PREFACE.

In presenting to the public the fifth directory of Durham, or rather the first of "Greater Durham," the publisher desires to thank sincerely each and every one who have encouraged the enterprise, although the patronage has not been sufficient to make the undertaking a success from a financial point of view.

Approximately 10,000 names are given in this book; and a complete census made by careful and experienced canvassers gives Durham and suburbs a population of 16,769. Within the corporate limits the population is 12,935, a gain of 5,760 since the last Federal census of 1900 which was 6,679; but it should be borne in mind that by an act of the last General Assembly considerable more territory was added to the City proper.

On pages 10 and 11 will be found a complete statement of the number of white and colored citizens in Durham, East Durham, West Durham and suburbs. Errors will be found in this Volume as in most Directories and the book is not what was originally contemplated, but the best that could be made under the circumstances.
