

WAR IS REAL

FUTURE OF NATIONS DEPENDS ON OUTCOME

That war is on in earnest among the European countries is only too evident among those who have friends in the fight. Englishmen know that most of the regiments of their army are fighting a battle on which the future of the empire may depend. Many thousands have friends and relatives in the army. They know the death roll will be longer than in the case of any British force since the Crimean war.

The only information the country has had regarding the battle is contained in brief official bulletins of a vague character, and these have not been cheering. Throughout London the people are in much more serious mood than at any time since they faced the war. There are no scenes of gaiety in the theater and restaurants and the crowded streets are very quiet.

This does not mean that there is any less determination on the part of the Britons—only that the people are beginning to realize what this war may cost them. On every side are heard declarations that the country must be prepared for a long and exhausting struggle.

While not many reproaches come from supporters of Lord Roberts' crusade for compulsory military service, not a few admit they never realized how small a part the British army counted in a great European struggle.

Germany with her trained soldiers is overcoming the efforts of her enemies in their scattered condition. If the strength of the armies of Europe in opposition to Germany could unite, German defeat would follow, but as it is the German army large in numbers, well trained and full of determination and working out from a well protected center with prospects of victory unless the enemy can agree upon a centralized plan.

The French and English, the plan of attack having failed owing to unforeseen difficulties, have retired on the covering positions.

West of the Meuse the English army on our left was attacked by the Germans, but behaved admirably, holding its ground with traditional steadfastness.

The French assumed the offensive with two army corps. An African brigade in the front line carried away by their eagerness, were received by a murderous fire. They did not give an inch, but counter-attacked by the Prussian guard, they were obliged to retire, only, however, after inflicting enormous losses. The Prussian guard especially suffered heavily.

East of the Meuse our troops advanced across an extremely difficult country and made a very courageous attack when they emerged from the woods, but were obliged to fall back after a stiff fight south of the River Semois.

On order of Gen. Joffre our troops and the British troops withdrew to the covering positions. Our troops are intact; our cavalry has in no way suffered and our artillery has affirmed its superiority. Our officers and soldiers are in the best of condition, morally and physically.

As a result of the orders which have been issued, the aspect of the struggle will change for a few days. The French army will remain for a time on the defensive, but at the right moment, to be decided upon by the commander-in-chief, it will resume a vigorous offensive.

Our losses are heavy; it would be premature to enumerate them. It would be equally so to enumerate those of the Germans, who suffered so heavily that they were obliged to abandon their counter-attacks and establish themselves in fresh positions in Lorraine.

We delivered four attacks yesterday from our positions north of Nancy, inflicting very heavy loss on the enemy.

In regard to the general situation we have the full use of our railroads and retain the command of the seas. Our operations have enabled the Russians to come into action and penetrate the heart of West Prussia.

It is to be regretted that the offensive operations planned failed to achieve their purpose, as a result of difficulties impossible to foresee. It would have shortened the war, but our defenses would remain intact in the presence of an already weakened enemy.

Our valiant people will know how to find courage to support this trial, with unflinching faith in final success, which is not to be doubted. In telling to the country the whole truth, the government and military authorities give it the strongest proof of their absolute confidence in victory, which depends only on our perseverance and tenacity."

IN SOCIAL REALM

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Love of 1303 Chestnut street were given a complete surprise last Saturday night by a party of their one-time Illinois friends and neighbors, the occasion being their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary, which they were forgetting. Those who called were Mr. and Mrs. Bert Lemay and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bevis and children of Van Nuys and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Kuntzner and son Burton and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Gorrill and daughter Nellie of this city. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant hour was enjoyed by all.

SURPRISED WITH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

The Rev. F. A. Field of 231 South Kenwood street celebrated his sixty-second birthday Monday, but it was not until evening that he really celebrated, for then a few guests who had been surreptitiously invited in by Mrs. Field and her daughter, Miss Bessie Field, appeared and all made merry in games, music and song.

Had Rev. Field been observant he would have noticed there were a few more roses, carnations and gillards than usual in the various rooms. Perhaps he did, but in any event nothing was said until the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Harrison, Mrs. Arthur L. Lewis, Miss Catherine Lewis, Miss Inez Harrison and Mr. Chester Weaver, then a joyful time ensued and was concluded with delicious refreshments, to which were added a beautiful birthday cake with candles.

INFORMAL AFTERNOON

As a farewell to Miss Veta Franklin, who left Monday by boat for home in Bellingham, Wash., Mrs. Edward Dale of 1461 Salem street entertained a few friends informally in her home last Saturday afternoon.

After a round of needlework and social chatter, the charming little hostess led her guests into the dining-room, where a prettily adorned table and elaborate collation awaited them. Carnations of pink, together with masses of fern, embellished the handsome lace cover, while in other parts of the house roses of the same dainty hue were used.

Mrs. Dale's guests for the afternoon were Mrs. J. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Andrew Robertson, Mrs. J. W. Dutton, Mrs. Raymond P. Foss, Mrs. Mable Ocker, Mrs. Blake Franklin, of Glendale; Mrs. J. H. Stacy and Mrs. W. Klappenhauf of Los Angeles and Miss Veta Franklin of Bellingham, Wash.

PURPLE AND WHITE ANNIVERSARY DINNER

In the home of Capt. and Mrs. J. A. Neel, 146 South Louise street, Monday evening merriment and fun reigned supreme, for in celebration of their eleventh wedding anniversary these gracious people entertained with an elaborate dinner party followed by cards and dancing. The entire home had been transformed into a bowerland of purple buds and blossoms, dozens of asters and quantities of ferns, both potted and cut having been utilized in a most progressive manner.

At 7 o'clock the fourteen guests found their places at a long table in the dining-room, where the soft glow of purple shaded lights and candles cast a restful glimmer over the whole. Suspended from the center of the ceiling was a canopy constructed of purple tissue and trailing fern. Bursting forth in a shower below the purple encased lights were freshly cut asters and ferns caught together with perky bows and streamers of satin-edged ribbon. These swung clear of the center bouquet that nodded forth from a cut vase in the center of the spotless cloth. At either end of the table tall crystal sticks holding purple shaded tapers stood guard over end mounds of asters and fern, blossoms of which had found their way at the head of the fourteen covers set and marked with purple embossed name cards.

Following the sumptuous repast, the ices and bonbons, which were in keeping with the chosen motif that also predominated in the beautiful anniversary cake, dancing and cards were enjoyed in the large living-room, where an added decorative feature was a huge elk head, the antlers of which were studded with incandescent lights.

Mirth and laughter continued until a late hour and ceased only when those present reluctantly withdrew to their respective homes.

Among those bidden to assist Capt. and Mrs. Neel in the celebration of

DEATH AT CROSSING

THE ANNUAL SLAUGHTER ON RUM ROAD IS VERY STUPENDOUS

The record of death at the grade crossings in this country for steam roads only reads like after a battle:

Year.	Killed.	Injured.
1911	992	2434
1912	1032	2506

This is appalling and calls for a remedy if one can be discovered. Crossings of steam lines by common roads at grade are now so numerous that to abolish grade crossings entirely by going over or under seems utterly impracticable. Added to this is the fact that the number of trains and rate of speed have greatly increased within the last few years. This of the railroads. It is authoritatively stated that by far the largest number of these crossing accidents occur in country sections and the victims are farmers. This upsets our usual estimate of the cautious character of the farmer and our old-time notions must be amended at this point. Our modern farmer, ranch man, granger, no longer is the "slow poke" of the past, scarce moving along an almost impassable road behind an almost immovable plug team of well-ribbed horses, but on good roads driving a high-speed modern machine he travels nearly as fast as the train with which he is often tempted to dispute the crossing and gets worsted by the impact.

Congressman Rainey of Illinois is working on a bill to prevent this slaughtering in this way of four persons per day, and twice that many injured. He proposes to compel the railroads to place gates, watchmen and use electric signal bells at every crossing in the United States. This seems a big undertaking. It is but something that should be done to lessen the killing.

And yet Rainey's total of killed and wounded for three years is not one in ten to the annual slaughter on the "rum road." Help on the big job. Make California "dry." S. P.

ROBERT BURDETTE DYING

Bob Burdette, noted humorist and Pasadena's most famous citizen, is lying in a serious condition at his summer home at Clifton-by-the-Sea, and his death at any minute will not surprise his friends.

Last Tuesday Dr. Burdette was seized with a sinking spell and lay in a state of coma for twenty-four hours, with his death momentarily expected. He afterward rallied, but his condition is still extremely critical, according to physicians who have attended him.

Dr. Burdette is suffering from a complication of diseases, any one of which, his physician states, may cause his death at any moment. For two years the noted humorist has been ailing and several times his life was despaired of, but on each occasion he rallied and seemed for a time to gain ground. He is now past seventy and his advanced age is proving a handicap.

With Mrs. Burdette, the former minister went to the family's seaside home at Clifton early in the summer and there he recently celebrated his seventieth birthday. Telegrams of congratulation were received by the humorist from all parts of the world.

EUROPEAN TRAVELERS HOME

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Cole of 331 Orange street returned Thursday of last week from a pleasant visit in Ireland, Scotland and England. They fortunately sailed from England on the last boat that left just before the European war began. After arriving in the United States they visited relatives and friends for several weeks.

LASSIES TAKE LONG HIKE

Miss Bessie L. Field and Miss Grace Linnhart returned on Monday from Switzer's camp, to which place they walked from Montrose on Saturday, returning the same way. Both young ladies are advocates for fresh air and exercise and more than enjoyed the hike and outing at that popular resort, where a most entertaining week-end is always planned by the management.

If business conditions become strained and demoralized, big business, and it alone, will be to blame.

This momentous occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Jordan S. Neel, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Neel, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gus H. Pulliam, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilde, Miss Lucille Wilde, Master Stafford Wilde, Little Jane Neel and Archie Neel.

WHO'S ROCKING BOAT?

BIG BUSINESS BOOSTS PRICES SKY HIGH AND INVITES RETALIATION

Recently a striking editorial appeared entitled "Sit Tight and Don't Rock the Boat." It was well timed and was echoed and re-echoed by big business from one end of the country to the other. Big business is always anxious that the people be safe and sane, according to its own peculiar ideas, when its own interests are concerned.

At other times it proceeds with an utter disregard of the rights of the people, until the people, driven to desperation, seek to curb it. And then big business cries and whines that it is being mistreated and injured, and that the country is being ruined by striking at big business. This is the cry when anything is done to curb and control big business in its nefarious practices.

Just now when the people are prepared to be safe and sane and when business conditions are improving, big business takes advantage of the consumer and thrusts the knife of high prices into his very vitals. That a general European war should make some difference in prices is inevitable. That those articles which we import directly from the countries at war and those things for which the principal ingredients are imported, should advance in price is to be expected. But just why the things we are producing at home and which, it is believed, we are producing in larger quantities this year than ever before and which we have hitherto been in the habit of exporting which we cannot do now should also increase, is beyond the understanding of the average consumer.

For instance, sugar has advanced from $4.75 per hundred pounds at wholesale to $8.50, although we are producing sugar in greater quantities than ever before. The excuse that is offered is that heretofore England has been buying her sugar of Germany and now that that source of supply is cut off, she is turning to the United States. There may be an iota of truth in the statement, but the war has not been going on for any length of time and prices could not possibly have raised legitimately as much as they have been, for England has as yet bought very little of our sugar. Therefore, it is evident that big business is taking advantage of the consumer, as it has always done whenever permitted to do so.

Crop reports say we have one of the greatest wheat crops in our history, if not the greatest. Heretofore, we have been exporting large quantities of it. None at present can be exported. These conditions, it would seem, would make flour even cheaper to the consumer, but just the opposite is true. Flour has gone up. The price of these two articles has made it necessary for the bakers to advance the price of their articles.

We have done no importing of meat from the countries at war, while we have sent them some. We are not able to send them any at present, yet the retail price of meat has advanced without a proportionate advance in the price of cattle and hogs.

Recently flaxseed dropped ten cents or more, which should have made linseed oil cheaper. Instead of that, oil advanced.

It is just such inconsistencies that force the consumer to believe that big business is following its usual custom and taking advantage of him. He has refused to get excited about the war and has gone about his business in his usual way, only to be called upon to pay war prices for everything he buys.

President Wilson is to be greatly commended for his efforts to keep the nation at peace with the nations that are at war and to continue that relation and he will receive hearty commendation from the voters of the nation, if he will put the machinery of the government at work and locate the responsibility for this illegitimate advance in prices.

The people who are behind this illegitimate advance are traitors to the nation even though they may not be legally guilty of treason. Morally they are. If there is any way that they can be brought to justice, it should be done and done speedily. It is such criminal acts on the part of big business, which is always whining because it isn't getting a square deal, while at the same time it never fails to take advantage of the people when it can, which is forcing the nation nearer to socialism every day.

The president is justified in using every means within his power to curb those responsible for this outrage on the consumer and place them where they deserve to be, not only on the gibbet of public opinion, but behind prison bars.

CITY FATHERS MEET

LITTLE BUSINESS OF IMPORTANCE AT MEETING OF CITY TRUSTEES

No occurrences of great interest took place at the trustees' meeting at the city hall Monday evening. All of the trustees were present. Also the city manager and other city officials.

City Attorney W. E. Evans and H. B. Lynch, the superintendent of the lighting department, had just returned from a trip two hundred miles north, where they had been to visit L. C. Brand on matters of business concerning the city's taking over the water systems in which Mr. Brand is interested.

Although Mr. Brand is in camp taking a much-needed rest, he did not neglect to give these gentlemen a cordial welcome and a respectful hearing. They found Mr. Brand ready to co-operate with the city of Glendale in every reasonable way.

Additional proceedings will be published in tomorrow's News.

INTERESTING REEL PRODUCTION

Members of the Selig Motion Picture company at the Usona studio on East Ninth street are all eagerness for next week to come, as 'tis then "Chip of the Flying U" will be shown at Clune's auditorium, Los Angeles, and that picture, you know, is a four-reel dramatization of B. M. Bowers' book, in which Mr. Mix, the director, and Katherine Williams played the leads.

The contract for furnishing the public schools of Glendale with supplies, etc., for the current school year has been awarded the Glendale Paint & Paper Co. Action was taken by the board of education at a meeting held for that purpose the latter part of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McCall, who have resided at Roseburg, Oregon, have become residents of Glendale, their home being at 110 West Fifth street. Thus far Mr. McCall is greatly pleased with California climate.

FIVE HUNDRED PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Noyes of 108 North Kenwood very pleasantly entertained a number of friends at Five Hundred on Friday evening in honor of Dr. Frances Thoms of Seattle and Mrs. C. A. Birch of Spokane, who are guests of the family. A pleasing feature of the occasion was the fact that all present formerly lived in St. Cloud, Minn., with the exception of Dr. Thoms, whose former home, however, was near there.

MEET AFTER SEVEN YEARS

Mrs. Emmet Eastman of East Los Vegas, New Mexico, arrived at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. A. La Grass, 301 North Louise street, on an extended visit. Mrs. La Grass has not seen her sister for seven years and of course is more than delighted to see her.

METHOD NOMINATION

WEAKNESS IN PRESENT SYSTEM AND MONEY HAS DECIDED INFLUENCE

Today is primary election day. It is an important day for a few of the candidates. The contest has been conducted in such a manner that aspirants for office have spent a small fortune. They have worked hard and today is the crucial time. Many of them would not have entered the race had they known that the contest would have been so expensive and so trying.

The Glendale Evening News favors the plan of primary elections, but there seems to be a weakness in the present system, in as much that the man, regardless of ability, who can spend the most money in advertising his campaign, has a decided advantage over the man who is short of campaign funds. There is a wrong there that should be remedied, but just how this may be done is a question open for intelligent discussion.

If the present plan of conducting primary elections is kept up the time is not far distant when men best qualified to hold high offices will not allow their names to be used as candidates.

Do not understand the writer to be opposed to the primary law so far as it means giving the people the privilege of participating directly in naming the candidates for office. The principle of primary elections is all right, but there is something wrong with the plan of conducting them.

OPENING OF HIGH SCHOOL

High school students will meet for the organization of classes on Tuesday, Sept. 8. All students are expected to enroll and give in their study lists in advance. Those who have not done this or who wish to make any changes in study list already filed, are requested to do so between Monday, August 31, and noon, Saturday, Sept. 5. Saturday afternoon and Monday, Sept. 7, are reserved for teachers' work.

GEO. U. MOYSE,
Principal.

ANOTHER HARBOR EXCURSION TOMORROW

Owing to the great success of the first excursion from Glendale to Harbor Industrial City, Roy C. Howells, manager of subdivisions for the W. I. Hollingsworth Co. of Los Angeles, has decided to run another excursion from Glendale on Wednesday, August 26th. Many conservative business men of Glendale took the trip to Harbor City on the first excursion and after careful investigation made their investment there. The number of tickets for the excursion tomorrow is limited and it would be well for people contemplating the trip to get their tickets today at the local office in the Goldfish cafe. The price of the tickets is twenty-five cents, which includes everything from Glendale to Harbor City and return, including lunch served at the lecture hall at Harbor City.

GERMAN ARMY IN FRANCE

Official reports from Paris admit that the German army is occupying three French cities, Luneville, Dieulouard and Amance.

The following statement has been issued by the British war office: "The English forces were engaged all day Sunday until after dark near Mons, Belgium. Word has been received that the first line of defense at Namur has been taken. This necessitated the withdrawal of a portion of our troops from the line of operation on the river Sambre. No casualty list has been received. These lists will be published as soon as possible."

Russia is pushing her troops in great force through East Prussia along a 130-mile front.

Unofficial reports say that the Japanese have begun the siege of Kiaochow.

Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria is in a critical condition. His death is but a question of hours.

RETURN TO COLORADO HOME

Miss Lillian Mills of 422 South Louise street entertained as guests in her home Monday Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Rutherford, who will leave Thursday for their home in Boulder, Colorado. Until two weeks ago Mrs. Rutherford was Miss Norma Singleton of Denver, Colorado, having spent the summer at Ocean Park with her parents, on whose account she was very quietly married by the Rev. C. Irving Mills, D. D., a family friend, at St. Mark's Episcopal church, Glendale, Sunday, August 9th.

As Americans let us be thankful that we want to be at peace with the world and that we are at peace with the world.

The optimist is the cheerful builder—the constructive force. The pessimist is the gloomy wrecker—the destructive force.

Nature cannot be charged with failure to provide all kinds of scenery here in California for the delectation of sightseers.

HELD AS RUSSIAN SPIES

Of the thousands upon thousands of American tourists who were in Europe at the breaking out of the war not many have had the humiliating experience of the three girls mentioned in this morning's Times.

The account is as follows: Miss Ake, whose parents reside in Spokane, Miss Ruth Corlett of Walla Walla, and Misses Cora and Mildred Lane of Lafayette, Ind., were taken into custody on the outskirts of Berlin and for three days were kept prisoners by the Germans under suspicion of being Muscovite spies.

According to the meager information in the possession of her aunt, Mrs. Kleibert, supplemented by the little that has found its way past the censors of press dispatches, the girls were subjected to no indignities other than being given the military third degree by the kaiser's officers and kept under guard at a pension pending an investigation of their movements.

Miss Ake, daughter of Joseph Ake, a retired wholesale grocer, is 22 years of age and her companions are about as old. They were four of a party of twelve young ladies spending the summer in Europe under the wing of Miss Adeline Swarth, a former instructor at Smith college, who now conducts a private tourist agency, herself acting as guide and chaperone.

The party left New York in April and have spent the intervening months traveling through France, England, Switzerland and Italy.

Arrested at Berlin

The last word received from their niece by the Kleiberts, prior to learning of her arrest as a supposed spy, was a picture postcard from Rome, postmarked July 14. At that time the entire party was together. Mrs. Kleibert is of the opinion that the four girls taken from the train at Berlin must have secured permission from Miss Swarth to visit the capital alone, as she is unable to otherwise account for their humiliating experience.

It appears that they were on their way thither to visit relatives of the Lane girls and that they had written ahead so that these relatives whose names Mrs. Kleibert does not know would meet them at the station.

This arrangement proved their undoing. When the military guard boarded the train on the outskirts of Berlin all the non-German passengers were closely questioned as to their destinations and identity. This because on the preceding day two Russian spies, dressed as nuns had been arrested.

None of the four girls could speak much German and the effort of Miss Corlett to make herself intelligible in French appeared to only arouse suspicion in the minds of the guard. When they were obliged to admit that they did not know the address of the Lanes' relatives and were expecting to be met at the station, the circumstance struck the soldiers as a palpable evasion, particularly as the girls appeared greatly frightened and confused.

They were promptly removed from the train and conducted to a strange pension, where a guard was placed over them. To their tearful appeals that their friends be notified of their plight the officers replied that unless the address be furnished nothing could be done. Instead, a Russian interpreter was called and he spent several hours trying to trap the girls into answering him in what was supposed to be their native tongue.

He finally reported his conviction that the girls were not Russian. The German officials immediately notified the American embassy and, in their presence, the quartet was again examined by an attache of that office. By this time they had sufficiently recovered their composure to be able to give a connected account of their movements. The Germans, at length convinced of their innocence, released them with profound apologies and assisted them to get transportation out of the war zone. They made their way to England and are now reported to be on their way to New York.

During the past few years Miss Ake has spent much time at the home of her uncle in Eagle Rock and she is well known in Pasadena. She figured in an automobile smashup at the Cawston ostrich farm crossing two years ago, in which several persons, all in the party except herself, were injured.

THE SEDUCTIVE ADVERTISEMENT

"I'll sell my house," said Hawley Roe And build another on the hill, Where all the fashionables live, These common districts make me ill."

And so he summoned instantly A real estate to his bosom, A blithe and elegant young man Just bubbling with enthusiasm.

The real estate saw the place, Examined it from stone to slate, And said "I'll sell it for you sure, The possibilities are great, I'll write the ad this very day, Call in tonight and you may read it.

A house like yours is rather scarce, I know a score of folks who need it.

Roe called. He read the ad with ease, With growing interest and surprise.

The real estate's polished art Brought honest wonder to his eyes. The hardwood floors, the noble yard, The handy features of the place, All these were mentioned in a style Of wondrous literary grace.

"It suits?" the real estate asked, The author's smile upon his lips. "You bet it does," responded Roe, His hands a-resting upon his hips.

"I didn't think the place was so Desirable and fine and fair. Look here, it's not for sale, old chap. I'm goin' to keep on livin' there."

PLAIN LIVING DOES NOT IMPLY LOW THINKING

An incident chronicled by a recent hostess at the White House whose invitation to dinner was not accepted nor even rejected, save by a telephoned query, "Must I wear a dress suit?" sounds a note from the far past, indeed. Time was when "shirt-sleeve diplomacy" was a phrase to sum up reproach of American lack of decorous tradition.

But rules of precedent and the growth of public confidence in the moral support of good clothes have now put the United States somewhat nearer the old world standard in certain of these matters, by an upward or downward step, as the observer may opine.

If Teufelsdröckh were abroad again he would find the question actually afloat in the United States: "Shall a man retain the rank of gentleman who lets himself be photographed without his collar?" How far clothes make the man, how much is left of human dignity when it is stripped of its frock coat, is the puzzled query of the moment.

America's persistent love of the open, however, of reverting so far as may be to primitive conditions, is proved by the public interest in a recent test of totally unaided manhood alone in the Maine woods.

Other proof of American love of roughing it is seen also in the popular custom of camping out. People who could visit the woods in the conditions of civilization deliberately choose to put up with what seems to some observers hardship and discomfort; the campers call it getting free from trammels. For them the collar implies a yoke, the coat is a straitjacket, and four walls do a prison make.

The housekeeper, weary of dishes that have to be washed three times a day and set back in the same spot, loves to break—if not the dishes—the bonds of formality and throws her paper plates into the campfire. She even avers this a more elegant way of getting rid of their refuse than by the processes of the dishpan.

individual cups and table linen, the shave and the shampoo, are needed to keep humanity from reverting to barbarism. Yet it does not appear that barbarism was without its daily ceremonials of the toilet. The bath and the hair brushing of civilized man are of course part of his comfort anywhere. His clothing too often is not, nor much of his household paraphernalia. Starched garments are not comfortable nor yet beautiful, nor clothes nor furnishings that hinder the normal activities. Cleanliness is so much a part of camp life that those who come back from it often find city houses rather stuffy. A large part of the enjoyment of nature is delight in things that are new every morning. The plunge into the lake or the foaming surf has freshness and purity and a feeling of true elegance beyond that of any elaborately furnished bathroom, say the lovers of the wilderness. To them, clothing washed out of doors, dried in sun and wind, and donned without touch of the hot iron is fresher than that which comes stiff and starched from the laundry. If these things are true, then the love of primitive places and conditions may not be always a trend backward. Perhaps it is often the instinctive longing for things not made with hands.—Christian Science Monitor.
