ever had formal musical training. She learned all that she knows by listening to other singers, mostly on record. When she got to Chicago she had wanted to become a classical singer, but there was no money for lessons and no one interested enough in her voice to provide the means. It was almost, she told me, as though she had two voices. Her outer voice, the one that she used most, was the lower register; the other voice, the one that she had hoped to develop, was at the upper end of her vocal range.

"I remember," she said, "that I saved all my money to buy records. I bought the records of Roland Hayes, and especially those of Grace Moore and Lawrence Tibert the same thought the same than I learned diction. bett. It was from them I learned diction, the correct way to breathe, and what little I know of technique."

I mentioned that perhaps she was lucky, that singing the way she did her voice would last forever; that had she gotten a teacher who did not know his business this ease might have been lost. Her voice has gotten deeper with the years, and anyone who hears it cannot help but feel its depth and richness. Sitting there I wondered what might have happened if she had found the proper teacher, how far she would really have gone.

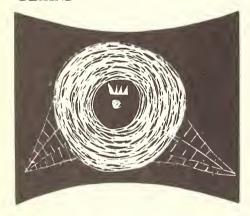

I asked if she ever had any regrets that she had not gone into professional singing instead of church work. She smiled at me

"No," she said, "I would always want to be in church work. I have had a tough time

CARL KENDZIORA

This is a new department of the Record Changer which is intended primarily for those collectors who is those collectors who like to delve back among the old jazz records and try to learn more about the obscure items for which no personnel and/or other facts are available.

We do not profess to be expert and do not expect to state in this column that John Doe is without question on the Toledo Stomper's Embassy issue of Red Brick Stomp. We intend, rather, to act as middle-man or clearing house for the collectors who have either questions on jazz records or facts and opinions on them. We will throw in any facts or opinions we have, too, and will relay via the column all questions sent to this department. The same applies to the answers and opinions on groups or records that we hope readers will be sending in.

We won't object to personal opinion, but would like you to state your sources for factual information, and to state when anything is merely your own opinion, no matter how well founded it may be.

To get this thing rolling, let us throw a few obscure items your way. Up to the publication of the New Hot Discography, the only listing given for the Red Norvo xylophone solos, Hole In the Wall/Knockin' On Wood (Br 6562) was that they are solos and were recorded April 8, 1933. The New HD lists Jimmy Dorsey (cl), Fulton McGrath (p), Dick McDonough (g), and Artie Bernstein (b). Since this item has been rumored to be a Benny Goodman item for a long while, I included it in my Goodman Discography (Record Changer—April-October 1948). No contradictory opinion was received, but this New HD listing would seem correct. Any opinions? would seem correct. Any opinions?

It seems fairly well established that BG is on the four sides cut sometime in November, 1933, by Steve Washington and his Orchestra. But who else is on these four Orchestra. But who else is on these four sides and on just what day in November were they recorded? Titles are: Sing a Little Low Down Tune (??)/We Were the Best of Friends (??) on Vo 2598 and Blue River (B14365)/Love Me (B14366) on Vo 2609. Note the two missing master weekers. numbers. Anyone know them?

Here's a real poser: Dixie Drag (1881) as by the Dixie Jazz Band on Je 5446 and Or 1396. The same master seems to have been used for the issue on Ba 6214 as by Mendello's Dance Orch. The copy of Ba 6214 I saw had (1881-2), while my Or 1396 is from the first take: (1881-1). This is obviously not a Goodman-Teagarden-Mc-Partland Whoopee Makers item but is good jazz. There are solos on piano, clarinet, cornet, and trombone. Clarinet sounds a bit like it could be Pee Wee but that's just a wild guess. Same goes for the cornet which is good and sounds a bit like Wild Bill Davison. Anyone able to help out on this

As a final item this month, let's try to straighten out the trumpeters on the Champion Mound City Blue Blowers series. There seem to have been five recording sessions by this group as follows:

Nov. 8, 1935 (date No. 1) Red Sails in the Sunset (60137)...Ch 40060 I'm Sittin' High on à Hilltop

in the past. I've sung for nickels and dimes, and I never really earned any money until my Apollo records started to sell. When I made those Decca records they promised me great things if I would make some blues records. I wouldn't, and they cut me off and took on Sister Rosetta Tharpe instead. Even if I had been willing to compromise a little they would have built me up, but I didn't want that. The important thing to me is want that. The important thing to me is that in the Church, the way I have chosen, I can reach the people. The money will take care of itself. So long as I can bring something to people I'm satisfied. The Church has been my whole life and I have been repaid far more than I've given."

I asked where she had sung, aside from l asked where she had sung, aside from churches. She mentioned that she had been asked to sing before the National Baptist Convention and how thrilled she had been. Another high point in her life had been singing in an Easter pageant at the Chicago Opera House on Easter Sunday of 1946. She had done much local radio work but had never appeared on a national hook up. Currently, she was appearing at various places in New York and had filled one of the larger uptown halls with some 3,500 people. Many were turned away at the door.

Apollo has already passed the million mark with her records, and once in a baseball park in Atlanta she had sung to 21,000 people.

When I got home I spent the evening playing over all the Mahalia Jackson sides and the more I play them the more convinced I am that they are everything I have ever said about them. Shortly after I had a letter from Bill Russell in which he mentioned my review of the records: "Even Me is a pretty amazing record, I think. I'm not so sure that I wouldn't go you one better and say Mahalia has a better voice than Bessie. Of course I've never heard M. in person, so it's difficult to compare her with Bessie, whom I heard several times.

I'll go along with that. I've never heard her in person, either, but I have talked with people who have and they all say the same thing, that in front of a large audience she is even more moving than on records. Ma-halia Jackson has a voice that is peculiar to itself. I can think of no other that is close, save Bessie, and I think that Mahalia, in her medium, is perhaps even greater than Bessie in hers. I can think of no higher praise and I have a feeling Mahalia Jackson would think so, too.

Claude Bolling and His Hot Seven

Riverside Blues Georgia Bo Bo Deepermouth Blues You Rascal You

Blues in Disquise Nobody Knows the Way I Feel This Morning

Someday, Jack, somebody is coming up with seven midgets from Luxembourg who learned how to play from a cylinder record by Buddy Bolden and His Boys, a hitherto unknown collector's item buried so far back of the Iron Curtain that it was actually found in front of it. Two centuries from that time an obscure student is going to unearth some old phonograph records in the attic of his great, great, great, great, grand-father—a character known around these parts as the Cat-and using them as research material produce a thesis for his Ph.D. Know what it's going to be called, Buster? Some observations on the amazing resurgence of the French style of hot jazz in surgence of the French style of hot jazz in the far away American city of New Orleans, including the astonishing ability of such performers as Louis Armstrong, Johnny Dodds, Jelly Roll Morton, Sidney Bechet, King Oliver and Kid Ory to completely absorb the traditional style of the early French masters!!!

All fooling aside, here's another entry from France, in the person of Claude Bolling and his Hot Seven. I'm a little poopedout with trying to keep abreast of such goings-on, and my back is killing me but as they used to say when I was a youngster—hang on to your fur caps, boys, here we go again.

These six sides, part of Circle Sound's youth movement, and les enfants terrible who produced them, have already received the once-over-lightly in a previous issue of this magazine, so I won't go into it much further. Some of what was said at that time I agree with, but I must confess that with much of it I don't. It's true that everyone in this band is a real musician, especially Maxime Saury, soprano sax, and that they play with real authority. In this respect they are far superior to Claude Luter's band, with the possible exception of Luter himself, but what comes out does not seem to me to have jelled sufficiently. When they are good, like the little girl with the curl, they are very, very good. But when they are bad, they are only so-so.

It was said, for example, that all of these sides were based on Oliver, Morton and the Hot Five, and that M. Bolling's piano had passed through Waller and Earl Hines to the final formative stamp of Jelly Roll

Morton. It is true that the write-up did mention certain mid-thirty Ellington nu-ances, but only as temporary. I must add that the boys must have listened to a few other people, and not always to their advantage. I also suspect that Bolling has picked up a thing here and there from Teddy Wilson; and I hear very little Morton.

Before making Blues in Disguise, for example, I'm sure the boys listened to all the Mezzrow-Bechet King Jazz sides. Even taking into consideration that the Blues is a Mezzrow composition, much of the same influences are noticeable, to a lesser degree, on the other side—that fine old Nobody Knows the Way I Feel This Morning. And You Rascal, You is very similar to the banal big-band Armstrong treatment of the same title. Georgia Bo Bo, though it has some very interesting moments, deteriorates towards the end into a bridge (which resembles nothing so much as the awful claptrap that the band plays to bring on each new contestant at the Apollo Theatre's new contestant at the Apollo Theatre's Amateur Night in Harlem). This leads into one of those endings more befitting a stage jam session led by you-know-who, where everybody—I mean everybody—gets into the act and if you get lost, son, just chord and blow like hell.

But if the boys are guilty of some awful clichés, some undigested odds and ends, and a bit of overconfidence, they can also do some very nice things. Their Deepermouth Blues is a well over B-plus performance, and in the haunting Oliver Riverside Blues it seems to me they really ring the gong. Without copying the Oliver recording, yet always keeping within the feeling of it, they have produced something of real beauty and tenderness, and it has a haunting quality that has stayed with me for days.

I'll admit these lads can play like hell. But they leave me a little cold; there is little of the excitement of the Luters, that wonderful feeling of playing way over your head because you are in love with what you are doing. With the exception of bits here and there, and that one Oliver side, it comes from the head instead of the heart. But that one exception, the Riverside Blues, is worth twice the price of the album. (Circle S-18) (B.M.)

The Paramount Re-Issues

Now that the Paramount re-issue program is finally under way I'd like to say a few words in general about the whole plan. Here certainly is a break for collectors, for at least twelve records a year will be issued, so that in theory eventually all that is worth-while in the old Paramount catalogue will again be available. But the sad point here is that only those numbers for which there is a lasting demand will be kept in stock; the others will be gone once present pressings are exhausted.

It's certainly good to see that familiar old black and silver label again, and from the look of things the program is off to a good start. The records are sponsored by the original Paramount people and in many instances are made from original masters rather than dubbed ones. I can see the commercial appeal of listing the featured performer, whether it is his band or not, but it might lead to difficulties. For example:

Louis Armstrong and Fletcher Henderson/Sammy Stewart

Prince of Wails Copenhagen

Historically the Prince of Wails side has great interest, for it presents Louis in that period after he left Oliver and before he really came into his own with the Hot Five and Seven records. This side was made somewhere in the 1924-25 period; just when, as far as I can tell, is not known. By that as I a as I can tell, is not known. By that time Louis had made some records with the Clarence Williams Blue Five, and some accompaniments, but I doubt if there were any Hot Fives before this recording. One wishes that there were more of Louis on this side; he was on the date, all right, but if it's Armstrong that I hear he certainly plays more like Oliver than on any later sides. As for the rest of the band, it was one of the first to make any real nationwide success and was, at this time, playing at New York's Roseland Ballroom. As if you didn't already know it, it was a damned good band!

All I know about Sammy Stewart is that he was a Chicago violinist and played in and around the Middle West. Charles Edward Smith, I hear, had a piece on Sammy and the band in one of the Esquire series, but I have not had a chance to get to it at the public library. It must have been a good band, for this record will stand up against any early big-band music I've heard. There is nice drive here and a good banjo at the end, also a baritone or bass sax played in a manner that makes it sound a lot like a tuba. As for the identity of the horn player, your guess is as good or better than mine. The tune is one of those old goodies, and both of these sides are of real historical significance. (Paramount 14003) (B.M.)

Johnny Dodds with Richard M. Jones Jazz Wizards

It's a Low Down Thing Hot and Ready

Johnny Dodds supposedly made two sessions with this group, which featured Richard M. Jones on piano, Honore Dutray on trombone, Baby Dodds on drums, and a trumpet player I have never heard of: Elisha Herbert. Of the two sides I much prefer Hot and Ready, though the other side is certainly not without interest. On both sides I seem to detect a saxophone not listed in any of the discographies.

But the point here is that from the solo on It's a Low Down Thing I don't see how anyone could be certain it is Dodds. In the higher register, it comes through so distorted and wavery, evidently because of faulty recording, that it might be anyone. On the Hot and Ready side, which is mainly in the lower register, the clarinet comes through clearly enough. It sounds like Dodds, though far from the best Dodds, but even this is perhaps not enough. By now it seems pretty clear that on obscure items like this the only safe identification is by someone on the date. Not that it matters a lot, for any way you look at it this is a good way to start out a re-issue series. It's not the best record I ever heard, and it has some annoying little mannerisms, but allin-all it's something we would use a lot more of. In one place on the H & R side, by the way, there is a section that sounds a lot like one of Louie Hot 5 or 7 sides, but though it sounds familiar I didn't have the time to track it down. (Paramount 14001) (B.M.)

Tommy Ladnier and Edmonia Henderson Lazy Daddy Blues Jelly Roll Blues

The whole thing here is Tommy Ladnier's wonderful horn, but it seems to me that there must have been an easier way to get it than backing up Edmonia Henderson singing the blues. Offhand I can think of Ma Rainey or Ida Cox. I don't mean by this that Edmonia Henderson is awful, but rather that there are so many people much better that it seems a shame to put up with second-best when we could have had first as easily. Ladnier plays beautifully here, and of the two sides I found Jelly Roll Blues the easier to take. Edmonia Henderson, for my money at least, is more of a popular singer than a blues singer, but, as I say, it's mighty good Ladnier. (Paramount 14002) (B.M.)

McGhee-Navarro Boptet

Double Talk (Pts. 1 & 2)

The old cutting session as such is a thing of the past, but in its place comes a little thing called a chase, partly derived from the famous Dexter Gordon-Wardell Gray Dial record; it involves much the same thing, actually, as the jazz battle idea, but there's a curious calm, old-school-tie diffidence about the way it's done these days. Nobody sashays up to the bandstand muttering: "Man, I'm gonna blow this guy off the stand," but the end result is the same, even if it's done with a gesture saying: "Well, top that, old chap." Cool jazz, this is. At least 40 half-hipped devotees will chuckle appreciatively at your every fluff, anyway, even if your face is stone-cold, your feet tap not a lick, and your horn is aimed demurely at the floorboards. So a chase may include four or five men laconically linking four-bar phrases together, with a detachment wonderful to see, even though in their cool way they are carving each other to ribbons. And much can be said in four bars, enough to dishearten the hardiest egomaniac

What I haven't exactly been leading up to is the fact that, while it is fairly common to see two or more tenors chasing each other, a couple of trumpet players so disposed are a genuine rarity. We have such right here. Fats Navarro and Howard McGhee are two of the best, and they are in top form on this date, which also features the exceptionally tasty alto of Ernie Henry (buried and practically unheard in Dizzy's band) and the oddity of Milt Jackson's being on piano. The best word to describe this record is "expert." McGhee and Navarro embroider each other's efforts with infinite skill, and to hear so much horn played on one disc, with so few lapses of technique or taste, is a real pleasure. Fats' tone is appropriately the fatter, but their styles are surprisingly similar, sometimes fusing into one, with Henry's alto solo an excellent contrast in sound and conception.

Errol Garner

Fantasy on Frankie and Johnny Play Piano Play Blue Lou (Pts. I & 2)

When a man reaches the delightful position wherein he pleases almost everyone, he is a man to be reckoned with, or with whom to reckon, and Errol is up there. There are precious few people who can't muster up a couple of valid reasons for liking him; personally, I can come up with quite a number. For one thing, I can't think of another guy. off hand, who is so completely the master of his own style. I'm not saying he's the master of the piano, or anything like that, but he has a style, and within it he is king. The force in his playing is unbelievable. He can play a dreamy ballad at a slow tempo, and before it's over it sounds like the most inspired, suspenseful little jump tune in the world—not because he speeds up, but because he builds up a rhythmic tension, in his clean, scintillating way, that swings as much as any stomp. The word is ridiculous, but there's something wholesome about Garner, the same as there was about Fats Waller. The cocky, persistent way he lays off the beat makes the occasional spots when he catches up to it wonderfully satisfying, and the lustrous sound he gets out of a piano is like the olive in a martini. I seem to be eulogizing, but there isn't a damn thing I'll take back.

Only one side of Blue Lou is really worth while, and it's all Garner—Side Two, that

Only one side of Blue Lou is really worth while, and it's all Garner—Side Two, that is. There are four other men on the record, including Wardell Gray, but Wardell isn't in his best form here, and if he were he'd still have to take a back seat. He has all of Side One, does a pretty good job too, but it's when you turn it over that something terrific happens. This is the best record Garner has made! Three minutes of pure pleasure, four choruses of the most lilting, spontaneous piano I've ever heard. (Modern 20-640)

Frankie and Johnny is almost as good. It's a bit more premeditated than Blue Lou (which was recorded at a concert on the coast, apparently), with a crisp production intro leading into a lusty minor version of the old ballad, played with that patented swing. This is probably the way it was always meant to be done, too. While I'm on the subject, Play Piano Play is also good, the most familiar in feeling of the three sides, being a modern, simple riff developed to its nth degree.

Groovin' High (Pts. 1 & 2)

This is another Modern record, seemingly made at a concert (applause), and while there isn't anything on it as good as the Blue Lou, it comes off very well. In different company, Howard McGhee has been much more on the bop side than he is here; he plays with quite a bit of fire and good ideas, sounding, for some reason, nearer 1938 than '48. The influence may be Gray's—he is known as a bop tenor man, but I have rarely heard him get in the same groove as, say, Lucky Thompson. Wardell has plenty of drive, with a nice light atack—he can blow, as they say in the trade—but he isn't too concerned with the intricacies, harmonic or otherwise, in what's known as bop. He just likes to blow, which he does here with considerable effect. So does alto-man Sonny Kriss, who has an exciting Parkerish style, a good bit more roughhouse than the Bird, and a fine beat. The excellent rhythm section rates a curtsy, too; they don't swing so much in the beginning, but halfway through Gray's sole overything begins to move, and it keeps moving to the end.

Picture, if you will, your harassed correspondent glowering over a work-table piled high with shimmering blurbs for the most momentous development in phonographic history. The adjacent floorspace is littered with unprintable invective torn from the steaming, outraged typewriter. The first sane glitter of cogitation reveals in a trice that a war correspondent is at best a crass opportunist.

Let 'em have their damned war, and I shall be the last to be concerned; especially since both sides are selling the ammunition, the while maintaining an acceptable currency of accepted usefulness. Didn't they both, Victor and Columbia, set up shop with an identical line of goods—yes, their very first discs were seven inches in diameter! I disavow any interest whatsoever in this present madness and advise my readers to do the same.

And so this is still the perfect day and my beautiful nature is rescued. The sun shines bright, the air is crisp and clean and the last of the Christmas cigars is succulent in taste and aroma. To work!

The no longer over-familiar overture to Ambroise Thomas' Raymond is available in a capitally performed and recorded edition by the City of Birmingham Orchestra, George Weldon conducting (Columbia 72374-D). Another overture infrequently programmed these days is Beethoven's Egmont, with Dr. Koussevitzky's Bostonians in fine fettle. Here is an item long cherished in the ancient Mengelberg waxing. The Victor engineers might have done better with microphone placements in the present case (12-0288) and, too, someone in the processing plant slipped up in striking through the center-hole, with the result that the pressing of which my copy is a part suffers a certain "wow" on sustained passages. Misfortune has dogged many Boston Symphony recordings during the past few years, and I note that the otherwise superb Prokofieff and Mendelssohn symphonies are fraught with excessive surface hiss. No excuse for this sort of thing these days. . . . Say, do you want to hear something extra-special in the way of sheer, beautiful sonority? Then try Columbia's latest issue of the Pagliacci Prologue. It is a repressing from a European original and while the baritone, Paolo Silveri, sings it in a Silvio-sized voice (why not???) the entire production smacks of operatic knowhow such as we very seldom get from our native assembly lines.

On a previous occasion this department stepped out of its assigned territory to set down words in praise of a "popular" vocalist, Miss Jo Stafford—since which time I have had further frequent exposure to the lady's wiles. With precious few exceptions Miss Stafford's repertoire consists of the very sorriest trash, yet the dignity with which she invests her utterance commands respect and admiration. Up to a certain point in her range, the tone is purely limpid; and her enunciation gives cards and spades to almost everyone else in whatever musical station. There are some things which no microphone can fake and one of them is the literacy that has made Jo Stafford the supreme artist in her province.

Charles O'Connell's Victor Book of the Symphony has been revised and reissued by Simon & Schuster under a slightly different title: The Victor Book of Symphonies. Whereas, the original structure embraced, besides symphonies, certain other works involving orchestra such as tone-poems, concerti, occasional pieces and such, the new volume confines itself to the subject implied by the title. Another volume is in work which will treat in full measure upon such eminent items outside the actual symphony repertoire as are of interest. Mr. O'Connell has here done his usual workman-like and interesting job here.

The clientele of Random House has the opportunity to weep softly into its soufflé through many readings of Sigmund Spaeth's endearing History of Popular Music in America. The good Doctor Spaeth has never been anything less than a magnificent nostalgist and here we have what probably is his magnum opus. You will look, and not in vain, for omissions; you will hum, whistle or/and sing as you browse among these 729 pages—and you will live happily ever after.

Dr. Spaeth's books cost five dollars, as does The Saint Nicholas Anthology, another Random House publication without which the fireside of your memory must be at least partially fallow. This whopping, big book, compiled by historian Henry Steele Commager and his family, puts between covers the best of text and pictures from America's best-ever children's magazine (b. 1873—d. 1939). To coin a cliché, here is a treasure trove for children of all ages, from nine to ninety. A very special gift for any special occasion.

leans clarinetists and such link figures as Eddie Barefield show how the reed style shifted from clarinet to alto or tenor saxophone during the 'Twenties. Barefield's feeling for phrasing contrasts and his fluid quality are to be heard consistently in Lester Young's style.

But Lester draws equally from sources of a much different nature—Debussyian harmony, light intonation and the spiritual qualities which are attached to the white jazz tradition of Bix Beiderbecke and Bud Freeman, both of whom Young listened to during his early period. Beiderbecke's search for the springs of hidden beauty, hypersensitivity and Bohemianism are reflected in Lester's music. From Bud Freeman, a healthier exponent of Chicago jazz, Young draws clean technique, lightness of tone and a sense of chromatics. Occasionally Freeman's work suggests the flights of exuberance that we find so frequently with Lester.

It is this synthesis of opposing attitudes and ideologies—the profound tradition of the blues combined with the infusions of European harmony and white romanticism—that gives Lester Young's music its special appeal. The various materials are combined in a style which has no eclectic qualities, but is fused, integrated, and intensely personal.

Young's influence was most effective during his Basie period. It was effective less on those of his own generation than on the young musicians learning their instruments and developing a style. Among those of his own generation the most important reedmen followers were Bud Johnson, Franz Jackson, Scoops Carey, Little Sax Crowder, all of whom turned up at various times with Earl Hines' band.

If Lester gained only occasional disciples among those of his own generation, his appeal to those of the next was transcendant. From the date of his very first record release with Basie, young musicians in all parts of the country began listening to jazz with a new attitude. Basie records were sedulously collected, the Young solos replayed, hummed, whistled, imitated. Appearances of the Basie band were de rigeur functions for the growing number of fans who sat at his feet on such occasions, "digging" every phrase played by the master.

"But when Pres appeared we all started listening to him alone. Pres had an entirely new sound, one that we seemed to be waiting for. Pres was the first to tell a story on the horn."

Of course, Coleman Hawkins and other saxophonists of the Hawkins school had "told a story," and an important one, on their horns. Dexter Gordon is saying in clear language that the art of the older school, the jazz classicists if we like, no longer held valid for the insurgents of his generation. They were in revolt against the orthodoxy of the Armstrong-Hawkins school of jazz, with its powerful vibrato, emphatic periods, lusty intonation, rigid harmonies and severe solo architecture.

What they admired in Lester Young was his lighter and purer tone, his broader harmonic concepts, his greater extension of the solo line—with the resultant freedom from its bar divisions—his dreamier and more lyrical style. And of course, like all who appreciate great jazz of any kind, they recognized his transcendant qualities: his melodic gift, inventiveness and, above all, his tremendous swing.

Pres became a cult in the late 'Thirties and its camp followers numbered dozens of musicians who were to take part in the changes of the next decade: Gillespie, Charlie Parker, Buddy Powell, Thelonious Monk, Gordon, Gray, Getz, Eager, Stitt, Roach, Clarke, Miles Davis, Leo Parker, J. J. Johnson, Chaloff, Christian, Benny Harris, Navarro. Practically every important new musician of the 'Forties learned from Lester Young.

THE RECORD CHANGER

125 La Salle Street New York 27, N. Y.

This compilation is an attempt to list every known, verified recording of one of the most frequently waxed of all jazz standards. Collector Joe Madison notes here nearly three hundred versions, in many styles and from many countries.

But even this mammoth listing does not claim to be absolutely complete. Madison informs us that "some 100 Tiger Rag items have not been listed because of my inability to verify the information." Readers knowing of additions or corrections for the discography may contact Joe Madison at 2825 34th Avenue, San Francisco 16, California.

in the compilation:

1. When the same item (identical title, identical band name) appears on more than one label, in the same country, only one label is listed.

2. Identical recordings issued under different titles, or under more than one band name, are listed separately.

3. When Tiger Rag has been issued under another name (Hot and Bothered, Der Schwartzer Panther, etc.), this other title is noted in parentheses.

4. No private labels or air-shots unavailable to the general public are listed. However, such borderline cases as V-discs are

5. The country listed is always that of the record label, not necessarily that of the band

If all shippers were made responsible for the safety of the parcels that they send, maybe they would soon learn to pack the records correctly, and send the parcel by the best means—mail or Railway Express. Another problem that should be stand-

Another problem that should be standardized is who is to pay the postage. I, personally, think that the buyer should always pay the postage unless other arrangements are made at time of sale or trade. This would indicate to each bidder, or buyer, that the price of the record bid on does not include postage paid.

As to broken records received—the rule that the shipper is always responsible would cover such transactions as equal trades of records, outright buying of records at a set price or bidding on records and winning them at the bidder's price. Each shipper should be responsible for his own records being sent safely.

Sincerely yours, G. West Cochrane, 1200 Main Street, Upland, Pa.

By SIDNEY FINKELSTEIN

BILL GRAUER, JR .: "The book on jazz has finally been written! Dozens of books in the past decade have purported to explain jazz. But most have been written by men of too little knowledge. Sidney Finkelstein has succeeded where others have failed. He has replaced hero worship and dogma by knowledge and keen analysis. This book should be read by every student of jazz music. It should be made required reading in every college course on modern music. A splendid book by a man whose appreciation of Bix and Jelly Roll is intensified by an equal respect for the Hindemiths and Mozarts.'

ROSS RUSSELL: "An event. A landmark in jazz criticism, a pithy and provocative book. Properly evaluates jazz as a part of the whole scheme of world music. Demolishes the ancient dualism which set 'classical' against 'popular' music. Cuts through the hysterical overstatement of the jazzophiles and the condescension of the musical snobs. It throws daylight into the shafts of the mine of jazz history which have been worked with enthusiastic confusion for the past 15 years."

The authentic story of America's own music—from New Orleans to bebop. With a selective list of 300 great jazz records now available. 27 drawings by JULES HALFANT. Indexed, $3.00.

instruments: the drums, tuba, bass, guitar, clarinet, horns, the earlier material became transformed, and the end product was more richly orchestral, instrumentally speaking, than anything previously encountered.

In the absence of conclusive research, the exact date at which these processes occurred is difficult to establish. My own suspicion is that the process was progressive, rather than abrupt, and that it commenced to take place at about the mid-point of the last century, around 1850.

The earliest published rag that I have succeeded in locating up until now by my necessarily limited research is a number entitled New Coon In Town, composed by someone named Gunnar, and published by S. Brainard's Sons, of New York and Chicago. The number was brought forth in 1884, by all accounts, a year before Jelly was born. What particularly caught my fancy was the fact that Gunnar chose to describe this brain-child, in a burst of confidence, as a "Banjo Imitation." This is the earliest published rag that I have found to date, although certainly other, earlier numbers are bound to turn up. What is important is that the composition is sufficiently well advanced to have been included in an album of other Ragtime numbers selected as representative of the period.

It is interesting to contrast this earlier composition with a later one: Maple Leaf Rag, by Scott Joplin, popularly known as the King of Ragtime Writers. An especially fine specimen of ragtime music, this was published in 1899, at a time when Jelly was only about 14 years old, about two years before Morton is reported to have made his first professional appearances as a substitute for older, more experienced men.

Without laboring the point unduly, what should be observed, by way of conclusion, is that Maple Leaf, quite apart from the precedence of dates, is noteworthy for the fact that the notational devices which it employs incorporate all of the essential musical elements that appear in Jelly Roll's compositions of a much later period. This will be plain if we examine any of his better known numbers, such as King Porter Stomp, first published by Melrose Bros. Music Corp., in 1925. As even the briefest study will confirm, the notated page, like its counterpart, the photograph, speaks more volubly than any words.

Thelonious Monk Trio—Quartet
Ruby My Dear Evidence

Ruby My Dear was written years ago, for Ruby, I guess, who is singularly honored by the gesture. It's a beautiful tone-poem, played with great feeling and color by the splendid trio of Monk, Gene Ramey and Art Blakey. Oddly enough, I can envision this played by one of the Alec Wilder groups, or even a larger lushly instrumented orchestra, although these guys do quite well enough for me.

Evidence, with Milt Jackson, John Simmons and Shadow Wilson, is a cockeyed, delightful abstraction of Just You, Just Me, with an irresistible beat and one of Monk's most rollicking solos. More happens on this side—musical free verse or something—with a lot of widely spaced, apparently divergent notes, a result of Monk's habit of thinking of things as a whole, instead of a bar here and a bridge there. A seemingly lost chord may hang in limbo for 12 bars, then suddenly fall into place, Chinese-lock style, I think it's the nuts. (Blue Note 549) (P.B.)

In answer to a couple of sneeringly posed questions, I'd like to state that most of the stuff I review is approved, sometimes with fervor, because I haven't the space, time or inclination to write about records I don't like. Life is too short. (P.B.)

5302 reputed to be very good bop. Stardust, by the Jack Lowens Quartet, on Olympia 7025, should interest the tune collectors. Magic, which is 98% non-jazz, has pianist Henry Segers and other soloists turning out medleys of Gershwin, Kern, Berlin and Cole Porter.

The three outstanding Dixieland bands of Canada are Delta Jazz Band, Ken Dean's Hot Seven and The Queen City Jazz Band. Local Canadian collectors, unable to get the boys on Victor wax, made some excellent private transcriptions which are for sale commercially at a reasonable price.

Delta Jazz Band has six sides, such standards as Jazz Me Blues, Dippermouth, That's a Plenty, Alexander's Ragtime Band, Pallet on the Floor and Jackass Blues. The latter wo are especially recommended.

Queen City does Muskrat Ramble, Ballin'
the Jack, Tin Roof Blues, and Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out, with the last two sides the best.

Latest news from Germany is that Odeon is shortly to re-issue C. Dickerson's Savoyagers Stomp with Louie and Earl Hines, as well as some rarities of Condon, Pettis and Henderson.

G (Good): A moderate amount of surface noise; background may be somewhat irregular and crackling; some foreign noises, and a little distortion; on the whole, reasonably satisfactory listening without undue distraction of attention. Foreign noises definitely less prominent than the music.

F (Fair): Foreign noises, taken together, are about as prominent as the music, and there is considerable distraction of attention, and listening requires some effort and concentration; nevertheless, under these conditions, listening should be fairly satisfactory.

NEW YORK

Two of the greats of New Orleans jazz have pessed away. George Baquet, one of the earliest New Orleans greats and Irving Fazola, the big jovial clarinetist who sparked so many of the great Bob Crosby records. These were men who were devoted to the music they loved. They were beloved for their playing by every jazz lover. They will never be forgotten.

Muggsy left New York to open in Chicago. His last appearance here was at the Central Plaza and featured Mugs and Maxie Kaminsky fronting two bands. It developed into an old fashioned cutting contest with each band holding the stand for an hour at a time. There weren't five minutes elapsed when one or the other group wasn't playing. What a ball. Featured in the bands were uch stalwarts as J. C. Higginbotham, Sol Yaged, Charlie Traeger (playing in both bands while his pretty new bride sat alone in a corner), Freddy Moore, Art Trappier, Willie "The Lion" Smith, Joe Sullivan and other great cats. Jimmy McPartland was scheduled to show up but bad weather forced his plane to be delayed.

BOSTON-Bob Parent

Edmond Hall and his All Stars opened at the Savoy Cafe early this month. This group should furnish some great jazz what with a front line of Hall, clarinet; Frankie Newton, trumpet; and Vic Dickenson, trombone backed by a rhythm section composed of Ken Kersey, piano; John Field, bass; and Jimmy Crawford, drums. Intermission group still undecided at press time.

Bobby Hackett will lead a 7 pc combo against Skip Towne's Band at the Purple Key Ball at Williams College on May 13th. This is another "Danceable Jazz" date booked by the Boston MCA office.

CHICAGO-Walter Wager

Encouraged by bigger audiences and balmy Spring weather, the lads were beating it out all over Chicago last month. Probably the best show in this Windy City was being offered at the rapidly zooming Hi-Note, a cozy pad on North Clark Street that followed the gone groening of Anita O'Day with the persuasive purring of Lee Wiley and replaced Jimmy Mac-Partland's Dixie foursome with Don Lundahl's strong young Bop-Tet. Anita was going great guns, and it seems to be a smart management to have lined up another terrific thrush like Miss Wiley. The Lundahl gang has been bopping well around the South Side, and this booking may give these experienced and talented citizens the attention which they merit.

Max Miller took his very special mood music from the Hi-Nite down into the Blue Note behind Mel Torme for two weeks, following on the heels of a fat fortnight of the Duke of Ellington there. Then came three weeks of stimulating Jazz at the Philharmonic stuff, offering a fine combo and the torrid tonsils of scatting, jumping, bopping Ella Fitzgerald until

Muggsy Spanier finally got his molars mended and went back on active combat duty at the slick Jazz Ltd., a pub which always manages to serve fine Dixieland music and a most agreeable atmosphere. My bookie reports that the pleasant Reinhart folks who operate that suave saloon have a great disk in Maryland My Maryland, one of the sides Sidney Bechet cut for their imminent album. They are pressing just 1,000 sets, and may sell MMM as a single too.

Miff Mole, Baby Dodds, Darnell Howard and the potent piano of George Zack are almost too good to be true at the Beehive, and one wondrous Sunday afternoon Johnny Schenck brought down Danny Alvin's facile five from Jim Isbell's Bryn Mawyr hutch for a barrel of delightful Dixie. Jimmy James was blowing a lot of trombone, while Master Miff was his usual mellow self. Little Brother Montgomery, currently manipulating the keyboard at Clark Street Diamond Lounge, put out a quantity of adroit piano. These Sunday sets on the South Side are frequently worth catching, despite the fact that the management tries to raise the booze prices for each. There's also a $1.25 clip at the door.

Lee Collins toots his hard hitting horn among the strange mixture of folk at the Victory Club, and the Loop flicker parlors seem to be getting better jazz with their cinematic offerings. A wise tout would watch the Regal Theater and other spots in the Negro area, as fhat is where a lot of music sounds.

Things are not exactly quiet, but after all Dad, it's still Chicago.

LOS ANGELES-Jack Lewerke

Emanating from station KLAC - Television is one of the best (if not the best) jazz programs in the country. A half-hour devoted exclusively to the jazz band of the week and mceed by the guest leader. Kid Ory, Red Nichols, Pete Daily, and their respective groups were the first three televized. The program has had a tremendous response and it is hoped that the station will make it a regular feature.

Bud Scott, who has been quite ill for some time, dropped in to see his favorite trombonist, Kid Ory, one night last month and was persuaded by the crowd to sing a couple of tunes. Bud, who is still very weak, was forced to sing while sitting in his booth, but the wonderful hand he received at the close of his numbers was a tonic.

When Ory was informed that he had placed second in the all-time greats polls for trombone, that was conducted by George Hoefer in Down Beat, he asked who was first. On being told "Bill Harris", he looked blank for a moment, then his face lit up as he said, "Ah, I remember now, he played with Fletcher Henderson didn't he?"

Club 47 on Ventura Blvd. is the musicians hangout for the San Fernando Valley. Owned by Doc Rondo and Nappy LaMarr from the old Bob Crosby band, it features Zutty Singleton as the house musician. The fabulous Fire House Five (Plus Two) dropped in the other day, with red shirts and fireman hats, and brought down the house with such originals as Fireman's Lament and Eagle Stomp (Under the Double Eagle).

Walter Gross who just arived in California for a Television show, says that there is a misconception as to what be-bop really is. For instance Charlie Ventura's Ork, Flip Phillips, and Ella Fitzgerald are not bop artists.... Gross was not able to classify exactly what they were, except that they play good jazz... How complicated can you get?

SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA-Dick Oxtot

Hotel goers were in for a new type of fare as of March 27, when Jack Sheedy led a sixpiece dixie combo into the Persian Room of the Sir Francis Drake. The band consists of Jack Minger, trumpet; Jack Pearl, clarinet; Sheedy, trombone; Bill Erickson, piano; Bill Dart, drums; Pat Patton, bass; and Paul Miller, guitar. This deal takes place Sundays only, but in landing even a one-night-a-week job in the swank hub, the fast-talking Sheedy accomplished a heretofore impossible feat.

Additional interest in jazz is being fostered these days via the Sunday afternoon radio program Record Collector's Review, broadcast from 2:30 to 3:30 over station KSVM, San Mateo. New Orleans jazz is the main course and to increase interest announcer Vince Cosgrave is running a series of polls by the listeners. Results of the first poll found Ace In The Hole, by Bunk Johnson (a very limited edition); Eh La Bas, by the Original Creole Stompers; and Doctor Jazz, by Jelly Roll Morton's Red Hot Peppers, running one, two, three as the most requested tunes. The most recent poll named an all-star jazz aggregation, consisting entirely of old-timers, to-wit: Louis Armstrong, Johnny Dodds, Kid Ory, Jelly Roll Morton, Bud Scott, Ed Garland and Baby Dodds. Out in front of the vocalists were Armstrong and Bessie Smith.

Albert Nicholas' option was again taken up by the management of the Arabian Nights, and Nick is still around blowing fine New Orleans clarinet.

PORTLAND, OREGON-Harry Fosbury

The great Castle Jazz Band has moved from the Rathskeller Cafe to The Sportsman Club, a swanky joint, and is currently packing them in. The terrific sale of their first releases on the CASTLE label has really encouraged the group to work hard and they are getting better and better after every session. The book is being rapidly expanded with half a dozen of the real old standards being added weekly. Favorites though, locally, are still The Saints, Wise Guy (Monte Ballou sings it), Darktown Strutters Ball, Sister Kate, and Tiger Rag. Many of the boys from the Bay area in California are making the trek up to see this gang. It's a happy music.

lemME take this chorus

Perhaps it's just our overworked brains imagining things again but it seems to us that there is suddenly a great deal more Dixieland Jazz (New Orleans, Chicago, etc.) being heard and seen these days. In Portland the Castle Jazz Band is starting a great new, era in West Coast jazz with some knocked out records; plans are afoot for another monster Dixieland jubilee in Los Angeles; jazz clubs are springing up all over the country at most of the universities, and schools, with courses in jazz becoming more usual than not. New York sessions are well attended; many more so-called bootleg record re-issuers are thriving; clubs are putting out private releases; young bands are springing up as the Bob Kuh group in New York and the Dixieland Rhythm Kings in Dayton, and some great cats in Dallas, and New Orleans; the whole country roared when Louis, Tea, and Venuti romped through a great Bing Crosby airing; the French, and English cats turning out new bands and good records by the score; the Australians keeping ahead of the pack with half a dozen group; Dixieland concerts in Albany, Schenectady, Boston, and dozens of other East Coast areas sold out; live jazz shows on practically every television station in the country; Louis on the cover of Time magazine; the Wilber crew in Boston really going strong. These and countless other signs seem to be pointing to a Dixieland jazz boom. It's been on the way for some time and this may only be premature rumblings before the storm; but we firmly believe that the storm will come and these signs warm our old hearts.

The only blackness on the horizon is the apparent apathy of the major record companies to reissue many of the great jazz performances in their old catalogs. We can't say that we blame those who are now taking it upon themselves to reissue this great music without the consent of the big fellows. We regret that the big three refuse to recognize the market they are losing but perhaps when they see the shekels slipping out of their hands they may see fit to return jazz to its deserved place in the company's standard catalog of available classic recordings.

It has come to our attention in the past month or so that a new kind of annoyance has been plaguing the advertisers who place records for sale at set prices. Frequently an order is received which cannot be filled due to earlier larger orders. At times only one or two records out of the order are won. Upon being notified that they have won only one record buyers often decide not to consummate the transaction because of the high cost of shipping only one record. This is a perfectly reasonable reaction and most dealers appreciate the inconvenience and expense involved. However, we would like to suggest that when and if your order is reduced to a single disc and you decide that you do not want the record, you drop the dealer a card informing him of this situation and advising him to cancel the order. In this way he has a chance to dispose of the record to other people while there is still time. Some advertisers have been stuck with as many as 50 records out of a large sale due to the thoughtlessness of some buyers. Let's have a little more courtesy in this game. It only takes a minute to write a card and then everyone is happy.

(The pressures of Record Changer business having kept us in New York these past months, we have been unable to verify for ourselves the glowing reports from Boston on the Bob Wilber outfit. Lacking first-hand knowledge, we can only pass on to you, without comment, J. Robert Mantler's ecstatic account of an evening in the presence of this band.—Ed.)

The bleak early months of the year are usually the slowest for business; in the entertainment field, this is especially true. The phenomenal success that the Bob Wilber band is now enjoying in Boston is, therefore, doubly impressive. In order to gain entrance to the Savoy Cafe, at 410 Massachusetts Avenue, where the band performs nightly, a pair of heavy-duty football shoulder pads is standard equipment for getting by the crowds. . . . I know, because I found out the hard way.

It all started early last December, when I found myself suddenly swamped by all sorts of mail from Boston telling me just how great the Bob Wilber band was, and that I ought to hear it, that if I were a jazz fan I'd never forgive myself if I missed hearing them, if I didn't thrill at their musical efforts, I was just nowhere. . . The final touch came when the band returned to Boston after a brief trip to New York and was greeted with a pyrotechnic display: practically all Boston turned out to greet the boys as they got off the train ("welcome home, Hero," style), and they were paraded—with the band riding in a truck—to the Savoy, some miles away, for a "home-again party."

Figuring that something more than the New England climate must be responsible for this excitement, I decided to trek up to Boston and hear the band perform in its natural habitat. So I hopped a plane to Boston, and proceeded almost immediately to fight my way through the mob outside the Savoŷ Cafe.

The band was on the stand as I entered, giving out with the Royal Garden Blues.... the place was rocking! Everything said of them was true!

This unit, led by Bob Wilber on clarinet and soprano sax; with Henry Goodwin, trumpet; Jimmy Archey, trombone; Dick Wellstood at the piano; George "Pops" Foster, bass; and Tommy Benford, drums, operates so smoothly and efficiently, that I'm quite willing to go out on a limb by saying that I'd put them up against any group of immortals—Louis Armstrong, Johnny Dodds, Jelly-Roll Morton, or Kid Ory.

boston style

WILBER'S BAND KNOCKS OUT NEW ENGLAND CATS

And, before I hear anyone scoffing, I want to say that practically the entire city of Boston is for this group—they outdraw every other Beantown attraction.

Name it, and they'll play it—Twelfth Street Rag, The Mooche, Black Bottom Stomp, Tin Roof Blues, Love Me Or Leave Me, High Society... and you'll wiggle your toes and stomp your feet and tap your glass with a swizzle stick, and find yourself slowly swaying to their music.

Because of his close contact with Sidney Bechet, Bob Wilber has many times been accused of being a carbon copy of the great Bechet, and it's true that young Bob did pick up a lot of jazz "know-how" from him. However, after listening to him for a few minutes, you can easily tell that the young man very definitely has ideas of his own, and isn't the least bit afraid to let you hear them.

The band's following is loyal to the point of fanaticism. Some of the younger and more rabid devotees have gotten together under the somewhat weighty title of "The Bob Wilber Dixieland Jazz Club of Boston"—"Dedicated to keeping Dixieland Jazz alive in this city of Boston and wherever else our members may roam. . . . Formed in admiration of Bob Wilber, young jazz man who has chosen to play in the New Orleans tradition, thus giving new life to a great music field that seemed doomed to pass from existence." Of course, the meeting place is "at the Savoy," nightly.

Here's an idea of what it's like when the boys tear into something like Jelly-Roll's Wolverine Blues:

The first chorus is done in ensemble, with the front line ever driving. Bob Wilber's clarinet is doing an obbligato... the perfect liaison between the high range of Goodwin's

trumpet and Archey's growling trombone.

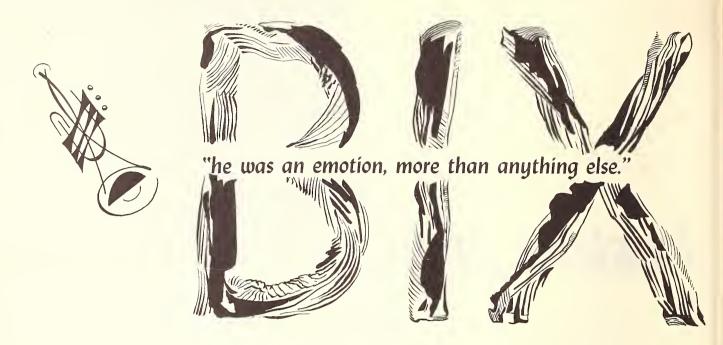

And now, that's Dick Wellstood's interpretation you're hearing on the piano: fresh, modern, up-to-date, thrilling chords. Wilber's got his soprano sax out now, and you're sitting there, amazed, watching this youngster handle his instrument. Intricate passages done at break-neck speed, in long and agonizing breaths! Holding his horn high at the start of one of these half-chorus runs, Wilber gets the utmost out of his instrument and ends up bent over, his body weight forcing the last gasp of breath from his slight frame.

Don't for a moment overlook that fine rhythm behind the young master. The neveraging Pops Foster's bass playing is without equal; and Tommy Benford's rock-solid drumming offers as firm a rhythmic foundation as could ever be hoped for.

And now, the closeout ensemble—twice as exciting as the first, everyone going "all-out" in his effort. You're bouncing in your seat now, as completely unrestrained as the music you're hearing. This is it! This is JAZZ!

I saw this happen nightly during my tooshort stay, and felt the same exhilaration that Bostonians are privileged to experience nightly. Bob Wilber's band has thrilled me more than any other contemporary jazz (?) unit in the country. Once having heard the boys give a few tunes their own New Orleans treatment, you'll go just as far overboard for them as I did . . . to say nothing of all Boston.

ROBERT S. GREENE

On Thursday, March 10th, Bix Beiderbecke would have been forty-six years old. That in itself is hardly a ripe old age, and vet it seems that Bix has been gone a good many more years than the seventeen to which the calendars attest. Legend has a trick of aging the memory, and with Bix the legend and the man, his music and his life, have gradually all come together into what approximates a feeling rather than an historical fact. You still hear many things about Bix today; words spoken by men who played with him, by others who knew him but who were not musicians—a few lines here and there which praise his greatness or point out his limitations. But a portrait of him, a verbal portrait, is a thing hard to come by today, and only in a very few details is there agreement as to what Bix was like and what his music was like. That's the way it is, though, with emotions. Bix was an emotion more than anything else, and like emotions he came to everyone differently.

Perhaps that's precisely why you can't define Bix or his music. He was pure soul. He wasn't New Orleans and he wasn't Chicago. If he was anything, he was a poet, in the full sense of the word, and to tell what a poet is like is almost impossible except by listening to his poetry. One may understand a poet's technique, note his cadences, observe how he forms his words or his chords, but the content, the things actually said when all of this is put together, cannot be paraphrased. The poem or the chorus can be neither lengthened nor shortened; it has no substitutes in speech or in music. It stands alone as its own epitome and can never be confused with anything else.

The first and most vital approach to understanding a poet is to listen to his poetry. We receive what he has to say as a whole; his emotional charge hits us with full impact, and when the poem or chorus is ended, we know we have been through something, although it's often quite impossible to say just what. We can also understand a poet, or Bix, for I make them equivalent, by the technique with which he delivers this charge, but knowing the techniques alone cannot make the poet. They are merely the paper and the pencil, the vocabulary and the knowledge of grammar which serve as the medium through which we can hear him speak. Bix's prime medium was music on the cornet. To it he brought a superb ear, a good lip, deft if irregular fingering, fine breath control, and a thorough knowledge of the grammar of music: harmony. And yet there are many horn players who possess all this equipment, some who possess more, but we shall never confuse their playing with that of Bix.

You may ask why this is so—how two musicians, equally endowed with technique, both employing the same medium, the cornet, can sound so totally unlike. The answer lies in one word . . . content. Some prefer to call it "genius," but to me that does not seem as clear. If the genius lies anywhere, it is in the ability to express the content so perfectly that it can be transferred to a listener in so pure a form that he can feel it, recognize it, and react to it, even if he cannot define it.

To define it, however, is precisely what I'm going to try to do, although as we have seen, the definition can never stand for the thing itself. For to put it most simply, Bix's content is what Bix, as an individual, had to say. His medium happened to be the cornet, but I feel certain that it could have been something else too. Had he had the schooling and the preparation, I think he could have expressed this same content in words, or had he been removed in time or place, he might have said it with a baton. For Bix conceived this content on a magnificent scale. It had little to do with the particular tune he played; the tempo may have altered it at times, but it didn't change it. For me, and I speak personally, it was full of a painful lyricism and whimsy, an aspiration to the heights where beauty is, and a painful falling back with the knowledge that it is, after all, unobtainable. Bix seems very close to the poet John Keats, able to perceive exquisite beauty, and yet aware always that we mortals can never really hold it. The content of both men, in that sense, is the same. I realize I am comparing artists in two different mediums, but I'd like to point out that the creative poem and the creative chorus are really not so dissimilar. Rhythm, which is the poet's meter and the musician's beat, is shared in common, as are the accents each medium employs to emphasize either a syllable or a beat. Bix and Keats mutually discovered the quick beauty in the rapid flux of long set against short, and for both poem and chorus our ear is the judge and final censor. Only in the substitution of words for notes lies any appreciable difference. For the sake of experiment, and possibly insight, let's compare these two men.

Once, in the spring of 1819, a nightingale built her nest next to the house in which Keats was living. The song of the bird charmed the poet, but it did more than that. It symbolized something to him, and being a poet, he wrote it down. He would follow, follow the melody and the nightingale into that land where such beauty lay.

Think about piano players—not some local talent you admired last night, some new flash who's sweeping the country, or some obscure primitive available only on a friend's batered collector's item. Think about the men whose skill is unquestionable, whose reputation is solid and long-lived: Jelly-Roll, Earl Hines, Fats Waller. And when you turn to the white musicians, you come up, immediately, with the name of Joe Sullivan; it'd be hard to find another name that belongs in that company.

It's Joe Sullivan we're concerned with at the moment: the big, bespectacled, mild-looking, fortyish Irishman, born—as you might have suspected—in Chicago. He's played the blues, pops, and Dixieland standards for twenty years or more, always with drive, thoughtfulness, and unwavering affection for the traditional style. In big bands, small combinations, and as a single; in all manner of clubs, bars, speakeasies and the assorted odd spots you find on a one-night

But as a matter of fact you'd find it fairly difficult to hear Joe playing these nights. There being few nightspots left in New York devoted to anything like traditional jazz, and the vagaries of noncommercial music being what they are, it's only at Friday night gatherings at the Central Plaza or barnlike Stuyvesant Casino, or on Sunday afternoon sessions at Jimmy Ryan's last outpost of jazz on strip-conscious 52nd Street, that you're likely to see this eminent Chicagoan hunched over a keyboard. Otherwise he is more likely to be found in a one-room apartment in Greenwich Village's Christopher Street, a room whose principal item of furniture is—or at any rate seems to be—a battered upright, which is where we went to poke around in Joe's memories of the good old days in Chicago, New York and way places. The old days of Bix, Tesch, PeeWee, Davy Tough; of Louis, Jimmy Noone, Johnny Dodds—it's always a bit startling, we thought and Joe agreed, when you start cataloguing the old names, to realize how many of them are no longer around. . . .

Perhaps it's inevitable that memories take on a glamor they may never have had to begin with, that some smoke-filled cellar with bad liquor and worse wages is recalled only, as a place you could jam all night with a handful of good men. Or perhaps it's more likely that the earlier, less jittered days of this century actually had relaxation and humor, an atmosphere that produced its own special kind of jazz.

In any case, Joe Sullivan is by no means that old; his kind of music is obviously a part of our times. It just seems that it must have been another age in which Joe jammed with Bix and Freeman and Tesch until six, seven, eight in the morning at the Three Deuces in Chicago. "It was like playing in a brewery. It was good—a good atmosphere. Bix was himself," Joe remembered, and he recalled one glorious morning at eight, in the Deuces, with everybody drunk, and Bix playing In a Mist and Candlelight on the piano and then switching to blues on the cornet, with Sullivan taking the piano. "It was wonderful—I felt like a girl must feel with a new cort or dress."

new coat or dress. But Joe hadn't come to jazz by way of Beiderbecke. To be strictly biographical, he was introduced to music by a nun at Our Lady of Mount Carmel, who slapped his hands because he didn't hold them correctly on the keyboard. Born on November 5, 1906, on Chicago's North Side, youngest of nine children and the only one interested in music, although his father played the fiddle. Music lessons at home, at Mount Carmel, at the Chicago Conservatory: "twelve years of classical." His first jobs were at dances for the employees at Montgomery Ward's-he played lunchtime music—and for the Chicago Surface Lines. By this time jazz was starting to seep in. He listened to records, and remembers standing outside the Nest (later and better known as the Apex), straining to hear Jimmy Noone, or outside Kelly's Stable, where Baby and Johnny Dodds were playing. By this time Joe was going to Lake View High School, and was playing at summer resorts. He met George Wettling, and remembers clearly the time he went with Wettling to a nearby resort to hear the cornet all the musicians were talking about. Either he was playing alone that night, or else Sullivan's memory has decided that he wants a solo picture: "There was no piano, no drums, just Bix. He was terrific."

But despite that early impression, despite the sessions at the Deuces and a record date organized by the then-embryonic promoter, Eddie Condon (Nobody's Sweetheart, Liza, China Boy, Sugar)—despite all these white-Chicago ties, Sullivan was strongly aware that there were two roads to take in jazz. "There was Louis and there was Bix, and all that each of them stood for. As far as I'm concerned, Bix was all by himself. To this day I love him like I love my right arm. But I go by way of Louis."

It wasn't a matter of disliking the Chicago style. Although Joe now says "I made a definite break," he has always done much of his playing with the men he started out with: Condon, Wettling, Freeman, the ones who were "drawn to Bix and had made up their minds to follow him."

"I wasn't letting Bix down," Joe said. "To me that was a pattern of the music that was going to go on." (Here he shook his head, sadly and wistfully. "Whoever thought that we'd end up with that goddam be-bop.") It was just that the Negro music, somehow, touched him more closely. "I discovered that my heart was set with the different colored musicians—the fine musicians we look up to to this very day. Sitting in with the Kelly Stable band—Johnny and Baby Dodds—to me it was such a thrill that I was afraid I'd play something that wasn't good. When I was getting my way around after that classical training, I felt on the defensive, felt I wasn't worthy of playing as they were used to. It was only when they accepted me that I got the confidence I needed. Whatever I owe, I owe to those guys."

Two pianists whose influence on his style Sullivan quickly admits were around Chicago in those days. Jelly Roll was in and out of town in the '20s. Earl Hines was with Armstrong at the Sunset. When Joe, then in his early twenties, decided to go on to New York with a band including Gene Krupa, Tesch, Freeman and Condon, "Earl told me to be sure to look up Fats Waller. I had already heard him play, liked his playing, and later became very friendly with him. I learned a lot from him—not that he tried to teach me

The trip to New York had been on a false lead. Singer Bea Palmer was supposed to open a night club, but she didn't, and the young musicians were stranded in their hotel room, with the bill piling up. "We were panicky—and I mean panicky." There was an abortive attempt to play behind a vaude-ville dance team, but the Palace Theatre didn't take kindly to their jazz. But there were enough places that did take to jazz and, eventually, jobs came: road tours and speakeasy spots with the ever-shifting personnel that made up the nucleus of jazz in the East at the tail-end of the '20s-Red Nichols, Max Kaminsky, Davy Tough, Mezzrow, Pee Wee, Condon, Freeman. Joe recalled a job at the old Hollywood Restaurant in New York. Nichols fronted a band that included Gene Krupa; Nobody's Sweetheart was a big favorite, and they were requested to play it constantly. One night, after the sixth time, Condon had enough. "For God's sake, not again," he said. Nichols fired him on the spot.

Sullivan went into the Stork Club, with Red McKenzie, Jack Bland, Josh Billings, and Condon. He stayed there until one day in 1931, when he and Condon drove up to work a taxi to find the place full of prohibition agents and police. Someone had put the finger on Mr. Billingsley, after a long spell of immunity, and the job was raided out

After that, Joe put in a period as a soloist, the first entertainer at the first of the series of clubs on 52nd Street to be known as the "Onyx." This one was one flight up, a variation on the usual one-flight-down location of the speakeasies of the era. As a result, Sullivan's habit of beating time for himself led to complaints from the downstairs neighbors. "I guess my foot was too much like a drum," he comments; the management inverted a rubber and under the foot agement inserted a rubber pad under the foot, but that was kicked away after one number. Possibly to keep the peace, Joe went down to New Orleans soon thereafter, for his first big-band job. It was with Roger Wolfe Kalm's non-jazz outfit, but the personnel did include Charlie Teagarden and Artie Shaw. As an indication of the penalties of the commercial life, this band once was called upon to play Stormy Weather, the top favorite of that day, some 18 times in one evening, but Joe doesn't recall that anybody reacted as strongly as Condon had to Nobody's Sweet-heart. Maybe the musicians expected that sort of thing.

But what they couldn't have expected, and what Joe recalls most vividly from that tour, were the first of the now-famous intellectual leanings of the many-faceted Artie Shaw. "Whenever it was time for his solo, someone had to poke him. He kept copies of Schopenhauer and Neitzsche on his music stand, and was always reading them, even during num-

Then, in the second half of the 1930's, came what is best described as the pianist's "Crosby period." He spent a year and a half on the West Coast, working principally on Bing's radio program and in movies, then on to New York for the first of his two hitches with the Bob Crosby band. He toured with them until the day he fell out of bed in Houston, Texas. He injured his shouder, not seriously, but X-rays revealed a touch of T. B. So back to California for another 18 months, with Bob Zurke replacing him in the band. Sullivan did more movie work; principally he recalls the Crosby picture "East Side of Heaven," in which Louis Armstrong made his film debut. Later he went back to Bob Crosby, for a tough grind of road tours and radio work. It was during the prewar big band heyday; the Crosby group would come dashing into town on Mondays to rehearse for a radio show, would broadcast, make their quota of records, and tear out again by 11 o'clock that night for a week of one-nighters and college proms.

Joe had a liking for the Bobcat style, but it was a difficult, unsettled life, and undoubtedly he had a hankering for small-band music. So in 1939 hc stayed in New York, going into Cafe Society Downtown with a "not very good" band. It was quickly obvious that a change in personnel was in order, and Sullivan took advantage of the opportunity to bring in a mixed band. It may seem rather startling to realize that having Negroes and whites in the same jazz band was a radical innovation as recently as ten years ago—it startles me, I know. There had been a few cases of interracial sitting in, on a "guest star" basis; Benny Goodman had used Teddy Wilson in his quartet while Jess Stacy played with the full band; but this was the first time a club had hired such an outfit on a full, six-nights-a-week basis.

Sullivan's own tastes in jazz made it fitting enough for him to gather together this group (It had Ed Hall on clarinet; Danny Polo, tenor sax; Benny Morton, trombone; Andy Anderson, trumpet; Billy Taylor, bass; Johnny Wells, drums). Ten years before he had played piano on one of the few early mixed record dates, the celebrated Louis Armstrong Knockin' a Jug, with Jack Teagarden, Happy Cauldwell, and the late Eddie Lang and Kaiser Marshall. But that had been in the youthful, jam-session spirit of the 1920's; the date was decided on and arranged in less than twenty-four hours. Jack Kapp (then at Okeh, now with Decca) was talked into giving them a studio early in the morning. Joe recalls picking Louis up after work—"He was at the Savoy or the Renaissance then, and we all went to some after-hours joint and drank until 8 A. M. We were all tired; I remember Louis standing backed up against a wall; and he must have been almost out on his feet from exhaustion. But I think he played better horn that morning than he had in a long time."

The goings on at Cafe Society were a bit

The goings on at Cafe Society were a bit more prosaic, but it was Sullivan's first real opportunity to play at length with Negroes since the time he had originally hit his stride with the Chicago Kelly's Stable band. In 1940 he went into the Famous Door with an otherwise all-colored group: Joe Thomas, trumpet; Albert Nicholas, clarinet; Claude Jones, trombone; Manzie Johnson, drums. He moved about on 52nd Street during the war years, returned to California for a while and then back to New York for a year-anda-half of solo work at Eddie Condon's show-

Which brings us back to the present, to a Joe Sullivan who is still as firmly rooted as ever in the traditional style he first knew and loved. The future of his kind of jazz doesn't look any too encouraging; there are no "modern" pianists whose work appeals to him, and few among the younger group of traditional-style players who can excite his enthusiasm. He liked what he heard of part of the Lu Watters band on the West Coast during the war years; and has played occasional sessions recently that included good young horns, but it's all too obvious that the emphasis among newcomers is on other things in jazz.

Here's a collector who

The great number of requests in the Record Changer, month after month, for stage and screen celebrity discs confirms my suspicion that I am not alone, that there exists a large and devoted group of imbeciles in America who, like myself, would rather find a Rudolph Valentino on Pathé, than a King Oliver on Gennett, and who would rather listen to Ted Lewis than Meade Lux Lewis, Kate Smith than Bessie Smith.

My be-bop pals, of course, treat me with either olympian condescension or ill-concealed distrust.

"Why do you waste your time," they grumble, "collecting popular pap? Why don't you go for the real gone stuff? Stop being

They may be right, but to me the collecting of rare, out-of-print Hollywood personality recordings is a fascinating field. Many of the discs in my wax museum are valuable collectors' items today. They also serve as relics and reminders of the first fabulous days of the talking picture.

One of the very first of these talkies ("You owe it to yourself to see it! It's the eightly wonder of this world!! You won't believe your ears!!!") was "The King of

A curiously ketchup-colored Bing Crosby found himself embroiled in this tinted hodgepodge as one of Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys; tunesmith Billy Rose penned It Happened in Monterey for the feverishly gaudy "Courtyard In Spain" sequence; and star John Boles sang the number and recorded it for Victor.

As for Mr. Crosby, to provide even a partial catalogue of his rare records (back in the days when he was appearing opposite such femme fatales as Carole Lombard, Miriam Hopkins and Marion Davies) would consume far too many pages of print. Bing's wife, Dixie Lee, was a Hollywood star long before her husband appeared on the scene. She waxed a half dozen numbers for blue-label Deccu in the mid-thirties, among them Got Me Doin' Things from her picture, Love in Bloom.

The minstrel man, Al Jolson, has recorded (Br.) a batch of tunes from his early Warner Bros. efforts. Al giving advice to his Little Pal, Al proudly proclaiming Halle-lujah, I'm a Bum, Al offering his knee to Sonny Boy—these reveal "The World's Greatest Entertainer" at the very peak of his form.

A few years before Jolson stepped aboard the train for Hollywood, another young man was patiently tooting a sax in a high-class gin mill run by Gilda Gray, the shimmy queen. One night he worked up enough courage to approach her and ask if he could step on the floor and give out with some vocalising. "Go ahead," she replied. And Hubert Prior Vallee clutched the mike and gave his all. When he finished, Miss Gray's only comment was, "Honey, can't you sing any louder than that?

More in sorrow than in anger, Hubert hied himself over to the Heigh-Ho Club, changed his name to Rudy (remember the Valentino craze?), and blossomed literally over-night into "the first crooner."

One of Vallee's discoveries (and you can find her as featured vocalist on many of his early recordings) was Alice Faye. After making one picture together, ("George White's Scandals") they went their separate ways, Faye to bigger, better and greener pastures via 20th Century-Fox and records for Melotone, Perfect and Brunswick, Vallee to a series of movie misfires ("Golddiggers in Paris," "Sweet Music," etc.) and releases for Columbia, Bluebird and Victor.

The biggest motion-picture drawing card in the early thirties was the sinuous, slithering platinum blonde who made such catch-phrases as "Peel me a grape," and "Come up and see me sometime" peculiarly her own. Some of the more amusing items in this category are Tallulah Bankhead's throaty lament, Don't Tell Him What Happened to Me (HMV), Marlene Dietrich's basso-profundo version of Naughty Lola and Beware of Blonde Women (Vic) from her first film, "The Blue Angel," and Gloria Swanson's If You Haven't Got Love (Br.) and Love, Your Magic Spell Is Everywhere (Vic).

Many movie stars of more recent vintage-Dorothy Lamour, Frank Sinatra, Gene Raymond, Janet Blair, Buddy Rogers, Fred MacMurray, Ella Logan, to name a few began their careers as featured vocalists with recording bands.

As we said last month in our inaugural column, this is a department for collectors interested in learning more about records which are incompletely documented. Our aim is to get your queries and opinions before the eyes of others so that cooperation will perhaps shed some light on the missing informa-

The first item on our agenda is an odd fact which, if it proves anything, shows that one can't even be sure that two identical (on the face of it) records are actually the same! In this case the labels are identical, with the same catalog number, song title, and performing band. In 1926, not too long before Pathe-Perfect dropped the acoustical method of recording in favor of the new electrical system, they cut a master of Tiger Rag (106005) by the Adrian Rollini recording group, the Five Birmingham Babies. This master was released under their name on Pat 36266 and Pe 14447 soon after it was cut and then a bit later was released on Or 984 as by the Dixie Jazz Band with a control number of (1023). However, a sharpeyed collector could find the actual master number (1006005) impressed in the surface of the label.

In late 1929 the recording contingent from the Ben Pollack band, generally known as the Whoopee Makers, with Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Jimmy McPartland, Gil Rodin and company, appeared at the recording studios to cut some masters, among which was included a version of Tiger Rag. The actual master number of this latter, electrically-recorded version is clouded in obscurity and seems to depend upon which issue you find. It appears with at least three alleged masters: (2186), (3898), and (8476). And it turns up on many labels under many pseudonyms for the band. These latter are too numerous to list here but the issues include: Pat 37013, Pe 15194, Ba 6355 & 0839, Ro 997 & 1453, Re 8768 & 10145, Je 5777, Do 4322, and Or 2089 & 1544. This last one, Or 1544, is our culprit, however. The label states that it is Tiger Rag as performed by "Ted White's Collegians" with a "master" of (2186) But when you play the thing you may hear one of two things: the Whoopee Makers' version of the tune recorded electrically in 1929, or the old, 1926, acoustically-waxed Five Birmingham Babies' version!

Cornelius W. Hauck has a question or two on a Chick Bullock recording. First he wants to know if the man who plays growl trumpet behind (and solos after) the vocal could be Sterling Bose. He would also like to know who else is in this group. The specific record is You Rascal You on Perfect.

Bozy White is working on a Bunny Berigan Discography and needs a lot of information to fill in missing spots and to straighten out contradictory data. He needs master numbers for any Bob Howard discs on Decca, Connee and the Boswell Sisters on Brunswick, Bing Crosby with the Dorseys on Brunswick, as well as Dick McDonough and Chick Bullock items on any labels. Other data on the above, such as on which specific dates Bunny appears, personnels, etc., is also requested. Bozy has a group of master numbers which apparently all have Berigan's horn on them and would like to identify the two unaccounted-for masters. (13208) and (13209) are both by Mildred Bailey, accompanied by the Dorsey Brothers with Bunny; (13210) is unaccounted for; (13211) is a Chick Bullock side; (13212) is unaccounted for; (13213) is Tony's Wife by Bunny on Vo 15884; and (13214) is another Bullock item. Can anyone give details on (13210) and (13212)?

Errata department:—Something is wrong somewhere with certain information Bozy has and he'd like to get it straightened out if possible. Three distinctly separate recording sessions (if you can believe the master numbers) are all listed as having been cut the same day. Bunny Berigan's The Girl cut the same day. Bunny Berigan's The Gril In The Little Green Hat (12880) on Vo 15875 and Me 12593; his A Tree Was A Tree (12905) on Vo 15875, Me 12543, and Me 12611; and the Dorsey Brothers' Shim Sham Shimmy (13152) are all listed as being recorded 14 March 1933.

Then there's the case of the which-storycan-you-believe recording date by the Whoopee Makers which produced It's So Good. This title has been listed in all the standard discographical works as including Benny Goodman on clarinet. The reissue on UHCA lists Benny on the label. But then along comes the report that Gil Rodin's little black book, in which he kept the data of all the Whoopee Maker recording dates he arranged for the Pollack unit, states that Benny did not show up at that particular session and the clarinet solo was taken by Bud Freeman. This might well be regarded as authoritative enough to serve as proof that the personnel for It's So Good be changed to omit BG. But, if you examine the master numbers of other WM titles carefully, you will discover that It's So Good is the middle title of three consecutive master numbers and—here's the clincher—both of the other two have Goodman on them! The the other two have Goodman on them! The first title is Lovable And Sweet (108929) which appears on Pe 15213, Pat 37032, Or 1668, Je 5685, Ba 6483, and Re 8831; the second, of course, is the controversial It's So Good (108930) on Pe 15217, Pat 37036, Or 1668, Je 5685, Ba 6483, Re 8813, and UHCA

GAY '90 REMINISCENCES BY H. B. KAY

The handle "Boogie Woogie" is presumed to have had its origin with the late lamented Pinetop Smith, the Negro lad from Troy, Alabama, who succumbed to an accidental bullet wound March 14, 1929, at a brawl in a Chicago ballroom where he happened to be an innocent bystander.

Pinetop is credited with the first known recording of the familiar 8-beat, to which he latched the name of "Boogie Woogie," yet the "beat" was old long before his natal day. Historic early waxings of the "beat" under three different titles were—Cow Cow Blues by Cow Cow Davenport in 1927, Boogie Woogie by Pinetop in 1928, and Honky Tonk Train Blues by Meade Lux Lewis in 1929. No member of this ancient "beat."

This emotional Negro jump, believed by some to be the foundation upon which some of progressive jazz is styled, was played on barroom pianos back in 1898 and perhaps earlier. The music historians have offered no tangible clues as to where the 8-beat came from or when, but many students of syncopated music are of the opinion it bounced out of Africa before the American Revolution.

Back in the horse and buggy era of the late nineties, I was fourteen years young, had a good ear for syncopated music known as Ragtime, and a yen for a business enterprise of some sort which might provide a small measure of financial independence. So I embarked in the business of peddling newspapers with a couple of my classmates after school hours in the Tenderloin District of New York.

The district was bounded by 7th to 8th Avenues, 34th to 42nd Streets. Beer saloons, which figure prominently in these reminiscences of mine, and which were intimately associated with 8-to-the-bar, were situated on many intersections, some corners boasting as many as three. Clearly visible to the thirsty were the inevitable "Family Entrance" signs suspended above the side street doors, through which the "respectable" might enter and leave unobserved. The primary furnishings in these family-entrance back rooms were the conventional round top beer tables, pretzel back chairs to match and tall, shiny cuspidors with printed injunctions to "Spit In_Them, Not At Them."

The musical equipment consisted chiefly of a Regina or Swiss Music Box and an upright piano. On the walls invariaby hung the framed portraits of mighty John L. Sullivan, Jake Kilrain, Bob Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy, James J. Corbett, Terry McGovern, Pedlar Palmer, Joe Gans and a host of other most cherished possessions. It's an occasional reminder of my boyhood in the allegedly "gay" nineties.

Looking across this seemingly brief half century, I can distinctly remember hearing the intimate beat of 8-to-the bar while ducking in and out of beer saloons with my newspapers. I saw the Irish, Germans, Jews, Negroes, Swedes, Russians, Poles, French and Italians jump and shimmy to it with reckless abandon after a few beers were comfortably tucked beneath their belts and corfortably entrance back rooms regardless of race, religious creeds, color or political differences.

The syncopating pianists at these back room gatherings were, for the most part, youthful Negroes who shared their talents with a banjoist or a harmonica player or both. The entertainers at other spots, known as "Coon Shouters," were heard to warble Go 'Way Back And Sit Down, Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey, I Got A White Man Workin' For Me and other typical Ragtime specialties. For their nightly services the entertainers accepted a couple of beers and leftovers from the free lunch counters, the extent of the beer-joint owners' contributions. Looking to the customers for gratuities, the performers netted between $1.50 to $2 each. Nickels, dimes and quarters flowed more freely Saturday nights. Between numbers the Negro lads shined shoes at 5c a pair, then took their places at the pianos again.

In New York, the Tenderloin District was the first concentrated Negro section in Manhattan, far removed from the Harlem of today. The 8-beat was known to that part of New York before the Spanish-American War. The Alabama Negroes were the personification of syncopation in most everything they did, including their traditional 8-beat. Led to a piano in a private home or in the bruisers of the squared arena. On the opposite walls were seen prints of buxom burlesque queens and popular vaudeville and minstrel personalities: Chauncey Alcott, James P. Thornton, Eddie Foy, David Warfield, Lew Dockstader, Honey Boy Melody, Bill West, Ed Primrose, to name but a few.

I am reminded that a brass tray was flung at me on a Saturday evening by a cursing waiter who spotted me easing slowly toward the free lunch counter after I had disposed of a few newspapers. The flying tray bounced off my left shoulder and rolled swiftly under the swinging doors into the street. Without looking back, I dropped my two or three remaining papers, grabbed the elusive tray and ran like Hell. Reposing on my kitchen shelf in Boston, the tray remains one of my neighborhood dance hall, they customarily "teased" the ivories in the process of warming up. About three or four older white boys in our circle, who had taken piano lessons from private teachers, could do a Chopin waltz or prelude as taught, but failed utterly in their efforts to do an 8-beat. The Negro youths had subtle left hands, and the white boys seemed unable to co-ordinate theirs with the right hands to achieve the correct "beat."

Sunday mornings found them at religious services . . . and at gospel meetings on Sabbath evenings in an old dance hall with improvised church fittings on the east side of 7th Avenue, between 34th and 35th. Except for their deeply religious chants, all gospel singing was done with rhythmic hand clap-

The reviewer's opportunities to report upon an embarrassment of riches are not very frequent and are, when they occur, likely to result either in purple passages or in a defensive: "It's about time!" In view of the notes before me, I shall risk a show of the purple whilst the afflatus is upon me; nor shall I rewrite to tone down the wording of my praise and counsel.

First, there is the matter of a series of slim volumes collectively entitled The World of Music, printed in Holland and published in the United States by the Chanticleer Press of 41 East 50th Street, N. Y. City. Of the eight titles presently available, three are before me and they are as beautiful to look upon as they are enlightening to read.

Best known among the authors is the soprano; Elisabeth Schumann, whose treatment of German Song is an imperative acquisition for anyone who treasures her Lieder records (or those of any other artist). Mme. Schumann imparts a wealth of understanding and expresses it in her writing with the style and dignity that has characterized her singing. . . A romantic approach is that taken by Julian Herbage in his study of Messiah, and whether or not you possess Dr. Myers' more elaborate treatment of the subject, you will do well to add Mr. Herbage to your library. . . A. Hyatt King is represented in the series by his Chamber Music, a historical treatise of which this writer expects to make frequent and profitable use. The series also includes titles on Opera Comique, The Walts, Covent Garden and The Golden Age of Vienna. The price of each volume is $2.50. Ordinarily mention of illustrations is made as an afterthought, but I should be doing the Chanticleer Press a grave injustice were I not to tell you that the color plates and blackand-white illustrations with which each volume is liberally provided are reproduced in the most fulsome splendor to companion the typography and format of the texts. This is outstanding publishing and worthy of the most finicky connoisseur's taste.

What? Two complete Italian operas on the one label in the same month? Yes! Victor has issued both Aida and Cavalleria Rusticana in what may be called definitive recordings. Each has been available on import for some time to those willing and able to pay out the surcharges attached to such luxuries; now they are available at "regular" catalog prices. The cast, in each case, is headed by Beniamino Gigli and, in the case of Cavalleria, it is the composer, Mascagni himself, who conducts the performance. Aida, being dependent for much of its effect upon the pageantry involved in its production, is to an extent lost upon the listener who has not had some experience of it in actual performance; but there have not been very many actual performances of the opera which come up to the standard achieved in these records. Pietro Mascagni's tour-deforce has lost none of its impact in the more than half-a-century that has come and gone since first it was heard and, as now revealed, it remains a compelling experience.

I do not mean to suggest that either of these performances is a thing of perfection but I doubt that we ever shall surpass either for generally satisfying excellence; nor, taken on their merits as recordings, need they be replaced in the predictable future.

Cetra-Soria, the firm that handles the American repressings of Italian Cetra's catalog, continues to enlarge its own repertoire of worthy releases, as you will learn upon receiving a copy of the catalog from Raxor Corporation, 43 West 64th Street, New York 23; N. Y. If you will enclose 10c with your request for the booklet, Mr. Dario Soria will be very happy. So will you, if you add to your collection the supremely fine complete recording of L'Amico Fritz in which Ferruccio Tagliavini is heard at his lyric best, singing opposite his wife, Pia Tassinari. "Fritz" makes no pretensions to overwhelming grandeur as a stage spectacle but, either in the theatre or on recordings, it is an engaging example of its genre and I, for one, am willing to be exposed to it reasonably often. The entire production takes up thirteen discs and sells for $25.92. If you feel that the Cherry Duet will take care of your needs, it has obligingly been excerpted from the set and is available in a two-pocket album, along with the doughty Intermezzo at the price of $4.73. Mascagni is the composer-conductor and his pacing of the performance, while considerably slower than that to which you may be accustomed, does not detract at all from the opera's lyric appeal. If you are among those who think otherwise, please consider that, by and large, life was not very kind to Pietro Mascagni—and give him the benefit of the doubt.

The experience of listening to and writing about the Cavalleria Rusticana recording reported earlier in this article sent me back to its companion, Pagliacci, and I find that the Gigli set, domestically released in 1935, retains its powers of persuasion over me. Victor Album 249 has, for some time, been "hard-to-get" and I hope that it will be made easy of access soon again. Hearing it after a lengthy silence, it struck me as just about ideal and the performance of the Silvio (Leone Paci) reminded me anew that the role can be sung with impressive conviction.

This desk is piled high with shin-plasters from both Columbia and Victor, setting forth the claims of each in this matter of 7-inch records, separate speeds and reproducing equipment, etc., etc. The claims of both companies are valid, for the products of each have proven so in rigorous demonstration. The course to be taken by the record enthusiast is for himself as an individual to determine and, since standard 78 r. p. m. discs will continue to be available for a long time to come, he might do well to behave as though these present developments were not happening at all. Incidentally, the size of

As the sun makes its journey around the world, it shines on collectors in Scandinavia, Germany, South America, Russia, Switzerland and many little forgotten islands nestled in various oceans here and there. Record collecting, far from being a local allergy, is international, and a full grown disease.

In Japan, during the period from 1945 to '48, some 7,000 phonographs were bought up, and over one million records were sold by Columbia, Tuchiku, King, Victor and Polydor, in this order, with Columbia selling approximately half of the total.

Japanese Victor series JA is jazz, JD is classical pre-war, while A & D represent the post-war series. J Columbia series J is jazz, BIEM are special records, M is post-war U. S. jazz reissues and W is post-war classicals.

Duke Ellington's Clarinet Lament/Echoes of Harlem has just been reissued on Co. M130 while Goodman, Wilson, Krupa and Henderson play prominent part in ten late Japanese reissues.

The newest issues from England are:

Freddy Randall Jazz Band Ball/Hurry on Down, Cleveland 5/6; Cooks Ferry Parade/ Lonesome Road, Cleveland 7/8.

H. Lyttleton, Jenny's Ball/Jail Bait. Te. A12.

Future Esquire releases will feature Bill Bramwell vocals on Gimme a Pigfoot, Barrelhouse Music, and Shoutin' In That Amen Corner. The Victor Feldman Quartet will do Gone With The Wind, Moonlight in Vermont and It's Only a Paper Bag. Jazz at the Town Hall have eight new sides; the All Star Sextet four, and Ray Nance and the Ellingtonians four.

Our thanks to Dave Carey for a copy of the newest English release: Mike Daniels' Delta Jazzmen doing Lovin' Gal Lucille/Belmont Stomp. While this record is only fair, if this group stays together another year or so they will eventually compare with the Bell band, and so this first record is worth obtaining.

Also from Dave for review, Lazy Ade's

Big Four doing Won't You Come Over To My House Baby, with Lazy Ade Monsborough taking the cornet, vocal, and also doing some terrific clarinet (reminiscent of Cecil Scott or Buster Bailey with the C. Williams combos.). Added to this is washboard, banjo, and some fine tuba work by L. Silversisen. We recommend this side. Reverse of this Esquire 10-016 is the G. Bell band in a poorly recorded Nobody Knows You When You're Down And Out.

In Chile, Rene Eyheralde, President of the Jazz Club of Santiago, has now become a confirmed junkshopper. For twenty Chilean bucks (30c) he picked up King Oliver's Riverside Blues/ Workingman Blues on Odeon. This amazing find overshadows the news of the recent Chilean Jazz Concert, which included the best bands and soloists, given at the concert room of the Teatro Lux. Outstanding feature of the concert was Carmelo Davila and his Jazz Band. Davila's clarinet and his Dixieland combo pleased the crowd with such standards as Da Da Strain, Darktown Strutters and Farewell Blues.

Kansas City Stomps Darktown Strutters Ball

No Bop Hop Scop Blues Tiger Rag

This is partly the same crew that has been around before under Harry Fosbury's banner. Fosbury is one of those madmen who goes around throwing money away by recording guys he likes, and maybe in 1952 he gets back his initial investment, an event that he celebrates by forgetting all the additional expenses he put in. And it can probably be stated with impunity that the state of Oregon is a better place in which to live because of Fosbury and his ilk. The latter are repre-sented on this record, with Monte Ballou as

The mob has a hell of a good time, and turns out some fine music in the process. Kansas City Stomps is the best version of that tune since Jelly Roll's bunch hung up its spikes in the Victor studios on the memorable session that produced a glorious in-strumental reading of Morton's piano gem. Darktown Strutters is also exceptional, with a driving finish propelled by George Bruns'

There isn't any comparison between the two discs-the first has the edge a mile for music—but I think the other is going to go but big because of Monte Ballou's knocked-out vocal on No. Bob Hop Scop Blues, which is as amusing as it is clever in its lines and rimes. It would spoil the fun to repeat the words here, so I suggest you catch them for yourself and get your kicks direct. Instru-mentally, it's another loud, intense blues, done in drag tempo with one of those Santo Pecora slides from deep left field to open things up. I must say I don't care for the kind of ensemble playing on this side—all the boys seem to be trying to play lead— but that Monte lad is a card!

Tiger Rag is fast, furious, and adds nothing to the Tiger Rag literature, but Bob Short kicks in some good tuba playing (no mean trick), and that George Bruns is as rash as they come. Larry DuFresne contributes some of that elbow work on the piano (Jelly Roll Morton by way of Henry Cowell, the original tone-cluster man), and there's the appropriate rousing finish. Still, the band's really fine work is on the other platter, notably the rocking, sol-id version of Kansas City Stomps. Traditionalism has a good deal to be said for it; maybe I'm an old fuddy-duddy, but playing a great tune in this style is wonderful any day of the week. There's no need to paint mustaches on the Madonna and Child just to be different the Madonna and Child just to be different from an old master. (Castle HF8/9; HF10/11). (G. A.)

Bob Anderson's Oshkosh Serenaders

September in the Rain I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter

The Jump label seems to have picked up where the Condon crowd left off on Commodore several years ago. Everybody sounds like he's just stepped off the 1939 bandstand at Nick's, which was a pretty good one then. The last choruses on I'm Gonna Sit Right Down are little short of sensational. They are also perfect examples of the best style that was developed in Greenwich Village ten years ago. And they are better music than the same mob has played since, because this crowd hasn't been doing it as long.

In contrast to the flag-waving stomp version of Letter, September In the Rain starts off pretty and slow with Joe Rushton's bass sax, Warren Smith on trombone, Gil Bowers' piano, and Anderson's cornet taking turns before a final ensemble which blessedly doesn't go into double time. Anderson's solo is a remarkable thing. He plays rather like Bobby Hackett has at one time or another, and the second eight bars comes out sounding like a trombone. The guy's got a fine technique and uses it well. One of those fellows who can play anything from third horn in a dance band to this.

Observant souls will be startled to see Joe Rushton's name printed twice on the label, as clarinetist and bass sax man. My first reaction was that maybe the record was made by cutting once with Joe on one instrument, and then dubbing him in on the other, but it's a conventional job of doubling two horns on the same side. I think you'll get a kick out of the wide divergence of style that Joe exhibits between the clarinet and the bass sax. (Jump 17). (G. A.)

Doc Evans' Band

One Sweet Letter Lulu's Back in Town S'posin' Walkin' My Babe Back Home Parker House Roll

Hindustan Doc's Ology Can't Believe

This is a good little band that Doc Evans has assembled for Dublin's, a Chicago jass shoppe of national renown, and while none of the sides will ever set the globe ablaze, there's a fair share of dixieland kicks aboard.

Doc's cornet and Mel Grant's piano share the honors and one Don Thompson plays some startling trombone here and there. Although most of the performances are rather ordinary, and Hindustan suffers from the compulsion that everyone must get a solo against the most pedestrian backgrounds unimaginable, there are some bright tries, like the last chorus of I Can't Believe That You're In Love With Me, in which Doc takes four alone, the boys pitch in on the next four, and so on.

The standards are well chosen and so are the tempos; no breakneck stuff, despite the temptations that usually befall such sessions. The sides have something of the flavor of the better Wingy Mannone records of fifteen years ago, particularly the shuffle stuff on Lulu's Back In Town. Perhaps the selections have something to do with it, since Wingy

Elderly collectors will note that Jack Goss Elderly collectors will note that Jack Goss is on guitar on these sides (as Jack Church, he played in Bill Davison's band back in the early thirties, alongside of Frank Teschemacher) and Earl Murphy, Art Hodes' old side-kick, plays bass. And everyone, I'm afraid, will note that on One Sweet Letter From You the recording unexplicably goes dead for a couple of bars. Yep, all of a sudden everything stops in the middle of a trombone solo, and then picks up again withtrombone solo, and then picks up again without explanation or reason, other than an undetected power failure during the recording. My guess is that Dublin's will cut this out immediately for repairs (or replacement, more likely), so if you want a unique col-lector's item you'd better queue up fast. Record's not bad, flaw or no, so you won't be losing a thing.

A word about the originals. Parker House Roll bears kinship to Original Dixieland One Step, a family tie that any tune should be proud of, while Doc's Ology is a curious fantasy on Dinah. (Dublin's 1, 2, 3, 4) (G.A.)

Duke Ellington

Choo Choo Blues
Rent Party Blues
Jungle Blues

Here's a real break for Ellington collectors, for the first of these two sides, recorded for Blue Disc under the band name of The Washingtonians, is one of the rarest of Ellington iteras, and the other, recorded for Oriole as the Ten Black Berries, is rare enough to be most welcome news. Both records offer most interesting phases in the Duke's career and I imagine they will cause a lot of argument among the boys, which is one fight I want to stay out of if I can.

The early side is amazing in that it shows that even at that time—1925—that Ellington had firmly in mind the kind of music he wanted to play. By this I mean that I don't see how anyone, even though he had heard only recent Ellington, could fail to identify this, if only by the mood it creates. The recording is not as clear and sharp as one might wish, but the troubles inherent in recreating old records are such that no one can be blamed, and it's not too bad, all things considered. I liked the Choo Choo side the better and I've always been, as the boys say, a hog about Bubber Miley. Charles Irvis also does some nice things here with the trombone, but if I were to be asked what was the one thing that bothered me, as against later Ellington, I would say the intricate trombone work of Jimmy Harrison and Tricky Sam and the others who followed. By this don't think I don't like Charley Irvis, because I certainly do. This is very interesting stuff because it shows the Duke when he was still close to the source—Washington, Baltimore, the Eastern Seaboard influences. But it also shows, as I have said, that what we call the Ellington style (and it's a style that until a very recent period has changed little basically, and even now is always subtly there) was in Duke's whole being even as early as those old Kentucky Club days.

In reviewing the last Ellington album in these pages I got a pretty hot letter from a collector in Sweden which I haven't had time to answer. I said, I remember, something about this, sadly, not being the old Ellington and I got a blast back saying: No, thank God it isn't. That collector went on to say that these records for him were the best Ellington he had ever heard, full of beautiful sounds and showing a creativeness that for him made the Duke's older things almost unplayable. I haven't answered that letter yet (I will, pal, stay with me) so maybe these words will let him know I'm still thinking about it. It seems to me that all this is more or less true, but that the Impressionist longhairs do this thing a whole lot better, and they in turn couldn't turn out anything as good as Jungle Blues or Rent Party.

Before I trip on my mouldy white beard I'll let it go at that. This is my kind of Ellington and to me it makes a lot of sense.

When I want to I can dance to it and feel I'm dancing to music that was meant for dancing. And I can even shed a few sad tears for the departed brethren and ask only that you present day Ellingtonites take a peek at the label and figure out who was in the band then and who's there replacing them

These are records that ought to be welcomed with whoops of joy. (Blue Disc 5001 and 5002. $1.40. B. M.)

Charlie Spand, Will Ezell, Alex Hill

Hometown Skiffle, Parts I and 2

Like a period movie, this noted old Paramount takes you back in not-quite-authentic style to a past era. Several of the Paramount standbys of 20 years ago parade past on this catch-all disc, but there's as much kick from any of them as you can get on any one of their own records. Unbilled on the label, Blind Blake delivers a fair sample of his stuff to give Charlie Spand a close run for top honors. Spand plays a bit of his great Soon This Morning—all too little for this Spand man. He's interrupted by the big climax—the introduction of Papa Charlie Jackson, whose Shake That Thing is the central theme of the skiffle, but whose ukulele scarcely merits the cessation of Spand's fine piano. As every aging collector knows, the cops put a stop to Jackson and the skiffle too.

Cute, but lightweight. Keep this one around for historical evenings with the neighbors. (SD 107) (G. A.)

Joe Smith, Unknown Pianist

Heart Breakin' Joe African Rag

I guess when the boys were trying to figure out who was on this one they got Joe Smith from the title because I don't see how anyone could identify any cornet from this left field background. Don't get me wrong, I'm not saying it isn't, merely that you can't hear anything much to go on. In spite of this I found the Heartbreak side not too bad a record, and one that grew on me the more I played it. One of those torch numbers that are pretty corny and a vocalist who isn't much better, it's saved by some very nice relaxed playing in the background and a kind of festive air which sure as hell isn't enough to make it one of my favorite ten, but it's probably worth what it will cost you.

The other side, though, is worth twice the going price for both sides; in fact I'm just before having worn it out. When John Steiner was East I tried to get some information out of him but it just isn't to be had. The facts are simply this: it was an unidentified test pressing which was never issued. I'm only willing to make a few observations in general. First, it's by an Eastern Seaboard player and, secondly, the first time I played it I immediately yelled Sugar Underwood at the tenth groove. Well, on comparative playings it isn't, but even though it isn't I still think of Sugar Underwood. Don Ewell, hear, guesses an early James P. and this seems nearer the mark. If not, it's one of seems nearer the mark. If not, its one of those poor Joes who was really great and we'll never even know his name. This is a really outstanding record, especially if, as I do; you like piano. (Paramount 14004, $1.05. B. M.)

Pete Daily's Chicagoans

5:30 A. M. Blues Bluin' the Blues

First chorus of the slow blues side is as fine an all-in as a white group of this type has cut in recent years. The take-your-turn solos that inevitably follow are nothing to shout about; they are the same pleasant things which always appear between the ensemble choruses of such records. Pete's own solo is the standout, partly because there's a little production to back it up. Those ensembles are the real story, though. The band isn't outstanding, and there's some dead weight around, but the idea is there.

Some interesting unison effects, not previously noted in Dixieland stuff, herald the reverse, which is a better all-around vehicle for this group. Pete blows some rich horn, and Rosy McHargue is happy as can be with this ODJB favorite. Bud Wilson's trombone and Joe Rushton's bass sax are much more relaxed here, and the whole band, in fact, perks up in the more conventional tempo of this strutting old sweetheart. By the way, I couldn't help but have the feeling that the boys were building up to letting you hang during their ensemble breaks toward the end, but they go through with the whole development. While this isn't Pete Daily at his best, it's a reasonable sample, which is good enough for most of us. (Jump 14) (G.A.)

Tin Tin Deo Oh Henry

The relation of this gang to the Gillespie band is almost exactly that of a Hodges or Bigard unit to the Ellington band; it isn't a diversion, but a miniature of the parent; in short, not a band within a band, but the original (less a paltry ten guys or so). Walter Fuller's being the power behind the throne may have something to do with that, too, because everything Dizzy's band does is colored by his theories of scoring, which are sometimes dangerously advanced. (By dangerous I mean, of course, from the point of view of an unspecialized audience or, if you'll pardon the expression, the public. To which one may say, "The public be damned," to which I reply: "Fight hard, but if you think RCA Victor is in this thing for kicks you're out of your mind.")

However, this record, being a BLUE NOTE, is designed for a specialized audience, though they have no objection to the enlargement of that audience, and it should find receptive ears. Tin Tin Deo is one of Chano Pozo's last sides; he sings on it, in a voice and accent very like, of all people, Desi Arnaz's, besides stroking some voluptuous sounds from the bongo. The whole thing is very Cubano in spirit, detouring briefly behind Ernie Henry's solo—strangely enough, Moody has chosen to lay low on both sides, featuring Henry instead—and closing with some introverted trumpet by little-known Dave Burns. Oh Henry, written by and for Ernie, with an assist from Fuller, is a quiet, low-keyed little number, with a nice beat. I like the arranged part very much, because of the full sound and relaxed swing. This is pretty cool stuff, definitely a signpost to the direction music is going in, understated; the kind of drama where you upstage by twitching an eyebrow. These guys are in the van. (Blue Note 555) (P.B.)

39; and lastly we have Twelfth Street Rag (108931) issued on Pe 15217, Pat 37036, Or 1624, Re 8813, Ba 6358, and Ba 6441. The question of the day is: does this prove that even Gil Rodin's black book can't be trusted or does it show that the report on what his books says is erroneous?

Label of the month: We ran across an item the other day on a label we never saw or even heard of before: Operaphone. As you can see by the accompanying cut, the bottom of the label states: Operaphone Co. Inc., New York, N. Y. This one bears a catalog number of 31161 and couples Blacksmith Rag by the Alabama Jazz Band with Some Pretty Day by the Operaphone Dance Orch. The latter side is unimportant; the Rag side, however, is a pretty good example of pre-1920 ODJB-type jazz. Especially noticeable is a trombonist who plays a mean tailgate horn. Anyone have anything to offer about this group, trombonist, label, or tune?

S. Settell has a copy of Blackberry Jam/Farewell Blues by Dude Skiles and his Vine Street Boys on Variety 584. In his opinion this is an unquestioned Whoopee Makers item. He reports that Blackberry Jam is credited to J. & D. Skiles and states that Goodman, Teagarden, and McPartland take the solos. Settell is also convinced that the sides are from different dates. He is sure that, although Goodman and Teagarden are on both sides, the trumpet on Farewell Blues is not McPartland but someone like Muggsy Spanier.

We have never heard of Goodman being on the Variety label, and are almost certain there could be no Whoopee Makers sides on this label since the Whoopee Makers were long since defunct when the Variety label was in business in the late 1930s. There is a Jimmy Skiles who played trombone with Tommy Dorsey in 1941 and 1942 and Freddy Slack later on, so the J. Skiles who helped write Blackberry Jam, and is more than likely in the band, may be him. Index To Jazz lists four titles by this group, with the other coupling being I Can't Give You Anything But Love/My Girl on Vr 516. From all appearances we'd guess that this was one recording date, Mr. Settell to the contrary, and that the trumpeter must be the same on both sides of 584. Master numbers for the four titles would help to clarify the picture. And who is Dude Skiles? Any and all facts on this group would be most welcome.

Harry Crawford has a coupling on Pe 14516 which has proven to be quite perplexing. He knows that it is also to be found on Pat 36335, but whether it appears on any other labels is not known. The label states that the group is the Kansas City Five and the titles are: Dark Gal Blues (31827)/Get It Fixed (31831). The first oddity about the disc is that these masters obviously did not originate with Pathe-Perfect. Their masters were in a series which started at 105,000 and ran upwards to 109,000, when the first two digits were dropped to form a 9,000 series. Therefore it seems these masters were either leased or purchased from some other source. The writer can not recall having seen masters in a 31,000 series except on the Ajax label (Fletcher Henderson sides). The point most interesting to Harry is the gap in masters on the coupling he has on Pe 14516. He would like to know what the three titles between the two on his disc are and on what labels and numbers they are to be found. Any information about this group—personnel, further issues, etc.—will be most helpful. And, incidentally, the sides are good.

Another of Harry Crawford's problem children is on some MacGregor transcriptions by a group quaintly titled the Sextette From Hunger. At one time he had the personnel for this group but somewhere along the line the list vanished. So now Harry is minus the identity of the Sextette except for those men he can remember from the list. He is sure that Andy Secrest is the trumpeter, Joe Yukl blows the trombone, and Eddie Scrivanek handles the guitar work. The others he just forgot, which is our concern now. We've heard the group's work and will hazard a guess as to the piano man being Stan Wrightsman. But who plays the clarinet, bass, and drums? Then too, there are two other instruments that pop up on one or two of the tunes on these transcriptions. The group is composed, on all titles, of trumpet, trombone, clarinet, piano, guitar, bass, and drums. But on at least one an alto sax appears and on another there's a vibraphone. Do any of the six men on all sides double on these instruments or are there extra men added? Anyone able to clarify this picture for us?

We are very interested in receiving reports from readers of any odd labels they have run across at any time. The Opera-phone mentioned earlier in this column is a good example. Please give us titles, masters (if any), catalog numbers, bands, label name and description, approximate date of the disc.

Now let's close up shop for the month with Harmony 1062. This is Dixie Jamboree (100341) by Rudy Marlow and His Orchestra. There are solos on trumpet, clarinet, trombone, guitar, piano, and tenor sax. Your columnist would climb out a thin limb and say possibly Stan King on drums, Dick McDonough on guitar, Jimmy Dorsey on clarinet, and Miff Mole on trombone. Does anyone have any definite dope on this group? How about other titles by the same outfit?

Dodo Marmarosa Trio

Bopmatism Trade Winds

There are only a few really topnotch piano men around, and Dodo is one of them. He seems to be able to play with anybody, or by himself, very well; in this case he is aided by drummer Jackie Mills and bassman Babison, on a couple of neat numbers, the better being Bopmatism.

A number of modern pianists are too entranced by their discovery of advanced harmony to bother doing much with it. I have no real objection to the endless succession of complex chords, and the introspective toying with secret nuances favored by Lennie Tristano, except that his ability to connect with his audience is necessarily limited. Nat Cole has a genius for making his ideas obvious, Bud Powell is always fascinating because of his nonchalant playing at impossible tempos, Monk's perversity and non-conformist honesty are compelling even to people who don't like what he's doing; for some reason Dodo, although he is advanced enough for anyone's taste, is able to express himself with ease, as he does here. A thoroughly musicianly job.

I don't know why the bop tune, You Go to My Head, has to be called Trade Winds. This isn't a real conversion job, like How High the Moon/Ornithology, but a nice, relaxed treatment of a pretty undisguised

Anyway, this record won't do Dodo's reputation any harm. (Dial 752) (P.B.)

J. C. Heard's Orchestra

Ollopa This is It

J. C., the James Cagney of the music business, or possibly the James J. Walker, has assembled a glittering septet of stars for this date, and for Ollopa he is to be congratulated. Everybody blows like mad, in admirable sequence (starting with the very popular Wardell Gray on tenor) and with wonderful cohesion. If there is a modern counterpart of Cootie Williams, I would say he is Joe Newman, the gleeful trumpet player—he knows what he's doing, and he enjoys it a great deal. So do I. Then there is an astonishing bass solo by Al McKibbon, the best Al Haig piano I've ever heard, good baritone by Tate Houston, and resplendent drumming by J. C. (himself) Heard.

Although This Is It isn't the ball of fire

Although This Is It isn't the ball of fire Ollopa is, there's plenty to recommend it, particularly a juicy trombone chorus by Benny Green, who's beginning to make himself known. The tune is pretty much like Robbins Nest, neatly played, but it's the solos that justify the side.

Altogether, a laudable release. (Apollo 783) (P.B.)

Sonny Stitt Quintette

Seven-Up

The thin, piercing tone of Stitt's alto compares poorly with Payne's, on the reverse of this disc, although this is probably a more typical bop number. That doesn't mean good or bad, just that most modern alto men seem to feel that the ideas don't come out right unless the tone is by courtesy of Charlie Parker, a thesis which leaks badly. Anyway, Sonny plays some agile horn, as does McKinley Durham (he's called Kinney Dorham on the label, but I think I'm right. Maybe he should call himself Joe Smith, by way of eliminating confusion) on trumpet, and Bud Powell on piano gets off some speedy runs. As far as I'm concerned, the best man on this date is drummer Kenny Clarke, better now than he ever was. He's not as dynamic as usual here, but who is? (Savoy 930) (P.B.)

You'll notice that his content and technique are much like Bix's. Here you have the tremendous upsurge, the seeking after, and now confes the pain, the knowledge that beauty cannot be held, that we are all earthlings. Keats mentions "fairylands forlorn," and then he sighs.

"Forlorn! the very word is like a bell To toll me back from thee to my sole self! Adieu! adieu! thy plaintive anthem fades, Past the near meadows, over the still stream, Up the hillside, and now 'tis buried deep In the next valley glades.

Was it a vision or a waking dream? Fled is that music . . . Do I wake or sleep?"

Do you notice the tapering off in those last two lines—the stops and starts . . the regression, the pauses . . the dying down, the offbeats? Try beating with your foot, in a steady, medium 4/4 tempo, as you read the lines aloud. There's a lot of Bix technique here! And have you noticed the end of some of Bix's choruses, the horn almost muted after its high flights eight bars before, the coming back to earth, the maneuvering for a smooth spot for a landing. The two seem very much the same.

Bix would probably not have known what the Hippocrene was, nor did I until I looked it up and discovered that it was a sacred fountain. Nor, probably, would he have recognized a nightingale if he had heard one. But all that doesn't matter. That important term, "content"—the emotional charge underlying the words and the chorus—seems the same with both men. One was a poet living in a distant age, and he was speaking about his feelings towards life. The other was a poet-musician living in quite a different age, but saying much the same thing in, for example, his two choruses of I'm Coming Virginia. Both exhibit the same take-off, the same climb, both hold the flight for a few moments, and then reluctantly turn earthwards to land hesitantly, but gracefully. If you read Keats' words aloud, I think you'll feel it.

It was this lyric tumbling of notes, which Keats produced with words, that so characterized Bix. You'll see that Keats' words, separated from the context, mean little, and there are some whose meanings we don't quite know. But put together and read aloud they convey an emotion, express a content we can recognize. Bix, too, would hit notes that aren't on any scale, and which, if separated from the chorus, would not make much sense. But when put together, each tumbling towards his neighbor, reaching, always moving, we listen and smile and say, "that's Bix!"

And so we come perhaps to the true point, the instinctive reason why Bix is worshipped, why his music is so stimulating to so many. Bix was more than his music, and his music meant more than the notes which made his choruses. The fact that he probably didn't know this, and might have contested it, makes little difference. It even might have embarrassed him. Yet maybe he did know it after all, for his musings at the piano, the strange and haunting harmonies he found on the keyboard, are another evidence of this search, this quest for that something which lay just beyond. Keats might have been more verbal in saying what he was looking for, but after all, that was the nature of Keats' business. Bix though, in his own way, verbalized it equally well.

Now Bix is dead, and most of us know him only through his records; we never actually heard him or met him. And yet we're sorry. Seventeen years ago, we feel, something happened which cheated us of the opportunity of hearing a guy we'd like to hear. Buddy Bolden is a curiosity, but Bix is more of a regret. And I think that is so because in many ways we are identified with Bix. He was a seeker, and many of us are also seekers. Through his music he said something about being born, and dying, about pain and about love, about the ways of the world and about the way we wish it might be. He may not have been clear about all these things, but as a total personality he commented on them. And his comments touch us all—all of us who are engaged in this business of living, and loving, and feeling . . . and wishing. Life is more than just music, and paradoxically, Bix used his music to say just that.

ping, accompanied by a small portable organ which the pastor lugged to and fro, before and after every service, in his horse and buggy.

In payment for their late afternoon chores about the beer joints as helpers to the regularly employed porters, the youths received a platter of cold cuts, a gob of root or alcoholic beer, a package of Sweet Caporal Cigarettes if they smoked (few did) and about 25c in cash. Then they retired to the back rooms to ramble over the piano ivories, to learn all they could of the challenging keyboard, without benefit of professional tutors or reading a note of music. They learned and played entirely by ear. The more gifted and energetic youths emerged masters of the hot piano—which eventually led to "regular" jobs on 3rd Avenue, with fixed pay, gratuities and free eats. Between 25th and 58th Streets, 3rd Avenue had many beer saloons, frequented by horse-race touts, bookmakers, gamblers, as well as the legitimate thirsty.

A few "masters" of the hot piano entered the show business in New York; others joined traveling vaudeville and minstrel outfits. Bert Williams, of the immortal vaudeville team of Williams & Walker, who did an entire season at the Koster & Beals Music Hall on 34th Street near 7th Avenue through the fall and winter 1898-1899, engaged three of these syncopating geniuses, adding a new routine to their traditional Ragtime and Cake Walk revues. Walker, a nimble buck and wing dancer, whose specialty was the "Chicken Reel," did some entirely new steps to the 8-beat knocked out on three pianos with supporting flares by the pit orchestra.

The 8-beat under any pseudonym did not necessarily have its inception in the twenties, as legend would have some of us believe. It goes back much farther, for during the years 1902 to 1906 it was my privilege to hear Negro chants and spirituals in the cane brakes and on the cotton plantations of southern Georgia. I listened intently to blues, stomps and 8-beats in the agricultural and industrial regions of Alabama. In retrospect tremains vivid and spectacular in the light of the "beat's" growing popularity a half century later.

Think of "Golddiggers" and you will probably think of the inevitable leading man of the series, a shy, good-looking youngster who was snapped up by the Hollywood moguls after making a number of discs for the old

After an evening spent listening to the boyish, affable Dick Powell of 42nd Street and Footlight Parade on Brunswick and Decca, it's something of a shock to realize that he and the snarling tough guy of current cinematic adventures are one and the same person.

Time flies, so they say. Only yesterday Irene Dunne was a young leading lady recording Jerome Kern's brain-children for Brunswick, and Shirley Temple, now a proud mama, was lisping the lyrics of Good Ship Lollypop on an English Voice of The

"Our Dancing Daughters," "Our Modern Maidens," and "Our Blushing Brides" were the little horrors which brought fame to a wide-eyed song and dance ingénue by the name of Joan Crawford. A few years later, a million shop-girls sighed with sweet sorrow through their spearmint when Joan turned to Jimmy Stewart in "The Ice Follies" and confessed in song It's All So New To Me. This epic moment is recreated on Victor 26205. On the reverse side is a mournful dirge, I'm in Love with the Honorable Mr. So and So. Miss Crawford gives it a good going over.

One of Joan's first musicals was "Dancing Lady" with Clark Gable and Franchot Tone and songs by Burton ("Finian's Rainbow") Lane. A couple of glorified chorus boys lost amid the cardboard staircases and cellophane stars in this "towering, triumphant back-stage romance" were Nelson Eddy and Fred Astaire.

Eddy's recordings from "Naughty Marietta," "Rose Marie" and "Maytime" can not, by any stretch of the imagination, be called collectors' items. They're easily available to anyone who wants 'em.

Astaire's many Brunswicks and Victors, on the other hand, are a lot harder to track down. His co-star, Ginger Rogers, is represented on Bluebird, on Polydor (with Jimmy Dorsey), and on Decca singing Don't Mention Love (one of Oscar Levant's tunes) and Eenie Meenie Miney Mo (with Johnny

An unfortunately large number of radio and recording artists never fared too well out Hollywood way. Their movies, on the whole, were pretty dismal, lame affairs. However, the numbers they introduced in their celluloid vehicles are pleasant enough.

For example: Harry Richman's Let's Go, Sophie Tucker's Feathering a Nest, the Boswell sisters' Rock and Roll from their musical "Transatlantic Merry Go Round" with Jack Benny, Tony Martin's Slightly Terrific, Helen Morgan's Give Me a Heart to Sing To, Lanny Ross' Stay As Sweet As You Are, Carl Brisson's Cocktails for Two, Kate Smith's MOON SONG, and Kenny Baker's Love Walked In from that spectacular mulligan stew "The Goldwyn Follies."

Routines from the movies of Burns and Allen, Laurel and Hardy, Joe E. Brown and many other clowns and comics are to be had if you know where to look for them—preferably in some dark, dingy, out of the way music shop, or in the pages of The Record Changer, of course.

You can even hear again, on records, the assorted squeals and squeaks of Mickey Mouse, Betty Boop and Popeye, a couple of brisk military marches conducted by one C. Chaplin, and several of Will Rogers' shrewd,

Hollywood comedians who have raised their voices in song on records (with frankly varying results) include Martha Raye, Elsa Lanchester, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Green-wood, Marie Dressler, Jimmy Durante, Bob Hope and Eddie Cantor.

The Cantor numbers (waxed during the days when he was being paid $1000 per recording) from "Palmy Days" (There's Nothing Too Good for My Baby), "The Kid From Spain" (II'hat a Perfect Combination) and "Kid Millions" (O. K. Toots) are

Also from "Kid Millions," you should listen to Ethel Merman, one of the stars of the picture, as she goes to town on An Earful of Music (Br.) in that rowdy, aggressive, totally disarming way she has.

In Eddie Cantor's "Roman Scandals," produced by Samuel Goldwyn, Ruth Etting played the willowy "love slave"—dressed in played the willowy "love slave"—dressed in sequins, ostrich feathers, and very little else. No More Love from this musical ranks

Incidentally, "Roman Scandals" scripted by George S. Kaufman and Robert E. Sherwood. Cantor had expensive gagwriters in those days.

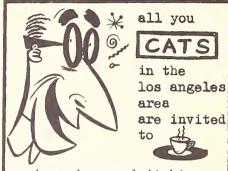

Perhaps the top musical comedy team of the 30's out on the west coast was Maurice Chevalier and Jeannette MacDonald who, rumor hath it, fought like cats and dogs off the set, but looked deep into each other's eyes, smiled sweetly and warbled Dream Lover, Love Me Tonight, Isn't It Romantic when facing the camera.

In addition to the above, Miss MacDonald has recorded One Hour with You, Beyond the Blue Horizon and a great many other appropriately soupy selections for Victor.

It's a Habit of Mine, Nobody's Using it
Now, It's a Great Life if You Don't Weaken boasted her partner—that is, when he wasn't waxing the praises of Louise, Mitzi or Mimi.

Infectious stuff, Hollywood personality recordings. They can be mighty entertaining additions to the curious, quixotic, exasperating and ever-intriguing pursuit known as record collecting.

these smallish records is identical with some old Victor and Columbia records that my grandfather left to me. I believe that they are vintage of about 1906.

VALE

On February 10th last, Giovanni Zenatello affixed his signature to his last will and testament. The following afternoon at about one o'clock he suffered a heart-attack. Emergency calls were put through to three physicians, each and all of whom found it convenient to forego the professional opportunity. A fourth medico responded to discover upon his leisurely arrival that the original "Pinkerton" had gone Home alone.

Those who knew and loved this jolly gentleman were deeply moved by the tribute gentleman were deeply moved by the tribute of one of their number, Mr. Wally Butterworth, who that same night dedicated his radio program of Voices That Live Forever to the tenor's memory, concluding with a record of which Mr. Zenatello was proud: Morte di Riccardo from Un Ballo in Maschera, in which the final phrases are "Farewell, my brothers. . . men like him, still retains a tremendous amount of validity and meaning and enjoyment for us. Superficially, 1949 and the 1930's are vastly different times. I have never been inclined to argue with those whose support of be-bop is based on the fact that it is "music of our times." To the naked ear it is apparent that bop sounds like the jittered-up world of today, and that a Joe Sullivan chorus on his Little Rock Getaway sounds like upstairs at the old Onyx Club, or an 8 A. M. session with Pix in a place that smelled like a brewery. And it is also undeniable that there is an air of nostalgia to any account such as this one, that makes it seem a bit more like ancient history than a story of the very recent past. But if for no better reason than that Sullivan, and jazzmen of his type, are still with us—comparatively young, still playing heartily—incurable romantics like myself (and like, I suspect, most readers of this magazine) will go on enjoying what they play. And as long as such musicians continue by they continue to remind us that "yesterday" and "today" are fairly empty relative terms. A fine musician, steadfastly interpreting jazz in the style he has selected. and to which he has chosen to remain faithful, remains a rare treat that the vagaries of current taste cannot minimize. The very fact that we'd a damn sight rather listen to Joe Sullivan than to any be-bop pianist you care to name probably is—all by itself—a most convincing argument.

CLOSING DATE FOR BIDS
On all Records advertised for auction in this issue will be MAY 20, 1949
UNLESS OTHERWISE STATED

NOTE:

All persons using the medium of the Record Changer in the buying, selling or trading of phonograph records, do so subject to these Rules and Regulations:

1. A collector or person who solicits and receives advance remittance for a record must send the record within a period of four weeks.

 A collector or person who orders and receives a record prepaid must pay for it within a period of four weeks.

3. A collector or person who obtains a record in trade must fulfill his end of the trade within a period of four weeks.

4. A collector or person who requests that a record be shipped C.O.D. must accept the shipment unless the shipment is damaged in transit. (A bid on an auction or an order from a sale which states that records will be shipped C.O.D. unless otherwise instructed, is considered a request for C.O.D. shipment.)

The name of the person or collector who violates the above rules will be printed in the Record Changer upon the first violation, and the violation will be described. (Exception: where breakage or over-grading is concerned, the record is to be returned promptly to the shipper. If the parties involved do not arrive at a settlement, the matter is to be referred to the American Record Collectors Board.)
