POTERY.

The Orphan's Dream.

BY MARIE BARTON.

'Twas night—a starless lonely night,
And nature seemed to mourn,
The wild wind sighed along the heights
Where weary ones are borne
To sleep within the tomb.
Methought beneath a lowly roof
This aching head was laid,
And on this pallid cheek, the proof
Of sorrows deepest shade,
While thus I read my doom.

I am alone, neglected now;
No friendly hand is here
To smooth my pillow, bathe my brow,
To check the falling tear
Of grief-bespeaking sigh.
The storm is raging wild without,
I hear the rain drops fall,
I'll wrap this mantle close about
My form, and once more call—
They do not hear my cry.

Why did they leave me thus alone,
These fragments for a bed?
'Tis cold and damp—light almost gone,
No strength to raise my head,
No water by my side.
What mean these letters on the wall?
Some hand hath traced them there
In answer to my earnest call,
My deeply fervent prayer;
I must their words abide.

"Frail invalid, thou once wert blest
With father, mother, home—
No child was ever more caressed
Beneath a loftier dome,
Or more beloved than thou.
In nature's wildest, sweetest nook,
Thy fairy home was made,
Beside the mossy, murmuring brook,
Beneath the greenwood shade,
Where silvery waters flow.

"Then buoyant hope, and blooming health,
And all thy young heart sought,
Came to thy home in showers of wealth,
With love and beauty fraught,
Without a care to mar
The happiness which round thee shed
A lustre bright and fair,
And strewed the path for thee to tread
With roses rich and rare,
For thou wert a household star.

"Now all have fled, and adverse winds
Sweep o'er thy young-life's sky,
A homeless orphan seldom finds
Friends on whom she may rely—
They hide when sorrows come."
Ah, truthful words! I see it all;
Friends have forsaken me;
The shining letters on the wass
Bespeak the prophecy,
Because I have no home.

Here must I die in grief alone,
Because misfortune's child;
No one to hear my dying moan,
Or gaze with pity mild
Into this cheerless room.
But list! O hark! what do I hear?
Footsteps approaching now;
Forms by my bedside now draw near
And o'er the orphan bow,
Dispelling all of gloom.

Father and mother, ye have come,
Welcome, my parents dear;
Oh take the wanderer to thy home,
I have no friends left here.
Adieu, cold world, adieu,
I leave this lonely sick-room, where
I've suffered many a day,
For peaceful mansions, bright and fair,
Away—yes, far away.
Parents, I go with you.

—Bay State Chronicle.

ANECDOTE OF M'DONALD CLARKE, THE MAD POET.—Everybody remembers McDonald Clarke, who was well known in New York, a few years since, as the "Mad Poet." During the last years of his life Clarke made free of the Astor House table, and oftentimes this errant man of genius could be seen accepting its hospitalities when other doors were closed on his fallen fortunes. Every one knew Clarke by sight; and one day, while quietly taking his dinner, two travelers seated themselves opposite, commenced conversation intended for the ears of Clark. One said:

"Well, I have now been in New York two months, and have seen all that I wish to see with one exception."

"Ah!" said the other, "what is that?"
"McDonald Clarke, the great poet," responded No. 1, with a strong emphasis. Clark raised his eyes slowly from his plate, and seeing the attention of the table was on him, stood up, placing his hand over his heart, and bowing with great gravity to the strangers, said:

"I am McDonald Clark the great poet." The traveler started in mock surprise, gazed at him in silence for a few moments, then amidst an audible titter of the company, drew from his pocket a quarter silver dollar, and laying it before Clark, still looked at him without a smile. Clarke raised the quarter in silence and dignity, bestowed it in his pocket, drew thence a shilling, which he deposited before the traveler with these words:

"Children half price."
The titter raised to a roar, and the travelers were missing instantaneously.

THERE is a chap out West, with hair so red, that when he goes out before day he is taken for sunrise, and the cocks begin to crow.

AN English paper advertises for sale "a perfect lady's horse." We don't care about the horse, but the perfect lady would be worth having.

A MARVELOUS STORY.—Some people have photographic memories. If they see a face once, under circumstances calculated to impress it upon their recollection, it remains there forever. The memories of others are looking-glasses, from which the image passes as the substance is removed. One of the most extraordinary specimens of the former class of memories we have heard of, is said to be possessed by a gentleman of New Orleans. It is, indeed, if our authority is to be believed, "wax to receive and marble to retain." Our informant says that some months ago, this New Orleans phenomenon—who, by the way, is an officer of the United States Army—acosted an individual on the levee with—"How do you do, my good fellow, glad to see you looking so well. But that was an awful scene we got to: was it not?"

"Sir," said the accosted, gravely, "you have the advantage of me."
"Had the advantage of you, you mean—but not much; you were down nearly as soon as I was."

"Sir," said the party addressed, still more gravely, "you speak in riddles. Will you be so good as to explain?"
"Ah!" responded the phenomenon, "don't remember, I suppose. Quite natural. We had only a passing glimpse of each other."
"So, you probably mistake me for some one else," replied the other, much more mystified than ever.

"N't a bit of it," said the man with photographic memory. "You were on board the steamer—, when she blew up near Memphis on the 22d of April, a 31 minutes past 11 o'clock A. M., nine years ago, were you not?"

"Yes, I was; but"—
"But me no buts. So was I. You were blown up sky high. So was I. Not that I saw you before the explosion. My first and only interview with you, sir, was in the air. You were going up as I was coming down. The glimpse that I had of you was necessarily short. Your features were distorted with fright; our paces were killing, and I was wrong side up. Consequently, my opportunities for observation were unfavorable.—But I never forget faces under any circumstances, however decomposing. I photographed you, sir, and I have had you in my mind's eye's ever since. The moment I saw you I recognized you as the original of my mental daguerreotype. Glad to see you looking in better trim than when I saw you last. Suppose we adjourn where we can crack a bottle of champagne for the sake of auld lang syne."

"Which," said our informant, as he wound up the story, "they accordingly did."

A LYING MATCH.—Judge M——, late of Mississippi, who was a gentleman remarkable for a proclivity to exaggerate and tell hard stories, on one occasion was seated in front of the principal hotel in Clinton, amusing a group of gentlemen with his peculiar narratives, when he delivered himself as follows: "Gentlemen, in East Tennessee, where I was raised, I knew a man who had the most astonishing strength in his jaws and teeth of any man that ever lived. I saw him once standing on the sunny side of a barn, with his old hat under his arm, filled with black walnuts, and he just put them in his mouth and cracked them as easily as one of you would crack a chestnut!" The auditors exchanged looks of incredulity. A quizzical and facetious blade, known as Kentucky Satchelford, was present, and heard the Judge's story, and remarked: "No doubt, Judge, of the truth of all you have said. Some men are remarkably strong. Now, in South Carolina, where I lived, one of my neighbors was noted for the extraordinary muscular strength of his arm. I remember to have seen him take a hard pine knot, place it in the elbow, and suddenly bringing his forearm upward, he split the knot into splinters and pressed out all the turpentine in a stream!" The narrative of Kentucky was received with peals of laughter. Judge M——, became indignant, and springing to his feet, with clinched fist, and flaming eyes, exclaimed: "Kentucky, that's an enormous lie!"

THE TOMATO AS FOOD.—Dr. Bennett, a professor of some celebrity, considers the tomato an invaluable article of diet, and ascribes to it various important medical properties. First, that the tomato is one of the most powerful aperients of the liver and other organs; where calomel is indicated, it is probably one of the most affective and less harmful remedial agents known to the profession. Second, that a chemical extract will be obtained from it that will supersede the use of calomel in the cure of disease. Third, that he has successfully treated darrhons with this article alone. Fourth, that when used as an article of diet it is an almost sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion. Fifth, that when constantly used as a daily food, either cooked or raw, or in the form of catsup; it is the most healthy article now in use.

Irish Witticisms.

Rev. Henry Giles, in a recent lecture, spoke of Irish wit and humor as displayed by the educated classes and by the peasantry. Swift's wit was scathing, burning, with an element of fierceness; the social wit of Sheridan was sportive; Canning's was keen and bitter, as when the curate was anxious to have him praise his sermon, and could elicit from him nothing but the remark that it was short. "Oh, yes," said the curate, "I am careful not to be tedious." "But sir, you do not succeed," said Canning, "you were brief, but you were tedious also." Curran's wit was the ideal of fancy and oddity, as when he remarked of an Irishman in Hyde Park, who kept his tongue thrust out of his mouth, that he was probably trying to catch the English accent! The amusing bulls of Sir Boyle Roche were alluded to. He was not only witty in his blunders, but in his correction of them. Thus after exclaiming in Parliament, "Why should we do anything for posterity? What has posterity done for us?" he explained himself by remarking that by posterity he did not mean our ancestors, but those who are to come after us! Sir Jonah Barrington said of Lord Norbury that he had a hand for everybody, but a heart for nobody. That was a fearful jest of Norbury's on sentencing to death a thief who had stolen a watch, "you made a grasp at time, my lad, but egad, you clutched eternity." The wit of the peasant was illustrated by the remark of a beggar on being told by a gentleman that he never gave alms to strangers, "Sure, then, your honor will never relieve an angel! "Take those stones out of my way," roared Dr. Abernethy to an Irish pavior in front of his door. "And where shall I take them, sir?" "Take them to hell!" said the enraged doctor. "And sure, wouldn't the other place be more out of your honor's way?" A doctor retained in court as a witness complained to the judge that if he was kept from his patients so long they might recover in his absence. But bulls are not confined to Ireland. Sir Isaac Newton made a practical bull when, having made a hole in his door for his cat to enter, he also made a smaller hole for her kitten! A story was told of a priest, who, it being Friday, had just helped himself to a whole salmon, with the remark, "It is a fast day with me, gentlemen," when a great fellow with red whiskers, reached across the table, and cutting the fish in two, took half of it with the remark, "Bad luck to ye, do ye think nobody has a soul to be saved but yourself?"

WORDS IN DICTIONARIES.—The publishers of Webster's Dictionary, in order to determine the claims put forth by the publishers of Worcester, have had the words in the vocabularies of the two counted, and the ems in each measured, with the following result: The vocabulary proper of Webster contains 99,780 words, the appendices 40,276, making a total of 140,056; that of Worcester 103,855, the appendices 28,551; total, 132,406, making 7,650 more in Webster than in Worcester. The number of ems in Webster is 14,747,352; in Worcester, 13,273,532, leaving a balance of 1,473,820 ems of printed matter in favor of Webster.

IF number, merely, is a standard of superior merit, and we apply it to noses instead of words, China ought to be greatly in advance of the United States in civilization. Two gentlemen were bargaining for a swap of pictures. One finally refused any trade, "because," said he, "there are two owls and a rabbit more in my picture than in yours."—N. Y. Century.

POINT OF ORDER WELL TAKEN.—A windy speaker once ordered a glass of water during a tedious speech in Parliament. "I will rise to a point of order," said Sheridan; "it is out of order for a windmill to go by water."

"HERE, you bogtrotter," said a dandy to an Irish laborer, "come, tell me the biggest lie you ever told in your life and I'll treat you to a whiskey punch."
"And by my soul," quick retorted Pat, "yer honor is a gentleman!"

WHAT CAUSES THE HAIR TO TURN GRAY.—An English writer has recently asserted that an undue proportion of lime in the system is the cause of premature gray hair, and advises to avoid hard water, either for drinking pure or when converted into tea, or coffee, or soup, because hard water is always impregnated with lime. Hard water may be softened by boiling it; let it become cold, then use it as a beverage. It is also stated that a liquid that will color the human hair black, and not stain the skin, may be made by taking one part of bay rum, three parts of olive oil, and one part of good brandy, by measure. The hair must be washed with the mixture every morning, and in a short time the use of it will make the hair beautifully black, without injuring it in the least. The articles must be of the best quality, mixed in a bottle, and always shaken before applied.

FLOWERS.—Many a bright-eyed girl to-day, who works worsted and dances divinely, does not know that a moss-rose is a first cousin to a French turnip, and the mangled-wurzel a poor relation in the poppy family. Flowers are not trifles, as one might know, if he would only think how much pains God has taken with them everywhere; not one unfinished; not one bearing the marks of brush or pencil. Fringing the eternal borders of mountain Winters; gracing the pulseless breast of the old gray granite; everywhere they are humanizing. Murders do not ordinarily wear roses in their button-holes. Villains seldom train vines over cottage doors.—B. F. Taylor.

PADDY'S BOOTS.—A green sprig from the Emerald Isle entered a boot and shoe shop to purchase himself a pair of brogans. After overhauling his stock in trade without being able to suit his customer, the shopkeeper hinted that he would make him a pair to order. "An what'll yer ax to make a good pair of 'em?" was the query. The price was named; the Irishman demurred, but after a "batin down," the thing was a trade. Paddy was about leaving when the other called after him asking: "But what size shall I make them, sir?"
"Och," cried Paddy, promptly, "niver mind about the size, at all—make them as large as ye couvanyently can for the money."

AN INTERESTING DIALOGUE TO A POOR MAN.—Stephen Whitney, who died in New York recently, leaving ten millions, was once met by Jacob Astor, when the following dialogue ensued:—
"Mr. Whitney, I hear you have retired from business." This was after his retirement in 1837.
"Yes," replied Mr. Whitney, "I have retired."
"And how much are you worth?" inquired Mr. Astor.
"About five millions," replied Mr. Whitney.
After studying and thinking in silence for a moment, "Well," said Mr. Astor, "I don't know but it is just as well to retire on that sum as it is to be rich."

A LONG TIME UP.—The steamer S. commanded by Captain S., exploded several years ago with terrible effect, and burned to the water's edge. Captain S. was blown into the air, alighting near a floating cotton bale, upon which he floated uninjured, but much blackened and muddled. Arrived at a village several miles below, to which the news of the disaster had preceded him, he was accosted by the editor of the village paper, with whom he was well acquainted, eager for an item:

"I say, boy, is the S. blown up?"
"Yes."
"Was Captain S. killed?"
"No, I am Captain S."
"The thunder you are! How high were you blown?"
"High enough to think of every mean thing I ever did in my life, before I came down here."

The editor started on a run for his office; the paper was about going to press and not wishing to omit the item of intelligence for the next issue, two weeks off, wrote as follows:
"The steamer S. has burst her boiler, as we learn from Captain S. who says he was up long enough to think of every mean thing he ever done in his life before he lit. We suppose he was up about three months."

A YOUNG lady of extraordinary intellectual capacities, recently addressed the following letter to her cousin: "Dear Kuzsen: The wether is air cold, and I spose whar you is air colder. We is all well, and muther's got the Hoppia Koff, and sister Susan has got a baby, so I hope these fu lines will find you in the same condishun. Rite sune. Yess ophcheunste Kuzsen."

THE miser lives poor to die rich, and is the mere jailer of his house, and the turnkey of his wealth.

Declaration of Homestead.

Persons wishing to procure a correct legal form for making out a Declaration of Homestead, as required by the Act of the last Legislature, with the acknowledgement attached thereto, will find printed blanks, on application to the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS OFFICE. By filling out these blanks themselves, parties will be subject to no other expense than the fees for acknowledgment and record.

No advertisement of a political character will be published in the KNIGHT'S LANDING NEWS unless it is paid for in advance.

Justices Blanks.

Blank Affidavits, Undertakings, Writs of Attachment and Subpoenas, under the NEW LAW, for sale at this Office.

FOR THE STATE FAIR.—The State Fair to be held at Sacramento next week and from accounts will be well represented with stock from this portion of the County. We have heard of the following who will start from here to-morrow: D. N. Hershey, W. J. Frierson, S. Wright, Olney M. Gwinn T. D. Kirk, and several others with fine stock, that will no doubt return with laurels upon their heads.

COUNTY COURT.—The County Court met on Monday last, and after hearing the case of the People vs. See et al., then the Court adjourned to Sept. 29, 1860.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Thomas & Brownell are just completing their stores on Front street. They are a capacious block of brick buildings 60x55 1/2 feet, 14 feet high in the clear of the first story. Mr. Joseph Bailey, of Sacramento, the master mason, deserves much credit for the complete finish and substantial workmanship thereof, both in the style and taste displayed therein. Nor is the wood work any less creditable to S. R. Smith, the carpenter. The buildings are fire-proof, covered in the best and handsomest style. Taken all in all they would be an ornament to any town.

STAGE ATTACKED BY INDIANS.—The C. S. Company's stage was fired upon on Thursday last, near Fort Jones, Scott Valley, by two Indians. A party afterwards found the Indians, and shot them dead.

SUICIDE.—A German named Anthony Miller, aged 38 or 40 years, committed suicide on Sunday night last. The circumstances connected with this affair, are as follows: A few weeks since, Miller, who had been residing at Stockton, sold a saloon in that city—stating at that time under oath, that there was no encumbrance on the property. Two weeks since he came to this city. In the meantime, the facts regarding the property were found out, and a complaint having been made, a warrant issued for the arrest of Miller on charges of swindling and perjury. Last evening, officer Knaggs made the arrest at the National Hotel on K street between First and Second. Miller at once expressed a desire to be taken to Stockton, and the officer started to procure a two-horse team, but was unable to get one. Miller then begged not to be locked up, as he was unwell and had been taking medicine. The officer consented that Miller should spend the night in his room, at the north-east corner of L and Seventh streets. Miller was taken there and left in charge of officer Keyser, while Knaggs went to the stage office to secure seats for Stockton. Soon afterwards it was ascertained that Miller had managed to elude the vigilance of Keyser, and had taken poison. Doctors Morgan and Hall were at once sent for, when it was discovered that the unhappy man had taken morphine—a portion of the medicine being found on his person. The usual remedies were applied, a stomach pump was called in requisition, but they were unavailing, Miller dying about eleven o'clock last night. The body was taken in charge by the Coroner, who ordered it to be removed to True's rooms, on Fourth street between K and L, on Monday last. The jury returned the following verdict: We, the jury, find that Anthony Miller came to his death on the ninth day of September, A. D. 1860, in Sacramento, California, from the effects of morphine self-administered. Signed: S. T. Harris, George Nelson, James Hall, John H. Hildreth, Ulrich Bayer, W. Sidgreaves, Henry R. Lincoln, G. Evans.

ACCIDENT.—Alexander Hite, of the firm of Hite & Brothers, while engaged in threshing on Monday at the ranch of Mr. Gregory, in Yolo county, had his right hand severely injured by being caught between the cog wheels of the machine. Although badly crushed no bones were broken.

ANOTHER DEFAULTING POSTMASTER.—Uncle Sam complains that Allen M. Thatcher, Postmaster at Placerville from 1855 to 1859, did not pay over $2,763 collected by him, and hence, in the United States District Court, sues his bondsmen, John M. Dorsey and David K. Newell.

D. N. Hershey, the owner of the celebrated stallion Argyle, offered a premium of a fifty dollar silver cup to that one of his last years patrons who could show the finest Argyle colt, and one season to the owner of the second best. The respective competitors for the prizes met at this place on Monday last, and chose Chas. Travier, John H. Hoppin and James Morris as judges. The following entries were made: O. S. Colgrove, two, named Lincoln and John; J. S. Young, one, named Fanny Hershey; B. Glassecock, two, named Davy and Lance; W. W. Hanum, two, named Argyle and Reub; George Hebron, one, named Ned; B. F. Tebbs, one, named Little Jennie; S. P. Barnes, one, named Breckinridge; D. G. Scoggins, one, named Snap. The judges awarded the first prize to Lincoln, and the second to Fanny Hershey.

I do not think I ever witnessed a finer lot of colts anywhere. Each of the contestants started from home, no doubt, fully persuaded in his own mind that the cup was his, and well too, for of the whole number exhibited there was not one but any unbiased man would willingly declare was deserving of the prize when viewed separate and apart from the rest; but when all together it was hard to tell the best. The judges doubtless gave a righteous decision; in fact, the crowd seemed to think so, but if the judgment had been mine to give, it would have fell upon the last one I looked at, and I feel sure, too, that it would have been no unrighteous judgment, for all was deserving a prize. I venture to assert that either colt in the lot could take the prize from any other one in the neighborhood not an Argyle. There is something about the stock that ought to commend them to the people of any farming section of the State. They are not only larger and more powerful than any other breed of horses among us, but they possess a finer action than any of that class of horses—a beautiful carriage, a symmetrical form, and a bone surpassed by none, of any stock in the State. There may be many breeds possessing more nerve and finer action, but such are only fit for the saddle. None I have seen, combined so many of the qualities requisite for a farmer's horse.

But, by the bye, I feel rather sore over the fact of the winning name being Lincoln. Is it not ominous of Honest Abe's success in this county, next fall? or of the rising greatness of that huge rail splitter, generally? or is it ominous of the demise of one of the twain—that is Abe or the colt? Some of the Pike county denizens of this place insist upon the latter, and point to the history of the past as an index to the future. One I heard declaring that it was notational, that nothing ever killed General Jackson but the naming of so many colts, dogs, and children after him, and another with equal confidence asserted that it would kill any animal in the world to name it Lincoln, and to prove it said that Charly White bought a fine healthy sheep from Mr. Rockwell and named it Lincoln and it died the same night. If that be true Mr. Colgrove, look out for little Lincoln. Better call him after some of the departed political saints than to loose him.

ARRIVAL OF BLOODED STOCK.—On Sunday evening last Chas. F. Reed, of this place, arrived safely with his stock purchased in Sacramento last week. The Sacramento News says:

"We had the pleasure of examining yesterday, at the Jim Barton stables, on I street, a fine lot of brood mares, purchased by Charles F. Reed, of Knight's Landing, Yolo county, at high figures. They are six in number, two of which are of Morgan stock, sired by the celebrated Morgan horse Traveler; one of the Bell Founder stock; one a full blood Medoc, has taken several first class premiums in Michigan; and the two others are full blooded—one a Kentucky mare with colt, and the other with foal—both by the thoroughbred Stone Plover, imported last year from England. They have just arrived across the plains. Two of the mares were purchased from Senator Stewart, of Michigan, who kept them for brood mares. The mare with colt trotted with two men in a buggy in 3:17 in Kalamazoo. It is well known that Stone Plover, since his arrival, has been steadily increasing in reputation. They are fine specimens—a valuable acquisition to our stock growing country, and will undoubtedly be instrumental in enhancing the value and reputation of California stock. It is pleasing to note the growing interest which is being taken by our stock growers in the improvement of the quality of their stock. The time certainly cannot be far distant when we may boast that we have the finest stock of all descriptions, including horses, cattle, sheep, etc., that can be produced within the limits of the Union."

LETTER FROM SACRAMENTO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 13th, 1860.

One of the events which has transpired since my last, and upon which I wish to make a few remarks, has been the trial and acquittal of William H. Stone for the murder of John C. Bell. The circumstances of the homicide I suppose most of your readers are familiar with. Bell was a member of the Assembly from El Dorado, in which county Stone also resides. Stone, it appears, was trying to lobby through the Legislature a bill to divide El Dorado county for the purpose of forming a new one. The day on which the homicide took place Bell was talking with Wilkins, a member of the legislature from Sonoma county. This conversation took place in the room of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Stone approached the parties, and entered into conversation with Bell and Wilkins. Bell accused Stone of having defeated a portion of the Democratic ticket in El Dorado last fall. This, Stone denied. Bell repeated the charge, and Stone called him a liar, repeating it a second time, and adding the expletive "d—d liar." Perhaps Bell struck Stone for this, although the evidence is contradictory upon this point. Stone then shot at Bell with a pistol, when Bell rushed in and dealt Stone some very handsome blows. Stone had previously threatened to cut Bell's guts out if he struck him, and while Bell was striking with his fists Stone was cutting Bell with a knife, and succeeded in wounding him so that he died. Well the trial has just come off in Jackson, Amador county, before Judge Hardy, and the verdict of the jury is "justifiable homicide." I was present at the trial and heard every word of the testimony on the occasion, and in the remarks I have to add I wish to say that I am only actuated by regard for real substantial "law and order," and not for the sham that passes current under that name. Ninety-nine gentlemen out of every hundred will strike any one who calls him "a liar." This is so natural, that few can help doing it. Now, is a man justified in killing him who strikes a blow under such circumstances? Honestly, I do not for a moment believe it. Is it not natural, too, for a man to try and afflict some punishment upon one who has just tried to assassinate him by firing a pistol at him? But if you take this case as a precedent, and a man calls you a liar, you must not strike him; or, if you do, the man so struck is justified in shooting at you and hitting, of course, if he can. Then, if he misses you, and your natural resentment wants to give the intended assassin a proper chastisement, he is justified in doing with a knife what he intended to do with the pistol—killing you. Can a community say that the memory of Bell should be consigned to infamy for the part he acted in the encounter with Stone on the 11th of April last? I opine not, for what he did was natural, and I undertake to say, entirely justifiable.—But the jury have, so far as it lays in their power, blackened the memory of Bell, by entirely justifying Stone in killing him. Or, perhaps, the jury did not take this into consideration at all. It may be that no blame was attached to any one by them, and they simply regarded his death as the result of a certain collision. And if Bell had used a knife and killed Stone, on the same general principles I have no doubt the jury would have acquitted him, for he gave no provocation to justify a blow in the first place. The only fault Bell committed, then, was that of going into a fight unarmed. He should have had knives and pistols and dispatched Stone, and in such a case it would have been the memory of Stone that would have been damned, so far as the jury could do it, instead of that of Bell, as the case now is. Seriously, many of our murder trials remind me of political ratification meetings; they are only held to ratify and endorse—never to condemn. These remarks, be it understood, are only made on general principles.

The political cauldron has been boiling during the present week, as it did during last week. The Breckinridge Democracy held their State Convention on Tuesday and Wednesday. They nominated for Electors Vincent E. Geiger, Z. Montgomery, A. P. Dudley and Antonio F. Coroneil. The Democratic Convention was presided over by John B. Weller, the kind-hearted, dear old man. During the day (on Wednesday) he lost his balance wheel—that is, a scrap of paper containing the order of business, and so he gave the reporters the following kind and appreciative notice, which I cut from the Union, together with the retort of the reporter!

The President—The Chair is not able to get the report of the Committee, and I cannot tell what the order of business is. He is informed that the reporters have taken the papers from the Secretary's desk. Reporters are a great nuisance at best.

[Note—It may be well to state here, for the benefit of Mr. Weller, who owes what little reputation he has acquired as a public man, to Congressional and other reporters, that neither the paper containing the "order of business," upon which he seems to have depended to jog his parliamentary memory, nor any other paper, was taken from the Secretary's desk by the Union Reporters and not duly returned.]

By the way, while Weller was President, Latham and Gwin occupied seats on the platform. How dearly those three gentlemen love each other! You should have seen the whole three of them at the mass meeting in front of the Orleans on Saturday night. All of them spoke, but two would manage to be absent while the other was speaking, and so nicely would they manage to avoid meeting each other, it was refreshing to behold! Long may that trio wave!

The Republican County Convention met yesterday, and nominated E. H. Heacock for Senator, and Charles Crocker, A. A. DeLong, Jacob Shew and Wilson Flint for the Assembly. The admirable Theatrical Troupe of Wheatleigh are still playing at the Metropolitan.

All the preparations are being made for the State Fair, and I have no doubt it will be worthy of the State.

Yours, P.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY.—The admission of California into the Union was celebrated on Monday last, in San Francisco, by the Pioneers. The S. F. Evening Union, of the 10th inst. says:

The tenth anniversary of the admission of California into the Confederacy of States is being splendidly celebrated. Flags are floating from City Hall, the Plaza liberty pole, the mastsheads of ships in our harbor, from the various public offices and across many of the streets. From 12 to 1 o'clock this afternoon the streets were densely crowded with people—high and low, men, women and children. About 1 o'clock the procession began to move towards the American Theater, where the oration and poem, with other appropriate exercises were to take place. The order of procession was as follows: A magnificent band of sixteen performers, dressed in gray-blue uniforms, with shining brass instruments, came first, and was followed by the first California Guard (some thirty members) in their dark blue uniforms and red cockades. They were followed by the National Guard in their splendid new blue uniform and dashing hats, to the number of forty-five. Then came a carriage containing Edmund Randolph, Orator of the Day, and E. R. Campbell, Poet of the Day. Then an empty chariot, drawn by four white horses, which, we presume, was intended for the distinguished guests expected to have been present, but who, it is stated, will be at the grand ball at Music Hall to-night.—The chariot was followed by the handsome banner of the society, borne in a tastefully decorated car, then by the President, Vice-President, Secretary, and officers in their brilliant sashes of red silk fringed with gold; and lastly, by about one hundred and fifty other members of the association, in their elegant white silk regalia fringed with silver. The stage of the American Theater was occupied by the members of the Pioneer Society and military, presenting a most gay and gorgeous appearance. The body of the theater was crowded with people. The exercises commenced with a prayer by the Reverend Chaplain, after which the President introduced the orator of the day, Edmund Randolph, who was received with deafening applause. His oration was replete with evidences of the extensive acquirements, great research, pure diction and inspiring eloquence that distinguish his mind from the common "run" of minds. He was frequently interrupted with plaudits.

SHEEP.—The Alta's correspondent from Monterey writes that that county contains more sheep than any county in the United States. It contains an aggregate of 122,000 all told. The heaviest fleece on record is that of Grizzly, a French Merino buck belonging to Flint, Bixby & Co., in San Suan, in 1859. It weighed forty-two pounds. Joaquin Pereira has a flock of 30,000; Flint, Bixby & Co., 16,000; Col. Hollister, 10,000; and James Dunn, 10,000.—Hollister had probably made more money at sheep raising than any body else in the business.

FIRE.—About 250 tons of hay on the farm belonging to Jerome C. Davis, of Putah Creek, Yolo county, was destroyed by fire on Sunday last. With considerable exertion, the barn of Davis', near where the hay was put up, was saved. The only way Davis can account for fire is that some men slept near one of the ricks the night previous to the fire, and left some loose matches and they were ignited by the rays of the sun on the following day.

The State Fair will commence on Wednesday next, at Sacramento.

FRUIT STEALING.—Some rascals on Wednesday night entered the nursery grounds of Humphrey Griffith, in Yolo, and entirely stripped a young peach tree of its fruit. It was the first crop of the tree, and Mr. Griffith was anxiously looking forward to its ripening to test its quality. The fruit was also prized on account of the tree having been planted by the hands of a deceased wife.—Union.

SURE TO BE BEAT.—Of the forty-eight members of the last Legislature who voted for that great iniquity, the libel bill, M. P. O'Conner, of Nevada; Thos. Laspeyre, of San Joaquin; and A. St. Clair Denver, and John Conness, of El Dorado, have been re-nominated.

The California Stage Company's stages are now running daily to Portland.

The Capture of Truxillo by Walker.

The New Orleans papers of August 24th, furnishes these details of the capture of Truxillo by Walker and his filibusters:

The fort was attacked on the morning of the 6th, at daylight. Three of Gen. Walker's men were slightly wounded. Fifteen of the enemy were reported killed, and a number wounded. The advance guard of the expedition encountered a picket of the enemy, two miles from the fort, and drove them in, with the loss of several killed. The main body rapidly followed up this advantage, and after a half hour's hard fighting, drove the enemy from the fort. The Hondurian forces were reported by the citizens to have amounted to four hundred men.

General Walker took prisoners the Collector of the Port and a Lieutenant, but he afterwards released them. He also took sixteen cannon—among them one twenty-four pounder which commands the Pass—one hundred and twenty-five stand of arms, eighteen hundred pounds of powder, and a large quantity of munitions, including clothing, provisions, etc. General Walker feels confident of being able to hold Truxillo for the next four months against any force that can be brought against him. He is assisted by General Cabanas, who is opposed to the present President, General Guaradiola. The latter has applied to General Carrera, Dictator of Guatemala, for assistance, which has been refused.

A large number of the natives are joining General Walker's standard. The schooner Clifton was not seized by the authorities at Belize; but her hatches were forcibly broken open, and in consequence she was abandoned under protest of her commander, Captain McCormick. The Clifton had a regular clearance from this port, and her cargo was not contraband at Ruatan, the place of her destination. Several masters and merchants have frequently carried arms and ammunition from this port and Belize, to Ruatan, under regular entry, after paying duties.

Southwest Pass, August 22.—The schooner Dewdrop, from Ruatan Islands, arrived at the Bar this morning. This arrival furnishes us with further particulars regarding the capture of the town of Truxillo by General Walker and his small army. The fight was more serious and bloody than was previously reported. There were twelve Spaniards killed, and eighteen wounded; while on the American side only three received slight injuries. General Walker was in possession of Truxillo. He has declared himself in favor of Cabanas, and issued a proclamation. Below we give General Walker's proclamation to the people of Honduras:

To the People of Honduras: More than five years ago, I, with others, was invited to the Republic of Nicaragua, and was promised certain rights and privileges, on the condition of certain services rendered the State. We performed the services required of us; but the existing authorities of Honduras joined a combination to drive us from Central America.

In the course of events, the people of the Bay Islands find themselves in nearly the same position the Americans held in Nicaragua in November, 1855. The same policy which led Guaradiola to make war on us will induce him to drive the people of the islands from Honduras. A knowledge of this fact has led certain residents of the Islands to call on the adopted citizens of Nicaragua for aid in the maintenance of their rights of person and property.

But no sooner had a few adopted citizens of Nicaragua answered this call of the residents of the islands, by repairing to Ruatan, than the acting authorities of Honduras, alarmed for their safety, put obstacles in the way of carrying out the treaty of the 28th of November, 1859. Guaradiola delays to receive the islands, because of the presence of a few men he has injured; and thus, for party purposes, not only jeopardizes the territorial interests of Honduras, but thwarts, for a moment, a cardinal object of Central American policy.

The people of the Bay Islands can be ingrafted on your Republic only by wise concessions, properly made. The existing authorities of Honduras have, by their past acts, given proof that they would not make the requisite concessions. The same policy which Guaradiola pursued toward the naturalized Nicaraguans prevents him from pursuing the only course by which Honduras can expect to hold the islands.

It becomes, therefore, a common object with which the naturalized Nicaraguans, and with the people of the Bay Islands, to place in the Government of Honduras those who will yield the rights lawfully required in the two states. Thus the Nicaraguans will secure a return to their adopted country, and the Bay Islanders will obtain full guarantees from the sovereignty under which they are to be placed by the treaty of the 28th November, 1859.

To obtain, however, the object at which we aim, we do not make war against the people of Honduras, but only against a Government which in the way of the interests, not only of Honduras, but of all Central America—The people of Honduras therefore rely on all the protection they may require for their rights, both of person and property.

WILLIAM WALKER.
TRUXILLO, August 7, 1860.

The New York Sun is of the opinion that Walker's intention is to effect a revolution in Honduras, where he has some friends, and after establishing his authority to enter the Nicaraguan territory and attempt the overthrow of the Government. The paper adds:

Honduras offers an inviting field for filibuster enterprise. It has an area of nearly 65,000 square miles, and a population numbering over 300,000. The climate, especially in the interior, is salubrious, and its mineral wealth, comprising gold, silver, lead, copper and some of the precious stones, is very considerable. Its extensive forests furnish some of the finest timber, such as mahogany and cedar, for export. It also contains numerous fertile valleys, and abounds in cattle which are slaughtered by the inhabitants for food.

The Government of Honduras is Republican. It has a Legislative Chamber and a Senate, the members of which are elected by the people. The two Chambers elect the President. There is so far as we know, no discontent with the Government among the people, and they are enjoying a greater degree of comfort than the inhabitants of any other Central American State. We cannot, therefore, believe that General Walker, who has so recklessly disturbed their peace, and whose aim would seem to be plunder, will find many partisans among the Hondurians. Indeed, we hope that he will now meet the fate of a bandit, and never return again to disgrace the country of his birth.
