PREFACE.

No. XXVII. 1901.

The purpose of "ACADEMY NOTES" is to be descriptive rather than critical; to form a supplement to the Official Catalogue which should be both interesting as a record and useful for reference. This was the original plan of the book, which has remained unaltered since its first appearance in 1875, as the forerunner of all similar publications.

The present number is distinguished, as before, by including reproductions of pictures by Royal Academicians, Associates, and others, which do not appear in any other work.

There exists no actual Catalogue of the Exhibition excepting the Official one.

ACADEMY NOTES is the only book published complete on the opening day with a summary of the contents of the Galleries, illustrations of the pictures in their proper order, sizes of canvas, and other information.

It possesses, therefore, a peculiar advantage over publications containing reproductions without any order or indication of the relative importance of the works, which may or may not be hung in the Exhibition.

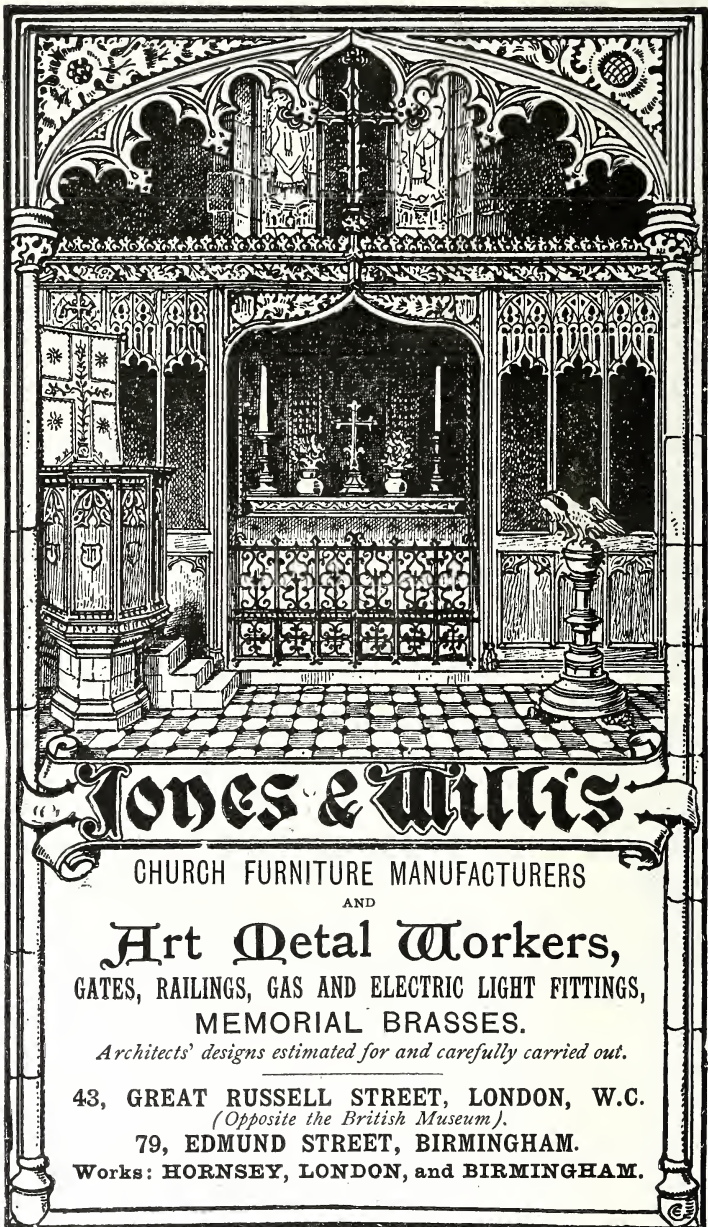

The omission of a sketch of any important picture is due in most cases to some objection on the part of the artist, or owner of copyright.

POTTER ; 140, " The grandchildren of Michael B. Nairn, Esq.," HARRINGTON MANN.

GALLERY III. [Illustrations, pp. 58-77.]

The dominating feature of this room is M. Benjamin Constant's large portrait of Queen Victoria, the sole canvas on the west wall ; the other central positions are taken by the President's " Helena and Hermia," and, opposite to this, Sir L. Alma-Tadema's " Under the roof of blue Ionian weather."

144, " At San Rocco, Venice," HENRY WOODS, R.A. (sketch, p. 58).

146, " St. Helena : The last phase," JAMES SANT, R.A.

The head of Napoleon.

147, " Hoghton Mill," ERNEST A. WATERLOW, A.R.A. (sketch, p. 59).

148, " The late Duke of Westminster, K.G." (Painted for the Public Library of St. George's Hanover Square, by subscription of inhabitants of the parish). Seated in his library. WILLIAM CARTER.

149, " Her late Majesty Queen Victoria." (Exhibited by command of H.M. the King). BENJAMIN CONSTANT.

Her Majesty is seated on the throne in the House of Lords, wearing a crown and the blue riband of the Garter, with point-lace over a black dress. Patches of sunlight on the background and floor of the chamber. The picture is carried out in golden and brown tones (sketch, p. 60).

150, " When Jove makes hay with the weather," ROBERT W. MACBETH, A.R.A. A storm-cloud over a haymaking party.

151, " H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York," HON. JOHN COLLIER. In naval uniform, as Master of the Trinity House.

153, " Katwyk beach : stormy sunset ; Dutch boats returning from sea," EDWIN HAYES.

155, " Confidence," JAMES SANT, R.A. (sketch, p. 61).

160, " Nature's rest," R. GWELO GOODMAN (sketch, p. 62).

161, " The Duke of Norfolk, K.G.," P. TENNYSON COLE.

In khaki uniform.

162, "The nearest way home," H. W. B. DAVIS, R.A.

163, "Crusaders sighting Jerusalem," E. A. ABBEY, R.A.

Three champions in chain-mail and white surcoats with the red cross gaze eastwards from a rocky eminence. One of them, wearing a crown, upholds the black and white flag of the Knights Templars; the middle one kneels bare-headed, with his flat-topped casque on the rock before him, and, like the third, holds his sword reverently crosswise. Behind and below them is the army; in the far distance a gleam of the Mediterranean.

164, "Collecting the flock," PETER GRAHAM, R.A. (sketch, p. 63.)

165, "Mrs. C. H. B. Forth," RICHARD JACK.

166, "The hill-top," ARNESBY BROWN.

169, "Helena and Hermia," SIR E. J. POYNTER, P.R.A.

"We, Hermia, like two artificial gods,
Have, with our needles, created both one flower,
Both on one sampler."—Midsummer Night's Dream, Act III., Sc. 2.

The fair girl to the right in blue with pink ribbon round her hair is Helena; Hermia is dark, with yellow fillet, and wears a greenish yellow robe. They are seated on a marble bench, near a huge Scotch fir-bole and laurel bushes with a stelé of Bacchus. A mountainous coast and sea in the background.

170, "Serena captive," JOHN DA COSTA.

"And first they spoil her of her jewels deare,
And afterwards of all her rich array."

561, "Tristram and Iseult," H. J. DRAPER.

Following the version of Sir Thomas Malory (1480). Tristram has been sent by King Mark of Cornwall to fetch Iseult, Princess of Ireland, to be the King's bride. They have just drunk the love-potion committed by Iseult's mother to the maid Bragwain's keeping. The princess stands on a grey wolf-skin in the after part of a half-decked ship. She is garbed in a long white robe with green border and reflections, a shamrock-green cloak falling away from her shoulders. She has the Irish grey eyes and blue-black hair confined by a gold torque. Stretching her arms down in self-abandonment, she gazes at the young Tristram, who stands opposite to her, struggling between honour and passion. He wears the skin of a bear over a chain-mail corselet and cross-gartered trews, and holds the fatal cup in his hand. Bragwain, clad in coarser violet garments, lies, overcome with sleep, behind Iseult. Below the group, amidships, are seen the savage-looking crew, two at each oar. The curious Keltic fittings of the ship, the shields on the foc's'le, the brown sails, and the iron fighting-top of the foremast were obtained from the "Book of Kells."

PREFACE.

No. XXVIII. 1902.

The purpose of "ACADEMY NOTES" is to be descriptive rather than critical; to form a supplement to the Official Catalogue which should be both interesting as a record and useful for reference. This was the original plan of the book, which has remained unaltered since its first appearance in 1875, as the forerunner of all similar publications.

For the present number a new cover has been specially designed by Mr. Linley Sambourne, and the book is distinguished, as before, by including reproductions of pictures by Royal Academicians and others, which do not appear in any other work.

There exists no actual Catalogue of the Exhibition excepting the Official one.

ACADEMY NOTES is the only book published complete on the opening day with a summary of the contents of the Galleries, illustrations of the pictures in their proper order, sizes of canvas, and other information.

It possesses, therefore, a peculiar advantage over publications containing reproductions without any order or indication of the relative importance of the works, which may or may not be hung in the Exhibition.

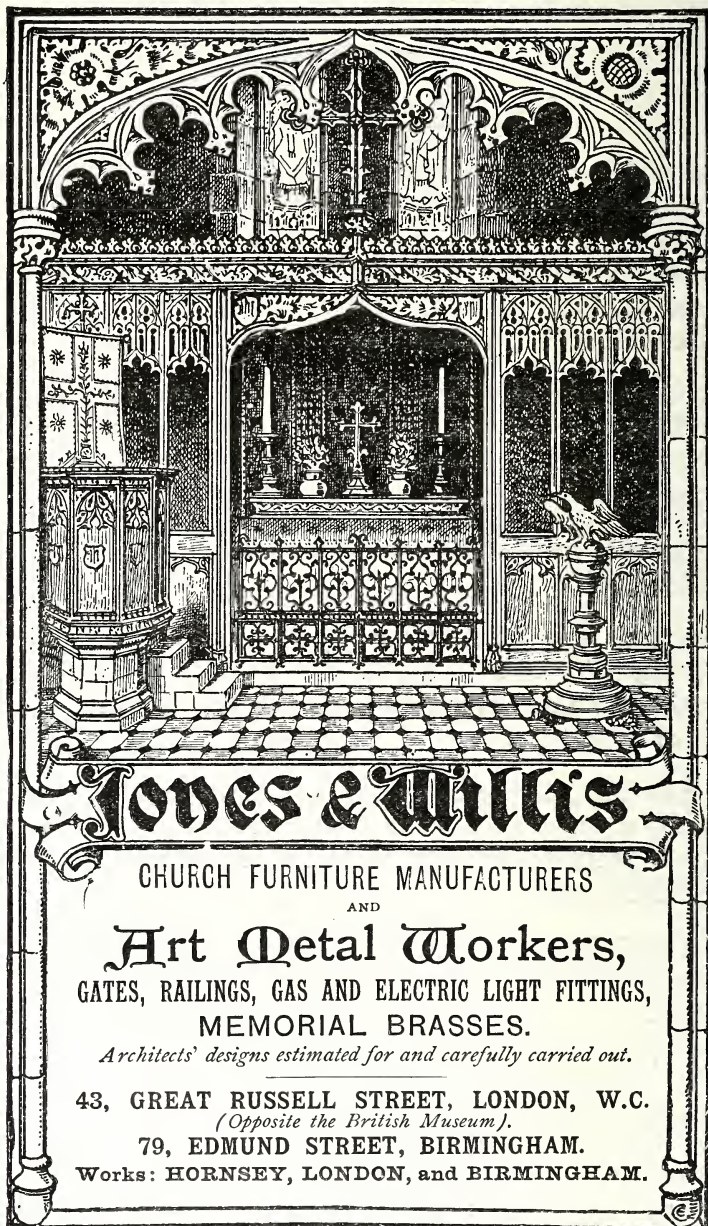

The omission of a sketch of any important picture is due in most cases to some objection on the part of the artist, or owner of copyright.

Bankers—LONDON AND WESTMINSTER BANK, 1, St. James's Square, S.W.

Secretary—MANDEVILLE B. PHILLIPS.

The Committee earnestly APPEAL FOR LIBERAL HELP both in the way of Offertories, Donations, Subscriptions, and Clothing. They assist the Clergy, their widows and orphans, in times of sickness, bereavement, or other temporary distress. The Committee are making earnest efforts to meet the present great distress among the Clergy.

The Committee meet twice in each month, to consider the cases brought before them, and to make grants. They are guided solely in their decision by the WANT and WORTH of the Applicant.

The Corporation has aided, to May 1902, nearly 21,000 cases of Clerical distress, with sums varying in amounts from £5 to £75, besides clothing, blankets, sheeting, boots, shoes, &c.

Annual Subscriptions and Donations may be paid to the account of the Trustees of THE POOR CLERGY RELIEF CORPORATION, London and Westminster Bank, No. 1, St. James's Square, S.W.; and daily at the Office, 38, Tavistock Place, Tavistock Square, W.C., to MANDEVILLE B. PHILLIPS, Secretary, to whom Cheques and Post-Office Orders should be made payable.

HELP IS EARNESTLY ASKED.

FORM OF LEGACY.

I give unto the Trustees of THE POOR CLERGY RELIEF CORPORATION the sum of £_____ to be paid to the Treasurer of the Corporation for the time being.

SHEWING THE APPROXIMATE POSITION OF SOME OF THE PRINCIPAL WORKS.

* * * The Exhibition opens on Monday, May 4th, and closes Monday, August 3rd.

PREFACE.

No. XXIX. 1903.

The purpose of "ACADEMY NOTES" is to be descriptive rather than critical; to form a supplement to the Official Catalogue which should be both interesting as a record and useful for reference. This was the original plan of the book, which has remained unaltered since its first appearance in 1875, as the forerunner of all similar publications.

The present number is distinguished, as before, by including reproductions of pictures by Royal Academicians, Associates, and others, which do not appear in any other work.

There exists no actual Catalogue of the Exhibition excepting the Official one.

ACADEMY NOTES is the only book published complete on the opening day with a summary of the contents of the Galleries, illustrations of the pictures in their proper order, sizes of canvas, and other information.

It possesses, therefore, a peculiar advantage over publications containing reproductions without any order or indication of the relative importance of the works, which may or may not be hung in the Exhibition.

The omission of a sketch of any important picture is due in most cases to some objection on the part of the artist, or owner of copyright.

59, "Evelyn, daughter of H. Gould, Esq.," HAL HURST.

61, "Flower of wifely patience," GEORGE W. JOY.

"My lord, ye wote that in my father's place
Ye did me stripe out of my poor wede
And richly ye clad me of your grace;
To you brought I nought elles out of drede,
But faith and nakednesse and maidenhood;
And here again your clothing I restore
And eke your wedding ring for evermore."—Chaucer.

A bride, with hair unbound, standing by an antique chest, divests herself of a pale grey robe, while her wedding ring slips off her finger. Other accessories are a coronet and richly embroidered garments lying near.

62, "Mrs. Montrose Cloete," HUGH DE T. GLAZEBROOK (sk. p. 42).

160, "The cave of the storm nymphs," SIR E. J. POYNTER, BART., P.R.A.

"Careless of wreck or ruin, still they sing
Their light songs to the listening ocean caves,
And wreath their dainty limbs, and idly fling
The costly tribute of the cruel waves.

Fair as their mother-foam, and all as cold,
Untouched alike by pity, love or hate;
Without a thought for scattered pearl or gold,
And neither laugh nor tear for human fate."

Three nude sea-maidens, one of whom plays on a scallop-shell lyre, another tosses gold coins, and the third (lying on her back) toys with a casket of jewels. Through the cave entrance a wrecked ship is seen in a pale green sea.

185, "The Bath of Diana," NIELS M. LUND.

The fair-haired goddess, just disrobing, and nine attendant nymphs, are in the foreground by a shaded pool in the vale of Gargaphia, in Boeotia. Two cheetahs and a leopard form part of the group, also a hamadryad in the flowering rhododendrons to the right of the picture. The nymphs have not yet seen the approaching Actæon, but some distant figures and the expression on Diana's face strike a note of alarm, foretelling the intruder's fate to be changed by the goddess into a stag, and torn to pieces by his own fifty hounds. The ruddy morning light breaks over Mount Cithæron in the background behind a forest glade of cedars and cypresses (sketch, p. 61).

 Sir John Boys stands in front of the main entrance surrendering the keys to the Roundhead Colonel Dalbier, in accordance with the King's instructions, on April 1st, 1646. The foreground is filled with soldiers, and the royal flag has been lowered at the summit of the keep. Donnington Castle, close to Newbury, commanded the roads from Oxford to that town, and from London to Bath. It was garrisoned in 1643, and withstood repeated sieges in the Civil war, though in one assault, on September 29th, 1644, three towers and part of the wall were broken down with 1000 "great shot." As a reward for valour, Boys was knighted by the King when he came to Newbury and revictualled Donnington Castle in November 1644. The resolution to banish its gallant defender as one of the seven Royalists in arms against Parliament since January 1st, 1647-8, was negatived. Sir John eventually died at his house at Bonnington, Kent, in 1664, aged 57.

An illustration of Sir Philip Sidney's ballad in the "Percy Reliques," which tells the story of Henry II., Fair Rosamond

(daughter of Walter, Lord Clifford), and Queen Eleanor, at Woodstock, in 1177.

Holinshed's account is :—

“The common report of the people that the queene . . . founde hir out by a silken thread, which the king had drawn after him out of hir chamber with his foot, and dealt with hir in such sharpe and cruell wise that she lived not long after.”

Beneath the picture are three small panels, two filled with roses, and the centre one showing the nuns of Godstow bearing the body of Rosamond to the tomb.

 " Hear, Nature, hear ! dear goddess, hear !"

An allegory of humanity beseeching nature to give them love. Among the various types are a bride, crouching at the feet of the central figure, a king, next to him a beggar, and a rich man offering to buy the gift with gold ; behind the king is a minstrel with his lute.

On the other side, a knight in armour, as a type of war, casts a shadow on the form of nature; behind him kneels a widow, and next her, a judge. One other figure, a monk, does not kneel, but turns from his book (a type of a false ideal). Spring time; they crush the flowers under foot in their eagerness for the rose. Sunset. (sk. p. 127).
