ONE OF THE MEN WHO BUILT UP THE EMPIRE

Lieut.-Col. Andrew C. P. Haggard Makes Home in Victoria--Old Friend of British Columbia.

One of British Columbia's foremost champions and Vancouver Island's most famous literary exponent, Lieut.-Col. Andrew C. P. Haggard, D. S. O., Victoria, for continuous effort in the city's behalf. Many years before the days of the Tourist Association he was impressing upon people in the old country Victoria's beauty through the magazine, "The Real Victoria."

The news that he will probably make Victoria his permanent residence is very gratifying. A world traveller who Chooses This City above all others, after careful consideration, gives the "Times" that means much. When yesterday Lieut.-Col. Haggard stated he had come to British Columbia in search of health after a severe illness. He proposes to use his own words, "to spend the summer in the woods," and will leave shortly for Comox, in which district he will remain until fall. Thereafter he will return here.

Lieut.-Colonel Haggard is one of the men who made the Empire. Alert, courteous and in every motion displaying an almost youthful energy he carries his fifty years with the greatest ease. He is one of a family of six brothers who have made their mark in many lines of imperial service. Three have been soldiers, and good ones. They have all afterwards turned their attention to literature, and have enriched British letters with books of sport, travel and fiction. The subject of this sketch was the first to engage in literary work, being followed by his next brother, Rider Haggard, and later by the youngest, Major E. A. Haggard, who has published books principally for boys. The eldest brother, W. H. D. Haggard, C. B., is minister to Buenos Ayres, and has had a very distinguished diplomatic career.

But, after all, it is with Lieut.-Col. A. C. P. Haggard that readers of the "Times" are chiefly concerned. He has done much for Canada from coast to coast, and has now decided to make British Columbia his home. Fifth son of the late W. M. Rider Haggard he was born in 1854 and received his education at the famous school of Westminster. Entering the army in 1873, when 19 years of age, he served in the King's Own Borderers he remained actively with the service until a few years ago, and now holds a majority in the Royal Scotch Reserve. Foreign service claimed him almost from the first. He served in India and in Aden for several years, and finally became a member of the staff in Egypt in 1882. The Egyptian army, then claimed his services, and he became a valued member of the number of British officers acting under Sir Evelyn Wood, V. C. In 1884 he saw special service on the Red Sea frontier being especially

Mentioned in Naval Dispatches. During the same year he saw his first battle; Tamal, where, against personal bravery and ability called for mention in official dispatches. But the investment of Suakin by Osman Digna formed the most unique feature of his military career. He was in command of the first battalion of the Egyptian army during the whole period, lasting well into 1885, and with his men, was 155 times under fire. For this service he received the Osmanli decoration of the fourth class. After other services in unimportant expeditions he commanded the Egyptian troops on the frontier, again being mentioned in dispatches. His distinguished conduct during this campaign earned Col. Haggard the coveted Distinguished Service Order, the third class "Medjidieh," the medal and several clasps.

As early as 1886 he became interested in Canada, and made a trip over the C. P. R. on one of the first transcontinental trains. This resulted in a series of articles in Blackwoods that attracted much attention. The good work thus commenced Col. Haggard has continued ever since. Numerous articles from his pen dealing with sport and exploration in every part of the Dominion testify to his fondness for Canadian life. He has written for "Blackwoods," "The Field" and "The Strand," and has received his full share of attention. When the importance of capitalistic was first mooted he strongly supported the idea. Numerous letters appeared in the "Field" under his signatures and resulted in a large portion of the necessary funds being subscribed in England. Not content with this he also advocated assistance from British sports-country partridges into the province. Though up to the present he has been unsuccessful in this direction the prospect is not yet to be the means of procuring a number of these game birds for acclimatization here.

Fishing has also occupied his attention, not only as a sportsman, but also as a writer. Cowichan river and other fishermen's Eden, near Victoria never had a stronger advocate than Col. Haggard. His Work on Behalf of the Province, particularly Vancouver Island, has been able and continuous and much of the knowledge the hunt-loving classes

"A Persian Rose Leaf." This is, to a large extent, autobiographical, the scene being laid in the Sudan. It deals with the life story of a Persian girl, captive in the camp of the Khalifa of Abdullah, successor to the Mahdi. The foregoing incomplete sketch gives an outline of the career of one who may now be considered a resident of Victoria. In the big places of the world his writings are received with the greatest attention, and the knowledge that he will assist in giving British Columbia its proper place in literature should be good news to all having the interests of the province at heart.

CURING SALMON BY MILD PROCESS

FISH TREATED FROM TWENTY-SIX TRAPS

Catches of all But One Boat to Victoria and Esquimalt Establishments.

While some small number of sockeyes have been canned, the great bulk which have been coming from Vancouver Island traps this year since the fishing season commenced has been spring salmon. The number of these handled this year establishes a record. Twelve months ago the industry assumed considerable size, but the amount then barreled and shipped is small when compared with that which will be put up during the present season. The principal explanation for this is that the increase in the number of traps and the additional facilities for treating the fish, work for a larger production. There are now 36 traps in operation on the southern coast of Vancouver Island, and all have been taking fish since about the 10th of June. Some have done well and others have not been so fortunate. The most successful so far have been the B. C. Cannery Company, of which Mr. Rucker is manager, and the A. B. C. Packing Company, of which Bell Irving & Company, of Vancouver, have had the management, with Mr. Jensen in charge of the trap work and other traps have been brought into the harbor to a station on Findlay, Durham & Brodie's wharf, and to the Empire Cannery in Esquimalt. One of the buildings at the latter has been turned into use for the purpose of curing the salmon, and it is here that J. Lindenberg, of Astoria, is barreling the salmon for shipment to Germany. The proprietor of the other local concern is Mr. Weise. Both are preparing the fish according to what is known as the mild cure process, a treatment introduced by the Wallace Bros., of Vancouver, on the northern coast a few years ago, and is now adopted all along the coast wherever the spring salmon is being barreled for the foreign market. It might be stated that nearly all the spring salmon so handled this year has been forwarded to Germany, where the demand appears to be equal to and even beyond all possible supply.

When it is considered that there are now 26 traps on Vancouver Island contributing to the supply, in addition to a number of small institutions in the north, it will be realized that the industry has grown enormously within a year. At each of the local mild cure establishments there are 30 men employed. At the Empire Cannery in Esquimalt there are ten whites. Under the instructions of Charles F. Todd, the manager, laborers are being paid 25 cents an hour. At this rate wood wages can be made. The labor at times is not continuous, but at other times men work from ten to fifteen hours a day.

The industry has made its mark during the pleasant evenings of the evening, the big project being operated by Clifford E. Denham, who was selected to take the bioscope out from London on a tour of the colonies on account of his special ability as an electrical optician. The success of the bioscope when it was three times presented at the Victoria theatre and the Vancouver opera house is well remembered. The pictures are large and clear and the subjects both interesting and amusing. Important events such as the San Francisco fire, the opening of the Russian dooms, and the mar-

RUSHING TO THE DULKLEY VALLEY

LARGE AREA OF LAND FOR ACTUAL SETTLERS

Three Hundred and Ninety Families Supplied With Homesteads Up Till Yesterday.

(Associated Press.)

Land has been taken up and recorded by the representatives of three hundred and ninety families in the Dulkley valley up to yesterday afternoon. This is outside several large tracts that have been taken up by syndicates, and the ninety-two square miles of land reserved in the valley of the Teloua river and its tributaries.

The area taken up stretches from a point five miles south of Moricetown, for eighteen miles along the telegraph trail to a point practically at the confluence of the Bulkley and Morice rivers. There is yet an ample amount of surveyed land awaiting settlement. An area of 70 square miles has been staked out in range 5 of the Coast district along the Bulkley, and that at present alienated does not cover one-third of the surveyed sections. The land that has been delimited in quarter sections covers the east half of township 14, the whole of townships 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20, and a portion of township 21.

Coal having been found in large quantities in the valley of the Teloua the reserve mentioned above was created. It lies wholly to the west of the Bulkley river, and has practically all been taken up. It is stated that Lieut.-Governor Dunsmuir is largely interested in the deposits, and if so there is no danger they will be idle for any length of time.

It must not be imagined that the Bulkley valley is difficult of access. From Hazelton, the head of navigation, a distance of only sixty miles along the telegraph trail has to be traversed to reach the mouth of the Bulkley. Many people have already left the coast this spring for the new agricultural district. Dozens are in there now. It will be a very short time before the richness of the Bulkley valley becomes as well known as the lower Fraser.

Victoria has an interest in this matter greater than any other city of the province. Already merchants here are branching out for trade and getting it in the newly discovered districts. Until the first crops are reaped the inhabitants will depend on the outside world for food. Afterward, as prosperity increases, the demand for the necessities of life will be consumed in large quantities. It is gratifying to be able to state that Victoria merchants fully realize the possibilities, and are taking time by the forelock. The 300 actual settlers guaranteed means a steady population before the end of the year of at least 1,500. Victoria merchants and manufacturers will undoubtedly obtain the major portion of this business.

SPORTSMEN, ATTENTION!

Big Trap Shoot For Curtis & Harvey Cup To-Morrow Morning at Willows.

At the Willows' traps to-morrow commencing at 9 o'clock, the first annual shoot for the Curtis & Harvey cup will take place. It is open to members of both the Victoria and Capital City clubs, and already some 24 entries have been received, and more are expected. The experts have been practicing for some weeks, and the first contest for the coveted trophy, now on exhibition in the windows of Pichon & Lenfesty, Johnson street, promises to be exciting. Among the participants will be found all the veteran shots whose names have figured high among local marksmen for many seasons. There will be Otto Weller, W. N. Lentz, W. G. Stevenson and other younger enthusiasts.

A preliminary shoot has been arranged. This promises to be no less interesting, as it will take the form of a race, give the competitors practice, and allow the spectators to obtain some idea of the likely winners. The conditions will be 25 birds at unknown angles, and the following three handsome prizes have been offered: 1st, 64 lb. keg of Empire smokeless powder; 2nd, 3 lbs. of Empire smokeless powder; 3rd, 2 lbs. of Empire smokeless powder.

A practice shoot is being held this afternoon at the Willows' traps under the auspices of the Capital Gun Club. There is a large attendance of members.

The London Bioscope Attraction Will Be Introduced on Monday Evening.

The London bioscope entertainment, which promises to be an exceedingly popular feature at the Gorge Park during the pleasant evenings of the season, opens to-morrow evening, the big project being operated by Clifford E. Germans in Seattle Declare Prisoner is Nothing But Harmless Mixer of Paints.

(Associated Press.)

Seattle, Wash., July 7.—The central committee of the United German societies at its regular meeting last night declared that August Rosenberg, arrested in Germany upon suspicion of being an anarchist with designs against the life of Emperor William, was nothing but a harmless mixer of paints.

The letter which caused the arrest of Rosenberg, the members of the society claim, was written by a secret enemy of Rosenberg's to the authorities in the fatherland. A prominent member of the committee, having known Rosenberg for several years, states that Rosenberg was an inventor and investigator of paints, compounds, and that the chemicals and apparatus found in Rosenberg's old room were all for the purpose of experimenting in this line. Most of the supplies used in his researches were purchased from a local firm, and Dr. Warmburg, a chemist, was often called in consultation by Rosenberg touching his experiments.

According to this committee man Rosenberg was 42 years of age, had raved up about $2,000, a competency for himself and wife, and his return to Germany was to spend the rest of his days in ease.

Secret Agents in Seattle.

Seattle, July 6.—German Consul Geyssler, of this city, at whose instance the police searched the former home of August Rosenberg, the alleged anarchist arrested yesterday at Altona, Prussia, is said to have at least two secret agents here.

Held By Police.

Altona, Prussia, July 6.—The police here were advised of August Rosenberg's departure from Seattle, and the results of the search in his former lodging, and arrested him as he left for the train. The prisoner is held in custody pending the result of the preliminary investigation.

INTERNATIONAL TENNIS.

Americans Still Hope to Recapture the Championship.

(Associated Press.)

London, July 7.—R. D. Little, Kreigh Collins and Beals C. Wright, the American lawn tennis team, left London yesterday for New York.

Mr. Little, in the course of an interview said the members of the American team were pleased with their enthusiastic reception in England. With regard to the English players, they were most impressed with Mr. Riepley's fine display against the Doherty brothers and would like to get him out to the United States, where he would be sure of such a reception as would last him his lifetime. Mr. Little thought a deal of the string had gone out of the Doherty's attack. R. F. Doherty especially was not the same man as formerly.

Mr. Wright's absence from the championship contests, Mr. Little added, was our great misfortune, but our time will come. The Americans will not rest till they have recaptured the International Championship, and, fortunately, we are not so badly off as being players in England is.

ORIENTAL DEPOT OF THE WHOLE DOMINION

Victoria Trade Increased Two Million Dollars Annually by Chinese and Japanese Curios--Progress of Week.

(Associated Press.)

A few years ago the craze for things Oriental was deemed a passing fad; to-day Japanese and Chinese curios form part of the decoration of every house, while even the imports of strange fruits and vegetables, of dwarfed trees and curious flowers, have reached large dimensions.

Victoria is the entrepot of the Dominion for the whole of this business. Residents hardly seem to realize the reason that so many large Oriental stores, doing only a modest local business, have recently been established. The cause was easily found upon a slight investigation. As an instance it may be stated that the Kaga Maru, on her last voyage, landed 118 cases of Japanese curios at Victoria. It looked quite a large shipment for a city of this size but, as the result of inquiry, the fact was elicited that all but twenty were passed along to some other place. The curio trade appears strange as a most appreciable item of commerce, but it is important to Victoria. One of the most competent Japanese merchants stated this morning that he handled, as wholesaler, nearly worth of curios during the past twelve months. These goods were exported to all parts of the province, to the prairie and every large city in the East. Of Chinese dealings in this regard very little is known. The absolute secretiveness that characterizes the Mongolian is generally a cul-de-sac for inquirers. Enough is apparent, however, to warrant the statement that at least an equal trade of the character mentioned is carried on by the Chinese as by the Japanese. This means that at least $2,000,000 is added to the trade of Victoria every year by the importation of beautiful and queer objects of art from the Orient. A little known factor in the city's commercial welfare, it goes to show one of the many directions from which trade is attracted to Victoria.

An attempt was made last week to graphically outline the city's commercial progress during the first six months of 1906. Reasons of space prevented one or two lines being mentioned. The fact is, however, that at least a veritable boom. The lesson of San Francisco has been taken to heart, and many who previously had no protection against loss by fire are now seeing to it that a conflagration shall not leave them penniless.

Another source of business that showed the city's progress during the period mentioned was the large increase in remunerative financial investments. These covered building and loan associations, mortgage corporations, irrigation and mining companies and industrial concerns of various kinds. A bank manager stated this morning that the money placed in these classes of securities was Greater by Fifty Per Cent. than during the same period of 1905.

JJOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN'S MESSAGE TO NATION

(Associated Press.)

Birmingham, Eng., July 7.—This is "Chamberlain Day" and the whole city, irrespective of politics, is enjoying a holiday in honor of the distinguished tariff reformer, Joseph Chamberlain, who to-day celebrated his seventieth birthday. There are decorations everywhere, the city is filled with visitors and all sorts of processions and entertainments are going on. The lord mayor and mayoress gave a reception and luncheon to Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain. Subsequently the party made a tour of the parks, where thousands of the city school children were being specially entertained.

Mr. Chamberlain took advantage of the occasion to give out a characteristic message to the nation, as follows: "Treat foreigners as they treat us, and treat your kinsmen better than you treat foreigners."

CHICAGO IMPROVEMENTS.

New and Modern Commission District Will Be Established.

(Associated Press.)

New York, July 7.—Says a Chicago special to the Times: "The establishment of a new and modern produce commission district in Chicago, involving an investment of approximately $500,000, was declined by a well known banker of Chicago yesterday to be the cause of local trouble." The banker, who is a member of State, Stark, Tenth and Twentieth streets. The railways of the country, it is asserted, are behind the proposition. To carry their plans to completion, they are to have dictated the formation of the American Farm Products Company, which is to control the great market for vegetables, fruits, butter and eggs. The company recently organized in New York will issue securities which it is declared will amount to $50,000,000. Of this the $5,000,000 will represent the real estate investment."

COAL BUNKER BURNED.

(Associated Press.)

Camden, N. J., July 7.—The coke bunker of the Camden Coke Company, which is controlled by the Public Service Corporation, was destroyed by fire yesterday, causing a loss of $5,000 of the structure. The burning of the machinery and the loss on the stored coals, which burned for hours, has not been estimated yet. The bunker was of frame construction, four stories in height, and contained valuable electrical machinery.

RUSSIA IS IN FINANCIAL STRAITS

THE CONDITION WORSE THAN EVER BEFORE

Constitutional Democrats Believe Present Ministry Will Be Compelled to Retire.

St. Petersburg, July 6.—While the action of the lower house of parliament to-day in appropriating $7,500,000 to be disposed of by the administration, for famine relief was epochal, as the first recognition of the cabinet by parliament and the first step in joint work, its importance was far overshadowed by the revelation of alleged admissions made by Finance Minister Kokovoff in the budget commission about padding of estimates for the liquidation of war expenses in order to be able to extract a larger loan from the foreign markets. The developments made an immense sensation, and were eagerly discussed in the corridors of the chamber where it was declared that if the statements of the commission members were true, it placed Russian financial methods on a par with those of mushroom South American republics and would undermine the confidence of foreign financiers in the old guard now managing Russian finances and immensely complicate further credit operations. All this is fish for the net of the Constitutional Democrats who see in the revelations the brightest prospect for transferring the administration power to a responsible cabinet. All of to-day's moves of the constitutional Democrats point to a realization of the expectation that they may soon be entrusted with the full responsibility of the government.

A NEW SETTLEMENT.
Arrivals at Stettler, Alberta, Are Living in Tents—More Men Required for Harvest.

Winnipeg, July 6.—Residences being unobtainable, large numbers of white tents and many portable schooners dot the landscape in the neighborhood of Stettler, Alberta. New settlers and their families and stock, with furniture and farm implements and machinery, scattered around are to be seen in all directions. Twenty thousand men will be needed to complete the harvesting and threshing of this year's wheat crop, says J. J. Golden, provincial immigration commissioner. The necessary labor cannot be obtained in the west but the commissioner believes that the men can be brought from the eastern provinces where laborers are not so much in demand. The labor famine across the border is beginning to be reflected somewhat on this side of the line, according to Mr. Golden, and although the immigration statistics will show that 30,000 more immigrants have come to Canada this year than in any previous year work has been found for all of them and more are needed to carry on the industrial demand on the Canadian side.

PEACE CONFERENCE.
Efforts Are Being Made to Prevent Hostilities Between Guatemala and Salvador.

Washington, D. C., July 6.—The state department has been notified through a cablegram from the American Minister in Guatemala, dated yesterday, that efforts are being made to prevent hostilities between Guatemala and Salvador as a result of an alleged breach of neutrality by Salvador during the progress of the insurrection which has just failed. Mr. Combs says that the American minister in Guatemala is already on his way to this city and that the American minister in Salvador is about to leave immediately for Washington, D. C., to confer here with Senator Paez and the officials of the state department and endeavor by negotiation to bring about a peaceful settlement of the difficulty. Meanwhile the government of Guatemala has agreed to suspend preparations for war with Salvador pending the conclusion of the peace conference at Washington.

BRITAIN AND RUSSIA.
St. Petersburg Newspaper on Proposed Visit of Fleet to Kronstadt.

St. Petersburg, July 6.—The Rich today discussed the efforts made in the British House of Commons to induce the government of Great Britain to send a fleet to Kronstadt. It says: "Whether the fleet comes or does not come, the sympathy of England and the English with the struggle of Russian democracy for constitutional institutions is already proved. The same is true of France. As regards Germany, she is the sole supporter of the old regime in Russia. Emperor William prefers to maintain the sources of weakness of the Russian state in order to profit thereby, but Emperor Nicholas should remember that every outside influence. It was the Duke of Brunswick's threat to destroy Paris if King Louis was harmed which forfeited the King's head."

EMPEROR OF IRELAND.
Is the Fastest Steamship on the St. Lawrence Route.

Quebec, July 6.—The new C. P. R. trans-Atlantic liner Empress of Ireland arrived at Rimouski at 4.30 p.m. to-day, upon her initial voyage. The magnificent vessel, although detained by fog both off the coast of Newfoundland and the Gulf, made a fast run across. Regarding her speed, the Empress of Ireland demonstrated by her first three days at sea that already she is the fastest steamship on the St. Lawrence route, eclipsing slightly the speed of her sister ship, the Empress of Britain, her runs being 451, 450 and 460 miles respectively. After landing the English mails, consisting of 329 bags and 172 packages of parcel post, the Empress of Ireland left for Quebec.

GERMAN GENERAL DEAD.
Man Who Reorganized Japanese Army Passed Away in Berlin.

Berlin, July 6.—Major-General Meckel, formerly professor of military tactics in Japan, died to-day. He went to Japan in 1888, stayed there three years, reorganized the Japanese army and wrote a noted book on tactics. Field Marshal Oyama, after the battle of Mukden, telegraphed to General Meckel describing the former's success to Meckel's instructions. The Emperor of Japan conferred the Grand Cross of the order of the Sacred Treasure on the general after the battle.

INVADERS REPULSED.
Turkish Force Lost Many Killed in Attempt to Seize Persian Territory.

Constantinople, July 6.—The Turkish attempt to seize further territory on the Persian frontier has been prevented by the governor of Puskas, who repulsed the invading force of 1,100 Turks and 700 mounted Arab regulars, with considerable loss to the raiders. The council of ministers has instructed the Turkish commander, Sekki Pasha, to withdraw his troops from their most advanced positions and to avoid further cause for a capture with Persia.

FRUIT LANDS IN SKEENA DISTRICT

RICH AREA REPORTED BY C. W. D. CLIFFORD

Many are Going Into the Country to Be Opened by Grand Trunk Pacific.

C. W. D. Clifford, M. P. P., who is in the city, spent the spring and early summer in the Skeena river section of the province. Mr. Clifford is seeking investments in the territory through which the Grand Trunk Pacific will pass, and has been living for several months at Kitilas Canyon on the Skeena. There in company with a few others he purchased a township which was offered for sale, believing that the point would be an important one with the development of the country.

A considerable number of settlers have gone up the river this year. These include many strangers. Mr. Clifford says: "Three steamers are operating on the river, and these have been going up with a full complement of passengers. Among them Mr. Clifford says they will be the first showing that they are in large part new to the section."

About Kitilas the member for Skeena says there is a lot of land being taken up. A valley about 40 miles wide of splendid land exists there. This extends about 10 miles above the canyon and 10 miles below it. How far inland it goes he does not know. The valley is rich and not too heavily timbered. On both sides of the river there has been a large acreage taken up with the intention of going into fruit growing. Nowhere can better fruits be produced than in that section, Mr. Clifford says. There is nothing experimental about it, either as the industry has been put to a practical test. Some years ago an orchard was planted and high class apples, pears, etc., were produced. Set out in fruit trees there will be an admirable market for the product at the new city of Prince Rupert, and later in the Northwest when the shipping facilities have been provided.

Speaking of the climate in the north with reference to Prince Rupert, Mr. Clifford admits that during the winter months there is a heavy precipitation. He spent several years at Port Simpson, which is close to the site for the terminal city. The winters are wet, but there is very little snow. The weather is so open that skating can seldom be indulged in.

The summers are ideal, however. There are at least three months in the year when the conditions are absolutely perfect. It is difficult to imagine any climate more enjoyable than that of the summer months in that district.

The member for Skeena expects to leave again for the north about Monday.

INSURANCE METHODS.
Paul Morton and E. McClintock Before Committee of House of Lords.

London, July 5.—Paul Morton, president of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, and Emery McClintock, vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, appeared to-day before the select committee of the House of Lords on life insurance matters. Mr. Morton explained the methods, by which the Equitable was conducted and called attention to the special provision made for the security of British policy holders by the $50,000 deposit in the Bank of England. He considered that the investigation had clearly shown the sound financial position of the society, but he admitted that confidence in it had been restored more in America than abroad.

Mr. McClintock handed the committee reports of Mutual affairs, claiming that the documents disclosed a satisfactory condition of investments. In his opinion it was not desirable to make special provision for the British and American policy holders shared all the advantages. He objected to the creation of any special reserve in this country.

Earl Beauchamp asked how it was that the state officials charged with the supervision of the companies had not discovered the abuses detected by the legislative investigating committee, to which Mr. McClintock replied that the work of the state officials was confined to the verification of the assets and liabilities. They could not look into the nature of the business transactions, because they had not the time, and it would practically be doing the work of the directors of the company. When the officers did not know what was going on, he said, it was not surprising that people outside did not know.

Answering other questions, Mr. McClintock said he could not say that all the policyholders were entirely satisfied, but he had reason to believe that on the whole they were satisfied with the position of the company.

COSSACKS KILLED.

Berlin, July 6.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger, from Kabourt, Russian Silesia, says that 25 Cossacks today surrounded a lime kiln at Mietzow, in the province of Kieles, Russian Poland, on information that it was being used for the manufacture of bombs. As the Cossacks were forcing their way in, a terrific explosion blew the kiln to pieces. Eight Cossacks were killed and five wounded. It is not established whether the explosion was caused by the bomb makers inside or whether the kiln was exploded from a distance.

A FLAG INCIDENT.

Lincoln, Neb., July 4.—Miss Anna Tompsett to-day, hoisted the Union Jack over her cottage. She came recently from Canada and did not understand the full meaning of the Fourth of July. A large crowd gathered and were threatening to haul down the flag, when the matter was reported to the chief of police, and Miss Tompsett was compelled to haul down the flag.

KILLED BY HAIL STONES.

Valencia, Spain, July 6.—A hail storm to-day killed one child and injured 50 persons and smashed the roofs of houses, causing the inhabitants to take refuge in the cellars. The crops in many districts were destroyed, and great distress prevails. Hail stones as big as oranges fell. Relief is urgently requested.

A Washington, D. C., dispatch says: When the case of Alfonso Zelaya, son of the president of Nicaragua, who was arrested on a warrant charging petty larceny, was called Friday, the total amounting to $10, which was put up to secure his release, was forfeited, the accused not appearing.

"Fernwood," the home of Mrs. Pearce, Cadboro Bay road, was the scene of a most enjoyable children's party on Wednesday afternoon, when she entertained a few of her grown up friends and many children. The fine old rooms were exceedingly pretty with clumps of Canterbury bells all about, as well as many fine roses, besides fine varieties of geraniums and ferns and other potted varieties. The tea table, which was loaded with everything that little folk like, was also most artistic in pink shades of flowers, Canterbury bells being principally used. On the beautiful lawns the children enjoyed many delightful games and listened to some fine gramophone music. Amongst the guests were: Major and Miss Dupont and Miss Amy Dupont, Mrs. Fleet and two children, Mrs. O. M. Jones, Miss Dora and Kathleen Jones, Master Tom Jones, Mrs. F. Pemberton and the Misses Pemberton, Master and Miss Beauland, Miss Cecilia and Miss A. Helmcken, Miss Katherine Oliver, Miss Marguerite Little, Miss Louisa Holmes, the little Misses Bridgman, Miss Olive Day, Master Robby Harvey, Mrs. J. Harvey, the Masters Holland, Miss Romie, the little Misses Robertson, the little Misses McKenzie, Robertson and Miss Wilson.

After the ceremony at the church, where the usual wedding matches were given by Mr. Burnett, the organist, a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Durand, where a large number of friends took occasion to congratulate the newly wedded couple and shower good wishes upon them. The guests were all served here with delicious refreshments, the table and supper room being very sweetly decorated with white sweet peas and vines, and the other rooms with sweet peas, roses and nasturtiums. Mr. and Mrs. Janion sailed that evening by the Victoria for Seattle and will spend their honeymoon in Portland. They will reside in Victoria upon their return. The groom's present to the bride was a gold necklace set in pearls and amethysts, to the bride a gold pin with pearl setting. PE-RU-NA KEEPS THE FAMILY IN THE BEST OF HEALTH

This is Only One of a Million of Homes in Which Pe-ru-na Has Been a Blessing. Read This Family's Glowing Testimony.

BABY GERALD

MRS. H. J. CAMPBELL

Mrs. Henry J. Campbell, 227 S. Williams St., Denver, Col., State Deputy of Modern Woodmen, Montana, and Delegate of Builders Trades Council, writes: "Pe-ru-na has been a blessing in our home. My wife was in poor health for several years and nothing but Pe-ru-na helped her. She gradually recovered her health and became the mother of a boy which blessed our home. We call Gerald our Pe-ru-na boy. He is in the finest of health and his mother has never enjoyed such excellent health. I have personally found Pe-ru-na of great value to me while traveling. Getting irregular meals and often poorly prepared food ruined my stomach, but Pe-ru-na toned up my digestive organs and brought fine health to me. We are never without Pe-ru-na in our home and know by experience that it keeps us all in the best of health."

A RECENT LETTER. A recent letter received from Mr. and Mrs. Campbell is, as follows: "We still use Pe-ru-na and in addition to our son, Gerald, who is a fat and healthy lad of 28 months, we have another son, still larger for his age. He is now ten months old and is always healthy. His mother says Pe-ru-na has surely made both of our children as healthy as they are, helped, of course by Colorado's healthy air. A bottle of Pe-ru-na is at all times a welcome visitor to our home. A multitude of families have discovered that Pe-ru-na is their standby. In all the catarrhal ailments which are likely to beset the various members of the family, Pe-ru-na is the remedy that brings quick relief. No matter whether it be a catarrhal condition of the head or lungs, or a derangement of the stomach and bowels, Pe-ru-na is the remedy."

A SPENDTHRIFT GENERATION.

What are we going to do to check this outrageous spirit of extravagance? We hear a great deal about the rapid increase in the cost of the administration of Canadian affairs...

"Where did the money come from?" is a question quite familiar in these days of mysterious manipulations. "Where did the money go to?" the depositors in Zion's bank, managed by John Alexander Dowie, want to know.

The vast majority of the people of the United States, notwithstanding the many incidents published, respecting the good feeling existing between Britons and Americans, cannot yet tolerate the Union Jack.

ought to cause some readers of the Times to blink in astonishment. The war was a heroic war, but the revolution was not a heroic revolution. There was nothing to revolute against. The colonies were more independent than the Union is to-day.

A few weeks ago reference was made by telegraph to the speech of Hon. John Burns on the subject of infant mortality in Great Britain. Newspapers recently received have given very full reports of the important address of the President of the Local Government Board.

A bevy of beautiful British woman suffragists have been sent to gaol for disturbing the peace of the community and causing disquietude of mind to members of the government.

We have often wondered why members of the Canadian Tory party insisted upon attempting to obscure their principles behind the prefix "Liberal."

Teacher—Patrick, can you tell me what an epidemic is?
Patrick—No, m'm. I never seen one.
Teacher—Well, I'll tell you now, and then you may explain it in your own language to the class. An epidemic is something which spreads. Now, you may go on with your own definition.
Patrick—Sure, an epidemic is an epidemic, since it is something that spreads.
The next day the following dialogue took place between the teacher and Patrick:
Teacher—Patrick, can you name the presidents in his order?
Patrick—Sure, m'm, an I'm sorry to say that I can't.
Teacher—You are a very dull scholar, Patrick. When I was your age I could name them without an error.
Patrick—But that was such a long time ago, m'm, that you had'n't more than half a dozen to name.
And teacher tapped the bell to excuse the class.

HOW KATIE BAKED AND BASTED. BY MAUD WALKER.

Katie was only nine years old, but was an extremely bright and clever little miss for that age. She had gone to the country to spend the summer with her grandmamma and grandpapa and dear, big, jolly Uncle Jack, who thought there was no other little girl in all the world quite so capable as his favorite little niece. A few days after Katie was installed in her grandmamma's house she begged that dear old lady to allow her to help with the housework. This request was readily complied with, for Grandmamma Orr believed in training girls when young in the art of good housekeeping.

So into the hot flesh she thrust the daring needle, which she did not realize that Katie was nine years old, and a baby no longer—well, baby, as I am very busy today finishing a quilt in the frame, you shall have the opportunity to prove to grandmamma just how much you know about getting a dinner. Now, I've just put a duck in the oven to roast for dinner, and you shall baste it for me. You may also make a pan of basting—Grandmamma for Uncle Jack is very fond of them when he has roast-duck. If you do not know how to mix the basting dough you will find a cookbook in the pantry, from which you will get the recipe.

good plan to wait till the men folks are away for the day. However, I'll eat whatever Katie fixes, if it chokes me. Mustn't hurt the little kid's feelings—not a bit of it. Then he said aloud: "Well, I reckon you'd better baste the duck first, seeing or smelling, rather—that it is cooking. Then mix up the basting dough, cut 'er out, put 'em in the pans and shoot 'em in the oven to bake along with Mrs. Buck."

"That's what I'll do!" exclaimed Katie. "So, now, you must run along to the sitting-room, where your papa is quilting and read your paper-culcher's Gazette till I call you to dinner." With a smile a yard wide, and with a feeling of uneasiness concerning the dinner, Uncle Jack did the little Katie's bidding and joined his mother in the sitting-room.

Then Katie ran up to her own room, got a darning needle and threaded it with a piece of strong wrapping twine. "This will be better to baste with than thread," she mused as she hurried again to the kitchen. Then on her knees in front of the stove she began to mix the basting dough, taking a long stitch, but as she endeavored to draw the needle forth the tender skin gave way and the stitch failed of its purpose. Again Katie went to the kitchen, her thumb in the hot grease, a few drops of which flew in her face. "Auch!" cried the little girl, and just as she was rubbing her poor burnt thumb on her apron the door opened and in walked Grandmamma Orr. The old lady took in the situation at a glance, and being unable to suppress her laughter she set down and gave way to her merriment. Katie looked up in surprise, but from the expression on her grandmamma's face she knew something was wrong with the basting of the duck.

How Glen and Carl Got Even With a Tramp.

BY WILLIAM WALLACE, JR.
The parents of Glen, aged eight, and Carl, aged four, were away for the day. Only the housemaid was there to "keep the little shavers straight," as the boys' papa was wont to remark when leaving home. But before his parents departed Glen had held a private conference with his mother up stairs. Now, Glen was a little philosopher in his way, and when-ever he wanted to do anything out of the ordinary daily routine of his life he did not come right out with it in the parlor or at the table, after the manner of most children.

But the truth was Glen did not have any particular person or persons in his mind. He did, however, have grave doubts concerning Laura, so, philosopher that he was, he said to himself that he must provide a loophole through which to creep providing Laura would not lend her protection to himself and Carl.

not tender sympathetic dependence. The parents were good friends; no doubts whether they could ever have been passionate lovers.

The Pride of Miss Rose.

A great pink rose was very proud:
And lifted her head one day,
To name her charms to old sunflower,
Who nodded across the way.
"I'm very beautiful, as you may see,"
The pink rose boastingly spoke;

And the old sunflower, with petals coarse,
Peeped over the garden wall,
And seeing the fate of the boasting rose,
Said, "Pride cometh before a fall."

THE BROADENING OF CANADA

BY CHARLES H. LUGRIN.

We have reached the end of the first decade of Liberal rule in Canada, and on looking over the record for the period, I can think of no better term to express the process that has been going on during those ten years than "the broadening of Canada." It has been a period of broadening in respect to our appreciation of the resources of the country, a broadening in respect to our understanding of our responsibilities as a part of the Empire, a broadening in respect to our relations to the Mother Country, a broadening in respect to our place among the nations, a broadening of our own conceptions of the future of the Dominion, a broadening of the esteem in which we are held by the world at large.

It is not my object in this paper to make political capital for the party with which I am identified, but only to present for the consideration of my fellow Canadians of all parties some of the salient features of the momentous ten years now drawing to a close. How much of what has been accomplished is due to the wisdom of the administration of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the honored leader, and how much to other causes, need not here be discussed. It doubtless is true that we have done more for the part of Canada and favorable recognition from the world at large; it is also true that Canadian statesmanship has been equal to the opportunity, and, what is of far greater importance, it is certain that the people of Canada fully appreciate that the future is big with possibilities. The astounding Liberal victory at the last general elections was not more an expression of trust in Sir Wilfrid Laurier than of the confidence of Canadians in themselves and their country.

The Country's Resources.

Ten years ago few people believed in the possibilities for the part of Canada we now understand them. In 1888 Dr. Schultz of Winnipeg induced the senate to appoint a special committee to report upon the resources of the Mackenzie basin. The committee heard a great deal of evidence and made a report, which was received with politeness, read with indifference and forgotten with promptness. The newspapers were afraid of it; the politicians were amused by it; the outside world laughed at it. We know now that vast as it showed the resources of the great unknown region, drained by the Mackenzie, to be, it did them scant justice. A little more than a year ago I sent an article to the Century Magazine in which I spoke of the grain producing capability of Canada, and suggested that the time was not far distant when the United States would be buying Canadian wheat in enormous quantities. The editor of the Century, before printing the article, referred it to the chief of the statistical branch of the department of agriculture at Washington, who proceeded to make fun of it. However, on my agreeing to stand by what I said the Century printed the paper. A few weeks ago Mr. J. H. Hill sent me the Century containing his article on the Yukon. No one laughs any more when told that Canada will become the world's greatest granary. Ten years ago Captain Moore was trying to convince people that there was plenty of gold in the Yukon valley; no one believed him. To the Canadians, ten years ago the Yukon was hardly a name. Ten years ago to every one, except Mr. Hugh Sutherland and a few other Winnipeg enthusiasts, Hudson's Bay was merely a geographical expression; now rival railway companies are seeking access to its shores and Canada is asserting sovereignty over it. Ten years ago the world was endeavoring to convince people that there was something worth developing in the great hinterland of Ontario; the sceptics are not all convinced yet, but events will force conviction upon them. Ten years ago a British Columbia, once regarded as a sea of mountains, had come to be considered principally as a field for speculation with a view to tapping the rich veins of other people's money in Eastern centres; now it is known to be a productive land, rich not only in minerals but in agricultural resources. The world looks upon Canada as a broader land than it did ten years ago.

Imperial Responsibilities.

The lesson of the Boer war is not the least important of those that have been learned during the decade. Looking back to the beginning of that event, it appears even more evident than it then did that a critical hour had come in the history of the Empire and that the share of responsibility to be borne by the self-governing colonies had to be determined. It is not necessary to discuss whether or not the government would have been justified in tendering the assistance of Canadians without waiting for an expression of public opinion. Things must be judged by their results. In many cases, and there can be no question as to the wisdom of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in giving public opinion time to express itself before committing the country to the expenditure of blood and money inseparable from participation in hostilities in South Africa. The unanimous demonstration of public sentiment, followed by the splendid enthusiasm of the youth of Canada, when once they learned that their services were needed, answered all criticisms as to the loyalty of Canada to the crown and empire far more forcibly than any order in council could have done. The part of Canada and favorable recognition from the world at large; it is also true that Canadian statesmanship has been equal to the opportunity, and, what is of far greater importance, it is certain that the people of Canada fully appreciate that the future is big with possibilities. The astounding Liberal victory at the last general elections was not more an expression of trust in Sir Wilfrid Laurier than of the confidence of Canadians in themselves and their country.

Our Relations to the Mother Country.

The gift of preferential trade conditions to the United Kingdom was a unique and effective demonstration of Canada's appreciation of her relations to the Mother Country. The people of Canada are not "dreamers of dreams"; they are not theoreticians in Empire building; they have not only lately awakened to the fact that there is a British Empire, a cry that has gone out from the Mother Country had given much to her colonies and had received nothing in return. Canada answered by giving the tariff preference. It was a free gift; nothing was asked in return. Canada said in effect: We are a self-governing people; we cannot permit any other legislative body than our own to control our expenditures; hence we can give no grants to the Imperial army or navy; but at a time when the other nations are closing their markets against British merchants, we can throw open a market of 10,000,000 people to the goods of the British Empire. A cry that has gone out from the Mother Country had given much to her colonies and had received nothing in return. Canada answered by giving the tariff preference. It was a free gift; nothing was asked in return. Canada said in effect: We are a self-governing people; we cannot permit any other legislative body than our own to control our expenditures; hence we can give no grants to the Imperial army or navy; but at a time when the other nations are closing their markets against British merchants, we can throw open a market of 10,000,000 people to the goods of the British Empire.

the views of the world as to the part that the Dominion is to play in its larger affairs were materially broadened.

The request that we shall have a voice in negotiating treaties which specially affect ourselves, is now regarded everywhere as reasonable and as likely to lead to a delegation of power to hands very capable of wisely employing it. Our Confidence in Ourselves. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "The twentieth century will belong to Canada," he crystallized into a sentence the hope that had been expanding in every Canadian's breast for many years, and at the same time gave that hope a newer and broader meaning. We all know that Canada might become great; we have never thought that it could claim a century as its own. The eloquent Premier has said many graceful and forceful things, but nothing else to be compared to this. It is one of those rare, statesmanlike utterances which make history. It not only appealed to the imagination, but stimulated it, and the imaginations of Canadians were never so stimulated, and that imagination there is no more potent factor in national development. A new courage makes our hearts beat more strongly; a new future opens before us. Like a young giant, Canada, at last realizing its strength, has thrown open its arms to the pen, but space has its limits, and it must be dismissed with the observation that nothing has so much broadened during the last decade than the appreciation of Canada by Canadians.

How the World Regards Us.

The tide of immigration is settling strongly towards the Dominion. European capitalists are ready with their millions to open our country with railways; United States capitalists are investing their millions in our land, our mines, our timber. The business world has at last begun to take us very seriously. I read in a New York paper a day or two ago a statement that 40,000 United States citizens had come to Canada within a period mentioned, and presumably are about to become good British subjects. Time was, and it was not so long ago either, when the possibility of thousands of American citizens becoming Canadian subjects of the King would have been ridiculed from one end of the republic to the other. Now it is accepted as a matter of course. Thousands of people are coming to Canada from Continental Europe, and presumably are about to become good British subjects. That is, the world is giving us its men and its money, and giving them to us as a lusty young nation, with an individuality of its own, although bound by unbreakable ties to the great Mother Nation beyond the sea. That is how the world looks at us now, and surely it is a broadening of its view. This imperfect and hasty epitome of what occur to me as the characteristic features of the last decade of Canadian history may serve as food for thought to those of us who in the hurry of daily activity and perhaps owing to the strenuousness of our political life, may have failed to observe as fully as they ought the tendency of the lines and the rate of progress which Canada is making. I write it also with the hope that it may serve to inspire some of our people with greater confidence in the future of British Columbia than they have hitherto shown. We are on the western frontier of this wonderful land, and great as are the hopes of the last decade in Canada they are no greater than those that have been going on upon the opposite shore of the Pacific ocean. We are on the threshold of great events. No flight of fancy can ascend to greater heights than those which will be attained by the facts, when once the mighty influences molding the destiny of Canada and the Orient, have come fully into play. Let us thank God for the lessons of the past; let us thank Him for the promise of the present, and let us go forward with courage towards the future, whose glorious dawn tints the hills of Hope with gold. Victoria, July 4th, 1906.

have the most remarkable effect. Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred of Female Troubles are due to neglect. Bowels become constipated—kidneys irregular—skin neglected—and the pores of the body, which should be cleared off by these important organs, are taken up by the blood carried to the female organs and poison them, thus starting up a train of female troubles. FRUIT-A-TIVES are made from fruits and by their remarkable action on bowels, kidneys and skin, rid the system of poisons, purify the blood, and restore the delicate organism to vigor and health. "WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

To the Editor:—True, "that which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Yet, let us in all fairness grant honor to those to whom honor is due. My attention was called to the above quotation in this morning's Colonist, and on behalf of the Margherita Bandolin Club, who so estimably entertained us last evening on their separate occasions during the past concert season, I wish to cap the same with another from its distinguished author, better fitted to the occasion, to wit: "Who steals my purse, steals trash; 'tis something, 'tis his, and has been stolen to thousands; But he that filches from me my good name, Robs me of that which enriches him, And makes me poor indeed." I might state before closing that the ladies and gentlemen who compose this orchestra are proud of the standard reached by their hard work and application of two successive seasons under the tutelage of Signor Claudio (indeed, he has had every reason to be), and it may have been some far from gratifying when, after the close of their season's work, they, upon special request, graciously took part in the programme at the opening of our new Tourist Association rooms to learn through the columns of the Colonist that the executive had rendered a vote of thanks to the "Victoria" Bandolin Club—a distinct organization altogether, and the one, we believe, which will add to the enjoyment of tomorrow afternoon's excursion. This was a vote of thanks, by the way, has been the only recognition accorded the members of the club which "discouraged most eloquent music" at the entertainment mentioned. This, or similar treatment, is not conducive to the future success, and among many others hope at future date to again listen to "Music's golden tongue" as interpreted by their symphony within our midst. STATE LIFE INSURANCE. The Editor:—The advantages of government insurance would be that every policy would be guaranteed by the state. The premiums would be low, bonuses large, policies free from restriction. All assets and profits would belong to the people and would be invested in the country. The policies would acquire a liberal surrender value, and those who were leaving the Dominion of Canada would be entitled to surrender their insurance. The following statistics were collected from the annual reports of the Government of New Zealand at the end of December, 1905, including industrial business, consisting of 125 policies for every thousand persons living (the same amount according to the usual representation by these policies was $19,718,367.50, an average of $157.50 for each policy). It covers an amount of equivalent of the colony was insured to the value of $19,718,367.50, for every mile over 15 years of age. On the policy the annual premium income was $2,831,584.50. There are six Australian companies doing business in New Zealand, two American and two English. The Australian offices had in force at the end of 1905, 50,293 policies, assuring the sum of $67,536,750.85, and $10,712.50 annuities. The annual premiums were $2,219,442.30. The two American offices had 2,228 policies, assuring $2,948,840.00, and $1,944.00 annuities, while the English offices only

THE CITY MARKET

This week's markets shows an increase in the number of local fruits. Raspberries are disputing with strawberries for supremacy. The latter continue to arrive in very good form, having a prolonged season this year. The prices for raspberries and strawberries are practically the same. Hutter has advanced in price, being now 25 cents a pound. The dry weather with the consequent shrinkage in the yield of cream has undoubtedly been responsible for the change in the price. Old apples have almost disappeared from the market, and no new ones have been received.

WEEKLY WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Victoria Meteorological Office, 7th June to 3rd July, 1906. In the early part of the week the pressure was low, and showers and unsettled weather conditions prevailed over the North Pacific coast, the weather in the interior gradually passed eastward across the Rockies, causing in the Canadian Northwest provinces very heavy rainfall with frequent thunderstorms. On the 29th a strong southerly gale occurred on the Oregon coast. On the 30th June a high barometer area developed in Eastern Oregon, increased in intensity and spread northward to the Atlin and Yukon districts, and after holding its position for two days moved eastward and crossed into the Northwest provinces and the great plains region of the Middle West states. During its progress this "high" was the controlling weather factor west of the Rockies, and was accompanied by a spell of splendid weather, which, on the 2nd July, culminated in a warm wave over the greater portion of British Columbia and the North Pacific states. At Kamloops, Portland, Walla Walla and Red Bluff the temperature reached 102; at Victoria it was 88.5, the highest this season; and at many other stations the heat was excessive and above the normal. This hot wave was followed by a temporary fall of pressure on the immediate coast, and in this district a thunderstorm occurred at Nanaimo. The rainfall was moderately heavy on the Mainland, and showery conditions were experienced as far north as the Yukon district. At Victoria, there were 60 hours and 42 minutes registered of bright sunshine; the highest temperature was 83.5 on the 3rd, and the lowest 62.9 on the 29th; rain, 0.14 inch. At Vancouver—Highest, 85 on 3rd; lowest, 66 on 29th; rain, 0.78 inch. At New Westminster—Highest, 88 on 29th; lowest, 68 on 29th, 29th and 1st; rain, 0.82 inch. At Kamloops—Highest, 102 on 3rd; lowest, 44 on 30th; rain, 0.2 inch. At Barkerville—Highest, 86 on 3rd; lowest, 20 on 30th and 1st; rain, 0.52 inch. At Port Simpson (two days missing)—Highest, 70 on 30th; lowest, 32 on 27th, 30th and 1st; rain, 0.2 inch. At Atlin—Highest, 96 on 25th; lowest, 2 on 27th; rain, 0.22 inch. At Dawson—Highest, 78 on 29th; lowest, 38 on 29th and 3rd; rain, 0.22 inch.

MARTYRDOM DESCRIBED

KINGSTON MAN TELLS HOW HE SUFFERED AND HOW HE WAS RELEASED.

"For years a martyr" is how Chas. H. Powell, of 105 Raglan Street, Kingston, begins his story. "A martyr to chronic constipation" is how I am free from it, and all through the use of Dr. C. Leonard's Anti-Pill."

Many who are now suffering from this complaint will be glad to learn from Mr. Powell's story that there is hope for the most stubborn case. He continues: "I was induced to try Anti-Pill by reading the testimony of some one who had been cured of constipation by it. I had suffered for eighteen years and had taken tons of stuff recommended as cures, but which made me worse rather than better. Doctors told me there was no cure for me." Dr. Leonard's Anti-Pill is for sale by all Druggists or by the Wilson-Pyle Co., Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont. Mr. Powell will verify every word of these statements.

ALMOST HOPELESS DANDRUFF! The Condition of Thousands of Pale, Anemic Girls. "Almost hopeless is the best way to describe the condition I was in about a year ago," says Miss Mamie Mannet, of Abol, N.S. "My health had been gradually giving way until I reached a condition when I feared I was sinking into chronic invalidism. I was as white as a sheet, my blood apparently having turned to water. I had no appetite, suffered from indigestion, and dizziness, the least exertion would leave me breathless, and it appeared that I was going into a decline. I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills highly recommended by the newspapers, and I decided to give them a trial. It was a fortunate day for me when I came to this decision, as the pills have not only restored my health, but have actually made me stronger than ever I was before. I now have a good appetite, a good color, and new energy, and I am satisfied that I owe all this to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I cheerfully recommend to other pale, feeble, ailing girls."

London, June 14.—Perhaps the greatest compliment Miss Ellen Terry received at her jubilee matinee was the staidness displayed by the galleries and pottities in their endeavor to be present at the historic performance. Surely "heroine-worship" could go no farther in demonstration than in the fortitude shown by Miss Terry's admirers, who took up their stands outside the gallery and pit entrance of Drury Lane at 6 o'clock on the Monday morning and patiently waited through the long day and the following night until noon on Tuesday, when the doors were opened. These theatrical enthusiasts had various expedients to while away the time, and each one was armed with a camp stool, and in anticipation of the chilly blast of night they also carried rugs and wraps. Only six thousand tickets were available for the actual performance, one can only say that the London matinee was a triumph. A brilliant audience paid unstinted homage to the greatest English actress of our times. The enthusiasm reached such heights at last that one began to wonder if the British coldness and reserve so commonly talked of was not after all a myth. The proceeds of the matinee amount roughly to over £5,000.

The Longworths. Mr. and Mrs. Longworth ought certainly have no complaint to make about English hospitality, judging from the warmth of their reception in London, where they are being feted and lionized to an extent sufficient to satisfy the most exacting visitors. The King, with characteristic courtesy, honored the President's daughter by his presence at a dinner party given at the Grosvenor. Mr. Whitlaw Reid, at the presidency of Lord Elgin, have been nominated. The English delegates will make up the total to the number of five hundred. Amongst the festivities which are being arranged are garden parties by Lord Brassey, Lord Strathcona and prominent colonials here. The London Chamber will give a big banquet at the Hotel Cecil, over which Lord Elgin will preside, and several cabinet ministers will be present. There will also be a reception at the Botanic Gardens. A week's entertainment in London will be followed by a fortnight in the provinces, and a special feature of the latter is the chartering of a special train, which will take the delegates the complete round—Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds and Bradford, and other towns being thus visited. Altogether a pleasant prospect lies before the colonial delegates on their visit to this country.

Floating Exhibition. An idea of establishing a floating exhibition was suggested two years ago, but it was abandoned owing to the unsettled state of affairs in the Far East. The project is now being revived, and there is every likelihood of its being carried through before the year is out. It is proposed to charter a large steamer, load it with British manufactures of all kinds, suitable for markets over the face of the entire globe, and send it on a voyage to the principal ports of the Empire, China, Japan, South America and other countries, where there is a prospective market for British products. All of them yelled in concert? They were too limp to resist or even to run, and he had his way with them until Sabray and Roquefin howled with laughter. At last I ordered him to stop, and to confine the men in a chamber, where they should be fed and questioned. So they limped away moaning, driven like cattle by Blaise, who promised them as they went that they should not be put to the trouble of trying on honest people in the dark for some time to come. Jeannette followed out of curiosity, as did Sabray and Roquefin. Left alone in the courtyard, I sat on the stone bench, which was not in part yellow with moonlight, and began to ponder. I could doubtless learn from the three captives whether De Berquin had any hand in the coming of La Chaire to Clochonne. Anxious as I was to inform myself, I was yet in no mood to question the men at that moment, preferring to wait and hear the results of Blaise's interrogations. While I was thinking, my arms folded and my eyes turned to the ground at my feet, I suddenly heard a deep sigh very near me. I looked up and saw Mademoiselle de Varion standing before me in the moonlight. My gaze met hers, and in the delicious glow that her presence sent through me I forgot all in the world but her.

ing and equipment of the institution, which can justly claim to be the most complete of its kind in existence. Garden City. The Garden City, which was regarded a few years ago as a Utopian dream, is fast becoming an actual fact, and on the land which the Garden City Company came into possession of two years ago, a town is already springing into existence. Four hundred houses, none with less than 12 poles of land attached, are now to be seen at Letchworth. Four factories have been erected, and are already at work and sites have been let for three others. Sites for the erection of over 500 houses and shops, a church, a chapel and a public hall have also been let. There is a golf course, a tennis park, a large cricket field and tennis lawn, while squares and open spaces are being laid out. Will the project no longer be any scepticism as to the realization of the Garden City dream? Briefly the aim of the promoters was to create a village, on a sound commercial basis, a town of 35,000 inhabitants, retaining a certain number of acres for agricultural purposes and building houses on the rest, but above all securing for the town plenty of surrounding open space. The land is let on lease at a ground rent, but the return to shareholders is limited to a cumulative dividend of five per cent, all profit being used for the benefit of the town and its inhabitants. Chambers of Commerce. Already two hundred colonial delegates to the approaching congress of the Chambers of Commerce of the Empire, which is to meet early in July under the presidency of Lord Elgin, have been nominated. The English delegates will make up the total to the number of five hundred. Amongst the festivities which are being arranged are garden parties by Lord Brassey, Lord Strathcona and prominent colonials here. The London Chamber will give a big banquet at the Hotel Cecil, over which Lord Elgin will preside, and several cabinet ministers will be present. There will also be a reception at the Botanic Gardens. A week's entertainment in London will be followed by a fortnight in the provinces, and a special feature of the latter is the chartering of a special train, which will take the delegates the complete round—Liverpool, Birmingham, Leeds and Bradford, and other towns being thus visited. guilty of eavesdropping and treachery, and to reprove him for that unworthy suspicion, when there was a noise at the gate. Looking thither, I saw two of my men, Sabray and Roquefin, conducting into the courtyard three starved-looking persons who leaned wearily on one another's shoulders and seemed ready to drop with fatigue. "We found these wretches in the woods," explained Sabray. "They are Catholics, although that one tried to hide his cross and shouted, 'Down with the mass!' when we told them to surrender in the name of the Sieur de la Tournoire." "It is true that I was a Catholic," whined the bedraggled one who had longed to De Berquin's hand of four, "but I was just about to abjure when these men came up." "I will abjure twice over, if it pleases monsieur," put in the tall Spanish-looking ruffian. "Nothing would delight me more than to be a Huguenot," said the other, who was a Jew. "And I, a damned infidel Turk," wearily added their fat comrade, "for a roast fowl, and a place to lay my miserable body!" At this moment the top's eyes fell on Blaise.

CHAPTER XIII. How De Berquin Invited Death. "Mademoiselle!" I whispered, starting up and taking her hand. "You are still disturbed by Marianne's news," I said. "But you have little more reason to fear when M. de la Chaire is at Clochonne than if he were at the other end of the province." "Yet I do fear, monsieur," she said, in a low tone, "for your sake." "Then if you will fear," said I, "I take great happiness in knowing that it is for me. But this is no place or time for fear. Look and listen. The moonlight, the sounds of the forest, the song of the nightingale, all speak of peace." "The song of the nightingale may give place to the clash of swords and the cries of combat," she replied. "And because you have delayed here with more contempt when I compared the guileful court beauty, Mlle. d'Arcy, with the pure, sweet woman before me: "One of those creatures whom Catherine called her Flying Squadron, and she betrayed a very honest gentleman to his death." "Betrayed him!" she repeated. "Yes, by a pretended love trust." "Mademoiselle trembled, and held out her hand to the dial for support. "Something in her attitude, something in the pose of her slender fingers, something in her white face, her deep, wide-open eyes, so appealing to my love, to my impulse to protect her, that I clasped her in my arms and drew her close to me. She made no attempt to repulse me, and into her eyes came the look of surrender and yielding.

England is in a state of siege at present and dreadful things may happen within the next few days. But we are all taking it very calmly, though guns are booming for all they are worth all around our coast, for the enemy is not an altogether unfriendly one, after all. Perhaps it may be necessary to explain that we are in the midst of the naval manoeuvres. Somewhere hovering about the Irish and Scottish coasts and the Channel Islands, the enemy is being driven to strike the fatal blow. The forces consist of some 90 battleships, cruisers and destroyers, under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir W. H. May. Shows object is to circumvent the defending force commanded by Admiral Sir Arthur Wilson, the latter having no fewer than 25 battleships, 47 destroyers, 43 torpedo boats and 23 submarines. The severest fighting is likely to take place in the neighborhood of Falmouth, Sheerness and Swansea, but so far the rival fleets have not met in deadly combat. News, however, has just reached us that the enemy captured the "White Star" liner Arabic, somewhere off the Irish coast, but the victory has no bloodness, one, and the transatlantic voyagers are even said to have enjoyed the experience. Nevertheless, the "enemy" has scored the first point in the game, and the lesson involved is an important one.

English women are imitating their French sisters more and more every season in the wearing of hats on all occasions. In fact, a fashionable dame hardly removes her hat all day long. In the restaurants at night ladies invariably wear chapeaux resplendans with ostrich plumes, with their evening toilettes, a thing which was unknown until within the last few seasons. Not so long ago it was considered quite a breach of manners to wear a hat during lunch time, but the women of to-day does not stop to consider such trifles. As a matter of fact it is next to an impossibility for a woman to take off her hat, while the present style of hair dressing is in vogue. As a general rule the hair is fixed to the hat in front with hat pins, and it is quite usual to have at least a dozen small curls adorning the coiffure. In some cases these are actually pinned on to the brim of the hat. This is the secret of the picturesque effects in head dress we see every where, and in consequence the hat is a fixture of the modern woman's attire. Most of the hats to be worn at Ascot are Gainsboroughs, profusely trimmed with ostrich plumes, feathers and ospreys. There seems to be a reaction once more against too many flowers in hats and too much color, black and the quieter shades with feathers to correspond being chiefly noticeable. The chief recommendation of the Gainsborough hat is that its price puts it out of the reach of any but the most fashionable, for the feathers alone cost a small fortune.

A Timely Suggestion

Everybody experiences a certain degree of lassitude during the period of early spring and summer. While this may not be at all alarming in the case of the robust and healthy, it is an entirely different matter to those who are not naturally strong, who take cold easily, who are predisposed to consumption, or who, from any cause are not "up to the mark." These require something to build up and fortify the system, something that will assist nature to restore a healthy and normal tone, not a stimulant, but a builder. The ideal system builder is

"Peril is familiar company to me, mademoiselle," I said, as she came and goes. It is a very welcome guest when it brings with it the sweetest lady in the world." "Talking thus, I led her around the side of the chateau to the old garden appertaining to it, a place now wild with the growth of forest growth, its former use indicated by a broken statue, a crumbling grotto, and in its centre an old sun dial overgrown with creepers. The path to the sun dial was again passable, thanks to my frequent visits to the spot since my first arrival at Clochonne. It was up this path that we now went." The moonlight and the presence of mademoiselle made the place very paradisaic to me. We two were alone in the garden. The moon spread beauty over the broken walls of the chateau on one side, and the green vegetation around us leaving some places in mysterious shade. The sun dial was all in light, and so was mademoiselle standing beside it. I breathed sweet wild odors from the garden. From some part of the chateau came the soft swang of the strings responding to the fingers of the gypsy. I held the soft hand of mademoiselle. I raised it to my lips.

"I love you! I love you!" I whispered. She made no answer, but looked at me with a kind of mingled grief and joy, bliss embittered by despair. "It cannot be," I went on, "that heaven would permit so great a love to find no response. Will you not answer me, mademoiselle?" "What answer would you have?" she asked, in a perturbed voice. "I would have love for love." "Her answer was arrested by the sound of the gypsy's voice, which at that instant rose in an old song, that one in which a woman's love is likened to a light or a fire. These are the first words." "Bright as the sun, more quick to fade; Flicker as marshlight, prove; Where brightest, casting deepest shade— False flame of woman's love."

"Heed the song, monsieur," said mademoiselle, in the tone of one who warns vaguely of a danger which dare not be disclosed openly. "It is an old, old song," I answered. "The raving of some misanthrope of bygone time." "It has truth in it," she said. "Say, he judged all women from some bitter experience of his own. His song ought to have died with him, ought to be shut up in the grave wherein he lies, with his sins and his sorrows." "Though the man is dead, the truth he sang is not. Heed it, monsieur, as a warning from the dead to the living, a warning to all brave men who unwarily trust in women!" "I needed no song to warn me, mademoiselle," I said, thinking of Mlle. d'Arcy and M. de Noyard. "I have in my own time seen something of the treachery of which some women are capable."

"You have loved other women?" she said quickly. "Once I thought I loved one, until I learned what she was." "What was she?" she asked, slowly, as if divining the answer, and dreading to hear it. "She was a tool of Catherine de Medici's," said I, speaking with all the place where an opening in the courtyard wall overlooked a steep, rocky descent which was for some distance without vegetation. Here the two men grappled. There was some hard squeezing, some quick bending either way, a final powerful forcing forward of the arms on the part of Blaise, a last violent propulsion of the same arms, and Barbemouche was thrown backward down the precipice. Blaise stood for a time looking over. We heard a series of dull concussions, a sound of the flight of detached small stones, and then nothing. "God give the battle to the strong!" said Blaise, and he came away from the precipice. De Berquin shrugged his shoulders and turned again to me. "As I said, monsieur," he began, "I have come here to do you a service." "Indeed!" said I coolly, choosing to assume indifference and ignorance. "I knew not that I was in need of any." "Your need of it is all the greater for that," said De Berquin, quietly. "Monsieur, I would hinder some one from doing you a foul deed, though to do so I must rob that person of your esteem." (To be continued.)

An Enemy of the King

By Hagenbuch Wyman

CHAPTER XII.—(Continued). "M. de la Chaire is at Clochonne," I said, abruptly, as soon as he was before me. He stood still, returning my gaze. Presently he said: "Do you think that he has learned where you are?" "Through M. de Berquin," I said, as if completing his question. "Or any one else," he said, in a low voice. "There was the boy who disappeared, for instance." "But he did not know our hiding place when he left. He did not know how near we then were to it. He did not then know that I was La Tournoire." "But there was much talk of La Tournoire on the journey. Did you at any time drop any hint of this place, and how it might be reached?" "None that could have reached his ears. I told only Mlle. de Varion, and we were quite alone when I did so." "Blaise looked at the ground in silence. After some time he gave a heavy sigh, and, raising his eyes, said: "Monsieur, I have been thinking of many things of late. Certain matters have had a strange appearance. But—well, perhaps my thoughts have been absurd, and, in short, I have nothing to say about them except this, Monsieur: it is well to be on one's guard always against every one." "I was about to ask him whether he meant that the boy Pierre had been

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

WHAT TO DO WITH AN ENEMY.

The International Sunday School Lesson for July 8th is, "The Parable of Forgiveness," Matthew 18: 21-35.

By William T. Ellis.

A live man cannot escape enemies. That they are a factor in life may be accepted as the only fact that is certain and the ineffective can avoid them.

Light on the proper way to meet enemies is shed, not only by the life of Jesus, but also by this great parable which deals with the subject. It is to be remembered that the parable was spoken in the midst of the most hunted period of Jesus' life.

Is Vengeance Right? In one of the magazines there is appearing a series of "exposure" articles, which are commonly believed to be inspired by a spirit of revenge.

A Man With a Problem. The immediate occasion of the telling of this story by Jesus, was a question by Simon Peter.

Peter thought that he was doing the handsome thing in setting his magnanimity at seven times. The rabbi said a man should forgive three times.

Before passing on to this, however, it is worth noting that Simon Peter was a man alive to spiritual questions. He was really concerned about moral duties and about the perplexities of the spirit.

A Study in Contrasts. The Bible contrasts many ways of dealing with an enemy and contrasts with God's way. A man once wrote a book entitled, "If I Were God." I know nothing about the book, but the title is suggestive.

It does not have life enough, that's the trouble with your hair! There is something wrong with the hair-bulbs. They are slowly starving!

Then feed them at once! Give them a regular hair-food—Ayer's Hair Vigor. It checks falling hair, keeps the scalp healthy and free from dandruff.

WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

is meant to be the way for his children. So Jesus related this parable.

reckon, "one was brought unto him, which owed him ten thousand talents. But forasmuch as he had not wherewith to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made."

The Biggest Debt We Owe. This story hinges on the contrast in the two debts. One man owed, approximately, ten million dollars, the other man owed seventeen dollars.

A Mean Man's Method. The forgiven debtor, as soon as he was released, had his fellow-slave by the throat—and it is to be noted that the man not only owed ten million dollars to his master, but he owed himself also, for he was but a slave, a bit of property.

The stern law that runs through the divine decrees, that the unforgiving may not expect to be forgiven, is manifestly just and beneficial. For even by the sight of the rod the great school-master teaches that man must be merciful and patient and magnanimous.

They who ask much should also give much. The person who feels that he is above the need of forgiveness is a Pharisee, the most hopeless of slaves to whom the Great Teacher ever tried to make plain the big truths of life.

It needs small capacity to be able to forgive. A small spirit is of necessity vengeful. The self-righteous often think themselves warranted in passing strict criticism upon frail mortals. They act as if they fell superior to the necessity for being merciful.

Then feed them at once! Give them a regular hair-food—Ayer's Hair Vigor. It checks falling hair, keeps the scalp healthy and free from dandruff.

FROM THE WORKSHOP TO THE CABINET

How John Burns Trained Himself for Office.

Whether the Liberal ministry has a long life or a short one, it will be noted for the inclusion in it of John Burns of Battersea, the first working man to be given a seat and a portfolio in a British cabinet.

John Burns has been before the public since the year 1878, when he spent a night in the police cells for the crime of public speaking on Clapham Common. From that moment he has progressed slowly, steadily, not always with the goodwill of the majority, but always with the goodwill of those who know him for what he is—honest, strong, self-reliant, unswerving in his adherence to what he believes to be right.

No man has fought more persistently than John Burns in the arena of public life, or with a more consistent aim. No one, probably, has had to face greater temptations. When one remembers the fate of other "Labor leaders," the more the marvel grows that this little man, John Burns, with the big head, big heart, and sympathies often akin to those of a woman, should have steered his way clear through the rocks and shoals that beset the poor man who ventures on the troubled seas of political life.

Born forty-seven years ago in Wadsworth, the son of a Lowland father and a Scotch mother, John Burns spent his early life with more vitality and more brains than pence, and more bull-dog bulldog courage than the average.

Wander Years. Burns, realizing the better kind of doggedness in his blood, he once said to me, "There's one thing I've learned in the House of Commons. Stone-walling is as useful sometimes in politics as it is in cricket. I've chafed at it often enough, but that same obstinate objection to change which is so characteristic of the British nation and the Conservative party has often prevented the hasty realization of immature ideas, which would have been more harmful in their incomplete state than the old abuses they sought to replace."

Always ready to fight his own battles, Burns went to work in Wadsworth at the age of ten. Hence being a consideration, the offer of a few shillings a week made him a "boy in buttons," a strange lapse into a state of subjection which would be curious if one did not know the motive of loyalty to a struggling mother which prompted it.

As a rivet-boy at iron-works in Vauxhall he found occupation better suited to his physique, and a change, at fourteen, to apprentice himself to a Millbank engineer.

In 1871, being out of his apprenticeship and ready for any adventure, Burns went as foreman engineer to the West Coast of Africa. For twelve months he stood the heat and braved the perils of the delta of the Niger. Mr. Perken, a fellow-engineer, has told how Burns dived five hours among sharks searching on the muddy waters for the lost propeller of a steam launch, how he slew a large snake with a shovel, and saved a drowning man at the risk of his own life.

When people speak and write of John Burns they think too often of the days of "Bloody Sunday," and later, of the Dock Strike, and wonder how the man with the Red Flag can have gained the breadth of view and knowledge of affairs necessary to enable him to persuade his fellow-workmen to take in kind the regeneration of themselves and their class. Then he suddenly made a mark on the world outside. Speaking at the Industrial Remuneration Conference in 1884, he electrified the audience which included Mr. A. J. Balfour, the vigorous, picturesque, and common sense of his views, "revolting capital," said Burns, "you might as well try to moralize a bean-constructor or tame a tortoise." As the direct consequence of leaving his work to attend this conference, John Burns lost his job as an engineer. He was at that time twenty-six years old.

Out of Work. Suspended between a sense of what he ought to do for himself and what he ought to do for his class, Burns found himself out of employment in the critical days of 1886. Men were shy of employing an engineer who had at this time fought unsuccessfully for a seat in Parliament as the Social Democratic nominee for West Nottingham. For seven weeks he tramped from "shop"

SWISS BOY AND HIS GUN. The Swiss boy loves his gun as much as the English boy his cricket bat, and this fact is due to his early military training.

Field manoeuvres are held once a week under the direction of an army officer, when sham battles, both in valley and on mountain, are fought. There at the end so interest the boys that they look forward to them with as much excitement and pleasure as an English boy does to an important football match.

The proudest days of the young William Tell is when he has been chosen, among a host of competitors, for the honor of representing his canton in an international shooting competition. Two years ago, at Zurich, a man 35 years of age won the first prize at a rifle meeting, and after the affair was badly beaten in a match by his 17-year-old son.

The Swiss condemn the English system of military training for boys, on the ground that it is not made interesting and realistic enough. "Rouse the interest and patriotism of the lad," said a Swiss officer to me recently, "and the rest will take care of itself."

A large number of signatures of members of British parliament have been attached to a message to the Russian parliament extending the congratulations of the oldest to the youngest parliament, and expressing the hope that some of the members of the latter will attend the international arbitration conference in London this month.

Why Not Try?

There's no use getting mad if that For Sale sign you stuck on the front of your vacant house has not brought you a tenant or purchaser. Your sign has been read and re-read by practically the same people, who pass by it every day and who are too intent on other things to stop and look over the property. Now, if you would advertise in the real estate columns of the Times it would come before the eyes of all the people looking for real estate. This is because they are accustomed to have the Times tell them what property in Victoria may be had.

PENSION SYSTEM
WAS CONSIDERED

BY TRAMWAY COMPANY
OFFICIALS AND MEN
 Conference Between Managing Director
 and Union Representatives This Morning.

All the interests of the B. C. Electric Railway Company are being thoroughly investigated by Buntzen, managing director, who is visiting Victoria, having arrived from the mainland on Thursday. He is accompanied by Mrs.
 Buntzen, and, although devoting a good part of each day to business, is making as much of a holiday of his stay here as is possible under the circumstances.

One of the principal objects of Mr.
 Buntzen's somewhat protracted stay in the capital city is in reference to the pension scheme introduced by him on his return from the Old Country, and already outlined in these columns.
 Some objection, it will be remembered,
 was taken to the proposal by the men
 because of the fact that it provided that an employee could only benefit by the fund after contributing to it for 20 years, upon reaching the age of 50.
 The local unions of both Vancouver and Victoria opposed such a clause in the agreement. Steps were taken immediately to reach a satisfactory settlement of the difficulty, both sides showing a disposition to yield somewhat with this in view. This is the explanation of Mr. Buntzen's presence here. He met a deputation of the local union this morning in regard to the matter.

While in the city the managing director is not wasting his time. The programme of expansion and improvement before the local branch of the B. C. Electric Railway Company is so extensive that his leisure moments have been few and far between. Yesterday he visited the George park, and returning expressed his approval of what has been done there this summer in most unqualified terms. He thinks the tramway company's park is one of the prettiest of the many beautiful resorts in the neighborhood of Victoria, and is confident that it will become even more popular with Victorians than at present.

Mr. Buntzen also intends going through to the question of the construction of a line from the Douglas street terminus to a point some distance further in the direction of Saanich with A. T. Goward, local manager of the company. The two will visit the scene of operation and likely determine upon a new stopping place, besides taking other important details into consideration. It is the desire of the visiting official as well as that of Mr. Goward, that the work be completed as soon as possible. With that object a larger force of men than usual is being employed, and before long the residents of that outlying district may look forward to having direct and easy connection with the city proper.

The steps being taken by the tramway company to popularize gas as a domestic utility, particularly for cooking during the hot summer months, is another matter that will be looked into by Mr. Buntzen. He heartily approves of the energy with which the new mains are being laid, and, naturally, is gratified at the number of connections applied for throughout the residential sections constantly being brought in touch with the gas supply
 by the improvements in progress.

Inquiry was made by a Times reporter as to whether it was Mr. Buntzen's intention to look into the prac-tibility from a business standpoint of the construction of a loop line by way of Ross Bay cemetery to Oak Bay, effected the statement that this was not intended at the present time. The work now on hand was quite sufficient to keep the local management engaged.
 Possibly the proposal would be looked into at a later date. The chances of making it a paying investment would be, perhaps, brighter.

While here the managing director will look over the tramway company's new quarters on Fort street. These are almost complete, all that is wanted being some interior fittings, which are expected to arrive any day. Mr. Goward hopes to move his headquarters in a week's time or thereabouts. The change ultimately will necessitate some alteration in the present service. It may necessitate the removal of the corner of Yates and Government to the corner of Fort and Government. No definite plans have yet been made, however, and due notice will be given
 when a decision is reached.

This morning's conference between Mr. Buntzen, Mr. A. T. Goward and a committee representing the local employee's union passed off very satisfactorily. The men were represented by their president, Martin M. Brinkman, and Messrs. T. Dewar, O. Smith, A.
 Arnason, and J. Easton. The pension system outlined by Mr. Buntzen was taken up immediately, a letter being read from the union, which went fully into that organization's view of the proposal. A number of questions were asked, principal among which was one asking why it wouldn't be possible to change the limit from sixty years, that laid down in the original draft of the scheme, to fifty years. In reply to these queries Mr. Buntzen explained his reasons and its object.

With regard to the men's suggestion that the limit should be altered from sixty to fifty years, Mr. Buntzen took particular pains to make the situation clear. He said that it would be an obvious impossibility to reduce the limit without increasing the amount contributed to the fund. The company was comparatively small, its employees did not number anywhere near the total of the majority of eastern transportation concerns. If the limit were placed at fifty years it would mean that before long there would be between forty and fifty drawing pensions before each of whom there would be twenty years of active life or thereabouts. When it was considered, how small an amount each man was called upon to contribute it could easily be seen that the thing was an absurdity.

 The intention was not to make the pension system an investment, but to provide means of subsistence for employees of the company after reaching an age where it became a hardship to work.

The committee left with thanks to the officials of the company for the consideration that had been given to the desire of the men for complete information. As already stated they promised to lay the matter before members of the union at an early date, and to forward the results of their deliberations as soon as possible.

TIMBER PRICES
RISE RAPIDLY

COST TO PURCHASER
LARGELY INCREASED

Twenty-Five Per Cent.—the Average Added Within the Past Month

Within the past month prices of lumber in Victoria have increased approximately 25 per cent. The news was conveyed to local contractors and others
 by a circular letter, the material parts of which read as follows:

Dear Sir:—You will please take notice that on Monday last, the 21st inst., the price on lumber was advanced as follows,
 viz.:
 Rough merchantable, shiplap and sized lumber $3.00 per M.
 Dressed material, such as flooring, rustic, V joint and all D. D. material 5.00 per M.
 Samples advanced see making same 2.75 per M.
 Lath 2.75 per M.

Your respectfully,
 This means that it will cost $20 more to sheath a bedroom than a month ago, while the figure for a whole house has now reached such dimensions as to make bridegrooms weep.

Victoria is, however, slightly better off than Vancouver in this respect.
 Prices here are a shade lower than in the Terminal City, where one of the mills had to close down for want of logs.

Millmen claim that the advance is absolutely necessary. A well known mill manager said to-day: "Lower costings as much as they did a couple of months ago, and even then are very hard to get. I was up to Comox a few days ago where luckily we contracted for a logging camp's total output, and found that Vancouver men had been trying to purchase at a largely increased figure. Of course, we had the cunch and got the logs."

"The trouble is that wealthy men are buying up every available acre of standing timber to hold as an investment. There is hardly any that has not been snapped up at high figures, and the smaller mills are in danger of being frozen out. Only one mill company in this city owns its own limits, and it is a case of bid, bid, bid for raw material from hand loggers and others."

"We have also to pay much more for labor than formerly. Chinese workmen have had their wages raised, and there is absolutely no surety of stability in the labor market. This makes it most difficult for us to estimate on contracts, besides jeopardizing those we already have on hand. These things must be taken into consideration, and the recent raise in prices was absolutely necessary."

"With both labor and material rapidly advancing in price the rates to purchasers must be advanced. This has not been done more than to warrant a reasonable interest on money invested, and I think we are entitled to that."

It is very probable the local lumbermen's association will shortly make a statement on the subject. In the meantime the foregoing gives an accurate statement of their stand on the subject of prices.

 From the Interior.
 Hon. R. F. Green, chief commissioner of lands and works, returned last evening from a trip into the Cariboo district. This was the first official visit the chief commissioner has ever made into that part of the province, he says, and was undertaken with P. C. Gamble, the chief antiquary of the department, for the purpose of inspecting the roads and looking generally into the needs of the district.

 The residents of Cariboo, Hon. Mr.
 Green says, are very hopeful. The work which J. B. Hobson has done in interesting capitalists like the Guggenheims has had a wonderful effect. It has pre-empted other people to make investments, realizing that the outside world has now been attracted to the riches of the hydraulic propositions.

NEW ZEALAND AND STATES.

Sir Joseph Ward Will Open Negotiations
 for Reciprocity Treaty.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 6.—Sir Joseph Ward, premier of New Zealand, took luncheon with President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill to-day. Before proceeding to the President's home, Sir Joseph said he was most interested with the President in the possibility of negotiating a reciprocity treaty between the United States and New Zealand. The latter country, he said, had a surplus of wool and gum. New Zealand could negotiate a treaty with the United States, he said, without reference to the British government, and he was prepared to take the official preliminary steps in that matter, and was anxious that such steps should be taken before he leaves the country. He said he should endeavor to leave the matter in the hands of the British embassy at Washington on his departure from the country.

The four-year-old child of Earl Irvine was hurt yesterday afternoon, being knocked over by Chief Watson's rig on the corner of King's road and Second street. The injuries were painful, but not serious.
