MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: John Cooke, National Enquirer

Mr. John Cooke, a reporter for the National Enquirer, called the office this morning and talked to J. W. Moore. He said that he wanted to find out some information about our personnel files, specifically if we maintain a 201 file similar to the military. He was referred to Dennis Berend after which he mentioned that he had been talking to Jeanne de Morenschildt and that she had mentioned she and her husband were acquainted with the CIA chief in Dallas, Jim Moore. He wanted to confirm this and discuss the relationship. He was informed that any information on this subject that Moore possessed would only be discussed with the properly constituted authorities of the U.S. Government.
